TRAFFIC AND HIGHWAY SAFETY—Continued

The following activities encompass motor vehicle safety programs authorized under the National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act; highway safety programs authorized under the Highway Safety Act; and executive direction and administrative support requirements undertaken pursuant to both acts. Beginning in 1972, two-thirds of the highway safety research and development programs and the administration of the State and community highway safety programs is financed by a reimbursement from the Highway Trust Fund. The remaining one-third portion of highway safety research and development plus programs authorized under the Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act are financed entirely from Federal funds provided by this appropriation.

1. Program direction and coordination.—This activity provides direction, coordination, and implementation of overall policies, programs, and objectives. Staff offices carry out responsibilities in planning, scientific matters, legal services, consumer affairs, and civil rights.

2. Motor vehicle program.—This activity encompasses development of motor vehicle and tire safety standards, evaluation and compliance procedures and studies to determine the effects on product costs and leadtime for implementation by the industry. Increases are requested to expand the testing of new motor vehicles and tires for compliance with Federal safety standards and to implement a phased staffing plan for a compliance test facility.

3. Traffic safety program.—This activity provides for headquarters and field staff to establish policy, program, and technical guidance to the States in executing highway safety programs, to determine program effectiveness and to assure conformity with governing laws and regulations. Funding is also provided to carry out training and education programs, and to conduct demonstration projects that will speed the implementation of new safety techniques into practice.

4. Research and analysis.—This activity provides for motor vehicle and highway safety research and development, for the collection of data to determine the relationship between motor vehicle or equipment performance characteristics and crashes or the occurrence of death or personal injury as a result of such crashes, and for operation of the National Driver Register, which provides centralized information on license revocations. Increases are requested to improve the crash survivability features of motor vehicles; to continue research and testing on experimental safety vehicles; and to expand field accident investigation activity.

5. Staff and administrative support services.—Provides for services, such as budgeting, personnel management, office services, contracting, and procurement, to support all activities conducted by this organization.

The Highway Safety Act of 1970 provided authorizations to continue programs under section 402 of title 23, U.S. Code. Federal grants are provided to assist the States and their political subdivisions in the establishment of highway safety programs such as driver licensing, motor vehicle registration, traffic records, police traffic services, driver education, etc. Individual States are also utilizing this funding to supplement federally funded alcohol safety action projects. Highway safety programs are based on comprehensive statewide plans prepared in accordance with uniform standards promulgated by the Secretary of Transportation. The States are required to match Federal grants.

Beginning in 1972, two-thirds of the funding is provided by the Highway trust fund pursuant to the Highway Safety Act of 1970. The remaining one-third, derived from Federal funds, is provided from this appropriation.

A total of $90 million in obligations is planned for highway safety programs in 1973, including those obligations to be incurred by both the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) and the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA). A tentative distribution of this total would provide $13.3 million for FHWA and $76.7 million for NHTSA. Annual program plans as submitted by the States and approved by the two agencies will determine the actual distribution of obligations.

The Alaska Railroad was located, built, and is operated by the Federal Government under the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305). The Railroad now operates as a bureau of the Federal Railroad Administration.

Budget program.—There are no significant changes planned for 1973. The rail line program of operating and other costs is expected to remain at a level approximating estimated revenues. Proposed capital improvements are within the capability of the present force structure.

Financing.—No appropriation is being requested for 1973. It is estimated at the end of the budget year there will be an unobligated balance of $3,027 thousand and an unexpended Treasury balance of $3,621 thousand.

In furtherance of the general policy to withdraw the Federal Government from programs and enterprises more appropriately carried on at other governmental levels or in the private sector, the administration will continue to support legislation which would authorize the sale of the Alaska Railroad.

This fund was established to finance all grants, contracts and loan activities authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended.

Under the provisions of the 1970 amendments (Urban Mass Transportation Assistance Act of 1970) authority to obligate $3.1 billion was provided for the capital facilities, relocation, and technical studies activities. Grants and contracts for research, development, and demonstration; managerial training; and university research and training are funded through appropriations.

Capital outlay.—Capital facility grants.—Grants are made to State and local public agencies to assist in financing acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities, in mass transportation service in urban areas. A grant may be made not to exceed two-thirds of the net project costs.

In 1973 the activity level will be $841.4 million. This compares with $510.0 million in 1972, and $283.7 million in 1971. The greatest number of projects are for the purchase of new buses amounting to 154 ongoing projects. As of June 30, 1971, this activity has assisted in the purchase of 6,929 new buses for more than 100 transit properties. It is estimated that in 1973 this activity will assist in the purchase of 5,000 new buses, 65 commuter rail cars and 300 rail rapid transit cars, with the latter projects requiring the highest dollar levels.

Technical studies grants.—Under this activity, State and local public agencies are assisted in carrying out studies relating to management operations, capital requirements, economic feasibility, and conducting similar activities in preparation for the construction, acquisition, or improved operation of mass transportation systems, facilities and equipment. In 1973 the program level for new projects will be $33.5 million, with 160 estimated projects. This compares with $25 million in 1972, with 197 projects, and $14.4 million in 1971, with 163 projects.

Research, development and demonstration, grants and contracts.—This activity involves research, development and demonstration projects, which includes the development, testing, and demonstration of new facilities, equipment, techniques, and methods which assist in reducing urban transportation needs, improving mass transportation services, or in meeting total urban transportation needs at a minimum cost. In 1973 the program level for new projects will be $115 million. This compares with $62 million in 1972, and $39.5 million in 1971.

Managerial training.—Grants under this activity, are made to public bodies to provide university fellowships for up to 1 year of advance training. Fellowship awards are made for the training of personnel employed in managerial, technical and professional positions in the urban mass transportation field. In 1973 the program level will be $0.5 million with an estimated 100 fellowship awards.

University research and training.—Grants under this activity are awarded to public and private nonprofit institutions of higher learning. The grants are to assist in establishing or continuing programs which combine professional training in urban transportation, and related fields. In 1973 the program level will be $2.5 million.

Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for carrying out administrative functions, including executive direction, budgeting, accounting, property management and personnel management. The urban mass transportation program will be conducted at a $1 billion level of new approvals in 1973. This level compares to $606 million in 1972, and $401 million in 1971. Also, there will be approximately 612 ongoing projects totaling $1,131.5 million which must be administered.

Capital facilities loans.—Under this activity, two types of loans are available. Capital improvement loans are to finance the acquisition, construction, reconstruction and improvement of facilities and equipment. Loans are also provided for the advance acquisition of real property to be used as a part of planned mass transportation systems.

Financing.—The 1970 amendments to the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 provided budget authority of $3,100 million.

The amendments for 1970 provide an authorization for appropriations to liquidate obligations and, further, require that all other appropriations be accounted for within this authorization. This provision provides annual scheduled dollar limits which total $1,860 million through June 30, 1975, and the balance, $1,241 million, authorized for appropriation after June 30, 1975. For 1973, $357 million is being requested and this compares with $221 million and $228 million appropriated in 1972 and 1971, respectively, which are charged to the authorization.

The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a wholly Government-owned enterprise, is responsible for the development, operation, and maintenance of the Saint Lawrence Seaway. The Corporation is one of the seven operating administrations in the Department of Transportation with offices in the Department headquarters and in Massena, N.Y. (33 U.S.C. 981 et seq.).

The Corporation has joint responsibility with the Saint Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada for the 114-mile reach of the international section of the Saint Lawrence River between Lake Ontario and St. Regis, N.Y. The principal facilities of the Corporation, located in the vicinity of Massena, N.Y., are the Eisenhower and Snell Locks, operational offices, marine equipment, maintenance shop, and appurtenant structures.

2. Operations.—This program provides for operation of the system including locks, traffic control, maintenance, marine operations, comprehensive planning and development, engineering, systems and economic analysis, safety, and security. Lock operations are conducted on a 24-hour day, 7-day week basis throughout the navigation season. Maintenance functions which include repair and upkeep of locks, channels, floating plant, roads, bridges, and other facilities are performed throughout the year with some major maintenance items deferred to the off-navigation season. The most critical lock rehabilitation has been completed with only minor repair work and routine maintenance of the locks scheduled to be accomplished this year.

3. Capital outlay.—This program includes capital improvements and additions to our locks, channels and canals, navigational aids, and permanent buildings, as well as equipment purchases.

Recent analysis of the Corporation's income indicates that up to an additional $800,000 per year is obtainable by extending navigation season for 30 days. The season extension program, including the design and construction of ice control structures, development of improved navigational aids, ice anchoring, extensive monitoring of winter conditions and aerial mapping is funded under the operations and capital outlay activities as appropriate.

Under the interagency season extension program, the Seaway Corporation has the prime responsibility for research, development, evaluation, and testing of ice control structures usable in the Saint Lawrence/Great Lakes System. Programs provide for conceptual designs of ice control structures including new design of booms, locks, or gates which could be applied specifically to the Saint Lawrence River. Prototype design is planned for early 1972.

Financing.—The Corporation was authorized by the legislation which created it to borrow $140 million from the U.S. Treasury for financing the cost of constructing and improving the Seaway. To date, $133.8 million of this borrowing authority has been used, with the unused balance of $6.2 million being retained to meet any emergency requirements which may arise in the future.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Corporation estimates its revenues for 1973 will be $7.2 million which it proposes to apply as follows:

1. $3.6 million to pay operating expenses consisting of administrative expenses of $0.8 million (subject to congressional limitation) and $2.8 million for operations.

2. $0.6 million to pay estimated capital outlay costs consisting of channel and lock improvements and necessary equipment purchases.

3. $3.0 million for the redemption of Corporation's revenue bonds issued to the U.S. Treasury.

Implemented July 1, 1971, the fund finances telephone, telegraph, and printing and reproduction services, by advances or reimbursements from appropriations and funds of the Department, other Federal agencies, and other authorized sources for supplies and services at rates which will recover the expense of operations, including accrual of annual leave and depreciation of equipment. Capital of the fund consists of equipment and supplies valued at $218 thousand, minus accrued annual leave valued at $31 thousand, which was transferred without reimbursement.

The Secretary of the Treasury may invest the principal of the Pershing Hall Memorial Fund in interest-bearing U.S. bonds. Earnings are paid to the American Legion for use in the maintenance of Pershing Hall in Paris, France (49 Stat. 426).

There is pending legislation which would transfer the control of Pershing Hall to the Administrator of Veterans Affairs. The proposed legislation would abolish the Pershing Hall Memorial Fund and provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall liquidate any nonliquid assets in such fund and cover the proceeds and other fund assets into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

This account was created as self-insurance to cover losses in shipment of Government property such as coin, currency, securities, certain losses incurred by the Post Office Department, and losses in connection with the redemption of savings bonds (40 U.S.C. 722). Since these claims are only partially offset by recoveries, the net losses have gradually increased to $3,182 thousand as of June 30, 1971, and are expected to increase to $3,884 thousand by June 30, 1972.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of U.S. currency and Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as food coupons, postage and internal revenue stamps. In addition, the Bureau prints a wide variety of miscellaneous commissions, certificates, etc., and executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—Estimates for the current and budget years indicate an increase in delivery requirements to 3.0 and 3.3 billion notes, respectively, as compared with the delivery of 2.9 billion notes in 1971. The 1971 unit cost rate of $7.69 per thousand notes established a new low for manufacturing currency in the past 20 years. Annual savings to be realized on this product during 1972 and 1973 as a result of increased employee productivity and the mechanization of a portion of the note finishing operations will assist in offsetting the continuing rise in the cost of labor and materials.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postage and internal revenue stamps, and food coupons. The budget estimates for 1972 and 1973 show a substantial decrease in the requirements for postage stamps from the peak deliveries made during 1971 as a result of the postal rate increase in that year. However, this decrease has been offset to some extent by the continuous rise in the requirements for certain types of stamps for the Internal Revenue Service and books of food coupons which are ordered by the Department of Agriculture.

(c) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of the Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government. No material change is noted in the anticipated requirements of the agencies for the current and budget years as compared with the number of pieces delivered in 1971.

(d) Commissions, certificates, etc.—An increase of approximately 15% is noted in the number of units to be delivered for this class of work in 1973 as compared with the actual year 1971. However, the production costs associated with these items represent a very small percentage of the overall engraving and printing program of the Bureau.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—These charges are made to other agencies for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Bureau operations resulted in a loss of $193 thousand in 1971. This loss will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years, in accordance with the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181. Budget expenditures were $914 thousand in excess of receipts in 1971. Due to expenditures for the purchase of fixed assets, budget outlays are expected to be in excess of receipts in the amount of $300 thousand in 1972 and $1,200 thousand in 1973.

An appropriation of $6 million is being requested in 1973 to increase the capital of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing fund. This will increase the capital of the fund to $34.3 million, represented by appropriations of $12.3 million and donated assets of $22 million.

In 1972 an appropriation of $1,500 thousand was made for the purchase of a suitable site for the Denver mint. The selection and purchase of this site are in the process. The sum of $2,000 thousand requested for 1973 covers some of the costs of architect-engineer design and drawings.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The Internal Revenue Service is responsible for administration and enforcement of the internal revenue laws. It seeks to preserve and enhance the productivity of the Nation's tax system by fostering voluntary compliance with internal revenue laws and reducing noncompliance.

To encourage lawful compliance with these laws the Service maintains an automatic data processing master file system, informs taxpayers of the requirements of law, assists them in fulfilling these requirements, audits tax returns, collects unpaid taxes, and investigates and prosecutes willful tax evaders. It also carries out other law enforcement programs in support of national goals.

The number of taxpayers and the volume of revenue increases as the population, individual prosperity, and national economy increase. This growth is reflected in the following figures:

Year:	Tax returns filed (in millions)	Gross revenue collections (in billions of dollars)
1963 actual.....	97.8	105.9
1968 actual.....	107.6	153.6
1969 actual.....	110.7	187.9
1970 actual.....	113.1	195.7
1971 actual.....	111.4	191.6
1972 estimate.....	111.5	(1)

¹ See estimate in part 4 of the budget document.

The additional funds requested for 1973 are principally to provide manpower (net of productivity increases) to maintain current compliance levels on the 113.6 million tax returns expected, and to meet increased costs of maintaining the staff already authorized. Three additional Internal Revenue Service Centers, making a total of 10, will provide for processing the increased volume of tax returns filed. The Integrated Data Retrieval System (IDRS), an important technological advance for improving taxpayer service and IRS efficiency, will be extended to all of the Service's seven regions.

In addition to its tax administration duties, the Internal Revenue Service has been assigned a major role in administering the President's program for economic stabilization. Through its district and local offices, the IRS is providing the service and compliance needs of the stabilization effort. This includes supplying public information and answering public inquiries, reviewing and investigating complaints, monitoring compliance, and reviewing and making first level decisions on requests for exemption or exception from stabilization provisions.

The following estimates of stabilization workload for 1972 and 1973 are tentative since they are based on rather limited experience and depend on the duration of stabilization.

(In thousands)	1972	1973
Public inquiries answered.....	4,144	4,997
Complaints investigated.....	123	148
Compliance spot checks and investigations.....	288	347
First level decisions on exemptions or exceptions.....	34	41

Because of manpower applied to stabilization in 1972 and 1973, the workload accomplishments in regular Service programs is estimated to be somewhat less than would otherwise be expected.

This appropriation provides for the overall planning and direction of the Internal Revenue Service, for management of the Service's support programs and for internal audit and internal security. This 1973 appropriation request provides for maintaining a balanced level of administrative programs, internal audits, and integrity investigations.

1. Executive direction.—This activity sets policies and goals; provides the research and planning necessary for orderly and effective accomplishment of the Revenue Service's mission; provides leadership and direction in the execution of plans; and provides for the administrative support of all operations.

2. Internal audit and security.—This activity establishes and verifies maintenance of quality controls in the Revenue Service. It provides a continuing and independent review of all Revenue Service operations, thereby assuring the Commissioner and operational managers that appropriated funds are spent only for authorized purposes, that tax revenues are properly safeguarded, and that public confidence in the integrity of Revenue Service employees is maintained.

Compliance, Internal Revenue Service.....	$171,522

This appropriation has been newly formed as a result of functional realignments in the Internal Revenue Service aimed chiefly at improving efficiency and responsiveness to taxpayers. It combines the collection activity and an expanded taxpayer service program, formerly of the Compliance Appropriation, with the activities of the former Revenue Accounting and Processing Appropriation, which it replaces.

1. Data processing operations.—This activity provides for all actions associated with the mailing out of tax return forms and instructions, receipt of completed returns and payments, deposit of the payments, and verification through an automated master file system of the accuracy of information provided on the tax returns. It provides for payment of refunds, offset of refunds against delinquent accounts, issuance of notices that payments are overdue, identification of possible nonfilers for investigation, and assistance in selection of tax returns which appear to warrant an audit.

2. Collection and taxpayer service.—This activity provides assistance to taxpayers in understanding their tax obligations and is responsible for securing tax returns due but unfiled and collecting taxes due but unpaid.

3. Statistical reporting.—This activity prepares statistical information on income and other features of the tax system, performs other statistical research, and forecasts the number of tax returns to be filed by type, size, and geographical area.

The increases requested for 1973 are principally to keep pace with workload resulting from growth in population and the economy, to improve the quality of taxpayer service, and to step up the program for securing unfiled returns and unpaid taxes. Important advances are anticipated by extending an automated data retrieval system through which taxpayer assistance as well as Service operations will be improved. Three additional Internal Revenue Service centers will provide for processing the increasing volume of tax returns being filed.

Note.—Excludes $183,356 thousand in 1972 and $192,497 thousand in 1973 for activity transferred to Accounts, Collection and Taxpayer Service, Internal Revenue Service. Comparable amount for 1971 ($171,522 thousand) is included above.

This appropriation provides for detecting and correcting noncompliance with the tax laws, and for carrying out the Internal Revenue Service's special law enforcement responsibilities.

Additional funds requested for 1973 are necessary to strengthen the compliance enforcement capacity of the tax administration system and permit progress toward program levels which will insure a continued high degree of voluntary compliance with the internal revenue laws. This requires a reversal of the trend of declining audit coverage and restoration of an adequate audit program.

1. Audit of tax returns.—This activity provides for a selective examination of tax returns to see if taxpayers have properly complied with the internal revenue laws. It corrects errors and explains corrections to the taxpayers. It also makes determinations as to whether certain organizations or funds are exempt from taxation.

3. Tax fraud and special investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of the criminal statutes relating to violations of tax laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud; recommends prosecution as warranted; and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases. It is responsible for directing service participation in the drive against organized crime.

4. Alcohol, tobacco, and firearms regulatory work.—This activity provides for administration and enforcement of internal revenue laws and regulations relating to alcohol and tobacco products. It is also responsible for administering and enforcing the Federal Alcohol Administration Act, the National Firearms Act, Title IV of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, and Title XI of the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970.

5. Taxpayer conferences and appeals.—This activity provides for administrative consideration and settlement of taxpayer appeals of audit findings.

6. Technical rulings and services.—This activity develops tax return forms, instructions, and guides; issues rulings and opinions as to application of the tax laws, and meets with taxpayer groups to review and resolve special tax problems.

7. Legal services.—This activity provides for the legal counsel and legal assistance needed by the Service to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 solely to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lien holder's equity, but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

This office: (a) receives, keeps, and disburses the moneys of the United States; (b) processes claims for the proceeds of Government checks; (c) issues and redeems currency and Government securities; (d) maintains fiscal accounts; and (e) prepares financial statements and reports.

1. Payment and reconciliation of checks.—This activity maintains checking accounts of Government disbursing officers and Government-owned corporations; proves all debits and credits to the general account of the Treasurer by Federal Reserve banks and U.S. depositaries; performs centralized payment function of all checks drawn on the Treasurer of the United States; reconciles deposits claimed and checks issued as reported by disbursing officers with the deposits credited and checks paid by the Treasurer and determines the outstanding checks in each disbursing account. Electronic equipment has been used by this activity since August 1956 in paying and reconciling checks. Postal money orders have also been processed on this equipment since June 1962 as a reimbursable service for the Postal Service.

In addition to Government checks and postal money orders, Federal tax deposit forms are also being processed on this equipment. This form represents payment of corporation, employment, and excise taxes. The amounts paid are deposited in the Treasurer's account and the forms are sent to the Treasurer for proving and for conversion of the information on the forms to magnetic tape. The tape records are then sent to Internal Revenue Service for direct input to its computerized central filing system of Federal taxes.

The Check forgery insurance fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561). It was increased to $100 thousand by appropriation of an additional $50 thousand in 1964, and further increased to $200 thousand by appropriation of $100 thousand in 1970. The fund is for use by the Treasurer in making settlement with the payees—or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the Treasurer which have been paid—on forged endorsements in which it appears that recovery from those liable may be delayed or be unsuccessful. The inability of the Treasurer to settle these claims promptly causes hardship on people who are totally dependent on the money represented by these claims, such as recipients of social security and other annuities.

An appropriation of $1,800 thousand for this revolving fund is needed to enable the Treasurer to make settlement on repetitive payment type cases immediately upon receiving the affidavit of forgery from the payee.

The Service must provide for the protection of the President of the United States, members of his immediate family, the President-elect, the Vice President or other officer next in the order of succession to the Office of the President, and the Vice President-elect; protection of the person of a visiting head of a foreign state or foreign government and, at the direction of the President, other distinguished foreign visitors to the United States and official representatives of the United States performing special missions abroad; the protection of persons who are determined to be major presidential or vice presidential candidates, unless such protection is declined; the protection of the person of a former President and his wife during his lifetime, the protection of the person of the widow of a former President until her death or remarriage, and minor children of a former President until they reach 16 years of age, unless such protection is declined. The Service is also responsible for investigation of counterfeiting of currency, specie, and securities; forgery and altering of Government checks and bonds; and criminal and noncriminal cases.

The Executive Protective Service protects the Executive Residence and grounds in the District of Columbia and any building in which White House offices are located. This operation is clearly allied with the personal protection of the President and his family while they are in residence. In addition, the Executive Protective Service protects foreign diplomatic missions in the Washington metropolitan area and such other areas in the United States as the President may direct on a case-by-case basis.

The Treasury Security Force is responsible for safeguarding paper currency and other Government securities and obligations that are contained in the main Treasury building and its annex in Washington, D.C.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the Comptroller's Office is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. In accordance with 12 U.S.C. 481, assessments paid by national banks are not construed to be Government funds. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the Comptroller's Office in any of its operations.

The administrator of national banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed, on-site examinations, the latter conducted by a staff of approximately 1,625 national bank examiners. At the present time there are approximately 4,600 national banks with nearly 13,000 operating branches and total assets of $341 billion. As a result of the reports submitted and the examinations conducted, the Office determines the financial condition of individual national banks and the system as a whole, the soundness of operations and compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank, and applications from banks to establish branches. The Comptroller of the Currency promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks, bank directors, etc., and publishes them as manuals so that they are readily available to the interested parties.

Legislation has been proposed to establish a program of general revenue sharing which will consist of direct Federal assistance in the form of general support grants, free of any program or project restrictions, available to each State and its localities. It is proposed that 1.3% of the Nation's total taxable individual income automatically be appropriated for this purpose each year. The $5.3 billion requested for 1973 represents the estimated cost for 1 full year of operation.

Revenue sharing funds will be allocated among the States on the basis of resident population and revenue effort. Within each State, general purpose local governments (counties, municipalities, and townships) will receive a guaranteed share of the funds. This share will be based on a formula which allocates about one-half of the total amount to these local governments or on a ratification process whereby each state government works with its local governments to formulate a distribution arrangement most suitable to their needs.

Each State and local government receiving revenue sharing funds will be free to allocate the moneys according to its own, locally determined priorities. Financial reporting to the Treasury will be required only to assure that the money is spent for a lawful governmental purpose, and in a nondiscriminatory manner.

Note.—Excludes amounts contained in the proposed 1972 supplemental, which are identified in the discussions of activities 2 through 5.

The Atomic Energy Commission conducts a variety of production, research and development, and supporting activities directed toward its responsibilities for national defense and peaceful applications of atomic energy. Most of the activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts.

Total program costs in 1973 are estimated at $2,362.7 million or $132.5 million more than estimated 1972 costs of $2,230.2 million, and $175.4 million more than actual costs of $2,187.3 million for 1971. In addition to the amounts shown in the schedules above, a 1972 supplemental is being requested in the amount of $13.3 million in budget authority.

In 1973, total program obligations will exceed program costs, the difference being obligations incurred for future years' cost. Total program obligations for operating expenses in 1973 are estimated to be $2,458.3 million compared to $2,308.8 million in 1972 and $2,179.9 million in 1971.

The schedule of costs by activity does not include non-budgetary costs such as depreciation charges, accrued annual leave earned but not taken by AEC employees, and the cost of source and special nuclear materials consumed; in total, these are as follows: 1971, $644.6 million; 1972 estimate, $599.5 million; 1973 estimate, $634.2 million.

1. Nuclear materials.—The major portion of this program relates to the production of special nuclear materials primarily for use in nuclear weapons and as fuel for nuclear reactors. The program also provides for the development of information on the availability of source materials; for research and development for improving nuclear materials security; for filter testing and related operational safety activities; and for radioactive waste burial ground operation and development of improved techniques for long-term storage of radioactive waste.

Production of nuclear materials is carried on at major production plants located at Richland, Wash.; Savannah River, S.C.; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of uranium enriched in the isotope U²³⁵ will continue to increase in 1973. AEC charges industry for its services in enriching uranium, and the related revenues are included in the receipts from non-Federal sources in the program and financing schedule.

