

THE
OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

APPENDIX

FISCAL YEAR 1973

FOREWORD

This is one of several documents which relate to the budget for 1973:

The Budget of the United States Government, 1973, contains the Budget Message of the President, information on the Federal program by function and by agency and account, summary tables, and statistical information.

The Budget of the United States Government, 1973—Appendix, contains the text of appropriation estimates proposed for the consideration of the Congress together with specific supporting information on the various appropriations and funds, and other supplementary material.

The contents of this volume are further explained at the beginning of each of its four parts.

The U.S. Budget in Brief, 1973, a pamphlet type publication, is available for those who wish a more concise and less technical presentation than either of the above two documents.

The Special Analyses, Budget of the United States Government, 1973, contains 19 special analyses of significant aspects of the Federal budget.

The Budget of the United States Government, 1973—District of Columbia, contains the estimates for the municipal government of the District of Columbia.

NOTE.—Unless otherwise indicated, all references to years in this volume are to fiscal years ending June 30. Financial tables are nearly always stated in thousands of dollars; details may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part I contains various tables and schedules in support of the budget, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item for which congressional action in an appropriation bill is required. It also contains the text of general provisions proposed for enactment by the Congress, which apply to entire agencies or groups of agencies.

ARRANGEMENT

The chapters of this part reflect the branches of Government, and the major departments and agencies of the executive branch. For the latter, most smaller agencies are grouped in one chapter—"Other independent agencies."

Within each chapter there are three main sections. The first section covers programs authorized by existing legislation (including items for which extension or renewal of existing legislation is requested). This section is organized by major subordinate organizations within the agency (usually bureaus). For each bureau, Federal funds, covering the funds owned by the Government, precede trust funds, covering funds which are held in a fiduciary capacity by the Government.

The second major section of each chapter covers the legislative program which reflects the costs of proposed new legislation. This section is also organized by bureau, or other major subordinate organization. The proposals are applicable to Federal funds unless otherwise indicated.

The third section of each chapter includes the general provisions of appropriation language which are applicable to the agencies in the chapter, and are in addition to the specific language pertaining to individual appropriation items. General provisions which apply to specified groups of agencies are placed in the chapter covering the first agency which appears in the respective appropriation act. However, the general provisions which are Government-wide in scope (identified "Departments, Agencies, and Corporations") and are contained in the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, are placed at the end of the Executive Office of the President chapter.

An explanation of the types of funds included in the budget may be found in the compact volume—The Budget of the United States Government, 1973 (Part 6).

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1973 appropriation acts is printed at the head of each item requiring action by Congress, except for those items which are not formally recommended at this time but will be proposed for separate transmittal. The language of the 1972 appropriation acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Italic type indicates proposed new language. Brackets enclose material which is proposed for omission, as in this example:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For expenses necessary for the Office of Emergency Preparedness including services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, reimbursement of the General Services Administration for security guard services, hire of passenger motor vehicles, and expenses of attendance of cooperating officials and individuals at meetings concerned with the work of emergency planning, [$6,288,000.] $6,141,000. (Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, 1972.)

Following the language, and printed in italic within parentheses, are citations to relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriation act from which the text is taken. (When an appropriation bill has not been enacted at the time the budget is submitted, the language relates only to 1973 and is italicized with no brackets shown.)

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

The basic schedules for Federal and trust funds usually exclude supplemental estimates which are transmitted to Congress separately. These separate transmittals are covered by brief program and financing schedules, without appropriation language. However, those supplemental estimates which are being transmitted for consideration with the 1973 budget, and are identified: "Supplementals now requested", have appropriation language in Part III of this document.

The 1973 column includes, within the regular schedules, appropriations for recommended extension or renewal of expiring laws; however, money for new legislation is shown in separate schedules under the legislative program section. Appropriation language is included for the former, but not for the latter.

Where the required data are available in the accounting system, budgets are presented in terms of costs. Detailed operating cost figures for each activity or object are the value of goods and services consumed in carrying out the program. In the case of capital outlay programs, they are the value of assets acquired.

Total obligations are always shown; activities and objects are reflected on an obligation basis where cost data are not available. Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, loan agreements made, and recurring services (such as rent, utilities, and personal services) received during the year, regardless of the time of payment.

For a few Government corporations, the detail and the totals of limitations are on the basis of accrued expenditures.

SCHEDULE OF PROGRAM AND FINANCING

This schedule consists of three parts. In the program by activities section, costs or obligations are classified by purpose, program, type of activity, or project for 1971, 1972, and 1973. This classification is individually developed for each appropriation or fund, and is not uniform on a Government-wide basis. Similarly, the identification of capital outlay is not handled uniformly. Where it is of significance, capital outlay is shown by activity. Otherwise, the total for each year is disclosed by footnote.

Where budgets are presented in terms of costs, the relation of costs to obligations is summarized in an entry

"Change in selected resources." For appropriation accounts, and for revolving funds for which no business-type financial statements are presented, this entry is supported by a footnote identifying the amounts of the resources involved. For the remaining revolving funds, the items are identified on the statement of financial condition and the appended tabulation.

In certain cases, this schedule is expanded to include additional columns that provide a more informative presentation. This is done, for example, in some construction or procurement programs to show related cost data; for certain Defense items to identify the total obligations programed; and for programs financed at a "preobligation" stage (such as "commitments" in some loan programs).

The "Financing" section shows the fund sources, budget authority, and other means of financing the program, and the disposition of amounts not used during the year.

The section on "Relation of obligations to outlays" shows obligations net of receipts and other offsets, obligated balances at the start and end of the year, and other items which affect the relation of obligations to outlays.

¹Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $236 thousand (1971 adjustments -$13 thousand); 1971, $632 thousand; 1972, $490 thousand; 1973, $655 thousand.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work planned and services proposed to be carried out are described briefly in a narrative statement for each appropriation or fund. Where practicable, the narrative statement presents accomplishments in relation to financial requirements, and available measures of program and performance.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a classification of obligations, costs, or accrued expenditures according to the following uniform list of object classifications:

10 PERSONAL SERVICES AND BENEFITS	30 ACQUISITION OF CAPITAL ASSETS
11 Personnel compensation	31 Equipment
12 Personnel benefits	32 Lands and structures
13 Benefits for former personnel	33 Investments and loans
20 CONTRACTUAL SERVICES AND SUPPLIES	40 GRANTS AND FIXED CHARGES
21 Travel and transportation of persons	41 Grants, subsidies, and contributions
22 Transportation of things	42 Insurance claims and indemnities
23 Rent, communications, and utilities	43 Interest and dividends
24 Printing and reproduction	44 Refunds
25 Other services
26 Supplies and materials

These object classes reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose of the program for which they are used. Data according to this classification are illustrated in the following schedule:

Object Classification (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 03-45-0600-0-1-903	1971 actual	1972 est.	1973 est.
Personnel compensation:
11.1 Permanent positions.....	4,055	4,129	4,078
11.3 Positions other than permanent.....	305	350	289
11.5 Other personnel compensation.....	65	80	82

24.0 Printing and reproduction.....	27	23	28
25.0 Other services.....	806	720	659
26.0 Supplies and materials.....	57	37	42
31.0 Equipment.....	56	12	14
99.0 Total obligations.....	6,041	6,103	6,141

Several of the object classes are broken down into subclasses—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for permanent positions, for positions other than permanent, and for certain other payments.

A personnel summary is appended to the object classification schedule, as illustrated:

Personnel Summary

Total number of permanent positions.....	228	216	216
Full-time equivalent of other positions.....	20	23	19
Average paid employment.....	233	245	232
Average GS grade.....	11.3	11.1	11.1
Average GS salary.....	$18,827	$18,800	$18,985

Permanent positions are those of a full-time nature and indefinite duration; some of these permanent positions are filled by persons with temporary appointments. Other positions include those of a temporary nature (a year or less), part-time jobs (less than a full workweek), and intermittent employment (occasional employees).

Average grades and salaries are computed arithmetically. Thus the average salary can fall outside the salary range of the average grade.

STATEMENT OF REVENUE AND EXPENSE

For many revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense that shows the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement is usually on a full accrual basis, including provision for depreciation, for losses on receivables, etc. Where a fund consists of one (or more) programs, or revenue is derived from nonoperating sources, revenue and expense are identified for each, as follows:

Revenue and Expense (in thousands of dollars)

	1971 actual	1972 est.	1973 est.
Vessel operations:
Revenue.....	2,047	1,850	-----
Expense.....	-2,047	-2,081	-----
Net loss, vessel operations.....	-----	-231	-----
Experimental ship operations:
Revenue.....	1,655	100	-----
Expense.....	-1,655	-100	-----
Net income, experimental ship operations.....	-----	-----	-----
Net operating loss, total.....	-----	-231	-----

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITION

For each fund showing a revenue and expense statement, there is also presented a balance sheet for assets, liabilities, and equity of the Government at the close of the year.

Financial Condition (in thousands of dollars)

	1970 actual	1971 actual	1972 est.	1973 est.
Assets:
Drawing account with Treasury	14,266	14,973	14,494	16,699

Deferred charges	1,392	60	60	-----
Total assets	20,546	17,824	16,699	16,699
Liabilities:
Accounts payable and accrued liabilities	2,369	894	-----	-----
Deferred and undistributed credits	1,246	-----	-----	-----
Total liabilities	3,615	894	-----	-----
Government equity:
Obligations: Unpaid undelivered orders	77	28	-----	-----
Unobligated balance	16,854	16,903	16,699	16,699
Total Government equity	16,931	16,931	16,699	16,699

This balance sheet excludes balances of appropriations and borrowing authorizations which have not yet been paid into the revolving fund. Because the balance sheet is on an accrual basis, the "Liabilities" section does not reflect obligations incurred for which the liability has not accrued. Nor does the "Assets" section reflect unfilled customer orders received, even though such orders are a basis for obligation in the case of intragovernmental revolving funds. The "Government equity" section, therefore, shows obligations (which have not yet become accrued liabilities), the unobligated balance, unfilled customers' orders on hand (where relevant), and invested capital and earnings.

Appended to the balance sheet is an "Analysis of Changes in Government Equity." This analysis is divided into three sections, as appropriate: (a) interest-bearing capital, (b) non-interest-bearing capital, and (c) retained earnings. Each of these sections shows the beginning balance, changes occurring during the year (e.g., net income for the year, retained earnings transferred to the general fund, net borrowing, etc.), and the balance at the end of the year.

Analysis of Changes in Government Equity (in thousands of dollars)

	1971 actual	1972 est.	1973 est.
Retained earnings:
Start of year	16,931	16,931	16,699

BUDGETS NOT SUBJECT TO REVIEW

The presentations herein for the Legislative Branch, the Judiciary, the Comptroller of the Currency in the Treasury Department, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Milk Market Orders Assessment Fund of the Department of Agriculture, and the annexed budgets (other than the Export-Import Bank) have been included, without review, in the amounts submitted by the agencies.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN BUDGET TABLES AND APPENDIX TABLES

EXPENDITURES AND LOANS

Under the unified budget concept, the compact budget volume breaks down outlays to show separately expenditures and the amount of net lending for most loan programs. Similarly, for budget authority, it segregates loan authority from new obligational authority. While the individual schedules in Part I of the Appendix do not make this breakdown, the details on net lending are set forth in a separate table in Part IV.

INTRABUDGETARY TRANSACTIONS

The consolidation of Government-administered funds in the compact budget volume requires the deduction of intrabudgetary transactions, i.e., interfund and intragovernmental transactions, from the combined aggregates, to avoid duplication in the totals. Schedules in the Appendix show the various funds and accounts separately, and therefore do not make such deductions.

PROPRIETARY RECEIPTS FROM THE PUBLIC

The compact budget volume offsets against expenditures for each agency and function the receipts from the public which are market-oriented or are mainly payments for goods and services, regardless of the fund structure. The Appendix continues the conventional practice of offsetting in the individual schedules only those receipts that are earmarked by law for use in revolving funds, or as reimbursements to appropriations or other funds.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Effective July 1, 1971, the third paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provisions" in the appropriations for the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1959, as amended (2 U.S.C. 43b), is amended by striking out that first portion thereof, down through "fiscal year, and the", and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"The contingent fund of the Senate is hereby made available for reimbursement of actual transportation expenses incurred by each Senator in traveling on official business, and such expenses incurred by employees in that Senator's office in making round trips on official business, by the nearest usual route, between Washington, District of Columbia, and the home State of the Senator involved, or within that State during such travel. The total amount of such expenses for which each Senator and the employees in his office may be reimbursed in any fiscal year shall not exceed a sum equal to forty times (in the case of a Senator from a State having a population of less than ten million inhabitants), or forty-four times (in the case of Senator from a State having a population of ten million or more inhabitants), fourteen cents per mile for the number of miles certified by the Senator as the distance between Washington, District of Columbia, and the place of his residence in his home State, if such distance is less than 375 miles; thirteen cents per mile, if such certified distance is 375 miles or more but less than 750 miles; twelve cents per mile, if such certified distance is 750 miles or more but less than 1,000 miles; eleven cents per mile, if such certified distance is 1,000 miles or more but less than 1,750 miles; ten cents per mile, if such certified distance is 1,750 miles or more but less than 2,250 miles; nine cents per mile, if such certified distance is 2,250 miles or more but less than 2,500 miles; eight cents per mile, if such certified distance is 2,500 miles or more but less than 3,000 miles; or seven cents per mile, if such certified distance is 3,000 miles or more. In any fiscal year in which a Senator does not occupy the office of Senator for the entire fiscal year, the total amount of such expenses for which that Senator and the employees in his office may be reimbursed shall not exceed the greater of (1) the amount determined under the preceding sentence times that fraction which has as its numerator the number of months (counting the portion of any month as a month) during that fiscal year the Senator has occupied such office and has as its denominator the number 12, or (2) 50 percent of the amount determined under the preceding sentence. Reimbursement for such expenses by employees of the Senator shall be made only upon vouchers approved by the Senator containing a certification by such Senator that the round trip was performed in line of official duty. No payment shall be made to a newly appointed employee to travel to his place of employment. Reimbursement under this paragraph shall be in addition to reimbursement for official travel which is otherwise authorized pursuant to law.]

In the case of round trips made by employees in a Senator's office, the amendment made by this paragraph shall apply only with respect to such round trips commencing on or after July 1, 1971, except that a round trip commenced but not completed prior to such date and for which reimbursement may not be charged to amounts made available for such round trips for fiscal year 1971 may be charged to amounts made available under such amendment during fiscal year 1972.]

Effective July 1, 1971, the second paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provisions" in the appropriations for the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1962, as amended (2 U.S.C. 127), is repealed.]

In lieu of the volumes of the Code of Laws of the United States, and the supplements thereto, supplied a Senator under section 212 of title 1, United States Code, the Secretary of the Senate is authorized and directed to supply to a Senator upon written request of, and as specified by, that Senator—

(1) one copy of each of the volumes of the United States Code Annotated being published at the time the Senator takes office, and, as long as that Senator holds office, one copy of each replacement volume, each annual pocket part, and each pamphlet supplementing each such pocket part to the United States Code Annotated; or

(2) one copy of each of the volumes of the Federal Code Annotated being published at the time the Senator takes office, and, as long as that Senator holds office, one copy of each replacement volume and each pocket supplement to the Federal Code Annotated.]

A Senator is entitled to make a written request under this paragraph and be supplied such volumes, pocket parts, and supplements the first time he takes office as a Senator and each time thereafter he takes office as a Senator after a period of time during which he has not been a Senator. In submitting such written request, the Senator shall certify that the volumes, pocket parts, or supplements he is to be supplied are to be for his exclusive, personal use. A Senator holding office on the date of enactment of this Act shall be entitled to file a written request and receive the volumes, pocket parts, and supplements, as the case may be, referred to in this paragraph if such request is filed within 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act. Expenses incurred under this authorization shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.]

Section 4 of the joint resolution entitled "Joint Resolution transferring the management of the Senate Restaurants to the Architect of the Capitol, and for other purposes", approved July 6, 1961 (40 U.S.C. 174j-4), is amended by striking out the last sentence and inserting in lieu thereof the following new sentences: "Any amounts appropriated for fiscal year 1972 and thereafter from the Treasury of the United States specifically for such restaurants as a 'Contingent Expenses of the Senate' item for the particular fiscal year involved, shall be paid to the Architect of the Capitol by the Secretary of the Senate at such times and in such sums as the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration may approve. Any such payment shall be deposited by the Architect in full under such special deposit account."]

Each officer or member of the Capitol Police force whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate, who has performed or performs duty in addition to the number of hours of his regularly scheduled tour of duty during any period on or after March 1, 1971, with respect to which the Capitol Police Board determined or determines that emergency conditions existed or exist, shall be paid compensation for each such additional hour of duty, in lieu of compensatory time off, at a rate equal to his hourly rate of compensation in the case of captains, lieutenants, and special officers, and at a rate equal to one and one-half times his hourly rate of compensation for other members of such force referred to herein. The hourly rate of compensation of such officer or member shall be determined by dividing his annual rate of compensation by 2,080. Such compensation due officers and members shall be paid by the Secretary, upon certification of such additional hours of duty by the Chief of the Capitol Police as approved by the Sergeant at Arms of the Senate, from funds available in the Senate appropriation "Salaries, Officers and Employees" for the fiscal year in which the additional hours of duty are performed without regard to the limitations specified therein.]

In the event of the death, resignation, or disability of the Secretary of the Senate, the Assistant Secretary of the Senate shall act as Secretary in carrying out the duties and responsibilities of that office in all matters, except those matters relating to the Secretary's duties as disbursing officer of the Senate, until such time as a new Secretary shall have been elected and qualified or such disability shall have been ended. For purposes of this paragraph and the last full paragraph under the heading "SENATE" in the First

1. Acquisition of library materials.—The Library's collections are developed in accordance with established acquisition policies: Materials are procured by purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, transfer and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections. The objective for 1973 is continued improvement in acquisitions procedures. The collections totaled 64,465,141 items as of June 30, 1971, and consisted of 15,660,523 books and pamphlets; 30,338,713 manuscript pieces and 18,465,905 maps, pieces of music, reels of microfilm, photographs, and other miscellaneous items. Of the items received, 1,828,390 were added to the permanent

2. Organization of the collections.—Library materials are cataloged, classified, marked, and arranged; Library of Congress catalogs are maintained; special collections are organized for use. The objectives for this activity in 1973 are the continued maintenance on a current basis of the Library's record of serial publications, the maintaining of currency in the filing of cards into the Library Card Catalogs, the reduction of cataloging arrearages, the improvement of cataloging methods and procedures to assure the usefulness of the collections.

Selected performance data for 1971 and estimated for 1972 and 1973 (not including processing activities performed by the Reference Department and the Law Library) are as follows:

Description	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate

3. Reader and reference services.—Books and other library materials are provided inside and outside of the Library, reference and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained. The objective of this activity for 1973 is to continue to organize more material for use, to make it available to readers more readily and to improve reference and circulation services. The workload in all major activities is expected to increase in 1972 and 1973 as follows:

4. National program for acquisitions and cataloging.—Under NPAC, the Library of Congress seeks to acquire abroad, catalog immediately, and disseminate cataloging data rapidly for all current monographic works of research value, in order to meet the urgent needs of American libraries. The outstanding success of the program can be clearly measured by the Library's phenomenal increase of 112 percent in the number of books cataloged—from 109,789 new titles in 1965 (prior to the program) to 233,517 new titles in 1971. This doubling in the amount of current cataloging available has been directly responsible for savings of many millions of dollars by libraries across the Nation.

Prior to the establishment of the NPAC program, independent studies showed that Library of Congress cataloging for its own purposes met only 50 percent of the cataloging needs of the American research library community. Prior to 1972 the program was financed from funds transferred to the Library by the Office of Education, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The objectives of this activity in 1973 are the continuation of the basic program at its 1972 level in order to continue providing necessary catalog copy automatically and rapidly to college, university, and other research libraries which now rely greatly upon the Library of Congress for such cataloging.

5. Preservation of library materials.—Library materials are preserved in their original format by being bound or rebound, by deacidification and lamination, and by repair and restoration. Materials also are preserved by converting them to a more durable base through microfilming of books and newspapers, by conversion of nitrate film to a safety base, and conversion of deteriorating sound recordings to a durable base material. In addition the Library conducts original research into the many unsolved preservation problems encountered in dealing with millions of deteriorating books and other materials in the Nation's libraries.

Volumes processed for binding.....	190,179	185,100	180,100

6. General administration.—This activity supports the executive staff of the Office of the Librarian, and the Administrative Department, except for preservation of the collections activities. Included are funds for equipment rentals; space rentals; staff for personnel and fiscal management, procurement, protective services, and duplicating services.

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collection and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The income and costs for 1971 and estimates for 1972 and 1973 are as follows:

Income:
Fees applied.....	2,045,458	2,147,000	2,254,000

Other costs.....	565,000	759,000	763,000
Total costs.....	3,887,000	4,590,000	4,848,000

The program and performance under each of the activities described are predicated on an estimated 357,000 copyright registrations during 1973, an estimated 343,000 during 1972, and an actual 329,696 during 1971.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act. Performance data for 1971 and estimated for 1972 and 1973 are as follows:

Registrations.....	329,696	343,000	357,000
Mail received and dispatched.....	764,249	795,000	827,000

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provisions of the Copyright Act have been satisfied. Performance data are as follows:

Cases and documents examined.....	358,142	372,500	387,000
Registrations and recordation of documents.....	349,906	364,000	379,000
Letters written.....	56,205	59,000	62,000

3. Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. There were 329,696 registrations cataloged in 1971 and estimates for 1972 and 1973 are 343,000 and 357,000, respectively.

4. Reference services.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public, information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings; information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity. Performance data are as follows:

Titles searched.....	167,887	175,000	182,000
Letters and search reports written.....	33,597	35,000	36,500

5. Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

6. General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office includes legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

1. Policy analysis and research.—The Congressional Research Service provides research, information, and consultative services to Members and committees of Congress, assisting them in the analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of legislative issues and proposals, and of recommendations submitted to the Congress by the President or executive branch agencies. This support comes in the form of research reports, in-depth policy analyses, consultations, briefings, legal research, assistance with committee hearings, background studies, and related data and materials. Lists of subjects and policy areas which might profitably be pursued are periodically made available to each congressional committee. These services are directed toward assisting Members and committees in determining the advisability of enacting legislative proposals, in estimating the probable results of such proposals and of alternatives to them, and in evaluating methods for accomplishing the results sought.

2. Documentation and status of legislation.—The Service prepares and publishes on a periodic basis for distribution to Members and committees the Digest of Public General Bills, which includes summaries of all public bills and resolutions introduced in the Congress, the changes made therein during the legislative process, the status of bills receiving action, and various pertinent indexes. The Service also prepares and distributes weekly reports on the status of selected major legislation. Upon request from Members and committees, the Service provides legislative history memoranda with respect to measures on which hearings have been announced, and it compiles and makes available to each committee reports on legislatively authorized programs and activities which are within that committee's jurisdiction and which are scheduled to terminate during the current Congress.

3. Information and reference services.—The Congressional Research Service assists Members in the performance of their representative duties. Reference files, containing clippings, pamphlets, and documents, are maintained for rapid informational use. Staff researchers and Members are alerted to current articles and publications in their fields of interest by computer produced citations. Lists of multilithed reports prepared by CRS staff for use of congressional offices providing information on legislative issues are circulated, and reader services are provided by the Congressional Reading Room.

4. Administration and support services.

The Card Division sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards and publications. It maintains a stock of over 100 million catalog cards representing approximately 5 million titles, and fills orders from 31,558 regular subscribers—mostly libraries—in the United States and abroad. In 1971, 83% of this appropriation was recovered in the form of receipts from card and publications sales. Receipts of $7,467,343 were deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury in 1971. The objectives for 1973 are: Meeting the continuing demand for catalog cards and maintaining a reasonable level of service and economy; the continued development of the "National Union Catalog" as the country's major bibliographic and locational tool; the development of other technical publications; and the use of new technology to improve service, to increase efficiency, and to reduce costs.

1. Supplying cards for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in 1971 was 40,596,769; estimated for 1972, 45 million; and estimated for 1973, 50 million.

2. Supplying cards for other libraries.—The number of cards sold in 1971 was 74,474,002; estimated for 1972, 75 million; and for 1973, 75 million.

3. Preparation, printing, and distribution of publications related to cataloging.—These publications are an integral part of the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include the "Classification Schedules," lists of "Subject Headings," "Cataloging Service" bulletins, and similar publications.

4. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the "National Union Catalog."—This catalog (a cumulative author list) is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually. Subscribers also receive issues of "Motion Pictures and Filmstrips" (quarterlies with annual cumulation), as well as the "Register of Additional Locations," and the "National Register of Microform Masters." There were 2,429 paid subscriptions for all issues in calendar year 1970, and it is estimated that there will be 2,500 subscriptions for 1971 and 2,600 for 1972.

5. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the "Subject Catalog."—This catalog is issued in three quarterly volumes with an annual cumulation. There were 928 paid subscriptions for calendar year 1970. It is estimated that there will be 1,000 paid subscriptions in 1971 and about 1,100 in 1972.

material received annually. The objectives for 1973 are: To continue the program for procurement of important research materials to insure the continuous development of the Library's collections and to maintain their national pre-eminence; to continue the acquisition of important foreign newspapers and periodicals; to continue the program for procurement of essential research materials from areas critical to the U.S. foreign policy, particularly from Eastern Europe, Africa, Asia, and Latin America; to continue to strengthen and maintain on a current basis the Library's acquisitions in the rapidly expanding fields of science and technology; and to acquire highly selected, important, noncurrent materials needed by the Library to provide better service to Congress and to increase the usefulness to current research of the historical subject collections.

This appropriation constitutes the only means of acquiring law books published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign law books published in countries all over the world. The legal publications acquired by purchase constitute a most important part of the Law Library's acquisitions, although a substantial part of the annual receipts is received by means other than purchase. The special objectives for 1973 are: To continue the procurement of current foreign legal materials by placing purchase orders for certain necessary publications now received only irregularly through exchange or gift; to improve the procurement of important Hispanic, African, Middle Eastern, and Far Eastern materials; to continue the procurement of both current and noncurrent materials needed to strengthen the Law Library's already comprehensive coverage of critical areas in Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa; and to continue the acquisition of photoduplicates of important research items, especially those from critical areas, which are no longer obtainable in the original.

The Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped is responsible for administering a national program to provide reading material for the blind and physically handicapped (Public Law 89-522) of the United States and its outlying areas. It has two closely related operations.

1. Procurement and distribution.—It provides books in embossed characters and talking books with their associated reproducers. The books are distributed through 50 regional libraries which assume responsibility for their custody and circulation. The reproducers are distributed through 71 State agencies and libraries. The maintenance and procurement of these books are shown in the following table:

Description	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate

(a) New titles.....	619	600	600
(b) Older titles reissued.....	107	100	100

(c) Phonographs salvaged/scrapped.....	11,000	15,000	15,000

Objectives for 1973 are: (1) sustained procurement of books and magazines in braille and sound recording media and (2) procurement of a sufficient number of machines to equip newly registered blind and physically handicapped readers and to replace some of the obsolete machines.

2. Cataloging, reference, circulating, and training services.—Catalogs of recorded and braille books are provided, often in braille, recorded, and large type forms for the convenience of readers. The Division maintains the National Collections of braille and recorded books to supplement titles deposited in libraries across the country. During the past 5-year period, 1967–71, the number of readers throughout the country requiring catalogs from which to select reading matter has grown from over 121,000 to almost 255,000 and circulation from approximately 4,800,000 units (volumes, containers, and reels) to over 8,300,000. As a result of the expanded program, the number of readers and circulation are expected to continue to increase in 1972 and 1973. Inquiries are received concerning library and related services available to the blind and to other physically handicapped persons. Individuals throughout the Nation who are interested in transcribing or proofreading braille are trained and those qualified are certified. During 1971, 533 individuals were certified, and it is anticipated that this level will continue during 1972 and 1973. In addition tape recorded books are recorded by volunteers throughout the country.

Under authority originally granted in section 104(n) of Public Law 85-931 (now sec. 104(b)(5) of the Food for Peace Act of 1966) the Librarian of Congress may use foreign currencies accruing under this act to provide information of technical, scientific, cultural, or educational significance to the United States through the collection of foreign library materials and the distribution of copies thereof to libraries and research centers in the United States. The program is being carried on in seven countries in 1972: Ceylon, India, Israel, Nepal, Pakistan, the United Arab Republic, and Yugoslavia. In 1973, the Library plans to carry out a program in Poland and Tunisia. Of the total amount requested, $2,727,000 will be used to purchase foreign currencies, while $264,000 will provide U.S. dollar support.

1. Acquisition of books and other library materials.—Based upon the requirements of other Federal agencies and certain research libraries in the United States, publications and other library materials will be purchased in multiple copies from seven countries and distributed to selected libraries and research centers in the United States, including the Library of Congress.

2. Program support (U.S. dollars).—U.S. dollars are required to pay certain expenses which cannot be paid by foreign currencies, such as salaries and personnel benefits of U.S. personnel abroad, salaries of the coordinating staff at the Library of Congress, travel in some instances, and equipment and supplies which cannot be procured abroad.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise Fund was established by 69 Stat. 533 to: (1) Prepare a history of the Supreme Court of the United States, and, if deemed advisable; (2) to finance an annual lecture or series of lectures; and (3) publish a memorial volume of Justice Holmes' writings. The principal and interest on the fund are available for these purposes. The current program is devoted primarily to the preparation of the history of the Supreme Court, of which the first two volumes of a projected 12-volume series were published by the Macmillan Co., on November 16, 1971. An annual lecture series is also financed by this fund and reprints of the lectures are distributed to law schools and libraries throughout the country.

This schedule covers: (1) Funds received as gifts for immediate expenditure and receipts from the sale of recordings and photoduplication materials financed from capital originally received as gifts, (2) income from investments held by the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, and (3) interest at the rate of 4 percent per annum paid by the Treasury on the principal funds deposited therewith as described under "Library of Congress Trust Fund, Principal Accounts." (2 U.S.C. 156-160; 31 U.S.C. 725s; 37 Stat. 319.)

1. Acquisition of library materials.—During 1971, this included the procurement of manuscripts, Hispanic materials, fine prints, rare books, and other library materials from certain foreign areas for the Library of Congress, and the acquisition and distribution of Government documents for the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries.

2. Reader and reference services.—These services during 1971 included the preparation of bibliographies, indexes, digests, and checklists; lectures; surveys of bibliographic services; poetry readings; musical concerts; furtherance of musical research, composition, performance, and appreciation; and providing photostats, photographs, microfilm, and other forms of photoduplication, and sound recordings of folksongs and poetry to other Government agencies, libraries, and other institutions, and to the general public; and distribution of recordings of the Library's literary programs and concerts to radio stations for public service broadcasts.

3. Organization of the collections.—In February 1967, the Library of Congress began the largest single bibliographical project in its history, the publication of the pre-1956 "National Union Catalog." It is expected that the project will be completed in 10 years, and that the published catalog will comprise 610 volumes. Over 160 volumes have been published. The preparation of the 18th full edition and the 10th abridged edition of the "Dewey Decimal Classification," begun during 1966, was continued in 1971. The 1969 issue of the "National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections" was published in December 1970; editorial work on the 1971 issue proceeded during most of 1971. Work progressed on the latest issue of the "National Register of Microform Masters."

Hispanic activities.....	211,315
Poetry and literature.....	1,008,240
Miscellaneous purposes.....	616,034
Total principal.....	5,248,167

The additional principal sum of $20 thousand, representing the bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard, is for the purchase of engravings and etchings (37 Stat. 319).

The use of the income from these accounts is described under Library of Congress gift and trust fund income accounts.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress for salaries shall be available for expenses of investigating the loyalty of Library employees; special and temporary services (including employees engaged by the day or hour or in piecework); and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

Not to exceed fifteen positions in the Library of Congress may be exempt from the provisions of appropriation Acts concerning the employment of aliens during the current fiscal year, but the Librarian shall not make any appointment to any such position until he has ascertained that he cannot secure for such appointments a person in any of the categories specified in such provisions who possesses the special qualifications for the particular position and also otherwise meets the general requirements for employment in the Library of Congress.

Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to reimburse the Department of State for medical services rendered to employees of the Library of Congress stationed abroad and for contracting on behalf of and hiring alien employees for the Library of Congress under compensation plans comparable to those authorized by section 444 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 889(a)); for purchase or hire of passenger motor vehicles; for payment of travel, storage and transportation of household goods, and transportation and per diem expenses for families en route (not to exceed twenty-four); for benefits comparable to those payable under sections 911(9), 911(11), and 941 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1136(9), 1136(11), and 1156, respectively); and travel benefits comparable with those which are now or hereafter may be granted single employees of the Agency for International Development, including single Foreign Service personnel assigned to A.I.D. projects, by the Administrator of the Agency for International Development—or his designee—under the authority of section 636(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (Public Law 87-195, 22 U.S.C. 2396(b)); subject to such rules and regulations as may be issued by the Librarian of Congress.

Payments in advance for subscriptions or other charges for bibliographical data, publications, materials in any other form, and services may be made by the Librarian of Congress whenever he determines it to be more prompt, efficient, or economical to do so in the interest of carrying out required Library programs.

Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress shall be available, in an amount not to exceed $50,000, when specifically authorized by the Librarian, for expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with the function or activity for which the appropriation is made. (Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1972.)

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $116 thousand; 1971, $255 thousand; 1972, $265 thousand; 1973, $285 thousand.

The programs of the Office of the Superintendent of Documents are of a service nature. There is no control over the volume of work, which is required by law.

1. Sales distribution.—Selected Government publications are purchased from the Public Printer to be placed on sale to the public. The acquisition costs for these publications are paid from sales receipts. Consequently, no appropriation is required for printing sales copies. The sales price is the cost plus 50%, as required by law. At the end of each year, net profits from the sales program are turned in to the Treasury Department as miscellaneous receipts. For 1971, $9,798 thousand was returned under this program. It is estimated that $10,453 thousand will be returned in 1972 and an additional $11,731 thousand in 1973. These returns more than cover the appropriation required to finance the sales program.

The sale of Government publications has been steadily increasing, and in the past 10 years the sales volume has increased 136%. The current public interest in the Government's publishing program clearly indicates a continuing increase in the volume of sales.

2. Distribution for other agencies and Members of Congress.—The Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists, including the list for the Congressional Record, and performs mailing operations upon request of any Government agency. Mailing services are also provided for farmers' bulletins, soil surveys, and other publications which are allocated to Members of Congress on a quota basis.

3. Depository library distribution.—Upon request, one copy of every Government publication is supplied to libraries which are designated as depositories for Government publications. The number of depository libraries has increased 77% since 1962.

4. Cataloging and indexing.—This activity covers the preparation and distribution of catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government, the principal series being the Monthly Catalog of U.S. Government Publications and the Numerical List and Schedule of Volumes.

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various agencies of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. Operations are subject to the authority of the Joint Committee on Printing (44 U.S.C. 309).

All printing and binding work for the Congress and Federal agencies is done and financed through the Government Printing Office revolving fund. The fund is reimbursed by the customer agencies and net operating income is retained for reuse by the fund.

The General Accounting Office is responsible directly to the Congress for conducting independent reviews, audits, and investigations of programs, activities, and financial transactions of Federal agencies, for rendering legal decisions relating to Government fiscal matters; for developing principles, standards, and related requirements for Federal agency accounting systems, cooperating in developing agency systems, and approving them; for the settlement of certain claims for and against the Government; and, for advising and assisting the Congress and Government agencies on matters relating to public funds.

1. Office of the Comptroller General.—Executive management of the General Accounting Office is carried out by the Comptroller General, who is assisted by the Deputy Comptroller General and staff. The staff assists the Comptroller General in coordinating the various activities of the General Accounting Office with the Congress, its committees, and individual members.

2. Office of the General Counsel.—In addition to preparing decisions and reports on the legality or propriety of proposed obligations and expenditures of the Government, the General Counsel and his staff participate in conferences with legislative and administrative officials of the Government on legal matters of a fiscal nature, the sufficiency of proposed legislation, the desirability of new legislation for particular purposes, and render all other required legal services.

3. Office of Policy and Program Planning.—This Office advises and assists the Comptroller General in policy formulation, guidance, and review with respect to all GAO functions; in establishing GAO long-range objectives and direction of effort and resource planning for the programs to carry out the objectives; and in formulating annual budgets of the GAO for submission to Congress. This Office also develops internal auditing principles and standards for the guidance of executive agencies, reviews the internal operations and performance of all GAO Divisions and Offices, and coordinates the preparation of designated GAO publications.

4. Office of Administrative Planning and Services.—This Office is responsible for continuing analysis and review of the organization and management activities of the General Accounting Office; preparation and execution of the GAO budget; maintenance of the administrative accounting, payroll, and leave systems; management of space and Government fiscal records; coordination, publication, and distribution of manuals, reports, and other documents; performing the automatic data processing operations for other divisions and offices, including ADP systems analysis, programing and computing services for both administrative and program applications; and furnishing general office services.

5. Office of Personnel Management.—In addition to administering our regular personnel functions such as appointment, placement, and classification, employee relations and services, and processing, recording, and reporting personnel actions, this office performs professional staff development functions, including: (a) Formulating and executing recruiting programs, (b) developing and carrying out training and professional career development programs, (c) participating in general control over the assignment of staff, and (d) obtaining appropriate recognition of the professional character of the accounting and auditing work of the General Accounting Office.

6. Financial and General Management Studies Division.—This Division provides cooperative assistance to departments and agencies in the development of accounting systems and reviews, evaluates, and makes recommendations relating to approval of accounting systems. It conducts special studies or reviews agency studies of programs and activities requiring application of systems analysis, statistical sampling, or actuarial techniques. It represents the General Accounting Office in the joint financial management improvement program conducted with the Office of Management and Budget, the Treasury Department, and the Civil Service Commission. It conducts Government-wide studies of the management of automatic data processing systems, and provides advice and assistance to the Congress in its area of responsibility.

7. Civil Division.—8. Defense Division.—9. International Division.—These divisions, located in Washington, D.C., are responsible for the performance of the accounting, auditing, and investigative functions of the General Accounting Office in the Federal departments and agencies and the District of Columbia, as assigned by the Comptroller General. These functions include the review and analysis of Government programs and activities for the purpose of determining: (a) Whether the funds and other resources are utilized only for authorized programs and activities and are properly accounted for and reported, (b) whether agency resources are managed efficiently and economically, and (c) whether programs are achieving the objectives intended by the Congress in enacting legislation. In addition, audits are made of negotiated contracts.

The International Division includes two oversea branches. The European branch, with headquarters in Frankfurt, Germany, is responsible for performing assigned General Accounting Office functions in the European area, including the Near East, South Asia, and Africa. The Far East branch, with headquarters in Honolulu, Hawaii, is responsible for performing assigned General Accounting Office functions in Hawaii and the Far East area, including Southeast Asia and the Southwest Pacific.

10. Field Operations Division.—This Division, composed of a central office and regional offices in principal cities in the United States, performs assigned accounting, auditing, and investigative work outside the metropolitan area of Washington, D.C.

11. Claims Division.—All claims by or against the United States are settled in this Division except those for transportation items and claims wherein exclusive jurisdiction is conferred by law upon another agency or the courts. This Division also exercises primary responsibility in carrying out GAO functions under the Federal Claims Collection Act of 1966 and the waiver of pay statute (5 U.S.C. 5584) and reviews the claim settlement and debt-collection operations of other agencies.

12. Transportation Division.—This Division audits freight and passenger transportation payments for the account of the United States, reviews the transportation practices and traffic management of agencies, and settles claims involving transportation charges.

The Tax Court hears and decides cases involving income, estate, and gift tax deficiencies and claims for refunds of excess profits taxes under the special relief sections of the Internal Revenue Code, and cases involving determinations of excessive profits on contracts renegotiated by the Federal Government.

For 1973, the court proposes a trial program of 242 weeks consisting of 190 weeks of regular trial sessions and 52 weeks of small tax case sessions, such trials to be held in about 110 cities throughout the United States, including the District of Columbia, Alaska, and Hawaii. This trial program should result in the closing of approximately 8,700 cases.

The actual and estimated work volume of the court is presented in the following tabulation.

For 1972 the U.S. Tax Court received an appropriation in the amount of $18,712 thousand to provide for the construction of a court building to be located within the District of Columbia. The Tax Court is a court of national jurisdiction headquartered in Washington, D.C., and conducting trial sessions in approximately 110 cities throughout the United States including Alaska, Hawaii, and Washington, D.C. The new building will provide adequate housing and courtroom facilities for the judges, commissioners, and for all of the supporting personnel.

According to present estimates construction will begin in April 1972 with completion planned for September 1974.

This fund, established under 26 U.S.C. 7448, is used to pay survivorship benefits to eligible widows and dependent children of deceased judges of the U.S. Tax Court. Participating judges pay into the fund 3% of their salaries or retired pay to cover creditable service for which payment is required and such additional funds as are needed are provided through the annual appropriation to the U.S. Tax Court.

On June 30, 1971, 17 judges of the court were participating in the fund, and two eligible widows were receiving survivorship annuity payments.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 102. No part of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the maintenance or care of private vehicles.

SEC. 103. Whenever any office or position not specifically established by the Legislative Pay Act of 1929 is appropriated for herein or whenever the rate of compensation or designation of any position appropriated for herein is different from that specifically established for such position by such Act, the rate of compensation and the designation of the position, or either, appropriated for or provided herein, shall be the permanent law with respect thereto: Provided, That the provisions herein for the various items of official expenses of Members, officers, and committees of the Senate and House, and clerk hire for Senators and Members shall be the permanent law with respect thereto: Provided further, That the provisions relating to positions and salaries thereof carried in House Resolution 648, Eighty-eighth Congress, and House Resolutions 150 and 282, Ninety-second Congress, shall be the permanent law with respect thereto.

SEC. 104. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein. (Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1972.)

The U.S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals has exclusive jurisdiction in appeals from judgments of the U.S. Customs Court in all cases involving the construction of the law and facts respecting the classification of merchandise and the rate of duty imposed thereunder and all appealable questions as to the laws and regulations governing the collection of customs revenues. Its decisions are final unless taken to the Supreme Court on writs of certiorari.

The Court also has exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from the Tariff Commission on questions of law only and in the matter of unfair practices in import trade and appellate jurisdiction from decisions of the Patent Office in patent and trademark cases, except those involving equity.

The U.S. Customs Court, with offices in New York City, has exclusive jurisdiction—throughout the United States and its possessions, embracing 46 customs collection districts and 286 ports of entry into which merchandise is imported—over civil actions arising under the tariff laws, the internal revenue laws relating to imported merchandise, the several Customs Simplification Acts, the proclamations of the President issued under reciprocal trade agreements, and other proclamations imposing taxes and/or quotas on imported goods, etc. Trials may be held at any port or any place within the jurisdiction of the United States, as designated by the chief judge. Cases before the court are tried under the legal procedure provided for in title 28, United States Code, entitled "Judiciary and Judicial Procedure." The court tries cases without a jury, making findings of fact, and applies the law, both statutory and general, including constitutional issues. The Government is represented before the court by an Assistant Attorney General of the United States and a staff of special trial attorneys.

The U.S. Court of Claims has jurisdiction over all cases involving claims against the United States (except in pension suits) instituted upon constitutional grounds or under Federal law or regulations, all claims arising out of any contract with the Federal Government and its agencies, and claims for the refund of taxes. It also has general jurisdiction to hear and determine claims for damages other than tort actions, provided the claimants would have the right to sue in law or equity if the United States were not immune to such suits. It has jurisdiction in suits against the United States by contractors dissatisfied with the findings and decisions of contracting agencies under terminated war contracts and jurisdiction concurrent with that of the courts of appeals to review district court decisions in cases involving tort actions. It has exclusive jurisdiction to review the decisions of the Indian Claims Commission on appeal from the Commission. It also has jurisdiction in special act cases referred to the court by the Congress, and the commissioners of the court have jurisdiction to render reports to the Congress on claims set forth in bills referred to the chief commissioner by either house of Congress.

The statutory salaries and benefits of all active U.S. circuit and district judges and all justices and judges who have retired or resigned in pursuance of law are payable from this appropriation. This item also includes the payment of annuities to widows of Supreme Court Justices. The estimate for 1973 contemplates payment of compensation and benefits for an average of 630 judges compared with 610 in 1972. This is based on an anticipated increase in the number of senior judges.

The district courts of the United States are constituted courts of bankruptcy, vested with original jurisdiction at law and in equity in proceedings brought under the bankruptcy statutes. This jurisdiction primarily is exercised through referees appointed by the several district courts. Their compensation and benefits are paid from this appropriation, which is derived from a special fund in the Treasury to which are deposited payments of fees and charges by parties to the proceedings.

