THIS MAN MEANS BUSINESS.

He's Stan Farmer, your MNB Correspondent banker.

MNB's Stan Farmer means business — more business for you and your bank. He can help you say ''yes'' to your valuable bank customers when their financial need exceeds your ability to fulfill it.

Stan has the knowledge and experience to work with you and your customer on agricultural loans, or commercial and real estate loans. He will also consult with you on your personal plans for bank ownership.

He means business when it comes to assisting with your day-to-day cash management needs, as well. In addition to providing standard services — such as federal fund transactions, short-term investments and check clearing — Stan and our MNB Correspondent banking staff can help you deal with critical cash transfer deadlines, complicated collection requirements, international transactions and difficult check clearing problems. Additionally, Stan will work with you to provide operational innovations that prepare your bank for any service need.

At MNB, we're dedicated to bringing together the resources, experience and services you want in a correspondent bank. That's MNB's commitment to productivity, so talk to Stan, soon. When he says he can help your bank's business grow, he means business. Call Stan at 319/398-4320 or 1-800-332-5991, toll free, today.

In a quandary over the FDIC regulation on brokered deposits?

InnerLine can help!

InnerLine is the only on-line service available today that provides an up-to-the-minute list of issuing institutions and their rates. Let InnerLine show you how quickly and easily your institution can purchase CDs with just a few phone calls, by using InnerLine's Funds Marketplace.

As an InnerLine subscriber, you will have access to rates offered by more than 400 financial institutions nationwide, 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

You save time, too. Listings can be scanned and sorted by state or region and are always prioritized by the maturity you select. Push a button and you will receive the name and telephone number of the specific institution, and even the name of the person to contact to complete the transaction. Make a few telephone calls — and make a lot of profit!

For example, a spread of only 10 basis points translates into $1,000 annualized profit on $1 million worth of CDs. Because the spread between the top 50 postings is often more than 30 basis points, there is an even greater opportunity for increased profit. Taking advantage of Funds Marketplace on just one $1 million transaction will easily cover the average annual cost of an InnerLine subscription.

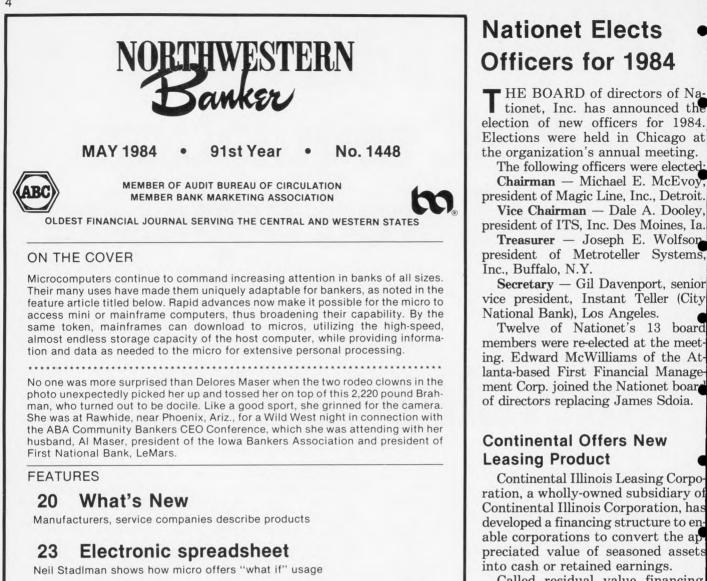

Issuers, too, can benefit from InnerLine because they receive free access to the Funds Marketplace through InnerLine's sophisticated network. Rates and maturities can be instantly posted, deleted or adjusted, as often as needed.

Best of all, InnerLine simply "introduces" buyers to sellers. There is no "cut" taken on the transaction placed or purchased.

The Funds Marketplace is just one of the more than 40 ways InnerLine can help you save time and money in today's rapidly changing financial world.

For more information, call toll-free: 1-800/323-1321. (In Illinois, call 1-800/942-7835.) Or write, InnerLine, 95 W. Algonquin Road, Arlington Heights, Illinois 60005.

Continental Illinois Leasing Corporation, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Continental Illinois Corporation, has developed a financing structure to enable corporations to convert the appreciated value of seasoned assets

Called residual value financing, the new financing structure, was developed for corporations that have assets with a market value greater than their book value and on which no gain can be realized until the lease matures, usually 7 to 10 years

To arrange the financing, in surance is taken out on the expected residual value of the asset - the difference between its present book value and likely future value a maturity. The residual value is then sold privately to third-party investors using money market instruments that are issued on a discounted basis at a fixed rate Because the note sold by the lesson is supported by the insurer, pur chasers are protected for the full value of their investment. On clos ing the transaction, the amount q funds available to the company is the residual value less the interest rate on the note. The company car either increase the value of the asset or take a cash gain for an amoun equal to the note's principal.

If your primary correspondent can't clear San Francisco the same day, call First Bank Minneapolis. Most correspondent banks won't collect your funds as fast as we will. Or give you an immediate investable balance. So you may be losing money every day.

Those are some reasons why you should use First Bank Minneapolis as your primary correspondent.

You see, we offer one of the best Availability Schedules in the nation and one of the fastest in this region. Take San Francisco for example. We'll give you immediate availability on most items and credit for the rest in one day. And we still accept payment for our services through balances.

What's more, there's our exclusive "DAILY $'s" report which shows you exactly how much you can invest today.

We'll even monitor your cash letter schedule. So you can get more of today's cash letter to invest, because that's what counts.

So if you're getting the idea that we can deliver more investable funds every day, you're getting the right idea.

Centron™ Communications System

If you're about to make a major investment in a new communications system for your business or profession, one thing is certain.

You're going to demand more than just "talk".

You'll expect a system that delivers tomorrow's technology, today. You'll insist on complete reliability. Maximum flexibility at minimum cost. Added value, across the board, for your communications dollar.

Now, Northwestern Bell offers a communications system that meets all those expectations, and more. It's called Centron communications system, and it can open up a multitude of new possibilities for your organization.

Growth Without the Growing Pains

Centron system's total flexibility, combined with its ability to grow as you grow, makes it unique in the communications industry.

No matter what size your company is today, Centron offers virtually unlimited capacity for the future — 20,000 phone lines, and beyond.

With the Centron system, there's no need to purchase costly extra capacity in anticipation of future growth. You pay only for what you need, adding or subtracting capacity and desired features along the way.

What makes the Centron system so flexible and responsive to the changing needs of business?

The answer is simple. Centron's state-of-theart electronic switching systems are located on Northwestern Bell's premises — not your own.

So we can modify your system quickly and efficiently. Update it whenever necessary. That saves you money, downtime, and a whole lot of trouble — like installation delays.

And since your Centron system's "hardware" is located in our central offices, you save valuable equipment space, and you're spared the expense of special environmental controls.

What's more, Centron's centralized location means that branch or satellite locations of your business can be integrated into your main system easily and economically.

Finally, and this is important...your Centron system is professionally maintained aroundthe-clock, seven days a week. We solve most problems before you even know they exist.

That's bottom line reliability, pure and simple.

Centron, Today and Tomorrow

As a Centron system customer, you'll have the benefit of Information Age technology without the burden of an enormous capital investment.

Northwestern Bell is constantly modernizing and upgrading Centron's capabilities. Making new features available. Updating maintenance procedures. And improving call-handling performance.

Your Centron system will never become obsolete, because Northwestern Bell will keep it evolving to meet the needs of the future.

In fact, Centron just might be the only communications system your company will ever need.

Can you think of a better reason to choose Centron?

So many opportunities. And so little time to look into them. No wonder so many banks throw up their hands and settle for T-Bills.

Too bad. Because at Continental, we can give you the insight you need to choose investments that provide the highest level of profitability. Within a framework of risk, liquidity, credit and maturity considerations.

From our vantage point as Mid-America's largest primary dealer bank in government securities, we offer a unique perspective on market trends, interest rates, and Fed policy.

And our Municipal Research Division can give you concise information on state and local issues that even the bond rating services don't provide.

When you're ready to make your move, few banks can offer you so many ways to go.

In addition to our constant position in government securities, we maintain a strong secondary position in instruments such as bankers acceptances, Eurodollar CDs and Canadian time deposits. And, of course, we offer our own negotiable certificates and CICorp commercial paper.