In 1973, work will also continue on process improvements to assure efficiency and safety of operation and to develop more economical methods of production. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

In a June 4, 1971, message to Congress, the President outlined a broad range of actions to assure an adequate supply of clean energy for the years ahead. To facilitate research and development for clean energy the President included a commitment to complete the successful demonstration of a liquid metal fast breeder reactor (LMFBR) by 1980. In particular, the development program on the LMFBR will increase to support the plan leading to an economic fast breeder nuclear powerplant, including support of an LMFBR demonstration plant in the 300–500 MWE range. Cooperative endeavors will continue between the Commission and industrial groups.

General reactor technology includes development work in support of the overall reactor program in such areas as reactor fuels, materials, physics, heat transfer, components, chemistry, and chemical separations.

The nuclear safety program provides for research and development and investigation of safety problems, conduct of field tests, and application of effective engineered safeguards in the construction and operation of nuclear reactors and other nuclear facilities. In 1973, added emphasis will be placed on fast breeder reactor safety. The nonnuclear technology program provides for the development of energy related systems required for improvements in energy generation, transmission, and storage.

The space propulsion systems program carried out in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop nuclear rocket technology for potential space applications will be continued.

The space electric power development program is conducted in cooperation with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Department of Defense to develop nuclear reactor and radioisotopic power systems for space applications, such as DOD's Lincoln Experimental Satellite.

The naval propulsion reactors program provides for the design and development of improved nuclear propulsion plants and reactor cores for installation in naval vessels ranging from small submarines to large combatant surface ships.

4. Physical research.—This program comprises basic and applied research in the physical sciences. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Commission serves as executive agency for the Nation's high energy physics research. An increase is required for the National Accelerator Laboratory to support some experimental operations of the 200 Bev accelerator. An increase is also provided for partial exploitation of the modified AGS accelerator. Costs for the remainder of the high energy physics program are at about the 1972 level, requiring reductions in other program activities to accommodate these increases.

Support of the medium energy physics program will increase by $2.9 million. Within this total, an increase is required to bring into operation the Los Alamos Meson Physics Facility and to proceed with a broad research program utilizing the accelerator. A corresponding increase at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology provides for bringing the 400 Mev electron linear accelerator into operation at full energy. Other activities in medium energy physics will be reduced to offset these increases.

The objective of the controlled thermonuclear research program is to determine whether the energy released by thermonuclear reactions can be controlled and developed into an economical and environmentally attractive source of energy. This research will be increased in 1973 using experimental devices to test recent concepts for improved plasma confinement, density, and temperature necessary to achieve plasma conditions in which fusion can occur.

Other activities of the physical research program—low energy physics, mathematics and computer research, chemistry research, and metallurgy and materials research—are continued at somewhat below the 1972 level.

5. Biology and medicine.—This program includes basic and applied research and development in the life sciences. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Interaction of radiation with biological systems.....	32,981	32,613	34,000
Assessment, evaluation and control of radiation exposure to man and his environment.....	44,274	45,767	49,000

Total biology and medicine.....	88,117	88,845	93,800
Additional amounts for environmental research included in proposed 1972 supplemental.....		2,000	700

The program provides the scientific information necessary to assure that all nuclear energy activities are conducted with due regard for the safety of man and his environment and which increases the ability to predict the environmental behavior and biological effects of radionuclides. The program is thus directly responsive to the needs of the AEC in both its operations and its regulatory functions. The program is coordinated with other Government agencies conducting programs in related aspects of biomedical research.

Primary emphasis in 1973 will be placed on program areas of particular importance and urgency including: (1) the late effects of low doses of radiation, (2) tumorigenicity of particles of plutonium and other alpha emitters, (3) thermal alteration of fresh water, marine, and atmospheric environments, (4) toxicity of radioelements such as radium and uranium in humans, and (5) studies of the structure and function of biological molecules and components of cells, radiation-induced damage to cells, and the processes by which the damage is repaired.

6. Training, education, and information.—This program includes specialized training courses; graduate fellowships and traineeships; assistance to schools, faculty, and students; operation of the Puerto Rico Nuclear Center; training in materials safeguards; dissemination of scientific and technical information; and operation of nuclear science and technology demonstrations and exhibits.

The cooperative use of specialized atomic energy laboratory facilities and staff in assisting the educational programs of colleges and universities throughout the country will increase.

By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Nuclear education and training.....	6,782	6,200	7,000
Training in materials safeguards.....	175	180	100

Public information services.....	247	250	250
Total training, education, and information.....	12,859	12,293	12,400

7. Isotopes development.—The program consists of research and development activities required to accelerate realization of the potentially vast uses of radioisotopes and radiation technology. Much of this work is carried out in cooperation with industry, academic institutions, and other Government agencies. The primary emphasis will be to develop sufficient analytical and experimental data to provide the basis for a decision on the practicability of achieving a fully implantable radioisotope powered artificial heart device having a 10-year life.

8. Civilian applications of nuclear explosives.—This program, also known as Plowshare, investigates, develops and demonstrates peaceful uses for nuclear explosives. The 1973 program primarily involves effort in the underground engineering area on the continued development of a natural gas application technology that could lead to the introduction of substantial quantities of natural gas into the Nation's pipelines thereby significantly contributing to the Nation's energy supply. Two nuclear explosion experiments are planned: a nuclear explosive development test named YACHT to be conducted on the Nevada Test Site; and a cooperative Government-industry gas stimulation experiment named RIO BLANCO to be conducted in Colorado.

9. Communities.—Costs for the community program are estimated at $5.0 million in 1973. The 1973 estimate includes assistance payments to the former AEC communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Los Alamos, N. Mex., under the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended. The estimate also includes costs at Los Alamos, principally for fire protection.

10. Regulation.—This program covers salaries and other costs for employees engaged in the discharge of regulatory functions of the Commission, including development of policies, standards, and procedures; administering licenses and regulations applicable to licensees; compliance and safeguards inspections for licensees; and cooperation with States in regulatory activities. Also included are costs for technical assistance received from AEC laboratories, other Government agencies, and other contractors. The 1973 estimate provides for 851 employees located in the headquarters and field offices. This is an increase of 202 over the June 30, 1972, employment level.

11. Program direction and administration.—This program includes the salaries and other costs for employees engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision of the atomic energy program. Employees are located in the Washington headquarters and in field offices. The 1973 estimate provides for 4,895 employees, which is an increase of 23 over the level estimated for June 30, 1972.

12. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, requires investigations of those persons proposed for access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of background investigations to be requested in 1973 is estimated at 11,930 as compared with 11,977 for 1972 and 10,600 for 1971.

13. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objective of widespread use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, AEC furnishes materials and services to industrial organizations and other private parties. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenues applied) and are applied as a source of funds, thereby reducing the amount of appropriations required. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

Note.—Excludes amounts contained in the proposed 1972 supplemental for the nuclear materials and biology and medicine activities.

This appropriation provides for construction of plants and facilities and for acquisition of capital equipment required for the production, research and development, and supporting programs of the Atomic Energy Commission. Of the budget authority of $440.3 million being requested for 1973, $130.5 million applies to new construction projects or modification of existing facilities, $62.5 million is applicable to construction projects which were previously authorized by Congress, $80.2 million is applicable to projects for which amended authorization is being requested, and $167.1 million is required for acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction.

In addition to the amounts shown in the schedules above, a 1972 supplemental is being requested in the amount of $9.0 million in budget authority.

The 1973 funds applicable to the previously authorized projects now underway include $20.6 million for the Fast Flux Test Facility, Richland, Wash. (total estimated cost $102.8 million), and $42.9 million for the 200 Bev accelerator, Du Page and Kane Counties near Chicago, Ill. (total estimated cost $250.0 million).

The Fast Flux Test Facility, as a part of the Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor program, will provide an irradiation reactor for testing fuel and clad materials in a fast flux sodium-cooled environment. The 200 Bev accelerator will provide the highest energy proton beam in the world, permitting experiments to be conducted in an energy range which is now inaccessible.

The 1973 request for projects partially authorized in past years includes funding of $3.0 million for a bedrock waste storage facility (exploratory shaft and tunnels), Savannah River, S.C. (total estimated cost $16.3 million); $14.5 million for gaseous diffusion production support facilities (total estimated cost $107.0 million); $5.5 million for process equipment modifications, gaseous diffusion plants (total estimated cost $69.4 million); $3.1 million for the National Nuclear Science Information Center (American Museum of Atomic Energy), Oak Ridge, Tenn. (total estimated cost $3.5 million); $32.3 million for fire, safety, and adequacy of operating conditions projects, various locations (total estimated cost $193.0 million); $15.3 million for component preparation laboratories, multiple sites (total estimated cost $26.0 million); $3.8 million for the weapons neutron research facility, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, N. Mex. (total estimated cost $4.4 million); $1.4 million for the national radioactive waste repository, Lyons, Kans. (total estimated cost $25.0 million); and $1.3 million for a radiobiology and therapy research facility, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, N. Mex. (total estimated cost $1.6 million).

New construction projects include: $4.3 million to reduce atmospheric pollution from sulfur and fly ash at the heavy water plant, Savannah River, S.C.; and $8.0 million to permit the transfer of Pu²³⁸ fuel form preparation and recovery operations from the densely populated Mound Laboratory location to the relatively remote Savannah River, S.C., location, and $7.3 million to provide for increased office space at the headquarters building, Germantown, Md. New construction projects also include partial funding of $6.2 million for facilities for testing specialized components (total estimated cost $21.2 million).

A wide variety of capital equipment is procured to fill the various needs of all operating programs. Such needs range from routine replacement of worn out and obsolete equipment, to the procurement of new research devices and computers. Additions are needed for expanding programs and to keep pace with rapidly changing technology in the production and research programs.

The Environmental Protection Agency has responsibility for major Federal environmental pollution control and abatement programs, involving programs in air pollution control, water pollution control, solid waste management, pesticides control and management, and noise abatement, water hygiene, and radiation activities.

1. Research and development.—Activities deal with causes, sources, transport, fate, and effects of pollutants in ecological systems; and development of monitoring technology and pollution control criteria used in establishing standards and regulations. Several new efforts will be undertaken to define pollution control objectives and cost-effective solutions. Research will be expanded in health effects of air pollution and urban-regional scale modeling of relationships among air pollution emissions, atmospheric conditions, and ambient air quality. Funds will also support cost-sharing arrangements with industry to develop sulfur oxide control technology. Solid waste activities are being reoriented to focus upon economic and institutional constraints. A new strategy will be developed to encourage greater private sector involvement in the development and application of pollution control technology. Activities are conducted under grants, contracts, and other agreements involving universities, industry, nonprofit organizations, State and local governments, other Federal agencies, and through activities at EPA's laboratories and field locations.

2. Abatement and control.—Planning grants and control agency support grants are awarded to State, regional, and local agencies for planning, establishing, and improving environmental quality programs. Monitoring and surveillance are performed to determine baseline quality conditions, to measure pollutants, and to evaluate the performance of control devices. Pollution prevention, control, and abatement standards are generally established in cooperation with State and local agencies. Technical assistance is provided to Federal agencies, States, interstate regions, local communities, and industry. Environmental impact statements by Federal agencies are reviewed and evaluated. Education and training are supported through grants and other forms of assistance and in-house training programs are conducted for personnel of Federal, State, and local governments, industry, and educational institutions. Costs for services performed in the form of direct training activities and pesticides registration will be offset by charges.

3. Enforcement.—This activity includes the certification and permit programs; the enforcement of environmental pollution standards, including the gathering and preparation of evidential data and the conduct of enforcement proceedings; and legal services for the agency.

4. Facilities.—This activity provides for construction of laboratory facilities and alterations, repairs, and improvements to existing facilities.

5. Program direction and support.—This activity includes executive direction and leadership for all programs and support in such areas as public, legislative, and international affairs, equal employment opportunity, coordination of environmental impact statements and Federal agency pollution control activities, program planning, review and evaluation, economic analysis, budgeting, accounting, auditing, personnel management, organizational analysis, ADP operations, grants and contracting policy, facilities management, and other housekeeping activities. Activities involving analysis of economic input of pollution control activity are being greatly expanded. This activity also includes direction and leadership for all programs under the management of 10 regional administrators, and provision of administrative support services.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1971, $304 thousand; 1972, $350 thousand; 1973, $400 thousand. Excludes adjustment of prior year costs of $11 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $5,366 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$39 thousand); 1971, $3,278 thousand; 1972, $3,278 thousand; 1973, $3,278 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the basic real property operations of General Services Administration, including acquisition, operation, maintenance, protection, and utilization of general-purpose buildings and space; for overall direction of buildings design, construction, and repair and modernization.

The appropriation request for 1973 of $437,000 thousand is a net increase of $18,180 thousand above the adjusted appropriation for 1972. The 1972 amount includes proposed transfers of $21,171 thousand for annual cost of expansion space acquired in 1971, not provided for in GSA's 1972 budget.

The net increase of $18,180 thousand provides primarily for management and operation of new Federal buildings scheduled for occupancy in 1972 and 1973, increased leased space workload, improved cleaning services, increased utility rates and consumption, and full-year costs of wage-board rate increases effected in 1972, offset by credits for space released resulting from new construction.

² Income received for rental of sites held for future construction (40 U.S.C. 490(a)(13)).

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, buildings management activities consisting of: management, rental, operation, and protection of Government-owned and leased space in and outside the District of Columbia for housing Federal agencies; modernization and recurring repairs to Government-owned space under jurisdiction of General Services Administration; maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings; uniforms and uniform allowances; and other related building services (66 Stat. 594). Retained earnings resulting from operations, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Operating costs funded for 1973 are estimated at $622.0 million, an increase of $24.1 million over 1972.

1. Buildings management.—(a) Operation and protection of Government-owned space.—Provides for operation and protection of an average of 148.1 million square feet of space in 1973 compared to an average of 147.4 million square feet in 1972 and an average of 151.7 million square feet in 1971. The change from 1972 reflects higher cleaning standards for Federal offices and net additional space to be serviced due to construction of new buildings.

(b) Rental, operation, and protection of leased space.—Provides for an average of 61.0 million square feet in 1973 compared to an average of 60.3 million square feet in 1972 and an average of 55.3 million square feet in 1971, based on currently projected requirements of Federal agencies.

2. Moving, alterations, and related costs.—Provides for moving and related alterations based on experience factors of buildings management operations and for moving and space adjustments incident to the new construction program.

3. Maintenance repairs.—Provides for day-to-day maintenance of GSA operated buildings, and other Government buildings under jurisdiction of GSA.

4. Security and special guarding.—Provides security and above normal guarding service required by other agencies.

5. Operation and maintenance of sites held for future construction.—Provides for maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings and repairs to improvements located thereon.

6. Job order work.—Provides for special services and repairs and improvements to buildings for GSA and other agencies.

7. Other.—Provides for program supervision of repair and improvement operations as distinguished from architectural and design activities initially financed from the Construction Services Fund, utility services and utilities to concessionaires.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1971, the net investment in the fund was $1.6 million composed of $3.5 million appropriated, $7.9 million capitalized assets, less $1.8 million retained earnings, less $8 million provision for unfunded leave liability.

Construction services activities consisting of preparation of drawings and specifications for the construction or alteration of public buildings; management and inspection of construction and alteration activities; and surveys and test borings performed in connection with the acquisition of Federal building sites and other related services are financed by this fund on a reimbursable basis from funds appropriated, transferred, or advanced to General Services Administration (40 U.S.C. 296).

Operations.—Initial financing of this fund provides for salaries and related expenses of all personnel engaged in architectural and engineering services in connection with buildings design and construction, both departmental and field. Estimates for 1972 and 1973 cover the GSA public building construction program, the repair and improvement program, and additional workload in connection with projects assigned to GSA by other Federal agencies.

Operating results.—Retained earnings were increased in 1971 to approximately $1,606 thousand. An operating loss of $430 thousand and $516 thousand is projected for 1972 and 1973 respectively, which will reduce retained earnings to $660 thousand at the end of 1973.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $1,376 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$77 thousand); 1971, $1,661 thousand; 1972, $1,661 thousand; 1973, $1,661 thousand.

This appropriation provides for (1) establishment of efficient supply and property management practices throughout the Federal Government, and (2) expenses of operating the worldwide supply system through which commercial-type commodities are sold to Government agencies, Federal grantees, and cost-type contractors from depot stocks, or by direct delivery from suppliers, whichever is more economical and meets the needs of the Government. Except for customer orders placed directly with suppliers under Federal supply schedule contracts, most of the purchases of commodities are financed initially from the general supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Wherever economical and feasible, costs of commodities furnished directly from suppliers are paid directly from funds of the requisitioning agency without involving the general supply fund. This appropriation also provides for the necessary expenses of carrying out some of the Government-wide automated data management activities within the jurisdiction of the General Services Administration.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1971, $198 thousand; 1972, $24 thousand; 1973, $22 thousand.

1. Supply distribution.—Stocks of commercial-type commodities are received, warehoused, and issued on a worldwide basis to Federal agencies through a national supply distribution system consisting of both wholesale and retail distribution facilities. Stores stock sales will decrease from $459.2 million in 1971 to an estimated $445 million in 1973.

2. Procurement.—Commodities are procured to maintain inventories at stores depots to insure availability in advance of sales orders and for direct delivery to agencies. Term contracts for commercial-type commodities and services are established for large aggregate volume requirements against which agencies place individual orders at uniform price advantages. Total procurement in 1971 was $2,182 million; procurement for 1972, $2,286 million, and procurement for 1973, $2,336 million.

3. Supply control.—During 1973 supply control will continue to serve as the single contact point for all matters pertaining to supply support. Continued emphasis will be placed on efficient processing and control of requisitions, supply systems development, commodity and data management functions, and increased attention and effort to maintain adequate levels of inventory while controlling the capital investment.

4. Inspection.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or supply depots, by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance on 13,000 contracts covering $806 million of items procured.

5. Supply standardization.—Qualitative requirements of Federal agencies are reflected in Federal specifications, Federal standards, and Federal item identifications which are mandatory for use in procurement. In 1973 the standardization program will consist of the promulgation of 1,220 Federal specifications and standards actions and 180,000 cataloging actions.

6. National supply policies and programs.—In 1973, national supply policies and programs activities will continue to place emphasis on agreements between GSA, the Department of Defense, and the civil agencies for the governing of supply management relationships. Studies and recommendations will continue to be made in order to improve the internal supply systems of Federal agencies. Emphasis will be placed on the development, coordination, and issuance of Federal Procurement Regulations. Support to the Department of Defense and the Agency for International Development requirements in Southeast Asia will receive continued emphasis.

7. Automated data management services.—During 1973, the resources for this program will be devoted to such functions as: (1) Providing ADP procurement assistance to Federal agencies; (2) negotiation and awarding of Federal Supply schedule contracts for the procurement of ADP equipment and maintenance; (3) determination of sharing resources; (4) establishment, maintenance, redesign, and publication of the Government-wide ADP management information system; (5) reutilization of excess Government leased and low value (under $2,500) excess Government-owned ADP equipment; and (6) furnishing technical assistance and performing technical research.

The Automatic Data Processing Fund was authorized by Public Law 89-306, to coordinate and provide for the economic and efficient purchase, lease, and maintenance of automatic data processing equipment by Federal agencies.

The fund finances on a reimbursable basis a Government-wide automatic data processing operation, including the procurement by lease, purchase, transfer, or otherwise of ADP equipment, maintenance of equipment, procurement and/or development of software programs with Government-wide application, and operation of service centers and related functions.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in revenue during 1972 and 1973. Sales are estimated to increase from $20,762 thousand in 1971 to $27,052 thousand in 1972 to $29,443 thousand in 1973.

1. Data processing.—Finances the operation of Federal data processing centers which provide ADP services on a Government-wide basis. These processing services consist of: (a) local batch processing and time sharing where a single computer serves multiple users at various remote locations through communications links—incidental programmer/analyst, operator, data conversion, EAM, and control support are provided to users of each mode; (b) human resource pools consisting of programmers, analysts, and equipment operators for use at the Federal Data Processing Center or at a user homesite on an as-required basis; and (c) maintenance support for Government-owned equipment and software.

This program also provides for financing joint use facilities for common central ADP services of an installation operated by two or more agencies under GSA policy guidance. Expansion of Federal Data Processing Centers and other related operations are estimated to increase revenue from $17,968 thousand in 1971 to $21,401 thousand in 1972 and to $21,844 thousand in 1973.

2. Lease program.—This program finances the purchase and multiyear lease of ADP equipment and software from manufacturers for subsequent lease to Federal agencies at costs substantially below commercial annual lease prices. Purchases are made by the fund when special discounts with time limitation and other arrangements become available and agencies are unable to take advantage of these cost-reduction opportunities due to budget cycle limitations. In addition to purchases, this program acquires excess Government-owned ADP equipment, where there is a known user or the equipment has a high potential for reutilization, capitalizes it at fair market value and leases it to Federal agencies at a cost substantially below all other lease cost alternatives available to the using agency. Revenue from leasing is estimated to increase from $2,794 thousand in 1971 to $5,651 thousand in 1972 and $7,599 thousand in 1973.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by using agencies are the operations of interagency motor vehicle pools, the rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment, and the redistribution of materials no longer needed overseas.

Budget program.—This estimate provides for sales to both military and civilian agencies. It also provides for the operation of the retrograde program and the credit return program.

1. Supply operations.—(a) Stores, regular.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for sale to Government agencies. From a total of $459.2 million in 1971, sales are estimated to decrease to $445 million in 1972 and 1973.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $19.3 million in 1971, and are estimated to increase to $25 million in 1972 and 1973.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales through the fund are expected to increase from $238.9 million in 1971 to $308.7 million in 1972 and 1973.

2. Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund covering packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services are expected to increase from $23.5 million in 1971 to $23.8 million in 1972 and 1973.

Equipment rental.—Operating and administrative equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts are estimated to increase from $2.4 million in 1971 to $2.9 million in 1972 and $3.5 million in 1973.

3. Property management and disposal operations.—Furniture and equipment repair services, provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical, are expected to remain at $0.6 million through 1973. Receipts to the fund covering redistribution costs of materials no longer required overseas are expected to be $2.3 million in 1972 and $1.2 million in 1973.

4. Motor pools.—Services are provided to agencies through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales are estimated to increase from $57.3 million in 1971 to $59.9 million in 1972 and $62.9 million in 1973.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1973 is estimated at $409.1 million consisting of $242.7 million direct appropriations, $166 million donated assets, and $0.6 million capitalized surplus with $0.2 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

Any operating surplus, as determined by the General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1971, $252 thousand; 1972, $400 thousand; 1973, $640 thousand. Excludes adjustment of prior year costs of $32 thousand.
² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $620 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$22 thousand); 1971, $984 thousand; 1972, $984 thousand; 1973, $984 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the operation and management of the Government's archives and records, operation of presidential libraries, and grants for historical publications.

The estimate for 1973 is $1,963 thousand more than the adjusted appropriation for 1972. Of this amount, $1,200 thousand is requested to begin a new records declassification project to open to the public, documents for the years 1940-45 which have been security classified; $550 thousand for nonrecurring expenses required to relocate the San Francisco Federal Records Center; and the remainder for workload increases in the National Archives, records management, regional records centers, and increased support activities.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations and funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1971, $27 thousand; 1972, $12 thousand; and 1973, $12 thousand.

In 1973, records in custody of the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 13.2 million cubic feet which will represent an estimated 45% of the total Federal records. Reference services will total 10.5 million.

1. Records management and centers.—The workload in the 13 regional records centers continues to increase, reflecting agency demands for services. In 1973, agencies will transfer 1,160,000 cubic feet of inactive records to the regional centers. Records disposal from the records centers will total 700,000 cubic feet and reference services will continue at the current high level of over 7 million annually.

In 1971 the existence and operation of Federal records centers accounted for a Government-wide cost avoidance of $21.9 million, representing the value of space and equipment released by the transfer of records to centers and the more economic storage of agencies, records received in previous years.

The records management activity helps agencies control their paperwork, which for all the Federal Government consists of an estimated 8 to 10 billion pages a year. In 1971 GSA's direct assistance to agencies produced a net first-year savings of $8.3 million including over 172,000 man-days saved or released for other work.

2. Archives and related services.—In 1973 the regularly recurring workload in the National Archives will be held at the 1972 level except for a small fund increase for reference services. Additional funds are requested for two special programs: (1) To begin a program of identification, preservation, and servicing of machine-readable records—commonly described as data archives—having permanent value, and (2) to begin a 5-year program which provides for reviewing, declassifying, and making available to the public, in cooperation with the Departments of State and Defense, documents of the World War II period. The declassification of these records is essential to enable the United States to retain its traditional leadership in providing accessibility to historical documents and to preserve respect for those sensitive materials which should properly remain classified.

3. National historical publications grants.—This activity provides for carrying out the national historical documents program, established by the act of July 28, 1964 (Public Law 88-383), as amended, for grants to State and local agencies and to nonprofit organizations and for allocations to Federal agencies for the purpose of collecting, reproducing, and publishing source materials significant to the history of the United States.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $30 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$8 thousand); 1971, $27 thousand; 1972 $27 thousand; 1973 $27 thousand.

This appropriation provides for improving management of transportation, communication, and public utility services in all civilian agencies, and for providing specialized services to civilian agencies in each of these fields.

1. Transportation services.—Guides, procedures, and educational programs for improving transportation practices and operations in civilian agencies are developed; reasonable rates are negotiated with carriers; and procurement assistance, rates, routing, and related services are supplied to executive agencies.

2. Communication services.—Networks are designed and engineered for a Federal communications system for general and national defense use, compatible with the National Communications System. Studies of equipment utilization, service, rates, and economic factors are made, contracts negotiated, and management and control of operations are provided. The projected program for 1973 provides for the management of the Federal Telecommunications System financed through the Federal Telecommunications Fund whose sales volume will increase from $170 million in 1972 to an estimated $194 million in 1973, and for increasing emphasis on the management of Government-wide communications.

