The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a wholly Government-owned enterprise, is responsible for the development, operation, and maintenance of the Saint Lawrence Seaway in the United States. The programs of the Corporation, one of the operating administrations in the Department of Transportation, are financed from revenues received from tolls charged for the use of its facilities. The Corporation has joint responsibility with the Saint Lawrence Seaway Authority of Canada for control of operations in the international waterway. The principal operational structures of the Corporation, located near the town of Massena in extreme upstate New York, include the Eisenhower and Snell Locks, operational buildings, marine equipment, maintenance shops, and appurtenant structures.

The programs of the Corporation are designed to develop the full earning capacity of the Saint Lawrence Seaway by encouraging greater efficiency of operations and increased cargo tonnages. The Corporation's programs for 1974 will be continuations of those approved for 1973.

1. Administrative expenses (limitation).—This program provides for executive management and administration of the Corporation, and includes finance, legal, civil rights, procurement, personnel, and other related support services.

2. Operations.—This program provides for operation of all facilities and for planning and development activities. Operations are conducted on a 24-hour day, 7-day week basis throughout the navigation season with maintenance functions being performed throughout the year. Some major maintenance items are necessarily deferred to the off-navigation season when both operations and maintenance forces are utilized for their accomplishment. Although critical lock rehabilitation has been completed, routine structural maintenance of the locks continues on an annual basis.

Capital outlay.—This program includes necessary capital improvements and modifications to the locks, channels, navigational aids, buildings, equipment, and replacements. This program also includes ice control structures and related equipment designed to lengthen the navigation season.

The overriding goal of the Corporation in these programs is to provide better service to the users of the Seaway and at the same time achieve fuller utilization of the capacity of the system with no compromise to safety. An extended navigational season, coupled with modernization of facilities and adoption of technological advancements in vessel traffic handling, are priority programs essential to the realization of this goal. The operational planning and development programs will continue to generate greater awareness and use of the Seaway system by potential users.

The Corporation financed its original construction of the Seaway facilities from borrowings from the U.S. Treasury. The Corporation is authorized to borrow $140 million by its enabling act, as amended, and to date has used $133.8 million, with the unused balance being retained to meet any emergency requirements which may arise in the future. The Corporation is self-sustaining from revenues received from users of the Seaway, and no capital impairment has occurred through the end of the past year nor is anticipated in the budget year.

For 1974, the Corporation's total revenue is estimated at $7.4 million, to be applied as follows:

	Millions
1. To pay administrative and operational expenses	$4.1
2. To pay capital outlay costs	1.7
3. To redeem revenue bonds issued to the U.S. Treasury	1.6

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition, after considering donated assets in 1972.

The Department of the Treasury Working Capital Fund was authorized by section 401, Public Law 91-614 (Dec. 31, 1970) to finance administrative services that could be performed centrally in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department.

Implemented July 1, 1971, the fund finances telephone, telegraph, and printing and reproduction services, by advances or reimbursements from appropriations and funds of the Department, other Federal agencies, and other authorized sources for supplies and services at rates which will recover the expense of operations, including accrual of annual leave and depreciation of equipment.

Capital of the fund consists of $255,000 in donated assets, less $29,000 annual leave accrued, and retained earnings of $5,000 as of June 30, 1972.

1. Central disbursing operations.—Payments are made, through 11 regional offices, for civilian Federal agencies, except the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. marshals, and certain Government corporations. Savings bonds are also issued for Federal employees under the payroll savings plan.

The total work volume and productivity relating to this activity carried out by the Division of Disbursement follow (in thousands of checks and bonds issued):

2. Federal tax deposit operations.—Business organizations make deposits through authorized commercial banks or directly with Federal Reserve banks to pay their withheld income, social security, railroad retirement, excise, corporation taxes, and income taxes into the Treasury. Income taxes are also collected for those States electing to use this service.

3. Federal reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts. This activity includes the maintenance of the central accounts of appropriations, receipts, and expenditures and the preparation and publication of financial reports on the fiscal operations of the Government as a whole. It also includes accounting for purchases, sales and redemption of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, and investment in interest-bearing securities for certain funds such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Unemployment trust fund, the Veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds.

4. Other central fiscal operations.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Other functions include Government-wide guidance and regulations in certain special areas; systems work within the Fiscal Service and the Bureau of Accounts; examination of the financial condition of companies issuing surety bonds in the favor of the United States; payment of international and other claims; performing internal audit in the Bureau, and other audits of a departmental character.

The Bureau was established July 1, 1972, by Treasury Department Order 221 which transferred the functions from the Internal Revenue Service compliance activity to the new Bureau. This appropriation provides for the administration of tax and other laws pertaining to distilled spirits and other nonbeverage products, tobacco, firearms, and explosives, as well as the enforcement of criminal provisions of such legislation.

1. Regulatory enforcement.—This activity is charged with accurate determination and full collection of Federal revenue due from the liquor and tobacco industries. It is also responsible for the effective administration of the consumer-related controls of the Federal Alcohol Administration Act and those ecological features concerning liquor plants and permittee premises that are controlled by the Environmental Protection Agency but have been delegated to the Bureau.

2. Criminal enforcement.—This activity has two main objectives: (1) To prevent the manufacture, distribution, or sales of distilled spirits illegally and without payment of tax; and (2) to monitor the legal firearms industry and to prevent violations or apprehend violators of the Federal firearms control statutes while offering maximum assistance to State and local enforcement officers, thus helping to reduce crime in the streets and prevent other acts of violence with illegally acquired firearms or explosives.

3. Executive direction.—This activity provides overall management and direction of the Bureau's programs.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of U.S. currency and Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. In addition, the Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—Estimates for the current and budget years indicate a delivery requirement of 3.2 billion notes in each fiscal year, as compared with the delivery of 3.1 billion notes in 1972. To meet the continued increases in currency delivery requirements, the Bureau is planning for the acquisition of additional high-speed intaglio printing presses in 1974. Plans are underway also for the acquisition in that year of production models of the currency overprinting and processing equipment. These machines are designed to mechanize certain of the finishing operations associated with the production of currency.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postal and internal revenue stamps. The budget estimates for 1973 and 1974 reflect an increase of 6.5% in 1973 and 7.7% in 1974 over the quantity delivered in 1972. The rise in the requirements for the current and budget years is due principally to the upward demand for U.S. postage stamps in those years.

(c) Food coupons.—Estimates from Department of Agriculture for 1973 and 1974 indicated increased requirements of 2.6 and 2.7 billion coupons, respectively, as compared with 1.9 billion delivered in 1972. To relieve existing equipment and space constraints as well as reduce abnormal overtime work, the Bureau executed a contract with a private banknote company in 1972 for production of the annual requirements for $2- and $3-value booklets. To further ease staff and space requirements in the year 1974, the remaining one-half of the annual requirements for food coupons, which heretofore had been produced in the Bureau, will be contracted out to the private sector by the Department of Agriculture. The deliveries reflected in the budget-year schedules represent liquidation of inventories of food coupons on hand as of June 30, 1973.

(d) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of the Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government. No material change is noted in the anticipated requirements of the agencies for the current and budget years as compared with the number of pieces delivered in 1972.

(e) Commissions, certificates, etc.—The substantial reduction for 1974 results from most of the work being contracted out to the private sector by requisitioning agencies. The greatest volume of commissions and certificates was produced for the Department of Defense. From the standpoint of operating cost, this class of work represented only a small portion of the overall engraving and printing program.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—These charges are made to other agencies for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Bureau operations resulted in a loss of $268 thousand in 1972. This loss will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years, in accordance with the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181. Budget expenditures were $1,153 thousand in excess of receipts in 1972. Due to expenditures for the purchase of fixed assets, budget outlays are expected to be in excess of receipts in the amount of $1,410 thousand in 1973 and $227 thousand in 1974.

The Bureau of the Mint manufactures coins, receives deposits of gold and silver bullion, safeguards the Government's holdings of monetary metals, and refines gold and silver bullion (see miscellaneous permanent appropriations).

1. Manufacture of coins (domestic).—Production of coins is the major Mint activity. Funds requested for 1974 will permit production of approximately 8.9 billion coins.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The Internal Revenue Service is responsible for administration and enforcement of the internal revenue laws. It seeks to preserve and enhance the productivity of the Nation's tax system by fostering voluntary compliance with internal revenue laws and reducing non-compliance.

To encourage lawful compliance with these laws the Service maintains an automatic data processing master file system, informs taxpayers of the requirements of law, assists them in fulfilling these requirements, audits tax returns, collects unpaid taxes, and investigates and prosecutes willful tax evaders. It also carries out other law enforcement programs in support of national goals.

The number of taxpayers and the volume of revenue increases as the population, individual prosperity, and national economy increase. This growth is reflected in the following selected figures:

Proposed funding for 1974 will maintain existing staff in these programs and help provide for the collection of State income taxes.

1. Executive direction.—This activity sets policies and goals; provides the research and planning necessary for orderly and effective accomplishment of the Revenue Service's mission; provides leadership and direction in the execution of plans; and provides for the administrative support of all operations.

2. Internal audit and security.—This activity establishes and verifies maintenance of quality controls in the Revenue Service. It provides a continuing and independent review of all Revenue Service operations, thereby assuring the Commissioner and operational managers that appropriated funds are spent only for authorized purposes, that tax revenues are properly safeguarded, and that public confidence in the integrity of Revenue Service employees is maintained.

This appropriation provides for detecting and correcting noncompliance with the tax laws, and for carrying out the Internal Revenue Service's special law enforcement responsibilities.

Proposed increases for 1974 will expand audits and tax fraud investigations and cover certain costs for revenue sharing and State income tax collections.

1. Audit of tax returns.—This activity provides for a selective examination of tax returns to see if taxpayers have properly complied with the internal revenue laws. It corrects errors and explains corrections to the taxpayers. It also makes determinations as to whether certain organizations or funds are exempt from taxation.

2. Tax fraud and special investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of the criminal statutes relating to violations of tax laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud; recommends prosecution as warranted; and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases. It is responsible for directing Service participation in the drive against organized crime, and against narcotics traffickers.

4. Taxpayer conferences and appeals.—This activity provides for administrative consideration and settlement of taxpayer appeals of audit findings.

5. Technical rulings and services.—This activity develops tax return forms, instructions, and guides; issues rulings and opinions as to application of the tax laws, and meets with taxpayer groups to review and resolve special tax problems.

6. Legal services.—This activity comprises the legal counsel and legal assistance needed by the Service to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 solely to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lien holder's equity, but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

1. Payment and reconciliation of checks.—The major function of this activity is the maintenance of checking accounts of Government officers who are authorized to issue checks on the Treasurer of the United States, including the payment of the checks and the reconciliation of checks paid to check issue data received from the disbursing officers. The data processing equipment used in the Government check operations is also used to process postal money orders on a reimbursable basis; however, during 1974 the money order processing will be assumed by the U.S. Postal Service.

In addition, the equipment is used to process Federal tax deposit forms representing payments of corporation, employment, and excise taxes deposited to the Treasurer's account. The Federal Reserve banks send the forms to the Treasurer for balancing to the amounts credited to the Treasurer's account and conversion of the deposit data onto magnetic tape. The tape records are then sent to the Internal Revenue Service for further processing.

Other functions performed by this activity include the balancing of individual debit and credit transactions in the Treasurer's account to cash letters submitted by the Federal Reserve banks and other depositories, both domestic and overseas, and the reconciliation of deposits to the Treasurer's account to deposit reports received from the depositing officers.

The Check forgery insurance fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561). It was increased to $100 thousand by appropriation of an additional $50 thousand in 1964 and further increased to $200 thousand by appropriation of $100 thousand in 1970. An appropriation of $1,800 thousand for 1973 increased the fund to a total of $2 million. This fund is for use by the Treasurer in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the Treasurer which have been paid on forged endorsements in which it appears that recovery from those liable may be delayed or be unsuccessful.

A change in the accounting and reporting concepts was instituted late in 1972 which provided for the treatment of forged checks as accountable items of "Treasury disbursing officers." This is considered an appropriate change to reflect Treasury's financial responsibility role of making prompt payment to individuals who have suffered loss through the forgery of their Government checks. All payments will become receivables in an unfunded checking account. If it is later determined that an item becomes uncollectible it will be charged directly to the Check forgery insurance fund. Any moneys collected on items previously determined uncollectible will be deposited to the fund.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the Comptroller's Office is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. In accordance with 12 U.S.C. 481 assessments paid by national banks are not construed to be Government funds. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the Comptroller's Office in any of its operations.

The Administrator of National Banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed, onsite examinations, the latter conducted by a staff of approximately 1,700 national bank examiners. At the present time there are approximately 4,600 national banks with over 13,000 operating branches and total assets of $376 billion. As a result of the reports submitted and the examinations conducted, the Office determines the financial condition of individual national banks and the system as a whole, the soundness of operations and compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank, and applications from banks to establish branches. The Comptroller of the Currency promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks, bank directors, etc., and publishes them as manuals so that they are readily available to the interested parties.

The Atomic Energy Commission conducts a variety of production, research and development, and supporting activities directed toward its responsibilities for national defense and peaceful applications of atomic energy. Most of the activities are performed in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts.

Total direct program costs in 1974 are estimated at $2,540.0 million or $164.2 million more than estimated 1973 costs of $2,375.8 million and $283.1 million more than actual costs of $2,256.9 million for 1972. This increase in cost is more than offset by a $432.5 million increase in estimated receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources, between 1972 and 1974.

The schedule of costs by activity does not include non-budgetary costs such as depreciation charges, accrued annual leave earned but not taken by AEC employees, and the cost of source and special nuclear materials consumed; in total, these are as follows: 1972, $612.2 million; 1973 estimate, $805.4 million; 1974 estimate, $984.1 million.

1. Nuclear materials.—The major portion of this program relates to the production of special nuclear materials primarily for use in nuclear weapons and as fuel for nuclear reactors. The program also provides for the development of information on the availability of source materials; for operational safety activities including the uranium mill tailings remedial action program; and for radioactive waste burial ground operation and development of improved techniques for long-term storage of radioactive waste.

Production of nuclear materials is performed at major production plants located at Richland, Wash.; Savannah River, S.C.; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of uranium enriched in the isotope U²³⁵ will continue to increase in 1974. AEC charges industry for its services in enriching uranium, and the related revenues are included in the receipts from non-Federal sources in the program and financing schedule. Production of plutonium and other reactor products to meet weapons requirements also increases in 1974.

In 1974, work will also continue on process improvements to assure efficiency and safety of operations and to develop more economical methods of production. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

3. Naval reactor development.—The naval reactor development program is aimed at designing and developing improved naval nuclear propulsion plants and reactor cores in a wide range of power ratings to meet the military requirements of the Department of Defense. The pressurized water nuclear propulsion plants and cores under development are suitable for installation in naval vessels ranging in size from small submarines to large combatant surface ships. Development continues on improved reactor concepts, components and materials for application to submarines and surface ships, with particular emphasis on obtaining improved longer life cores and on increasing reliability and maintainability of reactor plant components. During 1974, effort will continue on development of an advanced core with longer life for application to nuclear powered guided-missile frigates and high-speed submarines, and on the development of advanced reactors for submarines. An increased level of effort will be directed toward the development of a propulsion plant for the Trident submarine program. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

In a June 4, 1971, message to Congress, the President outlined a broad range of actions to assure an adequate supply of clean energy for the years ahead. To facilitate research and development for clean energy the President included a commitment to complete the successful demonstration of a liquid metal fast breeder reactor (LMFBR) by 1980. The President's message stated: "Our best hope today for meeting the Nation's growing demand for economical clean energy lies with the fast breeder reactor. Because of its highly efficient use of nuclear fuel, the breeder reactor could extend the life of our natural uranium fuel supply from decades to centuries, with far less impact on the environment than the powerplants which are operating today."

The LMFBR development program will be increasingly oriented to the engineering requirements necessary to achieve reliable, safe, and economic breeder powerplants including an LMFBR demonstration plant of about 350-400 thousand kilowatts (electric). A memorandum of understanding setting forth the basic arrangements for a demonstration plant project has been executed by AEC with the Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago, the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) and two new, not-for-profit corporations established for coordinated participation in the project by the Nation's public and private utilities. Negotiation of definitive contracts is underway. The plant is to be located on a TVA site on the Clinch River near Oak Ridge, Tenn. Selection has been made of the lead reactor manufacturer and the architect-engineer for participation in the program.

The estimates provide for research and development in reactor technology and in nuclear safety with added emphasis directed toward light water reactor safety and breeder reactor safety. The Division of Naval Reactors concluded its use of the engineering test reactor (ETR) at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho at the end of calendar year 1972; however, modifications are underway to continue use of the ETR for the breeder reactor safety program by installing a fuel element failure propagation test loop.

5. Applied energy technology.—This program includes the development of new and expanded forms of energy and the energy application of radioisotopes. By major category the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
General energy development.....		1,500	2,000
Isotopes development technology.....	5,777	5,900	2,200
Applications of underground explosions.....	6,785	6,800	3,800
Total applied energy technology program.....	12,562	14,200	8,000

In 1974, work will be continued on energy transmission and storage technologies. These efforts are directed toward the transmission of electricity through underground cables, utilizing superconducting and/or cryogenic materials, and the storage of off-peak generated electricity in lithium/sulfur secondary batteries.

The isotope development technology activities will be limited to the radioisotope powered artificial heart program.

The applications of underground explosions subprogram will emphasize laboratory developmental efforts, along with cooperative studies with industry on the application of this technology.

6. Space nuclear systems.—This program includes the space electric power development effort to provide the technology and nuclear radioisotope sources to furnish electric power for operating spacecraft instrumentation during space missions. The nuclear rocket propulsion program will be terminated in 1973.

By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Total space nuclear systems.....	41,781	38,070	26,100

7. Physical research.—This program provides support for both theoretical and experimental basic research in the physical sciences. Investigations are conducted at the boundaries of scientific knowledge in order to develop an understanding of the properties and behavior of both matter and energy. The basic foundation for advances in the development, use, and control of atomic energy is developed through research in the field of physics, mathematics, chemistry, and metallurgy and materials. Within high energy physics the 200 Bev accelerator will receive increased funding to support the first full year of operation of this new research machine. Support for other high energy physics accelerators will be reduced. Estimates include $50 thousand for the Fermi and Lawrence awards. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
High energy physics.....	116,392	124,400	128,500

8. Controlled thermonuclear research.—While the ultimate objective of this program is the development of practical fusion reactors for the production of electrical and thermal energy, the current emphasis is on understanding of the plasma state, preparation for new experimental programs aimed at demonstrating the scientific feasibility of fusion, and development of the necessary supporting technology. Controlled fusion power, if feasible, would be one of the very few options available to meet the projected rise in power demand. Fusion reactors would offer the following significant advantages: plentiful and inexpensive fuel, inherent safety against nuclear runaway, and minimal environmental impact. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
Confinement systems development.....	19,480	23,445	28,220

Total controlled thermonuclear research.....	30,963	37,000	44,500

9. Biomedical and environmental research.—This program will continue to generate information required by the AEC in both its operations and regulatory functions to assure the safety of man and the preservation of his environment. Health studies will be conducted which evaluate the adverse effects of radiation on man and explore new uses of radioisotopes and radiation in early detection and treatment of disease. Environmental studies will continue to determine more information about the distribution, transport, and fate of radionuclides in the environment. Biological studies are necessary to obtain fundamental information required for quantitative assessment of effects of radiation on living organisms. Finally, techniques and analyses will be developed toward the establishment of advanced technology in support of the health, environmental, and biological research studies. The major portion of the total program effort is either directly or indirectly related to environmental research and development activities. In 1974, environmental R. & D. accounts for $71.1 million of the program request. This compares with an estimate of $66.4 million in 1973 and actual costs of $62.6 million in 1972. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The increases requested in 1974 are required to comply with provisions of: The National Environmental Policy Act of 1969; the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended by the Water Quality Improvement Act of 1970; an amendment to the Atomic Energy Act in December 1970 mandating a review of the antitrust aspects of license applications; and to: Reduce the existing backlog of license applications; process an increased number of new applications; develop detailed environmental statements; participate in an increased number of hearings; develop comprehensive safety, environmental and materials protection standards, criteria and guides; increase inspections, investigations and evaluations of materials and facility licensees for compliance with appropriate regulatory and safety statutes; and provide related support for these increased efforts.

11. Program support.—This program supports other operating programs. By subprogram, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Subprogram	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
Operational program direction.....	120,204	121,932	127,500
Community operations.....	5,076	5,562	5,650
Security investigations.....	6,193	7,917	7,000
Information services.....	5,931	5,461	6,400
Nuclear education and training.....	6,349	7,100	4,700
Total program support.....	143,753	147,972	151,250

Program efforts include:

Operational program direction of the AEC operating programs conducted through 11 operations offices, their subordinate area offices, and the Washington headquarters. Included are the salaries and other costs for employees engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision. The 1974 estimate provides for 4,849 employees which is an increase of 21 over the level estimated for June 30, 1973.

Community operations which provides assistance payments to the former AEC communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Los Alamos, N. Mex., under the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended. The estimate also includes costs at Los Alamos, principally for fire protection.

Security investigations required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, for those persons who require access to restricted data. The number of background investigations to be requested in 1974 is estimated at 10,620 as compared with 12,026 for 1973 and 9,721 for 1972.

Information services for the scientific and technical community and the general public. To provide this information, data on nuclear-related subjects is collected, analyzed, organized, and made accessible. Exhibits, demonstrations, and printed releases are used to disseminate information to the general public. A portion of the costs of these services are recovered through user fees.

Nuclear education and training activities include specialized training courses, the university-AEC laboratory cooperative program, and operation of the Puerto Rico Nuclear Center. Due to budget priorities, in 1974, it will be necessary to terminate fellowship and traineeship assistance. In addition, the university-AEC laboratory cooperative program will be significantly reduced.

12. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objective of widespread use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes, AEC furnishes materials and services to industrial organizations and other private parties. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenues applied) and reduce the amount of appropriations required. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

Cost of products sold.....	14,511	18,312	4,880
Cost of services performed.....	3,364	2,688	2,920

Related revenues.....	22,223	29,780	7,863
Excess of revenues over related fund costs.....	4,348	8,780	63

Receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenues applied).—This item, shown as a source of financing on the program and financing schedule, reduces appropriation requirements. The income is obtained from the following sources (in thousands of dollars):

A wide variety of capital equipment is procured to fill the various needs of all operating programs. Such needs range from routine replacement of worn out and obsolete equipment, to the procurement of new research devices and computers. Additions are needed for expanding programs and to keep pace with rapidly changing technology in the production and research programs.

EPA's research and development efforts are conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, industries, other private commercial firms, non-profit organizations, State and local governments, and Federal agencies as well as through research and development at EPA's laboratories and field locations.

These efforts are oriented toward producing the scientific knowledge and the tools for regulating, preventing, and abating pollution and are specifically directed to the problems of air pollution control, water pollution control, water supply protection, solid and toxic waste management, pesticides control, radiation protection, noise abatement, and interdisciplinary studies. Activities encompass research on the effects of pollutants on man, animals, aquatic life, plants, materials, and the general environment; research on the processes, such as dispersion that affects pollution; the development of new and improved sampling and analytical methods and instruments for measuring pollutants; and the development and demonstration of new and improved technology for preventing and controlling pollution and recovery of materials from wastes. Included with the research and development program is its overall management and support.

EPA's enforcement responsibilities are in the areas of air pollution control, water pollution control, and pesticide control. Much of the effort is in support of or in cooperation with State and local enforcement programs, such as the enforcement of ambient air quality and air stationary source standards; navigable and interstate water quality standards; and issuance of discharge permits. Some efforts, however, are primarily Federal responsibilities, such as the enforcement of air mobile source standards and pesticide product registrations. Enforcement includes such actions as notices of violation, abatement orders, enforcement conferences, civil and criminal court actions, and, in the case of pesticides, recalls and seizures. Included is overall management and support.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undelivered orders, 1971, $3,278 thousand (1971 adjustment, -$499 thousand); 1972, $4,343 thousand; 1973, $4,343 thousand; 1974, $4,343 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the basic real property operations of General Services Administration, including acquisition, operation, maintenance, protection, and utilization of general-purpose buildings and space; for overall direction of buildings design, construction, and repair and modernization.

The total financing required for 1974 is $491,100 thousand. This includes an appropriation request of $390,982 thousand and a proposed transfer of $100,118 thousand from "Construction, Public Buildings Projects." This represents a net increase of $12,200 thousand above the comparable amount for 1973. The 1973 amount includes proposed transfers of $36,400 thousand for the annual cost of expansion space acquired in 1972, not provided for in GSA's 1973 budget.

The net increase of $12,200 thousand provides primarily for management and operation of new Federal buildings scheduled for occupancy in 1973 and 1974, new and replacement furnishings for members of Congress, and full-year costs of wage-board rate increases effected in 1973, offset by credits for space released from new construction.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, buildings management activities consisting of: Management, rental, operation, and protection of Government-owned and leased space in and outside the District of Columbia for housing Federal agencies; modernization and recurring repairs to Government-owned space under jurisdiction of General Services Administration; maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings; uniforms and uniform allowances; and other related building services (66 Stat. 594). Retained earnings resulting from operations, after making provision for prior year losses, if any, are paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Operating costs funded for 1974 are estimated at $748.8 million, an increase of $15.2 million over 1973.