Through our federal funds trading desk, we can help keep your excess cash working by investing it overnight or on an open-end basis. While our financial futures specialties help you protect profit margins by controlling interest rate risk.

So why limit yourself? Pick up the phone and call Robert B. Holland at (312) 828-6620. He'll show you where the pickings are best. In brains and investments.

Northern Trust Withdraws Certain Trust Services

The Northern Trust Bank, Chicago, and The First National Bank of Chicago have announced the signing of a definitive purchase agreement under which Northern Trust will withdraw from its bond indenture trustee, municipal bond and coupon paying businesses, and recommend that customers using these services transfer their business to First Chi cago.

Northern Trust reported it is withdrawing from these particular trust services as they no longer complement its strategic direction.

Northern Trust said it will continue to expand its other trust services, most notably personal trust and Master Trust.

The transfer is anticipated to be completed in 1985. Are Your Loan Officers Using A Cross Selling System?

M ORE borrowers in the North Central region will be able to qualify for mortgages in 1984 as lenders emphasize adjustablerate mortgages over the standard fixed-rate alternative. With lenders in the 10-state region projecting that ARMs tailored to borrower needs will remain the number one instrument offering in 1984, would-be homebuyers have renewed incentive for entering the housing market, in spite of relatively higher interest rates.

In the North Central states, 44 percent of lenders recently surveyed by Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corporation said they offer ARMs with a discounted initial interest rate to help borrowers qualify for mortgage loans. Furthermore, these high rate levels have made fixed-rate lending a risky business for both lenders and borrowers, according to MGIC survey results.

10-State Survey

This emergence of what is becoming a standard adjustable-rate mortgage is one of the highlights of a semi-annual market survey by MGIC. Conducted in the fall of 1983, the survey of mortgage lenders is the fifth in a series of studies that track changes in the mortgage environment and analyze lenders' perceptions of the marketplace. The North Central regional survey involved executives from savings and loans associations, mortgage bankers, savings banks and commercial banks from Illinois, Wisconsin, Ohio, Minnesota, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Lenders in these states expect that mortgage demand will continue to increase throughout 1984, with originations climbing 28 percent, contributing to a national projected record volume of $250 billion. Fixedrate loans are likely to make up just 41 percent of all originations in the North Central region, while ARMs are expected to constitute 51 percent.

The predominance of ARMs in lenders' instrument mixes reverses earlier predictions that fixed-rate mortgages would remain the most favored mortgage product. This reflects a national preference for ARM programs providing flexible mortgage instruments that meet both consumer demand and investor preference.

"Although fixed-rate loans will continue to have a place in most lenders' portfolios, the rate environment and the affordability challenge to consumers indicate that the future in mortgage lending is definitely with the ARM," said James W. Reichert, senior vice president of MGIC's North Central division.

"Few lenders here would have predicted that a year ago or two ago when fixed-rate loans represented more than half of all originations," he explained.

New ARM Features

"The real change in ARMs this year is not the number of lenders offering them in the North Central region but the mix of loan features which will characterize most ARMs," Mr. Reichert said. "In ad dition to the discounted initial interest rates offered by nearly half of all •regional lending institutions, borrowers typically will have a selection of two or three standardized ARM programs."

FrankJimKathy

This move toward fewer and more • uniform ARM programs contrasts with the proliferation of widely diverse versions of such instruments which dominated the mortgage market several years ago, according to • Mr. Reichert.

FBS Plans Two-for-One Split, Listing on NYSE

First Bank System, Inc., Minneapolis, recently announced plans for a two-for-one split of the company's common stock and its intention to list its shares on the New York Stock Exchange.

First Bank System executive vice president and chief financial officer William F. Farley said the stock split was approved by the company's board of directors as part of a proposal to increase the company's common stock from 27,000,000 shares to 75,000,000 shares and to increase the authorized preferred stock from 5,000,000 shares to 10,000,000 shares.

The proposed stock split would be effective for shareholders of record on May 7, 1984. Shareholders would receive the additional shares later in May. After the stock split, total common shares outstanding would increase from approximately 15,100,000 shares to 30,200,000 shares.

C OMPLEX financial analyses for made simpler and faster by the SAFE (Systematic Analysis and Financial Evaluation) software package announced by Monroe Systems For Business for use with the OC 8800 Series microcomputers. The SAFE package is a quick, efficient method of evaluating a customer's financial status, according to Monroe officials.

"SAFE gives the loan officer a complete overview of a company's strengths and weaknesses. It takes the guessing games out of establishing acceptable risk," said Robert F. Kane, Monroe president. "And, an entire five-year analysis can be generated in just thirty minutes. Thus, the loan officer spends more time working with the commercial loan customer and in actual analysis of a firm's financial status."

SAFE handles all calculations automatically, including industry comparisons, Mr. Kane states. Using basic information from three standard company sources and three industry sources, SAFE produces twelve beneficial models including: Comparative Balance Sheet, Comparative Income Statement, Source and Use of Funds Statement, Common-Size Balance Sheet, Common-Size Income Sheet, Financial Control Analysis, Ratio Analysis, Cash Flow From Operations, Funds Flow Analysis, Capital Structure Analysis, Sales, EBIT, and EBT Analysis and Leverage and Risk Analysis.

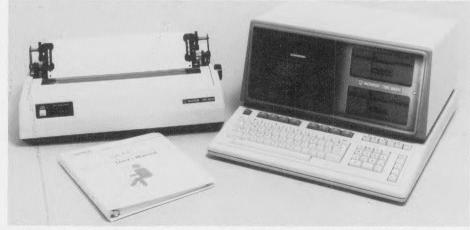

The user can review every report on the screen or in printed form. Many of the reports are printed with graphs, generated automatically to allow a concise evaluation of the information quickly. The rapid response time of the SAFE program allows a bank to re-evaluate frequently all its corporate customers.

Detailed industry/company comparisons on several reports allow both banker and client to consider a firm's position relative to its own past performance and to industry benchmarks. This presents a truly complete picture on which to base financial strategy.

The SAFE professional reports and the in-depth analysis which they provide are strong marketing tools, Mr. Kane notes. They allow a polished presentation to new prospects or existing clients. And, SAFE is an effective business development tool to assist clients in improving financial results through careful planning.

The system is extremely easy to use. Menu choices and information prompts appear on the SAFE screen in sequence. Automatic internal checks and balances provide data entry verification. Information is entered simply and quickly, eliminating the tedious calculations and worksheet preparation necessary to manually produce the spreadsheet report.

Monroe's customer service for the SAFE system is also unique in the microcomputer industry. Installation, training, service and support are all available in the bank office.

NEW Systematic Analysis and Financial Evaluation (SAFE) software package from Monroe Systems For Business for the OC 8800 series microcomputer gives the loan officer a complete overview of a company's strengths and weaknesses. An entire five-year analysis can be generated in thirty minutes. SAFE produces beneficial models including Comparative Balance Sheet, Source and Use of Funds Statement, Financial Control Analysis, Ratio Analysis, Cash Flow From Operations, Risk Analysis and six other models.

A NEW 2^{1/2} hour multi-media training program, Taming The Telephone, teaches financial employees how to take charge of the telephone and harness its power to satisfy customers and cross-sell financial products, while projecting the professional image today's financial institutions need in order to compete successfully.

Taming The Telephone covers more than 20 specific skill areas, "handling customer comfrom plaints" to "proper message- taking" available in both slide/tape and video cassette formats. It comes complete with a 160-page fully scripted Instructor's Guide, 38-page participant's Workbooks, deluxe Completion Certificate for each employee, and skills review card, and is designed for easy administration even by non-trainers. A proven hit with employees, the program before its release was pilot-tested at Chemical Bank and American Savings Bank in New York.

Training costs are less than $50 per participating employee in slide/ tape or video cassette format, and after initial progarm purchase, only $16.00 per additional employee participant kit.

Taming The Telephone was developed by three experts: Lois Kaufman, Ph.D., a management consultant who has developed training programs for many companies; John B. Wolf, Ph.D., a nationally regarded authority on the design, implementation, and monitoring of managerial control systems, and Richard J. Roll, MBA, president of Financial Marketing Corporation of America, Inc., and formerly an executive with Citibank.

Electronic spreadsheet ...

