This appropriation provides financing, as authorized by the American-Mexican Chamizal Convention Act of 1964, for compliance with the Chamizal Convention between the United States and Mexico. The Convention provides for the relocation of the Rio Grande channel in the El Paso-Juarez sector; the establishment of the centerline of the new channel as the international boundary; and the transfer of lands between Mexico and the United States. These actions will require relocation of public facilities, and acquisition of land and improvements for relocations and for transfer to Mexico.

The Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-510) provides legislative authority for assistance to migrants and refugees, both on a multilateral basis through contributions to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and through unilateral assistance to refugees from Communist countries. Public Law 89-230, approved October 1, 1965, provides authority for an annual contribution of $50 thousand to the International Committee of the Red Cross.

The 1967 request reflects reductions in migration and refugee programs which were accomplished by prompt adjustment to changing economic conditions in asylum countries, continuing progress toward the solution of refugee problems in certain areas, increased contributions by other governments, and close administrative and financial control over migration and refugee expenditures. Despite new requests in 1967 for funds for the transportation and related costs of Cuban refugees and for the contribution to the International Committee of the Red Cross, the overall 1967 request is less than the estimates for 1966.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase securities or make loans (including participations therein and guarantees thereof) to aid in financing projects for civil defense purposes upon certification by the Secretary of Defense (50 U.S.C., App. 2261, sec. 104, Reconstruction Finance Corporation Liquidation Act and Executive Order 10952 of July 20, 1961). This corporation was abolished October 4, 1961, by Public Law 87-353 (75 Stat. 773), and its remaining assets were transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The corporation has been in liquidation for several years, its only remaining activities being the collection of non-interest-bearing notes sold to the Federal land banks on June 30, 1955, paying the proceeds as dividends to the Treasury, and the payment of outstanding bonds payable upon presentation by rightful owners.

except the Post Office Department, the U.S. marshals, and certain Government corporations. Savings bonds are also issued for Federal employees under the payroll savings plan.

Work volume.....	357,456	392,644	375,344	390,764

The nonrecurring items represent the onetime checks issued during 1966 for the retroactive portion of increased benefit payments resulting from the Social Security Amendments Act of 1965.

2. Depository receipt operations.—Employers and certain business enterprises deposit monthly, with designated banks, excise, withheld income, railroad retirement, and withheld social security taxes, to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. The Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the Treasury, issue depository receipts which the employers attach to their returns as evidence of payment of taxes. The work volume is estimated at 12,920,000 depository receipts in 1966 and 13,178,000 in 1967 as compared with 12,666,997 in 1965.

3. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—This activity includes the maintenance of central accounts of appropriations, receipts and expenditures which provide data for financial statements. It also includes the preparation and publication of financial reports on the Government's fiscal operations, such as the annual "Combined Statement of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances"; the "Monthly Treasury Statement"; the "Secretary's Annual Report"; the "Treasury Bulletin"; and reports on foreign currencies acquired without payment of dollars.

4. Accounting and reporting development and internal audit.—This activity includes furnishing technical accounting advice and assistance to other agencies in relation to central accounting, reporting, disbursing, and depository matters; participation in the Government-wide financial management improvement program; performing systems work within the Fiscal Service and the Bureau of Accounts; performing internal audit in the Bureau, and other audits of a departmental character.

5. Banking, insurance, investment, international claims, and other services.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through the designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Investments in interest-bearing securities are processed for certain funds, such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the unemployment trust fund, the veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds. The work includes accounting for purchases, sales and redemptions of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, payment of international and other claims, and examination of the financial condition of companies issuing surety bonds in favor of the United States.

6. Executive direction.—This provides for the overall management for the Bureau of Accounts.

This revolving fund was created as self-insurance to cover losses in shipment of Government property such as coin, currency, securities, certain losses incurred by the Post Office Department, and losses in connection with the redemption of savings bonds (5 U.S.C. 134). Since these claims are only partially offset by recoveries, the net losses have gradually increased to $1,939 thousand as of June 30, 1965, and are expected to increase to $1,993 thousand by June 30, 1966. It is estimated that the creation of this fund has resulted in a savings of over

The Bureau of Customs collects the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspects all international traffic, regulates certain marine and aircraft activities, combats smuggling, undervaluation, and frauds on the customs revenue, and performs related functions in connection with the importation and exportation of merchandise.

Direct obligations are estimated to be $86,189 thousand for 1967, an increase of $3,939 thousand over the amount now appropriated for 1966.

The unobligated balance of $300 thousand is a special fund available to this account when necessary to help pay the expenses of reimbursable customs work pending the collection of receivables from private interests.

A supplemental appropriation for 1966 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

1. Assessment and collection of duties, taxes, and fees.—The collectors of customs assess and collect the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspect international traffic, combat smuggling, perform certain marine activities relating to ownership and documentation of vessels of the United States and the movement of vessels in the foreign trade, and enforce the laws of other Government agencies affecting imports and exports.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of U.S. currency and Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage, internal revenue, customs, and savings stamps. In addition, the Bureau prints a wide variety of miscellaneous commissions, certificates, etc., and executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The Bureau finances its operations out of reimbursements received from other agencies for all direct and indirect costs, including administrative expenses (31 U.S.C. 181).

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—The delivery of 2.1 billion notes in 1965 represented the highest delivery for any single year since 1954. Estimates for the current and budget years indicate further increases in delivery requirements of 11.0% and 7.7%, respectively. By 1967 approximately 94% of all currency requirements will be produced on the Bureau's modern high-speed presses, 32 notes to the sheet instead of 18.

(b) Stamps.—The overall requirements in 1966 and 1967 for this class of work show an increase as compared with 1965. An analysis of the work program discloses this increase is due primarily to an estimated greater demand for all classes of postage stamps; i.e., sheet, book and coil, by the Post Office Department and an upsurge in the requirements of the Department of Agriculture for food coupons in book form. These increases were offset to some extent by a small decrease in the requirements for internal revenue stamps.

(c) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes and debentures for the Bureau of the Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government. No material change is reflected in the anticipated requirements of the agencies for 1966 and 1967 over 1965.

(d) Commissions, certificates, etc.—The substantial increase in the number of units to be delivered in 1966 and 1967 as compared with 1965 is due primarily to special projects to be performed for the Department of Defense. However, the production costs associated with all of this miscellaneous classification of work represent a very small percentage of the overall engraving and printing program of the Bureau.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—Charges are made to other agencies on an actual cost basis for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Bureau operations resulted in a loss of $234 thousand during 1965 primarily as a result of charging into the cost of operations at the close of the year the cost of claims presented by building guards for retroactive overtime pay some of which covered a 10-year period. These claims were paid in accordance with a decision rendered by the Comptroller General of the United States. This loss, together with a deficit of $69 thousand brought forward from prior years, will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years, in accordance with provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181. Budget expenditures are expected to be in excess of receipts in the amount of $888 thousand in 1966 and $115 thousand in 1967.

The capital of the fund is expected to remain at $25.3 million represented by an appropriation of $3.3 million and donated assets of $22 million.

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coast and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out the duties specified in title 14, United States Code.

Direct program—1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs any and all acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft disaster or due to floods (14 U.S.C. 88). Coast Guard activities in the area of search and rescue fall within the national search and rescue plan and other agreements.

2. Aids to navigation.—A network of manned and unmanned aids to navigation is maintained along our coasts and on our inland waterways through the use of tenders and shore facilities to insure the safe passage of the mariner. Loran stations are operated in the United States and abroad to serve the needs of the armed services and marine and air commerce (14 U.S.C. 81).

3. Law enforcement.—Vessels, aircraft, and shore units enforce Federal laws on the high seas and waters over which the United States exercises jurisdiction. Law enforcement activities include fishery patrols, Campeche, Key, and Alaskan patrols; small-boat boarding; supervision of explosive loadings; enforcement of dangerous cargo regulations, and port control (14 U.S.C. 89, 91).

During peacetime, readiness training is received by major units and facility armament is maintained in a state of readiness (14 U.S.C. 3). Included in this category are Coast Guard operations in Vietnam.

5. Oceanography, meteorology, and icebreaking.—The Coast Guard participates in the National Oceanographic Program (14 U.S.C. 94), which is coordinated by the Interagency Committee on Oceanography. Its facilities cooperate with the Weather Bureau in taking weather observation from vessels manning ocean stations (14 U.S.C. 90). Icebreaking is performed by specially constructed icebreakers engaged in polar operations with other agencies and by other vessels with more limited icebreaking capacity in our harbors and channels (14 U.S.C. 2). Also included in this program is participation in the International Ice Patrol (46 U.S.C. 738).

This appropriation provides for retired pay of military personnel of the Coast Guard and Coast Guard Reserve, members of the former Lighthouse and Lifesaving Services, and for annuities payable to beneficiaries of retired military personnel under "The Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan" (10 U.S.C. 1431-1446).

Members are added to and removed from the rolls each month. The average numbers on the rolls will rise in 1967 and will continue to rise in future years. The actual number on the rolls at the end of 1965 was 11,328 and the number estimated to be on the rolls at the end of 1966 and 1967 is 11,957 and 12,705 respectively. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1965 compared with estimated numbers for 1966 and 1967.

Under the provisions of the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan, retired Coast Guard military personnel who elect to receive reduced amounts of retired pay may provide for monthly payments to their survivors. Appropriation requirements are reduced by the difference between the amount deducted from retired pay and the amount paid as survivors' benefits. The liability for future payments is not funded. The analysis of the accumulated deductions is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Purpose.—The purpose of the Coast Guard Reserve is to provide 45,200 trained officers and enlisted personnel in the Ready Reserve, who are available for active duty in time of war, national emergency, and at such other times as the national security may require. The tasks required of the Coast Guard by the Department of Defense upon mobilization determine this total, which is approved by the Secretary of Defense. In broad terms, these tasks are divided into port security, vessel augmentation, coastal force, aviation, and other lesser but essential support areas.

Training.—The Coast Guard Ready Reserve is divided into three basic categories which are compatible with these tasks and are oriented to the required time phases for mobilization response. The first category is designed to provide operationally trained units and individual personnel for specific assignments within 15 days of mobilization. Personnel in this category are assigned to Organized Reserve Training Units and participate in 48 paid drills of at least 2 hours' duration and 2 weeks of active duty for training annually. This level of training is required both to develop and maintain a high standard of proficiency for unit or individual mobilization assignments. A second category of training provides 15 to 30 days' annual active duty for training to personnel who are basically trained but, due to their specialty and/or early mobilization phasing, require additional training. The final category within the Ready Reserve is comprised of personnel scheduled to report within 6 months of mobilization, but, who, due to previous training in units or on active duty, do not participate in a specific paid training program.

Program.—The proposed program for 1967 will provide a total of 31,077 officers and enlisted personnel in all categories of the Ready Reserve.

Program by activities—1. Trainee expense.—The program for 1966 provides for 18,940 Reservists to receive training of the types required for mobilization. The program for 1967 provides for an increase in the number of Reservists to receive training from 18,940 to 19,688, with the total number of man-days decreasing from 1,613,447 to 1,573,168. The decrease in man-days is due mainly to the elimination of the extended initial active duty for training periods (RL-2 and RL-3 programs) previously utilized to provide specialized technical training. The elimination of these programs, coupled with a reduction from 6 to 5 months' initial active duty for training for RL-1 personnel, will permit a higher input of trainees which will raise the total of Reservists receiving training.

2. Operation of training facilities.—This activity encompasses the operation of facilities for the training of Reserve personnel at the Recruit training centers, Cape May, N.J., and Alameda, Calif., and the training centers at Groton, Conn., and Yorktown, Va. It also includes the operation of 5 training vessels, 288 organized Reserve training units, and the summer training programs conducted at Yorktown and Alameda. Additional personnel will be required to support the expanding year-round active duty for training programs at the latter two training centers and the four ORPSU boats purchased during 1967.

3. Improvement of training facilities.—Participation with the Navy in the construction of Reserve training centers at Wilmington, N.C.; Houston, Tex.; and Lynn, Mass., is planned for 1967. Four 30-foot UT boats will be procured to complete the sets of operational training equipment for port security units already on hand. Also included in this activity is the renovation of a Reserve training building at Coast Guard Base, Charleston, S.C.

4. Administration.—This activity encompasses all administrative costs associated with the management of the Reserve training program. It includes personnel assigned to headquarters, district offices and recruiting.

The Coast Guard supply fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing, commissary provisions, general stores and technical materials. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Costs of approximately $25 million to be incurred under this fund in 1967 are divided 14% for uniform clothing, 54% for commissary provisions, and 32% for general stores and technical materials, including electronics.

Sales are expected to be $3,683 thousand more in 1966 than 1965 actual and $3,131 thousand more in 1967 than 1966. These increases result from supply support for Coast Guard operations in Vietnam, initial outfitting and future supply support for new ships, support of icebreakers being acquired from the Navy, and an increase in aids to navigation material and other technical items stocked.

The cash balance will decrease by approximately $900 thousand in 1967 due to the purchase of additional inventory items required for the additional support responsibilities.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws. It seeks to assure maximum productiveness of the tax structure by taking effective, economically feasible actions to stimulate voluntary compliance and reduce noncompliance by taxpayers, including use of a master file automatic data processing system, taxpayer assistance and education, audit of tax returns, locating nonfilers, collecting unpaid taxes, prosecuting willful tax evaders, etc.

The number of taxpayers and the volume of revenue increases as the population, individual prosperity, and national economy increase. This growth is reflected in the following figures:

Year	Tax returns filed (in millions)	Gross revenue collections (in billions of dollars)
1964 actual.....	100.1	112.3
1965 actual.....	102.5	114.4
1966 estimate.....	102.8	122.8
1967 estimate.....	104.1	138.7

The additional funds requested for 1967 to continue extension of the master file automatic data processing system and to continue Service programs on the additional tax returns are a net amount after deduction of 1,523 man-years and $13 million for productivity increases.

This appropriation provides for all actions associated with the mailing out of tax return forms and instructions, receipt of completed returns and payments, deposit of the payments, and verification through a master file automatic data processing system of the accuracy of information provided on the tax returns. It also provides for payment of refunds, offset of refunds against delinquent accounts, issuance of notices that payments are overdue, identification of possible tax evaders (nonfilers) for investigation, and assistance in selection of tax returns which appear to warrant an audit. It provides for preparation of reports (statistics of income) based on tax return data, for other statistical studies of the tax system, and for forecasting (for work planning purposes) the number of tax returns to be filed by type and size and geographical area (and related workload data) for many years ahead.

District manual operations and Service center automated operations are concerned with tax return processing and revenue accounting. Statistical reporting provides for the "Statistics of Income" and other statistical research and reports and for tax return and related workload forecasting.

The additional funds requested for 1967 are for extension of the master file automatic data processing system to individual income tax returns in the North Atlantic, Midwest, and Western regions. With this extension, the master file automatic data processing system will be in operation nationwide. The additional amount requested is a net figure after deduction of 181 man-years and $819 thousand for productivity increases.

This appropriation provides (1) for assistance to taxpayers in understanding and complying with the tax laws and (2) for detecting and correcting instances of non-compliance.

The additional funds requested for 1967 are necessary because the increase in tax returns requires an increase in the number of returns to be audited to prevent a deterioration in the level of taxpayer compliance. Additional audits result in more tax fraud investigations, leads to more appeals, and more Tax Court and other litigation. The additional amount requested is a net figure after deduction of 1,342 man-years and $12,181 thousand for productivity increases.

1. Audit of tax returns.—This activity provides for a selective examination of tax returns to see if taxpayers have properly complied with the internal revenue laws. It corrects errors and explains corrections to the taxpayers. It also makes determinations as to whether certain organizations or funds are exempt from taxation.

2. Collection of delinquent accounts and securing delinquent returns.—This activity provides assistance to taxpayers in understanding their tax obligations and is responsible for securing tax returns due but unfiled and collecting taxes due but unpaid.

3. Tax fraud and special investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of the criminal statutes relating to violations of tax laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud; recommends prosecution as warranted; and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases. It is responsible for directing Service participation in the organized crime drive.

4. Alcohol and tobacco tax regulatory work.—This activity provides for administration and enforcement of internal revenue laws and regulations relating to alcohol and tobacco products. It is also responsible for administering and enforcing the Federal Alcohol Administration Act, the National Firearms Act, and the Federal Firearms Act.

5. Taxpayer conferences and appeals.—This activity provides for administrative consideration and settlement of taxpayer appeals of audit findings.

6. Rulings, technical planning, and special technical services.—This activity develops tax return forms, instructions, and guides; issues rulings and opinions as to application of the tax laws, and meets with taxpayer groups to review and resolve special tax problems.

7. Legal services.—This activity provides for the legal counsel and legal assistance needed by the Service to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws.

The Atomic Energy Commission conducts a variety of production, research and development and supporting activities directed toward its responsibilities for national defense and peaceful applications of atomic energy. Most of the activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts. Coordination with the armed services is achieved through the Military Liaison Committee of the Department of Defense.

Total program costs in 1967 are estimated at $2,138.4 million or $80.1 million less than the estimated 1966 costs of $2,218.5 million, and $156.5 million less than actual costs of $2,294.9 million for 1965. The 1967 decreases are in the raw materials, special nuclear materials, and weapons programs. These decreases are offset somewhat by increases in the programs of basic research in the physical and biomedical sciences and in the programs to develop the civilian applications of isotopes and nuclear explosives and to conduct training, education, and scientific information activities.

In 1967, total program obligations will be less than program costs, the difference being costs to be incurred for prior years' obligations. Total program obligations for operating expenses in 1967 are estimated to be $2,111.3 million compared to $2,268.4 million in 1966 and $2,212.7 million in 1965.

The schedule of costs by activity does not include non-budgetary costs such as depreciation charges, accrued annual leave earned but not taken by AEC employees, the cost of source and special nuclear material consumed, etc.; in total, these are as follows: 1965, $356 million; 1966 estimate, $385 million; 1967 estimate, $385 million.

1. Raw materials.—The 1967 estimate of 10,062 tons of uranium concentrates to be procured is based on current contractual commitments and reflects the expiration of the contracts with Canada and South Africa on December 31, 1966, and the gradual decline in the level of domestic procurement. The 1967 estimate is 2,613 tons below the 1966 estimate of 12,675 tons. Procurement in 1965 was 15,313 tons.

2. Special nuclear materials.—Special nuclear materials are produced primarily for use in nuclear weapons and as fuels for nuclear reactors. Major plants are located at Richland, Wash.; Savannah River, S.C.; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of uranium enriched in the isotope U-235 will decline somewhat in 1967 as a result of reduced cascade power. Work will continue on process improvements to assure continuity and safety of operation, to develop more economical methods of production, and to permit timely development of new production processes as requirements for new products develop.

3. Weapons.—The weapons program encompasses atomic weapons production; maintenance of stockpiled weapons in a state of constant readiness; design, development and underground testing of new weapons; preparation for and maintenance of a readiness capability to resume atmospheric testing; and participation with the Department of Defense in the development of test detection methods.

4. Reactor development.—This program includes the development of nuclear power reactors for central station applications and the development of power and propulsion reactors for a variety of military, civilian, and space applications, together with research and development on advanced reactor systems, nuclear safety, and general reactor technology. The costs by major category are (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
1. Civilian power reactors.....	74,542	81,800	94,480
2. Cooperative power reactor demonstration program.....	11,882	21,300	22,724

13. Operational services.....	3,752	6,750	4,792
Total reactor development.....	477,539	468,050	468,411

The emphasis of the civilian power reactor program is now directed to the development of advanced converter and breeder reactors, which offer the promise of reductions in power cost and conservation of energy resources. Research and development on the application of nuclear power to desalting will be increased.

Costs of $22.7 million will be incurred for the cooperative power reactor demonstration program in which AEC provides financial aid in development and construction of full-scale power reactors built by private electric utilities and public power bodies. This aid helps to provide a basis for a privately financed nuclear power industry.

The Euratom program provides for research and development under a joint program with the European Atomic Energy Community.

The merchant ship reactors program will be confined to studies and technical evaluation of the development of nuclear reactors for propulsion of merchant ships.

The Army power reactors program provides for the improvement of existing designs of portable, medium-powered, water cooled nuclear power plants and studies for advanced plants for military applications.

The naval propulsion reactors program provides for the design and development of improved naval nuclear propulsion plants for installation in ships ranging from small submarines to large combatant surface ships.

The space propulsion systems program (primarily Project Rover) is carried out in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop nuclear rocket engines for space applications.

The satellite and small power sources program (SNAP) is conducted in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Department of Defense, and other Government agencies, to develop nuclear reactor and radioisotopic power systems for space, terrestrial and undersea applications.

General reactor technology includes development work in support of the overall reactor program in such areas as reactor fuels, materials, physics, heat transfer, and engineering.

The advanced reactor systems research and development program is devoted to the exploration of promising advanced reactor concepts.

The nuclear safety program provides for research and development, investigation of safety problems, conduct of field tests, and application of effective engineered safeguards in the construction and operation of nuclear reactors.

5. Physical research.—This program comprises basic and applied research in the physical sciences. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
High energy physics.....	87,147	97,850	109,800
Medium energy physics.....	5,590	9,310	11,000
Low energy physics.....	24,513	26,810	28,800
Mathematics and computer research.....	5,199	5,900	6,400
Chemistry research.....	46,187	49,850	53,500
Metallurgy and materials research.....	22,647	24,780	26,800
Controlled thermonuclear research.....	21,278	21,500	22,600
Total physical research.....	212,561	236,000	258,900

Research in high energy physics is expected to expand in 1967 as existing accelerators are improved and the new linear accelerator at Stanford phases into operation. The increase in medium energy physics (50 Mev–1,000 Mev) is attributed principally to the proposed Los Alamos meson physics facility. The increase in low energy physics is due primarily to the operation of new research tools authorized in prior years and more intensive operation of older facilities. Chemistry and metallurgical research are aimed at advancing basic knowledge related to practical operations of the atomic energy program.

The objective of thermonuclear plasma research is to determine whether the energy released by thermonuclear reactions can be controlled and made useful.

Approximately 75% of this program is conducted at 10 sites owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder is supported and conducted in more than 125 universities, colleges, institutes, and independent laboratories.

6. Biology and medicine.—Research is conducted on the effects of radiation on living organisms and on the environment, protection against the injurious effects of radiation, and development of methods for utilizing radioactive materials in the diagnosis, treatment, and understanding of human diseases, such as cancer. The program includes the measurement of radioactivity (including fallout) in the atmosphere, soils, and surface waters for the establishment of standards to insure that AEC activities are conducted with safety. The program recognizes the responsibilities of other Government agencies conducting programs in biomedical research.

The major portion of the research is conducted by 18 laboratories which are owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder is supported in more than 230 universities, colleges, hospitals, and independent laboratories. In addition, research is conducted in Japan to determine the long-term effects of atomic bomb radiation on the affected population.

7. Training, education, and information.—This program includes specialized training courses; graduate and postdoctoral fellowships and traineeships; assistance to schools, faculties and students; operation of the Puerto Rico Nuclear Center; dissemination of scientific and technical information; and operation of nuclear science and technology demonstrations and exhibits.

In fiscal year 1967, AEC will provide approximately 571 fellowships and traineeships beyond the undergraduate level, compared to a level of 508 in 1966 and 397 in 1965. Special emphasis will be given to providing traineeships at developing centers of excellence and granting fellowships to graduate students to perform thesis research at AEC laboratories. Assistance to schools includes grants for acquisition of nuclear training equipment, teaching aids, demonstration apparatus, and special laboratory equipment. University summer and academic year institutes in radiobiology and other subjects in the field of radiation science are made available to high school and university science teachers. The cooperative use of specialized atomic energy laboratory facilities and staff in assisting the educational programs of colleges and universities throughout the country will continue to increase.

In order to facilitate the transfer of certain regulatory functions from AEC to the States, training courses and on-the-job orientation are conducted in radiation safety, radiological health protection, waste disposal, etc., for State and local government employees.

To broaden the dissemination of information on atomic energy, technical information services are provided at both a technical and popular level. The results of scientific research and technical developments are systematically made available to other Government agencies and to the general public. Public understanding of atomic energy is aided by nuclear science demonstrations and exhibits.

8. Isotopes development.—This program supports the development of a variety of new uses of radioisotopes and high level radiation. Particular emphasis is given to development of isotopic power and heat sources for space and terrestrial applications, to development of isotopic measuring and diagnostic systems, and to development of technology for radiation pasteurization of foods. The program is designed to promote, encourage, and utilize industrial participation and cooperation.

9. Civilian applications of nuclear explosives.—This program (Plowshare) provides for the development of peaceful uses for nuclear explosives. Emphasis in 1967 will be on the development of explosives and technology for nuclear excavation, as well as continuation of promising work on explosives capable of producing heavy elements for scientific research.

10. Communities.—The program estimate of $10.1 million includes $7.7 million for the Los Alamos community of which $3 million is for assistance payments to schools and to the hospital and $4.7 million is for operation of the town. The remaining $2.4 million is for assistance payments to the former AEC communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash. All assistance payments are in accordance with the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended.

11. Program direction and administration.—This program includes the salaries and other costs for employees engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision of the atomic energy program and in the establishment and enforcement of regulations for civilian uses of atomic energy. Employees are located in the Washington headquarters and the field. The 1967 increase of $3.2 million is to meet the cost of 5,628 employees, which is 88 employees over the June 30, 1966 end strength of 5,540.

12. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, requires background investigations of those persons proposed for access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of full background investigations to be requested in 1967 is estimated at 13,277 compared with 13,729 for 1966 and 12,912 for 1965.

13. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objective of widespread utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, AEC, when requested, furnishes materials and services to industrial organizations and other private parties. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenues applied) and are applied as a source of funds, thereby reducing the amount of appropriations required. For expenses of the Commission, as authorized by law, in connection with the purchase and construction of plant and the acquisition of capital equipment and other expenses incidental thereto necessary in carrying out the purposes of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, including the acquisition or condemnation of any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition, construction, or expansion; purchase of not to exceed [five hundred and fifty-nine] four hundred and fifty-one, [of which four hundred and twenty-three are] for replacement only, of which six for police-type use may exceed by $300 each the general purchase price limitation for the current fiscal year, and hire of passenger motor vehicles; and purchase of [three] one aircraft; [$243,995,000] $278,200,000 to remain available until expended. (42 U.S.C. 2017; 79 Stat. 120; 79 Stat. 1106; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

This appropriation provides for the construction of plants and facilities and for the acquisition of capital equipment required for the production, research and development, and supporting programs of the Atomic Energy Commission. Of the new obligational authority of $278.2 million being requested for 1967, $78.8 million applies to new construction projects, $49.0 million is applicable to construction projects previously authorized by the Congress, and $150.4 million is required for the acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction.

The funds applicable to previously authorized projects are primarily to provide additional design funds for a high intensity accelerator at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory for basic research in meson physics and to complete the funding of a project to increase the intensity characteristic of the high energy Alternating Gradient Synchrotron at Brookhaven National Laboratory.

New projects in the reactor development program include two facilities for the liquid metal fast breeder program: a fast flux test facility expected to cost about $75 million, for which initial design funds are requested, and a fast neutron generator at Argonne National Laboratory to make certain physics measurements necessary to the breeder program. Also included is $10 million to expand and modify the naval reactor facility at the National Reactor Test Station in Idaho to permit the development of improved naval reactors.

Other significant construction projects include a new biology laboratory for the Pacific Northwest Laboratory and two facilities to develop methods to produce and utilize radioisotopic fuels for SNAP devices (satellite and small power sources).

A wide variety of capital equipment is procured to fill the various needs of all operating programs. Such needs range from routine replacement of worn out and obsolete equipment to procurement of new research devices. The 1967 level will be lower than current levels, largely because of a reduced program for procurement of automatic data processing equipment.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Any appropriation available to the Atomic Energy Commission may initially be used subject to limitations in this Act during the current fiscal year [1966] to finance the procurement of materials, services, or other costs which are a part of work or activities for which funds have been provided in any other appropriation available to the Commission: Provided, That appropriate transfers or adjustments between such appropriations shall subsequently be made for such costs on the basis of actual application determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

Not to exceed 5 per centum of appropriations made available for the current fiscal year [1966] for "Operating expenses" and "Plant and capital equipment" may be transferred between such appropriations, but neither such appropriation, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be increased by more than 5 per centum by any such transfers, and any such transfers shall be reported promptly to the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate.

No part of any appropriation herein shall be used to confer a fellowship on any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence or with respect to whom the Commission finds, upon investigation and report by the Civil Service Commission on the character, associations, and loyalty of whom, that reasonable grounds exist for belief that such person is disloyal to the Government of the United States: Provided, That any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence and accepts employment or a fellowship the salary, wages, stipend, grant, or expenses for which are paid from any appropriation contained herein shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law. (42 U.S.C. 2011; 79 Stat. 1106.)

1. Operation of traffic control system.—This activity covers the operation on a daily 24-hour basis of a national system of air traffic management in the United States and its possessions. With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 28 centers monitor and control en route flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 300 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 343 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other information to pilots and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. Increases in 1967 for operating newly commissioned air traffic control facilities are offset by improved productivity and other cost reduction measures.

2. Installation and materiel service.—This activity covers the direction and engineering services related to the establishment and improvement of facilities and equipments in the traffic control system; procurement, contracting, and materiel management programs; supply support and leased communications services for the traffic control system; and supply support for Agency aircraft except for aircraft related to research and development programs. Increases in 1967 are to provide supply support and leased communications services for air traffic control and air navigation facilities. These added costs are offset in part by the discontinuance of nonessential facilities, and more efficient manpower utilization.

3. Maintenance of traffic control system.—This activity covers the technical operation and maintenance of a national network of air navigation and traffic control aids in the United States and its possessions. Increases in 1967 are for (1) maintenance of newly commissioned air traffic control and navigation aids procured and installed with funds appropriated under Facilities and equipment; (2) assumption of maintenance responsibility of aviation weather equipments previously maintained by the Environmental Science Services Administration; and (3) full-year cost of facilities and services operated on a part-year basis in 1966. These increases are offset by savings resulting from the discontinuance of nonessential facilities, and staffing reductions to be achieved through continued efforts toward increased productivity and more efficient manpower utilization.

4. Administration of flight standards.—This activity covers the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure the high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies that meet safety or competency requirements. Facility flight inspection functions and management and maintenance of Agency aircraft are also included in this activity.

5. Administration of medical programs.—This activity covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of a health and medical program for Agency personnel; the administration of an aviation medical research program, the project costs of which are financed under Research and development; and the operation of the Civil Aeromedical Research Institute building.

6. Research direction.—This activity covers (a) the planning, direction, and evaluation of the research and development program, the direct project costs of which are financed under the Research and development appropriation; and (b) administrative support for the operation of the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center at Atlantic City, N.J.

7. Administration of airports program.—This activity includes costs of preparing the annual National airport plan; development of airport planning, design, and construction standards; furnishing of planning and engineering advisory services; administration of the Federal-aid airport program; assuring compliance of public agencies with the provisions of agreements relating to airports; and promoting airport safety.

Under this appropriation, the Federal airways system is being improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities to keep pace with aeronautical activity. The appropriation also finances major capital investments required by other agency programs such as aircraft for facility flight inspection and experimental facilities for the research and development program. The 1967 estimate will carry forward the program to increase the capacity of the airways system and to make its operations more efficient and safer. It provides for continuation of major efforts, already underway, to automate the air traffic control system. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed by the appropriation entitled "Operations."

1. Air route traffic control centers.—(a) Long-range radar provides FAA air traffic controllers with information on aircraft positions at distances up to 185 miles. (b) Automation equipment covers computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling en route air traffic. (c) Other center facilities covers the installation of equipment to provide communications and related services.

2. Airport traffic control towers.—(a) Terminal area radar aids traffic control in the vicinity of airports by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 60 miles. (b) Other tower facilities cover the establishment, improvement, and relocation of airport traffic control tower facilities.

3. Flight service stations.—(a) Domestic flight service stations and associated facilities provide flight assistance service to pilots. (b) International flight service stations provide long-distance communications for transoceanic flights.

4. Air navigation facilities.—(a) Very high frequency omnidirectional radio ranges equipped with tactical air navigation capabilities (VORTAC) are standard short-range navigation aids used to define airways and air routes and to provide distance and direction information to pilots. (b) Low and medium frequency facilities include radio beacons and ranges which provide pilots with direction and weather information. (c) Instrument landing systems provide pilots with direction, distance, and glide slope information necessary for making the safe approaches to runways under poor visibility conditions. (d) Visual aids consist primarily of lighting aids which also assist the pilot in making final approaches to airport runways particularly in areas where terrain or other environmental factors cause potential hazards to safe landings. (e) Intermediate fields are emergency landing areas provided on a few air routes where public airports are not available.

5. Housing, utilities, and miscellaneous facilities.—This section includes general support facilities and items not covered elsewhere.

6. Aircraft and related equipment.—(a) Facility flight inspection covers aircraft and avionics equipment to inspect the accuracy and other characteristics of navigation and traffic control aids from the air. (b) Training covers aircraft used to provide flight training to Agency personnel and to maintain the proficiency of operations inspectors. (c) Multipurpose aircraft are used to provide logistics support for remote facilities, for use by Agency officials, and for other general purpose missions.

7. Research, test, and evaluation facilities.—This activity provides for the construction and improvement of plant and facilities at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center in Atlantic City. It also covers the procurement of capital items of equipment for use in the research and development program.

The Federal Aviation Agency carries out a program to improve and modernize the national system of aviation facilities through the development of new systems, procedures, and devices. The Agency also carries out a program of medical research to aid in the development of rules and regulations governing the certification of airmen and to assure aviation safety.

Research and development is conducted through contracts with qualified firms, universities, and individuals, or by Agency staff or other Government agencies. The data, procedures, or equipment resulting from this program are tested and evaluated to determine their potential value in meeting a variety of needs of the overall national airspace system.

Supervision and administrative support costs for the research and development program financed by this appropriation are covered by the Operations appropriation. Costs of acquiring experimental facilities and general-purpose equipment for the research program are included in the Facilities and equipment appropriation.

1. Air traffic control.—This provides for improving the airways system by applying existing technology to air traffic control problems to effect inservice improvements as required, by system modernization where necessary, and by long-range research and development to meet future needs. Studies of present airways system operations and future requirements and work in the fields of data processing and display, data acquisition, and communications are included.

2. Navigation.—This provides for modernization, expansion, and improvements of the common system navigation facilities in the United States and in overseas areas where international agreements require U.S. participation. Work in the fields of landing systems, short and long distance navigation, and flight inspection is included.

3. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to develop devices and improve techniques for the communication and display of weather information to aviation users. The effects of weather on air traffic management techniques and systems are also analyzed.

4. Airports.—This provides for research and experimentation to establish criteria for designing airports. Development and test of equipment located on the airport will also be continued.

5. Aircraft safety.—This activity provides for a program, coordinated with the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to study, develop, and evaluate devices to enhance the safety of civil aircraft by providing practical solutions to critical safety problems and a sound basis for airworthiness standards and safety regulations.

6. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting an aeromedical research effort directed toward the identification and elimination of those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize safety in flight.

This appropriation finances management, operations, protection and capital outlay costs for equipment and maintenance projects for the Washington National Airport. The 1967 request provides for an increased level of facility maintenance and servicing related principally to aging and increased usage of airport facilities. Actual and estimated passenger traffic for the period 1963-67 are as follows: 1963, 5.0 million; 1964, 5.9 million; 1965, 6.5 million; 1966, 7.0 million; and 1967, 7.5 million.

The operation of the airport is conducted on a business basis and shows overall a net income to the Government. Revenues derived from landing fees, concession activity, and lease arrangements are deposited as receipts in the U.S. Treasury. Direct operating costs and capital outlays are financed by direct appropriation.

The following statements reflect financial results of the total operations including computation of unfunded depreciation and interest on a basis comparable to that used by other major commercial airports, and total actual revenue together with amounts representing the value of services furnished other Government agencies for which no collections are made. This unrealized revenue includes landing fees for Government aircraft and rental charges for office and hangar space used by Government agencies.

This appropriation finances management, operation, protection and capital outlay costs for equipment and maintenance projects for the Dulles International Airport. The 1967 request provides for continuing approximately the present level of facility maintenance and servicing. The 5-year trend in passenger traffic for the airport is as follows: 1963, 0.4 million; 1964, 0.7 million; 1965, 0.9 million; 1966, 1 million; and 1967, 1.3 million.

The operation of the airport is conducted on a business basis. Revenues are deposited as receipts in the U.S. Treasury, and operating and capital outlays are financed by direct appropriation.

The following statements reflect financial results of the total operations, including computation of unfunded depreciation and interest on a basis comparable to that used by other major commercial airports.

Operations at the Dulles International Airport reflect a deficit. Activity and revenues in the first 3 years of airport operations have not developed as fast as originally anticipated. It now appears that it may take 35 years to recover the Government's investment in the airport.

Under the Federal Airport Act, grants are made to public agencies to aid the development and improvement of public airports. These grants generally cover 50% of project costs and are limited to facilities deemed essential for safe operation of aircraft at airports. Contract authorizations were provided for this program through 1961. These authorizations together with the appropriations to liquidate obligations incurred under the authorizations are reflected in the foregoing schedules.

Public Law 88-280 amended the Federal Airport Act to provide additional appropriation authorization of $75 million for each of the years 1965, 1966, and 1967. Public Law 88-507 appropriated $75 million for each of the years 1965 and 1966. Public Law 89-128 appropriated $71 million for 1967. This budget proposes that $21 million of this amount would be rescinded. This account covers appropriations authorized under that act as well as appropriations of prior years, beginning with 1962.

The following table summarizes activity under both the contract authority and that part of the program which is funded by direct appropriations:

This program is to assist the aviation industry in the development of a competitive commercial supersonic transport aircraft. The aim is to produce an aircraft that will fly nearly three times the speed of sound and will be safe and profitable in airline service.

An initial design competition among airframe and engine manufacturers has been completed. Of the six original participants, four (two airframe and two engine manufacturers) are now engaged in an advanced detailed design competition which is scheduled for completion by January 1967. The costs of the development work done during this phase are being shared 75 percent by the Government and 25 percent by the manufacturers. An appropriation of $140 million was enacted in 1966 for this work and certain supporting studies of sonic boom phenomena and the economics of supersonic aircraft. The amount of $80 million requested in this budget is to complete the design competition which involves the fabrication and test of critical airframe and engine components.

Recommendations will be made to the Congress with respect to the next phase of the supersonic aircraft development program.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders 1964, $1,701 thousand (1965 adjustments $66 thousand); 1965, $791 thousand; 1966, $551 thousand; 1967, $551 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the basic real property operations of General Services Administration, including acquisition, operation, maintenance, protection, and utilization of general-purpose buildings and space; and for overall direction of buildings design, construction, repair, and modernization.

The appropriation request for 1967 of $241,015 thousand is a net increase of $4,082 thousand above a comparable amount for 1966. The 1966 amount includes proposed transfers of $6,551 thousand for annual costs of expansion space acquired in 1965, not provided for in GSA's 1966 budget, and $402 thousand for operation of Pasadena, Calif., Area Support Center and Buildings 1, 2, 7 and 34, of the Seattle, Wash., Army Terminal. Also included is an estimate of $2,330 thousand proposed for separate transmittal for full-year costs of 1965 wage board increases effected between September 13, 1964, and June 30, 1965. The request for 1967 includes $169 thousand for full-year costs of wage board increases effected July 1 through September 11, 1965, but does not include increases effected subsequent to September 11, 1965.

The net increase of $4,082 thousand provides primarily for management and operation of new Federal buildings scheduled for occupancy in 1966 and 1967, offset by credits for space released resulting from new construction.

No funds are included in the 1967 estimate for agency expansion space to be leased after July 1, 1965. Such space will be reimbursable in 1966 and the full-year cost in 1967 will be financed by appropriation transfers.

The net increase for 1967 of $4,279 thousand over the comparable amount for 1966 is composed of increases in operation and protection of Government-owned space, $7,661 thousand; temporary space and moving costs incident to new buildings, $600 thousand; and moving, alterations and related costs, $650 thousand; offset by reductions in rental, operation, and protection of leased space, $4,632 thousand.

2. Space management.—This activity provides for (a) acquisition of real property by lease, purchase, exchange, or donation, including appraisal and management of building sites pending construction; (b) assignment and reassignment of Government owned and leased space; and (c) review, analysis, and determination of Federal space requirements and the development of programs and projects.

3. Design and construction.—This activity provides for overall direction of programs involving design, construction, and remodeling of Federal buildings.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, building management activities consisting of: Management, rental, operation, and protection of Government-owned and leased space in and outside the District of Columbia for housing Federal agencies; modernization and recurring repairs to Government-owned space under jurisdiction of General Services Administration; protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties; maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings; uniforms and uniform allowances; and other related building services (66 Stat. 594). Retained earnings resulting from operations, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Operating costs for 1967 are estimated at $361.9 million, a net increase of $9.4 million over 1966, mainly due to work which will be performed for the Post Office Department in connection with its modernization program, and additional Government-owned space to be serviced.

1. Buildings management—(a) Operation and protection of Government-owned space.—Provides for operation and protection of an average of 144.3 million square feet of space in 1967 compared to an average of 138.7 million square feet in 1966 and an average of 133.8 million square feet in 1965. The change from 1966 reflects net additional space to be serviced due to construction of new buildings, and certain buildings being transferred to GSA for operation and protection.

(b) Rental, operation, and protection of leased space.—Provides for an average of 41.4 million square feet in 1967 compared to an average of 43.4 million square feet in 1966 and an average of 43.6 million square feet in 1965, based on currently projected requirements of Federal agencies.

2. Moving and space alterations.—Provides for moving and related alterations based on experience factors of buildings management operations.

3. Temporary space and moving costs incident to new buildings.—Provides for cost of moving and space adjustments incident to the new construction program.

4. Protection and maintenance, surplus properties.—Provides for protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties.

5. Maintenance repairs.—Provides for day-to-day maintenance of GSA operated buildings, and other Government buildings under jurisdiction of GSA.

6. Security and special guarding.—Provides security and above normal guarding service required by other agencies.

7. Operating and maintenance of sites held for future construction.—Provides for maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings and repairs to improvements located thereon.

8. Job order work.—Provides for special services and repairs and improvements to buildings for GSA and other agencies. Increases in 1966 and 1967 are primarily for work which will be performed for the Post Office Department in connection with its modernization program.

9. Other.—Provides for program supervision of repair and improvement operations as distinguished from architectural and design activities initially financed from the Construction Services Fund, utility services furnished in the District of Columbia to buildings operated by other agencies, and utilities to concessionaires.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1965, the net investment in the fund was $1.5 million, composed of $3.5 million appropriated, $5.3 million capitalized assets, $0.7 million retained earnings, less $8 million provision for unfunded leave liability.

Construction service activities consisting of preparation of drawings and specifications for the construction or alteration of public buildings; supervision of construction and alteration activities; and surveys and test borings performed in connection with the acquisition of Federal building sites; and other related services are financed by this fund on a reimbursable basis from funds appropriated, transferred, or advanced to General Services Administration (40 U.S.C. 296).

Operations.—Initial financing of this fund provides for salaries and related expenses of all personnel engaged in architectural and engineering services in connection with buildings design and construction, both departmental and field. Estimates for 1966 and 1967 cover the GSA public building construction program, the repair and improvement program, and additional workload in connection with projects assigned to GSA by other Federal agencies.

Operating results.—Retained earnings will be increased in 1966 to approximately $150 thousand and maintained at that level.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1964, $1,479 thousand (1965 adjustments -$139 thousand); 1965, $1,132 thousand; 1966, $932 thousand; and 1967, $932 thousand.

This appropriation provides for (1) establishment of efficient supply property management practices throughout the Federal Government, and (2) expenses of operating the worldwide supply system through which commercial-type commodities are sold to Government agencies and cost-type contractors from depot stocks, or by direct delivery from suppliers, whichever is more economical and meets the needs of the Government. Except for customer orders placed directly with suppliers under Federal supply schedule contracts, most of the purchases of commodities are financed initially from the General supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Wherever economical and feasible, costs of commodities furnished directly from suppliers are paid directly from funds of the requisitioning agency without involving the General supply fund.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by the General Services Administration is as follows: 1965, $26 thousand; 1966, $24 thousand; 1967, $24 thousand.

1. Supply distribution.—Stocks of commercial-type commodities are received, warehoused, and issued on a worldwide basis to Federal agencies through a supply distribution system consisting of both wholesale and retail distribution facilities. Stores stock sales reflect a continuous increase, as follows: 1963, $259.7 million; 1964, $287.8 million; 1965, $343.9 million; and 1966 and 1967 estimated at $416.4 million and $425 million, respectively, including the cost of transportation to destination.

2. Procurement.—Commodities are procured to maintain inventories at stores depots to insure availability in advance of sales orders and for direct delivery to agencies. Term contracts for commercial-type commodities and services are established for large aggregate volume requirements against which agencies place individual orders at uniform price advantages. Total procurement in 1967 is estimated at $1,892 million compared to $1,887.3 million in 1966 and actual purchases of $1,621.3 million in 1965.

3. Quality control and standardization—(a) Inspection.—Quality control efforts in support of the procurement program assures compliance with the technical requirements of contracts by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or supply depots, by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance.

(b) Supply standardization.—Qualitative requirements of Federal agencies are reflected in Federal specifications, Federal standards, and Federal item identifications which are mandatory for use in procurement. These documents collectively provide for optimum expansion of supply support by GSA of commercial-type items to Federal agencies and for competitive procurement. The estimated workload for 1966 and 1967 is based primarily upon new items entering the national supply system requiring identification and specifications and revisions to existing specifications to reflect changing technology applicable to the current requirements of Federal agencies. The cataloging program results in establishing a uniform identification for each item of supply and establishes a basis for expanding supply support by GSA once the commonality of the items is determined. This activity also includes the responsibility of GSA to prescribe safety standards for automotive vehicles purchased by the Federal Government, as contained in Public Law 88-515, approved August 30, 1964.

4. Supply management.—This activity is the focal point for the development and advancement of an integrated national supply system for the Government. Supply management surveys are also conducted on Federal agencies' supply operations. In addition, supply management policies, procedures, methods, and information and training material are issued by this activity for Governmentwide application, and the supply data system of the Federal Supply Service is designed, installed, and maintained.

for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by using agencies are the operations of interagency motor vehicle pools established in areas of high vehicle density and the rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for continued increases in sales to military and civilian agencies in accordance with the national supply system concept. The estimate also contemplates the activation of additional motor vehicle pools.

Supply operations—(a) Stores, regular.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for issue to Government agencies. From an alltime high of $344.4 million in 1965, sales are estimated to increase to $416.4 million and $425 million in 1966 and 1967, respectively.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply and delivered directly to the customer. Sales were $38.3 million in 1965, and are estimated to increase to $54.5 million in 1966 and $60 million in 1967.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales through the fund are expected to increase from $211 million in 1965 to $242 million in 1966 and $249 million in 1967.

Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to oversea customers. Receipts to the fund covering packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services are expected to increase from $20 million in 1965 to $29.5 million in 1966 and $32.7 million in 1967.

Equipment rental.—Operating, administrative and automatic data processing equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts are estimated to increase from $0.7 million in 1965 to $2.5 million in 1966 and $3.7 million in 1967.

Rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment.—Furniture and equipment repair services, provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical, are expected to decrease from $4.5 million in 1965 to $2.2 million and $2 million in 1966 and 1967, respectively, due to greater emphasis on direct payments from agencies to contractors.

Motor pools.—Services are provided to agencies through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales are estimated to increase from $34.4 million in 1965 to $37 million in 1966 and $38.7 million in 1967.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1967 is estimated at $286.9 million consisting of $197.7 million direct appropriations, $82.7 million donated assets, $0.6 million capitalized surplus, and retained earnings of $6 million with $0.1 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

Upon establishment of interagency motor pools additional donated assets arising from transfers of motor vehicles from other agencies will be capitalized in the fund.

Any operating surplus, as determined by the General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Payments to be so made in 1966 and 1967 are $8 million and $6 million, respectively.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1964, $744 thousand (1965 adjustments -$40 thousand); 1965, $736 thousand; 1966, $768 thousand; 1967, $800 thousand.

This appropriation, derived from proceeds from the transfer of excess property and the disposal of surplus property, provides for all utilization and disposal functions of the General Services Administration with respect to excess and surplus real and personal property and the rehabilitation of personal property to be performed by the Utilization and Disposal Service. Exceptions to this are fees of auctioneers, brokers, etc., and reimbursable services performed under the personal property rehabilitation program, both of which are financed through other accounts.

The estimate for 1967 provides for continuing emphasis on reuse of existing real and personal property to obviate new capital and procurement outlays, and prompt disposal. After provision for pay act costs, the 1967 program accomplishments, personnel requirements, and resources required are estimated at the 1966 level with the exception of a reduction of $18 thousand in administrative operations and $174 thousand in cost of protection and maintenance of real properties pending disposal. The selling price of property and rental income is estimated at $113 million in 1967, the same as in 1966.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1965, $38 thousand; 1966, $10 thousand; and 1967, $10 thousand.

1. Real property.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties; (b) protection and maintenance of excess, surplus, and national industrial reserve properties; and (c) payments in lieu of taxes on certain properties as required by law. The decrease in 1967 is attributable to reduced cost of protection and maintenance of properties pending disposal. The estimate for 1967 provides for utilization transfers of 130 properties, sale of 300 surplus properties for $100 million, and other surplus disposals (donations, etc.) totaling 250 properties, the same as in 1966.

2. Personal property.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of excess personal property, thereby reducing new procurement; (b) donation of surplus personal property for public benefit purposes; (c) sale of surplus and exchange/sale personal property; and (d) rehabilitation of personal property owned by the Government to extend its useful life. The estimate for 1967 provides for: Utilization transfers and donations totaling $1,140 million at acquisition cost, proceeds from sale of surplus and exchange/sale property totaling $12 million, and rehabilitation of personal property amounting to $80 million at acquisition cost, the same as 1966.

1. Records management and centers.—Records of Federal agencies which must be retained for a period of time, but are not needed for frequent reference, are brought into and administered in regional Federal records centers serving specified geographical areas. National centers at St. Louis administer records of veterans of the armed services and records of former civilian employees of the Government and maintain a locator file for civilians currently employed. In addition to civilian agencies, records center facilities are now furnished to the entire Naval Establishment, the Army and Air Force at the seat of government, and for selected Army records throughout the world.

In 1967 records in custody of the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 9.3 million cubic feet. Reference services will total 5.4 million.

