The Corps of Engineers—Civil is responsible for the flood control program for the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, lower Arkansas, Yazoo, Tensas, and Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou La Fourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvement by bank stabilization from Head of Passes, La., to Cairo, Ill., and by dredging a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for five flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

- General investigations.*—Ten studies will be continued. Basic data subsequently used in planning and designing projects are collected.
- Advance engineering and design.*—Funds are requested to continue planning on 3 features, of which 1 will be completed in 1972.
- Construction.*—The total cost of flood control and related improvements in the lower Mississippi River and its alluvial valley is estimated at $2,858 million, of which $1,689 million has been appropriated through 1971. The funds requested will be applied to continuation of 10 features and the initiation of one other.
- Maintenance.*—Provision is made for operation and maintenance of major features of the project.

The fund provides for the acquisition, operation, and maintenance of floating and land-based plant and equipment used in civil works functions, for temporary financing of services finally chargeable to civil works appropriations and for the furnishing of facilities and services for the military functions of the Department of the Army and other governmental agencies and private persons (67 Stat. 199).

Budget program—Operating costs.—Operating costs are expected to remain at about the same level in 1971 and 1972.

Capital outlay.—Land and structures includes replacement costs of buildings, facilities, and related land. Dredges and other floating plant includes replacement and improvement costs for dredges and dredging equipment and other vessels such as tugs, tenders, and towboats. Land-based equipment includes replacement and improvement costs of transportation equipment, construction equipment, and fixed land equipment such as shop tools and fixed power-driven equipment. Major items for replacement and plant expansion are noted in the following narrative.

Land and structures.—The 1972 program includes: $2.8 million for design and construction of facilities for the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors and the Coastal Engineering Research Center; and $0.5 million for completion of the wind tunnel for the Waterways Experiment Station at Vicksburg, Miss.

Dredges.—The 1972 program includes: $0.2 million for completion of modification of the distribution system on the dredge Lyman; $0.7 million for modification of the distribution system on the dredge Hains; $0.7 million for replacement of wood superstructure on dredge Harding with modern fireproof steel construction; $0.1 million for completion of construction of sidecasting dredge Fry; $0.3 million for completion of construction of Alaska district 12-inch portable pipeline dredge; $0.2 million for completion of construction of Rock Island district 12-inch portable pipeline dredge; and $2.5 million for continuation of construction of pipeline dredge Ste. Genevieve.

Other.—Other floating plant includes: $0.5 million for continuation of construction for replacement of drift collector Gorham for use in New York Harbor; $0.3 million for continuation of construction for rehabilitation of mat sinking barge for Vicksburg district; $0.1 million for design of bank grader for Memphis district; $0.2 million for design and construction of mooring barge for dredge Hains direct pumpout operations; $0.1 million for design and construction of replacement bunk barge for Vicksburg district; $0.1 million for design of replacement mooring barges for lower Mississippi River mat revetment operations; $0.1 million for design of replacement quarterboats for use with mat revetment operations in Vicksburg and Memphis districts; $0.7 million for design and construction of a derrickboat for Ohio River Division. Land-based equipment includes: $5.6 million for procurement of automatic data processing equipment. Remaining capital outlays relate to a variety of relatively small items of floating plant, land-based equipment and tools, office furniture, and equipment.

Operating results and financial condition.—Unreserved earnings in 1970 amount to $1.2 million and are expected to remain at about the same level in 1971 and 1972. Initial capital of the fund was provided by assumption of the assets, liabilities, and obligations of the plant accounts as carried on the records of the Corps of Engineers—Civil at June 30, 1953, and by an appropriation from the General fund of $100. Capital (Government equity) of the fund amounted to $167.7 million at June 30, 1970, and is limited to $181 million by the Public Works for Water, Pollution Control, and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1971 (Public Law 91-439). In 1970 capital was increased by net earnings of $5.8 million. Increases in 1971 and 1972 are principally due to earnings reserved for plant replacement which are wholly invested in assets. Capital of the Fund is expected to reach $177.5 million at the end of 1971 and $181 million at the end of 1972.

Consolidated summary of personnel.—The Revolving fund is used to initially finance all payrolls of the Corps of Engineers—Civil.

The table which follows shows the distribution of personnel and salary costs to appropriations of the Corps of Engineers and to other accounts.

This appropriation supports the objective of the act of July 12, 1960, as amended, to provide for promotion of economic and social development in the Ryukyu Islands, and finances the administration of these islands by the United States, which exercises jurisdiction pursuant to the treaty of peace with Japan. Executive Order 10713, June 5, 1957, as amended, establishes, under the Secretary of Defense, a civil administration of the Ryukyu Islands to execute the administrative, legislative, and jurisdiction powers reposed in the United States.

Administration.—The program will provide for the general operating expenses of the Office of the High Commissioner and for the staff necessary to plan and execute the aid program and to assist the Government of the Ryukyu Islands in its responsibilities for administration, and to prepare for the reversion of the Ryukyu Islands to Japan.

Aid to the Ryukyuan economy.—The principal elements of the program are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

The General Fund of the civil administration is also available for assisting the economic and social development of the islands. It receives income from three wholly owned corporations, from the purchase and resale of petroleum products, and from investment in the Bank of the Ryukyus. The corporations retain their earnings to provide for necessary growth. Negotiations are presently being conducted with the objective of achieving the return of the Ryukyu Islands to Japanese administration during 1972, at which time the operation of the General Fund will cease. The following statements in effect reflect the terminal phase of the program conducted under U.S. administration. The program for 1971 and 1972 is presented as a single program, reflecting the need for flexibility in day-to-day operations in the preversion period. A statement of financial condition and summary financial program follows:

The foregoing schedules do not reflect the possible disposition of other General Fund civil and joint-use assets to the Government of Japan or other disposition in connection with the return of administrative rights to the Government of Japan which is proposed for 1972. This matter is currently under negotiation. The receipts and obligations are tentative and depend upon the rate of the progress of construction on various public works projects, the reversion date and reversion negotiations.

Planned expansion of corporate fixed assets in the above obligation program is summarized below (in thousands of dollars):

	1970 actual	1971-72 estimate
Ryukyu Electric Power Corporation (REPC).....	3,768	22,216
Ryukyu Domestic Water Corporation (RDWC)....	10,100	10,310

In order to meet the steadily rising demand for electric power, the REPC initiated construction of the 170-megawatt (mw.) New Machinato Power Plant in September 1968. This plant was completed in August 1970. A related expansion of transmission facilities was completed in October 1970. Thus, total generating capacity has been increased to 419 mw. To meet future requirements, a new 85-mw. increment costing an estimated $13 million is proposed for construction in March 1971 with completion scheduled for April 1973. By that time, demand is expected to be approximately 465 mw. REPC is also proceeding in 1971 with construction of administrative facilities at a cost of $3.2 million. During 1972 it is planned to begin the preliminary design of additions to the power system required to provide for anticipated increases in demand. At the request of the local communities involved, the REPC will also take over the ownership, operation, and improvement of certain off-island power systems in 1972. For this purpose, an approximate sum of $3 million will be borrowed commercially. Other obligations are principally for the expansion of transmission and distribution systems.

RDWC is continuing construction of the 9.8 billion gallon capacity Fukuji Dam to meet the increasing demand for water in Okinawa. Phase I, consisting of diversion tunnel and vertical shafts, was completed in November 1970. Phase II, which includes the dam and reservoir, commenced in March 1970 and is scheduled for completion in April 1972. The total cost of Fukuji Dam, including design, is estimated at $12 million. Water demand reached a peak of 58 million gallons per day in 1970. By 1972, peak demand should exceed 83 million gallons per day. The integrated water system includes, in addition to RDWC facilities, certain military owned water facilities. Prior to reversion, these facilities, with an acquisition cost value of approximately $7 million, will be transferred to the RDWC.

In 1970, the Ryukyu Development Loan Corporation sold an additional $1 million of its authorized $10 million bond issue, bringing the total sold to $4 million.

The General Fund contributed $5 million in 1970 toward economic aid programs, including special assistance to municipalities, disaster relief, sewer systems and highway construction. Planned contributions for economic aid programs for 1971-72 total $21.5 million. The 1971-72 program includes support for additional items, such as scholarships and the English Language Center.

Additional economic aid is furnished by the United States through the Food for Freedom program.

The total amount of external funds being made available for Ryukyuan economic and social development by the United States and Japan is summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate

The Government of the Ryukyu Islands was created by the U.S. Civil Administration on April 1, 1952. In addition to local revenues derived primarily from income and excise taxes, this government receives grants from the U.S. Government and the Government of Japan. Grants from the United States are related to extraordinary services provided for U.S. forces and for assistance in development of public facilities and services. A statement of its accounts follows:

The Panama Canal Company is a wholly owned Government corporation whose primary purpose is maintaining and operating the interoceanic canal at the Isthmus of Panama, together with its essential supporting operations.

The administration of the Company is integrated with that of the Canal Zone Government, an independent agency initially financed by appropriations. The Governor of the Canal Zone is ex-officio president of the Company. The Company is expected to be self-sustaining and is required to reimburse the U.S. Treasury for the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, the cost of interest on the net direct investment of the United States in the Company, and for annuity payments made by the United States to the Republic of Panama pursuant to the treaty of 1903, as amended in 1936.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1969, $5,081 thousand (1970 adjustments, -$85 thousand); 1970, $14,845 thousand; 1971, $14,845 thousand; 1972, $14,845 thousand.

Note.—Excludes $60 thousand in 1972 for activities transferred to Salaries and expenses, Office of Community and Field Services. Excludes $21 thousand in 1972 for activities transferred to Salaries and expenses, Office of the Secretary. Excludes $9,558 thousand in 1972 for activities transferred to Operations, research, and facilities, Environmental Protection Agency, 1971, $7,757 thousand. Excludes $7,131 thousand in 1970 for activities previously financed under Environmental control, and Office of the Administrator, Environmental Health Service.

The laws administered by the Food and Drug Administration are designed to protect the public against dangerous, misbranded, and adulterated foods, drugs, therapeutic devices, cosmetics, and other products, including pesticides, poisons, toys, and hazardous household substances.

1. Foods.—(a) Grants.—Research and training grants are awarded to State agencies, to universities, and to qualified nonprofit institutions for studies to determine harmful properties in milk and food and to develop methods to detect and prevent food contamination. An estimated 86 grants will be awarded in 1972, compared to 81 in 1971.

(b) Direct operations.—FDA is responsible for promoting the safety, quality, nutritional adequacy, and integrity of the country's food supply. FDA conducts intramural and extramural studies of foods, long-term low-dose chemical feeding studies in animals, sets standards for certain classes of products, reviews industry petitions to use additives in foods and establishes tolerance for them, defines good manufacturing practices and works to secure industry's voluntary adherence to them and to the law, inspects establishments in the food marketing chain to insure that products are being manufactured and distributed properly, collects and analyzes samples of marketed foods to insure that the final product is safe, wholesome, and properly labeled, and takes whatever regulatory action is necessary to insure compliance with the law.

FDA's 1972 increase will fund expanded food inspection efforts, the establishment and monitoring of guidelines for the nutritional quality and labeling of foods, expanded research and regulatory programs involving foods containing mycotoxins and poisonous metals, expanded coverage of imported foods, the establishment of a program for periodic review of the safety of chemicals added to food, and initiation of a cooperative quality assurance program.

2. Drugs and devices.—FDA's responsibilities within this activity are to insure that drugs and medical devices are both safe and effective. FDA evaluates all new drugs when they are first proposed for experimental testing in humans and again before they can be sold to the public at large. Additionally, FDA reviews reports from industry and from the medical profession to learn about adverse reactions or other problems associated with marketed drugs and devices, conducts extramural and intramural studies to detect problems that may not be readily apparent to the layman or to the physician, inspects drug establishments to insure that products are manufactured and distributed properly, collects and analyzes samples of marketed drugs to insure that the final product is safe and effective in the form in which it actually reaches the consumer, and takes regulatory action when necessary to insure compliance with the law.

The 1972 increase will enable FDA to improve the drug review process, increase FDA's statistical analysis capability in its effort to insure the safety and efficacy of new drugs, increase efforts to remove ineffective drugs from the market, expand research on the safety and efficacy of drugs, increase drug inspection efforts, develop an initial testing and monitoring program to determine the safety and efficacy of medical devices, and expand studies to determine the occurrence and significance of drug residues in food-producing animals.

3. Product safety.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to universities and to other eligible institutions for the study of accidental poisonings, burns, and other injuries related to the use or misuse of potentially hazardous products. An estimated 17 grants will be awarded in 1971 and again in 1972.

(b) Direct operations.—FDA's responsibilities within this activity center on the identification and, where the law permits, the regulatory control of unsafe products that pose a threat to the consumer. FDA collects, evaluates, and disseminates epidemiological data on accidental poisonings and injuries involving hazardous products, conducts intramural and extramural studies of these products and their components, inspects establishments in the marketing chain to insure that proper manufacturing and distribution procedures are followed, sponsors tests of certain products that appear unusually dangerous, and takes regulatory action when necessary against violations of the Federal Hazardous Substances Labeling Act and the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act.

4. Program direction and management services.—This activity includes FDA's executive and administrative functions: the establishment of policy, the formulation and promulgation of agency wide plans and directives, the allocation and control of resources, the daily direction of the organization, the evaluation of performance, the maintenance of liaison with Congress and other Government agencies, the coordination of FDA's international activities, and the support of FDA's operating units in the areas of financial management, mail and records, printing and distribution, facilities management, supply management, management services, personnel, and training.

1. Research.—(a) Grants.—Grants are awarded on a project basis for clinical, psychopharmacological, service developmental, and behavioral research in mental illness and health. Clinical research centers, research in special areas such as alcoholism, drug abuse, and violence, child mental health, and general research support grants are also supported. Approximately 1,457 grants will be supported in 1972 compared with 1,481 in 1971 and 1,438 in 1970. Hospital improvement projects which are awarded to State institutions for the mentally ill are also supported from this subactivity. These projects are designed to improve the quality of care, treatment, and rehabilitation in State institutions. Approximately 64 of these grants will be supported in 1972 compared with 72 in 1971 and 90 in 1970.

(b) Direct operations.—Laboratory and clinical research are supported in this subactivity in the behavioral and biological sciences; e.g., psychiatry, socioeconomic studies, neurobiology, and neurochemistry and in special mental health problems of narcotic addiction, alcoholism, neuropharmacology, and clinical psychopharmacology.

This subactivity also supports Institute staff who are responsible for the planning, development, and administration of the grant and contract programs identified in activity (a) above.

A limited amount of the funds is used to support research on a contract basis. One such activity is the marijuana contract program designed to determine the behavioral and biological effects of marijuana. Payments to the NIH Management fund are also supported in this subactivity.

2. Manpower development.—(a) Training grants and fellowships.—Grants are made to training institutions for training in psychiatry, psychology, psychiatric nursing, psychiatric social work, and other mental health disciplines, such as the rapidly developing paraprofessional mental health worker field. Experimental and special programs and continuing education in mental health are supported as well as specialized training in such areas as alcoholism, drug abuse, crime and delinquency, and suicide prevention. In 1972, approximately 1,817 training grants will be awarded compared to 1,945 in 1971 and 2,024 in 1970. Fellowship awards are made on the basis of individual merit to persons involved in mental health research. In 1972 and 1971 approximately 800 fellowship awards will be made as compared to 1,031 in 1970.

(b) Direct operations.—This subactivity supports Institute staff who are responsible for planning and administration of the national mental health manpower program including mental health manpower studies and the development of training programs for paraprofessionals. A limited amount of funds will be used to support contracts to train individuals to work with drug abusers. This subactivity also supports the training activities of the National Center for Mental Health Services, training and research, and a program for training psychiatrists for careers in the Public Health Service.

3. State and community programs.—(a) Community mental health centers.—(1) Construction.—Grants are awarded to public and nonprofit agencies for the partial support of construction costs for community mental health centers.

(2) Staffing.—Grants are awarded to community mental health centers for partial support on a matching basis, of professional and technical personnel. The 1972 budget will support 325 centers capable of serving approximately 44 million people.

(b) Community narcotic addiction and alcoholism rehabilitation programs.—These grants provide partial support on a matching basis for the construction and/or staffing of community facilities for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts and alcoholics. Project grants are also made for specialized training programs, special projects, evaluation of existing narcotic addiction and alcoholism rehabilitation programs, consultation services, and for the initiation and development of new projects in poverty areas. The 1972 budget will also support drug abuse projects transferred from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

(c) Direct operations.—This subactivity supports Institute staff responsible for program development and policymaking operations for the community mental health centers program, technical program assistance for the mental hospital improvement program and administration of a mental health services delivery, research grants, and intramural research program. Additional funds and positions are contained in the 1972 budget for this subactivity for the planning, development, and administration of the rapidly expanding alcoholism community assistance program.

4. Rehabilitation of drug abusers.—This activity provides salaries and expenses for NIMH staff who administer the narcotic addiction community assistance grant program. Funds are also included for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts in the clinical research centers located at Lexington, Ky., and under contract arrangements with community agencies. The Fort Worth, Tex., narcotic hospital will be transferred to the Department of Justice in 1972.

5. Program support activities.—(a) Field activities.—This subactivity supports the NIMH staff located in the DHEW regional offices and the headquarters staff responsible for coordination of regional programs and the Institute's relationships with other Federal agencies, professional societies, and State and community organizations.

(b) Scientific communication and public education.—Included in this activity is the National Clearinghouse for Mental Health Information which collects and disseminates scientific and technical information in the mental health field and the National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information which gives the public a central office within the Federal Government to contact for information and assistance concerning this social problem. Other public information and education activities are also supported including a program directed toward increasing public knowledge about alcohol and alcoholism.

(c) Executive direction and management services.—Institute staff responsible for executive direction, program planning and evaluation, biometric and legislative services, and administrative management are funded in this subactivity.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital provides treatment and care for the mentally ill who are either beneficiaries of the Federal Government or residents of the District of Columbia. Programs of the hospital are financed by Federal appropriations covering treatment and care of Federal beneficiaries and by reimbursements made to the hospital for services rendered other patient groups, principally residents of the District of Columbia. Federal appropriations to the hospital are of the indefinite type, under which the hospital receives, in appropriated funds, the difference between the amount of reimbursements actually received during the year, for patient care provided by the hospital, and the total program costs approved by the Congress for the year.

Treatment programs of the hospital operate on both an inpatient and outpatient basis. Saint Elizabeths operates a community mental health center on its campus, which services approximately 155,000 persons representing the population of that portion of the southeast quadrant of the District of Columbia which is located south of the Anacostia River. Actual and estimated patient movement data for the hospital follow:

The National Center for Health Services Research and Development has been established as the principal agency within the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to improve the organization, delivery, and financing of health services by stimulating and supporting research, development, demonstrations, and related training. The National Center is focusing on national priority problems in health services such as rising costs, unequal distribution and utilization of health services, inadequate methods for planning and decisionmaking, and shortages of professional personnel.

In order to focus research and development efforts effectively, the critical areas which are most likely to yield results on a national scale are being identified. To date these are: Development of experimental community health services systems; new, nationally acceptable types of health services manpower to expand physician services; simplified financing arrangements and effective cost containment methods; improved integration among health services institutions and among programs for ambulatory and inpatient care; nationally applicable methods of performance accounting, including an acceptable and usable index of health status; application of cost-effective health services technology; and training in health services research and development and in creative management of health services innovations.

1. Studies, training, and systems development.—(a) Grants and contracts.—Research and development.—Grants and contracts are awarded to public or private agencies, academic and other research organizations to conduct analyses of economic, social, and technological factors which affect the organization, financing, and utilization of health services. Large-scale research and development projects are directed primarily at containing the rate of increase of medical care costs, and developing community-based systems for delivering health services and improving the availability and utilization of care. The 1972 request will support 213 awards, an increase of six over the 1971 level. Contracts will be awarded for the development of a cooperative Federal-State-local health statistics system.

In 1972, the National Center will expand its research and development effort into health maintenance organization-like settings. Emphasis will be on the development of information necessary for sound guidelines with respect to enrollment, scope of benefits, and use of services, measures of health care effectiveness, financing alternatives, resource supply and use, legal and market factors, information systems, and eligibility requirements. The increase will support research, and development and evaluation of up to 24 health maintenance organizations.

Research and development training.—Grants and contracts are awarded to institutions and to qualified scholars for supporting research and managerial training in the health services field. The 1972 request will support 118 awards, the same level as in 1971.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity supports the staff which designs and directs the strategic program of research and development. The staff obtains high-level evaluation of all proposals, closely monitors contracts, reviews results, informs the professional community of significant progress, and identifies the next steps in research and development.

2. Program direction and management services.—This activity provides the leadership and direction for the operation of the National Center, including central management services.

This appropriation encompasses activities designed to improve the quality, quantity, effectiveness, and availability of health services in all settings. These activities are pursued through the following:

1. Partnership for health.—(a) Grants.—(1) Planning.—Formula for comprehensive health planning.—These grants are awarded to States according to a formula based on population and per capita income with no State receiving less than 1% of the total, to provide a framework in which health needs and resources can be analyzed and alternative courses of action recommended. Federal financial participation cannot exceed 75% of the costs. Agencies have been established in each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and five territories.

Many State agencies have been involved in promoting the development of areawide health planning agencies within their jurisdictions and will continue to work with them toward cooperative accomplishment of mutual objectives. The strengthening and coordination of the work of existing areawide agencies will become increasingly important as a large number of areawide agencies now in the organization phase will graduate to the planning phase.

The continuing close ties of the State comprehensive health planning programs to the State political, economic, and social systems will facilitate the adoption by the States of recommended planning priorities and recommended alternatives for solution of their problems. In 1972, great emphasis will continue to be put on drawing together the categorical programs in health, for the purpose of improving health services to people through the joint efforts of these programs.

Project grants for areawide comprehensive health planning.—Through a project grant to a public or private nonprofit group to establish an areawide health planning agency, a community has the opportunity to work toward a more coherent and efficient areawide health system aimed at meeting the needs of all segments of the population. Such groups as private health practitioners, hospitals, medical schools, voluntary health agencies, health departments, local governments, consumers, and specialized planning groups, as well as urban or regional general planning agencies now work through an institutionalized forum to reach agreement on local priorities for facility, service, and manpower development. Federal support cannot exceed 75% of the costs. In 1972, support will be provided to an estimated 151 areawide health planning agencies with about 24 in the organizational stage and 127 actively engaged in health planning.

Project grants for training, studies, and demonstrations for comprehensive health planning.—These grants provide support for both long-term and short-term training of health planners. In 1972, the request will provide for over 400 graduate students in an estimated 18 graduate programs, and support continuing education programs planned to reach over 600 individuals already involved or connected with health planning. It is anticipated that the number of graduate training programs will be reduced until approximately 10 remain, located throughout the country. These remaining programs—or regional centers—will be redesigned to encompass a wider scope of concerns. For example, demonstrations, studies and continuing education for professionals and consumers will become a concern of these centers. In addition, approximately 13 consumer education programs will be continued and will reach approximately 1,500 people.

(2) Formula grants to States for health services.—These bloc grants to State health and mental health authorities assist the States in attacking those health problems they consider of most immediate importance. The State plan for carrying out these programs must be in accord with the overall plans developed by the State comprehensive health planning agency. By statute, at least 15% of these funds must support mental health activities. Additionally, 70% of all funds are to go toward the provision of health services at the local level.

The 1971 State plans for programs supported by this formula grant provided continuing evidence of the value of its flexibility. A high percentage of States budgeted increased formula moneys for tuberculosis activities. Many States used these funds to expand and strengthen outpatient mental health services. In addition, more emphasis was placed on programs of outpatient services for children and youth in the mental health area.

In 1972, we anticipate the States will continue to provide more direct support of a broad range of health programs at the local level. In most States the distribution of resources are carried out through systems of formula or project grants to local health jurisdictions.

(3) Project grants for health services development.—These grants provide support to public and nonprofit private agencies for activities to meet special regionally or nationally determined needs. The highest priority is the support of comprehensive health service programs providing primary care and a broad range of ambulatory services. The 1972 program will provide continuing support for 30 community health comprehensive health service programs and 25 component projects at a cost of $38 million. It also includes $16 million for comprehensive health centers which were previously funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity and which will be transferred to HEW. In addition, it provides $30 million for the 16 centers transferred from the Office of Economic Opportunity in 1971. Higher continuation costs and expansion of these centers will be financed through increased reimbursements from Medicare, Medicaid and other non-Federal sources. The comprehensive health service projects contribute significantly to the provision of family-oriented primary care to population groups long without basic health services. A major portion of the projects have model city involvement. The eligible covered population for 1972 will approximate 2.3 million. A broad range of comprehensive family-oriented health services will be provided to 400,000 persons.

By the end of 1972, 42 million children will be inoculated against German measles as a result of the intensive nationwide rubella immunization program. Grants will also be awarded to support other health activities and venereal disease control programs.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity provides for the direction and administration of the Health Services and Mental Health Administration program in the regional offices, including the partnership for health. It also provides policy guidance, professional and technical assistance to the State planning and public health agencies, the areawide planning agencies, the health planning training programs, and the comprehensive health service programs including group practice. The increase provides for the establishment of a National Advisory Council on Comprehensive Health Planning programs, as authorized in Public Law 91-515. In 1972, emphasis will be given to strengthening management capabilities to garner Medicare/Medicaid and other third-party payments for services provided by comprehensive health centers.

2. Migrant health program.—Grants are made to finance part of the costs of establishing family health services clinics, to provide short-term hospitalization, and to improve the health services of agricultural migrant workers and their families. Through direct operations, the program provides technical assistance to migrant health projects and conducts studies vital to the effectiveness of the program. In 1972, the eligible covered migrant population will approximate 470,000.

3. Medical care standards and implementation.—This activity provides technical and professional assistance to health care providers and State and local health organizations, as well as assistance and consultation to State Medicare agencies and Social Security Administration staff in connection with the professional health aspects of the title XVIII Medicare program. Activities such as the health facility survey improvement program for training and upgrading capabilities of State surveyors; clarification, strengthening, and revising Medicare standards; and the development of standards for new benefits as designated in amendments to the social security legislation are supported.

4. Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for overall executive direction, planning, evaluation, and administrative management of the Community Health Service programs.

1. Maternal and child health.—This program has as its major goal the provision of health services to mothers and children, especially in rural areas or areas suffering from severe economic distress. Through assistance to States, localities, and nonprofit groups it directs primary attention to: (1) Reducing infant mortality and otherwise promoting the health of mothers and children; and (2) locating, diagnosing, and treating children who are suffering from crippling or handicapping illnesses.

Significant contributions to recent reductions in the Nation's infant mortality rate have been made through the maternal and child health program and the comprehensive maternity and infant care projects. For the Nation as a whole, infant mortality decreased by 20% during the period 1960-69. More than half that decrease occurred during the 3-year period 1966-69. Especially significant reductions are occurring in large cities in which maternity and infant care projects are located.

(a) Grants to States.—Formula grants are made to States for health as noted below. One-half of the amount appropriated must be matched by the States and the remainder is distributed in proportion to financial need of the States, except that not more than 12½% of the appropriation may be used for special project grants.

Maternal and child health services.—Funds are used by States for the extension and improvement of health services for mothers and children.

(b) Project grants.—Grants are made to specified agencies to meet up to 75% of the costs of comprehensive health care in three major areas as follows:

Maternity and infant care.—State and local health agencies or other public or nonprofit private organizations operate projects to help reduce infant and maternal mortality and the incidence of mental retardation and other handicapping conditions associated with childbearing. The existing projects are also serving a demonstrated need to improve the quality and quantity of maternity services to women in low-income areas.

Dental health of children.—State and local agencies and other public or nonprofit groups are eligible to conduct comprehensive dental care projects for children. Approximately 10,000 children are expected to benefit from the funds made available in the program's first year of operation, fiscal year 1971. In 1972 it is expected that 15,000 children will receive comprehensive dental care.

(c) Research and training.—Training.—Grants are made to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning including university affiliated mental retardation centers for training personnel for health care and related services for mothers and children. The 1972 program proposes to initiate a program for training of nurse midwives, pediatric nurses, and physicians' assistants.

Research.—The focus of this program is to support research which shows promise of substantial contribution to the advancement of maternal and child health or crippled children's services and to study the effectiveness of such programs through research grants, contracts, or jointly financed cooperative arrangements.

(d) Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for executive direction, planning, and general management of the maternal and child health program.

2. Family planning activities.—One of the most effective measures for reducing infant and maternal mortality and improving the physical and mental health of families is through the provision of family planning services which enable families to decide the number and spacing of their children. Thus, the Child Health Act of 1967 specified that not less than 6% of the amount appropriated for maternal and child health should be available for family planning, and in October 1969, the National Center for Family Planning Services was established to achieve the goal set forth by the President in July 1969, of providing adequate family planning services to all those who want them, but cannot afford them, within 5 years. The following programs administered by the National Center for Family Planning Services are designed to accomplish this goal.

(a) Project grants and contracts.—Services delivery.—Project grants are made to State and local health agencies or other public or nonprofit organizations under title V of the Social Security Act for up to 75% of the costs of projects to provide family planning services. Grants will also be awarded in 1972 under title X of the Public Health Service Act which contains no specific grant matching requirements and higher funding authorizations. This will enable a larger number and greater variety of organizations to apply for funds. Approximately 1,150,000 women will benefit from these services in 1972 as compared to 450,000 in 1971 and 250,000 in 1970. When these projects are fully operational approximately 1,600,000 women will be served.

Training and education.—Project grants and contracts are awarded to train allied and other health personnel for service in family planning clinics, to educate and inform families of the benefits of voluntary family planning, to develop improved training programs for family planning workers, and to develop improved family planning education and information materials. Approximately 2,000 allied health personnel will be trained with grant funds awarded in 1972 for work in family planning clinics.

Services delivery improvement.—Project contracts are awarded for the support of operational research projects designed to improve the delivery of family planning services; for technical assistance to demonstrate and encourage the utilization of improved family planning services delivery methods; and for program planning and evaluation.

(b) Program direction and management services.—This activity supports the administration of the decentralized services delivery project grant program in 10 regions; the development and operation of training, education, information, and services delivery improvement programs; and the planning, evaluation, coordination, direction, and administrative management of the programs of the National Center for Family Planning Services.

1. Regional medical programs.—(a) Grants.—The Regional medical programs promote and sustain, through grants, the development of regional cooperative arrangements among the Nation's health professions and institutions for: (1) improvement of regional health resources and services, and (2) enhancement of the capabilities of providers of care at the community level; and specifically to improve personal health care for persons threatened by heart disease, cancer, stroke, kidney disease, and related diseases. These activities are aimed at improving the quality of health care and strengthening the health care system generally throughout the Nation.

To date, 55 regions encompassing the entire Nation have received planning grants; of these, 54 have been awarded operational grants. The one remaining region is scheduled to become operational in 1971.

The 1972 budget introduces a stronger discriminatory policy which will be applied in awarding grants to individual Regional medical programs. As a result, a sharp retrenchment in grant awards will be made for those Regional medical programs which have been the least productive in order to support selected increases for those Regional medical programs which have shown the greatest innovative potential for moving the local health care system toward improved accessibility and quality of care. The new policy will also require a shifting emphasis in the use of current funds by the remaining programs.

The major shift in emphasis by the Regional medical programs will be directed toward improved and expanded service by existing physicians, nurses, and other allied health personnel; increased utilization of new types of allied health personnel; new and specific mechanisms that provide quality control and improved standards and decreased costs of care in hospitals; early detection of disease; implementation of the most efficient use of all phases of health care technology; and supporting the necessary catalytic role to help initiate necessary consolidation or reorganization of health care activities to achieve maximum efficiency.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity includes reviewing, processing, and awarding of grants; providing health data required by the central Regional medical program staff and the 55 local Regional medical programs in the implementation of their activities; and maintaining appropriate relationships with government and private agencies concerned with improving the organization and delivery of health services.

2. Technical assistance and disease control.—These funds will support activities aimed at: (a) providing continuing education assistance to the wide range of health occupations in the 55 regions involved in prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of heart disease, cancer, stroke, kidney disease, and related diseases; (b) providing technical and professional assistance for the 55 Regional medical programs in the development and implementation of their activities and for promotion of the application of new concepts, standards, and practices in the areas of heart disease, cancer, stroke, kidney disease, and related diseases; (c) preventing and controlling chronic kidney disease through improving artificial kidney treatment and increasing the use of kidney dialysis methods as a step toward more permanent treatment—cadaver transplantation; (d) reducing the number of cigarette smokers by stimulating and supporting national, State, and local activities to help those who wish to stop smoking and by encouraging youth not to take up the practice.

3. Program direction and management services.—This activity provides for a central staff needed in planning, directing, and evaluating the broad scope of program activities that exist in the Regional Medical Programs

Service; maintains effective communication and information links with the 55 local Regional medical programs and the general public; and provides management services such as personnel management, management policy, contract administration, and general administrative services.

This program provides facilities and services for the investigation, prevention, and suppression of diseases and occupational injuries by direct development, advancement, and demonstration of knowledge, and techniques, through research grants, and through prevention of the introduction of communicable diseases from foreign countries.

1. Prevention and control.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to organizations, institutions, and individuals for research concerned with epidemiology, prevention, laboratory diagnosis, and treatment of communicable diseases at the community level. Approximately 60 research projects would be supported in 1972 as compared to 52 in 1970 and 58 in 1971.

(b) Direct operations.—Communicable Diseases.—Scientific and technical skills in the fields of epidemiological medicine and microbiology, are provided to State and local health departments through investigations, consultations, and demonstrations. Professional competence in the investigation of epidemic outbreaks is afforded to the States through the staff of the Epidemic Intelligence Service which is constantly alert to epidemic situations in the country. These EIS officers provide a wide range of service, including epidemic aid, epidemiological field investigations, consultations in communicable disease control, surveillance of infectious diseases, and collaborative field and laboratory research.

An estimated 11,000 trainees will participate in 230 courses conducted by the center in both 1971 and 1972.

Tuberculosis.—Studies are conducted in epidemiology, prevention, detection, diagnosis, and therapy of tuberculosis. This research is conducted in cooperation with State and local health departments, tuberculosis hospitals, private investigators, and others. The results of the applied research are made available to the States and integrated into tuberculosis control programs by means of demonstrations, consultative services, operational studies, and training activities.

Venereal diseases.—Research and evaluation activities are directed toward maintenance of uniformly satisfactory nationwide serologic services; development and introduction of new syphilis diagnostic tests; development of an immunizing agent for syphilis; improvement of diagnostic techniques for gonorrhea; evaluation of more effective methods of therapy; and the improvement of control procedures. Scientific and general information about venereal disease for both professional and lay groups is disseminated through State agencies.

Foreign quarantine.—Certain visa applicants are examined in order to determine those who are excludable for physical or mental reasons. Other inspections (persons and importations) are made to prevent the introduction into the United States of quarantinable and other communicable diseases.

Basic workload data include:

Note.—Each arriving passenger receives a health alert notice.

Nutrition.—Research and evaluation activities are directed to the identification of specific factors which cause nutritional diseases, the relationship of nutrition to other health problems, and to the determination of the extent of nutritional problems. Corrective action and prevention of nutritional diseases is sought through the conduct of demonstrations, and provision of technical assistance to State and local health departments and other public and private organizations.

2. Laboratory improvement.—A comprehensive national laboratory improvement program is administered through research for improving and standardizing laboratory methodology and through evaluation of techniques, materials, and reagents used in public health laboratories.

Individuals are provided experimental vaccines and special immune globulin is distributed to control laboratory infections. States are also provided consultation, training, and informational services in laboratory techniques. The program provides for upgrading the performance of the Nation's clinical laboratories and for the licensure and evaluation of clinical laboratories engaged in interstate commerce.

3. Occupational health.—In order to minimize the high economic and social costs of worker illness and injury, the program conducts health research and provides technical assistance to other agencies and to industry for the prevention and control of occupational hazards and diseases. The 1972 increase will provide for the following: further development of the National Surveillance Network; expanded efforts to reduce the health effects of noise; development of environmental and medical control measures in the area of byssinosis; the development of a more comprehensive in-plant health service; continuation of examinations and research required by the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 and programs related to the recently enacted Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 which provides for extending health protection to the Nation's work force.

4. Radiological health.—This program is responsible for the control and prevention of radiation hazards to man. This is accomplished through basic and applied research on the sources, levels and effects of both ionizing and non-ionizing radiation as well as on means of protecting the public. The 1972 increase will provide for the expansion of in-plant and field surveys to determine compliance with performance standards and new and expanded projects to determine short-term and long-term effects of radiation exposure.

5. Community environmental management.—This program concentrates its efforts toward the human ecological aspects in the research and management of environmental conditions associated with man's home, neighborhood, metropolitan area and regional complexities. Assistance is provided Federal, State, and local communities or agencies through technical consultation, training, and planning guidance for safe and healthful environments.

6. Program direction and management services.—This includes top management and staff services for the National Center.

Federal funds are provided on a grant or loan basis to assist States, other public agencies, and nonprofit organizations in the construction and modernization of hospitals and other health facilities. Loans made to private, nonprofit health facilities are guaranteed and the interest on those loans is subsidized.

1. Construction grants.—Funds appropriated for construction grants will be directed toward construction of ambulatory care facilities including outpatient facilities, rehabilitation facilities, and mental health facilities. It is anticipated that the $85 million in budget authority requested for 1972 will generate about $255 million worth of health facility construction in approximately 250 projects. Most of these will be ambulatory care facilities which are needed to reduce in incidence of expensive hospitalization (and thereby the need for the more costly inpatient facilities) and achieve a better balance of community health care facilities.

2. Direct loans.—Construction of health facilities owned by public agencies (States, cities, counties, hospital districts, etc.) is supported by a program of direct loans. Loans will be made in exchange for public agency commitments in the form of bonds. Concurrent with the transaction between HEW and the public agency, the bonds will be sold by HEW to the Federal National Mortgage Association and other investors. Proceeds from these sales by HEW of obligations will be used to provide funds for the direct loans. No appropriation of Federal funds is required; however, it is necessary that contract authority of $30 million be authorized.

