Legislation will be proposed that would extend the Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) and the NAFTA-Transitional Adjustment Assistance (NAFTA-TAA) programs for five years. In addition, the proposed legislation would extend eligibility for TAA to those who lose their jobs due to shifts in production abroad, similar to the provision under NAFTA-TAA for shifts in production to Canada and Mexico. The legislated cap on TAA training expenditures would be raised to support the expected increase in program participants. The requirements linking training and income support would be made more consistent across the two programs. Finally, the proposed legislation would create a contingency funding provision to assure that resources are available to pay for any unexpected increase in benefit costs for eligible workers.

STATE UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICE
OPERATIONS—Continued

Unemployment compensation.—State administration amounts provide administrative grants to State agencies which pay unemployment compensation to eligible workers and collect State unemployment taxes from employers. These agencies also pay unemployment benefits to former Federal personnel as well as trade adjustment assistance to eligible individuals. State administration amounts also provide administrative grants to State agencies to improve the integrity and financial stability of the unemployment compensation program through a comprehensive program, UI Performs, to effect continuous improvement in State performance and related activities designed to assess and reduce errors and prevent fraud, waste, and abuse in the payment of unemployment compensation benefits and the collection of unemployment taxes. National activities relating to the Federal-State unemployment insurance programs are conducted through contracts or agreements with the State agencies. Contingency funds are available only to meet increases in the costs of administration resulting from changes in State law, or increases in the number of claims filed and claims paid. Legislation will be proposed to provide additional administrative resources for the States to operate their UI programs, as described in the proposal for the Unemployment Trust Fund account.

Employment service.—The public employment service is a nationwide system providing no-fee employment services to individuals who are seeking employment and employers who are seeking workers. State employment service activities are financed by allotment to States distributed under a demographically based funding formula established under the Wagner-Peyser Act, as amended. Employment service allotments are funded on a program year basis running from July 1 through June 30 of the following year.

Employment service activities serving national needs, including interstate job listings and labor certification of aliens, are conducted through specific reimbursable agreements between the States and the Federal Government under the Wagner-Peyser Act, as amended. Funding is also provided for amortization payments for States which had independent retirement plans prior to 1980 in their State employment service agencies.

Legislation will be proposed that would authorize the Department of Labor to collect fees from employers for the certification of certain aliens as eligible workers. This proposal would be implemented in fiscal year 2000. This is one of several proposals in the budget to charge fees to users directly availing themselves of, or subject to, a government service, program, or activity, in order to cover the government's costs. Upon enactment of the authorization, appropriations language will be used to make the fees available for alien labor certification program operations.

One-Stop Career Centers.—These funds will be used to support voluntary State efforts to create a comprehensive system of One-Stop Career Centers which will provide workers and employers with quick and easy access to a wide array of enhanced career development and labor market information services. Funding for this activity is on a program year basis, running from July 1 through June 30 of the following year.

This account was initiated as a result of the amendments to the Emergency Unemployment Compensation law (P.L. 102–164, as amended) which currently provides for general fund financing for administrative costs related to extended benefits under the optional, total unemployment rate trigger. These funds are transferred to a receipt account in the Unemployment Trust Fund (UTF) in order that resources may be transferred to the Employment Security Administration Account in the UTF for administrative costs.

This account provides repayable advances to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund for making payments from that fund whenever its balances prove insufficient. The funding requested in this appropriation for FY 1999 is entirely for Black Lung. This spending authority is presented as authority to borrow in the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund.

This account also provides advances to several other accounts to pay unemployment compensation to eligible individuals under various Federal and State unemployment compensation laws whenever the balances in the funds prove insufficient or whenever reimbursements to certain accounts, as allowed by law, are to be made. Advances made to the Federal employees compensation account in the Unemployment Trust Fund and to the Federal unemployment benefits and allowances account are nonrepayable. All other advances made to the Federal unemployment account and to the Extended unemployment compensation account (both in the Unemployment Trust Fund) are repaid, with interest, to the general fund of the Treasury.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment Trust Fund. All State and Federal unemployment tax receipts are deposited in the trust fund and invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments or administrative costs. States may receive repayable advances from the fund when their balances in the fund are insufficient to pay benefits. The fund may receive repayable advances from the general fund when it has insufficient balances to make advances to States or to pay the Federal share of extended benefits.

State payroll taxes pay for all regular State benefits. During periods of high State unemployment, extended benefits, financed one-half by State payroll taxes and one-half by the Federal unemployment payroll tax, are also paid. The Federal tax pays the costs of Federal and State administration of unemployment insurance and veterans employment services and 97% of the costs of the employment service.

The Federal employees compensation account provides funds to States for unemployment compensation benefits paid to eligible former Federal civilian personnel, Postal Service employees, and ex-servicemembers. Benefits paid are reimbursed to the Federal employees compensation account by the various Federal agencies. Any additional resources necessary to assure that the account can make the required payments to States will be provided from the Advances to the Unemployment Trust Fund and other funds account.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the unemployment trust fund and receipts from the tax on railroad payrolls are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

Legislation will be proposed that would enhance the Unemployment Insurance (UI) safety net to assure the availability of benefits in the event of a recession, make the program more accessible to unemployed workers, and improve State administrative operations. Proposed legislation would change the trigger for the standby Extended Benefits program to make it more responsive to rising State unemployment. Proposed legislation would also encourage States to improve the solvency of their unemployment trust funds and their ability to pay benefits in a recession. Legislation will seek additional administrative resources for the States to operate their UI programs, improving service delivery and improving access to UI benefits for low-wage workers.

This wholly owned government corporation administers programs of mandatory insurance to prevent loss of pension benefits under covered private, defined-benefit pension plans if single-employer plans terminate or if multiemployer plans are unable to pay benefits.

Single-employer program.—The single-employer program protects about 33 million participants in about 43,000 pension plans. Under this program a company may voluntarily seek to terminate its plan, or the PBGC may seek termination under certain circumstances. The PBGC must seek termination when a plan cannot pay current benefits.

In a "standard" termination, plan assets must be sufficient to pay all benefits before the plan is allowed to end. That payment is in the form of an annuity purchased from an insurance company, or a lump sum payment. After the payment is made, the PBGC guarantee ends. A plan that cannot pay all benefits may be ended by a "distress" termination, but only if the employer meets tests proving severe financial distress; for example, the likelihood that continuing the plan would force the company to shut down. If the terminated plan cannot pay at least the PBGC-guaranteed benefits, the PBGC uses its funds to ensure guaranteed benefits are paid.

Multiemployer program.—The multiemployer insurance program protects about 8.8 million participants in about 2,000 plans. Multiemployer pension plans are maintained under collectively bargained agreements involving unrelated employers, generally in the same industry. If a PBGC-insured multiemployer plan is unable to pay guaranteed benefits when due, the PBGC will provide the plan with financial assistance to continue paying guaranteed benefits, ordinarily in the form of a loan to the plan. Twenty-four plans are expected to be receiving assistance in 1999.

Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—Provides for collection of over $1 billion in premiums, accounting and auditing services, asset management, executive direction, and other support functions.

Services related to terminations.—This activity provides for needed, but unpredictable, costs related to benefits administration, actuarial services, managing the assets of trustee plans, and a share of other costs arising from plan termination. Funding includes enhancement in customer services to process final benefit determinations faster.

With sufficient assets .....	3,060	3,000	3,000

Financing.—The primary source of financing is annual premiums paid by sponsors of ongoing covered plans, which vary according to the plans' funding level. Other sources of financing include assets from terminated plans, investment income, and amounts due the Corporation from the sponsors of terminating plans. Also, the Corporation is authorized to borrow up to $100 million from the U.S. Treasury.

The Administration will propose legislation to expand pension coverage, improve benefit portability, and strengthen retirement security. Included in the package will be: a new, simplified defined-benefit pension plan for small businesses, which are only about half as likely as larger companies to offer worker pensions; raising the current guarantee cap on multiemployer pension benefits; and extending PBGC's "missing participants" program to defined-contribution plans and to certain defined-benefit plans, such as multiemployer plans.

Enforcement of wage and hour standards.—The Wage and Hour Division works to obtain and encourage compliance with the minimum wage, overtime, child labor, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act, Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act, the Family and Medical Leave Act, certain provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act, the wage garnishment provisions in title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, and the Employee Polygraph Protection Act. Prevailing wages are determined and employment standards enforced under various Government contract wage standards. In 1999 approximately 265,000 persons are expected to be aided under the Fair Labor Standards Act through securing agreements with firms to pay back wages owed to their workers. In Government contract compliance actions, about 24,000 persons will be aided through securing agreements to pay wages owed to workers. Under the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act program, approximately 2,500 investigations and 1,000 housing inspections will be completed. In the course of all on-site investigations, investigators will routinely check for employer compliance with child labor standards and the employment eligibility verification recordkeeping requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act. The Electronic Service Contract Act Notification System, which will enable contracting agencies to request and receive wage determination data, will become operational in FY 1998. Resources will be earmarked for Davis-Bacon wage survey/wage determination reengineering and reinvention in FY 1999. The Budget maintains resources for the Wage and Hour Division which will be assigned to areas where employment of illegal immigrants is most prevalent. The targeting of labor standards enforcement efforts in those industries and geographic areas where unauthorized workers are most prevalent will help to reduce the economic incentive for such illegal employment practices and will, in turn, reduce illegal immigration.

Federal contractor EEO standards enforcement.—The Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP) is responsible for ensuring nondiscrimination in employment based on race, sex, religion, color, national origin, disability or veteran status by Federal contractors and subcontractors at 90,000 supply and service establishments and 150,000 construction sites with a total workforce of 22 million people. It conducts compliance reviews and complaint investigations. It assures that Federal contractors and subcontractors take affirmative action in the hiring and advancement of minorities and women under the authority of Executive Orders 11246 and 11375. It enforces the affirmative action and nondiscrimination provisions of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and, as an agent of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990. It ensures that contractors comply with the provisions of the Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974 providing for affirmative action by Federal contractors to employ, and advance in employment, special disabled and Vietnam era veterans.

The Budget includes resources for a tiered-review process, which will significantly reduce the paperwork burden on federal contractors and increase coverage of the contractor universe; compliance assistance to ensure that federal contractors are fully aware of their equal employment opportunity responsibilities; increased vigilance in preventing discrimination based on national origin through coordination with the Department of Justice; and the review of federal contractor's compliance with the Family and Medical Leave Act. In 1999, approximately 2,300,000 individuals will be directly aided through 5,000 compliance reviews, 425 complaint investigations, and 5,040 other compliance actions.

Federal programs for workers' compensation.—Under this income maintenance activity, the Employment Standards Administration administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, and the benefit provisions of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977. These programs ensure that eligible disabled and injured workers or their survivors receive compensation and medical benefits and a range of services including rehabilitation, supervision of medical care, and technical and advisory counseling to which they are entitled. Monitoring services are provided with respect to State workers' compensation laws.

Program direction and support.—This activity includes planning, personnel management, financial management, and Federal/State liaison programs, management systems implementation, and data processing operations. Major goals in 1999 will include implementing financial management initiatives; continued efforts to eliminate internal fraud, waste, and mismanagement; the improvement of management information, automated data processing, and program and fiscal accountability; and legislative and regulatory improvements.

Labor-management standards.—The Office of Labor-Management Standards (OLMS) collects and discloses union financial reports; audits union financial records and investigates possible embezzlements of union funds; conducts election investigations and reruns of union officer elections after court determinations that elections were not conducted in accordance with the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act; and administers the statutory program to certify employee protection provisions under various Federally-sponsored transportation programs. In FY 1999, OLMS expects to process 36,000 reports and conduct a total of 4,031 investigations, audits, and supervised elections.

Federal Employees' Compensation Act Benefits.—Under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act program, income is replaced if a job injury results in time away from work. Medical bills arising from compensable job injuries are also paid. Not all benefits are paid by the program since the first 45 days of disability are usually covered by keeping injured workers in pay status with their employing agencies. In 1999, 175,000 injured federal workers or their survivors will file claims; 54,500 will receive long-term wage replacement benefits for job-related injuries, diseases, or deaths. Most of the costs of this account are charged back to the employing agencies of beneficiaries.

The remainder is provided from the special fund which is financed by private employers assessed at the beginning of each calendar year for their proportionate share of these payments.

The trust fund consists of all moneys collected from the coal mine industry under the provisions of the Black Lung Benefits Revenue Act of 1981, as amended by the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985, in the form of an excise tax on mined coal. These moneys are expended to pay compensation, medical, and survivor benefits to eligible miners and their survivors, where mine employment terminated prior to 1970 or where no mine operator can be assigned liability. In addition the fund pays all administrative costs incurred in the operation of part C of the black lung program. The fund is administered jointly by the Secretaries of Labor, the Treasury, and Health and Human Services. The Benefits Revenue Act provides for repayable advances to the fund in the event fund resources will not be adequate to meet program obligations. Such advances are to be repaid with interest. The outstanding debt at the end of each year was: 1981, $1,510 million; 1982, $1,793 million; 1983, $2,151 million; 1984, $2,497 million; 1985, $2,833 million; 1986, $2,884 million; 1987, $2,952 million; 1988, $2,993 million; 1989, $3,049 million; 1990, $3,049 million; 1991, $3,266 million; 1992, $3,606 million; 1993, $3,949 million; 1994, $4,363 million; 1995, $4,738 million; 1996, $5,112 million; 1997, $5,487 million; 1998, $5,858 million; and 1999, $6,215 million.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, for fines and penalty payments, and pursuant to an annual assessment of the industry, for the general expenses of the fund under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended.

These trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury is combined with a previous disability and results in increased permanent partial disability, permanent total disability, or death, the employer's liability for benefits is limited to a specified period of compensation payments after which the fund provides continuing compensation benefits. In addition, the fund pays one-half of the increased benefits provided under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, for persons on the rolls prior to 1972. Maintenance payments are made to disabled employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation to enable them to return to remunerative occupations, and the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled workers are defrayed. Payments are made in cases where other circumstances preclude payment by an employer and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by the insolvency of an uninsured employer.

Safety and Health Standards.—The safety and health standards activity provides for the development, promulgation, review and evaluation of occupational safety and health standards under procedures providing opportunity for public comment. Before any standard is proposed or promulgated, a determination is made that: (1) a significant risk of serious injury or health impairment exists; (2) the standard will reduce this risk; (3) the standard is economically and technologically feasible; and (4) the standard is cost-effective when compared with alternative regulatory proposals providing equal levels of protection. Regulatory reform efforts include consensus-based rulemaking, development of common sense regulations, rewriting existing standards in plain language, and regulatory process improvements.

Enforcement.—This activity provides for the enforcement of workplace standards promulgated under the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 through the physical inspection of worksites, and by fostering the voluntary cooperation of employers and employees. This activity also provides grants to assist States in administering and enforcing State standards. Programs are targeted to the investigation of claims of imminent danger and employee complaints, investigation of fatal and catastrophic accidents, programmed inspections of firms with injury-illness rates that are above the national average, and special emphasis inspections for serious safety and health hazards. OSHA's enforcement strategy includes a selective targeting of inspections and related compliance activities to specific high hazard industries, and offering employers a choice between a partnership and a traditional enforcement relationship.

Technical Support.—This activity provides specialized technical expertise and advice in support of a wide range of program areas, including construction, standards setting, variance determinations, compliance assistance, and enforcement. Areas of expertise include laboratory accreditation, industrial hygiene, ergonomics, occupational health nursing, occupational medicine, and safety engineering.

Compliance Assistance—Federal.—This activity supports a variety of employer and employee assistance programs, consistent with OSHA's partnership initiatives. Outreach activities are conducted, including training and information exchanges and technical assistance to employers requesting such help. Grants are awarded to nonprofit organizations to provide employee and employer training programs, targeted to address specific industry needs for safety and health education. Employers are encouraged to establish voluntary employee protection programs, and Federal agencies are assisted in implementing job safety and health programs for their employees. Professional training for compliance personnel and others with related workplace safety and health responsibilities is conducted at the OSHA Training Institute, and further training is provided by education centers selected and sanctioned by the institute.

Compliance Assistance—State.—This activity supports 90 percent Federally-funded cooperative agreements with designated State agencies to provide free on-site consultation to employers upon request. State agencies tailor workplans to specific needs in each State while maximizing their impact on injury and illness rates in smaller establishments. These projects offer a variety of services, including safety and health program assessment and assistance, hazard identification and control, and training of employers and their employees.

Statistics.—Information technology, management information and statistical support for OSHA's programs and field operations are provided through an integrated data network, and statistical analysis and review. OSHA administers and maintains the recordkeeping system which serves as the foundation for the BLS survey on occupational injuries and illnesses, provides guidance on recordkeeping requirements to both the public and private sectors, and develops regulations along with interpretive publications and materials.

Executive direction and administration.—These activities include executive direction, planning and evaluation, management support, legislative liaison, interagency affairs, administrative services, and budgeting and financial control.

Enforcement.—The Enforcement strategy in 1999 will be an integrated approach that links all actions to preventing occupational injuries and illness. These include inspection of mines as mandated by the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977, special emphasis initiatives that focus on persistent safety and health hazards, promulgation of safety and health standards, investigation of serious accidents, and on-site education and training assistance. The desired outcome of these enforcement efforts is to at least maintain or lower fatality and injury rates.

Assessments.—This activity assesses and collects civil monetary penalties for violations of safety and health standards.

Educational policy and development.—This activity develops and coordinates MSHA's mine safety and health education and training policies, and provides classroom instruction at the National Academy for MSHA personnel, other governmental personnel, and the mining industry. States provide mine health and safety training materials, and provide technical assistance through the State Grants program.

Technical support.—This activity applies engineering and scientific expertise through field and laboratory forensic investigations to resolve technical problems associated with implementation of the Mine Act. Technical support administers a fee program to approve equipment, materials, and explosives for use in mines and performs field and laboratory audits of equipment previously approved by MSHA. It also collects and analyzes data relative to the cause, frequency, and circumstances of accidents.

Program administration.—This activity provides for general administrative functions.

The program described below is financed by this appropriation, by fees for services, and by reimbursements from other agencies. Those agencies are provided with most of their administrative services overseas by the Department of State. Executive direction and policy formulation.—This activity identifies resources which provide sound management through the direction of the Secretary and with the assistance of staff offices, specialized offices, and functional and regional bureaus, for policy formulation and in pursuit of regional and global foreign policy objectives including the hosting of various international conferences and meetings in the United States and abroad.

Conduct of diplomatic relations.—Resources of this activity are used to provide for: the political and economic reporting and analysis of interests to the United States; the representation of U.S. diplomatic and national interests to countries abroad; and the bilateral and multilateral negotiation of our foreign policy objectives, including the hosting of and participation in various international conferences, meetings and other multilateral activities in the United States and abroad. These resources also fund the conduct of U.S. diplomatic policy through political and multilateral affairs, economic and social affairs, international budgetary and management affairs, and participation in and hosting various international conferences.

Conduct of consular relations.—Activities included are: overseas and American citizen services; the issuance of passports to U.S. citizens both here and abroad; and, implementing a coordinated strategy to improve consular systems and processes in support of U.S. border security. Visa services involve: the issuance, denial, and adjudication of immigrant and non-immigrant visas; refugee processing; and visa fraud detection and investigation. American citizen services include the issuance of passports and emergency assistance to American citizens abroad. Passport services include the issuance of passports in the United States and U.S. missions abroad and passport fraud detection and investigation.

Professional development and training.—The professional development and training activity is a continuous process by which the Department ensures that its professionals have the skills, experience, and judgment to fulfill its functions at all levels. Training programs are designed to provide employees with the specific functional, area, and language skills needed for the conduct of foreign relations in the Department and abroad.

Information management.—This activity identifies resources that are used for the effective and efficient creation, collection, processing, transmission, dissemination, use, storage, and disposition of information required for the formulation and execution of foreign policy and for the conduct of daily business. Its requirements are driven by the informational needs of the President, the Secretary of State, the Department and its 250 missions, and approximately fifty Government agencies. Components of the information management activity include: telecommunications; classified information handling; unclassified data and word processing; pouch, mail, and publishing services; administration of an electronic and archival records management program; document classification and declassification; information security; and, provision of information management services, as appropriate, to all branches of the Government and to the public.

In all of these programs, responsibilities range from policy setting to planning and design, implementation, operation, and maintenance. The Department manages large computer and communications centers to provide administrative, consular, economic, and political information. The computer systems support worldwide consular applications, financial management systems, management of building programs, and intelligence research systems. The centralized management of these activities is funded in the Department's salaries and expenses appropriation.

Security.—This activity identifies resources that are used in meeting security and counter-terrorism responsibilities, both foreign and domestic. Covered in this activity are: security operations; engineering services, which relate to the technical defense of Foreign Service personnel and establishments against electronic and physical attack; protection of dignitaries abroad; and physical security operations abroad.

Medical.—This activity encompasses medical programs for the Department of State, the Foreign Service, and other U.S. Government departments and agencies overseas. Services are provided in Washington as well as at missions worldwide and cover some 31,000 employees and dependents.

Administration and staff activities.—These activities include normal domestic and overseas administrative services directly related to Department programs other than those funded in the Department's salaries and expenses appropriation. They include:

- The direction and control of administration and management operations, representing and negotiating U.S. Government administrative matters with foreign officials, and reviewing and setting resource levels and priorities for various programs and bureaus financed by this appropriation.
- The budgeting, financial planning, and fiscal operations for bureaus and offices financed by this appropriation and most federal agencies resident abroad.

Under the direction of the Secretary of State, the overall mission of the Office of Foreign Buildings Operation is to ensure that U.S. Diplomatic and Consular Missions abroad are provided safe, secure and functional facilities which will assist them in achieving the foreign policy objectives of the United States. Specific program functions in support of the mission include: providing guidance concerning overseas facilities to posts, regional bureaus and other foreign affairs agencies; providing expert facilities and space planning to posts; overseeing the design, construction and renovation of diplomatic facilities; incorporating security features into overseas facilities and ensuring the security of facilities during construction or renovation; establishing standards and policies for overseas housing; developing, in conjunction with posts, maintenance programs for post facilities and keeping inventory of maintenance requirements; ensuring the safety of the building occupants through the development of fire/life safety programs; and providing real property management that establishes priorities for the acquisition and disposal of real property, determines the best use for proceeds from the sale of real property, and maintains an inventory of U.S. Government real property holdings overseas.

The objective of the Asset Management Program is to obtain the best use of diplomatic and consular properties overseas through sale, exchange, or redevelopment. Most often, this involves the sale of surplus or underutilized properties and reinvestment of the proceeds in properties that provide a greater return to the U.S. Government. Balances realized are slated for long-term capital investment that contains the growth of U.S. Government leasehold requirements (by acquiring property that reduces the need for leased facilities) or that addresses a high-priority need for new construction in lieu of appropriated resources.

This appropriation also provides for capital expenditures necessary to preserve, maintain, and repair buildings that are owned or directly leased by the Department of State in the United States.

The current appropriation finances, by 30 equal annual installments, any unfunded liability created by new or liberalized benefits, new groups of beneficiaries, and salary increases. In addition, the appropriation also finances the annual balance of the Foreign Service normal cost not met by employee and employer contributions.

The permanent appropriation provides payments to the fund for the interest on the unfunded liability and disbursements attributable to military and naval services—a full 100 percent in each year. In addition, the permanent appropriation finances the supplemental liability of the Foreign Service pension system—amortized over a thirty-year period.

This fund, authorized by section 13 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2684), finances on a reimbursable basis, certain administrative services, such as printing and reproduction, editorial material, motor pool operations and dispatch agencies operations, inter-agency cooperative administrative support services, and expenses of carrying out the Foreign Missions Act, including any acquisitions of property under section 204(f) of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 4304(f)).

Using the Working Capital Fund, the International Cooperative Administrative Support Services (ICASS) program will be fully implemented in FY 1998. ICASS restructures overseas administrative support activities to allow more decision-making and managerial participation by all participating agencies, more equitable cost distribution, and incentives for efficient provision of services. Under ICASS, each agency represented at an overseas post chooses the services it wishes to receive and pays a proportional share of the cost of those services. Working through inter-agency councils at each overseas post, all agencies have a say in determining post administrative budgets and defining service standards, as well as reviewing costs and vendor performance.

To carry out its unique duties as a peacetime operating agency and one of the military services, the Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas. The 1999 request provides for the safety of the public, and the Coast Guard's work force, with a continued emphasis on critical national security and law enforcement missions. For example, the request includes $369 million for drug interdiction activities. An additional $67 million for drug interdiction capital expenses is requested in the Acquisition, Construction, and Improvements account.

As part of a continuing effort to streamline the Coast Guard, the 1999 Budget assumes facility closures and other streamlining that will yield over $20 million in annual savings by 2001.

The Acquisition, construction, and improvements (AC&I) appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, and improvement of the vessels, aircraft, information management resources, shore facilities, and aids to navigation required to execute the Coast Guard's missions and achieve its performance goals.

The 1999 Budget proposes the establishment and collection of a user fee on commercial cargo carriers for navigational assistance provided by the Coast Guard. This fee will be credited to the Acquisition, Construction, and Improvements account. Fiscal year 1999 fee collections are estimated to be $35 million, based on one-quarter year implementation of the charge (yielding a 1999 AC&I program level of $442,773,000). When fully implemented, fees are expected to recover $165 million of the Coast Guard's costs annually.