... offers rapid-fire "what if" calculations

By NEIL STADLMAN Assistant Vice President and Manager FBS Agricultural Credit Corporation Ames, Ia.

O F all the applications available for micro computers, the "electronic spreadsheet" has been one of the most popular over the recent years. Several electronic spreadsheets exist in the market place and they continue to grow in their degree of sophistication, yet their basic concept remains - an alternative to the paper and pencil. The overall time savings in doing traditional calculations is tremendous, not to mention the savings in scratch paper! There is an immense difference between "what if" capabilities on an electronic spreadsheet and a wastebasket of intended "what if" possibilities with a pencil and paper.

Attempting to explain an electronic spreadsheet program in detail in an article of this type would be quite inadequate, but there are some general concepts to keep in mind when applying the electronic spreadsheet concept to your desired applications.

What Decisions To Be Made?

First of all, what decisions will be affected by the information involved in the development of the spreadsheet model? What factors are you interested in isolating? The real strength of an electronic spreadsheet is its flexibility to handle the single solution to a budget model or the sophistication of an analysis model that may have several inter-related calculations. The emphasis on a small amount of prior planning before working with the spreadsheet program can save a great deal of frustration.

If you have a copy of the desired final report, the bulk of the work is already done. Since electronic spreadsheets use rows and columns to define locations, (each intersection is often referred to as a "cell") it becomes a matter of deciding what rows and/or columns need to be added or deleted. Another good idea is to estimate how many rows and columns the final report will have. This will aid in determining the format for hardcopy printouts. If you are starting from scratch, list all the categories which should appear on your final report and define them either as rows or columns. One of the best tools is simply taking a traditional columnar accounting sheet that already has numbered rows and is divided into columns. This will approximate the grid system that electronic spreadsheets follow. Traditional spreadsheets use numbers to identify rows and letters to identify columns. Don't worry about all the fancy formating that can be done to give your reports more appeal, as those can be done later. Concentrate on the core part of your report format.

Define Relationships

The next step is to specify the mathematical relationships required to calculate each number within the report. Most spreadsheet users agree that this is perhaps the non-glamorous part of working spreadsheets and where new users become the most frustrated. However, once the relationships are defined and entered, the "what if" excitement takes over, not to mention the increased time savings and accuracy.

Electronic spreadsheets are like two sheets of paper. The scratch paper equivalent in the electronic spreadsheet is stored in the computer's memory and the results of your work, contained in the finished report, are displayed on the computer's monitor or are available to be printed out.

Spreadsheets contain many built-in functions to aid in defining various mathematical relationships. Consider a monthly cash flow plan where each column would represent a particular month and each row a particular income or expense item. Summing up various groups of rows gives the total amount of income or expense. Once familiar with the basic concept of the electronic spreadsheet, one's imagination begins to open countless other alternatives to problem solving.

For those numbers not calculated within the final report, identify those values which are input by the user directly into the final report. It may also be necessary to identify the mathematical relationships required to calculate the remaining values in the final report. Many spreadsheet users find it helpful to isolate all input values in a separate section of the model. This allows for more efficient entry, rather than moving around in the final report putting inputs here and there. It also allows others not familiar with the entire spreadsheet process to input data much easier.

Learning Is On-Going Process

Learning to use an electronic spreadsheet program is an on-going process. There are a number of reference books available to explain more "how to" concepts, and more predefined reports often referred to as 'templates' are becoming commercially available. As one's experience increases with the electronic spreadsheet, so does one's productivity.

Before you start going around and drawing rows and columns on everything that you do, remember that the successful use of the microcomputer requires a definition of specific needs. A commitment is required to learn and use these new tools and to overcome the frustrations associated with learning how to manage these new concepts. In the end it may well provide one of the most productive gifts — the gift of time!

"Micros in Banking" Is Thorough Reference Book

An excellent reference book, "Micros in Banking," has been published by Computer Based Solutions Incorporated of Atlanta Ga., authored by M. Arthur Gillis. The 320 page book is the only one written to date that covers the subject thoroughly and candidly to help the reader achieve practical solutions using microcomputers. It serves the interests of both beginner and expert on micros.

The $8\frac{1}{2} \times 11$, spiral-bound book lies flat while in use and covers every conceivable important micro topic. It discusses software and hardware, micro's place in banking, various applications of micros in banking, how to select software, and the firms who market it, and concludes with 25 case studies, exhibits and charts.

In his foreword to the $75.00 book, Mr. Gillis states, "There are approximately 154 brands of microcomputers to choose from and at least 100 vendors selling software to financial institutions. This is the on-

• ly book on how to use microcomputers successfully in financial institutions."

The book is directed to all levels of users, enabling beginners to read about errors made by more skilled operators and avoid them, thus short-circuiting the learning period.

Hands-on Micro Seminars For Marketing Officers

Financial services marketing officers will solve daily problems with a opersonal computer at a series of upcoming Financial Institutions Marketing Association workshops hosted by the Chicago-based firm.

'Fundamental Applications of •Personal Computers for Financial Marketing Executives'' will be taught by highly qualified specialists from the big-eight accounting firm Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company.

The two-day sessions will be 70% hands-on intensive. Participants will use popular software packages for spread sheet analysis, word proces-Osing, computer graphics, data collection and management, and personal computer communications.

The workshops are scheduled for June 25-26, New York; August 6-7, Chicago; September 13-14, Atlanta; and October 3-4, San Diego.

How to Put the "Finger" On Computer Crime

Scenario:

• Computer fraud is estimated at $50 billion a year.

 Banks and securities firms find their secret wire transfer system computers are compromised with substantial losses.

• Blueprints and models stolen from government and corporate offices.

• Patients records in hospitals subjected to tampering.

· College students invade university and government "top secret" files to win bets.

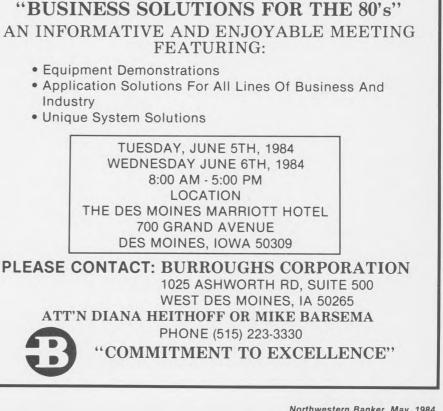

Solution?

Fingerprint!

Fingerprint? To stop computer crime? How do you read someone's fingerprints on a computer?

Michael Schiller knows how for he is president, CEO and chief technical officer of Fingermatrix, Inc., the crime-stopping company he founded in 1976. An engineer with many patents to his credit, Mr. Schiller pioneered the development of electronic fingerprint identification and verification, and is responsible for the overall product design, development and direction of the $50 million Fingermatrix firm.

Mr. Schiller is no fly-by-night computer sleuth. His credentials include a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from MIT in 1956 and a master's degree in electrical engineering from Columbia University in 1961, as well as scientific work at Sperry Gyroscope, Dynamics Corporation and then Sequential

The product of Fingermatrix is based on the simple requirement that anyone authorized to access a computer protected by Fingermatrix equipment must have his or her fingerprints on file with the host computer. No fingerprint on file, no access! The system costs $7,000 to $8,000 per installation and uses a laser beam to scan a person's fingerprint, then compares it with the fingerprint scan in its memory banks. Early users of the equipment include Chase Manhattan Bank and Chemical Bank, both of New York, First Interstate Bank of California. and the Air Force.

Burroughs Plans "Software Fair" in Six Major Cities

The North Central region of Burroughs Corporation will sponsor a "Burroughs Software Fair" in its six district cities, according to Gordon R. Swanson, vice president and regional manager, Minneapolis. The schedule and hotel locations are:

May 8-9-Minneapolis, Sofitel.

May 31-June 1-Denver, Regency.

June 5-6—Des Moines, Marriott. June 13-14—St. Louis, Airport

- Hilton.
- June 20-21–Omaha, Holiday Inn Center.

June 27-28—Kansas City, Granada Royale.

Burroughs marketing and market support will be demonstrating computer hardware products and conducting seminars featuring software solutions for all lines of business. In addition to Burroughs full equipment line and application proprietary program products, between 20 and 25 independent software houses will participate in the daily activities.

Software will be demonstrated for business microcomputers, minicomputers and large main frames. Bank applications will include A/L management, document processing, mortgage loan closing systems and a wide variety of accounting applica-

Plattsmouth Banker "Marks Time" in a Big Way!

