OF THE

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30

U.S. GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE, WASHINGTON : 1967

For sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402 - Price $6.50 (paper cover)

FOREWORD

This is one of a group of five documents which relate to the budget for 1968. The Budget of the United States Government, 1968, is a compact volume containing the Budget Message of the President, summary tables and statistical information, and four special analyses.

The Budget of the United States Government, 1968—Appendix contains the text of appropriation estimates proposed for the consideration of the Congress together with specific reference materials on the various appropriations and funds. The contents of this volume are further explained at the beginning of each of its four parts.

The Budget of the United States Government, 1968—The District of Columbia is a volume which relates specifically to the estimates for the municipal government of the District of Columbia.

In addition, a pamphlet type of publication, The Budget in Brief, 1968, is available for those who wish a much more brief presentation than any of the three official volumes.

A second pamphlet type of publication, Special Analyses, Budget of the United States, 1968, contains the four special analyses which are printed in the budget, and nine additional analyses.

NOTE.—Unless otherwise indicated, all references to years in this volume are to fiscal years ending June 30. Financial tables in parts I, II, and IV are nearly always stated in thousands of dollars; details may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES FOR FEDERAL FUNDS

Part I contains supporting details for Federal funds, including various types of tables and schedules, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item of authorization. Material is also included on a few trust funds which require congressional action. This part is arranged in chapters reflecting the organization of the Government.

TYPES OF FEDERAL FUNDS

Federal (Government-owned) funds are of four types, as follows:

The general fund is credited with receipts which are not earmarked by law for a specific purpose, and is charged with expenditures that are payable from appropriations (except appropriations of earmarked receipts) and from borrowing. Both in number of items and in amounts, most of the Government's business is transacted through the general fund.

Special funds are those which are established to account for receipts that are earmarked by law for a specific purpose. They exclude the funds which carry on a cycle of operations for which there is continuing authority to use the receipts (as described in the next paragraph). Some special funds are subject to annual appropriation by Congress. Others are automatically available under the laws which created the funds.

Public enterprise (revolving) funds are those which finance a cycle of operations, in which the expenditures generate receipts coming primarily from the public and available for continuing use. They include nearly all of the Government-owned corporations, the postal fund, and various unincorporated enterprises.

Intragovernmental revolving and management funds (including consolidated working funds) are those which are created to facilitate financing operations within and between Government agencies. They consist of two types—intragovernmental revolving funds which finance a cycle of operations, like public enterprise funds but with receipts primarily from within the Government; and management funds which permit the pooling of advance payments from two or more appropriations to carry out certain activities.

Other funds, for which the Government serves in a fiduciary capacity, are of two types—trust funds and deposit funds. They are explained at the beginning of part II.

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

For each appropriation, this appendix includes certain detailed material, as follows: (1) appropriation language, if applicable; (2) a schedule of program and financing; (3) a narrative statement on program and performance; and (4) a schedule of object classification. An exception occurs in the case of certain permanent appropriations and older appropriation accounts on which only a residual balance remains; such accounts of a bureau or independent agency are often combined into a single presentation. Where the obligations fall in a single object class, the classification is identified in the program and financing schedule, rather than in a separate schedule.

For revolving funds, there are usually two additional schedules covering (5) revenue, expense, and retained earnings; and (6) financial condition.

The basic schedules usually exclude supplemental estimates which it is expected will be transmitted to Congress separately, for 1967 and 1968; these are covered by a brief schedule of program and financing, without appropriation language. However, in the 1967 column, the basic schedules include (and identify) supplementals required to meet costs of military and civilian pay increases under recently enacted legislation and those resulting from wage-board decisions.

The 1968 column includes, within the regular schedules, appropriations for recommended extension or renewal of expiring laws; however, money for new legislation is shown separately. Appropriation language is included for the former, not the latter.

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1968 appropriation acts is printed at the head of each item requiring action by Congress, except for those items which are not formally recommended at this time but will be proposed for separate transmittal. The language of the 1967 appropriation acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Italic type indicates proposed new language. Brackets enclose material which it is proposed to omit, as in this example:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses to carry into effect the provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1-17a), [$1,398,000] $1,491,000. (Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967.)

Following the language, and printed in italics within parentheses, are citations to relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriation act from which the text is taken.

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

Where the data are available in the accounting system, cost-type budgets are presented. Detailed operating cost figures for each activity or object are the value of goods and services consumed in carrying out the program. In the case of capital outlay programs, they are the value of assets acquired.

Total obligations are always shown; activities and objects are reflected on an obligation basis where cost data are not available. Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, loan agreements made, and services received during the year, regardless of the time of payment.

In the case of a few limitations, the detail and the totals are on the basis of accrued expenditures.

SCHEDULE OF PROGRAM AND FINANCING

This schedule consists of three parts. In the program by activities section, costs or obligations are classified by purpose, program, or project for 1966, 1967, and 1968. This classification is individually developed for each appropriation or fund, and is not uniform on a Government-wide basis.

The financing section shows the appropriation provided and other means of financing the program, and the disposition of amounts not used during the year.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1966, $8 thousand; 1967, $3 thousand; 1968, $6 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $8 thousand (1966 adjustments, -$2 thousand); 1966, $4 thousand; 1967, $4 thousand; 1968, $4 thousand.

Where cost-type budgets are presented, the relation of costs to obligations is summarized in an entry "Change in selected resources." For appropriation accounts, this entry is supported by a footnote identifying the amounts of the resources involved. For revolving funds, the items are identified on the statement of financial condition and the appended tabulation.

Where programs are financed at a "preobligation" stage (such as the "program plan" for certain Defense items, and "commitments" for some loan programs) three extra columns provide details on that basis.

The third section of the schedule shows receipts and other offsets (if any) to total obligations shown in the program section, obligated balances at the start and end of the year, and other items which affect the relation of obligations to expenditures.

Relation of obligations to expenditures:

77 Adjustments in expired accounts.....	-2
90 Expenditures excluding pay increase supplemental.....	1,192	1,392	1,484
91 Expenditures from civilian pay act supplemental.....		34	2

For public enterprise revolving funds, there are two additional lines showing gross expenditures and applicable receipts of the fund.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work planned and services proposed to be carried out are described briefly in a narrative statement for each appropriation or fund. Where practicable the narrative statement indicates the expected accomplishment in relation to the financial estimates, and gives some measure of program and performance.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a classification of obligations, costs, or accrued expenditures according to a uniform list of objects, as follows:

Object Classification (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 05-40-1900-0-1-355	1966 actual	1967 est.	1968 est.
Personnel compensation:
11.1 Permanent positions.....	1,018	1,159	1,218
11.3 Positions other than permanent.....	2	1
11.5 Other personnel compensation.....	1	1	1
Total personnel compensation.....	1,021	1,161	1,219
12.0 Personnel benefits.....	75	88	92
21.0 Travel and transportation of persons.....	14	15	18
22.0 Transportation of things.....	1	2	1
23.0 Rent, communications, and utilities.....	37	40	40
24.0 Printing and reproduction.....	10	13	13
25.1 Other services.....	13	17	17
25.2 Services of other agencies.....	7	74	71
26.0 Supplies and materials.....	8	20	16
31.0 Equipment.....	6	4	4
99.0 Total obligations.....	1,192	1,434	1,491

The object classes reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose or the nature of the program for which they are used.

The complete list of objects classes is as follows:

10 PERSONAL SERVICES AND BENEFITS	30 ACQUISITION OF CAPITAL ASSETS
11 Personnel compensation	31 Equipment
12 Personnel benefits	32 Lands and structures
13 Benefits for former personnel	33 Investments and loans
20 CONTRACTUAL SERVICES AND SUPPLIES	40 GRANTS AND FIXED CHARGES
21 Travel and transportation of persons	41 Grants, subsidies, and contributions
22 Transportation of things	42 Insurance claims and indemnities
23 Rent, communications, and utilities	43 Interest and dividends
24 Printing and reproduction	44 Refunds
25 Other services
26 Supplies and materials

Several of the object classes are broken down into sub-classes—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for permanent positions, for positions other than permanent, and for certain other payments. A third digit is therefore used in the object schedules to identify the subclasses; a zero is used for the third digit when there are no subclasses. Additional entries are shown for unvouchered obligations (those for which accountability is waived; coded 91.0) and those which cannot be distributed by object class (coded 92.0), and for certain other adjusting entries to reach a total which agrees with the total obligations shown in the program and financing schedule.

A personnel summary is appended to the object classification schedule, as illustrated:

Personnel Summary

Total number of permanent positions.....	127	148	148
Average number of all employees.....	121	140	142
Average GS grade.....	7.6	7.6	7.6
Average GS salary.....	$8,430	$8,444	$8,608

Permanent positions are those of a full-time nature which are of indefinite duration. Some are filled by persons with temporary appointments. Other positions include those of a temporary nature (a year or less), part-time jobs (less than a full workweek), and intermittent employment (occasional employees).

Average grades and salaries are computed arithmetically. Thus the average salary sometimes falls outside the salary range of the average grade.

STATEMENT OF REVENUE, EXPENSE, AND RETAINED EARNINGS

For revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense, computed on an accrual basis, and the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement is usually on a full accrual basis, including sums for depreciation, provision for losses on receivables, etc. Where a fund consists of several programs, revenue and expense may be identified for each, as here illustrated:

Revenue, Expense, and Retained Earnings (in thousands of dollars)

	1966 actual	1967 est.	1968 est.
Chartering program:
Revenue.....	16	17	18
Expense.....	-79	-137	-149
Net operating loss, chartering program.....	-63	-120	-131
Examination program:
Revenue.....	3,833	4,366	4,798
Expense.....	-3,924	-4,336	-4,774
Net operating income or loss (-), examination program.....	-91	30	24
Supervision program:

Net operating income, supervision program.....	266	43	81
Net income or loss (-) for the year.....	112	-47	-26
Analysis of retained earnings:
Retained earnings, start of year.....	1,574	1,686	1,639
Retained earnings, end of year.....	1,686	1,639	1,613

The statement includes an analysis of the retained earnings or the cumulative deficit. This analysis shows any additions to earnings, other than net income for the year, any charges made against retained earnings, and the balance of profits kept in the enterprise as of the end of the year (whether as cash, inventories, or other assets).

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITIONS

For each revolving fund there is also presented a balance sheet of assets, liabilities, and equity of the Government at the close of the year, as in this example:

Financial Condition (in thousands of dollars)

	1965 actual	1966 actual	1967 est.	1968 est.
Assets:
Treasury balance.....	1,354	1,398	1,301	1,244
Accounts receivable net.....	711	826	908	956
Selected assets: ¹
Advances.....	18	26	26	26
Deferred charges.....	3	5	10	10
Fixed assets, net.....	129	121	124	131
Total assets.....	2,215	2,376	2,369	2,367
Liabilities:
Current.....	641	690	730	754
Government equity:
Non-interest-bearing capital:
Donated assets, start of year.....	1
Donated property to surplus.....	-1
End of year.....
Retained earnings.....	1,574	1,686	1,639	1,613
Total Government equity.....	1,574	1,686	1,639	1,613

The balance sheet excludes balances of appropriations and borrowing authorizations which have not yet been paid into the revolving fund. The section on equity of the Government is divided into three subsections as appropriate: (a) interest-bearing capital, (b) non-interest-bearing capital, and (c) retained earnings.

Because the balance sheet is on an accrual basis, it does not reflect the obligations incurred which have not yet matured into liabilities, nor does it reflect unfilled customer orders received and available as a basis for obligation in the case of intragovernmental revolving funds. Therefore, there is normally appended to the balance sheet an "Analysis of Government Equity" which shows obligations other than liabilities, the unobligated balance, unfilled customers' orders on hand from other Government accounts (where relevant), and invested capital and earnings, as in the following example:

	1965 actual	1966 actual	1967 est.	1968 est.
Unpaid undelivered orders ¹	3	11	11	11
Unobligated balance.....	1,421	1,523	1,468	1,435
Invested capital and earnings.....	150	152	160	167

1. Acquisition of Library materials.—The Library's collections are developed in accordance with established acquisition policies: Materials are procured by purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, transfer, and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections. The objective for 1968 is continued improvement in acquisitions procedures. The collections totaled 54,289,210 items as of June 30, 1966, and consisted of 13,767,403 books and pamphlets; 28,117,882 manuscript pieces, and 12,403,925 maps, pieces of music, reels of microfilm, photographs, and other miscellaneous items. Of the items received, about 1 million are added to the permanent collections annually. Those received from various sources in 1966 and estimated for 1967 and 1968 are as follows:

Description	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Purchase.....	814,018	950,000	925,000
Deposit by virtue of law:
Copyright.....	456,798	470,000	475,000

Title II C activities.....	3,995	55,000	100,000
Total.....	7,652,984	8,185,000	8,305,000

2. Organization of the collections.—Library materials are cataloged, classified, marked, and arranged; Library of Congress catalogs and the main National Union Catalog (card catalogs) are maintained; special collections are organized for use; and binding operations are controlled. The objectives for this activity in 1968 are the updating and maintaining on a more current basis the Library's record of serial publications, the elimination of arrearages and maintaining currency in the filing of cards into the Library card catalogs, the reduction of cataloging arrearages, improved cataloging methods and procedures to assure the usefulness of the collections, to continue the microfilming of deteriorating materials as a necessary preservative and space-saving measure, and to convert to safety-base film the nitrate portion of the archival collection of motion pictures.

Selected performance data for 1966 and estimated for 1967 and 1968 (not including processing activities performed by the Reference Department and the Law Library) are as follows:

Description	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Volumes fully cataloged and added to the classified collections.....	189,077	225,000	250,000
Items otherwise organized for use (without full cataloging).....	26,754	32,000	38,000

Serial parts processed.....	1,774,924	1,800,000	1,825,000

3. Reader and reference services.—Books and other library materials are provided inside and outside of the Library, reference and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained. The objective of this activity for 1968 is to organize more material for use and to improve reference and circulation services. The workload in all major activities is expected to increase in 1967 and 1968 as follows:

Description	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Reader and reference services:
Materials served.....	1,779,768	2,000,000	2,100,000

Books and pamphlets served.....	411,458	450,000	500,000
Reference inquiries answered.....	79,717	82,000	84,000

4. Maintenance and protective services.—A staff of 203, including 82 part-time charwomen, preserves, cleans, and maintains the 2 Library buildings, collections, and grounds; operates telephone switchboards, elevators, checkstands, and motor vehicles; procures and maintains furniture, office supplies, housekeeping materials, and miscellaneous equipment; assigns space, and operates the receiving and stockrooms. The guard force staff of 75 is necessary to prevent fire and theft, to maintain order, and to provide regular inspections of all areas in both buildings in which is assembled one of the greatest accumulations of national treasures in the world.

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collecting and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The income and costs for 1966 and estimates for 1967 and 1968 are as follows:

Income:
Fees applied.....	1,470,249	1,806,261	1,896,574

Other costs.....	104,834	98,875	98,875
Total costs.....	2,068,073	2,332,200	2,471,000

The program and performance under each of the activities described are predicated on an estimated 316,269 copyright registrations during 1968, an estimated 301,209 during 1967, and an actual 286,866 during 1966.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act. Performance data for 1966 and estimated for 1967 and 1968 are as follows:

Registrations.....	286,866	301,209	316,269
Mail received and dispatched.....	706,660	750,000	790,000

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provision of the Copyright Act have been satisfied. Performance data are as follows:

Cases and documents examined.....	307,445	322,817	338,957
Registrations and recordation of documents.....	307,359	322,726	338,862
Letters written.....	43,467	45,640	47,922

3. Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. There were 286,866 registrations cataloged in 1966 and estimates for 1967 and 1968 are 301,209 and 316,269, respectively.

4. Reference services.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public, information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings; information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity. Performance data are as follows:

Titles searched.....	119,660	125,643	131,925
Letters and search reports written.....	20,466	21,489	22,563

5. Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

6. General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office includes legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

For several years the Office has been engaged in work on a bill which would completely revise the 1909 copyright law. A House Judiciary Subcommittee held public hearings on a revision bill in 1965, and 51 executive sessions in 1966. On September 28, 1966, the full Judiciary Committee of the House reported out an amended version of H.R. 4347. When enacted, the bill will require new procedures, new regulations, and some organizational changes, all of which must be devised and complete before the effective date of the measure.

1. Research and analysis.—The Legislative Reference Service assists Members and committees of Congress by preparing research reports, digests, translations, charts, and consultative services, and by supplying reference information and materials. The bulk of these services are furnished through seven subject-matter divisions: American law, economics, education and public welfare, foreign affairs, government and general research, natural resources and science policy research. Under specific authorization of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, senior specialists are also available for high-level research and consultative services in the following fields: International economics, international relations, American government and public administration, conservation, American public law, labor, engineering and public works, agriculture, price economics, national defense, social welfare, and science and technology. In 1966, 117,062 congressional inquiries were answered. The number of inquiries in 1967 is estimated at 125,000, and in 1968, 130,000.

2. Preparation of indexes and digests.—The Digest of Public General Bills covers all public bills and resolutions. It is expected that the number of bills to be digested during the first session of the 90th Congress will be somewhat higher than the numbers digested for the first session of the 89th Congress.

3. Reference files, bibliographic, and congressional reader services.—Reference files, containing clippings, pamphlets and documents, are maintained as the basis for reply to a high percentage of inquiries; researchers are supplied with bibliographic and reference tools; selective and comprehensive bibliographies are prepared for Members and committees of Congress; and reader services are provided by the Congressional Reading Room. During 1966, 116,813 reference file items were processed, 32,161 bibliographic citations prepared, 150,768 published items acquired and processed, and 6,272 readers served.

The Card Division sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards and publications. It maintains a stock of over 150 million catalog cards representing approximately 4,350,000 titles, and fills orders from over 19,000 regular subscribers—mostly libraries—in the United States and abroad. In 1966, 123 percent of this appropriation was recovered in the form of receipts from card and publication sales. Receipts of $5 million were deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury in 1966. The objectives for 1968 are: Meeting the increased demand for catalog cards and maintaining a reasonable level of service and economy; the continued development of the "National Union Catalog" as the country's major bibliographic and locational tool; and the development of other technical publications.

1. Supplying cards for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in 1966 was 8,065,863; estimated for 1967, 9.8 million; and estimated for 1968, 11 million.

2. Supplying cards for other libraries.—The number of cards sold in 1966 was 63,214,294; estimated for 1967, 72 million; and for 1968, 80 million.

3. Preparation, printing, and distribution of publications related to cataloging.—These publications are an integral part of the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include the "Classification Schedules," lists of "Subject Headings," "Rules for Descriptive Cataloging," "Cataloging Service Bulletins," and similar publications.

4. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the "National Union Catalog."—This catalog (a cumulative author list) is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually. Subscribers also receive issues of "Motion Pictures and Filmstrips" (quarterlies with annual cumulation), "Music and Phonorecords" (issued on a 6-month basis and annual cumulation), as well as the "Register of Additional Locations," and the "National Register of Microform Masters." There were 1,680 paid subscriptions for all issues in calendar year 1965 and it is estimated that there will be 1,750 subscriptions for 1966 and 2,000 for 1967.

5. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the "Subject Catalog."—This catalog is issued in three quarterly volumes with an annual cumulation. There were 660 paid subscriptions for calendar year 1965. It is estimated that there will be 700 paid subscriptions in 1966 and about 750 in 1967.

This appropriation is used to acquire domestic and foreign trade publications, both current and noncurrent. The publications acquired by purchase constitute a very important part of the Library's acquisitions although they represent only a small portion of the material received annually. The objectives for 1968 are: To continue the program for procurement of important research materials to strengthen the Library's collections; to continue the acquisition of selected important foreign newspapers and periodicals; to continue the program for procurement of important materials from critical areas, particularly from Eastern Europe, Africa, Asia, and Latin America; to continue to strengthen the Library's acquisitions in the fields of science and technology; to continue the purchase of selected current titles on microfilm as an economy measure in lieu of binding; to acquire a few important special collections long needed by the Library to fill gaps in the collections; and to preserve important materials now on nitrate negative stills by converting them to a safety-base film.

This appropriation constitutes the only means of acquiring law books published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign law books published in countries all over the world.

The legal publications acquired by purchase constitute a most important part of the Law Library's acquisitions, although a substantial part of the annual receipts is received by means other than purchase. The special objectives for 1968 are: To continue the procurement of current foreign legal materials by placing purchase orders for certain necessary publications now received only irregularly through exchange or gift; to improve the procurement of important Hispanic, African, and Far Eastern materials; to continue the procurement of both current and noncurrent materials needed to strengthen the Law Library's already comprehensive coverage of critical areas in Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa; and to continue the acquisition of photoduplicates of important research items, especially those from critical areas, which are no longer obtainable in the original.

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND AND PHYSICALLY HANDICAPPED—Con.

The Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped is responsible for administering a national program to provide reading material for the blind and physically handicapped (Public Law 89-522) of the United States, U.S. territories and insular possessions. It has two closely related operations.

1. Procurement and distribution.—It provides books in embossed characters, and talking books with their associated reproducers. The books are distributed through 32 regional libraries which assume responsibility for their custody and circulation. The reproducers are distributed through 54 State agencies. The maintenance and procurement of these books are shown in the following table:

Objectives for 1968 are: (1) a moderate increase in procurement of braille books and magazines, (2) procurement of more titles and copies of talking books including magazines and books on magnetic tape, (3) procurement of a sufficient number of machines to equip newly registered blind and physically handicapped readers and to replace some of the obsolete machines, (4) completion of replacement of two-speed motors with three-speed motors in talking-book machines, and (5) the procurement of a limited quantity of tape-cassette machines with books to play on them.

2. Cataloging, reference, circulation, and training services.—Catalogs of talking and braille books are prepared and maintained, including a "Union Catalog of Hand Copied Books in Braille" which brings together a record of holdings of all libraries for the blind. The Division also maintains a unique collection (more than 30,000 volumes) of books in braille not available elsewhere for loan in the United States. During the past 5-year period, 1962-66, the number of blind readers throughout the country requiring catalogs from which to select reading matter has grown from 79,754 to 108,726 and circulation from 2,531,901 units (volumes, containers, and reels) to 4,686,875. As a result of the expanded program, the number of readers and circulation are expected to increase rapidly in 1967 and 1968. Inquiries are received concerning library and related services available to the blind and to other physically handicapped persons. Individuals throughout the Nation who are interested in transcribing or proofreading braille are trained and those qualified are certified. During fiscal 1966, 899 individuals were certified, and it is anticipated that this level will continue during 1967 and 1968. In addition, tape books are recorded by volunteers throughout the country.

Public Law 85-147 (71 Stat. 368), approved August 16, 1957, authorizes an appropriation of $720 thousand to remain available until expended, to arrange, index, and microfilm the Papers of the Presidents of the United States in the collections of the Library of Congress. This law was amended by Public Law 88-299 (78 Stat. 183), approved April 27, 1964, which removes the $720 thousand limitation and authorizes to be appropriated such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of Public Law 85-147. The purpose of the program is to preserve the contents of the Papers of the Presidents and to make them more readily available for research. It was started in 1959. The objectives for 1968 will be to provide negative and positive service copy on microfilm of material arranged and indexed, and to continue publishing indexes in editions of 1,000 copies each.

Bureau of the Budget note.—Indonesia is not on the announced list of excess currency countries for either 1967 or 1968.

Section 104(n) of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (established by Public Law 85-931, approved Sept. 6, 1958), authorizes the Librarian of Congress to use foreign currencies accruing under this act to provide information of technical, scientific, cultural, or educational significance to the United States through the collection of foreign library materials and the distribution of copies thereof to libraries and research centers in the United States. The program is being continued on a full year's basis in six countries in 1967: India, Indonesia, Israel, Nepal, Pakistan, and the United Arab Republic; in addition, if circumstances permit, programs will be initiated in Ceylon, Poland, and Yugoslavia. The initiation of similar programs in the Congo and Tunisia is proposed for 1968. Of the total amount requested, $2,584 thousand will be used to purchase foreign currencies, while $275 thousand will provide U.S. dollar support.

1. Acquisition of books and other library materials.—Based upon the information received during the exploratory stage concerning materials available in the two additional countries and the requirements of other Federal agencies and certain research libraries in the United States, publications and other library materials will be purchased in multiple copies from 11 countries and distributed to selected libraries and research centers in the United States, including the Library of Congress.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress for salaries shall be available for expenses of investigating the loyalty of Library employees; special and temporary services (including employees engaged by the day or hour or in piecework); and services as authorized by [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (15 U.S.C. [55a])] 3109.

Not to exceed ten positions in the Library of Congress may be exempt from the provisions of appropriation Acts concerning the employment of aliens during the current fiscal year, but the Librarian shall not make any appointment to any such position until he has ascertained that he cannot secure for such appointments a person in any of the categories specified in such provisions who possesses the special qualifications for the particular position and also otherwise meets the general requirements for employment in the Library of Congress.

Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to reimburse the Department of State for medical services rendered to employees of the Library of Congress stationed abroad; for purchase or hire of passenger motor vehicles; and for payment of travel, storage and transportation of household goods, and transportation and per diem expenses for families en route (not to exceed twenty-four), subject to such rules and regulations as may be issued by the Librarian of Congress. (Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1967.)

The Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise Fund was established by 69 Stat. 533 to (1) prepare a history of the Supreme Court of the United States, and, if deemed advisable, (2) to finance an annual lecture or series of lectures, and (3) publish a memorial volume of Justice Holmes' writings. The principal and interest on the fund are available for these purposes. The current program is devoted primarily to the preparation of the history of the Supreme Court; annual lectures are also financed by this fund.

The work programs of the Office of the Superintendent of Documents are of a service nature, and hence there is no control over the volume of work which is required by law.

1. Sales distribution.—Government publications are purchased from the Public Printer to be placed on sale. Acquisition costs are paid from sales receipts; hence no appropriation is required for printing sales copies. By law, the sales price is set at cost of manufacture plus 50%. At the end of each year, excess receipts from sales not required for purchasing additional publications are turned into the Treasury Department as miscellaneous receipts. For 1966, earnings from the sale of publications amounted to $7,642 thousand. It is estimated that earnings for 1967 will be $7,617 thousand and $7,573 thousand for 1968. These earnings more than cover the appropriation required to finance the sales program.

The sale of Government publications has been steadily increasing, and in the last 10 years the sales volume has more than doubled. The current public interest in the Government's publishing program points to a continuing increase in the volume of sales.

2. Distribution for other agencies and Members of Congress.—The Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists, including the list for the Congressional Record, and performs mailing operations upon request of any Government agency. Mailing services for Farmers' Bulletins, Soil Surveys, and other publications which are allocated to Members of Congress on a quota basis are also provided.

3. Depository library distribution.—Upon request, one copy of every Government publication is supplied to libraries which are designated depositories for Government publications.

4. Cataloging and indexing.—This activity covers the preparation and distribution of catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government, the principal series being the Monthly Catalog of the U.S. Government Publications and the Numerical List and Schedule of Volumes.

5. Contingency fund.—This fund, to be used only with the approval of the Public Printer, and only to the extent necessary to provide for expenses (excluding permanent personal services) for workload increases not anticipated in the budget estimates and which cannot be provided for by normal budgetary adjustments.

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various agencies of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. Operations are subject to the authority of the Joint Committee on Printing (44 U.S.C. 63).

All printing and binding work for the Congress and Federal agencies is done and financed through the Government Printing Office revolving fund. The fund is reimbursed by the customer agencies and net operating income is retained for reuse by the fund.

The General Accounting Office is responsible directly to the Congress for conducting independent reviews, audits, and investigations of programs, activities, and financial transactions of Federal agencies; for the rendition of legal decisions relating to Government fiscal matters; for developing, reviewing, and evaluating Federal agency accounting systems; for the settlement of certain claims for and against the Government; and, for advising and assisting the Congress and Government agencies on matters relating to public funds.

1. Office of the Comptroller General.—Executive management of the General Accounting Office is carried out by the Comptroller General, who is assisted by the Assistant Comptroller General and staff assistants.

2. Office of the general counsel.—In addition to preparing decisions and reports on the legality or propriety of proposed obligations and expenditures of the Government, the general counsel and his staff assist the Comptroller General in coordinating the various activities of the General Accounting Office with the Congress, its committees, and individual members, participate in conferences with legislative and administrative officials of the Government on legal matters of a fiscal nature, the sufficiency of proposed legislation, the desirability of new legislation for particular purposes, and render all other required legal services.

5. Office of policy and special studies.—This office develops accounting policies and related requirements for observance by each agency; auditing policies for the guidance of audit work performed by General Accounting Office auditors; and internal auditing objectives, principles, and standards for guidance of the executive agencies. It represents the General Accounting Office in the joint financial management improvement program conducted with the Bureau of the Budget and the Treasury Department. It participates in the review of agency accounting systems for approval purposes in Government-wide studies of the management of automatic data processing systems and in providing advice and assistance to the Congress on accounting and auditing policy matters.

This office also performs professional staff development functions for the accounting and auditing divisions, including (a) formulating and executing recruiting programs, (b) developing and carrying out training and professional career development programs, (c) participating in general control over the assignment of staff, and (d) obtaining appropriate recognition of the professional character of the accounting and auditing work of the General Accounting Office.

6. Civil division—7. Defense division—8. International division.—These divisions, located in Washington, D.C., are responsible for the performance of the accounting, auditing, and investigative functions of the General Accounting Office in the Federal departments and agencies and the District of Columbia, as assigned by the Comptroller General. These functions include rendering cooperative assistance in the development of accounting systems and the making of reviews and evaluation of these systems; the review and evaluation of the performance of Federal agencies, and contractors where appropriate, in discharging their financial responsibilities, including General Accounting Office audit and settlement of accounts; and the making of investigations into matters relating to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds.

The International division includes:

European branch, with headquarters in Frankfurt, Germany, responsible for performing assigned General Accounting Office functions in the European area, including North Africa and the Near East.

Far East branch, with headquarters in Honolulu, Hawaii, responsible for performing assigned General Accounting Office functions in Hawaii and the Far East area.

9. Field operations division.—This division, composed of a central office and regional offices in principal cities in the United States, performs assigned accounting, auditing, and investigative work outside the metropolitan area of Washington, D.C.

10. Claims division.—All claims by or against the United States are settled in this division except those for transportation items and claims wherein exclusive jurisdiction is conferred by law upon another agency or the courts.

11. Transportation division.—This division audits freight and passenger transportation payments for the account of the United States and settles claims involving transportation charges.

12. Report department.—This department prepares for the accounting and auditing divisions typed copies of (1) final audit reports, (2) manuals, including the GAO Policy and Procedures Manual for Guidance of Federal Agencies, and audit manuals for internal use, (3) congressional statements, audit programs, and other documents, and (4) draft audit reports. It also conducts the related proofreading, editing, and duplication of all reports, statements and other documents in accordance with prescribed standards and requirements.

The U.S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals has exclusive jurisdiction in appeals from judgments of the U.S. Customs Court in all cases involving the construction of the law and facts respecting the classification of merchandise and the rate of duty imposed thereunder and all appealable questions as to the laws and regulations governing the collection of customs revenues. Its decisions are final unless taken to the Supreme Court on writs of certiorari.

The court also has exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from the Tariff Commission on questions of law only and in the matter of unfair practices in import trade and appellate jurisdiction from decisions of the Patent Office in patent and trademark cases, except those involving equity.

The U.S. Court of Claims has jurisdiction over all cases involving claims against the United States (except in pension suits) instituted upon constitutional grounds or under Federal law or regulations, all claims arising out of any contract with the Federal Government and its agencies, and claims for the refund of taxes. It also has general jurisdiction to hear and determine claims for damages other than tort actions, provided the claimants would have the right to sue in law or equity if the United States were not immune to such suits. It has jurisdiction in suits against the United States by contractors dissatisfied with the findings and decisions of contracting agencies under terminated war contracts and jurisdiction concurrent with that of the courts of appeals to review district court decisions in cases involving tort actions. It has exclusive jurisdiction to review the decisions of the Indian Claims Commission on appeal from the Commission. It also has jurisdiction in special act cases referred to the court by the Congress, and the commissioners of the court have jurisdiction to render reports to the Congress on claims set forth in bills referred to the chief commissioner by either house of Congress.

The statutory salaries and benefits of all active U.S. circuit and district judges and all justices and judges who have retired or resigned in pursuance of law are payable from this appropriation. This item also includes the payment of annuities to surviving widows of Supreme Court Justices.

It is estimated that funds will be required to pay an average of 523 judges in 1968. Provision has been made for the difference between the full- and part-year cost (salaries and related benefits) of new judges to be appointed pursuant to the Act of March 18, 1966, Public Law 89-372. Also, an increase in the number of senior and resigned judges from 95 to 105 is anticipated.

The primary and appellate jurisdictions of the courts of the United States are vested in the 93 district courts and 11 courts of appeals. Provision for the salaries of the administrative and legal aides required to assist the judges in the conduct of hearings, trials, and other judicial functions and to man the component offices of the courts, including the Federal probation system, is under this heading.

The estimate for 1968 contemplates a net increase of 227 permanent employees: 9 deputy clerks, 22 law clerks, 33 stenographers, and 36 messengers for the courts of appeals; 74 deputy clerks for the district courts (net of 5 positions deducted due to transfer of certain functions to municipal government of the District of Columbia pursuant to Public Law 89-493); and 30 officers and 23 clerk-stenographers for the probation service. Provision also has been made for the conversion of 80 court crier positions to combination positions of crier-law clerk; for the difference between the full- and part-year cost of new positions authorized for 1967; and for within-grade salary advancements.

This appropriation provides for the statutory fees and allowances of jurors, fees of jury commissioners, and the fees and related benefits of U.S. commissioners who serve primarily as committing magistrates.

The earnings of commissioners are directly related to the volume of cases presented by law enforcement officials. The amount of service and the compensation of jurors depends largely on the number of jury trials requested by the parties to civil and criminal cases in the U.S. courts. The estimate for 1968 takes into account an anticipated increase in petit jury trials by reason of the activities of new district judges appointed pursuant to the Act of March 18, 1966, Public Law 89-372.

The office, pursuant to section 604 of title 28, United States Code, under the supervision and direction of the Judicial Conference of the United States, is responsible for the administration of the U.S. courts, including the probation and bankruptcy systems. The principal functions consist of providing staffs and services for the courts; conducting a continuous study of the Rules of Practice and Procedure in the Federal courts; examining the state of the dockets of the various courts; compiling and publishing statistical data concerning the business transacted by the courts; and administering the Judicial Survivors' Annuity System under title 28, United States Code, section 376. The office also is responsible for the preparation and submission of the annual budget estimates as well as supplemental and deficiency estimates; the disbursement of and accounting for moneys appropriated for the operation of the courts; the audit and examination of accounts; the purchase and distribution of supplies and equipment; and for securing adequate space for occupancy by the courts and for such other matters as may be assigned by the Supreme Court and the Judicial Conference of the United States.

The estimate for 1968 provides for 42 additional positions: an "executive secretary" and a clerk-stenographer for each of the 11 judicial circuits to assist in the administration of the Criminal Justice Act of 1964; five positions to institute a program for compiling information on the record of Federal offenders following their discharge from prison or release from probation or parole supervision; and fifteen positions to cope with an increased workload and for other purposes. Provision also has been made for within-grade salary advancements.

The district courts of the United States are constituted courts of bankruptcy, vested with original jurisdiction at law and in equity in proceedings brought under the bankruptcy statutes. This jurisdiction primarily is exercised through referees appointed by the several district courts. Their compensation and benefits are paid from this appropriation, which is derived from a special fund in the Treasury to which are deposited payments of fees and charges by parties to the proceedings. No appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury is required.

The increase requested for 1968 will provide for the appointment of six additional full-time referees, the conversion of two part-time referees to a full-time status, one conversion from full- to part-time, and some salary increases. The new positions and changes in arrangements have been authorized by the Judicial Conference of the United States.

Office and other expenses of referees, including compensation and benefits of clerical employees, are payable upon authorization of the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts. Caseload data appear under the account for Salaries of referees. This appropriation is derived from a special fund in the Treasury to which are deposited payments of fees and charges by parties to the proceedings. No appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury is required.

The estimate for 1968 includes funds for the employment of 60 additional clerks to staff new referees and to cope with increased workloads in existing offices. Provisions also have been made for within-grade salary advancements and increases in the cost of long-distance telephone service, postage, and other miscellaneous expenses of referees.

The Bureau assists the President in the discharge of his budgetary, management, and other executive responsibilities. Provision has been made in the 1968 estimates for a small field service staff.

1. Office of budget review.—Budget instructions and procedures are developed, review of agency estimates is coordinated, and the budget document is prepared.

2. Office of financial management.—Direction is given to programs for improving accounting and financial management in the executive agencies, in collaboration with the General Accounting Office and the Treasury Department.

3. Office of legislative reference.—Proposed legislation and agency reports on pending legislation and enrolled bills are reviewed for the President.

4. Office of management and organization.—Programs and plans are developed for improved Government organization and procedures, and guidance is provided in the work of the Bureau to improve agency management and operations.

5. Office of statistical standards.—Proposed agency reporting plans and forms are reviewed, and the Government's statistical activities, coverage, and methods are coordinated and improved.

6. Program divisions.—Agency programs, budget requests, and management activities are examined, appropriations are apportioned, proposed changes in agency functions are studied, and agencies are assisted in the improvement of their administration. Responsibility for this work with respect to particular agencies is divided among seven divisions: (a) commerce and housing, (b) education, manpower, and science, (c) general government, (d) health and welfare, (e) international, (f) military, and (g) resources and civil works.

7. Field service.—Six small field offices will serve the Bureau in its contact with agency field operations and with State and local governments.

The National Council on Marine Resources and Engineering Development is responsible for developing a coordinated, integrated national policy and program for the conduct of marine science activities. In 1968, it will review current agency programs in marine sciences, propose initial recommendations to the President for inclusion in his 1969 budget message to the Congress, and initiate comprehensive studies of selected priority areas.

The Commission on Marine Science, Engineering, and Resources is responsible for review of existing and planned marine science activities and organization to assess their adequacy in meeting stated statutory national objectives. In 1968, it will review and study oceanographic and ocean engineering programs, contributing toward development and submission of a later comprehensive report to the President through the Council.

The Office of Emergency Planning serves as a staff office to advise and assist the President with respect to the nonmilitary defense programs of the United States. This includes the coordination of emergency preparedness activities of Federal agencies, the development of emergency preparedness programs not covered by the responsibilities of the regular departments and agencies, and the performance of other duties in the areas of stockpiling, Federal disaster relief, and imports affecting the national security.

1. Resource evaluation and readiness.—The Office maintains a complete capability for evaluating, predicting, and monitoring the status of the Nation's resources and economy under all degrees of emergency, which includes identifying resource deficiencies, feasible production programs, strategic materials, stockpile, and import policies. It provides resource evaluations at national and subordinate levels to support mobilization planning, continuity of Government, resource management and economic recovery; determines the impact of various current or proposed domestic and national security programs of the United States and major allies on the mobilization base; and provides economic and statistical analytical support to these programs.

2. Government readiness.—Plans and programs are developed to reduce the vulnerability of all levels of government to enemy attack and control in an emergency. These include achieving a standby capability for emergency operations on the part of existing Government agencies; relocating essential governmental functions in an emergency; maintaining the capability to administer a program of direct controls for economic stabilization; administering OEP program activities stemming from U.S. membership in international organizations concerned with civil emergency planning, guiding the development of emergency communications systems; and the recruitment and training of qualified reservists who would be called to duty in an emergency.

3. Regional, State, and local preparedness.—Eight regional offices of the Office of Emergency Planning work with the State and local governments on emergency preparedness planning. They also coordinate Federal disaster relief and assistance, assist the Federal offices in the field to develop a capability to perform their functions in an emergency, and maintain a liaison with Governors of the States on matters of mutual Federal/State concern. In addition to liaison at all levels of Government, this activity maintains contact with national, business, labor, veterans, and farm organizations.

4. Executive direction, staff, and administrative support.—Total staff support is provided to the Director of the Office of Emergency Planning and other OEP offices under this activity. Services include general administration, public information, health adviser, legal assistance, and program planning. Funds are also included to finance the housekeeping expenses of the Office of Emergency Planning in Washington, and the salaries of the Presidential appointees and their immediate staffs. The Director is a principal adviser to the President on non-military defense. He serves as a member of the National Security Council and participates in meetings of the Cabinet by invitation of the President.

The Office of Telecommunications is responsible for advising and assisting the President on all communications matters.

1. Telecommunications management.—This activity includes: (1) providing policy direction for the development and operation of the national communication system; (2) developing advanced concepts and plans for the application of new technology within the Government; (3) developing overall policies for the mobilization of the Nation's telecommunications in a national emergency; (4) assigning frequencies to Federal Government radio stations and developing procedures and rules for their use; (5) reviewing the actual usage of Government frequencies; (6) developing data on Federal Government frequency requirements; (7) providing assistance and advice to the Department of State on international telecommunications matters; (8) assisting the President with respect to his coordinating and other functions under the Communications Satellite Act of 1962; and (9) promoting efficiency and economy in the procurement and management of communication services throughout the Federal Government.

2. Research and development.—This activity will finance technical studies of telecommunications matters which are too broad in scope to be undertaken by any single department. Examples of such studies include methods of interconnecting the communications systems of individual agencies, and means of increasing the survivability of telecommunications resources.

The National Advisory Commission on Rural Poverty was established by the President in Executive Order 11306, dated September 27, 1966, to assist the President's Committee on Rural Poverty, established in the same Executive order, in carrying out the Committee's primary function of developing recommendations for providing rural people additional opportunities and higher living standards. These recommendations for action by both governmental bodies and private enterprise are to be based on an appraisal of existing and alternative programs and activities directed toward means whereby the rural segment might achieve a greater share of the Nation's abundance and better levels of living.

The Commission must submit its final report and recommendations to the Committee not later than September 28, 1967, with interim reports to be made as deemed necessary. The Commission must terminate 90 days after submission of its final report.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

DEPARTMENTS, AGENCIES, AND CORPORATIONS

SEC. 501. Unless otherwise specifically provided, the maximum amount allowable during the current fiscal year in accordance with section 16 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U.S.C. 78) 60 Stat. 810, for the purchase of any passenger motor vehicle (exclusive of buses and ambulances), is hereby fixed at $1,500 except station wagons for which the maximum shall be $1,950.

SEC. 502. Unless otherwise specified and during the current fiscal year, no part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act shall be used to pay the compensation of any officer or employee of the Government of the United States (including any agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the Government of the United States) whose post of duty is in continental United States unless such person (1) is a citizen of the United States, (2) is a person in the service of the United States on the date of enactment of this Act, who, being eligible for citizenship, had filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States prior to such date, (3) is a person who owes allegiance to the United States, or (4) is an alien from Poland or the Baltic countries lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, an affidavit signed by any such person shall be considered prima facie evidence that the requirements of this section with respect to his status have been complied with: Provided further, That any person making a false affidavit shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $4,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law: Provided further, That any payment made to any officer or employee contrary to the provisions of this section shall be recoverable in action by the Federal Government. This section shall not apply to citizens of the Republic of the Philippines or to nationals of those countries allied with the United States in the current defense effort, or to temporary employment of translators, or to temporary employment in the field service (not to exceed sixty days) as a result of emergencies.

SEC. 503. Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the current fiscal year, available for expenses of travel or for the expenses of the activity concerned, are hereby made available for quarters allowances and cost-of-living allowances, in accordance with title II of the Act of September 6, 1960 (74 Stat. 793).

SEC. 504. No part of any appropriation for the current fiscal year contained in this or any other Act shall be paid to any person for the filling of any position for which he or she has been nominated after the Senate has voted not to approve the nomination of said person.

SEC. 505. No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act for the current fiscal year shall be used to pay in excess of $4 per volume for the current and future volumes of the United States Code, Annotated, and such volumes shall be purchased on condition and with the understanding that latest published cumulative annual pocket parts issued prior to the date of purchase shall be furnished free of charge, or in excess of $4.25 per volume for the current or future volumes of the Lifetime Federal Digest, or in excess of $6.50 per volume for the current or future volumes of the Modern Federal Practice Digest.

SEC. 506. Funds made available by this or any other Act for administrative expenses in the current fiscal year of the corporations and agencies subject to the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended (31 U.S.C. 841), shall be available, in addition to objects for which such funds are otherwise available, for rent in the District of Columbia; services in accordance with [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U.S.C. 55a)] 5 U.S.C. 3109; and the objects specified under this head, all the provisions of which shall be applicable to the expenditure of such funds unless otherwise specified in the Act by which they are made available: Provided, That in the event any functions budgeted as administrative expenses are subsequently transferred to or paid from other funds, the limitations on administrative expenses shall be correspondingly reduced.

SEC. 507. Pursuant to section 1415 of the Act of July 15, 1952 (66 Stat. 662), foreign credits (including currencies) owed to or owned by the United States may be used by Federal agencies for any purpose for which appropriations are made for the current fiscal year (including the carrying out of Acts requiring or authorizing the use of such credits), only when reimbursement therefor is made to the Treasury from applicable appropriations of the agency concerned: Provided, That such credits received as exchange allowances or proceeds of sales of personal property may be used in whole or part payment for acquisition of similar items, to the extent and in the manner authorized by law, without reimbursement to the Treasury.

SEC. 508. During the current fiscal year, any foreign currencies held by the United States which have been or may be reserved or set aside for specified programs or activities of any agency may be carried on the books of the Treasury in unfunded accounts.

SEC. 509. No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency, shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes designed to support or defeat legislation pending before Congress.

SEC. 510. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein. (Public Works Appropriation Act, 1967.)

【SEC. 902. The appropriations, authorizations, and authority with respect thereto in this Act, the District of Columbia Appropriation Act, 1967; the Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1967; the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1967; and the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967, shall be available from October 22, 1966, for the purposes provided in such appropriations, authorizations, and authority. All obligations incurred during the period between October 22, 1966, and the dates of enactment of such Acts in anticipation of such appropriations, authorizations, and authority are hereby ratified and confirmed if in accordance with the terms of such Acts or the terms of Public Law 89-481, Eighty-ninth Congress, as amended.】 (Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1967.)