This appropriation is for the operation of the Federal Judicial Center which was established by the act of December 20, 1967, Public Law 90-219 (81 Stat. 664). The Center is charged with the responsibility for furthering the development and adoption of improved judicial administration in the courts of the United States.

The estimate for 1973 makes provision for five additional staff members for the Center, additional funds for research, implementation of prior studies and contractual programs, and for innovation and systems development. Funds are provided for educational seminars for judicial and parajudicial personnel and 11 judicial council conferences. Funds for printing and reproducing the results of the seminars and conferences are included in these estimates.

The Commission is charged with the responsibility of studying, analyzing, evaluating, and recommending changes to the present bankruptcy laws. Public Law 91-354 established the Commission on July 24, 1970, with a mandate to submit a comprehensive report within 2 years after the date of enactment. Current program forecasts have made it necessary to prepare and submit legislation proposing extension of Commission activities until June 30, 1973, and an increase in fund authorization. The nine-member Commission is composed of members of the Senate, the House of Representatives, and appointees of the President of the United States, and the Chief Justice of the United States.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness advises and assists the President with respect to nonmilitary emergency preparedness activities. This includes coordinating emergency preparedness programs of Federal departments and agencies and providing staff support and policy guidance for emergency resource management planning functions. The President has delegated to the Office of Emergency Preparedness responsibility for administering the Disaster relief fund and related natural disaster activities. Specific programs include:

1. Emergency readiness.—OEP develops policies, plans, and programs to provide for continuity of civil government at the Federal, State, and local levels. The principal objectives are to preserve duly constituted authority and leadership and to enable civil government to respond to, and operate in, a national emergency. OEP undertakes planning related to mobilization and management of critical resources for use during a national emergency, and develops plans to permit all levels of government to undertake economic stabilization activities during an emergency situation.

2. Critical materials policy planning.—OEP provides guidance to other Federal departments and agencies on the development of programs to administer national policy for certain critical material items. The Director of OEP is responsible for determining whether imports threaten to impair the national security; and for policy direction, coordination and surveillance of the oil import program.

3. Analytic and computational support.—The program activities described in paragraphs 1 and 2 above require extensive analytical and computational support. This support is provided by the activities in this program.

4. Executive direction, staff, and administrative support.—Executive direction and staff and administrative support for the Office of Emergency Preparedness is provided under this activity. Funds are included to finance the salaries of the Presidential appointees and their immediate staffs. Also contained in this activity are funds for the housekeeping expenses of the Office of Emergency Preparedness in Washington, general administrative functions, congressional liaison activities, public information support, and health and legal advisory personnel.

The Office assists the President in the discharge of his budgetary, management, and other executive responsibilities.

1. Budget Review Division.—Budget instructions and procedures are developed, review of agency estimates coordinated, and the budget document is prepared.

2. Evaluation Division.—Leadership for the development and implementation of evaluation techniques throughout the Federal Government is provided.

3. Program divisions.—Agency programs, budget requests, and management activities are examined, appropriations are apportioned, proposed changes in agency functions are studied, and agencies are assisted in the improvement of their administration. Responsibility for this work with respect to particular agencies is divided among six divisions: (a) national security programs, (b) international programs, (c) economics, science, and technology programs, (d) natural resources programs, (e) general government programs, and (f) human resources programs.

4. Executive Development and Labor Relations Division.—Programs to develop, deploy, recruit, and motivate career executives in the Federal service are developed and wage and salary comparability studies are conducted.

5. Legislative Reference Division.—Proposed legislation and agency reports on pending legislation and enrolled bills are reviewed for the President.

6. Organization and Management Systems Division.—Programs and plans are developed for improved Government organization and procedures, and guidance is provided in the work of the Office to improve agency management.

7. Program Coordination Division.—Domestic programs and activities administered by various Federal departments are coordinated and the delivery of the intended services is expedited.

8. Management Information and Computer Systems Division.—Management information systems are developed to support preparation and publication of the President's budget and to provide periodic reports of program accomplishments, objectives, and plans. Policies and standards are developed for use by the agencies in the management and operation of their automatic data processing activities.

9. Statistical Policy Division.—The Government's statistical programs are coordinated and improved and proposed agency reporting plans and forms are reviewed.

Legislation has been proposed to authorize an appropriation for the Council on International Economic Policy, which was established by memorandum of the President dated January 19, 1971. The purposes of the Council are to provide a clear, top-level focus on international economic issues, to achieve consistency between international and domestic economic policy, and to maintain close coordination of international economic policy with basic foreign policy objectives.

TITLE VI—GENERAL PROVISIONS

DEPARTMENTS, AGENCIES, AND CORPORATIONS

SEC. 601. Unless otherwise specifically provided, the maximum amount allowable during the current fiscal year in accordance with section 16 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (60 Stat. 810), for the purchase of any passenger motor vehicle (exclusive of buses and ambulances), is hereby fixed at $2,100 except station wagons for which the maximum shall be $2,400.

SEC. 602. Unless otherwise specified and during the current fiscal year, no part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act shall be used to pay the compensation of any officer or employee of the Government of the United States (including any agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the Government of the United States) whose post of duty is in continental United States unless such person (1) is a citizen of the United States, (2) is a person in the service of the United States on the date of enactment of this Act, who, being eligible for citizenship, had filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States prior to such date, (3) is a person who owes allegiance to the United States, or (4) is an alien from Poland or the Baltic countries lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence: Provided, That for the purpose of this section, an affidavit signed by any such person shall be considered prima facie evidence that the requirements of this section with respect to his status have been complied with: Provided further, That any person making a false affidavit shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $4,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law: Provided further, That any payment made to any officer or employee contrary to the provisions of this section shall be recoverable in action by the Federal Government. This section shall not apply to citizens of the Republic of the Philippines or to nationals of those countries allied with the United States in the current defense effort, or to temporary employment of translators, or to temporary employment in the field service (not to exceed sixty days) as a result of emergencies.

SEC. 603. Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the current fiscal year, available for expenses of travel or for the expenses of the activity concerned, are hereby made available for quarters allowances and cost-of-living allowances, in accordance with [title II of the Act of September 6, 1960 (74 Stat. 793).] 5 U.S.C. 5922-5924.

SEC. 604. No part of any appropriation for the current fiscal year contained in this or any other Act shall be paid to any person for the filling of any position for which he or she has been nominated after the Senate has voted not to approve the nomination of said person.

SEC. 605. No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act for the current fiscal year shall be used to pay in excess of $4 per volume for the current and future volumes of the United States Code, Annotated, and such volumes shall be purchased on condition and with the understanding that latest published cumulative annual pocket parts issued prior to the date of purchase shall be furnished free of charge, or in excess of $4.25 per volume for the current or future volumes of the Lifetime Federal Digest, or in excess of $6.50 per volume for the current or future volumes of the Modern Federal Practice Digest.

SEC. 606. Funds made available by this or any other Act for administrative expenses in the current fiscal year of the corporations and agencies subject to the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended (31 U.S.C. 841), shall be available, in addition to objects for which such funds are otherwise available, for rent in the District of Columbia; services in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 3109; and the objects specified under this head, all the provisions of which shall be applicable to the expenditure of such funds unless otherwise specified in the Act by which they are made available: Provided, That in the event any functions budgeted as administrative expenses are subsequently transferred to or paid from other funds, the limitations on administrative expenses shall be correspondingly reduced.

SEC. 607. Pursuant to section 1415 of the Act of July 15, 1952 (66 Stat. 662), foreign credits (including currencies) owed to or owned by the United States may be used by Federal agencies for any purpose for which appropriations are made for the current fiscal year (including the carrying out of Acts requiring or authorizing the use of such credits), only when reimbursement therefor is made to the Treasury from applicable appropriations of the agency concerned: Provided, That such credits received as exchange allowances or proceeds of sales of personal property may be used in whole or part payment for acquisition of similar items, to the extent and in the manner authorized by law, without reimbursement to the Treasury.

SEC. 608. (a) No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency, shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes designed to support or defeat legislation pending before Congress.

(b) No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of the salary of any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service, who—

(1) prohibits or prevents, or attempts or threatens to prohibit or prevent, any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service from having any direct oral or written communication or contact with any Member or committee of Congress in connection with any matter pertaining to the employment of such officer or employee or pertaining to the United States Postal Service in any way, irrespective of whether such communication or contact is at the initiative of such officer or employee or in response to the request or inquiry of such Member or committee; or

(2) removes, suspends from duty without pay, demotes, reduces in rank, seniority, status, pay, or performance or efficiency rating, denies promotion to, relocates, reassigns, transfers, disciplines, or discriminates in regard to any employment right, entitlement, or benefit, or any term or condition of employment of, any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service, or attempts or threatens to commit any of the foregoing actions with respect to such officer or employee, by reason of any communication or contact of such officer or employee with any Member or committee of Congress as described in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

SEC. 609. No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act, shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under section 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific congressional approval of such method of financial support.

SEC. 610. Appropriations available to any department or agency during the current fiscal year for necessary expenses, including maintenance or operating expenses, shall also be available for (a) reimbursement to the General Services Administration for those expenses of renovation and alteration of buildings and facilities which constitute public improvements, performed in accordance with the Public Buildings Act of 1959 (73 Stat. 479) or other applicable law, and (b) transfer or reimbursement to applicable appropriations to said Administration for rents and related expenses, not otherwise provided for, of providing subject to Executive Order 11512, dated February 27, 1970, directly or indirectly, suitable general purpose space for any such department or agency, in the District of Columbia or elsewhere.

SEC. 611. No part of any money appropriated by this or any other Act for any agency of the executive branch of the Government shall be used during the current fiscal year for the purchase within the continental limits of the United States of any type-writing machines except in accordance with regulations issued pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended. (Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, 1972.)

The Appalachian regional development program assists the Appalachian region to meet its special problems, promote its economic development, and to establish a framework of joint Federal and State efforts to provide the basic facilities essential to economic growth in Appalachia.

Program investments made in the Appalachian region are concentrated in areas where there is significant potential for future growth and where the expected return on public dollars invested will be the greatest.

The States, acting through the Appalachian Regional Commission, are responsible for recommending local and State projects within their borders for assistance under this program.

1. Appalachian Development Highway System.—Section 201 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act authorizes construction of an Appalachian Development Highway System including local access roads. This System is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia. In addition, access roads to specific development facilities are authorized. The program, since 1969, is funded through contract authority and States are encouraged to prefinance work, with later Federal reimbursement.

The status of the System of roads including mileage prefunded by the State follows:

Development system miles (cumulative):	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Approved for construction.....	1,417	1,450	1,550

2. Demonstration health projects.—Grants are made for the construction, equipping, and operation of multicounty demonstration health facilities including hospitals, regional health diagnostic or treatment centers, and other facilities. Emphasis will be given to programs for child development and nutrition and to continued operational assistance for health activities in selected demonstrations within the Appalachian region.

3. Mine area restoration.—Section 205 of the act authorizes a program for the sealing and filling of voids in abandoned coal mines, the planning and execution of projects for the extinguishment and control of underground and outcrop mine fires, and the reclamation and rehabilitation of strip and surface mine areas, including waste banks, on public land in those areas where the potential for economic growth exists in Appalachia. States or local sponsors must bear 25% of project cost. Approved projects on a cumulative basis are:

4. Vocational education facilities.—Grants are made to States and local districts within the Appalachian region for the construction and equipment of vocational education facilities in Appalachia, and in limited cases for operation and demonstrations in Appalachia. Vocational education facilities are key elements for the training and upgrading of potential and existing labor force entrants in skills required in commercial and other vocations. Grants are administered through the Office of Education. Vocational education projects approved, including those aided by supplementary grants, are as follows:

Supplemental grants—section 214 (funds obligated).....	$6,248	$11,000	$8,000

5. Supplements to Federal grant-in-aid programs.—This program provides supplemental grants to enable areas to take advantage of other Federal programs. Direct grants, plus supplemental grants, cannot exceed 80% of the project cost. The amount of supplemental grants depends upon the relative need of the area and nature of the project.

The estimates provide for approved projects as follows: 1971, 198 projects, $37,854; 1972, 275 projects, $55,089; 1973, 200 projects, $37,000. Supplemental assistance has been provided from inception through 1971 to the following types of projects:

6. Research and local development district program.—Appalachian planning assistance is provided through grants to multicounty local development districts and for research and demonstration projects. Grants are made for up to 75% of the administrative expenses of local development districts. Other planning and technical assistance is provided for (a) programs which improve the base for economic growth, (b) programs which will attract industrial development within the region, (c) programs which improve the health, education, and skills of people, and (d) projects which conserve, maintain, or improve natural resources.

The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make loans, and in certain cases grants through waivers, for up to 80% of the preliminary cost of planning a project and obtaining an insured mortgage under section 221 of the National Housing Act, including such costs as preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site options, FHA and FNMA fees, and construction loan fees and discounts.

The Secretary is also authorized to make technical assistance grants for the organization of State housing corporations and local nonprofit groups to encourage low- and moderate-income housing.

Under the 1971 amendments to the act, grants may be made for site development costs and offsite improvements such as sewer and water line extensions where necessary for economic feasibility of the housing project. Grants for such purposes may not exceed 10% of project cost.

1. Administration.—A portion of the funds provided for disaster relief may be used for the administrative expenses of OEP in coordinating and administering the disaster relief program.

2. Aid to disaster areas.—Under the Disaster Relief Act of 1970, the Federal Government will provide supplementary assistance to State and local governments and to individuals in the event of a declared major disaster by the President. Funds may be made available directly to a State, or to Federal agencies as reimbursement for expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority. In addition, funds are also provided to States for disaster planning. Responsibility for administration of this program is delegated to the Director of OEP by Executive Order.

The activities of the Cost of Living Council, the Pay Board, the Price Commission, and other related activities of the Economic Stabilization Program are included under this heading.

1. Cost of Living Council.—The Cost of Living Council has the responsibility for establishing policies and goals which are designed to reduce the rate of inflation and maintain price stability.

The Council also has the responsibility for coordinating the program and it shares the responsibility for enforcing pay and price increase guidelines with the Price Commission and the Pay Board.

The Council is not involved in the development of specific criteria and standards governing the operating of the program, but it is authorized to recommend to the President any modifications that might be necessary to increase its effectiveness.

2. Pay Board.—The Pay Board is made up of 15 members—five representatives of labor, five representatives of management, and five members representing the public. The Board will formulate standards for wage adjustments to achieve the goals and objectives of the program. The Board is empowered to analyze and review the economic provisions of a contract to see that they are consistent with wage guidelines. The Board has the power to deal with disputes over wages and can, where appropriate, request assistance from the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

3. Price Commission.—The Price Commission is composed of seven public members who formulate and issue criteria and standards governing price and rent adjustments. The Commission is charged with the development of explicit rules governing price adjustments. It will also identify windfall profits and bring about price reductions where the operation of the stabilization program results in such profits. Interim regulations have been issued governing adjustments in rental rates and a Rent Advisory Board has been created to develop guidelines for consideration by the Price Commission.

Like the Pay Board, the Price Commission has the authority to recommend that sanctions be invoked if voluntary adherence to the guidelines and standards issued by the Commission cannot be obtained.

4. Rent Advisory Board.—The Rent Advisory Board was established by Executive Order 11632 dated November 22, 1971. The Board is composed of such members as the President may appoint from time to time. The Board provides advice concerning special considerations involved in the stabilization of rents. It also assists the Price Commission in the performance of its functions by making technical analyses of specific matters referred to it by the Commission.

Costs in 1973.—Section 216 of the Economic Stabilization Act Amendments of 1971 (Public Law 92-210, approved Dec. 22, 1971) provides for extension of Economic Stabilization Activities to April 30, 1973. This budget request provides full funding for these activities for 9 months of 1973.

Under the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, designated agencies are authorized with Presidential approval to incur obligations and make expenditures to expand production of critical materials for programs certified as essential to the national defense by the Office of Emergency Preparedness. The program is conducted primarily through a revolving fund financed by borrowing from the Treasury. The amount borrowed may not exceed $2.1 billion outstanding at any one time.

Allocations of borrowing authority by the Office of Emergency Preparedness and net borrowing from the U.S. Treasury as of June 30, 1971, were as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Authorized agency	Borrowing authority allocated	Borrowings outstanding	Net available for borrowing
General Services Administration ¹	1,942,841	1,877,500	65,341
Department of Agriculture.....	113,479	94,062	19,417
Department of Interior.....	43,500	38,800	4,700
Office of Emergency Preparedness (reserve).....	180		180

¹ In addition, an appropriation of $108 million was applied to General Services Administration activities, thus providing financing of $2,051 million to that agency.

Financial condition of the fund.—Losses under these programs are reflected as $1,532 million as of June 30, 1971, with inventory of metals and minerals carried at acquisition cost of approximately $673 million. Using inventory market price of $403 million, the deficit would amount to about $1,802 million. Interest expense on borrowing from Treasury has increased to approximately $125 million for fiscal year 1972 and annually thereafter with negligible offsetting income.

Legislation has been submitted (S. 669) to terminate the present financing system and substitute new arrangements as required. Passage of this legislation will amend title III of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, to prohibit the financing of any new contracts under the provisions of section 304; to terminate interest payments on notes issued pursuant to that section; to provide for the orderly retirement of those notes; and to provide for the cancellation of any remaining borrowing authority under section 304.

These funds are to enable the President to develop and implement improvements in the management, organization, and operation of the agencies of the executive branch. During 1971, funds were used to simplify Federal grant-in-aid programs, to develop a computerized system to track legislative bills and proposals, to improve the Government's statistical programs, and to improve the overall management of the Government through the President's Advisory Council on Management Improvement.

In 1972, funds are being used to simplify the Federal grant-in-aid program and to improve governmental management systems.

Under this program, grants of defense articles and services are made to assist other countries in improving their defensive capabilities. As the security of the free world is strengthened and other nations are increasingly able to rely on their own resources, particularly manpower, the need for U.S. forces abroad should decline and the likelihood of having to commit U.S. ground combat forces in the future should decrease.

The major portion of the military items furnished under this program is produced in the United States. Orders are placed through the U.S. military services, which are reimbursed from this account when the items are delivered. Materiel already on hand, but excess to the needs of U.S. forces, is supplied to friendly governments at no charge to the military assistance appropriation except for the costs of rehabilitation and transportation. The administrative costs related to foreign military sales are included in this account. In 1973, assistance to Thailand returns to this account; assistance to Vietnam and Laos remains in the budgets of the military services.

Excluding Thailand, the 1973 request of $780 million approximates the 1972 request of $705 million but is significantly higher than the 1972 current estimate of $500 million.

This appropriation provides funds to finance credit sales of defense articles and services to foreign countries and international organizations. Two types of financing arrangements are used: (1) direct U.S. Government credit, and (2) commercial credit guaranteed by the U.S. Government. The U.S. Government also has the authority to sell promissory notes it holds in the commercial markets.

An appropriation of $527 million is requested for 1973 to finance a credit sales program of $629 million. Of the $629 million program, $136 million will be privately financed and $34 million of the appropriation will be set aside as a guarantee reserve for this private credit.

The administrative expenses related to this program are funded from the military assistance appropriation.

This account was created to fund credit sales to Israel authorized by section 501 of the Defense Procurement Act of 1970. Since the Foreign Military Sales Act had not yet been enacted and credits for Israel were urgently required, Congress enacted the separate authorization. The $500 million appropriated in the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1971, is shown in this account. Funds for Israel in 1972 and 1973 are included in the regular foreign military credit sales account.

The administrative expenses related to this program are funded from the military assistance appropriation.

As part of the President's proposal for a strengthened U.S. international security assistance effort, Economic supporting assistance funds provide commodities and services to countries which need help in maintaining defensive forces or in attaining economic and political stability. The bulk of Economic supporting assistance funds is for countries in Southeast Asia to help them in their efforts to maintain political independence and economic stability.

As authorized by sections 21 and 22 of the Foreign Military Sales Act of 1968, as amended, this trust fund is used to facilitate cash sales of defense articles and services. The purpose of the trust fund, which is strictly a cash account, is to enable foreign governments to take advantage of savings which result from procurement through U.S. Government channels. In dollar volume, the major portion of this program consists of sales to European and other developed countries of the free world.

Defense articles from Department of Defense stocks are sold for U.S. dollars to eligible countries and international organizations if they agree to pay in advance or, as authorized by the President, within 120 days after delivery.

Defense articles and defense services may also be procured by the Department of Defense for foreign purchasers if the purchasers agree to pay the full amount of the procurement contract, which assures the Government against any loss on the contract. The Department of Defense may accept a dependable undertaking under which the purchaser agrees to pay within 120 days after delivery, in which case Department of Defense appropriations are used to meet contract payments. Defense appropriations are subsequently reimbursed with payments received from the purchasers.

Administrative expenses related to the execution of contracts under this authority are funded in the military assistance appropriation.

in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. The Bank's total authorized capital stock as of June 30, 1971, was $27 billion, of which $23.21 billion had been subscribed by 115 member countries.

The U.S. subscription is $6.35 billion, of which the paid-in portion is $635 million. The balance ($5,715 million) is subject to call if required to meet the Bank's obligations. Calls on unpaid subscriptions, were they ever to occur, would be made on the basis of a uniform percentage applied to the subscription of each member country.

As of June 30, 1971, the Bank had made loans totaling $16.1 billion (net of cancellations) in 88 member countries and to the International Finance Corporation.

Funds were requested in 1972 under existing legislation for a $246.1 million increase in the U.S. subscription to the capital of the Bank. Some 10% of the increase, or $24.61 million, is to be paid in. The balance of $221.49 million will add to the callable portion of the U.S. subscription.

2. Investment in International Development Association.—The International Development Association is an international organization affiliated with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development. The Association is designed to provide its less developed member countries with development financing in the form of long-term credits at a nominal service charge.

U.S. membership in the International Development Association was authorized by Public Law 86-565 (74 Stat. 293), approved June 30, 1960. The United States joined the Association in August 1960, and the institution began operation in November 1960.

The U.S. share of contributions provided by the 19 developed member countries of the Association is approximately 40%. As of June 30, 1971, the Association had made credit commitments for high priority economic development projects totaling $3.3 billion in 58 countries.

A supplemental appropriation of $320 million under pending legislation will be sought in 1972 for the first installment of a U.S. $960 million contribution to the third replenishment of the resources of the International Development Association; an identical amount is recommended for 1973 for the second installment.

3. Investment in Inter-American Development Bank.—The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) is an intergovernmental institution, corporate in form, whose capital stock is owned by its member governments. The Bank promotes economic development in member countries through loans and technical assistance. Twenty-three Western Hemisphere republics, including the United States, are members of the Bank. Pursuant to Public Law 86-147 (73 Stat. 229), the United States joined the Bank in December 1959, and it began operations in October 1960.

Ordinary capital.—As of October 31, 1971, the total subscribed capital of the IDB was $2,763 million, of which $388.5 million was paid in. The U.S. share was $1,173.5 million, including $150 million paid in, approximately 42½% of capital actually subscribed. Total IDB loan commitments from ordinary capital as of the same date amounted to $1,608.1 million equivalent on 215 loans.

An appropriation totaling $386.8 million is recommended for 1973 for the third installment of the U.S. share of the increase in paid-in ordinary capital and for the second installment of the U.S. share of the increase in callable ordinary capital.

Fund for Special Operations.—In addition to its ordinary capital operations, the Bank lends from its Fund for Special Operations in circumstances where ordinary capital financing is not appropriate. Contributions to the Fund total $2,328 million. The United States has contributed 77%, or $1,800 million of this amount. As of October 31, 1971, commitments from the Fund for Special Operations amounted to $2,314.4 million equivalent on 303 loans.

In 1971, $275 million was appropriated toward initial installment payments on the current replenishment for both Ordinary Capital and the Fund for Special Operations. Of this amount, $50 million remains unobligated pending the appropriation of the balance of $50 million necessary to meet the full amount required for the initial installment payment for the Fund for Special Operations.

An appropriation is proposed in 1973 under pending authorizing legislation of $450 million for the second installment of the U.S. share in the replenishment of the Fund for Special Operations.

4. Investment in Asian Development Bank.—The Asian Development Bank finances economic development projects and programs in the developing countries of Asia. The Bank's membership includes 22 countries in the Asian and Pacific region and 14 developed countries outside the region.

The authorized capital stock of the Bank is $1.1 billion. Of this, $1,005 million has been subscribed; $625 million by the regional members, including $200 million by Japan, and $380 million by the nonregional members.

The Asian Development Bank Act (Public Law 89-396) of March 16, 1966, authorized U.S. membership in the Bank. The U.S. subscription is $200 million; of that amount, $100 million is paid in and $100 million is callable.

In addition to its ordinary operations the Bank has established and accepts contributions to the Consolidated Special Funds of the Bank for use in financing high priority development projects on easier repayment terms than those applied to the Bank's loans from ordinary capital resources.

As of June 30, 1971, the Bank had made 66 loans totaling $412.2 million in 15 member countries from both Ordinary Capital and Special Funds resources.

A proposed 1972 supplemental appropriation of $60 million under pending legislation is anticipated for the first and second installments of a U.S. contribution to the Consolidated Special Funds of the Asian Development Bank, and an appropriation of $40 million for the third installment is anticipated in 1973.

The U.S. quota in the International Monetary Fund is $6,700 million, following an increase in quota by $1,540 million which took effect December 31, 1970. The Bretton Woods Agreements Act, as amended, requires congressional approval of any change in the U.S. quota. The last change in the quota was authorized by Public Law 91-599, approved December 30, 1970. As monetary transactions, increases in the U.S. quota do not result in budget expenditures.

Public Law 87-490, approved June 19, 1962, authorized an appropriation to remain available until expended, of $2 billion for U.S. participation in a 10-nation, $6 billion arrangement providing, under specified conditions, for loans by the participants to the International Monetary Fund when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. The appropriation for these arrangements, known as the General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB), was obtained on October 24, 1962.

The GAB has been drawn on by the Fund on six occasions in the total amount of $2,155 million. The United States has not yet participated in the loans extended under the GAB because the Fund's holdings of dollars have been adequate.

The Executive Directors of the International Monetary Fund renewed the GAB on October 17, 1969, for a period of 5 years, beginning October 24, 1970. The U.S. commitment to lend up to $2 billion to the Fund under the GAB will continue during the renewal period.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS AND PROGRAMS

For international organizations and programs, including loans and grants for the Indus Basin Development Fund, as authorized by section 302(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, $175,335,000, to remain available until expended. (Authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1972 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for the period from July 1 to February 22.

Voluntary contributions are provided for international organizations and programs to encourage their development assistance efforts. The bulk of the request for United Nations technical assistance and other programs is for the United Nations development program which finances most technical assistance and capital project feasibility studies undertaken within the United Nations system. Other major contributions are provided for the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Fund for Population Activities, and the United Nations Fund for Drug-Abuse Control.

Grants and loans are made to the Indus Basin development fund associated with the World Bank. This fund, to which a consortium of donors contributes, finances a construction program designed to insure an equitable division of the waters of the Indus Basin between India and Pakistan. It is supplementing irrigation and helping provide arable land for over 50 million people in the area. Funds are called for from donor nations only as needed to cover disbursement needs.

Grant funds are provided for technical assistance in areas identified by the developing countries, by international organizations, and by our own analysis as being of high priority to development. Special emphasis will be placed on research, training, and control of population growth. Maximum use will be made of private channels. Funds are included for grants to American-sponsored institutions abroad to help train qualified leadership in developing countries.

This appropriation includes funds for supervisory administrative expenses and for relief and assistance to refugees from East Pakistan and for humanitarian relief in East Pakistan. For 1973 the budget includes $100 million for relief assistance related to the recent strife in South Asia. Should conditions warrant, additional funds for refugee and humanitarian relief will be requested.

The United States assists Latin American countries to promote the economic and social development of Latin America by providing economic and technical aid. Recipient countries, in addition to providing a steadily increasing share of their own resources to development, are carrying out substantial reform programs. The United States assists development activities, particularly in agriculture, education, health, and economic integration. In order to stimulate economic activity in the region, this administration has made AID alliance loan dollars, previously restricted to U.S. procurement, eligible for procurement of goods and services throughout Latin America. It is estimated that in 1972 the Congress will appropriate $206.5 million for the Alliance loan program providing a cumulative total of $3,659 million appropriated since the inception of the Alliance for Progress. An appropriation of $224.5 million is proposed for 1973.

¹ Balance of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

This program replaced the Development Loan Fund Corporation, which was abolished November 3, 1961. It is estimated that Congress will appropriate $250 million for this program in 1972. Budget authority of $410 million is proposed for 1973.

Development loans are repayable in U.S. dollars at an interest rate of not less than 3% per annum. Loan repayments must begin not later than 10 years following the date on which the funds are lent. During the initial 10-year period the rates of interest are not to be lower than 2% per annum.

Development loans are made to promote the economic development of developing countries and areas, usually to assist in financing long-range development plans and programs. Before a loan is made, the Agency for International Development must take into account (1) whether financing could be obtained in whole or in part from other free world sources on reasonable terms, including private sources within the United States, (2) the economic and technical soundness of the activity to be financed, including the capacity of the recipient country to repay the loan at a reasonable rate of interest, (3) whether the activity gives reasonable promise of contributing to the development of economic resources or to the increase of productive capacities, (4) the consistency of the activity with, and its relationship to, other development activities being undertaken or planned, and its contribution to realistic long-range objectives, (5) the extent to which the recipient country is demonstrating its determination to take effective self-help measures, and (6) possible effects upon the economy of the United States. Development loans are not made unless there is a finding of a reasonable prospect of repayment. Additional loan criteria and standards are established by an interagency Development Loan Committee chaired by the Administrator of the Agency for International Development.

The Development loan fund was established as a corporation by the Mutual Security Act of 1958 to extend loans, credits, and guaranties to American or foreign individuals, businesses, financial institutions, or foreign governments in order to provide capital for projects and programs contributing to the economic growth of friendly developing countries.

Under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the Development Loan Fund Corporation was abolished and its functions were transferred, effective November 3, 1961, to the Agency for International Development. Subsequent to that date, the fund has remained open for the purpose of liquidating outstanding obligations. As of June 30, 1971, the undisbursed loan agreements amounted to $8.7 million. It is estimated that this balance will decrease to $5.4 million in 1972 and to $3.4 million in 1973.

Loan repayments and interest earned totaled $142.7 million in 1971 and are expected to total $130.5 million in 1972 and $129.4 million in 1973.

The Housing guaranty fund includes the Latin American housing program and worldwide housing guaranty program.

The purpose of the Latin American housing guaranty program is to assist in the development in the American Republics of self-liquidating housing projects, the development of institutions engaged in Alliance for Progress programs, including cooperatives, free labor unions, savings and loan type institutions, and other private enterprise programs in Latin America engaged directly or indirectly in the financing of home mortgages, the construction of homes for lower income persons and families, the increased mobilization of savings and the improvement of housing conditions in Latin America.

The purpose of the worldwide housing guaranty program is to facilitate and increase the participation of private enterprise in furthering the development of the economic resources and productive capacities of less developed friendly countries and areas, and to promote the development of thrift and credit institutions engaged in programs of mobilizing local savings for financing the construction of self-liquidating housing projects and related community facilities.

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 continued available the $550 million issuing authority for the Latin America housing guaranty program. The total face amount of guaranties that may be outstanding at any one time under the worldwide housing program, was limited to $130 million, not including the $30.1 million authorized and issued under predecessor programs; $5 million of the $30.1 million previously authorized by Congress for the worldwide program cannot be utilized since the prior authority did not permit the guaranty of interest.

Program projections indicate that the total amount available for authorizations for the guaranty of investments in both the Latin American and worldwide program will be authorized or in process during 1972. The projected increase in statutory authorizations proposed for 1973 for the Latin American and worldwide housing programs are as follows:

(a) Latin America housing.—An increase of $100 million, increasing the present ceiling from $550 million to $650 million.

(b) Worldwide housing.—An increase of $150 million, increasing the proposed 1972 ceiling of $255.1 million to $405.1 million.

Consistent with the intent of Congress that the housing programs be totally self-supporting, the costs of administration, program evaluation, and development, and claims investigations are paid from fee income.

The Overseas Private Investment Corporation was established by the Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 to facilitate and encourage U.S. long-term private investment in the developing countries. The Corporation's major activities include investment insurance and guaranties, loans, and investment promotion.

The Corporation's income in 1973 is estimated to be $33.4 million, less deductions of $5.8 million for administrative and preinvestment assistance expenses, excluding provision for any extraordinary claims payments that may be required as a result of events in Chile and South Asia.

An appropriation of $85 million in 1973 is requested to increase the insurance reserve to a more adequate level, given the size of the outstanding insurance portfolio and an increase in events leading to insurance claims. While it is the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government and not the ready cash reserve which secures the Corporation's outstanding insurance contracts, an adequate cash reserve is necessary to enable the Corporation to pay off its insurance claims promptly.

As a result of expropriatory actions by the Government of Chile, and the conflict in South Asia, it may become necessary at a subsequent date to seek additional funds for the Corporation. The legislation establishing the Corporation authorizes the appropriation of such amounts as may be necessary from time to time to replenish the insurance reserve or to discharge the Corporation's liabilities.

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 established the Inter-American Social Development Institute. Funding has been provided through the transfer of $10 million in 1970 and $40 million in 1971 from the Agency for International Development.

The most important characteristics of the programs are: responsiveness to Latin American and Caribbean initiatives; innovation and replicability; support for change in social structures; direct impact on people's lives; and support for Latin American and Caribbean institutions. The Institute's programs support projects involving social change as well as the dissemination of information relating to these projects.

1. Research, development, and evaluation.—Projects supported under research and development provide the basis for planning national programs to alleviate poverty and promote equality of opportunity. These consist of systematic analyses of the causes of poverty, identification of need, design of social experiments, development of accepted hypotheses into working models, expanding successful concepts to demonstration scale, and developing mechanisms for moving these programs to full-scale operation. The 1973 research and development effort will center around experiments designed to test the effectiveness of private market mechanisms for delivering social services to the poor and continuation of the most promising activities begun in prior years.

Evaluation activities included in this component are of two types: (a) Those providing an overall assessment of the impact and effectiveness of antipoverty programs, with emphasis on the extent to which programs are successful in achieving basic objectives; and (b) those aimed at assessing the relative effectiveness of different program strategies, approaches, and techniques used by antipoverty programs.

2. Community action operations.—The community action agency (CAA) structure at the community and neighborhood levels is funded under community action operations. This includes staff to plan and administer programs as well as to bring about program improvements, participation of the poor, and mobilization of resources. Community action operations include local initiative program funds which can be tailored to meet each particular community's problems, ranging from manpower, education, and health programs to consumer action, housing, and youth programs. The 1973 allocation of $314 million for local initiative will permit full refunding of programs for over 900 community action agencies, excluding agencies located on Indian reservations.

Special Indian programs serve an estimated 320,000 Indians through 69 community action agencies and eight urban centers. Local initiative funds for these programs are set at $19 million in 1973. This amount will provide for continuation of current programs and increased emphasis on self-determination programing, which is specifically aimed at developing capabilities of reservation Indians to take over services now provided by non-Indian controlled organizations.

Funds are also provided under community action operations for senior opportunities and services (SOS) projects, for State economic opportunity offices (SEOO's), and for training and technical assistance. SOS activities will be maintained at the 1972 level of $8 million. Several SEOO component demonstrations initiated in prior years will be phased out upon completion of their test period. The request includes $12 million to maintain basic SEOO activities. A decline from $12.6 to $12 million for training and technical assistance reflects a shift of legal services support to the legal services activity.

During 1972 OEO will begin implementing an agency-wide strategy to establish CAA's as independent local institutions with a self-sustaining life of their own. This goal will become the focal point of agency activity during 1973. Plans for accomplishment of the 1972-73 strategy include increasing the freedom and flexibility of CAA's to plan and carry out local initiative programs, making OEO support more responsive to local needs, strengthening CAA institutional capabilities, and increasing public and private sector support for community action.

3. Health and nutrition.—In 1973, the health services program will continue the exploration of more effective ways of organizing, delivering, and financing comprehensive health care in poverty areas. Efforts will be made to make fuller use of allied health personnel in order to increase efficiency and to prepare members of low-income groups to assume leadership and management responsibilities. Family planning activities will be continued, as will emergency food and medical services (EFMS) projects for Indians and migrants only. As needed, other EFMS outreach will continue the phase-over to Agriculture's food stamp program begun in 1972. Drug rehabilitation will be expanded, extending a program to be increased significantly during 1972. Funds will be used to support diverse approaches to treatment in cooperation with the special action office on drug abuse programs. OEO will have a major role in undertaking specialized research and demonstration projects conducted in conjunction with a nationwide evaluation program of Federal drug abuse activities.

The request for HEW, reflecting transfer of responsibility, includes $21 million to extend comprehensive health projects, $10 million for family planning projects, and $3 million for a drug rehabilitation project currently administered by OEO.

4. Special impact.—The special impact program is directed toward providing significant economic and community development impact in rural and urban areas with high concentrations of the poor. Efforts during 1972 and 1973 will be concentrated on filling the needs for new venture and operating capital of the 40 community development corporations that have received previous grants. Funding will be concentrated on the more successful community development models based on results of the evaluation of the community development corporations and their impact on economically depressed areas.

5. Migrants and seasonal farmworkers.—Under the special migrant program, over 300,000 farmworkers and family members will participate in projects currently administered through 80 grantees in 36 States. Major types of local activities include: Economic upgrading, farmworker housing, high school equivalency programs, and day care. Several new grantees will be developed in 1973 to serve areas not now covered by title III-B projects.

6. Legal services program.—The legal services program, which is currently administered by the Office of Legal Services in OEO, will be transferred to a separate legal services corporation under legislation proposed by the administration. The $71.5 million for legal services will be transferred after the corporation is established. Currently there are over 2,200 legal services lawyers handling approximately 1 million cases per year on behalf of the poor through 266 field projects. The legal services corporation will emphasize four types of assistance: (1) Direct legal advice and representation in individual cases and cases involving groups of persons similarly situated; (2) education of the poor concerning legal rights, remedies, and responsibilities; (3) improvement of the legal system to make it more responsive to the needs of the poor, achieved primarily through test litigation growing out of individual complaints and proposing appropriate changes in statutes, regulations, and administrative practices; and (4) improvement of opportunities toward self-advancement of the poor, through economic development programs and cooperation with other Federal programs. The legal services corporation funding will continue operations at essentially the 1972 program level. The amount requested includes funds for the entire legal services corporation, including operations, administration, research and development, and training and technical assistance.

8. Rural economic opportunity loan program.—Phase out of the rural economic opportunity loan program began in 1971 and will continue until all outstanding loans have been repaid. Current borrowers will continue to receive supervision while they have loans outstanding. Funds for this supervision were provided during 1971.

9. General support.—This activity provides supportive administrative functions for the OEO programs described above. The organizations included under this activity also assist in coordinating the programs of all Federal agencies in an integrated attack on poverty.

This program has been administered by the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture through delegation of authority. Under the program, loans were provided to low-income rural residents for small-farm and nonfarm enterprises to help to increase income. Loans were also made to rural cooperative enterprises serving the rural poor through purchasing, processing, and marketing activities.

Evaluations of the program have shown that these small loans have not been effective in improving the income potentials of the rural poor. No new loan agreements have been made since mid-1971 under this program.

Under an amendment (Public Law 88-94) to the Philippine war damage legislation of 1963, a special fund ($28.1 million) for education derived from the Philippine war damage claims fund was established in 1966 to be used as jointly determined by the two Presidents for the purpose of furthering educational programs to the mutual advantage of both countries. Projects totaling $26.8 million have been approved to support various educational projects in the Republic of the Philippines. It is anticipated that the balance of the funds will be utilized in 1972.

1. Investment in International Development Association.—A supplemental appropriation of $320 million will be sought in 1972 for the first installment of a U.S. $960 million contribution to the third replenishment of the resources of the International Development Association. Legislation to authorize this contribution is pending in the 92d Congress. The U.S. contribution will be part of a total increase in the Association's resources of over $2.4 billion to be provided by member countries over a 3-year period. The second $320 million installment of the U.S. contribution will be sought in 1973 and the third in 1974. The amounts to be contributed by the United States will not be expended until the International Development Association needs the funds to meet disbursements on credits extended out of the third replenishment resources.

2. Investment in Inter-American Development Bank.—An appropriation of $450 million for the second installment of the U.S. share in the proposed replenishment of the Fund for Special Operations is recommended for 1973. A further appropriation of $450 million is anticipated for 1974. The appropriations will be sought pursuant to authorizing legislation now pending in the 92d Congress.

3. Investment in Asian Development Bank.—A 1972 supplemental appropriation of $60 million is proposed for the first and second installments of a U.S. contribution to the Consolidated Special Funds of the Asian Development Bank. A final installment of $40 million is recommended for 1973. These appropriations will be sought pursuant to authorizing legislation now pending in the 92d Congress. The U.S. contribution would constitute a minority share of total contributions by all donors and would not be the largest single contribution. The amounts contributed by the United States would not be expended until needed by the Asian Development Bank to meet disbursement requirements.

A 1973 appropriation of $100 million is under consideration for the first of three equal installments of a U.S. subscription to a proposed replenishment of the Ordinary Capital of the Asian Development Bank. Of this amount, only $20 million would be for paid-in capital, and the remainder would be callable capital.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC.—. Unobligated balances as of June 30, 1972, of funds heretofore made available under the authority of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, except as otherwise provided by law, are hereby continued available for the fiscal year 1973, for the same general purposes for which appropriated; and amounts certified pursuant to section 1311 of the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1955, as having been obligated against appropriations heretofore made under the authority of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for the same general purpose as the appropriations in this Act are hereby continued available for the same period as the respective appropriations for any of the same general purpose.

SEC.—. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes within the United States not heretofore authorized by the Congress.

SEC.—. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for expenses of the Inspector General, Foreign Assistance, after the expiration of the thirty-five day period which begins on the date the General Accounting Office or any committee of the Congress, or any duly authorized subcommittee thereof, charged with considering foreign assistance legislation, appropriations, or expenditures, has delivered to the Office of the Inspector General, Foreign Assistance, a written request that it be furnished any document, paper, communication, audit, review, finding, recommendation, report, or other material in the custody or control of the Inspector General, Foreign Assistance, relating to any review, inspection or audit arranged for, directed, or conducted by him, unless and until there has been furnished to the General Accounting Office or to such committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, (A) the document, paper, communication, audit, review, finding, recommendation, report, or other material so requested or (B) a certification by the President, personally, that he has forbidden the furnishing thereof pursuant to such request and his reason for so doing.

SEC.—. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC.—. The funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act shall be available notwithstanding the provisions of section 10 of Public Law 91-672.

The Office serves as the audit and investigative arm of the Secretary. It performs all audit and investigative activities of the Department and provides personal security to the Secretary. The Office assures the Secretary of completely independent and objective selection of departmental activities for audit; critical reviews and examination of the Department's programs and activities; and factual, unbiased reporting of the results of these audits and investigations. This assures that existing laws, policies, and Department regulations are complied with, that Department programs are effectively managed, and that corrective action can be taken where necessary.

The Office also coordinates internal audit and investigative activities of the Department with other investigative agencies of the executive and legislative branches of the Government.

The Office has responsibility for the information work of the entire Department. Its major objective is to report to farmers, agricultural and closely related groups, and to the public the Department's research, action, regulatory, and other programs, using all information media. This work is carried on in close cooperation with the land-grant institutions and with private industries which serve agriculture. Workload depends upon Department program demands, direct requests, and legislative requirements.

1. Publications review and distribution.—The Department's printed publications are reviewed, published, and distributed. Processed publications are reviewed. Publications include farmers' bulletins; leaflets; periodicals; scientific, research, and marketing publications; and agricultural statistics.

2. Review and distribution of current agricultural information.—The Department's widespread activities require extensive preparation of information material for press, radio, and television use, as well as for specific agricultural outlets and the general public. Periodic crop, price, and market reports and press releases are issued. Digests, newsletters, special articles, and other editorial services are made available to press associations, farm and general publications, trade publications, daily newspapers, and encyclopedic annuals. Radio is used to reach farmers locally through single stations, and to broadcast nationally through the major networks. Films, television packages, and other services are prepared for the use of land-grant institutions, television farm broadcasters, and TV networks. Information campaigns involving activities of cross-agency interest are developed using all media. The Yearbook of Agriculture is published by the Office and distributed by the Members of Congress.

3. Review, preparation, and distribution of visual agricultural information.—Motion pictures for the Department and nonprofit organizations associated with agriculture, produced on a reimbursable basis under the Department's working capital fund, are distributed through cooperating State film libraries. Still photographs, illustrations, graphics, and exhibits are similarly produced for use in explaining and reporting on Department programs. News and general-type photographs of Department programs and activities are available to news media from a centralized library.

