LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

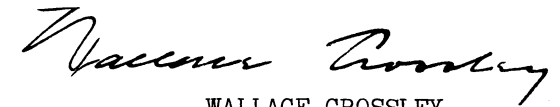

The Honorable Guy B. Park
Governor of Missouri
Jefferson City, Missouri

Sir:

I am pleased to transmit herewith a report on net expenditures for emergency relief in Missouri covering the period September, 1932, through October, 1936. The disbursements are detailed for the biennium just ended, except for the last two months. This report agrees with the audit reports to the Federal Emergency Relief Administration except for recoveries, refunds, and cancellations not reflected in statements of gross expenditures.

Certain observations born of our experience in meeting the crisis of unemployment preface the report. These, together with other data presented, should be of value in formulating future relief policies of the State.

Respectfully submitted,

WALLACE CROSSLEY

Administrator

Jefferson City, Mo.

December 31, 1936.

EMERGENCY RELIEF IN MISSOURI 1935-36

INTRODUCTION AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Scope of this Report

This report covers emergency relief activities and expenditures from September, 1932, when Federal funds first became available to the State, through October, 1936. While it is perhaps too early to attempt evaluation of emergency relief activities, some observations born of our experience in administering relief in the crisis of mass unemployment and mass suffering can be made with certainty. These suggestions presented here as a preface may be found to merit executive and legislative consideration.

Care of the Poor

Care of the destitute poor, whether reduced to want by unemployment or other vicissitudes of life, has undergone marked changes during the last seven years. The poor laws as they existed in most states at the time of the economic dislocation of 1929 were similar to those enacted by the early colonists--a system devised during the reign of Queen Elizabeth to meet the problems attendant upon the break-down of the feudal system.

The philosophy of this system maintained that relief was a local problem; that aid should be granted only to local residents of the community paying the bill; and that aid should be difficult (humiliating) to obtain since it went to the chronically shiftless. Missouri, in general, accepted this theory and was thoroughly conservative in its attitude although a few of the populous centers have for some years maintained and appreciated private relief agencies which ministered to the destitute upon the basis of varying and actual need, with systematic investigation.

This system broke down under the onslaught of widespread unemployment and distress. In the emergency hasty changes were made in the structure of giving relief. Many states appropriated funds to help communities in meeting the unusual demands; and finally the Federal Government stepped into the breach. New ideals of social justice emerged; we came to recognize the moral responsibility of machine-age society to provide for the victims of an industrial and economic world of our own creation. The Federal Emergency Relief Administration was created May 12, 1933 and a huge appropriation was made by Congress. The states cooperated, and Missouri did its part.

Subsequently, in 1935, the Federal Government, by withdrawing from the field of direct relief, abandoned a position it recognized as no longer defensible in the face of expanding commerce and industry; the emergency was passing; and what was then needed was a long-range, carefully planned program of public assistance, embracing a definitely stated basis for state-federal partnership. A beginning was made in the social security legislation enacted by the last Congress. It recognizes that social security is just as essential to the general welfare of the people as public education or public health. But it remains for the states to make this legislation thoroughly effective.

While the great crisis of unemployment seems to have been passed, public assistance, apart from institutional care for which other provisions exist, will for some time to come be a major problem confronting the State and the Nation. Thoughtful observers agree that there are millions of employable persons who never again will be gainfully employed at regular weekly or monthly wages, and that additional millions will continue to be destitute and dependent because of physical or mental disability. Missouri, in common with other states, has a continuing responsibility to thousands of her citizens who have not found employment in private industry or on projects financed by public funds, nor for whom no other provision has been made. The cities and counties also find themselves faced with the necessity of providing revenues for unemployment relief.

This problem must call forth the best thought that we can give to its solution, so that related activities may be coordinated and efficiency in administration be effected with the least possible cost to the taxpayers. Such coordination would prevent overlapping and duplication of effort, and would eliminate the present practice by those who feel themselves to be in need, of shopping around for public assistance.

In this connection, it should be borne in mind that the Missouri Relief Commission is the agent of the United States Department of Labor in the selection of boys from relief families for the Civilian Conservation Corps, and has the further continuing responsibility for allocating Federal surplus commodities and for the certification of relief eligibility to the National Youth Administration, the Resettlement Administration, the Works Progress Administration, and related programs. It is also charged with administering the residue of Federal Transient funds.

RECOMMENDATION:

That all the State's welfare and social security activities, now administered by the Missouri Relief Commission, and the Board of Managers of State Eleemosynary Institutions, be centered under a single administrative board, to be charged with effecting the following ends:

- 1) Proper State and local participation in Federal social security activities;
- 2) Proper State and local participation in caring for those unemployed and unemployable persons not otherwise provided for;
- 3) The centralization of administration into the hands of local authorities with Federal and State supervision to assure maintenance of proper standards and control of State and Federal funds;
- 4) The introduction of administrative procedures that will assure qualified personnel, uniform accounting and reporting, and efficient investigation of applicants and recipients of governmental bounty, whether in the form of work or aid under the various public assistance programs.

