The reimbursements from foreign air transportation and sale of sites to prospective lessors amount to 97.5 percent of the total reimbursements estimated to be received in 1969.

5. Foreign air transportation: Transportation of military mail (Department of Defense).—The Department of Defense pays for the overseas portion of the transportation of mail moving to and from military post offices in foreign countries. Because it is set up to do so, the Post Office Department makes the arrangements with and pays the bills of commercial air carriers who haul this mail overseas. The Department of Defense makes a reimbursement to the Transportation limitation for the costs thus incurred by the Post Office Department. The trend in volume growth is expected to continue through 1969.

6. Building occupancy: Sale of sites and related costs to prospective lessors.—This program provides for purchase of sites for construction of leased postal facilities and payments of architect-engineering fees for the design of such buildings. The sites are resold to successful bidders upon award of the agreement to lease, and the proceeds reimbursed to the Building occupancy limitation.

Unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other Government civilian operations overseas. Housing is provided American employees in localities where suitable housing is otherwise unavailable.

Appropriations are made pursuant to periodic congressional authorizations. The most recent authorization, Public Law 89-636, provided a capital authorization of $29.8 million and an operating authorization of $12.6 million for 1968 and $12.8 million for 1969.

Since 1961, a separate appropriation for excess foreign currencies has been enacted annually pursuant to Public Law 480, as amended. These currencies supplement the regular building fund and are used to acquire or construct real property. They are also used for operating and maintenance costs to the greatest extent possible, in order to reduce dollar requirements. Countries having currencies available for this program in 1969 are Burma, Ceylon, Guinea, India, Israel, Nepal (through use of Indian rupees), Pakistan, Poland, Tunisia, United Arab Republic, and Yugoslavia. These funds are credited to and expended under the regular appropriation.

EMERGENCIES IN THE DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR SERVICE

For expenses necessary to enable the Secretary of State to meet unforeseen emergencies arising in the Diplomatic and Consular Service, to be expended pursuant to the requirement of section 291 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 107), [$4,100,000], of which such amount as may be necessary may be transferred to the appropriation under this heading for the fiscal year 1967 [$1,600,000]. (Department of State Appropriation Act, 1968.)

The United States contributes its share of the expenses of the United Nations and eight of its specialized agencies, six Inter-American organizations, seven regional organizations, and 13 other organizations.

The major increases are for the U.S. contribution to the United Nations, the World Health Organization, the Food and Agricultural Organization, and the Organization of American States.

The United Nations increase results mainly from (1) normal salary, cost-of-living and price increases; (2) the addition of new posts in the UN Secretariat; (3) activities in the field of economic and social development, including activities of the United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO); (4) regular budget costs arising from the Middle East hostilities, including expenses of a Special General Assembly, the strengthening of the UN Truce Supervisory Organization in the Middle East, and of the UN Middle East Mission; and (5) increased costs for meetings and conferences, including the second general UNCTAD Conference.

The increases in the U.S. contributions to the other organizations result principally from the following factors in addition to salary, cost-of-living and price increases: (1) The World Health Organization is expanding programs in the field of education and training, public health administration, environmental health, nursing, nutrition, parasitic diseases, virus diseases, and smallpox; (2) The Food and Agriculture Organization is further developing the Indicative World Plan (a long-range global assessment of the magnitude of the efforts that will be required to cope with the world food crisis), expanding its fisheries program, and assisting in the development of new agricultural projects through cooperative programs with the international lending institutions; (3) The Organization of American States is expanding its activities to carry out decisions of the inter-American Summit meeting held at Punta del Este in the spring of 1967.

This appropriation funds the cost of official U.S. Government participation in multilateral intergovernmental conferences and other international activities which are determined to be necessary to the successful conduct of U.S. foreign relations. This includes (a) conferences of the United Nations, its subsidiary bodies and specialized agencies; (b) meetings of regional and other international organizations—including the Organization of American States and its subsidiary or related bodies, commodity groups, and specialized bodies dealing with intergovernmental economic, political, cultural, or scientific matters; (c) other intergovernmental conferences which are not directly associated with any international organization; (d) defraying the expenses of participating members of international secretariats to meetings, conferences, and related activities held under U.S. auspices; and (e) contributions to new or provisional organizations.

This appropriation request provides for regularly scheduled or planned conferences and for predictable U.S. contributions to new or provisional organizations. The 1969 estimate does not provide for unforeseen contingencies.

1. Rio Grande international dams program.—Construction of Amistad Dam, the second major international storage structure on the Rio Grande contemplated by the 1944 Water Treaty, will be completed in fiscal year 1969.

2. Lower Rio Grande flood control improvement program.—Authorized by agreement with Mexico and the Act of August 19, 1935. Prior to the record flood in the fall of 1967, improvements to the channel of the Lower Rio Grande and a second international flood diversion dam would complete the work then thought necessary to provide adequate protection for the critical urban areas—the cities of Brownsville, Harlingen and Hidalgo on the U.S. side of the Rio Grande, and Matamoros and Reynosa on the Mexican side. Available funds were and are being used for emergency flood fighting and emergency repairs to existing work. Studies, to be completed in January 1968, are now being carried out to determine what improvements must be made to protect life and property in the lower Rio Grande Valley as the result of the disastrous 1967 flood.

6. Nogales sanitation project.—Expansion of the Nogales international disposal works, in accordance with the agreement entered into with Mexico for sharing of the costs, will be started in 1968 and completed in 1969. No funds are requested for 1969 as work will be financed from funds made available in prior years.

9. Tijuana River flood control.—Authorized by the Act of October 10, 1966 (90 Stat. 884). The design, plans, and specifications for the U.S. improvements required for flood control in the Tijuana River Valley in California and Baja California are scheduled for completion in 1969. A supplemental appropriation is anticipated in 1968 to initiate design of this project.

These funds are used for payment of the U.S. share of the expenses of:

1. International Boundary Commission.—This Commission keeps the United States-Canadian boundary line marked in accordance with existing treaties. It also maintains boundary vistas by periodic tree cutting and chemical vegetation control.

2. International Joint Commission.—The Commission studies United States-Canadian border matters, such as investigation of water and smoke pollution in conjunction with the Public Health Service and the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration, and gathering stream-flow data in cooperation with the Geological Survey. It also acts to insure appropriate apportionment of international waters and, upon referral, investigates and makes recommendations for remedial action.

3. Lake Ontario Claims Tribunal.—This international arbitral tribunal receives and makes final disposition of claims of American citizens against Canada for damage caused during 1951-52 by high waters to property located along the south shore of Lake Ontario.

The transportation research program has as its primary objective the development of information and the conduct of analyses upon which transportation policies and programs can be formulated which will best contribute to the goal of a safe and efficient national transportation system. Use of the appropriation will be controlled by the Secretary of the Department. The activities under this appropriation fall into three major areas of interest.

1. General transportation research.—This activity includes technical, economic and other studies in the field of transportation research.

2. Northeast Corridor transportation project.—This activity finances research designed to develop intercity transportation plans and programs for the Northeast Corridor region for 1980 and beyond.

3. Transportation information planning.—This activity finances research for planning and developing a comprehensive program to improve the reliability, compatibility, availability, and utility of information relating to the Nation's transportation system.

The working capital fund was authorized by the Department of Transportation Act to finance common support administrative services. The fund was established on July 2, 1967, and is available without fiscal year limitation to finance the publishing and graphics program at the Washington headquarters. Capital of the fund consists of supplies valued at $60 thousand and equipment valued at $314 thousand, minus accrued annual leave valued at $70 thousand which were transferred without reimbursement.

Operating results and financial condition.—Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all operating expenses, including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by the operating administrations and offices being served. No retained earnings are anticipated for the current or budget year.

General and special funds:

OPERATING EXPENSES

For necessary expenses for the operation and maintenance of the Coast Guard and Coast Guard Reserve, not otherwise provided for, including hire of passenger motor vehicles; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; purchase of not to exceed sixteen passenger motor vehicles, [of which fourteen shall be] for replacement only; maintenance, operation, and repair of aircraft; recreation and welfare; and uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901; 80 Stat. 299); [$342,651,000] $391,560,000: Provided, That the number of aircraft on hand at any one time shall not exceed one hundred and [seventy-nine] ninety exclusive of planes and parts stored to meet future attrition: Provided further, That, without regard to any provisions of law or Executive order prescribing minimum flight requirements, Coast Guard regulations which establish proficiency standards and maximum and minimum flying hours for this purpose may provide for the payment of flight pay at the rates prescribed in section 301 of title 37, United States Code, to certain members of the Coast Guard otherwise entitled to receive flight pay during the current fiscal year (1) who have held aeronautical ratings or designations for not less than fifteen years, or (2) whose particular assignment outside the United States or in Alaska, makes it impractical to participate in regular aerial flights: Provided further, That amounts equal to the obligated balances against the appropriations for "Operating expenses" and "Reserve training" for the two preceding years, shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation, and such merged appropriation shall be available as one fund, except for accounting purposes of the Coast Guard, for the payment of obligations properly incurred against such prior year appropriations and against this appropriation: Provided further, That, except as otherwise authorized by the Act of September 30, 1950 (20 U.S.C. 236-244), this appropriation shall be available for expenses of primary and secondary schooling for dependents of Coast Guard personnel stationed outside the continental United States at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools, if any, available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and the Coast Guard may provide for the transportation of said dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation. (14 U.S.C.; 5 U.S.C. 7901, 8334, 8708; 10 U.S.C. 262, 1475, 1476; 19 U.S.C. 261, 267, 1451; 26 U.S.C. 3111; 33 U.S.C. 180, 243, 253, 322, 401, 471, 472, 491 et seq.; 499, 511 et seq.; 525 et seq.; 748, 748a, 763c, 1001 et seq.; 37 U.S.C.; 46 U.S.C.; 50 U.S.C. 191, 194; Department of Transportation Appropriation Act, 1968.)

[RESERVE TRAINING]

[For all necessary expenses for the Coast Guard Reserve, as authorized by law, including repayment to other Coast Guard appropriations for indirect expenses, for regular personnel, or reserve personnel while on active duty, engaged primarily in administration and operation of the reserve program; maintenance and operation of facilities; supplies, equipment, and services; and the maintenance, operation, and repair of aircraft; $24,300,000: Provided, That amounts equal to the obligated balances against the appropriations for "Reserve training" for the two preceding years shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation, and such merged appropriation shall be available as one fund, except for accounting purposes of the Coast Guard, for the payment of obligations properly incurred against such prior year appropriations and against this appropriation.] (14 U.S.C.; 5 U.S.C. 8334; 10 U.S.C. 262, 1476; 26 U.S.C. 3111; 37 U.S.C. 206, 301(f), 309, 402(b), 416-418, 1002, 1004; Department of Transportation Appropriation Act, 1968.)

NOTES

Includes $25,024 thousand for activities previously carried under "Reserve training."

Excludes $1,500 thousand for activities transferred in the estimates to "Research, development, test, and evaluation." The amounts obligated in 1967 and 1968 are shown on the schedule as comparative transfers.

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out the duties specified in title 14, United States Code.

Direct program.—1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs any and all acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft disaster or due to floods and ice conditions (14 U.S.C. 88), Coast Guard activities in the area of search and rescue fall within the National SAR Plan and other agreements.

3. Merchant marine safety.—The Coast Guard insures compliance with Federal statutes and regulations pertaining to the merchant marine industry by reviewing plans and specifications for the construction or alteration of merchant vessels, by periodic inspections, by conducting marine casualty investigations, and by setting standards, procedures, and practices under which merchant marine personnel are regulated (14 U.S.C. 2).

4. Marine law enforcement.—Vessels, aircraft, and shore units enforce Federal laws on the high seas and waters over which the United States exercises jurisdiction. Law enforcement activities include fishery patrols, Campeche, Key, and Alaskan patrols; small-boat boarding; supervision of explosive loadings; enforcement of dangerous cargo regulations, and port control (14 U.S.C. 89, 91).

5. Oceanography, meteorology, and polar operations.—The Coast Guard participates in the National Marine Sciences Program (14 U.S.C. 94), which is coordinated by the National Council on Marine Resources and Engineering Development. Its facilities cooperate with the Weather Bureau in taking weather observations from vessels manning six ocean stations (14 U.S.C. 90). Icebreaking is per-

6. General support.—Certain facilities of the Coast Guard provide overall direction and support of all Coast Guard programs. Included are radio stations, repair and supply facilities, and nonoperational services at Headquarters and district offices.

7. Military readiness and operations.—The Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy in times of war or national emergency. During peacetime, readiness training is received by major units and facility armament is maintained in a state of readiness (14 U.S.C. 3). Included in this category are Coast Guard operations in Vietnam.

8. Reserve training.—The Coast Guard maintains trained officers and enlisted personnel in the Ready Reserve who are available for active duty in time of war, national emergency, and at such other times as the national security may require. The tasks required of the Coast Guard by the Department of Defense upon mobilization determine the requirements. In broad terms, these tasks are divided into port security, vessel augmentation, and other lesser but essential support areas.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, rebuilding, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, shore facilities, and aids to navigation.

Direct program.—1. Vessels.—A program to replace overage, obsolete, and deteriorated vessels of the Coast Guard will be continued in 1969 with the construction of replacements for one high endurance cutter and one coastal buoy tender. An oceanographic cutter will also be constructed to take the place of an ice patrol vessel. In addition, one of the ferryboats which operates between Governors Island and Manhattan Island, N.Y., will be replaced. The program also provides for the construction of one tender for servicing aids to navigation on the Lower Mississippi River. Modernization and improvement of existing facilities includes the installation of balloon tracking radar on five high endurance cutters and retrofits on three; installation of new generators, air conditioning on seagoing buoy tenders and improvements on coastal tenders; and habitability and communication improvements on icebreakers and high endurance cutters.

2. Aircraft.—Under this activity the program provides for the acquisition of nine replacement aircraft.

3. Shore stations and navigational aids.—The program under this activity provides for the establishment of and changes to aids to navigation marking river and harbor improvements effected by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, and other urgent needs. Other projects are included to: (a) establish five new stations; (b) replace and improve facilities at six locations; (c) relocate one unit; (d) replace waterfront facilities at one location; (e) improve facilities at one loran station, Cape San Blas,

Florida; (f) construct a barracks-mess hall facility at Air Station, Mobile, Ala.; (g) provide housing for Coast Guard personnel and their dependents in areas where living accommodations are inadequate; (h) facilitate the survey and design of future major construction projects; and (i) construct depot and mooring facilities to be associated with the buoy tender constructed in 1969 for servicing aids to navigation on the Lower Mississippi River. In addition, fixed or floating aids will be constructed to replace lightships at three locations, and nine manned light stations will be converted to automatic operation.

4. Repair and supply facilities.—The expansion of support facilities in 1969 provides for the construction of a new base at Portsmouth, Va.; replacement of bulkheads and docks at two locations; redevelopment of facilities to form a complete unit at San Juan, P.R. (including Air Station); and installation of sewage treatment plants at Base, Governors Island, N.Y., and Base, Galveston, Tex. Existing facilities at the Coast Guard Yard will be improved by consolidating the metal shop facilities in one building.

5. Training and recruiting facilities.—The program for improving facilities at training centers will continue in 1969 with the replacement of a 500-man barracks at Alameda, Calif., and replacement of the gymnasium, recreational, and medical facilities at Cape May, N.J. At the Reserve Training Center, Yorktown, Va., the enlisted men's galley/mess building will be replaced and an advanced engineman's school will be constructed.

6. Alteration of bridges.—The 1969 program also includes the cost of altering or removing bridges which obstruct free navigation of the navigable waters of the United States. Alterations are scheduled for bridges located near Morgan City, La., and Chicago, Ill.

7. Oceanography.—This is a new activity being undertaken by the Coast Guard in support of the National Oceanography program. Our mission is to provide time-series and synoptic oceanographic and meteorological data to several Federal agencies. In 1969, eight sensor systems and three monitor buoys will be installed at strategic locations.

This appropriation provides for retired pay of military personnel of the Coast Guard and Coast Guard Reserve, members of the former Lighthouse and Lifesaving Services, and for annuities payable to beneficiaries of retired military personnel under the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan (10 U.S.C. 1431-1446).

Members are added to and removed from the rolls each month. The average numbers on the rolls will rise in 1969 and will continue to rise in future years. The actual number on the rolls at the end of 1967 was 12,554 and the number estimated to be on the rolls at the end of 1968 and 1969 is 13,219 and 13,927, respectively. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1967 compared with estimated numbers for 1968 and 1969.

Under the provisions of the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan, retired Coast Guard military personnel who elect to receive reduced amounts of retired pay may provide for monthly payments to their survivors. Appropriation requirements are reduced by the difference between the amount deducted from retired pay and the amount paid as survivors' benefits. The liability for future payments is not funded. The analysis of the accumulated deductions is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, for basic and applied scientific research, development, test and evaluation; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; maintenance, rehabilitation, lease, and operation of facilities and equipment, as authorized by law; $9,000,000 to remain available until expended. (14 U.S.C.)

Note.—Estimate is for activities previously carried under "Operating expenses." The amounts obligated in 1967 and 1968 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $0; 1967, $0; 1968, $0; 1969, $1 million.

This appropriation provides for administration and conduct of basic and applied scientific research, development, test and evaluation with maintenance, rehabilitation, lease and operation of facilities and equipment.

1. Search and rescue.—The program for search planning will be continued in 1969 and further expanded to include sensor systems for locating distressed vessels, processes for converting distress information into an optimum search plan, and methods of improving aerial delivery of survival equipment.

2. Aids to navigation.—Additional effort will be applied in 1969 to development of lightweight buoys for protected waters. The initial developmental stages of a high precision all-weather harbor approach and evaluation of the long-range OMEGA navigation system in relation to future loran requirements will also be instituted in 1969 while continuing buoy mooring, light source, and sound-package development.

3. Marine safety.—The program under this activity includes investigation of construction standards in new fields such as nonmilitary submersibles and nuclear plants as well as expanded efforts in study of firefighting agents, lifesaving devices and investigation into methods of avoiding casualties associated with carrying toxic chemicals, loose cargoes, elevated temperature cargoes, and other dangerous or explosive substances in bulk quantities. In addition, the program also calls for continuation of research efforts with interagency groups such as SOLAS subdivision and stability panel, the NAS advisory committee on toxic chemicals, interagency firefighting studies, and a wave motion study in connection with structural strength of vessels.

4. Marine law enforcement.—Under this activity, the program provides for research efforts in the control of pollution by oil or other wastes of our navigable waters. The program includes a feasibility study of airborne sensors for detection, booms and gelling agents for control, and containers for defueling of wrecks. A companion project will be instituted for design of systems to reduce pollution by the Government's own facilities, including Coast Guard cutters.

5. Oceanography, meteorology, and polar operations.—This program calls for refinement of data collection packages, development of iceberg tracking capability, and increased support of the National Oceanographic Data Center, as well as including research in connection with data collection on Coast Guard offshore structures, vessels, and buoys, exclusive of their actual servicing and operating costs.

The National Data Buoy System program initiates the developmental phase of a national system to collect oceanographic and environmental data through a worldwide system of buoys. The overall program in 1969 will be monitored by the Marine Sciences Council.

The Coast Guard Supply Fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing, commissary provisions, general stores and technical materials. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Costs of approximately $27,000 thousand to be incurred under this fund in 1969 are divided 16% for uniform clothing, 53% for commissary provisions, and 31% for general stores and technical materials, including electronics.

Sales are expected to be $1,012 thousand more in 1968 than 1967 actual and $2,194 thousand more in 1969 than 1968. These increases result from an increase in aids to navigation material and phasing out of and replacement of electronic equipment.

The cash balance will decrease by $500 thousand through 1969 due to the purchase of the additional inventory items required for the additional support responsibilities for general stores items and electronic type items.

1. Operation of traffic control system.—This activity covers the operation on a daily 24-hour basis of a national system of air traffic management in the United States and its possessions. With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 27 centers monitor and control en route flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 319 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 344 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other information to pilots and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. The increase in 1969, which will provide for operating newly commissioned air traffic control facilities and for handling greater workload demands brought about by the projected growth in aviation activity, is partially offset by savings due to management improvements.

2. Installation and materiel services.—This activity covers the direction and engineering services related to the establishment and improvement of facilities and equipments in the traffic control system; procurement, contracting and materiel management programs; supply support and leased communications services for the traffic control system; and supply support for agency aircraft except for aircraft related to research and development programs. Major increases in 1969 are to provide supply support and leased communications services for air traffic control and air navigation facilities.

3. Maintenance of traffic control system.—This activity covers the technical operation and maintenance of a national network of air navigation and traffic control aids in the United States and its possessions. Major increases in 1969 are for the maintenance of newly commissioned air traffic control and navigation aids and for improvements and modification to the plant system. These increases are offset partially by savings resulting from the discontinuance of nonessential facilities, operational improvements, and other items of reduction.

4. Administration of flight standards program.—This activity covers the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure the high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies that meet safety or competency requirements. Facility flight inspection functions and management and maintenance of agency aircraft are also included in this activity.

5. Administration of medical programs.—This activity covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of a health and medical program for agency personnel; the administration of an aviation medical research program, the project costs of which are financed under Research and development; and the operation of the Civil Aeromedical Research Institute building.

6. Research direction.—This activity covers (a) the planning, direction, and evaluation of the research and development program, the direct project costs of which are financed under the Research and development appropriation; and (b) related administrative support for the operation of the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center at Atlantic City, N.J.

7. Administration of airports program.—This activity includes costs of preparing the annual national airport plan; development of airport planning, design, and construction standards; furnishing of planning and engineering advisory services; administration of the Federal-aid airport program; assuring compliance of public agencies with the provisions of agreements relating to airports; and promoting airport safety.

Under this appropriation, the Federal airways system is improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities to keep pace with aeronautical activity. The appropriation also finances major capital investments required by other agency programs such as aircraft for facility flight inspection and training, and experimental facilities for the research and development program. The 1969 estimate will carry forward the program to increase the capacity of the airways system and make its operations more efficient and safer. It provides for continuation of major efforts already underway to provide an automation capability in the air traffic control system. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed under the Operations appropriation.

1. Air route traffic control centers.—(a) Long-range radar provides FAA air traffic controllers with information on aircraft positions at distances up to 185 miles. (b) Automation equipment covers computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling en route air traffic. (c) Other center facilities covers the installation of equipment to provide communications and related services.

2. Airport traffic control towers.—(a) Terminal area radar aids traffic control in the vicinity of airports by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 60 miles. (b) Terminal area automation covers computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling terminal air traffic. (c) Other tower facilities cover the establishment, improvement, and relocation of airport traffic control tower facilities.

3. Flight service stations.—(a) Domestic flight service stations and associated facilities provide flight assistance service to pilots. (b) International flight service stations provide long-distance communications for transoceanic flights.

4. Air navigation facilities.—(a) Very high frequency omnidirectional radio ranges equipped with tactical air navigation capabilities (VORTAC) are standard short-range navigation aids used to define airways and air routes and to provide distance and direction information to pilots. (b) Low and medium frequency facilities include radio beacons and ranges which provide pilots with direction and weather information. (c) Instrument landing systems provide pilots with direction, distance, and glide slope information necessary for making safe approaches to runways under poor visibility conditions. (d) Visual aids consist primarily of lighting aids which also assist the pilot in making final approaches to airport runways, particularly in areas where terrain or other environmental factors cause potential hazards to safe landings. (e) Intermediate fields are emergency landing areas provided on a few air routes where public airports are not available.

5. Housing, utilities, and miscellaneous facilities.—This section includes general support facilities and items not covered elsewhere.

6. Aircraft and related equipment.—For: (a) Facility flight inspection covering aircraft and avionics equipment to inspect the accuracy and other characteristics of navigation and traffic control aids from the air; (b) training aircraft used to provide flight training to agency personnel and to maintain the proficiency of operations inspectors; and (c) aircraft and equipment used to provide logistics support for remote facilities, for use by agency officials, and for other general purpose missions.

7. Research, test, and evaluation facilities.—This activity provides for the construction and improvement of plant and facilities at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center in Atlantic City, N.J. It also covers the procurement of capital items of equipment for use in the research and development program.

The Federal Aviation Administration carries out a program to improve and modernize the national system of aviation facilities through the development of new systems, procedures, and devices. The agency also carries out a program of medical research to aid in the development of rules and regulations governing the certification of airmen and to assure aviation safety.

Research and development is conducted through contracts with qualified firms, universities, and individuals, or by agency staff or other Government agencies. The data, procedures, or equipment resulting from this program are tested and evaluated to determine their potential value in meeting a variety of needs of the overall National Air-space System.

Supervision and administrative support costs for the research and development program financed by this appropriation are covered by the Operations appropriation. Costs of acquiring experimental facilities and general purpose equipment for the research program are included in the Facilities and equipment appropriation.

1. Air traffic control.—This provides for improving the airways system by applying existing technology to air traffic control problems to effect inservice improvements as required, by system modernization where necessary, and by long-range research and development to meet future needs. Studies of present airways system operations and future requirements and work in the fields of data processing and display, data acquisition, and communications are included.

2. Navigation.—This provides for modernization, expansion, and improvements of the common system navigation facilities in the United States and in overseas areas where international agreements require U.S. participation. Work in the fields of landing systems, short- and long-distance navigation, and flight inspection is included.

3. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to develop devices and improve techniques for the communication and display of weather information to aviation users. The effects of weather on air traffic management techniques and systems are also analyzed.

4. Aircraft safety.—This activity provides for a program coordinated with the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to study, develop, and evaluate devices to enhance the safety of civil aircraft by providing practical solutions to critical safety problems and a sound basis for airworthiness standards and safety regulations. Also included are efforts directed toward the analysis of noise problems related to aviation and the solution of these problems.

5. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting an aeromedical research effort directed toward the identification and elimination of those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize safety in flight.

This appropriation finances management, operations, maintenance, and capital outlay costs for equipment and maintenance projects at the federally owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports, which serve the National Capital Area. The 1969 request reflects an increase in the level of facility maintenance at both airports. The staffing requirements remain unchanged from the 1968 level.

The operation of the airports is conducted on a business basis with revenues derived from landing fees, concession activity, and lease arrangements deposited as receipts in the general fund of the Treasury. The direct operating costs and capital outlays are financed by direct appropriation.

The following statements reflect financial results of the total operations at the two airports. These statements include computation of unfunded depreciation and interest on a basis comparable to that used by other major commercial airports, and total actual revenues together with amounts representing the value of services furnished other Government agencies for which no collections are made. The unrealized revenue includes landing fees for Government aircraft, and rental charges for offices and hangar space used by Government agencies.

The Washington National Airport is operating at a profit while Dulles International Airport continues operating at a deficit, which also results in a deficit for the combined operation of these airports. The rate structures and concession arrangements are established so as to assure the recovery of operating costs, interest expenses, and an appropriate return on the Government's investment during the useful life of the airports. Revenues, however, have been and are expected to continue growing at a faster rate than expenses. The economic forecasts now show the airports reaching a breakeven position by 1971.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $1,902 thousand; 1967, $852 thousand; 1968, $2,985 thousand; 1969, $825 thousand.

This appropriation finances construction of major improvements and expansion of facilities at Washington National Airport and Dulles International Airport. Projects are undertaken whenever necessary to insure the capability of these airports to adequately, safely, and conveniently meet air traffic needs of the public and to promote development of aviation activities in general.

At Washington National Airport a study is currently underway to develop modernization plans. Until the study has been completed, construction will be limited to those projects required to keep the airport operating without derogation of safety.

At Dulles International Airport funds are provided for construction of additional Federal inspection service area and passenger handling equipment and preliminary engineering services related to the expansion of airport facilities.

All outlays for physical improvements are added to the airport's capital investment and will be subsequently recovered through fees and charges to the tenants and users of the airports.

Under the Federal Airport Act, grants are made to public agencies to aid the development and improvement of public airports. These grants generally cover 50% of project costs and are limited to facilities deemed essential for safe operation of aircraft at airports. Contract authorizations were provided for this program through 1961. These authorizations together with appropriations to liquidate obligations under the authorizations are reflected in the schedules for Grants-in-aid for airports.

Public Law 89-647 amended the Federal Airport Act further to authorize additional appropriations of $75 million for each of the years 1968, 1969, and 1970. This account covers appropriations authorized under this act as well as appropriations of prior years, beginning with 1962.

The following table summarizes activity under both the contract authority and that part of the program which is funded by direct appropriation (dollars in millions):

An appropriation at a reduced level of $65 million is being requested in this budget for 1970.

This program is to assist the aviation industry in the development of a competitive commercial supersonic transport aircraft. The aim is to produce an aircraft that will fly nearly three times the speed of sound and will be safe and profitable in airline service.

Began in 1962, this program is now in the prototype construction phase which includes 100 hours of flight testing. The amount requested is the current estimate of funds needed in 1969 to continue work on the construction of two prototype aircraft.

The fund provides premium aviation war risk insurance in the event of an outbreak of war. Binders are issued to cover aircraft, persons, and property and will become war risk insurance in wartime and in situations short of war; policies covering aircraft, persons, and property which become active insurance upon issuance are available to certain civil air carriers in connection with Government contract operations. Administrative costs are out of fee receipts (49 U.S.C. 1531, as amended; 75 Stat. 210).

Unfunded contingent liability is as follows: June 30, 1966, $31.3 billion; June 30, 1967, $27.7 billion; June 30, 1968, $31.3 billion; June 30, 1969, $27.0 billion.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

[SEC. 301.] During the current fiscal year applicable appropriations to the Federal Aviation Administration shall be available for the Federal Aviation Administration to conduct the activities specified in the Act of October 26, 1949, 63 Stat. 907, as amended, under determinations and regulations by the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration; maintenance and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; and uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (15 U.S.C. 1514; 5 U.S.C. 5901 [; 80 Stat. 299]-5902).

[SEC. 302.] Funds appropriated under this Act for expenditure by the Federal Aviation Administration may be expended for reimbursement of other Federal agencies for expenses incurred, on behalf of the Federal Aviation Administration, in the settlement of claims for damages resulting from sonic boom in connection with research conducted as part of the civil supersonic aircraft development.

ALLOCATIONS RECEIVED FROM OTHER AGENCIES

Note.—Obligations incurred under allocations from other accounts are included in the schedules of the parent appropriations as follows:

- Department of Commerce:
 - “Development facilities grants, Economic Development Administration.”
 - “Economic development center assistance, Economic Development Administration.”
 - “Grants for local development districts and for research and demonstration, Office of Appalachian Assistance.”
- Department of the Interior, “Construction, National Park Service.”

1. Program direction and coordination.—The Director provides direction, coordination, and implementation of the Bureau's overall policies, programs, and objectives. To assist him in this responsibility, staff offices have been established which carry out responsibilities in planning, scientific matters, and implementation of research findings:

2. Motor vehicle and equipment safety.—These funds will be used to continue development of motor vehicle and tire safety standards and of the procedures for evaluating and assuring compliance. Such standards are to be issued on or before January 31, 1968, and periodically thereafter.

3. Used car safety.—These funds will be required to develop and validate used car safety standards, improve motor vehicle inspection, and all aspects of automotive repair technology.

4. State and community highway safety.—Funds are advanced to this account to administer the State and community highway safety programs authorized by 23 U.S.C. 402, as added by the Highway Safety Act of 1966.

5. Accident investigation and information analysis.—These funds will be required for collecting data from all sources for the purpose of determining the relationship between motor vehicle or motor vehicle equipment performance characteristics and (1) accidents involving motor vehicles, and (2) the occurrence of death or personal injury as a result of such accidents.

6. Research, demonstration, and training.—These funds are required for highway safety research and development activities. The funds will be used to conduct comprehensive traffic safety research; to initiate training and education programs; and to initiate demonstration projects that will speed the implementation of new safety techniques into practice.

7. Support of Federal Highway Administration.—Provides a proportionate share of the costs for functions of the immediate office of the Federal Highway Administrator and consolidated staff functions of the Administration.

Main highways within or adjacent to the national forests are constructed and improved. Projects are jointly selected by the States, the Forest Service, and the Federal Highway Administration on the basis of their contribution to meeting traffic requirements within the national forests. Authorizations are apportioned by States on the basis of a formula which uses as factors the national forest area and value in each State. Legislation will be proposed to authorize a program of $33 million for 1970, which would become available for obligation in 1969 as new obligational authority.

The 1969 estimate of $33 million finances the balance of the 1967 authorization and $25,050 thousand of the 1968 authorization provided by the Federal-Aid Highway Acts of 1964 and 1966

Legislation has been proposed to finance this program from the Highway trust fund commencing in 1968.

Actual and estimated progress of the program is summarized in the following table (dollars in thousands):

Fiscal year	Annual authorization ¹	Miles completed	Unobligated balance, end of year	Obligations for projects	Expenditures

Highways are constructed and improved through public lands in those States with large areas of such lands. Funds for this program are available a year in advance of the year for which authorized. Contract authorizations were made available by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1966 for 1968 and 1969 in the amounts of $14 million and $16 million, respectively. Legislation will be proposed to authorize a program of $16 million for 1970, which would become available for obligation in 1969 as new obligational authority.

