Note.—Contingent and other liabilities.—The Company is contingently liable with respect to certain pending suits and claims. In addition, the Company has outstanding at all times certain liabilities of indeterminable amounts, which are recognized in the accounts on an as-paid basis. These liabilities include, principally, commitments for construction work, supplies and services, and death and disability benefits payable under provisions of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act. The maximum liability which could result from outstanding claims and lawsuits is estimated to be $30.4 million. Commitments under uncompleted construction contracts and unfilled purchase orders amounted to $13.3 million at June 30, 1969. Effective May 9, 1969, the Company entered into a 25-year contract with Instituto de Recursos Hidraulicos y Electricacion, an autonomous agency of the Republic of Panama, for the purchase of electric power to be produced by the agency. As of June 30, 1969, the Company's total minimum liability over the remaining period of the contract amounted to about $37 million.

Excludes $18 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Administrator, Health Services and Mental Health Administration, 1969 and 1970, $18 thousand. Excludes $2,589 thousand in 1970 for activities transferred to Office of the Administrator, Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Service, and Salaries and expenses, Office of Community and Field Services. 1969, $2,430 thousand.

The laws administered by the Food and Drug Administration are designed to protect the public against dangerous, misbranded, and adulterated foods, drugs, therapeutic devices, cosmetics, and other products, including pesticides, poisons, toys, and hazardous household substances.

1. Foods.—(a) Grants.—Research and training grants are awarded to State agencies, to universities, and to qualified nonprofit institutions for studies of contamination of foods, including milk and shellfish.

(b) Direct operations.—Within this activity FDA conducts intramural and extramural research, sets product standards, reviews petitions and establishes tolerances for food additives, defines good manufacturing practices, inspects manufacturing and distribution establishments, collects and analyzes samples of marketed foods to ensure that the final product is safe, wholesome, and properly labeled, and takes necessary regulatory actions.

The increase requested will fund additional self-certification efforts and expanded research on drug residues in foods and on the safety of food additives.

2. Drugs and devices.—FDA evaluates all new drugs proposed for experimental testing in humans and again before they are sold to the public. After a drug or device is marketed, FDA reviews reports of adverse reactions, conducts extramural and intramural studies to detect new problems, inspects manufacturing and distribution establishments, collects and analyzes samples of marketed drugs, and takes necessary regulatory actions.

The increase requested will provide for review of an increasing volume of new-drug submissions, collection of additional epidemiological data, and a preliminary survey of the device industry.

3. Product safety.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to universities and to other institutions for the study of accidental poisonings, burns, and other injuries related to the use of potentially hazardous products.

FOOD AND DRUG CONTROL—Continued

(b) Direct operations.—FDA collects and evaluates epidemiological data on injuries involving hazardous products, conducts intramural and extramural studies, inspects manufacturing and distribution establishments, sponsors tests of products that appear unusually dangerous, and takes necessary regulatory actions.

The requested increase will fund the collection and evaluation of additional epidemiological data as well as partial implementation of the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act.

4. Pesticides.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to State agencies, to universities, and to other institutions for the study of health hazards associated with the use of pesticides.

(b) Direct operations.—FDA inspects food firms and collects and analyzes product samples to ensure that foods do not contain unsafe levels of pesticide residues, evaluates all pesticide labels before they are registered by the Department of Agriculture, and conducts research on the health effects of pesticides.

The requested increase will support long-term animal studies on pesticides that have already proven to be hazardous in large dosages.

5. Program direction and management services.—This activity includes FDA's executive and administrative functions: the establishment of policy, the allocation and control of resources, the evaluation of performance, and the support of FDA's operating units in such areas as financial management, personnel, training, and facilities management.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1969, $2,481 thousand; 1970, $6,935 thousand; 1971, $3,167 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $16,816 thousand (1969 adjustments, -$58 thousand); 1969, $29,350 thousand; 1970, $29,350 thousand; 1971, $29,350 thousand.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has the responsibility for the investigation of causes of air pollution, the determination of its effects upon life and property, the development of effective means of prevention and control, the development of air quality criteria, and direct Federal enforcement. The Clean Air Act provides for an approach to these problems through two broad areas of activity: (a) the solution of significant technical problems through research, development, and demonstration, and (b) the application of available technology and control techniques, through a variety of coordinated Federal-State abatement and control measures.

The act places emphasis on regional control of air pollution, primarily as a State responsibility, with requirements for Federal action in regional designation and assistance in the development of State standards. A program of basic and applied research, accelerated development of improved emission control technology, grants-in-aid to air pollution control agencies, direct Federal abatement in specified areas, technical services to States and local agencies, review of State standards and plans, and a training program designed to provide competencies necessary to cope with the complex problem of air pollution, serves to carry out these approaches. The program is accelerated by extensive use of other organizations, both public and private, through grants and contracts.

1. Abatement and control.—Control program grants are made to regional, State, and local air pollution control agencies on a matching basis for the purpose of establishing, developing, improving, and maintaining programs for the prevention and control of air pollution. This activity also includes direct Federal abatement in interstate and intrastate areas, enforcement of Federal automotive vehicle emission standards, technical assistance to States and local governments, the Federal facilities pollution control program, and implementation of the emergency episode provisions of the act. During 1971, emphasis will be directed at coordinating and assisting Federal, State, and local efforts in establishing effective control programs in cooperation with the designation of air quality control regions.

2. Research, development, and demonstrations.—(a) Grants and contracts.—Grants are awarded to universities and other nonprofit institutions to conduct research into air pollution problems. Contracts relating to fuels and vehicles are used to accelerate research and development into new and improved methods, having industrywide application, for the prevention and control of air pollution resulting from the combustion of fuels. Special emphasis will be placed on development of technology for the control of sulfur oxides.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity includes research into the nature and extent of air pollution; its transport and atmospheric behavior; the effects on humans, other biological systems, property, and the atmosphere itself; and improvement in means for controlling pollution. The 1971 program will continue ongoing research in the control of vehicle emissions and sulfur oxides and the development of air quality criteria.

3. Manpower training.—Training and technical personnel for Federal, State, and local government research and control operations is carried out through this activity. Special emphasis is placed on recruitment of technical personnel and short term training for State and local agencies. Training grants are also awarded to universities to support the development and improvement of graduate-level air pollution curricula and to provide student stipends. Fellowship awards support individual postgraduate training in air pollution research and control activities.

4. Program direction and management services.—Overall executive direction and supervision of Federal air pollution activities and formulation of program and administrative policies are carried out under this activity. Direction, supervision, and coordination of administrative services, including financial and personnel management, general services, and facilities planning are also provided under this activity.

The Environmental control appropriation supports a national program for the prevention and control of environmental hazards and health problems in order that man may more efficiently deal with his environment. Particular attention is devoted to solid waste management, occupational safety and health, radiological health, water hygiene, and community environmental management which includes human ecological systems, urban housing hygiene, and the special environmental problems of the Arctic, Appalachia, and other regions. These activities are carried out through research, training, and fellowship grants to universities, nonprofit institutions, and individuals; demonstration and planning grants to State, interstate, and local agencies in support of solid waste management programs; and direct Federal operations.

1. Solid waste management.—The solid wastes program is designed to insure proper health protection and improved solid wastes disposal practices and technology through research, training, demonstration, development, and systems planning. Technical assistance is provided to States and communities throughout the Nation to improve solid waste management practices through application of existing technology and management techniques and through utilization of improved methods and equipment for collecting, processing, recycling, and disposing of solid wastes. In 1971 special emphasis will be placed on finding ways to insure that the costs of solid waste management are borne by those who generate the wastes.

2. Occupational health.—Research and training is conducted and assistance provided to Federal, State, and local agencies, and to industry for prevention and control of occupational hazards and diseases. The 1971 increase will provide for the development of criteria for standards to control the health problems related to cotton dust, coal dust, uranium radiation, and noise.

3. Radiological health.—This activity has the responsibility for conducting a national program for the control and prevention of radiological hazards to public health, involving research on the sources, levels, and effects of radiation. Criteria and standards are developed and enforced as a means of protecting the public. A training program is utilized to provide the competencies needed in the expanding area of radiation protection and control. Technical assistance is provided to State and local agencies to aid in the development of their own radiation programs. In 1971 increased attention will be given to the protection of the consumer from hazardous radiation from electronic products.

4. Community environmental management.—This program directs its efforts to managing environmental conditions associated with man's home, neighborhood, metropolitan area, and regional complexities. Assistance is provided to communities through technical consultation, training, demonstrations, establishment of criteria for planning healthful environments for urban areas and the development and application of health standards related to housing.

5. Water hygiene.—The responsibility of this program is to assure that the quality of the Nation's waters intended for drinking, recreation, and other human contact is maintained at safe levels. Through research, training, technical assistance, and standards development, guidance is provided to States and local communities for safeguarding the sanitary quality of water supplies.

6. Program direction and management services.—The Office of the Commissioner of the Environmental Control Administration directs and coordinates the programs of the Administration and furnishes centralized management services. This is accomplished by (a) formulation of administrative and program policies, coordination of research and development activities, and dissemination of information; and (b) provision of management services related to program planning, legislative matters, financial and personnel management, and procurement.

The Office of the Administrator directs, administers and coordinates environmental health activities of the Department. This consists of (1) establishment of basic Service policies, goals and objectives, (2) provision of legislative, public and intergovernmental affairs, and policy compliance functions for the Service, (3) provision of leadership in evaluating and formulating plans related to Service research and development activities, (4) provision and coordination of overall Service program planning, development, implementation and assessment, and (5) provision of Service administrative management planning, direction, coordination, evaluation, and assistance and management consultation to operating programs. The funds requested in 1971 will provide additional resources for regional activities, strengthen the Service's program direction, data processing and accounting staffs, upgrade the data processing system, and increase contractual services.

MENTAL HEALTH

For carrying out the Public Health Service Act with respect to mental health and, except as otherwise provided, the Community Mental Health Centers Act (42 U.S.C. 2681 et seq.), and the Narcotic Addict Rehabilitation Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-793), $346,656,000, of which $15,900,000 shall remain available until June 30, 1972 for grants pursuant to parts A, C, and D of the Community Mental Health Centers Act: Provided, That there may be transferred to this appropriation from the appropriation for "Mental Retardation" an amount not to exceed the sum of the allotment adjustments made by the Secretary pursuant to section 132(c) of the Mental Retardation Facilities Construction Act. (Legislation extending Community Mental Health Centers Act to be proposed.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

1. Research.—(a) Grants.—Grants are awarded on a project basis for behavioral, clinical, psychopharmacology, and applied research in mental illness and health. Clinical research centers, research in special areas such as alcoholism, drug abuse, and violence, and general research support grants are also supported from this subactivity. Approximately 1,361 grants will be supported in 1971 as compared to 1,339 in 1970 and 1,479 in 1969. Hospital improvement projects which are awarded to State institutions for the mentally ill, are designed to improve the quality of care, treatment, and rehabilitation in these institutions. Approximately 66 of these grants will be supported in 1971 as compared to 84 in 1970, and 123 in 1969.

(b) Direct operations.—Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in the behavioral and biological sciences, e.g., psychiatry, socioeconomic studies, neurobiology, and neurochemistry. Additionally there is laboratory and clinical research in special mental health problems of neuropharmacology, clinical psychopharmacology, narcotic addiction, and alcoholism.

This subactivity also supports the planning, development, and administration of grant and contract programs in behavioral sciences research, applied research, clinical research, and psychopharmacological research. It also includes those multi-disciplinary programs which focus and coordinate the Institute's efforts in special areas of concern, such as alcoholism, drug abuse, suicide prevention, crime and delinquency, schizophrenia, and the mental health of children and families.

2. Manpower development.—(a) Training grants and fellowships.—Grants are made to training institutions for training in psychiatry, behavioral sciences, psychiatric nursing, psychiatric social work, and other mental health disciplines. Experimental and special programs and continuing education in the mental health field are included as well as special training in such areas as alcoholism, drug abuse, and suicide prevention. In 1971 approximately 9,157 trainee stipends will be awarded as compared to 9,940 in 1970 and 10,961 in 1969. Fellowship awards are also made on the basis of excellence to individuals involved in mental health research. In 1971 approximately 820 awards will be made as compared to 1,113 in 1970 and 1,185 in 1969.

(b) Direct operations.—Within this subactivity analytic studies of manpower are undertaken and the national mental health training program is coordinated and supported. Emphasis is given to the full range of manpower requirements in the field of mental health including the disciplines of psychiatry, behavioral sciences, psychiatric nursing, and social work. Also funded in this subactivity are the training activities of the National Center for Mental Health Services, Training, and Research, and a program for training psychiatrists for careers in the Public Health Service.

3. State and community programs.—(a) Community mental health centers.—(1) Construction.—Grants are awarded for the construction of public and other nonprofit community mental health centers as authorized by the Community Mental Health Centers Act (Public Law 88-164), as amended.

(2) Staffing.—Grants are awarded on a project basis to eligible community mental health centers for partial support of the operating costs of these centers as authorized by the Community Mental Health Centers Act of 1963, as amended.

(b) Community narcotic addiction and alcoholism rehabilitation programs.—These grants provide partial support for the construction and staffing of facilities for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts and alcoholics. It also provides for grants to nonprofit agencies to cover the cost of developing specialized training programs for prevention and treatment of narcotic addiction and for evaluating narcotic addiction prevention and treatment programs with a view to their improvement.

(c) Direct operations.—The administration and stimulation of the community mental health centers program is undertaken in this subactivity as well as technical program assistance such as the mental hospital improvement program. The nucleus for experimental, model community mental health centers is also funded from this subactivity.

4. Rehabilitation of drug abusers.—This subactivity provides for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts under contract arrangements with community agencies, and in the narcotic hospitals located at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Worth, Tex.

5. Program support activities.—(a) Field activities.—The professional activities related to mental health programs in the DHEW regional offices are funded in this subactivity. It also covers the central office coordination of regional programs and the Institute's relationships with other Federal agencies, professional societies, and State and community organizations.

(b) Scientific communication and public education.—The National Clearinghouse for Mental Health Information which collects and disseminates scientific and technical information in the mental health field and the Institute's public education programs are funded here. Major programs include public information on the dangers of drug abuse and alcoholism.

(c) Executive direction and management services.—Program planning and evaluation, biometric and legislative services, and administrative management are funded in this subactivity.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital provides treatment and care for the mentally ill who are either beneficiaries of the Federal Government or residents of the District of Columbia. Programs of the hospital are financed by Federal appropriations covering treatment and care of Federal beneficiaries and by reimbursements made to the hospital for services rendered other patient groups, principally residents of the District of Columbia. Federal appropriations to the hospital are of the indefinite type, under which the hospital receives in appropriated funds the difference between the amount of reimbursements actually received during the year for patient care provided by the hospital, and the total program costs approved by Congress for the year. During 1969, Saint Elizabeths Hospital was reorganized as the National Center for Mental Health Services, Training, and Research. The goal of the National Center is to provide a model demonstration of the conversion of a large mental hospital into a modern, community-based mental health facility, develop a coordinated and intensified program for the provision of trained mental health personnel, and accelerate research efforts to provide a better understanding of mental illness.

The functions of the National Center are implemented under three divisions. Each division is represented by one of the three activity headings set forth below:

1. Clinical and community services.—This activity consists of the Saint Elizabeths Hospital—Division of Clinical and Community Services. It provides all of the therapeutic and rehabilitative programs of the National Center, maintenance of buildings, procurement of supplies and materials, and provision of necessary administrative services. The hospital is cooperating with the District of Columbia in the establishment and operation of a community mental health center on its campus, in order to serve the residents of the major southeast portion of the District. Average patient load data for Saint Elizabeths Hospital and the Community Mental Health Center follow:

2. Training and education.—During 1969, a portion of the financial support for the National Center's Division of Intramural Training was derived from this activity, with the remainder of the program funded under the manpower development activity of the mental health appropriation. The function of the Division is to provide multidisciplinary clinical training for professional and ancillary personnel engaged in or interested in mental health activities. Effective in 1970, all of the funding for the Division of Intramural Training is being derived from the Mental health appropriation.

3. Research.—During 1969, this activity supported the Division of Clinical Research of the National Center which carries out coordinated research programs for the purpose of obtaining a better understanding of the causes of mental disorders, and of the factors bearing upon their development, treatment, and possible prevention. Effective in 1970, the funding for the Division of Clinical Research was transferred to the research activity of the mental health appropriation.

The National Center for Health Services Research and Development has been established as the principal agency within the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to improve the organization, delivery, and financing of health services by stimulating and supporting research, research and development, demonstrations, and related training. The National Center is focusing on national priority problems in health services such as rising costs, unequal distribution and utilization of health services, inadequate methods for planning and decision making, and shortages of professional personnel. To make progress in solving these problems, both basic studies and action-oriented research and development are essential. To increase the number of people and institutions capable of conducting such studies and projects, research training and the development of research capabilities in academic and community organizations are supported.

1. Studies training and systems development—

(a) Grants and contracts.—Funds are provided to carry out large-scale R. & D. projects for the specific purpose of increasing the availability and controlling costs of health services. Of the budgeted increase, $10 million will be used to initiate the development of effective health care delivery systems at regional, State, and local levels. The experiments, under the supervision of the National Center, will be conducted jointly with Regional Medical Programs and Comprehensive Health Planning agencies in selected places throughout the Nation. The experiments should result in a number of working models of health care systems which could be utilized, with appropriate modifications, elsewhere in the Nation.

(1) Basic studies.—Grants and contracts are awarded to academic and other research organizations to conduct analyses of economic, social, and technological factors which have a basic effect on the organization, financing, and utilization of health services;

(2) Resource development.—Grants and contracts are awarded to academic institutions for the development of health services research and development resources; and

(3) Training and fellowships.—Grants are awarded to institutions and to qualified scholars for supporting research training programs in the health services field.

(b) Direct operations.—This subactivity provides staff with the operational capability for both extramural and intramural research programs. It permits utilization of Federal direct health services and federally funded service programs, for the development, testing, and demonstration of improved health services techniques. It determines the strength of the research in such areas as cost containment, economic analysis, the improvement of health service institutions, technology, and community health services systems. The 1971 increase will provide for additional specialized staff to concentrate on the above areas, provide consultative services associated with the Center's program, and develop research training programs in universities and other appropriate settings.

2. Program direction and management services.—This activity includes top management and staff services for the National Center, including central management services.

COMPREHENSIVE HEALTH PLANNING AND SERVICES

To carry out sections 310, 314(a) through 314(e) of the Public Health Service Act, and except as otherwise provided, sections 301 and 311 of the Act, $247,178,000: Provided, That $4,320,000 may be transferred to this appropriation as authorized by section 201(g)(1) of the Social Security Act, as amended, from any one or all of the trust funds referred to therein, and may be expended for functions delegated to the Administrator of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration under title XVIII of the Social Security Act. (Authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

This appropriation encompasses a comprehensive nationwide program directed to improving the quality, quantity, effectiveness, and availability of health services in all settings. This will be accomplished through the following:

1. Partnership for health grants.—(a) Planning.—(1) Formula grants for comprehensive health planning. These grants are awarded to States based on population and per capita income to provide a framework in which health needs and resources can be analyzed and alternative courses of action recommended. Agencies have been established in each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia and five territories. Most State planning agencies have completed the organizational phase of their activities and have become involved in substantive planning and priority setting. The studies by the planning agencies provide a basis upon which future expenditures of health resources in the State can be rationalized. Initial areas of emphasis include health manpower, health information systems, health facilities, and health services to the poor. Federal financial participation cannot exceed 75% of the costs.

(2) Project grants for areawide comprehensive health planning. Through project grants to public or private nonprofit groups to establish an areawide health planning agency, a community has the opportunity to develop a coherent and efficient areawide health system. Such groups as private health practitioners, hospitals, medical schools, voluntary health agencies, local governments, consumers and specialized planning groups now work through an institutionalized forum to reach agreement on local priorities for facility, service, and manpower development. Federal support cannot exceed 75% of the costs. In 1971, support will be provided for 113 areawide health planning groups now underway and to initiate development of approximately 12 new agencies.

(3) Project grants for training, studies, and demonstrations for comprehensive health planning. These grants provide support for both long-term and short-term training of health planners. Approximately 20 long-term academic programs are being supported which will train an estimated 270 students in such areas as basic concepts of health, planning theories and techniques, urban sociology and social problems in society today. The grants also support demonstration projects for the development of citizen representatives to serve effectively on health planning bodies.

(b) Formula grants to States for health services.—These bloc grants to State health and mental health authorities assist the States in attacking those health problems they consider of most immediate importance. The State plan for carrying out these programs must be in accord with the overall plans developed by the State comprehensive health planning agency. At least 15% of the funds must support mental health activities. Additionally, 70% of all funds must be made available for the provision of health services at the local level. An analysis of the 1970 State plans indicates that States are becoming much more concerned with systems for delivery of health services and are reassessing their needs and priorities for health services. Several States are placing major emphasis on expansion of their home health services, another describes its major priority as the need to expand services related to family planning, environmental and dental health. Still another State depicts a redirection of funds into such areas as drug abuse and suicide prevention. An increasing number of States are developing effective systems for making funds available to local officials and voluntary agencies for the support of health programs at the community level.

A review of the 1970 State plans for tuberculosis control activities shows increased financial support ranging from 10% to 30%, due to the expanded Federal grant and the shift of program focus from Federal to State responsibility.

Up to 1% of the amount appropriated for formula grants may be used for evaluation of programs supported by the grants.

(c) Project grants for health services development.—These grants provide support for activities to meet special regionally or nationally determined needs. The highest priority is the support of comprehensive health service programs providing primary care and a broad range of ambulatory services. The 1971 program will provide support for about 10 comprehensive health service programs in addition to the 25 now funded with obligations totaling over $32 million. It also includes $30 million for continuation of certain comprehensive health service centers previously funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity. An intensive nationwide rubella immunization program initiated in 1970 will provide immunization for approximately 7 million children directly and an estimated additional 7 million will be immunized through other sources as a result of promotional and motivational efforts. Grants will be awarded to support projects in other areas such as specialized health components supportive of community health programs, rodent control, health activities in Model Cities, and disease control programs. Up to 1% of the amount appropriated for project grants may be used for evaluation of programs supported by the grants.

2. Migrant health program.—Grants are made to finance part of the costs of establishing family health services clinics, to provide short-term hospitalization, and for other projects to improve the health services and health condition of agricultural migrant workers and their families. Through direct operations, the program provides technical assistance to migrant health projects and conducts studies vital to the effectiveness of the program. In 1971, funds will support 143 projects serving 420,000 persons.

3. Standard-setting and resources development.—This activity provides for development of specialized programs in comprehensive health and medical care administration, including the professional health aspects of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and technical assistance for the migrant health grant program. Also included are the activities related to the promotion, consultation, and assistance in the development of the group practice concept.

4. Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for overall executive direction and planning and for administrative management. It also includes analysis and evaluation of program activities and the Community Profile Data Center.

1. Maternal and child health.—This program has as its major goal the provision of health services to mothers and children especially in rural areas or areas suffering from severe economic distress. Through assistance to States, localities, and nonprofit groups it directs primary attention to: (1) reducing infant mortality and otherwise promoting the health of mothers and children; and (2) locating, diagnosing, and treating children who are suffering from crippling or handicapping illnesses.

Infant mortality.—Significant contributions to recent reductions in the Nation's infant mortality rate have been made through the maternal and child health program and the comprehensive maternity and infant care projects. For the Nation as a whole, infant mortality decreased by 14% during the period 1960-68. More than half that decrease occurred during the 2-year period 1966-68. Especially significant reductions are occurring in large cities in which maternity and infant care projects are located.

(a) Grants to States.—Formula grants are made to States for health services as noted below. One half of the amount appropriated must be matched by the States and the remainder is distributed in proportion to financial need of the States, except that not more than 12½% of the appropriation may be used for special project grants.

(1) Maternal and child health services.—Funds are used by States for the extension and improvement of health services for mothers and children.

State and local.....	163.0	163.0	163.0
Total.....	266.5	270.0	278.0

(b) Project grants.—Grants are made to specified agencies to meet up to 75% of the costs of comprehensive health care in three major areas as follows:

(1) Maternity and infant care.—State and local health agencies or other public or nonprofit private organizations operate projects to help reduce infant and maternal mortality and the incidence of mental retardation and other handicapping conditions associated with child-bearing. The existing projects are also serving a demonstrated need to improve the quality and quantity of maternity services to women in low-income areas. Some of the increase for maternity and infant care in 1971 will be used to fund two new projects.

(3) Dental health of children.—State and local agencies and other public or nonprofit groups are eligible to conduct comprehensive dental care projects for children. Approximately 5,000 children are expected to benefit from the funds made available in the program's first year of operation, 1970.

(c) Research and training.—(1) Training.—Grants are made to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning including university-affiliated mental retardation centers for training personnel for health care and related services for mothers and children. (2) Research.—The focus of this program is to support research which shows promise of substantial contribution to the advancement of maternal and child health or crippled children's services and to study the effectiveness of such programs through research grants, contracts, or jointly financed cooperative arrangements.

(d) Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for executive direction, planning and general management of the maternal and child health program.

2. Family planning activities.—One of the most effective measures for reducing infant mortality is through the provision of family planning services which enable women to decide the number and spacing of children they wish to have. Thus, the Child Health Act of 1967 specified that not less than 6% of the amount appropriated for child health shall be available for family planning. In 1971 about 19% of the total maternal and child health appropriation for grants and contracts will be used for this purpose. Emphasis on voluntary family planning will be through the State grant program for maternal and child health services and the special family planning project grant program.

(a) Project grants.—Grants are made to State and local health agencies or other public or nonprofit private organizations to meet up to 75% of the costs of projects to provide family planning services to needy women who may wish such services. About 610,000 women in 1970 and 785,000 in 1971 are expected to benefit from services provided through this project grant program.

(b) Project contracts.—Contracts will support training and studies to develop new and improved methods of delivering services and to review and evaluate existing family planning programs.

(c) Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for operating costs of the National Center for Family Planning Services.

The goal of the Regional Medical Programs Service is to assist the Nation's health sector to provide the best possible care for patients with heart disease, cancer, stroke, and kidney diseases; to conduct education programs directed toward expanding public awareness of the adverse relationship between smoking and health; to identify the nutritional status of the Nation's population, and to develop methods and activities aimed at improving their health through better nutrition.

1. Regional medical programs.—(a) Grants.—The regional medical programs promote and sustain, through grants, the development of regional cooperative arrangements among the Nation's health professions and institutions for: (1) regionalization of health resources and services; and (2) enhancement of the capabilities of providers of care at the community level, and specifically to improve personal health care for persons threatened by heart disease, cancer, stroke, and related diseases. These activities are aimed at improving the quality of health care and strengthening the health care system generally throughout the Nation.

To date, 55 regions encompassing the entire Nation have received planning grants; of these, 44 have been awarded operational grants. Seven of the remaining 11 regions have been recommended for award by the National Advisory Council on Regional medical programs at its August 1969 meeting; the other four regions have submitted their operational grant applications.

In 1971, over 200,000 medical personnel will participate in postgraduate and certificate training programs funded through regional medical program grants, and 210,000 patients will benefit either from improved medical care or expanded health services derived from Regional medical program projects. It is expected that over 6,000 medical schools, hospitals, community health organizations, and other health related institutions will be involved in planning and operational activities supported by Regional medical programs in 1971.

(b) Direct operations.—Funds support review processing and awarding of grants; provide health data required by the central regional medical program service staff and the 55 local regional medical programs in the implementation of their activities; and maintain appropriate relationships with government and private agencies concerned with improving the organization and delivery of health services.

2. Technical assistance and disease control.—These funds will support activities aimed at (a) providing continuing education assistance to the wide range of health occupations in the 55 regions involved in diagnosing and treating heart disease, cancer, and stroke; (b) providing technical and professional assistance to the 55 regional medical programs in the development and implementation of their activities and to promote the application of new concepts, standards, and practices in the areas of heart disease, cancer, stroke, and related diseases; (c) preventing and controlling chronic kidney disease through improvement of artificial kidney treatment and increasingly to use kidney dialysis methods as a step toward more permanent treatment by means of the cadaver transplantation procedure; (d) identifying and assessing the prevalence, location, and causes of malnutrition and assisting local resources in immediate and long-range remedial action; (e) reducing the number of cigarette smokers by stimulating and supporting national, State, and local activities to help those who wish to stop smoking and by encouraging youth not to take up the practice.

In 1970, this activity supported five additional programs—Heart Disease Control, Cancer Control, Diabetes and Arthritis, Neurological and Sensory Diseases, and Respiratory Diseases—which are being eliminated in 1971.

3. Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for a central staff needed in planning, directing, and evaluating the broad scope of program activities that exist in the RMPS; maintains effective communication and information links with the 55 local regional medical programs and the general public; and provides management services such as personnel management, management policy, contract administration, and general administrative services.

This program provides facilities and services for the investigation, prevention, and suppression of communicable diseases, including tuberculosis and venereal diseases, by the direct development, advancement, and demonstration of knowledge and techniques, through research grants, and through the prevention of the introduction of communicable diseases from foreign countries.

1. Prevention and control.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to organizations, institutions, and individuals for research concerned with epidemiology, prevention, laboratory diagnosis, and treatment of communicable diseases at the community level. Approximately 58 research projects will be supported in 1971 as compared to 75 in 1969 and 57 in 1970.

(b) Direct operations.—(1) Communicable diseases.—Scientific and technical skills in the fields of epidemiological medicine and microbiology, are provided to State and local health departments through investigations, consultations, and demonstrations. Important disease investigation and control programs include hepatitis, aseptic meningitis, poliomyelitis, rubella, viral encephalitis, the enteric diseases, staphylococcal and other institutionally acquired infections, the acute fungal diseases, diseases of animals transmissible to man, and the vector borne diseases. Professional competence in the investigation of epidemic outbreaks is afforded to the States through the staff of the Epidemic Intelligence Service which is constantly alert to the epidemic situation in the country. These EIS officers provide a wide range of service, including epidemic aid, epidemiological field investigations, consultations in communicable disease control, surveillance of infectious diseases, and collaborative field and laboratory research.

(2) Tuberculosis.—Studies are conducted in epidemiology, prevention, detection, diagnosis, and therapy of tuberculosis. This research is conducted in cooperation with State and local health departments, tuberculosis hospitals, private investigators and others. The results of the applied research are made available to the States and integrated into tuberculosis control programs by means of demonstrations, consultative services, operational studies, and training activities.

(3) Venereal diseases.—Research and evaluation activities are directed toward maintenance of uniformly satisfactory nationwide serologic services; development and introduction of new syphilis diagnostic tests; development of an immunizing agent for syphilis; improvement of diagnostic techniques for gonorrhea; evaluation of more effective methods of therapy; and the improvement of control procedures. Scientific and general information about venereal disease for both professional and lay groups is disseminated through State agencies.

(4) Foreign quarantine.—Certain visa applicants are examined in order to determine those who are excludable for physical or mental reasons. Other inspections (persons and importations) are made to prevent the introduction into the United States of quarantinable and other communicable diseases.

Basic workload data are:

2. Laboratory improvement.—A comprehensive national laboratory improvement program is administered through research for improving and standardizing laboratory methodology and through evaluation of techniques, materials, and reagents used in public health laboratories. States are provided experimental vaccines and special immune globulin is distributed to prevent and control laboratory infections. States are also provided consultation, training, and informational services in laboratory techniques. The program provides for upgrading the performance of the Nation's clinical laboratories and for the licensure and evaluation of clinical laboratories engaged in interstate commerce.

3. Program direction and management services.—This activity includes top management and staff services for the National Center.

NOTES

Excludes $30 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Administrator, 1969, $0; 1970, $30 thousand.
Includes $72 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from Office of Community and Field Services, Salaries and expenses, 1969, $47 thousand; 1970, $48 thousand.

Federal funds are provided on a grant or loan basis to assist States, other public agencies, and nonprofit organizations in the construction or modernization of hospitals and other health facilities. Funds are also provided for payment of interest subsidies for guaranteed loans.

1. Construction grants.—Federal funds are provided for the construction of rehabilitation facilities, diagnostic or treatment centers, public health centers, and related health facilities. The $50 million requested for 1971 will provide a $150 million program for that year, assuming that the Federal participation will average 33½%, and will provide construction grants for the type of facilities for which suitable alternative means of financing are not available. The availability of diagnostic or treatment centers and rehabilitation facilities reduces the need to construct expensive bed-care institutions.

2. Direct and guaranteed loans.—A new program of loans for the construction and modernization of hospitals and other medical facilities is authorized. This method of financing takes into consideration the increasing ability of hospitals to generate revenue to repay loans. This new financial status comes about by the increasing and substantial depreciation allowances being paid to hospitals and other health facilities by the medicare and medicaid programs and the increasing moneys being provided by various third-party insurers. Direct loans would be made to public institutions; guaranteed loans to private nonprofit agencies. Both direct loans and the guaranteed loan fund would be allotted to the States annually on the basis of population, financial need, and need for additional health facilities and modernization. Direct loans would be at a reduced interest rate but the maximum loan or combination of loan and grant could not exceed 90% of the cost of a project. The amount of $30 million is requested to initiate this program.

3. Interest subsidies.—The interest on guaranteed loans by non-Federal lenders to nonprofit private agencies for modernization or construction of hospitals, long-term care facilities, and diagnostic or treatment centers will be subsidized with Federal funds. This subsidy will reduce the cost of mortgage money to these agencies and limit the need for direct Federal grants for construction of certain health facilities. The $5 million requested for 1971 will assist these agencies with the annual interest on about $400 million of loans authorized for the program.

4. District of Columbia medical facilities.—Public Law 90-457 authorizes grants and loans to assist public and private nonprofit medical facilities in the District of Columbia to meet the cost of projects for the construction or modernization of public health centers, long-term care facilities, including extended care facilities, diagnostic or treatment centers, rehabilitation facilities, facilities for the mentally retarded, and community mental health centers. No funds are being requested for 1971.

5. Program direction and technical assistance.—State agencies are provided technical assistance in determining additional facilities required, and developing programs to meet the indicated needs. State plans and their annual revisions are reviewed for conformance with planning criteria and guidelines. Assistance is provided to States and communities in the planning, programing, design and functioning of hospital and other health facilities, and proposed projects are reviewed to determine eligibility and compliance with the law and regulations. Construction projects are inspected and payments are made as construction progresses. In addition, the program provides program management assistance, consultation, and architectural and engineering assistance to construction projects assisted under the Health Manpower Act, health facilities assisted under sections 202 and 214 of the Appalachian Redevelopment Administration and rehabilitation facilities assisted under section 12 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

NOTES

Excludes $77 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Administrator. 1969, $61 thousand; 1970, $77 thousand.

Includes $82 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from Office of Community and Field Services, Salaries and expenses. 1969, $54 thousand; 1970, $55 thousand.

A total of nine hospitals and 244 outpatient facilities are operated to furnish medical and dental care to legal beneficiaries of the Public Health Service. The major beneficiary groups are American seamen, Coastguardsmen and their dependents, Bureau of Employees' Compensation cases, and persons afflicted with leprosy. Among these, the largest single category is the American seamen who receive comprehensive medical care in service facilities for all conditions. At any given time, it is estimated that 171,000 seamen are eligible to receive this care. This group of beneficiaries constitutes 55% of the annual inpatient hospital load and about 34% of the outpatient visit workload. Medical care is also provided to foreign seamen and beneficiaries of other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis.

1. Operation of hospitals and clinics.—Operating under this activity are eight general hospitals, and the National Leprosarium at Carville, La. In addition, 30 outpatient clinics and 214 contract physicians handle ambulatory patients at these clinics and physicians' offices, respectively. Inpatient loads and outpatient visits as experienced during the past year and as expected during the next 2 years are shown below:

In addition to the direct provision of medical services, the Public Health Service hospitals are actively participating in efforts to improve health services in the local community. In 1971 over 600 professionals and 1,300 allied health personnel will receive clinical training in these facilities. Under section 328 of the Partnership for Health Amendments, the Federal Health Programs Service is cooperating in the operation of a neighborhood health center, a metropolitan areawide student mental health program and a community family planning clinic. Current plans are to expand community health activities in 1971.

2. Medical care for special groups.—(a) Coast Guard.—Medical services are provided for Coast Guard personnel at shore stations and on vessels and include care in Public Health Service and other Federal facilities and care in contract facilities in areas where there are no Federal facilities available.

(b) Federal employees.—This activity provides consultation to and surveys of Federal agencies upon request on the conduct of Federal employees occupational health programs. Federal employee health programs are operated for Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis, on request. In 1971, it is expected that 107 such programs will be operated, serving more than 175,000 Federal employees.

3. Payment to Hawaii.—Grants are made to Hawaii to defray the cost of care and treatment of persons afflicted with leprosy. Average daily patient load is expected to be 194 in 1971, compared with 232 in 1969 and 202 in 1970.

4. Personnel detailed to other agencies.—Medical, dental and other professional personnel are detailed to other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis.

5. Program direction and management services.—Staff program advice, guidance and direction, along with management services, are provided operational personnel and facilities with regard to the efficient and effective conduct of program activities.

Note.—Year(s) in parentheses represents base year.

1. Patient care.—This activity consists of the operation of 49 general hospitals and their outpatient clinics and two tuberculosis sanatoria and medical care under contract with non-Federal hospitals, clinics, private physicians, and dentists, as well as contractual arrangements with State and local health organizations.

In 1971 a new (replacement) medical center at Phoenix, Ariz., will be in full operation. In addition, a pilot inpatient mental health program will be implemented at the Gallup Medical Center, Gallup, N. Mex., and the dietetic program will be expanded to extend the patient education services.

Workloads for the total program are expected to be as follows:

Direct care in Federal hospitals and clinics:
Inpatient load by type of patient:	1969 actual	1971 estimate	1970 estimate
General patients.....	1,724	1,685	1,720

2. Field health services.—These include programs in sanitation, health education, nutrition, maternal and child health, school health, tuberculosis, and other communicable disease control, medical social services, public health nursing, oral health, family planning, and mental health. The services are provided through health centers, clinics, and other field health units operated directly by the Indian Health Service, as well as through contractual arrangements with State and local health organizations. It is estimated that new school health centers at Many Farms, Teec Nos Pos, Beshbitoh (Toyei), and Dilkon, Ariz., and Sanostee, N. Mex.; health stations at White Shield, N. Dak.; San Felipe, N. Mex.; Wellpinit, Wash.; Selawik, Noorvik, and Savoonga, Alaska; Rock Point, Ariz.; and Red Water, Miss.; and health centers at Lapwai, Idaho; Four Bears Park, N. Dak.; Wanblee, S. Dak. and Neah Bay, Wash., will be completed in 1971. A program initiated in 1969 to train Indians as community health representatives providing educational, sanitation, and referral services to the Indian population will be continued. In addition to expanding the mental health program, a program to train Indians as nutrition aides will be initiated in 1971.

3. Special assistance to the Menominee Indian people.—A 4-year program to assist the Menominee Indian people of Menominee County, Wis., was authorized by Public Law 89-653. This program terminated in 1970. The assistance covered joint school district costs and public welfare benefits as well as health and sanitation services.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $15,121 thousand (1969 adjustments, -$11 thousand); 1969, $20,250 thousand; 1970, $25,261 thousand; 1971, $14,528 thousand.

1. Hospitals.—(a) New and replacement.—The completion of the 200-bed Indian Medical Center at Phoenix, Ariz., and the planning funds for the 125-bed replacement hospital at Tuba City, Ariz., are reflected in the 1970 program. No additional projects are requested in 1971. (b) Modernization and repair.—Included in the estimate are completion of the following projects in 1970 and 1971: a dental addition at Gallup Hospital, N. Mex.; a shop incinerator at the Talihina, Okla., hospital; space rearrangement at the Anchorage, Alaska, hospital; and completion of several other projects of a lesser magnitude. No new projects are included in 1971.

2. Outpatient care facilities.—Completion of projects in 1970 and 1971 is anticipated for (1) health centers at Four Bears, N. Dak.; Many Farms, Ariz.; Teec Nos Pos, Ariz.; Wanblee, S. Dak., and Neah Bay, Wash.; (2) health stations and school clinics at 11 locations; and (3) a dental addition at Santo Domingo, N. Mex., and ambulance storage at Toppenish, Wash. No new projects are requested in 1971.

3. Grants to community facilities.—The estimate reflects continuation of construction of a community hospital in Fairbanks, Alaska, that was initiated in 1970. No new projects are requested in 1971.

4. Sanitation facilities.—Pursuant to Public Law 86-121, funds are included for provision of sanitation facilities to serve Federal and tribal housing programs and to serve residents of rancherias, reservations, and land allotments in California.

5. Personnel quarters.—Completion of 60 units of quarters in 1970 and 1971 is contained in the estimate. Fifty-two of the units are in association with outpatient care facilities being constructed in 1970 and 1971. No new quarters funds are requested for 1971.

NOTES

Includes $670 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from Patient care and special health services, 1969, $569 thousand; 1970, $532 thousand.

Includes $55 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from: Office of Community and Field Services, Salaries and expenses, 1969, $36 thousand; 1970, $36 thousand.

1. Medical stockpile.—The goal of this activity is to provide essential medical material for civilian needs in time of disaster. Medical supplies and equipment have been assembled into emergency packaged disaster hospitals which are located throughout the United States in affiliation with community hospitals. In 1971, 2,150 such packaged disaster hospitals will be pre-positioned throughout the Nation. Selective medical supplies have been placed in community hospitals to meet heavy disaster medical care workloads. The estimate for 1971 provides a program for the accountability and maintenance of the medical stockpile inventories.

2. Community preparedness.—Programs are inaugurated and maintained to support the preparation of national emergency health and medical plans, and the development of preparedness action projects to achieve a continuity of health services necessary to meet all conditions of a national emergency. The estimate for 1971 provides for a program to assist States and communities during disaster situations; continue the development of plans and operational capability for civilian health manpower as well as utilization and distribution of health resources; develop and initiate disaster management services; and continue the operation of training programs at the State and local level. In 1971, 30,000 persons in all 50 States will be trained in programs supported by the emergency health appropriation.

3. Program direction and management services.—Total program control is provided for the organization and planning of programs that will afford adequate medical care for individuals in medical emergencies. The estimate for 1971 provides for a continuing activity that furnishes program direction, coordination and management services to carry out the total emergency health preparedness program. Working relationships are to be maintained with professional organizations and other Government agencies for the development of an effective disaster readiness program for the civilian population.

This fund finances medical supply and service operations of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration. It is reimbursed from the appropriations supporting the programs benefited (42 U.S.C. 231).

Budget program.—The principal activities of the fund are the: (a) Supply Service Center at Perry Point, Md., which maintains inventories of medical stock and supplies to meet, in part, the requirements of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration and requisitions of other Government organizations; (b) Office of Financial Management and the Office of Systems Management which finance accounting and auditing services and data processing services for Headquarters Offices of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration; (c) Publications Storage and Distribution Center at Rockville, Md., which stores and issues publications relating to the health and well being of the individual; (d) Office of Central Services which provides common services to the programs occupying the Parklawn Building at Rockville, Md. This fund is to be reimbursed from applicable appropriations or funds available when services are performed or stock furnished on the basis of rates which includes estimated or actual charges for personal services, materials, equipment (including maintenance, repairs, and depreciation), and other expenses.

Operating results.—Retained earnings which amounted to $1,157 thousand as of June 30, 1969, are being retained in the fund against the possibility of future losses.

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

The National Institutes of Health is the primary arm of the U.S. Government in the support of biomedical research, education, and communications. Most of the advances in medical science in recent years have benefited either directly or indirectly from the activities of the NIH, whose mission is investigating basic life processes, advancing the capability for the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of disease and supporting the development of adequate health research, educational, and communications resources.

In 1971, the National Institutes of Health will initiate or expand its activities in several areas. In a major program expansion, the National Cancer Institute will increase research on viruses as the cause of cancer with the aim of developing a vaccine or other means for preventing virus-induced cancers. The National Heart and Lung Institute will initiate a national effort to predict and control the relationship between risk factors and the incidence of diseases of the heart and lungs. The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development will expand research on diseases and other factors affecting the health of infants and children and will increase efforts to develop safe and effective contraceptives. The National Institute of Dental Research will expand research efforts to understand the cause, and develop a means of preventing, dental caries. Research on the biological effects of environmental pollutants will be increased by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences and on eye diseases and disorders by the National Eye Institute. Biomedical research on other diseases and disorders will be continued at about the 1970 level by the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke, and the National Institute of General Medical Sciences.

The missions of the research institutes and divisions are carried out through the following funding mechanisms: Research grants are awarded to individual researchers in support of projects which have been reviewed by study groups composed of outstanding scientists, recommended for their high scientific merit and approved by disease-oriented national advisory councils. Fellowships are awarded to promising individuals preparing for a research career in the biomedical sciences. Training grants are awarded to academic or research institutions which have demonstrated the ability to design and conduct successful training programs in one or more of the biomedical sciences.

In addition to grants, the research institutes and divisions of NIH support biomedical research through Direct operations which can be categorized as follows: Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in the institutes' laboratory facilities and in a commonly shared clinical center facility. Collaborative research and development projects are conducted by NIH researchers in collaboration with other Federal and non-Federal institutions largely through contracts and thus are strongly oriented toward the solution of specific health problems in areas where the state of knowledge is sufficiently advanced to permit a more directed approach. Other activities under direct operations include biometry, epidemiology, and field studies, international research, and biologics standards, and will be discussed under their respective appropriations. Funds are also included for program direction, research support and service activities, and review and approval of grants.

In 1971, increased efforts will be made to expand the supply of trained health manpower by assisting the institutions responsible for health education to expand enrollments. The Bureau of Health Professions Education and Manpower Training provides a national focus for health manpower activities, and supports programs designed to enlarge and improve the pool of qualified health manpower through institutional support grants, student assistance awards, and research grants and direct operations which evaluate and support special studies related to health manpower requirements and utilization. The National Library of Medicine serves as a national resource for biomedical information and as a focus for national planning to improve communications in the health sciences. Construction grants are provided on an individual project basis to public and other nonprofit agencies or organizations to assist in the construction of new facilities and the expansion, rehabilitation and modernization of existing facilities for teaching, for research in the sciences related to health, and for medical library facilities. Appropriations for Buildings and facilities support construction, renovation and maintenance of NIH laboratory clinical and administrative facilities while that for Office of the Director supports salaries and expenses for the staff of the Director's office, NIH.

The biomedical research and health manpower programs which will be initiated or expanded in 1971 will be supported largely through research grants, direct operations of the research institutes (principally collaborative R. & D. contracts), and the programs of the Bureau of Health Professions Education and Manpower Training. A distribution of obligations for the NIH follows (in thousands of dollars):

NOTES

Includes $687 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred from General research and services.
Excludes $1,455 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Director, NIH.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 1,005 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 1,005 in 1970 and 1,100 in 1969. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants and specialized research centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 154 postdoctoral and special fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 172 in 1970 and 225 in 1969. Also some 69 career award and career development fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 76 in 1970 and 94 in 1969.

(c) Training.—Grants are awarded to accredited schools for the improvement of instruction in the curriculum; clinical training grants are awarded for training in such fields as surgery, pathology, radiobiology, radiotherapy, and internal medicine; and grants are awarded to research training centers for individual traineeships. The following table summarizes those grants:

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $1,021 thousand; 1969, $1,000 thousand; 1970, $1,000 thousand; 1971, $1,000 thousand.

