The Panama Canal Company is a wholly owned Government corporation chartered by the act of June 29, 1948 (62 Stat. 1076), as amended by the act of September 26, 1950 (64 Stat. 1041), for the primary purpose of maintaining and operating the interoceanic canal at the Isthmus of Panama. In furtherance of that mission, and in consideration of the international agreements under which the canal enterprise is operated, the Company conducts necessary supporting operations.

The administration of the Company is integrated with that of the Canal Zone Government, an independent agency financed by appropriations. The Governor of the Canal Zone is ex officio President of the Company. The Company is expected to be self-sustaining and is required to reimburse the U.S. Treasury for the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, the cost of interest on the net direct investment of the United States in the Company, and for annuity payments made by the United States to the Republic of Panama pursuant only to the Treaty of 1903 as amended in 1936.

Budget program—1. Transit operations.—Operation and maintenance of the canal proper is the primary mission of the Company, and it is toward the successful accomplishment of that task that the transit operations are directed. Current and projected operating results, including income from tolls, are reviewed and evaluated at least annually by the Company's Board of Directors.

The services performed by this activity and the funded cost of each are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Maintenance of channels and harbors.....	3,768	3,936	3,054
Navigation service and control.....	9,097	9,924	10,197

General canal expense.....	2,029	1,812	1,267
Net funded costs.....	22,874	25,975	22,839

Major variations in the foregoing cost estimates reflect provision for an overhaul of the Miraflores Locks in 1963, discontinuance of the Thatcher Ferry operation upon completion of the Thatcher Ferry Bridge in mid-1963, a reduction in channel maintenance expenditures in 1964, and the increasing outlay required to handle the rising canal traffic volume as shown by the following workload data (dollars in thousands):

Capital outlay costs, funded, which will amount to $10,145 thousand in 1964, include $5,562 thousand for continuing the Canal capacity program, and $3,125 thousand toward replacement of locks towing locomotives and cranes. Also included is $250 thousand for preliminary examination and survey for a dam across the Trinidad arm of Gatun Lake. This $10.9 million project may require funds to be appropriated in subsequent years. Capital outlay costs of $8,455 thousand for transit projects were incurred in 1962. Costs of $11,759 thousand are estimated for 1963.

2. Supporting services.—These are the Company's auxiliary activities, individually described below, which provide services and materials essential to the accomplishment of the transit operations program.

(a) Maritime services.—This program provides for the operation of vessel repair and harbor terminal facilities. Funded costs, which are directly related to customer demand for services, and to Company floating plant overhaul schedules, are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Vessel repair.....	3,728	4,009	3,281
Harbor terminals.....	5,728	6,975	7,400

Less intra-agency recoveries.....	3,509	3,743	2,904
Net funded costs.....	5,947	7,241	7,777

Capital outlay costs, funded, for 1964 amount to $491 thousand of which the major item is $350 thousand for replacements and additions of equipment. Capital outlay costs of $300 thousand for maritime projects were incurred in 1962. Costs of $1,158 thousand are estimated for 1963.

(b) Employee services.—As shown below, these include housing and marketing operations serving eligible employees against whom charges are made to reimburse the Company. Funded cost estimates, which reflect extraordinary electrical repairs to quarters, and increasing sales by the marketing operation are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Net funded costs.....	20,072	21,651	22,574

Capital outlay costs, funded, for 1964 are estimated at $2,634 thousand and include $547 thousand for continuation of a quarters replacement program for U.S. and non-U.S. citizens, $902 thousand to complete construction of a community center at Margarita, and $462 thousand for improvements and additions to the retail store at Balboa. Capital outlay costs of $3,178 thousand for employee service projects were incurred in 1962. Costs of $3,741 thousand are estimated for 1963.

(c) Transportation and utilities services.—The various types of service, including a new central air conditioning service which will be phased in during the 1963–64 period, and the funded costs incident to each are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Capital outlay costs, funded, total $3,391 thousand for 1964 including $1,600 thousand toward a $5,250 thousand steam turbine generator for the power system, $325 thousand toward constructing additional water mains to serve Panama, and $428 thousand for motor vehicles. Capital outlay costs of $3,140 thousand for transportation and utilities services were incurred in 1962. Costs of $5,621 thousand are estimated for 1963.

(d) Other supporting services.—These activities, which chiefly consist of the Company's construction, maintenance and supply activities, are expected to remain relatively level, with funded costs as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Capital outlay costs, funded, for 1964 are estimated at $300 thousand for the replacement and addition of equipment. Capital outlay costs of $368 thousand for other supporting services projects were incurred in 1962. Costs of $685 thousand are estimated for 1963.

3. General corporate expense.—This includes payments to the Treasury for the net cost of Canal Zone Government, interest, general and administrative expenses under statutory limitation, and other general charges. The scope of general and administrative expenses under statutory limitation includes virtually all general charges other than interest on the investment of the United States, the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, and annuity payments to non-U.S. citizens formerly employed by the Company. A small supplementary assistance program for these aged and disabled persons is also included. Funded costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Other general corporate expense.....	9,771	10,388	11,545
Total general corporate expense, funded.....	32,794	35,854	38,657

Financing.—The Company is authorized to obtain appropriations for its capital needs and to cover losses sustained in the conduct of its activities. Under Public Law 86–200, the Company may borrow, with interest, from the Treasury amounts not exceeding a total of $10 million outstanding at any time. The latter authorization, along with available resources and anticipated revenues and receipts will enable the Company to fund its program through 1964 without recourse to appropriations. The unobligated balance was $5,169 thousand on June 30, 1962, and is estimated at $213 thousand on June 30, 1964.

Operating results and financial condition.—There will be an increase in retained earnings in 1963 estimated at $5,596 thousand and a further increase in 1964 estimated at $6,740 thousand wholly representing net operating income for those years. The Government's equity will be reduced by $82 thousand in 1963 and $191 thousand in 1964 as a result of expenditures made by the Company for maintenance and operation of the Thatcher Ferry Bridge. In accordance with Public Law 753—84th Congress, 2d session, such expenditures are treated as extraordinary expenses, not related to the operations of the Panama Canal Company, and thus are applied as an offset against the interest bearing investment.

Note.—Contingent and other liabilities: The Company has outstanding, at all times, contingent and continuing liabilities in indeterminate amounts arising principally from monthly relief payments payable to retired alien employees; benefits payable under provisions of the Federal Employees Compensation Act; commitments for construction work, supplies and services; and pending suits and claims.

The annuity payments to be made to retired alien employees in fiscal year 1963 are estimated at $1.7 million. Commitments under uncompleted construction contracts and unfilled purchase orders amounted to $10.9 million at June 30, 1962. The maximum liability which could result from outstanding claims and lawsuits is estimated to be $0.4 million.

The laws enforced hereunder are designed to protect consumers against adulterated and misbranded foods, drugs, cosmetics, therapeutic devices, and household products containing hazardous substances.

The 1964 estimate provides for an increase of over 25% in the number of man-years available to the Food and Drug Administration. This is the result of (1) an anticipated supplemental in 1963 to provide funds and staff to carry out the additional responsibilities vested in the agency by enactment of the 1962 Drug Amendments and the issuance of regulations by the Secretary to insure greater safety in the use of investigational drugs, and (2) the continued program of strengthening the agency's resources to cope with increased responsibilities due to industrial, economic, technological, and population growth.

1. Field inspections, investigations, and laboratory analyses.—Inspections of domestic plants, examinations of interstate and import shipments, and special investigations are planned according to the relative incidence and seriousness of probable violations. About 100,000 establishments (manufacturing plants, warehouses, shippers) dealing in foods, drugs, devices, or cosmetics are subject to inspection. Retail establishments dealing in products received in interstate commerce are also subject to the prohibition against adulteration or misbranding. Samples are collected during inspections, and investigations and laboratory analyses are conducted to detect and identify adulteration. Special inspectional programs designed to check on experimental drugs are conducted.

2. Research and methodology.—Research is conducted to evaluate the components of foods, drugs, devices, cosmetics, and household products suspected of containing hazardous substances, and to appraise their efficacy, toxicity, and acute and long-range effects. Research is also performed to develop analytical methods for use in field analysis of inspectional samples and to develop food standards and pesticides, food additive, and color additive tolerances.

3. Compliance, consultation, and education.—Voluntary compliance with the law is promoted wherever possible, but legal action is taken when necessary. Legal proceedings include citations, seizures of illegal products, injunctions, and criminal prosecutions through the courts. Standards for foods, tolerances for poisonous substances in foods, and other regulations are promulgated. A program of consumer education is conducted. Liaison is maintained with, and assistance is given to, State and local food and drug agencies.

4. Medical evaluation.—Applications for new drugs to be marketed, or for modification of previously approved drugs, are evaluated and approved. Information concerning plans for clinical investigations of experimental drugs and reports of clinical experience with experimental drugs are also reviewed and evaluated. The medical aspects of research and enforcement activities are coordinated. Labels for drugs and household products containing hazardous substances and drug advertising are evaluated for sufficiency of information.

Under existing legislation, 1963.—A supplemental appropriation is anticipated for 1963 to finance implementation of the Drug Amendments of 1962 and the new regulations which were issued by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to insure greater safety in the use of investigational drugs.

Buildings and Facilities

For construction, alteration, and equipment, of facilities, including acquisition of sites, and planning, architectural, and engineering services, $13,300,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That any unexpended balances heretofore appropriated under the heading "Pharmacological-Animal Laboratory Building," and not to exceed $718,000 of unobligated balances appropriated for "Salaries and expenses," Food and Drug Administration, fiscal year 1963, shall be merged with this appropriation.

Note.—Estimate is for activities previously carried under "Pharmacological-Animal Laboratory Building" and "Salaries and expenses." The amounts obligated in 1962 and 1963 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

This appropriation consolidates all activities related to the planning, construction, and equipping of buildings and facilities for the Food and Drug Administration.

Since 1957, the Food and Drug Administration, in collaboration with the General Services Administration, has been engaged in a program to improve and enlarge its field facilities. Improvements have been provided for 11 of the 18 FDA district offices of which all but 1 have been done through the leasing of privately owned facilities. Hereafter, it is proposed to provide the necessary facilities for the remaining 7 districts through direct Federal construction.

The program proposed for 1964 calls for:

1. Construction of additional laboratory facilities at headquarters to augment the new laboratory building (Federal Office Building No. 8) now under construction. Planning for these facilities will be completed in 1964.

2. Construction of a special dog whelping facility to complement the Pharmacological-Animal Laboratory Building at Beltsville, Md., now under construction.

3. Development, in 1964, of plans and specifications for the construction of 7 field laboratory-office buildings at the following locations: Chicago, Ill.; Denver, Colo.; New Orleans, La.; Philadelphia, Pa.; St. Louis, Mo.; San Francisco, Calif.; and Seattle, Wash.

It is expected that construction for the offices located at Chicago, Denver, New Orleans, and Seattle will commence in 1964.

The Food and Drug Administration certifies batches of antibiotics, insulin, and color additives for use in foods, drugs, or cosmetics. FDA also establishes tolerances for residues of pesticide chemicals in or on raw agricultural products, and establishes tolerances for color additives in foods, drugs, and cosmetics. These services are financed wholly by fees paid by the affected industries.

Beginning in 1964, it is proposed to convert the existing indefinite special fund to a revolving fund. Existing assets are sufficient to provide the necessary corpus of the fund.

Payments are made to assist in the maintenance and operation of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. Such payments are made principally to school districts; however, where such districts cannot assume responsibility for educating federally connected children, payments are made to other agencies for the provision of such education under Federal auspices. Also, under certain circumstances, the Commissioner of Education may make arrangements for the provision of free public education for children of members of the Armed Forces on active duty, not residing on Federal property.

This program authorizes assistance to school districts in 1964 mainly for children whose parents reside and work on Federal property. Portions of the law expiring in 1963 also provide assistance to school districts for children whose parents work on Federal property but do not reside on such property. Legislation is recommended which would make provision for these children for an additional 4 years; a supplemental is shown under Proposed for separate transmittal which is dependent upon enactment of this legislation.

Including the proposed legislation, payments will be made in 1964 to about 4,300 eligible school districts and Federal agencies on account of the attendance of approximately 1.85 million federally connected children in all States, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, and Wake Island. This compares to over 4,000 eligible districts and Federal agencies and about 1.8 million pupils in 1963.

ASSISTANCE FOR SCHOOL CONSTRUCTION—Continued

This program authorizes assistance to school districts in 1964 mainly for children whose parents reside and work on Federal property. Portions of the law expiring in 1963 also provide assistance to school districts for children whose parents work on Federal property but do not reside on such property. Legislation is recommended which would make provision for these children for an additional 4 years; a supplemental is shown under Proposed for separate transmittal which is dependent upon enactment of such legislation.

Including the proposed legislation, funds requested for 1964 will assist in providing approximately 3,000 classrooms for about 87,000 pupils.

1. Assistance to local educational agencies.—Grants are made to local districts for school construction, principally on behalf of increased numbers of children residing on Federal property or residing with a parent employed on Federal property.

2. Assistance for school construction on Federal properties.—Where the local education agency is unable to provide school facilities for increased numbers of children living on Federal property, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to arrange for the construction of schools. Under certain circumstances, the Commissioner may also arrange to provide school facilities, on a temporary basis, for children of members of the Armed Forces on active duty who do not reside on Federal property.

3. Payments for technical services.—Technical services rendered by the Housing and Home Finance Agency are necessary in connection with the construction of school facilities now in process and proposed for 1964.

Grants and payments are made to States and possessions, educational institutions, and individuals. New legislation, included in the President's education program and reflected under Proposed for separate transmittal, will expand and broaden these programs, particularly the student loan, graduate fellowship, and language development portions.

1. Student loans.—Funds are allotted among the States for payments to institutions of higher education to provide capital contributions to student loan funds. These payments must be matched at the rate of 1 dollar from institutional sources for each 9 Federal dollars. In addition, loans are made to institutions which are unable to provide matching funds. In 1962, a total of 1,452 institutions of higher education made loans to 190,000 borrowers, and in 1963, 235,000 students in 1,520 institutions are expected to borrow.

2. Science, mathematics, and foreign language instruction.—Grants are made to States on a matching basis for acquisition of equipment and minor remodeling of laboratory or other space; each appropriation for this purpose is available for 2 years. Loans are made to nonprofit private schools for similar uses. The demand for these loans has not been as great as the percentage of the appropriation required to be reserved for this purpose, thus causing an unobligated balance to be lapsed each year. Matching grants are also made to States for supervision and administration of the program.

3. National defense fellowships.—One-, two-, and three-year fellowships are awarded to individuals accepted for study in graduate programs, and grants are made to institutions where such individuals are enrolled. The objectives of the program are to expand graduate programs for training of college and university teachers and to promote broader geographical distribution of graduate training facilities.

Stipends are paid to persons in attendance. Contracts are made for research and studies in the area of foreign language instruction.

7. Grants to States for area vocational programs.—Grants are made on a matching basis to States to provide for establishing technical and subprofessional training programs. It is estimated that 200,000 students will participate in these programs in 1964, compared with 101,000 in 1960, 120,000 in 1961, 150,000 in 1962, and 175,000 in 1963.

8. Grants to States for statistical services.—Grants are made on a matching basis to assist the States in improving educational statistics. Total payments to any State may not exceed $50 thousand annually.

The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, and the International Health Research Act of 1960 authorize the conduct of research and related activities abroad. The estimate for 1964 proposes an appropriation of $3 million for the purchase of foreign currencies in 8 excess-currency countries.

Rehabilitation research and related activities.—Research, demonstration, and research training programs are supported primarily with foreign currencies accruing to the United States through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities and through other sources. The research and demonstration programs are directed to the solution of problems which hold promise of contributing knowledge to the advancement of rehabilitation both in the United States and in other countries. Foreign currencies are also used, whenever possible, for transportation for the exchange of rehabilitation experts between the United States and cooperating foreign countries to increase the rehabilitation research resources both here and abroad.

This Office administers the program of grants to States for vocational rehabilitation, the vocational rehabilitation research and training programs, and the program of licensing the blind to operate vending stands on Federal and other properties. Direction is provided for the Medical Facilities Survey and Construction Act as it pertains to rehabilitation facilities, and national and international program plans are developed.

1. State program operations.—State plans are approved and allotments and grants are made; administration of regional office activities and field relationships with States are coordinated; overall program plans are developed; old-age and survivors insurance referrals are coordinated; and Federal-State programs for rehabilitating blind persons are developed.

2. Research and training.—Research grants and contracts for projects to develop and demonstrate new rehabilitation methods and techniques and grants and contracts for training and traineeships to provide additional personnel to work in rehabilitation are administered; technical advice and assistance is provided for developing rehabilitation facilities, workshops, program goals, and for promoting the rehabilitation of the more severely disabled.

4. Management services.—General administrative and management services are provided the several program areas; statistical measurement and analysis of programs is undertaken including the development of special studies.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

The Service has responsibilities for safeguarding and improving the health of the people of the Nation. The major functions of the Service are: to conduct and support research in the medical, environmental, and related sciences and in health status, needs, and the resources and requirements for meeting these needs; to provide medical and hospital services to persons authorized to receive such care; to prevent the introduction and spread of disease; to aid in the development of health facilities and services throughout the Nation; to further the application of new knowledge in the prevention and control of disease; and to promote the maintenance of a healthy environment. To perform these functions, the Service is organized as follows:

(a) The Bureau of State Services is now organized into the two separate functional areas of community health and environmental health. Programs are operated principally in the fields of Federal-State and interstate public health programs, through research, training and construction grants; direct operations involving research, development, demonstrations, consultative services, training; and enforcement actions particularly to abate water pollution.

(b) The Bureau of Medical Services administers the medical care programs for merchant seamen, coastguardsmen, Indians, Alaska natives, and other beneficiaries designated by the Congress; provides for the construction of medical facilities for Indians both in the form of grants and as direct construction; and through the foreign quarantine program performs examinations of aliens at U.S. ports and of visa applicants in foreign countries.

(c) The National Institutes of Health constitute the primary research arm of the Service and are further described in a subsequent statement.

(d) The National Library of Medicine collects and disseminates medical literature.

(e) The Office of the Surgeon General formulates general policy, furnishes central administrative services, and operates special programs such as international health activities, the National Center for Health Statistics, and emergency health preparedness activities.

General and special funds:

For necessary expenses in carrying out the Public Health Service Act, as amended (42 U.S.C., ch. 6A) (hereinafter referred to as the Act), and other Acts, including expenses for active commissioned officers in the Reserve Corps and for not to exceed two thousand [six] eight hundred commissioned officers in the Regular Corps; [expenses incident to the dissemination of health information in foreign countries through exhibits and other appropriate means;] expenses of primary and secondary schooling of dependents, in foreign countries, of Public Health Service commissioned officers stationed in foreign countries, in amounts not to exceed an average of $285 per student, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and for the transportation of such dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation; not to exceed $1,000 for entertainment of visiting scientists when specifically approved by the Surgeon General; purchase, erection, and maintenance of temporary or portable structures; and for the payment of compensation to consultants or individual scientists appointed for limited periods of time pursuant to section 207(f) or section 207(g) of the Act at rates established by the Surgeon General not to exceed $19,000 per annum; as follows: (Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1963.)

BUILDINGS AND FACILITIES

For construction, major repair, improvement, extension, and equipment of Public Health Service facilities, not otherwise provided, including plans and specifications and acquisition of sites, [$33,200,000] $19,072,000, to remain available until expended. PROPOSED PROJECTS

The following construction projects will necessitate the provision of additional funds in 1964:

1. Environmental health center (1st phase).—The 1961 appropriation act included an amount of $785 thousand for planning a new environmental health center. Since these funds were appropriated, several studies have been undertaken to determine the environmental health needs of the Nation and the facility requirements. These studies led to the decision to recommend the establishment of an environmental health center in the Washington, D.C., area. This request for $2,761 thousand for 1964, plus the $785 thousand already appropriated, will provide for site acquisition and preparation of plans, specifications, and surveys of the first phase of the environmental health center.

2. Water pollution control laboratories.—The Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1961 (Public Law 87-88) provides for establishment of at least seven water pollution control laboratories in different regions of the Nation. These new facilities will give technical support to the various elements of the Federal water pollution control programs. Personnel housed in these facilities will conduct applied research, investigations, field demonstrations, and studies, and provide training for Federal, State, and local personnel. To date locations have been selected at Ada, Okla.; Corvallis, Oreg.; Athens, Ga.; College (Fairbanks) Alaska, and Boston, Mass. The 1962 Supplemental Appropriation Act provided $1,600 thousand for site acquisition and planning for these seven facilities. The 1963 appropriation provided $6,200 thousand for the construction of the laboratories at Ada, Corvallis, and Athens. Architectural contracts have been completed and the preparation of plans and specifications for these three laboratories is underway. Funds requested in 1964 would provide for construction of two additional laboratories at College, Alaska, and Boston, Mass., and increased costs for three previously funded.

3. Arctic health research center.—The estimate provides funds for planning a building for the Arctic health research center at Fairbanks, Alaska, to replace the 4 rented buildings and 17 additional structures in which the center is now housed in Anchorage, Alaska. It is planned to locate the new building on the campus of the University of Alaska. Research on the problems and environmental conditions in low temperature areas will be continued in the new facilities.

4. Extension of Clinical Center cafeteria, NIH.—Funds requested in 1964 combined with funds appropriated in 1961 will provide for the planning and construction of an extension to the present Clinical Center cafeteria. This facility will include a kitchen facility separate from the facility used for patient feeding and an increase of 5,000 square feet in the seating capacity to accommodate employees of this and nearby buildings.

5. Library relocation, NIH.—The funds requested will relocate the National Institutes of Health Library and provide more adequate library services for the research program in new buildings including space for study cubicles, reading and reference areas and additional storage stacks. Valuable research laboratory space occupied by the present library will be made available for research scientists.

6. Warehouse extension, building 13, NIH.—Funds for the planning and construction of an additional floor on building 13 will provide an additional 43,000 gross square feet of warehouse space required for the central storeroom activities at the National Institutes of Health and will replace rental space now utilized off the reservation.

7. Construction, mental health-neurology-cancer cafeteria, NIH.—Funds are requested for a separate cafeteria building to serve the new cancer and mental health-neurology buildings now being designed. This building will also serve the personnel in the recently completed dental and biologics standards buildings.

8. Repairs and improvements.—The request will enable the Public Health Service to inaugurate a continuing program for alterations, repairs, and improvements required to maintain buildings and facilities of the Bureau of State Services, and the National Institutes of Health. Funds for this purpose have heretofore been included in appropriations to the General Services Administration.

9. Construction of biologics standards laboratory annex, NIH.—Unobligated funds remaining from the other construction projects are being used to plan an annex to the biologics standards building. Funds requested for 1964 would provide for construction of the annex and for equipment, access roads, parking facilities, and utility connections.

CONTINUING PROJECTS

10. Research facilities construction and site acquisition (animal farm, NIH).—A site for a large animal facility to serve the National Institutes of Health was acquired in 1960. Funds appropriated in 1961 provided for alterations, minor construction and planning for the first phase of construction. During 1962 design of the first phase of construction was initiated and funds available that year provided for the construction of farm-type animal facilities for large animals, a kennel building for large laboratory animals, quarters for essential personnel and basic utilities. In 1963 funds were provided for construction of a caged animal wing, animal behavior buildings and planning for future construction.

11. Construction of laboratory facilities, Puerto Rico (NIH).—Funds were provided in 1963 for the planning and construction of a laboratory facility on the grounds of the Puerto Rico Medical Center. This facility would provide for laboratories, some central services, offices, and for caged animal space for the collaborative project in cerebral palsy and mental retardation.

12. General office building extension, NIH.—Funds were provided in 1962 for planning an addition to the general office building, which will provide offices and conference rooms to house 1,000 office personnel now located in rental quarters.

13. Construction of master utilities extension, NIH.—The extension to the master utilities will provide a system adequate to service additional planned structures and will also alleviate an already serious overload on present utility resources.

14. Communicable disease center.—Construction of the new expanded Communicable Disease Center facilities located on Clifton Road in Atlanta, Ga., is scheduled to start February 10, 1963, with a completion date of December 10, 1965. Construction of the off-site animal breeding and holding facilities near Lawrenceville, Ga., is scheduled to start February 15, 1963, with a completion date of April 1, 1964.

15. Construction of cancer research facility, NIH.—The new cancer research facility will serve to consolidate the intramural and extramural components of collaborative research programs in cancer chemotherapy.

16. Construction of service building, NIH (building 12).—Funds presently available are being used for the planning and subsequent construction of a modification and extension of building 12 to consolidate central service activities now dispersed throughout the reservation.

17. Water quality standards research laboratories.—The 1963 appropriation provided the sum of $4,000 thousand for the construction of 2 water quality standards laboratories, 1 for salt water and 1 for fresh water. Sites for these laboratories have now been selected—the one for salt water to be located at Kingston, R.I., and that for fresh water at Duluth, Minn.

18. Construction of research facilities, Lexington, Ky., (NIH).—The research facility at the Addiction Research Center, Lexington, Ky., is scheduled for redesign, and construction will start during 1963.

19. Construction of library facilities.—The National Library of Medicine occupied its new building on April 16, 1962; work is continuing on preparing for the medical literature analysis and retrieval system and extending roadways and sidewalks to join those of the National Institutes of Health.

20. Construction of surgical facilities, NIH.—The new surgical facilities for heart and neuro-surgery with installation of special instrumentation will be completed during 1963.

21. General office building, NIH.—The general office building was accepted by the Government for operational use in 1962. Several items remain to be completed during 1963.

22. Construction of animal quarters, NIH.—The conversion of wings F and G from office space to the originally intended purpose of animal production will be completed during 1963.

23. Middle America Research Unit housing, NIH.—Five duplex and 1 single family type housing units are being constructed to provide quarters for staff and their families.

24. Construction of dental research building, NIH.—The dental building was completed and accepted by the Government in 1962. Minor reservation items will be finished during 1963.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1962, $231 thousand; 1963, $380 thousand; 1964, $390 thousand.
² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $256 thousand (1962 adjustments, —$5 thousand); 1962, $2,901 thousand; 1963, $3,178 thousand; 1964, $3,178 thousand.

The mission of the chronic diseases and health of the aged program is to encourage and assist States and communities in developing, operating, and improving programs to prevent the occurrence and the increase of disability and dependency. This is accomplished through a coordinated program of intramural and extramural research, training, and technical services.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Grants are awarded to organizations, institutions, and individuals for research into methods of planning, conducting, and evaluating community programs and techniques to overcome barriers to the application of new-found knowledge in the prevention of chronic diseases and disability and in the care of the chronically ill and aged. Approximately 78 research projects will be supported in 1964 as compared with 70 in 1963.

(b) State control.—Grants are made on a formula basis to assist the States in developing and improving cancer and heart disease control programs, including the support of activities such as case finding, rehabilitation, education, community services, and training. Grants are also made on a formula basis to assist the States in expanding and improving programs for the development of community facilities and out-of-hospital services for the care of the aged and chronically ill, including the support of home services, programs to improve the quality of care in nursing homes and homes for the aged, and training of health personnel.

(c) Project.—Grants are awarded to institutions, organizations, and individuals for surveying, developing, and improving community services, for applying and evaluating control methods and techniques, and for expanding professional and supporting competencies in cancer and neurological and sensory disease control. Grants are also awarded to States or other public or non-profit agencies for studies and demonstrations which look toward the development of new or improved methods of providing health services outside the hospital for chronically ill and aged persons. The increase requested in 1964 would enable the funding of approximately 50 projects for cancer detection, improved community services for neurological and sensory disease control with particular emphasis on mental retardation activities, and for the development of new and improved out-of-hospital services.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—This activity provides for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for the identification and prevention of chronic illness, for the care and restoration of the chronically ill and aged, and for meeting special health problems of older people. Assistance is given to State and local health departments and to interested agencies through consultation, epidemiological investigations, demonstrations, loan of professional personnel and equipment and training. Major emphasis is given to control programs in cancer, diabetes and arthritis, heart disease, neurological and sensory diseases, and to improving health services for the long term ill and aged. Increased funds requested in 1964 will provide for improving and extending restorative services and health maintenance activities for the aged and for improving preventive efforts in heart disease control, in cancer control, primarily through X-ray mammography, in arthritis, and in neurological and sensory diseases.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $245 thousand (1962 adjustments, $79 thousand); 1962, $760 thousand; 1963, $305 thousand; 1964, $305 thousand.

This program provides facilities and services for the investigation, prevention, and suppression of communicable diseases other than tuberculosis and venereal diseases by the direct development, advancement, and demonstration of knowledge and techniques, and for research through grants for all communicable diseases.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants are awarded to organizations, institutions and individuals for research concerned with epidemiology, prevention, laboratory diagnosis, and treatment of communicable diseases at the community level. The 1964 increase will provide for the maintenance of the 1963 level of new grants and for 4 additional continuations over the 1963 level.

(b) Community immunization.—Grants are made to States, and with the approval of the States, to political subdivisions and instrumentalities of the States for intensive immunization programs against poliomyelitis, diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus. The grants are made on a project basis to cover the costs of community campaigns attributable to (1) the purchase of vaccines needed to protect children under 5 years of age and (2) the planning, organization, promotional, epidemiologic, and surveillance activities of such campaigns. In 1964, the goal is to vaccinate one-fourth of the unimmunized children under age 5, plus all newborn babies.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Scientific and technical skills in the fields of epidemiological medicine and microbiology, including reference diagnostic laboratory services, are provided to State and local health departments through investigations, consultations, and demonstration. Important disease control programs include hepatitis, aseptic meningitis, poliomyelitis, viral encephalitis, the enteric diseases, staphylococcal and other institutionally acquired infections, the acute respiratory diseases, diseases of animals transmissible to man, and the rodent-borne diseases. Professional competence in the investigation of epidemic outbreaks is afforded to the States through the staff of the Epidemic Intelligence Service which is constantly alert to the epidemic situation in the country. These officers provide a wide range of service, including epidemic aid, epidemiological field investigations, consultations in communicable disease control, surveillance of infectious diseases and collaborative field and laboratory research. The 1964 increase provides for an augmented countrywide laboratory evaluation and improvement program to meet the demands for microbiological laboratory competency at the State and local level; an expanded training program; expansion of medical audiovisual services; a program for community immunization services; and a program for the eradication of the Aedes aegypti mosquito in nine States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. National laboratory proficiency will be increased through development of improved standardized diagnostic techniques, production and distribution of microbiological reference materials, technical training and professional assistance to States in extending the improvement program to local laboratories. The expanded training program will provide for the dissemination of knowledge to public health workers and other professional personnel, concerning improved means of detecting, diagnosing, preventing and controlling communicable diseases. Medical audiovisual services will be expanded by the initiation of a program for the international exchange of medical motion pictures. The increase for the Aedes aegypti activity will permit the initiation of a program, in cooperation with State and local authorities, to meet the international commitment of the United States for the eradication of this species of mosquito. Community immunization program services will provide the central leadership, coordination, and support needed to conduct a nationwide immunization campaign against poliomyelitis, diphtheria, whooping cough, and tetanus.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Grants provide support for the development of research to produce new knowledge regarding more effective and acceptable methods of providing and financing a full range of preventive, therapeutic and restorative health services to all segments of the population. The grants are aimed at finding better ways to provide comprehensive community health services; to broaden the scope and improve the quality of these services; and to devise techniques for evaluating these services.

(c) For public health training.—Grants and awards are made for traineeships for graduate or specialized public health training of professional health personnel. Grants are also made to provide basic support for the public health training program of the 12 schools of public health.

In addition, project grants are made to schools of nursing, engineering, and public health to strengthen and expand graduate public health training in such schools. An increase of $195 thousand is proposed to provide short-term public health training to an additional 600 individuals, making a total of 1,900 individuals receiving such training in 1964.