A Presidential Advisory Council will review the Coast Guard's missions beginning in early 1998. Special attention will be given to the Coast Guard's deepwater missions; the Council's recommendations will help to shape the Deepwater Capability Replacement Project, a recapitalization of the Coast Guard's large cutters and aircraft set to begin in 2001. This review, which will be similar to recent reviews of the Department of Defense, is the first comprehensive study of the Coast Guard since 1982.

Vessels.—In 1999, the Coast Guard will acquire multi-mission platforms that use advanced technology to reduce life cycle operating costs. The seagoing buoy tender, coastal patrol boat, motor lifeboat and buoy boat acquisitions will continue. The Deepwater capability replacement analysis will commence in 1998. This analysis will identify the types of assets and technologies needed to perform basic Deepwater mission functions at minimum cost. Such information will advise future decisions on the scope of the Deepwater project.

Aircraft.—In 1999, the Coast Guard will acquire assets that ensure safety in the performance of missions. Conversion of the HC-130 engines will be completed in 1999. Improvements to the HH-65 helicopter and upgrade of the HC-130 sensors will continue.

Other Equipment.—In 1999, the Coast Guard will invest in numerous management information and decision support systems that will result in increased efficiencies, FTE reductions, and operating and maintenance savings. The Marine Information for Safety and Law Enforcement (MISLE), National Distress System (NDS) and Communications System 2000 projects will continue.

Shore Facilities.—In 1999, the Coast Guard will invest in modern structures that are more energy-efficient, comply with regulatory codes, and minimize follow-on maintenance requirements.

Personnel and Related Costs.—Personnel resources will be utilized to execute the AC&I projects described above.

This appropriation provides the Government's share of the costs for altering or removing bridges determined to be obstructions to navigation. Consistent with proposed National Economic Crossroads Transportation Efficiency Act (NEXTEA) legislation, alteration of obstructive highway and railroad bridges will be eligible for funding from the Federal-Aid Highways program. The Coast Guard will continue to make the determinations as to whether any bridge presents an unreasonable obstruction to navigation, and to administer the program.

This account provides grants for the development and implementation of a coordinated national recreational boating safety program. Boating Safety statistics reflect the success in meeting the program's objectives. No discretionary appropriation is requested in 1999 from the Boat Safety Account of the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund. Federal funding for grants to States will be provided under proposed reauthorization legislation that would make available a total of $55 million in mandatory funds from the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund to the Secretary of Transportation for the Boating Safety State Grant program in 1999.

The Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended, and the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971 (Public Law 92-75), as amended, have provided for the transfer of Highway Trust Fund revenue derived from the motor boat fuel tax and certain other taxes to the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund. In turn, appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for programs specified by law. Excise tax receipts for the Sport Fish Restoration program include a portion of motorboat fuel tax receipts, plus receipts from taxes on sport fishing equipment, sonar and fish finders, and small engine fuel. Excise tax receipts for the Boat Safety program are a portion of motorboat fuel tax receipts only. Legislation has been proposed to reauthorize the transfer of certain receipts into the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund. The proposed reauthorization of the Boat Safety program would alter the distribution of motorboat fuel tax receipts between the Boat Safety and Sport Fish Restoration accounts.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989, Public Law 101-239, triggered collection of a 5 cent tax on each barrel of oil produced domestically or imported to be deposited into the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund. Resources from the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund are used to finance oil pollution prevention and cleanup responsibilities by various Federal agencies. In accordance with the provisions of the Act, the Fund may finance annually up to $50 million of emergency resources and all valid claims from injured parties resulting from oil spills. For Coast Guard, this funds the following accounts: Trust fund share of expenses, Oil spill recovery, and Payment of claims. Beginning in 1997, pursuant to the Coast Guard Authorization Act of 1996, this fund also finances annual disbursements to the Prince William Sound Oil Spill Recovery Institute equal to interest accrued by the Fund's investment of remaining funding authorized for the Institute by the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. The authority to collect the tax expired on December 31, 1994. Legislation will be proposed to reinstate the authority to collect the tax and remove the cap on the Fund's balance.

FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION

Funding for the Federal Aviation Administration is proposed as part of the Transportation Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to fund transportation programs. A discussion of the Transportation Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and research, can be found in Section II of the Budget.

In addition, the Budget proposes to present obligation limitations as discretionary budget authority. This will clarify the budget presentation and provide transportation programs with the same budgetary treatment as all other programs funded through obligation limitations.

The following table depicts the total funding for all Federal Aviation Administration programs, for which more detail is furnished in the budget schedules:

This account supports the operation and maintenance of a safe national aviation system. It finances the personnel and support costs of operating and maintaining the air traffic control system, and ensuring the safety and security of its operation. The 1999 budget requests a total funding level of $5,631 million for FAA operations, including $5,588 million in appropriated spending and $43 million in direct spending. This funding level represents a 5.5 percent increase for FAA operations relative to 1998, and will provide a net increase of 185 air traffic controllers, 150 maintenance technicians, and 45 aviation safety inspectors and aircraft certification personnel.

The Federal Aviation Reauthorization Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-264) authorized the collection of user fees for services provided by the FAA to aircraft that neither takeoff nor land in the United States, commonly known as overflight fees. In addition, the Act permanently appropriated the first $50 million of such fees to be used for the Essential Air Service program and rural airport improvements. Amounts collected in excess of $50 million are permanently appropriated for authorized expenses of the FAA. The Budget estimates that $93 million in overflight fees will be collected in 1999, of which $43 million will be available without further appropriation action to fund FAA Operations.

The fund currently provides direct support for the aviation insurance program authorized under chapter 443 of title 49, U.S. Code (formerly Title XIII of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958). Income to the fund is derived from premium deposits for premium insurance coverage issued, income from authorized investments, and binder fees for nonpremium coverage issued. The binders provide aviation insurance coverage for U.S. air carrier aircraft used in connection with certain Government contract operations by the Department of Defense and the Department of State.

In 1997, the Federal Aviation Administration established a franchise fund to finance operations where the costs for goods and services provided are charged to the users on a fee-for-service basis. The fund will improve organizational efficiency and provide better support to FAA's internal and external customers on a reimbursable basis. The activities included in this franchise fund are training, accounting, payroll, travel, duplicating services, multi-media services, and information technology.

The Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (26 U.S.C. 9502), as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Acts of 1990 (Public Law 101-508) and 1993 (Public Law 103-66), the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-188) and the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-34) provides for the receipts received in the Treasury from the passenger ticket tax and certain other taxes paid by airport and airway users to be transferred to the Airport and Airway Trust Fund. In turn, appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet obligations for airport improvement grants, facilities and equipment, research, and a portion of operations. The Budget assumes that the current excise taxes will be eliminated over time to be replaced incrementally with more efficient, service-based charges. By 2003, the NAS is proposed to be completely funded by direct user fees that inspire improved system management and more accurately reflect system use.

Note.—Mission Support, has an estimated contingent liability of $87 million (present value) associated with the FAA's long-term lease of facilities at the Mike Monroney Aeronautical Center, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. This contingent liability will be funded through this account.

The proposed funding sustains the current infrastructure and supports the FAA's plan to modernize and improve the national airspace system. In particular, funds would provide for significant progress in developing the enroute and terminal automation programs, designed to upgrade air traffic control technology; and the continued implementation of voice switching and control system, to modernize the system's communications network.

The Administration supports full funding of multi-year, fixed asset projects as part of an ongoing attempt to improve the cost and performance of agency procurements. To implement the Administration's full funding policy, advance appropriations are requested for the following multi-year projects, or usable project segments: Aviation Weather Services Improvements, Air Traffic Control Beacon Interrogator Replacement, Terminal Digital Radar, Terminal Automation (STARS), Wide Area Augmentation System for GPS, Display System Replacement, Weather and Radar Processor, Voice Switching and Control System, Oceanic Automation System, Aeronautical Data Link, and Operational and Supportability Implementation System (OASIS).

The 1999 budget proposes funding to conduct research, engineering and development programs to improve the national air traffic control system by increasing its safety, security, capacity and productivity to meet the expected air traffic demands of the future. The agency also administers human factors research aimed at increasing the effectiveness of air traffic controller operations, airway facilities maintenance, aviation medical research aimed at increasing the safety of aircrew members and environmental research aimed at mitigating aircraft noise and engine emissions.

These programs are conducted by the agency's technical personnel directly and through contracts with qualified private firms, universities, and individuals, and through agreements with other Government agencies.

Beginning in 1999, the Budget includes funding for the Flight 2000 free-flight demonstration program. Flight 2000 will test, in airspace over Alaska and Hawaii, the technology and procedures necessary to gain significant operational efficiencies promised by collaborative air traffic management.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

Funding for the Federal Highway Administration is proposed as part of the Transportation Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to fund transportation programs. A discussion of the Transportation Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and research, can be found in Section II of the Budget.

In addition, the Budget proposes to present obligation limitations as discretionary budget authority. This will clarify the budget presentation and provide transportation programs with the same budgetary treatment as all other programs funded through obligation limitations.

The Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) of 1991, which authorized most surface transportation programs from 1992 through 1997 expired September 30, 1997. The President's Budget and reauthorization proposal The National Economic Crossroads Transportation Efficiency Act build and improve upon ISTEA's successes. The President's Budget maintains transportation infrastructure investment, strengthens transportation safety programs and environmental programs, and continues core research activities.

Title 23 U.S.C. ("Highways") and other supporting legislation provide authority for the various programs of the Federal Highway Administration designed to improve highways throughout the Nation.

In 1999, the Federal Highway Administration continues major programs, including the Surface Transportation Program, the National Highway System, Interstate Maintenance, the Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program, and the Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality Improvement Program. New programs include the Flexible Highway Infrastructure Safety Program, the Transportation Infrastructure Credit Enhancement Program, the Intelligent Transportation Incentive Deployment Program and the National Motor Carrier Safety Program.

In summary, the 1999 Budget consists of $22,610 million in new budget authority and $22,962 million in outlays. The following table compares 1999 program levels (obligations) with those of prior years. Because project selection is determined by the States, the 1998 and 1999 program levels are estimates.

Summary of Loan Levels, Subsidy Budget Authority and Outlays by Program (in millions of dollars)

Direct loan levels supportable by subsidy budget authority:
1150	Direct loan levels [Eastern Foothills Corridor] .....	25

Direct loan subsidy (in percent):
1320	San Joaquin Hills Corridor—(30 yr loans) .....	0.08
1320	Eastern Foothills Corridor—Capital Expenditures (30 yr loans) .....	5.52
1329	Weighted average subsidy rate .....	6.64

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and later years (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Future Federal credit enhancements for transportation infrastructure will be made under the proposed Transportation Infrastructure Credit Enhancement Program.

Note.—The subsidy rate shown for these projects has been modified due to legislation enacted in 1997. It is assumed that the interest rate charged to these loans will be sufficient to ensure that the subsidy budget authority provided will support the full line of credit authorized using the current risk assumptions.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968 authorized the establishment of a right-of-way revolving fund. This fund was used to make cash advances to States for the purpose of purchasing right-of-way parcels in advance of highway construction and thereby preventing the inflation of land prices from significantly increasing construction costs.

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)—Continued

This program was terminated in 1996 but will continue to be shown for reporting purposes as loan balances remain outstanding. The purchase of right-of-way is an eligible expense of the Federal-aid program and therefore a separate program is unnecessary. A prohibition on further obligations is requested for 1999.

State Infrastructure Banks are a promising way of facilitating needed infrastructure investment.

The National Highway System Designation Act of 1995 authorized up to ten pilot states to test State Infrastructure Banks ("SIBs") and P.L. 104-205 expanded the authorization to all States. As a result of P.L. 104-205, the Department has expanded the pilot from 10 to 39 SIBs. Four of the 39 SIBs received conditional approval to participate in the pilot based on passage of necessary state implementing legislation.

The SIB Program is designed to strategically attract non-Federal funds to increase overall transportation infrastructure investment. A SIB is initially capitalized with Federal funds and non-Federal matching funds. The SIB then uses these capitalization grant funds to assist projects through loans and other forms of financial assistance. As loans are repaid, the SIB funds are replenished and the SIB can provide new loans or guarantees to additional transportation projects. Financial assistance from a SIB provides additional security or credit support for project financing that may result in lower capital costs.

To capitalize a SIB, the State may deposit funds into either a highway or transit account or both. To initiate a SIB highway account, a State may deposit up to 10 percent of most of its Federal-aid highway apportionments. To fund a SIB transit account, a State may deposit up to 10 percent of some of its Federal transit capital funds. A State then matches the SIB Federal capitalization funds in both modal accounts at its traditional matching ratio.

In 1997, State Infrastructure Banks received additional funding from the General Fund.

The Highway Revenue Act of 1956, as amended, provides for the transfer from the General Fund to the Highway Trust Fund of revenue from the motor fuel tax and certain other taxes paid by highway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amounts to be transferred. In turn, appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for Federal-aid highways and other programs as specified by law.

This table shows the status of the resources of the Highway Trust Fund relative to the obligational authority that has been made available for programs financed by the trust fund. The encumbered balance indicates the degree to which the outstanding obligational authority exceeds the estimated cash balances of the fund each year. Under the laws governing the Highway Trust Fund, the amount of obligational authority available at any time cannot exceed the actual cash balances plus the amount of receipts estimated to be collected during the following two years; for most other trust funds obligational authority is limited to the actual receipts of the fund.

The budget proposes that surface transportation activities previously supported by the General Fund be funded instead from the Highway Trust Fund. The budget proposes funding the National Passenger Rail Corporation, State Infrastructure

Banks, and the Transportation credit enhancement program from the Highway Trust Fund.

This Budget also reflects the transfer of receipts generated by 4.3 cents of the motor fuel tax from the General Fund to the Highway Trust Fund effective in 1998, per P.L. 105–34.

The status of the fund is as follows:

The Federal-Aid Highways (FAH) program is designed to aid in the development of an intermodal transportation system that is economically efficient, environmentally sound, provides the foundation for the Nation to compete in the global economy, and moves people and goods safely.

All programs included within FAH are financed from the Highway Trust Fund and distributed via apportionments and allocations to States. Liquidating cash appropriations are subsequently requested to fund outlays resulting from obligations incurred under contract authority. The budget proposes to fund most programs from within the Federal-Aid Highway obligation limitation. Emergency Relief and Minimum Allocation programs will continue to be exempt from the limitation.

The FAH program is funded by contract authority found in the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) (which expired on September 30, 1997). This authority was extended for the first six months of 1998 by the Surface Transportation Extension Act. The programs described below are as proposed in the President's Reauthorization proposal, the National Economic Crossroads Transportation Efficiency Act (NEXTEA).

National highway program.—The National Highway System (NHS) Program provides funding for a designated National Highway System consisting of roads that are of primary Federal interest. The National Highway System consists of the current Interstate, other rural principal arterials, urban freeways and connecting urban principal arterials, and facilities on the Defense Department's designated Strategic Highway Network and roads connecting the NHS to intermodal facilities. Legislation designating the 161,000 mile system was enacted in 1995. Eligible on an interim basis are an additional 2,032 miles of connectors proposed by DOT in 1996.

Surface Transportation Program (STP).—The ISTEA established a new program that may be used by States and localities for any roads that are not classified as local or rural minor collector roads. STP funds may be used for transit projects. The STP will continue with some improvements. Eligibility will be expanded to include publicly owned intercity passenger rail projects and publicly or privately owned vehicles and facilities used to provide intercity passenger service by bus or rail. NEXTEA retains the 10% set-aside of STP funds for transportation enhancements and also retains State sub-allocations including the special rule for areas less than 5,000 population.

Bridge replacement and rehabilitation.—The bridge program enables States to respond to the problem of unsafe and inadequate bridges. The funds are available for use on all bridges, including those on roads functionally classified as rural minor collectors and as local. Highway bridges designated as a hazard to navigation by the U.S. Coast Guard will be funded under the bridge program. Funds will no longer be eligible for transfer to other programs unless a State has no NHS bridges requiring posting. Any funds transferred out of the Bridge program must be restored to the Bridge program by the last year of the 6-year reauthorization period.

Interstate maintenance (IM).—The IM program finances projects to rehabilitate, restore, resurface and reconstruct the Interstate system. Reconstruction that increases capacity, other than HOV lanes, is not eligible for IM funds.

Emergency relief.—The Emergency Relief (ER) program provides funds for the repair or reconstruction of Federal-aid highways and bridges and Federally-owned roads and bridges which have suffered serious damage as the result of natural disasters or catastrophic failures. The ER program supplements the commitment of resources by States, their political subdivisions, or Federal agencies to help pay for unusually heavy expenses resulting from extraordinary conditions. The mandatory portion of the ER program will be funded at $100 million.

Federal lands.—This category includes the Public Lands Highways, Forest Highways, Park Roads and Parkways, and Indian Reservation Roads programs. Roads funded under this program are open to public travel. State and local roads (29,500 miles) that provide important access within the National Forest System are designated Forest Highways. These roads should not be confused with the Forest Development Roads which are under the jurisdiction of the Forest Service. Park roads and Parkways (8,000 miles) are owned by the National Park Service and provide access within the National Park System. Indian Reservation Roads program consists of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (25,000 miles) and State and local roads (25,000 miles) that provide access within Indian lands.

Congestion mitigation and air quality improvement program (CMAQ).—The CMAQ program directs funds toward transportation projects and programs to help meet and maintain national ambient air quality standards for ozone, carbon monoxide, and particulate matter. A minimum 1/2 percent of the apportionment is guaranteed to each State.

Flexible highway infrastructure safety program and integrated safety fund.—Addressing the safety needs related to the highway infrastructure was previously funded by a 10% set-aside from STP funds. NEXTEA now proposes a separate highway safety program which maintains independent allocations for railroad/highway grade crossings and hazard elimination. The ability to flex hazard elimination funds to non-infrastructure activities would be allowed if the State has an integrated planning process. NEXTEA proposes a new incentive grant program (Integrated Safety Fund) to foster integrated safety planning. Funds can be used flexibly for infrastructure safety, section 402 activities, and motor carrier safety activities.

Federal highway research and technology.—The research and technology program develops new transportation technology that can be applied nationwide. The proposed elements of this program include long-term, advanced research; a national technology deployment program to accelerate the implementation of specific “customer-driven” technologies; support for the delivery of new and innovative technology as well as the development of knowledge and skills within the transportation community needed to apply new technology; and, funding for State research, development, and technology implementation.

Intelligent transportation systems (ITS).—The ITS program is a cooperative, public/private initiative to research, develop, test, and evaluate advanced electronic systems that can improve the operational safety and efficiency of existing surface transportation infrastructure. NEXTEA expands and clarifies eligibility under several of the major grant programs to encompass ITS capital, operations, and maintenance for all infrastructure-based technology and services. Also proposed is an ITS deployment incentive program to support integration of the metropolitan travel management intelligent infrastructure and deployment of commercial vehicle information system and network, and rural intelligent transportation infrastructure.

Miscellaneous.—This category includes Scenic Byways, Tax Evasion Projects, the Bureau of Transportation Statistics, National Recreational Trails, value pricing, trade corridor and border gateway pilot, Woodrow Wilson Bridge, Appalachian Highways, University Transportation Centers, and University Research Institutes, and the Research and Special Program

Administration’s Strategic Planning and Intermodal Research Initiative.

General program support.—Recognizing the importance of research as an investment in the efficiency of future transportation, the 1999 budget includes $174 million for highway research and technology, of which $54 million is requested for development of intelligent transportation systems and $5.5 million for the Nationwide Differential Global Positioning System (NDGPS). Funding for the NDGPS is also provided in the Federal Railroad Administration.

Highway programs.—Provides engineering guidance to Federal and State agencies and to foreign governments, and conducts a program to encourage use of modern traffic engineering procedures to increase the vehicle-carrying capacity of existing highways and urban streets; and finances construction skill training programs for disadvantaged workers hired by contractors on federally aided highway projects.

Field operations.—Provides staff advisory and support services in field offices of the Federal Highway Administration; and provides program and engineering supervision through regional and division offices.

The Highway Safety Act of 1970 authorized grants to States and communities for implementing and maintaining highway-related safety standards. Beginning in 1997, the Highway-Related Safety Grants program is merged with the highway traffic safety programs of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The Motor Carrier Safety Program contains three components: safety grants, information system and analysis, and strategic safety reform. The purpose of the program is to provide grants to States to enforce Federal and compatible States standards applicable to commercial motor vehicle safety. As part of the NEXTEA proposal, this program adds a focus on performance.

The safety grant program is comprised of basic grants, which support uniform roadside driver and vehicle safety inspections, traffic enforcement, and compliance reviews, and performance incentive grants, which are designed to encourage States to plan, identify, and implement crash countermeasures that address those problems in their own State and measure program success based on the desired performance. The information system and analysis program would provide funding to collect and analyze information necessary to evaluate performance in a timely and accurate manner to support enforcement activities undertaken by the Federal and State governments. The strategic safety reform program focuses on providing funding for driver training programs, judicial outreach, and research to support regulatory reinvention initiatives.

The new Transportation Infrastructure Credit Enhancement Program will provide $100 million per year in grants to assist in the funding of nationally-significant transportation projects that otherwise might be delayed or not constructed at all because of their size and uncertainty over timing of revenues. The goal is to encourage the development of large, capital-intensive infrastructure facilities through public-private partnerships consisting of a State or local government and one or more private sector firms involved in the design, construction or operation of the facility. It will encourage more private sector and non-Federal participation, and build on the public's willingness to pay user fees to receive the benefits and services of transportation infrastructure sooner than would be possible under traditional funding techniques. Grants may be used to secure junior lien debt or other obligations requiring credit enhancement.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY ADMINISTRATION

Funding for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is proposed as part of the Transportation Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to fund transportation programs. A discussion of the Transportation Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and research, can be found in Section II of the Budget.

In addition, the Budget proposes to present obligation limitations as discretionary budget authority. This will clarify the budget presentation and provide transportation programs with the same budgetary treatment as all other programs funded through obligation limitations.

The programs administered by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) are authorized by three separate laws: The National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act, and the Highway Safety Act, and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act. The following table shows the funding for NHTSA programs.

Programs funded under the Operations and Research appropriation are described below.

Safety Performance Standards (Rulemaking) Programs.— Supports the promulgation of Federal motor vehicle safety standards for motor vehicles, and safety-related equipment; automotive fuel economy standards required by the Energy Policy and Conservation Act; international harmonization of vehicle standards; and consumer information on motor vehicle safety, including the New Car Assessment Program.

Safety Assurance (Enforcement) Programs.—Provides support to ensure compliance with motor vehicle safety and automotive fuel economy standards, investigate safety-related motor vehicle defects, enforce Federal odometer law and encourage enforcement of State odometer law, conduct safety recalls when warranted, and provide safety information via the Auto Safety Hotline.

Research and Analysis.—Provides motor vehicle safety research and development in support of all NHTSA programs, including the collection and analysis of crash data to identify safety problems, develop alternative solutions, and assess costs, benefits, and effectiveness. Research will continue to concentrate on improving vehicle crashworthiness and crash avoidance, with new emphasis on smart air bag technology and continuing emphasis on the National Biomechanics Center. The 1999 budget includes funds to continue a national crash data collection program and to improve problem identification, regulatory reform, and program evaluation activities, as well as an occupant protection survey. Grants will be offered to States desiring to link crash and health care data for determining the true costs of traffic crashes. Funding is also provided to support the Administration's Partnership for a New Generation of Vehicles (PNGV) initiative. Support of NHTSA's Intelligent Transportation Systems (ITS) program and the National Advanced Driving Simulator will be provided by funds to be transferred from the Federal Highway Administration. Resources will also be provided to support the Vehicle Research Test Center (VRTC).

Highway Safety Programs.—Provides for demonstrations, technical assistance, and national leadership for highway safety programs conducted by State and local governments, the private sector, universities and research units, and various safety associations and organizations. This assistance includes demonstration programs emphasizing alcohol and drug countermeasures, occupant protection, traffic law enforcement, emergency medical and trauma care systems, traffic records and licensing, State and community evaluation, motorcycle riders, pedestrian/bicycle safety and young and older driver safety programs. The Safe Communities demonstration project provides grants to communities and injury prevention centers to develop and manage local injury prevention programs. Special emphasis this year will be given to aggressive drivers, excessive speeding and air bag outreach education. The Department has set a goal for the Nation to reduce alcohol-related traffic fatalities to no more than 11,000 by the year 2005. The President has established a goal of increasing safety belt use to 85 percent by 2000.

Section 402.—The Section 402 State and Community Grant Program is a performance based program administered by NHTSA. Grant allocations are determined on the basis of a statutory formula. States use this funding to reduce traffic crashes, fatalities, and injuries. The grants are used to support State highway safety programs, within national priorities, implemented jointly with all members of the highway safety community. States develop safety goals, performance measures, and strategic plans to manage use of grants to reduce deaths and injuries on the Nation's highways, such as grants associated with excessive speeds, failure to use occupant restraints, alcohol/drug impaired driving and roadway safety.