1. Buildings management.—(a) Operation and protection of Government-owned space.—Provides for operation and protection of an average of 158.2 million square feet of space in 1974 compared to an average of 153.9 million square feet in 1973 and an average of 152.9 million square feet in 1972. The change from 1973 reflects net additional space to be serviced due to construction of new buildings.

(b) Rental, operation, and protection of leased space.—Provides for an average of 67.1 million square feet in 1974, compared to an average of 67.9 million square feet in 1973 and an average of 59.4 million square feet in 1972, based on currently projected Federal agency requirements which take into account reductions for additional space provided by construction of new Federal buildings.

2. Moving, alterations, and related costs.—Provides for moving and related alterations based on experience factors of buildings management operations and for moving and space adjustments incident to the new construction program.

3. Maintenance repairs.—Provides for day-to-day maintenance of GSA operated buildings, and other Government buildings under jurisdiction of GSA.

4. Security and special guarding.—Provides security and above normal guarding service required by other agencies.

5. Operation and maintenance of sites held for future construction.—Provides for maintenance of sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings and repairs to improvements located thereon.

6. Job order work.—Provides for special services and repairs and improvements to buildings for GSA and other agencies.

7. Other.—Provides for program supervision of repair and improvement operations as distinguished from architectural and design activities initially financed from the Construction services fund, utility services and utilities to concessionaires.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1972, the net investment in the fund was $2.6 million composed of $3.5 million appropriated, $7.9 million capitalized assets, less $0.9 million retained earnings, less $7.9 million provision for unfunded leave liability.

Construction services activities consisting of preparation of drawings and specifications for the construction or alteration of public buildings; management and inspection of construction and alteration activities; and surveys and test borings performed in connection with the acquisition of Federal building sites and other related services are financed by this fund on a reimbursable basis from funds appropriated, transferred, or advanced to the General Services Administration (40 U.S.C. 296).

Operations.—Initial financing of this fund provides for salaries and related expenses of all personnel engaged in architectural and engineering services in connection with buildings design and construction. Estimates for 1973 and 1974 cover the GSA public building construction program, including projects to be privately financed by purchase contract under the Public Building Amendments of 1972, the repair and improvement program, and additional workload in connection with projects assigned to GSA by other Federal agencies.

Operating results.—Retained earnings were decreased in 1972 to approximately $834 thousand. An operating gain of $981 thousand and $157 thousand is projected for 1973 and 1974, respectively, which will increase retained earnings to $1,972 thousand at the end of 1974.

This appropriation provides for (1) establishment of efficient supply and property management practices throughout the Federal Government, (2) improving management practices of the Federal Government pertaining to transportation and public utilities services, (3) protecting the Government's interest as a user of transportation and public utilities before Federal and State regulatory bodies, and (4) expenses of operating the worldwide supply system through which commercial-type commodities are sold to Government agencies and cost-type contractors from depot stocks, or by direct delivery from suppliers, whichever is more economical and meets the needs of the Government. Except for customer orders placed directly with suppliers under Federal supply schedule contracts, most of the purchases of commodities are financed initially from the general supply fund, subject to reimbursement by ordering agencies. Wherever economical and feasible, costs of commodities furnished directly from suppliers are paid directly from funds of the requisitioning agency without involving the general supply fund.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations or funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1972, $259 thousand; 1973, $61 thousand; 1974, $52 thousand.

1. Supply distribution.—Stocks of commercial-type commodities are received, warehoused, and issued on a worldwide basis to Federal agencies through a national supply distribution system consisting of both wholesale and retail distribution facilities. Stores stock sales will increase from $485.9 million in 1972 to an estimated $490 million in 1974.

2. Procurement.—Commodities are procured to maintain inventories at stores depots to insure availability in advance of sales orders and for direct delivery to agencies. Term contracts for commercial-type commodities and services are established for large aggregate volume requirements against which agencies place individual orders at uniform price advantages. Total procurement in 1972 was $1,635 million; procurement for 1973, $1,708 million, and procurement for 1974, $1,708 million, excluding ADP equipment.

3. Supply control.—During 1974 supply control will continue to serve as the single contact point for all matters pertaining to supply support. Continued emphasis will be placed on efficient processing and control of requisitions, supply systems development, commodity and data management functions and increased attention and effort to maintain adequate levels of inventory while controlling the capital investment.

4. Standards and quality control.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or supply depots, by laboratory tests and analyses of samples prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance on 11,500 contracts covering $882 million worth of items procured. Qualitative requirements of Federal agencies are reflected in Federal specifications, Federal standards and Federal item identifications which are mandatory for use in procurement. In 1974, the standardization program will consist of the promulgation of 1,130 Federal specifications and standards actions and 243,000 logistics data actions.

5. Motor equipment, transportation, and public utilities.—During 1974 continued efforts will be devoted to development of guides, procedures, and educational programs for improving transportation practices and operations in civilian agencies, negotiation of reasonable rates with carriers, and providing procurement assistance, rates, routing and related services to executive agencies. Increased emphasis will be placed on implementation of the governmentwide responsibility for the preparation and maintenance of the Standard Government Travel Regulations and the related travel and moving expenses regulations. Governmentwide policies and procedures will be developed to improve the overall efficiency of the Government-owned motor vehicle fleet and to assist the various Federal agencies with motor equipment management. Negotiations will be conducted with public utilities companies on behalf of executive agencies and technical assistance rendered in connection with regulatory proceedings. In 1974 continued emphasis will be placed on the development and publication of regulations and procedures governing the procurement and management of public utilities services.

6. National supply policies and programs.—In 1974, national supply policies and programs activities will continue to place emphasis on agreements between GSA, the Department of Defense, and the civil agencies for the governing of supply management relationships. Studies and recommendations will continue to be made in order to improve the internal supply system of Federal agencies. Greater emphasis will be placed on the supply service officer program to further identify problem areas which need to be resolved by the Federal Supply Service and to increase the scope of supply and procurement support rendered by the Federal Supply Service. Emphasis will be placed on the development, coordination, and issuance of Federal Procurement Regulations.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by using agencies are the operations of interagency motor vehicle pools, the rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment, and the redistribution of materials no longer needed overseas.

Budget program.—This estimate provides for sales to both military and civilian agencies. It also provides for the operation of the credit return program.

1. Supply operations.—(a) Stores, regular.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for sale to Government agencies. From a total of $485.9 million in 1972, sales are estimated to increase to $490 million in 1973 and $490 million in 1974.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $36.2 million in 1972, and are estimated to be $36 million in 1973 and 1974.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales through the fund are expected to increase from $310.7 million in 1972 to $320 million in 1973 and 1974.

2. Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund covering packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services are expected to increase from $19.7 million in 1972 to $21.3 million in 1973 and 1974.

Equipment rental.—Operating and administrative equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts are estimated to increase from $2.5 million in 1972 to $3.3 million in 1973 and $3.7 million in 1974.

3. Property management and disposal operations.—Furniture and equipment repair services, provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical, are expected to increase from $0.5 million in 1972 to $0.6 million in 1973 and 1974. Receipts to the fund covering redistribution costs of materials no longer required overseas are expected to increase from $1.1 million in 1972 to $2 million in 1973 and 1974.

4. Motor pools.—Services are provided to agencies through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales are estimated to increase from $67.8 million in 1972 to $68.9 million in 1973 and $72.4 million in 1974.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1974 is estimated at $416.1 million consisting of $242.7 million direct appropriations, $173 million donated assets, and $0.6 million capitalized surplus with $0.2 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

Any operating surplus, as determined by the General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undelivered orders, 1971, $984 thousand (1972 adjustment, -$90 thousand); 1972, $1,289 thousand; 1973, $1,289 thousand; 1974, $1,289 thousand.

This appropriation provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operations of presidential libraries, and grants for historical publications.

The estimate for 1974 is $1,232 thousand more than 1973. Of this amount $850 thousand is required for workload increases in the National Archives, records management, and regional records centers activities, and $382 thousand for administrative support activities.

Fair value of personal property received from other appropriations and funds without cost for use by GSA is as follows: 1972, $6 thousand; 1973, $2 thousand; and 1974, $2 thousand.

In 1974 records in custody of the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 13.7 million cubic feet which will represent an estimated 47% of the total Federal records. Reference services will total 15.8 million.

1. Records management and centers.—The workload in the 14 regional records centers continues to increase reflecting agency demands for services. In 1974 agencies will transfer 1,200,000 cubic feet of inactive records to the regional centers. Records disposal from the records centers will total 800,000 cubic feet. Reference services will continue to increase reaching a level of 14.3 million.

In 1972 the existence and operation of Federal records centers accounted for a Government-wide cost avoidance of $24 million, representing the value of space and equipment released by the transfer of records to centers and the more economic storage of agencies' records received in previous years.

The records management activity helps agencies control their paperwork, which for all the Federal Government consists of an estimated 8 to 10 billion pages a year. In 1972 GSA's direct assistance to agencies produced a net first-year savings of $15 million including over 310 thousand man-days saved or released for other work.

2. Archives and related services.—Almost half of the workload of the National Archives subactivity is determined by the volume of reference requests received from Government agencies and the public. In 1974 additional funds are requested to (1) meet increased requests for reference services, (2) accelerate efforts of appraising for huge masses of records in Federal records centers for retention or disposal, now earmarked by creating agencies for indefinite retention, and (3) continue a program begun in 1973 of identifying, preserving, and servicing machine-readable records having permanent value.

3. National historical publication grants.—This activity provides for carrying out the national historical documents program, established by the act of July 28, 1964 (Public Law 88-383) as most recently amended by Public Law 92-546, for grants to State and local agencies and to nonprofit organizations and for allocations to Federal agencies for the purpose of collecting, reproducing, and publishing source materials significant to the history of the United States.

This fund was authorized by Public Law 87-847, approved October 23, 1962. It finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government which is operationally compatible with the national communications system. The advanced record system, primarily teletype data operations, is now being redesigned to enlarge its capacity to meet projected increases in traffic. Research in the fields of communications and automatic data processing is a continuing requirement to maintain and improve the Government-wide telecommunications system.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from available appropriations and funds of any agency or organization for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

Initial capital of $9 million was appropriated by Public Law 88-25, approved May 17, 1963. This sum may be increased by donations of supplies and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1972 were $176.9 million and are estimated at $221.9 million in 1973 and $247.1 million in 1974.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which will enable personnel in each Federal agency office to communicate directly on a machine-to-machine or station-to-station basis with any other agency office in the Nation. The system will provide day-to-day service as well as incorporate features which would be necessary in emergency situations. The program for 1974 contemplates a sales level of $215.5 million, an increase of $23.2 million over 1973, and an anticipated traffic volume of 117 million intercity calls being handled by the Federal telecommunications system.

2. Record program.—Provides common unified records communications system to satisfy record communications requirements of all Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of information by data, teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. The continued development of the records program is reflected in the projected sales increase of $1.6 million in 1974 over the $19.3 million anticipated in 1973.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits for civil agencies to obtain the benefits of multiple tariff offerings of commercial carriers, while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits. Sales are projected at $7.9 million in 1973 and $8.1 million in 1974.

4. Special programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies in keeping with objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and for a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. These programs insure that the Federal telecommunications system will remain operational in the event any portion of the normal system is disabled or destroyed.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1974, the net investment in the fund is estimated to be $8.7 million, composed of $9 million appropriated, $0.2 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings, after making provision for any prior year losses, are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

This fund was authorized by Public Law 89-306, to coordinate and provide for the economic and efficient purchase, lease, and maintenance of automatic data processing equipment by Federal agencies.

The fund finances on a reimbursable basis a Government-wide automatic data processing operation, including the procurement by lease, purchase, transfer or otherwise of ADP equipment, maintenance of equipment, procurement and/or development of software programs with Government-wide application, and operation of service centers and related functions.

Funding in 1974 for GSA's internal systems development is provided in the Administrative operations fund and thus is not reflected in the ADP fund program.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in revenue during 1973 and 1974. Sales are estimated to increase from $26,114 thousand in 1972 to $33,395 thousand in 1973 to $34,218 thousand in 1974.

1. Data processing.—Finances the operation of Federal data processing centers which provide ADP services on a Government-wide basis. These processing services consist of on-site data processing and time sharing where a single computer serves multiple users at various remote locations. Programmer analysts and equipment operators are available for use at the Federal Data Processing Center or at a user's homesite on an as-required basis. Maintenance support for Government-owned equipment and software is also provided.

This program also provides for financing joint use facilities for common central ADP services of an installation operated by two or more agencies under GSA policy guidance. Expansion of Federal Data Processing Center and other related operations are estimated to increase revenue from $20,616 thousand in 1972 to $26,177 thousand in 1973 to $24,721 thousand in 1974.

2. Lease program.—This program finances the acquisition of ADP equipment and software from manufacturers for subsequent lease to Federal agencies at costs substantially below commercial annual lease prices. Purchases are made by the fund when special discounts with time limitations and other arrangements become available and agencies are unable to take advantage of these cost reduction opportunities due to budget cycle limitations. In addition to purchases, this program acquires excess Government-owned ADP equipment, where there is a known user or the equipment has a high potential for reutilization, capitalizes it at fair market value and leases it to Federal agencies at a cost substantially below all other least cost alternatives available to the using agency. Revenue from lease is estimated to increase from $5,498 thousand in 1972 to $7,218 thousand in 1973 and $9,497 thousand in 1974.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undelivered orders, 1971, $3,441 thousand (1972 adjustments, $134 thousand); 1972, $6,037 thousand; 1973, $6,037 thousand; 1974, $6,037 thousand.

This Service has responsibility for: (a) acquisition, administration, and disposal of national stockpile inventories; (b) custody and disposal of the supplemental agricultural stockpile; (c) utilization and disposal of excess and surplus real and personal property; (d) rehabilitation of personal property; and (e) the public sale of rare silver dollars.

The estimate for 1974 provides for storage, maintenance, and inspection of stockpile materials and disposal of those stockpile materials excess to objectives, the appraisal of real and personal property, and continuing emphasis on reuse of existing real and personal property and the rehabilitation of personal property to extend its useful life.

1. Property management.—Covers the cost of acquiring, inspecting, and maintaining materials in the national and supplemental stockpiles. Handling costs for acquisition by exchange are provided to cover deliveries under prior year contracts.

(a) Strategic and critical materials.—Strategic and critical materials amounting to approximately 37.2 million tons with a market value of $6.4 billion were stored at 131 locations as of June 30, 1972. Distribution of depot storage costs for these materials is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
Recurring costs.....	6,216	6,112	6,280
Nonrecurring costs.....	993	1,000	1,000
Relocation, transportation, and handling.....	125	200	200
Total cost or estimate.....	7,334	7,312	7,480

In addition to direct depot storage operations, this activity provides for inspection and stockpile management services relative to maintaining the national and supplemental stockpiles.

2. Real property disposal.—This activity provides for utilization of excess and disposal of surplus real property, including national industrial reserve properties. The estimate for 1974 provides for utilization transfers of 130 properties, sale of 410 surplus properties, and other surplus disposal (donation, etc.) totaling 370 properties. The selling price of real property and rental revenue in 1974 is estimated at $79 million.

Physical care, handling, protection, maintenance, and repair of certain excess and surplus real properties pending disposal are also provided. In addition, this activity is responsible for the appraisal of excess and surplus real property as well as the coordination of regulations, standards, and methods governing such appraisals. Real property surveys are also conducted to carry out the provisions of Executive Order 11508, dated February 10, 1970.

3. Personal property disposal.—Covers the cost of disposal of personal property items, and management of the Government-wide programs for the utilization, donation, rehabilitation, solid waste recycling, and sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property. This activity embraces the property of all Government agencies, and provides for utilization of excess personal property, thereby reducing new procurement; donation of all surplus personal property for public benefit purposes; sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property (except DOD property); and rehabilitation of personal property owned by the Government to extend its useful life. The estimate for 1974 provides for interagency utilization transfers and donations by GSA totaling $1,650 million at acquisition cost and proceeds from sale of surplus and exchange/sale of property totaling $20 million. Rehabilitation of personal property will amount to $350 million at replacement cost. This activity also provides for the public sale of rare silver dollars.

4. Strategic and critical materials disposal.—This activity provides for the disposal of excess strategic and critical materials. Strategic and critical materials sales commitments from the national and supplemental stockpiles are estimated at $790.3 million and $383.3 million in 1973 and 1974, respectively. This activity is also responsible for data collection and economic analysis of all factors bearing on stockpile materials such as supply, demand, consumption, and prices.

Also paid from such proceeds is the direct expense in connection with utilization of excess real and related personal property (68 Stat. 1051). Properties to be sold by auctioneers are estimated at 10 in 1973 and 1974. Disposal appraisals totaled 490 in 1972 and are estimated to reach 550 in 1973 and 1974.

Guarantees are given on loans made by public or private financing institutions, including Federal Reserve banks, to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Upon demand of lending institutions, the Government is required to purchase the guaranteed percentage of the loan or the Government may elect to make a voluntary purchase of the guaranteed percentage. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use, although such action has not been necessary to date. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future loan defaults (50 U.S.C. App. 2091).

The Government's maximum contingent liability as guarantor on one loan now in effect is estimated to be $4.9 million at the end of 1974. Retained earnings are estimated to be $0.2 million at the end of 1974.

The Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, N. Dak., is the only facility of its kind in the United States which has the capability to produce all types of jewel bearings in quantity. The plant was established by the Department of Defense in 1953 and turned over to GSA in 1957. The Office of Emergency Preparedness has determined that the plant is an essential part of the national mobilization base and that its continued operation as a domestic source of jewel bearings is in the interest of the United States. On January 1, 1970, financing of the operation was placed under a revolving fund which was authorized by Public Law 90-469, approved August 8, 1968.

The plant produces jewel bearings for sale at fixed prices to Government agencies, and their contractors and subcontractors for national defense purposes, and to GSA for the national stockpile. Mandatory source provisions are contained in the Federal Procurement Regulations and Armed Services Procurement Regulations in support of this operation. These provisions require Government agencies and their contractors to procure and use jewel bearings manufactured at the Langer Jewel Bearing Plant under certain specified conditions.

Any additional funds which may be required for operation of the plant are authorized to be appropriated to the fund. However, the requirement for appropriated capital is not anticipated for 1974.

Operations.—It is anticipated that there will continue during 1974 the servicing of leases and conditional sales agreements covering two facilities, and one other miscellaneous asset. Financial and legal servicing will also be required on one case in the hands of the Department of Justice under the complex food subsidy program. In 1974 administrative expenses in connection with financial and legal services will be absorbed in funds available from regular GSA programs.

Operating results.—Proceeds from liquidation will be paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration was established October 1, 1958, pursuant to Public Law 85-568 (72 Stat. 426; 42 U.S.C. 2451); approved July 29, 1958, for the conduct of the nonmilitary space programs of the United States, including the exploration of space and its utilization for peaceful purposes, and to conduct and support advanced research and development related to space and aeronautics in support of both civil and military requirements. The appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as follows:

1. Manned space flight.—These estimates provide for all manned space flight activities conducted by the United States. These programs include the Apollo lunar exploration program in which the final flight, Apollo 17, was completed in December 1972; the Skylab orbital workshop flight missions beginning in the spring of 1973 and continuing over the following 8 months; the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project in which an Apollo spacecraft will rendezvous and dock with a Soviet spacecraft in 1975; the space shuttle program providing for design and development of a reusable manned earth-to-orbit shuttle vehicle; studies and component development on future orbital payload systems; life sciences research and technology; and studies and research on future manned missions.

(a) Space flight operations.—This activity consists of post-Apollo manned flight programs and includes Skylab, the Apollo-Soyuz Test Project, work on future manned orbital systems and payloads, space life sciences, and the basic operations and engineering activities required to support the manned and unmanned space flight efforts at manned space flight centers. Skylab represents a major progression into manned earth orbital missions directed toward accomplishing life sciences, astronomy, earth resources, and technology objectives. Flight operations will begin in the spring of 1973 using a Saturn V vehicle to launch an unmanned orbital workshop cluster with its associated experiment systems. Three manned missions using modified Apollo command and service modules launched by Saturn IB vehicles will be conducted over an 8-month period to activate and operate the workshop cluster. The scientific focus of Skylab will be directed toward study of the application of space in surveying and monitoring the resources and environmental interactions of the earth; an extensive study of the sun, especially in those wavelength regions not readily visible from the ground; and the biomedical study of the effects of long-duration flight on man, as individual astronauts remain in orbit for as long as 2-month periods.

The Apollo-Soyuz Test Project is a joint United States-U.S.S.R. effort to develop and test systems for rendezvous and docking of manned spacecraft. This effort could provide the basis for a future standard international docking system. The test mission, planned for 1975, will be a joint flight experiment to rendezvous and dock a manned Apollo spacecraft with an orbiting manned Soyuz spacecraft. The mission will include testing of a compatible rendezvous system; testing of docking assemblies; verification of techniques for transfer of astronauts and cosmonauts; and the performance of assigned experiments. Effort on mission systems and integration is directed toward definition, preliminary design and technology verification for future systems to be launched by the space shuttle. In 1974, definition studies will continue on a manned pressurized payload carrier and on an unpressurized instrument platform suitable for conducting research and applications activities on shuttle missions. A conceptual study effort will be continued on a reusable propulsive stage designed to be carried in the shuttle payload bay and to deliver and retrieve payloads to and from orbits beyond those which the shuttle can attain. Payload planning effort will concentrate on determination of the payload characteristics to maximize the effective use of shuttle systems for research and applications missions. Life sciences activity includes research and technology efforts on operational requirements for manned flight systems, and the definition and development of life science flight experiments.

(b) Space shuttle.—Development of the space shuttle transportation system is the key element in future space operations in earth orbit. The earth to orbit shuttle will provide a recoverable, reusable space vehicle for placement and retrieval of satellites, satellite service and maintenance, short-duration manned orbital missions, and delivery to orbit of propulsive stages and payloads for high-energy missions. The shuttle will have the capability to support a wide range of future missions. It will radically reduce transportation costs and is expected to produce major savings in payload costs resulting from the relaxed design and reliability constraints made possible by the orbital payload delivery, maintenance, and retrieval capabilities of the shuttle system. The space shuttle will consist of a fully reusable orbiter vehicle with a crew of four and a payload bay approximately 18 meters (60 feet) long and 4.5 meters (15 feet) in diameter, a large expendable fuel tank, and reusable twin solid rocket boosters. The 1974 activity will include continued development of the orbiter and main engine, and initiation of detailed design and development of the fuel tank and solid rocket boosters.

(c) Advanced manned mission studies.—This program examines advanced manned space flight program concepts and develops technical information and other data upon which future program decisions can be based.

(d) Apollo.—The Apollo lunar missions have been completed with Apollo 16 to the Descartes site and Apollo 17 to the Taurus-Littrow site. Both of these sites featured highland volcanic areas resulting in the best balance with previous missions in order to provide the best possible portrayal of the characteristics of the moon. These missions were configured to provide the maximum scientific return since they were the last planned U.S. explorations of the moon.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—This program utilizes a variety of flight systems and ground-based observations to increase man's knowledge of the universe. The earth, sun, moon, interplanetary space, solar system, other stars and galaxies, and the interaction among these bodies and systems are all objects of these investigations.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—Coordinated research, with national and international participation, is directed toward an increase in our knowledge of the space environment, of the earth and the sun, and the relationship of these bodies to each other and to interplanetary space, other stars, galaxies, and nebulae. Laboratory and theoretical research, ground-based observations, aircraft, balloons, sounding rockets, and explorer and observatory spacecraft all contribute to this quest for knowledge. The solar astronomy program will continue with OSO-I scheduled for launch in 1974. The Orbiting Astronomical Observatory Copernicus (OAO-3) will continue to study stars and interstellar matter. The Explorer program will investigate the upper atmosphere, the near-earth environment, and deep space. Development of flight hardware for the High Energy Astronomy Observatory (HEAO) is being suspended pending redefinition of program objectives and study of low cost alternatives to achieve redefined objectives.

(b) Lunar and planetary exploration.—This program concentrates on exploration of the moon, planets, and other bodies in the solar system, such as asteroids and comets, using both ground-based research and observations from automated spacecraft. The program of lunar investigations includes continued analysis of the lunar materials returned to earth by the Apollo crews, and receipt and synthesis of telemetered data from the instruments remaining on the lunar surface. The 1974 planetary program encompasses effort leading toward observations of a major portion of the solar system including Mercury, the region near the Sun, the Asteroid Belt, Jupiter, Saturn, and the interplanetary regions, while continuing to expand knowledge of our closest neighbors, Venus and Mars. Mariner 9, launched in May of 1971, was placed in orbit around Mars on November 13, 1971. This spacecraft has given us detailed maps of essentially the entire planet and has expanded our knowledge of the Martian surface and atmosphere. A Mariner is in preparation for a 1973 launch to Venus and Mercury, utilizing gravity assist from the Venus flyby. The Pioneer 10 spacecraft is en route to Jupiter, and a second mission, Pioneer-G, will be launched in 1973. These missions will provide the first observations and measurements of the interplanetary medium beyond Mars. They will fly through the Asteroid Belt and continue to the vicinity of Jupiter, providing the first measurements and observations of that planet from space. Work will continue in 1974 on the U.S. experiments to be launched on the West German Helios spacecraft. One Helios spacecraft will be launched by the United States in 1974 and one in 1976 to investigate and observe the interplanetary medium two-thirds of the distance from the earth to the sun. In 1974, work will continue on two Viking spacecraft to be launched to Mars in 1975. Each spacecraft will include both an Orbiter and a Lander, thus providing the capability for measurements from Mars orbit in addition to direct measurements of the atmosphere and surface features of Mars. Effort will continue on missions to Jupiter and Saturn using Mariner-class spacecraft to be launched in 1977.