Note.—Includes $282 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred from General Research and Services, 1970, $281 thousand.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants support fundamental, clinical, and applied research studies in such areas as dental caries, periodontal disease, oral-facial growth and development and dental restorative materials. Support is furnished for studies designed to advance scientific frontiers and exploit emerging research opportunities including: (1) investigation of the interplay of host, dietary, and microbiotic factors in dental caries; (2) development of more effective therapeutic and preventive measures in periodontal disease; (3) development of treatment procedures and determination of preventive measures for oral-facial anomalies; and (4) work on the immediate problems of dental treatment through development of new and improved restorative materials and clinical methods. In addition, support is furnished for clinical research centers, dental research institutes, and general research support grants.

Approximately 232 project grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 231 in 1970 and 271 in 1969.

(b) Fellowships.—Funds for fellowships are used for support of clinical and basic research training. Applications under this program are for special fellowships, predoctoral and postdoctoral fellowships, and career development and career awards. Eighty-two fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 97 in 1970 and 121 in 1969.

(c) Training.—Training funds are the principal means of meeting the need for dental research and academic personnel in the dental schools to teach clinical and basic sciences, and to conduct research. Eighty-four grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 89 in 1970 and 97 in 1969.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research studies conducted in Institute facilities are concerned with the causes, treatment, control, and prevention of such dental diseases and disorders as caries, periodontal disease, oral-facial anomalies and oral cancer. Three primary approaches are used: (1) Basic research directed at the acquisition of new knowledge as a means of solving dental health problems; (2) field studies and clinical trials of new therapeutic and prevention concepts coming out of basic research; and (3) further studies on the definition and distribution of oral-facial diseases and disorders on an epidemiologic or geographic basis. Much of this research will make direct contributions to the recently initiated National Caries Program.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—The programs in this activity involve contracts with public and private research and development organizations. Primary objectives include the development of new and improved dental restorative materials and support of the National Caries program.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—These activities are concerned with the planning, conduct, and analysis of epidemiological and field investigations concerning such matters as prevalence of oral disease, and effectiveness of new or improved methods of diagnosis, control and prevention. A number of the studies conducted will be integral parts of the National Caries program.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $7,236 thousand; 1969, $8,457 thousand; 1970, $8,457 thousand; 1971, $8,457 thousand.

NOTES

Includes $705 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from General Research and Services.

Excludes $5 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Director. 1969, $5 thousand; 1970, $5 thousand.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 2,066 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 2,105 in 1970, and 2,226 in 1969. Funds are also provided for general research support grants and clinical research centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 279 fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 309 in 1970 and 459 in 1969.

(c) Training.—During 1971 it is estimated that 252 grants will be awarded to accredited schools for the improvement of instruction. This compares to 270 and 302 grants in 1970 and 1969, respectively.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Research is conducted in the fields of arthritis, rheumatism, diabetes, and other metabolic disorders, as well as studies in the major disciplines including pharmacology, physiology, biochemistry, nutrition, chemistry, pathology, endocrinology, physical biology, molecular biology, chemical biology, gastroenterology, hematology, and biomathematics.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Collaborative research and development projects are conducted cooperatively and under contract with individuals and institutions, including programs in scientific communications, such as the preparation of abstracts on specific areas of research interests; research and development conducted cooperatively and under contract leading to improved methods of hemodialysis and the development of a simpler, more economical and less cumbersome artificial kidney; and projects directed toward the preparation and distribution of hormonal substances.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—Research and epidemiological studies are conducted on arthritis, diabetes, cholecystitis, iodine metabolism, and hyperuremia in American Indians and other special population groups, primarily long-range studies in the southwestern United States.

NOTES

Includes $678 thousand in 1969 for activities transferred to Office of the Director, National Institutes of Health.

Includes $414 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred from General Research and Services, 1970, $411 thousand.

Excludes $6 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Director.

Excludes $25,686 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to National Eye Institute. 1969, $21,519 thousand; 1970, $23,685 thousand.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 1,231 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 1,250 in 1970 and 1,792 in 1969. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants; clinical research center grants; and specialized research center grants.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 119 fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 132 in 1970 and 244 in 1969.

(c) Training.—Approximately 194 graduate training grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 228 in 1970 and 311 in 1969. These grants are made to training institutions to establish and improve programs to train teachers and clinical investigators in neurology, ophthalmology, and otology. Approximately 157 traineeships will be awarded to individuals for specialized postgraduate training in 1971 compared to 157 in 1970 and 234 in 1969.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Research is being conducted on disorders of the brain, and spinal cord and peripheral nerves, such as epilepsy, multiple sclerosis, apoplexy, and Parkinson's disease; on neuromuscular disorders, such as muscular dystrophy; hearing impairments; and the perinatal physiology studies using primates.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—These studies include the coordination and central service activities for the collaborative project on cerebral palsy, mental retardation, and other neurological and sensory disorders of childhood. Also included is the Institute's research programs on head injury and epilepsy.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—These studies include epidemiological, biometric, and international studies relating to cerebrovascular disease, speech and hearing disorders, and research on viruses and their effect on the central nervous system.

(d) Training activities.—Support is given for inservice training of qualified staff members in subjects related to neurological and other sensory disorders.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Funds available for 1971 will support approximately 1,219 awards compared to 1,204 grants in 1970 and 1,222 grants in 1969. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants, clinical research centers, Gorgas Memorial Laboratory and International Centers for Medical Research and Training.

(b) Fellowships.—An estimated 182 awards will be made in 1971 compared to 205 awards in 1970 and 280 actual awards in 1969.

(c) Training.—Funds in 1971 will provide approximately 153 grants to train 918 individuals in allergy and immunology, tropical medicine, infectious diseases, parasitology, mycology, and rickettsiology. This compares with 153 grants and 900 individuals in 1970 and compares with 173 grants and 1,038 individuals in 1969.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—This research is conducted in the broad fields of allergic immunology, chronic and degenerative, and viral diseases. Current studies are concentrated on the natural antiviral substance—interferon—and its inducers. Immunological studies are concerned with the problems of allergy, transplanted organ rejection, mechanisms of protection against infections, and prevention of autoimmune disease.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Contracts are programmed in the areas of vaccine development and testing; research reagents development; production and distribution; tissue transplantation immunology and for the geographic medical science program.

(c) Training activities.—This activity was established to provide 2-year training of promising young scientists to work abroad as members of the U.S. biomedical research groups in medical research related to problems of an international nature which cannot ordinarily be undertaken in the United States.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $4,526 thousand; 1969, $6,293 thousand; 1970, $6,293 thousand; 1971, $6,293 thousand.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 863 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 762 in 1970 and 867 in 1969. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants, clinical research centers, and mental retardation research centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 79 postdoctoral and special fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 82 in 1970 and 172 in 1969. Also, some 112 career awards and career development fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 112 in 1970 and 101 in 1969.

(c) Training.—Approximately 154 training grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 133 in 1970 and 151 in 1969.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in five major program areas of child health and human development. Reproduction and population research—reproductive biology, endocrinology and ecology. Perinatal biology and infant mortality—maternal-child interactions; maturation of motor and behavioral systems; nutrition and development. Growth and development—neurophysiology, neurochemistry, and nutrition. Adult development and aging—cellular biology, biochemistry, physiology, and psychology. Mental retardation—biochemistry, neurophysiology, and behavioral research.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Supplements the Institute's five research programs primarily through the contract mechanism. The research conducted is usually Institute initiated and is directed toward gaps in existing research or to expand on current studies of either the intramural program or the research grant program. This activity provides one of the most effective ways for coordinating program development in the five program areas. The main thrust of the Institute's population research program is accomplished through contract efforts within this activity. In addition to the contract activities, program liaison is maintained and advanced through support of interdisciplinary research conferences and symposia and through Scientific Information Centers.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—Through contracted research, this activity supports the Institute's scientific staff in planning and conducting studies dealing with the incidence, distribution and control of health problems in certain populations. Efforts are also being made to develop more effective and reliable means for measuring health problems, to collect and analyze health data and to make statistical studies for use in initiating and evaluating scientific programs.

(d) Training activities.—This activity represents the NICHD career development program designed to help overcome the shortages of professional manpower in pediatrics and obstetrics and the lack of the necessary cross-disciplinary training required in the basic research programs of the Institute.

NOTES

Includes $23,685 in 1970 and $25,686 in 1971 for activities previously financed from: "National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke." 1969, $21,519. Includes $110 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred from General Research and Services. 1970, $107 thousand.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 387 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 341 in 1970. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants and categorical clinical research center grants.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 38 fellowships will be supported in 1971 compared to 40 in 1970.

(c) Training.—Approximately 60 graduate training grants, with 300 trainees, will be supported in 1971. Comparable numbers of grants and trainees were 63 and 315 in 1970. These grants are made to training institutions to establish and improve programs to prepare clinical investigators and laboratory scientists for research and academic careers in disorders of the eye and visual system.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Research is conducted to increase available knowledge on disorders of the eye and visual system through a multidisciplinary blend of fundamental laboratory studies with clinical research aimed directly at specific vision disorders such as glaucoma, diseases of the retina and choroid, cataracts, and uveitis.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Funds will support various studies including those dealing with manpower needs and biomedical communications.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—This activity supports the national vision research effort through the design of collaborative studies and biostatistical consultation with in-house and extramural programs. Causal factors of vision disorders are also sought by studies of population groups.

NOTES

Includes $232 thousand in 1969 for activities transferred in 1970 to Office of the Director.
Includes $500 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from General Research and Services. 1969, $500 thousand; 1970, $162 thousand.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 129 regular research grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 107 in 1970 and 103 in 1969. There will be seven Environmental Health Centers supported in 1971 compared to six in 1970. This activity supports research on the phenomena associated with the source, distribution, mode of entry, and effect of environmental agents on biological systems through grants to universities, research institutes, and other public or private nonprofit institutions.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 17 awards will be supported in 1971 compared to 12 in 1970 and 20 in 1969. Under the fellowship program, predoctoral, postdoctoral, special, and research career development awards are made to graduate students and scientists for training in the field of environmental health sciences.

(c) Training.—Approximately 46 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 50 in 1970 and 45 in 1969. The graduate research training program supports the availability of high quality training opportunities in environmental health. It has a threefold goal: (1) To increase the number of highly qualified scientists primarily concerned with environmental health; (2) to enable training institutions to strengthen and to enrich the research training capabilities; and (3) to expand opportunities for environmental health research training in a greater number of graduate institutions throughout the United States.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—This activity supports the in-house research programs in environmental health sciences at the National Environmental Health Sciences Center in the Research Triangle Park, N.C. Included are research efforts in cell biology, pharmacology and toxicology, analytical and synthetic chemistry, biophysics and biomedical instrumentation, animal science and technology, pathologic physiology, epidemiology, biometry, epidemiologic pathology, and scientific information as well as the supporting services for these laboratories and branches.

(b) Review and approval of grants.—The scientific and administrative staff responsible for the review, negotiation, processing, and awarding of all grants is supported by this activity.

(c) Program direction.—This activity supports the office of the director of the Institute and scientific administrative staff who assist in the planning, supervision, and technical direction of the program.

The primary function of the International Center, which will be located at the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., is to create the environment and provide the means to bring together scholars, scientists, and innovative minds for advanced study of the development of science as it relates to health and its implications for the future. Specifically, the Center administers a fellowship program to provide support for the broad international exchange of individuals for teaching, research, and study in the health and related sciences. It also administers the International Postdoctoral Research Fellowship program and its complementary program of grants to returning fellows. It serves as the focal point of the Special Foreign Currency (Public Law 480) program for the National Institutes of Health. Further, the International Center provides leadership in planning and organizing conferences, seminars, and working scientific sessions developed around the major scientific problems, opportunities, trends, and developments to facilitate the progress of knowledge and to explore its implications for society. In addition, the International Center serves as the central point for reception and assistance of foreign scientists and other international visitors to the National Institutes of Health.

1. Operations.—(a) Grants.—(1) Research (Project).—Funds will support approximately 52 grants in 1971 as compared to 52 grants in 1970. In addition, funds are provided for scientific evaluation. (2) Fellowships.—Approximately 81 fellowships will be supported in 1971 as compared to 119 in 1970.

(b) International Center.—Provides for the executive direction or planning and coordinating of all international activities of the National Institutes of Health, including operation of overseas offices and international seminars and conferences.

HEALTH MANPOWER

To carry out, to the extent not otherwise provided, sections 301, 306, 309, 311, title VII, and title VIII of the Public Health Service Act, $242,234,000: Provided, That no institutional grants shall be made to schools of veterinary medicine under section 771 of said Act.

Loans, grants, and payments for the next succeeding fiscal year: For making, after March 31 of the current fiscal year, loans, grants and payments under section 306, parts C, F, and G of title VII, and parts B and D of title VIII of the Public Health Service Act for the first quarter of the next succeeding fiscal year, such sums as may be necessary, and obligations incurred and expenditures made hereunder shall be charged to the appropriation for that purpose for such fiscal year: Provided, That such payments pursuant to this paragraph may not exceed 50 per centum of the amounts authorized in section 306, parts C and G of title VII and part B of title VIII for these purposes for the next succeeding fiscal year. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

NOTES

Includes $896 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from:

	1969	1970
National Library of Medicine, NIH.....	$10	$10
Office of the Director, NIH.....	14	14
Research Resources, NIH.....	888	872

Excludes $137 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Departmental Management; Office of the Director, NIH; and Office of the Administrator, HSMHA 1969, $90 thousand; 1970, $129 thousand.

1. Institutional support.—The principal agents of this activity are grant programs directed toward enhancing the educational experience of students entering the health and allied health professions resulting ultimately in better health service to the Nation. Schools use these funds to support and enlarge faculty staffs, expand library holdings, modify existing and add new curriculums, modernize teaching laboratories, and purchase educational aids and equipment. A substantial increase is requested in 1971 for these activities, of which $5 million is for the Physician Augmentation Program initiated in 1970. The support for nursing schools and other agencies in 1971 is for project grants provided in the Health Manpower Act of 1968.

Number of institutions receiving basic support and improvement funds:

Medical.....	107	107	109
Dental.....	51	52	53
Nursing.....	479	130	187
Public health.....	15	16	17
Pharmacy.....		70	74
Veterinary medicine.....		18
Other health related.....	15	16	17
Allied health.....	258	308	330

Improving the utilization of limited resources of health professionals requires appraisal of the various types of personnel needed and the identification of new categories of allied health professionals and technicians for more effective team practice. In 1971, allied health new methods grants will support an additional 44 projects for a total of 60 projects to develop curriculums to produce personnel requiring newly identified skills.

2. Student assistance.—Student assistance is of two kinds: graduate and specialized, comprising traineeships and research fellowships; and undergraduate, comprising scholarships and student loans. Research fellowships support candidates at the predoctoral and postdoctoral levels for research training in special fields related to studies for improving nursing care. Traineeships support the graduate and specialized preparation of teachers needed to expand and improve curriculum offerings, and the advanced training needed by supervisors, administrators, and other specialists in nursing, public health, and the allied health professions. Allied health short-term training will be provided for the first time in 1971, to an estimated 2,000 persons.

Number of persons trained:

Nursing fellowships.....	140	140	140
Nurse traineeships.....	4,500	4,500	4,500
Public health traineeships.....	6,284	7,250	6,920
Allied health traineeships.....	400	400	2,600

Nursing and health professions scholarships enable deserving students from low-income families to pursue their education. Students of veterinary medicine became eligible for scholarships for the first time in 1970. Schools make scholarship awards to students who, in the judgment of the school, have an exceptional financial need. The student loan programs for the health professions, including nurses, are also designed to help provide an adequate supply of health manpower and to assure that the needed supply of health professions and nursing manpower is drawn from the most capable individuals, but particularly to assure that students from low-income families can enroll for health professions training. The 1971 program, as did the program in 1970, concentrates on making these loans to students from lower income families. Loans from the revolving funds are not planned for 1971.

Number of recipients (including student loan revolving fund recipients):

Scholarships:
Medical.....	6,582	8,556	8,071
Dental.....	3,135	3,694	3,402
Nursing.....	12,370	13,319	17,000
Other health related.....	4,435	5,898	6,193
Student loans:
Medical.....	13,858	7,405	5,478
Dental.....	6,375	2,910	2,163
Nursing.....	27,000	17,544	13,728
Other health related.....	4,772	3,740	2,861

Pursuant to authority contained in the appropriation language, under certain conditions sums may be obligated for student assistance programs in advance of their being appropriated in order to facilitate the enrollment of students in health profession and related schools. The timing of these obligations, which is reflected in the schedules, does not affect the actual training of the students which is by academic year as shown in the two preceding tables. Increases in appropriations for allied health traineeships and for nurse scholarships are requested.

3. Manpower requirements and utilization.—(a) Grants.—Research grants support studies in the areas of physician methods and techniques, continuing physician education, effective use of health manpower, nursing care, and methods to deliver nursing care to patients. Research training grants enable institutions to establish training programs in fields where there is unusual demand for researchers having skills in nursing specialties and in the field of educational research.

(b) Direct operations.—Funds are provided for programs to assess requirements, availability, and quality of health discipline education; provide professional guidance and leadership to meet the goals of nursing care by means of research, consultation, application of research findings and administration of grants; develop, administer, and support grant and operational programs to increase the supply and improve the education, utilization, and effectiveness of manpower in the health occupations; for servicing training and construction grants, student loans, scholarships, and operational programs for training of personnel. The budget for 1971 includes increases for services and technical assistance related to expanded grant programs; continuing education and other physician manpower programs; nurse recruitment and refresher training contracts; and initiation of a program to encourage returning veterans to enter the health field.

4. Program direction and management services.—The Bureau of Health Professions Education and Manpower Training provides a national focus for health manpower activities. The Bureau guides and supports health manpower programs, designs proposals to meet needs for new or revised health manpower programs, coordinates research and program reporting activities, and provides technical guidance and coordination to Bureau activities.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Research grants support studies related to the distribution and supply of dental manpower, the organization of manpower and other resources for the delivery of dental services, and the promotion of preventive dental measures by practitioners and the public. Thirty grants will be supported in 1971.

(b) Fellowships.—Research fellowships support candidates for advanced degrees to prepare them to conduct research to help improve dental health in the area of dental education, preventive dentistry, organization and delivery of dental services, and dental diseases. Ten fellows will be supported in 1971.

(c) Training.—Funds are provided to dental schools to support programs to train students to use dental auxiliaries. Research training grants support programs for training researchers in the applied dental sciences to produce high quality investigators. Five projects to provide continuing education for dental practitioners will be supported in 1971.

2. Direct operations.—Funds are provided for programs to insure that there is an adequate supply of dental manpower to meet the growing needs for dental treatment and services. Particular attention will be given to further increasing the productivity of the private dentist through use of auxiliaries performing expanded functions in the dental office. The educational process will be studied for improvements in curricula and methods for teaching dental students. Continuing programs will be maintained in the area of the prevention and control of dental diseases and conditions and in the more effective organization and delivery of dental services to the public.

The appropriation title General research and services is being changed to Research resources in 1971. This appropriation will contain only the Division of Research Resources in 1971 since the Division of Computer Research and Technology is being transferred to the NIH management fund.

The programs administered by the Division of Research Resources are oriented toward providing the resources and facilities necessary for the conduct of biomedical research, including support for the maintenance of laboratory animals and the provision of specialized resources such as large-scale equipment to improve multidisciplinary research capabilities of institutions. The Division also administers the general research support grants program.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Funds in 1971 will provide the following: General clinical research centers—approximately 74 centers will be supported in 1971 compared to 93 in 1969 and 1970 (19 of these are being phased-out in 1970); Special research resources—approximately 36 grants will be supported in 1971 compared to 41 in 1970 and 46 in 1969; Animal resources—approximately 68 to 70 animal resources (including primate centers) will be supported in 1971 compared to 78 such resources in 1970 and 76 resources in 1969.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 15 fellowship awards will be supported in 1971, the same as in 1970 and 1969.

Note: Includes $0 in 1971 for activities previously financed from National Library of Medicine. 1969, $1,250 thousand; 1970, $0.

Teaching facilities.—Under the provisions of the Health Manpower Act of 1968, Public Law 90-490, Federal grants are provided on an individual project basis to assist in the construction of medical, dental, pharmacy, optometry, podiatry, veterinary, osteopathy, and public health teaching facilities, schools of nursing, and for training centers for allied health personnel.

(a) Medical, dental, and other health personnel.—The $118.1 million requested for 1971, will, assuming that Federal participation will continue at approximately 55%, provide a $214.7 million program for that year. From the beginning of the program in 1964 to July 1, 1969, a total of 166 projects have been awarded with Federal obligations of approximately $537 million, providing for the construction of an estimated 4,791 first-year places. The funds requested for 1971 will provide an additional 767 first-year places, increasing by more than 3.1% the nationally available first-year places in medical, dental, and other health professions schools. Since 1964 almost all major construction of teaching facilities for medical and dental personnel has been undertaken with Federal support.

(b) Nurses.—The $8 million requested for 1971 will provide a $14.5 million program for 1971 assuming that the average Federal participation will be approximately 55%. From the beginning of the Nurse Training Act of 1964 to July 1, 1969, a total of 124 projects have been approved for $73 million. The 1971 program will provide approximately 500 new first-year places and renovate approximately 1,500 existing places. The 500 new first-year places is estimated to be the total national increase in new nursing places in 1971 and represents an increase of less than 1% in the national inventory of first-year places. Construction of teaching facilities for nurses in the period 1965 to 1969 undertaken with Federal support provided 5,074 new first-year places.

(c) Allied health professions personnel.—Matching grants are made to public and other nonprofit schools for construction, expansion, and rehabilitation of teaching facilities as training centers for technical and other allied health personnel. No funds are requested for 1971. From the beginning of the Allied Health Act of 1966 to July 1, 1969, six projects have been awarded in the amount of $4.8 million, providing 985 new first-year student places.

Health research facilities.—Matching grants are made to public and other nonprofit institutions to assist in the construction of new facilities, and replacement of outmoded facilities, for the conduct of research in the sciences related to health. No funds are requested for 1971. From the beginning of this program in 1957, through July 1, 1969, a total of 1,482 grants have been awarded, amounting to $473.4 million. The total national inventory of health-related research space in use by non-Federal, nonprofit institutions in 1969 is about 41.5 million net square feet. Over 16 million net square feet of this space is in use as a result of grants from the health research facilities program, 2 million of which has been remodeled or replaced with assistance from this program. In addition, approximately 3 million net square feet of health research facilities space is now under construction or will be under construction shortly.

Thus, approximately 45% of the national inventory of health related research space has been constructed or remodeled with financial assistance from the health research facilities program.

Medical libraries.—Matching grants are made to public and other nonprofit agencies or institutions for construction of new, and the renovation, expansion or rehabilitation of medical library facilities. No funds are requested for 1971. From the beginning of the program through July 1, 1969, a total of 11 grants have been awarded for $11.3 million, providing 334,121 net square feet of medical library space. One construction project was funded in 1969 which provided an additional 39,425 net square feet of medical library space.

NATIONAL LIBRARY OF MEDICINE

To carry out, to the extent not otherwise provided for, section 301 with respect to health information communications and part H of title III (relating to the National Library of Medicine) and part I of title III of the Public Health Service Act, $19,769,000, of which $1,842,000 shall remain available until June 30, 1972. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

The National Library of Medicine serves as a national resource for biomedical information and as a focus for national planning to improve communications in the health sciences. Toward these ends the Library conducts programs to provide (a) interlibrary loan, reference, and bibliographic services to units of the national system of libraries and information centers; (b) bibliographic and literature searches through the computer-based MEDLARS (Medical Literature Analysis and Retrieval System) and its decentralized satellites; (c) specialized information services including development of a Toxicology Information Exchange to meet national needs for information relating to the effects of chemical agents on man; (d) audiovisual resources and services and the development of new media for medical and health-related education through the National Medical Audiovisual Center; (e) systems engineering, design, and implementation of a national, multimedia biomedical communications network for the most timely and efficient delivery of biomedical information to health professionals, and (f) administration of grant support programs authorized by the Medical Library Assistance Act for the improvement of communications in the health sciences.

1. Grants for support of medical libraries.—This activity provides funds for six categories of grant support as follows:

(a) Training.—Funds available in 1971 will support approximately nine awards compared to the same number in 1970 and 17 in 1969.

(b) Special scientific projects.—One award will be made in 1971 compared to one in 1970 and three in 1969.

(c) Research.—In 1971 an estimated 17 projects will receive support compared to 32 in 1970 and 46 in 1969.

(d) Library resources.—Some 398 medical libraries will receive awards in 1971 compared to 401 in 1970 and 389 in 1969.

(e) Regional medical libraries.—In 1971 10 regional medical libraries will receive continued support. This compares to the same number in 1970 and eight in 1969.

(f) Publications support.—An estimated 10 awards will be made in 1971 compared to 10 in 1970 and 14 in 1969.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Lister Hill National Center for Biomedical Communications.—The Center applies existing technology to the development of biomedical communications systems aimed at improving health education, medical research, and the delivery of health services. The Center also serves as the Department's focal point for coordination of health communications systems and network projects. In 1971, the Center will continue planning and development of a national Biomedical Communications Network, including continued identification of existing resources available to the network, demonstration of remote access devices to link the physician in his office to a central information source, and experimentation in telephone dial-access to diagnostic and therapeutic procedure messages.

(b) National Medical Audiovisual Center.—The Center's activities in 1971 will emphasize the collection, cataloging, and loan distribution of quality medical films and audio and video tape to qualified users; and, educational and technical assistance services to support the needs of schools of the health professions and practicing physicians. There will be a concomitant deemphasis on audiovisual productions.

(c) Library operations.—This activity provides bibliographic, reference, and loan services through a national network of regional and local medical libraries with the National Library of Medicine serving as Mid-Atlantic Regional Library and as a national backup for the network; acquires and maintains an archival and reference collection of the world's biomedical literature; and, supports the development and operation of MEDLARS, a computer-based bibliographic information storage and retrieval system now undergoing conversion to a second-generation system with expanded capacity and capabilities.

(d) Toxicology information.—The program was established in the National Library of Medicine in 1968 to develop and operate a computer-based information storage, processing, and retrieval system on the effects of chemical compounds on man and his environment. In 1971, development will continue with file building for selected pesticides and poisons, programing software development for the computer storage and retrieval system, continued identification and updating of the list of useful information sources which will be published in the "Directory of Information Sources in the United States: Toxicology," and development of a retrospective drug interaction reference file.

(e) Review and approval of grants.—This activity supports the scientific and administrative staff responsible for grant review, negotiation, processing, and award. This staff also provides program planning, contract development, review, and evaluation of projects abroad funded by the appropriation Scientific activities overseas.

(f) Program direction.—Funds in this activity support the staffs of the Immediate Office of the Director, Office of Administrative Management, and the Office of Public Information and Publications Management and reimbursement to the NIH Management Fund for centralized administrative and plant maintenance support services.

This program is supported by foreign currencies derived through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities, as authorized by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954.

Research efforts are directed toward the prevention, control, and treatment of specific disease and health problems in the United States and abroad. Emphasis is placed on institutional development in host countries through training, demonstration, and information dissemination.

The increase requested in 1971 will be directed toward biomedical research activities—particularly in the areas of family planning and nutrition.

Funds were appropriated in 1961 for construction of a combined basic and collaborative research facility for the National Institutes of Mental Health and Neurological Diseases and Stroke, including a physical biology component and including plans and specifications, fixed and semifixed equipment, access roads, extension and tie-in with existing power, refrigeration, and other utility systems of the National Institutes of Health.

Construction of this building was completed in 1968 except for cold and constant temperature rooms which were installed in 1969. Estimated obligations in 1970 are related to contract termination costs being negotiated by the General Services Administration.

The Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-751) amended title VII part C of the Public Health Service Act to establish a revolving fund from which schools may obtain loans to provide loans to health professions students. This amendment supplements the existing Federal capital contributions method of funding student loans as authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act, Public Law 88-129.

The first year student loans were awarded from the revolving fund was in 1968. In that year, approximately 12,000 health professions students received loans totaling $11,541 thousand.

In 1969, approximately 11,550 health professions students received loans totaling $12,197 thousand.

In 1970, approximately 5,312 health professions students received loans totaling $6,088 thousand.

In 1971 no new loans will be made as the fund will be depleted.

In 1971, $131 thousand is required for payment of interest due the Government National Mortgage Association for notes held by private interests.

Provision is also made for the following payments:

1. $604 thousand owed to the Government National Mortgage Association in 1971, on $11,500 thousand of pledged notes, carry an interest rate of 5.25%.

2. $1,145 thousand owed to the United States Treasury in 1971, on $18,325 thousand of appropriated funds loaned to schools. Estimated Treasury rate for 1971 will be 6.25%.

3. $1,715 thousand which reflects the amount due the schools, being the difference between the amount of interest collected by the schools on funds loaned to their students and the amount due the Federal Government from notes executed by the schools, in accordance with section 744(b) of the Public Health Service Act.

The Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-751) amended section 827 of the Public Health Service Act to establish a revolving fund to provide loans to nursing students. This amendment supplements the existing Federal capital contribution method of funding student loans as authorized by the Nurse Training Act, Public Law 88-581.

The first year that student loans were awarded from the revolving fund was in 1968. In that year, approximately 9,100 students received nursing student loans totaling $6,581 thousand.

In 1969, approximately 8,636 nursing students received loans totaling $5,113 thousand.

In 1970, approximately 5,771 nursing students received loans totaling $4,040 thousand.

In 1971, no new loans will be made as the fund will be depleted.

In 1971, $38 thousand is required for payments of interest due the Government National Mortgage Association for notes held by private interests.

Provisions are also made for the following payments: (1) $184 thousand owed to Government National Mortgage Association in 1971, on $3,500 thousand of pledged notes, carrying an interest rate of 5.25%; (2) $981 thousand owed to the U.S. Treasury in 1971, on $15,700 thousand of appropriated funds loaned to schools. Estimated Treasury rate for 1971 will be 6.25%; and (3) $913 thousand which reflects the amount due the schools, being the difference between the amount of interest collected by the schools on funds loaned to their students and the amount due the Federal Government from notes executed by the schools in accordance with section 827(b) of the Public Health Service Act.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $2,466 thousand; 1969, $3,210 thousand; 1970, $3,210 thousand; 1971, $3,210 thousand.

The National Institutes of Health Management Fund was established to facilitate the conduct of operations of the National Institutes of Health which are financed by two or more appropriations. The activities of the fund are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. Formulas for determining the contribution from each institute are designed to reflect utilization of services performed by the management fund. Taken into consideration are such factors as the number of activated beds in the clinical center, number of laboratory workers, total personnel, and dollar level of grant, direct research, and direct operations funds obligated by the institute. A small portion of the funds comes from reimbursements from outside sources, and from other Government agencies.

The centralized organizations of the National Institutes of Health provide supporting services to all programs as follows:

1. Research services provide the central administration and operation of services for the conduct of research activities such as providing laboratory animals, culture media, and glassware; design and fabrication of laboratory instrumentation; operating the NIH medical reference library including the translation of medical literature; scientific photography and medical arts; and environmental engineering services.

2. Engineering services provide engineering, architectural, craft, and labor services required for the (1) operation and maintenance of the NIH facility; (2) planning of NIH facilities and improvements; (3) administration and inspection of NIH construction performed under direct contract; and (4) liaison and inspection of projects administered by the Public Buildings Service of the GSA.

3. Clinical services consists of the operation of the 516-bed clinical center together with the laboratory space required for the care and treatment of research patients.

4. Administrative services provides for: plant and office services, including cleaning of space; mail, messenger, telephone and other communication services; operation and maintenance of motor vehicles; guards, fire fighting, and other plant protection and safety services; procurement and supply management; and negotiation of research contracts.

5. Grant review and approval initiates and develops recommendations and provides staff support services for the National Institutes of Health in formulating Public Health Service grants and awards policies and procedures relating to research, center, and training grants and fellowship programs; assigns grant and award applications to the appropriate bureau of the Public Health Service; assigns applications within the National Institutes of Health to institutes and divisions and to initial review groups, and provides for the scientific review of applications by the National Institutes of Health study sections and review committees; conducts negotiations with grantee institutions, makes studies, and provides advisory and consultative services to NIH institutes and divisions relative to PHS grant policy and NIH-wide management matters; collects, stores, retrieves, and analyzes management and program data needed by the National Institutes of Health in the management of its extramural programs.

6. Computer services.—Conducts research and development in the application of computer sciences, applied mathematics and physical sciences to the biomedical research mission of the National Institutes of Health. It provides professional advice to other areas of NIH, serves as a focus for training activities in computation and data processing, and operates a central computing facility for the National Institutes of Health.

Note.—Excludes 1969 activities carried in "Services and Supply Fund, HSMHA."

The NIH service and supply fund provides a single means for consolidated financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers. Public Law 170, 83d Congress (67 Stat. 254) increased the capitalization of the fund as follows: "Service and Supply Fund: For additional working capital for the service and supply fund, created by title II of the act of July 3, 1945 (42 U.S.C. 231), not to exceed $200,000 to be derived by transfer from such other funds appropriated in this act to the NIH as the Surgeon General may determine to remain available until expended: Provided that any stocks of supplies and equipment of the PHS related to services financed under this fund may also be used to capitalize said fund."

There are four categorical program classifications; administrative services, data processing services, instrumentation, and research animals. Combined, these activities rendered services or sold commodities to the institutes/divisions of NIH at a $15,600,000 level in 1969. It is expected that this level will be maintained in 1970 and increased to $16.4 million in 1971. There are no additional activities presently contemplated for transfer to the fund. However, studies for this purpose will continue in 1970.

Budget program 1971.—The following activities are carried out under the fund:

Administrative services.—These services include the sale of commodities from inventory totaling $5,493,000, printing and reproduction services amounting to $1,199,000 and approximately $842,000 of other services. The NIH maintains a supply of scientific and general-use materials and supplies, alteration and construction material, linens and special equipment. The printing and reproduction section provides printing, distribution, and related services. Its printing plant is equipped to produce brochures as well as ordinary administrative materials.

Data processing services.—This central facility is expected to provide data systems design and consultation, key punching, EAM processing, computer programming and computer processing services to institute/divisions of NIH at an estimated $5,648,000 level in 1971.

Instrumentation.—The Biomedical Instrumentation and Engineering Branch maintains, repairs and fabricates scientific laboratory apparatus and equipment for use in the research laboratories at NIH. There is also a specialized inventory of materials used in the development of the scientific equipment which is part of the services provided by the shops.

Research animals.—The NIH animal facilities provide small and large research animals to the research laboratories. The facilities include breeding, holding and conditioning facilities for mice, rats, guinea pigs, rabbits, hamsters, dogs, cats, primates and ungulate animals.

Operating results.—The activities financed under the fund operated at an income-expense ratio of 1.02 to 1 in 1969. The working capital remains in a favorable position with the collection of receivables, in most instances, on a monthly basis. Inventories maintained a stable position in relation to increased sales. Several rate changes were established for 1970 providing more equitable charges to the institutes and divisions.

School assistance in federally affected areas	397,581	397,159	121,826

1. Aid to school districts.—(a) Educationally deprived children.—Grants are made to schools to expand services for children from low-income families; for handicapped children, dependent and neglected children, and orphans and juvenile delinquents in State institutions; and for children of migratory workers. In order to notify schools well in advance of the school year as to the amount of Federal grants on which to base financial, personnel, and other plans, this program requests the 1971 base amount for advance funding of 1972. It is estimated that 7.9 million children will receive benefits in 1971, the same as in 1969 and 1970.

(b) Supplementary services.—The Administration has submitted legislation to consolidate the separate authorities for all supplementary services grants under titles II and III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and titles III-A and V-A of the National Defense Education Act. Under this consolidated authority grants will be made to States for: (1) development of programs which serve as models for improving and supplementing the regular school curriculum; (2) school library resources; (3) guidance, counseling, and testing; and (4) equipment and minor remodeling. In 1971, States will be encouraged to use these grants to fund "start-up" costs associated with new education models, especially in connection with the "Right To Read" program.

(c) Federally affected areas.—(1) Maintenance and operations.—Payments are made to assist schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. The eligible districts are located in all States, Puerto Rico, various outlying areas, and, since July 1964, the District of Columbia. Under certain circumstances, payments are made to other Federal agencies to make arrangements for education of children where local school districts do not assume the responsibility. The 1970 estimate is based on the amount necessary to make payments to districts on behalf of students whose parents both live and work on Federal property and therefore do not contribute to the financial support of local schools. For 1971, legislation will be proposed to revise the authorizations for support of schools in areas where Federal installations affect school attendance. Over the past several months, a study has been undertaken to examine the inequities of the present provisions and to suggest some alternative courses of action which would authorize Federal grants consistent with the fiscal problems of school districts involved. On the basis of this study and other relevant concerns, the proposed legislation will concentrate payments for those districts where Federal impact is greatest, allowing for local tax effort and fiscal capacity. The budget estimates for 1971 appear under the legislative program proposals at the end of this chapter.

(2) Construction.—Payments are made to assist in construction of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. From 1951 through 1969, $1,374 million has been appropriated for this program aiding in the construction of 64,500 classrooms to house about 1.9 million pupils in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and Wake Island.

2. Dropout prevention.—Grants are made to local school districts for innovative projects in poverty area schools leading to new methods and techniques for reducing the incidence of dropouts. Dropout prevention through "performance contracting," special methods of diagnosing individual needs, and a variety of means for increasing the relevance of education to potential dropouts are being tested in 19 comprehensive projects during 1970.

3. Bilingual education.—Grants are made to local educational agencies to develop, establish, and operate programs for bilingual education of children from homes where English is not the native language. Federal funds also support preservice and inservice training for professional personnel participating in such programs.

4. Strengthening State departments of education.—The leadership ability of State educational agencies is improved by grants to assist them in developing systematic and technically proficient planning and evaluation activities, and in stimulating and supporting research, statistical and technical assistance for local school systems.

5. Planning and evaluation.—Funds are made available for: (1) planning succeeding year programs or projects and (2) evaluation of such programs and projects. Funds may also be made available to the State and local educational agencies so that they may systematically plan for the effective use of Federal support.

1. State grant programs.—Grants are made to States to assist in the initiation, expansion, and improvement of programs and projects for education of handicapped children at the preschool, elementary and secondary school levels. Approximately 182,000 children will receive services in 1971, the same as in 1970.

2. Early childhood projects.—In fiscal year 1970, 22 grants were made for planning and 22 for operational support for centers to provide educational, diagnostic and consultative services for preschool handicapped children and their parents. Forty centers are estimated to be in operation during 1971.

3. Teacher education and recruitment.—Grants are awarded to support training of teachers, supervisors, speech correctionists, researchers, and other professional and subprofessional personnel in fields related to the education of the handicapped.

4. Research and innovation.—Grants and contracts are awarded for the development of new curricular materials, teaching techniques, R. & D. centers, and other research and demonstration projects. In 1971 large programmatic efforts will replace many of the small awards of previous years. More awards will be continued, providing intensive research in critical areas. As a result, fewer new awards will be made.

Grants or contracts are awarded for the establishment and operation of regional resource centers to develop and apply the methods of appraising the special educational needs of handicapped children. Grants are also made for model centers to provide diagnostic, educational, and related services to deaf-blind children and for research in the field of physical education and recreation for handicapped children. Contracts are made for the acquisition, captioning, production, and distribution of films and other educational media, for conducting research in the use of educational media, and the training of persons in the use of the materials for the handicapped.

1. Basic vocational education grants.—Matching grants are made to the States for vocational education programs, including the construction and remodeling of facilities. The Vocational Education Amendments of 1968 require that at least two-fifths of these grants be used for programs for children from low-income families, the physically and mentally handicapped, and post-secondary courses. In 1971, the States will be encouraged to use more than the required minimum of 15% of basic grants for disadvantaged students. Funds are also used to support the National Advisory Council on Vocational Education and the State Advisory Councils. Matching grants to States for consumer and homemaking education are also included in this program activity; at least one-third of these funds are to be used in economically depressed areas.

Funds are used for supervisory and other costs of instruction. Local school districts arrange with private industry or public agencies for employment related to student vocational objectives; employers pay wages equal to the value of work produced. In 1971 a proposal will be made to combine the separate authorities for work-study and cooperative education programs.

3. Vocational research and innovation.—Grants are made to States, colleges, universities and other institutions to develop new models for upgrading vocational education programs and for stimulating new ways to create a bridge between school and earning a living for school dropouts and youth who graduate from high school lacking employable skills. Grants are also made for the development of curricula for new and changing occupations. In 1971, a proposal will be made to expand the authority for exemplary projects to incorporate complementary provisions now contained in separate authorities for curriculum development and research activities.

4. Adult basic education.—Grants are made to the States for support of basic educational programs attended by adults 16 years and older who wish to overcome English language limitations, prepare for occupational training and more profitable employment, and participate more effectively in our modern society. This program, previously carried under community education, has been transferred to this account for 1971.

² Includes $29,601 thousand in 1970 and $30,000 thousand in 1971 for Upward bound, previously in the Office of Economic Opportunity.

⁴ Excludes $2,494,307 in 1969 for foreign language research funded under Research and training. Includes $2,300 thousand in 1970 for foreign language research funded under Foreign language and world affairs and consolidated with Higher education in 1971 under Language training and area studies.

⁶ Previously carried under Education professions development.

1. Student assistance.—Funds are allotted to colleges and universities to provide: (1) educational opportunity grants for financially needy undergraduate students; (2) work-study grants for part-time jobs during the school year and full-time summer jobs for students in need of financial assistance to continue their education; and (3) capital contributions to National Defense Education Act student loan funds. Advances are made on a matching basis to State and nonprofit private loan insurance funds to guarantee loans to college and vocational students, and payments are made to reduce interest costs for students in college whose adjusted family incomes fall below $15 thousand. A special allowance is provided to lenders when money market conditions make payments essential to the purposes of the program. For disadvantaged students, grants and contracts are supported for (1) the upward bound program to motivate high school students to attend college and improve their academic preparation; (2) the talent search program to identify youths with exceptional potential for a college education and publicize available sources of financial aid; and (3) special remedial and other services for enrolled college students to encourage and assist them in continuing their higher education.

2. Institutional assistance.—Grants are made to raise the academic quality of developing colleges, to aid land-grant colleges, to encourage language and area studies, and to facilitate construction of academic facilities. Those predominantly Negro colleges which previously received funds under the discontinued annual land-grant college program will now receive equivalent support from the developing colleges program. The permanent appropriation Colleges for agriculture and the mechanic arts is consolidated with the Higher education appropriation in this budget. The 1970 level includes a one-time endowment for Federal City College of the District of Columbia. The appropriation Education in foreign languages and world affairs is consolidated with Higher education in this budget. The funds support establishment and development of institutional programs of research and study in modern languages, area studies and world affairs and the training of individuals in those fields.

Annual interest grants, which reduce the costs of loans from non-Federal sources for the construction of academic facilities, are awarded to colleges, universities, junior colleges, and technical institutes. These grants have replaced direct Federal loans and grants for construction. Grants are made to assist State commissions in administering undergraduate construction grants and in comprehensive planning of future higher education construction. Technical engineering and other review services are provided for construction projects.

1. State grants.—Grants are made to States to recruit and train persons for careers as elementary and secondary teachers and teacher aides. It is estimated that over one-half of the 12,700 persons for whom training is provided each year will be teacher aides.

2. Personnel development programs.—Grants are made to over 300 higher education institutions, to educational agencies in every State and to over 600 local school systems to help meet critical shortages of educational personnel, to improve the quality of teaching at the preschool through postsecondary vocational levels, for developing and strengthening teacher education programs, for disseminating new educational techniques, and for improving teacher utilization.

Under the Career opportunities program, grants are made to local school districts to help attract persons from low-income backgrounds, veterans and college graduates into education careers in schools serving low-income populations. Grants to institutions of higher education are made to retrain experienced teachers in desegregating schools and to support graduate level training programs in critical manpower shortage areas.

Includes $2,000 thousand in 1970 and $4,000 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from Salaries and expenses, 1969, $500 thousand.
Excludes $2,300 thousand in 1970 and $2,200 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Higher education.

1. Research and development.—These funds support a variety of research and development activities. In 1971, priority will be placed on reading, early childhood development and evaluation of educational programs. A total of $4,500 thousand is included for continuation of a national study of the educational attainment of the population under the administration of the Education Commission of the States. An amount of $5,000 thousand is provided for program evaluation studies. Research and development centers and educational laboratories will study specific problem areas and develop instructional programs for use in the Nation's schools.

2. Major demonstrations.—Support will be provided for the demonstration of two model approaches to urban education—one, stressing community participation in school program planning and execution, in the Anacostia section of Washington, D.C., and the other in 1971 in the "new town" setting of the Fort Lincoln community, also in the District of Columbia.

3. Experimental schools.—Support will be provided to test, develop, and demonstrate comprehensive new approaches to increasing the achievement of students in actual school situations. The most promising research results already available—including, for example, curricular materials, different types of school organization and scheduling and new patterns of staffing—will be integrated and used in one school setting. A variety of educational approaches are under consideration, such as the community school, compensatory education, preschool programs, school and work programs, teacher "career ladders," and youth-tutoring-youth.

4. Dissemination.—A network of clearinghouses is supported to transfer information from research and experimental projects in education to teachers, administrators, scholars, and research personnel. These clearinghouses select, evaluate, index, abstract, and disseminate information in important areas of education. In 1971, support will be provided for traveling expositions and seminars to acquaint educators with new developments in educational practices.

5. Training.—Grants are awarded for the training of manpower to carry out educational research, development, evaluation, and related activities. Awards are also made to develop materials for use in such training programs. During 1970, the research training program will be reviewed to determine which efforts are producing the best results. New projects awarded in 1971 will be based on the outcome of the current review.

6. Statistics.—Contracted studies and related services support the responsibilities of the National Center for Educational Statistics. These responsibilities involve the measurement of progress and of the status of education in the Nation. The work includes: the collection, compilation, analysis, and dissemination of statistics; work on standard educational terminology; and continued research in statistical survey methods and in the development of more efficient sampling techniques.

Foreign currencies which are in excess of the normal requirements of the United States are used to support projects which will add to educational and scientific knowledge in the United States. The funds support overseas research, training and study activities of American institutions of education. These activities help improve the knowledge and abilities of U.S. educators and provide information on foreign educational developments that will be of value to American educational systems.

A supplemental request is anticipated to provide additional support for activities carried out under title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Under recent court orders, and as a result of the Supreme Court ruling of October 30, 1969, there is a sharp increase in requests for technical assistance from the Office of Education staff. In addition, requests are increasing for contracts to universities for advisory services to local schools and training of school staff, and for grants directly to local schools for training to facilitate desegregation.

Under the Higher Education Act of 1965 and the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965, the Office of Education received authority to insure loans to students in eligible institutions who do not have reasonable access to State or private nonprofit programs of student loan insurance.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1968 merged the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act into the Higher Education Act insured loan program, and in addition to extending the Federal insurance program to June 30, 1971, authorizes the Office of Education to reinsure loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies at 80% of default by student borrowers.

Upon default by the student borrowers, the Office of Education will pay to the beneficiary the amount of the loss sustained by the insured upon federally insured loans and 80% of the loss sustained on reinsured loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies. Data on federally insured loans and guaranteed loans follows:

The fund takes over loans on which it pays insurance claims and seeks to collect on them. Loans which are deemed uncollectable are written off as "loss on insured loans." Loans deemed collectable, after allowance for writeoffs, are as follows: 1969, $39 thousand; 1970, $4,111 thousand; and 1971, $9,440 thousand.