This fund, authorized by Public Law 87-847, approved October 23, 1962, finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government operationally compatible with military communications systems. The system provides local and long distance voice, teletype, data, facsimile, and other communications services.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from available appropriations and funds of any agency, organization, or persons for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

Initial capital of $9 million was appropriated by Public Law 88-25, approved May 17, 1963. This sum may be increased by donations of supplies and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1965 were $63.5 million and are estimated at $77.2 million in 1966 and $90.9 million in 1967.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which will enable personnel in each Federal agency office to communicate directly on a machine-to-machine or station-to-station basis with any other agency office in the Nation. The system will provide day-to-day service as well as incorporate features which would be necessary in emergency situations.

2. Record program.—A common unified system to satisfy record communications requirements of all Federal civil agencies provides machine-to-machine service for transmission of information by data, teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits, thereby obtaining benefit of multiple tariff offerings of the commercial carriers.

4. Special programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies in keeping with objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and for a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. These programs insure that the Federal Telecommunications System will remain operational in the event any portion of the normal system is disabled or destroyed.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1966 the net investment in the fund is estimated to be $6.2 million, composed of $9 million appropriated, $0.3 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each year any surplus earnings, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are to be deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1964, $2,009 thousand (1965 adjustments -$134 thousand); 1965, $1,740 thousand; 1966, $1,435 thousand; 1967, $1,435 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, custody, and disposal of strategic and critical materials in accordance with guidelines established by the Office of Emergency Planning and administering the inventory of machine tools and industrial manufacturing equipment established under the National Industrial Reserve Act of 1948. The 1967 obligational program of $19.8 million is a $2.4 million increase over 1966 due to the accelerated disposal of materials.

In arriving at remaining requirements to meet stockpile objectives, all U.S. Government inventories of strategic materials are taken into account. Total objectives are valued at $4,071.2 million using June 30, 1965, prices.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1965, $77 thousand; 1966, $68 thousand; and 1967, $68 thousand.

1. Acquisition of materials—(a) New materials.—Costs of direct acquisition of materials, including transportation and handling expenses, are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
New materials.....	271	525	605
(b) Upgrading materials —
Total cost or estimate.....	20	105	25

Stockpile materials are upgraded to more usable forms in order to provide a minimum readiness inventory of materials in forms suitable for immediate use to meet the initial surge of demand and abnormal conditions of intensive mobilization. Payment for all processing and transportation costs to the maximum extent possible will be made by transfer of excess materials to contractors. The 1967 estimate covers only handling cost involved in upgrading.

2. Inventory management.—Covers cost of maintaining materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles so that they will be available for immediate use in any emergency, including rotation, storage, special preservation, and disposal of materials no longer required for stockpile objectives. The acquisition cost of these materials as of June 30, 1965, was $6,791.1 million.

Rotation of materials.—No rotation is planned for 1967.

(a) Storage of materials.—Strategic and critical materials were stored at 152 locations as of June 30, 1965, utilizing approximately 94 million square feet of storage space. Materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles totaled approximately 45.2 million tons on June 30, 1965. Distribution of storage costs is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate

Relocation transportation and handling.....	777	120	662
Total cost or estimate.....	10,561	9,126	10,130

(b) Disposal of materials.—Covers handling and other expenses incurred in connection with the disposal of materials no longer required for stockpile objectives. Comparative data are shown in table below (in thousands of dollars):

	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
Total cost or estimate.....	1,938	3,388	4,129
Strategic and critical materials disposal sales (commitments).....	343,295	817,000	800,000
Other disposal sales (commitments).....	8,987	10,000	15,000

3. National industrial equipment reserve.—The reserve of Government-owned machine tools and other industrial manufacturing equipment authorized by the National Industrial Reserve Act of 1948 consists entirely of items selected by the Secretary of Defense from lists of such property declared excess to the needs of the three military departments and other executive agencies.

Items in the national industrial equipment reserve are intended primarily for expansion in an emergency of defense-supporting industries such as manufacturers of ball bearings, gears, tools, and dies, and machine tools. Each of the military departments also maintains a reserve of production equipment for current and mobilization requirements of direct military contractors and producers specifically designated as mobilization suppliers.

In accordance with Department of Defense estimates for total selections for the national industrial equipment reserve from excess declarations of production equipment, budget estimates are based on selection rates of 750 items in 1966 and in 1967. In addition to the 750 selections approximately 300 items in each year will be returned to storage from the school loan program.

During 1965, as authorized by the Department of Defense, GSA entered into 28 loan agreements with vocational schools for equipment in the national industrial equipment reserve where such loans are in the interest of national defense.

4. Operating expenses.—Covers all expenses at the central and regional office levels for administering programs financed under this appropriation head including the Defense Materials Service and the integrated staff offices of GSA. Total workload will increase based on the accelerated disposal programs with staffing and related expenses holding at minimum requirements.

Financial and legal servicing will also be required on approximately 20 cases in the hands of the Department of Justice under the complex food subsidy program. In 1967 administrative expenses in connection with financial and legal services will be absorbed in funds available from regular GSA programs.

Operating results.—Proceeds from liquidation will be paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

Central blueprinting, photostating, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund pending reimbursements (40 U.S.C. 293). The Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, authorized the establishment of 10 field printing plants in General Services Administration regional offices, in addition to the plant in Washington, D.C., to meet the needs of GSA and other Federal agencies. All authorized plants have been activated with the exception of the plant in Juneau, Alaska, scheduled to be activated in March 1966. In addition, 13 duplicating plants are now in operation, and it is anticipated that GSA will establish approximately 5 new centralized duplicating plants each year for the next several years.

Operating results.—Surplus earnings are deposited into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Through June 30, 1965, a total of $313 thousand has been deposited.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are receipts for services performed on Communications Satellite Corporation projects (42 U.S.C. 2473).

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was established October 1, 1958, pursuant to Public Law 85-568 (72 Stat. 426; 42 U.S.C. 2451) approved July 29, 1958, for the conduct of the nonmilitary space programs of the United States, including the exploration of space and its utilization for peaceful purposes, and to conduct and support advanced research and development related to space and aeronautics in support of both civilian and military requirements. This appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as follows:

1. Manned space flight.—The estimates for this activity include the Gemini, Apollo, and Advanced mission studies programs. Funding provides for all NASA manned space flight missions and the development of the required space vehicles. The objective of the manned space flight activity is to provide the capability for manned operations in space which will achieve and maintain a position of leadership for the United States and to demonstrate this capability by landing men on the moon and returning them safely to earth before the end of this decade. The first flight test of the complete manned lunar landing vehicle will occur during 1967.

(a) Gemini.—The Gemini objectives are to develop an extended operational capability for manned flight in space and to conduct experiments in support of Apollo and other programs. The missions include the development of earth orbital rendezvous techniques, flights of up to 2 weeks' duration in earth orbit, controlled reentry, operation of astronauts outside of their spacecraft, and experiments for manned lunar missions. Two unmanned and 10 manned flights have been planned. The first unmanned flight test was successfully completed in April 1964 and the second in January 1965. The first five 2-man flights were successfully accomplished in 1965, demonstrating extravehicular activity, human tolerance for long duration flights, and rendezvous of two spacecraft in orbit. The flight program will be essentially completed in 1966 with a final flight scheduled in 1967. The major effort will be devoted to the development of spacecraft rendezvous and docking techniques.

(b) Apollo.—The Apollo program is developing the capability to carry out major manned operations in space. It was established to meet the national goal of landing men on the moon and returning them safely to earth within this decade. The first flight phase includes unmanned flights to qualify the launch vehicles and spacecraft in the space environment. The second phase includes long duration manned earth-orbital flights and rendezvous experiments to validate the system for lunar missions. The third phase consists of flights which will land men on the moon to permit them to explore its surface, and return them to earth. The major effort in 1966 is on the continued development of the Saturn IB and Saturn V launch vehicles and the Apollo spacecraft. The Saturn IB will undergo its first development flight tests. The Saturn V development efforts will include extensive ground testing on components, systems, and stages; and acceptance testing of the stages for the first flight vehicle. The Apollo spacecraft ground test and development program and first flight phase will continue. In 1967, flights of the Saturn IB vehicle will continue and development flight tests of the Saturn V will commence. In addition to the primary effort on the manned lunar landing program, work will continue toward the utilization of Apollo-developed equipment for longer duration manned flights of scientific and engineering importance in the vicinity of the earth and the moon.

(c) Advanced mission studies.—The program objectives are to study present hardware systems for growth potential, to develop future systems requirements, and to establish valid technical information upon which future program decisions can be based. Earth orbital and lunar missions will continue to be studied for feasibility and desirability.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—The objectives of this activity are to increase our knowledge of the earth, interplanetary space, the moon, the sun, the solar system, other stars and galaxies, and the effects of the space environment on living organisms. The flight systems used are sounding rocket probes, orbiting observatories and explorers, lunar orbiting and landing spacecraft, as well as spacecraft designed for planetary and interplanetary missions.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—This program comprises a number of projects designed to obtain scientific data from near-earth space. Projects include orbiting solar, astronomical, and geophysical observatories, sounding rockets, explorer satellites and supporting research. The experiments range from solar radiation measurements to observations of infrared, X-ray, and gamma sources in outer space, and include determination of geophysical, magnetic, and atmospheric characteristics of the earth.

(b) Lunar and planetary exploration.—Unmanned exploration of the moon's surface, begun with the Ranger program, will be continued with Surveyor spacecraft which are capable of landing television equipment and other instruments on the moon and the Lunar Orbiter which will photograph and transmit back to earth pictures of large areas of the moon. Mariner-class flights to Venus in 1967 and Mars in 1969 are planned. Design studies of the Voyager spacecraft will continue, aimed toward a possible 1973 Mars landing. The Pioneer spacecraft program, which was successfully initiated in December 1965, will be continued to provide data simultaneously at widely separated points in space for studies in interplanetary phenomena.

(c) Bioscience.—In addition to ground based research, this program includes one flight project to determine effects of weightlessness upon primates, small animals, plants, and other biological specimens.

(d) Launch vehicle development.—The development of high-performance vehicles for unmanned flight projects is the objective of this program. Activity is directed at improvements of currently operational launch vehicles to support mission requirements; completion of the Centaur upper stage development; and studies of launch vehicle configurations to meet future requirements.

3. Space applications.—The NASA programs funded in this activity include development of meteorological satellites and applications technology satellites, and studies of communications satellite systems. Specific objectives of the NASA meteorological program are to improve satellite technology, to carry out instrumentation flight tests, to provide data for atmospheric science research, and to participate in the operational satellite system as required by the U.S. Weather Bureau. In the communications area, NASA is studying advanced satellite systems which would be capable of providing improved communications to an ever-increasing number of small terminals, such as aircraft, ships, and spacecraft; and improved navigation aids for air and surface vehicles. The objectives of the applications technology satellite program are to develop and flight test stabilized and synchronous orbiting spacecraft capable of demonstrating operational readiness of spacecraft components and systems applicable to meteorological, communications, scientific, and other space missions.

4. Space technology.—This activity comprises research and development work on space vehicle systems and related equipment and components required for space missions. Emphasis is placed on space vehicle and propulsion systems, and on the technology for applying nuclear power to space uses. Studies of the space environmental effects on man will be expanded. The improvement of electronic systems used for control, data acquisition, and communication will receive additional emphasis in 1967. Problems concerned with launch, atmospheric reentry, and recovery involve research in areas such as aerothermodynamics, structures and materials, and advanced vehicle concepts. Most of this research is conducted at NASA laboratories and special ground based test facilities.

5. Aircraft technology.—The objective of this activity is to serve the advancement of the national capability in aeronautics, and to support other Government agencies having aeronautical interests and responsibilities, such as the Department of Defense and the Federal Aviation Agency. In 1967 the aeronautical research effort will be continued in support of the supersonic transport and military aircraft development, utilization of the X-15 aircraft for flight research, and technological developments for short and vertical takeoff and landing aircraft. Basic research in the areas of aerodynamics, structures and loads, propulsion, and aircraft operations will be carried forward in support of anticipated advanced aircraft developments.

6. Supporting activities.—The three programs grouped in this activity provide general support for the attainment of NASA mission objectives.

(a) Tracking and data acquisition.—Operation and equipment of the stations of the NASA tracking and data acquisition networks are provided for here, as well as research and development to increase the capability of the specialized ground equipment.

(b) Sustaining university program.—This program includes training grants awarded to graduate science and engineering students, and broadly oriented research and facility grants to universities.

(c) Technology utilization.—The primary objective of this program is to facilitate and accelerate the transfer of new technological advances generated by NASA research into the nongovernmental sectors of the economy.

This appropriation provides for all administrative expenses of the Agency with the exception of those applicable to the Department of Medicine and Surgery.

The request for new obligational authority for 1967 is $1.9 million less than 1966. This reduction occurred even though 1967 full year requirements for the civilian pay raise caused an increase of $1.2 million over 1966. This is an effective reduction in operating expenses of over $3.1 million.

This decrease in new obligational authority is due primarily to (1) full year's savings from the reorganization of field installations including the consolidation of nine regional offices accomplished in 1966, (2) achievements in the Agency cost reduction program, and (3) increased productivity and declining workloads.

1. General administration.—In addition to the executive direction of the Agency, this activity covers the Board of Veterans Appeals, which decides cases of appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under veterans legislation.

2. Data management.—This activity is responsible for managing all automatic data processing operations. Further development of ADP applications and improvement of the systems capability will improve service to veterans, provide better information for management and research, and reduce operating costs.

3. Veterans benefits.—Veterans' and dependents' claims for compensation, pensions, or other benefits are adjudicated, and guardianship and fiduciary service is furnished helpless or incompetent veterans and minor dependents, as indicated by the following workloads (in thousands):

1. Medical research.—Medical research projects are conducted in Veterans Administration laboratories or in universities or other institutions on a contract basis, whichever is more advantageous or economical.

In addition to amounts provided for the medical research program by direct appropriation, an amount of $10,552,100 was available in 1965 in grants from the National Institutes of Health and from other organizations sponsoring research. Of this amount, $1,310 thousand represents grants made directly to the Veterans Administration, and grants totaling $9,242,100 made to various medical schools with which VA hospitals are affiliated. It is anticipated that approximately the same level of funding from these outside sources will be available in 1966 and 1967. This estimate does not include funding of research construction projects which are a part of the Construction of hospital and domiciliary facilities appropriation.

2. Prosthetic research.—This is a research program to develop and test prosthetic, orthopedic, and sensory aids for the purpose of improving the care and rehabilitation of disabled eligible veterans, including amputees, paraplegics, and the blind.

² Receipts from patients not eligible for veterans' benefits.

This appropriation provides for the cost of care of eligible beneficiaries in various facilities.

To be eligible for inpatient care, a beneficiary must be a war veteran with a service-connected disability incurred or aggravated during a period of war. Within the limits of Veterans Administration facilities, a veteran may receive care for any other disability if he is unable to defray the associated expenses. Outpatient medical and dental treatment is provided to veterans with service-connected disabilities in Veterans Administration clinics and by physicians and dentists participating in the hometown medical care program, to veterans receiving vocational rehabilitation who require treatment to avoid interruption of training, to pensioners of allied nations in World War I and in World War II, and to veterans of the Spanish-American War and other earlier conflicts. Examinations are also given for purposes of rating for compensation and pension, insurance, and determining the need for hospitalization or domiciliary care.

Medical services may be furnished on an outpatient basis for non-service-connected disabilities to veterans who have been determined to need hospital care and whose admission to a hospital has been scheduled, or who require post-hospital treatment to complete hospital care.

Increases in 1967 are for (a) annualization of Public Law 89-301 pay raise and within-grade salary increases, $11,614 thousand, (b) activation of an additional 2,000 nursing home care beds to a total of 4,000, $7,780 thousand, (c) initial and expanded medical services in existing facilities, $11,536 thousand, (d) increase in staffing levels for improved quality of medical care, $8,518 thousand, (e) increased usage of utilities, communications, drugs, medicines, linens, prosthetic appliances, and medical supplies, $3,021 thousand, (f) increased minor improvements, operating and building service equipment requirements, $12,418 thousand, and (g) an increase in medical fees paid under the hometown care program, $600 thousand.

The requirements presented in this budget submission take into consideration the contemplated receipt in 1967 of an equivalent amount of property and supplies from other Federal agencies or from the general post fund, national homes, Veterans Administration to that experienced in 1965 which had an acquisition value of $3,313 thousand. This does not, however, represent the value of the items when transferred. The requirements presented also take into consideration the cost of care of an estimated average of 250 patients who are admitted as beneficiaries of other Federal agencies or are emergency humanitarian admissions as experienced in 1965. Reimbursement for the full cost of this care is anticipated.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation, pensions and related benefits to veterans and their dependents. In June 1965 there were an estimated 21.8 million living veterans of which 3.2 million (14.7%) were receiving benefits under this appropriation. In addition, 1.9 million dependents of deceased veterans were receiving benefits. Payments made during the current and budget years are significantly affected by the enactment of recent legislative amendments. Among these are (1) the full year effect of Public Law 88-664 which increased most pension rates on January 1, 1965, for an estimated additional annual cost of $188 million, (2) the rate increases and other liberalizations, primarily affecting disability compensation benefits, provided by Public Law 89-311, effective December 1, 1965, which is estimated to cost $103 million in 1966 and $176 million in 1967, and (3) four other new laws, with a total annual cost effect of about $48.8 million. Nevertheless, decreases in the disability compensation and pension caseloads projected in 1967 cause a net decline in costs as set forth in the statements for these categories which follow.

A supplemental appropriation in 1966 of $288 million is anticipated as shown under Proposed for separate transmittal.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is payable to living veterans for a disability connected with military service and compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation is payable to eligible dependents of deceased veterans for death connected with military service.

The caseload of veterans reflects a static trend through 1966, decreases in World War I and II cases being offset by increases in Korean conflict and peacetime rolls. For 1967, the accelerating decrease in World War I and II rolls will produce a shift to a lower overall trend, which is reflected in the 1967 cost projection. The increases in average payment estimated for 1966 and 1967 are attributable to the rate increases provided by Public Law 89-311, effective December 1, 1965.

For survivors the caseload continues to decline while the average payment per case rises due to (1) increases in dependency and indemnity compensation payments to widows attributable to the Uniformed Services Act of 1965, and (2) to the effect of Public Law 89-311 which extended the age limitation from 21 to 23 for children attending school.

2. Pensions.—Benefits are payable to wartime veterans and dependents of deceased veterans for non-service-connected disability and death. Most of these payments were increased by Public Law 88-664. A small decline in the caseload of veterans is expected in 1967 due to the fewer number of Spanish-American and World War I veterans expected to be continued on the pension roll. This projection is based on assumptions concerning mortality trends, especially as they relate to World War I veterans in the 65-74 age group with decreases due to deaths only partially offset by the relatively few remaining eligible World War I veterans who have never applied for pension. The average annual payment increased in 1965 and is expected to increase in 1966 due to the higher rates available under Public Law 88-664. There is a minor increase in 1967 due to Public Law 89-311 which liberalized age requirements for children attending school and eliminated age as a factor for entitlement to the Special Medal of Honor pension benefit.

For survivors, a steady increase in caseload is projected for 1966 and 1967. The average payment increased in 1965 and is estimated to increase in 1966 due to the higher rates afforded by Public Law 88-664 and to Public Law 89-311 which extended the age limitation from 21 to 23 for children attending school.

3. Other.—These miscellaneous benefits cover payments which are not readily combined with any one of the preceding compensation or pension categories.

(a) Retired officers.—Emergency officers of World War I and certain officers of the Regular Establishment who have retired because of service-connected disability are entitled to special benefits. The caseload is declining steadily from an actual of 1,092 in 1964 to an estimated 910 in 1967. The increase in average payment in 1965, from $2,437 to $2,460, is attributable to regulatory adjustments to retired officers pay to reflect changes in the consumer price index. Estimated increases in these rates to $2,561 in 1966 and to $2,577 in 1967 are attributable to Uniformed Services Act of 1965.

(b) Adjusted service and dependents pay.—Claims made pursuant to the provisions of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act of 1924, as amended, are payable from this appropriation. If the amount of adjusted service credit was more than $50 the veterans were entitled to receive adjusted service certificates. The payment of adjusted service certificates was heretofore made from an adjusted service certificate fund. Activities of this fund were transferred in 1966 to this appropriation.

During 1965, $1,164 in adjusted service and dependents pay was paid to eligible beneficiaries, and it is anticipated $1,000 will be expended in 1966 for this purpose. With the transfer of adjusted service certificate fund activities, it is anticipated that costs will increase by $54,058 in 1966 and $39,000 in 1967.

(c) Subsistence allowance.—Payments are made to disabled veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation and education programs. The increase in costs in 1965 is attributable to delayed impact on caseloads resulting from Public Law 87-815, which entitles certain disabled peacetime veterans to these benefits. Estimated caseloads and increased costs are attributable to Public Laws 89-137, effective October 1, 1965, and 89-138, effective August 26, 1965, which liberalized eligibility criteria and monthly allowances, respectively.

(d) Burial benefits.—The Administrator is currently authorized to (1) pay an allowance of $250 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) to cover the burial and funeral expenses of a deceased veteran and (2) furnish a flag to drape the casket of each deceased veteran entitled thereto. The increase in costs is directly related to the estimated increase in veterans deaths.

(e) Special allowances, dependents.—Under certain conditions, a special allowance (38 U.S.C. 412) is payable to dependents of certain veterans who died after December 31, 1956, but who were not fully and currently insured under the Social Security Act. The estimated increases projected assume that current strengths and death rates for the Armed Forces will be maintained through 1967.

Approximately 175 cases were paid in 1965, 200 cases are estimated for 1966 and 250 cases for 1967.

(f) Invalid lifts and other devices.—The Administrator may furnish an invalid lift to veterans in receipt of pension under 38 U.S.C. 617 based on the need of regular aid and attendance. A negligible change in lifts furnished has occurred, but a rise anticipated in 1966 is associated with certain benefits afforded by Public Law 88-450.

(g) Tort claim settlements.—Payment of compromises or settlements under 38 U.S.C. 351 resulting from litigation under the Federal Tort Claims Act are made from this appropriation.

During 1965, 11 compromise payments were made at a cost of $272,716. Compromise payments for 1966 and 1967 are estimated at $400 thousand for each year.

This appropriation provides educational assistance allowances for eligible children under the War Orphans' Educational Assistance Act of 1956, as amended, and special assistance to disabled veterans in the form of vocational rehabilitation, housing grants and automobiles or other conveyances.

Supplemental appropriations of $5 million for 1966 and $100 million for 1967 are anticipated under Proposed for separate transmittal.

1. Education and training.—Sons and daughters in training under the War Orphans' Educational Assistance Act of 1956, as amended, will reach their peak load in 1966, as the post-war children of World War II veterans (permanently and totally disabled due to military service), are attaining the age for entrance into institutions of higher learning. Public Law 89-222, effective November 1, 1965, increased the educational assistance allowance for these trainees. Public Law 89-349, approved November 8, 1965, extended these benefits to the children of veterans who served during peacetime subsequent to the Spanish-American War and prior to September 16, 1940.

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover costs of tuition, books, supplies and equipment. Public Law 89-138, approved and effective August 26, 1965, extended the time available to seriously disabled veterans for pursuing vocational rehabilitation training. Grants are provided for specially adapted housing to veterans having suffered the loss of both feet, to certain blind veterans, and to paraplegic veterans. Up to $1,600 is allowed certain disabled veterans toward the purchase of automobiles or other conveyances.

1. Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made for claims on war-risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I. Although no policies of this insurance remain in force, payments for death and disability claims continue. Payments are made also to the United States Government life insurance fund for claims (1) traceable to extra hazards of military service and (2) for claims while insured was under premium waiver provisions in active military service.

a. Payment to U.S. Government life insurance fund.—Transfers are made to reimburse the fund for the above purposes.

(2) Death awards.—Upon the death of a veteran receiving payments for disability, the remaining value of the policy is paid to the beneficiary as a death award.

2. National service life insurance.—This appropriation pays certain expenses of the National service life insurance fund and receives premiums and pays claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to certain disabled veterans of World War II. Authorization of appropriation of premium receipts is provided by 38 U.S.C. 719(b).

a. Payment to National service life insurance fund.—(1) For death claims traceable to extra hazards of service an amount is transferred from this appropriation, which, when added to the reserve of the policy, is equal to the actuarial value of the claim. In the event of total disability traceable to extra hazards of service, an amount is transferred from this appropriation sufficient to meet the current payments from the fund. (2) Gratuitous insurance was issued to aviation cadets and to certain persons who were unable to make application for National service life insurance. Under a court ruling in 1964 gratuitous insurance payments are made to illegitimate children previously denied recognition. (3) The fund is reimbursed when recovery of erroneous payments or overpayments is waived. (4) The fund is reimbursed for death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured is on active military duty.

(3) Claims are paid on death which occurred after application, but before effective date of a National service life insurance policy. (4) Claims may be paid in certain cases in which insurance was discontinued because the insured was discharged to accept a commission, was absent without leave, or was court-martialed. These funds provide for the construction of new hospital and domiciliary facilities, replacement and relocation of existing hospitals and domiciliaries, acquisition of sites, modernization and other improvements, alterations, and additions for medical research facilities, nursing home beds, regional offices, supply depots, and data processing centers, including construction planning, administration and related staff activities. This estimate is for the seventh increment for financing a 15-year program to modernize the hospital system. While this program will be primarily for improvements to the older (pre-World War II) hospitals, it will also provide for replacement of 12 hospitals acquired from military surplus, for air conditioning where indicated and for the correction of deficiencies in post-World War II hospitals as necessary to bring them up to more modern medical standards.