(c) Launch vehicle development and support.—This program includes launch vehicle activities such as launch operations, and engineering and maintenance necessary to sustain launch activities. It also includes support for specific reliability and performance improvements to existing vehicles.

3. Space applications.—The activities in this area are directed toward the application of space technology to some of man's urgent needs on the surface of the earth. The 1974 estimate provides for a strong ground-based research and technology effort, as well as a carefully planned flight program. These activities include programs dealing with weather and climate, earth and ocean physics, pollution monitoring, earth resources surveys, earthquake prediction and geodesy, communications, space processing, and multidisciplinary applications. Major program activity during 1974 will include continued mission operations for the Earth Resources Technology Satellite (ERTS-1), continued development of ERTS-B, and a supporting program of airborne surveys using sensors similar to those on the satellites. The objective of these activities is to acquire, on an experimental basis, data needed to evaluate an operational earth resources satellite system. In weather-oriented activities, the experimental Nimbus program will continue with the launch of Nimbus-F as a follow-on to the Nimbus-5 meteorological sensor development mission. The launch of the Synchronous Meteorological Satellites (SMS) A and B will culminate the developmental work for an operational geostationary weather satellite system providing day and night coverage of short-term weather phenomena. Development will continue on another prototype, Tiros-N, for the third generation of operational weather satellites.

In air pollution monitoring, work will begin on the Nimbus-G mission to provide for flight experiments with advanced sensors for air pollution measurements. In earth and ocean physics, the Nimbus-G advanced sensors will also contribute to ocean dynamics monitoring. Work will proceed toward the launch of the GEOS-C mission with the objective of demonstrating the feasibility of satellite altimeters for measuring the topography of the ocean's surface. Activities directed toward geodesy and a potential future earthquake prediction capability will include ground-based experiments and measurements and initiation of work on LAGEOS, a high density, laser reflector satellite. This mission will provide a stable, long-term reference point for earth motion studies. In communications activities, the Applications Technology Satellite (ATS) F mission will be launched in 1974. This mission uses a large space-erectable antenna to conduct user communications experiments for State and Federal agencies and foreign countries such as India. The Cooperative Applications Satellite (CAS) C joint project with the Canadians will continue working toward a developmental communications satellite using a recently allocated higher frequency band (12 GHz) and several other advanced spacecraft design features. Other investigations into the use of space as an environment for the generation and processing of materials that are not possible or economically practical to produce on earth, will be conducted using the results of Skylab experiments.

4. Space and nuclear research and technology.—This activity provides for expansion of the technology base for developmental efforts supporting NASA space mission objectives.

(a) Space research and technology.—Research will be conducted in the areas of materials and structures, power and propulsion, information sciences, guidance, and control. Emphasis will be placed on technology for low-cost, reliable, long-life components and on standardization of spacecraft subsystems and components. Effort will continue on laser communications; high-speed, high-density electronic components; and on low-cost electric power systems. Specific technology requirements for near-term objectives, including the space shuttle and planetary flight programs, will continue to be supported in the critical areas of thermal protection, aerothermodynamics, entry technology, and structural dynamics.

(b) Nuclear power and propulsion.—Efforts will continue on research and technology which includes investigations in plasmadynamics, superconductors, nuclear physics and a low-power range power conversion system.

5. Aeronautical research and technology.—The aim of the aeronautics program is to provide and expand the technological base in aeronautical research to facilitate the development and production of improved civil and military aircraft. A technology program coordinated with other Government agencies is being conducted that will increase aeronautical systems safety, reduce undesirable environmental effects, and contribute to future generations of aeronautical vehicles. Research and technology activities in 1974 will include continued effort on application of advanced materials and composites in aircraft, on avionics systems, on propulsive lift concepts and on operational procedures. Work on the experimental rotor test and tilt rotor aircraft will be in the design and fabrication phase. Work will also be in progress on clean, quiet propulsion applicable to short takeoff and landing (STOL) and conventional takeoff and landing (CTOL) aircraft including propulsion system technology which could be applied to current narrow-body civil jet transports, resulting in substantially quieter operation without an adverse effect on the operational characteristics of these aircraft. The 1974 program also provides for continuation of activities to provide a technology base for advanced supersonic aircraft involving work in the disciplines of propulsion, structures and materials, aerodynamics, and stability and control.

6. Supporting activities.—The programs grouped in this activity provide general support for the attainment of NASA mission objectives.

(a) Tracking and data acquisition.—Operation and equipment of the stations of the NASA tracking and data acquisition networks are provided for here, as well as research and development to increase the capability of the specialized ground equipment.

(b) Sustaining university program.—This program included grants for graduate studies in interdisciplinary space-related fields. Costs incurred reflect use of funds previously appropriated.

(c) Technology utilization.—The objective of this program is to accelerate the transfer into the economy of new advances in technology generated by NASA and NASA contractors.

This appropriation provides for expenses of research in Government laboratories, management of programs, and other expenses for the operation of NASA installations.

Aeronautical research and technology work is carried out at the Ames, Flight, Langley, and Lewis Research Centers.

Programwide support and management are provided by NASA Headquarters, Washington, D.C. Support activities for tracking and data acquisition requirements are performed at the Goddard Space Flight Center and Wallops Station.

² Excludes $61,275 in 1974 for this activity transferred to Readjustment benefits.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation, pensions and related benefits to veterans and their dependents. In June 1972, there were an estimated 28.8 million living veterans of which 3.3 million or 11.5% were receiving benefits under this appropriation. In addition, 2.4 million dependents of deceased veterans were receiving benefits.

Costs continued to increase during 1972. Growth in caseload, increase in average payments and recent enactment of new legislation are responsible for these increasing costs. Legislation enacted during 1972 is as follows:

1. Public Law 92-95, approved August 11, 1971, provided mortgage protection insurance to certain disabled veterans.

2. Public Law 92-169, approved November 24, 1971, provided for the payment of dependency and indemnity compensation to a widow at the rate established for the pay grade to which the veteran was promoted while "missing in action."

3. Public Law 92-197, effective January 1, 1972, provided rate increases for survivors of veterans who died of service-connected causes.

4. Public Law 92-198, effective January 1, 1972, increased the rates of non-service-connected disability and death pensioners.

Two recent enactments of legislation will affect costs in 1973 and 1974.

Public Law 92-328, effective August 1, 1972, provided: (1) a 10% increase in veterans service-connected disability compensation rates, (2) an annual $150 clothing allowance to veterans requiring the use of a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance which tends to wear out the veteran's clothing, and (3) equalizing peacetime payments with wartime payments for service-connected disability compensation, to be effective July 1, 1973.

Public Law 92-328 is estimated to increase costs $245.0 million in 1973 and $318.5 million in 1974.

These additional costs will be partially offset by the effects of Public Law 92-336, which provided a 20% increase in Social Security rates. Social Security recipients on the pension rolls must include this increase in their reportable income for VA pension purposes. This will reduce the total cost of pension benefits in 1973 and 1974.

Public Law 92-540, approved October 24, 1972, increased rates of subsistence for veterans receiving educational assistance and provides for equality of treatment for spouses of female veterans.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is a monetary benefit payable to a veteran or his dependents because of the veteran's service-connected disability or death. Death compensation or dependency and indemnity compensation is payable to the widow and dependents of veterans whose deaths are related to service-connected disabilities.

The veteran compensation caseload is projected to reflect a slight decrease in 1974 with a slight increase in the Vietnam era.

With the winddown of the military involvement in Vietnam, the survivor caseload is expected to level off in 1974 with an increase of 323 average cases. This compares with increases of 2,867 average cases in 1972 and an estimated 2,380 average cases in 1973.

Average payments for veterans in 1973 and 1974 reflect the 10% increase provided by Public Law 92-328. They also anticipate a continued increase in the average degree of disability being experienced by those veterans of earlier war periods as the interval between initial and current rating becomes greater and their disabilities more severe. Refinements in the relationship of the amount of compensation to the disability and the impairment of earning capacity are reflected in 1974.

Average payments to survivors reflect the full-year effect of Public Law 92-197, which increased the rates payable to these beneficiaries; replacement on the rolls of the older compensation cases by the higher paid DIC cases; and the increase in widows receiving aid and attendance.

2. Pensions.—Benefits are payable to wartime veterans and dependents of deceased veterans for non-service-connected disability and death. Veterans may qualify for monthly pensions on the basis of financial need and total disability. Widows and surviving children may also qualify if their income is below levels specified by law.

An increase in veterans average caseload is projected in both 1973 and 1974. The 1974 increase is due primarily to the number of accretions to the World War II rolls, more than offsetting the decrease in the World War I rolls, resulting from the death of an aging population.

Approximately 57% of the overall increase in survivors' pension caseload is estimated to originate among the World War II beneficiaries. This growth is associated with the increasing number of deaths among World War II veterans as contrasted with the other war periods.

(a) Retired officers.—Emergency officers of World War I and certain officers of the Regular Establishment who have retired because of service-connected disability are entitled to special benefits. The average caseload is declining steadily (as these officers age) from an actual of 545 in 1972 to an estimated 440 in 1974.

(b) Adjusted service and dependence pay.—Claims made pursuant to the provisions of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act of 1924, as amended, are payable from this appropriation.

(c) Subsistence allowance.—Payments are made to disabled veterans enrolled in vocational rehabilitation and education programs. This item will be paid under the Readjustment benefits appropriation beginning with 1974.

(f) Invalid lifts and other devices.—The Administrator, under 38 U.S.C. 617, may furnish invalid lifts and other devices to veterans in receipt of pension based on the need of regular aid and attendance.

(g) Tort claim settlements.—Payment of compromises or settlement under 38 U.S.C. 351 resulting from litigation under the Federal Tort Claims Act are made from this appropriation.

(h) Mortgage insurance.—Public Law 92-95, approved August 11, 1971, provides mortgage protection life insurance for service-connected disabled veterans who have received grants for specially adapted housing. In effect, it authorizes the Administrator to purchase such insurance, deduct the standard premium rate from the compensation of those veterans desiring the insurance, and pay the additional premium occasioned by the veteran's disability.

(i) Clothing allowance.—The Administrator, under 38 U.S.C. 362, may pay a clothing allowance of $150 per year to each veteran who wears or uses a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance or appliances (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Administrator, tends to wear out or tear the clothing of such a veteran.

More than 95% of this appropriation is used for education, training and rehabilitation of veterans and servicemen who served in the Vietnam era and in other periods since 1955. The appropriation also finances educational assistance allowances for the dependents of veterans and servicemen unable to provide for their families by reason of death, disability, capture, or missing in action.

1. Education and training.—The number of veterans and servicemen who seek educational assistance is primarily related to the size of the Armed Forces and the yearly rate of discharge. There are, however, other factors which are expected to influence the estimated peak number of 1,920,000 trainees in 1973 (a 3% increase over 1972). This increased rate of veteran participation stems in part from intensive efforts to make each veteran aware of his GI bill benefits and to provide him with counseling, training, and job-placement services through U.S. Veterans Assistance Centers and other Federal facilities. These efforts are being reinforced by the President's six-point program, marshaling the resources of government and business to put more veterans into jobs and training. Another important stimulus for veterans to enter and stay in training is recently enacted legislation (Public Law 92-540) approved October 24, 1972, which increased the scale of GI bill monthly rates. After peaking, the number is expected to decline 3% to 1,866,000 trainees in 1974.

The number of children receiving educational assistance under this program is expected to increase 16% in 1973, to 64,000, and then 9% in 1974, to 70,000 in training. Of the increases, 3,000 in 1973, and 6,500 in 1974 are attributable to increased and expanded benefits provided by Public Law 92-540, approved October 24, 1972.

The number of wives and widows participating in this program is projected to increase to 14,000 in 1973, and 16,000 in 1974, a 14% increase. Of these increases, 3,500 in 1973, and 4,500 in 1974 are attributable to increased and expanded benefits provided by Public Law 92-540.

The following table provides a comparison of trainees and costs for the three types of trainees mentioned above.

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover costs of tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. In 1974, the subsistence allowance previously paid from the compensation and pension appropriation will henceforth be funded under this appropriation. Because there is a direct relationship between the number of veterans on the compensation rolls and the number who receive training under this program, increases in the number of trainees are projected for both 1973 and 1974.

Grants are provided for specially adapted housing to veterans having suffered the loss of both feet, to certain blind veterans, and to paraplegic veterans. The number of grants is expected to increase for both 1973 and 1974. Public Law 92-341, approved and effective July 10, 1972, increased the maximum amount of each grant from $12,500 to $17,500.

An allowance of $2,800 is provided for disabled veterans and certain persons on active duty toward the purchase price of an automobile or other conveyance. In addition, the furnishing, maintenance, and replacement of adaptive equipment for such automobiles is provided to make the conveyance safe for use by a disabled beneficiary and to assist him in meeting the applicable standards of licensure of the proper licensing authority.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison of the special assistance benefits for disabled veterans.

The Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation is made up of the former appropriations for Military and naval insurance, applicable to World War I veterans, the National service life insurance, applicable to certain World War II veterans and the Servicemen's indemnities, applicable to Korean conflict veterans. The appropriation also provides supplemental funds for the Service-disabled veterans insurance fund and for the first time the Soldiers' and sailors' civil relief fund. Financing is mainly by congressional appropriation, transfers from the surplus funds of the Veterans special life insurance fund and by a small amount of premiums. Premium receipts are appropriated under 38 U.S.C. 719(b).

1. Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made to the U.S. Government life insurance fund as a reimbursement for claims traceable to extra hazards of military service. Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries for claims on war-risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I.

2. National service life insurance.—Payments are made to the National service life insurance fund as a reimbursement for costs of the following: (a) disability and death claims traceable to the extra hazards of service; (b) gratuitous insurance granted to certain persons who were unable to make application for National service life insurance; and (c) death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured was on active duty.

Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries on nonparticipating National service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities and on worthy exceptional cases that would not have been covered under the law in effect at the time of death.

The general decline in the policies in force is indicated in the following table:

	June 30, 1971, actual	June 30, 1972, actual	June 30, 1973, estimate	June 30, 1974, estimate

Amount of insurance (in thousands).....	$28,791	$27,882	$27,029	$26,149

3. Payment to Service-disabled veterans insurance fund.—Payments are made to the Service-disabled veterans insurance fund to supplement the premium and other receipts of the fund in amounts necessary to pay claims on insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

4. Payment to Soldiers' and sailors' civil relief fund.—A payment of $10 thousand is to be made to the Soldiers' and sailors' civil relief fund in 1974 to supplement the normal receipts of the fund which have been insufficient to meet obligations. This activity is being added for payment from Veterans insurance and indemnities since the VA is responsible under the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act for paying claims arising from the guarantee of premiums due on commercial life insurance policies. These are policies held by servicemen while they are in service and for 2 years after discharge (72 Stat. 487) which are not liquidated by the insured himself.

Financing.—It is planned to transfer $6 million in 1973 and $6 million in 1974 of the surplus retained earnings from the Veterans special life insurance fund to this account. These transfers eliminate the need for appropriated funds in 1974.

The mission of the medical system of the Veterans Administration is to provide the highest quality of health care to eligible veterans. In fulfilling that mission, the Veterans Administration operates the country's largest civilian hospital system. Between 1972 and 1974, the system will expand from 167 to 170 hospitals, from 75 to 85 VA nursing homes, and from 203 to 213 outpatient clinics. Average employment will rise by 8,319 in this period to 153,546. The total number of veterans who will receive some form of inpatient care financed by this appropriation will rise by nearly 17.4% over 1972 to 1.1 million. To help maintain its standards of medical excellence, the Veterans Administration trains medical students, physicians, and all other categories of health manpower, and conducts an extensive program of medical research (largely financed by the Medical and prosthetic research appropriation). VA also has engaged in an expanding program of demonstrations of new models of health organization and delivery, including progressive regionalization of its hospitals, improvements in design and location of outpatient clinics, and other improvements.

Specific increases in 1974 cover (a) activation expenses for the new hospitals at San Antonio, Tex.; Columbia, Mo.; Lexington, Ky.; White River Junction, Vt.; San Diego, Calif.; and Tampa, Fla.; (b) extension of new specialized medical services begun in 1973; (c) increased outpatient workloads; (d) 2,600 more beneficiaries treated in non-VA and VA nursing care facilities; (e) increased usage of drugs, utilities, communications, prosthetics, medical and dental supplies, and operating supplies; (f) wage and salary increases and other payroll adjustments including FICA; and (g) increased cost of operation and maintenance of additional facilities and space.

1. Maintenance and operation of VA facilities.—(a) VA hospital care.—(1) Medical bed sections.—This covers the operation of medical beds in neuropsychiatric and general hospitals. The estimated costs in 1974 are $6,446 thousand above 1973 estimates. Estimated operating levels are:

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1972, $3,893 thousand; 1973, $9,151 thousand; 1974, $1,054 thousand.

² Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undelivered orders, 1971, $1,325 thousand (1972 adjustments, -$124 thousand); 1972, $2,586 thousand; 1973, $2,287 thousand; 1974, $2,287 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the administration of all nonmedical veterans benefits through the Department of Veterans Benefits; data processing operations and communications systems through the Department of Data Management; and top management direction and support through agency-level staff offices.

Continued emphasis will be placed on providing veterans and their beneficiaries quality assistance. Benefit workloads are expected to be processed in a timely manner but at a reduced cost per work unit. This decrease in unit cost is related to an increase in employee productivity to be brought about by improvements in management and the work processes. This is in part reflected in the reduction of $5.8 million in the appropriation request in 1974 as compared to the 1973 level. More effective use of automated data processing is also expected to aid in providing better service to the veteran public.

1. General administration.—This activity contains the executive direction of the agency and several top level supporting offices. In addition, it covers the Board of Veterans Appeals which decides all cases of appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under veterans legislation.

2. Data management.—This activity manages all computer operations and provides technical support and assistance in the development of new computer and communications systems.

3. Veterans benefits.—Veterans' and dependents' claims for compensation, pensions, or other benefits are adjudicated and guardianship and fiduciary service is furnished helpless or incompetent veterans and minor dependents, as indicated by the following workloads (in thousands):

In 1974 there will be continuing efforts to encourage and assist Vietnam era veterans to use their vocational rehabilitation and educational benefits. This program provides grants to assist the States in the construction of State nursing facilities, and to remodel, modify, or alter existing hospital and domiciliary facilities in State homes for providing care and treatment to war veterans. Grants for State nursing facilities may not exceed 50% of the estimated cost of construction of each project and may not provide for more than 1½ beds per thousand veteran population in any State. Grants to assist the States to remodel, modify, or alter existing hospital or domiciliary facilities in State homes may not exceed 50% of the total cost of the project, nor may any one State receive in any year more than 20% of the amount appropriated for that year. As of July 31, 1972, funds in excess of $20 million have been obligated to help finance the construction of 2,891 nursing care beds in 17 States.

Legislation will be proposed in 1974 to increase the Government share of the total cost of the projects.

Grants are made to the Republic of the Philippines for the medical care and treatment, at the Veterans Memorial Hospital or at contract facilities, of Philippine Commonwealth Army veterans and new Philippine Scouts. Public Law 89-612 extended the program for another 5 years through June 30, 1973, and expanded reimbursement to include payments for hospital care for non-service-connected disabilities, if financial need exists. To assist the Republic of the Philippines in replacing and upgrading of equipment and in rehabilitating the physical plant and facilities of the Veterans Memorial Hospital, $500 thousand was appropriated in 1967, to remain available until expended. A total of $493 thousand has been expended through 1972, with the remaining $7 thousand available in 1973. Also, $100 thousand was authorized for each fiscal year through 1972 for making grants for medical research and training of health service personnel.

Legislation has been proposed to extend the program.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorized the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Federal National Mortgage Association (now the Government National Mortgage Association), as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 provided that the aggregate amount of participations issued for the account of any trustor may not exceed the amount authorized for that trustor in an appropriation act.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payment for insufficiencies in the amount required to be paid by trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are primarily comprised of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. For sales authorized in 1967, the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, established a permanent, indefinite appropriation to cover insufficiencies as may be required on account of those sales. For sales authorized in 1968, the respective appropriation acts, 1968 through 1973, established annual, definite appropriations for the payment of insufficiencies on account of sales authorized in that act. An appropriation of $4.4 million is proposed for 1974.

The definite insufficiency appropriation is reflected in the Direct loan revolving fund and Loan guaranty revolving fund.

Public enterprise funds:

To assist eligible veterans to obtain credit for the purchase or construction of homes, the Veterans Administration guarantees loans made by private lenders. The total number of guaranteed or insured loans closed is expected to increase from 352,000 in 1973 to 360,000 in 1974 bringing the total amount of guaranteed loans outstanding by the end of 1974 to $48 billion. The Loan guaranty revolving fund provides for expenses and revenues of property and loan transactions resulting from settlement of guaranty claims.

Budget program.—1. Real property acquisitions.—Private lenders who have acquired property as a result of foreclosure on defaulted guaranteed or insured loans may elect to convey that property to the Veterans Administration. The table below reflects this activity and excludes the amount of indebtedness established against the Veteran:

Total cost (in thousands).....	$185,305	$195,600	$212,125

2. Property improvements.—After conveyance of the property to the Veterans Administration, capital expenditures are often necessary to place the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

Total cost (in thousands).....	$18,762	$18,750	$18,750

3. Claims paid.—These payments are made to lenders in accordance with the Veterans Administration guaranty contract and represent the difference between the amount owed by the veteran on a defaulted loan and the value of the foreclosed property (as established by Veterans Administration). These payments are in addition to property acquisition costs shown in 1, above. The following table reflects this activity:

4. Repurchase of loans sold, net.—Pursuant to Veterans Administration Regulation 4600, dated March 22, 1962, the Administrator may sell with full recourse loans which have been created incident to the sale of Veterans Administration acquired properties. If the loans go into default, the Administrator may repurchase them.

5. Cash advances.—Vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government.

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default.

Total cost (in thousands).....	$10,733	$11,500	$11,900

9. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount absorbed by Veterans Administration incident to the sale of vendee accounts. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford a yield commensurate with market.

10. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which vendee accounts have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(e). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

Financing of participation sales insufficiencies is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income, cash proceeds from the sale of real property acquired as a result of foreclosure on guaranteed or insured loans, and repayment on mortgages made incident to such sales. It is estimated that $174.3 million in 1973 and $170.8 million in 1974 will be received from these sources. Also an estimated $352.9 million vendee loans will be sold in 1973 and an additional $361.3 million in 1974. In addition, budget authority of $5.0 million and $4.4 million will be required in 1973 and 1974 to meet participation sales insufficiencies.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development; Space, Science, Veterans, and certain other independent agencies Appropriation Act, 1973 (Public Law 92-383 provided that the unobligated balances including retained earnings of the Direct loan revolving fund shall be available for transfer to the Loan guaranty revolving fund. No transfers are expected in 1973 or 1974.

Direct loans are made to veterans to purchase, construct, or improve homes, to purchase farms on which there are farm residences to be occupied by the veterans as their homes; or to construct, alter, repair, or improve farm dwellings to be occupied by the veterans as their homes.

Such loans are made only in rural areas, small cities, and towns where private credit for the making of guaranteed loans is and has been generally unavailable. The maximum term is 30 years and the maximum loan amount is $21 thousand except in high cost areas where such a limitation is inadequate. In such areas, the Administrator is authorized to increase the maximum amount up to $25 thousand. The interest rate is the same as the rate allowable for guaranteed loans (38 U.S.C. 1811, as amended).

Budget program.—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Public Law 91-506 removed the terminal date heretofore in effect on the authority to make direct loans. The same law revived the expired unused loan entitlement of World War II and Korean conflict veterans and provided that direct lending authority and veterans eligibility would be open ended until their entitlement is used.

Average per loan.....	$15,177	$15,600	$16,400
Amount (in thousands).....	$49,251	$57,720	$60,680

2. Cash advances and repurchases, vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary subsequently to advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government. These advances are added to unpaid loan balances. In addition, vendee loans sold with full recourse may be repurchased if they go into default.

3. Property improvements.—Properties are acquired by foreclosure on, or the voluntary conveyance of, title to properties securing loans owned by the Veterans Administration. Capital expenditures are often necessary to put the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures.

Number of properties acquired.....	522	500	500
Average per property.....	$697	$800	$850
Total cost (in thousands).....	$364	$400	$425

4. Interest on borrowings.—Interest expense is accrued monthly. These accruals are computed on the interest bearing capital of the fund and adjusted for the unexpended balance of the fund.