The Office of Management Services (OMS) provides consolidated and centralized management support services to several agencies and offices of the Department. It was established by Secretary's Memorandum No. 1529, dated January 29, 1963, to provide greater economy and effectiveness in the rendering of management service and advice through improved utilization of manpower and management techniques, increased specialization of professional skills, and more extensive use of timesaving equipment.

The consolidated management support functions include budget and finance, personnel and related programs, administrative services, and information work. These functions are financed by direct appropriation to OMS, except for activity performed for others on a reimbursable or advance payment basis; OMS is reimbursed for management support of these activities.

The organizational structure of OMS is based upon these functions with operating divisions providing the services for the following agencies and offices: Office of the Secretary, Office of Budget and Finance, Office of Hearing Examiners, Judicial Officer, Office of Management Improvement, Office of Personnel, Office of Plant and Operations, Office of the Inspector General, Office of the General Counsel, Office of Information, Office of Management Services, Cooperative State Research Service, National Agricultural Library, Statistical Reporting Service, Economic Research Service, Commodity Exchange Authority, Packers and Stockyards Administration, Farmer Cooperative Service, Rural Development Service, and the Foreign Economic Development Service.

The proposed increase will provide management support services for the increased program levels requested by the agencies and offices served by OMS.

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

For expenses necessary to enable the Agricultural Research Service to perform agricultural research and demonstrations relating to production, utilization, marketing, and distribution (not otherwise provided for), home economics or nutrition and consumer use, [to control and eradicate pests and plant and animal diseases, and to perform related inspection, quarantine and regulatory work] and for acquisition of lands by donation, exchange, or purchase at a nominal cost not to exceed $100; $170,654,000, and in addition not to exceed $15,000,000 from funds available under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, pursuant to Public Law 88-250 shall be transferred and merged with this appropriation: Provided, That appropriations hereunder shall be available for field employment pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2225), and not to exceed $75,000 shall be available for employment under 5 U.S.C. 3109: Provided further, That appropriations hereunder shall be available for the operation and maintenance of aircraft and the purchase of not to exceed [two] one for replacement only: Provided further, That appropriations hereunder shall be available pursuant to 7 U.S.C. 2250, for the construction, alteration, and repair of buildings and improvements, but unless otherwise provided, the cost of constructing any one building (except headhouses connecting greenhouses) shall not exceed $40,000, except for six buildings to be constructed or improved at a cost not to exceed $80,000 each, and the cost of altering any one building during the fiscal year shall not exceed $15,000, or 15 per centum of the cost of the building, whichever is greater: Provided further, That the limitations on alterations contained in this Act shall not apply to a total of $100,000 for facilities at Beltsville, Maryland: Provided further, That $1,310,000 of this appropriation shall remain available until expended for plans, construction and improvement of facilities without regard to the foregoing limitations: Provided further, That the foregoing limitations shall not apply to replacement of buildings needed to carry out the Act of April 24, 1948 (21 U.S.C. 113a).

[Research: For research and demonstrations on the production and utilization of agricultural products; agricultural marketing and distribution, not otherwise provided for; home economics or nutrition and consumer use of agricultural and associated products; and related research and services; and for acquisition of land by donation, exchange, or purchase at a nominal cost not to exceed $100; $173,479,500 and in addition not to exceed $15,000,000 from funds available under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, pursuant to Public Law 88-250 shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation, except that $200,000 of the foregoing amount shall be available for matching with funds utilized for research on cottonseed proteins under Public Law 89-502, and $70,000 shall remain available until expended for plans, construction, and improvement of facilities without regard to limitations contained herein: Provided, That the limitations contained herein shall not apply to replacement of buildings needed to carry out the Act of April 24, 1948 (21 U.S.C. 113a): Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to formulate a budget estimate for fiscal 1973 of more than $15,000,000 for research to be financed by transfer from funds available under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935, and pursuant to Public Law 88-250;]

[Plant and animal disease and pest control: For operations and measures, not otherwise provided for, to control and eradicate pests and plant and animal diseases and for carrying out assigned inspection, quarantine, and regulatory activities, as authorized by law, including expenses pursuant to the Act of February 28, 1947, as amended (21 U.S.C. 114b-e), $100,154,650, of which $1,500,000 shall be apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects, plant diseases and animal diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions: Provided, That $2,000,000 of the funds for control of the fire ant shall be placed in reserve for matching purposes with States which may come into the program: Provided further, That no funds shall be used to formulate or administer a brucellosis eradication program for the current fiscal year that does not require minimum matching by any State of at least 40 per centum: Provided further, That, in addition, in emergencies which threaten the livestock or poultry industries of the country, the Secretary may transfer from other appropriations or funds available to the agencies or corporations of the Department such sums as he may deem necessary, to be available only in such emergencies for the arrest and eradication of foot-and-mouth disease, rinderpest, contagious pleuropneumonia, or other contagious or infectious diseases of animals, or European fowl pest and similar diseases in poultry, and for expenses in accordance with the Act of February 28, 1947, as amended, and any unexpended balances of funds transferred under this head in the next preceding fiscal year shall be merged with such transferred amounts;]

Special fund: To provide for additional labor, subprofessional and junior scientific help to be employed under contracts and cooperative agreements to strengthen the work at research installations in the field, not more than $2,000,000 of the amount appropriated under this head for the previous fiscal year may be used by the Administrator of the Agricultural Research Service in departmental research programs in the current fiscal year, the amount so used to be transferred to and merged with the appropriation otherwise available under "Agricultural Research Service, Research". The Service conducts basic and applied research in the fields of livestock, plant sciences, entomology, soil and water conservation, agricultural engineering, utilization and development, nutrition and consumer use, marketing and on the development of methods to eradicate narcotic-producing plants. The activities financed from this appropriation are described below.

1. Research.—(a) Farm research.—Improved breeding, feeding, and management practices, including management of animal wastes, are developed for farm livestock, poultry, and domestic fur animals. Practical methods are sought for control of diseases, parasites, and insect pests affecting them and to protect them from chemical toxicity and other hazards.

Investigations are conducted to improve varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants, and to develop new crops; to improve crop-production practices, including methods to control plant diseases, nematodes, and weeds, and reduce cost of production; and to develop safe chemical, biological, and other methods for control of harmful pests affecting farm production.

Investigations are conducted to improve the management of natural resources, including investigations to improve soil and water management (including salinity and saline soils), irrigation, and conservation practices; to study hydrologic problems of agricultural watersheds; to determine the relation of soil types and water to plant, animal, and human nutrition; and to apply engineering principles to improve efficiency and reduce costs of agricultural production.

The research is aimed at the profitable production of an adequate supply of food, feed, fiber, and other agricultural products of desired quality at minimum costs. Increased attention has been given to studies on protection of plants, animals, and natural resources from harmful effects of soil, water, and air pollutants. Research also concerns the application of remote sensing techniques in meeting agricultural problems.

The 1973 program provides for complete staffing, equipping, and operation of pesticide laboratories for research on biological and other alternate methods of pest control and for additional testing of nonchemical means of pests control.

(b) Utilization research and development.—Chemical, physical, and biological research is conducted to develop increased industrial uses of farm products, and new and improved foods, feeds, and fabrics; and to develop improved methods for processing agricultural commodities.

The research aim is to expand the demand for farm products by developing new and improved products and economical processes tailored to the requirements of the domestic and foreign markets. The research conducted includes studies to protect food and feed products from harmful microbial organisms and naturally occurring toxins and studies of health-related problems of tobacco. Increased effort is being given to the processing of agricultural commodities to minimize waste formation and to utilize waste products to avoid pollution.

(c) Nutrition and consumer use research.—Studies are made of human nutritional requirements, composition and nutritive value of foods, and consumer and food economics. The research aim is to determine nutrient requirements and how foods can supply these to best assure nutritional well-being of people throughout their lifespan; to provide up-to-date information about food consumption and nutrition of the population; and to develop improved procedures for household preparation, care, and preservation of foods which will preserve their nutritional, sanitary, and wholesome quality.

(d) Marketing research.—Practical answers to reduce costs and maintain product quality in moving products from farm to consumer are sought through research. For farm products as they pass through marketing channels, efforts are made to develop safe methods to protect against insect attack, find objective methods to determine quality, reduce losses from waste and spoilage, and improve efficiency in physical handling and transportation. The work includes research at each stage of marketing, such as assembly points and storage facilities, and of transportation at terminal or central markets, and at wholesale and retail markets. Research is also concerned with mycotoxins in agricultural products in relation to off-farm handling, conditioning, and storage.

(e) Research and development on the eradication of narcotic-producing plants.—Research under this activity was started in 1972 as outlined under the Omnibus Drug Control Message of June 17, 1971. The research conducted under this activity is directed toward the development of technology for the detection and destruction of illicit growth of narcotic-producing plants without adverse ecological effects. The development of this eradication technology is carried out in cooperation with research institutions in foreign countries.

(f) Coordination of departmental and interdepartmental activities related to pests and their control.—The 1973 estimates provide for the availability of $158 thousand for the use by the Secretary to meet emergency situations relating to the safe use of pesticides. The project provided for coordination with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Department of the Interior, Environmental Protection Agency, and other agencies of the Federal Government in development of measures to protect the public health, producers, and resources.

(g) Construction of facilities.—The 1973 estimates include $250 thousand for planning an addition to the Plum Island Animal Disease Laboratory; and $1,060 thousand for planning and construction of an incinerator and waste water treatment facilities at the Plum Island Animal Disease Laboratory. The proposed increase is offset by the nonrecurring amount of $70 thousand provided for planning a soil and water laboratory at Beckley, W. Va., in 1972.

2. Plant and animal disease and pest control.—The regulatory and control activities previously carried out under this subappropriation item by the Agricultural Research Service were transferred to the Animal and Plant Health Service which was established effective October 31, 1971, pursuant to authority of the Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953. Narrative statements describing the programs and performance of these activities are included in this volume under Animal and Plant Health Service. The level of costs, financing and outlays relating to obligations incurred under these activities prior to October 31, 1971, are included under this account.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $17,125 thousand; 1971, $16,349 thousand; 1972, $20,482 thousand; 1973, $30,410 thousand.

Foreign currencies which the Treasury Department determines to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States are used for expenses of carrying out programs of the Department of Agriculture as authorized by law and described under sections 104(b)(1) and 104(b)(3) of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Research is carried on through agreements negotiated with research institutions and organizations in foreign countries. The research must be of importance to American agriculture. It serves to preserve and expand existing markets and develop new ones for agricultural commodities. It provides for research supplementary to domestic programs on problems of farm, forest, marketing, utilization, agricultural economics, and human nutrition, and makes possible the conduct of research on exotic insect pests and diseases of plants and animals which could not be done in the United States. Specialized projects provide for the translation and dissemination of foreign language scientific publications. The increase proposed in 1973 would be used to purchase foreign currencies in those countries determined to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States to expand overseas research of value to U.S. agriculture and forestry. Total estimated cost in U.S. dollars (charged to regular appropriations) for program direction and supervision of projects in 1973 is $550 thousand.

Public Law 88-592, approved September 12, 1964, authorized the sale of the Animal Quarantine Station, at Clifton, N.J., to the city of Clifton, and application of the proceeds of sale to the planning and construction costs of a new station in the New York-New Jersey port and airport area. This activity has been transferred to the Animal and Plant Health Service which was established effective October 31, 1971, pursuant to authority of the Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953.

The Service was established on October 31, 1971, pursuant to the authority of the Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953. The programs of the Service were formerly conducted by the Agricultural Research Service.

The major objective of the Service is to protect the animal and plant resources of the Nation, through a series of plant and animal disease and pest control programs, and through cooperation with States and local agencies and foreign governments. Costs, financing, and outlays relating to obligations incurred prior to October 31, 1971, are included in this volume under Agricultural Research Service; related level of activity data are included below for comparative purposes.

1. Plant disease and pest control.—Programs are designed to keep out of this country by inspection at ports of entry those harmful insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and other pests that cause great damage abroad. Working with the States, programs are conducted to eradicate or prevent spread of crop pests that become established in this country. Assistance is given to the States to suppress incipient and emergency outbreaks of crop pests. The 1973 program includes an increase for agricultural quarantine inspection and pest management.

The level of activities for plant pest control is shown by the selected examples that follow:

2. Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to keep communicable diseases of foreign origin from entering this country and to prevent the spread of disease through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics. Other programs are directed at the control and eradication of livestock diseases. The animal welfare program is concerned with the humane care and handling of approximately 40 million warmblooded animals. The 1973 estimates propose a program to detect and combat African swine fever. The estimates propose increases for a cooperative screw-worm eradication program in Mexico, animal welfare, veterinary biologics and a decrease in the hog cholera eradication program.

The level of activities for the major control programs on animal diseases and pests is as follows:

3. Construction of facilities.—The 1973 program provides increases for planning an offshore animal quarantine station and a veterinary biologic facility. Construction of an animal import center at Floyd Bennett Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., is planned for 1973 with the $1,500 thousand which was appropriated under the 1970 appropriation act in accordance with Public Law 88-592.

4. Contingencies.—Of the total annual amounts provided under this appropriation $1.5 million is apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects, plant diseases, and animal diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions.

Public Law 88-592, approved September 12, 1964, authorized the sale of the Animal Quarantine Station, at Clifton, N.J., to the city of Clifton, and application of the proceeds of sale to the planning and construction costs of a new station in the New York-New Jersey port and airport area. A sales contract between the Department and the city of Clifton was executed on December 16, 1966, at the appraised value of $527 thousand. An additional $1.5 million was provided in 1970 under the subappropriation Plant and animal disease and pest control, now redesignated Animal and Plant Health Service, for the remainder of the total cost of $2,027 thousand for the new station. Procedures are in process to transfer to the Department a site declared excess by the Department of Defense, at Floyd Bennett Field, N.Y.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $7,631 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$35 thousand); 1971, $7,483 thousand; 1972, $13,009 thousand; 1973, $18,473 thousand.

The Service administers funds for payments and grants to State agricultural experiment stations and other eligible institutions for the support of research in agriculture, the rural home, the rural community, and forestry. This administration involves supervision of the funds, and close advisory relations with the State agricultural experiment stations, schools of forestry, and other institutions eligible to receive funds. The Service participates in the planning and coordination of research programs among the States and between the States and the Department.

1. Payments to agricultural experiment stations under the Hatch Act.—Grants under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States and Puerto Rico for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community. The increase requested for 1973 will provide for increased costs of research.

2. Grants for cooperative forestry research.—These grants are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States and Puerto Rico and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school. The act requires that the Federal funds paid to each institution be matched by funds from non-Federal sources for forestry research. In 1973, additional funds will provide for increased costs of research.

3. Contracts and grants for scientific research.—These funds are for the support of grants on specific research problems at nonprofit institutions of higher education or nonprofit organizations whose primary purpose is the conduct of such research. Every research proposal selected for funding must be evaluated and classified as outstanding and appropriate to the needs of the designated problem area. A major portion of the funds will continue to be allocated to colleges established under the second Morrill Act of 1890 and Tuskegee Institute. The increase will be used for pest management research.

5. Penalty mail.—Funds to cover the cost of penalty mailings for State agricultural experiment station directors are provided under this activity.

6. Federal administration.—A coordinating and review staff is maintained to examine research projects and assist State institutions and Federal agencies.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, community development, 4-H youth programs, and related subjects. This educational work takes research results, technological advancements, and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a program for action. Cooperative Extension Service interprets, disseminates, and encourages practical use of knowledge. It transmits information from researchers to people.

1. Payments to States and Puerto Rico.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act for payments to States and Puerto Rico are distributed primarily on the basis of population and to a degree on basis of special problems and needs. Funds appropriated under the Agricultural Marketing Act are distributed to States and Puerto Rico on a matching basis under approved projects. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State and county extension workers who work with individuals, families, community organizations, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods for production, marketing, nutrition, and family living. Work with youth is accomplished largely through 4-H clubs. Funds also provide for Federal payment to the Bureau of Employees' Compensation Fund. Extension agents are paid from Federal, State, and county sources. The mandatory retirement contribution for these agents is authorized by Public Law 854, approved July 31, 1956. The employer's contribution to the retirement fund is provided by this Federal appropriation. The increase of $5,376 thousand in this item will be used: (1) To provide $5,376 thousand for increased costs of program operations, (2) to provide $500 thousand for the pest management program, offset, (3) by a decrease of $500 thousand in the funds added by Congress for 1972 for the program in cutting cotton production costs.

2. Penalty mail.—Funds for the cost of penalty mailings for State extension directors and cooperative extension agents are provided under this subappropriation. The increase of $4 million will provide for the additional cost of penalty mailings resulting from increased program activities.

3. Federal administration and coordination.—The Extension Service provides leadership and assistance to States and Puerto Rico in developing extension programs, improving teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, and administrative services. Extension Service also coordinates the educational activities of Department of Agriculture agencies.

The National Agricultural Library, cooperating jointly with the two other national libraries—the Library of Congress and the National Library of Medicine—provides coverage and servicing of worldwide publications in the agricultural, chemical, and biological sciences. It serves the research, extension, regulatory, and other programs of the Department and State agricultural agencies. Since the Library's primary purpose is to provide for research needs, it has acquired and preserved what is considered to be the most exhaustive body of literature available on all phases of agriculture and the allied sciences—botany, chemistry, animal industry, veterinary medicine, biology, agricultural engineering, rural sociology, forestry, entomology, food and nutrition, soils and fertilizers, and the marketing, transportation, and other economic aspects of agricultural products. Publications are currently acquired from more than 150 governments and jurisdictional entities in some 50 different languages. In addition, printed information of agricultural societies, organizations and cooperatives, and general material in the field of agriculture are collected and made available for use.

Information contained in the agricultural literature is disseminated through bibliographies, reference services, loans and photocopies to agricultural colleges and universities, research institutions, Government agencies, agricultural associations, industry, individual scientists, farmers, and the general public in every part of the world.

During 1971, 162,872 separate issues of periodicals were added to the collection by purchase, gift, and exchange. During the same period 150,873 loans of books and periodicals were made and 161,505 reference questions answered.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $636 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$47 thousand); 1971, $660 thousand; 1972, $660 thousand; 1973, $660 thousand.

The Service administers the Department's programs of crop and livestock estimates and statistical research and service. Statistical and economic data developed by the Service on food and agriculture are essential to farmers, processors, and handlers in making production and marketing decisions. It also helps legislators, administrators, and others concerned with developing and administering agricultural programs. Further, data provided by the Service is basic to economic research and analysis and other agricultural research programs.

1. Crop and livestock estimates.—The Service provides the official national estimates of acreage, yield, and production of crops; stocks and value of farm commodities; and numbers and inventory value of livestock items. Data on approximately 150 crops and livestock products are covered in some 600 reports issued each year. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices.

The work of the Service is conducted through 44 State offices serving the 50 States; most of these offices are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide much additional State and county data; Federal funds are not available for collection and publication of this data. During 1971, cooperating States expended an estimated $3.5 million of their own funds on such associated State programs.

A comparison of activities in 1970 and 1971, including work performed under cooperative arrangements, follows:

2. Statistical research and service.—This work includes review of all statistical forms, survey plans, and reporting and recordkeeping requirements originating in the Department which require Office of Management and Budget approval; liaison within the Department and with other agencies for coordination of statistics; research on and development of sampling, forecasting, and other basic statistical techniques and methods to improve the crop and livestock estimates of the Department; provision of technical consulting services on new or improved statistical techniques to other agencies of the Department; use of and consultation on automatic data processing, to develop and adapt this technology to the improvement of the accuracy and timeliness of crop and livestock estimates; and conduct of special surveys relating to the marketing of agricultural products. A comparison of activity in 1970 and 1971 follows:

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $825 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$65 thousand); 1971, $461 thousand; 1972, $461 thousand; 1973, $461 thousand.

The Economic Research Service was established by Secretary's memorandum No. 1446, Supplement No. 1, of April 3, 1961, under Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953 and other authorities. The Service develops and carries out a program of economic research designed to provide economic intelligence for the Department of Agriculture and other Federal decisionmakers, farmers and related industries, and the general public. The findings of this research are made available to these users through research reports and through economic outlook and situation reports on major commodities, the national economy, and the international economy. The Service carries out the following major activities:

1. Farm economics research consists of a nationwide program of research dealing with the economic problems of agricultural production and resource use. Farm production economics research includes analyses of farm production costs and efficiency, use of capital, labor and other resources in agriculture, profitable adjustments in farming, and financial problems of farmers. Natural resources economics include studies of the use and management of land and water resources, including the quality of these resources, resource institutions, and watershed and river basin development problems. Economic development research includes a broad program of economic studies on development of rural areas, employment opportunities for farm and other rural people, and availability and factors affecting the availability of public and private facilities and services necessary to improve the quality of rural life, including local governments and their organization.

The increases requested in fiscal year 1973 will be used for research in design of strategies for rural development projects, and research on the cost of controlling and adapting agricultural production to meet environment standards.

2. Marketing economics research includes economic analyses and research relating to the marketing of agricultural commodities, the organizational structure, practices, and performance of commodity markets from the farm to the consumer, costs and margins involved in the marketing of agricultural products, farmer's bargaining power, the economics of product quality and grade, market potentials, distribution and merchandising of agricultural products, and the economics of transportation.

3. Domestic and foreign economic analysis.—Domestic economic analysis consists of economic and statistical research on agricultural prices, farm income, commodity outlook and situation, supply and consumption of farm products, and agricultural history. Foreign economic analysis includes: Studies of supply and demand and trade in farm products in foreign countries and their effect on prospects for U.S. exports; analysis of farm export programs, progress in economic development and its relationship to sales of farm products, assembly and analysis of agricultural trade statistics; and analysis of international financial monetary programs and policies as they affect the competitive position of U.S. farm products.

The increase requested in fiscal year 1973 will be used for research on the comparative advantage of the United States in world agricultural trade.

The Service functions through a central office in Washington, D.C., and a small field staff at each of 64 locations, principally the Land Grant Colleges and Universities, throughout the United States. Much of the research is carried on in cooperation with State agricultural experiment stations.

The Service administers the Department's responsibilities in the agricultural phases of the U.S. foreign development assistance programs. This includes direction of the Department's activities under agreement with the Agency for International Development (AID), Peace Corps, and other development assistance organizations, particularly agricultural technical assistance and training programs. The Service participates with AID in the planning of agricultural development policy, in formulating technical assistance projects, and in the review and evaluation of agricultural assistance efforts. In performing these functions, the Service works closely with other U.S. and international organizations to help them utilize the scientific and institutional competence of American agriculture in carrying out development assistance programs. The Service is financed mainly with funds allocated from AID.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $239 thousand (1971 adjustments, $28 thousand); 1971, $153 thousand; 1972, $153 thousand; 1973, $153 thousand.

The major objectives of the Commodity Exchange Authority, in the enforcement of the Commodity Exchange Act, are to protect the price and hedging services of the commodity futures markets. These services are widely used by farmers, merchandisers, and processors. To carry out its enforcement objectives, the Commodity Exchange Authority works to maintain fair trading practices and competitive pricing on commodity exchanges, and to prevent price manipulation, cheating, fraud, and abusive acts and practices in commodity transactions. Enforcement of the Act includes supervision of 20 commodity exchanges designated as contract markets, approximately 350 brokerage firms registered as futures commission merchants, and about 1,200 registered floor brokers operating on the exchanges.

The highlight of fiscal 1971 was the new record set in volume of regulated futures trading, up 15% from the previous year. An estimated 11.8 million futures transactions (one side only) were made in fiscal 1971, with a value of $115.2 billion, compared with 10.3 million transactions, valued at $92.9 billion a year earlier. Of the 20 commodities regulated, corn led the markets in fiscal year 1971, accounting for nearly one-fourth of the transactions in all regulated commodities. Volume of trading reached an all-time high of 13.7 billion bushels, more than double the volume of the previous year. Soybean trading in fiscal 1971, second to corn, also doubled over the previous year. Trading volume climbed to 13.4 billion bushels compared with 6.4 billion bushels in fiscal 1970. Soybean volume in the past year was the largest since 1965-66.

1. Registration and auditing of brokerage houses.—This consists of (a) protection of customers' funds through the establishment and enforcement of minimum financial standards for futures commission merchants and periodic audits of their books and records, and (b) annual registration of futures commission merchants and floor brokers.

The program is aimed at assuring fair play in the marketing of livestock, meat, and poultry. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition for livestock, meats, and poultry, so as to bring to farmers and ranchers the true market value of their livestock and poultry. Members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices in the marketing of meats and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which could unduly increase meat and poultry prices.

The volume of work performed is indicated by the following examples:

The Foreign Agricultural Service helps American agriculture to maintain and expand foreign markets for its products and reports foreign developments as a guide to American agricultural production, policies, and programs.

(A) The Service helps to develop foreign markets for U.S. farm products through effective market promotion under special export programs and through continuous efforts to remove international trade barriers that inhibit export sales.

(B) The Service maintains a worldwide agricultural intelligence and reporting service that enables American agriculture to carry out its production, policies, and programs in the context of world developments. Pertinent agricultural and economic data of foreign production and markets, and information on foreign agricultural policies are continuously analyzed and reported.

1. International trade.—The Service directs and coordinates Department responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations, under the authority of the Trade Expansion Act. It identifies and strives to reduce foreign trade barriers to U.S. agricultural exports. Developments in foreign trade policies are examined and their effect on agricultural trade and operations are reported with recommendations as to courses of action.

The Service recommends Department positions and participates in negotiations on trade agreements and international commodity agreements. It reviews and reports trade regulations of countries (primarily those signatory to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) as to how such regulations affect the movement of U.S. farm products in world trade.

The Service administers a program of import controls, in accordance with section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, on foreign farm products which would render ineffective or materially interfere with Department programs relating to agricultural commodities. It is also responsible for administering import controls established under the 1964 Meat Import Act and section 204 of the Trade Expansion Act.

2. Agricultural attachés.—The Service maintains agricultural attachés at 61 foreign posts to assist in the development of markets abroad for U.S. agricultural commodities. They work closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups and maintain contacts with foreign governments to promote greater market accessibility for U.S. farm products. They carry out a comprehensive schedule of reporting foreign agricultural production, marketing, and trade policy developments to keep U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

3. Market development.—The Service administers programs concerned with the development of foreign markets for agricultural products of the United States, and coordinates interagency participation and action essential to administration of these programs. These functions involve: (a) Developing a system of worldwide promotional programs, on a commodity-by-commodity basis, in cooperation with national organizations of producers, processors, and exporters, and providing overall guidance to these organizations in carrying out cooperative programs; (b) developing, operating, and evaluating a worldwide system of multicommodity promotional programs utilizing trade fairs, trade centers and point-of-purchase campaigns to expand oversea markets; (c) reviewing foreign marketing plans; providing technical assistance in their design; developing procedures and controlling budgets and funds essential to their implementation; and evaluating programs implemented; (d) cooperating with State and local organizations in programs designed to provide technical assistance to U.S. agricultural export firms and to stimulate participation of new U.S. "cooperator" groups in promotional projects; (e) developing and guiding a systematic review of foreign markets on a country-by-country basis to find new market opportunities for U.S. agricultural products and to develop long-range promotional plans for such markets; and (f) exploring new methods and techniques to stimulate the flow of U.S. farm products into oversea markets.

4. Commodity programs.—Information essential to domestic planning and to foreign marketing of specific U.S. farm commodities is obtained, analyzed, and made available to U.S. farm and trade groups and to Government. Foreign agricultural competition is analyzed and reported. Marketing programs, in which producers, exporters, and Government officials participate, are developed to maintain and expand the foreign market for U.S. farm products. Assistance is given to U.S. trade representatives in negotiations with foreign officials. Assistance is given to American exporters and foreign importers to bring them together under conditions favorable to trade.

Market development projects.—Foreign currencies generated by the sale of agricultural commodities under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, as well as foreign currencies acquired by the United States from other sources, are used by the Service to develop new foreign markets and expand existing markets for U.S. agricultural commodities, including cotton, dairy products, fats and oils, grain, feed, livestock and meat, poultry, fruits and vegetables, and tobacco.

The type of market development projects being carried out include sales promotion campaigns, trade fairs and exhibits, nutrition demonstrations, and market analyses. In 1973, the unobligated balance brought forward will be used to purchase those currencies necessary to carry on the program. Dollar funds for use in other countries are included in the appropriation Salaries and expenses.

The Service was established on March 28, 1969, pursuant to the authority of 5 U.S.C. 301 and the Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953. The programs of the Service were formerly performed by the Foreign Agricultural Service and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The major objective of the Service is to promote and assist in the expansion of export sales of U.S.-produced farm products. This is accomplished through a series of programs and activities described in the three major categories below, and through continuing cooperation with other U.S. Government agencies, foreign governments, export trade firms, banks, and ocean chartering agencies.

1. Commodity exports.—The Service administers programs to facilitate and expand the commercial export sales of privately owned and Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) owned agricultural commodities, and develops related pricing policies and export payment rates for applicable commodities. The Service also carries out the domestic operations to implement the Wheat Trade Convention of the International Grains Arrangement, including the fixing of payment rates and certificate costs for export marketing certificates. These programs are authorized by the CCC Charter Act, and the Agricultural Acts of 1949 and 1964, as amended.

2. Public Law 480.—The Service conducts programs which facilitate the sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms or for foreign currencies. In addition, large quantities of these commodities are donated to foreign governments, intergovernmental and voluntary agencies, and the world food programs in some 100 countries. These programs are authorized by titles I and II of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended (Public Law 480).

3. Commercial credit and barter programs.—The Service conducts the CCC export credit sales program under authority of the Corporation's charter authority and section 4 of the Food for Peace Act (7 U.S.C. 1707a). This is a commercial program under which U.S. agricultural commodities obtained either from corporation inventories or from private stocks are financed for export up to a maximum credit period of 3 years. For all transactions there is required an irrevocable letter of credit from an acceptable foreign or U.S. bank assuring payment in dollars, with interest at rates comparable to private U.S. commercial rates. The Service also conducts, under the CCC Charter Act and the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, barter transactions which use agricultural exports to generate the funds to pay for goods and services which U.S. Government agencies would otherwise buy abroad with dollars. Exports are restricted to areas where they will help maintain or increase the U.S. share of markets, thereby benefiting the balance of payments. In exceptional circumstances, barter may also be used to procure strategic materials for the national and supplemental stockpiles. Other than in stockpile barter, the agricultural commodities may be from private stocks or from those acquired by CCC in its support operations. No new contracts for strategic materials have been made since fiscal year 1968 and none are planned. Activity under these old contracts was completed during fiscal year 1971.

Funds for the operation of the Service are provided from the limitation on amounts available for administrative expenses of the CCC.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS AND SPECIAL EXPORT PROGRAMS

Facilities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation may by law be used in carrying out programs for exporting agricultural commodities. The laws also authorize appropriations to be made to cover costs of such programs. When funds become available, advances are made to the corporation for estimated costs. If the amounts appropriated are greater than actual needs, the excess is used to reduce future appropriation requests. If appropriations are less than actual needs, other corporation funds may be used temporarily to finance the balance of authorized costs.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Included in this category are the following activities carried out under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as amended: Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I); sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I); and commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

PUBLIC LAW 480

1. Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms are made under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended, (7 U.S.C. 1701-1710).

The Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I. Sales are made to friendly countries—as defined in section 103(d) of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (secs. 103 (c) and (n)).

No agreements may be entered into after December 31, 1973 (sec. 409), and agreements may not be made under title I in any calendar year which call for an appropriation to reimburse the Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies convertible to dollars. These initial payments are applied against costs to reduce appropriation requests. On credit agreements under title I, the President is authorized to require payment upon delivery in dollars or foreign currencies of amounts needed for payment of U.S. obligations and certain other purposes.

The act provides for a progressive shift from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales, to be completed by December 31, 1971. These estimates reflect the completion of this shift. To the extent that transition from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales is not possible, transition to convertible foreign currency credit sales is authorized on terms which permit conversion to dollars at the exchange rate applicable to the sales agreement.

Factors determining availability of commodities for disposition under Public Law 480 are productive capacity, domestic requirements, farm and consumer price levels, anticipated commercial exports, and adequate carryover. No commodity is available for disposition if the disposition thereof would reduce the domestic supply below that needed to meet domestic requirements, adequate carryover, and anticipated exports for dollars.

The Corporation finances only the differential between U.S.-flag rates and world rates for the cost of ocean freight.

(a) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I).—Sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies are made to countries unable to expand commercial purchases because of a lack of dollar exchange. Foreign currencies received in payment are deposited to the account of the U.S. Treasury and can be used only as stated in section 104. The dollar value of such deposits through June 30, 1971, amounted to $12.8 billion.

Uses fall into two groups—those of benefit to the foreign country, mainly loans and grants to promote economic development and to support common defense, and those of benefit to the United States. The latter includes, among others, expenses of the U.S. Government abroad, agricultural market development, educational exchange, construction of military family housing, and sales of foreign currency to U.S. citizens and tourists.

Foreign currencies including foreign currency loan repayments for U.S. uses, and certain foreign currency grants, are subject to the appropriation process. Sales agreements specify particular uses, and in those entered into after December 31, 1964, at least 20% of the foreign currencies are required to be subject to the appropriation process, with certain exceptions. Such uses reduce dollar outflow and the deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied as a reduction in appropriation requests.

Section 509 of Public Law 86-500, approved June 8, 1960 (7 U.S.C. 1704b note) provides that at least 75% of the total cost of foreign military housing projects (unless otherwise specified) shall be paid from foreign currencies acquired under title I. Pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2681(b), as amended, the estimate reflects transfer to the Corporation of $6 million each year to liquidate amounts due. Of this amount, $2 million will be applied to the French housing barter transaction discussed under the Corporation's special activities and the remaining $4 million will be applied against other amounts due, with a balance of $31 million remaining unpaid as of June 30, 1973.

From inception through June 30, 1971, sales agreements have been signed with 54 countries. They cover sales of commodities at an export market value of over $13.8 billion. Major items are wheat, cotton, fats and oils, rice, and feed grains.

The following table reflects costs incurred (in thousands of dollars):

(b) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I).—Sales of U.S. agricultural commodities under long-term dollar credit terms are also authorized.

Agreements are made with friendly countries or with United States and foreign private trade. They may provide for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity.

Payments are in dollars with interest at rates not less than the minimum required by section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under that section. Payments are made in reasonable annual amounts over periods of not to exceed 20 years from the date of last delivery in each calendar year under the agreement, except that the first annual payment may be deferred for a period of not more than 2 years after such date of last delivery. Interest is computed from the date of such last delivery. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reduce the appropriation request. Private trade agreements must provide for projects to establish improved storage or marketing facilities or otherwise encourage private economic enterprise in friendly countries.

Credit terms for convertible foreign currency credit sales are to be no less favorable to the United States than those for development loans made under section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, which authorizes loans to be made on the basis of payment in 40 years with a 10-year grace period. Dollar payments, when received, will also be applied to reduce appropriation requests.

Total agreements made since inception to June 30, 1971, amount to $2,976.9 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipment on U.S. ships. Major commodities are wheat, cotton, oils, rice, and feed grains. Payments for the period amount to $384.2 million, of which $274.0 million was applied to principal and $110.2 million to interest.

2. Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).—Available agricultural commodities are furnished to meet famine or other urgent or emergency relief needs. Also, commodities are furnished to promote economic and community development in friendly developing countries, to combat malnutrition, and for needy people, and nonprofit school lunch and preschool feeding programs. They are furnished through friendly governments and private or public agencies, including inter-governmental organizations such as the World Food program. The Food for Peace Act, in amending title II, expressed the sense of Congress that other advanced nations should be encouraged to make increased contributions for the purpose of combating world hunger and malnutrition, and that to achieve this objective, the United States should work to expand the United Nations' World Food program.

The Agency for International Development is responsible for administering title II programs. However, the Corporation makes available the commodities or products requested for disposition under title II. Such commodities or products are made available from the Corporation's stocks of commodities or products acquired under its support program or are purchased at market prices when this is determined to be in the best interest of the Government.

The Corporation is authorized to pay, with respect to commodities made available, the costs of acquisitions, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports and ocean freight charges and general average contributions arising out of ocean transport.

Approximately $7½ million each year may be used to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs (other than personnel and administrative costs of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies, and recipient agencies) directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes for the need for such aid.

Through December 31, 1971, appropriations totaling $6,100 million were authorized. No programs of assistance may be entered into after December 31, 1973, and none shall be undertaken under this title during any calendar year which call for an appropriation of more than $600 million to reimburse the Corporation for costs incurred, including its investment, plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year. Any incidental sales proceeds and proceeds from loss, damage, and other claims are applied against Commodity Credit Corporation costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests.

The following reflects the composition of the appropriations (in thousands of dollars):

Under section 206 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (7 U.S.C. 1856), the Commodity Credit Corporation transferred to the supplemental stockpile, which was established pursuant to section 104(b) of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, strategic and other materials acquired from the barter and exchange of agricultural commodities. This does not cover those acquired for the national strategic and critical materials stockpile or for other agencies on a reimbursable basis.

Appropriations are authorized for the value of the transfers based on the cost to the Corporation or the domestic market price, whichever is lower. The estimates reflect the shift from stockpile procurement to reimbursable offshore procurement through barter for other Government agencies, and delivery of commodities under previously authorized contracts. No new contracts for supplemental stockpile purposes have been made since 1968 and none are planned.

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of National, Commodity, State, and county offices.

The Commodity offices in Kansas City, Minneapolis, and New Orleans play an important role in administering support programs and the field operations stemming from producer loan and purchase agreements, inventory management, and merchandising activities.

Data processing centers in Kansas City and New Orleans provide data processing services in connection with loan and purchase programs; inventory operations; merchandising computation and issuance of producer payments under feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs; tobacco marketing and quota program; county office payrolls; and providing farmers, employees, and Internal Revenue Service information for tax purposes.

The State committees are in general charge of all programs carried out in their respective States. Within the framework of national policy, they determine the policies to be followed and direct the adaptation of national programs to the State.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation elected county committees are responsible for the local administration of programs. They make local program decisions and policies and appoint a county executive director who directs the office staff in handling the day-to-day detailed administrative work.

The programs and activities carried out by this service include: rural environmental assistance program; emergency conservation measures; Water Bank Act program; Appalachian region conservation program; acreage allotment and marketing quota programs; Sugar Act program; conservation reserve program; feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs; cropland conversion program; cropland adjustment program; dairy and beekeeper indemnity programs; Wool Act program; bin storage program; and support and related programs.

The activities carried out by the Service fall within three major categories:

1. Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and commodity support programs, and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the support program, have a tremendous impact on the national and, to a lesser extent, the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate even more effective programs.

2. Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and price support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including: (a) Developing program regulations and procedures; (b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs; (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms; (d) establishing individual farm allotments, bases, and yields; (e) establishing proportionate shares for sugar farms when necessary; (f) notifying producers of allotments, proportionate shares, productivity indexes, and payment rates; (g) determining farm marketing allocations; (h) handling appeals; (i) conducting referendums and certifying results; (j) checking compliance with acreage allotments and use of set-aside acres; (k) developing pooling agreements under which several farmers work jointly to solve a common conservation problem which cannot be solved by individual action; (l) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty; (m) processing producer requests for conservation cost sharing; and (n) processing commodity loan documents and issuing sight drafts.

3. Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes: (a) Overall management of CCC-owned commodities; (b) selling commodities; (c) donating commodities; and (d) accounting for loans and commodities. The value of the commodities owned by CCC on June 30, 1971, was about $1,208 million.

The objectives are to provide consumers with adequate supplies of sugar at reasonable prices, to protect the welfare of the domestic sugar industry, and to promote the export trade of the United States. Total U.S. requirements and quotas are determined each year. The quota for each domestic area is allotted to individual sellers when necessary to achieve orderly marketing. Restrictive farm acreage allotments are established for producers when necessary to avoid surpluses.

Payments are made which supplement the income of domestic producers of cane and beets. Payments require compliance with specified conditions of employment, production and price. Payments are also made for abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies on harvested acreage due to natural calamities.

The decrease of $1.5 million proposed for 1973 is due to the sharp reduction in sugar production estimates for the 1971 crop.

Tax collections from imports of sugar exceed total obligations by $658.6 million for fiscal years 1938 through 1971.

The cropland adjustment program was authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 which expired with the 1970 crop year. Cropland adjustment programs were approved only for 1966 and 1967. This program assisted farmers, through long-term agreements, to divert cropland from the production of certain crops to more needed uses that promote the development and conservation of our soil, water, forest, wildlife, and recreational resources. The period of an agreement was not less than 5 years nor more than 10 years. The program also helped farmers establish, protect, and conserve open spaces and natural beauty, and prevent air and water pollution.

In return for diverting the cropland to approved public benefit uses, producers receive adjustment payments. They also were eligible to receive cost-sharing assistance for establishing approved land treatment measures. Additional incentive payments are made to producers who entered into agreements to permit free public access to land designated under the cropland adjustment program agreement, for hunting, trapping, fishing, and hiking.

Under the Greenspan provisions of the program, funds were also made available to Federal, State, or local governmental agencies for use in acquiring cropland for permanent conversion to specified public uses, and cost-shares could also be paid to such agencies for establishing approved land treatment measures consistent with the conditions and costs under agreements entered into with producers.

DAIRY AND BEEKEEPER INDEMNITY PROGRAMS

For necessary expenses involved in making payments to dairy farmers and manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their milk or milk products from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, and to beekeepers who through no fault of their own have suffered losses as a result of the use of economic poisons which had been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, [$2,500,000] $3,500,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That none of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to make indemnity payments to any farmer whose milk was removed from commercial markets as a result of his willful failure to follow procedures prescribed by the Federal Government. Under this program the Department makes indemnification payments to dairy farmers, manufacturers of dairy products, and beekeepers.

This program began in 1964 and was limited (until the passage of the Agricultural Act of 1970) to payments to dairy farmers, who were directed to remove their milk from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 authorized indemnification payments, beginning with the date of its enactment, to manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their products because they contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 also authorized payments to beekeepers who, through no fault of their own, have suffered losses of honey bees after January 1, 1967, as a result of utilization of economic poisons near or adjacent to the property on which the beehives of such beekeepers were located.

Claims for the period January 1, 1964, through June 30, 1971, amounted to $1,362,213.

This program is designed to encourage conservation by sharing with farmers, ranchers, and woodland owners the cost of carrying out approved soil- and water-conserving practices, including related wildlife-conserving practices, and water, air, and land pollution-abatement practices which farmers generally would not perform to the needed extent with their own resources. The rate of cost-sharing averages about 50% of the cost. Cost-sharing may be in the form of conservation materials and services or a payment after completion of the practice.

Conservation measures offered include those primarily designed to establish permanent protective cover, improve and protect established vegetative cover, conserve and dispose of water, establish temporary vegetative cover, temporarily protect soil from wind and water erosion, provide wildlife benefits, and abate agriculture-related pollution.

The following and other practices were installed under the 1970 program on more than 0.8 million farms:

Funds are distributed among the States on the basis of conservation needs. They are, in turn, distributed by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State committees to counties. The county committees approve conservation practice cost-sharing for eligible persons.

Loans from Commodity Credit Corporation are used to make advance payments to vendors. These payments are for conservation materials and services furnished to farmers and ranchers prior to the time funds are appropriated each year. Repayment is made from balances of prior appropriations or from new funds appropriated.

Amounts repaid or estimated to be repaid on the Commodity Credit Corporation loans are:

The purposes of this program are to preserve, restore, and improve the wetlands of the Nation, and thereby to conserve surface waters, to preserve and improve habitat for migratory waterfowl and other wildlife resources, to reduce runoff, soil and wind erosion, and contribute to improved water quality and reduce stream sedimentation, to contribute to improved subsurface moisture, to reduce acres of new land coming into production, and to retire lands now in agricultural production, to enhance the beauty of the landscape, and to promote comprehensive water management planning.

The Secretary of Agriculture enters into agreements with landowners and operators for the conservation of specified wetlands. The agreements are for 10 years with provision for renewal for additional periods. During the period of the agreement, the landowner agrees not to drain, burn, fill, or otherwise destroy the wetland character of such areas, nor to use such areas for agricultural purposes, as determined by the Secretary. The Secretary makes annual payments to the owner or operator at a rate to be determined. The rate of annual payment may be increased if the owner or operator agrees to permit, without other compensation, access by the general public for hunting, trapping, fishing, and hiking. The Secretary may also share the cost of establishing and maintaining conservation and development practices on the wetlands and adjacent areas.