3. Motor vehicle management.—Government-wide policies and procedures are developed to improve the overall efficiency of the operation of the Government-owned motor vehicle fleet, and to assist the various Federal agencies with motor equipment management. Implementation of the recommendations of motor equipment studies of agencies' managerial and operational policies through 1971 reduced equipment investment by the Government by about $3.5 million and avoided additional operating costs by $6.9 million.

4. Public utilities services.—Negotiations are conducted with public utilities companies on behalf of executive agencies and technical assistance is rendered in connection with regulatory proceedings. In 1973, continued emphasis will be placed on the above areas, where in 1971, savings to the Government of $1.9 million accrued.

In the transportation, communications, and public utilities services, the regulatory representation function consists of: (1) negotiations with carriers and utility companies concerning consumer considerations of the Government, and (2) participation in regulatory proceedings. New rate proposals are discussed with the carriers before they become effective which, it is anticipated, will minimize the number of rate proceedings in which GSA will participate during this year on behalf of the Government as a user.

² Section 201 of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, 63 Stat. 383, as amended (40 U.S.C. 481).

This fund was authorized by Public Law 87-847, approved October 23, 1962. It finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government which is operationally compatible with the National Communications System. The Advanced Record System, primarily teletype data operations, is now being redesigned to enlarge its capacity to meet projected increases in traffic. Research in the fields of communications and automatic data processing is a continuing requirement to maintain and improve the Government-wide telecommunications system.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from available appropriations and funds of any agency or organization for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

Initial capital of $9 million was appropriated by Public Law 88-25, approved May 17, 1963. This sum may be increased by donations of supplies and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1971 were $153.5 million and are estimated at $170.3 million in 1972 and $194.4 million in 1973.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which will enable personnel in each Federal agency office to communicate directly on a machine-to-machine or station-to-station basis with any other agency office in the Nation. The system will provide day-to-day service as well as incorporate features which would be necessary in emergency situations. The program for 1973 contemplates a sales level of $167.4 million, an increase of $22.3 million over 1972, and an anticipated traffic volume of 110 million intercity calls being handled by FTS.

2. Record program.—Provides common unified records communications system to satisfy record communications requirements of all Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of information by data, teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. The continued development of the records program is reflected in the projected sales increase of $2 million in 1973 over the $16.5 million anticipated in 1972.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits for civil agencies to obtain the benefits of multiple tariff offerings of commercial carriers, while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits. Sales are projected at $6.9 million in 1972 and $6.5 million for 1973.

4. Special programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies in keeping with objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and for a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. These programs insure that the Federal Telecommunications System will remain operational in the event any portion of the normal system is disabled or destroyed.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1973 the net investment in the fund is estimated to be $8.7 million, composed of $9 million appropriated, $0.2 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings, after making provision for any prior year losses, are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1971, $85 thousand; 1972, $30 thousand; 1973, $30 thousand. Excludes adjustment of prior year costs of $41 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $2,510 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$216 thousand); 1971, $3,441 thousand; 1972, $3,441 thousand; 1973, $3,441 thousand.

The Property Management and Disposal Service has the responsibility for: (a) Acquisition, administration, and disposal of national stockpile inventories pursuant to the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act; (b) custody and disposal of the supplemental stockpile established by the Agriculture Trade Development and Assistance Act; (c) administration of utilization and disposal functions of the General Services Administration with respect to excess and surplus real and personal property; (d) rehabilitation of personal property; and (e) the public sale of rare silver dollars.

The estimate for 1973 provides for storage, maintenance, and inspection of stockpile materials and disposal of those stockpile materials excess to objectives, the appraisal of real and personal property, and continuing emphasis on reuse of existing real and personal property to obviate new capital and procurement outlays, with prompt disposal of those items no longer required, the rehabilitation of personal property to extend its useful life, and the public sale of rare silver dollars.

1. Property management.—Covers the cost of acquiring, inspecting, and maintaining materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles. Handling costs for acquisition by exchange are provided to cover deliveries under prior year contracts.

Strategic and critical materials amounting to approximately 38.8 million tons with a market value of $6.4 billion were stored at 134 locations as of June 30, 1971. Distribution of depot storage costs for these materials is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Recurring costs.....	6,666	6,494	6,506
Nonrecurring costs.....	1,057	1,100	800
Relocation, transportation, and handling.....	28	200	200
Total cost or estimate.....	7,751	7,794	7,506

In addition to direct depot storage operations, this activity provides for inspection and stockpile management services relative to maintaining the national and supplemental stockpiles.

2. Real property disposal.—This activity provides for utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties. The estimate for 1973 provides for utilization transfers of 124 properties, sale of 378 surplus properties, and other surplus disposal (donations, etc.) totaling 374 properties. The selling price of real property and rental revenue in 1973 is estimated at $99 million.

Physical care, handling, protection, maintenance, and repair of certain excess and surplus real properties pending disposal are also provided. In addition, this activity is responsible for the appraisal of excess and surplus real property as well as the coordination of regulations, standards, and methods governing such appraisals. Real property surveys are also conducted to carry out the provisions of Executive Order 11508, of February 10, 1970.

3. Personal property disposal.—Covers the cost of disposal of personal property items, and management of the Government-wide programs for the utilization, donation, rehabilitation, and sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property. This activity embraces the property of all Government agencies and provides for utilization of excess personal property, thereby reducing new procurement; donation of all surplus personal property for public benefit purposes; sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property (except DOD property); and rehabilitation of personal property owned by the Government to extend its useful life. The estimate for 1973 provides for interagency utilization transfers and donations by GSA totaling $1,650 million at acquisition cost and proceeds from sale of surplus and exchange/sale of property totaling $19 million. Rehabilitation of personal property will amount to $220 million at replacement cost. This activity also provides for public sale of 3 million rare silver dollars.

4. Strategic and critical materials disposal.—This activity provides for the disposal of excess strategic and critical materials. Strategic and critical materials sales commitments from the national and supplemental stockpiles are estimated at $536.3 million and $653 million in 1972 and 1973, respectively. This activity is also responsible for data collection and economic analysis of all factors bearing on stockpile materials such as supply, demand, consumption, prices, etc.

Guarantees are given on loans made by public or private financing institutions, including Federal Reserve banks, to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Upon demand of lending institutions, the Government is required to purchase the guaranteed percentage of the loan or the Government may elect to make a voluntary purchase of the guaranteed percentage. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use, although such action has not been necessary to date. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future loan defaults (50 U.S.C. App. 2091).

The Government's maximum contingent liability as guarantor on one loan now in effect is estimated to be $4.9 million at the end of 1973. Retained earnings are estimated to be $0.1 million at the end of 1973.

The Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, N. Dak., is the only facility in the United States which has the capability to produce all types of jewel bearings in quantity. The plant was established by the Department of Defense in 1953 and turned over to GSA in 1957. The Office of Emergency Preparedness has determined that the plant is an essential part of the national mobilization base and that its continued operation as a domestic source of jewel bearings is in the interest of the United States. On January 1, 1970, financing of the operation was placed under a revolving fund. This fund was authorized by Public Law 90-469, approved August 8, 1968.

The plant produces jewel bearings for sale at fixed prices to Government agencies, contractors and subcontractors for national defense purposes, and to GSA for the national stockpile. Mandatory source provisions are contained in the Federal Procurement Regulations and Armed Services Procurement Regulations in support of this operation. These provisions require Government agencies and their contractors to procure and use jewel bearings manufactured at the Langer Jewel Bearing Plant under certain specified conditions.

Any additional funds which may be required for operation of the plant are authorized to be appropriated to the fund. However, the requirement for appropriated capital is not anticipated for 1973.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are receipts for services performed on Communications Satellite Corporation projects (42 U.S.C. 2473).

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was established October 1, 1958, pursuant to Public Law 85-568 (72 Stat. 426; 42 U.S.C. 2451); approved July 29, 1958, for the conduct of the nonmilitary space programs of the United States, including the exploration of space and its utilization for peaceful purposes, and to conduct and support advanced research and development related to space and aeronautics in support of both civil and military requirements. This appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as follows:

1. Manned space flight.—These estimates provide for all manned space flight missions conducted by the United States. These programs include completion of the Apollo mission schedule with Apollo 16 in the spring of 1972 and Apollo 17 in late 1972; completion of Skylab development and beginning of flight operations in the spring of 1973; detailed design and development effort on a manned earth-to-orbit shuttle vehicle; studies and component development on future orbital payload systems; life sciences; and studies and research on future manned missions.

(a) Apollo.—The Apollo program has conducted nine manned flights. Seven of these flights have journeyed to the moon, and four times the astronauts have landed on the lunar surface. All missions have been successful except Apollo 13, which was aborted after an oxygen tank ruptured while en route to the moon. Apollo 14, launched January 1971, landed at the Fra Mauro, the intended site of Apollo 13. Apollo 15, launched in July 1971, explored the Hadley/Apenne region. The crew left the lunar module three times to emplace scientific experiments and make detailed geologic investigations in the Apenne foothills and along the Hadley Rille. The mission doubled the staytime on the moon and used the lunar roving vehicle to extend tenfold the range of exploration, deployed the third in a network of automatic scientific stations, conducted a new group of experiments from lunar orbit, and returned a variety of lunar rock and soil samples. The lunar material and experiment data collected are undergoing intensive study and analysis to provide a better understanding of the evolutionary history of earth and the dynamic processes that continue to transform it.

The Apollo program will complete the current phase of lunar exploration with Apollos 16 and 17. Apollo 16 is scheduled for launch in the spring of 1972 and is to land in the Descartes area. Exploration of this area will complement data from previous missions with samples from two distinctive lunar formations, by emplacement of another scientific experiment station and by conducting experiments during lunar orbit and translunar flight. Apollo 17 is scheduled for launch in late 1972. These missions are configured to obtain maximum scientific return since they are the last planned U.S. exploration of the moon for this decade.

(b) Space flight operations.—This activity consists of this country's post-Apollo manned flight programs and includes Skylab; space shuttle; work on future manned orbital systems and payloads; space life sciences; and the basic operations and engineering activities required to support the manned and unmanned space flight efforts at manned space flight centers. Skylab represents a major progression into manned earth orbital missions directed toward accomplishing life sciences, astronomy, earth resources, and technology objectives. Flight operations will begin in the spring of 1973 using a Saturn V to launch an unmanned orbital workshop cluster with its associated experiment systems. Three manned missions using Saturn IB's and modified Apollo command and service modules will be conducted over an 8-month period to activate and operate the workshop cluster. The major scientific focus of Skylab will be directed toward an extensive study of the sun, especially in those wavelength regions not readily visible from the ground; a study of the application of space in surveying and monitoring the resources and environmental interactions of the earth; and the biomedical study of the effects of long-duration flight on man, as individual astronauts remain in orbit for as long as 2-month periods.

The development of a space shuttle transportation system is the key element in future space operations in earth orbit. The earth-to-orbit shuttle will provide a recoverable, reusable space vehicle for placement and retrieval of satellites, satellite servicing and maintenance, short-duration manned orbital missions, and delivery of propulsive stages and payloads for high-energy missions. The shuttle will have the capability to support a wide range of future missions, including space station logistics support and rotation of scientific personnel. In addition to radically reducing transportation costs, operational capabilities of the space shuttle are expected to produce significant savings in the cost of design, development, manufacture, and operations of space payloads. These savings will result primarily from maintenance and retrieval capabilities provided by the shuttle system. The 1973 budget provides for proceeding with detailed design and development of a space shuttle based on the definition studies now nearing completion.

Effort on orbital systems and payloads is directed toward definition, preliminary design, and technology verification for experiments and supporting systems to be launched by the earth-to-orbit shuttle. Experiment definition activities will focus on materials science, advanced technology, and experiment integration planning. Definition and preliminary design will be accomplished on systems and subsystems required for advanced manned experiment operations on short-duration earth orbital missions. Life sciences activity includes research and technology efforts on operational requirements for the shuttle and other manned flight systems, definition and development support on flight experiments, and definition effort on a future bioresearch module.

(c) Advanced manned mission studies.—This program examines advanced manned space flight program concepts and develops technical information and other data upon which future program decisions can be based.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—This program utilizes a variety of flight systems and ground-based observations to increase man's knowledge of the universe. The earth, sun, moon, interplanetary space, solar system, other stars and galaxies, and the interaction among these bodies and systems are all objects of these investigations.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—Coordinated research with national and international participation is conducted through this program and directed toward an increase in our knowledge of the space environment, of the earth and the sun, and the relationship of these bodies to each other and to interplanetary space, other stars, galaxies, and nebulae. Laboratory and theoretical research, ground-based observations, aircraft, balloons, sounding rockets, and explorer and observatory spacecraft all contribute to this knowledge. The solar observatory program will continue with OSO-I scheduled for a 1973 launch. Interstellar gases will be studied by an Orbiting Astronomical Observatory, OAO-C, to be launched during 1972. The development effort on a High Energy Astronomy Observatory (HEAO) to provide identification and observation of gamma ray, X-ray, and cosmic ray sources will be in progress.

(b) Lunar and planetary exploration.—This program concentrates on exploration of the moon, planets, and other bodies in the solar system, such as asteroids and comets, using both ground-based research and observations from automated spacecraft. The current program of lunar investigations includes ground-based and in situ measurements of lunar materials and phenomena and planning for further investigations utilizing the remaining lunar missions in the Apollo series. The 1973 planetary program encompasses effort leading toward observations of a major portion of the solar system including Mercury, the region near the sun, the Asteroid belt, Jupiter and the interplanetary regions beyond Jupiter, while continuing to expand knowledge of our closest neighbors Venus and Mars. Mariner 9, launched in May of 1971, was placed in orbit around Mars on November 13, 1971, and is returning information about a variety of Martian characteristics and phenomena. A single Mariner will be in preparation for a 1973 launch to Venus and Mercury, utilizing a gravity assist from the Venus flyby. The Pioneer F&G missions will be launched in 1972 and 1973 to provide the first observations and measurements of the interplanetary medium beyond Mars. They will fly through the Asteroid belt and continue to the vicinity of Jupiter, providing the first measurements and observations of that planet from space. Work will continue in 1973 on the U.S. experiments to be launched on the West German Helios spacecraft. One Helios spacecraft will be launched by the United States in 1974 and one in 1975, to investigate and observe the interplanetary medium two-thirds of the distance from earth to the sun. In 1975, two Viking spacecraft will be launched to Mars. Each spacecraft will include both an Orbiter and a Lander, thus providing additional measurements from Mars orbit as well as making direct measurements of the atmosphere and surface features of Mars. Effort will continue on an outer planets exploration program using a Mariner-class spacecraft.

(c) Bioscience.—Activities formerly included in this program have been distributed among other program categories beginning in 1972.

(d) Launch vehicle development and support.—This program includes launch vehicle activities such as launch operations, and engineering and maintenance necessary to sustain launch activities. It also includes support for providing specific reliability and performance improvements to existing vehicles. Neither of these types of activities is specifically allocable to automated spacecraft missions.

3. Space applications.—The objective of this activity is to expand the beneficial use of space. Specific applications areas include meteorology, earth resources, geodesy, communications, and navigation. Activity during 1973 includes continued effort on earth resources technology satellites directed toward providing tests of the spacecraft and sensors which would be required for an operational system to survey the earth's resources from space. In meteorology, launch of a Synchronous Meteorological Satellite will provide an operational prototype of a geostationary satellite. Work will proceed on additional Nimbus spacecraft to provide for flight experiments with advanced meteorological sensors. Development of Tiros-N, a prototype for a third generation of operational meteorological satellites, will begin focusing toward a 1976 launch. Effort will continue on applications technology satellites, including preparation for the launch of ATS-F in 1973 to flight test a space-erectable, parabolic antenna, and conduct a number of scientific and technology experiments. The Canadian Cooperative Applications Satellite effort will be continued with a launch planned in 1974 to provide data on use of frequency ranges above 10 GHz.

4. Space and nuclear research and technology.—This activity provides for expansion of the technology base for developmental efforts supporting NASA space mission objectives.

(a) Space research and technology.—Research will be conducted in the areas of materials and structures, power and propulsion, information sciences, guidance, control, and communications. Major effort will continue on laser communications and on reliable, long-life and high-speed/density components for space electronics systems. There will also be a strong focus on advancing the technology needed to produce large amounts of electric power in space and to develop high-specific impulse propulsion systems. Specific technology requirements for near-term objectives, including the space shuttle and planetary flight programs, will continue to be supported in the critical areas of thermal protection, aerothermodynamics, entry technology, and long-lifetime componentry.

(b) Nuclear power and propulsion.—Nuclear power technology effort will focus on advanced reactor and isotopic power systems. Basic research in electrophysics will continue. In the nuclear propulsion program for 1973, NASA and AEC will define a small nuclear rocket system in the 15–20,000 lb. thrust class. This effort will be a part of a broader program to define and make trade-off studies of alternative types of advanced propulsion systems, including chemical, solar-electric, nuclear-electric, and nuclear rocket systems for possible future missions to the distant planets Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto. Supporting research and component testing for nuclear systems will also be undertaken. Development of the NERVA 75,000 lb. thrust engine is being terminated in favor of the program reoriented as above.

5. Aeronautical research and technology.—The aims of the aeronautics program are to provide and expand the technological base in aeronautical research to facilitate the development and production of improved civil and military aircraft. A technology program coordinated with other Government agencies is being conducted that will increase aeronautical systems safety, reduce undesirable environmental effects, and contribute to future generations of aeronautical vehicles. Program emphasis in 1973 will be on Short Take-Off and Landing (STOL) and Vertical Take-Off and Landing (VTOL) aircraft systems for short-haul transportation, improvements for medium- and long-haul jet transports, and on improved flight procedures and noise reduction. Work to be undertaken in 1973 includes fabrication of two experimental STOL transport research airplanes employing turbofan power and propulsive lift. The objective of this program is to develop quiet, clean propulsive lift technology for community noise reduction, terminal congestion relief, improved civil short-haul transport, and advanced military tactical airlift.

6. Supporting activities.—The programs grouped in this activity provide general support for the attainment of NASA mission objectives.

(a) Tracking and data acquisition.—Operation and equipment of the stations of the NASA tracking and data acquisition networks are provided for here, as well as research and development to increase the capability of the specialized ground equipment.

(b) Sustaining university program.—This program included grants for graduate studies in interdisciplinary space-related fields. Costs incurred reflect use of funds previously appropriated.

(c) Technology utilization.—The objective of this program is to accelerate the transfer into the economy of new advances in technology generated by NASA and NASA contractors.

POSTAL SERVICE

Federal Funds

The United States Postal Service was converted from the Post Office Department into an independent establishment on July 1, 1971, by the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375. This agency is charged with providing customers with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including nine Governors appointed by the President and a Postmaster General and a Deputy Postmaster General who are selected by the Board.

Domestic postage rates, postal services, and classification of mail matter are subject to public notice and administrative hearing procedures under the authority of a five-member Presidentially-appointed Postal Rate Commission, which makes recommendations to the Governors. Final determinations on changes in mail rates or classifications are made by the Governors subject to appellate review.

The activities of the Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) Mail and services revenue, (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources, (3) proceeds from borrowing, (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments, and (5) appropriations by the Congress.

All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital, and, with appropriate advice or approval by the Secretary of the Treasury, investment in obligations and securities.

The 1973 program for the U.S. Postal Service is based on an anticipated mail volume of 90.8 billion pieces, compared to 88.9 billion estimated for 1972 and 87.0 billion in 1971.

Revenue and expenses.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1973 include $9,194,120 thousand from revenues and receipts, of which $22,800 thousand is from sale of assets at book value; $250,000 thousand from authorized borrowings; and $1,424,039 thousand from the appropriation, "Payments to the Postal Service fund," of which $1,539 thousand covers Post Office Department liability to the employees' compensation fund, and $31,000 thousand covers Post Office Department unfunded liability for employees' earned and unused annual leave. Total cash from these sources is estimated to be $10,868,159 thousand.

Section 2005 of the Postal Reorganization Act authorizes borrowing authority of $10 billion for the Service with a yearly limitation of $2 billion, of which not more than $500 million may be used to cover operating expenses. As of June 30, 1972, it is expected that obligations outstanding will amount to $500 million. These obligations will be for the purpose of covering capital commitments entered into after July 1, 1971.

Financial condition.—The end-of-year balances in both accounts receivable and accounts payable reflect normal billing cycles.

¹ These items are included in the "Change in selected resources" entries on the program and financing schedule in their entirety. Other items are only partially applicable to these entries.

² The 1971 amount includes $20,187 thousand for a retirement bonus to be funded in 1972 out of operations.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Accounts receivable (benefit overpayments collectible from beneficiaries) 1970, $23,737 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$72 thousand); 1971, $22,114 thousand; 1972, $22,114 thousand; 1973, $22,114 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation, pensions, and related benefits to veterans and their dependents. In June 1971, there were an estimated 28.3 million living veterans of which 3.2 million or 11.3% were receiving benefits under this appropriation. In addition, 2.3 million dependents of deceased veterans were receiving benefits.

Increased costs were experienced in 1971 due to the enactment of Public Law 91-376, approved August 12, 1970, which increased disability compensation rates approximately 10%, effective July 1, 1970, and Public Law 91-588, approved December 24, 1970, which increased veteran and survivor pension rates approximately 10%, effective January 1, 1971. Payment of benefits to certain Mexican border period veterans is also provided by Public Law 91-588. Additional legislation recently enacted increases requirements beginning in 1972. Public Law 92-95, approved August 11, 1971, provides mortgage protection insurance to certain service-disabled veterans who have received grants for paraplegic housing and is estimated to cost $1.4 million in 1972 and $1.2 million in 1973. Public Law 92-169, approved November 24, 1971, provides that promotions of persons in a missing status are valid for purposes of determining the amount of dependency and indemnity compensation to which a survivor widow is entitled. Costs are estimated to be $77 thousand in 1972 and $132 thousand in 1973. Public Law 92-198, approved December 15, 1971, liberalizes the provisions relating to payment of disability and death pension. Costs are estimated to be $63.6 million in 1972 and $128.6 million in 1973. Public Law 92-197, approved December 15, 1971, liberalizes the provisions relating to payment of dependency and indemnity compensation. Costs are estimated to be $34.4 million in 1972 and $68.4 million in 1973.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is a monetary benefit payable to a veteran or his dependents because of the veteran's service-connected disability or death. Death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation is payable to the widows and dependents of veterans whose deaths are related to service-connected disabilities.

A continuing increase in veterans average caseload is projected for 1973. The only war period with a significantly increasing veterans compensation roll is the Vietnam era. The Vietnam era roll is expected to increase by about 75,000 cases in 1972 over 1971 and 55,000 cases in 1973 over 1972. This projection recognizes the change in Vietnam activity, and the approximate length of time it takes a disabled veteran to come on the rolls; i.e., 6 to 12 months after discharge. This projection also provides for legislation proposing improvements in the rates and structure of veterans compensation.

The increase in average payment for 1973 anticipates a continuing increase in the average degree of disability experienced by those veterans who served during the earlier war periods.

A slight increasing trend is projected for the survivors compensation caseload, from 372,360 in 1972 to 373,528 in 1973. This relatively static trend reflects small increases in several categories, although Vietnam era activity is expected to continue at a rate comparable to the 1972 rate. These increases, however, are generally offset by a continuing decline in the World War II category due to fewer parent cases remaining on the rolls because of the death of these beneficiaries.

Average payments will continue to increase for this benefit since nearly all new cases coming on the rolls will receive the higher dependency and indemnity compensation rates while many of the terminated cases will be those beneficiaries who received the lower death compensation rates. More widows are also receiving the higher aid and attendant benefits and Vietnam accessions are coming on the rolls at a higher rate than most other war periods. Increased rates of payment recently enacted for survivors (Public Law 92-197) and proposed by this administration for veterans (see p. 852) are also reflected in the following table:

2. Pensions.—Benefits are payable to wartime veterans and dependents of deceased veterans for non-service-connected disability and death. Veterans may qualify for monthly pensions on the basis of financial need and total disability. Widows and surviving children may also qualify if their income is below levels specified by law.

The veterans pension caseload is projected to increase from 1,065,586 in 1972 to 1,079,181 in 1973. This increase is related to new cases resulting from the higher maximum income limitations provided by Public Law 92-198, approved December 15, 1971, effective January 1, 1972; and additional cases originating with the World War II veterans who, because of advancing age, will become eligible for pension benefits.

A continuing increase in average payment is projected for 1972 and 1973 and is attributable to the effect of the higher rates provided by Public Laws 91-588 and 92-198, effective January 1, 1971, and January 1, 1972, respectively.

Survivors pension caseload is projected to increase from 1,231,615 in 1972 to 1,289,865 in 1973. This caseload increase is related to the expected deaths of veteran-husbands and the increase in income limitations provided by Public Law 92-198, approved December 15, 1971. The average payment is projected to increase in 1972 and 1973 as a result of recently enacted legislation.

3. Other.—These miscellaneous benefits cover payments which are not readily combined with either of the preceding categories. Costs for these benefits are reflected in the program and financing schedule.

(a) Retired officers.—Emergency officers of World War I and certain officers of the Regular Establishment who have retired because of service-connected disability are entitled to special benefits. The average caseload is declining from an actual of 610 in 1971 to an estimated 520 in 1973.

(b) Adjusted service and dependents pay.—Claims made pursuant to the provisions of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act of 1924, as amended, are payable from this appropriation.

(c) Subsistence allowance.—Payments are made to disabled veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation and education programs. These costs are expected to increase in 1972 and 1973 reflecting the increased training loads resulting from Vietnam era activities and proposed legislation (see p. 852).

(d) Burial benefits.—The Administrator is currently authorized to (1) pay an allowance of $250 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) to cover the burial and funeral expenses of a deceased veteran and (2) furnish a flag to drape the casket of each deceased veteran entitled thereto.