3. Interest subsidies.—Under the redirected Hill-Burton program, Federal support for construction of inpatient health facilities such as hospitals and long-term care centers would be available through guaranteed loans with interest subsidies for private, nonprofit hospitals and direct loans for facilities owned by public agencies. These types of facilities generate the income from fees for services and third-party payments necessary for repayment of mortgage loans. The $20,300 thousand requested for 1972 would fund the Loan Guarantee and Loan Fund from which interest subsidies, direct loans, discharge of guarantee obligations and other authorized expenses will be paid. The authorized cumulative total of $1 billion of loans would be guaranteed or directly made and subsidized.

4. District of Columbia medical facilities.—Grants and loans to assist public and private nonprofit medical facilities in the District of Columbia are authorized. No funds are being requested in 1972.

5. Program direction and technical assistance.—State agencies are provided technical assistance in determining additional facilities required and developing programs to meet the indicated needs. State plans are reviewed for conformance with planning criteria and guidelines. Assistance is provided to States and communities in the planning, programing, designing and functioning of hospital and other health facilities, and proposed projects are reviewed to determine eligibility and compliance with the law and regulations. In addition, the program provides program management assistance and consultation to health facility construction projects assisted under the FHA loan guarantee program, and under sections 202 and 214 of the Appalachian Redevelopment Administration and to rehabilitation facilities assisted under section 12 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act.

1. Medical care for special groups.—(a) Merchant seamen, lepers, and other primary beneficiaries.—In 1972, this activity will fund medical care for American merchant seamen, PHS Commissioned Corps personnel, and other beneficiaries. The budget places emphasis on the use of service agreements with private and Federal sources for such care and the conversion of the existing facilities to community use.

(b) Coast Guard.—This activity provides PHS personnel to staff infirmaries, dispensaries and sickbays at shore stations, air stations, and on board vessels. Contract care is also provided in civilian or other Federal facilities. As an adjunct service to insure the continuance of quality health care, this activity is also initiating programs in industrial, underwater and aviation medicine, and in environmental sanitation.

(c) Federal employees.—This activity provides surveys of and consultation to Federal agencies, Federal executive boards and associations, and Federal employee organizations, upon request, on the establishment and evaluation of Federal employee health activities. Occupational health programs are provided to Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis, on request. In 1972, an estimated 185,000 Federal employees will be able to avail themselves of health services in 90 health units operating under this activity.

2. Payment to Hawaii.—Grants are made to Hawaii to defray the cost of care and treatment of persons afflicted with leprosy. The average daily patient load is expected to be 170 in 1972, as compared with 172 in 1971 and 189 in 1970.

3. Personnel detailed to other agencies.—Medical, dental, and other professional personnel are detailed to other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis.

4. Program direction and management services.—This activity provides advice, guidance, direction, and management services to the above activities. Emphasis will be placed on contracting for the care of primary beneficiaries in 1972.

American people. The Center provides national leadership in collecting, analyzing, and disseminating essential statistical data which will be the basis for the development of sound national health policies and programs.

As necessary aspects of its activities, the Center tests existing statistical and survey techniques and develops new techniques; provides technical assistance to, and training for, State and local vital and health statistics personnel; participates in mutually beneficial programs of research in foreign countries; and maintains working relationships on a worldwide basis with a variety of health and health-related organizations.

1. National vital and health statistics.—The program of the National Center for Health Statistics comprises the major activities of the Public Health Service in the measurement of the health status of the Nation and in developing and applying optimum technical methods for the collection, processing, and analysis of health statistics. It includes: (a) The collection, compilation, analysis, and dissemination of statistics on births, deaths, fetal deaths, marriages and divorces, and other health data related to these basic vital events; (b) continuing surveys and special health statistics studies on the amount, distributions, and effects of illness and disability in the United States and the services received for or because of such conditions; (c) studies of health survey methods with a view toward their continued improvement; and (d) technical advice and assistance on the application of statistical methods in the health and medical fields.

2. Program direction and management services.—All of the program activities of the National Center for Health Statistics are centrally directed and managed. The Office of the Director establishes program priorities for the Center and provides centralized administrative management support. The Office of Program Planning and Evaluation reviews program plans and periodically evaluates overall effectiveness of program activities.

The Office of the Administrator provides a central staff needed in planning, directing, and administering the broad scope of program activities in the Health Services and Mental Health Administration (HSMHA). Staff assistance is provided the Administrator in formulating policy in the areas of grant-in-aid and contract administration, financial management, personnel, and general services.

In 1972, through continued emphasis on program evaluation, it is planned to assess the progress and the degree to which HSMHA programs are meeting the goals of the Secretary and the stated objectives of HSMHA. The Office of the Administrator plans, through stronger direction, to provide improved program coordination, eliminate overlap, and thus provide a more efficient and economic organization. It will continue to provide program direction and administrative services required for the management of the various HSMHA programs.

² Includes technical services for sanitation facilities constructed by HUD as follows: 1970, 1,861 houses; 1971, 900 houses; 1972, 900 houses.

1. Patient care.—This activity consists of the operation of 49 general hospitals and their outpatient clinics and two tuberculosis sanatoria and medical care under contract with non-Federal hospitals, clinics, private physicians, and dentists, as well as contractual arrangements with State and local health organizations.

A concerted effort will be made in 1972 to: (1) Improve the proficiency of the laboratory system as to quality and quantity of services provided, and (2) reduce the backlog of critical facility safety and hazard projects in the maintenance and repair program. In addition, expansion of the contract health care program to provide a moderate increase in general average daily patients is provided for in 1972. The 8% reduction in the inpatient load in hospitals of the Indian Health Service from 1970 to 1972 will result in an improved ratio of staff to patient and higher quality of care.

Workloads for the total program are expected to be as follows:

Direct care in Federal hospitals and clinics:
	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
Inpatient load by type of patient:

2. Field health services.—These include programs in sanitation, health education, nutrition, maternal and child health, school health, tuberculosis and other communicable disease control, medical social services, public health nursing, oral health, family planning, and mental health. The services are provided through health centers, clinics, and other field health units operated directly by the Indian Health Service, as well as through contractual arrangements with State and local health organizations. It is anticipated that a new school health center at Albuquerque, N. Mex.; and health stations at Noorvik, Alaska, and Savoonga, Alaska, will be completed in 1972. A program initiated in 1969 to train Indians as community health representatives providing educational, sanitation, and referral services to the Indian population will be continued and enlarged.

A community-based mental health program utilizing Indians as community mental health workers will be expanded in 1972 as will programs for improving maternal and child health with emphasis on family planning. Some expansion in the dental program is also provided.

Consistent with the President's message on Indians (July 8, 1970), requesting the allocation of an additional $10 million for Indian health programs, expanded support will be provided in 1971 and 1972 by the Office of Economic Opportunity, the Department of Labor, and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. These funds will be used to alleviate major Indian health problems such as otitis medias, mental health, alcoholism, maternal and child health; as well as expand Indian community health projects and develop Indian health manpower.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1969, $1,014 thousand; 1970, $5,060 thousand; 1971, $3,385 thousand; 1972, $1,449 thousand.

1. Medical stockpile.—The goal of this activity is to provide essential medical material for civilian needs in time of disaster. Medical supplies and equipment have been assembled into emergency packaged disaster hospitals which are located throughout the United States in affiliation with local community hospitals. In 1972, 2,163 such packaged disaster hospitals will be pre-positioned throughout the Nation. Selective medical supplies have been placed in community hospitals to meet heavy disaster medical care workloads. The estimate for 1972 supports a program for medical stockpile inventories.

2. Community preparedness.—Programs are inaugurated and maintained to support the preparation of national emergency health and medical plans, and the development of preparedness action projects to achieve a continuity of health services necessary to meet all conditions of a national emergency. The estimate for 1972 provides for a moderate program to assist States and communities during disaster situations; continue the development of plans and operational capability for civilian health manpower as well as utilization and distribution of health resources; develop and initiate disaster management services; and continue the operation of training programs at the State and local level.

3. Program direction and management services.—Total program control is provided for the organization and planning of programs that will afford adequate medical care for individuals in medical emergencies. The estimate for 1972 provides for a continuing activity that furnishes program direction, coordination and management services to carry out the total emergency health preparedness program. Working relationships are to be maintained with professional organizations and other Government agencies for the development of an effective disaster readiness program for the civilian population.

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

The National Institutes of Health is the primary arm of the U.S. Government in the support of biomedical research, education, and communications. Most of the advances in medical science in recent years have benefited either directly or indirectly from the activities of NIH, whose mission is investigating basic life processes, advancing the capability for the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of disease, and supporting the development of adequate health research, educational, and communications resources.

In 1972, the NIH research institutes will initiate or expand activities in several high priority program areas. The National Cancer Institute will expand research on viruses as a cause of cancer, continuing efforts to develop a vaccine or other means for preventing virus-induced cancers. The National Heart and Lung Institute will expand research in the area of arteriosclerosis and pulmonary diseases in an effort to predict and control the relationship between risk factors and the incidence of diseases of the heart and lungs. The National Institute of Dental Research will expand the efforts of the national caries program dedicated to the prevention of dental caries. Expansion in the study of biological effects of environmental pollutants will be continued—the laboratory space available for this research will double, enabling the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences to initiate new programs in this research area. A major increase is planned for the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development for research in the biological, behavioral, and social processes of reproduction and contraception; and the study of diseases and other factors affecting the child under the age of six. The National Eye Institute will, in its second full year of operation, continue its research efforts in the diseases and disorders of the eye. The National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases will continue its activities in artificial kidney/chronic uremia research, and expand its research efforts in collaboration with the Indian Health Service at the Phoenix (Ariz.) Medical Center. The National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke will maintain a substantial level of research in the diseases and disorders of the nervous and sensory systems. The National Institute of General Medical Sciences will support research in the basic medical sciences, as well as such specialized areas as anesthesiology, radiology, and trauma. The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases will continue to provide support for research in respiratory, viral, and allergic diseases, and transplantation immunology. The research training grant programs of all Research Institutes reflect a reduction representing a transfer of institutional support funds from the categorical institutes to the institutional support program administered by the Bureau of Health Manpower Education (described in paragraphs that follow) giving the schools greater flexibility in the use of these funds. Research Resources will provide additional funds for operating general clinical research centers and primate centers. The Division of Biologics Standards and the Fogarty International Center will be continued at about the 1971 level.

The missions of the research institutes and divisions are carried out through the following funding mechanisms: Research grants are awarded to individual researchers in support of projects which have been reviewed by study groups composed of accomplished scientists, recommended for their high scientific merit and approved by disease-oriented national advisory councils. Fellowships are awarded to promising individuals preparing for a research career in the biomedical sciences. Training grants are awarded to academic or research institutions which have demonstrated the ability to design and conduct successful training programs in one or more of the biomedical sciences.

In addition to grants, the research institutes and divisions of NIH support biomedical research through direct operations which can be categorized as follows: Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in the institutes' laboratory facilities and in a commonly shared clinical center facility. Collaborative research and development projects are conducted by NIH researchers in collaboration with other Federal and non-Federal institutions largely through contracts and thus are strongly oriented toward the solution of specific health problems in areas where the state of knowledge is sufficiently advanced to permit a more directed approach. Other activities under direct operations include biometry, epidemiology, and field studies, international research, and biologics standards, and will be discussed under the various appropriations. Funds are also included for program direction, research support and service activities, and review and approval of grants.

In 1972, increased efforts will be made to expand the supply of trained health manpower by assisting the institutions responsible for health education to expand enrollments. The Bureau of Health Manpower Education provides a national focus for health manpower activities, and supports programs designed to enlarge and improve the pool of qualified health manpower through institutional support grants, student assistance awards, and research grants and direct operations which evaluate and support special studies related to health manpower requirements and utilization. Construction grants are provided on an individual project basis to public and other nonprofit agencies or organizations to assist in the construction of new facilities and the expansion, rehabilitation and modernization of existing facilities for teaching, for research in the sciences related to health, and for medical library facilities. The National Library of Medicine serves as a national resource for biomedical information and as a focus for national planning to improve communications in the health sciences. Appropriations for Buildings and facilities support construction, renovation, and maintenance of NIH laboratory, clinical and administrative facilities while that for Office of the Director supports salaries and expenses for the staff of the Director's office, NIH.

The biomedical research and health manpower programs which will be initiated or expanded in 1972 will be supported largely through research grants, contracts and direct operations of the research institutes and the Bureau of Health Manpower Education. The National Cancer Institute conducts, fosters, and assists research and training directed toward preventing, diagnosing, treating, and controlling cancer in man. These objectives are pursued directly within Government laboratory and clinical facilities and through universities, non-profit research organizations, and commercial concerns supported with grants and contracts and include both laboratory and clinical studies.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 954 grants will be supported in 1972 as compared to 1,002 in 1971 and 1,005 in 1970. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants and specialized research centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 142 postdoctoral and special fellowships will be supported in 1972 as compared to 160 in 1971 and 175 in 1970. Also some 74 career award and career development fellowships will be supported in 1972 as compared to 86 in 1971 and 79 in 1970.

(c) Training.—Grants are awarded to accredited schools for training in such fields as surgery, pathology, radiobiology, radiotherapy, and internal medicine; and grants are awarded to research training centers for individual traineeships. The following table summarizes those grants:

Graduate training.....	85	74	66
Cancer clinical training.....	100	83	59

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Research includes laboratory research in the fields of biology, biochemistry, and physiology; and clinical research in the fields of surgery, immunology, radiation, dermatology, pathology, and metabolism.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Research is conducted in the areas of etiology and chemotherapy. This activity includes the breast cancer and lung cancer task forces. Research is conducted through targeted programs utilizing the contract mechanism as well as investigations carried on directly in Government laboratories and clinical facilities. The programs are focused on the causes of cancers and their occurrence patterns and prevention, as well as finding the best methods of treating cancer through the screening, testing and clinical evaluation of drugs.

This is the first time in the budget schedules that the funding to the Veterans Administration for cancer research is included under project contracts rather than by an allocation to Veterans Administration. Separate schedules on object classification and personnel summary for the VA are no longer being used. This is an administrative change in the method of financing rather than a change in the type of research work being conducted.

NATIONAL HEART AND LUNG INSTITUTE—Continued

The National Heart and Lung Institute conducts, fosters, and supports research, development, and training programs that are designed to produce, test, and apply new knowledge as to the cause, prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of diseases of the heart, lungs, and circulatory system. Research and training are fostered intramurally by scientists working in the Institute's laboratories in Bethesda and extramurally through grants and contracts to scientific institutions. Programs are designed to develop and to coordinate the useful application of both prevention and treatment of cardiovascular and respiratory diseases.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 1,533 grants will be supported in 1972 as compared to 1,563 in 1971, and 1,515 in 1970. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants, specialized research centers, and the heart cooperative drug study.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 278 awards will be supported in 1972 as compared with 288 in 1971 and 363 in 1970.

(c) Training.—For undergraduate cardiovascular training, funds in 1972 will provide assistance to 116 schools of medicine, osteopathy, and public health, as compared with 116 in 1971 and 115 in 1970. Funds will also provide for 243 grants for graduate cardiovascular and pulmonary research and clinical training for 972 trainees. Comparable numbers of grants and trainees are 255 and 1,020 in 1971, and 245 and 980 in 1970.

The National Institute of Dental Research conducts and supports basic, clinical, and applied research and research training, in the causes, diagnosis, prevention, and cure of oral diseases and disorders: (1) conducts intramural laboratory, clinical and field research, (2) supports dental and medically related research and research training by assisting individuals, universities, and agencies through grants-in-aid for research projects, training, fellowships, and dental research institutes, and (3) conducts and supports collaborative and developmental research programs aimed at specific dental problems where major advance seems clearly possible.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Research grants support fundamental, clinical, and applied research studies in such areas as dental caries, periodontal disease, oral-facial growth and development, and dental restorative materials. Support is furnished for studies designed to advance scientific frontiers and exploit emerging research opportunities, including: (1) investigation of the interplay of host, dietary, and microbiotic factors in dental caries; (2) development of more effective therapeutic and preventive measures in periodontal disease; (3) development of treatment procedures and determination of preventive measures for oral-facial anomalies and; (4) work on the immediate problems of dental treatment through development of new and improved restorative materials and clinical methods. In addition, support is furnished for clinical research centers, dental research institutes, and general research support grants. Approximately 208 project grants will be supported in 1972, compared with 183 in 1971 and 196 in 1970.

(b) Fellowships.—Funds for fellowships are used for support of clinical and basic research training. Applications under this program are for special fellowships, post-doctoral fellowships, career development and career awards. Eighty-two fellowships will be supported in 1972, compared with 87 in 1971 and 102 in 1970.

(c) Training.—Training funds are the principal means of meeting the need for dental research and academic personnel in the dental schools to teach clinical and basic sciences, and to conduct research. Approximately 81 grants will be supported in 1972, compared with 85 in 1971 and 88 in 1970.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research studies conducted in Institute facilities are concerned with the causes, treatment, control, and prevention of such dental diseases and disorders as caries, periodontal disease, oral-facial anomalies, and oral cancer. Three primary approaches are used: (1) basic research directed at the acquisition of new knowledge as a means of solving dental health problems; (2) field studies and clinical trials of new therapeutic and prevention concepts coming out of basic research; and (3) further studies on the definition and distribution of oral-facial diseases and disorders on an epidemiologic or geographic basis. Much of this research will make direct contributions to the recently initiated National Caries program.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—The programs in this activity involve contracts with public and private research and development organizations. Primary objectives include the development of new and improved dental restorative materials and support of the National Caries program.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—These activities are concerned with the planning, conduct and analysis of epidemiological and field investigations concerning such matters as prevalence of oral disease, and effectiveness of new or improved methods of diagnosis, control, and prevention. A number of the studies conducted will be integral parts of the National Caries program.

The mission of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases is to conduct research on the causes, characteristics, prevention, control, and treatment of diseases believed to be caused by infectious agents—including bacteria, fungi, viruses, and parasites—or by abnormalities in the body's immune mechanisms, such as allergies.

The research programs are comprised of three major problem areas, infectious diseases, allergic and immune disorders, and other disease related problems. Approximately 68% of the major research budget will be utilized for the study of infectious diseases, 21% will be allocated to the study of allergic and immune disorders, and 11% for other disease-related problems.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Funds available for 1972 will support approximately 1,239 awards compared to 1,247 awards in 1971 and 1,258 awards in 1970. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants, clinical research centers, and international centers for medical research and training.

(b) Fellowships.—An estimated 203 awards will be made in 1972. This compares with 192 awards in 1971 and 238 awards in 1970.

(c) Training.—Funds in 1972 will provide approximately 165 grants to train 990 individuals. This compares with 163 grants and 1,002 individuals in 1971, and 151 grants and 906 individuals in 1970.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—The institute research effort embraces both basic and applied research. Laboratory scientists and clinical investigators at NIH and field installations are directing their efforts to the discovery and exploitation of new knowledge leading to the eventual prevention and treatment of diseases caused by infection with micro-organisms or abnormal immunological mechanisms. The diseases under intensive study are those caused by viruses, bacteria, mycoplasma, fungi, protozoa, and helminths.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Primary objectives include translation of significant basic research data into practical achievements of clinical applicability in immunologic and infectious diseases. The program also conducts and supports developmental research in the prevention, control, and treatment of diseases caused by infectious agents including bacteria, viruses, and parasites and abnormalities in the body's immune mechanisms.

The National Institute of Child Health and Human Development conducts and supports research and training programs spanning the entire life cycle from conception through old age. This approach cuts across disciplinary lines and covers both normal and abnormal development. Research is carried out by scientists working in the laboratories of the Institute in Bethesda and in Baltimore at the Gerontology Research Center and through grants and contracts with academic institutions and other nonprofit and profitmaking research organizations.

The Institute's primary areas of concentration relate to problems of both a scientific nature as well as social importance and urgency. These include family planning and the attendant consequences of overpopulation, the healthy development of the unborn and newborn, the intellectual and physical development of the young, the prevention and amelioration of mental retardation, and an understanding of the aging process.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 760 grants will be supported in 1972, as compared to 732 in 1971 and 800 in 1970. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants and mental retardation research centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 65 postdoctoral and special fellowships will be supported in 1972, as compared to 75 in 1971 and 86 in 1970. Also, some 108 career awards and career development fellowships will be supported in 1972, as compared to 116 in 1971 and 113 in 1970.

(c) Training.—Approximately 100 training grants will be supported in 1972, as compared to 116 in 1971 and 131 in 1970.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in five major program areas of child health and human development. Population and reproduction research—reproductive biology, endocrinology, and ecology. Perinatal biology and infant mortality—maternal-child interactions, maturation of motor and behavioral systems, nutrition, and development. Growth and development—neurophysiology, neurochemistry, and nutrition. Adult development and aging—cellular biology, biochemistry, physiology, and psychology. Mental retardation—biochemistry, neurophysiology, and behavioral research.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—This supplements the Institute's five research programs primarily through the contract mechanism. The research conducted is usually Institute initiated and is directed toward gaps in existing research or to expand on current studies of either the intramural program or the research grant program. This activity provides one of the most effective ways for coordinating program development in the five program areas. The main thrust of the Institute's population research program is accomplished through contract efforts within this activity. In addition to the contract activities, program liaison is maintained and advanced through support of interdisciplinary research conferences and symposia and through scientific information centers.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—Through contracted research this activity supports the Institute's scientific staff in planning and conducting studies dealing with the incidence, distribution, and control of health problems in certain populations. It supports development of more effective and reliable means for measuring health problems, collects and analyzes health data, and makes statistical studies for use in initiating and evaluating scientific programs.

(d) Training activities.—This activity represents the NICHD Career Development Program designed to provide the necessary cross-disciplinary training required in the basic research programs of the Institute.

The National Eye Institute conducts and supports research and training programs to develop new knowledge on the diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of diseases of the eye and visual system. Research is carried out by scientists working in the laboratories of the Institute in Bethesda and through grants and contracts with academic institutions and other nonprofit and profitmaking research organizations. Programs are planned and coordinated to wage a concerted, multidisciplinary attack against corneal and retinal disease, glaucoma, cataract, and other blinding or disabling visual disorders.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—In 1972 the Institute will support approximately 380 grants compared to 391 in 1971 and 350 in 1970. Projects range from basic investigations of the visual system to clinical applications of knowledge developed in the laboratory. Glaucoma, corneal disease, retinal disorders, uveitis, and infectious diseases are among the conditions under investigation. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants and 10 vision clinical research centers.

(b) Fellowships.—Fellowships are awarded to provide postdoctoral research training to individual investigators working in the field of vision research. Awardees are provided an opportunity for training in a wide variety of scientific disciplines related to research on the eye and visual system. Approximately 52 fellowships will be supported in 1972 as compared to 123 in 1971 and 57 in 1970.

(c) Training.—Graduate training grants are awarded to academic institutions to establish or improve existing programs to prepare more advanced laboratory scientists for research careers in disorders of the visual system. Approximately 43 grants will be awarded in 1972 as compared to 48 in 1971 and 52 in 1970.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical studies conducted by Institute staff are directed toward increasing our knowledge and understanding of specific vision disorders such as retinal disease, glaucoma, cataracts, and corneal disease. A close association between laboratory and clinic facilitates rapid and direct application of new knowledge to the treatment of eye patients.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—A small program of contract support to public and private research and development organizations has been started to exploit areas of outstanding promise for rapid advances in research and to accelerate the application of new knowledge to the treatment of visual disorders.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—This activity supports epidemiological investigations of the incidence and prevalence of eye disease, and assistance to in-house and extramural programs in the design of biostatistical studies of visual disorders.

The National Institutes of Environmental Health Sciences was established in response to the need to increase the store of fundamental knowledge and understanding of environmental agents as hazards immediately or ultimately affecting man's health. The results of this research are promptly made available to agencies having responsibility for the environmental monitoring, standards-setting and control of all of its phases or compartments. The initial approach to determine the magnitude and significance of the hazard to man's health from long-term exposures to low-level concentrations of chemical, physical, and biological agents in the environment; and second, to elucidate the underlying mechanisms of adverse response with the hope that principles and generalizations will be identified to provide a scientific base for criteria upon which control agencies could set standards for protective and preventive measures.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 126 regular research grants will be supported in 1972 as compared to 86 in 1971 and 88 in 1970. This activity supports research on the phenomena associated with the source, distribution, mode of entry, and effect of environmental agents on biological systems through grants to universities, research institutes, and other public or private nonprofit institutions.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 19 awards will be supported in 1972 as compared to 19 in 1971 and 20 in 1970. Under the fellowship program, postdoctoral, special and research career development awards are made to graduate students and scientists for training in the field of environmental health sciences.

(c) Training.—Approximately 41 grants will be supported in 1972 as compared to 47 in 1971 and 41 in 1970. The graduate research training program supports the availability of high quality training opportunities in environmental health. The goal is to increase the number of highly qualified scientists primarily concerned with environmental health.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—This activity supports the in-house research programs in environmental health sciences at the National Environmental Health Sciences Center in the Research Triangle Park, N.C. Included are research efforts in cell biology, pharmacology and toxicology, analytical and synthetic chemistry, biophysics and biomedical instrumentation, animal science and technology, pathologic physiology, epidemiology, biometry, epidemiologic pathology, and scientific information, as well as the supporting services for these laboratories and branches.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—This activity supplements and complements the Institute's intramural research program. Research in this activity is supported through contracts in collaboration with other Federal agencies, university research centers, and industrial research organizations.

The objective of the Fogarty International Center is to administer programs of advanced study and related international activities to provide a new dimension in the identification, exploration, and solution of biomedical science problems. Specifically, the Center administers a scholars-in-residence program inviting outstanding individuals to live in residence while devoting their energies to the examination, discussion, and documentation of problems and their solution; the international postdoctoral fellowship program which utilizes the talents and experience of scientists and investigators of other countries for application to the urgent research problems which now confront American society; and the NIH portion of the special foreign currency program. Additional programs administered by the Center include its advanced study program consisting of conferences, seminars, and workshops where specialists from many countries are invited to participate in meetings sharing their expertise to facilitate the progress of biomedical research and the development of new knowledge, and the International Visitors Center program where foreign and visiting American scientists may receive assistance ranging from day-to-day problems to arrangements for scientific exchanges and interaction with NIH scientists. Support is also provided to the Gorgas Memorial Laboratory.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Funds will support the Gorgas Memorial Institute. In addition, funds are provided for scientific evaluation.

The Bureau of Health Manpower Education administers and supports educational and training programs which produce workers in the health and allied health professions. The Bureau administers grants and loans and conducts operations which promote and support the extension and improvement of the Nation's educational process to increase the supply and improve the quality of health manpower. It assesses current and future health manpower supply, distribution, and requirements, particularly as they affect education and training; and serves as a clearinghouse for information on all aspects of health manpower in the Nation.

1. Medical, dental, and related health professions.—The objective of alleviating the shortages of professional health manpower is pursued by providing financial assistance to health professions institutions and their students. This assistance is provided through four mechanisms:

Institutional support.—Institutional grants are awarded on a formula basis to health professions schools in order to strengthen their base of financial support, thereby encouraging increases in enrollments and graduates, and improving the quality of their educational programs. Special project grants supply broad-range assistance to schools with potential to increase enrollments and to help alleviate the difficulties of schools in serious financial straits, as well as to enable schools to experiment with programs designed to increase the quality of trained personnel. A significant increase is provided in 1972 for enrollment increases and to assist schools in dire financial need. The numbers of schools receiving support are:

	Institutional			Special project

Dental.....	51	53	55	35	38	42
Other health professions.....	103	108	108	17	16	17

Student assistance.—Health professions scholarships and loans enable deserving students from low-income families to pursue their education. Schools make scholarship awards to students who, in the judgment of the school, have an exceptional financial need. The student loan program concentrates on making loans to students from lower income families. Loans from the revolving fund are not planned for 1971 or 1972. Numbers of recipients (including revolving fund recipients in 1970):

Dental Fellowship grants are awarded to candidates pursuing advanced degrees in public health administration, computer technology, bioengineering, dental health delivery systems, dental economics, and education research. In 1972, 11 fellows will be supported, the same number as supported in 1971.

Construction.—Grants are made to public and other nonprofit schools, agencies, and organizations for the construction of health professions teaching facilities and of multipurpose and graduate facilities. The $96.7 million requested for 1972, assuming that the average Federal participation will be approximately 60%, will provide a $161.2 million program for the year. From the beginning of the program in 1964 to July 1, 1970, a total of 198 projects have been awarded with Federal obligations of approximately $675 million, providing for the construction of an estimated 5,449 first-year places. The funds requested for 1972 will provide an additional 375 to 440 new first-year places in the Nation's health professions schools.

Educational grants and contracts, and direct operations.—Support is focused on innovation and experimentation in medical and dental education and on manpower and educational research. Six research training grants in 1972 will support students working in the areas of oral epidemiology, dental education, and sociology in dental public health. Five grants will be supported in 1972 as in 1971 for continuing education systems which deliver new knowledge to the practicing dentist and dental assistant. The current Dental Auxiliary Utilization program, designed to teach students the effective utilization of a chairside assistant has produced a more productive practitioner; financial support for this current program will undergo gradual withdrawal and be redirected, at an increased level of funding, to a program which will provide dental students with training in expanded functions and expanded auxiliary management—the team concept of clinical dentistry. This new approach should expand productivity considerably.

2. Nursing.—To help alleviate the shortage of nurses, financial assistance is provided to nursing institutions and students, through the following programs.

Institutional support.—Special projects for the improvement of nurse training are providing the impetus for schools to initiate new methods in nursing education designed to improve the quality and increase the number of nurses available in the Nation. Funds requested for 1972 will support 193 projects in such areas as utilization of faculty, methods of instruction, curriculum revision, and enrollment increases, and in assisting nursing schools in serious financial straits.

Student assistance.—Nurse scholarships and loans encourage and assist qualified young people with exceptional financial need to undertake education for nursing. Numbers of recipients (including revolving fund recipients in 1970):

	Scholarships			Loans
	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
Student nurses.....	10,727	17,000	17,000	17,544	24,400	13,700

Nursing fellowship grants are awarded to prepare professional nurses for independent research, to collaborate in interdisciplinary research, and to direct community health research. In 1972, 123 fellows will be supported.

Professional traineeships.—Traineeships support the graduate and specialized preparation of professional nurses as teachers, administrators, and supervisors. Funds requested in 1972 will provide approximately 2,205 long-term traineeships compared to 2,000 in 1971. In addition, 1,900 nurses will receive short-term intensive training as in 1971.

Construction.—Grants are made to public and other nonprofit schools, agencies, and organizations for the construction of teaching facilities for nurses. The $8 million requested for 1972, assuming that the average Federal participation will be approximately 58%, will provide a $14 million program for the year. From the beginning of the program in 1965 to July 1, 1970, a total of 134 projects have been awarded with Federal obligations of approximately $80 million, providing for the construction of an estimated 5,691 first-year places and the maintenance of 18,300 student places. The funds requested for 1972 will provide an additional 500 new first-year places.

Educational grants and contracts, and direct operations.—Educational research projects in such areas as nursing practice and patient care are supported and result in modifications to and development of nurse educational and training programs. Funds requested in 1972 will support 41 nurse research projects. A nurse scientist graduate training grant program advances nursing and other health-related research by increasing the number of research scientists with a nursing background. Funds requested in 1972 will support seven grants begun in prior years. An increase of $1 million in contract funds will enable 15 additional States to add to their nursing work force by initiating refresher training programs.

3. Public health.—Changes in the concepts of health services delivery have created needs for new types of public health personnel when existing types are already in short supply. The following mechanisms are currently being used in an attempt to alleviate the shortages:

Institutional support.—Formula grants are awarded to accredited schools of public health for the purpose of assisting them in providing comprehensive professional training, specialized consultative services, and technical assistance in public health fields and in public health administration at the State and local levels. Project grants for graduate training in public health are awarded to schools of public health and to other public or nonprofit private institutions to strengthen or expand the graduate or specialized training in public health which they provide. Eighty-seven projects will be supported in 1972.

Professional traineeships.—Traineeships support the graduate and specialized preparation of students in public health, most of whom are employed by State or local health agencies representing such health disciplines as medicine, dentistry, nursing, and engineering. Types of training included are postprofessional, long-term, academic training; short-term training to update the skills of current public health professionals; residency training in preventive medicine and dental public health; and apprenticeships for medical and dental students in public health training.

Direct operations.—Grants programing will emphasize consultation with schools and professional organizations which can most readily utilize resources affecting priority areas of nutrition, maternal and child health and preventive services to people in disadvantaged situations.

4. Allied health.—More general use of allied health workers in this country requires more efficient utilization of our present training capacities and experimentation with, and development of, new and improved ways of training and using these personnel. The following mechanisms are directed to these ends:

Institutional support.—Special improvement grants will be made to allied health training centers offering the greatest comparative potential for expansion of allied health manpower output through enrollment increases in established curriculums, planning and establishing new programs, shortening curriculums, and developing coordinated programs to conserve faculty and facilities. The 1972 program represents a shift from the formula grant to a project grant mechanism and will allow concentration of resources in high priority areas while providing continuity of support to schools previously receiving entitlement funds.

Professional traineeships.—Traineeships support students preparing to teach or to serve in an administrative, supervisory, or specialist capacity in the allied health disciplines. Funds requested in 1972 will support approximately 600 long-term trainees and 2,000 short-term trainees.

Educational grants and contracts, and direct operations.—Funds requested for special projects in 1972, an increase of $6,250 thousand, will support 75 awards to a greater variety of newly eligible grantees—agencies, institutions, and organizations, in addition to training centers—for developing, demonstrating, or evaluating interdisciplinary training programs; new teaching methods; new types of health manpower; equivalency and proficiency testing mechanisms; and special programs to reach special groups such as returning veterans with experience in a health field. Increases in contract funds and staff will emphasize such program efforts as equivalency and proficiency testing, the utilization of returning veterans in civilian health occupations, and responsiveness to local needs for health manpower through strengthened regional office resources.

5. Program direction and manpower analysis.—The Bureau of Health Manpower Education guides, supports, and evaluates health manpower programs; designs proposals for new or revised programs; coordinates improved manpower data gathering and reporting activities; conducts statistical surveys on the size, composition, and related characteristics of the existing health manpower supply and the national requirements for health manpower; and maintains an inventory of all health manpower educational programs in the Nation.

The National Library of Medicine serves as a national resource for biomedical information and as a focus for national planning to improve communications in the health sciences. Toward these ends the library conducts programs to provide: (a) Interlibrary loan, reference, and bibliographic services to units of the national system of libraries and information centers; (b) bibliographic and literature searches through the computer-based MEDLARS (Medical Literature Analysis and Retrieval System) and its decentralized satellites; (c) specialized information services including development of a toxicology information exchange to meet national needs for information relating to the effects of chemical agents on man; (d) audiovisual resources and services and the development of new media for medical and health-related education through the National Medical Audiovisual Center; (e) systems engineering, design, and implementation of a national, multimedia biomedical communications network for the most timely and efficient delivery of biomedical information to health professionals; and (f) administration of support programs authorized by the Medical Library Assistance Act for the improvement of communications in the health sciences.

1. Medical library assistance.—This activity provides funds for six categories of support as follows:

Training grants.—Funds available in 1972 will support approximately 11 awards compared to the same number in 1971 and 10 in 1970.

Special scientific project grants.—Three awards will be made in 1972 compared to one each in 1971 and 1970.

Research grants.—An estimated 15 projects will receive support in 1972 compared to 16 in 1971 and 34 in 1970.

Library resources grants.—Approximately 405 medical libraries will receive grants in 1972 compared to 534 in 1971 and 397 in 1970.

Regional medical library grants and contracts.—In 1972, 10 regional medical libraries will receive continued support, compared to the same number in 1971 and eight in 1970.

Publications support grants.—An estimated 19 awards will be made in 1972 compared with 18 in 1971 and 13 in 1970.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Lister Hill National Center for Biomedical Communications.—The Center applies existing technology to the development of biomedical communications systems aimed at improving health education, medical research, and the delivery of health services. The Center is responsible for developing a national biomedical communications network, which involves identification of existing resources available to the network, demonstration of remote access devices to link the physician in his office to a central information source and experimentation in telephone-dial access to diagnostic and therapeutic procedure messages. The Center also serves as the Department's focal point for coordinating health communications systems and network projects. In 1972, the Center will work toward the design of automated coordination systems utilizing reporting-at-the-source and on-line retrieval; individualized education and information centers to serve medical professionals regardless of location; and experimental use of satellite communications to reach remotely located patients, practitioners, and medical institutions.

(b) National Medical Audiovisual Center.—The Center will continue to emphasize the collection, cataloging, and distribution of biomedical audiovisuals and consultation concerning their use in education. The new cooperative media program, through which the Center works with teaching institutions and professional groups to develop innovative teaching aids, will receive increased emphasis.

(c) Library operations.—Under this activity the library acquires and maintains an archival and reference collection of the world's biomedical literature and provides bibliographic, reference, and loan services through a network of regional and local medical libraries. The NLM serves both as the mid-Atlantic regional library and as a backup for the entire network and supports the development and operation of MEDLARS, a computer-based bibliographic information storage and retrieval system now undergoing conversion to a second-generation system. The new system (MEDLARS II) will not only continue to provide the data base for "Index Medicus" and other NLM bibliographic publications, but will provide for the eventual automation of most of the library's acquisition, cataloging, circulation, and reference services.

(d) Toxicology information.—Established in the NLM in 1968, this program is responsible for developing and operating a computer-based information storage and retrieval system concerning the effects of chemical compounds on man and his environment. Activities in 1972 will include the creation of a new MEDLARS-based journal, "Health Effects of Environmental Pollutants," using existing abstracts and summaries to make bio-environmental toxicology information more readily available to scientists and public officials and the further development of an automated toxicology information storage and retrieval system.

(e) Review and approval of grants.—This activity provides the administrative and scientific staff responsible for managing the six grant programs authorized by the Medical Library Assistance Extension Act of 1970 and the international activities of the NLM which are funded by the scientific activities overseas appropriation.

(f) Program direction.—This activity supports the staffs of the immediate Office of the Director, the Office of Administrative Management, and the Office of Public Information and Publications Management. In addition, it provides reimbursement to the NIH Management Fund for centrally furnished administrative services and supports the costs of plant maintenance services.