The Secretary carries out the program in harmony with wetlands programs administered by the Secretary of the Interior and utilizes the technical and related services of appropriate State, Federal, and private conservation agencies to assure proper coordination.

EMERGENCY CONSERVATION MEASURES

For emergency conservation measures, to be used for the same purposes and subject to the same conditions as funds appropriated under this head in the Third Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1957, to remain available until expended, [$12,000,000] $10,000,000, with which shall be merged the unexpended balances of funds heretofore appropriated for emergency conservation measures. ¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Advances, 1970, $6,104 thousand (1971 adjustments, $9,364 thousand); 1971, $4,227 thousand (1972 adjustments, $3,500 thousand); 1972, $2,227 thousand (1973 adjustments, $3,000 thousand); 1973, $0.

This appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency conservation measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farm and range lands resulting from natural disasters. The criteria under which assistance may be made available are set forth in the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590(h)).

Funds are allocated for use only in those counties designated by the Secretary of Agriculture as disaster counties. Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use.

Under the 1971 program, cost-sharing assistance is being provided to treat farmlands damaged by drought, flood, tornado, winds, hurricane, fire, and icing. As of December 31, 1971, there were 335 counties in 24 States where assistance was being provided.

Major disaster assistance is also made available on a reimbursable basis for the Office of Emergency Preparedness relating to debris removal pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 91-79.

This program, initiated in 1956, has two objectives. One is to bring total crop acreage more nearly in line with demand by withdrawing cropland from production. The other is to establish and maintain sound conservation practices on the land withdrawn. The Secretary was authorized, through calendar year 1960, to enter into 3- to 15-year contracts with producers. For removing designated cropland from production and for establishing necessary conservation practices, the producer receives an annual rental payment each year of the contract period. He also receives cost-sharing assistance for the establishment of required practices. Total annual rental payments to a producer are limited to $5 thousand.

Long-range agreements were approved with farmers and ranchers from 1963 to 1967 to make changes from their past cropping systems and land uses to other income-producing, public benefit uses.

The agreements, not to exceed 10 years, provide for payments, the furnishing of materials and services, and other assistance to farmers. In return, farmers change the land-use and install and maintain conservation practices. Adjustment payments were authorized to be made either upon approval of the agreement or on an annual installment basis. Land treatment practice payments are made after the practice is installed.

The law places a limit of $10 million on payments made in a calendar year under signed agreements.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly owned Government Corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1519), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance, and to provide the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance.

Crop insurance offered to agricultural producers by the Corporation provides protection from losses caused by natural hazards, such as insect and wildlife damage, plant diseases, fire, drought, flood, wind, and other weather conditions. It does not indemnify producers for losses resulting from negligence or failure to observe good farming practices.

The crop insurance programs are developed and analyzed in the Washington headquarters office and are administered in the field by 14 sales and contract service centers. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level is performed by private agents under contractual agreements with the Corporation and by Corporation employees hired on a permanent, part-time or WAE (when actually employed) basis. Detailed administrative and program accounting and statistical functions are performed by the National Service Office in Kansas City, Mo.

Budget program.—The program for fiscal year 1973 will provide crop insurance protection to farmers amounting to approximately $935 million on the following commodities: apples, barley, beans, citrus, combined crops, corn, cotton, flax, grain sorghum, grapes, oats, peaches, peanuts, peas, raisins, rice, soybeans, sugar beets, sugarcane, tobacco, tomatoes, and wheat. Also, the Corporation has been reinsuring a portion of the crop insurance written by the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico since crop year 1968.

The following table indicates the scope of the insurance operations planned for 1972 and 1973, as compared with 1971. Amounts in the 1971 column are actual, and pertain to the 1970 crop year. The 1972 column pertains to the 1971 crop year, and the 1973 column pertains to the 1972 crop year.

Financing.—Capital stock of $100 million is authorized to be subscribed by the United States. As of June 30, 1971, the Secretary of the Treasury held receipts for $50 million of authorized stock, leaving $50 million unissued.

However, additional losses on citrus and corn during crop year 1970 reduced the Corporation's capital to a dangerously low point compared with the outstanding insured liability. The 1972 Appropriation Act provided an additional $10 million of capital stock which has been issued, for a total of $60 million.

Funds from the issuance of capital stock provide working capital for the Corporation. Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums paid by farmers for crop insurance protection. The principal payments from this fund are for: indemnities to insured farmers; the direct cost of adjusting crop losses; and a part of the administrative and operating expenses. However, the direct cost of loss adjustment and the administrative and operating expenses paid from the fund are not provided for in the premium rates (section 508(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended).

The annual appropriation for the major portion of the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

It is estimated that gross income of $48 million from operations will provide adequate operating funds for fiscal year 1973, unless heavy losses occur early in the fiscal year.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1971, the Corporation reflected a deficit of $35.6 million—greater by $1.9 million than the deficit of the year before. The larger deficit resulted from insufficient premiums over indemnities for crop year 1970 to cover expenses paid from the fund. Crop year 1970 premiums of $44.4 million exceeded indemnities by over $2.7 million, resulting in a loss ratio of 0.94 as compared with the 1969 loss ratio of 1.09.

A 0.75 loss ratio is estimated for crop year 1971. Premiums of $48 million are estimated to exceed indemnities by $12 million. For the crop years 1948 through 1970, premium income ($607.0 million) exceeded indemnity costs ($591.4 million) by $15.6 million; the loss ratio for the period was 0.97. Premium income exceeded indemnity costs in 12 of the 23 years.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations by commodities for 1971, 1972, and 1973:

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.² Statutory obligations against borrowing authority include only borrowing from, or with the approval of Treasury. A sufficient amount of CCC's borrowing authority is required to be reserved to cover obligations to purchase notes, certificates of interest, or other obligations evidencing loans held by banks and accrued interest thereon, but such obligations, other obligations, contingent liabilities, and commitments do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowing from Treasury. Only that portion of the borrowing authority is available which has neither been so reserved nor charged by actual borrowings.

The Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714–714p). It may also make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. In addition to its basic functions, it is used to administer and, in some cases, temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Up to $14.5 billion may be borrowed to finance operations.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1972 and 1973 budget estimates: (a) Employment, production, and national income will rise both in 1972 and 1973 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1973 will increase over 1972 levels; (c) yields for the 1972 crops will approximate recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1972 crops of peanuts, rice, and certain kinds of tobacco (flue-cured tobacco will be on an acreage-poundage program and burley tobacco is on a poundage allotment beginning with the 1971 crop); and (e) set-aside programs for cotton, feed grains, and wheat will be in operation.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy requirements for the year ending June 30, 1973. Complex and unpredictable factors are involved, such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange.

PROGRAMS OF THE CORPORATION

The basic functions of the Corporation include the following programs for which appropriations are made for net realized losses sustained (in thousands of dollars):

Program	1973 estimate

Other items not distributed by program.....	483,771	156,775	366,430
Total.....	8,104,459	4,302,563	4,508,323

Support.—The Corporation, through loans, purchases, payments, and other means, provides support of agricultural commodities to producers. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.) and the Agricultural Act of 1970, Public Law 91-524 (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.).

Support is mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. It also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: Tung nuts, honey, milk, barley, oats, rye, and grain sorghum. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C.

1781–87), requires support for wool and mohair. Support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. The support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, loans made on commodities are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and on maturity the producer may deliver or forfeit such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases for the removal of surpluses are made under certain laws, for example: The act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431). For feed grains, in addition to loans and purchases, producers receive payments. For upland and extra-long staple cotton, producers receive payments in addition to loans. For wheat, in addition to loans and purchases, producers receive marketing certificates as hereinafter described. In the feed grains, wheat, and cotton programs, the producers must comply with acreage set-aside provisions (hereinafter described), if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, payments, and certificates (in the case of wheat). Also, the total amount of payments which a person is entitled to receive under each of these three programs 1971, 1972, or 1973 crop of the commodity shall not exceed $55 thousand.

In support operations, normal trade facilities are used to the maximum extent practicable. Cooperatives and financial institutions are used in lending activities. Commercial facilities are used to a great extent for storage.

Besides the Charter Act and laws mentioned above, many other laws are applicable to the disposition through sales, donations, and barter of commodities acquired under the support program. For accounting purposes, the Corporation credits to the support program proceeds of commodities sold from its stocks, including those disposed of through redemption of domestic and export payment-in-kind certificates and through special activities.

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, barter, payments, and other operations. Other than in barter for stockpiling purposes, such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation. This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly section 5 (d) and (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable. Export sales for foreign currencies or on long-term credit are financed by the Corporation under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, although such sales of commodities owned by the Corporation may also be made under its charter authority.

The activities described below are illustrative of those conducted under this program during 1972. With respect to barter, the emphasis is on exports in connection with various types of offshore procurement of materials and services needed by the Department of Defense, the Agency for International Development, and other agencies, for which they pay the Corporation. Commodities available for barter vary from time to time.

When necessary to encourage export movement from free-market supplies, as well as from its own stocks, the Corporation makes payments on exports of agricultural commodities. The rate of payment generally is the difference between the prevailing world export sales price and the domestic market price.

To help develop or expand foreign markets, the Corporation may furnish farm commodities and products for samples or exhibits at international trade fairs and for use abroad in testing consumer acceptance and commercial market potentials.

To maximize exports of agricultural commodities, including products thereof, the Corporation conducts an export credit sales program under which it finances, for a period of not to exceed 3 years, commercial export credit sales by exporters of agricultural commodities obtained either from Corporation inventories or from private stocks. These commercial transactions are financed under the Corporation's charter authority and section 4 of the Food for Peace Act (7 U.S.C. 1707a) and are to be distinguished from the long-term credit contracts involving foreign assistance authorized by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Section 4 of the Food for Peace Act authorizes appropriations to reimburse the Corporation annually for its actual costs incurred or to be incurred under this program.

Storage facilities.—The Corporation conducts a program to provide storage adequate to fulfill its program needs. This program is conducted pursuant to sections 4 (h) and (m), and 5 (a) and (b) of the charter.

The Corporation has authority to buy bins (in storage-short areas) and equipment for the care and storage of commodities owned by the Corporation or under its control. This authority to purchase bins has not been exercised since 1956. The Corporation has now reduced its storage capacity from 990 million bushels in 1957 to 366 million bushels on June 30, 1971. The Corporation makes loans for the purchase, building, or expanding of facilities for storage and care of commodities on the farm and sells, to producers and others, bins needed for the storage of agricultural commodities. Bins sold by the Corporation may be those acquired for resale for such storage or those which are no longer required by the Corporation for the storage of its own commodities. Public Law 89-758 permits the sale of grain storage facilities no longer needed for such program use to public and private nonprofit agencies and organizations. The Corporation may also provide storage use guarantees to encourage building of commercial storage, and undertake other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

Section 805 of the Agricultural Act of 1970 authorizes the Secretary to make or guarantee loans for construction of farm storage facilities for baled hay from diverted or set-aside acreage. This program will be conducted through the ASC county committees and be financed with capital funds of the Corporation.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation procures from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies. It similarly procures or aids in the procurement of such foods, commodities, products, and material for sale to meet domestic requirements during periods of short supply or during such other times as will stabilize prices or facilitate distribution. Through purchases, loans, sales, or other means the Corporation may also make available materials and facilities needed for the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. This program is conducted under section 5 (b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

Purchases for other Federal agencies of commodities not in the Corporation's support stocks has been the main activity. Purchases of limited quantities of breeder, foundation, and registered seeds of improved varieties of grasses and legumes are made through production contracts in order to assure supplies thereof for farmers. No foreign purchases have been made in recent years.

Section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U.S.C. 713a-9), requires that the Corporation be fully repaid from funds of such agencies for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities bought or delivered to or on behalf of any other Federal agency. Operations not subject to section 4 may involve losses if such are necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives of the particular operation.

Wheat certificate program.—The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970, authorizes a wheat certificate program for the 1971, 1972, and 1973 crops to be conducted by the Secretary through the Corporation. Domestic marketing certificates are to be issued to participating farmers which may be sold at face value to the Corporation. Processors of wheat are required to buy domestic certificates equivalent to the number of bushels of wheat used in the manufacture of food products. The Corporation is to sell certificates at a cost of 75¢ per bushel. While existing law provides for the acquisition of export marketing certificates by wheat exporters, the Agricultural Act of 1970 authorizes the Secretary to suspend this requirement for the period July 1, 1971, through June 30, 1974.

Set-aside program.—The Agricultural Act of 1970 authorizes the Secretary to conduct through the Corporation, set-aside programs on the 1971, 1972, and 1973 crops of wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton if he determines that otherwise the total supply of agricultural commodities will likely be excessive. If a set-aside is in effect for any such commodity, producers must, as a condition of eligibility for loans, purchases, payments, and certificates (in the case of wheat) on such commodity, set aside and devote to approved conservation uses specified acreages of cropland and otherwise comply with program requirements. Participants in the 1972 set-aside program are eligible for a small additional payment for permitting public access to set-aside acreage.

Land diversion payments.—To assist in adjusting the acreage of commodities to desirable goals, the Secretary is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1970 to make land diversion payments, through the Corporation, to producers who devote to approved conservation uses acreages of cropland in addition to those required to be so devoted under the set-aside programs.

Cotton research and promotion.—Under section 610 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, the Corporation, through the Cotton Board, and upon approval of the Secretary, is authorized to enter into agreements for cotton market development, research, and sales promotion programs, programs to aid in the development of new and additional markets, marketing facilities, and uses for cotton and cotton products, and programs to facilitate the utilization and commercial application of cotton research findings. Each year the amount available for such programs shall be the sum of amounts, not exceeding $10 million, which are not paid to cotton producers because of statutory payment limitations. For each of the 1972 and 1973 crops, an additional amount, not exceeding $10 million may be used by the Secretary for such programs from funds available for payments on 1972 and 1973 crop cotton.

Administrative expenses.—Administrative expenses are for the services of: The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Consumer and Marketing Service, the Export Marketing Service, and other agencies of the Department engaged in the Corporation's activities; the General Accounting Office for audit; and the General Services Administration for space. Estimates for 1973 include a limitation of $38.3 million on administrative expenses, including a reserve of not less than 7% for contingencies.

The requested authorization excludes administrative expenses in connection with the wool and mohair program under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, which are included with the cost of this program under Special activities.

Nonadministrative expenses.—Expenses for acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program rather than administrative expenses. Such expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors; work performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees relating to CCC programs; and special services performed by other Federal agencies outside of this Department.

Most of these general nonadministrative expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing, and grading and resale payments are included in program costs, in the entry entitled Storage, transportation, and other costs not included above, in the program and financing schedule. The item Nonadministrative expense, which appears in the schedule, covers part of the expenses of county offices for work related to programs of the Corporation, other Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service expenses offset by revenue, custodian and agency expense of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

The Corporation receives reimbursement for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 (7 U.S.C. 447-449) by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation, through the appropriation Reimbursement for net realized losses. The Corporation also obtains recovery through this appropriation for the funds transferred to the Agricultural Research Service pursuant to the Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 1964, for cost of production research and other related research designed to reduce surplus commodities held by the Corporation.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's charter act and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Corporation receives appropriations or reimbursement for cost of these activities as described under each.

To the extent that sufficient appropriations are not provided in advance, expenditures under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, and investments in materials transferred to the supplemental stockpile, are made by the Corporation subject to reimbursement from subsequent appropriations authorized for such purpose.

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (see foreign assistance programs and special export program for details of items (1)-(4)):

(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I, Public Law 480).

(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I, Public Law 480).

(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II, Public Law 480).

(4) Bartered materials for supplemental stockpile.

(5) Military housing (barter and exchange).—During 1957, a contract was completed for the disposition of Corporation-owned commodities valued at $50 million for the construction of military housing in France with foreign currencies obtained from this transaction. 10 U.S.C. 2681(b) as amended, provides for annual payment to the Corporation by the Department of Defense until liquidation of the amounts due for foreign currencies obtained under Public Law 480 for military housing. It is estimated that $2 million will be applied against the amounts due under the French housing transaction in each year. Beginning in 1967, the Treasury Department has classified this as a nonexpenditure transaction.

(6) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970, support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. The Corporation makes payments to producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the support price required under the act.

Total payments made under the National Wool Act cannot at any time exceed an amount equal to 70% of the accumulated totals, as of the same date, of the gross receipts from import duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and wool manufactures. Actual or estimated payments compared with this limitation are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Funds of the Corporation are used to carry on this program. For the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation, section 705 of the act appropriates each fiscal year an amount equal to amounts expended by the Corporation during the preceding year and to amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed, but not to exceed an amount equal to 70% of the gross receipts from duties collected on wool and wool manufactures during the calendar year preceding the fiscal year.

(7) Grain for migratory waterfowl feed.—To prevent damage of crops by migratory waterfowl, the Corporation is directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Interior (7 U.S.C. 442–445) such grain acquired through support operations and certified by the Corporation as available for such purposes or in such condition as to be undesirable for human consumption, as the Secretary of the Interior shall requisition. This appropriation item is included under that Department to reimburse CCC.

(8) Surplus grain for migratory birds.—Under Public Law 87–152, approved August 17, 1961 (7 U.S.C. 448), the Secretary of the Interior may requisition grain of the Corporation to feed starving migratory birds. This appropriation item is included under that Department to reimburse CCC.

(9) Grading and classing activities.—The Corporation may make advances to the Consumer and Marketing Service for classing and grading of agricultural commodities without charge to producers (7 U.S.C. 414A, 440). Such advances used for classing cotton and grading tobacco not placed under support loan are repaid from an appropriation of the Service.

(10) Research to increase domestic consumption of farm commodities.—The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1964 authorized the transfer of not more than $16 million from the appropriation removal of surplus agricultural commodities (sec. 32) to the Corporation to be used to increase domestic consumption of surplus farm commodities, and provided for the transfer for such purposes thereafter of such sums not in excess of $25 million in any 1 year, as may be approved by Congress. The 1965 appropriation act authorized the transfer of $12,175 thousand of section 32 funds for this purpose. The Corporation transfers such funds to the Agricultural Research Service and Cooperative State Research Service to conduct the required research.

(11) Defense activities.—Upon the declaration of a national emergency, the facilities, services, authorities, and funds of the Corporation may be used, as directed by the Secretary and in accordance with applicable provisions of law, to carry out responsibilities and functions assigned to the Secretary under the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, the Civil Defense Act, as amended, and such other defense legislation as may be enacted.

(12) Transfer of long-staple cotton from the national stockpile for sale by Commodity Credit Corporation.—The act of July 10, 1967 (71 Stat. 290), authorized the transfer of 50,000 bales of domestically grown cotton from the national stockpile to the Corporation for sale. Also, about 219,000 bales of cotton, both American-Egyptian and foreign grown, in the stockpile were made available to the Corporation for disposition under Public Law 87–548, approved July 25, 1962. The cotton is not recorded as a Corporation asset. Proceeds less costs incurred, including administrative expenses, are covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts from time to time. No interest is paid by the Corporation for the use of the money prior to covering. This program was closed out in 1971.

(13) Loans for rural environmental assistance.—Under section 391(c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1391(c)), the Corporation advances funds to the Secretary in amounts not to exceed $50 million annually to purchase conservation materials and services. Repayments of the loans plus interest are made from balances of prior appropriations or from new funds appropriated for the Rural environmental assistance program.

(14) Use of CCC facilities for Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service programs.—Under the respective enabling legislation, the services, facilities, and authorities of the Corporation are used to make payments to producers under various programs administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Among these programs are conservation reserve, cropland conversion, rural environmental assistance, cropland adjustment, Appalachia regional conservation, emergency conservation measures, and the Sugar Act program and the Water Bank Act program.

(15) Purchases of dairy products under section 709 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965.—The Corporation, on behalf of the Secretary, purchases at market prices dairy products which are donated to meet the requirements for schools, domestic relief distribution, community action programs, and other programs as are authorized by law, when there are insufficient stocks of such products in the hands of the Corporation available for such purposes. This program is conducted under section 5(g) of the Corporation's Charter Act and section 709 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965. Costs incurred for this activity are included in the Corporation's net realized loss for which it is reimbursed annually by appropriation pursuant to Public Law 87–155.

(16) Advance to APHS for animal disease eradication.—Public Law 92–73, approved August 10, 1971, authorizes the Secretary to transfer from funds of agencies or corporations of the Department such sums as he deems necessary to be available in emergencies which threaten the livestock or poultry industries, for the arrest and eradication of contagious or infectious diseases of animals or poultry and for expenses in accordance with the act of February 28, 1947, as amended. During fiscal year 1972, it is estimated that $18 million for Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis will be transferred from Commodity Credit Corporation funds with reimbursement in 1973 from funds appropriated to the Animal and Plant Service.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $14.5 billion.

Funds are borrowed from Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies and others. The Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made or held by lending agencies or other financial institutions or certificates of interest issued in connection with the financing of its operations. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate of all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on certificates of interest and lending agency obligations for the period the agencies have their funds invested.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964, on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after June 30 of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

The computation of the transfer from interest-bearing to non-interest-bearing capital is (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Realized deficit not previously reimbursed, start of year	7,576,486	8,271,283	7,589,512
Less appropriations for year	3,363,155	4,213,331	4,057,952
Total non-interest-bearing, end of year	4,213,331	4,057,952	3,531,560

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions, the estimated requirements indicate no need for an increase in borrowing authority. Since there are so many uncontrollable factors involving crops which have not even been planted, it must be recognized that estimates are highly tentative.

POSITION WITH RESPECT TO BORROWING AUTHORITY AS OF JUNE 30

[In thousands of dollars]

Item	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Statutory borrowing authority	14,500,000	14,500,000	14,500,000
Deduct: Statutory borrowing authority in use	11,977,237	12,040,458	12,209,439
Net statutory borrowing authority available	2,522,763	2,459,542	2,290,561

Note.—A sufficient amount of the borrowing authority is required to be reserved to cover obligations to purchase notes and certificates of interest held by financial institutions and accrued interest thereon. Such obligations, however, as well as accounts payable, accrued liabilities and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table, do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

Contract authority.—Support and other programs required by statute may result in the Corporation incurring obligations in excess of available funds and borrowing authority. Such obligations are liquidated from subsequent appropriations and other funds which may become available to the Corporation. Any increase in obligations in excess of available fund resources is reported as contract authority in the year involved; a decrease is reported as the application of appropriations and other funds to liquidate the authority. The budget reflects a net decrease of $885 million in 1971, an increase of $766 million in 1972, and an increase of $426 million in 1973.

Appropriations.—Under section 2 of Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The realized losses for 1971 subject to reimbursement were $4,058 million, and the cumulative losses not yet appropriated for were $8,271 million. An appropriation of $4,058 million would provide sufficient funds for the operations described for 1973. It would also leave a desirable operating margin to assure flexibility of operations in view of the volume of transactions handled.

The special activities are financed as indicated in the program description above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance and special export programs (see that heading on p. 140).

Deficit.—The net realized losses of the Corporation have previously been reimbursed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

¹ The change in this item is reflected on the program and financing schedule.

² A sufficient amount of the borrowing authority is required to be reserved to cover obligations to purchase notes and certificates of interest held by financial institutions and accrued interest thereon. Such obligations, however, as well as accounts payable, accrued liabilities, and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table, do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

Note.—In addition to obligations other than liabilities, the Corporation does not reflect in its accounts claims by the Corporation on which adequate proof has not been established.

The Administration conducts two capital investment programs: (a) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (b) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas. Funds for making repayable loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

1. Rural electrification.—This capital investment program is financed through loans which are made for construction, operation, improvement, and acquisition of electric distribution, generation and transmission facilities in rural areas. The loans bear 2% interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years.

Loans are also made at 2% interest for shorter periods of time to electrification borrowers to be reloaned to their consumers for the purpose of financing the wiring of premises and the acquisition and installation of electrical and plumbing appliances and equipment.

The 1973 budget request reflects the availability of supplemental financing from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation and other sources in fiscal years 1972 and 1973 to satisfy a part of the capital requirements of the rural electric systems.

The Rural Electrification Administration makes loans for the extension and improvement of electric and telephone service in rural areas. Most electric loans are made concurrently with supplemental financing provided by the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) or other supplemental sources. Telephone loans are made by the REA or by the Rural Telephone Bank, created pursuant to Public Law 92-12. In some cases, concurrent loans will be made by the REA and by the telephone bank. The Rural Telephone Bank partially or jointly utilizes the facilities and services of employees of the REA without cost to the bank. Concurrent loans in both programs, and the development of the Rural Telephone Bank, has required the development and implementation of extensive new procedures for loan approval and advance of funds.

Assistance is provided to electrification borrowers and potential borrowers to negotiate for adequate supplies of power on reasonable terms. Business management and technical help is furnished borrowers where needed to protect the Government's loan security, to assure that construction and operation of their systems conform to approved standards, and that the systems will provide continuous and reliable service and facilitate the most effective use of resources to achieve program objectives.

CAPITALIZATION OF RURAL TELEPHONE BANK

For the purchase of Class A stock of the Rural Telephone Bank, $30,000,000, to remain available until expended, to be derived from the net collection proceeds in the rural telephone account created under title III of the Rural Electrification Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 901-924, Public Law 92-12).

RURAL TELEPHONE BANK

The Rural Telephone Bank is hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to such corporation in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, as may be necessary in carrying out its authorized programs for the current fiscal year. Public Law 92-12, approved May 7, 1971, amended the Rural Electrification Act, as amended, by providing for the establishment of a Rural Telephone Bank as a supplemental source of financing for the REA telephone loan program.

Capital for the Rural Telephone Bank is obtained through the sale of its stock to the U.S. Government and to borrowers of bank funds, and the sale of debentures on the open market up to eight times the paid in capital and retained earnings of the bank. The legislation establishing the bank authorizes U.S. stock purchases totaling $300 million, with up to $30 million to be appropriated annually from net collection proceeds in the rural telephone account. An appropriation of $30 million will be required in 1973.

It is estimated that an additional $6.2 million in capital will be obtained through the sale of stock to borrowers and retained earnings. Borrowings by the bank are estimated at $45.0 million in 1973.

Telephone bank loans are made to borrowers who are able to pay higher interest rates than the 2% rate charged under the REA direct loan program. Bank loans will bear interest rates at the highest rate consistent with the borrowers' ability to pay, but not less than 4%. Some borrowers may receive concurrent loans from REA and from the telephone bank, realizing effective interest costs greater than 2% but less than 4%. Bank loans will supplement the REA direct 2% loan program and enable borrowers to provide adequate and dependable telephone service to rural residents at a faster pace. It is estimated that the bank will make loans totaling $90 million in 1972 and $126 million in 1973.

Although the bank may partially or jointly use the personnel and facilities of REA and other agencies of the Department without cost to the bank until conversion to borrower control, there are certain operating costs which must be borne by the bank. The compensation and expenses of the eight members of the bank board who are not Federal employees or officers, and of officers and employees engaged solely on telephone bank activities and procurement for the bank, must be paid by the bank. In addition, the authorizing legislation specifies that the bank shall at no time be entitled to transmission of its mail free of postage. The bank also has other operating expenditures and costs, such as returns and dividends on stock and interest on debentures.

Rural water and waste disposal grants.—This program is authorized by subtitle A of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961, as amended. It provides for planning grants to be made to public and private bodies with authority to prepare comprehensive plans for the development of water or sewer systems in rural areas which do not have funds available for such planning. In addition, development grants are made to associations, including nonprofit corporations and public and quasi-public agencies, to finance specific projects for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. The amount of the grant may not exceed 50% of the development cost of the project.

Development grants to associations may be made in connection with direct or insured loans for water and sewer systems described under the Farmers Home Administration direct loan account.

Rural housing for domestic farm labor.—Financial assistance in the form of grants is provided to public or private nonprofit organizations, or other eligible organizations for low-rent housing and related facilities for domestic farm labor, as authorized by the Housing Act of 1964.

Assistance not to exceed 90% of the total development cost may be provided for new structures (including basic household furnishings) and sites, and for the rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of dwellings, dining halls, community rooms, or buildings, and infirmaries used by domestic farm laborers. Such financial assistance may be made in connection with insured farm labor housing loans under the Rural housing insurance fund.

Mutual and self-help housing.—This assistance was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448). These grants are especially designed to aid the development of comprehensive plans to permit an expansion of mutual and self-help housing programs under which groups of families build their own homes by mutually exchanging labor. In 1971, a total of 15 grants were made for $1,720,960. It is estimated that 24 grants totaling $2,450 thousand will be made to nonprofit organizations in 1972 and that 37 grants totaling $3,729 thousand will be made in 1973. These organizations will provide technical staffs to assist approximately 2,000 low-income families in 1972 and about 3,000 families in 1973 to build their homes by the self-help method.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

Farmers Home Administration direct loan account.—This account was established on October 16, 1961, pursuant to section 338(c) of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961. Real estate and operating loans are authorized to be made under subtitles A and B of the act to farmers and ranchers and to associations unable to obtain credit from other sources at reasonable rates. The appropriation act for 1972 provided for making watershed works of improvement loans, flood prevention loans, and resource conservation and development loans from funds available in the Direct loan account. Under Public Law 90-488, farm ownership and operating loans may include funds for enterprises needed to supplement farm income, and loans may be made to finance outdoor recreational enterprises or to convert to recreational uses existing farming or ranching operations. The Direct loan account is being phased out in favor of insured loans.

In 1972, the total for direct loans reflected in the following schedules is $283.8 million. In 1973, the total for these loans is $299 million. It is proposed to carry out the estimated loan programs through utilization of receipts to the Direct loan account representing collections on loans outstanding and sales of assets in prior years under the Participation Sales Act of 1966. No new borrowing authority is estimated for 1973.

1. Real estate loans.—(a) Farm ownership loans.—Insured loans are made to farmers and ranchers for acquiring, enlarging, or improving farms, including dwellings and farm buildings; for financing land and water development, use and conservation; for developing recreational and other nonfarm enterprises; for forestry development; for refinancing indebtedness; and for loan closing costs. Loans are confined to farms which are not larger than family farms and cannot exceed the normal value of the farm or $100 thousand, whichever is the lesser. The loan limitation includes the unpaid indebtedness against the farm or other security. The Farmers Home Administration has broadened its farm ownership loan policies so that private or cooperative lenders and the agency can make loans to the same borrowers on the same security.

(b) Recreation loans.—Insured recreation loans are made to individual farmers and ranchers for converting all or a portion of the farms or ranches they own or operate to outdoor income-producing recreation enterprises which will supplement or supplant farm income and permit carrying on sound and successful operations. These loans are made under the same terms and limitations as farm ownership loans, except that the loans may be made on farms which are larger than family farms and may include funds for operating purposes.

(c) Soil and water loans.—Insured loans are made to farmers, ranchers, and nonoperator owners for land and water development, use and conservation. Insured loans are made to public and nonprofit associations for the effective development and utilization of water supply and waste disposal systems and for the improvement of land by soil and water conserving facilities and practices. Loans to associations also are made for shifts in land use including grazing, the development of recreational facilities, and for irrigation development. There is no limitation on the size of farms that may be improved with loans to individual farmers. For loans to individuals, a loan cannot exceed the normal value of the farm or $100 thousand, whichever is the lesser. The loan limitation includes the unpaid indebtedness against the farm or other security. For loans to associations, the unpaid principal indebtedness, together with the amount of any grant assistance, is limited to $4 million. Loans to associations may be made to serve residents of open country and rural towns and villages of not more than 5,500 population, which are not part of an urban area.

(d) Indian tribe land acquisition loans.—Insured Indian tribe land acquisition loans are made to qualified Indian tribes or tribal corporations to acquire land or interests in land within the tribe's reservation or Alaskan Indian community, as determined by the Secretary of the Interior. These loans are made under the same terms and limitations as association loans.

Farm ownership, recreation, and soil and water loans to individuals, as well as association loans and Indian tribe land acquisition loans, are repayable in not more than 40 years and bear interest not in excess of 5%. Insured loans are made through the Agricultural credit insurance fund with funds advanced by private lenders. Annual payments of principal and interest to lenders are fully guaranteed. The Administration services these insured loans, makes collections, and pays the lenders.

2. Operating loans.—Direct loans are made to farmers and ranchers for costs incident to reorganizing a farming system for more profitable operations; for a variety of essential farm expenses such as the purchase of livestock, farm equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, and farm supplies, and other essential operating expenses, including cash rent, and costs incident to the production and harvesting of forestry products; for financing land and water development, use and conservation; for developing recreational or other nonfarm enterprises; for refinancing indebtedness; for other farm and home needs; and for loan closing costs. Loans are confined to operators of not-larger-than-family farms. The outstanding principal loan balance for operating loans to any individual is limited to $35 thousand. Loans bear interest at a rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations with a similar maturity period. The rate for fiscal year 1972 is 6%. Loans may be scheduled for payment over periods from 1 to 7 years depending on loan purposes. In some situations, they may be renewed for not more than 5 additional years. Loans are secured by crop and chattel liens and, when necessary, by real estate mortgages.

The Self-Help Housing Land Development Fund was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448). It is used as a revolving fund for making loans to public or private nonprofit organizations for the acquisition and development of land as building sites to be subdivided and sold to eligible families, nonprofit organizations and cooperatives. In fiscal year 1971, four loans were obligated for $150,200. It is estimated that 31 loans for $1,225 thousand will be made in 1972 and 22 loans for $900 thousand in 1973.

This fund was established in 1965 (Public Law 89-117) pursuant to section 517 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. Initial capitalization of the fund at $100 million was provided by the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1966.

Public Law 91-152, approved December 24, 1969, provided that the Rural housing direct loan account be abolished and that the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, the direct loan account be transferred to this fund.

This fund is used to insure rural housing loans, farm labor housing loans, rural housing site loans, and loans for rural rental housing. If the borrowers are persons of low or moderate incomes, and if their need for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources, including assistance available under sections 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act, the insured loans made by the Farmers Home Administration in fiscal year 1972 will bear interest at 7¼% with provision for interest credits up to 6¼% under certain circumstances, except

The 1972 Appropriation Act provided for making direct loans from funds available in this fund. These direct loans, to which interest credits do not apply, are limited to very-low-income housing repair loans. Repair and improvement loans not in excess of $2,500 are made to very-low-income families who are owners of farms or nonfarm property to repair or improve their dwellings and essential farm buildings in order to make them safe and sanitary and to remove health hazards to the families and the community. Loans which involve water supply, septic tanks, or bathroom and kitchen plumbing facilities may be made in amounts not in excess of $3,500. These loans are made at 1% interest and are repayable in not more than 10 years.

Insured building loans are made to farmowners, owners of other real estate in rural areas, others who are or will become rural residents, and long-term leaseholders. Loans are repayable in not more than 33 years. Loans are made to enable eligible applicants to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings and essential farm service buildings, and may include funds to buy a house, building site, and farm service buildings. Loans are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, or other rural places of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area.

This fund is authorized by subtitle C of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961 to finance emergency loans in areas where agricultural credit is not readily available because of natural disasters. Loans are generally confined to areas designated by the Secretary of Agriculture as emergency areas. Loans may be made outside of such areas under certain conditions to eligible applicants who have suffered severe production losses not general to the area. Loans also may be made to previously indebted borrowers to permit orderly repayment of such indebtedness. The former statutory emergency loan requirement of inability to obtain credit elsewhere was suspended by Public Law 91-606, approved December 31, 1970, for loans made before the end of the first full operating year following the disaster. Thereafter, however, applicants must be unable to obtain credit elsewhere in order to qualify for additional emergency loans based on the same disaster.

Public Law 92-173, approved November 24, 1971, provided that emergency loans may be made and sold on an insured basis under the Agricultural credit insurance fund.

Loans (a) Emergency loans.—Emergency loans are made at 6% interest or less to eligible farmers, ranchers, or oyster planters and to domestic corporations or partnerships engaged primarily in farming, ranching, or oyster planting. Loans are made primarily for financing farm operating needs, family living expenses, and a number of closely related purposes. Public Law 91-606 authorized loans in areas where the President has declared a major disaster, with special provisions for refinancing real estate debts under restricted conditions, for cancellation of a portion of principal up to $2,500, and for deferment of interest and principal payments up to 3 years on loans for other than operating expenses.

(b) Other loans.—Where necessary to protect the Government's investment, obligations are incurred in connection with outstanding loans to provide for payment of such costs as taxes and insurance. Such advances are charged to the borrowers' accounts.

Administrative expenses.—The administrative expenses are related to the emergency loan program of the administration. These expenses are estimated at $8.2 million in 1972 and $8.3 million in 1973. Any additional expenses are paid from the appropriation Salaries and expenses. Administrative expenses for the Office of the General Counsel are estimated at $40 thousand in 1972 and 1973.

Financing the program.—No new budgetary authorization is required for 1973. A net loss of $11.1 million is estimated on an accrual basis. Receipts are estimated to exceed expenditures by $33.5 million on a cash basis.

Operating results and financial condition.—Revenue for 1973, consisting principally of interest on loans, is estimated at $2 million, compared to expense of $13.1 million, resulting in an estimated loss of $11.1 million. A net loss of $9 million is estimated for 1972 and a net loss of $24.8 million resulted in 1971.

Loans receivable, after allowance for losses, are expected to amount to $2.9 million on June 30, 1973, as compared to $47.3 million on June 30, 1972, and $120 million on June 30, 1971.

The Government investment at June 30, 1973, is expected to be $153.6 million, consisting of $332.8 million appropriated and donated, less a deficit of $179.2 million.

This fund is used to insure farm ownership, soil and water, recreation, and emergency loans to individuals, as well as association loans and Indian land acquisition loans, as authorized by subtitles A and C of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961, as amended. The insurance endorsement on each insured loan may include an agreement by the Government to purchase the loan after a specified initial period. The initial fund of $1 million may be supplemented by amounts retained by the Government out of interest collected from insured loan borrowers and by borrowing from the Secretary of the Treasury. From any amounts so retained, not to exceed one-half of 1% of the outstanding principal obligations must be deposited to the fund. Any remainder of such charges may be used for administrative expenses. Loans may be made directly from the fund from available receipts or borrowings from the Treasury for the purpose of acquiring blocks of loans if there is reasonable assurance that the loans can be sold to investors without undue delay. With respect to new real estate loans made from this fund, not more than $100 million may be held in the fund at any one time. Interest paid the Secretary of the Treasury on borrowings is based on the current average market yield of outstanding marketable obligations of the United States having maturities comparable to the notes issued for borrowings from the Treasury for operation of the fund. Present money market interest rates are in excess of the 5% statutory rate paid by borrowers. The excess interest paid to private investors to make the loans salable is paid from Treasury borrowings.

Budget program.—Capital outlay is estimated at $908.2 million in 1973, a decrease of $95.2 million from 1972 and an increase of $421.6 million over 1971. Included in capital outlay is $681.6 million in 1972 and $744 million in 1973 for making loans from the fund which will later be sold on an insured basis. The volume of sales of loans from the fund is based on all insured loans being made from the fund for later sale at competitive commercial interest rates, which may be in excess of the interest rates paid by borrowers. Insured loans outstanding which are contingent liabilities against the insurance fund are expected to increase from $2,267 million on June 30, 1971, to approximately $2,905 million at June 30, 1972, and $3,339 million by June 30, 1973.

Financing.—To finance operations, it is estimated that it will be necessary to utilize the statutory authorization to borrow from the Treasury in the net amount of $163.1 million in 1972. Treasury borrowings are not contemplated in 1973.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Total revenue, consisting of loan insurance charges and interest income on loans held by the fund, is estimated at $6.7 million in 1972 and $6.1 million in 1973.

Net outstanding loans receivable of $239.9 million are estimated at June 30, 1973. By the end of 1973, the deficit of $280.5 million when added to the $1 million appropriation and estimated borrowings of $400 million from the Treasury represent a Government equity of $120.5 million.

These funds are administered by the Farmers Home Administration, under agreements with 32 individual States, for use in carrying out subtitles A and B of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961. In these States, real-estate type loans are purchased with these funds and insured under the Agricultural credit insurance fund. The entire assets of two State corporations are being administered by the Farmers Home Administration. A partial return of cash or other assets, at face value, has been made to 30 of these States for rural rehabilitation purposes agreed upon between each corporation and the Federal Government. The entire assets of 10 other State rural rehabilitation corporations have been returned to those States. The face value of returned corporation assets totals $38.7 million.

Assistance to conservation districts, community groups, units of government and other cooperators consists mainly of the following:

(a) Soil surveys and investigations, with interpretations and publications, that provide physical land facts needed for program development, resource conservation planning, installation of planned practices, and for use by other Federal, State, and local agencies.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation practices are planned together and in relation to each other so as to have well balanced conservation programs in each district. The Service aids land users, groups, units of government and other policy and decisionmakers marshal the facts and consider the potentials and alternatives before embarking on a course of action. Both vegetative and structural measures are used in accordance with the needs of the land for protection, treatment, and resource improvement. Plans reflect the decisions of the land users, community groups, and units of government as to how they will use and treat the land and water resources.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service explain the various soil conditions, develop alternative uses and treatments, help to evaluate the costs and returns of conservation work, and furnish assistance in applying the needed treatments.

The technical services provided through conservation operations are instrumental in encouraging farmers, ranchers, and others to establish conservation practices. For each dollar used to provide technical assistance, the individual landowner or user invests over two dollars in conservation work.

River basin program development and coordination.—Section 6 of Public Law 566, 83d Congress, as amended, authorizes the Department to cooperate with other Federal, State, and local agencies in making surveys and investigations of the watersheds of rivers and other waterways as a basis for the development of coordinated water and related land resource programs. The Department currently is participating in cooperative surveys and investigations in river basins with the Corps of Engineers and other interested Federal and State agencies. The Department also maintains representation on five river basin commissions and four river basin interagency committees. These serve as points of contact in coordination between representatives of this Department and other Federal departments and agencies and the States in these basin areas. They keep all concerned mutually informed of the activities of the member agencies and facilitate matters of interagency coordination. During fiscal year 1971, the Department maintained such representation on committees in the Arkansas-White-Red, Missouri, Pacific-Southwest, and Southeast areas. The Department also is represented on the Water Resources Council which was formed in accordance with section 101, Public Law 89-80, Water Resources Planning Act, to coordinate water and related land resource activities of Federal departments and agencies.

The Senate Select Committee on National Water Resources proposed a goal of surveying all of the Nation's river basins and making determinations of our future water and related land resource needs; 21 planning regions were established nationwide. The Department of Agriculture has cooperated in framework level planning in 14 of these regions. This Department and other member departments of the Water Resources Council have jointly considered needs for additional river basin surveys and investigations necessary to attain the goal.

Based on this joint coordination, current needs are $1,008 thousand to continue interagency comprehensive surveys now in progress and to initiate two additional surveys during fiscal year 1973; $7,510 thousand to continue other Federal-State cooperative river basin surveys now in progress and to start eight additional surveys in cooperation with States; $315 thousand for interregional economic analysis; $650 thousand for flood hazard analyses; and $1,600 thousand for interagency coordination and program formulation.

Small watershed project investigations and planning.—Surveys are made by the Department of proposed small watershed projects, and work plans are prepared in cooperation with local sponsors. These plans outline the soil and water management problems in the watershed, the steps that have been or are authorized to be taken to alleviate these problems, the proposed works of improvement to be installed, the estimated benefits and costs, cost-sharing and operation and maintenance arrangements, and other facts necessary to justify Federal participation in project development.

Small watersheds.—The Department cooperates with the States and other agencies in installing works of improvement in small watersheds to reduce damage from flood-water, sediment, and erosion and for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water. It provides loans to local organizations to help them finance their share of the costs of certain works of improvement.

1. Watershed works of improvement.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install the watershed works of improvement for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development features specified in the work plans.

(a) Pilot demonstration watersheds.—Sixty-two pilot watersheds were started in 1954 in cooperation with local sponsors under authority of the act of April 27, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 590a-f) to demonstrate and evaluate the effectiveness of works of improvement installed in small watersheds for watershed protection and flood prevention. As of June 30, 1971, work has been discontinued in eight projects and completed as planned in 54, except for repair of some structural damage in three projects in Kentucky. The following table shows the total cost for the completed pilot watershed projects.

(b) Public Law 566 watersheds.—After local sponsoring organizations have developed watershed work plans with the Department's assistance or with State and local resources, and the projects have been approved as suitable for Federal participation (projects involving an estimated Federal contribution in excess of $250 thousand for construction or any single structure having a capacity in excess of 2,500 acre-feet require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specified works of improvement. On non-Federal lands, local sponsoring organizations may contract for construction work or request the SCS to do the contracting for them, operate and maintain the projects, and in the case of multiple-purpose structures, bear a share of construction costs. In addition, local organizations must acquire water rights and furnish land, easements, and rights-of-way for all structural measures except that the Federal Government may pay up to one-half the cost of land, easements, and rights-of-way allocated to public fish and wildlife, and recreational developments. Federal agencies do this work on Federal lands which they administer with appropriate contributions being made by the local people who receive benefits.