This board should have three general divisions: (a) Public Assistance; (b) Child Welfare; and (c) Institutions--the last two continuing as at present, while the Division of Public Assistance would embrace direct relief activities, old age assistance, blind pensions, and aid to dependent children. Such a consolidation of these related programs, would prevent duplication of effort and eliminate overlapping activities, thereby reducing administrative costs and making large savings for the taxpayers.

County Organization

Prior to the creation of the Federal Emergency Administration in May, 1933, relief funds in the counties were disbursed by citizens' committees and private social agencies, working in a loose collaboration. From the first, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration worked toward the establishment of reasonably adequate standards of relief and reasonably uniform state and county organizations. To effect these goals, the FEERA ruled that Federal funds should be dispensed only by public agencies. In Missouri, as elsewhere, this order forced realignments between public and private organizations and caused the designation of the volunteer county committees as public agencies. As a result, the experienced personnel of private agencies was drawn into the public service, bringing to it the benefits of experience and competency in administration.

With the curtailment of the relief program and the withdrawal of the Federal Government from the field of direct relief, leaving only to the state its quota of surplus commodities, the Missouri Relief Commission, acting on instructions from Federal authorities, stipulated that counties desiring to participate in the diminished relief program must employ a competent and qualified worker to supervise relief activities and be responsible to the state office. In nearly every case the person retained by the county was thoroughly familiar with rules and regulations and administrative procedures. The county relief committees continued to act in an advisory capacity, and their services are invaluable.

The immediate result of this new policy, effective in April, 1936, was to bring about a local recognition of the responsibility of local taxpayers to pay a share of the cost and to assume greater responsibility for administering the program in their communities on a business-like basis that assures investigation of every applicant and recipient.

In this connection, it is significant that, since this time, aside from district supervision in the field, all local administrative costs of the relief program have been paid out of local funds.

RECOMMENDATION:

That some sort of county organization, similar to the proposed State Board, be made a matter for legislative consideration and statutory enactment.

Such a board, appointed by the County Courts and approved by the State Board, would be responsible through a paid County Director for all activities. This agent would be named by the County Board, subject to approval by the State Board as to fitness and qualifications, and would represent the State Board and be subject to its regulations, but as a statutory county official would be paid from local funds.

The County Director would be responsible for the disbursement of all relief funds, for the issuing of relief orders upon the basis of investigated need, for the administering of local details of the old age assistance program and blind pensions, for child welfare activities and for such other duties as might be assigned him.

Aid to Dependent Children

There exists one other category of the needy for whom little provisions have been made and whose conditions should receive legislative consideration--dependent children. The present state law, providing for the payment of such aid, is so limited by statute that it is operative only in two or three of the larger population centers.

RECOMMENDATION:

The law relating to the payment of aid to needy widows with dependent children would be so amended as to make it effective throughout the state and to tie it in with other social security activities.

Financing Outdoor Relief in Counties

Although the unemployment problem necessitated Federal and State aid in the counties, it is traditional to the American system of government that aid is in first instance a neighborhood problem. In face of existing circumstances, State and Federal aid in the counties must be continued for some time to come; yet some provision should be made for assuring that the local communities pay as much of the cost of this assistance as their condition will permit. In some instances counties can meet the entire burden from local funds; in others, county finances are such that only part of the burden can be met with county revenues; a number of counties are unable to do anything toward caring for their destitute citizens, their relief population being in inverse ratio to their county revenues. The State Board should have the power to allocate state aid to each county on the basis of that county's ability to meet the problem of relief from its own funds.

RECOMMENDATION:

The county budget law should be so amended as to enable counties to bear their fair share of the cost of outdoor relief by removing the limitation upon Class 5 appropriations.

The Missouri Relief and Reconstruction Commission, appointed by Governor Guy B. Park after adjustment of the legislature in 1933, was reorganized August 27, 1935, as the Missouri Relief Commission, like its predecessor, a de facto body, serving at the pleasure of the Chief Executive. Members of the new Commission were: Wallace Crossley, Johnson County; John T. Harding, Jackson County; N. W. Brickey, Jefferson County; Grover James, Jasper County; C. D. Matthews, Scott County; Fred A. Morris, Audrain County; Dr. Burris A. Jenkins, Jackson County; Mrs. DeWitt C. Chastain, Bates County; Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, St. Louis; Dean Isidor Loeb, St. Louis; H. A. Sprague, Buchanan County; J. W. Head, Marion County; Dr. H. A. Buehler, Phelps County; Mrs. C. E. Still, Adair County; and Ben F. Neale, Greene County.