Note.—Excludes $10,674 in 1972 for activities transferred to Scientific activities overseas (special foreign currency program), Environmental Protection Agency, 1970, $220; 1971, $3,500.

The scientific activities overseas program is supported by excess U.S.-owned foreign currencies derived from the sale of surplus agricultural commodities, as authorized by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954.

Activities are directed toward the prevention, control, and treatment of specific disease and health problems in the United States and abroad; improving the organization and delivery of health services; and the translation of research publications to encourage and enhance international communication in the health sciences. The program also supports the interchange of experts, training, and international health-related conferences. Projects funded under the program are collaborative in nature and are of mutual interest to the United States and the host country.

In 1972 new projects will be initiated and additional support will be provided for ongoing research in eight countries. New lines of investigation will be directed toward solutions to the domestic problems of environmental health, the supply and utilization of health manpower, mental health, nutrition, and consumer protection. Biomedical research and the program of selective critical review and translation of scientific health publications will continue to be major priority areas. Emphasis will be placed on institutional development in host countries through a coordinated multidisciplinary approach to specific program areas such as neurophysiology and family planning.

The Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-751) amended title VII, part C of the Public Health Service Act to establish a revolving fund from which schools may obtain loans to provide loans to health professions students. This amendment supplements the existing Federal capital contributions method of funding student loans as authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act, Public Law 88-129.

The first year that student loans were awarded from the revolving fund was 1968. In that year, approximately 12,000 health professions students received loans totaling $11,541 thousand.

In 1969, approximately 11,550 health professions students received loans totaling $12,197 thousand.

In 1970, approximately 5,728 health professions students received loans totaling $6,479 thousand.

In 1971 and 1972 no new loans will be made as the fund will be depleted.

In 1972, $215 thousand is required for payment of interest due the Government National Mortgage Association for notes held by private interests.

Provision is also made for the following payments:

1. $604 thousand owed to the Government National Mortgage Association in 1972, on $11,500 thousand of pledged notes, carrying an interest rate of 5.25%.

2. $1,400 thousand owed to the U.S. Treasury in 1972, on $18,671 thousand of appropriated funds loaned to schools. Estimated Treasury rate for 1972 will be 7.5%.

3. $213 thousand owed to schools for cancellations under section 744(b) of the Public Health Service Act.

The Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-751) amended section 827 of the Public Health Service Act to establish a revolving fund to provide loans to student nurses. The amendment supplements the existing Federal capital contribution method of funding student loans as authorized by the Nurse Training Act, Public Law 88-581.

The first year that student loans were awarded from the revolving fund was in 1968. In that year, approximately 9,100 students received student nurses loans totaling $6,581 thousand.

In 1969, approximately 8,636 student nurses received loans totaling $5,113 thousand.

In 1970, approximately 6,074 student nurses received loans totaling $4,252 thousand.

In 1971 and 1972 no new loans will be made as the fund will be depleted.

In 1972, $17 thousand is required for payments of interest due the Government National Mortgage Association for notes held by private interests.

Provision is also made for the following payments:

1. $92 thousand owed to Government National Mortgage Association in 1972, on $1,750 thousand of pledged notes, carrying an interest rate of 5.25%.

2. $919 thousand owed to the U.S. Treasury in 1972, on $12,256 thousand of appropriated funds loaned to schools. Estimated Treasury rate for 1972 will be 7.5%.

3. $540 thousand owed to schools for cancellations under section 827(b) of the Public Health Service Act.

The National Institutes of Health Management Fund was established to facilitate the conduct of operations of the National Institutes of Health which are financed by two or more appropriations. The activities of the fund are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. Formulas for determining the contribution from each institute are designed to reflect utilization of services performed by the management fund. Taken into consideration are such factors as the number of activated beds in the clinical center, number of laboratory workers, total personnel, and dollar level of grants and direct research funds obligated by the institute. A small portion of the funds comes from reimbursements from outside sources, and from other Government agencies.

The centralized organizations of the National Institutes of Health provide supporting services to all programs as follows:

1. Computer services provide a central scientific and computational resource for the NIH programs. The Division plans and conducts an extensive interdisciplinary research and development program in which the concepts and methods of computer science, engineering, and mathematics are applied to biomedical problems. These research efforts provide a solid technical foundation for computational efforts at NIH and create new tools for use in biomedical research, education, and the application of health knowledge.

2. Research services provide the central administration and operation of services for the conduct of research activities such as providing laboratory animals, culture media, and glassware; design and fabrication of laboratory instrumentation; operating the NIH medical reference library including the translation of medical literature; scientific photography and medical arts; and environmental engineering services.

3. Engineering services provide engineering, architectural, craft, and labor services required for the: (1) Operation and maintenance of the NIH facility; (2) planning of NIH facilities and improvements; (3) administration and inspection of NIH construction performed under direct contract; and (4) liaison and inspection of projects administered by both the Facilities Engineering and Construction Agency, DHEW, and the Public Buildings Service of the GSA.

4. Clinical services consist of the operation of the 516-bed clinical center together with the laboratory space required for the care and treatment of research patients.

5. Grant review and approval initiates and develops recommendations and provides staff support services for the National Institutes of Health in formulating Public Health Service grants and awards policies and procedures relating to research, center, and training grants and fellowship programs; assigns grant and award applications to the appropriate bureau of the Public Health Service; assigns applications within the National Institutes of Health to institutes and divisions and to initial review groups, and provides for the scientific review of applications by the National Institutes of Health study sections and review committees; conducts negotiations with grantee institutions, makes studies, and provides advisory and consultative services to NIH institutes and divisions relative to PHS grant policy and NIH-wide management matters; collects, stores, retrieves, analyzes, and evaluates management and program data needed by the National Institutes of Health in the management of its extramural programs.

6. Administrative services provides for: Plant and office services, including cleaning of space; mail, messenger, telephone, and other communication services; operation and maintenance of motor vehicles; guards, firefighting, and other plant protection and safety services; and procurement and supply management.

The NIH service and supply fund provides a single means for consolidated financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers. Public Law 170, 83d Congress (67 Stat. 254), increased the capitalization of the fund as follows: "Service and Supply Fund: For additional working capital for the Service and Supply Fund, created by Title II of the act of July 3, 1945, not to exceed $200,000 to be derived by transfer from such other funds appropriated in this act to the NIH as the Surgeon General may determine to remain available until expended: Provided, That any stocks of supplies and equipment of the PHS related to services financed under this fund may also be used to capitalize said fund."

There are four categorical program classifications: administrative services, data processing services, instrumentation, and research animals. Combined, these activities rendered services or sold commodities to the institutes/divisions of NIH at a $16,607 thousand level in 1970. It is expected that the level will be $17,742 thousand in 1971 and increase to $19,654 thousand in 1972. One activity, the scientific equipment rental pool, was added to the fund on October 1, 1970, adding approximately $60 thousand in services. Studies of NIH activities for this purpose will continue in 1971.

Budget program 1972.—The following activities are carried out under the fund:

1. Administrative services.—These services include the sale of commodities from inventory totaling $5,413 thousand, printing and reproduction services amounting to $1,411 thousand, and approximately $1,116 thousand of other services. NIH maintains a supply of scientific and general-use materials and supplies, alteration and construction material, linens, and special equipment. The printing and reproduction section provides printing, distribution, and related services. Its printing plant is equipped to produce brochures as well as ordinary administrative materials.

2. Data processing services.—This central facility is expected to provide data systems design and consultation, keypunching, EAM processing, computer programing, and computer processing services to institutes/divisions of NIH at an estimated $7,767 thousand level in 1972.

3. Instrumentation.—The Biomedical Instrumentation and Engineering Branch maintains, repairs and fabricates scientific laboratory apparatus and equipment for use in the research laboratories at NIH. There is also a specialized inventory of materials used in the development of the scientific equipment which is part of the service provided by the shops.

4. Research animals.—The NIH animal facilities provide small and large research animals to the research laboratories. The facilities include breeding, holding, and conditioning facilities for mice, rats, guinea pigs, rabbits, hamsters, dogs, cats, primates, and ungulate animals.

Operating results.—The activities financed under the fund operated at an income/expense ratio of .99 to 1 in 1970. The cash position of the fund remains in a favorable position with the collection of receivables, in most instances, on a monthly basis. Inventories maintained a stable position in relation to increased sales. Rate changes were established for 1971 providing more equitable charges to the institutes/divisions.

Note.—Includes $60,000 thousand in 1972 for activities previously financed from Economic Opportunity Program. 1970, $70,300 thousand; 1971, $69,000 thousand.

1. Aid to school districts.—(a) Educationally deprived children.—Grants are made to State and local educational agencies based on the number of children from low-income families to provide compensatory services for educationally disadvantaged children. In 1971, two new areas of this program were initiated: incentive grants to some 30 States putting forth a greater effort than the Nation as a whole in public support for elementary and secondary education; and special grants for urban and rural schools serving areas with the highest concentrations of children from low-income families. It is estimated that 7.9 million children will receive benefits in 1972 with greatest emphasis being placed on preschool and elementary school children from attendance areas with high concentrations of children from low-income families.

(b) Supplementary services.—The Elementary and Secondary Education Amendments of 1969 consolidated the separate authorities for all supplementary services grants under title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act and Title V-A of the National Defense Education Act. Under this consolidated authority grants will be made to States for developing programs which serve as models for improving and supplementing the regular school curriculum. Emphasis will be given to projects designed to meet the Right to Read goal for the 1970's.

(c) Library resources.—Grants are made to States for procurement of library resources, textbooks and other printed and published instructional materials for use by students and teachers in public and private elementary and secondary schools. These funds help provide the basic tools needed in a broad effort to improve reading ability.

2. Dropout prevention.—Grants are made to local school districts for innovative projects in poverty area schools leading to new methods and techniques for reducing the incidence of dropouts. Funds requested for 1972 would provide for continuation of 16 ongoing projects.

3. Bilingual education.—Grants are made to local educational agencies for exemplary pilot and demonstration projects in bilingual education for children who come from low-income families. Funds requested for 1972 would enable the continuation of 151 classroom oriented bilingual education projects.

4. Follow Through.—Follow Through is an experimental compensatory education program designed to develop and test new ways to educate disadvantaged children in the early primary grades. The resources of the school, the parents and the community are brought together in programs to meet the child's instructional, physical and psychosocial needs. The funds requested for 1972 would provide for continued experimentation and demonstration in 175 local communities serving an estimated 95,000 children.

5. Strengthening State departments of education.—The leadership ability of State educational agencies is improved by grants to assist them in developing systematic and technically proficient planning and evaluation activities, and in stimulating and supporting research, statistical and technical assistance for local school systems. Funds are also provided to permit the development of a comprehensive educational planning and evaluation unit within each State.

6. Planning and evaluation.—Funds are made available to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare for: (1) planning succeeding year programs or projects and (2) evaluation of such programs and projects.

1. Maintenance and operations.—Payments are made to assist in the operation of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. Under certain circumstances, payments are made to other Federal agencies to make arrangements for education of children where local school districts do not assume responsibility. For 1972, payments will continue to be concentrated on those districts where Federal impact is greatest. Highest priority will be given to school districts with large enrollments of children whose parents both live and work on Federal property and do not contribute to local school revenues.

2. Construction.—Payments are made to assist in construction of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. From 1951 through 1971, $1,400 million has been appropriated for this program, aiding in the construction of 69,000 classrooms to house about 2 million pupils in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and Wake Island.

The Office of Education provided emergency assistance in 1971 to schools and nonprofit organizations to aid in solving the problems of desegregating educational institutions previously segregated on a de jure basis. The assistance was provided on a project grant basis for local educational agencies which are implementing desegregation plans under Federal court order, or plans approved under title VI of the Civil Rights Act. Additional funds will be requested in 1971 and 1972 for similar assistance under proposed legislation which is shown at the end of this chapter.

1. State grant programs.—Grants are made to States to assist in the initiation, expansion, and improvement of programs and projects for education of handicapped children at the preschool, elementary, and secondary schools levels. Approximately 183,000 children will receive services in 1972, the same as in 1971 but with emphasis on providing more comprehensive service to the children participating.

2. Early childhood projects.—In 1971, 40 centers were supported which provided educational, diagnostic, and consultative services for preschool handicapped children and their parents. One new center became operational and 23 planning grants for centers were made. An estimated 64 centers are to be in operation during 1972.

3. Teacher education and recruitment.—Grants are awarded to stimulate the training of teachers, supervisors, speech correctionists, researchers, and other professional and subprofessional personnel in fields related to the education of the handicapped.

4. Research and innovation.—Grants and contracts are awarded for the development of new curricular materials, teaching techniques, research and development centers, and other research and demonstration projects. In 1971 large programmatic efforts replaced many of the small awards of previous years. Intensive research in critical areas will be continued.

1. Grants to States for vocational education.—Matching grants are made to the States for vocational education programs, including the construction and remodeling of facilities. The Vocational Education Amendments of 1968 require that at least two-fifths of these grants be used for programs for children from low-income families, the physically and mentally handicapped, and postsecondary courses. In 1972, States will be given the flexibility to use these grants for programs which previously were funded in separate categories. These programs include research and training, consumer and homemaking education, special programs for the disadvantaged to help attack the problems of youth unemployment and delinquency, cooperative education programs which combine work experience with formal education, and work-study programs which provide financial assistance needed for disadvantaged students to stay in school. This flexibility will allow States to make the most efficient use of Federal funds in light of local needs. Funds are also used to support the national and State advisory councils on vocational education.

changing occupations and to provide the information essential to make necessary improvements and changes for more effective vocational education programs.

3. Adult education.—Grants are made to the States for support of basic educational programs attended by adults 16 years and older who wish to overcome English language limitations, prepare for occupational training and more profitable employment, and participate more effectively in our modern society.

Note.—Excludes $9,474,389 in 1970 for activity previously carried under libraries and educational technology.

The Administration will submit legislation to the Congress to extend or revise existing higher education programs whose authorizations are scheduled to expire at the end of 1971. The following narrative relates to that proposed legislation.

1. Student assistance.—A basic revision of existing student aid programs will be proposed to insure that no qualified student who wants to go to college will be barred by lack of funds. Under this proposal, a single student aid package—consisting of grants, work-study payments, and subsidized loans—will be provided to lower income undergraduate students. The amount of aid would be related to family income with the greater amount of assistance going to the neediest students. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare would annually publish schedules indicating the amount of Federal assistance a student could receive at various levels of family income. A National Student Loan Association (NSLA) will also be proposed to provide funds to banks and colleges for loans to students at all income levels. NSLA would raise its capital from the private market. Colleges could use funds obtained from NSLA to make both federally subsidized and federally guaranteed but unsubsidized loans to students.

(a) Grants and work-study payments.—The 1972 budget requests $971 million for grant and work-study payments. Only $336 million, however, will be used in academic year 1971-72. This amount will be added to the $239 million available for the 1971-72 academic year from the 1971 appropriation. (An amount of $80 million is included in the $336 million to put the funding cycle of the grant and work-study payments on a consistent basis.) The additional $635 million is included for funding the 1972-73 academic year. This continues the present practice of appropriating student aid funds a year in advance of their use by colleges and universities.

(b) Subsidized insured loans.—(1) Interest on basic NDEA-type loans.—The subsidized insured loans mentioned above would be available to students on the same terms as the present NDEA direct loans. In total, it is estimated that $800 million in loan funds would be required for these loans in 1972. The Federal interest subsidy payments on this amount are estimated at $65 million.

(2) Interest on special NDEA-type cost-of-education loans.—In addition to the basic subsidized loans described above, authority will be requested to provide students with up to $1,500 in extra loans based on the cost of the institution they are attending. For this purpose the budget estimate includes $20 million for interest subsidies on a cost-of-education loan volume of $250 million. These extra loan funds would allow many needy students to attend higher cost colleges and universities which otherwise might be beyond their financial means.

(3) Purchases of loan paper (including advances).—To insure that institutions of higher education will have lendable funds while NSLA is being established, the Office of Education will request special interim authority for 1972 only to purchase student loan notes from colleges and universities and make advances against such purchase commitments. It is estimated that it will be necessary to purchase $400 million in student loan notes to enable colleges to lend their expected share of the loans required to carry out the program. If larger purchases are necessary, however, additional authority will be requested of the Congress.

(4) Proceeds of sales of loan paper.—The proposed legislation would direct the National Student Loan Association, once established, to purchase from the Office of Education the $400 million in notes purchased from colleges earlier in the year. The legislation would permit these receipts to be credited against this appropriation with the result that there would be no additional net outlays in this account.

(5) Interest on prior year loans.—The 1972 estimate includes $160 million for payment of interest subsidies on loans made in prior years for which the Federal Government has a continuing obligation. Under the proposed student aid reform, no new interest subsidy commitments will be made for those students who do not qualify for assistance on the basis of need. Those students who do qualify will be aided under the basic and special NDEA-type subsidized loans described above. The Federal Government will, however, continue to insure loans for those students from families at the higher income levels and it is expected that approximately 1 million such students will take advantage of these insured, but unsubsidized loans.

(6) Reserve fund advances.—Advances are made on a matching basis to State and nonprofit private loan insurance funds to guarantee student loans.

(7) Program administration.—The budget estimate includes funds for computer services and staffing associated with the expanded insured loan programs. In 1970 and 1971 the staffing estimate was included under the appropriation for Office of Education, Salaries and Expenses.

(c) Direct loans (NDEA II).—The proposed legislation will modify the existing NDEA student loan program by substituting subsidized insured loans on NDEA terms for direct Federal capital contributions to institutional loan funds. The new student-aid program will extend NDEA-type benefits to more than four times the number of students now benefiting under this program. The 1972 estimate includes funds owed colleges for the Federal share of prior year loan cancellations.

2. Special programs for disadvantaged students.—Under the proposed legislation, special programs for disadvantaged students would be continued. These include: (1) the upward bound program to motivate high school students to attend college and improve their academic preparation; (2) the talent search program to identify youths with exceptional potential for a college education and publicize available sources of financial aid; and (3) special remedial and other services for enrolled college students to encourage and assist them in continuing their higher education.

3. Institutional assistance.—Grants are awarded to raise the academic quality of developing colleges, to encourage study of modern languages and world affairs, to assist universities in meeting community needs, and to facilitate construction of facilities. Aid to land-grant colleges includes only the permanent appropriation in 1972. Those predominantly Negro colleges which have received funds under the annual land-grant program will now receive equivalent support from the developing colleges program. In addition, an increase of $5 million has been provided for the developing colleges program for the specific purpose of aiding predominantly Negro colleges.

Annual interest grants, to reduce the costs of loans from non-Federal sources for the construction of academic facilities, are awarded to colleges, universities, junior colleges, and technical institutes. These subsidized loans have replaced direct Federal loans and grants for construction. Funds for engineering services, included in 1970 and 1971 amounts, are provided by the Office of Facilities Engineering and Construction Agency and are included in 1972 estimates for the Office of the Secretary.

4. College personnel development.—Grants are awarded to universities for fellowships leading to a doctorate for prospective college teachers. The 1972 request is for continuation of fellowships awarded in prior years; no new awards are included in the estimates. Grants and contracts provide full costs of institutes and other training programs to train college teachers, administrators, and educational specialists, especially at 2- and 4-year colleges.

1. Educational research and development.—These funds support a variety of research and development activities. In 1972, priority will be placed on early childhood education, reading, organization and administration, and higher education programs. Funds will also be directed to environmental education, drug abuse education, and nutrition programs for school-aged children. A total of $5 million will be used to continue support of the Sesame Street program.

2. Experimental schools.—This program tests, develops, and demonstrates ways to improve the learning of children in actual school situations. Support will be provided to schools which will implement, in a comprehensive manner in one school setting, both ideas already verified as feasible by prior research as well as ideas yet to be evaluated. Over the next several years the program will generate a series of experimental school sites that will represent a full range of alternatives to current educational practice.

3. National achievement study.—This national assessment provides information on the educational attainment of the population. The first nationwide results were published in 1970 in the fields of science and citizenship. During 1971-72, testing will continue in four more subject areas and the results will be published.

4. Demonstrations.—The Anacostia community school project in the District of Columbia, a model approach to urban education, is supported from these funds. This project has emphasized community participation and a special reading program. In 1971-72 it will also stress adult basic education, early childhood education, staff development, vocational education for both in-school and dropout students, and outside evaluation. Ideas and practices initiated by the project will be disseminated nationally.

5. Evaluations.—Funds are available for grants, contracts, or other payments for planning and evaluation studies. In 1970-71, studies focused on the disadvantaged, post-high school job and education experiences of students in large metropolitan areas and the role of private vocational schools in meeting the Nation's manpower requirements. In 1972 greater emphasis will be placed on continuing major ongoing studies, such as those on the disadvantaged, and initiating studies in higher education, the "right to read" and the dissemination process.

6. Dissemination.—In 1970, local educators were encouraged to use exemplary programs for improving their systems. Two major dissemination methods which will be supported to achieve this goal are the installation of exemplary practices and products in "lighthouse" schools throughout the Nation, and the development of a delivery system which moves practices and products from research and development into the schools.

7. Training.—Grants are awarded for training manpower to carry out educational research, development, dissemination, and evaluation activities. Awards are also made to develop materials for use in these programs. Most personnel are trained through a consortium of institutions to provide a broad spectrum of relevant experience; short-term programs will recruit members of minority groups for training in innovation and evaluation techniques.

8. Statistics.—Contracted studies and related services are used to support the measurement of the progress and the status of education in the Nation. The work includes the collection, compilation, analysis, and dissemination of statistics; work on standard educational terminology; and continued research in statistical survey methods and sampling techniques.

Under the Higher Education Act of 1965 and the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965, the Office of Education received authority to insure loans to students in eligible institutions who do not have reasonable access to State or private nonprofit programs of student loan insurance.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1968 merged the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act into the Higher Education Act insured loan program, and in addition to extending the Federal insurance program, authorizes the Office of Education to reinsure loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies at 80% of default by student borrowers.

Upon default by the student borrowers, the Office of Education will pay to the beneficiary the amount of the loss sustained by the insured on federally insured loans and 80% of the loss sustained on reinsured loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies.

The 1972 estimate is based on the administration's proposed reform of existing student aid programs (explained under the Higher education appropriation). Under this proposal, the number of insured and guaranteed student loans will increase because of the larger number of students eligible for such loans.

The fund takes over loans on which it pays insurance claims and seeks to collect on them. Claims which are deemed uncollectable are written off as "loss on insured loans." Loans deemed collectable, after allowing for loss, are as follows: 1970, $1,468 thousand; 1971, $4,345 thousand; and 1972, $7,828 thousand.

Deposits to the fund are derived from insurance premiums earned from direct Federal insurance, which is not to exceed one-fourth of 1 percent per annum of the unpaid principal amount (excluding interest added to principal), repayment of collectable loans, and interest payments on collectable loans. Deposits are estimated as follows: 1970, $717 thousand; 1971, $2,338 thousand; and 1972, $4,925 thousand.

Estimated claims paid on loans purchased upon default of student borrowers are as follows: 1970, $4,730 thousand; 1971, $9,200 thousand; and 1972, $15,724 thousand. These amounts will be funded by an unobligated balance of $4,757 thousand in 1970, deposits into the fund during 1970 through 1972 of $7,980 thousand, appropriation in 1970 of $10,826 thousand, and an appropriation in 1971 of $18,000 thousand. Excess funds will be utilized in subsequent years.

The Higher Education Facilities Act authorizes loans for construction of academic facilities in higher education institutions. Such loans may be made for up to 75% of a project's total development cost and must be repaid within 50 years.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 established a revolving fund for these loans and authorizes the sales of such loans to the private credit market, the proceeds of which are deposited into the fund to be used for new loans to colleges and universities. The Government National Mortgage Association is authorized to serve as trustee for these sales.

Loans under this program have been displaced by the new annual interest grant program under the higher education appropriation. However, new loans may be made from the fund to the extent that such amounts are made available from withdrawals of earlier commitments. These amounts will be used to fund those small institutions of higher education which are unable to obtain private loans necessary to participate in the annual interest grant program.

In 1970, eight new projects and two supplements totaling $4,773 thousand were supported by commitments withdrawn prior to June 30, 1970. It is anticipated that commitment withdrawals in 1971 totaling $35 million will support 67 projects. No new loans are anticipated for 1972.

Interest is payable to the Treasury on the cumulative amount of appropriations paid out for loans under this title or available as capital to the fund less the average-undisbursed cash balance in the fund during the year. The rate certified by the Secretary of the Treasury as of June 30, 1970, is 6¼%.

Appropriations for insufficiencies are used to fund the deficit resulting from the interest rate required to sell the participation and the interest rate paid by higher education institutions on facilities loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Grants to States for public assistance are made to States having plans for federally matched programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. These grants cover maintenance assistance, medical assistance, social services, State and local training, and child welfare services. In addition, assistance is provided in this appropriation for repatriated U.S. nationals.

Estimates of requirements for this appropriation are based primarily on estimates received from the States in November 1970. These estimates have been adjusted for the following actions to be taken by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in administering programs under existing legislation: (1) A reduction in the number of hours a person can work and still meet the definition of an unemployed parent under title IVA of the Social Security Act. (2) Installation of improved utilization review procedures and other management improvements in the Medicaid programs.

The estimates of Federal payments for maintenance assistance administration, social services, and State and local training have been limited to 110% of each States' estimates for 1971. The original justification for making public assistance an open ended appropriation was to protect the rights of individuals who were entitled to and in need of cash assistance. Otherwise, a person in need might be denied assistance because an appropriation had not been passed at the Federal level. This concept of an open ended appropriation was later extended to program administration, training, and social services aspects of the overall public assistance program. The administration believes that appropriations for these additional activities—unrelated to subsistence needs—should be controllable. The Executive and the Congress should make deliberate choices—in advance—about their size, character, and the amount of Federal financial commitment for any given year.

A number of amendments to the Social Security Act including social security benefit increases, Welfare Reform and proposed reforms of the Medicaid and social service program are proposed for separate transmittal to the Congress. Estimates of the effects of these amendments are not included above.

1. Maintenance assistance.—Maintenance payments to recipients are provided to needy persons—one-parent (and, in the Unemployed Parents program, two-parent) families with children, the aged, blind, and disabled—with income to supplement their own resources for the costs of food, shelter, clothing, and other necessary items of daily living. Most payments are made directly to the individual. However, payments may be made on a recipient's behalf to another person. These include protective payments on behalf of aged recipients unable, because of mental conditions, to manage funds; payments for foster care provided certain children under the AFDC program; and vendor payments for institutional services in intermediate care facilities provided to persons in need of personal care short of skilled nursing home care.

The 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act included provision for payments to intermediate care facilities, licensed under State law, for care provided under the programs of old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled. These amendments also provided for emergency assistance to families with dependent children (including migrant families) in danger of destitution.

For 1972, total expenditures for maintenance assistance from Federal, State, and local sources are estimated at $11,928.5 million; the Federal share amounts to $6,655.3 million, which is 55.8% of the total.

Of the Federal funds required for maintenance assistance for 1972, more than 55% is for needy families with dependent children and more than a fourth is for the aged.

Federal funds required for maintenance assistance in 1972 are estimated to be $1,976,132,000 higher than in 1971, an increase of 18%. Payments for aid to families with dependent children will increase by 24%, for aid to the permanently and totally disabled by 20%, for aid to the blind by 5%, and for old age assistance by 10%.

The increases in both recipients and Federal funds from 1971 to 1972 are due mainly to the following factors:

(1) The 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act, such as the provision for disregarding work-connected expenses of recipients in computing payments, resulted in some families receiving assistance longer than they would have otherwise;

(2) Community organizations increased the caseload by finding families who were unaware of their full benefit eligibility for maintenance assistance;

(3) Court decisions removed durational residence requirements and abolished man-in-the-house policies, thus making more families eligible for aid; and

(4) The number of eligible female-headed families resulting from divorce, separation and desertion increased.

Statistical data on maintenance payments, by activity, including a proposed supplemental requested in 1971, follows:

(a) Old-age assistance.—Money payments.—The average monthly number of money payment recipients for 1972 is estimated to increase 3.4% over 1971. The estimated average monthly maintenance payment is $4.00 more than that estimated for 1971.

This increase is 45% of the total increase in Federal funds for old-age assistance. By the end of 1972, 32 States, the same number as in 1971, are expected to have elected such facilities.

(d) Aid to families with dependent children.—Payments to families.—The average monthly number of recipients—children (excluding foster care) and adults—to be aided during 1972 is expected to reach 10,734,283. The number of recipients covered by the appropriation request for 1972 is about 1,664,224 more than estimated for 1971. The average maintenance payment is expected to rise by $3.10, or 6.3% between 1971 and 1972.

Foster care.—The Federal share of payments on behalf of specified children to foster homes and institutions is estimated to increase by about $16,384 thousand or about 35.4% from 1971 to 1972. Beginning July 1, 1969, States were required to include payments for foster care under limited, specified conditions as part of their AFDC programs. Between 1971 and 1972, the average monthly number of AFDC children in foster care rose by 12,944 and the average monthly payment per child will increase by $12.20.

(e) Emergency assistance.—The appropriation request includes $12.3 million for grants to States to provide emergency assistance for maintenance needs of recipients in crisis situations that must be met before the process of eligibility determination for and authorization of aid to families with dependent children can be completed. Examples of crisis situations include imminent eviction, loss of utility service because of nonpayment, and exhaustion of food supplies. Federal funds are made available to encourage and enable States to act promptly and effectively in such situations.

Assistance provided may be in the form of money payments to the individual to meet maintenance needs or vendor payments for food, clothing, rent, utilities, medical care, or other items.

2. Assistance to repatriated U.S. nationals.—Public Law 86-571, approved July 5, 1960, provides for hospitalization and services to repatriated mentally ill U.S. nationals until arrangements can be made for assumption of responsibility by States of residence or the repatriate's family. The budget estimate assumes that a total of 100 mentally ill repatriates will require hospitalization and/or other financial assistance in 1972; this compares with 82 who required such care in 1970 and 100 estimated for 1971.

Section 1113 of the Social Security Act authorizes temporary assistance to U.S. citizens and their dependents who return to this country because of destitution, illness, or international crises and who are without available resources. It is estimated that temporary assistance will be provided a total of about 208 cases in 1971 and 210 in 1972 who have been repatriated from countries other than Cuba because of destitution and sickness, as compared to 150 in 1970. It is also expected that the monthly flights of repatriates from Cuba entering the United States via Brownsville, Tex., which began in February 1968, will continue in 1971 and 1972.

3. Medical assistance.—Grants for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act (Medicaid) are made to States having plans approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Eligible recipients must include all persons receiving or eligible to receive money payments under the Social Security Act, and States may elect to cover certain medically needy persons eligible for help only with their medical bills. Medicaid complements the Federal Medicare program by paying the deductible and coinsurance for the needy aged, paying their premiums for Medicare's supplementary medical insurance program, and by paying for services not covered by Medicare, e.g., long-term nursing home care.

The medical assistance program is a State administered program with cost shared by the Federal Government. The fund requirements stated herein are essentially States estimates submitted in November 1970 adjusted to reflect savings resulting from improved administrative controls over program abuses and overutilization of services.

The Federal share of total expenditures for 1972 are estimated to be $3,827,619 thousand, an increase of $577,477 thousand from the amount for 1971. The Federal share is expected to amount to about 53% of the Federal, State, and local expenditures in 1972, slightly less than 1971.

State.....	102,628	131,124	147,713

The major factors accounting for the increase from 1971 to 1972 are the continued rise in medical prices, a slight increase in the number of eligible recipients, and continued increase in utilization under State programs.

The following is the estimated number of different persons receiving medical assistance under this program for 1970, 1971, and 1972.

[In thousands]

	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
All recipients (rounded).....	15,000	17,000	19,000

Adults in AFDC-type families.....	2,800	3,300	3,800
Other adults.....	500	400	400

The increase in the number of persons receiving medical assistance during 1972 results largely from the anticipated increase in the number of recipients of maintenance payments.

Distribution of benefits.—In 1972, although the aged represent 18% of the recipients of medical assistance, medical vendor payments made on their behalf constitute 36% of all Federal payments. On the other hand, while the AFDC category constitutes 73% of all recipients of medical assistance, benefit payments made for them are only 38% of all medical vendor payments. This disparity results because medical costs of the aged, especially in nursing homes, are generally much higher than those of children who are in need of less expensive outpatient care and do not stay in the hospital as long as the aged. Regulations will be issued requiring all States to provide screening and diagnostic care for all AFDC children under 6 years of age.

Over 60% of those receiving assistance under Medicaid will also be eligible for a public assistance cash payment; Medicaid payments on behalf of this group will amount to 69% of the total.

About 67% of medical assistance payments are for care in hospitals and nursing homes, 12% for physicians' fees and about 8% for drugs.

4. Social services.—Grants are made to States operating public assistance programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare under titles I, IV,

X, XIV, and XVI of the Social Security Act. They provide social services prescribed or specified by the Secretary.

The purpose of these grants is to enable each State, as far as practicable under the conditions existing in the State, to furnish services to recipients and potential recipients to help them maintain and strengthen family life and to attain or retain capability for maximum self-support, self-care, and personal independence.

The focus during the early organizational period has been on the separation of services from assistance payments as a first step in providing an organizational structure conducive to service development.

With the increasing numbers of disabled individuals receiving aid to the permanently and totally disabled (APTD), it is anticipated that a greater need for social, rehabilitation, and other services will be realized. APTD cases increased from 755,000 in June 1969 to 874,000 in June 1970, an increase of 15.8%.

In 1970, services were provided to families eligible for aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) to obtain or use medical or dental services, improve home and financial management, secure better housing conditions, secure support of children, and to assist children to continue their education. Under the adult services program, over 200,000 cases were provided protective services and 130,000 cases received "in home" services.

In 1971, separation of services and income maintenance will be achieved to the extent feasible. Model service delivery systems will be developed, and service programs available to migrant workers and their families will be increased.

In 1972, further expansion of services to the adult categories is anticipated. Emphasis will be placed upon developing more fully services such as protective services to adults and children, family and marriage counseling, family planning, and self-support programs.

For 1972, the appropriation requirement is $838.2 million. Total expenditures from Federal, State, and local funds are estimated at $1,233.6 million in 1972 compared to $1,036.7 million in 1971.

The Federal share is 75% for: (1) The cost of providing preventive and rehabilitative services that are specified by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare; and (2) the cost of staff training, including educational leave and agency training sessions.

The Federal share of costs, other than those specified above, is 50%.

5. State and local training.—Grants are made to States for training of State and local personnel to strengthen the capabilities of the State and local organizations to provide both social services and efficient administration related to operating public assistance programs.

For 1972, the appropriation requirement is $43.9 million. Total expenditures from Federal, State, and local funds are estimated at $63.9 million in 1972 compared to $60.3 million in 1971.

The Federal share for training is 75%.

6. Child welfare services.—Grants are made to States to establish, expand, and strengthen services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children.

During 1970, State welfare departments were continuing their efforts to reorganize and coordinate the family and child welfare services programs as required by the Social Security Amendments of 1967. States have established the required single organizational units responsible for services in aiding families with dependent children and child welfare programs.

In 1969, approximately 694,000 children received child welfare services. State and local funds made up approximately 93% of the total funds expended in 1970 and will make up approximately 94% in 1971, with Federal participation being 7% and 6%, respectively. In 1972 the State and local share is expected to increase to approximately 95% of total funds expended.

The appropriation requirement for 1972 is $46 million, the same amount as available in 1971.

The President's 1971 budget request calls for an appropriation of $8,651,950,000 for Grants to States for public assistance under titles I, X, XIV, XVI, XIX, part A of title IV, and sections 707 and 1115 of the Social Security Act as amended.

In November 1970, State public assistance agencies forecast the Federal share of public assistance programs in 1971 as $9,699,537,000, or $1,047,587,000 over the amount requested. The increase is due to increases in both the numbers of recipients and the average monthly payments for maintenance assistance; increased numbers of recipients, greater utilization and higher costs of medical care, plus increases in the social service caseload, training, and the administration of maintenance payments.

The 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act authorize a work incentive (WIN) program designed to encourage and promote the employment, work experience, and training of public assistance recipients, primarily those receiving support from the aid to families with dependent children program. Training and incentives are administered by the Department of Labor, child care by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

1. Training and incentives.—Each activity below includes costs of training, incentives, and related program services.

(a) On-the-job training.—This activity provides cost of on-the-job training both regular and full cost. Included in this activity are supervision, counseling, vocational training, and all other manpower services required to rehabilitate welfare clients through on-the-job training.

(b) Institutional training.—This activity provides for classroom training, vocational education, and workshop training in clerical, service, and semiskilled to skilled occupations, vestibule training, and employment preparation. In addition, remedial education is provided to many participants.

(c) Work experience and orientation.—This activity includes work sampling and internship, paraprofessional training, and orientation. The emphasis of work experience programs is on the development of basic work habits, exploration of various occupational fields, and gaining knowledge of the world of work. Orientation provides training in basic employment skills along with vocational counseling and testing. During the orientation period an employability plan is developed for each person which is designed to lead that individual to permanent employment. Upon completion of the orientation period some persons will go directly into employment and others will go into some phase of institutional or on-the-job training.

(d) Work projects.—The Secretary of Labor is authorized to enter into agreements with public agencies and private nonprofit agencies organized for a public purpose for special work projects to employ those persons for whom jobs in the regular economy cannot be found at the time and for whom training may not be appropriate. Manpower supportive services are provided to enrollees in this component.

(e) Employability, planning, job development, and follow-up.—This activity provides for the cost of continued assessment, counseling, coaching, job development, and employability planning, as well as regular and intensive followup of employed enrollees to assure that once a person is placed in a job he stays on the job.

(f) Program direction and evaluation.—This activity provides for the program development, evaluation, and administration of the WIN program by the Department of Labor.

The tables below show workload data for WIN training and incentives:

2. Child care.—This activity provides for child care for children of WIN enrollees. An estimated 55% of the average enrollees in 1972 are mothers who are unable to provide child care for their children while they are undergoing training. Therefore, unless child care is provided, approximately one-half of the enrollees would be unable to accept the training to upgrade their employability.

In addition, child care is provided for the children of employed former WIN enrollees until such time as other satisfactory child care arrangements can be made or the mothers can pay for the care from their earnings.