5. Operating expenses, general.—Includes a variety of miscellaneous expenses borne by the Government incident to closing, and liquidating loans.

6. Property management expense.—Includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers, and maintenance of the property in a salable condition:

Average number of properties owned.....	420	420	415
Average cost per property.....	$505	$585	$625
Total cost (in thousands).....	$212	$245	$260

7. Sales expense.—Includes brokers' fees and advertising costs incident to the sale of property owned by Veterans Administration and averages approximately 5 percent of selling price.

Number of sales.....	568	505	505
Average cost per sale.....	$469	$515	$545
Total cost (in thousands).....	$266	$260	$275

8. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which direct loans have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(e). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

Financing of participation sales insufficiencies is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
Interest accrued on participation certificates for which insufficiencies are authorized.....	14,913	11,283	8,551
Interest on equal amount of loans in the pool.....	-11,588	-8,100	-5,400
Insufficiency.....	3,325	3,183	3,151
Financed by:
Investment income from Participation sales fund.....	-1,283	-1,172	-1,900
Retained earnings reserved for payment of insufficiencies.....	-2,042	-2,011	-1,251
Budget authority.....	-----	-----	-----

9. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount absorbed by VA incident to the sale of direct loans. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford a yield commensurate with the market.

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income and repayments on direct loans made to veterans. It is estimated that $151.7 million in 1973 and $127.0 million in 1974 will be received from these sources. In addition, it is estimated that $250.0 million will be realized in 1973 from the sale of direct loans, and $56.0 million in 1974.

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $86,650 thousand in 1973 and it is estimated sales will be $91,975 thousand in 1974.

Financing.—No appropriation by the Congress will be required for the operation of the Veterans Canteen Service during 1974. Operations will be financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service. Funds in excess of the needs of the Service totaling $12,068 thousand have been paid to the Treasury as of June 30, 1972.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses. Retained earnings are required for necessary working capital, therefore, no funds are available for payment to the Treasury during 1974.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities (38 U.S.C. 722). Administrative expenses are paid from the General operating expenses appropriation.

1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as new deaths occur among the increasing number of policyholders.

2. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

3. Matured endowments.—Policies having this plan of insurance are now starting to mature.

1. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1971 actual	June 30, 1972 actual	June 30, 1973 estimate	June 30, 1974 estimate
Number of policies.....	114,874	129,262	140,000	148,000
Insurance in force.....	$1,026,839	$1,161,706	$1,262,364	$1,337,356

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are derived from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $6.5 million in 1973 and $3.5 million in 1974.

Operating results and financial condition.—Because premium and other receipts continue to be insufficient to cover operations, the deficit is expected to continue to increase with capital impairment reaching an estimated $83.4 million by June 30, 1974.

The capital of the fund consists of $4.5 million with $1 million transferred from the Readjustment benefits appropriation in 1954 and $3.5 million appropriated directly in 1952, 1956, and 1958.

This fund finances claims arising from the guarantee of premiums due on commercial life insurance policies held by servicemen while they are in service and for 2 years after discharge (72 Stat. 487). The Government guarantees the repayment of any indebtedness not liquidated by the insured himself. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation, General operating expenses.

Budget program.—Insurance program.—Claims paid, on application for coverage submitted and approved prior to October 6, 1942, are not reimbursable to the fund. Loans receivable are established for any payments made on applications for coverage submitted after that date, since these payments are reimbursable to the fund.

Financing.—Payment of claims against this fund is financed from collections of loans receivable, revenue, and appropriations as needed. The last appropriation to this account was made in 1966 through Public Law 89-128. It is anticipated that present unobligated balances and additional income will fund this program only through 1973; therefore, a payment of $10 thousand from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation will be made in 1974.

Operating results and financial condition.—The payment of claims has continually resulted in expenses in excess of the small revenue of the fund, thereby steadily increasing the deficit to an estimated $2 million through 1974.

This fund finances payment of claims and administrative costs on nonparticipating insurance policies issued after April 30, 1965, and prior to May 3, 1966, under the three insurance programs: (1) Service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) non-service-disabled insurance—established by provisions of the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended (38 U.S.C. 725 (b), (c)), to extend a new opportunity for insurance coverage to disabled veterans who no longer were eligible for other Government insurance.

Each program is self-contained and premiums may be adjusted to insure that each is self-sustaining, as required by law. For this purpose, separate accounting and actuarial records are maintained for each program to determine the individual program costs. Payments are made to the General operating expenses appropriation to cover the administrative costs of processing claims, and maintaining the accounts.

Budget program—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries will continue to increase as deaths occur among policyholders.

2. Disability claims.—Payments to individuals who have purchased total disability coverage and who subsequently become totally disabled.

4. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

5. Payments to General operating expenses appropriation.—Payments to cover the administrative cost of processing claims and maintaining the accounts.

7. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating insurance policies issued before January 1, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1951 (38 U.S.C., sec. 723). Policyholders were given the right (72 Stat. 1716) to convert to a permanent plan of insurance or to a new form of term insurance which may not be renewed beyond age 50 but which costs less than the unlimited term insurance. Policyholders under all plans of VSLI may purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of an additional premium. Administrative expenses are paid from the appropriation General operating expenses.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Payments to surviving beneficiaries continue to increase as deaths occur among policyholders.

2. Disability claims.—Payments to individuals who have purchased total disability coverage and who subsequently become totally disabled began in 1960.

3. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

6. Policy loans made.—The policyholders who converted their insurance from term to permanent plan were subsequently entitled to borrow up to 94% of the cash value of the new policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1971 actual	June 30, 1972 actual	June 30, 1973 estimate	June 30, 1974 estimate

Insurance in force.....	$5,384,314	$5,340,021	$5,285,000	$5,225,000

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have been reduced by payments of a special dividend and payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund.

This fund is used to make loans up to $200 (Public Law 92-540) to disabled veterans eligible for vocational rehabilitation who are without sufficient funds to meet their expenses (38 U.S.C. 1507). Repayments are used to make new loans.

Increased loan activity in this fund is projected in both 1973 and 1974 which is based on an increase in the number of trainees for both years.

Administrative expenses are borne by the appropriation, General operating expenses.

This fund finances the payments of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act of 1965 (38 U.S.C. Sec. 765-776) as amended, and any expenses incurred by the Veterans Administration in administration of the act.

Budget program.—1. Premium payments.—The payment of premiums to private insurance companies in 1973 and 1974 is expected to be sizably less than in 1972. This is due to a decrease in contributions for the extra hazards of service in addition to withholdings from service pay.

2. Payment to General operating expenses appropriation.—There will be little change in the administrative costs in 1973 and 1974 over 1972. Most of these costs are attributable to personal services.

Financing.—Premium costs are met by withholding from the salaries of insured members their share of the cost of the insurance and by contributions of amounts representing the extra hazard costs from appropriations of the departments involved. The withholding will be considerably less in 1973 and 1974 due to a 15% reduction in members premiums.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5011, the Supply fund finances on a reimbursable basis the cost of warehouse inventories at depots and field stations, and selected items of equipment procured centrally. It also finances, on the same basis, items and services to other Federal agencies who either request or are assigned to the Veterans Administration for support.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) Maintenance of depot and field station inventories; (2) maintenance and operation of two supply depots and one subdepot; (3) a publications depot including printing services to VA installations on a centralized basis; (4) operation of a service and reclamation program operating out of the supply depots; (5) centralized periodical procurement and library cataloging; and (6) a marketing center or central buying office.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service and distribution of printed matter to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant, and from commercial sources.

The marketing center is responsible for determining the levels of inventories to be carried at depots and acquiring stock to maintain such levels. It is also responsible for the central contracting of items not available from other Government sources for VA installations and other Government agencies as may be determined economical or advisable.

The supply fund does not finance costs for the operation and administration of supply activities at field stations or in central office not directly related to the Supply fund. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations and are not an expense of the Supply fund.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply fund and Supply fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving the goods and services.

Operating results and financial conditions.—The fund operated at a loss of $248 thousand in fiscal year 1972 and carried forward a loss of $8 thousand from prior years. During the past 10 years the fund has shown a profit of $150 thousand or one-hundredth of 1% of the total ($1.4 billion) cost of goods sold in the same period.

This fund (72 Stat. 1154) was established in 1940 as the financing mechanism for World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program authorized by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Because issuance of new policies ended in 1951 the insurance in force will continue to decline. The general decline in the activity of the fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

OTHER INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

Action was established as an independent agency on July 1, 1971, under the authority of the President's Reorganization Plan No. 1. The agency brings together a number of volunteer programs, previously administered by other agencies, including the Peace Corps, VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America), Foster Grandparents (FGP), Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), and the Senior Corps of Retired Executives and Active Corps of Executives (SCORE/ACE).

Funds for Action are requested in two appropriations: (1) Peace Corps, Act on international programs; and (2) Action, Operating expenses, domestic programs (VISTA, FGP, RSVP, and others). These appropriations each contain a share of the common administrative support for the agency. An appropriate share of these costs is included in the program support activity in each appropriation total. Special schedules of agencywide administrative costs have been prepared and are presented following the regular appropriation schedules.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

PEACE CORPS, ACTION INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1973 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for the period from Oct. 15, 1972, to Feb. 28, 1973.

This appropriation finances the Peace Corps, one of the component programs of Action. The funds provide for the training of the volunteers, their activities overseas, and the program staff, both in the United States and abroad, required to support them.

1. Training.—Each volunteer is given training designed to provide a knowledge of the country in which he will work, develop his language abilities and assure physical fitness for service overseas. To provide the most realistic training environment and experience, approximately 80% of all volunteers in 1974 will receive some portion of their training in the host countries where they will serve.

2. Volunteers.—The 1974 budget supports a total strength of 1,291 trainees and 5,974 volunteers in the field June 30, 1974. The planned assignment of these volunteers is as follows:

	June 30, 1972 (actual)	June 30, 1973 (planned)	June 30, 1974 (planned)
Africa	2,238	2,268	2,222

North Africa, Near East, Asia, and Pacific	2,837	3,026	2,742
Total	6,894	7,493	7,265

Volunteers are working in five principal kinds of assignments at the request of host countries. Approximately 43% are engaged in education at all levels and 20% are serving in agricultural development. About 10% are involved in public works and professional services; 6% in health programs; 5% in rural, urban, and business development projects; and 16% in various other projects.

3. Program support.—This activity includes salaries, travel, rents, and other costs associated with staff operations in the United States and abroad. In addition, it includes a share of agencywide combined administrative costs.

This appropriation finances volunteer programs within the United States. The 1974 request includes funds to develop new programs as well as to continue established programs. The programs included are as follows:

1. VISTA and related full-time volunteer programs.—VISTA places individual volunteers or teams in non-profit organizations to work in projects of direct help to the poor. For 1974, 4,203 volunteer man-years will be engaged in alleviating problems in the areas of health, economic development, housing, manpower development, social services, and community planning. Continued emphasis will be placed on skilled volunteers, structured training, and well-defined project assignments under regular supervision.

The related full-time programs place cost-sharing volunteers to assist in various antipoverty settings. Under these programs volunteer costs will be borne by a private or government sponsor, other than Action, while program development, specialized recruitment, and related costs are funded by Action.

2. UYA and developmental programs.—The University Year for Action (UYA) program involves college students working as full-time volunteers in a variety of projects to eliminate poverty in their own communities. The volunteers receive college credit and living allowances. The universities develop projects, recruit volunteers, and administer the programs. The funds requested provide for 2,000 cost-shared volunteers by the end of 1974.

Developmental programs in 1974 will emphasize the use of full- and part-time volunteers on projects involving State and local governments, service to the elderly, health, and short-term projects in a variety of areas.

3. Older Americans.—The Foster Grandparents Program utilizes grants to agencies to provide opportunities for low-income older persons to serve needy children, usually in an institutional setting. The funds requested for 1974 will provide 16,400 foster grandparents serving over 61,100 needy children.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) utilizes grants to agencies to provide opportunities for elderly people to provide a wide variety of volunteer services to their communities. Volunteers are reimbursed only for out-of-pocket expenses, such as transportation and meals, incident to their volunteer activities.

4. Service corps of retired executives and active corps of executives (SCORE/ACE).—This program utilizes both retired and active executives to provide business management expertise to small businesses and nonprofit organizations who are in need of business counseling. By the end of 1974, there will be 8,300 volunteers in these programs.

5. Program support for domestic programs.—This activity includes salaries, travel, rents, and other costs associated with the operations of regional offices within the United States, and of personnel in Washington, D.C., dealing exclusively with domestic programs. In addition, it includes a share of Action agencywide combined administrative costs.

The Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for the Spanish-Speaking People was created on December 30, 1969, by Public Law 91-181. The primary functions of the Committee are to advise Federal departments and agencies regarding appropriate action to be taken to help assure that Federal programs are providing the assistance needed by Spanish-speaking and Spanish-surnamed Americans; and to advise Federal departments and agencies on the development and implementation of comprehensive and coordinated policies, plans, and programs focusing on the special problems and needs of Spanish-speaking and Spanish-surnamed Americans, and on priorities thereunder.

1. The Cabinet Committee provides data on the Spanish-speaking Americans to both private and public groups. This data is presented in the form of statistics; guides on Spanish-speaking organizations and manpower, or reports on past accomplishments. Several studies are made in conjunction with other Federal agencies such as the Small Business Administration, Bureau of the Census, and the Department of Labor. Information is also disseminated through a newsletter and through answers to individual questions.

2. The Office of Program Operations has assisted in developing three Spanish-speaking organizations with national capabilities that will serve the Spanish-speaking people in the same way that similar organizations have served other minorities.

3. Public Law 91-181 established the Advisory Council to the Cabinet Committee. The Council meets periodically to advise the Committee on such matters as the Chairman of the Committee may request, such as comments on the establishment of voluntary committees in each State and providing information on community needs.

The Civil Aeronautics Board fixes rates of subsidy compensation to promote the development of air transportation to the extent and of the quality required for the commerce of the United States, the Postal Service, and the national defense. The Board makes subsidy payments to subsidy-eligible certificated air carriers who have demonstrated a statutory need therefor. Subsidy is provided to cover the carriers' operating loss incurred under honest, economical and efficient management and to provide it an opportunity to earn a fair return (after taxes) on investment used and useful in the air transportation services.

The following table reflects the estimated program amounts becoming due finally for each year, together with the adjustments between years:

1. Assuring a merit work force.—This activity consists of (a) keeping personnel policies current; (b) staffing for Federal employment; (c) assuring fitness and suitability in Federal employment; and (d) improving personnel management. In 1974, the Commission will intensify efforts to strengthen equal employment opportunity programs under the Equal Employment Opportunity Act (Public Law 92-261); will devote additional resources to carrying out the provisions of the Prevailing Rate Act (Public Law 92-392); and will continue development of a Federal Personnel Management Information System.

Workloads are reflected in the following table:

National agency check and inquiry cases processed.....	274,621	292,000	287,000

2. Providing retirement and insurance benefits.—The Commission administers retirement, group life insurance, and health benefits programs for Federal employees. Principal functions include adjudicating annuity, death, refund, and deposit claims; making payments to annuitants and other claimants; negotiating with private carriers to provide the insurance and health benefits authorized; auditing the records and operations of insurance underwriters; and maintaining the trust funds established for financing the programs. Increased funds are required to process expanding workloads, provide more thorough audit and negotiation procedures and improve services to the public and to annuitants.

3. Strengthening State and local personnel administration.—The purpose of the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970, as administered by the Commission, is to strengthen and improve the personnel resources of State and local governments. The Commission provides grant moneys and technical assistance to develop and encourage personnel administration programs consistent with prescribed merit employment principles. Additional resources are required in 1974 to provide technical assistance primarily in the areas of equal employment opportunity.

4. Other programs.—This activity consists of three functions: (1) The President's Commission on Personnel Interchange, (2) The President's Commission on White House Fellows, and (3) Administration of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, as amended. The Civil Service Commission provides administrative support to the two presidential commissions, and, under provisions of the Voting Rights Act, maintains lists of eligible voters and appoints examiners and election observers at the request of the Attorney General. In 1974, requirements for Administration of the Voting Rights Act are expected to decrease significantly.

FUND—Continued

Among other things, Public Law 91-93 provides for financing of current year's costs of the unfunded liability created since its enactment on October 20, 1969. Any statute which authorizes (1) new or liberalized benefits, (2) extension of retirement coverage, or (3) increases in pay is deemed to authorize appropriations to the fund to finance the unfunded liability created by such statute. Also, the Secretary of the Treasury is required to make annual payments from general revenues into the retirement fund on the basis of a sliding scale of percentages of an amount equivalent to: (1) Interest on the unfunded liability, and (2) annuity disbursements attributable to military service. The Civil Service Commission, at the end of each year, beginning in 1971, notifies the Secretary of the Treasury of the amount of payment to be made to the retirement fund and reports such sums to the President and the Congress. The required percentage of the total amount for 1973 is 30% and for 1974, 40% of such amount.

In addition it is proposed that the U.S. Postal Service reimburse the civil service retirement and disability fund for increases in unfunded liability which result from increases in pay and retirement benefits authorized for Postal Service employees on or after May 1, 1971.

Under authority of 5 U.S.C. 1304 and other laws and executive orders, the Civil Service Commission conducts full field security investigations for other departments and agencies and performs training activities and miscellaneous services for Federal agencies and State and local governments on a reimbursable basis.

Budget program.—Because work on some investigations will be started in 1 year and completed in another and since some training course developmental work will be accomplished in 1 year with the course being presented in another, work in process is recognized as an asset of the fund. Under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970, the Commission admits State and local government employees to reimbursable training courses. Miscellaneous reimbursable services provided to other Federal agencies and to State and local governments are part of regular ongoing functions funded under the Commission's Salaries and expenses appropriation and are included under that account.

In 1974 workloads are expected to increase in both investigations and training, to include 6,450 additional full field cases and 800 more training sessions. These increases are based on forecasts of agency requirements.

Chief workloads of the two major activities are displayed below:

The fund finances the cost of health benefits for: (1) Active employees, (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors (5 U.S.C. 8901-8913), and (3) the related expenses of the Commission in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants on June 30 are as follows:

	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
Active employees.....	2,209,000	2,253,200	2,248,100
Annuitants.....	627,500	674,300	737,600

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, 1% is added to the rates developed by health benefit carriers for administrative expense, and 3% is added for a contingency reserve held by the Commission for each carrier. The Commission is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

An amendment to the Federal Employees Health Benefits law (Public Law 91-418), approved September 25, 1970, provides for increased Government contributions to health benefits premiums beginning in January 1971. The new Government share is equal to 40% of the current unweighted average of the high-option premiums of six large plans, but not more than 50% of the premium cost for the particular enrollment. The amendment also provides for annual adjustments, as needed, to maintain the Government's share of the cost at the 40% level, whenever any of the six plans revise premium rates.

Financing.—The fund is financed by: (1) Withholdings from active employees and annuitants; (2) agency contributions for active employees, appropriated to agencies; and (3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to the Commission.

Operating results.—Funds advanced to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods. About $9.5 million unused administrative funds were transferred to the contingency reserve in 1972. The contingency reserves are retained by the Commission and paid to carriers, as necessary, to defray future rate increases or to provide increased benefits.

This fund finances insurance premiums paid to private insurance companies for Federal employees group life insurance (5 U.S.C. 8701-8716) and expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administering the program. Separate cost data is maintained for employees regular group life insurance, an additional $10 thousand authorized in 1967, and insurance for members of former beneficial associations.

Budget program.—The status of the basic (regular and optional) life insurance program on June 30 is as follows:

Life insurance in force (in billions of dollars):	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
On active employees ¹	39.9	41.3	41.5
On retired employees.....	7.2	8.2	9.4

Annuitants.....	694	730	784

¹ Excludes equal amount of accidental death and dismemberment insurance.

Financing.—Premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding 27½ cents biweekly from the salaries of employees, for each $1 thousand of life insurance and a 50% matching by employer agencies; for the optional program by withholding from employees' salaries or retirees' annuities; and for the beneficial association program by direct collection from members. Most of the difference between receipts and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. The status of reserves on June 30 is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Held in special contingency reserves:	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
By basic program insurer.....	200	200	-----

Held in trust by U.S. Treasury.....	1,092	1,279	1,674
Total reserves.....	1,298	1,485	1,680

The special contingency reserve with the insurer for the regular and optional insurance program is currently limited to $200 million. It is proposed that in 1974 a U.S. Treasury letter of credit be substituted for the special contingency reserve. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Employees' Life Insurance Fund. The operations of the insurer for the regular and optional life insurance program to June 30 each year follow (in millions of dollars):

This fund, created by the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act (Public Law 86-724), finances: (1) the cost of health benefits for retired employees and survivors who enroll in the Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; (2) the contribution to retired employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and (3) expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administering the program.

Budget program.—The fund is available without fiscal year limitation. Amounts contributed by the Government shall be paid into the fund from annual appropriations. Numbers of participants on June 30 are as follows:

Uniform plan.....	71,400	69,340	67,340
Private plans.....	141,440	136,910	132,510
Total.....	212,840	206,250	199,850

Financing.—The fund is financed by contributions from those participants enrolled in the Government-sponsored plan and by Government contributions. Effective January 1, 1973, all retired employees and survivors enrolled in either basic coverage only or major medical coverage only in the uniform plan will be given basic plus major medical coverage. At the same time the cost to the participant will be reduced. The Government's share will remain the same as at present. The special contingency reserve with the carrier of the uniform plan is currently limited to $3.4 million at the end of the policy year but will be reduced to $250 thousand at the end of succeeding policy years.

Operating results.—There will be an estimated $34.0 million contingency reserve in the fund at the end of 1974 as compared with an estimated $35.5 million in 1973.

Public Law 92-28, the 1971 amendment to the Wagner-O'Day Act, encourages the gainful employment of blind and other severely handicapped persons by making it possible for them to supply products and services to Federal agencies on a well-organized basis. The law establishes a full-time staff for the committee to administer the program, stipulates certain qualifications which workshops must possess, and provides for central nonprofit agencies to assist the committee in its work. These changes will increase by several times the number of workshops participating in the program, and the number of goods and services which the workshops may sell to Federal agencies on a preferential basis.

Committee staff will supervise the selection, development, and assignment of new items and services, assist in establishing prices, and continuously audit the qualifications and performance of the workshops.

noncommercial radio and television broadcasting and assist in establishing a public broadcasting service more widely available throughout the Nation.

The Corporation is financed mainly by Federal funds, but also receives grants and contributions from non-Federal sources. In 1972, contributions from private sources totaled $5.2 million, and in 1973 are expected to total $5 million. In 1973 the Corporation estimates it will make Community Service Grants to approximately 147 licensees operating 242 public television stations and to the licensees operating 166 public radio stations. The Corporation will also support production of quality public television and radio programs through grants to the Children's Television Workshop (for the production of "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company"), to Family Communications Inc. (for production of "Mister Rogers Neighborhood"), and to National Public Radio. The Corporation also makes grants to radio and television stations throughout the country for the production of programs for national, regional, or local use.

In accordance with the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967, the Corporation provides financial support for national interconnection systems serving television and radio stations. Through grants to the Public Broadcasting Service, the Corporation in 1973 will support interconnection of more than 235 television stations by yearend with program service averaging 30 hours per week. Through grants to National Public Radio, the Corporation in 1972 will provide an interconnection service for more than 140 radio stations with service averaging approximately 24.6 hours per week.

1. General fund loans.—Appropriations for 30-year interest-bearing loans from the U.S. Treasury are made available for financing construction of the general public works program of the District of Columbia, including school construction (72 Stat. 183); for the District of Columbia's contribution to the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority for the city's share of construction costs of the rail rapid transit system authorized by the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 (83 Stat. 320); and for education facilities for the Federal City College and the Washington Technical Institute (80 Stat. 1434). The loans to the general fund through the year ending June 30, 1974, are appropriated under a borrowing authority which is related to the ability of the District of Columbia to repay. The loans made under this authorization may not cause the general fund debt service to exceed 9% of local revenues, including the Federal payment credited to the fund in 1972 (84 Stat. 1930). Exception to this ceiling in the amount of $166.5 million is provided for loans for the District of Columbia contribu-

¹ Revenue consists of fees in connection with each loan guaranteed and interest on funds invested (85 Stat. 178).

Public Law 92-70 created an Emergency Loan Guarantee Board composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, as Chairman, the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The Board was given authority to guarantee, or make commitments to guarantee, loans to major business enterprises. The maximum amount for outstanding loans guaranteed shall not exceed $250 million at any time.

In accordance with provisions of section 9(a) of the act, there has been established in the Treasury an emergency loan guarantee fund to be administered by the Board. The fund shall be available for the payment of the expenses of the Board and for fulfilling the obligations of the Board under the act. The fund is credited with fees prescribed by the Board in connection with each loan guaranteed under the act.

The Export Expansion Finance Act of 1971, signed by the President on August 17, 1971, among other things, removed the Export-Import Bank's receipts and disbursements from the budget totals of the U.S. Government, as of August 17, 1971. Schedules showing estimates for the period August 17, 1971 to June 30, 1972, 1973, and for 1974 and the proposed language for the 1974 appropriation act are in part IV of this appendix.

