Funds help States and localities undertake comprehensive education reform, create State and local systems of school-to-work transition for students, and implement educational technology plans.

Goals 2000:

State and local education systemic improvement.—State grants support State and local education improvement efforts to help all students reach challenging academic standards in all 50 States. At least 90 percent of the funds are provided to local educational agencies. Funds also support evaluation of educational reform efforts.

An identical amount is provided for the Department of Labor to support these activities. To date, competitive, 5-year grants have been awarded to 37 States that have completed and are ready to implement their school-to-work plans. Remaining States are expected to receive implementation grants in 1998.

Direct grants are also provided to local partnerships serving young people who live in high-poverty urban and rural areas, as well as partnerships that serve Indian youth. These funds also support national evaluation, research, and development activities to provide national leadership and analysis of school-to-work opportunities initiatives.

Technology for Education:

Technology Literacy Challenge Fund.—All States will receive the third year of 5-year grants as part of the President's plan to provide States and school districts with $2 billion over 5 years for computers, connections, training, and software, in order to achieve the President's four goals for fully integrating technology into schools.

Grants to local educational agencies.—Funds will be allocated through the Basic, Concentration, and Targeted grant formulas for local programs that stress the achievement of challenging State education standards, support schoolwide improvement, integrate Title I assessment and curriculum with State systemic reforms, and target funds to high-poverty schools. Up to $3.5 million in Basic Grant funds will be used to continue work needed to obtain updated poverty data at the local educational agency level from the Bureau of the Census for use in allocating Title I funds beginning in 1999, as required by the statute.

Capital expenses.—Funds are provided by formula to States to support phase-out funding to local educational agencies that entered into long-term contracts and other arrangements associated with providing educational services to eligible children attending non-public schools before the Supreme Court reversed the Aguilar v. Felton decision in June 1997.

Even start.—Funds are provided by formula to States, which in turn award grants to partnerships of local educational agencies and other organizations to operate family literacy projects integrating early childhood education, adult literacy and parenting education for low-income families with children under age 8.

State agency migrant program.—Funds are provided by formula to States for educational services to children of migratory farmworkers and fishers. Funds and services are concentrated on children who have moved within the past 36 months.

The President is proposing an initiative to help local educational agencies address teacher shortages and classroom overcrowding. The initiative helps reduce class sizes in the early grades, the grades in which children need the most attention in learning to read proficiently. The initiative responds to research showing that reducing class size to 15-18 students in the early grades improves student achievement, particularly among low-income and minority students in inner cities. The program would be funded at $1.1 billion in 1999 and $7.34 billion over an initial five-year period, with funding obtained from tobacco legislation revenues. By the year 2005, the initiative will enable schools to hire 100,000 additional teachers.

Funds help to pay the operating costs of local educational agencies that are affected by Federal activities. Payments would be made to local educational agencies that educate children living on Indian lands and military dependents living on Federal property.

Basic support payments.—Payments would be made on behalf of approximately 302,000 federally connected children enrolled in approximately 900 school districts across the country. The request would provide an average payment of approximately $2,100 for each of these federally connected children.

Supplemental payments for children with disabilities.—Payments would be made for additional assistance to school districts educating federally connected children with disabilities. Approximately 32,000 such children are enrolled in school districts across the country. The request would provide approximately $1,300 in additional assistance for the education of each of these children.

Payments for heavily impacted districts.—Additional payments would be provided for certain heavily impacted school districts, including school districts whose boundaries are the same as a military base, and school districts that tend to enroll high proportions of federally connected children and meet certain fiscal requirements.

Facilities maintenance.—Funds would be used to provide emergency repairs for school facilities that serve federally connected military students and are owned by the Department of Education. Funds would also be used to transfer the facilities to local educational agencies.

Advanced placement test fees.—The resources for this activity are proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation to revise and reauthorize programs currently authorized under the Higher Education Act. Educational opportunity zones initiative.—The President will propose a program of competitive grants to high-poverty, low-achieving urban and rural school districts to support implementation of effective reform models and accountability measures to improve public education and raise student achievement. The initiative will focus on improving district-wide performance and establishing mechanisms to sustain effective practices. Districts must show they are using existing funds effectively as evidenced by improvements in student achievement, and future grants under this initiative will be dependent on continued learning gains. The program will support a range of reforms including fixing failing schools, ending social promotion, and holding schools accountable for improving academic outcomes.

America Reads Challenge.—In 1998, the President proposed an initiative to work with schools, families, and communities on a national reading effort to ensure that children can read well and independently by the end of the third grade. The President’s 1999 budget for the America Reads Challenge would provide the balance of the amount originally proposed for the initiative’s first year—$50 million in addition to the $210 million advance appropriation that Congress provided—for a total of $260 million. These funds will provide extended learning time opportunities for children to practice and further develop their reading skills through the use of well-trained tutors in after-school, weekend, and summer reading programs. In applying for funds, the schools must show that they are using other existing funding sources effectively to improve the quality of in-school reading programs through professional development of teachers in the area of reading. The America Reads Challenge will pay primarily for schools/community partnerships to hire reading specialists, recruit tutors, pay for materials to train tutors, hire a coordinator to connect the in-school, out-of-school, and family literacy aspects of the reading program, and provide further professional development opportunities for teachers.

Bilingual education.—These programs provide assistance to local educational agencies and other entities to develop and enhance their capacity to provide high-quality instructional programs to children and youth of limited English proficiency. Programs are designed to teach English and to assist these students in achieving the same challenging State content and performance standards expected of all children and youth. Aid is also given to train educational personnel to serve limited English proficient children, to build State capacity to improve educational services for these children, and for information dissemination, studies, and evaluations.

Foreign language assistance.—The foreign language assistance program provides competitive grants to State and local educational agencies to improve the quality of foreign language instruction for elementary and secondary school students.

Immigrant education.—The immigrant education program provides grants to school districts to help finance educational services for immigrant students. Participation is limited to districts with 500 immigrant students or districts in which immigrant children represent at least 3 percent of the enrollment. Awards are made to State educational agencies, which make subgrants to eligible local educational agencies. Appropriations language permits States to distribute these funds on either a formula or discretionary grant basis.

Vocational rehabilitation State grants.—The basic State grants program provides Federal matching funds to State vocational rehabilitation (VR) agencies to assist individuals with physical or mental impairments to become gainfully employed. Services are tailored to the specific needs of the individual. Priority is given to serving those with the most severe disabilities. Current law requires that between 0.5 percent and 1.5 percent of the funds appropriated for the VR State grants program must be set aside for Grants for Indians.

The Department supports amending the Rehabilitation Act to require State VR agencies to develop challenging State-specific goals based on a comprehensive assessment of the vocational rehabilitation needs of individuals with disabilities in their State. The State must also describe the strategies it will use to achieve its goals and report on its progress on an annual basis.

The table below presents national data on selected performance measures for the VR State grants program. The data is based on the number of individuals receiving services whose service records were closed in fiscal years 1995 (346,861) and 1996 (351,525).

Client assistance State grants.—Formula grants are made to States to provide assistance in informing and advising clients and applicants of benefits available under the Rehabilitation Act and, if requested, to pursue legal or administrative remedies to ensure the protection of the rights of individuals with disabilities.

Training.—Grants are made to States and public or non-profit agencies and organizations, including institutions of higher education, to increase the number of skilled personnel available for employment in the field of rehabilitation.

Special demonstration programs.—Grants are made to develop innovative methods and comprehensive service programs to assist individuals with disabilities to achieve satisfactory vocational outcomes. The Department supports amending this program to authorize replication dissemination, and utilization projects and activities directed at State systemic change.

Migratory workers.—Grants are made to State VR agencies and other nonprofit or local agencies to provide comprehensive vocational rehabilitation services to migrant or seasonal farm workers with disabilities.

Recreational programs.—Grants are made to provide individuals with disabilities with recreation and related activities to aid in their employment, mobility, independence, socialization, and community integration.

Protection and advocacy of individual rights.—Formula grants are made to State protection and advocacy systems to protect the legal and human rights of individuals with disabilities.

Projects with industry.—Grants are made to a variety of public and private organizations, including State VR agencies, community rehabilitation programs, and labor organizations to provide training in work settings to prepare individuals with disabilities for employment and career advancement in the competitive labor market.

Supported employment State grants.—Formula grants are made to assist States in developing programs with public and nonprofit organizations to provide supported employment services for individuals with the most severe disabilities who require on-going support services to enter or retain competitive employment.

Independent living.—Grants are awarded to States and nonprofit agencies for services designed to enable individuals with significant disabilities to achieve consumer-determined independent living goals.

Program improvement.—Funds are used to promote broadbased planning and coordination, improve accountability, and enhance the Department's ability to address critical areas of national significance in achieving the purposes of the Rehabilitation Act. Examples of program improvement activities include technical assistance activities of national scope, and the development of an effective data management and reporting system, including program performance measures.

Evaluation.—Studies are conducted to evaluate the impact and effectiveness of various programs authorized under the Rehabilitation Act. The Department is conducting a multi-year national longitudinal study of the Vocational rehabilitation State grants program.

Helen Keller National Center for Deaf-Blind Youths and Adults.—The Center provides services to deaf-blind youths and adults and provides training and technical assistance to professional and allied personnel at its national headquarters center and through its regional representatives and affiliate agencies.

National Institute on Disability and Rehabilitation Research.—The Institute carries out a comprehensive and coordinated program of rehabilitation research and related activities. Through grants and contracts, it supports conducting and disseminating research aimed at improving the lives of individuals with disabilities.

Assistive technology.—Grants are made to States to support systems change and advocacy activities designed to develop and implement consumer-responsive comprehensive statewide programs of technology-related assistance for individuals with disabilities.

In accordance with the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA), annual performance plans, linked to the strategic plan, have been developed for program activities included under this account that focus on increased employment, earnings, and self-sufficiency for individuals with disabilities. The plans include specific outcome measures that are designed to increase program effectiveness, efficiency, and consumer satisfaction. Plans also include strategies for identifying programs that are performing below expectations and offering assistance to improve program performance.

Vocational and adult education.—In 1997, the Administration proposed to restructure Federal workforce-related education and training programs, including those under the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act, the Adult Education Act, and the National Literacy Act. Absent new authorizing legislation, Congress extended the authority of the Perkins Act, the Adult Education Act, and the National Literacy Act through the 1998 appropriations act. The 1999 budget request is proposed under pending legislation.

The resources in this schedule are proposed for later transmittal under pending legislation to restructure the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act, and Adult Education Act, and the National Literacy Act, as part of a broad framework for enabling lifelong learning and economic security for all Americans.

Vocational education.—The proposal would consolidate over a dozen programs into a grant for States, Territories, and Indian programs focused on preparing in-school youth for good jobs and further education and training. The proposal would continue to provide grants to States for Tech-Prep Education to promote links between secondary and postsecondary institutions and facilitate the integration of academic and vocational education. These State grant and Tech-Prep programs would support State and local reforms begun under the School-to-Work Opportunities Act. In addition, a national programs authority would support research, development, evaluations, demonstrations, and other initiatives.

Adult education and family literacy.—To provide adults with opportunities to succeed in their roles as parents, citizens, and learners, the Administration proposes to consolidate multiple adult education and literacy programs into a unified State grant. Each State would have the flexibility to support family literacy, adult secondary education, adult basic education, and English-as-a-second language programs according to its needs and objectives. The Department of Education would support State efforts through a new national programs authority that would focus on quality improvement, the use of interactive technology and distance learning, professional development for volunteers and teachers, and capacity building.

STUDENT FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

For carrying out subparts 1[, 3, and 4] and 3 of part A, part C [and], part E, part F, part G, and part H of title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965, as amended, [$8,978,934,000] $9,203,000,000, which shall remain available through September 30, [1999] 2000.

The maximum Pell Grant for which a student shall be eligible during award year [1998-1999] 1999-2000 shall be [$3,000] $3,100. Provided, That notwithstanding section 401(g) of the Act, if the Secretary determines, prior to publication of the payment schedule for such award year, that the amount included within this appropriation for Pell Grant awards in such award year, and any funds available from the fiscal year [1997] 1998 appropriation for Pell Grant awards, are insufficient to satisfy fully all such awards for which students are eligible, as calculated under section 401(b) of the Act, the amount paid for each such award shall be reduced by either a fixed or variable percentage, or by a fixed dollar amount, as determined in accordance with a schedule of reductions established by the Secretary for this purpose: Provided further, That if the Secretary determines that the funds available to fund Pell Grants for award year 1998-1999 exceed the amount needed to fund Pell Grants at a maximum award of $3,000 for that award year, the Secretary may increase the income protection allowances in sections 475(g)(2)(D), and 476(b)(1)(A)(iv) (I), (II), and (III) up to the amounts at which Pell Grant awards calculated using the increased income protection allowances equal the funds available to make Pell Grants in award year 1998-1999 with a $3,000 maximum award, except that the income protection allowance in section 475(g)(2)(D) may not exceed $2,200, the income protection allowance in sections 476(b)(1)(A)(iv)(I) and (II) may not exceed $4,250, and the income protection allowance in section 476(b)(1)(A)(iv)(III) may not exceed $7,250. Provided further, That notwithstanding part F of the Higher Education Act, the income protection allowance in section 475(g)(2)(D) shall be $2,200, the income protection allowance in sections 476(b)(1)(A)(iv) (I) and (II) shall be $4,250, and the income protection allowance in section 476(b)(1)(A)(iv)(III) shall be $7,250: Provided further, That Pell Grant funds shall not be awarded to a student who has received Pell Grants for a period in excess of 150 percent of the full-time equivalent of the period normally required for the completion of that student's course of study, except that a student may not receive Pell Grant funds for more than the full-time equivalent of eight academic years in the aggregate. Pell Grant funds may only be awarded to a student who has received Pell Grant funds for more than the full-time equivalent of eight academic years in the aggregate only if the institution determines that providing such funds is necessary to accommodate the rights of the student under section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973: Provided further, That none of the funds made available in this Act may be used to award student financial assistance under title IV of the Higher Education Act to students attending an institution of higher education that is ineligible to participate in a loan program authorized under parts B and D of such title as a result of a final default rate determination made by the Secretary, and issued by the Secretary on or after October 1, 1998, except that this restriction shall not apply to an institution until it has had the opportunity to appeal its default rate determination under the appeal procedures provided at 34 CFR 668.17. This restriction shall not apply to an institution that was not participating in the loan programs authorized under part B or part D of title IV of the Higher Education Act on October 1, 1998, unless the institution subsequently participates in either such loan program. Authorization of the Higher Education Act.—Absent new authorizing legislation, the Administration requests the Congress to extend the authority of the Student Financial Assistance programs through the end of 1999. The Department is about to put forth a comprehensive proposal to authorize the Higher Education Act into the next century. The Administration's authorization proposal for Student Financial Assistance focuses on (1) ensuring access to, and encouraging persistence and graduation in, postsecondary education; (2) modernizing and simplifying the Title IV delivery system; (3) supporting and improving two viable loan programs; and, (4) assuring accountability of Federal funds.

Federal Pell Grants.—Undergraduate students establish eligibility for these grants under award and need determination rules set out in the authorizing statute and the annual appropriations act. The 1999 budget estimate reflects proposed changes to the Pell Grant program.

The Administration is proposing a $100 increase in the maximum Pell Grant award to $3,100 for 1999; and to limit the duration of a student's eligibility for Pell Grant assistance to the full-time-equivalent of 150 percent of the period normally required for the student to complete his or her program of study, with an absolute maximum of the full-time-equivalent of 8 years. Further, the Administration proposes to continue in 1999, the higher income protection allowances authorized by the 1998 appropriations act of $2,200 for dependent students; $4,250 for single independent students without dependents; $4,250 per student for married independent students without dependents when both are in college; and $7,250 for married independent students without dependents when one is enrolled in college.

Currently, only institutions with high default rates are terminated from participation in the Federal Family Education Loan and William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan programs. The Administration proposes to reduce waste and abuse in the student financial assistance programs by terminating the eligibility of these institutions not only for the loan programs, but also the Pell Grant program and the other title IV programs.

Campus-based programs.—The Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, Federal Work-Study, and Federal Perkins Loan programs are called the "campus-based" programs because participating institutions are responsible for administering the programs on their own campuses. These programs provide aid administrators with considerable flexibility in the packaging of financial aid awards to best meet the needs of students. The budget year estimates for the campus-based programs reflect funding under current law. Changes to the campus-based programs will be included in the Administration's proposal to authorize the Higher Education Act.

Federal Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants.—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which use these funds to award grants to undergraduate students. While institutions have discretion in awarding these funds, they are required to give priority to Pell Grant recipients and other students with exceptional need. The Federal share of such grants may not exceed 75 percent of the total grant.

Federal Work-Study.—Federal funds are awarded by formula to qualifying institutions, which develop and provide part-time jobs for eligible undergraduate and graduate students with demonstrated need. Hourly earnings under the program must be at least equal to the Federal minimum wage. Federal funding in most cases pays 75 percent of a student's hourly wages, with the remaining 25 percent paid by the employer. The Secretary has waived the required 25 percent employer funding match for students working in the America Reads Challenge as reading tutors of children and in family literacy programs.

Perkins Loan Program.—Institutions award low-interest loans from institutional revolving funds, which are comprised of Federal Capital Contributions, institutional matching funds, and student repayments on outstanding loans. The Administration is requesting $60 million in new budget authority to supplement these resources.

As authorized by the Higher Education Act, the Department established the Perkins Loan Revolving Fund on September 15, 1997. Collections from assigned loans and audits will be deposited into this revolving fund and will be transferred to the Student Financial Assistance account in 1999 for redistribution to institutions, which will then use these funds to make new loans. The resources available from these new collections and new Federal Capital Contributions, in addition to the resources from borrower repayments on the outstanding loan portfolio to institutional revolving funds, will provide sufficient funding for over $1 billion in new Perkins Loans in 1999–2000.

Perkins Loan Program—Cancellations.—Under the Perkins Loan cancellation program, institutional revolving funds are reimbursed for indebtedness canceled as a result of a borrower engaging in certain public service activities, as specified in the Higher Education Act. As the number of borrowers with loans eligible for these loan cancellation benefits is rising, the cost of providing these benefits has increased in recent years.

Funding Tables.—The following tables display student aid funds available, the number of aid awards, average awards, and the unduplicated count of recipients from any Federal student aid program. The tables include the aid from programs in the Student Financial Assistance account, as well as aid from the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program, and the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan program. Loan amounts reflect the capital actually loaned, not the Federal cost of those loans. The data in these tables include the effects of matching funds wherever applicable. Amounts for 1999 include the impact of proposed changes.

Aid for institutional development.—

Strengthening historically Black colleges and universities.—Funds will support grants to help historically Black undergraduate and graduate institutions to improve and expand their capacity to serve students, and to strengthen management and fiscal operations.

Strengthening institutions.—Funds will support planning and development grants for improving academic programs and financial management at schools that enroll high proportions of disadvantaged students and have low per-student expenditures.

Strengthening Hispanic-serving institutions.—Funds will support Hispanic-serving institutions to enable them to improve and expand their capacity to serve students.

Strengthening Tribal colleges and universities.—Funds will support a new program to strengthen Tribal colleges and universities with scarce resources that have been serving increasing numbers of Native American students.

Minority science improvement.—Funds will support the improvement of science education at predominantly minority institutions.

Other aid for institutions.—

Funds for the improvement of postsecondary education.—Funds will support flexible, field-initiated postsecondary improvement projects in a broad range of activities, as well as 5 special focus programs.

International education and foreign language studies programs.—Funds will support 9 programs that promote the development and improvement of postsecondary international and foreign language programs.

Teacher recruitment and preparation.—Funds will support a new program to help recruit and prepare high-quality elementary and secondary school teachers, particularly teachers representative of minority populations, for work in under-served areas. The program will fund mutually beneficial partnerships between institutions of higher education and local schools. Schools will provide hands on experience to student teachers, while colleges will provide a steady supply of well-prepared teachers to meet local needs. Funding will also assist in the development and dissemination of best practices in teacher preparation at postsecondary institutions.

Assistance for students.—

Federal TRIO programs.—Funds will support academic, counseling, and outreach services under 5 programs to help disadvantaged students succeed in school and college.

College-school partnerships.—Funds will support a new program to increase secondary school achievement and college enrollment among children in low-income communities.

Byrd honors scholarships.—Funds will support postsecondary scholarships for outstanding high school students who show promise of continued academic excellence.

National need graduate fellowships.—Funds will support a new consolidated graduate education program to help recruit and prepare high-quality individuals for postsecondary academic careers in areas of national need, particularly in those fields where women, persons of minority populations, and individuals with disabilities are under-represented.

Early awareness information.—Funds will support a national information campaign to publicize the availability of student financial aid, and to encourage young students and families to prepare for postsecondary education.

Learning Anytime Anywhere Partnerships.—Funds will support pilot projects using technology to promote and enhance lifelong learning.

The Federal Government operates two major student loan programs: the Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) program—formerly the Guaranteed Student Loan (GSL) program—and the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan (Direct Loan) program. The President is committed to improving the efficiency of both programs and allowing individual institutions to choose which of these two programs best meets their needs and the needs of their students.

This summary section outlines the structure of these two programs, highlights their differences and similarities, and provides text tables displaying program cost data; loan volume, subsidy, default, and interest rates; and other descriptive information. As part of his 1999 Budget, the President is proposing a number of changes for the Direct Loan and FFEL programs. These changes are discussed as part of this program description.

From its inception in 1965 through 1997, the FFEL program has provided over $240 billion in loans to postsecondary students and their parents. Since beginning on July 1, 1994, the Direct Loan program has provided almost $24 billion in new loans to students and parents. Taken together, the FFEL and Direct Loan programs will make almost $32 billion in new loans available in 1998. Because funding for these two programs is provided on a permanent indefinite basis, for budget purposes they are considered separately from other Federal student financial assistance programs. The FFEL and Direct Loan programs should be viewed in combination with these other programs, however, and with Perkins Loans in particular, as part of the overall Federal effort to ensure access to higher education.

Loan capital in the FFEL program is provided by private lenders. State and private nonprofit guaranty agencies act as agents of the Federal government, providing a variety of services including payment of default claims, collection of some defaulted loans, default avoidance activities, and counseling to schools and students. These agencies also provide various other services to lenders. The Government provides substantial payments to these guaranty agencies. The Government also pays interest subsidies to lenders for certain borrowers, as well as most costs associated with loan defaults and other write-offs.

The Direct Loan program was created by the Student Loan Reform Act (SLRA) of 1993. Under this program, the Federal Government provides loan funds to postsecondary institutions directly or through an alternative originator. Direct Loans offer a streamlined system that is simpler for student and parent borrowers, less prone to waste and abuse, and less expensive for the Federal taxpayer than the FFEL program. The program also offers flexible repayment options that allow borrowers to consider lower-paying careers, such as public service, without fear of default.

The Direct Loan program began operation in academic year 1994–1995 with 7 percent of overall loan volume. The program grew to 31 percent of overall volume in academic year 1995–1996, and is expected to account for 35 percent in academic year 1997–1998. All eligible institutions are free to participate in either the Direct Loan or FFEL program.

The Direct Loan and FFEL programs share many basic elements. Each program offers four types of loans: Stafford, Unsubsidized Stafford, PLUS for parents, and Consolidation. Evidence of financial need is required for a student to receive a subsidized Stafford loan. The other three loan programs are available to borrowers at all income levels. Loans can be used only to meet qualified educational expenses.

For new Stafford Loans, the interest rate equals the 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 2.5 percent during in-school, grace, and deferment periods, and the 91-day Treasury bill plus 3.1 percent at all other times, with a cap of 8.25 percent. These rates are adjusted annually. Interest payments for these loans are fully subsidized by the Government while a student is in school and during grace and deferment periods. Unsubsidized Stafford loans carry the same interest rate as Stafford loans, but have no interest subsidy. In the FFEL program, interest on Unsubsidized Stafford loans may be capitalized no more than quarterly, and upon entering repayment. In the Direct Loan program, interest on these loans is capitalized only upon entering repayment. The President is proposing to require FFEL lenders and loan holders to capitalize interest only upon entering repayment. For PLUS loans, the interest rate equals the 52-week Treasury bill rate plus 3.1 percent, with a cap of 9 percent and no interest subsidy.

Beginning July 1, 1998, current law requires that the interest rate for new Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford loans equal the Department's borrowing rate—currently the 10–20-year bond rate—plus 1 percentage point, with a cap of 8.25 percent. This rate, adjusted annually, will apply throughout the life of the loan.

Consolidation loans allow borrowers to combine loans made under Title IV of the Higher Education Act—FFEL, Direct Loans, and Perkins Loans—as well as some loans made under the Public Health Service Act. Borrowers holding one or more underlying Direct Loans may only consolidate in the Direct Loan program. The portion of Direct Consolidation loans made up of underlying Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford loans carry the variable Stafford interest rate; the portion made up of underlying PLUS loans carry the variable PLUS interest rate. For FFEL Consolidation loans, the interest rate for loans made on or after July 1, 1994 equals the weighted average of the interest rate on the loans consolidated, rounded up to the nearest whole percent. Lenders may choose to offer a lower rate.

The Emergency Student Loan Consolidation Act of 1997, which was included in the Department's 1998 appropriations act, temporarily changed a number of laws affecting Consolidation loans. Under this act, which is in effect until October 1, 1998, Direct Loan borrowers may consolidate their loans into the FFEL program, interest rates for FFEL Consolidation loans are calculated in the same way as is done for Direct Consolidation loans, and borrowers whose FFEL Consolidation loans include underlying Stafford loans maintain interest subsidy benefits associated with the Stafford portions of their loans. (Direct Consolidation loan borrowers already retain these benefits.)

Origination/insurance fees for each loan type are essentially the same across the two programs. Direct Loan borrowers are charged an origination fee equal to 4 percent of principal, which partially offsets Federal program operation costs. FFEL borrowers pay an origination fee to the Government equal to 3 percent of principal, and are also liable for a guaranty agency insurance premium of up to 1 percent of principal.

Guaranty agencies have the option of waiving this premium. In addition, FFEL lenders have the option of paying some or all of a borrower's original fee for Stafford Loan borrowers. The President is proposing to eliminate the 1 percent guaranty agency insurance premium and reduce the Direct Loan origination fee from 4 percent to 3 percent in 1999. The President is also proposing to further reduce fees for need-based (Stafford) loans in both FFEL and Direct Loans to 2 percent in 2001 and 1 percent in 2002, and to eliminate origination fees for all Stafford loans beginning in 2003. The President is also proposing that FFEL lenders be required to offer any benefits involving the partial or complete payment of borrower origination fees to all eligible borrowers.

Loan limits are also identical across the two programs. In addition, loans made under both programs are discharged in cases where borrowers die, are totally and permanently disabled, or declare bankruptcy. Given the broad availability of income-contingent repayment, economic hardship deferments, and other flexible repayment options, the President is proposing to eliminate bankruptcy-related loan discharges.

In addition to these common elements, the Direct Loan and FFEL programs each have a number of unique provisions.

Borrowers under Direct Loans may choose from among five repayment plans including income-contingent repayment ("pay-as-you-can"), under which annual repayment amounts vary based on the income of the borrower and the amount borrowed, and payments can be made over 25 years. Borrowers may switch between repayment plans at any time. (Income-contingent repayment is not available to Direct PLUS borrowers).

The President is proposing to require FFEL lenders to offer four of these plans—standard, graduated, extended, and alternative—under the same terms and conditions available under Direct Loans. Income-contingent repayment as offered through Direct Loans—under which the Department has access to income data provided by the Internal Revenue Service—may not be feasible for private lenders to administer. In addition, the President is proposing to clarify current law that loan amounts forgiven after 25 years under the income-contingent repayment plan are not treated as income for tax purposes.

In the FFEL program, lenders may receive an interest subsidy, called a special allowance, from the Government to ensure a guaranteed rate of return on their loans. Special allowance payments vary by loan type, are determined quarterly, and are based on current borrower interest rates and market-yield formulas. For recent Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford loans, for example, the Federal Government must pay lenders a special allowance if the average 91-day Treasury bill rate for a given quarter plus 3.1 percent—or 2.5 percent during in-school, grace, or deferment periods—is higher than the current interest rate charged borrowers.

The President is proposing to reset the interest rate for special allowance payments on new loans on an annual basis, as is done with borrower interest rates. The President is also proposing to reduce special allowance payments on loans funded through tax-exempt securities.

The President is proposing a number of changes to address serious structural problems with the FFEL default prevention system. Supplemental pre-claims assistance payments to guaranty agencies, which have proven ineffective in achieving their intended goal of enhancing agency default prevention activities, would be eliminated. As a more effective means of accomplishing this goal, the President is proposing that lenders make payments to guaranty agencies only on delinquent loans that have been brought current as a result of guaranty agency efforts.

Guaranty agencies currently retain 27 percent of all collections on defaulted loans, a portion of which covers agency collection costs. In order to standardize payments for default collection activities across the student loan programs, the President is proposing to reduce guaranty agency default retention to 18.5 percent, approximately the rate paid on loans collected by the Department of Education through competitively awarded contracts.

The President is proposing a number of changes to the guaranty agency system. The U.S. General Accounting Office and Federal courts have acknowledged that the Federal government is the actual guarantor of FFEL program loans, with State and non-profit guaranty agencies acting as agents administering this Federal guarantee. In keeping with this relationship, the President is proposing to restructure the current guaranty agency system on a fee-for-service model. Under this approach, lender default claims will be paid with direct Federal payments, rather than by Federal funds held by guaranty agencies for that purpose. As a result of this change, guaranty agencies will no longer need to hold Federal funds in reserve, making possible the return of $1.1 billion in reserve funds over five years. (Agencies are already scheduled to return $1 billion in reserve funds in 2002 under the provisions of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997.)

The President is also proposing to replace current statutorily set administrative cost allowances to guaranty agencies with fees paid on new and outstanding loans administered by each agency. In addition, the President is proposing to periodically recertify guaranty agency agreements, which will be revised to include specific, publicly released performance indicators. Among other things, these revised agreements will require that agencies be audited annually using a methodology that samples loans held in agency systems, and that guaranty agencies submit timely, accurate, and consistent data to the Department, including data for the National Student Loan Data System. The Secretary of Education will have the authority to terminate agreements based on agency performance, and to award contracts for services currently performed by guaranty agencies.