This program is jointly administered by the Federal and State Governments. The program assists the States to rehabilitate mentally and physically handicapped people so they may prepare for and engage in remunerative employment to the extent of their potential. Services may be extended to the families of clients, where this will contribute to the client's rehabilitation. Services include medical and physical restoration, vocational training, counseling, and job development and placement. Heavy emphasis is being given to the national program of assisting the handicapped who are culturally and socially disadvantaged.

1. Basic State grants.—Grants with an 80% Federal matching rate are made to assist the States in rehabilitating handicapped individuals so that they may prepare for employment. An amount not to exceed 10% of a State's allotment may be used for construction and acquisition of new facilities. State agencies may share funding and administrative responsibility with another agency of the State in order to carry out a joint project to provide services to handicapped individuals.

2. Innovation.—Federal grants are made to States to assist them in initiating projects that demonstrate new methods, or new techniques for providing vocational rehabilitation services for handicapped individuals, or which are specially designed for new or expanded vocational rehabilitation services for groups having catastrophic or particularly severe disabilities. The matching rate of 90% for the first 3 years of a project is designed to encourage such innovation. No funds are requested in 1972 for new projects; but $2,200 thousand appearing in "rehabilitation service projects" will be utilized for continuation grants.

3. Rehabilitation service projects.—Federal grants are made to State agencies, local government units and to private nonprofit organizations to assist in the cost of projects designed to expand and provide services to the disabled. The 1972 rehabilitation service project program will provide support for approximately 477 projects, including a major effort in conjunction with the basic support program to rehabilitate an increased number of handicapped people who are receiving public assistance payments. A total amount of $26,360 thousand will be used for this purpose to serve approximately 45,000 and rehabilitate an estimated 14,000 public assistance recipients, on a full-year basis, in addition to the 130,000 served and 37,000 expected to be rehabilitated under the basic support program.

4. Vocational rehabilitation facilities.—Project grants are made to assist in meeting the cost of construction of public or other nonprofit rehabilitation facilities. No funds are requested in 1972.

5. Formula grants for the developmentally disabled.—Federal grants are made to States to assist in developing and administering a plan for services and construction of facilities for persons with mental retardation, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, and other neurologically disabling conditions. The funds are made available to designated State agencies in accordance with a statutory formula which includes: (1) Population, (2) extent of need for services and facilities, and (3) per capita income. An amount not to exceed 50% may be used for construction.

6. Services for the developmentally disabled.—Project grants are provided to pay part of the cost to improve care in mental retardation institutions; to initiate and expand community programs; for the habilitation and rehabilitation of the mentally retarded; for other handicapped individuals; and for specialized training. Grants are made to States, public and other nonprofit agencies and organizations, universities and local communities.

7. Facilities for the mentally retarded.—The legislation for this program expired at the end of 1970. The new developmental disability legislation included this program as part of the formula grant of which up to 50% may be used for construction. The 1971 program represents funds appropriated but not obligated in 1970. The funds will support approximately 70 projects in 1971.

The Administration on Aging was created by the Older Americans Act of 1965 as amended in 1967 and 1969, to provide assistance in the development of new or improved programs to help older persons and to serve as a focal point of the Federal Government's concern for the needs and problems of the aging.

1. State planning and service grants.—Title III of the act contains three separate programs:

(a) Community programs.—These funds pay a part of the cost of local projects for planning, services, and training and are matched by local funds in the amount of 75/25 the first year, 60/40 the second year, 50/50 for each subsequent year, with the latter percent being the local share. The States award grants at their own discretion for programs that will stimulate community planning and coordination of programs providing services for the elderly; and training of specialized personnel, including the elderly, to carry out programs and activities for the aging.

(b) Areawide projects.—This program is a comprehensive, coordinated effort within a high priority area to develop and strengthen community opportunities and activities for older persons. Funds will be made available to selected State agencies to conduct programs designed to provide leadership, planning, coordination, and the development of effective neighborhood service activities along with volunteer opportunities on behalf of all older persons within a designated area. Maximum effort will be placed on focusing existing resources on the needs of the elderly. These projects are matched on a 75/25 basis with 25% being the State share. Joint funding with other Federal, State, and local programs serving the elderly will be utilized whenever possible to increase the impact of the projects.

(c) Planning and operations.—State costs for program operations and planning are shared on a 75/25 basis with the latter percent being the State share. These funds are used to support State agencies in their planning, coordination, and evaluation activities on behalf of all the elderly in the State.

2. Foster grandparents.—Under title VI of the act, project grants at up to 90% Federal matching are made to State and community agencies to provide opportunities for low-income older persons to serve needy children, usually in institutional settings. Funding for this program will be reduced in 1972, but it is expected that program efforts can be sustained through conversion of projects to use social services, child welfare, and other funds available to user agencies. The new retired senior volunteer program will also be available to provide greatly increased opportunities for service.

3. Retired senior volunteer program.—Under title VI of the act, elderly persons, age 60 and over, will provide a wide variety of volunteer services to their communities through such activities as assisting aged, ill or handicapped persons with personal shopping or home tasks, tutoring underachievers in schools, providing individual attention to children with exceptional needs, or serving as volunteers in court settings. Volunteers will be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses incident to their volunteer activities, such as transportation and meals. The 1972 amount will provide opportunities for 29,200 older persons.

4. White House Conference on Aging.—This Conference, authorized by a joint congressional resolution (Public Law 90-526) in September 1968, was called by President Nixon for November of 1971. The Conference goal is to arrive at realistic national policies and practical plans for meeting the needs of older persons in such basic areas as income, health, housing, employment, education, and retirement roles and activities. The total amount authorized of $1,900 thousand was appropriated during 1970 and 1971.

5. Research and training.—These activities have been transferred to the Social and Rehabilitation Service account entitled Research and training.

1. Program development.—The existing legislation for this program expires on June 30, 1971. Activities in 1972 will be based on a revision of the existing legislation and substantial changes in the focus of the program. Model systems for delinquency prevention and rehabilitation efforts will be developed. These model systems will concentrate on four major settings: the inner city, suburbia, rural communities, and the college campus. The main program emphasis will continue to be delinquency prevention. In 1970 and 1971, grants were made to States and localities for planning community services and technical assistance for the prevention of delinquency.

2. Technical assistance.—Technical assistance is provided directly and through grants or contracts to public or nonprofit agencies and organizations, and to State agencies willing to provide technical assistance to local public and private nonprofit agencies. Such assistance will enable agencies to implement the results learned from the development of model systems.

In 1972, all research and training project grants and contracts of the Social and Rehabilitation Service will be funded under this appropriation. Research funds will support primarily continuation of ongoing research projects. Training resources will be limited to those critical skill areas related to SRS program objectives for which there are limited or no alternative sources of funding.

1. Research.—(a) Research and demonstrations.—Projects will contribute to the solution of vocational rehabilitation problems of the disabled; adjustment of older persons through constructive community activities; rehabilitation of alcoholics and drug addicts; improvement of the administration of social services to the poor; improvement of the performance of State agencies in their own administration and service to the needy; improvement of child welfare services, especially in providing alternatives to institutional care; and the development of better methods of delivering and financing health care services to low-income populations. The program will be shaped by a research strategy leading toward mutually supporting programs and better utilization of research findings.

(b) Income maintenance.—Projects will be continued to insure the availability of research-based information for guidance in developing, implementing, and analyzing welfare reform measures.

(c) Special centers.—The request will provide for continuation of the 19 special centers, each having comprehensive programs of research, training, and client services. These centers concentrate on the severely physically disabled, the mentally retarded, the deaf, and the vo-tionally handicapped. The request will also provide for the operation of a national center to conduct research and training and provide services needed to rehabilitate the deaf-blind; and for regional research institutes in social welfare and rehabilitation, to conduct programmatic research on means for alleviating poverty and improving employability.

2. Training.—(a) Rehabilitation.—Grants and contracts will support the training of personnel in professional and technical fields in vocational rehabilitation, including teaching grants and traineeships to educational institutions, and research fellowships to individuals.

(b) Community services.—Grants are made to institutions of higher learning to strengthen and expand their resources for training individuals in the field of social welfare, and to individuals for training in the fields of child welfare services for families, children, and young adults in all areas of social functioning and in community planning to meet the social needs of people.

(c) Aging.—Training grants will be made for the purpose of providing specialized training on problems of the aging and providing the requisite skills for personnel preparing for or engaged in planning and administering facilities for and services to older people.

SOCIAL AND REHABILITATION ACTIVITIES OVERSEAS (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)—Continued

The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, and the International Health Research Act of 1960 authorize the conduct of research and related activities abroad. Research, demonstration, and research training programs are supported primarily with foreign currencies accruing to the United States through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities and through other sources. The estimate for 1972 proposes an appropriation of $10 million for the purchase of foreign currencies in eight excess currency countries.

Rehabilitation.—Research and demonstration programs are directed to the solution of problems which hold promise of contributing knowledge to the advancement of rehabilitation both in the United States and in other countries. Research training and fellowships are provided and exchanges of rehabilitation experts are arranged between the United States and cooperating foreign countries to increase the rehabilitation research resources both here and abroad. It is estimated that 98 projects will be obligated in 1972 and 64 U.S. consultants will visit international rehabilitation projects abroad. Fellowships will also be awarded to approximately 66 overseas researchers who will be invited to the United States to observe research activities in their field of interest.

Research utilization.—Utilization of research findings will be stressed during 1972. A series of international seminars will be held on high priority programs to facilitate a people-to-people exchange of vital information that could be translated into action programs. New systems for disseminating useful research findings will be developed and implemented on a multinational basis, but particularly for U.S. program professionals. Significant published materials in rehabilitation and other fields of interest to the SRS will be identified for translation into English to supplement research reports and other publications prepared in connection with Public Law 480 research projects.

In 1961 the President established a program to assist Cuban refugees in the United States. On June 28, 1962, the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 was enacted which now provides the legislative basis for assistance to refugees in the United States.

Refugees were arriving in Miami at the rate of about 1,700 a week when the missile crisis occurred in October 1962 after which the number of arrivals decreased to about 100 a week. On October 3, 1965, the President of the United States announced that the United States would permit the orderly influx of refugees allowed to leave Cuba under a more liberal refugee policy adopted by the Cuban Government. In December 1965, the new influx of refugees started and refugees are now arriving in Miami at the rate of about 900 a week. Between 1961 and the end of June 1970, 379,229 refugees had registered at the Cuban Refugee Center in Miami of which 250,947 had been resettled to other locations in the United States. The program provides the following services for Cuban refugees in the United States:

1. Welfare assistance and services.—State and local welfare agencies are reimbursed by the Federal Government for providing needy refugees financial assistance, hospitalization, surplus food, and care for unaccompanied children. At the end of 1970, about 32,500 persons were receiving assistance in Florida, and about 33,600 persons in other States were receiving financial and/or medical assistance. Comparable estimates for June 30, 1971, of persons requiring assistance are 39,200 in Florida and 43,200 in other States; the estimates for June 30, 1972, are 45,700 for Florida and 54,000 for all other States combined.

2. Resettlement.—Through contracts with various agencies, refugees are provided homes and jobs in areas other than Miami. During 1970, 30,173 persons were resettled from the Miami area to other areas throughout the country and it is estimated that 32,000 persons will be resettled each year in 1971 and 1972.

3. Education.—Selected training is provided to equip the refugees for employment and resettlement. Also, provision is made for Federal payments to help meet part of the added cost related to refugee children in certain public school systems where the number of such children represents a sizable portion of the enrollments. Loans were made to about 4,700 needy college students in 1970 and the same level is anticipated for 1971; for 1972, about 6,600 students are expected to receive loans, 1,500 of whom will be students pursuing vocational courses (rather than training leading to an academic degree) in accredited proprietary institutions.

4. Health services.—These services are provided to new arrivals and to needy refugees in Miami and include medical screening, outpatient clinic services, and care of patients with tuberculosis and mental illness.

5. Movement of refugees from Cuba.—This provides for the cost of airlifting the refugees from Cuba.

6. Program administration.—This activity provides Federal direction of the program and includes work with refugees to prepare them for resettlement and employment.

This appropriation provides for payments from Federal funds to the social security trust funds for certain types of benefits and related administrative costs not funded by payroll taxes from workers and employers. Adjustments for differences between prior year costs and the amounts appropriated in prior years for this appropriation are included in the budget year request. The 1972 appropriation request of $2,465,297 thousand covers the following types of payments:

1. Matching payments for supplementary medical insurance.—An estimated $1,376,400 thousand will be required in 1972 to finance the Government's contribution to the Federal supplementary medical insurance trust fund and to cover the deficiencies in financing the Government's contribution for 1970 and 1971. For each monthly premium paid by enrollees in the voluntary medical insurance program, which primarily covers doctor bills, the Federal Government matches a like amount. The anticipated standard premium rate for 1972 is $5.60 per month. The estimate for 1972 assumes that an average of about 19.8 million persons will be enrolled in the program during 1972 as compared with an average of about 19.5 million in 1971.

2. Hospital insurance for the uninsured.—A payment of $503,351 thousand to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund is budgeted for 1972 to cover the costs of hospital and related care for individuals aged 65 and over who are not insured under the social security or railroad retirement systems. (Costs for the aged who are insured are financed by payroll taxes on earnings by workers and by employers.) The estimate assumes that there will be an average of 1.6 million uninsured persons covered for hospital benefits during 1972, and is net of adjustments for prior years for which the amounts appropriated were higher than presently estimated costs. The uninsured group covered by this provision includes persons who retired before their occupations were covered by social security (such as teachers and State and local employees), and widows whose husbands died prior to earning coverage under social security.

3. Military service credits.—The appropriation includes reimbursement of $235 million to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Federal disability insurance trust fund and the Federal hospital insurance trust fund for benefits paid on the basis of noncontributory military service credits of veterans of World War II and certain veterans of the post-World War II period. The basis for the computation of these payments is prescribed in section 217(g) of the Social Security Act and includes reimbursement for administrative expenses and interest lost to the trust funds.

The payment to each trust fund is (in millions of dollars):

Old-Age and Survivors Insurance.....	137
Disability Insurance.....	50
Hospital Insurance.....	48
Total.....	235

4. Retirement benefits for certain uninsured persons.—This appropriation provides for a payment of $350,546 thousand to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund as reimbursement for actual benefit payments made in 1970 to certain noninsured individuals aged 72 and over, related administrative expenses, and interest lost to the trust fund. These benefits were established to afford some protection for certain persons, or their surviving dependents, who retired before the enactment of social security legislation or before their occupations were covered by social security.

To be eligible an individual must have less than three quarters of coverage and have attained age 72 before 1968. If an individual is receiving a governmental pension or payments under a federally aided public assistance program, payments must be reduced or withheld respectively.

LIMITATION ON SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses, not more than $997,461,000 $1,101,000,000 may be expended as authorized by section 201(g) (1) of the Social Security Act, from any one or all of the trust funds referred to therein: Provided, That such amounts as are required shall be available to pay the cost of necessary travel incident to medical examinations, reconsideration interviews or hearings for verifying disabilities or for review of disability determinations, of individuals who file applications for disability determinations under title II of the Social Security Act, as amended: Provided further, That $25,000,000 of the foregoing amount shall be apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), only to the extent necessary to process workloads not anticipated in the budget estimates and to meet mandatory increases in costs of agencies or organizations with which agreements have been made to participate in the administration of title XVIII and section 221 of title II of the Social Security Act, and after maximum absorption of such costs within the remainder of the existing limitation has been achieved: Provided further, That such amounts as may be agreed upon by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the United States Postal Service shall be used for payment, in such manner as said organizations may jointly determine, of postage for the transmission of official mail matter in connection with the administration of the social security program by States participating in the program. The Social Security Administration is responsible for administering national programs of old-age, survivors, disability and health insurance. The social security program provides old-age, survivors, and disability insurance protection for over 90% of the workers and their families in the United States. It also provides hospital insurance protection for nearly all individuals in the United States who are age 65 or older, as well as supplementary medical insurance coverage for the 95% of all persons age 65 or over who have elected it. Individuals covered under the Social Security Act are taxed on a portion of their earnings during their working years to pay for this protection and employers match the tax paid by their employees. Monthly premiums are paid by those individuals age 65 and over who elect coverage under the supplementary medical insurance program or by States for certain public assistance recipients age 65 and over; these premiums are matched by the Federal Government by appropriations from Federal funds.

Administrative costs are related to workloads which emanate from the statutory provisions of the program. The size of these loads depends upon objective factors such as population growth, the level of employment, economic conditions, incidence of illness among the aged and mortality rates.

The principal costs for administration of the social security programs are funded by this appropriation. In addition, certain costs of other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and certain costs to the Treasury Department for the collection of social security taxes and for the issuance of benefit checks are paid by the trust funds.

The 1972 appropriation request for salaries and expenses includes $25 million as a contingency reserve to be used with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget in the event that workloads and/or mandatory costs of agencies with which agreements have been made to participate in the program exceed the budget estimates. The fund is to be used only after maximum absorption of such costs within the existing limitation has been achieved. In 1971, it is anticipated that the entire amount of the contingency reserve will be required for higher than budgeted costs of State agencies and fiscal intermediaries who assist in the administration of the programs.

1. Old-age and survivors insurance.—This program provides monthly benefits for retired workers and their dependents, survivors of deceased workers including disabled widows and widowers age 50 and over, and certain uninsured persons age 72 or over.

The number of persons receiving monthly benefits and the amount of benefits to be paid increase in both 1971 and 1972 because of the growth in number of aged persons in the population and in the proportion of these who are insured for retirement benefits, as well as the growth in the population insured for survivors benefits.

OASI benefit payments (in millions)....	$26,267	$29,817	$31,026

The administrative costs budgeted for this program provide for: Making the initial determination of eligibility for old-age and survivors benefits; reevaluating the initial determination when requested by the claimant; making changes in the beneficiary rolls to assure proper and correct payment of benefits; and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits, including the evaluation of performance of representative payees.

2. Disability insurance.—This program provides monthly disability benefits for disabled workers and their dependents. As the size of the population insured for disability benefits increases, new claims will increase in both 1971 and 1972, as well as the number of beneficiaries in pay status and the amount of benefits paid.

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the costs of processing initial disability determinations and reconsiderations and appeals of denied claims; making investigations and determinations of continuing disability of beneficiaries and servicing the beneficiary rolls; and making all changes due to deaths, changes of address, attainment of age 65, returns to employment and recoveries from disability. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by State agencies and these costs are included in the budget estimates.

3. Health insurance.—This program includes the hospital insurance and the voluntary supplementary medical insurance programs which were established by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act and commonly referred to as Medicare.

(a) Hospital insurance.—The hospital insurance program affords protection to persons age 65 and over against the cost of inpatient hospital services, post-hospital home health services and posthospital extended care services. Bills for services rendered under the hospital insurance program are generally submitted by hospitals, extended care facilities, home health agencies and in some instances by individuals who have received emergency care in nonparticipating hospitals. In most instances, these bills are processed by the Blue Cross Associations and private insurance companies acting as intermediaries for the Social Security Administration. The individual beneficiary records of utilization of hospital services are maintained in the central office of the Social Security Administration. The growth in beneficiaries who will be covered by the program as the population of age 65 and over increases and the rise in the utilization of available services cause an increase in the number of claims in both 1971 and 1972.

(b) Supplementary medical insurance.—Almost all persons age 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance program which covers the cost of physician services and other medical costs within certain deductible and coinsurance requirements. Enrollees in the program pay a monthly premium and the aggregate of these premiums is matched by the Federal Government by appropriations from Federal funds. Claims for services under the medical insurance program may be submitted by the physician or other suppliers of service or by the beneficiary to Blue Shield Associations and private insurance companies who have been designated to act as carriers for the Social Security Administration in specific geographical areas.

The volume of claims will rise in 1971 and 1972 as a result of the growth in the age 65 and over population, and the projected increase in utilization of medical services.

The health insurance program data is reflected in the following chart:

¹ Includes $550 million in 1970, $570 million in 1971, and $602 million in 1972 chargeable to Federal funds.

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the claim payment functions performed by the intermediaries and carriers; services performed by State agencies in certifying and consulting with providers of services; all work performed by the Social Security Administration in directing the program, providing services to beneficiaries, maintaining records by individual beneficiary of utilization of hospital and medical services and processing claims to establish entitlement to hospital insurance for persons not insured for cash benefits under either the social security or railroad retirement program.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1969, $5,841 thousand; 1970, $673 thousand; 1971, $10,558 thousand; 1972, $9,309 thousand.

Funds requested for expenditure from the trust funds will provide for: The acquisition of sites and the design of buildings to house four of the six payment centers operated by the Social Security Administration. Other funds scheduled for obligation are from appropriations of prior years.

1. Headquarters.—Obligations scheduled for 1971 and 1972 are from funds already appropriated. Obligations in 1970 were for traffic and engineering studies to determine the location and type of additional facilities on the headquarters site. The 1971 obligations provide for award of a construction contract for an additional office building at headquarters. Obligations for 1972 provide for a contract for the design of additional operations space as determined by the studies started in 1970.

2. District offices.—Funds have been provided in the 1965, 1966, and 1967 appropriations for the acquisition of sites, and the design and construction of district offices in 107 selected cities throughout the country. This is part of a long-range program of construction to provide more appropriate and adequate space for Social Security Administration district offices in locations where construction is determined to be both feasible and advantageous. Budget authority included in the 1971 appropriation provides for the acquisition of sites and the design of district office buildings in 30 more selected locations. Funds for construction of those offices will be requested in a subsequent year.

3. Payment centers.—Social Security Administration payment centers are responsible for the initiation of payment to new beneficiaries and for assuring continuing payment of monthly cash benefits. Budget authority of $18,194 thousand is requested in 1972 for the acquisition of sites and the design of buildings to house four payment centers (located in Philadelphia, Pa.; Birmingham, Ala.; Chicago, Ill.; and San Francisco, Calif.). Funds for construction of these facilities will be requested in a subsequent year. The four payment centers are currently housed in substandard leased space, typically in buildings widely dispersed throughout the payment center city. Substandard conditions and dispersion of operations have resulted in inefficiencies and higher costs. No adequate commercial space is available in these locations to meet payment center requirements; and direct Federal construction from the social security trust funds is considered the most feasible and economical method of providing the required space.

The old-age and survivors insurance program protects individuals and families from the risk of economic loss resulting from old age and death by providing income to retired workers and their dependents and to dependent survivors of deceased workers. The program is financed by taxes to the trust fund which are paid by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The tax rate on which financing of the old-age and survivors insurance program is based is 3.65% each for employers and employees in calendar year 1970, and 4.05% for calendar years 1971 and 1972 of taxable earnings up to a maximum of $7,800. The rate for self-employed persons is 5.475% in 1970 and 6.075% in 1971 and 1972.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of monthly benefits to retired workers and their dependents and to survivors of deceased workers. The average numbers of persons receiving payments and the payment amounts classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1970-72 follow (in millions):

Retired workers.....	13.4	13.9	14.3
Dependents of retired workers.....	3.2	3.2	3.3
Survivors of deceased workers.....	6.3	6.5	6.7
Total beneficiaries.....	22.9	23.6	24.3
Payments to retired workers.....	$17,046	$19,471	$20,348
Payments to dependents of retired workers.....	$2,155	$2,397	$2,430
Payments to survivors of deceased workers.....	$7,066	$7,949	$8,248
Total benefit payments.....	$26,267	$29,817	$31,026

Normal growth in benefit payments can be expected because of: (1) increases in the number of beneficiaries as the number of aged persons in the population and the proportion of the aged who are insured rise; and (2) increases in average monthly benefits as general earning levels continue to rise. The increase in benefit outlays in 1971 exceeds normal growth because it also includes the added cost of providing on an annual basis the 15% increase in cash benefit amounts which was enacted by the Congress in Public Law 91-172. This increase was effective January 1970 and reflected in only 5 months of payments during 1970.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its salaries and expenses appropriation, and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund to place the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund in the same position it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E). Estimates are made of the yearly amounts of additional contributions the Social Security Administration would have collected, the additional benefits it would have paid, and the additional administrative costs it would have incurred if railroad employees had been covered under social security. The payment made to the railroad retirement account represents the amount by which the estimated benefit payments and administrative costs exceed the estimated contributions, and includes interest through the date of the transfer. The components of the net transfers for 1970-72 follow (in thousands of dollars):

Benefit payments.....	892,900	930,000	1,006,000
Administrative costs.....	10,600	11,000	11,000
Interest.....	35,218	38,000	43,000
Less contributions.....	359,900	374,000	386,000
Net transfer.....	578,818	605,000	674,000

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that payments may be made from the old-age and survivors insurance and the disability insurance trust funds for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to individuals who are entitled to social security cash benefits because of a disability. Such payments anticipate that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries into productive activity. The total amount to be used for rehabilitation services may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to disabled workers and to disabled dependents of disabled, retired, or deceased workers in the preceding year. The old-age and survivors insurance trust fund bears the cost of rehabilitation services provided to disabled old-age and survivors insurance beneficiaries (dependents of retired or deceased workers) while the disability insurance trust fund bears the cost of such services provided to disability insurance beneficiaries (disabled workers and their disabled dependents).

The disability insurance program protects individuals and families against the risk of economic loss resulting from disability by providing income to disabled workers and their dependents. The program is financed by payroll taxes to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The tax rate on which financing of the disability insurance program is based is 0.55% each for employers and employees and 0.825% for self-employed persons in calendar years 1970-72.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of disability insurance benefits for certain disabled individuals and their dependents. The average number of persons receiving payments and the payment amounts classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1970-72 are as follows (in millions):

Disabled workers.....	1.4	1.5	1.6
Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.1	1.2	1.2
Total beneficiaries.....	2.5	2.7	2.8
Payments to disabled workers.....	$2,206	$2,588	$2,745
Payments to dependents of disabled workers.....	$572	$643	$671
Total benefit payments.....	$2,778	$3,231	$3,416

especially at ages 50 to 64 where disability incidence rates are highest, and (2) increases in average monthly benefit amounts as general earnings levels continue to rise. The increase in benefit outlays in 1971 exceeds normal growth because it also includes the added cost of providing on an annual basis the 15% increase in cash benefit amounts which was enacted by the Congress in Public Law 91-172. This increase was effective January 1970 and reflected in only 5 months of payments during 1970.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its salaries and expenses appropriation, and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the Disability insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the disability insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included under social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E). This payment is computed on the same basis as the payment from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. The components of the net transfers for 1970-72 follow (in thousands of dollars):

Benefit payments.....	56,200	60,200	65,100
Administrative costs.....	1,600	3,000	3,000
Interest.....	839	800	900
Less contributions.....	48,200	52,000	55,000
Net transfer.....	10,439	12,000	14,000

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that payments may be made from the old-age and survivors insurance and the disability insurance trust funds for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to individuals who are entitled to social security cash benefits because of a disability. Such payments anticipate that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries into productive activity. The total amount to be used for rehabilitation services may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to disabled workers and to disabled dependents of disabled, retired, or deceased workers in the preceding year. The old-age and survivors insurance trust fund bears the cost of rehabilitation services provided to disabled old-age and survivors insurance beneficiaries (dependents of retired or deceased workers) while the disability insurance trust fund bears the cost of such services provided to disability insurance beneficiaries (disabled workers and their disabled dependents).

The hospital insurance program protects individuals and families against the costs of health care by helping eligible people age 65 and over finance the cost of hospital and related care. For persons on the social security and railroad retirement rolls, the cost of services covered by the hospital insurance program and administrative costs are financed by contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The contribution rate on which financing of this trust fund is based is 0.6% each for employers and employees of taxable earnings up to a maximum of $7,800 annually through 1972. Self-employed persons are scheduled to pay one-half of the combined worker-employer rate. Costs for those not insured under the social security or railroad retirement program are met from general revenues of the Treasury.

1. Benefit payments.—The hospital insurance program provides protection to over 20 million persons age 65 and over against the costs of inpatient hospital services, post-hospital home health services, and posthospital extended care services. The following table shows comparative data on hospital insurance beneficiaries and on benefit payments classified by type of coverage for 1970 through 1972 (in millions):

Persons with hospital insurance protection (average)	20.0	20.3	20.6
Beneficiaries receiving reimbursed services	4.4	4.5	4.6
Payments for inpatient hospital services	$4,439	$5,372	$6,116
Payments for extended care services	295	350	440
Payments for home health services	70	98	134
Total benefit payments	4,804	5,820	6,690

The growth in benefit payments in 1971 and 1972 results primarily from increases in the size of the covered population and in the cost of covered services.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its salaries and expenses appropriation and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Incentive reimbursement experimentation.—The 1967 Social Security Amendments provide authorization to conduct experiments for reimbursement of providers of services on a basis other than the "reasonable cost" or "reasonable charges" provisions generally applicable under the Medicare program, in order to achieve incentives for economy while maintaining or improving quality in the provision of health services. The cost of administering and evaluating the experiments is financed by the Hospital Insurance and Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Funds. Hospital insurance benefit payments made to providers of health services who are participating in these experiments are included in the benefit payments shown above.

The supplementary medical insurance program protects individuals and families against the costs of health care by helping individuals age 65 and over who elect this coverage to finance the cost of physicians' services and certain other medical and health services. Almost all persons aged 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the voluntary supplementary medical insurance program provided by the Social Security Act, and about 95% of those eligible have chosen to do so. The costs of services covered by the program and administrative expenses are financed by premium payments from enrollees together with matching contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury.

The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is required by law to promulgate by December 31 of each year the standard monthly premium rate necessary to finance the SMI program during the fiscal year beginning the following July 1. The premium rate is scheduled to increase from $5.30 to $5.60 on July 1, 1971.

1. Benefit payments.—Participants in the program are covered for the cost of physician's services, home health services not covered under the hospital insurance program, outpatient services, and certain other medical costs, with specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. The following table shows comparative data on supplementary medical insurance beneficiaries and benefit payments, classified by type of coverage, for 1970 through 1972 (in millions):

Persons with supplementary medical insurance protection (average).....	19.2	19.5	19.8

Payments for outpatient services.....	88	100	120
Payments for other medical and health services.....	75	81	91
Total benefit payments.....	1,979	2,070	2,300

The growth in benefit payments in 1971 and 1972 results from increases in the covered population, and projected increases in the utilization and cost of medical care services.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of the office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other trust funds.

3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration as reflected in its salaries and expenses appropriation, and those incurred for social security programs by the Treasury Department and other Department of Health, Education, and Welfare components are financed in part by each trust fund.

4. Incentive reimbursement experimentation.—The 1967 Social Security Amendments provide authorization to conduct experiments for reimbursement of providers of services on a basis other than the "reasonable cost" or "reasonable charges" provisions generally applicable under the Medicare program in order to achieve incentives for economy while maintaining or improving quality in the provision of health services. The cost of administering and evaluating the experiments is financed by the Hospital Insurance and Supplementary Medical Insurance trust funds. Medical insurance benefit payments made to providers of health services who are participating in these experiments are included in the benefit payments shown above.

Funds for construction of facilities for the National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) were authorized in 1965 by Public Law 89-36. Since that time, a total of $18,100 thousand has been allocated to the Rochester Institute of Technology through an agreement with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for the purpose of planning, site acquisition and development, and construction of NTID. The 1971 budget request for construction of NTID was based on 1969 price levels. The proposed supplemental appropriation would compensate for the increase in construction costs since 1969 and permit the Rochester Institute of Technology to advertise for bids.

1. Operations.—Gallaudet College is a private, non-profit educational institution providing an undergraduate higher education program for the deaf, a preparatory school for deaf students who need such training to qualify for college admission, a graduate school program in the field of deafness and adult education for deaf persons. It operates the Kendall School for deaf children (primarily from the District of Columbia) and a preschool program for very young deaf children. Gallaudet also has programs in research on deafness and on ways and means of assisting deaf persons in more adequately relating to a predominantly hearing environment. Federal funds provide slightly more than three-fourths of Gallaudet's operating costs.

Under this same activity, projects will be designed to carry out the child research and reporting mandates of the Children's Bureau Organization Act of 1912.

During 1972, Head Start will be coordinated more closely with other child care programs. Head Start will continue to demonstrate effective services for preschool children and will begin to implement the findings of the planned variation experimental program.

Legislation has been proposed to authorize the Office of Education to provide assistance to schools and nonprofit organizations to aid in solving the problems of desegregating school districts previously operating under dual systems. In addition aid will be provided to schools voluntarily alleviating the problems associated with segregation and to racially impacted schools. Aid will be provided to schools in these specific areas:

(a) Local educational agencies implementing a desegregation plan under Federal court order, or a plan approved under title VI of the Civil Rights Act.

(b) Local educational agencies which have one or more schools with an average daily enrollment of 50% or more minority students, or with one or more schools in which racial isolation is reasonably likely to occur in the near future.

(c) Local educational agencies in which the average daily enrollment for the entire district is 50% or more minority students, or 10,000 or more minority students.

Working with researchers, school officials, teachers, scientists, humanists, and others, it will help identify educational problems, develop programs to alleviate these problems and assist school systems to put the results of educational research and development into practice. This estimate provides resources for implementing the first phase of the major welfare reforms proposed by the Welfare Reform Act. The reforms are designed to completely recast the existing welfare system and would: provide assistance to most poor families with children—including families of the “working poor” for the first time; establish uniform national standards and a minimum benefit level for both family and adult categories; strengthen work incentives and requirements; and provide for more efficient administration. Funds will be provided to enable the States to convert to a uniform national system of administration, develop a Federal capability to administer the new “working poor” provisions of the legislation, and develop improved services—such as child care—to support job training and employment for welfare recipients. Increased payments would not begin until 1973.

Proposed legislation increasing the social security benefits will decrease maintenance assistance requirements by providing sufficient income to persons who otherwise would require such assistance.

Legislation will be proposed to modify the Medicaid program, including provisions that would discourage overutilization of services, place increased emphasis on preventive medical care, and restrain cost increases for institutional services. These changes will be consistent with the proposed new family health insurance plan, one objective of which will be to promote cost sharing according to the beneficiary's ability to pay.

Amendments to the Social Security Act would consolidate the social services authorities in the Social Security Act, repealing the relevant provisions of titles I, IV (parts A and B), X, XIV, and XVI and replacing them with a new title. These reforms would encourage greater effectiveness and accountability for social services funds. Of the $162 million, $151 million is for foster care and adoptions, beginning July 1, 1971. The remaining funds are for planning and implementing the remaining new features in title XX, not effective until January 1, 1972. These include funds for a governmental assistance program to strengthen the capability of Governors and local officials to plan and manage social services funds.

An across-the-board 6% increase in cash benefits coupled with future automatic cost-of-living increases is proposed, as well as several other improvements in the cash benefits program. The annual exempt amount of earnings under the retirement test would be increased and benefits would be reduced by $1 for each $2 of all earnings in excess of the proposed exempt amount. In addition, other improvements in benefits considered but not enacted in the 91st session of Congress are also proposed.

It is proposed to finance these improvements by increasing the maximum taxable earnings base from $7,800 to $9,000 effective January 1, 1971. In addition, to place the Hospital insurance trust fund on a sound actuarial basis, there will be proposed an increase in the hospital insurance tax rate and an equivalent decrease in the OASDI tax rate.

Several changes are proposed in the Medicare program designed to solve the problem of rising medical costs, curtail overutilization of hospital services, and provide increased program control. The changes would authorize the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to establish and promulgate limits on provider costs to be recognized as reasonable under Medicare, to encourage the use of health maintenance organizations (prepaid group health plans) and to develop experiments to test various methods of making payments to providers of services on a prospective basis.

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter contains the budget and program estimates for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The major divisions utilize an organizational structure which incorporates the second phase of the organization of the Department on a functional basis which began last year. The principal feature of the first phase was the consolidation of all housing production programs under one Assistant Secretary. The second phase of the organization aligns the development planning and management programs of the Department under one Assistant Secretary and the community development assistance programs of the Department under another. It also gives one Assistant Secretary responsibility for housing management.

During the past year, the Department has realigned its regional and field structure to facilitate the packaging of programs at the State and local level. To facilitate this packaging, a new departmental organization was also needed. This will be accompanied by proposed legislation to establish a consolidated community development program incorporating many of the diverse categorical programs which now exist into a unified assistance program. It will also be accompanied by a consolidated and broadened community development planning and management program to enable States and localities to wisely plan the use of their funds.

In pursuance of this functional alinement of the programs of the Department, there have been several changes in appropriation structure from prior years. For example, payments on subsidized housing programs have been separated from contract authorities for housing production and consolidated into a single appropriation. Programs formerly under renewal assistance, metropolitan planning and development, and model cities have been reassigned to community development planning and management or community development on the basis of whether a planning or development function is served. Salaries and expense accounts are assigned to each functional category. As a result, departmental management contains only the general accounts and the salaries and expense accounts under the old structure that are being terminated except for liquidating obligations. The following describes the major divisions now in effect.

1. Housing production and mortgage credit covers housing production contract authorities for Homeownership assistance, and rental housing assistance and includes such programs as rent supplement, low-rent public housing, college housing, the Federal housing administration fund, and the programs of the Government National Mortgage Association.

2. Housing management programs include all subsidy payments in one new appropriation. This appropriation includes the payments resulting from the contract authorities provided for the homeownership assistance program, the rental housing assistance program, the public housing program, the rent supplement program, and the college housing program. Other management type functions, such as the Community disposal operations fund and the Liquidating programs fund, have been moved to this head.

3. Community development planning and management programs includes Comprehensive planning grants, Community development training, and the new communities fund. The Comprehensive planning grant program will be used as a broader and more flexible instrument of planning and management in conjunction with the proposed Community development program. The newly authorized Community Development Corporation is also under this head.

4. Community development programs brings under one head all the facilities and other assistance programs of the Department other than housing production. This includes such programs as urban renewal, Model Cities, water and sewer grants, and rehabilitation loans among others. In addition, legislation is assumed for the enactment of a consolidated community development program which would bring together and simplify the authorities for the separate categorical programs which now exist. The budget proposes budget authority and program levels to carry many of the existing programs through the first 6 months of 1972. Beginning on January 1, 1972, or as soon as proposed legislation is enacted, these programs would begin to be phased out in conjunction with the implementation of the proposed community development program. This head also includes the new program of parks in urban areas resulting from the consolidation and expansion of the Open Space Land program.