(e) Special allowances, dependents.—Under certain conditions, a special allowance (38 U.S.C. 412) is payable to dependents of certain veterans who died after December 31, 1956, but who were not fully and currently insured under the Social Security Act.

(f) Invalid lifts and other devices.—The Administrator, under 38 U.S.C. 617, may furnish invalid lifts and other devices to veterans in receipt of pension based on the need of regular aid and attendance.

(g) Tort claim settlements.—Payment of compromises or settlement under 38 U.S.C. 351 resulting from litigation under the Federal Tort Claims Act are made from this appropriation.

(h) Mortgage insurance.—Public Law 92-95, approved August 11, 1971, provides mortgage protection life insurance for service-connected disabled veterans who have received grants for specially adapted housing.

(i) Death gratuities.—Public Law 89-214, approved September 29, 1965, authorized a death gratuity not to exceed $5 thousand for payment to the eligible beneficiary of a veteran whose death occurred during the period from January 1, 1957, through September 28, 1965, and was attributed to certain hazards of service.

READJUSTMENT BENEFITS

More than 95% of this appropriation is used to finance education, training, and rehabilitation of veterans and servicemen who served in the Vietnam-era and in other periods since 1955. The appropriation also finances educational assistance allowances for the dependents of veterans and servicemen unable to provide for their families by reason of death, disability, capture, or missing in action.

1. Education and training.—In 1973, the number of veterans participating in GI bill training is expected to increase by 27% over the number of trainees in 1971—and to more than double the number trained in 1969. The following table provides a comparison of trainees and costs including the effect of proposed legislation to increase monthly benefits (see p. 852).

The increases in veteran use of GI bill benefits reflects the continuing high rate of military separations, accompanying phased reductions in the size of the Armed Forces. But these increases also reflect a progressive increase in the rate of Vietnam-era veteran participation, expected to rise from 23.8% through 1969 to 47.0% through 1973. This increased rate of veteran participation stems in part from intensive efforts to make each veteran aware of his GI bill benefits and to provide him with counselling, training, and job-placement services through U.S. Veterans Assistance Centers and other Federal facilities. In 1972-73, these efforts are being reinforced by the President's six point program, marshaling the resources of government and business to put more veterans into jobs and training. Another important stimulus for veterans to enter and stay in training is proposed legislation to increase the scale of GI bill monthly benefits from $175 for a single veteran to $190.

The average cost of each veteran's training is expected to rise by 7.3%. Among other factors, this reflects an increase in the proportion of full-time trainees, longer duration of training, and the more liberal scale of benefits under the proposed legislation.

An equally significant improvement in the GI bill program is the increasing extent to which the program fits the talents and aspirations of returning veterans. As shown by the table below, in 1973 the number of veterans in college-level training will rise by 31.9% over the number in 1971. In the same period, there will be a 21.6% increase in the number attending vocational and other schools below college level, and a 13.7% increase in the number being offered on-the-job training with private or public employers. In line with the administration's strong efforts to encourage participation by those veterans who need GI bill training most, between 1969-73 there is estimated to be a 150% increase in the number of high school dropouts who will use the GI bill to complete high school or take vocational or academic training.

College.....	917	1,156	1,210

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover costs of tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. Because there is a direct relationship between the number of veterans on the compensation rolls and the number who receive training under this program, increases in the number of trainees are projected for both 1972 and 1973.

Grants are provided for specially adapted housing to veterans having suffered the loss of both feet, to certain blind veterans, and to paraplegic veterans. The number of grants is expected to increase for both 1972 and 1973, and is basically related to Public Law 91-22 which liberalized the eligibility requirements and increased the maximum amount of such grant from $10 thousand to $12,500.

An allowance of $2,800 is provided for disabled veterans and certain persons on active duty toward the purchase price of an automobile or other conveyance. In addition, the furnishing, maintenance, and replacement of adaptive equipment for such automobiles is provided to make the conveyance safe for use by a disabled beneficiary and to assist him in meeting the applicable standards of licensure of the proper licensing authority. The increase in costs in 1972 and 1973, shown in the table below, reflects the rise in applications for this liberalized benefit.

The Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation is made up of the former appropriations for Military and naval insurance, applicable to World War I veterans, the National service life insurance, applicable to certain World War II veterans and the Servicemen's indemnities, applicable to Korean conflict veterans. The appropriation also provides supplemental funds for the Service-disabled veterans insurance. Financing is mainly by congressional appropriation, transfers from the surplus funds of the Veterans special life insurance fund and by a small amount of premiums.

1. Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made to the U.S. Government life insurance fund as a reimbursement for claims (1) traceable to extra hazards of military service, and (2) for claims while insureds were under premium waiver provisions in active military service. Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries for claims on war-risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I.

2. National service life insurance.—This appropriation pays certain expenses of the National service life insurance fund and receives premiums and pays claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to certain disabled veterans of World War II. Premium receipts are appropriated under 38 U.S.C. 719(b).

(a) Payments to National service life insurance fund.—(1) For a death claim traceable to extra hazards of service an amount is transferred from this appropriation, which, when added to the reserve of the policy, is equal to the actuarial value of the claim. In the event of total disability traceable to extra hazards of service, an amount is transferred from this appropriation sufficient to meet the current payments from the fund.

(2) Gratuitous insurance was issued to aviation cadets and to certain persons who were unable to make application for National service life insurance. Under a court ruling in 1964 gratuitous insurance payments are made to illegitimate children previously denied recognition.

(3) The fund is reimbursed when recovery of erroneous payments or overpayments is waived.

(4) The fund is reimbursed for death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured is on active military duty.

(b) Direct payments to policyholders and beneficiaries.—(1) Payments are made on nonparticipating National service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities.

(2) Claims are paid in certain instances in which applicants for insurance were rejected for medical reasons and subsequently died in line of duty.

(3) Claims are paid on death which occurred after application, but before effective date of a National service life insurance policy.

(4) Claims are paid in certain cases in which insurance was discontinued because the insured was discharged to accept a commission, was absent without leave, or was court-martialed.

(5) The general decline in the policies in force is indicated in the following table:

Providing the highest-quality health care to eligible veterans is the prime mission of the Veterans Administration's medical system. In fulfilling that mission, the Veterans Administration operates the country's largest civilian hospital system. Between 1971 and 1973, the system will expand from 166 to 170 hospitals, from 76 to 83 VA nursing homes, and from 199 to 203 outpatient clinics. Employment will rise by 11,824 permanent positions in this period, to 145,245 physicians, nurses, and other health workers. The total number of veterans, who in 1973 will receive some form of health care financed by this appropriation will rise by nearly 24% over the number served in 1971, to 4.7 million. To help maintain its standards of medical excellence, the Veterans Administration trains medical students, physicians, and all other categories of health manpower, and conducts an extensive program of medical research (largely financed by the "Medical and prosthetic research" appropriation). Under the impetus of the President's national health initiatives for improving the quality and accessibility of health care, the Veterans Administration has proposed legislation to authorize earlier treatment of disease. VA also has engaged in an expanding program of demonstrations of new models of health organization and delivery, including progressive regionalization of its hospitals, improvements in design and location of outpatient clinics, and other improvements.

Specific increases in 1973 cover (a) activation expenses for the new hospitals at San Antonio, Tex.; Columbia, Mo.; Lexington, Ky., Northport, N. Y.; San Diego, Calif.; and Tampa, Fla.; (b) increased staffing to improve inpatient and outpatient care; (c) extension of new specialized medical services begun in 1972 and initiation of additional specialized medical services; (d) increased outpatient workloads resulting from the Vietnam conflict; (e) 1,723 more VA nursing home care beneficiaries treated and 5,122 more beneficiaries treated in non-VA facilities; (f) expansion of the education and training program; (g) increased usage of drugs, utilities, communications, prosthetics, medical and dental supplies, and operating supplies; (h) increased equipment and minor improvements; (i) wage and salary increases and other payroll adjustments including FICA; and (j) increased cost of operation and maintenance of additional facilities and space.

This appropriation provides for administration of all nonmedical veterans benefits through the Department of Veterans Benefits; operation of data processing and communications systems through the Department of Data Management; and top management direction and support through agency-level staff offices.

Funds requested for 1973 total $20.9 million above the 1972 estimate. These additional funds are required to handle the growing benefit workload generated by an aging and growing veteran and beneficiary population. The 1973 program anticipates long-range economies through purchase of certain currently leased electronic data processing equipment.

The requested increase will fund increased activities of State approval agencies to help develop job and training opportunities for veterans. Increases in employment and communications result from larger workloads.

1. General administration.—This activity contains the executive direction of the agency and several top level supporting offices. In addition, it covers the Board of Veterans Appeals which decides all cases of appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under veterans legislation.

2. Data management.—This activity manages all computer operations and is responsible for research into new computer and communications systems.

3. Veterans benefits.—Veterans' and dependents' claims for compensation, pensions, or other benefits are adjudicated; and guardianship and fiduciary service is furnished helpless or incompetent veterans and minor dependents, as indicated by the following workloads (in thousands):

	1970 actual	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
New claims (disability and death).....	447	487	541	580
Reopened claims (disability and death)....	350	403	445	460

In 1973, there will be a continuing expansion of VA's efforts to encourage and assist Vietnam era veterans to use their vocational rehabilitation and educational benefits. An additional 169 contact representatives will be placed in U.S. Veterans Assistance Centers and other VA facilities here and abroad. The number of individuals in training are as follows (in thousands):

	1970 actual	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Readjustment training.....	1,211	1,585	1,910	2,011
Dependents.....	52	60	63	67
Vocational rehabilitation.....	24	30	35	40

In 1973, there will be an estimated 75% increase in the number of veterans securing homes through VA loan guaranty over 1971. This program includes issuance of certificates of loan guaranty or insurance, servicing and payment of loans reported in default, management of property when necessary to protect the Government's interest, direct loans to veterans in certain areas, and assistance to specified paraplegic veterans in acquiring specially adapted housing. Key workload forecasts are as follows (in thousands):

	1970 actual	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Guaranteed or insured loans closed.....	186	194	325	340
Direct loans closed and fully disbursed....	9	6	5	4
Defaults reported on GI loans.....	83	84	90	95

The volume of workload is declining as only one of the insurance programs is currently open to new policies. The decline is gradual, however, as the authority (Public Law 92-188) to purchase paid up insurance with dividends creates a continuing new program of additional insurance on present policies. The following workloads are in thousands:

Grants for State nursing facilities may not exceed 50% of the estimated cost of construction of each project and may not provide for more than one and one-half beds per thousand veteran population in any State. Grants to assist the States to remodel, modify, or alter existing hospital or domiciliary facilities in State homes may not exceed 50% of the total cost of the project, nor may any one State receive in any fiscal year more than 20% of the amount appropriated for that fiscal year. As of August 31, 1971, funds in excess of $20 million have been obligated to help finance the construction of 2,683 nursing care beds in 16 States.

Legislation will be proposed in 1973 to increase the Government share of the total cost of the projects.

Grants are made to the Republic of the Philippines for the medical care and treatment, at the Veterans Memorial Hospital or at contract facilities, of Philippine Commonwealth Army veterans and new Philippine Scouts. Public Law 89-612 extended the program for another 5 years through June 30, 1973, and expanded reimbursement to include payments for hospital care for non-service-connected disabilities. To assist the Republic of the Philippines in replacing and upgrading equipment and in rehabilitating the physical plant and facilities of the Veterans Memorial Hospital, $500 thousand was appropriated in 1967, to remain available until expended. A total of $491 thousand has been expended through 1971, with the remaining $9 thousand available in 1972 or subsequent fiscal years. Also, $100 thousand was authorized for each fiscal year through 1972 for making grants for medical research and training of health service personnel.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorized the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Federal National Mortgage Association (now the Government National Mortgage Association), as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 provided that the aggregate amount of participations issued for the account of any trustor may not exceed the amount authorized for that trustor in an appropriation act.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payment for insufficiencies in the amounts required to be paid by trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are primarily comprised of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. For sales authorized in 1967, the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, established a permanent, indefinite appropriation to cover insufficiencies as may be required on account of those sales. For sales authorized in 1968, the respective appropriation acts, 1968 through 1972, established annual, definite appropriations for the payment of insufficiencies on account of sales authorized in that act. An appropriation of $5.2 million is proposed for 1973.

The definite insufficiency appropriation is reflected in the Direct loan revolving fund and Loan guaranty revolving fund. The indefinite insufficiency appropriation will not be required in 1973.

Note.—The above statement excludes the following exchanges of nonworking capital assets: The settlement of VA-guaranteed or insured loans by the acquisition of real property (1971, $139,437 thousand; 1972, $165,800 thousand; 1973, $174,800 thousand); the settlement of defaulted VA-owned loans by acquisition of real property (1971, $35,158 thousand; 1972, $28,700 thousand; 1973, $26,025 thousand); the acquisition of vendee loans in exchange for real property (1971, $170,085 thousand; 1972, $204,300 thousand; 1973, $208,600 thousand).

To assist eligible veterans to obtain credit for the purchase or construction of homes, the Veterans Administration guarantees loans made by private lenders. The number of guaranteed or insured loans (including direct loans sold with a guarantee) is expected to increase from 340,000 in 1972 to 359,000 in 1973 bringing the total amount of guaranteed loans outstanding by the end of 1973 to $43.1 billion. The Loan guaranty revolving fund provides for expenses and revenues of property and loan transactions resulting from settlement of guaranty claims.

Budget program.—1. Real property acquisitions.—Private lenders who have acquired property as a result of foreclosure on defaulted guaranteed or insured loans may elect to convey that property to the Veterans Administration. The table below reflects this activity and excludes the amount of indebtedness established against the veteran:

	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate

Total cost (in thousands).....	$141,834	$166,600	$175,600

2. Property improvements.—After conveyance of the property to the Veterans Administration, capital expenditures are often necessary to place the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

Number of properties acquired.....	13,353	14,800	14,890
Average cost per property.....	$1,254	$1,450	$1,575
Total cost (in thousands).....	$16,746	$21,460	$23,450

3. Claims paid.—These payments are made to lenders in accordance with the Veterans Administration guaranty contract and represent the difference between the amount owed by the veteran on a defaulted loan and the value of the foreclosed property (as established by Veterans Administration). These payments are in addition to property acquisition costs shown in 1, above. The table below reflects this activity:

4. Repurchase of loans sold, net.—Pursuant to Veterans Administration Regulation 4600, dated March 22, 1962, the Administrator may sell with full recourse loans which have been created incident to the sale of Veterans Administration acquired properties. If the loans go into default, the Administrator may repurchase them.

5. Cash advances—Vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government.

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default.

9. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount absorbed by VA incident to the sale of vendee accounts. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford a yield commensurate with market.

10. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which vendee accounts have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(e). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income, cash proceeds from the sale of real property acquired as a result of foreclosure on guaranteed or insured loans, and repayments on mortgages made incident to such sales. It is estimated that $151.0 million in 1972 and $142.0 million in 1973 will be received from these sources. Also an estimated $225.0 million vendee loans will be sold in 1972 and an additional $225.0 million in 1973. In addition, budget authority of $5.9 million and $5.2 million will be required in 1972 and 1973 to meet participation sales insufficiencies.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development; Space, Science, Veterans, and Certain Other Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1972 (Public Law 92-78) provided that the unobligated balances including retained earnings of the Direct loan revolving fund shall be available for transfer to the Loan guaranty revolving fund. No transfers are expected in 1972 or 1973.

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

Note.—The above statement excludes the following exchanges of nonworking capital assets: The settlement of defaulted veterans loans by foreclosures and conveyances (1971, $4,127 thousand; 1972, $5,460 thousand; 1973, $5,035 thousand); the settlement of vendee loans by foreclosures and conveyances (1971, $702 thousand; 1972, $826 thousand; 1973, $840 thousand); the acquisition of vendee loans in exchange for real property (1971, $4,941 thousand; 1972, $5,400 thousand; 1973, $5,750 thousand).

Direct loans are made to veterans to purchase, construct, or improve homes, to purchase farms on which there are farm residences to be occupied by the veterans as their homes; or to construct, alter, repair, or improve farm dwellings to be occupied by the veterans as their homes.

Such loans are made only in rural areas, small cities, and towns where private credit for the making of guaranteed loans is and has been generally unavailable. The maximum term is 30 years and the maximum loan amount is $21 thousand except in high cost areas where such a limitation is inadequate. In such areas, the Administrator is authorized to increase the maximum amount up to $25 thousand. The interest rate is the same as the rate allowable for guaranteed loans (38 U.S.C. 1811, as amended).

Budget program.—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Public Law 91-506 removed the terminal date heretofore in effect on the authority to make direct loans. The same law revived the expired unused loan entitlement of World War II and Korean conflict veterans and provided that direct lending authority and veterans eligibility would be open ended until their entitlement is used.

2. Cash advances and repurchases—vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary subsequently to advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government. These advances are added to unpaid loan balances. In addition, vendee loans sold with full recourse may be repurchased if they go into default.

3. Property improvements.—Properties are acquired by foreclosure on, or the voluntary conveyance of, title to properties securing loans owned by the Veterans Administration. Capital expenditures are often necessary to put the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

4. Interest on borrowings.—Interest expense is accrued monthly. These accruals are computed on the interest-bearing capital of the fund and adjusted for the unexpended balance of the fund.

5. Operating expenses, general.—Includes a variety of miscellaneous expenses borne by the Government incident to closing and liquidating loans.

8. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which direct loans have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(e). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

9. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount absorbed by VA incident to the sale of direct loans. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford a yield commensurate with the market.

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income and repayments on direct loans made to veterans. It is estimated that $160.8 million in 1972 and $131.5 million in 1973 will be received from these sources. In addition, it is estimated that $202.0 million will be realized in 1972 from the sale of direct loans, and $250.0 million in 1973.

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $77,732 thousand in 1972 and it is estimated sales will be $83,000 thousand in 1973.

Financing.—No appropriation by the Congress will be required for the operation of the Veterans Canteen Service during 1973. Operations will be financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service. Funds in excess of the needs of the Service totaling $12,068 thousand have been paid to the Treasury as of June 30, 1971.

Because seasonal fluctuations in obligation requirements require interim commitments in excess of current budgetary resources, a general provision is proposed for the appropriation act which will give authority for obligations in such circumstances. It is estimated that such interim requirements in 1973 will be $3 million, all of which will be covered by earnings before the end of the year.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses. Retained earnings are required for necessary working capital, therefore, no funds are available for payment to the Treasury during 1973.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities (38 U.S.C. 722). Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as new deaths occur among the increasing number of policyholders.

2. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

3. Matured endowments.—Policies having this plan of insurance are now starting to mature.

5. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1970 actual	June 30, 1971 actual	June 30, 1972 estimate	June 30, 1973 estimate
Number of policies	96,146	114,874	130,000	144,000
Insurance in force	$849,402	$1,026,839	$1,162,070	$1,287,216

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are derived from the appropriation Veterans insurance and indemnities, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $8.8 million in 1972 and $7.5 million in 1973.

Operating results and financial condition.—Because premium and other receipts continue to be insufficient to cover operations, the deficit is expected to continue to increase with capital impairment reaching an estimated $75.4 million by June 30, 1973.

The capital of the fund consists of $4.5 million with $1 million transferred from Readjustment benefits appropriation in 1954 and $3.5 million appropriated directly in 1952, 1956, and 1958.

after discharge (72 Stat. 487). The Government guarantees the repayment of any indebtedness not liquidated by the insured himself. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program.—Insurance program.—Claims paid, on application for coverage submitted and approved prior to October 6, 1942, are not reimbursable to the fund. Loans receivable are established for any payments made on applications for coverage submitted after that date, since these payments are reimbursable to the fund.

Financing.—Payment of claims against this fund is financed from collections of loans receivable, revenue, and appropriations as needed.

Operating results and financial condition.—The payment of claims has continually resulted in expenses in excess of the small revenue of the fund, thereby steadily increasing the deficit to an estimated $2,000 thousand through 1973.

This fund finances payment of claims and administrative costs on nonparticipating insurance policies issued after April 30, 1965, and prior to May 3, 1966, under the three insurance programs: (1) Service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) non-service-disabled insurance—established by provisions of the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended (38 U.S.C. 725 (b), (c), to extend a new opportunity for insurance coverage to disabled veterans who no longer were eligible for other Government insurance.

Each program is self-contained and premiums may be adjusted to insure that each is self-sustaining, as required by law. For this purpose, separate accounting and actuarial records are maintained for each program to determine the individual program costs. Payments are made to the General operating expenses appropriation to cover the administrative costs of processing claims, and maintaining the accounts.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries will continue to increase as deaths occur among policyholders.

2. Disability claims.—Payments to individuals who have purchased total disability coverage and who subsequently become totally disabled.

4. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

5. Payments to General operating expenses appropriation.—Payments to cover the administrative cost of processing claims and maintaining the accounts.

7. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

Total.....	1,357,995	1,342,251	1,326,138	1,310,207

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums collected from policyholders and interest on investments.

The average premium rates for the service-disabled standard insurance program were reduced by about 18% effective for the premiums due in October 1970. This reduction was made because of favorable experience in investment income. Premiums were not reduced on the other two programs because their mortality losses were insufficiently offset by their interest gains.

VETERANS SPECIAL LIFE INSURANCE FUND—Continued

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued before January 1, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1951 (38 U.S.C. sec. 723). Policyholders were given the right (72 Stat. 1716) to convert to a permanent plan of insurance or to a new form of term insurance which may not be renewed beyond age 50 but which costs less than the unlimited term insurance. Policyholders under all plans of VSLI may purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of an additional premium. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation General operating expenses.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as deaths occur among policyholders.

2. Disability claims.—Payments to individuals who have purchased total disability coverage and who subsequently become totally disabled began in 1960.

3. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

4. Policy loans made.—The policyholders who converted their insurance from term to permanent plan were subsequently entitled to borrow up to 94% of the cash value of the new policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1970 actual	June 30, 1971 actual	June 30, 1972 estimate	June 30, 1973 estimate
Number of policies	619,546	614,321	608,404	602,083
Insurance in force	$5,431,536	$5,384,314	$5,332,663	$5,277,254

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have been reduced by payments of a special dividend and payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund.

Increased loan activity in this fund is projected in both 1972 and 1973 which is based on an increase in the number of trainees for both years.

Administrative expenses are borne by the appropriation, General operating expenses.

This fund finances the payment of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act of 1965 (38 U.S.C. sec. 765-776) as amended, and any expenses incurred by the Veterans Administration in administration of the act.

Budget program.—1. Premium payments.—The payment of premiums to private insurance companies in 1972 and 1973 is expected to be sizably less than in 1971. This is due to a decrease in contributions for the extra hazards of service.

2. Payment to General operating expenses appropriation.—The 1971 administrative cost to the Veterans Administration of $551 thousand is considerably higher than in 1972 and 1973. This is due mainly to the necessity of having all new applications, certificates, and necessary forms reprinted because of amended legislation effective June 25, 1970.

Financing.—Premium costs are met by withholding from the salaries of insured members their share of the cost of the insurance and by contributions of amounts representing the extra hazard costs from appropriations of the departments involved. The extra hazards contributions and withholdings from pay will be slightly less in 1972 and 1973 over 1971 due to an expected reduction in members and combat activity.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5011, the Supply fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, the cost of warehouse inventories at depots and field stations, and selected items of equipment procured centrally. It also finances, on the same basis, items and services to other Federal agencies who either request or are assigned to the Veterans Administration for support.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) Maintenance of depot and field station inventories; (2) maintenance and operation of two supply depots and one subdepot; (3) a publications depot, including printing services to VA installations on a centralized basis; (4) operation of a service and reclamation program operating out of the supply depots; (5) centralized periodical procurement and library cataloging; and (6) a marketing center or central buying office.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service and distribution of printed matter to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired, in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing, from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant, and from commercial sources.

The marketing center is responsible for determining the levels of inventories to be carried at depots and acquiring stock to maintain such levels. It is also responsible for the central contracting of items not available from other Government sources for VA installations and other Government agencies as may be determined economical or advisable.

The Supply fund does not finance costs for the operation and administration of supply activities at field stations or in central office not directly related to the Supply fund. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations and are not an expense of the Supply fund.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply fund and Supply fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving the goods and services.

Operating results and financial condition.—The fund operated at a loss of $229 thousand in 1970 and carried forward a loss of $16 thousand from prior years. In 1971 the fund had a profit of $236 thousand. This was $8 thousand short of the total loss.

Action was established as an independent agency on July 1, 1971, by bringing together a number of voluntary action programs from throughout the Federal Government. The purpose of the agency is to create a system of volunteer service which uses to the fullest advantage the energies and efforts of the Nation in the American tradition of voluntary assistance both at home and abroad.

1. International programs.—This activity funds the Peace Corps, which is one of the component programs of Action. The funds provide for the training of the volunteers, their activities overseas, and the program staff, both in the United States and abroad, required to support them.

The purposes of the Peace Corps are to provide trained Americans to interested countries in need of middle-level manpower and to promote understanding between the people of the United States and the peoples served.

Volunteers are working in five principal kinds of assignments at the request of host countries. Approximately 45% are engaged in teaching at all levels and 22% are serving in agricultural development. About 10% are involved in public works and professional services; 8% in health programs; 8% in rural, urban, and business development projects; and 7% in various other projects.

Prior to overseas assignment, each volunteer is given intensive training designed to develop required skills, provide a knowledge of the country to which he will be sent, develop his language abilities and to assure physical fitness for service overseas. To provide the most realistic training environment and experience, about 80% of all volunteers in 1973 will receive some portion of their training in the host countries where they will serve.