This Commission met several times and brought to the solving of relief problems, opinions from all sections of the state. Other meetings were held by the Executive Committee, which consists of Col. John T. Harding, Dr. H. A. Buehler, Judge N. W. Brickey, Dr. Isidor Loeb, and Wallace Crossley.

State Financing of Relief During Biennium

The Governor in his message to the Fifty-Eighth General Assembly that convened in January, 1935, urged the passage of a higher sales tax to provide additional revenues and asked larger appropriations for relief. Before appropriation bills were enacted, general crises were averted twice by resolutions appropriating $500,000.00 each for immediate use.¹

Finally a one per cent sales tax was passed,² and the legislature appropriated³ $6,000,000.00 for relief purposes and $105,000.00 for administrative expense, including the $1,000,000.00 previously made available by resolutions and $20,450.61 administrative expense previously authorized.

Sources of Relief Funds

There were three sources of relief funds--Federal, State, and local, with the Federal Government bearing about 80 per cent of the total cost. Of the State's total relief bill for the period September, 1932, through October, 1936, a sum aggregating $125,069,931.59, Missouri got $88,470,751.86 in the form of outright cash grants from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Federal Emergency Relief Administration and $10,449,560.66 in commodities granted to the State by the Federal Surplus Relief Corporation. Of the remainder, $10,754,135.83 was provided by the State in the form of relief appropriations or material donations on projects for improvement of State properties and highways; and $15,395,483.24 was spent by the local communities, part for relief and part for materials on local projects.

The following is a summary by years of the sources of funds.

Merger of Field Supervision

Special drought certification increased local problems during the late summer and fall of 1936 which with the re-investigation of the employment rolls of the Works Progress Administration taxed most heavily the reduced staffs of district workers during the last four months of the biennium. It was thought wise and expedient to join forces with the Old Age Assistance organization and to place the district supervisors upon the administrative pay roll of the Commission, thus giving to representatives of both organizations a dual responsibility and enabling them to concentrate their time and efforts upon smaller areas. This merging of activities is in line with what is proposed as a permanent public assistance plan, and became effective after a conference with the Governor in which the Relief Administrator, Old Age Assistance Commissioner and the President of the Board of Managers of State Eleemosynary Institutions participated.

Relief Activities at the Beginning of the Biennium

At the beginning of the biennium there were 148,857 Missouri families dependent on relief, and special drought aid. These cases, together with 21,315 single persons represented 17.57 per cent of the population of Missouri.*

During the month of October, 1936, there were 51,359

* Note: Population based on 1930 Census.

cases under care, representing 4.58 per cent of the population* of the State. The number of cases actually receiving relief was somewhat smaller.

The reduction in case load results primarily from the removal from the relief lists of those persons employed by the Federal Works Progress Administration. Other governmental and local activities, with the upward trend in private employment, have been a factor in continued decrease.

Administrative Expense During the Biennium

Expense of administering the huge relief program varied from month to month in direct ratio to the activities which were carried on. In the following table, detailing administrative expense for the biennium, it will be noted that expenditures for administration have decreased as total relief expenditures have decreased. But it is significant that many of the continuing responsibilities of the Missouri Relief Commission, while requiring expenditure of funds for administration, require no expenditures for aid; for example, the selection of enrollees in the Civilian Conservation Corps and the certification of relief eligibility of persons employed by the Works Progress Administration and the National Youth Administration.

NOTE: The administrative expense from May through October, 1936, shown in the table includes an average of $17,000.00 monthly for the State Office, the remainder having been borne by the counties.

Work Program

The Work Division, organized to provide work on a gradually diminishing basis for the months of April and May, 1934, was greatly expanded later in the year because of the drought. As many as 80,000 were on the work pay rolls at one time in January, 1935, and it is conservatively estimated that 100,000 different persons received employment during the existence of the program. The average earnings amounted to $16.05 a month for the entire State, with the figure of $32.00 in Kansas City and St. Louis and approximately $12.00 in the rural areas.

The Work Division, headed by Dr. H. A. Buehler, State Geologist, whose services were loaned to the Commission by Governor Park early in 1934, was responsible for the general planning and supervision of all projects and activities concerned in providing work for those persons whose eligibility for relief was certified by the Social Service Division.

Projects comprised all types of public construction, including buildings, roads, bridges, sanitary works, recreational facilities, school buildings and repairs, and other types of construction. Also, under the supervision of this department was the so-called white-collar projects for professional and technical workers. Women's Work comprising many production-for-use projects, such as mattress factories and sewing rooms, was a department under this division. In fact, all programs that utilized relief labor, such as canning factories, commodity distribution, safety engineering, education, water conservation and development, and production projects in connection with the rural rehabilitation program--all these manifold activities were closely coordinated through the Work Division. The Work Program was closed down during the spring and summer of 1935 to make way for the Works Progress Administration.