Legislation has been proposed to finance this program from the Highway trust fund commencing in 1968.

The 1969 appropriation estimate finances a portion of the 1968 authorization which was provided by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1966.

The Central American section of the Inter-American Highway, comprising 1,555 miles, is being constructed in cooperation with the Republics of Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama. These Republics pay one-third of the cost of highways through their countries, and have assumed responsibility for future maintenance.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1962 (76 Stat. 1146) authorized an additional appropriation of $32 million, of which $30 million has been appropriated, to complete the highway to acceptable standards. The remainder of $2 million will be required in 1969 to complete the commitments of the United States to the Central American Republics.

The following table reflects the amount of work, by countries, provided by the $32 million authorization (in thousands of dollars):

The 1964 Amendments to the Alaska Omnibus Act increased the Federal share payable from 50% to 94.9% for the repair and reconstruction of areas damaged by the earthquake of March 1964 and subsequent seismic waves.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1966 provided an annual authorization of $50 million to be financed 60% from the Highway trust fund and 40% from the General fund.

Costs are originally incurred for these programs under the Federal-aid highways (trust fund) appropriation. The request for appropriation to repay the Highway trust fund for 1967 expenditures is deferred to 1970.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $0; 1967, $18 thousand; 1968, $0; 1969, $0.

Public Law 89-670 enacted on October 15, 1966, established within the Department of Transportation the Federal Railroad Administration. The three major program responsibilities of the Federal Railroad Administration are: the Railroad safety program; the High-speed ground transportation research and development program; and the Alaska railroad.

Funds under this appropriation cover the salaries and expenses of the immediate office of the Administrator and other organizational elements engaged in the support of the overall Federal Railroad Administration.

The Bureau of Railroad Safety performs functions relating generally to the investigation and reporting of safety compliance records of applicants seeking railroad operating authority from the Interstate Commerce Commission; to transportation of explosives and other dangerous articles; to safety appliances and equipment on railroad engines and cars, and protection of employees and travelers; to hours of service of railroad employees; to medals for heroism; to safety appliances, methods and systems; and to railroad and pipeline safety.

The principal objectives of the Bureau of Railroad Safety during 1968 and 1969, aimed at reducing railroad accidents, are: To adopt a modified enforcement procedure, under current laws and regulations, so as to more forcefully bring to the attention of those carriers with the highest level of noncompliance, the necessity for adequate inspection and maintenance procedures; to increase the scope of accident investigation activities; and to review and restructure the laws and regulations of the railroad safety program.

Public Law 89-220, enacted on September 30, 1965, and the Department of Transportation Act authorize research and development, and demonstrations programs in high-speed ground transportation.

1. Research and development.—This includes materials, aerodynamics, vehicle propulsion, vehicle control, communications, guideways, and research testing on new systems, components, and techniques.

2. Demonstrations.—This provides for conducting demonstrations to determine the contributions that high-speed ground transportation can make to more efficient and economical intercity transportation systems. Demonstrations of improved services will be conducted to measure and evaluate public reaction and acceptance of such services. Travel needs and preferences will be analyzed and performance and costs compared.

The Alaska Railroad was located, built and is operated by the Federal Government under the Act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305). The authority to construct and operate the railroad was vested by that Act, in the President, who, by Executive Order 2129 of January 26, 1915, delegated this authority to the Secretary of the Interior. After completion of the railroad in 1923, the President, in Executive Order 3861, authorized and directed the Secretary of the Interior to operate the railroad.

On April 25, 1965, the President superseded Executive Order 3861 with Executive Order 11107 which continued the authority of the Secretary of the Interior to operate the Alaska Railroad, but conferred certain powers to the Interstate Commerce Commission with respect to the tariffs of the Alaska Railroad.

Under the Department of Transportation Act (act of Oct. 15, 1966, 80 Stat. 931; Public Law 89-670), the authority of the Secretary of the Interior as regards the Alaska Railroad was transferred to the Secretary of Transportation. The law did not change that part of Executive Order 11107 which conferred certain authorities to the Interstate Commerce Commission with regard to tariffs of the Alaska Railroad. The railroad now operates as a bureau of the Federal Railroad Administration.

Budget program.—There are no significant changes planned for 1969. The operation and maintenance rail line program is expected to remain at a level approximating estimated revenues. Proposed capital improvements are modest and within the capability of the present force structure. This will enable the railroad to maximize year around use of all levels of skills required to maintain safe and adequate transportation services. The major program activity of the railroad is the transportation service; the principal supporting services are maintenance of way and structures and maintenance of equipment. Lease of real properties and riverboats and related facilities round out the budget program of the railroad.

Financing.—No appropriation is being requested for 1969. It is estimated that at the end of the budget year there will be a revolving fund balance of $4,502 thousand of which $4,402 thousand will be unobligated.

Operating results.—Based upon present revenue outlook and a forecast of operating expenses, a deficit of $400 thousand is expected in 1968 and no deficit is anticipated for 1969.

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a wholly Government-owned enterprise, is responsible for the construction, operation, and maintenance of that part of the St. Lawrence Seaway within the territorial limits of the United States (33 U.S.C. 981). The seaway has been constructed and is being operated and maintained jointly by the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada, in conjunction with the related power development works provided by the Power Authority of the State of New York and the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

Operating results.—The Corporation is self-supporting through tolls assessed shippers using the seaway facilities. All operating costs are paid from toll revenues and net operating income returned to the Treasury in payment of interest and principal. Any interest charges not earned will be deferred for later repayment in accordance with an agreement with the Treasury Department. For 1969, the Corporation's total revenue is estimated at $7.4 million to be applied in the following order and priority:

(1) To pay estimated operating expenses for 1969 of $2.4 million, consisting of administrative expenses of $0.6 million (subject to congressional limitation) and $1.8 million for operation and maintenance of the seaway facilities.

(2) To return $5.1 million to the U.S. Treasury in payment of interest on borrowings. This payment is estimated to be $0.1 million less than the interest charges on borrowings estimated at $5.2 million for 1969.

Capital outlay.—The Corporation's seaway and related facilities consist of a 10-mile canal, two locks, and navigation channels in the 46-mile International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River between Ogdensburg and Massena, and certain channel and related navigation works in the 68-mile Thousand Islands section between Lake Ontario and Ogdensburg.

The total cost of the U.S. share of the seaway is estimated at $131.6 million. Work in place at the end of 1968 is estimated at $131.5 million. The 1969 program includes additions to navigation and related facilities and equipment purchases estimated at $0.1 million. Provision is made for engineer planning to extend the navigation season and acquisition of traffic control equipment.

The locks rehabilitation program estimated at $13.1 million is planned to begin in 1968 during the winter nonnavigation season. The 1968 costs are estimated at $2.9 million, and $8.1 million is scheduled for 1969. The work consists of chamber face repair, culvert crack repair, highway tunnel modifications, and other related costs. It is contemplated that the cost of this work would be recovered in proposed legislation.

Financing.—The Corporation is authorized to borrow $140 million from the Treasury to finance the costs of the seaway and to provide for working capital and claims. Borrowings through 1968 are estimated at $128.6 million and an additional $8.5 million is required for the budget year 1969. Capitalized interest accrued during the construction phase of the seaway amounting to $6.7 million is not charged against the borrowing authority.

Tolls review.—The review of the St. Lawrence Seaway tariff of tolls has been completed by the United States and Canadian seaway entities; and reports, including recommendations as to the sufficiency of authorized tolls to meet statutory requirements, have been submitted to their respective governments. Negotiations between the United States and Canadian Governments to determine acceptable toll levels on the St. Lawrence Seaway were completed earlier this year. Through an exchange of notes, dated March 31, 1967, between the United States (Note No. 240) and Canada (Note No. X-124), an international agreement became effective upon the opening of the 1967 navigation season which provided for:

- (1) No change in tolls on the seaway for the next 4 years;
- (2) A change in the division of tolls from 71% to Canada and 29% to the United States, to 73% to Canada and 27% to the United States;
- (3) A Welland lockage charge imposed by Canada of $20 per lock in 1967, increasing by $20 per lock until 1971 when it will reach $100 per lock.

Note.—A new cost estimate report is to be submitted in January 1968.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $5,835,022 thousand; 1967, $5,589,251 thousand; 1968, $5,589,251 thousand; 1969, $5,589,251 thousand.

Grants are made to States for construction and improvement of Federal-aid highways. Authorizations are provided in the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 and subsequent highway legislation to cover 90% of the costs of completing the 41,000-mile National System of Interstate and Defense Highways, and to match State funds on a 50-50 basis for the primary, secondary, and urban programs. The Federal share of project costs is increased in those States with large areas of public domain. Payments to the States for work done are made out of the Highway trust fund, into which are deposited certain percentages of tax receipts on motor fuel, tires and tubes, tread rubber, trucks, buses, trailers, truck use, truck parts and accessories, and on lubricating oil used in highway vehicles. A supplemental appropriation of $400 million will be needed in 1968 to enable these payments to be made on a timely basis.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1961 authorized additional appropriations for the Interstate program, and also provided increased revenues to finance these increased authorizations. The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1966 provided $1 billion for each of the years 1968 and 1969 to continue the Federal-aid primary, secondary, and urban programs; and provided increased authorization for the Interstate System for 1968-72, inclusive. All authorizations are available for use in the year prior to the year for which authorized.

A revised Interstate cost estimate to be submitted to Congress in January 1968, is expected to show an increased cost over the previous estimate. The new obligational authority (permanent) shown in 1969 does not reflect the 1968 cost estimate. Due to these increased costs, the trust fund revenues will prove insufficient to complete the Interstate System on schedule. Therefore, legislation will be proposed to (1) extend the life of the trust fund, and (2) increase Interstate authorizations to reflect the new cost estimate. Also included will be an authorization of $1 billion for 1970 for the primary and secondary system, and an additional authorization for 1971.

As of October 1, 1967, almost 24,600 miles of the 41,000-mile Interstate System were open to traffic. Approximately 86% (21,036 miles) was built or improved under the Federal-aid Interstate program, most of it under the 90% Federal, 10% State matching program launched in 1956. Toll roads, bridges, and tunnels incorporated in the system totaled 2,304 miles. In addition to the sections open to traffic, 6,046 miles were under construction with Interstate funds, and engineering or right-of-way acquisition was in progress on another 9,065 miles. Thus, some form of work was underway or completed on 39,706 miles of the 41,000-mile system—about 97% of the total system mileage.

Construction projects involving 215,361 miles in the regular Federal-aid program (primary, secondary, and urban) have been completed since July 1, 1956, at a total cost of $17.56 billion; and contracts involving 16,272 miles at a cost of $3.22 billion were authorized or underway on October 1, 1967. In addition, $1.33 billion of engineering and right-of-way acquisition work had been completed, and $708 million was underway.

Actual and estimated progress of Federal-aid programs are summarized in the following table:

The Highway Revenue Act of 1956, as amended, provides for the transfer from the general fund to the highway trust fund of revenue from the gasoline tax and certain other taxes paid by highway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amounts to be so transferred. In turn, annual appropriations are authorized from this trust fund to meet expenditures for Federal-aid highways. Legislation has been proposed to finance the forest and public lands highway programs from the trust fund.

1. Advances from Alaska.—Pursuant to the agreement between the Federal Government and the State of Alaska, the Federal Highway Administration performs State highway functions on the Federal-aid systems for Alaska with funds contributed by the State (23 U.S.C. 120(8), 308).

2. Contributions for highway research program.—In association with the General Services Administration and the Department of Defense, tests of highway equipment are conducted for the purpose of establishing performance standards (23 U.S.C. 307).

3. Cooperative work, forest highways.—Contributions are received from States and counties in connection with cooperative engineering, survey, maintenance, and construction projects for forest highways (23 U.S.C. 204).

4. Equipment, supplies, etc., for cooperating countries.—In connection with the construction of the Inter-American Highway, the Federal Highway Administration acts as agent for the cooperating Central American Republics in purchase of equipment, supplies, and services (23 U.S.C. 212, 308).

5. Technical assistance, U.S. dollars advanced from foreign governments.—Under the Foreign Economic Assistance Act and under agreement with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the Export-Import Bank of Washington, the Federal Highway Administration renders technical assistance and acts as agent for the purchase of equipment and materials for carrying out highway programs in foreign countries. During the current year, these services are being rendered for Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Ethiopia, Iran, Nicaragua, and the Philippines (64 Stat. 204-209).

FOREST AND PUBLIC LANDS HIGHWAYS (TRUST FUND)

Legislation has been proposed to transfer financing of the forest and public lands highway programs from the general fund to the Highway trust fund. The highways are similar in character and use to Federal-aid highways and logically should be financed in the same manner as the regular Federal-aid program.

The Bureau maintains the central revenue, appropriation, and expenditure accounts; disburses for virtually all civilian Federal agencies; prepares the central financial reports of the Government; and performs other fiscal functions.

1. Central disbursing operations.—Payments are made, through 11 regional offices, for civilian Federal agencies, except the Post Office Department, the U.S. marshals, and certain Government corporations. Savings bonds are also issued for Federal employees under the payroll savings plan.

The total work volume and productivity relating to this activity carried out by the Division of Disbursement follow (in thousands):

Work volume.....	422,361	442,129	459,471
Productivity per employee.....	381	388	403

2. Federal tax deposit operations.—Employers and certain business enterprises deposit, with designated banks, excise, corporation, withheld income, railroad retirement, and withheld social security taxes, to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States. The Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the Treasury, process depository receipts accompanying each tax payment. Effective in January 1968, the document supporting each tax payment will be a Federal Tax Deposit form in lieu of the depository receipt.

3. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—This activity includes the maintenance of central accounts of appropriations, receipts and expenditures which provide data for financial statements. It also includes the preparation and publication of financial reports on the Government's fiscal operations, such as the annual Combined Statement of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances; the Monthly Treasury Statement; the Secretary's Annual Report; the Treasury Bulletin; and reports on foreign currencies acquired without payment of dollars.

4. Accounting and reporting development and audit.—This activity includes furnishing technical accounting advice and assistance to other agencies in relation to central accounting, reporting, disbursing and depository matters; participation in the Government-wide financial management improvement program; performing systems work within the Fiscal Service and the Bureau of Accounts; examination of the financial condition of companies issuing surety bonds in favor of the United States, performing internal audit in the Bureau, and other audits of a departmental character.

5. Banking, investment, international claims, and other services.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through the designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Investments in interest-bearing securities are processed for certain funds, such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the unemployment trust fund, the veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds. The work includes accounting for purchases, sales and redemptions of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, payment of international and other claims.

6. Executive direction.—This provides for the overall management for the Bureau of Accounts.

A supplemental appropriation, in the amount of $5,295 thousand, is needed to provide the necessary funds for (1) postage costs on an increase in the disbursing workload of 14 million items beyond the volume originally justified and increased mailings in the disbursing activity; (2) processing and postage costs for additional volume of 13 million Federal Tax Deposits pursuant to Treasury regulations; (3) additional personnel needed to process a higher volume of claims than was originally forecast in connection with the liquidation of the Postal Savings System; (4) increased costs of postal rate increase for mailing checks, U.S. Savings Bonds and Federal tax deposits; and (5) postage due for actual mailings in 1967 which exceeded the budgeted and funded workload underlying the contract with the Post Office Department.

PAYMENT OF GOVERNMENT LOSSES IN SHIPMENT

For an additional amount for payment of Government losses in shipment, in accordance with section 2 of the Act approved July 8, 1957 (40 U.S.C. 722), $500,000, to remain available until expended.

This account was created as self-insurance to cover losses in shipment of Government property such as coin, currency, securities, certain losses incurred by the Post Office Department, and losses in connection with the redemption of savings bonds (40 U.S.C. 722). Since these claims are only partially offset by recoveries, the cumulative net losses have gradually increased to $2,131 thousand as of June 30, 1967, and are expected to increase an additional $502 thousand by June 30, 1969.

The Bureau of Customs collects the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspects all international traffic, regulates certain marine and aircraft activities, combats smuggling, undervaluation, and frauds on the customs revenue, and performs related functions in connection with the importation and exportation of merchandise.

Direct obligations are estimated to be $98,215 thousand for 1969, an increase of $8,854 thousand over the amount now appropriated for 1968.

The unobligated balance of $300 thousand is a special fund available to this account when necessary to help pay the expenses of reimbursable customs work pending the collection of receivables from private interests.

1. Processing of arriving persons and cargo.—This activity processes all persons arriving in the United States and all merchandise imported into the United States. It assesses and collects duties, taxes and fees on imported merchandise, inspects international traffic, combats smuggling, performs certain marine activities relating to the movement of vessels in the foreign trade, and enforces the laws of other Government agencies affecting imports and exports. It examines and ascertains the value of imported merchandise, and performs scientific analysis and identification of merchandise for tariff and enforcement purposes.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of U.S. currency and Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage, internal revenue, customs, and savings stamps. In addition, the Bureau prints a wide variety of miscellaneous commissions, certificates, etc., and executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The Bureau finances its operations out of reimbursements received from other agencies for all direct and indirect costs, including administrative expenses (31 U.S.C. 181).

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—Estimates for the current and budget years indicate an increase in delivery requirements of 5% and 13.4%, respectively, as compared with the delivery of 1.99 billion notes in 1967. By 1969 all currency requirements will be produced on the Bureau's modern high-speed presses, 32 notes to the sheet instead of 18.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postage and internal revenue stamps, and food coupons. Although the budget estimates for 1968 and 1969 show an estimated decrease in the requirements for postage stamps, a continued rise is noted for stamps in book form which, from the standpoint of manpower and operating costs, comprises one of the major production items in this particular activity. Likewise, a substantial increase is projected in the requirements for books of food coupons which are ordered by the Department of Agriculture.

(c) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of the Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government. The anticipated requirements of the agencies indicate an increase in the current and budget year of 4.9% and 9.7%, respectively, as compared with deliveries in 1967. During 1967 the Bureau completed the program for conversion of the printing of Treasury bills from the wet to dry method on its high-speed press equipment. Treasury bills are the largest single item requisitioned by the Bureau of the Public Debt. A recurring annual savings of approximately $225 thousand has been realized in the printing and associated processing operations of the items as a result of the changeover.

(d) Commissions, certificates, etc.—A decrease of 47.3% is noted in the number of units to be delivered for this class of work in 1968 and 38.5% in 1969 as compared with 1967. The decrease is due primarily to a reduction in the amount of special work performed for the Department of Defense. Production costs associated with all of this miscellaneous classification of work represent a very small percentage of the overall engraving and printing program of the Bureau.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—Charges are made to other agencies on an actual cost basis for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Bureau operations resulted in a loss of $101 thousand during 1967. In accordance with the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181 this loss, together with a deficit of $75 thousand brought forward from prior years, will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years. Budget expenditures were $1,047 thousand in excess of receipts in 1967 due primarily to funds being employed in a buildup of work in process and finished goods inventories to a more satisfactory operating level and to meet expanding work programs. Budget expenditures are expected to be the same as receipts in 1968, and in 1969 budget expenditures are estimated to be below receipts in the amount of $42 thousand.

The capital of the fund is expected to remain $25.3 million represented by an appropriation of $3.3 million and donated assets of $22 million.

The Bureau of the Mint manufactures coins, receives deposits of gold and silver bullion, safeguards the Government's holdings of monetary metals, and refines gold and silver bullion (see miscellaneous permanent appropriations).

1. Manufacture of coins (domestic).—Production of coins is the major Mint activity. Funds requested for 1969 will permit production of approximately 5.8 billion coins.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The purpose of the Internal Revenue Service is to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws. It seeks to assure maximum productiveness of the tax structure by taking effective, economically feasible actions to stimulate voluntary compliance and reduce noncompliance by taxpayers, including use of a master file automatic data processing system, taxpayer assistance and education, audit of tax returns, locating nonfilers, collecting unpaid taxes, prosecuting willful tax evaders, etc.

The number of taxpayers and the volume of revenue increases as the population, individual prosperity, and national economy increase. This growth is reflected in the following figures:

Year	Tax returns filed (in millions)	Gross revenue collections (in billions of dollars)
1966 actual.....	104.0	128.8
1967 actual.....	105.4	148.3
1968 estimate.....	108.7	(¹)

The additional funds requested for 1969 are principally to provide additional manpower (net of estimated employee productivity increases) to maintain taxpayer compliance levels on the additional 2.8 million tax returns expected and to meet increased costs of maintaining the staff already authorized. Important technological advances are anticipated by upgrading the 360 computer systems and the lease of direct entry equipment.

This appropriation funds the overall planning and direction of the Internal Revenue Service, and the internal audit and internal security functions. The 1969 appropriation request provides for maintaining a balanced level of administrative programs, internal audits, and integrity investigations.

1. Executive direction.—The purpose of this activity is to set policies and goals; to provide the research and planning necessary for orderly and effective accomplishment of the Internal Revenue Service's mission; to provide leadership and direction in the execution of plans; and to provide for the administrative support of all operations.

2. Internal audit and security.—The purpose of this activity is to establish and verify maintenance of quality controls in the Internal Revenue Service. It provides a continuing and independent review of all Internal Revenue Service operations, thereby assuring the Commissioner and operational managers that appropriated funds are spent only for authorized purposes, that tax revenues are properly safeguarded, and that public confidence in the integrity of Internal Revenue Service employees is maintained.

This appropriation provides for all actions associated with the mailing out of tax return forms and instructions, receipt of completed returns and payments, deposit of the payments, and verification through a master file ADP system of the accuracy of information provided on the tax returns. It also provides for payment of refunds, offset of refunds against delinquent accounts, issuance of notices that payments are overdue, identification of possible tax evaders (nonfilers) for investigation, and assistance in selection of tax returns which appear to warrant an audit. It provides for preparation of reports (statistics of income) based on tax return data, for other statistical studies of the tax system, and for forecasting (for work planning purposes) the number of tax returns to be filed by type and size and geographical area (and related workload data) for many years ahead.

District manual operations and service center automated operations are concerned with tax return processing and revenue accounting. Statistical reporting provides for the statistics of income and other statistical research and reports and for tax return and related workload forecasting.

The additional funds requested for 1969 are principally to provide for growth in population, economy, and programs. Important technological advances are anticipated by upgrading the 360 computer systems and the lease of direct data entry equipment.

This appropriation provides (1) for assistance to taxpayers in understanding and complying with the tax laws, and (2) for detecting and correcting instances of noncompliance.

The additional funds requested for 1969 are necessary because the increase in tax returns requires an increase in the number of returns to be audited to prevent a deterioration in the level of taxpayer compliance. Additional funds are also required to prevent a further increase in the delinquent return investigation inventory and achieve a decrease in the delinquent account inventory. This increase will provide additional taxpayer assistance during the income tax filing period.

1. Audit of tax returns.—This activity provides for a selective examination of tax returns to see if taxpayers have properly complied with the internal revenue laws. It corrects errors and explains corrections to the taxpayers. It also makes determinations as to whether certain organizations or funds are exempt from taxation.

2. Collection of delinquent accounts and securing delinquent returns.—This activity provides assistance to taxpayers in understanding their tax obligations and is responsible for securing tax returns due but unfiled and collecting taxes due but unpaid.

3. Tax fraud and special investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of the criminal statutes relating to violations of tax laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud; recommends prosecution as warranted; and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases. It is responsible for directing Service participation in the organized crime drive.

4. Alcohol and tobacco tax regulatory work.—This activity provides for administration and enforcement of internal revenue laws and regulations relating to alcohol and tobacco products. It is also responsible for administering and enforcing the Federal Alcohol Administration Act, the National Firearms Act, and the Federal Firearms Act.

5. Taxpayer conferences and appeals.—This activity provides for administrative consideration and settlement of taxpayer appeals of audit findings.

6. Technical rulings and services.—This activity develops tax return forms, instructions, and guides; issues rulings and opinions as to application of the tax laws, and meets with taxpayer groups to review and resolve special tax problems.

7. Legal services.—This activity provides for the legal counsel and legal assistance needed by the Service to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 solely to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lienholder's equity, but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

This office: (a) receives, keeps, and disburses the moneys of the United States; (b) processes claims for the proceeds of Government checks; (c) issues and redeems currency and Government securities; (d) maintains fiscal accounts; and (e) prepares financial statements and reports.

1. Payment and reconciliation of checks.—This activity maintains checking accounts of Government disbursing officers and Government-owned corporations; proves all debits and credits to the general account of the Treasurer by Federal Reserve banks and U.S. depositories; performs centralized payment function of all checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States; reconciles deposits claimed and checks issued as reported by disbursing officers with the deposits credited and checks paid by the Treasurer and determines the outstanding checks in each disbursing account. Electronic equipment has been used by this activity since August 1956 in paying and reconciling checks. Additional work is being performed with this equipment under a new system for depositing certain types of taxes to the Treasurer's account. The new Federal tax deposit system, inaugurated April 15, 1967 is being extended early in calendar year 1968 to include, in addition to corporation income taxes, the following classes of taxes: (1) Withheld income taxes and taxes withheld under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA), (2) certain Federal excise taxes,

(3) railroad retirement taxes, (4) FICA taxes for agricultural workers, and (5) taxes withheld at source under chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code (nonresident aliens, foreign corporations, and tax free covenant bonds). This new system, when fully operational, will result in overall economies in collecting these taxes and accelerates the availability of cash to the Treasury, thereby decreasing borrowing requirements.

The Check Forgery Insurance Fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561), for use by the Treasurer in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in cases of checks drawn on the Treasurer which have been paid on forged endorsements and in which it appears that recovery from those liable may be delayed or be unsuccessful. As a result of continuing increases in volume of claims paid each year, the capital was increased to $100 thousand by an appropriation of an additional $50 thousand to this fund by the Treasury Department Appropriation Act, 1964.

The Secret Service plans to construct modern outdoor firearms ranges for training purposes at Beltsville, Md., on Government-owned property.

The Secret Service need for expanded and improved training facilities has been previously demonstrated and adequately documented. The General Services Administration obtained approval by the Public Works Committees of both Houses of Congress under provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1959 of a prospectus for construction of special purpose training facilities.

The Service is presently using a site at the National Arboretum which is inadequate and not capable of accommodating the necessary firearms ranges. The proposed ranges will facilitate the development of improved basic, refresher and specialized training for secret service agents, the White House Police, the Treasury Guard Force and other law enforcement personnel of the Treasury Department.

The Secretary of the Treasury may invest the principal of the Pershing Hall Memorial Fund in interest-bearing U.S. bonds. Earnings are paid to the American Legion for use in the maintenance of Pershing Hall in Paris, France (49 Stat. 426).

There is pending legislation which would transfer the control of Pershing Hall to the Administrator of Veterans' Affairs. The effect of the proposed legislation will abolish the Pershing Hall Memorial Fund and the Secretary of the Treasury shall cover any funds therein into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts and shall liquidate any nonliquid assets in such fund and cover the proceeds therefrom into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

1-5. Foreign claims settlement.—The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission is authorized to adjudicate claims of American nationals against Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Italy, Mexico, Panama, Poland, Rumania, Soviet Union, and Yugoslavia. Upon certification by the Commission, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to make payments on awards.

6. Payment of unclaimed interest on certain awards of Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany.—This trust account is for unclaimed interest payments not paid to entitled persons from interest-bearing principal awards of the Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany. Interest is transferred from the German Deposit Fund into this trust fund.

7. Losses in melting gold.—Out of the receipts to be covered into the Treasury under section 7 of the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, an amount is made available sufficient to cover the difference between the value of gold as carried in the general account of the Treasurer of the United States and the value of such gold after melting and refining (48 Stat. 1061).

8. National defense conditional gift fund.—The Secretary of the Treasury accepts on behalf of the United States, conditional gifts of money or other intangible property to be used for a particular defense purpose. Intangibles other than money, are converted at the best terms available. The moneys held in trust are paid to those appropriation accounts which best effectuate the intent of the donors (68 Stat. 566).

9. Payment of pre-1934 bonds of the Government of the Philippines.—This trust account provides for payment of principal and interest on outstanding bonds of the Philippines, provinces, cities, and municipalities issued prior to May 1, 1934, under authority of acts of Congress (22 U.S.C. 1393(g)(5)).

10. Payment of unclaimed moneys.—Payments are made to individuals who establish their right to moneys held in trust pending claims of owners.

11. Esther Cattell Schmitt gift fund.—Public Law 87-467 (76 Stat. 88) authorized the acceptance of the gift made to the United States by the will of Esther Cattell Schmitt. The income received from the gift to the United States is paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to beneficiaries named in provisions of the will.

Matured obligations of the District of Columbia.—Funds from inactive accounts are transferred to this account to meet matured obligations of the District of Columbia when and if presented (31 U.S.C. 725s). As of June 30, 1967, there was a balance of $8 thousand in the fund.

To promote the education of the blind.—The $250 thousand invested credit, on the books of the Treasury, is an unexpendable endowment fund established to promote the education of the blind in the United States. A permanent annual appropriation of $10 thousand being equivalent to 4% on the principal, is paid to the American Printing House for the Blind (20 U.S.C. 101).

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the administrator of national banks, was established by the National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665). That act provided for the chartering and supervision of a banking system by this Federal agency.

The administrator of national banks is empowered by law to issue charters to new banking institutions which choose to operate under Federal law. Each approval or disapproval issues only upon a comprehensive field investigation which is subsequently subjected to thorough analysis by an expert staff of attorneys and economists.

The operations of existing national banks are subject to the supervision of the Comptroller. A staff of over 1,200 national bank examiners conducts a detailed examination of the approximately 5,000 operating national banks on a regular basis. The end-product of these examinations is a determination of the financial condition of national banks, the soundness of their operations, and their compliance with applicable laws and regulations. In addition, the Comptroller must pass on all applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank. He must also pass on applications by national banks for new branch offices.

In accordance with statute, the Comptroller of the Currency promulgates regulations and rulings for the guidance of national banks. All laws, regulations and rulings relating to national banks are published in the "Comptrollers' Manual for National Banks" and the "Comptrollers' Manual for Representatives in Trusts," both available in the Comptroller's office.

For the purpose of stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to enter into stabilization agreements, and to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities. An exchange stabilization fund, with a capital of $200 million (derived from the increment resulting from the reduction in the weight of the gold dollar which took place in 1934) is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 822a). All earnings and interest accruing are paid into this fund and are available for the purposes thereof, including expenses.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been the handling charge imposed on purchases and sales of gold for the account of the fund, profits on foreign exchange transactions, and interest on investments held by the fund. The income of the fund has consistently exceeded its expenses; the cumulative income of the fund from the time it began operations has been $310.5 million and its expenses $51.5 million, resulting in a net income as of June 30, 1967, of $259 million.

It is not practicable to forecast the transactions of the fund in gold, foreign currencies, foreign investments, and the like. The budget schedules, therefore, are incomplete for all items other than operating expenses for 1968 and 1969. Administrative expenses will be more than covered by interest on investments in U.S. securities.

Liabilities of the fund include $925 million borrowed by the Secretary from the International Monetary Fund.

Legislative Program

Proposed for separate transmittal, proposed legislation:

MINT OPERATING FUND

A Mint operating fund is proposed to be available without fiscal year limitation, which will provide for the financing of the operations of the Bureau of the Mint. The fund will replace present appropriations to the Mint; in addition it will pay for the cost of the monetary metals, heretofore purchased by the Treasurer of the United States as an exchange of cash without charge to expenditures.

Initial operating capital will be provided from coinage receipts which will be credited to this fund as of June 30, 1968. Such coinage receipts as are needed will be placed in the fund. Receipts in excess of requirements will continue to be deposited into the general fund of the Treasury.

ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

OPERATING EXPENSES

For necessary operating expenses of the Commission in carrying out the purposes of the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, including the employment of aliens; services authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft; publication and dissemination of atomic information; purchase, repair and cleaning of uniforms; official entertainment expenses (not to exceed $30,000); reimbursement of the General Services Administration for security guard services; hire of passenger motor vehicles; [$2,140,000,000] $2,225,600,000 and any moneys (except sums received from disposal of property under the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended (42 U.S.C. 2301)) received by the Commission, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3617 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 484), to remain available until expended: Provided, That of such amount $100,000 may be expended for objects of a confidential nature and in any such case the certificate of the Commission as to the amount of the expenditure and that it is deemed inadvisable to specify the nature thereof shall be deemed a sufficient voucher for the sum therein expressed to have been expended: Provided further, That from this appropriation transfers of sums may be made to other agencies of the Government for the performance of the work for which this appropriation is made, and in such cases the sums so transferred may be merged with the appropriation to which transferred: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation shall be used in connection with the payment of a fixed fee to any contractor or firm of contractors engaged under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract or contracts at any installation of the Commission, where that fee for community management is at a rate in excess of $90,000 per annum, or for the operation of a transportation system where that fee is at a rate in excess of $45,000 per annum. (42 U.S.C. 2011; 2017; 2291; 81 Stat. 124; Public Works and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1968; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

The Atomic Energy Commission conducts a variety of production, research and development, and supporting activities directed toward its responsibilities for national defense and peaceful applications of atomic energy. Most of the activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts. Coordination with the armed services is achieved through the Military Liaison Committee of the Department of Defense.