A construction program of $52,125 thousand is recommended for 1967 to be financed with new obligational authority. The amount for construction of replacement and relocation hospitals includes $1,500 thousand for site acquisition for a 960-bed hospital at Detroit, Mich.; $500 thousand for planning modernization or replacement of 480 psychiatric beds at Hines, Ill.; $16,799 thousand to complete a 480-bed hospital at Northport, N.Y.; and $13,261 thousand to complete a 720-bed hospital at Tampa, Fla. The amount for modernization and other improvement projects includes $830 thousand to continue projects for which planning is in process and $14,348 thousand for new projects which will ultimately cost $45,180 thousand. The amount for research facilities includes $1,434 thousand to continue projects for which planning is in process and $1,322 thousand for new projects which will ultimately cost $2,347 thousand. Six thousand dollars is included in other facilities for the purchase of 51.6 acres of leased land at Somerville, N.J., Supply Depot. Also included is $2,125 thousand for planning, administration, and related staff activities.

1. Hospitals—(a) New.—This activity covers the new hospitals and bed-addition projects authorized in 1947 and subsequent years. This part of the 15-year program was completed with the opening of the Washington, D.C., 710-bed hospital in 1965.

(b) Replacement and relocation.—Beds which are housed in temporary, obsolete, or hazardous structures are to be replaced or relocated. The program initiated in 1955, currently includes 28 projects for approximately 20,439

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $55,063 thousand in 1966 and it is estimated sales will be $57,775 thousand during 1967.

Financing.—No appropriation by the Congress will be required for the operation of the Veterans Canteen Service during 1967. Operations will be financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service. Funds in excess of the needs of the Service totaling $11,020 thousand have been paid to the Treasury as of June 30, 1965.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses. Funds at the close of the year in excess of the needs of the service for the ensuing year will be paid to the Treasury.

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

Direct loans are made to purchase, construct, or improve a home; to purchase a farm on which there is a farm residence to be occupied by the veteran as his home; or to construct, alter, repair or improve a farm dwelling to be occupied by the veteran as his home.

Such loans are made only in rural areas, small cities, and towns where private credit for the making of GI loans is and has been generally unavailable. The maximum loan amount is $15 thousand and the maximum term is 30 years. The interest rate is the same as the rate allowable for GI loans (38 U.S.C., section 1811 as amended).

Budget program—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Under existing legislation, authority to make or to enter into commitments to make loans expires July 25, 1967, for World War II veterans, and January 31, 1975, for Korean

2. Cash advances—vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government. These advances are added to the unpaid loan balances.

3. Property improvements.—Properties are acquired by foreclosure on, or the voluntary conveyance of, title to properties securing loans owned by the Veterans Administration. Capital expenditures are often necessary to put the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures.

	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
Average number of properties owned.....	671	561	506
Average per property.....	$215	$294	$294

4. Interest on borrowings from Treasury.—The sale of direct loans and mortgage pool participation certificates will increase the cash balance of the fund, which will reduce the amount of interest paid to the Treasury.

5. Operating expenses, general.—Includes a variety of miscellaneous expenses borne by the Government incident to closing and liquidating loans.

6. Property management expense.—Includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers and maintenance of the property in a salable condition:

7. Property sales expense.—Includes brokers fees and advertising costs incident to the sale of properties owned by Veterans Administration and averages approximately 5% of the selling price.

Number per sales.....	1,306	1,400	1,375
Average per sale.....	$448	$500	$500
Total cost (in thousands).....	$585	$700	$700

8. Commission on sale of participation certificates—Government mortgage liquidation trust.—The Veterans Administration's portion of brokerage fees charged by the private underwriters who market participation certificates for the Federal National Mortgage Association. Decrease in 1967 is in line with the fewer number of participations sold.

Financing.—Public Law 87-84, approved July 6, 1961, authorizes the Veterans Administration to draw $1.2 billion from the U.S. Treasury at stated intervals through 1967 with the provision that after the first year (1962) the amount so authorized was to be reduced by the amount of loans sold in the preceding year. Through 1965, $400 million was borrowed from the Treasury and $334.2 million lapsed due to loan sales in prior years. The Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1966 reduced the amount to be advanced after June 30, 1965, to the Direct loan revolving fund by $100 million. No borrowings are contemplated in 1966 or 1967. Therefore, appropriation language is proposed to rescind the 1967 authorization.

Mortgage pools.—This fund received $93 million in 1965 from the sale of participation certificates in the Government mortgage liquidation trust, authorized by the Housing Act of 1964, Public Law 88-560. These estimates include revenue of $625 million in 1966 and $154 million in 1967 from the sale of additional mortgage pool participation certificates.

Note.—The above statement excludes the following exchanges of nonworking capital assets: The settlement of VA-guaranteed or insured loans by the acquisition of real property (1965, $282,712 thousand; 1966, $297,200 thousand; 1967, $280,550 thousand); the settlement of defaulted VA-owned loans by acquisition of real property (1965, $43,024 thousand; 1966, $49,803 thousand; 1967, $53,995 thousand); the acquisition of vendee loans in exchange for real property (1965, $362,219 thousand; 1966, $355,680 thousand; 1967, $355,680 thousand).

The Loan guaranty revolving fund was established at the beginning of 1962 by 74 Stat. 533, in order that the revenues obtained from principal repayments and proceeds of sales of vendee accounts, principal payments on acquired loans, income from interest payments on such assets, and miscellaneous income such as rental of properties, could be used to defray part of the expenses for paying claims, acquiring properties, managing and selling properties.

Budget program.—The activities indicated in tables 1 and 2 below represent the number of each asset acquired on a check-issued basis.

1. Real property acquisitions.—Private lenders who have acquired property as a result of foreclosure on defaulted guaranteed or insured loans may elect to convey that property to the Veterans Administration. The table below reflects this activity and excludes the amount of indebtedness established against the veteran:

Total cost (in thousands).....	$255,937	$269,700	$253,750

2. Property improvements.—After conveyance of the property to the Veterans Administration, capital expenditures are often necessary to place the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

Average number of properties owned.....	18,325	15,684	12,872
Average cost per property.....	$352	$375	$375
Total cost (in thousands).....	$6,446	$5,880	$4,830

3. Claims paid.—These payments are made to lenders in accordance with the Veterans Administration guaranty contract and represents the difference between the amount owed by the veteran on a defaulted loan and the value of the foreclosed property (as established by Veterans Administration). These payments are in addition to property acquisition cost shown in 1, above. The table below reflects this activity.

4. Repurchase of loans sold, net.—Pursuant to Veterans Administration Regulation 4600, dated March 22, 1962, the Administrator may sell mortgage loans, which have been created incident to the sale of Veterans Administration acquired properties, with full recourse:

5. Cash advances—vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government.

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when it is felt that temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default.

7. Commission on sale of participation certificates—Government mortgage liquidation trust.—Represents the Veterans Administration portion of the cost of marketing serial participation certificates through a nationwide group of underwriters, by the Federal National Mortgage Association or trustee for the Government mortgage liquidation trust. These costs increase in direct proportion to the amount of sale of participations in the trust.

8. Property management expense.—Includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers and maintenance of the property in a salable condition.

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income and repayments on mortgage loans made incident to the sale of real property acquired as a result of foreclosure on guaranteed loans. It is estimated that $61.0 million in 1966 and $49.7 million in 1967 will be received from these sources. Also an estimated $260 million vendee loans will be sold in 1966 and $290 million in 1967.

The Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1966 (79 Stat. 538) provided authority to transfer from the Direct loan revolving fund unobligated balances, including retained earnings, up to $210 million as needed. The statute also provided that the Administrator of Veterans Affairs shall not be required to pay interest on amounts so transferred after the time of such transfer. Language is proposed for the transfer of unobligated balances including retained earnings that hereafter may be available to the Loan guaranty revolving fund as may be necessary.

Mortgage Pools.—The estimate includes $200 million in proceeds from sale of mortgage participation certificates in 1966 and an additional $106 million in mortgage participation certificates to be marketed in 1967.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities but who are otherwise insurable (38 U.S.C. 722). Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as new deaths occur among the increasing number of policyholders.

2. Cash surrenders and matured endowments.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

4. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1964	June 30, 1965	June 30, 1966	June 30, 1967

Insurance in force.....	$495,441	$525,844	$565,500	$609,000

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are derived from the appropriation Veterans insurance and indemnities, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $3 million in 1966 and $4 million in 1967.

Operating results and financial condition.—Because premium and other receipts continue to be insufficient to cover operations, the deficit is expected to continue to increase with capital impairment reaching an estimated $42.9 million by June 30, 1967.

The capital of the fund consists of $4.5 million with $1 million transferred from Readjustment benefits appropriation in 1954 and $3.5 million appropriated directly in 1952, 1956 and 1958.

This fund finances claims arising from the guarantee of premiums due on commercial life insurance policies held by servicemen while they are in service and for 2 years after discharge (72 Stat. 487). The Government guarantees the repayment of any indebtedness not liquidated by the insured himself. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation General operating expenses.

Budget program—Insurance program.—Claims paid, on applications for coverage submitted and approved prior to October 6, 1942, are not reimbursable to the fund. Claims receivable are established for any payments made on applications for coverage submitted after that date, since these payments are reimbursable to the fund.

The activity of the fund is indicated in the following table:

Financing.—Payment of claims against this fund is financed from collections of claims receivable, revenue, and appropriations as needed.

Operating results and financial condition.—The payment of claims has continually resulted in expenses in excess of the small revenue of the fund, thereby steadily increasing the deficit to an estimated $2 million through 1967.

SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' CIVIL RELIEF

For payment of claims as authorized by article IV of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940, as amended (50 U.S.C. App. 540-548), $25,000, to remain available until expended. (Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1966.)

This fund finances payment of claims and administrative costs on nonparticipating insurance policies issued after April 30, 1965, and prior to May 3, 1966, under the three insurance programs—(1) service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) non-service-disabled insurance—established by provisions of the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended (38 U.S.C. 725(b)(c)), to extend a new opportunity for insurance coverage to disabled veterans who no longer are eligible for other Government insurance.

Each program is self-contained and premiums may be adjusted to insure that each is self-sustaining, as required by law. For this purpose, separate accounting and actuarial records are maintained for each program to determine individual program cost.

1. Service-disabled standard insurance program.—Claims are paid on policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities, but who were otherwise insurable according to the standards of good health established by the Administrator.

Insurance in force (in thousands).....	$100,340	$1,112,000	$1,072,000

2. Service-disabled rated insurance program.—Claims are paid on policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities who do not qualify for insurance at standard premium rates solely because of their service-incurred disability.

	June 30, 1965	June 30, 1966	June 30, 1967
Number of policies.....	83	10,000	9,100
Insurance in force (in thousands).....	$660	$80,000	$72,800

3. Non-service-disabled insurance program.—Claims are paid on policies issued to veterans with non-service-incurred disabilities who are unable to obtain commercial insurance at substandard rates. The mortality rate will be exceptionally high because of the reduced average life expectancy of the insureds.

	June 30, 1965	June 30, 1966	June 30, 1967
Number of policies.....	1,000	900
Insurance in force (in thousands).....	$8,000	$7,200

4. Service charge program.—Amounts collected from policyholders which are applicable to the administration of the three insurance programs are credited to this program. Payments are made to the General operating expenses appropriation to cover the administrative cost of issuing insurance policies, processing claims, and maintaining accounts and to the general fund receipts of the Treasury for interest payments. The $1,650 thousand borrowed will be repaid to the Treasury as soon as practicable.

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums collected from policyholders and it is anticipated that these collections will eventually exceed administrative expenses sufficiently enough to overcome the deficit and allow the program to operate on a self-sustaining basis.

This fund finances the payment of claims on non-participating insurance policies issued before January 1, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1951 (38 U.S.C., sec. 723). Policyholders were given the right (72 Stat. 1716) to convert to a permanent plan of insurance or to a new form of term insurance which may not be renewed beyond age 50 but which costs less than the unlimited term insurance. Those who converted to a permanent plan also acquired the right to purchase total disability income coverage with an additional premium. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation General operating expenses.

Budget program—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as deaths occur among policyholders.

2. Disability claims.—Payments to individuals who have purchased total disability coverage and who subsequently become totally disabled began in 1960.

3. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

5. Policy loans made.—The policyholders who converted their insurance from term to permanent plan were subsequently entitled to borrow up to 94% of the cash value of the new policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1964	June 30, 1965	June 30, 1966	June 30, 1967
Number of policies.....	645,298	641,304	637,000	632,000
Insurance in force.....	$5,674,079	$5,636,283	$5,596,000	$5,543,000

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have been reduced by payments of a special dividend and payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund.

This fund finances the payment of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act of 1965 (38 U.S.C. sec. 765-776) and any expenses incurred by the Veterans Administration in administration in this act.

Budget program—1. Premium payments.—The estimated payment of premiums to private insurance companies in 1966 of $54.3 million represents 9 months coverage of insured members. The payment in 1967 of $72.5 million represents coverage of insured members for 12 months.

2. Payment to General operating expenses appropriation.—The 1966 administrative costs to the Veterans Administration is estimated at $83 thousand. These costs for 9 months in 1966 exceed the 1967 estimated administrative costs of $35 thousand due to the initial cost of instituting the new program.

Financing.—Premium costs are met by withholding from the salaries of insured members their share of the cost of the insurance and by contributions of amounts representing the extra hazard costs from appropriations of the departments involved.

Operating results.—Retained earnings are reserved for contingencies.

The supply fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, warehouse inventories and procurement of supplies and certain equipment throughout the Veterans Administration in accordance with the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5011, and nonperishable subsistence and drugs for other civilian agencies.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for the procurement of supplies and equipment, the maintenance and operation of three supply depots, located at Hines, Ill., Somerville, N.J., and Wilmington, Calif., the operation of service and reclamation program from each supply depot, a centralized periodical procurement activity, and printing service to VA installations on a centralized basis.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant in Arlington, Va., and from commercial sources.

The VA has been delegated responsibility for the acquisition of nonperishable subsistence and drugs required by the civilian agencies. Contracting and purchasing of these commodities began in the latter part of 1961.

Personal services and other costs incidental to the operation and administration of supply activities in the Veterans Administration central office and field organizations are charged directly to applicable appropriations and are not an operating expense of the supply fund.

Financing.—Consuming appropriations reimburse the fund for the cost of supplies and equipment provided and services rendered. Operating costs are recovered from the appropriations receiving supplies, equipment and services at time of reimbursement.

Operating results and financial condition.—The deficit of $221 thousand in 1964 was reduced to $213 thousand by a gain of $8 thousand in 1965. It is anticipated that the fund will recover this loss in 1966.

The Alaska Omnibus Act (Public Law 86-70), approved June 25, 1959, authorized the President to appoint a temporary commission to settle any disputes arising between the United States and the State of Alaska concerning the conveyance of property. A dispute arose concerning certain property controlled by the Fish and Wildlife Service of the Department of the Interior and the Commission was established on March 5, 1964, by Executive Order No. 11144. Funds were appropriated for 1965 to cover Commission expenses. The Commission has completed its determinations and has advised the interested parties regarding details of the final settlement.

The American Battle Monuments Commission maintains the World War I and World War II American military cemeteries in foreign countries and the memorials in the war areas commemorating the participation of the American Armed Forces. There are 11 memorials and 8 cemeteries, each with a memorial chapel, at World War I sites, and 14 cemeteries and memorials at World War II sites. Interred in these cemeteries are the remains of 124,104 service men and women, and an additional 91,419 missing and unidentified are commemorated by the inscribing of their names upon the walls of these and other memorials erected by the Commission in the United States. In addition, the Commission maintains the U.S. National Cemetery, Mexico City, Mexico. Each year large numbers of American tourists and local citizens visit the cemeteries and memorials to pay homage and to view these points of historic, as well as artistic, interest.

The Commission is responsible also for the planning and construction of all military memorials.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1964, $0; 1965, $188 thousand; 1966, $888 thousand; 1967, $488 thousand.

Public Law 88-609 approved September 22, 1964, authorizes a Commission to study the feasibility of constructing a sea-level canal between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans; the cost of this study is not to exceed $17,500 thousand, and is to be completed by June 30, 1968.

The President appointed the Commission, consisting of five men from private life, on April 18, 1965. The Commission has initiated a full and complete investigation, including engineering studies and considering national defense, foreign relations, intercoastal shipping, inter-oceanic shipping, and such other matters as they may determine to be important, and will prepare a report setting forth its findings and conclusions on the feasibility of and most suitable site for an interoceanic sea-level canal, the best means of construction, whether by conventional or nuclear means, and the estimated cost.

The $7,400 thousand appropriated in 1965 and 1966 is being used to implement the Commission's plan for study. This plan for study includes investigations of alternate routes connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans as well as detailed studies for conversion of the present Panama Canal to a sea-level canal.

The appropriation presently estimated at $6,500 thousand for 1967 will be required to continue the feasibility studies as defined in the plan for study.

1. Recruiting and examining.—Most appointments in the competitive Civil Service are made under the open competitive merit system through examinations held by the offices of the Commission and its boards of examiners, made up of agency personnel operating under the supervision of the Commission. Appointments through such competitive examinations will accord career or career-conditional status. Physically handicapped persons are given special placement attention. Veterans are aided in securing the benefits to which they are entitled.

At the President's direction the Civil Service Commission is proceeding to establish interagency boards of examiners, which will consolidate existing boards and provide more efficient, effective, and convenient service to persons seeking Federal employment.

This fund finances on a reimbursable basis, full field security investigations performed at the request of other departments and agencies of the Government (66 Stat. 107).

Budget program.—Because work on some investigations will be started in one fiscal year and completed in another, work-in-process is recognized as an asset of the fund. Agency estimates of investigations to be requested in 1966 and 1967 as compared to 1965 experience, are presented below. In addition, the table relates estimated workload receipts to estimates of production, average positions, and unit costs.

The Export-Import Bank of Washington was organized in 1934 and its existing programs are authorized under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended. The purpose of the Bank is to aid in financing of U.S. exports. The major types of financing are loans to foreign borrowers, credit insurance issued to U.S. exporters, and guarantees issued to U.S. commercial banks. Insurance is issued by the Foreign Credit Insurance Association. The bank extends credit only when in its judgment private capital is not available, and encourages private participation in the credits extended. In all its activities the Bank is required to find reasonable assurance of repayment.

Public Law 88-101, approved August 20, 1963, extended the life of the Bank to June 30, 1968; increased from $7 billion to $9 billion the total amount of loans, guarantees, and insurance which the Bank may have outstanding at any one time; and increased from $1 billion to $2 billion the amount of guarantees and insurance which may be issued on a fractional reserve basis.

The Bank's receipts exceeded expenditures in 1965 by $357 million. Three factors are mainly responsible. First, the volume of short- and medium-term loans which previously were made directly by the Bank are now being made by private credit sources under the Bank's program of guarantees to commercial banks or the reinsurance of policies issued by the Foreign Credit Insurance Association. Second, the Bank has been successful in selling portfolio securities to commercial banks and thereby enlisting their participation in the sale of U.S. exports. Finally, the Bank has been receiving sizable prepayments from European governments, principally France, on loans made for purposes of reconstruction shortly after World War II.

The Bank's new program activity totaled $941 million in 1965 and is expected to increase to $1,185 million in 1966 and $2,108 million in 1967. Gross authorizations were $1,859 million in 1965 and are estimated to be $2,253 million in 1966 and $3,130 million in 1967. As in past years, most Bank lending was in the form of equipment and services loans to foreign borrowers.

The following tables show the contemplated 1967 new program activity of the Bank compared to the actual for 1965 and the estimate for 1966.

Equipment and services loans.—Equipment and services loans have been made in more than 80 countries of the free world. These loans have financed the purchase of U.S. goods and services and have assisted the economic development of the recipient countries through projects involving establishment of new industries, expansion and modernization of manufacturing plants, electric power facilities, highway construction, railroad modernization, and development of natural resources. Thousands of U.S. manufacturers have received orders as a result of this program.

Exporter loans.—Exporter loans are medium-term credits which finance exports of capital equipment, consumer goods, aircraft, and semifinished products. Bank activity in this field has shifted from direct lending to the use of private financing sources—the Foreign Credit Insurance Association (FCIA) and commercial banks under Eximbank's guarantee programs.

Commodity loans.—Short-term and medium-term credits are extended by the Bank to finance the sale abroad of U.S. commodities such as cotton in those cases where financing is not available from private sources on reasonable terms. For the most part these loans are now being handled by commercial banks under Eximbank's guarantee. Commodity loans authorized in 1965 totaled $76 million and are estimated to be $78 million in 1967.

Emergency foreign trade loans.—On occasion the Bank extends emergency loans to foreign governments experiencing shortages of foreign exchange to help such countries maintain their level of essential imports from the United States. Emergency loans may take the form of a line of credit to a foreign central bank or other financial institution to provide dollar exchange for a wide range of U.S. exports or to fund arrearages resulting from dollar exchange difficulties. In 1965, $340 million was authorized of which $250 million was part of the U.S. contribution in support of the British pound.

Guarantees and insurance.—In addition to making direct loans to finance purchase of U.S. goods and services for projects abroad, the Bank guarantees export loans made by commercial banks and offers export credit insurance through the FCIA on short- and medium-term transactions. Guarantees issued by Eximbank to commercial banks enable U.S. exporters to obtain nonrecourse medium-term financing directly from their banks. Similarly, through an arrangement with Eximbank, the FCIA issues insurance policies directly to exporters throughout the country.

Total new insurance and guarantee authorizations in 1967 are estimated at $1,127 million. These include $753 million new and renewed insurance policies issued by FCIA, and $371 million of guarantees to commercial banks. The net charge for the year to lending authority for such transactions is computed at 25% of the increase in outstanding balances.

Private capital participation.—The Bank has continued to encourage the participation of U.S. commercial banks in its lending abroad. The establishment and sale of Series "A" Eximbank Portfolio Fund in May 1962 was followed by three additional issues; all issues, amounting to $1,372.5 million, were sold to U.S. commercial banks except for $19.2 million which was sold abroad. The total outstanding at June 30, 1965, was $1,022.3 million.

The Bank also has been selling individual loan maturities without recourse. These sales in 1965 totaled $87.5 million of which $27.5 million was sold abroad. In addition, sales with recourse of $36.4 were sold abroad. The Bank expects to sell additional portfolio certificates of $975 million in each of the years 1966 and 1967. Sales of loan maturities are estimated to be $60 million in 1966 and $25 million in 1967.

Administrative expenses.—It is estimated that a limitation of $4.1 million will permit the Bank to carry out its programs in 1967.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Bank is a wholly owned Government corporation. Capital stock of $1 billion was purchased by the U.S. Treasury and in addition, the Bank is authorized to borrow from the Treasury up to $6 billion. The Bank pays interest on these borrowings which is estimated to be $6.9 million in 1967; interest on portfolio certificates is estimated at $77.6 million.

The Bank's net income is estimated to be $112.9 million in 1967. Of this amount, $50 million is expected to be paid as a dividend to the Treasury and the remaining balance of $62.9 million will be added to the Bank's retained earnings reserve to provide for future contingencies.

Total investment of the Government in the corporation is estimated to be $2,130 million on June 30, 1967, comprising of $1 billion in capital stock and $1,130 million in retained earnings. As of June 30, 1965, outstanding borrowings from the Treasury were $513 million and retained earnings reserve was $944 million, after the 1965 dividend of $50 million.

The Administration supervises a coordinated agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations which make credit available to farmers and their cooperatives.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from agencies in the farm credit system and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year limitations on administrative expenses.

Supervision and examination of farm credit banks and associations.—Provision is made for supervision and examination of 12 Federal land banks (wholly farmer owned), 13 banks for cooperatives (mixed ownership), 12 Federal intermediate credit banks (mixed ownership), 724 Federal land bank associations, and 477 production credit associations. Also, these credit agencies are furnished such services as assistance in financing and investments, custody of collateral for bonds and debentures, credit analysis, development of appraisal standards and policies, preparation of reports and budgets, and development and distribution of information on farm credit.

This fund is available to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration as a revolving fund for investment in capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks and the production credit associations. Originally there were separate investment funds for the Federal intermediate credit banks and the production credit associations; however, these funds were combined into a single revolving fund as provided in subsection (f) which was added to section 5 of the Farm Credit Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C., Supp. IV, 1131i) by section 2(1) of Public Law 87-343, approved October 3, 1961.

*Budget program.—Federal intermediate credit banks.—*Funds will be required in 1966, which are estimated at $2.3 million, for investment in class A stock of the banks. Proposed legislation changing the maximum debt-to-capital ratio to 12 to 1 (from 10 to 1) reduced the requirements for 1966 with none anticipated for 1967.

*Production credit associations.—*An estimate for purchase of stock in production credit associations of $1 million is made for 1966 and $1 million for 1967. The need arises primarily because the volume of business of associations is increasing more rapidly than necessary net worth can be accumulated from local sources.

*Financing.—*At the end of 1966 it is estimated that $1,530 thousand will be invested in the production credit associations and $51,950 thousand in the Federal intermediate credit banks.

The provisions of section 105(d)(3) of the Farm Credit Act of 1956, which heretofore applied to the Federal intermediate credit banks investment fund is applicable to the combined fund. This section provides that of the $87,405 thousand class A stock of the credit banks outstanding on January 1, 1957, $57,405 thousand must be retired by payments into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. When the balance is reduced to $30 million, the remaining proceeds from retirement of such stock will be credited to the combined revolving fund.