Alcohol-Impaired Driving Incentive Grants.—A new "Alcohol-Impaired Driving Countermeasures" two-tiered basic and supplemental grant program is being established to reward States that pass new laws and start more effective programs to attack drunk and impaired driving. This continues the Department's strong emphasis on impaired drivers that was addressed by the Section 410 incentive grant program. States may qualify for basic grants by implementing criteria that include: administrative license revocation, .08 BAC laws, stepped-up police enforcement coupled with publicity, and graduated licensing laws with nighttime driving restrictions and Zero Tolerance. States are also awarded basic grants for demonstrating consistently high performance in reducing alcohol-related fatalities. There are 10 supplemental grant criteria including open container laws; mandatory alcohol testing for drunk driving suspects involved in fatal or serious injury; and use of passive alcohol sensors by police.

Occupant Protection Incentive Grants.—A new "Occupant Protection Program" is being established as a two-tiered basic and supplemental incentive grant to encourage States to strengthen laws and programs to increase safety belt and child safety seat use to meet the President's goal to reach 85 percent belt use by 2000.

Drugged Driving Incentive Grants.—A new incentive grant program is provided to encourage States to pass stronger anti-drugged driving laws and implement the most effective countermeasures to reduce drug-impaired driving, such as zero tolerance, mandatory drug testing, administrative license revocation, and graduated licensing systems.

National Driver Register.—Provides funding to implement and operate the Problem Driver Pointer System (PDPS) and improve traffic safety by assisting State motor vehicle administrators in communicating effectively and efficiently with other States to identify drivers whose licenses have been suspended or revoked for serious traffic offenses, including impaired driving and hit and run.

The Federal role in the Railroad Safety program is to protect railroad employees and the public by ensuring the safe operation of passenger and freight trains. The authority to accomplish this role is found in Subtitle V of Title 49, United States Code. The programs of the Railroad Safety appropriation are grouped under three major activities. The Administration proposes that the cost of FRA's rail safety activities be fully offset by fees collected from rail carriers beginning in 1999.

Federal enforcement.—Provides support for the field staff of safety inspectors and clerical positions located in eight regional offices throughout the United States. This staff is responsible for the enforcement of Federal safety regulations and standards.

Automated track inspection program.—Provides support for vehicles which are used to survey Class I and regional and shortline routes for track maintenance and rehabilitation.

Safety regulation and program administration.—Provides support for safety headquarters which issues standards, procedures, and regulations, administers post-accident and random testing of railroad employees, provides technical training and manages highway-rail grade crossing projects.

This $3 million appropriation, along with $5.5 million in Federal Highway Administration funding, will enable installation, operation and maintenance of Nationwide Differential Global Positioning System (NDGPS) transmitters throughout the United States and allow enhancement and completion of the existing Coast Guard network. The primary beneficiary of NDGPS are commercial agricultural users. However, the NDGPS system will provide additional positioning, navigation, and timing accuracy for the Nation's surface intermodal transportation networks.

The Federal Railroad Administration and the Department of Transportation plans to complete, by the end of calendar year 1999, a rulemaking to require installation of NDGPS for use as positive train control on our Nation's Class I railroads. As part of this rulemaking, DOT will also examine whether these requirements should also apply to automobile manufacturers.

Future capital funding, if any, for NDGPS, will be provided through contributions from federal agencies whose programs will benefit from the new technology. Future operational funding for the NDGPS system will come through fees on users or manufacturers of equipment.

The Alameda Transportation Corridor is an intermodal project connecting the Ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach to downtown Los Angeles. The project replaces the current 20 miles of at-grade rail line with a high-speed, below-grade corridor, thereby eliminating over 200 grade crossings. It also widens and improves the adjacent major highway on this alignment and mitigates the impact of increased international traffic transferring through the San Pedro Ports. The loan will permit construction to continue without interruption through the date of an anticipated revenue bond sale, the proceeds of which will fund the majority of the project's costs.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loan(s) obligated in 1997. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis. No funds are requested for this account in 1999, as all funds required to complete this project were provided in 1997.

The National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) was established in 1970 through the Rail Passenger Service Act. Amtrak is operated and managed as a for profit corporation with all Board members appointed by the Executive Branch of the Federal Government, with the advice and consent of the Senate, and is not an agency or instrumentality of the U.S. Government. Funding for Amtrak will be derived from the Highway Trust Fund beginning in 1999.

Northeast Corridor Improvements.—Provides support for capital improvements in the Northeast Corridor, including upgrading of passenger rail service between Washington, D.C. and Boston, MA.

Capital grants.—Provides support for Amtrak capital requirements. Financing for these programs was derived from the General Fund prior to 1999.

Pennsylvania Station Redevelopment Project.—Provides funds to complete the Federal commitment of $100 million to this project.

The President's 1999 Budget provides Amtrak with record levels of Federal capital financial assistance. The budget requests $621 million in discretionary capital appropriations in 1999 and significant amounts in the outyears ($571 million in 2000 and $521 million annually in 2001 through 2003). These discretionary appropriations, when combined with $2.183 billion in funds made available under the Taxpayer Relief Act (TRA), will provide Amtrak with close to $5 billion in Federal resources from 1999 through 2003: nearly $4 billion to meet the Amtrak requested level of capital assistance and $1 billion in funds to meet the previously agreed to glide path for operating assistance. This will also provide over $5 billion in financial assistance from 1998 to 2002.

FEDERAL TRANSIT ADMINISTRATION

Funding for the Federal Transit Administration is proposed as part of the Transportation Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to fund transportation programs. A discussion of the Transportation Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and research, can be found in Section II of the Budget.

In addition, the Budget proposes to present obligation limitations as discretionary budget authority. This will clarify the budget presentation and provide transportation programs with the same budgetary treatment as all other programs funded through obligation limitations.

The Federal Transit Administration (FTA) provides funding to transit operators, State and local governments and other recipients for the construction of facilities; the purchase of vehicles and equipment; the improvement of technology, service techniques, and methods; the support of regionwide transportation planning; and transit operations. In addition to improving general mobility, FTA provides financial assistance to help implement other national goals relating to mobility for the elderly, people with disabilities, and economically disadvantaged individuals. In 1999, FTA's budget request totals $4.8 billion, all of which will come from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund under legislation proposed for FY 1998 to FY 2003.

In 1997, Congress enacted a six-month extension of the transit authorizations, and action on a full year authorization is pending. The Administration's NEXTEA proposal would provide a multi-year reauthorization of transit programs and restructure the programs accordingly.

The following tables show the funding for Federal Transit Administration programs.

The President's budget continues to highlight this Administration's support for Amtrak. By signing the Taxpayer Relief Act, and the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act (ARAA) of 1997, President Clinton, working with the Congress, has provided Amtrak with record levels of Federal capital support while combining that support with the vigorous and essential reforms needed to increase Amtrak's long-term viability. This budget continues this approach charted in the TRA and ARAA by:

(1) Meeting Amtrak's stated capital needs over the next five years. In 1997 Amtrak stated that it would need an average of $782 million per year over a five year period to meet its capital needs. This budget provides an average of $786 million per year over a five year period to meet Amtrak's capital needs. This commitment of funds for capital will provide Amtrak the firm financial footing it needs to succeed as a vital part of our Nation's transportation network. Amtrak's need for this level of capital funding was acknowledged by Congress in passage of the TRA and ARAA and by the General Accounting Office in its analysis of Amtrak's finances presented to Congress in 1997. The capital investment in intercity rail passenger service is not solely the responsibility of the Federal Government, and Amtrak must continue to work with States, cities and the private sector to supplement these funds.

(2) Requiring the expenditure of these funds in a prudent and thoughtful fashion. The President asks the Congress to require Amtrak to deposit the capital funds it received under the TRA into the Capital Grant account and to make release of the TRA funds, as well as the $621 million in 1999 capital appropriations, contingent upon creation of a thorough and prudent capital investment plan. The Administration is committed to working with Amtrak to ensure that the funds it has received are spent as part of a coherent capital plan which will lead to future corporate success for Amtrak.

(3) Conforming with the carefully crafted provisions of the TRA for providing financial assistance to Amtrak. Section 977 of the TRA allows Amtrak to use over $2 billion in funding for "the acquisition of equipment, rolling stock, and other capital improvements, the upgrading of maintenance facilities, and the maintenance of existing equipment, in intercity passenger rail service. . . ." Amtrak estimates that approximately $400 million of its annual "operating expenses" are spent on progressive overhauls and maintenance of existing equipment and that these expenses are eligible for funding under the TRA. Accordingly, an amount of Amtrak's "operating expenses" (consistent with the previously agreed glide path to reduce federal operating assistance) is funded through the TRA.

For 1999, $48.1 million is requested to fund the personnel and other support costs associated with management and direction of FTA programs.

Recognizing the importance of streamlining through automation, FTA has been a forerunner in expanding automated systems to provide better access to our customers. Our Electronic Grant Making and Management (EGM&M) efforts provide on-line access to grantees for grant awards and disbursements. FTA has become a model of automation within the Department.

Funding of $91.9 million is requested from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund for the Transit Planning and Research (TPR) Program to fund a wide variety of activities. Of the TPR funding, $39.5 million will be apportioned to States for Metropolitan Planning, $8.25 million for the Transit Cooperative Research Program, $8.25 million for Statewide Planning, $26.9 million for the National Planning and Research Program, $3.0 million for the National Transit Institute, and $6.0 million for University Transportation Centers.

Under the national component of the program, the FTA is a catalyst in the research, development and deployment of transportation methods and technologies addressing such issues as accessibility for the disabled, air quality, traffic congestion, and transit service and operational improvements. The National Planning and Research Program supports the development of innovative transit technologies, such as hybrid electric buses, fuel cells, and battery powered propulsion systems. National program funds also support the implementation of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA).

Funds for the State and local component of the program improve the State and local planning process.

In 1999, this account will also include $6 million for the University Transportation Centers previously funded under a general fund appropriation. FTA's $6 million will be combined with a like amount of funding from the Federal Highway Administration to support research, education, and technology development activities aimed at addressing regional and national transportation problems.

In 1999, funds for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) are requested from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund.

The National Capital Transportation Amendments of 1979 (Stark-Harris) authorized $1.7 billion in Federal funds to support the construction of the Washington Metrorail system. In addition, the National Capital Transportation Amendments of 1990 authorized another $1.3 billion in Federal capital assistance to complete construction of the planned 103-mile system.

For 1999, $50 million is requested under the 1990 authorization to complete the Federal funding for the final 13.5 miles of the 103-mile system under the Federal Transit Administration's Full Funding Grant Agreements with WMATA. These funds will be used for the Green Line's Mid-City segment and Branch Avenue extension, and to provide for project management and other expenses such as contingencies and insurance. An additional $25 million will be transferred to WMATA in 1999 for transportation-related expenses associated with the new D.C. convention center.

Formula Programs, requested at a $3.7 billion level in 1999, consist of several activities designed to provide safe and reliable transportation service to the American public. In areas over 200,000 in population, formula funding can be used for all transit capital purposes (including planning, bus and rail-car purchases, preventive maintenance and construction). In areas under 200,000 population, operating costs are also eligible. This helps maximize flexibility for transit authorities and allows them to prioritize and target funds to their most important needs.

The Administration's NEXTEA proposal is pending and would restructure this program beginning in 1998. This new account includes funds previously appropriated for fixed guideway modernization and bus and bus-related facilities in the Discretionary Grants program.

All Formula Programs are proposed to be financed from the Mass Transit Account of the Highway Trust Fund and apportioned to urbanized areas and governors of the States. Liquidating cash appropriations are subsequently requested to fund outlays resulting from obligations incurred under contract authority.

Urbanized Area Formula Grants.—$3,411 million in funds will be apportioned to areas with populations of 50,000 or more. Funds may be used for any transit capital purpose, including preventive maintenance for these capital assets, in urban areas over 200,000 in population. Last year, the definition of capital was expanded to include costs associated with routine maintenance, thus allowing transit providers the flexibility to more effectively manage Federal capital investments. Also, in urbanized areas under 200,000 both capital and operating costs were eligible expenditures. This redefinition will be continued in 1999. This funding will assist public transit agencies in meeting the requirements of the Clean Air Act Amendments and the Americans with Disabilities Act. These funds are critical to preserving mobility in our cities and supporting welfare reform by providing an affordable commute for people making the transition to work.

Fixed Guideway Modernization.—Beginning in 1999, funds distributed by statutory formula for Fixed Guideway Modernization under the current Discretionary Grants program will be included in Formula Programs and will continue to be distributed by the current statutory formula. Grantees will be able to use this funding for any eligible activity under the Urbanized Area Formula Grants program, as well as to upgrade rail facilities and equipment and replace rail rolling stock.

Formula Program for other than Urbanized Areas.—$135 million will be apportioned according to a legislative formula based on each State's nonurban population to areas with populations of less than 50,000. Available funding may be used to support intercity bus service as well as to help meet rural and small urban areas' transit needs. This will also include resources under the Rural Transit Assistance Program.

Formula Grants for Special Needs of Elderly Individuals and Individuals with Disabilities.—$63 million will be apportioned to each State according to a legislatively required formula to assist in providing transportation to the elderly and individuals with disabilities. Grants are made for the purchase of vehicles and equipment and for transportation services under a contract, lease or similar arrangement.

Access to Jobs and Training.—$100 million. Legislation is proposed to establish a new activity to help assure that efforts to reform welfare will be successful. State and local entities may apply for funds to support new or modified service for low-income individuals, including former welfare recipients traveling to jobs or training centers.

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation (SLSDC) is a wholly owned Government Corporation responsible for the operation, maintenance and development of the United States portion of the St. Lawrence Seaway between Montreal and Lake Erie. Major priorities are to control Seaway Corporation costs and to encourage increased use of the Seaway system.

SLSDC is proposed as a performance-based organization (PBO) for 1999-2003. The PBO will focus on four key performance goals: safety, long and short term reliability, trade development, and management accountability including customer service, fiscal performance and cost effectiveness. No appropriation is requested as financing is proposed to be derived from an automatic annual payment from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund, based on five-year average tonnage through the Seaway.

The Federal Hazardous Materials Transportation law (Federal hazmat law), 49 U.S.C. 5101 et seq., establishes a national registration program of shippers and carriers of hazardous materials. The registrants finance, through fees, emergency preparedness planning and training grants programs, a training curriculum for emergency responders, and monitoring and technical assistance to States, political subdivisions, and Indian tribes. In the Federal hazmat law, there are permanent appropriations for the planning and training grants, monitoring and technical assistance, and for administrative expenses. As enacted for 1998, the Budget proposes to limit 1999 activities to those authorized for the Department of Transportation. Appropriations are requested for the training curriculum.

The Research and Special Programs Administration (RSPA) intends to propose a rulemaking to increase the annual level of funding for the Emergency Preparedness Grants program to approximately $14.3 million beginning in 1999. RSPA is considering a number of ways to increase registration collections to this level.

The Working Capital Fund finances multidisciplinary research, evaluation, analytical and related activities undertaken at the Volpe National Transportation Systems Center (VNTSC) in Cambridge, MA. The fund is financed through negotiated agreements with the Office of the Secretary, Departmental operating administrations, and other governmental elements requiring the Center's capabilities. These agreements also define the activities undertaken at VNTSC.

The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 requires the preparation of oil spill response plans by pipeline operators to minimize the environmental impact of oil spills and to improve public and private sector response capabilities. The Office of Pipeline Safety is responsible for the review and approval of these plans, and to ensure that the public and environment is provided with an adequate level of protection from such spills through data analysis, spill monitoring, pipeline mapping, environmental indexing, and advancing technologies to detect and prevent leaks.

The Surface Transportation Board was created on January 1, 1996, by P.L. 104-88, the ICC Termination Act of 1995 (ICCTA). Consistent with the continued trend toward less regulation of the surface transportation industry, the ICCTA abolished the ICC; eliminated certain functions that had previously been implemented by the ICC; transferred core rail and certain other functions to the Board; and transferred motor licensing and certain other motor functions to the Federal Highway Administration. The Board is specifically responsible for the regulation of the rail and pipeline industries and certain non-licensing regulation of motor carriers and water carriers. The new law empowers the Board through its exemption authority to promote deregulation administratively on a case-by-case basis and continues intact the important rail reforms of the Staggers Rail Act of 1980, which have helped to substantially improve rail service and the profitability of the railroad industry.

Rail Carriers.—This regulatory oversight encompasses the regulation of rates, mergers, and acquisitions, construction, and abandonment of railroad lines, as well as the planning, analysis and policy development associated with these activities. Staff ensure compliance with railroad regulations in order to protect the public interest.

Other Surface Transportation Carriers.—This regulatory oversight includes certain regulation of the intercity bus industry and surface pipeline carriers as well as the rate regulation of water transportation in the non-contiguous domestic trade, household good carriers, and collectively determined motor rates and the processing of truck undercharge matters.

1999 Program Request.—A total of $16 million is requested to implement rulemakings and adjudicate the ongoing caseload within the directives and deadlines set forth by the ICCTA. The total program request amount is proposed to be derived from user fees collected from the beneficiaries of the Board's activities. This fee financing proposal stems from a proposal put forward by the Board's predecessor, the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC). That proposal suggested ways of financing the ICC solely with fees and/or industry assessments. Fee financing will relieve the general taxpayer of the burden of supporting the Board. Further, fee financing will emphasize the accountability of the Board as to the value of the activities it provides to its customers.

The following paragraph is presented in compliance with Section 703 of the ICCTA. It is presented without change or correction.

The Board's Request to OMB.—The Board had submitted to the Secretary of Transportation and the Office of Management and Budget a 1999 appropriation request of $14.190 million and a request for $2.0 million from reimbursements from the offsetting collection of user fees. This funding request supports the 135 FTEs, which mirrors the Board's 1998 budgetary authority granted to date, and is necessary for continued expeditious processing of the Board's caseload. The appropriation request included $13.853 million, the current level of funding provided by the 1998 Department of Transportation Appropriations Act, plus $0.147 million for annual pay and non-pay adjustments. The $2.0 million request from the offsetting collection of user fees is commensurate with the $2.0 million offsetting collection level authorized by the 1998 Appropriations Act. The offsetting collection of user fees is based on the costs incurred by the Board for fee-related activities and is commensurate with the costs of processing parties' submissions. This level of funding is necessary to implement rulemakings and adjudicate the ongoing caseload within the deadlines imposed by the ICCTA. The Board requires adequate resources to perform key functions under the ICCTA, including rail rate reasonableness oversight; the processing of rail consolidations, abandonments and other restructuring proposals; and the resolution of motor carrier undercharge matters.

The Board's Request to Congress.—The Board has communicated to the Department of Transportation its support for a program level of $16.0 million to be derived entirely from fees.

BUREAU OF TRANSPORTATION STATISTICS

The Bureau's goal is the improvement of transportation-related decisionmaking, in both the public and private sectors, leading to increases in efficiency, effectiveness, and safety in all modes of transportation. The Bureau is responsible for compiling, analyzing, and disseminating information on the nation's transportation systems. The Bureau's customers are Federal, State, and local governments, private entities and individuals.

Financing of the Bureau's operations is authorized as contract authority out of the Highway Trust Fund. The 1999 proposed funding level is $31 million. The contract authority is included in the Federal-aid Highways program and subject to the obligation limitation applicable to that program. Funds are transferred to the Bureau from Federal-aid Highways, where all personnel obligations, and outlays are counted.

The Bureau also includes the Office of Airline Information and the responsibility for collecting motor carrier financial and safety data.

MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

The Maritime Administration (MARAD) is responsible for programs authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, and other related acts, to promote a strong U.S. Merchant Marine. Emphasis is placed on increasing the competitiveness and productivity of the U.S. maritime industries as well as ensuring adequate seafaring manpower for peacetime and national emergencies. Programs include: providing operating aid to U.S.-flag operators; administering the Maritime Guaranteed Loan (Title XI) portfolio; reimbursing the Commodity Credit Corporation for the expanded cargo preference requirement in the Food Security Act of 1985; preserving and maintaining merchant ships retained in the National Defense Reserve Fleet including the Ready Reserve Force; emergency planning and coordination; promoting port and intermodal development; and conducting Federal technology assessment projects.

The following table shows the funding for the Maritime Administration programs:

The Operating-Differential Subsidies (ODS) account helps to maintain a U.S.-flag merchant fleet to serve both the commercial and national security needs of the U.S. by providing operating subsidies to U.S.-flag ship operators to offset certain differences between U.S. and foreign operating costs. Appropriations are provided to liquidate contract authority. This program has been replaced by the Maritime Security Program. 1998 appropriations were sufficient to honor existing contracts. No new ODS contracts will be entered into and no existing contracts will be modified.

The Maritime Security Program provides resources to maintain a U.S.-flag merchant fleet crewed by U.S. citizens to serve both the commercial and national security needs of the United States. The program provides direct payments to U.S.-flag ship operators engaged in U.S.-foreign trade. Participating operators are required to keep the vessels in active commercial service and are required to provide intermodal sealift support to the Department of Defense in times of war or national emergency.

Public Law 99-198 amended section 901 of the Merchant Marine Act to increase from 50 to 75 percent the amount of agricultural commodities under specified programs that must be carried on U.S.-flag vessels. The increased cost associated with this expanded U.S.-flag shipping requirement stems from higher rates charged by U.S.-flag carriers compared with foreign-flag carriers. The Maritime Administration is required to reimburse the Department of Agriculture for ocean freight differential costs for the added tonnage above 50 percent. These reimbursements are funded through borrowings from the Treasury. This account has a permanent, indefinite appropriation to liquidate debt provided in Public Law 100-202 to cover these costs.

The Maritime Administration's ocean freight differential costs are one portion of the government's cargo preference program. The ocean transportation subsidy costs related to cargo preference for all relevant agencies are presented in the following schedule.

Funding for the Ready Reserve Force (RRF) account is included in appropriations for the Department of Defense. Management of the RRF remains with MARAD. Reimbursements from the Department of Defense for the RRF account are reflected in MARAD's Vessel Operations Revolving Fund account. Obligations shown above are the spendout of funding appropriated directly to MARAD prior to 1996 for the RRF.

The RRF is comprised of Government-owned, U.S.-flag merchant ships laid up in the National Defense Reserve Fleet (NDRF). The RRF is maintained in an advanced state of readiness to meet surge shipping requirements during a national emergency.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to reactivate, operate, deactivate, and charter merchant vessels. These operations are financed through the Vessel Operations Revolving Fund with reimbursements from sponsoring agencies. In addition, the fund is available to finance the necessary expenses to protect, maintain, preserve, acquire, and use vessels involved in mortgage foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings instituted by the United States other than those financed by the Federal Ship Financing Fund; and to process advances received from Federal agencies. Also the acquisition of ships under the trade-in/scrap-out program is financed through this account.

Programs are funded by reimbursements from other Federal agencies. These programs include various DOD/Navy-sponsored activities, such as the operation of activated RRF vessels, installation of sealift enhancement features and other special projects. The Vessel Operations Revolving Fund account includes DOD/Navy reimbursements for the RRF account. DOD/Navy funding for RRF provides for additional RRF vessels, RRF ship activations and deactivations, maintaining RRF ships in an advanced state of readiness, berthing costs, capital improvements at fleet sites, and other RRF support costs.

This program provides for guaranteed loans for purchasers of ships from the U.S. shipbuilding industry and for modernization of U.S. shipyards.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account includes the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantee commitments made in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis, the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Funds for administrative expenses for the Title XI program are appropriated to this account, then transferred by reimbursement to the Operations and Training account to be obligated and outlaid. The schedule above shows the post-transfer amounts for 1997. For 1998 and 1999, the schedule displays pre-transfer amounts in order to comply with the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990.

The Office of Inspector General conducts and supervises audits, evaluations and investigations designed to: (1) promote economy, efficiency, and effectiveness and prevent fraud, waste, and abuse in Departmental programs and operations; and (2) keep the Secretary and the Congress fully and currently informed of problems and deficiencies in the administration of Departmental programs and operations. The audit function provides program audit, contract audit and financial statement audit services. Contract audits provide professional advice to agency contracting officials on accounting and financial matters relative to negotiation, award, administration, repricing, and settlement of contracts. Program audits review and audit all facets of agency operations. Financial statement audits assess whether financial statements fairly present the agency's financial condition and results of operations, the adequacy of accounting controls, and compliance with laws and regulations. These audits contribute significantly to improved financial management by helping Treasury managers identify improvements needed in their accounting and internal control systems. The evaluations function reviews program performance and issues critical to the mission of the Department and provides advisory services to program managers. The investigative function provides for the detection and investigation of improper and illegal activities involving programs, personnel, and operations. This appropriation also provides for the oversight of internal investigations made by the Offices of Internal Affairs and Inspection in the Bureau of ATF, the Customs Service, and the Secret Service, and internal audits and internal investigations of the Inspection Service at IRS.

The Inspectors General Auditor Training Institute provides the necessary facilities, equipment, and support services for conducting auditor training for the Federal Government Inspector General community. Institute personnel develop and deliver instructional programs related to basic government audit skills. The cost of training is recovered by tuition charged to students' agencies.

The Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) has responsibility for implementing Treasury anti-money laundering regulations through administration of the Bank Secrecy Act, 31 U.S.C. section 5311, et seq., and serves as a United States Government source for the systematic collation and analysis of information to assist in the investigation of money laundering and other financial crimes. FinCEN implements these responsibilities through analytical and technological platforms geared to combat money laundering through (1) prevention—using its regulatory authority in partnership with the financial sector; (2) detection—combining technology with all-source intelligence to identify both underlying criminal financial activity as well as emerging trends and patterns of domestic and international money laundering; and (3) enforcement—empowering other agencies at the Federal, State, local, and international levels to take action against financial criminals through the transfer of information and expertise.

The Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act of 1994 established the Community Development Financial Institutions Fund (CDFI Fund). The CDFI Fund provides equity investments, grants, loans, and technical assistance to new and existing community development financial institutions such as community development banks, community development credit unions, community development loan funds, community development venture capital funds, and micro-loan funds. Funds provided by the CDFI Fund will enhance the capacity of these institutions to finance economic development, housing, and community development in distressed urban and rural communities. The CDFI Fund also provides grants to insured depository institutions to facilitate investment in community development financial institutions and increase community lending activities.

In 1999, the CDFI Fund will operate a training program to increase the capacity and expertise of community development financial institutions and other members of the financial services industry to undertake community development finance activities.

The CDFI Fund helps to address the urgent problems of declining economic and social infrastructure, loss of jobs, lack of private enterprise, and deteriorating housing facing many American communities today. Government investment and technical assistance supplements private funds and expertise to ensure that community development financial institutions are effective in restoring healthy economic development to these communities.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities as deemed necessary, consistent with U.S. obligations in the International Monetary Fund (IMF), regarding orderly exchange arrangements. An Exchange Stabilization Fund, with a capital of $200 million, is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 5302). All earnings and interest accruing to this fund are available for the purposes thereof. Transactions in special drawing rights (SDR's) and U.S. holdings of SDR's are administered by the fund. U.S. drawings from the IMF are also advanced to the fund.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been profits on foreign exchange transactions, interest on foreign exchange swap transactions, and on investments held by the fund, including interest earned on fund holdings of U.S. Government securities.

The amounts reflected in the 1998 and 1999 estimates entail only projected net interest earnings on Exchange Stabilization Fund (ESF) assets. The estimates are subject to considerable variance, as the amount and composition of assets can change dramatically, as well as interest rates applied to investments. In addition, exchange rate fluctuations can cause the dollar value of income received on foreign currency and SDR investments to fluctuate. Moreover, estimates make no attempt to forecast valuation gains or losses on SDR holdings or realized gains or losses on foreign currency holdings. As required by Public Law 95-612, the fund no longer is used to meet the administrative expenses.

Department of Treasury was chosen as a pilot Franchise Fund under P.L. 103-356, the Government Management and Reform Act of 1994. Begun in 1997, financial and administrative services included in the Franchise Fund (Fund) are financed on a fee-for-service basis. Treasury's Fund is a revolving fund used to supply financial and administrative services on the basis of services supplied. For 1999, service activities are expected to have billings of $40 million and employ 118 people.

Activities included in the Fund are financial training, accounting cross-servicing, and various administrative support services. The Fund concept is intended to increase competition for government and financial administrative services, resulting in lower costs and higher quality.

The Federal Law Enforcement Training Center provides the necessary facilities, equipment, and support services for conducting recruit, advanced, specialized, and refresher training for Federal law enforcement personnel. Center personnel conduct the instructional programs for the basic recruit and some of the advanced training. This appropriation is for operating expenses of the Center, for research in law enforcement training methods, and curriculum content. In addition, the Center has a reimbursable program to accommodate the training requirements of various Federal agencies. As funds are available, law enforcement training is provided to certain State, local, and foreign law enforcement personnel on a space-available basis.

This account provides for the acquisition, construction, improvements, equipment, furnishings and related costs for expansion and maintenance of facilities of the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center.

This includes funding for the Facilities Master Plan, Minor Construction and Maintenance, Firearms Environmental Restoration and Reconstruction, Environmental Compliance, and installation of Fiber Optics. The Master Plan provides the long range blueprint for expansion of facilities to meet the training requirements of the over 70 participating agencies. Minor construction and maintenance provides alterations and maintenance funding for approximately 300 buildings at two locations (Glynco, Georgia and Artesia, New Mexico). The Firearms Environmental Restoration and Reconstruction funds the clean-up of the existing outdoor ranges and reconstruction. The Environmental Compliance funds are to ensure compliance with EPA and State environmental laws and regulations. The fiber optics funding is to replace the existing antiquated twisted copper wire with a state-of-the-art telecommunications cable system.

The $28 million sought in this account, demonstrates the President's commitment to an important step in completing and maintaining the necessary facilities at FLETC to train our Nation's law enforcement personnel.

The Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force (ICDE) Program consists of 9 regional task forces which consolidate the resources and expertise of 11 member Federal agencies, in cooperation with State and local investigators and prosecutors, to target and destroy major narcotic trafficking and money laundering organizations. Beginning in 1998, only components within Treasury are reimbursed from this appropriation. Treasury continues its participation in ICDE as it has in the past; however, the program is administered by Treasury's Departmental Offices. Treasury participates in the task force activities through direct investigative and support activities of task forces, focusing on the disruption of drug trafficking controlled by various organized crime enterprises.

Financial Operations.—Payments are made through six regional offices for Federal civilian agencies, except the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. Marshals Service, and certain Government corporations. These disbursing services are provided through the timely issuance of checks, and electronic funds transfer (EFT) payments. This activity is responsible for processing EFT claims, for promoting the use of electronics in the payment process, and for providing full field representation for other functional areas of the Service. This activity is also responsible for the control and financial integrity of the Federal payments and collections processes including conducting reconciliation, accounting, and claims activities. It adjudicates and settles claims against the United States resulting from instances in which Government checks have been forged, lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated, and collects moneys from those parties having liability to the United States through fraudulent or otherwise improper negotiation of Government checks. Financial Operations ensures the integrity of the Government's financial accounting, reporting, and financing services and financial accounting and reporting systems to the Federal Government and its agents, who participate in the payments and collections processes. Additionally, this activity provides financial services for the D.C. Government loan account and provides for payment of domestic and international claims. It also provides debt collection operational services to client agencies through a network linking its own debt collection expertise and capabilities with those of FMS's Regional Financial Centers, Federal program agencies' Debt Collection Centers, private sector collection agencies, and the Department of Justice. These services provide the Federal Government with consolidated management of delinquent debt in order to improve the collection of such debt. Available services include collection of delinquent accounts, post-judgment enforcement, consolidation of information reported to credit bureaus, reporting for discharged debts or vendor payments, Federal Employee Salary Offset Hearings, mortgage servicing, collection of unclaimed financial assets, and disposition of foreclosed property.

Federal Finance.—This activity provides direction, leadership, and technical guidance for managing the Federal Government's cash and credit management programs. It is responsible for the development, implementation, and dissemination of tools, regulations, standards, and guidelines affecting all aspects of the Government's cash and credit management programs. The major focus is on (1) development and evaluation of cash, credit and asset management techniques, and (2) credit management training, to minimize the cost and maximize the effectiveness of the Federal Government's financial management. In addition, this activity oversees compensation made to commercial depositories for the processing services they provide to the Government in collecting and accounting of Federal Tax Deposits.

Agency Support.—This activity provides leadership and guidance for administrative and financial activities that enable the Service to manage programs and resources effectively. It is responsible for all internal FMS accounting, auditing, program review, budget and financial operations, financial systems, and facilities and personnel functions. This activity also encompasses the Service's legal, planning, and legislative and public affairs needs. Top management and the Service's Chief Financial Officer are also included under this activity. In addition, this activity is responsible for overseeing the development, implementation, and operation of information and financial management systems. It is responsible for automated data processing (ADP) operations and the associated computer support necessary to maintain the Service's internal and Government-wide systems. Specific functions include operating and maintaining all central facility computer systems and data communications mechanisms, scheduling and processing development and production workloads, installing and tuning operating system software, planning and coordinating hardware installations, providing user support services, and acquiring ADP and telecommunications equipment, software, services and supplies. This activity also supports a large number of developmental efforts to enhance the collections, payments, accounting, reporting, and resource management functions of the Service.

Business Lines.—As part of a continuing effort to enhance performance measures and the budget structure, and to more effectively link programmatic activities to performance indicators, the four major business lines that follow provide a direct link between the above budget activities and FMS's performance measures. Starting with the FY 1999 budget submission, FMS will reflect its financial resources by these business lines/activities. After FY 1999, FMS will cease to represent its resources by the three budget activities shown above.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 authorized and appropriated to the Secretary of the Treasury, such sums as may be necessary to cover interest payments on obligations issued by the Resolution Funding Corporation (REFCORP). REFCORP was established under the Act to raise $31.2 billion for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) in order to resolve savings institution insolvencies.

Sources of payment for interest due on REFCORP obligations include REFCORP investment income, proceeds from the sale of assets or warrants acquired by the RTC, and annual contributions by the Federal Home Loan Banks. If these payment sources are insufficient to cover all interest costs, funds appropriated to the Treasury shall be used to meet the shortfall.

Loan guarantee financing accounts receive various payments and fees and make payments on defaults. When cash balances result from an excess of receipts over outlays, these balances are deposited at the Treasury and earn interest. This account pays such interest to credit loan guarantee financing accounts from the general fund of the Treasury in accordance with section 505(c) of the Federal Credit Reform

Act of 1990. The estimates of interest paid by this fund are derived from the estimates of interest received in the various financing accounts.

The Energy Security Reserve was created principally to finance the activities of the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corporation. Public Law 99-190 rescinded the balance of unobligated funds available to the Corporation. The Act left $10 million in the Reserve for the Corporation's liquidation and $400 million for a Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program, which has been transferred to a new account in the Department of Energy. The Act also transferred responsibility for ongoing projects of the Corporation to the Secretary of the Treasury; these projects' activities and financing will continue to be displayed in this account.

This account finances programs to aid commercial production of alcohol and other fuels from crops and crop waste, timber, animal and timber waste, and other forms of biomass and urban waste activities, as authorized under Title II of the Energy Security Act.

Administrative provisions enacted in 1989 for the Department of Energy allow the Department of Energy to retain in this account any funds brought into its Alcohol Fuels Loan Guarantee Program, either through (1) sale of assets the Government has acquired through loan default and foreclosure, or (2) repayments made on a loan for which the Department of Energy has become the direct lender by paying the guarantee on a defaulted loan. These retained funds will be held in a reserve against the possibility of further guaranteed loan defaults. The Department of Energy will also be able to use unobligated funds from its Alternative Fuels Production account to pay the guaranteed portion of defaults if the need arises, and if those funds are not needed by the Alternative Fuels Production program. In 1993, $44 million was transferred to the Energy Information Administration (EIA) to offset approximately half of EIA's budget authority requirements.

This fund was established as a permanent, indefinite appropriation in order to maintain adequate funding of the Check Forgery Insurance Fund (Fund). The Fund will facilitate timely payments for replacement Treasury checks necessitated due to a claim of forgery. The Fund will recoup disbursements through reclamations made against banks negotiating forged checks.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorsers of the checks through reclamation procedures by this office. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover funds, the account sustains the loss.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (Public Law 100-233) authorized such sums as necessary to be appropriated to the Secretary of the Treasury for payment to the Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation (FAC).

Treasury payments annually reimburse the FAC for interest expense on FAC debt, which is authorized to be issued through 1992. Treasury is authorized to pay all or part of FAC interest for the first 10 years on each 15-year FAC debt issuance. Debt proceeds are used to provide assistance to financially troubled Farm Credit System lending institutions. No payments will be made after fiscal year 2000.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 provided that the Farm Credit System's share of interest assessment for FAC debt would increase if the System's retained earnings exceeded five percent of its assets. For 1997, 1998, and 1999 the Treasury portion of interest assessments was estimated at 9, 7, and 2 percent respectively.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created in 1973 to ensure the coordination of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public in a manner least disruptive to private financial markets and institutions. Prior to that time, many agencies borrowed directly from the private market to finance credit programs involving lending to the public. With the implementation of the Federal Credit Reform Act in 1992, however, such agencies simply finance loan programs through direct loan financing accounts that borrow directly from the Treasury. Therefore, FFB loans are now used primarily to finance direct agency activities such as resolution of failed thrift institutions by the deposit insurance agencies, construction of Federal buildings by the General Services Administration, and meeting the financing requirements of the U.S. Postal Service. In certain cases, the FFB finances Federal direct loans to the public that would otherwise be made by private lenders and fully guaranteed by a Federal agency.

Lending by the FFB is set at 1/8 percent above Treasury rates and may take one of three forms, depending on the authorizing statutes pertaining to a particular agency or program: (1) the FFB may purchase agency financial assets; (2) the FFB may acquire debt securities that the agency is otherwise authorized to issue to the public; and (3) the FFB may originate direct loans on behalf of an agency by disbursing loans directly to private borrowers and receiving repayments from the private borrower on behalf of the agency. Because law requires that transactions by the FFB be treated as a means of financing agency obligations, the budgetary effect of the third type of transaction is reflected in the budget in the following sequence: a loan by the FFB to the agency, a loan by the agency to a private borrower, a repayment by a private borrower to the agency, and a repayment by the agency to the FFB.

As part of the implementation of changes made to the Federal Credit Reform Act, the 1999 Budget provides an appropriation to liquidate the FFB's accumulated deficit that resulted from the fact that while FFB borrowers have been allowed to prepay at par, FFB paid a prepayment premium on the underlying obligations to the Treasury Department.

The following table shows the annual net lending by the FFB by agency and program and the amount outstanding at the end of each year.

The table does not include certain securities originally issued to the FFB by the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Postal Service, which the FFB exchanged with the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund in 1996 in return for Treasury securities of equal present value. These TVA and Postal Service securities had a remaining face value of $7.1 billion as of the end of 1997.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) is a law enforcement organization within the United States Department of the Treasury with unique responsibilities dedicated to reducing violent crime, collecting revenue, and protecting the public. ATF enforces the Federal laws and regulations relating to alcohol, tobacco, firearms, explosives, and arson by working directly and in cooperation with others to: (1) Effectively contribute to a safer America by reducing the future number and cost of violent crimes; (2) Maintain a sound revenue management and regulatory system that continues reducing payer burden, improving service, collecting the revenue due and preventing illegal diversion; and (3) Protect the public and prevent consumer deception in ATF's regulated commodities.

The following performance measurements continue to be refined and improved in order to provide viable output and outcome measures for the Bureau, thus complying with the Government Performance and Results Act of 1993 (GPRA).

The Puerto Rican Federal Relations Act mandates that excise taxes collected under the Internal Revenue laws of the United States on articles produced in Puerto Rico and either transported to the United States or consumed on the island are to be covered over to Puerto Rico (48 U.S.C. 734). The budget assumes that the full amount of the collections on Puerto Rico rum will be covered over. The Administration will propose legislation to eliminate a limitation on the amount of the cover over on rum imposed by 26 U.S.C. 7652, which is no longer justified. The legislation will also provide that, for five years, fifty cents per proof gallon would be dedicated for the Puerto Rico Conservation Trust Fund pursuant to an agreement between the Secretary of the Interior and the Governor of Puerto Rico. This proposal replaces a funding source lost as a consequence of the repeal of a provision of tax law.

The United States Customs Service, in partnership with other Federal agencies, is one of the Nation's principal means of border enforcement. Its mission is to ensure that all goods and persons entering and exiting the United States do so in compliance with all United States laws and regulations.

Prior to 1999, the Customs Service budget consisted of three activities: Inspection and Control, Enforcement, and Tariff and Trade. These activities were developed in the early 1980's and reflected the organizational needs and structure of Customs at that time. In order for Customs to effectively implement the requirements of the Results Act, a comprehensive restructuring from three to two budget activities is proposed beginning in FY 1999. The operations of the Customs Salaries and Expenses appropriation would be divided into two major budget activities: "Commercial" and "Drug and Other Enforcement."

Commercial.—Commercial activities are all process/business area activities (Trade Compliance, Outbound, and Passenger Processing) which occur prior to a violation being confirmed or acceptance of a referral for investigation. This includes intelligence gathering, targeting, analysis and examination activities.

This proposal would allow the Secretary of the Treasury to increase the rate of the Merchandise Processing Fee (MPF) to offset the costs of modernizing the Customs Service automated commercial operations. Proceeds of the fee increase would be statutorily restricted to this modernization effort. Subsequent to the FY 1999 President’s Budget, authorization legislation will be transmitted to allow the Secretary to increase the ad valorem rate paid by importers on formal cargo entries into the United States from .21 percent to up to .25 percent. (This would not include imports excluded from the MPF under NAFTA.) The proceeds would be available to Customs on a current indefinite basis after necessary legislation by the authorizations and appropriations committees.

Customs charges fees at certain small airports where the volume or value of business is insufficient to justify the availability of Customs services. The funds generated from these fees are applied to expenditures incurred in providing Customs services at each of these designated small airports. (19 U.S.C. 58b.)

The Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Act of 1998 (Public Law 105-284) made permanent the provision that Customs services at small airports may be derived from fees collected.

Unclaimed and abandoned goods are held in storage under Customs custody for one year from the date of importation. At the end of that period, all merchandise upon which duties, storage, and other charges have not been paid is appraised and sold at public auction. The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. The Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

Engraving and printing—

Currency.—Total deliveries of currency for 1998 and 1999 are estimated to be 9.2 and 9.5 billion notes, respectively. During 1997, the Bureau delivered 9.6 billion Federal Reserve notes.

Stamps.—This category of work is comprised of postal and internal revenue stamps. The projected requirements for 1998 and 1999 are estimated to be 22.0 and 18.0 respectively. In 1997, the Bureau delivered 22.4 billion stamps.

Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government.

Commissions, certificates, etc.—This program is comprised primarily of Presidential and Department of Defense commissions and certificates, White House invitations, and identification cards for various Government agencies. It represents a small portion of the Bureau's total workload.

Space utilized by other agencies.—Other agencies are charged for services provided in the space occupied in the Bureau's buildings.

Other miscellaneous services.—A wide variety of miscellaneous services are performed by Bureau personnel for other agencies, which are charged on an actual cost basis.

Purchase of operating equipment.—This category consists of new purchases and replacement of printing equipment and other related printing items.

Plant alterations and experimental equipment.—This category encompasses alterations made on the Bureau's buildings and purchases of experimental equipment.

The operations of the Bureau are currently financed by means of a revolving fund established in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 656, August 4, 1950 (31 U.S.C. 181), which requires the Bureau to be reimbursed by customer agencies for all costs of manufacturing products and services performed. The Bureau is also authorized to assess amounts to acquire capital equipment and provide for working capital needs. Bureau operations during 1997 resulted in a decrease to retained earnings of $26.8 million.

The United States Mint manufactures coins, sells numismatic and investment products, and provides for security and asset protection. Public Law 104-52, dated November 19, 1995, enacted 5136, of Subchapter III of chapter 51 of subtitle IV of title 31, United States Code established the United States Mint Public Enterprise Fund. The new fund encompasses the previous Salaries and Expenses, Coinage Profit Fund, Coinage Metal Fund, and the Numismatic Public Enterprise Fund. The Mint submits annual audited business-type financial statements to the Secretary of the Treasury and to Congress in support of the operations of the revolving fund. The Office of Management and Budget and the Department of the Treasury are working on Performance Based Organization proposals throughout the Department, including one for the Mint.

The operations of the Mint are divided into three major activities: Circulating Coinage, Protection, and Numismatic and Investment Products. Beginning in 1997, the Capital Investments line is no longer identified as a separate budget activity in order to better align the GPRA/budgetary reporting with the Mint's Strategic Plan. The Mint is credited with receipts from its circulating coinage operations, equal to the full cost of producing and distributing coins that are put into circulation, including depreciation of the Mint's plant and equipment on the basis of current replacement value.

From that, the Mint pays its cost of operations, which includes the costs of production and distribution. The difference between the face value of the coins and the estimate of receipts is profit, which is deposited as seigniorage to the general fund. In FY 1997, the Mint transferred $465 million to the general fund. Any seigniorage used to finance the Mint's capital acquisitions is recorded as budget authority in the year that funds are obligated for this purpose, and as receipts over the life of the asset.

Circulating Coinage.—This activity funds the manufacture of circulating coins as determined by public demand. In 1999, resources for this activity will enable the Mint to produce 12.8 billion coins. In 1996, with the merger of the former Coinage Metal Fund into the Mint Public Enterprise Fund, the Mint began including the cost of metal in the Circulating Coinage activity.

Numismatic and Investment Products.—This activity funds the manufacture of numismatic and bullion coins, medals, and other products for sale to collectors and the general public. These coins include annual recurring programs such as proof and uncirculated sets, silver proof coins, the American Eagle gold and silver bullion uncirculated and proof coins, American Eagle platinum coins, and national and historic medals. The activity also includes nonrecurring programs for coins and medals which are legislated to commemorate specific events or individuals. In 1999, this activity will fund the following new commemorative coin programs: Dolly Madison, George Washington, and Yellowstone National Park.

Protection.—This activity funds protection of the Government's stock of gold and silver bullion, coins, Mint employees and visitors, plant facilities and equipment, and all other Mint property against abuse, theft, damage, disorders, and all other unsafe or illegal practices by utilizing police officers and modern protective devices.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The mission of the Internal Revenue Service is to collect the proper amount of tax revenue at the least cost; serve the public by continually improving the quality of our products and services; and perform in a manner warranting the highest degree of public confidence in our integrity, efficiency and fairness.

This mission will be carried out while providing consistently first-rate service to the American public. To achieve its mission, the Service has identified three strategic objectives. In order to achieve the first objective of "Improving Customer Service," the IRS will improve taxpayer access, resolve most inquiries on the first contact, while increasing customer satisfaction. Second, to achieve the objective of "Increasing Compliance," the IRS will encourage and assist taxpayers to voluntarily file accurate returns and pay timely, and take appropriate enforcement actions if they do not comply. Also, to help improve customer satisfaction with compliance efforts, the IRS will ensure that taxpayers are treated with courtesy, fairness, and professionalism. The IRS will meet its third objective of "Increasing Productivity," by using systems management techniques and developing a highly skilled work force to continually improve operations and the quality of products and services provided to taxpayers.

IRS has developed a set of key performance measures to focus the energies and talents of the organization and its employees on the attainment of the mission, to establish clear lines of accountability, and to ensure first-rate customer service. The mission effectiveness measure is an overall barometer of Service performance and represents the first level of these measures. This indicator compares the amount of revenue collected during a fiscal year, minus the IRS costs of collecting that revenue and minus the costs plus the monetized value of the hours used by taxpayers and the costs in meeting their tax obligations, with the amount of revenue that would have been collected if all taxpayers had paid their full tax liability.

The IRS uses the second level of measures to assess achievement of the Service's three objectives. These measures are referred to as Servicewide performance measures and are included in the chart that is displayed below.

Finally, the third level of measures contains the measures for the Service's sixteen budget activities. These sixteen activities represent the Service's various functional components; each activity contributes to the achievement of the Service's mission and strategic objectives. Details on these measures are shown at the conclusion of the appropriation summaries.

<sup>1</sup> Revenue estimates reflect the current services baseline; estimates based on the President's proposals were not available at the time this went to print.

<sup>2</sup> The FY 1997 Level of Access has been recalculated to reflect the GAO definition, adopted by IRS this year. The new definition renders the goal more challenging since it is based on calls offered over total call attempts whereas the former definition (calls answered over unique caller demand) only counted repeated callers once.

This appropriation provides for: processing tax returns and related documents; assisting taxpayers in filing of their returns and in paying taxes that are due; matching information returns with tax returns; conducting internal audit reviews and internal security investigations; and managing financial resources, rent and utilities.

Submission processing.—This activity provides for all actions associated with receipt of completed returns and payments, deposit of those payments, processing and accounting for revenue collections and Federal Tax Deposits and verification of the accuracy of information provided by the taxpayer through an automated master file system. It provides for payment of refunds, offset of refunds against delinquent accounts, issuance of notices that payments are overdue, identification of possible nonfilers for investigation, and assistance in the selection of tax returns for audit.

Telephone and Correspondence.—This activity aids voluntary compliance with Federal tax laws by informing taxpayers of their responsibilities and by providing services and information through various media which assist them in meeting their obligations. It provides for responding to inquiries concerning tax laws, IRS bills and notices, and resolving tax account problems.

Document Matching.—This activity processes information returns, such as wage, dividend, and interest statements and matches them with related individual income tax returns. This enables the Service to identify income reporting discrepancies, unsubstantiated deductions, and nonfiling of tax returns and to verify facts and amounts in question through taxpayer contact prior to assessing additional tax or refunding excess credits.

Inspection.—This activity protects public confidence in the integrity of the Internal Revenue Service. Internal Audit independently reviews service programs at the national, regional and local levels to ensure that laws and regulations are being followed, that management and financial internal controls are in place, that programs and major ADP systems are functioning effectively and efficiently and that appropriated funds are spent as authorized. Internal Security conducts background investigations to maintain the integrity of the IRS workforce against fraud and drug abuse and protect the Service against outside attempts to bribe, intimidate or harass its employees.

Management Services.—This activity sets policies and goals, provides leadership and direction for the Service, and provides Servicewide policy guidance for managing contract administration and procurement programs, conducting strategic and organizational planning, and developing and managing the human, logistical, and financial resources required to fulfill the Service's mission in performing tax administration. It also provides all administrative services for IRS National office and field installations.