【SEC. 903. None of the funds made available because of the provisions of this Act shall be used by the Export-Import Bank to either guarantee the payment of any obligation hereafter incurred by any Communist country (as defined in section 620(f) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended) or any agency or national thereof, or in any other way to participate in the extension of credit to any such country, agency, or national, in connection with the purchase of any product by such country, agency, or national, except when the President determines that such guarantees would be in the national interest and reports each such determination to the House of Representatives and the Senate within thirty days after such determination.】 (Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1967.)

Section 44 of the Alaska Omnibus Act (75 Stat. 151) authorized grants to the State of Alaska for a 5-year period ending June 30, 1964, to facilitate assumption by the State of responsibilities hitherto performed in Alaska by the Federal Government. The section was extended for an additional 2 years and an additional $23.5 million in grants was authorized by Public Law 88-311 to assist the State and local governments in recovering from the earthquake of March 27, 1964. The Deficiency Appropriation Act of 1964 appropriated $17 million under this additional authorization. In 1966 $5.4 million was appropriated under the same authorization.

1. Administration.—Funds are provided to administer and coordinate disaster relief assistance for the States. Simultaneously with the President's authorization of an allocation of funds to the Office of Emergency Planning for required disaster assistance, he authorizes an additional allocation to OEP for administrative purposes.

2. Aid to disaster areas.—Under Public Law 81-875 and section 9 of Public Law 89-769, the Federal Government provides supplementary assistance to State and local governments in the event of a declared major disaster by the President. Federal financial assistance is provided from the Disaster relief appropriation, under which allocations may be made directly to a State, or to Federal agencies as reimbursement for expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority. Responsibility for administration of this program is delegated to OEP by Executive Order 10427. A supplemental appropriation for 1967 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Under the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, designated agencies are authorized with Presidential approval to incur obligations and make expenditures to expand production of critical materials for programs certified as essential to the national defense by the Office of Emergency Planning. The program is conducted primarily through a revolving fund financed by borrowing from the Treasury. The amount borrowed may not exceed $2.1 billion outstanding at any one time.

Allocations of borrowing authority by the Office of Emergency Planning and net borrowing from the U.S. Treasury as of June 30, 1966, were as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Authorized agency	Borrowing authority allocated	Borrowings outstanding	Net available for borrowing
General Services Administration ¹	1,959,000	1,911,700	47,300
Department of Agriculture.....	89,460	78,606	10,854
Department of the Interior.....	35,800	32,935	2,865
Office of Emergency Planning (reserve).....	15,740		15,740

¹ In addition an appropriation of $108 million was applied to General Services Administration activities, thus providing financing of $2,067 million to that agency.

General Services Administration.—The program for expansion of production capacity has included the purchase and resale of metals, minerals, and machine tools, and research and pilot plant operations to develop new materials and new techniques for utilizing low-grade domestic ores. No new contracts have been entered into under the expansion program in recent years and no materials contracts remain outstanding at this time. On March 29, 1966, the President made a finding that new expansions of copper production are essential to the national security. Proposals for use of the Defense Production Act authority and financial resources available thereunder to stimulate expanded production are under consideration. Otherwise, the major problems now are custody, maintenance, and disposition of the materials and facilities.

As one of the inducements for expanding production, most of the contracts provided a guaranteed market for the production from expanded facilities. The option rights of contractors were examined with a view to reducing deliveries to the Government as far as possible within the terms of the contracts whenever basic stockpiling objectives had been attained.

Between July 1, 1957, and June 30, 1966, a reduction of $449.1 million in gross commitments was attained through renegotiation of contracts. However, significant amounts of materials have been delivered to the Defense Production Act inventory under these contracts. Progress has been made in disposing of these materials primarily by sales to other Government agencies and industry and steps are being taken to increase and accelerate the disposal program for these materials wherever this can be accomplished without disruptive effects on the market. Investment in inventory of $1,182 million on June 30, 1966, is expected to decrease to $910 million by June 30, 1968.

A summary of sales transactions involving the strategic minerals and metals under this fund follows (in millions of dollars):

Opening inventory (cost).....	1,380	1,182	1,010
Less cost of goods sold:
Sales receipts.....	177	127	61
Loss on sales.....	20	41	35
Cost of goods sold.....	197	168	96
Less transfer for upgrading.....	1	4	4
Closing inventory (cost).....	1,182	1,010	910

Department of Agriculture.—The purchase, management, and resale of agricultural commodities, except forest products, were carried out by the Commodity Credit Corporation, which was reimbursed from an allocation to the Secretary of Agriculture from this fund. The program was completed by 1961, but interest expense still accumulates on borrowing covering the loss incurred.

Department of the Interior.—Operations to expand defense production under section 303 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 were limited to the encouragement of exploration for strategic and critical mineral commodities. The operations were administered by the Office of Minerals Exploration, Geological Survey. This Office uses appropriated funds to administer the Defense Minerals Exploration Administration contracts under which royalty obligations remain.

Obligations for repayment of loans (on a royalty basis—no interest) remain on 132 contracts amounting to $6,539 thousand. Royalties on production from any of these projects within specified periods will be applied toward the Government funds spent. Royalties received totaled $5,706 thousand on a cumulative basis at the end of 1966 and are estimated at $400 thousand for 1967 and $100 thousand for 1968.

Interest on Treasury borrowings for this program is accruing at a rate of more than 5 times the rate estimated for royalty receipts.

Treasury Department.—The function of making and administering interest-bearing loans to private business enterprises was assigned to the Secretary of the Treasury by Executive Order 10489, dated September 26, 1953. Applications for loans are considered only upon certification of essentiality by the Office of Emergency Planning.

Loans outstanding amounting to $2,401 thousand on June 30, 1966, were increased by $11,610 thousand in 1967 after a re-evaluation of collections and reserve for losses. Repayments of $2,689 thousand in 1967 and $1,973 thousand in 1968 are estimated to leave $9,348 thousand outstanding on June 30, 1968.

No new loans were authorized during 1966. No amount for new loan activity in 1967 or 1968 has been estimated, although it is anticipated that certain new loan applications may be authorized during that period.

Financial condition.—Outstanding borrowings from the U.S. Treasury exceed $2 billion whereas assets under the DPA revolving fund are made up almost entirely of minerals and metals inventory which, on June 30, 1966, had a book value of about $1.2 billion and a market value of about $0.7 billion. Interest on borrowings, accruing at an annual rate of about $75 million, is currently more than offset by inventory sales. However, the sole remaining significant source of income will be insufficient even for interest payments within a few years.

Under proposed legislation, 1968.—Legislation is being proposed which would waive further payments of interest on notes under the nonlending portion of the program, effective December 31, 1967. This proposal and a lifting of the current $100 million limitation on new production contracts will free up revolving fund balances now being devoted to the payment of interest on losses suffered largely in meeting the production requirements of the Korean war. The new availability of defense production financial authority is needed to support the current effort in Southeast Asia.

The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) is an intergovernmental institution, corporate in form, whose capital stock is owned by its member governments. The Bank promotes economic development in member countries through loans, technical assistance, and guarantees of private investment in development projects. Twenty Western Hemisphere republics, including the United States, are members of the Bank, and all have completed required payments on their authorized subscriptions and quotas. Cuba is not a member of the Bank.

Ordinary capital.—The Bank's authorized ordinary capital is the equivalent of $2,150 million of which $1,769.8 million has been subscribed as of December 31, 1965. Of the total subscribed, the equivalent of $381.6 million has been paid in, and $1,388.2 million is subject to call by the Bank if required to meet its obligations arising out of borrowings or guarantees. The remaining $380.2 million of authorized capital is unassigned, and is reserved mainly for the possible admission of new members.

The United States has paid in $150 million and has subscribed and appropriated an additional $611.8 million for callable capital.

The U.S. subscription to callable capital enables the Bank to raise funds for lending through bond sales in private capital markets in the United States and elsewhere. The Bank has pledged itself to limit borrowings to the amount of the U.S. callable capital subscription. Funds appropriated for the U.S. subscription will remain subject to call by the Bank only as required in the unlikely event the Bank should be unable to meet its obligations arising out of borrowings or guarantees. As of October 31, 1966, the Bank has borrowed a total of $387.4 million equivalent.

By October 31, 1966, Bank commitments from ordinary capital had reached $703 million on 132 loans.

No appropriation is being requested in 1968 for ordinary capital of the Bank.

Fund for special operations (FSO).—In addition to its ordinary capital operations, the Bank lends from its FSO in circumstances where ordinary capital financing is not appropriate. The initial resources of the FSO total $1,119.5 million. The United States' contributions through the current fiscal year, total $900 million.

As of October 31, 1966, commitments from the FSO amounted to $543 million on 114 loans.

International negotiations among the Bank's member countries are in progress (December 1966) regarding a further increase in the resources of the FSO. When agreement is reached on the size and nature of an increase, legislation will be transmitted providing for authorization of an appropriation.

The International Development Association is an international organization affiliated with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development designed to provide development financing with long-term maturities at a nominal service charge for its less developed member countries. Eighteen advanced member countries of the Association agreed in 1964 to add to IDA's original resources through supplementary contributions totaling $753 million payable in annual installments during fiscal years 1966, 1967, and 1968. The U.S. share of this replenishment of the Association's resources was $312 million, or $104 million a year. The 1968 appropriation request is for the third and final installment of $104 million which must be paid on or before November 8, 1967.

U.S. membership in the International Development Association was authorized by Public Law 86-565 (74 Stat. 293), approved June 30, 1960. The initial subscription of the United States totaled $320.3 million, payable in five annual installments, the last of which was paid in November 1964.

As of November 30, 1966, the Association had made credit commitments for high priority economic development projects totaling $1,579.5 million in 36 countries and territories. As of the same date, membership in the Association, which is open to all members of the International Bank, totaled 96 countries, with subscriptions aggregating $999 million of which approximately $776 million was payable in hard currencies.

The International Development Association has under discussion with member countries (December 1966) the question of future replenishment of its resources. When agreement is reached on the size and nature of an increase, separate legislation will be transmitted providing for authorization of an appropriation in the necessary amount.

The Congress authorized and appropriated (Public Laws 87-490 and 87-872) $2 billion for U.S. participation in a 10-nation, $6 billion arrangement providing, under specified conditions, for loans by the participants to the International Monetary Fund when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system.

The arrangements have been drawn on by the Fund on two occasions in the total amount of $930 million. The United States did not participate in the loans made under the arrangements because the Fund's holdings of dollars have been fully adequate.

Under a 4-year renewal decided by the Executive Directors on October 15, 1965, the arrangements remain in effect until October 15, 1969. The U.S. commitment to lend up to $2 billion to the Fund under the arrangements will continue during the renewal period.

The Bretton Woods Agreements Act of July 31, 1945, authorized the acceptance of membership in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the subscription of $3,175 million to its capital stock. On June 17, 1959 (73 Stat. 80), the Bretton Woods Agreements Act was amended to increase the U.S. subscription to callable capital stock by $3,175 million. The Bank's total authorized capital stock (September 1966) is $24 billion, of which $22.6 billion has been subscribed by its 105 member countries.

The United States paid $635 million of the original subscription in cash and non-interest-bearing nonnegotiable notes. The remaining balance ($5,715 million) has been made available, but will not be called unless required to meet the Bank's obligations. Calls on unpaid subscriptions, were they ever to occur, would be a uniform percentage of the amounts subscribed by each member country.

By the end of November 1966, the Bank has made net loans totaling $10 billion in 79 member countries and territories.

The Asian Development Bank is a regional development financing institution established by Asian member governments, with participation by developed countries outside the Asian region, for the purpose of financing economic development projects and programs in and among the developing countries of Asia. The agreement establishing the institution came into effect formally on August 22, 1966.

The authorized capital stock of the Bank is $1.1 billion. Subscription pledges of the Bank's 31 members totaled $965 million, as of late November 1966.

One-half of each member's subscription is to be paid in and one-half is to remain callable. Of the amounts paid in, developing members' subscriptions are payable half in convertible currency and half in national currency, while developed members' subscriptions are payable entirely in convertible currency. The paid-in portion is due in five annual installments.

The resources of the Bank will normally be used for loans on conventional terms for projects in developing member countries. Up to 10% of the Bank's paid-in capital may be set aside by a special vote of the Bank's Governors as a special fund for loans on easier repayment terms. In addition, the Bank may serve as administering agent for special funds made available to it bilaterally by member governments. Procurement with the Bank's own funds will be limited to purchases in member countries, except for special circumstances requiring a two-thirds vote of the directors.

The authorized United States subscription to the Asian Development Bank is $200 million, of which $100 million will be paid in and $100 million will be callable. A supplemental appropriation of $140 million for 1966 was obtained to cover the entire callable portion and the first two of five installments of the paid-in portion. Subsequent appropriations of $20 million each will be sought for 1969, 1970, and 1971. Of the amounts to be paid in, $10 million of each installment will be paid in cash and $10 million will be paid in the form of a letter of credit.

The military assistance program strengthens the security of the free world by contributing to the development, maintenance, and training of modern military forces through the grant and sale of defense articles. The combined military forces of countries receiving military equipment on a grant or sales basis are numerically greater than the U.S. Armed Forces. They provide free world defensive capability, depth in reserves, and flexibility. Many of these countries have joined regional defense pacts, such as NATO and some have entered into bilateral defense arrangements with the United States.

Military assistance is now substantially reduced from the program level of earlier years. In addition to transfers discussed below most Western European countries no longer receive defense articles as grant military assistance. Moreover, other countries throughout the world are increasing expenditures on military forces as their economic capacities increase.

The program for fiscal year 1968 does not provide for the U.S. share of the cost of NATO Infrastructure (military facilities constructed for the use of, and jointly financed by, the participating nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization) or of International Military Headquarters and Agencies (administrative support costs of military headquarters and agencies of NATO, CENTO, and SEATO), or for the military assistance requirements of Laos and Thailand. Funds needed to meet these costs and requirements in 1968 are included in the budgets of the military departments. Also, in 1967, the programing, budgeting, and funding of the Logistics Center in Japan were transferred to the U.S. Army.

The Supplemental Defense Appropriation Act of 1966 transferred responsibility for funding the support of South Vietnamese and other free world forces in Vietnam, and related costs, from the military assistance program to the Department of Defense budget. The transfer was effected as of 31 March 1966, and all unexpended balances of 1966 and prior year programs originally funded under military assistance were transferred to the military departments at that time.

The major portion of the military equipment and supplies which the United States grants or sells under the military assistance program is produced in the United States and is obtained by placing orders with the U.S. military services. Military assistance funds are reserved when the orders are placed and the military services accounts are reimbursed when the items are delivered. The materials supplied by the United States vary with our objectives and the requirements and capabilities of individual countries. The current emphasis is on the maintenance of existing forces and materiel, although modernization is included as funds permit. Materiel already on hand but excess to the needs of U.S. forces is supplied, whenever possible, at no charge to the military assistance appropriation except for the costs of rehabilitation and transportation.

In 1967 and 1968, funds are included in the new obligational authority for Military Assistance, Executive appropriation to finance credit sales of military equipment and supplies produced in the United States to various countries and to guarantee exporters, financing institutions, or others doing business in the United States against political and credit risks of loss arising from sales of defense articles and services to eligible foreign countries and international organizations. The Foreign Assistance Act of 1966 provides for the transfer of these funds, together with the unexpended balances of 1966 and prior year funds previously obligated in the Military Assistance, Executive appropriation, for financing foreign military credit sales, to the Foreign Military Sales Fund, Executive. In addition, there are also sales which are financed through advances made by the purchasing countries to the Advances, Military Assistance trust fund receipt account.

Public enterprise funds:

FOREIGN MILITARY SALES FUND, EXECUTIVE

This revolving fund was established under the authority of section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1965. The fund directly finances the sales of defense articles and defense services to foreign countries and international organizations on cash or credit terms, guarantees public and private credit for sales of defense articles and defense services, and absorbs gains and losses resulting from sales of defense articles and defense services under fixed price negotiations.

The capital of the fund is provided by transfer of loans outstanding and appropriations from the military assistance appropriation, as authorized by the Foreign Assistance Acts of 1965 and 1966 (22 U.S.C. 2316). In 1968, $60,000 thousand will be transferred from the military assistance appropriation account compared to $53,600 thousand in 1967. Cash for operations is provided by principal repayments and interest income on credit sales financed by the fund, proceeds from sales to lending institutions of evidences of indebtedness, and fees and premiums earned on the guaranty of private credit. Expenditures are for payments to suppliers under directly financed credits and overhead expenses relating to military sales activity. A reserve fund is set aside to guaranty publicly and privately financed military credit sales. The reserve requirement is 25% of the maximum credit exposure.

Credit sales agreements entered into in 1966 were $332,105 thousand. They are estimated to be approximately $387,104 thousand in 1967 and $280,300 thousand in 1968. The outstanding balance, including commitments, as of the end of 1966 was $600,524 thousand. The estimated outstanding balances, including credit sales agreements and commitments, as of the end of 1967 and 1968 are estimated to be $854,259 thousand and $1,007,333 thousand, respectively.

1. Technical cooperation.—These grants are used in less-developed countries to (1) provide the advisers, teachers, and equipment required for the improvement of human resources, especially in educational, administrative, technical, and professional skills; (2) assist in the control and eradication of major diseases and other menaces to health; (3) establish and improve institutions which further economic and social development; (4) assist in planning and surveys of development programs and projects; (5) establish or improve basic physical facilities, such as communications and transport, in those relatively few countries where the economies are unable to carry the obligations entailed by development loans; (6) pay transportation charges on shipments of supplies by approved American nonprofit voluntary agencies; and (7) finance research concerning the problems of economic development.

2. American schools and hospitals abroad.—To further the well-rounded training of qualified leadership in developing countries, the United States provides funds to American-sponsored institutions abroad.

3. Surveys of investment opportunities.—This program encourages private enterprise to undertake surveys of investment opportunities in the less-developed areas of the world. Up to 50% of the total cost of such surveys is paid by AID in the event that the concern sponsoring the survey does not proceed with an investment. If such payment is necessary, the survey becomes AID property for use in attracting other investors.

4. International organizations and programs.—Voluntary contributions by the United States are provided to programs affiliated with the United Nations and its specialized agencies, and to the Indus Basin Development Fund associated with the World Bank. These programs advance U.S. objectives by promoting the economic and social development of the less-developed countries and by contributing to the maintenance of peace in threatened areas.

5 and 6. Supporting assistance.—To further U.S. national security and foreign policy objectives, support is provided countries which need help in maintaining defensive forces or in attaining economic and political stability. Grants for procurement of commodities and equipment are made and, to the extent feasible, are used for purposes which also contribute to development. In some cases country situations have stabilized sufficiently to permit reductions in supporting assistance and to increase concentration on development. A separate appropriation is requested to finance economic programs to help Vietnam preserve its national independence against Communist subversion.

7 and 8. Contingency funds.—These funds are used to meet urgent requirements which cannot be foreseen at the time the budget is prepared. They are available not only to provide emergency assistance in disasters but also to meet important international situations which create a need for immediate response in the U.S. national interest.

9. Alliance for Progress: Technical cooperation and development grants.—Grants for technical services and equipment are made to Latin American countries as part of the joint Alliance for Progress program.

10. Administrative expenses (Agency for International Development).—These funds are used by the Agency for International Development in Washington and overseas missions to administer economic programs.

11. Administrative expenses (State).—Administrative expense funds are requested for the Department of State for support of personnel involved in the administration of the foreign assistance program and of the Battle Act.

Loans.—A major portion of U.S. resources provided through foreign economic programs in less-developed countries is in the form of loans. Data on loans made under the development loan activity, under the Alliance for Progress, and under the authority of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act are shown on separate schedules. A small portion of economic program funds available for grants are loaned each year rather than granted. These loans are made for economic development or essential support purposes, and may be repayable either in dollars or foreign currency. The tables below show the current status of these loans.

The following table gives summary data on loans made from current obligational authority, repayable in dollars and foreign currencies (in millions of dollars and dollar equivalents):

Sec. 505(a), Mutual Security Act of 1954.....	86	11	-----

Through 1961, a portion of the mutual security dollar appropriations was used to purchase surplus agricultural commodities which were then sold to friendly countries for their currencies. Sales of these commodities are now being made through the Food for Freedom program. Local currencies accruing from the sales through 1961 under the mutual security program are deposited in a special account and are used for economic and military activities in furtherance of objectives of the U.S. foreign assistance program. In 1967, certain supporting assistance section 401 funds are being used to generate local currency for support of U.S. projects. These currencies are deposited in a U.S.-owned account. These activities include the local costs of projects and procurement of supplies and equipment for third countries.

The Alliance for Progress was established in 1961 as a cooperative effort of the United States and Latin American countries to promote the economic and social development of Latin America. The United States is helping in these efforts by providing economic and technical aid. The Latin American countries, in addition to providing a steadily increasing share of their own resources to development, are carrying out substantial self-help and reform programs. Through 1967 the Congress has appropriated

$2,272 million for development loans. Total Alliance for Progress appropriations of $543 million are requested for 1968. Of this amount $443 million is proposed for development loans, largely in support of programs which encourage increased agricultural production, regional integration and the development of private enterprise; and $100 million is proposed for technical cooperation activities in such vital areas as agriculture, education and health.

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, authorized for an 8-year period through fiscal year 1969 an $8.8 billion program of development loans to be administered by the Agency for International Development. This program replaced the Development Loan Fund Corporation, which was abolished November 3, 1961. A total of $618 million was appropriated for development loans in 1966, $500 million in 1967, and $774 million is proposed for 1968.

Development loans are repayable in U.S. dollars. Under the provisions of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1964, interest charged on all loans, with the exception of those covered by special provisions relative to the use of the facilities of the International Development Association and those funds already committed to be loaned, will be at an interest rate of not less than 2½% per annum. Loan repayments must begin not later than 10 years following the date on which the funds are lent. During the initial 10-year period the rate of interest shall not be lower than 1% per annum.

Development loans are made to promote the economic development of less-developed countries and areas, usually to assist in financing long-range development plans and programs. Before a loan is made, the Agency for International Development must take into account (1) whether financing could be obtained in whole or in part from other free world sources on reasonable terms, including private sources within the United States; (2) the economic and technical soundness of the activity to be financed, including the capacity of the recipient country to repay the loan at a reasonable rate of interest; (3) whether the activity gives reasonable promise of contributing to the development of economic resources or to the increase of productive capacities; (4) the consistency of the activity with, and its relationship to, other development activities being undertaken or planned, and its contribution to realistic long-range objectives; (5) the extent to which the recipient country is demonstrating its determination to take effective self-help measures; and (6) possible effects upon the economy of the United States. Development loans are not made unless there is a finding of a reasonable prospect of repayment. Additional loan criteria and standards are established by an interagency Development Loan Committee chaired by the Administrator of the Agency for International Development.

DEVELOPMENT LOAN FUND (LIQUIDATION ACCOUNT)—Continued

The Development Loan Fund was established as a corporation by the Mutual Security Act of 1958 to extend loans, credits, and guarantees to American or foreign individuals, businesses, financial institutions, or foreign governments in order to provide capital for projects and programs contributing to the economic growth of friendly less-developed countries.

Under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Development Loan Fund Corporation was abolished and its functions were transferred, effective November 3, 1961, to the Agency for International Development. As of that date, the Fund had approved 217 loans and allocations and 3 guarantees for development assistance in 50 countries amounting to $2,008.5 million. Of this total, 203 loans and guarantee agreements had been signed totaling $1,887.3 million of which $632.9 million was actually disbursed, leaving $1,254.8 million in undisbursed loan and guarantee agreements still outstanding. In addition, the Fund had $120.8 million unobligated funds outstanding to provide for approved but unsigned loans. Approximately 24% of all loans were repayable in dollars and 76% in foreign currencies.

A total of $2 billion was appropriated to the Fund, in addition to which receipts from operations totaling approximately $15.5 million were available including $5.8 million realized from foreign currency receipts sold to the U.S. Treasury for dollars. Subsequent to November 3, 1961, the Fund has remained open for the purpose of liquidating outstanding obligations and approved but unsigned loans. As of June 30, 1966, the undisbursed loan agreements amounted to $179.8 million. It is estimated that this balance will decrease to $97.9 million in 1967 and to $18.8 million in 1968.

Loan repayments and interest earned totaled $126.1 million in 1966 and are scheduled to total $165.2 million in 1967 and $178.3 million in 1968.

The purpose of the guarantee programs is to encourage and facilitate those private U.S. investments abroad which further the development of the economic resources and productive capacities of such countries. Guarantees are available only for new investments, including new investments in existing enterprises. Under sections 221 through 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, Congress has authorized three investment guarantee programs:

1. Specific political risk guarantees against (a) convertibility of foreign currency, (b) loss by expropriation or confiscation, and (c) loss due to war, revolution or insurrection;

2. Extended risk guarantees which cover up to 75% of both political and business risks;

3. Extended risk guarantees covering up to 100% of losses on certain housing projects.

With the exception of the Latin American Housing Guarantees being issued under section 224 of the Foreign Assistance Act which does not require a Country Agreement, guarantees are available for investment in those countries whose governments have agreed with the Government of the United States to institute the investment guarantee program, and where there are suitable arrangements to protect the interests of the U.S. Government in connection with assets or claims acquired as a result of having provided relief under a guarantee. Continued progress has been made in reaching these agreements with countries that had previously not participated, particularly in Africa. Guarantees are available in 74 of the developing countries.

All guarantees are backed by the full faith and credit of the United States. As of June 30, 1966, total reserves available for all authorized investment guarantees was $291,117 thousand. That amount is expected to suffice to handle any claims that might reasonably be anticipated to mature before a supplemental appropriation could be obtained from the Congress to restore the liquidity of the program.

The current status in statutory authorizations for specific risk, extended risk, and Latin American housing programs are indicated below.

(a) Specific risk.—The presently authorized level of $7 billion is considered adequate to meet current demand.

(b) Extended risk.—An increase of $100 million, from $375 million in 1967 to $475 million in 1968, is requested for extended risk-general.

(c) Extended risk.—For Latin American housing projects, the guarantee issuing authority ceiling increased from $400 million in 1966 to $450 million in 1967 is to extend at this level through June 30, 1969.

Operating costs and administration.—The value of guarantees issued is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Specific risk guarantees issued.....	1,078,928	1,500,000	1,500,000

Total guarantees issued.....	1,109,974	1,630,945	1,675,000

As of June 30, 1966 claims totaling $918 thousand have been paid out of that portion of the reserves representing accumulated fee income. Administrative expenses are paid from funds appropriated for the general administrative expenses of the Agency for International Development.

Section 608 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 created a revolving fund to provide for more effective use by the Agency for International Development of U.S. Government-owned excess personal property in foreign assistance programs by authorizing such property to be acquired and rehabilitated in advance of specifically known requirements for country programs. This includes many types of excess property such as tractors, construction and roadbuilding equipment, machinery, and machine tools, the general needs for which can be anticipated with a high degree of certainty. Until July 1, 1966, costs have included accessorial charges only, i.e., transportation, rehabilitation, storage, and packing, crating, and handling of the property, paid initially from a revolving fund established for the purpose in 1962 and, upon shipment of the rehabilitated property, charged to the recipient program or government. The Foreign Assistance Act of 1966 amended section 608 to permit charging the revolving fund with personnel costs. Proceeds from these charges are deposited to the credit of the revolving fund. The law limits the value of domestic excess property which may be held at any one time until a funded order therefor is placed to $15 million in total original acquisition value. There is no legal limit with respect to the value of foreign excess property which may be held at any one time.

The Agency's program for inspecting and acquiring this property and supervising its transportation to marshaling sites, rehabilitation, and outshipment is carried out by three domestic regional offices (New Cumberland, Pa., Atlanta, Ga., and Lathrop, Calif.) and two foreign regional offices (Frankfurt, Germany, and Tokyo, Japan). In the United States, major marshaling sites have been established under interagency support agreements with the U.S. Army at the three domestic regional offices. In Europe, rehabilitation services are being obtained under a U.S. Air Force interservice support agreement with the U.S. Navy in Spain and under an AID barter-type contract with a private commercial firm in Belgium. In the Far East, rehabilitation services are being obtained under interagency support agreements with the U.S. Army and the U.S. Navy in Japan and Guam, under AID barter-type contracts with private commercial firms in Japan and Korea, and under an AID contract with a private commercial firm in Okinawa.

The 1968 budget schedules are revised to bring the method of recording all costs incident to rehabilitation of items acquired from other government agencies into alignment with the treatment of these costs in the accounting records. In prior years the budget schedules capitalized all such cost, on the basis of a prorated percentage of the original costs of the items acquired. The accounting system provides for recording all such costs as operating costs at the time incurred. In recognition of the true status of property transferred to AID, rehabilitated under the revolving fund, and held pending issue, the accounting system for the fund and related budget schedules exclude the value of the inventory from the assets of the fund. The budget schedules recognize receipts from issue of property as Income from service charges rather than Proceeds from sale of inventory.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. None of the funds herein appropriated (other than funds appropriated under the authorization for "International organizations and programs") shall be used to finance the construction of any new flood control, reclamation, or other water or related land resource project or program which has not met the standards and criteria used in determining the feasibility of flood control, reclamation, and other water and related land resource programs and projects proposed for construction within the United States of America as per memorandum of the President dated May 15, 1962.

SEC. 102. Obligations made from funds herein appropriated for engineering and architectural fees and services to any individual or group of engineering and architectural firms on any one project in excess of $25,000 shall be reported to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House of Representatives at least twice annually.

SEC. 103. Except for the appropriations entitled "Contingency Fund", "Alliance for Progress, development loans", and "Development loans", not more than 20 per centum of any appropriation item made available by this title shall be obligated and/or reserved during the last month of availability.

SEC. 104. None of the funds herein appropriated nor any of the counterpart funds generated as a result of assistance hereunder or any prior Act shall be used to pay pensions, annuities, retirement pay or adjusted service compensation for any persons heretofore or hereafter serving in the armed forces of any recipient country.

SEC. 105. The Congress hereby reiterates its opposition to the seating in the United Nations of the Communist China regime as the representative of China, and it is hereby declared to be the continuing sense of the Congress that the Communist regime in China has not demonstrated its willingness to fulfill the obligations contained in the Charter of the United Nations and should not be recognized to represent China in the United Nations. In the event of the seating of representatives of the Chinese Communist regime in the Security Council or General Assembly of the United Nations the President is requested to inform the Congress insofar as is compatible with the requirements of national security, of the implications of this action upon the foreign policy of the United States and our foreign relationships, including that created by membership in the United Nations, together with any recommendations which he may have with respect to the matter.

SEC. 106. It is the sense of Congress that any attempt by foreign nations to create distinctions because of their race or religion among American citizens in the granting of personal or commercial access or any other rights otherwise available to United States citizens generally is repugnant to our principles; and in all negotiations between the United States and any foreign state arising as a result of funds appropriated under this title these principles shall be applied as the President may determine.

SEC. 107. (a) No assistance shall be furnished under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, to any country which sells, furnishes, or permits any ships under its registry to carry to Cuba, so long as it is governed by the Castro regime, in addition to those items contained on the list maintained by the Administrator pursuant to title I of the Mutual Defense Assistance Control Act of 1951, as amended, any arms, ammunition, implements of war, atomic energy materials, or any other articles, materials, or supplies of primary strategic significance used in the production of arms, ammunition, and implements of war or of strategic significance to the conduct of war, including petroleum products.

(b) No economic assistance shall be furnished under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, to any country which sells, furnishes, or permits any ships under its registry to carry items of economic assistance to Cuba, so long as it is governed by the Castro regime, or to North Vietnam.

SEC. 108. Any expenditure made from funds provided in this title for procurement outside the United States of any commodity in bulk and in excess of $100,000 shall be reported to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives at least twice annually: Provided, That each such report shall state the reasons for which the President determined, pursuant to criteria set forth in section 604(a) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, that foreign procurement will not result in adverse effects upon the economy of the United States or the industrial mobilization base which outweigh the economic or other advantages to United States of less costly procurement outside the United States.

SEC. 109. (a) No assistance shall be furnished to any nation, whose government is based upon that theory of government known as communism under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for any arms, ammunition, implements of war, atomic energy materials, or any articles, materials, or supplies, such as petroleum, transportation materials of strategic value, and items of primary strategic significance used in the production of arms, ammunition, and implements of war, contained on the list maintained by the Administrator pursuant to title I of the Mutual Defense Assistance Control Act of 1951, as amended.

(b) No economic assistance shall be furnished to any nation whose government is based upon that theory of government known as communism under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended (except section 214(b)), unless the President determines that the withholding of such assistance would be contrary to the national interest and reports such determination to the Foreign Affairs and Appropriations Committees of the House of Representatives and Foreign Relations and Appropriations Committees of the Senate. Reports made pursuant to this subsection shall be published in the Federal Register within seven days of submission to the committees and shall contain a statement by the President of the reasons for such determination.

SEC. 110. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be used for making payments on any contract for procurement to which the United States is a party entered into after the date of enactment of this Act which does not contain a provision authorizing the termination of such contract for the convenience of the United States.

SEC. 111. None of the funds appropriated or made available by this or any predecessor Act for the years subsequent to fiscal year 1962 for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be used [on or after 60 days from the date of enactment of this Act] to make payments with respect to any contract for the performance of services outside the United States by United States citizens unless the President shall have promulgated regulations that provide for the investigation of such citizens for loyalty and security to the extent necessary to protect the security and other interests of the United States: Provided, That such regulations shall require that any such United States citizen who will have access, in connection with the performance of such services, to information or material classified for security reasons shall be subject to such investigation as may otherwise be provided by law and executive order.

SEC. 112. None of the funds appropriated or made available under this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be used to make payments with respect to any capital project financed by loans or grants from the United States where the United States has not directly approved the terms of the contracts and the firms to provide engineering, procurement, and construction services on such projects.

SEC. 113. Of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act not more than $10,000,000 may be used during the fiscal year ending June 30, [1967] 1968, in carrying out section 241 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

SEC. 114. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be used to pay in whole or in part any assessments, arrearages, or dues of any member of the United Nations.

SEC. 115. None of the funds made available by this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be obligated [on or after April 30, 1964,] for financing, in whole or in part, the direct costs of any contract for the construction of facilities and installations in any underdeveloped country, unless the President shall [on or before such date,] have promulgated regulations designed to assure, to the maximum extent consistent with the national interest and the avoidance of excessive costs to the United States, that none of the funds made available by this Act and thereafter obligated shall be used to finance the direct costs under such contracts for construction work performed by persons other than qualified nationals of the recipient country or qualified citizens of the United States: Provided, however, That the President may waive the application of this amendment if it is important to the national interest.

SEC. 116. No assistance shall be furnished under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, to any country that sells, furnishes, or permits any ships under its registry to carry to North Vietnam any of the items mentioned in subsection 107(a) of this Act.

SEC. 117. None of the funds appropriated or made available in this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, shall be available for assistance to the United Arab Republic, unless the President determines that such availability is essential to the national interest of the United States.

SEC. 118. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, may be used to finance the procurement of iron and steel products for use in Vietnam containing any component acquired by the producer of the commodity, in the form in which imported into the country of production, from sources other than the United States or a country designated as a limited free world country by code number 901 in the September 1964 Geographic Code Book compiled by the Agency for International Development, and at a total cost (delivered to the point of production) that amounts to more than 10 per centum of the lowest price (excluding the cost of ocean transportation and marine insurance) at which the supplier makes the commodity available for export sale (whether or not financed by the Agency for International Development). 1. Work and training programs—(a) Job Corps.—The Job Corps provides work and training in 128 residential centers away from home for young people aged 16 through 21 who are out of school and out of work.

Rural conservation centers range from 90- to 224-enrollee capacity. They are managed by the Interior and Agriculture Departments and by State governments. They aim at raising the level of basic education, work attitudes and habits, and prevocational and basic work skills.

Urban centers range from 250 to 3,300 enrollees and are operated under contract by industrial organizations, universities, and nonprofit entities. Young men and women receive more highly specialized vocational training as well as general education, counseling, and improvement in work attitudes and habits.

Job Corps program levels are estimated at:

(b) Neighborhood Youth Corps.—Youths aged 14 through 21 work in State and local agencies and nonprofit organizations. They also can receive on-the-job training with private employers. The program aims at youths who are in danger of dropping out of school for financial reasons or who have dropped out and cannot find a job. Out-of-school youths receive counseling and other services to equip them to get a job or to encourage them to return to school. The funds, 10% of which come from local sources, will finance these training spaces:

Out-of-school program.....	55,000	60,000	60,000
Summer program.....	240,000	165,000	165,000

(c) Work experience program.—This provides work-training programs for unemployed parents of dependent children and other needy persons. The program's objective is to get persons off relief by preparing them for regular employment. This objective requires furnishing a variety of services, including basic and high school education, employment counseling, and services to enrollees' families, as well as occupational training. Funds for 1968 will provide 30,000 work and training opportunities, which will assist approximately 50,000 individuals.

(d) Adult work training, and special impact programs.—Funds for these programs will offer intensive manpower services, including work and training, for severely disadvantaged job seekers. Among other activities, concentration of services will be brought to bear on a number of cities with unusually heavy concentrations of poverty and employment problems.

2. Community action programs.—Local community action agencies (CAA's) have now been established in over 1,000 communities in the United States to plan, coordinate, and mobilize an attack on poverty in the communities. By the end of 1967, 1,050 CAA's will have been established and 1,100 are planned for 1968. Grants under this allocation support the staffs of these local agencies and finance a number of services included within local CAA plans.

The increases requested in 1968 will (1) add to the capacity of local CAA's to do systematic analyses of local poverty conditions, and to coordinate Federal, State, and local programs into a unified attack on poverty;

(2) Provide increased funds for rural communities to help the 43% of the Nation's poor who reside in rural America, and sufficient funds to enable urban areas to continue their forward movement; and

(3) Emphasize programs which have the best chance of alleviating poverty, including a new program providing funds for use in the primary grades to sustain the gains made in preschool programs under project Head Start. The budget provides $135 million for this new program.

Local communities plan and carry out a number of activities aimed at eliminating poverty. They may receive action grants for activities in such areas as remedial education and training, health care, and subprofessional jobs.

Virtually all community action agencies will receive Head Start funds to provide education for preschool children. Additional grants will be made in areas that have no community action agencies. Though the funds requested for preschool Head Start in 1968 are slightly lower than those programmed in 1967, certain financial adjustments make it possible to support the same number of children in each year.

Children participating—summer.....	573,000	550,000	550,000
Children participating—academic year....	160,000	187,000	187,000

Community action in 1968 will continue to emphasize activities which are strategic in the alleviation of poverty. Activities actually pursued are generally a matter of local choice, but it is anticipated that communities will request expansion of the Neighborhood Service Centers, which are the principal instruments for coordinating services for the poor. In 1968, the centers will be expanded to include early childhood development services, such as family planning, prenatal care, day care, and training in child rearing. Comprehensive health services programs, which concentrate on comprehensive family care and preventive medicine, and Legal Services are also expected to expand.

In 1968 the Federal share of community action programs will decrease from 90 to 80%. This increase in local contributions will have the effect of expanding the coverage of Federal funds.

In addition to the planning and action grants, funds are included to support research, training, and demonstration programs.

In 1968, research and demonstration funds will total $35 million and will be used to demonstrate new techniques for attacking poverty, to evaluate existing programs, and to study the causes of poverty.

Training and technical assistance programs totaling $20 million in 1968 are for community action agency staff, for certain local, State, and Federal agency personnel assisting in poverty programs and for poor persons working in local agencies.

OEO technical assistance is provided to local communities by State agencies, universities, and other organizations and experts. Such assistance is particularly helpful in rural communities and smaller cities which may not have resources to develop their own proposals.

3. Migrant workers program.—This activity provides a special program to help meet the housing, sanitation, and day care needs of migratory agricultural workers and their families. OEO will make grants or contracts to aid the activities of public and nonprofit agencies now conducting programs of assistance to improve health and living conditions of migratory workers in the three major national streams of domestic migrants. In 1968, the housing program will provide for an increase of self-help housing units, and child care centers will serve 15,000 children.

4. Rural areas program.—This activity finances the administrative expenses incurred by the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture in operating the rural loan program. Program expenses are included in the schedules for the Economic Opportunity loan fund.

5. Small business development centers.—This program will be phased out in 1967 with most of its functions assumed by the Small Business Administration.

6. Adult basic education.—In 1967, this program was transferred by congressional action to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

7. Volunteers in Service to America.—VISTA offers an opportunity for volunteers with a spirit of service to work directly on the problems of poverty. Volunteers are participating in the programs supported by the Economic Opportunity Act, in other Federal programs related to poverty problems, and in related State and local activities. The normal period of service is 1 year. As of June 30, 1966, 3,600 volunteers were in training or on field assignments. During 1967, VISTA will provide 3,300 man-years of volunteer service to local communities and in 1968 this will rise to nearly 4,200 man-years. In addition, 1,000 summer associates will serve for a 90-day period.

8. General direction and administration.—The Office of Economic Opportunity directly administers the Community Action, Migrants, and Volunteers in Service to America programs, and exercises primary responsibility for the Job Corps program, which is operated under contract by other public and private agencies. The Office also coordinates and reviews all programs delegated to other agencies and assists in coordinating the programs of all Federal agencies in an integrated attack on poverty.

Rural areas program.—The Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture makes loans to low-income farm families to acquire or improve real estate; purchase operating supplies and equipment; and/or participate in cooperative associations. Loans are also made to low-income rural families to finance small nonagricultural enterprises. The maximum individual indebtedness has been increased from $2,500 to $3,500 outstanding at any one time. In 1966, 17,073 loans were made, and about 13,000 rural families will be assisted in 1967. The funds requested for 1968 will provide for approximately 13,000 loans.

Loans also are made to help establish new cooperatives and finance existing cooperatives furnishing essential services, supplies or facilities predominantly to low-income rural families. In 1966, 391 such loans were made. In 1967, approximately 400 loans will be made to cooperatives that will assist 6,000 low-income rural families, and approximately the same number of families will be aided in 1968.

The purposes of the Peace Corps are to provide trained Americans to interested countries in need of middle-level manpower and to promote understanding between the people of the United States and the peoples served.

Volunteers are working in four principal kinds of assignments at the request of host countries. Approximately half are engaged in classroom teaching at all levels. About 25 percent serve in rural and urban community development programs, 10 percent are involved in health programs and 15 percent serve in agricultural development. By 1968 increasing emphasis will be placed on agricultural development with over 30 percent of the volunteers engaged in agriculture and related activities.

Prior to overseas assignment, each volunteer is given intensive training designed to develop required skills, to provide a knowledge of the country to which he will be sent, to develop his language abilities and to assure physical fitness for service overseas. During training, all prospective volunteers are carefully evaluated through continuous observation.

Planning is based on a program year which runs from the beginning of September through the end of August.

1. Volunteer and project costs.—This activity includes all costs directly associated with volunteers. The 1968 budget permits prospective volunteers in training and volunteers overseas to increase from 16,225 to 19,240. The planned assignment of these volunteers is as follows:

	Aug. 31, 1966 (actual)	Aug. 31, 1967 (planned)	Aug. 31, 1968 (planned)
Africa.....	3,910	4,275	5,450
East Asia and Pacific.....	2,573	2,750	3,140
Latin America.....	5,041	5,300	6,275
North Africa, Near East, and South Asia.....	3,211	3,900	4,375
Total.....	14,735	16,225	19,240

Requests from countries for Peace Corps volunteers continue to increase. The proposed 1968 increase of 3,015 in volunteer and trainee strength to a total of 19,240 will improve U.S. response to this demand. Programing criteria limit projects to those which are consistent with the purposes of the Peace Corps Act, and which can be manned by anticipated available volunteers of the highest caliber. The newly instituted Planning, Programing, Budgeting System (PPBS) has assisted in focusing programs more sharply on key problems in the developing countries.

Volunteers for African countries will increase by 1,175 during 1968. While the majority of programs will continue to be in primary and secondary education, there will be a major emphasis on rural development and agriculture programs.

Most of the volunteers in the East Asia and Pacific region will be engaged in teacher training and classroom teaching, and there will be a much greater focus on health programs in this area.

In Latin America, community development has long been the largest Peace Corps activity, and many of the 975 additional volunteers for the region will work in this type of program. In addition, there will be an increasing emphasis on education, particularly teacher training.

The North Africa, Near East, and South Asia region has a wide variety of programs. The total number of volunteers for this region will increase by 475, with an increased number of volunteers in food supply programs throughout the region.

2. Administrative expenses, limitation.—This activity includes expenses related to recruitment, selection, direction of training, and the management of the Peace Corps, both in Washington and overseas.

Under an amendment (Public Law 88-94) to the Philippine war damage legislation of 1963, a special fund ($28.1 million) for education has been established to be used as jointly determined by the two Presidents for the purpose of furthering educational programs to the mutual advantage of both countries. Project proposals are currently under negotiation between the two countries. However, no amounts are shown for educational activities since no program plan has yet been developed or approved.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 401. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes within the United States not heretofore authorized by the Congress.

Sec. 402. None of the funds herein appropriated shall be used for expenses of the Inspector General, Foreign Assistance, after the expiration of the thirty-five day period which begins on the date the General Accounting Office or any committee of the Congress, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, charged with considering foreign assistance legislation, appropriations, or expenditures, has delivered to the Office of the Inspector General, Foreign Assistance, a written request that it be furnished any document, paper, communication, audit, review, finding, recommendation, report, or other material in the custody or control of the Inspector General, Foreign Assistance, relating to any review, inspection, or audit arranged for, directed, or conducted by him, unless and until there has been furnished to the General Accounting Office or to such committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, (A) the document, paper, communication, audit, review, finding, recommendation, report, or other material so requested or (B) a certification by the President, personally, that he has forbidden the furnishing thereof pursuant to such request and his reason for so doing.

Sec. 403. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

Sec. 404. Effective October 1, 1966, the Majority Leader of the Senate is authorized to fix the gross compensation of the Secretary for the Majority at not to exceed $25,611.05 per annum so long as the position is held by the present incumbent. (Foreign Assistance and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967.)