This fund is available to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration for investments in class A capital stock of the banks for cooperatives (12 U.S.C. 1134).

The fund was created with $500 million capital in 1929; however, it was reduced to $150 million by legislation approved June 25, 1962 (76 Stat. 109).

Budget program.—No new subscriptions of capital stock are anticipated and stock will be retired by the banks for cooperatives in accordance with section 42(a)(1) of the Farm Credit Act of 1933, as amended.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment in capital stock will continue to be reduced through 1967, thereby increasing the cash of the fund. The cash balance in the fund at June 30, 1966, is estimated at $102,874 thousand.

Coal mine operators, affected by orders issued by Federal coal mine inspectors, may appeal to the Board for annulment or revision of, and temporary relief from, such orders. During 1965, a total of 153 orders were issued. When operators appeal, hearings are held, and the Board rules upon the applications. It is estimated that there will be 150 to 160 orders subject to appeal to the Board in 1967. The recommended appropriation includes an amount estimated to be sufficient to cover necessary administrative expenses and to handle an expected caseload estimated on the basis of the average actual annual caseload for the past 12 years.

The Corporation insures accounts of depositors in insured banks up to $10 thousand for each depositor. As of June 30, 1965, the deposit insurance fund, representing the accumulated net income of the Corporation, amounted to $2.94 billion. The entire fund is available for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for the payment of administrative and insurance expenses. Its expenses and insurance losses are paid out of the fund which is accumulated principally from assessments paid by insured banks and from income from its investments in obligations of the U.S. Treasury. The Corporation is authorized to borrow from the U.S. Treasury and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to loan to the Corporation, on such terms as may be fixed by the Corporation and the Secretary, not to exceed $3 billion outstanding when in the judgment of the Board of Directors of the Corporation such funds are required for insurance purposes. No borrowings under this authorization have been made to date and none are anticipated in 1966 or 1967.

Budget program.—The Board's budget is based on seven activities.

1. Examination and supervision of Federal home-loan banks.—The Board examines and supervises the operations of the Federal home-loan banks.

2. Supervision of Federal and State-chartered institutions.—The financial condition and operations of each insured institution is analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on, cooperatively, under arrangements made with the respective State authorities.

3. Chartering Federal and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion into Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of the insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

4. Examining savings and loan associations.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and such uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system as are not examined by State examiners. Audits are also made of approximately 48% of all insured institutions in conjunction with supervisory examinations. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter when required by the Board. The costs of examinations and audits are assessed against the institutions examined.

5. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

6. Analysis of operations.—An analysis is made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, the character and volume of mortgage lending, as well as selective review of geographical or community areas and phases of operations and certain analyses of trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance including volume of activity and interest rates of all major types of mortgage lenders.

7. Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting; budgetary and financial reporting; internal budget control; fiscal organization and management; these services also include general housekeeping and operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the above activities include administrative expenses under annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $3,960 thousand to $4,410 thousand. Non-administrative expenses covering the expenses of examining and supervising savings and loan associations are discussed separately below.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision under the general direction of the Director of the Office conducts regular periodic and special supervisory examinations of all Federal savings and loan associations, of insured State-chartered savings and loan associations, other institutions of the savings and loan type insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and of noninsured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System not subject to State supervision. The office also examines and analyzes the financial condition of institutions which apply for membership in the system, for insurance of accounts, or for conversion from a State to a Federal charter. The institutions examined bear the costs of examinations, and the fees charged therefor are calculated to defray all of the operating expenses of the examination function.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision under the general direction of the Director of the Office also is responsible for the supervision of institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The purpose of such supervision is to prevent the development and continuance of unsafe and unsound financial practices in these institutions and the correction of such practices where found. In carrying out the supervisory function, the office reviews and analyzes the examination reports forwarded by the chief examiners of the respective district offices.

The Federal home loan banks, together with the savings and loan associations and similar institutions which are members of the banks, constitute the Federal home loan bank system and are designed to stabilize and strengthen institutions promoting private thrift and individual home ownership.

The 12 Federal home loan banks obtain their funds from capital stock, issuance of their own obligations, and deposits of member institutions. The capital stock of the banks consists entirely of subscriptions of member institutions. Authority to borrow from the Treasury in the amount of $1 billion is provided in 12 U.S.C. 1431 (64 Stat. 257). No borrowings have been made to date and none are anticipated in 1967.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1724 et seq.) to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection thus afforded, which insures savers in member associations against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $10 thousand, may be provided through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings account holders in the event of liquidation. The former course of action, which results in complete protection to each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making cash grants or by purchasing all or a part of the association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Whenever possible, preventive measures are taken to eliminate the necessity of liquidation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as receiver or coreceiver upon request of State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides certain administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation, the Federal home loan banks, and the Office of Examinations and Supervision.

1. Administrative expenses—Insurable interest and insurance settlement operations.—In carrying out its role of protecting savings in insured savings and loan associations the Corporation has settled 53 cases since its creation 31 years ago. Total losses (including provision for losses) to June 30, 1965, have amounted to $52.1 million representing approximately 6.1% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information with respect to all of the insurance cases is summarized in the following table (dollars in thousands):

Contribution.....	31	59,722	$5,248

Total.....	53	201,573	52,097

¹ Includes $3 million loss on loan of $45 million included under acquisition of assets since assets were acquired in settlement of loan.

² Represents loan in the amount of $18 million on which no loss is anticipated.

2. Payment to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 25% of the administrative expenses of the Board as a direct charge and 42% of the remaining administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1967 in return for services and facilities by the Board and staff offices, and 47% of the supervisory expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision.

4. Other expenses.—Provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the disposition of assets purchased from and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to the Treasury, together with an additional $43 million for the use of the funds.

The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, with a limitation of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowings under this authorization have ever been made.

The Corporation is further authorized to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation; except that the total amount so assessed in any one year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured members and its creditor obligations.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting and in no one year has its operating expenses amounted to more than 5.3% of total income; in 1965 it amounted to 4.1%. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, return on capital stock, and to establish a reserve for contingencies of $1,487.2 million as of June 30, 1965. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934, of $1,612.1 million, have been applied as follows (dollars in millions):

	Amount	Percent
Expense.....	$29.8	1.8
Net insurance losses and provision for losses.....	52.1	3.2
Return on capital stock to U.S. Treasury.....	43.0	2.7
Reserve for contingencies.....	1,487.2	92.3
Total.....	1,612.1	100.0

Operating expenses (funded) for 1967 are estimated at $5,694 thousand consisting of administrative expenses of the Corporation of $285 thousand, $3,066 thousand for services rendered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and $2,343 thousand for other expenses.

Since the time and size of expenditures for the prevention of default and payment of insurance are unpredictable, estimates of these expenditures are omitted from the financial statements.

Net operating income for 1967, which is expected to be increased by $38.7 million or 53.2% above the net operating income for 1965, will be retained by the Corporation to meet future contingencies.

Public Law 87-210, which became effective January 1, 1963, requires each insured savings and loan association to pay annually to the Corporation an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The law also provides for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayments of each insured association at a rate equal to the average realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio. It is estimated that prepayments will total $176 million in 1967 compared to $197 million in 1965.

Public Law 87-210 further provides for the establishment of a primary reserve which shall be the general reserve of the Corporation and a secondary reserve to which shall be credited additional premiums. When the sum of these two reserves equals 2% of total savings plus creditor obligations, the cash payment of the regular premiums and the prepayments will cease and the Corporation will commence transferring the secondary reserve to the primary reserve by crediting each insured association's accumulated prepayments to its regular premium liability. If the aggregate of the two reserves drops to below 1.75%, the prepayments and the cash payment of the regular premium will be resumed and continued until the 2% ratio is again reached. It is estimated that the aggregate of the primary and secondary reserves will reach $2.1 billion by June 30, 1967, or 1.6% of estimated savings and creditor obligations totaling $130.7 billion.

The Corporation is required by law to accumulate a primary reserve (as of the close of any December 31) equal to 2% of the total amount of all accounts of insured members and creditor obligations of all insured institutions before collection of regular premiums may be discontinued; provided, however, that each insured institution has paid regular premiums for at least 20 years. It is estimated that the primary reserve will reach $904.1 million by June 30, 1967, or 0.69% of estimated savings and creditor obligations totaling $130.7 billion.

Section 110(d) of Public Law 89-117, effective August 10, 1965, enables the Corporation to obtain additional liquidity, if necessary, by calling upon insured institutions to make deposits in the Corporation up to 1% of their withdrawable savings. The Board has not found it necessary to invoke this authority to date.

The Federal Maritime Commission administers the shipping statutes which require the regulation of the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. An increase is requested for a more intensive effort with primary emphasis on (a) the effect of freight rate levels and disparities on U.S. commodity exports to world markets; (b) the study of the structure and practices of international steamship conferences to determine the adequacy in the public interest of conference ratemaking processes and shipping practices; (c) improving the review and decisionmaking processes of the Commission by implementing a program for the receipt and evaluation of basic economic data; (d) the removal of foreign discriminations against U.S. shipping; (e) effective regulation of carriers in the offshore trades with particular emphasis on the shipping service requirements of Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico; and (f) determining the influence of independent freight forwarders and terminals on international commodity movements and freight rates and removing impediments to the free flow of the international commerce of the United States.

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and Natural Gas Act, and has additional duties under other acts and Executive orders relating to Federal power developments, natural gas supplies, and related natural resources.

1. Natural gas industry.—This activity covers regulation of pipeline companies and independent producers involved in transmission or sale of natural gas for resale in interstate commerce. On June 30, 1965, there were approximately 3,900 independent producers who, individually or associated with others, had over 15,000 rate schedules on file with the Commission. There were also 127 regulated natural gas pipeline companies, with annual operating revenues of $5.4 billion. It is expected that the volume of gas sales and related operating revenues of both producers and pipeline companies will continue to increase.

These workload items vary in complexity. A single area rate case may fix the rates for hundreds of producers; several applications by pipelines for service to a major market are often heard in a single case. In addition to these programs the Commission makes annual reviews of the level of earnings of particular pipeline companies; institutes rulemaking proceedings to revise Commission rules and regulations; and verifies flowthrough of pipeline and producer refunds and rate reductions ordered by the Commission. In 1965, the Commission's rate programs resulted in refunds totaling $141.1 million and reductions in annual rates totaling $68.4 million.

2. Electric power industry.—This activity includes the Commission's responsibility for regulation of electric power companies that are interstate public utilities, and for maintenance of current information on the entire electric power industry. Specifically, the Commission regulates wholesale rates and services, accounts, depreciation practices, certain security issues, disposition of properties, and mergers of interstate electric companies. It also gathers and publishes engineering data and statistics about the entire electric utility industry. Pertinent data on a calendar year basis are:

The Commission encourages voluntary interconnection and coordination of the Nation's power systems. This pooling of power has had tremendous benefits to the Nation through efficient distribution of low-cost electrical energy. The 80,000 square-mile Northeastern power failure in early November 1965 emphasized the need to identify the technical problems which must be corrected to assure dependable energy to the beneficiaries of these power grids. The increasing dependence of the country on electrical energy distributed through power pools demands a close and continuing attention on the part of the Commission.

The Commission's national power survey set guidelines for cost savings by utilities through major programs of coordination and interconnection and the use of large-scale generating facilities. The Commission works with industry in updating guidelines of the survey and in encouraging utilities to pursue courses of action consistent with them. The Commission's program for wholesale rate regulation will assure that these economies result in reduced rates to the wholesale customers.

3. Non-Federal hydroelectric projects.—Licenses are issued for hydroelectric projects affecting lands of the United States and streams subject to Federal jurisdiction. The projects are inspected during construction and operation, and the cost of the investment is determined for privately owned projects. Pertinent data are:

Description	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
Licensed projects—more than 2,000 h.p. (end of year).....	256	291	329

Applications pending (end of year) ¹	288	357	371

Total claimed cost of major projects under license (end of year) (in millions).....	$6,960	$7,458	$7,879

¹ Includes applications for minor projects, amendments, preliminary permits, transfers and surrenders.

² Includes retroactive annual charges of $633 thousand in 1966 for New York Power Authority previously held in suspense.

The Commission's water resources appraisal program will provide an appropriate inventory of river basin plans. The Commission will use these in evaluating license applications to assure efficient and equitable utilization of water resources among competing demands and in making recommendations on possible recapture of projects as licenses expire. Emphasis will be placed on safety inspections and development of recreation potential of projects.

The non-Federal licensing activity is self-supporting except for statutory exemption of public bodies from payment of fees and for certain old licenses with fixed payments for which the Commission does not have authority to require additional fees.

4. Federal river development projects.—Of a potential 159.5 million kilowatts of hydroelectric power in the United States, 42.0 million kilowatts had been developed as of January 1965. Of this total, 17.9 million kilowatts had been developed by Federal agencies and 24.1 million kilowatts by non-Federal interests.

Studies of proposed Federal river development projects are made by the Commission to determine possibilities for conservation, development, and utilization of potential power resources. Recommendations based on these studies become a part of water resource project reports prepared by the construction agencies and reviewed by interested Federal and State agencies and the Congress. In 1965, 127 studies were carried on and it is estimated that there will be 130 in 1966 and 134 in 1967. The Commission approves rates for sale of power from certain Federal projects.

The Federal Radiation Council was established by Executive Order 10831, and Public Law 86-373, to advise the President with respect to radiation matters directly or indirectly affecting health, including guidance for all Federal agencies in the formulation of radiation protection standards. Members of the Council are the heads of the agencies most significantly involved with radiation—the Secretaries of Health, Education, and Welfare; Agriculture; Defense; Commerce; and Labor; and the Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission. Through 1965, the Council's activities were supported by financial contributions from the member agencies.

The Commission has the duty of preserving free competitive enterprise through prevention of monopolistic and unfair trade.

1. Antimonopoly.—All types of monopolistic restrictions, including price-fixing conspiracies, boycotting, price discriminations, and illegal mergers and acquisitions are corrected; economic data and criteria are brought to bear on monopoly and related problems; supervision is provided over the registration and operations of associations of American exporters engaged solely in export trade; and at the request of the Attorney General, investigations are made as to whether or not defendant corporations are complying with final decrees of U.S. courts in antitrust violations. In 1967, investigation and trial of merger and other antimonopoly cases will be expedited.

2. Deceptive practices.—False and misleading advertising and other unfair or deceptive practices are prevented by corrective action, including the affirmative aid of voluntary trade-practice conferences and advertising guides; business and the public are protected from the evils of misbranding and nondisclosure of fiber content of manufactured wool products and household textile articles; consumers and merchants are protected from unfair practices with respect to furs and fur products; and the public is protected from dangers inherent in flammable fabrics. In 1967, investigation and trial of deceptive practice cases will be expedited.

3. Executive direction and management.—These also include the adjudicatory functions of the Commission.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission is responsible for the settlement of claims of U.S. nationals against foreign nations, and other claims programs as authorized by law.

1. Administration and adjudication of claims.—The Commission will administer 3 claims programs during the year: (a) Under title II of the War Claims Damage Act of 1948, as amended (Public Law 87-846), the Commission must investigate 24,000 claims to determine compensation to be made to U.S. nationals from vested German and Japanese assets for certain damages sustained during World War II; (b) under title V of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended (Public Law 88-666), the Commission must adjudicate an estimated 4,000 claims of U.S. citizens against the Government of Cuba; and (c) pursuant to an agreement between Yugoslavia and the United States under title I of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, the Commission is responsible for the adjudication of approximately 2,000 property claims of U.S. citizens against Yugoslavia to determine compensation to be paid from funds provided by Yugoslavia.

2. Review of claims.—This activity includes research, report writing, documentation, and similar functions to meet the needs of Congress, Federal agencies, and the public on past and pending claims programs.

Proposed Federal and State legislative and administrative programs are developed to coordinate taxes at all levels in order to reduce tax overlapping and simplify the tax structure, and to reduce taxpayer-compliance costs and costs of tax administration.

Technical assistance is provided in the review of proposed legislation to determine its overall effect in the Federal system, and the most desirable allocations of governmental functions, responsibilities, and revenue among the several levels of Government are recommended.

Recommendations growing out of the Commission's work are submitted, as appropriate, to the executive or legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments.

The Commission regulates carriers engaged in transportation in interstate commerce and foreign commerce to the extent that it takes place within the United States. These carriers are common carriers—railroads, express companies, sleeping car companies, motor carriers, water carriers, pipelines (except for water and gas), and freight forwarders—and motor and water contract carriers.

The increase of $219 thousand is for the full year cost of the 1966 pay increase.

Contingent liabilities under the railroad loan guarantee program are estimated as follows: June 30, 1965, $213 million; June 30, 1966, $210 million; and June 30, 1967, $184 million. These amounts relate to guarantees already outstanding; authority to issue new guarantees expired on June 30, 1963.

1. Regulation of carrier rates, practices, operating authorities, and finance.—This activity of the Commission consists of preparing studies and analyses of operating costs for use in rate proceedings; regulating rates; granting operating authorities; approving applications for abandonments and extensions of railroad lines, financial reorganizations, and rate agreements between carriers; reviewing proposed discontinuances of or changes in the operation or service of trains and ferries; and formally issuing orders, rules, and regulations.

1. Planning development of the National Capital.—The Planning Commission is the official planning agency for the District of Columbia, as well as for the Federal Government in the District and the National Capital region. It plans for “the orderly development and redevelopment of the National Capital and the conservation of the important natural and historic features thereof.” At this time of great change in the area, it serves two basic functions: (1) it develops and maintains the long-range comprehensive plan for the District and (2) it reviews and approves, or reports on, proposed building developments and land acquisitions of District and Federal agencies. At present a comprehensive plan for 1985 is in the final stages of preparation. In carrying out its statutory responsibilities the Commission reviews and reports on several hundred Federal and District of Columbia projects each year.

In its comprehensive plan work and contract studies for the District of Columbia, the Commission is concerned in particular with: (1) the needs of the Federal establishment for adequate operating facilities; (2) the physical needs for such community facilities as schools, parks, libraries, and other local government buildings, particularly for the deprived residential areas; (3) the achievement of a balanced transportation system; (4) the protection and extension of open and green spaces and the esthetic values of the region; (5) the conservation of existing housing sound residential neighborhoods and the renewal of those requiring it; and (6) special programs such as the conservation of historic and architectural landmarks.

The Commission membership meets monthly, serving without pay, and provides policy guidance for and basic coordination between many development programs of District and Federal agencies. It relies on the technical work of its staff and special experts to analyze projects and programs, and to carry out its policies. The Commission inherits a long tradition of efforts to make Washington the fine city it is today, and is vitally concerned about its future as a great National Capital City. A supplemental appropriation for 1966 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

2. Coordinating metropolitan area planning.—The National Capital Regional Planning Council is charged with the development of an overall comprehensive regional plan and coordinates planning of the counties and cities of the metropolitan area with that for the Federal establishment in the suburbs. Its membership is composed of two representatives of the District of Columbia, and eight representatives nominated from the subregional planning agencies in Maryland and Virginia. The Council retains a professional staff, meets monthly, and operates through several committees specializing in various regional planning aspects. The Council functions as a regional coordinator and catalyst, serving as a central intelligence organization and clearinghouse on all planning and development matters having regional significance.

3. Pennsylvania Avenue redevelopment planning.—The Temporary Commission on Pennsylvania Avenue was established by Executive Order No. 11210 of March 25, 1965. The 13-member Commission includes cabinet officers and the heads of agencies with specific interests in the Avenue. On September 30, 1965, the President approved the designation of Pennsylvania Avenue as a national historic site under the authority of the Historic Sites Act of August 21, 1935. The immediate objective of the Temporary Commission is to continue to develop reliable information upon which planning decisions can be based. Technical data must be available for those

The Agency is authorized to design, engineer, construct, equip, and take other action necessary to provide for the establishment of a system of rail rapid transit lines and related facilities for the Nation's Capital. The entire program, including actual construction of the system, is estimated to extend over a period of 7 years with initial parts of the system in operation as early as 5 years.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Additional funds are requested to enable the Agency to effectively cope with a steadily rising caseload in both unfair labor practice and representation cases. Estimates for 1967 reflect an intake increase over 1966 of 6.5% for unfair labor practice cases and 3.5% for representation cases.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. About 88% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 83% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives for the voluntary settlement of disputes, and the high incidence of informal settlements achieved thus far is expected to continue in 1967.

2. Trial examiner hearing.—Trial examiners conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in trial examiner decisions. In 1965, there were 945 hearings held, 86 proceedings adjusted and 894 decisions issued. The estimate for 1966 is for 1,135 hearings, 97 adjusted proceedings and 1,068 decisions. The 1967 estimate is for 1,210 hearings, 114 adjusted proceedings and 1,181 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a trial examiner's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 29% of these trial examiner decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder are referred to the Board for decision, of which the Board issued 744 in 1965. The estimate for 1966 is 830 and the estimate for 1967 is 980. The Board issued 197 decisions in contested representation proceedings in 1964 and 205 in 1965; it is estimated that issuances will be 203 and 210 in 1966 and 1967, respectively. These decisions are inclusive of those cases in which a request for review of regional director's decisions has been granted. Regional directors issued 1,882 such decisions in 1964, and 1,761 in 1965. The estimate is 1,940 for 1966 and 2,005 in 1967.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the courts to enforce its decisions. In 1965 a total of 236 Board decisions of all kinds required litigation; the estimate for 1966 is 340; the estimate for 1967 is 386.

The Foundation supports basic scientific research and science education, principally at colleges and universities. Grants and contracts are made for the conduct of basic research and for the construction of research facilities; the development and improvement of the institutional aspects of science, scientific information services and for various national research programs including Project Mohole and the Antarctic research program.

Major emphasis in the 1967 budget is for basic scientific research and supporting facilities to advance the Foundation's primary purpose of assuring that the national scientific base, particularly at academic institutions, is broadened and strengthened. Support for the general development and improvement of science and engineering at undergraduate and graduate institutions is being expanded to include additional colleges and universities through the Science Development and College Science Improvement programs. Funds are also included to increase the support for graduate training in the sciences and for the improvement and development of course content at all educational levels.

1. Basic research and supporting facilities.—The budget provides for the award of grants and contracts in the various activities as follows:

(a) Basic research project grants.—Grants for basic research in the sciences are awarded on the basis of merit to investigators at more than 450 institutions, principally colleges and universities.

	1964 actual	1965 actual	1966 estimate	1967 estimate
Number of grants awarded	2,892	3,159	3,675	4,015

(b) National research programs.—The Foundation supports broad national programs of scientific research including the Antarctic research program; the weather modification program and deep crustal studies of the earth (Project Mohole).

(c) Specialized research facilities and equipment.—The Foundation provides support for major items of research equipment and specialized scientific facilities, primarily at colleges and universities.

(d) National research centers.—The development and operation of national centers for the conduct of basic scientific research in optical and radio astronomy and the atmospheric sciences are budgeted in this category.

2. Science education programs.—The budget provides for a wide variety of programs to strengthen and expand the training and development of scientific manpower including the following programs:

(a) Fellowships in the various fields of science, mathematics, and engineering to graduate students, college and university faculty and foreign senior scientists, and fellowships for summer study to graduate teaching assistants, and also graduate traineeships in science, mathematics, and engineering.

matics curriculums; and supplementary programs to stimulate interest in and secure improvement of teaching and training in the sciences at secondary school and college levels.

(d) Support of coordinated multipurpose projects initiated by institutions for the improvement of undergraduate science and engineering.

3. Institutional science programs.—These programs are directed to the development and improvement of institutions in science and engineering areas. Large comprehensive grants are made to developing institutions with the potential for achieving a significantly higher level of excellence in science and engineering. Smaller grants are made to enable institutions to build additional strength in specific areas that have achieved a degree of scientific proficiency. Also included are matching grants for the construction, renovation of research laboratories for faculty and graduate research, and institutional base grants for science.

4. Science information services.—The Foundation supports the collection, translation, and dissemination of information on the results of research and the development of improved methods for the exchange of scientific information. The funding and management of the Science Information Exchange is also the responsibility of the Foundation.

5. Studies of national resources for science and technology.—This activity supports surveys and analytical studies of research and development within the various sectors of the economy and the current and projected status of scientific manpower and other resources required for the conduct of scientific activities. These studies are related to the formulation of long-range national policies concerning science.

EXCESS FOREIGN CURRENCY AUTHORIZATION

For expenses of carrying out programs of the National Science Foundation, as authorized by law, foreign currencies owned by the United States are authorized to be used, pursuant to section 1415 of the Act of July 15, 1952 (31 U.S.C. 724), without fiscal year limitation, in the following amounts: 5,063,000 Indian rupees; 13,124,000 Israeli pounds; 3,386,000 Pakistan rupees; 14,417,000 Polish zlotys; 259,000 Egyptian pounds; and 487,625,000 Yugoslav dinars: Provided, That such currencies shall be in addition to funds otherwise available for such programs: Provided further, That any of the above amounts may be increased by not more than 15 percent by transfer of the equivalent value from the amounts specified for any other currency or currencies, but the amount for any country may not be decreased by more than 15 percent.

These excess foreign currencies will finance an expanded program of translation and publication of foreign scientific, technological, and educational literature; compilation and publication of specialized bibliographies; preparation and publication of abstracts in the fields of science, technology, and education; and preparation and publication of directories to foreign science information institutions and systems.