Total program costs in 1969 are estimated at $2,338.8 million, or $150.5 million greater than the estimated 1968 costs of $2,188.3 million, and $211.0 million greater than actual costs of $2,127.8 million for 1967. The 1969 program increases are principally in the weapons, reactor development, and research programs, offset somewhat by program decreases in raw materials and in the development of civilian applications of nuclear explosives.

In 1969, total program obligations will be more than program costs, the difference being obligations to be incurred for future years' costs. Total program obligations for operating expenses in 1969 are estimated to be $2,394.5 million compared to $2,195.3 million in 1968 and $2,131 million in 1967.

The schedule of costs by activity does not include non-budgetary costs such as depreciation charges, accrued annual leave earned but not taken by AEC employees, and the cost of source and special nuclear materials consumed; in total, these are as follows: 1967, $414 million; 1968 estimate, $416 million; 1969 estimate, $430 million.

1. Raw materials.—The 1969 estimate of 7,960 tons of uranium concentrates to be procured from domestic sources is based on current contractual commitments. The estimate reflects completion of deliveries deferred during the calendar year 1963–66 period, and, for the last half of the fiscal year, additional material which AEC agreed to purchase in calendar years 1969–70 pursuant to the domestic stretchout program announced in 1962. Procurement in 1969 is estimated at 7,960 tons and 1968 at 7,890 tons, while 1967 procurement was 9,979 tons. Funds are also included to support a program of resource investigations to help assure the long-range availability of nuclear fuels.

2. Special nuclear materials.—Special nuclear materials are produced primarily for use in nuclear weapons and as fuels for nuclear reactors. Major production plants are located at Richland, Wash.; Savannah River, S.C.; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of uranium enriched in the isotope U²³⁵ will decline somewhat in 1969 as a result of reduced cascade power which will reach the previously announced overall level of 2,000 Mw. on January 1, 1969.

For the first time the 1969 estimate provides for the enrichment of normal uranium supplied from the private sector as provided for under the Private Ownership of Special Nuclear Materials Act of 1964. The income received for providing this enrichment service is budgeted under the "revenues applied" program.

Work will continue on process improvements to assure efficiency and safety of operation, to develop more economical methods of production with increased emphasis in 1969 on the production of enriched uranium, and to permit timely development of new production processes as requirements for new products develop.

3. Weapons.—The weapons program encompasses the production of atomic weapons; the maintenance of stockpiled weapons in a state of constant readiness; the design, development, and underground testing of new weapons types, including the use of supplemental test sites; maintenance of a readiness capability to resume atmospheric testing; and participation with the Department of Defense in the development of test detection methods.

4. Reactor development.—This program includes the development of nuclear power reactors for central station applications and the development of power and propulsion reactors for a variety of military, civilian, and space applications, together with research and development on advanced reactor systems, nuclear safety, and general reactor technology. The costs by major category are (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1967 actual	1968 estimate	1969 estimate
Civilian power reactors.....	102,460	118,475	132,000

The emphasis of the civilian power reactor category is now directed to the development of the fast breeder reactor, which promises to produce more fissionable nuclear fuel than is consumed in the process of producing power. Research and development on advanced converter and thermal breeder power reactors and on the application of nuclear power to desalting will also be continued.

Costs of $27.7 million will be incurred for the cooperative power reactor demonstration category in which AEC provides financial aid principally for development and construction of civilian power reactor prototypes of advanced design and for participation in the Bolsa Island plant, a dual-purpose nuclear power and desalting project in California.

The Euratom category provides for research and development under a joint program with the European Atomic Energy Community.

The merchant ship reactors category will be confined to studies and technical and economic evaluation of the development of nuclear reactors for propulsion of merchant ships.

The naval propulsion reactors category provides for the design and development of improved nuclear propulsion plants for installation in ships ranging from small submarines to large combatant surface ships.

The space propulsion systems category (Project Rover) is carried out in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop nuclear rocket technology for potential space applications.

The space electric power development category is conducted in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Department of Defense to develop nuclear reactor and radioisotopic power systems for space applications.

The terrestrial electric power development category provides for the development of radioisotopic power systems for terrestrial and undersea applications.

General reactor technology includes development work in support of the overall reactor program in such areas as reactor fuels, materials, physics, heat transfer, components, chemistry, and chemical separations.

The advanced reactor systems research and development category is devoted to the exploration of promising advanced reactor concepts and development of research reactors.

The nuclear safety category provides for research and development and investigation of safety problems, conduct of field tests, and application of effective engineered safeguards in the construction and operation of nuclear reactors and other facilities.

5. Physical research.—This program comprises basic and applied research in the physical sciences. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

High energy physics.....	107,692	113,400	120,400
Medium energy physics.....	10,975	11,000	11,600
Low energy physics.....	27,758	28,800	30,100

Metallurgy and materials research.....	26,093	27,000	28,300
Controlled thermonuclear research.....	22,383	24,900	27,400
Total physical research.....	253,399	265,000	280,000

The Commission serves as the executive agent for the Nation's high energy physics program. Research costs are expected to increase in 1969 for activities associated with the use of high quality beams from six major accelerators. In addition, support of university accelerator user groups will increase slightly.

The increase in medium energy physics is for support of new cyclotron facilities on university campuses. Increases in low energy physics will permit operation of new research tools authorized in prior years such as the Oak Ridge electron linear accelerator, the Tandem Van de Graaff at Brookhaven Laboratory, and university accelerators.

Chemistry and metallurgical research are aimed at advancing basic knowledge related to practical operations of the atomic energy program.

The objective of thermonuclear plasma research is to determine whether the energy released by thermonuclear reactions can be controlled and made useful. This research is expected to expand in 1969 to continue with the fabrication of large new experimental devices needed to test recent concepts for improved plasma confinement.

Approximately three-fourths of this program is conducted at 10 sites owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder is supported and conducted in more than 150 universities, colleges, institutes, and independent laboratories.

6. Biology and medicine.—Research is conducted on the effects of radiation on living organisms and on the environment, protection against the injurious effects of radiation, and development of methods for utilizing radioactive materials in the diagnosis, treatment, and understanding of human diseases such as cancer. The program includes the measurement and effects of radioactivity (including fallout) in the atmosphere, soils, and surface waters for the establishment of standards to insure that AEC activities are conducted with safety. The program recognizes the responsibilities of other Government agencies conducting programs in biomedical research.

Approximately two-thirds of the research is conducted by 20 laboratories which are owned by or operated for the Commission, and the remainder is supported in more than 235 universities, colleges, hospitals, and independent laboratories. In addition, research is conducted in Japan to determine the long-term effects of atomic bomb radiation on the affected population.

7. Training, education, and information.—This program includes specialized training courses; graduate and post-doctoral fellowships and traineeships; assistance to schools, faculty, and students; operation of the Puerto Rico Nuclear Center; dissemination of scientific and technical information; and operation of nuclear science and technology demonstrations and exhibits.

In 1969, AEC will provide approximately 550 fellowships and traineeships beyond the undergraduate level. Grants will be on a matching basis for acquisition of nuclear training equipment, teaching aids, and special laboratory equipment. Special institutes in radiobiology and other radiation science subjects are made available to high school and university science teachers. The cooperative use of specialized atomic energy laboratory facilities and staff in assisting the educational programs of colleges and universities throughout the country will increase slightly.

In order to facilitate the transfer of certain regulatory functions from AEC to the States, training courses and on-the-job orientation are conducted in radiation safety, radiological health protection, waste disposal, and certain other subjects for State and local government employees.

To broaden the dissemination of information on atomic energy, technical information services are provided at both a technical and popular level. The results of scientific research and technical developments are systematically made available to other Government agencies and to the general public. Public understanding of atomic energy is aided by domestic and overseas nuclear science demonstrations and exhibits.

8. Isotopes development.—This program supports the development of a variety of new uses of radioisotopes and high-level radiation. Particular emphasis is given to development of heat sources for a variety of applications, to development of isotopic measuring and diagnostic systems, and to development of technology for radiation pasteurization of foods. Emphasis is also given to advancing the technology of isotope production and source development. The program is designed to promote and encourage industrial participation and cooperation.

9. Civilian applications of nuclear explosives.—This program provides for the investigation and development of peaceful uses for nuclear explosives. The 1969 estimates provide for research and development aimed at a fundamental understanding of nuclear explosive design and explosion phenomenology and the development and testing of cleaner devices for use in nuclear excavation projects; a cratering experiment to extend the development of excavation technology; work on special nuclear explosives for producing transuranium elements; and development of nuclear technology capable of being used in the recovery of natural resources.

10. Communities.—Operating costs for the community program are estimated at $6.9 million in 1969. The 1969 estimate includes $5.8 million for assistance payments to the former AEC communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., Richland, Wash., and Los Alamos, N. Mex., in accordance with the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended. The estimate also provides for $1.1 million in costs at Los Alamos principally for continued maintenance and operation of certain real estate properties which have not yet been sold.

11. Program direction and administration.—This program includes the salaries and other costs for employees engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision of the atomic energy program, and in the establishment and enforcement of regulations for civilian uses of atomic energy. Employees are located in the Washington headquarters and in field offices. The 1969 estimate provides for 5,952 employees, which is 140 employees over the estimated June 30, 1968, strength of 5,812.

12. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, requires investigations of those persons proposed for access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of background investigations to be requested in 1969 is estimated at 16,897 compared with 16,635 for 1968 and 14,686 for 1967.

13. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objective of widespread utilization of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, AEC, when requested, furnishes materials and services to industrial organizations and other private parties. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenues applied) and are applied as a source of funds, thereby reducing the amount of appropriations required. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

This appropriation provides for the construction of plants and facilities and for the acquisition of capital equipment required for the production, research and development, and supporting programs of the Atomic Energy Commission. Of the new obligational authority of $529 million being requested for 1969, $79 million applies to new construction projects or modification of existing facilities, $61.2 million is applicable to construction projects which were previously authorized by Congress, $212.7 million is applicable to projects for which amended authorization is being requested, and $176.1 million is required for the acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction.

The funds applicable to the previously authorized projects are to provide partial construction funds of $35 million for the Fast Flux Test Facility (total estimated cost $87.5 million) and partial construction funds of $26.2 million for the Los Alamos Meson Physics Facility (total estimated cost $55 million). The Fast Flux Test Facility, as part of the liquid metal fast breeder reactor program will provide an irradiation reactor for testing fuel and clad materials in a fast flux sodium cooled environment. The Meson Physics Facility will be a medium energy accelerator capable of producing a particle beam of extremely high intensity for basic research in physics.

The authorization amendments being requested include funding of $184.5 million for the new weapons production capabilities project (total cost tentatively estimated to be $285 million) and $25 million for continuation of the design and initiation of the construction of the 200 Bev accelerator (total estimated cost $250 million).

The reactor development program includes $10 million for a fast breeder fuel examination facility at the National Reactor Testing Station, Idaho.

A wide variety of capital equipment is procured to fill the various needs of all operating programs. Such needs range from routine replacement of worn out and obsolete equipment to procurement of new research devices and computers. Additions are needed for expanding programs and to keep pace with rapidly changing technology in the production and research programs.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

【Any appropriation available to the Atomic Energy Commission may initially be used subject to limitations in this Act during the current fiscal year to finance the procurement of materials, services, or other costs which are a part of work or activities for which funds have been provided in any other appropriation available to the Commission: Provided, That appropriate transfers or adjustments between such appropriations shall subsequently be made for such costs on the basis of actual application determined in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.】

Not to exceed 5 per centum of appropriations made available for the current fiscal year for "Operating expenses" and "Plant and capital equipment" may be transferred between such appropriations, but neither such appropriation, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be increased by more than 5 per centum by any such transfers, and any such transfers shall be reported promptly to the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate.

No part of any appropriation herein shall be used to confer a fellowship on any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence or with respect to whom the Commission finds, upon investigation and report by the Civil Service Commission on the character, associations, and loyalty of whom, that reasonable grounds exist for belief that such person is disloyal to the Government of the United States: Provided, That any person who advocates or who is a member of an organization or party that advocates the overthrow of the Government of the United States by force or violence and accepts employment or a fellowship the salary, wages, stipend, grant, or expenses for which are paid from any appropriation contained herein shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law. (42 U.S.C. 2011; Public Works and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1968.)

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $658 thousand (1967 adjustments, -$91 thousand); 1967, $1,587 thousand; 1968, $639 thousand; 1969, $639 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the basic real property operations of General Services Administration, including acquisition, operation, maintenance, protection, and utilization of general-purpose buildings and space; and for overall direction of buildings design, construction, repair, and modernization.

The appropriation request for 1969 of $278,763 thousand is a net increase of $6,882 thousand above the comparable amount for 1968. The 1968 amount includes proposed transfers of $10,137 thousand for annual costs of expansion space acquired in 1967, not provided for in GSA's 1968 budget, and $2,027 thousand proposed for separate transmittal for wage board increases.

The net increase of $6,882 thousand provides primarily for management and operation of new Federal buildings scheduled for occupancy in 1968 and 1969, offset by credits for space released resulting from new construction.

Fair value of property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA (in thousands of dollars):

1. Buildings management.—This activity provides for rental, operation, protection, and utilization of Government-owned and leased space, as indicated in the following table (in thousands).

	Average net square feet
	1967 actual	1968 estimate	1969 estimate
Government-owned space.....	91,184	96,189	99,385
Leased space.....	30,953	32,132	31,172

The net increase for 1969 of $5,913 thousand over the comparable amounts for 1968 is composed of increases in operation and protection of Government-owned space, $6,782 thousand; and $300 thousand for moving, alterations and related costs, including procurement of furniture for offices of members of Congress outside the District of Columbia; offset by reductions in rental, operation and protection of leased space, $1,169 thousand.

2. Space management.—This activity provides for (a) review, analysis, and determination of Federal space requirements and the development of programs and projects; (b) acquisition of real property by lease, purchase, exchange, or donation, including the management of building sites pending construction; and (c) assignment and reassignment of Government-owned and leased space.

3. Design and construction.—This activity provides for overall direction of programs involving design, construction, and remodeling of Federal buildings. The net increase of $904 thousand over a comparable amount for 1968 is primarily for adjudication of contract appeals and claims, and investigation of complaints under the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

This appropriation provides for day-to-day maintenance repair work of all types, repairs, remodeling, improvement of space and tenant alterations, conversions and extensions of federally-owned buildings under the jurisdiction of the General Services Administration for these purposes. The budget for 1969 provides for continuation of the long-range program initiated in 1957 to alleviate deterioration and obsolescence of buildings which adversely affect efficient operations of occupying agencies.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1967, $2 thousand; 1968, $1 thousand; 1969, $1 thousand.

1. Maintenance repairs.—Normal needs for day-to-day repairs to buildings and equipment are programed at a rate of $0.18 per net square foot for general office-type space and $0.06 per net square foot for warehouse-type space.

2. Repairs and improvements.—Major and minor repair and improvement projects are selected from an inventory of urgently needed work to offset obsolescence and deterioration of buildings and to bring the properties up to modern standards of usefulness.

3. Conversions and extensions.—Building conversions and extensions estimated to cost in excess of $25 thousand are performed under this heading to provide space to meet current requirements.

4. Program direction.—Overall direction and program development are provided under this activity.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $9,784 thousand; 1967, $8,431 thousand; 1968, $9,731 thousand; 1969, $10,731 thousand.

This appropriation provides for preliminary planning of public buildings, acquisition of sites, preparation of drawings and specifications, supervision of construction, and related costs incident to projects approved under the Public Buildings Act of 1959. Costs for improvements are financed from Construction, public buildings projects.

The estimate of $11 million for 1969 provides $3.4 million for the acquisition of sites; $3.2 million for design; $3.8 million for preliminary planning and development; and $0.6 million for administrative operations support.

1. Site acquisition.—Acquisition of sites, including title evidence for 6 of the 11 projects included in the estimate.

2. Design.—Preparation of completed drawings and specifications, by contract or otherwise, technical services, and reproduction of plans and specifications for the 11 projects.

3. Supervision.—Construction supervision and inspection by contract or otherwise, not to be distributed to specific projects.

4. Preliminary planning and development.—Feasibility studies, site investigations, selections and appraisals, including options to purchase, topographical surveys, including test borings, design through tentative stage, and development of projects, not to be distributed to specific projects.

Public Law 89-372, approved March 18, 1966, authorized the appointment of 10 circuit and 35 district judges. An additional amount of $6 million was appropriated in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, approved September 6, 1966, to provide equipped facilities for the judges by performing alterations to existing facilities, rental of space, and alterations of temporary facilities pending the construction of new buildings under separate financing authority.

The Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts has requested GSA to provide the facilities required and has supplied a listing of known locations in which the judges will sit and data concerning additional court personnel who must be accommodated at the same locations. Unknown locations for court activities will be determined upon appointment of the judges. To date the President has appointed 10 circuit and 32 district judges.

This fund finances on a reimbursable basis, buildings management activities consisting of: Management, rental, operation, and protection of Government-owned and leased space in and outside the District of Columbia for housing Federal agencies; modernization and recurring repairs to Government-owned space under jurisdiction of General Services Administration; protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties; maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings; uniforms and uniform allowances; and other related building services (66 Stat. 594). Retained earnings resulting from operations, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Operating costs for 1969 are estimated at $431.7 million, a net increase of $7.8 million over 1968, mainly due to additional Government-owned space to be serviced.

1. Buildings management—(a) Operation and protection of Government-owned space.—Provides for operation and protection of an average of 155.7 million square feet of space in 1969 compared to an average of 151.5 million square feet in 1968 and an average of 145.3 million square feet in 1967. The change from 1968 reflects net additional space to be serviced due to construction of new buildings, and certain buildings being transferred to GSA for operation and protection.

(b) Rental, operation, and protection of leased space.—Provides for an average of 46.1 million square feet in 1969 compared to an average of 46.7 million square feet in 1968 and an average of 45.6 million square feet in 1967, based on currently projected requirements of Federal agencies.

2. Moving, alterations, and related costs.—Provides for moving and related alterations based on experience factors of buildings management operations and for moving and space adjustments incident to the new construction program.

3. Protection and maintenance, surplus properties.—Provides for protection and maintenance of excess and surplus properties.

4. Maintenance repairs.—Provides for day-to-day maintenance of GSA operated buildings, and other Government buildings under jurisdiction of GSA.

5. Security and special guarding.—Provides security and above normal guarding service required by other agencies.

6. Operation and maintenance of sites held for future construction.—Provides for maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings and repairs to improvements located thereon.

7. Job order work.—Provides for special services and repairs and improvements to buildings for GSA and other agencies.

8. Other.—Provides for program supervision of repair and improvement operations as distinguished from architectural and design activities initially financed from the Construction services fund, utility services furnished in the District of Columbia to buildings operated by other agencies and utilities to concessionaires.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1967, the net investment in the fund was $3.7 million, composed of $3.5 million appropriated, $7.9 million capitalized assets, $0.3 million retained earnings, less $8 million provision for unfunded leave liability.

Construction services activities consisting of preparation of drawings and specifications for the construction or alteration of public buildings; supervision of construction and alteration activities; and surveys and test borings performed in connection with the acquisition of Federal building sites and other related services are financed by this fund on a reimbursable basis from funds appropriated, transferred, or advanced to General Services Administration (40 U.S.C. 296).

Operations.—Initial financing of this fund provides for salaries and related expenses of all personnel engaged in architectural and engineering services in connection with buildings design and construction, both departmental and field. Estimates for 1968 and 1969 cover the GSA public building construction program, the repair and improvement program, and additional workload in connection with projects assigned to GSA by other Federal agencies.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $1,292 thousand (1967 adjustments, -$276 thousand); 1967, $1,793 thousand; 1968, $1,500 thousand; 1969, $1,500 thousand.

This appropriation provides for (1) establishment of efficient supply property management practices throughout the Federal Government, and (2) expenses of operating the worldwide supply system through which commercial-type commodities are sold to Government agencies and cost-type contractors from depot stocks, or by direct delivery from suppliers, whichever is more economical and meets the needs of the Government. Except for agencies orders placed directly with suppliers under Federal supply schedule contracts, most of the purchase of commodities are financed initially from the General supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Wherever economical and feasible, costs of commodities furnished directly from suppliers are paid directly from funds of the requisitioning agency without involving the General supply fund. This appropriation also provides for the necessary expenses of carrying out Government-wide Automated data management activities within the jurisdiction of the General Services Administration.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1967, $16 thousand; 1968, $12 thousand; 1969, $17 thousand.

1. Supply distribution.—Stocks of commercial-type commodities are received, warehoused, and issued on a worldwide basis to Federal agencies through a national supply distribution system consisting of both wholesale and retail distribution facilities. Stores stock sales reflect a continuous increase as follows: 1965, $343.9 million; 1966, $422.8 million; 1967, $526.8 million; 1968, estimated at $599 million; and 1969, estimated at $615 million.

2. Procurement.—Commodities are procured to maintain inventories at stores depots to insure availability in advance of sales orders and for direct delivery to agencies. Term contracts for commercial-type commodities and services are established for large aggregate volume requirements against which agencies place individual orders at uniform price advantages. Procurement in 1967 was $1,671 million; procurement for 1968 is estimated at $1,774 million; and 1969 procurement is estimated to reach $1,835 million. These volumes do not include automatic data processing equipment procurement of $375 million in 1967, $423.8 million in 1968, and $492 million in 1969.

3. Inspection.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or supply depots, by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance. In 1969, Quality control will inspect $720 million of stores items, $221.5 million nonstores items, and $79 million of items procured from Federal supply schedules.

4. Supply standardization.—Qualitative requirements of Federal agencies are reflected in Federal specifications, Federal standards, and Federal item identifications which are mandatory for use in procurement. In 1969 the standardization program will consist of the promulgation of 967 Federal specification and standards actions and 215,000 cataloging actions. Plans for 1969 provide for a material evaluation and development laboratory to test new products and to develop and revise test methods used for acceptance inspection of items purchased by GSA, and to provide laboratory facilities necessary for the development and maintenance of specifications.

5. Supply management.—In 1969, supply management activities will continue to make studies and recommendations on the supply systems of Federal agencies. Continued emphasis will be placed on priority support requirements of the Agency for International Development's programs in Southeast Asia and agreements between GSA and the Department of Defense on the governing of supply management relationships.

6. Automated data management services.—During 1969, the personnel assigned to this function will be utilized for the purpose of studying and designing ADP service centers as well as key punch and programmer pools, all for multi-agency use; conducting feasibility studies to determine economical acquisition of Federal Government ADP equipment now being leased; identifying and utilizing excess and surplus ADP equipment thereby minimizing the purchase of such equipment; and contracting for procurement of an estimated $492 million of automatic data processing equipment.

The Automatic Data Processing fund authorized by Public Law 89-306 finances a Government-wide automatic data processing operation including the procurement and maintenance of equipment, operation of service centers, and personnel resource pools. The fund will be reimbursed by Federal agencies for services rendered.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for the continued procurement of installed leased equipment, when economically feasible, for use by Federal agencies and the initial effort in the establishment and operation of service centers and personnel pools.

1. Lease program.—The fund finances the purchase of ADP equipment for use by Federal agencies when economical purchases can be made of installed leased equipment. Reimbursement by Federal agencies recovers the depreciation on the equipment plus the cost of operating the lease program. Revenue is estimated to increase from $370 thousand in 1968 to $1,951 thousand in 1969.

2. Service centers.—The service centers will contain ADP equipment available for use by all Federal agencies. Revenue is anticipated to be $55 thousand in 1969.

3. Personnel pools.—The personnel pools will have personnel available for key punching, programing, and analytical work for all Federal agencies. Revenue from this activity is anticipated to be $110 thousand in 1969.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by using agencies are the operations of interagency motor vehicle pools established in areas of high vehicle density and the rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for continued increases in sales to military and civilian agencies in accordance with the National Supply System concept. The estimate also contemplates the activation of additional motor vehicle pools.

1. Supply operations.—(a) Stores, regular.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for issue to Government agencies. From an alltime high of $526.8 million in 1967, sales are estimated to increase to $599 million and $615 million in 1968 and 1969, respectively.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply and delivered directly to the user. Sales were $72.3 million in 1967, and are estimated to increase to $89 million in 1968, and $95 million in 1969.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales through the fund are expected to increase from $219 million in 1967 to $266 million in 1968 and $274 million in 1969.

2. Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to overseas agencies. Receipts to the fund covering packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services are expected to decrease from $53.5 million in 1967 to $51.6 million in 1968, due to a lower surcharge rate, and increase to $53.2 million in 1969.

Equipment rental.—Operating, administrative, and ADP equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts are estimated to increase from $2.9 million in 1967 to $4.2 million in 1968 and 1969.

3. Rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment.—Furniture and equipment repair services, provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical, are expected to remain at $0.9 million through 1969.

4. Motor pools.—Services are provided to agencies through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales are estimated to increase from $47.7 million in 1967 to $50.4 million in 1968 and $50.7 million in 1969.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1969 is estimated at $358.6 million, consisting of $242.8 million direct appropriations, $115 million donated assets, $0.6 million capitalized surplus, and retained earnings of $0.3 million with $0.1 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

Upon establishment of interagency motor pools additional donated assets arising from transfers of motor vehicles from other agencies will be capitalized in the fund.

Any operating surplus, as determined by the General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Payment to be so made in 1968 is $5,461 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $343 thousand (1967 adjustments - $54 thousand); 1967, $156 thousand; 1968, $156 thousand; 1969, $156 thousand.

This appropriation provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records and for operation of presidential libraries.

The estimate for 1969 is $757 thousand more than 1968 financing. Of this amount, $509 thousand is required to handle increased transfers of records from agencies and increased reference service demands in the 14 Federal records centers; $203 thousand is requested for the National Archives and related activities; and the remainder, $47 thousand, is requested for increased support activities.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1967, $9 thousand; 1968, $9 thousand; 1969, $8 thousand.

In 1969 records in custody of the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 10.5 million cubic feet which represents 41% of the total Federal records. Reference services will total almost 7 million, a dramatic increase from 6.2 million in 1967 and 6.3 million estimated for 1968.

1. Records management and centers.—The workload requirements in the 13 regional records centers and in the National Personnel Records Center continue to increase, reflecting agencies demands for service. In 1969, agencies will transfer 850,000 feet of inactive records to the regional centers, where a total of 4.1 million reference services will be rendered from all holdings. The national center in St. Louis, holding some 98 million case files on separated military and civilian personnel, will furnish an estimated 2.25 million reference services.

In 1967 the existence and operation of Federal records centers accounted for a Government-wide cost avoidance of $14.2 million; the value of space and equipment released by the transfer of records to centers, less the low cost of storing records in Federal records centers.

The records management activity helps agencies control their paperwork load, which for all of the Federal Government consists of some 8 to 10 billion pages a year. In 1967, GSA's direct assistance to agencies produced a net first-year savings of $12 million including 325,000 man-days saved or released for other duty. Approximately two-thirds of the assistance was financed by this appropriation.

2. Archives and related services.—The workload in the National Archives will continue to increase in 1969. In addition, the professional functions reflect new interests in the qualitative aspects of the National Archives role as a cultural and educational institution.

Increased positions for the Kennedy and Johnson Libraries are included in the 1969 estimate to bring the staffing nearer to the levels required preparatory to opening the respective Libraries.

The workload of the Federal Register will increase some 5,000 manuscript pages, largely due to regulatory material of the Federal agencies.

¹ Excludes adjustments of prior year costs of -$10 thousand.
² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $9 thousand (1967 adjustment, -$5 thousand); 1967, $7 thousand; 1968, $7 thousand; 1969, $7 thousand.

This appropriation provides for improving management of transportation, communication, and public utility services in all civilian agencies, and for providing specialized services to civilian agencies in each of these fields.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by the General Services Administration is as follows: 1967, $3 thousand.

1. Transportation services.—Guides and procedures and educational programs for improving transportation practices and operations in civilian agencies are developed; reasonable rates are negotiated with carriers; and procurement assistance, rates, routing, and related services are supplied to executive agencies. The estimated workload in 1969 provides for increases in centralized traffic services ranging from a 2% increase in information services to one of 13% in contracts awarded.

2. Communication services.—Networks are designed and engineered for a Federal communications system for general and national defense use, compatible with the National Communications System. Studies of equipment utilization, service, rates and economic factors are made, contracts negotiated, and management and control of operations are provided. The projected program for 1969 provides for the management of the Federal Telecommunications System financed through the FT fund whose sales volume will increase from $100.4 million in 1968 to an estimated $107.3 million in 1969, and for increasing emphasis on the management of Government-wide communications.

3. Motor vehicle management.—Government-wide policies and procedures are developed to improve the overall efficiency of the operation of the Government-owned motor vehicle fleet, and to assist the various Federal agencies with motor equipment management. The program for 1969 contemplates 20 additional motor equipment studies of agencies' managerial and operational policies. Implementation of the recommendations of such studies have to date reduced equipment investment by about $3.1 million and operating costs by $4.9 million.

4. Public utilities services.—Negotiations are conducted with public utilities companies on behalf of executive agencies and technical assistance is rendered in connection with regulatory proceedings. In 1969, continued emphasis will be placed on the above areas where, in 1967, savings to the Government of $1,531 thousand accrued.

The regulatory representation function consists of (1) negotiations with carriers and utility companies concerning consumer considerations of the Government, and (2) participation in regulatory proceedings. New rate proposals are discussed with the carriers before they become effective which, it is anticipated, will minimize the number of rate proceedings in which GSA will participate during this year on behalf of the Government as a user.

This fund, authorized by Public Law 87-847, approved October 23, 1962, finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government operationally compatible with military communications systems. The system provides local and long-distance voice, teletype, data, facsimile and other communications services.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from available appropriations and funds of any agency, organization, or persons for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

Initial capital of $9 million was appropriated by Public Law 88-25, approved May 17, 1963. This sum may be increased by donations of supplies and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1967 were $88.3 million and are estimated at $100.4 million in 1968 and $107.3 million in 1969.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which will enable personnel in each Federal agency office to communicate directly on a machine-to-machine or station-to-station basis with any other agency office in the Nation. The system will provide day-to-day service as well as incorporate features which would be necessary in emergency situations. The program for 1969 contemplates a sales level of $90 million, an increase of about 4.6% over 1968, and an anticipated traffic volume of 52 million intercity calls being handled by FTS.

2. Record program.—A common unified system to satisfy record communications requirements of all Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of information by data, teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. The continued development of the records program is reflected in the projected sales of $11.5 million in 1969. This is an increase of 23% over 1968 sales.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits, thereby obtaining benefit of multiple tariff offerings of the commercial carriers. The sales program increases from $4.3 million in 1968 to $5 million in 1969.

4. Special programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies in keeping with objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and for a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. These programs insure that the Federal Telecommunications System will remain operational in the event any portion of the normal system is disabled or destroyed.

5. Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1968 the net investment in the fund is estimated to be $8.8 million, composed of $9 million appropriated, $0.3 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are to be deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

02 Out of prior authorizations.....	-----	2,580

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1966, $1,609 thousand (1967 adjustments, -$28 thousand); 1967, $1,853 thousand; 1968, $2,183 thousand; 1969, $2,913 thousand.

The Property Management and Disposal Service has the responsibility for: (a) acquisition and administration of national stockpile inventories pursuant to the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act; (b) custody and disposal of the supplemental stockpile established by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act; (c) administration of utilization and disposal functions of the General Services Administration with respect to excess and surplus real and personal property; (d) rehabilitation of personal property; and (e) administration of the inventory of machine tools and industrial manufacturing equipment established under the National Industrial Reserve Act.

The estimate for 1969 provides for storage, maintenance, inspection, and upgrading of stockpiled materials and disposal of those stockpile materials excess to objectives, the administration of the industrial equipment reserve activities, the appraisal of real and personal property, and continuing emphasis on reuse of existing real and personal property to obviate new capital and procurement outlays, with prompt disposal of those items no longer required.

The estimate for 1969 provides for conduct of these programs with an increase of $2,500 thousand over the 1968 level.

