CONSUMER PRICE INDEX FOR NOVEMBER 1963

The Consumer Price Index climbed 0.2 percent in November to a new high, the United States Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics announced today. The increase was caused mostly by higher housing and food costs, although prices of many other goods and services also advanced. The November index, at 107.4 (1957-59=100), was 1.3 percent above a year ago, with consumer services, which were up by 2.1 percent, accounting for more than one-half of the increase.

HOUSING

Housing costs advanced 0.3 percent during the month, largely because of higher homeownership costs. Rents continued their gradual upward trend. Coal and fuel oil prices rose seasonally, and household operation and housefurnishings costs also increased. The housing index was 1.4 percent higher than a year earlier, mainly because of the increases in homeownership costs, and those for housekeeping services and rents.

FOOD

Advances in prices of fresh vegetables and sugar were the principal cause of an increase of 0.2 percent in average food prices in November. Fresh vegetables were up 7.8 percent, largely because of sharp rises in prices of lettuce and tomatoes. With smaller world supplies in prospect, sugar prices were raised by 6.7 percent and were 20 percent higher than a year ago.

Fresh fruit prices averaged 1.2 percent lower in November, led by declines in prices of citrus fruits. While orange prices declined, frozen and canned orange juice were higher. Prices of grapes advanced sharply. Meats averaged 1.0 percent lower, primarily because of decreases in prices of pork. Egg prices were down 4.2 percent, as production reached a new high for November.

Food prices in November averaged 1.0 percent above last year. Prices of fruits and vegetables, sugar, nonalcoholic beverages, dairy products, and bread were higher, while meat, poultry, and egg prices had declined.

OTHER GOODS AND SERVICES

Apparel prices were up 0.2 percent in November, as costs of footwear and men's and boys' clothing continued to advance. Women's and girls' apparel prices remained at their October levels in November.

Transportation costs edged up 0.1 percent in November. A decline in gasoline prices was more than offset by increases in prices of used cars and costs of automobile insurance. New car prices rose fractionally, but were 0.6 percent below a year ago.

Costs of reading and recreation increased by 0.1 percent in November, mostly because of a rise of 0.5 percent in newspaper prices to a point 6.3 percent higher than last year. Motion picture admission charges declined slightly in November, but were 4.0 percent above November 1962. Medical care rose slightly on increased physicians' and surgeons' fees.

COST-OF-LIVING
ADJUSTMENTS

As a result of the November national index, about 95,000 workers will receive cost-of-living wage increases of 1 to 4 cents an hour. Of these, 70,000 workers in the meatpacking industry will receive 3-cent increases based on semi-annual reviews, and 6,000 chemical workers and 5,000 aerospace employees will receive a 1-cent quarterly increase. In addition, cost-of-living allowances for 85,000 aerospace workers will remain at existing levels.

The quarterly allowances of 4,000 food processing workers will be reduced 1 cent an hour, based on the Detroit index.

Brief Explanation of the CPI

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) measures average changes in prices of goods and services usually bought by city families of wage earners and clerical workers. It is based on prices of about 300 items which were selected so that their price changes would represent the movement of prices of all goods and services purchased by wage and clerical families; they include all of the important items in family spending. Prices for these items are obtained in 46 cities which were chosen to represent all urban places in the United States; they are collected from grocery and department stores, hospitals, filling stations, and other types of stores and service establishments which wage-earner and clerical-worker families patronize.

Prices of foods, fuels, and a few other items are obtained every month in all 46 cities. Prices of most other commodities and services are collected every month in the 5 largest cities and every 3 months in other cities. Mail questionnaires are used to obtain local transit fares, public utility rates, newspaper prices, fuel prices, and certain other items which change in price infrequently. Prices of most other goods and services are obtained by personal visits of the Bureau's trained representatives.

In calculating the index, price changes for the various items in each city are averaged together with weights which represent their importance in family spending. City data are then combined in the total index with weights based on the 1950 populations of cities they represent. Index numbers are computed on the base 1957-59 = 100.

The national index (the United States city average) includes prices from the 20 large cities for which separate indexes are published in this report, as well as from the following 26 medium-sized and small cities:

Anna, Illinois	Huntington, W. Virginia	Pulaski, Virginia
Camden, Arkansas	Laconia, New Hampshire	Ravenna, Ohio
Canton, Ohio	Lodi, California	Rawlins, Wyoming
Charleston, W. Virginia	Lynchburg, Virginia	San Jose, California
Evansville, Indiana	Madill, Oklahoma	Sandpoint, Idaho
Garrett, Indiana	Madison, Wisconsin	Shawnee, Oklahoma
Glendale, Arizona	Middlesboro, Kentucky	Shenandoah, Iowa
Grand Forks, N. Dakota	Middletown, Connecticut	Youngstown, Ohio
Grand Island, Nebraska	Newark, Ohio

Comparisons of city indexes show only that prices in one city changed more or less than in another. The city indexes cannot be used to measure differences in price levels or in living costs between cities.

A description of the index and historical tables of index numbers for the United States city average and for 20 large cities are available on request to the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington or any of its regional offices (addresses below). The historical tables for the U.S. include index numbers for All Items, Food, Apparel, and Rent for periods from 1913 to date; and for other groups of goods and services from 1935 to date.
