WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Treasury Janet L. Yellen will travel from July 13-21 to Gandhinagar, India to participate in the G20 Finance Ministers and Central Bank Governors meetings and then to Hanoi, Vietnam for bilateral engagements.

While at the G20, Secretary Yellen will continue to build momentum for the collective effort that she helped launch last October to evolve the multilateral development banks to better meet global challenges while delivering on core development goals. In India, Secretary Yellen will continue work towards debt sustainability to bolster the global economy: with over half of all low-income countries at high risk of or in debt distress, it is critical that we take collective action to help put them – and by extension the global economy – on a surer footing.

Finally, Secretary Yellen will stress the importance of deepening our bilateral relationship with India during her third visit to the country in the last nine months. As President Biden said last year, India is one of America’s indispensable partners, and Secretary Yellen will use her participation at the G20 in Gandhinagar to help deepen our already significant relationship.

While in Vietnam, Secretary Yellen will work towards deepening our bilateral economic relationship with Vietnam and bolstering economic resilience. Over the 28 years since the U.S. and Vietnam have normalized diplomatic relations, trade between our two countries has grown at an astounding annual rate of nearly 25 percent, and our goods trade reached a record high last year. During her visit to Vietnam, Secretary Yellen will also highlight how the economic shocks of recent years have provided an important reminder of the importance of bolstering economic resilience, including by building secure and reliable supply chains across many trusted partners like Vietnam through ‘friendshoring’.

While in Hanoi, Secretary Yellen will seek to work in partnership with countries like Vietnam to power a global clean energy transition. Climate change represents an existential global threat, as well as an enormous economic opportunity. The Biden Administration is committed to acting at home and abroad to meet the moment. At home, we’ve made an unprecedented investment through the Inflation Reduction Act to meet our emissions targets and spur on hundreds of billions of dollars of private investment in green technology – investments which will drive a positive spillover globally through lower costs. And in Vietnam, we have worked with the International Partners Group to mobilize over $15 billion to support the country’s energy transition.

Finally, Secretary Yellen will continue the United States and Vietnam’s work together to address currency issues. The United States and Vietnam are trusted partners with friendship grounded in mutual respect. Vietnam has maintained a constructive dialogue with Treasury and worked to address concerns about Vietnam’s currency practices. Secretary Yellen will highlight this progress during her visit to Vietnam as one example of how our countries can work together to address challenges and help enhance Vietnam’s financial and macroeconomic resilience.