Preconstruction and land treatment and engineering services are furnished to all approved projects before they are advanced to the construction stage. During the preconstruction stage, surveys and investigations are made and detailed designs, specifications, and engineering cost estimates are prepared for construction of structural works; areas are delineated where easements are required, and technical services are furnished for accelerating planning and application of land treatment measures if provided for in the watershed work plan.

The following tabulation shows the status of Public Law 566 projects by stage of assistance and amounts obligated or estimated to be obligated. The table excludes obligations for loan services.

³ Includes $1,289 for Institute of Tropical Forestry.

2. Loans and related expense.—Loans are made to local sponsoring organizations to finance the local cost of installing works of improvement in approved watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements have become available. Loans will be made from $5 million in 1972 and $20 million in 1973 from the direct loan account of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans will be financed from this appropriation.

Flood prevention.—1. Works of Improvement.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention and for furthering the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water in the 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares in the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development facilities.

The Department furnishes additional technical and, in certain instances, financial assistance to landowners to accelerate planning and installation of land treatment measures for runoff retardation, sediment control, and water management. Local sponsoring organizations must furnish all land easements, and rights-of-way, water rights, and the entire cost of works of improvement for nonagricultural water management measures, except those for fish and wildlife development and recreation, and operate and maintain all completed works of improvement.

Within the 11 watersheds authorized for flood prevention work by the Flood Control Act of 1944, 401 sub-watershed areas have been identified in which installation of flood prevention works of improvement is feasible. Installation progress in these subwatersheds is shown in the following table:

2. Loan services.—Loans are made to local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of planned works of improvement. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available for this purpose. Loans will be made from funds available for this purpose from the Direct Loan Account of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from funds available to this appropriation.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $28,837 thousand; 1971, $28,558 thousand; 1972, $29,073 thousand; and 1973, $29,184 thousand.

This program provides cost-sharing assistance and technical services to participating landowners or operators, in the Great Plains area in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans for their land. It is a voluntary program which complements other conservation programs of the department in 457 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Cost-sharing contracts with individual landowners range from 3 to 10 years.

Plans of conservation operations are made for each farm or ranch as a basis for cost-sharing certain practices. The fundamental purposes of this program are to achieve needed land-use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability of each operating unit. The planned work is installed under contract according to specific time schedules.

As of June 30, 1971, there was a backlog of 5,809 unserved applications pending and a total of 17,284 active contracts. Cooperating landowners or operators finance the entire cost of installing recurring management-type practices and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices installed on their land.

Program regulations provide the cost-share rates offered in any contract shall not exceed 80% of the cost of installing eligible practices within the designated county. Cost-sharing varies among practices and between States due to differences in conservation and program needs. Cost-sharing for practices that are primarily to enhance fish and wildlife and recreation resources, to promote the economic use of land, or to reduce or control agricultural related pollutants is limited to not more than $2,500 in any one contract, or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation, whichever is larger. Cost-sharing is further limited to $2,500 for any one structure for constructing, enlarging, or sealing dams, pits or ponds for irrigation water. Cost-sharing for irrigation practices in any one contract shall not exceed $2,500 or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation (exclusive of cost-sharing for practices for enhancing fish and wildlife and recreation resources, promoting the economic use of land, and reducing or controlling agricultural related pollutants) whichever is larger. There is also a cost-sharing limitation of $25 thousand for any contract.

Each participant who signs a Great Plains program contract is responsible for implementing his plan of operations; and the department is committed to furnish the necessary technical help needed for design, layout, and other services. Cooperating landowners and operators are encouraged to make use of other available assistance under local, State, and Federal programs as a means of further improving their land and water resources.

The Department cooperates with other Federal agencies, States, local units of government, groups and individuals in developing and carrying out programs and plans for resource conservation and development and shares in the cost of installing planned project measures, when justified as a public need. Loans are provided to qualified local sponsoring organizations when needed to help them finance their share of the cost of certain project measures which are in the public interest. Project measures planned will contribute to improvement in the economy of the area and to needed land use adjustments.

Technical assistance is provided in each project area approved for planning to help sponsoring organizations prepare overall plans for resource conservation and development. Project plans will have been finished and operations begun in 78 areas by June 30, 1972. Project planning will be initiated in 20 areas during 1973. Project plans will be completed in 10 areas during 1973 and 20 will be completed during 1974. The 10 project plans completed in 1973 will bring the number of areas authorized for operations by June 30, 1973 to 88.

Each project authorized for operations is provided technical assistance to help cooperating groups and individuals plan and install land treatment measures; to design and supervise installation of community-type project measures; and, to assist in the preparation of plans for resource development and economic improvement within project areas.

The main workload factors in 1973 include:

(a) Assistance to local sponsors in developing suitable plans.

(b) Operations in 88 project areas for which plans will have been completed.

(c) Acceleration of project measures installation expected to be made possible by additional State and local funds, and through the use of Resource Conservation and Development program technical and financial assistance for eligible erosion and sediment control flood prevention, agricultural water management, and public water-based recreation and fish and wildlife measures.

Field work under this program consists primarily, of planning, designing, and supervision of installation of project measures and conservation practices, the purpose of which is to develop or improve the economic use of natural resources. This includes outdoor recreation facilities and income-producing enterprises where needed and where consistent with good land use. Investigations, surveys and planning are prerequisite to the operating phase of this program. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help plan and install project measures as specified in project plans.

Loans are made to qualified local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of installing project measures. Funds will be available for loans from the direct loan account of the Farmers Home Administration.

Public Law 90-85, approved September 11, 1967, authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to convey to the county of Alameda, State of California, by quit claim deed, for not less than fair market value as determined by independent appraisal, all rights, title, and interest of the United States in and to the Pleasanton Plant Materials Center, situated in Alameda County, Calif.

Section 2 of Public Law 90-85 authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to apply the proceeds of the sale of the Pleasanton Plant Materials Center to the costs of acquiring other lands or interests in land in the State of California which the Secretary deems suitable for a plant materials center to be established as a replacement for the Pleasanton Plant Materials Center, to the cost of construction and alteration of buildings and the development of such other improvements and to the costs of removal to such center of the functions of the Pleasanton Plant Materials Center, including the expenses incident to the transfer of personnel, and the removal of equipment, planting stock, and other property.

The Pleasanton Plant Materials Center was sold to the county of Alameda, State of California on January 20, 1970, for $745 thousand and an initial payment of $300 thousand was made to the Soil Conservation Service. The amount of $100 thousand was paid on March 1, 1970, another $100 thousand was paid on October 1, 1970, and the remaining $245 thousand was paid on January 8, 1971.

A new nursery site to be known as the Lockeford Plant Materials Center was purchased on April 7, 1970, for $250 thousand. The land has been paid for and some land conditioning has been done. Buildings will be constructed, which are authorized in Public Law 90-85, and nursery stock planted, and employees transferred during fiscal years 1971 and 1972.

These activities provide consumer protection through inspection for wholesomeness of meat and poultry products. They assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities through various marketing and regulatory services. These services continue to expand and become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the market structure undergoes dramatic changes. These marketing changes include increased concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

1. Market news service.—This service provides current information on supply, movement, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. This day-to-day market information enables American farmers to determine where and when to sell and at what price. The information is collected and disseminated at year-round and seasonal offices maintained in more than 140 cities and towns, often with local and other support and cooperation, generally from State departments of agriculture. Dissemination is made primarily by radio, television, and mimeographed reports. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

2. Inspection, grading, classing, and standardization.—(a) Meat and poultry inspection.—Federal meat inspection is required for all meat and meat products moving in interstate and foreign commerce to assure a clean and wholesome meat supply for human consumption, free from adulteration, and truthfully labeled. All meat and meat products moving in intrastate commerce must be federally inspected or inspected by States to standards at least equal to the Federal. The work includes inspection of animals, carcasses, meat, and meat-food products at various stages of handling and processing.

Measures are enforced to assure informative labeling, and that meats imported or exported are inspected. The Federal program also provides financial and technical assistance to States for improving the quality of their inspection programs.

The increases in the 1973 estimates provide for inspection of additional plants and increased financial assistance to States.

The volume of inspections and examinations is indicated by examples given in the following table:

Inspection of poultry meat and poultry meat products for wholesomeness is provided pursuant to the Poultry Products Inspection Act of 1957, as amended. All poultry processed in plants shipping in interstate or foreign commerce is required to be inspected both before and after slaughter. Birds found to be unfit for human consumption are condemned and removed from channels of trade. The Federal program also provides financial and technical assistance to States for improving the quality of their inspection programs.

The increase for 1973 provides for inspection of an anticipated increased volume of poultry and poultry products and additional financial assistance to States. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

(b) All other (inspection, grading, classing, and standardization).—Nationally uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of products to: Promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party, and generally for a fee. Approximately 75% of the total cost of this work was offset by fees and other revenue in 1971.

The estimates for 1973 include an increase to provide financing for 1 year of operation under the fully implemented Egg Products Inspection Act. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following tables:

3. Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of regulatory laws such as the U.S. Warehouse and Federal Seed Acts to assure fair play in the marketplace, to protect producers and handlers of agricultural commodities from financial loss due to careless or fraudulent marketing practices, and to preserve free and open competition in the marketing of farm products. Assistance is also provided to farmers and others in obtaining and maintaining equitable and reasonable transportation rates and services on farm products and supplies. The Cotton Research and Promotion Act is designed to improve the competitive position and expand markets for cotton through a program of self-assessment by cotton producers. The Service also administers the Wheat Research and Promotion Act, Agricultural Fair Practices Act of 1967, and the Plant Variety Protection Act.

The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

4. Administration and coordination of State payments.—This project covers Federal activity required in administering and coordinating the marketing service work performed by the States and financed jointly by State funds and Federal funds provided by the appropriation, Payments to States and possessions. In 1971 this work was carried on in 44 States and 143 work projects.

Payments are made on a matching fund basis to State marketing agencies for carrying out specifically approved marketing service programs designed to bring about improved marketing. Under this activity, marketing specialists work with farmers, marketing firms, and agencies in solving marketing problems and in utilizing marketing research results.

This program covers such projects as: Methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products; ways of reducing marketing costs; expanding outlets for surplus products; collecting and disseminating special State and local market information and statistics; and improving the organizational structure of the marketing system. Through this cooperative approach, the Federal Government's leadership and money are coupled with State resources and experience to aid in the solution of the most urgent local and area marketing problems.

Under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U.S.C. 612c), 30% of customs receipts collected during each calendar year plus unused balances up to $300 million are available for expanding outlets for farm commodities. An amount equal to 30% of receipts collected on fishery products is transferred to the Department of Commerce to encourage the distribution of such products. As provided in recent appropriation acts, other transfers have been made from this fund primarily to the child nutrition programs for the purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities and cash reimbursements for meals served. Section 32 funds are also authorized for the administration of marketing agreements and orders. The basic legislation provides that funds devoted to any one commodity or product thereof must not exceed 25% of funds available. It also provides that the funds must be devoted principally to perishable agricultural commodities other than those receiving price support under title II of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended. It has been determined that this provision can be legally satisfied by setting aside or reserving the principal portion of section 32 funds for the purchase of perishable nonbasic agricultural commodities.

1. Commodity program payments are of five types: (a) Direct purchases are donated to schools, summer camps, child-care centers, nonprofit institutions serving needy persons, persons certified by welfare as eligible for relief, and disaster victims; (b) diversion payments enable processors to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market, divert them to byproducts and new uses, and sell them at prices comparable to competing products, thus creating new markets for surplus commodities; (c) export payments enable exporters to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market and sell them on the world market at competitive world prices; (d) production payments help to reestablish farmers' purchasing power; (e) financial assistance to States enable State distributing agencies to improve the distribution system supplying commodities to needy families. During 1970 and 1971, assistance under these programs was given to the following commodity groups (in millions of dollars):

¹ Includes special feeding program commodities purchased for special food packages donated in food stamp areas: $10.3 million in fiscal year 1970 and $11.0 million in fiscal year 1971.

The use of section 32 program funds is contingent upon marketing conditions. The estimates for both 1972 and 1973 reflect the foreseeable needs for perishables and other activities regularly financed with section 32 funds. If troublesome surpluses not now foreseen should develop, steps will be taken to use additional available funds for their removal or diversion as conditions warrant.

Funds have been used for the certification and distribution of food to needy families in selected counties where local governmental agencies are unwilling or unable to operate food distribution programs.

2. The special feeding program was initiated in 1969 to meet the urgent need for providing additional foods to needy children and adults who are determined to be suffering from general and continued hunger. The funds provided are channeled primarily through the child feeding programs authorized by the School Lunch and Child Nutrition Acts.

Working with the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and the Office of Economic Opportunity, the Department developed a distribution system to provide special food packages for infants and expectant and new mothers. These packages are being distributed in both food stamp and commodity donation areas. Funds have also been used for conducting a pilot food certificate program designed to increase food purchasing power for expectant and new mothers and infants through the issuance of certificates to be exchanged at their local grocery for certain commodities.

3. Surplus removal operating expenses occur mainly in connection with purchasing, diverting, and exporting surplus commodities, and in distributing section 32 and Commodity Credit Corporation commodities to eligible outlets. Distribution in 1971, including that under section 6 of the National School Lunch Act, is summarized below (in millions):

Distribution	Number of recipients (peak month)	Value of commodities distributed	Pounds of commodities distributed
By recipients:
Schoolchildren.....	24.7	$279.2	1,108.7

Total.....		624.9	2,574.3

In cooperation with the food trade, press, and radio, greater consumption of abundant foods is encouraged through publication of a monthly plentiful foods list and the conduct of various food drives. In 1971 the monthly plentiful foods list contained an average of 10 foods. Seventeen national and five area, State, and local drives were conducted.

4. Marketing agreements and orders are put into effect upon request of producers or handlers after hearings and investigations, and upon approval by producers (handlers in the case of marketing agreements). They help to stabilize prices, and benefit producers and consumers by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Administration at the local level is financed by assessment upon handlers. On June 30, 1971, there were in effect 62 orders for milk, 49 agreements and orders for tree fruits, nuts, and vegetables, and one order for shade-grown tobacco. The expenses of advisory committees established to advise the Secretary, public hearings, referenda to determine producer sentiment, and other developmental work as authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1961 are also financed under this project.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $0 (1971 adjustments, -$6 thousand); 1971, $0; 1972, $0; 1973, $0.

License fees are deposited in this special fund and are used to meet costs of administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities and the Produce Agency Acts (7 U.S.C. 491-497, 499a-499s). The law currently provides that annual license fees may be set at a maximum of $100. Effective January 1, 1971, the fee was increased from $50 to $60.

The acts are intended to assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (a) informal agreements between the two parties, (b) formal decisions involving payment of reparation awards, and (c) suspension or revocation of license and/or publication of the facts.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended—under certain conditions—to issue Federal milk marketing orders establishing minimum prices which handlers are required to pay for milk purchased from producers.

Market administrators are responsible for carrying out locally the terms of specific marketing orders. Their operating expenses, partly financed by assessments on regulated handlers and partly by deductions from producers, are reported in these schedules. These funds are collected locally, deposited in local banks, and disbursed directly by the market administrator.

Each milk order is administered locally by a market administrator who is appointed by the Secretary. His staff is employed directly by the market administrator.

The activities conducted in the local office are concerned primarily with monthly computations and public announcement of class and uniform blend prices, associated butterfat differentials, examination of handlers records and facilities to verify their reports and payments to producers, and in checking weights and tests of producer milk.

The expenses of each local office are met from an administrative fund and a marketing service fund which are prescribed in each order. The administrative fund is derived from prorated handler assessments. The marketing service fund of the individual order provides for the expense of disseminating market information to producers who are not members of a qualified cooperative. It also provides for the verification of the weights, sampling, and testing of milk from these producers. The cost of these services is borne by such producers.

The maximum rates for administrative assessment and for marketing services are set forth in each order and adjustments below these rates are made from time to time upon recommendations by the market administrator and upon approval of the Consumer and Marketing Service to provide reserves at about a 6-month operating level. Upon termination of any order, the statute provides for distributing the proceeds from net assets pro rata to contributing handlers or producers as the case may be.

Milk sold by regulated handlers supplied over 125 million persons in calendar year 1970.

The following table gives an indication of the growing role of Federal orders on the marketing of milk over the past few years:

Expansion of these programs in fiscal year 1973 is being funded by an increase in the special feeding program section 32 funds, which more than offsets decreases in the direct appropriation. The child nutrition programs have been greatly strengthened and expanded by Public Law 91-248, which became law on May 14, 1970. This law clearly established that priority shall be given to reaching needy children, and provided for the establishment of a national minimum eligibility standard for free and reduced-price meals, and a maximum price which may be charged for these meals. The law emphasizes that access to the school lunch program shall be available to children in all schools. Nutritional training as related to workers, cooperators, and participants is authorized by the act. Public Law 92-153, enacted November 5, 1971, increased Federal support for the national school lunch program by mandating a minimum $0.40 rate in special assistance (sec. 11) for free lunches, and a lesser minimum rate for reduced-price lunches. In addition, the law authorizes an average rate of reimbursement of $0.06 per meal within each State.

1. Cash payments to States.—The programs are operated under an agreement entered into by the State educational agency and the Department. Funds are advanced under letters of credit to State agencies for use in reimbursing participating schools and child-care institutions. Sponsors make application to the State agency and, if accepted, are reimbursed in accordance with the terms of their agreement.

(a) School lunch program.—Assistance in the form of both funds and food is provided to the States, as defined in the National School Lunch Act, for serving lunches to school children. Each State's portion of the section 4 general-assistance funds available is determined by a statutory formula. The formula takes into account the participation rate in the State, and the relationship between the per capita income of the State and the average U.S. per capita income. States must match the Federal cash grant from sources within the State at a 3-to-1 ratio. For States with below-average per capita income, this ratio is decreased. In 1971, sources within the States contributed to this program $1,815 million, most of which came from children's payments. In 1973 the States are required to provide at least 4% of the matching requirement from State revenues.

The program during the peak month in fiscal year 1971 provided lunches daily to about 52% of the approximately 47.1 million children in daily attendance. The number of lunches served increased approximately 8% over fiscal 1970. Participation in the program in May 1971 reached a daily average of about 24.7 million children in 79,800 schools and a large increase is expected in 1972.

(b) Special assistance.—Under the legislation, special cash assistance may be provided to any school which has needy children in attendance. The statutory formula for apportionment of funds to States relates to children from families with incomes of less than $4 thousand per year. Increased funding provided a Federal average cash reimbursement rate of 31¢ per free or reduced-price meal, in addition to the average of 6¢ per meal from section 4 funds in fiscal year 1971. A daily average of approximately 6.2 million children were served 1,004.8 million free or reduced-price lunches. At the end of the 1970-71 school year 7.3 million children were receiving free or reduced-price lunches. Based on the higher mandatory reimbursement rates in Public Law 92-153, the increases for fiscal 1972 should provide lunches for a daily average of 7.9 million needy children this school year.

(c) School breakfast program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorized a school breakfast program for 2 years on a pilot basis to assist States through grants-in-aid and other means to initiate, maintain, or expand nonprofit breakfast programs in schools. Public Law 92-32, approved June 30, 1971, extended the breakfast program through 1973.

Funds are apportioned to States by a statutory formula. While the basic payments are limited to food assistance, in circumstances of severe need, financial assistance may be authorized up to 100% of the need for additional assistance.

The program is operated in schools drawing attendance from areas in which poor economic conditions exist and where a substantial portion of the children enrolled travel long distances. In fiscal year 1971, an average of 756,000 children were served 123 million breakfasts in 6,562 schools. About 76% of the breakfasts were served free or at token charges to children. In fiscal year 1972 it is estimated that a daily average of 1,275,000 children will participate.

(d) Nonfood assistance program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorized a permanent program to assist the States through grants-in-aid and other means to supply schools in low-income areas with food service equipment, other than land or buildings. Under the Public Law 91-248 amendments, 50% of the funds for equipment assistance will be apportioned among the States on the same basis as the section 4 apportionment, with the remaining funds apportioned on the basis of children enrolled in schools without a food service. Priority is being given to the latter schools under recently issued regulations. These schools must agree to take part in the national school lunch program and/or the school breakfast program.

Applicant schools are required to justify their need for assistance on a project basis and submit a detailed description of the equipment to be acquired, including their proposals for its use in meeting the nutritional needs of children. In addition, State and local sources must bear 25% of the cost of equipment or facilities financed under this authority.

In fiscal year 1971, a total of 15,156 schools with a total attendance of over 7.4 million students received equipment assistance of over $37 million. This included special section 32 funds and provided assistance in all 50 States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa.

(e) State administrative expenses.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 provides for advances to each State educational agency for administrative expenses. These funds are used for supervising and giving technical assistance to the local school districts and service institutions for additional activities undertaken by them to reach more children under the school lunch, special assistance, school breakfast, nonfood assistance, and nonschool food programs.

(f) Nonschool food program.—The National School Lunch Act was amended in 1968 to authorize a pilot program for 3 years to assist States to initiate, maintain, or expand nonprofit food service programs for children in service institutions where children are not maintained in residence. Public Law 92-32, approved June 30, 1971, extended the nonschool food program through 1973. Preschool children receive year-round assistance in child day-care centers. These programs also reach school age children from areas of economic need and from areas with a high concentration of working mothers during the summer months in settlement houses, neighborhood houses, and recreation centers.

Each State may receive a basic grant of $50 thousand. The remaining funds are apportioned by a formula determined by the ratio of the number of children (aged 3 to 17 inclusive) from families with income under $3 thousand per year in each State, to the total number of such children in all States. Up to 80% of the total cost of meals served may be paid in cases of severe need, and not more than 75% of the equipment costs may be paid to the institutions. All meals served must meet minimum nutritional standards as a condition for receiving assistance.

In fiscal year 1971, 107.5 million meals were served to a peak of 573,000 children in the 1970 summer program and to 224,000 children on a year-round basis. At an average cost of about 40¢ per child per day, it is estimated that this program will reach about 1.3 million children in fiscal year 1972. With each child receiving an average of approximately two meals per day, it is expected that about 197.5 million meals will be consumed.

2. Commodity procurement.—Commodity procurement under section 6 of the National School Lunch Act provides additional commodities to schools to supplement foods purchased locally or otherwise made available for the lunch program. As amended by Public Law 91-248, these commodities may also be used to supplement the school breakfast and nonschool food programs. Section 6 procurement helps to insure nutritionally adequate meals and appreciation for quality foods. It also broadens agricultural markets. Commodities are purchased by the Department on the basis of their nutritional value and acceptability to schools and service institutions.

Protein items of chicken and meat accounted for about two-thirds of the purchases in fiscal year 1971. The remaining one-third consisted of fruits and vegetables. In fiscal year 1972 frozen ground beef, chicken, and fruits and vegetables are being purchased.

Commodities acquired under price support and surplus removal programs are also available to schools and child-care institutions. The volume of surplus commodities distributed depends upon market conditions.

During 1971 over $1.4 billion worth of agricultural commodities and other foods were used. About 20% of this amount represented commodities contributed under section 6 and the Federal surplus removal and price support programs. Approximately 80% was purchased through local suppliers.

3. Nutritional training and surveys.—Up to 1% of the total funds available may be used for nutritional training and for studies and surveys of food service requirements, as provided for in Public Law 91-248. In fiscal year 1972 the principal area of concentration is on managerial workers at the supervisory, school system, and local levels to assure effective delivery of nutritionally adequate meals to children.

4. Operating expenses.—Administrative and technical assistance is furnished to State agencies, participating schools and child-care institutions. Policies, procedures and standards are developed for administering the programs and determining eligibility. The programs are administered directly in private schools where the State educational agency is prohibited by law from disbursing funds and in child-care institutions where no State agency has assumed the responsibility for administering the program.

Participation in the programs from 1970 through 1973 is as follows:

1. Cash payments to States.—This program is designed to increase the consumption of fluid milk by children in nonprofit schools of high school grade and under, child-care centers, summer camps, and similar nonprofit institutions.

Funds are provided under letters of credit to State agencies to reimburse eligible participants for a part of the cost of the fluid milk consumed. Beginning in fiscal year 1968, available funds were apportioned among the States on the basis of payments made to schools and child-care institutions for program reimbursement during the preceding fiscal year. In especially needy schools, reimbursement payments may be made for the full cost of this milk for children who are unable to pay. In fiscal year 1971, the program was financed by a direct appropriation of $104 million.

In 1971 almost 2.6 billion half-pints of fluid milk were consumed by children—over five times the quantity in 1955, the first year of operation of the program. This represents almost 3% of the total nonfarm consumption of the fluid milk in the United States.

Program activities for 1970 and 1971 are as follows:

The Food stamp program provides increased nutrition to households with limited resources. Programs are inaugurated in counties and other project areas at the request of State welfare agencies which are responsible for certification and coupon issuance. Food coupons are then issued to needy households that qualify.

Cash paid by participants for the coupons is periodically forwarded to a designated Federal depository. Authorized food stores accept the stamps from recipients and, in turn, forward them to a commercial bank for cash or credit for their face value. The coupons then flow through regular banking channels to the Federal Reserve banks where they are redeemed.

The Department determines the allotment of coupons for a household unit based on income, food needs, and other factors. Participants are charged for coupons, based on income and family size. The supplement or bonus coupons permit the family to afford a nutritionally adequate diet by expanding its food purchasing power.

On January 11, 1971, Public Law 91-671 was enacted, resulting in new regulations which: (1) Establish uniform national income and resource eligibility standards; (2) increase the allotment of food stamps for recipients; (3) provide free food stamps for the very poor; (4) provide for the variable purchase of the coupon allotment; (5) provide for "meals on wheels" for the elderly who are unable to prepare their own meals; (6) redefine income and resources; and (7) set a new definition of households. These new regulations will become effective during 1972.

On October 29, 1971, the designation of 192 new areas in 26 States was announced. Two of these areas had no family food programs previously.

Outreach-education efforts were accelerated throughout the country. Presentations were made to volunteer family assistance organizations, local poverty groups, and business and professional meetings. Nutrition education efforts were coordinated with the Extension Service. During fiscal year 1971, 276 new projects entered the program in 46 States; the national average participation increased by approximately 4 million people; and an additional 34,500 retailers and wholesalers entered the program.

Efforts were directed toward improving the overall administration of the program. An experimental withholding project was begun in five States. This operation permits the recipient to voluntarily have the purchase price of his stamps withheld from his public assistance grant. The results of this pilot operation are being studied prior to the implementation of a nationwide public assistance withholding program. Simultaneously, increased emphasis was placed on the safety of cash and coupons at local issuance offices. Suggestions were made to State and local agencies as to methods they might adopt to improve their security practices. In an attempt to monitor the activities of authorized outlets, the control of retailer-wholesaler redemption certificates is now being automated. At the close of fiscal year 1971, areas containing some 91,000 retailers have been included in the automated system. The overall impact of these and other improvements is to provide better benefits to program participants at a lower Federal cost.

The following table reflects increased coverage, participation, and costs for the past three fiscal years.

FOREST SERVICE

The Service carries on three primary functions: (1) Protection, development, and use of about 187 million acres of land in National Forests and National Grasslands in the United States and Puerto Rico; (2) forestry research for all public and private forest lands and related ranges to improve protection from fire, insects, and diseases; to increase production of timber, forage, water, and other products; to improve methods for developing and managing recreation resources; to develop better utilization and marketing of forest products; and to maintain a current inventory of forest resources through a nationwide forest survey; and (3) cooperation with States and private landowners to obtain better fire protection on approximately 521 million acres of forest land and nonforest watersheds; to provide technical advice and financial assistance to promote development, improvement, and expansion of forest pest detection and suppression programs; to improve forest practices on about 397 million acres of State and local government and privately-owned commercial timber lands; and to encourage reforestation and stimulate development and management of State, county, and community forests.

These primary functions include construction and maintenance of roads and trails, control of forest pests, protection against floods, land acquisition and exchange, and a number of cooperative projects.

FOREST PROTECTION AND UTILIZATION

For expenses necessary for forest protection and utilization, as follows:

Forest land management: For necessary expenses of the Forest Service, not otherwise provided for, including the administration, improvement, development, and management of lands under Forest Service administration, fighting and preventing forest fires on or threatening such lands and for liquidation of obligations incurred in the preceding fiscal year for such purposes, control of white pine blister rust and other forest diseases and insects on Federal and non-Federal lands, [$238,678,300] $238,143,000, of which $4,275,000 for fighting and preventing forest fires and $1,910,000 for insect and disease control shall be apportioned for use, pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, to the extent necessary under the then existing conditions: Provided, That funds appropriated for "Cooperative range improvements", pursuant to section 12 of the Act of April 24, 1950 (16 U.S.C. 580h), may be advanced to this appropriation: Provided further, That funds appropriated for the cooperative law enforcement program shall remain available until expended.

Forest research: For forest research at forest and range experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, or elsewhere, as authorized by law, [$54,325,000] $55,085,000.

State and private forestry cooperation: For cooperation with States in forest-fire prevention and suppression, in forest tree planting on non-Federal public and private lands, and in forest management and processing, and for advising timberland owners, associations, wood-using industries, and others in the application of forest management principles and processing of forest products, as authorized by law, [$27,741,000] $27,598,000. 1. Forest land management.—(a) National forest protection and management.—The 154 national forests and 19 units of national grasslands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, and wildlife are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation without impairing productivity of the land. The management and utilization principles were recognized in the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to meeting the increased demands for specific national forest resource needs through 1973 and for long-term objectives to the year 2000. Increases are provided in the budget to further attainment of these program objectives. Funds appropriated under Cooperative range improvements are merged with this appropriation for obligational purposes. A supplemental appropriation for forest fire protection is anticipated for 1972.

(b) Water resource development related activities.—Provides for impact surveys, construction liaison, land treatment, soil stabilization, and cover improvement required by water resource projects of other agencies which are located within or adjacent to the national forests, and studies of designated wild and scenic rivers.

(c) Fighting forest fires.—Provides for employment of additional manpower and other facilities for forest fire emergencies which cannot be met under national forest protection and management. Costs above estimates for the current and budget years are authorized from advances from other Forest Service appropriations. A supplemental appropriation for fighting forest fires is anticipated for 1972.

	1970 actual	1971 actual	1972 estimate
Forest fires controlled (number).....	11,662	13,910	11,600
Area burned (acres).....	97,293	575,047	235,000

(d) Insect and disease control.—Activities to suppress and control destructive insects and diseases that threaten timber areas include two types of work carried on jointly by Federal, State, and private agencies: (1) Surveys on forest lands to detect and evaluate infestations of forest insects and infections of tree diseases and determination of protective measures to be taken, and (2) control operations to suppress or eradicate forest insects and diseases, including white pine blister rust.

(e) Cooperative law enforcement program.—Public Law 92-82 authorizes the cooperation with any State or political subdivision thereof in the enforcement of State or local laws on lands of the national forest system. A supplemental appropriation is anticipated for 1972.

2. Forest research.—Research is conducted at eight regional forest experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, and the Institute of Tropical Forestry.

(a) Forest and range management.—Research provides land managers and owners with a sound basis for management of timber, forage, wildlife, recreation, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to maintain a sustained yield of products at least cost; improve forage and habitat for livestock and wildlife without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce floods and sedimentation; and improve methods for developing and managing recreation resources; and provide management methods for all uses that will insure environmental protection.

(b) Forest protection.—Research is conducted to develop measures for the protection of forests from damage by fire, insects, and diseases. Forest fire and atmospheric science research provides improved methods of preventing fires, predicting fire danger, and preparing for and combating fire by combinations of ground and aerial methods. Insect and disease research develops direct controls, cultural measures, and biological agents to combat forest pests.

(c) Forest products and engineering.—Studies are conducted to develop new and improved forest products, to reduce and utilize waste, and to use low-quality wood and less-desirable species. Research is also conducted to advance the mechanization and efficiency of forestry operations, and to develop and evaluate machines and similar equipment for such operations as harvesting, planting, timber stand improvement, and protection of forests.

(d) Forest resource economics.—Investigations are conducted to inventory and appraise the condition of forest lands, volume and quality of standing timber, ownership of timber resources, annual growth and depletion, and the potential need for timber products. Economic studies are made of forest crop production, resource productivity, and the marketing potentials of forest products.

3. State and private forestry cooperation.—Assists States, other public and private agencies, and individuals to protect, manage, and develop non-Federal forest lands, and improve the production of forest products. By so doing, the social and economic welfare of rural people will be improved and an adequate supply of forest and related resources for the future will be assured. The 397 million acres of non-Federal forest lands produce about 60% of all timber cut.

(a) Forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished 50 States in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private- and State-owned lands by financial aid, coordination, training, development, and procurement of equipment, and a nationwide fire prevention campaign. About 96% of the 543 million acres of non-Federal ownership planned for protection is now covered. During 1970 the acreage burned on protected areas was 0.31%, as against an estimated 3.27% on unprotected lands. Of the total expenditures under this program, 83.9% is contributed by States and counties, 1.6% by private owners, and 14.5% by the Federal Government.

(b) Forest tree planting.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to the States for the production, acquisition, and distribution of over half of the Nation's tree planting stock for forest and windbarrier planting on non-Federal lands. More than 70 million acres of non-stocked, poorly stocked, or open lands need to be reforested.

(c) Forest management and processing.—In cooperation with 50 States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, technical assistance is given to woodland owners in applying multiple-use management to their forest holdings, and to operators of forest products manufacturing plants in improving their manufacturing and processing techniques to extend timber supplies.

(d) General forestry assistance.—Technical management assistance is provided usually by Federal personnel but also through other arrangements to State, community, private, and other Federal agencies, forest industries, colleges, and landowners. This program also provides forest products utilization assistance to wood-using industries and loggers.

1. Forest land management construction.—(a) Recreation facilities.—To provide facilities necessary to safely meet increased recreation demand without sacrificing environment values and without unduly impinging upon other resource uses of the national forests.

(b) Other facilities.—To provide for construction and acquisition of fire, administrative, and other improvements and related facilities necessary to carry out national forest programs. Includes fire lookouts, offices, dwellings and barracks for employee housing, service and storage buildings, insectories, tree nursery buildings, basic communication systems, and other forest resource management projects. Also includes acquisition of land and interests therein for administrative purposes.

2. Research construction.—To provide for construction, alteration, and improvement of research laboratories and related facilities, and for procurement and installation of necessary initial equipment needed to put the facility into operating condition.

3. Pollution abatement.—To provide for bringing water and air pollution control at existing recreation, research, fire, and administrative facilities to the quality standards adopted pursuant to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, the Clean Air Act, as amended, or as prescribed pursuant to Executive Order 11507, dated February 4, 1970.

4. Land acquisition, Weeks Act.—Lands are purchased to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber, with the approval of the National Forest Reservation Commission.

Roads and trails are essential to protection and management of national forests and utilization of their resources.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970 provides authority of $170 million each for 1972 and 1973. The authority is available for obligation a year in advance of the year for which authorized. This budget provides for utilization of $135.3 million unused contract authority.

The 1973 program will involve the construction and reconstruction of about 900 miles of general purpose and recreation roads and timber access roads to harvest national forest timber. This compares with 648 miles built in 1971 and 1,027 miles being built in 1972.

Of the revenues received annually from national forest activities, 10 percent is available under the permanent appropriation Roads and trails for States, for construction and maintenance within the States from which such proceeds are derived. Such amounts are merged with this appropriation for obligational purposes.

1. Acquisition of lands for Uinta National Forest.—79 Stat. 899, approved October 1, 1965, provided authorization for the appropriation of $300 thousand for purchase of non-federally owned land to promote the control of floods and the reduction of soil erosion through restoration of adequate vegetative cover. The full amount of this authorization was appropriated in fiscal year 1967.

2. Acquisition of lands for Wasatch National Forest.—76 Stat. 545, approved September 14, 1962, added some 24,000 acres to the Wasatch National Forest and authorized the appropriation of $400 thousand for purchase of privately owned lands within the area to aid in the control of floods and reduction of soil erosion. The 1965 appropriation completed the authorization.

3. Acquisition of lands for Superior National Forest.—The authorization for the purchase of land within this forest was increased to $4.5 million (16 U.S.C. 577c-577h). The 1963 appropriation completed the authorization for acquisition of the remaining tracts.

4. Acquisition of lands for Cache National Forest.—Lands are acquired to enable control and minimization of soil erosion and flood damage.

The Working capital fund was established by the act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the act of October 23, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 579b). It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to national forests, experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The following services were provided by the Working capital fund in fiscal year 1971:

1. Equipment service.—This service owns, operates, maintains, and replaces approximately 13,500 pieces of common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to a total of 146 administrative units, i.e., national forests, experiment stations and other units, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash which when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment. This service operates 93 repair shops.

2. Aircraft service.—This service operates and maintains 57 Forest Service-owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are based at 16 locations and are rented to national forests, experiment stations, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of depreciation, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Aircraft replacement costs are financed from either appropriated funds or the Forest Service Working capital fund, or a combination of both. This service operates three aircraft maintenance shops.

3. Supply service.—This service operates the following common services:

(a) Central supply.—This service has two locations for procurement, warehousing, and supply of common use items, such as work project tools, provisions, and supplies. Grass seed is procured, stored, and issued from two other locations. Issuances and sales are made to national forests, experiment stations, and others at prices which recover cost.

(b) Photo reproduction.—Six photo reproduction laboratories store, reproduce, and supply aerial photographs, aerial maps, and other photographs of national forest lands. The photographic reproductions are sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at cost.

(c) Sign shop.—These include seven small shops which manufacture and supply special signs for the national forests for use in regulating traffic and as information to the public and other users of the national forests. The signs are sold to national forests and experiment stations at cost.

(d) Subsistence.—There are 27 facilities which prepare and serve meals at cost to Forest Service work crews working in remote areas where adequate public restaurant facilities are not available.

(e) Cribbing.—This facility is located on the Angeles National Forest, Calif., to manufacture special concrete structural material used in embankments for erosion control purposes along access roads in the national forests. This material is sold to national forests at prices which recover costs.

4. Nurseries.—This service operates 13 forest tree nurseries and cold storage facilities for storage of tree and seed stock and one seed extractory. Tree seed is procured, cleaned, bagged, and stored in refrigerated facilities. Tree and seed stock is sold to national forests, States, and other Federal agencies at cost.

The Working capital fund requires no cash appropriation. Initially, its assets were purchased by regular Forest Service appropriations and were donated to the fund. Where expansion of facilities is required that expansion is financed by Forest Service regular appropriations and the resulting assets are donated to the fund.

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. Within the unit limit of cost fixed by law, appropriations and authorizations made for the Department of Agriculture under this Act shall be available for the purchase, in addition to those specifically provided for, of not to exceed [six hundred and seventy-one (671)] five hundred and seventy-two (572) passenger motor vehicles, of which [four hundred and sixty-one (461)] four hundred and thirty-nine (439) shall be for replacement only, and for the hire of such vehicles.

SEC. 502. Provisions of law prohibiting or restricting the employment of aliens shall not apply to employment under the appropriations for the Foreign Agricultural Service.

SEC. 503. Funds available to the Department of Agriculture shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 504. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the payment of any officer or employee of the Department of Agriculture who, as such officer or employee, or on behalf of the Department or any division, commission, or bureau thereof, issues, or causes to be issued, any prediction, oral or written, or forecast, except as to damage threatened or caused by insects and pests with respect to future prices of cotton or the trend of same.

SEC. 505. Except to provide materials required in or incident to research or experimental work where no suitable domestic product is available, no part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be expended in the purchase of twine manufactured from commodities or materials produced outside of the United States.

SEC. 506. Not less than $1,500,000 of the appropriations of the Department of Agriculture for research and service work authorized by the Acts of August 14, 1946, July 28, 1954, and September 6, 1958 (7 U.S.C. 427, 1621-1629; 42 U.S.C. 1891-1893), shall be available for contracting in accordance with said Acts.

SEC. 507. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 508. No part of the funds contained in this Act may be used to make production or other payments to a person, persons, or corporations who harvest or knowingly permit to be harvested for illegal use, marihuana, or other such prohibited drug-producing plants on any part of lands owned or controlled by such persons or corporations. 1. Distribution and service.—Periodic sample surveys are conducted which provide estimates of retail sales (1) weekly for major kinds of business, and monthly for individual kinds of business for the total United States and (2) monthly for summary and selected kinds of business for regions, census geographic divisions, and selected large States and individual standard metropolitan statistical areas (SMSA's), and monthly sales of department stores for many SMSA's and counties. Also provided are end-of-month national estimates of retail inventories and accounts receivable balances by kind of business and annual national estimates of retailers' purchases, end-of-year inventories, and sales-inventory ratios by kind of business. Surveys also provide (1) monthly national estimates of the receipts of selected service trades and (2) sales and inventories of merchant wholesalers for individual kinds of business on the national level, and for summary and selected kinds of business for major geographical regions. In addition, during the marketing season, estimates are made of canned food stocks held by distributors, and quarterly reports are prepared regarding green coffee roastings, and inventories.

A county business patterns report, providing statistics on employment payrolls by detailed kinds of business and by individual county, is prepared annually; this report covers nonfarm paid employment included in the social security program.

In 1973, the monthly retail trades survey sample size will be increased to reduce the variance in national totals, improve the reliability of the estimates currently published by kind of business, and permit publication of more kinds of business categories and geographic detail. Improvements will also be made to minimize the nonsampling error in the current retail trade reports, expand the service trade program to include employment agencies, real estate and insurance agencies, and repair services. Resources are also provided to improve business inventory data.

2. Construction.—Monthly reports are published for housing starts, residential and nonresidential construction authorized by building permits, and the value of new construction put in place. Quarterly reports are provided on expenditures for residential alterations and repairs and quarterly price indexes are compiled for new single-family houses sold. Publication, on a quarterly basis, of the one-family house price index began in 1971 and a quarterly index for multifamily residential structures is now nearing completion. An annual report is published on permits issued for demolition of residential structures.

Beginning in 1973, work will be initiated to provide price indexes for selected types of nonresidential buildings including educational, hospital, and health care institutional structures. A survey of new mobile home placements will be conducted to obtain information on their number, location, physical characteristics, and prices, and work will begin on the value of farm construction put in place. Improvements will be made in the reporting of value of new multiunit dwellings and State and local government construction.

3. Manufacturing.—Statistics are provided monthly on manufacturers' sales, orders, and inventories for total manufacturing and for about 35 industry breakdowns. An Annual Survey of Manufactures produces statistics on the important measures of factory operations such as employment, value added, and investment. Monthly, quarterly, and annual surveys are conducted of production, shipments, orders, and materials consumed for important industries and products. Work is now underway on a report of industrial mergers, acquisitions, and disposals. Additional resources were provided in 1972 to strengthen the monthly survey of manufacturers' sales, orders, and inventories and the Annual Survey of Manufactures.

In 1973, the monthly survey of manufacturers' shipments, orders, and inventories will be improved. Work will also be initiated to provide estimates of the cost to business firms of improving the quality of the environment.

4. Industrial directory.—In 1972 developmental work began on the establishment of an industrial directory. This directory will list all U.S. business firms and their establishments. It will show the latest information available on name, mailing address, physical location, industrial classification, and other basic identification data. The directory is designed to provide the Bureau of the Census and other Federal statistical programs with a common frame for obtaining and interpreting economic data.

Developmental work on the directory will be expanded in 1973 to obtain data on companies not within the scope of the quinquennial economic censuses, and to develop the technology for efficient operation of the system.

5. Foreign trade.—Monthly, cumulative-to-date, and annual reports are published on the quantity, shipping weight, dollar value of imports and exports, by mode of transportation, detailed commodity category, customs district, and country of origin or destination.

Beginning in 1973, additional data on textile imports will be provided. Supplemental data on imports will be shown for the first time on a CIF (cost, insurance, and freight) basis.

6. Transportation.—Methods are developed and tested for undertaking or improving periodic surveys in transportation areas as directed by statutory requirements.

7. State and local governments.—Reports are published annually regarding the revenue, expenditures, indebtedness and debt transactions, financial assets, employment, and payrolls of State and local governments. Quarterly information on the national level is furnished regarding State and local tax revenue by type of tax and governmental level. Technical consultation and assistance are provided to State and local government officials, and catalogs are published detailing the statistical publications and data available which would be of use to State and local governmental officials. Statistics regarding the construction expenditures of State and local governments are provided monthly.

In 1973, the program will be expanded to determine the best method for extending the local government finances survey to all local general purpose governments. Improved quarterly data on State and local revenues will be obtained as well as selected new quarterly data on expenditures. In addition, the 1973 program provides for tabulating summary annual data on a fiscal and calendar year basis, and for reconciling quarterly finance survey data with annual survey data.