W HEN David J. Duey retired recently as president of Cass County Bank in Plattsmouth, Nebr., and became chairman of the board, he left a landmark that will serve the people of his community for a long time. The "landmark" is a four-sided clock that stands 20 feet tall at the drive-in facility, and features extensive stained glass on all four sides.

Dave Duey became interested in stained glass as a hobby 10 years ago. However, he had "made only a few pieces," he reports, until he got the idea for making the big clock. "I copied it from the National State Bank in Boulder, Colo.," he reports. "It had been a corner clock on a Boulder building and they removed it, then mounted it on a pedestal. I liked it and decided to do something like that."

The result was 200 hours of stained glass work, which he did himself, and 100 hours of welding and assembly. "I had lots of help with the welding," he readily states. "We finished it in 1981 and put it at the drive-in location. It stands 20 feet tall, has more than 650 pieces of stained glass, four clocks and weighs one ton!" It required 2,576 solder joints and 42 pounds of lead strips.

Mr. Duey reports that since it was put in use in 1981 the clock "has been nearly trouble free. It is lighted inside with fluorescent lights controlled by an automatic clock. I replaced one 40 watt tube one time and have reset it for daylight savings time. Other than that, we've had no trouble."

Perhaps the reason the clocks run without trouble is that Mr. Duey spent 20 years as a jeweler in southeastern Nebraska. He then joined the Nebraska banking department. In 1966 he obtained a charter for Cass County Bank, serving as its president until his retirement last month, when he was succeeded by his son, Douglas V. Duey.

When Plattsmouth residents look at the time on the Cass County Bank clock, they will also be reminded of three special events that fell on the same date "The Anniversary Clock" was dedicated in 1981—it was Dave and Wilma Duey's 40th wedding anniversary, the 15th anniversary of the chartering of Cass County Bank, and the 50th anniversary of the Kass Kounty King Kong Karnival in Plattsmouth!

Mr. Swanson said "Burroughs hope is to provide a solution to every major line of business serviced by Computers. Shown will be application solutions to distributors, manufacturers, banks, educational institutions, savings and loans, hospitals, clinics, contractors, accountants, credit unions, insurance companies, governmental accounts, utilities, cooperatives, retail businesses, newspapers, oil dealers, auto dealers and implement dealers. New Chart-Master Computer Graphics Program Released Decision Resources, Inc., of Westport, Conn., has announced the availability of CHART-MASTER 5.0 — an upgraded, more sophisticated version of its easy-to-use software program that produces professional quality graphics.

 "We have added important new enhancements to the powerful CHART-MASTER program designed to produce full-color bar, pie and line charts as well as scatter diagrams," said Decision Resources' president,

Sean O'Connor. He stated the 5.0

version which links IBM Personal Computers to a variety of plotters, offers the user a great deal of flexibility.

According to Mr. O'Connor, Version 5.0 is the only graphics program to offer the user seven pages of options to allow easy customization of charts.

Version 5.0 is designed to provide the user with on-screen previewing of charts which can then be produced on paper or acetate sheets for transparencies.

New text-handling features have also been added to CHART-MAS-TER, offering a selection of six different character fonts including standard, Bold, Roman and Bold Roman. Now the user can choose from text in 16 sizes and eight colors depending on the personal computer screen and the plotter capabilities, to produce titles, labels and footnotes.

Mr. O'Connor said Version 5.0 will provide any office with its own "in-house graphics studio" for a retail price of $375—the same price as the original version of the CHART-MASTER program.

The program is available at computer dealers nationwide in a package that includes a complete instruction manual and a $5\frac{1}{4}$ diskette — a backup diskette is sent when the warranty registration card is received.

Montana Banker Jack King Elected to IBAA Presidency

By STEVE BURCH Associate Publisher

EMBERS of the Independent Bankers Association of America met in New Orleans last month for that group's 54th annual convention. Highlighting the convention activities was the election of A.J. "Jack" King to the IBAA presidency. A Montana native, Mr. King's banking career spans 31 years and he is president of Valley Bank in Kalispell, Montana. B.F. "Chip" Backlund, president of Bartonville Bank, Bartonville, Illinois, assumes the duties of first vice president and Charles Doyle, chief executive officer of Gulf National Bank in Texas City, Texas, was elected second vice president. Serving as treasurer will be Charles Van Arsdale, president of Bank of Castile, Castile, New York.

Immediate Past President Jim Herrington, chairman of Coldwater National Bank, Coldwater Kansas, focused on the "vital signs" of community banks in his keynote address. "If I had to choose one theme, one common thread, that has linked each and every one of the various groups and individual banks with whom I have met during the past year, it would be the sense of optimism and renewed self-confidence that seems to be taking hold again among community banks. The vital signs for community banks have never been healthier—the fighting spirit of independent bankers has never been more robust."

Mr. Herrington lashed out at proponents of regional or interstate banking who claim that changes in current geographical restrictions are inevitable. "Don't buy that inevitability nonsense." He went on to example the recent defeat in the Iowa legislature of a proposed interstate reciprocity bill. "The interstate banking proponents at one time had 17 lobbyists working in the Iowa legislature. The Iowa Independent Bankers swung into action to get their message across..." He added, "The once 'inevitable' bill was defeated by more than a 2 to 1 margin. The big bank proponents were a paper tiger compared to the larger group of organized and enthusiastic independents."

Secretary of Agriculture John Block unveiled the details of the new FmHA lender program during his presentation to the independent bankers. During a press conference following his speech, Mr. Block complimented the IBAA leadership and IBAA Agriculture Committee Chairman Tom Olson, president of Lisco State Bank, Lisco, Nebraska, for their role in the development of the loan guarantee program. (See NORTHWESTERN BANKER Weekly Newsletter April 2, 1984.)

Mr. Block was quick to acknowledge the important role of the independent banker in the agricultural industry. "Farming is now a 'hitech,' capital intensive business. More than ever, farmers and lenders must be effective partners if there is to be an appropriate balance between investment in the future and prudent use of credit capital."

The Secretary reviewed with the bankers agricultures growing dependence on general economic conditions. "Events of recent years have shown our farmers, and the businesses they buy from and sell to, just how much they have at stake in macro-economic policy." He coupled • with this review the response in the agricultural industry to the various recovery/recession business cycles of the past 10-15 years. "Currently, the continued economic recovery in 1984 will most likely generate the strongest increase in farm level demand from domestic economic conditions in over 5 years. Demand at the farm level for agricultural products depends directly on final demand for finished goods-which is beginning to improve both here and abroad." Mr. Block also underlined the staggering effects of the federal deficit and the lagging international recovery on agriculture. In commenting on domestic content legislation, Mr. Block stated, "We will not be effective or credible in our efforts to promote free trade and expand our exports if our trade policies are not consistent across all sectors of •the economy and, indeed, for all agricultural commodities. In other words, we cannot be free traders for one product or industry and protectionists for others."

In closing, Mr. Block encouraged the bankers to support federal policies that are consistent with sound general economic policies. "The time is past when agricultural interests and impacts can be ignored in the making of macro-economic policies. I urge that you consider the complex linkages between agriculture and the macroeconomy. And then I urge you to support economic policies which are in our enlightened self interests."

The condition of the banking sys-•tem was reviewed by Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Chairman William Isaac. He noted that the 48 bank failures experienced in 1983 represent the highest number since 1937 and the failure rate for 1984 is expected to be in the range of the past two years. "Despite the outlook for bank failures, the condition of the banking system continues to improve. The growth in the number of problem banks appears to be slowing." He was particularily optimistic about the prospects for community banks. "Many forecasters predict that the future of community banks will be bleak in the wake of an expected massive consolidation in the banking industry and passage of legislation to expand more bank powers. I could not disagree more." He went on to cite the favorable position of community banks to take advantage of expanded powers, noting specifically high capital levels, an established customer base and close community ties.