1. Inventory management.—Covers the cost of acquiring, upgrading, rotating, inspecting, and maintaining materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles, administration of the national industrial equipment reserve, providing protection and maintenance of excess, surplus, and national industrial reserve real properties, and payments in lieu of taxes on certain properties as required by law. No rotation of materials is planned for 1969. If unexpected circumstances should require rotation, any cash receipts from sales of materials to be rotated would be available, pursuant to the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act, for application against the cost of replacement materials.

a. Strategic and critical materials.—Strategic and critical materials amounting to approximately 41.9 million tons and valued at $5.9 billion were stored at 148 locations as of June 30, 1967. Distribution of depot storage costs for these materials is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Recurring costs.....	7,381	7,300	7,732
Nonrecurring.....	1,617	1,200	1,200
Relocation, transportation, and handling	716	400	600
Purchase of Hammond property.....	-----	-----	663
Total cost or estimate.....	9,714	8,900	10,195

In addition to depot storage, this activity provides for the acquisition of new materials, upgrading and rotation of present materials, and provides inspection and stockpile management services relative to maintaining the national and supplemental stockpiles.

b. Real property.—Physical care, handling, protection, maintenance, and repairs of certain excess and surplus real properties pending disposal and payments in lieu of taxes on certain properties as required by law are also provided.

c. Industrial reserve.—Administration is also provided by this activity on a National Industrial Equipment Reserve inventory of 9,463 tools as of June 30, 1967.

2. Property disposal.—Covers the cost of disposal of strategic materials excess to objectives, utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties, utilization, donation, and sale of surplus and exchange/sale personal property.

a. Strategic and critical materials.—Provides for the disposal of excess strategic and critical materials. Sales commitments of strategic and critical materials are estimated at $175.3 million and $104.3 million in 1968 and 1969, respectively. The estimates are based on an assumption that there will be no improvement in present market conditions and no new disposal legislation will be enacted. The estimates are subject to upward adjustment under the following alternative assumptions: (a) No change in market conditions but with passage of new disposal legislation, $196 million and $136.8 million, respectively; (b) upturn in economy but no new legislation, $429.3 million and $198.8 million, respectively; and (c) upturn in economy and passage of new legislation, $539.3 million and $302.1 million, respectively.

b. Real property disposal.—This activity provides for utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties. The estimate for 1969 provides for utilization transfers of 130 properties, sale of 285 surplus properties, and other surplus disposal (donations, etc.), totaling 250 properties. The selling price of real property and rental revenue in 1969 is estimated at $76 million.

c. Personal property disposal.—This activity provides for (a) utilization of excess personal property, thereby reducing new procurement; (b) donation of surplus personal property for public benefit purposes; (c) sale of surplus and exchange/sale personal property; and (d) rehabilitation of personal property owned by the Government to extend its useful life. The estimate for 1969 provides for: utilization transfers and donations totaling $1,000 million at acquisition cost and proceeds from sale of surplus and exchange/sale property totaling $13 million, an increase of $1 million. Rehabilitation of personal property will amount to $130 million at acquisition cost, an increase of $10 million over 1968.

3. Research and planning.—Provides program planning and coordination of all activities of the Property Management and Disposal Service. Develops long-range disposal plans for materials no longer required for stockpile objectives and coordinates plans with affected sources in industry and Government. Responsible for data collection and economic analyses of all factors bearing on stockpile materials—supply, demand, consumption, prices, etc. This activity is also responsible for the appraisal of excess and surplus real property as well as the coordination of regulations, standards, and methods governing such appraisals.

4. Service direction.—General direction over all programs assigned to the Property Management and Disposal Service is provided by the Commissioner and an executive staff, and in the regions by 10 regional directors who are responsible for carrying out program operations in these areas.

Appraisers, auctioneers, and brokers familiar with local markets are used to accelerate the disposal of surplus real and related personal property. Fees of appraisers, auctioneers, and brokers and costs of advertising and surveying are paid out of receipts from disposals within each year in accordance with 40 U.S.C.A. 485(b). Also paid from such proceeds is the direct expense in connection with utilization of excess real and related personal property (68 Stat. 1051). Properties sold by auctioneers and brokers totaled nine in 1967 and are estimated at 15 in 1968 and 1969.

Under the provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1957, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was abolished as a corporate entity and the remaining functions of the Smaller War Plants Corporation and the World War II assets program were transferred to the General Services Administration for final liquidation.

Operations.—It is anticipated that there will continue during 1969 the servicing of leases and conditional sales agreements covering two facilities, and two other miscellaneous assets. Financial and legal servicing will also be required on approximately 20 cases in the hands of the Department of Justice under the complex food subsidy program. In 1969, administrative expenses in connection with financial and legal services will be absorbed in funds available from regular GSA programs.

Operating results.—Proceeds from liquidation will be paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

Central blueprinting, photostating, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund pending reimbursements (40 U.S.C. 293). The Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, authorized the establishment of 10 field printing plants in GSA regional offices, in addition to the plant in Washington, D.C., to meet the needs of GSA and other Federal agencies. In addition, 21 duplicating plants are now in operation, and it is anticipated that GSA will establish approximately five new or consolidated centralized duplicating plants each year for the next several years.

Operating results.—Surplus earnings are deposited into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Through June 30, 1967, a total of $413 thousand has been deposited.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

The appropriate appropriation or fund available to the General Services Administration shall be credited with (1) cost of operation, protection, maintenance, upkeep, repair, and improvement, included as part of rentals received from Government corporations pursuant to law (40 U.S.C. 129); (2) reimbursements for services performed in respect to bonds and other obligations under the jurisdiction of the General Services Administration, issued by public authorities, States, or other public bodies, and such services in respect to such bonds or obligations as the Administrator deems necessary and in the public interest may, upon the request and at the expense of the issuing agencies, be provided from the appropriate foregoing appropriation; and (3) appropriations or funds available to other agencies, and transferred to the General Services Administration, in connection with property transferred to the General Services Administration pursuant to the Act of July 2, 1948 (50 U.S.C. 451ff), and such appropriations or funds may be so transferred, with the approval of the Bureau of the Budget.

Appropriations to the General Services Administration under the heading "Construction, Public Buildings Projects" made in this Act shall be available, subject to the provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1959 for (1) acquisition of buildings and sites thereof by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, including prepayment of purchase contracts, (2) extension or conversion of Government-owned buildings, and (3) construction of new buildings, in addition to those set forth under that appropriation: Provided, That nothing herein shall authorize an expenditure of funds for acquisition, extension or conversion, or construction without the approval of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House of Representatives.

Funds available to the General Services Administration shall be available for the hire of passenger motor vehicles.

No part of any money appropriated by this or any other Act for any agency of the executive branch of the Government shall be used during the current fiscal year for the purchase within the continental limits of the United States of any typewriting machines except in accordance with regulations issued pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended.

Not to exceed 2 per centum of any appropriation made available to the General Services Administration for the current fiscal year by this Act may be transferred to any other such appropriation, but no such appropriation shall be increased thereby more than 2 per centum: Provided, That such transfers shall apply only to operating expenses, and shall not exceed in the aggregate the amount of $2,000,000.

Appropriations available to any department or agency during the current fiscal year for necessary expenses, including maintenance or operating expenses, shall also be available for (a) reimbursement to the General Services Administration for those expenses of renovation and alteration of buildings and facilities which constitute public improvements, performed in accordance with the Public Buildings Act of 1959 (73 Stat. 479) or other applicable law, and (b) transfer or reimbursement to applicable appropriations to said Administration for rents and related expenses, not otherwise provided for, of providing subject to Executive Order 11035, dated July 9, 1962, directly or indirectly, suitable general purpose space for any such department or agency, in the District of Columbia or elsewhere.

No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for the payment of rental on lease agreements for the accommodation of Federal agencies in buildings and improvements which are to be erected by the lessor for such agencies at an estimated cost of construction in excess of $200,000 or for the payment of the salary of any person who executes such a lease agreement: Provided, That the foregoing proviso shall not be applicable to projects for which a prospectus for the lease construction of space has been submitted to the Congress and approval made in the same manner as for the public buildings construction projects pursuant to the Public Buildings Act of 1959. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1968.)

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was established October 1, 1958, pursuant to Public Law 85-568 (72 Stat. 426; 42 U.S.C. 2451), approved July 29, 1958, for the conduct of the nonmilitary space programs of the United States, including the exploration of space and its utilization for peaceful purposes, and to conduct and support advanced research and development related to space and aeronautics in support of both civilian and military requirements. This appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as follows:

1. Manned space flight.—These estimates include the Apollo, Apollo applications, and advanced mission studies programs. Funding provides for all NASA manned space flight missions, the development of the required space vehicles, and the study of advanced manned missions. The basic objective of the manned space flight program is to develop and provide a national capability for manned operations in space. This capability is planned to be demonstrated by landing men on the moon and returning them safely to earth before the end of this decade.

(a) Gemini.—The Gemini program was successfully concluded in 1967.

(b) Apollo.—The Apollo program is developing the capability to carry out major manned operations in space, including the national goal of landing men on the moon and returning them safely to earth within this decade.

The Saturn IB rocket has successfully completed three development flights, two including development testing of the Apollo Command and Service Modules. The first Saturn V/Apollo space vehicle for lunar missions was successfully flight tested in November 1967.

Two more unmanned flights of the Saturn IB are planned in 1968 to test the Lunar Module. The first Apollo manned flight will be an earth orbital mission launched on a Saturn IB in 1968.

Two unmanned and the first manned Saturn V flights are planned during calendar year 1968.

In calendar year 1969, five manned flights of the Saturn V are planned. Plans call for all of these flights to be conducted with complete lunar landing systems. The mission plans for the first four will be primarily aimed at development and operational testing. It is planned that the lunar landing will be made using a Saturn V in calendar year 1969.

(c) Apollo applications.—The objective of this program is to extend our manned space flight capabilities through engineering, medical, scientific, and technological experiments in space, building upon the Apollo program. The planned experiments, together with the advances in operational techniques, will exploit our manned flight capability for scientific, technological, and other fields of space activity. During 1968 and 1969, emphasis will be placed on the development and integration of experiments and systems, procurement of launch vehicles, and establishment of mission operations requirements. The payloads used in the early missions will be stored in orbit for later reuse to minimize the cost of the program. Initial launch of an orbital workshop, using a Saturn IB, is planned for 1970. It will be revisited in 1970 and 1971, and used as a platform for a large, man-operated solar telescope. A second orbital workshop, launched on a Saturn V, is planned for future years. Lunar exploration flights after the first landing are also planned in this program.

(d) Advanced mission studies.—The objective of the advanced missions program is to examine advanced manned space flight mission concepts and to develop technical information and cost data upon which future program decisions can be based.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—The objectives of this activity are to increase our knowledge of the earth, interplanetary space, the moon, the sun, the solar system, other stars and galaxies, and the effects of the space environment on living organisms. The flight systems used are sounding rocket probes, earth and lunar orbiting and landing spacecraft, and spacecraft designed for planetary and interplanetary missions.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—This program is composed of projects which have been designed to explore space near the earth, to improve understanding of the sun-earth-interplanetary relationships, and to make observations of the stars and nebulae. The scientific instrumentation is carried on sounding rockets; on small Explorer-type satellites; on larger, more complex observatory satellites; on interplanetary probes in heliocentric orbit; and on manned spacecraft.

(b) Lunar and planetary exploration.—A Mariner spacecraft flight to Mars in 1969 is planned to yield high resolution topographic information about the Martian surface, to provide atmospheric profile measurements, and to identify certain atmospheric constituents. A Mars orbiter with probe is planned for 1971. This spacecraft will attempt to measure the atmospheric profile in terms of pressure, temperature, density, and composition by means of an entry probe. Development will begin in 1969 on a new Mars spacecraft to be launched in 1973 on a Titan III vehicle to further extend investigation of Mars.

(c) Bioscience.—This program will continue to investigate the effects of weightlessness, radiation, and other space phenomena on animals, plants, and other biological organisms. This information is vital to determine the effects of the space environment on living organisms during extended manned flights. Flight experiments are planned to be carried on biosatellite spacecraft and on manned flights.

(d) Launch vehicle development.—This program consists of studies of future launch vehicle requirements and alternatives, and product improvements on existing launch vehicles.

3. Space applications.—The objectives of this activity include development of meteorological, technological, and geodetic satellites, and studies of communication, navigation, and earth resources satellite systems. Specific objectives are to improve satellite and instrumentation technology, to provide data for atmospheric and earth resources research, to participate in design and development of operational satellite systems as required, and to study advanced satellite systems. Flight experiments and activities related to these objectives will be carried out primarily with the Tiros, Nimbus, Geodetic, and Applications Technology Satellites, and on meteorological sounding rockets. An earth resources survey project, begun in 1968, will develop the technology for surveying the earth's resources from space. This development will involve the selection and testing of appropriate observational procedures, instruments, and interpretive techniques. The major areas of interest are: agriculture/forestry, geology/mineralogy, hydrology/oceanography, and geography/cartography. In 1968 and 1969, emphasis will be placed on use of aircraft for sensor tests and data acquisition. In 1969, studies will be undertaken to define a satellite program for earth resources.

4. Space technology.—This activity is comprised of research and development effort relating to space vehicle systems and operations and associated equipment and components for space missions. Emphasis is placed on space vehicle auxiliary power systems, propulsion systems, and life support technology. Development of a flight type NERVA I nuclear engine having a thrust of from 65,000 to 75,000 pounds, to provide basic propulsion capability to augment the Saturn V, will be initiated. The improvement of electronic systems for control, data acquisition, and communications will be continued. Much of this research is conducted in laboratories and special ground-based test facilities located at the various NASA centers.

5. Aircraft technology.—The objective of this activity is to extend the national capability in aeronautics, and to support other Government agencies having aeronautical interests and responsibilities such as the Departments of Defense and Transportation. In 1969, aeronautical research will continue in V/STOL, subsonic, supersonic, and hypersonic technology in support of civilian and military aircraft development. Increased emphasis will be placed on research in noise reduction and alleviation.

6. Supporting activities.—The three programs grouped in this activity provide general support for the attainment of NASA mission objectives.

(a) Tracking and data acquisition.—Operation and equipment of the stations of the NASA tracking and data acquisition networks are provided for here, as well as research and development to increase the capability of the specialized ground equipment.

(b) Sustaining university program.—This program includes training grants awarded for graduate studies in specialized engineering and other fields, and research grants to universities.

(c) Technology utilization.—The objective of this program is to accelerate the transfer into the non-space-related economy of new advances in technology generated by NASA and NASA contractors.

This appropriation provides for contractual services for the design, construction, and modification of facilities; the purchase of equipment related to construction and modification; and advance design of facilities planned for future authorization. The principal projects in the 1969 program are described below:

1. Manned space flight.—This activity includes funding requirements for modifications and rehabilitation to launch facilities, utility installations, additions and repairs to existing facilities, to support the manned space flight programs. NASA field centers involved are the John F. Kennedy Space Center, NASA, Kennedy Space Center, Fla.; the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala.; the Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.; and the Michoud Assembly Facility, New Orleans, La. Also included are funds for repair, rehabilitation, and improvements to Government-owned facilities, operated by contractors in support of NASA.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—The estimates for this activity provide for modifications to launch facilities at the John F. Kennedy Space Center and the extension of the beach protection system at the Wallops Station, Wallops Island, Va.

3. Space applications.—No 1969 projects included.

4. Space technology.—Funds for this activity provide for a water supply and distribution system at the Ames Research Center, Moffett Field, Calif.

5. Aircraft technology.—No 1969 projects included.

6. Supporting activities.—This activity includes funds for facility planning and design; a powerplant for the STADAN facility at Fairbanks, Alaska; a special-purpose antenna at the Goldstone Complex, Ft. Irwin, Calif.; and a 210-foot diameter advanced antenna system for the deep space instrumentation facilities at Canberra, Australia, and Madrid, Spain.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are receipts for services performed on Communications Satellite Corp. projects (42 USC. 2473) and for personal property sold for replacement purposes (40 U.S.C. 481).

This appropriation provides for the expenses of personnel and travel and for supporting costs of NASA installations.

Responsibility for the manned space flight activity is located at the John F. Kennedy Space Center, NASA, Kennedy Space Center, Fla.; Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, Tex.; and Marshall Space Flight Center, Huntsville, Ala. The scientific investigations in space and space applications activities are concentrated principally at the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., and the Wallops Station, Wallops Island, Va. The space technology activity is conducted at all major NASA installations.

Other locations to which portions of the above activities are assigned include: Ames Research Center, Moffett Field, Calif.; Electronics Research Center, Cambridge, Mass.; Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif.; Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va.; Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, Ohio; and the Space Nuclear Propulsion Office, Germantown, Md.

Aircraft technology work is carried out at the Ames, Flight, Lewis, and Langley research centers.

Programwide support and management are provided by NASA Headquarters, Washington, D.C., and the NASA

Pasadena Office, Pasadena, Calif. Support activities for tracking and data acquisition requirements are performed at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Goddard Space Flight Center, and Wallops Station.

The following table reflects the distribution of the direct obligations by installation:

This appropriation provides for administration of all nonmedical veterans benefits through the Department of Veterans Benefits; operation of advanced data processing and communications systems through the Department of Data Management; and, top management direction and support through agency level staff offices.

The request for new obligational authority of $198.5 million in 1969 is $9.8 million above the amount required for 1968 exclusive of the anticipated supplemental under the Proposed for separate transmittal. This increase is associated primarily with the following items:

(a) Full year cost of Public Law 90-77—Veterans Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967 and Public Law 90-206, Postal Revenue and Federal Salary Act of 1967. (b) Increase in workloads in the Department of Veterans Benefits resulting from aging veteran population and expanded numbers of veterans in civil life. (c) Normal within-grade increases and the effect of 1 extra paid day.

1. General administration.—This activity contains the executive direction of the agency and several top level supporting offices. In addition, it covers the Board of Veterans Appeals which decides all cases (other than insurance) of appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under veterans legislation.

2. Data management.—This activity manages all computer operations and is responsible for research into new computer and communications systems. Payback from this applied research will reduce costs and improve agency operations.

3. Veterans benefits.—Veterans' and dependents' claims for compensation, pensions, or other benefits are adjudicated, and guardianship and fiduciary service is furnished

1. Medical research.—Medical research projects are conducted in Veterans' Administration laboratories or other institutions on a contract basis, whichever is more advantageous or economical.

In addition to amounts provided for the medical research program by direct appropriation, an amount of $12,926,500 was available in 1967 in grants from the National Institutes of Health and from other organizations sponsoring research. Of this amount, $1,368,600 represents grants made directly to the Veterans Administration. The remaining $11,557,900 was granted to various medical schools with which VA hospitals are affiliated. It is anticipated that approximately the same level of funding from these outside sources will be available in 1968 and 1969. This estimate does not include funding of research construction projects which are a part of the Construction of hospital and domiciliary facilities appropriation.

2. Prosthetic research.—This is a research program to develop and test prosthetic, orthopedic, and sensory aids for the purpose of improving the care and rehabilitation of disabled eligible veterans, including amputees, paraplegics, and the blind.

This appropriation provides for the cost of care and treatment of eligible beneficiaries in Veterans Administration hospital, domiciliary and nursing care beds, outpatient clinics, contract care facilities, and State homes.

To be eligible for inpatient care and treatment, a beneficiary must be a veteran of any war with a service-connected disability incurred or aggravated during a period of war, or, within the limits of Veterans Administration facilities, for any other disability if the veteran is unable to defray the expenses of necessary hospital, nursing home, or domiciliary care. Outpatient medical and dental treatment is provided to veterans with service-connected disabilities by staffs of Veterans Administration outpatient clinics and by physicians and dentists participating in the hometown medical care program; to veterans receiving vocational rehabilitation who require treatment to avoid interruption of training; pensioners of nations allied with the United States in World War I and in World War II; and veterans of the Spanish-American War, Indian wars, Boxer Rebellion, and Philippine Insurrection. Veterans also are provided examinations in outpatient clinics for purposes of rating for compensation and pension, insurance, and determining their need for hospitalization or domiciliary care.

Medical services may be furnished on an outpatient basis for nonservice-connected disabilities to veterans who have been determined to need hospital care and whose admission to a hospital has been scheduled, or who require posthospital treatment to complete hospital care.

Increases in 1969 cover (a) salary adjustments for wage board and within-grade increases and annualization of 1967 pay raises (Public Law 90-206); (b) continued activation of new and replacement hospitals located at Charleston, S.C., Gainesville and Miami, Fla., and the initial activation of San Juan, P.R.; (c) expansion of the education and training program and other staffing improvements; (d) the extension of new medical services approved in the prior fiscal year; (e) the establishment of additional new medical services on a quarter year's operation; (f) increased usage of drugs, utilities, communications, linens, prosthetic appliances; (g) increased medical fees and contract facility rates; (h) increased equipment and maintenance and repairs, including minor improvements; and (i) increased reimbursements to the Department of Data Management for data processing services, and to the Department of Labor for Bureau of Employees Compensation payments.

1. Maintenance and operation of VA facilities.—(a) Neuropsychiatric hospitals.—This covers the operation of neuropsychiatric hospitals. The estimated costs for 1969 exceed 1968 by $11,874 thousand. Estimated operating levels are:

(f) Miscellaneous benefits and services.—This covers items of expense not directly connected with medical care and treatment such as beneficiary travel, care of the dead, operation of personnel quarters at medical facilities, and the cost of furnishing supply, engineering, housekeeping, and other administrative support service to other Veterans Administration departments on a non-reimbursable basis. The increase in the estimated cost over 1968 is $627 thousand.

2. Contract care.—(a) Hospitalization.—This covers the hospitalization in other Federal hospitals for service and non-service-connected disabilities where Veterans Administration facilities are not available. It also covers the use of non-Federal hospitals which are limited to treatment of service-connected disabilities, except that female veterans, veterans in training under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 1506, and veterans in U.S. territories and possessions may also receive treatment of non-service-connected disabilities. The decrease in the estimated cost below 1968 of $2,152 thousand is due primarily to a decrease in patient load.

The requirements presented in this budget submission take into consideration the contemplated receipt in 1969 of an equivalent amount of property and supplies from other Federal agencies or from the General Post Fund, National Homes, Veterans Administration, to that experienced in 1967 which had an acquisition value of $1,675 thousand. This does not, however, represent the value of the items when transferred.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Accounts receivable (benefit overpayments collectible from beneficiaries), 1966, $17,335 thousand (1967 adjustment, $15 thousand); 1967, $22,021 thousand; 1968, $22,021 thousand; 1969, $22,021 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation, pensions and related benefits to veterans and their dependents. In June 1967 there were an estimated 21.3 million living war veterans of which 3.2 million (15.0%) were receiving benefits under this appropriation. In addition, 1.4 million dependents of deceased veterans were receiving benefits. Recent legislative amendments will increase the amount of benefit payments to be made in 1968 and 1969. These include: (a) The full year effect of Public Law 89-641, which increased peso benefit payments on December 1, 1966, and will cost an additional $5 million in 1968; (b) The full year effect of Public Law 89-730, which increased certain dependency and indemnity compensation rates on January 1, 1967, and extended the period of filing for death gratuity benefits until November 1, 1967, and will cost an additional $27 million in 1968. (c) Public Law 90-77, approved August 31, 1967, which increases most pension rates by 5.4% effective October 1, 1967, liberalizes other pension benefits, and initially provides certain wartime benefits to Vietnam veterans. The estimated additional cost in 1968 is $87,358 thousand, and in 1969, $118,999 thousand. Other increases during the current and budget years are primarily associated with increases in the veteran compensation rolls, particularly the Vietnam era roll; and increases to the survivor pension rolls, where the major World War I and World War II caseloads continue to rise significantly.

A supplemental appropriation amounting to $47,500 thousand is required in 1968 as shown under Proposed for separate transmittal.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is payable to living veterans who have suffered impairment of earning power from service-connected disabilities. Death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation is payable to the widow and dependents of veterans whose deaths are related to service-connected disabilities.

The increasing trend in veterans average caseload for 1968 and 1969 is due to the growth of the Vietnam era and Korean caseload which more than offsets the declining caseload trends of the earlier war period categories. The increase in average payment for 1968 is attributable to the full year effect of the increases in peso benefit payments provided by Public Law 89-641, effective December 1, 1966, and to the equalization of peacetime rates with wartime rates provided by Public Law 90-77, effective October 1, 1967. The increase in 1969 is primarily attributable to the full year effect of Public Law 90-77, as well as to changes in the composition of the caseload.

The increase in the average survivors caseload in 1968 and 1969 is associated with the growth of the Vietnam era roll due to the extra hazards of military service created by the Southeast Asian crisis. The average payment per case increase for 1968 is partially due to the full year effect of the increases in dependency and indemnity compensation rates payable to parents and children under Public Law 89-730. Further increases in the average payment for 1968 and 1969 are anticipated because of the increasing proportion of cases receiving the higher dependency and indemnity compensation rates over those receiving the "old" death compensation rates.

2. Pensions.—Benefits are payable to wartime veterans and dependents of deceased veterans for non-service-connected disability and death.

A decrease in average veterans caseload is projected for 1968 and 1969 because of the continuing caseload decline in the earlier war period categories where the age and mortality rates are a factor. These decreases more than offset the estimated rise in the World War II and Korean conflict categories, as well as the minor increases caused by the initial entitlement of Vietnam era veterans effective October 1, 1967 under Public Law 90-77. Projected increases in annual average payments for 1968 and 1969 are mainly attributable to the rate increases authorized to most pensioners by Public Law 90-77 and to certain other benefits also provided by this law.

Based on trends experienced in recent years, a continuing increase in survivors' caseload is projected for 1968 and 1969. The increase in the average payment projected during 1968 and 1969 is mainly attributable to the higher rates and other liberalizing features of Public Law 90-77.

3. Other.—These miscellaneous benefits cover payments which are not readily combined with any one of the preceding compensation or pension categories.

(a) Retired officers.—Emergency officers of World War I and certain officers of the Regular Establishment who have retired because of service-connected disability are entitled to special benefits. The average caseload is declining steadily (as these officers age) from an actual of 868 in 1967 to an estimated 740 in 1969. The annual average payment in 1967 was $2,595. A similar average ($2,580) is projected for 1968 and 1969, with total requirements approximating $2,064,000 in 1968 and $1,909,000 in 1969.

(b) Adjusted service and dependents pay.—Claims made pursuant to the provisions of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act of 1924, as amended, are payable from this appropriation. If the amount of adjusted service credit was more than $50 the veterans were entitled to receive adjusted service certificates. The payment of adjusted service certificates was heretofore made from an adjusted service certificate fund. Activities of this fund were transferred in 1966 to this appropriation.

During 1967, costs of the combined activity were $50,431. It is anticipated that costs will approximate $56,000 in 1968 and $51,000 in 1969.

(c) Subsistence allowance.—Payments are made to disabled veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation and education programs. Actual costs in 1967 reflect the higher rates authorized by Public Law 89-137, effective October 1, 1965. These costs are expected to increase somewhat in 1968 and 1969 reflecting Vietnam era activities.

(d) Burial benefits.—The Administrator is currently authorized to (1) pay an allowance of $250 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) to cover the burial and funeral expenses of a deceased veteran and (2) furnish a flag to drape the casket of each deceased veteran entitled thereto. The increase in costs is mainly related to the estimated increase in veterans deaths, although the full year effect of Public Law 89-641, increasing the dollar cost of peso benefit awards contributed to the increase in 1968. The initial inclusion of Vietnam era veterans, authorized by Public Law 90-77, effective October 1, 1967, further increased the caseload and costs in 1968 and 1969.

(e) Special allowances, dependents.—Under certain conditions, a special allowance (38 U.S.C. 412) is payable to dependents of certain veterans who died after December 31, 1956, but who were not fully and currently insured under the Social Security Act. Projected increases assume that the current strengths and death rates for the Armed Forces will be maintained through 1968. In 1967, 302 cases were paid $314,129. Approximately 340 cases costing $357 thousand are estimated for 1968 and 360 cases costing $370 thousand are estimated for 1969.

(f) Invalid lifts and other devices.—The Administrator may furnish an invalid lift to veterans in receipt of pension under 38 U.S.C. 617 based on the need of regular aid and attendance. A negligible change in lifts furnished has occurred, but a rise in costs to $175,866 in 1967 reflects certain devices and equipment afforded by Public Law 88-450. Public Law 90-77, effective October 1, 1967, liberalized the basis for the award of devices and equipment to include most aid and attendance cases in need. Accordingly, it is estimated that substantial increases in the issuance of such items will occur, with costs rising to approximately $4,125 thousand in 1968 and $4,154 thousand in 1969.

(g) Tort claim settlements.—Payment of compromises or settlements under 38 U.S.C. 351 resulting from litigation under the Federal Tort Claims Act are made from this appropriation.

During 1967, 11 compromise payments were made at a cost of $103,500. Compromise payments for 1968 and 1969 are estimated at $100 thousand for each year.

(h) Death gratuities.—Public Law 89-214, approved September 29, 1965, authorized a death gratuity of not to exceed $5 thousand for payment to the eligible beneficiary of a veteran whose death occurred during the period from January 1, 1957, through September 28, 1965, and was attributed to certain hazards of service. This law further provided that the amount of death gratuity be reduced by the amount of any death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation the beneficiary may already have received and, in addition the beneficiary must waive his right to any future death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation payment on account of the serviceman's death. However, Public Law 89-730 repealed the offset and waiver provision of Public Law 89-214, which in effect makes the $5 thousand death gratuity payment available to an eligible beneficiary without any limitation or restriction. It also extended date of applying for gratuity to November 1, 1967. Actual costs in 1967 were $19,941,263, considerably less than the $44 million estimated. However, it is estimated that many potential claimants have delayed filing until the delimiting date. Accordingly, it is estimated that $24 million will be required to complete these payments in 1968.

A supplemental appropriation of $47,500 thousand is required to cover costs of legislation enacted subsequent to budget request

Public Law 90-77—Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967, approved August 31, 1967, and generally effective October 1, 1967, increases rates of pension payable to certain veterans and their widows and children and liberalizes certain other pension programs. The law amends paragraph (11), section 101, title 38, United States Code, to add Vietnam era in defining the term "period of war." It further defines the Vietnam era as "the period beginning August 5, 1964, and ending . . . by Presidential Proclamation or concurrent resolution of the Congress." It also provides pension benefits to Vietnam era veterans, their widows, and/or children.

The estimated total additional cost in this appropriation because of the new legislation is $87.3 million for 1968. A portion of this added cost will be absorbed from unobligated balances of 1967 funds, leaving a 1968 appropriation requirement of $47.5 million.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Accounts receivable (benefit overpayments collectible from beneficiaries), 1966, $361 thousand; 1967, $1,058 thousand; 1968, $1,058 thousand; 1969, $1,058 thousand.

This appropriation provides educational assistance allowances for eligible children under the War Orphans' Educational Assistance Act of 1956, as amended; education and training assistance to veterans of post-Korean military service; and special assistance to disabled veterans in the form of vocational rehabilitation, housing grants, and automobiles or other conveyances.

1. Education and training.—Sons and daughters in training under the War Orphans' Educational Assistance Act of 1956, as amended, are provided an educational assistance allowance. A slight decrease in the number of trainees is projected in 1968. A greater number of these children will go off the rolls, as they exhaust their entitlement, than will enter training. The "Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967" (Public Law 90-77), amends this program by extending the basic eligibility for war orphans' assistance from age 23 to 26 years. In 1969, the roll will increase moderately, as the new legislation will be in effect for a full year. The average cost per trainee will decline in both 1968 and 1969. This reduced unit cost is the result of activity created by Public Law 89-613, which extends this benefit to eligible children of the Philippine Commonwealth Army veterans and "new" Philippine Scouts, at a rate in Philippine pesos equal to 50 cents for each dollar otherwise authorized.

Veterans of post-Korean military service also receive educational assistance. For these veterans, the "Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967", Public Law 90-77, authorizes benefit payments to "educationally disadvantaged"; increases the rates of educational assistance allowances; provides on-the-job training; authorizes farm cooperative training; and provides flight training for eligible veterans. The number of trainees will increase in both 1968 and 1969 as a result of this new legislation. The average cost will be greater in 1968, with rate increases in effect from October 1, 1967. In 1969, a nominal decrease is projected in the average cost, as a greater number of veterans, just out of the service and without dependents, are expected to enter training.

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover costs of tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. An increase in the number of trainees is projected for both 1968 and 1969, and is basically related to the assumption that the current strength of the Armed Forces will be maintained and that the casualties associated with the Southeast Asian crisis will not lessen. It also recognizes the continued buildup of trainees among the seriously disabled for World War II and the Korean conflict. Grants are provided for specially adapted housing to veterans having suffered the loss of both feet, to certain blind veterans, and to paraplegic veterans. Up to $1,600 is allowed certain disabled veterans toward the purchase of automobiles or other conveyances. Public Law 90-77, authorizes this automobile allowance to veterans not previously entitled. Now, this allowance shall be made available to any veteran with service after January 31, 1955, who, as a direct result of the performance of military duty, meets entitlement requirements, and makes application for such benefits. An increase of more than 2,000 applications is anticipated this current year.

A supplemental appropriation of $17,500 thousand is required to cover costs of legislation enacted subsequent to the budget request.

Public Law 90-77, enacted August 31, 1967, is also cited as the Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967. This law authorizes for post-Korean-conflict veterans, benefit payments to educationally disadvantaged; increases the rates of educational assistance allowances; provides on-the-job training; authorizes farm cooperative training; provides flight training for eligible veterans; and authorizes an allowance of $1,600 toward the purchase of an automobile or other conveyance for a veteran serving after January 31, 1955, who, as a direct result of the performance of military duty, meets entitlement requirements. The age limit is extended for sons and daughters in training under the war orphans' educational assistance program from age 23 to 26 years.