In order to ensure the uninterrupted availability of aid funds for students and parents, Congress provided permanent funding to support student aid administration and expenses. These funds support Department personnel and contractors for Direct Loan origination and servicing, payments to guaranty agencies, as well as certain costs associated with activities common to Direct Loans, FFEL and other student assistance programs, such as application printing and processing. Discretionary funds requested for the FFEL program support additional Department personnel and administrative activities associated with operating the program.

Performance indicators have been developed on a broad spectrum of policy objectives in both the Direct Loan and FFEL programs. These indicators will measure program efficiency, Federal costs, and financial management, as well as borrower and institutional satisfaction.

The following tables display performance indicators and program data; including projected overall Direct Loan and FFEL costs; loan volume, number of loans, and average loan amount; descriptive data, and program activity under the President's budget and legislative request.

Federal Borrowing Rate for Direct Loans (in percent)	6.77	6.11	6.03

<sup>1</sup> Subsidy rates represent the Federal portion of non-administrative costs—principally interest subsidies and defaults—associated with each borrowed dollar. For example, a $1,000 loan with Federal subsidy costs of $100 would have a subsidy rate of 10 percent.

<sup>2</sup> Because these figures do not include totals for Consolidation Loans, they do not correspond with totals shown in account-specific schedules.

<sup>3</sup> Default rates displayed in this table, which reflect projected defaults over the life of a loan cohort, are used in developing program cost estimates. The Department uses other rates based on defaults occurring in the first two years of repayment to determine institutional eligibility to participate in Federal loan programs. These two-year rates tend to be lower than those included in this table.

<sup>5</sup> Under current law, interest rates under the FFEL Consolidation Loan program reflect a weighted average of the rates of the loans consolidated, rounded upward to the nearest whole percentage (in 1998 only, rates are not rounded upward, pursuant to a one-year statutory change). For the Direct Loan Consolidation program, loans consolidated from the Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford Loan programs are charged the Stafford Loan interest rate. Loans consolidated from the PLUS Loan program are charged the PLUS interest rate.

<sup>1</sup>No data is included for the Alternative repayment plan under either FFEL or Direct Loans. Borrowers are not expected to participate in this plan due to the flexibility available under the other options. For FFEL, no data is included for income-sensitive repayment. This option, which has been available for a number of years, has never made up more than a tiny portion of overall loan volume. For Direct Loans, income-contingent repayment is not available for PLUS borrowers.

<sup>2</sup>Percent of Loan Volume represents aggregate data. Individual borrowers may move between plans over time.

<sup>3</sup>Maximum terms under the Extended and Graduated repayment plans reflect the following "classes" based on borrower debt levels.

Debt Level	Maximum Term (in years)	Percent of Volume Within Extended Plan 1998
Below $10,000 .....	12	5.60
$10,000-$20,000 .....	15	16.40

Above $60,000 .....	30	29.00

Subsidy costs for the FFEL and Direct Loan programs are estimated in accordance with procedures set out in the Credit Reform Act of 1990. Subsidy costs for each loan type are estimated separately and, because costs can vary widely within a program depending on the characteristics of the individual borrower, cost estimates are aggregated from data for homogeneous groups within risk categories.

Risk categories for Stafford and Unsubsidized Stafford Loans are based on the type of school attended by the borrower. Since PLUS loan borrowers are all parents, they are assumed to share similar risk profiles and are grouped together in a single category. For Consolidation Loans, risk categories distinguish between standard Consolidation Loans—in which borrowers in repayment consolidate a number of outstanding loans—and loans consolidated out of default.

Default rates are a major cause of differences in subsidy between risk categories. The default rates in the following tables reflect estimates of the percent of borrowers who will default over the lifetime of the loans. These estimates are revised annually based on an analysis of default trends prepared each year by an independent auditor. Within each risk group, it is assumed that borrowers choosing similar repayment plans will have similar default rates, regardless of whether they borrow under the FFEL or Direct Loan program.

The risk group data below also reflect proposed policy changes and interest rate projections in the President's 1999 Budget. These factors substantially decrease subsidy rates across years in the FFEL program. Subsidy rates in the Direct Loan program increase over the same period, primarily due to proposals to reduce borrower origination fees.

<sup>7</sup> A number of expenses related to the administration of the student assistance programs are paid out of Student Aid Management funds. One of these expenses, administrative cost allowances to guaranty agencies, is shown as a separate line.

<sup>8</sup> Administrative cost allowances paid from Student Aid Management funds. The President is proposing to replace these statutorily set payments with fees tied to specific services beginning in 1999.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this program account records for this program the subsidy costs associated with Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL), formerly guaranteed student loans (GSL), committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as certain administrative expenses of the program. Administrative expenses include discretionary expenses for salaries, expenses and overhead of employees working directly on the program. Beginning with the 1993 cohort, mandatory administrative costs, specifically contract collection costs and supplemental pre-claims assistance, are included in the FFEL subsidy estimates of each year's cohort. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

A description of the FFEL program and accompanying tables are included under the Federal Direct Student Loan program account.

The College Housing and Academic Facilities Loan (CHAFL) Program account and the Historically Black College and University (HBCU) Capital Financing Program account are consolidated for presentation purposes. The College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans and Historically Black College and University Capital Financing programs will continue to be administered separately.

The College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans Program.—The Department began issuing CHAFL facility loans in 1987 and made its last awards in 1993. Prior to 1987, loans were made under two separate loan programs: Higher Education and Facilities Loans (HEFL) and College Housing Loans (CHL). The loans support financing for the reconstruction, renovation, and construction of academic facilities, housing and other postsecondary education facilities for students and faculty. Although the Department no longer makes new loans, the Department continues to be responsible for conducting architectural and engineering reviews before disbursing payments to institutions and servicing the outstanding loans under an agreement with the Federal Reserve Bank.

In prior years, funding for CHAFL administration was in this account, and funding for CHL and HEFL administration was split between the Department's Program Administration account and the liquidating accounts for these two programs. Beginning in 1998, the Department has consolidated funding for administrative activities for CHAFL, HEFL and CHL under a single account. The 1999 request includes funding for personnel and other discretionary costs for all three programs. Loan servicing and architectural and engineering services for the HEFL and CHL programs are funded from their respective liquidating accounts.

Historically Black College and University Capital Financing Program.—The Historically Black College and University (HBCU) Capital Financing Program provides HBCUs with private capital for capital projects such as repairs, renovation and construction of classrooms, libraries, laboratories, dormitories, instructional equipment, and research instrumentation. The 1994 appropriation granted the Department authority to enter into insurance agreements with a private for-profit Designated Bonding Authority to guarantee no more than $357,000,000 loan principal plus accrued unpaid interest for taxable bonds. The bonding authority issues the bonds and maintains an escrow account in which 10 percent of each institution's principal is deposited. This amount is estimated to be sufficient to cover all potential delinquencies and defaults.

The first loan was issued in 1996 for $3.5 million, and another loan for $4.7 million was made in 1997. Additional loans are expected in 1998 and 1999. No subsidy appropriations are required. The 1999 budget requests funds for continuing Federal administrative activities only.

resulting from direct loans made prior to 1992 to schools and colleges for the reconstruction, renovation, and construction of academic facilities, housing and other post-secondary education facilities. Loans were made under three separate loan programs: Higher Education and Facilities Loans, College Housing Loans, and College Housing and Academic Facilities Loans. Beginning in 1998, the Department has consolidated the three loan programs into the CHAFL Liquidating account for budget presentation purposes only. The three individual programs continue to be administered separately.

Note.—The appropriations language for this program specifies a limitation that applies to direct and guaranteed loans in total.

In 1997, the Federal Financing Bank (FFB) began purchasing bonds issued by the HBCU Designated Bonding Authority. Under the policies governing Federal credit programs, loan guarantees by the FFB create the equivalent of a Federal direct loan. For budget purposes, all FFB loans shall be treated as direct loans. HBCU bonds are still available for purchase by the private sector, and these will be treated as loan guarantees. The Department expects some future loans may be financed from private sources.

Interagency research initiative.—Funding for an education research initiative is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Regional educational laboratories.—Ten laboratories provide applied research and development, dissemination, and technical assistance services to address needs in specified regions throughout the country.

National dissemination activities.—Funds support information clearinghouses, a national dissemination system, and a national library of education, which serves as a central location within the Federal government for information on education.

Statistics.—Funds support the collection of statistics on educational institutions and on individuals to monitor trends in education, and a coordinated program of statistical services to assist States in developing comparable data bases and analyses of the implications of data.

No funds appropriated in this Act may be used for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to overcome racial imbalance in any school or school system, or for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to carry out a plan of racial desegregation of any school or school system.

SEC. 302. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to require, directly or indirectly, the transportation of any student to a school other than the school which is nearest the student's home, except for a student requiring special education, to the school offering such special education, in order to comply with title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. For the purpose of this section an indirect requirement of transportation of students includes the transportation of students to carry out a plan involving the reorganization of the grade structure of schools, the pairing of schools, or the clustering of schools, or any combination of grade restructuring, pairing or clustering. Weapons activities.—This program includes the following activities:

Stockpile Stewardship.—This activity provides for the research, development, and engineering activities to support the safety and reliability of the nuclear weapons stockpile, without underground nuclear testing, through a science-based Stockpile Stewardship program. The core stewardship program supports Stockpile Stewardship by maintaining core competencies at the weapons laboratories and the Nevada Test Site, and through research on enhanced safety and reliability of the enduring stockpile and dismantlement techniques. In addition, the core stewardship program maintains the capability to execute an underground nuclear test if directed by the President. Research and development on inertial confinement fusion is also included and the transfer of nonsensitive Defense Programs' funded technology to the private sector is promoted.

Stockpile Management.—This activity provides for the maintenance of the U.S. nuclear weapons stockpile, capabilities to modify or produce new weapons if required, lifetime surveillance of the stockpile, and retirement and disposal of weapons and weapon components. The Stockpile Management program also supports activities that include maintenance of technical and operational capabilities for responding to nuclear/radiological accidents and incidents worldwide. This program also provides for nuclear materials surveillance for storage, handling, shipping, safeguarding, control and accountability, and disposition for defense programs nuclear materials located at Defense Programs' facilities.

Within the Stockpile Management Program, the Department has been pursuing a dual track strategy to produce tritium for the Nation's enduring nuclear weapons stockpile. It plans to select a primary and backup option in 1998. The budget includes $157 million to pursue the option that is selected. If the Department selects the purchase of irradiation services from commercial light water reactors as the primary option, it will be able to meet current requirements within the funds available. If the Department selects accelerator production of tritium as the primary option, it will need to seek relief from the current target date for initiating new tritium production or seek additional funding.

Environmental Management.—The Office of Environmental Management (EM) manages the thousands of contaminated areas and buildings, huge waste volumes, and nuclear materials left over from the nuclear weapons production process. In June 1996, EM began working toward a long-range goal of completing cleanup at most sites within a decade. FY 1999 represents the first fiscal year in which the budget structure is based on projects. This budget structure differentiates by completion dates and end states rather than by activities performed.

The FY 1999 budget request will support the following major program areas:

Site/Project Completion.—Includes sites and/or projects that will be completed by 2006 at EM laboratories or other facilities where DOE will continue to have a presence beyond the year 2006. Examples of sites with projects included in this account are Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, Idaho; Hanford, Washington; and Savannah River, South Carolina.

Post 2006 Completion.—Includes projects that will continue after 2006. Included are various projects at Hanford, Washington; Savannah River, South Carolina; Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, Idaho; Nevada Test Site, Nevada; Oak Ridge Reservation, Tennessee; and the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant (Carlsbad), New Mexico.

Office of Science and Technology.—Conducts technology development activities which focus on the Department's major environmental management issues to reduce risk to workers, the public, and the environment, reduce cleanup costs; and/or provide solutions that do not exist to current problems shared by multiple sites. Includes the Environmental Science program which conducts a targeted long-term basic research program for Environmental Management problems to significantly reduce long-term cleanup costs and risks to workers and the public; "bridging the gap" between broad fundamental research such as that performed in DOE's Office of Energy Research, and applied technology development which has been historically supported by Environmental Management. In addition, the Office is responsible for developing risk policy, requirements and guidance to ensure that risk analysis theory and processes are integrated into coherent decision making processes.

EM Program Direction.—Provides salaries and benefits, travel and other contractual support costs for the Federal workforce at Headquarters and in the field which support the Environmental Management Program.

Activities performed include: environmental restoration, which provides for assessments, characterization, remediation, and decontamination and decommissioning of contaminated DOE facilities and sites; waste management, which provides for the safe, treatment, storage, and disposal of wastes generated by defense activities; and, nuclear material and facility stabilization, which provides for stabilization, safeguarding, interim storage, and stewardship of excess nuclear materials, including spent nuclear fuel, awaiting ultimate disposition.

EM will continue to improve the efficiency of its programs through a variety of management and contracting strategies. In addition to privatization efforts, emphasis will continue on the reduction of support costs and implementation of performance-based contracts.

Asset Management Pilot Projects.—The Asset Management Program is designed to provide a financial return to the Federal government by disposing of unneeded assets. Six pilot projects have been identified for asset disposition. Revenues received in excess of the cost of sales, leases, and disposition are returned to Treasury.

Environmental Management Privatization.—Provides funding necessary to proceed with privatization of various DOE environmental management projects that will treat some of DOE's most contaminated soil and highly radioactive waste, as well as deactivate contaminated nuclear facilities that cost excessive amounts of money to maintain. This new approach to cleanup relies on the private sector to construct and operate facilities or proceed with cleanup actions on a fixed-price, fee-for-service basis. These competitively awarded projects are expected to save approximately 30 percent or more over the life-cycle of the projects, when compared to DOE's traditional approach of designing, constructing and operating a government-owned facility. Funds in this account will allow DOE to enter into these contracts and assures private investors that funds will be available to pay for services once the facilities are built.

OTHER DEFENSE ACTIVITIES

For Department of Energy expenses, including the purchase, construction and acquisition of plant and capital equipment and other expenses necessary for atomic energy defense, other defense activities, in carrying out the purposes of the Department of Energy Organization Act (42 U.S.C. 7101, et seq.), including the acquisition or condemnation of any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition, construction, or expansion, [and the purchase of passenger motor vehicles (not to exceed 2 for replacement only), $1,666,008,000,] to become available on October 1 of the fiscal year specified and to remain available until expended: fiscal year 1999, $1,667,160,000; fiscal year 2000, $57,871,000; fiscal year 2001, $13,400,000; and fiscal year 2002, $5,400,000. (Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act, 1998.)

Other defense activities.—This program includes the following activities:

Nonproliferation and National Security.—The Department's Nonproliferation and National Security activities consist of the following areas: Nonproliferation and Verification, Research and Development, Arms Control and Nonproliferation, Intelligence, Nuclear Safeguards and Security, Security Investigations, Emergency Management and Program Direction. These activities provide policy, direction, technology development and implementation, and leadership in national and international efforts to reduce the danger to U.S. national security posed by weapons of mass destruction. Key mission areas are: (1) preventing the spread of weapons of mass destruction materials, technology, and expertise; (2) detecting the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction world wide; (3) reversing the proliferation of nuclear weapons capabilities; and (4) responding to weapons of mass destruction emergencies.

Fissile Materials Disposition.—The Fissile Materials Disposition Program is responsible for defining and implementing a path forward for the verifiable storage and disposition of U.S. weapons-usable fissile material (highly enriched uranium and plutonium) and for providing technical support for efforts to attain reciprocal actions for the disposition of surplus Russian plutonium. The Department is preparing to dispose of surplus weapons highly enriched uranium by blending it down to low enriched uranium for use as commercial reactor fuel. The Department is pursuing a hybrid plutonium disposition strategy that allows for immobilization of surplus plutonium with ceramic material surrounded by vitrified high level waste, and burning of surplus plutonium as mixed oxide (MOX) fuel in existing domestic commercial reactors. Over the next two years, DOE will complete site-specific environmental reviews and detailed cost proposals for both disposition approaches; make a Record of Decision on site(s) for disposition facilities; begin detailed design of two of the three disposition facilities; and complete tests, process development and technology demonstrations required for plutonium disposition. Near term efforts also involve continued efforts to consolidate the storage of weapons-usable fissile materials, pending disposition; and development of a pilot scale plutonium conversion system in Russia. The budget includes $28 million to begin design of a MOX fuel fabrication facility in the United States. The Administration will not construct new facilities for disposition of U.S. plutonium unless there is significant progress on plans for plutonium disposition in Russia.

Worker and Community Transition.—This program provides for the development and implementation of plans under section 3161 of the National Defense Authorization Act of 1993, to provide options to assist workers affected by workforce restructuring including preference in hiring, outplacement assistance, relocation assistance, and incentives for early retirement or separation. This program also provides impact assistance to local communities, as well as disposition of assets excess to current Department needs.

Naval Reactors.—This program performs the design, development, and testing necessary to provide the Navy with safe, militarily effective nuclear propulsion plants in keeping with the Nation's nuclear-powered fleet defense requirements. During 1999, the program expects to reach 4,900 cumulative reactor-years of safe operation, and will continue to support and improve operating reactors and plant components. In addition, the program will continue to develop nuclear reactor plant components and systems for the Navy's new attack submarine, procure equipment needs for development and testing activities, and maintain or shut down aging facilities as appropriate.

International Nuclear Safety and Security.—The International Nuclear Safety Program reflects the Department's commitment to improve the safety of Soviet-designed nuclear reactors abroad. Since 1992, DOE has led the U.S. Government's effort to reduce the health and environmental threats posed by the continued operation of aging nuclear reactors in Russia, Ukraine, and other countries in the region. The request supports improvements in management and operational safety, engineering and technology upgrades, and encourages development of a U.S. equivalent nuclear safety culture.

Environment, safety and health (Defense).—The Office of Environment, Safety and Health is a corporate resource that provides Departmental leadership and management to protect the workers, public, and environment. The programs in the Other Defense Activities are Oversight, Health Studies, and Radiation Effects Research Foundation support as well as Program Direction.

High energy physics.—This research program focuses on gaining insights into the fundamental constituents of matter, the fundamental forces in nature, and the transformations between matter and energy at the most elementary level. The program encompasses both experimental and theoretical particle physics research and related advanced accelerator and detector technology R&D. The primary mode of experimental research involves the study of collisions of energetic particles using large particle accelerators or colliding beam facilities.

Research in 1999 will continue to focus on studies of known fundamental particle constituents, the search for new particle constituents, and the pursuit of a unified description of the four fundamental forces in nature.

In addition to contributing to breakthrough discoveries such as the existence of the top quark, high energy physics research enhances national economic competitiveness. State-of-the-art technology developed for accelerators and detectors contribute to progress in fields such as fast electronics, high-speed computing, superconducting magnet technology, and high-power radio frequency devices. High energy physics research also continues to make major contributions to accelerator technology and provides the expertise necessary for the expansion of such technology into fields such as medical diagnostics, and applied research using synchrotron light sources.

The 1999 high energy physics budget request will support the continued operation of all three of the Department's major high energy physics facilities: the Tevatron, the Stanford Linear Collider (SLC), and the Alternating Gradient Synchrotron (AGS). In addition, $65 million, an increase of $30 million, is provided for the Department's FY 1999 contribution to U.S. participation in the Large Hadron Collider project at the European Center for Nuclear Research. Advance appropriations through 2004, totaling $329,000,000, are requested to complete the US contribution to the project.

The high energy physics R&D request provides funding for advanced accelerator and detector R&D that is necessary for next-generation high energy particle accelerators. The FY 1999 request provides $21.7 million to continue the fabrication of BaBar, the detector for the B-Factory, and the upgrades of the two detectors at Fermilab, the Collider Detector Facility and D-Zero. The request also includes $14.3 million for the neutrinos at the Main Injector Project and $6.7 million for Wilson Hall safety improvements; Advance appropriations of $64.9 million are requested to complete these projects.

Superconducting Super Collider.—The Department will continue the orderly termination of the Superconducting Super Collider (SSC) in 1999, as directed by Congress in the 1994 Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act. No additional funding for such activities is requested in 1999. Due to the efficiency of the SSC termination, $7.6 million in unobligated balances will be transferred to reduce the FY 1999 Science appropriation request.

Nuclear Physics.—The goal of the nuclear physics program is to understand the interactions and structure of atomic nuclei and to investigate fundamental particles and forces of nature as manifested in nuclear matter. In 1999, the program will continue to focus on the role of quarks in the composition and interactions of nuclei, the application of nuclear physics methods to astrophysical problems, the properties of neutrinos, and the mechanisms by which colliding nuclei exchange mass, energy, and angular momentum.

The nuclear physics program supports and provides experimental equipment to qualified scientists and research groups conducting experiments at nuclear physics accelerator facilities. In addition, nuclear physics accelerators generate many of the radioisotopes used for medical diagnosis and treatments; support several cooperative programs in biomedical research and atomic physics; and provide training opportunities for health physicists concerned with radiation-effects on humans.

The Thomas Jefferson National Accelerator Facility/Continuous Electron Beam Accelerator Facility experimental program began in FY 1996 and will continue in FY 1999 with the conduct of research in all three experimental halls. Experimental operations have also been initiated at the Radioactive Ion Beam facility in Oak Ridge National Laboratory and will continue in 1999. Operation of ATLAS (ANL), TAGS (BNL), and the 88-inch cyclotron (LBNL) will be supported, as will the operation of the university-based accelerator laboratories.

Relativistic Heavy Ion Collider (RHIC) construction will be completed in the third quarter of FY 1999 and will begin operations in the fourth quarter. Funding for the AGS accelerator will be transferred from the High Energy Physics program to the Nuclear Physics program as it becomes the injector for the RHIC.

Biological and environmental research.—This program develops the knowledge base necessary to identify, understand, and anticipate the long-term health and environmental consequences of energy use and development and utilizes the Department's unique scientific and technological capabilities to solve major scientific problems in the environment, medicine, and biology. Planned 1999 activities include programs in global climate change; terrestrial, atmospheric and marine environmental processes; molecular, cellular and systemic studies on the biological effects of radiation, including radon emissions; structural biology; and medical applications of nuclear technology and the Human Genome Program. Funding for the Human Genome Program is provided to allow for high throughput human DNA sequencing. A carbon management science program is beginning in FY 1999, focusing on science related to carbon sequestration and sequencing of genomes of microbes that use carbon dioxide to produce methane and hydrogen.

Basic Energy Sciences.—The Basic Energy Sciences (BES) program funds basic research in the physical, biological and engineering sciences that support the Department's nuclear and non-nuclear technology programs. The BES program is responsible for operating large national user research facilities, including synchrotron light and neutron sources, and a combustion research facility, as well as smaller user facilities such as materials preparation and electron microscopy centers.

The BES program also supports a substantial basic research budget for materials sciences, chemical sciences, energy biosciences, engineering and the geosciences. The program supports a number of research areas that are unique within the Federal government; in many basic research areas, such as materials science, funding provided by the BES program represents a large percentage, or even the sole source of Federal funding.

The 1999 BES budget request includes continued support to maintain utilization of the Department's large state-of-the-art science facilities. The proposed funding will maintain the quality of service and availability of facility resources to users, including university and government scientists, as well as private companies who rely on unique BES facilities for their basic research needs. Research areas that will benefit from the facilities funding include structural biology, materials science, superconductor technology, and medical research and technology development. The request also includes funding for an instrumentation enhancement of the Department's neutron source at the Los Alamos Neutron Scattering Center.

In addition, the BES request includes $157 million in FY 1999 to initiate construction at Oak Ridge National Laboratory for the national Spallation Neutron Source (SNS) to meet the Nation's neutron scattering needs. The SNS will provide significant scientific, technical, and economic benefits that derive from neutron scattering and materials irradiation research and the production of medical isotopes. This world class Neutron source will enable the Nation to carry out major research activities in areas such as biology, materials science, superconductivity, pharmaceuticals, electronic materials, and many other technological areas that are critical for future U.S. economic competitiveness and national security. This activity also funds a small portion of the climate change program initiative.

University and Science Education.—This program will continue to provide leadership and program support necessary to use the resources of the Department's laboratories to help replenish the overall pool of well-trained, diverse scientists and engineers of the future and to achieve significant long term improvements in their scientific and technological skills.

Energy research analyses.—This activity involves the independent assessment of existing or proposed technological initiatives, including examination of the base of research that underlies energy supply and utilization technologies.

Multiprogram energy laboratories facilities support.—The goal of the multiprogram energy laboratories facilities support program is to provide funds for rehabilitating, replacing or demolishing deficient common-use utilities, roads, and buildings and to correct Environment, Safety and Health deficiencies at the multiprogram laboratories.

Computational and Technology Research (CTR).—This program includes research in Mathematical, Information, and Computational Sciences and Advanced Energy Projects. The program also includes Laboratory Technology Research activities formerly budgeted as the Technology Transfer program. The purpose of the CTR program is to provide an integrated program in long term computational and technology research to address complex problems. The program also supports the operation of large supercomputer user facilities. The FY 1999 budget request includes $22 million for the "Next Generation Internet" Initiative.

Research Fund for America.—Funding for the national Spallation Neutron Source is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Funding to Augment Science is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The purpose of energy supply research and development activities is to develop new energy technologies and improve existing energy technologies. Included in this mission are basic and applied research and targeted programs in technology development and market deployment.

This account provides funds for operating expenses, and capital equipment for the advancement of the various energy technologies under examination in the energy supply, research and development mission.

Solar and renewable energy technology.—A strong, balanced program is proposed for FY 1999 that will contribute to strengthening the Nation's energy security, providing a cleaner environment, enhancing global sales of U.S. energy products, and increasing industrial competitiveness and federal technology transfer. The solar and renewable energy program is a major component of the Administration's activities to address global climate change. Program activities range from basic cost-shared research in universities and national laboratories to applied research, development, and field validations in full partnership with private sector manufacturers.

The FY 1999 program continues to work in partnership with industry to develop and promote the use of solar and renewable energy. Specific goals or activities of solar and renewable energy programs include: (1) in photovoltaics: an industry-driven effort in research, production, engineering, and market development; (2) in solar buildings: a focus on cooperative industry and utility efforts to effectively use advanced solar technology for water heating; (3) in solar thermal: working with industry to develop reliable and efficient power tower and dish/engine systems, while reducing the costs of these emerging technologies and existing parabolic trough systems; (4) in wind energy: developing and testing utility-grade wind turbines in collaboration with utilities and industry; and (5) in biofuels: continued R&D to achieve further reductions in biomass power and biofuels production costs, and to develop high-efficiency thermochemical and biochemical conversion technologies. In addition to these specific technologies, the 1999 Budget continues to take advantage of the synergies between emerging biomass power technologies and new biomass liquid fuel technologies. These developments raise the prospect of profitable "energy crop" farming by rural Americans early in the next century, accompanied by improved rural economic development, increased environmental protection in both urban and rural areas, and new global market opportunities for power technology providers.

The Solar and Renewable Energy programs also include ongoing support for: (1) international solar energy programs such as the interagency Committee on Renewable Commerce and Trade (CORECT), and (2) renewable energy, outreach information, and technical assistance programs.

The Geothermal Energy program supports work with industry and the utility sector to reduce the life-cycle cost of producing electricity with geothermal resources. The Hydropower program addresses the primary environmental mitigation issues associated with licensing and sustaining hydropower production. The Electric Energy Systems and Storage Programs include the development of advanced energy storage systems and the development of wires and power equipment employing advanced high temperature superconducting technology. A key element of the effort is the Superconductivity Partnership Initiative, an industry-DOE collaboration intended to speed the commercialization of superconductivity products. The program continues to produce world-record R&D advances. Energy Storage develops advanced technologies to facilitate the increased utilization of renewable resources. In the Hydrogen program, R&D efforts are focused on reducing the cost of hydrogen production, increasing the capability of hydrogen storage, and validating the benefits of using hydrogen by integrating advanced technologies.

Nuclear Fission.—Nuclear fission programs represent much of the federal government's core competency in nuclear technology. This expertise is critical in assuring that, through its unique research and development activities, the United States government can respond to nuclear energy resource, national security, and safety issues. Because of the nation's reliance on these vital technologies, the Department of Energy continues to invest in services, products, and technologies that are beyond the capability of private industry to fund alone.

The FY 1999 budget request supports the recommendations of the President's Committee of Advisors on Science and Technology (PCAST) to develop an investigator-initiated, peer-reviewed research and development program that will address key issues affecting the future of nuclear energy, including nuclear waste storage and disposal, nuclear plant economics and operational safety, and potential for weapons proliferation, that currently impede nuclear energy from becoming a viable and acceptable energy option in the United States. Projects proposed by universities, national laboratories, and industry will be selected competitively, and partnerships and industry cost-sharing will be encouraged. The Administration's proposal also supports the PCAST recommendation to initiate a cost-shared program with industry to address issues that could impact the continued operation of the nation's 107 nuclear power plants.

Nuclear fission program also include ongoing support to: (1) build and deliver advanced nuclear power systems to NASA and other federal agencies; (2) maintain an adequate supply of radioisotopes for medical and research purposes;

(3) ensure continued U.S. leadership in nuclear technology by supporting nuclear education initiatives; (4) oversee the legacy of the nation's uranium supply and enrichment activities; and (5) complete a demonstration and comprehensive evaluation of the viability and cost-effectiveness of electrometallurgical methods of treating the Department's spent nuclear fuels, taking into account its overall environmental management strategy and the requirements of its geologic disposal program. Funding to continue surveillance and maintenance responsibilities at the Fast Flux Test Facility (FFTF) in Hanford, WA will be transferred from the Office of Environmental Management. The FFTF may have potential application to address the nation's need for new sources of Tritium production.

Environment, safety and health.—The Office of Environment, Safety and Health is a corporate resource that fosters Departmental excellence through innovative leadership in the protection of workers, the public, and the environment. This commitment to excellence will be demonstrated by striving for continuous improvement in developing meaningful programs and policies; conducting independent oversight of environment, safety, health and security performance; and providing technical assistance, resources and information sharing.

