

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Marie Fischer and Sharon Spilker, teachers at Jana Elementary School in Florissant, and Margaret Sullivan, a teacher in the Riverview Gardens School District, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Deborah Fitzgerald, a teacher at Reed School, and Judy Ware, a teacher at Crossroads School, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Millie Seiler, a teacher at Edwardsville Junior High, and Gloria Zupanci, a teacher at Worden Elementary School, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Linda Briner Ames and Judith L. Cline, teachers in the Granite City School District, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Ellen Feldmeier and Tricia Vader, teachers at Ellisville Elementary School, and Sandy Sparks, a teacher at Selvidge Middle School, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Sandy Baechele, a teacher at St. Augustine of Canterbury School, and Jerry Garrett, a teacher at Wirth Middle School, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Sandra Jackson and Marcia Scantlin, teachers at Weaubleau Middle School, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Colleen McCarthy, a teacher at Sperrens Middle School, was a member of almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Louise Thompson, a teacher at Union High School, was a member of almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###

NEWS RELEASE

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis
St. Louis Little Rock Louisville Memphis

For release: July 3, 1996

Area Educators Attend Money and Banking Course at Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Contact: Charles B. Henderson (314) 444-8311

96-45

ST. LOUIS - Rose Cody, Nelda Hollander and Judy Rhodes, teachers at Orchard Farm Elementary School, and Cheryl Griffin, a teacher at Wentzville South Middle School, were among almost 30 educators from Missouri and Illinois who attended a week-long course on money and banking held at the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis from June 24-28.

Offered through the Centers for Economic Education at University of Missouri-St. Louis and Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, the course helped the teachers learn how to integrate topics on money and banking into social studies, language arts and math. The classes featured several officers and economists with the St. Louis Fed, including Thomas C. Melzer, the Bank's president and chief executive officer. The teachers who attended received two graduate hours for completing the course.

The Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis serves the Eighth Federal Reserve District, which includes all of Arkansas, eastern Missouri, southern Indiana and southern Illinois, western Kentucky and western Tennessee, and northern Mississippi. The Bank has branches in Louisville, Memphis and Little Rock.

###