The estimated total additional cost in this appropriation of Public Law 90-77, is $141 million for 1968. A sizable portion of this added cost will be absorbed due principally to funds remaining unobligated at the end of 1967 and other related adjustments. Supplemental requirements will amount to $17.5 million for these added benefits.

2. National service life insurance.—This appropriation pays certain expenses of the National service life insurance fund and receives premiums and pays claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to certain disabled veterans of World War II. Premium receipts are appropriated under 38 U.S.C. 719(b).

a. Payments to National service life insurance fund.—

(1) For death claims traceable to extra hazards of service an amount is transferred from this appropriation, which, when added to the reserve of the policy, is equal to the actuarial value of the claim. In the event of total disability traceable to extra hazards of service, an amount is transferred from this appropriation sufficient to meet the current payments from the fund.

(2) Gratuitous insurance was issued to aviation cadets and to certain persons who were unable to make application for National service life insurance. Under a court ruling in 1964 gratuitous insurance payments are made to illegitimate children previously denied recognition.

(3) The fund is reimbursed when recovery of erroneous payments or overpayments is waived.

(4) The fund is reimbursed for death claims of policies under waiver of premiums while the insured is on active military duty.

(1) Claims are paid on nonparticipating National service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities.

(2) Claims may be paid in certain instances in which applicants for insurance were rejected for medical reasons and subsequently died in line of duty.

(3) Claims are paid on death which occurred after application, but before effective date of a National service life insurance policy.

(4) Claims may be paid in certain cases in which insurance was discontinued because the insured was discharged to accept a commission, was absent without leave, or was court-martialed.

(5) Payments are made to policyholders who terminate their insurance for the cash value of their policies and to policyholders who have matured endowments.

3. Service-disabled veterans insurance.—Payments are made to the Service-disabled veterans insurance fund to supplement the premium and other receipts of the fund in amounts necessary to pay claims on insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities, but who were otherwise insurable. The increase in payments to the fund in 1969 over 1968 is due to an increase in death claim payments to beneficiaries and an increase in policy loans to the policyholders each year.

4. Servicemen's indemnities.—Beneficiaries of servicemen who died prior to January 1, 1957, while in active service or within a period of 120 days after separation from active service were entitled to receive an indemnity in the amount of $10 thousand less any National service life insurance and/or U.S. Government life insurance carried by the deceased. Payments were made to beneficiaries in 120 equal installments, plus interest at the rate of 2.25% per year. The program was completed in 1967.

Financing.—It is planned to transfer $2 million in 1968 and $2.5 million in 1969 of surplus retained earnings from the Veterans special term insurance fund to this account.

imbursement to include payments for hospital care of Commonwealth Army veterans with non-service-connected disabilities, if financial need exists. The program was extended further to give new Philippine Scouts, both service connected and nonservice connected, the same coverage to which the Commonwealth Army veterans are entitled. To assist the Republic of the Philippines in replacing and upgrading of equipment and in rehabilitating the physical plant facilities of the Veterans Memorial Hospital, $500 thousand was appropriated for this purpose in 1967, to remain available until expended. Also $100 thousand was authorized for each year through 1972 for making grants for medical research and training of health service personnel.

CONSTRUCTION OF HOSPITAL AND DOMICILIARY FACILITIES

For hospital and domiciliary facilities, for planning and for major alterations, improvements, and repairs and extending any of the facilities under the jurisdiction of the Veterans' Administration or for any of the purposes set forth in sections 5001, 5002, and 5004, title 38, United States Code, including necessary expenses of administration, [§52,600,000] $33,338,000, to remain available until expended. CONSTRUCTION OF HOSPITAL AND DOMICILIARY FACILITIES—CON.

These funds provide for the construction of new hospital and domiciliary facilities, replacement and relocation of existing hospitals and domiciliaries, acquisition of sites, modernization and other improvements, alterations, and additions for medical research facilities, nursing home beds, regional offices, supply depots, and data processing centers, including construction planning, administration, and related staff activities. This estimate is for the ninth increment for financing a 15-year program to modernize the hospital system. While this program will be primarily for improvements to the older (pre-World War II) hospitals, it will also provide for replacement of 12 hospitals acquired from military surplus, for air conditioning where indicated and for the correction of deficiencies in post-World War II hospitals as necessary to bring them up to more modern medical standards.

A construction program of $33,338 thousand is recommended for 1969 to be financed with new obligational authority. Although budgetary constraints in 1969 will limit new funds to $33,338 thousand, obligations, which govern the rate at which funds will be spent, will rise from $38.1 million to $103.3 million providing a continuing impetus to the entire hospital and related facilities construction program. This $33,338 thousand in new obligational authority includes $747 thousand for designing a 540-bed replacement hospital at San Francisco, California, $25,412 thousand to complete a 760-bed hospital at San Antonio, Texas, and $2,084 thousand for expansion of medical and surgical intensive care and coronary care facilities at various locations. Also included is $5,095 thousand for planning, administration, design and construction supervision and related staff activities.

1. Hospitals.—(a) New.—This activity covers the new hospitals and bed-addition projects authorized in 1947 and subsequent years. This part of the 15-year program was completed with the opening of the Washington, D.C., 710-bed hospital in 1965.

(b) Replacement and relocation.—Beds which are housed in temporary, obsolete, or hazardous structures are to be replaced or relocated. The program initiated in 1955, currently includes 29 projects for approximately 19,989 beds. Status of beds to be provided under this title follows:

The construction of a memorial on Corregidor Island to commemorate the veterans who served in the Pacific area during World War II was authorized by Public Law 88-240, approved December 23, 1963.

A total of $1,500 thousand has been appropriated for this purpose to the Veterans Administration, in the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act—$100 thousand in 1965 and $1,400 thousand in 1966. No additional funds are being recommended.

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $61,036 thousand in 1968 and it is estimated sales will be $63,441 thousand during 1969.

Financing.—No appropriation by the Congress will be required for the operation of the Veterans Canteen Service during 1969. Operations will be financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service. Funds in excess of the needs of the Service totaling $12,021 thousand have been paid to the Treasury as of June 30, 1967.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses. Retained earnings are required for necessary working capital, therefore, no funds are available for payment to the Treasury.

Direct loans are made to purchase, construct, or improve a home; to purchase a farm on which there is a farm residence to be occupied by the veteran as his home; or to construct, alter, repair, or improve a farm dwelling to be occupied by the veteran as his home.

Such loans are made only in rural areas, small cities, and towns where private credit for the making of GI loans is and has been generally unavailable. The maximum loan amount is $17,500 except in high cost areas where such a limitation is inadequate. In such areas the Administrator is authorized to increase the maximum amount up to $25 thousand, and the maximum term is 30 years. The interest rate is the same as the rate allowable for GI loans (38 U.S.C. 1811, as amended).

Budget program.—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Under existing legislation, the eligibility of World War II veterans and Korean conflict veterans has been phasing out since 1962, with terminal dates of July 25, 1970 for World War II veterans, and January 31, 1975, for Korean conflict veterans. Effective March 3, 1966, Public Law 89-358 extended the authority to make or to enter into commitments to make loans to post-Korean veterans and some active duty servicemen. This authority terminates January 31, 1975.

2. Cash advances and repurchases—Vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government. These advances are added to the unpaid loan balances.

3. Property improvements.—Properties are acquired by foreclosure on, or the voluntary conveyance of, title to properties securing loans owned by the Veterans Administration. Capital expenditures are often necessary to put the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

4. Interest on borrowings from Treasury.—Interest expense is accrued monthly. These accruals are computed on the interest bearing capital of the fund and adjusted for the unexpended balance of the fund.

5. Operating expenses, general.—Includes a variety of miscellaneous expenses borne by the Government incident to closing, and liquidating loans.

6. Property management expense.—Includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers, and maintenance of the property in a salable condition:

8. Commission on sale of participation certificates—Participation sales fund.—The Veterans Administration's portion of brokerage fees charged by the private underwriters who market participation certificates for the Federal National Mortgage Association.

9. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which direct loans have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(e). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

Financing.—Public Law 87-84, approved July 6, 1961, authorizes the Veterans Administration to draw $1.2 billion from the U.S. Treasury at stated intervals through 1967 with the provision that after the first year (1962) the amount so authorized was to be reduced by the amount of loans sold in the preceding fiscal year. Through 1966, direct loan sales were $403.4 million. The aggregate authorization to borrow from the Treasury was further reduced in the appropriation acts for 1966 and 1967 by $100 million each year, leaving a net aggregate authorization of $596.5 million for the 6-year period. During 1962, $200 million was borrowed and an additional $200 million in 1963. No borrowings were made in 1964, 1965, 1966, or 1967. The unused borrowing authority of $196.5 million lapsed at the close of 1967.

Authority to spend from agency debt receipts is increased by authorizations for sale of participation certificates amounting to $154 million in 1967, $250 million in 1968 and $115 million in 1969.

Note.—The above statement excludes the following exchanges of nonworking capital assets: The settlement of VA-guaranteed or insured loans by the acquisition of real property (1967, $238,931 thousand; 1968, $218,625 thousand; 1969, $254,060 thousand); the settlement of defaulted VA-owned loans by acquisition of real property (1967, $67,507 thousand; 1968, $62,517 thousand; 1969, $74,750 thousand); the acquisition of vendee loans in exchange for real property (1967, $320,217 thousand; 1968, $318,000 thousand; 1969, $360,625 thousand).

To assist eligible veterans to obtain credit for the purchase or construction of homes, the Veterans Administration guarantees loans made by private lenders. The number of guaranteed loans closed is expected to increase from 227,000 in 1968 to 242,000 in 1969, bringing the total amount of guaranteed loans outstanding by the end of 1969 to $35.2 billion. The Loan guaranty revolving fund provides for expenses and revenues of property and loan transactions resulting from settlement of guaranty claims.

Budget program.—The activities indicated in the tables below represent the number of each asset acquired on a check-issue basis.

1. Real property acquisitions.—Private lenders who have acquired property as a result of foreclosure on defaulted guaranteed or insured loans may elect to convey that property to the Veterans Administration. The table below reflects this activity and excludes the amount of indebtedness established against the veteran:

Number of property acquisitions processed.....	20,861	18,775	21,500
Average cost per acquisition.....	$11,759	$11,800	$11,885
Total cost (in thousands).....	$245,310	$221,551	$255,600

2. Property improvements.—After conveyance of the property to the Veterans Administration, capital expenditures are often necessary to place the property in saleable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

Number of properties acquired.....	26,239	24,915	25,000
Average cost per property.....	$843	$883	$900
Total cost (in thousands).....	$22,118	$22,000	$22,520

3. Claims paid.—These payments are made to lenders in accordance with the Veterans Administration guaranty contract and represents the difference between the amount owed by the veteran on a defaulted loan and the value of the foreclosed property (as established by Veterans Administration). These payments are in addition to property acquisition costs shown in 1, above. The table below reflects this activity:

Number of claims.....	21,279	18,950	21,900
Average cost per payment.....	$1,012	$1,100	$1,150
Total cost (in thousands).....	$21,534	$20,845	$25,200

4. Repurchase of loans sold, net.—Pursuant to Veterans Administration Regulation 4600, dated March 22, 1962, the Administrator may sell mortgage loans, which have been created incident to the sale of Veterans Administration acquired properties, with full recourse:

	1967 actual	1968 estimate	1969 estimate
Number of loans repurchased.....	3,675	3,800	3,300
Average cost per repurchase.....	$11,315	$11,580	$12,130
Total cost (in thousands).....	$41,581	$44,000	$40,040

5. Cash advances—Vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government.

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when it is felt that temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default.

Number of loans acquired.....	571	600	600
Average cost per acquisition.....	$15,066	$15,000	$15,200
Total cost (in thousands).....	$8,603	$9,000	$9,120

7. Commission on sale of participation certificates—Participation sales fund.—Represents the Veterans Administration portion of the cost of marketing serial participation certificates through a nationwide group of underwriters, by the Federal National Mortgage Association as trustee for the Participation sales fund. These costs are in direct proportion to the sale of participation certificates.

8. Property management expense.—Includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers and maintenance of the property in a saleable condition.

Average number of properties.....	14,612	13,240	10,682

9. Sales expense.—Includes brokers' fees and advertising costs incident to the sale of acquired properties.

Number of sales.....	27,205	26,275	29,065
Average cost per sale.....	$623	$630	$640
Total cost (in thousands).....	$16,946	$16,550	$18,600

10. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which vendee accounts have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(e). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

11. Relationship of participation sales insufficiencies to new obligational authority.—The new obligational authority required for "insufficiencies" is computed as follows:

Interest accrued on participation certificates for which insufficiencies are authorized.....		19,350	51,600
Interest on equal amount of loans in the pool.....		-15,250	-41,980
Insufficiency.....		4,100	9,620
Financed by:
Investment income from Participation sales fund.....		-250	-1,225
Carried forward to subsequent year.....		-3,185
Brought forward from prior year.....			3,185
New obligational authority.....		665	11,580
Portion of new obligational authority applicable to:
Sales authorized in 1968 and 1969 appropriation act (indefinite appropriation).....			11,580

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income, funding fees received from guaranteed and direct loans closed pursuant to Public Law 89-358, and repayments on mortgage loans made incident to the sale of real property acquired as a result of foreclosure on guaranteed loans. It is estimated that $112.7 million in 1968 and $149.1 million in 1969 will be received from these sources. Also an estimated $34.8 million vendee loans will be sold in 1968 and an additional $20 million in 1969. In addition, new obligational authority of $0.7 million and $11.6 million will be required in 1968 and 1969 to meet participation sales insufficiencies. The 1969 requirement includes $3,185 thousand for restoration of the unobligated balance utilized in 1968 to fund insufficiencies above the amount appropriated.

The Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1968 (Public Law 90-121) provided that the unobligated balances including retained earnings of the Direct loan revolving fund shall be available for transfer to the Loan guaranty revolving fund. No transfers are expected in 1968 or 1969.

Authority to spend from agency debt receipts is increased by authorizations for sale of participation certificates amounting to $106 million in 1967, $600 million in 1968, and $400 million in 1969.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorized the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Federal National Mortgage Association as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 provided that the aggregate amount of participations issued for the account of any trustor may not exceed the amount authorized for that trustor in an appropriation act. In 1967 and 1968, appropriation acts authorized sales of $260 million and $850 million, respectively for the Veterans Administration. In 1969, an additional authorization of $515 million is requested. This, together with $85 million of the 1968 authorization carried into 1969, will allow 1969 sales of $600 million.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payment for insufficiencies in the amounts required to be paid by the trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are primarily comprised of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. For sales authorized in 1967, the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, established a permanent, indefinite appropriation to cover insufficiencies as may be required on account of those sales. For sales authorized in 1968, the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1968, established an annual, definite appropriation for the payment of insufficiencies on account of sales authorized in that act. The 1969 budget proposes return to the permanent indefinite appropriations.

Sales of participations and use of the indefinite and definite insufficiency appropriations, are reflected in the following trustor accounts: Direct loan revolving fund and Loan guaranty revolving fund.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities but who are otherwise insurable (38 U.S.C. 722). Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as new deaths occur among the increasing number of policyholders.

2. Cash surrenders and matured endowments.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

4. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1966 actual	June 30, 1967 actual	June 30, 1968 estimate	June 30, 1969 estimate
Number of policies	63,412	66,779	69,000	70,000
Insurance in force	$549,625	$578,173	$597,000	$606,000

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are derived from the appropriation Veterans insurance and indemnities, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $2 million in 1968 and $4.5 million in 1969.

Operating results and financial condition.—Because premium and other receipts continue to be insufficient to cover operations, the deficit is expected to continue to increase with capital impairment reaching an estimated $51.2 million by June 30, 1969.

The capital of the fund consists of $4.5 million with $1 million transferred from Readjustment benefits appropriation in 1954 and $3.5 million appropriated directly in 1952, 1956, and 1958.

This fund finances claims arising from the guarantee of premiums due on commercial life insurance policies held by servicemen while they are in service and for 2 years after discharge (72 Stat. 487). The Government guarantees the repayment of any indebtedness not liquidated by the insured himself. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program—Insurance program.—Claims paid, on application for coverage submitted and approved prior to October 6, 1942, are not reimbursable to the fund. Loans receivable are established for any payments made on applications for coverage submitted after that date, since these payments are reimbursable to the fund.

The activity of the fund is indicated in the following table:

Loans receivable established:
Number of settlements.....	11	16	12
Average cost per settlement.....	$437	$390	$350

Financing.—Payment of claims against this fund is financed from collections of loans receivable, revenue, and appropriations as needed. The latest appropriation was authorized by the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1966 in the amount of $25 thousand.

Operating results and financial condition.—The payment of claims has continually resulted in expenses in excess of the small revenue of the fund, thereby steadily increasing the deficit to an estimated $2 million through 1969.

This fund finances payment of claims and administrative costs on nonparticipating insurance policies issued after April 30, 1965, and prior to May 3, 1966, under the three insurance programs—(1) service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) non-service-disabled insurance—established by provisions of the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended (38 U.S.C. 725(b)(c)), to extend a new opportunity for insurance coverage to disabled veterans who no longer were eligible for other Government insurance.

Each program is self-contained and premiums may be adjusted to insure that each is self-sustaining, as required by law. For this purpose, separate accounting and actuarial records are maintained for each program to determine the individual program cost. Payments are made to the general operating expenses appropriation to cover the administrative cost of issuing insurance policies, processing claims, and maintaining the accounts.

1. Service-disabled standard insurance program.—Under this program claims are paid on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities, but who were otherwise insurable according to the standards of good health established by the Administrator.

3. Non-service-disabled insurance program.—Claims are paid on policies issued to veterans with non-service-incurred disabilities who are unable to obtain commercial insurance at substandard rates. The mortality rate will be exceptionally high because of the reduced average life expectancy of the insureds.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued before January 1, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1951 (38 U.S.C. 723). Policyholders were given the right (72 Stat. 1716) to convert to a permanent plan of insurance or to a new form of term insurance which may not be renewed beyond age 50 but which costs less than the unlimited term insurance. Policyholders under all plans of VSTI may purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of an additional premium. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as deaths occur among policyholders.

2. Disability claims.—Payments to individuals who have purchased total disability coverage and who subsequently become totally disabled began in 1960.

3. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

5. Policy loans made.—The policyholders who converted their insurance from term to permanent plan were subsequently entitled to borrow up to 94% of the cash value of the new policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1966 actual	June 30, 1967 actual	June 30, 1968 estimate	June 30, 1969 estimate
Number of policies	636,891	632,055	627,000	617,000
Insurance in force	$5,595,952	$5,552,042	$5,508,000	$5,420,000

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have been reduced by payments of a special dividend and payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund.

This fund is used to make loans up to $100 to disabled veterans eligible for vocational rehabilitation who are without sufficient funds to meet their expenses (38 U.S.C. 1507). Repayments are used to make new loans.

Increased loan activity in this fund is projected in both 1968 and 1969, as a greater number of seriously disabled post-Korean conflict veterans will be pursuing vocational rehabilitation.

Administrative expenses are borne by the appropriation, General operating expenses.

This fund finances the payment of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act of 1965 (38 U.S.C. 765-776) and any expenses incurred by the Veterans Administration in administration of this act.

Budget program.—1. Premium payments.—The payment of premiums to private insurance companies in 1968 and 1969 is expected to be about 50% more than in 1967. This is due to the increase in contributions for the extra hazards of service.

2. Payment to General operating expenses appropriation.—The 1967 administration cost to the Veterans Administration was $183 thousand. This was attributable mostly to printing and reproduction of required forms and publications. The total costs should decrease through the budget year.

Financing.—Premium costs are met by withholding from the salaries of insured members their share of the cost of the insurance and by contributions of amounts representing the extra hazard costs from appropriations of the departments involved. The extra hazard contributions will be about 100% more in 1968 and 1969 over 1967. This is due to the increased death claims resulting from the extra hazards of service.

The Supply Fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, warehouse inventories and procurement of recurring need supplies and centrally acquired equipment throughout the Veterans Administration in accordance with the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5011, and items and services to other Government agencies when agencies request such support.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for the procurement of supplies and equipment, the maintenance and operation of two supply depots and one subdepot, located at Hines, Ill., Somerville, N.J., and Wilmington, Calif., respectively, the operation of service and reclamation program from each supply depot and subdepot, a centralized periodical procurement activity, printing service to VA installations on a centralized basis, and a marketing center located at Hines, Ill.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant in Arlington, Va., and from commercial sources.

The marketing center is responsible for determining the level of inventories at the three supply depots and to acquire stocks to maintain such levels as well as the central procurement of items not available from Government sources for VA installations and other Government agencies as may be determined economical.

Personal services and other costs incident to the operation and administration of supply activities in the Veterans Administration central office and field organizations are charged directly to applicable appropriations and are not an operating expense of the Supply Fund.

Financing.—Consuming appropriations reimburse the fund for the cost of supplies and equipment provided and services rendered. Operating costs are recovered from the appropriations receiving supplies, equipment and services at time of reimbursement.

Operating results and financial condition.—The fund operated at a $35 thousand deficit during 1967. It is anticipated that this deficit will be eliminated in 1968.

This fund (72 Stat. 1154) was established in 1940 as the financing mechanism for World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program authorized by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Because issuance of new policies ended in 1951 the insurance in force will continue to decline. The general decline in the activity of the fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in millions):

	June 30, 1966	June 30, 1967	June 30, 1968	June 30, 1969

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the greatest possible extent consistent with law. Administrative expenses are charged to the appropriation General operating expenses.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the appropriation Veterans insurance and indemnities, for claims (1) resulting from extra hazards of the veterans' service, and (2) arising on certain policies held by personnel on active duty.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special Treasury interest-bearing securities and in policy loans, are expected to increase from $6,763 million as of June 30, 1967 to $7,079 million as of June 30, 1969. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of June 30, 1967, total $6,692 million, leaving a balance of $70 million for contingency reserves.

The Fund is operated on a commercial basis to the greatest possible extent consistent with law. Administrative expenses are charged to the appropriation General operating expenses.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the appropriation Veterans insurance and indemnities for claims (a) resulting from the extra hazards of the veterans service, and (b) arising on certain policies held by personnel on active military duty.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in interest-bearing securities and policy loans, are estimated to decline from $987 million as of June 30, 1967, to $920 million as of June 30, 1969, as an increasing number of policies mature through death or disability. The actuarial evaluation of policy obligations as of June 30, 1967, totals $962 million, leaving a balance of $25 million for contingency reserves.

Supplemental appropriations totaling $115.5 million will be proposed including $50 million to provide educational and training benefits opening careers for veterans in community service occupations, $4.5 million to permit service-connected disabled veterans to obtain vocational rehabilitation on a part-time basis, and $61 million to realine and liberalize pension benefits. Additional legislation to refine various statutory veterans benefits including termination of compensation for cases of arrested tuberculosis, elimination of certain duplication in burial benefits, and removal of the present exclusion of railroad retiree income in computing certain pension benefits, will permit a reduction in new obligational authority of $106.6 million. The net result of the supplemental appropriations and the proposed reductions is an increase of $8.9 million.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Not to exceed 5 per centum of any appropriation for the current fiscal year for "Compensation and pensions", "Readjustment benefits", and "Veterans insurance and indemnities" may be transferred to any other of the mentioned appropriations, but not to exceed 10 per centum of the appropriations so augmented.

Appropriations available to the Veterans Administration for the current fiscal year for salaries and expenses shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

The appropriation available to the Veterans Administration for the current fiscal year for "Medical care" shall be available for funeral, burial, and other expenses incidental thereto (except burial awards authorized by 38 U.S.C. 902), for beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration receiving care under such appropriations.

No part of the appropriations in this Act for the Veterans Administration (except the appropriation for "Construction of hospital and domiciliary facilities") shall be available for the purchase of any site for or toward the construction of any new hospital or home.

No part of the foregoing appropriations shall be available for hospitalization or examination of any persons except beneficiaries entitled under the laws bestowing such benefits to veterans, unless reimbursement of cost is made to the appropriation at such rates as may be fixed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs. The American Battle Monuments Commission maintains the World War I and World War II American military cemeteries in foreign countries and the memorials in the war areas commemorating the participation of the American Armed Forces. There are 11 memorials and 8 cemeteries, each with a memorial chapel, at World War I sites, and 14 cemeteries and memorials at World War II sites. Interred in these cemeteries are the remains of 124,129 servicemen and servicewomen, and an additional 91,591 missing and unidentified are commemorated by the inscribing of their names upon the walls of these and other memorials erected by the Commission in the United States. In addition, the Commission maintains the U.S. National Cemetery, Mexico City, Mexico. Each year, large numbers of American tourists and local citizens visit the cemeteries and memorials to pay homage and to view these points of historic, as well as artistic, interest.

The Commission is responsible also for the planning and construction of all military memorials.

The Agency advises the President and the State Department on arms control and disarmament policy, conducts negotiations with other countries looking toward international agreements to control, reduce, or eliminate arms, and will direct, as appropriate, U.S. participation in such control systems as may be adopted.

Approximately 53% of the 1969 request will be for research studies conducted through contracts or grants with nongovernmental research organizations and through reimbursement agreements with other U.S. Government departments and agencies. In 1969 the Agency plans to devote particular attention to studies on limiting and reducing armed forces, armaments, and military expenditures.

The Board regulates the economic aspects of air carrier operations, both domestic and international and participates in the development of international air transportation. The increase proposed for 1969 is for expansion in certain critical program areas, primarily in the awards of operating authority, regulation of rates and fares, agreements, and accounting and reporting areas.

1. Economic regulation.—This includes granting certificates of public convenience and necessity; prescribing or approving rates and rate practices of air carriers; fixing mail rate compensation; prevention of unfair competition; approval of business relationships between air carriers; and adjudication of complaints alleging violations of civil air regulations.

2. Safety activities.—These activities were transferred to the Department of Transportation effective April 1, 1967.

3. Board adjudication, executive, and legal staff activities.—In addition to adjudication of cases, program planning, and top policy and decisionmaking functions of the Board, legal advice and assistance is provided on all aspects of economic and regulatory matters; opinions of the Board are prepared; and litigation matters are handled.

The Civil Aeronautics Board fixes rates of subsidy compensation to promote the development of air transportation to the extent and of the quality required for the commerce of the United States, the Postal Service, and the national defense. The Board makes subsidy payments to subsidy-eligible certificated air carriers who have demonstrated a statutory need therefor. Subsidy is provided to cover the carrier's operating loss incurred under honest, economical, and efficient management and to provide it an opportunity to earn a fair return (after taxes) on investment used and useful in its air transportation services.

The following table reflects the estimated program amounts becoming due finally for each year, together with the adjustments between years (in thousands of dollars):

ESTIMATED SUBSIDY EARNINGS AND OBLIGATIONS RELATED TO APPROPRIATIONS

Estimated subsidy earnings under final Board action:	1967 actual	1968 estimate	1969 estimate

1. Recruiting and examining.—Most appointments in the competitive civil service are made under the open competitive merit system through examinations held by the offices of the Commission, interagency boards, and agency boards of examiners operating under the supervision of the Commission. In order to insure that Federal agencies are staffed with well-qualified people and that information about Federal employment opportunities is made known to all citizens, the Commission supplies information to and carries out a program of visits to colleges, junior colleges, high schools, business schools, veterans' organizations, military separation centers, and other likely sources of manpower supply.

The interagency board network was established at the President's direction and has made possible the modernization of the recruiting and examining system. There is at least one interagency board in each State; in the larger States with a high concentration of Federal employment there are two or more. The interagency boards announce and rate examinations and provide the public with on-the-spot comprehensive information and advisory service about Federal job opportunities and examinations. A higher percentage of positions under the merit system will be covered by civil service examinations when the interagency board system becomes fully operational. Previously it was necessary to authorize agencies to recruit for many positions without competitive examination of the candidates.

All agency boards of examiners except those of the Post Office will be merged into the new interagency board system by June 30, 1968. The new system will then provide full examination coverage for all except post office positions.

Workloads in the new system are reflected in the following table:

2. Investigation of character and fitness for employment.—The Commission conducts most of the investigations required for security determinations of persons being employed in sensitive positions, and fitness investigations of all persons entering nonsensitive positions. The Commission also conducts other investigations connected with appeals and the merit system. Included are investigations of U.S. citizens for employment by international organizations required by Executive Order 10422 as amended.

3. Inspections.—The Commission inspects agency personnel operations to insure compliance with civil service laws and regulations and to encourage improvement in personnel practices. The Commission also conducts classification reviews to insure compliance with classification standards.

4. Federal executive manpower.—The Commission will expand its program to develop and use the talent and competency existing within and outside the Government to help staff agency executive positions throughout the Federal service within full merit principles. It will meet and work with agencies to develop the most effective top-level position structure related to present and future agency missions.

5. Developing policies and standards.—The Commission develops programs, devises tests, issues standards and regulations, and proposes legislation to improve the Federal personnel system for both competitive and non-competitive positions. It will develop common job standards and wage policies to insure that equitable and valid wages are paid to all wage-board employees.

6. Appellate functions.—These consist of hearing and taking action on appeals, reviewing and processing of discrimination complaints under authority of Executive Order 11246, and providing advice to agencies and individuals regarding rights of appeal.

7. Training.—The Commission makes overall and individual agency appraisals of training operations, and coordinates interagency training programs to achieve full utilization and to avoid duplication and, where it is more economical to do so, conducts training programs for agency personnel on a reimbursable basis. Also, it promotes and coordinates the incentive awards program authorized by 5 U.S.C. 4501-4506.

9. Administration of the Voting Rights Act of 1965.—The Commission provides examiners to prepare and maintain lists of eligible voters and to observe election procedures in States or other political subdivisions designated by the Attorney General. The Commission receives complaints, hears and determines challenges, and assists in the defense of challenge cases filed in U.S. circuit courts of appeals as prescribed by the act.

10. Enforcement of restrictions on political activity.—Under chapter 15 and subchapter III of chapter 73 of title 5, U.S.C., and the Civil Service Rules, the Civil Service Commission administers and enforces political activity restrictions as applied to Federal civil service employees, as well as to officers and employees of State or local agencies whose principal employment is in connection with a federally financed activity.

11. Administration of the retirement and insurance programs.—The Commission administers retirement, group life insurance, and health benefits programs for Federal employees. It is required to adjudicate annuity, death, benefit, refund, and deposit claims; make payments to annuitants and other claimants; collect and account for moneys received; maintain control accounts and systems for the funds; negotiate with private carriers to provide the insurance and health benefits authorized; determine eligibility in certain cases; audit the records of insurance underwriters; and maintain the trust funds established for financing the programs.

This fund is used to pay annuities to retired employees or their survivors, to make refunds to former employees who have left the service, and to pay claims for employees who have died before retirement or before their annuities are paid in full (subch. III of ch. 83 of title 5, U.S.C.), and to pay for expenses incurred by the Commission in the administration of that subchapter. It is estimated that as of June 30, 1969, there will be 917,796 persons on the annuity roll, compared with 872,165 as of June 30, 1968 and 829,848 as of June 30, 1967. The estimated unfunded liability of the Civil Service Retirement System as of June 30, 1967, is $48.1 billion.

This fund finances payments to approved carriers for the cost of health benefits protection, as provided by chapter 89 of title 5, United States Code, and expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administration of that chapter.

Budget program.—Slightly more than 2.15 million employees and 310,570 annuitants are participating in this program. By the end of 1969 it is estimated that an additional 112,000 annuitants will participate in the program. For 1969 an estimated $555.3 million will be deposited into the fund from amounts withheld from employees and annuitants and $238.5 million will be contributed by the Government. An estimated $763.3 million will be paid from the fund in 1969 to approved health benefit plans. An amount equal to 3% of total contributions toward each plan, is set aside in the fund to provide a contingency reserve for that plan. The contingency reserve is used to defray future increased rates, to reduce contributions, or to provide increased benefits. Payments are made to experience rated carriers from the contingency reserve when the reserves held by the carrier are less than a stipulated amount and the plan's contingency reserve held by the fund exceeds 1 month's subscription charges. Community rated carriers may also receive additional payments from their plan's contingency reserve held by the fund, when properly justified. An estimated $10 million will be paid in 1969 from the contingency reserve to qualified carriers; however, an estimated $9 million will be held by the carriers as special reserves. In addition, an amount equal to 1% of total contributions is set aside for administrative expenses of the Commission in the administration of the program. Section 8909(b) of title 5, United States Code, provides that the Commission from time to time and in such amounts as it considers appropriate may transfer unused funds for administrative expenses to the contingency reserve of the plans under contract. In 1967 $3.9 million was transferred from the administrative expense reserve to the contingency reserve. During 1968 another $5.4 million will be available for transfer, and in 1969 slightly more than $6.2 million will become available.