The 1999 budget request for the Office of Environment, Safety and Health reflects these priorities. It is important to note that the budget request for the Office of Environment, Safety and Health programs is contained in two accounts: this and Other Defense Activities. The funding in this account supports Technical Assistance, National Environmental Policy Act program, Management and Administration, and Program Direction.

Fusion Energy Sciences Program.—At the direction of the Congress, and with guidance from the National Academy of Sciences and the Department of Energy's Fusion Energy Advisory Committee, the Fusion Energy Sciences Program was significantly restructured in FY 1997. The newly restructured program emphasizes the underlying basic research in plasma and fusion sciences, with the long-term goal of harnessing fusion as a viable energy source. The program centers on the following goals: understanding the physics of plasmas; identification and exploration of innovative and cost effective development paths to fusion energy; and exploration of the science and technology of energy producing plasmas, as a partner in an international effort.

The budget request of $228 million provides for support of basic research in plasma science, plasma containment research, and investigation of tokamak alternatives, along with continued operation of DIII-D and Alcator C-Mod. The Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor (TFTR) was shut down in FY 1997 with remaining staff collaborating on other machines both domestically and internationally. Fabrication of the NSTX experiment at PPPL will continue. The FY 1999 budget provides $12 million for the International Thermonuclear Reactor (ITER) joint baseline design following completion of the U.S. participation in the ITER Engineering and Design Activity (EDA), which will be completed in FY 1998. The U.S. plans to continue to participate in the ITER process to support international collaboration in fusion, including the evaluation of a variety of options for a next-generation machine. ITER would address the broad physics and engineering challenges that are generic to any next step toward the goal of fusion energy, and is also consistent with the fusion energy science mission.

Technical information management program.—This program contributes to DOE's missions in advancing energy and nuclear defense technologies and protecting U.S. economic and military security through the effective management and control of the Department's scientific and technical knowledge which is contained in its information resources. Major objectives are the effective management, control, and use of the results of DOE's multibillion dollar research program, and the acquisition and management of results of worldwide investment in energy R&D.

Policy and management.—Provides executive direction, management assistance, and administrative support to all programs within energy supply activities.

Field Operations.—This account funds the Department's multiprogram Field Operations Offices. The four affected field operations offices are located at Chicago, Idaho, Oak Ridge, and Oakland. They perform functions in support of energy activities throughout the country. Among these functions are field procurement, engineering and construction management, environmental safety and health monitoring, property management, labor relations, legal counsel, and maintenance of personnel and financial systems. These federal employees conduct the management oversight of the management and operating contractor employees spread across the four field installations.

Research Fund for America.—Funding for Fusion is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Environmental Management.—The Office of Environmental Management (EM) manages the thousands of contaminated areas and buildings, large waste volumes, and nuclear materials left over from the nuclear weapons production process. In June 1996, EM began working toward a long-range goal of completing cleanup at most sites within a decade. FY 1999 represents the first fiscal year in which the budget structure is based on projects. This budget structure differentiates by completion dates and end states rather than by activities performed.

The FY 1999 budget request will support the following major program areas:

Site Closure.—Provides funding for sites that will meet the goal of site closure by 2006. The creation of this account supports the reduction of long-term costs. There will not be a Departmental mission at sites within this account beyond 2006 except for limited long-term surveillance and maintenance (i.e., pump and treat). Examples of sites included under this account are Monticello, Utah; and Weldon Spring, Missouri.

Site/Project Completion.—Provides funding for projects that will be completed by 2006 at national laboratories or other facilities where DOE will continue to have a presence beyond the year 2006. Examples of sites with projects included in this account are Argonne-East, Illinois; and the Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, Idaho.

Post 2006 Completion.—Provides funding for projects that will continue after 2006. Included are projects at various sites including the Oak Ridge Reservation, Tennessee.

Office of Science and Technology.—Conducts technology development activities which focus on the Department's major environmental management issues to reduce risk to workers, the public, and the environment, reduce cleanup costs; and/or provide solutions that do not exist to current problems shared by multiple sites.

Activities performed include: environmental restoration, which provides for assessments, characterization, remediation, and decontamination and decommissioning of contaminated DOE facilities and sites; waste management, which provides for the safe, treatment, storage, and disposal of wastes generated by defense activities; and, nuclear material and facility stabilization, which provides for stabilization, safeguarding, interim storage, and stewardship of excess nuclear materials, awaiting ultimate disposition.

EM will continue to improve the efficiency of its programs through a variety of management and contracting strategies. In addition to privatization efforts, emphasis will continue on the reduction of support costs and implementation of performance-based contracts.

The Fossil Energy R&D programs support the Energy Policy Act through research and development that will strengthen the technology base on which industry can draw in developing future new products and processes for the commercial market. The programs support activities ranging from basic research in universities and national laboratories to applied R&D and proof-of-concept projects in private sector firms.

The Fossil Energy R&D programs will continue limited Federal support of company-specific technology development and demonstration activities. The program continues to fund high-priority, high risk and cross-cutting research that will improve the Nation's ability to cleanly and efficiently use coal, and to enhance the economic recovery of our oil and gas reserves.

Coal R&D.—Programs will continue to focus on meeting the new goals and objectives and changing mission of the Department of Energy. An integrated research and development program consisting of: (1) Advanced Clean/Efficient Power Systems, (2) Advanced Fuels Research, and (3) Advanced Research and Technology Development continues to advance clean coal technology development.

Advanced clean/efficient Power Systems research and development concentrates on a set of building-block technologies that will yield the clean coal power generation systems of the future. Typically, many technologies contribute toward advancing any single system. By focusing on building-block technologies that will improve a variety of systems, the Department's program makes optimal use of funds for development and demonstration. These systems that hold great promise for commercial use include: Advanced Pulverized Coal-fired Powerplants, High Efficiency Pressurized Fluidized Bed Combustion, High Efficiency Integrated Gasification Combined Cycles, Indirectly Fired Cycles, and Advanced Research and Environmental Technology.

The Advanced Clean Fuels Research program will conduct activities to develop clean methods to produce coal-derived liquid fuels. This research consists of Coal Preparation, Direct Liquefaction, Indirect Liquefaction, and Advanced Research & Environmental Technology.

Oil and gas.—The oil program encompasses new and improved oil recovery and related research and development, industry cost-shared demonstration of improved and advanced oil recovery methods, and environmental research activities directed to facilitate environmentally acceptable exploration and production of domestic oil resources. The Department plans to discontinue research directed to improve technology needed to economically refine domestic crude oils.

The natural gas program emphasizes enhanced gas production, storage technology, and high efficiency, low NO<sub>x</sub> turbines.

As in all other programs, industry and Gas Research Institute cost-sharing is a key feature. The national laboratory partnership focuses on the transfer of Defense-developed technology to the oil and gas industry. The fuel cells program will continue to support development of highly efficient, environmental friendly technologies for generating electrical and thermal energy.

The request also includes funding for the advanced metallurgical research program at the Albany Research Center in Oregon, which was formerly funded by the Bureau of Mines.

Program direction and management support.—This program provides the funding for all Headquarters and indirect field personnel and overhead expenses in Fossil Energy. In addition, it provides support for day-to-day project management functions.

Environmental restoration.—The Department of Energy is assisting in payments for the environmental clean-up of former Fossil Energy projects as required by the Environmental Protection Agency. Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act (CERCLA) sites include the Western Superfund Site at Ft. Lewis, Washington, and the Rock Springs and Hoe Creek Sites in Wyoming. Resource Conservation Recovery Act (RCRA) efforts are underway at the Federal Energy Technology Center Morgantown Office (formerly the Morgantown Energy Technology Center) to eliminate cross-connections between sewer and storm water lines, and at the Federal Energy Technology Center Pittsburgh Office (formerly the Pittsburgh Energy Technology Center) to clean up contaminated soil and monitor groundwater. In addition, as a result of internal DOE evaluations other efforts are underway at both sites of the Federal Energy Technology Center to correct a number of other environmental problems.

Fuels conversion.—This program will continue regulatory reviews and oversight of the transmission of natural gas and electricity across the U.S. borders and to process certifications of alternate fuel capability.

Research Fund for America.—Funding for the Climate Change Technology Initiative is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

In the past, this program has included activities necessary to operate, explore, conserve, develop, and produce oil, gas, and associated hydrocarbons from the naval petroleum reserves at the maximum efficient rate, and to conserve and protect the oil shale reserves. This has included routine operation and maintenance, development and exploration drilling, environmental and conservation work, and construction and installation of on-reserve facilities and related systems required for the collection, storage, and distribution of produced petroleum and related products. The naval petroleum reserves has been a positive source of revenue for the Treasury since the resulting oil and gas production was sold commercially.

Public Law 104-106 required the sale of Elk Hills by February 10, 1998. Elk Hills is the major oil and natural gas field located near Bakersfield, California that accounts for the bulk of this program. Accordingly, DOE structured a competitive sale, and, on October 6, 1997, announced it agreed to sell all of the government's interest in Elk Hills to Occidental Petroleum for $3.65 billion, retroactive to October 1, 1997. Closing the transaction is scheduled to occur on February 2, 1998.

Public Law 104-106 also required DOE to retain an independent petroleum consultant to conduct a study to determine the best options for maximizing the value of the remaining Reserves. The study recommends the Department retain NPR-3 (Teapot Dome). While efforts will continue to be directed toward maintaining a positive net cash flow through normal operations, the work at Teapot Dome will increasingly focus on environmental remediation, abandoning marginal and unproductive wells, and preparation for abandonment when the oil field reaches its economic limit. Although no future development activities are planned, NPR-3 should continue to operate economically through approximately FY 2003. At that time, subject to authorizing legislation, NPR-3 is expected to be turned over to the private sector or abandoned, coinciding with completion of the well abandonment program which commences in FY 1998.

Under the Rocky Mountain Oilfield Testing Center (RMOTC) program, the naval petroleum reserves offers Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 3 (Teapot Dome) to the oil industry for use as a working laboratory on a cost-sharing basis. Teapot Dome is a unique opportunity for the industry to test and evaluate innovative production techniques in an impartial setting. Eventually, the naval petroleum reserve program hopes to transfer the RMOTC program to a consortium of private and educational institutions for continued operation.

The Administration's energy efficiency programs produce substantial benefits for the Nation—both now and in the future—in terms of economic growth, increased national security and a cleaner environment through the research and development of energy efficiency and pollution prevention technologies. These programs carry out the Department's responsibility under the bipartisan Energy Policy Act of 1992 and other major pieces of authorizing legislation.

The dollar benefits of our carefully constructed programs—to industries, homeowners, and commercial firms—far exceed program costs. Furthermore, the technologies developed in these programs create jobs and global market opportunities for U.S. firms. These programs are a major component of the Administration's climate change response, and when the benefits to energy security and the environment are included, it is clear that these programs represent important investments in a clean, productive future.

In total, the Department's energy efficiency programs are projected to save consumers and businesses over $20 billion per year by the year 2010. Our transportation technologies research is designed to reduce oil imports thereby substantially reducing the cost of imported oil.

The activities and programs contained in the 1999 Budget Request represent a balanced portfolio of research and development, applied research and demonstration, and market introduction. Virtually all of the research and development programs are conducted jointly with industrial partners who share significantly in research costs, often paying 33 to 50 percent or more. Similarly, demonstration and deployment programs are specifically designed to leverage the existing programs and the efforts of utilities and existing state and local government programs in energy efficiency and pollution prevention.

Building Technology, State and Community Programs.—Research and development to improve the energy efficiency of appliances, building equipment, and the building envelope is complemented by new programs designed to move advanced technologies into the marketplace and produce near-term energy savings with associated economic and environmental benefits. Voluntary partnerships for lowering the barriers to cost-effective, new technologies based on the Energy Policy Act of 1992 represent collaborations with many stakeholders, including manufacturers, utilities, State and local organizations, and the general public. The program to develop appliance and lighting test procedures and standards is utilizing new collaborative processes and analytical approaches in order to ensure participation by all interested stakeholders. The program to encourage building efficiency codes and standards will focus on expanded voluntary programs. The State and Local Partnership Program, which includes the Weatherization Assistance Program and the State Energy Program is designed to promote the adoption of energy efficient and renewable technologies among States, municipalities, institutions, and by private citizens.

Federal Energy Management Program.—The Federal Energy Management Program (FEMP) will continue to reduce the cost of government by advancing energy efficiency and water conservation, and to use renewable energy as a means to reduce energy costs. FEMP's major emphasis will be on using private sector investments to retrofit federal facilities using energy savings performance contracting, thus leveraging federal dollars to the maximum.

Industrial Sector.—The program focuses on funding cost-shared research in critical technology areas identified by industry. Through its "Industries of the Future" initiative, the Office of Industrial Technologies (OIT) encourages the most energy-intensive industries to develop a strategic vision and a "technology roadmap" to help achieve that vision. By identifying and prioritizing their technology needs, the industries help OIT target its R&D resources toward where they can do the most good. The energy-intensive and environmentally sensitive industries targeted by OIT include chemicals, petroleum refining, forest products, steel, aluminum, metal casting, and glass. The focus is on high risk but promising technologies that decrease these industries' use of raw materials and depletable energy resources and reduce generation of wastes and pollutants. OIT's Industries of the Future R&D portfolio is balanced with crosscutting technology development programs in such areas as cogeneration, advanced materials and combustion. In addition, technology access programs such as Motor Challenge, the National Industrial Competitiveness through Energy, Environment and Economics (NICE3) program, Climate Wise, Invention and Innovation and the Industrial Assessment Centers help further round out OIT's overall portfolio.

Transportation Sector.—The program continues development and commercialization of technologies which can radically alter current projections of U.S. and world demand for energy, particularly oil. The program represents a major portion of the Partnership for the Next Generation of Vehicles with its significant improvements in fuel economy and environmental emissions including criteria pollutants and carbon dioxide. Program priorities reflect work on technologies which are most critical to achieve a tripling of light duty vehicles fuel economy, including hybrid vehicles, fuel cells, compression ignition direct injection diesel engines, and advanced materials technologies that improve engine efficiency and reduce weight. In addition, the program will continue to develop alternative fuels and vehicles, and advanced batteries that enable the use of electricity as an alternative fuel, and technologies for enabling fuel flexibility and fuel economy in heavy trucks. These activities include demonstrating advanced alternative fuel vehicles that provide improved range and reduced emissions, with performance equivalent to conventional vehicles; accelerating the use of alternative fuels and vehicles through implementation of Energy Policy Act programs; and continuing support for the U.S. Advanced Battery Consortium and demonstrating continued progress in improving range and performance for electric and hybrid vehicles.

Policy and Management.—This activity provides program management for all of the Energy Conservation programs, and supports management in the development of policy and program evaluation for energy conservation programs to ensure effective program delivery.

Research Fund for America.—Funding for the Climate Change Technology Initiative is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The object of this program is to reduce the vulnerability of the United States to energy supply disruptions by maintaining a crude oil stockpile capable of rapid deployment at the direction of the President. This program enables the President to meet the Nation's membership commitments within the International Energy Agency's coordinated energy emergency response plans and programs to deter the use of energy supply disruptions and to take effective, co-ordinated action should such an energy supply disruption occur.

The account provides for petroleum reserve storage facility construction, ongoing operations and maintenance activities, planning studies, and program administration.

The key measure of program performance is expressed as capability to comply with Level 1 Performance Criteria. These criteria are specific engineered performance and reliability standards applied to critical inventory storage, drawdown, and distribution systems required for drawing down and distributing crude oil inventory.

This account provides for the acquisition, transportation, and injection of petroleum into the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and for its drawdown and distribution. The budget proposes no additional appropriations in 1999 for SPR oil purchases. The small remaining balance will support drawdown/distribution readiness and the incremental costs of drawdown in the event of an energy emergency.

This program supports energy information activities which are designed to provide timely, accurate and relevant energy information for use by the Administration, the Congress, and the general public. The activities funded in this program include the design, development and maintenance of information systems on petroleum, natural gas, coal, nuclear, electricity, alternate fuel sources, and energy consumption. This includes collecting data and ensuring its accuracy; preparing forecasts of alternative energy futures; and preparing reports on energy sources, end-uses, prices, supply and demand, and associated environmental, economic, international, and financial matters. In addition, the National Energy Information Center disseminates statistical and analytical publications, reports, and data files in hard-copy and electronic formats, and responds to public inquiries. Finally, this activity provides survey and statistical design standards, documentation standards, and energy data public-use forms clearance and burden control services.

Research Fund for America.—Funding for the Climate Change Technology Initiative is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Compliance.—This program, administered by the Office of General Counsel, is responsible for resolving all remaining enforcement actions to ensure that oil companies complied with petroleum regulations in effect prior to decontrol of oil in January 1981.

Hearings and appeals.—The Office of Hearings and Appeals issues all final orders of an adjudicatory nature other than those over which the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission or the Board of Contract Appeals have jurisdiction. It decides appeals of petroleum enforcement actions and administers refund proceedings involving funds obtained as a result of petroleum enforcement actions. This office is also responsible for (a) conducting hearings and issuing initial agency decisions on "whistleblower" complaints made under the DOE Contractor Employee Protection Program, (b) appeals of Freedom of Information and Privacy Act Determinations, (c) "Payment-Equal-to-Taxes" determinations made under the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, as amended, (d) conducting personnel security administrative review hearings, and (e) requests for exception relief. The FY 1999 funding request is limited to expenses related to Petroleum overcharge cases.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) is charged with regulating certain interstate aspects of the natural gas, oil pipeline, hydropower, and electric industries. Such regulation includes issuing licenses and certificates for construction of facilities, approving rates, inspecting dams, implementing compliance and enforcement activities, and providing other services to regulated businesses. In 1999, these businesses will pay fees and charges sufficient to recover the Government's full costs of operations.

The Commission's FY 1999 budget is structured to implement the Administration's policy to fund discretionary programs with user fees that are offsetting collections. While revenues collected in FY 1999 will continue to offset the Commission's appropriation, the collections will not be available for obligation in FY 1999. For FY 2000 and subsequent years, budget levels set by appropriations acts will be made available from the previous year's collections retained in this account. In the event of insufficient revenue, a General Fund appropriation will be requested. Any excess funds remaining after appropriation of offsetting collections will be returned to the Treasury.

Natural gas and oil.—The Commission is responsible for the regulation of about 150 natural gas pipeline companies and 130 common carrier oil pipelines including the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System. The Commission issues certificates authorizing natural gas pipelines to construct and operate new facilities and to provide new services; determines just and reasonable rates for the interstate transportation of natural gas and oil on the pipelines subject to the Commission's jurisdiction; and authorizes tariff provisions, as appropriate, to allow the gas and oil pipelines to adjust their services to meet their customers' needs and the pipelines' needs to meet competition in their markets. The Commission has and will continue to develop creative and flexible pricing policies and new and innovative services to address the changing competitive marketplace in both the gas and oil industries. While working to assure the industries are able to meet their service requirements by staying economically healthy, the Commission will continue to assure that environmental concerns from construction projects are properly addressed and that the public interest is protected when new services or pricing mechanisms are authorized.

Hydropower.—The Commission issues preliminary permits, exemptions, and licenses, including relicenses, for non-federal hydroelectric projects, enforces their terms and conditions, and performs dam safety inspections. The Commission regulates more than 1,600 hydroelectric projects which supply about 5 percent of the electric energy generated in the United States. The Commission also performs investigations to determine the amount of headwater benefits that are derived from Federally-owned and FERC-licensed headwater improvements and returned more than $7 million in revenues to the U.S. Treasury in 1997.

Electric power.—The Commission is responsible for setting rates for the interstate transmission and wholesale sales of electric energy and for authorizing certain public utility corporate transactions. The Commission approves rates for all Federal power marketing administrations except TVA. Since enactment of the Energy Policy Act of 1992, the Commission has introduced a number of initiatives to foster competition in the generation sector of the electric utility industry while continuing to ensure system reliability. In 1996, the Commission issued Order Nos. 888 and 889, which require all jurisdictional public utilities to provide open access transmission service to all customers under standard terms and conditions. In the wake of Order Nos. 888 and 889, new market institutions are developing. For example, many utilities are turning over control of their transmission systems to Independent System Operators, which requires Commission approval. The Commission also certifies three special classes of power generators: cogeneration facilities, small power production facilities, and exempt wholesale generators.

Public Law 99-190, making continuing appropriations for 1986, provided $400 million from funds in the Energy Security Reserve in the Department of the Treasury for a new Clean Coal Technology program in the Department of Energy. This program was authorized under the Clean Coal Technology Reserve proviso of Public Law 98-473 to subsidize the construction and operation of facilities to demonstrate the potential commercial feasibility of such technologies.

Termination of the domestic Clean Coal Technology program, after completion of projects now underway, is part of the President's realignment of the Department of Energy. The Administration's policy calls for limiting the program's existing domestic projects which have been selected under contract. If a project is canceled, the canceled project's funding will either be used to meet the needs of remaining on-going projects, or will be rescinded if the funds are not needed by the program.

This program was established in 1980 for the purpose of expediting the development and production of alternative fuels.

When the Synthetic Fuels Corporation was declared to be operational in 1982, the uncommitted and unobligated funds remaining in the program were transferred to the Energy Security Reserve for use by the Synthetic Fuels Corporation, with the exception of the loan guarantee for the Great Plains Gasification Project, which remained under the jurisdiction of the Department of Energy. The Department exercised its authority to borrow from the Treasury to repay the Federal Financing Bank upon default of the borrower in 1985. This loan was repaid, along with accrued interest, by a Supplemental appropriation in 1986. The Department acquired ownership of the Great Plains plant by foreclosure, which was completed on July 14, 1986, and continued operation of the plant without the expenditure of appropriated funds. On October 31, 1988, the Department completed the process of establishing an asset purchase agreement for the Great Plains Gasification Plant by settlement with Basin Electric Power Cooperative Association. Responsibilities for other related agreements—Trust Agreement, Gas Transportation Agreement, Gas Purchase Agreement—were also settled. Under the terms of the asset purchase agreement a check for $85 million was provided to the Government as an initial payment. These agreements are currently the subject of litigation between the Department, Dakota Gasification Company and the four pipeline companies which purchase the synthetic gas from the plant. Future revenue sharing payments to the Department are dependent upon the outcome of this litigation as well as natural gas prices.

The parties to litigation negotiated settlement agreements in principle in December 1993. Settlement agreements dated February 16, 1994, have been signed. These settlement agreements resolve all past disputes as well as restructure the Gas Purchase Agreements pricing provisions. The settlement agreements are contingent upon final Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) approval.

One of the four pipeline companies, which purchases 20 percent of the plant's output of synthetic natural gas received Federal Energy Regulatory Commission final approval in December 1994 for its settlement agreement. On December 18, 1996 initial FERC approval was granted for the remaining three pipeline companies in FERC Opinion 410.

Title XXXIV, Subtitle B of Public Law 104-106 requires the Department to sell government's interest in Naval Petroleum Reserve No. 1 (Elk Hills) pursuant to the terms of the Act. The sale is scheduled to occur in February 1998, following a statutorily-required 31-day congressional review period.

Section 3415 of the Act requires, among other things, that the Department make an offer of settlement based on the fair value of the State of California's longstanding claims to two parcels of land ("school lands") within the Reserve. Under the Act, as is provided for in appropriation acts, nine percent of the net proceeds is to be reserved in contingent fund in the Treasury for payment to the State. In compliance with the Act and in order to remove any cloud over title which could diminish the sales value of the Reserve, the Department entered into a Settlement Agreement with the State on October 18, 1996. That Agreement calls for payment to the State, subject to appropriations, of nine percent of the net proceeds of sale, payable over a seven-year period (without interest), commencing in Fiscal Year 1999. Under the Settlement Agreement and provided that funds are appropriated, the first five installments are for $36,000,000 each year, and the remaining balance is to be paid in two equal installments in years six and seven, FY 2004 and FY 2005.

The nuclear waste disposal program consists of efforts related to the development, acquisition, and operation of facilities for the disposal of civilian and defense high level nuclear waste. These activities are funded by appropriations from the Nuclear Waste Fund which is paid for by the users of the disposal service, and the Defense Nuclear Waste Disposal account, which was established by Congress as part of the 1993 Energy and Water Development Appropriation (P.L. 102-377) in lieu of a payment from the Department of Energy into the Nuclear Waste Fund for activities related to the disposal of defense high-level waste.

In FY 1999, the Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management Program will focus on the completion of activities that are in direct support of key program milestones that are planned for completion within the next several fiscal years. The ongoing technical, scientific, and environmental documentation activities continue to be critical to the Program's ability to meet successfully three of the most significant milestones since the Program's inception—issuance of the Final Environmental Impact Statement and accompanying Record of Decision in 2000; preparation and submission of the Site Recommendation Report to the President in 2001 should the Yucca Mountain site be found suitable for development as a repository; and the preparation and submission of the License Application for repository construction to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in 2002.

The key FY 1999 activities that the Program will complete to support the major outyear milestones noted above are: 1) issuance of the draft Environmental Impact Statement for the Yucca Mountain site for public review and comment, as required by the National Environmental Policy Act; 2) completion of the Phase II Design of the Mined Geologic Disposal System to support the total system performance assessment that will be a key component of the Program's License Application for the Yucca Mountain site, should it be found suitable; and 3) completion of the Peer Review for the Total System Performance Assessment component of the Viability Assessment. This activity also supports the planned License Application.

The outyear funding for this account does not reflect the impact of the 1998 viability assessment.

The charter of the Department of Energy (DOE) Isotope Production and Distribution Program covers the production and sale of isotope products and related services to the user community utilizing Government-owned facilities. The isotopes produced by the Department are those that can be produced in existing DOE production and research facilities dedicated to the products required by the Isotope Production and Distribution program. The isotopes are sold at their market value or at a price determined to be in the best interest of the government for use in medical diagnoses and therapy, medical and scientific research, and industrial applications.

The Alaska Power Administration (APA) is responsible for operation and maintenance and power marketing for the Eklutna and Snettisham hydroelectric projects in accordance with the authorizing legislation for each project.

On November 28, 1995, the Alaska Power Administration Asset Sale and Termination Act (Public Law 104-58) was signed into law. Consistent with this legislation, APA's remaining activities will concentrate on the termination of the Alaska Power Administration and transfer of its assets to non-federal ownership by August 20, 1998. Unobligated balances will be used for these activities until APA is terminated in 1999.

The Southeastern Power Administration (SEPA) markets power generated at Corps of Engineers hydroelectric generating plants in an eleven-State area of the Southeast. Deliveries are made by means of transmission facilities owned by others. There are 23 projects now in operation.

SEPA sells wholesale power primarily to publicly and cooperatively-owned electric distribution utilities using wheeling and pooling agreements with the region's large private utilities to provide firm power to its customers. SEPA does not own or operate any transmission facilities. Its long-term contracts provide for periodic electric rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers costs of operation and capital invested in power, with interest, in keeping with statutory requirements.

The SEPA program includes the following activities:

Program direction.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenues, development of wholesale power rates, the amortization of power investment, investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatch of power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administration of contractual operation requirements, and determination of methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources. Proprietary receipts deposited in the Treasury were $154 million for fiscal year 1997 and are estimated to be $145 million for fiscal year 1998 and $170 million for fiscal year 1999.

Purchase power and wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of electricity in connection with disposal of power under contracts with utility companies. After FY 1999, SEPA customers will pay wheeling fees directly to transmission suppliers.

Based on Administration policy the Southeastern Power Administration will set rates, consistent with current law, to recover the full cost of the Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits, for its employees, that have not been recovered in the past. The estimated increase in receipts to the Treasury is $3 million annually.

For display purposes only, the unobligated balances of this account include a continuing fund of $50 thousand, maintained from receipts from the transmission and sale of electric power in the southeastern area, which is available to defray expenses necessary to ensure continuity of services (16 U.S.C. 825s-2).

The Southwestern Power Administration (Southwestern) operates in a six-State area as a marketing agent for hydroelectric power produced at Corps of Engineers dams. It also operates and maintains some 2,225 kilometers (1,380 miles) of high voltage transmission lines, 24 substations and switching stations, and 46 VHF radio and microwave stations. Southwestern sells its power at wholesale primarily to publicly and cooperatively owned electric distribution utilities. Its power sales contracts provide for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of operation and all capital invested in power, with interest, in keeping with statutory requirements.

Southwestern also is responsible for scheduling and dispatching power, negotiating power sales contracts, and constructing facilities required to meet changing customer load requirements.

Program Direction.—This activity provides for the overall direction and support of Southwestern's program activities and includes salaries and benefits, travel, support services and other related expenses such as rent, utilities, communications, supplies, materials and building maintenance.

Systems operation and maintenance.—Provision is made for engineering assessments of issues and alternatives that could adversely impact or optimize the operation of Southwestern's hydroelectric resources. Provision also is made for maintenance and improvement of the transmission system and related facilities to ensure reliable service, negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenue, development of wholesale power rates and the amortization of the power investment. Actual proprietary receipts in the amount of $102 million were deposited in the Treasury in 1997. Estimated proprietary receipts in the amount of $95 million in 1998 and $93 million in 1999 are expected.

Purchase power and wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of energy in connection with the marketing of power under contracts with utility companies.

Construction.—The construction program provides for transmission, substation, switching and control facility projects to transmit power generated at Corps of Engineers' hydroelectric projects in the Southwest. This program is coordinated with the Corps of Engineers' construction program and customer requirements.

Reimbursable program.—This program involves services provided by Southwestern Power Administration to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Based on Administration policy the Southwestern Power Administration will set rates, consistent with current law, to recover the full cost of the Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits, for its employees, that have not been recovered in the past. The estimated increase in receipts to the Treasury is $2 million annually.

For display purposes only, the unobligated balances of this account include a continuing fund of $300 thousand, which is replenished from power receipts and is available permanently for emergency expenses that would be necessary to ensure continuity of service (16 U.S.C. 825s-1; 63 Stat. 767; 65 Stat. 249).

The Western Area Power Administration (Western) markets electric power in 15 western States from federally-owned power plants operated primarily by the Bureau of Reclamation, Corps of Engineers, and the International Boundary and Water Commission. Western operates and maintains approximately 16,850 circuit-miles of high-voltage transmission lines and 258 substations/switchyards, and constructs additions and modifications to existing facilities.