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For expenses necessary to perform agricultural research relating to production, utilization, marketing, nutrition and consumer use, to control and eradicate pests and plant and animal diseases, and to perform related inspection, quarantine and regulatory work: Provided, That appropriations hereunder shall be available for field employment pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 [(5 U.S.C. 574)] (58 Stat. 742), and not to exceed $75,000 shall be available for employment under [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (15 U.S.C. 55a)] 3109: Provided further, That appropriations hereunder shall be available for the operation and maintenance of aircraft and the purchase of not to exceed two for replacement only: Provided further, That appropriations hereunder shall be available pursuant to [title 5, United States Code, section 565a] 53 Stat. 742, for the construction, alteration, and repair of buildings and improvements, but unless otherwise provided, the cost of constructing any one building (except headhouses connecting greenhouses) shall not exceed [$20,000] $25,000, except for six buildings to be constructed or improved at a cost not to exceed [$45,000] $55,000 each, and the cost of altering any one building during the fiscal year shall not exceed $7,500 or 7.5 per centum of the cost of the building, whichever is greater: Provided further, That the limitations on alterations contained in this Act shall not apply to a total of $100,000 for facilities at Beltsville, Maryland: Provided further, That not to exceed $10,000 of appropriations hereunder shall be available for offsite improvements on property adjoining the boundary of the U.S. Salinity Laboratory, Riverside, California:

Research: For research and demonstrations on the production and utilization of agricultural products; agricultural marketing and distribution, not otherwise provided for; home economics or nutrition and consumer use of agricultural and associated products; and related research and services; and for acquisition of land by donation, exchange, or purchase at a nominal cost not to exceed $100; [$123,402,500] $136,409,000, and in addition not to exceed [$25,000,000] $15,000,000 from funds available under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, pursuant to Public Law 88-250 shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation, of which [$11,169,000] $3,037,000 shall remain available until expended for plans, construction, and improvement of facilities without regard to limitations contained herein, and $4,580,200 shall be used to continue research activities scheduled for reduction or elimination in fiscal years 1966 and 1967: Provided, That the limitations contained herein shall not apply to replacement of buildings needed to carry out the Act of April 24, 1948 (21 U.S.C. 113a): Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to formulate a budget estimate for fiscal 1968 of more than $15,000,000 for research to be financed by transfer from funds available under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, and pursuant to Public Law 88-25;

Plant and animal disease and pest control: For operations and measures, not otherwise provided for, to control and eradicate pests and plant and animal diseases and for carrying out assigned inspection, quarantine, and regulatory activities, as authorized by law, including expenses pursuant to the Act of February 28, 1947, as amended (21 U.S.C. 114b-c), [$80,263,900] $85,326,000 of which $1,500,000 shall be apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects and plant diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions: Provided, That no funds shall be used to formulate or administer a brucellosis eradication program for the current fiscal year that does not require minimum matching by any State of at least 40 per centum: Provided further, That not to exceed $1,150,000 shall remain available until expended for construction of facilities without regard to limitations contained herein: Provided further, That, in addition, in emergencies which threaten the livestock or poultry industries of the country, the Secretary may transfer from other appropriations or funds available to the agencies or corporations of the Department such sums as he may deem necessary, to be available only in such emergencies for the arrest and eradication of foot-and-mouth disease, rinderpest, contagious pleuropneumonia, or other contagious or infectious diseases of animals, or European fowl pest and similar diseases in poultry, and for expenses in accordance with the Act of February 28, 1947, as amended, and any unexpended balances of funds transferred under this head in the next preceding fiscal year shall be merged with such transferred amounts;

Special fund: To provide for additional labor, subprofessional and junior scientific help to be employed under contracts and cooperative agreements to strengthen the work at research installations in the field, not more than $2,000,000 of the amount appropriated under this head for the previous fiscal year may be used by the Administrator of the Agricultural Research Service in departmental research programs in the current fiscal year, the amount so used to be transferred to and merged with the appropriation otherwise available under "Salaries and expenses, Research".

The service conducts basic and applied research relating to the production, utilization and marketing of agricultural products, research on nutrition and consumer use, and carries out those control and regulatory programs of the Department which involve enforcement of plant and animal quarantine, the control of diseases and pests of animals and plants, and related work.

1. Research—(a) Farm research.—Improved breeding, feeding, and management practices are developed for farm livestock, poultry, and domestic fur animals. Practical methods are sought for control of diseases and parasites affecting them.

Investigations are conducted to improve varieties of food, feed, fiber and other plants and to develop new crops; to improve crop-production practices, including methods to control plant diseases and nematodes; and to develop safe chemical, biological, and other methods for control of harmful pests affecting farm production.

Research is conducted to improve soil management, irrigation, and conservation practices; to study hydrologic problems of agricultural watersheds; to determine the relation of soils to plants, animals, and human nutrition; and to apply engineering principles to improve efficiency and reduce costs of agricultural production.

The research is aimed at the profitable production of an adequate supply of food, feed, fiber, and other agricultural products of desired quality at minimum costs. Attention continues to be given to the production of agricultural products having industrial uses. The proportion of farm research funds going into basic research has steadily increased, and is currently estimated at 47% of the total funds for research. This basic research undergirds the other research efforts.

The 1968 estimates include increases for: staffing, equipping, and operating new and expanded research laboratories and watershed research centers; environmental pollution; research on animal diseases and parasites; grassland restoration problems in the Southwest; improving plant sources of protein; research on remote sensing principles and application techniques in the management of soil and water resources; expanded drainage and salinity control activities; research to improve ornamental plants; and engineering research on mechanical harvesting, insect attractants, low-income rural housing and flood-proofing designs for farm structures.

(b) Utilization, research and development.—Chemical, physical, and biological research is conducted to develop increased industrial uses of farm products, and new and improved foods, feeds, and fabrics; and to develop improved methods for processing agricultural commodities.

The 1968 estimates include amounts for the initial staffing, equipping, and operating of the new Southeastern Regional Laboratory and expansion of existing laboratory facilities authorized in fiscal year 1964, which will be completed in fiscal year 1968 or early in 1969.

(c) Nutrition and consumer use research.—Studies are made of human nutritional requirements, consumer and food economics, and problems in household use of textiles and clothing. The 1968 estimates include amounts for research to assure the most effective use of food sources of protein, calories and fats in diets, and studies to develop family budgets for household equipment.

(d) Marketing research.—Practical answers to problems encountered in moving products from farm to consumer are sought through research. For farm products as they pass through marketing channels, efforts are made to develop safe methods to protect against insect attack, find objective methods to determine quality, reduce losses from waste and spoilage, and improve efficiency in physical handling. The work includes research at each stage of marketing, such as assembly points and storage facilities, and of transportation, at terminal or central markets, and at wholesale and retail markets. The 1968 estimates include funds for the staffing, equipping, and operating new marketing research laboratories.

(e) Coordination of departmental and interdepartmental activities related to pests and their control.—The 1965 appropriation provided $250 thousand for use of the Secretary of Agriculture in collaborating with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of the Interior, and other agencies of the Federal Government on problems related to use of pesticides. The project provides for coordination in development of measures to protect the public health, producers, and resources. The 1968 estimates reflect a proposed transfer of $25 thousand to the Federal Extension Service for development and dissemination of pesticides regulation information to State chemical and pesticides specialists.

(f) Construction of facilities.—The 1968 estimates include $3,037 thousand for planning a grassland restoration laboratory at College Station, Texas, and for construction of a bioscience laboratory at Beltsville, Md. The increase is offset by nonrecurring amounts totaling $11,169 thousand which were provided for planning and construction of facilities in 1967.

(g) Contingencies.—Beginning in 1962, $1 million is available to meet urgent research needs that develop unexpectedly during the year, when such needs cannot be met by redirection of resources from other projects.

2. Plant and animal disease and pest control.—(a) Plant disease and pest control.—Provision is made (1) through port-of-entry inspection to exclude from this country destructive insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and other pests that cause great damage to agricultural crops in other parts of the world; (2) to cooperate with States in eradicating or preventing spread of crop pests that become established in this country; and (3) to assist States in suppressing incipient and emergency outbreaks of crop pests when and where they occur. The 1968 estimates propose increases for pesticide monitoring activities and plant quarantine protection at ports-of-entry because of increased travel and shipping. These increases are offset by a decrease of $500 thousand for boll weevil.

Interceptions of unauthorized plant material.....	401	446	523

(b) Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to exclude communicable diseases of foreign origin from this country; to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics; and to control and eradicate livestock diseases. The estimates for 1968 propose increases for salmonella and trichinosis; more adequate animal inspection and quarantine at ports to reduce hazard of introduction of foreign diseases; eradicating hog cholera; maintaining screw-worm barrier zone; humane care and handling of certain laboratory animals; and strengthening activities under the Virus-Serum-Toxin Act.

The volume of protective activities is indicated by selected examples in the following table (in thousands):

(c) Pesticides regulation.—This activity is concerned with administration of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act, as amended, and related provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. The 1968 estimates propose an increase for strengthening registration and enforcement activities under the act.

(d) Construction of facilities.—The 1968 estimates include funds for construction of facilities for expanded pesticides regulation activities, Beltsville, Md.

Under existing legislation, 1967.—A supplemental appropriation of $1 million is anticipated to provide the total minimum amount required to maintain an effective screw-worm barrier zone from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean.

Under proposed legislation, 1968.—A reduction of $1,536 thousand is anticipated for 1968 under legislation being proposed to place certain plant and animal disease and pest control activities on a self-supporting basis. The proposed legislation would provide proper credit to the appropriation for the services rendered in pesticides registration activities and inspection of certain products imported under restrictions for processing at designated establishments.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)

For payments, in foreign currencies owed to or owned by the United States for market development research authorized by section 104[(a)] (b)(1) and for agricultural and forestry research and other functions related thereto authorized by section 104[(k)] (b)(3) of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1704[(a)] [(k)] (b)(1), (3)), to remain available until expended, [$4,500,000] $15,400,000: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available in addition to other appropriations for these purposes, for payments in the foregoing currencies: Provided further, That funds appropriated herein shall be used for payments in such foreign currencies as the Department determines are needed and can be used most effectively to carry out the purposes of this paragraph: Provided further, That not to exceed $25,000 of this appropriation shall be available for payments in foreign currencies for expenses of employment pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 [(5 U.S.C. 574)] (58 Stat. 742), as amended by [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (15 U.S.C. ¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1966, $4 thousand; 1967, $3 thousand; 1968, $3 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $18,583 thousand; 1966, $16,662 thousand; 1967, $19,387 thousand; 1968, $24,757 thousand.

Foreign currencies, generated by the sale of surplus agricultural commodities under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, are used by the Department for market development research under subsection 104(b)(1) and for agricultural and forestry research under subsection 104(b)(3) of the act. Work is carried on through agreements, in both basic and applied fields, by research institutions and organizations in foreign countries. This research serves to develop new foreign markets and to expand existing markets for agricultural commodities, including cotton, dairy products, fats and oils, grain, feed, livestock and meat, poultry, and fruits and vegetables. It also provides for supplementary research on farm, forest, marketing, utilization, agricultural economics, and human nutrition problems, and for translation and dissemination of foreign language scientific publications. The appropriation proposed for 1968 will be used to purchase only those currencies determined to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States. Total estimated cost in U.S. dollars (charged to regular appropriations) for the initiation and supervision of projects in 1968 is $396 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders 1965, $1,077 thousand (1966 adjustments, -$24 thousand); 1966, $3,895 thousand; 1967, $3,895 thousand; 1968, $3,895 thousand.

The Service administers funds for payments and grants to State agricultural experiment stations and other eligible institutions for the support of research in agriculture, the rural home, the rural community and forestry. This administration involves supervision of the funds, and close advisory relations with the State agricultural experiment stations, schools of forestry and other institutions eligible to receive funds. This agency participates in planning and coordination of research programs among the States and between the States and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

1. Payments to agricultural experiment stations under the Hatch Act.—Grants under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States and Puerto Rico for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community. A program of $54,938 thousand, which represents an increase of $3,825 thousand from 1967, is proposed for 1968.

2. Grants for cooperative forestry research.—These grants are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States and Puerto Rico and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school. The act requires that the Federal funds paid to each institution be matched by funds from non-Federal sources for forestry research. An increase of $500 thousand is proposed.

3. Contracts and grants for scientific research.—These funds are for the support of grants on specific research problems at nonprofit institutions of higher education or nonprofit organizations whose primary purpose is the conduct of such research. Funding is on a competitive basis. Every research proposal selected for funding must be evaluated and classified as outstanding and appropriate to the needs of the designated problem area.

4. Grants for facilities.—These grants to provide additional facilities for research are allocated to State agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States and Puerto Rico. Assistance is available to the States for construction, acquisition, and remodeling of buildings, laboratories, and other capital facilities which are necessary to more effectively conduct research in agriculture and sciences related thereto. The Federal funds are provided on a matching basis.

5. Penalty mail.—Funds to cover the cost of penalty mailings for State agricultural experiment station directors are provided under this appropriation.

6. Federal administration.—A coordinating and review staff is maintained to examine research projects and assist State institutions and Federal agencies.

The planned distribution in 1968 of these payments and grants to the State agricultural experiment stations and other eligible institutions under the above-mentioned programs is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

EXTENSION SERVICE—ContinuedGeneral and special funds—Continued*COOPERATIVE EXTENSION WORK, PAYMENTS AND EXPENSES—CON.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, and related subjects. This educational work takes research results, technological advancements, and situation and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a national educational program for action. Its objective is to provide farm people and others with information and assistance upon which they may make social and economic adjustments necessary for an efficient agricultural industry and improved rural homes and rural life.

1. Payments to States and Puerto Rico.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act for payments to States and Puerto Rico are distributed primarily on the basis of farm and rural population and to a limited degree on the basis of special problems and needs. Funds appropriated under the Agricultural Marketing Act for educational work in marketing are distributed to the States and Puerto Rico on a matching basis under approved projects and on the basis of contracts. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State and county extension workers who work with rural families, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods involved in production, marketing, and family living. They assist local leadership to determine extension programs of work. Work with youth is accomplished largely through 4-H clubs. Funds also provide for Federal program support. Extension agents are paid from Federal, State, and county sources. The increase of $3 million in this item will be distributed on the basis of section 3(c) of the Smith-Lever Act and is composed of (1) an increase of $1.4 million for community resource development programs; (2) $1 million for home economics work with low-income families and 4-H and youth development programs; (3) $500 thousand for educational programs to improve agricultural production efficiency, and (4) $120 thousand for Federal program assistance, administration and coordination. The $120 thousand is shown as an increase in activities under the item Federal Extension Service.

2. Retirement and employees' compensation costs for extension agents.—The increase proposed is required to meet these costs for cooperative extension agents. The mandatory retirement contribution is authorized under Public Law 854, approved July 31, 1956. The employer's contribution to the Federal retirement fund, to match contribution of these agents, is provided by this Federal appropriation. There are an estimated 13,500 cooperative Extension employees who will participate in the retirement system in 1968. An increase of $20.5 thousand added to the present amount of $53.9 thousand provides an amount equal to the benefits received by the cooperative agents to be paid to the employees' compensation fund, as required by Public Law 86-767. An increase of $658 thousand is required to meet the mandatory retirement contribution authorized by Public Law 854.

3. Penalty mail.—Funds to cover the cost of penalty mailings for State extension directors and cooperative extension agents in the States are provided under this appropriation.

4. Federal Extension Service.—The Federal Extension Service provides leadership, counsel, and assistance to the States and Puerto Rico in developing extension programs, improved teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, inservice training for extension personnel, and administrative services. The Federal Extension Service also coordinates the educational activities of other U.S. Department of Agriculture agencies and carries on an extension program in the Virgin Islands in cooperation with the College of the Virgin Islands. The increase requested is $120 thousand to provide the necessary leadership and Federal program support to the States. This represents 4% of a payments to States increase of $3 million.

Farmer Cooperative Service conducts research, advises directly with cooperative leaders and others, and promotes cooperative organization and development through other Federal and State agencies. This work is aimed (1) to help farmers get better prices for their products and reduce operating expenses, (2) to help rural and small-town residents use cooperatives to develop rural resources, (3) to help these cooperatives expand their services and operate more efficiently, and (4) to help all Americans understand the work of these cooperatives.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

The Soil Conservation Service is responsible for various soil and water conservation activities of the Department of Agriculture, including six action programs for which separate appropriations are made, reimbursements from other agencies for technical services performed, trust funds, and miscellaneous accounts involving cooperative agreements with local organizations.

The main purposes of these program operations are to help landowners and operators in making needed land use adjustments; to conserve soil and water resources; to reduce the hazards of floods, sedimentation, and related damages; and to assist in establishing a permanent and economically sound agriculture. Such soil and water conservation treatments also provide for recreational uses of rural lands and the beautification of rural communities. These activities are conducted in cooperation with Federal and State agencies, locally managed conservation districts, and other sponsoring organizations.

The Service provides professional leadership in soil and water conservation and works directly with locally managed conservation districts and sponsors of watershed projects. Local programs and cooperative work plans are designed for the benefit of rural and urban people in their areas.

The Service also furnishes technical services for the Agricultural conservation program; the soil and water conservation loans made by the Farmers Home Administration; the State and county Rural Areas Development committees; and other agencies or local groups having soil and water conservation problems. These interrelated program activities are primarily for the conservation, protection, and improvement of land and water resources for the beneficial uses of all the people.

General and special funds:CONSERVATION OPERATIONS

For necessary expenses for carrying out the provisions of the Act of April 27, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 590a-590f), including preparation of conservation plans and establishment of measures to conserve soil and water (including farm irrigation and land drainage and such special measures as may be necessary to prevent floods and the siltation of reservoirs); operation of conservation nurseries; classification and mapping of soil; dissemination of information; purchase and erection or alteration of permanent buildings; and operation and maintenance of aircraft, [$109,235,000] $113,695,000: Provided, That the cost of any permanent building purchased, erected, or as improved, exclusive of the cost of constructing a water supply or sanitary system and connecting the same to any such building and with the exception of buildings acquired in conjunction with land being purchased for other purposes, shall not exceed $2,500, except for one building to be constructed at a cost not to exceed $25,000 and eight buildings to be constructed or improved at a cost not to exceed $15,000 per building and except that alterations or improvements to other existing permanent buildings costing $2,500 or more may be made in any fiscal year in an amount not to exceed $500 per building: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation shall be available for the construction of any such building on land not owned by the Government: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation may be expended for soil and water conservation operations under the Act of April 27, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 590a-590f) in demonstration projects: Provided further, That this appropriation shall be available for field employment pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 (5 U.S.C. 574; 58 Stat. 742), and not to exceed $5,000 shall be available for employment under [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U.S.C. 55a)] 3109: Provided further, That qualified local engineers may be temporarily employed at per diem rates to perform the technical planning work of the service. Assistance to conservation districts, community groups, and other cooperators consists mainly of the following:

(a) Standard soil surveys and investigations, with interpretations and publications, which provide physical land facts needed for local program development, farm and ranch conservation planning, installation of planned practices, and for use by other Federal, State, and local agencies;

(b) Technical assistance to cooperating farmers and ranchers in the planning of individual conservation programs for orderly land use adjustments and installation of needed conservation treatments; (c) Technical programing, installation services and consultation with those practices and measures provided for in farm and ranch conservation plans;

(d) Technical assistance with community-type group jobs and control measures, including mine-spoil restoration, that can best be solved through coordinated local action; (e) the granting of special equipment to soil conservation districts for use in applying planned conservation practices; (f) water supply forecasts developed from snow surveys in Western States which are useful in making efficient seasonal use of water; (g) the selection and testing of plant materials to determine their suitability for erosion control and conservation purposes; (h) technical assistance to participants in the Agricultural conservation program in establishing specified practices; (i) technical services to participants in other programs involving land use adjustments along with resource improvements; (j) technical assistance in planning and applying the soil and water conservation practices for which loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration; (k) consultation and assistance to local rural areas development committees; and (l) program planning with consultation services in rural areas.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation practices are planned together and in relation to each other so as to have a well balanced conservation program in each district and for each farm or ranch. Both vegetative and structural measures are used in accordance with the needs of the land for conservation treatment and improvement. Each plan reflects the decisions of the cooperating farmer or rancher as to how he will use and treat his land.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service explain the various soil conditions, develop alternative uses and treatments with each cooperator, help to evaluate the costs and returns of conservation farming, and furnish assistance in applying the needed treatments. Cooperating landowners and operators are providing more than half the cost of practices and measures installed in district programs. Local agencies and private individuals also furnish about one-third of the total installation services used to apply soil and water conservation practices in districts throughout the country.

The Department cooperates with the States and other agencies in installing works of improvement in small watersheds to reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion, and for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water. It provides loans to local organizations to help them finance their share of the costs of certain works of improvement. The Department also cooperates with other agencies in making surveys and investigations of watersheds of rivers and other waterways as the basis for the development of coordinated programs.

1. Watershed works of improvement.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install the watershed works of improvement for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development features specified in the work plans.

(a) Pilot demonstration watersheds.—Sixty-two pilot watersheds were started in 1954 in cooperation with local sponsors under authority of the act of April 27, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 590a-f), to demonstrate and evaluate the effectiveness of works of improvement installed in small watersheds for watershed protection and flood prevention. As of June 30, 1966, work had been discontinued in 8 projects and completed as planned in 50 except for project evaluation studies which will be underway until 1970 in some of these. The following table shows the current status of the pilot watershed projects. Obligations for project evaluation studies are not reflected in the table subsequent to 1959 as these costs were determined not properly chargeable to projects. Obligations for such studies amount to $103 thousand in 1966 and are estimated at $100 thousand each year in 1967 and 1968.

(b) Public Law 566 watersheds.—After local sponsoring organizations have developed watershed work plans with the Department's assistance or with State and local resources, and the projects have been approved as suitable for Federal participation (projects involving an estimated Federal contribution in excess of $250 thousand for construction or any single structure having a capacity in excess of 2,500 acre-feet require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specified works of improvement. On non-Federal lands local sponsoring organizations must contract for construction work, operate and maintain the projects, and in the case of multiple-purpose structures, bear a share of construction costs. In addition, local organizations must acquire water rights and furnish land, easements, and rights-of-way for all structural measures except that the Federal Government may pay up to one-half the cost of land, easements, and rights-of-way allocated to public fish and wildlife and recreational developments. Federal agencies do this work on Federal lands which they administer with appropriate contributions being made by the local people who receive benefits.

Preconstruction land treatment and engineering services are furnished to all approved projects before they are advanced to the construction stage. During the preconstruction stage, surveys and investigations are made and detailed designs, specifications, and engineering cost estimates are prepared for construction of structural works; areas are delineated where easements are required, and technical services are furnished for accelerating planning and application of land treatment measures if provided for in the watershed work plan.

The project construction stage begins with the execution of the first project agreement for construction of works of improvement. Under a project agreement the local sponsoring organization agrees to construct a segment of the project which may consist of an individual or an inter-related group of structures. The agreement obligates the Department to furnish its share of the construction cost. Payments are made to the local contracting organization in accordance with the project agreement as the work progresses. Engineering and other services are provided for the preparation of contracts and inspection of construction. Technical assistance in planning and installing land treatment measures is continued as called for in the watershed work plan.

The following tabulation shows the status of Public Law 566 projects and amounts obligated or estimated to be obligated. The table does not reflect minor obligations for project evaluation studies ($180 thousand cumulatively as of June 30, 1966) for balances remaining in the undistributed equipment account ($491 thousand cumulatively as of June 30, 1966) or for advances for future water supplies ($44 thousand cumulatively as of June 30, 1966).

The 1967 program contemplates initiation of construction in 80 watershed projects, involving 1967 estimated obligations of $17.7 million and a total Federal cost of $66.3 million. The 1968 estimate provides for starting about 80 projects with 1968 obligations of $17.4 million and total Federal cost of $80 million.

2. Loans and related expense.—Loans are made to local organizations to finance the local share of the cost of installing planned works of improvement in approved watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available. Of the 1968 estimate for watershed protection not to exceed $5 million is to be available for such purpose together with the unobligated balance of loan funds carried over from prior years, if any. The estimate does not forecast any unobligated balance in loan funds at the end of the fiscal year 1967 or 1968.

The following tabulation shows the status of the watershed protection loan program and amounts obligated or estimated to be obligated for loans to local sponsoring organizations of watershed projects.

3. River basin program development and coordination.—Section 6 of Public Law 566, 83d Congress, as amended, authorizes the Department to cooperate with other Federal, State, and local agencies in making surveys and investigations of the watersheds of rivers and other waterways as a basis for the development of coordinated water and related land resource programs. The Department currently is participating in cooperative surveys and investigations in river basins with the Corps of Engineers and other interested Federal and State agencies. The Department is represented on the Interagency Committee on Water Resources which was established to coordinate water and related land resource activities of Federal departments and agencies. The Department also maintains representation on various river basin interagency committees. These serve as points of contact and coordination between representatives of this Department and of other Federal departments and agencies and the States in these basin areas. They keep all concerned mutually informed of the activities of the member agencies and facilitate matters of interagency coordination. During fiscal year 1967 the Department maintained such representation on committees in the Arkansas-White-Red, Columbia, Missouri, Northeast, Pacific Southwest and Southeast areas.

The Department is represented on and provides staff services to the Water Resources Council which recently was formed in accordance with Public Law 89-80, the Water Resources Planning Act.

This Department and the Departments of the Army, the Interior, and Health, Education, and Welfare have jointly considered river basin surveys and investigations currently needed to attain the goal for surveying the river basins of the Nation which was proposed by the Senate Select Committee on National Resources and recommended by the President. Based on this joint consideration, this estimate includes $3,935 thousand to continue these interagency comprehensive surveys during fiscal year 1968 and to start two new ones; $3,286 thousand to continue other cooperative river basin surveys begun in prior years and to start five additional surveys in cooperation with States; and $1,098 thousand for inter-regional economic analyses and interagency coordination activities. The estimate also includes $100 thousand for flood hazard analyses.

1. Works of improvement.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention and for furthering the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water in the 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares in the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development facilities.

The Department furnishes additional technical and in certain instances financial assistance to landowners to accelerate planning and installation of land treatment measures for runoff retardation, sediment control, and water management. Local sponsoring organizations must furnish all land, easements, and rights-of-way, water rights, and the entire cost of works of improvement for nonagricultural water management measures, except those for fish and wildlife development and recreation, and operate and maintain all completed works of improvement.

2. Loans and related expense.—Loans are made to local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of planned works of improvement. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available. Of the 1968 estimate for flood prevention, not to exceed $200 thousand is to be available for such purpose, together with any unobligated balances of loan funds carried over from prior years. About $2.5 million is available for this purpose during 1967, a significant portion of which will not be required during that year.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $23,512 thousand; 1966, $26,318 thousand; 1967, $27,000 thousand; 1968, $26,385 thousand.

This program provides cost-sharing assistance and technical services to participating farmers and ranchers in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans for their land. It is a voluntary program which supplements other conservation programs of the Department in 395 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Cost-sharing contracts with individual landowners extend over periods of 3 to 10 years and include a plan of conservation operations for each farm or ranch.

A time schedule for installing the cost-share practices is included as a part of each contract. The primary purpose of this program is to achieve needed land use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability for each farm or ranch unit where the work is installed.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

Program participants:	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
New contracts during year.....	3,783	3,932	3,900
Active contracts end of year.....	17,047	19,000	20,600

The needs for technical help increase over a period of years as more participants enter the program. This increasing workload is in two parts; namely: (a) Assistance to new participants in preparing long-term contracts; and (b) installation services in accordance with the terms and period of time specified in each contract. As of June 30, 1966, a total of 17,047 farmers and ranchers were cooperating in this cost-share program. Cooperating landowners finance the entire cost of installing recurring management type practices on their land and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices.

Program regulations provide that the cost-share rate offered in any contract shall not exceed 80 percent of the average cost of installing each eligible practice within the designated county. The rate of cost-share obligations varies among practices and between States due to differences in average costs for installation. Federal cost-sharing is further limited to $2,500 for the construction, enlarging, or deepening of any dam, pit, or pond for irrigation water; and to not more than $2,500 for irrigation practices in any one contract, or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation, whichever is larger. There is also a cost-sharing limitation of $25 thousand for any one contract.

Each participant who signs a Great Plains program contract is responsible for installing his plan of operations as scheduled; and the Department is committed to furnish the necessary technical help needed for design, layout, and other services with all practices included in each plan. Cooperating farmers and ranchers are encouraged to make use of other available assistance under local, State and Federal programs as a means of further improving their land and water resources.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $61 thousand; 1966, $203 thousand; 1967, $739 thousand; 1968, $1,139 thousand.

The Department cooperates with other Federal agencies, States, local units of government, groups and individuals in developing and carrying out programs and plans for resource conservation and development on private lands and shares in the cost of installing planned works of improvement, when justified as a public need. Loans are provided to local sponsoring organizations and to individuals, when needed to help them finance their share of the cost of certain measures which are in the public interest.

Technical assistance is provided in each project area approved for planning to help sponsoring organizations prepare overall work plans for resource conservation and development. Project measures planned contribute to improvement in the economy of the area and to needed land use adjustments.

It is estimated that work plans will have been completed and operations begun in 26 projects by June 30, 1967. An additional 8 project areas out of a total of 15 to be authorized for planning assistance are expected to begin operations in 1968. This will bring the total in operations to 34 by the end of 1968.

Technical assistance is provided in each project authorized for operations to help cooperating groups and individuals plan and install land treatment measures for which no cost-shares are paid from this appropriation; to assist in design and supervision of installation of project measures; and, to assist in preparing plans for resource development and economic improvement within project areas.

The main workload factors in 1968 include:

(a) Assistance to local sponsors in developing suitable work plans in 15 proposed new project areas.

(b) Operations in 34 project areas for which work plans will have been completed.

(c) Acceleration of works of improvement due to additional State and local funds expected to be made available.

Field work under this program consists, primarily, of planning, designing, and supervision of installation of project measures and conservation practices the purpose of which is to develop or improve the economic use of natural resources. This includes recreation facilities and income-producing enterprises where needed and based on proper land use. Investigations, surveys, and planning are prerequisite to the operating phase of this program. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help plan and install project measures as specified in work plans.

Local sponsoring organizations are expected to provide about $16 million of non-Federal funds for project operations during 1968. This is an average of $450,000 per operating project. Technical services to be provided by the Soil Conservation Service will be about 9% of the non-Federal funds and about 6% of the total program cost expected in 1968.

Agricultural economics research in the Department is administered by the Economic Research Service. The results of the research program are relied upon by (a) producers, dealers, importers and exporters as aids in planning the most profitable adjustments in their operations, (b) Government agencies in formulating and administering agricultural programs, and (c) Congress in considering agricultural legislation.

1. Farm economics.—Research is conducted to measure, appraise, and analyze on a continuing basis, economic changes that occur in farming and in the use of human and natural rural resources and to indicate needed adjustments.

Research on the economics of farm production includes the economics of organization and management of farms; adjustments in production to prospective demands, and changing technologies; appraisals of costs and returns on farms representative of important types, sizes and locations, and the appraisal of costs of producing important commodities; development of measures of farm output and productivity; problems of farm size and capital requirements; financing of farm enterprises; and appraisal of alternative agricultural production policies and programs.

Natural resources economics is concerned with the economics of use, conservation, development, management and control of natural resources and their relationship to economic activity. It includes economic analysis of land and water resources, resource institutions, and the economic and social conditions affecting use of resources.

Economic development is focused upon the well-being and opportunities of rural people. It includes a broad research program on economic development of rural areas, opportunities and employment of rural people and factors affecting them, including local governments and other organizations. Special attention is given to the poor who are found in heavy concentrations among rural people.

The increase requested for 1968 would permit intensified work on the labor management problems of agriculture, development of data and analyses on land supplies and uses, research on flood plain occupancy, and studies to measure change and progress in the rural economy.

2. Marketing economics.—This activity covers economic aspects of marketing farm products, including the nature of farmers' bargaining power; potentials for new products and new uses; market structure, costs and margins; the economic effects of school lunch, special milk, food stamp, and direct food distribution programs.

3. Domestic and foreign economic analysis.—Domestic economic analysis is concerned with identifying, measuring, and analyzing: (1) the factors affecting demand, supply, and price of agricultural commodities; (2) relationships between agriculture and the national economy; (3) farm income and the income of the farm population; (4) demand and consumption of farm products; (5) long-term projections of economic growth and demand for farm products; and (6) historical developments in the policies, programs, and organization of the Department.

Foreign economic analysis includes trade studies and investigation of supply-demand relationships. The trade and market studies focus on the problems of developing foreign markets and the effect of these developments on U.S. agricultural production. Research is carried on for more than 100 countries around the world, focusing on the forces affecting supply, demand, and trade in farm products, and their impact on U.S. agricultural exports.

The increase requested for 1968 would provide for more intensive work on supply-demand-price relationships, for improvement in analyses of the farm income situation, for expanded research on factors affecting foreign trade, and for improved intelligence on needs for food aid and their impact on American agriculture.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $497 thousand (1966 adjustments, $3 thousand); 1966, $321 thousand; 1967, $321 thousand; 1968, $321 thousand.

The Service administers programs relating to crop and livestock estimates and statistical research and service. The statistical and economic data developed on food and agriculture are essential to farmers, processors, and handlers in making production and marketing decisions, and to legislators, administrators and others concerned with developing and administering agricultural programs. The basic facts provided by this service are also essential to economic analyses and other agricultural research programs.

1. Crop and livestock estimates.—This service provides the official estimates on the Nation's agriculture, including acreage, yield, and production of crops, stocks, and value of farm commodities, numbers and inventory value of livestock items. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices. Data on approximately 150 crop and livestock products are covered in some 700 reports issued each year. The activity is conducted through 43 State offices serving 50 States, most of which are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide a considerable volume of additional data which would not be collected or made available from Federal funds. During 1966 cooperating States expended an estimated 2.3 million of their own funds on these associated State programs. A comparison of activity data for 1965 and 1966, including work performed under cooperative arrangements is as follows:

	1965 actual	1966 preliminary
Separate mailings of inquiry forms, average per field office.....	396	397
Total questionnaires handled:
Number distributed.....	9,940,000	9,380,000
Number of returns tabulated.....	2,980,000	2,840,000
Number of objective survey contacts (measurements and interviews).....	156,000	176,000
Number of official reports issued, all offices.....	10,300	10,500
Copies of reports distributed.....	15,000,000	15,300,000
Publications distributed.....	3,490,000	3,420,000
Special requests for information answered by field offices.....	73,900	67,300

Increases for 1968 would be used to plan expenditure surveys for revision of the parity index; to provide inventory data on rice and sorghum grain stocks; for price research; and to improve the agency's capability in gathering, processing, and disseminating data by more extensive use of electronic equipment.

2. Statistical research and service.—This work includes review of all statistical forms, survey plans, and reporting and recordkeeping requirements originating in the Department and requiring Bureau of the Budget approval; liaison for coordination of statistics within the Department and with other statistical agencies; development of new and improved methods and techniques, and providing technical consulting services to other agencies of the Department; research on and development of sampling, forecasting, and other basic statistical techniques and methods to improve the crop and livestock estimates of the Department; use of and consultation on automatic data processing to develop and adopt this medium for improving the accuracy and timeliness of crop and livestock estimates; and conduct of special surveys relating to the marketing of agricultural products. A comparison of activity data for 1965 and 1966 is as follows:

Statistical forms—reports (Federal Reports Act): Departmental clearance and review for submission to Bureau of the Budget.....	455	503
Improvement of crop and livestock estimating methods: Number of research projects.....	12	11
Special surveys: Number of research projects.....	10	10

The 1968 budget reflects a decrease of $543,500 as a result of the completion in 1967 of the nonrecurring conversion and reprogramming costs associated with the purchase of a large-scale computer.

These activities provide consumer protection through inspection for wholesomeness of meat and poultry products. They assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities through various marketing and regulatory services. These activities are continuing to increase and become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the market structure undergoes dramatic changes. The marketing changes include such practices as concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

1. Market news service.—This service provides current information on supply, movement, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. This day-to-day market information enables American farmers to determine where and when to sell and at what price. The information is collected and disseminated at year-round and seasonal offices maintained in more than 130 cities and towns, often with local and other support and

2. Inspection, grading, classing, and standardization—

(a) Meat inspection.—Federal meat inspection is required for all meat and meat products moving in interstate and foreign commerce to assure a clean and wholesome meat supply for human consumption, free from adulteration, and truthfully labeled. The work includes inspection of animals, carcasses, meat, and meat-food products at various stages of handling and processing. Measures are enforced to assure informative labeling, and meats imported or exported are inspected.

The estimates for 1968 include an increase to provide for inspection of additional plants and expanded facilities in presently inspected plants.

The volume of inspections and examinations is indicated by examples given in the following table:

MEAT INSPECTION

	1965 actual	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Number of establishments covered	1,775	1,931	2,064	2,157

Inspection of processed meat and meat-food products (million pounds)	19,932	19,840	20,081	20,335

(b) Poultry inspection.—Inspection of poultry meat and poultry meat products for wholesomeness is provided pursuant to the Poultry Products Inspection Act of 1957. All poultry processed in plants shipping in interstate or foreign commerce is required to be inspected both before and after slaughter. Birds found to be unfit for human consumption are condemned and removed from channels of trade.

The increase for 1968 provides for inspection of an anticipated increased volume of poultry and poultry products. The volume of work performed is indicated in examples given below:

POULTRY INSPECTION

Plants under inspection June 30	1,001	1,008	1,015
Operating lines under inspection June 30	1,421	1,477	1,535

(c) Other inspection, grading, classing, and standardization.—Nationally uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of produce to promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. Standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party, and generally for a fee. Approximately 75% of the total cost of this work in 1966 was offset by fees and other revenue shown principally under Consumer and Marketing Service trust funds in part II of the Budget appendix.

Legislation is being proposed to amend the U.S. Grain Standards Act in order to meet the requirements of the modern grain merchandising system and to collect fees which will cover the USDA cost of inspection under the act. Legislation is also being proposed to (1) amend the Tobacco Inspection Act and the Cotton Statistics and Estimates Act to recover in fees the full cost of the special benefit portion of the service; and (2) repeal the Naval Stores and Wool Standards Acts resulting in a reduction of $9,795 thousand in appropriated funds. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following tables:

3. Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of regulatory laws such as Standard Container, U.S. Warehouse, and Federal Seed Acts to assure fair play in the marketplace to protect producers and handlers of agricultural commodities from financial loss due to careless or fraudulent marketing practices and to preserve free and open competition in the marketing of farm products. Assistance is also provided to farmers and others in obtaining and maintaining equitable and reasonable transportation rates and services on farm products and supplies. The Cotton Research and Promotion Act, approved July 13, 1966, is being administered under this item. This law is designed to improve the competitive position and expand markets for cotton through a program of self-assessment by cotton producers.

The decrease for 1968 is a net amount consisting of a decrease of $250 thousand for the referendum costs of the Cotton Research and Promotion Act and an increase of $102 thousand to provide for more effective administration of the U.S. Warehouse Act.

Legislation is being proposed to (1) amend the U.S. Warehouse Act to recover the full cost of administering this act, (2) amend the Federal Seed Act to recover a portion of the cost of the service, and (3) to repeal the Naval Stores Act, the Tobacco Seed and Plant Exportation Act, and the two Standard Container Acts resulting in a total reduction of $1,731 thousand for 1968.

The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

In 1966 this work was carried on in 44 States and 154 work projects.

This program is aimed at assuring fair play in the marketing of livestock, meat, and poultry. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition for livestock, meats and poultry, so as to bring to farmers and ranchers the true market value of their livestock and poultry. Members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices of competitors. Consumers are also protected from unfair practices in the marketing of meats and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which could unduly increase meat and poultry prices.

The increase for 1968 would be used to expand the Department's activities in the areas of (1) investigations, audits, and reviews in the livestock, meat and poultry industries; (2) maintenance of fair and competitive practices in the livestock and poultry industries; (3) scales and weighing investigations and tests; and (4) packer livestock procurement and meat merchandising practices.

Payments are made on a matching fund basis to State marketing agencies for carrying out specifically approved marketing service programs designed to bring about improved marketing. Under this activity, marketing specialists work with farmers, marketing firms, and agencies in solving marketing problems and in putting to use marketing research results.

This program covers such projects as methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products, ways of reducing marketing costs, expanding outlets for surplus products, the collection and dissemination of special State and local market information and statistics, and improving the organizational structure of the marketing system. Through this cooperative approach, the Federal Government's leadership and money are coupled with State resources and experience to aid in the solution of the most urgent local and area marketing problems.

In 1967, 44 States are conducting about 166 projects under this program.

1. Cash payments to States.—This program is designed to increase the consumption of fluid milk by children in nonprofit schools of high school grade and under, child-care centers, summer camps and similar nonprofit institutions.

Funds are provided under letters of credit to State agencies to reimburse eligible participants for a part of the cost of the fluid milk consumed. Based upon available funds, and prior year participation, initial reserves are established for each State for reimbursement payments. In especially needy schools, reimbursement payments may be made for the full cost of this milk for children who are unable to pay.

In 1966 over 3.0 billion half pints of fluid milk were consumed by children—over six times the quantity in 1955, the first year of operation of the program. This represents more than 2½% of the total nonfarm consumption of fluid milk in the United States.

1. Food assistance, in the form of both funds and food, is provided to the States in serving lunches to school children. Each State's portion of the funds available is determined by a statutory formula. The formula takes into account the participation rate in the State, and the relationship between the per capita income of the State and the average U.S. per capita income. In addition, there is provision for special cash assistance to needy schools serving free or reduced price lunches.

The increase for 1968 will provide for normal growth in the regular program, and for expanding the special assistance program to reach approximately 450,000 needy children.

The program is operated under an agreement entered into by the State educational agency and the Department of Agriculture. Funds are advanced under letters of credit to State agencies for use in reimbursing participating schools. Schools make application to the State agency and if accepted are reimbursed for a part of the food cost of each lunch served. In 1966, the States contributed to this program $1,189 million, most of which came from payments by children. This was far in excess of the statutory matching requirement of $3.00 for each Federal dollar of cash payment.

This appropriation is also used to purchase food for distribution to the schools. Transfers are made to this appropriation from the fund Removal of Surplus Agricultural Commodities for the purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities and other foods. Further, commodities acquired under price support and surplus removal programs are available to the schools. The volume of surplus commodities distributed to schools, however, depends upon market conditions.

The program during the peak month in 1966 provided lunches to over 36% of the approximately 49.7 million schoolchildren in the country. The number of lunches served increased approximately 6.94% over 1965. Participation in the program in November 1965 reached 18 million children in 70,597 schools and an appreciable increase is expected in 1967 and 1968.

During 1966 about $965 million worth of agricultural commodities and other foods were used in the program. Over 18% of this amount represented commodities contributed under section 6 of the School Lunch Act and the Federal surplus removal and price support program. About 82% of the food used in the program was purchased by the schools through local suppliers.

Participation in the program from 1965 through 1968 is as follows:

Number of schools (month of peak participation—April).....	70,721	71,162	71,500	72,000

2. Pilot school breakfast program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorizes a school breakfast program on a pilot basis to assist States through grants-in-aid and other means to initiate, maintain, or expand nonprofit breakfast programs in schools.

The funds requested will provide for expanding the pilot program to reach approximately 290,000 children in schools drawing attendance from areas in which poor economic conditions exist and where a substantial portion of the children enrolled travel long distances.

3. Nonfood assistance program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorizes a program to assist the States through grants-in-aid and other means to supply schools in low-income areas with food service equipment. The funds requested would be sufficient to provide equipment for approximately 600 needy schools at an average cost of about $10 thousand per school.

4. State administrative expenses.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 provides for advances to each State educational agency for administrative expenses. These funds are to be used for supervising and giving technical assistance to the local school districts for the administration of additional activities undertaken by them to extend the school lunch, school breakfast, and nonfood assistance programs to reach more needy children.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $381 thousand; 1966, $783 thousand; 1967, $783 thousand; 1968, $783 thousand.

This program aims at making more effective use of our food abundance and at providing additional nutrition to those in need. The program is inaugurated at the request of State welfare agencies. These agencies are responsible for household certification and coupon issuance functions.

The Department determines the allotment of coupons for each household unit, including the portion to be purchased, based on income, food needs, and other factors. The participant's normal food expenditure is maintained by the purchase requirement. The supplemental or bonus coupons, provided free-of-charge, permit the family to upgrade its diet.

Coupons are issued by a non-Federal issuing office. Cash paid for the coupons by participants is deposited periodically in a designated Federal depository. Food stores receive cash or credit for the coupons from any commercial bank, which must accept them at face value. The coupons then flow through regular banking channels to the Federal Reserve banks where they are redeemed and subsequently destroyed.

The $139.5 million available in 1967 will finance the program in areas in operation on July 1, 1966, and permit progressive expansion to reach a total of about 2 million persons by June 30, 1967. The increase for 1968 would provide for financing, on a full-year basis, the program level expected by June 30, 1967, and for further expansion in 1968. Total participation by the end of fiscal year 1968 will be dependent upon the time at which new areas are brought into the program and the number of participants in each of the new areas. However, if new areas are opened on a progressive basis beginning in the fall of the year, it is possible that total participation by the end of the year could reach 2,500,000. This would be an increase of 500,000 above the total expected at the end of fiscal year 1967.

The following table reflects coverage, participation, and costs for fiscal years 1962 (the first full year of operation of the pilot program) 1966, and estimates for 1967 and 1968 (dollars in millions):

License fees are deposited in this special fund and are used to meet costs of administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities and the Produce Agency Acts (7

U.S.C. 491-497, 499a-499s). The law provides that annual license fees may be set at a maximum of $50. The fee is presently $42.

These acts are intended to assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (a) informal agreements between the two parties, (b) formal decisions involving payment of reparation awards, and (c) suspension or revocation of license and/or publication of the facts. There were 21,250 licenses in effect on June 30, 1966, a decrease of 492 from 1965 due to the trend in industry to fewer but larger dealers. During 1966, 2,343 informal reparation complaints were handled.