Financing.—The fund will be financed by contributions from participants and the Government.

Operating results.—Earnings will be retained to meet the cost of administration and future benefits.

This fund finances the payment of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under chapter 87 of title 5, United States Code, and any expenses incurred by the Civil Service Commission in administration of that chapter as annually authorized by Congress.

Budget program.—Through June 30, 1967, for the regular insurance program, a total of $1,158 million was withheld from the salaries of covered employees and $579 million was contributed by the Government. In 1969 an estimated $214.1 million will be paid into the program by employees and $107.1 million by the Government. Also, in 1969 a new optional program for an additional $10 thousand of insurance to be financed wholly by employees is estimated to total $130.7 million in employee and annuitant withholding. Most of the difference between receipts and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. On June 30, 1967, there were total reserves of $606 million, of which $150 million was held as a special contingency reserve by the insurer, at interest, and $456 million was held by the program in the Treasury of the United States. The special contingency reserve with the insurer is reduced to $150 million at December 31 and June 30 of each year and deposited in the Treasury of the United States.

8. Contingency reserve held by insurer at end of year.....	133,128	150,000	150,000	150,000

Through June 30, 1967, individuals whose beneficial life insurance agreements were assumed by the fund paid $31.9 million into the fund. It is estimated that in 1969 about $2.7 million will be paid into the fund by this group. Former members of beneficial associations continue to pay premiums according to the rate schedules in effect at the time their life insurance agreements were assumed by the fund, but the Government makes no current contributions to the fund for these individuals as it does for employees covered under the regular program.

A contingency reserve has been established and held by the insurer at interest under the policy covering members of beneficial associations. This reserve was estimated to be $6.7 million on June 30, 1967. The Commission has determined that the contingency reserve under the beneficial association program will be held at a level of $6 million to meet adverse fluctuation in future charges. Any amount above this level at the end of the policy year December 31, 1967, and any subsequent policy year, will be returned to the fund.

Financing.—Premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding from the salaries of employees 27½ cents bi-weekly for each $1 thousand of life insurance; premiums for the optional program are met entirely by withholdings from employees salaries or retirees annuities; and premiums for the beneficial association program are met by direct payments by members.

Operating results.—Earnings are retained to meet the cost of future benefits.

This fund, established in accordance with the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act (Public Law 86-724), finances (1) the payment of subscription charges to an approved carrier for those qualified employees and survivors who enroll in the Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; (2) the contribution to qualified employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and (3) expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administration of the act, as annually authorized by Congress.

Budget program.—The act provides that the fund shall be available without fiscal year limitation for all payments toward the health benefits subscription charges of the Uniform Plan or contributions to qualified annuitants with private health insurance and that the amounts authorized to be contributed by the Government shall be paid into the fund from annual appropriations. During 1969 an estimated $4.6 million will be paid into the fund by participating retired employees and survivors and $10.9 million by the Government. It is estimated that $9.2 million in subscription charges will be paid to the carrier of the Government-sponsored plan, and $5.9 million to annuitants for their private health insurance plans in 1969.

Financing.—The fund will be financed by contributions from those participants enrolled in the Government-sponsored plan and by Government contributions for 1969.

Operating results.—There will be an estimated $30.3 million contingency reserve in the fund at the end of 1969 as compared with an estimated $26.9 million in 1968.

1. General fund loans.—Appropriations for 30-year interest-bearing loans from the U.S. Treasury are made available for financing construction of the general public works program of the District of Columbia, including school construction (72 Stat. 183); for the District of Columbia's contribution to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority for the city's share of construction costs of the rail rapid transit system authorized by the National Capital Transportation Act, as amended (79 Stat. 663); and for education facilities for the Federal City College and the Washington Technical Institute authorized by the District of Columbia Public Education Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1426). The loans to the general fund are appropriated under a borrowing authority which is related to the ability of the District of Columbia to repay. The loans made under this authorization may not cause the general fund debt service to exceed 6% of local revenues and the annual Federal payment to be credited to the fund (81 Stat. 339). The status of general fund borrowing is as follows (in millions of dollars):

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

The Export-Import Bank of Washington was organized in 1934 and its existing programs are authorized under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended. The act states in part: "The objects and purposes of the Bank shall be to aid in financing and to facilitate exports and imports and the exchange of commodities between the United States or any of its territories or insular possessions and any foreign country or the agencies or nationals thereof." The major types of financing are loans to foreign borrowers, discount loans to commercial banks, and guarantees to U.S. commercial banks. Insurance is issued by the Foreign Credit Insurance Association and the American War Risk Agency.

The life of the Bank was extended by Public Law 88-101 to June 30, 1968, at which time the lending authority was increased to $9 billion and the amount of guarantees and insurance which may be outstanding at any one time was established at $2 billion (to be charged against program activity and lending authority at 25%). Pending legislation, when enacted, would extend the life of the Bank for another 5 years; increase lending authority from $9 billion to $13.5 billion; and increase the gross amount of guarantees and insurance which could be outstanding at any one time from $2 billion to $3.5 billion.

Under the new unified budget concept, participation certificate sales by the Bank are treated as a means of financing budget expenditures rather than as a receipt-offset to expenditures. Net participation certificate sales are estimated at $865.1 million in 1968 and $608 million in 1969. As a result of the new concept, expenditures are estimated to exceed receipts by $572.6 million in 1968 and $550.6 million in 1969. Under the old administrative budget concept, receipts would exceed expenditures by $292.5 million in 1968 and $57.4 million in 1969.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Bank is a wholly owned Government corporation. Capital stock of $1 billion was purchased by the U.S. Treasury. In addition, the Bank is authorized to borrow from the Treasury up to $6 billion; the Bank pays interest on such borrowings.

The Bank's net income is estimated to be $106,492 thousand in 1969, compared with $105,710 thousand in 1968 and $108,593 thousand in 1967. From its net income, the Bank paid a $50 million dividend to the Treasury in 1967 and added the remaining balance of $58.5 million to its retained earnings reserve to provide for future contingencies. The Bank expects to follow a similar course in 1968 and 1969. Total investment of the Government in the corporation is estimated to be $2,229 million on June 30, 1969.

As a part of the program to improve our balance of payments position announced by the President on January 1, 1968, legislation will be recommended to earmark $500 million of authorizations to the Export-Import Bank as a special fund to expand U.S. exports. This authorization will permit the Bank to provide better insurance to American exporters, expand guarantees for export financing, and generally broaden the scope of government export financing arrangements. The $200 million increase in the Bank's annual limitation on program activity, proposed for separate transmittal, will provide for the operation of the export expansion program in 1969.

The Administration supervises a coordinated agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations which make credit available to farmers and their cooperatives.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from agencies in the farm credit system and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year limitations on administrative expenses.

Supervision and examination of farm credit banks and associations.—Provision is made for supervision and examination of: 12 Federal land banks (wholly farmer-owned); 13 banks for cooperatives (mixed ownership); 12 Federal intermediate credit banks (mixed ownership); 696 Federal land bank associations; and 463 production credit associations. Also, these credit agencies are furnished such services as assistance in financing and investments, custody of collateral for bonds and debentures, credit analysis, development of appraisal standards and policies, preparation of reports and budgets, and development and distribution of information on farm credit.

This fund is available to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration as a revolving fund for investment in capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks and the production credit associations. Originally there were separate investment funds for the Federal intermediate credit banks and the production credit associations; however, these funds were combined into a single revolving fund as provided in subsection (f) which was added to section 5 of the Farm Credit Act of 1933 (12 U.S.C., Supp. IV, 1131i) by section 2(1) of Public Law 87-343, approved October 3, 1961.

Budget program—Federal intermediate credit banks.—Legislation approved October 4, 1965, Public Law 89-237, changed the maximum debt-to-capital ratio to 12 to 1 (from 10 to 1). As a result, no investments are anticipated in fiscal years 1968 or 1969.

Production credit association.—An estimate for purchase of stock in production credit associations of $1 million is made for 1968 and $1 million for 1969. The need arises primarily because the volume of business of associations is increasing more rapidly than necessary net worth can be accumulated from local sources.

Financing.—At the end of 1968 it is estimated that $1,530 thousand will be invested in the production credit associations and $51,950 thousand in the Federal intermediate credit banks.

The provisions of section 105(d)(3) of the Farm Credit Act of 1956, which heretofore applied to the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks Investment Fund, is applicable to the combined fund. This section provides that of the $87,405 thousand class A stock of the credit banks outstanding on January 1, 1957, $57,405 thousand must be retired by payments into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. When the balance is reduced to $30 million, the remaining proceeds from retirement of such stock will be credited to the combined revolving fund.

This fund is available to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration for investments in class A capital stock of the banks for cooperatives (12 U.S.C. 1134).

The fund was created with $500 million capital in 1929; however, it was reduced to $150 million by legislation approved June 25, 1962 (76 Stat. 109).

Budget program.—An investment in capital stock of $3,000 thousand has been estimated for 1968 to meet the credit needs of eligible borrowers from the Omaha Bank for Cooperatives. This bank has experienced rapid increases in loan volume during the past 11 years, and a substantial increase in peak loans is projected for fiscal year 1968. These funds were paid into the bank during August 1967. No further subscriptions are expected during the remainder of the 1968 fiscal year or during 1969. Stock will be retired by the banks for cooperatives in accordance with section 42(a)(1) of the Farm Credit Act of 1933, as amended.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment in capital stock will continue to be reduced through 1969, thereby increasing the cash of the fund. The cash balance in the fund at June 30, 1968, is estimated at $117,998 thousand.

The banks for cooperatives, of which there are 13, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. During 1967, the banks extended credit totaling $1.8 billion. The funds to finance these loans are obtained from (1) sales of debentures to the public, (2) notes payable, and (3) their own capital. The debentures which the banks issue are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. The banks' capital funds consist of capital stock owned by the U.S. Government, equities of borrowing cooperatives and retained earnings.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provides for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. At the time the 1955 act was passed, the U.S. Government had an investment in the banks of $150 million. By June 30, 1967, this investment had been reduced to $29 million while the equities of borrowing cooperatives amounted to $151 million. It is expected that additional repayments of Government capital of $9 million and $7.5 million will be made in 1968 and 1969, respectively; however, one bank, Omaha, found it necessary to obtain an additional $3 million of Government capital in 1968. By June 30, 1967, six of the banks had completed the retirement of all Government capital.

All expenses, including administrative costs, are paid from the banks' own resources and thus in no way do they affect the budget of the United States.

The Federal intermediate credit banks, of which there are 12, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for local financing institutions, such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services. During 1967, the banks extended credit totaling $7 billion.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of debentures to the public and from their own capital funds. The debentures are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks became mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. However, because of the increased credit demands placed upon the Federal intermediate credit banks, it was necessary for the Government to invest additional capital in the banks in order to keep the debt-to-capital ratios within the then 10-to-1 maximum permitted by law. Public Law No. 89-237 enacted on October 4, 1965, increased the maximum debt-to-capital ratio of the credit banks to 12 to 1. As a result of this and other changes, it is expected that the Government will not make any additional investments in the banks. At June 30, 1967, the U.S. Government's investment in the capital stock of the banks was $126 million and that of private interests was $90 million.

All expenses, including administrative costs, are paid from the banks' own resources and thus in no way affect the budget of the United States.

Coal mine operators, affected by orders issued by Federal coal mine inspectors, may appeal to the Board for annulment or revision of, and temporary relief from, such orders. When operators appeal, hearings are held, and the Board rules upon the applications. It is estimated that the number of orders subject to appeal to the Board will amount to at least 450 in 1969, under the Federal Coal Mine Safety Act, as amended on March 26, 1966. The recommended appropriation includes an amount estimated to be sufficient to cover necessary administrative expenses, and to handle an expected caseload, projected on the basis of experience under the Federal Coal Mine Safety Act, prior to its amendment, and on the basis of current experience under the amended act.

The Federal Communications Commission regulates interstate and foreign commerce in communications by wire and radio. The Communications Act requires the Commission to (1) attain and maintain maximum benefits for the people of the United States in the use of the radio spectrum and (2) regulate the rates and services of communications common carriers.

1. Commissioners.—This activity includes the top adjudicatory, policymaking, planning, and decisionmaking for the Commission's basic functions.

2. Broadcast.—Standard broadcast (AM), frequency modulation (FM), television (TV), and other related services are licensed and regulated by the Commission. Pertinent data are shown in the following table:

5. Field engineering.—Field employees inspect radio stations, administer operator examinations, collect engineering data, monitor the spectrum, and determine the location of lost ships, lost aircraft, and illegal sources of radio emission.

6. Research and planning in communications technology.—The Commission undertakes broad studies designed to improve the utilization of the radio spectrum, approves certain equipment for public use, and licenses experimental radio stations.

7. Citizens radio service.—Regulation of fixed, land, and mobile stations intended for short-distance personal or business radio communication, radio signaling, and control of remote objects or devices by radio. Pertinent data follows (in thousands):

This revolving trust fund serves as a clearinghouse for payments by U.S. communications companies and other telecommunications users, including the Federal Government, to foreign governments for receiving and relaying radio-telephone and radio-telegraph messages. The charges of foreign governments against U.S. users are received by the FCC and billed to the users. The FCC then consolidates and disburses all telecommunications payments to a particular government.

The Corporation insured accounts of depositors in insured banks to $15 thousand for each depositor. As of June 30, 1967, the deposit insurance fund, representing the accumulated net income of the Corporation, amounted to $3.4 billion. The entire fund is available for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for the payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations. Its expenses and insurance losses are paid out of the fund which is accumulated principally from assessments paid by insured banks and from income from its investments in obligations of the U.S. Treasury. The Corporation is authorized to borrow from the U.S. Treasury and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to loan to the Corporation, on such terms as may be fixed by the Corporation and the Secretary, not to exceed $3 billion outstanding when, in the judgment of the Board of Directors of the Corporation, such funds are required for insurance purposes. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1968 and 1969.

² Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

In order to protect depositors in insured banks, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation is authorized to insure such depositors in the maximum amount of $15 thousand; to examine all insured banks not members of the Federal Reserve System and, in certain situations for insurance purposes, to examine National and State chartered banks which are members of the Federal Reserve System; to participate in the regulation of mergers involving insured banks; and to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks, the withdrawal of deposit insurance, and other regulatory and supervisory matters consistent with its responsibility as insurer.

The income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government securities. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the Corporation. There is no capital stock outstanding. The Corporation is authorized to borrow from the U.S. Treasury and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to loan to the Corporation, on such terms as may be fixed by the Corporation and the Secretary, not to exceed $3 billion outstanding when, in the judgment of the Board of Directors of the Corporation, such funds are required for insurance purposes. No borrowings under this authorization have been made to date and none are anticipated in 1968 or 1969.

The Deposit Insurance Fund, representing the accumulated net income of the Corporation, is reserved for the payment of insured deposits and for the payment of its operating and insurance expenses. The estimates shown for 1968 and 1969 in these statements make no provision for losses or expenses which might be incurred by reason of the closing of any bank after October 31, 1967 (the date on which these reports were prepared), because there is no basis for predicting which, if any, insured banks will close in the future.

During 1967 Congress reviewed the Field Committee's programs, and authorized an annual appropriation not to exceed $300 thousand to carry out the work of Federal development planning in Alaska (Public Law 90-69).

During 1969 the Field Committee will continue the coordination of Federal and State programs. Further staff work is planned on the development of a comprehensive Federal-State planning structure tailored to Alaska's unique economic development requirements.

These are the logical steps in the orderly growth of the Field Committee's planning and interagency coordination programs for Alaska.

Federal Funds—ContinuedCORPORATIONS

The following corporations and agencies, respectively, are hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to each such corporation or agency and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the Budget for the current fiscal year for each such corporation or agency, except as hereinafter provided:

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board formulates policies and supervises the operations of the 12 Federal home loan banks, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation; it is also responsible for the examination of all Federal savings and loan associations, and for the examination and supervision of all State-chartered institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenditure programs of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation are presented as business-type budgets. Section 2 of Public Law 895, approved July 3, 1948, provides that all expenses of the Division of Examinations—Federal Home Loan Bank Board shall be considered nonadministrative; all of its expenses are defrayed from fees charged against and collected from the institutions examined.

Public Law 87-141, approved August 17, 1961, provides that expenses of any functions of supervision (except of Federal home loan banks) vested in or exercisable by the Board shall be considered as nonadministrative expenses.

The administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks, the Office of Examinations and Supervision, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenses of the Home Office of the Office of Examinations and Supervision are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Budget program.—The Board's budget is based on nine activities.

1. Examination and supervision of Federal home loan banks.—The Board examines and supervises the operations of the Federal home loan banks.

2. Supervision of Federal and State-chartered institutions.—The financial condition and operations of each insured institution is analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on, cooperatively, under arrangements made with the respective State authorities.

3. Chartering Federal and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion into Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of the insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

4. Examining savings and loan associations.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and such uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system as are not examined by State examiners. Audits are also made of approximately 5% of all insured institutions in conjunction with supervisory examinations. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter when required by the Board. The costs of examinations and audits are assessed against the institutions examined.

5. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes a formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

6. Analysis of operations.—An analysis is made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, the character and volume of mortgage lending, as well as selective review of geographical or community areas and phases of operations and certain analyses of trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including volume of activity and interest rates of all major types of mortgage lenders.

7. Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting; budgetary and financial reporting; internal budget control; fiscal organization and management. These services also include general housekeeping and operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

8. Special studies of the savings and loan industry.—The Board is authorized by Public Law 89-426, 80 Stat. 141, 143, approved May 13, 1966, to conduct special studies of the savings and loan industry to be completed by December 31, 1968.

9. Acquisition and construction of a building in the District of Columbia.—The Board is authorized by Public Law 89-754, 80 Stat. 1255, 1293, approved November 3, 1966, to acquire property and construct a building in the District of Columbia to provide quarters and facilities for the Board. Under the law, the Board is required to prepare and submit an annual budget program for the building as provided in title I of the Government Corporation Control Act.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the above activities include administrative expenses under annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $4,627 thousand to $5,088 thousand. Non-administrative expenses covering the expenses of examining and supervising savings and loan associations are discussed separately below.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision under the general direction of the Director of the Office conducts regular periodic and special supervisory examinations of all Federal savings and loan associations, of insured State-chartered savings and loan associations, of other institutions of the savings and loan type insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, of noninsured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System not subject to State supervision, and of affiliates of the institutions. The Office also examines and analyzes the financial condition of institutions which apply for membership in the System, for insurance of accounts, or for conversion from a State to a Federal charter. The institutions examined bear the costs of examinations, and the fees charged therefor are calculated to defray all of the operating expenses of the examination function.

The Office is also responsible for the supervision of institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The purpose of such supervision is to prevent the development or continuance of unsafe and unsound financial practices in these institutions and the correction of such practices where found. In carrying out the supervisory function, the Office reviews and analyzes the examination reports forwarded by the Chief Examiners of the respective District offices. The authority for examination and supervision of insured savings and loan associations was expanded by the Financial Institutions Supervisory Act of 1966, effective October 16, 1966.

The Federal home loan banks, together with the savings and loan associations and similar institutions which are members of the banks, constitute the Federal Home Loan Bank System and are designed to stabilize and strengthen institutions promoting private thrift and individual homeownership.

The 12 Federal home loan banks obtain their funds from capital stock, issuance of their own obligations to the public, and deposits of member institutions. The capital stock of the banks consists entirely of subscriptions of member institutions. Transactions of the banks are shown in the annexed budgets on page 1125 of this document. Authority to borrow from the Treasury in the amount of $1 billion is provided in 12 U.S.C. 1431 (64 Stat. 257). No borrowings have been made to date and none are anticipated in 1969.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1724 et seq.) to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection thus afforded, which insures savers in member associations against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $15 thousand, may be provided through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings account holders in the event of liquidation. The former course of action, which results in complete protection to each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making cash grants or by purchasing all or a part of the association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Wherever possible, preventive measures are taken to eliminate the necessity of liquidation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as receiver or coreceiver upon request of State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides certain administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation, the Federal home-loan banks, and the Office of Examinations and Supervision.

1. Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—In carrying out its role of protecting savings in insured savings and loan associations the Corporation has settled 69 cases since its creation 33 years ago. Total losses (including provision for losses) to June 30, 1967, have amounted to $103.7 million, representing approximately 8.9% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information with respect to all of the insurance cases is summarized in the following table (dollars in thousands):

2. Payments to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 25% of the administrative expenses of the Board as a direct charge and 43% of the remaining administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1969 in return for services and facilities by the Board and staff offices. The Corporation will also pay 47% of the Washington office expenses and 20% of the District offices expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision for supervisory services by that office.

4. Other expenses.—This provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the disposition of assets purchased from and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to the Treasury, together with an additional $43 million for the use of the funds.

The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, with a limitation of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowings under this authorization have ever been made.

The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any one year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured members and its creditor obligations.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting and in no one year has its operating expenses amounted to more than 5.3% of total income; in 1967 it amounted to 5.3%. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock, and to establish a reserve for contingencies of $1,966.3 million as of June 30, 1967. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934, of $2,157.7 million, have been applied as follows (dollars in millions):

	Amount	Percent
Expense.....	$44.7	2.1
Net insurance losses and provision for losses.....	103.7	4.8
Return on capital stock to U.S. Treasury.....	43.0	2.0
Reserve for contingencies.....	1,966.3	91.1
Total.....	2,157.7	100.0

Operating expenses (funded) for 1969 are estimated at $11,863 thousand, consisting of administrative expenses of the Corporation of $340 thousand, $6,382 thousand for services rendered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, and $5,141 thousand for other expenses.

Since the time and size of expenditures for the prevention of default and payment of insurance are unpredictable, estimates of future expenditures for these purposes are omitted from the financial statements.

Net operating income for 1969, which, in the absence of insurance expenditures, is expected to be $47.5 million, or 53.6%, above the net operating income for 1967, will be retained by the Corporation to meet future contingencies.

Public Law 87-210, which became effective January 1, 1962, requires each insured savings and loan association to pay annually to the Corporation an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year, less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The law also provides for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayments of each insured association at a rate equal to the average realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio. It is estimated that prepayments will total $189 million in 1969 compared to $84.6 million in 1967.

Public Law 87-210 further provides for the establishment of a primary reserve which shall be the general reserve of the Corporation and a secondary reserve to which shall be credited additional premiums. When the sum of these two reserves equals 2% of total savings plus creditor obligations, the cash payment of the regular premiums and the prepayments will cease and the Corporation will commence transferring the secondary reserve to the primary reserve by crediting each insured association's accumulated prepayments to its regular premium liability. If the aggregate of the two reserves drops to below 1.75%, the prepayments and the cash payment of the regular premium will be resumed and continued until the 2% ratio is again reached. It is estimated that the aggregate of the primary and secondary reserves will reach $2.7 billion by June 30, 1969, or 1.9% of estimated savings and creditor obligations totaling $138.5 billion.

The Corporation is required by law to accumulate a primary reserve (as of the close of any December 31) equal to 2% of the total amount of all accounts of insured members and creditor obligations of all insured institutions before collection of regular premiums may be discontinued, provided, however, that each insured institution has paid regular premiums for at least 20 years. It is estimated that the primary reserve will reach $1,155.7 million by June 30, 1969, or 0.83% of estimated savings and creditor obligations totaling $138.5 billion.

HOME OWNERS' LOAN CORPORATION FUND

The Corporation was created to provide credit facilities to refinance the mortgages of destitute urban homeowners. Its lending authority expired on June 12, 1936, and since that time the Corporation has been dissolved. Liabilities, representing matured bonds held by the public together with accrued interest thereon, totaled $329 thousand at the end of 1967 and are estimated to be reduced to $297 thousand by the end of 1969.

The Federal Maritime Commission administers the shipping statutes which require regulation of the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. Program objectives for 1968 and 1969 are directed toward (a) surveillance over concerted activities of conferences and carriers engaged in the foreign commerce of the United States; (b) effecting discontinuation of foreign discriminatory actions against United States shipping; (c) oversight of common carriers, freight forwarders and terminal operators in the domestic offshore trades to insure reasonable rates and practices and compliance with the statutes; (d) certification of financial responsibility of passenger vessel owners and operators in compliance with Public Law 89-777; (e) completion of a comprehensive economic rate study into the conditions existing in the Puerto Rico and Virgin Islands trades; and, continuation of a study concerning the regulatory aspects of rates, rules and practices related to movement of containerized cargo.

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and Natural Gas Act, and has additional duties relating to Federal power developments and related natural resources.

1. Electric power industry.—The Commission regulates the wholesale rates and service of electric power companies which are interstate public utilities, encourages coordinated power systems planning and interconnection of facilities for economy and reliability of service, licenses non-Federal hydroelectric projects on lands of the United States or affecting interstate commerce, participates in interagency planning for the development and conservation of the Nation's water resources, and collects, maintains, and publishes current information on the electric power industry.

The Commission also regulates the accounts, depreciation practices, certain security issues, disposition of property, mergers, and interlocking directorates of interstate electric utilities.

Pertinent data on a calendar-year basis are:

Number of public utilities regulated....	214	214	214
Operating revenues of regulated utilities (in millions).....	$14,290	$15,200	$16,200

In 1967, the Commission's rate program resulted in annual rate reductions totaling $4.3 million. Workloads are as follows:

The Commission encourages voluntary interconnection and coordination of the Nation's power systems. This pooling of power has yielded major benefits to the Nation through efficient distribution of low-cost electrical energy. The lessons learned in the northeast power failure and subsequent interruptions of service have pinpointed the need for continued Commission-industry work to insure dependable energy to beneficiaries of power grids. The Commission is encouraging the industry to implement recommendations contained in the Report to the President on Prevention of Power Failures for improving utility system planning and coordination, and enhancing reliability of bulk power supply.

The Commission is working with the industry to update the guidelines of the National Power Survey and is encouraging utilities to pursue courses of action consistent with them, including major programs of coordination and interconnection and the use of large-scale generating facilities. A supplemental report will be issued in 1969. The Commission is also making a comprehensive survey of the State of Alaska in order to promote the efficient and economical development and utilization of its power resources. A report will be issued in 1968.

The Commission issues licenses for non-Federal hydroelectric projects which are best adapted to a comprehensive plan for river basin development, including development of recreation facilities, protection of fish and wildlife, water pollution abatement, and alternative uses of water. In addition, projects are inspected during construction and operation for compliance with license requirements, safety and adequacy, and sound engineering practices.

Licensed projects—more than 2,000 horsepower (end of year).....	278	310	352
Applications completed during year....	165	165	217
Applications pending (end of year).....	405	485	512
Annual receipts from license fees (in thousands).....	$3,475	$3,849	$2,964
Total claimed cost of major projects under license (end of year) (in millions).....	$8,191	$8,450	$8,730

Of a potential 167 million kilowatts of hydroelectric power in the United States, approximately 46 million kilowatts had been developed as of January 1967. Of this total, 26 million kilowatts had been developed by non-Federal interests, of which 79 percent is under Commission license.

The licensing program is self-supporting except for the statutory exemption of public bodies from payment of fees and for certain old licenses with fixed payments for which the Commission does not have authority to require additional fees.

The Commission must review each project and submit to Congress 2 years prior to expiration of license its recommendations as to whether the project should be recaptured or relicensed. In 1969, licenses for two major projects will expire, and 23 will expire in 1970.

2. Natural gas industry.—The Commission regulates pipeline companies and independent producers involved in transmission or sale of natural gas for resale in interstate commerce.

On June 30, 1967, there were approximately 3,900 independent producers which, individually or with others, had over 15,000 rate schedules on file. The Permian Basin Opinion, issued in 1965, established a permanent system for fixing uniform ceiling prices for gas on an area basis under a two-price system. The opinion is before the Supreme Court for review in 1968. The Southern Louisiana Opinion and Texas Gulf Coast and Hugoton-Anadarko Opinions are scheduled to be issued in 1968 and 1969, respectively. A new area rate proceeding was initiated in 1967 with hearings scheduled to begin in 1968. In addition, planning is underway for continuing independent producer regulation on a coordinated and comprehensive basis.

There were 127 regulated natural gas pipeline companies in 1967. The emphasis in pipeline activity is shifting to competitive certificate cases, in which two or more companies seek authority to serve a single market.

A fee placed on applications for pipeline certificates is expected to bring $1.4 million into the Treasury in 1969 to help defray the cost of pipeline regulation.

Applications for certificates of public convenience and necessity:
Pipeline companies.....	824	772	747
Independent producers.....	4,524	4,474	4,874
Rate filings:
Pipeline companies.....	1,420	1,409	1,429
Independent producers.....	9,054	11,650	13,950
Cases:
Pipeline companies.....	80	82	86
Independent producers.....	24	24	26

These workload items vary in complexity. A single area rate case may fix prices for hundreds of producers; several applications by pipelines for service to a major market are often heard in a single case. A major pipeline rate filing may propose higher gas rates affecting millions of consumers; the Commission must be prepared to deal promptly and fairly with such proposals as filed.

In addition to rate filing and certificate work, the Commission makes annual reviews of the level of earnings of particular pipeline companies, institutes rulemaking proceedings, and verifies flowthrough of pipeline and producer refunds and rate reductions ordered by the Commission. In 1967, the Commission's rate programs helped to produce refunds totaling $40.1 million and reductions in annual rates totaling $63.6 million.

The Commission, working with industry, plans to initiate a National Gas Survey in 1969. It will provide a common backdrop of basic data and forecasts for testing both private and public industry decisions and measuring future progress.

grams of cooperation with the States. The Council was established by Executive Order 10831, August 14, 1959, and made statutory by an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act of 1954—42 U.S.C. 2021(h).

The Council membership consists of the Secretaries of Health, Education, and Welfare (Chairman); Agriculture; Commerce; Defense; Labor; and the Chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Council recommends basic guides for radiation protection. When approved by the President, these guides become the basis for the promulgation of operational procedures and regulations by Federal agencies. Through arrangements with the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council and the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, the Council maintains a continuing review of the current status of knowledge concerning the biological risks associated with exposure to ionizing radiation.

1. Basic legislation.—The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Act of December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act (12 U.S.C. 221–522), as amended.

2. Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

3. Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The Commission has the duty of preserving free competitive enterprise through prevention of monopolistic and unfair trade.

1. Antimonopoly.—All types of monopolistic restrictions, including price-fixing conspiracies, boycotting, price discriminations, and illegal mergers and acquisitions, are corrected; economic data and criteria are brought to bear on monopoly and related problems; and supervision is provided over the registration and operations of associations of American exporters engaged solely in export trade. In 1969, investigation and trial of merger and other anti-monopoly cases will be expedited.

2. Deceptive practices.—False and misleading advertising and other unfair or deceptive practices are prevented by corrective action, including the affirmative aid of voluntary trade-practice conferences and advertising guides; business and the public are protected from misbranding and nondisclosure of fiber content of manufactured wool products and household textile articles; consumers and merchants are protected from unfair practices with respect to furs and fur products; and the public is protected from dangers inherent in flammable fabrics. In 1969, consumer protection programs will be expedited; additional regulations and enforcement of the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act will be required; the full impact of the expanded program to insure proper labeling of woolen textile imports will be reached; and the Commission's cigarette program will be increased.

3. Executive direction and management.—These also include the adjudicatory functions of the Commission.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission is responsible for the settlement of claims of U.S. nationals against foreign nations and other claims programs as authorized by law.

1. Administration and adjudication of claims.—The Commission will administer three claims programs during the year: (a) Under title V of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended (Public Law 88-666), the Commission must adjudicate approximately 6,800 claims of U.S. citizens against the Government of Cuba; (b) also under title V of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended (Public Law 89-780), the Commission must adjudicate an estimated 5,000 claims of U.S. citizens against the Chinese Communist regime; and (c) pursuant to an agreement between Yugoslavia and the United States under title I of the International Claims Settlement Act of 1949, as amended, the Commission is responsible for the adjudication of approximately 1,800 property claims of U.S. citizens against Yugoslavia to determine compensation to be paid from funds provided by Yugoslavia.

2. Review of claims program.—This activity includes research, reports, documentation, and similar functions to meet the needs of the Congress, Federal agencies, foreign governments, and the public on past and pending claims programs.

Funds were appropriated in 1963 pursuant to Public Law 87-616 to cover the balance of payments to be made on awards previously determined by the Philippine War Damage Commission. Amending legislation (Public Law 88-94), enacted August 12, 1963, provided for a $25 thousand limitation on payments of any individual claim. The balances of the amounts payable beyond the $25 thousand limitation were transferred during 1966 and 1967 into a new appropriation account to be used for educational programs in the Philippines.

This independent Commission of five members was created to hear and adjudicate claims, existing before August 13, 1946, of American Indian tribes, bands, or other identifiable groups of Indians residing within the territorial limits of the United States. Of the 586 claims filed, approximately 250 have been completed. Payments of awards are dependent upon subsequent appropriations made through claims, judgments, and private relief acts appropriations to the Treasury Department. A supplemental appropriation for 1968 is anticipated.