(d) Migrant health services.—Grants will be made to pay part of the cost of establishing and operating family health service clinics and other special projects to improve health services and health conditions of domestic-agricultural migrant workers and their families. A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

During 1962, a total of 20,084 cases of infectious syphilis was reported. This is the largest annual total since 1950. The number of reported cases of infectious syphilis has increased each year since 1958.

1. Grants to States.—An increase of $1,560 thousand is included in the estimates to provide for the intensification of a program to eradicate syphilis as a major public health problem. This program will entail intensified application of epidemiologic techniques of interview, reinterview, contact investigations and cluster testing of every infectious syphilis case reported. It is anticipated that State and local governments will increase their support of casefinding projects. This result will be an accelerated program at all levels, toward the eradication of syphilis.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Research and evaluation activities are directed toward maintenance of uniformly satisfactory nationwide serologic services; development and introduction of new syphilis diagnostic tests; development of an immunizing agent for syphilis; improvement of diagnostic techniques for gonorrhea; evaluation of more effective methods of therapy; and the improvement of control procedures.

Epidemiologic services are directed toward the maintenance of nationwide and international intelligence and the control of venereal disease in areas of particular concentrations of agricultural, industrial and military personnel and in numerous small high-prevalence areas that might become the foci for spread of infection. Consultation is furnished to States through the regional offices in determining problem areas, infection sources, and control techniques required. Scientific information and educational media are disseminated through State agencies.

The 1964 estimate provides for an intensified education program directed primarily at teen-age and other high risk groups and increased emphasis on behavioral research.

The Division of Nursing is concerned with the improvement of nursing practices of all kinds in hospitals, in the home, in health agencies, and in other allied medical care facilities. Problems related to the quality of nursing service and education, nurse supply, distribution of nursing services, and nurse-patient relationships are dealt with by means of a balanced program of intramural research, consultation, research grants, fellowships, and training grants.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Grants are made to institutions and to individuals to undertake projects in the area of nursing research. Approximately 66 research projects will be supported in 1964 as compared to 62 in 1963 and 50 in 1962.

(b) Fellowships.—Grants are awarded to individuals in order to increase the research manpower in the field of nursing. It is estimated that 63 fellowships will be supported in 1963 and 1964, the same number as in 1962.

(c) Training.—Grants are provided for traineeships to prepare nurses to be teachers, supervisors, and administrators under section 307 of the Public Health Service Act, as amended.

The estimated number of trainees to be supported in 1963 with no change in 1964 is as follows:

Long-term.....	1,800
Short-term.....	7,000
Total	8,800

Research training grants are made to institutions to establish and expand training programs and to individuals for specialized training. Approximately 8 grants will be awarded in 1963 and 1964 as compared to 2 grants in 1962.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—By means of research, consultation, and application of research findings, professional guidance and leadership are provided in the improvement of nursing practices. An increase in this activity in 1964 will provide additional staff and related costs for expansion and strengthening of existing programs, in improvement of nursing practices, manpower resources, and administration of grants.

Federal funds are provided on a grant or loan basis to assist States, other public agencies, and nonprofit organizations in the construction of hospitals, rehabilitation facilities, diagnostic or diagnostic and treatment centers, nursing homes, public health centers, and related health facilities. Second, funds are provided to permit the Surgeon General to conduct research, experiments, and demonstrations relating to the effective development and utilization of hospital services, and resources, and to make project grants to States, political subdivisions, universities, hospitals, and other public and private nonprofit institutions or organizations for such projects. Funds are also provided for grants to public and nonprofit agencies for the construction of experimental units of hospitals and other health facilities. Third, State agencies are provided technical assistance in making inventories of their hospitals, public health centers, and other classes of facilities, in determining the type, size, and location of additional facilities required, and in developing coordinated programs, to meet the indicated needs. Technical assistance is also provided to States and upon request to communities regarding the planning, programing, and design of hospital and medical facilities. Fourth, proposed hospital and other health facility projects are reviewed to determine eligibility and compliance with the law and regulations. State plans and their annual revisions are reviewed and approved. Project applications, plans and specifications, wage rates, contracts, and payment requests are reviewed for compliance with standards.

Funds for construction purposes are allocated to the States on the basis of a formula which takes into account population and per capita income. Payments are computed and made as construction progresses.

As of October 31, 1962, a total of 6,372 construction projects had been approved, of which 4,946 were completed and in operation, 1,164 under construction, and 262 in preconstruction stages. Upon completion, these projects will provide 270,483 hospital beds and 1,786 public health and other medical facilities. Of the approved projects 61% were for general hospitals, 2% for mental hospitals,

1% for tuberculosis hospitals, 4% for chronic disease hospitals, 6% for nursing homes, 14% for public health centers and State health department laboratories, 8% for diagnostic centers, and 4% for rehabilitation centers.

Funds requested for 1964 will finance 629 hospital and medical facility projects, which will include 21,317 beds, assuming that the agencies program projects along the same lines as occurred in 1960 and 1961. The general hospital beds in this total, together with those constructed without Hill-Burton program aid, will be sufficient to take care of the annual population increase, replace those which annually become obsolete and further reduce the general hospital bed deficit. A supplemental appropriation for 1964 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

This new appropriation will finance extramural and intramural research and training activities which are basic to all environmental health programs. These activities, together with those funded by the categorical appropriations, will make possible a unified approach to study of the health of man in his total environment.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants which are multi-categorical in purpose or scope and which cannot appropriately be funded in a categorical appropriation will be made to individuals, organizations, and institutions.

(b) Training.—Grants are made to institutions to provide support for the development and improvement of broad based engineering and scientific competencies required for environmental health research. Approximately 30 grants will be supported in 1964.

2. Arctic health research center.—At the Arctic health research center in Alaska, studies are made on problems of environmental sanitation, endemic and epidemic communicable diseases, including diseases transmissible from animals to man, and the nutritional and physiologic problems of arctic life.

3. Research, training, and technical services.—Research on problems of common interest to all the environmental health divisions will be undertaken in the areas of toxicology, pharmacology, physiology, and analytical methods and instrumentation.

are dealt with through a coordinated program of basic and applied research, technical services to State and local agencies, and a training program designed to provide competencies necessary to cope with the complex problems of air pollution. To augment and speed up the research program, extensive use is made of existing technical facilities in other Federal agencies and other public and private research organizations through grants and contracts.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants are made to organizations and institutions to conduct research into air pollution problems. Approximately 162 grants will be supported in 1964 as compared to 120 in 1963 and 78 in 1962.

(b) Training.—In 1964 it is estimated that 19 grants to individuals will be awarded to qualified applicants to improve individual competence as compared to 9 in 1963. In addition, in 1964 approximately 17 grants will be made to universities to support graduate level curriculum development and improvement as compared to 9 in 1963.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—The major part of the resources of this program is devoted to research designed to determine the nature, the effects, and the means for control and prevention of air pollution. Technical services are rendered to State and local health and air pollution control agencies, universities, and industry through consultations, collaborative surveys, and dissemination of technical information. In 1964 additional activity in the research area will be directed toward the study of the potential for improved air pollution control through modification of automotive engine design and meso-scale studies concerned with the movement of air pollution along major urbanized metropolitan regions. The training activity will be moderately increased.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $54 thousand (1962 adjustments, $21 thousand); 1962, $1,646 thousand; 1963, $109 thousand; 1964, $109 thousand.

The milk, food, interstate, and community sanitation program improves health protection for the public by providing leadership, research, and technical assistance to States, municipalities, and industry to assist them in coping with environmental health problems which are nationwide in scope and impact. To assure that only safe water, milk, shellfish and other marine food, and food supplies are served to the public and to the 2,000,000 travelers carried per day on interstate conveyances, and to stimulate creation and maintenance of healthful environments, the operating programs must be augmented and improved through research activities in areas affected by rapidly changing technology and through increased communication with interested groups.

1. Research grants.—The purpose of the research grants program is to encourage investigators at universities and other research institutions to undertake research in areas of pressing need and to support nationwide research in milk, food, shellfish and marine food sanitation and technology, in oceanography, solid wastes disposal, individual water supply and sewage disposal, recreational sanitation, swimming pool and bathing place microbiology and control, and engineering in relation to planning to alleviate health problems of metropolitan areas. Approximately 238 research projects will be supported in 1964 as compared to 200 in 1963 and 177 in 1962.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—By means of research, consultation, application of research findings, technical assistance, training, and inspections, professional guidance and leadership are provided to States and the local communities for improved health protection of the public. Included in program costs for 1963 is a non-recurring item of $1,873 thousand for construction of two new shellfish sanitation research centers. The increase in 1964 will provide for research and technological assistance programs on shellfish and other marine foods at the two new shellfish sanitation research centers, and additional services for review and approval of research grants. The increase will also provide for added technological assistance to States and municipalities in connection with new Public Health Service drinking water standards.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $555 thousand (1962 adjustments, $423 thousand); 1962, $1,598 thousand; 1963, $1,598 thousand; 1964, $1,598 thousand.

The Public Health Service has responsibility for conducting a national program for the prevention and control of radiological hazards to public health. The Service is conducting a program to assess the levels and effects of radiation exposure and, in cooperation with other health agencies at Federal, State, and local levels, to minimize such dangers. Such a program involves both basic and applied research on the sources, levels, and effects of radiation, the provision of technical information and assistance to State and local agencies in developing their own radiation protection programs, and a training program to provide the competencies needed in this new and expanding area of radiation protection and control.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants are administered to complement intramural research as an integral part of the overall research effort and to capitalize on the talents of nongovernmental scientists. Approximately 100 research projects will be supported in 1964 as compared to 74 in 1963 and 60 in 1962.

(b) Training.—Grants are made to institutions to provide support of new or expanded programs for training of radiological health specialists. A program of grants for training of radiological health technicians will be started in 1964. Approximately 46 training projects will be supported in 1964 as compared to an estimated 35 in 1963 and to 20 in 1962.

(c) State program development.—Grants are made to States to provide financial assistance in the development of comprehensive State radiological health programs. Funds are allotted in accordance with a formula based on population, financial need, and the extent of the problem. The proposed increase will enable the States to improve their programs of radiological health.

2. Research, training, and technical services.—Research is performed to determine the levels of radiation exposure of man from various sources and the precise biological effects, somatic and genetic, of such exposure. Laboratory and surveillance activities are conducted to provide basic data needed for research and control work. Technical services are supplied to other Federal agencies, States, and local authorities. Training courses for State, local, and industry personnel are conducted through the training facilities at various field locations such as Montgomery, Ala.; Las Vegas, Nev.; and Winchester, Mass.

The increased funds requested for 1964 will be used to expand and accelerate ongoing work in selected program areas. Increased emphasis will be placed on epidemiological studies and biophysical research to investigate dose-effect correlations of radiation exposures from all sources. Efforts in the X-ray area will concentrate on the development of methods and techniques for mass survey of medical X-rays and correction of unnecessary exposure from these sources. Finally, technical short-course training will be accelerated to keep pace with the growing demand for such training by the States.

(d) Control programs.—Grants are made to States and interstate water pollution control agencies to assist them in meeting the costs of establishing and maintaining adequate measures for the prevention and control of water pollution.

(e) Demonstration.—Grants are awarded to public and private institutions and agencies to support field investigations and studies of an applied nature which will test and illustrate the applicability of research findings and newly developed techniques to problems of water supply and pollution control. It is anticipated that 16 grants will be supported in 1964 as compared to 14 in 1963.

2. Research, training, technical services, and enforcement.—Development of comprehensive river basin water pollution control programs, basic and applied research, enforcement of water pollution control, collection and dissemination of basic data, field studies of water quality problems, technical assistance to other agencies, and waste treatment works construction grants services are Grants are made to State, municipal, and interstate agencies to stimulate and assist in the construction of sewage treatment works. Funds appropriated are allocated to States and other jurisdictions on the basis of population and economic need. State water pollution control agencies certify individual project priorities on the basis of the extent of water pollution and financial need. The Federal Government makes grant offers directly to the municipal or other sponsor of certified projects and administers the grants.

A grant may not exceed $600 thousand or 30% of the cost of the project for which it was awarded, whichever is smaller. Where a project serves more than 1 municipality, the grant is computed on the basis of each community's share of the project cost, under the 30% of $600 thousand limitations, but the aggregate amount of the grant may not exceed $2.4 million.

The estimate provides the maximum amount authorized for 1964.

The major beneficiary groups are American seamen, coastguardsmen and their dependents, Bureau of Employees' Compensation cases, persons afflicted with leprosy, and narcotic addicts. Among these, the largest single category is the American seamen, who receive free, comprehensive medical care in its facilities in the United States for all conditions. Medical care is also provided to foreign seamen and beneficiaries of other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis.

1. Inpatient and outpatient care.—Under this activity are operated 12 general hospitals, 2 neuropsychiatric hospitals specializing in the treatment of narcotic addiction, and the National Leprosarium at Carville, La. Inpatient loads and outpatient visits are expected to be as follows:

The National Institutes of Health constitutes the primary research arm of the Public Health Service. It is made up of the following nine individual institutes: National Institute of General Medical Sciences, National Institute of Child Health and Human Development, National Cancer Institute, National Institute of Mental Health, National Heart Institute, National Institute of Dental Research, National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness. There are also two program divisions, the Division of Biologics Standards, and the Division of Research Facilities and Resources.

Operations of the Institutes and divisions are divided between grant programs largely for support of research and for training of individuals, and activities performed directly or through contracts by the Service. A portion of the funds from each of the operating appropriations is pooled through a management fund to provide central services for all institutes.

A distribution of obligations for the National Institutes of Health by major activity follows (in thousands of dollars):

medical and biological sciences. Grants are awarded by the Surgeon General on the basis of merit after review and recommendation by scientifically competent study groups and the appropriate national advisory council.

Fellowships.—Grants are made to individuals in order to increase the research manpower in the medical sciences. There are several different types of awards such as pre-doctoral, postdoctoral, special, research career awards, and foreign research fellowships, each designed to develop research talent. Fellowships are reviewed by specialty boards and advisory councils and are awarded on the basis of merit.

Training.—Grants are made to institutions to develop or support training programs in the medical sciences and to individual trainees to enable them to undertake special training at an institution of their choice. Awards are made to both graduates and undergraduates. Both institutional and individual grants are awarded by the Surgeon General on the basis of merit after review by an appropriate advisory council.

State control programs.—Funds are provided to States and Territories on a formula basis for strengthening State and local clinical and educational services in mental health areas.

Direct operations—Research.—The National Institutes of Health conduct research activities largely within the framework of the various specific institutes, directed to the disease categories represented thereby.

Collaborative studies.—Categorical research programs are conducted by investigators in collaboration with other Federal institutions and non-Federal institutions through direct operations or contracts in Bethesda and in dispersed geographical locations.

Biologics standards.—Provides for administration of the Biologics Control Act, establishment of standards for preparation of biologics, testing of vaccines and their preparation, and research related to development, manufacture, testing and use.

Professional and technical assistance.—Professional guidance and leadership in mental health activities are provided to States and other interested organizations in the knowledge and application of research findings through the provision of consultative services, demonstrations, training, field studies and investigations of improved methodology.

Review and approval of grants.—Applications for research grants, fellowships, and training grants are reviewed for merit by panels of private professional and lay persons distinguished in the field of medical science. Staff of the National Institutes of Health provide the administrative support and executive direction for the national advisory councils and study sections.

The appropriation for general research and services finances the National Institute of General Medical Sciences which administers research and training activities relating to basic problems in public health, medical, biological and chemical fields; and the Division of Research Facilities and Resources which is responsible for administering general research support grants, general clinical research centers, special resource centers, primate centers, and health research facilities. No specific appropriation is proposed for the new National Institute of Child Health and Human Development. It is proposed that funds be transferred from appropriations for other NIH institutes.

There is a separate appropriation for each of the other seven institutes and for the Division of Biologics Standards which is responsible for the Public Health regulations pertaining to control and preparation of biological products and conduct of related research.

The activities listed in the program and financing schedule for the general research and services appropriation are described below.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Funds will support approximately 1,876 grants in 1964 as compared to 1,700 in 1963, and 1,693 in 1962. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants, general clinical research centers, special resource centers and international centers for medical research and training.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 1,919 fellowships will be supported in 1964 as compared to 1,715 in 1963, and 1,606 in 1962.

(c) Training.—Approximately 730 graduate research training grants will be in effect in 1964 for the support of about 5,800 trainees in the areas of basic biological, medical, and health-related sciences. This compares to 640 grants for 5,300 trainees in 1963 and 576 grants for 4,911 trainees in 1962.

2. Direct operations—(a) International research.—Provides for the executive direction, planning, and coordinating of all international activities of the National Institutes of Health.

(b) Training activities.—Provides for intramural investigators with research interests in laboratories operated by U.S. institutions in other countries.

The National Library of Medicine collects, organizes, and services the worldwide literature of medicine. It disseminates the literature through an extensive inter-library loan program; it publishes basic medical bibliographic guides in the form of indexes, catalogs, and other listings; and it provides reference and research assistance. Through the scientific publications program, the National Library of Medicine conducts an extramural program designed to provide systematic coverage of worldwide advances in medical research and to communicate the results of medical research published in languages unfamiliar to American medical scientists.

The estimate for 1964 contemplates continuation and improvement of the Library's basic programs of acquiring, organizing, preserving, and making available the worldwide literature of the biomedical sciences. It includes increases for procuring the computer and related equipment for the Medical Literature Analysis and Retrieval System (MEDLARS) and for bringing the MEDLARS system into operational status. An increase is requested for improving medical communication activities of the Library through increased support of publications in the biomedical sciences.

The Bureau of State Services management fund finances the research services, business operations, program direction, and program services provided by the staffs of the Office of the Bureau Chief for the community health and environmental health programs, and the Sanitary Engineering Center in Cincinnati, Ohio. Formulas for determining the contribution from each appropriation are designed to reflect utilization of services performed by the management fund and take into consideration such factors as the numbers of personnel being serviced and the dollar level for each program.

In 1964 all of the research services and business operations of the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, formerly included in this fund, will be carried in the Communicable disease activities appropriation. The centralized staffs of the environmental health and community health offices of the bureau chief, and the Sanitary Engineering Center provide supporting services to program activities as follows:

1. Research services provides the central administration and operations of services required for the conduct of research activities at the Sanitary Engineering Center. Included are such services as technical reporting, library and reference services, biometric services, laboratory equipment design and construction, and the operation and maintenance of buildings.

2. Business operations provides the centralized business management services for the community health and the environmental health programs of the Bureau of State Services and the business management services furnished by the central staff at the Sanitary Engineering Center.

The activity includes such services as personnel and financial management, management advisory services, information activities, procurement, supply and property management, printing and reproduction, forms management, messenger, file and mail services.

3. Program direction provides for the executive direction and supervision of the Environmental Health and the Community Health activities of the Bureau of State Services.

4. Program services provides for overall program review and development services, environmental health facilities planning, and coordinates programs in the field of community health research activities. It also provides for the associate regional health directors for environmental health and their staffs, located in the nine regional offices of the Department. Funds for these staffs are being transferred to this appropriation in 1964 on a comparable basis. These directors represent the bureau chief and the regional health director in planning, coordinating, and directing environmental health programs at the regional level and they maintain liaison with State and local health agencies, associations, institutions, and other groups having responsibilities or interest in the field of environmental health.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $757 thousand (1962 adjustments, $11 thousand); 1962, $1,959 thousand; 1963, $1,959 thousand; 1964, $1,959 thousand.

³ Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are derived from the sale of meals to employees and others (42 U.S.C. 290).

The National Institutes of Health management fund facilitates the conduct of operations of the National Institutes of Health financed by two or more appropriations. Activities of the fund are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. Formulas for determining the contribution from each institute reflect utilization of services performed. Such factors as the number of activated beds in the Clinical Center, number of laboratory workers, total personnel, and dollar level of grant, direct research, and direct operations funds obligated by the institute are considered. A small portion of the funds comes from reimbursements from outside sources, principally cafeteria receipts, and from other Government agencies.

The centralized organizations of the National Institutes of Health provide supporting services to all programs as follows:

1. Research supporting services provide the central administration and operation of services for the conduct of research activities such as the care and breeding of experimental animals, laboratory equipment design and manufacture, and the operation and maintenance of utility services.

2. Clinical supporting services consist of the operation of the 516-bed Clinical Center together with the laboratory space required for the treatment of research patients.

3. Administrative management includes personnel, supply, and financial management, office services, plant safety, management analysis, audit of activated grants, and printing and reproduction.

4. Program direction provides for the executive direction and planning of intramural and extramural research.

5. Review and approval of grants provides procedures and policies governing the processing of applications for research project grant programs, program project grants, centers, fellowships, and training grants. Performs application processing services, program reporting and analytical services, over-all program coordination, central records, and administration.

6. The cafeteria of the Clinical Center is operated by the nutrition department and furnishes meals for sale to the employees and visitors at rates sufficient to cover the reasonable value of the meals served. Income and expenses for 1962, 1963, and 1964 are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

SERVICE AND SUPPLY FUND

This fund finances the providing of certain supplies, services, and equipment to programs of the Service. It is reimbursed from the appropriations supporting the programs benefited (42 U.S.C. 231).

Budget program.—The principal operations under the fund are carried out at (a) the medical supply depot at Perry Point, Md., which maintains stock of drugs and other medical supplies to meet in part the requirements of the Service and requisitions of other Government organizations; and (b) the activity at the National Institutes of Health which maintains a central supply of scientific and general-use materials, supplies, and special equipment and also provides services such as animal production, statistical processing, and instrumentation for the laboratories and offices at Bethesda, Md. In contrast to the operations under this revolving fund, the National Institutes of Health management fund is an annual account to which appropriated funds are advanced to facilitate the financing of clinical research, research services, administration, and other activities where the costs of operation are not readily susceptible of distribution.

Operating results.—Retained earnings amounted to $275 thousand as of June 30, 1962, and are being retained in the fund against the possibility of future losses.

Budget program.—Farms and other industries operated at the Fort Worth, Tex., and Lexington, Ky., narcotic hospitals provide patients with occupational outlets as a part of their therapeutic rehabilitation. Useful products are made for sale to the hospitals and other Government institutions (42 U.S.C. 258). The investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1964 is estimated at $679 thousand including $129 thousand in appropriation and $86 thousand in donated assets. Earnings are retained to meet possible future losses.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources represent collections from District of Columbia patients (32 D.C. Code 401-416).

Saint Elizabeths Hospital provides care and treatment for the mentally ill, trains personnel in the medical, nursing and associated disciplines concerned with the treatment of psychiatric patients, and conducts or cooperates with others in scientific research activities dealing with mental illness. The patient load consists of residents of the District of Columbia and beneficiaries of the Federal Government, both direct and reimbursable.

Programs of Saint Elizabeths Hospital are financed from this appropriation and from reimbursements for care and treatment of sponsored patients. A change from a definite to an indefinite appropriation is proposed for 1964. The purposes of the change are: (1) to give greater stability to the income of the hospital, thus permitting improved management, (2) to increase the financial incentives for the District of Columbia (from which 70% of Saint Elizabeths' patients come) and for the hospital to work out cooperative arrangements for outplacement in lower cost facilities of patients who no longer need to be in a mental hospital, and (3) to provide for the continuation of financing by this appropriation of certain costs—e.g., research and training—which are less directly related to patient care.

The changed financing plan would place the District of Columbia financing on a basis more comparable with State hospital costs by basing charges for care of District patients on the estimated 1964 median cost per patient day of the upper 10% of State hospitals—a cost of $9.49 per day. The total cost of this hospital's operations, including research and training, is estimated at $11.53 per day.

An increase in the Hospital's staffing per 100 patients from 55 in 1963 to 60 in 1964 will result from the proposed increase in the Hospital's average employment and the anticipated decline in the patient load. The proposed Saint Elizabeths' 1964 staffing ratio is the ratio which it is estimated will be attained in 1964 by the median of the upper 10% of the State mental hospitals if the upward trend during 1959-61 continues into 1964.

Increases in the 1964 appropriation are primarily the result of (a) a change in the method of financing the Hospital; (b) the full-year cost in 1964 of the increased staff provided on a part-year basis in 1963; (c) significant expansion of the training and research activities; and (d) enactment of the Federal Salary Reform Act of 1962.

1. Operation and maintenance.—This activity covers the protective, therapeutic, and rehabilitative programs of the Hospital, maintenance of Hospital buildings, operation of a farm and an employee cafeteria, procurement of supplies and materials, and the provision of necessary administrative services.

3. Construction and equipment, treatment and cafeteria building.—This treatment facility, which replaces an antiquated building built in 1871, will house 250 patients and provide food service for these plus 400 patients from two adjacent buildings. Construction is nearing completion, with patient occupancy expected in the latter part of 1963.

4. Extension and modernization of administration building.—The administration building is being modernized to furnish more adequate space and facilities. The project will be completed during the current year.

5. Construction and equipment, maximum security building.—Construction of a 396-bed maximum security building has been completed and it is now in use. Minor finishing-up projects will be completed during the current year.

The old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program provides protection to about 9 out of 10 working people and their families against the loss of earnings because of old-age, disability and death. Under this program, people in covered employment and the self-employed make tax contributions during their working years to pay for protection for themselves and their families. Employers match the contributions made by their employees. These contributions are deposited in the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Federal Disability Insurance trust funds, out of which benefit payments and administrative costs are paid.

The volume and nature of the work received by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance has changed significantly during the past 12 years (1950-62) because of various amendments to the Social Security Act which made important changes in the scope and character of the program. These amendments have improved protection provided by the retirement and survivors insurance phase of the program and added a disability program which provides for monthly insurance benefits for disabled workers of any age and their dependents.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for insurance benefits and the amount of benefit payments are based on the lifetime earnings records maintained by the Bureau. The volume of earnings record work depends primarily on the level of employment and the rate of labor turnover. The anticipated increase in nonagricultural employment and covered employment in 1963 and 1964 is the chief reason for the expected increase in receipts of earnings items to be posted to workers' accounts.

Processed.....	267,580,018	279,155,035	290,000,000

2. Processing OASI claims.—Prospective beneficiaries file claims in district offices located throughout the country. When claims are approved, the Treasury Department is authorized to issue benefit checks. The number of claims to be received in 1964 is lower than the 1963 estimate because the volume of life claims is expected to decline following heavy filings by new eligibles under the 1960 and 1961 Amendments to the Social Security Act.

Processed.....	3,382,910	3,301,449	3,248,700

3. Maintenance of OASI beneficiary rolls.—The beneficiary rolls require continuous revision so that benefit checks may be mailed promptly each month to beneficiaries who are entitled to them, and so that checks may be discontinued when eligibility for benefits is interrupted or comes to an end. The number of beneficiaries increased by 1,400,000 in 1962. The rate of increase declines in 1963 and again in 1964 as the effect of the 1960 and 1961 amendments on new claims filings becomes less significant. The amount of benefit payments will continue to rise each year as the number of beneficiaries increases.

OASI benefit payments (in millions)---	$12,658	$13,865	$14,648

4. Processing disability claims and maintaining beneficiary rolls.—The Bureau's district offices receive all disability claims. In most cases State agencies, under contractual arrangements, determine the existence of a disability. The Bureau reviews these determinations to assure uniformity among States. In addition, the Bureau maintains the beneficiary rolls for disability beneficiaries. The estimated volume of applications to be filed by disabled workers will be higher in both 1963 and 1964. The higher estimates reflect two major factors: The size of the insured population will continue to increase. Rates of disability among insured workers will continue at about the levels indicated by actual experience in the recent past.

The increase in the number of disability beneficiaries in current pay status is consistent with the increase in the disability claims load. Benefit payments will rise as the number of beneficiaries increase.

5. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims are disallowed by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance have a right to appeal to the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals. The decrease in the hearing requests to be filed in 1963 results from the peaking of disability claims filed in 1961, which is reflected in hearing receipts in 1962. A large backlog of requests will carry over into 1964. The number of cases to be processed in that year will be increased in order to reduce the backlog.

7. Administration.—This activity includes Bureauwide direction and management, program planning and research, and general management service functions.

8. Internal Revenue Service enumeration project.—This project involves work to be performed by the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance for the Internal Revenue Service in connection with the use of social security account number cards for taxpayer identification purposes. This work in 1963 and 1964 will be financed initially from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance trust fund.

9. Contingency reserve.—This reserve ($10 million) represents funds to be made available only to the extent necessary to process work loads not anticipated in the budget estimates.

Because of a series of major amendments to the Social Security Act, an annex was authorized and was occupied in August 1962. In September 1961 a supplemental appropriation of $4 million was approved by Congress to extend the annex. Construction of the extension has been started and should be completed in February 1964.

Under proposed legislation, 1964.—An amendment will be proposed to legislation extending the 10-year period in which to make payments to the Federal old-age, survivors, and disability insurance trust funds for costs to these funds related to non-contributory wage credits given for World War II military service.

Upon enactment, an estimated supplemental appropriation of $63,400 thousand will be required to pay the initial installment.

Proposed for separate transmittal:

HEALTH INSURANCE FOR THE AGED

Legislation will be proposed to provide health insurance for the aged. This program will be incorporated into the social security system and will be financed from increases in the contributions made by employers, employees, and the self-employed. The proposal will also contain special provisions, financed from general revenues, to extend health insurance protection to those of our aged who are not now covered under social security. There will, however, be no fiscal impact before 1965.

I, IV, X, [and] XIV), $2,538,300,000, and XVI), $2,950,000,000, of which such amount as may be necessary shall be available for grants for any period in the prior fiscal year subsequent to March 31 of that year. Grants for old-age assistance, medical assistance for the aged, aid to families with dependent children, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled are made to States that have plans for these programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Effective October 1, 1962, the Public Welfare Amendments authorized, as an alternative to separate plans for each program, grants under a combined single plan for the adult assistance programs covering old-age assistance, medical assistance for the aged, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled. Fifty-four jurisdictions including all the States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands have approved plans for old-age assistance, aid to families with dependent children, and aid to the blind; 51 jurisdictions now have approved plans for aid to the permanently and totally disabled and 1 additional State is expected to have such a plan in 1963. Under the Social Security Amendments of 1960, Federal participation in programs for medical assistance for the aged became effective on October 1, 1960. State legislation was necessary in most States before they could initiate programs for medical assistance for the aged. The number of jurisdictions expected to have approved plans for this program is 28 in 1963 and 35 in 1964. All these programs will be in operation in 1964 either under a separate plan or under a combined single plan.

The Public Welfare Amendments of 1962 to the public assistance titles of the Social Security Act and certain administrative actions taken by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare made far-reaching changes which are designed to strengthen and improve the public assistance programs and enhance their effectiveness in preventing and reducing dependency. The major changes involving additional expenditures from Federal funds are as follows:

1. An increase of about $4 per month per recipient in the Federal share of assistance payments to the aged, blind, and disabled.

2. Extension until 1967 of the program of aid to families with dependent children to families in which a parent is unemployed; and inclusion of a second parent, if incapacitated or unemployed, in computing the Federal share of assistance payments to families with dependent children.

3. Provision, at a State's option, for a single plan for the adult assistance programs.

4. Exemption, at the option of States, of income earned by recipients of old-age assistance, up to a maximum of $30 (the first $10 and one-half of additional earnings up to $50), in determining the need of a recipient.

5. An increase from 50% to 75% in the Federal share of the State and local costs of providing preventive and rehabilitative services, as defined by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare; and in the costs of training State and local welfare personnel.

In addition to the foregoing changes, which occurred as a result of legislative action, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare took a number of administrative actions affecting the public assistance programs. The major action affecting Federal expenditures provides for:

6. Extension of the public assistance programs to include needy persons on conditional release from mental institutions.

The request for 1964 includes an amount of $409.5 million to cover the costs of the Public Welfare Amendments of 1962 and the administrative actions taken by the Secretary, including those mentioned above and certain less costly items. The estimated cost of these changes in 1964 is $144 million more than for 1963 primarily because some of the changes will be in effect for the entire year of 1964 whereas, in 1963, they are in effect for only part of the year.