Under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U.S.C. 612c), an amount equal to 30% of customs receipts collected during each calendar year (except for an amount equal to 30% of such receipts collected on fishery products transferred to the Department of Interior to encourage the distribution of fishery products), plus unused balances up to $300 million are available for expanding domestic and foreign market outlets for farm commodities. As provided in recent appropriation acts, transfers have been made from this fund primarily to the school lunch program for the purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities and the special milk program to partially cover the cost of milk served to school children. Section 32 funds are also authorized for the administration of marketing agreements and orders. The basic legislation provides that funds devoted to any one commodity or product thereof must not exceed 25% of funds available. It also provides that the funds must be devoted principally to perishable agricultural commodities other than those receiving price support under title II of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended. It has been determined that this provision can be legally satisfied by setting aside or reserving the principal portion of section 32 funds for the use of perishable nonbasic agricultural commodities.

1. Commodity program payments are of four types: (a) Direct purchases are donated to the school lunch program, pre-school training programs, charitable institutions serving needy persons, and persons certified by welfare as eligible for relief; (b) Diversion payments enable processors to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market, divert them to by-products and new uses, and sell them at prices comparable to competing products, thus creating new markets for surplus commodities; (c) Export payments enable exporters to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market and sell them on the world market at competitive world prices; (d) Production payments, none of which were made in 1966, help to reestablish farmers' purchasing power. During the past 2 years assistance under these programs was given to the following commodity groups (in millions of dollars):

Dairy products		25.0	39.6
Eggs and poultry		5.2	9.9
Fats and oils		5.1	18.0
Fruits and vegetables		5.7	11.2
Grains		2.2	2.1
Livestock products		170.9	22.6
Peanut butter		12.5	12.0
Miscellaneous5	1.5
Total		227.1	116.9

The use of section 32 program funds is contingent upon marketing conditions. The estimates for both 1967 and 1968 reflect the foreseeable needs for perishables and other activities regularly financed with section 32 funds. If troublesome surpluses not now foreseen should develop, steps will be taken to use additional available funds for their removal or diversion as conditions might warrant.

Since it is not possible to determine what commodities will be surplus in the future, it is not feasible to estimate the distribution of the commodity program purchases for 1968.

2. Surplus removal operating expenses occur mainly in connection with purchasing, exporting, and diverting surplus commodities and in distributing section 32 and Commodity Credit Corporation commodities to eligible outlets. Distribution in 1966, including that under section 6 of the National School Lunch Act, is summarized below (in millions):

In cooperation with the food trade, press and radio, greater consumption of abundant foods is encouraged. In 1966 the monthly plentiful foods list contained an average of 7 foods, and 7 national and 20 area, State, and local drives were conducted.

3. Marketing agreements and orders are put into effect upon request of producers or handlers after hearings and investigations, and approval by producers (and handlers in case of marketing agreements). They help to stabilize prices and benefit producers and consumers by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Administration at the local level is financed by assessments upon handlers. On June 30, 1966, there were 73 orders in effect for milk, 47 orders and 1 agreement covering tree fruits, nuts, and vegetables, and 1 order for shade-grown tobacco. The expenses of advisory committees established to advise the Secretary, public hearings, referenda to determine producer sentiment and other developmental work as authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1961 is also financed under this project. Legislation will be requested to provide for payment of approximately $1.5 million of the Federal administrative costs of this program by producers and handlers.

The Foreign Agricultural Service helps American agriculture to maintain and expand foreign markets for its products and reports foreign developments as a guide to American agricultural production, policies, and programs.

The agency helps to develop foreign markets for U.S. farm products through aggressive market promotion under special export programs and through active work to remove international trade barriers that inhibit export sales.

The agency maintains a worldwide agricultural intelligence and reporting service that enables American agriculture to carry out its production, policies, and programs in the context of world developments. This is done through a continuous program of analyzing and reporting foreign agricultural production, markets, and policies.

1. International trade.—The Service directs and coordinates Department responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations, utilizing authority of the Trade Expansion Act. It identifies and seeks to reduce foreign barriers to U.S. agricultural exports. It continuously examines and reports on developments in foreign trade policies which affect U.S. agricultural trade and operations and recommends courses of action.

The Service recommends Department positions and participates in negotiations on trade agreements and international commodity agreements. It continuously reviews and reports trade regulations of countries signatory to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade as such regulations affect the movement of U.S. farm products in world trade.

It administers a program of import controls in accordance with section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act as amended, and is responsible for administering any import controls established under the new beef import control legislation of 1964.

2. Agricultural attachés.—The Service maintains agricultural attachés at 60 foreign posts who assist in the development of markets abroad for U.S. agricultural commodities, working closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups. They maintain continuous contacts with foreign governments in the interest of obtaining more favorable import treatment for American farm products. They carry out a comprehensive schedule of reporting foreign agricultural production, marketing, and trade policy developments as a means of keeping U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

3. Export programs.—The Service carries out export programs (a) to expand commercial sales of all U.S. farm products in world markets and (b) under the Public Law 480 program, to sell and ship U.S. farm products to less developed countries under long-term dollar credit sales and under foreign currency sales. About three-fourths of U.S. agricultural exports are commercial sales for dollars. The Service works with 45 U.S. agricultural producer and trade groups in over 70 countries in carrying out commercial sales promotion programs under cooperative agreements. Such programs are jointly financed. Contributions from the Service come from foreign currencies received in payment for commodities sold under title I of Public Law 480.

About one-fourth of U.S. agricultural exports move under Public Law 480 programs, largely sales for foreign currencies and credit sales for dollars. The Service develops these sales agreements with governments of friendly foreign countries and with private trade entities. The Service is responsible for export shipment of the commodities and for assurance that such commodities actually are received and utilized in the importing countries. Also the Service is responsible for initiating and programing contracts involving the donation of surplus food commodities made available to voluntary and inter-governmental agencies that operate in over 100 countries of the world.

4. Commodity programs.—Information essential to domestic planning and to foreign marketing of specific U.S. farm commodities is obtained, analyzed, and made available to U.S. farm and trade groups and to Government. Foreign agricultural competition similarly is analyzed and reported. Marketing programs, in which producers, exporters, and Government officials participate, are developed to maintain and expand the foreign market for U.S. farm products. Assistance is given to U.S. trade representatives in negotiations with foreign officials. Assistance is given to American exporters and foreign importers to bring them together under conditions favorable to trade.

5. Barter and stockpiling.—The Service, in cooperation with other Government agencies, conducts a barter program designed to utilize agricultural commodities, in lieu of dollars, in acquiring from other countries, goods, materials, equipment, and services required by other Government agencies and for the national and supplemental stockpiles.

6. General sales management.—The Service administers a general sales program to develop export sales and related pricing policies and programs. The program includes price and quality review. Foreign data such as prices, stocks, and rail, truck, barge, and ocean freight rates and other market information is collected for use in program development. Information concerning prices and other sales terms, sales programs, and commodity availabilities is furnished to U.S. exporters, foreign importers, and foreign government officials.

Market development projects.—Foreign currencies generated by the sale of agricultural commodities under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, as well as foreign currencies acquired by the United States from other sources, are used by the Foreign Agricultural Service to develop new foreign markets and expand existing markets for U.S. agricultural commodities, including cotton, dairy products, fats and oils, grain, feed, livestock and meat, poultry, fruits and vegetables, and tobacco.

The type of market development projects being carried out include sales promotion campaigns, trade fairs and exhibits, nutrition demonstrations, and market analyses. In 1968 it is planned that the unobligated balance brought forward in this appropriation will be used to purchase those currencies necessary to carry on the program. Dollar funds for use in other countries are included in the appropriation "Salaries and expenses," Foreign Agricultural Service.

INTERNATIONAL AGRICULTURAL DEVELOPMENT SERVICE

The Service administers the Department's responsibilities in the agricultural phases of the foreign economic assistance programs. This includes direction of the Department's activities under agreement with AID, particularly in agricultural assistance and training programs for foreign areas. It maintains relationships with international and U.S. organizations, including the land-grant institutions, farm organizations, foundations, and other agricultural groups to utilize the scientific and institutional competence of American agriculture in carrying out such programs. The Service is financed entirely with funds allocated from the Agency for International Development.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $8 thousand (1966 adjustments, -$2 thousand); 1966, $4 thousand; 1967, $4 thousand; 1968, $4 thousand.

The major objective of the Commodity Exchange Authority, in the enforcement of the Commodity Exchange Act, is to protect the pricing and hedging services of the commodity futures markets. These services are widely used by farmers, merchandisers, and processors. To carry out its enforcement objectives, the Commodity Exchange Authority works to maintain fair trading practices and competitive pricing on commodity exchanges, and to prevent price manipulation, cheating, fraud, and abusive acts and practices in commodity transactions. Enforcement of the act includes supervision over 17 commodity exchanges designated as contract markets, approximately 400 brokerage firms registered as futures commission merchants, and about 770 registered floor brokers operating on the exchanges. Trading in agricultural commodities on regulated futures markets reached an alltime record volume in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1966. It was the fourth successive year in which commodity trading exceeded the record set in each of the previous years. Futures trading in the 15 commodities regulated by CEA in fiscal 1966 increased 4 percent to 14.5 million transactions, valued at $72 billion. Increased trading was stimulated by a reduction in stocks of farm commodities, increased domestic utilization, and growing demands from abroad. These factors contributed to mounting speculative activity in most commodities. The markets were also characterized by record use of hedging facilities. The high level of activity in fiscal year 1966 is continuing into the present year.

1. Licensing and auditing of brokerage houses.—This consists of (a) prevention of the misuse of customers' funds by the analysis of financial statements of futures commission merchants and the periodic audits of their books and records; and (b) annual registration of futures commission merchants and floor brokers.

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of national, commodity, State, and county offices.

The commodity offices and the data processing center in Kansas City play an important role in administering price support programs and the field operations stemming from producer loan and purchase agreements, inventory management, and merchandising activities.

The State committees are in general administrative charge of all programs carried out in their respective States. Within the framework of national policy, they determine the policies to be followed and direct the adaptation of national programs to the State.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees are responsible for the local administration of programs. They carry out all functions dealing directly with farmers. The elected county committee is in charge of the county office.

The programs and activities carried out by this Service include: agricultural conservation, acreage allotment and marketing quota, Sugar Act, conservation reserve, wheat diversion, feed grain, cropland conversion, cropland adjustment, Wool Act, bin storage structures, and price support and related programs, and service charges to producers.

The activities carried out by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service fall within three major categories:

1. Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and the price support programs and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the price support program have an important impact on the national and, to a lesser extent, the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate even more effective programs.

2. Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and price support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including: (a) developing program regulations and procedures, (b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs, (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms, (d) establishing individual farm allotments, (e) establishing proportionate shares for sugar farms, when necessary, (f) notifying producers of allotments, proportionate shares, productivity indexes, and payment rates, (g) determining farm marketing allocations, (h) handling appeals, (i) determining county normal yields, (j) conducting referendums and certifying results, (k) checking compliance with acreage allotments and use of diverted acres, (l) developing pooling agreements under which several farmers work jointly to solve a common conservation problem which cannot be solved by individual action, (m) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty, (n) processing producer requests for conservation cost-sharing, and (o) processing commodity loan documents and issuing sight drafts.

3. Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes (a) overall management of CCC-owned commodities, (b) selling commodities, (c) donating commodities, and (d) accounting for loans and commodities. The value of the commodities owned by CCC on June 30, 1966 was about $3.1 billion.

The volume of work in fiscal year 1966 under some of the major programs financed from this account is set forth below:

The objectives are to provide consumers with adequate supplies of sugar at reasonable prices, to protect the domestic sugar industry, and to promote the export trade of the United States. Total U.S. requirements and quotas are determined each year. The quota for each domestic area is allotted to individual sellers when necessary to achieve orderly marketing. Restrictive farm acreage allotments are established for producers when necessary to avoid surpluses.

Payments are made which supplement the income of domestic producers of cane and beets. Payments require compliance with specified conditions of employment, production, and price. Payments are also made for abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies on harvested acreage due to natural calamities.

The increase of $6.5 million proposed for 1968 is required to provide necessary funds to make payments to eligible producers in the fiscal year 1968.

Tax collections from imports of sugar exceed total obligations by $551.6 million for fiscal years 1938 through 1966.

This program is designed to encourage conservation by sharing with farmers, ranchers, and woodland owners the cost of carrying out approved soil-building and soil- and water-conserving practices, including related wildlife-conserving practices. These are practices which farmers generally would not perform to the needed extent with their own resources. The rate of cost-sharing averages about 50 percent of the cost. Cost-sharing may be in the form of conservation materials and services or a payment after completion of the practice.

Conservation measures offered include those primarily designed to establish permanent protective cover, improve and protect established vegetative cover, conserve and dispose of water, establish temporary vegetative cover, temporarily protect soil from wind and water erosion, and provide wildlife and beautification benefits.

The following and other practices were installed during fiscal year 1966, on a total of 1,034,356 farms:

Funds are distributed among the States on the basis of conservation needs. They are, in turn, distributed by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State committees to counties. The county committees approve conservation practice cost-sharing for eligible persons.

Loans from Commodity Credit Corporation are used to make advance payments to vendors. These payments are for conservation materials and services furnished to farmers and ranchers prior to the time funds are appropriated each year. Repayment is made from balances of prior appropriations or from new funds appropriated.

The cropland adjustment program, authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965, assists farmers, through long-term agreements, to divert cropland from the production of certain crops to more needed uses that will promote the development and conservation of our soil, water, forest, wildlife, and recreational resources. The program will also help farmers establish, protect and conserve open spaces and natural beauty and prevent air and water pollution.

In return for diverting the cropland to approved public benefit uses, producers will receive adjustment payments. They also will be eligible to receive cost-sharing assistance for establishing approved land treatment measures. The period of an agreement cannot be less than 5 years nor more than 10 years.

Grants may be made to Federal, State, or local governmental agencies for use in acquiring cropland to be permanently converted to specified public uses, and cost-shares may be paid to State or local governmental agencies for designated uses, consistent with the conditions and costs under agreements entered into with producers.

Through June 30, 1966, producers entered into agreements to divert about 2 million acres from production to other uses involving estimated obligations of $62.5 million. A supplemental appropriation for 1967 is proposed for separate transmittal.

Under existing legislation, 1967.—A supplemental appropriation, in the amount of $12,500,000, is needed to provide necessary funds for (1) adjustment, cost-sharing and technical assistance payments on agreements already signed with farmers under the Cropland Adjustment Program through June 30, 1966, (2) estimated payments for cost-sharing and technical assistance for agreements entered into during the 1967 fiscal year, and (3) repayment to the Commodity Credit Corporation of funds used as authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965.

CONSERVATION RESERVE PROGRAM

For necessary expenses to carry out a conservation reserve program as authorized by subtitles B and C of the Soil Bank Act (7 U.S.C. 1831-1837, 1802-1814, and 1816), and to carry out liquida-

This program, initiated in 1956, has two objectives. One is to bring total crop acreage more nearly in line with demand by withdrawing cropland from production. The other is to establish and maintain sound conservation practices on the land withdrawn. The Secretary was authorized, through calendar year 1960, to enter into 3- to 15-year contracts with producers. For removing designated cropland from production and for establishing necessary conservation practices, the producer receives an annual rental payment each year of the contract period. He also receives cost-sharing assistance for the establishment of required practices. Total annual rental payments to a producer are limited to $5 thousand.

Participation in the program is summarized below:

This appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency conservation measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farm and rangelands resulting from natural disasters. The criteria under which assistance may be made available are set forth in the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590(h)).

Funds are allocated for use only in those counties designated by the Secretary of Agriculture as disaster counties. Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use.

Under the 1966 program cost-sharing assistance is being provided to treat farmlands damaged by drought, earthquake, flood, wind erosion, fire, and tornado. There are 331 counties in 33 States where assistance is being provided.

CROPLAND CONVERSION PROGRAM

For necessary expenses to promote the conservation and economic use of land pursuant to the provisions of section 16(e) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590h, 590p), as amended, $7,500,000, to remain available until expended. Long-range agreements are approved with farmers and ranchers to make changes from their past cropping systems and land uses to other income-producing, public benefit uses.

The agreements, not to exceed 10 years, provide for payments, the furnishing of materials and services, and other assistance to farmers. In return, farmers change the land use and install and maintain conservation practices. Adjustment payments are made either upon approval of the contracts or on an annual installment basis. Land treatment practice payments are made after the practice is installed.

The law places a limit of $10 million on payments which are required to be made in a calendar year under signed agreements.

The 1968 program will be financed with balances available from prior year appropriations.

APPALACHIAN REGION CONSERVATION PROGRAM

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, to carry into effect [section 203 of] the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965, as amended, $3,000,000, [and in addition $1,375,000 appropriated under this head in the Second Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1965, shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation,] to remain available until expended. This is a long-term program to provide cost-sharing assistance to landowners, operators, or occupiers of land in the Appalachian region. Contracts with such people will provide for land stabilization, erosion and sediment control, reclamation through changes in land use, and the establishment of measures for the conservation and development of the region's soil, water, woodland, wildlife and recreation resources. This program supplements other conservation programs of the Department in the designated counties of those States in the Appalachian region. Cost-sharing agreements are limited to periods of not less than 3 years nor more than 10 years. The cost-share may not exceed 80% of the treatment cost on not more than 50 acres of land for any person.

Under the 1967 program it is anticipated that about 3,100 agreements will be made covering about 85,000 acres. The authorizing legislation for this program expires June 30, 1967. Legislation will be proposed to extend the program.

² Statutory obligations against borrowing authority include only borrowings from Treasury and obligations to purchase notes, certificates, or other obligations evidencing loans held by banks and accrued interest on such obligations. Other obligations, contingent liabilities and commitments do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in either borrowings from Treasury or in notes, certificates, or other obligations evidencing loans held by banks and accrued interest on such obligations.

The Commodity Credit Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714-714p). It may also make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. In addition to its basic functions, it is used to administer and, in some cases, temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Up to $14.5 billion may be borrowed to finance operations.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1967 and 1968 budget estimates: (a) employment, production, and national income will rise both in 1967 and 1968 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1968 will increase slightly over 1967 levels; (c) yields for the 1967 crops are based on recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1967 crops of peanuts, rice, cotton, and certain kinds of tobacco (flue-cured tobacco will be on an acreage-poundage program); (e) and special programs for cotton, feed grains, and wheat will be continued.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy requirements for the year ending June 30, 1968. Complex and unpredictable factors are involved, such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange.

Price support.—The Corporation, through loans, purchases, payments, and other means, supports the prices of agricultural commodities to producers. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act (15 U.S.C. 714) and the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1421).

The 1949 act makes price support mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. It also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat and the products of milk and butterfat, barley, oats, rye, and grain sorghums. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1781-1787) requires price support for wool and mohair. Price support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. However, whenever the price of either cottonseed or soybeans is supported, the support price of the other must be set at such level as the Secretary determines will cause them to compete on equal terms on the market. The price-support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing price support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, price-support loans are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and upon maturity thereof, the producer may deliver such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment, unless there is a deficiency in quantity or quality, or the producer is guilty of fraudulent representation.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases for the removal of surpluses are made under certain laws, for example: the act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431). In the case of feed grains, a portion of the price support is made through issuance of negotiable payment-in-kind certificates which are handled in the same manner as payment-in-kind certificates issued under the feed grain acreage diversion programs. In the case of cotton, in addition to loans, producers receive price-support payments in cash or in payment-in-kind certificates. In the case of wheat, in addition to loans and purchases, producers receive marketing certificates as hereinafter described.

In all the price-support operations, normal trade facilities are used to the maximum extent practicable. Local banks, cooperatives, and other financial institutions are used in lending activities. Commercial facilities are used to a great extent for storage.

Besides the Charter Act and laws mentioned above, many other laws are applicable to the disposition of commodities acquired under the price-support program through sales, donations, and barter.

For accounting purposes, the Corporation credits to the price-support program sales proceeds of commodities in its price-support stocks which are disposed of through redemption of domestic and export payment-in-kind certificates and through special activities.

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, barter, payments, and other operations. Other than in barter for stockpiling purposes, such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation in its price-support operations. This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (d) and (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable. Export sales for foreign currencies are made under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, although such sales of commodities owned by the Corporation may also be made under its charter authority.

The activities described below are illustrative of those conducted under this program during 1967. With respect to barter, the emphasis is on exports in connection with various types of offshore procurement of materials and services needed by the Department of Defense, the Agency for International Development, and other agencies, for which they pay the Corporation. Barter is also made for strategic and other materials for the supplemental stockpile but on a more limited scale. Commodities available for barter vary from time to time when necessary to encourage export movement from free-market supplies, as well as from its own stocks, the Corporation makes payments on wheat, wheat flour, cotton, corn, grain sorghum, barley, oats, rye, rice, flaxseed, linseed oil, tobacco, butter, nonfat dry milk, milkfat, and cheese. The rate of payment generally is the difference between the prevailing world export sales price and the domestic market price. The International Wheat Agreement Act expired July 31, 1965. Pursuant to its general charter authority, the Corporation is carrying out the protocol agreement under its export program.

To help develop or expand foreign markets, the Corporation also furnishes farm commodities and products for samples or exhibits at international trade fairs and for use abroad in testing consumer acceptance and commercial market potentials.

To maximize exports of agricultural commodities, including products thereof, the Corporation conducts an Export credit sales program under which it sells to exporters, on credit, commodities from its inventories and finances credit sales by exporters of agricultural commodities from private stocks. Credit terms of these transactions provide for payment, with interest, in U.S. dollars within periods of not to exceed 3 years, and the credit is covered by acceptable bank guarantees furnished to the Corporation. These commercial transactions are made under the Corporation's charter authority and section 4 of the Food for Peace Act (Public Law 89-808) and are to be distinguished from the long-term credit contracts involving foreign assistance authorized by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Section 4 of the Food for Peace Act of 1966 authorizes appropriations to reimburse the Corporation annually for its actual costs incurred or to be incurred under this program. Estimates for this activity are included under special activities.

Storage facilities.—The Corporation conducts a program to provide storage adequate to fulfill its program needs. This program is conducted pursuant to sections 4 (h) and (m), and 5 (a) and (b) of the charter.

The Corporation buys and maintains (in storage-short areas) bins and equipment for the care and storage of grain owned by Commodity Credit Corporation or under its control. It makes loans for the purchase, building, or expanding of facilities for storage and care of commodities on the farm and sells to producers and others bins needed for the storage of grain. Bins sold by the Corporation may be those acquired for resale for this purpose or those which are no longer required by the Corporation for the storage of its own grain. Public Law 89-758 permits the sale of grain storage facilities no longer needed for such program use to public and private nonprofit agencies and organizations. The Corporation may also provide storage use guarantees, to encourage building of commercial storage and undertake other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation procures from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies. It similarly procures or aids in the procurement of such foods, commodities, products, and material for sale to meet domestic requirements during periods of short supply or during such other times as will stabilize prices or facilitate distribution. Through purchases, loans, sales, or other means, the Corporation may also make available materials and facilities needed for the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. The Corporation, in behalf of the Secretary, also purchases at market prices dairy products which are donated to meet the requirements for schools, domestic relief distribution, community action programs, and other programs as are authorized by law when there are insufficient stocks of such products in the hands of the Corporation available for such purposes. This program is conducted under section 5 (b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act and with respect to dairy products under section 5(g) of that act and section 709 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965.

Purchases for other Federal agencies of commodities not in the Corporation's price-support stocks has been the main activity. Purchases of limited quantities of breeder, foundation, and registered seeds of improved varieties of grasses and legumes are made through production contracts in order to assure supplies thereof for farmers. Section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U.S.C. 713a-9), requires that the Corporation be fully repaid from funds of such agencies for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities bought or delivered to or on behalf of any other Federal agency. Operations not subject to section 4 may involve losses if such are necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives of the particular operation. No foreign purchases have been made in recent past years.

Feed grain acreage diversion program.—An acreage diversion program is conducted on 1966 and 1967 crops of feed grains by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service utilizing the facilities and stocks of the Corporation. Under this program, payments are made to farmers who divert acreage from the production of feed grains (generally corn, grain sorghum, and barley) to an approved conservation use. This program is carried out under the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 (Public Law 89-321, approved November 3, 1965).

Payments are made by the issuance of negotiable payment-in-kind certificates. The farmer may elect either to have the certificate redeemed in feed grains from the Corporation's stocks or if he requests the Corporation's assistance in the marketing of the certificate he may obtain cash by issuance by the Corporation of a negotiable sight draft. The Corporation markets rights, represented by certificates on which it has made cash advances to buyers for redemption in feed grains from its stocks.

Wheat acreage diversion and certificate programs.—A wheat acreage diversion program for the 1966 crop and a wheat certificate program for 1966 and 1967 crops are conducted by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service utilizing the funds and facilities of the Corporation. These programs are authorized by the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1962, the Agricultural Act of 1964, and the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965.

Acreage diversion payments in the form of negotiable sight drafts are made to farmers for the 1966 crop who divert certain acres from wheat production to an approved conservation use.

Under the voluntary wheat certificate program, domestic marketing certificates are issued to participating farmers which may be sold at face value to Commodity Credit Corporation. Processors of wheat are required to buy domestic certificates equivalent to the number of bushels of wheat used in the manufacture of the food product. During the 1966 marketing year processors will purchase domestic certificates at face value less the amount by which price support for wheat accompanied by domestic certificates exceeds $2 a bushel. This results in the Corporation paying the difference.

Exporters may not ship abroad any wheat without buying export marketing certificates equivalent to the number of bushels exported. To make U.S. wheat and flour competitive in the world market, avoid disruption of world market prices, and fulfill the international obligations of the United States, export certificates of variable value will be sold to exporters. The net proceeds, if any, from the sale of export marketing certificates, after deducting export subsidies paid exporters, will be distributed to producers on a pro rata basis.

Cotton acreage diversion program.—Diversion payments will be made by CCC under section 103(d) of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965, to cotton producers who reduced cotton acreages by diverting a portion of their cotton acreage allotments to conservation uses. Payments will be made in cash or by the issuance of payment-in-kind certificates which CCC will redeem for cotton. CCC may assist the producers in the marketing of certificates in the same manner as it assists feed grain producers in the marketing of their payment-in-kind certificates.

Administrative expenses.—Administrative expenses are for the operating staff and the services of employees of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service engaged in the Corporation's activities, services performed by the Foreign Agricultural Service and other agencies of the Department, costs of audit, and payments to the General Services Administration for space. Estimates for 1968 include a limitation of $31.5 million for costs of administration including a reserve of not less than 7% for contingencies.

The requested authorization excludes administrative expenses in connection with the supply program, which has a markup in the sales price to cover administrative expenses, and excludes the wool and mohair program under the National Wool Act of 1954, and the sale of long-staple cotton transferred from the national stockpile, which are included with the costs of those programs under "Special activities."

Nonadministrative expense.—Expenses of acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program rather than administrative expenses. Such expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal or State licensed inspectors; work performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees; and special services performed by other Federal agencies outside of this Department.

Most of these general nonadministrative expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing and grading, and resale payments are included in program costs, in the entry entitled "Storage, transportation, and other costs not included above" in the program and financing schedule. The item "Nonadministrative expense" which appears in the schedule covers county offices, other ASCS expenses offset by revenue, custodian and agency expense of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

The Corporation receives reimbursement for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation through the appropriation "Reimbursement for net realized losses." The Corporation also obtains recovery through this appropriation for the funds transferred to the Agricultural Research Service pursuant to the Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1964 for cost of production research and other related research designed to reduce surplus commodities held by the Corporation.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's charter and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Corporation receives appropriations or reimbursement for cost of these activities as described under each.

To the extent sufficient appropriations are not provided in advance, expenditures under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, and investments in materials transferred to the supplemental stockpile, are made by the Corporation subject to repayment from subsequent appropriations authorized for such purpose.

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (see Foreign assistance programs and special export programs for details of items (1)-(4)):

- (1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies.
- (2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms.

(3) Commodities disposed of and other costs incurred in connection with donations abroad.

(4) Bartered materials for supplemental stockpile.

(5) Military housing (barter and exchange).—During 1957, a contract was completed for the disposition of Corporation-owned commodities valued at $50 million for the construction of military housing in France with foreign currencies obtained from this transaction. 10 U.S.C. 2681(b) as amended, provides for annual payment to the Corporation by the Department of Defense until liquidation of the amounts due for foreign currencies obtained under Public Law 480 for military housing. It is estimated that $2 million will be applied against the amounts due under the French housing transaction in each of 1967 and 1968.

(6) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, incentive payments are being used to encourage the annual domestic production of about 300 million pounds of shorn wool. Support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. Incentive payments are made to eligible producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the announced incentive level which is determined in accordance with a formula specified in the act.

In a referendum conducted in September 1966, wool and lamb producers voted to continue the deduction from their incentive payment and change the amount to not to exceed 1½ cents per pound of wool and 7½ cents per hundredweight of unshorn lambs marketed. These funds finance promotional advertising, and related market-development activities by the American Sheep Producers' Council, Inc., under an agreement with the Secretary of Agriculture. In order to simplify program and financing operations, the marketing year under this program was placed on a calendar year basis on January 1, 1964.

Total payments made under the National Wool Act cannot at any time exceed an amount equal to 70% of the accumulated totals, as of the same date, of the gross receipts from import duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and wool manufactures. Actual and estimated payments compared with this limitation are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation are used to carry on this program. For the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation, section 705 of the act appropriates each fiscal year an amount equal to amounts expended by the Corporation during the preceding year and to amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed, but not to exceed 70% of the gross receipts of duties on wool and certain wool products imported during the preceding calendar year.

Estimated costs and appropriations to Commodity Credit Corporation during 1966, 1967, and 1968 are indicated in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

(7) Grain for migratory waterfowl feed.—To prevent damage of crops by migratory waterfowl, the Corporation is directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Interior (7 U.S.C. 442–445) such grain acquired through price-support operations and certified by Commodity Credit Corporation as available for such purposes or in such condition as to be undesirable for human consumption, as the Secretary of the Interior shall requisition. This appropriation item is included under that Department.

(8) Surplus grain for migratory birds.—Under Public Law 87–152, approved August 17, 1961 (7 U.S.C. 448), the Secretary of the Interior may requisition grain of the Corporation to feed starving migratory birds. This appropriation item is included under that Department.

(9) Grading and classing activities.—The Corporation may make advances to the Consumer and Marketing Service for classing and grading of agricultural commodities without charge to producers (7 U.S.C. 414a, 440). Such advances used for classing cotton and grading tobacco not placed under price-support loan are repaid from an appropriation of the Consumer and Marketing Service.

(10) Research to increase domestic consumption of farm commodities.—The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1964 authorized the transfer of not more than $16 million from the appropriation "Removal of surplus agricultural commodities" (sec. 32) to the Corporation to be used to increase domestic consumption of surplus farm commodities, and provided for the transfer for such purposes of such sums not in excess of $25 million in any one year, as may be approved by Congress. The 1965 appropriation act authorized the transfer of $12,175 thousand of section 32 funds for this purpose. The Corporation transfers such funds to the Agricultural Research Service and Cooperative State Research Service to conduct the required research. For comparability, all transactions under this item are shown in the budget schedules for these two agencies (except expenditures).

(11) Defense activities.—Upon the declaration of a national emergency, the facilities, services, authorities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation may be used, as directed by the Secretary of Agriculture and in accordance with applicable provisions of law, to carry out responsibilities and functions assigned to the Secretary of Agriculture under the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, the Civil Defense Act, as amended, and such other defense legislation as may be enacted.

(12) Soil bank program.—Under section 120 of the Soil Bank Act of 1956 (7 U.S.C. 1808) the Secretary of Agriculture uses the facilities of the Corporation to make payments to farmers pursuant to contracts entered into prior to repeal of that act.

(13) Cropland conversion, agricultural conservation and emergency conservation measures programs.—Under section 101 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1962, Public Law 87-703, approved September 27, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 590(f)), the Secretary uses the services, facilities, and authorities of the Corporation to make payments to producers under programs formulated pursuant to sections 8 and 16(e) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended.

(14) Transfer of long-staple cotton from national stockpile for sale by Commodity Credit Corporation.—The act of July 10, 1957 (71 Stat. 290), authorized the transfer of 50,000 bales of domestically grown cotton from the national stockpile to the Corporation for sale. Also, about 219,000 bales of cotton, both American-Egyptian and foreign grown, in the stockpile were made available to the Corporation for disposition under Public Law 87-548, approved July 25, 1962. The cotton is not recorded as a Corporation asset. Proceeds less costs incurred, including administrative expenses, are covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts from time to time. No interest is paid by CCC for the use of the money prior to covering.

(15) Loans for agricultural conservation.—Under section 391(c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1391), the Corporation advances funds to the Secretary in amounts not to exceed $50 million annually to purchase conservation materials and services. Repayments of the loans plus interest are made in the succeeding fiscal year from funds appropriated for the agricultural conservation program.

(16) Loans for Federal crop insurance.—The 1967 appropriation act permits the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to borrow on a temporary basis not to exceed $500 thousand from the Corporation to meet indemnity payments and other charges under special or unusual circumstances.

(17) Cropland adjustment program.—Under section 602 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965, Public Law 89-321, approved November 3, 1965, the Secretary uses the facilities, services, and authorities of the Corporation to make payments to farmers who enter into agreements to turn their land to nonagricultural uses by shifting cropland presently not needed for agricultural production into long-term conservation, recreational, and open space uses. Funds of the Corporation are authorized to be used through December 31, 1966.

(18) Sugar program.—Under section 12 of the Sugar Act Amendments of 1965, Public Law 89-331, approved November 8, 1965, the Secretary is authorized to use the services, facilities, and authorities of the Corporation for the purpose of making disbursements. No such disbursements are made unless funds have been received in advance.

(19) County office expenses.—Beginning in fiscal year 1967, ASCS county offices began issuing CCC sight drafts for county operating expenses paid through local county committee bank accounts. The Corporation receives advances from "Expenses, ASCS" to cover the sight drafts drawn.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $14.5 billion.

Funds are borrowed from Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies. In connection with loan guarantees, the Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made or held by lending agencies or other financial institutions or certificates of interest issued in connection with the financing of price-support operations. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate on all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on certificates of interest and lending agency obligations for the period the agencies have their funds invested.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964, on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after June 30 of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

The computation of the transfer from interest-bearing to non-interest-bearing capital is (in millions):

Item	1966	1967	1968
Realized deficit not previously reimbursed, start of year.....	$7,413	$7,598	$8,031
Less appropriations for year.....	2,800	3,556	1,400
Total non-interest-bearing, end of year.....	4,613	4,042	6,631

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions, the estimated requirements indicate no need for an increase in borrowing authority. Since there are so many uncontrollable factors involving crops which have not even been planted, it must be recognized that estimates are highly tentative.

Total statutory borrowing authority in use.....	12,633	10,791	11,748
Net statutory borrowing authority available.....	1,867	3,709	2,752

Note.—A sufficient amount of the borrowing authority is required to be reserved to cover obligations to purchase notes and certificates of interest held by financial institutions and accrued interest thereon. Such obligations, however, as well as accounts payable, accrued liabilities, and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table, do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

Contract authorization.—Price support and other programs required by statute may result in the Corporation incurring obligations in excess of available funds and borrowing authority. Such obligations are liquidated from subsequent appropriations. Any increase in obligations in excess of available fund resources is reported as a contract authorization in the year involved; a decrease is reported as the application of appropriations to liquidate the authorization. The budget reflects a decrease of $219 million of unfunded obligations in 1966 and a decrease of $810 million in 1967.

Appropriations.—Under Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11, 12), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Commodity Credit Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The realized losses for the price support and related programs for 1966 were $2,985 million, and the cumulative losses not yet appropriated for were $7,598 million. It is estimated that an appropriation of $1,400 million would provide sufficient funds for the operations described for 1968. It would also leave a desirable operating margin to assure flexibility of operations in view of the volume of transactions handled.

The special activities are financed as indicated in the program descriptions above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance and special export programs (see that heading on page 160).

Deficit.—The net realized losses of the Corporation have previously been reimbursed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Note—In addition to obligations other than liabilities, the Corporation does not reflect in its accounts claims by the Corporation on which adequate proof has not been established.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS AND SPECIAL EXPORT PROGRAMS

A number of laws provide for the facilities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to be used in carrying out programs for exporting agricultural commodities. These laws also authorize appropriations to be made to cover costs of such programs. When funds become available, advances are made to the Corporation for estimated costs. If the amounts appropriated are not adequate, the Corporation finances authorized costs, in excess of the appropriations, pending repayment from later appropriations. On the other hand, any amounts paid to the Corporation which are not used in a particular year will reduce appropriations needed for these programs in a later year.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Included in this category are the following activities carried out under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as amended by the Food for Peace Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-808, approved November 11, 1966): Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I); sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I); and commodities disposed of and other costs incurred in connection with donations abroad (title II).

Sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies or for dollars on credit terms are made under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended by the Food for Peace Act of 1966.

The Commodity Credit Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I. Sales are made to "friendly countries"—as defined in section 103d of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (103n).

No agreements may be entered into after December 31, 1968. Agreements may not be made under title I in either calendar year 1967 or 1968 which call for an appropriation to reimburse Commodity Credit Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies readily convertible to dollars. These receipts will apply against costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests.

The Food for Peace Act amended Public Law 480 by removing the surplus concept for commodities eligible for financing and substituting "available" commodities. Factors determining availability are productive capacity, domestic requirements, farm and consumer price levels, anticipated commercial exports, and adequate carryover. No commodity is available for disposition under the act, however, if the disposition would reduce the domestic supply below that needed to meet domestic requirements, adequate carryover, and anticipated exports for dollars. Effective January 1, 1967, the Commodity Credit Corporation may finance the total ocean freight charges on U.S. flag vessels in the case of dollar credit sales and "Sec. 103(b) convertible foreign currency" sales, but only the differential between U.S. flag rates and world rates in the case of regular foreign currency sales.

Following are details of the financing of title I sales:

1. Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I).—Under this title, the United States accepts foreign currency in payment for agricultural commodities and their products. Sales are made to countries unable to expand commercial purchases because of a lack of dollar exchange. Foreign currencies received are deposited to the account of the U.S. Treasury and can be used only as stated in section 104. The dollar value of such deposits through June 30, 1966, amounted to $10.2 billion.

Uses fall into two groups—those of benefit to the foreign country, mainly loans and grants to promote economic development and to support common defense, and those of benefit to the United States. The latter includes among others: Expenses of the U.S. Government abroad; agricultural market development; educational exchange; construction of military family housing; sales of foreign currency to U.S. citizens and American tourists.

Foreign currencies for U.S. uses are subject to the appropriation process. Certain foreign currency grants and uses of foreign currency loan repayments are also subject to the appropriation process. Sales agreements specify particular uses, and in those entered into after December 31, 1964, at least 20% of the foreign currencies are required to be subject to the appropriation process, with certain possible exceptions. Such uses reduce dollar outflow and the deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied against costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests.

Section 509 of Public Law 86-500, approved June 8, 1960 (7 U.S.C. 1704b note) provides that at least 75% of the total cost of foreign military housing projects (unless otherwise specified) shall be paid from foreign currencies acquired under title I. The Department of Defense reimburses the Corporation for the foreign currencies used. Pursuant to section 2681(b) of title 10 U.S.C. as amended, the estimates reflect payment to the Corporation of $6 million each year for amounts due under Public Law 480 and the French housing barter transaction discussed under Commodity Credit Corporation. It is estimated that $4 million will be applied against Public Law 480 amounts due with a balance of $49.6 million remaining unpaid as of June 30, 1968.

2. Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I).—This title also provides for sales of U.S. agricultural commodities under long-term dollar credit terms and assisting the economies of friendly nations. The act provides for a progressive shift from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales, to be completed by December 31, 1971.

Agreements are made with friendly countries or with United States and foreign private trade. They may provide for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity.

Payments are in dollars with interest at rates not less than the minimum required by section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under that section. Payments are made in reasonable annual amounts over periods of not to exceed 20 years from the date of last delivery in each calendar year under the agreement, except that the first annual payment may be deferred for a period not later than two years after such date of last delivery. Interest is computed from the date of such last delivery. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reflect a reduction in the appropriation request. Private-trade agreements must provide for projects to establish improved storage or marketing facilities or otherwise encourage private economic enterprise in friendly countries.

To the extent that transition from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales is not possible, transition to convertible currency credit sales is authorized on terms which permit conversion to dollars at the exchange rate applicable to the sales agreement. Credit terms are to be no less favorable to the United States than those for development loans made under section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. The main difference between these credit terms and those for dollar credit sales is authority for a 40-year payment period with a 10-year grace period for convertible currency credit sales. Dollar payments, when received, will also be applied against current costs and reduce appropriation requests.

Total agreements made since inception to June 30, 1966, amount to $1,060 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipments on U.S. ships. Major commodities were wheat, cotton, and oils and oilseeds. Payments for the period amount to $56.7 million, of which $44.8 million was applied to principal and the rest to interest.

Under title II of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended by the Food for Peace Act of 1966, available agricultural commodities are furnished to needy peoples to meet famine or other urgent or emergency relief needs. Also, commodities are furnished to promote economic and community development in friendly developing countries, to combat malnutrition, and to provide nonprofit school lunch and preschool feeding programs. They are furnished through friendly governments and private or public agencies, including intergovernmental organizations such as the world food program. The Food for Peace Act, in amending title II, expressed the sense of Congress that other advanced nations should be encouraged to make increased contributions for the purpose of combating world hunger and malnutrition, and that to achieve this objective the United States should work to expand the United Nations' world food program.

The Agency for International Development is responsible for administering title II programs. However, Commodity Credit Corporation makes available the commodities or products requested for disposition under title II. Such commodities or products are purchased by Commodity Credit Corporation for this purpose at market prices when they are not available in the Corporation's stocks of commodities or products acquired under its price support program.

Assistance shall be directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes for the need for such aid. For this purpose, $7.5 million each year may be spent to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs (other than personnel and administrative) of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies, and recipient agencies, such as those for essential tools and equipment. This is included in the appropriations authorized under section 204 of title II to pay Commodity Credit Corporation for financing costs of this program. Also included are costs of acquisition, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports. Ocean freight charges and general average contributions arising out of ocean transport are also included.

Through December 31, 1966, appropriations totaling $3,100 million were authorized. No programs of assistance may be entered into after December 31, 1968, and none shall be undertaken under this title during either calendar year 1967 or 1968 which call for an appropriation of more than $600 million to reimburse the Corporation for costs incurred, including its investment, plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year.

Prior to January 1, 1967, funds were authorized under this title for commodity costs and ocean freight charges for shipments from this country through a Government-to-Government arrangement, including ocean freight charges only for shipments by voluntary nonprofit organizations. Funds for commodity costs for the latter were included in the appropriation, "Reimbursement for Net Realized Losses." Public Law 89-808 authorizes funds under title II for all costs of shipments, regardless of the organization making the shipment.

Since inception through June 30, 1966, transfer authorizations under title II have been issued for $1,806 million worth of food, including ocean freight costs. Of this amount, $856 million (47%) was for disaster relief of victims of floods, earthquakes, droughts, and plagues; $182 million (10%) for refugee relief; $27 million (2%) for other emergency assistance; $226 million (13%) for child feeding; $492 million (27%) for economic development; and $23 million (1%) for voluntary agency programs. Also, $391 million was authorized for ocean freight costs on commodities shipped through nonprofit voluntary organizations, and $1 million for purchase of title I foreign currencies for self-help activities, making total authorizations of $2,198 million for the 12 years this program has been in effect.

Purpose and financial organization.—The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly-owned Government Corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1519), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance and providing the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance. The Corporation provides all-risk insurance protection to farmers against loss from unavoidable causes. Since 1948, the crop insurance program has been conducted on a limited basis in selected counties and on selected crops to obtain adequate actuarial data for the expansion of the program to a national basis.

Capital stock of $100 million is authorized to be subscribed by the United States. As of June 30, 1966, the Secretary of the Treasury held receipts for $40 million of the authorized stock, leaving $60 million unissued.

Funds from the issuance of capital stock provide working capital for the Corporation. Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums for crop insurance. The principal payments from this fund are for indemnities to insured farmers who suffer crop losses arising from causes against which crop insurance provides protection; the direct cost of adjusting losses; and part of the administrative and operating expenses. The annual appropriation for the major portion of the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

Budget program.—The following table indicates the scope of the insurance program planned for 1966, 1967, and 1968. Amounts in the 1966 column are actual and pertain to the 1965 crop year. The 1967 column pertains to the 1966 crop year, and the 1968 column pertains to the 1967 crop year. Indemnities shown in the 1968 column are estimated at 90% of the estimated premium.

Loss ratio.....	1.13	.66	.90

Financing.—No additional Capital Funds are being requested for fiscal year 1968 program operations based on the following: 1. It is anticipated that funds will be available to pay indemnities and other related costs in fiscal year 1968 due to the current year's (crop year 1966) favorable loss ratio of 66% and an estimated gross income of $41 million from crop year 1967 operations. This assumption is based on an anticipated loss ratio in fiscal year 1968 (crop year 1967) which does not exceed 90%.

2. $1,600 thousand of premium income are expected to be used for administrative and operating costs in fiscal year 1968. This is a reduction of $2,500 thousand below the amount authorized for 1967 and is offset by a corresponding increase in the appropriation request for fiscal year 1968.

This method of financing will enable the Corporation to strengthen its capital reserves for possible losses in the future.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1966, the Corporation has reflected a deficit of $8.5 million resulting from an unfavorable loss experience in a number of 1965 crops due to unusually severe weather conditions. It is anticipated that the current deficit will be offset by annual income from operations in crop years 1966 and 1967.

Current estimates for crop year 1966, fiscal year 1967, indicate a favorable loss ratio for the eighth year, out of the past 10 years. Premiums of $37.1 million are estimated to exceed indemnities by $12.8 million. For the crop years 1948 through 1965, premium income of $384.7 million exceeded indemnity costs of $365.2 million by $19.5 million. Premium income exceeded indemnity costs in 10 years of the 18-year period.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations by commodities for 1966, 1967, and 1968:

The Administration conducts two capital investment programs: (a) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (b) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas. Funds for making repayable loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

1. Rural electrification.—This capital investment program is financed through loans which bear 2% interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Loans are also made for shorter periods at 2% interest to electrification borrowers to be reloaned to their consumers for the purpose of financing the wiring of premises and the acquisition and installation of electrical and plumbing appliances and equipment, including machinery.