This appropriation provides for continuing attention by the Commission to interrelations of Federal, State, and local governments. The Commission brings together representatives of Federal, State, and local governments for consideration of common problems and easing of friction points in the Federal system. The administration and coordination of Federal grant and other programs requiring intergovernmental cooperation are examined and emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations are identified and explored.

Proposed Federal and State legislative and administrative programs are developed to coordinate taxes at all levels in order to reduce tax overlapping, to simplify the tax structure, and to reduce taxpayer compliance costs and costs of tax administration.

Technical assistance is provided in the review of proposed legislation to determine its overall effect on the Federal system, and the most desirable allocations of governmental functions, responsibilities, and revenues among the several levels of Government are recommended.

Recommendations growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive or legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments for consideration and appropriate action.

The Appalachian Regional Commission's 1969 budget calls for a total in Federal and State funds of $1,805 thousand. Under the act, the Federal Government will assume full funding responsibility for the Federal staff of the Commission. The States will assume full funding responsibility for the Office of States' Regional Representative and the Federal and State governments will share equally in bearing the costs of the Commission staff and Commission operations.

The Appalachian Regional Development Act assigns the following major responsibilities to the Commission:

(1) Develop, on a continuing basis, comprehensive and coordinated plans and programs and establish priorities thereunder, giving due consideration to other Federal, State, and local planning in the region;

(2) Conduct and sponsor investigations, research, and studies, including an inventory and analysis of the resources of the region, and, in cooperation with Federal, State, and local agencies, sponsor demonstration projects designed to foster regional productivity and growth;

(3) Review and study, in cooperation with the agency involved, Federal, State, and local public and private programs and, where appropriate, recommend modifications or additions which will increase their effectiveness in the region;

(4) Encourage private investment in industrial, commercial, and recreational projects;

(5) Serve as a focal point and coordinating unit for Appalachian programs;

It is the function of the Federal cochairman of the Commission and his staff to coordinate the Appalachian program with all Federal agencies.

The Appalachian Regional Development Act also provides for a professional Commission staff. Employees of the Commission, under the act, are determined not to be Federal employees but are the joint employees of the Federal and State governments.

During 1969, it is anticipated that the planning division of the Commission staff will be occupied 60% of the time in developing new programs for the Appalachian region in the fields of transportation, education, health, natural resources, conservation and development, and community planning. The remaining 40% of its time will be spent in providing research services to the States of the region and to Federal agencies engaged in Appalachian programs. This research will be concerned primarily in determining the extent of specific social and economic problems requiring attention by the Commission.

The technical assistance division will spend approximately 70% of its time in the developing and processing of States' proposals for Appalachian assistance, another 15% of its time assisting the States on legislative and planning problems and the remaining 15% assisting the States in establishing development districts of which it is anticipated there will be approximately 50 by the end of 1969.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority was established pursuant to an interstate compact by Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The authority's primary function is to plan, develop, finance, and provide for the operation of a rapid rail transit system to serve the National Capital area. This mission includes responsibility for completion of the presently authorized system which will serve as the basis for expansion into a full regional network.

The initial portion of the system, as authorized by Public Law 89-173, approved September 8, 1965 (79 Stat. 663), is essentially within the District of Columbia with one extension into Arlington County, Va., to serve the heavy Federal employment concentration at the Pentagon, and a second short extension into Montgomery County, Md., in order to reach a suitable terminal location.

Engineering and architectural activities have been carried forward and substantial progress made in the development of system standards, criteria, specifications, and scheduling matters, together with extensive soil investigations and testing essential to the engineering program. Contracts for final design of those sections of the system scheduled for early construction have been awarded and actual construction will commence in 1969. The acquisition of rights-of-way by means of purchase and easements will proceed in phase with the design and construction programs along with the relocation of utilities required by construction.

In accordance with Public Laws 89-173 and 89-774, $150 million in authorized funds are to be appropriated on a one-third, two-third matching basis to the District of Columbia and to the Department of Housing and Urban Development for payment to the Authority. These funds are to be used for the presently authorized system as provided by the National Capital Transportation Act of 1965, as amended.

The following tables reflect the amounts appropriated under the current authorization and cumulative expenditures for the program (in millions of dollars):

The Commission regulates carriers engaged in transportation in interstate commerce and foreign commerce to the extent that it takes place within the United States. These carriers are common carriers—railroads, express companies, sleeping car companies, motor carriers, water carriers, pipelines (except for water and gas), and freight forwarders—and motor and water contract carriers.

1. Regulation of carrier rates, practices, operating authorities, and finance.—This activity of the Commission consists of preparing studies and analyses of operating costs for use in rate proceedings; regulating rates; granting operating authorities; approving applications for abandonments and extensions of railroad lines, financial reorganizations, and rate agreements between carriers; reviewing proposed discontinuances of or change in the operation or service of trains and ferries and formally issuing orders, rules and regulations.

Payment of loan guaranties.—The Transportation Act of 1958, part V of the Interstate Commerce Act, provided authority for the Commission to guarantee loans made to railroads for capital expenditures and maintenance of property. Pursuant to this authority, the Commission guaranteed two loans to the Central Railroad Co. of New Jersey in the aggregate principal amount of $18 million.

On March 22, 1967, the Central Railroad Co. of New Jersey filed a petition in bankruptcy under section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act which constituted a default on the above guaranteed loans under the terms of the respective guaranty and trust agreements.

On June 1, 1967, the United States paid the unpaid principal balance of $16,995 thousand, plus accrued interest of $373,312.50, or a total of $17,368,312.50.

As of June 30, 1967, the contingent liability of the United States under loan guaranties authorized totaled $168,054,380.

ALLOCATIONS RECEIVED FROM OTHER ACCOUNTS

1. Planning development of the National Capital.—The National Capital Planning Commission is the official planning agency for the District of Columbia as well as for the Federal Government in the District and the National Capital region. In planning for the orderly development of the Nation's Capital, the Commission develops and maintains long-range comprehensive plans and makes recommendations on specific land use and development projects.

2. Pennsylvania Avenue redevelopment planning.—The Temporary Commission on Pennsylvania Avenue was established by Executive Order No. 11210 of March 25, 1965. The 13-member Commission includes cabinet officers and the heads of agencies with specific interests in the Avenue. The immediate objective of the Temporary Commission is to continue the preparation of plans for the redevelopment of Pennsylvania Avenue.

The National Capital Planning Commission acquires land for the comprehensive development of the park, parkway, and playground system in the District of Columbia and its environs.

1. George Washington Memorial Parkway.—Land is acquired along both shores of the Potomac River, above and below Washington from Great Falls to Mount Vernon. One-half the cost is borne by the local jurisdictions.

2. Stream valley parks.—Land is acquired by public bodies with the aid of a one-third contribution from the National Capital Planning Commission.

3. Park, parkway, and playground system in the District of Columbia.—Land is acquired in the District of Columbia, with all expenditures being repaid over a period of years to the United States by the District of Columbia. Acquisitions are part of the comprehensive plan for the park, parkway, and playground system of the National Capital. Funds were also provided in 1965 for the acquisition of land to provide a parklike setting for the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

4. Relocation payments.—Funds were provided in 1965 for relocation payments to businesses to be displaced by land acquisition related to the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities, through operating endowments, promotes the arts and humanities in the United States through grants, consultative services with public and private agencies, and stimulation of private philanthropy. Donations received without restriction are matched by Federal appropriations and are used in furtherance of the activities of the Foundation. Activities are closely coordinated with other Federal agencies showing common interests, particularly the Office of Education and the National Science Foundation.

1. Promotion of the arts.—Grants are made to individual artists, institutions, organizations, and States for projects and productions of cultural significance that will encourage excellence and expand audiences for the arts in the community, further planning and research, and develop appreciation by the general public. Grants to State art councils are included. The 1967 donations do not reflect $1.3 million made available for direct payment to any designee of the National Endowment for the Arts.

2. Promotion of the humanities.—Provides fellowships for the development of teachers and scholars; grants to support research and publication; grants to strengthen all levels of the educational system; and public programs, all of which are aimed at increasing the usefulness of humanities to the Nation and improving the quality of knowledge and teaching in the humanities.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Additional funds are requested to enable the agency to effectively cope with a steadily rising caseload in both unfair labor practice and representation cases. Estimates for 1969 reflect an intake increase over 1968 of 5.5% for unfair labor practice cases and 3.5% for representation cases.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. About 88% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 83% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives for the voluntary settlement of disputes, and the high incidence of informal settlements achieved thus far is expected to continue in 1969.

2. Trial examiner hearing.—Trial examiners conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in trial examiner decisions. In 1967 there were 1,083 hearings held, 147 proceedings adjusted, and 959 decisions issued. The estimate for 1968 is for 1,160 hearings, 157 adjusted proceedings, and 1,020 decisions. The 1969 estimate is for 1,192 hearings, 168 adjusted proceedings, and 1,090 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a trial examiner's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 25% of these trial examiner decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder are referred to the Board for decision, of which the Board issued 803 in 1967. The estimate for 1968 is 906 and the estimate for 1969 is 910. The Board issued 206 decisions in contested representation proceedings in 1967; it is estimated that issuances will be 192 and 199 in 1968 and 1969, respectively. These decisions are inclusive of those cases in which a request for review of regional directors' decisions has been granted. Regional directors issued 1,882 such decisions in 1967, and the estimate is 2,012 for 1968 and 2,083 in 1969.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the courts to enforce its decisions. In 1967, a total of 312 Board decisions of all kinds required litigation; the estimate for 1968 is 393; the estimate for 1969 is 464.

The Foundation supports basic scientific research and science education, principally at colleges and universities. Grants and contracts are made for the conduct of basic research and for the construction of research facilities; the development and improvement of the science programs of academic institutions; pre-college, undergraduate and graduate level science education programs; and scientific information services.

Increased funds are included for expansion of basic research project support primarily for physics and disciplines such as chemistry, oceanography, and the atmospheric and social sciences that contribute to the solution of problems in environmental areas such as air and water pollution, weather control, and development of marine resources.

The support for computing activities in education and research is increased for the primary purpose of strengthening the quality of education in many fields of study through computer technology.

The 1969 budget also provides substantial support for development and improvement of science and engineering at undergraduate and graduate educational institutions, for improving the quality of science instruction in secondary schools, and for the further development of discipline-based science information systems.

1. Support of scientific research.—The budget provides for the award of grants and contracts in the various activities as follows:

(a) Basic research project support.—The Foundation's support of basic research in the sciences is provided through grants awarded on the basis of merit to investigators at more than 450 institutions, principally at colleges and universities.

	1966 actual	1967 actual	1968 estimate	1969 estimate
Number of grants awarded.....	2,645	3,752	3,722	3,995

(b) Specialized research facilities and equipment.—The Foundation provides support for major items of specialized scientific facilities and equipment primarily at colleges and universities.

(c) National research programs.—The Foundation supports broad national programs of scientific research including the Antarctic research program, the Weather modification program, and an Ocean sediment coring program.

(d) National research centers.—The Foundation supports the development and operation of national research centers for optical and radio astronomy and atmospheric sciences.

2. National sea grant program.—This program supports grants and contracts primarily at academic institutions for training, research, and advisory services to exploit marine resources.

3. Computing activities in education and research.—The funds requested for these activities will permit the Foundation to stimulate new ideas and approaches to computer utilization in the research and educational processes. Support will be provided for such activities as innovative curriculum development, specialized laboratories, development of techniques of computer assisted instruction, and computer oriented student and teacher training programs. The Foundation will also continue to provide partial support for computational facilities for basic research under this program.

4. Institutional support for science.—Support is provided to assist in the development and improvement of the science programs of colleges and universities. Included are matching grants for the construction, renovation, and equipping of research laboratories, comprehensive grants to assist developing institutions in achieving a higher level of competence in the sciences and engineering, and grants for graduate and undergraduate education improvements.

5. Science education support.—The budget provides for a wide variety of programs to strengthen and expand the training and development of scientific manpower including the following programs:

(a) Traineeships and fellowships to graduate students in the various fields of science, mathematics, and engineering; and fellowships to college and university faculty and foreign senior scientists.

FELLOWSHIPS AND TRAINEESHIPS FOR ADVANCED STUDY IN SCIENCE, MATHEMATICS, AND ENGINEERING

Number of traineeships.....	5,973	6,622	6,578
Total.....	8,775	9,301	9,287

(b) Institutes for the training of secondary school, and college teachers of science and mathematics.

(c) Projects directed toward the improvement of secondary school and undergraduate science and mathematics curricula; and supplementary programs to stimulate interest in and secure improvement of teaching and training in the sciences at secondary school and undergraduate levels.

6. Science information activities.—The Foundation supports the collection, translation, and dissemination of information on the results of research and the development of improved methods for the exchange of scientific information. The funding and management of the Science Information Exchange is also the responsibility of the Foundation.

The increase proposed for this activity in 1969 will support the development and improvement of discipline-based science information systems.

7. International cooperative scientific activities.—This activity in 1969 will support various international cooperative research and education activities including projects formerly funded in other activity areas of the Foundation.

8. Planning and policy studies.—This activity supports surveys and analytical studies of research and development within the various sectors of the economy and the current and projected status of scientific manpower and other resources required for the conduct of scientific activities. These studies are related to the formulation of national policies concerning science.

The Board administers the Railroad Retirement Act which provides for the payment of regular annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors. The Board also participates in the administration of the hospital and medical insurance programs for persons covered by the Railroad Retirement Act for which it is reimbursed in part by the Social Security Administration, the activity of which is reflected in the following "Advances and reimbursements" account. The administrative expenses of the Board in the operation of these programs are financed from a portion of the taxes paid jointly by railroad employers and employees under the provisions of the Railroad Retirement Tax Act.

The Board also administers a program for the payment of supplemental annuities to career railroad workers who were awarded regular retirement annuities after June 1966. This annuity is paid to employees aged 65 and over who retire directly from railroad service after completing 25 or more years of service and is in addition to their regular annuities. The administrative expenses of administering this program and the supplemental annuity payments are financed by an excise tax paid by employers of 2 cents for each man-hour of employment for which the employer paid compensation.

Under existing legislation, the Board will require a supplemental appropriation of $612 thousand for 1968, consisting of $550 thousand to cover the costs of handling the work created for the Board by the 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act and $62 thousand for increased postal rates. Higher cash benefits under the social security system automatically invoke higher railroad retirement benefits as a result of a guaranty provision in the Railroad Retirement Act.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of benefits paid are based on individual records of earnings and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment, and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. Accounts posted were 925,000 in 1967 and are estimated at 920,000 in 1968 and 915,000 in 1969. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the railroad unemployment insurance program.

2. Processing claims.—This activity includes the work of processing annuity claims, establishing eligibility of persons for health and medical insurance benefits, and providing assistance to persons filing claims under the medicare program. Annuity claims processed were 205,000 in 1967 and are estimated to be 205,000 in 1968 and 220,000 in 1969. There were 41,000 enrollments for medicare in 1967 with approximately the same number estimated for 1968 and 1969. The total number of persons enrolled for medicare was 816,000 at the end of 1967 with very little change expected in 1968 and 1969.

3. Maintenance of beneficiary rolls.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. The number of monthly benefit payments will increase from 11,093,000 in 1967 to an estimated 11,600,000 and 11,900,000 in 1968 and 1969. The number of persons on the rolls receiving monthly benefit payments will increase from 937,000 at the end of 1967 to an estimated 946,000 and 953,000 at the end of 1968 and 1969. The number of persons also receiving supplemental annuities will increase from 14,000 at the end of 1967 to 37,000 and 52,000 at the end of 1968 and 1969.

4. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims for annuities or benefits are disallowed or who dispute the award have the right of appeal. Appeals dispositions were 155 in 1967 and are estimated to be the same in 1968 and 1969.

5. Actuarial services.—Actuarial studies and estimates of the assets and liabilities of the Railroad retirement account are required by law.

6. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

Limitation.....		612

Under existing legislation.—This proposed increase in limitation on salaries and expenses of $612 thousand consists of $550 thousand to cover the costs of increasing approximately 400,000 benefits as a result of the 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act. A guarantee provision in the Railroad Retirement Act automatically invokes the higher benefits whenever they fall below 110% of Social Security benefits for the same coverage. The remaining $62 thousand is for increased postal rates.

Under the railroad retirement system, railroad workers and employers pay taxes on wages to finance the payment of annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors and to finance the cost of hospital insurance benefits established by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act. These taxes are deposited in this trust fund and invested in Government securities bearing interest Income.—The income of the Railroad retirement account consists of taxes paid by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; appropriations for military service credits; repayments on amounts loaned to the Railroad unemployment insurance account; payments from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and Federal disability insurance trust fund. The railroad retirement system has a reinsurance arrangement of annual financing interchanges with the social security system so as to place these systems in the same position in which they would have been if railroad employment had been included in social security coverage.

1. Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Payment estimates reflect the continuing growth in the beneficiary rolls and the increases in benefit rates provided by the 1966 amendments to the Railroad Retirement Act.

2. Administrative expenses.—Such expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on salaries and expenses).

3. Loan to Railroad unemployment insurance account.—The Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act provides that when the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account is insufficient to pay benefits due under that act, necessary amounts are to be borrowed from the railroad retirement account. When the balance in the railroad unemployment insurance account permits, borrowed amounts are to be repaid to the railroad retirement account with interest. At the end of 1967 the fund had $190.3 million in loans outstanding.

4. Payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—Portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund, since payments of hospital benefits for railroad retirement beneficiaries are made from that fund.

The Board administers an unemployment and sickness insurance system and an employment service for unemployed railroad workers. The administrative expenses are financed through a permanent authorization of 0.25% of taxable payroll. As of each June 30, the unobligated balance in this fund in excess of $6 million is transferred to the Railroad unemployment insurance account in the unemployment trust fund (45 U.S.C. 361).

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Insurance payments for unemployment, sickness, and maternity benefits are based on individual records of earnings and daily wage rates and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the retirement program. Accounts posted were 925,000 in 1967 and are estimated at 920,000 in 1968 and 915,000 in 1969.

2. Processing of unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the headquarters offices. Regular unemployment claims were 525,000 in 1967 and are estimated to be 1,025,000 in 1968, including 500,000 claims generated by the national railroad strike in July 1967, and 500,000 in 1969.

3. Processing of sickness and maternity claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters offices of the Board. Sickness claims were 591,000 in 1967 and are estimated to be 580,000 in 1968 and 570,000 in 1969.

4. Claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. This resulted in savings of benefit payments of approximately $2 million in 1967 as 8,800 placements were made. Placements are estimated to be the same in 1968 and 1969.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the retirement program on a measured basis.

The Board conducts renegotiation with contractors and subcontractors to determine and eliminate excessive profits in connection with procurement under defense and space programs. The act provides that a report must be filed with the Board by every contractor or subcontractor having receipts or accruals in a fiscal year which exceed $1 million ($25 thousand in the case of brokers and manufacturers' agents) from contracts or subcontracts subject to the act. Determinations of excessive profits were made by the Board in the amount of $952.4 million, before adjustment for Federal income and excess profits tax credits, from the date of its establishment through June 30, 1967. Of this total, $16 million was determined during 1967.

1. Executive direction.—The Board is responsible for final action in all cases. This includes the screening of contractor's filings and the handling of requests for exemption.

2. Staff operations.—The headquarters staff furnishes technical advice and assistance to the Board and regional organization.

3. Renegotiation operations (field).—The two regional boards conduct renegotiation proceedings and make determinations and recommendations. They are authorized to conclude cases involving $800 thousand or less of renegotiable profits; however, their determinations in such cases may be appealed to the Statutory Board. All determinations in cases involving more than $800 thousand renegotiable profits are subject to approval by the Statutory Board.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure provisions.—Issuers of securities for public sale are required to file a registration statement and related prospectus containing significant information about the issuer and the offering with the Commission. This is to insure that investors will be provided with the material facts concerning security offerings. Certain provisions of the Securities Acts Amendments enacted August 20, 1964, extend to investors in certain over-the-counter securities the same protections now afforded to those in listed securities: namely, registration of classes of securities; annual and periodic company reporting; regulation of proxy solicitation; and restriction upon "insider" trading.

2. Prevention and suppression of fraud.—Suspected fraud, deceit, and manipulation in the sale and trading of securities is prevented or minimized by prompt investigation. For 1969, the Commission will continue the inspection of broker-dealers. These inspections include the inspection of non-NASD members. Inspection of investment advisers will continue also.

4. Regulation of investment and public utility holding companies.—Financing and other corporate matters of interstate public utility holding companies engaged in the electric utility business or in the retail distribution of gas are regulated. A total of 27 holding company systems of which 18 are active, comprising 216 separate companies with assets of $17 billion, are registered under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935. Foreign and domestic investment companies are registered also and their activities supervised. The assets of these companies have increased from $2.5 billion in 1941 to an estimate of $58 billion on June 30, 1967.

The primary purpose of the Selective Service System is effective manpower utilization through classification under the Military Selective Service Act of 1967. The System is responsible for supplying men to keep the Armed Forces at their authorized strength and to the extent that their needs are not met by voluntary enlistment. It will be required to supply an estimated 240,000 men for this purpose in 1969 as compared with approximately 303,000 in 1968 and 297,000 in 1967.

1. National administration, planning, training, and records management.—The overall administration of the act including planning, training, and records management is accomplished by the national headquarters and six regional field offices.

2. State administration.—Administration of the act within the several States is the responsibility of the 56 State headquarters operating under the policies determined by national headquarters.

3. Registration, classification, and induction.—These functions affecting over 35 million registrants are accomplished by the over 48,000 uncompensated citizens assisted by about 8,000 clerks at over 4,000 boards. These citizens determine who shall be deferred and for how long in the national interest in agriculture, industry, or other pursuits. They also determine the availability for military service of members of the Standby Reserve.

4. Special boards.—(a) National Advisory Committee on the Selection of Physicians, Dentists, and Allied Specialists.—This committee acts in an advisory capacity to the Selective Service System. It is separately administered but funds are furnished by the Selective Service System from its appropriation.

(b) National Selective Service Appeal Board.—This Board acts on the classification of registrants which have been appealed to the President. It is under separate administration but the Selective Service System provides funds for its operation.

A supplemental estimate for 1968 is proposed for separate transmittal.

The Small Business Administration counsels, assists, and protects the interest of small business, and provides aid to business firms and homeowners who have suffered losses through disasters. These efforts are conducted through the following activities:

1. Procurement and management assistance.—The objectives of this activity are (a) to insure that a fair proportion of Government contracts for purchases of supplies and services, including research and development, and for the sale and disposal of property, be placed with small business enterprises, and (b) to provide technical and management assistance through management courses, and counseling on new and improved products and processes. Funds for this activity are provided by direct appropriations.

2. Research contracts.—Research studies designed to reveal matters materially affecting the competitive strength of small business and the effect on small business of Federal laws, programs, and regulations are financed under this activity. Funds for this activity are provided by direct appropriation.

3. Financial assistance.—This activity comprises: (a) Business loans.—This includes loans and financial counseling to small business concerns, businesses displaced because of federally aided construction, businesses affected by changing economic conditions resulting from increased competition from imported articles, and businesses eligible under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964.

Funds for salaries and expenses to support this subactivity are transferred from the Business loan and investment fund.

(b) Development company loans.—This covers efforts to encourage private institutions to expand their role in the economic development of their respective States and loans to State and local development companies to enable them to provide the long term capital—equity and loans—to small businesses. Funds for salaries and expenses to support this subactivity are transferred from the Business loan and investment fund.

(c) Disaster loans.—This subactivity provides financial assistance on favorable terms to victims of natural disasters for rehabilitation of property damaged or destroyed. Funds for salaries and expenses to support this subactivity are transferred from the Disaster loan fund.

4. Investment company assistance and supervision.—In order to stimulate and supplement the flow of private capital to small business concerns, the Small Business Administration is authorized to (a) license, regulate, and examine small business investment companies, and (b) provide funds to such companies for financing small business firms. Funds for administrative expenses to support this activity are transferred from the Business loan and investment fund.

5. Lease guarantees.—In order to enable small businesses to compete on an equal basis with financially strong businesses in the leasing of facilities in shopping centers and other business properties, the Small Business Administration is empowered to guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns. Funds for administrative expenses to support this activity are transferred from the Lease guarantees revolving fund.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 2, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance all loan programs other than natural disaster loans, and including trade adjustment assistance loans and prime contracting activity performed pursuant to sections 7(a), 7(b)(3), 7(e), and 8(a) of the Small Business Act, as amended, titles III and V of the Small Business Act of 1958, as amended, and title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 as amended. Administrative and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

While no ceiling on authorized appropriations is specified, a limitation of $2.65 billion (increased from $2 billion pursuant to Public Law 90-104, approved October 11, 1967) has been placed on the amount of loans and commitments (reservations) which may be outstanding at any one time. This ceiling is composed of separate limitations on outstanding amounts as follows (in millions of dollars):

Capital outlay—1. Financial assistance—Business loans (sec. 7(a), Small Business Act).—Funds may be loaned to business concerns which are independently owned and operated and which are not dominant in their fields. To such small businesses, loans may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, and shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a bank participation loan is not available and no loan on an immediate participation basis may be made unless it is shown that a guaranteed loan is not available. Under the guarantee plan, the Small Business Administration agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default.

The agency's share of an immediate participation or guaranteed loan is limited to 90%. Its maximum outstanding loan and/or commitment to any one borrower is limited by statute to $350 thousand. Business loans, except for the portion for constructing facilities for which the maximum maturity is 15 years, are limited to a maturity of 10 years and with one exception bear interest at a maximum rate of 5½% per annum on the agency's share thereof.

From the inception of the lending program (Sept. 29, 1953) through June 30, 1967, 75,809 loans have been approved in a total amount of $3,350.7 million. Participating banks' share of this amount has been $606.7 million. Fifty-nine percent of the total loans approved have been on a participation or guarantee basis. In 1969, it is estimated that 12,200 loans will be approved, compared with an estimate of 10,000 in 1968.

The following tabulation reflects certain data on business loans and includes funds disbursed or collected by banks or other private lending institutions on participation and guaranteed loans. Accordingly, the Small Business Administration's share of disbursements and repayments will not agree with related data in the financial statements, which reflect transactions on the basis of only the Small Business Administration cash funds involved.

Business loans (Economic Opportunity Act of 1964).—The Small Business Administration administers a program of financial assistance to very small business concerns and to qualified persons seeking to establish such concerns pursuant to authority contained in title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 526). Loans may be on a direct, immediate participation, or guaranteed basis for up to $25 thousand, for a maximum term of 15 years. The credit and collateral requirements are more flexible than those applicable to the 7(a) business loans and provision for management training is made an integral part of the program. It is estimated that 4,125 loans will be approved in 1969, in comparison with 3,420 loans in 1968.

Displaced business loans.—Pursuant to authority provided by the Housing Act of 1961, loans are made to small firms that suffer substantial economic injury as a result of being forced to move by federally aided urban renewal, highway, and other construction programs. The interest rate on the Small Business Administration's share of these loans is determined pursuant to a formula prescribed by legislation. For 1967, the rate was 4¼% per annum. The same interest rate will prevail in 1968.

Through June 30, 1967, a total of 1,138 displaced business loans for $81.1 million had been approved. Approvals during 1967 were 385. It is estimated that 565 loans for $53 million will be approved in 1969 compared to 530 loans for $50 million in 1968.

Trade adjustment loans.—Section 7(e) of the Small Business Act, as amended, authorizes the Small Business Administration to make loans to eligible firms under the provisions of the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, which act provides for certification by the Secretary of Commerce of proposals for economic adjustment submitted by eligible firms. The Small Business Administration is permitted to make loans to firms of any size and in any dollar amount for a period not to exceed 25 years.

State and local development company loans.—The Small Business Administration lends funds to State and local development companies pursuant to sections 501 and 502 of the Small Business Investment Act, as amended. Funds are made available to State development companies for general-use purposes under section 501 and to State and local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land, under section 502. The latter type loans must be so secured as reasonably to assure repayment, may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, may be made only when the proceeds are to assist an identifiable small business concern and for a sound business purpose approved by the agency, and are limited to a maximum of $350 thousand for each such identifiable small business concern.

2. Investment company assistance.—Purchase of debentures of small business investment companies.—A primary function of these companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital for small business concerns. To encourage the formation and growth of such companies, the Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the Small Business Administration to purchase debentures of any such company directly or in cooperation with banks or other lending institutions through agreements to participate on an immediate basis.

Such debentures may be subordinate to any other debenture bonds, promissory notes, or other debts and obligations of such companies, unless the Administration determines otherwise in the exercise of reasonable investment prudence. SBA may purchase such debentures in an amount equal to 200% of paid-in capital and paid-in surplus to a maximum of $7.5 million. Those SBICs with paid-in capital and paid-in surplus in excess of $1 million, which have invested (or committed) 65% or more of their funds in venture capital, are eligible to draw 200% of the first $1 million and 300% of every dollar over $1 million not to exceed an aggregate maximum of $10 million.

Prior to the Small Business Investment Act Amendments of 1967, financing of SBICs by SBA was accomplished by means of the purchase of subordinated debentures (considered as a part of "statutory capital" for borrowing purposes) and by means of direct loans.

Operating costs.—Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund (excluding disbursements for administrative expenses). The interest rate or rates applicable to each year's gross disbursements are determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans, proceeds of participation sales, and other receipts to the fund are applied as collected against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rates set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1968 are 4¾% for investment company debentures and loans, 5% for development company loans, and 4¾% for 7(a) business and economic opportunity loans. These rates have also been used in computing interest expense in 1969.

Interest is payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of sale. Interest collections on pledged loans are remitted to the FNMA for purposes of paying such interest as it comes due. To the extent that the interest rates on certificates exceeds the interest rates on pledged loans, the collections of interest on pledged loans will be insufficient to meet the interest payable on the certificates. Appropriations for this insufficiency are authorized, as is discussed in detail below under the head Participation sales insufficiencies.

Administrative expense.—Expenses for the loan programs financed by this revolving fund are financed by transfer of funds to the appropriation Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel and related expenses are accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the Revolving fund, Small Business Administration on July 1, 1966, and by transfer of the unexpended balances of appropriations previously made for trade adjustment assistance loans. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as additional capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions.

In lieu of appropriations, Administration policy is to provide required additional capital by sale of participation certificates in loan pools, thus substituting private for public credit to the maximum extent possible. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorized SBA to place loans in a trust and through the Federal National Mortgage Association as trustee to sell participation certificates in such loan pools. The aggregate amount of such participation sales for any one trustor agency may not exceed the amount authorized for such trustor in an appropriation act. Sales of not to exceed $1.35 billion have been authorized: $350 million in 1966 from the predecessor revolving fund under special authority in the Participation Sales Act of 1966, $850 million in 1967, and $150 million in 1968. The authorizations in 1967 and 1968 are available for both this fund and the Disaster loan fund. Actual sales through June 30, 1967, aggregated $870 million, of which $70 million has been redeemed. Sales of $315 million are projected for 1968—all from this fund. New sales authority of $150 million is being requested in 1969, to permit sales of $200 million (including $50 million of carryover authority), also entirely from this fund. These sales, together with estimated repayments and revenues on unpledged loans will finance the projected 1969 program level and provide a carryover balance at June 30, 1969, of $300 million for use in subsequent years.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorizes appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit any trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. This authority is not applicable to the 1966 sales in the predecessor fund. An insufficiency results primarily from the fact that the interest rate on participation certificates exceeds the interest rate on the loans pledged in support of the respective participations.

A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by that act. The Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1968, authorized additional participation sales of $150 million and appropriated not to exceed $1.35 million for any insufficiency in 1968 only arising from the additional sales authority granted by such act.

Language is being proposed for 1969 which would authorize additional participation sales from the two funds. The related appropriation language for insufficiencies would provide a permanent appropriation of such sums as may be necessary not only for this additional sales authority but also for the $150 million sales authorized in the 1968 act. Thus, it is proposed that appropriations as required to cover insufficiencies in 1969 and succeeding years in connection with sales authorized in 1967, 1968, and 1969 acts be made available on a permanent, indefinite basis. Although the projections as discussed in the following paragraph do not currently indicate a need for appropriations in 1969, it is essential to the sales program that the authority to cover any insufficiency that may develop be available on a continuing basis.