Provisions for determining the Federal share of assistance payments—1. Provisions applicable under separate plans for programs of old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled.—The amount of assistance payments subject to Federal participation is limited to a monthly average expenditure of $70 per recipient. (In addition under old-age assistance the Federal government participates in up to an additional $15 per month in the form of payments for medical or remedial care.) The average monthly amount is based on expenditures for money payments to recipients and direct agency payments to vendors for medical or remedial care. Within this maximum, the Federal share is twenty-nine thirty-fifths of the first $35 per recipient plus a proportion of the balance, which varies among States from 50 to 65% depending upon the per capita income of the State.

The foregoing provisions apply in all jurisdictions except Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands; for these jurisdictions the Federal share is one-half of total expenditures within a maximum monthly average of $37.50 per recipient subject to an overall limitation on the total annual Federal funds for assistance and administration for all programs combined for each jurisdiction.

2. Provisions applicable under a single plan for the adult assistance programs.—Except for recipients of medical assistance to the aged, the provisions are the same as those applicable under the separate plans, as described in item 1. Provisions for additional Federal participation in assistance payments, based on the amount of direct agency payments to vendors for medical or remedial care (vendor medical payments), are described under item 3.

3. Provisions applicable under separate plans for old-age assistance and under a single plan for the adult assistance programs.—Additional Federal participation in assistance payments, beyond that described in items 1 and 2, is based on the amount of direct agency payments to vendors for medical or remedial care (vendor medical payments).

For States with average monthly payments over $70, the Federal Government participates in the expenditures in excess of that amount, to a maximum of $15, except that such participation is limited to the amount of the average vendor medical payment. The Federal share in the excess expenditure consists of the Federal medical percentage for the State, which ranges from 50% to 80% under a formula based on per capita income.

For States with average monthly payments of $70 or less, the additional Federal share in average vendor medical payments up to $15 is an additional 15% over the usual Federal percentage (based on per capita income) applicable to the amount of payments falling between $35 and $70.

This percentage, when added to the usual Federal percentage for the second part of the payment, results in a total Federal share of from 65% to 80%. The additional Federal share of 15% also is available to States with average monthly payments over $70 when it is advantageous to them as an alternative to the method described in the preceding paragraph. For Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, comparable provisions for direct agency payments to vendors for medical or remedial care are in effect.

4. Provisions applicable in medical assistance for the aged.—For all 54 jurisdictions the Federal share of expenditures for the program of medical assistance for the aged is the Federal medical percentage of the amounts expended by the State for such assistance. The Federal medical percentages for the individual States range from 50% to 80% under a formula based on per capita income. The Federal share is the same regardless of whether the program is administered under a separate plan or under a single plan for the adult assistance programs.

5. Provisions applicable in aid to families with dependent children.—For the 50 States and the District of Columbia, the amount of assistance payments subject to Federal participation is limited to a monthly average expenditure of $30 per child or adult recipient in the family. The average monthly amount is based on expenditures for money payments to recipients and payments to vendors for medical or remedial care. Within this maximum, the Federal share is fourteen-sevenths of the first $17 per recipient plus a proportion of the balance, which varies among States from 50 to 65%, depending upon the per capita income of the States. For Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands the Federal share is one-half of total expenditures within a maximum monthly average of $18 per recipient and within an overall limitation on total annual Federal funds for assistance and administration for all programs combined for each jurisdiction. For purposes of determining the amount of payments subject to Federal participation, the count of recipients in all jurisdictions includes dependent children under 18 years of age, one relative caring for the children (usually the mother), and a second parent living in the home, if incapacitated or unemployed.

Provisions for determining the Federal share of administration, services, and training.—The Federal share is 75% of: (1) the cost of providing preventive and rehabilitative services that are specified by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare as (a) services that will help dependent persons to develop their capacities for self-care and self-support and to achieve greater family stability; and (b) services that may be provided, at their request, to persons likely to become dependent; and (2) the cost of staff training, including educational leave, and agency training sessions.

The Federal share of costs, other than those specified above is 50%.

These provisions are applicable in all programs and all jurisdictions.

Provisions for demonstration projects.—For years 1963–1967 up to $2 million of the amount appropriated for any year may be used to help meet the State share of costs of demonstration projects that could be expected to contribute significantly to existing knowledge about the kinds and scope of services or methods of work which enhance the agency's capacity to assist needy persons in solving problems that threaten the stability of family life and prevent persons from attaining self-support or self-care.

Amount of request.—For 1964, the total amount of Federal, State, and local expenditures for assistance, for administration, services, and training, and for demonstration projects is estimated at $4,940.2 million of which $2,971 million represents the Federal share. The appropriation request of $2,950 million is $21 million less than the estimated Federal share, because the States will have available for expenditures $21 million representing the Federal share of collections and adjustments for prior years. Of the total Federal share, $1,460.6 million is for old-age assistance; $209.9 million for medical assistance for the aged; $972 million for aid to families with dependent children; $50.9 million for aid to the blind; $275.6 million for aid to the permanently and totally disabled; and $2 million is for demonstration projects.

It is estimated that a supplemental appropriation of $250 million will be required for 1963 in addition to the $2,538.3 million already appropriated. The supplemental is needed primarily to finance the additional costs of the Public Welfare Amendments of 1962.

The appropriation request of $2,950 million for 1964 is $161.7 million more than the appropriation of $2,538.3 million plus the supplemental request of $250 million for 1963. Excluding the amount of $69.2 million used from the 1963 appropriation to complete requirements for 1962, and allowing for a drop of $240 thousand in the estimated amount of collections in 1964, the amount of the increase from 1963 to 1964 is $230.7 million. All programs contribute to the increase for 1964 over 1963, with the largest increase, $96.4 million, occurring in the program of old-age assistance.

The figures for 1963 used in the tables appearing under the activities below include the supplemental request of $250 million; the figures shown in the program and financing schedule include only the $2,538.3 million already appropriated.

Health, Education, and Welfare, and in the costs of training State and local personnel for more effective performance in administering the public assistance programs; and half the remaining costs of State and local administration that are found by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to be necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State public assistance programs. The Federal share contributes toward the salaries and expenses of about 65,000 (including 4,500 for additional staff to be hired in 1964 to give preventive and rehabilitative services) State and local personnel.

Total costs in 1964 are estimated at $52 million more than in 1963; $37.9 million of this increase will come from Federal funds. The increase in costs is attributable primarily to (1) staff increases to handle a larger number of recipients including those who are to receive medical assistance as a result of the growth of the program of medical assistance for the aged; and to provide services to recipients directed toward self-care, self-support, and strengthened family life; (2) the administrative actions taken by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, including revised policy that recognizes eligibility for Federal financial assistance of persons on conditional release from mental institutions; and (3) salary increases given to keep pace with rising living costs and to compete successfully with other professions and agencies for staff.

Under existing legislation, 1963.—In connection with its consideration of the Labor-Health, Education, and Welfare appropriation bill for 1963, Congress approved an appropriation of $2,538.3 million for grants to States for old-age assistance, medical assistance for the aged, aid to families with dependent children, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled under titles I, IV, X, and XIV, respectively, of the Social Security Act, as amended. Subsequently the Public Welfare Amendments of 1962 were enacted and as a result of these and certain administrative actions taken by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, additional amounts for Federal grants-in-aid will be required.

Charges against the regular appropriation for 1963 include $69.2 million used to complete 1962 requirements, leaving $2,469.1 million to meet the requirements for 1963. Requirements for 1963 include $2,453.6 million to meet program costs exclusive of those due to legislative and administrative changes; $239.7 million to meet the costs of the legislative changes; and $25.8 million for the costs of the administrative actions. The balance in the regular appropriation is sufficient to meet the costs of the programs exclusive of legislative and administrative changes; and part of the costs—$15.5 million—of the administrative actions. The supplemental amount of $250 million is needed to meet the balance of the costs—$10.3 million—of the Secretary's administrative actions and the total estimated cost—$239.7 million—of the Public Welfare Amendments of 1962.

TRAINING OF PUBLIC WELFARE PERSONNEL

An amount of $2 million is requested to augment, strengthen, and provide leadership to State welfare agencies in the further development of their training programs. Action to alleviate the acute shortage of trained public assistance social workers has become even more urgent with recent program expansions and the new emphasis on special services to reduce dependency—the primary purpose of the 1962 Public Welfare Amendments.

Under a new direct training authority added by these amendments, the Bureau of Family Services will be directly involved in providing highly specialized training to certain key State and local personnel. During 1964, it is estimated that training will be provided for 750 such persons, who will make the greatest impact in the area of preventive and rehabilitative services designed to help dependent persons to develop and use to the maximum their capacities for self-reliance. In addition, it is planned to use some of the funds under this training authority to make grants to universities to help them increase their capacity for training public assistance personnel and to provide fellowships and traineeships to about 200 students preparing for employment in public assistance.

Public Law 87-64, approved June 30, 1961, authorizes temporary assistance to U.S. citizens and their dependents who return to this country because of destitution, illness, or international crises and who are without available resources.

1. Mentally ill.—The estimate assumes that about 100 mentally ill repatriates will be received from abroad in 1964, about half of whom will require financial assistance under this program. In addition, funds are included in the estimate for about 60 patients remaining in hospitals who had been repatriated previously.

2. Others.—The 1964 estimate provides for assistance for: (a) persons returned from Cuba—it is estimated an average of about 40 families per month will receive assistance in 1964; and (b) persons returned from other countries—it is estimated a total of about 200 cases will be referred upon their return from abroad (about 85 will require some form of financial assistance).

The Bureau is responsible for the administration of grant-in-aid programs for Old-Age Assistance, Medical Assistance for the Aged, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Aid to the Blind, and Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled. Approximately 7 million individuals are expected to receive aid under these programs in 1964, involving more than $5 billion in Federal, State, and local funds—of which almost $3 billion will be Federal. These programs are intended to provide financial assistance to assure the minimum essentials of living, medical care, and other social services to the needy aged, blind, disabled, and to families with children who are dependent because of the death, incapacity, absence, or prolonged unemployment of a parent.

A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal to enable the Bureau to carry out the Public Welfare Amendments of 1962.

1. Program policies and standards.—Requirements of the Social Security Act are interpreted and specialized technical assistance is provided to State agencies. There is special emphasis to assure that problems of public welfare are dealt with constructively. Considerable emphasis is being placed on alleviating and preventing dependency to the maximum extent possible through methods such as: increased development and utilization of social services, including community resources; demonstration projects; community work and training programs; and better trained public welfare personnel.

2. Review State plans and grants, evaluate State operations.—Action is taken on new State plans and on amendments thereto to assure conformity to the act; reviews are made of operations and findings are used to assist States in administering their programs; consultation and advice are provided on problems arising in day-to-day operations; grants are processed; information is provided to the public.

3. Collect and interpret statistics.—Information is collected in cooperation with State agencies, to provide national statistics on public assistance which are used by the Bureau and the States in formulating policies, planning program content, setting standards, making legislative recommendations, justifying appropriation requests, answering requests, and guiding administrative action.

The States are required to match one-half of the amounts appropriated for maternal and child health and crippled children's services. The remainder is distributed to the States in proportion to their financial need, except that not to exceed 12½% of the appropriations for the above programs is available for special project grants to State agencies and to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning.

The States are required to match all appropriated funds for child-welfare services but the percent of matching required varies from 33½% to 66%. No matching funds are required for the program of grants for research, training, or demonstration projects in child welfare.

1. Maternal and child-health services.—Grants are provided to States for the extension and improvement of health services for mothers and children, especially in rural areas.

2. Crippled children's services.—Grants are made to States to extend and improve services for crippled children including medical, surgical, corrective, and other care, especially in rural areas.

Where needed, provision is made for adequate child care in or away from their homes, in foster homes, in day-care or other child-care facilities. The amount appropriated for child welfare grants in excess of $25 million, up to a maximum of $10 million, is earmarked for day care services.

4. Research, training, or demonstration projects in child welfare.—Grants are made to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning or agencies and organizations engaged in research or child-welfare activities for projects of regional or national significance or for those which demonstrate new facilities or methods which contribute to the advancement of child welfare, and to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning for special projects for training personnel for work in the field of child welfare.

A program to assist Cuban refugees in the United States was established by the President in 1961. During 1961 and 1962, the program was carried out under authorities in the Mutual Security Act of 1954, and the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. On June 28, 1962, Public Law 87-510 was enacted which provides for assistance to such refugees.

The program provides the following services for Cuban refugees in the United States: reception and registration, classification of skills, cash assistance and welfare services to those in need, resettlement and employment opportunities, and provision for education and health services. At the present time, the exact dimensions of the program and the number of Cuban refugees coming into the United States for the remainder of 1963 and for 1964 are not clear. Accordingly, the $70 million requested for 1964 is not distributed by activity, but will be used for the above kinds of services when firmer program distributions can be made.

1. Field administration.—The regional director provides review, evaluation, and coordination of Department programs conducted through the regional offices. Also personnel, fiscal, and office services are provided for approximately 23,000 regional employees.

2. Grant-in-aid audits.—Audits of 37 grant-in-aid programs are made to determine whether these grants were expended by the States, local subdivisions and nonprofit organizations for the purposes for which they were appropriated. There will be an incoming workload of about 2,400 audits in 1962, and 2,870 in 1963.

3. State merit systems.—For 21 grant-in-aid programs, grants to States are contingent upon compliance with Federal regulations and standards relating to State personnel administration. Therefore, 70 State merit systems are reviewed in 300 State agencies administering grant programs and technical services concerning increased efficiency of personnel administration are rendered to States requesting these services.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

PUBLIC LAND MANAGEMENT

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the conservation, management and development of some 477,000,000 acres of the Nation's public lands. This includes the 168,000,000-acre national land reserve located in 27 States, plus some 309,000,000 acres of other federally owned lands, most of which are located in Alaska.

In addition, the Bureau administers mining and mineral leasing on other federally owned lands, on former Federal lands where minerals have been reserved in public ownership, and on the submerged lands of the Outer Continental Shelf.

The work of the Bureau produces revenue from various sources which is distributed as follows (in millions of dollars):

1. Lease and disposal of lands and mineral resources.—Applications are acted upon for all types of land use and for lease of mineral resources, principally oil and gas. A comprehensive inventory of land resources and field investigations are made in order to determine the best use of the resources and classify the lands accordingly. General information is disseminated to the public, including information contained in the land records which are being modernized. The status of land and minerals adjudication workloads is summarized below:

	1961 actual	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Cases pending, start of year.....	105,246	94,252	59,079	50,000

Cases pending, end of year.....	94,252	59,079	50,000	40,000

2. Management of grazing lands.—The 178,000,000 acres of public lands available for grazing which are used by approximately 29,000 stockmen are managed and protected. Proper management of these lands provides protection from fire, erosion, overuse, unseasonal use and trespass, thereby perpetuating forage resources. The increase in 1964 will accelerate the conduct of resource inventories and the adjudication of grazing privileges and will increase attention to multiple-use management of the public lands.

3. Forestry.—A total of 46,000,000 acres of commercial forest lands and 114,000,000 acres of woodland-type lands are managed. The 1964 program includes the sale of 1,254,000,000 board feet of timber for anticipated receipts of $32.8 million. The increase in 1964 will provide for increased sales, improved management, and increased protection.

4. Cadastral surveys.—Surveys are performed to: locate and identify legal boundaries of lands under application for lease or disposal, including submerged lands on the Outer Continental Shelf; assist in the management of forest and range lands; provide legal descriptions needed by other Federal agencies; and to permit States to obtain title to lands granted them by law.

5. Soil and moisture conservation.—Public lands in critical condition from erosion are conserved and rehabilitated and restored to productivity. Cooperative programs will continue with other agencies in river basin areas. The increase in 1964 will accelerate this program.

6. Fire suppression.—Fires are fought which are on or threatening lands under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management. During the first 3 months of 1963 over 171,000 acres were burned and costs of suppression were in excess of $1.6 million. A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

7. Maintenance of physical facilities.—Physical maintenance is provided for about 350 structures used as storehouses, equipment shelters, fire crew barracks and similar purposes.

8. Maintenance of access roads.—Maintenance is provided for access roads on Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands and on the public lands. The increase in 1964 will provide for the initiation of repair work to restore roads to usable condition and minimum current maintenance work.

9. Weed control.—Areas infested by halogeton, Medusa rye host plants to the beet leafhopper, and other poisonous and noxious weeds are treated.

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES—continued

10. General administration.—Executive direction is provided and services such as accounting, personnel administration, procurement, budgeting, management analysis, and internal auditing are performed in support of the programs of the Bureau. The increase in 1964 will provide more adequate staffing for administrative activities consistent with the expansion of Bureau programs.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The responsibility of the United States toward the Indian people includes protection and development of trust property and the furnishing of services not otherwise available to Indians and which are normally provided other citizens through Government and private agencies. Active programs are being aimed toward increased Indian participation in the management of Indian-owned resources and full Indian participation in American life. States and counties are participating at an increasing rate in the service programs. The ultimate goal of the entire program is to have the Indian people take their proper place in the social and economic life of the Nation on the same basis as other citizens.

1. Educational assistance, facilities, and services.—The Bureau operates Federal school facilities where public schools are not available or cannot meet the special needs of Indian children. Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children where tax-free Indian lands result in financial problems for the local districts and where other special problems exist that are not covered by Federal impact legislation, administered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Grants are made to Indians to attend schools beyond the secondary level and assistance is given to adult Indians through an education and training program. Indian children enrolled in Federal facilities and receiving higher education grants are as follows (pupils included in the following table under Dormitories attend the public schools but are domiciled in federally operated dormitories):

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Land-use practices based on land inventories and soil conservation plans are introduced to control erosion and promote more effective utilization of soil and water resources.

5. Maintenance of roads.—Maintenance is provided for roads on Indian reservations.

6. Development of Indian arts and crafts.—Production and marketing of the products of Indian crafts are fostered by forming production groups, establishing standards, and improving markets, design, and production methods.

7. Management of Indian trust property.—Banking services are provided for Indians; land is purchased, sold, exchanged, and leased; and Indian property and money rights are safeguarded. An effort is being made to consolidate or dispose of fractionated land holdings, especially in those areas affected by readjustment legislation.

This program provides for carrying out administrative functions which support Bureau program activities. These functions include budget and fiscal management, personnel management, audit, inspection services, property and supply management, records management, and office services. The administration of common service activities is partially financed on a benefit basis from other Bureau activities.

This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of loans for the great majority of Indians who cannot borrow from ordinary commercial credit sources because of their low economic status and lack of bankable security (25 U.S.C. 470, 471, 631). Loans are made to tribes for relending to individuals, to tribal business enterprises, and to individual Indians for farming and business purposes.

Cattle settlements are payments made by the Indians for breeding stock furnished by the Government generally prior to establishment of this fund.

Operating results and financial condition.—The net income shown in the 3 years results from interest revenue exceeding the amount set aside for uncollectible loans. The cumulative deficit shown in the schedules results from the allowance for losses on Alaskan salmon cannery loans and from administrative expenses that were previously financed by the fund. As of June 30, 1962, the principal of the fund amounted to $20.5 million, consisting of $17.8 million appropriated, and $2.7 million cattle settlements.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

The Service administers national parks and other areas of unusual historic, scenic, scientific, or recreational character so that they may be preserved for public use and enjoyment.

1964 will be the 8th year of the 10-year mission 66 program to provide personnel and facilities needed to serve the ever-increasing number of visitors to park areas, and at the same time preserve park values. Visitation to parks is expected to increase from an estimated 88,000,000 in 1962 to 101,300,000 in 1966.

General and special funds:

MANAGEMENT AND PROTECTION

For expenses necessary for the management and protection of the areas and facilities administered by the National Park Service, including protection of lands in process of condemnation; and for plans, investigations, and studies of the recreational resources (exclusive of preparation of detail plans and working drawings) and archeological values in river basins of the United States (except the Missouri River Basin); [§25,525,000] $28,816,000. 1. Management of park and other areas.—The estimate contemplates the administration of 206 parks comprising about 26,000,000 acres located in 42 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The increase proposed is to provide for (a) administration of 7 new park areas for which funds are not now provided; (b) new parks activated since beginning of mission 66 now partially financed; (c) operation of newly constructed facilities in pre-mission 66 areas; (d) requirements generated by increased visitor use and general park program expansion in pre-mission 66 areas; (e) conversion of park radio systems to narrow-band frequencies; (f) commercial power and telephone service connection charges; (g) additional National Park Service Training Center requirements; (h) initiation of a wildlife management research program; (i) safety staffs in five of the Regional Offices and to strengthen the safety staff in the Washington Office; (j) 31 additional U.S. Park Police and to meet increased requirements of existing force; and (k) production of additional free informational publications.

The following tabulation shows the actual and estimated visitor and revenue receipts (in thousands):

1962 estimated.....	88,000	—
1963 estimated.....	90,100	8,000
1964 estimated.....	92,800	8,250

2. Forestry and fire control.—Forests, brushlands, or grasslands of over 11,000,000 acres are protected from fire, destructive insects, diseases, and other preventable damage. The increase proposed is to provide for (a) 1 new park for which funds are not now provided; (b) operation of newly constructed mission 66 facilities; and (c) operating requirements generated by increased visitor use and general program expansion. A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—The program contemplates continuation of corrective measures in the parks at the same level as 1963.

4. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are conducted to determine areas that qualify for inclusion in the National Park system; and to determine the boundaries of proposed areas and changes that should be made in boundaries of existing areas; plans are formulated for development and use of recreation facilities and resources on properties of other Federal agencies and assistance is rendered in negotiating agreements with State and local agencies for maintaining and operating such facilities and resources; and technical and scientific services and guidance essential to management, protection, and public use of the park areas are provided in the fields of biology, geology, history, and archeology. Surveys are made of historic American buildings and sites for the purpose of acquiring and preserving data relative thereto. Studies and investigations are carried out leading to establishment and acquisition of rights to sources of water supply, and technical assistance is provided in solving problems relating to both normal and adverse uses made of some of the park lands. The increase proposed is to provide for (a) a more adequate program of National Park and Recreation Area planning and Recreation Planning Services to certain other Federal agencies; (b) expansion of the photographic, audio and visual program; and (c) commencement of comprehensive natural history investigations program.

5. Concessions management.—There are approximately 175 major concessioners operating in the parks and other areas. Services to be rendered are determined; contracts are negotiated or permits issued; rates are established; and records are audited.

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The 1964 program is the 8th year of a 10-year program to provide essential facilities to meet visitor requirements by 1966. A summary of the 1964 program by major type of construction follows (in thousands of dollars):

Camping and picnicking facilities.....	1,758
Public service and administrative units.....	16,821
Utilities.....	4,400
Employee housing.....	4,644
Miscellaneous.....	3,819
Total.....	31,442

2. Acquisition of lands and water rights.—At the beginning of 1964 approximately 587,000 acres of privately owned lands will remain within the areas administered. Acquisition of a portion of this acreage is planned to facilitate public use of these areas. Status of land acquisition present and projected is as follows (in acres):

	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Private lands, beginning of year.....	433,000	447,000	587,000
New areas and boundary adjustments authorized.....	39,000	190,000	-----
Acquired during year.....	25,000	50,000	55,000
Private lands, end of year.....	447,000	587,000	532,000

A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Rights to water must be obtained, frequently by purchase, in many of the areas for use of visitors and employees, and for fire protection.

3. Executive Mansion and grounds.—Provision was made in 1963 for special reconstruction and improvements to enhance both the security and general appearance of the Executive Mansion and grounds.

4. Parkways.—The obligations for this activity are against carryover balance of prior appropriations authorized by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1952. The program authorized by title 23, U.S. Code is obligated against the contract authority provided by that title and is shown under the appropriation Construction (liquidation of contract authorization), National Park Service.

5. Roads and trails.—Obligations scheduled for 1963 represent the balance provided during 1960 for construction of parking areas for the District of Columbia stadium and a small amount against the program authorized by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1952. The 1964 estimate provides for the Department's contribution toward the cost of constructing a bridge across Oregon Inlet in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore Recreation Area, North Carolina, as authorized by Public Law 87-799, approved October 11, 1962. The program authorized by title 23, U.S. Code is obligated against the contract authority provided by that title and is shown under the appropriation Construction (liquidation of contract authorization), National Park Service.

6. Undistributed costs.—These costs represent end-of-year variations in clearing accounts involving operations such as automotive shops, corrals, and facilitating services. The costs are distributed to the various activities served based on predetermined rates. Such rates are studied and adjusted at least once annually to provide for adequate operations.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $3 thousand; 1962, $8 thousand; 1963, $0; 1964, $0.

1. Educational expenses, children of employees, Yellowstone National Park.—Revenues received from the collection of park visitor fees are used to provide educational facilities to dependents of park personnel (62 Stat. 338). Funds in excess of needs are returned to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. It is estimated there will be 104 elementary and 38 high school students during 1964. The estimated average cost per student is $437 for elementary and $662 for high school. In addition, the amount of $15,380 is programmed as a contingency to assure the completion of the new elementary school facility at park headquarters.

2. Payment for tax losses on land acquired for Grand Teton National Park.—Park visitor fee revenues are used to compensate the State of Wyoming for tax losses on Grand Teton National Park lands (64 Stat. 849).

3. Operation, management, maintenance, and demolition of federally acquired properties, Independence National Historical Park.—Some of the buildings on lands acquired for establishment of Independence National Historical Park, Philadelphia, Pa., are rented pending their conversion to park purposes or demolition. Some of the cleared sites are being used temporarily as parking lots from which income is also realized. Income from these operations is used for management and maintenance of the rental properties and for demolition of buildings (65 Stat. 644). There will be no income from this source in 1964 as the properties will be demolished and/or landscaped during 1963.

Loans are made to local trading companies for purchase of Micronesian products for resale in the world market, purchase of trade goods for resale in Micronesia, and purchase of vessels (55 Stat. 151).

The 1956 appropriation language for the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands made available, for 1 year, $500 thousand of the proceeds from liquidation of the Island Trading Company of Micronesia for establishment of this fund. This amount was later reduced to $300 thousand because $200 thousand no longer required was returned to Treasury. The availability has been continued since 1956, and it is proposed to extend it again for 1964.

Interest charged is 4% per annum on the unpaid balance, but is not shown on an accrual basis in the statements.

The Alaska Railroad is authorized to perform generally all the usual duties of a common carrier by railroad so as to best aid in the development of agricultural, mineral, and other resources of Alaska, the settlement of public lands, and the national defense effort. The Railroad's mainline extends 470.3 miles from Seward to Fairbanks, and 12.4 miles from Whittier to Portage Junction. There are also 194.8 miles of branch lines, passing and spur tracks, and yards.

The revolving fund is derived from earnings of the Railroad and is used for operating and maintenance expenses as well as improvements and additions (48 U.S.C. 301-308).

Budget program.—The budget program for 1964 contemplates a continuation of the major activities at about the same level as in recent years.

About one-third of the proposed capital outlay of $1,891 thousand for 1964 represents improvements to the roadway and track consisting of replacing untreated ties with treated ties and applying crushed ballast. The balance consists mainly of equipment replacements plus a contingency or nonprogramed reserve of $500 thousand.

Operating results.—A slight increase in freight revenues is predicted, based upon experience in the past year with sea-train operations and the increasing use of cargo containers in freight movements. An increase over 1962 in funded operating costs is expected because of negotiated wage increases but the impact of the increases will be modified somewhat by the expanded use of mechanical devices in the transportation service and in maintenance of way and structures.

The Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning the water, land, and mineral resources of or pertinent to the Nation, supervises the development and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal and Indian lands, and enforces the provisions of the Connally Hot Oil Act.

1. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps portray the elevation, shape, and position of the natural and manmade features of the earth's surface; provide information for (a) mineral, water, and other natural resources investigations, (b) engineering and industrial development, and (c) military and civil defense. This program will provide topographic maps for those areas where investigations and developments are most imminent, and areas to which Federal agencies, as well as State and local agencies, have assigned a high priority. In 1964, standard quadrangle maps for an estimated 110,000 square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be prepared which, added to areas surveyed in previous years, will result in a total of over 2,300,000 square miles completed. An estimated 15,000 square miles of mapping will be revised. In addition, about 290 special maps will be published which show previously mapped areas in a different format or at a smaller scale.

2. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—Geologic research in the field and laboratory is conducted in three main areas or subactivities: (a) economic geology, consisting of investigations of resources of minerals and fuels, research on new or improved techniques and instruments for mineral exploration, and study of natural materials and geologic processes that affect the design and facilitate the construction of a wide variety of engineering structures; (b) regional geology, consisting primarily of areal geologic and geophysical studies, including the preparation of geologic and geophysical maps that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks at and beneath the surface of the ground; and (c) experimental geology, involving research on the chemistry and physics of the earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified. The diverse studies underway and planned in each of these subactivities provide knowledge essential for the intelligent exploration, development, and use of the Nation's mineral and fuel resources, as well as a better understanding of the influence that natural environment may have on public health, safety, and multiple land-use activities.

3. Marine geology and hydrology.—This formal program was begun in 1963 as part of the national oceanographic program developed by the Interagency Committee on Oceanography and endorsed by the Federal Council for Science and Technology. Examples of major fields of study to receive early emphasis in this program include: (a) geological and geophysical mapping and investigation of the Nation's continental shelves—regions little known geologically, yet of potential major importance as sources of minerals and fuels; (b) research on marine geologic processes, techniques, and instruments; (c) research on the hydrology of river mouths, estuaries, and lagoons; and (d) research on marine hydrologic processes.

4. Water resources investigations.—This program includes determinations of the flow, stage, and sediment discharge of rivers; locations and safe yields of underground waters; the chemical quality and temperature of waters; and the availability of water supplies as related to present and future demands. Research is conducted to increase the fund of knowledge concerning the occurrence of water, its movement, and its interaction with the environment. Investigations are planned specifically to obtain water information needed to solve major water problems relating to distribution, supply, chemical quality and sediment load, pollution, floods, and variability. New work proposed for 1964 will include increased research in scientific hydrology, an expansion of the network of hydrologic data-collection stations, analyses of hydrologic systems to provide a basis for predicting the hydrologic effects of changes imposed by nature and man's activities, extension of coverage of areal ground-water studies, installation of 500 digital-punch water-level recording gages, and an expansion of employee education and training in hydrology. The research effort will increase the fund of basic knowledge in the field of hydrology and broaden understanding about water as it occurs in and on the earth. The proposed program consists of research in fundamental hydrology, research of a clinical nature addressed to the understanding of the scientific aspects of particular water problems or particular types of environments, and research aimed at presenting scientific information in terms most useful in water management.

5. Soil and moisture conservation.—This program provides land management agencies of the Department with basic hydrologic and geologic data needed for maintaining and improving the productive value of public lands.

6. Conservation of lands and minerals.—Prospecting, development, and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands are regulated. Federally owned and controlled lands are classified as to their mineral and water power values. The Federal Petroleum Board conducts investigations in support of State conservation laws to prevent the interstate shipment of contraband oil. In the current year approximately 200,000 leased properties, oil wells, and mines in 40 States are supervised and about 1,375 square miles of geologic mapping in aid of mineral classification will be completed. The leases are expected to produce oil, gas, and other minerals, valued at $1.32 billion, and render royalty returns of about $170 million. The States which produce the minerals receive 37½% of the royalties; the Reclamation fund, 52½%; and 10% is retained in the U.S. Treasury. In 1964 it is anticipated that the workload will aggregate 220,000 leases, wells, and mines, and about 3,000 square miles of geologic mapping for classification will be completed. The production and royalty values are expected to reach $1.44 billion and $185 million, respectively. The classification functions provide the foundation for the system of public-land administration prescribed by mineral leasing and land disposal laws. Owing to the unprecedented rate of development of the Nation's oil and gas and other mineral resources, increased demands are being made upon the Survey for mineral classification services and for the accelerated classification and restoration of lands previously withdrawn. In 1964 it is expected that some 110,000 technical classification reports will be completed.