Deposits to the fund are derived from insurance premiums earned from direct Federal insurance, which is not to exceed $\frac{1}{4}$ of 1% per annum of the unpaid principal amount (excluding interest added to principal), repayment of collectable loans, and interest payments on collectable loans. Deposits are estimated as follows: 1969, \$997 thousand; 1970, \$1,500 thousand; and 1971, \$3,565 thousand.

Estimated claims paid on loans purchased upon default of student borrowers are as follows: 1969, $438 thousand; 1970, $16,388 thousand; and 1971, $18,182 thousand. These amounts will be funded by an unobligated balance of $4,198 thousand in 1969, deposits into the fund during 1969 through 1971 of $6,062 thousand, appropriation in 1970 of $10,826 thousand, and a requested appropriation in 1971 of $18,000 thousand. The requested appropriation will be used to pay claims for loans reinsured at 80%, whereas claims to pay for federally insured loans will be financed by insurance premiums.

HIGHER EDUCATION FACILITIES LOAN FUND

The Secretary is hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds available in the Higher Education Facilities Loan Fund, and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitation as provided by section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U.S.C. 849) as may be necessary in carrying out the program set forth in the budget for the current fiscal year for such fund: Provided, That loans made during the current fiscal year from the Fund shall not exceed $10,000,000 to be made from amounts available from commitments withdrawn prior to July 1, 1971 by the Commissioner of Education.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

The Higher Education Facilities Act authorizes loans for construction of academic facilities in higher education institutions. Such loans may be made for up to 75% of a project's total development cost and must be repaid within 50 years.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 established a revolving fund for these loans and authorizes the sales of such loans to the private credit market, the proceeds of which are deposited into the fund to be used for new loans to colleges and universities. The Government National Mortgage Association is authorized to serve as trustee for these sales.

In 1969, five new projects and 34 supplements totaling $7,799 thousand were approved. This level was funded by $3,237 thousand carryover from prior year and $4,562 thousand from funds recovered as a result of reductions of prior year obligations.

In 1970, loans under this program have been replaced by the interest subsidy grant program under the Higher education appropriation. It is estimated that in 1971, 35 projects totaling $10 million will be funded from commitments withdrawn prior to July 1, 1971. This amount will be used to fund those small institutions of higher education which are unable to obtain private loans necessary to participate in the interest subsidy grant program.

Interest is payable to the Treasury on the cumulative amount of appropriations paid out for loans under this title or available as capital to the fund less the average undistributed cash balance in the fund during the year. The rate certified by the Secretary of the Treasury as of June 30, 1969, is 5%.

Appropriations for insufficiencies are used to fund the deficit resulting from the difference between the interest rate required to sell the participations and the interest rate paid by higher education institutions on facilities loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

GRANTS TO STATES FOR PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

For carrying out, except as otherwise provided, titles I, IV, VII, X, XI, XIV, XVI, and XIX of the Social Security Act, and the Act of July 5, 1960 (24 U.S.C. ch. 9), $8,651,950,000, of which $46,000,000 shall be for grants under Part B of title IV, and $3,000,000 shall be for grants under section 707 of the Social Security Act: Provided, That such amounts as may be necessary for locating parents, as authorized in section 410 of the Social Security Act, may be transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury.

Grants to States, payments after April 30: For making, after April 30 of the current fiscal year, payments to States under titles I, IV, X, XIV, XVI, and XIX, respectively, of the Social Security Act, for the last two months of the current fiscal year (except with respect to activities included in the appropriation for "Work incentives") and for the first quarter of the next succeeding fiscal year, such sums as may be necessary, the obligations incurred and the expenditures made thereunder for payments under each of such titles to be charged to the subsequent appropriations therefor for the current or succeeding fiscal year.

In the administration of titles I, IV (other than Part C thereof), X, XIV, XVI, and XIX, respectively, of the Social Security Act, payments to a State under any such titles for any quarter in the period beginning April 1 of the prior year, and ending June 30 of the current year, may be made with respect to a State plan approved under such title prior to or during such period, but no such payment shall be made with respect to any plan for any quarter prior to the quarter in which such plan was submitted for approval.

Such amounts as may be necessary from this appropriation shall be available for grants to States for any period in the prior fiscal year subsequent to March 31 of that year.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. Grants to States for public assistance are made to States having plans for federally matched programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Estimates of total program expenditures computable for Federal matching and the Federal share for 1970 and for 1971 were obtained in November 1969 from the 54 jurisdictions administering approved plans for these programs. Total Federal, State, and local expenditures for 1971, adjusted for the estimated impact of the 15% increase in Social Security payments, are estimated at $15.6 billion, an increase of $2.2 billion from the revised estimate for 1970. Of this increase, 55% or $1.2 billion is the Federal share with State and local Governments providing for an added $1 billion. The increases result from a combination of more recipients and greater unit costs.

1. Maintenance assistance.—Maintenance payments to recipients are to provide needy persons—dependent children deprived of parental support or care, the aged, blind, and the disabled—with income to supplement their own resources and other programs for the costs of food, shelter, clothing, and other necessary items of daily living. In certain cases, payments may be made on their behalf to another person: for example, protective payments on behalf of aged recipients unable, because of mental conditions, to manage funds; payments for foster care provided certain children under the aid to families with dependent children program; and vendor payments for institutional services in intermediate care facilities provided to persons in need of personal care short of skilled nursing home care. Also shown separately as a maintenance assistance activity is the cost of State and local administration, including the cost of eligibility determination.

The 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act included provision for payments to intermediate care facilities, licensed under State law, for care provided under the programs of old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled. Another provision of these amendments was for emergency assistance to families with dependent children (including migrant families) in danger of destitution.

For 1971, total expenditures for maintenance assistance from Federal, State, and local sources are estimated at $8,769 million; the Federal share amounts to $4,955 million which is 57% of the total. Maintenance payments total $8,110 million, of which the Federal share is $4,647 million, or 56%. The remainder of $658 million, of which $308 million is the Federal share, represents the cost of State and local administration.

Of the Federal funds required for maintenance payments for 1971, almost 55% is for needy families with dependent children and slightly less than a third is for the aged.

All maintenance assistance programs and the cost of State and local administration will require larger amounts in 1971 than in 1970. Of the total increase in Federal requirements of $593,371 thousand for 1971 over 1970, aid to families with dependent children accounts for about two-thirds; old-age assistance, for one-seventh; aid to the permanently and totally disabled, and State and local administration each account for about one-tenth; and aid to the blind and emergency assistance combined for the remaining less than 1 percent.

Some of the provisions of the Social Security Act amendments of 1967 that became mandatory on July 1, 1969, will affect recipients and payments in both 1970 and 1971. In the aid to families with dependent children program these amendments include: (1) the work incentive provision for disregarding the first $30 per family of earned income plus one-third of the balance of earnings in determining need; (2) the requirement that States update the prices of the items included in their assistance standards; and (3) that all State programs include foster care for specified children.

Provisions for determining the Federal share of maintenance payments.—Grants to States for maintenance payments are available to the States under the following titles of the Social Security Act:

Old-Age Assistance (title I).	Aid to Families With Dependent Children (title IV).
Aid to the Blind (title X).	Emergency Assistance (title IV).
Aid to the Permanently and Totally Disabled (title XIV).	General Provisions (title XI, secs. 1118, 1119, and 1121).
Aid to the Aged, Blind, or Disabled (title XVI).

The Federal share of money payments to or on behalf of recipients may be determined by either applying the Federal medical assistance percentage (limited to States with a title XIX program) or application of the formulas included in the specific titles of the Social Security Act. The latter provide, in the adult categories, a Federal share of thirty-one thirty-sevenths of the first $37 of the average monthly payment per recipient and five-sixths of the first $18 per recipient of aid to families with dependent children. They also provide a Federal share of the balance of the average monthly payment, up to a maximum of $75 per recipient in the categories for adults and up to $32 per recipient ($100 per child in foster care) in aid to families with dependent children, which varies according to the per capita income of the States, and ranges from 50% to 65%. The Federal share of emergency assistance is 50%. The medical assistance percentage which a State with a title XIX program may apply to determine the Federal share of the full amount of maintenance payments (no maximum) ranges from 50% to 83%, except for emergency assistance for which the Federal share is 50%.

Intermediate care facilities.—The Federal share of payments to or on behalf of recipients in intermediate care facilities under the adult categories may be determined either by applying the Federal medical assistance percentage or by applying the formulas for maintenance payments specified above for the titles of the Social Security Act for the programs for adults. All but a few States use the Federal medical assistance percentage which ranges from 50% to 83%. There is no Federal financial participation for intermediate care facilities furnished under aid to families with dependent children.

Statistical data on maintenance payments, by category, follow:

(a) Old-age assistance.—The average monthly number of money payment recipients for 1971 is estimated to increase 1.1% over 1970. The estimated average monthly maintenance payment is $2.75 more than that estimated for 1970.

The estimated 1971 Federal share of payments to vendors for institutional services in intermediate care facilities for physically and mentally limited aged persons will increase $34,219 thousand over 1970. This increase is more than 38% of the total increase in Federal funds for old-age assistance. By the end of 1971, 29 States—about the same number as in 1970—are expected to have elected such facilities.

The Federal share of expenditures to vendors for institutional services in intermediate care facilities for permanently and totally disabled recipients is estimated to increase by $5,322 thousand from 1970 to 1971. In 1971 26 States are expected to make such payments—about the same number as in 1970.

(d) Aid to families with dependent children.—The average monthly number of recipients—children (excluding foster care) and adults—to be aided during 1971 is expected to reach 7,988,100. The number of recipients covered by the appropriation request for 1971 is 890,500 more than that estimated for 1970. The average monthly money payment per recipient is expected to be $47.95 in 1971, an increase of $3.15, or more than 7%.

The Federal share of payments on behalf of specified children to foster homes and institutions is estimated to increase by almost $6,800 thousand, or about 23%, from 1970 to 1971. Beginning July 1, 1969, States were required to include payments for foster care under limited, specified conditions as part of their aid to families with dependent children programs.

(e) Emergency assistance.—The appropriation request includes $12.3 million for grants to States to provide emergency assistance for maintenance needs of families with children in crisis situations. The program may be used before the process of eligibility determination for and authorization of aid to families with dependent children can be completed, for families not eligible for aid to families with dependent children, and for migrants. Examples of crisis situations include imminent eviction, loss of utility service because of nonpayment, and exhaustion of food supplies. Federal funds are made available to encourage and enable States to act promptly and effectively in such situations.

Federal financial participation is available at the 50% rate in emergency assistance payments for periods not to exceed 30 days in any 12-month period. Assistance provided may be in the form of money payments to the individual to meet maintenance needs or vendor payments for food, clothing, rent, utilities, medical care, or other items.

(f) State and local administration.—The Federal share of the cost of State and local administration is 50%. Federal funds for State and local administration are estimated to increase by $27,530 thousand, or 9% in 1971 over 1970. Funds requested under this activity are used to meet the costs of administration of State and local welfare agencies. Generally included in the activity are: the costs of seeing the client in order to determine eligibility for maintenance payments and eligibility for Medicaid for categorically needy persons who are not eligible for a maintenance payment. Also included are the costs of validating eligibility; the costs of personnel not dealing directly with public assistance clients, such as State and local personnel engaged in program direction and management; personnel and equipment required for the sizable task of making monthly payments to millions of recipients; all staff engaged in providing services to the welfare agencies; e.g., recruiting personnel and arranging for office space; and some costs of travel, communications, etc. Costs of office space and costs of automatic data processing equipment are usually covered under this activity.

The increase from 1970 to 1971 is to finance additional staff and increased salary costs of non-social service staff. The number of recipients for whom checks must be written and the number of vendor payments made will be higher in 1971 than in 1970. For example, there will be more protective payments under the program of aid to families with dependent children, and more vendor payments made to intermediate care facilities.

Total (thousands).....	$461,528	$560,734	$658,038

2. Assistance to repatriated U.S. nationals.—Public Law 86-571, approved July 5, 1960, provides for hospitalization and services to repatriated mentally ill U.S. nationals until arrangements can be made for assumption of responsibility by States of residence or the repatriate's family. The budget estimate assumes that a total of 110 mentally ill repatriates will require hospitalization and/or other financial assistance in 1971; this compares with 92 who required such care in 1969, and 100 estimated for 1970.

Section 1113 of the Social Security Act authorizes temporary assistance to U.S. citizens and their dependents who return to this country because of destitution, illness, or international crises and who are without available resources. It is estimated that temporary assistance will be provided a total of about 191 cases in 1970 and 200 in 1971 who have been repatriated from countries other than Cuba because of destitution and sickness, as compared to 177 in 1969. It is also expected that the monthly flights of repatriates from Cuba entering the United States via Brownsville, Tex., which began in February 1968, will continue in 1970 and 1971.

3. Medical assistance.—Grants for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act (Medicaid), and for medical assistance provided under other titles of the act are made to States having plans approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. After January 1, 1970, Federal financial participation in payments to medical vendors will be available only under Medicaid. Federal Medicaid payments vary from 50% to 83% according to the per capita income of the State. Eligible recipients must include all persons receiving or eligible to receive money payments under the Social Security Act. States also may elect to cover certain medically needy persons eligible for help only with their medical bills. Medicaid complements the Federal Medicare program by paying the deductible and coinsurance for the needy aged, paying their premiums for Medicare's supplementary medical insurance program, and by paying for services not covered by Medicare; e.g., long-term nursing home care.

The appropriation requirement for 1971 is $3,113,685 thousand, an increase of $455,563 thousand, from the amount for 1970. The Federal share is expected to amount to about 52% of the total Federal, State, and local expenditure in 1971, slightly more than in 1970. More favorable matching provisions under title XIX compared to the provisions of the money payment titles and increasing expenditures for States with relatively higher medical assistance percentages are responsible for the increasing Federal share.

The major factors accounting for the increase from 1970 to 1971 are the continued rise in medical prices, an increase in the number of eligible recipients, and continued increase in utilization under State programs.

The number of persons receiving medical assistance during 1971 will increase by about 1,100 thousand, due largely to the anticipated increase in the number of recipients of maintenance payments (in millions):

ESTIMATED NUMBER OF PERSONS

	1969 actual	1970 estimate	1971 estimate

Aged.....	3.2	3.5	3.6
Mothers and children.....	3.9	4.2	5.1
Others.....	2.4	2.5	2.6

As more States come into the program, a larger number of persons become eligible for medical assistance. As of July 1, 1969, 44 States or jurisdictions were operating under Medicaid. It is anticipated that all of the remaining States will begin operation during the year. Federal financial participation will not be available in Medical vendor payments made after January 1, 1970, except under title XIX.

Distribution of benefits.—Although the aged represent 30% of the recipients of medical assistance, medical vendor payments made on their behalf constitute 40% of all Federal payments. On the other hand, while mothers and children related to the aid to families with dependent children category constitute 45% of all recipients of medical assistance, benefit payments made for them are only about 35% of all medical vendor payments. This disparity is accounted for by the fact that the medical costs of the aged, especially in nursing homes, are generally much higher than those of mothers and children who are in need of less expensive outpatient care and do not stay in the hospital as long as the aged. Compared to 1965, however, when medical vendor payments for the aged accounted for about 70% of all payments and aid to families with dependent children related payments were only about 11% of the total, it appears that Medicaid has brought about a significant redistribution of benefit payments.

In 1971 over 60% of those receiving assistance under Medicaid will also be eligible for a public assistance cash payment. Medicaid payments on behalf of this group will amount to 73% of the total.

Distribution of payments under title XIX by type of services.—In 1969 about 70% of medical assistance payments are for care in hospitals and nursing homes, 11% for physicians' fees and about 6% for drugs. Medicaid payments to nursing homes alone amounted to about $1¼ billion, reflecting both higher charges and greater patient utilization. In the eight major States accounting for about 75% of the total Federal, State, and local Medicaid payments, the distribution of benefits is as follows:

The Medical Services Administration within the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has responsibility for providing program direction for Medicaid.

4. Social services.—Grants are made to States operating public assistance programs to provide social services prescribed or specified by the Secretary. The purpose of the grants is to enable each State, as far as practicable under the conditions existing in the State, to furnish rehabilitative and other services to recipients and potential recipients to help them maintain and strengthen family life and to attain or retain capability for maximum self-support, self-care, and personal independence.

The Federal share is 75% for the cost of providing preventive and rehabilitative services that are specified by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Federal share of costs, other than those specified is 50%.

The 1962 amendments to the Social Security Act authorized 75% Federal financial participation in State and local costs of providing social services to applicants for and recipients of public assistance, under an approved plan for the provision of such services.

Most of the additional expenditures for social services will be made in the program of aid to families with dependent children as States move to carry out the provisions of the 1967 amendments requiring them to develop programs: (1) for review of the employment potential of each adult and older child not attending school; (2) for reducing the incidence of illegitimacy and strengthening family life; (3) for furnishing homemaker and home management services either directly or through purchase from other community agencies; and (4) for other services designed to promote independence and strengthen family life.

The types of services to adults requiring the greatest expenditures are homemaker services, and services related to improving housing for recipients. States are expected to make only modest expansions in service programs for adults during 1970.

5. State and local training.—Expenditures for training staff of State and local agencies administering public assistance programs, and of training persons preparing for employment in these agencies may be shared by the Federal Government at the 75% rate; an amount of $26 million is required in 1971.

6. Child welfare services.—Grants are made to States to establish, expand, and strengthen services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent and neglected children. Federal funds are matched by State funds at a rate varying from 33⅓% to 66⅔%. Emphasis is being given to more effective involvement of parents in child welfare programs and to training and employment of subprofessional staff, particularly those in low-income groups, and the use of volunteers. States are required under the Social Security Act to make a satisfactory showing that they are extending child welfare services with a view toward making them available by July 1, 1975, in all political subdivisions of the State for all children in need of them. The requirement for 1971 is $46 million, the same as for 1970.

7. Training projects.—The 1971 estimate also includes $3 million for grants to colleges, universities, and accredited graduate schools of social work to meet part of the costs of developing, expanding, or improving their social work training resources. Additional grants in the amount of $5.9 million will be made to public or other nonprofit institutions of higher learning to train personnel for work in the field of child welfare.

8. Research and demonstration projects.—Demonstration project authority in section 1115 is one of the most potentially useful provisions in the Social Security Act. It provides for the waiver of certain legal requirements, and for additional financing in the interest of encouraging program innovation in the States. The authorized amount of $4 million was provided in 1970 and is proposed for 1971.

Projects operated under the authority include those designed to provide direct social services in new areas; to strengthen administration and stimulate program development; to demonstrate new methods of administration, including restructuring of agencies; to promote and strengthen staff recruitment and development; to demonstrate new approaches to encourage education and preparation for self-support; to demonstrate utilization of research and research findings; to show the effect of broadening program coverage and raising assistance payments; and to improve the administration of medical assistance. Grants, contracts, or other jointly financed cooperative arrangements are also made for the conduct of research and demonstration projects in child welfare which are of regional or national significance, demonstrate new methods or facilities, or demonstrate utilization of research and research findings. The amount for child welfare demonstrations is $4.2 million.

The President's 1970 budget request calls for an appropriation of $7,408,231 thousand for Grants to States for public assistance under titles I, X, XIV, XVI, XIX, parts A and B of title IV, and sections 707, 1113, and 1115 of the Social Security Act, as amended.

In November 1969, State public assistance agencies forecast the Federal share of public assistance programs in 1970 as $7,554,984 thousand or $146,753 thousand over the amount appropriated. The increase is due to repeal of the aid to families with dependent children "freeze" requirement and increased costs for social services and administration, but offset in part by reduced estimates of 1970 costs for the adult categories and for medical assistance vendor payments.

WORK INCENTIVES

For carrying out a work incentive program, as authorized by part C of title IV of the Social Security Act, and for related child-care services, as authorized by part A of title IV of the Act, including transfer to the Secretary of Labor, as authorized by section 431 of the Act, $170,000,000.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

The 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act authorize a Work Incentives (WIN) program designed to encourage and promote the employment, work experience, and training of public assistance recipients, primarily those receiving support from the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Training and incentives are administered by the Department of Labor, child care by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The proposed Family Assistance Plan includes provisions for training and child care which will replace WIN upon enactment.

1. Training and incentives.—Each activity below includes costs of training, incentives, and related program services.

(a) On-the-job training.—This activity provides costs of on-the-job training both regular and full cost. Included in this activity are supervision, counseling, vocational training, and all other manpower services required to rehabilitate welfare clients through on-the-job training.

(b) Institutional training.—This activity provides for classroom training, vocational education, and workshop training in clerical, service, and semiskilled to skilled occupations, vestibule training, and employment preparation. In addition, remedial education is provided to many participants.

(c) Work experience and orientation.—This activity includes work sampling and internship, paraprofessional training, and orientation. The emphasis of work experience programs is on the development of basic work habits, exploration of various occupational fields, and gaining knowledge of the world of work. Orientation provides training in basic employment skills along with vocational counseling and testing. During the orientation period, an employability plan is developed for each person which is designed to lead that individual to permanent employment. Upon completion of the orientation period, some persons will go directly into employment and others will go into some phase of institutional or on-the-job training.

(d) Work projects.—The Secretary of Labor is authorized to enter into agreements with public agencies and private nonprofit agencies organized for a public purpose for special work projects to employ those persons for whom jobs in the regular economy cannot be found at the time and for whom training may not be appropriate. Funds were appropriated for these agreements for 1969 only for the employers' share for the first full-year (1969) cost of wage payments under these projects. In subsequent years more extensive manpower supportive services are provided to enrollees in this component.

(e) Employability planning, job development, and followup.—This activity provides for the costs of continued assessment, counseling, coaching, job development, and employability planning, as well as regular and intensive followup of employed enrollees to assure that once a person is placed in a job he stays on the job.

(f) Program direction and evaluation.—This activity provides for the program development, evaluation, and administration of the WIN program by the Department of Labor.

The tables below show workload data for WIN training and incentives:

Employability planning, job development, and followup	13,300	39,000	53,200
Total	28,500	80,000	117,500

2. Child care.—This activity provides for child care for children of WIN enrollees. An estimated 45% of the average enrollees in 1971 are mothers who are unable to provide child care for their children while they are undergoing training. Therefore, unless child care is provided, approximately one-half of the enrollees would be unable to accept the training to upgrade their employability.

In addition, child care is provided for the children of employed former WIN enrollees until such time as other satisfactory child care arrangements can be made or the mothers can pay for the care from their earnings.

Average children in care per mother are expected to rise from about 2 in 1969 and 1970 to 2.5 in 1971.

The tables below show workload data for WIN child care:

1. Services.—(a) Basic State grants.—Federal matching grants are made to assist the States in rehabilitating handicapped individuals so that they may prepare for employment. As a result of the 1968 amendments to the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, the Federal matching rate will be 80% of the total program expenditures commencing in 1970. The new amendments also provided that funds granted under section 2 may be used for construction and acquisition of new facilities, authorized the Secretary to permit the State agency to share funding and administrative responsibility with another agency of the State in order to carry out a joint project to provide services to handicapped individuals, and extended services to the families of handicapped individuals when such services will contribute to the rehabilitation of such individuals.

SIGNIFICANT PROGRAM DATA

[Dollars in thousands]

	1969 actual	1970 estimate	1971 estimate
Basic support	$345,900	$471,000	$503,000
State matching	$115,300	$131,488	$135,830
Number of clients	781,614	894,000	992,000
Number of rehabilitants	241,390	270,000	288,000

(b) Innovation.—Federal grants are made to States to assist them in initiating projects that demonstrate new methods, or techniques, for providing vocational rehabilitation services for handicapped individuals, or which are specially designed for development of provisions for new or expanded vocational rehabilitation services for groups having catastrophic or particularly severe disabilities. The matching rate of 90% for the first 3 years of a project is designed to encourage development of new methods and techniques. In 1971 the program will provide support for about 89 projects.

(c) Rehabilitation service projects.—Federal grants are made to State agencies, local government units, and to private nonprofit organizations to assist in the cost of projects designed to expand and provide services to the disabled. The 1971 program will support 503 such projects.

(d) Services for the mentally retarded.—Services included programs for research to provide new knowledge and data relative to mental retardation; hospital improvement to improve the quality of care provided for the mentally retarded through projects for care improvement and in-service training; rehabilitation services projects for the expansion or the establishment of programs serving the mentally retarded, application of new techniques for rendering services, coordination of resources and information, and for increasing and improving the number and types of personnel working with the retarded; and initial staffing for new community mental retardation facilities and new programs in existing facilities which will provide specialized services to mental retardates not now being served.

In 1969, 423 grants were awarded serving 65,051 retardates and training 13,588 individuals. In 1970, an estimated 698 grants will be awarded serving 84,146 retardates and training 17,292 individuals. In 1971, an estimated 703 grants will be awarded serving 86,282 retardates and training 17,924 individuals.

2. Facilities.—(a) Vocational rehabilitation facilities.—Project grants beginning in 1966 are made to assist in meeting the cost of construction of public or other nonprofit rehabilitation facilities. No funds are provided in 1971.

(b) Facilities for the mentally retarded.—Facilities include programs for community service facilities construction which supports construction of specially designed public and nonprofit community facilities which are essential to the diagnosis and evaluation, treatment, education, training, care, and rehabilitation of the mentally retarded; and construction of university-affiliated facilities to assist in the planning and construction of public or other non-profit facilities for the mentally retarded which are associated with a college, university or an affiliated hospital.

In 1969, 59 projects were supported which will provide facilities for services to 16,900 retardates and training to 1,500 individuals. In 1970, an estimated 86 projects will be supported which can provide facilities for services to 23,650 retardates. In 1971, an estimated 36 projects will be supported which can provide facilities for services to 9,900 retardates.

The Administration on Aging was created by the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended in 1967 and 1969, to provide assistance in the development of new or improved programs to help older persons and to serve as the focal point of the Federal Government's concern for the needs and problems of the aging.

1. State planning and service grants.—Title III of the act contains three separate programs: Community programs which pay a part of the cost of local projects for planning, services, and training; model projects, a program of direct grants to State agencies on aging for model projects of areawide scope; and a State administration activity which shares with the States the cost of program operations and planning.

(a) Community programs.—Community program funds are matched by local funds in the amount of 75/25 the first year, 60/40 the second year, and 50/50 for each subsequent year, with the latter percent being the State share. The States award grants at their own discretion for programs that may stimulate community planning and coordination of programs providing services for the elderly; and training of specialized personnel, including the elderly, to carry out programs and activities for the aging.

(b) Model projects.—The model projects program will make $2.2 million available to State agencies to conduct areawide demonstrations of comprehensive service delivery for the elderly. These projects are matched on a 75/25 basis with 25% being the State share. Joint funding of these projects, where possible, with other broad service programs affecting the elderly, is expected to further increase the impact of these projects.

(c) Planning and operations.—State costs for program operations and planning are shared on a 75/25 basis with the latter percent being the State share. These funds are used to meet the expense of statewide planning, coordination, and evaluation of programs and activities for the aging.

2. Foster grandparents.—Under title VI of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended, grants are made directly to community agencies to pay 90% of the cost of the program. Older men and women, over 60 years of age and with incomes below the Office of Economic Opportunity poverty level of $1,600 for an individual and $2,100 for a couple are given a stipend to provide personalized care to children in institutional and other settings. They serve 20 hours a week maintaining a continuous relationship with the child. About 4,000 foster grandparents will participate in the program in 1971.

3. Research and training.—Under titles IV and V, grants and contracts for research and training are made with public, nonprofit, and private agencies, organizations, institutions or individuals after consultation with the appropriate State agency. Matching by the grantee is usually in the form of money, facilities, or service toward carrying out the purpose of the project.

Research grants and contracts are made for the following purposes: To study older persons' patterns of living and identify the factors affecting their lives; to develop techniques and approaches which will contribute to wholesome and meaningful living for older people; to develop methods of improving coordinated community services for the elderly; to find ways of increasing their meaningful participation in life; to disseminate, widely, the knowledge gained through these research and development activities and to conduct conferences and meetings.

Training grants and contracts are made for the following purposes: To support recruitment and training of critically needed personnel employed in or preparing for employment in the field of aging; to develop the university curricula and training materials needed for this training; to undertake manpower studies and job analyses to determine the need for trained personnel to carry out such programs; to conduct conferences and meetings for the exchange of information in the training field; and to publish and distribute the findings and other materials developed from work done in the training area.

The sum of $1 million for Federal preparation and conduct of the 1971 White House Conference on Aging is included in this activity. The Conference will focus on the development of national goals for the elderly during the 1970's. The participation of experts and lay persons from all parts of the country will be encouraged.

1. Planning, rehabilitation, and prevention.—Under title I of Public Law 90-445, funds may be provided to States and localities for the preparation of plans for coordinated and comprehensive networks of juvenile delinquency prevention and rehabilitation programs. In 1969, 37 such programs were initiated. The 1970 estimate includes funds for continuation of about 15 projects and approximately 17 new starts. $500 thousand of the 1971 estimate will provide for the support of ongoing planning in 25 States. The remaining $500 thousand will support about 50 project planning grants.

Funds may also be provided for grants to promote the full use of community rehabilitation services for the diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation of delinquent youth and youth in danger of becoming delinquent. In 1969, 10 projects were supported out of available funds. The 1970 estimate includes funds for continuation of the 10 projects and approximately 30 new starts. In 1971, the $3 million estimated for rehabilitation services will support about 25 new starts and eight continuations. Included under rehabilitation are funds for the construction of community-based facilities. No funds were provided for this activity in 1969. The 1970 estimate will support about 14 new projects. The $1 million earmarked for this activity in 1971 will support 14 new projects.

Under title I, funds may also be provided for grants to meet the costs of projects designed to promote the use of community-based services for the prevention of delinquency. In 1969, the $400 thousand obligated for this purpose supported 17 projects. The 1970 estimate will allow for the continuation of the 17 projects and approximately 46 new starts. In 1971, the $6 million is expected to provide for the support of approximately 55 new projects and 25 continuations.

2. Training.—Funds are for the purpose of training personnel employed in or preparing for employment in fields related to the diagnosis, treatment, or rehabilitation of youths who are delinquent or in danger of becoming delinquent. This training will be accomplished through curriculum development, short-term institutes, and traineeship grants and projects. The funds provided in 1969 will allow for the training of about 2,500 individuals. $2,600 thousand is estimated for this activity in 1970, and $2,600 thousand for 1971.

3. Model programs and technical assistance.—The model programs activity provides for the development of improved techniques and practices which hold promise of making a substantial contribution to preventing delinquency and the treatment of youth who are delinquent or in danger of becoming delinquent. Funds shown for this activity in 1969 were earmarked for the support of the President's Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence. The 1970 estimate, $1 million, will support about 17 projects. The 1971 estimate, $1 million, will support about 17 new projects.

Under the technical assistance provisions of the act, grants and contracts will be awarded for the provision of this service directly to public or nonprofit agencies and organizations, and to State agencies willing to provide technical assistance to local public and private nonprofit agencies. In 1969, the funds obligated will support about nine projects.

The 1970 estimate includes funds for continuation of those projects, some new projects will be supported in 1971.

Funds will also be available for the support of the committees, cost of consultant services and supporting travel, and other related costs as authorized under title IV of the act.

The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, and the International Health Research Act of 1960 authorize the conduct of research and related activities abroad. Research, demonstration, and research training programs are supported primarily with foreign currencies accruing to the United States through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities and through other sources. The estimate for 1971 proposes an appropriation of $7 million for the purchase of foreign currencies in 10 excess currency countries.

Rehabilitation.—Research and demonstration programs are directed to the solution of problems which hold promise of contributing knowledge to the advancement of rehabilitation both in the United States and in other countries. Research training and fellowships are provided and exchanges of rehabilitation experts are arranged between the United States and cooperating foreign countries to increase the rehabilitation research resources both here and abroad.

Social welfare.—Studies of urban social welfare and delivery of social services are conducted in countries selected because of the country's experiences and research facilities in programs such as urban social services, community development, methods to strengthen family life, control and prevention of juvenile delinquency, and services for the aging. Cooperative projects including seminars and expert consultation contribute new knowledge valuable to social welfare programs in the United States, the country concerned, and internationally.

Aging.—The number of older persons in the population of western countries has been increasing steadily since the industrial revolution. Continuing collaboration among investigators from different disciplines engaged in gerontological research maximizes the benefit of findings and increases the possibility of drawing general conclusions of cross-national applicability. Multinational studies on providing more effective services to the aged will be expanded and new projects will build upon findings growing out of completed or ongoing projects. Comprehensive neighborhood services will be developed to help older persons obtain needed services and lead more productive lives. A series of studies will explore changes in life patterns as persons grow older. In addition, some investigations will be made of the psychological factors associated with the aging process during the middle years of life.

Includes $492 thousand in 1971 for activities previously financed from:

(In thousands of dollars)	1969	1970
Office of Economic Opportunity.....	$250	$268
Office of Community and Field Services.....	224	224

Excludes $5,241 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to the Health Services and Mental Health Administration and the Office of Child Development. 1969, $4,352 thousand; 1970, $4,610 thousand.

Excludes $580 thousand in 1970 and 1971 for activities transferred to the Office of Community and Field Services. 1969, $580 thousand.

This appropriation finances the support activities for the various grant and contract programs associated with assistance for the provision of constructive and rehabilitation services to needy, disabled, and other disadvantaged persons. Included in these support activities are technical assistance and consultative services provided to State and local governments, voluntary organizations, and other grantees; monitoring and review activities designed to assure the effective and prudent use of Federal funds by grantees; policy and program development activities; the conduct of research by intramural staffs; the preparation of publications and other informational material of interest to the public and to professional groups concerned with Social and Rehabilitation Service programs; grants management activities; collecting, processing, and disseminating statistical data.

1. Maintenance assistance.—This activity provides the Federal administration of the public welfare assistance program involving cash payments to welfare recipients and the reimbursement to State and local agencies for the cost of eligibility determination and general administration. Also included are technical services, leadership and consultation to State and local agencies, establishment of Federal standards, and administrative, legal or quality control reviews of expenditures. The objective of the program is to assure that eligibles are provided funds to meet the essentials of life.

2. Medical assistance.—Administers program of medical assistance to the needy, particularly the medical assistance program authorized by title XIX of the Social Security Act. These programs provide comprehensive medical care including nursing homes and intermediate care facilities to the needy, through State medical assistance programs. Also included is evaluation of the programs, assistance in recruiting and training State staff, and the development of policies and guides related to the comprehensiveness of State medical assistance programs.

3. Community services.—This activity involves the administration of service programs for the aged, blind, disabled, and families with dependent children. It provides for the administration of child welfare services and for research and training associated with those services. It provides for coordination with the Department of Labor in the development of the Work incentive program and for coordination of the referral process and child care efforts in State welfare agencies to support the training and employment efforts under the Work incentive program. Programs are directed toward improving capabilities of adults for self-care and self-support, improving the functioning of the family, protection and care of children, and protection and care of aged, blind and disabled persons who are not capable of self-care.

4. Rehabilitation services.—This activity covers responsibilities for programs offering services to individuals with a wide range of disabilities. Representative of the projects supported are the construction of rehabilitation facilities, grants to States for vocational rehabilitation, and grants for rehabilitation service projects. Through trust fund financing, and in cooperation with the Social Security Administration, rehabilitation of disability insurance beneficiaries is also accomplished. Other activities include the development and coordination of programs to support health and rehabilitation services for the mentally retarded. Consultative services are provided to State, local, and voluntary health agencies, educational and other institutions, that are initiating, improving, or expanding retardation services and activities. Grants are awarded to improve or provide care, to train personnel in State residential institutions, and to support construction and initial staffing of mental retardation facilities.

5. Services to the aging.—Provides development and coordination of programs which meet the needs of older persons. These include grants for State planning and operation, community services, model projects, research, demonstrations, and training of specialized personnel. Also included is the Foster grandparent program. Staff is responsible for stimulation of interagency programs and coordination of services to older persons and for maintenance of the clearinghouse for information concerning the aging. All efforts are directed toward improving, restoring, or retaining the older persons' capacity for personal and social functioning.

6. Juvenile delinquency.—Activities are directed toward an expanded effort to assist State and local communities to develop effective approaches to the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. Training assistance provides new or upgraded manpower resources, and technical assistance is provided States and communities to help develop comprehensive programs directed at the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency.

7. Field operations.—Provides the focal point for identifying and responding to the needs of State and local governmental agencies, and other public and private organizations concerned with the provision of social and rehabilitative services. Assures the attainment of Social and Rehabilitation Service national goals through decentralized local technical services in all programs of the agency including State plan approval and multiprogram activities.

8. Planning, research, and training.—This activity provides planning and support for many program activities. Representative of these efforts are the intramural research programs, the cooperative research and demonstration projects related to Social security programs, research for rehabilitation of the disabled, experimental or demonstration projects in public assistance and medical assistance, the social work manpower and rehabilitation training programs, and the foreign currency research and training program. The long-range and intermediate-range planning and evaluation of Social and Rehabilitation Service programs are coordinated under this activity.

9. Executive direction and management services.—This activity covers overall program leadership, coordination and direction, analysis of legislative proposals, preparation and dissemination of publications and public information, general administrative and management services, budget formulation and financial management and other specialized services best carried out on a centralized coordinated basis for all programs of the Service. This activity also provides design, direction and execution of the statistical programs of the Social and Rehabilitation Service including collecting, processing, analyzing, and disseminating statistical data on all programs of the Service.

10. Maternal and child health and development.—This activity includes the functions of the Children's Bureau which were transferred from the Social and Rehabilitation Service to the Office of Child Development and the Health Services and Mental Health Administration in October 1969. The salaries and expenses for these functions were charged to this appropriation through 1970. Included are Maternal and Child Health Services and related research and training. Also included are the functions of investigating and reporting on activities related to the welfare of children as established by the act of 1912.

In 1961 the President established a program to assist Cuban refugees in the United States. During 1961 and 1962, the program was conducted under the authority of the Mutual Security Act of 1954 and the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. On June 28, 1962, the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 was enacted which provides for assistance to refugees in the United States.

Refugees were arriving in Miami at the rate of about 1,700 a week when the missile crisis occurred in October 1962, after which the number of arrivals decreased to about 100 a week. On September 28, 1965, Castro publicly announced that any person who wished to leave Cuba could do so and on October 3, 1965, the President of the United States announced that the United States would permit the orderly influx of refugees allowed to leave Cuba. In December 1965, the airlift of the new influx of refugees started. Refugees are now arriving in Miami at the rate of about 900 a week. Between 1961 and the end of June 1969, 332,692 refugees had registered at the Cuban Refugee Center in Miami of which 220,774 had been resettled to other locations in the United States. The program provides the following services for Cuban refugees in the United States:

1. Welfare assistance and services.—State and private welfare agencies provide to needy refugees on a reimbursable basis financial assistance, hospitalization, surplus food, and care for unaccompanied children. At the end of 1969, 27,738 persons were receiving financial assistance in Florida, and 25,002 persons in other States were receiving financial and/or medical assistance. Comparable figures for June 30, 1970, are estimated at 34,388 for Florida and 32,242 for other States; the estimates for June 30, 1971, are 40,988 for Florida and 42,078 for all other States combined.

2. Resettlement.—Through contracts with various agencies, refugees are provided homes and jobs in areas other than Miami. During 1969, 31,616 persons were resettled from the Miami area to other areas throughout the country and it is estimated that 34,000 persons will be resettled each year in 1970 and 1971.

3. Education.—Selected training is provided to equip the refugees for employment and resettlement. Also, provision is made for Federal payments to help meet part of the added cost related to refugee children in certain public school systems where the number of such children represents a sizable portion of total enrollments; in 1971, funds for this purpose are requested for Dade County, Fla., and for Union City and West New York, N.J. Loans are also made to needy college students; these are expected to rise from 4,343 in 1969 to 4,700 in 1970 and to 5,100 in 1971.

4. Health services.—These services are provided to new arrivals and to needy refugees in Miami and includes medical screening, outpatient clinic services and care of patients with tuberculosis and mental illness.

5. Transportation of refugees from Cuba.—This provides for the cost of airlifting the refugees from Cuba.

6. Program administration.—Provides Federal direction of the program and includes work with refugees to prepare them for resettlement and employment.

PAYMENTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS—Continued

This appropriation provides for payments from Federal funds to the social security trust funds for certain types of benefits and related administrative costs not funded by contributions from workers and employers. The 1971 appropriation request of $2,599,886 thousand covers the following types of payments:

1. Matching payments for supplementary medical insurance.—An estimated $1,245,282 thousand will be required in 1971 to finance the Government's contribution to the Federal supplementary medical insurance trust fund and to cover the deficiency in financing the Government's contribution for 1970. For each monthly premium paid by enrollees in the voluntary medical insurance program, which primarily covers doctor bills, the Federal Government matches a like amount. The estimate for 1971 assumes that an average of about 19.5 million persons will be enrolled in the program during 1971 as compared with an average of about 19.2 million in 1970.

2. Hospital insurance for the uninsured.—A payment of $878,688 thousand to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund is budgeted for 1971 to cover the costs of hospital and related care for individuals age 65 and over who are not insured under the social security or railroad retirement systems and to cover deficiencies in financing prior years' costs. (Costs for the aged who are insured are financed by contributions on earnings by workers and by employers.) The estimate assumes that there will be an average of 1.7 million uninsured persons covered for hospital benefits during 1971.

3. Military service credits.—The appropriation includes reimbursement of $105 million to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Federal disability insurance trust fund and the Federal hospital insurance trust fund for benefits paid on the basis of noncontributory military service credits of veterans of World War II and certain veterans of the post-World War II period. The basis for computation of these payments is prescribed in section 217(g) of the Social Security Act and includes reimbursement for administrative expenses and interest lost to the trust funds.

The payment to each trust fund is (in millions of dollars):

Old-age and survivors insurance.....	78
Disability insurance.....	16
Hospital insurance.....	11

4. Retirement benefits for certain uninsured persons.—This appropriation provides for a payment of $370,916 thousand to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund as reimbursement for funds expended in 1969 for payment of benefits to certain noninsured individuals aged 72 and over and to cover deficiencies in reimbursement for prior years' benefit payments. The appropriation includes reimbursement for benefit payments, related administrative expenses, and interest lost to the trust fund.

Section 228(g) of the Social Security Act, as amended, authorizes an appropriation for the amount which is necessary to place the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund in the same position as it would have been if the payments made from the trust fund during the second preceding fiscal year and all fiscal years prior thereto to persons with fewer than three quarters of coverage had not been made. The first such authorized appropriation was for the year ending June 30, 1969, for payments made in the year ending June 30, 1967. Similar appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year thereafter.

Benefit payments to recipients are intended to assist a significant number of living coal miners who are totally disabled from pneumoconiosis arising out of employment in underground coal mines, and survivors of such miners whose death was due to this disease. Few States provide benefits to such miners or survivors.

Title IV of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act provides that coal miners and former coal miners who are totally disabled due to pneumoconiosis will receive benefits at a rate equal to 50% of the minimum monthly payment to which a disabled Federal employee in grade GS-2 would be entitled at the time of payment. This represents approximately $136 per month. Widows of coal miners and former coal miners whose deaths are due to pneumoconiosis or whose deaths occurred while receiving total disability benefits, receive benefits at the rate prescribed for totally disabled miners. The rates prescribed above are increased for dependents at the rate of 50% for one dependent (wife or child), 75% for two dependents, and 100% for three or more dependents. The benefits for miners and widows will be reduced on account of payments under the workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation, or disability insurance laws of the State and, in the case of miners only, for benefits payable under the Social Security Act.

"Pneumoconiosis" is defined to mean any chronic dust disease, whether in its advanced stages or not, of the lung, arising out of employment in one or more underground coal mines. It is anticipated that the disease will be determined by the best medical evidence possible, primarily X-rays. But pulmonary function tests, and other medical means may be used for diagnosis, as determined by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare. The definition of a "miner" limits the application of this title to miners who are or were employed in underground coal mines. The parameters of the term "total disability" will be established from time-to-time by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare, but he must not establish more restrictive criteria for determining disability than the criteria applicable under section 223(d) of the Social Security Act, as amended, for purposes of disability under that act. It is expected that initially these criteria will be followed.

In accordance with the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, the Bureau of Occupational Safety and Health of the Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Service establishes the health criteria for respirable dust levels and noise levels. To establish the extent and degree of impairment of the coal miners' health, the Bureau will analyze, classify, and record the results of periodic X-rays and other medical tests.

Implementation of the act also requires the development of base-line data, through epidemiological studies, clinical studies, and medical environmental studies, for the improvement of the health standards. Research on early detection techniques, hypersusceptibility and disability are necessary, as well.

For 1971, total expenditures for benefit payments and administrative costs are estimated at $150 million.

LIMITATION ON SALARIES AND EXPENSES (TRUST FUND)

For necessary expenses, not more than $997,461,000 may be expended as authorized by section 201(g)(1) of the Social Security Act, from any one or all of the trust funds referred to therein: Provided, That such amounts as are required shall be available to pay the cost of necessary travel incident to medical examinations or hearings for verifying disabilities or for review of disability determinations, of individuals who file applications for disability determinations under title II of the Social Security Act, as amended: Provided further, That $25,000,000 of the foregoing amount shall be apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), only to the extent necessary to process workloads not anticipated in the budget estimates and to meet mandatory increases in costs of agencies or organizations with which agreements have been made to participate in the administration of title XVIII and section 221 of title II of the Social Security Act, and after maximum absorption of such costs within the remainder of the existing limitation has been achieved.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

The social security program provides old-age, survivors, and disability insurance protection for over 90% of the workers and their families in the United States. It also provides hospital insurance protection for virtually all individuals in the United States who are age 65 or older, as well as supplementary medical insurance coverage for the almost 95% of persons age 65 or over who have elected it. Individuals covered under the Social Security Act contribute a portion of their earnings during their working years to pay for this protection and employers match the contributions made by their employees. Monthly premiums are paid by those individuals age 65 and over who elect coverage under the supplementary medical insurance program or by States for certain public assistance recipients age 65 and over; these premiums are matched by the Federal Government by appropriations from Federal funds. The Federal Government also finances from Federal funds the hospital insurance protection for individuals not insured under social security or railroad retirement systems. These contributions are deposited in the Federal old-age and survivors, disability, hospital, and supplementary medical insurance trust funds, from which benefit payments and administrative costs are paid.

The amount of funds required to administer the social security program is related to workloads which emanate from the statutory base of the program. The size of these loads depends upon objective factors such as population growth, the level of employment, incidence of illness among the aged and mortality rates.

1. Old-age and survivors insurance program.—This program provides monthly benefits for retired workers and their dependents, survivors of deceased workers including disabled widows and widowers age 50 and over, and certain uninsured persons at age 72.

The volume of new claims received, the number of persons receiving monthly benefits, and the amount of benefits to be paid increase over the prior year's level in 1970 and again in 1971. This trend is expected to continue for many years into the future because of the growth in number of aged persons in the population and in the proportion of these who are insured for retirement benefits, as well as the growth in the population insured for survivors benefits.

OASI benefit payments (in millions)....	$23,732	$26,356	$29,706

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the costs of processing claims for benefits, including reconsiderations and appeals of initial claims decisions; handling revisions to the beneficiary rolls to insure the prompt mailing of benefit checks each month to beneficiaries who are entitled to them, and to discontinue these checks when eligibility for benefits is interrupted or ends; and the annual program to reappraise the amount of benefits paid each beneficiary to determine whether the beneficiary is entitled to a higher amount of benefits due to events that have occurred since his initial entitlement to benefits.