Under this proposal, approximately 333 thousand pages of foreign scientific and technological information would be translated and made available to U.S. scientists. Approximately 60 percent of the material would be translated from Russian, and about 40 percent from other East European and Middle Eastern languages.

The National Science Foundation is the coordinating and administering agency for the scientific translation requirements of all Federal agencies. Requirements to meet Federal agency requests for foreign scientific and technological information are as follows (number of pages by language and country performing translations):

1. Investigation of crime and delinquency in the United States.—The President's Commission on Law Enforcement and the Administration of Justice was established by Executive order on July 23, 1965, and will expire April 23, 1967.

The Commission has been charged by the President to make a new and penetrating examination of the causes of crime and delinquency, measures for their prevention, the adequacy of law enforcement and the administration of justice. Its recommendations will include a national plan to coordinate the goals and operation of law enforcement and corrections; upgrade police work and evaluate what resources it requires; provide continuing information on the characteristics of various aspects of the problems of crime and the results of research and demonstration efforts directed to meet them; enlist the aid of science, industry, and technology in law enforcement; improve citizen cooperation and respect for law; reduce recidivism; meet the problem of the burden of excessive caseloads on prosecutors, courts, and correctional workers; and coordinate the work of other social agencies with law enforcement.

2. Investigation of crime and delinquency in the District of Columbia.—The President's Commission on Crime in the District of Columbia was established by Executive order on July 16, 1965, and will expire September 16, 1966.

Besides investigating into the causes of crime and delinquency in the District of Columbia, the Commission seeks to develop measures for the prevention of crime; inquires into the adequacy of law enforcement and the administration of justice in the District, the correction and rehabilitation of offenders, and the relationships between police authorities and other members of the community; and conducts necessary hearings.

The Commission will develop standards and make recommendations for the District in such areas as police training, police force organization, community involvement in law enforcement, improvement of correctional methods, alternatives to criminal trials, and revisions of criminal laws.

PUBLIC LAND LAW REVIEW COMMISSION

The Public Land Law Review Commission was created by Public Law 88-606 (78 Stat. 982) and charged by the Congress with:

1. Studying existing statutes and regulations governing the retention, management, and disposition of public lands;
2. Reviewing policies and practices of Federal agencies charged with administrative jurisdiction over such lands insofar as such policies and practices relate to the retention, management, and disposition of those lands;
3. Compiling data necessary to understand and determine the various demands on the public lands which now exist and which are likely to exist within the future; and
4. Recommending such modification in existing laws and regulations, practices and policies as will, in the judgment of the Commission, best serve the maximum good to the maximum number of people.

The work of the Commission may be divided into three broad categories or areas of primary concern: Legal research and analysis; inventory and evaluation of resources on and under public lands; and the economic impact of these resources on each other and on the region and the Nation.

The major portion of the study work of the Commission will be accomplished on a contract or consultant basis. Maximum reliance is placed upon existing statistics and other data with minimum effort being expended to make these data comparable. Special professional problem areas may be dealt with by individual consultants.

During the first 6 months of 1967, it will be necessary to expand the Commission's staff by 5 positions. This augmentation is required because the level of activity conducted inhouse during 1967, particularly in the area of legal research and analysis, will increase and probably reach its maximum rate. There will also be a concurrent increase in inhouse production of research and study papers in the policy and resources field. During 1967, it is anticipated that public hearings will be held by the Commission or subcommittees thereof.

The Board administers the Railroad Retirement Act which provides for the payment of annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors. The Board also participates in the administration of the hospital and medical insurance programs for persons covered by the Railroad Retirement Act. The administrative expenses of the Board in the operation of these programs are financed from a portion of the taxes paid jointly by railroad employers and employees under the provisions of the Railroad Retirement Tax Act. An increase in limitation of $850 thousand will be required for 1966 to cover the costs of handling the work created for the Board by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security and Railroad Retirement Acts.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of benefits paid are based on individual records of earnings and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment, and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. Accounts posted were 982,000 in 1965 and are estimated at 980,000 in 1966 and 1967. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the railroad unemployment insurance program.

2. Processing claims.—This activity includes the work of processing annuity claims, establishing eligibility of persons for health and medical insurance benefits, and processing changes in benefit rates. Annuity claims processed were 169,000 in 1965 and are estimated to be the same in 1966 and 1967. Eligibility for hospital and medical insurance will be established in 1966 for approximately 600,000 persons who will begin to receive provided services in 1967. The number of benefit rate changes to be made will be 426,000 in 1966 and 114,000 in 1967.

3. Maintenance of beneficiary rolls.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. The number of monthly benefit payments will increase from 10,540,000 in 1965 to an estimated 10,700,000 and 10,860,000 in 1966 and 1967. The number of persons on the rolls receiving monthly benefit payments will increase from 891,000 at the end of 1965 to an estimated 915,000 and 925,000 at the end of 1966 and 1967.

4. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims for annuities or benefits are disallowed or who dispute the award have the right of appeal. Appeals dispositions were 204 in 1965 and are estimated at 200 in 1966 and 1967.

5. Actuarial services.—Actuarial studies and estimates of the assets and liabilities of the Railroad retirement account are required by law.

6. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

The Board conducts renegotiation with contractors to eliminate excessive profits in connection with procurement under the national defense program. All contractors and subcontractors who have business subject to the act, which presently extends through June 30, 1966, are required to file with the Board if such business exceeds $1 million in a year. The Board has determined $911.9 million in excessive profits from the date of its establishment through June 30, 1965. Of this total, $16.1 million was determined during 1965.

1. Executive direction.—The Board is responsible for final action in all cases. This includes screening all filings involving renegotiable business over $1 million and requests for exemption.

2. Staff operations.—The headquarters staff furnishes technical advice and assistance to the Board and regional organization.

3. Renegotiation operations (field).—The two regional boards conduct renegotiation proceedings and make determinations and recommendations. They are authorized to conclude cases involving $800 thousand or less of renegotiable profits; however, their determinations in such cases may be appealed to the statutory Board. All determinations in cases involving more than $800 thousand renegotiable profits are subject to approval by the statutory Board.

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a wholly Government-owned enterprise, is responsible for the construction, operation, and maintenance of that part of the Saint Lawrence Seaway within the territorial limits of the United States (33 U.S.C. 981). The Seaway has been constructed and is being operated and maintained jointly by the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada, in conjunction with the related power development works provided by the Power Authority of the State of New York and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Operating costs and interest.—Operating expenses for 1967 are estimated at $2 million consisting of administrative expenses of the Corporation of $0.5 million (subject to congressional limitation) and $1.5 million for operations of locks and canals, control of traffic and related maintenance of the facilities.

Interest charges on borrowings are estimated at $5.2 million for 1967, of which $4.5 million is expected to be earned and deposited with the U.S. Treasury.

Capital outlay.—The Corporation's construction program consists of a 10-mile canal, two locks and navigation channels in the 46-mile International Rapids Section of the St. Lawrence River between Ogdensburg and Massena, and certain channel and related navigation works in the 68-mile Thousand Islands section between Lake Ontario and Ogdensburg.

The total cost of the U.S. share of the seaway is estimated at $131.6 million. Work in place at the end of 1966 is estimated at $131.5 million. The 1967 program to complete the project due to rescheduled construction work is estimated at $0.1 million and will consist principally of procurement and construction of additional aids to navigation, minor improvements and modifications at Eisenhower and Snell Locks and other minor improvements.

Operating results.—The Corporation is self-supporting through tolls assessed shippers using the seaway facilities. All operating costs are paid from toll revenues and net operating income returned to the Treasury in payment of interest and principal. During the developmental period, all interest charges not earned will continue to be deferred as agreed to with the Treasury Department.

For 1967, the Corporation's net operating income is estimated at $4.5 million. The deficit at the end of the budget year is estimated at $24.5 million consisting principally of unpaid interest of $13.3 million and depreciation and amortization of land assets of $11.2 million.

Financing.—The Corporation has authority to borrow $140 million from the Treasury for financing the costs of the seaway and to provide for working capital and claims of which $125.2 million will have been used by the end of 1966. It is estimated that $0.1 million will be used to finance the construction program during the budget year 1967. Capitalized interest amounting to $6.7 million is not charged against the borrowing authority limitation.

Through an exchange of notes, dated June 30, 1964, between the United States and Canada, the review of the Saint Lawrence Seaway tariff of tolls has been extended for 2 years, and a report to the respective Governments as to the sufficiency of authorized tolls to meet statutory requirements is due July 1, 1966.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure provisions.—Issuers of securities for public sale are required to file a registration statement and related prospectus containing significant information about the issuer and the offering with the Commission. This is to insure that investors will be provided with the material facts concerning security offerings. Certain provisions of the Securities Acts Amendments enacted August 20, 1964, extend to investors in certain over-the-counter securities the same protections now afforded to those in listed securities: namely, registration of classes of securities; annual and periodic company reporting; regulation of proxy solicitation; and restriction upon "insider" trading.

2. Prevention and suppression of fraud.—Suspected fraud, deceit, and manipulation in the sale and trading of securities is prevented or minimized by prompt investigation. For 1967, the broker-dealer inspection cycle is estimated at 2½ years. These inspections include the inspection of non-NASD members. Inspection of investment advisers is estimated on a 5-year cycle.

3. Supervision and regulation of securities markets.—National securities exchanges and over-the-counter markets are regulated in the interest of maintaining just and equitable principles of trade for the protection of the public investors. One of the purposes of the Securities Acts Amendments of 1964 is, through Commission regulation, to have nonmembers of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) in the same regulatory position as NASD brokers and dealers.

4. Regulation of investment and public utility holding companies.—Financing and other corporate matters of interstate public utility holding companies engaged in the electric utility business or in the retail distribution of gas are regulated. A total of 20 holding company systems of which 16 are active, comprising 143 separate companies with assets of $13.4 billion, are registered under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. Foreign and domestic investment companies are registered also and their activities supervised. The assets of these companies have increased from $2.5 billion in 1941 to an estimate of $44 billion on June 30, 1965. Inspections of investment companies is estimated on a 4-year cycle.

The primary purpose of the Selective Service System is effective manpower utilization through classification under the Universal Military Training and Service Act. The System is responsible for supplying men to keep the Armed Forces at their authorized strength and to the extent that their needs are not met by voluntary enlistment. It will be required to supply an estimated 160,000 men for this purpose in 1967 as compared with approximately 360,000 in 1966 and 103,000 in 1965.

1. National administration, planning, training, and records management.—The overall administration of the act including planning, training, and records management is accomplished by the National Headquarters and six Regional Field Offices.

2. State administration.—Administration of the act within the several States is the responsibility of the 56 State headquarters operating under the policies determined by National Headquarters.

3. Registration, classification, and induction.—These functions affecting over 31 million registrants are accomplished by the over 48,000 uncompensated citizens assisted by about 6,000 clerks at over 4,000 boards. These citizens determine who shall be deferred and for how long in the national interest in agriculture, industry, or other pursuits. They also determine the availability for military service of members of the Standby Reserve.

4. National Advisory Committee on the Selection of Physicians, Dentists, and Allied Specialists.—This Committee acts in an advisory capacity to the Selective Service System. It is separately administered, but funds are furnished by the Selective Service System from its appropriation.

5. National Selective Service Appeal Board.—This Board acts on the classification of registrants which have been appealed to the President. It is under separate administration but the Selective Service System provides funds for its operation.

A supplemental appropriation for 1966 is proposed for separate transmittal.

Public Law 87-550, approved July 25, 1962, authorizes the Small Business Administration to make loans to eligible firms under the provisions of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-794).

The Trade Expansion Act of 1962 provides for certification by the Secretary of Commerce of proposals for economic adjustment submitted by eligible firms. The Secretary refers such proposals to an appropriate Federal agency having lending authority. The agency then determines whether and to what extent it may provide financial assistance. Small Business Administration is permitted to make loans to any size firm, in any dollar amount for a period not to exceed 25 years.

This fund finances business and disaster loans and prime contracting activities as authorized by the Small Business Act, as amended (15 U.S.C. 631 et seq.), business loans as authorized by title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 526), and investment and development company assistance activities, as authorized by the Small Business Investment Act, as amended (15 U.S.C. 661 et seq.). Administrative and other expenses are also financed by the revolving fund. The Congress has authorized appropriations to the fund of $1,841 million. Of this amount, not to exceed $1,375 million may be outstanding for the authorized activities under the Small Business Act and the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 and not to exceed $461 million may be outstanding for investment and development company assistance (an increase from $341 million at June 30, 1965). It is estimated that the $1,375 million limitation will be reached early in calendar year 1966 and the other limitation approximately a year later. Thus, legislation will be proposed to increase each of them.

Outstanding loans and reservations at the end of each year for the programs financed by the fund are as follows (in millions of dollars):

1. Financial assistance program—Business loans (Sec. 7(a), Small Business Act).—Funds may be loaned to business concerns which are independently owned and operated and which are not dominant in their fields. To such small businesses, loans may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, and shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a bank participation loan is not available and no loan on an immediate participation basis may be made unless it is shown that a guaranteed loan is not available. Under the guarantee plan Small Business Administration agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default.

The agency's share of an immediate participation or guaranteed loan is limited to 90%. Its maximum outstanding loan and/or commitment to any one borrower is limited by statute to $350 thousand, except for a loan to a corporation formed and capitalized by a group of small business concerns for purposes authorized in the Small Business Act. With respect to such corporations, the limitation is $250 thousand multiplied by the number of separate small businesses participating in the corporation. Business loans, except for the purpose of constructing facilities, are limited to a maturity of 10 years and with one exception bear interest at a maximum rate of 5½% per annum on the agency's share thereof. For loans to a corporation formed by a group of small firms as referred to above, the rate of interest on the Small Business Administration's share is no less than 4% nor more than 5% per annum.

The Small Business Administration counsels businessmen operating small firms and assists them to secure credit for constructive purposes.

From the beginning of the lending program on September 29, 1953, through June 30, 1965, 57,335 loans had been approved in a total amount of $2,610.5 million (including participating banks' share of $457.9 million). Fifty-nine percent of these loans have been on a participation or guarantee basis. In 1967, it is estimated that 17,784 loans will be approved, compared with an estimated 12,859 in 1966.

The following tabulation reflects certain data on business loans and includes funds disbursed or collected by banks or other private lending institutions on participation and guaranteed loans. Accordingly, the Small Business Administration's share of disbursements and repayments will not agree with related data in the financial statements, which reflect transactions on the basis of only the Small Business Administration cash funds involved.

Business loans (Economic Opportunity Act of 1964).—Pursuant to the authority contained in title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 526), the Small Business Administration under delegation from the Director, Office of Economic Opportunity, administers a program of financial assistance to very small business concerns and to qualified persons seeking to establish such concerns. Loans are authorized on a direct, immediate participation, or guaranteed basis, in an amount not to exceed $25 thousand, for a maximum term of 15 years. Provision is made for management training as an integral part of the loan program. The credit and collateral requirements are more flexible and relaxed than those applicable to regular business loans. It is estimated that a total of 6,600 loans for $50 million will be approved in 1967 compared with an estimated 3,300 loans for $28 million in 1966.

Disaster loans.—No restrictions exist on the amount which may be loaned to an individual or business firm suffering loss from a disaster. However, "displaced business" disaster loans are restricted to small business. There are no business size restrictions for natural disaster loans. The maximum term for disaster loans is 30 years.

For other than "displaced business" disaster loans the interest rate may not exceed 3% on the Small Business Administration's share of the loan. For "displaced business" disaster loans, authorized by the Housing Act of 1961, the rate on the Small Business Administration share of the loan is determined pursuant to a formula prescribed by legislation. For 1965, the rate was 3¾% per annum, while in 1966 the rate is 3⅞%.

Through June 30, 1965, a total of 27,424 disaster loans for $342.6 million had been approved, including 477 "displaced business" loans in the amount of $30 million. Approvals during 1965 were 4,207 for $93.5 million (the highest year of record in both number and amount) and included 199 "displaced business" loans for $12.5 million.

The Housing Act of 1964 amended the legislative authority so as to provide that "displaced business" disaster loans may be made for the purchase or construction of buildings for small firms which were tenants in the area from which relocated. For this reason, as well as the anticipated increase in urban renewal activities, the estimates for 1966 and 1967 reflect a step-up in the amount of such loans to be approved—$15.8 million in 1966 and $25 million in 1967.

For all other disaster loans the estimate for 1967 is $100 million in recognition of the extensive amount of loans approved in 1965 and estimated for 1966.

2. Investment and development company assistance—Purchase of debentures of small business investment companies.—A primary function of these companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital for small business concerns. To facilitate the formation and growth of such companies the Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the Small Business Administration to purchase subordinated debentures of any such company in good standing in an amount not to exceed the lesser of $700 thousand or the amount of the paid-in capital and surplus of the company from other sources. It is estimated that the Small Business Administration will approve purchase of debentures in the amount of $35 million in 1966 and $32 million in 1967.

Loans to small business investment companies.—Small Business Administration is authorized to lend funds to those companies in good standing in amounts which may not exceed 50% of the paid-in capital and surplus of a company or $4 million, whichever is less. In addition to $5 million estimated to be loaned directly to such companies by Small Business Administration in 1967, $35 million of loans is anticipated to be made to these companies by private financial institutions under a guaranteed loan program under which the guarantee right can be exercised against Small Business Administration only upon default by the borrowing small business investment company. For 1966, it is estimated that $40 million in direct loans will be approved, of which $30 million will be sold subsequently to banks under a guarantee plan.

Loans to local and State development companies.—The Small Business Administration is authorized to lend funds to State development companies for general-use purposes and to State and local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land. The latter type loans must be so secured as reasonably to assure repayment, may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, may be made only when the proceeds are for use solely to assist an identifiable small business concern and for a sound business purpose approved by the Agency, and are limited to a maximum of $350 thousand for each such identifiable small business concern. A total of $50 million is estimated to be approved in 1967, compared with an estimate of $40 million in 1966.

Operating costs—1. Interest expense.—As required by the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding disbursements from the fund, at rates determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. With respect to disbursements made in 1966, the Secretary of the Treasury has set a rate of 4⅛% per annum for all loans. This rate has also been used in computing interest expense for 1967. Interest expense in 1967 is estimated at $17.9 million, compared with $51.5 million in 1966 as a result of the substantial reduction in outstanding disbursements by reason of sale of certificates of participations in a loan pool. The 1967 amount is distributed $9.8 million to the financial assistance program and $8.1 million to the investment and development company assistance program. The comparable figures for 1966 are $39 million and $12.5 million, respectively.

2. Administrative expenses.—These expenses for the two programs are financed by transfer of funds from the revolving fund to the appropriation, "Salaries and expenses." The distribution of the amounts by program for each of the years is accordingly shown on the program and financing schedule for that appropriation account.

Financing.—The capital of the revolving fund is provided by direct appropriations. Appropriations made to date total $1,805 million, of which $5 million has been transferred to the Lease Guarantee revolving fund pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 89-117, which established this latter fund. Appropriation requests for increased capital funds are based on the additional amount required to finance the estimated program volume (and related interest, administrative, and other expenses) after taking into consideration unobligated funds from prior years and funds becoming available through principal repayments, sales, and revenue.

Current Administration policy anticipates a substitution of private for public credit to the maximum extent possible. To this end, legislation has been proposed to authorize SBA to create a pool of loans and sell participation certificates in such pool. An estimated $350 million in 1966 and $850 million in 1967 is anticipated from the sales of participation certificates under the proposal. The proceeds from such sales, together with repayments and revenues on the remaining loans in the portfolio, are estimated to be sufficient to finance the 1967 program level and provide a carryover balance of $657.6 million at the end of the year for use in financing subsequent year activities.

Operating results.—The deficit is estimated to continue to increase. Despite a discontinuance of the 4% rate on business loans in redevelopment areas, interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest and administrative expenses and a provision for estimated losses. This results primarily from the cost of processing a large number of business loan applications of which only about 60% result in interest-earning loans, and the cost of servicing an expanding number of widely scattered loans which are relatively small in size.

Legislation will be proposed to authorize the sale of certificates of participation in pools of outstanding loans held by the Small Business Administration. The proceeds from the sale of participation certificates will be credited to the revolving fund and thus be available to the extent required to finance obligations incurred in 1967 under the proposed program levels. It is estimated that $350 million of participations will be sold in 1966 and $850 million in 1967. Such sales will eliminate the necessity for new obligational authority in 1967 and will result in an excess of revolving fund receipts over expenditures in that year of $331.6 million compared with an excess of expenditures of $268.3 million if the sales were not made.

This fund finances a program of insurance to guarantee payments on leases of small business concerns displaced by urban renewal projects and those eligible for loans under title IV of the Economic Development Act of 1964. The Congress has authorized capitalization of this fund through the transfer of $5 million from the "Revolving fund, Small Business Administration." To make the fund self-sustaining, lessees are to pay an insurance premium of not to exceed 2½% of the lease amount, or a premium based on sound actuarial computation. Also, funds in excess of needs to pay operating costs and meet insurance claims can be invested in obligations guaranteed by the United States.

The Smithsonian Institution maintains public exhibits representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics, space, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology; preserves for reference and study purposes millions of valuable items of scientific, cultural, and historic interest; conducts research in the natural sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts in the United States and in many foreign countries; and participates in the international exchange of scientific literature. The areas of research in the natural sciences include anthropology, biology, geology, solar radiations, and astrophysics. The Smithsonian is also undertaking an intensive program of classification and study of marine organisms collected in connection with the Government's expanded oceanographic program.

The Institution administers three museums, five scientific programs, three art galleries, the Armed Forces Museum Advisory Board, and associated international programs. It is responsible also for the operation and maintenance of seven main exhibition buildings, the Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.; the Canal Zone Biological Area; the River Basin Surveys in Lincoln, Nebr.; a storage facility at Silver Hill, Md.; and an exhibits laboratory.

During the budget year the National Collection of Fine Arts and the National Portrait Gallery will continue to prepare exhibition plans and improve the condition of their collections prior to the move into the Fine Arts and Portrait Galleries scheduled to be substantially completed in January 1967. The National Air and Space Museum will continue its program of restoring and preserving aircraft, engines, and accessories. The Institution will continue to extend its scientific activities. The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was created, as a bureau of the Smithsonian Institution, by the act of September 2, 1958, as amended. The Board of Trustees of the Center is authorized to construct and operate a national cultural center in Washington, D.C., on a site provided by the Federal Government. Warrants totaling $15.5 million were issued as the Federal contribution to the costs of constructing the Center to match a like amount contributed by the public prior to June 30, 1965. A Federal loan of $15.4 million is authorized for construction of foundations and underground parking facilities. It is to be repaid from parking receipts. The remaining costs of construction and operating the Center are to be provided by the trustees from public contributions. It is anticipated that a construction contract will be let early in 1966 and that the Center will open 30 months after the start of construction.

The major responsibility of the Commission is to assess the impact of United States and foreign trade policies on domestic industries and to provide reports to the President, the Congress, and the public on these matters. The increased complexity of our foreign trade relations, the increase in our foreign trade in recent years, and the greatly changing patterns of world trade have created a greater need for research, investigations, and reports on tariff and trade activities.

The Trade Expansion Act of 1962 has further increased the need for the Commission to assemble information enabling it to make determinations on petitions for adjustment assistance.

The Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority in 1933 for the unified development of a river basin comprising parts of seven States. Engineering works improve and regulate the Tennessee River and its tributaries for navigation, flood control, and the generation of electric power, and contribute in other ways to development of Valley resources. Fertilizer research and agricultural activities promote conservation and improved use of land and water resources. Special attention is given to economic development problems in selected subregions. Forestry activities stress maximum use of forest resources consistent with watershed protection. All these activities are interrelated. Their common purpose is to help develop the Valley's agricultural and industrial potential for the benefit of both the region and the Nation.

Other national interests are directly served. The Tennessee waterway is an interregional artery for commerce moving to and from ports in 20 States. In 1965 Federal agencies used 28% of the electric energy generated by the TVA system. In national emergencies, defense needs have first call on the Muscle Shoals chemical facilities for munitions research and production; in peacetime, they serve as the country's only public research center equipped for complete development of fertilizers from laboratory to demonstration-scale production.

TVA is a corporation wholly owned by the Federal Government. Its program in 1967 will be financed from three sources: (1) appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

Budget program—1. River and power development program.—A major objective of the TVA Act is full development and use of the water resources of the Tennessee River and its tributaries. The development of these natural resources is reflected in regional and national gains in the fields of navigation, flood control, power, light and heavy industry, and recreation. System facilities to be operated in 1967 consist of 29 dams with hydroelectric generating stations, 14 navigation locks at 10 dams, 11 steam-electric generating stations, a power transmission network of about 14,545 circuit miles, and reservoir shorelines totaling 10,000 miles. In addition, TVA will operate, in cooperation with local interests, a multipurpose system of small dams in the Beech River tributary watershed and local flood control facilities at Bristol, Tenn.-Va.

(a) Navigation operations of the multipurpose river development system include maintenance of adequate depths for the all-year 9-foot channel from the mouth of the river at Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles. Traffic on the Tennessee waterway in calendar year 1964 was 15.4 million tons and 2 billion ton-miles. Transportation savings to shippers on this volume of traffic are estimated at $26.2 million, the difference between freight charges actually paid and those which would have been paid if the river had not been improved for navigation. About 95% of these savings applied on freight originating outside the Valley or moving from the Valley to outside destinations. Engineering work assures that physical facilities are operated, maintained, and modified or improved to meet the needs of modern waterborne commerce. Technical studies appraise the opportunities for use of the waterway and the barriers inhibiting its use. Data supplied to shippers and carriers help solve transportation problems, looking to full utilization of the Federal investment in the navigation channel. Advisory work with State and local agencies leads to new or improved public programs by those agencies to help assure full utilization of the waterway. The funded cost of all operating activities in 1967 is estimated at $2,462 thousand.