8. Special-purpose buildings.—The 1964 program provides for (a) construction of the Nuclear Research Laboratory at the Denver field center for which design funds were appropriated in 1963, (b) design and construction of a rock magnetics laboratory near the Menlo Park field center and (c) the design of special facilities at the Denver and Menlo Park field centers.

Reimbursable obligations.—Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for making cooperative topographic and geologic surveys and water resources investigations (44 Stat. 963), proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records (43 U.S.C. 45), proceeds from sale of personal property (40 U.S.C. 481(c)), reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Power Commission (16 U.S.C. 797), and reimbursements from international organizations for technical assistance (22 U.S.C. 2357). Reimbursements from other Federal agencies (31 U.S.C. 686) are for special purpose mapping and investigations performed at the request of the financing agency, much of which contributes to the basic objectives of the Geological Survey.

The unobligated balance of $400 thousand cash is carried forward each year to pay the expenses of reimbursable work pending collection from cooperating agencies. This advance is not available for obligation.

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Bituminous coal.—Scientific research and engineering investigations are carried out on the chemical and physical properties of coal and its mining, preparation, combustion, carbonization, and gasification. Research is continuing on the development of a stationary coal-burning gas turbine to provide a method of increasing the efficiency of steam-generating equipment. Coal samples are analyzed; efficiency of coal-mining methods is evaluated; and economic studies are performed. Research is conducted to discover causes of explosions in coal mines and to improve methods of preventing explosions. Tests are conducted on explosives and blasting devices to determine their permissibility for use in mining operations.

2. Anthracite coal.—Research is conducted to develop new and improve present uses for anthracite; improved mining and preparation methods are developed; and basic economic data are prepared.

3. Petroleum, natural gas, and oil shale.—Research is conducted to conserve these resources by improving the processes of recovery and utilization. Research is coordinated with work done by other Government agencies, educational institutions, and industry. Economic information is analyzed to provide a factual basis for industry operations and Government policy. Research on oil shale to determine the composition of the various products, to test the applicability of those products to different uses, and to determine the basic chemistry and physics of the refining processes will be continued.

4. Minerals and metals.—Research is conducted for the conservation, development, and utilization of minerals other than fuels.

Resources investigations are made of mineral deposits to gain better knowledge of the location, quantity, quality, and recoverability of specific mineral resources. Mineral production and mineral industry economic surveys are made of the industry.

Metallurgy research seeks improved processes for extracting metals and nonmetals from their ores, and adapting them for efficient use. Multidiscipline investigations develop better methods to recover metals by physical, chemical, and electrical techniques and find means to produce superpure materials. A parallel effort integrates the structure of metals, alloys, and ceramic compounds with optimum preparation and utilization. Basic to all investigations is fundamental research to delineate the physical and thermodynamic properties of materials and to analyze the rates and mechanics of high-temperature chemical and metallurgical reactions.

In mining research, much effort is devoted to applying physics as a scientific discipline in concert with mining engineering principles to all phases of mineral mining. These fundamental studies begin with determination of the physical nature of rock structures and continue through the application of rock mechanics to exploration, development, and operational problems of mining. Highly specialized research is conducted on the mechanisms of penetrating and breaking rock. One of the most important problems of mining is that of ground control which is attacked by developing methods of stabilizing underground openings and techniques for designing efficient open-pit slopes.

5. Oceanographic research.—The research will be a forward step in establishing a program to determine the significance of marine mineral resources. The extent and grade of oceanic deposits will be investigated and research will be initiated on mining and processing materials found at sea. The extracting of essential elements from sea water will be the subject of laboratory investigations. Also, a coordinated program on means for preventing or reducing pollution caused by disposal of oil at sea will be conducted.

6. Foreign mineral activities.—The Bureau analyzes technical and economic data on foreign mineral resources, production, consumption, and international trade for Government use in coping with problems of mineral supply and to assist industry in planning domestic and foreign minerals ventures.

This fund is used for the production, conservation, purchase, and sale of helium; location and development of helium properties and reserves; and research on the properties and uses of helium to promote its wise and effective use. Production is primarily for the Department of Defense, Atomic Energy Commission, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which reimburse the fund for products received. Other Federal agencies and non-Federal consumers also buy helium for medical, scientific, and commercial uses.

Budget program.—The Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (74 Stat. 918) provide for the conservation of helium now going to fuel markets as a noncombustible component of some natural gases. This conservation program is being accomplished through long-term negotiated contracts with private companies to finance, construct, and operate helium extraction plants for sale of helium to the Government.

Deliveries of helium began during 1963 under 4 contracts, which obligated the initial contracting authority of $47.5 million a year. Helium recovered from fuel gases by the 5 private industry plants will be transported in a 430-mile Government pipeline system completed during 1963 to the Cliffside field near Amarillo, Tex., for storage until needed in the future. Over the 22-year life of the 4 contracts, the 5 plants are expected to deliver about 62.5 billion cubic feet of helium to the Bureau of Mines. The first of the plants began operations during late 1962, and the remainder are due for operation by March 1963. This segment of the conservation program represents about 70% of the present total program objective for helium conservation.

The Government-owned helium plants at Amarillo, Tex.; Exell, Tex.; Shiprock, N. Mex.; Otis, Kans.; and Keyes, Okla., will be operated and maintained to supply the current demand for helium. Emphasis will be placed on providing increased helium purification capacity.

Research will continue to increase the common store of technical literature and knowledge of the fundamental properties of helium and helium-bearing gas mixtures, and to improve processes and methods of helium production, purification, transportation, liquefaction, storage, and utilization. The helium research program will be strengthened with more emphasis on basic research to add to the fundamental knowledge of helium.

Financing the budget program.—Funds borrowed from the Treasury will be used to supplement the income received from sales of helium. Additional borrowing authority of $13 million is requested for 1964. The sales price of helium is established at a rate sufficient to cover costs of operations and to provide for future repayment of debt, including accrued interest.

Operating results and financial condition.—Government equity is estimated to be $101.4 million at the end of 1964, an increase of $49.5 million from 1962. This increase is due mainly to an increase in retained earnings, estimated at $29.2 million, which will accrue during 1963 and 1964 and the estimated net borrowings during these years of $21.5 million. The retained earnings is building up as a result of the favorable cost-sales price relationship existing during the early years of the conservation program. In 1963, $6 million was returned to the Treasury as repayment of capital investment in accordance with section 6 of Public Law 86-777 (Helium Act Amendments of 1960).

Payments are computed for lead at 75% of the difference between 14½ cents per pound and the average market price for the month in which the sale occurred and for zinc at 55% of the difference between 14½ cents per pound and the average market price for the month. The total amount of payments which may be made in each calendar year of the program is limited as are the tons of lead and zinc on which payments may be made.

2. Program administration.—This activity finances the processing and certification of applications from small domestic producers, the establishment of quotas and allocations and the processing of claims for payment.

This fund is used for making loans to segments of the fishing industry unable to obtain commercial loans on reasonable terms for financing operations, maintenance, replacement, repair, and equipment of fishing gear and vessels, and for research into basic problems of fisheries. Loans bear interest at 5% annually and mature in not more than 10 years. Loan commitments against the fund are made on approval of the Secretary of the Interior, and referred to the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries for closing in the field and rendering loan servicing functions required (70 Stat. 1119).

Budget program—Loans made.—It is estimated that this program can be carried through 1964 without additional financing. As of September 30, 1962, a total of 1,193 applications amounting to $33.5 million had been received. Of these, 630 loans totaling $14.9 million had been approved and 316 applications amounting to $8.3 million had been declined.

Administrative expenses.—These expenses include processing of loan applications, closing of loans, and collection of repayments and interest.

Financing.—Appropriations of $13 million provide capital for the fund. Additional financing is provided from repayments and interest on outstanding loans.

Operating results.—The existing deficit is expected to be eliminated by future interest earnings.

WATER AND POWER DEVELOPMENT

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish domestic and industrial water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States and Alaska.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and special funds. The special funds are (a) the Reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenues; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenue; (b) the Colorado River Dam fund, derived from the revenue of the Boulder Canyon project; and (c) the Colorado River development fund, derived from transfers of money from the Colorado River Dam fund. The estimates of appropriation for the budget year are summarized by source, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The total appropriation request of $380.3 million represents an increase of $42.9 million compared with the current year appropriations and an increase of $102.4 million compared with the preceding year.

General and special funds:

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For engineering and economic investigations of proposed Federal reclamation [and other] projects [for which the Secretary may have power marketing responsibilities under section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944] and studies of water conservation and development plans and activities preliminary to the reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or extension of existing projects, including not to exceed [$350,000] $519,000 for investigations of projects in Alaska, to remain available until expended, [$8,400,000] $11,361,000, of which [$7,010,000] $9,921,000 shall be derived from the reclamation fund and $500,000 shall be derived from the Colorado River development fund: Provided, That none of this appropriation shall be used for more than one-half of the cost of an investigation requested by a State, municipality, or other interest: Provided further, That [$290,000] $388,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Bureau of Reclamation. 3. Alaskan investigations.—These engineering and economic investigations relate to projects for the development and utilization of the water resources of Alaska. The program provides for comprehensive studies of natural resources developments in Alaska, including water resources and power developments. The program will be carried out in cooperation with the State of Alaska and other concerned agencies (48 U.S.C. 487-487b).

4. Fish and wildlife studies.—These funds are transferred to the Fish and Wildlife Service for studies of the fish and wildlife aspects of reclamation projects under

The program consists of advance planning, design, and construction of authorized projects, operation and maintenance during construction of completed features of projects, and rehabilitation of existing facilities. Investigations and advance planning for units of the Missouri River basin are included under that project. The development of a framework plan in the Missouri River basin will be initiated in 1964 in cooperation with other concerned agencies. The program for the Central Valley project includes contributions by the State of California to finance part of the construction cost of the San Luis unit in accordance with 74 Stat. 156-160.

Work will be underway in 1964 on 33 projects and 19 units and divisions of the Missouri River basin project including 5 new starts with estimated costs totaling $188.6 million. Five projects and 1 unit of the Missouri River basin project will be completed in 1964. The program also includes rehabilitation and betterment work on 12 projects. During the year facilities for 100,400 acres of irrigated land and 329,600 kilowatts of new hydroelectric power-generating capacity will be completed. Funds are provided for the initiation of construction on high-voltage power transmission facilities interconnecting the Pacific Northwest and the Pacific Southwest.

The Bureau operates and maintains the power-generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, irrigation works are operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities. In 1964, a total of 39 projects and 24 Missouri River basin units and divisions will be operated and maintained for irrigation, power, municipal and industrial water supplies, and other benefits with funds made available under this appropriation. Of these, 20 projects and 4 Missouri River basin units have power facilities. Financing for operation and maintenance of Bureau facilities is also made available under the Fort Peck project and Upper Colorado River basin revolving funds.

Energy sales from all Bureau power operations are as follows:

	Kilowatt-hours of energy (millions)	Gross energy sales (thousands)
1962 (actual).....	26,716	$73,638
1963 (estimate).....	31,213	77,005
1964 (estimate).....	32,541	83,164

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration-financed cooperatives, private utilities, and other Government agencies. These revenues are deposited in the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, and the general fund.

The programs for 6 power projects include $4,627 thousand net in 1964 for the purchase of power and wheeling.

Provision is also made for flood-control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations, and halogeton control on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau.

This appropriation finances the general administrative and technical direction of the Reclamation program as performed by the departmental, Denver, and the regional and other offices in the seven regions. In prior years part of these costs were charged to project accounts. Since 1962, charges to project or activity accounts are made by Denver and regional offices only for services directly performed for individual projects or activities. Administrative costs incurred for the direct benefit of specific projects or activities are covered under other appropriations. Adjustments subsequent to 1962 in the method of financing costs of general administration and other Reclamation activities are reflected in 1962 data for comparative purpose.

This fund defrays the expense of operating the power-generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded operating costs in 1964 are substantially the same as in 1963, and the capital outlay program is scheduled for completion in 1964.

Financing.—The operation of the Fort Peck project power and transmission facilities is financed by this fund and capital outlays for transmission facilities by advances from the appropriation Construction and rehabilitation. The accompanying statements consolidate the financing from the Continuing fund for emergency expenses, Fort Peck project, Montana, and Construction and rehabilitation.

Operating results and financial condition.—Payments to the Treasury toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission totaled $2.6 million in 1962 and are estimated at $2.1 million in 1963 and $2.3 million in 1964. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand.

³ The changes in these items are reflected in the program and financing schedule.

⁴ The method used to compute the interest payment due the United States is 3% of the balance to be repaid at the end of the previous year of the interest-bearing allocation to commercial electric plant. The fund defrays the cost of advance planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the Colorado River storage project and participating projects, a comprehensive basinwide development which will make possible the control and utilization of the water resources of the Upper Colorado River Basin. The storage project will regulate and conserve the flows of the Colorado River and its major tributaries through holdover storage in large reservoirs, permitting increased consumptive use of water in the upper basin and the production of hydroelectric power. Excess revenue from the sale of power will be applied to repayment of costs allocated to irrigation which are beyond the ability of the water users to repay. The participating projects consist of power, irrigation, and municipal and industrial water supply developments.

Construction costs of the storage project and participating projects are financed through appropriations advanced to the fund. Project operating revenue will be credited to the fund and will cover costs of operation and maintenance. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to repay project costs allocated to power, municipal and industrial water supply, and irrigation.

Budget program—1. Advance planning.—Funds for this activity in 1964 will provide for the continuation of studies on the Central Utah participating project.

2. Colorado River storage project.—Construction will be underway on three units and on the Transmission division. The construction of the Flaming Gorge unit is scheduled to be completed during the year.

3. Participating projects.—Work will continue in 1964 on 3 participating projects and construction will start on the Lyman and San Juan-Chama projects.

4. Drainage and minor construction.—This activity will fund work in 1964 on 3 participating projects which have been substantially completed, but which require additional funds for miscellaneous finishing activities and drainage construction.

Operation and maintenance program.—The Bureau of Reclamation operates and maintains the units of the Colorado River storage project and the power generation and transmission facilities with revenues from the sale of energy and water. Participating projects are operated and maintained with funds advanced by the water users.

Financing.—The 1964 programs for advance planning and construction of the storage and participating projects, will be financed principally by appropriations to the fund and to a minor degree from construction revenues. The operation and maintenance program in 1964 will be financed by funds advanced by the water users and from project revenues.

Operating results and financial condition.—During the construction period, only minor revenue is realized and expense is capitalized.

Budget expenditures will decrease to $99.4 million in 1964 from $105.2 million in 1963.

The total equity of the Government in the fund is expected to reach $540.3 million by the end of 1964.

CONSTRUCTION—continued

The Administration is responsible for the marketing of electric power produced at 22 Federal hydroelectric generating plants in service or under construction, and wheels power from certain non-Federal plants in the Pacific Northwest.

A schedule of Federal generation through 1967 of plants in operation or under construction follows:

	First generation (fiscal year)	Installed capacity (kilowatts, nameplate rating)
Projects in operation.....	---	6,489,250
Projects under construction:
Cougar.....	1964	25,000

Foster.....	1967	30,000
John Day.....	1967	1,350,000
Total.....		7,974,250

The transmission facilities program also will enable the Administration to wheel and exchange power over the Federal grid from the non-Federal Wanapum, Packwood Lake, and Boundary Dams.

The estimated amounts of peak generating capacity on the Federal system are as follows (in thousands of kilowatts):

	July 1, 1963	July 1, 1967
Federal projects.....	7,459	7,925
Power wheeled from non-Federal projects.....	1,502	3,026
Total.....	8,961	10,951

1. Construction in progress.—Includes amounts requested in 1964 to carry forward work on transmission facilities started in prior years.

2. New construction.—Funds are included in the budget for the construction of high voltage interconnections of the electric systems of the Pacific Northwest and the Pacific Southwest. Also included are amounts needed in 1964 to start construction of new transmission and substation capacity to carry to load centers the power production of generating installations scheduled to be in operation by December 1967 and to meet service requirements of power customers.

3. General plant.—Provision is made for acquisition of items such as tools; office, shop, laboratory, and transportation equipment; and portable communication equipment used in the construction and operation of the Federal power system.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $270 thousand (1962 adjustments, -$35 thousand); 1962, $342 thousand; 1963, $342 thousand; 1964, $342 thousand.

This program provides for the operation and maintenance of the Administration's high-voltage electric grid system, and for commercial and administrative expenses in marketing wholesale electric power from Federal dams, and in wheeling power from non-Federal dams in the Pacific Northwest.

1. System operation and maintenance.—This activity consists of the scheduling and dispatching of power; the operation of substations; the maintenance of transmission lines, substations and other facilities; power requirements and marketing studies; planning and integration of power resources; and system engineering.

Transmission facilities of the Administration are expanded as increased generating capacity becomes available. The system will be operated and maintained at a level which will insure safe operation and provide a reliable grade of service to customers.

The following table shows the rising trend in several of the more important indexes of the operation and maintenance activity:

2. Power contracts and rates.—This activity provides for the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, the billing and servicing of contracts including the development of service plans, and the establishment of wholesale rate schedules. Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $71.4 million in 1962, and are estimated at $80.2 million and $86.9 million in 1963 and 1964, respectively.

A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

The Virgin Islands Corporation promotes the economic development of the U.S. Virgin Islands. Appropriations of $15 million are authorized to be made to a revolving fund based on annual budgets submitted by the Corporation. An appropriation of additional funds as grants to finance non-revenue-producing activities and to reimburse the Corporation for operating losses is also authorized (48 U.S.C. 1407).

Budget program—1. Loan program.—Loans are made to aid farmers in agricultural diversification and to improve livestock production, provided that such loans are not available from other Federal or private sources.

5. Miscellaneous revenue-producing activities.—These consist of: (a) certain Navy properties transferred to the Department of the Interior under a revocable permit and managed by the Corporation; (b) leases and rentals of property; and (c) miscellaneous sales of supplies and materials.

Financing.—Grants to the Corporation are summarized as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The budget program for 1964 does not include a request for an appropriation, but a supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal. It is anticipated that legislation to transfer the present functions of the Corporation to the Government of the Virgin Islands will be submitted to the Congress.

Operating results.—The Corporation sustained a net loss of $446 thousand in 1962. This consisted of a loss of $434 thousand on sugarcane and sugar, and $37 thousand on other activities. These losses were partially offset by a profit of $24 thousand on electric power and $1 thousand on the loan program. The loss on sugarcane and sugar was due principally to insufficient rainfall during the growing period.

An analysis of the deficit account is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the investigative branch of the Department of Justice and obtains evidence for use in civil litigation and prosecution of criminal violations of Federal law. It has primary responsibility for the internal security of the Nation. It assists all law enforcement agencies in identification and technical matters.

The appropriation request for 1964 totals $146.9 million. This will provide for an additional 550 employees (200 agents and 350 clerks) when compared with the number allowed under the approved appropriation for the current year. Of the additional employees, 225 clerks are for the handling of increasing workloads at the seat of Government pertaining to fingerprint checks, name checks, and scientific examinations. The other 325 employees (200 agents and 125 clerks) are for assignment to the field where there has been a growing volume of work.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—This activity includes the Bureau's investigative responsibilities, the coordination and maintenance of the data gathered, and the maintenance of the Bureau's communications system. Data are disseminated to other Government agencies having an official interest in it. During 1962, the Bureau received 1,832,930 names for search through its files, an increase of 204,245, or 13%, over the prior year. A further increase in name check work is anticipated.

Fingerprints are acquired, classified, preserved, and exchanged with other duly authorized law enforcement agencies and 5,832,677 sets of fingerprints were received for handling during 1962, an increase of 336,303, or 6%, over the prior year. The volume of fingerprint work is expected to increase. Sets of fingerprints on file on July 1, 1962, totaled 163,690,807.

3. Criminal and scientific laboratory.—The laboratory provides technical and scientific assistance to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and all duly constituted law enforcement agencies and other Federal agencies which desire to avail themselves of the service. During 1962, scientific examinations totaled 231,456, a new all-time high. The upward trend is expected to continue.

4. Training schools and inspectional services.—A bureau-wide inspectional service and a personnel training program are provided. The Bureau assists, upon request, in providing various types of training to local law enforcement agencies.

This is a wholly owned Government corporation. A board of six directors appointed by the President controls its policies. Supervision is by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons who has jurisdiction over all industrial enterprises and vocational training programs in all Federal penal and correctional institutions. Products manufactured by inmates are sold only to the penal institutions and to other Government agencies. Earnings, in excess of operating requirements, are paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury.

The corporation is authorized, under the Attorney General, to establish and operate industries in Federal penal and correctional institutions and disciplinary barracks (18 U.S.C. 4121-4128). Its objectives are to provide employment for physically fit inmates; to provide maximum vocational training for qualified inmates in connection with regular institutional and industrial activities; and to operate a placement service to assist released inmates to secure jobs. Earnings from the sale of these products pay expenses of the corporation and have permitted payment of $47 million in dividends into the Treasury since January 1, 1935. It is anticipated that dividends of $4 million and $3.5 million will be paid in 1963 and 1964, respectively.

Budget program.—During 1962 the corporation operated 53 shops and factories at 23 locations. The laundry at New York, N.Y. was discontinued during 1962. During 1964 a new enterprise will start operations at the maximum security institution at Marion, Ill., bringing the total shops and factories to 55 at 24 locations. The following table indicates the scope of employment and training effort in the total prison program:

Operating results.—The corporation has always operated at a profit and is expected to continue to do so. Earnings of the fund pay expenses of the corporation, which include general administration and vocational rehabilitation. These two activities, although financed from fund receipts, are subject to annual appropriation limitations. Earnings in excess of operating requirements are paid into the U.S. Treasury. As of June 30, 1962, the cumulative earnings amounted to $73.7 million, of which $26.7 million had been retained as working capital and $47 million had been paid into the Treasury. Earnings are estimated to be $5.7 million in 1963 and $4.7 million in 1964.

1. Manpower and employment.—Analysis of the level and trend of nonagricultural employment, hours, earnings, and labor turnover. Analysis and publication of the Monthly Report on the Labor Force, presenting data on characteristics of the labor force, based on both household surveys and payroll data, together with analyses of major developments in the employment and unemployment situation. In 1964 new programs will provide for: (a) studies of unemployment and the labor force, which will include studies of factors determining labor force turnover and growth; (b) extension and improvement of household statistics on the labor force; (c) current employment statistics by occupation; (d) development of occupational outlook program; (e) extension of monthly establishment statistics to more industries, and metropolitan areas; (f) initiation of studies relating to job vacancies; and (g) initiation of an annual survey of man-hours and payrolls for all employees in manufacturing industries. Publications include the Occupational Outlook Handbook, the Occupational Outlook Quarterly, and Employment and Earnings. Estimates of manpower requirements and supply, and reviews of long-range employment and labor force trends are also published.

2. Prices and cost of living.—The Consumer Price Index is published, covering urban wage earner and clerical worker families, for the Nation (based on 46 cities) and for 20 selected large cities. Separate indexes are developed for Anchorage, Juneau, Ketchikan, and Fairbanks, Alaska. The Wholesale Price Index is published, covering 2,200 industrial and agricultural products in primary markets. In 1964 it is proposed to extend coverage and restructure primary market price indexes, with the additional coverage specifically on export and import prices, and prices paid by Government.

3. Wages and industrial relations.—Information on wages and related benefits in nonsupervisory employment for 80 major labor markets and for selected major industries; nationwide data annually on salaries in selected professional, administrative, and technical occupations; monthly information on work stoppages, wage changes, and industrial relations developments; annual reports on employer expenditures on fringe benefits; studies of collective bargaining agreement provisions and of trade union organization and structure; and studies of private welfare and pension plans. Proposals for 1964 include: (a) labor market studies and national salary estimates for professional and administrative occupational categories providing for the addition of 7 areas to the current sample of 80 areas; (b) expansion and acceleration of studies on employer expenditures for fringe benefits and the composition of payroll hours; (c) provision for technical assistance and services in connection with labor disputes; and (d) extension of studies in employee benefit plans.

4. Measurement of productivity.—Provides annual indexes of output per man-hour for the economy, industry sectors, and individual industries, and analysis of productivity trends. Studies on developments in automation and other technology with analysis of personnel adjustment to technological change. Studies of labor requirements for selected types of construction. In 1964 it is proposed to expand current studies of the impact of automation and productivity and to conduct studies in important industries not now covered.

5. Industrial hazards.—Provides quarterly and annual information on industrial injuries, and detailed analyses of the causes of injuries for selected industries. No increase in program level is requested for 1964.

6. Foreign labor conditions.—Summary information, comprehensive reports, and advisory services for policy and program work are provided on labor in foreign countries, including price levels, wages, employment, unemployment, unit labor costs, labor law, and labor standards. Consumer expenditure and price surveys.—A revision of the Consumer Price Index based on current patterns of consumer expenditures is underway which will modernize the index to meet the demands for its use in present-day domestic, economic, and industrial planning. The revision, begun in 1960, will extend over a 5-year period. In 1963, summary tabulations of urban consumer expenditure data collected in 1961 and 1962 will be completed. Analysis and publication of these data will be initiated and they will be used to determine the market basket and weighting factors for the revised index. Full-scale collection of price data will be initiated and test indexes will be started. In 1964, pricing and test indexes will be continued through December 1963 and the revised index will be published in January of 1964. The current index will be continued through June 1964 to overlap with the revised index for a 6-month period. Comprehensive housing unit surveys and consumer expenditure surveys will be conducted in Houston, Kansas City, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Milwaukee, San Diego, and Cincinnati. Tabulation and publication of data from the 1960-61 Surveys of Consumer Expenditures in 66 cities will be completed.

1. Manpower research.—This activity includes functions performed under title I of Public Law 87-415; it also includes research in automation and technological change provided under Public Law 87-582 and shown as "transfer in the estimates." The research program includes, among others, studies of current and prospective manpower requirements and resources, skill requirements and supply, job opportunities and occupational outlook, factors which tend to impede labor mobility, manpower utilization, and occupational training problems of youth. It also will support manpower research in the Department of Labor, in other government agencies and in academic and other private institutions, and provide periodic reports of the Nation's manpower posture for use in manpower policy formulation and planning public and private action.

2. Training and skill development programs.—This activity will provide for occupational training programs to equip the Nation's unemployed and underemployed workers with skills that will enable them to participate in productive employment. This objective will be achieved by identifying occupations in which shortages or potential demand exist, selecting workers for training in these occupations, developing and providing training programs, and placing trainees in jobs. Trainee allowances will be paid to unemployed heads of families or households with 3 years' experience in gainful employment who are selected for vocational education or on-the-job training. A limited number of unemployed youth, 19 through 21 years of age, will receive trainee allowances, but at a lower rate than adult unemployed workers. This activity also will provide for program development and operation of the manpower program activities assigned to the Secretaries of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

3. Program evaluation.—This activity will provide the basis for reports to the Congress including: reports on persons trained, types of training, the number of persons employed and the nature of employment resulting from training; an evaluation of the programs carried on under the act; the need for continuing such programs; and recommendations for improvement.

BUREAU OF EMPLOYMENT SECURITY—Con.LIMITATION ON SALARIES AND EXPENSES—Continued

The Bureau of Employment Security administers the Federal-State employment security system consisting of 54 State agencies and about 1,900 full-time local offices assisting workers in finding jobs, assisting employers in recruiting workers, and paying unemployment benefits.

1. Unemployment insurance service.—The service's overall responsibility is to insure adequacy and prompt payment of unemployment insurance benefits, and to oversee continued efforts toward improvement of State agency unemployment insurance operations and administration. State laws and interpretations are reviewed to assure conformity with the Federal law requirements and surveys are made to assist States in improving administrative procedures. The service also directs State and Federal agencies in the administration of Federal benefit programs for unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen. In 1964 emphasis will continue to be placed on providing the leadership and technical support in carrying out necessary corrections and improvements in State agency unemployment insurance operations.

2. U.S. Employment Service.—This Service operates as an overall manpower agency giving leadership and technical assistance to State and local employment service offices engaged in providing (a) placement service in all occupations for workers and employers; (b) counseling and testing services for workers and employers in meeting their individual employment needs; (c) specialized services for job seekers requiring particular attention in order to facilitate their employment, including youth, older workers, handicapped, minority groups, and workers displaced by automation and technological change; (d) for improved mobility of labor by guiding necessary shifts of workers between geographical areas and across occupational and industrial lines; (e) labor market information; (f) occupational analysis and other services to employers and unions; (g) stimulation and support for community action to develop expanded job opportunities and to stabilize employment; (h) suitable counseling and placement services to veterans and promoting the interest of employers in employing veterans; and (i) special recruitment and farm placement programs to assist farm workers in finding continuous employment and to meet agriculture's needs for year-round and seasonal workers. In 1964 the U.S. Employment Service will continue its program to develop and improve employment services to meet the demands of a growing and rapidly changing economy and labor force. Participation of the State agencies affiliated with the Bureau of Employment Security is required to fully carry out the recommendations of the President's Committee To Appraise the Usefulness of Employment and Unemployment Statistics.

the purposes specified in such section 901(c)(1)(A) is hereby increased to $400,000,000.

In carrying out the provisions of said Act of June 6, 1933, the provisions of section 303(a)(1) of the Social Security Act, as amended, relating to the establishment and maintenance of personnel standards on the merit basis, shall apply.

None of the funds appropriated by this title to the Bureau of Employment Security for grants-in-aid of State agencies to cover, in whole or in part, the cost of operation of said agencies, including the salaries and expenses of officers and employees of said agencies, shall be withheld from the said agencies of any States which have established by legislative enactment and have in operation a merit system and classification and compensation plan covering the selection, tenure in office, and compensation of their employees, because of any disapproval of their personnel or the manner of their selection by the agencies of the said States, or the rates of pay of said officers or employees.

Grants to States, next succeeding fiscal year: For making, after May 31 of the current fiscal year, payments to States under title III of the Social Security Act, as amended, and under the Act of June 6, 1933, as amended, for the first quarter of the next succeeding fiscal year, such sums as may be necessary, the obligations incurred and the expenditures made thereunder for payments under such title and under such Act of June 6, 1933, to be charged to the appropriation therefor for that fiscal year: Provided, That the payments made pursuant to this paragraph shall not exceed the amount paid to the States for the first quarter of the current fiscal year. (29 U.S.C. 49-49n; 38 U.S.C. 2001-2014; 42 U.S.C. 501-503, 1101-1105, 1361-1371; 76 Stat. 361, Department of Labor Appropriation Act, 1963; authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Grants are made to the States for administration of the unemployment insurance service and the U.S. Employment Service. The Social Security Act contains a $350 million ceiling on grants to States. This ceiling has been temporarily increased to $385 million in 1961, $415 million in 1962, and $400 million in 1963. Requirements for 1964 are estimated at $432.6 million. Of this amount, $350 million is under existing legislation and $82.6 million under proposed legislation to amend Public Law 86-778 which established the $350 million ceiling.

An increase of $32.6 million is requested over the 1963 limitation primarily for the continued improvement of the employment service as part of the program to develop a fully operative manpower agency, increased tax workloads, improvements in operation in the claims and benefit functions, and increases in the average annual State salary rate offset by a reduction for fewer claims to be filed in 1964. The average annual salary rate is expected to rise from $5,126 in 1963 to $5,301 in 1964.

1. Unemployment insurance service.—State employment security agencies pay unemployment compensation to unemployed workers eligible under State unemployment insurance laws and collect unemployment taxes from employers who are subject to State unemployment insurance laws. Unemployment benefits are also paid to unemployed Federal workers and ex-servicemen from funds provided under Federal appropriation. Federal grants in 1962 provided State administrative costs to collect $2.7 billion in taxes, and pay $2.9 billion in State benefits to unemployed workers. Insured unemployment is expected to decrease in 1963 and 1964; the numbers of subject employers and covered workers will increase; and in 1964 the operations of the unemployment insurance service will be strengthened to provide improvements in the claims-taking operations, including the supervision of them.

