1. Population.—Population research encompasses four large and complex undertakings: (1) The development of improved methods of fertility regulation, including the improvement of contraceptive technology and control of infertility; (2) studies of biologic and genetic implications of contraceptive use; (3) investigations of the social and behavioral aspects of population problems and dynamics; and (4) basic biomedical research in the population sciences.

2. Child health.—The child health program encompasses research on the segment of the life span beginning with the moment of conception and extending through the later teenage years. The research is conducted within one of three child health program areas: perinatal biology and infant mortality, mental retardation, and growth and development.

3. Aging.—Aging research includes medical, biological, psychological, and social aspects of research relevant to the health of the elderly. The activity supports research on the multitude of biological changes that occur with aging and are major determinants of disease processes, studies of cognitive and emotional alterations that occur with increasing age, and investigations of societal aspects of aging.

4. Intramural, laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratories conduct research in three major program areas of child health and human development: population and reproduction; child health; and aging. This activity also supports studies dealing with the incidence, distribution, and control of health problems in certain populations. It collects and analyzes program statistics and executes statistical studies.

5. Research management and program services.—This activity supports administrative management, program planning and evaluation, research information, and research conferences.

Excludes $9 thousand in 1974 and 1975 for activities transferred to Departmental Management. Comparable amount for 1973 ($9 thousand) is included above.

1. Retinal and choroidal disease.—Research is supported to acquire knowledge of how the retina responds to light and converts it into electrical signals that travel to the brain resulting in sight.

2. Corneal diseases.—Corneal disease research is aimed at reducing the impact of corneal diseases through improved methods of treatment, prevention, and diagnosis.

3. Cataract.—Cataract research attempts to identify the causes of cataract and develop methods for its prevention and improved treatment.

4. Glaucoma.—Glaucoma research studies the cause of glaucoma, development of techniques for prevention and early detection of the disease, and improved methods of treatment.

5. Sensory-motor disorders and rehabilitation.—Sensory-motor laboratory and clinical investigations are focused on the development and function of those activities of the brain and the eye muscles which make vision possible.

6. Intramural laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research is focused on developing new and improved techniques for the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of vision disorders.

7. Research management and program services.—This activity provides support for overall administrative management and scientific direction of Institute programs.

NOTES

Includes $29 thousand in 1975 for activities previously financed from (in thousands of dollars):

	1973	1974
National Institute of General Medical Science.....	24	24
Departmental Management.....	1	1

Excludes $30 thousand in 1975 for activities transferred to the Office of Assistant Secretary for Health: 1973, $30 thousand; 1974, $30 thousand.

Excludes $11 thousand in 1974 and 1975 for activities transferred to Departmental Management. Comparable amount for 1973 ($11 thousand) is included above.

1. Environmental health sciences centers.—These centers support research in several traditional disciplines to foster application of expertise across disciplinary lines to deal with environmental health problems associated with a wide variety of environmental agents and with the diverse biological effect on the human organism or appropriate models.

2. Environmental mutagenesis and reproductive toxicology.—This activity supports research to clarify the nature and structure activity relations of environmental agents that may affect the genetic makeup or reproductive capability and fidelity of man.

3. Etiology of environmental diseases and disorders.—This activity studies cause and effect relations between physical factors and chemical agents in the environment and the occurrence of human diseases and disorders in short-term and life-time exposure situations.

4. Environmental pharmacology and toxicology.—This activity supports research to identify factors in the external environment and in the body that act upon chemical agents and alter their toxicity; to determine the modes of absorption and transport within the body and to characterize the nature and sites of molecular, cellular, and tissue interactions that lead to functional disorders.

5. Environmental pathogenesis.—This activity supports research to define in detail and in time sequence the molecular and cellular events that culminate in recognizable diseases and disorders, and to clarify the role of environmental agents as secondary contributors to degenerative diseases.

6. Intramural laboratory and clinical research.—Intramural research constitutes the in-house research effort in environmental health sciences. Research is directed toward the development of a reliable data base for use in establishing standards and devising remedial methods in a variety of populations at risk from exposure to environmental and occupational chemicals and physical factors.

7. Research management and program services.—This program provides for the overall administration, coordination, and direction of the varied programs and activities of the Institute.

The programs administered by the Division of Research Resources provide for the development and support of specialized research settings for use by the grantees and contractors of the NIH categorical programs in the generation of new knowledge to aid the progress of biomedical science in the treatment of human disease and disability.

1. Clinical research.—The clinical research activity provides support for general clinical research centers which are physically discrete research units located in university affiliated hospitals and provides clinical research opportunities and resources to large numbers of investigatory and research groups for the study of human disease.

2. Biotechnology research.—Support is provided to institutions for the conduct of multicategorical health-related research with emphasis on digital computation, mass spectrometry, nuclear magnetic resonance spectroscopy, and high voltage electron microscopy.

3. Laboratory animal sciences and primate research.—Support is provided for animal resources required for biomedical research. Grants are made to institutions for special animal colonies, research related to improving animal health and care, disease diagnosis and control, studies directed to enhancing the usefulness of animal models for research, and general improvement of management and accommodations for institutional animal resources. Primate centers provide a research environment where scientists from many disciplines can conduct biomedical and behavioral research using the nonhuman primate.

4. Minority biomedical support.—Support is provided to build and strengthen the health-related research capabilities of colleges, universities, and health professional schools in which student enrollments are drawn mainly from ethnic minority groups.

The NIH management fund was established to facilitate the conduct of NIH operations financed by two or more appropriations. Fund activities are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. Formulas for determining each institute's contribution reflect usage of services provided by the fund. Taken into consideration are such factors as the number of activated beds in the clinical center, number of laboratory workers, total personnel, and dollar level of grants and direct research funds obligated by the institute. A small portion of the fund comes from reimbursements from outside sources, and from other Government agencies.

1. Computer services provides a central scientific research and computational resource in support of the NIH programs.

2. Research supporting services provides the central administration and operation of services for the conduct of research activities such as providing laboratory animals, culture media, and glassware; design and fabrication of laboratory instrumentation; operating the NIH medical reference library including the translation of medical literature; scientific photography and medical arts; and environmental engineering services.

3. Engineering services provides engineering, architectural, craft, and labor services required for the (1) operation and maintenance of the NIH facilities; (2) planning of facilities and improvements; (3) administration and inspection of construction performed under direct contract; and (4) liaison and inspection of direct construction projects administered by either the Office of Facilities Engineering and Property Management, DHEW, or the Public Buildings Service, GSA.

4. Clinical services provides facilities and services, other than physician care, for (1) an integrated operation of its 516-bed facility servicing nine Institutes conducting clinical investigations; (2) developing and recommending policies and rules for the protection and welfare of patients; (3) conducting research in methods and techniques of hospital administration in a medical research environment; (4) professional staff conducting independent research; and (5) numerous other medical care services. In 1973, clinical services were provided for 112,081 inpatient days and for 65,866 outpatient visits in support of the clinical research projects of the nine Institutes. Continued emphasis will be made to provide maximum patient care and support of the medical research investigations of the various Institutes.

5. Grant review and approval provides staff support services in formulating NIH grant and award policies and procedures relating to research and fellowship programs; assigns applications to the appropriate bureau of the Public Health Service; assigns applications within review groups, and provides for the scientific review of research grant applications by study sections and review committees; conducts negotiations with grantee institutions; and collects, analyzes, and evaluates management and program data needed in the management of the extramural programs.

6. Administrative services include plant and office house-keeping and safety services.

1. General mental health.—(a) Research.—This activity includes all of the National Institute of Mental Health's general mental health research efforts utilizing grants or carried out directly by the Institute staff in Government-owned facilities on the campuses of the National Institutes of Health and Saint Elizabeths Hospital (intramural research program) and the research career program.

(b) Training.—Beginning in 1973, emphasis was shifted away from categorical support of training mental health professionals in the core mental health disciplines toward the use of time-limited research and development projects in mental health manpower development for new training initiatives having an experimental, developmental, and technical assistance orientation.

(c) Community programs.—Grants in this activity are for the construction and staffing of community mental health centers, and to provide specialized treatment services to children in centers or other community facilities.

(d) Management and information.—This subactivity provides support to administer the general mental health research and training programs, and the Institute's headquarters staff who direct the community mental health center programs. This activity also supports the National Clearinghouse for Mental Health Information.

2. Drug abuse.—(a) Research.—New knowledge on the causes, diagnosis, treatment, control, and prevention of drug abuse is obtained extramurally through grant and contract support of basic, clinical, and applied research, and intramurally through research at the Institute's Addiction Research Center.

(b) Training.—Training grants and contracts provide qualified personnel to operate treatment and rehabilitation programs and improve the quality of manpower in the field of drug abuse.

(c) Community programs.—A full range of community-based drug abuse treatment and rehabilitation programs receive support through both project grants and contracts and State formula grants.

(d) Management and information.—Support is provided headquarters personnel to plan, coordinate, and analyze Federal drug abuse programs. The drug abuse information program provides information services as a resource for Federal and non-Federal program managers.

3. Alcoholism.—(a) Research.—This activity includes all of the Institute's alcoholism-related research efforts utilizing grant and contract support, or research carried out by Institute staff located in laboratory facilities at Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

(b) Training.—This activity includes all of the Institute's alcohol-related training carried out through the grant mechanism.

(c) Community programs.—Community programs include funds for both project grants and formula grants to plan and develop alcoholism services in a particular area.

(d) Management and information.—This activity supports the Institute's staff who administer and coordinate the various alcoholism programs. Funds also support the National Clearinghouse on Alcohol Information and the National Center for Alcohol Education.

4. Buildings and facilities.—This activity includes funds for construction, alterations, and repairs and improvements of buildings and facilities of the National Institute of Mental Health including Saint Elizabeths Hospital.

5. Program direction.—This activity provides support for the overall direction and management of the agency, central office coordination of regional programs, and regional offices operating funds.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital provides treatment and care for the mentally ill who are either beneficiaries of the Federal Government or residents of the District of Columbia. Legislation has been introduced to transfer program and fiscal control of the hospital from the Federal Government to the District of Columbia. Under the terms of the proposed legislation the District of Columbia will budget for and justify the operation of the hospital under its own appropriation.

Appropriations now made directly to the hospital will be reclassified as payments to the District of Columbia for treatment of Federal beneficiaries and partial support of hospital operating costs.

NOTES

Includes $13,247 thousand in 1975 for activities transferred from other accounts. Comparable amounts for 1973 ($9,960 thousand) and 1974 ($13,188 thousand) are included above.

Excludes $282 thousand in 1975 for activities transferred to other accounts. Comparable amounts for 1973 and 1974 are included above.

1. Health statistics.—The National Center for Health Statistics develops and maintains reliable, general purpose, health statistical data collection systems. The Center performs studies to improve health survey methods; provides technical advice and assistance on the application of statistical methods in the health and medical fields; and, exerts leadership in the continued development of a national cooperative health statistics system with State and local agencies, directed toward producing comparable health data on a wide range of topics for use in the planning and evaluation of health care programs.

The major objective to be pursued during 1975 with the requested funding increase will be continued development of the Cooperative Health Statistics System. Contracts will be renewed with 31 State and local areas for the provision of comparable timely and quality data in machine-readable form; 15 existing contracts will be renewed and six new contracts will be negotiated for research and development in targeted problem areas determined to be impediments to progress in full implementation of the system; contracts will be negotiated with an additional eight States to develop their capacity and capability for induction into the cooperative system; and initial implementation of a data use laboratory responsive to data users' needs is planned. In addition, necessary expansion of technical training and technical assistance in support of the cooperative system will be attained.

2. Health services research and evaluation.—The Bureau of Health Services Research attempts to improve the organization, delivery, quality, and financing of health services by stimulating and supporting research, development, demonstration, and evaluation in this field.

The Bureau distributes its activities over such program areas as: Organization and management of health services, resource utilization and productivity, economic analysis and financing, and quality and outcome of health services. Projects supported deal with increasing the effectiveness of techniques for planning and managing health services and health services systems in communities, States, and regions; developing more effective and efficient ways of delivering health services; better understanding the financial structure of health services systems; and improving the quality of medical care and for measuring the long-term effects of medical care on the health of people.

In 1975, the Bureau will emphasize such areas as increasing productivity, analysis of national health insurance, reimbursement experiments, and the strengthening of health services planning in States and on an areawide basis. The Bureau will support research and demonstrations associated with PSRO's, and will undertake a series of research experiments and special studies which will support the implementation of section 222 of the Social Security Amendments of 1972. In addition an estimated $27 million will be used in 1975 to support improvements in the delivery of emergency medical services at the State and local level.

3. Regional medical programs.—Since 1966, the Federal Government, by means of grant awards and direct staff activities, has promoted and developed regional cooperative arrangements (RMP's) among the Nation's health care providers and institutions in order to improve access to and generally strengthen the health care delivery system. In 1975, no funds are requested for this activity.

4. Comprehensive health planning.—In 1975, funds that otherwise would be requested for this program will be used to initiate a health resources planning program.

5. Health manpower.—Support is provided for education in the health professions to help maintain current output levels from U.S. schools, and to promote improved geographic and specialty distribution, training in primary care, minority group participation, and improved utilization of personnel.

(a) Institutional assistance.—This support is provided through several programs. Capitation grants are awarded on a formula basis to health professions schools in order to strengthen their base of financial support, while the schools expand their output and take other steps to improve the availability of health manpower. Special project grants supply broad-range assistance to schools and enable health manpower schools to experiment with programs designed to increase the quality of trained personnel. Startup grants are awarded to new medical, osteopathic, and dental schools which accelerate the date instruction begins or increases the number of students in the entering class. Conversion grants are awarded to 2-year schools that desire to become degree-granting institutions.

Family medicine grants are provided to public or private nonprofit hospitals to plan, develop, or operate training programs in family medicine. Dental health programs are directed toward increasing and improving the dental manpower supply, expediting the prevention and control of dental diseases and provision of high quality dental services through the improvement of delivery systems. Seventeen TEAM programs will be continued and five existing grants for continuing education systems will be funded in 1975.

Grant awards also support efforts to improve the distribution, supply, quality, utilization, and efficiency of health personnel. Awards are targeted toward achievement of special national health manpower goals, such as linking training efforts with service in the establishment of Area Health Education Centers (AHEC's), training of physicians' assistants, and other initiatives.

(b) Student assistance.—Loans and scholarships assist deserving but financially needy health professional and nursing students to pursue their education. Funds are awarded to students who in the judgment of the schools have exceptional financial need.

6. Health facilities construction.—Federal assistance is provided through grants, loans, and guaranteed and subsidized loans to States, other public agencies and nonprofit schools and organizations in the construction and modernization of hospitals, teaching facilities, and other health facilities. In 1975, the only funds being requested under this activity are to pay the interest subsidy on federally guaranteed loans for the construction or renovation of health manpower teaching facilities.

7. Program management.—This activity supports the staff and operating expenses related to the program direction and management of the several HRA programs, including the Office of the Administrator. Activities conducted under program management include program and administrative support, planning, as well as responsibility for the appraisal and evaluation of the effectiveness of health resources programs.

A loan guarantee and loan fund for medical facilities is established in the Treasury, without fiscal year limitation, to discharge responsibilities under guarantees; for payment of interest on the loans to nonprofit sponsors which are guaranteed; for direct loans to public agencies which are sold and guaranteed; for payment of interest on direct loans which are sold and guaranteed; and for repurchase of direct loans which have been sold and guaranteed.

The fund consists of $50 million which is restricted for use in fulfilling guarantees in event of default; $30 million which serves as a revolving amount from which direct loans are made to public agencies; and $27.3 million to provide for interest payments on both direct and guaranteed loans.

The outstanding principal amount of direct loans and guaranteed loans is limited to $1 billion, based on allocations to the State agencies for 1971 and 1972. Approximately $1 million of the 1971 loan authority that was available for 3 years lapsed as of June 30, 1973, and it is anticipated that the balance of $999 million will be totally committed prior to June 30, 1974. Of this amount, it is anticipated that approximately $78 million will be direct loans to public agencies and $921 million will be guaranteed to private nonprofit agencies. No request is made for direct appropriation to the fund during 1975.

Title VII, part C of Public Health Service Act established a revolving fund from which health professions schools could borrow in order to provide loans to their students. Public Law 89-751, the Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966, amended the Public Health Service Act to authorize the Federal Government to pay the difference between the interest paid by students to the schools and the interest payable by the schools to the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Treasury.

In 1975 provisions are made for the following Federal payments: $129 thousand to GNMA, which represents the difference between the 5.25% interest rate earned by the student loan paper (promissory notes) and the 6.38% rate paid by GNMA on the $11,459 thousand worth of paper (participation certificates) held by the public; $602 thousand to GNMA which represents the 5.25% interest due on $11,459 thousand worth of paper held by the public; $1,167 thousand to the U.S. Treasury on the difference between the U.S. Treasury interest rate and that paid by the schools on $18,668 thousand loaned to the schools.

In addition $370 thousand will be paid to health professions schools for loan cancellations under the Public Health Service Act, section 744(b). These loans are canceled by either the death or permanent and total disability of the borrower or the borrower's willingness to serve in an area designated by the Secretary. In addition, $827 thousand will be paid to schools of nursing for loan cancellations under the Public Health Service Act, section 827(b). These loans are canceled by either the death or permanent and total disability of the borrower or the borrower's willingness to serve in an area designated by the Secretary. Scientific activities overseas (special foreign currency program) is supported entirely by foreign currencies in those countries where the supply of U.S.-owned currency exceeds normal U.S. Government needs for at least 2 years. Through this program, support is provided to the excess currency countries for scientific purposes that will benefit not only the host country but will also help fulfill the research and other program needs of the six health agencies of the Department. For 1975, the Treasury Department has designated Burma, the Arab Republic of Egypt, Guinea, India, Pakistan, Poland, and Tunisia as excess currency countries. Unobligated balances from prior year budget authority will be sufficient to support the program's efforts in 1975 and, therefore, no additional budget authority is requested for 1975. Authorization for the health research and research-related activities funded by this program is provided by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended (Public Law 83-480); and the International Health Research Act of 1960 (Public Law 86-610).

Emergency School Assistance.....	21,700	21,700

This appropriation contains several categorical assistance programs which will be incorporated into the consolidated education grants legislative program discussed under the legislative program below.

1. Educationally deprived children.—Grants are made to local educational agencies to provide supplemental services for children from low-income families. In addition, grants are made to State education agencies for handicapped children, dependent and neglected children, and orphans and juvenile delinquents in State institutions and for children of migratory workers. It is estimated that over 6 million children will receive benefits in 1974 with greatest emphasis being placed on preschool and elementary school children from attendance areas with high concentrations of children from low-income families. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for school year 1974-75, this activity will be included as the disadvantaged priority in a new consolidated education grants legislative program.

2. Supplementary services.—Grants are made to States and local school districts for developing programs which serve as models for improving and supplementing the regular school curriculum and programs designed to improve testing and guidance and counseling services in public and private elementary and secondary schools. In 1974, over 1,800 projects aided over 8 million students. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for school year 1974-75, this activity will be incorporated into a support services priority in a consolidated education grants legislative program.

3. Strengthening State departments of education.—Grants are made to stimulate and assist States in strengthening the leadership resources of their education agencies and to assist them in the establishment and improvement of programs to identify and meet their educational needs. In 1974, all 56 State education agencies received basic grants and participated in multi-State projects. Additionally, grants were made to State and local educational agencies to improve their planning and evaluation capabilities. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for school year 1974-75, this program will be incorporated into a support services priority in a consolidated education grants legislative program.

4. Bilingual education.—Grants are made under title VII, ESEA to local educational agencies to support demonstration projects designed to achieve comprehensive bilingual instructional reform in areas of high concentrations of non-English speaking children and to support pre-service and in-service training. In 1975, the program will continue 220 ongoing projects enrolling over

136,000 children. Grants will also be made to institutions of higher education to support training projects.

5. Right to read.—The purpose of this program is to provide facilitating services and resources to stimulate educational institutions, governmental agencies and private organizations to improve and expand their activities related to reading. The Right to Read Program is both an impetus to and component of a larger National Right to Read Effort whose goal is to eliminate functional illiteracy in this country to the extent that by 1980, 99% of the population over 16 years of age will be functionally literate. Eligible grantees include local and State education agencies, institutions of higher education, and other public and private agencies. 1975 plans include multiplier training in State education agencies and implementation of an adult literacy TV program.

6. Educational broadcasting projects.—This activity supports two separate programs, one which supports the establishment, expansion, and improvement of non-commercial broadcasting facilities; and one which supports special projects concerned with application of new technology-based systems to improve learning, provide individualized instruction, and to extend the educational opportunities and access to learning resources for groups presently outside and within formal educational systems. The educational television programs, "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company," are among those supported under this activity.

7. Civil rights advisory services.—This program makes grants and contracts to render technical assistance in the preparation, adoption and implementation of plans for the desegregation of public schools and to provide services and training for people to deal effectively with special educational problems occasioned by desegregation.

8. Follow Through.—This is an experimental, compensatory education program designed to develop and test new ways to educate disadvantaged children in the early primary grades. The parents, the community, and the resources at the school are brought together in programs to meet the child's instructional, physical and psychosocial needs. In 1975, some 170 projects will enroll approximately 38,000 low-income children in grades 2 and 3. The program began phasing out in 1974 at the rate of one grade level each year.