The removal of the Bank's receipts and disbursements from the budget totals reduced the loans outstanding and balances of borrowing authority in the Government's budget accounts, although Eximbank's status as a Government corporation does not in any way change and its commitments and guarantees still carry the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. The amounts affected by the conversion are as follows:

The Corporation was created by Congress for the purpose of protecting bank depositors and to foster sound practices in the Nation's banking system. As of June 30, 1972, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $4.9 billion. The entire fund is considered a reserve for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for the payment of administrative and insurance expenses. Income is accumulated principally from assessments paid by insured banks and interest from its investments in obligations of the U.S. Treasury. The insurance fund is strengthened by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the Treasurer of the United States. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1973 and 1974.

² Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by Congress to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. Initially deposit insurance was limited to $2,500 per depositor. This protection increased to $5 thousand in 1935, $10 thousand in 1950, $15 thousand in 1966, and finally in 1969 to the present maximum of $20 thousand. In order to accomplish its varied functions in the protection of bank depositors the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. A basic program for examining State banks which are not members of the Federal Reserve System and liquidation activities attendant to closed insured banks constitute the major portion of the Corporation's operations.

Income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government securities. As of June 30, 1972, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $4.9 billion. The entire fund represents the accumulated net income of the Corporation and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriation are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations.

The insurance fund is supported by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the U.S. Treasurer. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1973 and 1974.

The estimates for 1973 and 1974 in these statements make no provision for losses and expenses which might occur by reason of the closing of any bank after June 30, 1972, because there is no sound basis for predicting which insured banks will close, if any, after that date.

Title I of the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970, Public Law 91-351, authorized a new program in the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. Under this program, appropriated funds were used by the 12 Federal Home Loan Banks to adjust the effective interest rate charged by each bank on lending to member savings and loan associations, thereby promoting an orderly flow of funds into residential construction.

The program was initiated in 1971 with an appropriation of $85 million. An additional $62.5 million was appropriated in 1972. The program is being phased out in 1973; therefore, no appropriation is shown in 1974.

Budget program.—The Board's budget is based on seven activities.

Examination and supervision of Federal home loan banks.—The board examines and supervises the operations of the Federal home loan banks.

Examination and supervision of Federal and State-chartered institutions.—The financial condition and operations of each insured institution are analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on, cooperatively, under arrangements made with the respective State authorities. Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and such uninsured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System as are not examined by the State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter when required by the Board.

Chartering Federal and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion into Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of the insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

Analysis of operations.—An analysis is made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, the character and volume of mortgage lending, as well as selective review of geographical or community areas and phases of operations and certain analyses of trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including volume of activity and interest rates of all major types of mortgage lenders.

Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting, budgetary, and financial reporting; internal budget control; and fiscal organization and management. These services also include general housekeeping and operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

Acquisition and construction of a building in the District of Columbia.—The Board is authorized by Public Law 89-754, 80 Stat. 1255, 1293, approved November 3, 1966, to acquire property and construct a building in the District of Columbia to provide quarters and facilities for the Board. Under the law, the Board is required to prepare and submit an annual budget program for the building as provided in title I of the Government Corporation Control Act.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the above activities include administrative expenses under annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $8.9 million in 1973 to $9.6 million in 1974. Nonadministrative expenses covering examination and supervision of savings and loan associations are discussed separately below.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision is the primary arm of the FHLBB and of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) in protecting its assets against depletion caused by the financial failure of any of the savings and loan associations which it insures. It is the paramount duty of the Office to determine if problems exist and to ascertain the nature of the problem well before the threat of failure is presented to the FSLIC—the classic discovery function. The Office's responsibility extends to all institutions insured by the FSLIC—Federal associations, State-chartered associations, and other institutions of the savings and loan type insured by the FSLIC—as well as noninsured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System not subject to State supervision. Moreover, such responsibility includes the all-important problem-solving function which follows upon the discovery process.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision performs its function by examining, monitoring, and supervising institutions. The examining and monitoring process is achieved through regular periodic and special examinations plus reviewing association reports. The quality of an association's management, its financial condition and the adherence to Board regulations and policies are reviewed. Examinations are funded, in part, by charges to the associations.

The purpose of the supervisory process is to prevent the development and/or continuance of unsafe and unsound practices in these associations and to correct such practices where they exist. A review and analysis of the financial and other reports submitted by the associations and the examination reports prepared under the direction of the chief examiners of the respective district offices is an important part of the entire process.

The authority for examination and supervision of insured savings and loan associations was expanded by the Financial Institutions Supervisory Act of 1966, which became effective October 16, 1966. The Savings and Loan Holding Company Amendments of 1967, effective February 14, 1968, imposed additional examination and supervisory responsibilities on the Office with respect to savings and loan holding companies and their subsidiaries.

The 12 Federal home loan banks stabilize and strengthen the member institutions which own all their capital stock. The banks obtain funds advanced to members primarily from public issuances of consolidated obligations. Authority to borrow from the Treasury was increased from $1 to $4 billion by Public Law 91-151, approved December 23, 1969. No borrowings are anticipated in 1973 or 1974, but funds are available if market conditions so warrant. (Transactions of the banks are shown in the annexed budgets at the end of this document.)

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act (12 U.S.C. 1724 et seq.) to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection thus afforded, which insures savers in member associations against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $20 thousand, may be provided through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings account holders in the event of liquidation. The former course of action, which results in complete protection to each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making contributions or by purchasing all or a part of the association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Wherever possible, preventive measures are taken to eliminate the necessity of liquidation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as receiver or coreceiver upon request of State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions. In addition, the Corporation, upon determination by the Board (under legislation effective July 1968, Public Law 90-389) is empowered to act, even retroactively, as sole receiver in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides certain administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation and the Federal home loan banks.

1. Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—In carrying out its role of protecting savings in insured savings and loan associations the Corporation has settled 100 cases since its creation 38 years ago. Actual losses sustained and provision for losses to June 30, 1972, have amounted to $185.5 million representing approximately 7.6% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information with respect to all of the insurance cases is summarized in the following table (dollars in thousands):

2. Payments to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 25% of the administrative expenses of the Board as a direct charge and 49% of the remaining administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1974 in return for services and facilities by the Board and staff offices. The Corporation will also pay 49% of the Washington office expenses and 25% of the District offices expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision for supervisory services by that office.

5. Other expenses.—Provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the work-out of contribution agreements, the disposition of assets purchased from, and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to the Treasury, together with an additional $43 million for the use of the funds.

The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, with a limitation of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowings under this authorization have ever been made.

The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any 1 year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured members.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock, and to establish a reserve for contingencies of $3,060.8 million as of June 30, 1972. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934, of $3,410.3 million, have been applied as follows (in millions of dollars):

	Amount	Percent
Expense.....	121.0	3.5
Insurance losses sustained and provision for losses.....	185.5	5.4
Return on capital stock to U.S. Treasury.....	43.0	1.3
Reserve for contingencies.....	3,060.8	89.8
Total.....	3,410.3	100.0

Operating expenses (funded) for 1974 are estimated at $30.4 million, consisting of administrative expenses of the Corporation of $740 thousand, $11.6 million for services rendered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, $10 million for contributions to insured institutions, and $8.1 million for other expenses.

Net operating income for 1974, which is expected to be $298.1 million, will be retained by the Corporation to meet future contingencies.

Section 404(b) of the National Housing Act, as amended, requires each insured institution to pay a basic insurance premium in an amount equal to one-twelfth of 1% of its savings accounts. Public Law 87-210, which became effective January 1, 1962, as amended, requires annual payment to the Corporation of an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year, less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The law also provides for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayment of each insured association at a rate equal to the average realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio.

Public Law 87-210 further provides for the establishment of a primary reserve which shall be the general reserve of the Corporation and a secondary reserve to which shall be credited additional premiums. When the sum of these two reserves equals 2% of total savings, the cash payment of the regular premiums and the prepayments cease and the Corporation commences transferring the secondary reserve to the primary reserve by crediting each insured association's accumulated prepayments to its regular premium liability. (This credit is reflected on the analysis of changes in Government equity statement below.) If the aggregate of the two reserves drops to below 1.60% (changed from 1.75% by Public Law 92-213), the prepayments and the cash payment of the regular premium resume and continue until the 2% ratio is again reached. The law requires the Corporation to accumulate a primary reserve (as of the close of any December 31) equal to 2% of the total amount of all accounts of insured members before collection of regular premiums may be discontinued, provided, however, that each insured institution has paid regular premiums for at least 20 years.

Public Law 91-151, approved December 23, 1969, removed references to creditor obligations from the computation of the basic insurance premium and the base on which the required reserve levels are determined. Under this law, the maximum required level of primary and secondary reserves was deemed to have been reached on December 31, 1969. As of the end of 1974 it is anticipated that the primary reserve will reach $2,182.2 million or 0.9% of estimated savings of $244.4 billion and that the primary and secondary reserves will be at a level of $3,567.2 million or 1.46% of these estimated savings.

Public Law 91-152, approved December 24, 1969, provided that savings losses during 1966 recaptured in later years would not be reflected as savings growth on which the liability for payments to the secondary reserve is based. This measure amended prior law which already extended such treatment to losses occurring in 1967 and later years. Refunds due to this legislation are reflected as item 4 on the program and financing schedule.

The Federal Maritime Commission administers the shipping statutes which require regulation of the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. Its objective for 1974 is to achieve compliance with the statutes through an effective regulatory program. This will entail continuing and comprehensive analysis of the activities of conferences, carriers, and others subject to Commission jurisdiction, as they relate to the following program areas: ocean freight rates; section 15 agreements; malpractices; foreign discriminatory actions; freight forwarders; terminal operators; passenger vessel certification; and oil pollution responsibility. In addition, the Commission will be actively involved in development of procedures to determine appropriate rate bases for carriage of military cargo. These program activities will require a modest appropriation increase in 1974.

judgment such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of commerce. Under the authority of Executive Order 11491 of October 29, 1969, as amended by Executive Order 11616, dated August 26, 1971, the Service also makes its mediation and conciliation facilities available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes.

1. Mediation and conciliation of labor disputes.—During 1972, dispute notices and other notifications affecting 98,739 employers were received by the Service. Cases totaling 19,308 were assigned for mediation and 19,461 mediation assignments were closed during the year. About 86% of the mediation assignments closed which required the services of mediators were settled without work stoppages. A total of 29,223 mediation conferences were conducted by mediators during 1972. The workload shown above includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors. Cases in process at the end of 1972 totaled 4,736; this is the normal carryover of open cases from month to month, with seasonal fluctuations. The following chart shows a 5-year comparison of workload data:

2. Ad hoc boards, panels, mediators, and consultants.—Provision is made for ad hoc employment of labor relations experts, individually or in panels, in support of the mediation function; and for boards of inquiry appointed by the President in emergency disputes.

Service function in the Federal sector.—Executive Order 11491 of October 29, 1969, as amended by Executive Order 11616, dated August 26, 1971, places responsibility in the agency for providing mediation assistance to Federal agencies and labor organizations in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service was engaged in dispute mediation activities in 309 cases during 1972. Through its preventive activity program, the Service will continue to work with both contracting parties to bring about a better understanding of the collective bargaining process, and to improve their day-to-day working relationships. The Service was actively engaged in 523 preventive assignments in the Federal sector during 1972.

Arbitration services.—The Service provides panels of arbitrators from its roster for the resolution of employee grievances or disputes in the private and public sectors involving the interpretation or application of existing agreements. In 1972 the Service provided 13,842 panels of arbitrators, an increase of 60.4% over the past 5 years. The Service has implemented an automated arbitrator selection and reporting system in 1972 in order to cope with the increased workload, and to provide improved service to labor and management.

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and Natural Gas Act, and performs other work relating to Federal electric power developments and associated natural resources.

1. Hydroelectric power regulation.—The Commission licenses non-Federal hydroelectric projects and makes water resources appraisal studies. Under Public Law 90-451, the Commission determines whether projects with expiring licenses should be relicensed or recommended to Congress for Federal takeover. The environmental impact of proposed licensed hydroelectric projects is assessed by the Commission pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

2. Electric power industry systems evaluation.—The Commission encourages the interconnection and coordination of the Nation's electric power systems to insure an adequate and reliable supply of electric energy.

The Commission studies the electric power industry's problems and prospects to encourage electric utilities to meet the Nation's power requirements by timely installation of adequate generating and transmission facilities with minimum impact on our environment. Continuous surveillance of the changing requirements of the electric power industry is conducted to identify current trends, project load growth, and to suggest patterns of generation and transmission to meet future requirements.

3. Electric power utilities regulation.—The Commission regulates the wholesale rates and service, the accounts reporting requirements, depreciation practices, certain security issues, the disposition of property, mergers, and interlocking directorates of interstate electric utilities.

4. Natural gas pipeline regulation.—There were 105 natural gas pipeline companies regulated by the Commission in 1972 with assets of $22.1 billion and approximately 42 million customers.

The Commission issues certificates of public convenience and necessity to permit construction of new facilities and extensions by interstate natural gas companies. The environmental impact of proposed construction by interstate pipeline companies is assessed by the Commission pursuant to the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969.

The Commission also regulates the wholesale rates charged by interstate natural gas pipeline companies, their accounting and reporting requirements, depreciation practices, and abandonment of property.

Some 4,500 natural gas producers are presently regulated by the Commission.

6. Natural gas industry systems evaluation.—The Commission is continuing a National Gas Survey, which will complement the National Power Survey in forecasting energy supply and requirements.

7. Services to other agencies and to the public.—The Commission studies industry systems and prepares reports for use of other agencies, the industries and the public.

The Commission assesses and collects annual charges against owners of non-Federal hydroelectric projects which derive benefit from upstream Federal reservoirs.

The Commission participates with other Federal agencies in planning the development of power at water resources projects. For certain Federal projects, it approves the rate for sale of power and allocates the costs to project purposes. It participates in activities of the Water Resources Council and in Federal-State water resources studies.

8. Administration.—Executive, managerial, and administrative support personnel perform the usual support functions.

The Federal Power Commission anticipates the collection of $22,250 thousand in various fees and annual charges from jurisdictional electric utilities and natural gas companies, pursuant to its regulations as amended by Commission Order No. 427. In response to petitions for review from electric utility and natural gas companies, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit set aside the order with respect to annual assessments, 467 F. 2d 425 (CADC, Nos. 71-1439, et al., Aug. 15, 1972). Should the U.S. Supreme Court affirm the decision of the Court of Appeals, either through denial of certiorari or a decision on the merits, the amount of total estimated collections will be reduced to $10,676 thousand.

The Commission has the duty of preserving free competitive enterprise through the prevention and elimination of monopolistic practices and unfair methods of competition. Additionally, it is responsible for detecting and proscribing acts and practices which are unfair or deceptive to the consuming public.

1. Executive direction and policy planning.—Overall executive direction and planning and evaluation of the Commission's activities are carried out under this activity. This program area also includes the formulation and implementation of program policies, and the adjudicatory functions of the Commission.

2. Administration and management.—Includes the formulation, implementation, direction, and coordination of all administrative policies and activities, including personnel, management analysis, information systems development, financial management, and general services. In 1974 this area will be augmented.

3. Maintaining competition.—All types of monopolistic practices and unreasonable restraints of trade, including price-fixing conspiracies, boycotts, price discriminations, and illegal mergers and acquisitions, are investigated and corrected. Direct enforcement activities are supplemented principally by statements of enforcement policies, industry guides, compliance efforts to secure obedience with cease and desist orders, advisory opinions, and other informational and corrective activities. In 1974, the investigation of trade restraints and monopolistic practices will continue to be intensified, with particular emphasis upon unlawful actions extending over large geographic areas and adversely affecting large segments of the consuming public. Particular efforts will be made to identify and eliminate illegal business conduct in basic consumer industries and in industries affecting the prices of essential consumer commodities. New projects include an intensive investigation of the hospital and medical supply industry and newspaper and periodical advertising rates.

4. Consumer protection.—Major emphasis is placed on investigating and correcting unfair or deceptive acts and practices, including false and misleading advertising, which are injurious to the consumer as well as to competition. In 1974, efforts will continue to obtain meaningful relief for consumers through innovative orders; the program of requiring substantiation for advertising claims made for major consumer products will be continued and expanded as warranted; programs will be developed to deal with all unfair and oppressive aspects of standard product warranties; and systematic efforts will be made to identify market problems of greatest consumer concern, so that resources can be efficiently expended. Attention is directed to such areas as consumer credit, packaging and labeling, food and drug advertising, general advertising, representations made by salesmen and others in the sale of goods and services in interstate commerce, and mislabeled wool, fur, and textile products. Direct enforcement activities are supplemented by economic analyses, guides, scientific advice and assistance, and compliance efforts.

5. Economic activities.—These activities are concerned with the economic aspects of all the Commission's functions, including the preparation of various economic reports and surveys. Economic and statistical assistance is provided for the enforcement programs in the investigation and trial of cases. A continuing financial reporting program is carried on for the primary purpose of supplying authoritative statistics concerning the financial characteristics of different groups of industries and of various classes of manufacturing corporations. In 1974, major new projects to be initiated include: measurement of entry barriers; effects of antitrust and the international economy; and a study of advertising, information, and competition.

Also, Public Law 91-289 requires the adjudication of an undetermined number of prisoner of war claims arising out of the Vietnam conflict.

Public Law 91-289, approved June 24, 1970, amends the War Claims Act of 1948 to include payments to American military prisoners of war and American civilians captured by hostile forces in Southeast Asia during the Vietnam conflict and U.S.S. Pueblo personnel who were held prisoner by the Government of North Korea.

Claims adjudicated by the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission are certified to the Treasury Department for payment out of appropriated funds. No additional funds are requested for 1974 since the carryover of prior years unobligated balances should be sufficient until a general release of prisoners of war is effected.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission plans to initiate in 1974 a number of major activities as part of the overall program for commemorating the 200th anniversary of the United States. During the past year, the three program committees of the Commission—Heritage '76, Festival U.S.A., and Horizons '76—began developing an overall plan for their respective areas. To assist them in carrying out this responsibility, standing advisory panels have been established to draw on the expertise and experience of leading figures and other persons from various segments of our society. The panels serve several purposes: They evaluate proposals submitted to the Commission for official recognition as part of the national bicentennial program; they recommend guidelines and goals; and they aid in the creation of new projects and programs.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations is an independent, bipartisan body which attempts to identify and analyze the causes of intergovernmental conflicts, and recommends ways of strengthening and improving the American Federal system. The 26-member Commission includes representatives of the executive and legislative branches at all levels of government—Federal, State, and local—as well as representatives of the public.

The Commission and its staff examine the policies, administration, and coordination of Federal and State programs having an intergovernmental impact. Proposed legislation is reviewed to determine its overall effect on the Federal system. The Commission also identifies emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations.

The Commission makes recommendations concerning the allocations of governmental functions, responsibilities, and revenues among the various levels of government. These recommendations and published studies growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive and legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments.

Continuing and annual projects of the Commission include the coordination of the review procedures established by Office of Management and Budget circular A-85, surveying State and local finances, and monitoring legislation of State and local governments. Other projects include a study of Canada's intergovernmental experience, a profile of county government, an analysis of the Nation's multistate regions, and an investigation of alternative revenue sources for local government.

Receipts and reimbursements earned in 1972 cover re-funds on the purchase of equipment by the Commission.

Contribution to the Commission.—The Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin was created in 1940 by compact among the four States in the basin, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Government for the purpose of water pollution abatement and control. The act was amended and consented to by Congress September 25, 1970 (Public Law 91-407), in order to broaden its purpose to the management of water and associated land resources.

The appropriation represents the Federal Government's share of the expenses of the commission's broadened operations. Funds also are contributed by the signatory bodies (member States and District of Columbia). The commission also receives an Environmental Protection Agency program grant under the authority of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, as do all States and interstate agencies which comply with the qualifying criteria required by the act. Under the amended compact law, State shares have been increased substantially to provide for an expanded program of activities, requiring an equivalent increase in the Federal contribution.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority, a non-Federal agency, was established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The Authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and provide for the construction and operation of a rail rapid transit system to serve the National Capital area.

In accordance with the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-143) approved December 9, 1969, the Authority has responsibility for the development of a full-regional transit system which will extend from a central distributor system into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia. The system includes a total areawide network of approximately 98 miles. Under the authorization, the Federal share is two-thirds of the net project cost.

The National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 was amended by Public Law 92-349 dated July 13, 1972, to provide additional funding required to meet the costs of severe inflation in the construction industry and delays experienced by the Authority, and to assure the timely sale of the Authority's revenue bonds. It provides for a Federal guaranty of the Authority's bonds in an amount not to exceed $1.2 billion, conversion of the Authority's bonds from a tax exempt to a taxable security, and payment of an interest subsidy by the Federal Government to the Authority of 25% of the net interest cost. This interest subsidy will be offset by taxes received by the Treasury. It will be sufficient to increase the total amount of bonds sold by $300 million over the $900 million in bonds to be supported by system revenues. As a condition of sale of these additional bonds, the eight participating jurisdictions of Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia will increase their capital contributions by $150 million.

1974 will see the continuation of the high level of design, construction, and rights-of-way activity for the rapid transit system achieved during 1973. Phase I will be rapidly approaching completion during this period. All phase II construction and stage contracts will be underway or in the bidding stage. Most structural, finish, and stage contracts will be underway for phase III as well as many structural contracts for phase IV. Phase V design will be well underway. All of the Huntington and New Carrollton routes will be under construction. The 1974 program will involve design contracts covering approximately 18 miles of transit facilities while the construction program will involve approximately 28 miles.

Other accompanying highlights include the following:

1. Commencing all structural and finish contracts necessary to meet bicentennial operations.
2. Placing the remainder of the Rockville route and the Branch route under design.
3. Commencing rights-of-way acquisition on the Addison route.
4. Continuing revision of the Authority's design criteria and general specifications to ascertain that both reflect the most up-to-date thinking in the field of rapid transit design and construction.

The 1974 program also provides for the design and construction of a station at the Arlington National Cemetery and an additional entrance to the Smithsonian station which were not included in the original design of the adopted regional transit system. Federal funding for these projects have been authorized by the National Capital Transit Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-517).

In order to best maintain the construction schedule upon which costs and revenues are based, and to permit the local participating jurisdictions to plan and carry out the sale of their bonds for the period involved, funds for the Federal share of the 1975 program are requested at this time. Although the advance appropriation of these funds is essential to orderly financial and program planning, they will not become available for obligation until 1975.

The overall financial plan of the system is as follows (in thousands):

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law No. 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970. Public Law 92-221, enacted December 23, 1971, provided share insurance coverage for 2 years to those Federal credit unions disapproved for share insurance coverage for failure to meet share insurance standards.

Budget program.—The activities consist of: (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of insolvent, insured credit unions, and (d) providing supervision and assistance to Federal credit unions covered under Public Law 92-221.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item	1972 actual	1973 estimate	1974 estimate
Number of insured credit unions.....	13,510	15,000	16,000
Number of insured member accounts (thousands).....	14,600	16,700	19,400
Shares of insured member institutions as of Dec. 31 of the previous calendar year (millions of dollars).....	10,800	11,900	14,200

It is estimated that the fund will assume claims of $5,000 thousand in 1973 and 1974. Actual losses to the fund are estimated to be approximately 10% during the 2 years. It is estimated that approximately 3,600 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 1974.

Financing.—Each insured credit union is required to pay a normal premium of one-twelfth of 1% of the total amount of its member accounts deposits. These premiums, estimated to be approximately 12 million in 1973 and over 14 million in 1974, will be sufficient to cover expected expenses and claims in those years. The balance will be held as an insurance reserve, invested in Government interest-bearing securities. The fund is structured to be self-supporting, with $100 million borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies. The authority to borrow from the Treasury will probably not be exercised in 1973 or 1974.

Operating results.—It is recommended that earnings, expected to accumulate to above $33 million by the end of 1974, be retained in the fund.

The purpose of the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities is to improve the quality of American life. Two operating units, the Arts Endowment and the Humanities Endowment, promote the arts and humanities through grants, consultative services with public and private agencies and the stimulation of private philanthropy. In 1974, emphasis will be placed on projects leading up to the Bicentennial. The Foundation may receive private gifts, either for specific purposes or unrestricted as to use, which are matched by Federal appropriations.

1. Promotion of the arts.—Grants are made to individual artists of exceptional talent, institutions, organizations, and State art agencies. Programs assist the individual artist, sustain independent artistic institutions, increase citizen participation and enjoyment of the arts, encourage productions of cultural significance, expand audiences for the arts and encourage planning and research. Increased funds in 1974 will be used to assist major artistic and cultural institutions, to encourage the arts of youth and ethnic groups and to aid State arts councils.

2. Promotion of the humanities.—Grants are made for research, education and public activity in the humanities, with increasing emphasis on broad public understanding and discussion of ideas and values. Support is provided for State and community groups, for national dissemination and for educational institutions; and fellowships are offered to teachers and other professionals. These efforts aim at bringing Americans into contact with humanistic thoughts and imposing the quality of knowledge and teaching in the humanities.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Legislation required assumption of similar responsibilities for the Postal Service on July 1, 1971. Additional funds are requested to enable the agency to effectively cope with a steadily rising caseload in both unfair labor practice and representation cases. Estimates for 1974 reflect an intake increase over 1973 of 11.0% for unfair labor practice cases and 6.3% for representation cases.