The 1973 budget supports a total strength of 9,675 volunteers in training or in service by August 31, 1973. The planned assignment of these volunteers is as follows:

	Aug. 31, 1971 (actual)	Aug. 31, 1972 (planned)	Aug. 31, 1973 (planned)
Africa.....	2,606	2,780	3,030
Latin America.....	2,503	2,665	2,900
North Africa, Near East, Asia, and Pacific.....	3,226	3,440	3,745
Total.....	8,335	8,885	9,675

Country requests for Peace Corps volunteers are calling for more specialized projects which require higher skill levels. To meet these needs, the Peace Corps is providing more technical and skill-related training to its volunteers.

Volunteers for African countries will be placed in primary and secondary education, in agricultural, and in health programs.

In Latin America, agriculture and community development comprise the major thrust, with education (particularly training of primary level teachers) emerging as the third major program area.

The North Africa, Near East, and South Asia and East Asia and Pacific regions have been merged into a single region—the North Africa, Near East, Asia, and Pacific region—during the past year to achieve more efficient management and economies. The volunteers in this region work in a wide variety of programs, but the majority are in the areas of agriculture and education.

2. Domestic programs.—This activity includes a variety of volunteer programs to serve the disadvantaged within the United States. The 1973 request includes funds to initiate new programs as well as to expand established programs. The programs included are as follows:

Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA).—This program places individual volunteers or teams in nonprofit organizations to assist in projects of direct help to the poor within six broad categories: Health, economic development, housing, education and manpower development, social services, and community planning. The 1973 program anticipates approximately 4,000 volunteer man-years with continued emphasis on skilled volunteers, structured training, well defined project assignments under regular supervision, and project evaluation.

Foster grandparents.—Project grants are issued under this program to nonprofit agencies to provide opportunities for low-income older persons to serve needy children, usually in an institutional setting. Planning for 1973 provides for about 11,000 foster grandparents to attend to the needs of more than 55,000 children.

Retired senior volunteer program.—This program is designed to permit elderly people (age 60 and over) to provide a wide variety of volunteer services to their communities through such activities as assisting ill, handicapped, or aged persons with personal shopping or home tasks, tutoring underachievers in schools, providing individual attention to children with exceptional needs, or serving as volunteers in court settings. Volunteers will be reimbursed for out-of-pocket expenses incident to their volunteer activities, such as transportation and meals. The 1973 request will provide opportunities for approximately 75,000 older persons.

University year for action (UYA).—Universities and their students are involved in a variety of projects to aid the disadvantaged in their own communities. University credit is granted to participating student volunteers.

SCORE/ACE.—Over 4,000 retired and 2,000 active business executives make available, without charge, their business management expertise to assist small businesses and nonprofit community organizations requiring business counseling. SCORE/ACE executives counsel more than 30,000 businesses per year.

3. Support programs.—This activity provides supportive functions for the international and domestic programs in four important areas. They are: (1) The recruitment, selection, and placement of the volunteers required to execute the programs sponsored by the agency; (2) the investigation of potential new programs, their development and the conduct of experimental programs; (3) the overall management and evaluation of ongoing programs; and (4) agencywide administrative support.

The external research and field testing activities are conducted through grants or contracts with nongovernmental research organizations and through reimbursement agreements with other U.S. Government departments and agencies. The proposed 1973 program will emphasize the control, limitation and reduction of strategic offensive and defensive weapons systems in support of bilateral and multilateral negotiations on strategic arms limitations.

The Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for the Spanish-Speaking People was created on December 30, 1969, by Public Law 91-181. The primary functions of the Committee are to advise Federal departments and agencies regarding appropriate action to be taken to help assure that Federal programs are providing the assistance needed by Spanish-speaking and Spanish-surnamed Americans; and to advise Federal departments and agencies on the development and implementation of comprehensive and coordinated policies, plans, and programs focusing on the special problems and needs of Spanish-speaking and Spanish-surnamed Americans, and on priorities thereunder.

1. The Cabinet Committee provides data on the Spanish-speaking Americans to both private and public groups. This data is presented in the form of statistics; guides on Spanish-speaking organizations and manpower, or reports on past accomplishments. Several studies are made in conjunction with other Federal agencies such as the Bureau of the Census and the Department of Labor. The Civil Aeronautics Board fixes rates of subsidy compensation to promote the development of air transportation to the extent and of the quality required for the commerce of the United States, the Postal Service, and the national defense. The Board makes subsidy payments to subsidy-eligible certificated air carriers who have demonstrated a statutory need therefor. Subsidy is provided to cover the carrier's operating loss incurred under honest, economical and efficient management and to provide it an opportunity to earn a fair return (after taxes) on investment used and useful in the air transportation services.

The following table reflects the estimated program amounts becoming due finally for each year, together with the adjustments between years:

Section 103 of the Civil Service Retirement Amendments of 1969, approved October 20, 1969, established the basis for requiring Federal contributions to the civil service retirement and disability fund. Among other things, it provides for financing of current year costs of the unfunded liability created since enactment of Public Law 91-93. Any statute which authorizes: (1) New or liberalized benefits, (2) extension of retirement coverage, or (3) increases in pay is deemed to authorize appropriations to the fund to finance the unfunded liability created by such statute. Also, the Secretary of the Treasury is required to make annual payments from general revenues into the retirement fund on the basis of a sliding scale of percentages of an amount equivalent to: (1) Interest on the unfunded liability, and (2) annuity disbursements attributable to military service. The Civil Service Commission, at the end of each year, beginning in 1971, notifies the Secretary of the Treasury of the amount of payment to be made to the retirement fund and reports such sums to the President and the Congress. The required percentage of the total amount for 1972 is 20% and for 1973, 30% of such amount.

This proposed supplemental is for mandatory payment to the civil service retirement and disability fund to finance the unfunded liability created by postal salary increases. Under authorization of the Postal Reorganization Act, Public Law 91-375, the Postal Service has negotiated a contract which includes three salary increases in 1972 and which will create additional unfunded liability on June 30, 1972, requiring annual payments of $62,991 thousand. Under the provisions of Public Law 91-93, unfunded liability generated by new statutes must be financed in 30 equal annual installments, beginning with the first payment due as of the end of the fiscal year in which each new liberalization, extension of coverage, or increase in pay is effective.

The order also establishes the Federal Service Impasses Panel as an agency within the Council. The Panel is authorized to consider impasses resulting from negotiations between labor organizations and agency management and to take whatever action it considers necessary to settle an impasse.

As provided by the order, the Federal Labor Relations Council began functioning January 1, 1970.

Since 1952, under authority of 5 U.S.C. 1304 and other laws and executive orders, the Civil Service Commission has conducted full field security investigations for other departments and agencies on a reimbursable basis. Beginning on April 5, 1970, pursuant to Public Law 91-189, approved December 30, 1969 (5 U.S.C. 1304(e)), use of the revolving fund was expanded to include reimbursable training activities of the Commission, as well as miscellaneous reimbursable services provided by the Commission to other Federal agencies and to State and local governments.

Budget program.—Because work on some investigations will be started in 1 year and completed in another and since some training course developmental work will be accomplished in 1 year with the course being presented in another, work in process is recognized as an asset of the fund. Under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970 the Commission will admit State and local government employees to reimbursable training courses. Miscellaneous reimbursable services provided to other Federal agencies and to State and local governments are part of regular ongoing functions funded under the Commission's Salaries and expenses appropriation and are included under advances and reimbursements.

Chief workloads of the two major activities are displayed below:

Operating results and financial condition.—The capital of the fund consists of $5 million. Excess earnings, as determined by the Commission, are paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

Effective in 1972 certain Commission functions previously performed for the Post Office Department under the Commission's Salaries and expenses appropriation, become a responsibility of the newly created U.S. Postal Service. As requested by the Postal Service, these functions will continue to be performed by the Commission but on a reimbursable basis in 1972. Under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970 the Commission will, on a reimbursable basis, certify to State and local governments from appropriate Federal registers the names of potential employees and will provide technical advice and assistance for the improvement of personnel management systems. These reimbursable services are part of regular ongoing functions under the Commission's Salaries and expenses appropriation for which cost data is available. In 1971 miscellaneous reimbursable services to other Federal agencies were funded through the Commission's revolving fund.

Reimbursements for in-house data processing and printing are for services rendered to all activities of the Commission.

The fund finances the cost of health benefits for: (1) Active employees, (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors (5 U.S.C. 8901-8913), and (3) the related expenses of the Commission in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants on June 30 are as follows:

	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Active employees.....	2,173,205	2,209,955	2,230,955
Annuitants.....	515,440	591,740	668,640
Total.....	2,688,645	2,801,695	2,899,595

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, 1% is added to the rates developed by health benefit carriers, for administrative expense, and 3% is added for a contingency reserve held by the Commission for each carrier. The Commission is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

An amendment to the Federal Employees Health Benefits law (Public Law 91-418), approved September 25, 1970, provides for increased Government contributions to health benefits premiums beginning in January 1971. The new Government share is equal to 40% of the current unweighted average of the high-option premiums of six large plans, but not more than 50% of the premium cost for the particular enrollment. The amendment also provides for annual adjustments, as needed, to maintain the Government's share of the cost at the 40% level, whenever any of the six plans revise premium rates.

Financing.—The fund is financed by: (1) Withholdings from active employees and annuitants; (2) agency contributions for active employees, appropriated to agencies; and (3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to the Commission.

Operating results.—Funds advanced to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods. About $7.9 million unused administrative funds were transferred to the contingency reserve in 1971. The contingency reserves are retained by the Commission and paid to carriers, as necessary, to defray future rate increases or to provide increased benefits.

This fund finances insurance premiums paid to private insurance companies for Federal employees group life insurance (5 U.S.C. 8701-8716) and expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administering the program. Separate cost data is maintained for employees regular group life insurance, an additional $10 thousand authorized in 1967, and insurance for members of former beneficial associations.

Budget program.—The status of the basic (regular and optional) life insurance program on June 30 is as follows:

Financing.—Premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding 27½ cents biweekly from the salaries of employees, for each $1 thousand of life insurance and a 50% matching by employer agencies; for the optional program by withholding from employees' salaries, or retirees' annuities; and for the beneficial association program by direct collection from members. Most of the difference between receipts and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. The status of reserves on June 30 is as follows (in millions of dollars):

The special contingency reserve with the insurer for the regular and optional insurance program is limited to $200 million. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Employees' life insurance fund. Public Law 92-28, the 1971 amendment to the Wagner-O'Day Act, encourages the gainful employment of blind and other severely handicapped persons by making it possible for them to supply products and services to Federal agencies on a well-organized basis. The law establishes a full-time staff for the committee to administer the program, stipulates certain qualifications which workshops must possess, and provides for central non-profit agencies to assist the committee in its work. These changes will increase by several times the number of workshops participating in the program, and the number of goods and services which the workshops may sell to Federal agencies on a preferential basis.

Committee staff will supervise the selection, development, and assignment of new items and services, assist in establishing prices, and continuously audit the qualifications and performance of the workshops.

1. General fund loans.—Appropriations for 30-year interest-bearing loans from the U.S. Treasury are made available for financing construction of the general public works program of the District of Columbia, including school construction (72 Stat. 183); for the District of Columbia's contribution to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority for the city's share of construction costs of the rail rapid transit system authorized by the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 (83 Stat. 320); and for education facilities for the Federal City College and the Washington Technical Institute (80 Stat. 1434). The loans to the general fund through the fiscal year ending June 30, 1973, are appropriated under a borrowing authority which is related to the ability of the District of Columbia to repay. The loans made under this authorization may not cause the general fund debt service to exceed 9% of local revenues, including the Federal payment credited to the fund in fiscal year 1972 (84 Stat. 1930). Exception to this ceiling in the amount of $166.5 million is provided for loans for the District of Columbia contribution to construction of the rail rapid system (83 Stat. 320). The Export-Import Bank of the United States was organized in 1934, and its existing programs are authorized under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended. The purpose of the Bank is to aid in financing and to facilitate U.S. exports and imports.

Eximbank's 23 export expansion programs are designed to assist U.S. exporters to increase their overseas sales by meeting the needs of the U.S. exporting community.

During 1971 Eximbank continued to expand its support of U.S. exports. The estimated contract value of exports supported by 1971 authorizations is $6.9 billion, a 26% increase over the $5.5 billion of U.S. exports supported by 1970 authorizations.

The Export Expansion Finance Act of 1971, signed by the President on August 17, 1971, among other things, increased the statutory ceiling on the Bank's outstanding loans, guarantees and insurance from $13.5 billion to $20 billion, extended the life of the Bank from June 30, 1973 to June 30, 1974, and removed the Bank's receipts and disbursements from the budget totals of the U.S. Government, as of August 17, 1971. Schedules showing estimates for the period August 17, 1971 to June 30, 1972 and for 1973 and the proposed language for the 1973 appropriation act are in part IV of this appendix.

The removal of the Bank's receipts and disbursements from the budget totals reduced the loans outstanding and balances of borrowing authority in the Government's budget accounts, although Eximbank's status as a Government corporation does not in any way change and its commitments and guarantees still carry the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. The amounts affected by the conversion are as follows:

The Corporation was created by Congress for the purpose of protecting bank depositors and to foster sound practices in the Nation's banking system. As of June 30, 1971, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $4.5 billion. The entire fund is considered a reserve for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for the payment of administrative and insurance expenses. Income is accumulated principally from assessments paid by insured banks and interest from its investments in obligations of the U.S. Treasury. The insurance fund is strengthened by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the Treasurer of the United States. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1972 and 1973.

² Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by Congress to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. Initially, deposit insurance was limited to $2,500 per depositor. This protection increased to $5 thousand in 1935, $10 thousand in 1950, $15 thousand in 1966, and finally in 1969 to the present maximum of $20 thousand. In order to accomplish its varied functions in the protection of bank depositors the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. A basic program for examining State banks which are not members of the Federal Reserve System and liquidation activities attendant to closed insured banks constitute the major portion of the Corporation's operations.

Income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government securities. As of June 30, 1971, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $4.5

billion. The entire fund represents the accumulated net income of the Corporation and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriation are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations.

The insurance fund is supported by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the U.S. Treasurer. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1972 and 1973.

The estimates for 1972 and 1973 in these statements make no provision for losses and expenses which might occur by reason of the closing of any bank after June 30, 1971, because there is no sound basis for predicting which insured banks, if any, will close after that date.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board formulates policies and supervises the operations of the 12 Federal home loan banks, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation; it is also responsible for the examination of all Federal savings and loan associations, and for the examination and supervision of all State-chartered institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenditure programs of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation are presented as business-type budgets. Section 2 of Public Law 895, approved July 3, 1948, provides that all expenses of the Division of Examinations, Federal Home Loan Bank Board, shall be considered nonadministrative.

Public Law 87-141, approved August 17, 1961, provides that expenses of any functions of supervision (except of Federal home loan banks) vested in or exercisable by the Board shall be considered as nonadministrative expenses.

The administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenses of the home office of the Office of Examinations and Supervision are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenses of the field offices of the Office of Examinations and Supervision are paid from fees charged against and collected from savings and loan institutions examined and from assessments against the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Title I of the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970, Public Law 91-351, authorized a new program in the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Under this program, appropriated funds would be used by the 12 Federal Home Loan Banks to adjust the effective interest rate charged by each bank on lending to member savings and loan associations, thereby promoting an orderly flow of funds into residential construction.

The program was initiated in 1971 with an appropriation of $85 million. An additional $62.5 million was appropriated in 1972. A $50 million appropriation is proposed for 1973. Proposed in 1973 is a standby authority under which the Federal home loan banks would be able to adjust the effective interest rate on advances made to their member associations. This standby authority would be used in the event it becomes necessary to assure the continued availability of home mortgage financing for low- and middle-income families.

Budget program.—The Board's budget is based on seven activities.

Examination and supervision of Federal home loan banks.—The Board examines and supervises the operations of the Federal home loan banks.

Examination and supervision of Federal- and State-chartered institutions.—The financial condition and operations of each insured institution are analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on, cooperatively, under arrangements made with the respective State authorities. Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and such uninsured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System as are not examined by the State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter when required by the Board.

Chartering Federal and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion into Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of the insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

Analysis of operations.—An analysis is made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, the character and volume of mortgage lending, as well as selective review of geographical or community areas and phases of operations and certain analyses of trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including volume of activity and interest rates of all major types of mortgage lenders.

Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting, budgetary, and financial reporting; internal budget control; and fiscal organization and management. These services also include general housekeeping and operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

Acquisition and construction of a building in the District of Columbia.—The Board is authorized by Public Law 89-754, 80 Stat. 1255, 1293, approved November 3, 1966, to acquire property and construct a building in the District of Columbia to provide quarters and facilities for the Board. Under the law, the Board is required to prepare and submit an annual budget program for the building as provided in title I of the Government Corporation Control Act.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the above activities include administrative expenses under annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $8.1 million in 1972 to $8.8 million in 1973. Nonadministrative expenses covering examination and supervision of savings and loan associations are discussed separately below.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision conducts regular periodic and special supervisory examinations of all Federal savings and loan associations, of insured State-chartered savings and loan associations, other institutions of the savings and loan type insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and of non-insured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System not subject to State supervision. The Office also examines and analyzes the financial condition of institutions which apply for membership in the System, for insurance of accounts, or for conversion from a State to a Federal charter. The institutions examined bear the costs of examinations.

The Office is also responsible for the supervision of institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The purpose of such supervision is to prevent the development and/or continuance of unsafe and unsound financial practices in these institutions and to correct such practices where found. In carrying out the supervisory function, the Office reviews and analyzes the examination reports forwarded by the chief examiners of the respective district offices. The authority for examination and supervision of insured savings and loan associations was expanded by the Financial Institutions Supervisory Act of 1966, effective October 16, 1966. The Savings and Loan Holding Company Amendments of 1967 which became effective February 14, 1968, imposed additional examination and supervisory responsibilities on the Office with respect to savings and loan holding companies and their subsidiaries.

The 12 Federal home loan banks stabilize and strengthen the member institutions which own all their capital stock. The banks obtain funds advanced to members primarily from public issuances of consolidated obligations. Authority to borrow from the Treasury was increased from $1 to $4 billion by Public Law 91-151, approved December 23, 1969. No borrowings are anticipated in 1972 or 1973, but funds are available if market conditions so warrant. (Transactions of the banks are shown in the annexed budgets at the end of this document.)

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1724 et seq.) to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection thus afforded, which insures savers in member associations against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $20 thousand, may be provided through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings account holders in the event of liquidation. The former course of action, which results in complete protection to each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making contributions or by purchasing all or a part of the association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Wherever possible, preventive measures are taken to eliminate the necessity of liquidation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as receiver or coreceiver upon request of State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions. In addition, the Corporation, upon determination by the Board (under legislation effective July 1968, Public Law 90-389) is empowered to act, even retroactively, as sole receiver in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides certain administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation and the Federal home loan banks.

1. Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—In carrying out its role of protecting savings in insured savings and loan associations the Corporation has settled 93 cases since its creation 37 years ago. Actual losses sustained and provision for losses to June 30, 1971, have amounted to $177.2 million representing approximately 8% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information with respect to all of the insurance cases is summarized in the following table (dollars in thousands):

2. Payment to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 25% of the administrative expenses of the Board as a direct charge and 48% of the remaining administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1973 in return for services and facilities by the Board and staff offices. The Corporation will also pay 48% of the Washington office expenses and 50% of the District offices expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision for supervisory services by that office.

6. Other expenses.—Provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the workout of contribution agreements, the disposition of assets purchased from, and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to the Treasury, together with an additional $43 million for the use of the funds.

The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, with a limitation of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowings under this authorization have ever been made.

The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any one year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured members.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock, and to establish a reserve for contingencies of $2,921 million as of June 30, 1971. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934, of $3,243.5 million, have been applied as follows (in millions of dollars):

	Amount	Percent
Expense.....	102.0	3.1
Insurance losses sustained and provision for losses.....	177.2	5.5
Return on capital stock to U.S. Treasury.....	43.0	1.3
Reserve for contingencies.....	2,921.3	90.1
Total.....	3,243.5	100.0

Operating expenses (funded) for 1973 are estimated at $31.3 million, consisting of administrative expenses of the Corporation of $625 thousand, $14.4 million for services rendered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, $8 million for contributions to insured institutions, and $8.3 million for other expenses.

Net operating income for 1973, which is expected to be $250.7 million, will be retained by the Corporation to meet future contingencies.

Section 404(b) of the National Housing Act, as amended, requires each insured institution to pay a basic insurance premium in an amount equal to one-twelfth of 1% of its savings accounts. Public Law 87-210, which became effective January 1, 1962, as amended, requires annual payment to the Corporation of an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year, less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The law also provides for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayments of each insured association at a rate equal to the average realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio.

Public Law 87-210 further provides for the establishment of a primary reserve which shall be the general reserve of the Corporation and a secondary reserve to which shall be credited additional premiums. When the sum of these two reserves equals 2% of total savings, the cash payment of the regular premiums and the prepayments cease and the Corporation commences transferring the secondary reserve to the primary reserve by crediting each insured association's accumulated prepayments to its regular premium liability. (This credit is reflected on the analysis of changes in Government equity statement below.) If the aggregate of the two reserves drops to below 1.60%, (changed from 1.75% by P.L. 92-213), the prepayments and the cash payment of the regular premium resume and continue until the 2% ratio is again reached. The law requires the Corporation to accumulate a primary reserve (as of the close of any December 31) equal to 2% of the total amount of all accounts of insured members before collection of regular premiums may be discontinued, provided, however, that each insured institution has paid regular premiums for at least 20 years.

Public Law 91-151, approved December 23, 1969, removed references to creditor obligations from the computation of the basic insurance premium and the base on which the required reserve levels are determined. Under this law, the maximum required level of primary and secondary reserves was deemed to have been reached on December 31, 1969. As of the end of 1973 it is anticipated that the primary reserve will reach $1,895 million or 1.0% of estimated savings of $185.1 billion and that the primary and secondary reserves will be at a level of $3,276.8 million or 1.77% of these estimated savings.

Public Law 91-152, approved December 24, 1969, provided that savings losses during 1966 recaptured in later years would not be reflected as savings growth on which the liability for payments to the secondary reserve is based. This measure amended prior law which already extended such treatment to losses occurring in 1967 and later years. Refunds due to this legislation are reflected as item 5 on the program and financing schedule.

The Federal Maritime Commission administers the shipping statutes which require regulation of the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. Its paramount objective for 1972 and 1973 is to achieve proper compliance with the statutes through an effective regulatory program. This will entail continuing and comprehensive analysis in depth of the activities of conferences, carriers, and others subject to Commission jurisdiction, as they relate to the following program areas: ocean freight rates; section 15 agreements; malpractices; foreign discriminatory actions; freight forwarders; terminal operators; passenger vessel certification; and oil pollution financial responsibility.

The Service under title II of the Labor Management Relations Act of 1947, assists labor and management in mediation and prevention of disputes affecting industries engaged in interstate commerce and defense production, other than rail and air transportation, whenever in its judgment such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of commerce. Under the authority of Executive Order 11491 of October 29, 1969, as amended by Executive Order 11616, dated August 26, 1971, the Service also makes its mediation and conciliation facilities available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes.

1. Mediation and conciliation of labor disputes.—During 1971, dispute notices and other notifications affecting 98,153 employers were received by the Service. Cases totaling 21,727 were assigned for mediation and 21,858 mediation assignments were closed during the year. About 85% of the mediation assignments closed which required the services of mediators were settled without work stoppages. A total of 32,293 mediation conferences were conducted by mediators during 1971. This represents the largest number of joint and separate conferences conducted by mediators in the history of the Service. The workload shown below includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors. Cases in process at the end of 1971 totaled 4,889; this is the normal carry-over of open cases from month to month, with seasonal fluctuations. The following chart shows a 5-year comparison of workload data:

2. Ad hoc boards, panels, mediators, and consultants.—Provision is made for ad hoc employment of labor relations experts, individually or in panels, in support of the mediation function; and for boards of inquiry appointed by the President in emergency disputes.

Service function in the Federal sector.—Executive Order 11491 of October 29, 1969, as amended by Executive Order 11616, dated August 26, 1971, places responsibility in the agency for providing mediation assistance to Federal agencies and labor organizations in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service estimates it will be actively engaged in mediation of impasses in about 250 such negotiations each year. Through its preventive activity program, the Service will continue to work with both contracting parties to bring about a better understanding of the collective bargaining process, and to improve their day-to-day working relationships. It is estimated that the Service will be actively engaged in about 400 preventive assignments in the Federal sector.

Arbitration services.—The Service provides panels of arbitrators from its roster for the resolution of employee grievances or disputes in the private and public sectors involving the interpretation or application of existing agreements. In 1971 the Service provided 13,235 panels of arbitrators, an increase of 112% over the past 6 years. The Service is presently automating the arbitrator selection process in order to cope with the increased workload.

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and Natural Gas Act, and performs other work relating to Federal electric power developments and associated natural resources. In 1973 the Commission expects to collect $18,147 thousand in license fees and other charges.

1. Hydroelectric power regulation.—The Commission licenses non-Federal hydroelectric projects and makes water resources appraisal studies. Under Public Law 90-451, amending the Federal Power Act, the Commission determines whether projects with expiring licenses should be relicensed or recommended to Congress for Federal takeover. To help defray the cost of this program, an estimated $4,236 thousand will be collected in 1973.

2. Electric power industry systems evaluation.—The Commission encourages the interconnection and coordination of the Nation's electric power systems to insure an adequate supply of electric energy.

The Commission studies the electric power industry's problems and prospects to encourage electric utilities to meet the Nation's power requirements by timely installation of adequate generating and transmission facilities with minimum impact on our environment. Continuous surveillance of the changing requirements of the electric power industry is conducted to identify current trends, project load growth, and suggest patterns of generation and transmission to meet future requirements. To help defray the cost of this program an estimated $2,521 thousand will be collected in 1973.