Capital outlay costs for navigation facilities in 1967 are estimated at $928 thousand, including provision for completion of dredging of an extension of the navigation channel on the Hiwassee River, completion of installation of facilities to protect locks from fire, and other improvements to navigation facilities.

(b) Flood control operations of the Tennessee River system maintain and use storage space in upstream reservoirs for seasonal retention of excessive runoff and regulate discharges to rates of flow which can be handled safely by downstream channels and reservoirs. Dams on the Tennessee River and its tributaries provide 11.8 million acre-feet of storage for flood control at the beginning of the flood season. Cities and agricultural land in the Tennessee Valley are protected and flood crests on the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers are reduced. Since the first project in the TVA system was placed in operation in 1936, regulation of TVA reservoirs to reduce flood crests has averted damages of about $325 million in the Tennessee Valley and about $40 million on the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. As a supplement to operating its reservoir system for flood control, TVA collects and analyzes flood data and studies potential flood control projects and ways to improve operations of the existing system. Technical advice and assistance given to State and local agencies in finding solutions to local urban and rural flood control problems will be continued in 1967. A frequent and valuable byproduct of these efforts is the establishment or revitalization of local planning agencies. The funded cost of all operating activities in 1967 is estimated at $2,399 thousand.

Capital outlay costs for flood control facilities in 1967 are estimated at $2,404 thousand, including $2,380 thousand for completing channel improvements through the cities of Sevierville, Tenn., and Coeburn, Va., and $24 thousand for other facilities.

(c) Power operations involve generation and transmission of power and sale of energy at wholesale to local distribution systems and to a small number of industries and Government agencies requiring large amounts of power. As of September 1, 1965, power was purchased and distributed by 156 local public agencies and 2 small privately owned utility companies. Total energy to be supplied to the power system from generating facilities of TVA, the Department of the Army on the Cumberland River, the Aluminum Company of America on the Little Tennessee River, and exchange receipts from other utilities is estimated to be 87.4 billion kilowatt-hours in 1967. This is about 13 billion kilowatt-hours greater than the energy supplied to the system in 1965 and about 4.6 billion kilowatt-hours above that estimated to be supplied in 1966. For 1967 total funded operating costs are estimated at $223,686 thousand and total revenue and receipts at $345,243 thousand. Net income from power operations, after depreciation, is estimated to be $53.6 million for 1967, as compared with $55 million in 1965 and an estimate of $56.7 million in 1966. The estimates assume average streamflow conditions. Better than average streamflows could produce some increase in net income over the estimates; with subnormal streamflows, the net income would be reduced by increases in production expenses.

Total costs for power supply facilities are estimated at $67,944 thousand in 1967, all to be financed from power proceeds and borrowings. This estimate includes $42,060 thousand for continuing construction of Paradise steam unit 3, and $1,750 thousand for cleanup of construction on Bull Run steam unit 1. Paradise steam unit 3 is scheduled for commercial operation in October 1969. In addition, Nickajack units 1-4, hydro units included in a multipurpose project, are scheduled for service in November 1967 and January 1968, to replace capacity presently available from the Hales Bar project which is to be removed from service.

Completion of the above units as scheduled will bring the estimated dependable capacity of the system by the winter of 1967-68 to 17.09 million kilowatts, including the Army plants on the Cumberland River and other plants operated as a part of the TVA system. This will provide a reserve of 18.3% over estimated demands of 14.45 million kilowatts served by TVA capacity to allow for loss of capacity because of breakdown of generating equipment and needs for its maintenance, failure of substation equipment and transmission lines, drawdown of reservoirs during dry periods, and other contingencies. Total demands in the winter of 1967-68 are estimated at 15.60 million kilowatts, of which 1.15 million kilowatts will be served by capacity owned by others but made available to TVA under interchange arrangements. In the winter of 1968-69 it is estimated that total demands will increase to 16.10 million kilowatts, demands served by TVA capacity will be 14.45 million kilowatts, the dependable TVA system capacity will increase to 17.10 million kilowatts, and the reserve will be 18.4%. By the winter of 1969-70 it is estimated that total demands will increase to 17.10 million kilowatts, demands served by TVA capacity will be 15.45 million kilowatts, the dependable TVA system capacity will increase to 18.27 million kilowatts, and the reserve will be 18.3%.

The addition of Paradise steam unit 3 will provide adequate capacity margins during the winter of 1969-70.

During 1966 TVA will continue studies to determine the most desirable characteristics and location for an additional steam generating unit in the 1,100,000 kilowatt size class to be placed in service in the fall of 1970 to supply demands in the winter of 1970-71 when it is estimated that total demands will be 18.35 million kilowatts, demands served by TVA capacity will be 16.70 million kilowatts, the dependable TVA system capacity will be 19.37 million kilowatts, and the reserve will be 16%. The 1967 estimate is $21,500 thousand for construction work on the additional unit. Modernization to increase dependability and efficiency of hydro units 1-8 at Wilson Dam, started in 1965, will be substantially completed in 1967. The 1967 estimate is $2,334 thousand for work on these units.

The 1967 budget includes $300 thousand for preliminary design work on additional generating capacity tentatively scheduled for operation in the fall of 1971. Capital outlay in 1967 for power system facilities, including Nickajack units 1-4 and transmission system facilities, is estimated at $146,688 thousand.

(d) Multipurpose reservoir operations involve the management, operation, and maintenance of the 20 multipurpose reservoirs created by TVA dams. This includes water dispatching operations, water control investigations, investigations and control of reservoir ecology, plant protection and services to visitors, operation and upkeep of dam reservations, and operation of reservoir lands. Operating costs, funded, are estimated at $6,296 thousand for 1967, of which $1,673 thousand is allocated to navigation operations, $1,734 thousand to flood control operations, $2,249 thousand to power operations, and $297 thousand to cooperative valley development. The remaining $343 thousand is offset by nonpower proceeds derived principally from operation of reservoir lands.

A total of $32,431 thousand for multipurpose projects includes $5,500 thousand to continue construction of Tims Ford multipurpose dam and reservoir started in 1966. Total estimated cost is $39 million. An estimate of $2,900 thousand provides for starting construction of the Tellico multipurpose project. The site of this project is near the mouth of the Little Tennessee River which flows into the Tennessee River downstream from Fort Loudoun Dam. Estimated total cost is $42.5 million, of which an estimated $10.9 million will be recovered from future sales of reservoir lands.

Cost of continuing construction of Nickajack Dam and reservoir, begun in fiscal year 1964 to replace the Hales Bar project and to modernize and enlarge navigation facilities at Hales Bar, is estimated at $22,531 thousand in 1967, of which $8,486 thousand will be financed from power proceeds and borrowings. Dam closure is scheduled for November 1967, and total estimated cost, including hydro units 1-4, is $66.0 million, of which $24.5 million is estimated to be financed from power proceeds and borrowings.

Also in 1967 construction work will be started on the Bear Creek multipurpose water control system at a cost of $1,500 thousand and a total project cost estimate of $26 million. The multipurpose projects here proposed to be started or continued are, in each case, important new assets to the region, each tailored to meet specific problems and to open doors to new opportunities for advancing the region's economy.

2. Fertilizer, agricultural, and munitions development program.—Chemical facilities at Wilson Dam, Ala., are maintained and operated as a national fertilizer development center, but by statute they must also be available for munitions purposes. These facilities are important to the national defense. Total operating costs, funded, are estimated at $27,510 thousand for 1967, of which $19,918 thousand will be financed from receipts and other nonpower proceeds.

Fertilizer, agricultural, and munitions development activities are of three general types: Research on fertilizer products, processes, and uses; developmental production of fertilizer materials; and demonstration and educational introduction of new materials and improved fertilizer uses to the American farmer.

(a) Research on fertilizer products, processes, and uses consists of fundamental research, applied research, process engineering, technical studies of full-scale plant operations, and research on the agronomic requirements and effects of fertilizer materials. TVA works cooperatively with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant colleges, and with industry to maximize effectiveness of research, hasten use of findings, and to avoid undesirable duplication. Research results on technological developments and on new and improved processes are made available to industry. Knowledge gained in fertilizer research is valuable also in the related field of munitions. In 1967, research will continue on the development of high-analysis phosphates and of improved methods of making wet-process phosphoric acid. Other laboratory and applied research and development will be directed toward improving liquid and suspension fertilizers and toward the incorporation of micronutrients in high-analysis fertilizer. Further work will be done on discovering basic fertilizer-soil-plant relationships. Agronomic studies will include investigations of the behavior of nitrogen in the soil and the utilization of nitrogen and micronutrients by plants.

(b) Developmental fertilizer production has these objectives: To demonstrate the technical and commercial feasibility of new or improved processes, thereby encouraging their adoption by industry; to supply materials for widespread educational introduction among farmers; and to supply munitions materials or render other services for national defense.

(c) Demonstration and educational introduction of TVA fertilizers is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant colleges and includes carefully controlled small plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and widespread educational introduction of fertilizers, which is also conducted in cooperation with commercial fertilizer manufacturers, distributors, and dealers. Farmers and the fertilizer industry pay for the fertilizers used. The price is dependent upon the novelty of the material or practice, the nature of the demonstration, and the value of the plant nutrient content as measured by commercial fertilizer prices. Agricultural extension services of the land-grant colleges give educational and technical guidance in demonstrating and introducing new fertilizers and fertilizer practices in the participating States. Studies and investigations are conducted to provide information for planning, conducting, and appraising agricultural development activities.

Capital outlay costs for chemical facilities are estimated at $5,383 thousand in 1967. A rehabilitation program begun in 1960 will be continued with emphasis on completion of replacement facilities for preparation of charges for electric phosphorus furnaces. Plant additions to secure significant reductions in emissions to the air and water will be made.

3. Cooperative valley development program.—Special attention to selected areas and resources of the Tennessee Valley region, in particularly close cooperation with State and local agencies and with tributary area associations, constitutes an additional phase of TVA's program for the proper use, conservation, and development of the region's natural resources. Investigations identify current problems and opportunities for development under conditions of optimum use. Research helps develop and test corrective measures. Cooperative projects with State and local groups apply these measures to regional and special problems. Total operating costs, funded, are estimated at $3,831 thousand for 1967, of which $12 thousand is to be financed from proceeds.

Cooperative valley development activities are of four principal types: Forestry projects, mineral resources investigations, tributary area development, and regional water quality management. The category also includes a small research activity directed toward disposal of organic wastes as soil amendments.

(a) Forestry projects aid the States, counties, landowners, and the timber industry in making full use of the existing forest resource of the Valley and of developing it for maximum long-term production of quality timber, consistent with the needs of watershed protection. Forestry projects include appraisals of the quality and quantity of the forest resource and research and demonstrations in forest management, reforestation, industrial wood use, forest tree improvement, forest fertilizer tests, and strip mine reclamation.

(b) Mineral resources investigations will continue in 1967 in cooperation with State agencies, with emphasis on economic geology and the preparation of geologic maps essential to the development of regional minerals.

(c) Tributary area development is a comprehensive and concentrated approach to resource development in areas of the Tennessee Valley where special problems inhibit economic growth, where specific opportunities exist for further development of the resource base, and where local groups have organized to deal with problems of economic advancement and area improvement. In 1967 TVA will work closely with organized groups in 15 tributary areas.

(d) Regional water quality management comprises determination of basic facts about water quality, research on protecting and improving water quality, and demonstrations of ways of maintaining or upgrading the quality of the water resource. This work is conducted in cooperation with appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies and with industrial users of water.

(e) Disposal of organic wastes as soil amendments will be continued as a study in cooperation with the Public Health Service.

4. Land Between the Lakes demonstration.—The 1967 budget program includes provision for continuing development, as a demonstration of new ideas in public outdoor recreation and conservation education, of an area in western Kentucky and Tennessee of approximately 170,000 acres, situated between TVA's Kentucky reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Lake. Offering the innumerable recreational advantages associated with 300 miles of cove-studded shoreline, Land Between the Lakes is within sunrise-to-sunset driving distance of 70 million of the Nation's people. This area is presently one of the most sparsely settled sections in the Tennessee and Cumberland Valleys and has only limited agricultural or industrial potential. Its development is planned to demonstrate new concepts of resource management for outdoor recreation and resource use education and to achieve a higher use of the land. Adequately developed, the area will serve as a stimulus to the lagging economy of the surrounding area by encouraging further private development and will serve as a guide to possible public development of other areas for recreation in the Tennessee Valley region and the Nation. The project will include a variety of activities through which an urbanizing population may use part of its increased leisure to renew its acquaintance with the land and gain new understandings of modern concepts of resource use and conservation. All planned recreation facilities including campgrounds, picnic areas, boat launching ramps, associated roads and parking sites, and areas for hiking, fishing, and game management will incorporate ideas gained from institutions, agencies, and organizations who use outdoor recreation resources in their programs. In 1967, $11,010 thousand will be used to continue land acquisition and construction activities, and $784 thousand will be used for operations. Total capital outlay for initial development of the Land Between the Lakes demonstration is estimated at $51.5 million.

5. General service activities.—Operating costs for general service activities cover bridge maintenance, fallout shelter maintenance, topographic mapping, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies.

Topographic maps of the Tennessee Valley are vital to TVA's planning, construction, and operation needs. In order to be of practical utility, these maps, which now cover the entire Tennessee Valley, must be revised periodically. The estimate for 1967 includes $260 thousand for those maps which most urgently need revision and which are most necessary for regional development purposes at this time.

An estimate of $59 thousand provides for bridge maintenance (23 U.S.C., sec. 320) and for maintenance of fallout shelters.

The 1967 estimate of $4,821 thousand for reimbursable services includes $2,427 thousand for operating an experimental gas-cooled reactor project for the Atomic Energy Commission at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; $673 thousand for mapping services for the Department of the Army and other agencies; $282 thousand for technical advisory assistance to power distributors; and $165 thousand for services for the Department of Defense for standby maintenance of the Muscle Shoals phosphate development works. The balance is for loans of personnel and services to other agencies and miscellaneous recoveries of TVA expenditures, including backcharges to vendors for repairs by TVA to damaged structures or equipment.

Capital outlay costs for general facilities are estimated at $3,222 thousand in 1967. This covers additions and replacements of office, transportation, and electronic computing equipment and facilities used jointly in conducting all TVA programs. The 1967 estimate includes $422 thousand for a power dispatching center and general office building to be located on Chickamauga Dam reservation in the vicinity of Chattanooga, Tenn., for occupancy by TVA personnel stationed in the Chattanooga area; and $35 thousand to complete design of a new medical and general service center at Wilson Dam, Ala., to replace present facilities, some dating back to World War I.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1967 would be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $63,635 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $25,426 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $346,020 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowings of $75 million backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

estimated at $669,823 thousand. Net income from power operations in 1967 is estimated at $53,557 thousand. The accumulated net expense of nonpower programs at the end of 1967 is estimated at $346,531 thousand, of which $23,480 thousand is from 1967 operations. Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriations from the Treasury. Payments to the Treasury in 1967 are estimated at $58.3 million—$43.3 million as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $15 million as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program.

Total assets are estimated at $2,897,593 thousand at the end of 1967 as compared with an estimate of $2,781,316 thousand at the end of 1966—an increase of $116,277 thousand during 1967. The increase is mainly in fixed assets, reflecting expenditures for construction of facilities; $79,523 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $36,754 thousand is in nonpower programs.

appropriate, U.S. participation in such control systems as may be adopted.

Approximately 60% of the 1967 request will be for research contracts with industrial firms, nonprofit organizations, and universities. During 1967, the Agency will emphasize in its research efforts field tests of possible verification techniques, development of special sensors, and analysis of U.S. Government seismic capabilities.

The United States Information Agency seeks, by means of communication techniques, to influence public attitudes abroad to achieve U.S. foreign policy objectives. The Agency also advises those responsible for formulating and implementing foreign policies and programs as to the probable impact of those policies on foreign opinion.

Agency operations are largely financed from this appropriation, which covers dollar and certain foreign currency costs, and from the special foreign currency appropriation below.

The increase of about $4.8 million in obligations funded from the salaries and expenses appropriation will fund nondiscretionary increases required to maintain the 1966 program level and will provide for selective program increases. The increases are for a stepped-up Vietnamese training program for Agency personnel; an expansion of programs for Africa, including radio broadcasting; an increase in Latin America for assistance to binational centers and expansion of the student affairs program; and increases in research funds and representation allowances. The program increases are substantially offset by savings from management improvements and program cutbacks.

1. Overseas missions.—The program is conducted through 219 posts in 105 countries. The overseas missions carry out country programs designed to influence local attitudes and actions in support of U.S. foreign policy. Overseas missions prepare materials using local facilities and use materials provided by the media services in Washington. The following table summarizes the total cost of dollar and all foreign currency financed mission operations, including the cost of materials supplied by the media services (in thousands of dollars):

2. Media services.—These services provide support for oversea country programs.

(a) Press and publications service maintains communications facilities for the transmission of editorial and feature materials for adaptation by oversea missions. It produces two monthly magazines titled "America Illustrated," one for distribution in the Soviet Union and the other in Poland; one Arabic language magazine, "Life in America," sold on newsstands throughout the Arab world; and a monthly magazine, "Topic," for the African area, in French and English editions. The service also operates three regional printing centers and provides oversea missions with printing supplies and equipment.

(b) Motion picture and television service produces and acquires motion picture films and television programs which are then translated into as many as 58 foreign languages. It adapts these programs for specific country or area use, and directs the foreign production, use, and distribution of films and television programs. The service also supplies the missions with equipment for showing motion pictures. This service, which combines the functions and operations of the former motion picture service and the television service, was established in 1966.

(c) Information center service supports U.S.-operated libraries and reading rooms, and binational centers, providing them with collections of American publications, both in English and in translations, and with English language teaching materials. It assists American publishers in distributing selected products overseas and supports the publication of low-priced books for sale abroad. The service also provides exhibits and visual materials to oversea missions for local display, and provides books and periodicals for presentation to selected individuals and groups.

(d) Broadcasting service in 1967 will produce radio broadcasts in English and in 37 foreign languages. Programs will be broadcast from transmitters at 6 domestic and 10 oversea locations. The service will continue to supply the oversea missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations and with radio supplies and equipment.

3. Research and reference service acquires and prepares reports for use by domestic and oversea establishments in formulating and implementing Agency policies and programs.

4. Cooperative programs with private organizations.—The Agency encourages and coordinates the efforts of private organizations in building an information exchange program between the people of the United States and the peoples of foreign countries.

5. Program direction includes the Office of the Director, assistant directors for geographic areas, and the Office of Policy and Plans.

6. Administrative and staff support includes physical and personnel security functions, legal counsel, central administrative services, and emergency planning.

7. Administrative support.—Administrative services for the Agency's oversea operations, and certain special support services at headquarters, are obtained through reimbursable arrangements with the Department of State.

The purpose of this program, except for trade missions, is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and those of other lands through U.S. exhibitions in international fairs and other demonstrations of American economic, social, industrial, scientific, and cultural attainments.

1. Trade missions have been sent abroad to further the development of American export markets. Funds for this program are not included in the 1967 United States Information Agency estimates.

2. Labor missions are sent to selected fairs and exhibitions abroad. There were 11 labor missions in 1965; 6 are provided in 1966; and 7 are requested for 1967.

3. Fairs and exhibitions combine the former international trade fair and special purpose exhibition programs. In 1965 a third series of 2 exhibits was completed under the U.S.-U.S.S.R. exchange agreement, both shown in 3 sites in the Soviet Union, and 11 exhibits were mounted at international fairs. In 1966 7 exhibits were mounted at international fairs and a fourth series of three exchange exhibits will be inaugurated and subsequently reshown in three countries in Eastern Europe. The 1967 estimate provides for 10 trade fair exhibits and showings of two of the three fourth-series exchange exhibits in the U.S.S.R. and showings of the third-series exhibits in four East European countries.

4. Montreal Fair.—U.S. participation in the Canadian Universal and International Exhibition to be held in calendar year 1967 is funded at $9,300 thousand appropriated in 1965. Obligations for the Fair will be incurred through fiscal year 1968.

EXCESS FOREIGN CURRENCY AUTHORIZATION

For expenses of carrying out programs of the United States Information Agency, as authorized by law, foreign currencies owned by the United States are authorized to be used, pursuant to section 1415 of the Act of July 15, 1952 (31 U.S.C. 724), without fiscal year limitation, in the following amounts: 685,152 Ceylonese rupees; 33,570,300 Indian rupees; 4,670,491 Pakistan rupees; 546,674 Egyptian pounds; and 1,125,000,000 Yugoslav dinars: Provided, That such currencies shall be in addition to funds otherwise available for such programs: Provided further, That any of the above amounts may be increased by not more than 15 percent by transfer of the equivalent value from the amounts specified for any other currency or currencies, but the amount for any currency may not be decreased by more than 15 percent: Provided further, That the provisions of section 702 of this Act shall not apply to administration of activities funded from this authorization.

These excess foreign currencies will be used to extend the informational programs of the United States Information Agency. The estimates include only specific projects additive to, but separable from, the activities funded under the regular appropriation requests for 1967. Chief use will be to further the publication and promotion of American textbooks and reference works, both in English and in translation. A second major effort will be to establish or extend programs intended specifically to reach university students and faculty groups. The proposed additional uses of excess foreign currencies are summarized in the table that follows (in thousands of local currency units):

The Water Resources Planning Act of 1965 (Public Law 89-80, July 22, 1965) established the Water Resources Council and authorized river planning commissions which, working together, engage in activities designed to meet national and regional water requirements. Federal coordination takes the form of assessing requirements, coordinating water policies and programs of the several Federal agencies, developing procedures for Federal participation in regional or river basin plans, reviewing plans developed by river basin commissions, and making recommendations to the President on possible Federal projects to meet the national water requirements.

The river basin commissions develop for review and approval by the Council regional water and related land use plans designed to make the optimum use of such resources.

PART II

DETAILED ESTIMATES FOR TRUST FUNDS

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES FOR TRUST FUNDS

Part II contains detailed schedules and explanatory statements on the various trust funds. It excludes the detail on trust fund programs which require annual action by Congress (shown in part I) and the detail on the District of Columbia municipal government funds (contained in a separate budget volume).

TRUST AND DEPOSIT FUNDS DISTINGUISHED

The funds which are covered in this part of the budget are of two types as follows:

Trust funds are those funds established to account for receipts which are held in a fiduciary capacity by the Government for use in carrying out specific purposes and programs in accordance with a trust agreement or a statute. Within the category of trust funds, there is a subcategory of trust revolving funds, which are trust funds used to carry on a cycle of business-type operations, including certain corporations which are partly owned by the Government and partly by private interests.

Deposit funds are those funds established to account for collections that are either (a) held in suspense temporarily and later refunded or paid into some other fund of the Government, or (b) held by the Government as banker or agent for others, being paid out in lump sums at the direction of the owner. Such funds are not available for paying salaries, expenses, grants, or other expenditures of the Government.

While the transactions in these groups of funds are a part of the financial program of the Government, trust and deposit funds are reserved for the purposes of the trust or the terms of the deposit; hence these transactions are excluded from the administrative budget totals.

OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY FOR TRUST FUNDS

Most trust fund receipts are made available for use by permanent law, without requiring further action by Congress. In a few cases receipts of trust funds can be obligated and expended only in accordance with appropriations enacted by Congress from year to year. Examples are the funds of the United States Soldiers' Home and the general municipal revenues of the District of Columbia. In the case of the Highway trust fund, Congress controls expenditures by appropriations annually, but it grants contract authorizations in advance thereof. In a few other cases, the trust receipts are permanently available for program purposes, but Congress imposes annual limitations on administrative expenses.

FORM OF TRUST FUND PRESENTATIONS

The detailed material in part II covers the trust funds which do not require annual action by Congress. Consolidated schedules are used for the smaller trust funds of each bureau or independent agency.

The material here follows the general format of the similar material in part I. In most cases, all receipts of a trust fund are permanently appropriated as the receipts are collected. In cases where the receipts are not appropriated as the money is collected, an additional schedule identifies the amounts available for appropriation. No appropriation language appears here, and the narrative statement of program and performance usually consists only of an explanation of the sources of money for the fund, the purposes for which it is authorized to be spent, and the legal citations.

TRUST FUND RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Receipts.—Like budget receipts, trust fund receipts are based upon collections received and deposited, including U.S. Government securities received in lieu of cash and contributions to the trust funds from the general fund. Reported receipts exclude borrowing and the sale or redemptions of U.S. Government securities.

Expenditures.—Like budget expenditures, trust fund expenditures are stated on a checks-issued basis, less refunds collected. The repayment of borrowing and the purchase of U.S. Government securities are excluded from the expenditure figures.

Trust revolving funds.—The small group of funds which constitute trust revolving funds are reported on a net expenditure basis. The collections of trust revolving funds, instead of being reported as receipts, are deducted from expenditures.

DEPOSIT FUND EXPENDITURES

Deposit fund expenditures are shown only in total for each agency as a whole. These expenditures are on a net basis; that is, the collections are deducted from checks issued, and the resulting figure is shown as an expenditure. Checks issued include transactions to move money into other funds, as well as refunds and the return of money to depositors. When the collections are larger than the gross expenditures, the amount shown as an expenditure is a negative item.