9. Equipment and minor remodeling.—Grants are made to States on a matching basis for equipment and minor remodeling of laboratory or other space suitable for use in providing education in public elementary or secondary schools while loans are made to private nonprofit schools for similar uses, and funds are provided to State departments of education to administer the program. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for school year 1974-75, this program will be incorporated into a support-services activity in the consolidated education grants legislative program.

1. Payments to local educational agencies for Indian education.—Grants are made to local educational agencies for elementary and secondary programs to meet the special educational needs of Indian children. During 1973, grants were awarded to 446 local educational agencies. It is anticipated that during 1974 over 2,000 grants will be made. No funds are requested for this program activity during 1975.

2. Special projects.—The 1975 estimate focuses Federal support on the special project authorities of parts B and C. These authorities will make it possible to target assistance on the areas of greatest need and avoid the overlap and duplication present in the part A formula. An amount of $32 million is requested for improving the educational opportunities of Indian children under part B and $8 million is requested for improving the educational opportunities of Indian adults under part C.

3. Program administration.—Under this activity, support is provided for the staff of the Office of Indian Education in the U.S. Office of Education, planning and evaluation activities, and expenses of the National Advisory Council on Indian Education. In 1974, appropriations for this purpose were made to the Salaries and expenses account of the Office of Education. In 1975, program administration is being consolidated with program support under this appropriation.

1. Maintenance and Operations.—Payments are made to assist in the operation of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. In 1974, payments were based on over 2 million federally connected children in 4,600 school districts. In addition, the full cost of education is provided for children residing on Federal property where no State or local educational agency is able, because of State law or for other reasons, to provide suitable free public education to such children. For 1975, appropriate language is proposed to concentrate payments on those school districts where the Federal impact is the greatest, i.e., those with the greater proportionate share of children for whom there is little or no local tax base. A hardship provision is also included to provide limited funding for those school districts whose payments are being phased out during the period of change.

2. Construction.—Payments are made to assist in the construction of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. From 1951 through 1974, over $1,450 million has been appropriated for this program aiding in the construction of over 69,000 classrooms to house about 2 million pupils in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and Wake Island. In 1974 and 1975, appropriation language is proposed to fund local agencies that have been unfunded for a number of years, that have the most pressing construction needs largely as a result of increased military activity and housing, and that provide assistance for children residing on Indian lands. The $1 million increase proposed for 1975 is for construction needs of schools serving Indian children.

Comparable amounts for 1973 ($23,980 thousand), 1974, ($24,189 thousand), are included above.

1. Special projects.—(a) Metropolitan area projects.—The purpose of this activity is to assist local educational agencies in: (1) establishing and maintaining integrated schools; (2) developing a plan to reduce minority group isolation in a standard metropolitan statistical area, taken as a whole; and (3) planning and constructing integrated education parks. In 1973, 14 metropolitan area projects were funded. No funds were provided in 1974 and none are requested in 1975.

(b) Bilingual education projects.—This activity assists local educational agencies and supporting organizations in meeting the needs of minority children who, because they are from an environment in which the dominant language is other than English, do not have equality of educational opportunity. In 1973, 39 projects were funded and in 1974, an estimated 44 projects will be funded. The majority of these projects serve Spanish-speaking Americans. No funds are requested in 1975.

(c) Educational television.—This activity funds public or nonprofit private organizations to develop and produce children's television programs incorporating integrated children's activities of cognitive and affective educational value. The five grants made in 1973 will be considered, in 1974, for continuation.

(d) Special programs and projects.—This activity assists local educational agencies and supporting public organizations in conducting activities which: (1) are otherwise authorized by the Emergency School Aid Act, and (2) promise to make substantial progress toward achieving the purposes of the Emergency School Aid Act. In 1973: (1) 51 special reading project grants were awarded; (2) 5 special project grants, focused in the areas of multicultural language and basic skills development, were awarded, and (3) approximately $4.5 million of the funds were made available for the support of projects funded under the Educational television activity. In 1974, 52 special reading projects and 6 other special projects are scheduled for funding.

(e) Evaluation.—Grants are awarded to and contracts are made with public and private organizations for evaluations of programs and projects funded under the Emergency School Aid Act. In 1973, three evaluation projects were started. These projects will be continued in 1974, with emphasis on the large-scale longitudinal studies of the Emergency School Aid Act pilot programs, basic grants to local educational agencies, and a related study of exemplary desegregated schools. With the termination of the program in 1975, the evaluation efforts will be funded from the Office of Education's Salaries and expenses appropriation.

2. State apportionment.—(a) Pilot programs.—This activity supports promising programs to overcome the adverse effects of minority group isolation by improving the academic achievement of children in one or more minority group isolated schools in districts which: (1) enroll at least 15,000 minority group children; or (2) have a minority group enrollment which is more than 50% of the enrollment. Ninety-five local educational agencies received grants under this activity in 1973 and about 162 local educational agencies are to be supported in 1974. No funds are requested in 1975.

(b) Special programs and projects.—This activity assists nonprofit organizations in conducting special programs which support local educational agency efforts to develop or implement a plan to meet special problems incident to desegregation, to encourage voluntary integration, or to aid school children in overcoming the educational disadvantages of minority group isolation. In 1973, 242 groups were supported and an estimated 240 groups will be supported by this activity in 1974. No funds are requested in 1975.

(c) General grants to local educational agencies.—This activity provides financial assistance to eligible local educational agencies to: (1) meet educational needs incident to elementary and/or secondary school desegregation; (2) encourage voluntary elimination of minority group isolation in elementary and secondary schools; and (3) overcome educational disadvantages of minority group isolation. Eligible local educational agencies are those which have implemented or will, if assistance is made available, adopt and implement a plan to eliminate, reduce, or prevent the isolation of minority group students in their schools. In 1973, 455 school districts received funds for basic projects and approximately 569 will be funded in 1974. No funds are requested in 1975.

3. Training and advisory services (Civil Rights Act).—This activity renders technical assistance in the preparation, adoption, and implementation of plans for the public schools, and provides services and training for people to deal effectively with special educational problems occasioned by desegregation. In 1973, 131 projects (including 44 institutes, 27 desegregation assistance centers, 34 State educational agencies, and 26 local educational agencies) were funded. About 136 projects will be supported in 1974. In 1975, this activity is to be transferred to the Office of Education's Elementary and Secondary Education appropriation.

4. Emergency school assistance activities.—This activity carried out a program of assistance to desegregating local educational agencies and community groups to meet special emergency needs incident to the elimination of racial segregation and discrimination in elementary and secondary schools. Originally funded in 1971, and again in 1972, this program was continued at a minimal level in 1973 in order to maintain support for school districts and community groups which: (1) had been previously funded; and (2) were to be eligible for Emergency School Aid Act support, when available. In 1973, 388 local educational agencies and 111 community groups were funded. Since this activity was principally an interim program and, since the Emergency School Aid Act became law, no funds were requested in 1974 and none are requested in 1975.

5. Proposed legislation.—A new project grant authority will be proposed to focus aid on selected school districts facing critical problems as a result of either mandatory or voluntary desegregation. This program will provide grants and contracts to school districts and to nonprofit organizations engaged in cooperative, complementary activities with these districts.

1. State grant program.—Grants are made to States to assist in the initiation, expansion, and improvement of programs and projects for education of handicapped children at the preschool, elementary, and secondary school levels. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for school year 1974-75, this activity will be included as the handicapped priority in the consolidated education grants legislative program.

2. Special target programs.—(a) Deaf-blind centers.—Grants are made for model centers to provide diagnostic, educational, and related services to deaf-blind children. The centers also initiate whatever ancillary services are necessary to assure that these children can achieve their full potential for useful participation in society.

(b) Early childhood projects.—Model centers are supported to provide educational, diagnostic, and consultative services for preschool handicapped children and their parents. These centers are designed to stimulate and influence the development of additional services for preschool handicapped children.

(c) Specific learning disabilities.—Grants are made to operate centers for research, personnel training, and services for preschool and school-age children with specific learning disabilities.

(d) Regional resource centers.—Grants or contracts are awarded for the establishment and operation of regional resource centers to develop and apply the methods of appraising the special educational needs of handicapped children. Special target grants are also made to aid the severely handicapped.

Note.—Includes $45,639 thousand in 1975 for activities previously financed from: Educational development, 1973, $118,450 thousand; 1974, $97,383 thousand.

In 1975, the vocational education programs previously funded under this appropriation will be consolidated under the vocational education priority of the consolidated education grants program. Under the proposed legislation, States and localities will have greater flexibility in the use of vocational education appropriations and will be able to continue projects and programs such as those previously budgeted for separately under this appropriation. The proposal will incorporate a wider variety of activities than the existing legislation and will be advance funded beginning with a supplemental in 1974 for school year 1974-75.

In 1975, the three adult education programs previously funded under this appropriation will be consolidated under the adult education priority of the consolidated education grants program. Under the proposed legislation the scope of coverage will be broadened and it will be advance funded beginning with a supplemental in 1974.

Support in 1975 for career education and personnel development will be carried under this appropriation.

The 1975 budget estimate continues the high priority placed on student assistance and student choice in the pursuit of a postsecondary education.

1. Student assistance.—The principal forms of student assistance are basic educational opportunity grants and guaranteed student loans.

The $1,300 million request for basic educational opportunity grants will provide for full funding of this program. Any postsecondary student is eligible for a grant of $1,400 less the amount he or his parents are expected to contribute; but the grant may not exceed one-half of his cost of education. The expected family and student contribution is determined by a needs analysis system approved each year by the Congress. Grants range from $200 to $1,400. The $122,100 thousand appropriated in 1973 for the program was restricted to first year, full-time students. The 1974 appropriation of $475,000 thousand limits aid to full-time, first-year, and second-year students. The 1975 request for full funding of this program will provide grants to all eligible students, both part time and full time, at four levels of undergraduate instruction.

Since basic grants can pay no more than half of a student's expenses, other sources of aid, some of them Federal, will be needed. Therefore, funds are being requested to continue the work-study and the guaranteed loan programs. For work-study, $250 million is requested in 1975. To subsidize $1.25 billion in new guaranteed student loans, and to pay mandatory expenses of loans made in prior years, $315 million will be needed. These funds are used to pay interest benefits, the special allowance to lenders, and death and disability claims. The additional funds required to pay claims for defaulted loans are requested under the student loan insurance fund.

The request includes $10,750 thousand, the same as in 1974, to help institutions begin, expand, or improve programs of cooperative education in which employers pay students for periods of full-time work which are alternated with periods of full-time study.

No funds are requested for supplemental opportunity grants, State student incentive grants or for national direct student loan capital contributions and loans to institutions. However, in academic year 1975-76, student loans amounting to $165 million will be made under the direct loan program out of repayments into institutional revolving funds.

2. Special programs for the disadvantaged.—These programs identify youths with exceptional potential for postsecondary education, publicize available forms of financial aid, motivate high school students whose academic potential may not be obvious, and provide remedial and other services for postsecondary students to help them complete and benefit from their education. In addition to the existing talent search, upward bound, and special services programs, educational opportunity centers, geared to serve low-income areas, are being established.

Subsidized insured loans.....	1,088,286	890,000	979,000	1,000,000

3. Institutional assistance.—The $120 million request for developing institutions includes a $20 million increase above 1974, directed primarily toward schools serving blacks and other minorities. The $135.5 million shown in 1974 includes $35.5 million brought forward from 1973. In 1975 the basic program would continue at $52 million, while advanced institutional development would increase to $68 million.

For foreign language and area studies, $10 million is requested in 1975, including $1,360 thousand for training overseas under the Fulbright-Hays program.

Several outmoded, inefficient or marginal programs are proposed for elimination. Legislation will be submitted to repeal the permanent land-grant program (Second Morrill Act) as well as the annual appropriation (Bankhead-Jones). No funds are requested for university community services (HEA-I), State postsecondary education commissions, or veterans cost of instruction programs. The amounts requested for construction subsidies are mandatory payments on prior year commitments.

4. College personnel development.—In 1975, funds under this activity include $4 million to permit veterans to resume college teacher fellowships interrupted by their service, $750 thousand for fellowships for the disadvantaged, and $500 thousand for Allen J. Ellender fellowships.

NOTES

Excludes $28,500 thousand in 1974 for activities transferred to: Elementary and secondary education. Comparable amount for 1973 ($50,000 thousand) is included above.

Grants and payments are made to States, educational institutions, and other agencies for support of library programs under the Library Services and Construction Act, Elementary and Secondary Education Act, and the Higher Education Act.

Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for school year 1974-75, the school library resources program will be incorporated into a support services priority in the consolidated education grants program. Also, new legislation is requested to promote cooperative arrangements and demonstrations in libraries and information services. These proposals are shown under the Legislative Program below.

1. Education professions development.—(a) Teacher Corps.—This activity is directed toward improving educational opportunities for children of low-income families by improving the quality of programs of teacher education for both certified teachers and inexperienced teacher interns. In 1974, about 3,200 continuing participants and 1,600 new participants were supported. Support for this program is being requested under the Occupational, vocational and adult education appropriation in 1975.

(c) Elementary and secondary development.—These activities include teacher training programs concentrating on specific populations and subjects where teacher deficiencies are recognized. The urban-rural and career opportunities programs are targeted to low-income students and encourage meaningful participation of parents and communities in the educational process. In 1974 these programs will train over 13,000 participants. In 1975, funds for urban-rural and career opportunities are being requested under the Occupational, vocational and adult education appropriation. No funds are requested in 1975 for the other elementary and secondary education training programs.

(d) Vocational education.—This activity provides support to assist State and local education agencies and institutions of higher education. In 1974, this activity was concerned with personnel development in the installation of career education and the retraining of vocational education personnel. Federal support for this program will be terminated at the end of 1974.

(e) New careers in education.—This activity is used to identify and attract capable persons into educational areas where critical shortages are recognized. Workshops for qualified high school students and dissemination of recruitment materials on careers and volunteers in education are some of the methods used. Federal support for this program will be terminated at the end of 1974.

(f) Higher education.—College teachers, administrators and education specialists are trained at less than the doctoral level by this activity. In 1974, the program awarded 322 fellowships. No institutes were funded. Federal support for this program will be terminated at the end of 1974.

2. National priority programs.—(a) Educational technology demonstrations.—This activity supports (1) the establishment, expansion, and improvement of noncommercial broadcasting facilities; (2) special demonstration projects concerned with applications of new technology-based systems; and (3) the educational television programs "Sesame Street" and "The Electric Company." In 1974, the special technology demonstration projects were transferred to the National Institute of Education. The programs supporting noncommercial broadcasting facilities and educational television programming are being requested under the Elementary and secondary education appropriation in 1975.

(b) Drug abuse education.—This program supports grants aimed at developing drug education leadership teams at the State and local levels through a variety of training programs, and provides technical assistance to such teams to aid them in assessing local drug problems, developing programs to combat their causes, and to evaluate existing drug programs. Federal support for this program will be terminated at the end of 1974.

(c) Right to read.—The purpose of this program is to provide facilitating services and resources to stimulate educational institutions, governmental agencies and private organizations to improve and expand their activities relating to reading. Eligible grantees include State and local education agencies, institutions of higher education, and other public and private agencies. In 1975, funds for this program are being requested under the Elementary and secondary education appropriation.

(d) Environmental education.—This activity provides grants to nonprofit agencies, institutions, or organizations for the support of environmental education pilot and demonstration projects to develop an informed public that will understand the mutual dependencies between man and his environment. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for 1974-75, this activity will be incorporated into the innovation priority in the consolidated education grants program.

(e) Nutrition and health.—This program demonstrates ways to organize local systems of child development services through more effective coordination of existing health and nutrition resources. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for 1974-75, this activity will be incorporated into the innovation priority in the consolidated education grants program.

(f) Dropout prevention.—This grant program provides funds to local school districts to develop demonstration model programs to reduce the number of students who leave school before high school graduation. A total of 275,000 students were reached in the 5 years of this program. Beginning with a 1974 supplemental for 1974-75, this activity will be incorporated into the innovation priority in the consolidated education grants program.

(g) Ethnic heritage studies.—In 1974, grants will be made to nonprofit public or private educational agencies, institutions or organizations to develop and disseminate curriculum materials, encourage and promote activities related to ethnic heritage studies, and provide training for people using these materials. All grants will be fully funded for the duration of each project. No funds are being requested for this activity in 1975.

3. Data systems improvement.—(a) Educational statistics.—This activity includes surveys and special statistical studies used in planning new education programs, projecting educational needs and trends, and closing the data gap in areas of education. In 1975, support for this program will be requested under the Salaries and expenses appropriation.

(b) National achievement study.—This activity collects national data on changes in educational attainment over a period of 5 years. The data help to measure the effectiveness of the Nation's investment in education. In 1975, support for this activity will be requested under the Salaries and expenses appropriation.

Under the Higher Education Act of 1965 and the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965, the Office of Education received authority to insure loans to students in eligible institutions who do not have reasonable access to State or private nonprofit programs of student loan insurance.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1968 merged the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act into the Higher Education Act insured loan program, and in addition to extending the Federal insurance program, authorized the Office of Education to reinsure loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies at 80% of the principal amount of the loss incurred by the agency in meeting its obligation to lenders on guaranteed loans in default. The liability of the fund was further increased by the Education Amendments of 1972 which provides for payment of the unpaid balance of interest as well as principal in the case of defaulted federally insured loans, made under the provision of the amendments.

Upon default by the student borrowers, the Office of Education will pay to the beneficiary the amount of the loss sustained by the insured upon federally insured loans and 80% of the principal amount of the loss sustained on reinsured loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies. Data on federally insured loans and guaranteed loans follows:

Operating results.—The fund takes over loans on which it pays insurance claims and seeks to collect on them. Claims which are deemed uncollectable are written off as "loss on insured loans." Loans deemed collectable, after allowing for loss, are as follows: 1973, $39,531 thousand; 1974, $75,312 thousand; and 1975, $125,311 thousand.

Deposits to the fund are derived from insurance premiums earned from direct Federal insurance, which is not to exceed one-fourth of 1% per annum of the unpaid principal amount (excluding interest added to principal), repayment of collectable loans, and interest payments on collectable loans. Special emphasis in collections on defaulted loans will result in increases in deposits as follows: 1973, $9,166 thousand; 1974, $13,900 thousand; and 1975, $22,900 thousand.

In 1973, $64,183 thousand was paid out for defaults. It is anticipated that default payments will amount to $92,000 thousand in 1974, and $134,000 thousand in 1975. Amounts required for the funds in 1973 consisted of appropriated funds, $46,640 thousand, and borrowing from the Treasury, $15,000 thousand. Budget authority in 1974 are estimated at $88,668 thousand (including a supplemental request of $30,785 thousand). In 1975, an appropriation of $115,000 thousand is requested.

The Higher Education Facilities Act, as amended, authorizes the Commissioner to make loans to institutions of higher education and to higher education building agencies for the construction of academic facilities and to insure loans. Such loans may be made for up to 80% of a project's total development cost and must be repaid within 50 years.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966, as amended, established a revolving fund for these loans and loan insurance. Further, the act authorizes the sales of such loans to the private credit market, the proceeds of which are deposited into the fund to be used for new loans to colleges and universities. The Government National Mortgage Association is authorized to serve as trustee for these sales.

During 1970 and through 1973, loans under this program were displaced by the annual interest grant program under the higher education appropriation. However, new loans were made from the fund to the extent that such amounts were made available from withdrawals of earlier commitments. These amounts were used to fund those small institutions of higher education which were unable to obtain private loans necessary to participate in the annual interest grant program.

Although no new loans were funded in 1973, it is anticipated that additional funds available from commitments withdrawn prior to June 30, 1974, will support approximately 19 new projects totaling $11,100 thousand in 1974. It is estimated that in 1975, three new projects totaling $1,500 thousand will be funded from commitments withdrawn prior to July 1, 1975.

Interest is payable to the Treasury on the cumulative amount of appropriations paid out for loans under this title or available as capital to the fund less the average undisbursed cash balance in the fund during the year. The rate certified by the Secretary of the Treasury as of June 30, 1973 is 6%.

Appropriations for insufficiencies are used to fund the deficit resulting from the interest rate required to sell the participation and the interest rate paid by higher education institutions on facilities loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Commissioner is authorized to furnish transcripts or copies of tables and other records of the Office of Education to, and to make special statistical and compilations and surveys for State or local officials, private organizations, or individuals. Such statistical compilations and surveys shall be made subject to the payment of the actual or estimated cost of such work. In the case of nonprofit organizations or agencies the Commissioner may engage in joint statistical projects, the cost of which shall be shared equitably as determined by the Commissioner, provided that the purposes are otherwise authorized by law.

All moneys received in payment for work or services enumerated under this section shall be deposited in a separate account which may be used to pay directly the costs of such work or services, to repay appropriations which initially bore all or part of such costs, or to refund excess sums when necessary (Public Law 91-230, sec. 412).

The National Institute of Education was established to improve and reform education through research and development. The Institute's mission is an equal opportunity to receive a high quality education for all. Research and development projects focus on the priority areas of: (a) providing essential skills such as reading to all citizens, (b) improving the productivity of resources in education, (c) understanding and improving the relationship of education to work and careers, (d) improving the capability of State and local education systems to solve education problems, and (e) increasing diversity, pluralism, and opportunity in American education.