Rent and Utilities.—This activity provides rent and utilities for the entire Service.

This appropriation provides for the examination of tax returns, both domestic and international, and the administrative and judicial settlement of taxpayer appeals of examination findings. It also provides for issuing technical rulings, monitoring employee pension plans, determining qualifications of organizations seeking tax-exempt status, examining tax returns of exempt organizations, enforcing statutes relating to detection and investigation of criminal violations of the internal revenue laws, collecting unpaid accounts, compiling statistics of income and compliance research, and securing unfiled tax returns and payments. Funds are requested to continue the Service's ability to ensure equitable application and adequate enforcement of the tax laws, to promote voluntary compliance with the internal revenue laws, to identify possible nonfilers for investigation and to investigate cases of fraud or financial transactions related to possible money laundering schemes.

Criminal Investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of criminal statutes relating to violations of internal revenue laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud, recommends prosecution as warranted, and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases. In addition, financial investigations expose money laundering schemes through a variety of methods, including Currency Transaction Reports.

Examination.—This activity encourages voluntary compliance with the internal revenue laws through the determination of correct tax liability by the selective examination of tax returns, the correction of errors, and explanation of these corrections to taxpayers. The appeals portion of this activity provides staffing, training, and direct support to allow for an administrative review process that provides a channel for impartial case settlement prior to cases being docketed in a court of law. This includes the offices of the national director of appeals and the regional director of appeals.

The international portion of this activity directs the full range of IRS enforcement and assistance programs related to U.S. taxpayers doing business or residing outside the United States as well as non-resident aliens with a U.S. tax obligation. It also provides technical tax training and administrative assistance to foreign governments; provides compliance and taxpayer service support to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and certain Pacific Island jurisdictions; and manages activities related to tax treaties between the United States and other governments. The compliance research component of this activity develops and evaluates data on taxpayer filing characteristics based on returns as they are filed and conducts statistical and economic studies.

Collection.—This activity collects unpaid tax accounts and secures delinquent returns; develops and implements programs to prevent tax accounts from becoming delinquent; determines and analyzes reasons for tax accounts that become delinquent; and develops, implements, and measures programs that analyze the reasons for types and degrees of non-filing.

Employee plans and exempt organizations.—This activity monitors private pension plans to ensure compliance with the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended. Organizations apply for tax-exempt status, which is determined by this activity, through the application of certain tests. By examining tax returns of tax-exempt organizations, it monitors and ensures compliance with current tax laws regarding tax-exempt organizations.

Statistics of income.—This activity publishes Statistics of Income Reports on the operation of income tax laws, as required by the Internal Revenue Code for the Congress and its committees; for administrative use by the Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue; and for the Federal benchmark statistical programs on income, wealth and finance.

Chief Counsel.—The counsel activity is the independent legal counsel to the Internal Revenue Service and provides the correct legal interpretation of the internal revenue laws; represents the Internal Revenue Service in litigation; provides all other legal support for the Internal Revenue Service; and, performs these duties in a manner that enhances public confidence in the integrity, efficiency, and fairness of our nation's tax system.

This appropriation provides for: expanded customer service and public outreach programs, strengthened enforcement activities, and enhanced research efforts to reduce overclaims and erroneous filings associated with the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC).

Expanded customer service includes dedicated, toll-free telephone assistance, increased community-based tax preparation sites and a coordinated marketing and educational effort (including paid advertising and direct mailings) to assist low income taxpayers in determining their eligibility for EITC. Improved compliance includes increased staff and systemic improvements in submission processing, examination and criminal investigation programs. In returns processing, new procedures for expanded use of math error authority and in the identification of EITC-based refund claims involving invalid or duplicate primary, secondary and dependent tax identification numbers (TINs). Increased examination coverage, prior to issuance of refunds, reduces overpayments and encourages compliance in subsequent filing periods; in addition, post-refund correspondence audits by service center staff aids in the recovery of erroneous refunds. Criminal investigation activities target individuals and practitioners involved in fraudulent refund schemes and generate referrals of suspicious returns for follow-up examination. Examination staff, assigned to district offices, audit return preparers and may apply penalties for non-compliance with "due diligence requirements."

Enhanced research activities and projects focus on EITC claimant characteristics and patterns of non-compliance and are designed to improve education and outreach products, strengthen IRS abuse detection capabilities and measure the effects of Servicewide programs on compliance levels for the EITC-eligible taxpayer population. This appropriation also funds the development of specialized research databases and masterfile updates, reimbursement to the Social Security Administration (SSA) for enhancements to the SSA numbering systems and cooperative efforts with State vital statistics offices.

This appropriation provides for Servicewide information systems support, including the evaluation, development, and implementation of computer systems, including software and hardware requirements.

Operational Information Systems.—This activity provides the salaries, benefits, and related costs to manage, maintain and operate the information systems that support tax administration. The Service’s business activities rely on these information systems to process tax and information returns, account for tax revenues collected, send bills for taxes owed, issue refunds, assist in the selection of tax returns for audit, and provide telecommunications services for all business activities including the public’s toll free access to tax information. These systems are located in a variety of sites including the Martinsburg Computing Center, the Detroit Computing Center, the Tennessee Computing Center, and in regional and district offices and service centers. The staffing in this activity is used to maintain the millions of lines of programming code running the computer systems; to operate and administer the Service’s hardware infrastructure of mainframes, minicomputers and networks; and to bring all systems into Year 2000 compliance.

Developmental Information Systems.—This activity provides for salaries and benefits, hardware, software (including commercial-off-the-shelf), and contractual services to design, develop, and deploy new information systems that are essential to temporarily build a bridge to the modernized IRS. All of the projects included in this budget activity are consistent with the Modernization Blueprint and are essential to providing employees with the information systems equipment they need to do their jobs.

This appropriation provides for funding of the PRIME Systems Integration Services Contractor to build the information technology described in the IRS Modernization Blueprint of May 15, 1997. The IRS is partnering with the private sector to make technology investments in its primary business lines: customer service, compliance; electronic commerce; submission processing; corporate systems; and financial reporting. These investments are predicated on a systems architecture that integrates functional requirements with infrastructure and data security; a project sequencing plan that details the logical of systems development roll out and phase out of legacy systems; and business cases that incorporate known outcomes of reengineering, electronic commerce and redesign of work processes.

As provided by law, there will be instances wherein the earned income tax credit will exceed the amount of tax liability owed through the individual income tax system, resulting in an additional payment to the tax filer. The Earned Income Credit was originally authorized by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-12) and made permanent by the Revenue Adjustment Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-600). The Tax Reform Act of 1986 and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Acts of 1990 and 1993 have increased the credit amount and expanded the eligibility for earned income credit.

As provided by law, there will be instances wherein the child credit will exceed the amount of tax liability owed through the individual income tax system, resulting in an additional payment to the tax filer. The child credit was originally authorized by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-34).

Under certain circumstances, as provided in 26 U.S.C. 6611, interest is paid on Internal Revenue collections that must be refunded. The Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (Public Law 97-248) provides for daily compounding of interest. Under the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-514), interest paid on Internal Revenue collections will equal the Federal short-term rate plus two percentage points, such rate to be adjusted quarterly.

As provided by law (26 U.S.C. 7623), the Treasury Secretary may make payments to individuals resulting from information given that leads to the collection of Internal Revenue taxes. The Taxpayer Bill of Rights of 1996 (Public Law 104-168) provides for payments of such sums to individuals from the proceeds of amounts (other than interest) collected by reason of the information provided, and any amount collected shall be available for such payments. This information must lead to the detection of underpayments of taxes, or detection and bringing to trial and punishment persons guilty of violating the internal revenue laws (in cases where such expenses are not otherwise provided for by law).

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966, to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. During the process of collecting unpaid taxes, the government places a tax lien on real estate in order to protect the government's interest. Situations arise where property of this nature is collateral for other indebtedness and the tax lien is subordinate to the original indebtedness. In this circumstance, it is often to the government's interest to purchase the property during the foreclosure sale. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lienholder's equity but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances, if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS—INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

SECTION 101. Not to exceed 5 percent of any appropriation made available in this Act to the Internal Revenue Service may be transferred to any other Internal Revenue Service appropriation upon the advance [approval of] notice transmitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

SEC. 102. The Internal Revenue Service shall maintain a training program to ensure that Internal Revenue Service employees are trained in taxpayers' rights, in dealing courteously with the taxpayers, and in cross-cultural relations.

SEC. 103. The funds provided in this Act for the Internal Revenue Service shall be used to provide, as a minimum, the fiscal year 1995 level of service, staffing, and funding for Taxpayer Services.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated by this title shall be used in connection with the collection of any underpayment of any tax imposed by the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 unless the conduct of officers and employees of the Internal Revenue Service in connection with such collection, including any private sector employees under contract to the Internal Revenue Service, complies with subsection (a) of section 805 (relating to communications in connection with debt collection), and section 806 (relating to harassment or abuse), of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (15 U.S.C. 1692).

SEC. 105. The Internal Revenue Service shall institute and enforce policies and procedures which will safeguard the confidentiality of taxpayer information.

SEC. 106. Funds made available by this or any other Act to the Internal Revenue Service shall be available for improved facilities and increased manpower to provide sufficient and effective 1-800 help line for taxpayers. The Commissioner shall continue to make the improvement of the Internal Revenue Service 1-800 help line service a priority and allocate resources necessary to increase phone lines and staff to improve the Internal Revenue Service 1-800 help line service.

[SEC. 107. Hereafter, no field support reorganization of the Internal Revenue Service shall be undertaken in Aberdeen, South Dakota until the Internal Revenue Service toll-free help phone line assistance program reaches at least an 80 percent service level. The Commissioner shall submit to Congress a report and the General Accounting Office shall certify to Congress that the 80 percent service level has been met.]

[SEC. 108. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no reorganization of the field office structure of the Internal Revenue Service Criminal Investigation division will result in a reduction of criminal investigators in Wisconsin and South Dakota from the 1996 level.] (Treasury Department Appropriations Act, 1998.)

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations.

As the Administrator of National Banks, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration of charter applications. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed onsite examinations, which are conducted by a staff of approximately 2,020 national bank examiners. At present, there are approximately 2,624 national banks with total assets of more than $2.8 trillion.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank and applications from banks to establish branches. The Comptroller of the Currency also promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks and bank directors.

The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) was created by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (12 U.S.C. 1811 note). The OTS assumed the regulatory functions of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board dissolved by the same act.

The OTS charters, regulates and examines Federal thrifts, all of which are insured by the Savings Association Insurance Fund. In addition, the OTS cooperates in the examination and supervision of State-chartered thrifts insured by the Savings Association Insurance Fund. The OTS sets capital standards for Federal and State thrifts and reviews applications of State-chartered thrifts for conversion to Federal thrifts. It also reviews applications for establishment of branch offices.

Income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments on thrifts, examination fees and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. At present, the OTS oversees more than 1,200 thrifts with more than 10,000 operating branches and total assets of more than $700 billion.

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS' IMPLEMENTATION OF THE GOVERNMENT PERFORMANCE AND RESULTS ACT

Fiscal Year 1999 will mark the first year of full implementation of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA). In preparing to meet this time line, in Fiscal Year 1997 the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) completed a strategic plan covering Fiscal Years 1998 through 2003. The efforts required to prepare this plan helped strengthen VA's planning process. The Department's strategic plan was submitted to the Congress in September, 1997. In addition to providing general goals for each of VA's major programs, the plan looks across all VA programs to articulate department-wide cross-cutting goals. The strategic plan provides a comprehensive picture of what VA is striving to achieve and how progress will be measured.

The 1999 Budget contains VA's initial annual performance plan, as required by GPRA. Performance information that was previously contained in the budget appendix is now contained in the VA performance plan. The performance plan contains specific performance goals within each program that support the broader general goals in the strategic plan. VA has integrated the annual performance plan requirements into its budget request to begin to draw a closer relationship between resources and performance. Resources to accomplish performance goals for a particular program may be provided through more than one appropriation account.

In accordance with the Government Performance and Results Act, VA Medical Care measures its performance through associated domains of value including: cost; access; technical quality; customer satisfaction; and functional status. Detailed performance goals can be found in the annual performance plan in VA's Budget Submission.

Public Law 105-33, the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, established the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Care Collection Fund (MCCF) and allowed VA to retain all collections from third party insurance companies, other copayments and related medical fees. The ability for VA to retain these non-appropriated funds is critical to VA's success in providing care to veterans. As the collections are earned and deposited in the fund, they are transferred to this account, as provided for by the appropriation, and used to enhance medical care provided to veterans. For 1999, VA estimates that over $677 million will be collected through this effort with revenues growing to over $993 million by 2003. To accomplish this growth, VA will begin to bill usual and customary charges for inpatient and outpatient procedures, identify more patients having insurance, and improve its debt collection efforts. The 1999 budget includes a legislative proposal which will permanently extend current legal provisions due to expire in FY 2003. These provisions provide for: the collection of third party health insurance payments for care provided by the VA for service-connected veterans with nonservice connected conditions, copayments, and income verification provisions.

This legislative proposal would authorize a new smoking-cessation program for any honorably discharged veteran who began smoking in the military. The program would be delivered by private providers on a per capita basis. Any veteran who began smoking in the military would be eligible for this new program to the extent that resources are available.

A legislative proposal to authorize this program will be transmitted with the FY 1999 budget. Once this program is authorized, the Administration will submit a budget amendment requesting an appropriation of $87 million for this new activity.

Funding for Medical and Prosthetic Research is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority of providing needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget.

The Medical and Prosthetic Research account is comprised of the following three programs:

Medical research.—This program is comprised of investigator-initiated and special research. In addition to the broad spectrum of biomedical research projects, priority is given to research Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome and conditions that frequently occur among veterans such as aging, alcoholism, schizophrenia, delayed stress disorders and other mental illness, and spinal cord injury and tissue regeneration. Cooperative studies include surgical treatment of angina pectoris, adjunct treatment of diabetes, and relative potency and side-effect liability of new and marketed sedatives.

Rehabilitation research.—This program is dedicated to the development and application of science and technology to improve the care of physically disabled veterans through pro-theses for the amputee, improved wheelchairs for the paralyzed, and better joint functions for the arthritic. It also includes care for those with visual, hearing, and speech disorders.

Health services research.—This program provides support for health services projects at Department of Veterans Affairs medical centers for improving the effectiveness and economy of delivery of health services and improving the accessibility of services to veterans.

In support of the research activities of these three programs, VA applies a variety of budgetary resources including: appropriations from the Medical Care account and reimbursements from the Department of Defense; grants from the National Institutes of Health; private proprietary sources; and, voluntary agencies which provide additional support for VA's researchers. The following table summarizes all budgetary resources for the Medical and Prosthetic Research account. Specific performance goals relating to Medical and Prosthetic Research are contained in VA's annual performance plan.

The Medical Care Cost Recovery (MCCR) Fund was established by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, P.L. 100-508. This Fund served as a depository for all third-party insurance collections. Of these funds, a portion was utilized to provide for FTE and other administrative costs associated with medical care cost recovery efforts. After providing the estimated cost of operations for the ensuing year, remaining funds were transferred to the Department of Treasury before January of the next year. Public Law 105-33, the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, established the Medical Care Collections Fund (MCCF) and terminated MCCR and required that amounts collected or recovered after June 30, 1997 be deposited in the new fund. The amounts collected will be available only for: (1) furnishing VA medical care and services during any fiscal year, and (2) for VA expenses for identification, billing, auditing and collections of amounts owed the government.

While the MCCR Fund reflects the program costs of both third-party and copayment activities, the receipts only reflect third-party recoveries. The table below presents the complete relationship between the costs of MCCR activities and the total collections, regardless of source, resulting from these activities.

This account provides funds for the operating expenses of VA medical facilities furnishing nursing home care to certain veterans in receipt of pensions. Title 38 provides that a veteran with no spouse or child will only receive $90 per month in pension beginning the third full month following the month of admission to VA furnished nursing home care. The difference between the $90 the veteran receives and the amount otherwise authorized is transferred to this fund to assist in covering expenses at the facility furnishing the nursing care.

Legislation authorizing the transfer of pension funds in excess of $90 per month from the Compensation and Pension (C&P) account, in accordance with the provisions of Title 38 U.S.C., Section 5503(a)(1)(B), expired on September 30, 1997. Veterans' pensions will continue to be reduced in accordance with the law and those funds will remain in the C&P account. Funds cannot be transferred to the Medical Facilities Revolving Fund until Congress reauthorizes an extension.

This revolving fund, established pursuant to the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, Public Law 94-581, provides a mechanism for the furnishing of rehabilitative services to certain veteran beneficiaries who are receiving medical care and treatment from the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Funds to operate the various rehabilitative activities and provide for the therapeutic work for remuneration for patients and members in VA health care facilities are derived from contractual arrangements with private industry or nonprofit entities. Public Law 102-54 authorizes VA to contract with any Federal agency, including VA, and authorizes the Fund to cover the training, education, and travel costs of employees associated with the rehabilitative programs. This is a self-sustaining fund, and therefore no appropriation is required to support these activities.

This fund consists of: gifts, bequests, and proceeds from the sale of property left in the care of the facilities by former beneficiaries; patients' fund balances; and, proceeds from the sale of effects of beneficiaries who die leaving no heirs or without having otherwise disposed of their estate. Such funds are used to promote the comfort and welfare of veterans at hospitals, nursing homes, and domiciliaries where no general appropriation is available. Public Law 102-54 authorizes compensation work therapy and therapeutic transitional housing and loan programs to be funded from the General post fund. In addition, donations from pharmaceutical companies, non-profit corporations, and individuals to support VA medical research are deposited into this fund. (38 U.S.C. chs. 83 and 85.)

Also under this heading are the activities of the Transitional housing loan program. This program provides loans to nonprofit organizations to assist them in leasing housing units exclusively for use as a transitional group residence for veterans who are in (or who have recently been in) a program for the treatment of substance abuse. The amount of the loan cannot exceed $4,500 for any single residential unit and each loan must be repaid within two years through monthly installments. The total amount of loans outstanding at any time may not exceed $100,000.

This appropriation would provide for the payment of compensation benefits to veterans and survivors. Compensation is paid to veterans for disabilities incurred in or aggravated during active military service. Total compensation costs are current law baseline amounts and include the effect of paying compensation benefits based solely on tobacco use during military service. Dependency and Indemnity Compensation is paid to survivors of servicepersons or veterans whose death occurred while on active duty or as a result of service-connected disabilities. Compensation and vocational rehabilitation is provided to the children of Vietnam veterans who were born with the birth defect spina bifida.

The Secretary may pay a clothing allowance to each veteran who uses a prescribed medication for a service-connected skin condition or wears a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Secretary, tends to damage or tear the clothing of such veteran.

Caseload and cost tables shown below do not include proposed legislation.

Pension benefits may be paid to veterans or their survivors. A veteran's entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period, disabilities considered permanent and total, and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases. Income support is provided at established benefit levels.

Veterans who are under the age of 45 and are in receipt of a disability pension will be evaluated to determine whether a vocational goal is reasonably feasible. Those for whom a vocational goal is feasible are eligible for a program of vocational training.

An automatic annual cost-of-living increase comparable to the annual social security increase is provided for those pensioners in the improved program and to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. The increase, effective with payments made on January 1, 1999, is expected to be 2.2 percent.

Legislation will be proposed to establish a reserve, from appropriated funds, to fully fund the "H" program and allow for the payments of future dividends. This legislation will require an initial transfer to the National Service Life Insurance fund of $4.5 million in 1999. The $4.5 million estimated cost will be offset to the extent that annual appropriations to the VI&I fund to cover the costs associated with the "H" program will no longer be necessary.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued and currently is open for new issues to veterans having service-connected disabilities. The program provides insurance coverage for service-disabled veterans at standard rates. Administrative expenses are paid from the General operating expenses appropriation.

Operating costs—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

All other.—Represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital investment.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the value of his policy.

The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is indicated in the following table.

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

Number of policies .....	159,941	156,471	152,771
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$1,473	$1,448	$1,420

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are received by transfer from the veterans' insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $379 million by September 30, 1999.

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund pays claims and administrative costs on participating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) service-disabled standard insurance; (2) service-disabled rated insurance; and (3) nonservice disabled insurance availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance.

Budget program—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—This represents payments to the General operating expenses account for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and to those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the cash value of his policy at an interest rate adjusted to reflect private sector borrowing costs.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

Number of policies .....	92,582	87,392	81,962
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$727	$705	$680

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums collected from policyholders and interest on investments. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year) as well as for the administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

The Federal guaranty for this program protects lenders against the following types of losses: (a) for loans of $45,000, or less, 50 percent of the loan is guaranteed; (b) for loans greater than $45,000, but not more than $56,250, $22,500; (c) for loans more than $56,250 but less than $144,000, the lesser of $36,000 or 40 percent of the loan; or (d) for loans greater than $144,000, the lesser of $50,750 or 25 percent of the loan.

The Administration is proposing legislation to eliminate disbursements of vendee loans. VA will sell all foreclosed properties on a cash basis.

All information from the Native American Veterans Home Loan Fund, Vocational Rehabilitation Loan Program and Education Loan Fund is consolidated in a single housing fund called the Miscellaneous Veterans Programs Loan Fund.

The Native American Veterans Housing Loan program provides direct loans to veterans living on trust lands under 38 U.S.C. chapter 37, section 3761. These loans are available to purchase, construct or improve homes to be occupied as the veteran's residence. The principal amount of a loan under this authority is generally limited to $80,000, except in areas where housing costs are significantly higher than average costs nationwide. The Native American Veterans Housing Loan Program is a pilot program that began in 1993 and is authorized through December 31, 2001.

The Vocational Rehabilitation Loan Fund provides loans of up to $815 (based on indexed Chapter 31 Subsistence allowance rate) to veterans enrolled in a program of vocational rehabilitation who are temporarily in need of additional funds to meet their expenses.

The Education Loan program provides loans of up to $2,500 to dependents of veterans who are eligible for training benefits under chapter 35, title 38, U.S.C. and who are without sufficient funds to meet their education related expenses.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for these programs, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond, as well as the administrative expenses of these programs. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund was established in 1940 for the World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Activity of the fund reflects a rising claim workload. The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is shown as follows:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

	1995 actual	1996 est.	1997 est.
Number of policies .....	2,013,221	1,901,641	1,785,131
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$18,826	$18,212	$17,557

This fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible. The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special interest-bearing Treasury securities and in policy loans, are expected to decrease from $12,946 million as of September 30, 1998 to $12,754 million as of September 30, 1999. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of September 30, 1999, total $12,669 million, leaving a balance of $84 million for contingency reserves.

The status of the fund, excluding noncash transactions, is as follows:

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund was established in 1919 to receive premiums and pay claims on insurance issued under the provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act. The general decline in the activity of the fund is indicated in the following table:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

	1997 actual	1998 est.	1999 est.
Number of policies .....	21,343	19,625	18,017
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$71	$65	$59

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible. The income of the fund is derived from interest on investments and payments from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation. Effective January 1, 1983, premiums were discontinued since reserves held in the fund were adequate to meet future liabilities of the program.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in interest-bearing securities and policy loans, are estimated to decrease from $91 million as of September 30, 1998, to $84 million as of September 30, 1999, as an increasing number of policies mature through death or disability. The actuarial evaluation of policy obligations as of September 30, 1999, totals $82 million, leaving a balance of $2 million for contingency reserves.

The status of the fund, excluding noncash transactions, is as follows:

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund finances the payment of claims on life insurance policies issued before January 3, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1, 1951. No new policies can be issued. Policyholders may elect to purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of additional premiums.

Budget program—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his or her insurance by cashing in the policy for its cash value.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—Classified in this category are payments to policyholders who: (a) hold endowment policies which have matured; (b) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled; and (c) are paid interest on dividend credits and deposits.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amounts of insurance in force:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE
	1997 actual	1998 est.	1999 est.
Number of policies .....	248,997	240,777	233,347
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$3	$3	$3

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the total revenue of the fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

The Pershing Hall Revolving Fund was created to operate and manage Pershing Hall, an asset of the United States, located in Paris, France. All operating expenses for Pershing Hall are borne by the Revolving Fund and all receipts generated by the operation of Pershing Hall are deposited in the Revolving Fund.

To facilitate account restructuring and consolidation, the Pershing Hall Revolving Fund also reflects budget information for the Nursing Home Revolving Fund and Grants to the Republic of the Philippines. The Nursing Home Revolving Fund provides for the construction, alteration, and acquisition (including site acquisition) of nursing home facilities and is available only as provided in appropriations acts. The Grants to the Republic of the Philippines previously provided for the effective care and treatment of U.S. veterans in the Veterans Memorial Medical Center (VMMC). However, with the suspension of U.S. veteran admission to the VMMC, the continuing appropriation of U.S. funds to maintain and upgrade the physical plant at this facility was discontinued.

<sup>1</sup>The total cost of administering veterans insurance programs is funded through direct appropriations to this account, and through reimbursements from the insurance trust fund.

This appropriation provides for the administration of non-medical veterans benefits through the Veterans Benefits Administration (VBA) and the Department's top management direction and administrative support, including data processing, fiscal, personnel, and legal services.