In keeping with statutory requirements, Western's long-term power contracts allow for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers costs of operation, other costs allocated to power, and the capital investment in power facilities, with interest.

Systems operation and maintenance.—A total of 13 power systems will be operated and maintained.

Power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. Receipts are deposited in the Reclamation Fund, the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund, the General fund, the Colorado River Dam Fund, the Central Valley Project Restoration Fund, the Colorado River Basins Power Marketing Fund.

Purchase of power and wheeling.—The program provides for firming energy purchases and wheeling necessary to meet power sales authorized by law. Financing of this program consists of annual appropriated financing and non-appropriated financing (net billing, bill crediting Federal reimbursable, and non-Federal customer advances).

System construction.—Western's construction and rehabilitation activity emphasizes replacement and upgrades of existing infrastructure to sustain reliable power delivery to our customers, to contain annual maintenance costs, and to improve overall operational efficiency. Western will continue to participate in joint construction projects to encourage more widespread transmission access.

Program direction.—This activity provides compensation and all related expenses for the workforce that operates and maintains Western's high voltage interconnected transmission system (systems operation and maintenance program), and those that plan design, and supervise the construction of replacement, upgrades and additions (system construction program) to the transmission facilities.

Utah Mitigation and Conservation.—The request includes $5,036,000 for deposit into the Utah Reclamation Mitigation and Conservation Account in the U.S. Treasury, pursuant to Title IV of the Reclamation Projects Authorization and Adjustment Act of 1992. Funds are earmarked primarily for environmental mitigation expenditures in the State of Utah covering fish and wildlife, and recreation resources impacted by the Colorado River Storage Project.

Reimbursable program.—This program involves services provided by Western to others under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

Based on Administration policy, the Western Area Power Administration will set rates, consistent with current law, to recover the full cost of the Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits, for its employees, that have not been recovered in the past. The estimated increase in receipts to the Treasury is $8 million annually.

For display purposes only, the unobligated balances of this account include a continuing fund of $500 thousand, which is maintained from deposits to the Reclamation Fund, and is available to ensure continuous operation of power systems in the event of below normal hydropower generation, equipment failure, or other damage caused by acts of God, flood, drought, strikes, embargoes, or other conditions which might cause interruptions in service.

Pursuant to section 423(c) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995, Western Area Power Administration is requesting an appropriation from the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund, to defray operations, maintenance, and emergency (O,M&E) expenses for the hydroelectric facilities at Falcon and Amistad Dams on the Rio Grande River. Most of these funds will be made available to the United States Section of the International Boundary and Water Commission through a reimbursable agreement. $200,000 in the Fund is for an emergency reserve that will remain unobligated unless unanticipated expenses arise. Revenues in excess of O,M&E will be paid to the General Fund to repay the costs of replacements and the original investment with interest. Revenues resulting from the Falcon and Amistad dams power system operations are deposited to the Falcon and Amistad Operating and Maintenance Fund.

Public enterprise funds:

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION FUND

Expenditures from the Bonneville Power Administration Fund, established pursuant to Public Law 93-454, are approved for [the anadromous fish supplementation facilities in the Yakima River Basin, Methow River Basin and Upper Snake River Basin, for the Billy Shaw Reservoir resident fish substitution project, and for the resident trout fish culture facility in Southeast Idaho; and] official reception and representation expenses in an amount not to exceed $3,000.

During fiscal year [1998] 1999, no new direct loan obligations may be made. (Energy and Water Development Appropriations Act, 1998.)

Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) is the Federal electric power marketing agency in the Pacific Northwest. BPA markets hydroelectric power from 21 multipurpose water resource projects of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and 8 projects of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, plus some energy from non-Federal generating projects in the region. These generating resources and BPA's transmission system, planned by the end of 1999 to consist of an estimated 14,800 circuit miles of high-voltage transmission lines and 400 substations, are operated as an integrated power system with operating and financial results combined and reported as the Federal Columbia River Power System (FCRPS). BPA is the largest power wholesaler in the Northwest and provides about one-half of the region's electric energy supply and about four-fifths of the region's electric power transmission capacity.

BPA is responsible for meeting the net firm power requirements of its requesting customers through a variety of means, including energy conservation programs, acquisition of renewable and other resources, and power exchanges with utilities both in and outside the region.

BPA will finance its operations on the basis of the self-financing authority provided by Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act of 1974 (Transmission Act) (Public Law 93-454) and the new borrowing authority provided by the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act (Pacific Northwest Power Act) (Public Law 96-501) for energy conservation, renewable energy resources and capital fish facilities. Authority to borrow is available to the BPA on a permanent, indefinite basis. The amount of borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $3.75 billion.

Operating expenses: Transmission Services Business Line.—Provides funding from revenues for electric transmission research and development and program support of the capital investment program described below for transmission services. Provides for operating an estimated 14,800 miles of line and 400 substations, and for maintaining the facilities and equipment of the Bonneville transmission system in 1999.

Power Business Line.—Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective resources. These resources are needed to serve BPA's portion of the region's forecasted net electric load requirements. Also includes protection, mitigation and enhancement of fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act. Provides for payment of the operation and maintenance (O&M) costs of the 29 U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation power generation projects, and amortization on the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation capital investment in power generating facilities and irrigation assistance at Bureau facilities. Also provides for extending the benefits of low cost Federal power to the residential and small farm customers of investor-owned and publicly-owned utilities, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act and for activities of the Pacific Northwest Electric Power and Conservation Planning Council required by the Pacific Northwest Power Act.

Energy Efficiency.—Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation.

Interest.—Provides for payments to the U.S. Treasury for interest on borrowings to finance BPA's transmission services, conservation, capital equipment, fish and wildlife, and associated projects capital programs under $3.75 billion borrowing authority provided by the Transmission Act as amended by the Pacific Northwest Power Act and replenished by Public Law 98-50. This category also includes interest on Corps of Engineers, BPA and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation appropriated debt.

Capital Investments: Transmission Services Business Line.—Provides for the planning, design and construction of transmission lines, substation and control system additions, replacements, and enhancements to the FCRPS transmission system for a reliable, efficient and cost-effective regional transmission system. Provides for planning, design, and construction work to repair or replace existing transmission lines, substations, control systems, and general facilities of the FCRPS transmission system.

Power Business Line.—Provides for direct funding of additions, improvements, and replacements at existing Federal hydroelectric projects in the Northwest. Also provides for capital investments to implement environmental activities, and protect, mitigate, and enhance fish and wildlife affected by hydroelectric facilities on the Columbia River and its tributaries, in accordance with the Pacific Northwest Power Act.

Energy Efficiency.—Provides for the planning, contractual acquisition and oversight of reliable, cost effective conservation.

Capital equipment.—Provides for general purpose ADP equipment, office furniture and equipment, and software capital development in support of all BPA programs.

Contingencies.—Although contingencies are not specifically funded, the need may arise to provide for purchase of power in low-water years; for repair and/or replacement of facilities affected by natural and man-made emergencies, including the resulting additional costs for contracting, construction, and operation and maintenance work; for unavoidable increased costs for the planned program due to necessary but unforeseen adjustments, including engineering and design changes, contractor and other claims and relocations, or for payment of a retrospective premium adjustment in excess nuclear property insurance.

Financing.—The Transmission Act provides for the use by BPA of all receipts, collections, and recoveries in cash from all sources, including the sale of bonds, to finance the annual budget programs of BPA. These receipts result primarily from the sale of power and wheeling services. The Transmission Act also provides for authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury at rates comparable to borrowings at open market rates for similar issues. As amended by the Pacific Northwest Power Act and replenished by Public Law 98–50, it allows for $3.75 billion of borrowing to be outstanding at any time. The fiscal year 1999 capital obligations are estimated to be $258 million. To the extent BPA capital borrowing authority is insufficient in 1999, BPA would use cash reserves generated by revenues from customers, if available, to finance some of these investments.

In FY 1997, BPA made payments to the Treasury of $775 million and also expects to make payments of $774 million in 1998 and $712 million in 1999. The 1999 payment will be distributed as follows: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service O&M ($110 million), interest on bonds and appropriations ($438 million), and amortization ($164 million).

Direct loans.—During FY 1999, no new direct loan obligations may be made.

Operating results.—Total revenues are forecast at approximately $2.3 billion in FY 1999.

It should be noted that BPA's revenue forecasts are based on several critical assumptions about both the supply of and demand for Federal energy. During the operating year, deviation from the conditions assumed in a rate case may result in a variation in actual revenues of several hundred million dollars from the forecast.

Consistent with Administration policy, BPA will continue to fully recover, from the sale of electric power and transmission, funds sufficient to cover the full cost of Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits for their employees. The entire cost of BPA employees working under the Federal Employees Retirement System is already fully recovered in wholesale electric power and transmission rates.

Western's operation and maintenance and power marketing expenses for the Colorado River Storage Project, the Colorado River Basin Project, the Seedskaadee Project, the Dolores Project and the Fort Peck Project are financed from power revenues.

Western operates and maintains approximately 4,000 miles of transmission lines, substations, switchyards, communications and control equipment associated with this Fund. The personnel compensation and related expenses for all these activities are quantified under Program Direction. Wholesale power is provided to utilities over interconnected high-voltage transmission systems. In keeping with statutory requirements, long-term power contracts provide for periodic rate adjustments to ensure that the Federal Government recovers all costs of operation and all capital invested in power, with interest.

Colorado River Storage Project.—Western markets power and operates and maintains the power transmission facilities of the Colorado River Storage Project. Western also purchases electricity and pays wheeling fees to meet firm and nonfirm commitments.

Colorado River Basin Project.—The Colorado River Basin Project includes Western's expenses associated with the Central Arizona Project and the United States entitlement from the Navajo coal-fired powerplant. Revenues in excess of operating expenses are transferred to the Lower Colorado River Basin Development Fund.

Fort Peck Project.—Revenue collected by Western is used to defray operation and maintenance and power marketing expenses associated with the power generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck Project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, to defray emergency expenses, and to ensure continuous operation. The Corps operates and maintains the power generating facilities, and Western operates and maintains the transmission system and performs power marketing functions.

Seedskaadee Project.—Activity under the Seedskaadee Project at Fontenelle Dam in Wyoming was previously included in the Colorado River Storage Project. In 1994, separate reporting was initiated to comply with power repayment requirements.

Dolores Project.—Activity under the Dolores Project at McPhee Dam in southwestern Colorado was previously included in the Colorado River Storage Project. The facilities were transferred from the Bureau of Reclamation to Western late in 1994. Separate reporting was initiated in 1994 to comply with power repayment requirements.

Based on Administration policy, Western Area Power Administration will set rates, consistent with current law, to recover the full cost of the Civil Service Retirement System and Post-Retirement Health Benefits, for its employees, that have not been recovered in the past. The estimated increase in receipts to the Treasury is $1 million annually.

The Department's working capital fund, established in FY 1997, provides common administrative services such as building space, information and telecommunications services, supplies, printing, and copying. Establishment of the working capital fund has helped the Department reduce waste and improve efficiency, since funding for the goods and services is requested by the program office consumers who purchase what they need through the working capital fund. In FY 1998 contract audit services were removed from the fund while payroll processing was added.

The Vaccine Improvement Program was established pursuant to Public Law 99-660 and Public Law 100-203, and serves as a source of funds to pay claims for compensation for vaccine related injury or death. Payment of claims associated with vaccine related injury or death occurring before October 1, 1988 are financed from the General Fund and are reflected in this account. Given sufficient carry-over funds from prior years' appropriations to pay for the balance of the pre-1988 backlog of claims yet to be adjudicated, no appropriation is requested in FY 1999 to cover payment of pre-1988 claims. Payment of claims associated with vaccine related injury or death occurring after October 1, 1988 are reflected in the Vaccine Improvement Trust Fund account.

P.L. 104-299 and P.L. 104-208 authorize HRSA to guarantee up to $80 million in private loans to Health Centers for the costs of developing and operating managed care networks or plans and for the construction, renovation and modernization of medical facilities. Since this program has not yet used any of its current $160 million in loan guarantee authority, HRSA will use this existing loan guarantee limit over FY 1998 and FY 1999. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this Financing Account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from the Health Center Loan Guarantee Program. The Program Account for this activity is displayed in the Health Resources and Services account (75-0350) as a line in the Program and Financing Schedule.

Title VII, part C of the Public Health Service Act established a revolving fund from which health professions schools could borrow in order to provide loans to their students.

Public Law 89-751, the Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966, amended the Public Health Service Act to authorize the Federal Government to pay the difference between the interest paid by students to the schools and the interest payable by the schools to the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Treasury.

Title VI and subsequently title XVI of the Public Health Service Act established a loan and loan guarantee fund for medical facilities with a maximum amount allowable for the Government's liability. Direct loans were made available for public facilities and guaranteed loans for private, nonprofit facilities. Funds under this authority were established in the amount of $50 million for use in fulfilling guarantees in event of default, $30 million as a revolving fund for direct loans and an amount for interest subsidy payments on guaranteed loans. Default and interest subsidy funds are replenished as necessary through the annual appropriation process.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) supports a number of categorical programs including grants for immunizations, control of sexually transmitted diseases, HIV prevention, and control of other infectious and chronic diseases. CDC also supports the Preventive Health Block Grant.

This display also includes amounts derived from the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund.

A portion of the funding for the Centers for Disease Control's Prevention Research is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to providing needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Note: The total amount for FY 1998 AIDS research was $1,607,053, which was jointly determined by the Director of NIH and the Director of the Office of AIDS Research pursuant to section 209 of P.L. 105-78. $1,566,517,000 was made available to OAR. This amount is net of the $40,536,000 in AIDS funds earmarked in P.L. 105-78 in the Office of the Director account.

This program funds biomedical research and research training. These accounts will continue to be appropriated separately, and are displayed in a consolidated format to improve the readability of the presentation. Detailed information is available through the Department of Health and Human Services.

The funding for the National Institutes of Health is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to providing needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The Hospital Insurance (HI) program funds the costs of hospital and related care for individuals age 65 or older and for eligible disabled people.

The estimate of administrative expenses borne by each of the financing sources, including the Hospital Insurance (HI) and Supplemental Medical Insurance (SMI) trust funds for Medicare-related activities performed by the Social Security Administration (SSA), has been made by SSA based on the current cost allocation methodology. Pursuant to section 201(g) of the Social Security Act, a final accounting of actual payments is made after the close of each fiscal year. In the Conference Committee Report for Public Law 103-296, The Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, the conferees requested that the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Commissioner of Social Security make a joint examination of the most appropriate cost allocation methodology and report their joint findings to the Congress within 36 months of enactment. The Secretary and the Commissioner are in the process of transmitting the required report to Congress.

The status of the trust fund is as follows:

The Supplementary Medical Insurance (SMI) program is a voluntary program which affords protection against the costs of physician and certain other medical services. The program also covers treatment of end-stage renal disease for eligible enrollees. SMI costs are financed by premium payments from enrollees and contributions from the general revenues.

The estimate of administrative expenses borne by each of the financing sources, including the Hospital Insurance (HI) and Supplemental Medical Insurance (SMI) trust funds for Medicare-related activities performed by the Social Security Administration (SSA), has been made by SSA based on the current cost allocation methodology. Pursuant to section 201(g) of the Social Security Act, a final accounting of actual payments is made after the close of each fiscal year. In the Conference Committee Report for Public Law 103-296, The Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, the conferees requested that the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Commissioner of Social Security make a joint examination of the most appropriate cost allocation methodology and report their joint findings to the Congress within 36 months of enactment. The Secretary and the Commissioner are in the process of transmitting the required report to Congress.

The status of the trust fund is as follows:

P.L. 104-93 modified the treatment of child support collections so that once a State enters TANF, collections are no longer used to reduce the budget authority requested. Instead, spending authority from offsetting collections is limited to incentive and hold harmless payments. The net federal share of collections remaining after incentive and hold harmless payments are made to States is returned to the treasury in a receipt account. The text table below shows the traditional display of child support enforcement costs:

This proposal simplifies the child support funding structure by: (1) conforming the match rate for paternity testing with the base administrative match rate; and, (2) repealing the hold harmless provision established in welfare reform.

Departmental Management (DM) is a consolidated display of accounts that fund activities which provide leadership, policy, legal, and administrative guidance to HHS components; carry out the Department's civil rights and nondiscrimination enforcement programs; and support research to develop policy initiatives and improve existing HHS programs. DM also includes the activities of the Office of Public Health and Science, including adolescent family life, disease prevention and health promotion, physical fitness and sports, minority health, research integrity, women's health, and emergency preparedness. These accounts will continue to be appropriated separately, and are being displayed in a consolidated format to improve the readability of the presentation. Detailed information will continue to be available through the Department of Health and Human Services.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 appropriated mandatory funds of $30 million per year in FY 1998–FY 2002 for research into the prevention and cure of type 1 diabetes, to be transferred from the Children's Health Insurance Program in the Health Care Financing Administration. These funds are temporarily reflected within Departmental Management; once the selection of specific research initiatives has been completed, the funds will be allocated to the National Institutes of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

[SEC. 211. (a) The Secretary of Health and Human Services may in accordance with this section provide for the relocation of the Federal facility known as the Gillis W. Long Hansen's Disease Center (located in the vicinity of Carville, in the State of Louisiana), including the relocation of the patients of the Center.

(b)(1) Subject to paragraph (2), in relocating the Center the Secretary may on behalf of the United States transfer to the State of Louisiana, without charge, title to the real property and improvements that as of the date of the enactment of this Act constitute the Center. Such real property is a parcel consisting of approximately 330 acres. The exact acreage and legal description used for purposes of the transfer shall be in accordance with a survey satisfactory to the Secretary.

(2) Any conveyance under paragraph (1) is not effective unless the deed or other instrument of conveyance contains the conditions specified in subsection (d); the instrument specifies that the United States and the State of Louisiana agree to such conditions; and the instrument specifies that, if the State engages in a material breach of the conditions, title to the real property and improvements involved reverts to the United States at the election of the Secretary.

(c)(1) With respect to Federal equipment and other items of Federal personal property that are in use at the Center as of the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary may, subject to paragraph (2), transfer to the State such items as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, if the Secretary makes the transfer under subsection (b).

(2) A transfer of equipment or other items may be made under paragraph (1) only if the State agrees that, during the 30-year period beginning on the date on which the transfer under subsection (b) is made, the items will be used exclusively for purposes that promote the health or education of the public, except that the Secretary may authorize such exceptions as the Secretary determines to be appropriate.

(d) For purposes of subsection (b)(2), the conditions specified in this subsection with respect to a transfer of title are the following:

(1) During the 30-year period beginning on the date on which the transfer is made, the real property and improvements referred to in subsection (b)(1) (referred to in this subsection as the "transferred property") will be used exclusively for purposes that promote the health or education of the public, with such incidental exceptions as the Secretary may approve.

(2) For purposes of monitoring the extent to which the transferred property is being used in accordance with paragraph (1), the Secretary will have access to such documents as the Secretary determines to be necessary, and the Secretary may require the advance approval of the Secretary for such contracts, conveyances of real or personal property, or other transactions as the Secretary determines to be necessary.

(3) The relocation of patients from the transferred property will be completed not later than 3 years after the date on which the transfer is made, except to the extent the Secretary determines that relocating particular patients is not feasible. During the period of relocation, the Secretary will have unrestricted access to the transferred property, and after such period will have such access as may be necessary with respect to the patients who pursuant to the preceding sentence are not relocated.

(4)(A) With respect to projects to make repairs and energy-related improvements at the transferred property, the Secretary will provide for the completion of all such projects for which contracts have been awarded and appropriations have been made as of the date on which the transfer is made.

(B) If upon completion of the projects referred to in subparagraph (A) there are any unobligated balances of amounts appropriated for the projects, and the sum of such balances is in excess of $100,000—

(i) the Secretary will transfer the amount of such excess to the State; and

(ii) the State will expend such amount for the purposes referred to in paragraph (1), which may include the renovation of facilities at the transferred property.

(5)(A) The State will maintain the cemetery located on the transferred property, will permit individuals who were long-term-care patients of the Center to be buried at the cemetery, and will permit members of the public to visit the cemetery.

(B) The State will permit the Center to maintain a museum on the transferred property, and will permit members of the public to visit the museum.

(C) In the case of any waste products stored at the transferred property as of the date of the transfer, the Federal Government will after the transfer retain title to and responsibility for the products, and the State will not require that the Federal Government remove the products from the transferred property.

(6) In the case of each individual who as of the date of the enactment of this Act is a Federal employee at the transferred property with facilities management or dietary duties:

(A) The State will offer the individual an employment position with the State, the position with the State will have duties similar to the duties the individual performed in his or her most recent position at the transferred property, and the position with the State will provide compensation and benefits that are similar to the compensation and benefits provided for such most recent position, subject to the concurrence of the Governor of the State.

(B) If the individual becomes an employee of the State pursuant to subparagraph (A), the State will make payments in accordance with subsection (e)(2)(B) (relating to disability), as applicable with respect to the individual.

(7) The Federal Government may, consistent with the intended uses by the State of the transferred property, carry out at such property activities regarding at-risk youth.

(8) Such additional conditions as the Secretary determines to be necessary to protect the interests of the United States.

(e)(1) This subsection applies if the transfer under subsection (b) is made.

(2) In the case of each individual who as of the date of the enactment of this Act is a Federal employee at the Center with facilities management or dietary duties, and who becomes an employee of the State pursuant to subsection (d)(6)(A):

(A) The provisions of subchapter III of chapter 83 of title 5, United States Code, or of chapter 84 of such title, whichever are applicable, that relate to disability shall be considered to remain in effect with respect to the individual (subject to subparagraph (C)) until the earlier of—

(i) the expiration of the 2-year period beginning on the date on which the transfer under subsection (b) is made; or

(ii) the date on which the individual first meets all conditions for coverage under a State program for payments during retirement by reason of disability.

(B) The payments to be made by the State pursuant to subsection (d)(6)(B) with respect to the individual are payments to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund, if the individual is receiving Federal disability coverage pursuant to subparagraph (A). Such payments are to be made in a total amount equal to that portion of the normal-cost percentage (determined through the use of dynamic assumptions) of the basic pay of the individual that is allocable to such coverage and is paid for service performed during the period for which such coverage is in effect. Such amount is to be determined in accordance with chapter 84 of such title 5, is to be paid at such time and in such manner as mutually agreed by the State and the Office of Personnel Management, and is in lieu of individual or agency contributions otherwise required.

(C) In the determination pursuant to subparagraph (A) of whether the individual is eligible for Federal disability coverage (during the applicable period of time under such subparagraph), service as an employee of the State after the date of the transfer under subsection (b) shall be counted toward the service requirement specified in the first sentence of section 8337(a) or 8451(a)(1)(A) of such title 5 (whichever is applicable).

(3) In the case of each individual who as of the date of the enactment of this Act is a Federal employee with a position at the Center and is, for duty at the Center, receiving the pay differential under section 208(e) of the Public Health Service Act or under section 5545(d) of title 5, United States Code:

(A) If as of the date of the transfer under subsection (b) the individual is eligible for an annuity under section 8336 or 8412 of title 5, United States Code, then once the individual separates from the service and thereby becomes entitled to receive the annuity, the pay differential shall be included in the computation of the annuity if the individual separated from the service not later than the expiration of the 90-day period beginning on the date of the transfer.

(B) If the individual is not eligible for such an annuity as of the date of the transfer under subsection (b) but subsequently does become eligible, then once the individual separates from the service and thereby becomes entitled to receive the annuity, the pay differential shall be included in the computation of the annuity if the individual separated from the service not later than the expiration of the 90-day period beginning on the date on which the individual first became eligible for the annuity.

(C) For purposes of this paragraph, the individual is eligible for the annuity if the individual meets all conditions under such section 8336 or 8412 to be entitled to the annuity, except the condition that the individual be separated from the service.

(4) With respect to individuals who as of the date of the enactment of this Act are Federal employees with positions at the Center and are not, for duty at the center, receiving the pay differential under section 208(e) of the Public Health Service Act or under section 5545(d) of title 5, United States Code:

(A) During the calendar years 1997 and 1998, the Secretary may in accordance with this paragraph provide to any such individual a voluntary separation incentive payment. The purpose of such payments is to avoid or minimize the need for involuntary separations under a reduction in force with respect to the Center.

(B) During calendar year 1997, any payment under subparagraph (A) shall be made under section 663 of the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Act, 1997 (as contained in section 101(f) of division A of Public Law 104–208), except that, for purposes of this subparagraph, subsection (b) of such section 663 does not apply.

(C) During calendar year 1998, such section 663 applies with respect to payments under subparagraph (A) to the same extent and in the same manner as such section applied with respect to the payments during fiscal year 1997, and for purposes of this subparagraph, the reference in subsection (c)(2)(D) of such section 663 to December 31, 1997, is deemed to be a reference to December 31, 1998.

(f) The following provisions apply if under subsection (a) the Secretary makes the decision to relocate the Center:

(1) The site to which the Center is relocated shall be in the vicinity of Baton Rouge, in the State of Louisiana.

(2) The facility involved shall continue to be designated as the Gillis W. Long Hansen's Disease Center.

(3) The Secretary shall make reasonable efforts to inform the patients of the Center with respect to the planning and carrying out of the relocation.

(4) In the case of each individual who as of October 1, 1996, was a patient of the Center and is considered by the Director of the Center to be a long-term-care patient (referred to in this subsection as an "eligible patient"), the Secretary shall continue to provide for the long-term care of the eligible patient, without charge, for the remainder of the life of the patient.

(5)(A) For purposes of paragraph (4), an eligible patient who is legally competent has the following options with respect to support and maintenance and other nonmedical expenses:

(i) For the remainder of his or her life, the patient may reside at the Center.

(ii) For the remainder of his or her life, the patient may receive payments each year at an annual rate of $33,000 (adjusted in accordance with subparagraphs (C) and (D)), and may not reside at the Center. Payments under this clause are in complete discharge of the obligation of the Federal Government under paragraph (4) for support and maintenance and other nonmedical expenses of the patient.

(B) The choice by an eligible patient of the option under clause (i) of subparagraph (A) may at any time be revoked by the patient, and the patient may instead choose the option under clause (ii) of such subparagraph. The choice by an eligible patient of the option under such clause (ii) is irrevocable.

(C) Payments under subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be made on a monthly basis, and shall be pro rated as applicable. In 1999 and each subsequent year, the monthly amount of such payments shall be increased by a percentage equal to any percentage increase taking effect under section 215(i) of the Social Security Act (relating to a cost-of-living increase) for benefits under title II of such Act (relating to Federal old-age, survivors, and disability insurance benefits). Any such percentage increase in monthly payments under subparagraph (A)(ii) shall take effect in the same month as the percentage increase under such section 215(i) takes effect.

(D) With respect to the provision of outpatient and inpatient medical care for Hansen's disease and related complications to an eligible patient:

(i) The choice the patient makes under subparagraph (A) does not affect the responsibility of the Secretary for providing to the patient such care at or through the Center.

(ii) If the patient chooses the option under subparagraph (A)(ii) and receives inpatient care at or through the Center, the Secretary may reduce the amount of payments under such subparagraph, except to the extent that reimbursement for the expenses of such care is available to the provider of the care through the program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act or the program under title XIX of such Act. Any such reduction shall be made on the basis of the number of days for which the patient received the inpatient care.

(6) The Secretary shall provide to each eligible patient such information and time as may be necessary for the patient to make an informed decision regarding the options under paragraph (5)(A).

(7) After the date of the enactment of this Act, the Center may not provide long-term care for any individual who as of such date was not receiving such care as a patient of the Center.

(8) If upon completion of the projects referred to in subsection (d)(4)(A) there are unobligated balances of amounts appropriated for the projects, such balances are available to the Secretary for expenses relating to the relocation of the Center, except that, if the sum of such balances is in excess of $100,000, such excess is available to the State in accordance with subsection (d)(4)(B). The amounts available to the Secretary pursuant to the preceding sentence are available until expended.

(g) For purposes of this section:

(1) The term "Center" means the Gillis W. Long Hansen's Disease Center.

(2) The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Health and Human Services.

(3) The term "State" means the State of Louisiana.

(h) Section 320 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 247e) is amended by striking the section designation and all that follows and inserting the following:

"SEC. 320. (a)(1) At or through the Gillis W. Long Hansen's Disease Center (located in the State of Louisiana), the Secretary shall without charge provide short-term care and treatment, including outpatient care, for Hansen's disease and related complications to any person determined by the Secretary to be in need of such care and treatment. The Secretary may not at or through such Center provide long-term care for any such disease or complication.

"(2) The Center referred to in paragraph (1) shall conduct training in the diagnosis and management of Hansen's disease and related complications, and shall conduct and promote the coordination of research (including clinical research), investigations, demonstrations, and studies relating to the causes, diagnosis, treatment, control, and prevention of Hansen's disease and other mycobacterial diseases and complications related to such diseases.

"(3) Paragraph (1) is subject to section 211 of the Department of Health and Human Services Appropriations Act, 1998.

"(b) In addition to the Center referred to in subsection (a), the Secretary may establish sites regarding persons with Hansen's disease. Each such site shall provide for the outpatient care and treatment for Hansen's disease and related complications to any person determined by the Secretary to be in need of such care and treatment.

"(c) The Secretary shall carry out subsections (a) and (b) through an agency of the Service. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the agency designated by the Secretary shall carry out both activities relating to the provision of health services and activities relating to the conduct of research.

"(d) The Secretary shall make payments to the Board of Health of the State of Hawaii for the care and treatment (including outpatient care) in its facilities of persons suffering from Hansen's disease at a rate determined by the Secretary. The rate shall be approximately equal to the operating cost per patient of such facilities, except that the rate may not exceed the comparable costs per patient with Hansen's disease for care and treatment provided by the Center referred to in subsection (a). Payments under this subsection are subject to the availability of appropriations for such purpose." ]

SEC. [212] 208. None of the funds appropriated in the Act may be made available to any entity under title X of the Public Health Service Act unless the applicant for the award certifies to the Secretary that it encourages family participation in the decision of minors to seek family planning services and that it provides counseling to minors on how to resist attempts to coerce minors into engaging in sexual activities.