While the Institute will provide a leadership role in addressing these priorities, at least 90% of the program funds will be grant and contract awards to personnel outside the Federal establishment. Additionally, an in-house research program will be supported.

Note.—Includes $950 thousand in 1975 for activities previously financed from: Office of Education (1973, $950 thousand; 1974, $475 thousand.)

The Assistant Secretary for Education is responsible for direction and supervision of the Education Division, provides leadership for the education activities of the Department, and serves as the key spokesman and advocate for assuring that the Department provides professional and financial assistance to strengthen education in accordance with the Federal laws and regulations. In addition, he serves as the principal advisor to the Secretary on education affairs. This appropriation provides for the administrative expenses associated with the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education. The estimate includes support of 15 positions in 1974 and 21 positions in 1975 for administration of the postsecondary improvement program, $950 thousand for continued support of contractual analysis activities; and $750 thousand to initiate the bicentennial internship program in education.

The Education Amendments of 1972 authorized the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare to make grants to and contracts with institutions of postsecondary education and other public and private educational institutions and agencies to encourage reform and innovation at the postsecondary level. Authority for administration of this program has been delegated to the Assistant Secretary for Education. In 1973, the appropriation for this program is shown under the "Higher education" appropriation. Ninety projects were supported in 1973. In 1974, projects will be solicited under both comprehensive and special focus programs. The special focus objective will include new approaches to competency-based learning and the development of new incentive structures.

SOCIAL AND REHABILITATION SERVICE

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

【GRANTS TO STATES FOR】 PUBLIC ASSISTANCE

For carrying out, except as otherwise provided, titles I, IV, VI, X, XI, XIV, XVI, and XIX of the Social Security Act, and the Act of July 5, 1960 (24 U.S.C. ch. 9), 【$12,853,279,000, of which $50,000,000】 $13,280,770,000, of which $46,000,000 shall be for child welfare services under part B of title IV.

For making, after 【June 15】 May 31 of the current fiscal year, payments to States under titles I, IV, VI, X, XIV, XVI, and XIX, respectively, of the Social Security Act, for 【any period during】 the last 【fifteen】 thirty days of the current fiscal year (except with respect to activities included in the appropriation for "Work incentives"); and for making, after April 30 of the current fiscal year, payments for the first quarter of the next succeeding fiscal year; such sums as may be necessary, the obligations incurred and the expenditures made thereunder for payments under each of such titles to be charged to the subsequent appropriations therefor for the current or succeeding fiscal year.

In the administration of titles I, IV (other than part C thereof) VI, X, XIV, XVI, and XIX, respectively, of the Social Security Act, payments to a State under any such titles for any quarter in the period beginning April 1 of the prior year, and ending June 30 of the current year may be made with respect to a State plan approved under such title prior to or during such period, but no such payment shall be made with respect to any plan for any quarter prior to the quarter in which such plan was submitted for approval.

Such amounts as may be necessary from this appropriation shall be available for grants to States for any period in the prior fiscal year subsequent to March 31 of that year. (Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1974.)

Grants to States for public assistance are made for the Federal share of State expenditures for maintenance assistance, medical assistance, social services, State and local training, and child welfare services. In addition, assistance is provided in this appropriation for repatriated U.S. nationals. Estimates of requirements for this appropriation are based primarily on estimates received from the States in November 1973, adjusted to take into consideration Federal management initiatives to improve the effectiveness of the management of the public assistance programs thereby reducing Federal cost.

New Federal initiatives are proposed for 1974 and 1975 to strengthen the Federal role in the management of public assistance programs with emphasis being placed on the control of costs in the aid to families with dependent children and Medicaid programs. These initiatives in program management including an increased Federal role in program control are an outgrowth of new activities started in 1972 which focused on improved Federal and State financial management. New regulations and technical modifications to legislation produced from the Federal initiatives will provide significant savings and increased management control of public assistance programs. These savings will result from:

1. Continued emphasis on quality control over eligibility determination, improving the Federal quality control system for validating State quality control activities and the disallowing of Federal financial participation in excessive overpayments and payments to maintenance assistance ineligible on the basis of quality control findings.

2. Changes in regulations to standardize the assistance payments process, technical legislative changes to standardize earnings expenses and income disregard that should result in maintenance assistance savings, and changes in regulations or legislation to encourage establishment of statewide flat grants for maintenance assistance to simplify payment processing.

3. Review of prior year maintenance assistance expenditures to recover amounts inappropriately claimed.

4. Improvement in the administration of the social services program.

5. Improved control of Medicaid costs through effective utilization review.

In 1975, public assistance research and evaluation has been included in the public assistance appropriation. This program will conduct research having a direct impact on policy decisions aimed at improving the management of public assistance programs.

1. Maintenance assistance.—Maintenance payments provide needy persons with income to supplement their own resources for the essential costs of food, shelter, clothing, and other necessary items of daily living.

<sup>1</sup> Cost reductions in 1974 and 1975 result from management initiatives to be placed in effect and from the transfer of the adult categories to the Social Security Administration effective Jan. 1, 1974. In 1974, caseload totals for the aged, blind, and disabled are the monthly average for July through December 1973.

The estimates for maintenance assistance reflect transfer of the adult categories of maintenance assistance to Federal administration effective January 1974, except for Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The transfer of the adult categories will reduce costs under this appropriation by about $1,200 million in 1974 and $2,100 million in 1975.

2. Medical assistance.—Federal grants for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act (Medicaid) are made to States with plans approved by the Department. States must provide medical assistance to all persons receiving AFDC assistance payments.

The federalization of the aged, blind, and disabled categories under the supplementary security income program (SSI) on January 1, 1974, will expand the number of participants in the Medicaid program and modify the eligibility criteria. States are not in all cases required to provide Medicaid to SSI cash recipients, if they opt to apply any eligibility criteria from the January 1, 1972, medical assistance standard which is more restrictive than the SSI requirements.

States retain options to provide Medicaid to cash assistance recipients, to persons receiving a State supplemental payment (subject to certain limitations), to medically needy persons who are eligible for help only with their medical bills but who are not eligible for maintenance payments, and to needy children under 21.

The Federal share of total program costs for 1975 is estimated to be $6,537 million, or about 55 percent of the total Federal, State, and local expenditures. About $552 million in 1973 supplemental funds will be used to fund 1974 program requirements.

The increase in persons receiving medical assistance during 1974 results primarily from anticipated increases in the number of persons receiving maintenance payments as a result of the new supplemental security income program. Medicaid costs will be partially offset by savings from management initiatives, improved utilization review, preadmission certification, and proposed legislation.

3. Social services.—Grants are made to States to provide social services which will assist eligible persons to attain or maintain capability for self-care and self-support and strengthen family life and foster child development. Eligible persons include current recipients of and applicants for public assistance programs. A new title VI authority under the Social Security Act replaces titles I, X, XIV, and XVI to cover services for the adult categories whose assistance payments will be provided by the new Bureau of Supplemental Security Income in the Social Security Administration. The title IV program authorizing services to AFDC recipients as well as cash payments continues in effect. At the option of the State, eligibility for services can be extended to former and potential recipients of assistance under both of these programs.

To halt the escalating costs of Federal payments for social services, the Congress placed a limitation of $2.5 billion on Federal matching for social services. Funds are allocated to the States on the basis of a State's population as a percentage of the total U.S. population. Major efforts have been undertaken to strengthen the management of public assistance by instituting cost controls in the social services program. These controls have taken the form of more intensive expenditure review and more positive definitions of allowable services in the form of revised regulations. Regulations were issued on May 1, to be effective July 1, 1973.

Implementation of these regulations was delayed by the Congress until December 31, 1974. The budget request for 1974 and 1975 is based on the States' estimates received in November 1973.

4. State and local training.—Federal financial participation at the 75% rate is available to States for costs of training public assistance staff or persons preparing for employment in public assistance agencies. States are required to provide for the training and effective use of subprofessionals as community service aides and of volunteers.

5. Child welfare services.—Grants are made to States to enable the Federal Government to cooperate with State public welfare agencies outside of the framework of aid to families with dependent children in establishing, extending, and strengthening child welfare services. These services are defined as, public social services which supplement or substitute for parental care and supervision for the purpose of:

1. Preventing or remedying, or assisting in the solution of problems which may result in the neglect, abuse, exploitation or delinquency of children.

2. Protecting and caring for homeless, dependent, or neglected children.

3. Protecting and promoting the welfare of children of working mothers, and

4. Otherwise protecting and promoting the welfare of children, including the strengthening of their own homes where possible or, where needed, the provision of adequate care of children away from their homes in foster family homes or day care of other child care families. (Sec. 425, Social Security Act as amended through Dec. 28, 1971).

Child welfare services are extended to children in need of such services without regard to financial need, legal residence, race or religion. Each State receives a uniform grant of \$70 thousand and an additional grant which varies directly with child population and inversely with average per capita income. The basic statute establishes a rate of between 33 $\frac{1}{3}$  to 66 $\frac{2}{3}$  percent Federal financial participation. On a national basis, this is essentially a State program because of the limited level of Federal funds when compared to the total resources.

States are encouraged to coordinate child welfare services program of AFDC and to use child welfare services to provide services to children in need of them who were ineligible to receive services as assistance recipients or former or potential recipients.

The Social and Rehabilitation Service is working with the Office of Human Development to develop more effective approaches to the prevention of child abuse and neglect and a national program to deal with runaway children.

6. Research and evaluation.—The public assistance research and demonstration program has two basic purposes: (1) To develop the analytic methodologies, the program data, and the programmatic knowledge needed to evaluate and implement major policy and program options; and (2) to develop the methodological and technological knowledge necessary to improve both the Federal, State, and local administration of and the local delivery of services for the current public assistance programs.

In order to begin these new initiatives, a major review of all ongoing R. & D. both for relevance and research quality will be undertaken in 1974.

The objective for the 1974/1975 time period is to initiate a major, new public assistance R. & D. effort. Included in this effort are R. & D. projects which address policy concepts aimed at increasing the employment opportunities of welfare recipients. Health care R. & D. will focus on fiscal control with emphasis on utilization review and alternative means of implementing utilization review will be conducted. Social service R. & D. will address the overall management and delivery of services including an evaluation of services integration, needs and resources assessment methodologies, voucher systems, and special revenue sharing. A specific problem area, i.e., the prevention of child abuse/neglect and the prevention of unnecessary entry and utilization of foster care services will be given priority.

The work incentive (WIN) program is designed to encourage and assist individuals receiving support from the aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) program to achieve self-support through a program of employment, work experience, and training. Child care and other social services are provided to all who have been called up for certification and those who have been certified who need such care or services to permit them to accept training or employment. State expenditures are matched by Federal participation at the rate of 90%. Training and incentives are administered by the Department of Labor, child care and supportive services by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

1. Training and incentives.—The program includes registration, callup for employability planning, counseling and job development, direct placement, followup of all employed participants and adjudication of the work test. When necessary, individuals are prepared for self-supporting employment through on-the-job training, public service employment, work experience, and institutional training. Program development, evaluation, and administration of the WIN program are included under this activity.

2. Child care and supportive services.—This activity provides for child care and other social services necessary to enable WIN participants to accept training or employment. In 1973, the objectives of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare included the implementation of the changes in administration and organization of the program required by the 1971 amendments. In support of these objectives, HEW has established separate administrative units (SAU's) in all States; training and technical assistance have been provided to States; and a management information system has been developed and installed.

The HEW objectives for 1974 and 1975 include providing a sufficient number of child care years and man-years of supportive services to support the work and training programs.

The table below shows workload data for WIN child care and other supportive services:

Average children receiving care.....	80,100	75,350	75,350
Children in care at end of year.....	81,568	76,600	76,600
Average individuals receiving other supportive services.....	95,000	100,300	100,300

In 1975, the Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare are planning the revision of basic WIN policies to insure that they are in conformance with new social service regulations, the revision of regulations and manuals to correct demonstrated shortcomings, the provision of additional technical assistance to local projects, a redesign of the management information system, and the design and implementation of a joint evaluation and research strategy with emphasis on cost effectiveness analysis of program activity. These revisions are aimed specifically at producing one joint set of regulations and manuals and correcting deficiencies in program operations that have surfaced during the first year of WIN-II activity. They are intended to enforce closer coordination of local employment service and social service operations. They will also provide closer management tracking and evaluation of projected program activities and necessary technical assistance on program operations and management.

The rehabilitation program provides services to mentally and physically handicapped people so that they may prepare for and engage in remunerative employment or employment in the home to the extent of their potential. Emphasis is placed on reducing clients' dependency to the greatest degree possible to enable them to live in dignity and self-sufficiency. Services may be extended to the families of clients, where this will contribute to the clients' rehabilitation. Services include medical and physical restoration, vocational training, counseling, and job placement.

The major portion of the vocational rehabilitation program is carried out under section 110 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 which provides for grants with an 80% Federal matching rate to States to rehabilitate handicapped individuals and place them in productive gainful employment. The funding level for section 110 grants in 1975 is $670 million within an allotment base of $670 million. The 1975 level represents an increase of $40 million over 1974 and $81 million over the 1973 level.

Rehabilitation service projects provide specialized programs over and above those possible by resources of the basic support programs. In 1975 $29 million of prior-year-service project (expansion grant) funds will be made available to the States under the basic State grants to provide greater flexibility at the State level in the use of these funds. Special projects include the National Center for Deaf/Blind Youths and Adults which will provide rehabilitation services to 150 resident deaf/blind persons. New projects will be funded to provide special services and demonstrations for the benefit of the severely disabled.

The research and evaluation program supports the service goals in rehabilitation by providing information on new and innovative methods of rehabilitation services through research and demonstration projects, research and training centers, and rehabilitation engineering research centers. In 1975 most of the new starts will focus on improved management techniques; upgrading VR support institutions; problems of the homebound; and improved client evaluation and service modalities for the severely handicapped. Emphasis will continue on technology and methodology development necessary to the rehabilitation of the spinal cord injured and other severely disabled.

Rehabilitation training grants are made to increase the supply of and improve professional competence of personnel in a wide range of rehabilitation disciplines. In 1975 direct training grants will support long-term training in unique and specialized areas of rehabilitation study and short-term training in related staff development efforts in areas of priority interest to the public rehabilitation program.

2. Grants for the developmentally disabled.—Federal grants are made to States to assist in developing and administering a program of assistance for persons with mental retardation, epilepsy, cerebral palsy, and other neurological disabling conditions. In 1975, $30,875,000 will provide a wide range of direct services to over 64,000 developmentally disabled persons. The primary objective in 1975 is to complete the systematic implementation of the State plans to improve the quality of residential care and to reduce the institutional population.

Project grants are made to States and public and other nonprofit agencies to improve care in mental retardation institutions and to initiate and expand community programs.

Under the university-affiliated facilities program, 33 centers will receive support at a cost of $4,250,000 in 1975. These projects support the cost of operating demonstration facilities rendering specialized services to over 50,000 trainees from more than 60 disciplines.

3. Special programs for the aging.—This activity includes all aging-related programs, including research and training, previously funded in the Social and Rehabilitation Services account. Those activities have been transferred to the Office of Human Development in the Office of the Secretary.

4. Youth development and delinquency prevention.—This activity has been transferred to the Office of Human Development in the Office of the Secretary.

5. Research.—The funds in this activity have been transferred to the programs that benefit from the research performed. Rehabilitation research is now reported in the rehabilitation services and facilities activity in this account. Social services research has been transferred to the SRS account entitled "Grants to States for Public Assistance". Income maintenance has been transferred to Departmental Management in the Office of the Secretary.

6. Training.—Direct training grants for community services training are being reexamined based upon the 1974 appropriation. No new funds are requested for 1975.

The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, and the International Health Research Act of 1960 authorize the conduct of research and related activities abroad. Research, demonstrations, and research training programs which complement, supplement, and strengthen domestic research and service activities are supported with excess foreign currencies accruing to the United States through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities and through other sources. This program enables the United States to benefit from progress that other countries are making in dealing with social and rehabilitation and income maintenance problems and to utilize the talents of foreign scientists working in these fields.

No new budget authority is requested for this program in 1975. The program will be funded by using unobligated balances carried forward from prior years. It is estimated that these unobligated balances will be sufficient to continue to operate the program in 1975 at the 1974 level. In 1975 the major thrusts of the international research program will be to: (1) test innovative rehabilitation techniques and assistive devices developed by the Public Law 480 program and in research centers in the United States; (2) evaluate and assess programs in social services which could directly benefit the United States; (3) expand research information retrieval systems in all Public Law 480 countries; and (4) place emphasis on the utilization of research findings generated by the Public Law 480 program since 1962.

The major emphasis of the SRS foreign currency program in 1975 is in keeping with the overall U.S. domestic and/or foreign policy goals including self-support, self sufficiency and cost effectiveness. The proposed special foreign currency program level estimated at $3,700 thousand in 1975 could be compared to U.S. dollar supported research of approximately $12,000 thousand due to the difference in official exchange rates, in social-economic conditions relating to personnel, equipment and other direct and indirect cost items in the countries participating in the program.

In liaison with the Office of International Affairs, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, there is continuous consultation between the Social and Rehabilitation Service and the Department of State, pursuant to 3 (b) and (c) of Executive Order 10900 with respect to: foreign policy aspects of the proposed budget; administrative support expected from the Department of State and respective American Embassies from different countries; and the availability of currencies for international travel. There has been no need for contracts with foreign governments and no new facilities or establishments are being proposed overseas under the Special Foreign Currency Program of the Social and Rehabilitation Service.

This appropriation finances administrative expenses for carrying out various grant and contract programs associated with the provision of social and rehabilitation services for the needy, disabled, and other disadvantaged persons nationwide. This appropriation provides for the operational costs related to Federal administration activities including salaries of Federal employees and related costs for travel, utilities, communication, printing, supplies and equipment.

The major objective for 1975 is to strengthen the Social and Rehabilitation Service's capacity to manage the public assistance programs more effectively. Organizational changes will be made which are intended to:

1. Coordinate policy through the Administrator to provide a unified approach to SRS program direction.
2. Strengthen objectives management and focus on key tasks like quality control and utilization review through special work teams.
3. Provide direction for regional activity and shift staff to the regions, consistent with the Department's plan for decentralization.

In 1961 the President established a program to assist Cuban refugees in the United States. On June 28, 1962, the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 was enacted which now provides the legislative basis for assistance to Cuban refugees in the United States.

Refugees from Cuba were arriving in Miami at the rate of about 1,700 a week when the missile crisis occurred in October 1962 after which the number of arrivals decreased by about 90%. On October 3, 1965, the President of the United States announced that the United States would permit the orderly influx of refugees allowed to leave Cuba under a more liberal refugee policy adopted by the Cuban Government. In December 1965, a new influx of refugees started with the inauguration of freedom flights—the airlift operated by the U.S. as provided for in a United States-Cuban Memorandum of Understanding negotiated by the Swiss Government.

About 42 airlift flights brought approximately 3,500 refugees to Miami each month between December 1965 and August 1971 when the Cuban Government began a series of interruptions in airlift operations. A total of 76 airlift flights occurred between January 1972 and April 6, 1973, when the airlift was formally ended by the Cuban Government. Between 1961 and June 1973, 452,098 refugees had registered at the Cuban Refugee Center in Miami of whom 298,518 had been resettled to other locations in the United States. Refugees continue to enter the U.S. by means other than the airlift, however—primarily those who went from Cuba to Spain, many of whom had been there 2 years and longer while awaiting entry into the United States. The emigration from Cuba to Spain has drastically decreased since 1972.

In the fall of 1973 there were an estimated 25 thousand to 30 thousand Cuban refugees in other countries (primarily Spain) awaiting acceptance for entry into this country. In October 1973 the Department of Justice, acting on a recommendation from the Department of State, agreed to expand the use of parole authority under the immigration laws to bring to the United States within 1 year those Cuban refugees in refugee status (not permanent residents) in other countries as of the date of promulgation of the expansion in policy—October 26, 1973. Based on experience under the more limited parole policy that has been in effect for some time governing the flow of Cuban refugees from third countries into the United States—which has approximated 1,000 per month—it is anticipated that the funding impact on the Cuban refugee program of the more liberalized parole policy will be minimal and no special provisions are included in the budget for this purpose.

In light of the cessation of the airlift and the drastic decrease in the number of new refugees entering the United States, as well as the enactment of the Supplemental Security Income program which largely duplicates the welfare services of the Cuban refugee program, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare plans to phase out the Cuban refugee program, starting July 1974, with complete termination projected by June 30, 1977. These phase-out plans are reflected in the several services provided by the program for Cuban refugees which are discussed below.