Veterans benefits.—Determines eligibility and adjudicates all claims for compensation, pensions, educational assistance, housing loan assistance, and insurance awards. Administrative resources are based on the Presidential policy of not paying compensation benefits for tobacco-related claims based solely on tobacco use during military service. to the processing of veterans benefits are contained in VA's annual performance plan.

Compensation and pensions.—Provides timely and efficient processing of claims for veterans and dependents relating to compensation and pension benefits under the various laws enacted by Congress.

Specific performance goals relating to the National Cemetery System are contained in VA's annual performance plan.

The mission of the National Cemetery System is to honor the military service of our Nation's veterans. The National Cemetery System provides a dignified burial and lasting memorial for veterans and their eligible family members and it maintains all veterans' cemeteries as national shrines. The National Cemetery System's vision is to provide a lasting tribute to our national veterans by being mission-driven, results-oriented, and customer-focused. There are four related programs managed by the National Cemetery System including: (1) burying eligible veterans and family members in national cemeteries and maintaining the graves and their environs as national shrines; (2) providing aid to States in establishing, expanding, or improving State veteran cemeteries; (3) providing headstones and markers for the graves of eligible persons in national, State, and private cemeteries; and (4) providing presidential memorial certificates to family and friends of deceased veterans, recognizing the veteran's contribution and service to the Nation.

To facilitate account restructuring and consolidation, the National Cemetery System also reflects budget information for the National Cemetery Gift Fund. Through this Trust Fund, the Secretary is authorized to accept gifts and bequests which are made for the purpose of beautifying national cemeteries or are determined to be beneficial to such cemeteries, or are made for the purpose of the operation, maintenance, or improvement of the National Memorial Cemetery of Arizona.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 8121, the Supply Fund is responsible for the operation and maintenance of a supply system for VA. The Supply Fund is an intragovernmental revolving fund without fiscal year limitations.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) a National Acquisition Center or central contracting office; (2) the maintenance of field station inventories; (3) a service and distribution center; (4) a service and reclamation program; (5) a national prosthetics distribution center; and (6) an asset management service.

Costs for the administration of supply activities at VA field stations are not financed by the Supply Fund. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations accounts.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply Fund and Supply Fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving goods and services. For 1999, Supply Fund sales are estimated to reach $618 million. Average inventory needed to support those sales will be $39 million.

Operating results.—The Fund operated at a profit of $9 million in 1997. The new total of retained earnings is $61 million, which has been used to finance inventory growth. Operating expense as related to sales was 11 percent.

In 1999, the budget proposes that VA be given the authority to charge lenders a fee of $25 for each VA loan that is guaranteed. VA will charge this fee for 3 years, and all fees collected would be earmarked for use in developing, maintaining, and enhancing a VA Loan Information System (VALIS) that would interact with the information systems used by lenders to make VA guaranteed loans. Collections would be deposited into the Supply Fund and be available solely for the VALIS system. VA may spend up to $15 million of its collections on this information system. After September 30, 2003, any unobligated collections would be transferred as miscellaneous receipts to the Treasury.

VA was chosen as a pilot Franchise Fund agency under the Government Management and Reform Act, P.L. 103-356, of 1994. Established in FY 1997, administrative services included in the Franchise Fund are financed on a fee-for-service basis rather than through VA's General Operating Expenses Appropriation. VA's franchise fund is a revolving fund used to supply common administrative services on the basis of services supplied. Service Activities are expected to have net billings of about $73.8 million and employ 749 people, who were transferred from their parent organizations.

The Franchise Fund concept is intended to increase competition for government administrative services resulting in lower costs and higher quality.

and research activities to determine the need, engineering feasibility, economic justification, and the environmental and social suitability of solutions to water and related land resource problems.

Funds are requested for several new studies. Projects starting preconstruction engineering and design (PED) are included on the basis that non-federal sponsors will be required to provide concurrent financing for 25 percent of PED costs. Funds are also requested for planning assistance to States and floodplain management services.

Funding for Everglades restoration under General Investigations is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget.

Funds are requested for construction, rehabilitation and related activity for water resources development projects having navigation, flood control, water supply, hydroelectric, and other attendant benefits to the Nation. The major rehabilitation projects for inland and coastal waterways will derive one-half of the funding from the Inland Waterway Trust Fund.

The Budget proposes a new Corps of Engineers program, Challenge 21: Riverine Ecosystem Restoration and Flood Hazard Mitigation, to encourage creation of non-structural flood control projects that protect and restore flood plain ecosystems while reducing potential flood damage costs. This program is part of the Administration's Clean Water Initiative.

Funding within this account for Challenge 21 and for Everglades restoration is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget.

Full funding using advanced appropriations is proposed for all projects that will complete by FY 2003 pursuant to the "Principles of Budgeting for Capital Asset Acquisitions." These principles can be found in Chapter 6; Federal Investment Spending and Capital Budgeting (Part II) in the Analytical Perspectives volume of the FY 1999 Budget.

The 1999 budget requests full funding through advanced appropriations for completion of the following ongoing projects: Aloha-Rigolette, LA; Atlantic Intracoastal Waterway (AIWW)—Bridge at Great Bridge, VA; AIWW—Replacement of Federal Highway Bridges, NC; Barkley Dam and Lake Barkley, KY and TN; Beach City Lake, Muskingum River Lakes, OH (Dam Safety); Big Sioux River, Sioux Falls, SD; Boston Harbor, MA; Canaveral Harbor Deepening, FL; Cooper River, Charleston Harbor, SC; Channel to Victoria, TX; Dardanelle Lock and Dam Powerhouse, AR (Major Rehab); Devils Lake Emergency Outlet, ND; Dewey Lake, KY (Dam Safety); El Paso, TX; Everglades and South Florida Ecosystem Restoration, FL; Fort Wayne Metropolitan Area, IN; Galisteo Dam, NM (Dam Safety); Guadalupe River, CA; Hodges Village Dam, MA (Major Rehab); Humboldt Harbor and Bay, CA; Johnstown, PA (Major Rehab); Kake Harbor, AK; Lake Ash-tabula and Baldhill Dam, ND (Major Rehab); Lackawanna River, Oylphant, PA; Lock and Dam 3, Mississippi River, MN (Major Rehab); Las Cruces, NM; Lock and Dam 14, Mississippi River, IA (Major Rehab); Lock and Dam 25, Mississippi River, IL and MO (Major Rehab); Lock and Dam 24, Part 1, Mississippi River, IL and MO (Major Rehab); London Locks and Dam, Kanawha River, WV (Major Rehab); Loves Park, IL; Lower Snake River Fish and Wildlife Compensation, WA, OR and ID; Maalaea Harbor, Maui, HI; Marshall, MN; Metropolitan Louisville, Pond Creek, KY; Metropolitan Region of Cincinnati, Duck Creek, OH; Mid-Valley Area Levee Reconstruction, CA; Muscatine Island, IA; Passaic River, Preservation of Natural Storage Areas, NJ; Patoka Lake, IN (Major Rehab); Perry Creek, IA; Pine River Dam, Cross Lake, MN (Dam Safety); Ramapo River at Oakland, NJ; Roanoke River Upper Basin, Headwaters Area, VA; Robert C. Byrd Locks and Dam, WV and OH; San Antonio Channel Improvement, TX; San Juan Harbor, PR; San Lorenzo River, CA; Santa Paula Creek, CA; Saw Mill Run, Pittsburgh, PA; Skiatook Lake, OK (Dam Safety); Town Brook, Quincy and Braintree, MA; Tygart Lake, WV (Dam Safety); Upper Sacramento Area Levee Reconstruction, CA; Waco Lake, TX (Dam Safety); West Columbus, OH; West Sacramento, CA;

Winfield, KS; Winfield Locks and Dam, WV; Wood River, Grand Island, NE.

Funding is also included for the restoration of the Kissimmee River in Florida and for the Poplar Island Restoration project in Maryland. The budget also includes continued funding for juvenile fish mitigation in the Columbia River Basin including funding of passage facilities at six Corps of Engineers hydroelectric dams on the mainstem Columbia and Snake Rivers and funding to support Corps activities in response to the determination that certain Snake River Salmon species are threatened and endangered. Under Public Law 101-512, the Department of the Interior's National Park Service will transfer funds to the Corps of Engineers for work it accomplishes under authority of the Everglades National Park Protection and Expansion Act. Funding is included for three environmental programs: Aquatic Ecosystem Restoration (Section 206), Beneficial Uses of Dredged Material (Section 204), and Everglades and South Florida Ecosystem Restoration (Section 528).

Funding is provided for the Continuing Authorities Program (projects which do not require specific legislation) which includes flood control (Section 205) projects, emergency streambank and shoreline protection (Section 14) projects, beach erosion control (Section 103) projects, mitigation of shore damages (Section 111) projects, navigation (Section 107) projects, and snagging and clearing (Section 208) projects.

Funds are requested for operation, maintenance, and related activities of the Corps of Engineers at the navigation, flood control and multiple purpose projects for which it is responsible. Work to be accomplished consists of dredging, repair, and operation of structures and other facilities, including recreation facilities, all as authorized in the various Rivers and Harbors and Flood Control Acts. Related activities include aquatic plant control, monitoring of completed coastal projects, removal of sunken vessels, and the collection of domestic waterborne commerce statistics. This request also includes funds for National Emergency Preparedness as directed in Executive Order 11490. Funds to be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund (HMTF) will be applied to cover up to 100 percent of eligible harbor maintenance costs in accordance with Public Law 99-662, plus up to $1 million for payment of expenses of administration incurred by the Army Corps of Engineers related to HMTF consistent with section 683 of Public Law 103-182, the North American Free Trade Agreement.

In accordance with Section 2406 of the National Energy Policy Act of 1992 (P.L. 102-486), the Secretary of the Army entered into an agreement with the Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) for direct funding of hydropower activities in the Pacific Northwest beginning in FY 1999.

Funding for Everglades restoration under Operation and Maintenance is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget.

This appropriation provides for salaries and related costs to administer laws pertaining to regulation of activities affecting U.S. waters, including wetlands, in accordance with the Rivers and Harbors Act of 1899, the Clean Water Act of 1977, and the Marine Protection, Research and Sanctuaries Act of 1972.

The proposed program builds on the President's 1993 Wetlands Plan. The budgeted amount will maintain program performance and increase watershed planning efforts, including special areas management plans, to broaden involvement by States and local communities in the regulatory process. The program includes an administrative appeals process for permit denials.

Funding for the Regulatory program is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget.

Legislation is being proposed that would increase wetlands permit fees for commercial projects and eliminate fees for private, non-commercial projects as part of the President's Wetlands Plan. Fees collected would be earmarked to finance costs of the permit program, subject to their appropriation. The Army Corps of Engineers has not changed its wetlands permit fee structure since 1977.

This activity provides for preparedness activities for all natural and technological disasters, flood fighting and rescue operations, and repair of flood control and Federal hurricane or shore protection works. It also provides for emergency supplies of clean water where the source has been contaminated and, in drought distressed areas, where adequate supplies of water are needed for consumption.

No new funding is required for this account in FY 1999. The balance of available funds in the account is expected to be sufficient to meet operational requirements.

The Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund is established in accordance with the Harbor Maintenance Revenue Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-662, Title XIV, as amended). Revenue is derived from receipts from a 0.125 percent ad valorem user fee imposed upon commercial users of specified U.S. ports; Saint Lawrence Seaway tolls; and investment interest.

The Harbor Maintenance Revenue Act also authorized expenditures from the Trust Fund to finance up to 100 percent of Corps of Engineers' harbor operation and maintenance (O&M) costs, including O&M costs associated with Great Lakes navigational projects, and fully finance the operation and maintenance of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation.

The North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act, Sec. 683 (Public Law 103-182), authorized payment of administrative expenses incurred by the Department of the Treasury, the Army Corps of Engineers, and the Department of Commerce related to administration of the harbor maintenance fee, but not to exceed $5,000,000 for any fiscal year. The Corps of Engineers has budgeted $1,000,000 for anticipated expenses associated with administration of the harbor maintenance fee.

Section 201 of the Water Resources Development Act (WRDA) 1996 authorizes use of the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund for construction of dredged material disposal facilities. This use would be in association with dredging of Federal navigation harbors for commercial navigation.

A summary judgment issued October 25, 1995, by the United States Court of International Trade in the case United States Shoe Corp. v. United States (Court No. 94-11-00668), found the Harbor Maintenance fee unconstitutional under the Export Clause of the Constitution (Article I, section 9, clause 5), and enjoined the Customs Service from collecting the fee. However, a motion to stay the execution of the judgment pending appeal was granted and the fee is being collected. The case is under appeal at the Supreme Court. Oral arguments are set for March 4, 1998, with a decision expected later in the year.

For appropriation language, see the following accounts: Army Corps of Engineers, Civil, Construction, General, and "Operation and Maintenance, General"; St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation "Operations and Maintenance"; Department of Transportation "Rental Payments" and Department of the Treasury "Administration of Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund".

The 1999 payment to the military retirement fund includes funds for the amortization of the unfunded liability for all retirement benefits earned by military personnel for service prior to 1985. The amortization schedule for the unfunded liability is determined by the Department of Defense Retirement Board of Actuaries. For fiscal year 1997 and beyond, the Board adjusted the amortization schedule to reflect a 50 year rather than a 60 year stream of payments. Included in the unfunded liability are the consolidated requirements of the military departments to cover retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force, retainer pay of enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps, and survivors benefits.

Public Law 98-94 provided for accrual funding of the military retirement system and for the establishment of a Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund in 1985. The fund has three sources of income. The first is payments from the Military Personnel accounts, which cover the liability for future benefits accruing to current service members. The second is a payment from the general treasury to cover the accrued unfunded liability of current members and current retirees. The third source is income from the investment of fund balances from past and current payments into the fund.

The status of the fund is as follows:

The homes, which are currently in operation, are financed by appropriations drawn from the trust fund. The homes are administered by directors appointed by the Secretary of Defense with oversight provided by the Armed Forces Retirement Home Board. The Sheridan dormitory will be renovated in 1998 and 1999. Also, a 110-bed medical facility will be designed in 1998 and construction will begin in 1999.

The Armed Forces Retirement Home provides medical and domiciliary care and other authorized benefits for the relief and support of certain retired military personnel of the Armed Forces.

The Selective Service System continues to register men as they reach age 18, as required by law, and maintain a data base of registrant records. Should the Nation return to conscription for a national emergency, the agency would respond to a revised requirement to have the first draftees at military processing centers 193 days after a mobilization. Active Duty and Reserve Officers are being reduced to reflect the reduced readiness requirements.

Through partnerships with America's Promise, corporations, and the Armed Services, the agency will expand its national initiative, "Spirit of Volunteerism," to offer every young man that receives an acknowledgement card, almost two million annually, the opportunity to serve America today through volunteer military or civilian service. Important messages about public service opportunities will be incorporated into the existing registration acknowledgment process.

In addition to improving business processes and registration compliance statistics, the Agency is moving to a more modern computer technology, new reengineering projects and revised methods of registration. Sources of registration are being expanded to include the Internet, telephone, and other means.

This appropriation supports EPA's core programs, and the Agency's effective management goal to establish a management infrastructure that will set and implement the highest quality standards for effective internal management and fiscal responsibility. To assist the Agency in accomplishing this goal, the Office of Inspector General will provide audit and investigative services to improve the performance and integrity of its programs and operation, and to reduce the risk of loss from fraud, waste and mismanagement. These services will identify and recommend corrective actions on management and administrative deficiencies. The Inspector General also provides professional review and recommendations concerning Agency contracting practices, administration and changes through all phases of the procurement process. Among the audit functions, contract audits review propriety and allowability of cost claimed or charged to EPA by prime or subcontractors. Internal and performance audits review and evaluate all facets of Agency programs and operations, including the adequacy of management systems and controls. Financial audits review the soundness and accuracy of the financial accounting and reporting systems. Grant audits focus on the effectiveness and propriety of costs of individual projects. Additional funds for audit and investigative activities associated with the Superfund Trust Fund are appropriated under that account and transferred to the Inspector General account to allow for proper accounting. This appropriation also supports activities under the Working Capital Fund.

Funding within this account for climate change programs and the Office of Research and Development are proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs. A discussion of the Research Fund for America and two other funds for environmental resources and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget.

This appropriation finances salary, travel, science, technology, research and development activities including laboratory and center supplies, certain operating expenses (including activities under the Working Capital Fund), contracts, grants, intergovernmental agreements, and purchases of scientific equipment. These activities provide the scientific and technology basis for EPA's regulatory actions. In 1998 and 1999 Superfund research costs are appropriated in the Hazardous Substance Superfund appropriation and transferred to this account to allow for proper accounting. A portion of funding provided through this account to support the mobile sources program is to be derived from fees charged for motor vehicle engine certifications that are deposited in the Environmental Services special fund.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and a number of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in FY 1999, our emphasis will be placed on the following:

Sound Science, Improved Understanding of Environmental Risk, and Greater Innovation to Address Environmental Problems.—The EPA will develop and apply the best available science for addressing current and future environmental hazards, as well as new approaches toward improving environmental protection. The Agency will continue to improve its understanding of risks to human health of the American public and the Nation's ecosystems. The EPA will address emerging environmental issues while seeking to develop innovative cost-effective solutions to pollution prevention and risk reduction by working with stakeholders to identify and overcome barriers, such as the lack of credible and independent performance data. The Agency will continue to interpret and integrate scientific information to help make better regulatory decisions and provide national leadership in addressing emerging environmental issues. The EPA will seek to reduce uncertainties in risk assessment and help to prevent and manage risk by using cost-effective approaches.

Clean Air.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, the EPA will conduct a range of science and technology activities. These include research on the effects to human health of toxic air pollutants, and research on criteria air pollutants (ozone, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide, lead, and particulate matter) to develop the scientific basis for the EPA's national ambient air quality standards. The EPA will also develop control measures for mobile sources, including the development of cleaner engine technologies, and cleaner burning fuels.

Reduction of Global and Cross-Border Environmental Risks.—The United States will lead other nations in successful, multilateral efforts to reduce significant risks to human health and ecosystems from climate change, stratospheric ozone depletion, and other hazards of international concern. The EPA will continue efforts to limit the production and use of ozone-depleting substances and to develop safe alternative compounds. The Agency will continue to work with the U.S. automobile industry and other government agencies to develop a "clean car," a vehicle that would meet the 2004 goals of the Partnership for a New Generation of Vehicles (PNGV) to have three times the fuel efficiency of today's cars (representing a 67 percent reduction in carbon dioxide emissions), with no sacrifice of performance, size, or affordability while meeting stringent future safety and emission standards.

Clean and Safe Water.—To support the goal of all Americans having drinking water that is clean and safe to drink, the EPA will conduct research to support efforts to attain good water quality and safe drinking water. The EPA will also conduct the research to strengthen the scientific basis for development of effective beach evaluation tools, and to enhance understanding of the structure and function of aquatic systems through the development of improved aquatic ecocriteria.

Expansion of Americans' Right to Know About Their Environment.—To assist efforts in providing the public with information about the environment, the EPA will focus on improving data collection and data quality and on deploying new technologies for real time and automated measurement, monitoring, and information delivery. As part of the environmental monitoring for public access and community tracking (EMPACT) initiative, which is being established to provide environmental information in the 75 largest U.S. metropolitan areas, the EPA will evaluate and modify existing risk assessment tools for use by local stakeholders.

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and the environment, the EPA will research ways to reduce uncertainties associated with groundwater/soil sampling and analysis, to develop methods and models of contaminant transport, and to reduce the time and cost associated with site characterization and the site remediation activities that it guides. Field analytical methods for characterizing soils are also intended to provide cheaper and more timely analyses and to reduce the uncertainty of site characterization.

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance with the Law.—The National Enforcement Investigations Center is the primary source of forensics expertise in the EPA. It provides technical services not available elsewhere to support the needs of the EPA Headquarters and Regional offices, other Federal Agencies, and state and local environmental enforcement organizations.

Preventing Pollution and Reducing Risk in Communities, Homes, Workplaces and Ecosystems.—Pollution Prevention and risk management strategies will be aimed at cost-effectively eliminating, reducing, or minimizing risk due to emissions and contamination. Indoor environments will be improved through technical support, analysis and producing necessary information to understand indoor air effects, and identify health risks so that risk managers can make informed decisions.

Safe Food.—To ensure that the foods Americans eat will be free from unsafe pesticide residues, the EPA laboratory support program provides analytical and environmental chemistry services in support of the EPA's registration, reregistration and tolerance/reassessment programs for food-use pesticides. Also, the pesticide laboratories will provide analytical chemistry capabilities to validate food tolerance enforcement methods.

This appropriation includes funds for salaries, travel, contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements for pollution abatement, control, and compliance activities and administrative activities of the operating programs, including activities under the Working Capital Fund. A portion of funding provided through this account to support the pesticide registration, premanufacturing notification, and radon measurement proficiency programs is to be derived from fees charged for services provided by those programs and deposited in the Environmental Services special fund.

Funding within this account for the President's Clean Water Initiative is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and funding for climate change programs is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. These proposals highlight the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs and for important Federal research programs. A discussion of the three Funds for America can be found in Section II of the Budget.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and each of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in FY 1999, EPA will emphasize the following:

Clean Air.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will develop and implement new strategies to attain ambient air quality standards for ozone and particulate matter, and reduce regional haze through geographic initiatives in areas where significant transport of pollutants occurs. EPA will continue to develop and issue national technology-based standards to reduce the quantity of toxic air pollutants emitted from industrial and manufacturing processes. EPA will also develop control measures for stationary and other sources that are regulated at the Federal level.

Clean and Safe Water.—To provide all Americans with drinking water that is clean and safe to drink, EPA will emphasize developing new drinking water standards for microbiological contaminants, disinfectant and disinfection by-products, and other pollutants identified as posing potentially high risks. EPA will also work with its State and Tribal partners to address protection of drinking water sources. EPA will provide the tools and guidance for its partners to better protect the Nation's waters, and protect and restore wetlands. EPA and its partners will make progress toward completing Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) for impaired U.S. waters and improving implementation of TMDL programs. EPA will work with its partners to issue National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System permits for stormwater sources and ensure all 950 combined sewage overflow (CSO) communities will be in compliance with EPA's CSO policy. EPA will also work with its partners to address sources of polluted runoff.

Safe Food.—To ensure that the foods Americans eat will be free from unsafe pesticide residues, EPA will continue to set terms and conditions of food/feed-use registration, marketing and use. Through the registration, reregistration, and special review programs, food/feed-use pesticides will undergo extensive review and evaluation of health data. EPA intends to decrease the use of pesticides with the highest potential to cause adverse effects and increase the number of registrations of safer pesticides.

Preventing Pollution and Reducing Risk in Communities, Homes, Workplaces and Ecosystems.—Pollution prevention and risk management strategies will be aimed at cost-effectively eliminating, reducing, or minimizing emissions and contamination. EPA intends to reduce public and ecosystem risks from non-food/feed-use pesticides through its registration and reregistration programs and public education and training activities, including worker protection, endangered species protection, environmental stewardship, and integrated pest management programs. EPA will also support development of safer chemicals by minimizing or eliminating regulatory burdens on new chemicals that replace riskier substances already in the marketplace. The toxicity of wastes will be reduced by focusing on reductions in persistent, bioaccumulative and toxic (PBTs) chemicals. The quantity of wastes will also be reduced through source reduction and recycling.

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and to the natural environment, EPA will implement its Hazardous Waste Minimization and Combustion Strategy, including setting new standards for hazardous waste incinerators and cement kilns that burn hazardous waste. In addition, the Agency will focus on controlling human exposures and groundwater releases at Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) facilities designated as high priority for corrective action. EPA will also develop and promulgate standards, regulations, and guidelines to reduce exposure from radiation sources.

Reduction of Global and Cross-Border Environmental Risks.—The United States will lead other nations in successful, multilateral efforts to reduce significant risks to human health and ecosystems from climate change, stratospheric ozone depletion, and other environmental hazards of international concern. EPA will implement formal bilateral and multilateral environmental agreements with key countries, execute environmental components of key foreign policy initiatives, and engage in regional and global negotiations aimed at reducing environmental risks via formal and informal agreements. EPA will cooperate with other countries to ensure that domestic and international environmental laws, policies, and priorities are recognized and implemented and, where appropriate, promoted within the multilateral development assistance and trading system. EPA will also emphasize domestic and international efforts to limit the production and use of ozone-depleting substances and develop safe alternative compounds, and demonstrate and promote public/private partnership programs that reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

Expansion of Americans' Right to Know About Their Environment.—Easy access to a wealth of information about the state of their local environment will expand citizen involvement and give people tools to protect their families and their communities as they see fit. To achieve this goal, EPA will increase education, outreach, and data availability programs. The Center for Environmental Information and Statistics (CEIS) will be created to provide citizens with information on drinking water quality, air quality, beach contamination, and shellfish contamination. The Agency will expand the coverage of pollutants, pollution sources, and data elements in EPA's Toxic Release Inventory, and ensure compliance with reporting requirements. The Agency will also improve electronic access to information by significantly expanding the type and amount of information available on the Internet.