Under proposed legislation for 1968.—The proposed legislation would create two Federal banks under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture, one for the rural electric systems and one for the rural telephone systems. They would provide non-Federal sources of financing to supplement funds appropriated for the basic 2% loan programs. Electric bank loans are estimated at $150 million, and telephone bank loans at $50 million for 1968. The basic 2% loan program needs would be met from proposed REA loan accounts, one for the electrification program and one for the telephone program. Into the loan accounts would be transferred appropriations, assets, and collections of the REA 2% loan programs. From these loan accounts would come funds for the 2% loan programs, Federal investment in the electric and telephone banks, annual interest payments on loans made by the Secretary of the Treasury to the REA Administrator, and principal repayment of Treasury loans to the Administrator as notes become due. The proposed loan accounts would reflect the net cost of the loan programs by showing it as the excess of the aggregate of the basic 2% loans and investments in the electric and telephone banks over the net receipts on the basic 2% loans previously made. Net receipts are estimated to be $167 million in 1967 and $172 million in 1968 for the electric program. For the telephone program net receipts are estimated to be $26 million in 1967 and $29 million in 1968. New obligational authority in 1968 would be adjusted as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	Electric program	Telephone program
Currently requested.....	$314,000	$120,600
Proposed revised estimate.....		35,400
Reduction in new obligational authority.....	314,000	85,200

Enactment of the legislative proposal for additional sources of financing REA borrowers will provide a major step toward meeting the growing capital needs of REA-financed systems, while minimizing the budgetary impact of the programs. The proposed new loan levels of $390 million for electrification and $125 million for telephone are considered essential to meet critical program needs. The portions of these loan needs which the recommended supplemental financing could suitably supply would be provided for in this budget through contingency funds to be used only as needed if the legislative proposal fails of timely enactment.

This program, authorized by Public Law 89-240 approved October 7, 1965, provides for planning grants to be made to public and private bodies with authority to prepare comprehensive plans for the development of water or waste disposal systems in rural areas which do not have funds available for such planning. In addition, development grants are made to associations, including nonprofit corporations and public and quasi-public agencies, to finance specific projects for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. The amount of the grant may not exceed 50% of the development cost of the project.

Rural renewal.—This program was authorized by section 102 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1962. Loans are made to local public agencies or private nonprofit organizations for rural renewal development projects which are specifically related to conservation and land utilization. Each project will be an important component of the overall rural renewal plan previously developed to rebuild the economy of the designated area. To be eligible for designation as a rural renewal area, the locality must be one of chronic underemployment on farms and unemployment in the surrounding communities. The area must also be one in which agriculture or forestry contribute substantially to the economy. The 1968 request is to provide for continuation of program operations in five pilot project areas and make a beginning in a few additional areas where opportunities for accomplishment are greatest.

Program operations include selection and designation of rural renewal areas, technical assistance to local public bodies or officials, or private nonprofit organizations in the preparation of an economic development plan, and counsel to such local agencies and organizations for meeting legal requirements necessary for borrowing funds. The borrowing agency is designated by the State legislature or Governor to receive rural renewal loan funds and is vested with authority under State and local laws to borrow funds, buy and sell property, raise revenue, meet financial obligations and transact other necessary business functions.

Rural renewal loans are repayable in not more than 30 years with repayment of principal and interest deferred up to 5 years, if necessary. Loans bear interest at the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. The rate for 1967 is 3.225%.

Program administration.—The Farmers Home Administration has been assigned responsibility for the coordination, direction, and supervision of the rural renewal program. The principal administrative expenses are related to technical assistance, coordination of project plans, and loan programs by the Farmers Home Administration. These expenses are estimated at $227 thousand in 1967 and $472 thousand in 1968. Administrative expenses allotted to the Economic Research Service will be $28 thousand for 1967 and 1968.

Farmers Home Administration direct loan account.—This account was established on October 16, 1961, pursuant to section 338(c) of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961. Real estate and operating loans are made under the authorities of subtitles A and B of the act to farmers and ranchers and to associations unable to obtain credit from other sources at reasonable rates. Loans made under these and similar prior authorities are reported and accounted for in this account. In 1967, the total for loans reflected in the following schedules is $372 million and in 1968, $410 million. It is proposed to carry out the estimated loan programs through utilization of receipts to this Direct loan account representing collections on loans outstanding and through the sale of assets under the Participation Sales Act of 1966. No new borrowing authorization is estimated for 1968.

In addition to the direct loans, farm ownership and soil and water loans advanced by private lenders will be insured. Contingent liabilities for these insured loans are reflected in the Agricultural credit insurance fund schedules.

1. Real estate loans.—(a) Farm ownership loans.—Direct and insured loans are made to farmers and ranchers for acquiring, enlarging or improving farms, including farm buildings; for financing land and water development, use and conservation, including recreational uses and facilities; for forestry development; for refinancing existing indebtedness; and for loan closing costs. Loans are confined to farms which are not-larger-than-family farms. A loan cannot exceed $60 thousand in any case. In addition, the indebtedness against a farm or other security, including the amount of the loan, cannot exceed $60 thousand or the normal value of the farm and any additional security.

(b) Soil and water loans.—Direct and insured loans are made to farmers and ranchers and to public and nonprofit associations for the effective development and utilization of water supplies and waste disposal systems and for the improvement of farmland by soil and water conserving facilities and practices. Loans to associations also are made for shifts in land use and the development of recreational facilities. Direct land conservation and development loans to individuals are made in the Appalachian region to establish and carry out land stabilization, conservation, and erosion control practices. There is no limitation on the size of farms that may be improved with loans to individual farmers. For loans to individuals, the indebtedness against a farm or other security, including the amount of the loan, cannot exceed $60 thousand or the normal value of the farm and any additional security. For loans to associations, the unpaid principal indebtedness, together with the amount of any grant assistance, is limited to $4 million. Loans to associations are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, and other rural places with a population up to 5,500 inhabitants.

Farm ownership, soil and water, and land conservation and development loans are repayable in not more than 40 years and bear interest not in excess of 5%. Insured loans are made through the Agricultural credit insurance fund with funds advanced by private lenders. Annual payments of principal and interest to lenders are fully guaranteed. The Administration services these insured loans, makes collections, and pays the lender.

2. Operating loans.—Direct loans are made to farmers and ranchers for paying costs incident to reorganizing a farming system for more profitable operations; for a variety of essential farm operating expenses such as the purchase of livestock, farm equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, and farm supplies; for financing land and water development, use and conservation including recreational uses and facilities; for refinancing indebtedness; for other farm and home needs; and for loan closing costs. Loans are confined to operators of not-larger-than-family farms. The outstanding principal loan balance for operating loans to any individual is limited to $35 thousand. Loans bear interest at 5% and may be made for periods up to 7 years, but may be renewed for not more than 5 additional years. Loans are secured by crop and chattel liens and, when necessary, by real estate mortgages.

Rural housing direct loan account.—This account was established in 1965 pursuant to section 518 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. Rural housing direct loans are made on farms, in the open country, and in towns of not more than 5,500 population that are rural in character. In the case of applicants who are deficient in repayment ability, cosigners on promissory notes are permitted. Rural housing direct loans are also made to private nonprofit corporations and consumer cooperatives to provide modest cost rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for elderly persons of low or moderate income or other persons of low income in rural areas. Loans are made only to applicants unable to obtain housing credit from other sources upon terms and conditions which they reasonably could be expected to repay. Direct loans to individuals are repayable in not more than 33 years and bear interest at a rate not to exceed 5%. Direct loans for rural rental housing are repayable in not more than 50 years and bear interest comparable to housing loans for the elderly in urban areas (currently 3%). In connection with direct loans to individuals, refinancing of prior indebtedness is permitted under certain circumstances.

1. Loans to the elderly.—Direct building loans are made to senior citizens (62 years of age or over) to build or repair their homes or to buy a home and building site.

2. Rural rental housing loans.—Direct loans are made to private nonprofit corporations and consumer cooperatives to provide modest cost rental or cooperative housing and related facilities for elderly persons in rural areas with low or moderate income or other persons with low income in rural areas.

3. Self-help housing projects.—Direct building loans are made to individual low-income families to enable them to participate in a mutual self-help housing project. These loans are especially designed to help families who do not have enough income to build modest homes by customary methods to work together to build modest homes of their own. These low-income families cut construction costs by supplying most of the labor needed in the construction of their homes.

4. Building loans.—Direct building loans which are too small to be made on an insured basis are made to farm owners, to owners of other real estate in rural areas, to long-term farm leaseholders and to other rural residents to construct, repair, or replace dwellings and essential farm-service buildings. Loans may include funds to buy a house, building site, and to buy farm service buildings.

5. Natural disaster loans.—Direct loans are made at 3% interest to the same persons eligible for building loans to provide for repair or replacement of farm or rural dwellings, farm-service buildings and related facilities damaged by a natural disaster.

6. Low-income housing loans.—Direct repair and improvement loans not in excess of $1,500 are made to owners of farms or nonfarm rural property to repair or improve their dwellings in order to make them safe and sanitary and to remove health hazards to the families and the community.

This fund was established in 1965 pursuant to section 517(e) of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended by Public Law 89-117 and Public Law 89-754. This fund is used to insure rural housing loans, farm labor housing loans, and loans for rural rental housing. For 1967, insured loans to families in the lower income levels are projected at $300 million and $25 million of loans to other applicants are estimated. For 1968, the levels for these loans are increased to $400 million and $50 million, respectively. Insured farm labor housing loans are estimated at $10 million for 1967 and $15 million for 1968. Insured loans for rural rental housing are estimated at $15 million for 1967 and $25 million for 1968. Initial capitalization of the fund at $100 million was provided by the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1966, approved October 31, 1965.

This fund is authorized by subtitle C of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 to finance emergency loans in areas where agricultural credit is not readily available because of natural disasters. Loans are generally confined to areas designated as emergency areas. Loans may be made outside of such areas to eligible applicants who have suffered severe production losses not general to the area. Loans also may be made to previously indebted borrowers to permit orderly repayment of such indebtedness.

Loans—(a) Emergency Loans.—Emergency loans are made at 3% interest to eligible farmers, ranchers, or oyster planters and to domestic corporations or partnerships engaged primarily in farming, ranching, or oyster planting. Loans are made for any authorized purposes for which operating, farm ownership, or soil and water loans may be made by the Farmers Home Administration.

(b) Other loans.—Where necessary to protect the Government's investment, obligations are incurred in connection with outstanding loans to provide for payment of such costs as taxes and insurance. Such advances are charged to the borrowers' accounts.

Administrative expenses.—The principal administrative expenses are related to the loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration. These expenses are estimated at $4.5 million in 1967 and 1968. Administrative expenses for the Office of the General Counsel are estimated at $32 thousand in fiscal year 1967 and $33 thousand in fiscal year 1968.

Financing the program.—No new budgetary authorization is required for 1968. A net loss of $4.4 million is estimated on an accrual basis. Receipts are estimated to exceed expenditures by $3.7 million on a cash basis. During 1968, the program will be wholly financed by receipts from operations of the revolving fund.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Revenue for 1968, consisting principally of interest on loans, is estimated at $2.5 million, compared to expenses of $6.9 million, resulting in an estimated loss of $4.4 million. A net loss of $3.9 million is estimated for 1967, and a net loss of $5 million resulted in 1966.

Loans receivable, after allowance for losses, are expected to amount to $68.3 million on June 30, 1968, as compared to $76.4 million on June 30, 1967, and $100.8 million on June 30, 1966.

The Government investment at June 30, 1968, is expected to be $123.7 million consisting of $235.9 million appropriated and donated, less a deficit of $112.2 million.

This fund is used to insure farm ownership loans and soil and water loans as authorized by subtitle A of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961. The insurance endorsement on each insured loan may include an agreement by the Government to purchase the loan after a specified initial period. The initial fund of $1 million may be supplemented by amounts retained by the Government out of interest collected from insured loan borrowers and by borrowing from the Secretary of the Treasury. From any amounts so retained, not to exceed one-half of 1% of the outstanding principal obligations must be deposited to the fund to cover losses. Any remainder of such charges may be used for administrative expenses. Loans may be made directly from the fund from available receipts or borrowings from the Treasury for the purpose of acquiring blocks of loans if there is reasonable assurance that the loans can be sold to investors without undue delay. With respect to loans made from this fund, not more than $50 million for farm ownership and soil and water loans may be held in the fund at any one time. Interest paid the Secretary of the Treasury on borrowings is based on the current average market yield of outstanding marketable obligations of the United States having maturities comparable to the notes issued for borrowings from the Treasury for operation of the fund.

Budget program.—Capital outlay is estimated at $715.2 million in 1968, an increase of $84.4 million over 1967 and an increase of $263.3 million over 1966. Included in capital outlay is $450.4 million in 1967 and $450.5 million in 1968 for making loans from the fund which will later be sold on an insured basis. The increase in 1967 and 1968 in sale of loans from the fund is based on all insured loans being made by the fund for later sale in order to permit a premium yield to investors. Insured loans outstanding which are contingent liabilities against the insurance fund are expected to increase from $886.6 million on June 30, 1966, to approximately $1.375 million at June 30, 1967, and to $1,763 million by June 30, 1968.

Financing.—To finance operations, it is estimated that it will be necessary to utilize the statutory authorization to borrow from the Treasury in the net amount of $9 million in 1968. Net repayments to the Treasury in 1967 are estimated at $66 million.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Total revenue, consisting principally of loan insurance charges, is estimated at $13.5 million in 1968, an increase of about $0.8 million from 1967.

Net outstanding loans receivable of $114.1 million are estimated at June 30, 1968. Retained earnings, available to cover future losses are estimated to be $25.2 million at the end of 1968. These earnings when added to the $1 million appropriation and estimated borrowings of $117.7 million from the Treasury represent a $143.9 million Government investment.

The preceding schedule reflects expenditures from the Consolidated working fund, Department of Agriculture. Advances were received from the Department of Commerce, Economic Development Administration (formerly the Area Redevelopment Administration) for operations carried out as well as special technical assistance projects. Funds were received into this account as an administrative convenience and were allotted to the individual agencies of the Department of Agriculture which carried out the program. Costs and obligations for these activities are shown in the "Advances and reimbursement" schedules for the individual agencies which actually received these funds.

The Office serves as the audit and investigative arm of the Secretary of Agriculture and performs all audit and investigative activities of the Department. The Office of the Inspector General assures the Secretary of completely independent and objective selection of departmental activities to be audited; critical reviews and examination of the Department's programs and activities; and factual, unbiased reporting of the results of these audits and investigations. In so doing the Office assures that existing laws, policies, and programs are effectively complied with; and insures corrective action where necessary. It also coordinates internal audit and investigative activities of the Department with the various investigative agencies of the executive and legislative branches of the Government. The recommended increase is provided to strengthen the audit and investigative services primarily due to the increased activities under the food stamp program.

The Office serves as legal counsel for the Secretary of Agriculture and performs all legal work for the Department. It represents the Department in administrative proceedings for the promulgation of rules and regulations having the force and effect of law and in quasi-judicial hearings held in connection with the administration of Department programs. The Office also represents the Secretary in proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission dealing with rates and practices relating to the transportation of agricultural commodities and in appeals to the courts from the decisions of the Commission. It examines titles to lands to be acquired by the Department or accepted as security for loans, and disposes of claims arising out of the Department activities. The recommended increase will provide legal services for the new and expanding programs of the Department of Agriculture.

The Office has responsibility for the information work of the entire Department. Its major objective is to report to farmers, agricultural, and closely related groups, and to the public the Department's research, action, regulatory, and other programs, using all information media. This work is carried on in close cooperation with the land-grant institutions and with private industries which serve agriculture. Workload depends upon Department program demands, direct requests, and legislative requirements.

1. Publications review and distribution.—The Department's printed publications are reviewed, published, and distributed. Processed publications are reviewed. Publications include farmers' bulletins, leaflets, periodicals, scientific, research, and marketing publications, and agricultural statistics.

2. Review and distribution of current agricultural information.—The Department's widespread activities require extensive preparation of information material for press, radio, and television use, as well as for specific agricultural outlets and the general public. Periodic crop, price, and market reports and press releases are issued. Digests, newsletters, special articles, and other editorial services are made available to press associations, farm and general publications, trade publications, daily newspapers, and encyclopedic annuals. Radio is used to reach farmers locally through single stations, and to broadcast nationally through the major networks. Films, television packages, and other services are prepared for the use of land-grant institutions, television farm broadcasters, and TV networks. Information campaigns involving activities of cross-agency interest are developed using all media. The Yearbook of Agriculture is published by the Office and distributed by the Members of Congress.

3. Review, preparation, and distribution of visual agricultural information.—Motion pictures for the Department and nonprofit organizations associated with agriculture, produced on a reimbursable basis under the Department's working capital fund, are distributed through cooperating State film libraries. Still photographs, illustrations, graphics, and exhibits are similarly produced for use in explaining and reporting on Department programs. News and general-type photographs of Department programs and activities are available to news media from a centralized library.

The National Agricultural Library, cooperating jointly with the two other national libraries—the Library of Congress and the National Library of Medicine—provides coverage and servicing of worldwide publications in the agricultural, chemical, and biological sciences. It serves the research, extension, regulatory, and other programs of the Department and State agricultural agencies. It contains approximately 1,263,000 volumes, probably the most extensive agricultural collection in existence. Since the Library's primary purpose is to provide for research needs, substantive publications in the animal sciences, plant sciences, agricultural chemistry, agricultural engineering, soils, forestry, agricultural products, home economics, world sociology, agricultural economics and agricultural statistics are acquired and preserved. Publications are regularly acquired from more than 50 countries on subjects ranging from apiculture to zootomy. In addition, printed information of agricultural societies, organizations, cooperatives, and general material in the field of agriculture are collected and made available for use.

Information contained in the agricultural literature is disseminated through bibliographies, loans, photocopies and reference services to agricultural colleges and universities, research institutions, Government agencies, agricultural associations, industry, individual scientists, farmers, and the general public in every part of the world.

During 1966, 260,384 separate issues of periodicals were added to the collection by purchase, gift, and exchange. During the same period 252,885 loans of books and periodicals were made and 117,034 reference questions answered.

The increase proposed for 1968 would be used to acquire catalog, maintain and service essential publications and to improve library services to the scientific community; automate those systems which will permit the Library to provide broader, more efficient services.

The Office of Management Services (OMS) provides consolidated and centralized management support services to several agencies and offices of the Department. It was established by Secretary's Memorandum No. 1529, dated January 29, 1963, to provide greater economy and effectiveness in the rendering of management service and advice through improved utilization of manpower and management techniques, increased specialization of professional skills, and more extensive use of timesaving equipment.

The consolidated management support functions include budget and finance, personnel and related programs, administrative services, and public information work. These functions are financed by direct appropriation to OMS, except for any agency activity performed for others on a reimbursable or advance payment basis. OMS is reimbursed for management support of these activities.

The organization structure of OMS is based upon these functions with operating divisions providing the services for the following agencies and offices: Office of the Secretary, Office of Budget and Finance, Office of Hearing Examiners, Judicial Officer, Office of Management Improvement, Office of Personnel, Office of Plant and Operations, Rural Community Development Service, Office of Information, National Agricultural Library, Office of the General Counsel, Office of the Inspector General, Farmer Cooperative Service, Commodity Exchange Authority, Cooperative State Research Service, Economic Research Service, and Statistical Reporting Service.

General administration covers the overall planning, coordination and administration of the Department's programs. Also included are certain services on a departmentwide basis.

2. Budgetary and financial administration.—This covers general direction of budgetary and financial management in the Department. This includes issuance of policies and procedures, review of budgetary and financial aspects of program and legislative proposals, review of accounting systems and preparation and review of financial statements.

3. General operations.—These embrace departmental policies and procedures for real and personal property, and supply activities. Departmentwide central services of post office, telephone, telegraph, reproduction, and supply are furnished.

4. Management improvement.—This covers the coordination and direction of the development of new and improved management techniques, acquisition and utilization of data processing equipment, development of methods of measuring the effectiveness of program operations, records management, and the application of operations research techniques to the administrative, program, and scientific activities of the Department.

5. Personnel administration.—This covers general direction, leadership, and coordination of the personnel management program of the Department. Departmental policies and procedures are issued and the office coordinates a review program to evaluate the effectiveness of agency personnel programs. The cost reduction and related programs for the Department are also administered by this office.

6. Regulatory hearings and decisions.—The hearing examiners hold hearings in connection with the prescribing of new regulations and orders and on disciplinary complaints filed by the Department or on petitions filed by private parties asking relief from some action of the Department. Final administrative decisions in regulatory proceedings are rendered by the judicial officer. "Agriculture Decisions" is published monthly.

FOREST SERVICE

The Service carries on three primary functions: (a) protection, development, and use of about 186 million acres of land in National Forests and National Grasslands in the United States and Puerto Rico; (b) forestry research for all public and private forest lands and related ranges to improve protection from fire, insects, and diseases; to increase production of timber, forage, water, and other products; to improve methods for developing and managing recreation resources; to develop better utilization and marketing of forest products; and to maintain a current inventory of forest resources through a nationwide forest survey; and (c) cooperation with States and private forest landowners to obtain better fire protection on approximately 460 million acres of forest land and nonforest watersheds, and better forest practices on about 358 million acres of privately owned commercial timberlands, to encourage reforestation and stimulate development and management of State, county, and community forests.

These primary functions include construction and maintenance of roads and trails, control of forest pests, protection against floods, land acquisition and exchange, and a number of cooperative projects.

General and special funds:

FOREST PROTECTION AND UTILIZATION

For expenses necessary for forest protection and utilization, as follows:

Forest land management: For necessary expenses of the Forest Service, not otherwise provided for, including the administration, improvement, development, and management of lands under Forest Service administration, fighting and preventing forest fires on or threatening such lands and for liquidation of obligations incurred in the preceding fiscal year for such purposes, control of white pine blister rust and other forest diseases and insects on Federal and non-Federal lands; [$173,850,000] $186,233,000, of which $5,000,000 for fighting and preventing forest fires and $1,910,000 for insect and disease control shall be apportioned for use, pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to the extent necessary under the then existing conditions: Provided, That not more than $2,480,000 of this appropriation may be used for acquisition of land under the Act of March 1, 1911, as amended (16 U.S.C. 513-519); Provided further, That funds appropriated for "Cooperative range improvements", pursuant to section 12 of the Act of April 24, 1950 (16 U.S.C. 580h), may be advanced to this appropriation.

Forest research: For forest research at forest and range experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, or elsewhere, as authorized by law; [$37,821,000] $40,032,000.

State and private forestry cooperation: For cooperation with States in forest-fire prevention and suppression, in forest tree planting on non-Federal public and private lands, and in forest management and processing, and for advising timberland owners, associations, wood-using industries, and others in the application of forest management principles and processing of forest products, as authorized by law; [$17,897,000] $18,251,000.

For additional amounts for "Forest protection and utilization", as follows:

["Forest land management", $2,300,000; and] ["State and private forestry cooperation", $200,000.] (12 Stat. 387; 25 Stat. 659; 58 Stat. 742; 67 Stat. 633; 7 U.S.C. 428a, 1010-1012, 1621-1627; 16 U.S.C. 207c, 471-583i, 594-1-594-5, 594a, 1004-1005; 30 U.S.C. 601-604, 611-615; 31 U.S.C. 534; 42 U.S.C. 1891-1893; 43 U.S.C. 1181h-1181j; 36 Stat. 557-579; Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967; Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1967.)

1. Forest land management—(a) National forest protection and management.—The 154 national forests and 19 units of national grasslands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, and wildlife are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation without impairing productivity of the land. These management and utilization principles were recognized in the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to the development program for the national forests, a plan to meet the increasing demands for specific national forest resource needs through 1972 and for long-term objectives to the year 2000. Increases are provided in the budget to further attainment of these program objectives. Construction funds of $18.8 million are budgeted for construction or rehabilitation of campground and picnic facilities and other recreation improvements, the construction of dwellings or barracks for employee housing, fire lookouts, service and storage buildings, communication facilities, and other improvements. Funds appropriated under Cooperative range improvements are merged with this appropriation for obligational purposes.

(b) Water resource development related activities.—This activity provides for the development of recreational facilities and for other activities required by water resource projects of other agencies located within or adjacent to the national forests.

(c) Fighting forest fires.—This provides for employment of additional manpower and other facilities for forest fire emergencies which cannot be met by the fire control organization provided under national forest protection and management. Costs above the amounts estimated for the current and budget years are authorized to be met from advances from other Forest Service appropriations. In addition, a supplemental appropriation for fighting forest fires is anticipated for 1967 under proposed for later transmission.

	Calendar year

Forest fires controlled (number).....	9,365	10,000	10,000
Area burned (acres).....	75,150	350,000	250,000

(d) Insect and disease control.—Activities to suppress and control destructive insects and diseases that threaten timber areas include two types of work carried on jointly by Federal, State, and private agencies: (1) Surveys on forest lands to detect and evaluate infestations of forest insects and infections of tree diseases and determination of protective measures to be taken, and (2) control operations to suppress or eradicate forest insects and diseases, including white pine blister rust.

(e) Acquisition of lands.—Lands are purchased to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber with the approval of the National Forest Reservation Commission.

2. Forest research.—Research is conducted at eight regional forest experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, and the Institute of Tropical Forestry.

(a) Forest and range management.—This research provides private and public land managers and owners with a sound basis for management of timber, forage, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to maintain a sustained yield of products at the lowest possible costs; increase forage for domestic livestock and improve habitat for wildlife without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce floods and sedimentation; and improve methods for developing and managing recreation resources.

(b) Forest protection.—Research is conducted to develop sound measures for the protection of forests from damage by fire, insects, and diseases. Forest fire research provides improved methods of predicting fire danger, and preparing for and combating fire by combinations of ground and aerial methods. Insect and disease research develops direct controls, silvicultural measures, and biological agents to combat forest pests.

(c) Forest products and engineering.—Studies are conducted to develop new and improved forest products, reduction and utilization of waste, and use of low-quality wood and less desirable species. They include studies to reduce costs of logging and wood utilization, and to develop basic knowledge of wood and disseminate this to forest owners, manufacturers, fabricators, and consumers. Research is also conducted to advance the mechanization and efficiency of forestry operations, and to develop and evaluate machines and similar equipment for such operations as logging, planting, timber-stand improvement, and protection of forests.

(d) Forest resource economics.—These investigations are conducted to inventory and appraise the condition of forest lands, volume and quality of standing timber, ownership of timber resources, annual growth and depletion, and the potential need for timber products. Studies of the economics of forest crop production and of marketing of forest products are also included.

(e) Construction.—Research construction funds of $2 million are budgeted for a wood chemistry laboratory in Madison, Wis., and a forestry sciences laboratory in Albuquerque, N. Mex.

3. State and private forestry cooperation.—This program, carried on in cooperation with the States, encourages private timber management. Privately owned forest lands comprise three-fourths of the Nation's commercial forest area and produce about 75% of all timber cut.

(a) Forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished 49 States in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private and State-owned lands by financial aid, training, procurement of equipment, and a nationwide fire prevention campaign. About 91% of the 519 million acres of non-Federal ownership planned for protection is now covered. During 1965 the acreage burned on protected areas was 0.3% as against an estimated 4.3% on unprotected lands. Of the total expenditures under this program, 81.8% is contributed by States and counties, 1.5% by private owners, and 16.7% by the Federal Government.

(b) Forest tree planting.—To encourage woodland owners to reforest unproductive portions of their holdings, and farmers to plant wind barriers around their fields and farmsteads—a total of more than 70 million acres altogether—the States provide planting stock at reasonable prices. The Federal Government shares the cost of producing the stock with the State and private landowners.

(c) Forest management and processing.—In cooperation with 49 States and Puerto Rico, technical assistance is given to woodland owners in applying good multiple use management to their forest holdings. Also, assistance is provided operators of small primary forest products manufacturing plants to improve their production and marketing. In 1966, 113,000 owners and 10,500 processors were assisted.

(d) General forestry assistance.—Technical forest management assistance is provided to State, community, private, and other Federal agencies, forest industries, colleges, and landowners.

Roads and trails are essential to protection and management of national forests and utilization of their resources.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1966 provides authorization of $170 million each for 1968 and 1969. These authorizations are available for obligation a year in advance of the year for which authorized. It is planned to use $3.3 million of the 1968 authorization in 1967. This budget provides use of $120 million of the 1968 authorization, which will leave $46.7 million for use in 1969. The 1968 program will involve the construction and reconstruction of about 944 miles of general purpose and recreation roads, and about 1,195 miles of timber access roads to harvest national forest timber, a total of approximately 2,139 miles. This compares with 1,496 miles built in 1966 and 1,795 miles being built in 1967.

Of the amounts received annually from national forest activities, 10% is available under the permanent appropriation Roads and trails for States, for construction and maintenance within the State from which such proceeds are derived. Such amounts are merged with this appropriation for obligational purposes.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, FOREST SERVICE

Appropriations to the Forest Service for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) purchase of not to exceed [one] two hundred and [sixty-five] fifty-nine passenger motor vehicles of which one hundred and [fifteen] sixty-five shall be for replacement only, and hire of such vehicles; operation and maintenance of aircraft and the purchase of not to exceed four for replacement only; (b) employment pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 [(5 U.S.C. 574)] (58 Stat. 742); and not to exceed $25,000 for employment under [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U.S.C. 55a)] 3109; (c) uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by [the Act of September 1, 1954, as amended] law (5 U.S.C. [2131] 5901; 80 Stat. 299); (d) purchase, erection, and alteration of buildings and other public improvements [(5 U.S.C. 565a)] (58 Stat. 743); (e) expenses of the National Forest Reservation Commission as authorized by section 14 of the Act of March 1, 1911 (16 U.S.C. 514); and (f) acquisition of land and interests therein for sites for administrative purposes, pursuant to the Act of August 3, 1956 (7 U.S.C. 428a).

Except to provide materials required in or incident to research or experimental work where no suitable domestic product is available, no part of the funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be expended in the purchase of twine manufactured from commodities or materials produced outside of the United States.

Funds appropriated under this Act shall not be used for acquisition of forest lands under the provisions of the Act approved March 1, 1911, as amended (16 U.S.C. 513-519, 521), where such land is not within the boundaries of an established national forest or purchase unit. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967.)

The Working capital fund was established by the Act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the Act of October 23, 1962. It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to national forests, experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The Working capital fund requires no cash appropriation. Initially, its assets were purchased by regular Forest Service appropriations and were donated to the fund. Where expansion of facilities, equipment, and inventories is required, the expansion is financed pro rata by benefiting Forest Service appropriations and the additional assets are donated to the fund. Some additional assets have been obtained from excess sources without cost to Forest Service appropriations or the Working capital fund. Some expansion was financed by profits realized in the first few years of operation of the fund. Since July 1, 1962, expansion has been financed by benefiting Forest Service appropriations.

Since July 1, 1962, some earnings have been applied to the excess of replacement cost over original cost of equipment replaced. Some earnings have been reserved for future excess replacement costs of equipment. The balance of accumulated earnings is limited to not more than 5% of gross income for 1 year to provide working capital. This is an administratively imposed limitation which restricts earnings but does not require additional profits to meet the standard whenever working capital is adequate.

The following is a tabulation of information pertaining to the capital and earnings of the Working capital fund:

ANALYSIS OF CAPITAL AND EARNINGS

[In thousands of dollars]

	Actual through June 30, 1966	Estimated through June 30, 1967	Estimated through June 30, 1968
Value of assets donated to the fund.....	29,993	30,894	31,894
Earnings applied prior to 7/1/62 to additional equipment and excess replacement costs.....	3,751	3,751	3,751
Earnings applied since 7/1/62 to excess replacement costs.....	1,915	3,307	4,207

Earnings to provide working capital for operation.....		202	202
Total.....	37,680	39,954	41,765

The following services are provided by the Working capital fund—1. Equipment service.—This service owns, operates, maintains, and replaces common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to national forests, experiment stations, and in some cases, other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash which when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment.

2. Aircraft service.—This service operates and maintains Forest Service-owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are rented to national forests, experiment stations, and in some cases, to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Replacement costs and the costs of additional aircraft are financed pro rata by benefiting Forest Service appropriations.

3. Supply service.—This service operates the following common services—(a) Central supply.—This is a centralized service for procurement, warehousing, and supply of common use items, such as work project tools, provisions, and supplies, which are issued and sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at prices which recover cost.

(b) Photo reproduction.—These facilities store, reproduce, and supply aerial photographs, aerial maps, and other photographs of national forest lands. The photographic reproductions are sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at cost.

(c) Sign shop.—These are small shops which manufacture and supply special signs for the national forests for use in regulating traffic and as information to the public and other users of the national forests. The signs are sold to national forests and experiment stations at cost.

(d) Subsistence.—These are facilities which prepare and serve meals at cost to Forest Service work crews in remote areas where adequate public restaurant facilities are not available.

(e) Cribbing.—This facility manufactures special concrete structural material used in embankments along access roads in the national forests. This material is sold to national forests at prices which recover costs.

4. Nursery service.—This service operates forest tree nurseries and cold storage facilities for storage of tree and seed stock. Tree seed is procured, cleaned, bagged, and stored in refrigerated facilities. Tree and seed stock are sold to national forests, States, and other Federal agencies at cost.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. Within the unit limit of cost fixed by law, appropriations and authorizations made for the Department under this Act shall be available for the purchase, in addition to those specifically provided for, of not to exceed [four] five hundred and [thirty-four] sixty passenger motor vehicles, of which four hundred and sixty-two shall be for replacement only, and for the hire of such vehicles.

SEC. 502. Provisions of law prohibiting or restricting the employment of aliens shall not apply to employment under the appropriation for the Foreign Agricultural Service.

SEC. 503. Funds available to the Department of Agriculture shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by [the Act of September 1, 1954, as amended (5 U.S.C. 2131)] law (5 U.S.C. 5901; 80 Stat. 299).

SEC. 504. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the payment of any officer or employee of the Department who, as such officer or employee, or on behalf of the Department or any division, commission, or bureau thereof, issues, or causes to be issued, any prediction, oral or written, or forecast, except as to damage threatened or caused by insects and pests, with respect to future prices of cotton or the trend of same.

SEC. 505. Except to provide materials required in or incident to research or experimental work where no suitable domestic product is available, no part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be expended in the purchase of twine manufactured from commodities or materials produced outside of the United States.

SEC. 506. Not less than $1,500,000 of the appropriations of the Department for research and service work authorized by the Acts of August 14, 1946, July 28, 1954, and September 6, 1958 (7 U.S.C. 427, 1621-1629; 42 U.S.C. 1891-1893), shall be available for contracting in accordance with said Acts.

SEC. 507. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein. (Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1967.)

The Census Bureau is the largest general-purpose statistical agency of the Federal Government. The principal programs carried out under the appropriation Salaries and expenses are:

1. Distribution and services.—Estimates of retail sales are prepared weekly and monthly. Weekly estimates are on a national basis showing summary kind-of-business detail. Monthly estimates show individual kind-of-business detail at the national level, and summary kind-of-business detail for other geographic areas, including some standard metropolitan statistical areas. A county business patterns report, providing data on employment and payrolls by detailed kinds of business and by individual county, is prepared annually; this report covers most nonfarm paid employment included in the social security program.

During fiscal 1967, a project will be initiated to provide annual national measures on the merchandise line composition of retail sales. In 1968, a program will be initiated which is designed to provide dollar and physical volume of retail inventories and the retail sales program will be expanded to present additional data for standard metropolitan statistical areas.

2. Construction.—Monthly reports are published for housing starts, residential construction authorized by building permits, and the value of new construction put in place. Annual reports are provided on expenditures for residential alterations and repairs.

In 1968, quarterly price indexes will be developed for new single-family houses and comprehensive building permit data will be provided for selected standard metropolitan statistical areas.

3. Manufacturing.—Periodic surveys are made of production, shipments, orders, and materials consumed for important industries and products. Data are provided monthly on manufacturers' sales, orders, and inventories for total manufacturing and for about 35 industry breakdowns. An annual survey of manufactures produces data on the number, size, industrial classification, and location of manufacturing establishments and on measures of factory operations such as employment, value added by manufactures, shipments, inventories, and investment. Data are also developed to provide measures of the forces changing the location, structure, and growth of industry.

4. Foreign trade.—Monthly (including cumulative-to-date), quarterly, and annual reports are published on the kind, quantity, shipping weight, dollar value of imports and exports, and mode of transportation.

5. Transportation.—Methods are developed and tested for undertaking or improving periodic surveys in transportation areas as directed by statutory requirements.

6. State and local governments.—Reports are published annually regarding the revenue, expenditures, indebtedness and debt transactions, financial assets, employment, and payrolls of State and local governments. Quarterly information on the national level is furnished regarding State and local tax revenue by type of tax and governmental level. Consultation is provided to State and local government officials concerning the availability and use of statistical information.

7. Population.—This activity includes current estimates of the number of households, the farm population, school enrollment, personal income, population mobility, and other characteristics of the population, as well as data concerning consumer purchases, stocks, and intentions to purchase. It also provides annual estimates of the population of the United States, of each of the States, and for a limited number of standard metropolitan statistical areas. A developmental program is underway to prepare local area estimates of population and income through the use of administrative records. This program will be expanded in 1967.

8. Housing.—National and regional quarterly estimates are provided for housing vacancy rates, and technical assistance is available to local areas wishing to conduct vacancy surveys.

9. Agriculture.—Information on cotton ginnings and production, as required by statute, is compiled and published. Statistical services are provided regarding the information from the census of agriculture.

10. Statistical abstract and special reports.—The "Statistical Abstract," issued annually, summarizes government and private statistics on the industrial, social, political, and economic activities of the United States. Seasonally adjusted business cycle indicators are published monthly in the "Business Cycle Developments" report. An annual report is published on "Long Term Economic Trends." Other general reports are published periodically.

11. Research and development.—Research is conducted on statistical survey methods and techniques, including sample survey methods and theory, questionnaire design, response errors, equipment design and utilization, and administrative operations for the purpose of increasing accuracy, output, and usefulness of statistical data per unit of cost.

Work will continue on preparing for the Nineteenth Decennial Census which includes establishing the basis for collecting population and housing data by mail. A major part of this work consists of developing and testing operating procedures, taking a population and housing "dress rehearsal" test census, establishing a computer-based geographic coding system to assign individual addresses to geographic areas which must be identified in Census publications, and establishing a master list of addresses. Work will continue on the exploration of problems in connection with census taking in hard-to-enumerate areas, questionnaire design under self-enumeration conditions, statistical measures relating to condition of housing, and related problems.

A sample survey covering 3 million households will be conducted to provide up-to-date economic and social data for the United States as a whole, each of the 50 States, and all metropolitan areas, with separate detail for concentrated poverty areas within the large metropolitan areas.

Preparatory work will be performed in 1967 through a supplemental appropriation described below and the data collection, processing, and publication of results will be accomplished during calendar 1968. An additional appropriation of $2,100 thousand will be needed in 1969 to complete the tabulation and publication of results.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are derived at cost from State and local governments for special statistical work (13 U.S.C. 8(d)).

The Bureau of the Census undertakes work for governmental and other bodies to the extent that such work meets desirable public needs, can be performed without adversely affecting activities financed from appropriated funds, and can be more appropriately or efficiently performed by Census than by the sponsor agency. Increases in 1968 are for (1) expansion of the survey to determine the fallout capabilities of private home basements, and (2) a planned survey to determine whether compensation received by disabled veterans is comparable to that received by other veterans.

Grants and loans are made for development facilities. The objective is to improve employment and income in areas where economic growth is lagging behind the rest of the Nation. Development facility projects are often necessary to pave the way for industrial development. For example, water and sewer lines are necessary before industrial parks can function. Industrial parks, in turn, encourage business development.

1. *Redevelopment area assistance—*a. Direct grants.—Direct grants of up to 50% project cost are made in redevelopment areas designated under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

b. Grants supplementary to other Federal programs.—Supplemental grants are made so that areas can take advantage of other Federal programs, when they could not otherwise provide the required local share of costs. Direct grants plus supplemental grants cannot exceed 80% of project cost. The amount of supplemental grant depends upon relative need of the area and nature of the project, less the amount of fair user charges or other project revenue which could be used to repay a loan.

c. Loans.—Loans may be a part of development facilities financing when financial assistance is not otherwise available from private lenders or Federal agencies on terms which would permit accomplishment of the project. Loans may run up to 40 years. The interest rate on fiscal year 1967 loans is 4 1/8%.

2. Economic development districts and centers assistance.—Additional financial incentives are provided to encourage redevelopment areas to form into larger economic planning units called districts. Districts must include at least two redevelopment areas. Each must have one or more related cities designated as economic development centers. Financial incentives for development facility projects are of three types. First, grants may be increased by 10% of project cost, providing there is at least 20% local cost-sharing; the project implements the district plan; and the project serves the district. Second, grants may be made for district projects in centers outside redevelopment areas. Third, loans may be made if funds are not available from private lenders or Federal agencies on terms which would permit accomplishment of the project.

Program volume in 1968 for the above two activities is estimated to be as follows:

	Direct grants	Grants supplementary to other Federal programs	Loans	Economic development districts and centers assistance	Total
Applications received.....	3,156	360	604	320	4,440

Approved.....	253	32	45	62	392
Obligated.....	221	32	42	50	345

3. Regional development assistance.—Supplementary grants are made (1) to support those projects of the highest priority within the context of a regionwide program; (2) to assure that projects will achieve economies of scale even when such economies conflict with traditional boundary lines; (3) to support other related Federal, State, and local activities of importance to the development of the entire region; (4) to assure that appropriate projects will be located in areas where there is a significant potential for future growth and where the return on the public dollars invested will be the greatest.

Long-term, low interest loans and working capital loan guarantees are made to encourage industrial development. The objective is to increase employment opportunities and family income in areas which lag behind the rest of the Nation economically.

1. Redevelopment area assistance.—Commercial and industrial loans are made in qualified areas with repayment periods up to 25 years. The interest rate for fiscal year 1967 loans is 4½%. Financial assistance must be otherwise unavailable from private lenders or Federal agencies on terms which would permit accomplishment of the project. Working capital loans made by private lenders in connection with Economic Development Administration projects may be guaranteed for up to 90% of the outstanding balance.

2. Economic development districts and centers assistance.—Loans and working capital guarantees are made in economic redevelopment centers which are outside redevelopment areas. This is an incentive to encourage the formation of larger economic planning units called districts. Each district must include at least two redevelopment areas, and one or more cities must be designated as economic development centers related to the district.

1. Redevelopment and other area assistance aids communities in their economic development through technical assistance contracts, planning grants, and research.

Technical assistance.—Technical assistance contracts provide knowledge, information, and advice on local problems and projects.

Planning grants to States and areas.—Planning assistance grants are made not to exceed 75% of total cost for developing overall economic development plans.

Research.—A continuing program of research through contracts is performed. This is in addition to research developed by Federal staff. This permits the use of the best talent available in universities, other governmental agencies, and private institutions to help determine the causes and cures of unemployment, underemployment, and low incomes. This information is then made available for use of government and community leaders.

Program volume is estimated as follows (dollars are obligations in thousands):

	Num-ber	Amount	Num-ber	Amount	Num-ber	Amount
Technical assistance	283	$10,150	326	$13,000	43	$2,850

Total	384	14,100	444	17,500	60	3,400

2. Economic development districts and centers assistance is provided by administrative expense grants for multi-county economic development districts. These planning grants fund 75% of the total district cost of salaries and associated expenses required to hire full-time professional staffs for planning and implementing district development programs.

Program volume is estimated as follows (dollars are obligations in thousands):

	Num-ber	Amount	Num-ber	Amount	Num-ber	Amount
Planning grants to districts	66	$3,500	100	$5,000	34	$1,500

3. Regional planning and technical assistance is provided through technical and administrative expenses grants made to multistate regional action planning commissions. Technical, research, and planning assistance is provided to the commissions in order to develop sound planning for economic planning on a regional basis.

Expenses of regional action planning commissions.—The commissions, composed of a Federal cochairman, and a member from each State within the regions, evaluate the potential and identify means of using its human and natural resources fully.

Appalachian planning assistance is provided through grants for local development districts and for research and demonstration projects. Grants are made for the administrative expenses of local development districts. Grants do not exceed 75% of the eligible, budgeted administrative expenses in any one year. Local development districts are States, multicounty units, or single counties in the Appalachian region. Other aid is also provided to local communities, States, or to the region as a whole. This aid is provided through investigation, research, or demonstration projects.

Other planning and technical assistance is provided through contracts to aid the work of the regional action planning commissions. Emphasis is placed upon planning (a) programs which improve the base for economic growth; (b) programs which will attract industrial development within the region; (c) programs which improve the health, education, and skills of people; (d) and projects which conserve, maintain, or improve natural resources. Federal support is provided through staff work on technical assistance, research, and planning.

1. Area and district development program projects are processed and monitored. Coordination of field activities is provided. Inhouse planning, research, and technical assistance is conducted. General direction and administration is furnished under this appropriation.

(a) Development facilities.—This subactivity title includes the administrative expense for performing work related to program payments under the separate appropriation for development facilities.

(b) Industrial development loans and guarantees.—This subactivity title includes the administrative expense for performing work related to program payments under the separate appropriation for industrial development loans and guarantees.

(c) Planning, technical assistance, and research.—This activity title includes the administrative expense for performing work related to program payments under the separate appropriation for planning, technical assistance, and research. It also includes costs of Federal staff engaged in inhouse planning, research, and technical assistance. Cost of field coordination is also included.

2. Regional programs.—(a) Regional planning assistance provides overall coordination and direction through liaison with the regional action planning commissions, through the review and evaluation of current program developments, and through expert advice on pertinent economic development subjects.

(b) Expenses of regional action planning commission Federal co-chairmen.—The Federal Government is represented on each commission by a Federal cochairman and an alternate. This subactivity finances the salary of the cochairman, his alternate, and their administrative and clerical support.