2. United States Employment Service.—Under the Federal State employment service system, Federal grants finance local employment offices administered by State employment security agencies. The local offices function as the manpower agencies for their communities by finding jobs for persons seeking employment, providing workers for employers who need them, developing and carrying out programs designed to resolve the manpower problems of the area, and providing special services to employers, workers, and other community agencies or groups that require them. This is accomplished by providing counseling and testing services to enable applicants to obtain suitable jobs or to upgrade their skills through further training, assisting employers in analyzing their skill requirements, solving problems of recruitment and turnover, and by selecting and referring qualified applicants for job openings. Specialized services are given to new applicants, displaced older workers, handicapped and minority group workers, and to veterans with employment problems. These services are provided to both farm and nonfarm workers and employers. Continued emphasis is needed on the employment problems of youth, persistent unemployment, employers and workers affected by automation, and rural communities with high unemployment to deal with them more effectively. A specialized program will be further developed and perfected for the greater utilization of domestic farmworkers, particularly migratory workers hard hit by increasing mechanization and technology in agriculture; included is a tested program for extending community services to migrants in work areas.

Mexican agricultural labor is imported for use in areas having a shortage of domestic agricultural workers. All costs except for Compliance activities, are paid from the farm labor supply revolving fund. Authorization for this program was extended to December 31, 1963 (75 Stat. 761). The legislative program includes plans for extending Public Law 78.

1. Determining Mexican labor requirements.—The agricultural areas needing Mexican workers and the number of workers required are determined. Farm labor reports are developed, controlled, and analyzed to evaluate the Mexican labor program. Technical assistance is provided the States in the preparation of these reports.

2. Supplying Mexican labor.—Workers are recruited in Mexico and transported to centers in the United States where employers contract for their use. In 1962, 282,515 workers were contracted. An estimated 225,000 workers will be contracted in 1963 and 130,000 in the first 6 months of 1964.

This fund covers transportation and other costs directly involved in importing Mexican farm workers (7 U.S.C. 1461-1468). Public Law 87-345 dated October 3, 1961 extends the authority until December 31, 1963. The legislative program includes plans for extending Public Law 78.

Budget program.—The program involves the recruitment, selection, and importation of Mexican workers for agricultural work on farms in the continental United States. Mexican workers recruited and selected by the Mexican Government are sent to 3 migratory stations in Mexico where they are examined for ability to do farm work, screened for subversive activities, vaccinated, and transported to 3 reception centers in the United States where they are X-rayed, examined and treated for disease, and contracted to employers. This requires the establishment and operation of reception centers to provide housing, subsistence, and medical care. An estimated 225,000 Mexican farm workers will be imported in 1963 and 130,000 in the first 6 months of 1964.

Financing.—The costs of operating this program are met by fees charged the employer for each worker contracted. The fees of $10 per worker initially contracted and $5 per worker recontracted were established January 1, 1960. The fee for recontracting was raised to $10 per worker effective February 1, 1962. These rates were increased to $15 per worker for both contracting and recontracting on July 1, 1962. The fees provide for the cost of importing workers and for State activities and for the serological testing administered by the Public Health Service.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Revenue from operations is estimated to be approximately $559 thousand less than expenses in 1963 and approximately $279 thousand less in 1964 after allowing for transfers of $2,048 thousand in 1963 and $1,135 thousand in 1964 to Salaries and expenses, Mexican farm labor program. Retained earnings as of December 31, 1963 are estimated to be $396 thousand. Earnings are retained to meet future requirements.

This fund, established by the Employment Security Act of 1960 (74 Stat. 970), makes advances without fiscal year limitation to the employment security administration account in the Unemployment trust fund. The purpose of this fund is to finance the Federal and State administrative costs of the employment security programs on a repayable basis from the beginning of the fiscal year until the Federal unemployment tax receipts become available in February of the same fiscal year.

During 1962, the second year of operations, $320.3 million was advanced to the employment security administration account of which $233.9 million was repaid. The balance of $86.4 million will be repaid from tax receipts in 1963. In addition, the balance of the fund will be used to finance the program in 1963 until the Federal unemployment tax receipts are received in February 1963. During 1964, about $260 million of the fund will be used to finance the program until the Federal unemployment tax receipts are received during February 1964.

This fund will be needed until the employment security administration account accumulates a carryover balance of $288 million. Earnings are retained to meet future requirements.

This appropriation covers activities necessary to the administration and enforcement of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959.

1. Reports and disclosure.—Report forms, instructions, and procedures are devised. Reports from labor organizations, union officers and employees, employers and labor relations consultants are examined. Reports are made available to the public. Comprehensive analysis is made of a limited number of reports to determine conformance to the law. It is estimated that 72,000 reports will be filed in 1963 and 75,000 will be filed in 1964. Research is conducted on union structure, procedures, financing, and other aspects of labor-management practices. Technical advice and guidance are provided. Disclosure and technical assistance functions are implemented mainly through regional and area offices.

2. Regulations and administrative determinations.—Questions of interpretation are studied; interpretations and regulations are developed. Rules of procedure are developed for conducting hearings, making determinations, and supervising the conduct of elections. Administrative hearings are conducted and elections are supervised. Subpenas are prepared for issuance by the Commissioner. Investigation reports are reviewed to determine adequacy for civil or criminal litigation. Determinations are prepared of violations cases arising under the trusteeship and election provisions of the act.

3. Compliance and enforcement.—Investigations are conducted of complaints alleging violation of the law, and, without complaint, on a sample of reporting units to assure compliance with the reporting and record keeping requirements of the law. An estimated 4,000 cases will be completed in 1964. Included in the program are special investigations in areas where strong evidence exists of persistent willful violations. Technical assistance is rendered concurrently with investigations. Compliance conferences are held in cases of nonwillful violations. These activities operate principally from the Bureau's field offices.

The Division obtains compliance with minimum standards respecting wages, hours, and other employment conditions in industries engaged in interstate commerce and in certain establishments furnishing goods to the Government.

1. Enforcement.—Information media are used to inform employers and employees of their rights and responsibilities under the law. Investigations are made to correct violations and to assist employers in meeting legal requirements and workers in recovering wages due. During 1962 a total of 44,115 establishments were investigated and 212,608 employees were found to be due wages in the amount of $34 million of which employers agreed to pay $16.2 million. In 1963 and 1964, it is anticipated that investigation findings will increase as a result of a larger number of trained investigators being available for enforcement work than available during 1962. In 1964, the higher $1.25 minimum wage standard will apply to employees previously under the $1.15 rate and the 44-hour workweek standard will apply for the first time to employees in retail and other newly covered establishments.

2. Wage determinations.—During 1963 the 29 industries in Puerto Rico that have not reached the statutory minimum rates will be reviewed. In 1964, industry committees will be convened to recommend minimum wage rates under the Fair Labor Standards Act for 7 industries in the Virgin Islands and for 4 industries in American Samoa and to evaluate appeals from the 10% automatic increase in rates effective November 3, 1963, in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Regulations governing special minimum wages for learners, apprentices, messengers, and handicapped workers are being constantly reexamined. It is estimated that 3,200 applications for special minimum wage certificates will be received in 1963 and 3,500 in 1964, as compared to 2,900 in 1962. The wage determinations program under the Walsh-Healey Act will be conducted at a level of 6 determinations in 1963 and 1964.

3. Regulations and research.—Regulations and interpretations are prepared to give effect to the Fair Labor Standards Act. Emphasis will be directed to development and revision of issuances affected by amendments to the act and changes in industry practices. Economic research and analysis and development of statistical data are provided. Economic effects studies required by the 1961 amendments to the Fair Labor Standards Act were completed in 1962. Further studies will be conducted in 1963 and 1964 to provide current data for reports to the Congress and to provide statistical data needed in the consideration of administrative problems and legislative proposals.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Mail volume.—The budget estimates for 1964 are based on expected volume of 70.8 billion pieces of mail, compared to 68.4 billion anticipated for 1963 and 66.5 billion in 1962. The increase in mail volume for 1964 of 3.5% is equivalent to the 2.9% increase anticipated for 1963 after adjusting for the two additional workdays in 1964.

The 1964 forecast includes 37.3 billion first-class letters and cards; 1.8 billion airmail items; 8.6 billion magazines, newspapers, and other publications; 19.4 billion pieces of printed matter and small parcels; and 1.1 billion zone-rate parcels, catalogs, and other fourth-class matter. Comparisons of these and other items of postal workload and related 1964 revenues with corresponding 1963 estimates and 1962 results appear in the table on page 624.

Financing.—Six separate limitations are enacted for the Post Office Department for operation of the postal service and other assigned responsibilities. The limitations apply to the postal fund which is financed by the deposit therein of postal revenues and other receipts and by an appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury for the balance.

Only the appropriation from the general fund to the postal fund (being equal to the excess of obligational authority over revenues and other receipts) is considered new obligational authority for purposes of the Federal budget. Further, only the excess of the Department's disbursements over its receipts (exclusive of the general fund appropriation) are considered as budget expenditures.

The six individual limitations control obligations incurred by the Department and are therefore requested and accounted for in terms of obligations. However, the Department's accounting system provides financial data in terms of accrued costs which distinguish between funded operating expense and capital outlay and disclose all resources on hand, unfunded liabilities, and total costs consumed in postal operations regardless of when and how funded. These data are shown in the budget schedules and reveal more clearly than obligations alone the manner in which the Department is administering all the resources entrusted to it.

The accrual accounts are now also being used as the basis for measuring the overall revenue objectives of the postal service. These objectives were first expressed in law by the Postal Policy Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-426, title I) and have recently been amended by the Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-793, part I). The law provides that postal rates and fees be adjusted as required to produce the amount of revenue approximately equal to the total cost of operating the Postal Establishment less the amount determined to be attributable to the performance of public services (39 U.S.C. 2302(c)(4) as amended). Public Law 87-793 also redefined and expanded the items comprising public services, and, effective 1963, made the determination of amounts a matter of accounting rather than congressional appropriation. The Department is engaged in making cost determinations of public services required by the new law. In the present budget it has been necessary to use preliminary estimates of such amounts for 1963 and 1964.

Following is a summary of fund transactions and estimated revenue objectives (in millions of dollars):

	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Obligations under limitation.....	4,331	4,657	4,977

Net operating loss.....	812	792	529
Attributable to public services.....	-63	-400	-425
Deficiency in postal rates and fees.....	749	392	104

¹ For purposes of comparability, $63 million appropriated to the postal fund from the general fund for public services has been excluded from postal revenues, thereby including this appropriation in new obligational authority and expenditures. This appropriation was discontinued by Public Law 87-793 commencing in 1963.

Transactions outside the postal fund.—Postal money orders issued and cashed, postal savings system, and deposits resulting from U.S. savings bond sales are excluded from the tables of this chapter. The postal money orders outstanding are included in the figure for checks outstanding for the Government in Table 5 of the Budget, and a corresponding sum is included in Treasury cash. Balances for the postal savings system and savings bond sales are included in Part II of this document.

The Postal Policy Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-426) authorized an annual appropriation to the revenues of the Post Office Department of an amount deemed attributable to public services as defined in that act. Public Law 87-793, approved October 11, 1962, eliminated the authorization for such appropriations, and provided that the Postmaster General furnish Congress by February 1 of each year an estimate of the public service costs and losses for that year computed in accordance with a new formula. The exact amounts will subsequently be determined by customary cost ascertainment procedures after the close of the year and are to be deducted from the total costs of the Department for purposes of adjusting postal rates and fees. The first estimate will be for the year ending June 30, 1963.

Revenue from mail and other services of the Post Office Department is placed in the postal fund, which was established as a revolving fund in 1950 (39 U.S.C. 2202). The fund is available for obligation and expenditure by the Post Office Department in accordance with limitations enacted in annual appropriation acts. The fund is also used without annual action by Congress for the purchase of stamp-embossed envelopes and for payment of certain indemnities, claims, and judgments.

Postal revenue comes primarily from private postal patrons. Postal revenue also includes receipts from various Federal agencies for the handling of official mail and the payment by the Congress for franked mail. Reimbursements received for nonpostal services and other recoveries are likewise deposited in the postal fund.

The aggregate of postal revenues is less than the obligations authorized for payment from the postal fund. An indefinite appropriation is made from the general fund of the Treasury to make up the difference. It is estimated that the recently enacted postal rate increases and the proposal for reformatations in the parcel and catalog service submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission will substantially reduce the amount of the appropriation required under the general fund of the Treasury. These revenue gains are partially offset by salary increases amounting to $344 million in 1964 authorized by Public Law 87-793. After taking into account anticipated changes in funded working capital, the net budget expenditures for the postal service for 1964 are estimated to be $554 million.

This appropriation provides for the direction and control of the postal establishment. The budget estimate for 1964 is $85.7 million, an increase of $6 million over 1963 and $14 million over 1962. The postal research and development program, prior to 1963 a part of this appropriation, is now included under the appropriation Research, development, and engineering.

1. Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides for the overall direction and administration of the postal service, including all offices and bureaus at Washington headquarters except the research and engineering staff, and including the money order audit activity at Kansas City, Mo., and Washington, D.C.

This activity also includes claims settled administratively under the Federal Tort Claims Act, the payment of compromise settlements and damage suits, and the reimbursement to Treasury Department for processing of paid money orders. For 1964, the biennial fidelity bond premium of all employees is also included.

2. Field inspection service.—This activity provides for the postal inspection and internal audit services. Postal inspection includes all field investigation and inspection functions pertaining to violation of the postal laws, prevention and detection of mail loss and mistreatment and losses of Government funds and property, field audit of postmasters' accounts, personnel security and suitability investigations, and special surveys and investigations. The internal audit program includes comprehensive reviews and financial audits of activities at the departmental level, regional offices, and other selected field installations.

3. and 4. Regional operation.—This activity provides for direction and administration of postal field activities by 15 regional administration offices under authority delegated from Washington headquarters and the performance of regional financial functions. This does not include the inspection service or field installations of the Bureau of Facilities.

This appropriation provides for the research, development, and engineering programs of the postal establishment. The budget estimate for 1964 is $13.7 million, an increase of $1.6 million over 1963 and $7.1 million over 1962. Prior to 1963, this program was included with the appropriation Administration and regional operation.

1. Direct operations.—This activity provides for the administration of all research, development, and engineering programs of the postal establishment and the conduct of all research, development, and engineering activities not performed under contract.

2. Contract engineering.—This activity provides for contract procurement of engineering services used primarily in the replacement and modernization of facilities and equipment. There is no change in the program level planned for 1964.

3. Contract research and development.—This activity provides for research and development work performed under contract. It includes (a) the design, development, and testing of new postal equipment and materials; (b) development of better work methods, production measurement standards, and manpower utilization systems; and (c) recommendation of general location, functional design, building modifications, layouts, and mechanization requirements of facilities.

Work performed under most research and development contracts runs over a period of more than one year and, because of its nature, is generally done on cost-plus-a-fixed-fee basis. At times the scope is of such magnitude as to require several years for completion. Therefore obligations incurred in any one year are not necessarily indicative of the level of work actually performed. The cost of work actually performed each year is indicated by the funded operating costs shown in parentheses in the program and financing table. In order to provide flexibility required in programming research projects, funds in this appropriation are available until expended and authority to modify cost-type prior year contracts from current funds is provided to the extent of $2 million.

The funds provided in this appropriation pay the personal services and related expenses required to perform the primary function of the Post Office Department—the collecting, sorting, and delivering of mail.

The funds requested for 1964 total $3,960 million, an increase of $258 million over the estimate for 1963. The additional funds will provide the manpower and cover the related expenses necessary to handle the estimated increase of 2.4 billion pieces of mail in 1964, service the additional delivery areas, improve existing services, and cover the pay increases granted by Public Law 87-793.

1. Administration of postal installations.—Services are performed under this activity by postmasters, assistant postmasters, supervisors, and technical personnel. These employees are engaged in the local management and supervision of all postal units. Technical personnel under this activity include accounting, station examiner, medical, safety, and personnel employees.

2. Mail handling and window service.—This activity provides for separation and distribution of mail. It also covers the window service to patrons, operation of contract stations, dispatch control of trucks, and reimbursements to Federal Reserve banks for handling deposits made by postmasters.

It is expected that continued benefits from the mechanization program, the Nationwide Improved Mail Service program, and the work measurement system will enable the increase of 3.5% in mail volume to be handled with an increase of 2.0% in clerical manpower in this activity. This productivity increase of 1.5% is the same as that projected for 1963 and achieved in 1962.

The following table shows a comparison of employment and workload:

3. Collection and delivery service.—This service provides for delivery of mail to residences and business places in cities and their suburbs, collection of mail from over 300,000 street letter boxes and 14,000 building mail chutes in these areas, delivery of mail on rural routes, and delivery of special delivery articles. This service also includes the local pickup and delivery of mail between stations and the post office and other installations. In some instances drivers transport mail between cities. In the tables below, possible stops per man-year worked in 1964 are estimated to increase approximately 1% on a comparable basis after considering the effect of the two extra work-days in 1964.

5. Vehicle service.—This activity provides for the maintenance and operating cost of vehicles used for local collection and delivery of mail and the transport of mail between cities. This includes employment of vehicle mechanics; the purchase of parts, gasoline, oil, tires, and contract maintenance; and the cost of hired vehicles used in lieu of Government-owned vehicles when it is economically advantageous.

This appropriation provides for expenses (other than personal services) of occupying postal facilities, for supplies and certain types of contractual services required by the postal service, and for field personnel assigned to the several field service organizations operated by the Bureau of Facilities.

1. Building occupancy.—This activity provides for rental of postal facilities; costs of communications, fuel, and utilities; one-time payments for improvements to leased buildings, installments on lease-purchase contracts, and the acquisition and resale of sites to lessors under the commercial leasing program. The recoveries from the resale of such land shown under Advances and reimbursements are used for the purchase of additional sites for resale. In addition to the recoveries, $9.5 million for site acquisition is included in the appropriation request for 1964. Increased rental costs result from (a) the acquisition of additional postal space, (b) increased rental rates, and (c) replacement of inadequate or substandard space in Government buildings.

1. Executive direction and policy formulation.—The Secretary is assisted in the formulation of policy and direction of the Department's activities by the appropriate staff officers, specialized offices, and functional bureaus of the Department. The major item of increase is for greater depth and enlarged responsibilities in intelligence and research activities.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES—Continued

2. Conduct of diplomatic and consular relations with foreign countries.—This includes representation of the United States and its citizens abroad, political and economic negotiations and reporting, consular operations, and overseas administrative services. Major items of increase are the establishment of new posts, intensification of efforts to expand U.S. exports, selected staffing increases, and more adequate provision for non-salary expenses. A continued rise in travel abroad is anticipated in 1964 as reflected in the following annual number of passports applied for in the United States:

1961 actual	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
845,856	866,112	977,300	1,100,000

3. Conduct of diplomatic relations with international organizations.—In collaboration with other Government agencies, U.S. policy is developed and coordinated on political and security issues and in such specialized fields as world health, education, labor, and refugee activities. The major item of increase is for a more thorough review and evaluation of the programs and personnel administration of international organizations.

4. Domestic public information and liaison.—This program provides for informing the American public on international policies and also keeping the Department informed on American attitudes relative to foreign policy and issues. The increase is to meet the demands of the public for information on our foreign policy and relations with other countries.

5. Central program services.—These provide personnel and physical security measures, translating and interpreting services, direction and administration of the Foreign Service Institute, and coordination of governmental foreign reporting requirements. The increase is mainly for the expansion of functional and language and area training programs.

6. Administrative and staff activities.—This includes normal domestic administrative activities and the administration of a global communications system for all civilian activities of the Government, including services for other agencies on a reimbursable basis. The major items of increase are for an information retrieval program involving the operation of a computer index and establishment of a special purpose computer file to support policy planning and decision-making, and for additional equipment.

A supplemental appropriation is anticipated for 1963.

The foreign buildings program provides consolidated office space for the Foreign Service and other Government agencies abroad, and living quarters for American employees. This program also finances real property leases of 10 years or more (shorter term leases are included in Salaries and expenses, above), procurement of initial furniture and furnishings and repair, maintenance, and operating costs of these facilities.

The program has been financed primarily through the purchase of foreign currencies held by the Treasury Department resulting from lend-lease settlements, sale of surplus war property, and other sources. Starting in 1961, a separate appropriation for the purchase of foreign currencies, under Public Law 480, increased the resources available to the building program. These supplemental funds are being used principally to acquire capital assets in the form of real property, thereby accelerating the foreign buildings program.

Outmoded or otherwise unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service or other overseas Government operations. Housing is provided American employees in localities where unsuitable housing is all that is available or the housing is substandard in relation to American living standards.

Authority for this program is not permanent, but is expressed in terms of a monetary limitation. The 1961 appropriation exhausted the authority. An interim authorization of $10 million was enacted in 1960. This situation limited appropriations to $10.7 million for 1961 and $10 million each for fiscal years 1962 and 1963, with the result that no significant amount remained for capital assets after providing for the expenses of operating and maintaining present property holdings.

The 1964 request provides for financing only a portion of the backlog of urgently needed buildings, housing, and facilities in all parts of the world. It places particular emphasis on facilities in Africa at many posts which recently have been established or elevated to embassies as a result of the rapid growth of independent national status. The estimate assumes the enactment of legislation authorizing this appropriation.

The 1964 estimate is shown below by geographic area, agency, and function.

The United States contributes its share of the expenses of the United Nations and 8 of its specialized agencies, 7 inter-American organizations, 6 regional organizations, and 10 other organizations.

The increase for the United Nations reflects the costs of the "Decade for Development" program, cost of the initial repayment on the "bond issue," and an increase in the level of the Working Capital Fund, as offset by deletion of the requirement for the United Nations Emergency Force and the offset against the United States assessment of the first repayment on the United States loan to the United Nations.

Other major contribution increases are for (1) the Organization of American States mainly attributable to expanding cultural, economic, and science activities related to the "Alliance for Progress"; (2) the World Health Organization due to inclusion of malaria eradication costs in the regular budget, assistance to new and emerging states, mainly Africa, program expansion and statutory staff costs; (3) the North Atlantic Treaty Organization mainly because of the inclusion of the NATO Science program in the regular budget and for which an offset has been deducted in the foreign assistance appropriation request; (4) the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development due to the inclusion of the operational program previously financed by the predecessor organization of which the United States was not a formal member; (5) the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization due to program expansion in the fields of education and natural sciences and the application of United Nations salary levels; and (6) the International Labor Organization mainly for technical assistance in the fields of vocational training, management development, and rural development, new positions and an increase in new member countries, and the adoption of higher United Nations salary levels.

A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Under existing legislation, 1963.—An additional appropriation of $402,851 will be requested to meet the total U.S. assessment to Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences. This is the result of an increased program and a new formula for calculating assessments which will more than double U.S. contributions to the organization.

In addition, the Council of the Organization of American States, subsequent to hearings held by the House Appropriations Committee on the President's 1963 Budget, approved an assessment budget $653,920 higher than estimated at that time. The U.S. assessment at 66.00% resulted in a requirement $431,587 higher than the amount requested of and appropriated by the Congress.

The request will provide for the preparatory work involved in the extensive tariff negotiations and support of the U.S. delegation at the conference.

1. Rio Grande international dams program.—Preliminary work for the Amistad Dam, the second major international storage dam on the Rio Grande contemplated by the 1944 Water Treaty, was initiated in 1962 and will continue in 1964. Final plans and specifications for the structure will be sufficiently complete to permit award of the initial construction contract in early 1964. The feasibility of including hydroelectric power generating facilities in the project has been established and the 1964 estimates provide for a award of contracts for design of the powerplant and manufacture of turbines and generators.

2. Lower Rio Grande flood control.—Mexico is now investigating the feasibility of control structures on certain of its tributaries to the Lower Rio Grande. Pending completion of these studies, which could permit rectification of the main channel of the Lower Rio Grande and abandonment of interior floodways and levee works, all except certain minor but urgently needed works are being deferred. No funds are requested for 1964, as work will be financed with the unobligated balance of prior year funds.

3. Rio Grande gaging stations.—Improvements to water measurement facilities of the gaging stations on the Rio Grande will continue to be made to provide a higher degree of accuracy in measuring river flows for accounting of national ownership of waters in the river.

4. Douglas-Agua Prieta sanitation project.—The U.S. share of the cost for expanding the Douglas-Agua Prieta international sewage treatment plant is funded in 1964.

5. Nogales sanitation project.—Funds are provided in 1964 to initiate work for expansion of the Nogales international disposal works.

6. Indemnification to the State of New Mexico for loss of bridge.—Payment of a claim, approved by the Attorney General, will be made in 1964 to the State of New Mexico for loss of a bridge.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase securities or make loans (including participations therein and guarantees thereof) to aid in financing projects for civil-defense purposes upon certification by the Secretary of Defense (50 App. U.S.C. 2261, and sec. 104, Reconstruction Finance Corporation Liquidation Act, and Executive order 10952 of July 20, 1961). Investments under the program are limited to a total of $250 million outstanding at any one time.

Budget program.—The sole program cost continues to be the payment of interest on borrowings from Treasury. As of June 30, 1962, there were outstanding $692 thousand in loans and $1,308 thousand in commitments to participate in loans made by banks wherein disbursement of Treasury funds is deferred. It is estimated by the close of 1964 that the loans will be reduced to $547 thousand and the deferred participation commitments to $756 thousand.

No new loans were authorized in 1962 and it is anticipated that there will be no additional loans authorized during 1963 and 1964.

Financing.—Program activities are financed from borrowings from Treasury. The unobligated balance of such authority at the end of 1964 is estimated to increase slightly to $249.1 million.

1. Processing deposits of withheld tax payments.—Employers and certain business enterprises deposit monthly, with designated banks, excise, withheld income, railroad retirement, and withheld social security taxes, to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. The Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the Treasury, issue depository receipts which the employers attach to their returns as evidence of payment of taxes. Of the $1,705 thousand obligations estimated for 1964, $810 thousand will be recovered and credited to miscellaneous receipts by charges against the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and the Federal disability insurance trust fund. The work volume is estimated at 11,642,000 depository receipts in 1963 and 12,282,000 in 1964 as compared with 11,097,407 in 1962. The increase in obligations estimated for 1964 of $146 thousand over 1963 is due to the increase in the estimated volume of receipts, increase in postage rates, and the purchase of additional depository receipts and envelopes.

2. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—This activity includes the maintenance of central accounts of appropriations, receipts and expenditures which provide data for financial statements. It also includes the preparation and publication of financial reports on the Government's fiscal operations, such as the annual Combined Statement of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances; the Monthly Treasury Statement; the Secretary's Annual Report; the Treasury Bulletin; and reports on foreign currencies acquired without payment of dollars. The work volume is estimated at 4,152,825 in 1963 and 4,190,853 in 1964 as compared with 4,115,131 in 1962.

3. Accounting and reporting development and internal audit.—This activity includes furnishing technical accounting advice and assistance to other agencies in relation to central accounting, reporting, disbursing and depository matters; participation in the Government-wide financial management improvement program; performing systems work within the Fiscal Service and the Bureau of Accounts; performing internal audit in the Bureau, and other audits of a departmental character.

4. Processing investments, loans, claims, collections, and surety bonds.—Investments in interest-bearing securities are processed for certain funds, such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the unemployment trust fund, the veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds. The work includes accounting for purchases, sales and redemptions of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, payment of international and other claims, and examination of the financial conditions of companies issuing surety bonds in favor of the United States. The number of transactions is estimated at 72,896 for 1964 as compared with 70,999 in 1963 and 67,765 in 1962.

5. Supervision of the Federal depository system.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through the designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Workload is expected to increase in 1964 as follows:

The Division of Disbursement, through 14 regional offices, makes payments for civilian Federal agencies, except the Post Office Department and certain Government corporations, and issues savings bonds for Federal employees under the payroll savings plan.

The increase in 1964 is due to additional work volume (15.7 million payments), increases in program activities, and salary and postage rate increases. A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

The funds required are determined by multiplying workload by the unit cost as shown in the following tables:

This revolving fund was created as self-insurance to cover losses in shipment of Government property such as coin, currency, securities, certain losses incurred by the Post Office Department, and losses in connection with the redemption of savings bonds (5 U.S.C. 134). Since these claims are only partially offset by recoveries, the net losses have gradually increased to $1,019 thousand as of June 30, 1962, and are expected to increase to $1,551 thousand by June 30, 1963. It is estimated that the creation of this fund has resulted in a savings of over $106 million of insurance premiums on shipments of Government property.

A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to provide effective and just administration of the tax laws of the United States. The Service, as the principal revenue collecting agency of the Federal Government, collected $99.4 billion in 1962, an increase of $5 billion over 1961. The number of tax returns filed has reached a new record of 96.4 million.

To cope with this increased workload, and the further annual increases expected, and at the same time raise the level of enforcement and voluntary public compliance, the Service is committed to a long-range plan, first begun in 1961. The 1964 recommendation provides funds to continue the increase in enforcement personnel and to continue the conversion to an integrated automatic data processing system. The recommendation includes provision for expenses that will be incurred by the Service's effort to raise voluntary taxpayer compliance through increasing taxpayer education and assistance. It includes the cost of instituting a Taxpayer Compliance Measurement system to identify the size and causes of various kinds of non-compliance, so that the Service can better devise effective ways to improve compliance and can concentrate its resources on the principal non-compliance areas.

The funds requested will allow a significant increase in the quality and volume of work accomplishment. Following are brief explanations and tables of the anticipated effect of these funds on each activity:

1. Rulings, technical planning, and special technical services.—This activity of the Service interprets statutory provisions; issues rulings; prepares regulations and Treasury decisions; develops tax return forms and taxpayer instructions; conducts continuing research on tax loopholes, inequities and related problems and drafts remedial legislation for Treasury consideration; provides special technical services; and assists in negotiation of treaties with foreign governments.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies all major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of U.S. currency and Federal Reserve notes, certificates of indebtedness, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage, internal revenue, customs and savings stamps. In addition, the Bureau prints bonds, commissions, certificates, etc. The Bureau also prints postage and internal revenue stamps for the various territories administered by the United States.

The Bureau finances its operations out of reimbursements received from other agencies for all direct and indirect costs, including administrative expenses (31 U.S.C. 181-181e).

Budget program.—The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing—(a) Currency.—The anticipated deliveries reflect an overall increase of 9.1% in 1963 and 2.2% in 1964 as compared with deliveries made in 1962. Analysis of this increase by type of currency reflects a reduction in requirements for U.S. currency of 8.8% in 1963 and a decrease of 3.8% in 1964. Requirements for Federal Reserve notes increase 44.2% in the current year and 14% in the budget year.

(b) Stamps.—Estimated requirements for this class of work which comprises primarily postage and internal revenue stamps reflect an increase of 3.3% in 1963 and a decrease of 2.3% in 1964 over 1962. The rise in the requirements for the current year and the drop in the budget year is due principally to changes in the demand for postage stamps in those years.

(c) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of the Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government. The anticipated requirements of the agencies reflect a decrease of 3.4% in 1963 and 2% in 1964 over 1962.

(d) Commissions, certificates, etc.—The estimated requirements of the various agencies in 1963 and 1964 for this type work indicate a substantial decrease in the number of units to be produced primarily as a result of completion of a special project performed for the Department of Defense during 1962. The production cost for these miscellaneous type items to be produced during the current and budget years represents a very small portion of the overall engraving and printing program.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—Charges are made to other agencies on an actual cost basis for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Operating results and financial condition.—Bureau operations during 1962 resulted in a profit of $24 thousand. This amount will be retained to partially offset an accumulative loss of $88 thousand incurred in prior years. The remaining deficit of $64 thousand will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years, in accordance with provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181-181e. Budget expenditures are expected to be below receipts in the amount of $500 thousand in 1963 and to exceed receipts by $1,751 thousand in 1964.