This schedule covers (1) funds received as gifts for immediate expenditure and receipts from the sale of recordings and photoduplication materials financed from capital originally received as gifts, (2) income from investments held by the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, and (3) interest at the rate of 4% per annum paid by the Treasury on the principal funds deposited therewith as described under "Library of Congress trust fund, principal accounts." (2 U.S.C. 156-160; 31 U.S.C. 725s; 37 Stat. 319.)

1. Acquisition of Library materials.—During 1965, this included the procurement of manuscripts, Hispanic materials, fine prints, books and other library materials from certain foreign areas for the Library of Congress, and the acquisition and distribution of Government documents for the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries.

2. Reader and reference services.—These services during 1965 included the preparation of bibliographies, indexes, digests, and checklists; lectures; surveys of bibliographic services; poetry readings; musical concerts; furtherance of musical research, composition, performance, and appreciation; and providing photostats, photographs, microfilm, and other forms of photoduplication, and sound recordings of folksongs and poetry to other Government agencies, libraries, and other institutions, and to the general public.

3. Organization of the collections.—During 1965, work was continued on the LC Catalog, Books: Subjects, 1960-64. This 5-year cumulation will total approximately 26 volumes. Work was completed on Dewey Decimal Classification, 17th edition; Dewey Decimal Classification, 9th abridged edition; and the Union List of Serials, 3d edition. The first was published in July 1965, the second in September 1965, and the third is scheduled for publication in early calendar year 1966. The preparation of the index and subject headings for Dissertation Abstracts was continued as well as the preparation of printed catalog cards for additional manuscript collections located in the Library of Congress and other institutions. Work was completed on the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections, 1963-64, which was published during September 1965. Work was begun on the National Register of Microform Masters with a view toward publication of its first issue during October 1965.

The number of judges participating in the system established by 28 U.S.C. 376 increased in 1965 from 414 to 423. There were 465 judges on the roll at the end of the year as compared with 459 at the beginning of the year. As of June 30, 1965, there were 42 nonparticipants as compared with 45 a year ago.

The number of survivor annuitants on the roll increased in 1965 from 150 at the beginning of the year to 152 at the end of the year. The average annuity increased $172, from $3,124 to $3,296. Current awards to annuitants are substantially higher than the annuities granted to widows in previous years because of statutory increases in the salaries of judges.

This trust fund is used for military assistance sales of defense articles and services. Defense articles sold consist largely of aircraft, ships, combat and other vehicles, missiles, electronic equipment, spare parts, and related supporting equipment. In dollar volume, the major portion of this program consists of sales to European and other developed countries of the free world.

Defense articles from Department of Defense stocks and defense services are sold to eligible countries and international organizations if they agree to pay in dollars not less than the value thereof in advance or, as authorized by the President, within 3 years after delivery. Payment within 120 days of delivery is normally required and the 3-year credit provision is rarely used.

Defense articles and defense services are also procured for sale if the purchasers provide the U.S. Government with a dependable undertaking to: (1) pay the full amount of the procurement contract, which assures the U.S. Government against any loss on the contract, and (2) to make funds available in such amounts and at such times as may be required to meet the payments or other costs under the contract. Where it is found to be in the national interest, the Department of Defense may accept a dependable undertaking under which the eligible purchaser agrees to pay 120 days after delivery. In such cases, Department of Defense appropriations are used to meet payments required by such contracts, and these appropriations are reimbursed by amounts subsequently received from the purchasers.

These funds are administered by the Farmers Home Administration, under agreements with 38 individual States, for use in carrying out subtitles A and B of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961. In these States, real estate-type loans are made from these funds and insured under the regular Farmers Home Administration insured loan program at 5%. In some States, operating-type loans are made at 5% interest. The entire assets of the 38 State corporations are being administered by the Farmers Home Administration, with the exception of $15.1 million representing the partial return of cash and other assets, at face value, to 19 of these States for rural rehabilitation purposes agreed upon between each corporation and the Federal Government. The entire assets of five other State rural rehabilitation corporations have been returned to those States.

In connection with the insurance of loans and mortgages which are for construction, reconstruction, or reconditioning of vessels, and which are financed by sale of bonds to the general public, section 1111, Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (73 Stat. 272, 273), authorizes the Secretary of Commerce to accept deposits in escrow of proceeds from the sale of such bonds, together with interest due the bondholders.

Funds so deposited are to be used for (a) payments becoming due on the construction, reconstruction, or reconditioning of the vessels, (b) interest on the loan or mortgage, or (c) payments on account of principal in cases of default. 1. Benefit payments.—Under the Federal old-age and survivors insurance system, workers, employers, and self-employed individuals make contributions in the form of taxes on earnings. These amounts are deposited in this trust fund for benefits payable when the worker retires or when he dies. Proposed legislation shifting from annual to quarterly contributions by the self-employed will increase tax receipts in 1966 and 1967. Any excess of income over outgo together with annual interest is invested in Government securities (42 U.S.C. 401).

2. Construction and administration.—Effective with 1966, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare determines, on a current estimated basis, that portion of the administrative expenses of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare which is a proper charge to this fund. Adjustment will be made in each succeeding year for the difference between actual costs and the estimated. For 1966 only, the administrative costs chargeable to the supplementary medical insurance trust fund will be borne by the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund with reimbursement for these costs plus interest lost to be made in 1967.

4. Payment to Railroad retirement account.—Payments are made between this trust fund and the railroad retirement account so as to place this fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E).

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act provide that payments may be made from this fund for the purpose of making vocational rehabilitation services available to disabled children who receive benefits under this program. The total amount of these payments may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to such individuals in the preceding year.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides disability insurance benefits for certain disabled individuals and their dependents. Funds are provided from taxes on earnings. Proposed legislation will shift from annual to quarterly contributions by the self-employed and will increase tax receipts in 1966 and 1967.

2. Construction and administration.—Effective with 1966, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare determines, on a current estimated basis, that portion of the administrative expenses of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare which is a proper charge to this fund. Adjustment will be made in each succeeding year for the difference between actual costs and the estimated. For years prior to 1966, the amount of the proper charge for administrative expenses to this fund was determined by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare after the close of the fiscal year. A transfer of funds was made to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund to reimburse for such expenses, plus interest, which were originally borne by the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund.

4. Payment to Railroad Retirement account.—Annual payments are made between this account and the railroad retirement account so as to place these funds in the same position in which they would have been if railroad retirement employment had been included under social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E).

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act provide that payments may be made from this fund for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to disabled individuals entitled to disability insurance benefits. The total amount of these payments may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to such individuals in the preceding year.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Amendments of 1965 provide for a basic hospital insurance program which will pay benefits to most individuals age 65 and over to cover the costs of hospital and related services, effective July 1, 1966, and extended care facilities effective January 1, 1967. The benefit payments and administrative costs for those on the social security and railroad retirement rolls will be financed from a separate payroll tax effective January 1, 1966. Proposed legislation will shift from annual to quarterly contributions by the self-employed and will increase tax receipts in 1966 and 1967. Costs of providing benefits to those not insured under the social security or railroad retirement program will be met from general revenues of the Treasury.

Tax contributions and transfers from general revenues of the Treasury will be deposited in the newly created Federal hospital insurance trust fund. The excess of income over outgo will be invested in Government securities.

2. Construction and administration.—The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare determines, on a current estimated basis that portion of the administrative expenses of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare which is a proper charge to this fund. Adjustment will be made each year effective with 1967 for the difference between actual costs and the estimate for the preceding year.

Annual payments will be made by this account and the railroad retirement account so as to place these funds in the same position in which they would have been if railroad retirement employment had been included under social security coverage.

1. Benefit payments.—The 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act provide for voluntary supplemental medical benefits program. Effective July 1, 1966, benefit payments will be made to those electing coverage to cover the costs of physicians' services, home health services, and other related medical services. Costs of benefit payments and administrative expenses will be financed by premium payments of $3.00 per month by enrollees together with matching contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury.

2. Construction and administration.—Effective 1967, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, determines, on a current estimated basis, that portion of the administrative expenses of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare which is a proper charge to this fund. Adjustment will be made in the subsequent year for the difference between actual costs and the estimated for the preceding year. For 1966 only, the administrative costs chargeable to the supplementary medical insurance trust fund will be borne by the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund with reimbursement for these costs plus interest lost to that fund to be made in 1967.

² Repayment of borrowings or purchase of preferred stock from Treasury represent obligations and expenditures of this fund but do not decrease the authority available to the fund since they may be reborrowed from or resold to Treasury at some future time. Similarly, borrowings from or sales of stock to Treasury represent receipts to this fund but do not increase the authority available to the fund.

Under its secondary market operations, the Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized to provide limited liquidity for Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and to improve the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing. Purchases of Federal Housing Administration-insured and Veterans Administration-guaranteed mortgages, or loans insured by the Farmers Home Administration, and short-term loans secured by such mortgages and loans under these operations, are financed by the proceeds from (1) the sale of FNMA's obligations to private investors or the Secretary of the Treasury (the Secretary of the Treasury may not at any one time hold more than $2.25 billion of such obligations), (2) subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury for FNMA preferred stock ($92.8 million was authorized in 1955, $50 million in 1957 and $65 million in 1958, making a total of $207.8 million), (3) mandatory contributions into capital incident to subscriptions for the Association's common stock by FNMA sellers and borrowers, (4) the sale of mortgages or loans to the investing public, (5) repayments and prepayments of mortgage or loan principal, and (6) income from operations. Recommendations for such legislation as may be necessary or desirable to transfer ownership of the Association to the private holders of the common stock must be submitted to the Congress as promptly as practicable after all of the Treasury-held preferred stock has been retired. Meanwhile, the present interim program, financed by private as well as by Government investment funds, is treated as a trust fund. Operations are discussed in Part I of this document in connection with the program's general fund financing and effect on budget expenditures.

Property in the United States of the governments or nationals of Bulgaria, Hungary, and Rumania, seized pursuant to title II of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949 (22 U.S.C. 1621), has been vested in the name of the Attorney General like property seized from the governments and nationals of Germany and Japan. As of June 30, 1965, a total of $26.6 million had been vested and liquidated. Funds thus realized are earmarked for payment of war damages and nationalization claims assertable by U.S. nationals against Bulgaria, Hungary, and Rumania. A total of $24.9 million already has been covered into the Treasury.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and Railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment trust fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by special State payroll taxes. These tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment trust fund and are invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments. The expenses of State and Federal administration (including those of the Federal-State employment service), are paid from the fund out of revenue from the Federal unemployment tax, assessed on employers, of 0.4% of the first $3 thousand of wages.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment trust fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet these expenses.

On June 30, 1965, the cash balance of $7,860,766 thousand was distributed as follows among the various accounts maintained in the fund (in thousands of dollars):

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death and for fines and penalty payments. In 1965 receipts were $24 thousand and interest was $18 thousand (33 U.S.C. 908; 31 U.S.C. 725; 33 U.S.C. 944).

Receipts are used to pay compensation in cases where judgment against employers cannot be satisfied by reason of insolvency or other circumstances precluding payment, to provide necessary medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been default in furnishing such medical treatment by reason of the insolvency of the employers; for payment of additional compensation for second injuries resulting in permanent total disability and to provide maintenance for employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation. In addition, under the subactivity, Administration of rehabilitation, provision is made for the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled longshoremen and harbor workers.

The fund is maintained through (a) contributions by participants, including all Foreign Service officers and eligible Foreign Service staff officers and employees, of 6.5% of their basic annual salaries; (b) matching Government (employer) contributions from the appropriations from which salaries are paid; and (c) interest on investments (22 U.S.C. 1071).

It is estimated that approximately 1,545 annuitants will be paid retirement benefits from this fund at the end of 1967 compared with 1,296 at the end of 1965 and 1,423 at the end of 1966. Gratuities represent payments made to Foreign Service officers in classes 4, 5, 6, and 7 who are selected out of the Service.

While income still exceeds outgo, the long-range projections for this fund indicate that payments will exceed income in the near future and the Government will need to supplement its current practice of only matching employee deductions.

A supplemental payment from the general fund is forecast for 1966.

This fund (72 Stat. 1154) was established in 1940 as the financing mechanism for World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program authorized by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Because issuance of new policies ended in 1951 the insurance in force will continue to decline. The general decline in the activity of the fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in millions):

	June 30, 1964	June 30, 1965	June 30, 1966	June 30, 1967

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special Treasury interest-bearing securities and in policy loans, are expected to increase from $6,478 million as of June 30, 1965, to $6,844 million as of June 30, 1967. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of June 30, 1965, totals $6,415 million, leaving a balance of $63.3 million for contingency reserves.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the appropriation "Veterans insurance and indemnities," for claims (1) resulting from extra hazards of the veterans' service, and (2) arising on certain policies held by personnel on active duty. Administrative expenses are charged to the appropriation General operating expenses.

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the greatest possible extent consistent with law. In the program and financing statement, the noncash transactions, which are offset by other claims of the fund, are excluded from program costs in order to show obligations. The following business-type statements of revenue and expense and of financial condition include these noncash transactions relating to the status of insurance policy accounts.

This fund is used to pay annuities to retired employees or their survivors, to make refunds to former employees who have left the service, and to pay claims for employees who have died before retirement or before their annuities are paid in full (5 U.S.C. ch. 14). It is estimated that as of June 30, 1967, there will be 813,726 persons on the annuity roll, compared with 770,732 as of June 30, 1966, and 728,858 as of June 30, 1965.

During fiscal year 1966, this fund will also pay administrative expenses to cover the cost of placing in effect annuity increases provided by Public Law 89-205, approved September 27, 1965, as amended by Public Law 89-314, approved November 1, 1965. Beginning in 1967 all administrative expenses of this program are proposed to be paid from the fund rather than from appropriations.

This fund finances the payment of subscription charges to approved carriers of the cost of health benefits protection as provided by the Federal Employees Health Benefits Act of 1959, as amended (5 U.S.C. 3001-3014), together with expenses incurred by the Civil Service Commission in administration of the act.

Budget program.—Almost 2 million employees and approximately 206,300 annuitants are participating in this program. By the end of 1967 it is estimated that an additional 102,000 annuitants will participate in the program. For 1967 an estimated $417.3 million will be deposited into the fund from amounts withheld from employees and annuitants and $160.2 million will be contributed by the Government. An estimated $555.3 million will be paid from the fund in 1967 to approved health benefit plans. An amount equal to 3% of the contribution toward each plan is set aside in the fund to provide a contingency reserve for that plan. The contingency reserve is used to defray future increased rates, to reduce contributions, or to provide increased benefits. Payments are made to experience rated carriers from the contingency reserve when the reserves held by the carrier are less than a stipulated amount and the plan's contingency reserve held by the fund exceeds 1 month's subscription charges. Community rated carriers may also receive additional payments from their plan's contingency reserve held by the fund, when properly justified. An estimated $16 million will be paid in 1967 from the contingency reserve to qualified carriers. In addition, an amount equal to 1% of all contributions is set aside for administrative expenses incurred by the Commission in the administration of the act. Public Law 88-284, enacted March 17, 1964, provides that the Commission from time to time and in such amounts as it considers appropriate may transfer unused funds for administrative expenses to the contingency reserve of the plans under contract. In 1965, $3.1 million was transferred from the administrative expense reserve to the contingency reserve. During 1966 another $3.8 million will be available for transfer, and in 1967 slightly more than $4.3 million will become available.

On June 30, 1965, there were total reserves of $64.1 million held by the fund. Of this amount, $2.4 million was being held for payment of administrative expenses and $61.7 million was held as a contingency reserve for payment to qualified carriers.

Financing.—The fund will be financed by contributions from participants and the Government.

Operating results.—Earnings will be retained to meet the cost of administration and future benefits.

This fund finances the payment of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act of 1954 (5 U.S.C. 2091-2103) and any expenses incurred by the Civil Service Commission in administration of this act as annually authorized by Congress.

Budget program.—Through June 30, 1965, with respect to the basic insurance program, a total of $914.1 million was withheld from the salaries of covered employees and $457 million was contributed by the Government to the fund. It is estimated that in 1967, $118.4 million will be paid into the fund by employees and $59.2 million by the Government. As of June 30, 1965, a total of $916 million had been paid by the insurer in benefits. It is estimated that over $155 million in benefits will be paid in 1967.

Most of the difference between receipts and benefit payments under the policy is placed in reserves. On June 30, 1965, the end of the last completed policy year, there were total reserves of $496.3 million of which $133.1 million was held as a special contingency reserve by the insurer at interest, and $363.2 million was held by the fund with the Treasury of the United States. The contingency reserve is limited to a level of $150 million, and all amounts above this figure periodically are returned and deposited in the Treasury of the United States to be invested.

A summary statement of the operations of the contingency reserve for the three most recent policy years, 1963 through 1965, and the total at the end of the 11th policy year follows:

Through June 30, 1965, individuals whose beneficial life insurance agreements have been assumed by the fund paid $25.9 million into the fund. It is estimated that in 1967 about $2.8 million will be paid into the fund by this group. Former members of beneficial associations continue to pay premiums according to the rate schedules in effect at the time their life insurance agreements were assumed by the fund, but the Government makes no current contributions to the fund for these individuals as it does for employees covered under the regular program.

A contingency reserve has been established and held by the insurer at interest under the policy covering members of beneficial associations. This reserve, which was estimated to be $6.6 million on June 30, 1965, will accumulate interest consistent with that provided under the regular program. The Commission has determined that the contingency reserve under the beneficial association program will be held at a level of $6 million to meet adverse fluctuation in future charges. Any amounts above this level at the end of the policy year December 31, 1965, and any subsequent policy year, will be returned to the fund.

Financing.—Premium costs are met by withholding from the salaries of employees 25 cents biweekly for each $1 thousand of life insurance, contributions by the Government, and direct premium payments from beneficial association members.

Operating results.—Earnings are retained to meet the cost of future benefits.

This fund established in accordance with the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act (Public Law 86-724, 5 U.S.C. 3053) finances (1) the payment of subscription charges to an approved carrier for those qualified employees and survivors who enroll in the Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; (2) the contribution to qualified employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and (3) the payment of expenses incurred by the Civil Service Commission in the administration of the act.

Budget program.—The act provides that the fund shall be available without fiscal year limitation for all payments toward the health benefits subscription charges of the uniform plan or contributions to qualified annuitants with private health insurance and that the amounts authorized to be contributed by the Government shall be paid into the fund from annual appropriations. The act, as amended, also provides that amounts available for administrative expenses incurred by the Commission shall be within such limitation as may be specified annually by the Congress. The estimate of administrative expenses for 1967 is based on anticipated needs. During 1967 an estimated $12.3 million will be paid into the fund by participating retired employees and survivors and $13.4 million by the Government. It is estimated that $19.3 million in subscription charges will be paid to the carrier of the Government-sponsored plan, and $6.2 million to annuitants for their private health insurance plans in fiscal year 1967.

Financing.—The fund will be financed by contributions from those participants enrolled in the Government-sponsored plan and by Government contributions for 1967.

Operating results.—There will be an estimated $913 thousand surplus in the fund at the end of 1967 as compared with an estimated $713 thousand in 1966. This is primarily interest earned on investments, which were held during the years 1962 through 1967, but liquidated periodically to meet obligations.

The National Capital Housing Authority operates the low-rent public housing program in the District of Columbia under the authority of the Housing Act of 1937 and title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act (48 Stat. 930). The 1967 program consists of the operation of 8,653 dwelling units and the development of 2,247 additional units. Management and development operations are financed through rental income, loans, and annual contributions. There is no debt service on Federal projects conveyed to the Authority for low rent use; all other projects are permanently financed through the sale of Housing Authority bonds which are supported by the pledge of the Public Housing Administration to pay annual contributions equal to the debt service less any excess operating receipts over operating expense.

Under the railroad retirement system, railroad workers and employers pay taxes on wages to finance the payment of annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors and to finance the cost of hospital insurance benefits established by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act. These taxes are deposited in this trust fund and invested in Government securities bearing interest of at least 3%.

The 1965 amendments to the Railroad Retirement Act increased the amount of compensation subject to this tax from $450 to $550 per month, decreased the tax rate of 8.125% in effect for the first 9 months of calendar year 1965 to 7.125% for the last 3 months of the year, which is payable by both employers and employees, and then provide for increases in the tax rate to 7.95% for 1966 and 8.4% for 1967. The portion of these taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is transferred to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund under the financial interchange provisions governing the railroad retirement and social security systems. The 1965 amendments also provided increases in benefit rates for many railroad retirement beneficiaries.

The status of the trust fund is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Income.—The income of the Railroad retirement account consists of taxes paid by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; appropriations for military service credits; repayments on amounts loaned to the Railroad unemployment insurance account; payments from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and Federal disability insurance trust fund. The railroad retirement system has a reinsurance arrangement of annual financial interchanges with the social security system so as to place these systems in the same position in which they would have been if railroad employment had been included in social security coverage.

Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Payment estimates reflect the continuing growth in the beneficiary rolls and the increases in benefit rates provided by the 1965 amendments to the Railroad Retirement and Social Security Acts.

Administrative expenses.—Such expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on salaries and expenses, Railroad Retirement Board in part II of the budget).

Loan to Railroad unemployment insurance account.—The Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act provides that when the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account is insufficient to pay benefits due under that act, necessary amounts are to be borrowed from the Railroad retirement account. When the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account permits, borrowed amounts are to be repaid to the Railroad retirement account with interest.

Financial interchange payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—Portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund since payments of hospital benefits for railroad retirement beneficiaries are made from that fund.

As of each June 30, the unobligated balance in this fund in excess of $6 million is transferred to the Railroad unemployment insurance account in the unemployment trust fund (45 U.S.C. 361).

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Insurance payments for unemployment, sickness, and maternity benefits are based on individual records of earnings and daily wage rates and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the retirement program. Accounts posted were 982,000 in 1965 and are estimated at 980,000 in 1966 and 1967.

2. Processing of unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the headquarters offices. Regular unemployment claims were 979,000 in 1965 and are estimated to be 800,000 in 1966 and 1967.

3. Processing of sickness and maternity claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters offices of the Board. Sickness claims were 688,000 in 1965 and are estimated to be 660,000 in 1966 and 1967.

4. Claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. This resulted in savings of benefit payments of approximately $4.8 million in 1965 as 22,400 placements were made. Placements are estimated at 22,000 in 1966 and 1967.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the retirement program on a measured basis.

This fund, established under 26 U.S.C. 7448, is used to pay survivorship benefits to eligible widows and dependent children of deceased judges of the Tax Court of the United States. Participating judges pay into the fund 3% of their salaries or retired pay to cover creditable service for which payment is required and such additional funds as are needed are provided through the annual appropriation to the Tax Court of the United States.

On June 30, 1965, eight judges of the court were participating in the fund, and two eligible widows were receiving survivorship annuity payments.

PART III

PERSONNEL COMPENSATION SCHEDULES

EXPLANATION OF PERSONNEL COMPENSATION SCHEDULES

Part III contains detailed schedules on personnel compensation which are furnished to the Congress pursuant to section 204 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, as amended (31 U.S.C. 581). The schedules show data for (a) permanent positions, (b) positions other than permanent, (c) special personal service payments, and (d) other personnel compensation.

The sections on permanent positions relate to those established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. Positions authorized at the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time. Positions abolished during the year are not included in the detailed listing of permanent positions, but the average number and net cost thereof are shown as a separate line entry.

Grades and their respective salary ranges are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, the general schedule grades, is abbreviated "GS-..." Titles are shown for positions with a base rate of $14,680 or above. Salaries are reported at the rate effective at the end of the year.

Because most annual salaries are by law the rate for 52 weeks, an additional entry covers the extra earnings whenever there are regular workdays above the 52-week base. For employees with a Monday-through-Friday workweek there was 1 extra day in 1965, and there is 1 each in 1966 and 1967.

Since within-grade salary advancements occur at various times during the year, the rates shown will not be exactly equal to the compensation earned, but the difference is taken up in the "Lapses" line. That line also covers savings due to vacancies, etc., and is offset in part by terminal leave payments.

The pay scales which became effective early in July 1964 are used in the 1965 column. The current pay scales, which became effective in October 1965, are used in the 1966 and 1967 columns. Special deduct entries in the 1965 and 1966 columns account for savings because pay was at the older, lesser rates for the first part of the year.

Compensation for "positions other than permanent" distinguishes obligations for full-time temporary positions, for part-time positions (of any duration), and for intermittent positions.

Special personal service payments include compensation to persons who are not considered to be Federal employees, such as casual workers, prison inmates, etc.; payments to other agencies for reimbursable details; and, in certain accounts, an adjustment for the difference between leave earned and leave taken.

"Other personnel compensation" covers overtime, holiday pay, nightwork differential, post differentials, extra flight pay, etc.

The final amounts in these schedules agree with corresponding entries in the object schedules of parts I and II. In cases where a consolidated schedule in part III contains personnel compensation which is reflected in two or more object schedules, a distribution by account title follows the total line.

The schedules in this part of the appendix, like the object schedules of parts I and II generally, exclude estimates which are proposed for separate transmittal, other than amounts required for 1966 to meet costs of civilian and military pay increases. Such exclusions relate to a number of items of proposed legislation affecting 1967 and occasionally 1966, a number of supplemental estimates which are presently forecast under existing legislation, and the use of such amounts as are estimated in the special allowance for contingencies.