5. The appropriation accounts for Federal Insurance Administration, Research and technology, Fair housing and equal opportunity, Departmental management, and Special institutions remain in the budget structure as previously aligned and support essentially the same functions.

RENT SUPPLEMENT PROGRAM—Continued

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (12 U.S.C. 1701s) authorizes rent supplement payments to owners of certain private housing on behalf of qualified low-income tenants. Housing owners eligible for contracts with a maximum term of 40 years are private nonprofit, cooperative, or limited dividend owners who provide housing financed with mortgages insured by FHA under the market interest rate mortgage insurance program for low- or moderate-income families. Other housing covered by the program is a limited experimental program, housing aided by State or local subsidy programs, and the Rental housing assistance program (sec. 236 of the National Housing Act).

To be eligible for rent supplements, a tenant cannot have an adjusted income higher than the maximum limits that can be established for occupancy of federally aided low-rent public housing in the same area. In addition, the tenant must be elderly, physically handicapped, displaced from his home by governmental action, living in substandard housing, or an occupant or former occupant of a dwelling damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster. Tenants are required to pay 25 percent of their income for rent. The rent supplements paid to the project owner make up the difference between the rent payments of the tenants and the full economic rent. The payments are adjusted based on periodic review of the tenants' income.

Budget program.—The maximum annual payments which may be provided are limited to amounts approved in appropriation acts. This language establishes the limits. Appropriations for payments are provided under the heading "Housing Payments" in the Housing Management section of this chapter. The following table summarizes significant program data:

The Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit is responsible for processing applications, allocating contract authority, and monitoring construction. Once units are occupied, the Assistant Secretary for Housing Management administers the making of payments. The release of the additional $60 million of contract authority requested for 1972 will result in a cumulative annual limitation on payments of $237 million.

HOMEOWNERSHIP AND RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE

[For homeownership assistance payments, authorized by section 235, and for interest reduction payments as authorized by section 236 of the National Housing Act, as amended (82 Stat. 477 and 498),

$115,100,000: Provided, That the] The limitation on total payments that may be required in any fiscal year by all contracts entered into under section 235 of the National Housing Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1715z) is increased by [$130,000,000] $175,000,000, and the limitation on total payments under those entered into under section 236 of such Act (12 U.S.C. 1715z-1) is increased by [$135,000,000] $175,000,000. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1971.)

Sections 235 and 236 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized two subsidy programs to reduce mortgage interest rates to as low as 1% in order to assist lower income families in purchasing or renting housing which they could not otherwise afford. Under the Homeownership assistance program (section 235), periodic payments are made to mortgagees in behalf of families purchasing their own homes. The homeowner is required to make monthly payments totaling 20% of the adjusted family income toward mortgage principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium. Eligibility is generally limited to families whose incomes do not exceed 135% of incomes set for admission to low-rent public housing in the area.

The Rental housing assistance program (section 236) provides comparable assistance for lower income families in rental housing constructed or rehabilitated under this program. While income eligibility requirements are the same as for the homeownership program, the family is required to make rental payments amounting to 25% of their adjusted income. The rental assistance payments are made to the mortgagee to reduce the monthly payment which the owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to pay for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premium under the mortgage covering the project. The assistance payments are passed on to the tenant in the form of reduced rentals. Rental collections by the project owner in excess of the basic charges are returned to the Secretary and used to offset future payments made to the mortgagee.

Contract authority under sections 235 and 236 is used only for newly constructed or substantially rehabilitated housing units with the exception that up to 30% of the amount of contracts authorized under section 235 may be applied to existing housing. Under section 235(j), nonprofit sponsors and public bodies are eligible to purchase and do any necessary rehabilitation work on housing suitable for subsequent resale to lower income families. Section 236 mortgagees must be nonprofit or limited dividend organizations or cooperative associations.

Budget program.—The maximum annual payments which may be provided under homeownership assistance and rental housing assistance contracts are limited to amounts approved in appropriation acts. This language establishes the limits. Appropriations for payments are provided under the heading "Housing Payments" in the Housing Management section of this chapter. The 1972 Homeownership assistance program provides a slightly lower average subsidy payment for units reserved in 1972. The following table summarizes significant program data:

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act (15 U.S.C. 1701) provides greater protection to the public in connection with the purchase or lease of subdivision lots. Statements of record of subdivisions containing 50 or more lots must be filed with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development before initiation of sales programs in interstate commerce can commence.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, not exceeding $1,000, to be paid by a developer when filing a statement of record as required by the act. These fees may be used by the Secretary to pay costs of rendering services under the act. During the past year, 1,080 filings of registration statements and exemption advisory opinions, with fees totaling about $521,000, were received. Filings are estimated at 1,600 and 2,400 in 1971 and 1972, producing about $1,000,000 and $1,170,000 in fees during each of these years.

In 1972, $1,000,000 of the fees collected are estimated to be used for costs of administering the program.

Assistance to nonprofit sponsors of low- and moderate-income housing is authorized by section 106 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended. Under the program, information, advice, and technical assistance may be provided with respect to the construction, rehabilitation, and operation of low- and moderate-income housing by nonprofit organizations. In addition, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make interest-free loans to nonprofit organizations from a revolving fund to cover 80% of the preconstruction costs in connection with low- and moderate-income housing undertakings under federally assisted programs. Included in preconstruction costs are reasonable expenses to be incurred in planning the project including preliminary surveys, market analyses, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site acquisition, application and mortgage commitment fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. It is assumed that the loan will be approved shortly after the preapplication conference and that the loans will be repaid out of the first funds drawn upon insurance of the mortgage.

Budget program.—In 1972, a proposed appropriation of $3 million, together with repayments of previous loans will provide a total of $7.9 million in assistance to 200 sponsors in the development of approximately 22,540 units. This compares with $5.4 million in new loans in 1971 to aid 135 projects containing about 15,525 units.

This section describes the budget program for the low-rent public housing program including the allocation of authority to enter into annual contribution contracts and the status of the low-rent public housing loan fund. Appropriations for payments of annual contribution contracts are provided under the heading "Housing Payments" in the Housing Management section of this chapter.

The United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1401 et. seq.), authorizes a low-rent public housing program to help provide safe and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of low-income families. Such housing is owned and operated by local housing authorities created under State law. Federal loans and annual contributions assist local housing authorities (LHA's) in financing the construction of low-rent housing and in maintaining the low-rent character of such housing after completion.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-609) increased the cumulative contract authorization by $150 million in 1971 and by $225 million in 1972 to a total of $1,424.2 million. This authority, under the legislation, becomes available for use without specific appropriation action although the budget program is subject to congressional review. In 1972, $170 million of the new contract authority provided by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 will be used. In addition, the $37 million unused balance of the $75 million provided by section 212 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-152) will also be utilized in 1972. The management aspects of the program, including modernization, are administered by the Assistant Secretary for Housing Management. The production phase of the program is administered by the Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit.

The relationship of new annual contribution commitments to available authority is shown in the following table:

Payments made on account of authority utilized are estimated at $654.5 million in 1971 and $824.5 million in 1972.

Budget program.—Production.—During 1972, a total of 95,000 units will be placed under annual contributions contracts, and construction of 95,000 units will begin. Of those dwellings scheduled for construction, 43,000 will be built under the “turnkey” method which was initiated in 1965 to stimulate increased participation by builders and developers in the housing program. It is anticipated that 100,000 additional units will be made available for occupancy in 1972.

The workload accomplishments and the status of the production program by stage is presented in the following tabulations:

Loans to local housing authorities, technical services, operation of one federally owned and directly operated housing project, and interest on Treasury borrowing are authorized to carry out both the production and management aspects of the program.

Loans.—Loans are made to local housing authorities to finance the early costs of project development and modernization of existing projects. These loans are made with available working funds and, when necessary, with funds borrowed from the Treasury for this purpose. Under the Housing Act of 1949, borrowings outstanding at any one time from the Treasury may not exceed $1.5 billion. Outstanding borrowings are estimated at $11 million on June 30, 1971, and $21 million on June 30, 1972.

Technical services.—Technical services are provided to housing authorities during project development by Department construction representatives who assure compliance with specified and acceptable standards. The local housing authorities are charged a fixed fee which pays for the cost of the service. The estimated cost for 1972 is based upon the number of projects estimated to be under construction.

Operation of federally owned and operated project.—As of June 30, 1970, one federally owned, directly operated housing project remained in the program. This project, located at Enid, Okla., contains a total of 80 dwellings. Estimated program receipts and expenses for 1971 and 1972 are based upon the continued Federal operation of this project throughout both years.

Financing.—Loan commitments cover the maximum amount of funds the Department may loan under contract to local housing authorities in developing projects. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 authorizes these loans up to 100% of the total project costs. Experience indicates that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because private financing is relied upon as the major sources of funds for temporary construction loans. Accordingly, section 203(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 amended section 20 of the Housing Act of 1937 so that the ceiling on borrowing authority of $1.5 billion applies only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will actually be disbursed and not to Federal commitments which are not expected to result in actual outlays. The Secretary has initially set the maximum Federal loan exposure factor (i.e., the maximum demand for Federal loans at any one time) at 10% of development loan commitments outstanding.

The following table shows the status of development and other loan commitments:

When the Federal development loans to a local housing authority accumulate to an amount which is attractive to private investors, the authority sells short-term temporary notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make development loans, if necessary, covering up to 100% of the development cost of the project. The notes sold at an average interest rate of 5.26% in 1970.

In 1970, direct Federal loans were refunded through secured loans by private investors in the amount of $699 million. Refunding is estimated at $700 million in 1971 and $750 million in 1972. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods averaging 8 months, and may be reissued several times and in increasing amounts before the project is permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity conducted under the program during any fiscal year greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of that fiscal year.

Normally, public housing projects are permanently financed toward the end of the construction period through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions in sufficient amount to meet principal and interest payments. In 1970 these bonds sold at an average interest rate of 6%. Difficulties in selling bonds have kept a large portion of the financing for public housing in temporary notes. As of June 30, 1970, there were 940,343 dwellings potentially eligible for permanent financing. Of these, 750,935 dwellings had been permanently financed, leaving a potential permanent financing workload of 229,701 dwellings. The estimates for permanent financing based on program status as of June 30, 1970 are as follows:

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950 (12 U.S.C. 1749), as amended, authorizes financial assistance to colleges and eligible hospitals for the construction or acquisition of housing and related facilities such as student centers, dining halls, and infirmaries. This assistance is usually provided through debt service grants which reduce the cost of borrowing on the private market. Grants may be made for a period not to exceed 40 years in amounts equal to the difference between the average annual debt service on loans obtained in the private market, and the average annual debt service which would have been required if the loan had been made at a 3% interest rate.

A limited number of direct Federal loans may be made in cases where eligible applicants are not able to borrow on the private market except at exorbitant interest rates. These loans ordinarily are made for a period of 40 years, at an interest rate set by statute at either 3%, or 0.25% above the average rate on all interest-bearing obligations comprising the Federal debt, whichever is lower. The 1971 rate is 3%.

Budget program.—The 1972 budget proposes support for $300 million of facility construction to be financed, insofar as possible, by private loans. This requires an increase of $9.3 million in annual debt service contract authority. Direct loans totaling not more than $100 million will be available within the $300 million level for those institutions that are unable to finance construction in the private market at reasonable interest rates and terms. Living quarters for approximately 35,000 students, student families, and faculty members will be provided by the 1972 program.

The use of funds available for Federal loan reservations under the direct loan program is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Unreserved balance, end of year.....	2,133,321	1,089,180	660,234

Financing.—Funds for the direct loan program have come primarily through the use of Treasury borrowing authority and from the sale of participation certificates backed by pools of college housing loans held by the Federal Government, as authorized in appropriation acts. The Treasury borrowing authority now totals $3,775 million. Direct Federal loans made in 1971 and 1972 will be funded out of unreserved balances which are expected to total nearly $1.1 billion at the end of fiscal 1971.

Sales of participation certificates, as provided in Public Law 89-429, Participation Sales Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 164), amounted to $600 million in 1967, $1 billion in 1968, and $600 million in 1969. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the college housing bonds underlying the certificates.

The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Interest accrued on participation certificates.....	120,490	90,379	49,379
Interest accrued on an equal amount of loans in the pool.....	-64,307	-45,292	-25,369
Net interest cost.....	56,183	45,087	24,010
Commissions and other expenses.....	1	2	2
Insufficiency.....	56,184	45,089	24,012
Financed by:
Investment income from participation sales fund.....	-3,032	-3,345	-1,998
Budget authority.....	53,152	41,744	22,014
Portion of budget authority applicable to:
Sales authorized in 1967 appropriation act (indefinite appropriation).....	10,563	9,002	8,905
Sales authorized in 1968 appropria- tion act (definite appropriation).....	42,589	32,742	13,109

Part of the available unreserved balances in the College housing fund which exceed program requirements will be used in 1971 and 1972 to redeem outstanding loans placed with the Participation sales fund. Approximately $985 million in 1971 and $422 million in 1972 will be used for this purpose. This will allow the Participation sales fund to meet principal requirements on maturing participation certificates without additional sales, and will reduce the outstanding certificates in the fund.

Normally a private security supported by a debt service grant is sold by the educational institution at the time of construction contract award. In those cases where an institution is unable to obtain funds in the private market, HUD ordinarily will purchase its bond when construction is well advanced. Direct Federal loan disbursements are estimated at $151 million in 1971 and $87 million in 1972. (Budget requirements for debt service grant payments are shown in the Housing payments schedule on page 521 of this budget.)

Operating results and financial condition.—Net income on loans financed from Treasury borrowing is expected to total $6,214 thousand in 1972. This will be offset by a net $22,014 thousand of insufficiencies on outstanding participation certificates, with a resulting net operating loss of $15,800 thousand. This loss will be financed by $22,014 thousand of budget authority provided to meet insufficiencies. It is estimated that retained earnings will be $28.1 million at the end of 1972.

The direct loan program, established by section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, provided loans at 3 percent interest for construction or rehabilitation of rental housing for occupancy by low- and moderate-income elderly or handicapped families.

Budget program.—The section 202 program is now being phased out and the rental housing assistance program (section 236) is absorbing the task of providing such housing. No new reservations will be made for projects in 1971 or 1972 although funds recaptured from projects converting to the section 236 program or from reductions or cancellations of section 202 reservations may be used to adjust reservations on prior contracts. In 1971, obligations resulting from prior year reservations total $35 million.

Financing.—Funds for loans have been provided by appropriations which constitute a revolving fund. Additional financing has been obtained through issuance of certificates of participation in pools of mortgages from this program, as provided by the Participation Sales Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 164). In order to pay the interest on participation certificates, appropriations are required for the difference in the interest rates on the participation certificates and that on the mortgages underlying the certificates. The appropriations required for insufficiencies are computed as presented in the following table.

Operating results.—Estimated retained earnings at the close of the budget year are $48.7 million, in addition to a cumulative allowance for losses of $11.1 million. This position reflects the fact that interest is collected on loans outstanding while no interest is paid on appropriations, the primary source of financing for the program.

The Federal Housing Administration, created by the National Housing Act of 1934, is a noncorporate business-type agency, which was brought under the Government Corporation Control Act by the Housing Act of 1948. The principal purposes of the insurance programs administered under this heading are to improve home financing practices, to encourage improved housing standards and conditions, to further homeownership, and to stabilize the mortgage market. These objectives are achieved through the insurance of loans for financing the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties.

FHA loan insurance was administered through 40 different active programs during 1970, including six insurance programs added by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. The accompanying table identifies the various programs and shows the amount of insurance written and the amount in force as of June 30, 1970 under the individual programs.

For financial purposes, FHA insurance programs are grouped under four separate insurance funds established by statute. The largest insurance fund is the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund for the insurance of mortgage loans on homes under section 203. Under this fund, mortgagors are allowed, at termination of their mortgages, to share in the rebate of premiums paid into the fund which are not required for expenses or losses. Through June 30, 1970, such participation payments to homeowners had amounted to $205 million with $115.9 million reserved for future payments or losses. The Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund covers the insurance of mortgages on management-type cooperatives and supplementary loans under section 213. This fund is mutual also, and the first participation payments were made during 1970 in the amount of $1.6 million.

The General Insurance Fund covers the insurance of loans on property repairs and improvements; on basic and special-purpose multifamily housing, including cooperatives (except management-type cooperatives), condominiums, and housing for the elderly; on urban renewal, middle-income, Armed Forces housing, and on war and defense housing. Insurance of loans for land development, group practice medical facilities, and nonprofit hospitals are also covered by this fund. In addition, the insurance of supplemental loans for the financing of improvements and additions to multifamily projects, nursing homes, and group practice medical facilities is included in the General Insurance Fund.

The Special Risk Insurance Fund was created by the Housing Act of 1968 to carry out mortgage insurance obligations in cases where insurance was written on a mortgage covering property in older, declining urban areas which would not otherwise be eligible for mortgage insurance; on behalf of a high risk mortgagor who would not be eligible for mortgage insurance but who, with counseling, can become an acceptable credit risk; on behalf of a mortgagor receiving interest reduction payments; and on a mortgage covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations is not observed.

Income from fees, premiums, and investments are credited to the funds; operating expenses and other expenses and losses connected with foreclosed property, and defaulted notes and mortgages are charged to the funds. Through June 30, 1970, income had amounted to $5,258.6 million, and expenses, losses, and distributive share payments, to $3,687.3 million, leaving a reserve of $1,571.3 million for the payment of future expenses and losses.

Budget program.—Budget requirements for mortgage and loan insurance operations are embodied in: (1) An administrative expense limitation covering those expenses of the central office related to the general direction of operations, the establishment of policies and procedures, and the provision of administrative management and services for the agency; and (2) a nonadministrative expense limitation covering the operating expenses of both the central office and the field related to the initiation of insurance, the maintenance of insurance on the books, and the settlement activities associated with the payment of claims; the acquisition, management, and disposition of mortgages and properties acquired under mortgage insurance contracts; and the liquidation of notes acquired in connection with claims under property improvement loan insurance contracts. The Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit is responsible for housing production activities under the mortgage insurance and housing subsidy programs, for the servicing of insured home mortgages, and for direction of the property improvement program. The Assistant Secretary for Housing Management is responsible for the servicing of insured multifamily housing mortgages, for the management and disposition of mortgages and properties acquired under mortgage insurance contracts, and for the administration of contracts for housing subsidy payments. Anticipated program developments for 1972 are summarized in the accompanying table, Program Highlights, along with estimates for 1971 and actual data for 1970.

Summary of operating expense estimates.—Operating expenses are paid out of operating income, subject to congressional limitation. Expenses for 1971 are estimated at $14.3 million for administrative operations and $124.8 million for nonadministrative operations. The 1972 estimate is $15.3 million for administrative expenses and $141.2 million for nonadministrative expenses.

Financing.—Through 1965, insurance claims were met largely by the issuance of debentures, which are subsequently redeemed out of income and proceeds from the sale of acquired properties and mortgages. In 1970, $25.8 million of debentures were issued, and $85.8 million were redeemed. In 1971, $18.7 million of debentures will be issued and $68.0 million redeemed. Debenture issuances will total $31.3 million in 1972, and debenture redemptions will total $33.1 million. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized the payment of claims in cash and borrowings from the Treasury as necessary to do so. Home mortgage claims and multi-family housing claims under sections 220, 221, 233, 235(j), and 236 are now being paid in cash. Insurance claims payable in cash will amount to $392.7 million in 1971 and $419.4 million in 1972. Borrowings from the Treasury are expected to total $75.0 million in 1971 and $60.0 million in 1972, including those for the Special risk insurance fund.

The Special risk insurance fund, initiated by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, was capitalized with $5 million advanced from the General Insurance Fund in 1969. During the first few years of operation of a new insurance fund, operating costs generally exceed income from fees and premiums. An additional $10 million was transferred from the General Insurance Fund in 1970. It is expected that $5 million more will be transferred in 1971, bringing the total amount transferred to $20 million, the maximum amount allowable by law. Also, Treasury borrowings of $35 million in 1971 and $15 million in 1972 will be required to pay claims.

Retained earnings.—Insurance reserves, available for the payment of future expenses and losses, amounted to $1,571.3 million at the end of 1970 and are expected to be $1,756.9 million by the end of 1971 and $2,003.4 million by the end of 1972.

Insurance authority.—The authority given to the Department for its insurance operations was extended by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 to October 1, 1972. In general, these authorizations are without dollar limitation, except for the armed services housing program and the credit assistance homeownership program.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 provided that the aggregate amount of participations issued for the account of any trustor may not exceed the amount authorized for that trustor in an appropriation act. In 1967 and 1968, appropriation acts for the Department of Housing and Urban Development authorized sales of $1,420 million and $2,385 million, respectively. Sales of $1,420 million were made in 1967 and $1,605 million in 1968. The $780 million unused balance of the 1968 authorization was used for sales early in 1969.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payments for insufficiencies in the amounts required to be paid by the trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are comprised primarily of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. A permanent, indefinite appropriation is available to cover insufficiencies for sales authorized in 1967, while those authorized in 1968, require annual appropriations. Use of the indefinite and definite insufficiency appropriations are reflected in the following trustor accounts: Housing for the elderly or handicapped fund; college housing fund; public facility loans; and Government National Mortgage Association, special assistance functions and management and liquidating functions funds.

The 1972 budget reflects a substantial decrease in the appropriation requirements for participation sales insufficiencies. This is the result of a program, beginning in 1971, of redeeming certificates as they mature in lieu of reselling them in the private market. Certificates will be redeemed by using the unobligated balances in certain trustee accounts (primarily the college housing fund) to redeem those held in trust. This will reduce the volume of outstanding certificates as well as the interest insufficiencies required.

Through September 30, 1968, this fund purchased and sold preferred stock in the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and made loans to it as needed to support its operations involving the purchase of federally insured or guaranteed mortgages. On that date, the Association redeemed all preferred stock and became a private corporation owned by its common stockholders. All authority for investment in preferred stock of that corporation lapsed.

The fund is still authorized to make loans to the Association. Such loans were made in the first few months of the Association's existence as a private corporation while it arranged lines of credit with commercial banks. In the future, the loan authority will be used only in emergency situations.

The Government National Mortgage Association may, when the President determines it is in the public interest, provide special assistance for the financing of (1) selected types of home mortgages pending establishment of their marketability, and (2) home mortgages as a means of stabilizing homebuilding activities and of contributing to overall economic stability. The fund consists of two types of authorizations—presidential and congressional.

Under presidential authority the Association is authorized to make commitments to purchase and to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages totaling at the end of 1970, $5,510.7 million outstanding at any one time. This authority includes $1.5 billion ($750 million new authorization and $750 million transferred from congressional authority) authorized by the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-351). It is estimated that an additional $6.3 million in 1971 and $6.4 million in 1972 will be transferred to the presidential authorization from the congressional authorization under Public Law 89-117.

Under the congressional authorization, GNMA is authorized, without prior presidential determination, to issue commitments to purchase and to purchase specific types of mortgages. The main congressional program authorizes GNMA under its special assistance functions to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages on low- and moderate-cost single family homes. Mortgages purchased under this authority are confined by law to new construction and may not exceed a fixed principal amount. The Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 reduced the authority to $1,750 million by transferring $750 million to the presidential authorization. It also increased the mortgage limitations to a level comparable with those borne by mortgages insured under section 235(i) of the Homeownership Assistance program.

An earlier congressional program for FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages of $13,500 or less, covering low- and moderate-priced housing on which construction had not commenced at the time application was made for Government National Mortgage Association's commitment, was terminated by Public Law 87-70. Of the $1 billion authorized for this earlier program, the unused portion of $207 million was transferred to the presidential authority, and the remainder is rescinded as purchased mortgages are liquidated. Another congressional program is for $225 million of cooperative housing mortgages insured under section 213 of the National Housing Act, as amended. Another congressional program provided authority for $500 million of mortgages insured under title VIII of the act, covering housing for military personnel and civilian employees. Public Law 89-117 authorized the transfer from this authority to the Presidential authority of all but $58.8 million, which is reserved for mortgages on owner-occupied homes insured under section 809 of the National Housing Act.

Budget program.—Special assistance activity is of three principal types: (1) commitments which are expected to mature into purchases of mortgages which will be held in the GNMA portfolio; (2) commitments which are expected to be sold to a private investor (FNMA) before purchase of the mortgage or which, if a purchase by GNMA results, will be followed by sale of the mortgage to a private investor; and (3) administrative reservations by FHA of GNMA mortgage purchase authority in the below-market interest rate program.

New commitments of the first type are expected to total $26 million in 1971 and $28 million in 1972. Such commitments are primarily for housing rehabilitated under section 235(j) of the Homeownership Assistance program, although provision is made for continuation of other special assistance programs including those to assist housing on Guam and in disaster areas, housing for the elderly, and experimental housing.

Commitments of the second type are estimated at $1,050 million in 1971 and $1,100 million in 1972. These commitments will be under the $650 million authorized presidential program to assist non-profit-sponsored housing built under the Rental housing assistance and Rent supplement program and $500 million for sales housing built under the Homeownership assistance program. The 1972 estimate includes $600 million for the rental housing program and $500 million for homeownership.

No new administrative reservations will be made in 1971 and 1972 in the moderate income, below-market interest rate program (sec. 221(d)(3)). Purchases during these years of below-market interest rate mortgages are estimated at $674 million and $507 million, respectively.

Participations.—Under the program of liquidating the mortgage portfolio through the sale of beneficial interest or participations in mortgages, the Association sold $200 million in 1965, $475 million in 1966, $300 million in 1967, and $250 million in 1968 of participations involving the portfolio of its special assistance functions. No such sales have been made since 1968 or are projected for the future. This program is more fully explained under the participation sales fund.

Under section 302c of the National Housing Act, as amended by Public Law 89-429, receipts from these sales are treated as proceeds from sales of loans and thus restore the Association's authority to purchase additional mortgages. For the purposes of budget presentation, such sales are treated as increases in authority to purchase mortgages.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations, and previous years' sales of participation in mortgage pools. Net borrowings from the Treasury were $731.2 million in 1970, and are estimated at $756.7 million in 1971 and $609.4 million in 1972.

Operating results.—Previously, earnings were paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury following the year earned. A payment of $188.8 thousand was made in 1957, and another payment of $2,444.7 thousand was made in 1958.

Losses of $54.9 million and $67.2 million projected for 1971 and 1972 result primarily from the growing portfolio of mortgages with below-market interest rates which do

Appropriations for insufficiencies will restore $6.7 million of the 1971 losses and $10.8 of the 1972 losses. Public enterprise funds—ContinuedMANAGEMENT AND LIQUIDATING FUNCTIONS—Continued*MANAGEMENT AND LIQUIDATING FUNCTIONS FUND—continued

The Association, under its management and liquidating functions, is required by law to manage and liquidate its initial mortgage portfolio and those other mortgages, loans, or obligations that have been or that may be acquired from authorized sources (Public Law 89-117, approved August 10, 1965). Such liquidation is to be conducted in an orderly manner, with a minimum of adverse effect upon the home mortgage market and minimum loss to the Federal Government. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular principal repayments according to their amortization schedules, by sales of mortgages as rapidly as they can be absorbed by private investors without serious disruption of normal market conditions, and as the result of other principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The initial mortgage portfolio in this activity consisted of mortgages on hand at, or purchased under contracts made before, November 1, 1954. Certain additional mortgages, loans, and other obligations may be acquired for this portfolio from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and residential housing mortgages may also be acquired from any Federal instrumentality from time to time pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 89-117.

Budget program.—Purchases of mortgages under contracts made prior to November 1, 1954, for this portfolio were completed during 1958.

In 1970, GNMA purchased $58.4 million of mortgages from the Federal Housing Administration under these functions. During 1971, purchases of these mortgages are estimated at $50 million, and none are contemplated for 1972.

No direct sales of mortgages were made during 1970, and none are contemplated for 1971. Sales of $230 million are estimated for 1972.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations and sales of participations in mortgage pools. Net repayments to the Treasury were $25.6 million in 1969, $29.3 million in 1971 and are estimated to be $279.6 million in 1972.

Principal repayments on pooled mortgages were transferred to the Participation sales fund for repayment of certificates of participation in the amount of $75.4 million in 1970, and transfers of $76.5 million and $78.1 million are expected in 1971 and 1972, respectively. This program is more fully explained under the Participation sales fund.

Operating results.—Net income, which amounted to $13.6 million in 1970, is estimated at $9.9 million in 1971. A loss of $7.7 million is estimated for 1972. The following table shows the financing of the insufficiencies (in thousands of dollars):

Applicable investment income from Participation sales fund.....	-4,344	-3,692	-4,089

Retained earnings reserved for insufficiencies and other losses and contingencies amounted to $138.1 million at the end of 1970 and are estimated at $148.1 million and $140.3 million, respectively, for 1971 and 1972. Reductions in the amount of retained earnings at the end of 1962, 1963, 1964, and 1965 resulted from payments from earnings of $40 million, $25 million, $15 million, and $15 million, respectively, to the U.S. Treasury, amounts which were considered to be in excess of the Association's needs for losses and contingencies. No payment to the Treasury out of earnings is projected for 1971 and 1972.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorizes the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on trust certificates or other securities issued by any financial institution approved for this purpose, based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed mortgages.

Budget program.—During 1970, GNMA issued guarantees on securities totaling $441 million. Guarantees of mortgage-backed securities are estimated at $1.5 billion for 1971 and $2.1 billion in 1972.

Financing.—In addition to an application fee, guarantee fees and other charges will be assessed issuers of guaranteed securities to cover costs incurred by GNMA in connection with the guarantees and to establish a reserve against possible future payments of claims under the guarantee.

Operating results.—No claims are anticipated. Fee collections are expected to exceed expenses by $698 thousand by the end of 1971 and $1.6 million by 1972. These amounts will be retained to cover future year expenses and as a reserve against losses.

Title III of the National Housing Act, as amended, authorized the Association to create trusts to facilitate the financing of mortgages and other loan obligations owned by Government agencies. Under this authority, the Association sold to private investors participations in the interest and principal collections on pooled loan obligations pledged by various trustor agencies.

Sales of certificates of participation in these pools were shown as borrowing from the public in the budget schedules of the trustor agencies originally owning the loan obligations. Collections on the pooled obligations are transferred to the Association as trustee and invested by the Participation sales fund until distributed to the holders of participation certificates in accordance with the terms of the trust agreement. At this time, they are redistributed to trustor agencies for payment of interest and retirement of certificates.

A total of four separate trusts have been created. The amount of participation certificates originally issued under each is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Trust	Certificates issued
Government Mortgage Liquidation Trust.....	1,790
Small Business Obligations Trust.....	350
Federal Assets Liquidation Trust.....	3,230
Federal Assets Financing Trust.....	4,250

For purposes of budget presentation the operations of these four trusts are combined into a single set of schedules.

The assets pooled in these trusts were pledged by the Veterans Administration, the Small Business Administration, the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare as well as the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The Small Business Obligations Trust will be liquidated in 1971.

Whenever interest collections on pooled obligations together with investment income are insufficient to cover required interest payments and a share of administrative and other costs, the trustor agencies pay to the Association, as trustee, amounts equal to the insufficiencies. The costs of any such insufficiencies are covered by appropriations which appear in the accounts of the trustor agencies.

In the event that principal collections on pooled loans are not sufficient to meet scheduled retirements of participation certificates, the Association, as trustee, may either borrow from the Treasury or sell additional certificates to redeem those coming due. Alternatively, those trustor accounts with unobligated balances available may repurchase pooled loans to provide the cash required for scheduled redemptions. This latter course will be used in the current and budget years, with the College housing fund repurchasing about $980 million of pooled loans in 1971 and $354 million in 1972 to redeem certificates. The retirement of outstanding participation certificates and amounts remaining outstanding are summarized in the following table (in millions of dollars):

This consolidated appropriation provides for housing subsidy payments for the following programs:

- Low Rent Public Housing (Annual Contributions)
- College Housing (Debt Service Grants)
- Rent Supplements
- Homeownership Assistance (section 235)
- Rental Housing Assistance (section 236)

With the exception of low rent public housing, authority to enter into the underlying contracts is approved in appropriation acts. The request for such approval for 1972 appears earlier in this chapter. Authority to enter into contracts under the low rent public housing programs is available without appropriation action.

For the most part, the new contracts are approved by the Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit. The Assistant Secretary for Housing Management is responsible for making the contractual payments and for supervising the management of the housing when completed. As a part of these responsibilities, the Assistant Secretary for Housing Management approves certain types of contracts (such as those for modernization of low-rent public housing projects), contract amendments, and the payment of certain special subsidies.

1. Low rent public housing annual contributions.—Annual contributions contracts are entered into pursuant to the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.). The housing which is assisted is owned and operated by local housing authorities created under State law. In addition to the contractual payment, the Federal Government may also pay additional contributions under certain circumstances. These relate to the size, income, and nature of the tenant family and to the financial condition of the local housing authority.

ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION PAYMENT REQUIREMENTS

[In thousands of dollars]

	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
Number of dwellings, eligible for assistance during the year.....	830,454	936,000	1,028,000
Fixed annual contributions:

Modernization.....	6,551	25,000	45,000
Total fixed annual contributions.....	464,803	607,000	749,500
Deduct amounts available to reduce fixed annual contributions:
Residual receipts.....	-12,833	-12,800	-11,200
Accrued interest.....	-2,471	-3,700	-6,900
Capitalized interest.....	-7,643	-8,500	-16,200
Other.....	-429	-500	-700
Total amount available to reduce fixed annual contributions.....	-23,376	-25,500	-35,000
Annual contribution contractual requirements.....	441,427	581,500	714,500
Additional contributions:
Special family subsidies.....	24,490	35,000	35,000
Rental assistance and operating deficits.....	6,974	38,000	75,000
Total requirements for annual contributions payments.....	472,891	654,500	824,500

The increase in annual contributions requirements from $654.5 million in 1971 to $824.5 million in 1972 is attributable largely to: (1) an increased number of dwellings eligible for annual contributions resulting from the completion or permanent financing of projects approved in prior years; (2) the increased requirements resulting from financing the cost of modernization of existing structures and dwellings; and (3) increased payments to local housing authorities to cover operating requirements as authorized by law.

2. College housing.—Payments under this program result from contracts entered into pursuant to title IV of the Housing Act of 1950 (12 U.S.C. 1749), as amended, which authorizes payment of debt service grants to colleges and eligible hospitals.

Grant payments are made directly to a bank, and are paid semiannually starting with the first interest payment date on the outstanding loan following the date of initial occupancy of the project.

The following table summarizes the debt service payments required in 1972 as compared with 1970 and 1971:

COLLEGE HOUSING PAYMENT REQUIREMENTS

[In thousands of dollars]

	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
Colleges receiving assistance during year.....	-----	65	260
Debt service grant obligations.....	-----	$2,500	$10,000

The increase in payments reflects the rise in the number of projects under management during this period.

3. Rent supplements.—Payments are made pursuant to contracts under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (12 U.S.C. 1701s) which authorizes the Secretary of HUD to pay rent supplements to owners of certain private housing rented to low-income tenants.

Eligible tenants are required to pay 25% of their income for rent. Rent supplements are paid to the project owner to make up the difference between this amount and full economic rent.

The following table presents the units under payment and the amounts needed to make those payments:

RENT SUPPLEMENT UNITS UNDER PAYMENT AT YEAREND AND AMOUNTS

[In thousands of dollars]

Total units under payment.....	30,804	65,400	116,900
Amount of payments.....	$20,725	$46,600	$91,300

The increase in payments reflects a substantial rise in the number of units under management together with a slight increase in the subsidy per unit. This latter factor is a result of rising construction and interest costs during this period.

4. Homeownership assistance.—Payments are made pursuant to contracts under section 235 of the National Housing Act, as amended. Under this program, the Federal Government makes periodic payments on behalf of lower income families purchasing their own homes, reducing the homeowner's monthly payment. The following table sets forth the units under payment and the required assistance payments for 1972 as compared with 1970 and 1971:

HOMEOWNERSHIP UNITS UNDER PAYMENT AT YEAREND AND AMOUNTS

[In thousands of dollars]

Units under payment:	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
New.....	34,728	173,600	332,900
Existing.....	30,805	45,600	67,700
Rehabilitated.....	121	2,200	9,400
Total.....	65,654	221,400	410,000
Contractual payments required.....	$22,190	$117,000	$299,000
Estimated appropriation available.....	-$22,190	-$94,500	-$299,000
Anticipated supplemental.....	-----	$22,500	-----

The increase in required payments reflects the rapid growth in the number of units under payment, the increase in construction costs and the relatively high interest costs prevailing in 1970 and 1971. The requirement for a 1971 supplemental reflects completion of units under contracts more rapidly than had been anticipated previously.

5. Rental housing assistance.—Interest reduction payments are made pursuant to section 236 of the National Housing Act, as amended. These periodic payments on behalf of the owner of the project are passed on to lower income families occupying the units in the form of reduced rent. The following table sets forth the units under payment and the required assistance payments for 1972 as compared with 1970 and 1971:

RENTAL ASSISTANCE UNITS UNDER PAYMENT AT YEAREND AND AMOUNTS

[In thousands of dollars]
	1970 actual	1971 estimate	1972 estimate
Units under payments.....	5,437	94,700	224,400
Contractual payments required.....	$733	$34,850	$151,400
Estimated appropriation available....	-$733	-$20,600	-$149,000
Repayments.....		-$250	-2,400
Anticipated supplemental.....		$14,000

The increase in required payments reflects the rapid rise in the number of units under payment, the steady increase in construction costs during the period, and the relatively high interest rates prevailing in 1970 and 1971. The requirement for a 1971 supplemental reflects completion of units under contract more rapidly than had been anticipated previously.

The Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1955 established a revolving fund for more efficient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs. Out of assets originally capitalized at $2.5 billion, some $415 million has been transferred to other agencies and programs, and $902 million will have been recovered and transferred to the Treasury by the close of 1972. Some $17.9 million in assets, with a net book value of $10.1 million were still in the fund on June 30, 1970.

During 1970, the Public works planning advances, Grants to aid advance acquisition of land, and Alaska housing programs were terminated, and are being transferred to the Revolving fund. These programs had total assets of $97 million and a net book value of $57.2 million at June 30, 1970. The budget statements reflect the consolidation of these programs into the Revolving fund for liquidating programs.

Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 461), as amended, authorizes grants to supplement State and local funds for the purpose of financing comprehensive planning programs concerned with urban and rural development. The process supported by these grants embraces all the basic factors essential to balanced growth and development, and includes: (1) preparation of comprehensive plans, (2) programming of capital improvements and other expenditures, (3) coordination of related plans adopted at various levels of government, and (4) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing. In making grants, primary emphasis is given to those agencies which are in a position to coordinate and implement public policy.

Planning and management assistance is provided under this program to cities, counties, multijurisdictional areas, States, multistate regional commissions, Indian reservations, and organizations of public officials. Generally, grants to communities, counties and nonmetropolitan districts are made through the individual States which submit applications for funds annually on behalf of these bodies. States also receive financial support for programs providing advisory services and technical assistance to local governments, as well as for their own statewide planning and management programs. Other eligible recipients receive grants directly. In addition, up to $10 million, plus 5% of the funds appropriated, may be used for studies, research and demonstration projects aimed at the development and improvement of techniques and methods used in comprehensive planning, and for advancing the purposes of the comprehensive planning assistance program.

Grants usually cover two-thirds of project costs, but may cover up to three-fourths of project costs for planning and management programs in certain designated areas.

In 1972 the comprehensive planning program will be redirected so that it may strengthen State and local decisionmaking capabilities more directly. In recognition of this, grant commitments will double in 1972 to a total

Title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 (20 U.S.C. 801-805; 811), as amended, authorizes: (1) matching grants to States for programs which provide special training and skills needed for efficient community development, and (2) fellowship grants to qualified students preparing for careers in urban public service.

Community development training grants are made to States for training subprofessional and professional personnel employed, or soon to be employed, by public or private nonprofit organizations in the fields of housing or community development. Training of low-income persons in the management of low- and moderate-income housing may be included. Training programs are designed by States to meet their needs, and are conducted in cooperation with Federal agencies, local governments, universities, nonprofit organizations, and urban studies centers. The Secretary is authorized to render technical assistance to States in the development of these programs and to compile and distribute training packages which States find useful in administering their programs. Approximately 50 States and territories will be assisted.

Urban fellowships are intended to attract new students at the graduate level into urban studies fields, in order to increase the supply of trained personnel working with State and local agencies. Some 95 fellowships will be awarded for the academic year beginning in 1971. The program is being terminated at the end of 1971, and no fellowships will be awarded during 1972.

The New Communities Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3911), as amended, and title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970, authorize supplementary grants to local public bodies for certain projects located in new communities. Grants may be made to supplement water, sewer, and open space projects which are being assisted under section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as amended; title VII of the Housing Act of 1961, as amended; or section 306(a)(2) of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961, as amended. In addition, under title VII, grants may be made to supplement assistance provided to projects under section 3 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964; section 120(a) of title 23, U.S.C.; section 19 of the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970; title VI of the Public Health Service Act; title II of the Library Services and Construction Act; section 5 of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965; section 703 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965; section 8 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act; section 103 or 104 of the Higher Education Facilities Act of 1963; or section 101(a)(1) of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965.

A supplementary grant may not exceed 20% of total project cost, nor may the total Federal contribution for a given project exceed 80%. Grants under title IV can be made only if the new community contains (or will contain) a substantial number of housing units for low- and moderate-income persons. In all cases it must be determined that the grant is necessary or desirable for carrying out a new community development project. Grant approvals are expected to total eight in 1971 and six in 1972.

Public enterprise funds:

Note.—The schedule for the following fund is presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The New Communities Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3901), as amended, authorizes the Secretary to guarantee obligations issued by private developers to finance land acquisition and development costs of new communities. To be eligible for a Federal guarantee under this act the proposed community must: (1) be economically feasible; (2) have a satisfactory financial plan; (3) have an internal development plan that is sound and consistent with area-wide planning; and (4) contain a substantial amount of low- and moderate-income housing. Such guarantees can only be made pursuant to offers to guarantee extended prior to December 31, 1970.

Title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-609) also authorizes Federal guarantees for obligations issued to finance land acquisition and development costs of new communities. Under title VII, a new community development program is eligible if it: (1) will provide an alternative to disorderly urban growth; (2) will be economically feasible; (3) will contribute to the welfare of the entire area; (4) is consistent with comprehensive planning for the area; (5) has received all governmental reviews and approvals required; (6) will contribute to good living conditions in the community; (7) makes substantial provision for housing within the means of persons of low and moderate income; and (8) will make significant use of advances in design and technology.

The outstanding principal obligations guaranteed with respect to a single new community development project at no time can exceed $50 million. Additional support for new communities is available through the new community assistance grants program described above.

Budget program.—Guarantee commitments are expected to be made for six new communities in 1971 and 10 new communities in 1972. The following table shows the use of available guarantee authority:

The Model Cities program will be carried out during the first half of 1972 in a manner providing for a smooth transition into the Community Development grant program with a proposed effective date of January 1, 1972. The new program, discussed on page 550, will replace and broaden assistance currently being offered under the Model Cities program, as well as the urban renewal, rehabilitation loan, and water and sewer grant programs. Grants will continue to be made to the Model Cities during the interim for projects and activities which can later be folded into the new program. These grants will be made from appropriations available during 1971 and balances carried into 1972. Although grants will be limited in amount during this period, actual city program activity as reflected in budget outlays will increase as a result of commitments made during 1971 and prior years.

During the transition, the Model Cities program will undertake a series of experiments which will include departures from current approaches in the administration of Federal grants. These "planned variations" will be carried out in a limited number of participating Model Cities to test means of improving Federal and local capacity to respond to urban problems.

To monitor and evaluate the results of these experiments and to assist cities in the transition to the new grant program, contracts for technical assistance and evaluation are being entered into with selected institutions and agencies.

In 1970 and 1971 the appropriation funded the cost of administration of the Model Cities program by the Department. This cost will be financed in 1972 within the appropriation Salaries and expenses, Community Development Programs.

Section 703 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3103) authorizes grants to local public bodies and agencies to help finance multipurpose neighborhood facilities. To be eligible for Federal financial assistance, projects must be: (1) needed to carry out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community services; (2) designed for multipurpose use and must provide a wide range of services and activities needed in the neighborhood; (3) consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community; and (4) conveniently located for use by a significant portion of the low- or moderate-income residents of the area.

Financial assistance provided under this program only covers construction costs. It is up to the local community to schedule and provide services (including those supported by other Federal agencies) designed to meet the needs of the particular neighborhood.

Funding priority is given to neighborhood centers designed to benefit members of low-income families or to otherwise further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Applications are rated on the degree of poverty in the service area and the extent to which the project provides needed services to low-income families in an effective manner. It is anticipated that about 100 projects will receive fund reservations in 1972.

Federal assistance may not exceed two-thirds of project development cost, except in the case of projects located in redevelopment areas designated under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, where three-fourths grants are authorized.

Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 (42 U.S.C. 1500), as amended, authorizes grants to assist public bodies in preserving and creating open space lands which will enhance the urban environment. The program encourages the protection of lands having scenic, recreation, conservation, or historic value, and at the same time promotes orderly patterns of urban growth. Open space projects assisted by this program must be consistent with comprehensive areawide planning, and all applications for grants must be submitted to the appropriate regional planning organization for review and comment. In addition, each project submitted for funding must be part of an areawide long-range acquisition and development program for open space preservation. Grants normally cover up to 50% of total project costs. In all cases, subsequent development of the land must be compatible with approved open space uses.

Budget program.—In 1972 the level of Federal support provided for open space land acquisition and development will increase substantially. Grant reservations will total $200 million, compared with $75 million in each of the four previous years.

Along with the additional funds, a new orientation will be given to the Open space program so that it may meet the rapidly growing recreation needs of urban areas. New emphasis will be given to smaller neighborhood parks in and around cities. These parks will be able to serve more effectively the day-to-day recreation needs of areas where population is growing most rapidly. In many of these areas, the amount of open land is fast disappearing. Consequently, priority will be given to parks which can be developed in a short period of time. Administrative procedures for approving grant requests are being simplified to facilitate prompt land acquisition.

Approximately $115 million of the budget request will be used to develop some 52,000 acres, with emphasis placed on land already in public ownership but not presently available for public use. The 1972 program will devote $85 million to the acquisition of 39,000 acres, with priority given to sites endangered by incompatible land use development.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3102), as amended, authorizes grants to local public bodies and agencies for basic water and sewer facilities. These grants are intended to help urban communities provide water and sewer services, and to promote the effective orderly growth and development of these communities. Under most circumstances, grants may not exceed 50% of project development costs.

In order to receive Federal assistance, projects must improve health or living standards in the community, and must be so designed that sufficient capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area. In addition, the project must be consistent with an officially coordinated or unified program for an areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area.

Beginning January 1, 1972, the water and sewer grant program will be phased out and replaced by the broader community development grant program reflected elsewhere in this chapter. To facilitate transition to the new program, the budget proposes a $100 million program level for the water and sewer grant program during the first 6 months of 1972. This will allow grant approvals for 200 communities. The 1972 program will be financed out of uncommitted funds available at the end of 1971.

This new appropriation finances salaries and expenses of community development programs. These activities were formerly financed under the appropriations Salaries and expenses, Renewal and Housing Assistance, Salaries and expenses, Metropolitan Development, Salaries and expenses, Model Cities and Governmental Relations, and by transfer from the appropriation for Model Cities programs. This change reflects a new alinement of programs, organizations and appropriations of the Department.

Public enterprise funds:

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title IV of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1971, relating to corporations, is shown in the Other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 913.

URBAN RENEWAL

Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.), as amended, authorizes Federal assistance to local public agencies for rehabilitation or redevelopment of slums and blighted areas. Except in special cases, Federal grants defray two-thirds of net project costs.

Several approaches have been developed to treat slum, blighted, and deteriorating areas. These include conventional urban renewal projects, code enforcement, demolition activities, interim assistance for blighted areas, rehabilitation grants in areas certified for renewal in the near future, and the newer approach involving annual action and funding techniques through neighborhood development programs (NDP's). Taken together, the various urban renewal activities provide for clearance and redevelopment, rehabilitation, code enforcement, preservation of historic structures, and replacement or installation of community facilities such as schools, fire stations, libraries, and parks.

The urban renewal program also provides financial assistance and counseling to homeowners and businessmen in renewal areas so that they may rehabilitate their properties, or, if necessary, find suitable residences elsewhere. Grants up to $3.5 thousand may be made for residential rehabilitation by low-income owner-occupants in urban renewal areas who otherwise could not afford to meet the standards of the urban renewal plan. In addition, payments to displacees for moving expenses and actual direct property losses, not otherwise compensated, are authorized up to $200 per family and $25 thousand per business. Eligible families, elderly people, and small businesses may receive relocation adjustment payments to ease the financial burden accompanying relocation in new accommodations. Maximum relocation adjustment payments are $2,500 for eligible businesses and $1 thousand for eligible families and individuals. Also, relocation payments up to $5 thousand are available to owner-occupants to assist them in acquiring safe, decent, and sanitary dwelling units. The full costs incurred by communities in relocating families, individuals, and businesses displaced from urban renewal areas are covered by Federal payments. Payments will be subject to adjustment when the Uniform Relocation Act of 1970 is implemented.

Planning advances, temporary project financing, and long-term financing of land disposed under lease agreements through direct or guaranteed loans are provided from a Treasury borrowing authorization of $1 billion.

About 1,100 localities were participating in urban renewal programs on June 30, 1970.

URBAN RENEWAL PROGRAMS

For grants for urban renewal, fiscal year [1971] 1972, as an additional amount for urban renewal programs, as authorized by title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.), and section 314 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1452a), [$1,200,000,000] $600,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of any appropriation in this Act shall be used for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for grants aggregating more than the total of amounts available in the current year from the amounts authorized for making such commitments through June 30, 1967, plus the additional amounts appropriated therefor. Budget program.—Beginning January 1, 1972, the urban renewal programs will be phased out, and replaced by the broader community development grant program reflected elsewhere in this chapter. To facilitate transition to the new program, the budget proposes that $600 million of new budget authority be enacted to provide for urban renewal assistance grant reservations during the first 6 months of 1972. Together with the $200 million of unreserved authority available at the end of 1971, this will fund $800 million of new reservations in the budget year.

1. Conventional projects and neighborhood development programs.—Grant reservations for urban renewal projects and NDP's are estimated at $797 million in 1972. Of this amount $397 million will be used for ongoing conventional projects where costs have exceeded the initial grant reservation for reasons beyond the control of the local public agency. A total of $300 million will be used to continue NDP's started in prior years. The remaining $100 million will be available for new NDP starts. NDP provides a faster method of carrying out the renewal process, permitting an immediate start on rehabilitation, public improvement, and redevelopment activities. Consequently, all new renewal projects approved in 1972 will be carried out through the NDP approach.

2. Code enforcement.—Grants can be made to local governments for programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas. These grants may cover three-fourths of program costs in communities under 50,000 population and two-thirds of the cost in localities over 50,000 population. Certain public improvements which are necessary to arrest the decline of the area are eligible for grant assistance when undertaken as part of a concentrated code enforcement program. No new grant commitments will be made for this activity in 1972.

3. Community renewal.—Grants to localities cover two-thirds of the cost of preparing community renewal programs. These programs provide for analysis of renewal needs on a communitywide basis, including determinations of the economic base available to support renewal in terms of both current conditions and future market prospects; appraisal of physical, social, and financial resources of the area; the development of community renewal goals; and a schedule for accomplishing these goals. No additional community renewal programs will be funded in 1972.

4. Demolition.—Grants are available to city or county governments covering up to two-thirds of the net cost of demolishing structures which are structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation under State or local law. Grants are only approved after the local governing body has exhausted other legal procedures to secure remedial action by the owners. No new grants will be made in 1972.

5. Interim assistance.—Grants are authorized to help localities carry out limited short-term programs to temporarily alleviate harmful conditions in slums and severely blighted areas for which renewal is planned in the near future. No new grants will be made in 1972.

6. Certified areas.—Participating localities may make rehabilitation grants up to $3.5 thousand to owner-occupants of one- to four-dwelling-unit residential properties in areas certified for rehabilitation or code enforcement in the near future. No new grants will be made in 1972.

7. All other.—Other forms of renewal support include demonstration grants to develop and test new or improved techniques, rehabilitation grants for properties uninsurable due to physical hazards, and reimbursement to the urban renewal loan fund for uncollectable planning advances and interest on terminated projects. Beginning in 1972 section 314 demonstration grants will be funded under the appropriation available for urban technology and research. Reimbursement to the urban renewal loan fund for terminated projects is estimated at $3 million for both 1971 and 1972.

Budget program.—Treasury borrowing authority of $1 billion is available to assist in financing the planning and execution of urban renewal programs with the following types of commitments:

1. Planning advances.—Advances provide for costs directly associated with planning conventional urban renewal projects. They are repayable with interest from funds made available to the project during the execution stage.

2. Temporary loans.—Short-term direct Federal loans provide initial financing for urban renewal projects and NDP's under contract. Thereafter, working capital is generally provided by borrowings from the private market secured by pledge of the Federal loan commitment. Temporary loans are repaid from proceeds of land sales and from local and Federal cash grants.

3. Definitive loans.—Definitive loans permit the disposition of project land through long-term leases in lieu of sale at the option of the community. In such cases, commitments are issued to secure private financing for the net value of redeveloped land.

Loan commitments cover total expenditures by the local public agency in carrying out a project. Both the statute and experience recognize that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because: (1) project expenditures take place over several years; (2) early borrowings are progressively retired with funds provided from local and Federal grants and the sale of land; (3) private financing (guaranteed with a pledge of the Federal loan commitment) is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary loans and definitive loans.

Cumulative loan commitments will be $13,198 million by the end of 1972, but this amount will have been reduced by $6,440 million in repayments and commitment waivers, leaving a net outstanding commitment of $6,758 million on June 30, 1972. The maximum Federal exposure (i.e., maximum demand on Federal loans at any one time) is estimated at $822 million on June 30, 1972. This exposure is estimated at 12% of temporary loans, 18% of definitive loans, and 75% of planning advance commitments.

Unutilized commitments.....	2,055,848	2,174,474	2,646,329

Financing.—Borrowing authority previously committed is replenished by means of: (1) repayment of planning advances; (2) cancellation of temporary loan commitments; and (3) the repayment of direct Federal or guaranteed non-Federal loans from project settlement funds, including proceeds from the sale of land and Federal and local grants. Repayments of Federal temporary loans from the proceeds of non-Federal guaranteed loans, estimated to total $363 million in 1972, are reflected in the program and financing statement.

Operating results.—The use of grant appropriations is authorized to repay Treasury borrowing otherwise unrecoverable due to losses on planning advances and interest for terminated projects. The deficit resulting from capital grant payments and from uncollectable planning advances for terminated projects has been offset by the appropriation of funds for such purposes.

Section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes loans to owners or tenants of properties in urban renewal, neighborhood development, and code enforcement project areas, certified areas, and certain other areas covered by Fair Access to Insurance Requirements (FAIR) plans where properties are uninsurable due to physical hazards. Loans may be made at an annual interest rate not exceeding 3% and for terms not exceeding 20 years. The program finances the rehabilitation required to make a property conform to applicable public standards. These low-interest rate loans provide a method of financing private rehabilitation where necessary repairs otherwise might not be feasible due to the economic circumstances of the property owners or their inability to obtain financing from other sources. Maximum loan amounts generally are $12 thousand for each residential unit and $50 thousand for business properties. Rehabilitation loans made to date have averaged about $3,750 per residential unit and about $25,900 each for nonresidential properties.

Local public agencies engaged in a rehabilitation program handle the initial contacts with potential loan applicants. While program administration and final loan approval authority generally are vested in the HUD regional offices, qualified local agencies have been authorized to approve rehabilitation loans in some areas. FHA insuring offices furnish appropriate technical services. The Government National Mortgage Association arranges and supervises loan servicing by private institutions, except in the case of business loans, which are processed, closed, and serviced by the Small Business Administration. Costs for acquired security and collateral are incurred when defaulted loans are returned to the Department by private banking institutions servicing the loans because normal servicing and collection procedures show no

Budget program.—Beginning January 1, 1972, the rehabilitation loan program will be phased out and replaced by the broader community development grant program reflected elsewhere in this chapter. To facilitate transition to the new program, the budget proposes that $40 million of new budget authority be enacted for rehabilitation loans, for use during the first 6 months of 1972. Together with about $10 million of unreserved balances and receipts becoming available during 1972, this amount will fund $50 million of new loans in the budget year. The budget is based on the following volume of loan activity:

	Approvals—net

Operating results.—Operating losses are estimated to be $3,081 thousand in 1971 and $1,275 thousand in 1972, mostly attributable to an increase in the reserve for losses proportional to the increase in outstanding loans.

The Housing Amendments of 1955 (42 U.S.C. 1491), as amended, authorize direct long-term loans to municipalities and other instrumentalities of States and Indian tribes for financing construction of public facilities. In some cases, private nonprofit corporations also may receive loans for construction of water or sewer facilities in communities under 10,000. Loans can carry maturities up to 40 years and are made only when credit is not otherwise available on reasonable terms and conditions.

Communities with populations up to 50,000 are eligible for public facility loans, but priority is given to municipalities under 10,000 population needing funds to construct water, sewer, or gas distribution systems. Other eligible recipients include communities in redevelopment areas (as designated by the Secretary of Commerce) with populations up to 150,000, new communities authorized by title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, and communities in which a National Aeronautics and Space Administration research or development installation is located.

Public facility loans must be of sound value or adequately secured so as to provide reasonable assurance of repayment. Interest rates are set by statute at 0.5% above the average rate on all interest-bearing obligations comprising the Federal debt, or 3%, whichever is higher. The current interest rate is 6%.

Budget program.—Net loan approvals are estimated at $65 million in 1972. This will allow loan approvals for an estimated 115 projects.

Financing.—The loan program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization totaling $600 million. This authorization is adequate to finance the program through the period covered by this budget. In the past, participation certificates in pools of public facility loans have been sold as authorized by Public Law 89-429. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the public facility loans underlying them. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Budget outlays are estimated at $45.5 million in 1971 and $36.5 million in 1972.

Operating results and financial condition.—The estimated net operating loss of $4.1 million in the budget year is largely attributable to the $3.6 million loss on participation certificates (offset by a $3.6 million appropriation). That portion of the loss which is not offset by appropriation will bring the cumulative deficit at the end of 1972 to $20.3 million, of which $14.1 million represents the allowance for losses.

The Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968 (originally enacted as title XI of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968) added to the National Housing Act, as a new title XII, the National Insurance Development program. This statute provides (1) a program for reasonable access to basic and essential property insurance in urban areas, especially those believed to be subject to the risk of riot and civil disorder, and (2) a program for direct writing of crime insurance at affordable rates by the Federal Government after August 1, 1971, in any State in which a critical market unavailability situation exists which has not been met through suitable State action.

ernment. First, private insurers, working together and with the State insurance authority, establish within a State a statewide plan to provide property owners in urban areas an opportunity to obtain basic property insurance. The plan is usually referred to as the State FAIR (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) Plan. Second, each State, if the benefits of Federal assistance are to be made available, must enact legislation providing for a sharing of the insured losses resulting from riots and civil disorders. Third, the Federal Government provides an opportunity to spread the risk of riot and civil disorder loss on a nationwide basis through reinsurance to private carriers at premium charges deemed adequate to meet expected losses.

The crime insurance program provides for issuance of direct policies of insurance covering burglary, robbery, theft, and related perils through the services and facilities of private insurance companies. Insurance is to be written at an affordable premium rate (a rate which would permit the purchase of a specific type of insurance by a reasonably prudent person in similar circumstances with due regard to the costs and benefits involved). Policies may include appropriate deductible and coinsurance provisions and shall be available only on properties that meet underwriting requirements, including reasonable protective measures and devices to prevent or reduce loss.

Budget program.—1. Riot reinsurance claims.—This represents the amount which the Federal Government pays under its riot and civil disorder reinsurance. Although provision has been made for future claims, there is currently insufficient experience to estimate such claims with any great degree of accuracy.

2. Crime insurance.—Insurance claims (including loss adjustment expenses) are estimated at 60% of direct earned premiums, a somewhat higher ratio than that obtaining in the voluntary private market, but reflecting loss-preventive measures and policy terms and conditions. Operating expenses of private insurance companies as fiscal agents are estimated at 40% of direct written premiums, a slightly lower ratio than in the private market.

3. Studies and surveys.—This represents the costs of conducting a study of reinsurance and other means to help assure an adequate market for burglary and theft and other property insurance in urban areas and adequate availability of surety bonds for construction contractors in urban areas; the report on these studies was issued in July 1970. For 1971 and 1972, this item includes expenses incurred for continuing reviews of the crime insurance market availability situation in each State, as required by law.

4. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative expenses to the Government of operating the program.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $250 million from the Treasury to carry out the reinsurance and direct insurance programs. Appropriations are also authorized if needed to maintain the fund in an operative condition adequate to meet its liabilities. Each of the programs is expected to bear its own losses and expenses; no commingling of reserves from riot reinsurance for crime insurance operations is anticipated except for interim financing. It is estimated, however, that administrative expenses and claims will continue to be paid from premium income and income from holdings of Government securities. Thus, no borrowings or appropriations are anticipated.

Operating results.—It is estimated that in 1971—as in prior years—income will exceed claims and administrative expenses, permitting fund reserves to grow to $65 million by the end of 1971. Such a reserve is estimated to be sufficient to sustain claims arising from a group of major national civil disorders. Estimates for 1972 envision that net premium and interest income for each program will approximately equal claims and expenses.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 authorizes a cooperative program by the Federal Government and the private insurance industry to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Coverage is available for one- to four-family residential property and small businesses, and may subsequently be extended to other types of property. The face amount of flood insurance outstanding at any given time may not exceed $2.5 billion.

Private insurance companies sell and service the flood insurance policies written under this program. Those companies wishing to participate as riskbearers commit risk capital to an industry pool and share in the operating expenses and profits and losses of the program. Other companies participate in a non-risk-bearing capacity, acting only as fiscal agents for the pool.

As part of the flood insurance program the Government also provides reinsurance coverage to the industry pool.

Flood insurance may be sold only in communities which undertake to enact and maintain in force appropriate land-use and land-management measures designed to reduce future flood losses; such measures must be provided not later than December 31, 1971. Under the permanent flood insurance program, studies must be made of differential flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish appropriate premium rates on a sound actuarial basis, although limited amounts of coverage may be made available to existing properties for a reduced premium; the difference between the actuarial and chargeable rates is a measure of the Federal Government subsidy provided by the program.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 authorized an emergency program which permits insurance until December 31, 1971, at the subsidized chargeable premium rate without prior studies to determine actuarial rates. The requirements for effective land use and land management measures continue to apply.

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—This represents the Government's share of the allowable costs to the flood insurance pool of initiating and maintaining 70,000 and 130,000 insurance policies in force at June 30, 1971, and 1972, respectively. The Federal Government's share is estimated at 90%, based upon the relationship between the actuarial and chargeable premium rates under the permanent program and upon an agreed formula under the emergency program.

2. Loss and adjustment expense.—This represents an estimate of the Federal Government's share, 90%, of insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expenses. The Federal share is the same as for insurance underwriting expense.

3. Interest expense.—Funds to defray Federal loss and expense payments to the flood insurance pool are derived, in the first instance, from borrowings from the Treasury.

4. Studies and surveys.—Studies to determine areas having special flood hazard and to determine appropriate actuarial premium rates are conducted by other Federal agencies under reimbursable agreements.

5. Administration.—This represents the administrative expenses of the Government in operating the insurance and reinsurance programs.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $250 million from the Treasury to carry out the program. Borrowings are estimated to total $1,852 thousand by the end of 1972; it is anticipated that an appropriation will be sought for 1973 to restore the borrowing authority. Administrative expenses and costs of studies and surveys are paid from appropriated funds.

Operating results.—Cumulative expenses are estimated to exceed revenue from reinsurance premiums by $15.6 million by the end of 1972. The cumulative deficit will have been financed by cumulative appropriations of $14 million and charges against borrowing authority of $1,852 thousand.

Title V of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-609) directs the Secretary to undertake programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to the missions and programs of the Department. These functions may be carried out both through contracts and grants. Additional authority for such a research program is provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965.

1. Operation Breakthrough.—Operation Breakthrough is a program designed to develop and test innovations in housing design, construction, land use, financing, management and marketing. The objective of the program is to develop a self-sustained mechanism for providing volume production of marketable housing at stable or reduced costs for all income groups. In 1972 the construction, testing, and evaluation of Operation Breakthrough prototype projects will continue. During this period, increasing emphasis will be given to encouraging large volume production of the systems and methods developed in Operation Breakthrough.

2. Other contracts, studies and performance of research.—The activities in this category are carried out primarily through contracts and grants with industry, nonprofit research organizations, educational institutions, and agreements with other Federal agencies. In 1972, major emphasis will be given to developing ways to improve housing management and prevent the deterioration and abandonment of housing. Other program areas receiving continued emphasis include: Developing municipal and regional information systems, gathering and evaluating data on housing and mortgage markets, applying university resources to urban problems, improving the environment of communities, and strengthening State and local government capabilities to deal with urban problems. Further work will be pursued in areas designed to increase understanding of the processes of urban growth, development, and renewal.

3. Administrative expenses.—This activity covers the cost of general planning, supervision, and direction of the research program in the central office and field. It also covers the cost of administering related research activities including urban planning research and demonstrations, and studies and publications under the open space land program.

The unobligated contract authority was rescinded by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-609). The outlays for this program in 1971 and 1972 represent payments to liquidate prior year obligations for demonstration projects nearing completion.

2. Housing studies.—Contract authority of $2.5 million for a program of housing studies was enacted in the Housing Act of 1956 (12 U.S.C. 1701d-3). 3. Study of housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 1456) required a study of housing and building codes and zoning and tax policies which was completed by a Presidential commission.

housing; and (7) Executive Order 11458 which established the Office of Minority Business Enterprise in the Department of Commerce to coordinate Government activities in this area. The Assistant Secretary for Equal Opportunity is responsible for liaison with that office and for coordinating the Department's effort to encourage minority enterprise.

This appropriation financed administrative costs of assistance to nonprofit housing sponsors, regulation of interstate land sales, and administration of the rent supplement program. It is being eliminated as part of a general realignment of programs, organization, and appropriations. The activities will be financed in 1972 principally from the appropriations Salaries and expenses, housing production and mortgage credit programs; and Salaries and expenses, housing management programs.

The Working capital fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, administrative services which can be performed more advantageously on a centralized basis. It was authorized by section 7(f) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 670) and was established in June 1968.

Budget program.—The main activities are printing and reproduction, central supply, communication services, data processing, and graphic services. The printing and reproduction activity handles all printing including in-plant, GPO, and private contract work. Central supply handles all procurement for the Department, develops programs for storage of supplies and equipment, and manages personal property. Communications includes telecommunications and the correspondence and mail function, primarily. Data processing provides complete ADP services for program operations and for such administrative functions as departmental payroll, personnel, finance and accounting, budgeting, nonexpendable property inventories, and related common services. Graphics provides photographic and design services along with preparation of visual presentations, displays, exhibits, illustrated visual aids, and administrative management graphics (charts, maps, diagrams, etc.).

Financing.—As authorized in the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1968 (Public Law 90-121), $1,500 thousand was transferred in 1968 from the unobligated balance of the Revolving fund for liquidating programs to provide capital for the Working capital fund. An appropriation of $4,338 thousand was received in 1970 for replacement of the main large-scale computer then in use and for related data processing equipment. No appropriations were requested for 1971, and none are requested for 1972.

Legislation will be proposed to consolidate and simplify a number of existing categorical grant and loan programs into a community development grant program. The new program will replace and broaden assistance currently being offered under the Model cities program, the Urban renewal program, the Rehabilitation loan program, and the Water and sewer program. Additional categorical loan and grant programs presently administered by the Department may be merged with community development grants in 1973.

The budget assumes that authorizing legislation for the proposed Community development grant program will be enacted prior to January 1, 1972. During the transition period, the narrower categorical grant and loan programs listed above will continue in operation. Funds have been requested for these programs to allow commitments during the first 6 months of 1972. Beginning January 1, 1972, these programs will be phased out and replaced by the broader community development grant program. Funds budgeted for the first 6 months of 1972, however, will be available for use in conjunction with the new program.

Records improvement.—The modernized records system will continue to be implemented in California. Micro-filming cadastral survey records on a township basis will be in progress.

Land classification and mineral examination.—Provides realty services to the public and field examination and classification for land petitions-applications, realty transactions, mining and mineral leasing activity, land inventory and analysis, and prevention and detection of trespass. Increases are included for improved land services and land appraisals, surface protection in conjunction with mineral leases and permits, and development of a land-use plan for northern Alaska.

Range management.—Provides efforts to improve utilization of rangelands available for grazing by livestock and wildlife and constituting the watersheds of western river basins. Implementation of plans already formulated will continue.

Forestry.—Forest management and development provides a sustained yield of timber to meet national and regional demands for wood products and to contribute to the economy of timber-dependent communities. Receipts from timber sales are estimated to be $84½ million in 1972.

Soil and watershed conservation.—Public lands constitute major watershed areas of western river basins. This subactivity provides efforts to halt deterioration from erosion, to improve vegetative cover, to augment water penetration into groundwater storage reserves, to improve water quality by reducing pollution and sediment runoff, and to reduce destructive flood runoff.

Fire protection.—Provides contract and force account protection of public land resources and improvements from loss by wildfires. Increases will provide for increased costs of contract protection with other agencies and will improve the Bureau's initial attack and fire-support capabilities.

Recreation and wildlife.—Provides for fish and wildlife habitat management studies, planning and habitat improvement; and recreation management, planning, and site investigation on Bureau-administered lands. Increases will permit comprehensive planning for public land areas including the California desert and the Lower Colorado River Valley as well as the enhancement of public land wildlife resources.

Alaska pipeline inspection.—Provides for and is available only for inspection and surveillance, and other work necessitated by a possible trans-Alaska oil pipeline. All such costs connected with this work shall be reimbursed by the pipeline right-of-way applicants, if the permit is issued.

Alaska.—Surveys are performed on lands selected by the State for transfer under the Alaska Statehood Act, for native townsites, for native allotments and for other special purposes and constitute a large part of the planned program.

Other States.—Surveys are performed to obtain positive land identification as a prerequisite to resource management and improvement. Resurveys are often required to reestablish lost corners. Increases will provide additional cadastral survey capability to facilitate Federal land and resource management programs.

4. Firefighting and rehabilitation.—Provides for the suppression of fires burning on or near the public lands under Bureau jurisdiction. Program provides for both contract protection with other fire control agencies as well as the Bureau's own fire control forces. Rehabilitation of burned over areas is accomplished to restore land productivity and preserve watersheds. A supplemental appropriation for 1971 is anticipated for separate transmittal. Increase of $9 million in 1972 is based on 4-year average.

5. General administration.—Provides executive direction and general administrative services, such as financial management, personnel management, management analysis, procurement, and property management to support Bureau activities.

3. Operation and maintenance.—Provides for the operation and maintenance of access roads and recreation facilities in western Oregon.

The Oregon and California act provides that the Oregon and California counties shall receive 75% of the gross revenue from these lands. The appropriation act provides that one-third of the amount which would have been due them from receipts (which is 25% of the gross receipts) shall be deposited to the general fund of the Treasury as reimbursement for the amount appropriated under this title.

1. Educational assistance, facilities and services.—The Bureau operates Federal school facilities where public schools are not available or cannot meet the special needs of Indian children. Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children where tax-free Indian lands result in financial problems for the local districts and where other special problems exist that are not covered by Federal impact legislation, administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The level of this assistance will be increased to meet the needs of the public schools for increased costs and increased enrollments. Grants are made to Indian students attending college. These grants will be increased to meet the needs of additional students and to offer student aid at a more adequate level. Federal school plans include increased enrollment in boarding and day schools and in dormitories housing public school students; adequate base funding of the Indian education program; and for training of Indian paraprofessional staff in Federal schools. The education program plans also provide for the employment of Indian education coordinators and for the operation of schools by Indian school boards. The numbers of children enrolled in Bureau schools and dormitories and those receiving college aid are as follows:

This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of financing for Indians who cannot borrow from other Government credit agencies or from ordinary commercial lenders because of their low economic status, isolated geographic location, lack of bankable security, or for other reasons (25 U.S.C. 70n-1; 443; 470; 470a; 473a; 482; 506; and 631). Loans are made to tribes and other Indian organizations for relending to individual members and groups of members, to finance tribal business enterprises; and to help tribes attract industries to operate in localities that will promote the economic development of the Indians. Loans are also made to tribes for use by them in obtaining expert assistance for the preparation and trial of claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. Direct loans are made to cooperative associations and individual Indians for any purpose that will promote the economic development of the borrower, including loans for educational purposes.

An additional appropriation will be requested if legislation is enacted to authorize a loan guaranty and insurance program.

Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning water, land, and mineral resources, and supervises the prospecting, development, and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands.

1. Special resource and environmental projects.—Multi-disciplinary projects drawing on a broad sector of Survey's competence are developed to address a particular resource or environmental problem at a specific point in time. The projects to be continued in 1972 are: (a) Urban pilot area studies which are intended, through acquisition, presentation, interpretation, and use of physical environmental and resource data in selected urban areas, to develop a better understanding of the data's value in urban decisionmaking, determine the best means of presenting such data on a national basis, improve the effectiveness of environmental data programs and environmental planning generally; and (b) Arctic Alaska resource investigations which will provide timely, co-ordinated topographic, geologic, hydrologic, and resource evaluation and management data needed to protect the environment, manage public lands and resources, and develop the natural resources in the Arctic.

2. Alaska pipeline related investigations.—Funds for this activity will provide the topographic, geologic, and hydrologic data needed by the Federal Government for critical engineering and management decisions concerning possible right-of-way permits and construction (route, design characteristics, and construction practices) of a trans-Alaska oil pipeline. All such costs connected with this work shall be reimbursed by the pipeline right-of-way applicants if the permit is issued.

3. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps portray the elevation, shape, and position of the natural and manmade features of the earth's surface. These maps, at various scales, are a fundamental part of the background information required to inventory, develop, and manage the natural resources of the country and to provide a visual and accurate display of its physical environment. They also have numerous other uses such as the location and development of highways and lines of communications, urban planning, and military and civil defense. It is estimated that topographic surveys and mapping completed during 1971, added to surveys already available, will result in a total of about 3,050,000 square miles of coverage (about 84% of the United States) in either the 7½- or 15-minute standard map series. In addition, it is expected that about 20,000 square miles of existing coverage in the 15-minute series will be resurveyed in 1971 for the 7½-minute series. During 1972, mapping of about 95,000 square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be started. About 43,000 square miles of revision and about 100 special maps at various scales will be added to the program.

4. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—The continuing national program of geologic research and investigations produces: (a) New or improved methods, techniques, and instruments for mineral exploration on land and on the submerged continental margins; (b) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks and mineral deposits at and beneath the surface of the earth including the Nation's continental shelves and slopes; (c) information on the chemistry and physics of the earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified; and (d) geologic data that are directly applicable to urban development, land utilization, and the solution of land construction problems. The 1972 program provides increases for geological surveys, primarily of the public lands; for earthquake studies and for offshore reconnaissance geologic mapping of the continental shelves.

5. Minerals discovery loan program.—In order to help find new sources of many of our essential minerals that are in short supply, the Federal Government is continuing to provide financial assistance to private industry for promising exploration projects.

6. Water resources investigations.—The continuing national program of water resources investigations has the objective of seeing that the Nation's water resources are appraised and that the necessary water data to develop and manage them efficiently are available when needed. The program produces data and information relevant to the flow and sediment discharge of rivers, location and quantity of underground waters, chemical quality and temperature of waters, changes caused by nature and by man, availability and suitability of water supplies for present and future demands—all of which are essential to water planning and management. Included in the program is the research needed to increase our understanding of fundamental principles of water occurrence, movement, and interaction with its environment, and also to increase the accuracy and usefulness of water data through improvements in technology. Increased funds for 1972 are requested to expand activities in data-deficient segments of the national water data system—the Federal program in those areas of primarily Federal interest and the Federal-State cooperative program in those areas of mutual interest to Federal and State Governments—and to intensify hydrologic investigations of subsurface waste storage.