The capital of the fund is expected to remain at $25.3 million represented by an appropriation of $3.3 million and donated assets of $22 million.

The Coast Guard enforces maritime law, provides limited security of ports and waterfront facilities, saves life and property, provides navigational aids to maritime commerce in navigable waters, promotes the safety of the American Merchant Marine, and maintains a state of military readiness to serve as a part of the Navy in time of war or national emergency.

Direct program—1. Vessel operations.—Multifunctional vessels are strategically stationed along the coast and inland waterways for search and rescue; tending aids to navigation; operating an international ice observation and patrol service in the North Atlantic Ocean; performing limited icebreaking in navigable lakes, rivers, canals, and harbors; for law enforcement; and, beginning in 1964, for operating the ocean station program.

3. Shore stations and aids operations.—Bases, moorings, and lifeboat stations are strategically situated for search, rescue, and law enforcement, and for maintaining aids to navigation. Port Security units control anchorage areas; supervise the loading and unloading of dangerous cargoes; and screen merchant seamen and longshoremen to bar subversive elements from merchant vessels and critical waterfront areas.

Buoys, lightships, lighthouses, fog signal stations, light attendant stations, radiobeacons, and loran stations are maintained as navigational aids in the waters of the United States, its possessions, and military bases overseas. Radio stations provide rapid communication incident to all Coast Guard operations. They also maintain a guard on the international maritime distress frequencies. Marine inspection offices and detachments administer laws and issue regulations on safety equipment and inspection of merchant vessels, and on licensing and certification of Merchant Marine officers and crews. They review plans for construction or alteration of merchant vessels, investigate marine accidents, and handle disciplinary cases. These offices also administer the small-boat safety program.

4. Repair and supply facilities.—Thirteen repair and 11 supply facilities are maintained at strategic points for support of Coast Guard operating units. Also, 2 facilities are maintained for testing, developing, and adapting material for safer and more effective Coast Guard use.

5. Training and recruiting facilities.—This activity includes the Coast Guard Academy for the training of cadets, recruiting stations, training units for recruits and petty officers, and outside training programs.

8. Supporting programs.—This activity consists of procurement of ammunition and small arms; replacement of vehicles, boats, and electronic equipment; transportation of materials; and printing. These programs have such general applicability that they cannot properly be charged to specific units.

A supplemental appropriation for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Reimbursable program—9. Operation of ocean stations.—The operation of 6 ocean stations (4 in the Atlantic and 2 in the Pacific), on the basis of 3 cutters per station, is financed by the Department of Defense as defense requirement. These vessels perform the dual function of ocean station duty and search and rescue. This item will be discontinued in 1964 as a reimbursable program and will be a direct charge to Coast Guard.

10. Miscellaneous services to other accounts.—Various activities of the Coast Guard are financed by other agencies. They include, in part, operation of 1 vessel for the U.S. Information Agency.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, rebuilding, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, shore facilities and aids to navigation.

Direct program—1. Vessels.—A program to replace overage, obsolete, and deteriorated vessels of the Coast Guard was begun in 1960. The program will be continued in 1964 with construction of 1 high-endurance cutter, 3 medium patrol craft, 1 medium-sized coastal tender, and 5 small inland tenders. The program also provides 2 additional river tenders with associated facilities for servicing aids to navigation on the Missouri River. Finally, the program under this activity provides for the installation of secure communications equipment, TACAN (tactical air navigation), and oceanographic observation equipment on Coast Guard vessels.

2. Aviation facilities.—Under this activity, the program provides for the acquisition of 7 replacement helicopters and 5 additional helicopters, and for extension of ground support facilities at existing Coast Guard aviation units. Funds are also requested for establishment of an air detachment at Astoria, Oreg., with 2 helicopters. The program further provides for the 3rd phase of construction for a replacement air station at Boston, Mass., and for relocation of the air station at Miami, Fla. Finally, public quarters will be constructed at Air Station, Annette Island, Alaska.

3. Shore stations and navigational aids.—The program under this activity provides for the establishment of and changes to aids to navigation to mark river and harbor improvements effected by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, to provide aids to support classified Department of Defense projects, and other urgent needs. Projects are included to: (a) reconstruct facilities at Guam severely damaged by typhoon Karen; (b) improve facilities at 5 light stations, 1 lifeboat station and 2 moorings; (c) combine Loran A and C operations at 1 location; (d) construct a microwave tower and laboratory; and (e) establish search and rescue station at Brookings, Oreg. Finally, this program provides for rebuilding the primary radio station at Miami, Fla., and for preliminary survey and design for future projects.

4. Repair and supply facilities.—Facilities at 3 bases will be improved and a new gantry crane procured for the Coast Guard Yard under this activity.

5. Training and recruiting facilities.—The program of extension and improvement of facilities at the Coast Guard Academy will be continued under this program. Also, the city water main will be extended to the training center at Yorktown, Va., and a new boiler plant constructed at the receiving center at Cape May, N.J.

Reimbursable program—6. Loran to meet Department of Defense requirements.—This program is accomplished by the Coast Guard with reimbursement from the Department of Defense. The 1964 program contemplates reimbursement of $20.5 million for the construction and equipping of 5 new stations, 4 monitor stations, and support facilities.

This appropriation provides for retired pay of military personnel of the Coast Guard and Coast Guard Reserve, members of the former Lighthouse and Lifesaving Services, and for annuities payable to beneficiaries of retired military personnel under the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan (10 U.S.C. 1431-1446).

Members are added to and removed from the rolls each month. The average numbers on the rolls will rise again in 1964 and will continue to rise in future years. The actual number on the rolls at the end of 1962 was 9,923 and the number estimated to be on the rolls at the end of 1963 and 1964 is 10,235 and 10,568, respectively. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1962 compared with estimated numbers for 1963 and 1964.

Under the provisions of the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan, retired Coast Guard military personnel who elect to receive reduced amounts of retired pay may provide for monthly payments to their survivors. Current appropriation requirements are reduced by the net savings realized, and the liability for future payments is not funded. The net savings resulting from reductions in retired pay in excess of survivors' benefits payments are (in thousands of dollars):

Purpose.—The Coast Guard Reserve is designed to provide a trained implementing force of 39,600 officers and enlisted personnel in the Ready Reserve, available for active duty in time of war or national emergency and at such times as the national security requires, to fill the needs of the Coast Guard.

Training.—The Coast Guard Reserve training program is organized into categories compatible with the required phases of mobilization. The first or primary category is organized to provide trained units and personnel for specific assignments or tasks within 15 days of the outset of mobilization. This program provides 48 paid drills each being of at least 2 hours duration, and 2 weeks active duty for training for personnel who are assigned to organized training units and who occupy positions that require continued training in critical specialties, in order to maintain a high standard of proficiency for unit or specific mobilization assignments. The second category is designed to provide specialized training to additional individuals, scheduled for early mobilization, in nonpay units and/or 15 to 30 days periodic active duty for training. The third category is comprised of personnel scheduled for mobilization within 6 months of the outset of mobilization who, due to previous training either in units or on active duty, and in some cases whose civilian occupations are closely allied to their military specialties, do not require frequent training.

Program.—The proposed program for 1964 will provide a total of 26,150 officers and enlisted personnel in all categories of the Ready Reserve by the end of the year.

Direct program by activities—1. Trainee expense.—The program for 1963 provides for an increase from 17,394 to 18,709 in the number of reservists to receive training of the types required for mobilization purposes. The program for 1964 provides for an increase in the number of trainees to receive training from 18,709 to 19,141. However, the man-days will increase from 1,289,411 to 1,364,533 by the adoption of a sustaining program which requires a greater percentage of personnel to participate in active duty for training. The increase by category allows for additional active duty for training from 185,370 man-days in 1963 to 212,265 in 1964.

The Coast Guard supply fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing, commissary provisions, general stores, and technical materials. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Costs of approximately $17.2 million to be incurred under this fund in 1963 are divided 15% for uniform clothing, 63% for commissary provisions, 22% for general stores and technical materials.

Sales are expected to be $1,217 thousand more in 1963 than the 1962 actual and $1,497 thousand more in 1964 than 1962. Sales in 1964 are expected to exceed 1963 sales by $280 thousand. This increase in sales is attributable to the rise in number of personnel to be maintained and rise in cost of provisions.

It is expected that purchases will exceed sales by $200 thousand which, in addition to the profit of $50 thousand from re-evaluation of clothing inventories to new 1 July 1962 prices, will raise the inventory level by $250 thousand. The $200 thousand increase in general stores inventory is attributable to a planned increase in stocking level of all general stores type material plus increased stocks of engine parts.

The Commission procures raw materials; manufactures special nuclear materials and atomic weapons; develops improved weapons; conducts research and development aimed at generation of atomic power and protection of health against possible hazards arising from atomic energy operations; conducts investigations in the physical and life sciences related to atomic energy, including investigation of controlled thermonuclear reactions; conducts research and development in civilian applications of isotopes and nuclear explosives; establishes and enforces regulations for civilian uses of atomic energy; promotes industrial participation in atomic energy development for peaceful purposes; encourages scientific and industrial progress through the dissemination of atomic energy information; and participates in programs of international cooperation in peaceful applications of atomic energy.

The program is administered through field offices. Most of the Commission's activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts. Coordination with the armed services is achieved through the Military Liaison Committee of the Department of Defense.

Total program costs in 1964 are estimated at $2,479.9 million or $88.4 million less than the estimated 1963 costs of $2,568.3 million, and $60.1 million greater than actual costs of $2,419.8 million for 1962. In 1964, increases are provided for: development of reactors and the civilian application of nuclear explosives, the use of isotopes, research in the physical and biomedical sciences, and for broadening the base of nuclear technology. These increases are more than offset by a reduction in costs for the procurement of uranium concentrates due to the scheduled decline in procurement and anticipated deferrals in domestic procurement deliveries of 2,500 tons until 1967 and 1968.

In 1964, as in 1963, total program obligations will exceed program costs, the difference being obligations incurred for costs which will not materialize until future years. Total program obligations for operating expenses in 1964 are estimated to be $2,516 million compared to $2,725.7 million in 1963 and $2,367.8 million in 1962.

Costs by program set forth in the program and financing schedule do not include costs of capital equipment previously budgeted in 1962 and 1963 under this appropriation. Amounts for such capital equipment are being budgeted in 1964 under the appropriation Plant and capital equipment and the comparable amounts for 1962 and 1963 are shown under that appropriation. 1962 and 1963 costs for such capital equipment are $140.3 million and $158.2 million, respectively.

The schedule of costs by activity does not include depreciation charges for the years covered by the budget; in total these are as follows: 1962, $289 million; 1963 estimate, $299 million; 1964 estimate, $315 million.

1. Raw materials.—Uranium concentrates are procured for processing in the production facilities of the Commission. An estimated 19,985 tons of concentrates, of which 13,875 tons will come from domestic sources, will be obtained in 1964. This is a decrease of 8,015 tons from the 28,000 tons estimated to be procured in 1963, in accordance with existing contractual commitments and the anticipated stretch-out of deliveries from domestic sources currently being negotiated. Procurement in 1962 was 29,362 tons.

2. Special nuclear materials.—Uranium concentrates are processed into feed materials from which plutonium is produced in the reactors at Hanford, Wash., and Savannah River, S.C., and the isotope uranium 235 is extracted in plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of special nuclear materials will be at rates required to meet weapons production schedules and nonweapons requirements. Work will continue on process improvements to assure continuity and safety of operation and more economical methods of production.

3. Weapons.—The program encompasses the production of weapons; the maintenance of stockpiled weapons in a state of constant readiness; the design, development and test of new weapon types; and participation with the Department of Defense in the development of test detection methods.

4. Reactor development.—This program includes primarily the development of (a) civilian power reactors leading to reliable and economic power, including general reactor work on fuel element development and related technology, (b) power and propulsion reactors for a variety of military and space applications, (c) commercial ship reactors, (d) advanced reactor systems, and (e) a program of nuclear safety. The Commission's civilian power reactor program establishes a foundation of technical knowledge through a program of research and development on promising reactor concepts; design, fabrication, and operation of power reactor experiments; the development of experimental reactors; and development of conceptual designs for prototype powerplants.

Costs of $15 million will be incurred for the power demonstration reactor program assistance whereby the Commission provides financial aid in development of full-scale power reactors built by private utilities and for public power bodies. This aid provides a basis for a privately financed nuclear power industry.

The Euratom program provides for research and development under a joint program with the European Atomic Energy Community, for which $15 million has been appropriated through 1963. Authorization for an appropriation of an additional $7.5 million is being requested in 1964.

The Commission's program in cooperation with the Maritime Administration comprises continuation of experimental operation and improvement of the powerplant of the N.S. Savannah in 1964.

Efforts will be continued to develop reactors to meet requirements of Department of Defense, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and other Government agencies. These include propulsion reactors for submarines, surface combatant ships, space rockets (Project Rover), transportable power reactors for the generation of electric power and heat at remote military installations, and small power sources for satellites and other special purpose applications (Project SNAP.) Work to develop a full scale experimental reactor for possible application to ramjet propulsion will be completed during 1964. The principal increases are for Project Rover and Project SNAP. In Project Rover, the NERVA program to develop a nuclear rocket engine will be increased, and work will begin on the development of larger rocket engines. In Project SNAP, the program to develop a high power system for application to large communication satellites, reconnaissance systems, and space probes will be continued. This program will use basically the technology to be developed from the high-temperature lithium-cooled reactor experiment. In addition the power reactor systems program will increase to permit development of flight units to meet other agency requirements. In the development of Army Power Reactors, effort will be increased on the development of a new military compact reactor.

To provide broad support primarily for civilian power reactor projects, the Commission conducts research in general reactor technology, which includes general research and development on materials, components, moderators, control techniques, fuel elements, spent fuels reprocessing and waste processing. A portion of this work is also applicable to military and space oriented reactor development programs.

The Commission's advanced reactor systems research and development program is devoted to the development of experimental reactors and research and development on promising advanced reactor concepts.

In its nuclear safety program, the Commission conducts investigations related to nuclear safety problems which have general application. The increase includes provision for the testing of simulated SNAP devices and purchase of flight vehicles required for aerospace safety environmental research and development.

The Commission also operates the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho, including two test reactors which provide irradiation services for the Commission's programs.

The cost categories in the table above may be recapitulated to indicate approximately the relative efforts placed on central station civilian atomic power applications, outer space applications, military program applications, and all other applications. This comparison is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Development and support related primarily to civilian nuclear power.....	158,277	162,135	178,155

5. Physical research.—This program is directed toward basic and applied research relevant to the Commission's responsibilities for the development, use, and control of nuclear energy. Within this framework investigations are undertaken in the fields of physics, chemistry, metallurgy and materials, and controlled thermonuclear research. By major category, the costs are (in thousands of dollars):

Category:	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
High energy physics.....	53,458	63,022	84,648
Low energy physics.....	19,907	19,637	25,354
Other physics and mathematics research..	7,791	8,503	11,147
Chemistry research.....	37,510	42,092	49,365
Metallurgy and materials research.....	17,359	19,726	24,313
Controlled thermonuclear research (Project Sherwood).....	23,602	24,690	23,750
Basic nuclear engineering.....	-----	-----	500
Total physical research.....	159,627	182,670	219,077

Research in high energy physics continues to expand as new accelerators, on which construction was initiated in prior years, phase into full operation. The increase in low energy physics is primarily due to the operation of research tools acquired in prior years. Increased work in mathematic and computer-related techniques will cause a rise in other physics and mathematics research. Chemistry and metallurgical research, aimed at advancing basic knowledge in these fields of science and developing such knowledge for practical operations of the atomic energy program, increase primarily to include operation of large new research tools. Controlled thermonuclear research, directed toward ultimate production of power from the controlled fusion of heavy hydrogen nuclei, continues at slightly less than the 1963 level. Basic nuclear engineering is intended to fill an existing gap between basic scientific research and classical engineering. The work will be done largely in areas which are traditionally treated as engineering problems.

Approximately 75% of the physical research program is conducted at 14 laboratories and installations owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder, comprising approximately 570 research projects, is supported in more than 150 universities, colleges, institutes, and independent laboratories.

6. Biology and medicine.—Research is conducted on the effects of radiation on living things. It includes investigations of the biological effects of radioactivity in the body and the development of methods for minimizing exposure to radioactive materials of all kinds and for minimizing and protecting against the injurious effects of radiation. Support is given to the development of methods of utilizing radioactive materials for human welfare and for the diagnosis, treatment, and understanding of human diseases, such as cancer. Evaluation of the significance of human exposure to radioactivity from all sources is given special emphasis. Studies being carried out include the measurement of radioactive byproducts (including fall-out), their concentrations, redistribution, and mechanisms of translocation in the atmosphere, soils, fresh waters, oceans, and biosphere proper. Research provides the basis for establishment of standards to insure that the Commission's activities are conducted with safety.

The major portion of the research is carried on at 17 laboratories which are owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder, comprising approximately 620 research projects, is supported in more than 250 universities, colleges, hospitals, and independent laboratories. The program includes the operation of several facilities in the United States devoted to cancer research and, through the National Academy of Sciences, in Japan for the determination of long-term effects of atomic bomb radiation on the affected population.

7. Training, education, and information.—This activity includes operation of special schools; conduct of specialized courses; granting of graduate and post doctoral fellowships; assistance to colleges and universities; and dissemination of technical information, including participation in international conferences and exhibits on nuclear science and technology.

Two schools will be operated in 1964: The International Institute of Nuclear Science and Engineering at the Argonne National Laboratory and the Puerto Rico Nuclear Training Center. Specialized courses are conducted at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies. Specialized courses including reactor hazards and supervision instruction will be offered at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory. Tuition charges depend on the type of training provided.

Under the fellowship program in 1964, approximately 174 college graduates, compared to 181 in 1963 and 154 in 1962, will receive fellowships for graduate studies in nuclear science and engineering. In 1964, 120 fellowships will be offered in the fields of radiological physics, industrial hygiene and industrial medicine, which compares to 97 fellowships in these fields in 1963 and 101 in 1962. Assistance to schools to provide for educational programs in nuclear science and engineering will be continued. Grants are made to universities to help them acquire nuclear training equipment, teaching aids, demonstration apparatus, and special laboratory equipment. University summer and academic year courses in radiobiology are made available to high school and university science teachers. Special training in the nuclear aspects of the engineering, life, and physical sciences for university faculty members is provided.

In order to assist the States in the implementation of Public Law 86-373, which authorizes the Commission to transfer certain regulatory functions to the States and also authorizes related training activities, training courses and on the job orientation at headquarters have been established in radiation safety, radiological health protection, waste disposal, etc., for State and local government employees. No tuition charges are made for these courses.

To broaden the dissemination of information on matters relating to atomic energy, the Commission operates the Technical Information Services, maintains libraries, performs translation services, and operates traveling atomic energy exhibits. The Commission arranges for nuclear exhibits at selected foreign conferences and exhibitions in order to demonstrate U.S. technology. The program includes funds for the Commission's participation in the third international (Geneva) conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy scheduled in 1964.

8. Civilian applications of isotopes and nuclear explosives—Isotopes.—This program is designed to extend the development of new technology necessary for widespread use of radioisotopes and high level radiation. Emphasis is given to development of large scale economic uses of fission product wastes arising from nuclear reactor operation. Effort is also directed to development of nuclear technology for solution of major national problems in meteorology, seismology, control of environmental pollution, and water resources development. A growing element of this program is the use of radiation for food "pasteurization." Another increasingly important area is the development of isotopic power and heat sources for space and terrestrial needs.

Nuclear explosives.—This program (Plowshare) provides for the investigation and development of peaceful uses for nuclear explosives. Emphasis will be placed on the development of a nuclear excavation technology, including tests in large-scale earth moving. In addition, a test will be conducted to explore the scientific potential of underground explosions.

9. Communities.—Although legislation has been enacted to terminate Government ownership of the town of Los Alamos, N. Mex., over a period of the next few years, the program estimate of $10.1 million includes $7.3 million for operation of the town because the Atomic Energy Commission will continue to operate the community through 1964. The remaining $2.8 million is for assistance payments to the former Atomic Energy Commission communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., in accordance with the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955. Operating revenues at Los Alamos (budgeted under revenues applied) are estimated at $5.8 million.

10. Program direction and administration.—This program includes the salaries and other costs for employees of the Federal Government engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision of the atomic energy program; the negotiation and administration of contracts; establishment and enforcement of regulations for civilian uses of atomic energy; and other related administrative activities. Employees under this program are located in the Washington headquarters and in field offices. The 1964 increase of $8.4 million is related principally to costs resulting from the provisions of the Postal Service and Federal Employees Salary Act of 1963, Public Law 87-793, and to increase in staff provided for in 1964.

11. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1954 requires background investigations of those persons proposed for access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of full background investigations to be requested in 1964 is estimated at 20,250 compared with 21,500 for 1963 and 21,871 for 1962.

12. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objectives of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954 concerning utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, the Commission furnishes materials and services, apart from those which it provides normally for its own basic programs, to industrial organizations and other private parties. Costs for these are incurred only upon the request of others. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under advances and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenue applied) and are applied as a source of funds, thereby reducing the amount of appropriations required. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

This appropriation provides for the construction of plants and facilities and for the acquisition of capital equipment, all required for the production, research and development, and supporting programs of the Atomic Energy Commission. Of the new obligational authority of $420.2 million being requested for 1964, $45.3 million is applicable to construction projects previously authorized by the Congress; $208.3 million applies to construction projects for which new authorization will be required in 1964; and the balance of $166.6 million is required for the acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction projects. The provision for capital equipment in this appropriation, beginning with 1964, is in accordance with the intention expressed by the Appropriations Committee of the House to consider amounts for this purpose as part of the capital appropriation. Amounts appropriated for equipment for 1962 and 1963 are shown under application determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Not to exceed 5 per centum of appropriations made available for the fiscal year [1963] 1964 for "Operating expenses" and ["Plant acquisition and construction"] "Plant and capital equipment" may be transferred between such appropriations, but neither such appropriation, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be increased by more than 5 per centum by any such transfers, and any such transfers shall be reported promptly to the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate.

No part of any appropriation herein shall be used to confer a fellowship on any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence or with respect to whom the Commission finds, upon investigation and report by the Civil Service Commission on the character, associations, and loyalty of whom, that reasonable grounds exist for belief that such person is disloyal to the Government of the United States: Provided, That any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence and accepts employment or a fellowship the salary, wages, stipend, grant, or expenses for which are paid from any appropriation contained herein shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law. 1. Traffic management.—This activity covers the operation on a daily 24-hour basis of a national system of air traffic management in the United States and its possessions. With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 33 centers monitor and control enroute flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 273 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 348 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other essential information to pilots and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. Major increases in 1964 are for (a) operating newly commissioned air traffic control facilities procured and installed with funds appropriated under Facilities and equipment, (b) funding of certain aircraft movement information services formerly budgeted by the Department of Defense, and (c) full-year cost of facilities and services operated on a part-year basis in 1963.

3. Administration of flight standards program.—This activity covers the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies that meet safety or competency requirements. Certain civil and military facility flight inspection functions are also included in this activity. Increases in 1964 are primarily for (a) strengthening enforcement of air safety regulations and (b) full-year cost of services financed on a part-year basis in 1963.

4. Administration of medical standards.—This activity covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of a health and medical program for Agency personnel; the administration of an aviation medical research program, the project costs of which are financed under Research and development; and the operation of the Civil Aeromedical Research Institute building.

5. Research direction.—This activity covers (a) the direction and administration of the research and development program, the direct project costs of which are financed under the Research and development appropriation and (b) administrative support for the operation of the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center at Atlantic City, N.J.

6. Administration of airport program.—This activity includes costs of preparing the annual National airport plan; development of airport planning, design and construction standards; planning and engineering advisory services; administration of the Federal-aid airport program; assuring compliance of public agencies with the provisions of agreements relating to airports, and promoting safety at the Nation's airports. Increases in 1964 expand the civil airport ground safety program.

Under this appropriation, the Federal airways system is being improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities. In addition, the appropriation finances major capital items required by other agency programs. These items include aircraft for facility flight inspection and experimental facilities for the research and development program. The 1964 estimate will carry forward the program to increase the capacity of the airways system and to make its operations more efficient and safe. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed by the appropriation entitled Operations.

1. Air traffic control centers.—(a) Long-range radar aids enroute air traffic control by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 185 miles. (b) Automation equipment covers computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling air traffic. (c) Other center facilities cover the installation of equipment to provide the required communications and additional services.

2. Airport traffic control towers.—(a) Terminal area radar aids traffic control near airports by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 60 miles. (b) Other tower facilities covers the establishment, improvement, and relocation of airport traffic control tower facilities.

3. Flight service stations.—(a) Domestic flight service stations include the structures, communications, and other equipment used to relay traffic control information and to provide other flight assistance to pilots. (b) International flight service stations include structures, long-distance communications, and other equipment for providing flight assistance and controlling traffic over trans-oceanic international routes.

4. Air navigation facilities.—(a) VORTAC covers the installation of standard short-range navigation aids which define airways and routes and provide pilots distance and direction. (b) Low/medium frequency facilities include radio beacons and ranges which provide pilots with direction information and define certain airways. (c) Instrument landing systems covers the installation of electronic devices which provide pilots with direction, distance, and glide slope information for making approaches to runways under poor visibility conditions. (d) Approach lighting systems covers the installation of lighting to assist the pilot making final approaches to airport runways. (e) Intermediate fields are emergency landing areas provided on certain air routes in areas where public airports are not available.

5. Aircraft and related equipment.—(a) Facility flight inspection covers aircraft and avionics equipment to flight inspect the accuracy and other characteristics of navigation and traffic control aids; (b) Training covers aircraft used to provide flight training and to maintain the proficiency of operations inspectors; (c) Research support covers aircraft used in research, experimentation, development and test of navigation aids and other airways equipment; and (d) Logistic and administrative aircraft are used to provide logistic support for remote facilities and for use by Agency officials.

6. Research, test, and evaluation facilities.—This activity supports the acquisition of equipment for general purpose use in the research and development program, construction and improvement of facilities at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center, and purchase of pre-production prototype models of equipment for operational evaluation. The 1964 program includes funds to begin construction of permanent facilities to house operations at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center which is located at Atlantic City, N.J.

7. Housing, utilities, and miscellaneous facilities.—This includes support facilities and items not covered elsewhere.

The Federal Airport Act, as amended in 1955, provided for contract authorization of $42.5 million for 1956 and $63 million for each of the succeeding years 1957 through 1961. These authorizations continued a program of grants to public agencies to assist them in the development and improvement of a national system of airports to serve civil aviation. It is estimated that an appropriation of $20 million will be required for 1964 to liquidate obligations incurred under these contract authorizations.

Public Law 87-255, approved September 20, 1961, further amended the Federal Airport Act to provide for funding of grants through direct appropriations rather than contract authority. Appropriations proposed pursuant to these authorizations are shown under heading Grants-in-aid for airports. The narrative statement for that account includes data on the total airport grant program financed by both contract authorization and direct appropriations.

【GRANTS-IN-AID FOR AIRPORTS】

【For an additional amount for grants-in-aid for airports pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Airport Act, as amended, $75,000,000, to remain available until expended, as follows: for the purposes of section 5(d)(1) of such Act, $66,500,000 for the fiscal year 1964; for the purposes of section 5(d)(2) of such Act, $1,500,000 for the fiscal year 1964; and for the purposes of section 5(d)(3) of such Act, $7,000,000 for the fiscal year 1964.】 (49 U.S.C. 1101-1106, 1108-1119; Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1963.)

Under the Federal Airport Act, grants are made to public agencies to aid the development and improvement of public airports. These grants generally cover 50% of project costs and are limited to facilities deemed essential under criteria of safety, convenience, and efficiency. Contract authorizations were provided for this program through 1961. These authorizations together with the appropriations to liquidate obligations incurred under the authorizations are reflected in the schedules for Grants-in-aid for airports (liquidation of contract authorization).

Public Law 87-255 amended the Federal Airport Act to provide appropriation authorization of $75 million for each of the years 1962, 1963, and 1964. This account covers those appropriations.

The following table summarizes activity under both the contract authority and the new program which is funded by direct appropriations (dollars in millions):

The Second Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1962 appropriated $75 million for 1962 and also 1963. The 1963 Independent Offices Appropriation Act appropriated $75 million to become available at the beginning of 1964 to fully finance the present three year authorization.

Legislation will be proposed to extend this program.

Proposed for separate transmittal:

Legislation is recommended to continue the program of grants-in-aid for the construction and improvement of public airports. Appropriation authorizations of $75 million are recommended for each of the years 1965, 1966, and 1967. In line with the procedure contemplated by the 1961 Federal Airport Act amendments, an advance appropriation of $75 million for 1965 is proposed for separate transmittal in order to give local communities adequate time to plan airport improvement projects.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

The Federal Aviation Agency carries out a program to improve and modernize the national system of aviation facilities through the development of new systems, procedures, and devices. The Agency also carries out a program of medical research to aid in the development of rules and regulations governing the certification of airmen and to assure aviation safety.

Research and development is conducted through contracts with qualified firms, universities, and individuals, or by agency staff or other governmental agencies. The data, procedures, or equipment resulting from this program are tested and evaluated to determine their potential value in meeting air traffic control and navigation needs.

Supervision and administrative support costs for the research and development program financed by this appropriation are covered by the Operations appropriation. Costs of acquiring experimental facilities and major equipment for the research program are included in the Facilities and equipment appropriation.

1. Air traffic control and navigation.—This provides for improving the airways system by applying existing technology to air traffic control and navigation problems and by long-range research and development to meet future needs. Studies of present airways system operations and future requirements and work in the fields of data processing and display, data acquisition, communications, navigation, and landing systems are included.

2. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to develop devices and improve techniques for the communication and display of weather information to aviation users. The effects of weather on air traffic management techniques and systems are also analyzed.

3. Aircraft safety.—This activity provides for a program, coordinated with the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to study, research, develop and evaluate devices to enhance the safety of aircraft by providing a sound basis for airworthiness standards and safety regulations.

4. Airports.—This provides for research and experimentation to establish criteria for designing airports. Development and test of equipment located on the airport will also be continued.

5. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting an aeromedical research effort directed toward the identification and elimination of those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize safety in flight.

This appropriation finances management, operation, maintenance, and capital equipment costs at the federally owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports, which serve the National Capital area. The 1964 estimate provides for increasing service and maintenance requirements, chiefly at the Dulles Airport which was opened for public use in November 1962.

Direct operating costs and capital outlays of the airports are currently financed by direct appropriations with revenues derived from services to tenants and other users being deposited in the Treasury. Legislation is recommended to establish a National Capital Airports Corporation to operate the airports. Under this legislation, the airports would be operated on a business-type basis, with airport revenues being available to cover operating costs.

The financial statements reflect results of the total operations at the two airports. Unfunded depreciation and interest on all assets are computed on a basis comparable to that used by other major municipal airports. Actual and unrealized revenue are both shown. The latter represents landing fees for Government aircraft and rent for office and hangar space used by Government agencies for which no collections are made.

Although the Washington National Airport is operating at a profit, the two airports combined will show deficits during the next few years when traffic volume will be relatively low at Dulles International Airport. However, the rate structures at the airports are on a basis that will assure the recovery of operating costs, interest expenses, and an appropriate return on the Government's investment during each airport's useful life.

This appropriation finances modernization, expansion, and development programs at the federally owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports.

The 1964 estimate provides chiefly for major runway improvements at Washington National Airport and additional mobile lounges for the Dulles Airport. All outlays for physical improvements are added to the capital investment and will be subsequently recovered through charges to the tenants and users of the airports.

The construction of the Dulles Airport was financed by the appropriation Construction and development, additional Washington airport, for which no further appropriation will be needed.