2. Disability insurance program.—This program provides monthly benefits for disabled workers and certain of their dependents.

As the size of the population insured for disability benefits will increase, the intake of new claims will increase in both 1970 and 1971, as well as the number of beneficiaries in pay status and the amount of benefits paid.

disability of beneficiaries and terminating their benefits if it is found that they have recovered; and servicing the beneficiary rolls and keeping it current by making all changes due to deaths, changes of address, attainment of age 65, returns to employment and recoveries from disability. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by State agencies in most cases, and these decisions are reviewed in the central office of the Social Security Administration.

3. Health insurance program.—This program includes both the hospital insurance and the voluntary supplementary medical insurance programs which were established by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act and commonly referred to as Medicare.

(a) Hospital insurance program.—The hospital insurance program affords protection to persons age 65 and over against the costs of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services and posthospital extended care services. Bills for services rendered under the hospital insurance program are generally submitted by hospitals, extended care facilities, home health agencies and in some instances by individuals who have received emergency care in nonparticipating hospitals. In most instances, these bills are processed by the Blue Cross Association and private insurance companies acting as intermediaries for the Social Security Administration. The individual beneficiary records of utilization of hospital services are maintained in the central office of the Social Security Administration. The growth in beneficiaries who will be covered by the program as the population age 65 and over increases and the rise in the utilization rates of available services cause an increase in the number of bills in both 1970 and 1971.

(b) Supplementary medical insurance program.—Almost all persons age 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance program which covers the cost of physician services and other medical costs within certain deductible and coinsurance requirements. Enrollees in the program pay a monthly premium and the aggregate of these premiums is matched by the Federal Government by appropriations from Federal funds. Claims for services under the medical insurance program are submitted by either the physician or other suppliers of service or the beneficiary to Blue Shield Associations and private insurance companies who have been designated to act as carriers for the Social Security Administration in specific geographical areas.

The volume of claims will rise in 1970 and 1971 as a result of the growth in the age 65 and over population, and the projected increase in utilization of medical services.

¹ Includes $580 million in 1969, $595 million in 1970, and $637 million in 1971 chargeable to Federal funds.

The administrative costs budgeted under this activity cover the bill and claim payment functions performed by the intermediaries and carriers; services performed by State agencies in certifying and consulting with providers of services; all work performed by the Social Security Administration in directing the program, providing services to beneficiaries, maintaining records by individual beneficiary of utilization of hospital and medical services and processing claims to establish entitlement to hospital insurance for persons not insured for cash benefits under either the social security or railroad retirement program.

4. Contingency reserve.—This is a fund to be used with the approval of the Bureau of the Budget in the event that workloads and/or mandatory costs of agencies with which agreements have been made to participate in the program exceed the budget estimates. The fund is to be used only after maximum absorption of such costs within the existing limitation has been achieved.

Funds requested for expenditure from the trust funds, established by the Social Security Act, as amended, will provide for the acquisition of sites and design of 30 additional buildings to house district offices of the Social Security Administration.

1. Headquarters.—No additional funds are requested for this activity in 1971. Obligations scheduled for 1970 and 1971 under this activity are based on estimated progress of construction projects already funded and studies to be undertaken in anticipation of additional needed construction.

2. District office.—Funds have been provided in the 1965, 1966, and 1967 appropriations for the acquisition of sites, design, and construction of Social Security Administration district offices in 107 selected cities throughout the country. This is part of a long-range program of construction to provide more appropriate and adequate space for district offices in locations where construction is determined to be both feasible and advantageous. An estimated $2,800 thousand in budget authority is requested for 1971 to provide for the acquisition of sites and design of district office buildings in 30 more selected cities. Funds for construction of the 30 district office buildings will be requested in a subsequent year.

Intragovernmental funds—ContinuedFEDERAL OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE TRUST FUND—CON.

The old-age and survivors insurance program is financed by contributions to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The contribution rate on which this budget is based is 4.2% each for employer and employee in calendar years 1969 and 1970 and 4.6% for calendar year 1971 of taxable earnings up to a maximum of $7,800. The rate for self-employed persons is 6.3% and 6.9% in the respective years.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of monthly benefits to retired workers and their dependents and to survivors of deceased workers. The average numbers of persons receiving payments and the payment amounts classified by major types of beneficiaries follow for 1969–71 (in millions):

Retired workers.....	13.1	13.4	13.8
Dependents of retired workers...	3.2	3.2	3.2
Survivors of deceased workers.....	6.0	6.2	6.5

Payments to survivors of deceased workers.....	$6,415	$7,076	$7,949
Total benefit payments.....	$23,732	$26,356	$29,706

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, construction, alteration, and equipment of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its salaries and expenses appropriation, and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Payments are made between this trust fund and the railroad retirement account so as to place this fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E). Estimates are made of the yearly amounts of additional contributions the Social Security Administration would have collected, the additional benefits it would have paid and the additional administrative costs it would have incurred if railroad employees had been covered under social security. The payment made to the railroad retirement account represents the amount by which the estimated benefit payments and administrative costs exceed the estimated contributions, and includes interest through the date of the transfer. The components of the net transfers for 1969–71 follow (in thousands of dollars):

Contributions.....	324,200	359,000	373,000

Interest.....	27,282	32,000	33,000
Net transfer.....	491,482	523,000	562,000

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that payments may be made from this fund for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to disabled individuals entitled to disability insurance benefits. The total amount to be used for rehabilitation services may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to disabled workers and to disabled dependents of disabled, retired, or deceased workers in the preceding year.

The disability insurance program is financed by contributions to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The contribution rate on which this budget is based is 4.2% each for employer and employee in calendar years 1969 and 1970 and 4.6% for calendar year 1971 of taxable earnings up to a maximum of $7,800. The rate for self-employed persons is 6.3% and 6.9% in the respective years.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for monthly disability insurance benefits for certain disabled individuals and their dependents. The average numbers of persons receiving payments and the payment amounts classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1969-71 are as follows (in millions):

Disabled workers.....	1.3	1.4	1.5
Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.0	1.1	1.1
Total.....	2.3	2.5	2.6
Payments to disabled workers.....	$1,929	$2,221	$2,552
Payments to dependents of disabled workers.....	$514	$577	$639
Total benefit payments.....	$2,443	$2,798	$3,191

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, construction, alteration, and equipment of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its salaries and expenses appropriation, and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made between this account and the railroad retirement account so as to place these funds in the same position in which they would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included under social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E). This payment is computed on the same basis as the payment from the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund. The components of the net transfers for 1969-71 follow (in thousands of dollars):

Contributions.....	40,000	48,000	53,000

Interest.....	1,528	1,400	1,400
Net transfer.....	21,328	18,000	17,000

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that payments may be made from this fund for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to disabled individuals entitled to disability insurance benefits. The total amount to be used for rehabilitation services may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to disabled workers and to disabled dependents of disabled, retired or deceased workers in the preceding year.

For persons on the social security and railroad retirement rolls, the costs of services covered by the hospital insurance program and administrative costs are financed by contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The combined worker-employer contribution rate in the budget estimates is 1.2% of taxable earnings up to a maximum of $7,800 annually. Self-employed persons pay one-half of the combined worker-employer rate. Costs for those not insured under the social security or railroad retirement program are met from general revenues of the Treasury.

1. Benefit payments.—The hospital insurance program provides protection to approximately 20 million persons age 65 and over against the costs of inpatient hospital services, post-hospital home health services, and post-hospital extended care services. The following table shows comparative data on hospital insurance beneficiaries and on benefit payments classified by type of coverage for 1969 through 1971 (in millions):

Persons with hospital insurance protection (average).....	19.7	19.9	20.2
Beneficiaries receiving reimbursed services.....	4.4	4.4	4.5
Payments for inpatient hospital services.....	$4,220	$4,726	$5,752
Payments for extended care services.....	390	448	512
Payments for home health services.....	43	51	61
Payments for outpatient services ¹	1	-----	-----

The growth in benefit payments in 1970 and 1971 results from increases in covered population, in utilization of services and unit cost of services.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, construction, alterations, and equipment of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its Salaries and expenses appropriation and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Incentive reimbursement experimentation.—The 1967 social security amendments provide authorization to conduct experiments for reimbursement of providers of services on a basis other than the "reasonable cost" or "reasonable charges" provisions generally applicable under the Medicare program in order to achieve incentives for economy while maintaining or improving quality in the provision of health services. Costs of administering and evaluating the experiments are distributed currently on an estimated basis between the Hospital insurance and supplementary medical insurance trust funds.

Almost all persons aged 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the voluntary supplementary medical insurance program provided by the Social Security Act, and about 95% of those eligible have chosen to do so. The costs of services covered by the program and administrative expenses are financed by premium payments from enrollees together with matching contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury. The monthly premium payment is scheduled to increase from $4.00 to $5.30 effective July 1, 1970.

1. Benefit payments.—Participants in the program are covered for the costs of physicians' services, home health services not covered under the hospital insurance program, outpatient services, and certain other medical costs with specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. As provided under Public Law 89-694, an agreement between the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and Gallaudet College was signed on May 16, 1969, authorizing the establishment, construction, equipping, and operation of a model secondary school for the deaf located on the campus of Gallaudet College and serving the National Capital region (including the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Delaware).

Operations.—In 1971, the first full year of operation, administrative procedures will be refined, and the instructional program will be further developed with the introduction of new curricular materials and methods. Further, the research, development, and evaluation programs, and the role of supporting services will be expanded in proportion to the increased student enrollment, and funds will be provided for the lease of temporary facilities which will house the instruction program.

Construction.—The 1971 appropriation will provide funds for the completion of planning.

The operation and maintenance staff services 47 buildings located on the university's 60-acre campus. The dormitories, food service, bookstores and intramural athletic programs are intended to be self-supporting and render service at the lowest possible cost.

Freedmen's Hospital.—The hospital furnishes inpatient and outpatient care and a facility for training of physicians and nurses and other professional and technical health personnel. Operation of the hospital is financed by direct appropriation and income derived from charges for medical and hospital services from patients other than medicare, medicare patients, the District of Columbia, and other jurisdictions. Federal funds provide 71% of the total operating costs.

The 1970 budget request for construction of the Howard University teaching hospital is based on 1967 cost levels. Since the original estimate was made, construction costs have been rising in the Washington, D.C., area in line with the trend in the Nation. The proposed supplemental appropriation would compensate for the higher costs and permit GSA to advertise for bids on the hospital facility.

The Office of Child Development was established at the direction of the President (34 F.R. 12190) in July 1969. Its purpose is to coordinate, plan, and evaluate Federal activities affecting development of young children, including those in health, social welfare, environment, and education. The Office also administers Head Start grants by delegation from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

1. Research and demonstrations.—Support is provided for research projects and grants designed to increase our knowledge of effective early childhood programs; to develop evaluative instruments and norms for young children; to improve foster care and adoption systems; and to develop better statistical reporting on current services provided for young children. Under this same activity, projects will be designed to carry out the child research and reporting mandates of the Children's Bureau Organization Act of 1912.

2. White House Conference on Children and Youth.—The seventh decennial White House Conference on Children and Youth (1970) will make a broad review of present-day conditions of child life. As a joint undertaking of Federal, State, and local governments and of the private sector, the conference will focus on evaluating past and present services and opportunities for children and youth and on developing proposals to meet the unfulfilled and emerging needs of the Nation's young people.

3. Administration and technical assistance.—Includes monitoring and review of Federal early childhood programs; development of policies, program standards, and regulations; dissemination of research findings; and technical assistance and consultative services to State and local governments, and voluntary agencies.

1. Executive direction.—Broad policy direction is given to the various operating programs of the Department. Staff assistance is provided for the development of the Department's legislative program and for coordination and leadership in all areas of program operation. Staffing is provided for long-range program and policy planning.

2. Public information.—Overall guidance is given to the Department's relations with the public. Information is provided to the press, various public and private organizations, and to interested individuals.

3. Community and field services.—Supports the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Community and Field Services, the President's Committee on Mental Retardation and the Office for Field Coordination. Policy direction, coordination, and leadership for the Department's social programs is provided. This activity is also responsible for the organization, integration, evaluation, and coordination of the Department's field activities. The Center for Community Planning provides overall planning and coordination of programs designed to meet specific urban needs and serves as the Department's base for solving metropolitan problems.

4. Legal services.—The Office of General Counsel acts as legal adviser to, and provides legal services for, the Secretary, the operating agencies of the Department, and the staff of the regional offices.

5. Financial management.—(a) Audit.—The HEW Audit Agency is responsible for the overall policy, liaison, and coordination of all Department audit activities, including liaison and coordination with the Defense Contract Audit Agency and other Government agencies. It performs internal and external audits of all Department activities to provide assurance that Federal funds are used for the purposes intended. The Audit Agency is administered on a decentralized basis with the central office in Washington, D.C., responsible for policy, coordination, and overall administration, and a regional staff in each of the HEW regional areas responsible for the performance of all audits within its respective geographical area.

(b) Other.—Staff assistance is provided to the Secretary in formulating policy in all areas of financial management.

6. Administrative management.—Staff assistance is provided to the Secretary for formulating administrative policy in the areas of personnel, general services, and general administrative management, including the conduct of management and organization studies, provision of internal security services, and operation of the Department's library. Support in these areas, including administration of the PHS Commissioned Corps personnel system, is provided the Assistant Secretary for Health and Scientific Affairs in connection with his line responsibility over the three health agencies. This activity also provides administrative management services for all units of the Office of the Secretary. The Office of State Merit Systems reviews State plans and personnel practices in more than 300 State agencies administering grant programs and 70 merit systems applicable to them. For 24 grant-in-aid programs, grants to States are contingent upon compliance with Federal regulations and standards relating to State personnel administration. Upon a State's request, it provides technical services for increased efficiency of personnel administration.

7. Surplus property utilization.—Under the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, the Secretary: (a) allocates needed surplus personal property to State agencies for educational, public health, and civil defense purposes; (b) transfers surplus real property for educational and public health purposes, including research; (c) administers the rights of the United States under the terms and conditions of such transfers; (d) promulgates regulations governing the operation of the program, and enforces such regulations.

The following table shows actual and anticipated property allocations to schools, hospitals, and civil defense agencies through operation of the program (in millions of dollars):

Family planning services.—Legislation is proposed to initiate a program of project grants to public or nonprofit private agencies, institutions and organizations to meet up to 90% of the costs of projects that provide family planning services and related research and training. The program's emphasis will be the provision of family planning services to women who want but cannot afford such services. It is anticipated that the program will serve approximately 100,000 needy women in 1971.

Legislation will be proposed to revise the authorizations for payments to school districts in federally affected areas. These revisions will be based on a study of the present provisions made over the past several months and other relevant concerns, and will make Federal grants for this program more consistent with the fiscal problems of the school districts involved. The proposed legislation will concentrate payments for those districts where Federal impact is greatest, allowing for local tax effort and fiscal capacity.

Several improvements in the cash benefits program have been proposed. Among these improvements, the annual exempt amount of earnings under the retirement test would be increased from $1,680 to $1,800 a year and benefits would be reduced by $1 for each $2 of all earnings in excess of the proposed exempt amount of $1,800. An additional improvement in benefits would increase widow's benefits from 81.5% to 100% of the worker's benefit. These benefits would become effective in 1972.

It is proposed to provide additional financing by increasing the maximum taxable earnings base from $7,800 to $9,000 effective January 1, 1971.

In addition, it is proposed that the contribution rate for cash benefits, now scheduled to rise from 4.2% to 4.6% each for employees and employers on January 1, 1971, would be increased to only 4.3% on that date. This reduction in the scheduled increase in the contribution rate will result in continued moderate growth in the size of the cash benefits trust funds.

It is further proposed that the contribution rate for hospital insurance be increased January 1, 1971, from 0.6% each for employees and employers to 0.9% each. The proposed changes in the contribution rate and the maximum taxable earnings base will place the hospital insurance trust fund on an actuarially sound basis.

This estimate allows for initiation of a new Family Assistance program to assist all poor families with dependent children and replace the existing program of Aid to Families with Dependent Children. Other major provisions of the bill that would be covered under this budget authority include an improved Federal financing formula and payment increases for the adult public assistance categories, additional funds for training and day care services for family assistance recipients, and administrative expenses associated with implementing these provisions. This legislation will require an initial program level of $600 million and outlays of $500 million in 1971.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 201. None of the funds appropriated by this title to the Social and Rehabilitation Service for grants-in-aid of State agencies to cover, in whole or in part, the cost of operation of said agencies, including the salaries and expenses of officers and employees of said agencies, shall be withheld from the said agencies of any States which have established by legislative enactment and have in operation a merit system and classification and compensation plan covering the selection, tenure in office, and compensation of their employees, because of any disapproval of their personnel or the manner of their selection by the agencies of the said States, or the rates of pay of said officers or employees.

Sec. 202. The Secretary is authorized to make such transfers of motor vehicles, between bureaus and offices, without transfer of funds, as may be required in carrying out the operations of the Department.

Sec. 203. None of the funds provided herein shall be used to pay any recipient of a grant for the conduct of a research project an amount equal to as much as the entire cost of such project.

Sec. 204. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used for any activity the purpose of which is to require any recipient of any project grant for research, training, or demonstration made by any officer or employee of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to pay to the United States any portion of any interest or other income earned on payments of such grant made before July 1, 1964; nor shall any of the funds contained in this Act be used for any activity the purpose of which is to require payment to the United States of any portion of any interest or other income earned on payments made before July 1, 1964, to the American Printing House for the Blind.

Sec. 205. Expenditures from funds appropriated under this title to the American Printing House for the Blind, Howard University and Gallaudet College shall be subject to audit by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Sec. 206. None of the funds contained in this title shall be available for additional permanent Federal positions in the Washington area if the proportion of additional positions in the Washington area in relation to the total new positions is allowed to exceed the proportion existing at the close of fiscal year 1966.

Sec. 207. Appropriations in this Act for the Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Service, the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, the National Institutes of Health, and the Office of the Secretary shall be available for expenses for active commissioned officers in the Public Health Service Reserve Corps and for not to exceed two thousand eight hundred commissioned officers in the Regular Corps; expenses incident to the dissemination of health information in foreign countries through exhibits and other appropriate means, advances of funds for compensation, travel, and subsistence expenses (or per diem in lieu thereof) for persons coming from abroad to participate in health or scientific activities of the Department pursuant to law; expenses of primary and secondary schooling of dependents, in foreign countries, of Public Health Service commissioned officers stationed in foreign countries, at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and for the transportation of such dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation; rental or lease of living quarters (for periods not exceeding 5 years), and provisions of heat, fuel, and light, and maintenance, improvement, and repair of such quarters, and advance payments therefor, for civilian officers and employees of the Public Health Service who are United States citizens and who have a permanent station in a foreign country; not to exceed $2,500 for entertainment of visiting scientists when specifically approved by the Surgeon General; purchase, erection, and maintenance of temporary or portable structures; and for the payment of compensation to consultants or individual scientists appointed for limited periods of time pursuant to section 207(f) or section 207(g) of the Public Health Service Act, at rates established by the Surgeon General, or the Secretary where such action is required by statute, not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18.

Sec. 208. None of the funds contained in this title may be used for payments to any State for fiscal year 1971 for services, staff training, and administrative expenses under titles I, IV (part A), X, XIV, and XVI of the Social Security Act which, in the aggregate, exceed 110 percent of the aggregate amount estimated for these purposes for such State for fiscal year 1970, except where the Secretary determines that such a limitation would impair in a significant way the effective operation of the program involved.

Sec. 209. None of the funds contained in this title may be used for any expenses, whatsoever, incident to making allotments to States for the current fiscal year, under section 2 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, on a basis in excess of a total of $500,000,000.

Sec. 401. Appropriations contained in this Act, available for salaries and expenses, shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18.

Sec. 402. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

Sec. 403. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities.

Sec. 404. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are each authorized to make available not to exceed $7,500 from funds available for salaries and expenses under titles I and II, respectively, for official reception and representation expenses.

Sec. 405. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

Sec. 406. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to finance any Civil Service Interagency Board of Examiners.

Sec. 407. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are authorized to transfer unexpended balances of prior appropriations to accounts corresponding to current appropriations provided in this Act. Provided, That such transferred balances are used for the same purpose, and for the same periods of time, for which they were originally appropriated.

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter of the budget contains the budget and program estimates for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The major divisions of the chapter are based on the organization and assignment of responsibilities that prevailed prior to the end of calendar year 1969. A new organization and assignment of responsibilities for the Department was announced on November 7, 1969. Under the new organization, responsibilities are assigned in terms of function and not in the terms of programs or the source of funds. Therefore, it has not been possible to rearrange the current appropriation accounts to reflect the new organization. The following paragraphs indicate the general relationship between the major sections of this chapter and the new organization of the Department.

1. Within the Renewal and Housing Assistance section, the portions of the low-rent public housing, college housing, urban renewal, and rehabilitation loan programs relating to housing production are assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit. Grants for neighborhood facilities are assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Metropolitan Planning and Development. The remaining functions covered by the appropriation accounts in this section are assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Renewal and Housing Management.

2. The appropriation accounts in the Metropolitan Development section are assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Metropolitan Planning and Development.

3. Within the Mortgage Credit section, those parts of programs funded from appropriation accounts for rent supplements, homeownership and rental housing assistance, community disposal operations, the Federal Housing Administration Fund, and the Government National Mortgage Association which relate to management and disposition functions (including the management and disposal of acquired properties, mortgage servicing for insured multifamily programs, and the management of contracts for housing assistance payments) are assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Renewal and Housing Management. The remaining activities are assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit.

4. The appropriation accounts within the Model Cities and Governmental Relations, Urban Technology and Research, Federal Insurance Administration, and Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity sections are assigned to assistant secretaries or organizational units with titles essentially the same as those of these sections.

5. The Departmental Management section includes the salary and expense appropriation requests to support functions as aligned under the previous organization. These will be used to support the same functions under the new organizational alignment.

GRANTS FOR NEIGHBORHOOD FACILITIES—Continued

Grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing multipurpose neighborhood facilities are authorized by section 703 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3103). To be eligible for Federal financial assistance, projects must be necessary for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community services; designed for multipurpose use providing a wide range of services and activities needed in the neighborhood; consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community; and conveniently located for use by a significant portion of the low- or moderate-income residents of the area.

While grant assistance applies only to provision of the structure, local communities schedule and provide multi-services designed to meet the needs of the particular neighborhood including service programs supported by other Federal agencies, thus providing an opportunity for coordinating the various services housed in the facility.

Priority consideration is given to neighborhood centers designed primarily to benefit members of low-income families or otherwise substantially further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Applications are rated on the degree of poverty in the service area and the extent to which the project provides needed service to low-income families in an effective manner. It is anticipated that funds for about 106 projects will be reserved in 1971.

Federal assistance may not exceed two-thirds of project development cost, except for projects located in redevelopment areas designated under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, where three-fourths grants are authorized.

Loans and grants to the State of Alaska, or its designated agency, to assist in providing housing and related facilities for Alaska natives (Eskimos, Indians, Aleuts, and other low-income residents) were authorized by section 1004 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 3371). No appropriation is requested for 1971. After 1970 funds are obligated, the program will be transferred for liquidation to the Revolving fund for liquidating programs.

Public enterprise funds:

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title III of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970, relating to corporations, is shown in the Other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 901.

URBAN RENEWAL

Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes Federal assistance to local public agencies for rehabilitation or acquisition, clearance, and redevelopment of slums and blighted areas. Except in special cases, Federal grants defray two-thirds of the net project cost.

The budget proposes $1 billion of new budget authority be enacted to provide for urban renewal assistance grants in 1971. Temporary project financing and long-term financing of land disposed under lease agreements through direct or guaranteed loans are provided from a Treasury borrowing authorization of $1 billion.

Urban renewal activities are administered by local public agencies. Several approaches have been developed to treat slum, blighted, and deteriorating areas. These include urban renewal projects, code enforcement, and demolition activities and the newer approaches involving annual action and funding techniques through neighborhood development programs (NDP's), interim assistance for blighted areas and rehabilitation grants in areas certified for renewal in the near future. These approaches provide for clearance and redevelopment, rehabilitation, code enforcement, and replacement or installation of private and public facilities and other community needs such as schools, fire stations, libraries, parks, and preservation of historic structures.

Financial assistance and counseling are provided homeowners and businessmen in renewal areas to enable them to rehabilitate their properties when appropriate or to provide assistance in relocating in satisfactory facilities. Over 1,000 localities were participating in urban renewal programs on June 30, 1969.

URBAN RENEWAL PROGRAMS

For grants for urban renewal, fiscal year [1970] 1971, as an additional amount for urban renewal programs, as authorized by title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.) and section 314 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1452a), [$250,000,000] $1,000,000,000 to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of any appropriation in this Act shall be used for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for grants aggregating more than the total of amounts available in the current year from the amounts authorized for making such commitments through June 30, 1967, plus the additional amounts appropriated therefor. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970.)

Budget program.—An administrative reservation of funds (grant reservation) is made during the planning stage in the development of a conventional project to assure availability of grant assistance when plans for the project are complete.

New reservations, adjustments in existing reservations, and obligations for neighborhood development programs and other title I programs are expected to total $1 billion net in 1971.

1. Projects and neighborhood development programs.—Grant reservations for urban renewal projects and NDP's are estimated at $893.5 million in 1971. NDP's provide a faster method of carrying out the renewal process by an immediate start on rehabilitation, public improvement, and redevelopment activities.

The amounts estimated for projects and NDP's include grants of up to $3.5 thousand each for rehabilitation of homes by low income owner-occupants in urban renewal areas who otherwise could not afford to meet the standards of the urban renewal plan. The estimates also include full reimbursement to communities for the costs of relocating families, individuals, and businesses displaced from urban renewal areas. Payments to displacees for moving expenses and actual direct property losses, not otherwise compensated, are authorized up to $200 per family and $25 thousand per business. Eligible families, elderly people, and small businesses may receive relocation adjustment payments to ease the financial burden accompanying establishment in new accommodations. Maximum relocation adjustment payments are $2,500 for eligible businesses and $1 thousand for eligible families and individuals. Also, relocation payments up to $5 thousand are available to owner-occupants to assist them to acquire safe, decent, and sanitary dwelling units.

2. Code enforcement.—Grants to local governments for programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas may cover three-fourths of the cost in communities under 50,000 population and two-thirds of the cost in localities over 50,000 population. Costs of planning and carrying out such programs include the cost of certain eligible public improvements necessary to arrest the decline of the area. Rehabilitation grants and relocation assistance are provided to the same extent as for an urban renewal project or neighborhood development program.

3. Community renewal.—Grants to localities cover two-thirds of the cost of preparing community renewal programs. These programs provide for analyses of renewal needs on a communitywide basis, including determinations of the economic base available to support renewal in terms of both current conditions and future market prospects; appraisal of physical, social, and financial resources of the area; the development of community renewal goals; and a schedule for accomplishing these goals.

4. Demolition.—Grants are available to city or county governments covering up to two-thirds of the net cost of demolishing structures which have been determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation under State or local law after the local governing body has exhausted other legal procedures to secure remedial action by the owners.

5. Interim assistance.—Grants to localities are authorized to help carry out limited short-term programs to temporarily alleviate harmful conditions in slums and severely blighted areas for which renewal is planned in the near future.

6. Certified areas.—Grants to localities are available to provide 100% of costs up to $3.5 thousand to owner-occupants for rehabilitation of one-to-four dwelling unit residential properties in areas certified for rehabilitation or code enforcement in the near future.

7. All other.—This includes demonstration grants to develop and test new or improved techniques, rehabilitation grants for properties uninsurable due to physical hazards and amounts to reimburse the urban renewal loan fund for uncollectable planning advances and interest on terminated projects.

Budget program.—Treasury borrowing authority of $1 billion is available to assist in financing the planning and execution of urban renewal projects with the following types of commitments:

1. Planning advances.—Advances provide for costs directly associated with planning conventional urban renewal projects. They are repayable with interest from funds made available to the project during the execution stage.

2. Temporary loans.—Short-term direct Federal loans provide initial financing for urban renewal projects and NDP's under contract. Thereafter, working capital is generally provided by borrowings from the private market secured by pledge of the Federal loan commitment. Temporary loans are repaid from proceeds of land sales and from local and Federal cash grants.

3. Definitive loans.—Definitive loans permit the disposition of project land through long-term leases in lieu of sale at the option of the community. In such cases, commitments are issued to secure private financing for the net value of redeveloped land.

Loan commitments cover total expenditures by the local public agency in carrying out a project. Both the statute and experience recognize that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because: (a) project expenditures take place over several years; (b) early borrowings are progressively retired with funds provided from local and Federal grants and from the sale of land; (c) private financing (guaranteed with a pledge of the Federal loan commitment) is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary loans and definitive loans.

Cumulative loan commitments will be $11,772 million by the end of 1971, but this amount will be reduced by $5,158 million in repayments and commitment waivers to produce a net outstanding commitment of $6,614 million on June 30, 1971. The maximum Federal exposure (i.e., maximum demand on Federal loans at any one time) is estimated at $858 million on June 30, 1971. This exposure is estimated at 12% of temporary loans, 18% of definitive loan commitments, and 75% of planning advance commitments.

The status of loan commitments outstanding at the end of the past, current, and budget years follows (in thousands of dollars):

Financing.—Borrowing authority previously committed is replenished by means of: (a) repayment of planning advances; (b) cancellation of temporary loan commitments; and (c) the repayment of direct Federal or guaranteed non-Federal loans from project settlement funds, including proceeds from the sale of land and Federal and local grants. Repayments of Federal temporary loans from the proceeds of non-Federal guaranteed loans, which are estimated to total $289 million in 1971 are reflected in the program and financing statement.

Section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes 20-year loans at 3% interest to owners or tenants of properties in urban renewal, neighborhood development and code enforcement projects, certified areas, and of properties uninsurable because of physical hazards. The program finances rehabilitation required to make the property conform to applicable public standards. These low interest rate loans provide a method of financing private rehabilitation where necessary repairs might otherwise not be feasible due to the economic circumstances of the property owners or the difficulty of obtaining financing from other sources. Maximum loan amounts generally are $10 thousand for each residential unit and $50 thousand for business properties. To date, residential loans have averaged about $3,500 per unit and non-residential loans about $26,100 per loan.

Specialists on the staff of each local public agency engaged in a rehabilitation program handle the initial contacts with potential applicants. Applications are then submitted to the regional offices of the Department for processing and approval. FHA insuring offices furnish appropriate technical services. The Government National Mortgage Association arranges and supervises loan servicing by private institutions, except for business loans, which are processed, closed, and serviced by the Small Business Administration. Costs for acquired security and collateral are incurred generally after defaulted loans have been returned to the Department by private banking institutions servicing the loans because normal servicing and collection procedures show no reasonable prospect for success.

Budget program.—Loan approvals are estimated at $43 million during 1970 and $50 million in 1971. Loan disbursements are estimated at $44.1 million and $41.6 million, respectively. The budget is based on the following volume of loan activity:

Applications	1969 actual	1970 estimate	1971 estimate
Loans approved (net):

Residential.....	3,728	5,535	6,330

Residential.....	8,176	13,711	20,041
Nonresidential.....	68	128	13,198

Costs in connection with defaulted loans are estimated at $105 thousand and $150 thousand in 1970 and 1971, respectively.

Operating results.—Operating losses for the current and budget years are estimated to be $2,960 thousand and $2,876 thousand, respectively, and are attributable principally to an increase in the reserve for losses proportional to the increase in outstanding loans.

² Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

The United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.), established a low-rent public housing program to help provide safe and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of low-income families. Such housing is owned and operated by local housing authorities created under State law. Federal loans and annual contributions assist local housing authorities (LHA's) in financing the construction of low-rent housing and in maintaining the low-rent character of such housing after completion.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448) increased the authorization for annual contributions contracts above the $554.2 million previously authorized, by $100 million in 1969, and by further amounts of $150 million in each of the years 1970 and 1971. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-152), approved December 24, 1969, further increased the 1970 authorization by $75 million to provide funds to LHA's to cover the cost of new provisions included in the Act. These provisions permit local authorities to offset existing operating deficits, maintain adequate operating and maintenance services, and provide additional payments to make up the amount by which rental charges exceed 25% of a tenant's income. In addition, the 1971 authorization was increased by $20 million to allow an increase in the modernization program. Legislation will be proposed to increase further the authorization for 1972.

The relationship of new annual contribution commitments to available authority is shown in the following table:

Budget program.—Production.—During 1971, a total of 106,000 units will be placed under annual contributions contracts, and construction of 100,000 units will begin. Of those dwellings scheduled for construction, 48,000 will be built under the "turnkey" method which was initiated in 1965 to stimulate increased participation by builders and developers in the housing program. It is anticipated that 100,000 additional units will be available for occupancy in 1971, a slight increase over estimated 1970 completions. This reflects the acceleration in the low-rent production program which started in 1968 as part of the effort necessary to meet the estimates of need for assisted housing contained in the 1968 Housing and Urban Development Act.

The workload accomplishments and the status of the production program by stage is presented in the following tabulations:

Pilot programs are underway involving the use of private management by LHA's and the purchase of low-rent units by tenants. Management activity also includes a program to modernize older dwellings, which will be accelerated during 1971 in accordance with the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969. It is estimated that initial funding will be provided for the modernization of 100,000 units and supplemental funding will go to an additional 100,000 units.

Annual contributions.—The increase in annual contributions requirements from $480 million in 1970 (including a supplemental appropriation request of $6.5 million) to $654.5 million in 1971 is attributable largely to: (1) an increased number of dwellings eligible for annual contributions resulting from the completion or permanent financing of projects approved in prior years; (2) the increased requirements resulting from financing the cost of modernization of existing structures and dwellings; (3) the increase in subsidies paid to LHA's which are unable to cover operating costs out of rental income and other revenues; and (4) payments required to make up the amount by which rents would exceed 25% of tenant incomes.

Tenant services.—In 1971, grants are proposed for approximately 100 LHA's to assist them to provide certain services to public housing residents. These grants (authorized by section 204 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, Public Law 90-448) will finance services such as counseling and referral activities related to education and job opportunities, housekeeping techniques, money management, and other services designed to help low-income residents cope with day-to-day problems while simultaneously improving family living standards and opportunities for productive and meaningful lives. Five million dollars is requested for this program in 1971.

Other expenses.—Technical services are provided to housing authorities during project development by Department construction representatives who assure compliance with specified and acceptable standards. The local housing authorities are charged a fixed fee which pays for the cost of the service. The estimated cost for 1971 is based upon the the number of projects under construction.

As of June 30, 1969, one federally owned, directly operated housing project remained in the program. This project, located at Enid, Okla., contains a total of 80 dwellings. Estimated program receipts and expenses for 1970 and 1971 are based upon the continued Federal operation of this project throughout both years.

Program receipts are used to meet these expenses, and correspondingly reduce the requirements for appropriated administrative funds.

Financing.—Loans are made to local housing authorities to finance the early costs of project development. These loans are made with available working funds and, when necessary, with funds borrowed from the Treasury for this purpose. Under the Housing Act of 1949, borrowings outstanding at any one time from the Treasury may not exceed $1.5 billion. Outstanding borrowings are estimated at $5 million on June 30, 1970, and $15 million on June 30, 1971.

Loan commitments cover the maximum amount of funds the Department may loan under contract to local housing authorities in developing projects. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 authorizes these loans up to 100% of the total project costs. Experience indicates that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because private financing is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary construction loans. Accordingly, section 203(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 amended section 20 of the Housing Act of 1937 so that the ceiling on borrowing authority of $1.5 billion applies only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will actually be disbursed and not to Federal commitments which are not expected to result in actual outlays. The Secretary has initially set the maximum Federal loan exposure factor (i.e., the maximum demand for Federal loans at any one time) at 10% of development loan commitments outstanding.

The following table shows the status of development and other loan commitments (in thousands of dollars):

When the Federal development loans to a local housing authority accumulate to an amount which is attractive to private investors, the authority sells short-term temporary notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make development loans, if necessary, covering up to 100% of the development cost of the project. The notes sold at an average interest rate of 3.959% in 1969.

In 1969, direct Federal loans were refunded through secured loans by private investors in the amount of $201.8 million. Refunding is estimated at $580 million in 1970 and $320 million in 1971. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods averaging 7 months, and may be reissued several times and in increasing amounts before the project is permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity conducted under the program during any fiscal year greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of that fiscal year.

Normally, public housing projects are permanently financed toward the end of the construction period through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions in sufficient amount to meet principal and interest payments. In 1969 these bonds sold at an average interest rate of 4.493%. As of June 30, 1969, there were 853,634 dwellings potentially eligible for permanent financing. Of these, 710,642 dwellings had been permanently financed, leaving a potential permanent financing workload of 142,992 dwellings. The estimates for permanent financing based on program status as of June 30, 1969, are shown below:

	[Dollars in thousands]

Operating results and financial condition.—Net costs in 1971 are approximately equal to the appropriation for annual contributions and tenant services payments. The magnitude of such costs and appropriations used on a cumulative basis are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Cumulative net costs	-3,136,163	-3,644,725	-4,299,191

Tenant services			5,000
Deficit	-158,617	-155,763	-150,729

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 repealed the corporate status of the low rent public housing fund and required the retirement of the $1 million of capital stock held by the Secretary of the Treasury. This was accomplished in 1969. In addition, the Government equity account reflects a decrease of $264 thousand for furniture and equipment transferred to other accounts.

These contributions will be made to local housing authorities which are unable to cover operating expenses out of rental income and other revenues.

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950 (12 U.S.C. 1749), as amended, authorizes financial assistance to colleges and eligible hospitals for the construction or acquisition of housing and essential housing-related facilities such as student centers, dining facilities, and infirmaries. This assistance may take one of two forms—debt service grants to reduce the cost of borrowing on the private market, or direct Federal loans. The debt service grant program was authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Since 1969, emphasis has been placed on this type of assistance with direct Federal lending used as an adjunct.

Debt service grant contracts on loans obtained in the private market may be entered into for a period not to exceed 40 years. Grants may be in amounts equal to the difference between the average annual debt service which would have been required if the loan were made at a 3% interest rate and the average annual debt service on private market loans at market interest rates.

Direct Federal long-term loans are made in those cases in which eligible applicants are not able to borrow on the private market at reasonable interest rates, and ordinarily are made for a period of 40 years. The interest rate on direct loans is set by statute at the lower of either 3%, or 0.25% above the average rate on all interest bearing obligations comprising the Federal debt. The 1970 rate is 3%.

Budget program.—The 1971 budget proposes support for $300 million of facility construction to be financed, insofar as possible, by private loans. The annual debt service requirements for such a program will be $9.3 million. Direct loans not to exceed $100 million will be available within the $300 million program for those institutions that are unable to obtain loans on the private market at reasonable interest rates and terms. Approximately 46,000 accommodations will be provided by the 1971 program. An additional $5.5 million of authority to enter into debt service contracts will be proposed in 1970 to cover increased costs for the 1969 and 1970 programs resulting from higher than anticipated interest rates.

An appropriation of $2.5 million is required for 1971 to enable payment of debt service grants under contracts made with 1969 and 1970 authority.

The use of funds available under the direct loan program for Federal loan reservations is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Financing.—Funds for the direct loan program have come primarily through the use of Treasury borrowing authority and from the sale of participation certificates, backed by pools of college housing loans held by the Federal Government, as authorized in appropriation acts. The Treasury borrowing authority now totals $3,775 million. Direct Federal loans made in 1970 and 1971 will be funded from available unreserved balances in the fund.

Sales of certificates of participation in pools of college housing bonds, as provided in Public Law 89-429, Participation Sales Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 164), amounted to $600 million in 1967, $1,000 million in 1968, and $600 million in 1969. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the bonds underlying the certificates.

The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Normally a private security supported by a debt service grant is sold by the educational institution at the time of construction contract award. In those cases where an institution is unable to obtain funds in the private market, the Department ordinarily will purchase its bond when construction is well advanced. Direct Federal loan disbursements are estimated at $210 million in 1970 and $120 million in 1971.

Operating results and financial condition.—Net income on loans financed from Treasury borrowing is expected to total $1,331 thousand in 1971. This will be offset by a net $60,436 thousand of insufficiencies on outstanding participation certificates, with a resulting net operating loss of $59,105 thousand. This loss will be financed by appropriations to meet insufficiencies and debt service payments of $60,436 thousand and $2,500 thousand, respectively. It is estimated that retained earnings at the end of 1971 will be $10.8 million.

Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 461), as amended, authorizes grants to supplement State and local funds for the purpose of financing comprehensive planning programs concerned with urban and rural development. The planning process supported by these grants embraces all of the basic factors essential to balanced growth and development, and includes: (1) preparation of comprehensive plans, (2) programing of capital improvements and other expenditures, (3) coordination of related plans adopted at various levels of government, and (4) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing. In making grants, primary emphasis is given to those agencies which are in a position to coordinate public policy at the State and regional levels.

Planning assistance is provided under this program to cities under 50,000, counties, metropolitan areas, multi-jurisdictional districts in nonmetropolitan areas, States, multistate regional commissions, Indian reservations, and organizations of public officials. Generally, grants to small communities, counties, and districts are made through the individual States which submit applications for funds annually on behalf of these bodies. States also receive financial support for their programs of advisory services and technical assistance to local governments, as well as for their own statewide planning programs. Other eligible planning agencies receive Federal planning grants directly. In addition, up to $10 million, plus 5% of the funds appropriated, may be used for studies, research, and demonstration projects aimed at the development and improvement of techniques and methods used in comprehensive planning, and for advancing the purposes of the comprehensive planning assistance program.

Grants usually cover two-thirds of project costs, but may cover up to three-fourths of project costs for planning in designated multistate regions, in areas with substantial unemployment because of declines in Federal activity, and in areas designated for economic redevelopment under Federal law.

The appropriation of $60 million for 1971 will support 333 net grant approvals, compared with 362 in 1970. The reduction in the number of net grant approvals between 1970 and 1971 is the result of new funding procedures instituted by the Department which allow all State proposals for local planning assistance to be combined into a single annual grant application. These grant proposals had been individually funded in previous years. The following table shows the relationship of net grant approvals to available funds (in thousands of dollars):

Title IX of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1282-1284), as amended, authorized grants to States to assist them in providing small communities with technical assistance and information on urban problems and programs available to meet them. These grants could cover up to 50% of total costs incurred by States in conducting such activities. This program provides for certain activities also authorized under the Comprehensive planning grant program (section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended). Accordingly, a separate appropriation is not requested for the Title IX program. Funding activities previously supported by Title IX grants through the Comprehensive planning grant program will reduce the administrative burden at both the State and Federal levels.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undisbursed grant obligations, 1968, $3,512 thousand (1969 adjustments, -$8 thousand); 1969, $5,856 thousand; 1970, $5,413 thousand; 1971, $4,033 thousand.

Title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 (20 U.S.C. 801-805; 811), as amended, authorizes: (1) matching grants to States for programs which provide special training and skills needed for economic and efficient community development, and (2) fellowship grants to qualified students preparing for careers in urban public service.

Community development training grants are made to States authorized to assist subprofessional and professional personnel employed, or soon to be employed, in the fields of housing or community development by public or private nonprofit organizations. Special training programs are designed to meet the needs of individual States, and are conducted in cooperation with local governments, universities, and urban studies centers. The Secretary is authorized to render technical assistance to States in the development of these programs and to compile and distribute training data which States might find useful in administering their respective programs. Approximately 300 separate training projects will be assisted in 1971.

The Urban fellowships program is intended to attract students into urban studies programs at the graduate level, in order to increase the supply of trained personnel and to alleviate the growing shortage of skilled persons needed in public service. Some 100 fellowships will be awarded for each of the school years, 1970-71 and 1971-72.

Supplementary grants to local public bodies for new community assistance are authorized by the New Communities Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3911). Grants may be made to supplement a water, sewer, or open space project which is being assisted under section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as amended; title VII of the Housing Act of 1961, as amended; or section 306(a)(2) of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961, as amended. A supplementary grant may not exceed 20% of the total cost of a new community project, nor may the total Federal contribution exceed 80%. Grants can only be made if (1) the new community development project contains (or will contain) a substantial number of housing units for low- and moderate-income persons, and (2) the grant is necessary or desirable for carrying out a new community development project approved for a Federal new community guarantee. Such guarantees are made to private developers of new communities meeting the requirements of title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Approvals of 25 grants for 16 new communities are anticipated in 1971.

OPEN SPACE LAND PROGRAMS

For grants as authorized by title VII of the Housing Act of 1961, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1500-1500e), and the provision of technical assistance to State and local public bodies (including the undertaking of studies and publication of information), $75,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of this appropriation may be used for financing a grant in excess of 50 per centum of the cost of any activity or project. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 (42 U.S.C. 1500), as amended, authorizes grants to assist public bodies in preserving and creating open space lands which will enhance the urban environment. The program encourages the protection of lands having scenic, recreation, conservation, or historic value, and encourages the creation of orderly patterns for urban growth. Open space projects assisted by this program must be consistent with comprehensive areawide planning, and all applications for grants must be submitted to the appropriate regional planning organization for review and comment. In addition, each project submitted for funding must be part of the areawide long-range acquisition and development program for open space preservation. Grants may cover up to 50% of total project costs.

Budget program.—Net grant reservations for open space land activities will total $75 million in 1971, compared with $75.3 million in 1970.

1. Acquisition and development of open space land.—Grants are available to assist public bodies finance or acquire permanent interest in undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land in urban areas for use as open space. Subsequent development of this land must be compatible with approved open space uses. In 1971 grant approvals are expected to total 395, covering 20,750 acres.

2. Developed land in urban areas.—Assistance in creating open space where little or no open space exists, such as in densely populated, built-up areas, is provided through matching grants for the acquisition of developed land and the demolition of buildings on it. The 1971 program is expected to provide for the creation of 80 parks.

3. Beautification and improvement programs.—Approximately 50% of all urban beautification and improvement activity will involve the development or rehabilitation of park and recreation sites. Other activities supported include roadway landscaping in residential areas, and beautification of such areas as waterfronts and library grounds. Federal grants may cover up to 50% of the increase in expenditures made by the local body over the norm for similar activities undertaken in preceding years. In 1971, 105 grant approvals are expected.

4. Historic preservation.—Grants are available to assist localities in acquiring, restoring, and improving sites and structures having historic or architectural value. The program seeks new ways to make historic properties economically viable, and to stimulate new public uses for them. A total of 14 grants is anticipated for 1971.

5. Demonstrations.—Grants may be provided for projects having special value in developing and demonstrating improved methods and materials which may have application to a broad range of open space programs.

6. Studies and publications.—Research into areas of concern to title VII programs and the publication of this research will be supported by $125 thousand in 1971.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $249,100 thousand (1969 adjustments, -$99,135 thousand); 1969, $236,605 thousand; 1970, $268,012 thousand; 1971, $272,012 thousand.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3102), as amended, authorizes grants to local public bodies and agencies for basic water and sewer facilities. With a limited exception, grants may not exceed 50% of project development cost. The program is designed to promote effective orderly growth and development of communities and to help urban communities meet the increasing need for water and sewer facilities.

In order to receive Federal assistance, projects must contribute to improved health or living standards of people in the community to be served, and be so designed that sufficient capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area. In addition, the project must be consistent with an officially coordinated or unified program for an areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area.