(a) STUDY BY THE INSTITUTE OF MEDICINE.—Not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall enter into a contract with the Institute of Medicine to conduct a comprehensive study of the policies and process used by the National Institutes of Health to determine funding allocations for biomedical research.

(b) MATTERS TO BE ASSESSED.—The study under subsection (a) shall assess—

- (1) the factors or criteria used by the National Institutes of Health to determine funding allocations for disease research;

(2) REQUIREMENT.—The report under paragraph (1) shall set forth the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the Institute of Medicine for improvements in the National Institutes of Health research funding policies and processes and for any necessary congressional action.】 (Department of Health and Human Services Appropriations Act, 1998.)

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter presents the budget and program estimates for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

For the past 4 years, the Department has been engaged in a reinvention process which has emphasized: addressing homelessness through comprehensive continuum of care strategies; transforming public and assisted housing; enhancing homeownership opportunities through new national and local partnerships; reducing racial barriers to housing; and, encouraging locally-driven solutions and leveraging private sector investment through initiatives like consolidated planning, and Empowerment Zones and Enterprise Communities. Emphasis has also been placed on reinventing HUD, itself. The 1999 Budget continues to move toward a "right-side up" Cabinet Department that is organized, staffed, and empowered to respond to locally driven priorities rather than Federal dictates.

The 1999 Budget request would continue funding the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program at an increased level. This program will continue to use a formula approach for allocating funds for a wide range of community and economic development activities. The Community Development Loan Guarantee program will also be maintained to enable communities to borrow in the private market with a Federal guarantee. Communities must develop consolidated plans which identify local needs and priorities in order to tap into CDBG and other HUD funds.

The HOME Investment Partnerships program will also continue formula allocations to states and participating jurisdictions to assist in expanding the supply of affordable housing.

The Homeless Assistance Grants program consolidated HUD's six Stewart B. McKinney homeless assistance programs. This program enables communities to continue their development and implementation of comprehensive, coordinated continuum of care systems to address the needs of homeless people and families. Homeless programs are maintained in their current structure although they are increased and augmented by incremental vouchers.

Major changes in funding levels and approach will occur in community and economic development programs. Significant funding is included for an Economic Development Initiative/Community Empowerment Fund program to finance a variety of economic development efforts and to help establish a secondary market for expanded and improved operation of the Section 108 Loan Guarantee program. Proposed as separate programs are: Lead Hazard Reduction, Homeownership Zones, and Urban Empowerment Zones, (which is proposed as a ten year mandatory program). Several set-asides remain within the block grant program including Regional Connections, Supportive Services, Section 107 and Grants to Indian tribes.

The HOPE VI, Public and Indian Housing Operating Fund, and the Public Housing Capital Fund retain their current form. In total, the budget will provide almost 140,000 new or replacement subsidies and would provide for the renewal of all expiring units. The Housing Certificate Fund and the homeless and elderly/disabled programs account for approximately 90,000 new or replacement subsidies. Also, an Administrative Fee Bonus program is proposed as part of the President's Housing Mobility Initiative.

In addition, a new separate account is proposed for 50,000 new Welfare-to-Work vouchers as a part of the President's Welfare-to-Work Initiative.

FHA and GNMA programs are retained, although the FHA guarantee limitation is proposed to be increased to the conforming limit, and separate funding within the program account for contractual support is requested to conform with credit reform rules.

The funds requested will support the following activities for 1999:

1. Contract Renewals. Contract renewals provide funding to renew expiring Section 8 rental assistance contracts covering certificates, vouchers, and moderate rehabilitation (renewed as certificates or vouchers), Loan Management, New Construction/Substantial Rehabilitation, Property Disposition, and Preservation. In 1999, $7.2 billion is requested to support 2 million units.

2. Section 8 Amendments. The need for amendment funding results from insufficient funding being provided for long-term contracts funded in the 1970's and 1980's. During those years, the Department provided contracts for terms of up to 40 years. Estimating funding needs over such a long period of time proved to be problematic, and as a result many of these Section 8 contracts were inadequately funded. The current practice of providing contracts for 1-year terms helps to ensure that the problem of inadequately funded contracts is not repeated. However, older long-term contracts must still be provided additional funding to maintain the current inventory of assisted rental housing. For 1999, $1,800 million is proposed for Section 8 Amendment contracts. This is partially offset by $463 million in recaptures, resulting in a net requirement of $1,337 million in budget authority in 1999.

3. Incremental Rental Assistance. For 1999, the Department is requesting $60 million in budget authority to support a total of 10,655 incremental certificates and vouchers. A portion of this assistance may be used for family unification, witness relocation, settlement of litigation, section 23 conversions, and for families exercising portability.

Public and Indian Housing

Regional Opportunity Counseling. The Department is committed to increasing the housing opportunities available to low-income families. The Budget request includes $20 million to pay for special counseling conducted by public housing agencies in partnership with local non-profit agencies to expand housing opportunities and deconcentrate the number of families living in high poverty neighborhoods.

Some of the results the Department expects to receive by providing intense regional opportunity counseling include: (1) expanding landlord participation in the Section 8 program and increases in the number and diversity of neighborhoods in which Section 8 recipients locate; (2) assisting and encouraging Section 8 families to move to low poverty neighborhoods that offer high quality housing, education, and employment opportunities; (3) addressing existing barriers to mobility and choice in the Section 8 program, including administrative barriers to portability; (4) promoting greater cooperation and joint problem-solving among Section 8 programs operating in a metropolitan housing market; and, (5) creating or strengthening institutions that administer the Section 8 program on a regional basis, including the provision of regional mobility counseling.

Family Self-Sufficiency (FSS) Coordinators. In 1990, the National Affordable Housing Act established the Family Self-Sufficiency Program. In establishing the program, Congress mandated that any housing agency that received any funding for rental vouchers and certificates in 1993 and subsequent would be required to establish a self-sufficiency program equal to the number of rental vouchers or certificates received.

Since that time Congress has appropriated funds to support approximately one service coordinator in approximately 375 Public Housing Authorities over a 3-year period. The PHAs that receive the special funding for FSS service coordinators were the smallest agencies that administered less than 1,000 rental vouchers and certificates.

The Department is committed to administering the FSS program for families receiving assistance under the rental voucher and certificate programs. The request for this account includes $24 million to allow the smallest housing agencies to hire FSS coordinators. Under the FSS program, families will receive job training and employment that should lead to a decrease in their dependency on welfare programs and move them toward economic self-sufficiency.

Housing

Tenant Protection Set-Asides. The Housing Certificate Fund also serves a role in supporting families in FHA-insured, privately owned assisted housing projects affected by changes in project status. It is intended that income-eligible families who, through no fault of their own, are affected by HUD's management of the multifamily inventory be aided through the Housing Certificate Fund.

The $373 million requested for 1999 Housing tenant protections will be used to provide funding for an estimated 17,000 preservation prepayment vouchers, and for 15,000 vouchers for residents in properties which are proposed for disposition from the assisted housing inventory, voluntarily terminating project-based assistance, terminations due to HUD housing quality enforcement actions, or which are undergoing portfolio re-engineering.

Of this amount, $130 million is included for Housing tenant protections to accommodate the more aggressive enforcement activities of the Department, including the cost of relocating affected families, and to address the potential need to modify current assistance payment standards and eligibility to avoid undue hardship or displacement of currently assisted families.

WELFARE TO WORK HOUSING VOUCHERS

For tenant-based assistance under the United States Housing Act of 1937 to help eligible families make the transition from welfare to work, $283,000,000, to be administered by public housing agencies (including Indian housing authorities, as defined by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development), and to remain available until expended: Provided, That families initially selected to receive assistance under this head (a) shall be eligible to receive, shall be currently receiving, or shall have received within the preceding year, assistance or services funded under the Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) program under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act or as part of a State's qualified State expenditure under section 409(a)(7)(B)(i) of such Act; (b) shall be determined by the agency to be families for which tenant-based housing assistance is critical to successfully obtaining or retaining employment; and (c) shall not already be receiving tenant-based assistance: Provided further, That each application shall (a) describe the proposed program, which shall be developed by the public housing agency in consultation with the State, local or Tribal entity administering the TANF program and the entity, if any, administering the Welfare-to-Work grants allocated by the United States Department of Labor pursuant to section 403(a)(5)(A) of the Social Security Act, and which shall take into account the particular circumstances of the community; (b) demonstrate that tenant-based housing assistance is critical to the success of assisting eligible families to obtain or retain employment; (c) specify the criteria for selecting among eligible families to receive housing assistance under this head; (d) describe the proposed strategy for tenant counseling and housing search assistance and landlord outreach; (e) include any requests for waivers of any administrative requirements or any provisions of the United States Housing Act of 1937, with a demonstration of how approval of the waivers would substantially further the objective of this head; (f) include certifications from the State, local, or Tribal entity administering assistance under the TANF program and from the entity, if any, administering the Welfare-to-Work grants allocated by the United States Department of Labor, that the entity supports the proposed program and will cooperate with the public housing agency that administers the housing assistance to assure that such assistance is coordinated with other welfare reform and welfare to work initiatives; however, if either does not respond to the public housing agency within a reasonable time period, its concurrence shall be assumed, and if either objects to the applica- tion, its concerns shall accompany the application to the Secretary, who shall take them into account in this funding decision; and (g) include such other information as the Secretary may require and meet such other requirements as the Secretary may establish: Provided further, That the Secretary, after consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Labor, shall select public housing agencies to receive assistance under this head on a competitive basis, taking into account the need for and quality of the proposed program (including innovative approaches), the extent to which the assistance will be coordinated with welfare reform and welfare to work initiatives, the extent to which the application demonstrates that tenant-based assistance is critical to the success of assisting eligible families to obtain or retain employment, and other appropriate criteria established by the Secretary: Provided further, That the Secretary may waive any administrative requirement or any provision of the United States Housing Act of 1937 if the Secretary determines that the waiver would substantially further the objective of the assistance under this head, and in the event of any waiver, may make provision for alternative conditions or terms where appropriate: Provided further, That the Secretary may use up to one percent of the amount available under this head, directly or indirectly, to conduct detailed evaluations of the effect of providing assistance under this head.

These funds would provide 50,000 housing vouchers to be used to help families make the transition from welfare to work. Lack of affordable, stable housing, or housing located close to employment, impedes the efforts of families moving from welfare to work. These vouchers will provide States and communities with a new flexible tool to help families who need housing assistance in order to achieve self-sufficiency.

The additional vouchers will be available on a competitive basis to the local housing agencies, including Indian housing authorities. Local housing agencies will submit an application plan, developed in consultation with the State, local, or Tribal welfare agency and the local Welfare-To-Work formula funds grantee (generally the local Private Industry Council), allowing both state and local participation in the effort. The vouchers will be used where they are essential to a successful transition from welfare to work, that is, where housing assistance is critical for a family to achieve or maintain employment. For example, a family could use a welfare-to-work housing voucher to move to an area where there are more job opportunities, to reduce an extremely long commute, or to stabilize its housing situation in order to improve attendance and performance at work.

Families who receive the vouchers must initially be eligible for, or be currently receiving, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF) or have received TANF within the past year. However, local agencies will have great flexibility to design and operate the welfare-to-work voucher program within broad national guidelines. For example, the agencies would propose whether to focus on particular groups of welfare recipients and how to structure the assistance to meet local needs. The application would request any waivers of administrative provisions or statutory provisions of the United States Housing Act of 1937 that are needed to substantially further the objectives of the program. The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will review and select the local plans after consultation with the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Labor. HUD will evaluate the impact of this program.

The Section 8 Reserve Preservation Account was authorized by P.L. 105-17. This account contains funds which were recaptured from project reserve accounts maintained by Housing Authorities nationwide. These funds will be used to renew expiring contracts during 1999 to reduce the requirements for new contract renewal funding in the Housing Certificate Fund.

The Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing account provided assistance under three major categories.

Low-income housing (section 8).—Included within the section 8 category was incremental rental assistance in the form of housing certificates and housing vouchers; Public Housing and Housing Relocation/Replacement opt-out units; Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS; section 23 conversions; and loan management and property disposition activities.

Housing for the elderly and disabled (section 202 and 811).—The Cranston-Gonzales National Affordable Housing Act authorized a grant program to make new construction assistance available to elderly and disabled persons. Both the grant funding and the Rental Assistance—or operating subsidy—needed to aid these low-income tenants was provided under this account.

Public and Indian housing.—New development funding was provided for both Public Housing and for Indian Housing within this account. In addition, funding was provided for public and Indian housing modernization activities and public/Indian housing amendments and lease adjustments. Funding was also provided for Public Housing Service Coordinators and Family Investment Centers.

This account provided funding for a wide range of housing assistance through the Low-Income Housing (Section 8), Housing for the Elderly and Disabled, and the Public and Indian Housing programs. In addition, various housing-related programs were carried out through funding provided under this account.

The account now displays the spendout of all remaining balances. Pursuant to P.L. 105-65: (1) all balances for Public Housing Development, Modernization, Family Investment Centers, Public Housing Amendments, and Leave Adjustments were transferred to the Public Housing Capital Fund; (2) all balances for Section 8 Amendments and Contract Renewals were transferred to the Housing Certificate Fund; (3) all balances for the Supportive Housing for the Elderly and Supportive Housing for the Disabled were transferred to the Housing for Special Populations account; and, (4) all balances for Indian Housing were transferred to the Indian Housing Block Grants account. The $550 million rescission of recaptured 1998 and prior years section 8 reserves, enacted in the fiscal year 1998 Appropriations Act, can be found under the Section 8 Reserve Preservation Account.

The Public Housing Capital Fund, which is a comprehensive formula-driven program based on need, is designed to respond to the capital and management improvement requirements of public housing. The fund consolidates the following programs: public housing modernization; public housing development; Major Reconstruction of Obsolete Public Housing (MROP) Projects; public housing amendments; lease adjustments; and Family Investment Centers.

The 1999 Budget proposes to transfer all balances reflected in the Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing account for the Public Housing Service Coordinators program to the Public Housing Capital Fund.

Pursuant to P.L. 105-65, all balances for modernization and public housing development previously funded under the Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing and Preserving Existing Housing Investment accounts were transferred to the Public Housing Capital Fund.

Operating subsidies are provided to public housing authorities (PHAs) to assist in funding the operation and maintenance expenses of public housing units in accordance with Section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. Annual subsidy requirements are calculated on the basis of the Performance Funding System (PFS) formula. It is anticipated that sufficient funds will be available to provide 100 percent of PFS requirements in 1999.

Pursuant to P.L. 105-65, all balances of operating subsidy funding that were provided under the Preserving Existing Housing Investment account in 1997 were transferred to this account.

The $310 million requested for this program in 1999 includes funding for technical assistance for drug elimination, operation safe home activities and the new approach anti-drug program.

The Public Housing Drug Elimination Grants program has been authorized since 1988, and provides funds to Public Housing Authorities (PHAs) and Tribally Designated Housing Entities (TDHEs) for their anti-drug, anti-crime efforts. To combat the concentration of crime in and around public housing, staff and residents use these resources to increase police coverage and security as well as to provide alternative activities to residents. Eligible activities include reimbursing local law enforcement for additional services, security contracts, investigators, and training residents for volunteer resident programs. Recent appropriation acts have expanded the definition of crime beyond drug-related patrols, physical changes to enhance security, drug prevention, and intervention and treatment; thus allowing housing authorities greater scope in targeting crime and developing successful alternatives.

Of the $310 million requested in 1999, $243.8 million will be targeted to PHA and TDHE grants and clearinghouse information services. In addition, $50 million will be available to HUD for: (1) technical assistance, training, and information dissemination; (2) Operation Safe Home; and, (3) the New Approach Anti-Drug program. An additional $16.2 million is estimated to be available for other Federally assisted low-income housing grants.

Title I of the Native American Housing Assistance and Self-Determination Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-330) authorized the Native American Housing Block Grants program. This program provides an allocation of funds on a formula basis to Indian tribes and their tribally designated housing entities to help them address housing needs within their communities. Indian tribes use performance measures and benchmarks that are consistent with the national goals of the program but can base these measures on the needs and priorities they establish in their own Indian housing plan.

Pursuant to P.L. 105-65, all balances previously appropriated under Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing, Development of Additional New Subsidized Housing, Preserving Existing Housing Investment, HOME Investment Partnerships Program, Emergency Shelter Grants Program, and Homeless Assistance Funds identified for Indian Housing Authorities and other agencies primarily serving Indians or Indian areas were transferred to this account.

The Low-Rent Public Housing Loan Fund provides direct Federal loans to fund remaining Public Housing Agency and Indian Housing Authority construction, acquisition, and modernization activities reserved under the Annual Contributions appropriation through 1986. These loans are made from borrowings from the Treasury. Under legislation enacted during 1986 (Public Law 99-272), the borrowings from the Treasury are forgiven at the end of each fiscal year and the loans to PHAs/IHAs are forgiven as construction, acquisition, and modernization activities are completed. Under the provisions of this legislation, $85 million of borrowings from the Treasury were forgiven in 1997, an estimated $60 million will be borrowed from the Treasury and forgiven in 1998, and an estimated $50 million will be borrowed from the Treasury and forgiven in 1999.

Since 1987, new reservations of capital funds for construction, acquisition, and modernization activities have been provided directly from the Annual Contributions and Public Housing Capital Fund appropriations.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of guarantees that resulted from obligations in any year). The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis. The administrative expenses are shown on a cash basis.

This program provides access to sources of private financing for Indian families, Indian tribes and their tribally designated housing entities who otherwise could not acquire housing financing because of the unique legal status of Indian trust land.

It is anticipated that the funding requested for 1999 will support 420 loans.

The Housing Opportunities for Persons with AIDS program was established as a separate account in 1997. All of the balances from prior appropriations for this program have been transferred to and merged with this account, and it is now accounted for on an obligational basis. The purpose of the program is to provide States and localities with resources and incentives to devise long-term comprehensive strategies for meeting the housing needs of persons with HIV/AIDS and their families.

States and metropolitan areas receive 90 percent of the funds by formula based on the incidence of HIV/AIDS in their jurisdictions. The remaining 10 percent is awarded competitively to States, local governments, and private nonprofit entities for projects of national significance. Awards are also made to States and local governments for projects in jurisdictions which do not qualify for a formula allocation.

Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, authorizes the Secretary to make grants to units of general local government and States to fund local community development programs.

Funds are allocated to Indian tribes and, on an entitlement basis, to metropolitan cities and urban counties which receive their grants using the higher of two objective formulas. States and small cities are also allocated a portion of the available funds. The proposed level of funding for CDBG and the Section 108 Loan Guarantee Program will support an estimated 276,000 jobs. These funds will also help to rehabilitate 171,100 housing units.

Section 107 Grants include funding for Insular Areas, technical assistance, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, management information systems support, and the Community Development Work Study and Community Outreach Partnership programs.

Habitat for Humanity International would use this funding to undertake innovative homeownership opportunities through the provision of self-help housing, under which a homeowner would contribute a significant amount of sweat equity toward the construction of the new dwelling. These decent, safe and sanitary nonluxury dwellings must be made available to eligible homeowners at prices below prevailing market prices. Eligible activities include land acquisition (including financing and closing costs) and infrastructure improvement (installing, extending, constructing, rehabilitating or otherwise improving utilities and other infrastructure).

The 1999 request includes funding of $55 million for the Resident Opportunity and Supportive Services (ROSS) program. Formerly called the Economic Development and Supportive Services (EDSS) and Tenant Opportunity Program (TOP) programs, ROSS is intended to fuse the objectives of the two predecessor programs. The program will also address the expanded needs among residents and housing authorities brought upon by welfare reform legislation that sets time limits on how long recipients can receive welfare assistance. Principally for the benefit of public housing residents, ROSS grants are intended to assist the elderly and disabled, and families with children where the head of the household is working, seeking work, or participating in job training or educational programs. Eligible services under ROSS include academic skills training, residential management, microenterprise and small business development and start-ups, and social service support programs.

The Regional Connections initiative will make funds available to States and localities to develop and implement strategic plans that address key regional issues facing the nation's metropolitan areas and rural communities. The initiative will help communities address the significant demographic and economic shifts that are taking place in metropolitan regions by encouraging regional strategies that emphasize coordinated metropolitan economic growth and regional solutions to a range of environmental and social equity issues.

The initiative will enable communities to address one or more of the following topics: regional economic development strategies, that tap the competitive advantage or location efficiency of the inner city; sustainable growth or compact development strategies; regional job training and access to work initiatives; regional affordable housing strategies; or, other regional concerns identified by communities themselves. Proposed outcomes include: strengthened partnerships between city and suburban governments and their private sector partners; enhanced regional coordination of Federal resources and planning requirements; expanded use of HUD's existing Consolidated Planning process; and, increased community capacity to implement more comprehensive, regional solutions to local problems.

Funds for this initiative will be distributed by competition and are intended to: (1) maximize local innovation and creativity; (2) maximize participation by local partners, including multiple jurisdictions and private sector and community stakeholders; and, (3) maximize and enhance coordination with existing planning and regional development efforts. HUD will undertake this initiative in close cooperation with other

Federal agencies and will utilize the expertise of an Advisory Board of distinguished urban planners, economists and regional experts to implement the program.

Funding requested for the Economic Development Initiative (EDI)/Community Empowerment Fund (CEF) will support the financing for a variety of economic development efforts, in tandem with the existing Section 108 guaranteed loan program, to facilitate and encourage use of the Section 108 Program by State and local governments. The purpose of the EDI program is to help communities enhance the security of the Section 108 guaranteed loans and to improve the viability of projects financed with these loans.

The EDI/CEF financing will support new jobs, thereby assisting former welfare recipients to successfully move from welfare to work. It will be used in conjunction with Section 108 Loan Guarantees to support a variety of employment-generating investments, including: (1) revolving loan funds for business expansion or modernization; (2) startup funds for new, small- and medium-sized businesses; (3) preservation and expansion of new and existing industrial facilities; (4) neighborhood-based commercial revitalization efforts; and, (5) regional economic strategies. The 1999 request of $400 million will leverage an estimated $2 billion in private sector loans and will support an estimated 280,000 jobs when projects are completed.

The EDI/CEF grants will include mechanisms to: (1) assist state and local governments to standardize the underwriting and documentation of loans to businesses in distressed areas; (2) expand credit for economic and community development lending; (3) augment communities' underwriting and loan servicing capacity; and, (4) use funds more efficiently for credit enhancement. These mechanisms will help reduce risk to the communities' and States' CDBG program funds and remove the impediments to the use of Section 108.

In 1998, Congress provided $138 million for EDI, including $100 million for Congressionally earmarked projects. The Administration has objected repeatedly to the inclusion of earmarked projects in Appropriations Acts. The Administration urges the Congress to permit a merit selection process for all communities for EDI grants in 1999.

The goal of the Empowerment Zone (EZ) initiative is to revitalize city neighborhoods in a way that will retain and attract middle-class residents and provide employment opportunities that will move people from welfare to work. Grant funds will allow the 15 new urban EZs that were authorized by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, in accordance with their strategic plans, to create economic opportunity in America's distressed communities, with a special emphasis on stimulating job creation linked to welfare reform. Flexible grant funds will be used to integrate human capital needs with economic development initiatives.

Funding will be available for a broad range of activities aimed at assisting residents, businesses and organizations in urban EZs, including: community policing; health care; neighborhood development; brownfields clean-up and redevelopment; support for financing of capital projects; education; work force preparation and job creation efforts linked to welfare reform; repayment of debt financing by municipal bonds; financing of projects in conjunction with the Section 108 loan guarantee program and other economic development projects; support for project-based rental assistance; and, financing other housing activities.

Preliminary reports indicate that the Round I EZ's are stimulating billions of dollars in private investment, reviving inner city neighborhoods once given up for dead, and supporting jobs and helping families move from welfare to work. The second round will build on these successes.

The Brownfields Redevelopment program was first provided an initial appropriation of $25 million in 1998. The $50 million request for FY 1999 represents an acceleration of the President's commitment to help communities clean up and redevelop the approximately 450,000 brownfields sites nationwide. This level of funding is expected to leverage $200 million in Section 108 loan guarantee commitments, which will support more than 28,000 jobs.

This program provides competitive economic development grants in conjunction with Section 108 loan guarantees for qualified brownfield projects. Eligible communities will be invited to submit proposals to return contaminated sites to productive and employment-generating uses, with an emphasis on creating substantial numbers of jobs for lower-income people in physically and economically distressed neighborhoods.

Grants will be made in accordance with section 108(q) selection criteria and such other criteria deemed appropriate for brownfield projects, including the extent to which an applicant is currently operating a brownfields program and is working with appropriate environmental regulatory agencies. Priority would be given to those projects that are located in designated Empowerment Zones or Enterprise Communities.

The 1999 request includes $25 million for Homeownership Zones in 1999. This level of funding would support approximately five zones at an average of $5 million each, and would create 1,500 new homeowners. The Homeownership Zones program will provide flexible grants on a competitive basis to local governments for large-scale redevelopment of abandoned neighborhoods to create viable communities of mixed income homebuyers. Applications will be evaluated on specific criteria, such as the degree to which the proposed activities meet the goal of the program, the financial soundness of the proposals, level of economic distress of the area to be served, and the capacity of applicants to carry out the proposal. Funds will be used to create new housing opportunities in distressed areas. Eligible activities will include: property acquisition; housing construction; housing rehabilitation; demolition; site preparation; homeownership counseling; relocation; housing marketing; activities to further fair housing; and, other activities essential to homeownership.

This program provides resources to educate, train, and provide stipends for economically disadvantaged young adults through their participation in the construction and rehabilitation of housing for low-income and homeless persons. The program has expanded the supply of affordable housing and, at the same time, has enabled high school dropouts to obtain the education and employment skills necessary to achieve self-sufficiency. The 1999 request will provide 5,000-6,000 young people with skills they need to get jobs and will provide 750-800 families with homes in distressed communities.

For 1996 through 1998, funding for the Youthbuild program was included in the Community Development Block Grants account.

The HOME Investment Partnership program is authorized by the National Affordable Housing Act (P.L. 101-625). This program provides assistance to States and units of local government, through formula allocation, for the purpose of expanding the supply and affordability of housing. Eligible activities include acquisition, rehabilitation, and new construction of housing and tenant-based rental assistance. The 1999 request of $1.550 billion will result in the production of 78,500 units of affordable housing through new construction, rehabilitation, or acquisition. In addition, tenant-based rental assistance will be provided for 11,200 units.

Funding is included for a new component of the HOME program, integrating housing assistance for the elderly and disabled into the HOME account. The consolidated program will include project-based assistance through the current non-profit delivery system. For the elderly, a total of $159 million is proposed, including $50 million to fund an estimated 8,839 section 8 vouchers and 1,938 new units for the elderly. For persons with disabilities, $174 million is proposed, of which at least 25 percent shall be used for tenant-based rental assistance in order to provide 3,118 units for the disabled.

The HOME request also includes up to $7 million to continue to develop, implement and refine integrated community development management information systems in order to establish a national database of local programs. Funding for technical assistance is also included.

The Homeless Assistance Grants program consolidates the activities of HUD's six McKinney homeless assistance programs—Shelter Plus Care, Supportive Housing, Emergency Shelter Grants, Section 8 Single Room Occupancy, Rural Homeless Grants and Safe Havens—as well as those of the Innovative Homeless Initiatives Demonstration program. This consolidation enables localities to continue to shape and implement comprehensive, flexible, coordinated “continuum of care” approaches to solving rather than institutionalizing homelessness. In fact, over the last four years, many communities have made great strides in developing holistic continuum of care approaches to solving homelessness. A community-based process is required as part of the application process. Communities are required to include in their applications performance measures that contain specific goals that would accrue from the community's efforts, and are required to demonstrate tangible results on an annual basis. Requested funding would be available for a wide range of activities to assist homeless persons and prevent future homelessness. The 1999 request will provide between 125,000–140,000 transitional and 59,000–62,500 permanent housing beds.

Funding is also requested for technical assistance to provide needed assistance to grantees in resolving problems that hinder successful project completion and implementation.

Funding for incremental housing vouchers will be used to provide permanent housing vouchers for up to 34,000 families or individuals who have achieved a sufficient level of independence to move to permanent housing linked to services. These vouchers will offer the ongoing assistance so desperately needed to help move homeless people into the housing mainstream when they are ready to do so. These vouchers are intended for homeless individuals and families who would otherwise have the most difficult time in securing permanent housing resources, as determined through the approved Continuum of Care strategy. Helping them secure permanent housing will allow HUD to assist even more homeless persons through existing emergency and transitional programs.

Guaranteed loans.—The Community Development Loan Guarantees program provides a mechanism for the Federal guarantee of private loans. There is an accompanying liquidating account which shows activity for Federal Financing Bank (FFB) direct loan activity, obligated prior to July 1, 1986. Also following is a status of privately financed guaranteed loan commitments made prior to 1992.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of loan guarantees that resulted from commitments in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from Federal Financing Bank (FFB) direct loans for which loan guarantees were committed prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis.

Guaranteed loans.—Guaranteed loan assistance under the Community Development Loan Guarantees program is provided to eligible communities to finance economic development activities, housing rehabilitation, public facilities, acquisition of real property, rehabilitation of publicly owned real property, and certain related expenses. In the past, the FFB financed these guaranteed loans. The Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985 required private financing of all loan guarantees committed after July 1, 1986. FFB will continue disbursing loans for commitments approved prior to July 1, 1986. The activity shown in the above account reflects privately financed guaranteed loans for which commitments were made prior to 1992.

The HOME Loan Guarantee program will complement the existing HOME program. The proposal will authorize loan guarantees for up to five times a Participating Jurisdiction's latest HOME allocation, and will enable the jurisdictions to formulate and implement neighborhood strategies to build or rehabilitate large numbers of units as a single undertaking within a short period of time. A loan guarantee option would greatly magnify the impact of HOME Federal housing dollars.

The Other Assisted Housing Account contains the programs listed below:

Rent supplement.—Rent supplement assistance payments will continue to be made on behalf of qualified low-income tenants in approximately 20,000 units which have not converted to section 8.

Section 235.—The Housing and Urban-Rural Recovery Act of 1983 (Public Law 98-181) authorized a restructured section 235 (Homeownership Assistance) program based on a 10-year interest reduction subsidy. This replaced earlier versions of the program, the original and the revised versions. All were below interest rate mortgages for single family homes.