The Federal Aviation Agency is conducting a two-year program of research and development to determine whether the construction of a safe and economical commercial supersonic transport aircraft is technically feasible. The Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration are cooperating in this effort. It is expected that sufficient information will be assembled in 1963 to serve as a basis for determining whether further Government-supported research and development on such an aircraft would be in the National interest.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $1,392 thousand; (1962 adjustments, —$56 thousand); 1962, $514 thousand; 1963, $550 thousand; 1964, $660 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the basic real property operations of General Services Administration, including the acquisition, operation, maintenance, protection and utilization of general-purpose buildings and space; and overall direction of buildings design, construction, repair and modernization.

The appropriation request for 1964 is a net increase of $22,511 thousand above a comparable amount for 1963. The 1963 amount includes proposed transfers of $9,904 thousand for costs of expansion space acquired in 1962 and 1963, not provided for in GSA's 1963 budget. Also included is an estimate of $1,554 thousand anticipated for later transmittal for full-year costs of 1962 wage board rate increases effected between September 17, 1961, and June 30, 1962. The net increase for 1964 includes $110 thousand for full-year costs of wage board increases effected July 1 through September 15, 1962, but does not include increases effected subsequent to September 15, 1962.

The net increase of $22,511 thousand provides primarily for partial restoration of services to minimum level provided in 1962; management and operation of new Federal buildings scheduled for occupancy in 1963 and 1964; increased rental rates and utility costs; full-year costs of rent and operation of additional leased space acquired during 1963 for other agencies with funds transferred from those agencies to cover the part-year costs; increase in space management to carry out objectives of Executive Order 11035; offset by credits due to new construction.

Continuing the policy established in 1962, fund requirements are not included in this estimate for the rental and operation of additional leased space to be acquired during 1964 to support expanding programs of Federal agencies of the Executive Branch, but are included in estimates of the other agencies.

2. Space management.—This activity provides for (a) acquisition of real property by lease, purchase, exchange, or donation, including appraisal and management of building sites pending construction, (b) assignment and reassignment of Government-owned and leased space; and (c) review, analysis, and determination of Federal space requirements and the development of programs and projects for fulfillment.

3. Design and construction.—This activity provides for a small staff responsible for overall direction of programs involving design, construction, and remodeling of Federal buildings.

4. Program planning.—This activity provides technical guidance for Public Buildings Service real property programs in program planning, management information systems, analysis and evaluation, and policy development.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $27,777 thousand; (1962 adjustments, -$264 thousand); 1962, $30,256 thousand; 1963, $33,028 thousand; 1964, $35,528 thousand.

This appropriation provides for maintaining, repairing, remodeling, improving and other alterations in federally-owned buildings under the jurisdiction of the General Services Administration for these purposes, except extensions and conversions estimated to cost $200 thousand or more. The budget for 1964 provides for continuation of the long-range program initiated in 1957, to alleviate deterioration and obsolescence of buildings which adversely affect efficient operations of occupying agencies.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1962, $37 thousand; 1963, $28 thousand; 1964, $28 thousand.

1. Maintenance repair and small improvements.—Normal needs for day-to-day repairs and minor improvements and renovations to buildings and equipment are programed at a rate of about $0.21 per net square foot. About 3.3% of the activity provides for minor capitalized items too small to be considered as renovation projects.

2. Major repairs and improvements.—Elimination of major obsolescence and deterioration of buildings is provided by bringing the properties up to modern standards of usefulness. It is estimated that about 33% of this work will be for capital improvements.

3. Air conditioning.—Improvements in working conditions are provided for occupants of buildings located in areas of high temperature and humidity. Costs except for amounts required for replacement of worn-out portions of systems and design and engineering supervision under this activity are considered to be capital improvements.

4. Program direction.—Overall direction and program development are provided under this activity. Except for a nominal sum required for purchases of office equipment the total is considered to be operating costs.

SITES AND EXPENSES, PUBLIC BUILDINGS PROJECTS—Continued

This appropriation provides for preliminary planning of public buildings, acquisition of sites, preparation of drawings and specifications, supervision of construction, and related costs incident to projects approved under the Public Buildings Act of 1959. Costs of improvements are financed from Construction, public buildings projects.

The estimate of $41.1 million for 1964 provides for design starts including acquisition of sites, where necessary, for approximately 77 additional projects involving improvement costs in the magnitude of $184 million. Prospectuses for these projects have been developed for submission to congressional public works committees under provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1959. Continued administration of other projects will be financed out of funds previously appropriated.

1. Site acquisition.—Acquisition of sites, including cost of appraisals.

2. Design and supervision.—Preparation of drawings and specifications, by contract or otherwise; technical services; soil surveys and tests; reproduction of plans and specifications; and supervision of construction, by contract or otherwise.

4. Program development.—Preliminary development of projects, by contract or otherwise, and program direction, not distributed to specific projects. Costs for 1964 are entirely financed from prior appropriations under Sites and expenses, public buildings projects.

A supplemental estimate is anticipated for separate transmittal in 1963.

Improvements of private hospital facilities in the District of Columbia are made under legislation authorizing appropriation of $41,105 thousand.

1. Construction.—Under appropriations of $23,410 thousand a new hospital center was physically completed and occupied during 1958.

2. Grants.—Under appropriations of $17,320 thousand, grants totaling $13,994 thousand have been approved for private agencies in the District of Columbia for improving existing hospital facilities on which building costs are estimated at $34,200 thousand. It is anticipated that the balance of the grant program will be accomplished in 1963 with the payment to the Greater Southeast Community Hospital Foundation for construction of new hospital facilities in southeast Washington. A supplemental estimate for 1963 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Approximately $7,000 thousand is to be reimbursed by the District of Columbia over a period of years.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, building management activities consisting of: Management, rental, operation, and protection of Government-owned and leased space in and outside the District of Columbia for housing Federal agencies; recurring repairs to Government-owned space under jurisdiction of General Services Administration; operation of joint-use communication facilities; protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties; and maintenance and repair of sites or improvements thereon reserved for future construction of Federal buildings, including operation of space occupied by commercial tenants; and other related building services (66 Stat. 594). Retained earnings resulting from operations, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Operating costs for 1964 are estimated at $374.5 million, a net increase of $37.5 million over 1963, due mainly to net additional space to be serviced and an increase in operation of communication facilities.

1. Buildings management—(a) Operation and protection of Government-owned space.—Provides for operation and protection of 119.4 million average square feet of space in 1964 compared to 113 million average square feet in 1963 and 103.4 million average square feet in 1962. The change from 1963 reflects net additional space to be serviced due to construction of new buildings, buildings being vacated by the Post Office Department, and certain buildings being transferred to GSA for operation and protection.

(b) Rental, operation, and protection of leased space.—Provides for 42.5 million average square feet in 1964 compared to 40.6 million average square feet in 1963 and 37 million average square feet in 1962, based on currently projected programs of Federal agencies.

(c) Operation and protection of purchase contract space.—Provides for 1.3 million average square feet in 1964 with no change from 1963.

2. Moving and space alterations.—Provides for minimum of moving and related alterations based on experience factors derived from buildings management operations.

3. Temporary space and moving costs incident to new buildings.—Provides rents, alterations, etc., incident to setting up temporary quarters for agencies that must be moved to make way for demolition due to construction and moving agencies into temporary space or completed buildings.

4. Operation of communication facilities.—Provides for operation of telecommunication services and facilities for use of Federal agencies which will be transferred effective July 1, 1963, to the new Federal Telecommunications Fund established by Public Law 87-847, approved Oct. 23, 1962. A supplemental to provide initial capital for this fund is included in the budget as an item proposed for separate transmittal in the section for Transportation and Communications Service.

5. Protection and maintenance, surplus properties.—Provides for protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties.

6. Maintenance repairs.—Provides for day-to-day maintenance to GSA operated buildings, Public Health Service facilities and other Government buildings under jurisdiction of General Services Administration.

7. Security guarding.—Provides extra guarding service for other agencies where specifically authorized by law.

8. Operation and maintenance of sites held for future construction.—Provides for maintenance and repairs of sites or improvements thereon reserved for future construction of Federal buildings, and operation of space occupied by commercial tenants.

9. Job order work.—Provides for special services and improvements to buildings for General Services Administration and other agencies, including work for the Post Office Department in connection with its modernization program.

10. Other.—Provides for program supervision of repair and improvement operations as distinguished from architectural and design activities initially financed from the Construction services fund, utility services furnished in the District of Columbia to buildings operated by other agencies and utilities to concessionaires.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1962 the net investment in the fund was $0.5 million, composed of $3.5 million appropriated, $5 million capitalized assets, $1.2 million retained earnings, less $9.2 million unfunded leave liability.

Construction service activities consisting of surveys and test borings performed in connection with the acquisition of Federal building sites; preparation of drawings and specifications for the construction or alteration of public buildings; supervision of construction and alteration activities; and other related services are financed by this fund on a reimbursable basis from funds appropriated, transferred, or advanced to General Services Administration (40 U.S.C. 296).

Operations.—Initial financing of salaries and related expenses of all personnel engaged in architectural and engineering services in connection with buildings design and construction, both departmental and field, is provided. Increases for 1963 and 1964 support the GSA public building construction program, expansion of the repair and improvement program, and additional workload in connection with projects assigned to GSA by other Federal agencies.

Operating results.—Retained earnings will be reduced in 1963 to approximately $100 thousand and maintained at that level.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $597 thousand (1962 adjustments, -$150 thousand); 1962, $942 thousand; 1963, $876 thousand; 1964, $1,007 thousand.

This appropriation provides for (1) establishment of efficient supply management practices throughout the Federal Government and (2) expenses of operating a worldwide supply system through which common-use commodities are sold to Government agencies and cost-type contractors from depot stocks, or by direct delivery from suppliers, whichever is more economical. Except for customer orders placed directly with suppliers under Federal Supply schedule contracts, most of the purchases of commodities are financed initially from the General supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Wherever economical and feasible, costs of commodities furnished directly from suppliers are paid directly from funds of the requisitioning agency without involving the General supply fund.

The budget includes an item for separate transmittal for 1963 to provide $2,925 thousand for increased stores item sales. The increase for 1964 is due primarily to increased reliance on the General Services Administration by the Department of Defense for supply support for common-use items.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by General Services Administration is as follows: 1962, $143 thousand; 1963, $97 thousand; 1964, $121 thousand.

1. Supply operations—(a) Supply distribution.—Stocks of common-use commodities are received, warehoused, and issued at cost to Federal agencies through a nationwide system of supply depots. Stores stock sales reflect a continuous increase as follows:

STORES STOCK SALES

[In millions]

	1959	1960	1961	1962	1963	1964
Gross sales.....	151.3	160.5	190.5	238.8	296.4	364.0
Excluding transportation costs to the ultimate point of deliveries...	145.5	154.3	183.2	229.6	285.0	350.0

Included in this activity are space and related costs as follows: 1962, $3.6 million; 1963, $5.1 million; and 1964, $5.9 million.

(b) Buying operations.—Commodities are procured to maintain inventories at stores depots to insure availability in advance of sales orders and for direct delivery to agencies. Term contracts for common-use commodities and services are established for large aggregate volume requirements against which agencies place individual orders at uniform price advantages. Total procurement in 1964 is estimated at $1,480 million, compared to $1,349 million in 1963 and actual purchases of $1,187.9 million in 1962.

2. Standards and quality control—(a) Supply standards.—Standards of quality and other characteristics of common-use commodities are established by specifications, qualified products lists, and uniform item identifications for mandatory use by Government agencies. The estimated workload for 1963 and 1964 is based primarily on the expanded supply support program of General Services Administration. The cataloging program results in establishing a uniform identification for each item of supply and establishes a basis for expanding supply support by the General Services Administration once the commonality of the items is determined.

(b) Quality control.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection at contractor's plants or supply depots, by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance.

3. Procurement policy and supply coordination.—Policies and regulations are promulgated to establish uniform and simplified procurement practices and to improve supply operations throughout the Government. The Federal Procurement Regulations System is administered under this program and orderly transfers of supply functions are arranged. Federal agencies are also assisted in the installation of improved supply procedures.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by the using agencies are operations of interagency motor vehicle pools established in areas of high vehicle density.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for continued increases in sales to the military under the program for progressively expanding use of these supply facilities by Department of Defense, and a slight increase in sales to civilian agencies. Activations of additional interagency motor vehicle pools in 1963 are also reflected.

Supply operations.—(a) Stores, stock.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for issue to Government agencies. Sales for 1963 and 1964 include mark-up of 4% for transportation to use points. Sales reached an alltime high of $229.6 million in 1962 and are estimated to increase to $296.4 million in 1963 and $364 million in 1964.

(b) Stores, direct deliveries.—Stores orders, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply and delivered directly to the customer. Sales were $34.8 million in 1962, and are estimated to increase to $47 million in 1963 and $66 million in 1964.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to customer agencies. Sales through the fund are estimated to increase from $139.2 million in 1962 to $156.9 million in 1963 and $166 million in 1964.

Export packing.—Stores and nonstores items are packed for shipment to overseas destinations. Receipts from this operation are expected to increase from $10.7 million in 1962 to $16.5 million in 1963 and $22 million in 1964.

Equipment rental.—Operating equipment necessary to carry out the supply operation activity is acquired and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Collections from using activities are expected to increase slightly through 1964.

Rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment.—Furniture and equipment repair services, provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical, are estimated to increase from $2.2 million in 1962 to $4.9 million in 1963 and $5.3 million in 1964.

Motor pools.—Services are supplied to agencies through a system of interagency motor pools, still under development, to serve areas of high vehicle density. Sales are estimated to increase from $20.9 million in 1962 to $24.3 million in 1963 and $25.1 million in 1964 due to activation of additional motor pools and increased service requested by customer agencies. The number of pools in operation is estimated to increase from 66 in 1962 to 75 in 1963. No future pools are contemplated at this time during 1964.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1964 is estimated at $232.3 million, consisting of $207.7 million in direct appropriations, $21.1 million donated assets (motor vehicles $12.8 million, inventory items $8.3 million), $0.6 million capitalized surplus, and retained earnings of $3 million with $0.1 million deducted for long-term leave liability. The estimates reflect $30 million to be requested in a supplemental appropriation in 1963 and $35 million requested for appropriation in 1964, required for continued expansion in warehouse and motor pool sales, equipment investment, and improvement of service to customer agencies.

Additional donated assets arising from transfers of motor vehicles from other agencies upon establishment of interagency motor equipment pools will be capitalized in the fund. Also to be capitalized is the value of inventories to be transferred from the Department of Defense as supply support for common-use commodities is assumed by GSA.

Any operating surplus, as determined by General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Payments so made in 1963 were $5.3 million and it is estimated that $3 million will be returned in 1964.

This fund was established to account for expenses incurred rendering procurement aid to the Agency for International Development, successor to the International Cooperation Administration (22 U.S.C. 1782). Earnings credited to the fund were derived from mutually agreed upon advances based on program workload received. Beginning with 1961, provision was made to finance these expenses from appropriated funds.

The unpaid obligations have been liquidated in 1962 and the unobligated balance has been returned to the surplus fund of the Treasury.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $22 thousand; (1962 adjustments, $2 thousand); 1962, $37 thousand; 1963, $68 thousand; 1964, $68 thousand.

This appropriation, derived from proceeds from the transfer of excess property and the disposal of surplus property, provides for all utilization and disposal functions of the General Services Administration with respect to excess and surplus real and personal property and the rehabilitation of personal property to be performed by the Utilization and Disposal Service, except fees of auctioneers, brokers, etc., which are financed through a special account.

Increases for 1964 provide for further emphasis on re-use or prompt disposal of existing real and personal property to obviate new capital and procurement outlays. Income from disposal activities in 1962 was $72.2 million, and is estimated to increase to $80.5 million in 1963, and $87 million in 1964.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1962, $12 thousand; 1963, $14 thousand; and 1964, $9 thousand.

1. Real property.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties; (b) protection and maintenance of excess, surplus, and national industrial reserve properties; and (c) payments in lieu of taxes on certain properties as required by law. The increase for 1964 is directly related to the current program of phasing out various military installations over a period of years and provides for utilization transfers of 145 properties in 1964 as compared to 140 in 1963 and sale of 385 surplus properties in 1964 as compared to 375 in 1963.

2. Personal property.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of usable excess personal property, thereby obviating new purchases; (b) sale of surplus personal property; and (c) rehabilitation of personal property. The increase for 1964 provides for screening of excess inventories held by contractors with the Department of Defense and extending sales responsibility to cover the remaining civil agencies not now served. Utilization transfers at acquisition cost were $362.7 million in 1962 and are estimated at $400 million in 1963 and $435 million in 1964. Proceeds from sale of surplus personal property were $6.4 million in 1962 and are programmed at $12.5 million in 1963 and $14 million in 1964.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $300 thousand (1962 adjustments, -$35 thousand); 1962, $220 thousand; 1963, $220 thousand; 1964, $220 thousand.

This appropriation provides for basic operations of the General Services Administration which deal with management of the Government's archives and records, including custody and administration of permanent records in the National Archives and other noncurrent records in Federal records centers, assistance to records management programs of Government agencies, operation of presidential libraries, and filing and publication of Federal laws and regulations. The estimate for 1964 is $562 thousand more than 1963 financing, $285 thousand of which is for records management assistance and records center activities.

In 1964 records in custody of the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 8,200,000 cubic feet. Reference services will total 5,400,000.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1962, $85 thousand; 1963, $63 thousand; 1964, $58 thousand.

1. Records management and centers.—Records of Federal agencies which must be retained for a period of time, but are not needed for frequent reference, are brought into and administered in regional Federal records centers serving specified geographical areas. National centers at St. Louis administer records of veterans of the armed services and records of former civilian employees of the Government, and maintain a locator file for civilians currently employed. In addition to civilian agencies, records center facilities are now furnished to the entire Naval Establishment, the Army, and Air Force at the seat of Government, and for selected Army records throughout the world.

The workload in Federal records centers is shown in the following table:

The Defense Materials Service acquires and administers national stockpile inventories pursuant to the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, and has custody of the supplemental stockpile established by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954. Programs are administered in accordance with guidelines established by the Office of Emergency Planning. This Service also administers the inventory of machine tools and industrial manufacturing equipment established under the National Industrial Reserve Act of 1948. The Department of Defense makes selections for the reserve and provides program guidance.

The 1964 obligational program of $28.1 million is to provide $1.2 million for new material acquisition and upgrading of existing materials required to meet stockpiling objectives, $22.2 million for inventory management and rotation of material subject to deterioration, $1.5 million for national industrial equipment reserve activities, and $3.2 million operating expenses. Increases in 1964 are provided for all activities except National industrial equipment reserve.

In arriving at requirements to meet stockpile objectives, all U.S. Government inventories of strategic materials in GSA custody are taken into account. Data below

Maximum objectives are valued at $4,299 million. June 30, 1962, prices have been used.

(b) Upgrading materials.—Stockpile materials are upgraded to more usable forms in order to provide a minimum readiness inventory of materials in forms suitable for immediate use to meet the initial surge of demand and abnormal conditions of intensive mobilization.

Payment for all processing costs will be made by transfer of excess materials to contractors. The estimate covers only transportation and handling cost involved in upgrading.

2. Inventory management.—Covers cost of maintaining materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles so that they will be available for immediate use in an emergency, including rotation, storage, special preservation, and disposal of materials no longer required for stockpile objectives.

The acquisition cost of these inventories is as follows (in millions of dollars):

	1962 actual	1964 estimate
National stockpile	6,049.6	5,700.2
U.S. supplemental stockpile	1,141.1	1,427.6
Total national and supplemental	7,190.7	7,127.8

(a) Rotation of materials.—Perishable materials in the national stockpile are rotated when their usability becomes impaired for essential emergency requirements. Cordage fibers are the only materials to be rotated in 1964. Rotation costs and sales are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Gross replacement costs of materials rotated	13,411	-----	7,096
Rotation sales	10,355	-----	5,860
Net cost to Government	3,056	-----	1,236

(b) Storage of materials.—Strategic and critical materials were stored at 208 locations as of June 30, 1962, utilizing approximately 24 million square feet of closed storage; 66 million square feet of open storage; and 2 million barrels of tank storage. The number of storage locations was reduced to 173 as of August 1, 1962, due to the transfer of surplus cotton to the Department of Agriculture. Materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles totaled approximately 40.7 million tons on June 30, 1962, and it is expected that approximately 3.5 million tons a year will be added to the supplemental stockpile in 1963 and 1964. Distribution of storage costs is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Recurring storage costs	10,031	9,582	9,806
Non-recurring storage costs	1,673	1,098	2,000
Relocation transportation and handling	37	340	1,071
Total cost or estimate	11,741	11,020	12,877

(c) Disposal of materials.—Covers handling and transportation expenses incurred in connection with the disposal of materials no longer required for stockpile objectives.

[In thousands of dollars]

	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Total cost or estimate	688	1,382	2,300

Disposals on a commitment basis from the national stockpile in 1962 totaled approximately $47.7 million for about 150,000 short tons of materials, including rubber, coconut oil, magnesium scrap, quinine, palm oil, and silk waste.

As of June 30, 1962, a total of over 700,000 short tons of excess materials in the national stockpile was available for disposal under approved disposal plans. The estimates for transportation and handling expenses incurred in effecting disposals are based upon projected disposals of $113 million in 1963 and $138 million in 1964. They do not, of necessity, take into consideration changes in stockpile policy which may result from studies currently being made by the executive branch and the Congress.

3. National industrial equipment reserve.—The reserve of Government-owned machine tools and other industrial manufacturing equipment authorized by the National Industrial Reserve Act of 1948 consists entirely of items selected by the Secretary of Defense from lists of such property declared excess to the needs of the three military departments and other executive agencies.

Items in the national industrial equipment reserve are intended primarily for expansion in an emergency of defense-supporting industries such as manufacturers of ball bearings, gears, tools, and dies, and machine tools. Each of the military departments also maintains a reserve of production equipment for current and mobilization requirements of direct military contractors and producers specifically designated as mobilization suppliers.

In accordance with Department of Defense estimates for total selections for the national industrial equipment reserve from excess declarations of production equipment, budget estimates are based on selection rates of 1,000 items in 1963 and 800 items in 1964.

During 1961 and 1962, the Department of Defense authorized and General Services Administration entered into 12 and 38 loan agreements, respectively, with vocational schools for equipment in the national industrial equipment reserve where such loans are in the interest of national defense.

4. Operating expenses.—Covers all expenses at the central and regional office levels for administering programs financed under this appropriation head including the Defense Materials Service and the integrated staff offices of General Services Administration. The change in total workload in 1964 from 1963 will be limited, with staffing and related expenses holding at minimum requirements.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by General Services Administration is as follows: 1962, $78 thousand; 1963, $262 thousand; 1964, $242 thousand.

Guarantees are given on loans made by public or private financing institutions, including Federal Reserve banks, to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Upon demand of lending institutions the Government is required to purchase the guaranteed percentage of the loan or the Government may elect to make a voluntary purchase of the guaranteed percentage. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use, although such action has not been necessary to date. Net earnings have been retained to meet possible future losses (50 U.S.C. App. 2091).

As of June 30, 1962, there were no General Services Administration loan guarantees outstanding and none are contemplated in the future. Therefore, the cumulative net earnings of $6.3 million will be paid into the Treasury in fiscal year 1963.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1961, $223 thousand (1962 adjustment, -$23 thousand); 1962, $285 thousand; 1963, $385 thousand; 1964, $485 thousand.

This management fund provides services on a centralized and integrated basis for all General Services Administration programs:

1. Customary staff services.—(a) Financial management consisting of accounting, budget, audit, credit, insurance, and related financial services. (b) Management services consisting of compliance and security, systems and procedures, and related management and office services. (c) Manpower resources consisting of personnel, fair employment, manpower utilization, and educational institutes. (d) Staff direction. (e) Legal services.

2. Automatic data processing services.—Unified automatic data processing services are provided as required for all GSA program operations through service centers in each of 10 regional offices. Financing for these services is derived as follows:

Services	Sources of funds
1. Customary staff services.....	Subject to limitation: Deposits from appropriations under the Independent Offices Appropriation Act for 1964, for GSA programs only. Not subject to limitation: Reimbursements (payments) from appropriations and funds not included in the I.O.A. Act for 1964.
2. Automatic data processing services.....	Not subject to limitation: Reimbursements (payments) for services rendered to: a. CSA program appropriations included in the I.O.A. Act for 1964. b. Other appropriations and funds not included in the I.O.A. Act for 1964.

The accounting and record keeping system used in allocating costs among the various programs serviced through this fund has been approved by the General Accounting Office. The system recognizes the emergence of automatic data processing as a service operation inherently distinct from customary staff services and requiring separate project budgeting and financing treatment. However, for accounting convenience, ADP is financed through this fund instead of through a separate revolving fund.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by General Services Administration is as follows: 1962, $40 thousand; 1963, $41 thousand; 1964, $43 thousand.

Estimated amounts available for 1964 from the various sources and comparable data for 1962 and 1963 are (in thousands of dollars):

Central blueprinting, photostating, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund pending reimbursements (40 U.S.C. 293). To meet the needs of General Services Administration and other Federal agencies, the Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, authorized the establishment of four field printing plants in GSA regional offices in addition to the plant in Washington, D.C. These printing plants and all reproduction and distribution services provided by GSA at its regional offices and other field locations are financed through this fund.

Operating results.—Surplus earnings are deposited into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Through June 30, 1962, a total of $87 thousand had been deposited, and it is estimated that $45 thousand and $17 thousand will be deposited in 1963 and 1964, respectively.

Planning grants are made to State and local governments and to official metropolitan area planning bodies for two-thirds of the estimated cost of urban planning or three-fourths of such cost in those cities, municipalities or counties located in redevelopment areas designated pursuant to the Area Redevelopment Act of 1961 (75 Stat. 47). The program is designed to assist such jurisdictions to solve the planning problems resulting from the increasing concentration of population, to encourage them to establish and improve planning staffs, and to facilitate comprehensive planning for urban development on a continuing basis, including open-space land and urban transportation planning.

Grants are increasingly being made to State, metropolitan, and regional planning agencies to meet the complex problems caused by greater urbanization. Although grants continue to be made to State planning agencies for the provision of planning assistance to communities under 50,000 population, such assistance no longer constitutes the bulk of the program as in prior years. Grants are authorized also to be made directly to cities, other municipalities, and counties in redevelopment areas regardless of community size.

For 1964, this appropriation will finance administrative expenses necessary for the support of mass transportation activities. These activities are designed to find ways to meet the growing urban transportation problem and to assist localities in their efforts to improve urban transportation systems. The programs authorized by the Housing Act of 1961 (42 U.S.C. 1453 and 1492) cover: (1) grants which defray up to two-thirds of the costs of mass transportation demonstration projects that are designed to assist in carrying out urban transportation plans and research and (2) direct loans to States and other non-Federal public agencies to finance the acquisition, construction, and rehabilitation of facilities and equipment for use in urban mass transportation service.

A separate appropriation, described below, is proposed for 1964 to liquidate the remaining $5 million in demonstration grant contracts authorized by the Housing Act of 1961. The budget anticipates extension of the loan program beyond its present termination date of June 30, 1963, and the enactment of a more extensive program of urban transportation assistance, also described below.

MASS TRANSPORTATION DEMONSTRATION GRANTS

For grants in connection with mass transportation demonstration projects, as authorized by section 103(b) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1453), $5,000,000.

Grants which defray up to two-thirds of the costs of mass transportation demonstration projects are authorized by the Housing Act of 1961. These grants are designed to assist in carrying out urban transportation plans and research. The funds from this appropriation, which are transferred to the urban renewal fund, will finance the liquidation of $5 million in demonstration grant contract obligations projected for 1964. Prior year liquidating appropriations were provided from mass transportation loans and grants, shown above.

Grants to State and local public bodies to help finance acquisition or permanent interest in undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land in urban areas useful for park, recreation, conservation, historic, or scenic purposes are authorized by title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 (42 U.S.C. 1500). The program is designed to assist public bodies in taking prompt action to preserve as open space that land essential to economic and otherwise desirable long-range urban development, which will also curb urban sprawl and prevent the spread of urban blight and deterioration.

Grants up to 20% of the land cost may be provided or up to 30% if the public body exercises or participates in the exercise of open-space responsibility for all or a substantial portion of an urban area. Safeguards are provided to prohibit subsequent conversion of open-space land to other uses.

A program of $50 million is currently authorized and it is estimated that this amount will be almost fully appropriated and obligated by the end of 1964. The budget estimate for administrative expenses includes funds for technical assistance and studies as authorized by section 705 of the Housing Act of 1961.

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1749-1749d) provides for direct long-term loans at low interest rates to assist institutions of higher education in the development of housing and related facilities for students and faculty, and to hospitals for housing facilities for nurses and interns. The program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization. Under the Housing Act of 1961, the authorization—currently $2,275 million—will increase in increments of $300 million each in 1964 and 1965. Interest rates are based on a statutory formula and are limited to the higher of either 2.75% or 0.25% above the average interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations forming part of the Federal debt. The 1963 rate is 3½%.

Budget program.—Net loan reservations are estimated at $300 million for the current year and $300 million for the budget year. A fund reservation is made after approval of an application filed to determine general eligibility and feasibility of a project. The reservation assures availability of loan funds to the applicant at the completion of agency review of the loan application. The following table shows funds available and net reservations issued (in thousands of dollars):

Reservations are converted into loan contracts after detailed planning, filing of a full loan application, and agency review. Principal workload items are set forth in the following table:

After execution of the contracts, the institutions proceed with final plans and specifications, award of construction contracts, and preparation of bond indentures.

Financing.—Bond purchases are estimated at $400 million in the current year and $304 million in the budget year. Purchase of bonds ordinarily occurs when construction is well advanced. Disbursements are based on the following projected construction schedule:

Direct long-term loans for financing construction of specific public works are authorized to be extended to municipalities and other subdivisions and instrumentalities of States and to Indian tribes by the Housing Amendments of 1955, as amended. In addition, loans for the provision of mass transportation facilities are authorized by the Housing Act of 1961, as amended, through the current year (42 U.S.C. 1491–92).

The loan program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization aggregating $650 million, of which $50 million is available solely for mass transportation facilities. The basic program for public facilities extends priority in processing to small municipalities under 10,000 population for water, sewerage, and gas distribution systems if the communities are unable to market their obligations in the private market at reasonable rates. Loans may be provided also to larger communities up to 50,000; the limit is 150,000 in redevelopment areas as designated by the Area Redevelopment Administration and in areas where the National Aeronautics and Space Administration maintains research or development installations. Loans are also authorized to be made to communities in correlation with the grant program authorized by the Public Works Acceleration Act without regard to the size of the community. Public facility loans may run for as long as 40 years and are secured by tax exempt revenue or general obligation bonds. Interest rates are based on a statutory formula and are limited to the higher of either 3% or 0.50% above the average interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations forming part of the Federal debt. The 1963 rate is 3¼% for regular public facility loan projects and 3½% for projects in redevelopment areas.

Budget program.—Public facility loan approvals are estimated at $100 million for the current year and $125 million for the budget year; for transportation facility loans, approvals are estimated at $12.5 million in the current year and $13.5 million in the budget year. The following table shows the relationship of this program to available funds (in thousands of dollars):

Financing.—Budgetary expenditures for the program, including transportation facility loans, total $70.8 million and $88.6 million for 1963 and 1964, respectively. At the end of the budget year, outstanding Treasury notes are estimated at $220 million.

Operating results.—The cumulative deficit at the end of 1964 is estimated at $9.5 million of which $6.3 million represents an allowance for losses.

Interest-free advances to States, municipalities, local public agencies, and metropolitan areas and regions for the planning of local public works are authorized by the Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 462), as amended. The program is designed to (1) encourage the preparation and maintenance of a current and adequate reserve of planned public works which can readily be placed under construction, and (2) promote economy and efficiency in planning and building public works.