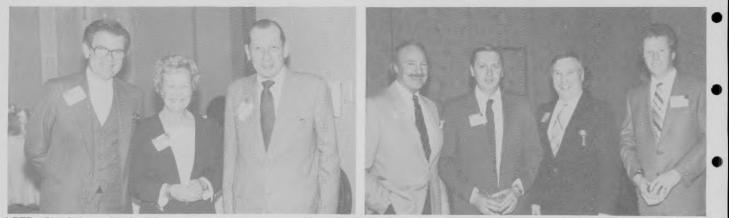

In turning his focus to deposit insurance reform, Mr. Isaac stated, "During the past several years we have witnessed a dramatic transformation of our financial landscape. The new environment offers exciting opportunities for well-managed banks of all sizes. At the same time. it exposes banks to greater degrees of risk than in the past." He added that it is the FDIC's position that well-managed banks should not lose business to, nor subsidize marginal banks. He went on to outline two areas of change in FDIC operating procedures and policy which he is initiating.

The first change, which is contained in proposed legislation sent to the Congress in November, would allow the FDIC to vary the assessment rebate to banks according to the risk a bank poses to the deposit insurance fund. Initially, there would be three risk classes of banks. The normal risk banks, which represent 85-90 percent of all banks. would receive the full rebate. Riskier institutions would receive half the rebate, and those considered to be the highest risk would receive no rebate. The FDIC proposal calls for institutions to be charged for all above-normal costs of supervision.

The undermining of market disciplines by the deposit insurance systems is the second area of concern to Mr. Isaac. "Our efforts to encourage more discipline in the banking system will be undermined if nothing is done to limit the practice of brokers sweeping the nation for funds and placing them in banks that pay the highest rates of interest irrespective of the condition of the banks." The FDIC and Federal Home Loan Bank Board have jointly proposed changes in the insurance regulations to limit the federal guaranty on brokeraged deposits. "I want to take this opportunity to thank the community bankers of our nation for their support of this critically important reform.

A well attended convention session was the Congressional panel on banking deregulation which included Peter Wallison, General Counsel of the United States Treasury; Danny Wall, staff director of the Senate Banking Committee, and Kenneth McLean, minority staff director of the Senate Banking Committee. Mr. Wallison discussed the Administration's Competitive Equity Act which addresses the Administration's concern over the ability of banks to compete with diversified financial services companies. The bill offers banks broadened powers, "but we can't tell now under what conditions." He added that, while conventional wisdom says that there will be no powers bill this year, he thinks the prospects are good for action to close some bothersome loopholes and provide some broadened powers to bank holding companies.

Commenting on the loophole for the definition of a deposit institution, Mr. Wall noted, "Defining deposit institutions is not a simple solution. We have to deal with what is a bank and then with the question of how we provide for banks." He advised the bankers to take an interest in a banking bill this year because of the expanded powers issue and the regional interstate banking pacts being developed.

In contract, Mr. McLean, representing Senator Proxmire, does not feel the need for sweeping change. "The Senator sees banks as unique institutions and they should stay within the boundaries of banking. The public doesn't seem to be clamoring for these broadened services, but if Congress does not do something to plug up some loopholes in the law, it will turn the financial services industry upside down."

Two popular speakers entertained the convention's luncheons. Maureen Reagan recounted the history of women's rights in this country in an address that was, at the same time, humurous and pointed. Security consultant Frank Abagnale followed his luncheon speech on the life of a con artist with a special interest presentation on things bankers should watch for to protect their institutions against fraud. \Box

Ms. Patel previously held positions at financial institutions in England and Canada.

Ms. Coughlin is a graduate of Northeastern Illinois University where she received a degree in accounting.

SATM Midwest and EFI Announce Plans to Link

SATM Midwest, Inc., a subsidiary of ATM Network Management Corp., and Electronic Funds of Illinois last month announced the completion of an agreement to allow financial institutions throughout Illinois, who are serviced by these entities, broad-scale, reciprocal sharing of ATMs, through the linking of the SATM Midwest computer center in Illinois with that of EFI.

The connection between SATM Midwest and EFI effectively means that a financial institution which is serviced by one entity may now share its ATMs with a financial institution serviced by the other entity. Prior to this agreement, the technical linking needed to allow this sharing was not in place, making this agreement a milestone for Illinois financial institutions who offer ATM services to their customers.

Bond Swaps: Do they always improve your profit picture?

In your year-end tax planning strategy, it may make sense to consider bond swapping. But the only way to know for certain is to ask an expert.

For instance, suppose your portfolio includes a bond with a loss and you want to realize that loss this year in order to offset taxable income. You can sell the bond to realize the loss this year and reinvest in a bond of comparable quality.

Of course, you could decide to invest in a higher quality bond with a lower yield for safety. Or, you could invest in a bond with a longer maturity to lock in current yields. You might even switch from municipals to taxable bonds, depending on your tax situation.

Which strategy is right for your bank? Tax Swaps? Quality Swaps? Rate Anticipation Swaps? There are no simple answers. The alternatives must be analyzed carefully by experts.

That's where we can help. The bond officers at First Bank Saint Paul's Investment Services Group will be glad to review your portfolio for you. We'll share our ideas with you in writing and help you decide which strategy is right for you.

Together, we'll frame an answer that will improve your profit picture. Call us at:(612) 291-5659.

Norwest Bank Minneapolis, N.A. has installed a security system called SAFE (Secured Access for Entry), which eliminates the chance of unauthorized access to its computerized funds transfer system.

According to Stephen Holahan, vice president and manager of Norwest's cash management services, the system allows the corporations to make wire transfers of funds through terminals, such as personal computers, located in their offices. The customers need only a terminal, a telephone and a modem which allows data to be transmitted through the phone.

The connection is made when the client enters a code into the terminal which is received by the SAFE system at the bank. SAFE checks to make sure the code is authorized, then transmits the entry to the wire transfer computer which automatically calls the customer back on the telephone number associated with that code.

Mr. Holahan pointed out that, since SAFE intercepts all incoming calls, the wire transfer system cannot be reached without code verification and call-back. Also, the system operates only during regular business hours and, because the customer must make the transfer from only one designated telephone, the company can ensure controlled access to that telephone.

MBA Sponsors Ag Workshop

By STEVE BURCH Associate Publisher

INANCIAL Statement Analysis was the focus of the agricultural workshops sponsored last month by the Minnesota Bankers Association. Conducted by Iowa State University Economics Professor Michael Boehlje, the one-day sessions were held in Detroit Lakes, St. Cloud and Mankato.

Mr. Boehlje began by challenging the ag lenders to be the leaders in advising ranchers and producers to broaden their scopes on the issues and events which affect the ag economy. "Many farmers read each and every farm journal published from cover to cover, yet pay no attention to what is going on 'out there.' We need to talk to these producers about reading Business Week, Fortune 500 and Forbes to get a better picture of the international forces affecting the ag economy." He placed a great deal of emphasis on the Domestic Content Bill currently being considered in Washington and suggested that this bill could have a much greater impact on farm incomes than the 1985 Farm Bill.

In examining the prospects for economic recovery within the ag sector, Mr. Boehlje noted that the current 3% growth in consumer disposable income will be short lived, falling to 1.5% following the November elections. This along with expected increases in the prime lending rates and a continued high unemployment rate combine to soften the demand for red meat products. He reminded the lenders that the expected decline in demand for red meats triggers a trickle down effect on demand for feed grains as well. The supply side isn't much brighter. He warns that there is far too much plant capacity in nearly every phase of agricultural production. Also, he does not expect any supply related bail-outs that have sparked past recoveries. He summarized that the anticipated slow down in demand and continued over production pave a road for recovery in the ag economy that will 0 be slow and painful.

"Attitudes toward agriculture are changing and the solutions of the past which focused solely on improv-ing farm incomes simply won't work in today's environment," suggests

Digitized for FRASER https://fraser.stlouisfed.org

Federal Reserve Bank of

Mr. Boehlje. He went on to outline eight characteristics which he suggests will shape the "New Environ-ment of Agriculture." 1) Farm incomes in the 1980s will be lower. This reflects a change in the earlier attitude that everybody who farms should be guaranteed a profit. 2) Higher debt loads are expected. This will require greater monitoring of debt to income ratios on the part of lenders. 3) There will be shorter maturities on debt. He advised lenders to discontinue the use of "roll-overs" and to explain exactly what performance is expected on each capital purchase. He also suggests that lenders may wish to re-examine fixed rate pricing. 4) The new Environment will feature less asset liquidity. Safety valve liquidity on the farm has fallen from 27% of assets in 1950 to 11% in 1980. 5) There will be increased income and collateral risk. This is a reflection of the governments shift in attitude towards risk management. Payment In Kind, crop insurance and futures and options markets are recent examples of how risk managment continues to shift from the government to the producer. 6) Interest rates will continue to be high and volatile. 7) Refinancing will be more difficult. This is another reflection of the decline in liquid assets. 8) The changes in asset liquidity will also be reflected in restructured balance sheets.