7. Conservation of lands and minerals.—This program provides for: (a) The classification of federally owned lands for the leasable minerals and sites for development of water resources, and (b) the supervision of prospecting, development, and production of minerals and fuels from leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands. Mineral classification is basic to informed mineral leasing. It determines whether leases which issue shall be competitive or noncompetitive, thus in effect ascertaining the legally applicable royalty rates. Classification also identifies the areas of mineral-rich public land which, as such, are leased competitively, and it provides the data on which to evaluate the fair market value for minerals so leased. It retains the ownership of leasable minerals in the Government in event of surface disposal of public mineral lands and provides information for protecting mineral values of Federal lands used for other purposes. Proper supervision of oil and gas and mining operations protects the environment and insures the safe and orderly development and maximum recovery of the Nation's leasable mineral resources and an equitable royalty return to the United States and the Indians from mineral development of leased lands. The evaluation of marine mineral resources incorporates the analysis of both geologic data from drilling on leased lands and geophysical data from exploration on all lands. It provides information for determining minimum acceptable bids for new offshore lease tracts offered for sale. It also provides basic geologic and engineering data which are essential to proper resource development, calculation of reserves, determination of productive capacity of oil and gas fields, and to decisions regarding conservation of offshore oil and gas resources. Increased funds for 1972 will finance inspections and other work required by increased oil and gas development and production on OCS leases. They will also provide for an increase in the resource inventory and classification of Federal coal lands and inspection of coal mining operations on Federal leases with primary emphasis on environmental protection. Royalties from leased Federal OCS, and Indian lands are expected to be about $440 million in 1972.

8. Earth resources observation systems.—The 1972 program will provide for Interior's continuing research into data applications and benefits, investigations, and initial design of a resources inventory information system, and the acquisition and analysis of aircraft geophysical surveys and high-altitude photography. Emphasis will be placed on the evaluation of applications, the development of a data use and reproduction capability and on the use and incorporation of aircraft and spacecraft data in a national inventory of resources.

Reimbursable obligations.—An unobligated balance of $400 thousand is carried forward each year to pay the expenses of reimbursable work pending collection from cooperating agencies. This advance is not available for obligations.

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Research.—(a) Coal.—Coal research is carried out to maintain the technological competence necessary to achieve maximum utility from this vast resource and help satisfy increasing national energy requirements. To this end, the research effort is directed toward advancing coal utilization technology, developing economic and more efficient methods of converting coal to cleaner energy forms, and improving methods to manage coal wastes and reduce coal-related pollutants.

(b) Petroleum.—Research is devoted to providing more petroleum and natural gas and greater efficiency in the extraction and utilization of these energy resources in the interest of the national welfare. Attention is directed to increasing the resource base through improved technology; developing new uses and products from oil and gas of higher quality and lower cost; and improving the environment by identifying and combatting the causes of pollution. The 1972 budget provides for initiation of a research program to evaluate the problems and potentials of disposing of industrial wastes by injection underground. Such research is based on knowledge gained in research on recovery of petroleum by fluid injection and investigations of oil and gas reservoir properties.

(c) Oil shale.—Oil shale research is conducted to provide the scientific and engineering competence needed to establish and administer a national oil shale policy to insure its efficient development. Additionally, the program will help stimulate industry to initiate the commercial production of shale oil and associated oil shale minerals. Of particular interest are in situ techniques for retorting ungraded shale; problems dealing with the disposal of resultant wastes; and the chemical and physical properties of kerogen and shale oil.

(d) Metallurgy.—Research is carried out seeking new and improved processes to extract, recover, purify, fabricate, and recycle metallic and nonmetallic minerals for the most efficient utilization of this Nation's resources attainable through increased production, reduced costs, and a minimum of waste. Of particular interest are research leading to advanced metallurgical technology, abatement of pollution from metallurgical process effluents and gases, management of mineral wastes, improvement of mineral materials, and research on effective recovery and reuse of mineral materials from urban wastes. The 1972 budget provides for expansion of urban refuse separation research and other solid waste-related research.

(e) Mining.—Mining research is conducted to develop improved extractive systems through technological advancement of fundamental subsystems elements to increase significantly total output at the least cost. An integral part of this objective is provision for the maintenance of health and safety and preservation of the environment. The 1972 budget provides for transfer of the methane drainage program to the Health and Safety Research activity.

(f) Marine mineral mining.—The marine mineral mining research program has been transferred to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration under the President's Reorganization Plan Number 4 of 1970. The 1971 estimate provides for operation of the program prior to transfer. The remainder of the 1971 appropriation has been transferred to NOAA and does not appear in the Interior budget for 1972.

(g) Explosives.—Explosives and explosions research is conducted to provide technologic information and guidance to Federal, State, and local government agencies, and industry on: Safe handling and use of commercial explosives and blasting agents; safety characteristics of explosives certified for use in underground mines where gas/dust explosions might occur; hazards associated with flammable liquids and gases and potentially explosive chemicals of commerce; and the means of combating and controlling fires and explosions occurring in minerals and mineral fuels.

2. Resource development.—(a) Statistics.—Mineral statistical programs and systems are carried out. Reports on mineral production and consumption are issued for use of Federal, State, and local government agencies, the press, professional and technical publications, and industry. Modernization of data collection and processing will be continued by electronic automation of selected statistical surveys.

(b) Economic analysis.—Economic analysis is conducted to furnish the Government reliable information regarding the economic situation of the mineral industry and its relationship to the national economy. Of particular interest are the current situation, future trends, and alternative courses of action and their respective impact.

(c) Bituminous coal.—Comprehensive technical and economic information is provided for guidance in the optimum recovery, processing, and utilization of coal reserves; and for maximizing efficiencies in the production, transportation, and utilization of coal and related products. Guidance is provided for technological and economic research as related to methods of extraction and preparation, to methods and problems of marketing, and to techniques of combustion and utilization.

(d) Anthracite.—Investigations are directed to develop the engineering and economic data for anthracite required by Government, industry, and the general public necessary to minimize adverse effects of past mining practices, to create an environment conducive to economic growth, and to preserve a substantial energy resource. The 1972 budget provides for the continuation of studies of mining environmental problems and research on removal of coal waste banks.

(e) Petroleum.—Technical and economic studies are designed to provide an accurate and complete picture of the location, extent, and utilization of energy resources contained in petroleum, natural gas, and marginal bituminous substances. Present and possible future trends in production, technology, and practices and their effects on various sectors of the petroleum and natural gas industries will be considered and evaluated on a continuing basis.

(f) Minerals.—Resource investigations are made of mineral deposits to gain better knowledge of the location, quantity, quality, and recoverability of specific mineral resources. Investigations of marginal or submarginal mineral deposits are aimed at determining possible future utilization. Economic forecasting is undertaken, with special attention to the generally growing but shifting demand for mineral commodities, to help guide industrial, business, and Government planning and assistance in the direction of mineral research. The 1972 budget provides for expanding mining and mineral surveys under the wilderness program and for work in support of the National Commission on Materials Policy and the Mining and Minerals Policy Act of 1970. In addition, work previously funded under "Construction and Rehabilitation, Bureau of Reclamation," for mineral investigations under the Missouri River basin program will be funded under this subactivity in 1972.

(g) International activities.—Technical and economic data on foreign mineral resources, production and consumption, and international trade are compiled and analyzed for Government use in coping with problems of mineral supply and to assist industry in planning domestic and foreign minerals ventures.

2. Control of fires in coal deposits.—Fires in inactive or abandoned coal deposits are controlled or extinguished. Expenditures in connection with fires in active coal mines are limited to investigations and research.

3. Health and safety research.—Research is directed toward developing mining procedures and devices to avoid, detect, or control those aspects of mining and the working environment which involve potential personal hazards to mine workmen. The continuing effort to assure a much safer environment and working conditions for miners involves research to develop the technology for inherently safer mining methods, equipment, techniques, and systems to adequately cope with mining conditions. Research is conducted on: the support of mine roof and control of overburden; ventilation of mines; methods of allaying harmful and combustible dusts and methane and of coping with other mine air contaminants; prevention of underground fires and explosions; provision of safe electrical equipment and installations; improvements in mining machine design to reduce noise and optimize other man/machine interrelationships to enhance health and safety; and development of improved postdisaster life support and rescue technology for coal mining. The 1972 budget provides for: (1) An increase in coal mine health and safety research, with a portion of the increase resulting from the transfer of the Methane drainage program from the Mining research activity, and (2) an increase in metal and nonmetal health and safety research.

The Government's helium program is conducted under authority of the Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (Public Law 86-777). The principal program elements have been

(1) production and sale of helium for use by Federal agencies and their contractors and by other interested parties, and (2) conservation of helium by contract purchases of helium extracted from natural gas marketed as fuel, and underground storage of the helium for future use. The purchase contracts are being terminated by the Secretary. Helium research conducted in recent years—and at a reduced level in 1971—is discontinued. Limited engineering development and laboratory services required in connection with production and sale and conservation are continued.

About 90% of helium sales is to Federal agencies, principally the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the Atomic Energy Commission, and the Department of Defense. Sales are estimated at 9% below 1971 on the basis of reduction of programs of other Federal agencies requiring helium.

The following items are significant features of the budget: (a) Previously used line items of "production" and "marketing" are combined for 1972 as "production and sales" to conform to a prime program element. (b) The funded operating costs—which are exclusive of contract helium purchases and other capital expenditures—are reduced from 1971 by 14% by improvement and consolidation of operations, discontinuance of research, and other changes. (c) The estimated administrative expenses have been reduced 14% from 1971 by the aforementioned changes and by more appropriate charges to functions and elements of the program to which they relate. (d) Other capital expenditures are minimized.

Budget program.—Extraction of helium for production and sales will be conducted only at the Exell (Texas) and Keyes (Oklahoma) helium plants, which are owned and operated by the Bureau of Mines. Helium extraction operations previously performed at the Amarillo (Texas) plant have been transferred to the Exell plant. The Amarillo plant will continue to be used for making shipments in small cylinders and automotive trailers, using helium transported to the Amarillo plant by pipeline from the Exell plant. Helium extracted from available gas supplies at the Exell and Keyes plants that is not needed to meet sales requirements will be added to underground storage for conservation. Contract purchases of helium for conservation and storage are being discontinued and the contracts terminated by the Secretary.

Financing the budget program.—In addition to the income of the helium fund, the fund is authorized to borrow from the Treasury in such amounts as may be specified in appropriation acts. It is also authorized to incur additional obligations, so that the aggregate of contract purchases may go as high as $47.5 million annually. The schedules above reflect termination of the purchase contracts.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1970, the Government had $324.8 million invested in the helium program. Of this amount, $210.9 million is owed to the U.S. Treasury in accordance with the Helium Act Amendments of 1960, leaving a net investment of $113.9 million. The investment at June 30, 1970, was about 19% in helium plants and facilities and about 81% in helium stored underground.

On June 30, 1972, the Government's investment is estimated to be $403.4 million, of which $288.3 million will be owed to the U.S. Treasury, leaving a net investment balance of $115.1 million. The estimated increase from June 30, 1970, of $1.2 million in net Government investment (equity) results from an increase in retained earnings accrued during 1971 and 1972.

The Office of Coal Research, as required by the Coal Research Act, contracts for research and development of new and more efficient methods of mining, preparing, and utilizing coal. It contracts for, sponsors, cosponsors, and promotes the coordination of, research with recognized interested groups (including, but not limited to, coal trade associations, educational institutions, and agencies of States and political subdivisions).

The Office of Coal Research is responsible for developing the full potentiality and versatility of coal as the Nation's largest energy resource to the maximum benefit of the United States. The aspect of insuring a clean environment while minimizing or eliminating pollution-causing energy products, is an important consideration in all of the research projects. The Office is devoting its efforts to expand the use of coal through development of new uses as well as within presently known fields of utilization. The scientific and technical aspects of the program are performed through a program of contract research.

1. Administration and contract supervision.—This portion of the program performs all necessary functions relating to contracts. This includes drafting, negotiation, and execution of the contracts, together with review and monitoring of technical and administrative phases of the contract work. Proposals are evaluated to ascertain technical and economic feasibility and eliminate possible duplication with other work.

2. Contract research.—The entire research activity cited above as the responsibility of OCR is represented in the contract aspect of the OCR operation. Proposals received from, or discussions with potential contractors relate to a prospective area of activity in which the proposer has expressed interest, and for which the organization is qualified. Careful review and controls preclude duplicative research efforts. Contract research activities are conducted with profit and nonprofit research organizations. Contracts vary from complete Government funding to joint funding. Only applied research and development projects are undertaken. Several have now reached the pilot plant phase of their development. No grant research projects are carried on, and basic research is extremely limited—only insofar as a project may support other ongoing research.

Coordination of oil and gas activities.—This Office coordinates the implementation of Federal oil and gas policies, provides leadership and coordination for petroleum statistics within the Federal establishment, provides advice and assistance to Federal agencies and international organizations on all phases of petroleum and gas, and serves as the principal channel of communication between the Federal Government and the petroleum, gas, petrochemical and allied industries. Studies, domestic and worldwide, are made to maintain data on adequacy of petroleum and gas, to define deficient areas or elements, and to develop ways to alleviate actual or potential deficiencies. The Department's program for emergency planning and readiness for the oil and gas industries and the recruitment, training and assignment of 600 executive reservists for the Emergency Petroleum and Gas Administration are assigned responsibilities of this Office.

Administration of oil import program.—This appropriation finances the Oil Import Administration established March 13, 1959, pursuant to Presidential Proclamation No. 3279, as amended. The Administration establishes quotas for importers of crude oil and oil products under the mandatory quota system.

Oil Import Appeals Board.—The Board has been established to conduct hearings on appeals from importers who request a change in their quota or who do not qualify for a quota.

1. Fish hatcheries.—Fish from 98 hatcheries help support inland fishery resources, principally on Federal lands and on Federal water development projects. Four development centers and three training schools improve fish-cultural practice and technology. Public visitor facilities and onsite recreation programs are provided to accommodate

2.2 million visitors in 1972 at hatchery areas. An additional amount of $0.7 million is provided for this activity from the Corps of Engineers and $0.7 million from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

2. Wildlife refuges.—The Bureau manages 259 refuges with 3.9 million acres for migratory birds (waterfowl) and an additional 51 areas with over 4 million acres for other migratory birds. There are 14 areas for big game animals containing almost 5.2 million acres, four national game ranges with 2.4 million acres, and four national wildlife ranges (three in Alaska) having nearly 13.7 million acres. Of the 332 units in the National Wildlife Refuge System, 18 with 19.8 million acres are in Alaska, while four with 2,910 acres are in Hawaii and U.S. territories. An additional 1 million acres of wetlands are managed. Endangered species are protected on 82 of the national wildlife refuges including nine mammals, 15 birds, and the alligator.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—This program consists of the planning, application, and maintenance of conservation measures for the protection, stabilization, rehabilitation, control, and use of the soil, water, and vegetative resources on 150 national wildlife refuges comprising over 10 million acres.

4. Management and enforcement.—This program includes the administration and enforcement of Federal wildlife conservation laws and regulations; regulation of importation and interstate transportation of fish and wildlife; collection and analysis of data necessary for management of migratory game birds; and investigation of cases of environmental degradation, such as water pollution and control of migratory bird depredations.

5. Fishery research.—Research is conducted to provide information needed for improved methods of sport fishery management. The program includes: studies of the factors governing the productivity of sport fish in the Great Lakes and freshwater reservoirs; studies of how hatchery fish can be produced more efficiently and used more effectively; studies of fish diseases and the effects of pesticides on fish; and studies to develop methods of controlling fish that are pests. Results are used by Federal, State, and private fishery managers.

6. Wildlife research.—Research is conducted on game and nongame, resident, and migratory forms of wildlife. Results are used by the Bureau as well as cooperating Federal, State, and private agencies to improve wildlife management and conservation practices. Wildlife units are also maintained at 19 locations to give technical training in wildlife management, conduct research, and demonstrate improved management practices.

7. Fishery services.—Technical assistance is provided to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities in management of sport fishing and fish propagation and for an urban sport fishing opportunity program; 24 cooperative fishery units are operated at universities.

8. Wildlife services.—Operational and supervisory control programs are conducted where needed to alleviate damage caused by wildlife; and technical assistance is provided to Federal, State, Indian and other public or private entities for enhancement of wildlife resources. State and local cooperator funds are expected to total $4.7 million in 1972.

9. River basin studies.—This activity covers studies of the effects on fish and wildlife resources of the proposed Alaska pipeline and of water-use projects of Federal agencies and licensees. Recommendations are made for measures to protect and improve these resources. Studies are made of proposed estuarine works to minimize damages. Additional funds, totaling $1.7 million in 1972, are provided for this activity from the Bureau of Reclamation, the Alaska Power Administration, and the Corps of Engineers for water-use studies.

Funds for four of the above activities are supplemented by moneys appropriated under the permanent accounts—Federal aid in fish restoration and management, Federal aid in wildlife restoration, and National wildlife refuge fund—as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by appropriation of funds for fish restoration and management equal to the revenue of the 10% excise tax on sport-fishing tackle and for wildlife restoration equal to the 11% excise tax on the manufacture of firearms and ammunition.

1. Federal aid in fish restoration and management.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved fish restoration and management projects, including research into fish culture, formulation of restocking plans, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat (16 U.S.C. 777a-k).

2. Federal aid in wildlife restoration.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved wildlife restoration projects, including acquisition and development of land and water areas, and for wildlife management research (16 U.S.C. 669-669i); also approved hunter safety programs (Public Law 91-503).

3. National wildlife refuge fund.—The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715s) authorizes the expenditure of revenues from the sale of products from the National Wildlife Refuge System. Part of the net proceeds from sales of refuge products is paid to counties in which refuges are located for benefit of public schools and roads. Payment is based on 25% of the proceeds or 0.75% of the value of lands acquired in fee, whichever is larger. The balance of the proceeds is available for management of the refuge system and for enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

1. Management of park and other areas.—The Service administers 281 park areas comprising about 28.5 million acres of federally owned land located in 46 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The increase proposed is (a) for management, interpretation, and protection of new and recently authorized areas, (b) for operation of new facilities, (c) for new programs in parks such as the busing of visitors to Yosemite National Park, and (d) to provide a portion of the need for operations at acceptable standards in areas operating prior to January 1, 1960, including additional law enforcement capability.

The following tabulation shows the actual and estimated visitors, and general and special fund revenues collected and to be collected by the National Park Service, including recreation fee revenues deposited in the Land and Water Conservation Fund:

2. Forestry and fire control.—This activity provides protection for approximately 16 million acres of forest, grasslands, tundra, and desert shrub from fire, destructive insects, diseases and other preventable damage; and for fire prevention and protection of park buildings and structures, many of which are historical and irreplaceable.

3. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are conducted to determine the significance and suitability of natural, historical, and recreational areas proposed for inclusion in the National Park System; to determine the boundaries of proposed areas; to recommend changes in existing park area boundaries as needed; and to make recommendations concerning the designation of wilderness areas within the parks. Assistance is provided other Federal agencies, the States, and their political subdivisions upon request, in general development planning, site planning, consultation on design, construction, operational matters, and interpretive planning, and guidance in protection and preservation of historical values on lands involved. Studies and investigations are carried out leading to establishment of rights to sources of water supply and technical assistance is provided in acquiring lands. The Service administers a program which gives formal recognition to natural landmarks of national significance.

An increase is proposed to (a) accelerate the program of master plan and wilderness area studies, (b) provide recreation planning and operations assistance to Indian tribes, and (c) continue recreation planning assistance in the Missouri River Basin formerly funded with Bureau of Reclamation funds.

This appropriation provides for the preservation of historic properties outside the National Park System. It assists the States and territories, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia to conduct statewide historic surveys that produce nominations to the National Register and form the basis of statewide historic preservation plans. It provides matching grants-in-aid to the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the States for planning and individual preservation projects. This estimate contemplates continuing the grants-in-aid at the same level as in 1971, provides additional support to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation, provides for processing data for the National Register by computer, and continues the Historic Sites Survey, the Historic American Buildings Survey, and the Historic American Engineering Record. Funds for the archeological salvage program conducted by the Service in areas outside the National Park System, previously provided in the Management and protection appropriation and by transfer from the Bureau of Reclamation, are included in this appropriation for 1972.

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The 1972 program is designed to permit the National Park Service to pursue the following objectives in carrying out its mandate to preserve the parks and to provide for their continued use and enjoyment:

- To meet the requirements of Executive Order 11507 pertaining to air and water pollution at Government facilities, through the construction and reconstruction of sewerage systems, treatment plants, incinerators, sanitary land fills, and other utilities.
- To plan and construct projects associated with the American Revolution Bicentennial celebration activities scheduled for 1976.
- To maintain capacity of existing park-use facilities through programs of rehabilitation, replacement, and reconstruction, including the correction of unsafe conditions, correction of functional deficiencies, and the modernization of existing facilities.
- To provide necessary funds for advance planning to permit systematic development of those parks where need for additional capacity or redevelopment of existing capacity is indicated.

2. Acquisition of lands and water rights.—The current land acquisition program is included in the budget of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation under authority of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965. Rights to water must be obtained, test well sites selected, and production wells drilled, for use of visitors and employees, and for fire protection.

3. Parkways, and 4. Roads and trails.—The parkways and roads and trails construction programs authorized by Title 23, United States Code, are provided for under the contract authorization contained in that title and are budgeted under the Parkway and road construction (liquidation of contract authority) appropriation.

5. Undistributed costs.—These costs represent end-of-year variations in clearing accounts involving operations such as automotive repair shops, corrals, utility systems and storehouses. The costs are ultimately distributed to the various activities served based on predetermined rates and cost of storehouse items issued.

1. Parkways.—The 1972 program proposes work on four of the nine authorized parkways; Natchez Trace, Blue Ridge, George Washington Memorial, and Foothills. Major projects are accomplished for the Service by the Federal Highway Administration.

2. Roads and trails.—Major projects such as principal park entrance roads or major park roads having high traffic density are accomplished for the Service by the Federal Highway Administration. Minor park roads and trails projects, including parking areas, overlooks, campground roads, and drainage structures are carried out through Service facilities. The program provides mainly for the maintenance of existing capacity through such measures as resurfacing and reconstruction and for the development of some new capacity. Program objectives are to prevent a loss of investment in existing road systems, elimination of unsafe sections, and the provision of new capacity to meet traffic demand.

Construction will be underway in 1972 on 24 projects and 13 units and divisions of the Missouri River Basin project. Construction will be initiated on the Palmetto Bend and Tualatin projects; and on Minot extension of the Garrison diversion unit of the Missouri River Basin project with prior year funds. The program also includes continuation of rehabilitation and betterment work on eleven projects. A total of 115 projects and 14 Missouri River Basin units have been completed or are scheduled for completion by June 30, 1971. The construction completed through 1971 will provide full irrigation service to 4,817,100 acres, a supplemental water supply to 4,612,400 acres, annually provide 3,039,874 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water, and 6,241,800 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. During the year, facilities will be completed to furnish a supplemental water supply to 17,700 acres of land and to provide 16,500 acre-feet of water annually for municipal and industrial use.

Advance planning work will be underway on three projects.

Project costs to this appropriation are presented in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources result from sale of power and are applied against charges for purchase of power and wheeling.

The Bureau operates and maintains the power-generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, irrigation works are operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, the Colorado River front work and levee system program, negotiation and administration of water marketing contracts on Corps of Engineers' projects in California, marketing of power from the Corps of Engineers' powerplants on the Missouri River Basin project and the International Boundary and Water Commission's powerplant in Texas, examination of existing structures, and for purchase power and wheeling.

Energy sales resulting from Bureau power operations financed from above sources are as follows (dollars are in thousands):

1970 (actual).....	43,263	$115,340
1972 (estimate).....	42,190	115,834

The data for 1970 includes $7.8 million in revenues associated with 16.5 billion kilowatt-hours of energy from Reclamation powerplants for which the Bonneville Power Administration was the marketing agent. Data for the Upper Colorado River storage project are not included in this statement.

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration cooperatives, private utilities, irrigation districts, public utility districts, and State and Federal Government agencies. These revenues are deposited in the Reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, the general fund, and the Fort Peck revolving fund.

The programs include $17,026 thousand in 1972 for the purchase of power and wheeling. A net billing procedure for certain of these power transactions between the Federal Government and non-Federal utilities precludes the need for $5,714 thousand of this amount in 1972.

Upper Colorado River Basin fund.—Construction will be underway on three units of the Colorado River storage project and transmission division and on 11 participating projects. Advance planning work will be underway on three projects and one will be initiated with prior year funds. One unit of the storage project and two participating projects have been completed or are scheduled for completion by June 30, 1971. The construction completed through 1971 will provide full irrigation service to 46,600 acres, a supplemental water supply to 180,200 acres, annually provide 351,800 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water, and 1,248,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. The impact of the 1972 construction upon Reclamation goals will be felt in subsequent years as facilities are completed and irrigation service provided, municipal and industrial water furnished, and hydroelectric power is generated.

Operation and maintenance program.—In 1972, the Bureau of Reclamation will operate and maintain four units of the Colorado River storage project with 33,901,000 acre-feet of storage space, 1,248,000 kilowatts of power generation capacity, and 1,810 miles of transmission facilities, including the Seedskadee participating project power operations. Financing will be from project revenue. Quality of water and consumptive use studies and flood control studies of the Florida and Paonia participating projects and nonreimbursable operation and maintenance will be financed from operating revenues and the repayable debt of the storage project and participating projects will be reduced by this amount.

This fund defrays the expense of operating the power-generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded program costs in 1972 are slightly higher than in 1971 because of increased costs in generation and transmission of power.

Operating results.—Net income is estimated at $727 thousand for 1972, a decrease of $1,204 thousand over the current year anticipating a return to normal operations of sale of electric energy. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission. Such payments totaled $3.2 million in 1970 and are estimated at $2.4 million in 1971 and $1 million in 1972.

The Alaska Power Administration operates and maintains the Eklutna project reservoir, waterways, power-plant and transmission system which supplies 30,000 kilowatts and 164 million kilowatt-hours to the greater Anchorage, Alaska, area.

Energy sales resulting from power operations financed from above sources were $1,371 thousand in 1970 and are estimated to be $1,400 thousand and $1,450 thousand in 1971 and 1972, respectively.

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

The Bonneville Power Administration constructs, operates, and maintains facilities to market electric power produced at Federal hydroelectric generating plants over its high-voltage transmission grid system to public and private utilities and industrial customers in the Pacific Northwest. It also wheels and exchanges power from non-Federal hydroelectric and thermal generating plants.

The estimated amounts of peak generating capacity on the Federal transmission system are as follows (in thousands of kilowatts):

	July 1, 1971	July 1, 1981
Federal projects	11,039	19,443
Power wheeled and exchanged for non-Federal utilities	6,231	13,863
Total	17,270	33,306

The transmission facilities will integrate new generating facilities into the system. Twenty-six Federal hydroelectric generating plants are currently in operation on the system and five Federal generating plants are under construction. These new plants, along with additional generating units being installed at six existing Federal projects, will bring the total Federal installed capacity from 10.4 million kilowatts to 19.4 million kilowatts.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources result from exchanges and sale of power and are applied against charges for purchase of power and wheeling.

1. System operation and maintenance.—This activity consists of the scheduling and dispatching of power; the operation of substations; the maintenance of transmission lines, substations, and other facilities; power requirements and marketing studies; planning and integration of power resources; and system engineering.

The following table shows the rising trend of several of the more important indexes of the operation and maintenance activity:

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—This activity includes the acquisition of power from other entities by purchase and exchange, and the use of transmission facilities. Exchange arrangements and net billing procedures between the Administration and other entities preclude the need for an additional appropriation of $15.3 million in 1972.

3. Power contracts and rates.—This activity provides for the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, the billing and servicing of these contracts, the review of resale rates, the development of service plans, and the establishment of wholesale rate schedules. Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $128.5 million in 1970, and are estimated at $143.7 and $159.7 million for 1971 and 1972, respectively.

The Bonneville Power Administration constructs, operates, and maintains transmission facilities which are not provided by the Administration under its customer service policy when requested and financed by non-Federal entities. These facilities increase efficiency on the system, reduce loads on existing facilities, and improve service to customers. Also, facilities of the Administration are relocated as required for highway construction and other purposes under similar arrangements. In addition, trust agreements are developed for the purchase of interruptible replacement energy to meet requirements of industrial customers during periods when operating conditions on the Federal system require the Administration to curtail its delivery of interruptible power. The function of such institute is to conduct research, investigations, and experiments of either a basic or practical nature, or both, in relation to water resources and to provide for the training of scientists through such research, investigations, and experiments. States may elect to use their grants in support of regional institutes in which several States participate.

2. Matching grants to institutes.—This activity provides for grants to match, on a dollar-for-dollar basis, funds made available to institutes by States or other non-Federal sources to meet the necessary expenses of specific water resources research projects which could not otherwise be undertaken.

3. Additional water research.—This activity provides for grants to, and contracts and matching or other arrangements with, educational institutions, private foundations or other institutions, with private firms and individuals whose training, experience, and qualifications are adequate for the conduct of water research projects, and with local, State, and Federal Government agencies, to undertake research into any aspects of water problems related to the mission of the Department of the Interior which are deemed desirable and which are not otherwise being studied.

4. Scientific information center.—This activity provides for the operation of a water resources scientific information center. The objectives of center operations are to be responsive to the needs of water resources officials and organizations by making information available concerning water resources research results and developments, to avoid replication of research, and to improve communications and coordination of efforts among all those engaged in federally sponsored water-related research.

5. Administration.—This activity provides for the administration of the Water Resources Research Act including the prescribing of rules and regulations, review and appraisal of institute programs and research proposals, making and monitoring of allotments, contracts, and grants; establishment and maintenance of cooperation and coordination among the centers and between the centers and Federal and other organizations concerned with water resources.

A total of 1,731 of the additional full-year employees (1,013 agents and 718 clerks) will be for field operations as follows: 788 full-year employees (477 agents and 311 clerks) will be required to handle increasing investigative workloads; 880 full-year employees (513 agents and 367 clerks) result from the continuation on a full-year basis in 1972 of the additional 1,702 employees (1,000 agents and 702 clerks) placed on the rolls in 1971 for assignment to the field to handle the mounting volume of work in interstate gambling, terrorist, and aircraft hijacking matters; and the remaining 63 full-year employees (23 agents and 40 clerks) will form the initial staff needed to commence operations during 1972 at the new FBI Academy now under construction at Quantico, Va. The remaining 520 additional employees for 1972 (23 agents and 497 clerks) are for assignment at the Seat of Government as follows: 62 employees (23 agents and 39 clerks) for the administration and correlation of the expanding investigative work throughout the field, 60 employees (all clerks) for a new national system of exchanging criminal history information, and 398 employees (all clerks) for the fingerprint operation where 95 will be used for current work increases, 29 will be involved with preparation work for the automation of identification records and 274 for work on the project to consolidate our civil fingerprint files.

Such periods occur before and during trial, during commitments for short sentences, and while awaiting transfer to Federal institutions after conviction. An average of 4,284 prisoners was boarded at an average cost of $5.91 per man-day in 1970.

Additional funds in the amount of $2,500 thousand are needed for support of Federal prisoners in State and local facilities during 1971. The original request for 1971 was based on an estimate of 1,642,500 jail days at approximately $5.78 per day. On the basis of actual experience during 1970 it now appears that jail days for 1971 will total 1,740,000 to 1,750,000 at an approximate cost of $6.85 per day.

This is a wholly owned Government corporation. A board of six directors appointed by the President controls its policies. Supervision is by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons who has jurisdiction over all industrial enterprises and vocational training programs in all Federal penal and correctional institutions. Products manufactured by inmates are sold only to institutions in the Federal Prison System and to other Government agencies. Earnings, in excess of operating requirements, are paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury.

The Corporation is authorized, under the Attorney General, to establish and operate industries in Federal penal and correctional institutions and disciplinary barracks (18 U.S.C. 4121-4128). Its purposes are to provide employment for inmates, provide maximum vocational training for qualified inmates in connection with regular institutional and industrial activities; and to operate a placement service to assist released inmates to secure jobs. Products manufactured by the inmates are sold only to other Government agencies and the penal institutions. Earnings from the sale of the products pay expenses of the Corporation and have permitted payment of $82 million in dividends into the Treasury since January 1, 1935. The Corporation anticipates paying a dividend of $5 million during 1971 and a dividend of $3 million in 1972 for a total of $90 million by June 30, 1972.

Operations.—Sales of products and services to other Government agencies during 1970 were approximately $52.4 million and are estimated at $54 million for the year 1971 and $55 million for 1972. Net earnings after paying all expenses, including the limitation expenses, were $6.2 million for 1970 and are estimated at $5.1 million for 1971 and $3.6 million for 1972.

In 1970 the following new industries were started: a furniture factory at Texarkana, Tex., a cable shop at Petersburg, Va., and an instructional systems factory at Lompoc, Calif. The following industries were discontinued in fiscal year 1971: the furniture factory at Ashland, Ky., the feather products factory at Texarkana, Tex., and the clothing factory at Lompoc, Calif. During 1970 the parachute and brush factories located at Springfield, Mo., were transferred to Atlanta, Ga. During 1971 the following industries will be started: a glove factory at Safford, Ariz., a small engine repair shop at Ashland, Ky., and a furniture factory at Lompoc, Calif. This will bring total shops to 52 at 22 locations.

Financing.—The Corporation has always operated at a profit. Accumulated earnings as of June 30, 1970, were $132 million, of which $82 million had been paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury. The remaining $50 million has been reinvested in the form of operating cost, inventories, machinery, and buildings.

By June 30, 1972, accumulated earnings are estimated at $140 million. Dividends of $90 million are expected to be paid into the U.S. Treasury. Retained capital should be $50 million. Limitations are placed on the amounts that may be expended for general administration and vocational training.

The administrative expense limitation covers the cost of staffing and operating the Washington central office. This office is responsible for the administration of all industrial activities, for research work in industrial lines and product design in connection with the installation of new industries, and the operation and conversion of existing industries. The central office also issues the schedule of products manufactured and determines selling prices. An increase of $116 thousand is requested to meet the demands on this fund in 1972.

The vocational training expense limitation finances the vocational training program within the Federal Prison System. Advances in vocational education that have proven successful outside the prison system have been adapted to function within an institutional setting. These advances include the use of an integrated curriculum combining practical academic and vocational education and training in a number of closely related skills having special relevance to emerging job opportunities. Shifts are continually being made in industrial and vocational training programs to reflect changing demands in the labor market, thus providing inmates with the best chance to secure postrelease employment. Releasees are aided in finding employment by an employment placement service which functions as an integral part of the vocational training activity. For expansion of all of these important activities an increase of $1,559 thousand is requested for 1972.

1. Planning, evaluation, and research.—This activity provides for the Federal administrative costs of the principal planning, policy development, program analysis, and research and development of the Manpower Administration. Through a system of evaluation and analysis, information and suggestions are provided for policy decisions, program changes, and legislative proposals pertaining to manpower programs.

2. Training program development and administration.—
(a) U.S. Training and Employment Service.—This Service the Federal partner in the Federal-State employment service system, has the primary responsibility for State and sponsor-operated manpower training and employment services. This includes the development and overall direction of the programs and systems that deliver comprehensive manpower services. The U.S. Training and Employment Service provides planning, program direction, and technical assistance by developing techniques for assessment, outreach, employability training, counseling, testing, placement, and followup. Assistance is also provided to employers in resolving manpower problems. Guidance is provided for a clearance system where job and application information is exchanged across State lines to facilitate job matching. Special direction is given to services for the poor, veterans, farmworkers, the handicapped, minority group members, older workers, and youth.

Staff assistance is also provided in carrying out assigned responsibilities under the Immigration and Nationality Act relating to aliens seeking admission for permanent and temporary employment. Programs are developed to meet the specialized needs of farm labor and of residents of rural areas, including implementing and assuring compliance with the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act. The Service develops policies and procedures for exercising functional supervision of local offices to insure that veterans receive, according to law, " * * * the maximum of job opportunity in the field of gainful employment." Reviews and recommendations are also made for appropriate action on applications for the exemplary rehabilitation certificates under Public Law 89-690.

(b) Job Corps direction.—Job Corps is a national program designed to serve poor youth aged 14 through 21. Through residential and nonresidential centers, it provides vocational training, work experience, citizenship education, plus the educational and medical rehabilitation needed by these youths. After training and rehabilitation, the Job Corps stresses the responsibility for insuring that the youths are placed in jobs in their home areas.

(c) Institutional training administration.—This activity provides for the program development and administration of classroom skill training programs by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

3. Apprenticeship services.—Employers and unions are provided technical assistance and advisory services in developing, installing, and conducting programs of apprenticeship and allied industrial training. Programs are promoted by contact with organizations of management and labor at the national and local level. Successful training practices are publicized, and training schedules and standards, pamphlets, articles, and reprints published.

Assistance in the administration and improvement of apprenticeship and other training is provided to about 120,000 employers in private enterprise and public institutions directly or through local joint labor-management committees. More than 400,000 apprentices and other workers will participate in training programs during the year. Approximately 2,400 new apprenticeship or other skill improvement programs are developed annually.

4. Unemployment Insurance Service.—The Unemployment Insurance Service provides leadership and technical assistance to all States in the development and administration of their unemployment insurance laws. States' unemployment insurance laws are checked for compliance with the requirements under the Unemployment Tax Act and administrative grants for compliance with the requirements under the Social Security Act. Whenever a deficiency in performance is noted, the State, through a self-appraisal outline, provides an action plan for correcting the deficiency. About 1,200 to 1,300 action plans are usually formulated through this method. The results of the self-appraisal plans are reviewed and analyzed by the Service.

5. Civil rights compliance.—This activity was established by the Secretary of Labor to insure "that no person * * * on the grounds of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, * * * or be subjected to discrimination under any program or activity receiving Federal financial assistance." It also has the responsibility for eliminating discrimination in manpower programs resulting from violations of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act and discrimination based on sex.

6. Executive direction.—(a) General administration.—This activity provides for the overall supervision and direction of the U.S. Training and Employment Service, the Unemployment Insurance Service, Job Corps, the Bureau of Apprenticeship and Training, the regional Manpower Administration offices, and the Office of Information.