Advances are made only if the project is planned to be constructed within a reasonable period of time—considering the nature of the project. Projects must be in conformity with applicable State, regional, and local development plans. The following table shows funds available for approval of advances during the budget period (in thousands of dollars):

Advances are repayable when construction commences on the project, except that such repayment is waived when construction is initiated as a result of a grant made in accordance with the Public Works Acceleration Act (76 Stat. 541).

Financing.—The program is financed by an authorized revolving fund of $58 million of which $56 million has been appropriated to date. The budget program anticipates legislation to authorize additional appropriations.

Operating results.—The cumulative deficit at the end of 1964 is estimated at $14.7 million of which $13.6 million represents an allowance for losses.

The Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1955, established a single revolving fund for the more efficient liquidation of a number of Housing and Home Finance Agency programs as well as any other programs that may be transferred by legislation.

At June 30, 1962, the assets remaining to be liquidated consisted of loans, advances, installment sales contracts and related assets having a net asset value of $19.2 million and properties with a net value of $0.5 million. The budget program centers on the accounting, servicing, and collection pertaining to these assets. Cumulative repayments to Treasury will total $890 million by the end of the budget year. URBAN RENEWAL

Federal assistance to local governments for acquisition, clearance, redevelopment, and rehabilitation of slums and blighted areas was authorized by the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1453). Federal grants may defray two-thirds of the net project cost, except in cities with a population of less than 50,000 (or 150,000 if located in a "redevelopment area" as designated by the Area Redevelopment Administration) where the Federal share is three-fourths for projects approved after June 30, 1961.

The authorization to make contracts for urban renewal grants now totals $4 billion. Temporary project financing and long-term financing of land disposed of under lease agreements through direct or guaranteed loans are provided from a Treasury borrowing authorization of $1 billion.

Before Federal assistance is extended, a community is required to develop a workable program for community improvement, which is a community-wide plan of action utilizing local resources, both public and private, to eliminate and prevent slums and blight and to foster local development. Acceptable programs are certified by the Administrator for 1 year. Annual recertification, based on demonstrated satisfactory progress, is required for continued eligibility for additional Federal assistance. The budget is based on the following volume of workable program activity:

Since the grant program covers almost all Government program costs, the program and financing schedule for grants and an outline of associated activities are presented first. A similar schedule, discussion of the loan assistance portion of the program, and combined financial statements for the entire program follow.

Budget program.—New reservations and increases in existing reservations will total $655 million in 1964, including $5 million for urban mass transportation grants. An administrative reservation of contract authority for grants is made at the time of approval of each urban renewal project, community renewal program, urban renewal or mass transportation demonstration, and for relocation payments.

1. Projects.—Urban renewal projects are usually approved for grant reservation at the beginning of the planning period. In the case of general neighborhood renewal plans, which cover a larger or more complex area from which more than one project is expected to develop, reservations are made for the first project when approval is initially given for preparation of the overall plan. The reservation assures the availability of grant assistance when it is needed after the substantial community activity required for planning an urban renewal project. The following table reflects planning activity for urban renewal projects:

	Cumulative as of June 30, 1961	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate

Planning completed.....	517	97	104	200
Planning in process, end of year.....	285	384	494	516

When a project is ready to enter the execution phase, a loan and grant contract is drawn between the community and the Housing and Home Finance Agency. In addition to a statement of the community's responsibility for carrying out the project in accordance with the general plan, the contract provides for progress grant payments based on extent of performance and for Federal or federally guaranteed lending for working capital. The number of projects in execution is shown in the following table:

	Cumulative as of June 30, 1961	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Projects approved for loan and grant.....	528	101	110	206
Projects completed.....	57	24	44	70
Projects active, end of year.....	471	548	614	750

2. Relocation.—Grants also are provided to reimburse the community for relocation payments made to families and businesses displaced from urban renewal areas, including actual direct losses of property not otherwise compensated for. A maximum of $200 per family and the actual certified costs, not in excess of $25 thousand per business, are allowable.

3. Urban renewal demonstration.—Grants up to two-thirds of the total cost of demonstration projects are available to public bodies. A demonstration project may involve the development and testing of new or improved methods of blight prevention and elimination, together with an analysis and report of the demonstration. These reports are published to help guide renewal programs in other cities.

4. Community renewal.—Federal grants are available to pay up to two-thirds of the cost incurred in preparing a local community renewal program covering the full range of urban renewal action required to meet needs on a city-wide basis. All the deteriorated and deteriorating areas of the city can be identified and classified as to the relative urgency and degree of urban renewal action needed. The locality's resources for taking urban renewal action can be established, and the community can develop a long-range program for urban renewal, including provision of related public improvements. The following table shows estimated community renewal program activity (dollars in millions):

	Cumulative as of June 30, 1961	1962 actual	1963 estimate	1964 estimate
Net approvals.....	22	35	51	62
Community renewal programs completed.....	---	---	12	30
Active, end of year.....	22	57	96	128
Grants approved in year.....	$3.8	$4.2	$7.0	$9.0

Progress and final grant payments for urban renewal activities are expected to reach a cumulative total of $1,164.5 million by the end of 1964, requiring a grant appropriation of $200 million in the budget year.

6. Mass transportation demonstration.—Grants to assist mass transportation demonstration projects, which are aimed at demonstrating methods of reducing urban transportation needs and providing improved mass transportation services, are authorized by the Housing Act of 1961 in an amount limited to $25 million of the contract authority provided in title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. This program is described under current authorizations.

Budget program.—The Treasury borrowing authority of $1 billion is available for loan assistance to finance the planning and execution of urban renewal projects via the following types of commitments:

1. Planning advances.—Advances provide for costs directly associated with project planning. They are repayable, with interest, from funds made available to the projects during execution.

2. Temporary loans.—These are short-term direct Federal loans to provide initial financing for projects under contract. Thereafter, the local public agency generally relies upon private borrowings secured by pledge of the Federal loan commitment. Temporary loans are repaid from the proceeds of land sales and from local and Federal cash grants.

3. Definitive loans.—Definitive loans permit the disposition of project land through long-term leases in lieu of sale, at the option of the community. In such cases, commitments are issued to secure private financing for the net value of redeveloped land.

The loan commitments cover total expenditures by the local public agency in carrying out the project. Both the statute and experience recognize that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment is outstanding at any one time as direct Federal loans, and demand on Federal funds will not equal or even approach commitments made because: (a) project expenditures take place over several years; (b) early borrowings are progressively retired with funds provided from local and Federal grants and from the sale of land; and (c) private financing (guaranteed with a pledge of the Federal loan commitment) is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary loans and for all definitive loans. Cumulative loan commitments will be $3,387 million by the end of 1964, but this amount is offset by $1,156 million in repayments and commitment waivers, resulting in a net outstanding commitment of $2,231 million. The maximum Federal exposure is estimated at $516 million. The following table shows the status of total Federal loan commitments (in thousands of dollars):

Total outstanding Federal loans and loan commitments, end of year.....	1,647,072	1,945,200	2,231,300

Unutilized undisbursed commitments.....	661,518	760,000	872,000

Financing.—Borrowing authority previously committed is replenished by means of: (a) repayment of planning advances; (b) repayment of temporary loans from project settlement funds (which include proceeds from the sale of land and Federal and local grants); (c) cancellation of temporary loan commitments; and (d) retirement of commitments due to the repayment of guaranteed non-Federal loans from project settlement funds.

The full amount of repayments of planning advances is included in the program and financing schedule. The ratio of Federal exposure to loan commitments fixed by the Administrator is estimated to be fixed at 20% in 1964. Repayments of Federal temporary loans from the proceeds of non-Federal guaranteed loans are not reflected on the program and financing statement because the reduction in Federal loan balances is offset by an increase in undisbursed commitments. Such repayments are shown in the statement of sources and application of funds.

Operating results.—The use of grant appropriations is authorized to repay Treasury borrowing, in order to avoid the creation of a deficit through a disparity between interest earnings and the losses on planning advances and interest for terminated projects. The deficit resulting from capital grant payments and from uncollectable planning advances for terminated projects has been offset by the appropriation of funds for such purpose as shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

The Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955 (42 U.S.C. 2301) providing for the disposition of Government-owned properties at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., was amended by Public Law 87-719 (76 Stat. 664) approved September 28, 1962 to provide for the disposal of federally owned properties at Los Alamos, N. Mex. The sales and financing functions were delegated to the Housing and Home Finance Administrator. Predisposition activities at Los Alamos consisting of platting, surveys, appraisals, etc., are estimated to take approximately 2 years. Disposition of properties will begin during 1965 and is expected to continue through 1967. Book value of disposal inventory totals $39 million.

Budget program.—The inventory of residual properties at Richland, Wash., appraised at $2.2 million, will be disposed of by June 30, 1963. On hand at the end of 1963, from the disposal and financing of Oak Ridge and Richland properties will be a mortgage portfolio of $3.8 million. Predisposition expenses at Los Alamos will total $605 thousand during 1963 and $550 thousand during the budget year. It is estimated that during the last quarter of the budget year vacant residential lots and other vacant land valued at $25 thousand will be sold.

Operating results.—Cumulative net earnings at the close of 1963 with the disposal of all properties at Oak Ridge and Richland and with the beginning of predisposition activities at Los Alamos, are estimated at $0.3 million. Total repayment of Government investment will amount to $61 million, including payment of $2.5 million in 1964. Direct long-term loans at low interest rates to assist in financing the new construction of rental housing and related facilities for the elderly are authorized by the Housing Act of 1959, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1701q et seq.). Loans may be extended to private nonprofit corporate sponsors, cooperatives and those public bodies and agencies which certify they are not receiving Federal financial assistance exclusively for public housing. Loans may be made for the total development cost and may run for as long as 50 years. Interest rates are based on a statutory formula and are limited to the higher of either 2.75% or 0.25% above the average interest rate on all interest-bearing obligations forming part of the Federal debt. The 1963 rate is 3½%.

Budget program.—Net loan reservations are estimated at $100 million for the current year and $125 million for the budget year. A fund reservation is made after preliminary review of an application filed to determine the general eligibility and feasibility of a project. The reservation assures availability of loan funds to the applicant at the completion of Agency review of the loan application. Reservations are converted into loan contracts after Agency review of engineering, financing, and the legal aspects of proposed projects. Principal workload items are set forth in the following table:

Financing.—The program is financed by a revolving fund which is initially supported by direct appropriations. Appropriations of $225 million have been authorized and the budget assumes legislation to increase this authorization. To date, $125 million has been appropriated and $45 million is proposed for later transmittal in 1963. An additional $125 million is estimated for the budget year. Of that amount, $55 million would be provided under existing statutory authorization and $70 million under proposed legislation. The following table shows the relationship of this program to available funds (in thousands of dollars):

FEDERAL NATIONAL MORTGAGE ASSOCIATION

The Association, operating under the Federal National Mortgage Association Charter Act (12 U.S.C. 1716 et seq.), purchases, manages, and sells residential mortgages that are insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration and makes short-term loans that are secured by those types of mortgages; it also manages and sells certain noninsured or nonguaranteed mortgages that have been or may be acquired from authorized sources. Under amendments made to the original enactment by the Housing Act of 1954, the Association's functions are carried out through three programs for which separate accountability is required by statute. These programs—secondary market operations, special assistance functions, and management and liquidating functions—are described in the following sections:

Note.—Expenditures from the following funds for 1963 are subject to the first paragraph of title II of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1963. For 1964, this paragraph is shown in the Independent Agencies chapter, p. 840.

The secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association were authorized by the Housing Act of 1954 to provide limited liquidity for Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and to improve the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing. This assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages is provided by the purchase and sale of mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration on or after August 2, 1954, that are of such quality, type, and class as meet generally the purchase standards imposed by private institutional mortgage investors. Purchases and sales may be made only at such prices and on such terms as will reasonably prevent excessive use of the Association's facilities and will permit the Association to operate on a fully self-supporting basis.

The Association, under its secondary market operations, was also authorized by the Housing Act of 1961 (Public Law 87-70, approved June 30, 1961) to make short-term loans secured by Federal Housing Administration insured or Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages. The volume of the Association's lending activities and the establishment of its loan ratios, interest rates, maturities, and charges or fees are required to be determined by Federal National Mortgage Association from time to time with the objective of preventing excessive use of the Association's facilities and of assuring that the operations will be fully self-supporting.

The authorizing statute contemplates that the secondary market operations will ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. Accordingly, these operations are treated in the budget as a trust enterprise and the financial statements related thereto appear in part III of this document.

The secondary market operations were initially capitalized by the issuance of $92.8 million of Federal National Mortgage Association preferred stock to the Secretary of the Treasury. Subsequently, increased preferred stock subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury, amounting to $50 million (Public Law 85-10, approved March 27, 1957) and $65 million (Public Law 85-104, approved July 12, 1957) were authorized. Authorized preferred stock has actually been subscribed only as needed to support the Association's borrowing. At the end of 1962, authorized unissued stock amounted to $49 million. These estimates contemplate no subscriptions of additional preferred stock in 1963 or 1964.

The preferred stock will be retired as rapidly as feasible and, in the meantime, the Association will pay dividends on the utilized portion to the Treasury at rates determined by the Secretary of the Treasury. Private capitalization for these operations is accumulated pursuant to a statutory requirement which provides that sellers of mortgages to the Association must subscribe to common stock in an amount equal to not more than 2% nor less than 1% of the unpaid principal amounts of the mortgages involved, as determined from time to time by the Association, taking into consideration conditions in the mortgage market and the general economy; borrowers are required to purchase the Association's common stock in an amount equal to not more than one-half of 1% of the amounts borrowed.

Recommendations for legislation to transfer ownership of the Association to private owners of the capital stock must be submitted to the Congress as promptly as practicable after all the Treasury-held preferred stock has been retired.

The Association is authorized to finance its secondary market operations through borrowing from the public on the security of nonguaranteed debentures and short-term discount notes. Such obligations may not exceed the lesser of: (a) ten times the sum of the capital and surplus applicable to these operations, or (b) the sum of assets free from any liens or incumbrances, represented by cash, mortgages, or other security holdings and obligations of the United States or guaranteed thereby, or obligations which are lawful investments for fiduciary, trust, or public funds. The Secretary of the Treasury, so long as the preferred stock is outstanding, is authorized to purchase such obligations in an amount not exceeding $2.25 billion outstanding at any one time.

Budget program.—The secondary market operations, established in 1955, are now fully recognized by the home mortgage market and have reached significant levels. Because of a somewhat more limited supply of funds which are estimated to be available for long-term investment and anticipated continuation of the current level of interest rates, mortgage purchases are estimated at a larger volume in 1964 than in 1963. For the same reason, only a limited volume of mortgages is estimated to be sold during the same period.

In addition to the mortgages which it purchases in the regular manner the Association also acquires, from the Federal Housing Administration, Commissioner-owned mortgages in exchange at par (100) for Federal National Mortgage Association-held Federal Housing Administration debentures. The volume of mortgages so acquired is estimated to amount to $50 million in 1963 and $40 million in 1964.

Financing.—Substantial interim Treasury borrowings will be necessary during 1963 and 1964, but the proceeds of borrowings from the public through the sale of debentures and short-term discount notes are expected to provide the funds necessary to repay Treasury borrowings in the year in which made. Additional financing will be obtained from the sale of mortgages to the investing public, from subscriptions of common stock by program participants, from repayments and prepayments of mortgage principal, and from earnings. No retirements of preferred stock are estimated for the period covered in this budget.

Operating results.—Operations are reflected in budget expenditures only to the extent of Treasury financing.

The Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized to provide special assistance to the extent that the President has determined that it is in the public interest for the financing of (1) selected types of home mortgages pending establishment of their marketability and (2) home mortgages generally as a means of retarding or stopping a decline in mortgage lending and home building activities which threatens materially the stability of a high-level national economy. The Association is authorized, for these purposes, to make commitments to purchase and to purchase Federal Housing Administration insured and Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages up to $2,217 million outstanding at any one time; prior to the enactment of the Housing Act of 1961 such authority totaled $950 million. The overall increase resulted from (1) a general increase of $750 million in special assistance authority and (2) the transfer from the management and liquidating functions (a) of $140 million and $170 million of authority represented by the net amount by which that portfolio was decreased during 1961 and 1962, respectively, and (b) of $207 million of authority from the low- and moderate-priced housing program previously established by Public Law 85-364. The special assistance authority will be further increased by approximately $142 million in 1964, representing the net amount by which the portfolio of the management and liquidating functions will be reduced during 1963.

In addition to the special programs the Association may undertake pursuant to specific direction of the President, the Association, by express legislation, is also authorized to enter into commitments to purchase and to purchase mortgages on cooperative housing insured under section 213 of the National Housing Act, as amended, up to a limit of $225 million outstanding at any one time; and to make commitments to purchase and to purchase mortgages on armed services and essential civilian employees housing insured under title VIII of that act, up to a limit of $500 million outstanding at any one time. Public Law 85-364 authorized the Association, within a limitation of $1 billion outstanding at any one time, to make commitments to purchase and to purchase Federal Housing Administration insured and Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages of $13,500 or less covering low- and moderate-priced housing on which construction had not commenced at the time application was made for Federal National Mortgage Association's commitment. Commitment and purchasing authority under this program was terminated by the Housing Act of 1961.

The prices paid for mortgages under these functions are established by the Association at the time of the announcement of each individual program, but they may be adjusted thereafter from time to time. Commitments to purchase mortgages and immediate purchases are currently made within a 94-100 price range.

In addition to the mortgages which it regularly purchases under specified special programs, the Association acquires, from the Federal Housing Administration, Commissioner-owned mortgages in exchange at par (100) for Federal National Mortgage Association held Federal Housing Administration debentures. The volume of mortgages so acquired is estimated to amount to $40 million in 1963 and $30 million in 1964.

Federal National Mortgage Association's special assistance functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, and all the benefits and burdens of the program inure solely to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Financing.—Net borrowings from the Treasury were $82 million in 1962 and are estimated at $143 million in 1963 and $65 million in 1964, thereby increasing the interest-bearing investment of the Government to $2,051 million at the end of 1964.

Operating results.—Previously, earnings were retained and paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury following the year earned. A payment of $189 thousand was made in 1957, and another of $2,445 thousand was made in 1958. In order to protect the Association against losses inherent in a portfolio of this size, earnings will be retained and accumulated for so long as may be warranted. The following table shows the cumulative amounts at the end of each year covered by these estimates (in thousands of dollars):

The Association, in its management and liquidating functions, is required by law to manage and liquidate its portfolio of mortgages acquired under contracts made before November 1, 1954, and those other mortgages that have been or may be acquired from authorized sources (Public Law 86-372). Such liquidation is to be conducted in an orderly manner, with a minimum of adverse effect upon the home mortgage market and minimum loss to the Federal Government. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular principal repayments, sales of mortgages as rapidly as they can be absorbed by private investors without serious disruption of normal market conditions, and as the result of other principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

Under the provisions of the Housing Act of 1961, an amount equal to the net decrease for the preceding year in the aggregate principal amount of all mortgages owned by the Association under its management and liquidating functions will as of July 1 of each of the years 1961 through 1964, be transferred to and merged with the authority provided for the Association's special assistance functions under Public Law 83-360. The amount transferred on July 1, 1961, was $139.4 million; the amount transferred on July 1, 1962, was $170.5 million; the amount estimated to be transferred on July 1, 1963, is $142 million.

Budget program.—There will be no mortgages purchased under commitments made prior to November 1, 1954, for this portfolio during the period covered by these estimates. That purchasing program was completed during 1958. Acquisitions under Public Law 86-372 are estimated at $0.15 million during 1963 and 1964. Mortgages acquired from the Federal Housing Administration in exchange for U.S. securities are estimated at $15 million in 1963 and $5 million in 1964.

Mortgages in the amount of $10.3 million were sold during 1962. Sales in the amount of $6 million are estimated for 1963. There are no sales contemplated for 1964.

Liquidation of mortgage principal resulting from repayments, prepayments, foreclosures and transfers in lieu of foreclosures are estimated to amount to $151.1 million in 1963 and to $150.6 million in 1964.

There will be no Treasury borrowings during the period covered by these budget estimates; net repayments of Treasury borrowings were $117.1 million in 1962 and are estimated at $128.7 million and $130.5 million in 1963 and 1964, respectively.

Operating results.—As a consequence of a reduction in the outstanding portfolio of the management and liquidating functions, estimated net income in 1964 ($5.3 million) will decline from the amount estimated for 1963 ($6.1 million); the decline from 1962 ($14.4 million) to 1963 ($6.1 million) was due primarily to increased financing costs.

All benefits and burdens of the management and liquidating functions inure solely to the Secretary of the Treasury. Retained earnings reserved for losses and contingencies at the end of 1962 amounted to $144.6 million and are estimated at $120.7 million and $111 million, respectively, for 1963 and 1964. The reduction in the amounts estimated to be outstanding results from the payments during 1963 and 1964 of $25 and $15 million, respectively, from earnings to the U.S. Treasury; these amounts are considered to be in excess of the Association's needs for losses and contingencies.

The Federal Housing Administration, created by the National Housing Act of 1934, is a noncorporate business-type agency. It was made subject to the Government Corporation Control Act by the Housing Act of 1948. The principal purposes of the Federal Housing Administration are to encourage and stabilize the home-mortgage market and to improve home-financing practices along with housing standards and conditions. These purposes are accomplished through the insurance of loans and mortgages to finance the purchase, production, repair, and improvement of residential properties. As of June 30, 1962, $77 billion of insurance had been written with $39 billion outstanding.

The Federal Housing Administration conducts a wide variety of insurance programs through 15 separate funds established by statute. The largest is the mutual mortgage fund for the insurance of mortgages on one- to four-family dwellings under section 203 of the National Housing Act. Other funds cover the insurance of loans on home repairs and improvements, mortgages on single and multifamily housing, including urban renewal and relocation housing, Armed Forces housing, elderly housing, nursing homes, and other special-purpose housing, and equity investments in multifamily housing.

The mutual mortgage fund differs from the other insurance funds in that mortgagors at termination of their mortgages may share, as authorized by statute, in the rebate of income generated by the fund but not disbursed for expenses or losses. Through June 30, 1962, such participation payments to homeowners had exceeded $137 million with $183 million reserved for future payments.

The Federal Housing Administration insurance programs had produced over $2 billion in gross revenue, through June 30, 1962, from insurance premiums, application and inspection fees, and interest from Federal securities and other investments.

Budget program.—The Federal Housing Administration budget for 1964 has been developed to enable the Federal Housing Administration to continue to carry out its responsibilities under the President's housing program as expanded by the Housing Act of 1961. This legislation provides for the improvement of existing housing, production of new housing for families of low and moderate income, and encouragement of experimental housing design, materials, and construction. These new programs are expected to begin to realize their full potential during 1963 and 1964. Besides providing for the expense of initiating new mortgage and loan insurance, the budget for 1964 covers the expense of acquiring and disposing of insured properties on which the mortgages have been foreclosed, maintaining the insurance in force, and purchasing the central elements of an automatic data processing complex.

Summary of individual insurance programs.—Summary statements and estimated workload are provided below for the major insurance programs:

1. Home modernization and repair insurance program (title I, sec. 2).—Loans insured under title I, section 2, are mainly for the alteration, repair or improvement of residential structures. Authorized financial institutions provide 10% coinsurance and are insured by the Federal Housing Administration for 90% of losses on these loans. The maximum loan for a single-family unit is $3,500, and the maximum duration is 5 years and 32 days. The average loan during 1962 was $1,021. Workload data are as follows:

Initiation:
Loans insured.....	830,114	900,000	900,000
Insurance in force, end of year.....	2,475,057	2,755,900	2,899,300

2. Basic 1-4 family mortgage insurance programs (secs. 8, 203, 222, 225, and 233).—No new insurance may be written under section 8 since the authorization was terminated by the Housing Act of 1954. Mortgages are insured on 1- to 4-family homes under four subsections of section 203. Statutory limits for insurance under section 203b are 97% of the first $15 thousand of appraised value, plus 90% of the next $5 thousand of value and 75% in excess of $20 thousand, up to a maximum mortgage of $25 thousand on proposed construction of single-family homes or those completed more than 1 year. Mortgages may run for a maximum of 30 years for existing homes or 35 years for proposed homes. Under section 203h (disaster housing), loans may be insured up to 100% of value, with a maximum $12 thousand insurable; under 203i (low-cost housing in outlying areas), up to 97% of value, with a maximum of $9 thousand.

Section 203k authorizes the insurance of long-term home improvement loans on 1- to 4-family housing at an interest rate of 6%. Loans may not exceed $10 thousand per family unit and are further limited to an amount which, when added to any outstanding indebtedness against the property being improved, would keep the total indebtedness against the property being improved within the amount of a mortgage which could be insured by Federal Housing Administration. The maximum term is 20 years.

Servicemen's mortgage insurance, section 222, covers mortgages for single-family homes purchased by servicemen who have been in the Armed Forces for a minimum of 2 years. The maximum mortgage insurable is $20 thousand for regular and $9 thousand for low-cost housing. The term of the loan and maximum loan-value ratio are the same as for section 203b except that the maximum ratio above $15 thousand is a more liberal 95%.

The certified agency program, applicable to sections 203 and 222, brings the advantages of Federal Housing Administration mortgage insurance to mortgagors remote from the insuring offices. Mortgagee institutions approved by the Commissioner are authorized to take initial specific steps in the processing of applications, including appraisals and inspections by fee appraisers and inspectors approved by the Federal Housing Administration.

Mortgages insured under section 233, experimental housing, are on homes using advanced technology in design, materials, or construction or experimental property standards for neighborhood design. Statutory limits for this insurance are the same as those under section 203b except that they are based on replacement cost rather than appraised value.

3. Basic multifamily mortgage insurance programs (secs. 207-210, 213, 231, 232, and 234).—Mortgages insured under section 207 are limited to $20 million for a private mortgagor and $50 million for a public mortgagor on new or existing multifamily housing projects, with a maximum loan-value ratio of 90%. Mobile home courts also are insurable under this section, with maximum limits of $500 thousand, loan-value ratio of 75%, and term of 15 years.

Section 213, cooperative housing, provides a more liberal loan-value ratio maximum of 97% and 40-year terms for mortgage insurance on new, existing or rehabilitated single or multifamily housing undertaken by non-profit groups. Also provided are insurance on necessary new community facilities and insurance on an individual mortgage on property released from a project sales mortgage. Insurance for proposed or rehabilitated housing by a corporation intending to sell to a non-profit cooperative is limited to a loan-value ratio of 90% and term of 40 years.

Section 231 provides for insured mortgages with liberal terms on new or rehabilitated multifamily housing projects for occupancy by elderly persons. Section 232 provides for new or rehabilitated nursing homes. Under section 231 the maximum loan-value ratio is 100% for non-profit mortgagors, 90% for profit-motivated mortgagors for proposed construction, and generally 90% for rehabilitation. Under section 232 the maximum loan-value ratio is 90%.

Mortgages insured under section 234, condominium housing, are on individually owned units in multifamily structures, together with an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the structure. This program is limited to structures which are or have been covered by Federal Housing Administration mortgages, and as each individual unit is sold, it is released from the over-all mortgage. Statutory limits for mortgage insurance under section 234 are 97% of the first $13,500 of appraised value, plus 90% of the next $4,500 and 70% in excess of $18 thousand, up to a maximum mortgage of $25 thousand. The maximum term of the insurance is 30 years.

4. Urban renewal, rehabilitation, relocation, and moderate-income mortgage insurance programs (secs. 220 and 221).—Section 220 provides mortgage insurance for the construction or rehabilitation of single or multifamily housing in urban renewal or disaster areas. For single-family homes the maximum ratio of loan to replacement cost is 97% of the first $15 thousand of cost, plus 90% of the next $5 thousand and 75% in excess of $20 thousand up to a maximum mortgage of $25 thousand. For multifamily housing the maximum ratio of loan to replacement cost is 90%.

Section 220h authorizes the insurance of secured loans at an interest rate of 6% for the alteration, repair and improvement of existing 1- to 4-family and multifamily housing in urban renewal areas with maximums of $10 thousand per unit and 20-year term.

Section 221 provides mortgage insurance for new or rehabilitated low-cost single or multifamily housing for families displaced by governmental action or for low or moderate income families generally. For single-family homes the maximum ratio of loan to value is 100% in the case of proposed construction with a maximum mortgage of $11 thousand. The maximum term for displaced families is 40 years and for other families 35 years or 40 years if the mortgagor cannot make the higher monthly payments under a 35-year mortgage.

The Housing Act of 1961 gives the Commissioner latitude under section 221 to provide a program of multifamily housing for displaced families or other low or moderate income families at interest rates below the market level. The Commissioner was also given the authority to waive the insurance premium.

5. Armed services mortgage insurance program (secs. 803, 809, and 810).—The authorization to insure under section 803, which provided mortgage insurance for multifamily housing at or near military installations for military and civilian personnel of the Armed Forces, expired October 1, 1962.

Section 809 provides mortgage insurance on 1- to 4-family homes for civilian personnel at qualified research or development installations of the Armed Forces (or a contractor thereof), Atomic Energy Commission, or National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The maximum loan-value ratio and term are identical to that under section 203b; however, neither economic soundness nor acceptable risk is required.

Section 810 provides mortgage insurance on single or multifamily project housing for military personnel at installations of the Armed Forces or for essential civilian personnel serving or employed in connection therewith. The maximum loan is $5 million. Neither economic soundness nor acceptable risk is required. The Secretary of Defense may be required to guarantee the armed services housing mortgage insurance fund against loss.

Summary of operating expense estimates.—Federal Housing Administration operating expenses are paid out of operating income. It is estimated that operating expense for 1963 will be $69,485 thousand for nonadministrative operations and $10,775 thousand for administrative operations. The 1964 estimate is $78,150 thousand for non-administrative and $9.9 million for administrative expenses.

Financing.—Mortgage insurance claims are met by the issuance of debentures that are subsequently redeemed out of income and proceeds from the sale of acquired properties and mortgages. In 1962, $348 million of debentures were issued. Debentures to be issued in 1963 are estimated at $401 million and in 1964, $474 million. Debentures were retired in 1962 in the amount of $144 million. Retirements of debentures in 1963 and 1964 are estimated at $260 million and $545 million, respectively.

Retained earnings.—Operations in 1962 resulted in retained earnings of $123 million. These earnings were distributed as follows: $74 million to the general surplus account, $24 million to the participating reserve account of the mutual mortgage insurance fund, and $25 million to the general insurance reserves under the other insurance funds.

Net income is expected to be $120 million in 1963 and $144 million in 1964. In the 2-year period it is estimated that income totaling $161 million will be added to the general surplus account, $59 million to the participating reserve account of the mutual mortgage insurance fund, and $45 million to the insurance reserves under other funds.

Retained earnings increased to $1.1 billion during 1962 and are expected to reach $1.2 billion during 1963 and $1.3 billion during 1964.

Insurance authority.—The housing repair and improvement insurance authorization, title I, section 2, was extended to October 1, 1965 by Public Law 87-70.

This law also amended the general mortgage insurance authorization, section 217, to apply it to all loan and mortgage insurance programs, except section 2, section 221, and title VIII and to provide insurance authorization through October 1, 1965.

The authority provided by Public Law 87-70 to insure sales or profit multifamily housing, with respect to the moderate income housing program under section 221, expires July 1, 1963, and for the below market interest rate multifamily program, July 1, 1965, except that there is no time limitation for families displaced from urban renewal areas or as a result of other governmental action.

The Armed Forces housing insurance authorizations are subject to several limitations. After enactment of Public Law 84-345 insurance issued under sections 803, 809, and 810 was limited to $2.3 billion by Public Law 84-1020. Under section 803 the authorization to insure expired October 1, 1962, pursuant to Public Law 87-70. Under sections 809 and 810 the authorization to insure expires October 1, 1965, pursuant to Public Law 87-623.