8. Population.—This activity provides annual estimates of the population of the United States, each of the States, a limited number of standard metropolitan statistical areas and some other areas. It also includes current estimates of the number of households, the farm population, school enrollment and educational levels, personal income, population mobility, size of families, voting registration and other characteristics of the population, as well as statistics concerning purchases, stocks, and intentions to purchase major consumer items.

In 1973, the current population estimates work will be expanded through a Federal-State cooperative program that will improve the capability of State and local governments to make uniform and reliable population estimates. Provision is also made for an annual sample survey to obtain more extensive work experience and income data, for strengthened methodological research on the current population survey, and for research in the use of administrative records to provide population data for local areas.

9. Housing.—National and regional quarterly estimates are provided for housing vacancy rates. The program also provides vacancy rates by broad classes of rental and homeowner portions of the housing market and produces information on selected characteristics of the occupied housing inventory. In addition, technical assistance is available to local areas wishing to conduct housing surveys. Developmental work is continuing on a program designed to provide objective indicators of neighborhood blight. Limited work on annual estimates and projections of the size of the Nation's housing inventory began in 1972.

10. Agriculture.—Information on cotton ginnings and production, as required by statute, is compiled and published. Statistical services are provided regarding the information from the census of agriculture.

11. Statistical abstract and special reports.—The "Statistical Abstract," issued annually, summarizes Government and private statistics on the industrial, social, political, and economic activities of the United States. A comprehensive set of statistical indicators is published monthly in the "Business Conditions Digest" report; the principal time series on defense activity which influence short-term changes in the national economy are published monthly in "Defense Indicators;" and a report is published on "Long-Term Economic Growth."

12. Boundary and coding guide updating.—This program, started in 1971, will update the present area boundary and address location files to recognize changes in boundaries of incorporated places and to reflect changes in street patterns resulting from urban development.

13. Research and development.—Research and development is conducted on survey methods and techniques, including sample survey methods and theory, questionnaire design, response errors, equipment design and utilization, computer editing and administrative control, operations, analytical techniques including techniques of geographic analysis, for the purpose of increasing accuracy, output, and usefulness of statistical data per unit of cost.

14. Preparation of national income and product data.—Calculations are made of the gross national product, national income, personal income, and their components, providing an overall view of the state of the economy. Input-output accounts supplement the national income and product accounts by providing a closeup of the manner in which the various industries interact in the production of the national output. Regional accounts provide a profile of our economy by States and smaller subdivisions.

During 1973, programs will be instituted to: (1) Develop and maintain measures of the economic impact of changes in the environment, and (2) improve the national income and product estimates and analyses.

15. Analysis of business trends.—The business situation is assessed monthly, and the results of continuing analyses of the major factors underlying cyclical developments and long-range business trends are published regularly. Included are surveys that collect information on business investment plans, and the work on an econometric model which forecasts the future movement of the gross national product, its components, and other key elements in the national accounts.

16. Computation of the balance of payments.—Balance of payments accounts provide yet another elaboration of the national income and product accounts by depicting in detail all economic transactions with foreign nations.

During 1973, an information system on the economic activities of multinational corporations would be developed; additional international investment data would be collected; and the processing and preparation of this information would be accelerated.

A census of governments is required "for the year 1957 and every fifth year thereafter" by 13 U.S.C. 161. The law specifies that "each such census shall include, but shall not be limited to data on tax and tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and employees of States, counties, cities, and other governmental units."

In 1972, collection and processing of governmental organizational data are scheduled. A substantial portion of the field enumeration of assessed valuations and real estate transactions will be completed. Detailed procedures and instructions relating to the collection and examination of public employment and finances data will also be prepared. The 1973 work will concentrate on the processing of the taxable property value data and on collection of data for Government finances and employment.

The 1972 economic censuses will supply statistics, as provided for in 13 U.S.C. 131, on the volume of production and trade, the number, size, geographical distribution, and other characteristics of the Nation's business and industrial enterprises.

During 1972, plans and specifications for the collection, processing, and publication of data will be largely completed. This phase includes the design and preparation of report forms, preparation of mailing lists, and testing of computer edit programs. Funds for 1973 will be used to complete the design, clearance, and printing of census forms, mail out respondents' forms, and complete the followup, check in, and other related procedures, and testing of computer tabulation programs. The 1973 program also provides for the initiation of a survey of minority-owned business enterprises.

A census of agriculture is required to be taken every fifth year covering years ending in 4 and 9 by 13 U.S.C. 142. The census provides measures concerning the agricultural economy of each State and county. Data obtained from the census will include the number of farms, acres in farms, value of farmland, cropland harvested, produc-

The final results of the 1970 census of population and housing and the 1969 census of agriculture will be published in 1973.

1. Census of population and housing.—This census provides the count of the Nation's population and housing units, as well as significant demographic characteristics of the country.

2. Census of agriculture.—This census provides information on the number of farms, the characteristics of farms and farm operations, use of agricultural land, production and sales of farm products, farm credit and debt, and principal cash expenditures.

Extension of the period of fund availability from December 31, 1972, to June 30, 1973, provides for the more orderly completion of the census.

² Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are derived at cost from State and local governments for special statistical work (13 U.S.C. 8d).

The Social and Economic Statistics Administration undertakes work for governmental and other bodies to the extent that such work meets desirable public needs, can be performed without adversely affecting activities financed from funds appropriated to the Administration, and can be more appropriately or efficiently performed by the Administration than by the sponsoring agency.

In 1971 the largest segments of work were the collection of employment and unemployment data for the Department of Labor; health data for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; statistical assistance to underdeveloped countries for the Agency for International Development; and for economic research in water resource development.

Major increases from 1971 to 1972 are for the purpose of providing annual housing data; training foreign nationals to make statistical evaluation of national family planning programs; conducting surveys of consumer expenditures; beginning a postcensal survey of professional and technical manpower; launching a survey on victims of crime; expanding a survey on health and nutrition; and conducting a study of the economic activity of multinational corporations. These increases are funded respectively by the Department of Commerce, Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Agency for International Development, the Bureau of Labor Statistics, the National Science Foundation, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Administration has also prepared special tabulations from the 1970 census needed by the Department of Labor in connection with the Emergency Employment Act.

The increase from 1972 to 1973 relates principally to data collection for the annual housing survey, a consumer expenditures survey, and a survey of crime victims.

The Social and Economic Statistics Administration performs, at cost, special statistical work and data analysis for State and local governments, universities, trade associations, and individuals requesting such data. These services are provided only when it has been determined that it is in the public interest; are consistent with the Administration's duties; and that the statistics furnished will not identify individuals or particular organizations. In addition, the Administration furnishes age and citizenship data from past census records on a fee basis. Funds received for these purposes are used to pay expenses in the performance of such work (13 U.S.C. 8; 15 U.S.C. 1525).

Development facilities funds are used to assist communities whose economic growth is lagging behind the rest of the Nation to construct or improve the basic public services and industrial infrastructure required to attract growth generating private enterprise. Projects are also financed which provide immediate useful work to unemployed and underemployed persons of areas designated under section 401(a)(6) of the Public Works and Economic Development Act. Projects assisted include water and sewer utilities, industrial park development, street and road construction, water pollution control facilities for treatment of industrial waste, tourist facilities, harbor development, skill center construction, health and community facilities, and regional airports.

This type of assistance is currently available through grants-in-aid and loans. Basic grants of 50% of the total cost of development facilities projects can be supplemented up to 100% of total cost depending on the relative need of the community and the nature of the project.

In addition, the construction grants of other Federal agencies can be supplemented. Long-term, low interest loans are provided when assistance is not otherwise available from private lenders or Federal agencies which would permit accomplishment of the project.

1. Redevelopment area assistance.—In 1973 attention will be given to the development facilities needs of eligible urban and rural areas and Indian reservations suffering from high unemployment. It is estimated that the following number of projects will be funded: 1971, 128; 1972, 85; 1973, 83. Program financing for this activity is estimated as follows (dollar amounts are obligations in thousands):

Grants.....	77,935	51,455	49,560
Loans.....	8,165	9,000	9,000
Total.....	86,100	60,455	58,560

2. Economic development districts and centers assistance.—Assistance will be provided for the public service and infrastructure needs of redevelopment areas and growth centers which are cooperating through districts to achieve economic development on a multicounty scale. The full range of development facilities financial tools will be made available to district redevelopment areas, including bonus and supplemental grants. It is estimated that the following number of projects will be funded: 1971, 148; 1972, 148; 1973, 131. District program financing is estimated as follows (dollar amounts are obligations in thousands):

	1971	1972	1973

Total.....	73,898	81,770	74,440

3. Public works impact program.—No less than 25% and no more than 35% of the amount obligated for title I grants must be used for projects providing immediate useful work for unemployed and underemployed persons of areas designated under section 401(a)(6) of the Public Works and Economic Development Act.

4. Regional development assistance.—This activity covers the Title V Regional Commission programs financed from this appropriation prior to 1971.

This appropriation provides the agency's most direct means of generating new employment opportunities in economically distressed communities. Direct loans are available for up to 65% of total project cost with repayment periods up to 25 years. Working capital loans made by private lenders for projects which have received EDA direct loan assistance may be guaranteed for up to 90% of the outstanding balance. In both cases, financial assistance must be otherwise unavailable from private lenders or other Federal agencies on terms which would permit accomplishment of the project.

(a) Redevelopment area assistance.—The development needs of distressed parts of cities, Indian reservations, and designated redevelopment areas outside the boundaries of economic development districts are budgeted in this activity. Assistance covered by this activity is reduced in order that more financial resources may be made available to redevelopment areas in development districts. Program volume is estimated as follows (dollar amounts are obligations in thousands):

	Number	Amount	Number	Amount	Number	Amount
Direct loans	27	$31,217	18	$22,353	17	$19,198
Working capital loan guarantees	1	56	8	750	3	500
Total	28	31,273	26	23,103	20	19,698

(b) Economic development districts and centers assistance.—The amount requested will finance industrial development projects to suit the particular needs of redevelopment areas and growth centers within districts. Direct business development assistance in the centers is designed to improve their capacity to uplift the overall district economy, as well as to serve the population in surrounding distressed areas either through commutation or migration to job opportunities created. Program volume is estimated as follows (dollar amounts are obligations in thousands):

	1971		1972		1973
	Number	Amount	Number	Amount	Number	Amount
Direct loans	11	$18,350	27	$23,697	12	$17,452
Working capital loan guarantees	—	—	7	850	3	500
Total	11	18,350	34	24,547	15	17,952

3. Collateral protection.—The funds budgeted are used to protect the employment potential of, and government investment in projects in financial difficulty. Often it is necessary to purchase senior liens to prevent premature liquidation of projects by other secured creditors. This program covers collateral protection costs in connection with loans made under both the Area Redevelopment Act and the Public Works and Economic Development Act.

Total agency commitments (contingent liability) for working capital loan guarantees are as follows: fiscal 1971 actual, $7,802 thousand; fiscal 1972 estimate, $10,179 thousand; fiscal 1973 estimate, $13,800 thousand.

The activities of this appropriation support local initiatives to achieve lasting economic development by identifying problems and solutions and formulating long-range development plans. This support takes the form of technical assistance, research, and grants for professional planning staffs, primarily in redevelopment areas and development districts, but also in other areas of substantial need where informational and planning support can be instrumental in stimulating local economic development.

1. Redevelopment and other area assistance.—Aids communities in their economic development through:

Area planning grants.—These grants help provide full-time professional staffs to assist local organizations to prepare and implement overall economic development programs. Areas assisted include Indian reservations, U.S.

territories, and other areas outside the boundaries of economic development districts.

Technical assistance.—This program provides institutional and informational assistance on a wide variety of economic development problems and projects. Institutional projects are funded to establish permanent sources of competent technical assistance available to local areas and businesses, such as organizations offering managerial counseling. Informational projects supply professional research and technical data to assist communities and organizations to evaluate local resources and apply them to economic development. Program volume is estimated as follows (dollar amounts are obligations in thousands):

	1971		1972		1973
	Number	Amount	Number	Amount	Number	Amount

Total.....	262	12,155	234	11,410	267	11,423

2. Economic development districts and centers assistance.—Aids multicounty districts through:

District planning grants.—These grants help fund the administrative costs for full-time professional planning staffs for multicounty economic development organizations.

Technical assistance.—To enhance the effect of planning grants, technical assistance will be provided to these organizations and to growth centers and other localities within district boundaries. Program volume is estimated as follows (dollar amounts are obligations in thousands):

	1971		1972		1973

3. Research.—Economic development research, which focuses on the determination of the causes and remedies of unemployment, underemployment, and low income is performed through contracts and grants. This permits the use of the best talent available in universities, other governmental agencies, and private institutions. The studies are then made available for use by government and community leaders to help guide the formulation and evaluation of remedial programs. Long-term loans at low-interest rates are made from the Development facilities and Industrial development loans and guarantees appropriations. Revenues and principal repayments from loans made under the Area Redevelopment Act and the Public Works and Economic development Act are deposited in the Economic development revolving fund. Interest payments are made to the Treasury from the revolving fund on the amount of loans outstanding under the Public Works and Economic Development Act for 1973, it is proposed to use unobligated funds in the Economic development revolving fund for additional loans and guarantees to generate new employment opportunities in economically distressed communities. Nine loans and guarantees are expected to be made with obligations amounting to $10,000 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $0; 1971, $16,552 thousand; 1972, $26,838 thousand; 1973, $36,154 thousand.

The title V regional commission program is a legislative extension of the concept of solving the problems of economic dislocation or lag on a multistate regional basis, rather than on a locality-by-locality basis. The regional development programs of the Department consist of the activities of the Regional Action Planning Commissions and the coordination of the national regional economic development effort.

Five Commissions covering all or parts of 20 States have been established pursuant to title V of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 in the Coastal Plains, Four Corners, New England, Ozarks, and Upper Great Lakes section of the Nation. The Commissions are composed of a Federal cochairman and the Governors of the States within each region, and assisted by a Commission staff that is supported by both the Federal Government and the member States. The regional commission program is, therefore, based upon a Federal-State partnership in which State and Federal officials jointly plan and execute development programs to overcome problems of economic lag in multistate regions designated by the Secretary of Commerce.

The Commissions began in 1966 with a program of planning and technical assistance as originally authorized in title V of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965. Congress amended the act in 1967 by authorizing supplemental grant authority to provide a local share of Federal grant-in-aid programs to allow the Commissions some influence over the location of Federal investments in their regions. Legislation during the first session of the 91st Congress (Public Law 91-123) gave the Commissions direct technical assistance authority (in addition to that available through the Secretary of Commerce), authorized demonstration and training projects, and expanded the supplemental grant authority. Funds for the Commissions' programs are provided to the Federal Cochairman by the Secretary of Commerce.

1. Development programs.—During their initial years, the Commissions concentrated on the development of broad comprehensive economic development plans and programming.

A continuation of the 1972 action program is budgeted in 1973 in order to continue efforts on the Commissions' programs required to provide jobs and higher incomes needed to close the gap between the regions and the Nation. Funds are also budgeted to continue the Department's regional research program. The development program obligation levels for 1971-73 are (in thousands of dollars):

Region:	1971	1972	1973
Coastal Plains.....	6,825	7,208	7,545

Regional research.....	305	424	380
Total.....	33,742	36,489	38,107

2. Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for the staff costs of the Commissions, the Federal Cochairmen, and the Special Assistant to the Secretary for Regional Economic Coordination.

The administrative expenses of all the Commissions are financed 50% by the Federal Government and 50% by the respective member States. The Federal interest in each Commission is represented by a Federal Cochairman who is assisted by a small staff. The Special Assistant for Regional Economic Coordination was established by Executive Order 11386, and assists the Secretary of Commerce in administering title V of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, as amended. Major responsibilities include advising the Secretary on regional economic development policy, coordinating the Federal review of the comprehensive plans of the Regional Commissions, preparation of the title V budget, and conducting the regional research program.

The Regional Action Planning Commissions' Trust Fund consists of grants in the Commissions from the Department of Commerce pursuant to title V of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, as amended. The Commissions receive grants for their administrative expenses, technical assistance, and State investment planning. The 20-State members of the Coastal Plains, Four Corners, New England, Ozarks, and Upper Great Lakes Commissions match the Federal grants for administrative expenses. The State contribution for 1973 is estimated at $1,254 thousand.

Domestic Business Activities (DBA) contributes to the advancement of the economy by developing policies, data, and legislative action on such areas as industrial growth, marketing and consumer affairs, technology utilization, and import negotiations. This appropriation also develops data and analyses on an industry by industry basis and delivers the domestic and international programs of the Department to the local business community through its 42 field offices. DBA is requesting a program increase in the amount of $138 thousand for the Import Affairs area. The principal areas are as follows:

1. National business programs and policy studies.—In support of the emphasis on domestic policy, the business policy options and recommendations program will focus on industry related problem areas. The issues to be studied in 1973 will include such areas as industrial relations, marketing and consumer problems, industrial growth, and the impact of environmental programs on business. In addition to developing policy recommendations, this program will also develop comprehensive legislative packages to carry out these departmental policies. Direct relief is also administered through this activity by the trade adjustment assistance (TAA) program. TAA provides loans, loan guarantees, and technical assistance to domestic industries injured by U.S. import policies.

2. Development of business data analytical reports and forecasts.—This function will be aimed toward the improvement of the quality and accuracy of industry analyses and an increased responsiveness in the dissemination of this information for use by business and government. This activity will also provide in-depth analyses of problem industries in the economy and develop forecasts and trends in industrial productivity.

3. Business services.—This activity delivers the Departments domestic and international programs to the local business community. In 1973, Business services will increase its support of the domestic commerce programs, giving priority to those programs designed to increase domestic productivity. Attention will also be given in unifying the efforts of the Washington based programs and the field offices.

4. Import affairs.—This activity will participate in the negotiation and implementation of a series of international agreements governing imports of manmade fiber, cotton, and wool textiles. Import affairs will also work toward solutions for disruptive imports of steel, certain electronic products, and shoes. Particular attention also will be paid to the development of the oil import program and new petrochemical regulations. This program will also participate in negotiation and implementation of international agreements in coffee and other commodities.

5. National business council for consumer affairs.—This Council, established by executive order, is comprised of the country's top business leaders and government officials. In 1973, the Council will continue its effort to find ways of promoting value, satisfaction, and safety for consumers in the goods and services they purchase in the marketplace.

The Trade Expansion Act of 1972 authorizes trade adjustment assistance to firms who are injured or threatened by increased imports where the rise of imports is due to a trade agreement entered into by the United States. The rationale for making assistance available is that, since tariff reductions benefit the entire economy, the Nation should share the cost of any injury to individual businesses effected.

Firms which have been certified eligible may receive financial assistance which consist of guaranteed loans, direct loans and/or technical assistance. In 1973, Trade Adjustment Assistance is requesting a change in the appropriation language to include technical assistance. This will not require an increase in the appropriation but will be absorbed within the existing funds. The language change will enhance the effectiveness of the program by incorporating all of the Department's responsibilities under one bureau.

The Department is required by law to maintain operating reserves with respect to anticipated claims under the loan guarantee portion of the program. By establishing reserves of 10% of the guaranteed amount, obligations of $10 million will support a $100 million guarantee program. This, coupled with the $50 million in loans, will comprise a program totaling $150 million for financial assistance, and $5 million for technical assistance.

International activities of the Department of Commerce are promotional, informational, and policy formulation programs designed to advance and protect U.S. foreign policy. In response to the continuing serious balance-of-payments problems, current emphasis is on activities that stimulate and assist U.S. industry to expand current export activity and to develop foreign markets for long-term export sales. These programs are a major positive element of the national effort to bring our balance of payments into durable equilibrium. These activities strengthen the U.S. economy by fostering increased U.S. international trade and investment overseas creating greater business earnings and additional jobs.

1. International trade promotions.—The sale of goods and services overseas is promoted by providing facilities for the exhibition of American products in international trade fairs, trade centers, and trade development centers and by supporting U.S. business efforts to reach and develop foreign market opportunities through the trade mission program.

(a) Trade and industrial exhibits.—Commerce sponsors exhibitions of American products at major international trade fairs. Through economic analysis and market research, Commerce identifies the best opportunities for sales of closely related groups of U.S. industrial products in overseas markets. Established international trade fairs are reviewed to select an appropriate vehicle to introduce these products in the identified market. If no suitable fair exists, a Commerce "Solo" exhibition may be held to reach the market. Commerce develops the best possible selling opportunity for the U.S. exhibitors by identifying potential customers, agents, and distributors in the market, and by mounting an intensive market promotion campaign to bring them to the exhibition. These exhibitions are normally open to trade audiences only. The 1971 program of 21 trade fair promotions included 981 U.S. exhibitors firms. The 1973 program will support the participation of about 770 U.S. exhibitors firms in 17 international trade fairs.

(b) Trade centers.—Permanent U.S. exhibition facilities are located in important commercial centers around the world. Each year the Bureau plans, promotes, and stages from four to nine major exhibitions of U.S. products in each facility. Major trade center promotions, like trade fair exhibitions, are based on market research overseas and the needs of U.S. industry. Between major exhibitions, the expert trade center staffs work with U.S. traders entering or trying to improve their performance in the host markets, and make the trade center facilities available for a variety of promotional purposes, including product displays and demonstrations, and sales and technical seminars. The eight trade centers operating in 1971 mounted 53 major exhibitions with 1,835 U.S. exhibitors. Another 432 U.S. firms used trade center facilities to promote their products and services between the major shows. The 1973 program is expected to have 2,100 U.S. exhibitors in 60 major shows with about 500 U.S. firms in between-show promotions. Increased funds are being requested in 1973 to open one additional trade center in São Paulo, Brazil.

(c) Trade development centers.—As part of the continuing emphasis on the less developed countries, four trade development centers, which are a modification and adaptation of the trade center concept designed specifically for developing countries with large potential for export market growth, have been established in Bangkok, Thailand; Beirut, Lebanon; Buenos Aires, Argentina; and Lagos, Nigeria. This trade development program is offering U.S. business increased market and product exposure by assisting U.S. Foreign Service posts in conducting a continuing program of trade promotion activities in selected areas of the world. In 1973, two additional trade development centers are expected to be opened in Vienna, Austria, and Tehran, Iran.

(d) Joint export associations.—This program was begun in 1969 to develop export markets through jointly financed contracts with groups of private U.S. firms. However, fiscal restraints and revisions in program priorities since its inception in 1969 have precluded building this activity to the dimensions necessary to achieve the broad industry impact intended. With only enough funds to support two, or at the most, three small projects each year, the program cannot attract the wide interest needed to stimulate the continuous flow of well-planned, high-potential project proposals needed to sustain a high level of effectiveness. In 1972, the program is being phased out.

(e) Trade missions.—Trade missions are teams of U.S. businessmen traveling abroad to develop business opportunities. Three different types of missions are supported by this activity:

A. Industry-organized/Government-approved (IOGA) missions are organized by trade associations, States and cities, and sponsored by the Department of Commerce. In 1971, 24 IOGA missions were sponsored, while present plans call for 30 such missions in 1973.

B. Specialized missions are organized and sponsored by the Department of Commerce. Through the Department's market research and Foreign Service recommendations, a single product theme is selected and an itinerary developed to pursue identified opportunities. Business groups in the related U.S. industry are then invited to organize an IOGA mission. When business groups do not take advantage of these opportunities, the Department organizes a small specialized mission. Seventeen specialized missions were conducted in 1971 and 16 are planned for 1973.

C. Government-organized missions are teams of business executives and Government officials who go abroad to assess opportunities for future trade development, and report their conclusions to the U.S. business community and Government agencies. One such mission is planned for 1973.

2. Export development in the United States.—Through an integrated series of marketing techniques, U.S. industry is motivated to increase its share of world exports. American firms not now exporting are stimulated to enter foreign markets, and present exporters to increase their foreign activities. These efforts include special dissemination of detailed information on export sales potentials by country and product, counseling on export procedures and techniques, an export awareness advertising campaign to dispose U.S. industry to make exporting a standard consideration in corporate planning, and an "early warning" system to alert U.S. corporations to potential exporting opportunities. Further, efforts are directed toward coordinating policy with other Federal agencies to help exporters overcome U.S.-related or foreign government-related problems encountered on specific major export transactions. In 1973, increased funds and staffing are being requested for 20 additional market research studies and two additional global market surveys.

3. International commercial information.—Business and Government agencies are provided information on economic and commercial conditions and developments abroad. Assistance is rendered to American exporters in identifying overseas sales opportunities, and in selecting and establishing profitable relationships with overseas representatives and manufacturers through such media as Trade Lists, World Trade Directory Reports and Trade Contact Surveys, and the American International Traders Index. Counseling is provided to U.S. firms on business practices, legal requirements, business investment climates, trade regulations, etc., in all countries of the world. Furthermore, several series of reports are regularly published to describe and analyze these and related topics, economic and commercial data, and trade trends of significance to U.S. industry.

4. International trade and investment policy.—Efforts are made to remove barriers to, improve the climate for, and otherwise advance and protect the interests of American business operating abroad. Such efforts include (1) the development of policies and programs in connection with international trade, finance and export credit, resources, business practices, and exporter service industries; (2) the provision of special assistance to business firms or industry groups in identifying and analyzing specific major trade opportunities and in dealing with U.S. and foreign policy, administrative, and legal problems confronting them in market development efforts; (3) the preparation of specific programs for each country where there are substantial U.S. commercial interests in order to identify the problems facing U.S. trade and investment in the country, and to summarize the policy and promotional measures responsive to these problems and opportunities which will be undertaken during the year; (4) the formulation of long-term policies in the international investment field; (5) the facilitation of investment in developing countries by U.S. firms; (6) the conduct of international commercial and financial negotiations in major international forums (such as GATT, OECD, UN); and (7) the representation of American business interests in obtaining equitable treatment in foreign countries. In addition, U.S. policy and business interests are advanced by stimulating investment and licensing by foreign firms in the United States, particularly in those industries where there is clear potential for import savings.

5. Foreign commercial/economic program support.—The Commerce Department participates in the recruitment, assignment, career management, and promotion of economic/commercial officers in the Foreign Service who represent U.S. commercial interests overseas.

The use of excess foreign currencies to support export expansion programs in developing countries helps to improve our balance of payments position and assists in strengthening the U.S. economy by stimulating and expanding our foreign commerce. In those developing countries where the United States holds an excess of foreign currency, the use of such currencies enables the mounting of commercial exhibitions and the establishment of trade development centers to bring American products to the attention of foreign buyers and promotes U.S. foreign policy objectives by presenting a favorable image of the United States in the developing countries.

Export controls are required by the Export Control Act of 1949 and the Export Administration Act of 1969 as extended to control exports to the extent necessary (1) to protect the national security; (2) to protect the domestic economy from the excessive drain of scarce commodities; and (3) to further the foreign policy of the United States. The program is administered by selective licensing of U.S. exports of strategic or short supply commodities and exports to certain countries in accordance with U.S. foreign policy interests.

In 1973, a projected reduction of 10% is being made possible by a diminution in workload. Export license applications are expected to total about 87,500 (or 350 per day), representing a decrease in total applications received. The anticipated workload reduction is related to the removal of commodities from the United States and international control lists, and to the expectation that more U.S. firms will use the "no-authentication-required" (NAR) clearance procedures for general license shipments to free world destinations.

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise was established under Executive Order 11458 of March 5, 1969, and began operations in 1969. On October 13, 1971, Executive Order 11625 was issued which prescribed additional arrangements for developing and coordinating a national program for minority business enterprise. The substantive provisions of Executive Order 11458 of March 5, 1969, are carried over and expanded in the new order.

In its leadership role of coordinating the minority business enterprise program, the Office seeks to create the best climate whereby the minority people of the United States have an equal opportunity to participate in the American business system.

Working with other Federal agencies and private organizations, the Office of Minority Business Enterprise has initiated programs in the areas of finance, management assistance, business opportunities, and community organizations which have and will continue to increase opportunities and abilities of minorities to become owners and managers of successful businesses.

Executive Order 11625 provided the Office with increased authority over all Federal activities in the minority enterprise field. This new mandate clarified the authority of the Secretary of Commerce (a) to implement Federal policy in support of the minority business enterprise program; (b) to provide additional technical and management assistance to disadvantaged businesses; (c) to assist in demonstration projects; and (d) to coordinate the participation of all Federal departments and agencies in an increased minority enterprise effort.

1. Community investment.—OMBE will establish and assist several kinds of local business development organizations to help minority entrepreneurs create new businesses and expand existing ones. These organizations will perform the threefold function of being the initial point of contact for the potential businessman, aiding minorities with information and access to resources, and providing the technical expertise necessary to obtain and productively use business resources. Major local business development organizations will be located in 35 cities in 1972 and 50 cities by the end of 1973.

2. Private investment.—Through intermediate organizations, OMBE will stimulate and assist private institutions to allow minority businessmen greater access to capital, markets, business opportunities, management services, and technical assistance. Twenty business resource centers are expected to be operating by the end of 1972 and 50 by the end of 1973.

3. Government investment.—Through the existing vehicles of the Interagency Committee on Minority Enterprise and local Minority Business Opportunity Committees, as well as new funded units sponsored by regional, State, and local governments, OMBE will stimulate and assist Government activities to provide minority businessmen with greater access to capital, markets, business opportunities, management services, and technical assistance. The 10 States which received planning grants in 1972 will receive operating grants in 1973, making a total of 16 States having operating grants by the end of that year.

4. Business management development.—OMBE will improve and supplement existing sources of business training and education by supporting entrepreneurial courses in a variety of institutions at the regional and local levels, as well as by commissioning development of new curricula and materials. OMBE will extend the kinds of training presently offered, especially by training business development specialists and by providing "owner internships" at the managerial level. Efforts in 1973 will continue the regional institute fund for "owner internship" projects, and expand the number of introductory courses.

5. Experiment and demonstration.—In an attempt to move closer to the long-range goal of the minority enterprise effort, OMBE will develop and test innovative methods of stimulating public and private sector investment in minority enterprise activity. The 1973 program will include the following projects: an urban business development project, a nonurban business development project, a major Indian reservation-based impact business project, an MBA education project with a minority university, and two private sector incentive projects.

6. Program development and management.—The entire management, administration, and direction of Minority

Business Enterprise programs is financed under this activity, including field approval. In 1973, the field support will be provided in 35 metropolitan areas which have significant minority populations.

The U.S. Travel Service develops, plans, and carries out a program to stimulate and encourage travel to the United States by residents of foreign countries. The principal program activities are carried out by a marketing division which supervises (1) creation and placement of trade and consumer travel advertising, (2) production and distribution of sales promotion materials to the public and the travel industry abroad, (3) solicitation and writing of timely articles for placement in the foreign press, (4) production of travel films for use overseas, and (5) operation of overseas offices for answering travel inquiries and for carrying out promotional activities at the local level; by a visitor services division which works with the domestic travel industry and with U.S. communities for improving the reception, service, and hospitality given to foreign visitors, and works with other foreign and U.S. Government agencies to reduce official barriers to travel; and by a research and analysis division which conducts research programs in the support of promotional activities.

The budget estimate for the U.S. Travel Service in 1973 is $12 million, an increase of $5.5 million over the 1972 appropriation.

Increases are requested for initiating an overseas advertising program in three markets which were not covered in 1972, and for extending from 3 to 6 months the duration of the advertising campaign in the eight primary markets.

Budget increases are also requested for printing of travel brochures and other promotional material for distribution abroad, and for sponsorship of travel seminars and special promotional projects in major foreign tourist markets.

Additionally, an increase is requested for the matching funds program, which encourages State, city, and regional participation in promotion of foreign travel to the United States by matching funds advanced by them for that purpose.

1. Environmental prediction and warnings.—Operations in this activity include the taking, communication, processing, and archiving of observations of current weather conditions and the preparation and issuance of public and special forecasts and warnings such as hurricane and tornado, air pollution potential, fire weather, agricultural, aviation, marine, and river and flood. Increases in 1973 will provide for field station automation, operation of Kodiak, operation of Pensacola radar, an on-station upper air computer, NOAA weather wire, implementing a new forecast model, satellite data processing methods, additional maintenance and repair of facilities and equipment, GOES ground equipment, establishment of three EMSU's, expansion of agricultural weather service, State aviation forecast offices, marine weather and ocean forecasts, real-time data processing, preparation of data base, flash flood warnings, and for activation of Point Barrow, Alaska.

2. Mapping, charting, and marine description.—Operations under this activity encompass the systematic collection, processing, analysis, and dissemination of data required for mapping and describing (a) the coastal waters and estuaries of the United States, including the Great Lakes, (b) the continental shelves and related deep ocean areas, and (c) the national airspace system. Primary end products used widely by the public and private sectors are aeronautical and nautical charts, bathymetric maps, tide and current charts and tables, and water level information.

Increases in 1973 will provide for automation of aeronautical and nautical charting, contract geophysical surveys, seaward boundary determinations, tide observations and predictions, estuarine and coastal circulatory services, expanded automated data processing, and expanded ocean data services.

3. Solid earth monitoring and services.—Operations under this activity provide for precise measuring of (a) the physical parameters of the earth, (b) the distribution and direction of the earth's magnetic field, (c) the location and intensity of earthquakes, (d) maintenance of the National Geodetic Control Network, and (e) production of seismic risk maps. Increases in 1973 will provide additional crustal movement investigations, a geomagnetic data center, earthquake studies and services, and expansion of the seismological data center.

4. Ocean fisheries and living resources.—Operations under this activity provide services for (1) assessing the abundance and geophysical distribution of living marine resources, and (2) identifying, describing, and explaining environmentally caused fluctuations in these resources. Increases in 1973 will provide for expanded operation of the marine monitoring and assessment program (MARMAP), additional enforcement and surveillance programs, State-Federal fisheries management program, marketing services, and financial assistance for construction of fishing vessels.

5. Retired pay, commissioned officers.—This provides for retirement pay in 1973 for an average of 129 commissioned officers as authorized by 33 U.S.C. 853(o), and payments to survivors of retired officers under the retired serviceman's family protection plan.

6. Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides for overall technical leadership and top management functions of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and for the administrative management and support activities at headquarters and in the field offices. Increases in 1973 will provide support for the expanded and additional 1973 programs.

¹ Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $14,557 thousand (1971 adjustments, -$233 thousand); 1971, $30,486 thousand; 1972, $28,862 thousand; 1973, $28,862 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the research and development and acquisition of facilities to support the operational programs of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

1. Environmental prediction and warnings.—This activity includes programs to increase understanding of the composition and dynamics of the atmosphere; to develop better instrumentation and techniques for weather observation, analysis, and forecasting; to provide atmospheric and river observational devices and instrumentation; and to equip specialized meteorological and hydrologic laboratories and observatories. Increases for 1973 will provide for field station automation, operation of Kodiak, a fifth-generation computer, Project Stormfury weather modification reporting, aerosol physics and chemistry, airborne mesomets display system, precipitation enhancement, GOES ground equipment, tornado and severe storm research, establishment of three EMSU's flash flood warnings, aircraft instrumentation, and relocation of facilities.

2. Mapping, charting, and marine description.—This activity includes the research and facilities directed toward continued improvement of NOAA's mapping and charting data acquisition, analysis, processing, and production capability and toward increasing our understanding of ocean and lake properties, processes, and environmental interactions. Increases for 1973 will provide for automation of aeronautical and nautical charting, water pollution abatement, tide gages for seaward boundary, tide observations and predictions, trans-Atlantic geotraverse and equatorial plate investigations, environmental impact statements, manned underseas technology, a multi-purpose calibration facility, ship bases and program support, and mid-ocean dynamics experiment.

3. Solid earth monitoring and services.—This activity includes research directed toward understanding the intricate processes and phenomena of the solid earth, such as determining the size and shape of the earth and seismological studies and warnings; also included is the procurement of equipment, facilities and the equipping of these facilities. Increase for 1973 will provide additional crustal movement investigations, earthquake research and services, activation of Point Barrow, and additional data processing and analysis.

4. Ocean fisheries and living resources.—This activity includes research directed toward living marine resources and toward improved methods of sport fishery management; also the procurement of equipment, facilities, and the equipping of these facilities. The 1973 increase provides for biological research on living marine resources, ecological change and modification, and mariculture. Funds are also requested for grants-in-aid, and pollution abatement facilities.

5. Environmental satellite.—This activity provides for research to determine the most beneficial method of obtaining environmental satellite data and using it in environmental service programs. In 1973, emphasis is on application to marine resources and oceanographic service programs.

6. Sea grant.—The talents and knowledge of academic scientists and engineers are utilized in the practical problems of marine resource development and management. Increases in 1973 will provide for expansion of this program.

7. Data buoy.—The data buoy project was established to develop a system of automatic ocean buoys for obtaining oceanic and atmospheric data. This network of automatic buoys throughout the ocean is designed to bridge an information gap. 1973 increase will provide for hardware development.

8. Tropical experiment.—This project is a part of the global atmospheric research program (GARP)—an international research program to provide scientific knowledge to improve the techniques of weather forecasts, to determine the feasibility of large scale weather modification, and to assess the long-term effects of atmospheric pollution. The tropical experiment is designed to provide an understanding of the mechanisms by which energy locked in water vapor of the air is released and then applied to driving the global atmospheric circulation. Increases for 1973 will provide continued planning and procurement of aircraft and shipboard equipment and long lead time supplies.

9. International field year for the Great Lakes.—NOAA is the U.S. lead agency for this special one-time program which is a joint United States-Canadian contribution to the International Hydrologic Decade. Lake Ontario has been chosen for study under IFYGL whose central objective is to provide a sound scientific basis for the development of an economical, efficient, and healthy water management plan to meet the needs of the United States and Canadian citizens living within the drainage basin of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence region. The 1973 increase provides funds to continue the field operations, technical contracts, and data handling, reduction, and analysis related to the program that was initially funded under NOAA in 1972.

10. Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides for the overall technical leadership and top management functions of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and for administrative management and support activities at headquarters and in the field. Increases in 1973 will provide support for the expanded and additional 1973 programs.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition and operation of a national satellite system to observe worldwide environmental conditions and to process, analyze, and archive the data for use in environmental services and research.

The first operational satellite system, the Tiros operational satellite (TOS) began operation in 1966 providing global observations during daylight hours. Replacement of the TOS system by the Improved TOS (ITOS) began in 1970 with the launch of NASA's ITOS 1. This satellite added nighttime observing to the system; in 1973 it will add global sounding and high resolution day and night observing. Funds to initiate the geostationary operational environmental satellite (GOES) were provided in 1970; funding to establish this system continued in 1971 and 1972. This system is designed to provide nearly continuous observation of the earth and its environment, initially of the Western Hemisphere.

1. Spacecraft and launching.—Covers the design, construction, and launching of operational spacecraft. Funds are required in 1973 to complete procurement of one ITOS spacecraft, continue procurement of two ITOS and one GOES spacecraft, and to initiate procurement of another ITOS spacecraft. Funds are required also in 1973 to complete procurement of one launch vehicle and one launch service and to continue procurement of two launch vehicles.

2. Operations.—Includes (a) establishment and operation of facilities to command the spacecraft, acquire the data and relay the data to the processing and analysis center; (b) operation and maintenance of facilities for converting satellite signals to forms usable in the environmental service programs and for dissemination, display, and application of the high resolution data from ITOS and GOES; and (c) technical management and engineering support.

The 1973 request provides for continued around-the-clock operation and maintenance of facilities related to the ITOS operation; continued operational use of NASA's synchronous applications technology satellites ATS 1 and ATS 3; personnel and equipment to acquire, apply, and distribute data from a single geostationary operational environmental satellite (GOES); and to expand the capability of ground facilities to operate a two-satellite GOES system.

This fund is derived from the receipts of the sales of fur sealskins and other wildlife products of the Pribilof Islands, and is available for appropriation for administration of the Pribilof Islands, and payment to Alaska from Pribilof Islands receipts as required by law (72 Stat. 339).

Administration of Pribilof Islands.—Part of the proceeds from sales of fur sealskins and other wildlife products of the Pribilof Islands is used for: (a) Management of the Alaska fur seal herd; (b) furnishing schooling and other community services to the natives of the islands; (c) construction of and maintenance of buildings and roads; and (d) maintenance and operation of a supply vessel.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders, 1970, $2,222 thousand (1971 adjustments -$238 thousand); 1971, $2,935 thousand; 1972, $2,935 thousand; 1973, $2,935 thousand.

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for invention and the registration of trademarks.

Patent application disposals totaled 103,692 in 1970 and 109,245 in 1971; 108,000 are estimated for 1972 and 118,000 for 1973. Increased disposals are needed to keep abreast of intake and to progress toward the pendency goal of 18 months for patent applications. A 3-month pendency goal from receipt to first action for trademark applications is also being sought. The 1973 estimate includes funds and staff for the above-mentioned increased production; for meeting increased demands in public service areas, and for modernization measures that will promote rapid retrieval, storage, and dissemination of information.

Receipts from fees were $27.5 million in 1971. In 1972 and 1973, they are respectively estimated at $28.7 million and $30.2 million. Legislation to increase patent fees, which would generate additional income, will be proposed.

1. Examination of patent applications.—Applications are examined to determine the patentability of claimed inventions; and quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal and interference proceedings within the Office.

2. Examination of trademark applications.—Applications are examined to determine the registrability of trademarks, and quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal or adversary proceedings within the Office. Specifications and drawings of successful applications are printed, and registered trademarks are regularly published.

3. Collection, assembly, and dissemination of technical and legal patent and trademark information.—Specifications and drawings of successful applications are printed, and issued patents are regularly published. In addition, this activity includes preparation and issuance of patent grants, furnishing copies of records, maintenance of public search room and scientific library facilities, and recording instruments conveying ownership of patent and trademark rights.

1. Basis for Nation's physical measurement system.—The purpose of this activity is to insure that the users of science and technology in the United States will be able to make physical measurements which are meaningful (measure the desired property), reliable (measure properly and as accurately as needed), reproducible (yield the same results time after time), and compatible (will be reconcilable with other like measurements made elsewhere at different times).

(a) Measurement methods, standards, and research.—Programs include development, maintenance, and improvement of the standards of physical measurement which, by common agreement, are compatible with those of other nations. This involves national standards for measurement of some 40 physical quantities (including the "basic six" of physics: mass, length, time, temperature, electric current, and luminous intensity).

Research is conducted to learn new and improved ways to measure the physical and chemical properties of matter, materials, and natural phenomena. The 1973 increases will provide for development of national reference neutron standards and research on reference materials related to clinical analysis, water pollution, and industrial quality

(b) Transfer services.—This involves developing and making readily available a range of specialized products and services, including calibrations and standard reference data, that will effectively transfer the results of the Bureau's work to other elements of the Nation's measurement system. The 1973 increase will be applied to the standard reference data program for coverage of additional technical areas including pollution abatement technology and failure avoidance engineering.

2. Scientific and technological services for industry and Government.—The purpose of this activity is to facilitate effective use of science and technology by governmental institutions and by industry. In the United States most of the effort devoted to developing and using technology is in the private sector. A variety of problems exist in certain areas of technology, however, where the Government has a substantial investment or where complexity, cost, or scope of impact are such as to require a national-level effort.

Programs in this activity include: (a) Biomaterials, metals, alloys, polymers, inorganic, and composite materials technology; (b) evaluation and improvement of measurement methods in support of environmental pollution abatement programs; (c) building science and technology; (d) computer science and technology; (e) electronic technology; (f) cryogenic technology; (g) failure avoidance analysis and engineering; (h) technology utilization analysis; and (i) the application of analytical techniques to operations analysis and the management of research. The 1973 increase will be applied to development of measurement methods and standards related to pollution abatement, services to improve the effective application of computers, applying cryogenic technology to more efficient power generation, and development of methods to reduce material, product and structural failures.

3. Technical basis for equity in trade.—The purpose of this activity is to provide a common technical basis for fair exchange between buyers and sellers in commercial dealings with minimum legal regulation at the Federal level. Programs in this area include: (a) Voluntary engineering standards services to assist private sector groups to develop national and international engineering standards and disseminate information on such standards, (b) measures of quantities important to commerce to insure a proper degree of measurement accuracy in commercial quantity determinations, including development and promotion of better weights and measures technology, (c) standards to measure the performance of industrial and consumer products, (d) test services to promote the application of product standards and standardized product test methods by Federal, State, and commercial testing laboratories, and (e) fair packaging and labeling programs to reduce undue proliferation of commodity package sizes by voluntary means.