(c) Appalachian assistance.—Leadership is provided to stimulate local effort, directly or through the Appalachian Regional Commission. Guidance is furnished in developing and submitting project proposals. Proposals are reviewed and evaluated. This involves study of economic feasibility, engineering feasibility, financial feasibility, and other factors. Funds are approved and projects are kept under review until completion. This work is done in close cooperation with the Appalachian Regional Commission and other Federal agencies.

3. Executive direction and administration.—This activity title includes costs of the chief policy advisers to the Assistant Secretary and Director of Economic Development, other general direction costs, and costs of staff offices which furnish services for more than one program activity.

Section 201 of the Appalachian Development Act of 1965 authorizes the construction of an Appalachian Development Highway System including local access roads. This system, which is not to exceed a total of 2,350 miles in length, is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia; and to provide not more than 1,000 miles of local access roads to specific development facilities. Funds in the amount of $840 million are currently authorized to be appropriated over the period of this program.

Funds for development facility loans, industrial loans and working capital loan guarantees are provided under Development Facilities and Industrial Development Loans and Guarantees appropriations. It is proposed to advance such funds to this revolving fund for management purposes. Obligations for these loans and guarantees will not exceed the amounts advanced.

In addition, it is proposed that loan repayments be used for interest payments and collateral protection. Interest payments are made to the Treasury on the amount of loans outstanding under the act. Collateral protection consists of expenses such as purchase of senior liens, safe-keeping of assets of defaulting borrowers, and security service necessary to protect Federal investment in loans.

The Business and Defense Services Administration advances the Nation's economic growth by providing information, advisory, and analytical services to both business and government.

1. Industry and market information services.—Business and Government agencies are provided with information and data on production and distribution planning through special and recurring reports on industry and market trends, conditions, opportunities, and problems. Information is provided to industries on overseas business opportunities, and trade prospects. BDSA also informs business on the youth opportunity and equal employment opportunity programs. Increases for 1968 are to meet a greater demand for market and analytical studies and reports, such as distribution cost studies, market measurements, and annual outlook projections.

2. Commodity and industry analysis.—Analyses are provided to business and Government agencies seeking advice and assistance on problems affecting industry. Government agencies are kept informed of the probable impact on business and industry of proposed legislative and regulatory measures. Commodity-industry advice is given in support of Government programs dealing with productivity increases, industrial manpower needs, urbanization and business problems, and regional business growth. This activity also includes a new program established by the Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Material Act of 1966, whereby certain nonprofit organizations may apply for duty-free importation of scientific equipment and apparatus. Part of the increase requested in 1968 is to implement this new program and a supplemental is being requested in 1967 to get it underway. Increases in 1968 are also to assist in solving supply-demand problems in selected metals, such as copper, and to analyze the effect on the economy of increased demands for other commodities created by expanded military programs.

Business and Defense Services Administration assists the Secretary of Commerce in his responsibilities under the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended; the National Security Act of 1947, as amended; and the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act of 1946, as amended, Executive Orders 10480, 10421, and 11179, and in all programs relating to mobilization of industrial resources during a national emergency pursuant to Executive Order 10999.

In 1966 and 1967 the functions assigned to Commerce were appropriated to the Office of Emergency Planning under the title, "Civil defense and defense mobilization functions of Federal agencies." The request for 1968 includes funds for the Census Bureau which will provide statistical services as required for emergency readiness planning purposes. The 1968 estimates also include funds for the Office of Emergency Readiness in the Office of the Secretary to provide assistance, support, and liaison in the initiation, development, coordination, and testing of all emergency readiness plans and programs at the regional and field levels.

1. Priorities and allocations.—A current system of priorities and allocations is administered to assure timely completion of military, atomic energy, and space programs for production, construction, research, and development. In the event of a national emergency and after appropriate Presidential determination, BDSA would also allocate materials in the civilian market.

2. Industrial readiness planning.—Mobilization programs are conducted to assure the readiness of production resources to meet any type of national emergency. The Administration develops and administers the recruitment, assignment, training, and directing of the industrial unit of the National Defense Executive Reserve, composed of business executives and professional men who would staff an emergency production agency in case of national need and assists in the formulation of plans for stockpiling of strategic and critical materials.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30, are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $1,190 thousand (1966 adjustments, -$6 thousand); 1966, $1,320 thousand; 1967, $1,458 thousand; 1968, $1,512 thousand.

International activities of the Department are designed to stimulate the expansion of United States foreign commerce. This assists in the growth of the national economy by creating new jobs, increasing industry profits, and reducing the balance-of-payments deficit.

1. International trade promotions.—The sale of American-made goods overseas is promoted by exhibiting American products at international trade fairs, trade centers, sample display services, mobile trade fairs, and through America Week programs. The effectiveness of this activity can be measured by the dollar volume of sales consummated or anticipated by U.S. firms, and overseas agency relationships established as a result of these promotions. In 1966, for example, immediate sales made at 22 commercial exhibitions totaled $8.6 million, with an additional $80.4 million projected for the next 12 months, and 303 new agencies were established. Immediate sales made at 43 shows, held at 6 trade centers in 1966, totaled $3.8 million, with $79.6 million projected for the next 12 months, and 203 new agencies were established.

Increases for 1968 will provide for a greater number of commercial exhibitions, more efficient use of trade center facilities, establishment of a fourth sample display service, greater use of mobile trade fairs, and planning for establishment of a trade-development service center in a developing country where long-term export potential exists.

2. Promotion of international investment.—U.S. policy and business interests are advanced by stimulating the flow of private investment capital to the United States and wider U.S. private investment and licensing in developing countries.

3. Commercial information.—Business and Government agencies are provided information on economic and commercial developments abroad. Assistance is rendered to American exporters in selecting and establishing profitable relationships with overseas representatives and manufacturers through such media as trade lists, World Trade Directory Reports, trade contract surveys, and the American International Traders Index. The increase for 1968 is to develop trade promotion programs for firms desiring to enter the export markets.

4. International trade and investment policy development.—Efforts are made to remove barriers to, improve the climate for, and facilitate the operations of American business abroad. Such efforts include (1) the development of policies and programs in connection with international trade, finance, resources, and export credit; (2) the conduct of international commercial and financial negotiations in major international forums (such as GATT, OECD, UN); and (3) the representation of American interests in obtaining equitable treatment in foreign countries. Funds are requested in 1968 to implement international commodities agreements, work for possible international adoption of uniform commercial laws, and other activities designed to facilitate U.S. trade and investment abroad.

5. Commercial/economic officers program support.—The Commerce Department participates in the recruitment, assignment, career management, and promotion of commercial/economic officers in the Foreign Service who represent U.S. commercial interests overseas.

The use of excess foreign currencies to support commercial trade exhibitions in developing countries helps to improve our balance of payments position and assists in strengthening the U.S. economy by stimulating and expanding our foreign commerce. At commercial trade exhibitions in developing countries where the United States holds an excess of foreign currency, the use of such currencies assists in providing displays to bring American products to the attention of foreign buyers, and promotes U.S. foreign policy objectives by presenting a favorable image of the United States in the developing countries.

Export controls are necessary to protect the domestic economy from excessive drain of scarce commodities, to safeguard the national security by regulating exports of strategic commodities, and to implement U.S. foreign policy. Since some countries continue to constitute a threat to the security and welfare of the United States, these controls must be continued and, as necessary, extended to other areas to guard against transshipment to unauthorized destinations. The Bureau of Customs is responsible for the policing of shipments at points of export.

The 1968 program anticipates a leveling off in licensing activities to about 600 applications per day.

1. International trade promotion.—Field offices support the Department's international activities programs by providing local businessmen with information on overseas markets and buyers, counsel on commercial laws and regulations affecting overseas business, and inform business on opportunities for foreign investment. During 1966, 1,007 new exporters were reported as a result of Field Services efforts.

2. Industry and market information services.—Information to industry is furnished on the business services of the Department, including (1) publicizing the results of Government generated research and development, (2) assistance on productivity increase matters, (3) and assistance on such Government programs as youth opportunity, and business assistance to minority groups.

The Office of Field Services also publishes the "Commerce Business Daily" which is the prime source of data for business on Government contracting activity.

The United States is participating, jointly with the State of Alaska, in the 1967 statewide celebration of the centennial of the Alaska Purchase. The Department of Commerce will plan, coordinate, supervise, and administer Federal participation in those ceremonies and exhibits where such participation will enhance the national or international significance of the event.

Grants providing up to 50% of the cost of any individual project are being made to the State of Alaska, its political subdivisions, or nonprofit corporations. Projects are approved by the State and must be found by the Secretary of Commerce to contribute to the purpose of the Alaska centennial, result in an enduring symbol of the significance of the Alaska Purchase, and be a permanent contribution to the economy of Alaska.

$600 thousand was allocated for the purpose of participating in ceremonies and exhibits which are a part of the centennial celebration. It is estimated that $129 thousand of this amount will be unobligated at the end of 1967, and will be carried over into 1968 for that year's programs and for dismantling and disposal of exhibits at the end of the centennial year.

The United States Travel Service develops, plans, and carries out a program to stimulate and encourage travel to the United States by residents of foreign countries. The principal program activities are carried out by a travel promotion division which supervises (1) the creation and placement of trade and consumer travel advertising, (2) production and distribution of sales promotion materials to the public and the travel industry abroad, (3) solicitation and writing of timely articles for placement in the foreign press, (4) production of travel films for use overseas and (5) the operation of overseas offices for answering travel inquiries and for carrying out promotional activities at the local level; by a visitor services division which works with the domestic travel industry and with U.S. communities for improving the reception, service, and hospitality given to foreign visitors; and by a facilitation and planning division which conducts research programs in the support of promotional activities and works with other foreign and U.S. Government agencies to reduce official barriers to travel. In 1967, 11 overseas travel information offices will serve as centers for answering public and trade inquiries on U.S. travel and as headquarters for sales calls and other promotional activities. The estimate for 1968 includes funds for increased emphasis on the production of a wider range and quantity of promotional materials. The request will also permit a strengthening of USTS headquarters support, an increase in European office staffs, the establishment of a convention promotion facility, and more intensive market research in present and new country markets.

An average annual gain of 8.8% in the flow of overseas business and pleasure visitors to the United States was made in the 9-year period prior to the establishment of the United States Travel Service in 1961. Since establishment, through 1965, the average gain has been 19.5%. As a result of these increases, the overseas portion of the travel deficit in the U.S. balance of payments has been held to a worsening of only $78 million out of a total deterioration of $331 million in the travel gap since 1960.

1. Weather forecasts and warning services.—This activity is concerned with current weather conditions; these weather conditions are measured, described, and analyzed to prepare forecasts and warnings of weather and storms and are disseminated to provide maximum benefit to the Nation.

The 1968 program increases are for air pollution forecasts; increases in fire-weather services; expanded observation capabilities in the aviation weather service; strengthening forecasts of marine weather; expansion of the basic observation network; increases in the World

2. River and flood prediction and warning services.—This activity deals with the measurement, description, and analyses of river conditions and the issuance of river stages and flood warnings.

The 1968 program increases are for improving hydrologic service capabilities and modernizing reporting networks, and improvement of water management information service.

SELECTED OUTPUT DATA

3. Earth description, mapping and charting services.—This activity deals with four major areas; i.e., geodesy—the precise measurement of physical parameters of the earth; geomagnetism—to improve data on the distribution, both strength and direction, of the earth's magnetic field; seismology—to determine location of earthquakes and issue seawave warning alerts; aeronautical charting—the production and maintenance of aeronautical charts and related publications needed for navigation in the airspace of the United States and its possessions.

Highlights of the 1968 increases are for preparation of coastal inundation and low-water boundary maps; continued and new studies of the marine environment and earthquake mechanics; systems maintenance in horizontal control and geomagnetic studies; expansion of seismic sea wave warning network; and increased aeronautical charting service.

4. Hydrographic and oceanographic services.—This activity deals with the exploration and survey of the Continental Shelf and the deep sea to determine the physical, geophysical, chemical, and geological properties for practical use of the oceans' resources. Published papers, reports, maps, tide and current tables, and sea level information are some of the end products of this activity.

Surveys of coastal areas and tidal waterways are conducted and nautical charts and related publications are produced for the safety of marine navigation.

The 1968 increases provide for expansion of surveying, including the operation of seven replacement ships, data collection and distribution, and nautical chart production.

5. Telecommunications and space services.—Provides services toward improving the understanding of the scientific and technical aspects of radio propagation in the ionosphere and troposphere; and monitors and predicts disturbances in the space environment having important implications on man's use of the upper atmosphere and space.

6. Environmental data services.—Provides for the national and international acquisition of climatic data; and the archiving, processing for storage and recall, publication, and dissemination of geophysical, climatologic, and aeronomy and space data as such information is required by users.

The 1968 increases provide for expansion of National Oceanographic Data Center support, conversion to joint computer with the Air Force; expansion of Seismological Data Center for worldwide standardized seismograph network; upgrading geophysical data centers; Geomagnetic Data Center and the hiring of more earth scientists.

1. Weather forecasts and warning services.—This activity includes meteorological research and development designed to improve the weather forecasting and warning services of Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA) by gaining a fuller understanding of the composition and dynamics of the atmosphere and its circulation. The 1968 increases will provide for development of improved systems and techniques for forecasting of hurricanes, tornadoes, marine weather, clear air turbulence, hail, and lightning; design of global telecommunications systems; studies to improve detection and prediction of hurricanes and other tropical storms; and weather modification research.

2. River and flood prediction and warning services.—This activity includes research to further improve the river and flood forecasting services and development of specialized equipment and instrumentation related to prediction and water resources services. The 1968 increase will provide for research to improve hydrologic predictions and measurement of precipitation; and studies of storm characteristics, mathematical hydrologic models, channel hydraulics, and specialized river forecasting problems.

3. Earth description, mapping, and charting services.—This activity includes research directed toward understanding the intricate processes and phenomena of the solid earth: e.g., determining the size and shape of the earth, geomagnetic observations, seismological observations, and efforts directed toward improvement of the aeronautical charting program. The increase proposed for 1968 will provide for earthquake prediction studies.

4. Hydrographic and oceanographic services.—This activity includes research directed toward the further improvement of hydrographic and oceanographic data systems, nautical chart systems for ocean and coastal environments, tsunami research, research related to the interaction between land and sea, and air and sea, and research in hydrographic and oceanographic processes. The 1968 increases will provide for research directed to understanding tsunami propagation and modification; research to acquire more detailed knowledge of the constant and variable properties of the oceans, their phenomena and the interaction between the oceans and the atmosphere; development of instrumentation to measure micro-variations in ocean temperature, salinity, oxygen, and current, and the development of observational equipment and techniques for research vessels; integration of oceanographic graphic and geophysical relationships through use of computers; and investigation of heat flow through ocean bottoms.

5. Telecommunications and space services.—This activity includes research leading to an improved understanding of the propagation of radio and light waves, directed toward improvement in predictions of propagation conditions, warnings of electromagnetic disturbances, and increased efficiency in the use of radio and light waves for telecommunications purposes. The 1968 increase will provide for research to increase the effectiveness of telecommunications systems by improving our understanding of antennas, methods of signal modulation and demodulation, properties of electromagnetic noise and interference, and the distorting effects of the lower atmosphere on radio waves traveling through it; and expansion of solar flare forecasting and monitoring programs.

6. Environmental satellite services.—This activity provides for research in the environmental satellite program to determine the most beneficial method of data selection, collection, and use by operational programs. The 1968 increase will provide expanded efforts to develop satellite sensors for incorporation into existing operational systems and to develop constant level balloons for use in conjunction with satellites for collection of environmental data.

7. Environmental data services.—This activity provides for research leading to determination of the best methods for collection, collation, and presentation of environmental data. The 1968 increase will provide for studies of synoptic aspects of climatology and areal distribution associated with water supply and drought problems.

The special foreign currency program utilizes foreign currencies, which are excess to the normal requirements of the United States, to supplement domestic research and development activities and to encourage greater cooperation in international environmental research and allied sciences. Activity categories are the same as those described under the Research and development appropriation. Programs proposed for 1968 are:

1. Weather forecasts and warning services.—Studies of large-scale atmospheric motions, forecasting techniques, drought, cloud physics, energy exchanges, severe storms, tropical disturbances, and data collection and dissemination.

2. River and flood prediction and warning services.—Studies of the hydrologic cycle, stream flow, evaporation and condensation, and river and flood forecasting in representative basins.

3. Earth description, mapping, and charting services.—Studies leading to a better understanding of geodetic, geomagnetic, and seismological phenomena; and acquisition of additional seismological data for research use.

4. Hydrographic and oceanographic services.—Studies directed toward a better understanding and improved prediction of tides, currents, storm surges, ocean waves, tsunamis and oceanographic phenomena.

5. Telecommunications and space services.—Studies of the propagation of electromagnetic waves in the earth and atmosphere and the effect of the sun on the upper atmosphere.

6. Environmental satellite services.—Studies relating to the collection, analysis, interpretation, transmission, and application of satellite data in the fields of meteorology, oceanography, hydrology, geodesy, aeronomy, geomagnetism, ionospheric physics, and other related geophysical sciences.

7. Environmental data services.—Development of techniques for more effective use of climatological, geophysical, ionospheric, aeronomic, and other related data, and the analysis of such data.

This account provides for capital outlay items, such as construction related to magnetic, seismological, meteorological, and oceanographic facilities, including ships, and purchase and installation of equipment and instrumentation required in support of the Environmental Science Services Administration's operational and research programs and services. Requirements under this appropriation are of a nonrecurring nature and, thus, are justified from a zero base year to year.

1. Weather forecasts and warning services.—Operational programs under this activity are concerned with gathering and transmitting meteorological data to the general public and specialized segments of the economy in the form of timely forecasts, warnings, and advisories. In 1968, $3,078 thousand is required for extension of the radar network, emergency communication and power facilities in the hurricane and tornado areas of the United States, equipment for the air pollution program, and establishment and/or relocation of upper air stations.

2. River and flood prediction and warning services.—This activity provides for the equipment needed to operate the river and flood forecasts and warnings network and for effective water resources management. Both the automation of the reporting network and the establishment of additional flash flood warning services are included in the recommendations of House Document 465. Program emphasis in 1968 will be on purchase and installation of new automated observing and warning equipment for which $110 thousand is requested.

3. Earth description, mapping, and charting services.—Requirements of $250 thousand in 1968 under this activity cover purchase of geodetic equipment related to continental shelf surveys and procurement of seismological instrumentation for installation and use in the seawave warning system.

4. Hydrographic and oceanographic services.—In 1968, $1,380 thousand is requested under this activity to provide for automated equipment for the ship Researcher, now under construction, additional berthing facilities at the Atlantic Marine Center, Norfolk, Va., and engineering and design studies related to facilities needed for the Institute for Oceanography.

5. Telecommunications and space services.—Under this activity, $280 thousand is requested for purchase of four ionosondes, a radar-type instrument which measures the height and density of ions or electrons in the ionosphere. This equipment program begins the overdue replacement of the presently outmoded instruments (20-year-old design). The design advances will make it possible to obtain, more efficiently and economically, information on the ionosphere needed for short-term predictions as well as the regular ionospheric services.

6. Environmental data services.—No equipment and/or facilities in support of operational programs under this activity are requested in 1968.

7. Engineering support.—A total of $1,019 thousand is requested in 1968 to provide for the inhouse engineering and planning, site surveys, onsite supervision of construction of ships and other facilities, and the procurement and installation of equipment and instrumentation.

It is estimated that an unobligated balance of $5,959 thousand under this no-year appropriation will be brought forward into 1968 and $3,987 thousand carried forward. These balances are required to complete the long lead-time construction, procurement, and installation actions inherent in the activities financed under the Facilities, Equipment, and Construction appropriation.

The Environmental Science Services Administration is responsible for the establishment and operation of a national satellite system to meet operational requirements for geophysical environmental data. The system is based on the National Operational Meteorological Satellite System (NOMSS), established to observe continuously worldwide weather conditions and to process, analyze, and archive the data for use in environmental services and research. The satellite system is administered by the National Environmental Satellite Center (NESC) at Suitland, Md.

The first element of NOMSS, the Tiros Operational Satellite (TOS) system, became operational in 1966. The addition of night-time observational capability to the system was funded in 1967. The 1968 estimate provides principally for continuation and improvement of the TOS system.

1. Spacecraft and launching.—This activity covers the design, construction, and launching of operational satellites. Two flight units must be funded in 1968 to maintain system continuity. Two launch vehicles and launch support services for five launches must also be funded.

2. Command and data acquisition.—This activity covers the establishment and operation of ground facilities for command of the spacecraft, acquisition of observational data, and transmission of data to the central processing and analysis center. Command and data acquisition (CDA) stations have been established at Fairbanks, Alaska, and Wallops Station, Va., and a TOS Operations Center (TOC) at Suitland, Md. Special communication systems link these facilities. The 1968 estimate provides for around-the-clock operation and maintenance of these facilities.

3. Data processing, analysis, and archiving.—ADP facilities are used to convert satellite observational data into forms suitable for immediate operational use in forecasting and service programs, and subsequent use for research and climatological purposes. The 1968 estimate provides for the 24-hour operation of central analysis and processing functions; systems engineering efforts leading toward improvement of the satellite system; increased automation of data-handling systems; and continuation of the Washington-Moscow communications link.

4. Technical management.—Technical management and support for the satellite program is provided by the National Environmental Satellite Center, and by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration on a reimbursable basis.

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for invention and the registration of trademarks.

For the first 2 years under the new Streamlined Examination Program, 1965 and 1966, patent application disposals have averaged 97,000 per year for a productivity increase of about 27% over the level experienced in 1963 and 1964. The continued program contemplates disposals of approximately 96,000 in 1967 and 103,000 in 1968. The 1968 estimate provides for the completion of the second-year addition of patent examiners and supporting personnel to deal with increased volume and complexity of work. The estimate also provides for an increase in U.S. activity in international patent and trademark affairs and for expanded modernization and mechanization measures designed to promote more effective and efficient service to the public.

Receipts from fees were $18.2 million in 1966. New legislation enacted by the 89th Congress (Public Law 89-83) approved July 24, 1965, provided for increased statutory patent and trademark fees effective October 25, 1965. With the new legislation in effect for a full year in 1967 and 1968, receipts from fees are estimated to be $24 million and $25 million, respectively. It is anticipated that a supplemental appropriation to provide for additional printing costs in 1967 will be necessary to carry out the following activities.

1. Examination and issuance of patents.—Applications are examined to determine the patentability of claimed inventions; and quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal and interference proceedings within the Office. Specifications and drawings of successful applications are printed and the issuance of patents is regularly published. In addition, this activity includes preparation and issuance of patent grants, furnishing copies of records, maintenance of public search room and scientific library facilities, and recording instruments conveying ownership of patent and trademark rights.

2. Examination and registration of trademarks.—Applications are examined to determine the registrability of trademarks, and quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal or adversary proceedings within the Office. Specifications and drawings of successful applications are printed and the issuance of registrations is regularly published.

Under existing legislation, 1967.—A supplemental appropriation of $900,000 is required to provide funds for additional printing costs attributable to an increase in Government Printing Office page rates, an increase in the number and size of patents eventuating for issuance, and an increase in the number of trademarks eventuating for registration. The increase in number of patents eventuating for issuance is primarily attributable to the acceleration provisions of the new patent fee legislation, Public Law 89-83, approved July 24, 1965.

The proposed increase will strengthen the Bureau's program principally with regard to the National Standard Reference Data System, automatic data processing, the central core of the physical measurement system, industrial standards, and research on the physical properties of materials. The Bureau's programs of basic and applied research, development of instruments and methods of measurement, general technical services, and the Federal clearinghouse are classified under eight subactivities.

1. (a) Basic measurements and standards.—This includes research, development, analysis, or specifications relating to existing or new standards for physical measurement; precise standard methods of measurement of physical quantities; and precise values of fundamental physical constants suitable for tying measurement systems together. The increase in this area will strengthen the research program of the basic core of the physical measurement system in response to the increasing demands of a technologically oriented society for new measurement capabilities.

(b) Reference materials.—This includes research to (a) prepare highly characterized matter and materials which are stable and reproducible and are suited for use in the definition of measurement standards, (b) provide reproducible characterized sample materials essential for measuring the properties of matter and materials, (c) provide a source of sample materials used in the acquisition of critically needed data, (d) provide methodology in preparation, purification and characterization of materials, (e) provide a scientific and technological basis for the Standard Reference Materials Program, evaluation and generation of physical properties of matter and materials, and much scientific and engineering instrumentation, (f) provide samples not otherwise readily available, which are urgently needed for engineering and scientific uses.

The increase in 1968 will be used to develop (1) high temperature and extreme environmental materials and (2) trace analysis useful in biological and physical systems.

(c) Standard reference data.—This includes programs arising as a result of the Bureau's responsibility for developing the Standard Reference Data System and other programs concerned with standard reference data. Work is directed toward obtaining from the scientific and technical literature systematically evaluated numerical data in the physical sciences needed by scientists and engineers. These data are the numbers that describe the properties of nature, the strengths of high temperature materials, the masses of atoms, the rates of chemical reactions, the wavelengths of light in emission spectra and many others. Programs involve analysis of needs, acquisition of data from all available sources, critical evaluation, and compilation for dissemination of data.

The increase will be applied principally to producing data compilations on thermodynamics and transport properties and on atomic and molecular properties.

(d) Data on the properties of matter and materials.—Data is generated in those areas of technology where it is urgently needed and cannot be readily attainable elsewhere. This program is a major contributor to the NBS data bank and is a major essential resource to U.S. industries in areas such as electronics, polymers, metallurgy, ceramics, communications, defense, and nuclear energy. The program supplements, and is a major contributor to the Basic Measurement System, the Standard Reference Data System, and Standard Reference Materials.

The increase will be applied to acquisition of data in fields where the need is most critical by (1) measurement of dielectric, mechanical, and optical properties of bulk materials, (2) research on the problems of corrosion, (3) operation of a research reactor to develop data concerning the effects of radiation on matter and materials,

(4) research on the molecular structure, and thermodynamic properties of pure refractory compounds and (5) development of measurement techniques by which to acquire data in high temperature high-pressure systems and plasma diagnostics, and analysis of the properties of paper used for the printing of permanent records.

(e) Technological standards.—This includes research and development of test methods and performance criteria as a basis for specifications, standards and codes pertaining to materials, products, and systems used in industry and commerce; participation in technical committees for standardizing bodies such as the United States of America Standards Institute; provision of methodologies for voluntary industrial standardization; and provision of information services pertaining to standardizing activities.

The increase will be applied to (1) development of performance criteria as a technical basis for standards in the building industry, (2) establishment of standards, particularly those needed for more effective international trade, and (3) standardizing activity related to quantities in packages of consumer commodities as specified in the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of 1966. A supplemental appropriation is anticipated to provide funds for implementing the "Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of 1966," Public Law 89-755, approved November 3, 1966.

2. (a) Computer science and technology.—This includes technical activities of the National Bureau of Standards which support automatic data processing and the effective utilization by Government of computer-based data processing and information handling systems. This includes, but is not limited to, investigation, design, and evaluation of complete systems, and the rendering of advice, consultation, and technical assistance to agencies of the Federal Government in connection with the design, selection, acquisition, and utilization of such systems. Closely connected with these technical activities are the following technical services: To provide technical leadership for and monitor the Federal Government's participation in the development, measurement, and testing of voluntary commercial automatic data processing standards in a manner consonant with Government requirements for a compatible complex of equipments, languages, and practices; to determine the need for and recommend establishment of uniform Federal standards where necessary to supplement voluntary commercial standards; and to maintain a specialized information service in support of all of the foregoing activities.

The increase will be applied to development of standards and to assistance to other Federal agencies aimed at optimizing the effectiveness of their data processing installations.

(b) Federal clearinghouse.—The Clearinghouse for Federal Scientific and Technical Information provides the following services: Collection of all unclassified technical reports generated by the Federal Government; indexing, reproducing, abstracting, announcing, and distributing these reports; analyzing, evaluating, and digesting contents of these reports and providing for special dissemination to regional centers and industries; and maintaining a clearinghouse for foreign technical translations. No increase is budgeted for this activity.

(c) Invention and innovation.—This includes programs related to the Bureau's broad mission which serve either to encourage invention and innovation or to encourage the greater use of technology by Government and industry. No increase is budgeted for this activity.

RESEARCH AND TECHNICAL SERVICES (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)—continued

National Bureau of Standards responsibilities for basic and applied research, improvement of standards, and dissemination of information on properties of materials, and measurement techniques are of sufficient breadth to permit ready utilization of research capabilities in other countries. The foreign currency program supplements the Bureau's existing program, allows an acceleration of research effort in selected areas, and permits economies to the Bureau's regular appropriations over the long term.

The 1968 program, authorized by section 104(k) of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, represents no increase in the size of the program. Foreign currencies determined by the Treasury Department to be excess to normal requirements of the United States will be used in non-Soviet bloc countries where scientific talent is available to augment the in-house capabilities of the Bureau in the areas of standard reference data, reference materials, and technological standards.

This will provide for construction and improvements to the plant and facilities of the National Bureau of Standards and procurement of major special facilities. The Bureau is currently in the process of moving from its Washington site to the new facilities located on a 565-acre tract near Gaithersburg, Md. The Bureau also has a large laboratory on a 217-acre site at Boulder, Colo., and two small radio field stations.

Capital outlay—1. Improvements and modifications.—The budget includes $200 thousand for minor capital improvements of a general nature required for the Bureau's laboratories and field stations. Other minor improvements, when of a special project-related character, are charged to the appropriation for Research and technical services. Noncapital alterations are charged to the operating costs of this appropriation.

2. General construction.—This activity includes improvements and construction items costing more than $40 thousand except for construction associated with the Bureau's relocation at Gaithersburg, Md. The budget includes $740 thousand for design of a building research facility. Anticipated costs in 1968 include $980 thousand for construction of a neutron physics addition to the radiation physics laboratory financed in a prior year, and $382 thousand for the budget year project.

3. Special facilities—(a) NBS facilities.—This subactivity includes the acquisition of large equipment items and any building construction and land acquisition associated with them. The budget includes $130 thousand for equipment for a vibration facility. Anticipated costs in 1968 include $990 thousand for items financed in prior years and $130 thousand for the budget year project. (b) Weights and measures standards for the States.—This subactivity finances the acquisition of basic reference standards of weight and measure for distribution to the States. Such action will help to ensure uniformity of weights and measures standards throughout the United States and provide the physical tools necessary for precision of measurement in business, industry, science, and education. The budget of $400 thousand provides for the third segment of the total estimated costs of $2 million for the 50 States. Anticipated costs in 1968 are $45 thousand from funds appropriated in 1967 and $355 thousand from the budget year appropriation.

This program assists the textile and apparel industries in developing and making more deliberate and extensive use of scientific and technological resources for economic growth. Expanded market opportunities that are made possible by increasing the rate of adoption of technological innovations in processes, products, and services, broaden the base of our civilian economy as well as make it more competitive with foreign producers.

The Working capital fund finances all operations of the National Bureau of Standards, except major construction projects, from advances and reimbursements. The principal of the fund, as of June 30, 1966, consisted of $5 million in appropriations, $7.9 million in capital provided by appropriations of the Bureau, and $157.3 million in net donated assets. The Government investment is estimated to grow through donation of cash and other assets financed by National Bureau of Standards' appropriations to $172.1 million by June 30, 1968.

Operating costs—1. Technical program.—Research and technical services are conducted by the National Bureau of Standards on the request of other Government agencies and the public, as well as in support of the Bureau's own research program. The program conducted on contract with other agencies constitutes about one-third of the technical work of the Bureau and it is expected to continue at this level. Other agency contracts not falling within standards or special central missions are included in miscellaneous services.

2. Plant improvement and special equipment.—This activity includes the costs of the Working capital fund which are reimbursed from the Bureau's capital outlay appropriations. The plant improvements and special equipment procured are donated to the fund upon completion and carried as assets of the fund at cost.

Capital outlay.—Working capital of the fund is invested in equipment which is subject to depreciation charges. Some of the equipment for the new laboratories of the Bureau is being purchased as an investment of the fund, the additional capital being provided by payments from the appropriation for construction of facilities. All other equipment and facilities financed by Bureau appropriations are shown as donated assets of the fund.

Operating results.—Retained earnings at the end of each year are transferred to Treasury the year following.

This appropriation provides for payments of subsidy to ship operators in order to maintain a U.S. merchant fleet in support of U.S. foreign commerce and capable of serving as a naval auxiliary in event of a national emergency. The program is designed to pay the difference between the fair and reasonable cost of certain expenses (wages and subsistence of crew, insurance, vessel maintenance and repair) and the estimated cost of the same items if the ships were operated under foreign registry. To be eligible for subsidy, an operator must provide regular berth services on an essential trade route, show that Government aid is necessary to place the operation on a parity with its foreign competition, and employ vessels constructed in the United States and manned by U.S. citizens.

During calendar year 1965, 15 operators had operating-differential subsidy contracts with the Maritime Administration and provided service on 34 essential foreign trade routes. These operators carried 10.6 million deadweight tons of cargo, a decrease of 6.6% over calendar year 1964, which decrease was due to the 1965 labor strike and ships off subsidy and on charter to MSTs.

The total of vessel operating expenses for subsidized ships was $686 million, of which $304 million, or 44%, represented subsidizable items of expense. The operations for which subsidy support is projected are detailed in the following table.

The budget estimate for 1968 reflects authority for conduct of 1,643 voyages involving an average of 284 vessels. It assumes that the Department of Defense will continue to charter U.S. merchant ships for supply of overseas bases at about the same level as 1967.

Passenger and freight services.—Fifteen operators using an average of 311 ships conducted and terminated 1,490 voyages from U.S. ports on the Atlantic, Gulf, Pacific, and Great Lakes areas to foreign ports in all the major coastal areas in the world during calendar year 1965.

Recapture of excess profits.—All contracts for operating subsidy provide that 50% of the net profits earned from the contractors' subsidized operations and services which over a 10-year period exceed 10% of capital necessarily employed shall be withheld from payments made by the Government. This recapture is calculated annually based upon cumulative profits earned since the beginning of the recapture period. The estimate for the current and budget years, shown in the program and financing schedule, assumes that the first quarter of calendar year 1966 profit experience of each operator will be continued.

Status of unfunded contract authorization.—The computation and approval of final subsidy rates and audit of annual accountings will make it possible to make payments of 100% of subsidy payable on account of operations prior to December 31, 1961. The $110 million unpaid subsidy, as of June 30, 1968, represents a backlog consisting largely of amounts withheld pending final rate and audit determinations for operations subsequent to calendar year 1961, plus estimated amounts earned in the final quarter of 1968.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

For expenses necessary for research, development, fabrication, and test operation of experimental facilities and equipment; collection and dissemination of maritime technical and engineering information; studies to improve water transportation systems; and supporting services related to nuclear ship operation; [$7,500,000] $7,625,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That transfers may be made to the appropriation for the current fiscal year for "Salaries and expenses" for administrative expenses (not to exceed $900,000) and any such transfers shall be without regard to the limitation under that appropriation on the amount available for such expenses: Provided further, That transfers may be made from this appropriation to the "Vessel operations revolving fund" for losses resulting from expenses of experimental ship operations. Merchant marine directed research.—This activity is directed toward specific improvements in shipyard construction, ship design and construction, ship operations, port and terminal operations and maritime transportation systems based on pre-established goals and time schedules.

Advanced ships and systems.—This activity provides for long-range research directed toward new merchant marine concepts and developments to meet future needs.

NS "Savannah" operation.—Servicing, maintaining and operating the NS Savannah including all related supporting services; all the operation activities of the ship are funded through the Vessel Operations Revolving Fund, which is reimbursed through this appropriation.

Administrative expenses.—Expenses for personnel services, travel, reporting, etc. of the Office of Research and Development and for the administrative expenses of other offices for work associated with research and development activities.

Public Law 84-415 (46 U.S.C. 1126), established the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N. Y., to provide a program for the training of cadets for service as officers in the U.S. Merchant Marine. A 4-year training course is provided, including 1 year of sea duty, designed to qualify graduates for licenses as merchant marine deck or engine officers. The Academy provides subsistence, quarters, tuition, uniform and textbook allowances, medical, and dental care for the cadets. A cadet training liaison staff in Washington, D.C., provides staff assistance to the Maritime Administrator on training matters, and assists in the selection and appointment of cadets.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1965, $2,536 thousand (1966 adjustments, -$1 thousand); 1966, $2,365 thousand; 1967, $2,386 thousand; 1968, $2,464 thousand.

The States of Maine, Massachusetts, New York, Texas, and California maintain schools for the training of merchant marine officers, with Federal assistance given in the form of (a) direct grants of $75 thousand, if matched by State appropriations and if out-of-State students are enrolled; (b) allowance to cadets for uniforms, textbooks, and subsistence; and (c) repairs to Federal training vessels loaned to the schools.

The Maritime Academy Act (72 Stat. 622) provides contract authority for the Secretary of Commerce to enter into agreements with States to provide these grants and allowances over a 4-year period. This act provides contract authority without limit as to amount or fiscal year. The new obligational authority includes the estimated obligations to be incurred under this authority. Maintenance and repair of training vessels are accomplished through annual appropriations. These schools are expected to graduate a total of 350 to 400 cadets in 1968.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

No additional vessel shall be allocated under charter, nor shall any vessel be continued under charter by reason of any extension of chartering authority beyond June 30, 1949, unless the charterer shall agree that the Maritime Administration shall have no obligation upon redelivery to accept or pay for consumable stores, bunkers, and sloop-chest items, except with respect to such minimum amounts of bunkers as the Maritime Administration considers advisable to be retained on the vessel and that prior to such redelivery all consumable stores, sloop-chest items, and bunkers over and above such minimums shall be removed from the vessel by the charterer at his own expense.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Maritime Administration is authorized to furnish utilities and services and make necessary repairs in connection with any lease, contract, or occupancy involving Government property under control of the Maritime Administration, and payments received by the Maritime Administration for utilities, services, and repairs so furnished or made shall be credited to the appropriation charged with the cost thereof: Provided, That rental payments under any such lease, contract, or occupancy on account of items other than such utilities, services, or repairs shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

No obligations shall be incurred during the current fiscal year from the construction fund established by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, or otherwise, in excess of the appropriations and limitations contained in this Act, or in any prior appropriation Act, and all receipts which otherwise would be deposited to the credit of said fund shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Under the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, the Maritime Administration received authority to insure construction loans and mortgages with aggregate outstanding balances of up to $1 billion, on vessels engaged in the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States.

Budget program.—The fund reflects the complete payment of Treasury borrowings by June 30, 1968. There are no other anticipated mortgage defaults and advances in 1967 or 1968.

Financing.—The redemption of defaulted loans or mortgages is financed from insurance premiums and fees, interest earned on U.S. Government securities and mortgages held, together with such amounts as may be necessary by borrowings from the Treasury Department, pursuant to Public Law 85-520 (46 U.S.C. 1275(b)).

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1966, balances outstanding plus commitments for additional ship mortgages total $485.1 million. The outstanding balances for loans and mortgages at the end of 1967 and 1968 are projected at $541 million and $615 million, respectively. The 1966 activity of the fund reflects the foreclosure of the SS Atlas for $7.5 million and the sale for $7.7 million, involving a $6.7 million, 12-year mortgage. It was necessary to borrow $5.8 million from Treasury in reference to the foreclosure of the SS Atlas. Earnings resulting from premium and interest receipts are retained to meet possible additional requirements for advances to mortgagors. The fund in 1966, 1967, and 1968 reflects repayments to the Treasury of $4.4 million, $5.2 million and $1.5 million, respectively. It is anticipated that the fund will purchase $2.5 million of Treasury securities in 1968.

This fund finances direct operation and charter of cargo vessels for transport of military and Government impelled cargo. It is also used for the operation of Government-owned experimental vessels (46 U.S.C. 1205).

Budget program—1. Vessel operations expense.—Cargo vessels are operated by private operators as agents of the Maritime Administration to carry shipments for the Military Sea Transportation Service.

2. Charter operations.—As of June 30, 1966, there were three Government-owned vessels under charter to a private operator operating in the Alaskan trade.

3. Experimental ship operations.—Effective August 20, 1965, the NS Savannah went on experimental commercial operation under bareboat charter agreement for a 3-year period subject to annual review. During 1968 the ship will be laid up in one of the reserve fleets or at the Galveston facility.

Financing.—Expenses are financed from revenue and reimbursements from Military Sea Transportation Service and other appropriations, in accordance with 65 Stat. 59.

Operating results and financial condition—1. Vessel operations.—Rates charged the Military Sea Transportation Service cover full costs arising under general agency agreement for ship operations.

2. Charter operations.—A net income of $71 thousand will result from operation of charters to private operators in 1968. The $277 thousand net income for 1966 is due largely to charter hire adjustment of prior year contracts.

3. Experimental ship operation—NS Savannah.—The $1.4 million represents the cost to the Government of laying up the NS Savannah during 1968. The amount is reimbursable in full from the Research and development appropriation.

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified in the statement of financial condition.

The Maritime Administration is authorized by 46 U.S.C. 1281-1294, as amended, to insure against loss or damage by marine war risks when it is found commercial insurance cannot be obtained on reasonable terms and conditions. Authority to underwrite insurance has been authorized to September 1970 having been extended at 5-year intervals since 1950.

Budget program.—As of June 30, 1966, the number of outstanding binders issued for the types of insurance covered by this fund were: 1,487 for hulls, 1,346 for protection and indemnity, and 1,113 for insurance of crew life and personal effects. These binders which become effective as a result of the outbreak of war cover approximately $13 billion of insurance exposure. Second seamen's war risk insurance has been provided at the request of the Navy—without premium but on a reimbursable basis as required by 46 U.S.C. 1285 on 30 vessels for the Military Sea Transportation Service as of June 30, 1966. It is estimated that this service has provided a savings of $260 thousand.

Financing.—46 U.S.C. 1288(a) provides authority for the Secretary of Commerce to transfer up to $10 million from the Vessel operations revolving fund, to the War risk insurance revolving fund. Revenue in the fund is received from fees paid for the issuance of interim binders, premiums paid for builder's risk insurance, interest from investments, and reimbursable charges from the Navy.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

ACTIVE FORCES

The following narrative statement covers the basic active duty appropriations for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force.

1. Pay and allowances of officers.—This provides for the pay and allowances of officers of the military service on active duty.

2. Pay and allowances of enlisted.—This provides for the pay and allowances of enlisted persons of the military service on active duty, and payments for initial issues and replacement clothing under the monetary clothing allowance system.

3. Pay and allowances of cadets and midshipmen.—This provides for the pay and allowances of cadets and midshipmen at the three service academies, and aviation cadets.

The numbers of active duty military personnel provided for are shown in the following table:

Supplemental appropriations for 1967 are anticipated for separate transmittal to provide funds for the additional costs resulting from enactment of legislation effective July 1, 1966, increasing the basic pay of military personnel. Other legislation enacted during the 2d session of the 89th Congress amends the Officer Grade Limitation Act to increase the number of field grade officers in the Air Force, and amends the Uniformed Services Savings Deposits Act to provide payment of interest not to exceed 10% a year on money deposited, extends participation to include officers, and provides that new deposits can be made only by members on permanent duty outside the United States or its possessions. Additional supplementals are being requested to finance the cost of support of operations in Southeast Asia.

4. Subsistence of enlisted personnel.—This provides for the purchase of food supplies for issue as rations to enlisted personnel, including emergency and operational rations. In addition, it provides for a cash allowance paid to enlisted personnel who are given permission to mess separately or who are stationed at places where rations in kind are not available.

5. Permanent change of station travel.—This provides for permanent change of station travel of individuals and groups of military personnel and their dependents, including dislocation and separation travel allowances, storage of household goods in commercial facilities, and transportation of personal property. Payment for services furnished by the Military Sea Transportation Service and Military Airlift Command for transportation to and from overseas of military personnel, their dependents, household goods, and automobiles is also included.

6. Other military personnel costs.—This provides for expenses of apprehension of deserters and escaped military prisoners, payment of interest on money deposited as savings by military personnel stationed in foreign countries, payment of the Government's share of the cost of group life insurance, and payment of death gratuities to beneficiaries of military personnel.

RESERVE FORCES

The following narrative statement covers the appropriations for the National Guard and Reserve components of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force.

National Guard and Reserve personnel.—This program provides funds for training members of the Ready Reserve required for early mobilization needs of the Active Forces. Most of the paid National Guard and Reserve components personnel perform 48 or 24 drills and attend 2 weeks of active duty for training each year. Other personnel not requiring as intensive training receive only a period of active duty for training (usually 2 weeks) during the year. Active duty for basic training is provided for personnel enlisting in a National Guard or Reserve component who have not previously received military training. Service schools and special tours of active duty training provide additional training for limited numbers of the Ready Reserve.

Increased personnel and additional training are being provided for selected units of the reserve components to meet Southeast Asia requirements. The additional personnel strength is included in the total numbers.

The numbers of National Guard and Reserve component personnel estimated to participate in the paid training programs are summarized in the following table:

Reserve officer candidates.—The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a collegiate institution at which an ROTC unit has been established. The curriculum includes instruction in military and academic subjects together with one or more summer active duty training periods with the Active Forces. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum period of 2 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964 authorizes a limited number of scholarships for 4-year ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships are required to serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer. The Army and Air Force each awarded 2,000 scholarships in 1967 and about 3,000 will be awarded by each of these services in 1968. Approximately 5,400 members of the Navy program will receive scholarships in 1968.

The ROTC Vitalization Act also authorized a 2-year ROTC program as well as the traditional 4-year program. A student may qualify for the 2-year program by attending a 6 weeks summer camp in lieu of completing the first 2 years of the traditional 4-year program.

The Navy and Marine Corps also provide for an officer candidate program wherein students attending any accredited college or university may enroll, attend prescribed summer military training programs, and receive a commission after graduation. They are then required to serve at least 3 years on active duty.

In addition, all military departments provide 2 years of basic military training for college students who elect, or are required by the college, to enroll in the course for the first 2 years but who do not elect or are not selected to continue as candidates for officer commissions.

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force provide training for students who elect to enroll in ROTC training at the secondary level of education. The Army's high school level ROTC program is expected to increase to over 500 schools by the end of 1968. The Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force initiated Junior ROTC programs last year and are programed to have 60, 10, and 70 units, respectively, in operation in 1968.