Section 236.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the section 236 Rental Housing Assistance Program which subsidizes the monthly mortgage payment that an owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to make. This interest subsidy reduces rents for lower income tenants.

IRP Rehab Grants.—Title V of the 1998 Appropriations Act (P.L. 105-65) establishes a program of rehabilitation grants for owners of projects eligible for the program of multifamily portfolio re-engineering. An estimated $727 million of such grants are expected in 1999.

The table below reflects the consolidated outlay total for: the Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing account; the Housing Certificate Fund; the Public Housing Capital Fund; the Section 8 Reserve Preservation account; and the Other Assisted Housing account, for 1997, 1998, and 1999.

The Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere Program provided affordable homeownership opportunities for low-income families. Units were converted to homeownership from public and Indian housing properties in HOPE 1, from FHA-insured and Government-held multifamily properties in HOPE 2, and from Government-owned or -held single family properties in HOPE 3. HOPE Grants were used for property acquisition, rehabilitation, mortgage subsidies, security measures, and technical assistance. In addition, grants have been devoted to counseling and training of residents, and other activities intended to help them become economically self-sufficient homeowners. No funding is being requested for 1999. This schedule reflects the liquidation of prior year balances.

Section 620 of the National Manufactured Housing Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974, as amended, authorizes enforcement of appropriate construction standards for the construction, design and performance of manufactured homes to assure their quality, durability, and safety. All manufactured homes produced since the standards took effect on June 15, 1976 must comply with Federal construction and safety standards. The States are actively encouraged to participate in the program under compliance plans approved by HUD.

A fee is charged to the manufacturers for each manufactured home produced to cover the costs of the monitoring and enforcement activities by HUD and its contract agents. Fees are deposited in a special fund administered by the Department, and a portion of the fee receipts are transferred to the salaries and expenses account to defray the direct administrative expenses of the program. In 1997, an estimated 403,000 manufactured homes and 600,000 transportable sections were produced.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public with respect to purchases or leases of subdivision lots. Statements of record must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions with 100 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce, except when the subdivision is eligible for exemption.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. The fee receipts are permanently appropriated and have helped finance a portion of the direct administrative expenses incurred in program operations.

The estimated annual program activity level will continue at 1,700 filings, approximately the same level as in recent years.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund into which rental collections in excess of the established basic rents for units in section 236 subsidized projects would be deposited.

The Housing and Community Development Amendment of 1978 authorized the Secretary, subject to approval in appropriation acts, to transfer excess rent collections received after 1978 to the Troubled Projects Operating Subsidy program, renamed the Flexible Subsidy Fund. Prior to that time, collections were used for paying tax and utility increases in section 236 projects. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1980 amended the 1978 Act by authorizing the transfer of excess rent collections regardless of when collected. This Budget proposes that the resources from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund continue to be transferred to the Flexible Subsidy Fund.

The Flexible Subsidy Fund assisted financially troubled subsidized projects under certain FHA authorities. The subsidies were intended to prevent potential losses to the FHA fund resulting from project insolvency and to preserve these projects as a viable source of housing for low and moderate-income tenants. Priority was given to projects with Federal insurance-in-force and then to those with mortgages that had been assigned to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

A portion of Flexible Subsidy capital improvement loans were used, along with incentives available in the Emergency Low-Income Housing Preservation program, to extend affordability requirements for projects eligible to prepay mortgages.

The budget assumes that the account will continue to serve as a repository of excess rental charges appropriated from the Rental Housing Assistance Fund. Since 1996, these resources have not been used for new reservations but they continue to offset Flexible Subsidy outlays and other discretionary expenditures.

The Federal Housing Administration provides mortgage insurance to encourage lenders to make credit available to expand homeownership, and to predominantly serve borrowers that the conventional market does not adequately provide for including: first-time homebuyers; minorities; lower-income families; and, residents of underserved areas (central cities and rural areas). Currently, the maximum mortgage amount for FHA-insured one-family loans is set at 95 percent of area median house price, provided that the amount is never less than 38 percent of the conforming loan limit—the maximum mortgage amount for loans purchased by the housing secondary market Government-Sponsored Enterprises, Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac—and never more than 75 percent of the conforming loan limit. The Administration proposes to increase the maximum mortgage amount for FHA-insured loans in all areas to equal the conforming loan limit. FHA has also proposed new legislation to allow greater flexibility in single family property disposition.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records administrative expenses for this program, as well as the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed in 1992 and thereafter, if any. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Beginning in 1999, an appropriation of $200,000,000 is requested, to be derived from the negative subsidy account, for certain administrative expenses. All administrative expenses will be recorded in the program account. The transfer is derived from negative credit subsidy amounts associated with guaranteed loan activities.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of direct loans that resulted from obligations in any year). The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

The $50 million in 1999 direct loan limitation in the MMI Fund would permit the Department to use Purchase Money Mortgages (PMMs) to help finance the sale of acquired single family properties. HUD would extend credit for these single-family homes to community nonprofit organizations or local government entities who would be expected to sell the properties to low- and moderate-income buyers. The use of PMMs provides a tool for State and local nonprofit organizations to use in revitalizing communities, and creates enhanced homeownership opportunities for low- and moderate-income families.

The Federal Housing Administration Fund currently consists of four separate insurance funds.

In order to present more clearly the operations of the various funds, FHA's budget transactions are separated into two major business segments. The basic single-family insurance programs in the Mutual Mortgage Insurance (MMI) fund and the multifamily Cooperative Management Housing Insurance (CMHI) funds form one segment. All other multifamily and other specialized insurance programs in the General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance funds (GI/SRI) form the other segment.

The Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 creates a structure of three accounts for existing credit program. For each of the FHA business segments (MMI/CMHI and GI/SRI) there is a liquidating account, which records the revenues and costs associated with loan insurance committed prior to October 1, 1991, a financing account which records the revenues and costs associated with commitments to insure loans made after September 30, 1991, and, a program account which records the transactions associated with the program subsidy costs, if any, and the costs of administering the program.

This liquidating account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from MMI/CMHI loans insured prior to fiscal year 1992, and is shown on a cash basis. All new activity in this program in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of loans insured in any year) is recorded in the corresponding program (86-0183) and financing (86-4587 and 86-4242) accounts.

The program activity in the "Program Highlights" table shown below reflects only the activity in the MMI/CMHI liquidating and financing accounts. The GI/SRI program activity can be found with the GI/SRI liquidating account (86-4072).

Single Family Claims Reform and Sale of Property

This proposal would provide HUD with additional flexibility to choose the most cost-effective methods of paying insurance claims and disposing of acquired notes or homes.

Currently, section 204(a) of the National Housing Act sets forth the conditions under which HUD pays insurance benefits for defaulted single family mortgages and details the manner of calculating the amount of insurance benefits. This provision updates the current section 204(a) and adds authority for HUD to take assignment of mortgages.

Under this proposal the Department would be able to take assignment of mortgage notes (instead of taking properties into inventory) and then sell or transfer them to a third party for servicing, loss mitigation, foreclosure, and disposition of the property, depending upon the circumstances. It is expected that savings will result from a higher return on sales and expected property disposition.

The proposal would also provide flexible authority for HUD to participate in joint venture arrangements in the sale of single family properties.

sured financing carries favorable terms which may not be available to many working families in high cost areas, who may be constrained from entering the homeownership market because of a lack of downpayment. The proposal reflects the Administration's National Homeownership Strategy, which continue to be successful in raising the national homeowner-ship rate.

This proposal will permit the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) to insure a single family mortgage with a principal amount not exceeding the average of the conforming mortgage loan limits established by Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae ($227,150 for a one-family residence in 1998). Under current law, FHA cannot insure a mortgage with a principal amount that exceeds 75% of the conforming mortgage limit established by Freddie Mac.

The proposal also would eliminate other dollar limitations on mortgage amounts that are in the current law. These include "floor" limits for certain areas and limits based upon 95% of median home price for others. Currently, the maximum amount for an FHA-insured mortgage varies from the "floor" of $86,317 to higher amounts up to $170,363 which are determined on a county or metropolitan statistical area (MSA) basis.

The proposal would increase and standardize the maximum insurable mortgage amount throughout the country. FHA-in-

Multifamily Products.—This account includes budget authority for multifamily insurance programs requiring positive credit subsidies, as well as for salaries and expenses for all General and Special Risk Insurance Fund programs.

The credit subsidy appropriation of $81 million requested for 1999 will be used in conjunction with $49 million of carry-over budget authority to provide a total program level of $130 million.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for the single family, multifamily, hospital, and Title I insurance programs of FHA's General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance Funds, the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantees committed or direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including modifications of loan guarantees or direct loans that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of these programs. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are accounted for on a cash basis.

FHA has corrected the allocation of administrative expenses among its budgetary accounts. Beginning in 1998, all administrative expenses are recorded in the program account. In 1999, $104 million in appropriations has been requested to provide consistency with this approach.

The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this non-budgetary account records all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loans obligated in 1992 and thereafter (including loan modifications) for FHA's General Insurance and Special Risk Insurance Fund programs.

The amounts in this account are a means of financing and are not included in the budget totals. As required by the Federal Reform Act of 1990, no administrative expenses can be recorded in the financing account.

This schedule includes two direct loan programs. One provides bridge loan financing to facilitate the disposition of multifamily housing owned by the Department to non-profit organizations who agree to preserve it as affordable rental or cooperative housing. The second is a single-family direct loan program for purchase money mortgages, as discussed in the preceding section for the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund.

insurance of loans for property improvements as well as for cooperatives, condominiums, housing for the elderly, rental housing and nonprofit hospitals.

The Special Risk Insurance fund provides insurance on behalf of mortgagors who otherwise would not be eligible for mortgage insurance. In addition, the fund provides insurance on mortgages covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations was not observed.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from loan guarantees committed and direct loans obligated prior to 1992. This account is shown on a cash basis. New insurance and direct loan activity in 1992 and thereafter in the GI/SRI programs is recorded in corresponding program (86–0200) and financing (86–4077 and 86–4105) accounts.

Section 571 of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1998 established the Office of Multifamily Housing Assistance Restructuring within HUD to administer the program of mortgage and rental assistance restructuring. Included in the budget estimates for this account are projections for the financial operations of the office. More detailed information will be provided to Congress at a later date.

Financial Condition.—The following tables reflect the revenues, expenses, and financial condition of the GI/SRI Liquidating Account based on Generally Accepted Accounting Principles.

This adjustment reflects the effect of repealing sections 513(b)(7)(g) and 517(d) of the Multifamily Assisted Housing Reform and Affordability Act of 1997. Section 513(b)(7)(g) of the Act prohibits any private entity from sharing, participating in, or otherwise benefiting from any equity created, received, or restructured as a result of a portfolio restructuring agreement. Section 517(d) of the Act prohibits the Secretary of HUD from participating in any equity sharing or profit sharing arrangement.

The Department will be reporting in February, 1998, on possible ways that equity sharing might be developed in connection with portfolio restructuring. Currently, HUD is using joint venture arrangements with non-profit partners under the multifamily demonstration as a mechanism to achieve savings.

Note.—Amounts for direct loan obligations reflect reservations of section 202 funds. Loan obligations shown under the program and financing schedule reflect loans that have reached the initial closing stage of processing.

The Housing for the Elderly or Handicapped Fund was established pursuant to section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended. The fund provided direct loans to nonprofit organizations building and managing housing projects for lower income persons who are elderly or disabled.

Projects included an assured range of necessary services for the occupants of such projects. In addition, the section 8 lower income housing assistance payments program has been used in conjunction with the section 202 program. Applications under the two programs have been processed simultaneously.

The data included in these schedules represent direct loan activities funded under the Housing for the Elderly or Handicapped Loan Fund. Further, activities in support of the needs of the elderly and disabled have been carried out under a grant program funded in the 1991 Appropriations Act (P.L. 101-507) and authorized in the National Affordable Housing Act (P.L. 101-625).

After April 1, 1992, all projects for which there were administrative reservations converted to the capital advance assistance program.

For 1999, funding is being requested for assistance on behalf of the elderly and disabled under the HOME Investment Partnerships Program.

The program and financing schedule for this account summarizes the Federal government's obligations for this loan program.

Financing.—Repayments and interest income from loans continue to be available to pay for commitments of the fund.

GOVERNMENT NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

Federal Funds

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Government National Mortgage Association (Ginnie Mae) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on privately issued securities that are backed by pools of FHA, Veterans Affairs (VA) and Rural Housing Service mortgages. The Ginnie Mae guarantee gives lenders access to the capital markets for funds to originate new loans. New FHA and VA loans are currently pooled into Ginnie Mae securities.

Financing.—Ginnie Mae issuers are assessed commitment, guarantee and other fees to cover costs incurred by Ginnie Mae and to fund a reserve against possible future payments under the guarantee.

Operating results.—Fee collections, interest, and other income are expected to exceed expenses by $329 million and $402 million in 1998 and 1999 respectively.

Credit accounts:

tracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, and educational institutions, and through agreements with State and local governments and other Federal agencies.

In 1999, the research program will focus on activities to support research examining the implications of significant changes in public and assisted housing policy, the impacts of welfare reform on HUD-assisted households and HUD-subsidized developments, the success of instituting a continuum of care approach to help the homeless and other areas. National Housing Surveys will continue in 1999.

The 1999 request includes $10 million to support an initiative known as the Partnership for Advancing Technologies in Housing (PATH). PATH is a key component of the President's Climate Change Technology Initiative (CCTI). Energy use in buildings accounts for more than one-third of air emissions, producing more than 350 million metric tons of carbon emissions. PATH will help to significantly reduce: housing utility costs; carbon emissions; construction injuries; losses due to fire and disasters. The funds will be used for PATH-related housing technology research, field demonstrations of promising new technologies, information dissemination, and the development of product evaluation systems.

Funding for PATH is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to providing needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The Budget proposes an appropriation of $52 million in 1999 for fair housing activities to fund programs, consistent with the President's "One America" policy, which will support new efforts to end housing discrimination, including a commitment to double the number of housing discrimination enforcement actions over the next 4 years. Of the amount requested, $23 million is for the Fair Housing Assistance Program and $29 million is for the Fair Housing Initiatives Program.

The Fair Housing Assistance Program (FHAP), authorized by title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968 as amended, provides funding to State and local agencies to assure prompt and effective processing of Title VIII (Civil Rights Act of 1968) complaints.

The additional $8 million in funding requested for FHAP will support the President's fair housing enforcement initiative by increasing funding to support additional State and local fair housing organizations to meet the needs of currently underserved populations. These funds will be used for joint investigations and enforcement activities with State and local fair housing agencies to address housing discrimination. It is estimated that the number of new State and local agencies with laws equivalent to the Fair Housing Act will increase to 85 in 1999 from 78 in 1997.

The Fair Housing Initiatives Program (FHIP), authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987, as amended by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, provides support to public and private organizations for the purpose of eliminating or preventing discrimination in housing and for enhancing fair housing opportunities.

Of the $29 million requested, $10 million will be used to fund an audit-based enforcement initiative which will address the continued existence of a high level of both blatant and subtle forms of housing discrimination confirmed through testing experience. Additional FHIP funding will support extended testing and other anti-discrimination activities by private fair housing groups.

Title X of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-550), known as the Residential Lead-Based Paint Hazard Reduction Act, authorized the Secretary to establish the Lead-Based Paint Hazard Control Grant Program. The primary purpose of the program is to reduce the exposure of young children to lead-based paint hazards in their homes.

To accomplish this, two major activities are being conducted within the Department's Office of Lead Hazard Control. The first is the Healthy Homes Initiative, which will include a program to conduct lead-based paint compliance checks. The Healthy Homes Initiative will also enable the Department to control additional childhood diseases and injuries that are caused by housing related factors. The initiative will allow for a demonstration that evaluates methods of controlling two or more housing related diseases through a single intervention. A public education/outreach effort, to enable the public to act effectively to protect their children, will also be conducted.

The second activity is the continuation of the Lead Hazard Control Grant Program, which provides grants of $1 to $4 million to State and local governments for control of lead-based paint hazards in privately owned, low-income owner-occupied and rental housing. The grants are also designed to stimulate the development of a trained and certified hazard evaluation and control industry by requiring all contractors to be certified and all workers to be trained through a State-accredited program. In awarding grants, HUD promotes the use of cost-effective approaches to hazard control that can be replicated across the nation.

Prior to 1997, funding for the lead hazard control grant program was provided under the Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing Account. In 1997 and 1998, the program was funded as a set-aside under the Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) account. In 1999 the program is being proposed as a separate, stand-alone program.

This appropriation funds the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (the Office), which was established in 1992 to regulate the financial safety and soundness of the two housing Government Sponsored Enterprises (GSEs)—the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation. The Office was authorized in the Federal Housing Enterprise Safety and Soundness Act of 1992, which also instituted a risk-based capital standard for the GSEs, and gave the regulator enhanced authority to enforce those standards. The office is also required by statute to conduct on-site annual examinations at the GSEs to determine the condition of each enterprise for the purpose of ensuring their financial safety and soundness.

"(a)(1) AUTHORIZED CLAIMS PROCEDURES.—The Secretary is authorized, in accordance with this subsection and terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary, to pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee for any mortgage insured under section 203 of this Act through any of the methods described in this paragraph.

"(A) ASSIGNMENT OF MORTGAGE.—The Secretary may pay insurance benefits whenever a mortgage has been in a monetary default for at least three full monthly installments or whenever the mortgagee is entitled to foreclosure for a non-monetary default. Insurance benefits shall be paid only upon the assignment, transfer and delivery to the Secretary of—

"(i) all rights and interests arising under the mortgage;

"(ii) all claims of the mortgagee against the mortgagor or others arising out of the mortgage transaction;

"(iii) title evidence satisfactory to the Secretary; and

"(iv) such records relating to the mortgage transaction as the Secretary may require.

"(B) CONVEYANCE OF TITLE TO PROPERTY.—The Secretary may pay insurance benefits if the mortgagee has acquired title to the mortgaged property through foreclosure or has otherwise acquired such property from the mortgagor after a default upon—

"(i) the prompt conveyance to the Secretary of title to the property which meets the standards of the Secretary in force at the time the mortgage was insured, and which is evidenced in the manner provided by such standards; and

"(ii) the assignment to the Secretary of all claims of the mortgagee against the mortgagor or others, arising out of the mortgage transaction or foreclosure proceedings, except such claims as may have been released with the consent of the Secretary.

The Secretary is authorized to permit the mortgagee to tender to the Secretary a satisfactory conveyance of title and transfer of possession directly from the mortgagor or other appropriate grantor, and to pay to the mortgagee the insurance benefits to which it would otherwise be entitled if such conveyance had been made to the mortgagee and from the mortgagee to the Secretary.

"(C) CLAIM WITHOUT CONVEYANCE OF TITLE.—The Secretary may pay insurance benefits upon sale of the mortgaged property at foreclosure where such sale is for at least the fair market value of the property (with appropriate adjustments), as determined by the Secretary, and upon assignment to the Secretary of all claims referred to in clause (ii) of subparagraph (B).

"(D) PRE-FORECLOSURE SALE.—The Secretary may pay insurance benefits upon the sale of the mortgaged property by the mortgagor after default and the assignment to the Secretary of all claims referred to in clause (ii) of subparagraph (B), if—

"(i) the sale of the mortgaged property has been approved by the Secretary;

"(ii) the mortgagee receives an amount at least equal to the fair market value of the property (with appropriate adjustments), as determined by the Secretary; and

"(iii) the mortgagor has received an appropriate disclosure, as determined by the Secretary.

"(2) PAYMENT FOR LOSS MITIGATION.—The Secretary may pay insurance benefits to the mortgagee to recompense the mortgagee for its actions to provide an alternative to foreclosure of a mortgage that is in default, which actions may include such actions as special forbearance, loan modification, and deeds in lieu of foreclosure, all upon such terms and conditions as the mortgagee shall determine in the mortgagee's sole discretion within guidelines provided by the Secretary, but which may not include assignment of a mortgage to the Secretary. For purposes of the preceding sentence, no action authorized by the Secretary and no action taken, nor any failure to act, by the Secretary or the mortgagee shall be subject to judicial review.

"(3) DETERMINING CLAIMS PROCEDURE.—The Secretary shall publish guidelines for determining which of the procedures for payment of insurance specified in paragraph (1) are available to a mortgagee when it claims insurance benefits. At least one of the procedures for payment of insurance benefits specified in paragraph (1)(A) or (1)(B) shall be available to a mortgagee with respect to a mortgage, but the same procedure is not required to be available for all of the mortgages held by a mortgagee.

"(4) SERVICING ASSIGNED MORTGAGE.—If a mortgage is assigned to the Secretary under paragraph (1)(A), the Secretary may permit the assigning mortgagee or its servicer to continue to service the mortgage for reasonable compensation and on terms and conditions determined by the Secretary. Neither the Secretary nor any servicer of the mortgage shall be required to forbear from collection of amounts due under the mortgage or otherwise pursue loss mitigation measures.

"(5) CALCULATING INSURANCE BENEFITS.—Insurance benefits shall be paid as provided in section 520 of this Act, and shall be equal to the original principal obligation of the mortgage which was unpaid on the date the mortgage was assigned to the Secretary, or on the date of the institution of foreclosure proceedings, or on the date of the acquisition of the property after default other than by foreclosure, or on the date of sale of the mortgaged property by the mortgagor, with such additions and deductions as the Secretary deems appropriate.

"(6) FORBEARANCE AND RECASTING AFTER DEFAULT.—The mortgagee may, upon such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe—

“(A) extend the time for the curing of the default, and the time for commencing foreclosure proceedings or for otherwise acquiring title to the mortgaged property, to such time as the mortgagee determines is necessary and desirable to enable the mortgagor to complete the mortgage payments, including an extension of time beyond the stated maturity of the mortgage, and in the event of a subsequent foreclosure or acquisition of the property by other means the Secretary is authorized to include in the amount of insurance benefits an amount equal to any unpaid mortgage interest; or

“(B) provide for a modification of the terms of the mortgage for the purpose of recasting, over the remaining term of the mortgage or over such longer period pursuant to guidelines as may be prescribed by the Secretary, the total unpaid amount then due, with the modification to become effective currently or to become effective upon the termination of an agreed-upon extension of the period for curing the default; and the principal amount of the mortgage, as modified, shall be considered the ‘original principal obligation of the mortgage’ as that term is used in this section for the purpose of paragraph (5).

“(7) TERMINATION OF PREMIUM OBLIGATION.—The obligation of the mortgagee to pay the premium charges for insurance shall cease upon fulfillment of the appropriate requirements under which the Secretary may pay insurance benefits, as described in paragraph (1). The Secretary may also terminate the mortgagee’s obligation to pay mortgage insurance premiums upon receipt of an application filed by the mortgagee for insurance benefits under paragraph (1), or in the event the contract of insurance is terminated pursuant to section 229 of this Act.

“(8) RELATIONSHIP TO SECTION 230.—Nothing in this section shall limit the authority of the Secretary to pay insurance benefits under section 230 of this Act.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The Secretary shall publish a notice in the Federal Register stating the effective date of the terms and conditions prescribed by the Secretary under section 204(a)(1) of the National Housing Act, as amended by this section. Sections 204 (a) and (k) of the National Housing Act as they existed immediately prior to the effective date of the terms and conditions implementing the amendment to section 204(a) made by this Act shall continue to apply to any mortgage insured under section 203 of the National Housing Act prior to such date, except that the Secretary is authorized, at the request of the mortgagee, to pay insurance benefits as provided in sections 204(a)(1) (A) and (D) of such Act to calculate insurance benefits in accordance with section 204(a)(5) of such Act.

(c) REDUNDANT PROVISION REPEALED.—Section 204(k) of the National Housing Act is hereby repealed.

Wildland fire preparedness.—This activity funds the non-emergency and predictable aspects of the Department's wildland fire program. Preparedness includes readiness, operational planning, oversight, procurement, training, supervision, and deployment of wildland fire suppression personnel and equipment prior to wildland fire occurrence. It also includes activities related to program monitoring and evaluation, integration of fire into land-use planning, and fire research and fire science program activities.

Wildland fire operations.—This activity funds the emergency and unpredictable aspects of the Department's wildland fire operations program. Wildland fire operations include emergency suppression, emergency rehabilitation, and hazardous fuels reduction. Suppression operations include the total spectrum of management actions taken on wildland fires in a safe, cost-effective manner, considering public benefits and values to be protected and consistent with resource objectives and land management plans. Suppression operations also include severity funding used to improve initial attack preparedness response capabilities when abnormal fire conditions occur resulting in fire seasons starting earlier than normal, lasting longer than normal, or exceeding average fire danger rating for prolonged periods. Emergency rehabilitation of wildland fire areas is carried out to prevent land degradation and resource damages and to stabilize soils, structures, or other conditions or damage caused by wildland fires. Hazardous fuels reduction operations include all operational aspects of applying prescribed fire to reduce fuel loadings and for ecosystem diversity. It also includes mechanical treatments where the application of fire is not feasible. Funding for this activity is based on the historical 10-year average of suppression and rehabilitation expenditures adjusted for inflation, and a target level for hazardous fuels reduction operations.

The Central Hazardous Materials Fund is used to fund remedial investigations/feasibility studies and cleanups of hazardous waste sites for which the Department of the Interior is liable. Authority is provided for amounts recovered from responsible parties to be credited to this account. Thus, the account may be composed of both annual appropriations of no-year funds and of offsetting collections. The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. Section 9601 et seq.) requires responsible parties, including Federal landowners, to investigate and clean up releases of hazardous substances.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition of lands or interests in lands, by exchange or purchase, when necessary for public recreation use and other purposes related to the management of public lands.

Funding for the Land acquisition account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Permanent operating funds accounts include:
Forest ecosystems health and recovery.—Funds in this account are derived from revenue generated from the Federal share of receipts from the sale of salvage timber from the Oregon and California grant lands, public domain lands, and Coos Bay Wagon Road lands. This account was established to allow the Bureau of Land Management to more efficiently and effectively address forest health problems.

Timber Sale Pipeline Restoration Fund.—This fund provides for the deposit and use of fees collected by the BLM for sales of non-salvage timber pursuant to the timber salvage provisions of Public Law 104-19 and Public Law 105-83. Of the total deposited into this account, 75 percent is to be used for preparation of timber sales to fill the timber pipeline on lands administered by the BLM, and 25 percent is to be expended on the backlog of recreation projects on BLM lands.

Recreation fees.—This account holds funds that enable the BLM to retain and spend up to 15 percent of recreation receipts collected during the current year to offset fee collection costs.

Expenses, road maintenance deposits.—Users of certain roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) make deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys collected are appropriated for necessary road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available only for those lands (43 U.S.C. 1762(c), 43 U.S.C. 1735(b)).

Recreational fee demonstration program.—Fees collected by the BLM at recreation sites identified pursuant to provisions of the 1996 Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act are deposited to this account. Of the total collected, 80 percent is permanently appropriated for use at the sites where the fees were generated; the remaining 20 percent is available for the general BLM recreation program.

The Helium Act Amendments of 1960, Public Law 86-777 (50 U.S.C. 167), authorized activities necessary to provide sufficient helium to meet the current and foreseeable future needs of essential government activities.

The Helium Privatization Act of 1996, Public Law 104-273, provides for the eventual privatization of the program and its functions. In FY 1999, the Helium program will consist of:

- (a) continued storage and transmission of crude helium;
- (b) complete disposal of helium refining facilities and other excess property not needed for storage and transmission of crude helium;
- (c) oversight of the production of helium on Federal lands.

The estimates assume that the program will continue to fund full implementation of the Helium Privatization Act.

The Minerals Management Service supervises exploration for, and the development and production of, gas, oil, and other minerals on the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) lands; and collects royalties, rentals, and bonuses due the Federal Government and Indian lessors from minerals produced on Federal, Indian, and OCS lands.

Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) lands.—The program provides for: (1) performance of environmental assessments to ensure compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA); (2) conduct of lease offerings; (3) selection and evaluation of tracts offered for lease by competitive bidding; (4) assurance that the Federal Government receives fair market value for leased lands; and (5) regulation and supervision of energy and mineral exploration, development, and production operations on the OCS lands.

Royalty management.—The Royalty management program provides accounting, auditing, and compliance activities for royalties, rentals, and bonuses due from minerals produced on Federal, Indian, allotted and OCS lands. The program includes an automated accounting system to ensure that all royalties are properly collected.

General administration.—General administrative expenses provide for management, executive direction and coordination, administrative support, Federal building space and general support services.

Alaska is paid 90 percent and other States 50 percent of the receipts from bonuses, royalties, payor late payment interest, and rentals of public lands within those States resulting from the leasing and development of mineral resources under: the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 191); the Mineral Leasing Act for Acquired Lands (30 U.S.C. 351); the Geothermal Steam Act of 1970 (30 U.S.C. 1001); and, from leases of pot-ash deposits (30 U.S.C. 285), on both public domain and certain acquired lands.

The Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1993 (OBRA) requires 50 percent of the Federal Government's mineral leasing administrative program costs to be recovered before disbursement to the United States Treasury and States. The Act also requires that a State's share of program costs be the lesser amount as determined under two different methods (revenue versus cost-based) as is prescribed in the Act.

Environmental protection.—This activity funds those functions that directly contribute to ensuring that the environment is protected during surface coal mining operations. It also addresses those activities that ensure that coal operators adequately reclaim the land after mining is completed.

Under this activity, OSM provides regulatory grants to States to operate enforcement programs under the terms of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977 (SMCRA). It also provides for the operation of Federal and Indian land programs and the oversight of State programs. This activity also supports State regulatory program development and maintenance.

Environmental Restoration.—This activity funds environmental reclamation efforts through the collection of civil penalties for post-SMCRA reclamation and funds from bond forfeitures. It also provides funding for underground and coal outcrop fires.

Technology development and transfer.—This activity provides funding to enhance the technical skills that States and Indian Tribes need to operate their regulatory programs. It provides technical outreach to States and Indian Tribes to solve problems related to the environmental effects of coal mining. The Violator System is funded from this activity.