4. Technical services to promote public safety.—Programs of this activity provide standards, test methods, information, and specialized services as required by law to protect the public from certain specified hazards. Subjects included are (a) flammable fabrics, which provides the technical basis for reduction of the hazard of fire involving fabrics and related materials, (b) fire research and safety, which involves research, information, and services aimed at reducing loss of life and property due to fire, (c) product safety, which provides the technical basis for assessing hazards and aids in setting standards for consumer product safety, and (d) radiation safety, which deals with standards for sources of potentially hazardous nonionizing radiation. Increases in 1973 will extend the fire research and safety program in the areas of public education, fire fighting tactics, improved equipment for firemen, and fire protection in buildings. Under the radiation safety program, measurement methods and standards will be developed for control of hazards from laser and electromagnetic radiation.

5. Technical information services.—The purpose of this activity is to disseminate information on research results and services to users through a variety of appropriate, easily accessible channels. Programs employed to achieve this objective are (a) central reference services, such as NBS information analysis centers which provide highly specialized technical information, (b) symposia, technical meetings, and training courses, (c) research and development in information sciences including employment of experimental hardware/software configurations to improve the response time and adequacy of the Bureau's information-providing services, and (d) consulting and advisory services which are made available, usually at no cost to the user.

6. Central technical support.—The purpose of this activity is to provide technical supporting services to other Bureau programs. These services include operation of research tools such as the NBS research reactor, linear electron accelerator, and other high energy accelerators. Also included are mathematical and statistical services.

7. Experimental technology development and application.—This activity will encourage private research and development oriented toward attaining national goals, such as increased productivity. Funding will be by contracts with industry, associations, and universities emphasizing demonstrations of technology applications.

8. National technical information service.—The National Technical Information Service collects and distributes scientific, technological, business, and demographic information generated by the Federal Government. The 1973 increase will be applied to the establishment of a central point of easy access to all Department of Commerce information products and development of new ideas.

RESEARCH AND TECHNICAL SERVICES (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)

For payments in foreign currencies which the Treasury Department determines to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States, for necessary expenses of the National Bureau of Standards, as authorized by law, [$500,000] $1,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available, in addition to other appropriations to the Bureau, for payments in the foregoing currencies. (Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1972.)

The responsibilities of the National Bureau of Standards for basic and applied research, improvement of standards, collection and dissemination of standard reference data, and the certification and distribution of standard reference materials are of sufficient breadth to encourage utilization of research capabilities in other countries. The foreign currency program supplements the Bureau's existing program, allows an acceleration of research effort in selected areas, and permits economies to the Bureau's regular appropriations over the long term.

The 1973 request includes an increase of $500 thousand. Foreign currencies determined by the Treasury Department to be excess to normal requirements of the United States will be used in countries where scientific talent is available to augment the in-house capabilities of the Bureau in the areas of standard reference materials, standard reference data, building research, research to improve measurements on materials, and exploratory research.

This appropriation provides for construction and improvements to the plant and facilities of the National Bureau of Standards and procurement of major special facilities. The Bureau maintains laboratories in Gaithersburg, Md., and Boulder, Colo.

In 1972, unobligated balances totaling $350 thousand were allocated for emergency replacement of a nuclear reactor heat exchanger. The budget includes restoration of $240 thousand, distributed as follows: improvements and modifications, $105 thousand; general construction, $50 thousand; and special facilities, $85 thousand.

Capital outlay.—1. Improvements and modifications.—The budget includes $200 thousand for minor capital improvements of a general nature required by the Bureau's laboratories and field stations. Other minor improvements, when of a special project-related character, are charged to the appropriation for research and technical services. Noncapital alterations are charged to the operating costs of this appropriation.

2. General construction.—This activity includes improvements and construction items costing more than $40 thousand. Anticipated costs in 1973 total $1,315 thousand for projects financed in prior years.

3. Special facilities.—(a) NBS facilities.—This subactivity includes the acquisition of large equipment and any associated building construction or acquisition.

The budget includes $1,770 thousand for major equipment items including a volt standard facility, a time and frequency dissemination system, a research computer facility, and an induced electron emission spectrometer.

Anticipated costs in 1973 include $1,174 thousand for new projects and $636 thousand for projects financed in prior years.

(b) Weights and measures standards for the States.—This subactivity finances the acquisition of basic reference standards of weight and measure for distribution to the States. Such action will help to insure uniformity of weights and measures standards throughout the Nation and to provide the physical tools necessary for precise measurement in business, industry, science, and education.

The working capital fund finances all operations of the Bureau except major construction projects, from advances and reimbursements. The principal of the fund, as of June 30, 1971, consisted of $5 million in appropriations, $9 million in capital provided by appropriations of the Bureau, and $143 million in net donated assets. The Government investment is estimated to grow through donation of cash and other assets financed by the Bureau's appropriations to $161 million by June 30, 1973.

Operating costs.—1. Technical program.—Research and technical services are conducted by the Bureau on the request of other Government agencies and the public, as well as in support of the Bureau's own research program. The program conducted on contract with other agencies constitutes about one-third of the technical work of the Bureau and it is expected to continue at this level.

2. Plant improvement and special equipment.—This activity includes the costs of the working capital fund which are reimbursed from the Bureau's capital outlay appropriations. The plant improvements and special equipment procured are donated to the fund upon completion and carried as assets of the fund at cost.

Capital outlay.—Working capital of the fund is invested in general equipment, which is subject to depreciation charges. All other equipment and facilities financed by Bureau appropriations are shown as donated assets.

Operating results.—Retained earnings at the end of each year are transferred to Treasury the year following.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Unpaid undelivered orders. 1970, $0; 1971, $145 thousand; 1972, $145 thousand; 1973, $145 thousand.

The Office of Telecommunications (OT) provides analysis, engineering and administrative services, including maintenance of files and data bases for the Director, Office of Telecommunications Policy (OTP), Executive Office of the President, in the performance of his responsibilities for managing the radio spectrum; conducts technical and economic research to provide information and alternatives required by the Director, OTP; performs analysis and research on the description and prediction of electromagnetic wave propagation, nature of electromagnetic noise and interference, methods for the more efficient use of the spectrum, and economic aspects of telecommunications; and conducts research and analysis in the general field of telecommunication sciences in support of other Government agencies.

The 1973 estimate requests resources for: (1) services for frequency management and usage, (2) research and analyses for policy formulation, and (3) telecommunications technology.

1. Services for frequency management and usage.—OT provides administrative support to the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee, which through OTP assigns specific frequencies and allocates frequency bands for Federal use. Through frequency assignment engineering, OT assists OTP by analysis and prediction of interference between proposed and existing systems. In 1973 IRAC support will be continued while equipment and terrain engineering files are improved.

2. Research and analysis for policy formulation.—OT provides technical and economic research and analyses required by OTP to develop telecommunications policies and programs that will promote the public interest and to assist in formulation of executive branch views on selected telecommunications policy matters. During 1973 research and analysis will be undertaken.

3. Telecommunications technology.—OT provides the basic technical information required for support of OTP and other agencies. It provides information on various alternative systems and technological approaches, performance estimates, tradeoff analyses, and physical and engineering data. This activity develops and evaluates methods for improving telecommunications systems and their use. In 1973 OT will continue studying telephone network interconnections; initiate techniques of analysis of large complex communications systems for urban communications; expand work in the areas of mobile communications, ground distribution of satellite services, and wideband cable and guided wave transmission; strive to obtain greater yield from the radio spectrum by providing for sharing the same group of frequencies among different users and extend the usable spectrum by developing methods for using higher (presently unused) frequencies; process information on telecommunications for Federal-State-local government information sharing and national and international communications systems and business data; and improve the compatibility of telecommunications systems by the application of systems engineering standards.

This activity provides telecommunications engineering assistance to other Government agencies. This includes direct assistance in the design of communications systems, design or review of systems designs to meet specified requirements, extensive measurement programs in the various parameters of electromagnetic propagation and development of predictions of system performance.

A substantial portion of the work in this activity is for the Department of Defense. It involves propagation experiments and measurements to describe and predict wave transmission for communications purposes. Studies are directed toward understanding geophysical parameters which impose radio propagation limitations on the reliability and/or precision of propagation systems. The results of this research lead to more efficient and economical design of propagation and communications systems.

Fiscal 1973 is expected to represent the third and final year of phased buildup of the ship construction program in preparation for a full-scale construction effort expected to reach a level of 30 ships per year in 1974. As contemplated in the new maritime program outlined by the Merchant Marine Act of 1970, this buildup is predicated upon the funding of an estimated 17 highly productive ships in 1973 and 30 ships in 1974 and thereafter. The 1973 program will cost $250,000 thousand in Government subsidy, an increase of $20,313 thousand over the 1972 level of $229,687 thousand.

The 10-year program is directed at motivating increased efficiency in U.S. shipyards in order to narrow the gap between domestic and foreign merchant ship production costs, and the maintenance of a healthy shipbuilding industry adequate to meet defense and commercial requirements of the United States at the least Government expenditure. The maximum allowable subsidy rate for 1973 under normal conditions will be 41%. This percentage will decline at the rate of 2% per year until reaching a level of 35%.

SHIP CONSTRUCTION

For construction-differential subsidy and cost of national-defense features incident to construction of ships for operation in foreign commerce (46 U.S.C. 1152, 1154); for construction-differential subsidy and cost of national-defense features incident to the reconstruction and reconditioning of ships under title V of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C. 1154); and for acquisition of used ships pursuant to section 510 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C. 1160); to remain available until expended, [$229,687,000] $250,000,000. (Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1972; authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

The tentative mix of the 1973 building program currently projected is a combined product of many factors. Included are the original projections made for the new maritime program, reappraisals of national defense requirements, statements of operator preferences, indications of interest on the part of the investment community, and updated cost estimates. While none of these factors can as yet yield a conclusive picture, the best estimates of the 1973 ship construction program are shown as follows:

TENTATIVE 1973 SHIP CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM, MULTIYEAR PROCUREMENT

	Number of ships funded	Government cost
Roll-on/roll-off	2	$26.4
Barge ship (LASH)	1	13.4

This proposed shipbuilding level for 1973 of 17 ships is considered to be the minimum level feasible if the intention of the Government to achieve a 30-ship-per-year building level is to be realized.

Fiscal 1973 will be the third year of operation under a new 10-year maritime program which is designed to achieve major improvements in the administration of operating subsidies. In addition, direct subsidies will be paid to bulk carriers operating in the U.S. foreign trade.

During 1970, 14 operators had operating subsidy contracts with the Maritime Administration and provided service on 28 essential trade routes. These operators carried approximately 20.4 million payable tons of cargo.

The total of vessel operating expenses for subsidized operators in calendar 1970 was $934.9 million, of which $335.8 million represented subsidizable items of expense.

The operations for which subsidy support is projected are detailed in the following table:

The 1973 program provides for continuation of a program designed to serve the needs of the entire maritime complex including Government, shipbuilders, shipowners, and labor. The program will operate in the following areas:

1. Maritime science and technology.—Research conducted herein is planned to raise the level of marine scientific knowledge in order to advance the technological base upon which ships are designed, built, and operated. Primary research will be in hydrodynamics for the development of new naval hull types, new propulsion concepts, ship maneuvering, ship structures, navigation-communications electronics, and facilities and systems to collect and disseminate technical information.

2. Shipping systems analysis and requirements.—This activity is concerned with forecasting trade and technology and with the economic and technical analyses of total transportation systems. Included are studies of transportation demands as a means for projecting ship numbers and characteristics, advanced vehicles, intermodal aspects, and special economic studies.

3. Advanced ship engineering and development.—This activity is concerned with the development of advanced ship concepts and their design as well as construction methods. The nuclear and nonnuclear advanced propulsion systems including new transmission systems and propellers are involved. Improved shipyard operations and management systems are included in the program, as well as development of computer-aided design programs.

4. Improvement in ship operations and shipping systems.—Included in this activity is applied research for all aspects of the maritime field concerned with ship and port operations. Consideration will be given to related operational equipment and procedures for navigation, cargo handling, automated control systems, containerization, manning, training, maintenance and repair, ship generated pollution abatement, and other aspects of the field. Research aspects will include prototype design and construction of offshore terminals for super size vessels.

1. Ship construction administration.—This activity provides for the cost of technical and administrative support required for the level of contractual activity financed under the "Ship construction" appropriation. Also included are the administrative efforts in the promotion of pollution abatement at sea and in port; increased Government effort in construction loan and mortgage insurance programs; and the establishment and maintenance of a capital construction fund similar in purpose to the previously authorized Capital reserve fund.

2. Research and development administration.—Provides for the cost of technical and administrative support required for research and development contractual activity.

3. National defense reserve fleet (NDRF).—Covers the costs for preservation work and security measures performed on ships retained for national defense purposes and custody of ships awaiting sale.

4. Operating aids.—This activity is primarily concerned with the administration of the operating-differential subsidy program. Also included are costs of administering the agency's programs for chartering of ships, ship exchange, war-risk insurance, emergency planning, trade studies, and development of intermodal systems.

5. Maritime promotion and manpower.—Includes costs of promotional activities such as market development, cargo preference administration, and port development. Includes the costs of administration of the State marine schools program, and training in radar, navigational aids, and similar courses for the merchant marine.

6. General administration.—This activity covers executive direction and the supporting administrative functions related to the substantive program efforts of the Maritime Administration. These include such activities as accounting, auditing, budgeting, personnel, management, legal, and civil rights.

Public Law 415, 84th Congress (46 U.S.C. 1126), established the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., to train cadets for service as officers in the U.S. Merchant Marine. A 4-year course is provided, including 1 year of sea duty, designed to qualify graduates for licenses as deck or engine officers. About 190 cadets are expected to graduate in 1973.

The Academy provides subsistence, quarters, tuition, uniform and textbook allowances, and medical and dental care for the cadets in attendance at the Academy. A small cadet training liaison group in Washington, D.C., provides staff assistance to the Maritime Administrator on training matters, and assists in the selection and appointment of cadets.

The States of California, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, New York, and Texas maintain schools for the training of merchant marine officers with Federal assistance given in the form of (a) direct grants of $75 thousand, if matched by State appropriations and if out-of-State students are enrolled; (b) allowance to cadets for uniforms, textbooks, and subsistence; and (c) maintenance and repair of vessels used in the training of cadets.

The Maritime Academy Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 622-624) provides contract authority for the Secretary of Commerce to enter into agreements with States to provide the grants and allowances over a maximum 4-year period. This act provides contract authority without limit as to the amount or fiscal year. The new budget authority includes the estimated obligations to be incurred under this authority. The schools are expected to graduate approximately 400 cadets in 1973.

Under the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, the Maritime Administration received authority to insure construction loans and mortgages with aggregate outstanding balances of up to $3 billion, on vessels engaged in the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States. Some $25 million of authority has been transferred to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to insure construction loans and mortgages of fishing vessels.

Budget program.—The anticipated income of $7.3 million in 1972 and $8.6 million in 1973 takes into account the new merchant marine program. There are no anticipated mortgage defaults or advances to mortgagors in 1973. During 1972, advances in the amount of $0.5 million will be made.

Financing.—The redemption of defaulted loans and mortgages is financed from insurance premiums and fees, interest earned on U.S. Government securities and mortgages held, together with such amounts as may be necessary by borrowing from the Treasury Department, pursuant to Public Law 85-520 (46 U.S.C. 1275(b)).

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1971, balances outstanding of insured mortgages and loans plus commitments for additional ship mortgages total $1.2 billion. The outstanding balances of insured mortgages, loans, and commitments at the end of 1972 and 1973 are projected at $1.6 billion and $2.1 billion, respectively.

It is anticipated that the fund will purchase Treasury securities in the amount of $8.5 million in 1972 and $9.9 million in 1973.

This fund finances operation, reactivation, deactivation and charter of Government-owned or controlled cargo type vessels. It is also used for financing the operation of Government-owned experimental vessels (46 U.S.C. 1205).

Budget program.—There is no anticipated budget program in 1973.

Financing.—Expenses are financed by reimbursements from Military Sealift Command, other agencies and appropriations, and in some years by revenue from private operations, in accordance with 69 Stat. 59.

Operating results and financial condition.—1. Vessel operations expenses.—It is anticipated that during 1972 all costs in reference to the operation of Government-owned cargo ships by private operators as agents of the Maritime Administration will be finalized. In addition, a ship reactivation evaluation program was developed in 1972 to establish and evaluate the techniques necessary to rapidly and economically bring a ship laid-up under dehumidification preservation to an active on berth status when required to meet an emergency situation.

2. Experimental ship NS Savannah.—The $100 thousand represents the finalizing of costs for the operating portion in reference to the lay-up of the NS Savannah. These costs are reimbursable in full from the Research and development appropriation.

The Maritime Administration is authorized by 46 U.S.C. 1281-1294, as amended, to insure against loss or damage by marine war risks when it is found commercial insurance cannot be obtained on reasonable terms and conditions. Authority to underwrite insurance has been authorized to September 7, 1975, having been extended at 5-year intervals since 1950.

Budget program.—As of June 30, 1971, the number of outstanding binders issued for the types of insurance covered by this fund were: 1,225 for hulls, 1,164 for protection and indemnity, and 948 for insurance of crew life and personal effects. These binders which become effective as a result of the outbreak of war cover approximately $17 billion of insurance exposure. During 1971 war risk builder's risk insurance was provided on three vessels built in U.S. yards.

In addition, Second seamen's war risk insurance was continued in effect at the request of the Navy, without premium, but on a reimbursable basis as required by 46 U.S.C. 1285, on 19 vessels for the Military Sealift Command. It is estimated that this service from program inception has provided a savings of $1.2 million through 1971, measured by the difference between the estimated cost of commercial premiums and claims paid. The Maritime Administration also provided Second seamen's war risk insurance for 113 vessels under charter to the Military Sealift Command, which resulted in additional net savings approximating $3.6 million for the year, thereby increasing cumulative savings in excess of $0.48 million by the end of 1971.

Financing.—46 U.S.C. 1288(a) provides authority for the Secretary of Commerce to transfer up to $10 million from the Vessel operations revolving fund to the War risk insurance revolving fund in order to place insurance coverage into effect. Revenue in the fund is received from fees paid for the issuance of interim binders, premiums paid for builder's risk insurance, interest from investments, and reimbursable charges from the Navy.

Funds will be required to cover payments of 1968 and prior costs for subsidized cargo ship operations. These payments were not previously anticipated and result from more accurate review of unpaid subsidies, determined to be payable by the Federal Government because of recently completed wage and rate schedules review.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

No additional vessel shall be allocated under charter, nor shall any vessel be continued under charter by reason of any extension of chartering authority beyond June 30, 1949, unless the charterer shall agree that the Maritime Administration shall have no obligation upon redelivery to accept or pay for consumable stores, bunkers, and slopchest items, except with respect to such minimum amounts of bunkers as the Maritime Administration considers advisable to be retained on the vessel and that prior to such redelivery all consumable stores, slopchest items, and bunkers over and above such minimums shall be removed from the vessel by the charterer at his own expense.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Maritime Administration is authorized to furnish utilities and services and make necessary repairs in connection with any lease, contract, or occupancy involving Government property under control of the Maritime Administration and payments received by the Maritime Administration for utilities, services, and repairs so furnished or made shall be credited to the appropriation charged with the cost thereof: Provided, That rental payments under any such lease, contract, or occupancy on account of items other than such utilities, services, or repairs shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

No obligations shall be incurred during the current fiscal year from the construction fund established by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, or otherwise, in excess of the appropriations and limitations contained in this Act, or in any prior appropriation Act, and all receipts which otherwise would be deposited to the credit of said fund shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. (Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1972.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

SEC. 302. During the current fiscal year applicable appropriations and funds available to the Department of Commerce shall be available for the activities specified in the Act of October 26, 1949 (15 U.S.C. 1514), to the extent and in the manner prescribed by said Act.

SEC. 303. During the current fiscal year appropriations to the Department of Commerce which are available for salaries and expenses shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; and uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 304. No part of any appropriation contained in this title shall be used for construction of any ship in any foreign country. (Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1972.)

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

MILITARY PERSONNEL

Military personnel activities are grouped into major program categories corresponding to the planning, programming, and evaluation system of the Department of Defense.

1. Strategic forces.—Consists of offensive and defensive aircraft and missile units.

2. General purpose forces.—Consists of unified commands, tactical Army combat and support forces, Navy ship and air forces, the Marine Corps fleet forces, including aviation, and Air Force combat and support aircraft units. It also includes related logistics and support units.

3. Intelligence and communications.—Missions and activities related to combat forces and centrally directed activities for intelligence, security, and communications.

4. Airlift and sealift.—Airlift, sealift, and other transportation, including logistic and support units.

5. Guard and Reserve.—Consists of support for National Guard and Reserve training units.

6. Research and development.—Support for research and development activities and projects not related to items approved for procurement or deployment.

7. Central supply and maintenance.—Includes non-deployable supply and maintenance depots, and supply and maintenance activities not organic to mission units.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—Consists of these activities associated with military personnel.

9. Administration and associated activities.—The administrative support of departmental and major administrative headquarters, field commands, and administrative activities.

10. Support of other nations.—Activities for the support of allies.

ACTIVE FORCES

These appropriations provide for the pay and allowances of officers, enlisted personnel, cadets, and midshipmen; the subsistence of enlisted personnel; permanent change of station travel; and other military personnel costs. Changes in financial requirements are primarily related to military personnel strengths in support of the military programs. The number of active duty military personnel provided for are shown in the following tables:

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the National Guard and Reserve components of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force.

National Guard and Reserve personnel.—These programs provide funds for training members of the Ready Reserve required for early mobilization needs of the Active Forces. Most of the paid National Guard and Reserve components personnel perform 48 drills and attend 2 weeks of active duty for training each year. Other personnel not requiring as intensive training receive only a period of active duty for training (usually 2 weeks) during the year. Active duty for basic training is provided for personnel enlisting in a National Guard or Reserve component who have not previously received military training. Service schools and special tours of active duty training provide additional training for limited numbers of the Ready Reserve.

The numbers of National Guard and Reserve component personnel estimated to participate in the paid training programs are summarized in the following table:

Reserve officer candidates.—The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a collegiate institution at which an ROTC unit has been established. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum period of 2 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964, as amended by Public Law 92-166, authorizes a limited number of scholarships for 4-year ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships are required to serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer. There will be about 6,500 scholarship recipients in the Army and Air Force and about 5,700 in the Navy in 1973.

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force provide training for students who elect to enroll in ROTC training at the secondary level of education, and are programmed to have units at 650, 179, 40, and 235 schools, respectively, in operation in 1973.

The numbers of candidates commissioned from these programs are summarized below:

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all military personnel on the retired lists of the Department of Defense. The estimate represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for: (a) Payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) retainer pay of regular enlisted personnel of the fleet reserve of the Navy and Fleet Marine Corps Reserve; and (c) survivors' benefits. The substantial gains to the retired rolls can be directly attributed to the greater number of individuals attaining eligibility for retirement after 20 or more years of active military service. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1971 compared with the estimated numbers for 1972 and 1973.

5. Survivors' benefits.....	8,316	9,149	10,088
Total	806,139	872,221	937,012

A supplemental appropriation for 1972 is anticipated to provide funds for the additional retirement costs resulting from the increase in the pay of military personnel effective November 14, 1971, under the provisions of Public Law 92-129.

Under the provisions of the retired serviceman's family protection plan, retired service personnel who elect to receive reduced amounts of retired pay are able to provide for monthly payments to be continued to their survivors. The reductions are determined on a basis designed to establish an actuarially sound system. Current appropriations provide only for the net payments to be made each year and the liability for future payments of survivor benefits is unfunded. Administrative expenses of this family protection plan are provided as operation and maintenance costs of the military services. The accumulated difference between reductions in retired pay and actual payments of survivor benefits is indicated in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

The appropriations under this title finance the day-to-day costs, except military personnel costs, of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the reserve components, and related support activities of the Department of Defense. These funds include amounts for pay of civilians, contract services for maintenance of equipment and facilities, fuel, supplies, and repair parts for weapons and equipment. Financial requirements for these appropriations are influenced by a variety of factors, the principal of which are force levels, such as the number of aircraft squadrons or Army or Marine Corps divisions, military strength and deployments, rates of operational activity, numbers of installations, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, etc.) in operation.

The principal activities in each of these major programs are identified below.

1. Strategic forces.—Strategic offensive forces include more than 500 manned B-52 and FB-111 bombers and 1,054 advanced ICBM's operated by the Air Force as well as the Navy's submarine missile fleet which deploys 656 Polaris and Poseidon missiles. Estimates for 1973 reflect increased deployment of Minuteman III missiles and conversion of additional submarines from Polaris to the more advanced Poseidon ballistic missile.

Strategic defensive forces consist of missile defense units of both Army and Air Force, interceptor fighter aircraft of the Air Force, and various warning, command and control systems operated by the Air Force. The estimates for 1973 reflect reductions in obsolescent components of the force.

2. General purpose forces.—These forces of the four military services operate under the control of the various unified and specified commands. They consist of the tactical air forces of the Navy, Air Force, and Marines, the ground forces and supporting aircraft elements of the Army and Marine Corps, and Navy's combatant and support ships. Among these forces are those deployed to eastern Asia and the western Pacific; the forces deployed to Europe in the NATO area; the fleets operating in the Pacific, the Atlantic, and the Mediterranean; and the backup contingency forces in the United States.

Our tactical air forces consist of Air Force tactical air wings, Navy carrier-based air wings, and Marine air wings. Also included are reconnaissance squadrons, a variety of training and other supporting organizations, and special operations forces. During 1973 the F-4 Phantom jet fighter will continue to be the workhorse for all three services. The A-7 and F-111 aircraft will further displace older attack models in the Air Force, and the Marine Corps will operate the vertical/short takeoff and landing AV8A Harrier.

Army land forces to be supported in 1973 consist of infantry, mechanized, armored, triple capability, airborne, and airmobile divisions for the conduct of land warfare. Also provided for are the force elements needed for support of these divisions during the initial stages of combat plus a limited number of units required for sustained combat support.

Marine Corps land forces consist of divisions and supporting force troop elements designed to conduct amphibious assault operations and other missions with the close support of Marine aviation.

Naval forces include aircraft carriers, submarines, amphibious forces, antisubmarine forces, and anti-air warfare forces. Although the Navy will operate fewer ships in 1973 due to inactivation of many obsolete World War II ships (such as conventional submarines and amphibious vessels), the fleet will be modernized with the addition of 17 newly constructed ships, including four nuclear-propelled and seven other combatant ships.

3. Intelligence and communications.—This program comprises the centrally directed Defense intelligence and security function, the major portion of the consolidated telecommunications program (CTP), the National Military Command System, and other special activities which are related to and support the missions of the combat forces in the strategic, general purpose, and airlift/sealift programs. Included in the CTP portion are the bulk of the Defense Communications System (DCS) common user transmission and switching systems as well as certain non-DCS communications. Funds to support intelligence, security, and communications activities are contained in the various appropriations of each of the military services, and, in the case of the Defense Communications Agency, Defense Nuclear Agency, Defense Intelligence Agency, and National Security Agency in the Defense Agencies appropriation. Included among the special activities are Army combat development activities, Navy oceanographic and weather programs and Air Force weather, air rescue and recovery, and air traffic control and landing system programs.

4. Airlift and sealift.—This provides air, land, and sea transportation services for all the Armed Forces in peacetime as well as quick reaction strategic mobility and logistical support in wartime. The major commands in this program are the Military Airlift Command of the Air Force, the Military Sealift Command of the Navy, and the Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service of the Army, all of which are industrially funded operations whose costs are reimbursed by the users. The operation and maintenance appropriations directly provide for certain administrative and base service support expenses for each of these industrially funded activities. Also included are the Army overseas water ports outside of Southeast Asia.

5. Guard and Reserve.—The military services train National Guard and Reserve units and operate and maintain facilities such as training centers, air bases, and active duty field training sites for the use of such units. In 1973, increasing inventories of equipment will provide for improved readiness of these units.

7. Central supply and maintenance.—This program includes funds for specialized supply and maintenance activities. It provides resources for the determination of inventory levels, procurement (excluding acquisition costs), storage, distribution, depot-level maintenance and transportation of military materiel. These functions are managed by the military services and conducted at various locations worldwide such as supply depots and centers, inventory control points, and repair facilities as well as through commercial contractors.

In addition, the Defense Supply Agency provides common supply and service support to the military services within the continental United States, including, in addition to the above functions, management of Department of Defense-owned idle industrial plant equipment, the Defense surplus property disposal program, and the Federal catalog program. It is also responsible for providing contract administration services including enforcement of the equal employment provisions of Executive Order 11246, as amended, administration and supervision of Department of Defense material utilization program, and coordinated procurement programs. Requirements for the Defense Supply Agency are included under Operation and maintenance, Defense agencies.

Financial requirements are primarily related to the quantity of material in use and in inventory.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—Each of the military services trains individuals for duty as officers or enlisted men. This includes recruit training, career training, and specialized training in many occupational skills. These requirements are influenced by the number of new recruits entering the services, the total strength of the services, and by the introduction of new equipment and weapons. Most of this training is conducted at service-operated facilities, such as training centers for the training of new recruits, at technical schools which afford training in specific military occupational skills, and at pilot training bases. Education of prospective officers is accomplished by the three service academies and by Reserve Officer Training Corps units at universities and colleges.

As part of the efforts to promote the concept of an all-volunteer force, funds are included in this program to improve service attractiveness. This includes measures to bring more men and women into the armed forces, as well as measures aimed at inducing more personnel to continue their military careers after their terms of enlistment or induction have expired. Improvement of living and working conditions are designed to increase retention.

The Department of Defense instituted in 1972 a program designed to combat the drug abuse problem among members of the armed forces. This program, focusing on detection, education and treatment of drug users, will be expanded in 1973.

The services operate 190 hospitals to provide medical care for active and retired military personnel and their dependents. In addition, this program finances a Medicare program at civilian medical facilities for personnel in areas where service hospitals are not accessible.

9. Administration and associated activities.—This program includes the costs of departmental administration, major field command headquarters, and general support activities such as finance and audit.

10. Support of other nations.—This program includes the direct support of Allied Forces in Southeast Asia, military assistance missions, and advisory groups to foreign nations, and also the U.S. share of NATO, SEATO, and CENTO costs, and support of U.S. organizations related to these international military headquarters.

Supplemental appropriations for 1972 are anticipated to provide funds for wage-board increases effective in 1972 granted under 5 U.S.C. 5341(a).

PROCUREMENT

The procurement appropriations of the Department of Defense finance the acquisition of capital equipment, such as aircraft, missiles, ships, combat vehicles, weapons, torpedoes, munitions, and communications; major items for support of the capital equipment when it is in use; the industrial facilities necessary to produce that equipment; and major modification of equipment in inventory where modernization can be achieved without buying new equipment. The capital equipment financed by these appropriations is principally procured from private contractors or produced in Government arsenals, shipyards, and plants.

The 1973 program continues the production of modern equipment and weapons in support of United States and allied forces. The equipment inventories necessary to support conventional as well as strategic missions of armed services continue to be augmented and modernized. Our military capability is improved by continuing programs to increase the mobility and firepower of ground forces, strengthen the tactical air forces, modernize air-lift forces, and augment the capabilities of antisubmarine warfare forces.

Aircraft.....	6,290.8	6,568.5	5,848.8
Missiles.....	3,322.7	3,417.7	3,717.4
Ships.....	2,356.5	3,010.2	3,564.3

Other.....	5,373.3	5,482.4	5,640.2

The appropriations for procurement of aircraft, missiles, ships, weapons, torpedoes, and combat vehicles are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation.

This appropriation provides for the 1971 program for procuring major items of combat and support equipment for approved Army forces in performing their assigned mission to meet successfully both nuclear and conventional war requirements. It also provides for the procurement of spares and repair parts not covered in the Army stock fund as well as production engineering, tooling, and facilities in support of current procurement.

The 1972 and 1973 funds for Army procurement are in five new separate appropriations. Therefore no appropriations are shown for this appropriation in 1972 and 1973. The obligations shown under this account are to carry out the 1971 program.

This appropriation finances the procurement of aircraft, missiles, and associated support equipment for Navy forces and Marine air wings. It also provides funds for modification of inservice aircraft and missiles to eliminate safety hazards and enhance operational effectiveness. Also included are target drones, aircraft ground support equipment, and repairable spare and repair parts for all end items procured under this appropriation. Funds are included to finance procurement of long leadtime effort and material in support of the planned subsequent year programs.

1. Combat aircraft.—The 1973 program finances the procurement of attack, fighter, electronic warfare, airborne early warning, and antisubmarine patrol aircraft and helicopters for Marine, Navy, and Executive missions.

2. Airlift aircraft.—This activity finances the procurement of aircraft for critical personnel and cargo airlift.

3. Trainer aircraft.—The 1973 program provides for the procurement of basic jet trainer aircraft to fulfill training requirements for future Navy/Marine Corps pilots.

4. Other aircraft.—The 1973 program provides ski-equipped transport aircraft in support of the National Science Foundation sponsored Deep Freeze program.

5. Modification of aircraft.—This activity finances the modification of currently operational aircraft to increase their capability, to extend their useful life, or to improve flight safety.

6. Aircraft spares and repair parts.—This activity finances the procurement of aircraft spares and repair parts required for initial outfitting and the replenishment of repairable items.

7. Aircraft support equipment and facilities.—This activity provides for modernization and maintenance of Government-owned industrial facilities, component improvement, and miscellaneous support of aircraft production costs. The 1973 program also provides for aircraft common ground support equipment including the Versatile Avionics Shop Test System (VAST).

8. Ballistic missile.—This activity funds the procurement of fleet ballistic missiles and related support programs.

9. Other missiles.—The 1973 program provides for the continued procurement of missiles required for counterair attack, fleet air defense, air-to-surface, and surface-to-surface attack. Aerial targets, including drones, for training and the testing of weapons systems are also financed under this activity.

10. Modification of missiles.—This activity finances the modification of missiles in inventory to assure their maximum effectiveness consistent with current technology.

11. Missile spares and repair parts.—This activity finances the procurement of spares and repair parts for missiles and drones.

12. Missile support equipment and facilities.—This activity includes funds for the modernization and maintenance of Government-owned missile industrial facilities, for the support of a navigational satellite, and the first increment of funding for the communications satellite program.

This appropriation finances the construction of new ships and the conversion of existing ships, including all hull, mechanical and electrical equipment, electronics, guns, torpedo and missile launching systems, and communications systems. It also finances procurement of long-leadtime items for ships for which authorization will be requested in 1974 or later.

The 1973 program continues the Navy's long-range modernization and replacement program designed to provide the fleet with modern balanced forces which can effectively respond to a wide variety of challenges in support of our national objectives.

Funds are requested for a major new strategic initiative, which will further strengthen our sea-based deterrent force. In addition, conversion and modernization of six ballistic missile submarines to a Poseidon missile capability will improve our sea-based ballistic missile weapons system. Long-leadtime items will also be procured for additional future conversions.

Advance procurement funds are requested in 1973 for a Nimitz class nuclear powered aircraft carrier to improve the Navy's capability to respond to contingencies. This carrier will replace an older, less effective ship. Seven DD-963 class destroyers will be constructed as part of a program which over several years will replace older World War II destroyer types. These new design destroyers will stress standardization, automation, and improved reliability and maintainability to minimize life cycle costs. They also include the latest design techniques and margins for future modernization.

Funds are requested in 1973 for six high-performance, high-speed nuclear attack submarines to provide a significant increase in the capability of the submarine force. Advance funds are also requested for procurement of long-leadtime components for more ships. Modernization of two guided missile frigates is also required to increase fleet anti-air warfare capabilities.

Several new design ships are included in the 1973 request. One ship, designated the patrol frigate, is the first of a new class of small, less expensive escort ships which will possess antisubmarine and antiship missile defense capabilities. These will have as their primary mission the protection of convoys, underway replenishment groups and amphibious assault groups. The request includes funds for the first two ships of a new class of high speed hydrofoil patrol ships with an antiship missile capability. Advance funding is also requested for the new sea control ship.

In support ships, the 1973 budget provides for one submarine tender, two rescue and salvage ships, one destroyer tender and the conversion of one submarine tender to support Poseidon missile firing submarines. Various service craft will be procured. Funds are included for outfitting material, post delivery work, cost growth on prior year ships and for completion of prior year programs.

² Reimbursements are derived principally from cash sales to foreign governments (10 U.S.C. 2210).

This appropriation finances the procurement of major weapons and equipment other than aircraft, missiles, and ships. Such equipments range from the latest electronic sensors and weapons to update our naval forces, to trucks, training equipment, and spare parts. Also included is the cost associated with the installation of ship and shore equipment.

1. Ships support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement and installation of necessary shipboard components, including replacement of nuclear cores, to support active fleet ship maintenance, replacement, and modernization, and the ship alteration and improvement program.

2. Communications and electronics equipment.—This activity funds communications and electronics equipment for ships and shore-based activities.

3. Aviation support equipment.—This activity funds the procurement of air-dropped ordnance and generalized aircraft support equipment.

4. Ordnance support equipment.—This activity funds the procurement of ship-launched ordnance, antisubmarine warfare ordnance, and fleet ballistic missile ground support and training equipment.

5. Civil engineering support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of construction, weight handling, and transportation equipment primarily in support of Navy general purpose forces.

6. Supply support equipment.—Procurement of self-propelled materials handling equipment and automated materials handling systems, required in support of the Navy supply system, are financed within this activity.

7. Personnel and command support equipment.—This activity finances procurement of training equipment, devices, and aids, and procurement of industrial shop, photographic, printing, and oceanographic equipment for activities supported by the Chief of Naval Operations, as well as equipment for the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and fleet headquarters commands.

This appropriation provides the Marine Corps with weapons, ammunition, and related equipments, most of which are programed for use by the Marine general purpose forces such as Marine divisions, and force troop tank and amphibious tractor battalions. These equipments provide the military hardware and munitions for defense of advanced naval bases, limited war landing operations, and general land warfare.

This appropriation provides for the procurement of aircraft, modification of inservice aircraft, procurement of investment type spares and repair parts including spare engines and major components, and aircraft support equipment and facilities including aerospace ground equipment.

1. Combat aircraft.—This activity provides for the procurement of aircraft to continue modernization of the combat forces. Funds are included for continued procurement of the F-111 and F-5E international fighter and for initial procurement of the F-15. Funds are also requested for airborne warning and control (AWACS) aircraft.

2. Airlift aircraft.—Funds are provided for modernization of the special air mission fleet and to complete C-5A production.

3. Trainer aircraft.—Provision is made for continued procurement of T-43A aircraft to modernize the navigational training fleet and for T-41D aircraft to meet pilot production requirements of the service funded military assistance program.

4. Other aircraft.—Funds are requested for UH-1 helicopters to be provided the Army in return for Army helicopters which were transferred to the VNAF. Also included are funds for Airborne Command Post aircraft and for modernization of the defense attaché mission fleet.

5. Modification of inservice aircraft.—This activity provides for modification of inservice aircraft necessary for safety of flight and changes incorporating technical improvements or providing for changed or improved mission accomplishment.

6. Aircraft spares and repair parts.—Provision is made for investment type spares and repair parts including initial spares for new aircraft as well as spares and repair parts for aircraft in the operating inventory.

7. Aircraft support equipment and facilities.—This activity provides for common aerospace ground equipment, component improvement, industrial facilities, war consumable items, and other charges.

This appropriation provides for procurement, modification, installation, and checkout of missiles, boosters, payloads, drones, and the associated ground support and checkout equipment. It also procures technical data, spares support, transportation, expansion, and nonrecurring maintenance of industrial facilities, machine tool modernization, and classified project activities support.

1. Ballistic missiles.—This activity provides funds for the procurement of Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile systems required for operational squadrons and crew training. The 1973 estimate provides for the procurement, installation and checkout of missiles, aerospace ground equipment, specialized training equipment, the required technical data for the intercontinental ballistic missile program and Minuteman force modernization.

2. Other missiles.—Provides for the procurement of the Shrike antiradiation missile, the short range attack missile (SRAM) for use on strategic bombers, Sparrow and Sidewinder air-to-air missiles, the Maverick air-to-ground missile, and target drones to support test and training requirements.

3. Modification of inservice missiles.—Provides for continued support of the Minuteman updating and the modification of missiles and support equipment to correct deficiencies, improve safety, and increase mission capability.

4. Spares and repair parts.—Provides for initial and replenishment spare subsystems, components, and spare parts for ballistic and other missiles including provisioning documentation.

5. Other support.—Provides for classified project activities, modernization and maintenance of Government-owned production facilities, and support of operational space activities.

1. Munitions and associated equipment.—The 1973 program provides for continued modernization of air munitions inventories to meet the tactical and air defense requirements of both conventional and nuclear war.

2. Vehicular equipment.—The 1973 program provides for support of the vehicular fleet and for replacements of vehicles considered uneconomical to retain in the operational inventory. Replacements of sedans and station wagons are within limits prescribed and conditions set forth in Bulletin No. 72-8 of the Office of Management and Budget, Executive Office of the President, dated December 1, 1971.

3. Electronics and telecommunications equipment.—The 1973 program provides for continued procurement of end item materiel and components required to maintain the electronics and communications subsystems of the Air Force's major weapon systems.

4. Other base maintenance and support equipment.—The 1973 program provides for continued procurement of ground support equipment for operational and logistical units and bases, worldwide.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

Programs in this title fund the development, test, and evaluation of new and improved weapon systems and related equipment carried out by the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Defense Agencies. They also provide for scientific research supporting defense functions and operations. Work is performed by Government laboratories, universities, industrial contractors, and nonprofit organizations. Research and development programs are as a rule funded so that each year's resources support 1 year's increment of the total program cost. Funds required for the research and development related to civil defense responsibilities of the Department of Defense are carried in the separate title, Civil Defense, in this chapter.

The total 1973 budget plan for Defense research, development, test, and evaluation appropriations includes a $736 million increase from the current 1972 plan, reaching a total of $8,498 million. The specific activities included in the 1973 budget plan are discussed below under each budget activity. The budget plans and estimated obligations under appropriations in this title for the Army, Navy, Air Force, Defense Agencies, and the emergency fund are summarized as follows (in thousands of dollars):

1. Military sciences.—This activity supports research of potential military application in the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences. The objective of this research is to provide the basic understanding necessary to efficiently develop new systems and improve military operations. For example, research in electronics will provide more reliable and higher performance components for sensors, weapons, and communications systems; research in oceanography will increase the effectiveness of antisubmarine warfare systems; research in the behavioral sciences will improve methods of personnel training and selection.

The principal support for in-house organizations such as the Aerospace Research Laboratory and some of the Federal contract research centers is also provided here. In addition to the amounts directly provided for in this activity, applied research is also supported in industry by certain allowable indirect costs which may be permitted under contracts funded by both the research, development, test, and evaluation and procurement appropriations.

2. Aircraft and related equipment.—This activity funds research, development, test, and evaluation related to airframes, engines, avionics, and other installed aircraft equipment, as well as applied research in supporting aeronautical technologies. It also funds the development of major aircraft systems.

In 1973, major increases are programmed for prototype development of lightweight fighter candidates for the Air Force, vertical/short takeoff and landing aircraft for the Navy, short takeoff and landing transports for possible C-130 replacement, and the Air Force SCAD strategic bomber penetration decoy. In addition, prototype development will begin on engines for future transport and fighter aircraft. Systems continuing full scale development in 1973 include the joint service heavy lift helicopter, the Army UTTAS logistic helicopter, the Navy F-14B fleet air defense fighter/interceptor, and the Air Force F-15 air superiority fighter, B-1 advanced strategic bomber, and A-X close air support aircraft. Programs nearing completion in 1973 include the Navy S-3A anti-submarine warfare carrier-based aircraft, the F-14A interceptor, and the Air Force F-5E international fighter.

Also funded in this activity are research and development centers such as the laboratories located at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, the Naval Air Test Center at Patuxent River, Md., and the Army Air Mobility Centers in Virginia, Ohio, California, and Missouri.

3. Missiles and related equipment.—This activity provides for research, development, test, and evaluation of missile systems of all types. Increases will be provided for improvement of our sea-based deterrent in order to assure the continued invulnerability of our strategic retaliatory capabilities. To maintain the sufficiency of our strategic forces, effort will continue on the Safeguard antiballistic missile system, the Project Hardsite prototype system for Minuteman defense, and on technology efforts underlying possible future antiballistic missile systems. Tactical missile systems continuing development include the Army SAM-D air defense system, the Navy Aegis fleet defense missile system, Harpoon antiship missile, Agile air-to-air dogfight missile, and the Air Force Hound Dog II nuclear missile. Army prototype terminal homing missile programs will continue to receive emphasis. Systems whose development is nearing completion include the Minuteman and Poseidon ballistic missile systems, the Navy Condor and Air Force Maverick air-to-surface missile systems, the Navy Phoenix air-to-air missile system and the Army Lance surface-to-surface missile.