In addressing the applications of financial statements in ag lending, Mr. Boehlje cautions that often primary concerns in determining the credit worthiness of a customer receive too little attention while excess time is spent on the legal documentation of obtaining collateral. Additionally, all ag lenders should require income statements from their customers. This debt to income ratio will indicate where the capital will come from to repay the debt. Along this line, he advises that the lenders should not prepare balance sheets. "Too much of your time is spent in financial statement preparation, leaving little time for analysis to determine credit worthiness and debt load capacity. You need to convince the customer that it is in his best interest to provide you with the necessary statements." He shared the example of a banker who sponsors a seminar for farm borrowers each year where he shows the producers how to prepare and maintain balance sheets, income statements, written marketing strategies and cash flow statements.

Before turning to a workshop analysis of financial statement preparation, Mr. Boehlje urged the lenders to consider the borrower's mental capacity to deal with the stress present in agricultural today. He exampled a recent incident involving a livestock producer who left his cattle unattended during a period of depression allegedly caused when he was unable to obtain further credit from his local lender.

First Bank Minneapolis To Distribute MicroCTS

First Bank Minneapolis has negotiated on agreement to become the only financial institution in Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota to distribute Micro-CTS (Microcomputer Corporate Treasury System) software.

This treasury management software system was developed by Capital Systems Group, an authorized value-added dealer for IBM Personal Computer products, and is specifically designed for use on the IBM PC or XT microcomputers.

"Unlike the relatively expensive hardware and software treasury management systems we've examined, MicroCTS is an affordable, software-only system that delivers the features we believe middle-market customers want," says Fredric C. Driver, product management representative. "Using MicroCTS, a cash manager can have access to consolidated balance reports within minutes of arriving in the office, thus enabling him or her to make investment decisions when rates are most favorable."

Priced at $5,995, the MicroCTS system consists of 11 integrated information reporting modules that can be tailored to a company's individual requirements. These modules deal with daily banking, investments, loans, revolving credits, calendars, cash worksheets, relationship management and communications.

In addition, new modules are regularly added to the system to expand the scope of treasury automation as customer needs change. Other benefits include:

• Non-Proprietary Communications—MicroCTS is compatible with most balance reporting systems and can capture data in either report or data formats.

• Single Data Entry—Once a transaction, balance or other financial data is entered, it can be used throughout the system, so data need never be entered more than once.

• Flexible Reporting—Reports can be displayed in various formats in either tabular form or color graphics, and can be produced on both the screen and the printer.

Purchase of MicroCTS through First Bank Minneapolis includes setup, full documentation and total system support. Maintenance contracts are available at a cost of $50 per month. Further information about the MicroCTS Corporate Treasury System may be obtained by calling the First Bank Minneapolis Corporate Cash Management Department at (612) 370-4983.

"Tully" Vashus Retires After 37 Years in Banking

T.A. "Tully" Vashus, well-known Montana banker, retired May 1 as president of First National Bank of Glendive.

Mr. Vashus, who has served as president in Glendive 28 years, has spent all of his 37-year career at First National. He started with the bank in 1947 as a teller and was named president in 1956.

Mr. Vashus served as president of the Montana Bankers Association in 1974-75. As MBA secretary in 1973, he, Dub Paige and Roger Ulrich hired John Cadby as the association's first full-time professional manager.

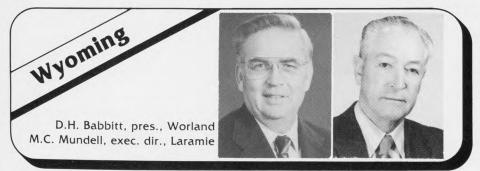

As MBA president, he established the first tax task force to address the problem of the bank shares tax, and he also created the commercial lending committee.

He presently serves as a member of the past presidents committee which plans the bank presidents conference. He also just concluded his service on the Historical Preservation Task Force as its first chairman.

Perhaps the best proof of Mr. Vashus' leadership ability is the fact that five of the people he has hired and trained have gone on to become bank presidents themselves.

Mr. Vashus and his wife, Flo, will continue to make their home in Glendive.

Omaha National Takes Over Blair Bank As An Office

Omaha National Bank on April 23 acquired certain assets and the deposits of Blair Bank, Inc., in Blair, and began operating the facility the following day as a full-service branch of Omaha National. John D. Woods, chairman and chief executive officer of Omaha National made the announcement.

The assets and deposits were acquired under an agreement with Yanney, Hughes & Associates of Omaha and under an order of the Nebraska Banking Act.

The action of Banking Director Roger Beverage was made possible through enactment of LB1026 earlier this year by the Nebraska legislature, passed basically as a response to the problems that surfaced following closing of the failed Commonwealth Savings Company of Lincoln. That new law authorizes the director of banking to negotiate a takeover of a failing bank so it can be assumed immediately upon determination of its illiquid position so the interests of depositors are protected. Mr. Beverage said there were no other problems in the bank than the fact that loans had eroded the bank's capital position.

In its report to the Northwest-ERN BANKER for the 1984 edition of the Nebraska Bank Directory, Blair Bank listed its capital as $1,223,000, surplus as $2,151,000, and undivided profits and reserves as ($1,892,000), and capital notes of $200,000. Deposits last year-end were listed as $18,211,000 and loans at $14,677,000. Total assets at yearend were noted as $21,129,000.

Omaha National is Nebraska's largest bank with $1 billion in assets. In addition to its main bank in Omaha, it operates three branches in that city.

Mr. Woods said, "There will be no interruption in service to Blair Bank customers. They can rest assured that their deposits are safe and continue to carry insurance coverage provided by the FDIC." He added that Omaha National's Blair office will offer both consumer and commercial banking services. "We will convert all former Blair Bank customers to our customer file and offer them the full range of services provided to all Omaha Naitonal customers," he said.

Blair is the county seat of Washington County and has a town population of more than 6,000 and a county population of 13,500. One other bank is in Blair, Washington County Bank. It has deposits of $64,197,000 and assets of $75,277,000. It is owned by the Lauritzen interests, which own a number of banks in Nebraska and western Iowa and one in South Dakota. The lead bank is First National Bank of Omaha.

Proposed Sidney Bank Receives Charter Approval

The proposed First National Bank of Sidney has received approval from the Comptroller of the Currency for a national charter. The bank will be located at 841 Illinois Street in Sidney.

NIBA Appoints Kurt Yost

Kurt Yost has joined the Nebraska Independent Bankers Association

as its full-time executive director. He takes over these duties from James H. Moylan of Omaha, who will continue as general counsel and lobbyist for the association.

K.T. YOST

Mr. Yost is a graduate of Kearney State College and previously spent five years in marketing with Nebraska Blue Cross/Blue Shield and over eight years as regional manager of Mid-America Lumbermens Association, a five-state trade organization.

months in the making.

"Now is the ideal time for me to pass the baton to our fine young management," Mr. Allen said. "The bank's asset condition is excellent, and the earnings momentum is strong.

Mr. Allen does not intend to work elsewhere, but will seek personal investment opportunities as they develop. He has made no firm plans at this time concerning future residence.

No formal announcement has been made concerning a realignment of the bank's organization, but Gary Thrasher, senior vice president, will assume a part of Mr. Allen's responsibilities.

Prior to joining Omaha National, Mr. Allen was executive vice president of the Idaho First National Bank in Boise, Idaho.

Eight Buddy Bears were recently presented to the principal at Bryan High School by John R. Cochran, president and CEO of Norwest Bank Omaha, N.A. as part of the "Adopt-A-School" program initiated by the Omaha Public Schools.

The objectives of the school and business partnership are to plan and implement a program which helps students prepare to compete more successfully in modern society and to seek to improve administrativemanagerial activities through the application of combined professional expertise.

The school and business committee members have met several times and made plans for special events. Bank representatives presented a seminar on February 27th on IRAs to staff members. A personal banker will spend a day at the school to discuss student loans with graduating seniors.