Financial Management.—This activity provides the resources for the managing, accounting, and processing of collections and for the pursuit of delinquent civil penalties. This includes developing and maintaining information management systems that support these functions and enhance the agency's ability to deny new mining permits to applicants with unabated State or Federal violations.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides funding for executive direction, general administrative support, and the acquisition of certain agency-wide common services, such as rent, telephones, and postage.

The following are key performance measures for the Regulation and technology account:

Environmental Restoration.—This activity funds those functions that contribute to reclaiming lands affected by past coal mining practices. Funds are used to restore land and water resources and the environment that have been degraded by mining prior to the passage of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act (SMCRA).

This activity provides reclamation grants to qualified States. It also provides for the Federal reclamation program, which includes the Federally-administered emergency reclamation program, and for high priority projects in States that do not have a reclamation program.

Funding within this account for the Clean Streams Initiative and Western Mine Lands Partnership Initiative is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in section II of the Budget volume.

Technology development and transfer.—This activity provides funding to enhance the technical skills that the States and Indian Tribes need to operate their reclamation programs. OSM conducts technical studies on mining and reclamation-related problems. This activity also provides resources for the Small operators assistance program.

Financial Management.—This activity provides funds to identify, notify, collect, and audit fees from coal operators for the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund. OSM seeks to maximize voluntary compliance with the SMCRA's reclamation fee provisions.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides funding for executive direction, general administrative support, and the acquisition of certain agency-wide common services such as rent, telephones, and postage.

The following are the key performance measures for the Abandoned Mine Reclamation Fund account:

This account funds the Federal share of ecosystem restoration activities under the California Bay-Delta Environmental Enhancement and Water Security Act, which are selected by a State and Federal partnership (CALFED). Although this account is included within the Bureau of Reclamation for budget presentation purposes, these funds are to be transferred to the Federal agencies participating in CALFED, consistent with plans approved by the Secretary of the Interior.

Funding for the California Bay-Delta Ecosystem Restoration account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources

Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The U.S. Geological Survey conducts research and provides scientific data and information concerning natural hazards and environmental issues as well as on the water, land, and mineral and biological resources of the Nation. It works with other Federal agencies to determine national priorities and to encourage increased data-production partnerships, data sharing, and adherence to standards for production of geographic, geologic, biologic and water data.

National mapping program.—The national mapping program collects, integrates, and makes available, in printed and digital format, cartographic and geographic base data, remotely sensed data, data made available from classified sources, and multipurpose and special-purpose maps. Research is conducted in the mapping sciences, geography, and related disciplines in support of data production and applications. Activities related to the National Spatial Data Infrastructure support interagency and intergovernmental partnerships for establishing a national geospatial data clearinghouse, developing data standards, organizing regional coordination, and developing a data framework [data set] for the Nation.

Geologic hazards, resources, and processes.—The national program of onshore and offshore geologic research and investigations produces: (1) information on geologic hazards, such as earthquakes, volcanoes, and landslides; (2) geologic information for use in the management of public lands and in national policy determinations; (3) information on the chemistry and physics of the Earth, its past climate, and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being modified; (4) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps and analyses to address environmental, resource, and hazards concerns; and (5) hazards, resource, and environmental assessments as well as improved methods and instrumentation for detecting and monitoring hazards, disseminating hazards information, and conducting assessments.

Water resources investigations.—The national program of water resources monitoring, investigations, and research has the objective of appraising the Nation's water resources and ensuring that the information necessary to develop and manage them efficiently and effectively is available when needed. The program produces data, analyses, and assessments to support Federal, State and local government decisions on water planning, water management, water quality, energy development, and enhancement of the quality of the environment.

Biological research.—The national program of biological research: (1) conducts biological research and inventories; (2) provides scientific information access for the management of biological resources; and (3) predicts the consequences of environmental change and the effects of alternative management actions on plants, animals, and their habitats. The program conducts the high priority biological research needed by the Department of the Interior's land management bureaus and also operates the Cooperative Research Unit program which provides research and information to resource managers, trains natural resource professionals and accesses university and State scientist expertise and facilities.

General administration.—General administrative expenses provide for management, executive direction and coordination, and administrative and information resources management services to the Bureau, human resources management, and the Washington Administrative Service Center.

Facilities.—This activity finances: (1) operation and maintenance, facilities management, and special support services for the operation of the National Center headquarters; and, (2) some services for major field centers.

Reimbursable program.—Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for: cooperative efforts and proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records; proceeds from sale of personal property; reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission; and reimbursements from foreign countries and international organizations for technical assistance. Reimbursements from other Federal agencies are for mission related work performed at the request of the financing agency.

Funding for the surveys, investigations, and research account is proposed as part of the Research Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to providing needed and sustained investments in important Federal research programs on a deficit neutral basis. A discussion of the Research Fund for America, and two other funds for the environment and transportation, can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Ecological services.—The Service provides technical assistance to prevent or minimize adverse environmental effects of development projects; restores trust species habitats; and, produces wetland maps of the United States. Contaminants are investigated, monitored, and assessed. Activities are pursued to prevent species from becoming extinct, and to return them to the point where they are neither threatened nor endangered.

Refuges and wildlife.—The Service maintains the National Wildlife Refuge System consisting of 512 units, with waterfowl production areas in 198 counties and 50 coordination areas, totaling about 93 million acres; directs and coordinates national migratory bird programs; and, enforces Federal wildlife laws and regulations.

Fisheries.—The Service is responsible for the development, management, protection and enhancement of interjurisdictional fishery resources, and provides technical assistance related to fish, wildlife and marine mammals.

General administration.—Provides policy guidance, program coordination, and administrative services to all fish and wildlife programs. The funds also support the Service's international activities, National Education and Training Center, and projects through the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation to restore and enhance fish and wildlife populations.

Funding for refuge maintenance and habitat improvement in the resource management account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

resources and services; and, (3) long-term environmental monitoring and research programs directed to the prevention, containment, and amelioration of hazardous substances and oil spill sites.

The Fund operates as a departmentwide program, incorporating the expertise of its various bureaus and offices. Natural resource damage assessments and the restoration of damaged natural resources are authorized by the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 9601 et seq.), Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended (33 U.S.C. 1251 et seq.), the Oil Pollution Act of 1990 (P.L. 101-380), and the Act of July 27, 1990 (P.L. 101-337). Since 1992, amounts received by the United States from responsible parties for restoration or reimbursement in settlement of natural resource damages may be deposited in the Fund and shall accrue interest.

EXXON VALDEZ RESTORATION PROGRAM

The budget incorporates the receipts and mandatory spending associated with the 1991 Exxon Valdez oil spill civil and criminal settlements. Receipts for restoration activities from 1992 through 2001 are currently estimated to total $687 million. Not included in the receipts is $108 million which is currently allocated to the Restoration Reserve to address restoration activities beyond 2001. The Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Trustee Council was formed to act on behalf of the public as trustees in the collection and joint use of all civil settlement recoveries. The criminal settlement funds are managed separately by the Federal and Alaska State governments, although activities are coordinated with the Trustee Council to maximize restoration benefits.

Funding from the settlements, as well as interest, is provided to the Federal and Alaska State governments to restore the resources and services damaged by the 1989 oil spill. Based upon the current assessment of damages, these funds are sufficient to complete the restoration program. Restoration activities were initiated in 1992 and habitat protection was begun in 1993.

Habitat protection and acquisition is one of the principal tools of restoration. The Trustee Council has underway two habitat protection and acquisition programs, a large parcel program that protects blocks of land in excess of 1,000 acres and a small parcel program that recognizes the unique habitat qualities and strategic restoration value that smaller tracts provide. Funding from the Exxon Valdez civil and criminal settlements, the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and private partnerships work together as an integrated approach to the restoration program. The Council has been working with large and small landowners, on a willing-seller basis, in the spill-impacted area to protect approximately 750,000 acres of habitat.

These funds are used to acquire areas which have native fish and/or wildlife values and provide natural resource benefits over a broad geographical area, and for acquisition management activities.

Funding for the Land acquisition account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The Partnerships for Wildlife Act (16 U.S.C. 3741), authorizes wildlife conservation and appreciation projects to conserve fish and wildlife species and to provide opportunities for the public to enjoy these species through nonconsumptive activities. Grants to States are directed toward nonconsumptive activities and the conservation of species not taken for recreation, fur, or food; not listed as endangered or threatened under the Endangered Species Act of 1973; and not defined as marine mammals under the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972. Funding from appropriations is made available to the extent external matching funds are applied to the projects.

Funds deposited into this account include direct appropriations and fines, penalties, and forfeitures collected under the authority of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act (16 U.S.C. 707) and interest on obligations held in the Federal Aid to Wildlife Restoration Fund. The funding for the North American Wetlands Conservation Fund is authorized by the North American Wetlands Conservation Act, Public Law 101-233. The Act established the North American Wetlands Conservation Council, which recommends wetlands conservation projects for the approval of the Migratory Bird Conservation Commission.

These projects help fulfill the habitat protection, restoration and enhancement goals of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan, the Act and the Tripartite Agreement among Mexico, Canada and the United States. These projects may involve partnerships with public agencies and private entities, with non-Federal matching contributions, and will provide for the long-term conservation of habitat for migratory birds and other fish and wildlife, including species that are listed, or are candidates to be listed, under the Endangered Species Act (16 U.S.C. 1531).

Wetlands conservation projects include the obtaining of a real property interest in lands or waters, including water rights; the restoration, management or enhancement of habitat; and training and development for conservation management in Mexico. Funding may be provided for assistance for wetlands conservation projects in Canada or Mexico.

Funding for the North American Wetlands Conservation Fund is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The Cooperative Endangered Species Conservation Fund provides grants to States and U.S. territories to participate in conservation, recovery, and monitoring projects for species that are listed, or species that are candidates for listing, as threatened or endangered. The Fund is authorized by the Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1531-1543), and financed by permanent appropriations from the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury in an amount equal to 5 percent of receipts deposited to the Federal aid in wildlife and sport fish restoration accounts. The actual amount available for grants is subject to annual appropriations. Grants are also awarded to States for land acquisition in support of Habitat Conservation Plans with local governments and other interested parties to protect species while allowing development to continue.

The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715s) authorizes revenues through the sale of products from Service lands, less expenses for producing revenue and activities related to revenue sharing. The Fish and Wildlife Service makes payments to counties in which Service lands are located. If the net revenues are insufficient to make full payments according to the formula contained in the Act, direct appropriations are authorized to make up the difference.

In 1997, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service initiated the recreational fee demonstration program at selected refuges and other public sites authorized by the Omnibus Consolidated Rescissions and Appropriations Act of 1996, as amended. Entrance fees and other user receipts collected at sites that had no pre-existing fee program will be deposited in this account. Receipts collected at sites with previously established user fee programs will be deposited into the Recreational fee demonstration program account, in accordance with a legislatively prescribed formula.

The fee program demonstrates the feasibility of user-generated cost recovery for the operation and maintenance of recreation areas or sites and habitat enhancement projects on Federal lands. Fees are used primarily at the site to improve visitor access, enhance public safety and security, address backlogged maintenance needs, and meet other operational needs.

Since fiscal year 1992 the Sport Fish Restoration Fund has supported coastal wetlands grants pursuant to the Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act (P.L. 101-646). Additional revenue from small engine fuel taxes was provided under the Surface Transportation Extension Act of 1997.

The Coastal Wetlands Planning, Protection and Restoration Act requires an amount equal to 18 percent of the total deposits into the Sport Fish Restoration Fund, or amounts collected in small engine fuels excise taxes as provided by 26 U.S.C. 9504(b), whichever is greater, to be distributed as follows: 70 percent shall be available to the Corps of Engineers for priority project and conservation planning activities; 15 percent shall be available to the Fish and Wildlife Service for coastal wetlands conservation grants; and 15 percent to the Fish and Wildlife Service for wetlands conservation projects under Section 8 of the North American Wetlands Conservation Act (P.L. 101-233).

The Clean Vessel Act of 1992, which expired on September 30, 1997, authorized the Secretary of the Interior to make grants to States, in specified amounts, to carry out projects for the construction, renovation, operation, and maintenance of pumpout stations and waste reception facilities. The Sport Fish Restoration Act, as amended, provides for the transfer of funds from the Sport fish restoration account of the Aquatic Resources Trust Fund for use by the Secretary of the Interior to carry out the purposes of this Act and for use by the Secretary of Transportation for State recreational boating safety programs under section 13106(a)(1) of title 46, United States Code.

Assistance is provided to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, the Northern Mariana Islands, and the District of Columbia for up to 75 percent of the cost of approved projects including: research into fisheries problems, surveys and inventories of fish populations, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat and provision of access for public use.

The National Park System contains 376 areas and 83.3 million acres of land in 49 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Guam, Samoa, and the Northern Marianas. These areas have been established to protect and preserve the cultural and natural heritage of the United States and its territories. Park visits total over 276 million annually. This appropriation funds the operation of individual units of the National Park System as well as planning and administrative support for the entire system. The total appropriation request of $1,320,828,000 includes $8,075,000 in estimated revenue from recreation, user and entrance fees in accordance with 16 U.S.C. 4601-6a(i)-(j), excluding fees credited to other accounts by law, to remain available until expended.

Funding for Everglades restoration and the maintenance subactivity of the Operation of the National Park System account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

<sup>2</sup> This is an overall indicator of customer service that combines the ratings of twelve visitor services—park personnel, visitor centers, directional signs, restrooms, campgrounds, picnic areas, ranger programs, exhibits, park brochures, lodging, food services, and gift shops. Results shown in the 1997 column are the responses of 25,418 respondents who were surveyed in 18 parks during 1995-96. The most recent survey results compare favorably to surveys conducted in the past. From 1990 to 1994, 76 percent of 47,552 respondents rated visitor services as either "very good" or "good", compared to the most recent survey results of 77 percent.

Construction.—This activity provides for: (1) rehabilitation and restoration of historic and cultural resources; (2) rehabilitation of operational structures such as visitor use and maintenance facilities, trails, and utility systems; (3) construction of new visitor use and operational facilities where the need exists; and (4) rehabilitation and construction of park roads and bridges, funded from the Federal Lands Highways program in the Department of Transportation.

Emergency, unscheduled, and housing projects.—To continue visitor services and preserve resources, minor emergency reconstruction and repair projects are performed. Also, employee housing is built, repaired and rehabilitated.

Planning.—Under this activity, the National Park Service conducts environmental, architectural and engineering studies, as well as planning and design activities.

General management plans.—Under this activity, general management plans are prepared and revised to guide the National Park Service in the protection, use, development, and management of each unit of the National Park System.

Equipment replacement.—Under this activity, automated and motorized equipment to support park operations and visitor services throughout the National Park System is purchased to replace existing inventories that have met use and age limitations. Initial inventories of equipment are purchased for units recently added to the system.

Full funding through advance appropriations.—Full funding of fixed asset acquisitions reduces the risk of cost overruns from delayed funding and increases accountability for cost estimates. Advance appropriations are requested to complete the following construction projects funded through 1998 that require additional funding in the outyears: Sequoia National Park ($13 million after 1999); Riis Park in Gateway National Recreation Area ($5.5 million); Shiloh National Military Park ($10 million); Lake Mead National Recreation Area ($7.55 million); and Elwha River restoration in Olympic National Park ($16 million).

This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. National Park Service agreements with private concessioners providing visitor services within national parks can require the concessioners to deposit a portion of gross receipts or a fixed sum of money in a separate bank account. A concessioner may expend funds from such an account at the direction of the park superintendent for facilities that directly support concession visitor services, but would not otherwise be funded through the appropriations process. Concessioners do not accrue possessory interests from improvements funded through these accounts.

This appropriation finances 60 percent programmatic matching grants-in-aid to the States, certified local governments, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation for historic preservation, and direct grants-in-aid for special legislated purposes. This includes grants to Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) and to Indian tribes. Pursuant to the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act (P.L. 104-333), this appropriation includes $15.4 million in 1999 for grants to specified HBCUs for the preservation and restoration of historic buildings and structures.

Funding for a portion of the Historic Preservation Fund account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

The President's budget proposes a $50 million increase in funding for Save America's Treasures in the National Park Service Historic Preservation Fund to provide assistance to public and private entities for commemorating the Millennium by addressing the Nation's most urgent preservation priorities. These funds will support one of the most important tasks facing America at the turn of the century—to preserve America's most threatened historical and cultural heritage for future generations. These treasures include the significant documents, objects, manuscripts, photographs, works of art, maps, journals, still and moving images, sound recordings, historic structures and sites that document and illuminate the history and culture of the United States.

The National Park Service and other land management agencies have initiated a demonstration fee program that allows parks and other units to collect new or increased admission and user fees and spend the revenue for park improvements. This temporary authority, provided in section 315 of section 101(c) of Public Law 104-134 as amended or supplemented by section 319 of section 101(d) of Public Law 104-208, section 5001 of Public Law 105-18, and sections 107, 320 and 321 of Public Law 105-83, expires at the end of fiscal year 1999. The authorizing legislation has been amended to make all fee revenue at demonstration sites available for obligation in the National Park Renewal Fund beginning in fiscal year 1998. To ensure that fee revenue remains available for park improvements after 1999, the Administration will propose legislation providing permanent fee authority to take effect once the current authority expires.

The Operation of Indian Programs appropriation consists of a wide range of services and benefits provided to Indian Tribes, Alaskan Native groups, and individual Native Americans. As part of a joint Department of the Interior and Department of Justice initiative to address the serious crime problem on many reservations, an increase of $25 million in new funding for law enforcement is included in Operation of Indian Programs for FY 1999.

Tribal priority allocations.—This activity includes the majority of funds used to support ongoing programs at the local Tribal level. Funding priorities for base programs included in Tribal Priority Allocations are determined by Tribes. Although budget estimates include specific amounts for individual programs, funds may be shifted among programs within the total available for a Tribe or a BIA agency office at the time of budget execution.

Other recurring programs.—This activity includes ongoing programs for which funds are (1) distributed by formula, such as elementary and secondary school operations and Tribal community colleges; and (2) for resource management activities that carry out specific laws or court-ordered settlements.

Non-recurring programs.—This activity includes programs that support Indian reservation and Tribal projects of limited duration, such as noxious weed eradication, cadastral surveys, and forest development, and special law enforcement.

Central office operations.—This activity supports the executive, program, and administrative management costs of central office organizations, most of which are located in Washington, DC, and Albuquerque, NM.

Area office operations.—The Bureau of Indian Affairs has 12 area offices located throughout the country. Area Directors have line authority over agency office superintendents. Most of the agency offices are located on Indian reservations. Virtually all of the staff and related administrative support costs for area and agency offices are included within this activity. Area Directors have flexibility in aligning their staff and resources to best meet the program requirements of the Tribes within their area.

Special programs and pooled overhead.—Most of the funds in this activity support bureau-wide expenses for items such as unemployment compensation, workers compensation, facilities rentals, telecommunications, and data processing. This activity includes the Bureau's two post-secondary schools, the Indian police academy, law enforcement, the Indian Arts and Crafts Board, the Indian Integrated Resources Information Program, and non-education facilities operation and maintenance.

Funding for a portion of the Operation of Indian Programs account is proposed as part of the Environmental Resources Fund for America. This proposal highlights the Administration's priority to provide deficit neutral funding for investments in many of our Nation's key environmental programs. A discussion of the Environmental Resources Fund for America and two other funds for research and transportation can be found in Section II of the Budget volume.

Funds were provided by the 1998 appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies from the Land and Water Conservation Fund to supplement land acquisition funding for the National Park Service, Bureau of Land Management, and Fish and Wildlife Service to allow these agencies to complete priority Federal land acquisitions and exchanges. The top priority for the Department of the Interior is the acquisition of 7,500 acres of old-growth redwoods and adjacent lands in the Headwaters Forest in northern California. (The Department of Agriculture's U.S. Forest Service also received additional funds for priority Federal land acquisitions and exchanges, including the private lands associated with the New World Mine project in Montana near Yellowstone National Park.)

Until October 1, 1994, the United States exercised jurisdiction over the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands according to the terms of the 1947 Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United Nations. These responsibilities were carried out by the Department of the Interior.

The Department of the Interior is seeking no additional appropriations for the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. Compacts of Free Association have been implemented with the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, and, as of October 1, 1994, the Republic of Palau. Assistance to the Republic of Palau is now contained in the "Compact of Free Association" account.

Remaining funds in the "Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands" account will be used to meet final transition responsibilities of the United States. Outlays from numerous on-going infrastructure construction projects in the Republic of Palau and the other two entities will continue as provided by the Compacts of Free Association and appropriation laws, and will be reported as Trust Territory expenditures until such time as the activities cease.

COMPACT OF FREE ASSOCIATION

For economic assistance and necessary expenses for the Federated States of Micronesia and the Republic of the Marshall Islands as provided for in sections 122, 221, 223, 232, and 233 of the Compact of Free Association, and for economic assistance and necessary expenses for the Republic of Palau as provided for in sections 122, 221, 223, 232, and 233 of the Compact of Free Association, [$20,545,000] $20,445,000, to remain available until expended, as authorized by Public Law 99-239 and Public Law 99-658. The peoples of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia approved Compacts of Free Association negotiated by the United States and their governments. The Compact of Free Association Act of 1985 (Public Law 99-239) constituted the necessary authorizing legislation to make annual payments to the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia. Payments began in fiscal year 1987 and will continue for fifteen years, totalling an estimated $2.3 billion, to aid in the development of these sovereign nations. The Compact of Free Association with the Republic of Palau was implemented under the terms of Public Law 99-658 on October 1, 1994. This compact will provide annual benefits to the Republic totalling an estimated $600 million over the fifteen-year period that began at the implementation date.

Cochiti Wetfields Solution.—In FY 1994, the Army Corps of Engineers transferred $4,449,100 pursuant to PL. 102-358 and the settlement agreement between the Cochiti Tribe, Corps, and Department of Interior. This is a sinking fund with a life expectancy of 50 to 100 years. Funds are used to pay for operation and maintenance, repair, and replacement of the ongoing drainage system for the Cochiti Pueblo. Funds will be invested and principal and interest may be used. It is estimated that it will cost the Tribe approximately $50,000 per year to operate and maintain the drainage system. The $282,000 represents the estimated interest earnings on the fund.

Tribal Economic Recovery Fund.—This fund is authorized by the Three Affiliated Tribes and Standing Rock Sioux Tribe Equitable Compensation Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-575) and holds funds which have been appropriated pursuant to the Act.

Beginning in FY 1998, interest earned on the principal of this fund is available for both Tribes for economic development, education, and social services programs.

(a) MORATORIUM ON FEDERAL MANAGEMENT.—None of the funds made available to the Department of the Interior or the Department of Agriculture by this or any other Act hereafter enacted may be used prior to December 1, 1998 to issue or implement final regulations, rules, or policies pursuant to title VIII of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act to assert jurisdiction, management, or control over the navigable waters transferred to the State of Alaska pursuant to the Submerged Lands Act of 1953 or the Alaska Statehood Act of 1959.

(b) AMENDMENTS TO ALASKA NATIONAL INTEREST LANDS CONSERVATION ACT.—

(1) AMENDMENT OF ANILCA.—Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this subsection an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 3101 et seq.).

(2) DEFINITIONS.—Section 102(2) (16 U.S.C. 3102(2)) is amended to read as follows:

“(2) The term ‘Federal land’ means lands the title to which is in the United States after December 2, 1980. ‘Federal land’ does not include lands the title to which is in the State, an Alaska Native corporation, or other private ownership.”

(3) FINDINGS.—Section 801 (16 U.S.C. 3111) is amended—

(A) by inserting “(a)” immediately before “The Congress finds and declares”; and

(B) by inserting at the end the following new subsection:

“(b) The Congress finds and declares further that—

“(1) subsequent to the enactment of this Act in 1980, the subsistence law of the State of Alaska (AS 16.05) accomplished the goals of Congress and requirements of this Act in providing subsistence use opportunities for rural residents of Alaska, both Alaska Native and non-Alaska Native;

“(2) the Alaska subsistence law was challenged in Alaska courts, and the rural preference requirement in the law was found in 1989 by the Alaska Supreme Court in McDowell v. State of Alaska (785 P.2d 1, 1989) to violate the Alaska Constitution;

“(3) since that time, repeated attempts to restore the validity of the State law through an amendment to the Alaska Constitution have failed, and the people of Alaska have not been given the opportunity to vote on such an amendment;

“(4) in accordance with title VIII of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior is required to manage fish and wildlife for subsistence uses on all public lands in Alaska because of the failure of State law to provide a rural preference;

“(5) the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals determined in 1995 in State of Alaska v. Babbitt (73 F.3d 698) that the subsistence priority required on public lands under section 804 of this Act applies to navigable waters in which the United States has reserved water rights as identified by the Secretary of the Interior;

“(6) management of fish and wildlife resources by State governments has proven successful in all 50 States, including Alaska, and the State of Alaska should have the opportunity to continue to manage such resources on all lands, including public lands, in Alaska in accordance with this Act, as amended; and

“(7) it is necessary to amend portions of this Act to restore the original intent of Congress to protect and provide for the continued opportunity for subsistence uses on public lands for Alaska Native and non-Alaska Native rural residents through the management of the State of Alaska.”

(4) TITLE VIII DEFINITIONS.—Section 803 (16 U.S.C. 3113) is amended—

(A) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (1);

(B) by striking the period and inserting a semicolon at the end of paragraph (2); and

(C) by inserting at the end the following new paragraphs:

“(3) ‘customary and traditional uses’ means the noncommercial, long-term, and consistent taking of, use of, or reliance upon fish and wildlife in a specific area and the patterns and practices of taking or use of that fish and wildlife that have been established over a reasonable period of time, taking into consideration the availability of the fish and wildlife;

“(4) ‘customary trade’ means, except for money sales of furs and furbearers, the limited noncommercial exchange for money of fish and wildlife or their parts in minimal quantities; and

“(5) ‘rural Alaska resident’ means a resident of a rural community or area. A ‘rural community or area’ means a community or area substantially dependent on fish and wildlife for nutritional and other subsistence uses.”

(5) PREFERENCE FOR SUBSISTENCE USES.—Section 804 (16 U.S.C. 3114) is amended—

(A) by inserting “(a)” immediately before the first sentence; and

(B) by inserting at the end the following new subsection:

“(b) The priority granted by this section is for a reasonable opportunity to take fish and wildlife. For the purposes of this subsection, the term ‘reasonable opportunity’ means an opportunity, consistent with customary and traditional uses (as defined in section 803(3)), to participate in a subsistence hunt or fishery with a reasonable expectation of success, and does not mean a guarantee that fish and wildlife will be taken.”

(6) LOCAL AND REGIONAL PARTICIPATION.—Section 805 (16 U.S.C. 3115) is amended—

(A) in subsection (a) by striking “one year after the date of enactment of this Act.”; and

(B) by amending subsection (d) to read as follows:

“(d)(1) Upon certification by the Secretary that the State has enacted and implemented laws of general applicability which are consistent with, and which provide for the definition, preference, and participation specified in sections 803, 804, and 805, the Secretary shall not implement subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section, and the State may immediately assume management for the taking of fish and wildlife on the public lands for subsistence uses pursuant to this title. Upon assumption of such management by the State, the Secretary shall not implement subsections (a), (b), and (c) of this section unless a court of competent jurisdiction determines that such laws have been repealed, modified, or implemented in a way that is inconsistent with, or does not provide for, the definition, preference, and participation specified in sections 803, 804, and 805, or that the State has failed to cure any such inconsistency after such determination. The State laws shall otherwise supercede such sections insofar as such sections govern State responsibility pursuant to this title for the taking of fish and wildlife on the public lands for subsistence uses. The Secretary may bring a judicial action to enforce this subsection.

“(2)(A) Laws establishing a system of local advisory committees and regional advisory councils consistent with section 805 shall provide that the State rulemaking authority shall consider the advice and recommendations of the regional councils concerning the taking of fish and wildlife populations on public lands within their respective regions for subsistence uses. The regional councils may present recommendations, and the evidence upon which such recommendations are based, to the State rulemaking authority during the course of the administrative proceedings of such authority. The State rulemaking authority may choose not to follow any recommendation which it determines is not supported by substantial evidence presented during the course of its administrative proceedings, violates recognized principles of fish and wildlife conservation or would be detrimental to the satisfaction of rural subsistence needs. If a recommendation is not adopted by the State rulemaking authority, such authority shall set forth the factual basis and the reasons for its decision.

“(B) The members of each regional advisory council established under this subsection shall be appointed by the Governor of Alaska. Each council shall have ten members, four of whom shall be selected from nominees who reside in the region submitted by tribal councils in the region, and six of whom shall be selected from nominees submitted by local governments and local advisory committees. Three of these six shall be subsistence users who reside in the subsistence resource region and three shall be sport or commercial users who may be residents of any subsistence resource region. Regional council members shall have staggered terms of three years in length, with no limit on the number of terms a member may serve. A quorum shall be a majority of the members of the council.”

(7) JUDICIAL ENFORCEMENT.—Section 807 (16 U.S.C. 3117) is amended by inserting the following as subsection (b):

“(b) State agency actions may be declared invalid by the court only if they are arbitrary, capricious, or an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law. When reviewing any action within the specialized knowledge of a State agency, the court shall give the decision of the State agency the same deference it would give the same decision of a comparable Federal agency.”

(8) REGULATIONS.—Section 814 (16 U.S.C. 3124) is amended—

(A) by inserting “, and the State at any time the State has complied with section 805(d)” after “Secretary”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new sentence: “During any time that the State has complied with section 805(d), the Secretary shall not make or enforce regulations implementing section 805(a), (b), or (c).”

(9) LIMITATIONS, SAVINGS CLAUSES.—Section 815 (16 U.S.C. 3125) is amended—

(A) by striking “or” at the end of paragraph (3);

(B) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (4) and inserting in lieu thereof a semicolon and “or”; and

(C) by inserting at the end the following new paragraph:

“(5) prohibiting the Secretary or the State from entering into co-management agreements with Alaska Native organizations or other local or regional entities when such organization or entity is managing fish and wildlife on public lands in Alaska for subsistence uses.”