Net reservations are estimated at $150.4 million for 1970 and $150 million for 1971. The proposed budget for 1971 will allow grant approvals for 280 communities.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3104), as amended, authorizes the Secretary to assist States and local public bodies acquire sites for future public use. Assistance is given in the form of annual grants up to an amount required for meeting reasonable interest charges on a privately financed 5-year loan.

It is estimated that 17 grant reservations will be made in 1970. No appropriation is requested for 1971. On or about January 31, 1970, no new applications for grants will be accepted, and within a reasonable time thereafter, no new commitments will be made. The Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 (49 U.S.C. 1601), as amended, authorizes grants in support of research, development, and demonstration projects which focus on the relationship of urban transportation systems to the comprehensively planned development of urban areas. These grants may be made to both public and private bodies. Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1968 transferred all but sections 6, 9, and 11 of the 1964 act from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to the Department of Transportation (DOT). To administer more effectively the joint interest of both agencies, they have agreed that DOT will administer all of sections 6, 9, and 11. HUD will continue to review applications and may propose projects to DOT. Pursuant to this agreement, the unobligated balance of the 1969 appropriation will be allocated to DOT in 1970.

Section 702 of the Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 462), as amended, authorized interest-free advances to States, local public agencies, and Indian tribes to finance the preparation of feasibility studies and project plans for local public works and facilities. Advances are repayable when construction commences on the planned project, except in those instances where the construction was initiated under the Public Works Acceleration Act.

Budget program.—It is estimated that 200 planning advances will be approved during 1970 with net approvals totaling $6.8 million. On or about January 31, 1970, no new applications for advances will be accepted, and within a reasonable time thereafter, no new commitments will be made. Following this, the program will be transferred for liquidation to the Revolving fund for liquidating programs.

Financing.—The program has been financed by a revolving fund with total capital of $111.6 million provided by appropriations and by transfers of outstanding advances made under previously authorized programs.

Operating results and financial conditions.—A net loss of $3,268 thousand is expected in 1971, resulting from write-offs of obsolete plans in excess of previously established allowances for losses, and allowances for losses on new disbursements. These allowances are estimated at 85% of active plans outstanding under the previous programs, and 25% of gross disbursements less writeoffs for the current program.

The New Communities Act of 1968 (title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, 42 U.S.C. 3901) authorizes the Secretary to guarantee obligations issued by private developers to help finance land acquisition and development costs of new communities. To be eligible for this guarantee, a new community must be planned to meet the following requirements: (1) it must be economically feasible, (2) it must have a satisfactory financial plan, (3) the internal development plan must be sound and consistent with areawide planning, and (4) the community must provide a substantial amount of low- and moderate-income housing. The outstanding principal obligations guaranteed under this title with respect to a single new community development project shall at no time exceed $50 million.

Additional support for new communities developed under this program is available through the new community assistance grants program described above.

Budget program.—Guarantee commitments are expected for at least six new communities in 1970 and at least 10 new communities in 1971. The budget program requires an increase in the statutory limit on the total principal amount of guaranteed obligations that may be outstanding at any time. The following table shows the relationship of this program to the guarantee authority:

POSITION WITH RESPECT TO GUARANTEE AUTHORITY

[In thousands of dollars]

Existing guarantee authority	250,000	250,000	250,000
New guarantee authority required			150,000

Total charges against authority		150,000	400,000
Unused commitment authority, end of year	250,000	100,000

Financing.—Fees are charged to developers whose obligations receive Federal guarantees, and it is estimated that these will be adequate to provide sufficient funds for a self-supporting program. Appropriations are authorized, if required, to make guarantee payments.

Operating results.—The earnings of the fund will be retained to cover expenses and to meet possible future losses.

The Housing Amendments of 1955 (42 U.S.C. 1492), as amended, authorize direct long-term loans to municipalities and other subdivisions and instrumentalities of States and Indian tribes for financing construction of essential public facilities. In addition, private, nonprofit corporations may receive such loans for construction of water or sewer facilities in communities under 10,000. Loans are made only when credit is not otherwise available on reasonable terms and conditions.

Communities with populations up to 50,000 are eligible for public facility loans, but priority is given to municipalities under 10,000 population needing funds to construct water, sewer, or gas distribution systems. Other eligible communities are those with populations up to 150,000 in redevelopment areas (as designated by the Secretary of Commerce), and communities in which a National Aeronautics and Space Administration research or development installation is located.

Public facility loans may run for as long as 40 years and must be of sound value, or must be so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. Interest rates are set by statute at the higher of either 3% or 0.5% above the average rate on all interest-bearing obligations comprising the Federal debt. The current interest rate is 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ %.

Budget program.—Net loan approvals are estimated at $40 million in 1971. This will allow approval of loans for an estimated 65 projects.

Financing.—The loan program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization totaling $600 million. This authorization is adequate to finance the program through the period covered by this budget. In addition, participation certificates in pools of public facility loans have been sold, as authorized by Public Law 89-429. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the loans underlying them. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1969 actual	1970 estimate	1971 estimate
Interest accrued on participation certificates.....	9,108	9,040	8,867
Interest accrued on an equal amount of loans in the pool.....	5,683	5,560	5,424

Budget outlays are estimated at $42 million for 1970 and $38 million for 1971.

certificates (offset by a $3.2 million appropriation). That portion of the loss which is not offset by appropriation will bring the cumulative deficit at the end of 1971 to $19.6 million, of which $12.9 million represents the allowance for losses.

The Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1955 established a single revolving fund for more efficient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs. Some $19.2 million in assets, with a net book value of $11.6 million, were still in the fund on June 30, 1969.

Out of assets originally capitalized at $2.5 billion, some $415 million has been transferred to other agencies and programs, and $901 million will have been recovered and returned to the Treasury by the close of 1971. Title I of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1255-1261) authorizes a program of financial and technical assistance to help cities plan, administer, and carry out coordinated physical and social programs to improve the environment and the general welfare of people living in slum and blighted areas.

Federal grants were authorized to provide financial assistance for the cost of planning and developing model city programs. This assistance was provided where: (1) the application for such assistance was approved by the local governing body of the city; and (2) the Secretary determined that there existed an administrative machinery through which coordination of all related planning activities of local agencies could be achieved and there was evidence that the necessary cooperation of agencies engaged in local planning could be obtained.

With the completion of a sound comprehensive plan, a model city becomes eligible for additional financial assistance to carry out special projects or activities and to supplement assistance available under other grant-in-aid programs. The amount of these supplementary grants may be up to 80% of the total non-Federal contributions required for all projects or activities assisted by other Federal grant-in-aid programs which are carried out as part of a model city program.

To assist cities during the planning and action stages of their programs, the act authorizes the Secretary to provide technical assistance directly or by contract to city demonstration agencies. Contracts are being entered into with selected institutions and agencies to provide necessary skills and furnish technical assistance to the cities. These contracts include those to assist cities and the Department in evaluating the effectiveness of city programs.

One hundred fifty cities have been selected and are in varying stages of planning and program execution. As of October 31, 1969, 51 cities had completed planning and were in the action stage; all 150 cities are expected to be in program execution in 1971.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 directs the Secretary to conduct comprehensive studies, and to make available findings with respect to the problems of housing and urban development. The Housing Acts of 1948 and 1956 and the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 also authorize a program of research into housing, urban technology, metropolitan growth, and urban problems.

1. Operation Breakthrough.—Operation Breakthrough is a program designed to develop and test innovations in housing design, construction, financing, and marketing. The program will also give considerable attention to the community environment. The objective of the program is to develop a self-sustained mechanism for providing volume production of marketable housing at stable or reduced costs for all income groups, particularly those groups that have had difficulty in obtaining satisfactory housing in the past. Most of these activities will be carried out through contracts with private corporations.

2. Other contracts, studies, and performance of research.—The program for studies and research is carried out primarily through contracts and grants with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit private research organizations, and private corporations. When economy and effectiveness would be served, studies may be carried out by staff of the Department or by a combination of staff and contract work, as best suits the problem. In 1971, a major portion of the program will be directed at devising new methods for rehabilitating deteriorated housing and for preventing deterioration which would create a future need for extensive rehabilitation. Other major areas of program emphasis will be: Improving public facilities and services, gathering data on housing and mortgage markets, applying university resources to urban problems, and improving State and local government procedures and methods for dealing with urban problems.

3. Administrative expenses.—This activity covers the costs of general planning, supervision, and direction of the research program. It also covers the cost of administering related research activities, including urban renewal demonstrations, urban planning research and demonstrations, surveys of public works planning, and studies and publications under the open space land program. In addition, the activity includes a related share of certain overall supporting expenses of the Department.

Grants to public or private bodies or agencies to develop and demonstrate new or improved means of providing housing for low-income persons and families, including handicapped families, were authorized by the Housing Act of 1961 (42 U.S.C. 1436), as amended. Demonstration projects under this program tested new approaches in construction design and methods to lower construction costs, new or improved ways of rehabilitating and upgrading sound but deficient structures, means of facilitating homeownership by low-income families, and ways of providing technical advice and packaging assistance to nonprofit sponsors of low- and moderate-income housing. In 1970 this program is funded by a transfer from the appropriation Urban research and technology. No use of the contract authority is proposed for 1971.

1. Study of housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 1456) required a study of housing and building codes and zoning and tax policies, which was conducted by a Commission selected by the President. The study, which has been completed, included a review of: (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on building costs; (2) State and local zoning and land use laws, codes, and regulations; and (3) Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build new housing and make improvements in existing structures.

2. Natural disaster study.—Section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 1301) authorized a study of alternative programs which might help provide financial assistance to those suffering property losses in flood and other natural disasters, including alternative insurance programs. Following the flood insurance study, completed in 1967, Congress enacted the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (82 Stat. 476, 555). Findings on earthquake insurance will be submitted during 1970.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (12 U.S.C. 1701s) authorizes the Secretary of HUD to contract to pay rent supplements to owners of certain private housing rented to low-income tenants. The contracts may have a maximum term of 40 years. The owners must be nonprofit, cooperative, or limited dividend corporations. The housing is financed with market interest rate mortgages insured by FHA under section 221(d)(3) of the National Housing Act. In addition, certain other housing is eligible through an experimental program or if the housing is aided by State or local subsidy programs or the Rental Housing Assistance program.

Rent supplement payments may be made if the housing unit under contract is occupied by a tenant with an income no higher than the maximum limits that can be established for occupancy of federally aided low-rent public housing in the same area. In addition, the tenant must be elderly, physically handicapped, displaced from his home by governmental action, or have moved from substandard housing or a dwelling damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster. Tenants are required to pay 25% of their income for rent. Rent supplements are paid to the project owner to make up the difference between this amount and full economic rent.

Budget program.—The maximum annual payments which may be provided for in rent supplement contracts are limited to the aggregate amounts approved in appropriation acts. This limit was increased by $50 million for 1970, to a total of $122 million. Approval of $75 million is proposed for 1971, and an additional $75 million is proposed for enactment now to become available in 1972. The 1971 authority will support a total of about 68,100 units, of which about 30,300 will be newly constructed or rehabilitated with assistance exclusively under this program. The balance represents units receiving rent supplements in conjunction with another assistance program. New construction and rehabilitation starts are expected to total 22,000 and 14,000 in 1970 and 1971, respectively. Units completed and occupied are expected to total 35,800 by the end of the current year, rising to 67,300 by the end of 1971. Payments on these units are expected to total $21.5 million in 1970 and $46.6 million in 1971.

HOMEOWNERSHIP AND RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE

For homeownership assistance payments, authorized by section 235, and for interest reduction payments as authorized by section 236 of the National Housing Act, as amended (82 Stat. 477 and 498), [$26,500,000] $104,600,000: Provided, That the limitation on total payments that may be required in any fiscal year by all contracts entered into under section 235 is increased by [$90,000,000] $140,000,000 effective July 1, 1970, and is further increased by $140,000,000 effective July 1, 1971, and the limitation on total payments under those entered into under section 236 is increased by [$85,000,000] $145,000,000 effective July 1, 1970, and is further increased by $145,000,000 effective July 1, 1971. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970.)

Interest reduction payments are authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 to reduce mortgage interest rates to as low as 1% to assist lower income families in purchasing or renting housing which they could not otherwise afford. Under the Homeownership Assistance program, periodic payments are made to mortgagees on behalf of families purchasing their own homes. The homeowner is required to make monthly payments totaling 20% of family income toward mortgage principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium. Eligibility is generally limited to families whose incomes do not exceed 135% of the limits set for admission to low-rent public housing in the area.

The Rental Housing Assistance program provides comparable assistance for families in rental housing. Under this program, assistance payments to the mortgagee to reduce the monthly debt service on the project are passed on to the tenant in the form of a reduced basic rent. The family is required to make rental payments equal to 25% of income. Rent collections in excess of the basic rent are returned to the Secretary to offset payments. Eligibility is the same as for the Homeownership Assistance program.

Budget program.—The maximum annual payments which may be provided under homeownership and rental housing assistance contracts are limited to amounts approved in appropriation acts. Through 1970, a cumulative total of $160 million had been approved for homeownership assistance and $155 million for rental housing assistance. For 1971, approval is proposed of an additional $140 million for homeownership assistance and $145 million for rental housing assistance. The same amounts are proposed for enactment now to become available in 1972. The 1971 authority will support about 290,200 units, of which about 263,300 will be newly constructed or rehabilitated. New construction and rehabilitation starts are expected to total 64,500 and 221,600 in 1970 and 1971, respectively. Units completed and occupied are expected to total 65,000 by the end of the current year, rising to 207,600 by the end of 1971. Payments on these units are expected to total $21.3 million in 1970 and $105.0 million in 1971.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is responsible for administration of the community disposition program established by the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955 (42 U.S.C. 2301) to dispose of federally owned properties at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Richland, Wash., and by amendment in 1963 (76 Stat. 664), Los Alamos, N. Mex.

Budget program.—All sales under the program have been completed; however, servicing the inventory of mortgages will continue. This will include the sale of properties, reacquired as the result of default on purchase-money mortgages.

Operating results.—The deficit in the fund initially represented the preferential prices offered to residents of the community. Net income of the fund, consisting primarily of interest collections on mortgages financing the sale of property, will reduce this deficit from $17 million at the end of 1970 to $16.8 million at the end of 1971. Funds recovered and transferred to the Treasury are estimated to aggregate $73.7 million by the end of the budget year.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorizes interest-free loans to nonprofit sponsors to cover up to 80% of the preconstruction costs of federally assisted low- and moderate-income housing projects. Eligible costs include reasonable expenses to be incurred in planning the project, such as preliminary surveys, market analyses, preliminary site engineering, and architectural fees; site acquisition; application and mortgage commitment fees; and construction loan fees and discounts.

Budget program.—In 1971, a proposed appropriation of $5 million, together with repayments of previous loans, will permit a total of $7.2 million in new loans, assisting 345 sponsors in the development of approximately 35,000 housing units. This compares with $2.5 million in new loans in 1970, to aid about 118 projects containing some 11,800 units.

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title III of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970, relating to corporations, is shown in the Other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 901.

The direct loan program for housing for the elderly or handicapped, established by section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, provides loans at 3% interest for construction, rehabilitation, or alteration of rental housing for occupancy by elderly or handicapped persons, and their families, whose income is too high for public housing but below that needed to pay rents in unsubsidized private housing.

Budget program.—About $60 million in 1970 and $27 million in 1971 are expected to be reserved for loans to provide 4,300 and 1,900 housing units, respectively.

Financing.—Money for loans has been provided by $455 million of appropriations which constitute a revolving fund. No appropriation was enacted for 1970 and none is proposed for 1971. New loan reservations will be made from authority released by cancellations of previous loan reservations, or from repayments of construction loans on housing projects which are permanently financed by non-Government lenders. Loan disbursements are estimated at $116 million in 1970 and $68 million in 1971.

HOUSING FOR THE ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED FUND—Continued

Additional financing has been obtained through issuance of $100 million of certificates of participation in pools of mortgages from this program, as provided by the Participation Sales Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 164). In order to pay the interest on participation certificates, appropriations are required for the difference between the interest rate on the participation certificates and that on the mortgages in the pool. The appropriations required for insufficiencies are computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Operating results.— Estimated retained earnings at the close of the budget year are $37.7 million, in addition to a cumulative allowance for losses of $4.8 million. This position reflects the fact that interest is collected on loans outstanding while no interest is paid on appropriations, the primary source of financing for the program.

The Federal Housing Administration, created by the National Housing Act of 1934, is a noncorporate business-type agency, which was brought under the Government Corporation Control Act by the Housing Act of 1948. The principal purposes of FHA are to improve home financing practices, to encourage improved housing standards and conditions, to further homeownership, and to stabilize the mortgage market. These objectives are achieved through the insurance of loans for financing the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties.

FHA loan insurance was administered through 38 different active programs during 1969, including six added by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. In addition, maintenance and settlement work continues under nine programs for which the authority to insure additional loans has expired. The accompanying table identifies the various programs and shows the amount of insurance written and the amount in force at the end of 1969 under the individual programs.

For financial purposes, FHA programs are grouped under four separate insurance funds established by statute. The largest is the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund for the insurance of mortgage loans on homes under section 203. Under this fund, mortgagors are allowed, at termination of their mortgages, to share in the rebate of premiums paid into the fund which are not required for expenses or losses. Through June 30, 1969, such participation payments to homeowners had amounted to $201.2 million with $119.6 million reserved for future payments or losses. The Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund covers the insurance of mortgages on management-type cooperatives and supplementary loans under section 213. Although this fund is mutual also, no participation payments have been made.

The General Insurance Fund covers the insurance of loans on property repairs and improvements; on basic and special-purpose multifamily housing, including cooperatives (except management-type cooperatives), condominiums, and housing for the elderly; on urban renewal, middle-income, and Armed Forces housing; on war and defense housing; on nursing homes, group practice medical facilities and nonprofit hospitals; and for land development. In addition, the insurance of supplemental loans for the financing of improvements and additions to multifamily projects, nursing homes and group practice medical facilities is included in the General Insurance Fund.

The Special Risk Insurance Fund was created by the Housing Act of 1968 to carry out mortgage insurance obligations in cases where insurance was written on a mortgage covering property in older, declining urban areas which would not otherwise be eligible for mortgage insurance; on behalf of a high risk mortgagor who would not be eligible for FHA mortgage insurance but who, with counseling, can become an acceptable credit risk; on behalf of a mortgagor receiving interest reduction payments; and on a mortgage covering experimental housing where strict adherence to state or local building regulations is not observed.

Income from fees, premiums, and investments are credited to the funds; operating expenses and other expenses and losses connected with foreclosed property and defaulted notes and mortgages are charged to the funds. Through June 30, 1969, income had amounted to $4,831.9 million, and expenses, losses, and distributive share payments to $3,437.5 million, leaving a reserve of $1,394.4 million for the payment of future expenses and losses.

Budget program.—Budget requirements for mortgage and loan insurance operations are embodied in (1) an administrative expense limitation covering those expenses of the central office related to the general direction of operations, the establishment of policies and procedures, and the provision of administrative management and services for the agency, and (2) a nonadministrative expense limitation covering the operating expenses of both the central office and the field related to the initiation of insurance, the maintenance of insurance on the books, and the settlement activities associated with the payment of claims; the acquisition, management, and disposition of mortgages and properties acquired under mortgage insurance contracts; and the liquidation of notes acquired in connection with claims under property improvement loan insurance contracts. Anticipated program developments for 1971 are summarized in the accompanying table, Program Highlights, along with estimates for 1970 and actual data for 1969.

Summary of operating expense estimates.—Operating expenses are paid out of operating income, subject to congressional limitation. Expenses for 1970 are estimated at $13 million for administrative operations and $111 million for nonadministrative operations. The 1971 estimate is $13.8 million for administrative expenses and $125.6 million for nonadministrative expenses.

Financing.—Through 1965, insurance claims were met largely by the issuance of debentures, which are subsequently redeemed out of income and proceeds from the sale of acquired properties and mortgages. In 1969, $72 million of debentures were issued, and $43.6 million were redeemed. In 1970, $70.7 million of debentures will be issued and $96.3 million redeemed. Debenture issuances will total $61.3 million in 1971, and debenture redemptions will total $37.3 million. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized FHA to pay claims in cash and to borrow from the Treasury as necessary to do so.

Home mortgage claims and multifamily housing claims under sections 220, 221, and 233 are now being paid in cash. Insurance claims, payable in cash, will amount to $338.7 million in 1970 and $368.4 million in 1971. Borrowings from the Treasury are expected to total $17 million in 1970 and $50 million in 1971.

The Special Risk Insurance Fund, initiated by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, was capitalized with $5 million advanced from the General Insurance Fund in 1969. During the first few years of operation of a new insurance fund, operating costs generally exceed income from fees and premiums. To cover this initial excess of costs an additional $15 million is expected to be transferred from the General Insurance Fund in 1970. Appropriations are authorized to restore capital if, over the long run, operating costs and insurance losses exceed income.

Retained earnings.—Insurance reserves, available for the payment of future expenses and losses, amounted to $1,394.3 million at the end of 1969 and are expected to be $1,538.7 million by the end of 1970 and $1,697.5 million by the end of 1971.

Insurance authority.—Authorizations for active insurance programs will expire on October 1, 1970, except for sections 235 and 236, which will expire October 1, 1971. In general, these authorizations are without dollar limitation, except as indicated in the following table:

Through September 30, 1968, this fund purchased and sold preferred stock in the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and made loans to it as needed to support its operations involving the purchase of federally insured or guaranteed mortgages. On that date, the Association redeemed all preferred stock and became a private corporation owned by its common stockholders. All authority for investment in preferred stock of that corporation lapsed.

The fund is still authorized to make loans to the Association. Such loans were made in the first few months of the Association's existence as a private corporation while it arranged lines of credit with commercial banks. All loans made to the private corporation after September 30, 1968, were repaid in full prior to the end of 1969, resulting in no net outlays. The loan authority will now be used only in emergency situations.

Since the loans outstanding to the Association at the time of conversion were not recorded as outlays to a nongovernmental institution, the repayment of such loans ($294 million) is not recorded as a receipt reducing budget expenditures.

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title III of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970, relating to corporations, is shown in the Other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 901.

The Government National Mortgage Association may, when the President determines it is in the public interest, provide special assistance for the financing of (1) selected types of home mortgages pending establishment of their marketability, and (2) home mortgages generally as a means of stabilizing homebuilding activities and of contributing to overall economic stability.

The Association is authorized under presidential authority to make commitments to purchase and to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages totaling $4,010.7 million outstanding at any one time. At the end of 1969, the amount of special assistance authority for these purposes aggregated $3,504.9 million.

Changes in this authority in 1970 result from a transfer, pursuant to Public Law 89-117, approved August 10, 1965, of $5.7 million to the presidential authorization from the congressional authorization applicable to mortgages insured under title VIII of the National Housing Act. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 provided an additional $500 million. The transfer of an additional $5.8 million to the presidential authorization from the congressional authorization is estimated for 1971.

The Congress has also authorized GNMA, without prior presidential determination, to issue commitments to purchase and to purchase specific types of mortgages. One of these congressional programs is for $225 million of cooperative housing mortgages insured under section 213 of the National Housing Act, as amended. Another congressional program provided authority for $500 million of mortgages insured under title VIII of the act, covering housing for military personnel and civilian employees. Public Law 89-117 authorized the transfer from this authority to the presidential authority of all but $58.75 million, which is reserved for mortgages on owner-occupied homes insured under section 809 of the National Housing Act. Public Law 89-566, approved September 10, 1966, authorized GNMA under its Special Assistance Functions to purchase $1 billion of FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages on low- and moderate-cost single family homes. Mortgages purchased under this authority were confined by law to new construction and could not exceed $15 thousand in original principal amount ($17,500 in high-cost areas, and $22,500 in Alaska, Guam, and Hawaii). Funds needed to implement the program were provided by transferring $500 million from the President's authority and by $500 million in new obligational authority. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 provided an additional $1.5 billion of authority and increased the limit on principal amount to $17.5 thousand ($20 thousand in high-cost areas and $25 thousand in Alaska, Guam, and Hawaii).

An earlier congressional program for FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages of $13,500 or less, covering low- and moderate-priced housing on which construction had not commenced at the time application was made for Government National Mortgage Association's commitment, was terminated by Public Law 87-70. Of the $1 billion authorized for this earlier program, the unused portion of $207.2 million was transferred to the Presidential authority, and the remainder is rescinded as purchased mortgages are liquidated.

Budget program.—Special assistance activity is of three principal types: (1) commitments which are expected to mature into purchases of mortgages which will be held in the GNMA portfolio; (2) commitments which are expected to be sold to a private investor (FNMA) before purchase of the mortgage or which, if a purchase by GNMA results, will be followed by sale of the mortgage to a private investor; and (3) administrative reservations by FHA of GNMA mortgage purchase authority, now principally in the below-market interest rate program.

New commitments of the first type are expected to total $75 million in 1970 and $45 million in 1971. Such commitments are primarily for urban renewal housing, although provision is made for continuation of other special assistance programs, including those to assist housing on Guam and in disaster areas, housing for the elderly, and experimental housing. The 1970 total includes $30 million for a new presidential program to assist homeownership rehabilitation which will be increased to $50 million but operated as a program of the second type in 1971.

Commitments of the second type are estimated at $1,150 million in 1970 and $725 million in 1971. In 1970 these commitments will include $650 million for a newly authorized presidential program to assist non-profit-sponsored housing built under the rental housing assistance and rent supplement program and $500 million for sales housing built under the homeownership assistance program. The 1971 estimate includes $425 million for the rental housing program and $300 million for homeownership, including $50 million for the rehabilitation program.

New administrative reservations of $231 million in 1970 and $31 million in 1971 in the below-market interest rate program will be in amounts equal to conversions of prior commitments to private financing under the rental housing assistance program and other cancellations. Purchases during these years of below-market interest rate mortgages are estimated at $494.4 million and $588 million, respectively.

Participations.—Under the program of liquidating the mortgage portfolio through the sale of beneficial interest or participations in mortgages, the Association sold $200 million in 1965, $475 million in 1966, $300 million in 1967, and $250 million in 1968 of participations involving the portfolio of its Special Assistance Functions. No such sales were made in 1969 or are projected in 1970 and 1971. This program is more fully explained under the Participation sales fund.

Under the law (sec. 302c of the National Housing Act, as amended by Public Law 89-429, approved May 24, 1966) receipts from these sales are treated as proceeds from sales of loans and thus restore the Association's authority to purchase additional mortgages. For the purposes of budget presentation, such sales are treated as increases in authority to purchase mortgages.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations, and sales of participations in mortgage pools. Net borrowings from the Treasury were $493.1 million in 1969 and are estimated at $608.8 million in 1970 and $673.0 million in 1971.

Operating results.—Previously, earnings were paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury following the year earned. A payment of $188.8 thousand was made in 1957, and another payment of $2,444.7 thousand was made in 1958. In order to protect the Association against losses inherent in portfolio of this size, earnings will be retained and accumulated for so long as may be warranted.

Losses of $28 million and $62 million projected for 1970 and 1971 result primarily from the growing portfolio of mortgages with below-market interest rates which do not generate sufficient revenue to pay interest on Treasury borrowings and on outstanding certificates of participation. Appropriations for insufficiencies will restore $6.7 million of the 1971 losses. The following table shows the derivation and financing of the interest insufficiencies on outstanding participation certificates (in thousands of dollars):

The Association, under its management and liquidating functions, is required by law to manage and liquidate its initial mortgage portfolio and those other mortgages, loans, or obligations that have been or may be acquired from authorized sources (Public Law 89-117, approved August 10, 1965). Such liquidation is to be conducted in an orderly manner, with a minimum of adverse effect upon the home mortgage market and minimum loss to the Federal Government. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular principal repayments according to their amortization schedules, by sales of mortgages as rapidly as they can be absorbed by private investors without serious disruption of normal market conditions, and as the result of other principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The initial mortgage portfolio in this activity consisted of mortgages on hand at, or purchased under contracts made before, November 1, 1954. Certain additional mortgages, loans, and other obligations may be acquired for this portfolio from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and residential housing mortgages may also be acquired from any Federal instrumentality from time to time pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 89-117.

Budget program.—Purchases of mortgages under contracts made prior to November 1, 1954, for this portfolio were completed during 1958.

In 1969, GNMA purchased $272.6 million of mortgages from the Federal Housing Administration under these functions. During 1970 and 1971, purchases of these mortgages are estimated at $60 million and $50 million, respectively.

No direct sales of mortgages were made during 1969, and none are contemplated for 1970. Sales of $100 million are estimated for 1971.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations and sales of participations in mortgage pools. Net borrowings from the Treasury were $40 million in 1969 and net repayments are $21 million in 1970 and $111.9 million in 1971.

In 1969 the Association sold $140 million of beneficial interests, or participations, in pooled mortgages of this portfolio. No sales are estimated for 1970. Principal repayments on pooled mortgages were transferred to the Participation sales fund for repayment of certificates of participation in the amount of $89.7 million in 1969, and transfers of $91 million and $87 million are expected in 1970 and 1971, respectively. This program is more fully explained under the Participation sales fund.

Operating results.—Net income, which amounted to $9.8 million in 1969, is estimated at $5.3 million in 1970 and $2.8 million in 1971. The following table shows the financing of the insufficiencies (in thousands of dollars):

Retained earnings reserved for insufficiencies and other losses and contingencies amounted to $124.5 million at the end of 1969 and are estimated at $129.8 million and $132.6 million, for 1970 and 1971, respectively. Reductions in the amount of retained earnings at the end of 1962, 1963, 1964, and 1965 resulted from payments from earnings of $40 million, $25 million, $15 million, and $15 million, respectively, to the U.S. Treasury, amounts which were considered to be in excess of the Association's needs for losses and contingencies. No payment to the Treasury out of earnings is projected for 1970 and 1971.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorizes the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on trust certificates or other securities issued by financial institutions approved for this purpose, based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or the Farmers Home Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. During 1970 it is estimated that GNMA will issue guarantees on securities totaling $500 million. Guarantees of securities totaling $1 billion are estimated in 1971.

Budget program.—Operating costs represent the expenses to the Government of operating the mortgage-backed securities program.

Financing.—Fees and other charges will be assessed issuers of guaranteed securities to cover costs incurred by GNMA in connection with the guarantees and to establish a reserve against possible future payments of claims under the guarantee. In addition to an application fee, guarantee fees have been initially set at .05% per annum of the principal amount of securities issued, to be paid annually. The Association may borrow from the Treasury as necessary to meet requirements of the guarantees.

Operating results.—No payments against the guarantees are anticipated during 1970 or 1971. Fee collections are expected to exceed expenses by $400 thousand by the end of 1971. This amount will be retained to cover future year expenses and as a reserve against losses.

Title III of the National Housing Act, as amended by the Housing Act of 1964, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and the Participations Sales Act of 1966, authorized the Association, under its management and liquidating functions, to create trust or other fiduciary undertakings to facilitate the financing of mortgages and other loan obligations owned by Government agencies. Under this authority, the Association created trusts providing for pools of these loan obligations and sold to private investors participations in the interest and principal collections on such obligations, in principal amounts not exceeding the unpaid principal amounts of the obligations placed in the pools.

Sales of certificates of participation in these pools are shown in the budget schedules of the trustor agencies originally owning the loan obligations as borrowing from the public for the purpose of financing loan portfolios. Collections on the pooled obligations are transferred to the Association as trustee and retained in the participation sales fund and invested until distributed to the holders of participation certificates in accordance with the terms of the trust agreement. At that time, they are redistributed to trustor agencies for payment of interest and retirement of the certificates. Interest is paid semiannually, and principal on the certificate maturity dates.

Under the 1964 legislation there was created the Government Mortgage Liquidation Trust, holding mortgages from the portfolios of the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Veterans Administration and issuing participation certificates amounting to $1,790 million. Under the 1965 legislation, there was created the Small Business Obligations Trust which issued certificates totaling $350 million against loans of the Small Business Administration. Under the 1966 legislation, there was created in 1967 the Federal Assets Liquidation Trust, and there were sold in 1967 and 1968 certificates amounting to $3.23 billion against loans from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (including GNMA), the Veterans Administration, the Small Business Administration, the Farmers Home Administration, and the Office of Education. In 1968, there was created the Federal Assets Financing Trust, holding loans from the same five agencies plus the Public Health Service, and selling certificates in 1968 and 1969 totaling $4.25 billion. No net additional sales are projected. The operations of all the trusts are combined into a single set of schedules for budget presentation.

In connection with sales of participations made since June 30, 1966, the law provides that in the event collections on the pooled obligations are insufficient to cover required distributions, the trustor agencies shall pay to the Association, as trustee, amounts equal to the insufficiencies. Such insufficiencies result principally from interest rates on obligations placed in the pools which are lower than the interest rates specified on participation certificates, and from administrative and other costs, net of investment income from the trusts. Appropriations for such insufficiencies are authorized as described in the accounts of the trustor agencies in their respective submissions.

In the event principal of the pooled loans is not repaid in time to meet scheduled retirements of participation certificates, the Association may sell additional certificates under the original sales authority to refund those coming due. Some $893 million of certificates are expected to be refunded in 1971. The sales and retirement (net of refunding) of participation certificates are summarized in the following table (in millions of dollars):

The Federal National Mortgage Association under its secondary market operations was established to provide limited liquidity for Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and improve the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing. This assistance to the secondary market for mortgages is provided by the purchase and sale of mortgages that are insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration, or rural housing loans that are insured by the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture, including participation therein, that are of such quality, type, and class as meet, generally, the purchase standards imposed by private institutional mortgage investors. Purchases and sales are made at such prices and on such terms that reasonably prevent excessive use of the Association's facilities and permit the Association to operate on a fully self-supporting basis.

The Association is authorized by the National Housing Act to make short-term loans secured by these Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and loans. Such short-term loans are intended to further home construction by providing a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments and, generally, to provide supplementary assistance to the home mortgage market.

The secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association were initially capitalized by the issuance of $92.8 million of preferred stock to the Secretary of the Treasury. Subsequently, additional preferred stock subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury were authorized, amounting to $50 million (Public Law 85-10, approved March 27, 1957), $65 million (Public Law 85-104, approved July 12, 1957), and $110 million (Public Law 89-566, approved September 10, 1966). As at September 30, 1968, $163.8 million of preferred stock was outstanding.

Private capitalization for these operations was accumulated pursuant to the statutory requirement that sellers of mortgages or loans to the Association were required to make payments into capital in the form of subscriptions for common stock equal to not more than 2% nor less than 1% of the unpaid principal amounts of the mortgages and loans involved, as determined from time to time by the Association, taking into consideration conditions in the mortgage market and the general economy. Borrowers from the Association were required to make capital contributions equal to not more than one-half of 1% of the amounts borrowed.

Financing.—The Association was authorized to finance its secondary market operations in part through borrowing from the public on the security of nonguaranteed debentures and short-term discount notes. The Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to purchase such obligations in an amount not exceeding $2.25 billion outstanding at any one time.

Budget program.—During the first 3 months of 1969, while it was partly owned by the Government, the Association purchased $298 million of mortgages. Cash receipts partly offset disbursements for the purchase of mortgages and other costs, resulting in net outlays of $148 million for this period.

Conversion to private ownership.—The authorizing statute originally contemplated that the secondary market operations would ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. To that end, the Association's secondary market operations were converted during 1969 into a Government-sponsored privately owned corporation with the retirement, on September 30, 1968, of preferred stock held by the Secretary of the Treasury, having a par value of $163.8 million. The retained earnings, amounting to $52 million, considered to have been earned on the Government's investment in the secondary market operations, were deposited in the Treasury on that date, subject to final determination of their distribution. As a privately owned corporation, these operations have been able to raise money in the private capital markets and support the secondary mortgage market unconstrained by considerations which control the Federal budget.

The conversion to private ownership significantly reduced both the loans outstanding and the agency debt outstanding in the Government's central accounts. Under ordinary circumstances, such transactions would be recorded as a reduction in budget outlays. However, only a sum equal to the amounts paid to the Treasury to redeem Government held preferred stock and to return retained earnings attributable to the Government's investment are to be so credited in the budget accounts; the remainder of the conversion credits are reported as items outside the budget totals (applied primarily to reducing the outstanding Federal debt), as follows:

The Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968 (title XI of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968) added to the National Housing Act, as a new title XII, the National Insurance Development program. This program provides reasonable access to basic and essential property insurance in urban areas, especially those believed to be subject to the risk of riot and civil disorder.

The program encompasses cooperative action by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government. First, private insurers, working together and with the State insurance authority, establish within a State a statewide plan to provide property owners in urban areas an opportunity to obtain basic property insurance. The plan is usually referred to as the State FAIR (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) plan. Second, each State, if the benefits of Federal assistance are to be made available, must enact legislation providing for a sharing of the insured losses resulting from riots and civil disorders. Third, the Federal Government provides an opportunity to spread the risk of riot and civil disorder loss on a nationwide basis through reinsurance to private carriers at premium charges deemed adequate to meet expected losses.

Budget program.—1. Insurance claims.—This represents the amount which the Federal Government pays under its riot and civil disorder reinsurance. Although provision has been made for future claims, there is currently insufficient experience to estimate such claims with any great degree of accuracy.

2. Administrative.—This represents the administrative expenses to the Government of operating the program.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $250 million from the Treasury to carry out the reinsurance program. Appropriations are also authorized if needed to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities. It is estimated, however, that administrative expenses and claims will continue to be paid from premium income and income from holdings of Government securities. Thus, no borrowings or appropriations are anticipated.

Operating results.—It is estimated that in 1970—as in 1969—income will exceed claims and administrative expenses, permitting fund reserves to grow to over $50 million by the end of 1970. Such a reserve is estimated to be sufficient to sustain claims arising from a group of major national civil disorders. Estimates for 1971 assume that net premium income will approximately equal claims, leaving the reserve unchanged.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 authorizes a cooperative program by the Federal Government and the private insurance industry to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Coverage is available for 1- to 4-family residential property and may subsequently be extended to small businesses and to other types of property. The face amount of flood insurance outstanding at any given time may not exceed $2.5 billion.

Private insurance companies sell and service the flood insurance policies written under this program. Those companies wishing to participate as riskbearers commit risk capital to an industry pool and share in the operating expenses and profits and losses of the program. Other companies participate in a nonrisk-bearing capacity, acting only as fiscal agents for the pool.

A reduced premium will be charged to those now owning property in flood prone areas. This reduced premium will be available only for existing property. Subsequent construction or improvements will be covered only at the full actuarial rate. As originally enacted, studies of each flood area are required to determine the actuarial rate for the insurance of new property and for use in determining the Government's share of losses and operating expenses.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 permits insurance for a 2-year period at a subsidized rate, without prior studies, for existing property in areas adopting requisite land use regulations. The Government will bear almost all the operating costs and losses in this emergency program. The act also included mudslides in the definition of flood. Since the occurrence of flood damage resulting in claims is extremely unpredictable, no payments of claims are estimated for either 1970 or 1971.

As part of the flood insurance program the Government also provides reinsurance coverage to the industry pool.

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expenses.—This represents the Government's share of the costs to the flood insurance pool of initiating insurance on 50,000 and 125,000 dwelling units in 1970 and 1971, respectively.

2. Administration.—This represents the administrative expenses of the Government in operating the insurance and reinsurance programs.

3. Special studies.—In 1971, this represents primarily the costs of surveying and mapping flood hazard zones and conducting risk estimating studies in 170 areas.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $250 million from the Treasury to carry out the program. Underwriting expenses are eventually expected to be covered by premium income and other revenue. Administrative expenses and costs of special studies are paid from appropriated funds. Appropriations are also authorized to cover expenses and losses under the insurance and reinsurance programs.

Operating results.—Expenses exceeded revenue from reinsurance premiums and interest on Government securities by $0.9 million in 1969 and are expected to exceed revenue by $2.6 million in 1970 and by $6.5 million in 1971. The cumulative deficit of approximately $10 million in 1971 and obligations for undelivered orders will have been financed by cumulative appropriations of $9.6 million and charges against borrowing authority of $1.3 million.

This account finances the cost of administering the equal opportunity programs of the Department, including the development and implementation of standards, regulations, and procedures as required by law and by Executive orders; the administration of the national fair housing program; and an appropriate share of certain overall supporting costs of the Department.

The Department is assigned equal opportunity responsibilities by: (1) title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, which established fair housing as the national policy and makes discrimination in the sale, rental, or financing of a substantial portion of the housing supply unlawful; (2) Executive Order 11063, which prohibits discrimination in the sale or rental of federally assisted housing; (3) title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination because of race, color, or national origin in connection with Federal assistance programs; (4) Executive Order 11246 (as amended by Executive Order 11375), which prohibits the denial of equal employment opportunity in employment by Federal and federally assisted contractors and subcontractors; (5) Executive Order 11478 which prohibits the denial of equal employment opportunity in Department employment because of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin, and requires a continuing affirmative action equal employment program with expeditious processing of all complaints within the Department; (6) section 3 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 which requires that to the greatest extent feasible (a) opportunities for training and employment in connection with the planning, construction, rehabilitation, and operation of HUD-assisted housing shall be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing and (b) contracts for work to be performed pursuant to such programs shall be awarded to business concerns located in or owned in substantial part by persons residing in the area of such housing; and (7) Executive Order 11458 which established the Office of Minority Business Enterprise in the Department of Commerce to coordinate Government activities in this area. The Office of Equal Opportunity is responsible for liaison with that office and for coordinating the Department's effort to encourage minority enterprise.

This appropriation finances the cost of administering governmental relations programs. Included are both direct expenses of these activities and a related share of certain overall supporting expenses of the Department. The costs of administering the Model Cities program and a related share of certain overall supporting expenses of the Department are provided by transfer from the appropriation for the Model Cities program.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $1 thousand; 1969, $26 thousand; 1970, $26 thousand; 1971, $26 thousand.

This appropriation provides for administrative costs of programs of mortgage credit which are not recovered through fees and other charges:

1. Counseling services to homeowners.—It is estimated that 25,000 families will receive counseling in 1971, under authority provided in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Low- and moderate-income families are eligible for this counseling if they cannot qualify under the usual mortgage insurance underwriting standards because of a poor credit history, outstanding debt, or irregular income patterns, but would be reasonably satisfactory credit risks if they received counseling.

2. Assistance to nonprofit housing sponsors.—Technical assistance is authorized for nonprofit organizations for the production and operation of low- and moderate-income housing, along with interest-free loans to assist in planning a project. Loan funds are provided through the Low and Moderate Income Sponsor Fund.

3. Regulation of interstate land sales.—The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act requires land developers to file certain basic information with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development before starting to sell land in interstate commerce pursuant to a common promotional plan involving 50 or more lots. No lot may be sold prior to giving the buyer a printed property report meeting the requirements of law. In 1971 it is estimated that about 650 information filings will require examination along with investigation of complaints and other actions to assure compliance.

4. Administration of rent supplement program.—This activity includes the negotiation of rent supplement contracts, certification of tenant eligibility, and disbursement of payments. Payments are made from the appropriation for the Rent supplement program.

Budget program.—Salaries and expenses for the above activities in 1971 total $6,550 thousand. However, filing fees of $260 thousand collected in connection with interstate land sales regulation will be used to reimburse this appropriation for part of the costs of that activity, reducing the appropriation request to $6,290 thousand.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act (15 U.S.C. 1701) authorizes the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development to charge a fee, not exceeding $1,000, to be paid by a developer when filing a statement of record as required by the act. These fees may be used by the Secretary to pay costs of rendering services under the act.

In 1971, $260,000 of the fees collected will be used to reimburse Salaries and expenses, Federal Housing Administration, for a portion of the costs of administering the program.

GENERAL ADMINISTRATION

For necessary administrative expenses of the Secretary, not otherwise provided for, in overall program planning and direction in the Department, including not to exceed $2,500 for official reception and representation expenses, [$9,000,000] $9,200,000. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970.)

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 provided that the aggregate amount of participations issued for the account of any trustor may not exceed the amount authorized for that trustor in an appropriation act. In 1967 and 1968, appropriation acts for the Department of Housing and Urban Development authorized sales of $1,420 million and $2,385 million, respectively. Sales of $1,420 million were made in 1967 and $1,605 million in 1968. The $780 million unused balance of the 1968 authorization was used for sales early in 1969.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payments for insufficiencies in the amounts required to be paid by the trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are comprised primarily of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. For sales authorized in 1967, the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, established a permanent, indefinite appropriation to cover insufficiencies. For sales authorized in 1968, the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Acts for 1968 and 1969 established annual, definite appropriation for the insufficiencies authorized in the 1968 act.

Sales of participations and use of the indefinite and definite insufficiency appropriations are reflected in the following trustor accounts: Housing for the elderly or handicapped fund; College housing fund; Public facility loans; and Government National Mortgage Association, Special assistance functions and Management and liquidating functions fund.

The Working Capital Fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, administrative services which can be performed more advantageously on a centralized basis. It was authorized by section 7(f) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 670) and was established in June 1968.

Budget program.—The main activities are printing and reproduction, central supply, communication services, data processing, and graphic services. The printing and reproduction activity handles all printing including in-plant, GPO, and private contract work. Central supply handles all procurement for the Department, develops programs for storage of supplies and equipment, and manages personal property. Communications includes telecommunications and the correspondence and mail function, primarily. Data processing provides complete ADP services for program operations and for such administrative functions as departmental payroll, personnel, finance and accounting, budgeting, nonexpendable property inventories, and related common services. Graphics provides photographic and design services along with preparation of visual presentations, displays, exhibits, illustrated visual aids, and administrative management graphics (charts, maps, diagrams, etc.). As activities are transferred to the Working capital fund from other parts of the Department, the accrued annual leave of the employees affected is converted to a funded basis by a transfer from capital.

Financing.—As authorized in the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1968 (Public Law 90-121), $1,500 thousand was transferred in 1968 from the unobligated balance of the Revolving Fund for liquidating programs to provide capital for the Working Capital Fund. An appropriation of $4,338 thousand was received in 1970 for replacement of the main large-scale computer currently in use and for related data processing equipment. No appropriations are requested for 1971.

The requested appropriation of $250 thousand will provide for the initial organizational, planning, and educational activities of the National Homeownership Foundation, which was established by section 107 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448). The Foundation, which is not a Federal agency or instrumentality, is charged with the responsibility of assisting private and public organizations in the promotion of homeownership and the expansion of housing opportunities for lower income families.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. Where appropriations in titles I and II of this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration; or to payments to interagency motor pool where separately set forth in the budget schedules.

SEC. 402. No part of any appropriation contained in titles I and II of this Act shall be available to pay the salary of any person filling a position, other than a temporary position, formerly held by an employee who has left to enter the Armed Forces of the United States and has satisfactorily completed his period of active military or naval service and has within ninety days after his release from such service or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year made application for restoration to his former position and has been certified by the Civil Service Commission as still qualified to perform the duties of his former position and has not been restored thereto.

SEC. 403. No part of any appropriation made available by the provisions of titles I and II of this Act shall be used for the purchase or sale of real estate or for the purpose of establishing new offices outside the District of Columbia: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to programs which have been approved by the Congress and appropriations made therefor.

SEC. 404. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency included in this Act, shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes designed to support or defeat legislation pending before the Congress.

SEC. 405. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency included in this Act, shall be used to pay the compensation of any employee engaged in personnel work in excess of the number that would be provided by a ratio of one such employee to one hundred and thirty-five, or a part thereof, full-time, part-time, and intermittent employees of the corporation or agency concerned: Provided, That for purposes of this section employees shall be considered as engaged in personnel work if they spend half-time or more in personnel administration consisting of direction and administration of the personnel program; employment, placement, and separation; job evaluation and classification; employee relations and services; wage administration; and processing, recording, and reporting.