The Bryan High athletic department has volunteered to sponsor clinics and workshops for bank employees. A survey was taken to determine the level of interest in tennis, golf, jogging, running, aerobics, etc.

Other planned activities include:

preparation of a brochure listing bank speakers and their topics as resources available for classroom teachers and recognition of students who maintain a 3.5 grade average and are part of the academic Excellence Program.

Norwest Gets Fed OK to Buy 1st National, Grand Island

Norwest Corporation of Minneapolis was given final approval late last month to merge Bankshares of Nebraska into Norwest. The principal holding of Bankshares, a $14 million asset holding company, is First National Bank of Grand Island. First National was Nebraska's 11th largest bank at last yearend, with $116,764,000 in deposits.

The name of First National will be changed to Norwest Bank Grand Island, N.A., to conform to the corporate name of all Norwest banks. S.N. "Bud" Wolbach, 67, will continue as chairman. President Richard E. Spelts, Jr., 65, will become vice chairman. Norman Nackerud, chairman and chief executive officer at Norwest Bank Hastings, N.A., will move to Grand Island as president and chief executive officer and will continue as chairman at the Hastings bank.

Norwest now has six banks in Nebraska and the First National merger represents its first acquisition under multi bank holding company powers authorized last year by the Nebraska legislature. Norwest for many years has held these five other Nebraska banks (figure in parentheses represents ranking by size in Nebraska; deposits are 1983 year-end):

Norwest Bank Omaha, N.A. (4), $452,575,000.

- Norwest Bank Omaha South, N.A. (6), $163,175,000.
- Norwest Bank Hastings, N.A. (7) $160,625,000.
- Norwest Bank Omaha West (10), $121,085,000.
- Norwest Bank Norfolk, N.A. (26), $78,151,000.

These five banks had deposits of $975,611,000 at year-end and with First National Bank of Grand Island added, the new total for the six Nebraska Norwest banks will be $1,092,375,000, the second largest group in the state.

Norwest Corporation has $20 billion assets in 85 banks and financial service companies located in 43 states and 5 countries.

Fed OKs Omaha National First Lincoln Merger

The Federal Reserve Board has approved the merger of Omaha National Corporation and First National Lincoln Corp. The surviving company is to be called FirsTier, Inc.

The Federal Reserve Board also approved Omaha National's application to purchase shares of First National Lincoln stock tendered in response to Omaha National's offer for such shares.

The Federal Reserve action followed approval of the proposed merger by shareholders of both companies at shareholders meetings held Wednesday, April 4, 1984.

"With the favorable Federal Reserve ruling, we except to complete the merger within a few days after the expiration on May 24, 1984, of the 30-day waiting period required by law," said John D. Woods and William C. Smith in a prepared statement.

Mr. Woods is chairman and chief executive officer of Omaha National Corporation and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Omaha National Bank. Mr. Smith is president and chief executive officer of First National Lincoln Corp. and its wholly-owned subbidiary, First National Bank & Trust Company of Lincoln.

At the time the merger is completed, payments will be mailed to First National Lincoln shareholders Who tendered their stock. Omaha National's offer to purchase shares of common stock of First National Lincoln at $42.50 per share expired on January 6, 1984, and approximately 807,000 shares have been tendered and not withdrawn. As previously announced Omaha National will purchase all shares which are not withdrawn prior to purchase of the shares.

"FirsTier will be built on the foundation of financial strength and commitment to our state and region that our organizations have demonstrated for more than a century," said Mr. Woods and Mr. Smith.

Mr. Woods will be board chairman and chief executive officer of FirsTier. Mr. Smith will be president and chief operating officer.

At their annual meeting, Omaha National shareholders also elected the 10 directors who will serve on the board of FirsTier. Five have been directors of Omaha National Corporation, and five have been directors of First National Lincoln.

The Omaha representatives in addition to Mr. Woods, who will serve as board chairman and chief executive officer of FirsTier, are: Warren E. Buffett, chairman and chief executive officer of Berkshire Hathaway Inc., John C. Kenefick, chairman and chief executive officer of the Union Pacific Railroad Company and the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company; Walter Scott, Jr., chairman of the board and president of Peter Kiewit Sons', Inc., and W.A. Strauss, chairman of the board of InterNorth, Inc.

The Lincoln representatives in addition to Smith, who will serve as president and chief operating officer of FirstTier, are: George P. Abel, president of NEBCO, Inc.; Dwight C. Perkins, chairman of the board of Farmers Mutual Insurance Company; Dale C. Tinstman, director and former co-chairman of IBP, Inc., and Neal E. Tyner, president of Bankers Life Insurance Company of Nebraska.

Under the merger agreement, Omaha National Bank and First National Bank & Trust Co. of Lincoln will continue to operate under their existing names and with their own boards of directors and officers.

Realbanc, Inc., Omaha National Corporation's mortgage banking subsidiary, is changing its name to FirsTier Mortgage Co. Omnabanc Leasing Co., an Omaha National Bank subsidiary, has changed its name to FirsTier Leasing Co.

The Iowa Bankers Association is once again offering the Iowa General School of Banking June 17-22 at the University of Iowa, Iowa City.

This year's program has been revised from previous years' schools in that the first-year curriculum is part of ABA's professional development program, developed by David Friedman.

Mr. Friedman is an economist, author and banking instructor. He has held major staff positions at the Federal Reserve Bank, has been on the faculty of the American Institute of Banking in New York since 1974 and has been a member of the Department of Economics at Brooklyn College since 1965.

Topics for this year's school include macro-economics in the banking system, deposits and liabilities, trust services, cash management services, marketing bank services, lending, investments, asset liability management, bank financial analysis, bank operations/data processing, financial planning and control, human resource management, and the changing bank environment.

During this transaction year the second-year students' curriculum will be appropriately adapted and will include modules on lending policy and investment policy. They will also be getting ABA's BankSim I, developed jointly by the ABA and the FDIC, and improved over previously used Bank Simulations models

THE bank lobby was busy with activity as exhibitors and visitors examine handouts and sample dairy products and baked goods which were supplied by various farm organizations, during Ag Appreciation Day at the First National Bank of Waverly.

First National Bank of Waverly Celebrates Ag Appreciation Day

HE FIRST National Bank of Waverly hosted an open house on March 23 at their main banking facility in downtown Waverly, as a tribute to the American farmer.

Various farm organizations, including Bremer County Extension Service, Cattlemen and Cowbelles, Pork Producers and Porkettes, Dairy Promoters and Partners. Farm Bureau Women and the Iowa Soybean Promotion Board had exhibit tables in the bank lobby. Samples of products that originate on the farm were available as well as informational brochures and recipes. The 1984 Bremer County Beef Queen, Kristie Axon, as well as Dairy Princesses, Gretchen Gitch and Deanne Dietz, and Little Miss Squirt, Jeanie Even were on hand at their respective exhibit tables. Four implement dealers displayed farm and garden equipment, also in the bank's lobby.

Approximately 650 people enjoyed a lunch which was provided by the bank and served by the Cattlemen and Cowbelles. Four lucky winners took home scale model farm toys from the drawing.

Jim Arens, bank president commented, "Events such as these make us all more aware of the positive impact that agriculture and related industries have on our economic growth and stability.'

Acquires City National

The Federal Reserve Board has granted approval for the newly formed Bezanson Corporation, owned by Peter F. Bezanson, to purchase Cit National Bank of Cedar Rapids from E.J. Buresh of Anamosa. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Jerry Maples, an officer of Bezanson Corporation, stated, "We are entremely pleased to be a member of the Cedar Rapids banking community. City National plans to embark on an aggressive approach in the delivery of rapidly expanding financian services to individuals and businesses in this area. We have a great deal of confidence in the eastern Iowa economy and our bank will take an active part in its continue growth."

In keeping with that commitment to growth and service, Mr. Bezanson announced after the bank's annual meeting late last month that Gary Peterson has been elected the new president of City National. Mr. Peterson has been with United Central Bank and

G. PETERSON

Trust Company of Fort Dodge for the past 12 years and in that time helped pilot that institution to an outstanding growth record, Mr. Bezanson stated. He noted that assets of the bank Mr. Peterson headed had more than tripled during that time to $125 million.

Mr. Peterson announced at the meeting that City National will immediately expand business hours for customer convenience; add several services, including instant cash, debit card, MasterCard and Visa; in troduce a discount brokerage service, and enlarge its customer service departments.