1. Field investigations.—Charges of unfair labor practice and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. About 88% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 83% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives for the voluntary settlement of disputes, and the high incidence of informal settlements achieved thus far is expected to continue in 1974.

2. Administrative law judges hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions. In 1972 there were 1,134 hearings closed, 52 proceedings adjusted after close of hearing, and 1,083 decisions issued. The estimate for 1973 is for 1,233 hearings to be closed, 31 adjusted after hearing and 1,244 decisions. The 1974 estimate is for 1,316 hearings closed, 35 adjusted after hearing and 1,260 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 30% of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder with exceptions filed require contested Board decision. In 1972, 866 such Board decisions issued; the estimate for 1973 is 1,092 and for 1974, 1,104. In representation cases regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. In 1972 regional directors issued 2,052 such decisions; and the estimate is 2,345 for 1973 and 2,494 in 1974. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. In 1972 the Board issued 211 representation decisions; and the estimates for 1973 and 1974 are 191 and 203 respectively. The Board also ruled on 266 objections and challenge questions in election cases in 1972; it is estimated that 324 and 345 such rulings will be required in 1973 and 1974.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the appellate courts to enforce its decisions. In 1972 a total of 371 Board decisions of all kinds required such litigation; the estimate for 1973 is 404 and the estimate for 1974 is 406.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) initiates and supports basic and applied research, science education improvement activities, and related scientific programs to promote the progress of science and advance the Nation's health, prosperity, welfare, and security.

The principal emphasis of the NSF's programs in 1974 will be to: (1) Provide continued strong support for fundamental research in the science disciplines, engineering, and materials; (2) extend research on selected problems of national concern, including energy, environment, natural hazards, and productivity; (3) promote international cooperation, through science; and (4) attack a number of major science education problems through a restructured and more focused science education improvement program.

The NSF's basic research program activities are being expanded in 1974 to permit continued healthy advancement in the various science disciplines. Special emphasis will be given to selected high priority efforts, such as increased research in the social sciences, industrial process engineering, a major new research effort on chemical catalysis, and expanding the capability of astronomy.

The Foundation's problem oriented research activities will also be expanded to expedite the application of science to the solution of selected problems of national concern. These efforts include the program of research applied to national needs, important elements of chemistry, biology, engineering, materials, and social science research to achieve a better understanding of the impact of science, and certain of the major national and special research programs. Significant new thrusts and expansions planned for 1974 include increased emphasis on the development of practical ways to utilize solar energy and of alternative strategies for environmental planning; intensified research in earthquake engineering; accelerated research on the biological regulation of insect pest populations; and wind engineering, especially as it relates to the design and construction of tall buildings.

The Foundation's science education improvement program has been targeted specifically on providing the appropriate number, variety, flexibility, and quality of professional and technical manpower required to meet the Nation's science and engineering needs; increasing the general scientific literacy of our people; and improving the effectiveness and efficiency of the education process through the application of science and technology.

The major program activities of the Foundation include:

1. Scientific research project support.—This program provides support for research directed at finding answers to unresolved scientific questions concerning fundamental life processes, processes that influence man's environment, and the forces impacting on man as a member of society and on the behavior of societies. It also involves significant research efforts that have great potential for underpinning future technology development and studies that can make important contributions in understanding and resolving problems faced by our economy and society.

2. National and special research programs.—These programs include large-scale research efforts to understand the physical environment, such as (1) conducting ecological studies under the International Biological Program (IBP); and (2) expanding our understanding of the ocean environment under the International Decade of Ocean Exploration (IDOE). In addition there are two programs started in 1973 to explore ways of encouraging greater research and development efforts applicable to the needs of industry and State and local governments and to speed up the application of science and technology to improve economic productivity and more effectively deal with social problems. Other programs in this activity include the Arctic and Antarctic research programs and the ocean sediment coring program.

3. National research centers.—The five established NSF-sponsored national research centers support advanced research in astronomy and the atmospheric sciences. These centers provide specialized facilities, equipment, staffing, and operational support which are beyond the capabilities of single educational or research institutions to provide. The Very Large Array, an advanced radio astronomy facility now under construction, is a prime example of an expanded national capability to study the nature of the universe and is receiving increased funding.

4. Computing activities.—This program supports research in computer science and engineering and the development of advanced computer-based research techniques.

5. Science information activities.—Support is provided for the improvement of science information systems and services.

6. International cooperative scientific activities.—Support is provided, chiefly for administrative expenses, to permit U.S. scientists and scientific organizations to participate in international cooperative scientific activities, including joint research efforts by U.S. and foreign scientists such as the U.S.-Japan cooperative science program and the U.S.-East Europe cooperative science program.

7. Research applied to national needs (RANN).—This program focuses on selected problems of national concern to help provide the scientific knowledge base for their solution. The program supports research and engineering efforts concerning the applications of advanced technology, social systems and human resources, environmental systems and resources, and exploratory research and problem assessment. Major areas of emphasis include solar energy, earthquake engineering, new industrial processing techniques, and urban systems. An important element of the program is exploration of technological opportunities which have the potential for increasing economic productivity and creating new industries and markets for U.S. goods and services.

8. Intergovernmental science program.—This activity supports projects to assist State and local governments in exploring ways to use science and technology to improve the delivery of governmental services and the management of their resources.

9. Institutional improvement for science.—The program of institutional improvement for science provides funds for flexible use by colleges and universities to improve their academic science programs. Also, competitive grants are awarded to help institutions improve their research management and to provide information which can aid NSF and other research-supporting agencies of the Federal Government to improve their research management practices.

10. Graduate student support.—Support is provided under this program in the form of graduate fellowships to a limited number of exceptionally talented science students.

11. Science education improvement.—Under this program, NSF supports efforts to improve the development of scientific and technical manpower; increase the general scientific literacy of the American people; increase the effectiveness of the educational process by various means, including the development of innovative uses of computers in education; and perform exploratory research and problem assessment.

12. Planning and policy studies.—Through this program, the NSF identifies and analyzes science policy and program issues and helps provide the data base necessary for decisionmaking.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation was established by Public Law 92-578, approved October 27, 1972, to plan and redevelop Pennsylvania Avenue between the Capitol and the White House in Washington, D.C. The Corporation will first develop a comprehensive plan for the designated area which must be approved by Federal and local officials as well as reviewed by the Congress before taking effect. Following approval of the plan, the Corporation will execute the plan through the use of its acquisition and other powers.

The Corporation will be governed by a 15-member board, comprised of seven Federal and local government representatives and eight private citizens appointed by the President. To finance its redevelopment activities, the Corporation is authorized to borrow up to $50 million from the U.S. Treasury.

In accordance with the reorganization mandated under the Postal Reorganization Act, the President under section 2009 of title 39, United States Code, has directed that starting with 1974 the operations of the new independent establishment will be excluded from the U.S. budget. This step recognizes the independent status of the new U.S. Postal Service and represents the completion of its budgetary transition from the former Post Office Department. The transactions of the Postal Service fund and the assets and liabilities of the U.S. Postal Service will appear in Part IV of the Appendix under Annexed Budgets and Other Material.

¹ The amount of $461,481 thousand reported as post-closing unexpended cash balance as of June 30, 1972, represents the balance on the audited financial statements of the U.S. Postal Service. It differs by $10,562 thousand from the post-closing unexpended cash balance of $450,919 thousand on the Treasury books. The net difference of $10,562 thousand is made up of (a) $14,692 thousand trust funds reported on U.S. Postal Service books as a current liability; (b) $4,922 thousand due from foreign countries for money orders treated on U.S. Postal Service's books as an account receivable; and (c) a receipt amount of $792 thousand inadvertently omitted from U.S. Postal Service cash reports to the Treasury.

² Workmen's compensation amounts reported under current liabilities for 1971 represent unfunded liabilities funded in future years through appropriations (for the cost of injuries occurring prior to June 30, 1971) and through the operations process (for post-June 30, 1971, injuries). The amounts reported under the reserves section of the balance sheet reflect the change in policy in financing workmen's compensation to show full accrued cost for injuries in the year in which they occur.

⁴ These items are included in the "Change in selected resources" entries on the program and financing schedule in their entirety. Other items are only partially applicable to these entries.

Under the railroad retirement system, railroad workers and employers pay taxes on wages to finance the payment of annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors and to finance the cost of hospital insurance benefits. These taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement account and invested in Government securities. The portion of these taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is transferred to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund under the financial interchange provisions governing the railroad retirement and social security systems.

Supplemental annuities are also paid to certain employees in addition to the regular annuities. This program is financed by a tax paid by employers on each man-hour of paid employment. These taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement supplemental account and invested in Government securities.

The status of these trust funds is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Income.—The income of the Railroad retirement accounts consists of taxes paid by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; appropriations for military service credits; and payments from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and Federal disability insurance trust fund. The railroad retirement system has a reinsurance arrangement of annual financial interchanges with the social security system so as to place that system in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment had been included in social security coverage.

Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Payment estimates reflect the continuing growth in the beneficiary rolls and the increases in benefit rates provided by law. The last three benefit increases, enacted in 1970, 1971, and 1972 were temporary—due to expire on June 30, 1973. The legislation providing the 1972 increase requires the railroad industry to recommend a plan for soundly financing these increases on a permanent basis. Accordingly, the temporary increases and the revenues for their financing are shown on separate schedules for later transmittal, proposed legislation.

Administrative expenses.—Such expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on salaries and expenses).

Transfers to and from Railroad unemployment insurance account.—The Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act provides that when the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account is insufficient to pay benefits due under that act, necessary amounts are to be borrowed from the Railroad retirement account. When the balance in the Railroad unemployment insurance account permits, borrowed amounts are to be repaid to the Railroad retirement account with interest. At the end of 1972 the fund had $50 million in loans outstanding, compared to $48.4 million a year ago.

Payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—Portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund, since payments of hospital benefits for railroad retirement beneficiaries are made from that fund.

Payment to Railroad unemployment insurance account.—Under section 10(h) of the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, as amended in 1968, the Board is required to reimburse the unemployment insurance account for certain sickness benefits paid to employees who could otherwise, under specified conditions, have received disability annuities under the Railroad Retirement Act for the same periods.

LIMITATION ON RAILROAD UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Insurance payments for unemployment and sickness benefits are based on individual records of earnings and daily wage rates; and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the retirement program. Accounts posted were 780,000 in 1972 and are estimated at 760,000 in 1973 and 735,000 in 1974.

2. Processing of unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the headquarters offices. Unemployment claims receipts were 978,000 in 1972 and are estimated to be 810,000 in 1973 and 769,000 in 1974. The larger numbers of claims in 1972 were caused by strikes in the railroad industry.

3. Processing of sickness claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters offices of the Board. Sickness claims were 612,000 in 1972 and are estimated to be 590,000 in 1973 and 560,000 in 1974.

4. Claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. This resulted in savings of benefit payments of approximately $900 thousand in 1972 as 5,100 placements were made. Placements are estimated to be the same in 1973 and 1974.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the retirement program on a measured basis.

The Board administers the Railroad Retirement Act which provides a program for the payment of regular annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors, financed by taxes paid equally by employers and employees. The Board also participates in the administration of the hospital and medical insurance programs for persons covered by the Railroad Retirement Act for which it is reimbursed in part by the Social Security Administration.

The Board also administers a program for the payment of supplemental annuities under certain conditions to career railroad workers awarded regular retirement annuities after June 1966, financed by a tax paid by employers based on the number of man-hours for which they pay compensation. The supplemental annuity paid to employees is in addition to the regular railroad retirement annuity.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of benefits paid are based on individual records of earnings, and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment, and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. Accounts posted were 780,000 in 1972 and are estimated at 760,000 in 1973 and 735,000 in 1974. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the railroad unemployment insurance program.

2. Processing claims.—This activity includes the work of processing annuity claims and establishing eligibility of persons for health and medical insurance benefits. New applications received were 160,000 in 1972 and are estimated to be 155,000 in 1973 and 151,000 in 1974.

3. Maintenance of beneficiary rolls.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. The number of persons on the rolls receiving monthly benefit payments will decrease from 989,000 at the end of 1972 to an estimated 986,000 and 982,000 at the end of 1973 and 1974. The number of persons also receiving supplemental annuities will increase from 94,000 at the end of 1972 to 104,000 and 114,000 at the end of 1973 and 1974. The number of persons enrolled for medicare was 846,000 at the end of 1972 and will increase to 886,000 in 1973 and 1974 because of new Medicare legislation.

4. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

The Board conducts renegotiation with contractors and subcontractors to determine and eliminate excessive profits in connection with procurement under defense and space programs. The act provides that a report must be filed with the Board by every contractor or subcontractor having receipts or accruals in a fiscal year which exceed $1 million ($25 thousand in the case of brokers and manufacturers' agents) from contracts or subcontracts subject to the act. From the date of its establishment through June 30, 1972, the Board made determinations of excessive profits in the amount of $1.13 billion, before adjustment for Federal income and excess profits tax credits. Of this total, $40.1 million was determined during 1972.

1. Executive direction.—The Statutory Board is responsible for final action in all cases, including the screening of contractors' filings and the handling of requests for exemptions.

2. Staff operations.—The headquarters staff furnishes technical advice and assistance to the Statutory Board and to the regional boards.

3. Renegotiation operations (field).—The two regional boards conduct renegotiation proceedings and make determinations and recommendations. They are authorized to conclude cases involving $800 thousand or less of renegotiable profits; however, their determinations in such cases may be appealed to the Statutory Board. All determinations in cases involving more than $800 thousand renegotiable profits are subject to approval by the Statutory Board.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure.—Issuers of securities for public sale are required to file a registration statement and related prospectus containing significant information about the issuer and the offering with the Commission. This is to insure that investors will be provided with the material facts concerning security offerings. Certain provisions of the Securities Act Amendments enacted August 20, 1964, extend to investors in certain over-the-counter securities the same protections afforded to those in listed securities: namely, registration of classes of securities; annual and periodic company reporting; regulation of proxy solicitation; and restriction upon "insider" trading.

3. Supervision and regulation of securities markets.—National securities exchanges and over-the-counter markets are regulated in the interest of maintaining just and equitable principles of trade for the protection of the public investors. One of the purposes of the Securities Acts Amendments of 1964 is, through Commission regulation, to have nonmembers of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) in the same regulatory position as NASD brokers and dealers.

The Selective Service System furnishes the men necessary to maintain the Armed Forces at authorized strength to the extent that this cannot be done by voluntary means. This is accomplished by means of inductions, the magnitude of which is determined by the Department of Defense. Since January 1, 1970, the order of registrants to be selected for induction has been determined by lottery drawings which assign random sequence numbers. Section 4(a) of the Act requires that the System maintain a readiness, notwithstanding the expiration of the induction authority, to satisfy possible emergency mobilization requirements by registering and classifying young men. The classification process includes the determination of physical acceptability, a controlling factor in establishing an available pool of selectees.

1. Service to registrants.—This activity includes registering, classifying, selecting, inducting, and providing information. Over 35,000 uncompensated citizens, including the members of local boards, advisors to registrants, and youth advisory committees, help provide service to registrants.

2. Examination services.—As the draft call varies, so do the costs for selectee travel to induction examinations. Preinduction travel costs are based on fulfillment of the requirements of section 4(a).

3. General and administrative.—Fiscal, personnel, and other administrative support is provided to carry out the program of the System.

4. Executive direction.—This activity includes top policymaking officials and heads of major divisions, including State directors.

5. Special programs.—For fiscal year 1974, this activity consists of the Selective Service Reserve.

The Small Business Administration counsels, assists, and protects the interest of small business, and provides aid to business firms and homeowners who have suffered losses through disasters. These efforts are conducted through the following activities:

1. Procurement and management assistance.—The objectives of this activity are (a) to insure that a fair proportion of Government contracts for purchases of supplies and services, including research and development, and for the sale and disposal of property, be placed with small business enterprises, (b) to provide technical and management assistance through management courses, and counseling on new and improved products and processes, and (c) to provide for greater involvement of disadvantaged and minority contractors in the Federal procurement program through the use of the authority contained in section 8(a) of the Small Business Act, as amended. This section enables the Agency to act as prime contractor to provide goods and services to other Government agencies and in turn arrange for performance of such contracts by negotiating or otherwise letting subcontracts to small business concerns.

2. Research contracts.—Research studies designed to reveal matters materially affecting the competitive strength of small business and the effect on small business of Federal laws, programs, and regulations are financed under this activity.

3. Economic opportunity management assistance.—As authorized by section 406, title IV, of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, SBA will contract for professional management training and support of small business entrepreneurs in areas with high concentrations of unemployed or low-income individuals to (a) establish the management training, counseling, and support needs of firms in target areas, (b) identify business opportunities in these areas, and (c) determine the feasibility and profit potential of proposed business development to be located in such areas.

Funds for these three activities are provided by direct appropriation.

4. Financial assistance.—This activity comprises:

(a) Business loans.—This includes loans and financial counseling to business concerns, businesses displaced because of federally aided construction, and businesses eligible under title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. The program for 1974 is projected as follows:

	Number	Millions of dollars
Section 7(a) business loans.....	36,085	2,571.0
Economic opportunity loans.....	8,160	106.8
Displaced business loans.....	536	52.5

(b) Development company loans.—This covers (a) efforts to encourage private lending institutions to expand their role in the economic development of their respective States and (b) loans to State and local development companies to enable them to provide the long-term capital—equity and loans—to small businesses. It is estimated that 725 loans in the amount of $117.1 million will be made in 1974.

(c) Disaster loans.—This provides financial assistance on favorable terms to victims of natural disasters for rehabilitation of property damaged or destroyed. Also included under this activity are loans to small firms to enable them to comply with new health and safety standards (involving changes in equipment, facilities, or methods of operation) imposed by a number of Federal statutes or State laws enacted in conformity therewith, such as the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, the Occupational

Safety and Health Act of 1970, the Egg Products Inspection Act, the Wholesome Poultry Products Act, the Wholesome Meat Act of 1967, and the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. Similar loans are also authorized for any small firm likely to suffer substantial economic injury as the result of any international agreement limiting the development of strategic arms or the installation of strategic arms or strategic arms facilities.

5. Investment company assistance and supervision.—In order to stimulate and supplement the flow of private capital to small business concerns, the Small Business Administration is authorized to (a) license, regulate, and examine small business investment companies, and (b) provide funds to such companies for financing small business firms. The program level for 1974 is estimated at $115 million.

6. Lease and surety bond guarantees.—(a) Lease guarantees.—In order to enable small businesses to compete on an equal basis with financially strong businesses in the leasing of facilities in shopping centers and other business properties the Small Business Administration is empowered to guarantee the payment of rentals under leases of commercial and industrial property entered into by small business concerns. The program level for 1974 is estimated at 700 guarantees for $250 million (aggregate rent).

(b) Surety bond guarantees.—In order to enable small firms, primarily minority owned, to obtain bid, performance, and payment bonds otherwise denied them through asserted lack of financial and other capability, the Small Business Administration is authorized to guarantee sureties against losses resulting from the breaching of such bonds by small contractors who were furnished bonds by the sureties under the provisions of this program. SBA's guarantee is 90% of the loss under contracts not exceeding $500 thousand in amount. The program level (contracts insured) for 1974 is estimated at 4,000 for $280 million.

Funds for the administrative support of the above activities are transferred from the appropriate revolving fund.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 2, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance loan programs and prime contracting activity performed pursuant to sections 7(a), 7(b)(3), 7(e), and 8(a) of the Small Business Act, as amended, titles III and V of the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, as amended, and title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964, as amended. Administrative, interest, and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

While no ceiling on authorized appropriations is specified, a limitation of $5.3 billion has been placed on the amount of loans and commitments (reservations) which may be outstanding at any time. This ceiling is composed of separate limitations on outstanding amounts as follows (in millions of dollars):

Business loans (including a limitation of $350 million on economic opportunity loans) ¹	4,300
Development company loans ¹	500
Investment company loans ¹	500

¹ Legislation will be proposed to increase each of these limitations.

Capital outlay.—1. Financial assistance.—Business loans (sec. 7(a), Small Business Act).—Funds may be loaned to business concerns which are not dominant in their fields. To such small businesses, loans may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, and shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a bank participation is not available and no loan on an immediate participation basis may be made unless it is shown that a guaranteed loan is not available. Under the guaranty plan, the Small Business Administration agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default.

The agency's share of an immediate participation or guaranteed loan is limited to 90%. Its maximum outstanding loan and/or commitment to any one borrower is limited by statute to $350 thousand. Business loans, except for the portion for construction of facilities for which the maximum is 15 years, are limited to a maturity of 10 years and are made at a rate of 5½% on the agency's share thereof.

From the inception of the lending program (Sept. 29, 1953) through June 30, 1972, 137,133 loans have been approved in a total amount of $7.21 billion. Participating banks' share of this amount has been $1.3 billion. Seventy-three percent of the total loans approved have been on a participation or guaranteed basis. In 1974, it is estimated that 36,085 loans will be approved, compared with an estimate of 24,375 in 1973.

Business loans (Economic Opportunity Act of 1964).—The Small Business Administration administers a program of financial assistance to small business concerns and to qualified persons seeking to establish such concerns pursuant to authority contained in title IV of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964 (78 Stat. 526). Loans may be on a direct, immediate participation, or guaranteed basis for up to $50 thousand, for a maximum term of 15 years. The credit and collateral requirements are more flexible than those applicable to 7(a) business loans and provision for management training is made an integral part of the program. It is estimated that 8,160 loans will be approved in 1974 in comparison with 8,000 loans in 1973.

Displaced business loans.—Pursuant to authority provided in the Housing Act of 1961, loans are made to small firms that suffer substantial economic injury as a result of being forced to move by federally aided urban renewal, highway, and other construction programs or as a result of being adjacent, or near, a federally aided construction project. The interest rate on the Small Business Administration's share of these loans is determined pursuant to a formula prescribed by legislation. For 1972, the rate was 5½% per annum. The same rate will prevail in 1973. Through June 30, 1972, a total of 2,810 displaced business loans for $276.2 million had been approved. Approvals during 1972 were 335. It is estimated that 536 loans for $52.5 million will be approved in 1974 compared to 475 loans for $51.7 million in 1973.

Development company loans.—The Small Business Administration lends funds to State and local development companies pursuant to sections 501 and 502 of the Small Business Investment Act, as amended. Funds are made available to State development companies for general use purposes under section 501 and to State and local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land, under section 502. The latter type loans must be so secured as reasonably to assure repayment, may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, may be made only when the proceeds are to assist an identifiable small business concern and for a sound business purpose approved by the Agency, and are limited to a maximum of $350 thousand for each such identifiable small business concern.

2. Investment company assistance.—A primary function of small business investment companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital for small concerns. To encourage the formation and growth of such investment companies, the Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the Small Business Administration to purchase, or to guarantee the timely payment of all principal and interest as scheduled on, debentures issued by such companies. The Small Business Investment Act Amendments of 1972, approved October 27, 1972 (Public Law 92-595), authorize in addition the purchase of preferred securities (shares of nonvoting stock or other securities having similar characteristics) from small business investment companies operating under authority of new section 301(d) wherein the investment policy of such companies will be to make investments solely in small concerns owned and operated by disadvantaged persons.

Debentures purchased or guaranteed by the Small Business Administration shall be subordinate to any other debenture bonds, promissory notes, or other debts and obligations of such companies, unless the Administration determines otherwise in the exercise of reasonable investment prudence. The amount of debentures which may be purchased or guaranteed, or preferred securities which may be purchased, and outstanding at any one time from a company depends on the amount of combined private paid-in capital and paid-in surplus of such company, but in no event may exceed $20 million for other than 301(d) companies.

Operating costs.—Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund. The interest rate or rates applicable to each year's disbursements are determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans and other receipts to the fund are applied against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rates set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1973 are 5½% for state development company loans and 6% for 7(a) business, displaced business, economic opportunity, local development company and SBIC loans. These same rates have been used in computing interest expense in 1974.

Interest is payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of sale. Interest collections on pledged loans are remitted to the trustee for the purpose of paying such interest as it comes due. To the extent that the interest rates on certificates exceed the interest rates on pledged loans, the collections of interest on pledged loans will be insufficient to meet the interest payable on the certificates. Appropriations for this insufficiency are authorized, as is discussed in detail below under the heading participation sales insufficiencies.

Administrative expense.—Expenses for the loan program financed by this revolving fund are financed by transfer of funds to the appropriation, Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses is accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the Revolving Fund, Small Business Administration on July 1, 1966, and by transfer of the unexpended balance of appropriations previously made for trade adjustment assistance loans. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as additional capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions.

In lieu of appropriations, additional capital funds required in the several years prior to 1971 were provided by the sale of participations in loan pools. Of the $1.35 billion of such participation certificates sold, $1,117.2 million was allocated to this fund, of which $383 million remained outstanding on June 30, 1972. Beginning in 1971, capital funds required have been provided by appropriations. It is estimated that a capital appropriation of $225 million will be required in 1974 to provide sufficient resources to finance the planned program levels for that year.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorized appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. The authority is not applicable to the 1966 sales in the predecessor fund. An insufficiency results primarily from the fact that the interest rate on participation certificates exceeds the interest rate on the loans pledged in support of the respective participations.