In addition to funding contracts with industry in the missile research and development program, this activity is a major source of financial support for the operation of certain test and evaluation facilities such as the Western Test Range, the White Sands Missile Range, the Naval Weapons Center at China Lake, and the research and development programs at the Army's Redstone Arsenal.

4. Military astronautics and related equipment.—This activity provides for programs directed toward the improvement of space technology for military purposes and the development of space vehicles for specific military applications. Major programs include military communications satellite systems, and the first spaceborne ballistic missile early warning system. Continued support will be provided for flight experiment programs and for applied research and technology development programs. This includes the development of advanced navigation, guidance, sensor, reentry, and propulsion systems. This activity funds both in-house laboratories such as the Air Force Rocket Propulsion Laboratory and contractual efforts related to space technology.

5. Ships, small craft, and related equipment.—This activity provides for applied research, development, test, and evaluation of ship structures and equipment, including propulsion, communications, navigation, and surveillance systems directly affecting ship operations. It includes the design, prototype fabrication, and performance evaluation of new types of ships, sonars, countermeasure devices, marine gas turbines, and nuclear propulsion plants. Increases will be provided for surface effect ship prototypes and for an advanced attack submarine. There will also be increases for antisubmarine warfare sensors, nuclear propulsion plants, and antiship missile countermeasures systems. A significant portion of the effort at the Naval Ships Research and Development Center is funded under this activity.

6. Ordnance, combat vehicles, and related equipment.—This activity provides for the development, test, and evaluation of improved artillery, guns, rocket launchers, mortars, small arms, mines, grenades, torpedoes, nuclear and chemical munitions, and conventional air-launched weapons, as well as exploration and evaluation of new fuzes, propellants, explosives, detonators, dispensers, and armor.

Programs increasing in 1973 include the Army mechanized infantry combat vehicle and the armored reconnaissance scout vehicle. Programs to explore the feasibility of laser applications will continue in the three services. Development will continue on Army mine and countermine systems, Air Force improved aircraft gun systems and the Navy CAPTOR mine. The Army will pursue development of a new prototype main battle tank. Systems completing development are the MK-48 torpedo and the Dragon antitank weapon.

This activity provides principal support for research and development activities at several Army centers and the Naval Ordnance Laboratory at White Oak, Md.

7. Other equipment.—This activity provides for research, development, test, and evaluation of equipment not separately provided for under other activities. Examples of the types of programs funded here are ocean engineering systems and technology development, chemical and biological agent detection and protective devices, combat clothing, tactical data processing systems, communications equipment, improved logistics and materiel handling equipment, mapping and geodetic systems, and biomedical projects. Major continuing programs include the airborne warning and control system (AWACS), electronic countermeasures, tactical sensor systems for battlefield surveillance, and undersea surveillance systems. This activity funds the entire exploratory development effort of the Navy, and also provides much of the support at the Army Electronics Laboratories, the MITRE Corporation, and the Lincoln Laboratory.

8. Programwide management and support.—For the Army and the Navy, this activity provides for those costs of operation, management, and maintenance of research, development, and test facilities which are not distributed directly to other budget activities. This activity also provides for an expanded joint service effort in the initial operational test and evaluation of new systems. For the Air Force, it provides for certain costs of central administration such as the Air Force Systems Command headquarters and divisions, as well as several large research, development, test, and evaluation centers.

9. Emergency fund.—The emergency fund enables the Secretary of Defense to support the exploitation of new scientific developments and technological breakthroughs and to provide for other unforeseen contingencies in the research, development, test, and evaluation programs.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION, ARMY

For expenses necessary for basic and applied scientific research, development, test, and evaluation, including maintenance, rehabilitation, lease, and operation of facilities and equipment, as authorized by law; [$1,787,656,000, and in addition, $51,900,000 to be derived by transfer from "Research, Development, Test, and Evaluation, Army, 1971/1972"] $2,051,100,000, to remain available for obligation until June 30, [1973] 1974. (10 U.S.C. 2353, 4503; Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1972; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Active and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table:

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

[In thousands of dollars]

	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Active Forces.....	1,273,956	1,168,041	1,900,600
Reserve Forces.....	45,526	90,581	111,800
Interservice Activities.....	10,129	57,216	48,200
Total.....	1,329,611	1,315,838	2,060,600

Most of the appropriations required for the military construction accounts are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. The details of this legislation have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration.

1. Major construction.—This category provides for the acquisition of land and for construction of military projects as authorized in currently effective military construction acts and the new authorization referred to above. These authorizations include construction projects as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2 where the estimated cost of such construction generally exceeds $50 thousand per project. Under this category the major activities proposed for 1973 are as follows:

Strategic forces.—Provision has been made for the essential facilities required to continue the deployment of the Safeguard antiballistic missile system. In addition, provision has been made to upgrade existing facilities and provide for personnel support for other strategic warfare systems.

General purpose forces.—Projects in this category support general combat forces including their command organizations, the logistics organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units, including medical, which are deployed or deployable as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations. 1973 funding reflects continuing increased emphasis on service attractiveness, particularly improved troop housing and community support facilities.

Specialized activities.—Funds are provided for the continued support of the joint defense effort of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Funding for abatement of air and water pollution at Defense installations has been increased over previous high levels to assure that actions to correct violations of Federal, State, and local air and water quality standards have been taken or are underway by December 31, 1972.

Research and Development.—The 1973 program includes facilities required in support of programs to advance knowledge and technology in such areas as weapons systems, communications, electronics, and medicine. These programs emphasize reliability, effectiveness, security, and safety, as well as improved capability.

Reserve components.—The increased funding programed for facilities required for the training of the National Guard and the other Reserve Forces reflects the importance placed on these activities being identified as the primary source of augmentation of Active Forces in future emergencies.

Logistics.—Funding is provided at about the same level as in the past 2 years for the modernization and replacement of aircraft, ship and ground equipment maintenance, overhaul and repair facilities needed to satisfy deficiencies in current operations and meet new requirements resulting from technological advances.

Personnel support.—A major portion of the 1973 program will provide funds for improved housing, medical and community support for lower grade enlisted personnel and junior grade officers to encourage their retention in the service and the development of an all-volunteer force. Upgrading of existing facilities with the application of improved standards has been provided in addition to new construction.

2. Minor construction.—Provision is made for construction of permanent and temporary projects that are not otherwise authorized by law but which are determined to be urgently required and do not exceed $300 thousand per project for the Active Forces and $50 thousand per project for the Reserve component projects. Active Force projects may be accomplished with use of operation and maintenance funds where the estimated cost of such construction is $50 thousand or less per project.

3. Planning.—This provides for necessary planning of military construction projects, including design, standards, criteria, studies, appraisals, and other related activities.

4. Supporting activities.—Provision is made for activities such as the defense access road program and minor land acquisition.

FAMILY HOUSING, DEFENSE

The Department of Defense family housing management account (76 Stat. 237) finances the expenses of the military family housing program. Funds provided in annual military construction appropriation acts under the title "Family Housing, Defense" are transferred to this account for obligation and expenditure. This appropriation is dependent on the enactment of authorizing legislation, the details of which have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration. An appropriation of $1,073.7 million is requested for 1973, of which $342.7 million is for construction of new housing, construction of mobile home facilities, improvement of existing housing and related projects, and $731.0 million is for the operation and maintenance of family housing and related facilities, for leasing of family housing, for payments required on the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing, and to build surplus commodity housing in foreign countries and for authorized payments of servicemen's mortgage insurance premiums.

Federal Funds

FAMILY HOUSING, DEFENSE

For expenses of family housing for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, and Defense agencies, for construction, including acquisition, replacement, addition, expansion, extension and alteration and for operation, maintenance, and debt payment, including leasing, minor construction, principal and interest charges, and insurance premiums, as authorized by law, [$933,955,000] $1,073,-684,000, to be obligated and expended in the Family Housing Management Account established pursuant to section 501(a) of Public Law 87-554, in not to exceed the following amounts:

For the Army:

Construction, [$55,776,000] $137,076,000;

For the Navy and Marine Corps:

Construction, [$135,717,000] $122,866,000;

For the Air Force:

Construction, [$109,045,000] $82,558,000;

For Defense agencies:

Construction, [$205,000] $235,000;

¹ Reimbursements are derived from collection of rentals from occupants of certain military housing units and the sale of homes at excess military installations (69 Stat. 652 and 70 Stat. 1105).

1. Construction.—(a) Construction of new housing.—The construction of 12,181 new permanent units at an estimated cost of $315.1 million is proposed in furtherance of the continuing effort to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel. The 12,181 units are distributed by service as follows: Army—4,409; Navy and Marine Corps—4,600; Air Force—3,168; and Defense Intelligence Agency—4. In addition to the construction of new permanent family housing units, $5.4 million is provided for construction of mobile home facilities to accommodate those service members with privately owned mobile homes.

(c) Construction improvements.—Execution of the $46.6 million improvement program will be realized during 1973, of which $3.0 million provides for projects to be accomplished under the authority of 10 U.S.C. 2674.

(d) Planning.—Funds are included in the construction of new housing budget activity to design the 12,181 housing units in the 1973 program. Costs to be incurred for planning future year housing projects and for projects which will not go forward to completion are estimated at $900 thousand.

2. Operation, maintenance, and interest payment.—(a) Operation.—$286.3 million is required in 1973 for the operation of an estimated 372,421 family housing units (excluding leased units); and $41.7 million is required in 1973 to lease 16,864 units in both the United States and in foreign countries as part of the program to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel.

(b) Maintenance of real property.—The cost of maintenance and repair of the 1973 family housing inventory is estimated at $251.2 million. Minor alterations, not to exceed an average of $100 per unit, are funded in this subactivity.

(c) Interest payments.—A total of $62.3 million is required in 1973 to defray interest charges on the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing and for related expenses. In addition, appropriation of $96.5 million is required in 1973 for reduction of agency indebtedness that was assumed with the acquisition of the Capehart, Wherry, and surplus commodity housing.

(d) Mortgage insurance premiums.—Premium payments of $6.2 million are required on mortgage insurance provided by the Federal Housing Administration: (1) through the General insurance fund on mortgages assumed by Defense to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing; and (2) on mortgages assumed by active military personnel for housing purchased under the provisions of 12 U.S.C. 1715m.

This fund finances a program for reducing the losses of military personnel and civilian employees incident to disposition of their one- or two-family dwellings when military installations are closed or when reductions in the scope of operations are ordered. Eligible personnel may be reimbursed for certain losses resulting from the sale of their dwellings located at or near such installations, or the Department of Defense may acquire such property. Proceeds from sale or rental of such property are deposited in this fund. The following business-type statements reflect operations of the program which started in 1968.

Intragovernmental funds:

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

By authority of 10 U.S.C. 2208, the Department of Defense stock funds finance the acquisition of inventories of consumable material and supplies (items which are uneconomical to repair) for resale to the military services and other authorized users. These inventories are stocked and sold at defense activities worldwide. The stock funds also finance inventories of consumable material for use in case of mobilization.

Budget program.—Obligations decrease in 1972 due to reductions in force levels and activity rates. As a result, stock fund inventories will decrease in each year. Obligations increase in 1973 as inventory approaches balance with required stock levels. Yearend inventories are estimated as shown below (in millions of dollars):

Financing the budget program.—Funds for financing the budget program are usually derived from sales to customers. During 1971, sales of inventory capitalized without cost and reductions to inventory levels generated an excess working capital balance of $326 million which was transferred to other appropriations. In 1972 an additional excess of $423 million will be generated and also proposed for transfer. Expenditures in 1973 are projected to decrease by $614 million from 1971 resulting from reduced sales and required inventory levels. Yearly expenditures are estimated as portrayed below (in millions of dollars):

	Gross expenditures
	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Army stock fund.....	2,904	2,659	2,563
Navy stock fund.....	1,770	1,767	1,769

Defense stock fund.....	2,253	2,079	2,067
Total DOD stock funds.....	9,990	9,542	9,376

DOD stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future year business (10 U.S.C. 2210(b)). This is necessary because the procurement leadtime on material is greater than the time required to fill and collect for customer orders. Pursuant to this authority, contract authorization of $747 million was available at the end of 1971, decreasing to $135 million in 1973.

Operating results and financial condition.—Net losses of $362 million and $107 million are forecast for 1972 and 1973 respectively. These losses result largely from disposal and donation of excess and surplus inventory.

Investment (equity) of the U.S. Government at the end of 1973 is estimated at $9,084 million, including $19,424 million in inventory and other assets capitalized less $5,618 million in working capital transferred out and a cumulative operating deficit of $4,722 million.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance activities performing industrial or commercial type functions on a reimbursable basis (10 U.S.C. 2208). Work orders are received at the various activities from a variety of service accounts; the fund provides working capital for the completion of these orders. The customer then reimburses the activity through progress payments for the full production costs. Government investment as of June 30, 1973, is estimated at $571 million.

Budget program.—Estimated total costs of goods and services produced in 1973 are projected to decrease by

$591 million, reflecting a continuing downtrend in support requirements. Yearend totals are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

TOTAL PRODUCTION COSTS

	1971 actual	1972 estimate	1973 estimate
Army industrial fund	1,311,333	1,366,986	1,328,392
Navy industrial fund	4,380,709	4,405,382	4,201,254
Marine Corps industrial fund	24,370	21,806	20,585
Air Force industrial fund	2,343,622	2,349,252	1,993,036
Defense industrial fund	392,527	417,857	426,560
Total	8,452,561	8,561,283	7,969,827

The 30 U.S. Army activities financed through the Army industrial fund include 14 depot maintenance activities, 5 research activities, a Weapon Proving Ground, the U.S. Army Missile Command, 7 arsenals and the Eastern and Western areas of the Military Traffic Management and Terminal Service. One research activity will be deactivated and removed from the industrial fund system in 1972. The slight decrease in production costs is a result of the deactivation of the research activity and a continued decline in workload at the ocean terminals.

The Marine Corps industrial fund finances two maintenance depots, each engaged in repairing or overhauling Marine Corps equipment and providing technical engineering support. Force structure realignments have resulted in reduced maintenance requirements at these activities.

A total of 99 activities are financed through the Navy industrial fund, including seven aircraft rework facilities, 16 ordnance stations, 17 research laboratories, 10 shipyards, three strategic systems project offices, 37 printing plants, eight public work centers and the Military Sealift Command. Slight reductions in total operating costs are largely attributable to increased productivity and efficiency at the aircraft maintenance facilities and reduced workload at ordnance stations and other activities.

The 49 activities financed under the Air Force industrial fund include nine printing plants, 31 laundries, six depot maintenance activities, two research and development laboratories and the Military Airlift Command. The Alaska Communication System, previously funded under this program, was sold to a commercial corporation in 1971. The removal of three research activities from the industrial fund during 1972 will bring about a decline in total revenue.

The Defense industrial fund finances the Defense Clothing and Textile Supply Center and also leased communications procured by the Defense Commercial Communications Office. Cost increases in 1971 and 1972 are due to tariff increases and expansion of automatic switching networks.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 701. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 702. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, respectively, if they should deem it advantageous to the national defense, and if in their opinions the existing facilities of the Department of Defense are inadequate, are authorized to procure services in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 3109, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, and to pay in connection therewith travel expenses of individuals, including actual transportation and per diem in lieu of subsistence while traveling from their homes or places of business to official duty station and return as may be authorized by law: Provided, That such contracts may be renewed annually.

SEC. 703. During the current fiscal year, provisions of law prohibiting the payment of compensation to, or employment of, any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to personnel of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 704. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for insurance of official motor vehicles in foreign countries, when required by laws of such countries; payments in advance of expenses determined by the investigating officer to be necessary and in accord with local custom for conducting investigations in foreign countries incident to matters relating to the activities of the department concerned; reimbursement of General Services Administration for security guard services for protection of confidential files; reimbursement of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for expenses in connection with investigation of defense contractor personnel; and all necessary expenses, at the seat of government of the United States of America or elsewhere, in connection with communication and other services and supplies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 705. Any appropriation available to the Army, Navy, or the Air Force may, under such regulations as the Secretary concerned may prescribe, be used for expenses incident to the maintenance, pay, and allowances of prisoners of war, other persons in Army, Navy, or Air Force custody whose status is determined by the Secretary concerned to be similar to prisoners of war, and persons detained in such custody pursuant to Presidential proclamation.

SEC. 706. Appropriations available to the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year for maintenance or construction shall be available for acquisition of land or interest therein as authorized by section 2672 or 2675 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 707. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available, (a) except as authorized by the Act of September 30, 1950 (20 U.S.C. 236-244), for primary and secondary schooling for minor dependents of military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense residing on military or naval installations or stationed in foreign countries, as authorized for the Navy by section 7204 of title 10, United States Code, in amounts not exceeding $152,100,000 $171,900,000, when the Secretary of the Department concerned finds that schools, if any, available in the locality, are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents: Provided, That under such regulations as may be issued by the Secretary of Defense, such schooling in a school operated by the Department of Defense under this section may be provided without tuition for minor dependents of civilian and military personnel of the Department of Defense who died while entitled to compensation or active duty pay: Provided further, That where such personnel die subsequent to the date of this Act, such schooling must be continued or commenced within 1 year after the date of death; (b) for expenses in connection with administration of occupied areas; (c) for payment of rewards as authorized for the Navy by section 7209(a) of title 10, United States Code, for information leading to the discovery of missing naval property or the recovery thereof; (d) for payment of deficiency judgments and interests thereon arising out of condemnation proceedings; (e) for leasing of buildings and facilities including payment of rentals for special purpose space at the seat of government, and in the conduct of field exercises and maneuvers or, in administering the provisions of 43 U.S.C. 315q, rentals may be paid in advance; (f) payments under contracts for maintenance of [tools] equipment and facilities for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; (g) maintenance of Defense access roads certified as important to national defense in accordance with section 210 of title 23, United States Code; (h) for the purchase of milk for enlisted personnel of the Department of Defense heretofore made available pursuant to section 1446a, title 7, United States Code, and the cost of milk so purchased, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, shall be included in the value of the commuted ration; (i) transporting civilian clothing to the home of record of selective service inductees and recruits on entering the military services; (j) payments under leases for real or personal property for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; and (k) pay and allowances of not to exceed nine persons, including personnel detailed to International Military Headquarters and Organizations, at rates provided for under section 625(d)(1) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended; (l) until March 31, 1972, under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, for transportation from their homes to rest and recuperation centers in the Pacific area and return, plus per diem payments of not to exceed $30 per day for each dependent for periods not over two weeks, for dependents of military personnel assigned as province or district senior advisers in Vietnam on voluntarily extended tours of duty totaling not less than eighteen months, during periods when such military personnel are granted special incentive leaves at such rest and recuperation centers.

SEC. 708. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) donations of not to exceed $25 to each prisoner upon each release from confinement in military or contract prison and to each person discharged for fraudulent enlistment; (b) authorized issues of articles to prisoners, applicants for enlistment and persons in military custody; (c) subsistence of selective service registrants called for induction, applicants for enlistment, prisoners, civilian employees as authorized by law, and supernumeraries when necessitated by emergent military circumstances; (d) reimbursement for subsistence of enlisted personnel while sick in hospitals; (e) expenses of prisoners confined in non-military facilities; (f) military courts, boards, and commissions; (g) utility services for buildings erected at private cost, as authorized by law, and buildings on military reservations authorized by regulations to be used for welfare and recreational purposes; (h) exchange fees, and losses in the accounts of disbursing officers or agents in accordance with law; (i) expenses of Latin-American cooperation as authorized for the Navy by law (10 U.S.C. 7208); and (j) expenses of apprehension and delivery of deserters, prisoners, and members absent without leave, including payment of rewards of not to exceed $25 in any one case.

SEC. 709. Insofar as practicable, the Secretary of Defense shall assist American small business to participate equitably in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated under this Act by making available or causing to be made available to suppliers in the United States, and particularly to small independent enterprises, information, as far in advance as possible, with respect to purchases proposed to be financed with funds appropriated under this Act, and by making available or causing to be made available to purchasing and contracting agencies of the Department of Defense information as to commodities and services produced and furnished by small independent enterprises in the United States, and by otherwise helping to give small business an opportunity to participate in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated by this Act.

SEC. 710. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expenses of operation of messes (other than organized messes the operating expenses of which are financed principally from nonappropriated funds) at which meals are sold to officers or civilians, except under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, which shall (except under unusual or extraordinary circumstances) establish rates for such meals sufficient to provide reimbursements of operating expenses and food costs to the appropriations concerned: Provided, That officers and civilians in a travel status receiving a per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence shall be charged at the rate of not less than $2.50 per day: Provided further, That for the purposes of this section payments for meals at the rates established hereunder may be made in cash or by deduction from the pay of civilian employees: Provided further, That members of organized nonprofit youth groups sponsored at either the national or local level, when extended the privilege of visiting a military installation and permitted to eat in the general mess by the commanding officer of the installation, shall pay the commuted ration cost of such meal or meals.

SEC. 711. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 712. Appropriations of the Department of Defense available for operation and maintenance may be reimbursed during the current fiscal year for all expenses involved in the preparation for disposal and for the disposal of military supplies, equipment, and materiel, and for all expenses of production of lumber or timber products pursuant to section 2665 of title 10, United States Code, from amounts received as proceeds from the sale of any such property: Provided, That a report of receipts and disbursements under this limitation shall be made quarterly to Congress: Provided further, That no funds available to agencies of the Department of Defense shall be used for the operation, acquisition, or construction of new facilities or equipment for new facilities in the continental limits of the United States for metal scrap baling or shearing or for melting or sweating aluminum scrap unless the Secretary of Defense or an Assistant Secretary of Defense designated by him determines, with respect to each facility involved, that the operation of such facility is in the national interest.

SEC. 713. (a) During the current fiscal year, the President may exempt appropriations, funds, and contract authorizations, available for military functions under the Department of Defense, from the provisions of subsection (c) of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, whenever he deems such action to be necessary in the interest of national defense.

(b) Upon determination by the President that such action is necessary, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of an airborne alert as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of Revised Statutes 3732 (41 U.S.C. 11).

(c) Upon determination by the President that it is necessary to increase the number of military personnel on active duty subject to existing laws beyond the number for which funds are provided in this Act, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of such increased military personnel, as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of Revised Statutes 3732 (41 U.S.C. 11).

(d) The Secretary of Defense shall immediately advise Congress of the exercise of any authority granted in this section, and shall report monthly on the estimated obligations incurred pursuant to subsections (b) and (c).

SEC. 714. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores of the agencies of the Department of Defense for the cost of purchase (including commercial transportation in the United States to the place of sale but excluding all transportation outside the United States and to and in Alaska and Hawaii) and maintenance of operating equipment and supplies, and for the actual or estimated cost of utilities as may be furnished by the Government and of shrinkage, spoilage, and pilferage of merchandise under the control of such commissary stores, except as authorized under regulations promulgated by the Secretaries of the military departments concerned, with the approval of the Secretary of Defense, which regulations shall provide for reimbursement therefor to the appropriations concerned and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, shall provide for the adjustment of the sales prices in such commissary stores to the extent necessary to furnish sufficient gross revenue from sales of commissary stores to make such reimbursement: Provided, That under such regulations as may be issued pursuant to this section all utilities may be furnished without cost to the commissary stores outside the continental United States and in Alaska: Provided further, That no appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores within the continental United States unless the Secretary of Defense has certified that items normally procured from commissary stores are not otherwise available at a reasonable distance and a reasonable price in satisfactory quality and quantity to the military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 715. No part of the appropriations in this Act shall be available for any expense of operating aircraft under the jurisdiction of the armed forces for the purpose of proficiency flying, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 1340.4, except in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense. Such regulations [(1)] may not require such flying except that required to maintain proficiency in anticipation of a member's assignment to combat operations or to other essential flight operations [and (2) such flying may not be permitted in cases of members who have been assigned to a course of instruction of 90 days or more]. When any rated member is assigned to duties, the performance of which does not require the maintenance of basic flying skills, all such members, while so assigned, are entitled to flight pay prescribed under section 301 of title 37, United States Code, if otherwise entitled to flight pay at the time of such assignment.

SEC. 716. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expense of transportation, packing, crating, temporary storage, drayage, and unpacking of household goods and personal effects in any one shipment having a net weight in excess of thirteen thousand five hundred pounds.

SEC. 717. Vessels under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce, the Department of the Army, Department of the Air Force, or the Department of the Navy may be transferred or otherwise made available without reimbursement to any such agencies upon the request of the head of one agency and the approval of the agency having jurisdiction of the vessels concerned.

SEC. 718. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for training in any legal profession nor for the payment of tuition for training in such profession: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to the off-duty training of military personnel as prescribed by section 722 of this Act.

SEC. 719. Not more than 20 per centum of the appropriations in this Act which are limited for obligation during the current fiscal year shall be obligated during the last two months of the fiscal year: Provided, That this section shall not apply to obligations for support of active duty training of civilian components or summer-camp training of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

SEC. 720. During the current fiscal year the agencies of the Department of Defense may accept the use of real property from foreign countries for the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and may accept services furnished by foreign countries as reciprocal international courtesies or as services customarily made available without charge; and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas without specific appropriation therefor.

In addition to the foregoing, agencies of the Department of Defense may accept real property, services, and commodities from foreign countries for the use of the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas, without specific appropriations therefor: Provided, That within thirty days after the end of each quarter the Secretary of Defense shall render to Congress and to the Office of Management and Budget a full report of such property, supplies, and commodities received during such quarter.

SEC. 721. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for research and development may be used for the purposes of section 2353 of title 10, United States Code, and for purposes related to research and development for which expenditures are specifically authorized in other appropriations of the service concerned.

SEC. 722. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of more than 75 per centum of charges of educational institutions for tuition or expenses for off-duty training of military personnel, nor for the payment of any part of tuition or expenses for such training for commissioned personnel who do not agree to remain on active duty for two years after completion of such training.

SEC. 723. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be expended for the support of any formally enrolled student in basic courses of the senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, who has not executed a certificate of loyalty or loyalty oath in such form as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 724. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the procurement of any article of food, clothing, cotton, woven silk or woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, synthetic fabric or coated synthetic fabric, or wool (whether in the form of fiber or yarn or contained in fabrics, materials, or manufactured articles) not grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions, except to the extent that the Secretary of the Department concerned shall determine that a satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of any articles of food or clothing or any form of cotton, woven silk and woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, synthetic fabric or coated synthetic fabric, or wool grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions cannot be procured as and when needed at United States market prices and except procurements outside the United States in support of combat operations, procurements by vessels in foreign waters and emergency procurements or procurements of perishable foods by establishments located outside the United States for the personnel attached thereto: Provided, That nothing herein shall preclude the procurement of foods manufactured or processed in the United States or its possessions: Provided further, That no funds herein appropriated shall be used for the payment of a price differential on contracts hereafter made for the purpose of relieving economic dislocations: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used except that, so far as practicable, all contracts shall be awarded on a formally advertised competitive bid basis to the lowest responsible bidder.

SEC. 725. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or dry-cleaning facility in the United States, its territories or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 726. During the current fiscal year, appropriations of the Department of Defense shall be available for reimbursement to the United States Postal Service for payment of costs of commercial air transportation of military mail between the United States and foreign countries.

SEC. 727. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for the purchase of household furnishings, and automobiles from military and civilian personnel on duty outside the continental United States, for the purpose of resale at cost to incoming personnel, and for providing furnishings, without charge, in other than public quarters occupied by military or civilian personnel of the Department of Defense on duty outside the continental United States or in Alaska upon a determination, under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, that such action is advantageous to the Government.

SEC. 728. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for pay of civilian employees shall be available for uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901; 80 Stat. 508).

SEC. 729. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense shall, upon requisition of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, and without reimbursement, transfer from agencies of the Department of Defense to the Board ammunition from stock or which has been procured for the purpose in such amounts as he may determine.

Such appropriations of the Department of Defense available for obligations during the current fiscal year as may be designated by the Secretary of Defense shall be available for the travel expenses of military and naval personnel, including the reserve components, and members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps attending regional, national, or international rifle matches.

SEC. 730. Funds provided in this Act for congressional liaison activities of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense shall not exceed [$1,150,000] $1,300,000: Provided, That this amount shall be available for apportionment to the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense as determined by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 731. Of the funds made available by this Act for the services of the Military Airlift Command, $100,000,000 shall be available only for procurement of commercial transportation service from carriers participating in the civil reserve air fleet program; and the Secretary of Defense shall utilize the services of such carriers which qualify as small businesses to the fullest extent found practicable: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall specify in such procurement, performance characteristics for aircraft to be used based upon modern aircraft operated by the civil air fleet.

SEC. 732. Not less than $5,500,000 of the funds made available in this Act for travel expenses in connection with temporary duty and permanent change of station of civilian and military personnel of the Department of Defense shall be available only for the procurement of commercial passenger sea transportation services on American-flag vessels.

SEC. 733. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for operation may be used for civilian clothing, not to exceed $40 in cost for enlisted personnel: (1) discharged for misconduct, unfitness, unsuitability, or otherwise than honorably; (2) sentenced by a civil court to confinement in a civil prison or interned or discharged as an alien enemy; (3) discharged prior to completion of recruit training under honorable conditions for dependency, hardship, minority, disability, or for the convenience of the Government.

SEC. 734. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for paying the costs of advertising by any defense contractor, except advertising for which payment is made from profits, and such advertising shall not be considered a part of any defense contract cost. The prohibition contained in this section shall not apply with respect to advertising conducted by any such contractor, in compliance with regulations which shall be promulgated by the Secretary of Defense, solely for (1) the recruitment by the contractor of personnel required for the performance by the contractor of obligations under a defense contract, (2) the procurement of scarce items required by the contractor for the performance of a defense contract, or (3) the disposal of scrap or surplus materials acquired by the contractor in the performance of a defense contract, or (4) costs (not to exceed an aggregate total for all contracts of $1,250,000) of participation in the United States International Aeronautical Exposition.

SEC. 735. Funds appropriated in this Act for maintenance and repair of facilities and installations shall not be available for acquisition of new facilities, or alteration, expansion, extension, or addition of existing facilities, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2, dated January 18, 1961, in excess of $50,000: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may amend or change the said directive during the current fiscal year, consistent with the purpose of this section.

SEC. 736. During the current fiscal year upon determination by the Secretary of Defense that such action is necessary in the national interest, he may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed [$750,000,000] $1,000,000,000 of the appropriations or funds available to the Department of Defense for military functions (except military construction) between such appropriations or funds, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority.

SEC. 737. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any program, project, or activity in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.

SEC. 738. (a) Not to exceed $2,500,000,000 of the appropriations available to the Department of Defense during the current fiscal year shall be available for their stated purposes to support: (1) Vietnamese and other free world forces in support of Vietnamese forces; (2) local forces in Laos [and Thailand]; and for related costs on such terms and conditions as the Secretary of Defense may determine: Provided, That none of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used for the purpose of paying any overseas allowance, per diem allowance, or any other addition to the regular base pay of any person serving with the free world forces in South Vietnam if the amount of such payment would be greater than the amount of special pay authorized to be paid, for an equivalent period of service, to members of the Armed Forces of the United States under section 310 of title 37, United States Code, serving in Vietnam or in any other hostile fire area, except for continuation of payments of such additions to regular base pay provided in agreements executed prior to July 1, 1970: Provided further, That nothing in clause (1) of the first sentence of this subsection shall be construed as authorizing the use of any such funds to support Vietnamese or other free world forces in actions designed to provide military support and assistance to the Government of Cambodia or Laos: Provided further, That nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit support of actions required to insure the safe and orderly withdrawal or disengagement of U.S. Forces from Southeast Asia, or to aid in the release of Americans held as prisoners of war.

(b) Within thirty days after the end of each quarter, the Secretary of Defense shall render to Congress a report with respect to the estimated value by purpose, by country, of support furnished from such appropriations.

SEC. 739. During the current fiscal year, cash balances in working capital funds of the Department of Defense established pursuant to section 2208 of title 10, United States Code, may be maintained in only such amounts as are necessary at any time for cash disbursements to be made from such funds: Provided, That transfers may be made between such funds in such amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget.

SEC. 740. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to pay salaries of any Federal employee who is convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, or any group activity resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.

SEC. 741. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan or a grant to any applicant who has been convicted by any court of general jurisdiction of any crime which involves the use of or the assistance to others in the use of force, trespass, or the seizure of property under control of an institution of higher education to prevent officials or students at such an institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies.

SEC. 742. In line with the expressed intention of the President of the United States, none of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to finance the introduction of American ground combat troops into Laos or Thailand.

SEC. 743. None of the funds appropriated in Titles I through VII of this Act shall be available for the purposes authorized by section 610, Public Law 91-511, approved October 26, 1970.

SEC. 744. None of the funds in this Act shall be available for the induction or enlistment of any individual into the military services under a mandatory quota based on mental categories.

SEC. 801. Funds appropriated in this title shall be subject to the authorizations and limitations of the Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1972 in the same manner as if such funds had been included in that Act. (Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1972.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

SEC. 101. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction in prior years are hereby made available for construction authorized for each such department by the authorizations enacted into law during the [first] second session of the Ninety-second Congress.

SEC. 102. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for payments under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract for work, where cost estimates exceed $25,000, to be performed within the United States, except Alaska, without the specific approval in writing of the Secretary of Defense setting forth the reasons therefor.

SEC. 103. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for additional costs involved in expediting construction unless the Secretary of Defense certifies such costs to be necessary to protect the national interest and establishes a reasonable completion date for each project, taking into consideration the urgency of the requirement, the type and location of the project, the climatic and seasonal conditions affecting the construction, and the application of economical construction practices.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or drycleaning facility in the United States, its territories, or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify, in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 105. Funds herein appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles.

SEC. 106. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction may be used for advances to the Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, for the construction of access roads as authorized by section 210 of title 23, United States Code, when projects authorized therein are certified as important to the national defense by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 107. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to begin construction of new bases inside the continental United States for which specific appropriations have not been made.

SEC. 108. No part of the funds provided in this Act shall be used for purchase of land or land easements in excess of 100 per centum of the value as determined by the Corps of Engineers or the Naval Facilities Engineering Command, except: (a) where there is a determination of value by a Federal court, or (b) purchases negotiated by the Attorney General or his designee, or (c) where the estimated value is less than $25,000, or (d) as otherwise determined by the Secretary of Defense to be in the public interest.

SEC. 109. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any project in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.

SEC. 110. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to (1) acquire land, (2) provide for site preparation, or (3) install utilities for any family housing, except housing for which funds have been made available in annual military construction appropriation Acts. (Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1972.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS—CIVIL DEFENSE

Appropriations contained in this Act for carrying out civil defense activities shall not be available in excess of the limitations on appropriations contained in section 408 of the Federal Civil Defense Act, as amended (50 U.S.C. App. 2260).

No part of any appropriation in this Act shall be available for the construction of warehouses or for the lease of warehouse space in any building which is to be constructed specifically for civil defense activities. (Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, 1972.)

This appropriation provides funds for the operation and maintenance of the national cemetery system and for the procurement and supply of headstones and markers for graves of eligible persons buried in national and private cemeteries.

1. Cemetery operation and maintenance.—The national cemetery system consists of 116 activities located in 33 States, Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia. Included are 84 national cemeteries and 32 miscellaneous burial plots and monument sites. A total of 37,270 interments were made in 1971; 37,277 are estimated for 1972 and 38,615 projected for 1973. There will be 2,634 developed acres to be maintained in 1973.

2. Cemetery construction.—Provision is made for 17 projects, including one gravesite development project necessary to preclude closing this cemetery to interments.

An amount is also included for engineering investigations and preparation of plans for future requirements.

3. Headstone procurement.—The basis of the 1973 program is a 3.2% increase in normal applications.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS—CIVIL

The civil works program of the Corps of Engineers consists of a number of related activities for the control and development for beneficial use of water resources in the United States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

The requested appropriation is $1,803 million, which is $213 million more than the 1972 appropriation, and $493 million more than the appropriation for 1971.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

The following appropriations shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for authorized civil functions of the Department of the Army pertaining to rivers and harbors, flood control, beach erosion, and related purposes:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For expenses necessary for the collection and study of basic information pertaining to river and harbor, flood control, shore protection, and related projects, and when authorized by law, surveys and studies of projects prior to authorization for construction, [$50,714,000] $54,149,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That [$650,000] $1,100,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Department of the Army. (33 U.S.C. 426-426c, 540, 541, 701; Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1972.)

1. Surveys.—Navigation and flood control studies are made to determine the need and economic justification for proposed water and related land resource developments. Beach erosion control studies are undertaken to determine the need for shore protection and remedial measures at specific localities. Funds are provided in 1973 to continue 108 navigation, 191 flood control, and 15 beach erosion surveys. A total of 14 new and reoriented studies will be undertaken. Six of these studies (including one comprehensive study) are directed toward the solution of urban area water problems.

Comprehensive river basin studies provide for broad consideration of water and related land resource needs of river basins. They are coordinated with the related river basin planning efforts of the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture and other concerned agencies.

Work will be continued in 1973 on the following comprehensive basin studies:

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. Long Island Sound Region | 4. Platte River Basin, Nebr. |
| 2. Lower Mississippi River Framework | 5. Southeastern New England Region |
| 3. Pacific Northwest River Basin | |

In addition, funds are provided for preparation of authorization reports on the following:

- | | |
|----------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Big Muddy River Basin | 6. Red River below Denison Dam Region |
| 2. Connecticut River Basin | 7. Susquehanna River Basin |
| 3. Genesee River Basin | 8. Wabash River Basin |
| 4. Kanawha River Basin | 9. White River Basin |
| 5. Puget Sound Region | 10. Willamette River Basin |

Special studies are made to resolve unique or especially complex water resources problems. Funds are requested to continue six special studies.

Funds also are provided, in accordance with section 216 of Public Law 91-611, to review the operation of completed projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers when found advisable due to significantly changed physical or economic conditions. Physical and operational plans for completed projects are reviewed to determine whether structural or operational modifications should be made in the overall public interest and recommendations are made to Congress.

Surveys are made in coordination with Federal, State, and local agencies and interests. They give appropriate consideration to present and future requirements for all beneficial uses of water and related land resources, including navigation, flood control, water supply, irrigation, water quality control, power, recreation, and fish and wildlife conservation.

2. Collection and study of basic data.—Funds are transferred to the Geological Survey for installation, operation, and maintenance of stream gaging stations; to the Weather Bureau for hydrometeorological studies; and to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for preauthorization studies of the effects of proposed projects upon fish and wildlife. The Corps of Engineers participates on a number of engineering and control boards that study and control international streams mutually affecting the United States and Canada. Information about the flood hazard, advice, and assistance are furnished to the States and local governmental agencies, upon their request, and to other Federal agencies for guidance in the management of flood plain areas to assure the best and safest use of such areas.

3. Research and development.—Coastal engineering research and development studies deal with physical phenomena, techniques, basic principles, and remedial or control measures related to shore protection and improvement. The results of these studies are disseminated to interested Federal, State, and local agencies and individuals.

Civil works investigations are conducted to improve procedures for analysis of engineering data; to conduct research and training activities; to refine design methods; to develop better materials and practices for the construction, operation, and maintenance of water resource facilities; to investigate rapid excavation techniques by use of explosives in the construction of civil works projects; and to improve procedures used in formulating plans for water resources development. A hydrologic engineering center embraces the functions of hydrological research, training, methods systemization, and special project assistance. A scientific and technical information center prepares and distributes literature to scientists and engineers to improve their knowledge of new developments in their fields.

The requested appropriation of $1,194 million is an increase of $164 million over the appropriation for 1972, and an increase of $343 million compared with the appropriation for 1971. About 70% of the requested program will be applied to 69 major projects in amounts of $5 million or more each.

1. Advance engineering and design.—Design studies establish project features and cost estimates required for preparation of contract plans. The funds requested will bring designs and plans for a number of high-priority projects to the stage where they will be ready for construction, and will permit continuation or initiation of planning on other needed projects.

2. Navigation projects.—This activity includes construction of locks, dams, and canals, and improvement of channels and harbors by dredging and by construction of breakwaters, jetties, and dikes. Provision also is made for the construction of small navigation projects not requiring specific congressional authority.

With the funds requested, work will be continued in 1973 on 13 lock, dam, and canal projects, of which one will be completed; and on 37 channel and harbor projects, of which 10 will be completed. Construction will be initiated on one channel and harbor project, Port Hueneme Harbor, Calif.

3. Beach erosion control projects.—The Federal Government assists in the construction of works for the restoration and protection against erosion by waves and currents of the shores of the United States and its possessions. Existing law provides for Federal payment of 50% of the cost of beach erosion control works for the protection of non-Federal publicly owned or publicly used shores, and up to 70% of the cost of protection of State and other publicly owned shore parks and conservation areas that meet certain criteria. Provision is made for the construction of a number of small beach erosion projects not requiring specific congressional authorization.

Funds are requested for six beach erosion control projects, of which three are for continuing construction and three are for reimbursement to local interests. One project, Brevard County, Fla., will be initiated with 1973 funds.

4. Flood control projects.—This activity includes local protection projects and reservoirs for flood control and other purposes, such as water supply but without power installations. Local protection projects consist of channel improvements, levees, and floodwalls. Provision is made for snagging and clearing work on navigable streams and tributaries when such work is necessary; for emergency bank protection; and for construction of small flood control projects not requiring specific congressional authority.

With the funds requested, work will be continued on 72 local protection projects, of which nine will be completed with 1973 funds; and on 82 reservoir projects, of which ten will be completed.

Five new local protection projects and five new reservoir projects will be initiated as follows:

LOCAL PROTECTION PROJECTS

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Rockford, Ill. | 4. Scappoose Drainage District, Oreg. |
| 2. Mason J. Niblack Pump Facilities, Ind. | 5. Wahkiakum County Consolidated Diking District #1, Wash. |

| 1. Chena River Lakes, Alaska | 4. Skiatook Lake, Okla. |
| 2. Bear Creek Lake, Colo. | 5. Blue Marsh Lake, Pa. |
| 3. Hillsdale Lake, Kans. | |

5. Multiple-purpose projects, including power.—Work will be continued on 28 multiple-purpose projects with power installations, two of which will be completed with 1973 funds. One, Chief Joseph Dam (additional units), Wash., will be initiated.

6. Recreation facilities, completed projects.—Additional public use facilities will be provided at completed projects to accommodate a rapidly increasing number of visitors.

7. Land acquisition fund.—This fund, established in 1971, will permit the acquisition of lands required for authorized Federal projects in those cases where delay creates an extreme hardship on owners or causes an unusual escalation of project land costs. An increase is being requested this year.

8. Small authorized projects.—Activities in 1973 will be financed from funds appropriated in prior years.

9. Coordination Act studies (Fish and Wildlife Service).—This program provides for detailed studies and reports by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife to determine the effects on fish and wildlife resources of water-control projects of the Corps of Engineers.

10. Rehabilitation.—Rehabilitation work will be undertaken on existing projects that have deteriorated to the extent that their usefulness has been impaired. Work will be carried out on one navigation and one multiple-purpose power project.

11. Aquatic plant control.—This program is for the control and progressive eradication of water hyacinths, alligatorweed, Eurasian watermilfoil, and other obnoxious aquatic plant growths from navigable waters, tributaries, connecting channels, and other allied waters of the United States, in the interest of navigation, flood control, drainage, agriculture, fish and wildlife conservation, public health, and related purposes. The authority includes research to develop the most effective and economic control measures.

1. Executive direction and management.—The Office, Chief of Engineers, and 10 division offices supervise work decentralized in 36 district offices. One division office and the district offices are financed from other appropriations.

2. River and Harbor Board.—The Board reviews reports on proposed projects and makes advisory recommendations to the Chief of Engineers.

3. Coastal Engineering Research Center.—The Center plans and conducts research in the field of coastal engineering, develops standards, and reviews technical reports as directed by the Chief of Engineers.

4. Commercial statistics.—Data on waterborne commerce are collected, compiled, and published.

5. Special investigations.—Investigations are made and reports prepared pursuant to congressional and other special requests for information on the civil works program. Environmental impact statements of other agencies are reviewed and commented on.

The Corps of Engineers (Civil) is responsible for the flood control program for the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, lower Arkansas, Yazoo, Tensas, and Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou La Fourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvement by bank stabilization from Head of Passes, La., to Cairo, Ill., and by dredging a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for five flood detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

- General investigations.*—Twelve studies will be continued, of which one will be completed with 1973 funds. Basic data subsequently used in planning and designing projects are collected.
- Advance engineering and design.*—Funds are requested to continue planning on four features.
- Construction.*—The total cost of flood control and related improvements in the lower Mississippi River and its alluvial valley is estimated at $3,036 million, of which $1,736 million has been appropriated through 1972. The funds requested will be applied to continuation of 12 features.
- Maintenance.*—Provision is made for operation and maintenance of major features of the project.