(c) SAVINGS CLAUSE.—No provision of this section, amendment made by this section, or exercise of authority pursuant to this section may be construed to validate, invalidate, or in any way affect—

(1) any assertion that an Alaska Native organization (including a federally recognized tribe, traditional Alaska Native council, or Alaska Native council organized pursuant to the Act of June 18, 1934 (25 U.S.C. 461 et seq.), as amended) has or does not have governmental authority over lands (including management of, or regulation of the taking of, fish and wildlife) or persons within the boundaries of the State of Alaska;

(2) any assertion that Indian country, as defined in section 1151 of title 18, United States Code, exists or does not exist within the boundaries of the State of Alaska;

(3) any assertion that the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act, as amended (16 U.S.C. 3101 et seq.) is or is not Indian law; or

(4) the authority of the Secretary of the Interior under section 1314(c) of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 3202(c)).

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Unless and until laws are adopted in the State of Alaska which provide for the definition, preference, and participation specified in sections 803, 804, and 805 of the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act (16 U.S.C. 3111 et seq.), the amendments made by subsection (b) of this section shall be effective only for the purposes of determining whether the State’s laws provide for such definition, preference, and participation. The Secretary shall certify before December 1, 1998 if such laws have been adopted in the State of Alaska. Subsection (b) shall be repealed on such date if such laws have not been adopted.】

management lands located near Table Mountain within the Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area, title to which must be acceptable to the Secretary of Agriculture.

(c) Before this exchange can occur, it must be of equal value and the Secretary and the Skamania County Board of Commissioners must agree on the exact parcels of land to be included in the exchange. (i) This authorization is predicated on Skamania County's Board of Commissioners commitment to give foremost consideration to preservation of the overall integrity of the site and conservation of the educational and research potential of the site, including providing for access to and assurance of the continued administration and operation of forestry research on the adjacent Thornton Munger Research Natural Area.

(j) The Secretary is further directed to cooperate with Skamania County to address applicable Federal and State environmental laws.

(k) Notwithstanding the processes involved with the National Environmental Policy Act and the State Environmental Policy Act, should the Secretary of Agriculture and the Skamania County Board of Commissioners fail to reach an agreement on an equal value exchange defined under the terms of this legislation by September 30, 1999, the Wind River Nursery Site shall remain under Forest Service ownership and be maintained by the Forest Service in a tenantable condition.】

In 1999, resources are proposed to provide funding for the Department of Justice to accelerate conversion of its wireless radio communications to narrowband operations. Federal Government agencies are required by 47 U.S.C. 903(d)(1) to make more efficient use of their radio spectrum. The National Telecommunications and Information Administration's (NTIA) implementing regulations require that all Federal spectrum users narrow, by one-half, the bandwidth used to transmit radio signals by the year 2005 for Very High Frequency (VHF) allocations and 2008 for Ultra High Frequency (UHF) allocations. The Department's 1999 Budget includes $72,498,000 in additional funding to accelerate the necessary equipment upgrades to comply with these deadlines, of which the Department estimates to use $60,220,000 for the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), $10,000,000 for the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS), $2,000,000 for the U.S. Marshals Service (USMS), and $278,000 for the Office of the Inspector General. In addition, the level of resources includes $23,396,000 of base radio replacement funding, including $3,859,000 for the FBI, $6,700,000 for the INS, $10,000,000 for the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), $2,500,000 for the Bureau of Prisons, and $337,000 for the USMS. Actual transfers to Department components will depend on approval of narrowbanding implementation plans, including procurement strategies.

COUNTERTERRORISM FUND

For necessary expenses, as determined by the Attorney General, [$20,000,000] $36,703,000, to remain available until expended, to reimburse any Department of Justice organization for (1) the costs incurred in reestablishing the operational capability of an office or facility which has been damaged or destroyed as a result of any domestic or international terrorist incident, (2) the costs of providing support to counter, investigate or prosecute domestic or international terrorism, including payment of rewards in connection with these activities, [and] (3) the costs of conducting a terrorism threat assessment of Federal agencies and their facilities, (4) the costs associated with ensuring the continuance of essential governmental functions during a time of emergency; and (5) the costs for activities related to the protection of the Nation's critical infrastructure: Provided, That any Federal agency may be reimbursed for costs associated with implementation of the recommendations of the President's Commission on Critical Infrastructure Protection: Provided further, [ : Provided,] That funds provided under this paragraph shall be available only after the Attorney General notifies the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate in accordance with section 605 of this Act.

In addition, for necessary expenses, as determined by the Attorney General, [$32,700,000] $16,000,000, to remain available until expended, to reimburse departments and agencies of the Federal Government for any costs incurred in [connection with—

- (1) counterterrorism technology research and development;
- (2) providing training and related equipment for chemical, biological, nuclear, and cyber attack prevention and response capabilities to State and local law enforcement agencies; and
- (3) providing bomb training and response capabilities to State and local law enforcement agencies.] providing training and related equipment for chemical, biological, nuclear, and cyber attack prevention and response capabilities to State and local agencies. The Communications Assistance for Law Enforcement Act (CALEA) of 1994 authorizes the Attorney General to reimburse telecommunications carriers for costs directly associated with modifying equipment to allow law enforcement to perform court-authorized wiretaps. Activities eligible for reimbursement include modifications performed by carriers in connection with equipment, facilities, and services installed or deployed to comply with the Act. In particular, telecommunications carriers are required to expeditiously isolate and enable intercept of all wire and electronic communications, provide access to call-identifying information that is reasonably available to the carrier, deliver the intercepts and call-identifying information to the government, and provide these services unobtrusively so as to minimize interference to subscriber services.

The Omnibus Consolidated Appropriations Act of 1997 (P.L. 104-208) extended eligibility for reimbursement to telecommunications equipment manufacturers and providers of support services. In addition to direct appropriations to the Fund, Congress authorized Federal agencies with law enforcement and intelligence responsibilities to transfer to the Fund unobligated balances that are available until expended, upon compliance with Congressional notification requirements.

An increase of $100 million in direct appropriations to the Fund is proposed, and will be used to reimburse the telecommunications industry for eligible CALEA activities.

This program includes the Office of the Pardon Attorney (OPA) and the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR). The Pardon Attorney receives and reviews all petitions for clemency, i.e., commutation of sentences and pardons. The Executive Office for Immigration Review contains the Immigration Judge function, the Board of Immigration Appeals, the Office of the Chief Administrative Hearing Officer, and the Office of Management and Administration. EOIR was established January 1, 1983 to improve the immigration hearing and appeal process.

Additional funding of $10.3 million is proposed for 1999. Of this, $9.3 million is requested to coordinate with INS activities. This coordination involves hiring additional immigration Judges, Attorneys, and support positions that will allow EOIR to maintain current performance levels in light of INS program increases. $1 million is proposed to fund Tele-Video conferencing. The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) was statutorily established in the Department of Justice on April 14, 1989. The OIG investigates alleged violations of criminal and civil laws, regulations, and ethical standards arising from the conduct of the Department's employees. The OIG provides leadership and assists management in promoting integrity, economy, efficiency, and effectiveness within the Department and in its financial, contractual, and grant relationships with others. Also by statute, the OIG reports to the Attorney General, Congress, and the public on a semiannual basis regarding its significant activities.

The Audit function is responsible for independent audits and reviews of Department organizations, programs, functions, computer security and information technology systems, and financial statement audits. The audit function also conducts or reviews external audits of expenditures made under Department contracts, grants, and other agreements.

The Investigations function investigates allegations of civil rights violations, bribery, fraud, abuse and violations of other laws, rules and procedures that govern Department employees, contractors, and grantees. This function also develops these cases for criminal prosecution, civil action, or administrative action. In some instances the OIG refers allegations to components within the Department and requests notification of their findings and of any disciplinary action taken.

The Inspections function conducts analyses and makes recommendations to decision makers for improvements in Department programs, policies, and procedures. In addition, this function also conducts shorter and more time-sensitive reviews and evaluations to provide managers with early warnings about possible program deficiencies.

The Special Investigations function investigates allegations of significant interest to the American public and Congress and of vital importance to the Department.

The Executive Direction and Control function provides program direction for the OIG. Responsibilities include policy development, legal counsel, Congressional affairs, planning, budget, finance, personnel, procurement, automated data processing, and general support services.

The United States Parole Commission makes decisions to grant or deny parole to Federal and D.C. Code prisoners serving sentences of one year and a day or more, sets conditions of parole, supervises parolees and mandatory releasees, recommits parolees in the event of violations of the conditions of supervision, and determines the termination of supervision in accordance with the Parole Commission and Reorganization Act of 1976.

In addition, the Commission seeks to improve the rehabilitation process by monitoring an effective parole supervision program through U.S. probation officers and through research studies that evaluate the effectiveness of parole programs. During 1998, the U.S. Parole Commission assumes responsibility for parole hearings and actions on District of Columbia prisoners under the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act (P.L. 105-33). For 1999, the Commission is requesting a budget increase of $2,652,000 to implement the provisions of the Act.

The Federal Government is represented in each of the 94 judicial districts by a U.S. Marshal. The primary mission of the U.S. Marshals Service are protection of the Federal judiciary, protection of witnesses, execution of warrants and court orders, management of seized assets, and custody and transportation of unsentenced prisoners. It is the principal support force in the Federal judicial system and an integral part of the Federal law enforcement community.

Funding initiatives proposed for 1999 include 172 positions, 88 FTE, and $18,679,000 for security staffing at new and expanded courthouses, for courthouse projects scheduled for completion in 1999, for staff and equipment for the Electronic Surveillance Unit, to staff the Justice Detainee Information System, to increase the number of Systems Administrators in field offices, to formalize the Prisoner Medical Services Program, to manage and oversee the Intergovernmental Agreement Program, for replacement of vehicles, and, for the D.C. Superior Court to increase prisoner security in the cell-block and judicial security in the courtrooms.

Reimbursable program.—Federal funds in 1999 are derived primarily from the U.S. Air Force for the Intercontinental Ballistic Missile Program for transportation security services provided by the U.S. Marshals Service, the Department of State for security details at the United Nations, the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement appropriation for drug law enforcement and the Office of National Drug Control Policy for security services. Non-Federal funds are derived from State and local governments for witness protection and for the transportation of prisoners pursuant to State writs and from fees collected from service of civil process and sales associated with judicial orders.

The Justice Prisoner and Alien Transportation System (JPATS) is responsible for transporting by air all Federal prisoners and detainees, including sentenced, pretrial, and illegal aliens, whether in the custody of the U.S. Marshals Service, the Bureau of Prisons, or the Immigration and Naturalization Service. JPATS also provides prisoner transportation to the Department of Defense and State and local law enforcement on a space available basis. JPATS will transport prisoners and detainees in a cost effective manner without sacrificing the safety of the public, Federal employees, or those in custody. For 1999, the Fund will receive an initial capitalization of $5,000,000, and the financing of operations will be full-cost recovery based on a mileage and cost-per-seat charge paid by customer agencies. Further, a 1999 increase of $5,000,000 is included for the acquisition of an aircraft. Proceeds from the disposal of aircraft will be deposited into the Fund.

This appropriation is used to pay fees and expenses to witnesses who appear on behalf of the Government in litigation in which the United States is a party. Factors over which the Department of Justice has little control affect the costs incurred. The U.S. Attorneys, the U.S. Marshals, and the Department's six litigating divisions are served by this appropriation.

Fees and expenses of witnesses.—Pays the fees and expenses associated with the preparation and presentation of testimony on behalf of the United States for fact witnesses, who testify as to events or facts about which they have personal knowledge, and for expert witnesses, who provide technical or scientific testimony. This program also pays the fees of physicians and psychiatrists who examine accused persons upon order of the court to determine their mental competency.

Protection of witnesses.—Pays subsistence costs to ensure the safety of Government witnesses whose testimony on behalf of the United States places them or their families in jeopardy.

Victim compensation fund.—Pays relocation and restitution to any victim of a crime committed by a protected witness who causes or threatens death or serious bodily injury.

Private counsel.—Pays private counsel retained to represent Government employees who are sued, charged, or subpoenaed for actions taken while performing their official duties (private counsel expenditures may be authorized for congressional testimony as well as for litigation in instances where government counsel is precluded from representing the employee or private counsel is otherwise appropriate);

Superior Court Informant Protection.—Pays for the short term protection and temporary relocation of informants for the District of Columbia Superior Court.

Reimbursable program.—Receives reimbursement from States and localities to cover the costs of maintaining those State and local organized crime witnesses and their families who have been accepted into the witness protection program.

The Civil Liberties Act of 1988 (P.L. 100-383) authorizes payments to Japanese-Americans whom the Government evacuated, relocated or interned during World War II. The Civil Liberties Act Amendments of 1992 (P.L. 102-371) increased the total authorization for this program to $1.65 billion.

The Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1990, provided advance appropriations for the redress payments. To date, payments have been made on 81,278 cases.

In 1999, carryover funding will support continued implementation of educational activities pursuant to section 106(b) of the Civil Liberties Act of 1988.

United States trustee system fund.—The United States trustees supervise the administration of bankruptcy cases and private trustees in the Federal Bankruptcy Courts. The Bankruptcy Judges, U.S. Trustees and Family Farmer Bankruptcy Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-554) expanded the pilot trustee program to a twenty-one region, nationwide program encompassing 88 judicial districts. This program collects user fees assessed against debtors, which offset the annual appropriation.

The Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984 established the Assets Forfeiture Fund, into which forfeited cash and the proceeds of sales of forfeited property are deposited. Authorities of the fund have been amended by various public laws enacted since 1984. Under current law, authority to use the fund for certain investigative expenses shall be specified in annual appropriation acts. Expenses necessary to seize, detain, inventory, safeguard, maintain, advertise or sell property under seizure are funded through a permanent, indefinite appropriation. In addition, beginning in 1993, other general expenses of managing and operating the asset forfeiture program are paid from the permanent, indefinite portion of the fund. Once all expenses are covered, and statutorily mandated transfers are accomplished, the balance is maintained to meet ongoing expenses of the program. Excess unobligated balances may also be allocated by the Attorney General in accordance with 28 U.S.C. 524(c)(8)(E).

This appropriation provides reimbursement to agencies within the Department of Justice which participate in the Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Force (OCDETF) Program. The OCDETF Program consists of a nationwide structure of 9 regional task forces which combine the resources and expertise of its 11 member Federal agencies, in cooperation with State and local investigators and prosecutors, to target and destroy major narcotic trafficking and money-laundering organizations. Beginning in 1998, only components within Justice will be reimbursed from this appropriation. Participating agencies in the Departments of Transportation and the Treasury will receive resources from other appropriation accounts. The task forces perform the following activities:

1. Law Enforcement.—This activity includes the resources for direct investigative and support activities of the task forces, focusing on the disruption of drug trafficking controlled by various organized crime enterprises. Organizations participating under the law enforcement function are the Drug Enforcement Administration, Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Customs Service, Internal Revenue Service, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, U.S. Coast Guard, U.S. Marshals Service, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.
2. Drug Intelligence.—This activity includes the resources to maintain Regional Drug Intelligence Squads (RDIS) in selected regions. The squads gather and disseminate raw data for strategic, operational and tactical intelligence purposes and provide regional intelligence linkage to the National Drug Intelligence Center (NDIC) and member agencies' headquarters.

3. Prosecution.—This activity includes the resources for the prosecution of cases generated through the investigative efforts of task force agents. Litigation efforts are targeted selectively on the criminal leadership involved in drug trafficking and are intended to dissolve organized illicit enterprises. This includes activities designed to secure the seizure and forfeiture of the assets of these enterprises. Participating agencies are the U.S. Attorneys, Criminal Division and Tax Division.

4. Administrative Support.—This activity includes the resources for a Washington-based administrative staff in the Criminal Division which provides policy guidance, central coordination, and administrative support to the headquarters of the 11 member Federal agencies and the 9 regional task forces. The administrative staff is also responsible for financial management, records management, and maintenance of a case tracking system.

The planned distribution of obligations for 1998 and 1999 among the participating Federal agencies, as well as the actual distribution for 1997, is as follows:

The overall objectives of the FBI are to uphold the law—to investigate violations of Federal criminal law, to protect the United States from foreign hostile intelligence efforts, to provide leadership and assistance to other Federal, State, local, and international law enforcement agencies, and to perform these responsibilities in a manner that is faithful to the Constitution and the laws of the United States.

These objectives result in the FBI being actively involved in a wide range of investigations, including traditional law enforcement investigations (bank robbery, kidnaping, fugitive, bank embezzlement, etc.), investigations involving more modern phenomena (organized crime, white-collar crime, drug investigations, gang violence, health care fraud, environmental crimes, civil rights violations, antitrust violations, etc.), and investigations of foreign intelligence activities within the United States. The FBI has concurrent jurisdiction with DEA over Federal drug violations.

The direct programs of the FBI are divided into the following general categories:

Criminal, security, and other investigations.—This activity includes all field investigations of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. These investigations are conducted by FBI Special Agents in 56 field offices and approximately 400 resident offices located throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. National priority investigations include white-collar crime, drugs, organized crime, counterterrorism and foreign counterintelligence, and investigations relating to violent crimes and major offenders. Other investigative areas are civil rights and Indian Country law enforcement.

This activity also includes resources devoted to national program supervision, coordination, and management of FBI investigations, and liaison with foreign police and security services through Legal Attaches.

Highlights of 1999 funding initiatives include: (1) $11.6 million for additional field agents to investigate computer crimes; (2) $10.4 million to enhance the analysis and early warning capability of the Computer Investigations and Infrastructure Threat Assessment Center; (3) $50 million for information technology equipment and services to improve the sharing and analysis of investigative data within the FBI; and (4) $8.1 million for law enforcement in Indian Country, including $4.7 million for Safe Trails Task Forces and $3.4 million for victim/witness assistance.

Law enforcement support.—This activity consists of training, recruitment, applicant investigations, forensic laboratories, investigative records and communications, ADP and telecommunications, and technical field support and services, identification, and informational services.

Program direction.—This activity includes the management, administrative support, legal, planning, evaluation, inspection, and financial functions of the FBI. Some workload measures include press releases, assistance to media, dissemination of FBI publications, electronic surveillance applications, undercover operations proposals, civil actions, field office audits, and position classification matters.

Health care fraud enforcement.—This activity consists of FBI efforts to combat health care fraud and abuse. Since 1997, the FBI is reimbursed for investigations of health care fraud, as a result of the enactment of the Health Care Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (P.L. 104–191).

The FBI also carries out a number of other activities on a reimbursable basis. The FBI is reimbursed for its participation in Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement programs. Additionally, the FBI is reimbursed by other Federal agencies for certain investigative activities, such as pre-employment background inquiries and fingerprint and name checks, and by non-Federal agencies for pre-employment fingerprint and name checks.

The mission of the DEA is to control abuse of narcotics and dangerous drugs by restricting the aggregate supply of those drugs. At the Federal level, DEA is the lead drug law enforcement agency. DEA accomplishes its objectives through coordination with State, local, and other Federal officials in drug law enforcement activities, development and maintenance of drug intelligence systems, regulation of legitimate controlled substances activities, and enforcement coordination and intelligence-gathering activities with foreign government agencies.

Cooperation among Federal law enforcement agencies is extensive, especially within the nine Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement (ICDE) regional task forces. DEA's involvement is integral to this nationwide coordinated enforcement strategy. With the ICDE program and the expansion of other agency cooperative efforts, overall drug enforcement capabilities have been significantly strengthened in recent years.

The activities of the DEA are divided into the following general categories:

Enforcement—

Domestic enforcement.—This activity encompasses DEA's general efforts to eliminate or immobilize major drug trafficking organizations and thereby reduce the domestic supply of illicit drugs.

Domestic Enforcement includes the majority of the activities encompassed within DEA's 21 domestic field divisions. These activities include efforts to reduce the availability of illicit drugs by immobilizing targeted organizations that are substantially responsible for importation and distribution of drugs and by focusing enforcement operations on specific drug trafficking problems.

State and local task forces.—This activity encompasses efforts to reduce drug availability and immobilize major drug trafficking organizations through intergovernmental cooperation with State and local law enforcement agencies and through DEA's Mobile Enforcement Team Program. There are currently 103 program-funded and 52 provisional State and Local Task Forces and 23 Mobile Enforcement Teams participating in the program.

Measures reported in past years, such as arrests, indictments, and convictions, are not considered useful indicators of the outcome or impact of law enforcement activities by the Department of Justice. The Department will continue to develop new and more meaningful performance measures as part of the implementation of the Government Performance and Results Act. The measures below reflect the level of activity performed by this program.

DEA-OCDETF cases initiated .....	270	284	298

Foreign cooperative investigations.—This activity encompasses efforts to (1) disrupt, as close to the source as possible, production of opium, heroin, cocaine, marijuana, and illicitly produced and diverted legitimate dangerous drugs destined for the United States, and (2) collect and disseminate intelligence regarding narcotics production and trafficking. The measure below reflects the level of activity performed by this program.

Fees charged by the Drug Enforcement Administration under the Diversion Control Program are set at a level that ensures the recovery of the full costs of operating the various aspects of the program. The purpose of this program is to prevent, detect, and investigate the diversion of controlled substances from legitimate channels, while at the same time ensuring an adequate and uninterrupted supply of controlled substances required to meet legitimate needs.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is responsible for administering laws relating to the admission, exclusion, deportation, and naturalization of aliens. Specifically, the Service inspects aliens to determine their admissibility into the United States; adjudicates requests of aliens for benefits under the law; prevents illegal entry into the United States; investigates, apprehends, and removes aliens in this country in violation of the law; and examines alien applicants wishing to become citizens.

Enforcement.—This activity contains resources for preventing illegal entry into the United States and facilitating the entry of qualified persons. This includes inspection of applicants for admission, patrol of the border, and the location of illegal aliens who are in the United States following illegal entry or violation of status after legal entry. Apprehensions are made through the inspection of places of employment, by the investigation of information about the location of undocumented aliens, and through investigative case work. Also included are the resources for the Service's nationwide anti-smuggling program and for the detention and deportation of illegal aliens. Additional resources requested in 1999 will provide for 1,000 new Border Patrol agents ($103 million), resources for the Land Border Port Management Strategy ($9 million), Border enforcement technology ($14.6 million), and to enhance the interior enforcement strategy ($19.5 million). Additional enforcement enhancements would provide for the identification and deportation of illegal aliens ($75 million).

Most reimbursements received by the Service are from the inspections, examination, and land border fee programs. Also included are reimbursements for retrofitting conveyances for drug law enforcement purposes and for managing and operating the vehicle seizure program. These resources are from the Department of Justice Assets Forfeiture Fund. Resources are also received for participation in the Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement program.

The Immigration Emergency Fund, established by the Immigration Reform and Control Act and funded by Public Law 101-162, provides funds for possible increases in border patrol and other enforcement activities, and for reimbursement to States and localities for assistance in meeting an immigration emergency. The Immigration Act of 1990, however, amended these provisions and allows for reimbursement to States and localities at the discretion of the Attorney General in the event that asylum applications in a district exceed a certain amount during a given quarter; if lives, property, safety or welfare of the residents of a State or locality are endangered; or in other circumstances as determined by the Attorney General.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., was created by Congress in 1934 and is a wholly-owned Government corporation. Its mission is to employ and train Federal inmates through a diversified program providing products and services to other Federal agencies. These operations are conducted in such a manner as to offer a minimum of competition to private industry and labor. Employment provides inmates with work, occupational knowledge and skills, plus money for personal expenses and family assistance.

The Corporation has been expanding its operations to provide additional industrial employment opportunities at existing and planned institutions.

Budget program.—Federal Prison Industries, Inc., operations are entirely self-sustaining. No appropriations are required. The amounts used by the Corporation for administrative expenses are subject to a congressional limitation. Information regarding this limitation is provided separately following this account.

Financing program.—Revenues are derived entirely from the sale of products and services to other Federal agencies. Operating expenses are applied against these revenues, resulting in operating income or loss. Earnings surplus to the needs of the manufacturing operations, capital improvements and cash reserves are used to pay accident compensation.

Operating results.—To date, Federal Prison Industries, Inc., has returned to the Treasury a total of $82 million of retained income excess to the Corporation's needs. No contributions from budget authority have been made to offset deficits for non-revenue producing outlays since the inception of the fund.

The Office of Justice Programs (OJP) carries out policy coordination and general management responsibilities for the Bureau of Justice Assistance, Bureau of Justice Statistics, National Institute of Justice, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, the Office for Victims of Crime, and four (4) program offices. The following OJP programs are funded through the Justice Assistance account.

Research, evaluation, and demonstration programs.—Funds provide for and encourage the development of basic and applied research for the improvement of Federal, State, and local criminal, civil, and juvenile justice systems; new methods for the prevention and reduction of crime and the detection, apprehension, and rehabilitation of criminals; and the dissemination of the results of such research efforts. In 1999, $6 million is requested to support the D.C. revitalization initiative.

Technology centers.—These technology centers were established to bring technology information directly to law enforcement agencies, principally to State and local levels, and to provide a source of objective technology information.

Criminal justice statistical programs.—Funds provide for the collection and analysis of statistical information concerning crime, victims, offenders, criminal justice processes, juvenile delinquency, and civil disputes in support of public and private policy and decisionmaking about society's response to crime; planning, coordination, implementation and provision of technical assistance to States to initiate innovative applications of communications and information systems technology for State and local criminal justice systems; and assurance of conformance with privacy and security regulations.

National Sexual Offender Registry.—These funds will be granted to States to establish and upgrade sex offender registries and to create a capability to interface with other law enforcement systems. In 1999, no funds are requested for this program under this account. Rather, funds requested for the 1999 Criminal Records Upgrade program, which is appropriated under the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund, will be used to support this effort.

Emergency assistance.—Funds are used to provide emergency assistance to a State or locality after the Attorney General has determined that a law enforcement emergency exists. A law enforcement emergency is a situation wherein the capacity of local resources has been exceeded. No funds are requested in 1999.

Missing children.—Funds are used to reduce the incidence of crimes against children, particularly kidnaping and sexual exploitation, by assisting families, citizen groups, law enforcement agencies and government institutions in a national effort to insure the safety and protection of children.

Regional information sharing system.—Funds aid State and local law enforcement agencies in the exchange of intelligence information.

National White Collar Crime Center.—Funds provide assistance to State and local law enforcement and regulatory agencies in addressing multi-jurisdictional white collar crimes.

Local firefighter and emergency services training.—Funds are used to train and equip metropolitan fire and emergency service departments to respond to terrorist acts. In 1999, no funds are requested for this program under this account. Rather, $5,000,000 is requested for this program under the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund.

Terrorism training.—Funds are used to train State and local law enforcement agencies to prevent terrorist acts and to effectively manage multi-agency responses to terrorist acts.

Development of domestic counterterrorism technologies.—Funds are used to develop and identify anti-terrorism technologies that can be used by State and local law enforcement agencies to respond to terrorist acts. In 1999, no funds are requested for this program under this account. Rather, $10,000,000 is requested for this program under the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund.

Management and administration.—Funds provide executive direction and control, program operation, and administrative support of the Office of Justice Programs.

Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund (VCRTF) resources support a wide range of programs to assist State and local governments with crime and drug control efforts. Funding is provided for prevention, law enforcement, and corrections assistance and support the following programs and activities.

Criminal records upgrade program.—Expands the program established in 1995 under the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act and the National Child Protection Act of 1993. The program provides financial and technical assistance to all States to improve their ability to identify criminal histories of felons and other persons ineligible to purchase firearms or hold positions involving children, the elderly, or the disabled.

Incarceration of undocumented aliens program.—Funds provide for a program to reimburse States and political subdivisions of states for a portion of the costs incurred for the imprisonment of criminal aliens.

Correctional facilities grants.—Funds provide assistance to States to provide adequate space to incarcerate violent offenders and to implement truth-in-sentencing by ensuring that convicted violent offenders serve a specific percentage of their sentences behind bars.

State prison drug treatment.—Funds provide assistance to States to establish residential substance abuse treatment programs in State prisons and local correctional and detention facilities, aimed at reducing recidivism by ensuring that offenders are held accountable for their actions by addressing the myriad problems associated with the lifestyle of drug use and addiction.

Byrne formula grants.—Funds provide assistance to States to develop programs to fight drugs, violence, and gangs in a coordinated manner throughout a State.

Drug courts.—Funds provide assistance to States and local units of government to develop and implement programs for non-violent offenders with substance abuse problems. These programs use the power of the courts and continuing supervision to coerce abstinence through graduated sanctions and the integrated administration of other services such as drug testing and drug treatment.

Violence against women.—Funds provide assistance to States, local units of government and to other public or private entities to develop and strengthen effective law enforcement and prosecution strategies to combat violence against women, to implement proarrest programs, to establish and expand cooperative efforts to address domestic violence and child abuse in rural areas, and to provide victim services.

Among new programs in 1999 are the Prosecutorial initiative that targets gangs, gang violence, and other violent juvenile crimes, the Community prosecutor initiative; the Drug testing and intervention initiative that develops and implements comprehensive systems of drug testing treatment and graduated sanctions; and the Youth violence courts program that develops and implements programs focused on violent youth offenders within the court system.

This program provides grants to States, units of local government, Indian tribal governments, and other public and private entities to increase police presence, to expand cooperation between law enforcement agencies and members of the community, and to enhance public safety. The grants may be used for hiring new officers, rehiring officers laid off as a result of State and local budget cuts, procuring equipment and technology, and funding additional grant projects. Funding also supports training and technical assistance, evaluation and other studies in furtherance of these projects. The maximum Federal share per officer is $75,000 for a three-year grant, and may not exceed 75 percent of the total project cost, unless a waiver is granted for severe fiscal distress. The funds requested will also provide grants and cooperative agreements to Indian tribes as defined in 42 U.S.C. § 3796dd-8 for the hiring or rehiring of additional career law enforcement officers for deployment in community policing, for additional grant projects as authorized, and for other purposes including the procurement of equipment, technology and training directly enhancing the capabilities of tribal law enforcement officers and agencies to perform their duties effectively. The funds requested will also provide resources for the Police Corps Program, as set forth in 42 U.S.C. § 14091, to increase the number of police with advanced education and training. The requested funds will also support police recruitment efforts as set forth in 42 U.S.C. § 13811 in support of the President's Hate Crime Initiative.