SEC. 406. Appropriations and funds available for the administrative expenses of the Department of Housing and Urban Development shall be available in the current fiscal year for purchase of uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902); hire of passenger motor vehicles; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 407. Funds made available for the Department of Housing and Urban Development under title III of this Act shall be available, without regard to the limitations on administrative expenses, for legal services on a contract or fee basis, and for utilizing and making payment for services and facilities of Federal National Mortgage Association or Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Reserve banks or any member thereof, Federal home loan banks, and any insured bank within the meaning of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1811-1831).

SEC. 408. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used for payment, through grants or contracts, to recipients that do not share in the cost of conducting research resulting from proposals for projects not specifically solicited by the Government: Provided, That the extent of cost sharing by the recipient shall reflect the mutuality of interest of the grantee or contractor and the Government in the research.

SEC. 409. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 410. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under sec. 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific Congressional approval of such method of financial support.

SEC. 411. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay the salary of any Federal employee who is convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, or any group activity resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.

SEC. 412. Positions in the agencies covered by this Act, whether financed from funds contained in this Act or from other sources, may be filled during the fiscal year 1970 without regard to the provisions of section 201 of Public Law 90-364, and such positions shall not be taken into consideration in determining numbers of employees under subsection (a) of that section or numbers of vacancies under subsection (b) of that section. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1970.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

PUBLIC LAND MANAGEMENT

Federal Funds

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the conservation, management and development of some 453 million acres of the Nation's public lands, including some 278 million acres in Alaska.

In addition, the Bureau administers mining and mineral leasing on other federally owned lands, on former Federal lands where minerals have been reserved in public ownership, and on the submerged lands of the Outer Continental Shelf.

The work of the Bureau produces revenue from various sources. These revenues are distributed as follows (in millions of dollars):

Title, lease, and records service.—Provides realty, leasing, and records services necessary: (1) to support Federal programs, (2) to meet obligations to the general public under existing legislation, (3) to support the land classification effort, and (4) to conduct the mineral leasing program for on-shore lands and the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS). Included are increased efforts for economic evaluation of mineral resources leased on upland areas.

Records improvement.—The modernized records system will be completed for Idaho and most of California. Microfilming cadastral survey records on a township basis will be underway.

Land classification and mineral examination.—Provides realty services to the public and field examination and classification for lands petitions-applications, realty transactions, mining and mineral leasing activity, lands inventory and analysis, and prevention and detection of trespass. An increase is included for improved land services.

Range management.—Provides efforts to improve utilization of rangelands available for grazing by livestock and wildlife and constituting the watersheds of western river basins. Efforts to develop new allotment management plans, which incorporate advanced grazing systems, will be curtailed. Implementation of plans already formulated will continue.

Forestry.—Forest management provides a sustained yield of timber to meet national and regional demands for wood products and to contribute to the economy of timber dependent communities. Reforestation and stand improvement are undertaken to maintain the production base and improve quality of yields. In 1971 timber volume will be offered in western Oregon based on reinventory calculations. Timber will also be offered in public domain areas. Receipts from timber sales are estimated to be $78 million.

Soil and watershed conservation.—Public lands constitute major watershed areas of western river basins. This subactivity provides efforts to halt deterioration from erosion, to hold soil on-site, to improve vegetative cover, to augment water penetration into groundwater storage reserves, to improve water quality by reducing pollution and sediment runoff, and to reduce destructive flood runoff.

Protection.—Provides contract and force account protection of public land resources and improvements from the risk of loss by wildfires. Increases will permit equipping and operating the new facilities of the Boise Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho.

Recreation and wildlife.—Provides for fish and wildlife habitat management studies and planning; fish and wildlife habitat improvement; and recreation management planning, and site investigation on Bureau-administered lands. Increases will permit comprehensive planning for heavily over-used areas in the California Desert and the Lower Colorado River Valley.

Alaska pipeline inspection.—Provides for and is available only for inspection and surveillance, and other work necessitated by a possible trans-Alaska oil pipeline. All such costs connected with this work shall be reimbursed by the pipeline right-of-way applicants, if the permit is issued.

Alaska.—Surveys are performed on lands selected by the State for transfer under the Alaska Statehood Act, for native townsites, for native allotments and for other special purposes.

Other States.—Surveys are performed to obtain positive land identification as a prerequisite to resource management and improvement. Resurveys are often required to reestablish lost corners.

4. Firefighting and rehabilitation.—Provides for the suppression of fires on the public lands under Bureau jurisdiction. Rehabilitation of burned over areas is accomplished to restore land productivity and preserve watersheds. A supplemental appropriation for 1970 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

5. General administration.—Provides executive direction and general administrative services, such as financial management, personnel management, management analysis, procurement, and property management to support Bureau activities. The increase will provide for the additional services required by the increased 1971 program.

1. Construction.—Buildings.—The necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities, such as office buildings, warehouses, equipment storage buildings, fire stations and lookouts, district yards, parking areas, and housing in isolated areas, are constructed to carry out Bureau programs. The 1971 program provides for partial construction of the final phase of the Boise Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho, leaving the hangar for completion in future years. Funds for survey and design work are also included.

Recreation facilities.—Recreation facilities for family camping, picnicking, and other outdoor recreational activities are constructed on public land sites receiving heavy public recreational use as campsites, picnic areas, hunter camps, fishing spots, etc. These facilities provide safe and attractive camping and picnicking units, potable water, and sanitary facilities to protect public health and safety as well as to prevent stream pollution and fire damage to resources. The 1971 program will provide 160 family units at five sites.

2. Maintenance.—Buildings.—Provides for maintenance of physical facilities such as buildings, warehouses, equipment shelters, fire stations, and lookouts.

Recreation facility operation and maintenance.—Provides for the operation and maintenance of developed recreation facilities, the Johnny Horizon antilitter campaign, and the cleanup of litter and trash from undeveloped recreation sites. Increases will provide an expanded Johnny Horizon antilittering campaign to enlist the help of local groups in better prevention and cleanup, a cleanup program at undeveloped recreation sites and at unauthorized dump sites, and operation and maintenance of overused, undeveloped sites in the Lower Colorado River area.

Road maintenance.—Provides for maintenance on the public lands access roads under Bureau jurisdiction. Increases will provide maintenance on roads in the Lower Colorado River area which are badly eroded from overuse by off-highway vehicles.

Twenty-five percent of the revenue from the revested Oregon and California grant lands is made available for three principal activities on the revested lands and on other Federal lands in the Oregon and California land-grant counties of western Oregon. Unprecedented increases in the sale price of Oregon and California timber during the last half of 1969 had made it necessary to revise upward originally estimated receipts with corresponding increases in new budget authority for both 1970 and 1971. It is during this 2-year period when most of this timber will be cut and revenues produced. Consequently, budget authorities for 1970 and 1971 have been increased for those activities which are financed from the Oregon and California Grant Lands fund.

1. Construction and acquisition.—Provides for the construction of access roads, acquisition of existing connecting roads, easements, and rights-of-way for roads into commercial timber areas for timber production and resource management. Also provides for the development of recreation facilities on these lands.

2. Forest development, protection, and management.—Provides for the reforestation, stand improvement, mortality salvage, commercial thinnings, forest genetics, management and protection of the forest lands of western Oregon under Bureau jurisdiction.

3. Operation and maintenance.—Provides for the maintenance of access roads and for the operation and maintenance of recreation facilities in western Oregon.

1. Expenses, sale of timber, etc., on reclamation lands.—A portion of the receipts from timber sales on public lands set aside for reclamation purposes is used to cover the cost of sales (41 Stat. 202; 53 Stat. 1196).

2. Leasing of grazing lands.—State, county, and privately owned grazing lands that are intermingled with public grazing lands are managed on a leased basis within the limits of receipts from such arrangements (43 U.S.C. 315m).

3. Payments to Oklahoma (royalties).—The State of Oklahoma is paid 37½% of the Red River oil and gas royalties in lieu of State and local taxes on Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache tribal funds to be used for construction and maintenance of public roads and support of public schools (44 Stat. 740).

4. Payments to Coos and Douglas Counties, Oreg., from receipts, Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands.—Out of receipts from the Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands in Oregon, payments in lieu of taxes are made to Coos and Douglas Counties for schools, roads, highways, bridges, and port districts (53 Stat. 753-754).

5. Payments to counties, Oregon and California grant lands.—Fifty percent of the receipts of Oregon and California land-grant funds is paid the counties in which the lands are situated, to be used as other county funds (39 Stat. 218; 50 Stat. 874).

6. Payments to States (grazing fees).—The States are paid 33½% of the fees from each grazing district on Indian lands ceded to the United States within the State's boundaries (43 U.S.C. 315j).

7. Payments to States (proceeds of sales).—The States are paid 5% of the net proceeds from sale of public land and public land products (31 U.S.C. 711).

8. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands outside grazing districts.—The States are paid 50% of the grazing fee receipts from public domain lands outside grazing districts (43 U.S.C. 315i, 315m).

9. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts.—The States are paid 12½% of grazing fee receipts from grazing district lands within their boundaries (43 U.S.C. 315b, 315i).

10. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts, miscellaneous.—The States are paid specifically determined amounts from grazing fee receipts from miscellaneous lands within grazing districts when payment is not feasible on a percentage basis (43 U.S.C. 315).

11. Payments to States from receipts under Mineral Leasing Act.—Alaska is paid 90% and other States 37½% of the receipts from bonuses, royalties, and rentals resulting from development of mineral resources under the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 191), and from leases of potash deposits (30 U.S.C. 285), on public lands.

12. Payments to counties, national grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of submarginal lands, 25% is paid to the counties in which such land is situated, for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

13. Expenses, Public Land Administration Act.—Public Law 86-649, approved July 14, 1960, permanently appropriated certain moneys to the Secretary of the Interior. Timber purchasers or permittees provide bond or deposit to assure fulfillment of contracts. Users of roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management may make deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys received in forfeiture of such bonds or for road maintenance are available for necessary forest improvement, protection, and rehabilitation and for road maintenance.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The Government of the United States in fulfilling its responsibilities to the American Indians provides equal opportunities for developing and utilizing the Indians' complete potentials and capabilities. The needs of the Indians and the actions required to fulfill the Nation's obligation to these citizens are:

—A standard of living equal to that of the country as a whole.

—An opportunity to remain in their homeland, if desired, without surrendering their dignity, or to move to the towns and cities of America equipped and trained with skills to live in dignity and equality.

—Full participation in modern American life sharing full economic opportunity and social justice.

To fulfill these commitments requires close collaboration and cooperation with the Indian communities, local communities, the States and other Federal agencies. It is the mission of the Bureau of Indian Affairs to provide the guidance, leadership, and coordination in obtaining the much desired goal of equality for the entire Indian citizenry.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

EDUCATION AND WELFARE SERVICES

For expenses necessary to provide education and welfare services for Indians, either directly or in cooperation with States and other organizations, including payment (in advance or from date of admission), of care, tuition, assistance, and other expenses of Indians in boarding homes, institutions, or schools; grants and other assistance to needy Indians; maintenance of law and order, and payment of rewards for information or evidence concerning violations of law on Indian reservations or lands; and operation of Indian arts and crafts shops; [$176,703,000] $218,495,000.

1. Educational assistance, facilities, and services.—The Bureau operates Federal school facilities where public schools are not available or cannot meet the special needs of Indian children. Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children where tax-free Indian lands result in financial problems for the local districts and where other special problems exist that are not covered by Federal impact legislation, administered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The level of this assistance will be increased to meet the needs of the public schools for increased costs and increased enrollments. Grants are made to Indian students attending college. These grants will be increased to meet the needs of additional students. Federal school plans include increased enrollment in boarding schools and dormitories housing public school students, additional kindergartens, adequate base funding of the Bureau school program, junior college accreditation of Haskell Institute, Lawrence, Kans., and expansion of Indian school board and research and evaluation activities. The numbers of children enrolled in Bureau schools and dormitories and those receiving college aid are as follows:

	Number of pupils
Boarding schools	36,263	37,260	38,260

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Land-use practices based on land inventories and soil conservation plans are introduced to control erosion and promote more effective utilization of soil and water resources.

5. Maintenance of roads.—The Bureau of Indian Affairs maintains a system of roads on 177 reservations in 23 States totaling 19,505 miles.

6. Development of Indian arts and crafts.—Production and marketing of the products of Indian crafts are fostered through formation of production groups, establishing standards, and improving markets, designs, and production methods.

7. Management of Indian trust property.—Banking services are provided for Indians; land is purchased, sold, exchanged, and leased; and Indian property and money rights are safeguarded. Consolidation or disposal of fractionated land holdings, especially in those areas affected by readjustment legislation, is accomplished.

8. Repair and maintenance of buildings and utilities.—Bureau physical plant facilities and their related utility and communication systems located throughout the United States including Alaska are maintained.

9. Operation, repair, and maintenance of Indian irrigation systems.—Approximately 300 irrigation systems serving about 833,000 acres of Indian and mixed-ownership lands are operated and maintained. About 75 percent of the cost is financed from collections from water users, leaving approximately 25 percent to be met from funds appropriated under this activity.

10. Tribal development.—Through Indian initiative leadership, and involvement, program and project proposals are developed oriented to the creation of job opportunities, increased Indian income and managerial experience.

This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of financing for Indians who cannot borrow from other Government credit agencies or from ordinary commercial lenders because of their low-economic status, isolated geographic location, lack of bankable security, or for other reasons (25 U.S.C. 70n-1; 443; 470; 470a; 473a; 482; 506; and 931). Loans are made to tribes and other Indian organizations for relending to individual members and groups of members, to finance tribal business enterprises; and to help tribes attract industries to operate in localities that will promote the economic development of the Indians. Loans are also made to tribes for use by them in obtaining expert assistance for the preparation and trial of claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. Direct loans are made to cooperative associations and individual Indians for any purpose that will promote the economic development of the borrower, including loans for educational purposes.

The 1971 budget request for Administration of Territories finances general administration costs as well as costs of operating the Office of the Governor of the Virgin Islands, the Office of the Governor of Guam, and the Office of the Governor, and the Judiciary of American Samoa.

In addition, the appropriation request includes $8.5 million to continue the Guam rehabilitation program, authorized by Public Law 90-511, approved September 24, 1968.

Also requested are grant funds in the amount of $7.8 million for the Government of American Samoa. The most significant programs in the budget year include those for education and medical services, and public works.

Public Law 90-497 which pertains to the office of Comptroller for Guam, and Public Law 90-496 which pertains to the Comptroller for the Virgin Islands, provide that salaries and expenses are to be paid, respectively, from funds which would otherwise be covered into the Treasury of Guam and grants which would otherwise be paid to the Virgin Islands.

A supplemental estimate in the amount of $275 thousand is anticipated for urgent construction needs in American Samoa.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $6,106 thousand (1969 adjustments, $2,570 thousand); 1969, $11,626 thousand; 1970, $11,626 thousand; 1971, $11,626 thousand.

Under the terms of the Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United Nations, the United States exercises full jurisdiction over the territory and is obligated to promote the political, economic, and educational advancement of the inhabitants. These responsibilities are carried out through the Department of the Interior.

The Trust Territory, with a population of about 92,000 persons, comprises 2,141 islands scattered over 3 million square miles of ocean in three major archipelagos—the Mariana, Caroline, and Marshall Islands. The land area totals 700 square miles.

1. High Commissioner's office.—This office provides executive direction for the development programs and the administration of all the territory.

2. Judiciary.—Provision is made for the high court of the Trust Territory, the court of appeals, and the lesser courts of the territory.

3. Grants.—The cost of operating the government of the territory is provided by Federal grant appropriations and local revenue.

General and special funds:

SURVEYS, INVESTIGATIONS, AND RESEARCH

For expenses necessary for the Geological Survey to perform surveys, investigations, and research covering topography, geology, and the mineral and water resources of the United States, its Territories and possessions, and other areas as authorized by law (72 Stat. 837 and 76 Stat. 427); classify lands as to mineral character and water and power resources; give engineering supervision to power permits and Federal Power Commission licenses; enforce departmental regulations applicable to oil, gas, and other mining leases, permits, licenses, and operating contracts; control the interstate shipment of contraband oil as required by law (15 U.S.C. 715); administer the minerals exploration program (30 U.S.C. 641); and publish and disseminate data relative to the foregoing activities; [$95,755,000] $105,757,000, of which [$15,610,000] $17,867,000 shall be available only for cooperation with States or municipalities for water resources investigations, and $79,000 shall remain available until expended, to provide financial assistance to participants in minerals exploration projects, as authorized by law (30 U.S.C. 641-646), including administration of contracts entered into prior to June 30, 1958, under section 303 of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used to pay more than one-half the cost of any topographic mapping or water resources investigations carried on in cooperation with any State or municipality.

[For an additional amount for "Surveys, investigations, and research", $700,000.] (48 U.S.C. 31; Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1970; Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1970.)

Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning water, land, and mineral resources, and supervises the prospecting, development and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands.

1. Special resource and environmental projects.—Multi-disciplinary projects drawing on a broad sector of Survey's competence are developed to address a particular resource or environmental problem at a specific point in time. The projects to be initiated in 1971 are: (a) Urban pilot area studies which are intended, through acquisition, presentation, interpretation, and use of physical environmental and resource data in seven urban areas, to develop a better understanding of the data's value in urban decision-making, determine the best means of presenting such data on a national basis, improve the effectiveness of environmental data programs and environmental planning generally; and (b) Arctic Alaska resource investigations which will provide timely, coordinated topographic, geologic, hydrologic, and resource evaluation and management data needed to protect the environment, manage public lands and resources, and develop the natural resources in the Arctic.

2. Alaska pipeline related investigations.—Funds for this activity will be used only for the conduct of geologic and hydrologic investigations, and topographic surveys and mapping necessitated by the possible issuance of a right-of-way permit for the possible construction of an Alaska oil pipeline. All such costs connected with this work shall be reimbursed by the pipeline right-of-way applicants if the permit is issued.

3. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps portray the elevation, shape, and position of the natural and manmade features of the earth's surface. These maps, at various scales, are a fundamental part of the background information required to inventory, develop, and manage the natural resources of the country. They also have numerous other uses such as the location and development of highways and lines of communications, urban planning, and military and civil defense. It is estimated that topographic surveys and mapping completed during 1970, added to surveys already available, will result in a total of about 2,969,000 square miles of coverage (about 82% of the United States) in either the 7½- or 15-minute standard map series. Also, about 25,000 square miles of existing coverage in the 15-minute series will be resurveyed for the 7½-minute series. During 1971 emphasis will be placed on previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas. Standard quadrangle mapping will be started on about 90,000 square miles. Mapping will continue in the urban and urbanizing portions of the standard metropolitan statistical areas of over 50,000 population. In addition, about 40,000 square miles of revision, including 550 square miles in the Trust Territory of the Pacific, and about 140 special maps at various scales will be added to the program.

4. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—The continuing national program of geologic research and investigations produces: (a) new or improved methods, techniques, and instruments for mineral exploration on land and on the submerged continental margins; (b) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks and mineral deposits at and beneath the surface of the earth including the Nation's continental shelves and slopes; (c) information on the chemistry and physics of the earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified; and (d) geologic data that are directly applicable to urban development, land utilization, and the solution of land construction problems. The 1971 program provides a decrease for mineral resource surveys, and an increase for research on geologic hazards in rapidly developing urban areas.

5. Minerals discovery loan program.—In order to help find new sources of many of our essential minerals that are in short supply, the Federal Government is continuing to provide financial assistance to private industry for promising exploration projects.

6. Water resources investigations.—The continuing national program of water resources investigations has the objective of seeing that the Nation's water resources are appraised and that the necessary water data to develop and manage them efficiently are available when needed. The program produces data and information relevant to the flow and sediment discharge of rivers, location and quantity of underground waters, chemical quality and temperature of waters, changes caused by nature and by man, availability and suitability of water supplies for present and future demands—all of which are essential to water planning and management. Included, also, is the research needed to increase our understanding of fundamental principles of water occurrence, movement, and interaction with its environment, and also to increase the accuracy and usefulness of water data through improvements in technology. Increased funds for 1971 are requested to expand the Federal-State program in data-deficient segments of the national water data system, to develop information and a research base relative to determining the potential of saline aquifers as sources of supply or for storage of wastes, to begin field coordination of data acquisition as a preliminary to preparing a Federal plan for water-data acquisition, and to publish the highest priority manuscripts in the current backlog of publications.

7. Conservation of lands and minerals.—This program provides for: (a) the classification of federally owned lands for the leasable minerals and sites for development of water resources and (b) the supervision of prospecting, development, and production of minerals and fuels from leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands. Mineral classification is basic to informed mineral leasing. It determines whether leases which issue shall be competitive or noncompetitive, thus in effect ascertaining the legally applicable royalty rates. Classification also identifies the areas of mineral-rich public land which, as such, are leased competitively and it provides the data on which to evaluate the fair market value for minerals so leased. It retains the ownership of leasable minerals in the Government in event of surface disposal of public mineral lands and provides information for protecting mineral values of Federal lands used for other purposes. Proper supervision of oil and gas and mining operations protects the environment and insures the safe and orderly development and maximum recovery of the Nation's leasable mineral resources and an equitable royalty return to the United States and the Indians from mineral development of leased lands. The evaluation of marine mineral resources incorporates the analysis of both geologic data from drilling on leased lands and geophysical data from exploration on all lands. It provides information for determining minimum acceptable bids for new offshore lease tracts offered for sale. It also provides basic geologic and engineering data which are essential to proper resource development and to decisions regarding conservation and proration of offshore oil and gas resources. Royalty revenue from mineral operations on leased Federal, Outer Continental Shelf, and Indian lands is expected to be approximately $400 million in 1971.

8. Earth resources observation satellite.—The 1971 program will include application studies and studies of costs, benefits, and needs for remote sensing data applied to natural resources problems.

Reimbursable obligations.—An unobligated balance of $400 thousand is carried forward each year to pay the expenses of reimbursable work pending collection from cooperating agencies. This advance is not available for obligations.

Lead and zinc stabilization.—This program provides for payments on lead and zinc ores and concentrates in order to stabilize the mining of lead and zinc by small domestic producers. Present legislation for the program expired December 31, 1969 (Public Law 89-238).

Payments are computed for lead at 75% of the difference between 14½ cents per pound and the average market price for the month in which the sale occurs, and for zinc at 55% of the difference between 14½ cents per pound and the average market price for the month in which the sale occurs. The total amount of payments which may be made in each calendar year of the program is limited as are the tons of lead and zinc on which payments may be made.

Payments from proceeds, sale of water.—When lessees or operators drilling for oil and gas on public lands strike water, water wells may be developed by the Department from proceeds from sale of water from existing wells (30

U.S.C. 221-229). No obligations were incurred in 1969 or 1970 and no obligations are anticipated in 1971. A total of $19 thousand is being carried in this account.

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Research.—(a) Coal.—Coal research is carried out to maintain the technological competence necessary to achieve maximum utility from this vast resource and help satisfy the ever increasing national energy requirements.

To this end, the research effort is directed toward developing economic and more efficient methods of synthesizing fuels from coal and converting coal energy to electrical power as well as providing basic information for the development of new and better uses to enhance the quality of the environment. The 1971 estimate provides for the design of a small prototype plant to optimize the gasification process criteria, converting coal to high-B.t.u. pipeline gas.

(b) Petroleum.—Research is devoted to providing more petroleum and natural gas and greater efficiency in the extraction and utilization of these energy resources in the interest of the national welfare. Attention is directed to increasing the resource base through improved technology; developing new uses and products from oil and gas of higher quality and lower cost; and improving the environment by combating the causes of pollution.

(c) Oil shale.—Oil shale research is conducted to provide the scientific and engineering competence needed to establish and administer a national oil shale policy to insure its efficient development. Additionally, the program will help stimulate industry to initiate the commercial production of shale oil and associated oil shale minerals. Of particular interest are new in situ techniques for retorting ungraded shale; problems dealing with the disposal of resultant wastes; and the chemical and physical properties of kerogen and shale oil.

(d) Metallurgy.—Research is carried out seeking new and improved processes to extract, recover, purify, fabricate, and recycle metallic and nonmetallic minerals for the most efficient utilization of this Nation's resources attainable through increased production, reduced costs and a minimum of waste. Of particular interest is research leading to improved iron and steel processing technology, more efficient extraction methods for copper and other base metals, new extraction and processing techniques for aluminum and magnesium, and research on effective recovery and reuse of mineral material from urban waste.

(e) Mining.—Mining research is conducted to develop improved extractive systems through technological advancement of fundamental subsystems elements to increase significantly total output at the least cost. An integral part of this objective are the provisions for the maintenance of health and safety and the preservation of the environment. Concerted research effort is focused on the efficient control of methane to eliminate potentially hazardous concentrations of explosive gas.

(f) Marine mineral mining.—Research is directed toward developing the tools and techniques for evaluating marine mineral deposits, defining technological problem areas and establishing mining system criteria to assure compatibility with the marine environment. Interest is centered on the technology of drilling at sea and the feasibility of using geophysical methods to characterize marine mineral deposits as well as determining what possible consequences marine mining might have on other marine resources.

(g) Explosives.—Explosives and explosions research is conducted to provide technologic information and guidance to Federal, State, and local government agencies, and industry on: safe handling and use of commercial explosives and blasting agents; safety characteristics of explosives certified for use in underground mines where gas/dust explosions might occur; hazards associated with flammable liquids and gases and potentially explosive chemicals of commerce; and the means of combating and controlling fires and explosions occurring in minerals and mineral fuels.

2. Resource development.—(a) Statistics.—Mineral statistical programs and systems are carried out. Reports on mineral production and consumption are issued for use of Federal, State, and local government agencies, the press, professional and technical publications, and industry. Modernization of data collection and processing will be continued by electronic automation of selected statistical surveys.

(b) Economic analysis.—Economic analysis activity furnishes the Government reliable information regarding the economic situation of the mineral industry and its relationship to the national economy. Of particular interest are the current situation, future trends, and alternative courses of action and their respective impact.

(c) Bituminous coal.—Comprehensive technical and economic information is provided for guidance in the optimum recovery, processing, and utilization of coal reserves; and for maximizing efficiencies in the production, transportation, and utilization of coal and related products. Guidance is provided for technological and economic research as related to methods of extraction and preparation, to methods and problems of marketing, and to techniques of combustion and utilization.

(d) Anthracite.—Investigations are directed to develop the engineering and economic data for anthracite required by Government, industry, and the general public necessary to minimize adverse effects of past mining practices, to create an environment conducive to economic growth and to preserve a substantial energy resource. During fiscal year 1971, technical, economic, and statistical data on mine-related problems will be provided.

(e) Petroleum.—Technical and economic studies are designed to provide the accurate and complete picture of the location, extent, and utilization of energy resources contained in petroleum, natural gas, and marginal bituminous substances. Present and possible future trends in production, technology, and practices and their effects on various sectors of the petroleum and natural gas industries will be considered and evaluated on a continuing basis.

(f) Minerals.—Resource investigations are made of mineral deposits to gain better knowledge of the location, quantity, quality, and recoverability of specific mineral resources. Investigations of marginal or submarginal mineral deposits are aimed at determining possible future utilization. Economic forecasting is undertaken, with special attention to the generally growing but shifting demand for mineral commodities, to help guide industrial, business, and Government planning and assistance in the direction of mineral research.

(g) International activities.—Technical and economic data on foreign mineral resources, production and consumption, and international trade are compiled and analyzed for Government use in coping with problems of mineral supply and to assist industry in planning domestic and foreign minerals ventures.

1. Inspections, investigations, and rescue work.—The objectives for 1971 are to: (a) inspect coal mines and enforce health and safety provisions of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969; (b) inspect metal and nonmetal mines in accordance with the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Safety Act; and (c) conduct investigations of serious accidents in coal, metal, and nonmetal mines and make recommendations to reduce working hazards, safeguard the health of workers, and promote efficiency in the mineral industries. The Bureau of Mines encourages accident-prevention education through safety organizations, exhibits, safety film production, demonstrations, and instruction by Bureau personnel in accident prevention and first-aid and mine rescue methods.

2. Control of fires in coal deposits.—Fires in inactive or abandoned coal deposits are controlled or extinguished. Expenditures in connection with fires in active coal mines are limited to investigations and research.

3. Health and safety research.—Research is directed toward developing mining procedures and devices to avoid, detect, or control those aspects of mining and the working environment which involve potential personal hazards to mine workmen. The continuing effort to assure a much safer environment and working conditions for miners involves research to develop the technology for inherently safer mining methods, equipment, techniques, and systems to adequately cope with current and future mining conditions. Research is conducted on the support of mine roof and control of overburden, ventilation of mines, methods of reducing formation, and of allaying harmful and combustible dusts and of coping with other mine air contaminants, prevention of underground fires and propagation of methane and dust explosions, provision of safe electrical equipment and installations, improvements in mining machine design to reduce noise and optimize other man/machine interrelationships to enhance health and safety, development of improved and practical instrumentation for detecting and measuring content of methane, dust and other contaminants in mine atmosphere, and development of improved postdisaster life support and rescue technology for coal mining.

1. Drainage of anthracite mines.—Funds appropriated in 1956 (69 Stat. 460) will be expended in 1970 and future years on a matched fund basis with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the conservation of anthracite coal resources and the prevention of flooding and damage to surface lands or structures through flood control and anthracite mine drainage. The Act of July 15, 1955, was amended by the Act of October 15, 1962 (76 Stat. 934), to further provide for the filling of voids in abandoned coal mines in the interest of public health and safety.

2. Solid waste disposal.—Funds appropriated in previous years will be expended in 1970 and 1971 for solid waste research grants and culm bank disposal projects. Funds for the continuation of solid waste programs are included in the appropriation Conservation and development of mineral resources, Bureau of Mines.

The objective of the Government's helium program is to obtain maximum beneficial use of the helium resources of the United States. To accomplish this stated objective, the helium fund is used for (a) the production, sale, and storage of helium for current and future beneficial use, and (b) research and development on helium so that it can be used more beneficially now and in the future.

Acquisition and storage of helium, under contracts authorized under the Helium Act Amendments of 1960, have represented about 84% of the total helium expenditures.

Budget program.—Production of helium from the Government-owned Exell and Keyes helium plants operated by the Bureau of Mines is estimated at 382 million cubic feet. Sales of helium are estimated at 329 million cubic feet. The excess production of 382 million cubic feet over helium sales will be injected to underground storage. The operation of Amarillo helium plant as a facility for the production of helium will be discontinued and portions of the plant will be utilized as a facility for filling and shipping helium cylinders and tube trailers. By consolidating all cryogenic operations at Exell, operating costs at the Amarillo plant will be reduced by 80%.

Installation of helium separation equipment for improvement of separation efficiency at the Keyes helium plant will be started and essentially completed. Contracts awarded in 1969 for (1) helium purification equipment designed to reduce cost and increase efficiency by consolidating at Exell cryogenic processing operations now performed at Amarillo and Exell, (2) gas processing facilities to remove most of the nitrogen from crude helium purchased for underground storage to reduce the total volume of mixture to be stored, thus increasing the net amount of helium that can be stored in the Cliffside gasfield, and (3) facilities to process gas from the Cliffside gasfield to insure suitable operation thereof and provide adequate storage space for crude helium, will be completed in 1971.

The Helium Research Center will continue its program in basic and applied research at essentially the same level as in 1970. Emphasis will be placed on improvements in processes, production methods, purification, liquefaction, and utilization, in order to increase technical literature and knowledge of helium and helium-bearing gas mixtures.

Financing the budget program.—The entire program of production, sales, conservation, and research is financed from the Helium Fund. The sales price of helium has been set at an amount that is estimated to provide sufficient funds for payment of all expenses and repayments of an incurred debt, including interest, in carrying out the helium program.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1969, the Government had $292.8 million invested in the helium program. Of this amount, $181.4 million is owed to the U.S. Treasury in accordance with the Helium Act Amendment of 1960, leaving a net investment of $111.4 million. The investment at June 30, 1969, was about 20% in helium plants and facilities and about 80% in helium stored underground.

On June 30, 1971, the Government's investment is estimated to be $349.5 million, of which $226.4 million will be owed to the U.S. Treasury, leaving a net investment balance of $123.1 million. The estimated increase from June 30, 1969, of $11.7 million in net Government investment (equity) results from an increase in retained earnings accrued during 1970 and 1971.

A supplemental appropriation for 1970 is anticipated to offset a decline in revenues derived by the Bureau of Mines from helium sales and services in 1968, 1969, and 1970 and thus provide necessary financing for the helium program conducted by the Bureau under the provisions of the Helium Act.

A decrease in the projected demand for helium, together with technological developments which will augment the potential supply has resulted in a decision to reexamine the need for the long-range helium program initiated in 1960. Following the completion of this review, a 1971 amendment will be transmitted to Congress.

The Office of Coal Research develops, through research, new and more efficient methods of mining, preparing, and utilizing coal and contracts for, sponsors, cosponsors, and promotes the coordination of, research with recognized interested groups (including, but not limited to, coal trade associations, educational institutions, and agencies of States and political subdivisions).

The Office of Coal Research is responsible for developing the full potentiality and versatility of coal as the Nation's largest energy resource to the maximum benefit of the United States. The Office is devoting its efforts to expand the use of coal through development of new uses as well as within presently known fields of utilization. The scientific and technical aspects of the program are performed through a program of contract research.

1. Administration and contract supervision.—This portion of the program performs all necessary functions relating to contracts. This includes drafting, negotiation, and execution of the contracts, together with review and monitoring of technical and administrative phases of the contract work. Proposals are evaluated to ascertain technical and economic feasibility and eliminate possible duplication with other work.

2. Contract research.—The entire research activity cited above as the responsibility of OCR is represented in the contract aspect of the OCR operation. Proposals received from, or discussions with, potential contractors relate to a prospective area of activity in which the proposer has expressed interest, and for which the organization is qualified. Careful review and controls preclude duplicative research efforts. Contract research activities are conducted with profit and nonprofit research organizations. Contracts vary from complete Government funding to joint funding. Only applied research and development projects are undertaken. Several have now reached the pilot plant phase of their development. No grant research projects are carried on, and basic research is extremely limited—only insofar as a project may support other ongoing research.

1. Coordination of oil and gas activities.—This office coordinates the implementation of Federal oil and gas policies, provides leadership and coordination for petroleum statistics within the Federal establishment, provides advice and assistance to Federal agencies and international organizations on all phases of petroleum and gas, and serves as the principal channel of communication between the Federal Government and the petroleum, gas, petrochemical, and allied industries. Studies, domestic and worldwide, are made to maintain data on adequacy of petroleum and gas, to define deficient areas or elements, and to develop ways to alleviate actual or potential deficiencies. The Department's program for emergency planning and readiness for the oil and gas industries and the recruitment, training, and assignment of 600 executive reservists for the Emergency Petroleum and Gas Administration are assigned responsibilities of this office.

2. Administration of oil import program.—This appropriation finances the Oil Import Administration established March 13, 1959, pursuant to Presidential Proclamation No. 3279 as amended. The Administration establishes quotas for importers of crude oil and oil products under the mandatory quota system.

3. Oil Import Appeals Board.—The Oil Import Appeals Board has been established to conduct hearings on appeals from importers who request a change in their quota or who do not qualify for a quota.

FISH AND WILDLIFE, PARKS, AND MARINE RESOURCES

BUREAU OF COMMERCIAL FISHERIES

The programs conducted by the Bureau are designed to strengthen the fishing industry and to conserve the fisheries resources. These programs include: biological and technological research, economic and marketing studies, cooperative programs with States, international activities, financial and technical assistance to industry, and administration of the Pribilof Islands reservation and associated fur sealing operations.

1. Management.—This activity covers administration and enforcement of international agreements pertaining to fish and whales.

2. Marketing and technology.—This includes: (a) collecting and disseminating economic data on the fishing industry, including business trends and foreign trade; (b) exploring for fish and improving fishing gear and methods; (c) operation of market news offices; (d) compiling and publishing commercial fishery statistics; and (e) developing and demonstrating more efficient means of handling, processing, storing, and marketing fishery products.

3. Research.—Research is conducted: (a) on variations in abundance of important commercial food fishes and other aquatic animals; (b) on declining species and fishery resources; (c) on cultivation of aquatic animals, including shellfish; and (d) in the design of fish protective devices.

4. Research on fish migration over dams.—Investigations are conducted to determine factors influencing direction and rate of movement of anadromous fish over dams, for consideration in designing future dams.

1. Subsidy payments.—Subsidies are paid for construction of fishing vessels in U.S. shipyards under provisions of the act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 212), as amended by the act of August 30, 1964 (78 Stat. 614). The subsidies cover the difference between construction costs in U.S. and foreign shipyards; up to 50% of the total construction costs. The Secretary's authority to accept subsidy applications after June 30, 1969, is dependent upon enactment of pending legislation. For 1971, a backlog of subsidy contracts will require processing and payment.

2. Program administration.—The estimate covers the costs of administrative services, provided by the Bureau in connection with subsidy contracts in force.

The Commercial Fisheries Research and Development Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 197) authorized assistance to the States, Puerto Rico, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, and Guam for commercial fisheries research and development; and assistance directly to the commercial fishing industry in cases where there is a commercial fishery failure due to a resource disaster arising from natural or undetermined causes, or to prevent such a resource disaster.

1. Aid to States.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved commercial fisheries research and development projects, within their respective apportionment of funds appropriated for such purposes. Projects are approved by the Secretary of the Interior under standards of merit and priority established by him.

2. Resource disaster aid.—Assistance is provided to any segment of the fishing industry suffering from a commercial fishery failure due to a resource disaster arising from a natural or undetermined cause, or to prevent such a disaster.

3. Program administration.—Provides for apportionment determinations; evaluation of project proposals; program coordination; inspection; and other technical and administrative services.

This fund is used for making loans to segments of the fishing industry unable to obtain commercial loans on reasonable terms for financing or refinancing the cost of purchasing, constructing, equipping, maintaining, repairing, or operating new or used commercial fishing vessels or gear. Loans now being made bear interest at 7½% annually and mature in not more than 10 years. The act of July 24, 1965, Public Law 89-85, authorized broadening of and extension of the program through 1970. Legislation is pending to further extend the program.

Budget program—Loans made.—As of September 30, 1969, a total of 2,300 applications amounting to $64.5 million had been received. Of these, 1,202 loans totaling $29.7 million had been approved and 561 applications amounting to $14.0 million had been declined.

Financing.—Appropriations through 1970 of $13 million provide capital for the fund. Additional financing is provided from repayments and interest on outstanding loans.

BUREAU OF SPORT FISHERIES AND WILDLIFE

The Bureau's primary responsibility is to aid in conserving the Nation's sport fish and wildlife resources; and to develop a national program to provide public opportunities for understanding, appreciation, and use of these natural resources.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

MANAGEMENT AND INVESTIGATIONS OF RESOURCES

For expenses necessary for scientific and economic studies, conservation, management, investigation, protection, and utilization of sport fishery and wildlife resources, except whales, seals, and sea lions, and for the performance of other authorized functions related to such resources; operation of the industrial properties within the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge (61 Stat. 770); and maintenance of the herd of long-horned cattle on the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge; [$48,850,000] $56,226,000.

1. Fish hatcheries.—Fish from 90 hatcheries help support inland fishery resources, principally on Federal lands and on Federal water development projects; four development centers and three training schools improve fish-cultural practice and technology; public visitor facilities and onsite recreation programs are provided on hatchery areas; and planning and research is provided for construction of a National Fisheries Center and Aquarium. An additional amount of $0.5 million is provided for this activity from the Corps of Engineers and $0.7 million from the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries.

2. Wildlife refuges.—In the 48 contiguous States, the Bureau manages 285 migratory bird refuges consisting of 4.5 million acres, 19 refuges established primarily for rare and endangered species of wildlife totaling 4.4 million acres, and four wildlife game ranges containing nearly 1.1 million acres. This includes nine new migratory bird refuges which will be put under management in 1971. In addition, there are 11 migratory bird refuges, three rare and endangered species refuges, and four wildlife ranges in Alaska; two rare and endangered species refuges in Hawaii; and two migratory bird refuges in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands totaling 19.9 million acres. The national wildlife refuge system also includes more than 200,000 acres in small tracts acquired under the Duck Stamp Act.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—The program consists of the planning, application, and maintenance of conservation measures for the protection, stabilization, rehabilitation, control, and use of the soil, water, and vegetative resources on 150 national wildlife refuges comprising over 10 million acres.

MANAGEMENT AND INVESTIGATIONS OF RESOURCES—continued

4. Management and enforcement.—The Bureau enforces the Migratory Bird Treaty and Lacey Acts for protection of migratory birds and regulation of interstate and foreign shipments of wildlife, including endangered species; conducts migratory game bird surveys and banding activities; and administers the Black Bass Act regulating shipment of fish across State boundaries.

5. Fishery research.—Research is conducted to provide information needed for improved methods of sport fishery management. The program includes: Studies of the factors governing sport fish productivity in the natural environment, both marine and freshwater; studies of how hatchery fish can be produced more efficiently and used more effectively; studies of the effects of pesticides on fish and to develop methods of controlling fish that are pests. Results are used by Federal, State, and private fishery managers.

6. Wildlife research.—Research is conducted on game and nongame, resident, and migratory forms of wildlife. Results are used by the Bureau as well as cooperating Federal, State, and private agencies to improve wildlife management and conservation practices. Wildlife units are also maintained at 18 locations to give technical training in wildlife management, conduct research, and demonstrate improved management practices.

7. Fishery services.—Technical assistance is provided to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities in management of sport fishing and fish propagation; 23 cooperative fishery units are operated at universities.

8. Wildlife services.—Operational and supervisory control programs are conducted where needed to alleviate damage caused by wildlife; and technical assistance is provided to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities for enhancement of wildlife resources potential. State and local cooperator funds are expected to total $4.8 million in 1971.

9. River basin studies.—This activity covers studies of the effects on fish and wildlife resources of the proposed Alaska pipeline and of water-use projects of Federal agencies and licensees. Funds for the Alaska pipeline studies will be provided by the participating oil companies and are included in the budget as proprietary receipts. Recommendations are made for measures to protect and improve these resources. Reasonable development of estuaries and the Great Lakes is being studied. Additional funds, totaling $2.2 million in 1971, are provided for this activity from the Bureau of Reclamation, Alaska Power Administration, and the Corps of Engineers for water-use studies.

10. Pesticide review.—Pesticidal formulations are reviewed to determine the actual or potential hazards to fish and wildlife from the proposed use of chemicals and recommendations for labeling are made. An automatic data processing system is maintained for retrieving pesticide research data. The activity includes monitoring of residues, field appraisals to evaluate potential hazards, and extension of information on fish and wildlife resources.

Funds for four of the above activities are supplemented by moneys appropriated under the permanent accounts, Federal aid in fish restoration and management, Federal aid in wildlife restoration, and National wildlife refuge fund, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

A supplemental appropriation of $854 thousand for 1970 is proposed for standby pay at refuges, hatcheries, research centers and laboratories when and where it is determined to be in the public interest to have employees remain in an official duty status beyond normal work hours. This policy is consistent with legislative requirements and U.S. Civil Service Commission regulations.

MANAGEMENT AND INVESTIGATIONS OF RESOURCES (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)

For payments in foreign currencies which the Treasury Department shall determine to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States, for necessary expenses of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, as authorized by law, $100,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available, in addition to other appropriations to such agency, for payments in the foregoing currencies (7 U.S.C. 1704).

Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by appropriation of funds for fish restoration and management equal to the revenue of the 10% excise tax on sport-fishing tackle and for wildlife restoration equal to the 11% excise tax on the manufacture of sporting firearms and ammunition.

1. Federal aid in fish restoration and management.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved fish restoration and management projects, including research into fish culture, formulation of restocking plans, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat (16 U.S.C. 777a-k).

2. Federal aid in wildlife restoration.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved wildlife restoration projects, including acquisition and development of land and water areas, and for wildlife management research (16 U.S.C. 669-669i).

3. National wildlife refuge fund.—The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715s) authorizes the expenditure of revenues from the sale of products from the National Wildlife Refuge System.

Part of the net proceeds from sales of refuge products is paid to counties in which refuges are located for benefit of public schools and roads. Payment is based on 25% of the proceeds or 0.75% of the value of lands acquired in fee, whichever is larger. The balance of the proceeds is available for management of the refuge system and for enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

The Service's primary responsibility is to conserve and manage for their highest purpose the natural, historical, and recreational resources of the National Park System. Visitation to park areas is expected to increase from an estimated 171.2 million in 1970 to 186.4 million in 1971.

1. Management of park and other areas.—The Service administers 274 park areas comprising about 28.5 million acres of federally owned land located in 45 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The increase proposed is (a) for administration of new park areas for which no funds have heretofore been appropriated, (b) to meet needs of management, interpretation, and protection requirements of existing areas that are in excess of amounts included in the fiscal 1970 budget, (c) to initiate the proposed volunteers-in-parks program for which authorizing legislation is now pending, (d) for payment to the Bureau of Employees' Compensation, Department of Labor, as required by Public Law 86-767, approved September 13, 1960, and (e) for the portion of the cost of administering, operating, and maintaining the National Capital Parks System previously financed by advances from the District of Columbia.

The following tabulation shows the actual and estimated visitors, and general and special fund revenues collected and to be collected by the National Park Service, including recreation fee revenues deposited in the Land and Water Conservation Fund:

	Fiscal year visitors	Fiscal year receipts
1969 actual.....	157,356,500	9,183,478
1970 estimate.....	171,235,300	10,000,000
1971 estimate.....	186,372,500	12,000,000

2. Forestry and fire control.—This activity provides protection for approximately 16 million acres of forest, grasslands, tundra, and desert shrub from fire, destructive insects, diseases, and other preventable damage; and for fire prevention and protection of park buildings and structures, many of which are historical and irreplaceable.

3. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are conducted to determine the significance and suitability of natural, historical, and recreational areas proposed for inclusion in the National Park System; to determine the boundaries of proposed areas; to recommend changes in existing park area boundaries as needed; and to make recommendations concerning the designation of wilderness areas within the parks. Assistance is provided other Federal agencies, the States, and their political subdivisions upon request, in general development planning, site planning, consultation on design, construction, operational matters, interpretive planning, and guidance in protection and preservation of historical and archeological values on lands involved.

Studies and investigations are carried out leading to establishment and acquisition of rights to sources of water supply, and technical assistance is provided in acquiring lands and in solving problems relating to both normal and adverse uses made of the park lands. The Service participates in the negotiation of agreements with State and local government agencies for recreation administration on lands developed with Federal funds, conducts archeological investigations and salvage programs primarily in areas threatened by inundation through reservoir construction, and administers a program which gives formal recognition to natural landmarks of national significance.

This appropriation provides for the preservation of additional historic properties throughout the Nation by assisting the States and Territories, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia to conduct statewide historic surveys the findings of which are incorporated in the National Register and form the basis of statewide historic preservation plans, and by making matching grants-in-aid to the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the States for planning and for individual preservation projects. This estimate contemplates increasing the grants-in-aid to a level which is more responsive to the needs of the States. The estimate also provides for additional support to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, reporting to the President and the Congress, for continuing work on the Historic Sites Survey, and expanding the Historic American Buildings Survey to include a more intensive study of engineering structures and the establishment of a Historic American Engineering Record.