City National Bank's main bank building is at 1100 Old Mario Road, Northeast. It also has a full service branch at Lindale Plaza. As of March 31, 1984, the bank had assets of $23,000,000 with deposits in excess of $19,000,000.

The bank was founded in 1957 by industrialist Howard Hall. Mr. Buresh, who lives in Anamosa where he is owner and president of Citizens Savings Bank, purchased control ing interest in City National in 1971.

Iowa Ag Bankers Examine Future

N EARLY 350 Iowa bankers assembled at the Scheman Center at Iowa State University in Ames March 19 to take part in the Iowa Bankers Association's 1982 Ag Credit Conference. It ran from Monday noon to Wednesday noon, offering three general sessions that dealth with ag lending and ag-related topics of importance. In addition, two series of workshops covered six topics on operational procedures related to ag lending.

Presiding at the conference as chairman of the IBA Ag Committee was Roger Engelkes, executive vice president of Grundy National Bank, Grundy Center.

A special feature of the conference was a report from Neal Conover, immediate past IBA Ag Committee chairman and vice president of Hayesville Savings Bank, on a farm meeting held in Des Moines a week earlier at IBA headquarters with national government leaders. At peer group sessions held the last morning of the Ag Conference in Ames, bankers indicated their priorities concerning what to do about the depressed farm economy and their ag customers, as a prelude to possible federal legislation.

That list of priorities was approved by the IBA board of directors, which presented it to the Iowa House and Senate. Those members adopted it almost verbatim as Joint Resolution #111 and forwarded it to the President, Vice President, Secretary of Agriculture and members of the Iowa Congressional delegation, where it now rests. (Details appeared in the 4/23 Weekly Newsletter of the Northwestern Banker.)

A headliner at the first general session was Iowa Congressman Tom Harkin (Dem.), who is campaigning for the Senatorial seat held by Sen. Roger Jepsen (Rep.). Rep. Harkin spoke for his bills, H.R. 3296 and 3297, which would basically negate the security position of a bank on livestock and sales barn transactions. It is supported by ag interests, including grain dealers and all service groups who want to prevent banks from exercising their security interests as lenders. Natually, the IBA and other banking groups oppose the measure.

Oliver A. Hansen, president and chairman of Liberty Trust & Savings Bank, Durant, who is a national spokesman for the ag industry, told his audience that farmers have gone from a $50 billion debt to more than $200 billion debt in just a few years, "and 94% of the increase in ag net worth was inflated gain."

"We're in a critical period now," he stated, because "14% of the farmers have 50% of the debt, but only 16% of the assets. In some areas, it's heavier than that. In 1982, if a farmer had a 30% debt/asset ratio and paid 11% interest on debt, he lost money. Three years ago the debt/asset ratio was 24%. The 1983 figures will show it's now 35%. Where do we bankers go from here?"

He said each problem, each customer is different, so each must be treated individually. "We have people who have never been hit before. We must determine who can be salvaged, and attitude has much to do with that. I wish the farm journals would stress the importance of attitude. We can't abandon those people now. We must determine if they ar good managers. Did they do things they should have done when times were better? If a particular customer is worthy and won't take 'no' for an answer, then where do we tak him?''

Mr. Hansen suggested the FmHA and the SBA and urged the bankers to send someone along with that customer for two reasons: "1. When he comes back we know what was said; we don't get a jumbled story. 2. He gets a pack of papers to read and complete and we can help him. If we can't do any of the above and there is no other way, then help him make an orderly liquidation. He might be able to salvage something if he gets out at the right time."

Mr. Hansen ended on an optimistic note, saying, "We've been here before and we've survived, and we will do it again! These aren't the worst times ever. Input costs are higher, but where would we be today without Social Security, the FDIC, unemployment compensation? We know we'll keep going. Some things will be passed by legislatures we won't want.

"Make it a goal to resolve one problem each month. In visiting with bankers I find their note cases are capable of being straightened out but you must solve them one by one. This is a great time for young bankers to learn what banking is all about. Ag problems are out there, but we can work with them. Some how, we must get the message

OHN RUAN, chmn. & ceo of Ruan Companies and chmn. of Bankers Trust, Des Moines, discussed the proposal for constructing a World Trade Center in Des Moines.

• cross to legislatures that we are not loaning the banker's money but depositors money! Our banks are growing. How many farmers do you see coming in who are not borrowing • noney and you wish they did?

"The primrose path doesn't always go uphill. We will again be able to relax a little as we go down the hill."

Superintendent of Banking Tom Huston reminded the ag bankers that a lot of machinery and land that was written up in loans with high asset value has now had to be sold or much less than the stated value, greatly affecting many bank loans geared to the higher value. "In some areas of our state," he said, "I think we should prepare for a 10% to 15%
Grop in land values, maybe more. We must look closer at the real value of property statements.

"So many include stuff that shouldn't be there or is overpriced. I whink it's time to ratchet down. I think some national exam policies of writing down a flat percentage are wrong. We do have many who value statements correctly."

He reaffirmed Mr. Hansen's statement about the individuality of each customer. "We are in different times," Mr. Huston said. "We're looking at huge charge-offs all over the state. But we can't just kick out every person in our bank that doesn't have good cash flow. Look at each case."

Mr. Huston said classified loans to capital accounts had been running at 39.71%. "As of March 16," he noted, "that figure now is 42.1% and, as I have said before, it will go to 50%. But keep the engine running. Be smart. Be compassionate." John Ruan, chairman of Ruan Companies and chairman of Bankers Trust Company, Des Moines, presented the case for establishing a World Trade Center in Des Moines and showed the slide film supporting the World Trade Center building. Its favorable effect on agriculture was noticeable to all in attendance; however, the project lost in the 1984 state legislature after four separate votes killed it because of lack of funds. \Box

Lamoni National Bank Hosts Ag Day Seminar

More than 200 area farm customers braved blizzard, icy conditions to attend an Ag Day Seminar hosted by Lamoni National Bank in early March. James Schipper, president of Lamoni National, said the officers and directors were highly pleased with farmer response to the positive program presented.

The seminar began at 9:00 a.m. and concluded with a barbecued beef luncheon.

First speaker was Derry Brownfield, an ag broadcaster whose Brownfield Network from central Missouri is heard over move than 125 radio stations throughout that state and southern Iowa. He was followed by Robert deBaca, PhD, operator of his own purebred Angus cattle operation and who is a consultant in the cattle business.

Frank Starr of Denver, Colo., who with his sons purchased the Lamoni bank and recently converted it to a national charter under the Lamoni National Bank name, discussed the positive aspects of the area economy to tell farmer guests why his family invested in the Lamoni bank.

Mr. Schipper was the concluding speaker. He reviewed the changes taking place in farming, as well as the changes taking place in banking, including the effects on banks and their customers of deregulation.

It is planned to make the seminar for bank customers and area farmers an annual event.

Joins Audubon Bank

John Johnson, formerly vice president of the United Central Bank of Cresco, has joined the Audubon State Bank as senior vice president.

Mr. Johnson fills the vacancy created by James B. Ingeman, who has accepted a position as president of Karlstad State Bank, Minnesota.

"Our financial expertise and technological savvy will help you meet the issues. Head-on."

David Van Lear, President & CEO, Norwest Information Services, Member Norwest Financial Institutions Team "The '80s. They've brought with them a myriad of technological advances.

"And with those advances also come new problems, needs, and financial issues to face.

"These are issues that include:

- Is the size of my institution an appropriate consideration in selecting a system for future growth plans?
- Does the trend toward bank consolidations affect decisions on data processing needs?
- What role should the personal computer or microcomputer play in the operations of my bank?
- How do you effectively compare the true costs of an in-house computer system versus a service bureau or large correspondent data processor?
- Will our in-house computer system be outdated next year?
- How important will on-line communication terminals become with a major regional bank in the maturing age of electronic funds?
- How does a technology relationship with a major regional bank decrease the concern for survival of community banks?
- What is the linkage between traditional data processing and Asset/Liability Management?

"These are pressing issues that Norwest Corporation, as a leader in correspondent data processing, is ready to meet. Head-on.

"If you'd like to know just how Norwest is addressing them, contact Dee Theien at 612-372-8072 for a copy of "Technology Issues in Banking."