3. Electric power utilities regulation.—The Commission regulates the wholesale rates and service, the accounting and reporting requirements, depreciation practices, certain security issues, the disposition of property, mergers, and interlocking directorates of interstate electric utilities. To help defray the cost of this program an estimated $1,129

4. Natural gas pipeline regulation.—There were 113 natural gas pipeline companies regulated by the Commission in 1971 with assets of $20.3 billion and approximately 41 million customers.

The Commission issues certificates of public convenience and necessity to permit construction of new facilities and extensions by interstate natural gas companies. Filing fees are levied on pipeline certificate applications and annual charges collected to defray the cost of the program. It is estimated that in 1973 the amount collected for fees and annual charges will be $5,964 thousand.

The Commission also regulates the wholesale rates charged by interstate natural gas pipeline companies, their accounting and reporting requirements, depreciation practices, and abandonment of property.

5. Natural gas producers regulation.—The Commission issues certificates of public convenience and necessity for the sale of gas by independent producers and regulates the rates which producers may charge for natural gas sold in interstate commerce. Some 4,500 natural gas producers are presently regulated by the Commission. To help defray the cost of this program an estimated $400 thousand will be collected to cover the cost of processing producer certificate applications.

6. Natural gas industry systems evaluation.—The Commission initiated a national gas survey in 1971, which is expected to complement the National Power Survey in forecasting energy supply and requirements.

7. Services to other agencies and to the public.—The Commission studies industry systems and prepares reports for use of other agencies, the industries and the public.

The Commission assesses and collects annual charges against owners of non-Federal hydroelectric projects which derive benefit from upstream Federal reservoirs.

The Commission participates with other Federal agencies in planning the development of power at water resources projects. For certain Federal projects, it approves the rate for sale of power and allocates the costs to project purposes. It participates in activities of the Water Resources Council and in Federal-State water resources studies. An estimated $2,413 thousand is expected to be collected in 1973.

8. Administration.—This activity includes executive, managerial, and support personnel whose functions are applicable to the Commission as a whole.

The Commission has the duty of preserving free competitive enterprise through the prevention and elimination of monopolistic practices and unfair methods of competition. Additionally, it is responsible for detecting and proscribing acts and practices which are unfair or deceptive to the consuming public.

1. Maintaining competition.—All types of monopolistic practices and unreasonable restraints of trade, including price-fixing conspiracies, boycotts, price discriminations, and illegal mergers and acquisitions, are investigated and corrected. Direct enforcement activities are supplemented principally by economic and financial analyses, trade regulation rules, statements of enforcement policies, industry guides, compliance efforts to secure obedience with cease and desist orders, advisory opinions, and other informational and corrective activities. In 1973, the investigation of trade restraints and monopolistic practices will be intensified, with particular emphasis upon unlawful actions extending over large geographic areas and adversely affecting large segments of the consuming public. Particular efforts will be made to identify and eliminate illegal business conduct in basic consumer industries and in industries affecting the prices of essential consumer commodities.

2. Consumer protection.—Major emphasis is placed on investigating and correcting unfair or deceptive acts and practices, including false and misleading advertising, which are injurious to the consumer as well as to competition. In 1973, efforts will continue to obtain meaningful relief for consumers through innovative orders; the program of requiring substantiation for advertising claims made for major consumer products will be continued and expanded as warranted; and systematic efforts will be made to identify market problems of greatest consumer concern, both social and economic, so that resources can be efficiently expended. Attention is directed to such areas as consumer credit, flammable fabrics, packaging and labeling, food and drug advertising, general advertising, representations made by salesmen and others in the sale of goods and services in interstate commerce, and mislabeled wool, fur, and textile products. Also flammable fabric activities will be expanded to include continued enforcement of the new carpet and rug standards and new standards for children's sleepwear. Direct enforcement activities are supplemented by economic analyses, rules and guides, vigorous consumer education and information programs, scientific advice and assistance, and compliance efforts.

3. Executive direction and policy planning.—Overall executive direction and planning and evaluation of the Commission's activities are carried out under this activity. This program area also includes the formulation and implementation of program policies, and the adjudicatory functions of the Commission.

4. Administrative management.—Includes the formulation and implementation of administrative policies and the direction and coordination of all administrative activities, including personnel and training, management analysis, financial management, general services, and data processing.

The Foreign Claims Settlement Commission is responsible for the settlement of claims of U.S. nationals against foreign nations and other claims programs as authorized by law.

Adjudication of claims.—The Commission will administer two claims programs in 1973. Public Law 92-39 requires the adjudication of an estimated 5,000-10,000 claims of citizens of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands for injuries and damages which arose out of hostilities during World War II and the military occupation thereafter. Also, Public Law 91-289 requires the adjudication of an undetermined number of prisoner of war claims arising out of the Vietnam conflict.

Executive and advisory function.—This activity includes policy determination, executive direction, program planning and evaluation, congressional liaison, information for the public, and advisory services for the Government at large on past and pending claims programs.

Public Law 91-289 amends the War Claims Act of 1948 to include payments to American military prisoners of war and American civilians captured by hostile forces in Southeast Asia during the Vietnam conflict, and to U.S.S. Pueblo personnel who were held prisoner by the Government of North Korea. No additional funds are requested for 1973 since the carryover of prior years unobligated balances should be sufficient, barring a general release of prisoners of war.

Amounts payable beyond the $25 thousand limitation were appropriated to the President in 1966 and 1967 for educational programs in the Philippines.

1973 will be a year of major activity for the Commission in the planning and development of national bicentennial programs. Examples of projects and programs to be further developed during 1973 are: The publication of historical material and commissioning of artistic works; technical assistance to States, in cooperation with other Government agencies, in the development of demonstration projects; production of material for schools and voluntary associations; coordination of Federal participation in the bicentennial; preparation of a bicentennial calendar information service and a State guidebook series; technical assistance to cities in the preparation of plans and programs for bicentennial activities; and preparation of plans for ceremonies and celebrations on July 4, 1976.

The development of these, and other programs and projects proposed by individuals and groups from every part of the country, will lay the groundwork for an appropriate and effective national bicentennial program.

This 26-member Commission consists of representatives of the executive and legislative branches of all levels of government—Federal, State, and local—and the public. It was established in 1959, as an independent, bipartisan body and was given the mission of identifying and analyzing the causes of intergovernmental tensions and conflicts and recommending ways of strengthening and improving the American Federal system.

The policies, administration, and coordination of Federal and State grant and other programs having an intergovernmental impact are examined and emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations are identified and explored.

Federal and State proposals in the field of taxation are developed and reviewed with a view to balance, simplification, and reduction of overlap and costs of tax administration.

Technical assistance is provided in the review of proposed legislation to determine its overall effect on the Federal system, and the most desirable allocations of governmental functions, responsibilities, and revenues among the several levels of government are recommended.

Recommendations and published studies growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive or legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, a non-Federal agency, was established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and provide for the construction and operation of a rail rapid transit system to serve the National Capital area.

In accordance with the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-143) approved December 9, 1969, the authority has responsibility for the development of a full regional transit system which will extend from a central distributor system into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia. The system includes a total areawide network of approximately 98 miles. Under the authorization, the Federal share is two-thirds of the net project cost.

The 1973 program will continue the accelerated pace of design, construction, and rights-of-way acquisition for the Transit System. It includes the advertising of 24 construction contracts plus seven stage contracts pressing all work in phase I toward completion. Most finish and all stage contracts will be underway in phase II as will all structural contracts in phase III. Construction in the suburban areas will advance principally along the Ardmore and Huntington Routes. During this period, design contracts covering approximately 17 miles of transit facilities and construction contracts involving 15.5 miles of transit facilities will be initiated. Other highlights include:

1. Delivery of rapid transit cars for phases I and II.
2. Commencement of installation of automatic fare collection system.
3. Preparation for preoperational testing and debugging for phase I operations.

A high rate of design activity will continue with emphasis on the Branch Route which will provide greater service to the suburbs and increase operation flexibility. The acquisition of rights-of-way and land will continue to keep pace with the construction program.

In order for the Transit Authority and local jurisdictions to plan properly and sell their bonds, funds for the Federal share of the 1974 program are requested at this time although the money could not be obligated or dispersed until the year 1974.

The overall financial plan for the system is as follows:

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970.

Budget program.—The activities consist of (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, and (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of insolvent, insured credit unions.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Number of insured credit unions	11,000	16,000	20,000
Number of insured member accounts (thousands)	11,000	16,000	21,000
Shares of insured member institutions as of December 31 of the previous calendar year (millions of dollars)	7,800	12,400	16,000

It is estimated that the fund will assume claims of $4,725 thousand in 1972 and $7,088 thousand in 1973. Actual losses to the fund are estimated to be approximately 10% during the 2 years. It is estimated that approximately 3,600 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program in 1972 and an equal number in 1973.

Financing.—Each insured credit union is required to pay a normal premium of one-twelfth of 1 percent of the total amount of its member accounts. These premiums, estimated to be approximately $9 million in 1972 and over $12 million in 1973, will be sufficient to cover expected expenses and claims in those years. The balance will be held as an insurance reserve, invested in Government interest-bearing securities. The fund is structured to be self-supporting, with a $100 million borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies. The authority to borrow from the Treasury will probably not be exercised in 1972 or 1973.

Operating results.—It is recommended that earnings, expected to accumulate to about $24 million by the end of 1973, be retained in the fund.

The purpose of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities is to improve the quality of American life. Two operating units, the Arts Endowment and the Humanities Endowment, promote the arts and humanities through grants, consultative services with public and private agencies, and the stimulation of private philanthropy. The Foundation may receive private gifts, either for specific purposes or unrestricted as to use, which are matched by Federal appropriations.

1. Promotion of the arts.—Grants are made to individual artists of exceptional talent, institutions, organizations, and State arts agencies. Programs assist the individual artist, sustain independent artistic institutions, increase citizen participation and enjoyment of the arts, encourage productions of cultural significance, expand audiences for the arts, and encourage planning and research. Increased funds in 1973 will be used to assist major artistic and cultural institutions, to encourage the arts of youth and ethnic groups, and to aid State arts councils.

2. Promotion of the humanities.—Grants are made for research, education, and public activity in the humanities, with increasing emphasis on broad public understanding and discussion of ideas and values. Support is provided for State and community groups, for national dissemination, and for educational institutions; and fellowships are offered to teachers and other professionals. These efforts aim at bringing Americans into contact with humanistic thought and improving the quality of knowledge and teaching in the humanities.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Similar responsibilities for the new U.S. Postal Service were assumed on July 1, 1971. Additional funds are requested to enable the agency to process a steadily rising caseload of both unfair labor practice and representation cases. Estimates for 1973 reflect an intake increase over 1972 of 7.7% for unfair labor practice cases and 5.6% for representation cases including Postal Service filings.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practice and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. About 88% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 83% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives for the voluntary settlement of disputes, and the high incidence of informal settlements is expected to continue in 1973.

2. Trial examiner hearing.—Trial examiners conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in trial examiner decisions. In 1971 there were 1,127 hearings held, 190 proceedings adjusted, and 965 decisions issued. The estimate for 1972 is for 1,430 hearings, 223 adjusted proceedings, and 1,119 decisions. The 1973 estimate is for 1,520 hearings, 240 adjusted proceedings, and 1,245 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a trial examiner's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 30% of these trial examiner decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. In the remainder, exceptions are filed to the trial examiner's decision and the Board must issue its own decision. In 1971, 836 Board decisions were issued; the estimate is 935 for 1972 and 1,025 for 1973. In representation cases Board decisionmaking authority has been delegated to the regional directors. Regional directors issued 1,950 such decisions in 1971 and the estimate is 2,263 for 1972 and 2,283 in 1973. The Board itself issued 196 decisions in 1971 in contested representation cases in which review of the regional director's decision was granted. It is estimated that these issuances will amount to 231 and 232 in 1972 and 1973, respectively. The Board also ruled on 227 objections and challenge questions in election cases in 1971; it is estimated that 305 and 307 such rulings will be required in 1972 and 1973.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the appellate courts to enforce its decisions. In 1971 a total of 330 Board decisions of all kinds required such litigation. The estimate for 1972 is 375 and the estimate for 1973 is 399.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) initiates and supports basic and applied research, science education improvement activities, and related scientific programs, to promote the progress of science and advance the Nation's health, prosperity, welfare, and security.

The principal emphases of the NSF's programs in 1973 will be to: (1) Expand and strengthen basic research efforts which are essential to advancing man's understanding of himself, his society, and his natural environment; (2) increase basic and applied research efforts to help provide the science and technology needed to enhance environmental quality, improve economic growth and productivity, and deal more effectively with significant social problems; (3) develop and implement innovative science education programs to provide more career options to students, improve preparation of students for productive employment, and help check the rising cost of education; and (4) explore new ways to encourage application of science and technology to the needs of industry, States, and local governments.

The increase in funding for the Foundation's basic research program activities in 1973 will permit a continued healthy growth in basic research efforts in the various disciplines, such as chemistry, physics, and biology. The significant expansion in problem-related research activities will permit more intensive and comprehensive research efforts on problems such as improving municipal services, preventing environmental degradation, improving availability of energy through solar power, developing advanced tunneling technology, and designing earthquake-resistant buildings.

A significant new program will be initiated in 1973 to explore ways of increasing industrial and other non-Federal investment in research and development, speed up the application of R. & D. results to improve products and services, and increase productivity through the application of science and technology. Also, a new national research and development assessment program will be initiated with the principal objective of improving our knowledge of how research and development can improve economic growth and productivity and enhance our international competitive position.

There will be an important increase in funding for astronomy in 1973, permitting the initial development phase of a very large array (VLA) antenna system which will be the most advanced radio astronomy facility in the world.

NSF's science education improvement programs will be expanded in 1973, and will be more sharply focused on specific major problems of science education and educational institutions.

1. Scientific research project support.—This program provides support for research directed at finding answers to unresolved scientific questions concerning fundamental life processes, processes that influence man's environment, and the forces impacting on man as a member of society and on the behavior of societies.

2. National and special research programs.—These programs include large-scale research efforts to understand the physical environment, such as (1) conducting ecological studies under the international biological program (IBP); and (2) expanding our understanding of the ocean environment under the international decade of ocean exploration (IDOE). New programs will be started in 1973 to explore ways of encouraging greater research and development efforts applicable to the needs of industry and State and local governments, and to speed up the application of science and technology to improve economic productivity and more effectively deal with social problems. Other programs in this activity include the Arctic and Antarctic research programs, and the ocean sediment coring program.

3. National research centers.—The five NSF-sponsored national research centers support advanced research in astronomy and the atmospheric sciences. These centers provide specialized facilities, equipment, staffing, and operational support which are beyond the capabilities of single educational or research institutions to provide.

4. National sea grant program.—Effective October 3, 1970, the national sea grant program was transferred to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in accordance with Reorganization Plan No. 4 of 1970.

5. Computing activities in education and research.—This program supports research in computer science and engineering; the development of innovative uses of the computer in the education process; and the development of advanced computer-based research techniques, systems, and resources.

6. Science information activities.—Support is provided for the development and improvement of science information systems and services that are essential to the viability and progress of U.S. science and technology.

7. International cooperative scientific activities.—Support is provided for U.S. scientists and scientific organizations to participate in international cooperative scientific activities, including joint research efforts by U.S. and foreign scientists.

8. Research applied to national needs (RANN).—This program focuses on selected problems of national concern to help provide the scientific knowledge base for their solution. The program supports research and engineering efforts concerning the applications of advanced technology, social systems and human resources, environmental systems and resources, exploratory research and problem assessment. The program supports the exploration of technological opportunities which may have the potential for increasing economic productivity and creating new industries and markets for U.S. goods and services.

9. Intergovernmental science program.—This activity supports projects to assist State and local governments in strengthening their capabilities to use science and technology to improve the delivery of governmental services, stimulate economic growth and productivity, and provide innovation in problem solving.

10. Institutional improvement for science.—The NSF's institutional improvement program will provide funds for flexible use by colleges and universities to improve their academic science programs. Also, competitive grants will be awarded to universities to encourage and support efforts to increase the effectiveness of their research programs through improved management.

11. Graduate student support.—Support is provided, in the form of graduate fellowships, for a limited number of outstanding science students, to provide national recognition to exceptionally talented students and to encourage them to undertake careers in science and engineering. Also included is support for the final year of a phaseout of the NSF graduate level traineeships program.

12. Science education improvement.—This program provides support for research, development and demonstration projects to improve science education, and for the implementation of important improvements. Support is also provided for efforts to improve the science programs of colleges and universities primarily serving ethnic minorities.

13. Planning and policy studies.—Through this program, the NSF identifies and analyzes science policy and program issues and helps provide the data base necessary for decisionmaking.

Under the railroad retirement system, railroad workers and employers pay taxes on wages to finance the payment of annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors and to finance the cost of hospital insurance benefits. These taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement account and invested in Government securities. The portion of these taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is transferred to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund under the financial interchange provisions governing the railroad retirement and social security systems.

The railroad retirement system also provides for the payment of supplemental annuities under certain conditions to career railroad workers awarded regular retirement annuities after June 1966. The supplemental annuity paid to employees is in addition to the regular annuities. This program is financed by a tax paid by employers on each man-hour of paid employment. These taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement supplemental account and invested in Government securities.

The status of these trust funds is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Income.—The income of the Railroad retirement accounts consists of taxes paid by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; appropriations for military service credits; and payments from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and Federal disability insurance trust fund. The railroad retirement system has a reinsurance arrangement of annual financial interchanges with the social security system so as to place that system in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment had been included in social security coverage.

1. Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Payment estimates reflect the continuing growth in the beneficiary rolls and the increases in benefit rates provided by law. Payments in 1972 are greater than in 1973 because they include a 10% increase in rates retroactive to January 1971 that was provided by legislation enacted in July 1971.

2. Administrative expenses.—Such expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on salaries and expenses).

Transfers to and from Railroad unemployment insurance account.—The Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act provides that when the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account is insufficient to pay benefits due under that act, necessary amounts are to be borrowed from the Railroad retirement account. When the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account permits, borrowed amounts are to be repaid to the Railroad retirement account with interest. At the end of 1971 the fund had $48.4 million in loans outstanding, which was $32.9 million less than the loans outstanding a year ago.

Payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—Portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund, since payments of hospital benefits for railroad retirement beneficiaries are made from that fund.

3. Payment to Railroad unemployment insurance account.—Under section 10(h) of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act as amended in 1968, the Board is required to reimburse the unemployment insurance account for certain sickness benefits paid to employees who could otherwise, under specified conditions, have received disability annuities under the Railroad Retirement Act for the same periods.

Administrative expenses are financed through a permanent authorization of 0.25% of taxable payroll. 1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Insurance payments for unemployment and sickness benefits are based on individual records of earnings and daily wage rates; and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the retirement program. Accounts posted were $813 thousand in 1971 and are estimated at $800 thousand in 1972 and $780 thousand in 1973.

2. Processing of unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the headquarters offices. Unemployment claims receipts were $850 thousand in 1971 and are estimated to be $780 thousand in 1972 and $600 thousand in 1973. The larger numbers of claims in 1971 and 1972 were caused by strikes in the railroad industry.

3. Processing of sickness claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters offices of the Board. Sickness claims were 769,000 in 1971 and are estimated to be 750,000 in 1972 and 735,000 in 1973.

4. Claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. This resulted in savings of benefit payments of approximately $800 thousand in 1971 as 4,500 placements were made. Placements are estimated to be the same in 1972 and 1973.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the retirement program on a measured basis.

The Board administers the Railroad Retirement Act which provides a program for the payment of regular annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors, financed by taxes paid equally by employers and employees. The Board also participates in the administration of the hospital and medical insurance programs for persons covered by the Railroad Retirement Act for which it is reimbursed in part by the Social Security Administration, the activity of which is reflected in the Advances and reimbursements account.

The Board also administers a program for the payment of supplemental annuities under certain conditions to career railroad workers awarded regular retirement annuities after June 1966, financed by a tax paid by employers based on the number of man-hours for which they pay compensation. The supplemental annuity paid

3. Maintenance of beneficiary rolls.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. The number of persons on the rolls receiving monthly benefit payments will increase from 982,000 at the end of 1971 to an estimated 986,000 and 988,000 at the end of 1972 and 1973. The number of persons also receiving supplemental annuities will increase from 82,000 at the end of 1971 to 92,000 and 101,000 at the end of 1972 and 1973. The number of persons enrolled for medicare was 841,000 at the end of 1971 and will increase to 848,000 and 850,000 in 1972 and 1973.

4. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

The Board conducts renegotiation with contractors and subcontractors to determine and eliminate excessive profits in connection with procurement under defense and space programs. The act provides that a report must be filed with the Board by every contractor or subcontractor having receipts or accruals in a fiscal year which exceed $1 million ($25 thousand in the case of brokers and manufacturers' agents) from contracts or subcontracts subject to the act. From the date of its establishment through June 30, 1971, the Board made determinations of excessive profits in the amount of $1.09 billion, before adjustment for Federal income and excess profits tax credits. Of this total, $65.2 million was determined during 1971.

1. Executive direction.—The Statutory Board is responsible for final action in all cases, including the screening of contractors' filings and the handling of requests for exemptions.

2. Staff operations.—The headquarters staff furnishes technical advice and assistance to the Statutory Board and to the regional boards.

3. Renegotiation operations (field).—The two regional boards conduct renegotiation proceedings and make determinations and recommendations. They are authorized to conclude cases involving $800 thousand or less of renegotiation profits; however, their determinations in such cases may be appealed to the Statutory Board. All determinations in cases involving more than $800 thousand renegotiation profits are subject to approval by the Statutory Board.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure.—Issuers of securities for public sale are required to file a registration statement and related prospectus containing significant information about the issuer and the offering with the Commission. This is to insure that investors will be provided with the material facts concerning security offerings. Certain provisions of the Securities Act Amendments enacted August 20, 1964, extend to investors in certain over-the-counter securities the same protections afforded to those in listed securities: namely, registration of classes of securities; annual and periodic company reporting; regulation of proxy solicitation; and restriction upon "insider" trading.

Inspections of non-NASD members will be made on an annual basis.

The Selective Service System furnishes the men necessary to maintain the Armed Forces at authorized strength to the extent that this cannot be done by voluntary means. This is accomplished by means of inductions, the magnitude of which is determined by the Department of Defense. Since January 1, 1970, the order of registrants to be selected for induction has been determined by lottery drawings which assign random sequence numbers (Public Law 91-124). The System also maintains readiness to satisfy possible emergency mobilization requirements.

1. Service to registrants.—This activity includes registering, classifying, selecting, inducting, and providing information. Over 43,000 uncompensated citizens, including the members of local boards, advisers to registrants, medical advisers to the local boards, and youth advisory committees, help provide service to registrants.

2. Examination services.—As the draft call varies, so do the costs for selectee travel to preinduction and induction examinations.

3. General and administrative.—Fiscal, personnel, and other administrative support is provided to carry out the program of the System.

4. Executive direction.—This activity includes top policymaking officials, heads of major divisions and State directors.

5. Special programs.—For 1973, this activity consists of the Selective Service Reserve, formerly shown as part of the estimates for Department of Defense.

² Excludes $235 thousand for activities transferred to ACTION.

The Small Business Administration counsels, assists, and protects the interest of small business, and provides aid to business firms and homeowners who have suffered losses through disasters. These efforts are conducted through the following activities:

1. Procurement and management assistance.—The objectives of this activity are (a) to insure that a fair proportion of Government contracts for purchases of supplies and services, including research and development, and for the sale and disposal of property, be placed with small business enterprises; (b) to provide technical and management assistance through management courses, and counseling on new and improved products and processes; and (c) to provide for greater involvement of the disadvantaged and minority contractors in the Federal procurement program through the use of the authority contained in section 8(a) of the Small Business Act, as amended. This section enables the Agency to act as prime contractor to provide goods and services to other Government agencies and in turn arrange for performance of such contracts by negotiating or otherwise letting subcontracts to small business concerns.

2. Economic opportunity management assistance.—As authorized by section 406, title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, SBA will contract for professional management training and support of small business entrepreneurs in areas with high concentrations of unemployed or low-income individuals to (a) establish the management training, counseling, and support needs of firms in target areas, (b) identify business opportunities in these areas, and (c) determine the feasibility and profit potential of proposed business development to be located in such areas.

Funds for these activities are provided by direct appropriation.

3. Financial assistance.—This activity comprises:

(a) Business loans.—This includes loans and financial counseling to business concerns, businesses displaced because of federally aided construction, and businesses eligible under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. The program for 1973 is projected as follows:

	Number	Millions of dollars
Section 7(a) business loans.....	26,250	1,930.0
Economic opportunity loans.....	6,352	94.0
Displaced business loans.....	475	51.7

(b) Development company loans.—This covers efforts to encourage private institutions to expand their role in the economic development of their respective States and loans to State and local development companies to enable them to provide the long-term capital—equity and loans—to small businesses. It is estimated that 695 loans in the amount of $109.7 million will be made in 1973.

(c) Disaster loans.—This provides financial assistance on favorable terms to victims of natural disasters for rehabilitation of property damaged or destroyed. Also included under this activity are coal mine health and safety, consumer products, and occupational safety and health loans.

4. Investment company assistance and supervision.—In order to stimulate and supplement the flow of private capital to small business concerns, the Small Business Administration is authorized to (a) license, regulate, and examine small business investment companies, and (b) provide funds to such companies for financing small business firms. The program level for 1973 is estimated at $100.0 million.