(b) Financial and management services.—This activity provides budgetary, fiscal management, audit, administrative and management services, personnel, and contract services to all elements of the Manpower Administration.

(c) Manpower management data systems.—The Office of Manpower Management Data Systems has responsibility for all data systems relating to program performance for the entire Manpower Administration, with the exception of accounting. The Office assembles reports both in summary and in detail for management use, from all contractors who conduct work and training projects and on more than 1 million individual enrollees.

³ Includes opportunities and individuals served under the economic opportunity program in 1969 and 1970. Enrollment opportunities (slots) are not meaningful for special targeting (Concentrated Employment Program) because an individual may be enrolled in one or in several of the program components.

1. Private sector on-the-job training.—This activity covers the program costs of providing employment and training in the private sector to unemployed, disadvantaged persons and to upgrade persons in low skill occupations. It includes direct costs to employers and the cost of administering the projects by State agencies and through national contractors. The Job Opportunities in the Business Sector (JOBS) program included in this activity is operated in conjunction with the National Alliance of Businessmen. Its key feature is the concept of "hire first and then train".

2. Public sector on-the-job training.—This activity secures, within merit staffing principles, permanent employment for the disadvantaged and stimulates upgrading of employed persons in the public sector.

3. Institutional training.—The objectives of these programs are to increase the employability of the unemployed and underemployed through classroom occupational training and remedial education supplemented by supportive services. The regular institutional program places emphasis on aiding veterans, Indians, and disadvantaged individuals who do not require special intensive assistance.

The Job Corps assists disadvantaged youth to become responsible, employable and productive citizens by providing a full-service training and development program away from their culturally deprived home and/or community environment. The program has residential urban and rural conservation centers and nonresidential centers which serve as skill training centers permitting the youth to remain in or near their home community. By 1972 all 28 new urban centers will be in operation.

4. In-school work support.—This program assists disadvantaged students of high school age to remain in school by providing part-time and summer work experience. In 1971 and 1972, the local share of program costs for the summer component will be raised from 10% to 20%.

5. Post-school work support.—This activity includes programs which provide meaningful work experience and training to the disadvantaged unemployed. Operation Mainstream focuses on poor adults in rural areas who have little opportunity for full-time employment.

The out-of-school program provides young high school dropouts with skill training opportunities, work experience, income and other supportive services to enable them to return to school or to find regular employment.

6. Special targeting.—This activity comprises the Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) designed to provide unified delivery of a wide range of manpower services to selected urban and rural areas of high unemployment. In 1972, the least effective projects will be terminated.

7. Computerized job placement.—By the end of 1972 there will be computerized systems for matching workers with job openings in every State. The systems list and update job orders on a daily basis and, using modern ADP and telecommunications, match the qualifications of the job-seekers to jobs.

In addition, this activity provides for technical assistance and training for personnel involved in the administration, direction and performance of manpower programs. It provides for a comprehensive system to develop the labor market information needed by public and private users; contractual funds for research and demonstration projects to improve techniques and demonstrate effectiveness of specialized methods in meeting manpower training and employment problems; and for evaluation of the effectiveness of manpower programs.

1. and 2. Payments to Federal employees and payments to ex-servicemen.—Funds are allocated to the States for payment of unemployment compensation to eligible former Federal employees and ex-servicemen. The 1972 estimate includes $14.5 million for employees of the Postal Service. In accord with the legislative intent to make the Service self-sustaining, the Postal Service will offset the costs to this appropriation by depositing $14.5 million in miscellaneous receipts.

Benefit payments to ex-servicemen and former Federal civilian employees are estimated at $305,175 thousand for 1971, an increase of $50,675 thousand over the amount requested for 1971 for these activities. This increase results from (1) continuing separations of civilian workers from the Federal Government, (2) a steadily increasing trend in new claims filed by ex-servicemen, and (3) a lack of employment opportunities in the private sector.

This fund makes advances to the Employment Security Administration Account in the Unemployment Trust Fund. The purpose is to finance the Federal and State administrative costs of the employment security programs from the beginning of the fiscal year until Federal unemployment tax receipts become available.

Public Law 91-53, dated August 7, 1969, provided for quarterly collections of the Federal unemployment tax receipts, thereby decreasing the amount required to be borrowed from the Revolving Fund. No additional funds are requested for this program as the $347,943 thousand currently available is more than adequate to finance employment security programs until the bulk of the tax collections become available.

1. Unemployment insurance services.—State agencies pay unemployment compensation to unemployed workers eligible for unemployment benefits under State unemployment insurance laws, and collect unemployment taxes from employers who are subject to State unemployment insurance laws. Unemployment benefits for Federal employees and ex-servicemen and trade adjustment benefits are also paid from funds provided under a separate Federal appropriation. Administrative support and executive leadership are provided to maintain and improve unemployment insurance operations. Contingency funds are provided to support increased costs due to unforeseen increases in unemployment insurance workloads. Federal grants in 1970 provided State administrative funds to collect almost $2.6 billion in taxes, to pay State benefits totaling approximately $2.8 billion to approximately 5.4 million beneficiaries, and to pay $183.6 million in benefits to unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen. Increased employment in 1972 will provide for implementation of expanded unemployment insurance coverage under the Employment Security Amendments of 1970.

2. Employment services.—A nationwide network of more than 2,100 local employment offices financed by Federal grants and administered by the States provides a full range of manpower services to assist workers in obtaining suitable employment and to assist employers in resolving their manpower problems. Special emphasis is placed on providing services to disadvantaged applicants who may require extensive assistance to become competitive in the job market. Assistance to employers includes analyzing their manpower requirements, solving problems of recruitment and turnover, and developing labor market information. Communities are aided in developing employment opportunities, and employment services are provided to workers and employers in areas where the establishment of full-time offices is not economically feasible.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment Trust Fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by special State payroll taxes. These tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment Trust Fund and are invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments. State and Federal administrative expenses, including those of the employment service, are paid from the fund out of revenue from the Federal unemployment tax assessed on employers.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment Trust Fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

1. Improving and protecting wages of the Nation's workers.—This program seeks to obtain compliance with the minimum wage, equal pay, age discrimination, overtime, child labor, wage garnishment, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the various Federal procurement acts, and title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act. As a compliment to the compliance program, regulations, and interpretative materials are developed and special minimum wage standards are set. About half a million workers are directly aided each year by these efforts.

2. Government contract wage standards.—The Office of Government Contract Wage Standards makes predeterminations of prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits for all Federal and federally assisted contracts for construction subject to the Davis-Bacon Act and related acts. Prevailing wage rate and fringe benefit determinations are also made to protect service workers under the Service Contracts Act.

3. Improving safety and other working conditions of workers.—This activity provides for the administration of the Occupational Safety and Health Act and the safety provisions of the Maritime Safety Act. Educational assistance, engineering consultation, and technical advice in all phases of occupational accident prevention are provided to industry personnel, State officials, labor unions, and Federal agencies. Inspections are made to insure compliance with the applicable safety standards and protect workers. Standards are set and State laws analyzed in connection with the workmen's compensation provisions of the Coal Mine Safety Act.

4. Advancing opportunities and status of women.—The Women's Bureau seeks to enlarge economic, civil, and political rights and opportunities of women through its educational activities, special committees, and its services to other Government agencies, and to national, State, and local groups. Programs are designed to advance the position of the approximately 30 million women in the labor force, with special attention placed on aiding the disadvantaged through the development of programs to improve working conditions, expand job opportunities, provide better training, and improve vocational counseling and community services.

5. Federal contract compliance.—The Office of Federal Contract Compliance carries out the provisions of Executive Order 11246, as amended to include sex discrimination, with respect to the nondiscrimination aspects of Federal Government contracts; coordinates and evaluates contracting agency activities to assure fair and uniform treatment of contractors and all of their employees; cooperates with agencies in mediations and negotiations; and provides guidance and training to agencies on procedures and methods to gain compliance. Emphasis is placed on the development of "hometown" solutions to discriminatory problems by aiding local communities in negotiating and carrying through their own plans.

6. Workmen's compensation.—The Bureau of Employees' Compensation administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Act and the various extensions of these acts to insure that injured workers and their dependents receive the benefit to which they are entitled and are referred for rehabilitation. Some 600,000 benefit payments are made each year. Compensation programs under the Coal Mine Safety Act will be assumed at the end of calendar year 1972.

7. Program development and administration.—The Office of Program Development and Administration directs and coordinates all of the Department's comprehensive workplace standards programs. Program planning, research, evaluation, budget, and other administrative activities of the Workplace Standards Administration are carried out to insure effective and efficient program management and execution.

Benefits are paid on a long-term continuing basis via periodic payment rolls to over 25,000 civilian employees of the Government disabled in the performance of duty or to their dependents, to dependents of certain reservists in the Armed Forces who died while on active duty with the Armed Forces or while engaged in authorized training in time of peace, to a number of former relief work employees and their dependents, and to numerous others by various extensions of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act.

Long-term benefits are also paid to approximately 220 employees of Government contractors and to American civilians who were captured by the Japanese during World War II.

New injuries reported involve determinations of entitlement and payment of compensation benefits and/or medical costs, as appropriate. When compensation is involved, either one or more payments may be made—depending on the type and length of the disability. In a fatal case, payments are made once each month to the eligible survivors.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, and for fines and penalty payments. (33 U.S.C. 908; 31 U.S.C. 725; 33 U.S.C. 944.) In 1970 receipts were $25 thousand and interest was $4 thousand.

The trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury results in a permanent partial disability which combined with a previous disability results in permanent total disability or death, the employer provides compensation only for the disability caused by the subsequent injury. Compensation to supplement the employer's payment is provided from this fund. Maintenance payments are made to employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation to enable them to return to remunerative occupations. Payments are made in cases where judgment against employers cannot be satisfied by reason of insolvency or other circumstances precluding payment, and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by the insolvency of an employer. In addition, provision is made for the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled longshoremen and harbor workers.

The amount of securities reflected on the program and financing schedule are for the Workmen's Compensation Act within the District of Columbia. All available cash for the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, will be expended in 1971 and the fund will be insolvent. It is, therefore, necessary to request $32 thousand in appropriated funds in the Workplace Standards Administration, Salaries and expenses appropriation, for transfer to the fund in 1972 to meet the mandatory payments due claimants and their beneficiaries.

It is proposed to amend section 44 of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act to provide increased payments to the Special fund by the employer in such cases and to eliminate the need for requesting funds in the Workplace Standards Administration, Salaries and expenses appropriation.

Technical cooperation overseas provides for trade union interchange, ministry-to-ministry cooperation, assistance in labor-management relations of U.S. firms overseas, and Unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other Government civilian operations overseas. Housing is provided American employees in localities where suitable housing is otherwise unavailable.

Appropriations are made pursuant to periodic congressional authorizations. Public Law 89-636 provided a capital authorization of $29.8 million, and Public Law 90-442 provided an operating authorization of $13.5 million for 1970 and $14.3 million for 1971. Legislation requesting an operating authorization of $15 million for 1972 has been enacted by Congress.

Since 1961, a separate appropriation for payments in excess foreign currencies has been enacted annually to supplement the regular appropriation. These currencies are used not only to acquire or construct real property, but also to finance operating and maintenance costs to the greatest extent possible. Countries in which the appropriation is expected to be used in 1972 are Burma, Guinea, India, Israel, Morocco, Nepal (through use of Indian rupees), Pakistan, Poland, Tunisia, the United Arab Republic, and Yugoslavia. These funds are credited to and expended under the regular appropriation.

The Foreign Service Act Amendments of 1969 (84 Stat. 18) authorized additional Federal contributions to the Foreign Service Retirement and Disability Fund.

Under sec. 865, any new statute which liberalizes benefits, extends benefits to new groups of employees, or increases salaries on which benefits are computed, authorizes appropriations to the fund. A supplemental appropriation in 1971 of $2 million (for 1970 and 1971) and an appropriation request in 1972 of $1 million will provide the first three of 30 equal annual payments to cover the unfunded liability resulting from the Federal Employees Salary Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 196).

Sec. 866 requires the Secretary of the Treasury to make annual payments to the retirement fund on a sliding percentage scale of an amount equal to: (1) interest on the unfunded liability, and (2) annuity disbursements attributable to military service. In 1971, the first year, the percentage will be 10% at an estimated cost of $2,530 thousand, and in 1972, 20% at an estimated cost of $5,440 thousand.

The United States contributes its assessed share of the expenses of the above listed international organizations. The major increases are for contributions to the United Nations, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, the World Health Organization, the Pan American Health Organization, and the Organization of American States.

The increased costs of maintaining the prior year level of operations is a major reason for most increased assessments. Other principal reasons include: (1) the United Nations is increasing the salary scale for its professional staff, incurring additional costs for construction, rental, and maintenance of its premises, and expanding its conference program; (2) the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization is expanding its activities in the fields of population, education, ecological research, and oceanography and incurring additional costs for maintenance of its premises, amortization of a building loan, and renting a computer and ancillary equipment; (3) the World Health Organization is expanding its activities in the fields of public health administration, education and training, communicable disease control, and environmental health; (4) the Pan American Health Organization is further incorporating into its regular budget the costs of the Malaria Eradication Campaign, previously funded in part by the Agency for International Development, and expanding its programs in the fields of communicable diseases, environmental health, and public health administration; and (5) the Organization of American States is reimbursing its working capital fund for prior year costs incident to the El Salvador/Honduras conflict.

This appropriation request provides for regularly scheduled or planned conferences, and for predictable U.S. contributions to new or provisional organizations. The 1972 estimate does not provide for unforeseen contingencies.

The 1972 appropriation will provide for additional contributions of $93 thousand to new or provisional international organizations and an increase of $382 thousand for participation in international conferences, offset by a $280 thousand reduction of nonrecurring expenses for the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium Conference and the Conference on Cities.

The 1968 appropriation completed the financing, as authorized by the American-Mexican Chamizal Convention Act of 1964, for compliance with the Chamizal Convention between the United States and Mexico. The transfer of the lands between Mexico and the United States has been accomplished. The relocation of the Rio Grande channel was completed in December 1968.

With remaining available funds, the acquisition of lands, channel strengthening and levee improvements will be done in 1971 to extend the rectification project 3.4 miles to the land boundary, as authorized by the Chamizal Convention. This 3.4 miles of unregulated and unimproved river requires improvement to complete the stabilization of the boundary river and control floods between the cities of Juarez and El Paso. This work will be undertaken jointly with Mexico. With completion of this work, all of the requirements of the Chamizal Convention will have been fulfilled.

The Department of Transportation Act of 1966 assigns to the Secretary broad responsibilities for the development and coordination of national transportation policies and programs. This appropriation finances those research activities and studies which directly support the Secretary's responsibilities and which can more effectively or appropriately be conducted in the Office of the Secretary rather than by the operating administrations within the Department. The program is carried out primarily through contracts with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit research organizations, and private firms.

1. Transportation policy and planning.—Studies and analyses are conducted on a broad range of transportation policy, economic and environmental problems to determine national transportation requirements and to provide the Secretary with the information and analyses needed for effective decisionmaking on national transportation policies, plans, and programs. Included are programs to forecast transportation demand, to develop models and other analytical devices that will help assess alternative courses of action, to conduct economic and statistical studies designed to assess the effects of economic regulation, and to examine the interrelationship of transportation with changing economic, social, aesthetic, and environmental factors and forces. Projects are also carried out to develop new methods and effective programs to provide transportation information needed by the Federal, State, and local governments, and industry. Amounts are also included for the ongoing programs to develop plans for meeting the transportation needs of the Northeast Corridor as well as studies and research relating to transportation systems development as it affects national urban and environmental policy.

2. Transportation systems development and technology.—Projects are carried out to advance transportation technology generally; to seek solutions to transportation problems which are intermodal in nature; to provide information and forecasts on new technology required as a basis for planning and development of transportation systems, policies, and programs; to conduct research on longer range technical problems in transportation; and to manage research programs of such priority that they demand Secretarial emphasis. In 1972, funds are requested to continue and expand advanced research and development efforts to improve air transportation (to be financed from the airport and airway trust fund), to develop multimodal and intermodal systems and technology, and to promote environmental and ecological improvements. Environmental studies related to SST operations will be given high priority. In general, projects are designed to complement research and development programs of the operating administrations and to stimulate industry efforts to advance transportation technology.

3. Transportation facilitation.—Research and studies in this area are aimed at reducing the costs and removing the impediments to the rapid and efficient flow of passengers and cargo by modernizing our systems of transportation documentation and procedures. Projects will also be directed at realizing the economic and technological benefits of important transportation developments which can be achieved through cooperative research and development arrangements with foreign countries.

4. Special programs.—Projects in this activity are chiefly to provide technical studies and other data in support of the Department's programs in the areas of consumer affairs, hazardous materials, and pipeline safety.

Under the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968 (49 U.S.C. 1674), the Federal Government has established minimum safety standards. States are expected to comply voluntarily with requirements of the act, including annual reporting requirements. Also under the act, grants of up to 50% of the cost of personnel, equipment, and activities of a State agency reasonably required to carry out a natural gas pipeline safety program may be made. No such grants are contemplated in the 1971 or 1972 budgets.

CIVIL SUPERSONIC AIRCRAFT DEVELOPMENT

For an additional amount for expenses, not otherwise provided for, necessary for the development of a civil supersonic aircraft, including the construction of two prototype aircraft of the same design, and advances of funds without regard to the provisions of section 3648 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (51 U.S.C. 529), $235,000,000, to remain available until expended.

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1971 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing appropriation is in effect for the period from July 1 to March 30.

The objective of this program is to develop a supersonic transport which will be safe, economically profitable in airline service and more technically advanced than any other commercial aircraft. To the extent possible, the development is being carried out by private enterprise in a manner which will maintain the normal industry/customer relationship. Because of the magnitude of the funds required to develop the aircraft, the technical risk associated with this first U.S. supersonic transport, and the long period between investment and potential profit, Government financial support is essential. The program is a cost-sharing venture involving the Government, the aircraft manufacturers, and their customers—the airlines.

The program is now in the prototype construction phase which includes 100 hours of flight testing. The amount requested is a current estimate of funds needed in 1972 to continue work on the construction of two prototype aircraft.

The working capital fund was authorized by the Department of Transportation Act (sec. 9, Public Law 89-670) to finance common administrative services centrally performed in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department. Established on July 2, 1967, the fund initially provided for publishing and graphic services, which included costs to operate the departmental printing plant, authorized by the Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress. Subsequent to that date and including programs proposed for 1971, the fund has been expanded to include Washington headquarter services of still photographic services, computer time sharing, consolidated library operations, consolidated travel and imprest fund operations, central employment information, warehouse management, emergency readiness, parking management, chauffeur, and mail and messenger services.

Operating results and financial condition.—Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all operating expenses, including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by the operating administrations and offices being served. No action is required with regard to the deficit in retained earnings for 1970. The deficit is very slight in relation to the annual revenue of the fund and will be recovered as a part of revenue during future years.

The Consolidated Working Fund was established to facilitate the conduct of operations of the Transportation Systems Center which are financed from a number of appropriations of the Department of Transportation plus the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The programs of the Center are funded from advances received from the Office of the Secretary, the operating administrations in the Department of Transportation, and NASA in accordance with general working agreements and specific project plan agreements.

The Transportation Systems Center serves as a technical transportation resource for the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations. Its specific projects planned for 1972 are grouped generally along the following lines:

Transportation safety.—The chief effort under this heading is in the highway safety field with additional efforts in aviation, marine, and railway safety.

Pollution reduction.—This grouping includes both aircraft and automotive pollution, with a smaller effort in marine sources.

Noise abatement.—With the exception of work concerned with supersonic engine noise abatement, this area of projects is in support of systems analysis work of the Assistant Secretary for Systems Development and Technology.

Air transportation.—This is the largest grouping of TSC's projects and is primarily directed to air traffic control. The balance of the effort is split between navigation and systems development.

Ground transportation.—Highway utilization and traffic control, new urban transportation systems, advanced high-speed systems, and conventional rail systems are the main project areas under this category.

Marine transportation.—This grouping is in support of the Coast Guard and is mainly work in marine navigation aids.

Multimodal and general support systems.—Projects which are not directed toward a single mode of transportation are included here, with the primary effort in modeling, analysis, and intermodal systems technology.

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out the duties specified in title 14, United States Code.

Direct program.—1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs any and all acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft disaster or due to floods and ice conditions (14 U.S.C. 88). Coast Guard activities in the area of search and rescue fall within the National Search and Rescue Plan and other agreements.

2. Aids to navigation.—A network of manned and unmanned aids to navigation is maintained along our coasts and on our inland waterways through the use of tenders and shore facilities to insure the safe passage of the mariner. Loran stations are operated in the United States and abroad to serve the needs of the armed services and marine and air commerce (14 U.S.C. 81).

Law enforcement activities include Atlantic, Pacific, and Alaskan fisheries patrols; Keys patrol; small-boat boarding; supervision of explosives loadings; enforcement of dangerous cargo and antipollution laws and regulations; and port safety (14 U.S.C. 89, 91). Vessels and educational resources assisted by the Coast Guard Auxiliary, State and local personnel combine to provide a balanced boating program.

5. Oceanography, meteorology, and polar operations.—The Coast Guard participates in the National Marine Sciences program (14 U.S.C. 94), which is coordinated by the National Council on Marine Resources and Engineering Development. Its facilities cooperate with the Weather Bureau in taking weather observations from vessels manning seven ocean stations (14 U.S.C. 90). Icebreaking is performed by specially constructed icebreakers engaged in polar operations with other agencies (14 U.S.C. 2). Also included in this program is conduct of the International Ice Patrol (46 U.S.C. 738).

6. Military readiness and operations.—The Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy in times of war or national emergency at the direction of the President. During peacetime, an effective state of military preparedness is maintained through unit, multiship and joint naval training exercises and through other Coast Guard operations (14 U.S.C. 3). Included in this category are Coast Guard military operations in Vietnam.

7. General support.—Certain facilities of the Coast Guard provide overall direction and support of all Coast Guard programs. Included are training stations, supply facilities, and nonoperational services at headquarters and district offices.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, rebuilding, and improvements of vessels, aircraft, shore facilities, and aids to navigation.

Direct program.—1. Vessels.—Improvement of existing facilities includes major repairs to Glacier and procurement of equipment for restoration of two other icebreakers, operational improvements on the ice patrol vessel Evergreen; rehabilitation and improvements on nine buoy tenders and one high endurance cutter; and replacement communications equipment on several vessels. Shipboard sewage and galley waste treatment and/or holding systems will be installed in about 15% of the Coast Guard's vessels.

2. Aircraft.—This activity provides for the acquisition of nine replacement aircraft, and reactivation of six aircraft for pollution surveillance and replacement of wing sections on C-130 aircraft.

3. Shore stations and navigational aids.—The program under this activity includes projects to: (a) Replace and improve facilities at six locations; (b) relocate four stations; (c) provide housing for Coast Guard personnel and their dependents in locations where living accommodations are inadequate; and (d) facilitate the design of future construction projects. The program for lighthouse automation and modernization will be continued in 1972. This activity provides for the establishment of and changes to aids to navigation marking river and harbor improvements effected by the U.S. Corps of Engineers, or other urgent needs. In the area of pollution abatement there are projects for procurement of pollution monitoring sensors, additional components for an existing air deliverable anti-pollution transfer system, an oil slick containment system, and construction of sewage disposal systems at several shore stations. The program for replacing obsolete loran-C equipment will continue in 1972.

4. Repair and supply facilities.—The expansion of repair facilities in 1972 provides for replacement of electronics repair facilities at Terminal Island, Calif., and Wildwood, N.J.; improvements to the existing barracks at Base, Honolulu, Hawaii; construction of a new barracks at Wildwood, N.J.; and improvements at four other locations. Projects at the Coast Guard Yard, Curtis Bay, Md., include improved electronics repair capability, replacement of one crane, and partial renewal of the west bulkhead.

5. Training and recruiting facilities.—Construction of new facilities in 1972 will include a barracks building at the Training Center, Yorktown, Va., and a physical sciences building at the Academy, New London, Conn. The heating plant at Recruit Training Center, Cape May, N.J., will be expanded.

6. Alteration of bridges.—The 1972 program also provides continued funding for alteration of bridges located near Chicago, Ill., and Wilmington, N.C.

This appropriation provides for retired pay of military personnel of the Coast Guard and Coast Guard Reserve, members of the former Lighthouse and Lifesaving Services, and for annuities payable to beneficiaries of retired military personnel under the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan (10 U.S.C. 1431-1446).

Members are added to and removed from the rolls each month. The average numbers on the rolls will rise in 1972 and will continue to rise in future years. The actual number on the rolls at the end of 1970 was 13,936 and the number estimated to be on the rolls at the end of 1971 and 1972 is 14,529 and 15,180, respectively. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1970 compared with estimated numbers for 1971 and 1972.

Under the provisions of the Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan, retired Coast Guard military personnel who elect to receive reduced amounts of retired pay may provide for monthly payments to their survivors. Appropriation requirements are reduced by the difference between the amount deducted from retired pay and the amount paid as survivors' benefits. The liability for future payments is not funded. In addition, those who became or become entitled to retired pay on or after April 15, 1970, will be entitled to an increase of 2.5% effective August 1, 1970, or on the first day for which they are entitled to retired pay, whichever is the later.

The Coast Guard Selected Reserve training program will be phased out by June 30, 1972. After that date support needed to meet any requirements now the responsibility of the Selected Reserve will be funded as an element of Navy Reserve appropriations. Costs of the reserve training program are distributed to activities as follows:

1. Initial training.—Direct costs associated with enlisted trainees performing only 5 months' or 5 to 11 months' initial training duty are programed under this activity. The 5-month element includes trainees who do not attend class A school but receive 3 months' post-recruit training at various operating units. The 5- to 11-month element includes trainees who will attend class A school and whose period of initial training duty is governed by the length of the class A school plus recruit training.

2. Continuing training.—Direct costs of officer and enlisted trainees for drill and annual active duty for training are programed under this activity.

3. Operation and maintenance of training facilities.—All costs for the operation and maintenance of Reserve training facilities are programed under this activity. Included are the costs of three training vessels, the prorated share of the cost of joint usage of Coast Guard and other Armed Forces facilities, the cost of providing station-keeper support to the organized Reserve training units, and the procurement of training aids and facilities (under $50 thousand).

4. Administration.—This activity encompasses all administrative costs of the Reserve training program.

Note.—Excludes $13,000 thousand in 1971 and $13,957 thousand in 1972 for activities transferred to Research, development, and facilities, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration 1970, $6,500 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the management and conduct of research, development, test, and evaluation; including the necessary support facilities, services, and personnel.

1. Search and rescue.—Present means and equipment to alert the Coast Guard to a distress incident, define its location, plan and execute the search, and rescue the persons or save the property need improvement to permit rapid, effective, all-weather, day and night response. The 1972 program will expand on previous efforts to: (a) provide a real-time means of notification of the distress incident; (b) provide the detection equipment (systems) capable of detecting small boats in distress at greater ranges, and with higher probability of detection under all-weather conditions, 24 hours a day; (c) provide accurate knowledge of the drift and leeway characteristics of small boats; (d) apply computer technology to the solution of the search problem; and (e) improve the effectiveness of our rescue vehicles and their equipment, particularly under adverse weather conditions.

Improvement in performance in these areas will result in reductions in loss of life and property at sea, and reductions in facility workloads.

Ship operations in ice-covered waters such as the Great Lakes and western rivers are limited by a number of factors. Factors which relate directly to Coast Guard responsibilities are the lack of suitably designed and constructed icebreakers and commercial vessels; adequate aids to navigation system for ice-covered waters; and a complete understanding of the formation, strength, and movement of ice, particularly as it relates to ship design and ship routing. The 1972 program will continue previous years' small scale efforts in all of these areas.

A 1969 survey by the Corps of Engineers has indicated that substantial benefits can accrue from extension of the shipping season on the Great Lakes.

2. Aids to navigation.—The present aids to navigation system in the harbors and coastal areas does not provide sufficiently accurate position information during periods of low visibility nor does it provide the mariner with information on possibly conflicting marine traffic. Available technology can also be applied to substantially reduce the size and weight of the floating buoys and their moorings. The 1972 program includes funds for further development of systems to reduce the navigation and marine traffic problems in the harbor and coastal confluence areas as well as funds to substantially accelerate and expand our work in the development of a family of lightweight buoys, associated equipment, and servicing facilities.

Improvement in aids to navigation and marine traffic information systems in harbor areas and their approaches can substantially reduce damage to vessels from collisions and groundings and the threat of pollution to the marine environment. Development of and conversion to a lightweight buoy system can yield substantial savings in terms of reductions in the size of future tenders, their crews, and other support facilities.

3. Marine safety.—The increasing size and variety of vessels and their transport of larger and more hazardous cargoes requires a continuous and expanding program of research and development in marine science and marine technology to meet Coast Guard responsibilities for merchant marine safety.

The 1972 program will continue and expand on activities intended to: (a) develop safety standards for non-military submersibles; (b) develop better understanding of constraints which should be applied in loading hazardous cargoes, the consequence if intermixed or spilled, and corrective action and equipment needed to ameliorate the spill; (c) develop new concepts where applicable as well as better understanding of the strength and stability factors affecting the design and operation of new vessels and barges, emphasizing the need to minimize the chances of pollution from collision or grounding; (d) continue development and testing of improved materials and equipment to detect, extinguish, and resist marine fires; and (e) continue the analysis of marine accidents to evaluate the impact of human and material factors and identify the areas where improvements are needed.

Shipments by water of hazardous materials and petroleum products are increasing at a great rate. The consequence of the collisions of vessels (93 involving tankships and 354 involving tank barges in 1970) must be reduced if we are to protect our people, their property, and the environment.

4. Marine law enforcement.—The Coast Guard's law enforcement responsibilities require that it have the capability to monitor, detect, contain, and recover spills of oil and other hazardous materials in U.S. waters. In addition, the Coast Guard is responsible for regulations regarding marine transportation of all hazardous materials (over 200 items), as well as abatement of pollution from its own vessels, boats, aircraft, and shore facilities. New developments and application of new and existing technology are needed to meet these responsibilities.

In 1972 the Coast Guard will continue prior years' efforts to develop: (a) airborne sensors able to detect and identify oil spills and other hazardous material; (b) a prototype pollutant monitoring system designed to utilize existing Coast Guard platforms and buoys; (c) containment and recovery systems for spills of petroleum and other hazardous materials (particularly for exposed waters); (d) a hazardous material information system to support emergency and routine operations; and (e) pollution abatement equipment for vessels, boats, aircraft, and shore facilities which meets Federal water and air pollution standards.

Present damage and hazards to the public and costs resulting from large-scale spills can be materially reduced through a successful development program.

Accident statistics clearly identify the need to apply science and technology to reducing boating accidents. Programs for 1972 will continue and expand prior years' activities to: (a) develop more effective means of warning the boaters of unsafe operating conditions; (b) analyze, test, and evaluate small boat design and construction practices as well as equipment reliability and effectiveness in order to establish reasonable and safe regulations.

Successful development in these areas could significantly reduce the sea-air rescue workload and save lives and property.

5. Oceanography, meteorology, and polar operations.—The work in this area is primarily intended to support the marine science requirements of the Coast Guard in meeting other statutory responsibilities.

The 1972 work will continue and expand on prior years' efforts with particular emphasis on meeting law enforcement responsibilities relating to pollution.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION—Continued

Included in the 1972 program are: (a) work in connection with developing a better understanding of the fate, behavior, and dispersion of transportation-induced hazardous materials into the marine environment, particularly petroleum products; (b) efforts to develop better understanding of formation, strength, and movement of ice as it relates to design and navigation of ships in ice-covered waters; (c) efforts to develop and test equipment for airborne reconnaissance systems for measuring ice coverage, strength, and movement; and (d) work to develop more complete understanding of the effects of sea currents and winds on the movements of spills and distressed boats, including development of air deployable surface current meters.

Successful developmental efforts can significantly reduce the adverse effects of large-scale spills of hazardous materials; increase the success of saving lives and property, and reduce resource requirements; and enhance the capability for marine transport on ice-covered waters such as the Great Lakes and western rivers.

A new project in this area is to analyze and develop new concepts for replacing the present Ocean Station Vessels, using either smaller vessels or floating semistable platforms. Preliminary studies of this problem by the Coast Guard Academy have identified large potential annual savings in the cost of operating these stations.

This fund was established under section 11(k) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended by Public Law 91-224, to insure immediate cleanup of oil or other hazardous polluting substances spilled into the navigable waters of the United States, adjoining shorelines, or waters of the contiguous zone. The fund will be used when a spill occurs and the responsible vessel owner or facility operator (whether in the public or private sector) is not in a position to accomplish immediate cleanup with his own resources. Expenditures from the fund will later be reimbursed by the responsible owner or operator (if within the private sector). In addition, all fines assessed under sections 11 and 12 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, will be deposited into the fund.

The Coast Guard supply fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing, commissary provisions, general stores, and technical material. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Activity of approximately $34 million in this fund in 1972 is divided 8% for uniform clothing, 51% for commissary provisions, and 41% for general stores and technical materials.

Increase in 1972 over 1971 is a result of an increase in stocking of engine parts and electronics.

FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION

The Airport and Airway Development and Revenue Act of 1970 established an airport and airway trust fund. All activities previously financed from "Operations," "Facilities and equipment," "Research and development," and "Grants-in-aid for airports," except safety regulation activities will be financed from this trust fund. A new appropriation for "Safety regulation" has been established and the previous accounts for "Facilities and equipment" and "Research and development" are consolidated into a new account, "Airway system investment and development." Since the revenues from user taxes do not equal the full costs of the authorized program, a Federal fund payment to the trust fund will be required. The appropriations for National Capital Airports will continue to be financed from Federal funds.

The following table briefly depicts the source of financing for all FAA programs, for which more detail is furnished in the ensuing budget schedules.

This appropriation finances management, operations, maintenance, and capital outlay costs for equipment and facility projects at the federally owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports which serve the National Capital Area.

The operation of the airports is conducted on a business basis with revenues derived from landing fees, concession activity, and lease arrangements deposited as receipts in the general fund of the Treasury. The direct operating costs and capital outlay are financed by direct appropriation.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NATIONAL CAPITAL AIRPORTS—Con.

The following statements reflect financial results of the two airports. Combined revenues are expected to exceed the 1972 appropriation request by $5.1 million and make a significant contribution to the recovery of interest and depreciation charges. In 1972 for the first time, before application of interest and depreciation charges, Dulles International Airport is expected to return an operating profit of $210 thousand. This makes both airports self-supporting in terms of recovery of direct operating costs through revenues.

The rate structures and concession arrangements are established so as to assure the recovery of operating costs, interest expenses and an appropriate return on the Government's investment during the useful life of the airports. Revenues, however, are expected to grow at a faster rate than expenses.

This appropriation finances construction of major improvements to, and expansion of, facilities at Washington National Airport and Dulles International Airport. Projects are undertaken whenever necessary to insure the capability of these airports to adequately, safely, and efficiently meet air travel needs of the public and to promote development of aviation activities in general.

At Washington National Airport, funds are provided for rebuilding Runway 18-36 including the stabilization of the runway threshold areas. At Dulles International Airport, funds are provided for expansion of the terminal and additions to the mobile-lounge fleet.

All outlays for physical improvements are added to the airports' capital investment and will be subsequently recovered through fees and charges to the tenants and users of the airports, in accordance with established business practices.

A supplemental appropriation will be requested for 1971 to provide funds for an International Aeronautical Exposition at Dulles International Airport.

A supplemental request is anticipated to provide funds to implement legislation, section 709 of the Military Construction Authorization Act, 1970, Public Law 91-142, as amended, which authorized the President to establish and conduct an International Aeronautical Exposition. The President, by Executive Order 11538, dated 29 June 1970, assigned the responsibility for the development and operation of the exposition to the Secretary of Transportation.

The enabling legislation provides that revenues from the exposition may be used to pay the expenses of the exposition, with any net revenues after payment of such expenses to be deposited in the U.S. Treasury. The exposition is planned to be located at Dulles International Airport and to run for a period of 9 days, beginning May 27 and closing June 4, 1972.

This appropriation finances all of the safety regulation activities of the Federal Aviation Administration, exclusive of the National Capital Airports accounts, which are not eligible to be financed from the Airport and airway trust fund. The 1971 program level of approximately $108 million is financed under the old appropriations "Operations" and "Research and development."

1. Operations.—Under the operations portion of this appropriation there are the following activities:

(a) Installation and materiel services.—This activity covers the procurement, contracting and materiel management functions necessary to the furnishing of supplies, spare parts and leased telecommunications services to support safety regulation activities.

(b) Administration of flight standards program.—This activity covers the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure the high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies that meet safety or competency requirements. Management and maintenance of agency training aircraft are also included in this activity.

(c) Administration of medical programs.—This activity covers the portion of the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of a health and medical program for agency personnel; the administration of an aviation medical research program, the project costs of which are financed under research and development; and the operation of the Civil Aeromedical Institute building not financed from the trust fund.

(d) Research direction.—This activity covers the portion of the planning, direction, and evaluation of the research and development program, not financed from the trust fund; and a portion of the administrative support for the operation of the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center at Atlantic City, N.J.

2. Research and development.—The research and development portion of this appropriation includes a program, coordinated with the Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, to study, develop, and evaluate devices to enhance the safety of civil aircraft. Also included are the analysis and solution of noise and sonic boom problems and an aeromedical research effort directed toward the identification of human factors in aviation system design and operation.

The Airport and Airway Revenue Act of 1970 (Title II of Public Law 91-258) establishes in the Treasury of the United States an Airport and Airway Trust Fund. Section 208(b) of the act provides that all revenues from aviation user taxes are appropriated to the trust fund. Section 208(d) of the act authorizes additional appropriations to the trust fund as may be required to make expenditures for specific airport and airway activities conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration (section 208(f) of the act).

This appropriation provides for a definite appropriation equal to the difference between tax revenues estimated to be collected by the Treasury and appropriations enacted by the Congress under the three operating accounts under the Airport and airway trust fund. No Federal payment is required in 1971 since Congress did not act on the administration proposal to fully implement the trust fund for 1971.