1. Welfare assistance and services.—Since inception of the Cuban refugee program the Federal Government has provided 100% reimbursement to State and local welfare agencies for financial and medical assistance provided needy Cuban refugees. Beginning January 1, 1974, when the new Federal program of Supplemental Security Income for the Aged, Blind, and Disabled (SSI) becomes operative, many Cuban refugees will be eligible for that new program since refugee status will not be a barrier. Those found eligible will receive their basic maintenance payments through the SSI program rather than the Cuban refugee program. The latter program will continue, however, to reimburse States on a 100 percent basis for medical care provided needy Cuban refugees during fiscal 1974. The phaseout policy on reimbursements to the States under this program for welfare assistance to needy Cuban refugees, originally planned to become effective July 1, 1973, has been postponed 1 year—until July 1, 1974. Commencing then, the policy will be to limit reimbursements to the States for welfare assistance on behalf of Cuban refugees to those refugees who have been in the United States less than 5 years; regular welfare programs—AFDC, general assistance, and Medicaid—would be utilized for those needy refugees who have been in the United States over 5 years. Because of the unique situation in Florida, where about one-half of the refugees in the United States reside, this program would continue to reimburse 100% for welfare assistance required by needy refugees not eligible for the federally matched program of AFDC or for SSI, regardless of their length of residency in the United States. A number of States are expected to supplement the basic maintenance payments provided under SSI with their own funds, but no funds would be available from this program for that purpose. Refugees receiving basic maintenance under SSI would continue, however, to be eligible to have their medical care met from this program if they have been in the United States less than 5 years.

In June 1973, approximately 88,000 needy refugees were receiving welfare assistance, including medical care, under this program. It is estimated some 85,000 refugees will be eligible for assistance with their basic maintenance and/or medical care needs under this program in June 1974 and about 47,000 in June 1975.

2. Education.—Selected training is provided to equip the refugees for employment through English and other types of training. Also, provision is made for Federal payments to help meet part of the added cost related to refugee children in the Dade County, Fla., public school system. In addition, needy college students for whom loans have been previously authorized may receive loans from this program to continue their studies.

3. Other services.—This activity provides for Federal direction and day-to-day operation of the program, including a variety of services for newly arriving refugees as well as those already in the United States. There are administrative contracts with voluntary resettlement agencies to help with the reception and planning for newly arriving refugees and with pre- and post-resettlement problems, such as the need for emergency assistance in locating housing, job finding, etc. Continuing emphasis is placed on training and employment in the Miami area and assuring that barriers to achieving self-support are dealt with as effectively as possible.

This appropriation provides for payments from Federal funds to the social security trust funds for certain types of benefits and related administrative costs not financed by contributions from workers and employers. The 1975 appropriation request of $3,345,323 thousand covers the following types of payments:

1. Federal payments for supplementary medical insurance.—An estimated $2,327,000 thousand will be required in 1975 to finance the Government's contribution to the Federal supplementary medical insurance trust fund. The amount of funds required for Federal payments for supplementary medical insurance is dependent on the number of persons enrolled in the program and the premium rate which has been promulgated by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare for the fiscal year for which funds are appropriated. The Federal payments, combined with premiums from the enrollees and interest earned by the supplementary medical insurance trust fund, must be sufficient to finance the estimated incurred cost of benefits and administration. Disabled persons became covered under this program effective July 1973 as a result of enactment of the Social Security Amendments of 1972. Although the cost per capita for the disabled is estimated to be about 2½ times as much as that for the aged, both groups pay the same standard monthly premium, which will be $6.70 for 1975. The estimate for 1975 assumes that an average of about 21.6 million aged persons and 1.9 million disabled persons will be enrolled in the program during 1975 as compared with an average of about 20.8 million aged persons and 1.7 million disabled persons in 1974.

2. Hospital insurance for the uninsured.—A payment of $471,000 thousand to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund is budgeted for 1975 to cover the costs of hospital and related care for certain individuals age 65 and over who are not insured under the social security or railroad retirement systems. (Costs for the aged and disabled who are insured are financed by contributions on earnings by workers and by employers.) The estimate assumes that there will be an average of 1.1 million uninsured persons covered for hospital insurance benefits during 1975. The uninsured group covered by this provision includes persons who retired before their occupations were covered by social security (such as teachers and State and local employees) and widows whose husbands died prior to earning coverage under social security.

3. Military service credits.—The appropriation includes reimbursement of $240,000 thousand to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Federal disability insurance trust fund and the Federal hospital insurance trust fund for benefits paid on the basis of noncontributory military service credits of veterans of World War II and certain veterans of the post-World War II period. The basis for the computation of these payments is prescribed in sections 217(g) and 229(b) of the Social Security Act and includes reimbursement for administrative expenses and interest lost to the trust funds.

The payment to each trust fund is (in millions of dollars):

Old-age and survivors insurance.....	140
Disability insurance.....	52
Hospital insurance.....	48
Total.....	240

4. Retirement benefits for certain uninsured persons.—This appropriation provides for a payment of $307,323 thousand to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund as reimbursement for actual benefit payments made in 1973 to certain uninsured individuals aged 72 and over, related administrative expenses, and interest lost to the trust fund. These benefits were established to afford some protection for certain persons, or their surviving dependents, who retired before the enactment of social security legislation or before their occupations were covered by social security.

Individuals who had less than three quarters of coverage and who attained age 72 before 1968 were eligible for benefits under this provision in 1973. The benefits were reduced if the recipient also received another governmental pension. The amount of the reduction depended upon the amount of the other governmental pension. In addition, the benefits were withheld if an individual was receiving payments under a federally aided public assistance program.

The Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 provides for the protection of the health and safety of persons working in the coal mining industry. Title IV of the act provides monthly benefits to living coal miners who are totally disabled from pneumoconiosis resulting from employment in coal mines and to surviving widows.

Benefit payments to miners and surviving widows are increased for dependents (a spouse or child). Benefits are payable to orphans, and in certain circumstances, to totally dependent surviving parents, brothers, and sisters. The requirements for entitlement and the amounts of the benefits are stated in the law.

Under the law, the jurisdiction for payment of claims filed after June 1973 from miners shifted from the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to the Department of Labor. Also, the responsibility for most survivor claims filed after December 1973 will be with the Department of Labor. However, the Social Security Administration will continue to pay benefits and maintain the beneficiary roll for persons who filed during the time that the Social Security Administration had jurisdiction and this will continue for many years into the future. The amount of these benefits and the number of miners, widows, and other dependents receiving them at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

Benefit amount	$938,502	$972,000	$866,000
Beneficiaries:
Miners	102,000	165,000	167,000
Widows	88,000	140,000	165,000
Other dependents	112,000	192,000	201,000
Total	302,000	497,000	533,000

The administrative costs for 1975 are estimated at $10,089 thousand. These costs are primarily related to processing 9,000 new claims filed under the jurisdiction of the Social Security Administration, processing 11,400 hearings and appeals and maintaining the beneficiary roll for persons who filed during the time the Social Security Administration had jurisdiction.

In addition, life claims and most survivor claims filed after December 31, 1973, will be filed in the district offices of the Social Security Administration and transferred to the Department of Labor. The district offices will complete the nondisability development and refer the applicant for a medical appointment. The Social Security Administration will be reimbursed for these costs (estimated at $2,815 thousand in 1974 and $2,834 thousand in 1975) from funds appropriated to the Department of Labor.

Title XVI of the Social Security Act, as amended by the Social Security Amendments of 1972, established a new Federal supplemental security income (SSI) program for the aged, blind, and disabled. This program, effective January 1, 1974, replaces State administered programs of assistance to the aged, blind, and disabled which were aided by Federal grants from the appropriations to the Social and Rehabilitation Service. Under provisions of Public Law 93-233, the supplemental security income program provides a minimum income of $140 per month for an eligible individual and $210 per month for a couple both of whom are eligible. These benefits will rise to $146 and $219 in July 1974. Further legislation will be proposed to provide automatic cost of living adjustments in the future in line with those provided in the social security cash benefit programs.

The program is administered by the Federal Government under uniform eligibility requirements and payment support levels applicable in all States. However, to be eligible for Federal matching funds for Medicaid, States are required to supplement the Federal benefit to assure that recipients of benefits under the former State administered programs for the aged, blind, and disabled suffer no loss of income under SSI. The States may make additional supplementary payments if they so desire. They may also enter into agreements with the Federal Government to administer their supplementary payments. Under such an agreement, the administrative costs are paid from Federal funds. In addition, under a "hold harmless" provision the Federal Government makes contributions toward State supplementation to assure that such supplementation of Federal benefits does not involve costs in excess of those incurred by each State in 1972 for assistance payments to the aged, blind, and disabled.

This appropriation request covers: (1) The Federal benefit payments to the aged, blind, and disabled beginning January 1, 1974, an estimated $3.871 billion to be paid to 5 million Federal program recipients by the end of 1975; (2) the amount of Federal contributions toward State supplementary payments, $452 million, which are required to protect States against increased costs under SSI; (3) the cost of vocational rehabilitation services, $53.8 million in 1975, provided by State agencies to blind and disabled SSI beneficiaries who have the potential for becoming more self-sufficient and possibly returning to work; and (4) reimbursement to the social security trust funds for the administration of the program by the Social Security Administration, $396.8 million in 1975. State supplementary payments which are financed by the States and administered by the Federal Government on behalf of the States for those electing Federal administration under the reimbursable program will come to $1.169 billion in 1975.

By the end of 1975, the total number of beneficiaries on the rolls is expected to be 5.6 million, including 0.6 million beneficiaries not entitled to a Federal benefit but who will be receiving a supplementary State payment.

Note.—Excludes $35,500 thousand in 1975 for functions transferred to other DHEW appropriations, comparable amounts for 1973, $2,709 thousand and 1974, $24,908 thousand are included above.

The Social Security Administration is responsible for administering national programs of old-age, survivors, disability, and health insurance and the new supplemental security income program for the needy aged, blind, and disabled which was established by the Social Security Amendments of 1972. The principal costs for administration of these programs are financed by this appropriation; however, there are certain costs of other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and of the Treasury Department which relate to administration of these programs and are shown elsewhere in the budget.

Administrative costs are related to workloads generated by the statutory provisions of social security programs. The size of these loads depends upon objective factors such as population growth, level of employment, economic conditions, income levels, incidence of illness, and mortality rates.

1. Old-age and survivors insurance.—This program provides monthly benefits for retired workers and their dependents, survivors of deceased workers, including disabled widows and widowers age 50 and over, and certain uninsured persons age 72 and over.

The amount of benefit payments increases in 1974 and significantly in 1975 because of increases in benefits recently enacted (11% effective June 1974 with 7% of this amount payable for March through May 1974). Recent amendments also provided for a liberalization of the retirement test to permit earnings of $2,400 with no loss of benefits, and the contribution and benefit base was increased to $13,200.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

OASI claims applications received.....	3,872,196	4,064,000	4,008,000
Persons on OASI benefit rolls (average for year).....	26,653,000	27,603,000	28,709,000
OASI benefit payments (in millions)---	$42,169	$48,118	$55,802

The administrative costs budgeted for this program provide for: Making the initial determination of eligibility for old-age and survivors benefits; reevaluating the initial determination when requested by the claimant; making changes in the beneficiary rolls to assure proper and correct payment of benefits; and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits, including the evaluation of performance of representative payees.

2. Disability insurance.—This program provides monthly disability benefits for disabled workers and their dependents. In addition to normal increase in the number of persons receiving monthly benefits, the higher benefit rates mentioned previously will cause an increase in benefit payments in 1974 and a significant increase in 1975.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

Disability claims applications received..	1,480,541	1,808,000	1,668,000
Persons on disability benefit rolls (average for year).....	3,314,000	3,618,000	3,971,000
Disability benefit payments (in millions)	$5,162	$6,180	$7,462

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the costs of processing initial disability determinations and reconsiderations and appeals of denied claims; making investigations and determinations of continuing disability of beneficiaries and servicing the beneficiary rolls; and making all changes due to deaths, changes of address, attainment of age 65, returns to employment and recoveries from disability. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by State agencies and these costs are included in the budget estimates.

3. Health insurance.—This program includes the hospital insurance and the voluntary supplementary medical insurance programs which were established by the 1965 amendments and the 1972 amendments to the Social Security Act, commonly referred to as Medicare.

(a) Hospital insurance.—The hospital insurance program affords protection to persons age 65 and over against the cost of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services and posthospital extended care services. Hospital insurance also provides protection for those disabled beneficiaries who have been eligible for social security disability benefits for at least 2 years. Bills for services rendered under the hospital insurance program are generally submitted by hospitals, extended care facilities, home health agencies, and in some instances by individuals who have received emergency care in non-participating hospitals. In most instances, these bills are processed by the Blue Cross associations and private insurance companies acting as intermediaries for the Social Security Administration. The individual beneficiary records of utilization of hospital services are maintained in the central office of the Social Security Administration. The growth in beneficiaries who will be covered by the program as the population of age 65 and over increases, the addition of coverage for disabled beneficiaries in 1974, and the rise in the utilization of available services causes an increase in the number of claims in both 1974 and 1975.

(b) Supplementary medical insurance.—Almost all persons age 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance program, and in 1974 coverage was also extended to disability beneficiaries who have been eligible for benefits for at least 2 years. Supplementary medical insurance covers the cost of physician services and other medical costs within certain deductible and coinsurance requirements. Enrollees in the program pay a monthly premium and the rest of the program costs are paid for by the Federal Government by appropriations from Federal funds. Claims for services under the medical insurance program may be submitted by the physician or other suppliers of service or by the beneficiary to Blue Shield associations and private insurance companies who have been designated to act as carriers for the Social Security Administration in specific geographical areas.

The volume of claims will rise in 1974 and 1975 as a result of the normal growth in the age 65 and over population, the projected increase in utilization of medical services, and the addition of disability beneficiaries in 1974.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

Claims received for services covered by hospital insurance.....	9,223,800	10,816,000	11,556,000

Payments for services (in millions):
Hospital insurance.....	$6,648	$8,465	$9,831
Medical insurance.....	$2,391	$2,966	$3,586

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the claim payment functions performed by the contractors, services performed by State agencies in certifying and consulting with providers of services, and all work performed by the Social Security Administration in directing the program, providing services to beneficiaries, maintaining records by individual beneficiary of utilization of hospital and medical services and processing claims to establish entitlement to hospital insurance for persons not insured for cash benefits under either the social security or railroad retirement program.

4. Supplemental security income.—This new Federal program authorized in the Social Security Amendments of 1972 and recently amended provides monthly benefits from Federal funds to needy aged persons 65 and over, and to the needy blind and totally disabled without regard to age. Mandatory State supplementary payments are required for certain persons on the State rolls in December 1973 to guarantee that no one will have a loss of income as a result of the new program. In addition, the States can further supplement the Federal payment if they so desire. Because the administration of this program will be integrated with that of the social security program, the costs of administration of both programs are carried in the same salaries and expenses appropriation. A separate appropriation from Federal funds provides for the Federal benefits paid under the supplemental security income program, and for repayment to the trust funds for moneys advanced for the administration of the new program.

The program became effective on January 1, 1974. Prior to that date, about 3 million recipients of the present State and local administered programs had to be converted to the Federal program so that monthly payments could be made beginning with January 1974. In addition, thousands of claims from newly eligible persons had to be processed before the effective date. Payments up to $140 per month for an individual and $210 for a couple effective January 1974 will be increased to $146 and $219 effective July 1974.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

SSI claims applications received.....	3,272,800	3,078,200	3,078,200

The administrative costs budgeted for this program provide for: Making initial determinations of eligibility for aged, blind, and disabled benefits; reevaluating the initial determination when requested by the claimant; processing appeals of denied claims; making changes in the recipient rolls to assure proper and correct payment of benefits; and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits through periodic redeterminations. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by the State agencies under contract with the Social Security Administration and these costs are included in the budget.

<sup>1</sup> These moneys represent purchase contract payments for 30 years after which we will have "paid up our mortgage" on these projects and own them outright.

1. Headquarters.—The objective of construction at the headquarters complex in the Baltimore, Md., area is to provide adequate facilities to house personnel and equipment required to administer and support the social security program on a national scale. No new obligational authority is being requested for this account. Funds appropriated in prior years will be used in 1974 to build an access road from the headquarters site to Interstate Highway 70 as well as complete land purchase and initial design for new headquarters facilities. The Social Security Administration plans to construct, using the purchase contract method of financing, two additional buildings, one in downtown Baltimore and the other at the existing site in Woodlawn, Md. Completion of these facilities will allow, at a minimum, consolidation of scattered leased facilities and adequate housing for computer facilities.

2. District offices.—The overriding objective here is to bring the social security program to the American people through locating field offices in or near their community. Construction of new buildings to house Social Security district offices is planned only when such construction is determined to be more feasible than rental of commercial space or occupancy of existing Federal structures. In 1975, SSA plans to acquire sites and design 39 additional district offices using funds previously appropriated as well as requested budget authority of $4,500 thousand. Current plans also call for construction of 43 additional offices to be financed directly by trust funds or through purchase contract arrangements, whichever method is determined most economical. The 1975 budget request also includes payments of $132 thousand on four district offices which are scheduled to be constructed in 1974 under purchase contract arrangements. The annual payments assume a 30-year period for paying for the buildings.

3. Program centers.—The objective of constructing program center facilities is to provide adequate space, adaptable to expansion and internal changes, in a structure specifically designed for program center operations. The program centers review claims, maintain beneficiary records, and take the necessary action on all changes which affect the amount or eligibility for payment of social security benefits. Sites have been acquired, major design completed, and construction has begun on four new centers in Birmingham, Ala., Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill., and Richmond, Calif. The Birmingham Center will be built by a private entrepreneur and leased to Social Security. The other three will be financed through purchase contract means and will require an approximate annual payment of $14,400 thousand for 30 years (a total of $3,600 thousand is budgeted for 1975 on the assumption of an April 1975 completion date) after which the trust funds will acquire full title to the properties.

Direct program.—The retirement and survivors insurance program protects individuals and families from the risk of economic loss resulting from old-age and death by providing income to retired workers, to their dependents and to their dependent survivors. The program is financed by contributions to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The contribution rates follow:

FEDERAL OLD-AGE AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE TRUST FUND—Con.
CONTRIBUTION RATE USED TO FINANCE RETIREMENT AND SURVIVORS INSURANCE PROGRAM

	[In percent]
	Calendar year
	1972	1973	1974	1975
Employees.....	4.050	4.300	4.375	4.375
Employers.....	4.050	4.300	4.375	4.375
Self-employed.....	6.075	6.205	6.185	6.185

The above contribution rates are applied to taxable earnings up to a specified maximum. The maximum was $9 thousand in calendar year 1972, $10,800 in 1973 and will increase to $13,200 in 1974. Beginning with calendar year 1975, the taxable maximum will be increased automatically as wages rise. The 1975 maximum is expected to be $14,100. Workers who pay more in social security contributions because of increases in the taxable maximum will receive the benefit of more social security protection because the benefit payments are based on average taxable earnings.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of benefits to retired workers, their dependents and their survivors. The average numbers of persons receiving payments and the benefit amounts, classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1973–75 follow:

Beneficiaries (millions):	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Retired workers.....	15.0	15.7	16.6
Dependents of retired workers.....	3.3	3.4	3.6
Survivors.....	6.9	7.2	7.5
Total beneficiaries.....	25.2	26.3	27.6
Benefit payments (billions):
Retired workers.....	$27.8	$31.7	$37.0
Dependents of retired workers.....	3.2	3.6	4.1
Survivors.....	11.2	12.9	14.7
Total benefit payments.....	$42.2	$48.1	$55.8

Normal growth in benefit payments will occur because of (1) increases in the number of beneficiaries as the number of aged persons in the population and the proportion of the aged who are insured rise, and (2) increases in average monthly benefits as general earnings levels continue to rise. The increase in benefit outlays in 1974 exceeds normal growth because it includes the added cost of an across-the-board increase in cash benefits enacted by the Congress in Public Law 92–336 and effective with payments for September 1972. The Social Security Amendments of 1972 (Public Law 92–603) provided an increase in monthly benefits for widows and widowers and liberalized the retirement test (including an increase in the annual exempt amount from $1,680 to $2,100). These changes were effective January 1973. Finally, Public Law 93–233, enacted in December 1973, provides for a further 7% across-the-board increase in monthly benefits, effective with payments for March 1974.

The increase in benefit outlays estimated for 1975 also exceeds normal growth because of the cost of additional legislated program improvements. Public Law 93–233 provides that effective June 1974 an 11% increase in monthly benefits be substituted for the 7% increase which was effective for March 1974. Public Law 93–66 provides for a further liberalization of the retirement test, raising the annual exempt amount to $2,400 effective January 1974.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration that are attributable to the retirement and survivors' insurance program, including those incurred for the Social Security Administration by the Treasury Department and by other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E). Estimates are made of the yearly amounts of additional contributions the Social Security Administration would have collected, the additional benefits it would have paid and the additional administrative costs it would have incurred if railroad employees had been covered under social security. The payment made to the railroad retirement account represents the amount by which the estimated benefit payments and administrative costs exceed the estimated contributions, and includes interest through the date of the transfer. The components of the net transfers for 1973–75 follow (in millions of dollars):

Benefit payments.....	1,131.8	1,353.0	1,513.0
Administrative costs.....	11.3	12.0	12.0
Interest.....	54.4	69.0	77.0
Less contributions.....	–414.5	–492.0	–553.0
Net transfer.....	783.0	942.0	1,049.0

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that payments may be made from the old-age and survivors insurance and the disability insurance trust funds for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to disabled individuals who are entitled to social security cash benefits. The payments are made in expectation that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries into productive activity. In 1973, the total amount authorized for rehabilitation services was limited to 1.25% of total social security benefits certified for payment to disabled beneficiaries in the prior year. The limitation increases to 1.5% for 1974 and thereafter.