Sound Science, Improved Understanding of Environmental Risk, and Greater Innovation to Address Environmental Problems.—EPA will maximize the potential to reduce uncertainties in risk assessment, and help to prevent and manage risk, by using cost-effective approaches such as the place- and facility-based strategies (e.g., the Community-Based Environmental Protection strategy) and the sector-based strategy (e.g., the Common Sense Initiative).

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance With the Law.—To ensure full compliance with laws intended to protect human health and the environment, EPA will promote compliance by the regulated community, set risk-based enforcement and compliance priorities, and strategically plan and target activities to address environmental problems associated with industry sectors and communities. EPA will use traditional activities of compliance monitoring, civil enforcement and criminal enforcement actions as well as new and innovative approaches such as compliance assistance and compliance incentives.

Effective Management.—EPA will improve the quality of its internal management, contract administration, and fiscal responsibility efforts. The Agency will invest in its employees through training, education and implementation of automated and streamlined human resources processes. The Agency will focus its contracting efforts on performance-based service contracts instead of the traditional cost-plus, level-of-effort contracting, relying on guidance developed by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy. EPA will concentrate on resolution of material weaknesses previously identified in the area of grants closeouts, and on implementation of the best practices identified government-wide by the General Accounting Office (GAO) for information resources management and integration of information technology investments. EPA will also provide support for electronic reporting to reduce the burden to the Agency's highest-volume submitters.

Funding within this account for the Clean Water and Drinking Water State Revolving Funds and the President's Clean Water Initiative are proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and a number of the Agency's ten goals.

Clean and Safe Water.—This Agency goal is to ensure people are provided clean and safe water to drink, and to protect and restore America's water bodies to improve public health, enhance water quality, reduce flooding, and provide wildlife habitat. In support of this goal, EPA will provide funds for capitalization grants to States for Clean Water State Revolving Funds (SRFs), the purpose of which are to make low interest loans to communities and grants to Indian Tribes and Native Alaska Villages to construct wastewater treatment infrastructure, and fund other projects to enhance water quality. Since 1989, the Federal Government has invested approximately $14 billion in grants to help capitalize the 51 SRFs. With required State match, additional State contribution, and funds from program leveraging, funds available for such loans total approximately $24 billion. The Administration's goal is for the Clean Water SRFs eventually to provide an average of $2 billion a year in loans.

Capitalization grants are also provided for the Drinking Water SRFs, the purpose of which are to make low interest loans to public water systems and grants to Indian Tribes and Native Alaska Villages to help them comply with the Safe Drinking Water Act. The Administration's goal is for the Drinking Water SRFs eventually to provide an average of $500 million a year in loans.

Direct grants are also provided to help address the significant water and wastewater infrastructure needs of Alaska Native Villages, and for U.S. cities that are facing exceptionally high capital needs and user charges.

EPA will support its partnerships with States and Tribes through media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to: (1) increase the number of community drinking water systems that meet all existing health-based standards, (2) protect watersheds by reducing point and nonpoint source pollution, (3) decrease the net loss of wetlands, and (4) address agricultural and urban runoff and storm water.

Clean Air.—To ensure that every American Community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will provide funds to states to upgrade and improve air monitoring networks to obtain better data on emissions of particulate matter, air toxics in urban areas, ozone in rural areas, and acidic deposition. EPA will offer media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to States and Tribes, and technical assistance to aid in the development of State and Tribal Implementation Plans to support solutions that address local air needs.

Preventing Pollution and Reducing Risk in Communities, Homes, Workplaces and Ecosystems.—EPA will offer media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to States and Tribes, and technical assistance to foster source reduction and recycling. Best approaches for encouraging recycling of non-hazardous industrial wastes will also be identified through work with the State and Tribal partners.

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and to the natural environment, EPA will work with States, tribes and local governments to put environmental protection and decision making in the hands of those closest to the problems, while maintaining a Federal leadership role. There will be direct assistance through media-specific, and multi-media and/or Performance Partnership grants to enable tribes to implement hazardous waste programs.

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance With the Law.—To ensure full compliance with laws intended to protect human health and the environment, EPA will provide grant assistance to States and Tribes for both compliance monitoring and compliance assistance activities. EPA will also provide direct grant funding to States and Tribes to conduct compliance inspections and compliance assurance activities under the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) and Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA).

Reduction of Global and Cross-Border Environmental Risks.—The Agency will provide direct grant assistance to address the serious environmental and human health problems associated with untreated and industrial and municipal sewage on the U.S.-Mexico border. EPA will identify wastewater infrastructure needs along the border and has established a goal of 32 total high priority projects to be certified for design-construction by the end of FY 1999. These funds also support attainment for the Clean and Safe Water goal.

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, authorizes appropriations from the general fund to finance activities conducted through the Hazardous Substance Superfund. The authorization for general fund payments to the Superfund expired in 1995. The Administration will support an extension of this authority as part of Superfund reauthorization.

ENVIRONMENTAL SERVICES

Notwithstanding section 4(i)(6) of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (7 U.S.C. 136a), the Administrator is authorized to assess, in the current fiscal year and thereafter, fees from applicants for registration and amendments to registration under section 3 and experimental use permits under section 5 pursuant to regulations previously published and codified at 40 CFR 152. Such fees shall be calculated to cover costs associated with the review of such applications, and shall be paid at the time of application, unless otherwise specified by the Administrator. If any fee is not paid by the time prescribed, the Administrator may, by order and without a hearing, deny the application: Provided, That the Administrator may reduce or waive any fee that would otherwise be assessed (1) in connection with an application for an active ingredient that is contained only in pesticides for which registration is sought solely for agricultural or non-agricultural minor use, and (2) in such other circumstances as the Administrator determines to be in the public interest. Fees collected under this provision shall be deposited in a special fund in the U.S. Treasury, which thereafter will be available subject to appropriation, to carry out the Agency's activities in the issuing or registrations under sections 3 and 5 of FIFRA for which the fees were paid.

Notwithstanding section 26(b)(1) of the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2625), the Administrator is authorized to assess, in the current fiscal year and thereafter, fees from any person required to submit data under sections 4 or 5 without regard to the dollar limitations established in section 26(b)(1). Such fees shall be calculated to cover costs associated with administering those sections of the Act, and shall be paid at the time of data submission, unless otherwise specified by the Administrator. The Administrator may take into account the ability to pay of the person required to submit the data and the cost to the Administrator of reviewing such data. The Administrator shall promulgate rules to implement this provision. Such rules may provide for allocating the fee in any case in which the expenses of data submission under sections 4 or 5 are shared. Increased fees collected under this provision shall be deposited in a special fund in the U.S. Treasury, which thereafter will be available subject to appropriation, to carry out the Agency's activities for which such fees are collected.

A special fund was established for the deposit of fee receipts associated with environmental programs, including radon measurement proficiency ratings and training, and motor vehicle engine certifications. Receipts in this special fund will be appropriated to the Science and Technology, and the Environmental Programs and Management accounts to meet the expenses of the programs that generate the receipts. Appropriations language is being proposed to impose user fees on manufacturers of pesticides to recover the costs of EPA's Pesticide Registration Program. Congressional action is required to activate a user fee rule promulgated by EPA that was subsequently suspended by Congress. Appropriations language is also being proposed to raise the cap on the allowable rate that can be charged to recover the costs of EPA's Premanufacturing Notification program. Enactment of this appropriations language would generate $24 million in receipts that would be discretionary under the Budget Enforcement Act.

EPA received authority to establish a Working Capital Fund (WCF) and was designated a franchise fund pilot under Public Law 103-356, the Government Management and Reform Act of 1994. EPA's WCF became operational in FY 1997 and includes two activities: Enterprise Technology Services Division's computer operations and Agency postage. The 1999 amount reflects only base resources and may change during the year as programmatic needs change. The franchise fund concept is intended to increase competition for government administrative services resulting in lower costs and higher quality.

This appropriation provides funds for the implementation of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, as amended (CERCLA) including activities under the Working Capital Fund. Funding in this account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for the investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget. This appropriation supports core Agency programs and a number of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in FY 1999, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—EPA will complete cleanups at 136 sites, conduct 300 removal actions, and fund brownfields site assessments and cleanups in 100 communities. Through 1997, cleanups had been completed at 498 sites, and 4,879 removal actions had been taken at 3,634 sites. EPA will also work to maximize responsible parties' participation in site cleanups while promoting fairness in the enforcement process, and pursue greater recovery of EPA's cleanup costs. EPA will allocate funds from its appropriation to other Federal agencies to carry out the Act. Legislation will be proposed to extend the taxes supporting the trust fund through 2008.

Sound Science, Improved Understanding of Environmental Risk, and Greater Innovation to Address Environmental Problems.—EPA will develop methods to assess and control the potential health and environmental risks posed by contaminated waste sites. EPA will also conduct risk management research which focuses on the remediation of surface and subsurface contaminated soils, sludge, sediments, buildings, debris, and groundwater.

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance With the Law.—EPA will investigate and refer for prosecution criminal violations of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA), and increase Regional support to criminal investigations in the field.

Effective Management.—EPA will work to ensure fiscal responsibility in support of site cleanups. EPA will continue to implement performance-based service contracts instead of the traditional cost-plus, level-of-effort contracts, and will improve the quality and availability of information on the status and use of resources.

The Leaking Underground Storage Tank (LUST) Trust Fund, authorized by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986, as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990, provides funds for responding to releases from leaking underground petroleum tanks, including activities under the Working Capital Fund. The Trust Fund is financed by a 0.1 cent a gallon tax on motor fuels, that will expire after March 30, 2005.

Funds are allocated to the States through cooperative agreements to clean up those sites posing the greatest threat to human health and environment. Funds are also used for grants to non-state entities, including Indian Tribes, under section 8001 of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. EPA supports cleanup and enforcement programs which are implemented by the States. LUST Trust Fund dollars can be used for State-lead cleanups and for State oversight of responsible party cleanups.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and two of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in FY 1999, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and to the natural environment, EPA will support State and Tribal efforts to design and implement risk-based corrective action programs. These programs will help to reduce the backlog of Underground Storage Tank (USTs) sites with confirmed releases waiting to be addressed, and to enforce the 1998 UST leak detection and upgrade standards.

Effective Management.—To support the States' and EPA's efforts to regulate and oversee the cleanup of Leaking Underground Storage Tanks, EPA will establish a management infrastructure that will set and implement the highest quality standards for effective internal management and fiscal responsibility.

This appropriation provides for EPA's responsibilities for direction, monitoring and technical assistance of major inland oil spill response activities authorized under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended by the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (OPA), including activities under the Working Capital Fund. This appropriation supports core Agency programs and a number of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in FY 1999, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—EPA will work to ensure that 400 additional facilities per year comply with the oil spill prevention, control and countermeasure provisions of the OPA, and that 200 additional facilities are adequately prepared to respond to oil spills as measured by approved response plans. EPA will also direct response actions when appropriate. Funding of oil spill cleanup actions is provided through the Department of Transportation under the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund.

Federal disaster assistance is a nationwide program operated pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act, 42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq. Supplementary assistance is provided to individuals and State and local governments in the event of a Presidential declared emergency or major disaster. Funds may be made available directly to a State or local government or to other Federal agencies as reimbursement for expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority. In addition, a variety of other Federal agency assistance is coordinated under this program.

The Administration is requesting an appropriation of $307,745,000. In addition, $2,258,485,000 is requested as emergency contingency funds for a total of $2,566,230,000, which represents the five year average for obligations, excluding those for the Northridge earthquake, plus disaster support costs.

The Pre-Disaster Mitigation program is designed to reduce the existing potential of disaster costs for all levels of government and the local economy and to ensure that new construction and community growth is disaster resistant. Under this program, FEMA provides funds for community-identified mitigation projects that reduce the exposure to disaster losses, and hence reduce expenditures from the Disaster Relief Fund. Emphasis is placed on infrastructure protection and broad commitment by the community, its businesses, and its State mitigation goals and objectives.

The methodology for assessment and collection of fees shall be fair and equitable; and shall* reflect costs of providing such services, including administrative costs of collecting such fees. Fees received pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the Fund as offsetting collections and will become available for authorized purposes on October 1, 1999, and remain available until expended.

For necessary expenses of the Fund for fiscal year 1999, $12,849,000, to remain available until expended.

The Radiological Emergency Preparedness (REP) program assists State and local governments in the development of off-site radiological emergency plans and preparedness within the emergency planning zones of Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) licensed commercial nuclear power facilities. The fund is financed from fees assessed and collected from the NRC licensees to recover the cost of the REP program. The one-time appropriation in 1999 will be used to initiate a fee funded mechanism for the program.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within one year of the time they are identified as flood-prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes. In 1999, the budget assumes collection of all of the administrative and program costs associated with flood insurance activities from policy holders.

Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $350 thousand for residential and $1 million for other types.

Budget program—Insurance underwriting expense.—Cost of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $391 million in 1999.

Loss and adjustment expense.—Insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expense is estimated at $744 million in 1999.

Interest expense.—Interest expenses for Treasury borrowings are projected; a ceiling of $60 million is requested to cover charges for purchasing Treasury securities and possible unanticipated interest costs.

The budget proposes to recover the cost of the following activities from policyholders and to reimburse other appropriations in FEMA's budget:

Flood studies and surveys.—These studies are estimated at $52 million in 1999.

Flood hazard reduction.—This activity, which includes grants to States, is estimated at $7 million in 1999.

Mitigation assistance.—This activity is estimated at $20 million for 1999.

Salaries and expenses.—This activity provides for salaries and related expenses of all Federal staff administering the National Flood Insurance Program and is estimated at $23 million in 1999.

Financing.—The Administrator is authorized to borrow up to $1 billion ($1.5 billion in 1997 through 1999 only) to carry out the program. The program is financed through premium income and appropriations to repay borrowing.

Operating results.—Program experience is reviewed annually and, as necessary, flood insurance rates will be adjusted to maintain the NFIP's self-supporting status for the historical average loss year and to maintain the soundness of rates for actuarially rated policies.

Disaster assistance loans authorized by the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act 42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq. are loans to States for the non-Federal portion of cost-sharing funds and community disaster loans to local governments incurring substantial loss of tax and other revenues as a result of a major disaster. The funds requested for this program include direct loans and a subsidy based on criteria including loan amount and interest charged.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

【The Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall promulgate through rulemaking a methodology for assessment and collection of fees to be assessed and collected beginning in fiscal year 1998 applicable to persons subject to the Federal Emergency Management Agency’s radiological emergency preparedness regulations. The aggregate charges assessed pursuant to this section during fiscal year 1998 shall approximate, but not be less than, 100 per centum of the amounts anticipated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency to be obligated for its radiological emergency preparedness program for such fiscal year. The methodology for assessment and collection of fees shall be fair and equitable, and shall reflect the full amount of costs of providing radiological emergency planning, preparedness, response and associated services. Such fees shall be assessed in a manner that reflects the use of agency resources for classes of regulated persons and the administrative costs of collecting such fees. Fees received pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury as offsetting receipts. Assessment and collection of such fees are only authorized during fiscal year 1998.】 (Department of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1998.)

This appropriation covers relocation costs involved in moving agencies from valuable underutilized property, targeted for public sale, to facilities determined to be more economically suitable to their needs. Relocation and disposal is considered when the benefit/cost ratio is at least 2:1. The sale of these valuable underutilized properties would provide significant revenue to the Treasury and would far outweigh the relocation costs involved.

No appropriation is requested for this program in 1999. GSA will solicit relocation proposals from agencies and request funds to implement those proposals that have the highest economic benefit to the Government.

The Federal Buildings Fund finances the activities of the Public Buildings Service which provides space and services for Federal agencies in a relationship similar to that of landlord and tenant.

The Fund, established in 1975, replaces direct appropriations by using income derived from rent assessments which approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. Rent and other income to the Fund is as follows:

	1997 actual	1998 est.	1999 est.
Rental charges	4,804	4,846	5,155

The Federal Buildings Fund program consists of the following activities financed from rent charges:

Construction and acquisition of facilities.—Space is acquired through the construction or purchase of facilities and prospectus-level extensions to existing buildings. All costs directly attributable to site acquisition, construction, and the full range of design and construction services and management and inspection of construction projects are funded under this activity.

Repairs and alterations.—Repairs and alterations of public buildings as well as associated design and construction services are funded under this activity. Protection of the Government's investment, health and safety of building occupants, transfer of agencies from leased space, and cost effectiveness are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities. Primary consideration is given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to buildings, their support systems, and operating equipment. This activity also provides for conversion of existing facilities and non-prospectus extensions.

Installment acquisition payments.—Payments are made for liabilities incurred under purchase contract authority and lease purchase arrangements. The periodic payments cover principal, interest, and other requirements.

Rental of space.—Space is acquired through the leasing of buildings including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities. This program will provide an estimated 143 million square feet in 1998 and 1999.

Building operations.—Services are provided for Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, protection, maintenance, miscellaneous services (such as moving, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision), and general management and administration of all real property related programs including salaries and benefits paid from the Federal Buildings Fund. The following list shows the 1998 and 1999 direct program (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

Other programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations, cleaning and other operations, and protection services which are in excess of those services provided under the commercial rental charge. For presentation purposes the balances of the Unconditional Gifts of Real, Personal, or Other Property trust fund have been combined with the Federal Buildings Fund.

Public Law 99-88 provided that expenses of Transportation Audit Contracts and Contract Administration activities shall be financed from overcharges collected from carriers on transportation bills paid by the Government and other similar type refunds. Public Law 99-627 granted GSA authority to delegate to the Government agencies prepayment audit of their transportation bills before they pay transportation carriers, permanent authority to pay transportation audit contractors from carrier overcharges collected, and authority to transfer net overpayments collected to the Treasury. Public Law 103-123 provided that additional expenses be financed from overpayments collected from carriers.

In 1997, $12 million of carrier overpayments were collected, and $8 million was returned to the U.S. Treasury. Overpayment collections should fully cover program costs commencing in 1998.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply distribution system, a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies, a system providing for the management, on a worldwide basis, for the sale of surplus personal property for agencies, a system of transportation and travel management which ensures discounted rates for lodging, transportation, and small package mailings for Federal customers, a schedules contracting function providing a Government-wide program of commercial items and various services, and a system of interagency Federal Fleet Management Centers. Legislation was enacted in 1988 to authorize full cost recovery for all supply management, operating, and overhead expenses related to providing goods and services to other agencies through the General Supply Fund. Full cost recovery pricing results in the true cost of supplies and services being reflected in charges to agencies. A brief explanation for each of the four business lines follows: Supply and Procurement, Personal Property Management, Travel and Transportation, and Interagency Fleet Management.

Supply and Procurement.—

Stores, regular.—Stock of common-use commodities is purchased in volume, stocked, and issued through supply facilities to Government agencies. Sales were $826 million in 1997 and are estimated to be $810 million in 1998 and $804 million in 1999. Each year, GSA performs a “market basket” survey comparing the commercial price to the GSA price for 120 commonly used office supplies. Survey results showed GSA prices to be, on average, 25% lower than major commercial retailers. A continued shift in customer orders becoming more frequent and for smaller quantities, however, is projected to increase the cost per $100 sales by 2 percent in 1999.

Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for store-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $54 million in 1997, and are estimated to be $53 million in 1998, and $52 million in 1999.

Special orders.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply facilities are purchased for direct shipment to user agencies. Sales were $1,547 million in 1997, and are estimated to be $1,452 million in 1998, and $1,459 million in 1999.

Schedules.—This contracting function provides a Government-wide supply support program of commercial and information technology items required by Federal agencies and other authorized users. Sales were $54 million in 1997 and are expected to be $51 million in 1998 and $59 million in 1999. The on-line electronic catalog system, GSA Advantage, currently contains 276,000 stock items available for electronic shopping. By July 1998, the universe of supply products and services, over 4 million items, will be available on-line.

Personal Property Management.—This program generated sales of $17 million in 1997 and is estimated to generate sales of $14 million in 1998 and $14 million in 1999. Receipts generated by this program, from selling surplus Government property to the public, are returned to the agencies or applied to Government deficit reduction.

Travel and Transportation.—This program generated sales of $4 million in 1997 and is projected to generate sales of $4 million in 1998 and $4 million in 1999. The offering of discount air fares and hotel accommodations for the Federal traveler, and services for the movement of freight parcels and household goods, amounts to large savings for the Government. Savings of 70 percent over unrestricted air fares is projected for 1999. The household goods and freight services areas enjoyed savings of 44 percent and 47 percent, respectively, over comparable commercial rates in 1997, and the same is expected to continue.

Interagency Fleet Management.—Services are provided through a system of Fleet Management Centers. Sales were $783 million in 1997, and are estimated to be $830 million in 1998 and $876 million in 1999. GSA's fleet management system has kept its operating costs fairly level since 1993, with the average cost per mile fluctuating 4 percent from 1993 through 1997, from 27.1 to 28.2 cents.

In 1998, GSA plans to meet quotas for alternative fuel vehicle (AFV) procurements contained in the Energy Policy Act of 1992. GSA plans on requesting funds from each customer agency, for their pro rata share of the incremental cost in procuring the AFVs.

The Information Technology Fund was authorized by the Paperwork Reduction Reauthorization Act of 1986, as included in Public Laws 99-500 and 99-591, section 821(a)(1). The fund provides information technology resources to Federal agencies for promoting use of the latest technology to deliver services, and for the efficient management, coordination, operation, and use of such resources.

Levels of funding for capital investments and for operating capital are determined through the submission and approval process of planned cost and capital requirements to OMB by GSA pursuant to section 110(a)(1), Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended by Public Law 99-591.

The Fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, Government-wide information technology services through two business lines: Network Services and Information Technology (IT) Solutions.

Network Services.—The Network Services business line enables the Federal Technology Service (FTS) to provide its customers with end-to-end telecommunications services. Also included in this business line are several IT applications initiatives approved by the Interagency Management Council which ensure that state-of-the-art technologies are deployed throughout the government.

FTS2000 Long Distance.—Provides long-distance telecommunications services to more than 1.7 million users through two ten-year multi-billion dollar FTS2000 contracts awarded to AT&T and Sprint in December 1988. The contracts provide the Government with low-cost, state-of-the-art, integrated voice, data and video telecommunications services. The contracts provide for "services" rather than equipment. GSA's role is to oversee and manage the provision of those services. With the contracts due to expire in December 1998, FTS in conjunction with industry, Congress, and others in the Executive Branch, developed a "Post-FTS2000 Program Strategy" or "FTS2001" that will provide innovative telecommunications service worldwide into the 21st Century. The Request for Proposals for FTS2001 contracts was issued July 1, 1997. In October 1997, FTS issued an amendment to move the acquisition closer to commercial practices and established a new closing date of early 1998. Vendors that win the long-distance FTS2001 contracts will be able to offer optional local services. Under the FTS2001 contracts, FTS long-distance services will no longer be mandatory for Federal agencies.

Regional Telecommunications Services.—Provides nationwide consolidated local telecommunications service, aggregated access to FTS2000, and competitively procured contracts for equipment maintenance and services. To take advantage of the changing local telecommunications marketplace GSA has initiated the Metropolitan Area Acquisition (MAA). The MAA will take advantage of competition to achieve substantial price reductions for local telecommunications services in metropolitan areas. The first MAA contract is scheduled to be awarded during the fourth quarter of 1998 in New York City, followed by awards in Chicago and San Francisco. Subsequent awards for 20 to 30 other cities will follow.

IT Solutions.—The IT Solutions business line helps agencies acquire, manage, integrate, and use technology resources and protect the security of Federal information on-line. The major programs under the IT Solutions business line are Information Security, Federal Information Systems Support Program (FISSP), Federal Systems Integration and Management Center (FEDSIM), Federal Computer Acquisition Center (FEDCAC), and Federal Acquisition Services for Technology (FAST).

Information Security.—This program provides worldwide information technology support services to all Government activities, including our nation's allies, conducting classified, sensitive but unclassified, diplomatic or military missions on a non-mandatory, fully reimbursable basis. To meet this responsibility, the program participates in the development of Government-wide information security policies and provides a comprehensive range of information security technical services necessary to manage and support clients' mission critical information systems.

Information Technology Integration.—This activity is comprised of several non-mandatory programs aimed at meeting client needs in the acquisition and effective use of information technology resources. FISSP provides agencies with systems definition and design, business and scientific software services, computer security studies and risk analyses, facilities management, and other related services through contracts with private sector vendors. FEDSIM helps agencies acquire and use information systems and information technology, including hardware, software, maintenance, training, and analyst support. Through the Virtual Data Center Services contract, FEDSIM provides data processing outsourcing services to Federal agencies, offering a quick, low-cost alternative for obtaining commercial data processing services. FEDCAC delivers full-service management of computer acquisitions worth more than $100 million. FAST procures commercially available off-the-shelf information technology software, equipment and non-complex integration services for Federal agencies.

The Consumer Information Center (CIC) Fund provides for the efficient operation of the CIC's activities. Under the revolving fund, the CIC's activities are financed from moneys deposited to the fund, consisting of annual appropriations from the general funds of the Treasury, reimbursements from agencies, fees collected from the public and other income incident to CIC activities.