The "gross" insufficiency in any year represents the excess of interest accrued on outstanding participation certificates over interest accrued on an equal amount of loans pledged for such certificates. This gross insufficiency is met from (1) revenue from the participation sales fund arising from the investment of collections on pledged loans in excess of funds required for interest and principal payments on certificates, (2) reserved retained earnings, if any, and (3) appropriations, as discussed above, in that order. The actual and estimated "gross" insufficiency, revenue, and new obligational authority (appropriations) applicable to transactions in this fund for 1967, 1968, and 1969 are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Operating results.—The fund will operate at a deficit. Interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest, administrative and other expenses, and a provision for estimated losses. Primarily, this results from the cost of processing a large number of loan applications which are not approved and the cost of servicing an expanding number of widely scattered loans which are relatively small in size.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 2, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance disaster loans other than those to displaced businesses, made pursuant to sections 7(b)(1), 7(b)(2), 7(b)(4), and 7(c)(2) of the Small Business Act, as amended. These loans are commonly referred to as natural disaster loans. Administrative and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

No limitation was placed on the amount of loans and commitments (reservations) which may be outstanding at any one time from the fund. Actual and estimated outstanding disaster loans and reservations at the end of each year are as follows (in millions of dollars):

Investment in outstanding loans.....	287.0	322.9	310.2
Outstanding loan reservations: Undisbursed loan authorizations.....	14.3	16.3	17.3
Total, loans and reservations.....	301.3	339.2	327.5

No restrictions exist on the amount which may be loaned to an individual or business suffering loss from a natural disaster. No restrictions exist on the size of business firm which may be eligible for a natural disaster loan. The interest rate may not exceed 3% on the Small Business Administration's share of the loan. The maximum term is 30 years.

Through June 30, 1967, a total of 59,904 disaster loans for $536 million had been approved. Approvals during 1967 were 2,037 for $24.3 million. Recognizing that such loans cannot be predicted, the estimate for 1968 is $100 million in new loans, in view of the recent disaster declarations in Alaska and Texas and $50 million in 1969.

The following tabulation reflects certain data on disaster loans and includes as applicable funds disbursed and collected by banks and other private lending institutions on participation and guaranteed loans. Accordingly, the Small Business Administration's share of disbursements and repayments will not in all instances agree with related data in the financial statements which reflect transactions on the basis of only the Small Business Administration's cash funds involved.

Operating costs.—Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund (excluding disbursements for administrative expenses). The interest rate applicable to each year's gross disbursements is determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans, proceeds of participation sales, and other receipts to the fund are applied as collected against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rate set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1968 is 5%. This rate has also been used in computing interest expense in 1969.

Interest is payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of sale. Interest collections on pledged loans are remitted to the FNMA for purposes of paying such interest as it comes due. To the extent that the interest rates on certificates exceeds the interest rate on pledged loans, the collections of interest on pledged loans will be insufficient to meet the interest payable on the certificates. Appropriations for this insufficiency are authorized, as is discussed in detail below under the head Participation sales insufficiencies.

Administrative expense.—Administrative expenses for this program are financed by transfer of funds from the revolving fund to the appropriation, Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses are accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the Revolving fund, Small Business Administration on July 1, 1966. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions.

In lieu of appropriations, Administration policy is to provide required additional "capital" by sale of participation certificates in loan pools, thus substituting private for public credit to the maximum extent possible. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorized SBA to place loans in a trust and through the FNMA as trustee to sell participation certificates in such loan pools. The aggregate amount of such participation sales for any one trustor agency may not exceed the amount authorized for such trustor in an appropriation act. Sales of not to exceed $1.35 billion have been authorized: $350 million in 1966 from the predecessor revolving fund under special authority in the Participation Sales Act of 1966, $850 million in 1967, and $150 million in 1968. The authorizations in 1967 and 1968 are available for both this fund and the Business loan and investment fund. Actual sales through June 30, 1967, aggregated $870 million, of which $70 million has been redeemed. Sales of $315 million are projected for 1968—all from the business loan fund. New sales authority of $150 million is being requested in 1969, to permit sales of $200 million (including $50 million of carryover authority), also entirely from that fund. The proceeds from prior years' sales, together with estimated repayments and revenues on unpledged loans will finance the projected 1969 program level and provide a carryover balance at June 30, 1969, of $122 million for use in subsequent years.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorizes appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit any trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. This authority is not applicable to the 1966 sales in the predecessor fund. An insufficiency results primarily from the fact that the interest rate on participation certificates exceeds the interest rate on the loans pledged in support of the respective participations.

A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by that act. The Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary, and related agencies Appropriation Act, 1968, authorized additional participation sales of $150 million and appropriated not to exceed $1.35 million for any insufficiency in 1968 only arising from the additional sales authority granted by such act.

Language is being proposed for 1969 which would authorize additional participation sales from the two funds. The related appropriation language for insufficiencies would provide a permanent appropriation of such sums as may be necessary not only for this additional sales authority but also for the $150 million sales authorized in the 1968 act. Thus, it is proposed that appropriations as may be required to cover insufficiencies in 1969 and succeeding years in connection with sales authorized in 1967, 1968, and 1969 acts be made available on a permanent, indefinite basis.

The "gross" insufficiency in any year represents the excess of interest accrued on outstanding participation certificates over interest accrued on an equal amount of loans pledged for such certificates. This gross insufficiency is met from (1) revenue from the participation sales fund arising from the investment of collections on pledged loans in excess of funds required for interest and principal payments on certificates, (2) reserved retained earnings, if any, and (3) appropriations, as discussed above, in that order. The actual and estimated "gross" insufficiency, revenue, and new obligational authority (appropriations) applicable to transactions in this fund for 1967, 1968, and 1969 are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1967 actual	Sales au- thorized by 1967 act	Sales au- thorized by 1968 act	1969 estimate
Interest accrued on participation certificates.....	1,097	6,601	-----	6,601

Portion of new obligational authority applicable to:
Sales authorized in appropriation acts other than 1968 (indefinite appropriation).....	440	2,155	-----	1,647

Operating results.—The fund will operate at a deficit. With the interest rate on loans set by statute at 3%, interest and fee income are not sufficient to cover interest to Treasury at the current rate of 5%, as well as administrative expenses and a provision for estimated losses.

This fund finances a program of insurance to guarantee payments on leases of small business concerns. It was capitalized by the transfer of $5 million from the Revolving fund, Small Business Administration, pursuant to Public Law 89-117. In order to make the fund self-sustaining, lessees are to pay an insurance premium of not to exceed 2½% of the lease amount, or a premium based on sound actuarial computation.

It is estimated that 700 guarantees with a total exposure of $94.5 million will be made in 1968. For 1969, the estimate is 3,000 guarantees with a total exposure of $405 million. It is anticipated that about two-thirds of the projected amount will be written by private insurance companies, with SBA writing approximately one-third of the total volume.

The Smithsonian Institution maintains public exhibits, representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics, space, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology; preserves for reference and study purposes millions of valuable items of scientific, cultural, and historic interest; conducts research in the natural sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts in the United States and in many foreign countries; and participates in the international exchange of scientific literature. The areas of research in the natural sciences include anthropology, biology, geology, solar radiations, and astrophysics. The Smithsonian is also undertaking an intensive program of classification and study of marine organisms collected in connection with the Government's expanded oceanographic program.

The Institution administers three museums, five scientific programs, three art galleries, the Armed Forces Museum Advisory Board, and associated international programs. It is responsible also for the operation and maintenance of seven main exhibition buildings; the Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass.; the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute in the Panama Canal Zone; the River Basin Surveys in Lincoln, Nebr.; a major storage facility at Silver Hill, Md.; a conference center at Elkridge, Md.; the Barney Studio House; the Chesapeake Bay Center for Field Biology; and supporting laboratories and storage space.

During the budget year the National Collection of Fine Arts and the National Portrait Gallery will become fully operational in their new building.

The U.S. National Museum will enlarge its comprehensive planning for the celebration of the Bicentennial of the American Revolution. An urgent expansion of tropical biology, using the facilities of the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute will be accomplished.

The National Air and Space Museum, with authorization for the construction of a suitable building will expand its program to record and exhibit the history of air and space flight; and to provide educational facilities and programs for the public and the scholar in the science and technology of aeronautics and astronautics. The Institution will continue to extend its scientific activities. Programs of cooperative research and training will be continued, and greater emphasis will be placed on the use of museum resources in primary and secondary school programs.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was created as a bureau of the Smithsonian Institution by the Act of September 2, 1958, as amended. The Board of Trustees of the Center is authorized to construct and operate a national cultural center in Washington, D.C., on a site provided by the Federal Government. Warrants totaling $15.5 million were issued as the Federal Government's contribution to the costs of constructing the Center to match a like amount contributed by the public prior to June 30, 1965. A Federal loan of $15.4 million is authorized for construction of foundations and underground parking facilities, which is to be repaid from parking receipts. The remaining costs of construction and operating the Center are to be provided by the trustees from public contributions. Construction is underway and it is anticipated that the building will be completed in approximately 30 months.

Adjudication of cases and legal activities.—Upon petitions being filed, the Board holds formal hearings and determines whether: (a) organizations are Communist-action organizations, Communist-front organizations, or Communist-infiltrated organizations; (b) individuals are officers or members of a Communist-action organization or officers of a Communist-front organization and required to register as such; (c) the registration of particular Communist-action organizations or Communist-front organizations or of particular individuals should be canceled; and (d) a particular Communist-infiltrated organization has ceased to be a Communist-infiltrated organization. The Board's determinations involve the consideration of petitions, motions, answers, and evidence adduced at the hearings. In the individual registration proceedings as well as in proceedings involving organizations, the Board is empowered to hold hearings—which shall be public—to examine witnesses and receive evidence, and to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documents relevant to the matter under inquiry. In each case the Board issues a report in writing setting forth its rulings and findings as to the facts, and issues an appropriate order.

The major responsibility of the Commission is to assess the impact of United States and foreign trade policies on domestic industries and to provide reports to the President, the Congress, and the public on these matters. The increased complexity of the Nation's foreign trade relations, the increase in its foreign trade in recent years, and the greatly changing patterns of world trade continue to emphasize the need for research, investigations, and reports on tariff and trade activities.

The Tax Court hears and decides cases involving income, estate, and gift tax deficiencies and claims for refunds of excess profits taxes under the special relief sections of the Internal Revenue Code, and cases involving determinations of excessive profits on contracts renegotiated by the Federal Government.

For 1969, the court proposes a trial program of 160 weeks to be held in approximately 50 cities. This program should result in closing approximately 6,800 cases.

This fund, established under 26 U.S.C. 7448, is used to pay survivorship benefits to eligible widows and dependent children of deceased judges of the Tax Court of the United States. Participating judges pay into the fund 3% of their salaries or retired pay to cover creditable service for which payment is required and such additional funds as are needed are provided through the annual appropriation to the Tax Court of the United States.

On June 30, 1967, 11 judges of the court were participating in the fund, and two eligible widows were receiving survivorship annuity payments.

The Commission consists of five men from private life, appointed by the President. The Commission has initiated a full and complete investigation and study, including on-site surveys to determine the feasibility of and the most suitable site for an interoceanic sea-level canal, the best means of construction, whether by conventional or nuclear means, and the estimated cost. This effort includes the study of foreign policy considerations, national defense aspects, canal finance, interoceanic and intercoastal shipping, public information, and engineering feasibility. The Commission will prepare a report setting forth its findings, conclusions, and recommendations at the completion of the study. Because of unforeseen delays, the Commission will propose an amendment to the authorization act to raise the statutory appropriation ceiling to $24 million and extend the study to Dec. 1, 1970.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: 1967, $1 thousand; 1968, $0.

The Select Commission on Western Hemisphere Immigration was established by Public Law 89-236, which amended the Immigration and Nationality Act, and which was approved October 3, 1965. These amendments provided, among other changes, for the imposition of a limitation of 120,000 per year on immigration from Western Hemisphere countries, beginning with 1969. The Select Commission was established to further consider the desirability of such a limitation. In particular, the Select Commission has studied demographic, technological, and economic trends, especially in the Western Hemisphere; present and projected unemployment in the United States in relation to immigration from other Western Hemisphere countries; interrelationships between immigration and national and international programs and projects of Western Hemisphere nations; the operation of the U.S. immigration laws as they pertain to Western Hemisphere nations; and the implications of these factors with respect to the security and international relations of Western Hemisphere nations. The Select Commission made an interim report to the President and the Congress on June 22, 1967, and will make a final report by January 15, 1968.

* Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

The Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority in 1933 for the unified development of a river basin comprising parts of seven States. TVA is a corporation wholly owned by the Federal Government. Its program in 1969 will be financed from three sources: (1) appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

Budget program.—1. Water resources development program.—A major objective of the TVA Act is full development and use of the water resources of the Tennessee River and its tributaries. The development of these natural resources is reflected in regional and national gains in the fields of navigation, flood control, water quality, and fish and game; and in power, industry, and recreation. Water control system facilities include dams and reservoirs, some with and some without hydroelectric generating stations, and navigation locks.

(a) Navigation operations include maintenance of adequate depths for the all-year 9-foot channel from the mouth of the river at Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles. Traffic and savings to shippers continue to increase. More than 90% of the savings apply on freight originating outside the valley or moving from the valley to outside destinations. Technical studies appraise the opportunities for more extensive use of the waterway. Data supplied to shippers and carriers help solve transportation problems. Advisory work with State and local agencies leads to new or improved public programs by those agencies to help assure full industrial use of the waterway.

The capital outlay program for navigation facilities in 1969 provides for miscellaneous minor additions and improvements.

(b) Flood control operations maintain and use storage space in upstream reservoirs for seasonal retention of excessive runoff and regulate discharges to rates of flow which can be handled safely by downstream channels and reservoirs. Flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and along the tributaries downstream from the reservoirs and along the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. Also, TVA collects and analyzes flood data and studies potential flood control projects and ways to improve operations of the existing system. Technical advice and assistance is given to State and local agencies in finding solutions to localized flood control problems.

Capital outlay costs for flood control facilities in 1969 are estimated at $555 thousand, including $500 thousand for initiating a small project at Oliver Springs, Tenn., and $55 thousand for other facilities.

(c) Regional water quality management comprises the determination of basic facts about water quality and research and planning of ways of maintaining or upgrading the quality of the water resource. This work is conducted in cooperation with appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies and with industrial users of water.

(d) Fish and game development activities are directed toward full realization of economic benefits from this most important regional resource. Particular emphasis is being given to increasing returns from the commercial fishery which includes the harvest of fresh-water mussels.

(e) Multipurpose reservoir operations principally involve the management, operation, and maintenance of multipurpose reservoirs and related shorelines created by TVA dams. This includes water dispatching operations, water control investigations, investigations and control of reservoir ecology, plant protection and services to visitors, operation and upkeep of dam reservations, operation of reservoir lands, and maintenance. Operating costs, funded, are estimated at $6,712 thousand for 1969, of which $1,858 thousand is allocated to navigation operations, $1,948 thousand to flood control operations, $2,529 thousand to power operations, and $57 thousand to general resources development. The remaining $320 thousand is offset by nonpower proceeds derived principally from operation of reservoir lands.

A total of $19,354 thousand for continuing construction of multipurpose projects includes (1) $7,992 thousand for the Tims Ford project started in 1966; (2) $7,707 thousand for the Tellico project started in 1967; and $3,200 thousand for the Bear Creek project also started in 1967. An estimate of $455 thousand provides for completion of the Nickajack Project.

In 1969, design work is to be started and other analyses continued on the Upper French Broad multipurpose water control system. The project planned encompasses channel improvements, a levee, and 14 relatively small dams in western North Carolina.

The multipurpose projects will in each case represent important new assets to the region, each tailored to meet specific problems and to open doors to new opportunities for advancing the region's economy.

2. General resources development program.—Special attention to selected areas and resources of the Tennessee Valley region, in particularly close cooperation with State and local agencies and with tributary area associations, constitutes an additional phase of TVA's program for the proper use, conservation, and development of the region's resources. Investigations identify current problems and opportunities for development under conditions of optimum use. Research helps develop and test corrective measures. Cooperative projects with State and local groups apply these measures to regional and special problems.

General resources development activities are of six principal types: Agricultural projects, forestry projects, minerals projects, recreation projects, environmental quality projects, and development of tributary areas.

(a) Agricultural projects have the objectives of assistance to valley farmers in improving their economic situation, achievement of a higher standard of living, and efficient use of land resources through ways compatible with the conservation of soil and water resources. Improved farm practices and systems result from the application of research and demonstration findings.

(b) Forestry projects aid the landowners and the timber industry in making full use of the existing forest resource of the valley and of developing it for maximum sustained economic return, consistent with the needs of watershed protection. Forestry projects include appraisals of the quality and quantity of the forest resource and research and demonstrations in forest management, reforestation, industrial wood use, forest tree improvement, and forest fertilizer tests.

(c) Minerals projects have emphasis on economic geology and the preparation, in cooperation with State agencies, of geologic maps essential to the development of regional minerals.

(d) Recreation projects are designed to promote the optimum development of the water and other scenic resources of the region in a way that will improve the physical and cultural environment, stimulate economic development, and conserve natural and historical resources.

(e) Environmental quality projects are concerned with (1) the cleanup of reservoir shorelines, including driftage, garbage and rubbish left by users of TVA-owned reservoir lands; (2) strip mine experiments and demonstrations; and (3) research on economic disposal of solid wastes in cooperation with the U.S. Public Health Service.

(f) Tributary area development is a comprehensive and cooperative approach to resource development in areas of the Tennessee Valley where specific opportunities exist for further development and where local groups have organized to deal with problems of economic advancement and area improvement. Work is in close collaboration with organized groups in 16 tributary areas, most of which lie wholly or in part in the Appalachia portion of the Tennessee Valley.

3. Power supply and use program.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power in an area of 80,000 square miles of the Tennessee Valley States. Operations involve generation and transmission of power and sale of energy at wholesale to local distribution systems and directly to a small number of industries and Government agencies requiring large amounts of power. Power is purchased and distributed by 158 local public agencies and two small privately owned utility companies. Total energy to be supplied is estimated to be 94.4 billion kilowatt-hours in 1969. This is about 6.6 billion kilowatt-hours greater than the energy supplied to the system in 1967 and about 1.8 billion kilowatt-hours above that estimated to be supplied in 1968. Net income from power operations, after depreciation, is estimated to be $69.3 million for 1969, compared with $40.7 million in 1967, and an estimate of $66.7 million in 1968.

Of the $159,359 thousand estimate for power generating facilities, all to be financed from power proceeds and borrowings, $88,850 thousand is for continuing construction of Browns Ferry nuclear units 1–3, $28,550 thousand is for continuing construction of Paradise steam unit 3, and $41,786 thousand is for Cumberland steam units 1–2. The three Browns Ferry units are scheduled for commercial operation in October 1970, October 1971, and October 1972; Paradise unit 3 in October 1969; and the Cumberland units in 1972 and 1973.

Completion of the units as scheduled will bring the estimated dependable capacity of the system by the winter of 1972–73 to 22.8 million kilowatts, including other plants operated as a part of the TVA system. Total demands in the winter of 1972–73 are estimated at 21.6 million kilowatts, of which 1.8 million kilowatts will be served by capacity owned by others but made available to TVA under interchange arrangements. There will be a reserve of 15.2% over estimated demands of 19.8 million kilowatts served by TVA capacity to allow for loss of capacity because of breakdown of generating equipment and needs for its maintenance, failure of substation equipment and transmission lines, drawdown of reservoirs during dry periods, and other contingencies.

The 1969 budget includes $160 thousand for design work on additional generating capacity tentatively scheduled for operation in 1974. Capital outlay in 1969 for all power system facilities, including transmission system facilities, is estimated at $233,578 thousand.

4. Fertilizer and munitions development program.—Chemical facilities at Muscle Shoals, Ala., are maintained and operated as a national fertilizer development center, but by statute they must also be available for munitions purposes. These facilities are important to the national defense.

Program activities are of three general types: Fertilizer research and development; introduction to the American farmer of new fertilizer materials and improved fertilizer uses; and developmental production of fertilizer materials.

(a) Fertilizer research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and fertilizer process research and development. TVA works cooperatively with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant colleges, and with industry to maximize effectiveness of research, hasten use of findings, and to avoid undesirable duplication. Research results on technological developments and on new and improved processes are made available to industry. Knowledge gained in fertilizer research is valuable also in the related field of munitions. Special attention is given to methods for the recovery of sulfur in useful form from stack gases to help relieve the worldwide shortage of sulfur and to reduce atmospheric pollution.

(b) Fertilizer introduction is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant colleges and includes carefully controlled small plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and nationwide educational introduction of fertilizers, which is also conducted in cooperation with commercial fertilizer manufacturers, distributors, and dealers. Farmers and the fertilizer industry pay for the fertilizers used, with prices based upon the value of the plant nutrient content as measured by commercial fertilizer prices but discounted to reflect the novelty of the material or practice and the nature of the demonstration. Agricultural extension services of the land-grant colleges give educational and technical guidance in demonstrating and introducing new fertilizers and fertilizer practices in the participating States.

(c) Developmental production has these objectives: To demonstrate the technical and commercial feasibility of new or improved fertilizer processes, thereby encouraging their adoption by industry; to supply materials for widespread educational introduction among farmers; and to supply munitions materials or render other services for national defense.

Capital outlay costs in 1969 for chemical facilities are chiefly for continuing the rehabilitation program begun in 1960. Each step of the rehabilitation program makes significant contributions toward reduction in emissions of air and water pollutants.

5. Land Between the Lakes.—Work will continue on the 170,000-acre development area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Lake. Land Between the Lakes is a demonstration of new ideas in public outdoor recreation and conservation education and its development will stimulate the lagging economy of the surrounding area by encouraging further private development. The project will include a variety of facilities through which an urbanizing population may use part of its increased leisure to renew its acquaintance with the land and gain new understandings of modern concepts of resource use and conservation. During 1969, facilities in place will be operated, and land acquisition is scheduled to be completed.

6. General service activities.—Operating costs for general service activities cover topographic mapping, bridge main tenance, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies.

Topographic maps of the Tennessee Valley are vital to TVA's planning, construction, and operational needs. In order to be of practical utility, these maps, which now cover the entire Tennessee Valley, must be revised periodically. The 1969 program will concentrate on those maps which most urgently need revision and which are most necessary for regional development purposes at this time.

Capital outlay funds cover additions and replacements of office, transportation, and electronic computing equipment and facilities used jointly in conducting all TVA programs. In 1969, work will begin on a medical annex urgently needed to house employees now working in sub-standard and rapidly deteriorating quarters at Muscle Shoals, Ala.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1969 are to be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $50,250 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $27,473 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $409,935 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowings of $170,000 thousand backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

Operating results and financial condition.—Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriations from the Treasury. Payments to the Treasury in 1969 are estimated at $62,000 thousand—$47,000 thousand as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $15,000 thousand as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $213,764 thousand during 1969. The increase is mainly in fixed assets, reflecting expenditures for construction of facilities; $198,036 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $15,728 thousand is in nonpower programs. The estimate of current liabilities at June 30, 1969, is $13,948 thousand greater than the estimate at June 30, 1968. The increase reflects liabilities mainly related to construction. Total borrowings from the public for the power program are expected to increase by $170,000 thousand during 1969. The total Government equity at June 30, 1969, is estimated to be $29,816 thousand more than that at June 30, 1968. This change largely represents increases in investments in assets financed from sources other than borrowings.

The United States Information Agency seeks, by means of communication techniques, to influence public attitudes abroad to achieve U.S. foreign policy objectives. The Agency also advises those responsible for formulating and implementing foreign policies and programs as to the probable impact of those policies on foreign opinion.

Agency operations are largely financed from this appropriation and from the related special foreign currency appropriation.

The increase of $7.8 million in obligations funded from the salaries and expenses appropriation will fund non-discretionary increases required to maintain the 1968 program level and will provide for selective program increases. The principal increases are for assistance to binational centers and expansion of the student affairs program in Latin America; and increased informational and cultural activities in Europe and Africa.

1. Overseas missions.—The program is operative in 112 countries. The Agency operates through 233 posts and supports 131 binational centers. The overseas missions carry out country programs designed to influence local attitudes and actions in support of U.S. foreign policy. Overseas missions prepare materials using local facilities, and use materials provided by the media services in Washington.

2. Media services.—These services provide support for overseas country programs.

(a) The press and publications service maintains communications facilities for the transmission of editorial news and feature materials for adaptation by overseas missions. It produces two monthly magazines titled "America Illustrated," one for distribution in the Soviet Union and the other in Poland; and a monthly magazine, "Topic," in French and English editions for the African area, and in Arabic for distribution throughout the Arab world. The service also operates three regional printing centers, and provides overseas missions with printing supplies and equipment.

(b) The motion picture and television service produces and acquires motion picture films and television programs which are then translated into as many as 58 foreign languages. It adapts these programs for specific country or area use, and supports the foreign production, use, and distribution of films and television programs. The service also supplies the missions with equipment for showing motion pictures.

(c) The information center service supports U.S.-operated libraries and reading rooms, and binational centers, providing them with collections of American publications, both in English and in translation, and with English language teaching materials. It assists American publishers in distributing selected products overseas and supports the publication of low-priced books for sale abroad. The service also provides exhibits and visual materials to overseas missions for local display, and provides books and periodicals for presentation to selected individuals and groups.

(d) The broadcasting service produces radio broadcasts in English and in 37 foreign languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at five domestic and 12 overseas locations. The service also supplies the overseas missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations and with radio supplies and equipment.

3. Program direction and other services.—This activity encompasses Agency managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions. Included are the Office of the Director, the Office of Policy and Research, physical and personnel security functions, legal counsel, central administrative services and emergency planning.

4. Shared administrative support.—Administrative services for the Agency's overseas operations, and certain special support services at headquarters, are obtained through reimbursable arrangements with the Department of State.

The purpose of this program, except for trade missions, is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and those of other lands through suitable U.S. exhibitions in international fairs and other demonstrations of American economic, social, industrial, scientific, and cultural attainments.

1. Trade missions are sent abroad to further the development of American export markets. There were 31 trade missions in 1967, and 39 are programmed in 1968. Forty are proposed for 1969.

2. Labor missions are sent to selected fairs and exhibitions abroad. There were four labor missions in 1967; seven are programmed in 1968; and eight are requested for 1969.

3. Fairs and exhibitions combine the international trade fair and special purpose exhibition programs. In 1967, the fourth series of two exhibits was completed under the U.S.-U.S.S.R. exchange agreement, both shown in three sites in the Soviet Union, 11 exhibits were mounted at international fairs and one fourth-series exchange exhibit was reshowed in an East European country. In 1968, 11 exhibits will be mounted at international fairs and a fifth series of exchange exhibits will be developed for subsequent showing in the Soviet Union. The 1969 estimate provides for seven trade fair exhibits, reshowings of one of the two fourth-series exchange exhibits in an East European country, and display of the first of the fifth-series exhibits in the Soviet Union.

4. Montreal Fair.—U.S. participation in the Canadian Universal and International Exhibition held in calendar year 1967 was funded at $9.3 million appropriated in 1965. Obligations for the Fair will be incurred through 1968.

5. Osaka Fair.—U.S. participation in the Osaka World's Fair to be held in calendar year 1970 is proposed at a funding level of $12 million of which $693 thousand is to be absorbed out of existing obligational authority.

Congressional action in connection with the Agency's 1967 appropriation called for the termination of IMG operations. Accordingly, the Agency has completed action on the contracts in process, and has stopped the issuance of new guarantees.

Under the program recently terminated, foreign countries with serious dollar exchange problems have imported U.S. books, periodicals, films, and other informational media.

Operations in each country were carried out under terms of bilateral country agreements. Under the program, foreign importers made payments in their own currency to American exporters, who then exchanged the foreign currency for U.S. dollars through application to the United States Information Agency. The foreign currencies acquired under the program were available for sale to other U.S. Government agencies for appropriated dollars, which were credited to the IMG revolving fund.

Program.—Under present authority, payments under existing contracts are made but no new contracts are being issued for 1968.

Financing.—At present no additional borrowings from Treasury are anticipated. Resources of the fund consisting of cash on hand plus receipts from sales of foreign currencies and contract fees are expected to be sufficient to finance payments to contractors.

The Water Resources Planning Act of 1965 (Public Law 89-80, July 22, 1965) established the Water Resources Council and authorized river basin planning commissions which, working together, engage in activities designed to meet national and regional water requirements. Federal coordination takes the form of assessing requirements, coordinating water policies and programs of the several Federal agencies, developing procedures for Federal participation in regional or river basin plans, reviewing plans developed by river basin commissions, and making recommendations to the President on possible Federal projects to meet the national water requirements.

The river basin commissions develop for review and approval by the Council regional water and related land use plans designed to make the optimum use of such resources.

PART II

SCHEDULES OF PERMANENT POSITIONS

EXPLANATION OF SCHEDULES OF PERMANENT POSITIONS

Part II contains detailed schedules of permanent positions which are furnished to the Congress, pursuant to section 204 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, as amended (31 U.S.C. 581), and waivers thereunder granted by the Appropriations Committees. These schedules relate to positions established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. Positions authorized at the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time; positions abolished during the year are not counted.

The first section of the schedule, headed "Grades and ranges," contains a listing of the grades and salary ranges of authorized positions, and the total number in each grade, as illustrated below:

GRADES AND RANGES	1967 actual	1968 est.	1969 est.
GS-17, $23,788 to $26,960.....	1	1	1
GS-16, $20,982 to $26,574.....	1	1	1
GS-15, $18,404 to $23,921.....	5	5	5
GS-14, $15,841 to $20,593.....	6	6	6
GS-13, $13,507 to $17,557.....	9	10	10
GS-12, $11,461 to $14,899.....	11	10	10
GS-11, $9,657 to $12,555.....	8	8	8
GS-9, $8,054 to $10,475.....	14	18	18
GS-8, $7,384 to $9,598.....	1	1	1
GS-7, $6,734 to $8,759.....	20	26	31
GS-6, $6,137 to $7,982.....	10	10	10
GS-5, $5,565 to $7,239.....	20	17	17
GS-4, $4,995 to $6,489.....	26	24	24
GS-3, $4,466 to $5,807.....	5	8	8
GS-2, $4,108 to $5,341.....	3	3	3
Total.....	140	148	153

Grades and their respective salary ranges are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, the general schedule grades, is abbreviated "GS-..." The salary ranges shown are the normal ranges of the pay scales which became effective in October 1967 for most graded positions, and in December 1967 for executive level grades, under Public Law 90-206. These pay scales may be exceeded, however, when pay rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are substantially above the statutory rates (in the general schedule grades and certain other positions). In such cases, the Civil Service Commission has authority to permit a higher entrance level (not to exceed the maximum pay step prescribed by statute) and add a corresponding number of steps above the stated pay range.

The second section of the schedule lists operating titles of the individual positions under each grade for which the minimum basic annual salary is equal to or greater than that for grade GS-16 ($20,982).

HIGHER LEVEL POSITIONS
GS-17, $23,788 to $26,960:
Administrator.....	1	1	1
GS-16, $20,982 to $26,574:
Deputy Administrator.....	1	1	1

The number of positions shown in a consolidated schedule will equal the sum of the entries for permanent positions reflected in the related personnel summary schedules that appear in Part I of the Appendix.

PART III

ANNEXED BUDGETS AND SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIAL

1121

EXPLANATION OF ANNEXED BUDGETS AND SUPPLEMENTARY MATERIAL

Part III presents detailed schedules and explanatory statements on two Government-sponsored enterprises which are outside the normal budget process. The annexed budgets have not been reviewed by the President but are presented in the amounts submitted by the agencies.

These enterprises (Federal land banks and Federal home loan banks), although Government-sponsored, are now completely privately owned and therefore excluded from the budget totals. The Federal land bank system, consisting of 12 Federal land banks, is cooperative and is completely farmer-owned. The 12 Federal home loan banks, which are supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, obtain their funds from capital stock, issuance of their own obligations, and deposits of member institutions. The capital stock of these banks is entirely owned by member institutions.

The material in this part is presented in the general format of similar material for public enterprise and trust revolving funds in Part I. No appropriation language appears because action by Congress is not required.

² Includes as redemption of borrowing amounts deposited with the Treasurer of the United States for payment of bonds upon maturity, whether or not they have been presented for payment.

The Federal land banks, through the nearly 700 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These loans are based upon the normal value of the farm offered as security. A loan may not exceed 65% of the value, plus the amount of stock required to be purchased in the associations. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own net worth. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest.

The banks and the associations are under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. All of their expenses are paid from their own resources and thus in no way do they affect the Budget of the United States. The expenses of the Farm Credit Administration are paid by assessments collected from all the banks and associations under its supervision.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947. At June 30, 1967, the bank had over $306 million of privately owned capital stock, and $365 million of retained earnings.

The 12 Federal home loan banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions and their main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan type institutions, and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and enhance their service to the public as savings media and home mortgage lenders in their own communities. Each bank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the banks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1967 the banks extended credit amounting to $2.1 billion and received repayments of $4.5 billion. Advances outstanding on June 30, 1967, totaled $4.3 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On June 30, 1967, $4.6 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include 25% of deposits from members (with total deposits amounting to $1.9 billion on June 30, 1967), and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions, amounting to $1.4 billion at the end of 1967. Funds not immediately needed for advances to members are invested in obligations of the United States or agencies thereof.

The capital stock of the Federal home loan banks is owned entirely by their members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951, and since that time the banks have been owned entirely by their members.

The entire operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a substantial portion of the Board's administrative and other costs.