A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by that act. However, for each of the years 1968 through 1973, the Congress provided annual appropriations for any insufficiency arising from the $150 million sales authority provided in the agency's 1968 appropriation act. The budget estimate proposes a similar appropriation for 1974, applicable entirely to the Business loan and investment fund.

Operating results.—The fund will continue to operate at a deficit. Interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest, administrative, and other expenses, and a provision for estimated losses. Primarily, this reflects the excess of interest expense rates over interest income rates and the cost of servicing an expanding number of widely scattered loans which are relatively small in size.

An additional factor which will further increase the deficit of the fund in 1973 and 1974 is the cost differential on section 8(a) contracts. In expanding the use of the section 8(a) prime contracting authority to bring more minority firms into the Government procurement process, it is anticipated there will be many instances in which the program objectives will justify a payment to the minority subcontractor in excess of the apparent competitive market price to the procuring agency. This differential reflects such things as added startup, labor and/or material costs applicable to the particular firm and circumstances involved.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 2, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance disaster loans made pursuant to sections 7(b), 7(f), and 7(g) of the Small Business Act, as amended, other than those to displaced businesses made under section 7(b)(3). Administrative, interest, and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

No limitation exists on the amount of loans and commitments (reservations) which may be outstanding at any one time from the fund. Actual and estimated outstanding disaster loans and reservations at the end of each year are as follows (in millions of dollars):

Guaranteed loans disbursed by banks...	4.4	4.4	4.4

Although there are no statutory restrictions on the amount that may be loaned under this program, in order to effectively manage the program, administrative limitations have been established. No restrictions exist on the size of business firm which may be eligible for a loan under section 7(b)(1). The maximum term for a loan is 30 years, and the maximum interest rate is 3% except as detailed below.

Interest on loans to small firms likely to suffer economic injury without such loan assistance in complying with new health and safety standards imposed by a number of Federal statutes or State laws enacted in conformity therewith (e.g., Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969), is set annually pursuant to statutory formula and for 1973 is 5³/₈%. Pursuant to Public Law 92-385, approved August 16, 1972, the interest rate on loans under sections 7(b) (1), (2), and (4) approved as a result of disasters occurring on and after January 1, 1972, but prior to July 1, 1973, is 1%.

Through June 30, 1972, a total of 243,911 disaster loans for $1,472 million had been approved. Approvals during 1972 were 93,342 for $327.5 million. The estimate for new loans is $1,300 million in 1973 and $100 million in 1974.

Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund. The interest rate applicable to each year's disbursements is determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans, and other receipts to the fund are applied against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rate set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1973 is 6% for "economic injury" loans, and 5⁵/₈% for other disaster loans. These rates have also been used in computing interest expense in 1974.

Interest is payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of sale. Interest collections on pledged loans are remitted to the trustee for purposes of paying such interest as it comes due. To the extent that the interest rates on certificates exceeds the interest rate on pledged loans, the collections of interest on pledged loans will be insufficient to meet the interest payable on the certificates. Appropriations for this insufficiency are authorized, as is discussed in detail below under the head Participation sales insufficiencies.

Administrative expense.—Administrative expenses for this program are financed by transfer of funds from the revolving fund to the appropriation, Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses is accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the Revolving fund, Small Business Administration, on July 1, 1966. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions. In lieu of appropriations, additional capital funds required in the several years prior to 1970 were provided by the sale of participations in loan pools. Of the $1.35 billion of such participation certificates sold, $232.8 million was allocated to this fund, of which $102.3 million remained outstanding on June 30, 1972. Beginning in 1970, capital funds required have been provided by appropriations. No capital appropriation is proposed for 1974.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorized appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit any trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. This authority is not applicable to the sales in the predecessor fund. An insuficiency results primarily from the fact that the interest rate on participation certificates exceeds the interest rate on the loans pledged in support of the respective participations.

A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by that act. However, for 1968 through 1973, the Congress has provided annual appropriations for any insufficiency arising from the $150 million sales authority provided in the agency's 1968 appropriations. The budget estimate proposes a similar appropriation for 1974 applicable entirely to the Business loan and investment fund.

Operating results.—With a 1% interest rate currently in effect for most new loans, interest and other income is not sufficient to cover interest to Treasury at the current rate of 6% and 5% as well as administrative expenses, interest expense on participation certificates, and a provision for estimated losses.

Pursuant to Public Law 89-117, this fund was initially capitalized by the transfer of $5 million from the Revolving fund, Small Business Administration. Public Law 91-609, approved December 31, 1970, authorized a new program of surety bond guarantees also to be financed from this fund. An additional $5 million of capital was authorized for transfer from the Business loan and investment fund.

1. Lease guarantees.—The lease guarantees program is designed to provide prime space for those small business firms which cannot compete with prospective tenants with AAA ratings. In order to make the program self-sustaining, lessees pay an insurance premium based on sound actuarial computations, but not in excess of 2½% of the lease amount. It is estimated that 700 commitments for an aggregate rental guarantee of $250 million will be made in 1974.

2. Surety bond guarantees.—The surety bond guarantees program is designed to assist small contractors in obtaining a larger share of municipal, State, Federal, and private contracts. The Small Business Administration will guarantee reimbursement of up to 90% of the losses sustained by a surety company as a result of the issuance of a bid, payment, and/or performance bond to a small business concern on a contract up to $500 thousand.

It is estimated that surety bond guarantees will be made in connection with 4,000 contracts totaling $280 million in 1974.

The Institution is responsible for the operation and maintenance of eight major exhibition buildings; a zoological park; a preservation and storage facility at Silver Hill, Md.; a conference center at Elkridge, Md.; two natural preserves, in Panama and on the Chesapeake Bay; an observatory on Mount Hopkins, Ariz.; and supporting administrative, laboratory, and storage areas. Visitor attendance to buildings on and off the mall, including the Zoo, increased to over 20 million in 1972.

The Smithsonian is committed to opening the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in 1974, to preparing for the Institution's participation in the Washington, D.C. Bicentennial of the American Revolution effort as well as to commemorative activity across the Nation, and to research, collections restoration, and exhibits preparation pointing toward the opening of the National Air and Space Museum, now under construction, on July 4, 1976.

General exhibition, education, and outreach programs will be strengthened to keep pace with the rapidly rising numbers of visitors to our museums and art galleries, and to serve the museum public across the Nation.

Central administration and supporting services will be strengthened to give adequate program direction, management, and assistance to a complex organization. More adequate protection, preventive maintenance, and custodial care will be given to buildings, facilities, and collections in the face of rising public visitation and use.

The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts was created as a Bureau of the Smithsonian Institution by the act of September 2, 1958, as amended. That act authorized the Board of Trustees of the Center to construct and operate a national cultural center in Washington, D.C., on a site provided by the Federal Government. Warrants totaling $15.5 million were issued as the Federal Government's contribution to the costs of constructing the Center to match a like amount contributed by the public prior to June 30, 1965. A Federal loan of $15.4 million was authorized for construction of foundations and underground parking facilities, which is to be repaid from parking receipts. Public Law 91-90, October 17, 1969, amended the statute extending the appropriation authority to $23 million and the authorized Federal loan to $20.4 million. Construction was completed in September 1971. The Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1973, provided $1,500 thousand for the operation of the nonperforming arts functions to cover the obligations incurred in 1972. Federal contributions for these functions for 1973 and 1974 appear under the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior.

The Woodrow Wilson Memorial Act, approved on October 24, 1968 (Public Law 90-637), established the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars as the Nation's official living memorial to the 28th President. The Center was placed in the Smithsonian Institution under the direction of a 15-man mixed private and public Board of Trustees subsequently appointed by Presidents Johnson and Nixon. As of September 1, 1972, the Board of Trustees had approved 81 fellowship appointments for scholars coming from 24 countries and all major geographic regions of the world.

The Board of Trustees has designated four subject areas for particular concentration: (1) long-range issues of peace, world order, and U.S. international responsibilities in the post-Vietnam period; (2) man's relationship to his deteriorating environment; (3) the development of law and cooperation in the uses of the oceans; and (4) investigations into aspects of sustainable growth.

The Tariff Act of 1930 empowers the U.S. Tariff Commission to investigate the conditions, causes, and effects of competition between domestic and foreign industry and to provide reports to the President and the Congress on these matters. Within this general responsibility, the Commission is also directed by the Trade Expansion Act of 1962 and other statutes to conduct specific types of investigations and, where appropriate, to make findings and recommendations to the executive or the Congress in cases where: Serious injury to industries, firms, or groups of workers may warrant changes in quotas or duties or the provision of adjustment assistance; the sale of imports at less than fair value may injure an industry; agricultural imports may materially interfere with certain Department of Agriculture programs; and unfair methods of competition are alleged to occur in the importation of articles or the sale of imports.

The Commission also has a major responsibility for reporting on the customs treatment of imported products and, with the Departments of Treasury and Commerce, decides questions on the enumeration of imported articles for statistical purposes.

The workload of the Commission in all major areas of activity is expected to increase in 1974. The requirements for Commission assistance in congressional consideration of tariff and trade legislation will increase and become more exacting. In addition, the Commission will be required to provide the President and the Congress with a greater amount of technical information and expert assistance in preparing for future international trade negotiations.

The budget reflects the Commission's plans to improve and strengthen its operations in order that it may respond more effectively to the Congress and to the President as well as to carry out its increased statutory workload.

The Aviation Advisory Commission was established by the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, Public Law 91-258, approved May 21, 1970. This nine-member Commission has undertaken to: (1) Formulate recommendations concerning the long-range needs of aviation, including but not limited to future airport requirements and the national airport system plan, and recommendations concerning surrounding land uses, ground access, airways, air service, and aircraft compatible with such plan; and (2) facilitate consideration of other modes of transportation and cooperation with other agencies and communities and industry groups.

Under Public Law 92-184, approved November 27, 1971, the Commission was extended 1 year and was charged, by statute, to conduct its work and prepare and submit a final report to the President and to the Congress on or before January 1, 1973, and terminate 60 days thereafter.

The Joint Federal-State Land Use Planning Commission for Alaska was created by Public Law 92-203, the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. The Commission, composed of Federal and State members, will be in existence until December 31, 1976, to conduct land-use planning activities and to advise and make recommendations to the President, the Congress, and the Governor of Alaska concerning disposition and uses of Federal and State lands in Alaska. Under the law, Commission expenses are shared equally by the Federal Government and the State of Alaska. The increase for 1974 is required to meet full-year expenses of the Commission's staff.

Section 17(a)(9)(A) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, Public Law 92-203, limits the Federal share of the expenses of the Joint Federal-State Land Use Planning Commission for Alaska to 50%. The State of Alaska provides for the remaining 50% of Commission expenses through a combination of (1) assignment of State employees to the Commission professional resource staff and (2) cash payments. For 1974 the total State contribution is estimated at $750 thousand. A total of $180 thousand will be provided in-kind through assignment of State employees; the remaining $570 thousand cash contribution is reflected in this account.

The Commission was established to analyze the U.S. shipbuilding industry to determine whether it can achieve a level of productivity that will support a construction differential subsidy (CDS) rate of 35% by 1976, and to recommend steps that should be taken by industry and Government to improve the competitive position of the industry. If the Commission concludes that the 35% CDS rate cannot be achieved, alternatives to the maritime construction subsidy program will be recommended.

The President's maritime program (Public Law 91-469) also provided that the Secretary of Commerce may not enter into a contract requiring a construction subsidy in excess of the applicable differential without due consideration of the possible program consequences, including the likelihood that the commitment to the construction program may not be continued. In the event the Secretary does enter into such a contract, he must so notify the chairman, and the Commission must report to the industry within 6 months.

The Commission is required to submit its findings to the President and the Congress by October 21, 1973, and 60 days thereafter it will cease to exist.

The Commission on Highway Beautification was established by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970 to: (1) Study existing statutes and regulations governing the control of outdoor advertising and junkyards in areas adjacent to the Federal-aid highway system; (2) review the policies and practices of the Federal and State agencies which govern the control of outdoor advertising and junkyards; (3) compile data necessary to understand and determine the requirements for such control now or in the foreseeable future; (4) study problems relating to the control of on-premise outdoor advertising signs, promotional signs, directional signs, and signs providing information that is essential to the motoring public; (5) study methods of financing and possible sources of Federal funds, including use of the Highway trust fund, to carry out the program; and (6) recommend such modifications or additions to existing laws, regulations, policies, and practices to achieve a workable and effective highway beautification program.

An appropriation of $200 thousand, to remain available until expended, was enacted in 1972. The Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1973 (Public Law 92-607) appropriated an additional $250 thousand contingent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation by the 92d Congress. The 92d Congress failed to enact such legislation but it is expected that action will be taken early in the 93d Congress to make the additional amount available in 1973.

1. The Commission on Financial Structure and Regulation was established by the President on June 16, 1970, to review and study the structure, operation, and regulation of the financial institutions in the United States for the purpose of formulating recommendations which would improve the functioning of the private financial system. The Commission's final report was submitted to the President in December 1971.

Agencies with an appropriate interest in the study and whose programs would likely be affected by the outcome provided financial assistance to the Commission. Additional staff assistance was also provided by allocations from the appropriation in the Executive Office of the President for "Special projects." Following is a summary of the financing (in thousands of dollars):

In addition, the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation supported the Commission's effort by funding directly a number of studies in which they were particularly concerned.

2. The Commission on International Trade and Investment Policy completed its work and was terminated November 2, 1971.

The Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority in 1933 for the unified development of a river basin comprising parts of seven States. TVA is a corporation wholly owned by the Federal Government. Its program in 1974 will be financed from three sources: (1) Appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

Budget program—1. Regional development program.—A major objective of the TVA Act is full development and use of all the resources of the Tennessee River Basin. The development of these resources is reflected in regional and national gains in the fields of navigation, flood control, water quality, recreation, and wildlife; in land resources—agriculture, forestry, and minerals; in education and manpower development; in enhanced quality of the environment; and in related industrial development.

(a) Water resources development includes continuing development of the all-year 9-foot navigation channel from the mouth of the river at Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles. Technical studies appraise the opportunities for more extensive use of the waterway. Data supplied to shippers and carriers help solve transportation problems. Advisory work with State and local agencies leads to new or improved public programs by those agencies to help assure full industrial use of the waterway.

Flood control activities are concerned with maintenance and use of storage space in upstream reservoirs for seasonal retention of excessive runoff and the regulation of discharges to rates of flow which can be handled safely by downstream channels and reservoirs. Flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and along the tributaries downstream from the reservoirs and along the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. Also, TVA collects and analyzes flood data and studies potential flood control projects and ways to improve operations of the existing system. Technical advice and assistance is given to State and local agencies in finding solutions to localized flood control problems.

Regional water quality management comprises the determination of basic facts about water quality, planning of ways of maintaining or upgrading the quality of the water resources, and monitoring and surveillance to assure that water quality does not deteriorate. This work is conducted in cooperation with appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies and with industrial users of water.

Recreation, fish, and waterfowl development activities are designed to promote the optimum development of the water and other scenic resources of the region in a way that will improve the physical and cultural environment, stimulate economic development, and conserve natural and historical resources.

The capital outlay program for water resources development includes a total of $20,571 thousand for continuing construction of multipurpose projects: (1) $6,700 thousand for the Tellico project started in 1967; (2) $3,146 thousand for the Bear Creek project also started in 1967; and (3) $10,725 thousand for the Duck River project started in 1972.

The program also includes capital outlays of $600 thousand for navigation facilities of which $250 thousand is for beginning design of alterations to a railway bridge at Decatur, Ala., and $350 thousand is for other facilities. A total of $900 thousand provides for replenishment of a fund for small flood control projects.

All water resources development facilities are planned, constructed, and operated in cooperation with State and local agencies.

(b) General resources development.—Special attention to selected areas and resources of the Tennessee Valley region, in particularly close cooperation with State and local agencies and with tributary area associations, constitutes an additional phase of TVA's program for the proper use, conservation, and development of the region's resources. Investigations identify current problems and opportunities for development under conditions of optimum use. Research helps develop and test corrective measures. Cooperative projects with State and local groups apply these measures to regional and special problems.

Land resources projects are in the fields of forest and wildland development, agriculture, and minerals. Forest and wildland activities include appraisals of the quality and quantity of the existing resource, research, and demonstrations concerning improvement of the resource, promotion of sound forest management and wood utilization practices, development of improved wildlife food and cover plants, and reclamation of strip mine lands. The objective is to make full use of the forest and wildland resource of the Valley and to develop it for maximum sustained economic return, while enhancing contributions of the resource to a quality environment. Research and demonstrations in agriculture have the objectives of assistance to Valley farmers in improving their economic situation and attainment of a higher standard of living through efficient use of land resources and improved farm practices and systems. Minerals projects have emphasis on economic geology and preparation, in cooperation with State agencies, of geologic maps essential to the development of regional minerals.

Environmental quality projects are concerned with (1) demonstrations concerning economic disposal of solid wastes and (2) regional air quality management.

Tributary area development is a comprehensive and cooperative approach to resource development in areas of the Tennessee Valley where specific opportunities exist for further development and where local groups have organized to deal with problems of economic advancement and social improvement. Work is in close collaboration with organized groups in the tributary areas, most of which lie wholly or in part in the Appalachia portion of the Tennessee Valley.

Demonstrations in education and manpower development are concerned primarily with bringing into the workforce disadvantaged persons and for improving educational systems in low-income rural areas.

Townlift and community improvement is a technical assistance activity in which TVA helps State and local agencies to improve existing towns to better fit them to changed demands upon them for service and to guide the development of new towns where such may be needed in relationship to water resources development projects.

TVA participates in health education and community demonstrations in cooperation with Federal, State, and local groups to upgrade health care in rural areas.

(c) Environmental research and development utilizes TVA resources and Tennessee Valley research opportunities toward meeting pressing needs of the Nation. The program is designed to deal with the full range of variables which affect environmental quality and utilization of natural resources.

(d) Land Between the Lakes.—Work will continue on development of the 170,000-acre area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Lake. Land Between the Lakes is a demonstration of new ideas in public outdoor recreation and conservation education and its development is stimulating the lagging economy of the surrounding area by encouraging further private development. The project includes a variety of facilities where an urbanizing population can use part of its increased leisure to renew its acquaintance with the land and gain new understandings of modern concepts of resource use and conservation. Work on facilities to serve visitors calls for capital outlays of $2,898 thousand.

2. Power program: Power supply and use.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power in an area of 80,000 square miles of the Tennessee Valley States. Operations involve generation and transmission of power and sale of energy at wholesale to local distribution systems and directly to a small number of industries and Government agencies requiring large amounts of power. Power is purchased and distributed by 160 local public agencies. Total energy to be supplied in 1974 is estimated to be 130.3 billion kilowatt-hours. Net income from power operations, after interest charges and depreciation, is estimated to be $81 million for 1974.

Of the $325,400 thousand estimate for power generating facilities, all to be financed from power proceeds and borrowings, $68,015 thousand is for continuing construction of Browns Ferry nuclear units 1-3; $8,220 thousand for completing construction of Cumberland steam units 1-2; $68,030 thousand for continuing Sequoyah nuclear units 1-2; $53,780 thousand for continuing construction of Raccoon Mountain pumped-storage units 1-4; $100,255 thousand for Watts Bar nuclear plant; $23,200 thousand for nuclear plant 4 (undetermined location); and $3,900 thousand for preliminary work on additional capacity needed for the future (nuclear plants 5 and 6 at undetermined locations). Each increment in this program for power generating capacity additions is essential to meeting expected power needs of the Tennessee Valley region.

Capital outlay in 1974 for all power system facilities, including transmission system facilities, is estimated at $548,109 thousand.

3. Fertilizer and munitions development program.—Chemical facilities at Muscle Shoals, Ala., are maintained and operated as a national fertilizer development center.

Program activities are of two general types: fertilizer research and development, and introduction to the American farmer of new fertilizer materials and improved fertilizer uses.

Fertilizer research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and fertilizer process research and development. TVA works cooperatively with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant universities, and with industry to maximize effectiveness of research and to avoid undesirable duplication. Research results on technological developments and on new and improved processes are made available to industry. Knowledge gained in fertilizer research is valuable also in the related field of munitions. Special attention is given to methods for the recovery of sulfur in useful form from stack gases.

Fertilizer introduction is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant universities and the fertilizer industry. It includes carefully controlled small-plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and nationwide educational introduction of fertilizers. Developmental production of fertilizer materials has the objectives of (1) demonstrating the technical and commercial feasibility of new or improved processes and (2) supplying new and improved materials for widespread educational introduction among farmers.

Capital outlay costs of $2,315 thousand for chemical facilities are chiefly for (1) replacement of storage tanks and work on other pollution abatement facilities, (2) starting construction of a demonstration-scale unit for production of sulfur-coated urea, and (3) other small additions and replacements of existing facilities.

4. General service activities.—Operating costs for general service activities cover mapping and remote sensing, bridge maintenance, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies. Capital outlay for additions and replacements of office, transportation, electronic computing equipment, and other facilities used jointly in conducting TVA programs is estimated at $6,278 thousand.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1974 are to be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $43,176 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $22,997 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $901,133 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowings of $440 million backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

Operating results and financial condition.—Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriations from the Treasury. Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 1974 are estimated at $79.5 million—$59.5 million as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20 million as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Borrowings from the public for the power program are expected to increase by $440 million during 1974.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $491,804 thousand during 1974. The increase is mainly in fixed assets, reflecting expenditures for construction of facilities; $484,493 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $7,311 thousand is in nonpower programs. The estimate of current liabilities at June 30, 1974, is $52,452 thousand more than the estimate at June 30, 1973. The increase reflects liabilities mainly related to construction. The total Government equity at June 30, 1974, is estimated to be $579 thousand less than that at June 30, 1973.

The United States Information Agency seeks, by means of communication techniques, to influence public attitudes abroad to achieve U.S. foreign policy objectives. The Agency also advises those responsible for formulating and implementing foreign policies and programs of the probable impact of those policies on foreign opinion.

Agency operations, which are largely financed from this appropriation and from the related special foreign currency appropriation, are composed of the following major elements:

1. Overseas missions.—The program is operative in 108 countries. The Agency operates through 189 posts and supports 120 binational centers. The overseas missions carry out country programs designed to influence local attitudes and actions in support of U.S. foreign policy. Overseas missions prepare materials using local facilities, and use materials provided by the media services in Washington.

2. Media services.—These services provide support for overseas country programs.

(a) Press and publications service maintains communication facilities for the transmission of editorial, news, and feature materials for adaptation by overseas missions. It produces pamphlets and periodicals in English and foreign language editions for worldwide and special area distribution, including magazines titled, "America Illustrated," for distribution in the Soviet Union and Poland; "Topic," in French and English, for the African area; and "Al Majal," in Arabic, for distribution in the Arab world. The service also operates three regional printing centers and provides overseas missions with printing supplies and equipment.

(b) Screen service produces and acquires motion picture and television programs which are then translated into as many as 40 foreign languages. It adapts these programs for specific country or area use, and supports the foreign production, use, and distribution of films and television programs.

(c) Information center service supports U.S.-operated libraries, reading rooms, and binational centers, providing them with collections of American publications, both in English and in translation, and with English language teaching materials. It assists American publishers in distributing selected products overseas and supports the publication of low-priced books for sale abroad. The service also provides exhibits and visual materials to overseas missions for local display, and provides books and periodicals for presentation to selected individuals and groups.

(d) Broadcasting service produces radio broadcasts in English and in 35 foreign languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at five domestic and 10 overseas locations. The service also supplies the overseas missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations.

3. Program direction and other services.—This activity encompasses Agency managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions. Included are the Office of the Director, the Office of Policy and Plans, the Office of Research and Assessment, physical and personnel security functions, legal counsel, and central administrative services.

4. Shared administrative support.—Administrative services for the Agency's overseas operations, and certain special support services at headquarters, are obtained through reimbursable arrangements with the Department of State.

1. Administration and coordination.—The Council's activities include directing and coordinating comprehensive regional and river basin planning; recommending to the President needed changes in Federal policies and programs; establishing, for the approval of the President, principles, standards, and procedures for Federal water and related land resources planning; and submitting Council reports on completed plans to the President and the Congress.

2. River basin commissions.—River basin commissions have been established under title II of the act to coordinate Federal, State, and local plans for development of water and related land resources; to prepare comprehensive, coordinated, joint plans to make optimum use of such resources; and to recommend long-range schedules of priorities.

3. Planning grants to States.—Financial assistance on a matching basis is provided to the States to stimulate their participation in water and related land resources planning. Grant funds primarily support increased numbers of personnel in State planning agencies. Each of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, and Puerto Rico participate in the program.

4. Comprehensive planning.—The 1975 assessment of national and regional water supplies and requirements was initiated in 1972 by preparation of study plans. The assessment is to be accomplished as a joint effort of Federal and State agencies.

Regional or river basin plans are prepared under the direction of the Council or of appropriate river basin commissions. Participation of Federal and State agencies in these studies is coordinated through the Council.

This Corporation should enable the delivery of improved, high quality legal services to the poor through a Corporation that contains built-in safeguards to assure its operation in a responsible manner. Appropriations will be requested to HEW for payment to the Corporation.