Reimbursable program.—1. Section 305 of the Social Security Amendments of 1972 authorizes advances from the OASI trust fund for the administrative expenses of the supplemental security income program for the aged, blind and disabled, with full reimbursement to the trust fund (including interest when appropriate). Reimbursement is budgeted in the account, Supplemental security income program.

The disability insurance program protects individuals and families against the risk of economic loss resulting from disability by providing income to severely disabled workers and their dependents. The program is financed by contributions to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. During calendar years 1972 and 1973 the contribution rate on which financing of the disability insurance program is based was 0.55% each for employers and employees. Beginning in January 1974, the rate is increased to 0.575% each for employers and employees. The rate for self-employed persons was 0.825% in calendar year 1972, and 0.795% in 1973 and increases to 0.815% effective January 1974. These rates are applied to earnings up to a maximum level which is the same for the disability insurance program as for the old-age and survivors insurance program.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of disability insurance benefits to certain disabled individuals and their dependents. The average number of persons receiving payments and the benefit amounts, classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1973-75 follow:

Beneficiaries (millions):
Disabled workers.....	1.8	2.0	2.3
Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.4	1.5	1.7
Total beneficiaries.....	3.3	3.6	3.9
Benefit payments (billions):

Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.0	1.1	1.4
Total benefit payments.....	5.2	6.1	7.5

Normal growth in benefit payments will occur because of (1) increases in the number of beneficiaries as the population insured for disability benefits rises, especially at ages 50-64 where disability incidence rates are highest, and (2) increases in average monthly benefits as general earnings levels continue to rise. The increase in benefit outlays in 1974 exceeds normal growth because it includes the added cost of a general benefit increase of 20% enacted in Public Law 92-336 effective with payments for September 1972. The Social Security Amendments of 1972 (Public Law 92-603), enacted October 30, 1972, reduced from 6 to 5 months the waiting period throughout which a person must be disabled before disability payments can begin. This and several other changes in the disability program were effective January 1973. In addition, Public Law 93-233, enacted in December 1973, provides for a further across-the-board increase in monthly benefits, effective for March 1974.

The increase in benefit outlays estimated for 1975 also exceeds normal growth because of the cost of additional legislated program improvements. Public Law 93-233 provides that effective for June 1974 an 11% increase in monthly benefits be substituted for the 7% increase which was effective for March 1974.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration that are attributable to the disability insurance program, including those incurred for the Social Security Administration by the Treasury Department and by other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the disability insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the disability insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included under social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E). This payment is computed on the same basis as the payment from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. The hospital insurance program affords protection to most individuals age 65 and over against the high costs of hospital and related care. The program also covers people under age 65 who have been entitled for at least 24 months to social security or railroad retirement benefits because they are disabled. Treatment of chronic kidney diseases for people under age 65 entitled to monthly social security benefits, for insured workers, and for the spouses or dependent children of such insured or entitled individuals is also covered.

For persons on the social security and railroad retirement rolls, the cost of services covered by the hospital insurance program and administrative costs, are financed by contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The maximum taxable earnings base is the same for the hospital insurance program as for the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance programs. Effective January 1, 1974, the contribution rate which is applied to earnings up to this maximum was decreased for the hospital insurance program from 1% to 0.9% each for employers, employees, and self-employed persons. Costs for uninsured persons who attain age 65 in 1974 or earlier, and who meet certain transitional insured status requirements, are financed with general revenues of the Treasury. Uninsured persons reaching age 65 who cannot be covered under the foregoing provision of law can enroll in the program on a voluntary basis. Those who elect to enroll will pay the full cost of the protection—initially $33 per month. This premium is scheduled to increase to $36 per month effective July 1, 1974.

1. Benefit payments.—The hospital insurance program provides protection against the costs of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services, and post-hospital skilled nursing facility services, with specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. The following table shows comparative data on hospital insurance beneficiaries and on benefit payments classified by type of coverage for 1973 through 1975 (in millions):

The growth in benefit payments from 1973 to 1975 results primarily from increases in the size of the covered population, in the cost of health care services, and from Medicare program improvements contained in the Social Security Amendments of 1972 (Public Law 92-603).

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration that are attributable to the hospital insurance program, including those incurred for the Social Security Administration, by the Treasury Department, and by other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

4. Health insurance experiments and demonstration projects.—The Social Security Administration has authority to contract for experiments and demonstration projects in a number of areas designed to improve the efficiency of the Medicare program. The principal areas of experimentation authorized include: developing incentive reimbursement procedures with a wider range of providers of service; developing various methods of prospective reimbursement of providers of service; designing performance incentives

The supplementary medical insurance program affords protection against the costs of physicians' services and certain other medical and health services. Most individuals age 65 and over are eligible for this protection, and over 95 percent of those eligible have elected coverage. People under age 65 who have been entitled for at least 24 months to social security or railroad retirement benefits because they are disabled also are eligible for this protection. The program also covers treatment of chronic kidney disease for eligible people under age 65 who elect to enroll.

The costs of services covered by the program and administrative expenses are financed by premium payments from enrollees together with contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury. The premium rate is scheduled to increase from $6.30 to $6.70 per month on July 1, 1974.

1. Benefit payments.—Participants in the program are covered for the cost of physicians' services, home health services not covered under the hospital insurance program, outpatient services, and certain other medical costs, with specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. The following table shows comparative data on supplementary medical insurance beneficiaries and benefit payments, classified by type of coverage, for 1973 through 1975 (in millions):

The growth in benefit payments from 1973 to 1975 results primarily from normal increases in the size of the covered population, in the cost of medical services, and from Medicare program improvements contained in the Social Security Amendments of 1972 (Public Law 92-603).

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

1. Educational materials.—The American Printing House supplies educational materials and tangible apparatus for education of blind students of less than college grade. During 1974, 24,196 such pupils will be served. This is based on registration of pupils as of the first Monday in January 1973.

The 1975 budget estimate of $1,887 thousand will provide an estimated increase of 5% in per capita for an estimated 24,962 pupils to be registered and approximately a 3% increase in registration. The 5% increase in per capita is requested in order to supply approximately the same amount of educational material to blind children as provided during 1974.

The 3% increase in the number of children to be registered is in keeping with the usual increase in number of children during the past several years; however, during 1974 some 700 more children than anticipated were registered and will be served by the Printing House. With continued emphasis on reaching blind children at an early age, young blind children in formally organized nursery schools are being served. It is also expected there will be a greater variety of materials required and many new additional aids as a result of research, evaluation, and production.

2. Advisory committees and field service.—The American Printing House for the Blind has three Advisory Committees—Publications Committee, Educational Aids Committee, and Educational Research Committee.

These committees advise and approve materials and aids to be manufactured through the Federal appropriation. Also, field representatives for the Printing House travel to State departments of education, schools for the blind and public school classes for the blind and advise teachers on materials and facilities available to blind children. Additionally, the Printing House staff gives assistance to colleges and universities conducting training programs for teachers of the blind.

The National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) is a coeducational residential institution that provides postsecondary technical education for young deaf people to prepare them for successful employment; that prepares professional manpower to serve the Nation's deaf population; and that conducts applied research on educational, social and employment aspects of deafness.

1. Operations.—$7,838 thousand is requested for the continued development of NTID toward fully operational status. Significant objectives for 1975 include: Serving a planned growth in the full-time equivalent student body to 700; occupying, shaking down and operating new academic, residential and dining facilities; implementing research in the specially designed research and training laboratories; training new faculty and staff and other professional persons to work with the deaf, including their preparation for serving in community programs for the deaf; conducting research on vital parameters that critically describe needs of young deaf people in terms of preparing them to move forward socially, economically and educationally; showing how an institution with no previous experience in dealing with special needs of deaf people can begin serving these needs; and, in all phases of NTID operations, implementing a coordinated and active program of applied research directed toward improving economic assimilation of deaf citizens.

2. Construction.—$1,981 thousand is requested to complete furnishing and equipping the new facilities for deaf students and programs to support them. These facilities will be fully occupied in 1975 and include an academic complex, a residence hall and a dining hall/commons.

Note.—Excludes $38 thousand in 1974 and 1975 for liaison activity transferred to Salaries and expenses, Office of Education.

1. College.—Gallaudet College is a private, nonprofit educational institution providing an undergraduate higher education program for the deaf, a tutorial school for deaf students who need such training to qualify for college admission, a graduate school program in fields related to deafness, and a continuing education program for deaf adults. The 1975 budget estimate will support the implementation of an experimental preparatory program, the upgrading of the preventive maintenance programs for the physical plant, and the improvement of management services.

2. Model Secondary School for the Deaf.—As provided under Public Law 89-694, the Model Secondary School for the Deaf: (a) Serves as a laboratory for educational experimentation and development; (b) disseminates working models throughout the field of education of the deaf to programs serving more than 60,000 deaf students and 10,000 education professionals; (c) prepares deaf adolescents for postsecondary academic and/or vocational pursuits; and (d) provides deaf adolescents the skills necessary to become well-adjusted, contributing, and effective members of the society. For 1975, the Model Secondary School for the Deaf: will initiate the phased implementation of a management, planning and evaluation system; evaluate instructional materials currently in use; disseminate a minimum of 5 sets of instructional packages to other schools and programs; develop a visual training program; and expand and refine current curricular offerings.

3. Kendall Demonstration Elementary School.—By an act of Congress, Public Law 91-587, the college has the authority to operate Kendall School as a national demonstration elementary school for the deaf. The school will: (1) Develop an exemplary educational program for children from the age of onset of deafness through the age of 15; (2) develop a diagnostic center; (3) develop a parent education program; and (4) become a source of important research on learning problems of young deaf children. The 1975 operation estimates will provide for the maintenance of faculty salaries along with increases for the improvement of the library resources center, the replacement of media equipment, the expansion of the inservice training program, the initiation of a foster home placement program, the expansion of the media services, and the improvement and expansion of the research and development activities. These funds are necessary to insure a consistent growth and development of the total program toward its goals.

4. Construction.—The 1975 estimates for college construction will provide for equipping the new food and health service buildings and for the construction of the fourth dormitory. The 1975 estimate for MSSD construction includes two residence units to house 132 students and procurement of equipment for the facilities. The MSSD academic and physical education facilities will reach 50% completion in 1974.

1. Academic program.—Howard University is a private nonprofit educational institution consisting of an undergraduate college, a graduate school offering the master's degree and the degree of doctor of philosophy (in African studies, biochemistry, English, government, history, pharmacology, physics, psychology, physiology, and zoology) and 13 professional schools. Federal funds provide 62.3% of the total operating costs for the academic program. Funds from non-Federal sources are realized from tuition and fees, gifts, grants, endowments, dormitory rents, cafeteria, and bookstore sales and hospital patients.

The 1975 estimate will allow the university to improve library services, to provide for faculty salary increases, and to undertake curriculum revisions in a limited number of schools.

As a major goal in 1975, the university proposes to establish a Development Fund for the purpose of providing additional resources for university activities.

2. Freedmen's Hospital.—The hospital furnishes inpatient and outpatient care and a facility for training of physicians and nurses and other professional and technical health personnel. Operation of the hospital is financed by Federal appropriation and patient revenue for medical services including medicare and contractual services from the District of Columbia Government and other local jurisdictions. Federal funds provide 60% of the total operating costs.

3. Construction.—The construction program at Howard University is largely financed by the Federal appropriation. The current program includes land acquisition, major repairs and renovations to existing buildings and the planning and construction of new buildings.

The 1975 request provides for the highest priority construction needs of the university, including the university library extension and the medical-dental library.

1. Child development.—The child development program provides for activities and services designed to have a major impact on the development of young children. In 1975, the child development program will continue to focus attention on the improvement and innovation effort to convert Head Start into a more flexible system for delivering services that are both cost effective and responsive to the real needs of children, and to build and improve local capacity to plan and manage children's services. The $430,000 thousand requested for Head Start in 1975 represents an increase of $37,900 thousand over the 1974 level. The increase is necessary to continue serving 379,000 children in 1975 and to maintain the quality of Head Start services. Increased costs for needed goods and services will be covered in addition to indirect administrative costs of Head Start grantees previously paid from Office of Economic Opportunity funding. A funding level of $15,700 thousand will provide an additional $500 thousand for the Research and Demonstration programs in 1975 and will assure continuation of funding projects in the priority areas of day care, child development and family life, child abuse, education for parenthood, the effect of television on young children and programs which serve children with special needs.

2. Youth development.—The youth development program continues to provide financial assistance to State and local communities to encourage development of coordinated youth service delivery systems at the local level. This innovative approach, initiated in approximately 95 areas in 1973 and 1974, is intended to bring together available Federal, State, local, and private funds in an effective system of community-based juvenile delinquency prevention services and programs. An increase in funding from $10,000 thousand in 1974 to $15,000 thousand in 1975 will permit a significant expansion of support and evaluation of model service delivery systems which are flexible to the changing needs of youth. In 1975 these additional efforts will focus on the demonstration of coordinated services and programs directed towards meeting the critical needs of runaway youth.

3. Program for the aging.—Special programs for the aging will continue to pursue the national goals of securing and maintaining maximum independence and dignity in a home environment for older persons capable of self-care with appropriate supportive services, and removing individual and social barriers to economic and personal independence for older persons. Pursuant to these goals, the title III State and community programs will be primarily directed toward establishing and enhancing the capability of State agencies on aging to launch or strengthen action programs within planning and service areas for coordinating the delivery of existing services for older persons, and for the pooling of untapped resources in order to strengthen existing services or inaugurate new services for the elderly, $96,000 thousand is requested for the purpose of continuing to improve and foster the development of a comprehensive coordinated services delivery system for the elderly nationwide. The title IVB research and demonstration program will continue to focus on the development and validation of substantive information upon which reasoned policy and program decisions may be made. Emphasis will be placed on problems and issues related to achieving the goals of the program and methods of overcoming barriers to realizing these goals; $7,000 thousand is requested for this activity. The title VII nutrition program, which was implemented during 1974, will serve 200,000 meals per day, 5 days per week, affecting 450,000 older persons annually. In addition, it will endeavor to improve the capacity of State and local agencies to meet the nutritional and related social needs of the elderly; $99,600 thousand is requested for this activity.

4. Special programs for Native Americans.—The Native American program, previously administered through the Office of Economic Opportunity, utilizes new and innovative approaches to deal with the special needs of Indians and Alaska Natives. The 1975 objectives of the Native American program will be to advance the governmental capabilities of Indian tribes so that they can gain control over the programs on the reservation; to improve the quality of services to Indians living on and off the reservation; and to increase the potential for economic development on the reservation. The budget request of $32,000 thousand is an increase of $1,100 thousand over the 1974 level. The increase will be used to maintain the program expansion undertaken in 1974 and to expand the research effort. A thorough assessment will be carried out of the urban Indian population and their needs. During 1975, the program will continue to fund over 70 tribal government programs reaching approximately 150 reservations in 23 States in addition to special projects to serve off-reservation Indians and to meet research and demonstration requirements.

5. Salaries and expenses.—Provides funds for administrative expenses for carrying out programs within the Office of Human Development serving special population groups such as the aged, children and youth, and Native Americans. In addition, funds support the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports, the President's Committee on Mental Retardation, and the Secretary's Office of Mental Retardation Coordination. This activity includes development of policy and procedures, nationwide planning, financial management, and providing technical assistance to State and local governments, voluntary agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in the planning and delivery of OHD program services. The $29,000 thousand to support 939 positions will assure continuation of these efforts in providing national leadership and coordination of programs which serve these special population groups. The requested increase of $3,900 thousand from the 1974 level of funding, including $722 thousand to annualize 1973 pay cost increases, and $600 thousand for the Aging Ombudsman program, will cover increased costs of GSA rentals, supplies, equipment and staff travel. During 1975, the Office of Human Development will place major emphasis on improving and strengthening its management and administrative structure. Special attention will be directed toward the selection and training of staff to increase the availability of management and administrative competence at both the headquarters and regional office level.

The Office for Civil Rights was established in 1966 to direct and coordinate the responsibilities assigned to the Department under title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Subsequently, enforcement responsibilities in the field of civil rights were centralized in the Office for Civil Rights and are largely implemented through the regional offices. The Higher Education Amendments of 1972 widened the Department's civil rights charter adding two major responsibilities. Title VII of the amendments requires review of school districts for compliance with the terms of emergency school aid grants, and title IX prohibits sex discrimination in admission to educational institutions. The Comprehensive Health Manpower and Nurse Training Acts prohibit sex discrimination in admission to health professions schools.

Compliance enforcement.—Responsible for assuring that beneficiaries of approximately 200 major programs receive services on a nondiscriminatory basis. Federal assistance is provided through 250 State agencies and thousands of school districts, nursing homes, hospitals, colleges, and other similar entities.

Contract compliance.—Responsible for insuring compliance with Executive Orders on equal employment opportunity at universities, hospitals, and other institutions holding Government contracts.

1. Executive direction.—Broad policy direction is given to the various operating programs of the Department. Staff assistance is provided for the development of the Department's legislative program and for coordination and leadership in all areas of program operation. Staffing is provided for long-range program and policy planning.

2. Public affairs.—Overall guidance is given to the Department's relations with the public. Information is provided to the press, various public and private organizations, and to interested individuals.

3. Field management.—Supports the Office of the Under Secretary for Regional Affairs. Policy direction, coordination, and leadership for the Department's social programs are provided. This activity is also responsible for the organization, integration, evaluation, and coordination of the Department's field activities, and planning and coordination of programs designed to meet specific urban needs.

4. Legal services.—The Office of General Counsel acts as legal adviser to, and provides legal services for the Secretary, the operating agencies of the Department, and the staff of the regional offices.

5. Financial management.—(a) Audit.—The HEW Audit Agency is responsible for the policy and coordination of all Department audit activities, including liaison and coordination with the Defense Contract Audit Agency and other Government agencies. It performs internal and external audits of all Department activities to provide assurance that Federal funds are used for the purposes intended. The Audit Agency is administered on a decentralized basis with the central office in Washington, D.C. responsible for policy coordination and overall administration, and a regional staff in each of the HEW regional areas responsible for the performance of all audits within its respective geographical area.

(b) Other.—Staff assistance is provided to the Secretary in formulating policy in all areas of financial management, particularly budget, finance, and grants administration.

6. Administrative management.—(a) Facilities engineering and property management.—This activity provides a single point of contact for all HEW construction support services; standardization of facilities policies and procedures; surveillance of special purpose projects with regard to design, construction, and fund utilization; and the promotion of an effective facilities research and development program. In addition, this office will administer Departmental management funds for the GSA Federal buildings fund.

Under the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, the Secretary: (1) Allocates needed surplus personal property to State agencies for educational, public health, and civil defense purposes; (2) transfers surplus real property for educational and public health purposes, including research; (3) protects the rights of the United States under the terms and conditions of such transfers; and (4) promulgates regulations governing the operation of the program, and enforces such regulations.

(b) Other.—Staff assistance is provided to the Secretary for formulating departmental administrative policy in general and in the specific areas of grant and procurement programs, management information systems, and personnel policy. This activity also provides administrative management services for all units of the Office of the Secretary.

7. Consumer affairs.—This activity assures that the consumer's interest is reflected in Federal policies and programs, cooperates with State agencies and voluntary organizations in advancing the interests of consumers, promotes improved consumer education, and recommends legislation of benefit to consumers.

8. Policy research.—This activity, transferred from the Office of Economic Opportunity in 1974, supports research into the causes and cures of poverty. The research includes studies of income maintenance, alternative health insurance plans, varieties of human resources delivery systems, and other poverty related research. In addition, income maintenance experiments previously funded in the Social and Rehabilitation Service, have been transferred to this activity in Departmental management. The primary focus of this research is development of effective work incentives.

The Working capital fund provides a single means for consolidating financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers.

The fund originally authorized by Public Law 82-452 (66 Stat. 369) to finance central services provided by the Office of the Secretary to itself and to the several operating agencies.

There are six program classifications: Data management services; common regional services; personnel data services; payrolling services; administrative services; and Parklawn personnel services. Combined, these activities rendered services or sold commodities to the Office of the Secretary and DHEW agencies at a $33,470 thousand level in 1973. It is expected that the level will be $41,947 thousand in 1974 and increase to $43,424 thousand in 1975.

During 1973 the major accounting type services were dropped from the fund. In 1974 the remaining segments of accounting type services were transferred to departmental management. The Parklawn personnel office services are scheduled to be transferred to the Service and supply fund during 1974, however, a firm date has not been decided upon.

The following activities are carried out under the fund:

1. Data management services.—This central facility provides data systems design and consultation, key punching, EAM processing, computer programming, and computer processing to the operating agencies.

2. Common regional services.—This activity provides departmentwide common regional administrative services, such as financial, personnel operations, and office services.

3. Personnel data services.—Through the maintenance of a centralized personnel data collection service, this activity provides automated personnel reports and data to all operating agencies and other Federal agencies.

4. Payrolling services.—Provides for centralized payrolling services for all employees, as well as leave and payroll accounting for the Department.

5. Administrative services.—This activity consists of centralized mail and messenger services and procurement and distribution of congressional materials; purchasing, supply and laborers' services; and for reproduction services which consists of offset printing, photographic, visual exhibits, collating and addressograph services, and procurement of printing from the Government Printing Office and other sources.