Administrative expenses.—The CIC helps Federal departments and agencies release consumer information collected as a by-product of the Government's program activities. The CIC maintains close working relationships with more than 40 Federal agencies in order to identify, develop, promote, and make accessible to the public Federal consumer information. In addition, the CIC promotes public awareness of this information through publication of the quarterly Consumer Information Catalog, through special projects promoting the catalog, and through various media services. The CIC also produces and distributes the Consumer's Resource Handbook, which provides information to citizens in resolving consumer problems. Administrative expenses are funded by the direct appropriation and by fees collected from the public when ordering publications listed in the catalog.

Publications distribution.—The CIC bills agencies and in turn reimburses the Government Printing Office for the costs of distributing free publications to the public.

This account supports U.S. foreign policy objectives by providing economic assistance to allies and countries in transition to democracy, supporting the Middle East peace process, and financing economic stabilization programs, frequently in a multi-donor context. Key objectives include:

(1) Supporting strategically significant friends and allies through assistance designed to increase the role of the private sector in the economy, reduce government controls over markets, enhance job creation, and improve economic growth.

(2) Developing and strengthening institutions necessary for sustainable democracy. Typical areas of assistance include technical assistance to administer and monitor elections, capacity-building for non-governmental organizations, judicial training, and women's participation in politics. Assistance is also provided to support the transformation of the public sector to encourage democratic development, including training to improve public administration, promote decentralization, strengthen local governments, parliaments, independent media and non-governmental organizations.

(3) Strengthening the capacity to manage the human dimension of the transition to democracy and a market economy, and to help sustain the neediest sectors of the population during the transition period.

Haiti.—The Administration is requesting a total of $140,000,000 out of the total ESF appropriation for Haiti. Haiti is at a pivotal juncture in its efforts to make the transformation to a democratic form of government and a free market economy. The Administration believes these additional resources for Haiti will be especially beneficial to show continued support for Haiti following the scheduled conclusion of the United Nation's peacekeeping operations in Haiti at the end of November 1998.

Holocaust Victims Relief.—This is a contribution toward the three-year U.S. Government donation (not to exceed $25 million) for a multilateral program of financial relief to certain victims of Nazi persecution during World War II. Grants from the fund will be provided through approved non-governmental organizations with established administrative and organizational infrastructure to ensure the contributions are utilized only for the relief of living victims, who have to date received little or no relief and currently live below the poverty line in their country of residence.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank) finances development projects in less developed countries. By applying banking principles to the achievement of development goals, it promotes increased economic productivity and helps developing economies meet more of the basic needs of their people.

The IBRD also plays a vital role in providing policy advice to borrowing countries; assisting in donor coordination and promoting co-financing.

The IBRD made new commitments of $14.5 billion during its 1997 fiscal year; IBRD gross disbursements were $14.0 billion. Since its establishment in 1945, the IBRD has made loans totalling $295 billion—$147 for every $1 of U.S. paid in capital.

The Global Environment Facility (GEF) provides technical assistance and partial funding for developing country investments designed to provide global environmental benefits by reducing international water pollution, and ozone depletion, and by promoting biodiversity and energy conservation. With its highly specific focus on global environmental issues—where both costs and benefits are shared across international borders—the GEF occupies a unique and increasingly important niche in the international financial institution system. Its basic mission is to support innovative and cost-effective pilot investments whose design and environmental benefits can be duplicated (and financed) elsewhere. Under strong U.S. leadership, flowing in part from our position as the largest donor on the GEF's governing Council, the GEF has been making substantial progress in leveraging its limited resources. The World Bank, the UN Development Program, the UN Environment Program and, increasingly, private investors, provide substantial cofinancing for GEF projects. Since its inception in 1994, total GEF commitments amount to about $1.7 billion, triggering additional cofinancing of over $4 billion.

The initial U.S. commitment to the GEF in 1995 amounted to $430 million, of which we have delivered $227.5 million. As of the end of 1998, U.S. arrears will amount to $192.5 million. The Administration is negotiating a GEF-2 replenishment and intends to limit its contributions to GEF-1 levels, and will seek Congressional authorization to contribute $430 million to GEF over four years. The 1999 request of $300 million would clear all arrears to GEF-1 and cover one year of annual commitments to the GEF's second funding cycle.

The International Development Association (IDA), a member of the World Bank Group, provides development financing on highly concessional terms to the world's poorest and least creditworthy nations. These countries are primarily in Sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia, but also in Latin America, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union. IDA places special emphasis on poverty alleviation, environmental protection, and economic reform and growth. The IDA is the largest source of multilateral lending that is extended on concessional terms to developing countries. Projects have to meet the same economic, financial, and environmental standards as other World Bank projects.

During its fiscal year 1997, IDA made new commitments of $4.6 billion, and IDA's gross disbursements were $6.0 billion. Since its establishment, IDA has made commitments totalling $101.6 billion (as of June 30, 1997).

The Tenth Replenishment of IDA provides donor country resources of about $18 billion. The United States pledged $3.75 billion (20.86 percent share of all donor contributions) to the replenishment. The eleventh replenishment of IDA will provide total resources for new loan commitments of about $22 billion over the 1997-1999 period. The United States elected not to participate in 1997, the first year of the three-year replenishment. The United States pledged $1.6 billion for the last two years of the replenishment (15 percent of total donor contributions). The 1999 request is $800 million for the final United States contribution to the eleventh replenishment.

The International Finance Corporation (IFC), a member of the World Bank Group, was established in 1956 to further economic development by encouraging the growth of private enterprise in developing countries. The IFC provides technical assistance, and mobilizes loans and equity investments for promising ventures. The IFC is now playing an important role in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe's transition to free markets and private enterprise, due to the IFC's special expertise in foreign investment, capital markets development, and privatization. The U.S. completed its contributions to the IFC in 1997. The IFC is not expected to require any additional capital in the foreseeable future.

During World Bank FY 1997 the Corporation approved 246 new investments totalling $6.7 billion, and net investments for the IFC's own account were $3.3 billion. IFC's committed loan and equity portfolio (for its own account) was $10.5 billion as of June 30, 1997.

The Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency (MIGA) is an international development institution affiliated with the World Bank Group. MIGA is designed to encourage the flow of foreign private investment to and among developing countries by: (1) issuing guarantees against noncommercial risks and (2) carrying out a wide range of investment promotion activities.

Negotiations are now underway for MIGA's first General Capital Increase (GCI), and on related policy measures. The first U.S. contribution will not be requested before the year 2000.

During World Bank FY 1997, the MIGA issued 70 guarantees, with a maximum contingent liability of $614 million, to facilitate aggregate direct investment of $4.7 billion. There are no claims pending against MIGA.

The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes sustainable economic growth and development, poverty reduction, private sector development, and good governance in Latin America and the Caribbean through loans and technical assistance. Since its inception in 1960, the Bank has lent over $90 billion.

The 1999 request includes: (1) budget authority of $25.6 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $1,503.7 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions for payments on the U.S. contribution to the IDB's eighth general capital increase; and, (2) budget authority of $21.2 million for the final U.S. payment to the Eighth Replenishment of the FSO.

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) fosters broad-based sustainable economic development, poverty alleviation, and cooperation in the Asia/Pacific region. The Bank lends at market-based rates through its ordinary capital window and on highly concessional terms to the region's poorer nations through the Asian Development Fund (ADF).

The United States successfully negotiated a 41 percent reduction in U.S. contributions to the seventh replenishment of the Asian Fund.

In 1997, the Bank lent $7.7 billion of its ordinary capital resources and extended loans and grants of $1.6 billion from its ADF resources for development projects. Since its founding in 1966, the ADB has loaned over $46.9 billion, and the ADF has loaned over $19.1 billion. The Bank has made cumulative equity investments of $428 million.

The 1999 request includes: (1) budget authority of $13.2 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $647.9 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions for the fourth of six installments on the U.S. subscription to the ADB's fourth general capital increase; and, (2) $250 million in budget authority to participate in the sixth replenishment of ADF resources, and to partially clear outstanding unmet commitments on the U.S. share of the $4.2 billion fifth replenishment of ADF resources.

The African Development Bank (AFDB) lends at market-based rates for economic development in countries on the African continent. The United States joined the AFDB in 1983 when membership was open to non-regional countries. In 1997, the AFDB financed 21 new projects worth $798 million. Since its inception in 1963, the AFDB has financed 746 projects worth over $20.6 billion.

The African Development Fund (AFDF), the concessional lending affiliate of the African Development Bank, makes loans to the poorest African nations. The AFDF-7 replenishment negotiations, which were concluded in May 1996, brought about far-reaching and comprehensive restructuring and institutional reforms. In 1997, the AFDF loaned $807 million for 84 projects. By the end of 1997 and since its inception in 1974, cumulative AFDF lending totaled $11.4 billion for 1,267 development projects.

The 1999 request includes $155 million in budget authority: $66.7 million for the third installment plus $88.3 million in arrears for the first two installments on the U.S. share of the seventh replenishment of AFDF resources.

The European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) supports market-oriented economic reform and democratic pluralism through predominately private sector lending and investments in the nations of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. Over three-quarters of projects approved in 1996 were in the private sector. The United States and other shareholders signed the articles of agreement of the EBRD on May 29, 1990, and the Bank officially began operating on April 15, 1991.

In April 1996, shareholders approved a doubling of EBRD's capital base from ECU 10 billion to ECU 20 billion (approximately $24 billion). The capital increase went into effect in April 1997, with the U.S. subscribing to its shares on December 19, 1997. Under the capital increase, paid-in contributions constitute 22.5 percent of total capital, with the remainder callable. The annual payment for the U.S.'s ten percent share dropped from $70 million under the initial subscription to $35.8 million under the capital increase. At the end of 1996, the EBRD had approved over 450 loans and investments totalling $12.4 billion.

The 1999 request consists of $35.8 million in budget authority for paid-in capital subscriptions and $123.2 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions for the second of eight installments on the U.S. subscription to the general capital increase.

The North American Development Bank (NADBank) provides $2-3 billion in financing for high priority environmental infrastructure projects in the border region and, more broadly within the United States for NAFTA-related community adjustment and investment. The Bank has begun its environmental lending and guarantee operations in both the United States and Mexico. NADBank operations provide significant direct benefits to U.S. citizens, particularly those in the border states. The NADBank's capital shares ($450 million in paid-in and $2.55 billion in callable capital) were contributed equally by the United States and Mexico over a four-year period. The final U.S. installment was appropriated in 1998.

The NADBank will finance environmental infrastructure projects that have been certified by the U.S.-Mexican Border Environment Cooperation Commission (BECC), an institution designed to assist border states and local communities in coordinating border clean-up. Communities on both sides of the border have long been plagued by problems such as raw sewage dumped in boundary waters, unsafe drinking water, and inadequate municipal waste disposal. Based on its paid-in and callable capital, the NADBank will be able to provide partial guarantees of private sector financing and borrow in capital markets to provide loans to help finance the projects certified by the BECC. The NADBank has begun its environmental lending operations and approved financing for four projects in 1997.

In addition, 10 percent of the U.S. and Mexican shares of NADBank will be available for NAFTA-related community adjustment and investment in both countries, which need not be in the border region. In 1999, the Administration proposes that $37 million be appropriated for the Community Adjustment and Investment Program (CAIP). This appropriation is sought in the Treasury chapter as a domestic assistance program. The Secretary of Treasury would have the authority to transfer CAIP funds to the NADBank or other Federal agencies to assist in carrying out the program. The CAIP offers financing directly and through existing federal credit programs, such as those run by the Small Business Administration, to both new and existing businesses within communities that suffered job losses as a result of changing trade patterns with Canada and Mexico. The program launched its lending operations during 1997. An Advisory Committee, which includes low income community representatives and non-governmental organizations, helps ensure broad public participation in the community adjustment window of the NADBank.

The Multilateral Investment Fund (MIF) is a component of the Enterprise for the Americas Initiative, a program to unlock the potential for domestic and foreign investment and encourage market-based capital flows. The MIF, administered by the Inter-American Development Bank, is a multilateral fund which provides grants and loans to support private-sector development and investment sector reforms. Special consideration is given to reforms that encourage private foreign direct investment and promote privatization. Grants and loans are used for technical assistance to identify and resolve investment constraints, for investment in human capital, and for business infrastructure and development.

The 1999 request for the MIF is $50 million for partial payment of outstanding U.S. commitments to the U.S. share of MIF resources.

This account will provide technical assistance to other countries in support of the responsibilities of the U.S. Treasury Department to formulate, conduct and coordinate the international financial policies of the United States. In addition to overseeing U.S. interests in the work of international financial institutions, including the International Monetary Fund, the World Bank and the various regional development banks, the Treasury Department frequently has the lead responsibility for implementing fiscal and financial policy aspects of U.S. foreign policy toward individual countries. Technical assistance provided through this account will facilitate key short- and medium-term reforms in the policy and management areas of budget, tax, government debt, financial institutions and financial crimes enforcement.

Using funding provided under the SEED and Freedom Support Acts, U.S. Treasury Department advisors have provided policy and management advice in the areas described above to countries in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union in their transition to market economies and democratic fiscal structures. Beginning in 1997, advisors have also provided assistance, using funding from USAID Development Assistance and the Economic Support Fund, to the governments of South Africa and Haiti. The flexibility provided by direct funding will permit the Department to be responsive when governments make decisions to implement key fiscal and financial reforms, and allow it to act quickly to help these governments strengthen governmental fiscal and financial institutions during crucial transition periods toward market-oriented economies.

The proposed $5 million appropriation will fully fund approximately 10 resident advisors, including selected administrative costs and intermittent expert visits in support of the advisors. This appropriation will permit the continuation of the program in Haiti, expansion of the program in southern Africa, and implementation of programs in other emerging market economies. The Treasury Department will closely coordinate with international financial institutions and with USAID, the Department of State and other relevant U.S.

Paris Club Debt Reduction. For the poorest countries, debt reduction provides an incentive to implement macroeconomic and structural reforms necessary to improve economic performance and creditworthiness. The combination of economic reform and debt reduction contribute to growth and sustained development, which can mean greater opportunities for U.S. commercial interests in these countries. For the poorest and most heavily indebted countries, debt reduction will be undertaken in concert with the Paris Club of creditor nations, including extraordinary debt reduction under the Heavily-Indebted Poor Countries (HIPC) debt initiative. The Administration anticipates that $37 million in appropriations will fund debt reduction under Naples and HIPC terms for qualifying countries. This request level, combined with funds previously appropriated, will allow the U.S. in 1998-99 to provide approximately $1.5 billion in face value debt reduction for the poorest countries, potentially including Cameroon, Cote d'Ivoire, Mozambique, Tanzania, Uganda, Bolivia, and Nicaragua. For agreements implemented in the remainder of FY 1998 and subsequently, the Administration intends to obligate funds for debt reduction at the date of the signing of a bilateral framework agreement, to be concluded at the time of the signing of the Paris Club Agreed Minute, rather than 30 days after the conclusion of a formal U.S. bilateral debt agreement, as is currently the practice. This change of date for budget cost obligations is appropriate because the Paris Club Agreed Minute is the date when the U.S. Government commits politically to reducing debt for a particular country.

Concessional Debt Reduction for Africa. The President announced the "Partnership for Growth and Opportunity in Africa" on June 17, 1997. The Africa Initiative will target countries undertaking the boldest economic reforms to receive the maximum benefits from the program. Such reforms will encompass governance issues, macroeconomic policy, trade and investment policy, and investment in people. The best way the United States can support Africa is by making trade and investment—not just aid—the centerpiece of our economic relations. To support African economic reform efforts, the Administration, at the discretion of the President, will offer to provide 100% debt reduction of concessional debt owed to the United States. This 100% debt reduction program will complement Administration efforts to maximize debt relief for the most heavily indebted poor countries under the HIPC debt initiative. The Administration anticipates that $35 million in appropriations will fund 100% debt reduction for approximately $325 million in the face value of concessional debts for qualifying African countries.

Funds allocated within the debt restructuring account are fungible between these two programs to allow sufficient flexibility in effecting international commitments. The resulting cash flows from debt reduction are recorded in the debt reduction financing and liquidating accounts for the Export-Import Bank, foreign military loans, the Department of Agriculture's G.S.M. (Honduras only) and P.L. 480 programs, and the Agency for International Development.

Debt Buyback/Swap Program. For Latin America and the Caribbean, the Administration proposes that debt reduction be effected at zero cost through buybacks and swaps of eligible concessional debt, linked to commitment of local currency payments to support environment or child survival projects. The Administration will be seeking new authority for no-cost buybacks and swaps of P.L. 480 concessional debt and the approval of the Appropriations Committee for this program.

Sustainable Development Assistance Program.—The Sustainable Development Assistance account funds sustainable development assistance activities that are not related to child survival, disease prevention and basic education. While these latter activities are funded in the Child Survival and Disease Programs account, the Sustainable Development Assistance account funds programs in the areas of economic growth, democracy, family planning and global environment.

However, activities funded through both accounts are key components of AID's principle mission of supporting the people of developing and transitional countries in their efforts to achieve sustainable economic and social progress. These activities support five key USAID strategic goals:

(1) Encouraging broad-based economic growth and agricultural development, with the objectives of expanding and strengthening critical private markets, achieving enhanced agricultural development and food security, and, expanding access to economic opportunity for the rural and urban poor.

(2) Strengthening democracy and good governance, with the objectives of strengthening the rule of law and respect for human rights of both men and women, encouraging credible and competitive political processes, promoting the development of a politically active civil society, and encouraging more transparent and accountable government institutions.

(3) Building human capacity through education and training, with the objectives of expanding access to quality basic education, especially for girls and women, and, increasing the contributions of institutions of higher education to sustainable development.

(4) Stabilizing the world population and protecting human health, with the objectives of reducing unintended pregnancies, improving infant and child health and nutrition and reducing infant and child mortality, reducing deaths, nutrition insecurity and adverse health outcomes to women as a result of pregnancy and child birth, reducing HIV transmission and the impact of the HIV/AIDS pandemic in developing countries, and, reducing the threat of infectious diseases of major public health importance.

(5) Protecting the world's environment, with the objectives of preparing national environmental management strategies, improving conservation of biologically significant habitats, reducing the rate of growth of net emissions of greenhouse gases, increasing the access of urban populations to adequate environmental services, conserving energy through increased efficiency and reliance on renewable sources, and reducing the loss of forest area.

The 1999 Request for Sustainable Development Assistance includes funding for two Presidential Initiatives:

(1) African Trade and Investment which includes a $30 million request for USAID to provide assistance to countries that are attempting to implement critical economic policy reforms. The purpose of this assistance is to expand the number of African countries that can attract U.S. and other foreign trade and investment. By doing so, these countries should be able to increase economic growth and employment and reduce poverty. The initiative will provide a combination of program and technical assistance to African nations that have demonstrated a clear commitment to economic reform to help them design and implement trade and investment-related legal and institutional reforms. By increasing the access of these countries to trade and investment, this initiative will support the broader Africa initiative that was proposed by the President and has been supported by the Congress.

(2) Summit of the Americas which includes a $20 million request for USAID to provide assistance in support of the key summit goals of increased access to basic education, reduced levels of poverty and achievement of hemispheric free trade. Specific AID activities to be funded will include expansion of basic education in remote areas, support for increased access to micro-finance, and technical assistance to improve legal and institutional reforms necessary to reduce barriers to trade and investment.

While exact allocations of Child Survival and Sustainable Development Assistance funds will not be determined until funds are actually appropriated, notional allocations by region and by strategic goal are shown below (amounts are in millions of dollars):

This account provides funds to promote country-specific strategies that build on common, region-wide strategic goals, including economic restructuring, democratic transition, and social stabilization. Authorized Support for Eastern European Democracy (SEED) programs concentrate on: (a) the development of market economies and a strong private sector; (b) the development and strengthening of institutions necessary for sustainable democracy; and, (c) the improvement of the basic quality of life in selected areas. This interagency program is coordinated out of the State Department's Bureau of European and Canadian Affairs.

The single largest SEED program funded in this account is Bosnia, which remains a major Administration priority. Reconstruction needs and support for local police continue to be significant in this country as it moves towards stability and normalcy. The request for 1999 also includes $12.5 million for the first of four tranches to capitalize a $100 million trust fund, on a 50-50 basis, in a public-private partnership with a number of U.S. foundations. This trust is designed to help sustain support for democracy and economic reform through support for non-governmental organizations in countries where U.S. direct assistance has been phased out.

This account provides funds for a program of assistance to the independent states that emerged from the former Soviet Union. These programs for the New Independent States (NIS) have been envisioned since the outset as short-term in nature. They are designed to jump-start the process of political and economic transition to market democracies, and to help address major socioeconomic dislocations where they occur during these transitions. Funds will support economic restructuring through helping to create conditions that encourage: trade and investment and private sector growth; improved government fiscal policy, revenue collection, and financial management; a market-oriented financial sector; and a more efficient energy sector and a cleaner environment. Funds will support democratic transitions through promoting citizen participation, establishing the rule of law, and strengthening local governments.

Program resources requested in 1999 will be increasingly focused on the Partnership for Freedom (PFF) approach begun in 1998. This approach is designed to achieve the mutual economic and political goals of the United States and countries in the region. Building on traditional government-to-government technical assistance and tailoring the overall U.S. assistance program to unique NIS circumstances, the PFF supports broader economic and social ties between the United States and the NIS. It includes the development and expansion of sustainable partnerships, professional linkages, and citizen exchanges. Programs will be increasingly aimed at enhancing local public and private institutional capacity as part of the comprehensive strategy to expand trade and investment, develop and strengthen small and medium enterprises, mobilize capital, reduce crime and corruption, and build viable civil societies.

The goal of the Sahel Regional Program was to increase food security and ecological balance in Sahel, West Africa. Within that goal, the program promoted trade and investment in the West Africa Region, encouraged regional dialogue, and provided decision-makers with ready access to relevant information on development issues.

Since 1988 these activities have been funded from the Development Fund for Africa and Development Assistance accounts.

The International Disaster Assistance (IDA) account provides funds for two separate Offices. The Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance (OFDA) manages relief, rehabilitation, and reconstruction assistance to foreign countries struck by natural and man-made disasters and supports disaster prevention, mitigation and preparedness. OFDA's program has been placing increasing emphasis on complex emergencies; a product of ethnic and national tensions leading to civil strife and the displacement of large numbers of people. The $160 million request for OFDA for 1999 will be used to provide temporary shelter, blankets, supplementary food, potable water, medical supplies and agricultural rehabilitation aid, including seeds and hand tools.

The Office of Transition Initiatives (OTI) promotes the successful transition of countries from the initial crisis stage of a complex emergency (frequently addressed by OFDA) to the path of sustainable development. OTI seeks to promote peace and stability which can include: support for demobilization and re-integration of ex-combatants into civil society; landmine awareness; community self-help projects that reduce tension and promote democratic processes; and conflict resolution. The 1999 request for OTI includes an increase of $15 million to $45 million. Since its inception in 1994, OTI has established a successful track record and requires additional funding to respond to the significant number of opportunities for peaceful transitions from complex emergencies.

Excess property, most of it obtained from the Department of Defense, includes heavy construction equipment, vehicles, heavy machinery, electrical generating equipment, and medical equipment and supplies. The program is self-financed from service fees and reimbursements by equipment purchasers ultimately funded from development assistance appropriations to the Agency for International Development.

The Ukraine Export Credit Guarantee Program, which terminated in 1997, insured U.S. exporters against the risk of non-payment for their goods on the part of Ukrainian entities. The program had multiple objectives, including: (a) helping to feed the needy by pump-priming the Ukrainian agricultural sector; (b) paving the way for the resumption of U.S. Eximbank activity within the country; and, (c) encouraging the requisite shift in orientation of the Ukrainian economy from statist to private-sector led.

The Urban and Environmental Credit Program (formerly the Housing Guaranty Program) provides long-term financing to developing countries for innovative urban investment programs in areas such as shelter, potable water, wastewater treatment, solid waste disposal, environmental improvement of poor urban neighborhoods, and energy distribution. These investments focus on improving the quality of life for the urban poor through the development of infrastructure and the encouragement of reforms in urban policy. The Urban and Environmental Credit Program operates by guaranteeing loans from U.S. private investors to borrowers in developing countries who are implementing urban programs which have been approved by U.S.A.I.D.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for the Urban and Environmental Credit Program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Micro and Small Enterprise Development Program account supports private sector activities in developing countries by providing direct loans and loan guarantees to support local micro and small enterprises.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on present value basis. Administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The MSED program works with financial institutions to increase the flow of credit to small businesses in developing nations worldwide; poverty reduction requires thriving micro and small businesses whose success depends, in turn, on the ability to secure credit. The MSED program: (a) stimulates the growth and expansion of private sector activity by enhancing access to credit for micro and small businesses; (b) develops innovative financing mechanisms that address imperfec-tions in the credit market that make it difficult for small enterprises to get credit; and, (c) strengthens the capacity of indigenous financial institutions to engage in micro and small business lending through targeted training programs.

The primary tool is the Loan Portfolio Guaranty (LPG) program which provides loan guarantees. The MSED program also uses direct loans and guarantees to provide capital for private voluntary organizations (PVOs) and non-governmental organizations (NGOs) engaged in microenterprise lending activities and to create sustainable relationships between these PVOs/NGOs and formal financial institutions. Guarantees are combined with training and technical assistance to improve the capacity of banks to assess small and micro business credits and to assist borrowers to present credible proposals to lending institutions.