When it enacted Public Law 92-460 on October 4, 1972, to provide railroad retirement beneficiaries with a temporary 20% benefit increase, Congress directed the railroad industry to recommend a plan by which this increase as well as the temporary 10% and 15% increases, provided by Public Law 92-46 and Public Law 91-377 respectively, could be financed soundly on a permanent basis. This plan is to be submitted by March 1, 1973. The Railroad Retirement Board and the Administration are to comment on the proposal by April 1, 1973.

These recent temporary benefit increases are scheduled to expire on June 30, 1973, under existing legislation. This estimate assumes that the present benefit levels will continue in 1974 and that adequate financing will be provided.

PART II

SCHEDULES OF PERMANENT POSITIONS

EXPLANATION OF SCHEDULES

Part II contains detailed schedules of permanent positions which are furnished to the Congress, pursuant to section 204 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, as amended (31 U.S.C. 581), excluding waivers thereunder granted by the Appropriations Committees. These schedules relate to positions established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. Positions authorized at the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time; positions abolished during the year are not counted.

The first section of the schedule, headed "Grades and ranges," contains a listing of the grades and salary ranges of authorized positions, and the total number in each grade, as illustrated below:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

Total permanent positions.....	285	322	389
Unfilled positions, June 30.....	-9	-8	-8
Total permanent employment, end of year.....	276	314	381

Grades and their respective salary ranges are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, is abbreviated "GS-..." The salary ranges shown are the normal ranges of the pay scales which became effective in January 1972 for graded positions, and in March 1969 for executive level grades. Two additional lines provide for deducting the number of unfilled positions to arrive at the total employment in permanent positions at the end of the year. Note that the pay scales shown in this schedule may be exceeded (in the general schedule grades and certain other positions) when pay rates in private enterprise for one or more occupations in one or more areas or locations are substantially above the statutory rates. In such cases, the Civil Service Commission has authority to permit a higher entrance level (not to exceed the maximum pay step prescribed by statute) and add a corresponding number of steps above the stated pay range.

The second section of the schedule, as illustrated below, lists operating titles of the individual positions under each grade for which the minimum basic annual salary is equal to or greater than that for grade GS-16 ($29,678).

HIGHER LEVEL POSITIONS
Executive level IV, $38,000:

The number of positions shown in a consolidated schedule will equal the sum of the entries for permanent positions reflected in the related personnel summary schedules that appear in Part I of the Appendix.

PART III

SUPPLEMENTAL AND AMENDMENT
PROPOSALS FOR THE CURRENT YEAR

EXPLANATION OF PROPOSALS

Part III transmits proposed supplemental appropriations for 1973, to which reference is made in Part I as "Supplementals now requested." In a few instances rescissions of enacted appropriations are proposed. These proposed rescissions appear in Part I in the program and financing schedules. There are also included in Part III proposed amendments to the 1973 budget, to which reference is made in Part I as "Proposed 1973 budget amendments." The amendments are for proposed revisions to certain requests for the unenacted Departments of Labor; Health, Education, and Welfare; and Related Agencies

Appropriation bill for 1973. It is assumed that these unenacted requests are pending before the Congress.

The proposals take the usual form of language recommended for inclusion in an appropriation act. Information concerning the proposed amendments includes references to the original request in the 1973 Budget Appendix and to subsequent amendments identified in various House and Senate documents.

All of the proposals are accompanied by a brief explanatory statement. No "program and financing" schedules appear in this part, since the relevant figures are included in the schedules of Part I.

SUPPLEMENTAL AND AMENDMENT PROPOSALS FOR THE CURRENT YEAR

Transmitted herein are proposed supplementals and amendments for 1973. Of the total requested, $1.1 billion is for higher education and replaces the estimate for this program that was included in last year's budget. This request for the 1973-74 academic year was deferred in connection with the 1973 Supplemental Appropriations Act.

The remaining requests for funds include $1.6 billion for mandatory payments required under present laws and international agreements (of which $614 million is for social services and other mandatory public assistance grants) and $199 million for disaster relief. These increases are partly offset by reductions of $1.3 billion, mainly in appropriations of the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare; many of these appropriations are still pending before the Congress.

PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTAL ACTIONS

DETAILS OF PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING JUNE 1973

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the following sums are appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, to supply supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1973, and for other purposes; namely:

TITLE I—PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS FOR VARIOUS PROGRAMS (EXCLUDING REQUESTS FOR PAY COSTS ONLY)

The Judiciary

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

PRINTING AND BINDING SUPREME COURT REPORTS

For an additional amount for "Printing and binding Supreme Court reports", $61,000, together with an additional amount of $26,000 to defray a 1972 deficiency.

Additional funds are requested for printing an increased number of volumes, to cover higher printing costs and to cover a 1972 deficiency resulting from increased costs.

COURTS OF APPEALS, DISTRICT COURTS, AND OTHER JUDICIAL SERVICES

SALARIES OF JUDGES

For an additional amount for "Salaries of Judges", $500,000.

This supplemental appropriation is required as a result of an increase in the number of senior judges. A judge, upon retirement, continues to receive the salary of the office. The appointment of his successor places an additional burden upon the appropriation. This request also takes into account recent statutory increases in the annuities of widows of Supreme Court justices and agency contributions for retired justices who elect to participate in the Judicial Survivors Annuity System (Public Law 92-379).

REPRESENTATION BY COURT-APPOINTED COUNSEL AND OPERATIONS OF DEFENDER ORGANIZATIONS

For an additional amount for "Representation by Court-Appointed Counsel and Operation of Defender Organizations", $4,000,000: Provided, That not to exceed $1,500,000 shall be available for the liquidation of obligations incurred in prior years.

It is estimated that $2.5 million will be required for appointments of counsel in petty offense cases when, in the opinion of the judge or magistrate, the defendant faces the likelihood of a prison sentence (Supreme Court decision in Argersinger v. Hamlin, June 12, 1972, 407 U.S. 25). In addition, the sum of $1.5 million will be required for the liquidation of obligations incurred in prior years. This projected deficiency is based on the number of outstanding claims by attorneys appointed during fiscal years 1971 and

REPRESENTATION BY COURT-APPOINTED COUNSEL AND OPERATIONS

1972. In this regard, the Comptroller General has ruled that the appointment of counsel constitutes a contractual obligation and that payment for services rendered shall be made from the appropriation current at the time of the appointment.

COMMISSION ON REVISION OF THE FEDERAL COURT APPELLATE SYSTEM OF THE UNITED STATES

For necessary expenses of the Commission on Revision of the Federal Court Appellate System of the United States created by the Act of October 13, 1972 (Public Law 92-489) (86 Stat. 807), $270,000, to remain available until expended.

The Commission will study and report to the President, the Congress, and the Chief Justice, its recommendations for changes in the geographical boundaries of the U.S. Courts of Appeals within 180 days from the date on which its ninth member is appointed and within 15 months from the date on which its ninth member is appointed will submit a report and recommendations for additional changes in the structure and internal procedures of the Federal Courts of Appeal system. The Commission will cease to exist 90 days after the date of submission of its second report.

Funds Appropriated to the President
DISASTER RELIEF

DISASTER RELIEF

For an additional amount for "Disaster relief", $100,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, that not to exceed three per centum of the foregoing amount shall be available for administrative expenses.

This request will provide additional funds to meet current year requirements for disaster relief and recovery from tropical storm Agnes.

Department of Agriculture

ANIMAL AND PLANT HEALTH INSPECTION SERVICE

ANIMAL AND PLANT HEALTH INSPECTION SERVICE

For an additional amount for "Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service", $12,100,000: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available for acquisition of land, or interest therein, as authorized by section 11 of the act of August 3, 1956 (7 U.S.C. 428a).

This proposed supplemental appropriation is for required Federal assumption of meat and poultry intrastate inspection activities in the States of Pennsylvania, Missouri, Oregon, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kentucky, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. It will also provide authority to acquire land for a veterinary biologics facility.

AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE

FUNDS FOR STRENGTHENING MARKETS, INCOME, AND SUPPLY
(SECTION 32)

Funds available under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935 (7 U.S.C. 612c), shall be available for child feeding programs and nutritional programs authorized by law in the School Lunch Act and Child Nutrition Act, as amended, in the amount of $21,960,000 for the current fiscal year in addition to amounts heretofore provided for such purposes.

This request is for additional free and reduced-price lunches. It is necessary because of increased participation under section 5 of Public Law 92-433, which provides for eligibility of children from households with incomes 25% to 50% above the Secretary's poverty guidelines.

FOREST SERVICE

FOREST PROTECTION AND UTILIZATION

For an additional amount for "Forest protection and utilization", for "Forest land management", $34,895,000: Provided, That, in addition, there may be transferred to "Forest land management" $4,250,000 from the amount available for "Forest research" and $9,000,000 from the amount available for "State and private forestry cooperation."

SUPPORT OF UNITED STATES PRISONERS

For an additional amount for "Support of United States prisoners", $2,500,000.

FOOD, DRUG, AND PRODUCT SAFETY

This proposed rescission reflects an adjustment of the level of support required for the planned 1973 activities in food, drug, and product safety regulations.

INDIAN HEALTH SERVICES

The proposed rescission maintains overall program growth in 1973 of $13 million over the 1972 program level.

INDIAN EDUCATION

Support for Indian education—which totaled more than $80 million in 1973—is provided under several existing educational authorities. The proposed rescission would eliminate duplication of these existing authorities and programs.

HIGHER EDUCATION

Amounts appropriated by Public Law 92-607 in excess of amounts requested are proposed for rescission. These are $9,300 thousand of the $15,000 thousand appropriated for university community services, $10,000 thousand for land-grant colleges under the Bankhead-Jones Act, and $25,000 thousand appropriated for veterans cost of education payments to institutions under section 420 of the Higher Education Act.

LIBRARY RESOURCES

The proposed rescission reduces the college library program by $2,857,000 to the 1973 level. The program is scheduled for termination in 1974.

EDUCATIONAL RENEWAL

The amounts proposed for rescission exceed the 1972 level. These include $5,930 thousand appropriated for graduate study under the long-term training activity, $1,000 thousand appropriated for undergraduate preparation of educational personnel, and $4,960 thousand of the $11,860 thousand appropriated to recruit and train individuals for career and vocational education.

MANPOWER TRAINING SERVICES

This proposed rescission will reduce the enacted amount for Economic Opportunity Act programs to reflect program adjustments in 1973 not anticipated at the time of the original submission.

This proposed amendment will provide funds for an unanticipated increase in defaulted student loans.

SOCIAL AND REHABILITATION SERVICE

GRANTS TO STATES FOR PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

Request pending:
1973 Budget Appendix, page 450.....	$13,369,704,000

Total pending request.....	13,344,704,000
Proposed amendment.....	614,066,000
Revised request.....	13,958,770,000

This request provides for increased estimates of public assistance costs, based on revised State estimates and subject to the recently enacted limitation on social services activities. This increase is primarily due to a large rise in social services costs, including reimbursements for prior year activities, which is partially offset by savings in maintenance assistance and Medicaid.

Total pending request.....	455,133,000
Proposed amendment.....	-161,563,000
Revised request.....	293,570,000

This amendment reduces the pending request of the revised WIN program. Operations of the revised WIN program are being severely limited by the continuing resolution and by problems inherent with the startup of the program. The continuing resolution is keeping enrollment in training and work-related activities to an average level of 120,000 with corresponding reductions in other affected program components. The revised request is, therefore, what is realistically attainable.

¹ The appropriation for Social and Rehabilitation Service in Public Law 92-607 is $898,648 thousand. However, $866,681 thousand of this amount is unavailable for obligation because it is to carry out legislation which did not become law.

(Delete the first paragraph under this heading and insert in lieu thereof the following:)

For carrying out, except as otherwise provided, the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, sections 301 and 303 of the Public Health Service Act, and parts B, C, and D of the Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act, titles III, IV, V, VII, and VIII of the Older Americans Act of 1965, the Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Act, sections 426, 1110, and 1115 of the Social Security Act, and the International Health Research Act of 1960, $954,197,000; of which $590,000,000 shall be for grants under section 2 of the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, and $21,715,000 for grants under Part C of the Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act, to remain available until June 30, 1975, except that grants made from these funds after June 30, 1973, will be for construction only as specified in section 132(a)(3) of such Act; $4,250,000 for grants under Part B of the Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act, to remain available until expended: Provided, That there may be transferred to this appropriation from the appropriation "Mental health" an amount not to exceed the sum of the allotment adjustment made by the Secretary pursuant to section 202(c) of the Community Mental Health Centers Act.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

PAYMENTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS

1973 Budget Appendix, page 460.....	$2, 475, 485, 000
Proposed amendment.....	-98, 626, 000
Revised request.....	2, 376, 859, 000

This amendment reduces the requested amount for the following activities:

Federal payments for supplementary medical insurance.—The original 1973 appropriation request included an adjustment of $6,216 thousand for estimated underfinancing of 1972 Federal matching payments. Actual 1972 premium collections did not exceed the matching payments appropriated for 1972. Therefore, the adjustment is no longer needed. Also, the revised estimate of 1973 premium collections which must be matched by the Federal Government is $6,000 thousand less than the estimate in the 1973 appropriation request ($1,422 million rather than $1,428 million).

Hospital insurance for the uninsured.—Each year's appropriation request provides for an adjustment between amounts previously appropriated and actual experience with the program or revised estimates of program costs. Based upon an additional year of actual experience which was not available at the time the original 1973 appropriation request was prepared three reductions in the original estimates are proposed: (1) a decrease of $36,000 thousand in estimated 1973 requirements; (2) a decrease of $43,277 thousand in the adjustment for 1972 costs; and (3) a final negative adjustment of $7,133 thousand for 1969 costs.

SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

Request pending.....
Proposed amendment.....	$77, 207, 000
Revised request.....	77, 207, 000

(Add the above heading and the following paragraph):

For payment to the Social Security trust funds for administrative expenses for the Supplemental Security Income Program, pursuant to Section 201(g)(1) of the Social Security Act, $77,207,000.

The supplemental security income program was established by title III of the Social Security Amendments of 1972 which provided that administrative costs for the new program would be advanced out of the social security trust funds with repayment from general revenue of the Treasury. This budget amendment provides for reimbursing the trust funds on a current basis for the administration of the supplemental security income program.

PART IV

ANNEXED BUDGETS AND OTHER MATERIAL

EXPLANATION OF ANNEXED BUDGETS AND OTHER MATERIAL

Part IV contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain activities which are not part of the Budget totals, but which are made available as auxiliary information. It also contains a table of principal disbursements and repayments of direct loans.

ANNEXED BUDGETS OF GOVERNMENT ACTIVITIES

The Export-Import Bank, a wholly owned Government corporation, was removed from the budget totals by Public Law 92-126, effective August 16, 1971. It is included in Part I up to that date, and in this part from that date.

The Environmental Financing Authority, created by Public Law 92-500, is expected to begin operations in 1974. The Authority is authorized to purchase obligations issued by State and local authorities to finance the non-Federal share of certain waste treatment projects.

The budget presentation of the Postal Service reflects its conversion to independent status consistent with the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970. The activities of the Postal Service for 1974, but not the Federal subsidy, are excluded from the budget totals and presented here. The schedules covering 1972 and 1973 are shown with other independent agencies in Part I.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System provides its administrative budget for inclusion, without further review. In conformance with its accounting system, the figures for the Board are on a calendar year basis.

ANNEXED BUDGETS OF GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED CREDIT AGENCIES

This section includes four systems of privately owned banks, and two privately owned corporations in the field of mortgage finance, all of which are chartered by the Federal Government and supervised by a Government agency. These budgets are not reviewed by the President, and are presented as submitted by the agencies.

In addition, the new Student Loan Marketing Association as established by Public Law 92-318, is expected to become operational in 1974. It will be a Government-sponsored private corporation, which will serve as a secondary market and warehouse facility for federally insured student loans. No schedules are presented in this Budget as initial appointments to the Board of the Association were announced on December 29, 1972, and the Board, therefore, has not yet had an opportunity to plan its operations.

OTHER MATERIAL

This section presents disbursements, repayments, and net outlays for direct loans. Loan disbursements are reported net of loans written off and other noncash adjustments to balances outstanding. Loan repayments are collections of principal only; interest is excluded.

ANNEXED BUDGETS

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

ENVIRONMENTAL FINANCING AUTHORITY FUND

ADVANCES TO THE ENVIRONMENTAL FINANCING AUTHORITY FUND

For advances by the Secretary of the Treasury to provide initial capital for the Environmental Financing Authority, $100,000,000, to remain available without fiscal year limitation. In addition, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase not to exceed $200,000,000 of the obligations of the Authority issued pursuant to subsection (g) of the Environmental Financing Act of 1972 (section 12 of Public Law 92-500), and to purchase such further amounts of such obligations as may be necessary to permit the authority to make timely payment of principal and interest on its obligations sold to purchasers other than the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Environmental Financing Authority was created by section 12 of Public Law 92-500. The Authority is authorized to make commitments to purchase any obligation or participation which is issued by a State or local public body to finance the non-Federal share of the cost of any project for the construction of waste treatment works which the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency has determined to be eligible under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

The Authority is authorized, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue and have outstanding obligations having such maturities and bearing such rate or rates of interest as may be determined by the Authority. As authorized in appropriation acts, the Secretary of the Treasury may, at his discretion, purchase or agree to purchase any of these obligations issued and to use therefor the proceeds of the sale of any securities issued under the Second Liberty Bond Act. Each purchase of obligations by the Secretary shall be upon terms and conditions as to yield a return at a rate not less than a rate determined by the Secretary taking into consideration the current average yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. The Secretary may sell any of these obligations acquired by him. All purchases and sales by the Secretary of these obligations will be treated as public debt transactions.

For the purpose of stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to enter into stabilization agreements, and to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities. An exchange stabilization fund, with a capital of $200 million (derived from the increment resulting from the reduction in the weight of the gold dollar which took place in 1934) is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 822a). All earnings and interest accruing are paid into this fund and are available for the purposes thereof, including expenses. Transactions in special drawing rights and U.S. holdings of SDR's are administered by this fund.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been the handling charge imposed on purchases and sales of gold for the account of the fund, profits on foreign exchange transactions, and interest on investments held by the fund. The cumulative income of the fund from the time it began operations has been $447 million and its administrative expenses $89 million, resulting in a net income as of June 30, 1972, of $358 million.

It is not practicable to forecast the transactions of the fund in gold, foreign currencies, foreign investments, and the like. Therefore, no estimates have been furnished for 1973 and 1974.

Liabilities of the fund include $1,712 million advanced to the fund as a result of drawings of foreign currencies by the Secretary from the International Monetary Fund.

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition.

The Export-Import Bank of the United States was organized in 1934 and its existing programs are authorized under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended. The purpose of the Bank is to aid in financing and to facilitate U.S. exports and imports.

Eximbank's 24 export expansion programs are designed to assist U.S. exporters to increase their overseas sales, thus helping the United States to achieve a more favorable balance of trade and balance of payments. By statutory requirement, the Bank supplements and does not compete with private capital. The Bank's loans and guarantees must provide a reasonable assurance of repayment. Eximbank makes loans and issues guarantees and insurance on terms and conditions which are appropriate in international trade.

Cooperative financing facilities have been made available in practically every significant city in the free world. Therefore, any U.S. company can offer its goods with confidence that any creditworthy buyer can buy his products and arrange payments.

The medium-term discount loan facility was modified in December 1971, to make it more useful and responsive to the needs of the U.S. exporting community.

In order to support the levels of authorizations necessary to meet the needs of expanding U.S. exports, legislation will be proposed to raise the statutory ceiling on the Bank's outstanding loans, guarantees, and insurance to $30 billion, from the current level of $20 billion.

The schedules presented herewith reflect the outlays which would have been included in the budget totals if the Bank's activities had not been excluded as of August 17, 1971.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Bank is a wholly owned Government corporation. Capital stock of $1 billion was purchased by the U.S. Treasury. In addition, the Bank is authorized to borrow from the Treasury up to $6 billion; the Bank pays interest on such borrowings.

The Bank's net income is estimated to be $139,942 thousand in 1974, compared with $127,201 thousand in 1973 and $147,862 thousand in 1972. Basic legislation.—The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the act of December 23, 1913, known as the Federal Reserve Act (38 Stat. 251), as amended (included in ch. 3, 12 U.S.C.), and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Construction program.—Because of a need for additional office space, the Board initiated plans several years ago to construct an annex office building immediately north of its present building. Construction began in April 1971, and is scheduled for completion in late 1973 or early 1974.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

Employment.—The Board's 1972 and 1973 estimates are in harmony with the President's economic policies.

The Federal National Mortgage Association is a Government-sponsored private corporation. Its purpose is to provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by supplying a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

To carry out this purpose, FNMA buys, sells, and otherwise deals in mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans' Administration, conventional mortgages, and certain mortgages insured by the Farmers Home Administration.

The Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 empowers FNMA, with the approval of the Secretary of HUD, to purchase, service, lend on the security of, sell, and otherwise deal in conventional mortgages. The potential volume of conventional purchases cannot be predicted, however, FNMA believes that it will represent a small percentage of FNMA's total mortgage portfolio. FNMA acts to minimize the possible additional risk involved in purchasing conventional mortgages by applying strict qualifications in connection with such purchases.

Recent legislation empowers FNMA to purchase, service, sell, or otherwise deal in any loans made to a public agency under part B of title VI of the Public Health Services Act (primarily loans made for the construction or modernization of hospital facilities), and to receive Federal subsidies designed to bring the yield on federally insured low- and middle-income housing mortgages, purchased by FNMA at prices in excess of market, into line with then current mortgage market conditions.

The authorizing statute, Public Law 83-560, approved August 2, 1954, originally contemplated that FNMA's secondary market operations would ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. On December 1, 1968, pursuant to Public Law 90-448, approved August 1, 1968, FNMA was converted to a Government-sponsored, privately owned corporation. As a privately owned corporation, FNMA is able to raise money in the private capital markets and support the secondary mortgage market unconstrained by considerations which control the Federal budget.

The common stock of the corporation is owned by the public and is fully transferable and fully traded. The corporation may accumulate funds for its capital surplus account from private sources by requiring each mortgage seller to make payments of nonrefundable capital contributions, equal to not more than 2% of the unpaid principal amounts of mortgages purchased or to be purchased by the corporation from such seller.

The Federal National Mortgage Association was initially capitalized under the Housing Act of 1954 by the issuance of $92.8 million of preferred stock to the Secretary of the Treasury. Additional preferred stock subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury were authorized under subsequent acts; the total of such authorizations has aggregated $317.8 million.

The Association has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated capital debentures in an amount not in excess of twice the net equity. It may in addition borrow amounts not in excess of the sum of net equity and subordinated capital debentures outstanding multiplied by a factor established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. This factor is currently set at 25. These borrowings usually take the form of debentures, short-term discount notes, or bank loans. Finally, FNMA may issue securities, guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association, which are fully backed by pools of mortgages. This last type of borrowing is limited only by the size of FNMA's loan portfolio.

The banks for cooperatives, of which there are 13, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sales of debentures to the public and from their own capital funds. The debentures which the banks issue are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The Federal intermediate credit banks, of which there are 12, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to, local financing institutions, such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of debentures to the public and from their own capital funds. The debentures are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks became mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968.

The Federal land banks, through the 578 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These banks and associations are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947.

The 12 Federal home loan banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions and their main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan type institutions, and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and enhance their service to the public as savings media and home mortgage lenders in their own communities. Each bank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the banks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1972 the banks extended credit amounting to $3.7 billion and received repayments of $4.8 billion. Advances outstanding on June 30, 1972, totaled $6.1 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On June 30, 1972, $6.5 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include a portion of members deposits as determined by Board's policy (with total deposits amounting to $1.7 billion on June 30, 1972), and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions, amounting to $1.7 billion at the end of 1972. Funds not immediately needed for advances to members are invested in obligations of the United States or agencies thereof.

The capital stock of the Federal home loan banks is owned entirely by their members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951, and since that time the banks have been owned entirely by their members.

The entire operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a substantial portion of the Board's administrative and other costs.

¹ Balances of selected resources are identified on the statement of financial condition. Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undelivered orders, 1973, $1,307,298 thousand; 1974, $2,256,319 thousand.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing customers with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including nine Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Domestic postage rates, postal services and classification of mail matter are subject to public notice and administrative hearing procedures under the authority of a five-member Presidentially appointed Postal Rate Commission, which makes recommendations to the Governors. Final determinations on changes in mail rates or classifications are made by the Governors subject to appellate review.

The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) Mail and services revenue, (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources, (3) proceeds from borrowing, (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments, and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital, and, with appropriate advice or approval by the Secretary of the Treasury, investment in obligations and securities.

The 1974 program for the U.S. Postal Service is based on an anticipated mail volume of 90.9 billion pieces, compared to 89.1 billion estimated for 1973 and 87.2 billion in 1972.

Starting with 1974 transactions of the Postal Service fund and the assets and liabilities of the U.S. Postal Service will no longer appear within the totals of the U.S. budget. The schedules presented here reflect estimated net expenditures of $1,159,664 thousand and summary data on postal operations.