Operating results.—The activities financed under the fund operated at an income-expense ratio of 1.11 to 1 in 1973. The cash position of the fund is in a favorable position with the collection of receivables, in most instances, on a monthly basis. Rate changes were authorized in 1974, providing more equitable charges to the operating agencies.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital provides treatment and care for the mentally ill who are either beneficiaries of the Federal Government or residents of the District of Columbia. Legislation has been introduced to transfer program and fiscal control of the hospital from the Federal Government to the District of Columbia. Under the terms of the proposed legislation the District of Columbia will budget for and justify the operation of the hospital under its own appropriation.

Funds in this appropriation will be used to reimburse the District of Columbia for treatment and care of Federal beneficiaries who will remain at the hospital, and to pay a subsidy to the District of Columbia. The District of Columbia will assume a gradually increasing share of the costs of operating the hospital. Ultimately, the Federal share of this operation will be limited to reimbursements for the treatment of Federal beneficiaries.

5. Health manpower.—National health service scholarship program.—This program authorizes scholarships to students in the health professions in exchange for specified periods of service in the National Health Service Corps or such other civilian or uniformed health service as the Secretary may prescribe. This supplemental would expand the program and provide scholarships to approximately 450 additional students in 1974, and to 2,000 students in 1975.

8. Health resources planning.—This program would provide Federal support to States for health regulatory and planning activities and to regional planning bodies.

Federal funds will be provided to support State regulatory efforts in the health field and to implement Federal initiatives concerned with the regulation of proposed health care rate increases and proposed capital expenditures in the health care industry. These include expanded State efforts at cost control stimulated by the Economic Stabilization Program, and activities dealing with capital expenditures review as encouraged by section 1122 of the Social Security Act. Funds for capital expenditures review will supplement those made available thru Medicare trust-fund reimbursement for this purpose. Funds will be allotted to the States on the basis of population and the costs of performing those functions necessary to carry out the requirements of Federal law in these areas of regulating proposed rate increases or capital expenditures.

Regional health systems boards will be organizations in the health care market—consumers, providers, third-party payors, health educational institutions, and government—to plan for an adequate supply of high quality health care, equitably distributed and of reasonable cost. The regional boards will be responsible for developing and stimulating the implementation of a comprehensive health plan for health care systems, including facilities, services, and manpower.

90 Outlays.....			1,910,400

This program, authorized by three pieces of pending legislation, will be funded for the first time in 1974 through a proposed supplemental which will provide funds for academic year 1974-75, making this program advance funded. The requested 1975 appropriation is to provide funds to schools for academic year 1975-76. The basic aim of this proposal is to eliminate unnecessarily narrow categorical grant programs and provide the States greater flexibility and responsibility in determining their own educational priorities and funding needs. The funds provided will be grouped into the following broad areas of emphasis (obligations by thousands of dollars):

	1974 supplemental	1975 estimate
Disadvantaged.....	1,885,000	1,900,000
Handicapped.....	47,500	50,000
Innovation.....	154,193	154,193
Support services.....	158,175	158,175
Vocational.....	543,798	549,798
Adult.....	63,319	63,319
Total.....	2,851,985	2,875,485

This new program would provide for continuation of activities currently provided under the following programs that are proposed for consolidation:

Disadvantaged priority:

—ESEA, I, parts A, B, and C

Handicapped priority:

—EHA, part B, sec. 611

Innovation priority:

—Environmental Education Act
 —Nutrition and Health (sec. 808 of ESEA VIII)
 —Dropout Prevention (sec. 807 of ESEA VIII)
 —ESEA, III

Support Services priority:

—ESEA, II and V
 —NDEA, III

These four priorities are included in the pending elementary and secondary legislation. All of the programs authorized under the Vocational Education Act are consolidated in the vocational priority to be authorized by the vocational education legislation proposal. All of the programs authorized under the Adult Education Act are consolidated under the adult priority to be authorized by the adult education legislation proposal. In the event that either the vocational education legislative proposal or the adult education proposal is not enacted, funds for 1975 will be requested under existing legislation as funded in 1974.

Legislation is proposed which will reduce the Federal share of costs for maintenance assistance and medical assistance programs while bringing more uniformity to these programs.

A description of each proposal follows:

1. Maintenance assistance.—The income disregard for work-related expenses in the calculation of an individual's welfare benefits is to be applied in a uniform manner nationwide. A one-third disregard will be applied to the first $300 of monthly income after child care expenses and a standard $60 for work incentives has been deducted. Income earned above $300 per month will be disregarded at a one-fifth rate.

2. Medical assistance.—(a) Federal matching will be discontinued for adult dental services except emergency services. Federal matching for dental services to individuals under 21 years of age will be retained. (b) Reimbursement will be mandated for services provided at free standing clinics so that Medicaid recipients can receive these services.

An amendment to the Social Security Act is proposed for the OASDI cash benefit programs. The proposed change recommended by the 1971 Advisory Council on Social Security, provides that social security benefits not be paid retroactively for months before an application is filed when this would require a permanent reduction in the beneficiary's future monthly benefits. The advisory council recommendation is intended to insure that an OASDI beneficiary's continuing income, on which he has to rely for the remainder of his life, is not reduced. The proposal would make the law more consistent with the objective of providing adequate benefit income for the aged, and would become effective with claims filed in June 1974.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 201. None of the funds appropriated by this title to the Social and Rehabilitation Service for grants-in-aid of State agencies to cover, in whole or in part, the cost of operation of said agencies, including the salaries and expenses of officers and employees of said agencies, shall be withheld from the said agencies of any States which have established by legislative enactment and have in operation a merit system and classification and compensation plan covering the selection, tenure in office, and compensation of their employees, because of any disapproval of their personnel or the manner of their selection by the agencies of the said States, or the rates of pay of said officers or employees.

SEC. 202. The Secretary is authorized to make such transfers of motor vehicles, between bureaus and officers, without transfer of funds, as may be required in carrying out the operations of the Department.

SEC. 203. None of the funds provided herein shall be used to pay any recipient of a grant for the conduct of a research project an amount equal to as much as the entire cost of such project.

SEC. 204. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used for any activity the purpose of which is to require any recipient of any project grant for research, training, or demonstration made by any officer or employee of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to pay to the United States any portion of any interest or other income earned on payments of such grant made before July 1, 1964; nor shall any of the funds contained in this Act be used for any activity the purpose of which is to require payment to the United States of any portion of any interest or other income earned on payments made before July 1, 1964, to the American Printing House for the Blind.

SEC. 205. Funds appropriated under this title to the American Printing House for the Blind, Howard University, the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, the Model Secondary School for the Deaf, and Gallaudet College shall be awarded to these institutions in the form of lump-sum grants and expenditures made therefrom shall be subject to audit by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

SEC. 206. None of the funds contained in this title shall be available for additional permanent Federal positions in the Washington area if the proportion of additional positions in the Washington area in relation to the total new positions is allowed to exceed the proportion existing at the close of fiscal year 1966.

SEC. 207. Appropriations in this Act for the Health Services [and Mental Health] Administration, the National Institutes of Health, [and] the Center for Disease Control, the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, the Health Resources Administration and the Office of the Secretary shall be available for expenses for active commissioned officers in the Public Health Service Reserve Corps and for not to exceed two thousand eight hundred commissioned officers in the Regular Corps; expenses incident to the dissemination of health information in foreign countries through exhibits and other appropriate means; advances of funds for compensation, travel, and subsistence expenses (or per diem in lieu thereof) for persons coming from abroad to participate in health or scientific activities of the Department pursuant to law; expenses of primary and secondary schooling of dependents in foreign countries, of Public Health Service commissioned officers stationed in foreign countries, at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and for the transportation of such dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation; rental or lease of living quarters (for periods not exceeding 5 years), and provision of heat, fuel, and light, and maintenance, improvement, and repair of such quarters, and advance payments therefor, for civilian officers and employees of the Public Health Service who are United States citizens and who have a permanent station in a foreign country; not to exceed $9,500 for official reception and representation expenses when specifically approved by the Assistant Secretary for Health; purchase, erection, and maintenance of temporary or portable structures; and for the payment of compensation to consultants or individual scientists appointed for limited periods of time pursuant to section 207(f) or section 207(g) of the Public Health Service Act, at rates established by the Assistant Secretary for Health, or the Secretary where such action is required by statute, not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18.

SEC. 208. No part of the funds contained in this title may be used to force any school or school district which is desegregated as that term is defined in title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Public Law 88-352, to take any action to force the busing of students; to force on account of race, creed, or color the abolishment of any school so desegregated; or to force the transfer or assignment of any student attending any elementary or secondary school so desegregated to or from a particular school over the protest of his or her parents or parent.

SEC. 209. No part of the funds contained in this title shall be used to force any school or school district which is desegregated as that term is defined in title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Public Law 88-352, to take any action to force the busing of students; to require the abolishment of any school so desegregated; or to force on account of race, creed, or color the transfer of students to or from a particular school so desegregated as a condition precedent to obtaining Federal funds otherwise available to any State, school district, or school. ## DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter presents the budget and program estimates for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. In all but a few cases, these estimates are also covered in part 4 of the budget (the Federal program by function) under the heading "Community Development and Housing."

The major divisions of this chapter conform to the Department's functional organization for program administration, as set forth below:

1. Housing production and mortgage credit covers the programs and activities of the Federal Housing Administration and the Government National Mortgage Association. These include programs to further homeownership, provide mortgage insurance, and extend the availability of mortgage credit. This heading also covers commitments under various subsidized housing programs which have been halted, and the low-rent public housing leasing program (sec. 23) which will provide housing assistance through 1975 on a modified basis.

2. Housing management includes the Department's consolidated appropriation providing subsidy payments for homeownership assistance, rental housing assistance, rent supplement, low-rent public housing, and college housing. The housing management function also includes the servicing of loans and mortgages and the management and disposition of properties acquired by the Federal Government. These activities, which relate to both housing production and management, are reflected in the appropriate schedules under the heading "Housing Production and Mortgage Credit." Other management functions are included under this heading are community disposal operations, liquidating programs, and temporary housing activities.

3. Community planning and development covers programs of planning and management assistance as well as programs of physical development other than housing production and management. This category includes programs to implement legislative proposals now pending before the Congress: the Responsive Governments Act and the Better Communities Act. This heading also covers the completion of projects under programs such as urban renewal and model cities which are being phased out.

4. Policy development and research includes the programs and activities assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research. This new organization consolidates the policy analysis and program evaluation activities with those of research and technology in order to more effectively serve the needs of the entire Department.

Other major divisions within the Department include the newly formed New Communities Administration, the Federal Insurance Administration, Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, and Departmental Management. Descriptions of these activities are found in the narratives under the appropriate headings. Disaster relief activities are included under "Funds Appropriated to the President" rather than in this chapter.

Day-to-day administration, processing and funding decisions for programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development are carried out in area offices and insuring offices located within the geographical boundaries of 10 regional offices.

HOUSING PRODUCTION AND MORTGAGE CREDIT: FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

The Federal Housing Administration is responsible for the administration of programs of loan and mortgage insurance for the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties.

Its responsibilities include processing applications and monitoring construction under four housing subsidy programs: homeownership assistance (sec. 235), rental housing assistance (sec. 236), rent supplement and the low-rent public housing. These programs were suspended on January 5, 1973, while a comprehensive evaluation of them was completed. This evaluation found these programs to be seriously defective in addressing the basic cause of inadequate housing, which was shown to be inadequate income.

On September 19, 1973 the President announced that the low-rent public housing leasing program would be resumed in a manner which will develop valuable information on a direct cash assistance approach for providing housing assistance to lower-income families. The revised program will greatly increase the opportunity for families to make their own housing choices, while enhancing the role of the private housing market. This program is more fully described under low-rent public housing—loans and other expenses, which follows in this section.

During 1974, commitments for additional projects will be made under the rent supplement, homeownership assistance, and rental housing assistance programs as necessary to meet bona fide commitments which cannot be met under the revised public housing leasing program. The currently estimated levels of activity are shown in the following table:

Assistance to nonprofit sponsors of low- and moderate-income housing was authorized by section 106 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended. Activity under this program was discontinued in 1973, since the program is an ineffective means for providing assistance which may be available elsewhere from a variety of public and private organizations.

This section describes the financing activities for the low-rent public housing program and the status of the low-rent public housing loan fund. Appropriations for payments of annual contribution contracts are provided under the heading "Housing Payments" in the Housing Management section of this chapter.

The United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, authorizes a low-rent public housing program to help provide safe and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of low-income families. Such housing is owned or leased by local housing authorities (LHA's) created under State law. Federal loans and annual debt service contributions assist local housing authorities in financing the construction of low-rent housing and in maintaining the low-rent character of such housing after completion. Basic annual contributions assist LHA's to lease dwellings from private owners and maintain the low-rent character of such housing.

Contract authority is available for use without specific appropriation action although the budget program is subject to congressional review. Management of the program, including modernization and payment of operating subsidies, is administered by the Assistant Secretary for Housing Management. The production phase of the program is administered by the Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit.

The following table shows the commitment of annual contribution contract authority compared with available authority:

Annual contribution obligation requirements based on contract authority utilized are estimated at $1,263 million in 1974 and $1,523 million in 1975 and are included in the Housing Payments estimates in the Housing Management section of this chapter. The estimates include $350 million for operating subsidies in 1974 and $400 million for 1975.

Budget program.—Production.—The low-rent public housing program was suspended on January 5, 1973, to permit reevaluation of this and other subsidized programs. On September 19, 1973, the President announced that the public housing leasing program would be resumed in a manner which will develop valuable information on a direct cash assistance approach for providing housing assistance to lower-income families. The revised program greatly increases the opportunity for families to make their own housing choices, while enhancing the role of the private housing market. During 1974, HUD will continue to honor all bona fide commitments previously made under the existing public housing programs, provided the projects submitted for approval meet program criteria.

New authorizations for contract approvals covering both bona fide commitments and the revised leasing program are provided at 126,000 units in 1974. These new authorizations together with units previously budgeted in 1974, and carried over from prior years will provide the 173,000 total contract approvals authorized in 1974. In 1975, 200,000 contract approvals are authorized under the revised leasing program. The projected workload and the status of the production program are presented below:

Modernization.—Capital improvements totaling $235 million in 1974 and 1975 will be provided in existing public housing projects through the use of $20 million additional contract authority in each year.

Operating subsidies.—The amounts provided for operating subsidies, $350 million in 1974 and $400 million in 1975, will permit revisions to the present approach for allocating operating subsidies that was implemented on an interim basis on December 1, 1972. The $348 million for operating subsidies in 1973 included $251 million on an annual program basis as well as $97 million to adjust prior year LHA budgets under the terms of the interim policy and the prior reimbursement policy. Adjustments in leasing agreements are included as part of the basic annual contribution for the LHA-leased program. These adjustments are estimated at $19 million in 1974 and $30 million in 1975.

Loans.—Loans are made to LHA's to finance the early costs of project development and modernization and certain administrative requirements. These loans are made with available working funds, and, when necessary, with funds borrowed from the Treasury. Under the Housing Act of 1949, borrowings outstanding at any one time from the Treasury may not exceed $1.5 billion. No outstanding borrowings are anticipated on June 30, 1974, or June 30, 1975.

The number of loans made will substantially decrease in 1975, since the major part of contract approvals will be leased housing which does not require development loans.

Financing.—Loan approvals cover the maximum amount of funds the Department may loan under contract to local housing authorities in developing or modernizing projects. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 authorizes these loans up to 100% of the total project costs. Experience indicates, however, that only a minor portion of Federal loan approvals will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because private financing is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary loans. Accordingly, section 203(b) of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 amended section 20 of the Housing Act of 1937 so that the ceiling on borrowing authority of $1.5 billion applies only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will actually be disbursed and not to Federal approvals which are not expected to result in actual outlays. The Secretary has set the maximum Federal loan exposure factor (i.e., the maximum demand for Federal loans at any one time) at 10% of loan approvals outstanding. The following table shows the status of loan approvals:

When the Federal direct loans to an LHA accumulate to an amount which is attractive to private investors, the authority sells short-term temporary notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make Federal loans, if necessary, covering up to the full development or modernization cost of the project. The notes sold at an average interest rate of 3.4% in 1973.

In 1973, direct Federal loans were refunded through secured loans by private investors in the amount of $622 million. Refunding is estimated at $681 million in 1974 and $631 million in 1975. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods averaging 7.2 months, and may be reissued several times and in increasing amounts before the project or modernization is permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity conducted under the program during any fiscal year greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of that fiscal year. With the implementation of the revised leasing program, development loans will no longer be needed and therefore some decrease in loans and refinancing may be expected. However, significant activity will remain for refinancing notes from prior years approvals.

The following table shows the status of temporary financing and refinancing of production and management loans during 1973 and estimated transactions during 1974 and 1975.

Normally, LHA-owned dwellings are permanently financed at or near completion through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions in sufficient amounts to meet principal and interest payments. In 1973, bonds sold at an average interest rate of 5.1%. As of June 30, 1973, there were approximately 949,000 dwellings potentially eligible for bonding. Of these, approximately 878,000 dwellings had been bonded, leaving approximately 78,200 dwellings to be bonded.

The utilization of funds obtained from bond sales for 1973, 1974, and 1975 follows:

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950 authorized financial assistance to colleges and eligible hospitals for the construction or acquisition of housing and related facilities such as student centers, dining halls, and infirmaries. This assistance was usually provided through debt service grants which reduce the cost of borrowing on the private market. Grants could be made for a period not to exceed 40 years in amounts equal to the difference between the average annual debt service on loans obtained in the private market, and the average annual debt service which would have been required if the loan had been made at a 3% interest rate. Grant payments are provided for in the Housing payments account in the Housing Management section of this chapter.

Normally a private security supported by a debt service grant is sold by the educational institution at the time of construction contract award. In those cases where an institution is unable to obtain funds in the private market, the Department of Housing and Urban Development will ordinarily purchase its bond when construction is well advanced. Direct Federal loan disbursements, pursuant to outstanding loan obligations, are estimated at $30 million in 1974 and $20 million 1975.

Budget program.—This program was discontinued effective January 5, 1973, since the College housing program is an ineffective means of carrying out the President's policy of focusing assistance for higher education on individual students, based on need. Program commitments outstanding at that time will continue to be processed.

The status of outstanding direct loan reservations and obligations is as shown in the following table:

Financing.—Funds for the direct loan program have come primarily through the use of Treasury borrowing authority and from the sale of participation certificates backed by pools of college housing loans held by the Federal Government, as authorized by appropriation acts. The Treasury borrowing authority now totals $3,775 million.

Sales of participation certificates, as provided in the Participation Sales Act of 1966, amounted to $2.2 billion through 1969. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and the interest collections on the college housing bonds underlying the certificates.

The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows:

The direct loan program for housing the elderly or handicapped was established by section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 to provide financial assistance for housing for lower middle-income persons who are elderly or handicapped. This program has been phased out and assistance to the elderly is being provided under other programs.

Financing.—Funds for loans have been provided by appropriations to a revolving fund. Additional financing has been obtained through issuance of certificates of participation in pools of mortgages from this program as provided by the Participation Sales Act of 1966. In order to pay the interest on participation certificates, appropriations are required periodically to make up the difference in the interest rates on the participation certificates and that

The Federal Housing Administration Fund was established pursuant to the National Housing Act of 1934, as amended, which created a system of mortgage and loan insurance programs. The objectives of the programs are: (1) To improve home financing practices; (2) to encourage improved housing standards and conditions; (3) to further homeownership; and (4) to stabilize the mortgage market. These objectives are achieved through the insurance of loans for financing the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties.

For financial purposes, FHA mortgage insurance programs are grouped under four separate insurance funds established by statute. The largest insurance fund is the Mutual mortgage insurance fund for the insurance of mortgage loans on homes under section 203. Mortgagors insured by this fund are allowed, at termination of their mortgages, to share in the rebate of premiums paid into the fund which are not required for expenses or losses.

The Cooperative management housing insurance fund covers the insurance of mortgages on management-type cooperatives and supplementary loans under section 213.

The General insurance fund covers the insurance of loans for property repairs and improvements as well as for basic and special-purpose multifamily housing, including cooperatives, condominiums, and housing for the elderly. Insurance of loans for land development, group practice medical facilities, and nonprofit hospitals are also covered by this fund. In addition, the insurance of supplemental loans for improvements and additions is included in the General insurance fund.

The Special risk insurance fund was created by the Housing Act of 1968 to carry out mortgage insurance obligations in cases where insurance was written on a mortgage covering property in older, declining urban areas which would not otherwise be eligible for mortgage insurance; on behalf of a high-risk mortgagor who would not be eligible for FHA mortgage insurance but who, with counseling, can become an acceptable credit risk; on behalf of a mortgagor receiving interest reduction payments; and on mortgages covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations is not observed.

Income from fees, premiums, and investments is credited to the funds; expenses and losses connected with foreclosed property and defaulted notes and mortgages are charged to the funds. Through June 30, 1973, income had amounted to $6,894 million, and expenses, losses, and distributive share payments to $5,572.7 million, leaving a reserve of $1,321.3 million for the payment of future expenses and losses.

The status by fund of estimated insurance reserves through fiscal year 1975 is as follows:

Budget program.—Budget requirements for mortgage and loan insurance operations are embodied in (1) an administrative expense limitation covering those expenses of the central office related to the provision of administrative management and services for the agency, and (2) a non-administrative expense limitation covering the operating expenses of both the central office and the field related to the initiation of insurance, the maintenance of insurance on the books, and the settlement activities associated with the payment of claims; the acquisition, management, and disposition of mortgages and properties acquired under mortgage insurance contracts; and the liquidation of notes acquired under property improvement insurance contracts.

The Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit is responsible for housing production activities under the mortgage insurance and housing subsidy programs, and for direction of the property improvement program. The Assistant Secretary for Housing Management is responsible for the servicing of insured home and multifamily housing mortgages, for the management and disposition of mortgages and properties acquired under mortgage insurance contracts, and for the administration of contracts for housing subsidy payments. Program developments for 1975 are summarized in the accompanying table of Program Highlights.

Summary of operating expense estimates.—Operating expenses are paid out of operating income, subject to congressional limitation. The 1975 estimate is $13.9 million for administrative expenses and $181.2 million for nonadministrative expenses.

Financing.—Through 1965, insurance claims were met largely by the issuance of debentures, which are subsequently redeemed out of income and proceeds from the sale of acquired properties and mortgages. In 1973 $44.3 million of debentures were issued, and $86.4 million were redeemed. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized FHA to pay claims in cash and to borrow from the Treasury as necessary to do so. Home mortgage claims and multifamily housing claims under sections 220, 221, 233, and 235(j) are now being paid in cash.

The maximum amount permitted by law of $20 million has been transferred from the General insurance fund to the Special risk insurance fund as working capital. Borrowing from the Treasury to pay insurance claims under the Special risk insurance fund will aggregate $1,778 million by the end of 1975. A supplemental appropriation in 1974 is proposed to cover losses of $91,968 thousand through 1973.

Retained earnings.—Insurance reserves, available for the payment of future expenses and losses, amounted to $1,321.3 million at the end of 1973.

Insurance authority.—The authority given to the FHA for its insurance operations was extended by House Joint

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payments for insufficiencies in the amounts required to be paid by the trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are composed primarily of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. A permanent, indefinite appropriation is available to cover insufficiencies for sales authorized in 1967, while those authorized in 1968 require annual appropriations. Use of the indefinite and definite insufficiency appropriations are reflected in the following trustor accounts: College housing fund; Public facility loans; and Government National Mortgage Association, Special assistance functions fund.

Public enterprise funds:

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the Government Corporation Control Act.

Through September 30, 1968, this fund purchased and sold preferred stock in the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and made loans to it as needed to support its operations involving the purchase of federally insured or guaranteed mortgages. On that date, the Association redeemed all preferred stock and became a private corporation owned by its common stockholders. All authority for investment in preferred stock of the corporation lapsed.

The fund is still authorized to make loans to the Association. Such loans were made in the first few months of the Association's existence as a private corporation while it arranged lines of credit with commercial banks. No loans have been made since that time and the loan authority will be used only in emergency situations.

The Association is authorized to make commitments to purchase and to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages totaling $7,750.2 million at any one time. Of this, $5,543.1 million is currently available to the President to provide special assistance, as may be in the public interest, for financing (1) selected types of home mortgages pending establishment of their marketability, and (2) home mortgages generally as a means of stabilizing home building activities and of contributing to overall economic stability. In addition, specific assistance programs have been authorized by the Congress in the amount of $2,207.1 million for cooperative housing mortgages, low- and moderate-income housing mortgages and a phased-out program for military housing mortgages.

Budget program.—Special assistance activity is of two principal types: (1) Commitments which are expected to mature into purchase of mortgages which will be held in GNMA portfolio; and (2) commitments under the tandem plans which will be sold to private investors.

No new commitments to purchase portfolio mortgages are budgeted for 1974 and 1975.

Tandem plan commitments are budgeted at $7.1 billion in 1974 and $2.02 billion in 1975 for (1) activity during 1974 in previously established tandem plans for subsidized and unsubsidized mortgages and $20 million for the Guam plan in 1975 and, further, for (2) a new tandem plan for unsubsidized mortgage loans. This new plan will finance construction of 200,000 single-family and multi-family housing units amounting to $6 billion during calendar year 1974.

It is estimated that half of the units involved will be in single-family and the other half in projects. It is also estimated that $4 billion of the commitments will occur in 1974 with the balance in 1975. The exact distribution between single-family and projects as well as between fiscal years will depend upon market conditions, including demand.

Purchases by GNMA are estimated at $1.7 billion in 1974 and $4.0 billion in 1975. Of these mortgages, $1.6 billion will be sold to private investors in 1974 and $4.0 billion will be sold in 1975. Other portfolio sales are estimated to net $200 million in 1975.

Purchases of below-market interest rate mortgages during 1974 are estimated at $131.6 million. No further commitments or purchases are contemplated.

Financing.—Funds for the mortgage loan portfolio are obtained from mortgage principal liquidations and through borrowings from the Treasury. A portion of the mortgage portfolio is financed by participation certificate sales, which amounted to $1.2 billion in prior years and for which there is a remaining liability of $721.5 million offset by $128.7 million on deposit with the trustee in anticipation of scheduled retirements. Funds for operating costs, mainly interest expenses and tandem point allowances, are obtained primarily from mortgage investment earnings and from appropriations for deficiencies between the interest expense on participation certificates and the income from related mortgage interest and investment earnings.

Operating results.—Losses of $25.7 million have been restored by appropriations for participation certificate interest deficiencies. After offsetting a reserve of $115.2 million, the remaining loss is now carried as impairment to capital in the amount of $278.8 million through 1973, and a supplemental appropriation is being proposed to restore this capital impairment in 1974.

Because of the continued higher interest rates of Treasury borrowings and participation certificate borrowings over mortgage portfolio interest rates, operations are expected to result in net expenses exceeding income, and losses are estimated at $257.9 million in 1974 and $383.3 million in 1975.

Appropriations for insufficiencies under the Participation sales fund will restore $9.2 million of the 1974 losses and $8.5 million of the 1975 losses.

The following table shows the derivation and financing of the interest insufficiencies on outstanding participation certificates:

mortgages as rapidly as they can be absorbed by private investors without serious disruption of normal market conditions, and as the result of other principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The initial mortgage portfolio in this activity consisted of mortgages on hand at, or purchased under contracts made before, November 1, 1954. Certain additional mortgages, loans, and other obligations may be acquired for this portfolio from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and residential housing mortgages may also be acquired from any Federal instrumentality.

Budget program.—It is not expected that any purchase of mortgages under these functions will be made during 1974 or 1975.

Sales of mortgages in the net amount of $100 million are estimated for 1975.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations and sales of participations in mortgage pools. Net repayments to the Treasury are estimated at $4.7 million in 1974 and $75.5 million in 1975.

Transfers of principal repayments on pooled mortgages to the Participation sales fund for repayment of participation certificates of $62.8 million and $57 million are expected in 1974 and 1975 respectively.

Operating results.—Net income of $1.2 million is estimated for 1974 and a net loss of $22.4 million is estimated for 1975. The following table shows the financing of the insufficiencies:

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on trust certificates or other securities issued by any financial institution approved for this purpose, and based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of FHA-insured or VA guaranteed mortgages.

Securities outstanding.....	9,219,400	12,417,700	15,758,900

Financing.—In addition to an application fee, guarantee fees and other charges will be assessed issuers of guaranteed securities to cover costs incurred by GNMA in connection with the guarantees and to establish a reserve against possible future payments of claims under the guarantee.

Operating results.—No claims are anticipated. Fee collections and other expenses are expected to exceed expenses by $8.1 million by 1975. This amount will be retained to cover future year expenses and as a reserve against losses.

The National Housing Act, as amended, authorized the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to create trusts to facilitate the financing of mortgages and other loan obligations owned by Government agencies. Under this authority, the Association sold to private investors participations in the interest and principal collections on pooled loan obligations pledged by various trustor agencies.

Sales of certificates of participation in those pools were shown as borrowings from the public in the budget schedules of the trustor agencies originally owning the loan obligations. Collections on the pooled obligations are transferred to GNMA as trustee and invested by the Participation sales fund until distributed to the holders of participation certificates in accordance with the terms of the trust agreement. At that time, they are transferred to trustor agencies for payment of interest and retirement of certificates.

A total of four separate trusts have been created. The amount of participation certificates originally issued under each is as follows:

Trust	Certificates issued (in millions)
Government mortgage liquidation trust.....	$1,790
Small business obligations trust.....	350
Federal assets liquidation trust.....	3,230
Federal assets financing trust.....	4,250

For purposes of budget presentation, the operations of these four trusts are combined into a single set of schedules.

The assets pooled in these trusts were pledged by the Veterans Administration, the Small Business Administration, the Department of Agriculture, and the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, as well as the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Small Business Obligations Trust was liquidated in 1971.

Whenever interest collections on pooled mortgages and other loan obligations together with investment income are insufficient to cover required interest payments and a share of administrative and other costs, the trustor agencies pay to the Association, as trustee, amounts equal to the insufficiencies. The costs of any such insufficiencies are covered by appropriations which appear in the accounts of the trustor agencies or by balances available in those accounts.

In the event the principal collections on pooled loans are not sufficient to meet scheduled retirements of participation certificates, GNMA, as trustee, may either borrow from the Treasury or sell additional certificates to redeem those coming due. Alternatively, those trustor accounts with unobligated balances available may repurchase pooled loans to provide the cash required for scheduled redemptions. This latter course was used in 1973.

In 1973, the Veterans Administration loan guarantee and direct loan funds repurchased $168 million and the College Housing Fund $29 million.

This appropriation provides for payments required by contract in the following housing subsidy programs: rent supplement, homeownership assistance (section 235), rental housing assistance (section 236), low-rent public housing, and college housing. With the exception of low-rent public housing, authority to enter into the underlying contracts is approved in appropriation acts. Authority to enter into contracts under the low-rent public housing program is available without appropriation action.

These programs were suspended on January 5, 1973, pending a comprehensive evaluation of Federal policies for providing housing assistance. This evaluation found these programs to be seriously defective in dealing with the basic problem of housing low-income families which is inadequate income. The college housing program was halted since it is an ineffective means of carrying out the President's policy of focusing assistance for higher education on individual students, based on need.

On September 19, 1973, the President announced that the low-rent public housing leasing program would be resumed in a manner which will develop valuable information on a direct cash assistance approach for providing housing assistance to lower income families. The revised program will maximize the opportunity for families to make their own housing choices, while enhancing the role of the private housing market.

During 1974, commitments for additional projects will be made under the rent supplement, homeownership assistance, and rental housing assistance program, as necessary to meet bona fide commitments which cannot be met under the revised public housing leasing programs. No new project commitments will be made under the college housing program. The activity levels of these programs are shown in the Housing Production and Mortgage Credit section of this chapter.

The cumulative contract authority shown in the following tables represents an annual limitation on the total obligations that may be incurred to make annual housing payments. Most contracts obligate the Federal Government to make annual housing payments up to the contract amount over the life of the project or a mortgage. Since payments usually commence near or upon completion of the dwelling, the annual payments do not begin to reach the maximum amounts approved until 1 to 4 years after approval of the contracts.

Contracts for units of production are approved by the Assistant Secretary for Housing Production and Mortgage Credit. The Assistant Secretary for Housing Management is responsible for the management of all assisted housing when completed and for making required subsidy payments resulting from the contractual commitments entered into during the production phase of the five programs. In addition, he is responsible for providing low-rent public housing operating subsidies to local authorities (LHA's) and for administering and funding the low-rent public housing modernization program.

1. Rent supplement.—Payments are made pursuant to contracts under section 101 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 which authorizes the Secretary of HUD to pay rent supplements to owners of certain private housing rented to low-income tenants.

The following table presents the units eligible for payment and the amount needed to make those payments.

The increase in payments primarily reflects a rise in the number of units eligible for subsidy resulting from outstanding program reservations (dollars in thousands):

Units eligible for payment.....	118,184	154,000	190,000
Cumulative contract authority commitment.....	$230,536	$269,836	$269,836
Obligations.....	$108,143	$146,000	$192,000

2. Homeownership assistance.—Payments are made pursuant to contracts under section 235 of the National Housing Act, as amended. Under this program, the Federal Government makes periodic payments on behalf of lower income families purchasing their own homes thereby reducing the homeowner's monthly payment.

The following table sets forth the units eligible for payment and the amount needed to make those payments. The increase in required payments primarily reflects the increase in the number of units eligible for subsidy resulting from outstanding program reservations (dollars in thousands):

Units eligible for payment.....	411,670	468,000	504,000
Cumulative contract authority commitment.....	$415,346	$445,346	$445,346
Obligations.....	$278,416	$338,000	$374,000

3. Rental housing assistance.—Interest reduction payments are made pursuant to section 236 of the National Housing Act, as amended. These periodic payments on behalf of the owner of the project are passed on to lower income families occupying the units in the form of reduced rent.

The following table sets forth the units eligible for payment and the amount needed to make those payments. The increase in required payments reflects the rise in the number of units eligible for subsidy resulting from outstanding program reservations (dollars in thousands):

Units eligible for payment.....	191,261	313,000	452,000
Cumulative contract authority commitment.....	$496,214	$648,414	$640,614
Obligations.....	$171,902	$260,000	$365,000

4. Low-rent public housing.—Annual contribution contracts are entered into pursuant to the U.S. Housing Act of 1973, as amended. The housing is owned or leased and operated by local housing authorities (LHA's) created under State law. Contractual payments are made by the Federal Government pursuant to contracts executed with the LHA's.

Operating subsidies are provided to assist local housing authorities to meet their operating costs. The amounts provided for operating subsidies, $350 million in 1974 and $400 million in 1975, will permit revisions to the present approach for allocating operating subsidies that was implemented on an interim basis on December 1, 1972. The $348 million for operating subsidies in 1973 included $251 million on an annual program basis as well as $97 million to adjust prior year LHA budgets under the terms of the interim policy and the prior reimbursement policy. Adjustments in leasing agreements are included as part of the basic annual contribution for the LHA-leased program. These adjustments are estimated at $19 million in 1974 and $30 million in 1975. Under the modernization program, the $127.4 million in annual contributions contract authority approved through 1975 should support an estimated $1,525 billion in capital improvements to low-rent public housing projects.

The following table summarizes the annual contribution payments required in 1975 as compared with 1973 and 1974 (dollars in thousands):

Number of dwellings eligible for annual contributions during the year.....	1,047,000	1,128,000	1,205,000
Debt service annual contributions for:
LHA-owned dwellings.....	$547,137	$621,000	$691,000
Modernization program.....	$48,000	$87,000	$107,000
Amounts available to reduce debt service annual contributions.....	-$7,354	-$10,000	-$10,000
Subtotal, debt service annual contributions, net.....	$587,783	$698,000	$788,000
Basic annual contributions for:
LHA leased dwellings.....	$165,658	$203,000	$221,000
Revised leasing program.....		$12,000	$64,000
Annual contribution contract requirements, net.....	$753,441	$913,000	$1,123,000
Operating subsidies.....	$348,369	$350,000	$400,000
Total requirements for annual contributions.....	$1,101,810	$1,263,000	$1,473,000
Cumulative contract authority approved	$1,537,451	$1,885,736	$2,396,736

The increase in annual contributions requirements from $1,263 million in 1974 to $1,523 million in 1975 is attributable largely to an increased number of dwellings eligible for annual contributions resulting from the completion or permanent financing of projects, and the increased requirements resulting from financing the cost of modernization of existing structures and dwellings.

5. College housing grants.—Payments under this program result from contracts entered into pursuant to title IV of the Housing Act of 1950, as amended, which authorizes payment of debt service grants to colleges and eligible hospitals. Grant payments are paid semiannually starting with the first interest payment date on the outstanding private loan following the date of initial occupancy of the project. The following table summarizes the debt service grants required in 1975 as compared with 1973 and 1974. The increase in requirements reflects the rise in the number of facilities eligible for grants during this period based on outstanding program reservations (in thousands of dollars):

Cumulative contract authority commitments.....	27,082	26,082	26,082
Obligations.....	5,963	13,000	21,000

The community disposition program was established by the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955 to dispose of federally owned properties at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Richland, Wash., and by amendment in 1963 at Los Alamos, N. Mex.

Budget program.—All sales under the program have been completed. Mortgage servicing of the inventory of mortgages currently held by the Secretary will continue.

Operating results.—The deficit in the fund is expected to decrease from $15.3 million at the end of 1974 to $15 million at the end of 1975. Funds recovered and transferred to the Treasury are estimated to aggregate $81.4 million by the end of 1975.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund for the deposit of section 236 rental housing assistance rental charges collected in excess of the basic rents. These excess rental collections will be paid to the Housing payments account periodically as required for use in funding interest reduction payments. In 1975, $29 million of the estimated funds available will be used for such payment. Funds not needed for current operations are invested.

Under the Disaster Relief Act of 1970, the Department is authorized to use its own funds and resources to respond to Federal Disaster Assistance Administration mission assignments in Presidentially declared disasters. Such mission assignments are normally to finance the provision and management of temporary housing for persons displaced by disasters.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development; Space, Science, Veterans, and Certain Other Independent Agencies Appropriation Act of 1973 authorized the Secretary to establish a fund to initially finance the provision and management of temporary housing for persons displaced by disasters when HUD is required to make its resources available to carry out such mission assignments. This fund provides such financing prior to obtaining reimbursement from funds appropriated to the President for disaster relief. After the fund has been reimbursed, the contributing accounts would be repaid, although sufficient balances would be retained to enable the Department to provide emergency housing promptly.

Through 1973 funds were transferred from the following accounts to finance these emergency operations (dollars in millions):

Housing for the elderly or handicapped fund.....	$63
College housing fund.....	20
Revolving fund (liquidating programs).....	13
Total.....	96

The level of obligations in this fund is expected to substantially diminish in 1974 and 1975 allowing repayment of $20 million to the college housing fund.

A $76 million balance is being retained in this account to allow for prompt response in case of major emergency.

The Better Communities Act now under consideration by the Congress would authorize the allocation of funds to State and local governments for local community development purposes beginning July 1, 1974. Metropolitan cities and urban counties would be entitled to direct funding according to a formula based on factors of population, overcrowded housing, and poverty. "Metropolitan cities" are the central cities of Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) or cities of 50,000 population or more. "Urban counties" are counties of 200,000 or more, excluding the population of metropolitan cities. Nonmetropolitan cities will receive direct funding only when they have been participants in HUD's model cities, urban renewal, or neighborhood development programs.

Nonmetropolitan cities would be eligible for funding through funds to be made available to the States on the basis of population and other criteria relating to the SMSA's located within each State. States will establish their own procedures for distribution of funds to local governments (regardless of population size) with a requirement that at least one-half of State discretionary funds attributable to a particular SMSA be distributed to localities located within such SMSA.

A wide range of physical, economic, and social community development activities would be eligible for assistance under this program including: (1) acquisition of real property; (2) development of open space lands; (3) construction of basic public facilities; (4) rehabilitation of residential and commercial properties; (5) support of community services (health, recreation, manpower, economic development, etc.); (6) relocation of people and businesses displaced by community development activities; and (7) elimination of harmful physical conditions that endanger health or public safety.

Activities actually undertaken would be on the basis of local priorities since the Federal Government will not prescribe how cities should use their BCA funds. There would be no State or local matching requirement for receipt of these funds.

The budget reflects an estimate of $560 million in outlays during the first year of the program. However, the actual outlays will be governed by the rate at which cities utilize the amounts which have been made available to them.

Appropriation language has been proposed to make possible the prompt implementation of the program. The language, when enacted, would enable the Department to move quickly, provided authorizing legislation has been enacted.

Section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended, authorizes grants (normally two-thirds) to supplement State and local programs for the purpose of financing comprehensive planning and management programs concerned with urban and rural development.

Grants will continue to be made under this authorization in 1974. However, upon enactment of the Responsive Governments Act now under consideration by the Congress, the Department will make grants for planning and management assistance under the new program. The purpose of this new legislation is to increase the capacity of States, general purpose local governments, combinations of such units, and other eligible recipients (including Indian reservations) to plan and manage available financial, technical and human resources. Amounts appropriated under section 701 would be available for carrying out activities under the new program.

Budget plan.—During 1974 the current section 701 program is being administered to encourage greater State participation in the planning and management program. In 1975, using this approach, States will have the opportunity to suballocate to the various eligible recipients representing States, units of local general governments (including cities over 50,000 population) and metropolitan and nonmetropolitan agencies. Safeguards will be provided to insure equity in the ultimate distribution of the funds.

Under the model cities program, participating cities receive financial and technical assistance intended to help them plan, develop, and carry out demonstration programs for improving urban living conditions. Cities participating in the program now number 145.

The model cities program is being phased out during 1974, and no appropriation is requested for this program in 1975. The 1974 program in the amount of $75 million will facilitate the transition to the Better Communities Act now under consideration by the Congress and proposed for implementation on July 1, 1974.

All cities participating in the model cities program will be eligible for assistance in 1975 under the Better Communities Act program and will be able to continue their local model city activities, at their own option, using the Better Communities Act funds available to them.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as amended, authorizes the Secretary to make grants to local public bodies and agencies for basic water and sewer facilities other than waste treatment works.

The water and sewer program was terminated in fiscal year 1973 and no new commitments will be made in 1974 and 1975. The types of activities formerly eligible for assistance under the water and sewer grant program will continue to be eligible under the Better Communities Act now under consideration by the Congress and proposed for implementation on July 1, 1974.