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The 1971 program is designed to permit the National Park Service to pursue the following objectives in carrying out its mandate to preserve the parks and to provide for their continued use and enjoyment:

- To provide a meaningful program of planning and development for the 1972 National Park Service Centennial and World Conference on Parks to be held at Yellowstone National Park.
- To provide, replace, rehabilitate, or reconstruct sewerage and other utility systems necessary to safely meet increased visitor use of the parks with adequate sanitary facilities, and to avoid pollution of ground water, streams, and lakes through release of inadequately treated effluent.
- To provide for necessary public service and administrative facilities to permit adequate functioning of the parks, particularly in the new areas where rising visitation and park manpower shortages exist.
- To maintain capacity of existing park use facilities through programs of rehabilitation, replacement, and reconstruction, including the correction of unsafe conditions, correction of functional deficiencies, and the modernization of existing facilities.
- To provide necessary funds for advance planning to permit systematic development of those parks, particularly new and urban, where need for additional capacity or redevelopment of existing capacity is indicated.

2. Acquisition of lands and water rights.—The current land acquisition program is included in the budget of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation under authority of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965. Rights to water must be obtained, frequently by purchase in many areas, for use of visitors and employees, and for fire protection.

4. Parkways, and 5. Roads and trails.—The parkways and roads and trails construction programs authorized by title 23, United States Code, are provided for under the contract authorization contained in that title and are budgeted under the Parkway and road construction (liquidation of contract authorization) appropriation.

6. Undistributed costs.—These costs represent end-of-year variations in clearing accounts involving operations such as automotive repair shops, corrals, utility systems, and storehouses. The costs are ultimately distributed to the various activities served based on predetermined rates and cost of storehouse items issued.

1. Parkways.—The 1971 program proposes developments for only one of the nine authorized parkways. This project will be a first step toward improved facilities to meet our program objectives for the National Park Service's part in the Revolutionary War Bicentennial. The program also provides for minor roads and trails projects to be accomplished by the Service.

2. Roads and trails.—Major projects such as principal park entrance roads or major park roads having high traffic density are accomplished for the Service by the Bureau of Public Roads. Minor park roads and trails projects, including parking areas, overlooks, campground roads, drainage structures, etc., are carried out through Service facilities. The program provides for some new visitor use capacity, with significant amounts provided for reconstruction to maintain present park capacity, to provide for safety and comfort of the visitor, and to protect the existing investment from deterioration.

1. National Park Service, donations.—The Secretary of the Interior accepts and uses donated moneys for purposes of the National Park System (16 U.S.C. 6). Donations amounting to $1,567,139 were received from 99 contributors during 1969. It is estimated that donations will be received during each of the years 1970 and 1971 amounting to $2.7 and $1.1 million, respectively.

2. Advances from District of Columbia, National Park Service.—Advances were received from the District of Columbia to cover a portion of the cost of development, administration, operation, and maintenance of the National Capital Parks system within the District of Columbia. Beginning in 1971, it is proposed that amounts required for this purpose by the Service be provided in the Management and protection and Maintenance and rehabilitation of physical facilities appropriations.

3. Preservation, birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, National Park Service.—This fund consists of an endowment given by the Lincoln Farm Association, and the interest thereon is available for preservation of the Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historical Site, Kentucky (16 U.S.C. 211, 212). The amount of $2,540 was received in 1969.

5. Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, contributions.—Pursuant to the Act of May 17, 1954 (68 Stat. 98-100), as amended, the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to construct upon the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial National Historic Site, St. Louis, Mo., an appropriate national memorial to those persons who made possible the territorial expansion of the United States. Contributions are accepted from the city of St. Louis or other non-Federal sources in the ratio of $1 to each $3 of Federal appropriations.

WATER AND POWER DEVELOPMENT

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish municipal and industrial or other water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States and Hawaii.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and special funds. The special funds are (a) the Reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenue; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenue; and (b) the Colorado River Dam fund, derived from the revenue of the Boulder Canyon project. The 1971 estimates are summarized by source, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Appropriation title	Estimate of appropriation	General fund	Reclamation fund	Colorado River Dam fund	Other
General investigations.....	19,100	1,800	17,300	---	---
Construction and rehabilitation.....	174,691	59,691	115,000	---	---

Permanent authorizations.....	3,600	---	295	3,300	5

The total appropriation request of $299 million represents an increase of $24 million compared with the current year appropriation including proposed supplemental for civilian pay increases and an increase of $18.8 million compared with the preceding year.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For engineering and economic investigations of proposed Federal reclamation projects and studies of water conservation and development plans and activities preliminary to the reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or extension of existing projects, to remain available until expended, [$16,030,000] $19,100,000, of which [$14,930,000] $17,300,000 shall be derived from the reclamation fund: Provided, That none of this appropriation shall be used for more than one-half of the cost of an investigation requested by a State, municipality, or other interest: Provided further, That [$375,000] $380,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Bureau of Reclamation. (Public Works for Water, Pollution Control, and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1970.)

1. Plan formulation investigations.—These include reconnaissance, basin surveys, feasibility investigations, and special investigations throughout the 17 Western States to formulate resource development plans for basins and specific projects leading to authorization, including studies relating to rehabilitation, financial adjustment, or water conservation on existing Federal reclamation projects.

2. General engineering and research.—Studies directed toward improvements in planning procedures and in engineering methods and materials. Included are studies of atmospheric water resources and techniques for conserving water on Federal irrigation projects.

3. Fish and wildlife studies.—These funds are transferred to the Fish and Wildlife Service for studies of the fish and wildlife aspects of reclamation projects in the planning stage, authorized for construction or under construction, exclusive of the Missouri River Basin.

The program consists of advance planning, preconstruction activities and construction of authorized projects, and rehabilitation of existing facilities. Investigations for units of the Missouri River Basin are included under that project.

Work will be underway in 1971 on 23 projects and on 13 units and divisions of the Missouri River Basin project. Funds appropriated for 1970 will be used in 1971 to initiate construction on one project and advance planning on one project. The 1971 funds will finance the initiation of construction on one project and land acquisition on one project. The program also includes continuing rehabilitation and betterment on five projects and initiation of work in 1971 on one project with funds appropriated in 1970. During the year, facilities will be completed to supply water to 19,200 acres of land and to provide 2,000 acre-feet of water annually for municipal and industrial use.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources result from sale of power and are applied against charges for purchase of power and wheeling.

The Bureau operates and maintains the power-generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, irrigation works are operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities.

In 1971 a total of 35 projects, project areas or divisions of projects will be operated and maintained for irrigation, power, municipal and industrial water supplies, and other benefits with funds made available under this appropriation. The Fort Peck project revolving fund finances the operation and maintenance of project power facilities physically integrated with the Missouri River Basin project.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, the Colorado River front work and levee system program, negotiation and administration of water marketing contracts on Corps of Engineers' projects in California, marketing of power from the Corps of Engineers' powerplants on the Missouri River Basin project and from the International Boundary and Water Commission's powerplant in Texas, examination of existing structures, and for purchase power and wheeling.

1969 (actual).....	40,440	$132,019
1971 (estimate).....	39,878	105,420

The above sales data for 1969 includes $31.8 million in revenues associated with 14.9 billion kilowatt-hours of energy from Reclamation powerplants for which Bonneville Power Administration was the marketing agent. Sales data for the Upper Colorado River storage project are not included in this statement.

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration cooperatives, private utilities, and other Government agencies. These revenues are deposited in the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, the general fund, and the Fort Peck revolving fund.

The programs include $11,507 thousand in 1971 for the purchase of power and wheeling. A net billing procedure for certain of these power transactions between the Federal Government and non-Federal utilities precludes the need for an additional $4,350 thousand for this purpose in 1971.

This appropriation from the general fund provides for loans to non-Federal organizations for construction and rehabilitation of distribution systems and for loans and grants to enable non-Federal organizations to construct small irrigation projects. Repayments of these loans will be deposited in the reclamation fund.

1. Distribution systems.—Loans are made to irrigation districts for construction of distribution systems on authorized Federal reclamation projects. Work will continue on one project in 1971.

2. Small projects.—Loans and grants of not more than $6.5 million are made to non-Federal agencies for construction of small projects. Funds will be provided in 1971 to complete work on four continuing and supplemental projects, to continue work on three projects and to initiate work on three projects. Additionally, funds appropriated in 1970 will be used to initiate work on three projects in 1971.

This fund is derived from revenue of the Boulder Canyon project, and is available for reimbursement to the Upper Colorado River Basin fund for Hoover Dam deficiencies (82 Stat. 899).

SPECIAL FUNDS

Sums herein referred to as being derived from the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, or the Colorado River development fund, are appropriated from the special funds in the Treasury created by the Act of June 17, 1902 (43 U.S.C. 391), the Act of December 21, 1928 (43 U.S.C. 617a), and the Act of July 19, 1940 (43 U.S.C. 618a), respectively. Such sums shall be transferred, upon request of the Secretary, to be merged with and expended under the heads herein specified; and the unexpended balances of sums transferred for expenditure under the heads "Operation and Maintenance" and "General Administrative Expenses" shall revert and be credited to the special fund from which derived. (Public Works for Water, Pollution Control, and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1970.)

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations to the Bureau of Reclamation shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [forty] thirty-eight passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; [purchase of one aircraft;] payment of claims for damage to or loss of property, personal injury, or death arising out of activities of the Bureau of Reclamation; payment, except as otherwise provided for, of compensation and expenses of persons on the rolls of the Bureau of Reclamation appointed as authorized by law to represent the United States in the negotiation and administration of interstate compacts without reimbursement or return under the reclamation laws; rewards for information or evidence concerning violations of law involving property under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Reclamation; performance of the functions specified under the head "Operation and Maintenance Administration", Bureau of Reclamation, in the Interior Department

Appropriation Act, 1945; preparation and dissemination of useful information including recordings, photographs, and photographic prints; and studies of recreational uses of reservoir areas, and investigation and recovery of archeological and paleontological remains in such areas in the same manner as provided for in the Act of August 21, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 461-467): Provided, That no part of any appropriation made herein shall be available pursuant to the Act of April 19, 1945 (43 U.S.C. 377), for expenses other than those incurred on behalf of specific reclamation projects except "General Administrative Expenses" and amounts provided for reconnaissance, basin surveys, and general engineering and research under the head "General Investigations".

Allotments to the Missouri River Basin project from the appropriation under the head "Construction and rehabilitation" shall be available additionally for said project for those functions of the Bureau of Reclamation provided for under the head "General Investigations" (but this authorization shall not preclude use of the appropriation under said head within that area), and for the continuation of investigations by agencies of the Department on a general plan for the development of the Missouri River Basin. Such allotments may be expended through or in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies, and advances to such agencies are hereby authorized.

Sums appropriated herein which are expended in the performance of reimbursable functions of the Bureau of Reclamation shall be returnable to the extent and in the manner provided by law: Provided, That net revenues of not to exceed ~~[$50,000]~~ $36,000 arising from the lease of grazing and agricultural lands within the Tule Lake and Lower Klamath Lake Divisions, as determined by the Secretary, may be credited to the cost [heretofore and hereafter incurred for the Klamath project water rights program] incurred in the negotiation of contracts for the purpose of transferring responsibility of operation and maintenance of project facilities to the project water users associations, notwithstanding the provisions of section 2(c) of the Act of June 17, 1944, and sections 2(a), 2(b), and 2(c) of the Act of August 1, 1956.

No part of any appropriation for the Bureau of Reclamation, contained in this Act or in any prior Act, which represents amounts earned under the terms of a contract but remaining unpaid, shall be obligated for any other purpose, regardless of when such amounts are to be paid: Provided, That the incurring of any obligation prohibited by this paragraph shall be deemed a violation of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665).

No funds appropriated to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance, except those derived from advances by water users, shall be used for the particular benefits of lands (a) within the boundaries of an irrigation district, (b) of any member of a water users' organization, or (c) of any individual when such district, organization, or individual is in arrears for more than twelve months in the payment of charges due under a contract entered into with the United States pursuant to laws administered by the Bureau of Reclamation.

Not to exceed $225,000 may be expended from the appropriation "Construction and rehabilitation" for work by force account on any one project or Missouri River Basin unit and then only when such work is unsuitable for contract or no acceptable bid has been received and, other than otherwise provided in this paragraph or as may be necessary to meet local emergencies, not to exceed 12 per centum of the construction allotment for any project from the appropriation "Construction and rehabilitation" contained in this Act shall be available for construction work by force account: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply to work performed under the Rehabilitation and Betterment Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 724). (Public Works for Water, Pollution Control, and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1970.)

The fund defrays the cost of advance planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the Colorado River storage project and participating projects. The storage project will regulate and conserve the flows of the Colorado River and its major tributaries through holdover storage in large reservoirs, permitting increased consumptive use of water in the upper basin as well as the production of hydroelectric power. Excess revenue from the sale of power will be applied to repayment of costs allocated to irrigation which are beyond the ability of the water users to repay. The participating projects consist of power, irrigation, and municipal and industrial water supply developments.

Construction costs of the storage project and participating projects are financed through appropriations to the fund. Project revenue will be credited to the fund and without further appropriation will be available to cover costs of operation, maintenance, replacements of, and emergency expenditures for, all facilities of the project and with certain limitations, of the participating projects. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to repay project costs allocated to power, municipal and industrial water supply, and irrigation.

Budget program.—1. Advance planning.—Funds for this activity in 1971 will provide for the continuation of studies on the Fruitland-Mesa and Savery-Pot Hook participating projects. Funds appropriated in 1970 will be used in 1971 to initiate studies on the Dallas Creek and Dolores participating projects. Advance planning will also be initiated in 1971 on the Animas-La Plata participating project with funds contributed in 1970.

2. Colorado River storage project.—Construction will be resumed on Crystal Dam and powerplant, and will continue on other features of the Curecanti unit and on the transmission division.

3. Participating projects.—Work will continue in 1971 on four participating projects and construction will be initiated on the Jensen unit of the Central Utah participating project. During the year work will be completed on facilities to produce 60,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power generation, supply supplemental water to 81,600 acres, and provide 48,200 acre-feet of water annually for municipal and industrial use.

4. Drainage and minor construction.—This activity will fund work in 1971 on four participating projects and one unit of the Colorado River storage project which have been substantially completed, but which require additional funds for miscellaneous finishing activities and drainage construction.

Operation and maintenance program.—The Bureau operates and maintains, with revenues from the sale of energy and water, four units of the Colorado River storage project and the power generation and transmission facilities, including the Seedskađee participating project power operations. Quality of water studies and flood control studies of the Florida and Paonia participating projects will be continued.

Financing.—The 1971 program for advance planning and construction of the storage and participating projects will be financed by appropriations to the fund. The operation and maintenance program in 1971 will be financed from project revenues. Nonreimbursable operation and maintenance will be financed by revenues, and the repayable debt of the storage project and participating projects will be reduced by this amount.

Operating results and financial condition.—Budget outlays will decrease to $18 million in 1971 from $28 million in 1970. The total equity of the Government in the fund is expected to reach $824 million by the end of 1971.

The increase in estimated net operating income in 1971 arises almost entirely from increasing revenues partially offset by an increase in interest on the investment payable to the U.S. Treasury.

The fund defrays the cost of advance planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the Central Arizona and Dixie projects for the purposes of furnishing irrigation, municipal, and industrial water supplies; for conservation and development of fish and wildlife resources; for enhancement of recreation opportunities; and for the other purposes as set forth in the Colorado River Basin Project Act.

Advance planning and construction costs are financed through appropriations to the fund. Project revenue and certain other revenues as provided by the act will be credited to the fund and be available without further appropriation for defraying the costs of operation, maintenance, replacements, and emergency expenditures for all facilities of the projects, within such separate limitations as may be included in annual appropriation acts. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to make annual payments to the general fund to return project costs allocated to irrigation, power, and municipal and industrial water.

1. Advance planning.—The 1971 program provides for continued studies of the Central Arizona and Dixie projects.

2. Navajo project participating agreement.—The 1971 program provides for the requirements to liquidate contract authority for the prepayment of power generation and power facilities (82 Stat. 890).

This fund defrays the expense of operating the power-generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded program costs in 1971 are at about the same level as in 1970.

Financing.—The operation of the Fort Peck project power and transmission facilities is financed by this fund. The capital outlays for transmission facilities by advances from the appropriation Construction and rehabilitation have been completed.

Operating results.—Net income is estimated at $950 thousand for 1971, an increase over the current year. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission. Such payments totaled $3.5 million in 1969 and are estimated at $1.5 million in 1970 and $1.3 million in 1971.

The Administration markets electric power produced at 26 Federal hydroelectric generating plants in operation with a total installed capacity of 9.3 million kilowatts. There are five projects under construction with an installed capacity of 1.2 million kilowatts. Additional units at six existing projects are expected to increase the installed capacity by 6.4 million kilowatts for a system total of 16.9 million kilowatts.

The transmission facilities program will enable the Administration to wheel and exchange power over the Federal grid from non-Federal hydroelectric and thermal generating plants. The estimated amounts of peak generating capacity on the Federal transmission system are as follows (in thousands of kilowatts):

	July 1, 1970	July 1, 1968
Federal projects.....	10,729	19,443
Power wheeled and exchanged for non-Federal utilities.....	5,301	11,663
Total.....	16,030	31,106

System construction.—Includes amounts requested in 1971 to continue work on transmission facilities initiated in prior years and to start construction on system additions of transmission and substation capacity. These facilities are needed to carry power to load centers from power generating installations.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources result from exchanges and sales of power and are applied against charges for purchase of power and wheeling.

This program provides for the operation and maintenance of the Administration's high-voltage electric grid system, and for commercial and administrative expenses in marketing wholesale electric power from Federal dams, and in wheeling power from non-Federal generating facilities in the Pacific Northwest and over interregional tie lines.

1. System operation and maintenance.—This activity consists of the scheduling and dispatching of power; the operation of substations; the maintenance of transmission lines, substations, and other facilities; power requirements and marketing studies; planning and integration of power resources; and system engineering.

Transmission facilities of the Administration are expanded as increased generating capacity becomes available. The system will be operated and maintained at a level which will insure safe operation and provide a reliable grade of service to customers.

The following table shows the rising trend of several of the more important indexes of the operation and maintenance activity:

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—This activity includes the acquisition of power from other entities by purchase and exchange, and the use of transmission facilities. Exchange arrangements and net billing procedures between the Administration and other entities preclude the need for an additional appropriation of $14,800 thousand in 1971.

3. Power contracts and rates.—This activity provides for the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, the billing and servicing of these contracts, the review of resale rates, the development of service plans, and the establishment of wholesale rate schedules. Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $117.9 million in 1969, and are estimated at $129.7 and $152.0 million for 1970 and 1971, respectively.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations of the Bonneville Power Administration shall be available to carry out all the duties imposed upon the Administrator pursuant to law. Appropriations made herein to the Bonneville Power Administration shall be available in one fund, except that the appropriation herein made for operation and maintenance shall be available only for the service of the current fiscal year.

Other than as may be necessary to meet local emergencies, not to exceed 12 per centum of the appropriation for construction herein made for the Bonneville Power Administration shall be available for construction work by force account or on a hired-labor basis. 1. Construction.—Various public and private utilities advance funds to provide facilities which are not provided by the Administration under its customer service policy. These facilities are of benefit to the Government as well as to the customers and serve to promote greater efficiency on the system, reduce loads on existing facilities, and improve service to customers. Also, non-Federal groups advance funds for relocating facilities of the Administration as required for highway construction and other purposes (16 U.S.C. 832a(f); 31 U.S.C. 725s).

The Administration markets power generated at Corps of Engineers—Civil, hydroelectric generating plants in a 10-State area of the Southeast. Deliveries are made by means of transmission facilities owned by others. There are 14 projects now in operation with an installed capacity of 1,807,000 kilowatts. There are seven projects under construction with an installed capacity of 905,375 kilowatts.

1. System operation and maintenance.—Provision is made for the investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatching power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administering contractual operation requirements, and determining methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources.

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of firming energy in connection with disposal of power under contracts with utility companies.

3. Power contracts and rates.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenue, development of wholesale power rates, and determination of adequate provisions for the amortization of the power investment. Receipts which were deposited in the Treasury amounted to $24,204,651 in 1969 and are estimated at $26,100 thousand for 1970 and $29,100 thousand for 1971.

4. General administration.—Provision is made for the agency's executive direction and administrative services.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources result from sale of power and are applied against charges for purchase of power and wheeling.

Power developed at Corps of Engineers—Civil hydroelectric generating plants in four Southwestern States is marketed by the Administration through transmission facilities owned by others and through its own system. The Administration also contracts for the sale, purchase, and interchange of power with other systems.

1. System operation and maintenance.—The Administration operates and maintains a transmission system as follows (dollars in thousands):

Transmission system in service.....	$45,957	$47,000	$48,000
Transmission lines, circuit miles.....	1,558	1,653	1,718

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—Electric power is purchased from private utilities and generating and transmission cooperatives. Power is transmitted to customers through wheeling arrangements with private utilities, and through use of transmission capacity in facilities owned by the generating and transmission cooperatives.

3. Power contracts and rates.—This includes (a) negotiation of power contracts, (b) billing and servicing contracts, (c) development of wholesale power rates, and (d) participation in determination of the cost of amortizing the Federal Government's investment in power facilities.

Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $25.5 million in 1969, and are estimated at $24 million and $22.8 million for 1970 and 1971, respectively.

This program finances the research on, and development of, low-cost processes for converting saline water to fresh water in quality suitable for municipal, industrial, and agricultural uses.

1. Research and development.—Both basic and applied research, engineering and development, and evaluation work are accomplished by means of contracts or grants to Federal or non-Federal agencies, institutions, commercial organizations, and consultants.

2. Construction, operation, and maintenance.—This activity provides for the design, construction, acquisition, operation, maintenance, and modification of saline water conversion test bed plants, facilities, and modules to determine the practical application of the conversion processes under development.

3. Administration and coordination.—This activity provides for the necessary planning, supervision, and administration of the saline water conversion program.

The 1971 program provides for alterations and improvements to research facilities to include upgrading and expanding the fish toxicology laboratory, Newtown, Ohio; constructing an aquatic insect building and fish food growing tank at the National Water Quality Laboratory, Duluth, Minn.; constructing a pilot plant research facility at the Robert S. Kerr Water Research Center auxiliary site, Ada, Okla.; and constructing a pollution effects research laboratory on the auxiliary site of the Pacific Northwest Water Laboratory, Corvallis, Oreg. It also provides for repairs, alterations, and improvements at existing laboratories. Funds appropriated for other purposes in prior years are proposed to be used for the 1971 program.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $19,398 thousand (1969 adjustments, $30,079 thousand); 1969, $47,055 thousand; 1970, $46,867 thousand; 1971, $47,241 thousand.

1. Research, development, and demonstration.—Grants and contracts are made to public and private agencies, institutions, and individuals for research and for field investigations and studies of an applied nature. Their purpose is to test and illustrate the applicability of research findings and newly developed techniques to problems of water pollution and particularly those related to industrial waste pollution problems; combined sewer problems; advanced waste treatment; water purification and joint treatment of municipal and industrial wastes problems. Nearly 64% of the total estimate for this activity is for these purposes. The balance of the estimate is to carry out activities in the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration laboratories, to conduct field studies and demonstrations and to provide technical management for the grants and contract programs.

2. Planning, assistance, and training activities.—The 1971 increase generally provides for (1) accelerating support to State and local river basin planning agencies; (2) strengthening or expanding Federal efforts for controlling pollution from Federal activities; (3) additional data needed to ensure compliance to established water quality standards; (4) for expanding grants and direct Federal operations for training and manpower development programs; and (5) for administering the expanded waste treatment works construction grants program.

3. Enforcement.—The 1971 increase provides for adequate enforcement capability to carry out enforcement activities and action, as needed.

The objective of this program is to stimulate, sponsor, provide for, and supplement present programs for the conduct of research, investigations, experiments, and the training of scientists in the fields of water and of resources which affect water, in order to assist in assuring the Nation at all times of a supply of water sufficient in quantity and quality to meet the requirements of its expanding population.

1. Assistance to States for institutes.—This activity provides for specific grants to all 50 States and Puerto Rico for assistance in carrying on the work of a competent and qualified water resources research institute at one college or university in each State. The function of such institute is to conduct research, investigations, and experiments of either a basic or practical nature, or both, in relation to water resources and to provide for the training of scientists through such research, investigations, and experiments. States may elect to use their grants in support of regional institutes in which several States participate.

2. Matching grants to institutes.—This activity provides for grants to match, on a dollar-for-dollar basis, funds made available to institutes by States or other non-Federal sources to meet the necessary expenses of specific water resources research projects which could not otherwise be undertaken.

3. Additional water research.—This activity provides for grants to, and contracts and matching or other arrangements with, educational institutions, private foundations or other institutions, with private firms and individuals whose training, experience, and qualifications are adequate for the conduct of water research projects, and with local, State, and Federal Government agencies, to undertake research into any aspects of water problems related to the mission of the Department of the Interior which are deemed desirable and which are not otherwise being studied.

4. Scientific information center.—This activity provides for the operation of a water resources scientific information center. The objectives of center operations are to be responsive to the needs of water resources officials and organizations by making information available concerning water resources research results and developments, to avoid replication of research, and to improve communications and coordination of efforts among all those engaged in federally sponsored water-related research.

5. Administration.—This activity provides for the administration of the Water Resources Research Act including the prescribing of rules and regulations, review and appraisal of institute programs and research proposals, making and monitoring of allotments, contracts, and grants; establishment and maintenance of cooperation and coordination among the centers and between the centers and Federal and other organizations concerned with water resources.

Operating results and financial condition.—In 1969 the Corporation liquidated through transfer to GSA its remaining properties on the island of St. Croix, totaling 860 acres. About 403 acres of this land will likely be donated to the Virgin Islands Government under the provisions of the Federal Property and Administration Services Act of 1949 (633 Stat. 377) as amended, permitting up to 100% public benefit allowance for which only partial and, in some cases, no credit will accrue to the Corporation. The balance of the 860 acres, approximately 457 acres, will probably be purchased by the Virgin Islands Government at the GSA appraised value. If the value of this donated and appraised land were to be credited to the Corporation, the total retained earnings would be in the vicinity of $6 million.

The deficit of $786 thousand has been written off in accordance with the provisions of the Virgin Islands Corporation Act (72 Stat. 1759).

All current receivables, mortgages, and long-term accounts at a total of $10,228 thousand have been transferred on June 30, 1969 to the Administrator of GSA, for collection and deposit in the Treasury in accordance with the provisions of the Virgin Islands Corporation Act (72 Stat. 1759).

The analysis of the receivables is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Current accounts.....	118
Mortgages and long-term accounts receivable.....	10,110
Total.....	10,228

A cash balance of $522 thousand has been returned to the Treasury.

These transfers of receivables and the cash balance, aggregating $10,750 thousand has been offset against the Government's equity and completely terminated all activities of the Corporation on June 30, 1969.

Proposed legislation would provide $4 billion contract authority for use over 5 years for lump-sum grants to localities for the construction of waste treatment works. Of that amount, $800 million will be allocated in 1971 and in each of the next 4 fiscal years. In 1971, it is estimated that $650 million of the $800 million will be obligated. Coupled with State and local financing, the Federal share will stimulate about $10 billion of total waste treatment works construction.

Legislation will be proposed to provide additional grant funding for State water pollution control agencies supported under section 7 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended (33 U.S.C. 466 et seq.). This additional funding will be used to accelerate the implementation of programs to achieve the water quality standards by extending and improving the water quality management capabilities of the State and interstate agencies.

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 101. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 102. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior: Provided, That appropriations made in this title for fire suppression purposes shall be available for the payment of obligations incurred during the preceding fiscal year, and for reimbursement to other Federal agencies for destruction of vehicles, aircraft or other equipment in connection with their use for fire suppression purposes, such reimbursement to be credited to appropriations currently available at the time of receipt thereof.

SEC. 103. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

The Service was established by title X of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, to provide assistance to communities in resolving disputes, disagreements, and difficulties arising from discriminatory practices which disrupt or threaten to disrupt peaceful relations among citizens, and where efforts are being made to eliminate disparities between groups, to achieve compliance with the Act, and to reduce and prevent racial disorders.

By law, the Service may assist communities upon request of local citizens or officials, or upon its own motion; Federal courts may also refer public accommodations cases arising under title II of the Act to the Service.

In endeavoring to create a climate of compliance and orderly progress, the Service seeks, encourages, and utilizes the cooperation of appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies, private and public groups or institutions, and individuals working to develop methods and programs for the peaceful resolution of racial disputes. During 1971, the Service plans to increase service coverage from 35 to 50 cities, to expand from 6 to 30 States its liaison with State agencies, and to establish an additional Regional Office to substantially conform with the Government's standard regional pattern.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the investigative branch of the Department of Justice and obtains evidence for use in civil litigation and prosecution of criminal violations of Federal law. It has primary responsibility for the internal security of the Nation. It assists all law enforcement agencies in training, identification, and technical matters.

The appropriation request for 1971 totals $257,485,000. This will provide the identical number of employees as are to be provided by the 1970 appropriation.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—This activity includes the Bureau's investigative responsibilities, the coordination and maintenance of the data gathered, and the maintenance of the Bureau's communications system. Data are disseminated to other Government agencies having an official interest in them. During 1969, the Bureau received 2,783,142 names for search through its files. An increase in name check work is anticipated.

WORKLOAD VOLUME—CRIMINAL, SECURITY, AND CIVIL CLASSIFICATIONS

1964.....	666,982
1965.....	696,477
1966.....	718,850
1967.....	770,654

1969.....	859,666
Estimate:
1970.....	860,000
1971.....	865,000

2. Identification by fingerprints.—The Identification Division is the national repository of identification data based on fingerprint records. Fingerprints are acquired, classified, preserved and exchanged with other duly authorized law enforcement agencies. During 1969, 7,331,527 sets of fingerprints were received for handling, exceeding the 1968 volume and a new high for any fiscal year since the time of World War II. The heavy volume of fingerprint work is expected to increase further. Sets of fingerprints on file on July 1, 1969, totaled 192,761,073.

3. Criminal and scientific laboratory.—The Laboratory provides technical and scientific assistance to the FBI and all duly constituted law enforcement agencies and other Federal agencies which desire to avail themselves of the service. During 1969 scientific examinations totaled 355,913, a new all-time high and an increase of 4% over the 1968 volume. The upward trend is expected to continue.

4. Training.—A Bureau-wide personnel training program is provided. The Bureau, upon request, assists in providing various types of training to State and local law enforcement agencies, a service greatly expanded by the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

5. General Administration.—This activity encompasses all functions of an administrative character bearing upon Bureau operations, including a Bureau-wide inspectional service.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average of 22,000 prisoners, the maintenance and operation of 27 penal institutions, community treatment centers in 16 metropolitan areas, and the central office. An average of 5,641 employees will be employed with the funds in this appropriation. The medical care of prisoners is provided by the U.S. Public Health Service.

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions.—This covers the direct care costs of all prisoners in the Federal Prison System. These include the costs of all food, clothing, education, custodial requirements, welfare services, release transportation, and related personal services. The funds required, exclusive of salary costs, are in direct relation to the estimated number of prisoners expected to be maintained in 1971 which is 22,000 at an estimated cost per man per day of $1.25. The average daily population for 1969 was 20,239 as compared to 19,677 in 1968.

2. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—This activity includes administrative expenses, all utility services, operation of motor vehicles, the repair and maintenance of all buildings and facilities, and equipment replacements. The cost of personal services attributable to these activities is also included.

3. Medical services.—Funds are allocated to the Public Health Service for the cost of medical, psychiatric, and technical services.

4. Narcotic addict treatment.—This covers the cost of treatment of narcotic addicts while in institutions and provides for aftercare treatment services once the inmate is released.

5. Technical assistance to State and local governments.—Covers all costs of services provided by the Bureau in giving consultation and other services to non-Federal jurisdictions seeking to improve their correctional systems.

This is a wholly owned Government corporation. A board of six directors appointed by the President controls its policies. Supervision is by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons who has jurisdiction over all industrial enterprises and vocational training programs in all Federal penal and correctional institutions. Products manufactured by inmates are sold only to the penal institutions and to other Government agencies. Earnings, in excess of operating requirements, are paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury.

The corporation is authorized, under the Attorney General to establish and operate industries in Federal penal and correctional institutions and disciplinary barracks (18 U.S.C. 4121-4128). Its purposes are to provide employment for inmates, provide maximum vocational training for qualified inmates in connection with regular institutional and industrial activities; and to operate a placement service to assist released inmates to secure jobs. Products manufactured by the inmates are sold only to other Government agencies and the penal institutions. Earnings from the sale of these products pay expenses of the corporation and have permitted payment of $77 million in dividends into the Treasury since January 1, 1935. The corporation anticipates paying a dividend of $5 million during 1970 and a dividend of $5 million in 1971, for a total of $87 million by June 30, 1971.

Operations.—Sales of products and services to other Government agencies during 1969 were approximately $48 million and are estimated at $54 million for the year 1970 and $55 million for 1971. Net earnings after paying all expenses, including the limitation expenses, were $7 million for 1969 and are estimated at $9 million for 1970 and $6 million for 1971.

A new metal furniture factory was started at Marion, Ill., in 1969. A sign shop will be started in Atlanta, Ga., in 1970. The furniture factory at Ashland, Ky., will be replaced by another industry to be selected before the end of the year. This will bring total shops to 49 at 22 locations.

Financing.—The corporation has always operated at a profit. Accumulated earnings as of June 30, 1969, were $125.5 million, of which $77 million had been paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury. The remaining $48.5 million has been reinvested in the form of operating cost, inventories, machinery, and buildings.

By June 30, 1971, accumulated earnings are estimated at $141 million. Dividends of $87 million are expected to be paid into the U.S. Treasury. Retained capital should be $53 million. The limitations on general administrative and vocational training expenses are paid out of the corporation.

The administrative expense limitation covers the cost of procurement, inmate training, and personnel for all industrial activities. This limitation also covers the cost of research work in industrial lines and product design in connection with the installation of new industries, and the operation and conversion of existing industries. The central office conducts field audits and program examinations; prepares and maintains the Schedule of Products Manufactured; and determines selling prices. An increase of $37 thousand is requested to meet the demands on this fund in 1971.

The vocational training expense limitation finances the vocational training program within the prison system. Advances in vocational education that have proved successful outside the prison system, have been installed within prison institutions. They include the use of an integrated curriculum, fusing academic and vocational education, and skill cluster training, with special emphasis on fields of emerging job opportunities. Shifts are continually being made in industrial and vocational training programs to reflect changing demands in the labor market, thus providing inmates with the best chance to secure post-release employment. Employment Placement Service is also an active part of the vocational training activity. For expansion of all of these important activities an increase of $1,500 thousand is requested in 1971.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs is the investigative, enforcement, regulatory, and drug abuse prevention branch of the Department of Justice in matters pertaining to the trafficking in and abuse of narcotics and dangerous drugs. It obtains evidence for use in prosecution of violators of Federal narcotics, marihuana, and drug laws and conducts programs of public education and supporting research aimed at preventing abuse of these substances. It acts for the Government in foreign countries in intelligence gathering activities and coordination with foreign government agencies to identify and interdict sources of production and importation of narcotics, marihuana, and drugs at their source.

The appropriation request for 1971 totals $34.4 million. This will provide an additional 223 employees (152 agents, 14 chemists, 4 professionals, and 53 clerks). Of the 223 additional employees, 209 are for assignment to the field, to support the establishment of enforcement task forces and increased investigative and regulatory activities, and assistance to State and local enforcement agencies.

1. Law enforcement.—This activity includes the total intelligence, investigative, and regulatory responsibilities of the Bureau, both foreign and domestic; laboratory analysis of evidence for support in prosecuting cases; laboratory identification and analysis of new drugs and substances having an abuse potential when detected; the training of Bureau agents in the techniques of narcotic and drug investigations, law enforcement and regulatory duties; and collection and dissemination of statistics on active known addicts as reported by Federal, State, and local agencies.

2. State and local assistance.—The Bureau conducts a continuing training program for State and local enforcement personnel, drug industry, university security personnel, and members of the education community. In addition, laboratory support is provided for State and local enforcement agencies for analysis of evidence and professional testimony in State prosecutions.

3. Drug abuse prevention.—(a) Public education.—This activity includes the Bureau's responsibility to communicate factual information to the public. This objective is accomplished by developing and disseminating facts on drug abuse to State and local agencies, the regulated drug industry, educational institutions, and private groups and organizations. In addition, in conjunction with DOD and HEW, the Bureau is supporting a 3-year program, coordinated by the National Advertising Council, to utilize mass media facilities to reach private individuals. Both electronic and printed media will be employed.

(b) Supporting research.—The Bureau is engaged in a variety of applied research projects directed at studying the pharmacological effects of narcotic substances; the patterns of drug distribution; the causes of abusive drug use; development of test methods to detect addiction; and wide dissemination of factual information on the short- and long-term effects of the use of specific drugs.

4. General administration.—This activity embraces all functions of executive planning, direction, and control, inspection and audit, legal review, and management services.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

SEC. 202. None of the funds appropriated by this title may be used to pay the compensation of any person hereafter employed as an attorney (except foreign counsel employed in special cases) unless such person shall be duly licensed and authorized to practice as an attorney under the laws of a State, territory, or the District of Columbia.

SEC. 203. Seventy-five per centum of the expenditures for the offices of the United States attorney and the United States marshal for the District of Columbia from all appropriations in this title shall be reimbursed to the United States from any funds in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia.

SEC. 204. Appropriations and authorizations made in this title which are available for expenses of attendance at meetings shall be expended for such purposes in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Attorney General.

SEC. 205. Appropriations and authorizations made in this title for salaries and expenses shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 206. Appropriations for the current fiscal year for "Salaries and expenses, general administration", "Salaries and expenses, United States Attorneys and Marshals", "Salaries and expenses, Federal Bureau of Investigation", "Salaries and expenses, Immigration and Naturalization Service", and "Salaries and expenses, Bureau of Prisons", shall be available for uniforms and allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 207. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for the purchase of insurance for motor vehicles operated on official Government business in foreign countries. (Department of Justice Appropriation Act, 1970.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 701. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 702. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to administer any program which is funded in whole or in part from foreign currencies or credits for which a specific dollar appropriation therefor has not been made.

SEC. 703. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 704. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under sec. 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific congressional approval of such method of financial support.

SEC. 705. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay the salary of any Federal employee who is finally convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.

SEC. 706. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, a grant, the salary of, or any remuneration whatever to any individual applying for admission, attending, employed by, teaching at or doing research at an institution of higher education who has engaged in conduct on or after August 1, 1969, which involves the use of (or the assistance to others in the use of) force or the threat of force or the seizure of property under the control of an institution of higher education, to require or prevent the availability of certain curriculum, or to prevent the faculty, administrative officials or students in such institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies at such institution: Provided, That such limitation upon the use of money appropriated in this Act shall not apply to a particular individual until the appropriate institution of higher education at which such conduct occurred shall have had an opportunity to initiate or has completed such proceedings as it deems appropriate but which are not dilatory in order to determine whether the provisions of this limitation upon the use of appropriated funds shall apply: Provided further, That such institution shall certify to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare at quarterly or semester intervals that it is in compliance with this provision. (Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1970.)

1. Training and allowance payments.—Direct program costs for occupational and basic education training programs are provided to equip the Nation's unemployed and underemployed workers with skills that will enable them to participate in productive employment. Institutional training projects are conducted by State and local vocational education agencies and on-the-job training projects are conducted by employers and other organizations. This activity provides for the costs of conducting the training and for the payment of trainee allowances to those trainees who are entitled to them under provisions of the act. In 1971, projects are estimated to be approved for 330,300 training opportunities. An additional 97,200 Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) opportunities, and 18,300 Job Opportunities in the Business Sector (JOBS) opportunities, and 15,200 Public Service Careers (PSC) opportunities will be funded with $228 million from the Economic Opportunity Act (EOA). The CEP concentrates manpower resources in selected urban and rural target areas and is designed to insure that disadvantaged individuals receive training and manpower supportive services, enabling them to obtain permanent employment. MDTA and EOA funds for CEP total $199 million. JOBS is operated in conjunction with the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) and is a cooperative business-Government venture to hire and train disadvantaged individuals for private sector jobs. MDTA and EOA funds for JOBS total $375 million. The PSC program is designed to secure within merit principles permanent employment for disadvantaged persons in public service agencies. MDTA and EOA funds for PSC total $60 million in 1971. For 1971, funds for the summer youth program are provided under the Economic Opportunity Act.

The following table reflects program workload for MDTA activities:

2. Program services.—This activity includes services provided by State Employment Security agencies including the identification of occupations in which shortages or potential demand exists, the selection, referral, and placement of trainees and the paying of trainee allowances. Overall supervision of the institutional program is provided by State vocational education agencies. Manpower Development and Training activities and other manpower programs are coordinated by utilizing the Interagency Cooperative Area Manpower Planning System (CAMPS). This activity also provides technical assistance for manpower programs and furnishes training for personnel involved in the administration, direction, and performance of these programs. It also provides for a comprehensive system of labor market information and, together with employment service funds, provides for Job Bank and job-matching activities.

1. Experimental, demonstration, and research programs.—Financial support for experimental and demonstration training projects is authorized under title I of the Manpower Development and Training Act, as amended.

Such projects are conducted through contracts and/or grants with public or private nonprofit organizations. They are intended to improve techniques and demonstrate effectiveness of specialized methods in meeting manpower, employment, and training problems of the long-term unemployed, disadvantaged youth, displaced older workers, handicapped, minority groups, and others.

A wide-range manpower research program is carried on to investigate and study programs which give promise of furthering activities under the Manpower Development and Training Act and its amendments. Areas of study include appraisal of manpower requirements and resources, unemployment resulting from automation and technological advances, mobility of workers, adequacy of manpower development efforts, and manpower utilization.

Title I of the MDTA also calls for evaluation of manpower programs. In 1971 funds are being requested for contractual evaluation studies of MDTA programs and other manpower programs.

2. Planning, research, and evaluation.—The Office of the Associate Manpower Administrator is responsible for the planning, research, and evaluation necessary to develop and implement a comprehensive manpower program. It provides leadership, coordination, and direction to the manpower research program. It provides continuing review and appraisal of operating programs. It identifies and develops solutions, through policy exploration, proposed legislation, research, experimental and demonstration programs, and evaluation for special manpower problems.

3. Training and employment.—The U.S. Training and Employment Service is responsible for the development and support of a national system for the effective delivery of comprehensive employability training and support services to unemployed and underemployed individuals, both urban and rural, with special emphasis on the needs of veterans and disadvantaged persons, and for providing job development and placement services to workers and employers.

In meeting that overall responsibility, the Service develops plans, techniques, guidelines, and procedures for a broad range of manpower development programs and provides technical assistance to regional offices, State agencies, and local area sponsors in carrying them out. The programs include institutional and on-the-job training; programs designed to accomplish specific objectives such as the Concentrated Employment Program (CEP), Model Cities, the National Alliance of Businessmen-Job Opportunities in the Business Sector (JOBS), and the Work Incentive Program (WIN). Technical support and assistance is also provided for the various manpower delivery systems and to participating groups—State agencies, private sponsors, and others—by developing and aiding in the implementation of methods and techniques for outreach, counseling, testing, job opportunity development, recruiting, and placement, with special emphasis on serving the disadvantaged in order to achieve more effective utilization of the Nation's manpower. The Service develops methods and techniques for estimating current and future occupational supply and demand, analyzes and disseminates information on employment opportunities by industry, occupation, job market, or geographic area, develops occupational analysis and career information to facilitate counseling, training, and placement services, and maintains the Dictionary of Occupational Titles.

Staff assistance is also provided in carrying out assigned responsibilities under the Immigration and Nationality Act (Public Law 414) as they relate to aliens seeking admission for permanent and temporary agricultural and nonagricultural employment. It develops or adopts programs to meet the specialized needs of farm labor and residents of rural areas and provides policies and procedures for implementation of, and compliance with, the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act and related regulations. The Service also reviews and recommends appropriate action on applications for Exemplary Rehabilitation Certificates under Public Law 89-690 and develops policies and procedures for and exercises functional supervision of local offices to assure that veterans receive the maximum of job opportunities.

to assure nondiscrimination against any person because of race, color, or national origin under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance; issuance of rules, regulations, or orders that will carry out the provisions of the title; and elimination of discriminatory practices in manpower programs that result from violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1968.

6. Executive direction.—(a) General administration.—This activity provides for the executive direction, supervision, and coordination of the manpower programs of the Department of Labor.

(b) Financial and management services.—This office furnishes the Manpower Administrator with administrative staff support. It provides budgetary, fiscal management, audit, administrative and management services, personnel, and contract services for all organizations of the Manpower Administration.

(c) Manpower management data systems.—Designs, maintains, and operates all data systems for the work and training programs of the Manpower Administration, including (in partnership with the Office of Financial and Management Systems) combined reports on finances and performance. Develops a central data bank for all Manpower Administration work-training programs; determines standards and procedures for, and functional supervision of, all Manpower Administration data reporting systems; and provides statistical and technical services to the Manpower Administration.

(d) Reports to the public on manpower programs.—This office, working with the Office of Information, Publications, and Reports in the Office of the Secretary prepares and disseminates all news of Manpower Administration activities. It fills requests for publications and provides other information concerning manpower programs. It also is the headquarters for a manpower community relations program.

1. Promote apprenticeship and training.—Management and labor are encouraged and assisted to develop more highly skilled employees through the organization and improvement of programs of apprenticeship and training. Systematic training and apprenticeship programs are promoted by direct contact with employers and unions at the national and local levels; by the use of public information media, and by cooperation with agencies of State governments. Information on skill requirements, training needs and technology, and apprenticeship labor standards is provided.

Training aids and techniques designed to increase effectiveness of apprenticeship and training are made available. Research and technical industry studies are published periodically. Pamphlets, articles and reprints are published annually calling attention to skill needs of various industries and to describe superior programs.

Approximately 4,000 apprenticeship and other training programs are developed and installed annually. In addition technical assistance is provided to about 120,000 employers directly or through local joint labor-management committees. In all, more than 350,000 apprentices and 25,000 journeymen participate in training programs recognized by the Bureau.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION FOR FEDERAL EMPLOYEES AND EX-SERVICEMEN AND TRADE ADJUSTMENT ACTIVITIES

For payments to unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen, as authorized by Title 5, Chapter 85 of the United States Code, and for necessary expenses to carry out the responsibilities of the Secretary of Labor in connection with trade adjustment assistance activities, as provided by law, including benefit payments to eligible workers, $200,000, together with such amount as may be necessary to be charged to the subsequent year appropriation for the payment of benefits for any period subsequent to March 31 of the current year.

Unemployment compensation for Federal employees and ex-servicemen, next succeeding fiscal year: For making, after May 31, of the current fiscal year, payment to States, as authorized by Title 5, Chapter 85 of the United States Code, such amounts as may be required for payment to unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen for the first quarter of the next succeeding fiscal year, and the obligations and expenditures thereunder shall be charged to the appropriation therefor for that fiscal year: Provided, That the payments made pursuant to this paragraph shall not exceed the amount paid to the States for the first quarter of the current fiscal year.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

Weekly adjustment assistance allowances are paid to workers who become unemployed or underemployed due to the application of certain provisions of the act. Although the Automotive Products Trade Act of 1965 expired June 30, 1968, allowances will be made in 1971 to those workers who carry over entitlement from prior fiscal years.