5. Lease and surety bond guarantees.—(a) Lease guarantees.—In order to enable small businesses to compete on an equal basis with financially strong businesses in the leasing of facilities in shopping centers and other business properties the Small Business Administration is empowered to guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns. The program level for 1973 is estimated at 800 guarantees for $320 million (aggregate rent).

(b) Surety bond guarantees.—In order to enable small firms, primarily minority owned, to obtain bid, performance, and payment bonds otherwise denied them through asserted lack of financial and other capability, the Small Business Administration is authorized to guarantee sureties against losses resulting from the breaching of such bonds by small contractors who were furnished bonds by the sureties under the provisions of this program. SBA's guaranty is 90% of the loss under contracts not exceeding $500 thousand in amount. The program level for 1973 is estimated at 1,000 bonds for $50 million.

Funds for the administrative support of the above activities are transferred from the appropriate revolving funds.

Capital outlay.—1. Financial assistance.—Business loans (sec. 7(a), Small Business Act).—Funds may be loaned to business concerns which are not dominant in their fields. To such small businesses, loans may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, and shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a bank participation is not available and no loan on an immediate participation basis may be made unless it is shown that a guaranteed loan is not available. Under the guaranty plan, the Small Business Administration agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default.

The agency's share of an immediate participation or guaranteed loan is limited to 90%. Its maximum outstanding loan and/or commitment to any one borrower is limited by statute to $350 thousand. Business loans, except for the portion for constructing facilities for which the maximum is 15 years, are limited to a maturity of 10 years and, with one exception, bear interest at a maximum of 5½% on the Agency's share thereof.

From the inception of the lending program (Sept. 29, 1953) through June 30, 1971, 117,252 loans have been approved in a total amount of $5,842 million. Participating banks' share of this amount has been $1,092 million. Seventy percent of the total loans approved have been on a participation or guaranteed basis. In 1973, it is estimated that 26,250 loans will be approved, compared with an estimate of 17,892 in 1972.

Business loans (Economic Opportunity Act of 1964).—The Small Business Administration administers a program of financial assistance to small business concerns and to qualified persons seeking to establish such concerns pursuant to authority contained in title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 526). Loans may be on a direct, immediate participation, or guaranteed basis for up to $25 thousand, for a maximum term of 15 years. The credit and collateral requirements are more flexible than those applicable to section 7(a) business loans and provision for management training is made an integral part of the program. It is estimated that 6,352 loans will be approved in 1973 in comparison with 5,970 loans in 1972.

Displaced business loans.—Pursuant to authority provided in the Housing Act of 1961, loans are made to small firms that suffer substantial economic injury as a result of being forced to move by federally aided urban renewal, highway, and other construction programs. A recent amendment to the Small Business Act (Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968) further expands the list of eligibles by including small businesses which suffer economic crises as a result of being adjacent, or near, a federally aided construction project. The interest rate on the Small Business Administration's share of these loans is determined pursuant to a formula prescribed by legislation. For 1971, the rate was 5¾% per annum. An interest rate of 5⅜% will prevail in 1972.

Through June 30, 1971, a total of 2,474 displaced business loans for $241 million had been approved. Approvals during 1971 were 386. It is estimated that 475 loans for $51.7 million will be approved in 1973 compared to 380 loans for $40.3 million in 1972.

Development company loans.—The Small Business Administration lends funds to State and local development companies pursuant to sections 501 and 502 of the Small Business Investment Act, as amended. Funds are made available to State development companies for general use purposes under section 501 and to State and local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land, under section 502. The latter type loans must be so secured as reasonably to assure repayment, may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, may be made only when the proceeds are to assist an identifiable small business concern and for a sound business purpose approved by the agency, and are limited to a maximum of $350 thousand for each such identifiable small business concern.

2. Investment company assistance.—A primary function of these companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital for small business concerns. To encourage the formation and growth of such companies, the Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the Small Business Administration to make loans to any company by purchasing its debentures, directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions.

Such debentures may be subordinate to any other debenture bonds, promissory notes, or other debts and obligations of such companies, unless the administration determines otherwise in the exercise of reasonable investment prudence. SBA may purchase such debentures in an amount equal to 200% of paid-in capital and paid-in surplus to a maximum of $7.5 million. Those SBIC's with paid-in capital and paid-in surplus in excess of $1 million, which have invested (or committed) 65% or more of their funds in venture capital, are eligible to draw 200% of the first $1 million and 300% of every dollar over $1 million not to exceed an aggregate maximum of $10 million.

Prior to the Small Business Investment Act Amendments of 1967, financing of SBIC's by SBA was accomplished by means of the purchase of subordinated debentures (considered as a part of "statutory capital" for borrowing purposes) and by means of "direct" loans.

Operating costs.—Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund (excluding disbursements for administrative expenses). The interest rate or rates applicable to each year's gross disbursements are determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans, proceeds of participation sales, and other receipts to the fund are applied against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rates set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1972 are 6¼% for displaced business and local development company loans, 6½% for 7(a) business and economic opportunity loans and 6¾% for State development company loans and SBIC debentures. These same rates have been used in computing interest expense in 1973.

Interest is payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of sale. Interest collections on pledged loans are remitted to the trustee for the purpose of paying such interest as it comes due. To the extent that the interest rates on certificates exceed the interest rates on pledged loans, the collections of interest on pledged loans will be insufficient to meet the interest payable on the certificates. Appropriations for this insufficiency are authorized, as is discussed in detail below under the heading "Participation sales insufficiencies."

Administrative expense.—Expenses for the loan program financed by this revolving fund are financed by transfer of funds to the appropriation, Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses is accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the Revolving Fund, Small Business Administration on July 1, 1966, and by transfer of the unexpended balance of appropriations previously made for trade adjustment assistance loans. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as additional capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions.

In more recent years, additional funds were provided by sale of participation certificates in loan pools. Of the $1.35 billion of participation certificates sold, $1,135.6 million was allocated to this fund, of which $548.3 million remains outstanding at June 30, 1971.

It is estimated that a capital appropriation of $395 million in 1973 will be required to provide sufficient resources to allow the administration to carry out the estimated program levels for that year.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorized appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit any trustee agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. This authority is not applicable to the 1966 sales in the predecessor fund. An insufficiency results primarily from the fact that the interest rate on participation certificates exceeds the interest rate on the loans pledged in support of the respective participations.

A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by that act. However, for each of the years 1968 through 1972, the Congress provided annual appropriations for any insufficiency arising from the $150 million sales authority provided in the administration's 1968 appropriations. The budget estimate proposes a similar appropriation for 1973, applicable entirely to the Business Loan and Investment Fund.

Operating results.—The fund will continue to operate at a deficit. Interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest, administrative, and other expenses, and a provision for estimated losses. Primarily, this reflects the excess of interest expense rates over interest income rates and the cost of servicing an expanding number of widely scattered loans which are relatively small in size.

An additional factor which will further increase the deficit of the fund in 1972 and 1973 is the cost differential on section 8(a) contracts. In expanding the use of the section 8(a) prime contracting authority to bring more minority firms into the Government procurement process, it is anticipated there will be many instances in which the program objectives will justify a payment to the minority subcontractor in excess of the apparent competitive market price to the procuring agency. This differential reflects such things as added start-up, labor, and/or material costs applicable to the particular firm and circumstances involved.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 2, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance disaster loans made pursuant to sections 7(b) and 7(c)(2) of the Small Business Act, as amended, other than those to displaced businesses made under 7(b)(3). Administrative, interest, and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

No limitation exists on the amount of loans and commitments (reservations) which may be outstanding at any one time from the fund. Actual and estimated outstanding disaster loans and reservations at the end of each year are as follows (in millions of dollars):

	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Investment in outstanding loans	560.7	685.9	673.8
Guaranteed loans disbursed by banks	2.4	2.4	2.4
Undisbursed loans	95.9	129.6	96.5
Total loans and reservations	659.0	817.9	772.7

Although there are no statutory restrictions on the amount that may be loaned under this program, in order to effectively manage the program, administrative limitations have been established. No restrictions exist on the size of business firm which may be eligible for a loan under section 7(b)(1). The maximum term for a loan is 30 years, and the interest rate is set monthly with one exception as detailed below.

Interest on the Small Business Administration's share of coal mine health and safety, consumer products, and occupational safety and health loans is set annually pursuant to statutory formula and for 1972 is 5 $\frac{3}{8}$ %. Pursuant to the Disaster Relief Act of 1970, the interest rate on loans under sections 7(b)(1), (2), and (4) is determined monthly on a sliding scale statutory formula, with a maximum rate of 6%.

Through June 30, 1971, a total of 150,569 disaster loans for $1,146 million had been approved. Approvals during 1971 were 57,407 for $299.9 million. The estimate for new loans is $390 million in 1972 and $100 million in 1973.

Operating costs.—Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund (excluding disbursements for administrative expenses). The interest rate applicable to each year's gross disbursements is determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans, proceeds of participation sales, and other receipts to the fund are applied against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rate set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1972 is $6\frac{1}{4}\%$ for coal mine health and safety, consumer products, and occupational safety and health loans, and $6\frac{1}{2}\%$ for other disaster loans. These rates have also been used in computing interest expense in 1973.

Interest is payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of sale. Interest collections on pledged loans are remitted to the trustee for purposes of paying such interest as it comes due. To the extent that the interest rates on certificates exceeds the interest rate on pledged loans, the collections of interest on pledged loans will be insufficient to meet the interest payable on the certificates. Appropriations for this insufficiency are authorized, as is discussed in detail below under the head Participation sales insufficiencies.

Administrative expense.—Administrative expenses for this program are financed by transfer of funds from the revolving fund to the appropriation, Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses is accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the revolving fund, Small Business Administration, on July 1, 1966. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions. In more recent years, additional funds were provided by sale of participation certificates in loan pools. Of the $1.35 billion of participation certificates sold, $214.4 million was allocated to this fund, of which $143.0 million remains outstanding at June 30, 1971. An appropriation of $80 million is proposed for 1973.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorized appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit any trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. This authority is not applicable to the 1966 sales in the predecessor fund. An insufficiency results primarily from the fact that the interest rate on participation certificates exceeds the interest rate on the loans pledged in support of the respective participations.

A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by that act. However, for 1968 through 1972, the Congress has provided annual appropriations for any insufficiency arising from the $150 million sales authority provided in the Agency's 1968 appropriations. The budget estimate proposes a similar appropriation for 1973 applicable entirely to the Business Loan and Investment Fund.

Operating results.—With an interest rate statutory maximum of 6% , interest and other income is not sufficient to cover interest to Treasury at the current rates of $6\frac{1}{4}\%$ and $6\frac{1}{2}\%$ as well as administrative expenses, interest expense on participation certificates, and a provision for estimated losses. In addition, the Disaster Relief Act of 1969 authorized forgiveness credits of up to \$1,800 on disaster loans made under major disasters occurring between July 1, 1967, and December 31, 1970. The Disaster Relief Act of 1970 authorized forgiveness credits of up to \$2,500 on all disaster loans under 7(b)(1), (2), and (4) made in presidentially declared disaster areas. To this extent interest expense has been charged to this program on cumulative chargeoffs of \$55,928 thousand through June 30, 1971.

Pursuant to Public Law 89-117, this fund was initially capitalized by the transfer of $5 million from the Revolving fund, Small Business Administration. Public Law 91-609, approved December 31, 1970, authorized a new program of "Surety Bond Guarantees" also to be financed from this fund. An additional $5 million was authorized for transfer from the Business loan and investment fund.

1. Lease guarantees.—The lease guarantees program is designed to provide prime space for those small business firms which cannot compete with prospective tenants with AAA ratings. In order to make the program self-sustaining, lessees pay an insurance premium of not to exceed 2½% of the lease amount or a premium based on sound actuarial computation.

It is estimated that 510 commitments for an aggregate rental guarantee of $204 million will be made in 1972. For 1973, the estimate is 800 commitments for $320 million. It is anticipated that 75% will be written by private insurance companies.

2. Surety bond guarantees.—The surety bond guarantees program is designed to assist small contractors in obtaining their share of municipal, State, Federal, and private contracts. The Small Business Administration will guarantee up to 90% of the losses sustained by a surety company as a result of the issuance of a bid, payment, and/or performance bond to a small business concern on a contract up to $500,000.

Activity for this program is estimated as follows (dollars in millions):

The Smithsonian Institution maintains public exhibits, representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics and astronautics, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology including living animal exhibits; preserves for reference and study purposes millions of items of scientific, cultural, and historic importance; conducts research in the natural and physical sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts; presents performances of American arts and crafts, has education programs at all levels; and participates in the exchange of scientific information.

The Institution is responsible for the operation and maintenance of eight major exhibition buildings; a zoological park; a preservation and storage facility at Silver Hill, Md.; a conference center at Elkridge, Md.; two natural preserves, in Panama and on the Chesapeake Bay; an observatory on Mount Hopkins, Ariz.; and supporting administrative, laboratory, and storage areas.

The Smithsonian will continue to develop and offer additional public exhibitions and other services and continue to correct deficiencies in the availability of technicians and other supporting staff, equipment, laboratory and workroom supplies and materials, data processing, library materials, and other types of support essential to permit the professional staff to maintain and upgrade the collections in art, history, and science, to perform productive research in these fields, and to display collections for the education of the public. The extensive Joseph H. Hirshhorn art collection will continue to be readied for exhibition in the museum building and sculpture garden now under construction. Continued emphasis will be placed on preparations for the Smithsonian's participation in the American Revolution Bicentennial. A major effort will be made to restore collections, plan and develop exhibitions, and make other preparations for the planned opening of the National Air and Space Museum in 1976. Assistance to the Nation's museums under the National Museum Act will be continued. One major permanent exhibition in history will be started and the Hall of Living Things will be completed. Efforts in elementary and secondary education will be emphasized drawing upon the Institution's educational resources of staff, collections, exhibits, and laboratories.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was created as a Bureau of the Smithsonian Institution by the act of September 2, 1958, as amended. The Board of Trustees of the Center is authorized to construct and operate a national cultural center in Washington, D.C., on a site provided by the Federal Government. Warrants totaling $15.5 million were issued as the Federal Government's contribution to the costs of constructing the Center to match a like amount contributed by the public prior to June 30, 1965. A Federal loan of $15.4 million was authorized for construction of foundations and underground parking facilities, which is to be repaid from parking receipts. Public Law 91-90, October 17, 1969, amended the statute extending the appropriation authority to $23 million and the authorized Federal loan to $20.4 million. Construction was completed in September 1971.

The Woodrow Wilson Memorial Act, approved on October 24, 1968 (Public Law 90-637), established the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars as the Nation's official living memorial to the 28th President. The Center was placed in the Smithsonian Institution under the direction of a 15-man mixed private and public Board of Trustees subsequently appointed by Presidents Johnson and Nixon.

The Center's fellowship program opened on October 19, 1970, with 25 scholars present—half from the United States and the others from eight other countries. As of September 1, 1971, the Board had approved 52 fellowship appointments for scholars from a broad variety of academic and nonacademic disciplines and professions—social sciences, humanities and natural sciences, law, diplomacy, business, journalism, government—and from 16 countries and all major geographic regions. In addition the Center has made 15 guest scholar appointments and its facilities have been used by dozens of visiting scholars on an occasional basis.

Scholars chosen for the fellowship program have been working on projects which fall within the Center's concern for "significant international, governmental and social problems, and alternative means of resolving them." In addition, the Center's Board of Trustees has designated three subject areas for special encouragement during the Center's early years: (1) Fundamental long-run issues of peace, world order, and the U.S. international responsibility in the post-Vietnam era; (2) man's overall relationship and response to his deteriorating environment, particularly the social, cultural and political and international dimensions of the problems of the human environment; and (3) the development of international understanding law and cooperation of the uses of the oceans and safeguarding of the marine environment.

When petitions are filed for adjudication, the Board holds formal public hearings to determine: (a) whether certain organizations are Communist-action, Communist-front, or Communist-infiltrated organizations within the terms of the Subversive Activities Control Act; and (b) whether organizations once determined to come within the provisions of the act are no longer of the type so determined, and therefore entitled to relief from further application of the act to them.

The Board's determinations involve the consideration of petitions, motions, and evidence adduced at the hearings. In proceedings under this statute the Board is empowered to examine witnesses and receive evidence, and to compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of documents relevant to the matter under inquiry. In each case the Board issues a report in writing, setting forth its rulings and findings as to the facts, and issues appropriate orders identifying those organizations that come within the provisions of the act. The Board also maintains current public lists of such organizations.

Executive Order 11605 of July 2, 1971, is an amendment to Executive Order 10450 dealing with security requirements for Government employment and the compilation of the Attorney General's list of subversive organizations. Under Executive Order 11605 the Board conducts public hearings on petition of the Attorney General to determine whether an organization is: (a) totalitarian, fascist, communist, or subversive; (b) has adopted a policy of the commission of acts of force or violence to deny others their rights under the Constitution or the laws of the United States or any State; or (c) seeks to overthrow the Government of the United States or any State or subdivision thereof by unlawful means. Parties to the proceedings have the right to counsel, to offer evidence, and to conduct such cross-examination as may be required for a full and true disclosure of the facts.

The major responsibility of the Commission is to assess the effects of foreign trade policies of the United States and of other countries and to provide the President, the Congress, and the public with reports on these matters. Demands for the Commission's services have grown sharply in recent years, both for studies concerning possible import injury to individual industries, firms, and groups of workers and for broad analyses needed by the President and the Congress in their consideration of possible trade and tariff policies and legislation.

The August 1971 emergency proclamation of the President, stressing the threat to the Nation's trade and competitive position, demonstrates the national importance of international trade. A new Subcommittee on International Trade was recently established by the Senate Committee on Finance. Thus, both the President and the Congress are placing heavy emphasis on problems of international trade, in connection with which the Commission was established to provide assistance.

The Commission anticipates a continuing growth in the requirements for studies and other assistance for the President and the Congress in 1972 and 1973. It also expects further increases in the requirements for investigations requested by industries, firms, and groups of workers. The budget reflects plans to improve the Commission's capability for responding to this increase in demand for technical information and assistance.

Public Law 88-609, approved September 22, 1964, authorized a commission to study the feasibility of constructing a sea-level canal across the American Isthmus to connect the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. The Commission was appointed by the President in April 1965. The law has since been amended to extend the time for the study from June 30, 1968, until December 1, 1970, and to increase the authorization for the study from $17.5 million to $24 million.

The Commission initiated a full investigation and study, including onsite surveys, to determine the feasibility of and the most suitable site for such a canal; the best means of constructing it whether by conventional or nuclear methods, and the estimated cost. The Commission directed five separate studies in order to cover all aspects of the problem. These were the foreign policy study, the defense study, the finance study, the shipping study, and the engineering feasibility study. The Commission presented a report to the President on December 1, 1970, stating its findings, conclusions, and recommendations.

A Commission on American Shipbuilding was established to analyze the U.S. shipbuilding industry with a view to determining if the industry can achieve by 1976 a level of productivity that will support a construction differential subsidy (ÖDS) rate of 35% in that year and succeeding years. The Commission recommends the steps that should be taken by industry and government to improve the competitive position of the industry. If the Commission concludes that the rate cannot be reduced to 35%, it is to recommend alternatives to the proposed program. The Commission will report within 3 years of enactment of the legislation, or within 6 months of notification by the Secretary of Commerce that a contract in excess of the applicable differential has been concluded.

The legislation also provides that commencing in 1972, the Secretary may not enter into a contract requiring a construction differential in excess of the applicable differential unless he has given due consideration to the likelihood that the applicable differential will not be attained and that the construction program, as a consequence, will not be continued. In the event the Secretary does enter into such a contract he must so notify the Chairman of the Commission on American Shipbuilding and the Commission must submit a report within 6 months.

The National Commission on Consumer Finance was created by title IV of the Consumer Credit Protection Act of 1968, Public Law 90-321. The Commission is composed of nine members, of whom three are Members of the Senate; three are Members of the House of Representatives; and three are appointed by the President.

Pursuant to its statutory assignment to "study and appraise the functioning and structure of the consumer finance industry, as well as consumer credit transactions generally," the Commission staff has developed programs of research and studies which will enable it to report to the President and to the Congress on: (1) The adequacy of existing arrangements to provide consumer credit at reasonable rates; (2) the adequacy of existing supervisory and regulatory mechanisms to protect the public from unfair practices, and insure the informed use of consumer credit; (3) the desirability of Federal chartering of consumer finance companies, or other Federal regulatory measures.

The Commission has held two public hearings on the subjects of abuses in the collection of consumer finance debts and enforcement of consumer credit protection laws.

Frequent meetings, briefings, and consultations are conducted or participated in by staff members with policy-level members of other Government agencies having consumer finance functions and responsibilities—to discuss matters of joint concern and to avoid duplication of research studies. Close cooperative relationships are maintained with appropriate congressional committees with interests in the area of consumer finance.

The submission date for the Commission's final report of its findings, recommendations, and conclusions was originally January 1, 1971; however, the extent of the study by the Commission and the delays in activation of the Commission made it necessary to extend the submission date to July 1, 1972, which extension was authorized by Public Law 91-344, dated July 20, 1970.

The Commission will investigate the fire problem with a view to formulation of recommendations to reduce the destruction of life and property caused by fire in the cities, suburbs, communities, and elsewhere. The Commission will conduct a comprehensive study and investigation to determine practicable and effective measures for reducing the destructive effects of fire.

The Commission is composed of 20 members as follows: the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and 18 members appointed by the President. Two Members of the House of Representatives and two Members of the Senate will be advisory members of the Commission. All members of the Commission have been selected. A report will be presented to the President and to Congress in 1972.

The report will include (a) a consideration of ways in which fires can be more effectively prevented, (b) an analysis of ways in which existing programs such as Government-assisted housing and urban redevelopment could be strengthened to lessen the danger of destructive fires, (c) an evaluation of fire suppression methods currently used, including personnel recruiting procedures, (d) an evaluation of present and future needs for training and education of fire-service personnel, (e) a consideration of the adequacy of fire communication techniques and suggestions for standardization and improvement of administrative problems facing local fire departments, and (g) an assessment of local, State, and Federal responsibilities in developing practical and effective solutions for reducing fire losses.

The Commission was established by the President on June 16, 1970, to review and study the structure, operation, and regulation of the financial institutions in the United States for the purpose of formulating recommendations which would improve the functioning of the private financial system. The Commission's final report was submitted to the President in December 1971.

Agencies with an appropriate interest in the study and whose programs would likely be affected by the outcome provided financial assistance to the Commission. These included the Comptroller of the Currency, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Additional staff assistance was also provided by allocations from the appropriation in the Executive Office of the President for "Special Projects." Following is a summary of the financing (in thousands of dollars):

The Aviation Advisory Commission was established by the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, Public Law 91-258, approved May 21, 1970. This nine-member Commission will undertake to: (1) Formulate recommendations concerning the long-range needs of aviation, including but not limited to future airport requirements and the national airport system plan, and recommendations concerning surrounding land uses, ground access, airways, air service, and aircraft compatible with such plan; and (2) facilitate consideration of other modes of transportation and cooperation with other agencies and communities and industry groups.

Under Public Law 92-184, approved November 27, 1971, the Commission was extended 1 year and is charged, by statute, to conduct its work and prepare and submit a final report to the President and to the Congress on or before January 1, 1973, and terminate 60 days thereafter.

The Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority in 1933 for the unified development of a river basin comprising parts of seven States. TVA is a corporation wholly owned by the Federal Government. Its program in 1973 will be financed from three sources: (1) Appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

Budget program—1. Regional development program.—A major objective of the TVA Act is full development and use of all the resources of the Tennessee River Basin. The development of these resources is reflected in regional and national gains in the fields of navigation, flood control, water quality, recreation, and wildlife; in land resources—agriculture, forestry, and minerals; in education and manpower development; in environmental research and development; and in related industrial development.

(a) Water resources development includes continuing development of the all-year 9-foot navigation channel from the mouth of the river at Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles. Traffic and savings to shippers continue to increase. More than 90% of the savings apply on freight originating outside the valley or moving from the valley to outside destinations. Technical studies appraise the opportunities for more extensive use of the waterway. Data supplied to shippers and carriers help solve transportation problems. Advisory work with State and local agencies leads to new or improved public programs by those agencies to help assure full industrial use of the waterway.

Flood control activities are concerned with maintenance and use of storage space in upstream reservoirs for seasonal retention of excessive runoff and the regulation of discharges to rates of flow which can be handled safely by downstream channels and reservoirs. Flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and along the tributaries downstream from the reservoirs and along the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. Also, TVA collects and analyzes flood data and studies potential flood control projects and ways to improve operations of the existing system. Technical advice and assistance is given to State and local agencies in finding solutions to localized flood control problems.

Regional water quality management comprises the determination of basic facts about water quality, planning of ways of maintaining or upgrading the quality of the water resources, and monitoring and surveillance to assure that water quality does not deteriorate. This work is conducted in cooperation with appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies and with industrial users of water.

Recreation, fish, and waterfowl development activities are designed to promote the optimum development of the water and other scenic resources of the region in a way that will improve the physical and cultural environment, stimulate economic development, and conserve natural and historical resources.

The capital outlay program for water resources development includes a total of $26,771 thousand for continuing construction of multipurpose projects, (1) $14,435 thousand for the Tellico project started in 1967; (2) $3,032 thousand for the Bear Creek project also started in 1967; (3) $7.8 million for the Duck River project started in 1971; and (4) $1,504 thousand for completion of the Tims Ford project started in 1966.

The program also includes capital outlays of $4,068 thousand for navigation facilities of which $3,504 thousand is for completing construction of the Yellow Creek Port project in northeast Mississippi, and $564 thousand is for other facilities.

All water resources development facilities are planned, constructed, and operated in cooperation with State and local agencies.