Enrollments at the beginning of the school year in these programs are summarized below:

RESERVE PERSONNEL, ARMY

For pay, allowances, clothing, subsistence, gratuities, travel, and related expenses for personnel of the Army Reserve on active duty under sections 265 and 3033 of title 10, United States Code, or while undergoing reserve training or while performing drills or equivalent duty, and for members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, as authorized by law; [$288,211,000] $297,200,000: Provided, That the Army Reserve will be programed to attain an average strength of not less than two hundred sixty thousand for fiscal year 1967: Provided further, That—

[(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, until June 30, 1968, the President may order to active duty any member of the Ready Reserve of an armed force who—]

[(1) is not assigned to, or participating satisfactorily in, a unit in the Selected Reserve, and]

[(2) has not fulfilled his statutory reserve obligation, and]

[(3) has not served on active duty or active duty for training for a total of twenty-four months.]

[(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law, until June 30, 1968, the President may order to active duty any member of the Ready Reserve of an armed force who had become a member of a reserve component prior to July 1, 1966; and who]

[(1) has not served on active duty or active duty for training for a period of one hundred and twenty days or more, and]

[(2) has not fulfilled his statutory reserve military obligation.]

[(c) A member ordered to active duty under this section may be required to serve on active duty until his total service on active duty or active duty for training equals twenty-four months. If the enlistment or period of military service of a member of the Ready Reserve ordered to active duty under subsection (a) or (b) of this section would expire before he has served the required period of active duty prescribed herein, his enlistment or period of military service may be extended until that service on active duty has been completed.]

[(d) In order to achieve fair treatment as between members in the Ready Reserve who are being considered for active duty under this section, appropriate consideration shall be given to—]

[(1) family responsibilities; and]

[(e) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, until June 30, 1968, the President may, when he deems it necessary, order to active duty any unit of the Ready Reserve of an armed force for a period of not to exceed twenty-four months]. This estimate includes funds for the pay of all military personnel on the retired lists of the Department of Defense. The estimate represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for (a) payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) the retainer pay of regular enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Fleet Marine Corps Reserve; and (c) survivors' benefits. The substantial gains to the retired rolls can be directly attributed to the greater number of individuals attaining eligibility for retirement after 20 or more years of active military service. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1966 compared with the estimated numbers for 1967 and 1968.

A supplemental appropriation for 1967 is anticipated for separate transmittal. The supplemental will cover increased retirement costs caused by the 3.2% pay increase authorized by Public Law 89-501 as well as the 3.7% increase in the retired pay of those individuals on the retired rolls as of December 1, 1966, caused by an increase in the Consumer Price Index as provided in 10 U.S.C. 1401a(b), as amended.

Under the provisions of the retired serviceman's family protection plan, retired service personnel who elect to receive reduced amounts of retired pay are able to provide for monthly payments to be continued to their survivors. The reductions are determined on a basis designed to establish an actuarially sound system. Current appropriations provide only for the net payments to be made each year, and the liability for future payments of survivor benefits is unfunded. Administrative expenses of this family protection plan are provided as operation and maintenance costs of the military services. The accumulated difference between reductions in retired pay and actual payments of survivor benefits is indicated in the following table (in thousands of dollars);

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

The Operation and maintenance appropriations of the Department of Defense provide funds for the day-to-day cost of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the Reserve Forces, and related support activities of the Department of Defense. Included are the combat forces under the control of various unified and specified commands, as well as the logistical, training, and administrative activities provided by each military department and the defense agencies.

Financial requirements for these appropriations are influenced by a variety of factors, the principal of which are military and civilian strength, force levels, rates of operational activity, numbers of installations, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, etc.) in operation.

The continuing increases in Southeast Asia combat activities add to the financial requirements of the Operation and maintenance accounts. In 1967, a portion of these funds will be provided by a supplemental appropriation. In 1968, appropriation estimates include these support costs. The estimates for both years reflect the increased tempo of ground, ship, and aircraft operations which have resulted in abnormally heavy usage of fuel and other consumables. The larger number of troops in Southeast Asia requires additional personnel and logistic support. Large base complexes must be operated and maintained, and additional communication circuits are required.

In addition to direct costs incurred in Southeast Asia, support costs provide for logistic backup in the United States and the Pacific area. These include heavier workloads at depot-level maintenance and repair facilities resulting from intensified use of aircraft, ships, and other equipment, and at supply activities in filling requisitions. Funds are included for the airlift and sealift of materiel to combat areas. Additional training activity in both the Active and Reserve forces will result from the increase in total military strength.

Two of the significant elements of costs covered in these appropriations are the pay of civilian employees and the cost of supplies consumed. Under a program initiated in 1966, approximately 60,000 civilians will have replaced military personnel by June 30, 1967, in noncombat or support type positions at military installations, activities or headquarters, mainly in the United States. The 1968 estimate includes funds for approximately 34,000 additional civilian replacements. These actions will make greater numbers of military personnel available for duty in combat units or in combat areas.

Supply consumption relates primarily to the operation of the various weapons systems, including the fuel and repair parts used in aircraft, ships, and tanks. The 1968 estimate provides for more complex and expensive equipment becoming operational, as well as the increased annual requirements to support Southeast Asia operations.

Support programs common to each military department, such as supply, materiel maintenance, training, communications, and medical care are financed by these appropriations. Supply activities of the various services and of the Defense Supply Agency procure, store, distribute, and compute requirements for military materiel. These various functions are conducted at supply depots and centers, shipyards, inventory control points, procurement offices, and other logistical installations throughout the world.

Training activities provide for the individual training of officers and enlisted men including recruit training, career training, and specialized training in many skills, such as pilot training. The majority of individual training is conducted through resident courses of instruction at the various training bases, service schools, and colleges, although some educational facilities of civilian institutions are used. The operation of the three service academies is also included.

A greater number of new pilots must be trained to fly the increasing quantity of operational aircraft. The 1968 estimates include funds to increase the annual production of new pilots from 10,256 to 13,517.

Communications support relates primarily to leased circuits, equipments, and facilities. Two defensewide automatic switching systems for voice and record traffic are being expanded to permit the elimination of smaller networks.

The military departments operate hospitals and clinics for active and retired military personnel and their dependents. Funds are also provided in these appropriations for medical care furnished by other Federal agencies and by civilian medical facilities. The act of September 30, 1966 (Public Law 89-614) extends to retired personnel and their dependents the use of civilian facilities.

The Department of Defense is initiating in 1967 a program to accept into the Armed Services 140,000 men who would have been previously rejected because of their failure to meet mental or physical standards. Remedial medical attention and special training, when necessary, will be provided this group to qualify them for military service. This action will broaden the manpower pool and provide more productive members of society, both while on active duty and upon their return to civilian life. Approximately 28,000 will be accepted under this program in 1967, and 87,000 in 1968.

Supplemental appropriations are proposed in 1967 to provide for the increased cost of Southeast Asia operations, and for personnel benefits authorized by recently enacted legislation.

This appropriation provides for the operations and other activities of the Active Army, and for those unified and specified command headquarters assigned to the Army.

1. Operating forces.—This program provides for the operational requirements of the U.S. Army combat and combat support forces. Included are funds for unit training and maneuvers, joint strategic mobility exercises, the operation and maintenance of installations where these forces are stationed, and the operation and maintenance of equipment and weapons systems used by the various combat and combat support units.

2. Training activities.—This program provides for recruit, technical, and professional training.

3. Central supply activities.—This program provides for logistics functions for the combat forces of the Army and the traffic management of all commercial transportation for the Department of Defense.

4. Depot materiel maintenance and support activities.—This program provides for major repair of equipment and materiel to maintain the Army's equipment in combat-ready condition.

5. Medical activities.—This program provides for the Army cost of medical care for military personnel and their families.

6. Armywide activities.—This program provides for worldwide command and direction of Army programs accomplished at major headquarters. It also provides for the support of certain joint headquarters for which the Army has executive agent responsibility, and for other administrative activities.

7. Army Reserve and ROTC.—This program provides for operation, maintenance, training and administration of the Army Reserve and ROTC.

(Seabees) maintained in readiness to support the military missions of the Fleet Marine Forces in oversea locations; they also operate and maintain the Antarctica logistics support stations.

6. Service-wide supply.—This activity finances major supply depots and centers and supply system transportation costs.

7. Service-wide operations.—Facilities and programs under the management of the Chief of Naval Operations, including his headquarters staff, are the principal activities financed under this heading. Also under this activity are the operations of the Office of the Secretary, the Department of the Navy Staff Offices (including the Judge Advocate General of the Navy and the Chief of Naval Research) and their field activities, and the Chief of Naval Material.

8. Naval petroleum reserves.—This activity provides for operation, conservation, maintenance, testing, and protection of naval petroleum and oil shale reserves. Gross income from sale of Navy's share of production deposited in the general fund of the Treasury in 1966 was $11.5 million; in 1967 and 1968 it is estimated to be $11.0 million.

The Marine Corps trains and maintains the Fleet Marine Forces in a high state of combat readiness for service with the fleet in amphibious operations and other duties. The Fleet Marine Forces, composed of Marine division-air wing teams and related support units, are assigned to the Atlantic and Pacific Naval Fleets.

This appropriation principally supports the ground elements of the Fleet Marine Forces. Other units supported by this appropriation include Marine detachments aboard naval vessels, landing force training units, Marine Reserve ground forces, and the security forces that guard naval bases, U.S. embassies, and certain classified facilities.

1. Training and operations.—Fleet Marine Force training objectives stress the vertical envelopment doctrine in amphibious operations through major exercises by combined air and ground units. Training is accomplished at four major combat-unit support bases, two recruit training depots and one base devoted to professional schools training.

2. Depot supply system.—This activity includes the overhaul and preservation of major equipment and materiel and the receipt, issue, and storage of materiel.

4. Marine Corps Reserve training.—The objective of this program is to provide a strong Reserve organization capable of rapid assimilation into the operating forces when needed.

Financial requirements for this appropriation have been influenced by increased activity rates in Southeast Asia and significant force structure adjustments. The principal changes in the strategic forces in 1968 include the modernization of the Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile squadrons. The estimates also reflect the continued phase-out of the older model B-52 heavy bombers.

Despite some numerical reductions in the active air defense fighter-interceptor forces in the United States, overall requirements are satisfied by closer integration of Air National Guard squadrons. Improvements in air defense ground environment are continuing, including further upgrading of the Backup Interceptor Control System (BUIC) which started in 1965.

The capability of the tactical forces is improving in 1968 while meeting the heavy commitments in Southeast Asia. An increased number of squadrons will be equipped with the all-purpose F-4 fighter aircraft. Increased emphasis has been placed on the use of newly developed electronics equipment in such areas as command and control techniques and capabilities, communications, warning, weather and intelligence. These and other similar activities require contracting for many specialized services beyond the capability of Air Force personnel.

1. Aircraft fuel and oil.—This program provides for aviation fuel and oil to support the operation of all Air Force and Air Force Reserve aircraft except those assigned to research and development activities, the Air National Guard, and that portion of the airlift service of the Military Airlift Command which is financed by the Air Force industrial fund.

2. Logistical support.—This activity finances the depot-level maintenance of materiel and operation of the Air Force supply system. The 1968 estimate reflects the continuing phase-out activities at three depots scheduled for closing in subsequent years.

3. Training support.—This provides for basic, technical, professional, and flying training. Operating costs of the Air Force Reserve program are also included.

4. Operational support.—Facilities are operated and maintained to support the strategic, air defense, tactical, and transport-troop carrier missions of the Air Force. Costs cover on-the-line maintenance of aircraft and weapons, maintenance and operation of installations, missile sites, airfields and allied facilities, as well as other expenses necessary to assure and maintain operational readiness of the combat forces. This activity also finances the air defense surveillance, warning, and control systems.

5. Medical support.—This activity finances the Air Force cost of medical care for military personnel and their families.

6. Service-wide support.—This program provides for the operation of Air Force and major command headquarters, intelligence and security activities, and the leasing of commercial communication systems and networks.

7. Contingencies.—These are extraordinary expenses approved and certified by the Secretary of the Air Force.

This appropriation finances the immediate Office of the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and agencies of the Department of Defense which operate directly under the control of the Secretary of Defense.

1. Supply operations.—The Defense Supply Agency provides contract administration services for the military departments and common supply and service support to military activities in the continental United States. The agency manages inventories of $2 billion for eight material categories: fuel, food, clothing, medical, general, industrial, construction, and electronics supplies. It also manages the Department of Defense-owned idle industrial plant equipment inventory, valued at nearly $1 billion, to secure greater utilization of this equipment. The volume of procurement actions totaled $5.7 billion in 1966, and is expected to exceed $6.2 billion in 1967 and $5.8 billion in 1968. The agency operates eight supply depots and the Defense Logistics Services Center, including the surplus sales offices.

The agency is also responsible for the administration and supervision of the Department of Defense-coordinated procurement programs, the Federal catalog program, the Defense materiel utilization program, and the Defense surplus property disposal program.

2. Field operations.—This program activity includes the funds required for the support of the Armed Forces information and education activities of the Department of Defense, the Defense Communications Agency, the Defense Atomic Support Agency, the Defense Intelligence Agency, the Defense Contract Audit Agency, and classified activities.

3. Interdepartmental activities.—Provision is made for the Department of Defense's participation in and support of various interdepartmental activities, including the President's Committee on Equal Opportunity in Housing, the Missile Sites Labor Commission, the computer program for Office of the Special Representative for Trade Negotiations, and others.

4. Management.—This covers the civilian salaries and other expenses of the Office of the Secretary of Defense and the Organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The U.S. Court of Military Appeals reviews all of the more serious court-martial convictions of military personnel. The number of cases docketed in 1966 total 796. With more men serving in the Armed Forces, a gradual increase in the number of cases is anticipated in 1967 and 1968. The court released 119 opinions in 1966 and expects to publish at least a similar number during 1967 and 1968.

- United States Information Agency: “Salaries and expenses.”
- Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Agency: “Operations.”

PROCUREMENT

The procurement appropriations of the Department of Defense finance the acquisition of capital equipment, such as aircraft, missiles, ships, combat vehicles, weapons, munitions, and communications; major items for support of the capital equipment when it is in use; the industrial facilities necessary to produce that equipment; and major modification of equipment in inventory where modernization can be achieved without buying new equipment. The capital equipment financed by these appropriations is principally procured from private contractors or produced in Government arsenals, shipyards, and plants.

The 1968 program continues the production of modern equipment and weapons in support of United States and allied forces operations in Southeast Asia. The equipment inventories necessary to support conventional as well as strategic warfare missions of armed services will continue to be augmented and modernized. The improving military capability to cope with war threats of any kind anywhere is supported by continuing programs to increase the mobility and firepower of ground forces, strengthen the support capabilities of the tactical air forces, modernize airlift forces, and augment the capabilities of antisubmarine warfare forces.

Direct budget programs are estimated as follows (in millions of dollars):

Aircraft.....	10,007	10,350	9,111
Missiles.....	2,004	2,200	2,786

Other.....	8,259	9,268	9,740

¹ Includes $6,306 million of proposed 1967 supplemental appropriations for Southeast Asia support.

The appropriations for procurement of aircraft, missiles, ships, and tracked combat vehicles are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation.

PROCUREMENT OF EQUIPMENT AND MISSILES, ARMY

For expenses necessary for the procurement, manufacture, and modification of missiles, armament, ammunition, equipment, vehicles, vessels, and aircraft for the Army and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps; purchase of not to exceed [two] five thousand [one] six hundred and [seventy-five] seven passenger motor vehicles (including [seventeen] eleven medium sedans at not to exceed $3,000 each), of which five thousand four hundred and twenty-one shall be for replacement only; expenses which in the discretion of the Secretary of the Army are necessary in providing facilities for production of equipment and supplies for national defense purposes, including construction, and the furnishing of Government-owned facilities and equipment at privately owned plants; and ammunition for military salutes at institutions to which issue of weapons for salutes is authorized; [$3,483,300,000] $5,581,000,000, to remain available until expended [], of which $153,500,000 shall be available only for the NIKE-X antiballistic missile system]. ¹ Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are principally the dollar value of serviceable rifles and ammunition sold (10 U.S.C. 2210).

This appropriation provides major items of combat and support equipment for approved Army forces in performing their assigned mission to meet successfully both nuclear and conventional war requirements. It also provides for the procurement of spares and repair parts not covered in the Army stock fund as well as production engineering, tooling, and facilities in support of current procurement.

In 1968 the Army's direct budget plan totals $5,881 million, as compared to $5,863 million (including $2,130 million in the 1967 supplemental request) and $5,190 million for 1967 and 1966, respectively. This plan will be financed from new appropriations, recoupments from previous appropriations and budget plans, and anticipated reimbursements.

The 1968 program is specifically directed toward providing major items of combat and support equipment and ammunition for Army forces in Southeast Asia, replacing training consumption, filling combat essential equipment allowances for the active and high priority reserve Army force, and providing inventories of conventional munitions and equipment adequate for sustained combat operations. Modernization of older inventories is continued, thereby providing increased capabilities attainable through the introduction of improved weapons, equipment, and munitions.

1. and 2. Aircraft and spares.—The 1968 program contains aircraft which are essential to the combat operation of field forces. To meet the Army's need for battlefield observation, troop movement, medical evacuation, and rapid logistical and tactical support for combat engaged forces, the 1968 program continues production to provide additional quantities of helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft.

3. and 4. Missiles and spares.—This program includes surface-to-air and surface-to-surface missiles. In the former category, continued procurement of Redeye missiles in 1968 will provide frontline combat units with an effective defense against low altitude enemy aircraft. Continued procurement of the Chaparral missile provides a forward area air defense system against high performance aircraft. Modification improvements to the Nike-Hercules and fire distribution systems planned for 1968 will provide for a more effective air defense within CONUS and oversea theaters of operations.

The surface-to-surface missile program for 1968 continues procurement of Shillelagh missiles to further improve the armor defeating capability of Army combat elements. Procurement of Lance missiles is programed for 1968 to provide for improved mission support capabilities. TOW, an anti-tank missile, will be initially procured in 1968. Pershing missiles are planned to be further improved through modification.

5. Tracked combat vehicles.—This program covers the procurement of tracked combat vehicles, including related repair parts and support materiel and production base support. In 1968 the Army's tank inventory continues to be improved with the procurement of the General Sheridan armored reconnaissance vehicle and the M60 medium tank equipped with the Shillelagh turret and the 105-mm gun turret.

6. Weapons and other combat vehicles.—This activity covers all weapons fired by crews and individuals, and other combat vehicles. The 1968 program will provide materiel to replace training consumption, wearout, and obsolescence. Forward defense against high-performance aircraft will continue to be improved through the additional 1967 procurement of a mobile air defense system.

7. Tactical and support vehicles.—These are the unarmored wheeled vehicles which provide surface mobility to the field forces and the worldwide logistical system.

8. Communications and electronics equipment.—This program provides reliable, rugged and mobile communication equipment to achieve command control over dispersed forces and weapons systems.

9. Other support equipment.—This program includes logistical equipment essential to the mobility and maintenance of Army combat forces in the field including, in 1968, a vessel to be modified to provide a second floating aircraft maintenance facility.

10. Ammunition.—This activity finances the procurement of ammunition for all Army weapons except missiles.

11. Production-base support.—This activity provides industrial facilities needed for production of end items and components and for production engineering in advance of procurement. It also provides for the layaway of Government-owned plants and equipment at the time production is completed and where it has been established that the facilities will be required in the event of mobilization.

This appropriation finances the procurement of new aircraft, missile, and associated support equipment for Navy and Marine forces. It also provides for necessary modifications to in-service aircraft and missiles to eliminate safety hazards and enhance operational effectiveness. Drones and major flight and maintenance simulators are also included, as well as spares and repair parts for all end items procured under this appropriation.

1. Combat aircraft.—The 1968 program provides for the procurement of carrier-based attack, fighter, and reconnaissance aircraft, land-based antisubmarine aircraft, and helicopters for the Marines' vertical assault mission.

3. Trainer aircraft.—The 1968 program under this activity provides primary jet and light helicopter trainers to meet basic training requirements for future Navy pilots.

4. Other aircraft.—One DEEPFREEZE aircraft is planned for procurement under this activity in 1968.

5. Modification of aircraft.—This activity finances the cost of modifying in-service aircraft for increased capability or necessary flight-safety changes.

6. Aircraft spares and repair parts.—This activity provides for the procurement of all naval aircraft spares and repair parts, including both initial outfitting requirements and replenishment support.

7. Aircraft support equipment and facilities.—This activity provides for aircraft industrial facilities, component improvement, and miscellaneous production costs.

8. Ballistic missiles.—This activity provides for procurement of Fleet Ballistic Missiles and related support equipment.

9. Other missiles.—The 1968 program under this activity includes missiles for both air-to-air and air-to-ground missions. Continued procurement of Standard and Talos missiles is included to meet surface-to-air requirements, and a submarine-launched missile is included for antisubmarine warfare. Aerial targets for training and the testing of weapon systems are also funded under this activity.

10. Modification of missiles.—This activity provides for the modification of missiles in inventory to assure their maximum effectiveness consistent with current technology.

11. Missile spares and repair parts.—The amounts provided in this activity are for spares and repair parts for missiles and aerial targets.

12. Other support equipment and facilities.—This activity includes funds for missile industrial facilities, primarily the replacement of machine tools used for production, and for a navigational satellite program.

This appropriation provides for the construction of ships and the conversion of existing ships, including all hull, mechanical and electrical equipment, electronics, guns, torpedo and missile launching systems, and communications systems. It also provides for the procurement of long leadtime items for ships for which authorization will be requested in the 1969 program.

The 1968 program continues the Navy's long-range modernization and replacement program, designed to provide the fleet with modern balanced forces which can effectively respond to a wide variety of challenges in supporting our national policies.

Fleet ballistic missile ships.—Three ballistic missile submarines will be converted and modernized to improve our sea-based fleet ballistic missile weapons system. In addition, one submarine tender will be converted to provide the support and mobile base facilities required by the converted submarines.

Antisubmarine warfare ships.—Twenty antisubmarine warfare ships will be constructed or converted to increase the long-range detection and weapon capability of the ASW fleet and to replace older ships. New construction consists of 3 nuclear-powered attack submarines and 10 destroyer escorts, and 7 destroyers will be converted.

Antiair warfare ships.—Two new guided missile destroyers will be constructed with the new and highly capable Tartar D missile system, and one frigate will be modernized to increase fleet antiair warfare capabilities.

Amphibious ships.—One new design, general purpose assault ship will be constructed to improve our amphibious assault capabilities.

Mine warfare.—Sixteen ocean minesweepers will be constructed or converted to continue the program to improve mine warfare capabilities and to replace smaller, slower, and less effective coastal minesweepers.

Support ships and craft.—One fast combat support ship and two ammunition ships will be constructed to provide larger, faster, and more efficient ships for supplying food, fuel, and ammunition to the Navy's ships at sea.

Logistics ships.—Five fast deployment logistics ships will be constructed to provide modern, flexible military sealift forces capable of rapid overseas deployment of tactical land force unit equipment and supplies.

Research ships, auxiliaries and craft.—New construction consists of two oceanographic research ships and one submarine rescue ship.

This appropriation funds the procurement of major weapons and equipment other than aircraft, missiles, and ships. Such equipments range from the latest electronic sensors and weapons, to update our naval forces, to trucks, training equipment, and spare parts. Substantial quanties of the expendable items programed under this appropriation are in support of Southeast Asia operations.

1. Ships support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of necessary shipboard components, including replacement nuclear cores, to support active fleet ship maintenance replacement and alterations.

2. Communications and electronic equipment.—This activity funds communications and electronics equipment for ships and shore-based activities.

3. Weapons and support equipment.—This activity includes funds for the procurement of air dropped ordnance, ship gun ammunition, antisubmarine warfare ordnance, air electronics control equipment and aircraft ground support equipment. Air launched ordnance and ship gun ammunition are the most significant programs in 1968; substantial quantities of this ordnance are being used in Southeast Asia. The procurement of modern antisubmarine warfare weapons is also being continued, as well as aircraft servicing equipment and aircrew survival equipment.

4. Civil engineering support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of passenger carrying vehicles, automotive and construction equipment, and amphibious and other combat support equipment primarily in support of the naval construction forces and the shore establishment.

5. Supply support equipment.—Procurement of self-propelled materials handling equipment and automated materials handling systems to support the Navy supply system is financed under this activity.

6. Personnel and command support equipment.—This activity finances procurement of equipment, devices, and aids for training programs of the Chief of Naval Personnel and procurement of scientific and technical equipment for activities supported by the Chief of Naval Operations.

This appropriation provides the Marine Corps with weapons, ammunition, and related equipments which are programmed for use by Marine general purpose forces such as Marine divisions, Marine aircraft wings, and tank and amphibious tractor battalions. These equipments provide the military hardware for support of seizure and defense of advanced bases, limited war landing operations, and general land warfare using a variety of tactics such as amphibious and vertical envelopment movements.

The 1968 program provides major items of combat and support equipment and ammunition for Marine forces in Southeast Asia. Also the program continues to improve the firepower, mobility, and communications of the approved forces. Tank and artillery ammunition and Red-eye missiles will provide increased fire and staying power against ground targets and low-level aircraft. The capability for rapid dispersal of forces and weapons is met in the 1968 program by procurement of a variety of modern electronic equipment for communications, intelligence, and control.

This appropriation provides for the procurement of aircraft, spares, and components, supporting aerospace ground equipment and modification of inservice aircraft.

1. Combat aircraft.—This activity provides for the procurement of aircraft to continue modernization of the combat forces through improved capability and flexibility. The procurement program for the F-111, FB-111, A-7, F-4E, F-5, RF-4C, O-2A, A-37, and the OV-10 are continued in 1968.

2. Airlift aircraft.—The procurement of the C-5 is continued in the 1968 budget resulting in improvement in military mobility and capability. Provision is also made for continued procurement of aeromedical transports.

3. Trainer aircraft.—In order to satisfy the pilot production requirements, T-37, T-38, and T-41 aircraft are being procured.

4. Other aircraft.—For 1968, this activity includes several small type helicopters and utility aircraft.

5. Modification of inservice aircraft.—This activity provides for modifications of inservice aircraft necessary for safety of flight and changes incorporating technical improvements keeping the force abreast of the latest state of the art.

6. Aircraft spares and repair parts.—Provision is made for initial spares for the new aircraft to be procured as well as replenishment spares for those aircraft in the operating inventory.

7. Aircraft support equipment and facilities.—This activity provides for common aerospace ground equipment, component improvements, industrial facilities, war consumable items, and other charges.

This appropriation provides for procurement, modification, installation, and checkout of missiles, payloads, drones, and the associated ground support and checkout equipment. It also procures technical data, spares support, missile propellants, transportation, expansion and nonrecurring maintenance of industrial facilities, and machine tool modernization.

1. Ballistic missiles.—This activity provides funds for the procurement of Minuteman II/III intercontinental ballistic missile systems required for operational squadrons and crew training. The 1968 estimate provides for the procurement, installation, and checkout of complete missiles, aerospace ground equipment, specialized training equipment, and the required technical data for the Minuteman II/III intercontinental ballistic missile programs.

2. Other missiles.—This activity provides for the procurement of the Shrike antiradiation missile, the Sparrow air-to-air missile, and target drones to support test and training requirements.

3. Modification of in-service missiles.—This activity provides for continued support of the Minuteman updating and force modernization programs, the conversion and modification of Thor missiles to satellite intercept boosters, and modifications to missiles and support equipment to correct deficiencies, improve safety, and increase mission capability.

4. Spares and repair parts.—This activity provides for initial and replenishment spare subsystems, components, and spare parts for ballistic and other missiles including provisioning documentation.

5. Other support.—This activity provides for modernization and maintenance of Government-owned production facilities, procurement of missile propellants, classified projects, and support of the Defense Communications Satellite program.

1. Munitions and associated equipment.—The 1968 program further increases the Air Force capability to meet the tactical and air defense requirements of both conventional and nuclear war. Provision is also made for selected munitions to continue support of operations in Southeast Asia.

2. Vehicular equipment.—The 1968 estimate provides for year-round support of the vehicular fleet including orderly replacements of passenger carrying vehicles and continued support of operations in Southeast Asia.

3. Electronics and telecommunications equipment.—The 1968 estimate provides for continued procurement of communications equipment and ancillary support items towards acquisition of selected electronic weapon support ("L") systems. Provision is also made for similar support of other electronic systems, subsystems, and base communications programs including those in Southeast Asia.

4. Other base maintenance and support equipment.—The 1968 estimate provides for continued support of operational units and bases, worldwide, at levels approximating those of the 1967 program.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

The purpose of the programs funded in this title is to provide the Department of Defense with scientific and technological capabilities for the development, test, and improvement of advanced weapon systems and related equipment and techniques. In pursuit of this objective a wide spectrum of investigative and engineering activities is performed, including scientific research of military interest, exploratory and applied technology, design and fabrication of weapons and equipment for the future, and testing of these items to evaluate their military utility. This work is performed in Government laboratories, at universities, by industrial contractors, and by nonprofit organizations.

Appropriations in this title support the research, development, test, and evaluation activities of the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Defense agencies. Research and development related to civil defense responsibilities of the Department of Defense is carried in the separate title, Civil Defense, in this chapter. The total 1968 request for Defense research and development appropriations shows an increase over the 1967 level to provide for weapon systems improvements encouraged by experience in Southeast Asia as well as for accelerated development of additional strategic offensive and defensive systems. Areas of limited warfare requiring additional attention include counterinfiltration, mobility in marshy and shallow waters, reconnaissance and surveillance, electronic countermeasures, all-weather attack systems, and bomb and missile accuracy. Also supporting the Nation's conventional and limited war capability are such continuing major development efforts as the Lance tactical missile, the MK-48 torpedo, and the C-5A cargo transport, as well as a host of smaller systems to maintain superiority in air and surface mobility, communications, firepower, and antisubmarine warfare. Further development of Minuteman III, the submarine launched Poseidon, new reentry vehicles for both Minuteman and Polaris/Poseidon, and the Nike-X antimissile system will be supported in 1968 in order to maintain a strong strategic deterrent force. Budgeted amounts for the total military space program will be increased over the 1967 level as the Manned Orbiting Laboratory progresses in the development cycle. Support for research related to military interests will remain essentially level, while general supporting programs decline slightly in 1968.

The budget plans and estimated obligations under appropriations in this title for the Army, Navy, Air Force, Defense agencies, and the emergency fund are summarized below (in thousands of dollars):

1. Military sciences.—This activity includes basic research in the physical, mathematical, environmental, and other sciences, adding to the store of fundamental scientific knowledge and applications of importance for military purposes which lead to the development of new materials, components, and techniques. Support for the establishment of new centers of scientific excellence contributing to national security needs is included in this activity, as well as investigations into the physical properties of materials, oceanography, biological and medical sciences, meteorology, energy conversion, and military strategy and tactics.

The principal support for such organizations as the Naval Research Laboratory, the Cambridge Research Laboratory, and the Rand Corporation is also provided here. In addition to the amounts directly provided for in this activity, basic and applied research is also performed by industrial contractors supported by certain allowable indirect costs which may be provided for under contracts funded by both the research, development, test, and evaluation and procurement appropriations.

2. Aircraft and related equipment.—This activity funds research, development, test, and evaluation related to airframes, engines, and other installed equipment. The 1968 program supports the later stages of development of the interceptor, bomber, tactical fighter, and reconnaissance versions of the F-111 high-performance aircraft; light attack aircraft; early warning and electronic warfare aircraft; and the Army's helicopter development effort. Contract definition of an engine designed with characteristics applicable to an advanced manned strategic bomber will be initiated in 1968; competitive design work on the airframe and avionics will continue.

In addition, the program includes work to improve airborne reconnaissance and surveillance, aircraft communication, air to surface fire control, ground force mobility, logistics capabilities, airborne antisubmarine warfare detection systems, and V/STOL technology. Development of the C-5A cargo transport will be continued in 1968. Research and test centers, such as the activities located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, are funded here.

3. Missiles and related equipment.—This activity provides for research, development, test, and evaluation of all types. Development and improvement of the Nike-X system as an effective area and terminal ballistic missile defense, including support of advanced design concepts, continues to receive major funding support in 1968. Accelerated development of the Minuteman III and Poseidon intercontinental ballistic missiles, including efforts to increase accuracy, to improve ability to overcome anti-ballistic missile systems, and to assure flexible and comprehensive target coverage, remains a high priority program. New and improved tactical missile systems will also be pursued, particularly to provide greater accuracy and resistance to countermeasures.

In addition to funding participation by industry in the missile research and development program, this activity is a major source of financial support for the operation of Government facilities, such as the Eastern and Western Test Ranges, the White Sands Missile Range, the Naval

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION—Continued

Ordnance Test Station, and the research and development programs at the Army's Redstone Arsenal.

4. Military astronautics and related equipment.—This activity provides for programs directed toward the improvement of space technology for military purposes and the investigation and development of specific military applications of space vehicles. Work will proceed on the manned orbiting laboratory (MOL), the Titan III, military communication satellites, and improvements in satellite tracking capabilities. Supporting research and development in such areas as bioastronautics, secondary power sources, and guidance, reentry, and propulsion systems will continue. The Air Force Arnold Engineering Development Center is supported under this activity.

5. Ships, small craft, and related equipment.—This activity provides for design of new types of ships and development of shipboard equipment. Funds requested in this activity will provide in 1968 for the development of surface ship and submarine sonars, navigation systems, command and control equipment, advanced surface craft, and aircraft catapults and arresting gear. Antisubmarine warfare and limited war systems, ranging from ASW communication systems to river warfare boats, will receive a high level of support. A significant part of the research and development effort of the Naval Electronics Laboratory and the David Taylor Model Basin is funded under this activity.

6. Ordnance, combat vehicles, and related equipment.—The Army's 1968 program includes improved artillery, combat vehicles, mortars, antitank weapons, tank armaments, and infantry individual weapons. Limited and unconventional warfare in remote areas continues to receive major attention with development of systems for area denial, improved fire power, and increased mobility. Development of improved landing and amphibious vehicles for the Marine Corps is financed in this activity. The 1968 Navy program continues to emphasize Southeast Asia, tactical support, and antisubmarine warfare systems, including torpedoes, mines, depth charges, and other munitions. The principal support for the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Maryland, and for research and development activities at several Army arsenals is also funded here.

7. Other equipment.—This activity provides for research, development, test, and evaluation of equipment not separately provided for under other activities. Examples of the types of equipment developed for the three services are as follows: A deep submergence vehicle for personnel rescue and underwater research, chemical and biological agent detection and protection devices, aircraft warning and control systems, combat clothing, night vision and imaging devices, tactical data processing systems, communication and electronic warfare equipment, improved logistics and materiel handling, mapping and geodetic systems, and oceanographic instrumentation. Much of the support for the research and development effort at the Army Electronic Research and Development Laboratory, the Mitre Corporation, and the Lincoln Laboratories is provided under this activity.

8. Programwide management and support.—For the Army and the Navy, this activity provides for those costs of operation, management and maintenance of research, development, and test facilities which are not distributed directly to other budget activities. For the Air Force it provides for certain costs of central administration such as the Air Force Systems Command headquarters and divisions as well as several large research, development, test, and evaluation installations.

9. Emergency fund.—The emergency fund enables the Secretary of Defense to support the exploitation of new scientific developments and technological breakthroughs and to provide for other unforeseen contingencies in the research, development, test, and evaluation programs.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Regular and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Regular Forces	2,494,762	1,122,707	1,861,000
Reserve Forces	26,400	26,400	37,100
Interservice activities	24,152	8,554	245,600

Most of the appropriations required for the military construction accounts are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. The details of this legislation have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration.

1. Major construction.—This category provides for acquisition of land for and construction of military projects in the United States and overseas as authorized in currently effective military construction acts and the new authorization referred to above. These authorizations include construction projects as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2 where the estimated cost of such construction generally exceeds $25 thousand per project. It is contemplated that those projects deferred in 1966 which are still required will be released for obligation in 1967. Under this category the major program elements proposed for 1968 are as follows:

Strategic forces.—Provision has been made for modifications to Minuteman sites to retain the reliability and survivability of the weapon system and for facilities to insure safe and continued operation of strategic aircraft. Funds are also included for construction of facilities to support improved missile systems for naval submarine forces.

General purpose forces.—Projects in this category support general combat forces including their command organizations, the logistics organizations organic to these forces, and the related logistics and support units which are deployed or deployable as constituent parts of military or naval forces and field organizations. A portion of the program provides facilities which will reduce the vulnerability of aircraft at various oversea locations.

Specialized activities.—Funds are provided to support specialized activities primarily relating to the intelligence and security areas. Projects are also included for military assistance activities.

Airlift and sealift.—Additional operational and maintenance facilities will be provided for increased effectiveness of the transport aircraft assigned to the Tactical Air Command and the Military Air Transport Command.

Reserve Forces.—The facilities required for the training of the Reserve Forces include: armories, training centers and summer camps, nonarmory facilities such as maintenance shops and warehouses, and aviation facilities such as airfield pavements, maintenance shops, and training buildings.

Research and development.—A major portion of the Army’s research construction effort provides for support of the Nike-X missile system. Air Force construction includes launch facilities modification at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.; continued improvement of the Eastern and Western Test Ranges; and a test facility for the C-5A aircraft at Edwards Air Force Base.

Logistics.—Funds are included to provide for the maintenance, overhaul, and repair facility requirements generated by the newer weapon systems.

Personnel support.—This grouping includes training activities not associated with force-related programs and major medical activities. Funds are provided for training facilities at the Air Force Academy, an academic building at the Military Academy, and additional facilities for the new recruit training center at Orlando, Fla.

2. Minor construction.—Provision is made for construction of permanent and temporary projects that are not otherwise authorized by law but which are determined to be urgently required and do not exceed $200 thousand per project for the Regular Forces, and $50 thousand per project for the Reserve Forces. Provision is made in the applicable operation and maintenance appropriations for construction projects as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2 where the estimated cost of such construction is $25 thousand or less per project.

3. Planning.—This provides for necessary planning of military construction projects, including design, standards, criteria, studies, appraisals, and other related activities.

4. Supporting activities.—Provision is made for activities such as the defense access road program and minor land acquisitions.

General and special funds:

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY

For acquisition, construction, installation, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, military installations, and facilities for the Army as currently authorized in military public works or military construction Acts, and in sections 2673 and 2675 of title 10, United States Code, [$114,014,000] $592,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the unexpended balance of funds as determined by the Secretary of Defense, heretofore allocated or transferred to the Secretary of Defense from appropriations for “Military assistance” to support construction, may be transferred to this appropriation. (Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1967; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for $531,923,000.)

FAMILY HOUSING

The Department of Defense Family Housing Management Account (76 Stat. 237) finances all expenses of the military family housing program. Funds provided in annual Military Construction Appropriation Acts under the title "Family Housing, Defense" are transferred to this account for obligation and expenditure. This appropriation is dependent on the enactment of authorizing legislation, the details of which have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration. An appropriation of $787.0 million is requested for 1968, of which $267.0 million is for construction of new housing, improvement of existing housing and related projects, and $525.0 million is for the operation and maintenance of family housing and related facilities, for leasing of family housing, for payments required on the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing and to build surplus commodity housing in foreign countries, and for authorized payments of servicemen's mortgage insurance premiums.

General and special funds:

FAMILY HOUSING, DEFENSE

For expenses of family housing for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, and Defense agencies, for construction, including acquisition, replacement, addition, expansion, extension and alteration and for operation, maintenance, and debt payment, including leasing, minor construction, principal and interest charges, and insurance premiums, as authorized by law, [$507,196,000] $787,000,000, to be obligated and expended in the Family Housing Management Account established pursuant to section 501(a) of Public Law 87-554, in not to exceed the following amounts:

For the Army:

Operation, maintenance, [$127,287,000] $183,295,000;
Debt payment, [$47,346,000] $47,245,000.

For the Navy and Marine Corps:

Construction, $107,840,000;
Operation, maintenance, [$72,934,000] $77,795,000;
Debt payments, [$30,864,000] $31,999,000.

For the Air Force:

Construction, $96,925,000;
Operation, maintenance, [$135,382,000] $136,777,000;
Debt payment, [$89,028,000] $87,596,000.

For Defense agencies:

Construction, $681,000;
Operation, maintenance, [$4,355,000] $5,293,000.

Provided, That the amounts provided under this head for construction and for debt payment shall remain available until expended. (80 Stat. 1174; Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1967; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

1. Construction—(a) Construction of new housing.—The construction of 12,500 public quarters is proposed in furtherance of the continuing effort to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel. These units are distributed by service as follows: Army—2,850, Navy and Marine Corps—5,070, and Air Force—4,580. It is contemplated that those projects deferred in 1966 which are still required will be released for obligation in 1967.

(b) Acquisition of Wherry housing.—The program to acquire Wherry housing has been essentially completed; accordingly, no funds for acquisition are required in 1968.

(c) Construction improvements.—As part of the program to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel, $18.9 million is requested to correct deficiencies in existing family housing facilities.

(d) Planning.—Costs incurred for planning of projects which may not go forward to completion because of changing requirements are estimated at $1 million for 1968. Planning funds for projects which do go forward to completion are included in the new construction and construction improvement budget activities.

(e) Rental guarantee payments.—The last of the rental guarantee agreements entered into under the original authority (66 Stat. 622) expired in 1965 and no agreements have been entered into under the existing authority (77 Stat. 326); accordingly, no funds are required in 1968.

2. Operation, maintenance, and debt payment—(a) Operation.—$176.6 million is required in 1968 for the operation of an estimated 361,054 family housing units (excluding leased units); and $25.7 million is required in 1968 to lease 10,340 units in both the United States and in foreign countries as part of the program to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel.

(b) Maintenance of real property.—The cost of maintenance and repair of the 1968 family housing inventory is estimated at $155.0 million. Minor alterations, not to exceed an average of $50 per unit, are funded in this subactivity.

(c) Debt payment.—A total of $159.6 million is required in 1968 to reduce the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart, Wherry, and surplus commodity housing and for related expenses as follows (in millions of dollars):

	Principal	Interest	Total
Capehart housing.....	56.5	62.2	118.7
Wherry housing.....	17.0	17.9	34.9
Surplus commodity housing.....	6.0		6.0
Total.....	79.5	80.1	159.6

(d) Mortgage insurance premiums.—Premium payments are required on mortgage insurance provided by the Federal Housing Administration: (1) through the General insurance fund on mortgages assumed by Defense to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing; and (2) on mortgages assumed by active military personnel for housing purchased under the provisions of section 124, Public Law 83-560. The premiums on Capehart housing in 1968 are estimated at $2.0 million; on Wherry housing at $0.6 million; and on servicemen-owned housing at $5.4 million, for a total of $8.1 million.

Since the bulk of the personal services funded from the Family Housing, Defense, appropriation is on a reimbursable part-time basis, it is not reflected in the foregoing personnel summary. The following supplementary schedule is provided to indicate the man-year equivalent of all the personal services supported by this appropriation and the compensation paid therefor. The full-time positions paid directly from this appropriation are listed in the schedule of personnel compensation provided for this appropriation. The positions partially supported by reimbursement from this appropriation are listed in the schedules of personnel compensation provided for each of the sponsoring Defense appropriations.

RENTAL GUARANTEE FAMILY HOUSING PROGRAM

The original authority (66 Stat. 622) under which Defense entered into rental guarantee agreements with private sponsors of family housing built in foreign countries for rental to Defense personnel expired on June 30, 1963, and the last of the agreements entered into under that authority was terminated on September 1, 1964.

The Military Construction Authorization Act, 1964, as amended (77 Stat. 326, as amended by 79 Stat. 814), authorized Defense to enter into new rental guarantee agreements through 1967 for not more than 5,000 units. No such agreement may guarantee payment of more than 97% of the anticipated rentals, nor may any guarantee extend for a period exceeding 10 years, nor may the average rental in any project exceed $150 per unit per month including the cost of operation and maintenance. Defense intends to request extension and revision of this authorization in the 1968 Military construction authorization bill. Since it is not expected that any housing built pursuant to this authority will be available for occupancy until 1968, and all of the earlier agreements have now expired or have been terminated, no funds are expected to be required for guarantee payments in either 1967 or 1968. Agreements planned to be entered into in 1968 for the rental of 2,250 units are expected to result in a contingent liability estimated at $39.1 million for guaranteed rental payments over the period covered by the planned agreements.

HOMEOWNERS ASSISTANCE FUND, DEFENSE

For the Homeowners Assistance Fund established pursuant to section 1013(d) of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-754, approved November 3, 1966), $27,000,000. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

This fund finances programs for reducing the losses of military personnel and civilian employees incident to disposition of their one- or two-family dwellings when military installations are closed (80 Stat. 1291). Eligible personnel may be reimbursed for certain losses as a result of sale of their dwellings located at or near military installations which the Department of Defense has, subsequent to November 1, 1964, ordered to be closed in whole or in part, or the Department of Defense may acquire such property. Proceeds from sale or rental of such property are deposited in this fund. The following business-type statements reflect 1967 operations under a proposed supplemental as well as 1968 operations.

1. Warning and detection.—Provides for the operation, maintenance, and continuing development of the nationwide emergency warning system and for the procurement and distribution of the radiological equipment to develop and maintain an effective detection and monitoring system. The $3.8 million increase is required primarily for the procurement of dosimeters, support of State calibration and maintenance shops, and the modernization of engineering equipment presently in the inventory.

2. Emergency operations.—Provides for the support of those activities which are required to develop and maintain an optimum capability to perform essential actions in emergency periods to enhance survival probabilities. The $1.4 million decrease is caused by the transfer to the U.S. Army Strategic Communications Command of budget responsibility for services formerly financed under this appropriation.

3. Financial assistance to States.—Provides grants to State and local governments to assist them in meeting their responsibilities under the Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950, as amended. The $3 million increase in this assistance is necessary primarily to meet requests of new participants for such assistance to enable these governments to develop and maintain their emergency operations capability in support of the national civil defense program.

4. Management.—Provides for the administrative expenses of the Office of Civil Defense staff; i.e., salaries, travel, and supporting costs for management and administration of the national civil defense program.