Benefit payments to ex-servicemen and former Federal civilian employees are now estimated at $185 million for 1970, an increase of $50 million over the amount in the 1970 appropriation. The increase will result from the combined effects of (1) 17% more military separations than originally estimated, (2) cutbacks in civilian employment, especially in defense establishments, and (3) generally higher unemployment than was previously expected with consequent increases in the percentage of separated individuals who file claims and delays in their reemployment.

This fund established by the Employment Security Act of 1960 (74 Stat. 970) makes advances without fiscal year limitation to the Employment Security Administration Account in the Unemployment Trust Fund. The purpose of this fund is to finance the Federal and State administrative costs of the employment security programs on a repayable basis from the beginning of the year until the Federal unemployment tax receipts become available in February of the same fiscal year.

During 1969, the ninth year of operations, $280,129 thousand was advanced to the Employment Security Account and was repaid. During 1970, about $340,744 thousand of the fund will be used to finance the program until the Federal unemployment tax receipts are received during February 1970.

Prior to 1970, approximately seven-twelfths of the total grants to States and Federal salaries and expenses estimates was required as an advance from the Revolving Fund until the tax receipts became available in February. Passage of Public Law 91-53, dated August 7, 1969, provides for quarterly collections of the Federal Unemployment Tax receipts, thereby decreasing the amount required to borrow from the Revolving Fund. No additional funds are requested for this program as the $344,894 thousand is adequate to finance employment security programs until the bulk of the tax collections become available in 1971.

LIMITATION ON GRANTS TO STATES FOR UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICE ADMINISTRATION

For grants in accordance with the provisions of the Act of June 6, 1933, as amended (29 U.S.C. 49-49n), for carrying into effect section 602 of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, for grants to the States as authorized in title III of the Social Security Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 501-503), including, upon the request of any State, the purchase of equipment, and the payment of rental for space made available to such State in lieu of grants for such purpose, and for expenses not otherwise provided for, necessary for carrying out title V, Chapter 85 of the United States Code, $722,700,000 may be expended from the employment security administration account in the Unemployment trust fund, and of which $3,000,000 shall be available only to the extent necessary to meet increased costs of administration resulting from changes in a State law or increases in the number of claims filed and claims paid or increased salary costs resulting from changes in State salary compensation plans embracing employees of the State generally over those upon which the States's basic grant (or the allocation for the District of Columbia) was based, which increased costs of administration cannot be provided for by normal budgetary adjustments: Provided, That any portion of the funds granted to a State in the current fiscal year and not obligated by the State in that year shall be returned to the Treasury and credited to the account from which derived: Provided further, That such amounts as may be agreed upon by the Department of Labor and the Post Office Department shall be used for the payment, in such manner as said parties may jointly determine, of postage for the transmission of official mail matter in connection with the administration of unemployment compensation systems and employment services by States receiving grants herefrom.

Grants to States, next succeeding fiscal year: For making, after May 31 of the current fiscal year, payments to States under title III of the Social Security Act, as amended, and under the Act of June 6, 1933, as amended, for the first quarter of the next succeeding fiscal year, such sums as may be necessary, the obligations incurred and the expenditures made thereunder for payments under such title and under such Act of June 6, 1933, to be charged to the appropriation therefor for that fiscal year: Provided, That the payments made pursuant to this paragraph shall not exceed the amount obligated by the United States for such purposes for the fourth quarter of the current fiscal year.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

1. Unemployment insurance service.—State employment security agencies pay unemployment compensation to workers eligible under State unemployment insurance laws and collect unemployment taxes from employers who are subject to such State laws. Benefits are also paid to unemployed Federal workers and ex-servicemen from funds provided under a separate Federal appropriation. Federal grants in 1969 provided State administrative funds to collect almost $2.6 billion in taxes, to pay benefits totaling approximately $2 billion to approximately 4.1 million beneficiaries, and to pay $125.2 million in benefits to unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen.

2. Employment service.—The Federal-State employment service system is a nationwide network of more than 2,100 local offices financed primarily by Federal grants and administered by State employment security agencies. These rural and urban offices provide community manpower services: counseling and testing services to assist applicants to obtain suitable jobs or training; obtaining jobs for those who are job-ready; providing workers for employers having jobs to offer; developing or carrying out work and training programs; assisting employers in analyzing their skill requirements and solving problems of recruitment and turnover; and developing labor area information. Specialized and intensive services are offered the disadvantaged and others who are presently unsuited for available employment. In 1970 and 1971, the major program increases are for management improvements—installation of cost-accounting and automated reporting systems—and for the use of electronic data technology in the job placement process through job bank and job matching systems. The table below shows major workload items:

Other source of funds.—In addition to the trust funds appropriated directly to the State agencies, services performed for manpower training and other Federal programs are an increasing responsibility. The principal services provided include recruitment and placement, operation of training programs, and payment of allowances and benefits. A further increase in 1971, not reflected in these figures, will take place upon the enactment of the Family Assistance and Manpower Training Acts:

Based on trends during the first half of 1970, the total number of unemployment insurance claims to be taken and processed will be above the forecasts in the budget and above the levels which can be financed out of the funds provided for administrative costs of benefit functions in the base and contingency amounts. This level of increase requires an additional $10 million for Grants to States.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment Trust Fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by special State payroll taxes. These tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment Trust Fund and are invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments. The expenses of State and Federal administration (including those of the Federal-State employment service), are paid from the fund out of revenue from the Federal unemployment tax, assessed on employers, of 0.4% of the first $3 thousand of employees' wages.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment Trust Fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

LABOR-MANAGEMENT SERVICES ADMINISTRATION, SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of the Welfare and Pension Plans Disclosure Act and the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act; expenses of commissions and boards to resolve labor-management disputes and other expenses for improving the climate of labor-management relations; and to render assistance in connection with reemployment under the several provisions of law respecting reemployment after active military service, $17,169,000.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1970 had not been enacted at the time this budget was printed. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to January 30. A current estimate of the amount of the annual budget authority required is shown in the budget schedules.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1968, $149 thousand; 1969, $127 thousand; 1970, $127 thousand; 1971, $127 thousand.

This appropriation funds the administration and enforcement of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 (LMRDA), the Welfare and Pension Plans Disclosure Act (WPPDA) as amended, and several provisions of law respecting reemployment rights of veterans, reservists, and National Guardsmen on training duty; the functions of the Secretary and the execution of the responsibilities of the Assistant Secretary as assigned by the President in Executive Order 11491; and staff support and services to carry out responsibilities of the Secretary of Labor in labor-management relations.

1. Labor-management relations services.—Assistance is provided to unions, employers, employees, Federal agencies, and State and local governments, in meeting long-range, complex, and critical labor-management problems. Included are special studies and analyses, guidance in identifying and utilizing available public and private services, and technical assistance in estimating and planning for economic and work force adjustments as they will affect labor-management relations. Federal action with regard to particular labor-management disputes is coordinated and the department's responsibilities under the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, are carried out. Emphasis in 1970 and 1971 will be on developing and expanding services and assistance in the public sector and on focused information and guidance to parties involved in actual and potential critical dispute situations.

2. Labor-management policy development.—Recommendations are developed on labor-management relations legislation, Executive orders, objectives for Federal programs affecting collective bargaining, and matters before the President's Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy. Studies are made of private policies affecting collective bargaining and of the performance of collective bargaining in relation to meeting current and prospective economic and social needs; labor-management relations research functions in the Department of Labor are coordinated and special studies are made of particular situations. Research programs pertaining to the LMRDA and the WPPDA are developed and executed. In 1970 and 1971, added resources will be devoted to special study of the causes and possible prevention of major strikes, analysis of the public sector labor relations problems and needs, and significant research and data development relating to the labor relations problems of the construction industry.

3. Administration of reporting and disclosure laws.—This activity covers the administration and enforcement of the LMRDA and WPPDA. Reporting forms and instructions are devised and reports from labor organizations, union officers and employees, employers and labor relations consultants and welfare and pension plan administrators are examined for compliance with the acts, with comprehensive analysis made of selected reports. Reports are made available for disclosure to the public. Interpretations and regulations pertaining to the acts are developed and promulgated, as are policies and standards for the conduct of elections. Technical assistance to further voluntary compliance, including clinics and workshops, publications and visual aids, is provided to those affected by the acts. Complaints alleging violations of the law are investigated and special investigations are conducted in areas where evidence exists of persistent or willful violations. Supervision is provided for rerun elections of union officials held under court order or waiver.

4. Veterans' reemployment rights.—Assistance is provided veterans, reservists, and National Guardsmen on training duty to secure reinstatement with their preservice employers and other employment advantages to which they may be entitled, based on seniority accrued while in military service. Compliance is advanced by informing employers and labor organizations of their reemployment responsibilities. Specific complaints of ex-servicemen are investigated, and if violations are apparent and voluntary compliance cannot be achieved, litigation is recommended. In 1970 and 1971, increased resources will be applied to the growing workload and to special attention to the reemployment problems posed by a growing number of disabled veterans.

5. Federal labor-management relations.—This program carries out the responsibilities of the Assistant Secretary of Labor under Executive Order 11491 dealing with labor-management relations within agencies of the Federal Government. Major responsibilities are executed by a new Office of Federal Labor-Management Relations with support in the areas of reporting and disclosure, bonding, trusteeship, elections, and election supervision provided by the Office of Labor-Management and Welfare-Pension Reports and research services and legal services provided by the Office of Labor-Management Policy Development and the Solicitor of Labor respectively. The Executive order bears an effective date of January 1, 1970, with some provisions becoming effective at later dates. A phased buildup of about one-half the staff is planned for 1970 with full staffing anticipated early in 1971.

Excludes $790 thousand in 1971 for activities transferred to Office of the Secretary, Salaries and expenses, 1969, $661 thousand; 1970, $749 thousand.

1. Improving and protecting wages of the Nation's workers.—The Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions obtain compliance with the minimum wage, equal pay, age discrimination, overtime, child labor, wage garnishment, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the various Federal procurement acts, and title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act. To complement the compliance program, regulations and interpretative materials are developed, special wage standards are set, and research is performed on the effects of the Acts.

2. Wage determinations under Davis-Bacon Act.—The Division of Wage Determinations performs the functions assigned to the Secretary of Labor by the Davis-Bacon and related acts. The Davis-Bacon Act requires the pre-determination of prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits for all direct Federal contracts for construction, alteration and repair of public buildings and public works, federally assisted housing, water pollution projects, hospitals, libraries, highways, airports, and sewage disposal plants.

3. Improving safety and other working conditions of workers.—The Bureau of Labor Standards assists and advises States on labor standards administration and their adoption of appropriate labor legislation or codes. The Bureau also administers the safety provisions of the Maritime Safety Act, Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, the newly enacted Construction Safety Act and other Federal procurement acts. The Bureau provides technical assistance, engineering consultation, and advice in all phases of occupational accident prevention to maritime and special industries, labor unions, and Federal agencies.

4. Advancing opportunities and status of women.—The Women's Bureau seeks to enlarge economic, civil, and political rights and opportunities of women through its educational and promotional activities, the Committee on the Status of Women and the Citizens' Advisory Council on the Status of Women; and services to Governors' Commissions on the Status of Women, to other Government agencies, and to national, State, and local groups. Programs are specifically designed to advance the position of about 30 million women in the labor force, with special emphasis on the disadvantaged, through promotion of improved working conditions, expanded job opportunities, better training, and improved vocational counseling and community services. Through information and technical and advisory programs, the Bureau also contributes to the advancement of the position of women in other nations.

5. Federal contract compliance.—The Office of Federal Contract Compliance carries out the provisions of Executive Order 11246 of September 24, 1965, as amended to include sex discrimination, with respect to the nondiscrimination aspects of Federal Government contracts; coordinates contracting agency activities to assure fair and uniform treatment of contractors and their employees; cooperates with agencies in mediation and negotiations; and provides guidance to agencies on procedures and methods to gain compliance.

6. Workmen's compensation.—The Bureau of Employees' Compensation administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act, the Defense Bases Act, the War Risk Hazards Act, certain provisions of the War Claims Act, the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, and the Non-appropriated Fund Instrumentalities Act. The 1971 request is to meet the increasingly heavy workload imposed by the 1966 Federal Employees' Compensation Act amendments, other related acts, and major increase in workload over the past several years. User charge legislation will be proposed to finance the administrative costs associated with the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act.

7. Executive direction, planning, evaluation, and research.—The Office of the Administrator directs, supervises, and coordinates the Department's comprehensive wage and labor standards program. It also coordinates the planning, research, evaluation, and budget activities of the Wage and Labor Standards Administration.

BUREAU OF EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION

EMPLOYEES' COMPENSATION CLAIMS AND EXPENSES

For the payment of compensation and other benefits and expenses (except administrative expenses) authorized by law and accruing during the current or any prior fiscal year, including payments to other Federal agencies for medical and hospital services pursuant to agreement approved by the Bureau of Employees' Compensation; continuation of payment of benefits as provided for under the head "Civilian War Benefits" in the Federal Security Agency Appropriation Act, 1947; the advancement of costs for enforcement of recoveries in third-party cases; the furnishing of medical and hospital services and supplies, treatment, and funeral and burial expenses, including transportation and other expenses incidental to such services, treatment, and burial, for such enrollees of the Civilian Conservation Corps as were certified by the Director of such Corps as receiving hospital services and treatment at Government expense on June 30, 1943, and who are not otherwise entitled thereto as civilian employees of the United States, and the limitations and authority formerly provided by the Act of September 7, 1916, 48 Stat. 351, as amended, shall apply in providing such services, treatment, and expenses in such cases and for payments pursuant to sections 4(c) and 5(f) of the War Claims Act of 1948 (50 U.S.C. App. 2012); $109,800,000, together with such amount as may be necessary to be charged to the subsequent year appropriation for the payment of compensation and other benefits for any period subsequent to March 31 of the current year.

Benefits are paid on a long-term continuing basis to over 25,000 civil employees of the Government disabled in the performance of duty or to their dependents, to dependents of certain reservists who died while on active duty with the Armed Forces or while engaged in authorized training in time of peace, to a number of former relief work employees and their dependents, and to numerous others by various extensions of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act.

Long-term benefits are also paid to approximately 220 employees of Government contractors and to American civilians who were captured by the Japanese during World War II.

New injuries reported involve determinations of entitlement and payment of compensation benefits and/or medical costs, as appropriate. When compensation is involved, one or more payments may be made—depending on the type and length of the disability. If a fatal case, monthly payments are made to the eligible survivors.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, and for fines and penalty payments. In 1969, receipts were $39 thousand and interest was $4 thousand (33 U.S.C. 908; 31 U.S.C. 725; 33 U.S.C. 944).

The trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury results in a permanent partial disability which combined with a previous disability results in permanent total disability or death, the employer provides compensation only for the disability caused by the subsequent injury. Compensation to supplement the employer's payment is provided from this fund. Payments are made to employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation for maintenance to enable them to return to remunerative occupations. Payments are made in cases where judgment against employers cannot be satisfied by reason of insolvency or other circumstances precluding payment, and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by the insolvency of an employer. In addition, provision is made for the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled longshoremen and harbor workers.

Actuarial computations for reserve liabilities to be paid from the trust fund presently exceed security bonds and cash on hand.

The amount of securities reflected on the program and financing schedule are for the Workmen's Compensation Act within the District of Columbia. All available cash for the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, will be expended in 1970 and the fund will be insolvent. It is, therefore, necessary to request $32 thousand in appropriated funds in the Wage and Labor Standards Administration, Salaries and expenses, for transfer to the fund in 1971 to meet the mandatory payments due claimants and their beneficiaries.

1. Manpower and employment.—Comprehensive data are collected and analyzed to measure the activity and health of the economy. Monthly estimates of the U.S. labor force, employment, and unemployment and studies of selected characteristics of the labor force are made. Monthly data on employment, hours of work, and earnings by industry for the United States and for each State are prepared and published. Projections of manpower requirements and supply and special studies on manpower problems are prepared. Detailed studies of the outlook for specific occupations are carried out.

2. Prices and cost of living.—The Consumer Price Index is compiled and published monthly covering urban wage earners and clerical families for the Nation as a whole and for large metropolitan areas. The Wholesale Price Index is issued monthly covering more than 2,000 industrial and agricultural products in primary markets. Special analytical studies of price changes are undertaken and standard family budgets are prepared and priced. In 1971, the proposal includes extension of the coverage of the Industry-Sector Price Indexes and the Wholesale Price Index to include representation of important sectors of the economy not covered, such as transportation construction and electronics, and to overcome critical price deficiencies by obtaining actual transaction prices where list prices are unreliable.

3. Wages and industrial relations.—Data on wages and salaries in major labor markets and industries are collected and analyzed. Monthly information is compiled on work stoppages and wage developments, and reports on employer expenditures on fringe benefits are issued. Studies are made of collective bargaining agreement provisions, trade union organization, and private welfare and pension plans. In 1971, regional information will be developed on occupational wages in local governments as well as detail for individual cities.

4. Productivity, technology, and growth.—Measures of output per man-hour and analyses of productivity trends are prepared for the total economy, for major sectors, and for selected industries. Studies are conducted on developments in automation and other technological changes with analysis of adjustments to such changes. Studies are made of labor requirements for selected types of construction. Research is conducted into problems of economic growth.

5. Foreign labor and trade.—Information, reports, and advisory services for policy and program work are provided on labor conditions in foreign countries. Analyses and international comparisons of prices, wages, employment, unemployment, unit labor costs, labor law, and labor standards are made. Research is conducted on the effects of international trade on U.S. employment.

6. Executive direction and staff services.—Policies are established for the maintenance of statistical standards and improvements of statistical methodology. Special economic reports are prepared for the Commissioner, the Secretary, the Council of Economic Advisers, and other Government agencies. The Bureau's research and report activities are coordinated; publications and releases are planned and edited; and a central inquiry service is maintained. Responsible for the development of plans, policies, and the overall operation of the Bureau's statistical and management programs. In 1971, a coordinated national data collection system will be developed. This new system will provide greater regional and area detail on manpower, wages, and prices needed by administrators of the broad range of urban programs.

7. Revision of the Consumer Price Index.—The Consumer Price Index measures average changes in the retail prices of selected goods, rents, and services, weighted by quantities bought by families of wage earners and moderate income workers. A revision of the index based on current patterns of consumer expenditures is underway which is necessary for modernizing the index to meet the demands for its use in present day domestic, economic, and industrial planning. The revision will begin in 1970 and will extend over a 6-year period. Pilot surveys conducted in 1970 will be evaluated in 1971 and final techniques for consumer expenditure surveys to be conducted in 1972 and 1973 will be determined.

This fund is available without fiscal year limitation and provides services on a centralized basis for the following Department activities (29 U.S.C. 563): (1) Communications, (2) supply service, (3) duplicating service, (4) visual exhibits, (5) accounting and payroll, and (6) tabulating.

1. Communication services.—Consists of switchboard, telecommunications, and mail and messenger services.

2. Central supply.—Consists of supply storage and issuance, property accountability, preparation and issuance of purchase orders, maintenance of supply inventory records, and space management.

3. Duplicating services.—Consists of offset printing including composing and layout, mimeographing, collating, and Addressograph service. This activity also includes procurement of printing from the Government Printing Office and the procurement and distribution of congressional material.

4. Visual exhibits.—Consists of preparing displays for public information and furnishing photographic services to the various bureaus.

5. Accounts and payroll.—Consists of centralized payroll, accounting, and financial reporting for the Department.

6. Central tabulating services.—Provides tabulating service for payroll and accounting functions, personnel, and other statistical operations.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all expenses of each service including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by bureaus, offices, and agencies served.

The President has proposed a Manpower Training Act to create a comprehensive manpower training program, consolidating a number of programs which are now separately authorized and administered. The act will assign greater responsibility to State and local governments for planning and operating manpower programs to meet local needs and conditions.

The schedule above provides $45 million for increased allowances and start-up costs, as well as $622 million for work and training programs to be transferred from the Office of Economic Opportunity in 1971. The table below shows the full program coverage to be utilized under the new act in 1971, as well as the Job Corps which will be transferred in 1972 (in millions of dollars):

	Budget authority	Outlays

71	Obligations incurred, net		8,000
90	Outlays		8,000

This estimate is for funding comprehensive improvements in the Federal-State unemployment compensation program. The proposed legislation will strengthen the unemployment program by extending its protection to more workers, assuring that benefits are payable only to those individuals the program is designed to protect, improving administration through training and research, and providing a more adequate tax structure. It will also provide extended unemployment compensation in periods of high unemployment.

Increases in the taxable wage base will make financing both more equitable and more adequate. Tax revenues will increase significantly in future years when the tax changes become fully effective.

The proposed legislation authorizes expanded research by the States and provides for increased training of State personnel beginning in 1971. Extensions of coverage, changes in the tax base, and new requirements as to provisions in the States laws, all effective January 1, 1972, will require States to do considerable advance study and development of legislative and operations changes, most of which will have to be completed during 1971. These efforts will require $7,400 thousand in addition to the $317,684 thousand required under existing legislation.

The proposed legislation will require the Federal Unemployment Insurance Service to expand its activities in program research and in support of State efforts required by the bill. These efforts include research, actuarial estimates, staff training, and legislative and operations planning. It is essential that the funds be made available in 1971 both because of provisions in the bill which would become effective upon enactment and to finance preparatory work for extension of coverage, changes in the tax base, and new requirements in State laws which will be effective January 1, 1972. These efforts will require $600 thousand, in addition to the $4,274 thousand required under existing legislation.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. Appropriations in this act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for supplies, services, and rental of conference space within the District of Columbia, as the Secretary of Labor shall deem necessary for settlement of labor-management disputes.

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Federal Funds

Mail volume.—The budget estimates for 1971 are based on expected volume of 86.3 billion pieces of mail, compared to 84.3 billion anticipated for 1970 and 82 billion in 1969.

The 1971 forecast includes 49.3 billion first-class letters and cards; 1.4 billion airmail items; 9.3 billion magazines, newspapers, and other publications; 21.7 billion pieces of printed matter and small parcels; and 1 billion zone-rate parcels, catalogs, and other fourth-class matter. Comparisons of these and other items of postal workload and related 1971 revenues with corresponding 1970 estimates and 1969 results appear in the table on page 682.

Financing.—Eight separate limitations are enacted for the Post Office Department for operation of the postal service and other assigned responsibilities. The limitations apply to the postal fund which is financed by the deposit therein of postal revenues and other receipts and by an appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury for the balance.

The estimate for 1971 reflected in the overall summary tables and in the statement of revenue and expense, includes anticipated revenue increases of $674 million based on proposed general rate increase legislation plus $500 million in additional revenue from actions currently under study.

Only the appropriation from the general fund to the postal fund (being equal to the excess of obligational authority over revenues) is considered new obligational authority for purposes of the Federal budget. Further, only the excess of the Department's disbursements over its receipts (exclusive of the general fund appropriation) is considered as budget expenditures.

The eight individual limitations control obligations incurred by the Department and are therefore requested and accounted for in terms of obligations. However, the program and financing schedules show funded accrued costs for each principal activity reconciled in total to obligations.

The schedule of revenue and expense shows operating costs on a full accrual basis including provisions for employees' accrued annual leave and costs funded by other agencies. Costs attributable to public services as defined by 39 U.S.C. 2303 and amended by Public Law 87-793 are shown in total on the revenue and expense statement.

The Postal Policy Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-426), as amended by the Postal Service and Federal Employees' Salary Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-793), provides that postal rates and fees be adjusted as required to produce the amount of revenue approximately equal to the total cost of operating the Postal Establishment, less the amount determined to be attributable to the performance of public services.

Revenue from mail and other services of the Post Office Department is placed in the postal fund, which was established as a revolving fund in 1950 (39 U.S.C. 2202). In addition to the obligations and expenditures under limitations enacted in annual appropriations acts, the fund is also used without annual action by Congress for the purchase of stamp-embossed envelopes and for the payment of certain indemnities, claims, and judgments.

Postal revenue comes primarily from private postal patrons. It also includes receipts from various Federal agencies for the handling of official mail and the payment by the Congress for franked mail. Reimbursements received for nonpostal services and other recoveries are likewise deposited in the postal fund.

The aggregate of postal revenues is less than the obligations authorized for payment from the postal fund. An indefinite appropriation is made from the general fund of the Treasury to make up the difference. After taking into account anticipated changes in funded working capital, the additional revenue in 1970 and 1971 from proposed rate increase legislation, and additional revenue increase actions, the net budget expenditures for the postal service for 1971 are estimated to be $382 million, compared to $1,247 million for 1970, and $920 million for 1969.

³ Under the provisions of Public Law 87-793, approved October 11, 1962, costs and losses deemed attributable to public services are not reimbursable to the Postal Fund as revenue but are to be determined and excluded for purposes of determining overall revenue objectives. The above estimates for public services are preliminary.

⁴ Anticipated pay increases reflected elsewhere in this budget are expected to substantially eliminate the 1971 surplus shown here.

Funds provided under this limitation pay for the direction and control of the Postal Establishment. The budget estimate for 1971 is $163.7 million, an increase of $17.4 million over 1970 and $47.7 million over 1969.

1. Enforcing postal laws and regulations.—This activity provides for the postal inspection and internal audit services. Postal inspection includes all field investigation and inspection functions pertaining to the violation of postal laws; prevention and detection of loss and mistreatment of mail, and losses of Government funds and property; field audit of postmasters' accounts; personnel security and suitability investigations; and special surveys and investigations. The internal audit program includes comprehensive reviews and financial audits of activities at the departmental level, regional offices, data centers, and other selected field installations.

2. Departmental administration.—This activity provides for all offices and bureaus at Washington headquarters except the research and engineering staff and provides for reimbursement to the Treasury for processing paid money orders. The biennial fidelity bond premium for all employees is included in 1970.

3. Regional administration.—This activity provides for direction and administration of postal field activities under authority delegated by Washington headquarters. There are 15 regional administration offices that are responsible for administration of programs, controlling and reporting of operating costs, and management of postal operations.

4. Postal data centers.—The six postal data centers provide staff services of accounting, disbursing, and data processing for headquarters and regional operation offices. Each data center covers a geographical area of two or three regional offices.

Funds provided under this no-year limitation support the administration and conduct of the headquarters research, development and engineering programs. The estimated fund requirement for 1971 is $65.7 million, an increase of $14.4 million over 1970 and an increase of $36.1 million over 1969.

1. General research.—This activity includes the operations research and human engineering programs. Operations research includes long-term systems engineering, the application of advanced management sciences to the research and developmental program and the identification and/or analysis and evaluation of new technological capabilities. Human engineering provides for the conduct of studies and tests in the areas of mechanization, design and the improvement of environmental conditions.

2. Applied research and development.—This activity provides for the applied research and development program, designed to modernize the postal service. Toward this end, the program will provide designs for better sorting equipment, facing and canceling equipment, optical address readers, improved employee training equipment, improved equipment to assure security to the mail and postal property, and development of techniques and equipment to improve employee working conditions and safety.

3. Engineering.—This activity provides for operational systems design and the conduct of field industrial engineering programs. Construction engineering includes final design of major mechanization, technical planning for new facilities, technical functions in the start-up of new facilities, and engineering evaluations of new facilities. Industrial engineering is directed toward improving efficiency, working conditions, and safety in existing postal facilities.

4. Administration.—This activity includes the Bureau of Research and Engineering's headquarters staff. The staff performs contracting, personnel, budget and programing functions, foreign and domestic technical liaison, management information, and general management and administrative functions for the entire Bureau.

OPERATIONS—Continued

Operations; city carriers, special delivery messengers, and rural carriers, who collect and deliver the mail; maintenance personnel, who keep the buildings and equipment in operating condition; the vehicle maintenance employees, who service the Government-owned trucks used in hauling mail; and personnel at the mailbag depositories and repair centers.

The 1971 increase of 2.4% in mail volume will be handled with a decrease of 0.1% in clerical manpower. This compares with a 1.9% increase in manpower to handle a 3.1% increase in mail volume experienced in 1969 and a 2.4% increase in manpower to handle a 2.8% increase in mail volume and other programs planned in 1970.

The following tables show a comparison of employment and workload in the principal employee categories: Clerks and Mailhandlers, City Delivery Carriers, and Rural Carriers.

Funds requested for 1971 total $6,519 million, an increase of $110.9 million over the estimate for 1970. The additional funds will provide the manpower and cover the related expenses necessary to handle the estimated increase of 2 billion pieces of mail in 1971, and provide delivery service to the additional area and patrons.

1. Direct services to mailers.—Services are performed under this activity by postmasters, supervisors, clerks and carriers. These employees perform mail processing, mail distribution, window services, and supervisory and administrative functions at small offices, and provide window, vending, and collection services at large post offices. Services at stations and branches operated under contract are provided.

2. Processing of mail.—This activity provides for those functions involved in the processing of all classes of incoming and outgoing mail in postal facilities, including railway and highway post offices. Related platform operations are included. This activity reflects the continued benefits from the efforts to improve operating procedures, and to further mechanize the mail processing operations.

3. Delivery services.—This activity provides for those operations required for the preparation and delivery of all classes of mail, including special service mail and parcel post, to private individuals and businesses in urban and rural areas. Transportation of mail between postal facilities via Government-operated vehicles is included. Possible daily city deliveries in 1971 are estimated to increase approximately 2.2%. The estimated increase in number of possible deliveries results from the continuous growth in housing. The number of rural routes to be established in 1971 will be offset by conversions of rural routes to city delivery service and the consolidation of rural routes for economic reasons.

4. Enforcing postal laws and regulations.—This activity provides postal assistance and clerical service for the Postal Inspection Service in carrying out its responsibilities for the enforcement of postal laws, miscellaneous noncriminal investigations, and audit-inspections of postal facilities.

5. Administrative postal support.—This activity includes administrative support functions of post offices in the areas of general administration; supervision and direction of operational activities; transportation and distribution management; financial management; and personnel, facilities, and engineering program administration. Operation of the Postal Source Data System, and the training programs of the Postal Service Management Institute and the Oklahoma Postal Training Operations are included. Reimbursements to the Federal Reserve banks for processing deposits made by postmasters and contributions to the employees' compensation fund are provided in this activity.

6. Logistical postal support.—This activity provides for the maintenance of equipment, the maintenance and protection of buildings and grounds under the control of and operated by the Post Office Department; the maintenance and operating costs of the fleet of vehicles used in the collection and delivery of mail, and the administration and operation of installations for the storage and repair of mailbags. The employees in this activity are, among others, guards, mailhandling elevator operators, janitors, mechanics to service mechanical and electronic mail handling and office equipment, vehicle mechanics, and sewing machine operators. Included are the purchase of gasoline, oil, tires; contract vehicle maintenance; and the provision of hired vehicles in lieu of Government-owned vehicles when it is economically advantageous.

Funds provided under this limitation pay for alteration and improvement of Federal buildings used for postal purposes; for procurement of vehicles and vehicle auxiliary equipment for the Post Office Department vehicle fleet; for mail processing machines including costs of installation; for self-service vending units and other customer service equipment; and for postal support equipment including data processing machines. The program and financing schedule shows, in addition to obligations, the extent to which yearly costs are expected to be incurred with the corresponding increase in the amount of assets on order, which are indicated by changes in selected resources applied to the program.

1. Facilities improvement.—This activity provides for modernizing and extending Government-owned buildings to make them adequate and efficient for postal purposes. Air conditioning, heating plant improvements, and the purchase of additional land adjacent to Federal buildings are included in this activity.

2. Mail processing equipment.—This activity provides for the installation of major mail processing machinery and equipment in large postal facilities designed for such installations, and for the modification of existing installations to adapt them to changing concepts of mail handling. The mechanization consists of three major categories of equipment: fixed mechanized systems, nonfixed mechanized mail handling systems, and other mail handling equipment. Examples of fixed or nonseverable mechanization are transport conveyors, belt conveyor storage systems, sack, pouch and parcel sorting systems, monorail conveyors, and related slides and chutes. Nonfixed mechanization, a type of equipment that is made in identical models and can be moved within a postal plant as necessary, includes facer-cancelers, edger-stackers, letter sorters, and mechanized support equipment, such as canceling, sack and pouch label, wire and string tying machines and portable conveyors. Included in other mail-handling equipment are material transport items, work-room furniture, and city delivery service equipment.

3. Vehicles.—This activity provides for replacement of wornout vehicles, for additions to the fleet required by growth of postal service, for vehicles to augment the carrier mechanization program, and for the purchase of vehicle auxiliary equipment. The estimate provides for the purchase of 13,239 vehicles of which 10,787 are for carrier mechanization, 1,950 are for bulk transfer of mail, 228 high-performance, police-type vehicles, and 274 are other types. All vehicles are of one-half ton capacity and over. The purchase of vehicles is for replacement of obsolete vehicles and for new service.

4. Customer service equipment.—This activity provides for the procurement of equipment which is designed and utilized specifically to render service to window, lobby, and self-service unit patrons. The equipment is designed and employed to increase hours of service to the public at less expense to the Post Office Department. In 1971, 156 additional self-service postal units and 600 additional vending machines are proposed.

5. Information processing and accounting equipment.—This activity includes the investment in data processing equipment, data collection equipment for the Postal Source Data System and assorted calculating equipment for administrative needs.

6. Administrative, general support, and maintenance equipment.—This activity provides for the purchase of support and maintenance equipment required by the postal service, including the investment in office equipment and furniture; protective equipment; equipment for the mail equipment shop, mail bag repair units and depositories; and equipment for the maintenance of buildings, grounds, and vehicles; and other equipment.

Funds provided under this limitation pay for preliminary planning of postal public buildings, acquisition of sites, preparation of drawings and specifications, construction, supervision of construction, purchase of leased buildings, and other related costs incident to projects approved under the Public Buildings Act of 1959. The acquisition and resale of sites, the recoveries from which are shown under advances and reimbursements and are applied to the purchase of additional sites for resale are included. The 1971 estimated obligations of $341,625 thousand provide funds for:

1. Site, design, and expenses.—This activity includes acquisition of sites, including costs of appraisals; preparation of drawings and specifications, by contract or otherwise; technical services; soil survey and tests; reproduction of plans and specifications; and supervision of construction, by contract or otherwise.

2. Construction.—This activity provides for construction of 29 new projects.

3. Project planning and development.—This activity includes the initial project study and planning associated with a new project.

The reimbursements from foreign air transportation and sale of sites amount to 94.1% of the total reimbursements estimated to be received in 1971.

5. Foreign air transportation: Transportation of military mail (Department of Defense).—The Department of Defense pays for the overseas portion of the transportation of mail moving to and from military post offices in foreign countries. The Post Office Department makes the arrangements with and pays the bills of commercial air carriers who haul this mail overseas. The Department of Defense makes a reimbursement to the Transportation limitation for the costs thus incurred by the Post Office Department. The trend in volume growth is expected to hold at the 1970 level.

10. Postal public buildings: Sale of sites and related costs to prospective lessors.—This program provides for purchase of sites for construction of postal facilities and payment of architect-engineering fees for the design of such buildings. The sites are resold to the builder, and the proceeds reimbursed to the postal public buildings limitation.

The legislative rate proposals now before the Congress, increasing first-class rates by 1 cent and adjusting second- and third-class rates, are estimated to be effective April 1, 1970. This will increase revenues by an estimated $674 million in 1971 and leave a potential deficit of about $500 million after allowing for anticipated postal pay increases reflected elsewhere in this budget. Studies are currently under way to determine the appropriate adjustments in revenues or costs, or a combination of both, to eliminate the indicated deficit.

1. Executive direction and policy formulation.—The Secretary is assisted in the formulation of policy and direction of the Department's activities by the appropriate staff officers, specialized offices, and functional bureaus of the Department.

2. Conduct of diplomatic and consular relations with foreign countries.—This includes representation of the United States and its citizens abroad, political and economic negotiations and reporting, consular operations, and oversea administrative services. Increases are included for rising prices and local employee wage rates in other countries, offset by savings from personnel reductions.

3. Conduct of diplomatic relations with international organizations.—In collaboration with other Government agencies, U.S. policy is developed and coordinated on political and security issues and in such specialized fields as world health, education, and labor activities.

4. Domestic public information and liaison.—This program provides for informing the American public on international policies and also keeping the Department informed on American attitudes on foreign policy.

5. Central program services.—These provide personnel and physical security measures, direction and administration of the Foreign Service Institute, and the administration of a global communications system for all civilian activities of the Government, including services for other agencies on a reimbursable basis.

6. Administrative and staff activities.—This includes normal domestic administrative activities. An increase for the information systems development program is included.

The Foreign Service Buildings program provides consolidated office space for the Foreign Service and other Government agencies abroad and living quarters for American employees. This program also finances real property leases of 10 years or more (shorter term leases are included in Salaries and expenses), procurement of initial furniture and furnishings and repair, maintenance, and operating costs of these facilities.

Unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other Government civilian operations overseas. Housing is provided American employees in localities where suitable housing is otherwise unavailable.

Appropriations are made pursuant to periodic congressional authorizations. Public Law 89-636 provided a capital authorization of $29.8 million, and an operating authorization of $12.8 million for 1969. Public Law 90-442 provided an operating authorization of $13.5 million for 1970 and $14.3 million for 1971.

Since 1961, a separate appropriation for excess foreign currencies has been enacted annually to supplement the regular appropriation. These currencies are used not only to acquire and construct real property but also to finance operating and maintenance costs to the greatest extent possible. Countries in which the appropriation is expected to be used in 1971 are Burma, Ceylon, Guinea, India, Israel, Morocco, Nepal (through use of Indian rupees), Pakistan, Poland, Tunisia, United Arab Republic, and Yugoslavia. These funds are credited to and expended under the regular appropriation.

The proposed increase for 1971 is primarily for construction of office buildings in Calcutta, India, and Kathmandu, Nepal.

EMERGENCIES IN THE DIPLOMATIC AND CONSULAR SERVICE

For expenses necessary to enable the Secretary of State to meet unforeseen emergencies arising in the Diplomatic and Consular Service, to be expended pursuant to the requirement of section 291 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 107), [$1,600,000] $2,100,000. (Department of State Appropriation Act, 1970.)

The United States contributes its assessed share of the expenses of the above listed international organizations.

The major increases are for contributions to the United Nations, the World Health Organization, the Food and Agriculture Organization, the Pan American Health Organization, and the Organization of American States.

A significant part of the increases is attributable to maintaining the prior level of operations, including the recent U.N. system salary increases for professional personnel. Other principal reasons include: (1) the United Nations is increasing its staff, incurring additional costs for construction, rental and maintenance of its premises, increasing conference costs, and providing additional funds for the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development and the United Nations Industrial Development Organization; (2) the World Health Organization is increasing its activities in the fields of public health services, education and training, communicable disease control, and environmental health; (3) the Food and Agriculture Organization is expanding the joint FAO/IBRD Cooperative Program, increasing the resources of the development and fisheries departments, and expanding its forestry program; (4) the Pan American Health Organization increase includes incorporating the fourth step increment of the Malaria Eradication Campaign, expansion of the Foot and Mouth Disease Center, and expanded programs in health and population dynamics, water and sanitation (including Aedes aegypti), and nutrition; and (5) the Organization of American States increase provides for costs of the El Salvador/Honduras Peace Team, improved employee benefits, and preliminary expenses in connection with the OAS Headquarters plan.

This appropriation funds official U.S. Government participation in multilateral intergovernmental conferences, certain expenses of international secretariats to meetings, conferences, and related activities held under U.S. auspices, and contributions to new or provisional organizations.

This appropriation request provides for regularly scheduled or planned conferences, and for predictable U.S. contributions to new or provisional organizations. The 1971 estimate does not provide for unforeseen contingencies.

The proposed decrease for 1971 reflects an increase of $113 thousand for participation in the U.N. Human Rights Seminar and for additional contributions to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade Organization, offset by a reduction of $350 thousand due to nonrecurring hostship expenses for two conferences in 1970.

1. International Boundary Commission.—This Commission keeps the United States-Canadian boundary line marked in accordance with existing treaties. It also maintains boundary vistas by periodic tree cutting and chemical vegetation control.

2. International Joint Commission.—The Commission studies United States-Canadian border matters, such as investigation of water pollution in conjunction with the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration, and gathering streamflow data in cooperation with the Geological Survey. It also acts to insure appropriate apportionment of international waters and, upon referral, investigates and makes recommendations for remedial action.

The Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 (22 U.S.C. 2601) and subsequent legislation (79 Stat. 901) authorized assistance to migrants and refugees, both on a multilateral basis through contributions to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and the International Committee of the Red Cross, and on a unilateral basis through assistance to refugees from Communist countries.

The reduction in 1971 of assistance to refugees from European Communist countries assumes an abatement of the refugee influx generated by the 1968 crisis in Czechoslovakia.

The Department of Transportation Act of 1966 assigns to the Secretary broad responsibilities for the development and coordination of national transportation policies and programs. This appropriation finances those research activities and studies which directly support the Secretary's responsibilities and which can more effectively or appropriately be conducted in the Office of the Secretary rather than by the operating administrations within the Department. The program is carried out primarily through contracts with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, and nonprofit research organizations, and private firms.

1. Transportation policy and planning.—Studies and analyses are conducted on a broad range of transportation policy and economic problems to determine national transportation requirements and to provide the Secretary with the information and analyses needed for effective decisionmaking on national transportation policies, plans, and programs. Included are programs to forecast transportation demand, to develop models and other analytical devices that will help assess alternative courses of action, to conduct economic and statistical studies designed to assess the effects of economic regulation, and to examine the interrelationship of transportation with changing economic factors and forces. Projects are also carried out to develop new methods and effective programs to provide transportation information needed by the Federal, State and local governments, and industry. Amounts are also included for the ongoing programs to develop plans for meeting the transportation needs of the Northeast Corridor as well as studies and research relating to transportation systems development as it affects national urban and environmental policy.

2. Transportation technology.—Projects are carried out to advance transportation technology generally: to seek solutions to transportation problems which are intermodal in nature; to provide information and forecasts on new technology required as a basis for planning and development of transportation systems, policies, and programs; to conduct research on longer range technical problems in transportation; and to manage research programs of such priority that they demand Secretarial emphasis. In 1971, funds are requested to continue and expand advanced research and development efforts on equipment and techniques to fully automate certain air traffic control functions and to increase air traffic capacity. In general, projects are designed to complement research and development programs of the operating administrations and to stimulate industry efforts to advance transportation technology.

3. Transportation facilitation.—Research and studies in this area are aimed at reducing the costs and removing the impediments to the rapid and efficient flow of passengers and cargo by modernizing our systems of transportation documentation and procedures. Projects will also be directed at realizing the economic and technological benefits of important transportation developments which can be achieved through cooperative research and development arrangements with foreign countries.

4. Special programs.—Projects in this activity are chiefly to provide technical studies and other data in support of the Department's programs in the areas of hazardous materials and pipeline safety regulation.

Under the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968, grants may be made to State agencies to carry out a State natural gas pipeline safety program. These grants may be up to 50% of the cost of personnel, equipment and other expenses of State agencies to carry out a natural gas pipeline safety program of intrastate gas pipeline facilities under a certification or agreement as provided in the act. The act contemplates adoption by the Federal Government of minimum safety standards, annual voluntary compliance by State agencies with certain statutory requirements, and Federal grants to assist the cooperating States. This appropriation finances these grants-in-aid to the States.

The working capital fund was authorized by the Department of Transportation Act to finance common support administrative services. The fund was established on July 2, 1967, and is available without fiscal year limitation to finance the publishing and graphics program at the Washington headquarters. On July 28, 1968, the fund was expanded to include still photographic services for the Washington headquarters. On May 23, 1969, it was expanded to include financing of computer time-sharing services for the Washington headquarters and on July 13, 1969, it was expanded to include the consolidated library operation for the Washington headquarters. The fund was further expanded on September 21, 1969, to include centralized travel services and imprest fund operations. Capital of the fund consists of supplies valued at $85 thousand, equipment valued at $478 thousand, and work in process valued at $3 thousand, minus accrued annual leave valued at $76 thousand which were transferred without reimbursement.

Operating results and financial condition.—Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all operating expenses, including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by the operating administrations and offices being served. No action is required with regard to the deficit in retained earnings for 1969. The deficit is very slight in relation to the annual revenue of the fund and will be recovered as a part of revenue during future years.

OPERATING EXPENSES

For necessary expenses for the operation and maintenance of the Coast Guard, not otherwise provided for, including [hire of passenger motor vehicles;] services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; purchase of not to exceed sixteen passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; [maintenance, operation, and repair of aircraft;] and recreation and welfare; [and uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902); $386,000,000] $426,740,000, of which [$131,370] $137,063 shall be applied to Capehart Housing debt reduction: Provided, That the number of aircraft on hand at any one time shall not exceed one hundred and seventy-three exclusive of planes and parts stored to meet future attrition: Provided further, That, without regard to any provisions of law or Executive order prescribing minimum flight requirements, Coast Guard regulations which establish proficiency standards and maximum and minimum flying hours for this purpose may provide for the payment of flight pay at the rates prescribed in section 301 of title 37, United States Code, to certain members of the Coast Guard otherwise entitled to receive flight pay during the current fiscal year (1) who have held aeronautical ratings or designations for not less than fifteen years, or (2) whose particular assignment outside the United States or in Alaska, makes it impractical to participate in regular aerial flights: Provided further, That amounts equal to the obligated balances against the appropriations for "Operating expenses" for the two preceding years, shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation, and such merged appropriation shall be available as one fund, except for accounting purposes of the Coast Guard, for the payment of obligations properly incurred against such prior year appropriations and against this appropriation: Provided further, That, except as otherwise authorized by the Act of September 30, 1950 (20 U.S.C. 236-244), this appropriation shall be available for expenses of primary and secondary schooling for dependents of Coast Guard personnel stationed outside the continental United States at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools, if any, available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents and the Coast Guard may provide for the transportation of said dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation: Provided further, That not to exceed $100,000 shall be available for expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary to enable the Coast Guard to discharge its responsibilities in connection with the meeting of the 11th International Lifeboat Conference, including transportation and entertainment of official representatives.

[For an additional amount for "Operating expenses", $1,000,000.] (14 U.S.C.; 5 U.S.C. 7901, 8334, 8708; 10 U.S.C. subtitle A; 19 U.S.C. 261, 267, 1451; 26 U.S.C. 3111; 33 U.S.C.; 37 U.S.C.; 46 U.S.C.; 49 U.S.C. 1651 et seq.; 50 U.S.C. 191, 194; Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1970; Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1970.)

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out the duties specified in title 14, United States Code.

Direct program.—1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs any and all acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft disaster or due to floods and ice conditions (14 U.S.C. 88). Coast Guard activities in the area of search and rescue fall within the National SAR Plan and other agreements.

2. Aids to navigation.—A network of manned and unmanned aids to navigation is maintained along our coasts and on our inland waterways through the use of tenders and shore facilities to insure the safe passage of the mariner. Loran stations are operated in the United States and abroad to serve the needs of the armed services and marine and air commerce (14 U.S.C. 81).

5. Oceanography, meteorology, and polar operations.—The Coast Guard participates in the National Marine Sciences program (14 U.S.C. 94), which is coordinated by the National Council on Marine Resources and Engineering Development. Its facilities cooperate with the Weather Bureau in taking weather observations from vessels manning seven ocean stations (14 U.S.C. 90). Icebreaking is performed by specially constructed icebreakers engaged in polar operations with other agencies (14 U.S.C. 2). Also included in this program is conduct of the International Ice Patrol (46 U.S.C. 738).