Drought Relief and Beef Processing

The serious drought of 1934 created problems of relief and rehabilitation which continued through 1935, and in 1936 this situation again was made critical by extremely dry weather with attendant crop damage.

More than 500,000 head of cattle were purchased by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration from 92,276 Missouri farmers at a cost of $7,474,698.00, in connection with the 1934 program. Many thousands of these cattle were turned over to the State for canning and subsequent distribution to the needy unemployed.

In addition to the removal of drought cattle and beef processing program, work projects in certified drought counties provided an outlet for relief labor.

Civilian Conservation Corps

As agent for the United States Department of Labor, the Missouri Relief Commission has been responsible for the selection of enrollees in the Civilian Conservation Corps. Following is a summary showing the number of enrollees serving in the Seventh and the Ninth Corps Areas, as of the dates indicated:

Rural Rehabilitation

The Rural Rehabilitation Division of the Commission, and later the Missouri Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, were formed to carry out the Federal Government's program of setting deserving farm families on their feet. The Corporation was formed by Wallace Crossley, Warrensburg; Dr. H. A. Buehler, Rolla; T. J. Edmonds, (FERA member of the Board), Des Moines, Iowa; L. R. Scheonmann (AAA member of the Board), Urbana, Illinois; Dean F. B. Mumford, Columbia; R. R. Thomason, Columbia; C. D. Bellows, Maryville; and L. B. Vandevort, Salem.

The assets and activities of the Corporation were transferred to the Resettlement Administration in July, 1935.

Seed Corn Program

The virtually complete failure of the 1934 corn crop threatened Missouri with a seed corn famine in 1935. After conferences with officials of the College of Agriculture and the Department of Agriculture, arrangements were made to purchase cribbed corn from the 1932-33 crops. Work projects were organized for the selection, inspection, nubbing, and grading of corn, and others were organized to allow families to work out feed and seed grants on loans made in connection with the drought relief program.

Commission Property and Equipment

There has been accumulated a large amount of office equipment and other property, most of which was purchased by the Commission with Federal funds. During the last several months, as the relief program was curtailed, much of this property became excess to the needs of the Commission, and has been transferred or loaned to other State departments or Federal agencies, without exchange of funds.

Education

The emergency education program and the Federal student aid program were transferred to the Federal Works Progress Administration and the National Youth Administration after their creation in 1935. The first was a program to provide unemployed teachers with work and the second permitted colleges to aid needy students, who received a $15.00 monthly stipend in exchange for work done on socially useful projects.

Commodities

Beginning with October, 1936, heavy purchases of staple foods at wholesale have been made from State and Federal funds remaining to the credit of the Relief Administration. These commodities have been added to the list of Federal surplus commodities, and at present are the major portion of the food allotments. The food bought by the Commission beginning with October, from the unexpended portion of the State appropriation and from the balance remaining in the General Relief fund from Federal appropriation consists of flour, salt meat, beans, canned tomatoes, milk, etc., in limited quantities. There will be funds with which to continue these purchases, which are not in sufficient quantity to supply anything like adequate relief need, through January and February.

Available Fund Balances

As of December 1, 1936, a total of $386,406.08 remained as a balance of State and Federal funds for relief and administrative expenses.

The balance of Federal funds available amounted to $361,205.29 being composed of balances of $334,784.69 in the General Relief fund and $26,420.60 in the Federal Transient fund.

From State appropriations a total of $25,200.79 remained as an available balance. Of this figure, $1,458.33 was available for direct relief expenditures and $23,742.46 for administrative expense.

KEY TO TABLES

In organizing the vast amount of statistical and financial data pertinent to this report, this plan has been followed:

1. Presentation of case load data by counties, by months, for the period 1932-1936. Note: Occasional omission of figures for specific months will be noted; this results from a variety of causes, such as failure of the county to report, lack of fact-finding organization in the county, et cetera.
2. Presentation of a summary of expenditures for relief and related programs administered by the Commission for the State of Missouri.
3. Summary of expenditures for relief and related programs not chargeable to counties.
4. Presentation of a table of disbursements to colleges and universities for Federal aid to students.
5. Presentation of county tables, arranged alphabetically, showing expenditures by months and by programs.

For the purpose of keeping this report within certain physical limitations, a number of separate ear-marked funds have been consolidated on both summaries and detail county sheets. Following is a statement of such consolidations in the summary for the State of Missouri:

CONSOLIDATIONS

1. Total under General Relief includes:

(a) General Relief Fund	$53,866,700.24
(b) Airport Fund	13,830.94