(b) General resources development.—Special attention to selected areas and resources of the Tennessee Valley region, in particularly close cooperation with State and local agencies and with tributary area associations, constitutes an additional phase of TVA's program for the proper use, conservation, and development of the region's resources. Investigations identify current problems and opportunities for development under conditions of optimum use. Research helps develop and test corrective measures. Cooperative projects with State and local groups apply these measures to regional and special problems.

Land resources projects are in the fields of forest and wild land development, agriculture, and minerals. Forest and wild land activities include appraisals of the quality and quantity of the existing resource, research, and demonstrations concerning improvement of the resource, promotion of sound forest management and wood utilization practices, development of improved wildlife food and cover plants, and reclamation of strip mine lands. The objective is to make full use of the resource of the valley and to develop it for maximum sustained economic return, while enhancing contributions of the resource to a quality environment. Research and demonstrations in agriculture have the objectives of assistance to valley farmers in improving their economic situation and attainment of a higher standard of living through efficient use of land resources and improved farm practices and systems. Minerals projects have emphasis on economic geology and preparation, in cooperation with State agencies, of geologic maps essential to the development of regional minerals.

Environmental quality projects are concerned with (1) demonstrations concerning economic disposal of solid wastes; (2) regional air quality management; and (3) research on systems for waste management.

Tributary area development is a comprehensive and cooperative approach to resource development in areas of the Tennessee Valley where specific opportunities exist for further development and where local groups have organized to deal with problems of economic advancement and area improvement. Work is in close collaboration with organized groups in the tributary areas, most of which lie wholly or in part in the Appalachia portion of the Tennessee Valley.

Demonstrations in education and manpower development are concerned with bringing into the work force disadvantaged persons and for improving educational systems in low-income rural areas.

Townlift is a technical assistance activity in which TVA helps State and local agencies to improve existing towns to better fit them to changed demands upon them for service and to guide the development of new towns where such may be needed in relationship to water resources development projects.

TVA participates in health education and community demonstrations in cooperation with Federal, State, and local groups to upgrade health care in rural areas.

(c) Environmental research and development utilizes TVA resources and Tennessee Valley research opportunities toward meeting pressing needs of the Nation. The program is designed to deal with the full range of variables which affect environmental quality and utilization of natural resources.

(d) Land Between the Lakes.—Work will continue on the 170,000-acre development area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Lake. Land Between the Lakes is a demonstration of new ideas in public outdoor recreation and conservation education and its development is stimulating the lagging economy of the surrounding area by encouraging further private development. The project includes a variety of facilities where an urbanizing population can use part of its increased leisure to renew its acquaintance with the land and gain new understandings of modern concepts of resource use and conservation. Work on facilities to serve visitors calls for capital outlays of $1,448 thousand.

2. Power program.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power in an area of 80,000 square miles of the Tennessee Valley States. Operations involve generation and transmission of power and sale of energy at wholesale to local distribution systems and directly to a small number of industries and Government agencies requiring large amounts of power. Power is purchased and distributed by 160 local public agencies. Total energy to be supplied is estimated to be 118.1 billion kilowatt-hours in 1973. This is about 17.0 billion kilowatt-hours greater than the energy supplied to the system in 1971 and about 11.6 billion kilowatt-hours above that estimated to be supplied in 1972. Net income from power operations, after interest charges and depreciation, is estimated to be $70.8 million for 1973, compared with $119.0 million in 1971, and an estimate of $95.2 million in 1972.

Of the $352,742 thousand estimate for power generating facilities, all to be financed from power proceeds and borrowings, $75,704 thousand is for continuing construction of Browns Ferry nuclear units 1-3; $40,185 thousand is for continuing construction of Cumberland steam units 1-2; $109,795 thousand is for Sequoyah nuclear units 1-2; $41,610 thousand is for continuing construction of Raccoon Mountain pumped-storage units 1-4; $238 thousand for completion of additional gas turbine units, Colbert gas turbine plant units 1-8; $54,360 thousand for Watts Bar nuclear plant; $26,175 thousand for nuclear plant units 1-2 (undetermined location); and $4,675 thousand for preliminary work on additional capacity needed after 1978. The three Browns Ferry units are scheduled for commercial operation in October 1972, July 1973, and February 1974; the Cumberland units in July 1972 and April 1973; the Sequoyah units in July 1974 and March 1975; the Raccoon Mountain units at 3-month intervals beginning November 1974; the additional gas turbines in May 1972; the Watts Bar nuclear plant in August 1976 and May 1977; and nuclear plant units 1-2 in July 1977 and April 1978. Each increment in this program for power generating capacity additions and the schedule for providing it is essential to meeting expected future power needs of the Tennessee Valley region.

Completion of units under way as scheduled will bring the estimated dependable capacity of the system by the winter of 1976-77 to 29.8 million kilowatts, including other plants operated as a part of the TVA system. Total demands in the winter of 1976-77 are estimated at 26.8 million kilowatts, of which 2.1 million kilowatts will be served by capacity owned by others but made available to TVA under interchange arrangements. There will be a reserve of 20.3% over estimated demands of 24.7 million kilowatts served by TVA capacity to allow for loss of capacity because of breakdown of generating equipment and needs for its maintenance, failure of substation equipment and transmission lines, drawdown of reservoirs during dry periods, and other contingencies.

Capital outlay in 1973 for all power system facilities, including transmission system facilities, is estimated at $552,652 thousand.

3. Fertilizer and munitions development program.—Chemical facilities at Muscle Shoals, Ala., are maintained and operated as a national fertilizer development center, but by statute they must also be available for munitions purposes. These facilities are important to the national defense.

Program activities are of two general types: fertilizer research and development and introduction to the American farmer of new fertilizer materials and improved fertilizer uses.

Fertilizer research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and fertilizer process research and development. TVA works cooperatively with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant colleges, and with industry to maximize effectiveness of research, hasten use of findings, and to avoid undesirable duplication. Research results on technological developments and on new and improved processes are made available to industry. Knowledge gained in fertilizer research is valuable also in the related field of munitions. Special attention is given to methods for the recovery of sulfur in useful form from stack gases.

Fertilizer introduction is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant colleges and the fertilizer industry. It includes carefully controlled small plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and nationwide educational introduction of fertilizers. Developmental production of fertilizer materials has these objectives: to demonstrate the technical and commercial feasibility of new or improved processes; to supply materials for widespread educational introduction among farmers; and to supply materials and services for national defense.

Capital outlay costs of $3,600 thousand for chemical facilities are chiefly for continuing the rehabilitation program begun in 1960. Each step of the rehabilitation program makes significant contributions toward reduction in emissions of air and water pollutants.

4. General service activities.—Operating costs for general service activities cover mapping and remote sensing, bridge maintenance, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies. Capital outlay for additions and replacements of office, transportation, electronic computing equipment, and other facilities used jointly in conducting TVA programs is estimated at $2,761 thousand.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1973 are to be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $63,700 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $26,035 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $756,240 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowings of $510 million backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

Operating results and financial condition.—Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriations from the Treasury. Payments to the Treasury in 1973 are estimated at $83 million—$63 million as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20 million as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $477,748 thousand during 1973. The increase is mainly in fixed assets, reflecting expenditures for construction of facilities; $455,639 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $22,109 thousand is in nonpower programs. The estimate of current liabilities at June 30, 1973, is $41,713 thousand less than the estimate at June 30, 1972. The decrease reflects liabilities mainly related to construction. Total borrowings from the public for the power program are expected to increase by $510 million during 1973. The total Government equity at June 30, 1973, is estimated to be $9,530 thousand more than that at June 30, 1972. This change reflects increases in investments in assets financed from sources other than borrowings.

The United States Information Agency seeks, by means of communication techniques, to influence public attitudes abroad to achieve U.S. foreign policy objectives. The Agency also advises those responsible for formulating and implementing foreign policies and programs of the probable impact of those policies on foreign opinion.

Agency operations, which are largely financed from this appropriation and from the related special foreign currency appropriation, are composed of the following major elements:

1. Overseas missions.—The program is operative in 111 countries. The Agency operates through 181 posts and supports 125 binational centers. The overseas missions carry out country programs designed to influence local attitudes and actions in support of U.S. foreign policy. Overseas missions prepare materials using local facilities, and use materials provided by the media services in Washington.

2. Media services.—These services provide support for overseas country programs.

(a) Press and publications service maintains communication facilities for the transmission of editorial, news, and feature materials for adaptation by overseas missions. It produces two monthly magazines titled "America Illustrated," one for distribution in the Soviet Union and the other in Poland; a monthly magazine, "Topic," in French and English editions for the African area; and a monthly magazine in Arabic for distribution throughout the Arab world. The service also operates three regional printing centers and provides overseas missions with printing supplies and equipment.

(b) Screen service produces and acquires motion picture and television programs which are then translated into as many as 58 foreign languages. It adapts these programs for specific country or area use, and supports the foreign production, use, and distribution of films and television programs.

(c) Information center service supports U.S.-operated libraries, reading rooms, and binational centers, providing them with collections of American publications, both in English and in translation, and with English language teaching materials. It assists American publishers in distributing selected products overseas and supports the publication of low-priced books for sale abroad. The service also provides exhibits and visual materials to overseas missions for local display, and provides books and periodicals for presentation to selected individuals and groups.

(d) Broadcasting service produces radio broadcasts in English and in 34 foreign languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at five domestic and 10 overseas locations. The service also supplies the overseas missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations.

3. Program direction and other services.—This activity encompasses Agency managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions. Included are the Office of the Director, the Office of Policy and Plans, the Office of Research and Assessment, physical and personnel security functions, legal counsel, central administrative services, and emergency planning.

4. Shared administrative support.—Administrative services for the Agency's overseas operations, and certain special support services at headquarters, are obtained through reimbursable arrangements with the Department of State.

The purpose of this program is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and those of other lands through suitable U.S. exhibitions in international fairs and other demonstrations of American economic, social, industrial, scientific, and cultural attainments.

2. Labor missions are sent to selected fairs and exhibitions abroad. There were seven labor missions in 1971, eight are programed for 1972, and eight are requested for 1973.

3. Fairs and exhibitions are shown at major international trade fairs and at special purpose exhibitions. In 1971, 10 exhibits were mounted at international fairs, a fourth series exchange exhibit was reshowed in Poland and the sixth series of exchange exhibits was readied for exhibition in the Soviet Union. In 1972 seven exhibits will be mounted at international fairs, the sixth series of exchange exhibits will begin its showing schedule in the Soviet Union and three former exchange exhibits will be reshowed in three East European countries. The 1973 estimate provides for eight trade fair exhibits, reshowings of former exchange exhibits in two East European countries, and completion of the sixth series exhibit schedule in the Soviet Union.

4. Osaka World's Fair.—Final obligations for U.S. participation in the Japan World Exposition (held in calendar year 1970) will be completed in 1972. Total costs for U.S. participation are now estimated at $8,741 thousand, or $1,365 thousand less than appropriations made available for this purpose. This amount surplus to the Fair requirements has been transferred to other program accounts under the Special international exhibitions appropriation.

Responsibility for trade missions sent abroad was transferred to the Commerce Department in 1972.

Legislation has been proposed to provide a Federal guarantee of transit authority revenue bonds issued for the construction of the transit system. This would create a more salable investment and increase the rate of interest return for proposed purchasers. The legislation also authorizes the payment of one-fourth of the interest expense of the bonds by the Federal Government as an interest subsidy to the authority. This interest subsidy would not result in a net loss to the U.S. Treasury, however, because the planned nontaxable bonds would become taxable and produce sufficient tax revenues to cover the subsidy.

PART II

SCHEDULES OF PERMANENT POSITIONS

EXPLANATION OF SCHEDULES

Part II contains detailed schedules of permanent positions which are furnished to the Congress, pursuant to section 204 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, as amended (31 U.S.C. 581), excluding waivers thereunder granted by the Appropriations Committees. These schedules relate to positions established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. Positions authorized at the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time; positions abolished during the year are not counted.

The first section of the schedule, headed "Grades and ranges," contains a listing of the grades and salary ranges of authorized positions, and the total number in each grade, as illustrated below:

GRADES AND RANGES	1971 actual	1972 est.	1973 est.

Total permanent positions.....	265	250	260
Unfilled positions, June 30.....	-11	-5	-5
Total permanent employment, end of year.....	254	245	255

Grades and their respective salary ranges are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, the general schedule grades, is abbreviated "GS-..."

The salary ranges shown are the normal ranges of the pay scales which became effective in January 1971 for graded positions, and in March 1969 for executive level grades. Two additional lines provide for deducting the number of unfilled positions to arrive at the total employment in permanent positions at the end of the year. Note that the pay scales shown in this schedule may be exceeded (in the general schedule grades and certain other positions) when pay rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are substantially above the statutory rates. In such cases, the Civil Service Commission has authority to permit a higher entrance level (not to exceed the maximum pay step prescribed by statute) and add a corresponding number of steps above the stated pay range.

The second section of the schedule, as illustrated below, lists operating titles of the individual positions under each grade for which the minimum basic annual salary is equal to or greater than that for grade GS-16 ($28,129).

OPERATING EXPENSES

For expenses necessary for Action, created by Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1971, including expenses of carrying out the provisions of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, as amended, related to Volunteers in Service to America (42 U.S.C. 2991-2994); section 637(b) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 637(b)) not otherwise provided for; Title VI of the Older Americans Act of 1965 as amended (42 U.S.C. 3044-3044s) $16,000,000. (Additional authorizing legislation is pending.)

The 1972 supplemental request is for funds to expedite the development and testing of new ways to utilize volunteer services. These include: A "University Year for Action"; helping States and local governments establish their own volunteer programs; and developing new volunteer programs in such fields as minority business enterprise and judicial administration.

COMMITTEE FOR PURCHASE OF PRODUCTS AND SERVICES OF THE BLIND AND OTHER SEVERELY HANDICAPPED

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For expenses necessary for the Committee for Purchase of Products and Services of the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped, established by the Act of June 23, 1971 (Public Law 92-28), including hire of passenger motor vehicles, $100,000.

This supplemental appropriation is required to enable the Committee to begin its work as authorized by Public Law 92-28 of June 23, 1971.

FOREIGN CLAIMS SETTLEMENT COMMISSIONSALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses", including an additional amount of not to exceed $19,000 for expenses of travel, $100,000

This supplemental will provide administrative expenses for the initiation of the Micronesian claims program in 1972, authorized by the Micronesian Claims Act of 1971 (Public Law 92-39).

HISTORICAL AND MEMORIAL COMMISSIONSAMERICAN REVOLUTION BICENTENNIAL COMMISSION*SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses," including grants-in-aid, as authorized by law, $2,400,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available only upon the enactment into law of S. 1857, Ninety-second Congress, or similar legislation.

This supplemental will provide for grants to each of the 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the three territories, and for the development and operation of Bicentennial Commissions in these locations.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSIONPAYMENT OF LOAN GUARANTIES

For payments required to be made as a consequence of loan guaranties made by the Interstate Commerce Commission under section 503 of the Interstate Commerce Act, as amended (49 U.S.C. 1233), $28,000,000, together with such amounts as may be necessary to pay interest thereon.

On November 23, 1971, the Reading Co. filed a petition for reorganization under section 77 of the Bankruptcy Act. This constituted a default on the guaranteed loan under the terms of the agreement. The supplemental appropriation of $28 million, together with such amounts needed to pay interest, will repay this guaranteed loan.

RAILROAD RETIREMENT BOARDRAILROAD RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS

For an additional amount for "Limitation on salaries and expenses," $420,000 to be derived from the Railroad Retirement accounts.

This proposed increase in the limitation on salaries and expenses of $420 thousand is to provide for costs of handling the work created by amendments to the Railroad Retirement Act.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATIONSALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses," $500,000 to be transferred from the Disaster Loan Fund.

DISASTER LOAN FUND

For additional capital for the "Disaster loan fund," authorized by the Small Business Act, as amended, $80,000,000, to remain available without fiscal year until expended.

The amount requested is required to provide financial assistance on favorable terms to the victims of recent natural disasters, primarily Fern, Doria, Celia, and the Los Angeles earthquake. This supplemental is necessary largely because of the enactment of Public Law 92-213 which requires that assistance be provided to flood victims regardless of the availability of flood insurance.

The Small Business Administration has tightened up its administration of loans involving the $2,500 forgiveness feature of the Disaster Relief Act of 1970. In addition, legislation is being submitted to eliminate this forgiveness feature.

SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTIONSCIENCE INFORMATION EXCHANGE

For an additional amount for "Science information exchange", $300,000, to remain available until expended.

This proposed supplemental appropriation will provide the financing necessary to continue the operation of the Exchange.

TEMPORARY STUDY COMMISSIONSCOMMISSION ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT*SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses", $1,400,000, to remain available until expended.

This supplemental will enable the Commission to complete its work by April 30, 1973, as required by law. The Commission is scheduled to submit its final report to the Congress by December 31, 1972.

PART IV

ANNEXED BUDGETS AND OTHER MATERIAL

EXPLANATION OF ANNEXED BUDGETS AND OTHER MATERIAL

Part IV contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain activities which are not part of the Budget totals, but which are made available as auxiliary information. It also contains a table of principal disbursements and repayments of direct loans.

ANNEXED BUDGETS OF GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES

The Export-Import Bank, a wholly owned Government corporation, was removed from the budget totals by Public Law 92-126, effective August 16, 1971. It is included in Part I up to that date, and in this part from that date.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System provides its administrative budget for inclusion, without review. In conformance with its accounting system, the figures for the Board are on a calendar year basis.

ANNEXED BUDGETS OF GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED CREDIT AGENCIES

This section covers four systems of privately owned banks, and two privately owned corporations in the field of mortgage finance, all of which are chartered by the Federal Government and supervised by a Government agency. These budgets are not reviewed by the President, and are presented as submitted by the agencies.

OTHER MATERIAL

This section presents disbursements, repayments, and net outlays for direct loans. These are divided between the "expenditure account" and the "loan account," as are certain summary tables in the Budget. Loan disbursements are reported net of loans written off and other non-cash adjustments to balances outstanding. Loan repayments are collections of principal only; interest is excluded.

² Receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources are funds received from transactions related to stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar (31 U.S.C. 822a).

For the purpose of stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to enter into stabilization agreements, and to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities. An exchange stabilization fund, with a capital of $200 million (derived from the increment resulting from the reduction in the weight of the gold dollar which took place in 1934) is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 822a). All earnings and interest accruing are paid into this fund and are available for the purposes thereof, including expenses. Transactions in special drawing rights and U.S. holdings of SDR's are administered by this fund.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been the handling charge imposed on purchases and sales of gold for the account of the fund, profits on foreign exchange transactions, and interest on investments held by the fund. The income of the fund has consistently exceeded its expenses; the cumulative income of the fund from the time it began operations has been $511 million and its expenses $80 million, resulting in a net income as of June 30, 1971, of $431 million.

It is not practicable to forecast the transactions of the fund in gold, foreign currencies, foreign investments, and the like. Therefore, no estimates have been furnished for 1972 and 1973.

Liabilities of the fund include $650 million advanced to the fund as a result of drawings of foreign currencies by the Secretary from the International Monetary Fund.

The Export-Import Bank of the United States was organized in 1934 and its existing programs are authorized under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended. The purpose of the Bank is to aid in financing and to facilitate U.S. exports and imports.

On August 17, 1971, Public Law 92-126 was approved. Under this law, the budgets of the Bank continue to be subject to the Government Corporation Control Act, but its transactions are no longer within the totals of the United States budget. The Bank's transactions prior to the enactment of the law were in the budget totals and are shown in part I of this Appendix.

The schedules presented herewith reflect the outlays which would have been included in the budget totals if the Bank's activities had not been excluded. In summary, these amounts are (in thousands of dollars):

	Aug. 17, 1971, to June 30, 1972, estimate	July 1, 1972, to June 30, 1973, estimate

Expenditures.....	-109,128	-133,075
Outlays.....	1,220,280	1,053,858

In addition to expanding its existing 23 export expansion programs, the Bank has significantly revised its medium-term discount loan program and inaugurated a short-term discount loan facility which provides for assistance, through U.S. commercial banks, to U.S. exporters whose products move on short-term financing.

Basic legislation.—The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the act of December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act (38 Stat. 251), as amended (included in ch. 3, 12 U.S.C.), and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Construction program.—Because of a need for additional office space, the Board initiated plans several years ago to construct an annex office building immediately north of its present building. Construction began in April 1971, and is scheduled for completion in late 1973.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

Employment.—The Board's 1971 and 1972 estimates reflect actions with respect to employment that are in consonance with the President's goal under his new economic program.

The Federal National Mortgage Association is a Government-sponsored private corporation. Its purpose is to provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by providing a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

To carry out this purpose, FNMA buys, sells, and otherwise deals in mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration, and certain loans insured by the Farmers Home Administration. The Association also makes short-term loans on the security of any such loans and mortgages, and sells securities based on its own mortgages set aside for that purpose.

The common stock of the Association is owned by the public and is fully transferable and fully traded. Its capitalization is continuously expanded by the statutory requirement that mortgage sellers make capital contributions in the form of subscriptions to common stock equal to not more than 2% nor less than 1% of the mortgages involved. Borrowers from the Association are required to make such capital contributions equal to not more than one-half of 1% of the amounts borrowed.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (secondary market operations) was initially capitalized under the Housing Act of 1954 by the issuance of $92.8 million of preferred stock to the Secretary of the Treasury. Additional preferred stock subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury were authorized under subsequent acts; the total of such authorizations aggregates $317.8 million.

The authorizing statute, Public Law 83-560, approved August 2, 1954, originally contemplated that FNMA's secondary market operations would ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. On December 1, 1968, pursuant to Public Law 90-448, approved August 1, 1968, FNMA's secondary market operations were converted to a Government-sponsored, privately owned corporation. As a privately owned corporation, FNMA is able to raise money in the private capital markets and support the secondary mortgage market unconstrained by considerations which control the Federal budget.

The Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 empowers FNMA, with the approval of the Secretary of HUD, to purchase, service, lend on the security of, sell, and otherwise deal in conventional mortgages (those not federally insured or guaranteed). While FNMA recognizes that its primary responsibility is to the FHA and VA mortgage market and while no such activities have as yet been commenced, FNMA has announced a conventional single-family mortgage purchase program to begin in calendar year 1972. While the aggregate amount of such purchases cannot be predicted, FNMA believes that such conventional mortgages will represent a small percentage of FNMA's total mortgage portfolio. FNMA will act to minimize any additional risk involved in purchasing conventional mortgages by applying strict qualifications in connection with such purchases.

Recently enacted legislation also empowers FNMA to purchase, service, sell, or otherwise deal in any loans made to a public agency under part B of title VI of the Public Health Services Act (primarily loans made for the construction or modernization of hospital facilities), and to receive Federal subsidies designed to bring the yield on federally insured low- and middle-income housing mortgages, purchased by FNMA at prices in excess of market, into line with then current mortgage market conditions. To date, no hospital loans have been purchased by FNMA.

The Association has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated capital debentures in an amount not in excess of twice its net equity. It may in addition borrow amounts not in excess of the sum of net equity and subordinated capital debentures outstanding multiplied by a factor established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development; this factor is currently set at 25. These borrowings usually take the form of debentures, short-term discount notes, or bank loans. Finally, FNMA may issue securities, guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association, which are fully backed by pools of mortgages. This last type of borrowing is limited only by the size of FNMA's loan portfolio.

The banks for cooperatives, of which there are 13, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sales of debentures to the public and from their own capital funds. The debentures which the banks issue are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of the banks' expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The Federal intermediate credit banks, of which there are 12, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to, local financing institutions, such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of debentures to the public and from their own capital funds. The debentures are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of the banks' expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks became mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968.

The Federal land banks, through the 594 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These banks and associations are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947.

The 12 Federal home loan banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions and their main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan type institutions, and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and enhance their service to the public as savings media and home mortgage lenders in their own communities. Each bank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the banks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1971, the banks extended credit amounting to $1.7 billion and received repayments of $4.6 billion. Advances outstanding on June 30, 1971, totaled $7.2 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On June 30, 1971, $7.3 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include 25% of deposits from members (with total deposits amounting to $2.1 billion on June 30, 1971), and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions, amounting to $1.6 billion at the end of 1971. Funds not immediately needed for advances to members are invested in obligations of the United States or agencies thereof.

The capital stock of the Federal home loan banks is owned entirely by their members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951, and since that time the banks have been owned entirely by their members.

The entire operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a substantial portion of the Board's administrative and other costs.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (a federally chartered corporation) was organized on July 24, 1970, under the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970. The act exempts the Corporation from all taxation by the United States or by any State, county, municipality, or local taxing authority, except for real property taxes. The Corporation is under the direction of a Board of Directors composed of the members of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The Corporation purchases, sells, and otherwise deals in mortgages on residential properties. The Corporation's capital stock was issued, at par, to the Federal home loan banks; the stock is nonvoting and nontransferable, and its ownership is restricted to the Federal home loan banks.

The Corporation operated through the Federal home loan banks from July through October 1970. Separate operations began in October 1970, and all prior activity of the banks on behalf of the Corporation was transferred to the Corporation and is reflected in the accompanying financial statements. In October 1970, the Corporation began purchasing whole mortgages insured as to principal and interest by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration (VA). Purchases of participations in conventional mortgages began in December 1970, and the program for purchases of conventional whole mortgages is currently planned for early 1972. The Corporation intends to remain continually in the market with all three programs.

The Corporation purchases mortgages according to standards deemed by it to meet those of private institutional mortgage investors. Purchases are confined, by law, to those from institutions which are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, or whose deposits are insured by an agency of the United States. The act authorizes the Corporation to issue debt securities, sell mortgages on hand, or otherwise finance its operation on terms and conditions prescribed by its Directors.