1. Shelters.—Provides for the development of a nationwide inventory of fallout shelters and plans for their use in emergency periods to enhance survival probabilities. The $2.9 million increase requested will provide for procurement of a minimum level of shelter provisions to continue past issue rates.

2. Research and development.—Provides for studies necessary to develop and maintain an effective and efficient national civil defense system. In 1968, emphasis will be continued toward investigations in fallout radiation shielding, development of fire defense systems, and analyses of the consequences of various nuclear attack situations and of the effectiveness of alternative civil defense countermeasures in selected localities.

DEFENSE PRODUCTION GUARANTEES

Guarantees are given on loans made by public and private financing institutions by the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Defense Supply Agency to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. When necessary, loans may be purchased by the Government. Administrative expenses are financed from guarantee fees and interest on loans receivable. Funds in excess of guaranteed loan program requirements may be transferred to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Net earnings are retained to purchase loans when required under guarantee commitments and to cover possible future losses (50 U.S.C. app. 2091).

This fund finances the central procurement of civil defense materials toward which contributions to the States are authorized on a matching fund basis. The fund is reimbursed for purchases from Office of Civil Defense appropriations and from funds provided by the States (65 Stat. 61).

A transfer of $1 million to Operation and maintenance, Civil Defense, was accomplished in 1967 to reduce the working capital of the fund to a level more consistent with the declining usage of the fund.

Intragovernmental funds:

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

The Department of Defense stock funds finance the acquisition of inventories of material and supplies for resale and mobilization (10 U.S.C. 2208). These inventories are stocked and sold at designated defense activities worldwide.

Budget program.—The increase in obligations in 1966 and 1967 results from increased sales to support increased troop strengths and Southeast Asia operations and the need to build up inventory levels to support these sales. As a result, total inventory is estimated to increase by $1,459.4 million during the 3-year period from the beginning of 1966 to the end of 1968. At the same time, the increased sales program provides for greater utilization of stocks previously in long supply. Yearend inventories are estimated as follows (in millions of dollars):

	1965 actual	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Army stock fund:
Operating and other stocks	907.3	1,395.5	1,579.2	1,681.1

Total DOD stock funds:

Total	5,328.2	5,850.0	6,625.2	6,787.6

Financing the budget program.—Funds for financing the budget program are usually derived from sales to authorized customers. To finance the increased inventory, appropriations of $535 million are proposed for separate transmittal in 1967, and additional appropriations of $197 million are requested for 1968. Sales are forecast to increase by $3,006 million from 1966 to 1968, while expenditures increase by $3,157 million as indicated below (in millions of dollars):

	Gross expenditures
	1966 actual	1967 estimate	1968 estimate
Army stock fund	3,373.1	5,083.6	4,324.3
Navy stock fund	1,470.6	1,591.0	1,598.5
Marine Corps stock fund	195.8	370.5	318.0
Air Force stock fund	1,408.8	1,546.0	1,609.5
Defense stock fund	2,732.2	4,657.7	4,487.5
Total	9,180.5	13,248.8	12,337.8

DOD stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future year business (10 U.S.C. 2210(b)). This is necessary because the leadtime on material to be procured is greater than the time required to fill and collect for customer orders. Pursuant to this authority, contract authorization of $1,462 million was available at the end of 1966, decreasing to $1,182 million in 1968.

Operating results and financial condition.—A net gain of $78 million is forecast for 1968, while 1967 shows a loss of $283 million. These losses result largely from disposal and donation of excess and surplus inventories.

Investment (equity) of the U.S. Government at the end of 1968 is estimated at $7,253 million including $16,047 million in inventory and other assets capitalized less $3,021 million in working capital transferred out and a cumulative operating deficit of $5,773 million. The business-type statements reflect supplemental appropriations proposed for separate transmittal in 1967 for the Army, Navy, and Defense stock funds.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance industrial and commercial type activities on a reimbursable basis (10 U.S.C. 2208). The programs are supported by orders citing the customers' appropriations. Costs are initially financed by the industrial funds' working capital and subsequently billed to customers' appropriations. Government investment as of June 30, 1968, is estimated at $368.1 million.

The Army industrial fund is currently used to finance twenty activities engaged in research, development, test, engineering, transportation and traffic management, limited-quantity production and major overhaul of weapons, munitions, missiles and other military equipment. New orders in 1967 and 1968 will increase in many of the programs as the result of Southeast Asia operations. Costs of goods and services produced in 1967 are estimated to increase $175 million over 1966. An increase of $29 million is expected in 1968.

The Navy industrial fund finances 9 shipyards, 34 printing plants, 6 ordnance plants, 7 aircraft overhaul and repair facilities, 7 public works centers, 3 research activities and the Military Sea Transportation Service. The cost of goods and services produced by activities operated under the Navy industrial fund is expected to increase in 1967 over 1966 by $185 million or 7%. This increase reflects expanded activity in support of Southeast Asia operations. The increase in 1968 of $99 million reflects increased work by naval shipyards, research activities and MSTs.

The Air Force industrial fund currently finances 10 printing plants (9 in 1968), 37 laundries and the Military Airlift Command. Revenue is expected to increase in both 1967 and 1968 over the 1966 level due to anticipated increases in requirements for airlift service. Several new activities are also planned to be financed through the fund during 1968. These include the Alaska Communication System, the Ground Electronic Engineering Installation Agency and depot maintenance activities. An appropriation of $44 million is requested for 1968 to provide working capital for these new activities.

The Defense industrial fund finances the Defense Clothing and Textile Supply Center and the communications services activity. Cost increases in 1967 and 1968 are due primarily to expanded service provided by the communications activity.

¹ Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are funds from employee service-connected activities, such as Navy Mutual Aid, AFGE, Navy Relief Society, DOD Concessions Committee, U.S. Army Welfare Funds, and European Exchange System Funds.

This fund was created to simplify the financing and accounting for operations supported by two or more appropriations (10 U.S.C. 2209). The corpus of the fund consists of $1 million. Activities presently financed through the fund are as follows:

1. Defense telephone service, Washington, D.C.—Finances the operations of the telephone service of the Department of Defense in Washington.

2. Transportation services.—Provides for the payment centrally of transportation charges for Government bills of lading, transportation requests, meal tickets, and other charges incident to transportation costs incurred by the Army.

3. Construction activity, Europe.—Finances certain administrative and overhead expenses in the Department of Defense construction programs in Western Europe.

This fund was created to facilitate the financing of operations supported by two or more appropriations (10 U.S.C. 2209). The principal activity financed through the fund is the Polaris ballistic missile program. Reimbursable orders for the Polaris program are issued to the fund from Navy appropriations for Procurement, Operation and maintenance, and Research, development, test, and evaluation. Other operations financed are transportation of supplies, materials, and equipment of the Navy; departmental telephone and maintenance services; and the Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals. Financing of material inspection services and incentive award payments through this fund ceased at the end of 1966.

This fund represents advances received for goods or services furnished foreign governments and private parties (31 U.S.C. 643). Authorized individuals and organizations requesting goods or services are required to advance amounts to cover the estimated value to this fund. These advances are then used to reimburse the Operation and maintenance, Navy, appropriation for the value of goods provided or services rendered. Advances received from foreign governments are principally for sales of material and miscellaneous services.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 601. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, respectively, if they should deem it advantageous to the national defense, and if in their opinions the existing facilities of the Department of Defense are inadequate, are authorized to procure services in accordance with [section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (15 U.S.C. [55a]) § 3109, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, and to pay in connection therewith travel expenses of individuals, including actual transportation and per diem in lieu of subsistence while traveling from their homes or places of business to official duty station and return as may be authorized by law: Provided, That such contracts may be renewed annually.

SEC. 602. During the current fiscal year, provisions of law prohibiting the payment of compensation to, or employment of, any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to personnel of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 603. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for insurance of official motor vehicles in foreign countries, when required by laws of such countries; payments in advance of expenses determined by the investigating officer to be necessary and in accord with local custom for conducting investigations in foreign countries incident to matters relating to the activities of the department concerned; reimbursement of General Services Administration for security guard services for protection of confidential files; reimbursement of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for expenses in connection with investigation of defense contractor personnel; and all necessary expenses, at the seat of government of the United States of America or elsewhere, in connection with communication and other services and supplies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act: Provided, That no appropriation contained in this Act, and no funds available from prior appropriations to component departments and agencies of the Department of Defense, shall be used to pay tuition or to make other payments to educational institutions in connection with the instruction or training of file clerks, stenographers, and typists receiving, or prospective file clerks, stenographers, and typists who will receive compensation at a rate below the minimum rate of pay for positions allocated to grade GS-5 under the Classification Act of 1949, as amended.

SEC. 604. Any appropriation available to the Army, Navy, or the Air Force may, under such regulations as the Secretary concerned may prescribe, be used for expenses incident to the maintenance, pay, and allowances of prisoners of war, other persons in Army, Navy, or Air Force custody whose status is determined by the Secretary concerned to be similar to prisoners of war, and persons detained in such custody pursuant to Presidential proclamation.

SEC. 605. Appropriations available to the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year for maintenance or construction shall be available for acquisition of land as authorized by section 2672 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 606. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available, (a) except as authorized by the Act of September 30, 1950 (20 U.S.C. 236-244), for primary and secondary schooling for minor dependents of military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense residing on military or naval installations or stationed in foreign countries, as authorized for the Navy by section 7204 of title 10, United States Code, [in amounts not exceeding an average of $490 per student,] when the Secretary of the Department concerned finds that schools, if any, available in the locality, are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents: Provided, That notwithstanding any other provision of law the Secretary of Defense shall establish rates of compensation for teachers in the Overseas Dependents Schools System in accordance with the per pupil limitation established in this section, but in no event at less than the rates of compensation in effect on June 30, 1966; (b) for expenses in connection with administration of occupied areas; (c) for payment of rewards as authorized for the Navy by section 7209(a) of title 10, United States Code, for information leading to the discovery of missing naval property or the recovery thereof; (d) for payment of deficiency judgments and interests thereon arising out of condemnation proceedings; (e) for leasing of buildings and facilities including payment of rentals for special purpose space at the seat of government and, in the conduct of field exercises and maneuvers or, in administering the provisions of 43 U.S.C. 315g, rentals may be paid in advance; (f) payments under contracts for maintenance of tools and facilities for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; (g) maintenance of Defense access roads certified as important to national defense in accordance with section 210 of title 23, United States Code; (h) for the purchase of milk for enlisted personnel of the Department of Defense heretofore made available pursuant to section 1446a, title 7, United States Code, and the cost of milk so purchased, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, shall be included in the value of the commuted ration; (i) transporting civilian clothing to the home of record of selective service inductees and recruits on entering the military services; (j) pay and allowances of not to exceed nine persons, including personnel detailed to International Military Headquarters and Organizations, at rates provided for under section 625(d)(1) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended; (k) payments under leases for real or personal property for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year.

SEC. 607. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) donations of not to exceed $25 to each prisoner upon each release from confinement in military or contract prison and to each person discharged for fraudulent enlistment; (b) authorized issues of articles to prisoners, applicants for enlistment and persons in military custody; (c) subsistence of selective service registrants called for induction, applicants for enlistment, prisoners, civilian employees as authorized by law, and supernumeraries when necessitated by emergent military circumstances; (d) reimbursement for subsistence of enlisted personnel while sick in hospitals; (e) expenses of prisoners confined in nonmilitary facilities; (f) military courts, boards, and commissions; (g) utility services for buildings erected at private cost, as authorized by law, and buildings on military reservations authorized by regulations to be used for welfare and recreational purposes; (h) exchange fees, and losses in the accounts of disbursing officers or agents in accordance with law; (i) expenses of Latin-American cooperation as authorized for the Navy by law (10 U.S.C. 7208); and (j) expenses of apprehension and delivery of deserters, prisoners, and members absent without leave, including payment of rewards of not to exceed $25 in any one case.

SEC. 608. Insofar as practicable, the Secretary of Defense shall assist American small business to participate equitably in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated under this Act by making available or causing to be made available to suppliers in the United States, and particularly to small independent enterprises, information, as far in advance as possible, with respect to purchases proposed to be financed with funds appropriated under this Act, and by making available or causing to be made available to purchasing and contracting agencies of the Department of Defense information as to commodities and services produced and furnished by small independent enterprises in the United States, and by otherwise helping to give small business an opportunity to participate in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated by this Act.

SEC. 609. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expenses of operation of messes (other than organized messes the operating expenses of which are financed principally from nonappropriated funds) at which meals are sold to officers or civilians except under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, which shall (except under unusual or extraordinary circumstances) establish rates for such meals sufficient to provide reimbursement of operating expenses and food costs to the appropriations concerned: Provided, That officers and civilians in a travel status receiving a per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence shall be charged at the rate of not less than $2.50 per day: Provided further, That for the purposes of this section payments for meals at the rates established hereunder may be made in cash or by deduction from the pay of civilian employees: Provided further, That members of organized nonprofit youth groups sponsored at either the national or local level, when extended the privilege of visiting a military installation and permitted to eat in the general mess by the commanding officer of the installation, shall pay the commuted ration cost of such meal or meals.

SEC. 610. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available until expended unless expressly so provided elsewhere in this or some other appropriation Act.

SEC. 611. Appropriations of the Department of Defense available for operation and maintenance, may be reimbursed during the current fiscal year for all expenses involved in the preparation for disposal and for the disposal of military supplies, equipment, and materiel, and for all expenses of production of lumber or timber products pursuant to section 2665 of title 10, United States Code, from amounts received as proceeds from the sale of any such property: Provided, That a report of receipts and disbursements under this limitation shall be made quarterly to the Committees on Appropriations of the Congress: Provided further, That no funds available to agencies of the Department of Defense shall be used for the operation, acquisition, or construction of new facilities or equipment for new facilities in the continental limits of the United States for metal scrap baling or shearing or for melting or sweating aluminum scrap unless the Secretary of Defense or an Assistant Secretary of Defense designated by him determines, with respect to each facility involved, that the operation of such facility is in the national interest.

Sec. 612. (a) During the current fiscal year, the President may exempt appropriations, funds, and contract authorizations, available for military functions under the Department of Defense, from the provisions of subsection (c) of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, whenever he deems such action to be necessary in the interests of national defense.

(b) Upon determination by the President that such action is necessary, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of an airborne alert as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of Revised Statutes 3732 (41 U.S.C. 11).

(c) Upon determination by the President that it is necessary to increase the number of military personnel on active duty beyond the number for which funds are provided in this Act, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of such increased military personnel, as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of Revised Statutes 3732 (41 U.S.C. 11).

(d) The Secretary of Defense shall immediately advise the Committees on Appropriations of the Congress of the exercise of any authority granted in this section, and shall report monthly on the estimated obligations incurred pursuant to subsections (b) and (c).

["(b) The Secretary of Defense shall immediately advise the Congress of the exercise of the authority granted in subsection (a) of this section, and shall report quarterly on the estimated obligations incurred pursuant to the authority granted in subsection (a) of this section."]

Sec. 613. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores of the agencies of the Department of Defense for the cost of purchase (including commercial transportation in the United States to the place of sale but excluding all transportation outside the United States) and maintenance of operating equipment and supplies, and for the actual or estimated cost of utilities as may be furnished by the Government and of shrinkage, spoilage, and pilferage of merchandise under the control of such commissary stores, except as authorized under regulations promulgated by the Secretaries of the military departments concerned, with the approval of the Secretary of Defense, which regulations shall provide for reimbursement therefor to the appropriations concerned and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, shall provide for the adjustment of the sales prices in such commissary stores to the extent necessary to furnish sufficient gross revenue from sales of commissary stores to make such reimbursement: Provided, That under such regulations as may be issued pursuant to this section all utilities may be furnished without cost to the commissary stores outside the continental United States and in Alaska: Provided further, That no appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores within the continental United States unless the Secretary of Defense has certified that items normally procured from commissary stores are not otherwise available at a reasonable distance and a reasonable price in satisfactory quality and quantity to the military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense.

Sec. 614. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, Executive order, or regulation, no part of the appropriations in this Act shall be available for any expenses of operating aircraft under the jurisdiction of the Armed Forces for the purpose of proficiency flying except in accordance with the regulations issued by the Secretaries of the Departments concerned and approved by the Secretary of Defense which shall establish proficiency standards and maximum and minimum flying hours for this purpose: Provided, That without regard to any provision of law or Executive order prescribing minimum flight requirements, such regulations may provide for the payment of flight pay at the rates prescribed in section 301 of title 37, United States Code, to certain members of the Armed Forces otherwise entitled to receive flight pay during the current fiscal year (1) who have held aeronautical ratings or designations for not less than fifteen years, or (2) whose particular assignment outside the United States or in Alaska makes it impractical to participate in regular aerial flights.

Sec. 615. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expense of transportation, packing, crating, temporary storage, drayage, and unpacking of household goods and personal effects in any one shipment having a net weight in excess of thirteen thousand five hundred pounds.

Sec. 616. Vessels under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce, the Department of the Army, Department of the Air Force, or the Department of the Navy may be transferred or otherwise made available without reimbursement to any such agencies upon the request of the head of one agency and the approval of the agency having jurisdiction of the vessels concerned.

Sec. 617. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for training in any legal profession nor for the payment of tuition for training in such profession: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to the off-duty training of military personnel as prescribed by section 621 of this Act.

Sec. 618. Not more than 20 per centum of the appropriations in this Act which are limited for obligation during the current fiscal year shall be obligated during the last two months of the fiscal year: Provided, That this section shall not apply to obligations for support of active duty training of civilian components or summer camp training of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

Sec. 619. During the current fiscal year the agencies of the Department of Defense may accept the use of real property from foreign countries for the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and may accept services furnished by foreign countries as reciprocal international courtesies or as services customarily made available without charge; and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas without specific appropriation therefor.

In addition to the foregoing, agencies of the Department of Defense may accept real property, services, and commodities from foreign countries for the use of the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas, without specific appropriations therefor: Provided, That within thirty days after the end of each quarter the Secretary of Defense shall render to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives and to the Bureau of the Budget a full report of such property, supplies, and commodities received during such quarter.

Sec. 620. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for research and development may be used for the purposes of section 2353 of title 10, United States Code, and for purposes related to research and development for which expenditures are specifically authorized in other appropriations of the service concerned.

Sec. 621. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of more than 75 per centum of charges of educational institutions for tuition or expenses for off-duty training of military personnel, nor for the payment of any part of tuition or expenses for such training for commissioned personnel who do not agree to remain on active duty for two years after completion of such training.

Sec. 622. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be expended for the support of any formally enrolled student in basic courses of the senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, who has not executed a certificate of loyalty or loyalty oath in such form as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

Sec. 623. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the procurement of any article of food, clothing, cotton, woven silk or woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, or wool (whether in the form of fiber or yarn or contained in fabrics, materials, or manufactured articles) not grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions, except to the extent that the Secretary of the Department concerned shall determine that a satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of any articles of food or clothing or any form of cotton, woven silk and woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, or wool grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions cannot be procured as and when needed at United States market prices and except procurements outside the United States in support of combat operations, procurements by vessels in foreign waters and emergency procurements or procurements of perishable foods by establishments located outside the United States for the personnel attached thereto: Provided, That nothing herein shall preclude the procurement of foods manufactured or processed in the United States or its possessions: Provided further, That no funds herein appropriated shall be used for the payment of a price differential on contracts hereafter made for the purpose of relieving economic dislocations: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used except that, so far as practicable, all contracts shall be awarded on a formally advertised competitive bid basis to the lowest responsible bidder.

Sec. 624. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or dry-cleaning facility in the United States, its Territories or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

Sec. 625. During the current fiscal year, appropriations of the Department of Defense shall be available for reimbursement to the Post Office Department for payment of costs of commercial air transportation of military mail between the United States and foreign countries.

SEC. 626. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for the purchase of household furnishings, house trailers (for the purpose of relieving unusual individual losses occasioned by the relocation of personnel from installations in France), and automobiles from military and civilian personnel on duty outside the continental United States, for the purpose of resale at cost to incoming personnel, and for providing furnishings, without charge, in other than public quarters occupied by military or civilian personnel of the Department of Defense on duty outside the continental United States or in Alaska, upon a determination, under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, that such action is advantageous to the Government.

SEC. 627. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for pay of civilian employees shall be available for uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by [the Act of September 1, 1954, as amended] law (5 U.S.C. [2131] 5901; 80 Stat. 508).

SEC. 628. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense shall, upon requisition of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, and without reimbursement, transfer from agencies of the Department of Defense to the Board ammunition from stock or which has been procured for the purpose in such amounts as he may determine.

Such appropriations of the Department of Defense available for obligation during the current fiscal year as may be designated by the Secretary of Defense shall be available for the travel expenses of military and naval personnel, including the reserve components, and members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps attending regional, national, or international rifle matches.

SEC. 629. Funds provided in this Act for congressional liaison activities of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense shall not exceed $950,000: Provided, That this amount shall be available for apportionment to the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense as determined by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 630. Of the funds made available by this Act for the services of the Military Airlift Command, $100,000,000 shall be available only for procurement of commercial transportation service from carriers participating in the civil reserve air fleet program; and the Secretary of Defense shall utilize the services of such carriers which qualify as small businesses to the fullest extent found practicable: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall specify in such procurement, performance characteristics for aircraft to be used based upon modern aircraft operated by the civil air fleet.

SEC. 631. Not to exceed [$11,746,000] $13,351,300 of the funds made available in this Act for the purpose shall be available for the hire of motor vehicles: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense, under circumstances where the immediate movement of persons is imperative, may, if he deems it to be in the national interest, hire motor vehicles for such purposes without regard to this limitation.

SEC. 632. Not less than $7,500,000 of the funds made available in this Act for travel expenses in connection with temporary duty and permanent change of station of civilian and military personnel of the Department of Defense shall be available only for the procurement of commercial passenger sea transportation service on American-flag vessels.

SEC. 633. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for operation may be used for civilian clothing, not to exceed $40 in cost for enlisted personnel: (1) discharged for misconduct, unfitness, unsuitability, or otherwise than honorably; (2) sentenced by a civil court to confinement in a civil prison or interned or discharged as an alien enemy; (3) discharged prior to completion of recruit training under honorable conditions for dependency, hardship, minority, disability, or for the convenience of the Government.

SEC. 634. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for paying the costs of advertising by any defense contractor, except advertising for which payment is made from profits, and such advertising shall not be considered a part of any defense contract cost. The prohibition contained in this section shall not apply with respect to advertising conducted by any such contractor, in compliance with regulations which shall be promulgated by the Secretary of Defense, solely for (1) the recruitment by that contractor of personnel required for the performance by the contractor of obligations arising under a defense contract, (2) the procurement of scarce items required by the contractor for the performance of a defense contract, or (3) the disposal of scrap or surplus materials acquired by the contractor in the performance of a defense contract.

SEC. 635. Funds appropriated in this Act for maintenance and repair of facilities and installations shall not be available for acquisition of new facilities, or alteration, expansion, extension, or addition of existing facilities, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2, dated January 18, 1961, in excess of $25,000: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may amend or change the said directive during the current fiscal year, consistent with the purpose of this section.

SEC. 636. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense may, if he deems it vital to the security of the United States and in the national interest to further improve the readiness of the Armed Forces, including the reserve components, transfer under the authority and terms of the Emergency Fund an additional $200,000,000: Provided, That the transfer authority made available under the terms of the Emergency Fund appropriation contained in this Act is hereby broadened to meet the requirements of this section: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Appropriations Committees of the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority.

SEC. 637. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any program, project, or activity in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.

SEC. 638. None of the funds provided herein shall be used to pay any recipient of a grant for the conduct of a research project an amount equal to as much as the entire cost of such project.

[SEC. 639. Only upon the approval by the Congress, through the enactment of law hereafter, of a realignment or reorganization of the Army Reserve Components, the Secretary may transfer the balances of appropriations made in this Act for the support of the Army Reserve Components to the extent necessary to implement such a realignment or reorganization; and the provisions in this Act establishing strengths for the Army Reserve and the Army National Guard shall cease to be effective.]

SEC. [640] 639. (a) Appropriations available to the Department of Defense during the current fiscal year [1967] shall be available for their stated purposes to support: (1) Vietnamese and other free world forces in Vietnam (2) local forces in Laos and Thailand; and for related costs, on such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Defense may determine[.]: Provided, That the unexpended balance of funds, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, heretofore allocated or transferred to the Secretary of Defense from appropriations for "Military assistance" for support of local forces in Laos and Thailand may be transferred to any appropriation available to the Department of Defense for military functions (including construction), to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes and for the same time period as the appropriation to which transferred.

(b) Within thirty days after the end of each quarter, the Secretary of Defense shall render to the Committees on Armed Services and Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report with respect to the estimated value by purpose, by country, of support furnished from such appropriations.

SEC. [641] 640. During the current fiscal year, cash balances in working capital funds of the Department of Defense established pursuant to section 2208 of title 10, United States Code, may be maintained in only such amounts as are necessary at any time for cash disbursements to be made from such funds: Provided, That transfers may be made between such funds in such amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the Bureau of the Budget.

[SEC. 642. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the expenses of the Special Training Enlistment Program (STEP).]

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

SEC. 101. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction in prior years are hereby made available for construction authorized for each such department by the authorizations enacted into law during the [second] first session of the [Eighty-ninth] Ninetieth Congress.

SEC. 102. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for payments under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract for work, where cost estimates exceed $25,000, to be performed within the United States, except Alaska, without the specific approval in writing of the Secretary of Defense setting forth the reasons therefor.

SEC. 103. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for additional costs involved in expediting construction unless the Secretary of Defense certifies such costs to be necessary to protect the national interest and establishes a reasonable completion date for each project, taking into consideration the urgency of the requirement, the type and location of the project, the climatic and seasonal conditions affecting the construction, and the application of economical construction practices.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or drycleaning facility in the United States, its territories, or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify, in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 105. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction are hereby made available for hire of passenger motor vehicles.

SEC. 106. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction may be used for advances to the Bureau of Public Roads, Department of Commerce Transportation, for the construction of access roads as authorized by section 210 of title 23, United States Code, when projects authorized therein are certified as important to the national defense by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 107. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to begin construction of new bases inside the Continental United States for which specific appropriations have not been made.

SEC. 108. No part of the funds contained in this Act shall be used for the construction of hospitals or composite medical facilities which do not provide facilities for obstetrical services.

SEC. 109 108. No part of the funds provided in this Act shall be used for purchase of land or land easements in excess of 100 per centum of the value as determined by the Corps of Engineers or the Bureau of Yards and Docks, except: (a) where there is a determination of value by a Federal court, (b) purchases negotiated by the Attorney General or his designee, and (c) where the estimated value is less than $25,000.

SEC. 110 109. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any project in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.

SEC. 111 110. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to (1) acquire land, (2) provide for site preparation, or (3) install utilities for any family housing, except housing for which funds have been made available in annual military construction appropriation acts.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—CIVIL DEFENSE

Appropriations contained in this Act for carrying out civil defense activities shall not be available in excess of the limitations on appropriations contained in section 408 of the Federal Civil Defense Act, as amended (50 U.S.C. App. 2260).

No part of any appropriation in this Act shall be available for the construction of warehouses or for the lease of warehouse space in any building which is to be constructed specifically for civil defense activities.

No part of any appropriation contained in this Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency included in this Act, shall be used for construction of fallout shelters except in construction of new buildings under the heading, "Construction, Public Buildings Projects", for the current fiscal year.

This appropriation provides funds for the operation and maintenance of the national cemetery system and for the procurement and supply of headstones and markers for graves of eligible persons buried in national and private cemeteries.

1. Operation and maintenance.—The national cemetery system consists of 118 activities located in 33 States, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia. Included are 85 national cemeteries and 33 miscellaneous burial plots and monument sites. A total of 48,500 interments were made in 1966; 47,650 are estimated for 1967 and 47,000 projected for 1968. There will be 2,658 developed acres to be maintained in 1968. Funds are required for 933 man-years of cemetery labor, for contractual services for maintenance of cemetery installations and for necessary operating supplies and equipment.

2. Construction.—Provision is made for 12 projects, including 2 gravesite development projects necessary to preclude closing of cemeteries to interments. An amount is also included for engineering investigations and preparation of plans for future requirements.

3. Headstone procurement.—The basis of the 1968 program is a 5.7% increase in normal applications.

Under existing legislation, 1967.—Funds are required for advanced planning and design and other land development requirements in preparation for the 1968 special construction and development project at Arlington National Cemetery. In addition funds are requested for developmental work at other national cemeteries.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS—CIVIL

The civil works program of the Corps of Engineers consists of a number of related activities for the control and development for beneficial use of water resources in the United States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

The total appropriation requested is $1,289 million, which is $4 million less than the 1967 estimate and $41 million less than the appropriation for 1966.

General and special funds:

The following appropriations shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for authorized civil functions of the Department of the Army pertaining to rivers and harbors, flood control, beach erosion, and related purposes:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For expenses necessary for the collection and study of basic information pertaining to river and harbor, flood control, shore protection, and related projects, and when authorized by law, surveys and studies of projects prior to authorization for construction, [$32,450,000] $39,745,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That $441,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Department of the Army. 1. Surveys.—Navigation and flood control studies are made to determine the need and economic justification for proposed water and related land resource developments. Beach erosion control studies are undertaken to determine the need for shore protection and remedial measures at specific localities. Funds are provided in 1968 to continue 83 navigation, 132 flood control, and 15 beach erosion surveys. Sixteen navigation, 23 flood control, and 2 beach erosion surveys will be initiated.

Comprehensive river basin studies provide for broad consideration of water and related land resource needs of river basins. They are coordinated with the related river basin planning efforts of the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture and other concerned agencies. Seventeen studies will be carried forward in the following basins:

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. California region. | 10. Puget Sound area, Wash. |
| 2. Columbia-North Pacific region. | 11. Red River below Denison Dam, La., Ark., Okla., and Tex. |
| 3. Connecticut River basin, Conn., Mass., Vt., and N.H. | 12. Susquehanna River basin, N.Y., Pa., and Md. |
| 4. Grand River basin, Mich. | 13. Upper Colorado region. |
| 5. Kanawha River, W. Va., Va., and N.C. | 14. Upper Mississippi River basin. |
| 6. Lower Colorado region. | 15. Wabash River, Ind. and Ill. |
| 7. Missouri River basin. | 16. White River basin, Ark. and Mo. |
| 8. North Atlantic region. | 17. Willamette River basin, Ore. |
| 9. Pearl River basin, Miss. | |

Funds are requested to initiate two additional comprehensive studies—Great Lakes region and Souris-Red region.

Special studies are made to resolve unique or especially complex water resources problems. Funds are requested to continue 10 special studies.

Surveys are made in coordination with Federal, State, and local agencies and interests. They give appropriate consideration to present and future requirements for all beneficial uses of water and related land resources, including navigation, flood control, water supply, irrigation, water quality control, power, recreation, and fish and wildlife conservation.

2. Collection and study of basic data.—Funds are transferred to the Geological Survey for installation, operation, and maintenance of stream gaging stations; to the Weather Bureau for hydrometeorological studies and precipitation stations; and to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for preauthorization studies of the effects of proposed projects upon fish and wildlife. The Corps of Engineers participates on a number of engineering and control boards that study and control international streams mutually affecting the United States and Canada. Information for guidance in the management of flood plain areas is made available to States and local governmental agencies upon their request, and to other Federal agencies as needed.

3. Research and development.—Coastal engineering research and development studies deal with physical phenomena, techniques, basic principles, and remedial or control measures related to shore protection and improvement. The results of these studies are disseminated to interested Federal, State, and local agencies and individuals.

Hydrologic studies include investigations of storms, rainfall, streamflow, sedimentation, and other phenomena to provide basic data used in the design, construction, and operation of water control structures.

Civil works investigations are made to improve procedures for analysis of hydrologic and engineering data, refine design methods, develop better materials and practices for the construction and maintenance of hydraulic structures, and improve procedures used in formulating plans for water resources development.

Studies are being carried out on the Mississippi River basin model to improve operation of the reservoir system in the basin and to study potential flood levels on the lower river. Maintenance of the model will be continued with the funds requested.

Nuclear explosives studies for civil construction are carried out as part of a joint research program with the Atomic Energy Commission. The ultimate objective is to develop an engineering capability to use nuclear explosives in construction of public works projects. The Corps of Engineers has primary responsibility for chemical explosive experiments and development of engineering, construction, and cost data.

CONSTRUCTION, GENERAL

For the prosecution of river and harbor, flood control, shore protection, and related projects authorized by law; and detailed studies, and plans and specifications, [or] of projects (including those for development with participation or under consideration for participation by States, local governments, or private groups) authorized or made eligible for selection by law (but such studies shall not constitute a commitment of the Government to construction); [$967,460,000] $952,573,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used for projects not authorized by law or which are authorized by law limiting the amount to be appropriated therefor, except as may be within the limits of the amount now or hereafter authorized to be appropriated: Provided further, That the Chief of Engineers shall, in lieu of altering the existing obsolescent bridge, provide a new four-lane high-level bridge as a replacement for the United States Highway Numbered 64 bridge immediately west of Fort Smith, Arkansas: Provided further, That at the discretion of the Chief of Engineers, funds appropriated for the Robert S. Kerr Lock and Dam, Oklahoma may be used to provide appropriate navigational clearances for bridges crossing the Sans Bois Creek which are to be relocated under the existing project: Provided further, That the Lost Creek Project in Oregon and the Wynoochee Project in Washington shall not be operated for irrigation purposes until such time as the Secretary of the Interior makes the necessary arrangements with non-Federal interests to recover the costs, in accordance with Federal Reclamation Law, which are allocated to the irrigation purpose: Provided further, That appropriations under this head shall be available to the Chief of Engineers for the purposes authorized by section 6 of the Flood Control Act of 1946: Provided further, That the authority contained therein is extended to include the Libby Dam and Reservoir project in Montana: Provided further, That [$550,000] $580,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that Wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Department of the Army. (16 U.S.C. 661-666, 756; 33 U.S.C. 511-523, 540, 701; 55 Stat. 638; 66 Stat. 635, 732; Public Works Appropriation Act, 1967.)

Note: Excludes funds for bridge construction activities to be provided under "Acquisition, construction, and improvements." Coast Guard, Department of Transportation. The amounts obligated in 1966 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers, and in 1967 are shown as comparative and actual transfers.

The requested appropriation of $953 million represents a decrease of $14 million compared with the amount appropriated for 1967 and a decrease of $41 million compared with 1966. About 75% of the requested appropriation will be applied to 57 major projects in amounts of $5 million or more each.

1. Advance engineering and design.—Design studies establish project features and cost estimates required for preparation of contract plans. The funds requested will bring designs and plans for a number of high priority projects to the stage where they will be ready for construction, and will permit continuation or initiation of planning on other needed projects. Funds are also requested for a special study of ground water hydrology and an expanded salinity monitoring system in connection with the Arkansas-Red River Basin Water Quality Control project.

2. Navigation projects.—This activity includes construction of locks, dams, and canals, and improvement of channels and harbors by dredging and by construction of breakwaters, jetties, and dikes. Provision is made also for the construction of small navigation projects not specifically authorized by Congress.

With the funds requested work will be continued in 1968 on 44 channel and harbor projects, of which 12 will be completed; and on 15 lock, dam, and canal projects, of which 2 will be completed.

3. Alteration of bridges over navigable waters.—Obstructive bridges over navigable waterways are altered under arrangements that provide for apportionment of the costs of alteration between the United States and the bridge owners. This authority will be transferred to the Department of Transportation. Funds for financing the Federal share in 1968 and future years will be requested by the Department of Transportation.

4. Beach erosion control projects.—The Federal Government assists in the construction of works for the restoration and protection against erosion by waves and currents of the shores of the United States and possessions. Existing law provides for Federal payment of 50% of the cost of beach erosion control works for the protection of non-Federal publicly owned or publicly used shores, and up to 70% of the cost of protection of State and other publicly owned shore parks and conservation areas that meet certain criteria. Provision is also made for small beach erosion control projects not requiring specific congressional authorization.

Funds are requested for five continuing beach erosion control projects in 1968, one of which (Doheny Beach, Calif.) will be completed. Funds are also requested for one new start (Evanston, Ill.). Reimbursements will be made to compensate local interests on four of the continuing projects and the new start at Evanston, Ill.

5. Flood control projects.—This activity includes local protection projects and reservoirs for flood control and other purposes, such as water supply, but without power installations. Local protection projects consist of channel improvements, levees, and floodwalls. Provision is made for snagging and clearing work on navigable streams and tributaries when such work is necessary in the interest of flood control; for emergency bank protection; and for the construction of small flood control projects not specifically authorized by Congress.

With the funds requested, work will be continued on 84 local protection projects, of which 22 will be completed; and on 65 reservoir projects, of which 8 will be completed in 1968. Four new local protection projects and four new reservoir projects will be initiated as follows:

| 1. Hidden Reservoir, Calif. | 3. Meramec Park Reservoir, Mo. |
| 2. Patoka Reservoir, Ind. | 4. San Gabriel River, Tex. |

6. Multiple-purpose projects, including power.—With the funds requested, work will be continued on 32 multiple-purpose projects with power installations, 2 of which—Walter F. George lock and dam, Alabama and Georgia, and Keystone Reservoir, Oklahoma—will be completed with 1968 funds.

7. Recreation on completed projects.—Additional public use facilities will be provided at completed projects to accommodate a rapidly increasing number of visitors.

8. Small authorized projects.—Activities in 1968 will be financed from funds appropriated in prior years.

9. Coordination Act studies (Fish and Wildlife Service).—This program provides for detailed studies and reports by the Fish and Wildlife Service to determine the effects on fish and wildlife resources of water-control projects of the Corps of Engineers.

10. Rehabilitation.—Rehabilitation work is undertaken on existing projects or parts of projects that have deteriorated to the extent that their usefulness has been impaired. Repair of breakwaters, revetments, and piers will be carried out on 10 navigation and 1 multi-purpose project including power in 1968 under major rehabilitation.

11. Aquatic plant control.—This program is for the control and progressive eradication of waterhyacinths, alligatorweed, Eurasian watermilfoil, and other obnoxious aquatic plant growths from navigable waters, tributaries, connecting channels, and other allied waters of the United States, in the interest of navigation, flood control, drainage, agriculture, fish and wildlife conservation, public health, and related purposes. The authority includes research to develop the most effective and economic control measures.

This appropriation finances operation and maintenance of existing projects and other related activities.

1. Navigation projects.—In 1968, operation and maintenance will be carried out on 240 channel and harbor projects and on 30 locks, dams, and canals.

2. Flood control projects.—In 1968, 176 flood control reservoirs and 20 local protection projects will be operated and maintained. Other completed flood control projects will be inspected to determine the adequacy of maintenance by local interests.

3. Multiple-purpose projects, including power.—By the end of 1968, 51 multiple-purpose projects with an installed capacity of 10,065,400 kilowatts will be operated and maintained.

4. Protection of navigation.—Under laws for the protection and preservation of navigable waters, regulations are established and permits are granted for activities and structures affecting navigable waters. Some of these activities will be transferred to the Department of Transportation.

The Corps of Engineers—Civil is responsible for the flood control program for the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, lower Arkansas, Yazoo, Tensas, and Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou Lafourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvement by bank stabilization from Head of Passes, La., to Cairo, Ill., and by dredging a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for five flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

1. General investigations.—Eight studies will be continued, of which three will be completed in 1968. One study will be initiated. Basic data subsequently used in planning and designing projects are collected.

2. Advance engineering and design.—Funds are requested to continue planning on one feature and initiate planning on another.

3. Construction.—The total cost of flood control and related improvements in the lower Mississippi River and its alluvial valley is estimated at $2,398 million, of which $1,477 million has been appropriated through 1967. The funds requested will be applied to continuation of 10 features.

4. Maintenance.—Provision is made for operation and maintenance of major features of the project.

The fund provides for the acquisition, operation, and maintenance of floating and land-based plant and equipment used in civil works functions; for temporary financing of services finally chargeable to civil works appropriations and for the furnishing of facilities and services for the military functions of the Department of the Army and other governmental agencies and private persons (67 Stat. 199).

Budget program—Operating costs.—Operating costs are expected to remain at about the same level in 1967 and 1968.

Capital outlay.—Land and structures includes replacement costs of buildings, facilities, and related land. Dredges and other floating plant includes replacement and improvement costs for dredges and dredging equipment and other vessels such as tugs, tenders, and towboats. Land-based equipment includes replacement and improvement costs of transportation equipment, construction equipment, and fixed land equipment such as shop tools and fixed power driven equipment. Major items for replacement and plant expansion are noted in the following narrative.

Land and structures.—The 1968 program includes $0.5 million for initial construction of the South Atlantic Division laboratory at Marietta, Ga.; $0.9 million for replacement of the Waterways Experiment Station concrete laboratory in Vicksburg, Miss.; $0.7 million to continue replacement of the shop and yard facilities in Vicksburg, Miss.; and $0.7 million for construction of facilities for the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors and the Coastal Engineering Research Center.

Dredges.—The 1968 program includes $1.1 million for rehabilitation of pipeline dredges Wahkiakum, St. Genevieve, and Bacon; $6.5 million for construction of hopper dredge Hayward; $0.2 million for conversion of a YSD vessel to a pipeline dredge; $0.6 million for construction of the towboat/snagboat KOS; and $0.1 million for design of a shallow draft hopper dredge.

Other.—Remaining capital outlays relate to a variety of relatively small items of floating plant, land-based equipment and tools, office furniture and equipment.

Financing.—Reimbursements or advances from appropriations or individuals utilizing the services or facilities cover all operating costs and the capital outlay program reflected in the revolving fund schedules. Sales prices include an extra charge to help fund replacement of fixed assets at higher prices than original cost. Sums so obtained are applied to replacements as needed.

Operating results and financial condition.—Unreserved earnings in 1966 were $1.5 million more than expenses, thereby increasing these earnings to $4.7 million. Unreserved earnings are expected to decrease to about $4.3 million in 1967 and $3 million in 1968.

Initial capital of the fund was provided by assumption of the assets, liabilities, and obligations of the plant accounts as carried on the records of the Corps of Engineers—Civil, at June 30, 1953, and by an appropriation from the general fund of $100. Capital (Government equity) of the fund amounted to $140.9 million at June 30, 1966, and is limited to $149 million by the Public Works Appropriation Act of 1967. In 1966, capital was increased by net earnings of $9.3 million and was decreased $2.7 million due to net transfers of assets to other agencies without reimbursement. Increases in 1967 and 1968 are principally due to earnings reserved for plant replacement which are wholly invested in assets. Capital of the fund is expected to reach $149 million at the end of 1967 and $156 million at end of 1968. To permit operation at program levels for those years and into 1969, an increase in authorized capital to $162 million is required.

Consolidated summary of personnel.—The revolving fund is used to initially finance all payrolls of the Corps of Engineers—Civil.

The table which follows shows the distribution of personnel and salary costs to appropriations of the Corps of Engineers and to other accounts. Direct obligations cover services of employees working full time at project sites. Indirect obligations cover personnel charges for services provided through the revolving fund.

This appropriation supports the objective of the act of July 12, 1960, as amended, to provide for the promotion of economic and social development in the Ryukyu Islands, and finances the administration of these islands by the United States, which exercises jurisdiction pursuant to the treaty of peace with Japan. Executive Order 10713 of June 5, 1957, as amended, establishes under the Secretary of Defense a Civil Administration of the Ryukyu Islands to execute the administrative, legislative, and jurisdictional powers reposed in the United States. To protect the security of the free world, the United States will continue responsibility for the administration of the Ryukyu Islands as long as conditions of threat and tension in the Far East require the maintenance of military bases in the islands.

Administration.—The program will provide for the general operating expenses of the Office of the High Commissioner and for the staff necessary to plan and execute the aid program and to assist the Government of the Ryukyu Islands in its responsibilities for administration.

Aid to the Ryukyuan economy.—The principal elements of the program are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars). The amounts under "1967 proposal" and "1968 proposal" represent anticipated requests under proposed legislation to increase the amount authorized by the Act of July 12, 1960, as amended, to be appropriated for economic assistance.

Income from operations is derived primarily from the net earnings of the corporations, from the purchase and resale of petroleum products, from interest and from dividends.

The earnings of the development loan, electric power, and water corporations, are reinvested within the respective corporations each year. Receipts from the sale of petroleum products are distributed in part directly to the Government of the Ryukyu Islands, in lieu of taxes which might normally be expected from such sales, and are retained in part for contributions to social and economic development programs for the islands. A cash balance is retained in the fund to meet emergency requirements.

A $43 million program for the expansion and development of the water system and the construction of water storage and distribution facilities was initiated by the Ryukyu Domestic Water Corporation in 1963. The first two phases of this program are expected to be completed in 1970 at an estimated cost of $25 million. For this purpose, $6 million was contributed under this appropriation during 1964-65 to the capital of the corporation. In addition, $13.7 million was contributed from the General Fund in 1963 through 1967, and it is planned to contribute $2.2 million in 1968, $1.3 million in 1969, and $1.8 million in 1970, to complete the first two phases.

Additional economic aid is furnished by the United States through other programs. One of these is the free distribution of foodstuffs under the Food for Peace program. A second is the provision of long-term credit for purchase of surplus commodities under the same program.

The total amount of external funds being made available for Ryukyuan economic and social development by the

The Government of the Ryukyu Islands was created by the U.S. Civil Administration on April 1, 1952. In addition to local revenue derived primarily from income and excise taxes, this government receives grants from the U.S. Government and the Government of Japan. Grants from the United States are related to extraordinary services provided for U.S. forces and for assistance in development of public facilities and services. This appropriation was made available for a loan from the Secretary of the Army to the Ryukyu Electric Power Corporation (REPC) to fund construction of an 88 megawatt powerplant and ancillary facilities at Kin on Okinawa. Construction cost of the plant, which went into operation in July 1965, was $15.2 million. Of this amount $10.5 million was obligated from the loan appropriation and $4.7 million was made available from REPC earnings.

It is anticipated that the $7.5 million remaining in this appropriation, will be utilized for the provision of additional powerplant facilities in 1967 and 1968.