Public enterprise funds:

URBAN RENEWAL

Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes Federal assistance to local public agencies for rehabilitation and redevelopment of slums and blighted areas.

During 1974, grant commitments in the amount of $322.5 million will be used principally to complete projects approved in prior years; to fund certain project amendments; and to fund interest costs not covered with prior year funds. No new projects will be approved in 1974.

No appropriation is requested for this program and no new commitments will be made in 1975. The types of activities formerly eligible for assistance under the program will continue to be eligible under the Better Communities Act now under consideration by the Congress and proposed for implementation on July 1, 1974.

【URBAN RENEWAL PROGRAMS】

【For grants for urban renewal, fiscal year 1974, as an additional amount for urban renewal programs, as authorized by title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.), and section 314 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1452a), $600,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of any appropriation in this Act shall be used for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for grants aggregating more than the total of amounts available in the current year from the amounts authorized for making such commitments through June 30, 1967, plus the additional amounts appropriated therefor.】

The Housing Amendments of 1955, as amended, authorize the Secretary to help finance public facilities construction with Federal long-term loans, when credit to support such projects is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. Loans may be made to municipalities and other political subdivisions (including Indian tribes) having populations under 50,000.

Budget program.—The program was terminated in 1973, and no new loan commitments will be made in 1974 and 1975.

Financing.—The public facility loan program has been funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization totaling $600 million. In the past, the Secretary has sold certificates of participation in pools of public facility loans, as authorized by Public Law 89-429. Funds are appropriated annually to cover the difference between interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the public facility loans underlying the certificates. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Sales authorized in the 1968 appropriation act (definite appropriation).....	1,846	1,100	2,810

Operating results and financial condition.—The estimated net operating loss of $2.1 million in the budget year brings the cumulative deficit in 1975 to $19.4 million of which $17.6 million represents allowance for losses on loans receivable. No restoration of capital impairment will be necessary during the period covered by this budget.

New community assistance grants are authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, and the HUD Act of 1970 as amended. Grants are authorized to supplement public facilities grants provided to new community projects under other Federal programs.

The new community assistance grants program was terminated on June 30, 1973, and no additional grant reservations will be made by the Department for this program. New communities may finance facilities under the new communities fund guarantee program described below. Additional assistance to new communities may also be provided under other existing Federal grant programs.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, and title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970, as amended, authorized several programs offering assistance to private and public new community developers. The major area of Federal support is a program of Federal guarantees under which the Secretary is authorized to guarantee the bonds, debentures, notes, and other obligations issued by or on behalf of private and public new community developers to finance land assembly and development costs. Federal guarantees of obligations issued by developers may not exceed $50 million for each new community project.

Guarantee commitments under current policies are projected for three new communities in 1974 and four in 1975. Related guarantee commitment amounts are projected at $125 million in 1974, and $170 million in 1975. Included within these totals are $20 million for additional offers of commitment on previously approved projects in 1974, and $30 million in 1975.

The objectives and management of the new communities program are currently under review. Upon completion of the review, changes in these commitment levels may be made.

Guarantee commitments of $45 million for two projects were made under title IV authority; all subsequent guarantee commitments are made under the original $500 million title VII authority and the additional $195.5 million provided in Public Law 93-117. The following table shows the use of available title VII guarantee authority (in thousands of dollars):

Budget program.—1. Appraisals and consultant fees.—These are costs incurred for analyses and technical services, including land appraisals, for both on-going new community development projects and new applications.

2. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of carrying out this program. Prior to 1975, these administrative expenses were provided out of appropriated funds.

Financing.—Developers receiving guarantees are charged fees, which are the primary source of income to the fund; they may be used for payments to cover default on guaranteed obligations. Treasury borrowings and appropriations for guarantee payments are authorized, if required.

Operating results.—Net operating income is estimated at $4,743 thousand in 1974 and $3,703 thousand in 1975.

The National insurance development fund provides the funding source for two Government programs designed to increase availability of property insurance: (1) the FAIR plan/riot reinsurance program, designed to afford reasonable access to essential property insurance in urban areas and to provide a degree of protection to primary insurers cooperating in such plans against excess losses from riots or civil disorders; and (2) the Federal crime insurance program, which makes insurance against burglary and robbery available at affordable premium rates in States where such coverage is not available in the private market. The programs are authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended.

The FAIR plan/riot reinsurance program encompasses cooperative action by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government. First, private insurers, working together and with the State insurance authority, establish a plan to provide property owners in urban areas with access to property insurance. The plan, usually referred to as the State FAIR (fair access to insurance requirements) plan, must meet specified statutory and regulatory criteria. Second, each State must enact legislation providing for a sharing of the insured losses resulting from riots and civil disorders. Third, the Federal Government provides an opportunity to spread the risk of riot and civil disorder loss on a nationwide basis through reinsurance of private carriers at premium charges deemed adequate to meet expected losses. Periodic examinations of FAIR plans are conducted to assure that the benefits of Federal riot reinsurance are available only to participants in FAIR plans which meet statutory and regulatory criteria.

The Federal crime insurance program provides for issuance of direct policies of insurance covering losses from burglary, robbery, and similar occurrences. Policies are issued through the facilities of private insurance companies. Insurance is written at premium rates determined to be affordable (a rate which would permit the purchase of a specific type of insurance by a reasonably prudent person in similar circumstances with due regard to the costs and benefits involved). Policies include appropriate deductible provisions and are available only on properties that meet underwriting requirements.

Budget program.—1. Riot reinsurance claims.—The amount which the Federal Government pays under the riot and civil disorder reinsurance is expected to continue at a low level.

2. Crime insurance.—(a) Insurance claims.—Claims are estimated at approximately 80% of direct earned crime insurance premiums, a substantially higher ratio than in the private crime insurance market, but at the same time reflecting loss-preventive measures and policy terms and conditions.

(b) Operating expenses.—Expenses incurred by private insurance companies acting as fiscal agents for the Government are paid under competitively awarded contracts. Estimated volume of activity is as follows (dollars in thousands):

	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Number of policies written.....	25,000	30,000
Amount of direct written premium.....	$3,000	$3,600
Number of losses.....	3,250	3,900

3. Studies and surveys.—This item includes expenses of continuing reviews of market availability of basic property insurance and of crime insurance, as required by law.

4. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost to the Government of operating the programs.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $250 million from the Treasury to carry out the reinsurance and direct insurance programs. It is estimated that claims and expenses can continue to be paid from premium income and income from holdings of Government securities. Thus no appropriations are recommended.

Operating results.—It is expected that in 1974 and 1975, as in prior years, premium and investment income will exceed claims and expenses, permitting continued growth in reserves of the fund.

Net losses of the crime insurance program, estimated at $771 thousand in 1974 and $832 thousand in 1975, will be funded on an interim basis by the reserves of the riot reinsurance program.

Note.—This statement excludes unfunded contingent liabilities under the insurance and reinsurance programs. Under the crime insurance program, the probability of loss is believed to be within the limits of actuarial tolerance. Although the possible exposure under the reinsurance program is extensive, the occurrence of multiple catastrophic civil disorders resulting in large claims is extremely unlikely.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 authorizes a cooperative program by the Federal Government and the private insurance industry to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Coverage is available on residential, business, agricultural, private nonprofit, and local and State government property. Amendments adopted in 1973 increase the amounts of coverage available for individual properties so that single-family residential structures may be insured for as much as $70 thousand and other structures for as much as $200 thousand. Available flood insurance must be purchased for projects with federally related financing in identified flood-prone areas.

Private insurance companies sell and service the flood insurance policies written under this program, pursuant to a contractual agreement between the Federal Government and the National Flood Insurers Association. Companies participating in the association as risk-bearers commit risk capital and share in the operating expenses and profits or losses of the program. Other companies participate on a non-risk-bearing basis, acting as fiscal agents for the pool.

In order to provide insurance coverage at reasonable premium rates on existing property, the Federal Government makes premium equalization payments to the pool to cover a portion of total losses and operating costs. These subsidy payments are based upon the relationship between the estimated full-cost actuarial premium rate and the premium rate actually charged in the regular program, or upon a contractual formula in the emergency program.

As part of the flood insurance program the Government also provides reinsurance coverage to the industry pool.

Under the permanent flood insurance program, studies must be made of differential flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish appropriate premium rates on a sound actuarial basis, and these rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Limited amounts of coverage may be made available to properties started before December 31, 1974, or the effective date of the initial flood insurance map, whichever is later, at the subsidized reduced premium rate. An emergency program, first authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1969 and currently due to expire on December 31, 1975, permits insurance up to these limited amounts of coverage at the subsidized chargeable premium rate without prior studies to determine actuarial rates.

Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate land-use and land-management measures designed to reduce future flood losses. After July 1, 1975, no federally related financing may be made available for acquisition or construction purposes in a flood-prone area unless the community is in the program. The act provides local consultation and appeal procedures.

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—The Government's share of the allowable costs of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $7,500 thousand in 1975, based on 75% of the total costs to the flood insurer's pool.

2. Loss and adjustment expense.—The Federal Government's share of insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expenses is estimated at $40,500 thousand in 1975 using the above percentage.

3. Interest expense.—Interest is incurred on borrowings from the Treasury needed to defray Federal underwriting and loss expense payments in excess of reinsurance premium income and amounts made available as trust and deposit liabilities.

4. Studies and surveys.—A 1973 amendment to the act provides for accelerated identification of all areas having special flood hazards. It is anticipated that 1,500 surveys of areas of special flood hazard will be initiated in 1975. Detailed studies of elevation, used to determine actuarial rates, are expected to total 1,200 in 1975. These studies are conducted by other Federal agencies or private contractors.

5. Administration.—The administrative costs to the Federal Government of carrying out the flood insurance program are estimated at $3,050 thousand in 1975.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $500 million to carry out the program and this limit may be increased to $1 billion with the approval of the President and notification to Congress. Borrowings are estimated to total $38,178 thousand by the end of 1975. A supplemental appropriation is requested in 1974 to cover claims in excess of premiums through June 30, 1972.

The program is also financed through reinsurance receipts and from excess operating surpluses in favorable years. Administrative expenses and costs of studies and surveys are paid from appropriated funds.

Operating results.—Cumulative expenses are expected to exceed revenue and receipts from non-Federal sources by approximately $147 million by the end of 1975. The cumulative deficit will have been financed by cumulative appropriations of $82 million and charges against borrowing authorization of approximately $65 million.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides greater protection to the public in connection with the purchase or lease of subdivision lots. Statements of record must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions containing 50 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, not exceeding $1 thousand, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. These fees may be used by the Secretary to pay costs of services under the act. During the past year, 4,760 registration statements, exemption advisory opinions, and claims of exemption affirmations were processed and fees totaling $783 thousand were received. Filings are estimated at 5,800 and 6,800 in 1974 and 1975, producing about $990 thousand and $1,220 thousand in fees during each of these years.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 directs the Secretary to undertake programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to the HUD mission. These functions may be carried out through grants to and contracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, educational institutions, and through agreements with State and local governments and other Federal agencies.

1. Contracts and grants.—The direct cash assistance program is a priority experiment continuing in 1975 to test the feasibility of providing direct assistance to needy families for making rental or homeownership payments, as opposed to less direct subsidy mechanisms. The program tests how families use their assistance, how the housing market responds, and how a cash assistance program can most effectively be administered.

The overall 1975 program also provides for continuation of: The program to develop, implement, and test improvements in the management and maintenance of public housing, including national dissemination of the results; the application and dissemination of techniques to lower or stabilize the cost of housing; a program to analyze the problems of neighborhood decline and evaluate promising approaches toward neighborhood preservation; programs to increase housing safety and security, including research and development of standards for fire safety and lead-based paint hazard elimination; programs for supporting development of activities which will strengthen State and local governments, programs for improving the community environment and conserving natural resources, including demonstration of an integrated utility system of greater energy efficiency and less negative environmental impact than conventional systems. Operation Breakthrough is essentially completed and evaluation of its impact is under way.

In 1975, ongoing evaluation will continue of the need for, efficacy, equity and efficiency of HUD programs to support the coordinated development of HUD policy. Continued collection and analysis of economic and financial data essential to HUD policy and program development and evaluation is also planned. The largest single project in this area is the annual housing survey, undertaken to measure changes in housing inventory and to compile data on the physical condition of housing units and the characteristics of the occupants in both urban and rural areas.

2. Administrative expenses.—Beginning in 1975, administrative expenses for the cost of general planning, supervision, and direction of the research program are proposed in a separate appropriation for "Salaries and expenses, policy development and research programs," described elsewhere in this section.

This appropriation finances the cost of administering the equal opportunity programs of the Department, including the development and implementation of standard regulations and procedures as required by law and by Executive orders; and the administration of the national fair housing program.

The Department is assigned equal opportunity responsibilities by: (1) Title VIII of the Civil Rights Act of 1968, which established fair housing as the national policy and makes discrimination in housing unlawful; (2) Executive Order 11063, which prohibits discrimination in the sale or rental of federally assisted housing; (3) title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits discrimination in Federal assistance programs; (4) Executive Order 11246, which prohibits the denial of equal employment opportunity by federally assisted contractors and subcontractors; (5) Executive Order 11478, which prohibits the denial of equal employment opportunity in Department employment and requires a continuing affirmative action program; and (6) section 3 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, which requires that (a) opportunities for training and employment in HUD-assisted housing shall be given to lower income persons residing in the area of such housing and (b) contracts for work to be performed pursuant to such programs shall be awarded to business concerns located in or owned in substantial part by persons residing in the area of such housing. The Assistant Secretary for Equal Opportunity is responsible for coordinating the Department's effort to encourage minority enterprise.

The increase in funds in 1975 would provide for alleviating the temporary backlog of complaints under the fair housing program.

The Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes grants in support of research, development, and demonstration projects focusing on the relationship of urban transportation systems to the comprehensively planned development of urban areas. Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1968 transferred all but sections 6, 9, and 11 of the 1964 Act from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to the Department of Transportation (DOT). Subsequent to this, both agencies agreed that DOT shall have the responsibility for administering sections 6, 9, and 11 as well. Pursuant to this agreement, the unobligated balances of the 1969 appropriation have been allocated to DOT. The budget anticipates the use of $1,976 thousand in 1974 to complete funding of projects jointly agreed to by DOT and HUD.

The Working capital fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, administrative services which can be performed more efficiently on a centralized basis.

Budget program.—The main activities financed by the fund are printing and reproduction, visual arts, central supply, communications, and data processing. The printing and reproduction activity provides centralized services for all departmental printing, reproduction and distribution. The visual arts activity provides Washington controlled photographic and design services along with preparation of visual presentations, displays, exhibits, illustrated visual aids, and administrative graphics (charts, maps, diagrams, etc.). The central supply activity handles all procurement, develops programs for storage of supplies and equipment, maintains teleticketing travel services for all Washington personnel and maintains in-house capability for limited office machine servicing and furniture and equipment repair. The communications activity includes costs of the Federal Telecommunications System, penalty mail, and the Washington correspondence, mail, and messenger functions. The data processing activity includes complete ADP service to program operations and to such administrative functions as departmental payroll, personnel, finance and accounting, budgeting, nonexpendable property inventories, and related common services.

The increased obligations in the Working capital fund reflect primarily (a) increased penalty mail costs and costs of the Federal Telecommunications System, and (b) increased data processing services. Some field operations are in the process of being automated, resulting in increased obligations for communications and processing facilities.

Financing.—No appropriation is required in 1975.

Operating results.—The Working capital fund is operated on a nonprofit basis, with charges for services calculated to return approximately the cost of operations. Relatively minor profits and losses on this basis have produced net retained income of $57 thousand through 1973. Adjusted charges will eventually eliminate this balance of retained earnings.

The Consolidated working fund has been used for the administration of Integrated grant administration pilot projects for which HUD will be the lead agency. Obligations are based on project approvals by Federal regional councils and fund commitments by participating agencies. As projects proceed, drawdowns against letters of credit issued from the Consolidated working fund are charged against participating agency funds.

It is anticipated that all projects begun in 1972 and 1973 will be completed by the end of 1974.

TITLE IV—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. Where appropriations in titles I and II of this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration; or to payments to interagency motor pools where separately set forth in the budget schedules.

SEC. 402. Appropriations and funds available for the administrative expenses of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Selective Service System shall be available in the current fiscal year for purchase of uniforms, or allowances thereof, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901–5902); hire of passenger motor vehicles; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 403. Funds made available for the Department of Housing and Urban Development under title III of this Act shall be available, without regard to the limitations on administrative expenses, for legal services on a contract or fee basis, and for utilizing and making payment for services and facilities of Federal National Mortgage Association or Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Reserve banks or any member thereof, Federal home loan banks, and any insured bank within the meaning of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1811–1831).

SEC. 404. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used for payment, through grants or contracts, to recipients that do not share in the cost of conducting research resulting from proposals for projects not specifically solicited by the Government: Provided, That the extent of cost sharing by the recipient shall reflect the mutuality of interest of the grantee or contractor and the Government in the research.

【SEC. 405. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, not to exceed $425,000 of the amount herein made available for the Federal Communications Commission may be used for land and structures.】

SEC. 【406】 405. No part of any appropriations contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein. (Department of Housing and Urban Development; Space, Science, and Certain Other Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

LAND AND WATER RESOURCES

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the conservation, management, and development of some 450 million acres of the Nation's public lands, including 278 million acres in Alaska.

In addition, the Bureau administers mining and mineral leasing on other federally owned lands, on former Federal lands where minerals have been reserved in public ownership and on the submerged lands of the Outer Continental Shelf.

The work of the Bureau produces revenue from various sources. These revenues are distributed as follows (in millions of dollars):

1. Resource management, conservation, and protection.—Includes such activities as land and mineral management, range management, forestry, soil and watershed conservation, protection, and recreation and wildlife. These activities provide realty, leasing, and records services as well as related land classification and mineral examination work; utilization of rangelands by livestock to help meet local and regional demands for livestock forage; a sustained yield of timber to help meet demands for wood products; management and treatment practices needed to maintain and improve water quality, reduce flood damage, and prevent and control erosion from BLM lands; contract and force account wildfire protection for public land resources; fish and wildlife habitat management and improvement; and recreation management, planning and site investigation on Bureau administered lands.

Proposed increased funding is required to assure development of public land energy resources; to provide for OCS environmental assessment; to safeguard surface resources subject to damage because of mineral leasing and exploration; to help insure that advanced consideration for the environment is given to energy allocation decisions; to provide full year funding for Alaska Pipeline construction supervision, to develop sound land use plans to guide the development of energy minerals and related land uses; to carry out the requirements of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act; to adopt a sustained yield public domain timber harvest plan and increase the supply of timber; to manage recreation visitor use and protect affected resources; to carry out provisions of the Wild Horse and Burro Act; to provide for the increased costs of employees compensation; and pay a pro rata share of space costs.

2. Cadastral survey.—In Alaska, surveys are performed on lands selected by the State for transfer under the Alaska Statehood Act, for native townsites, for native allotments, for additional claims resulting from the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, and for other special purposes.

In other States surveys are performed to obtain positive land identification as a prerequisite to resource management and improvement. Resurveys are often required to reestablish lost corners. Increases will be used to expand cadastral survey capabilities in support of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, and a pro rata share of space costs.

3. Firefighting and rehabilitation.—Provides for the suppression of fires burning on or near the public lands under Bureau jurisdiction. Rehabilitation for burned-over areas is accomplished to restore land productivity and preserve watersheds. A supplemental appropriation for 1974 is now requested.

4. General administration.—Provides executive direction and general administrative services, such as financial management, personnel management, management analysis, procurement, and property management to support Bureau activities. The increase will provide for the additional services required as a result of an expansion in the Bureau's total management responsibilities and a pro rata share of space costs.

1. Construction.—(a) Buildings.—The necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities, such as office buildings, warehouses, equipment storage buildings, fire stations and lookouts, district yards, parking areas, and housing in isolated areas, are constructed to carry out Bureau programs. The 1975 program provides for: Conversion of an existing warehouse to office space in Alaska; remodeling of a district office in Utah; and the construction of a radio building in Oregon.

(b) Recreation facilities.—Recreation facilities for family camping, picnicking, and other outdoor recreational activities are constructed on public land sites receiving heavy public recreational use. These facilities provide safe and attractive camping and picnicking units, potable water, sanitary facilities, and other improvements to assure public health and safety as well as to prevent stream pollution and fire damage to resources. The 1975 program will provide an additional 117 family units which will accommodate an additional 530 one-time use (OTU) visitations.

2. Maintenance.—(a) Buildings.—Provides for maintenance of physical facilities such as buildings, warehouses, equipment shelters, fire stations, and lookouts. The 1975 program will help the Bureau to meet acceptable building maintenance standards by accelerating a corrective maintenance program to repair, replace and/or enlarge inadequate and unsafe electrical and heating systems, and repair and replace leaking roofs, worn or warped floors, and inadequate plumbing. The program also includes funds and manpower for preventive maintenance operations and maintaining facilities to be constructed in 1974.

(b) Recreation facility operation and maintenance.—Provides for the operation and maintenance of developed recreation facilities and the cleanup of litter and trash from undeveloped recreation sites. Increases will provide additional maintenance schedules on the 195 existing developed sites receiving increased recreational use and provide maintenance for two sites to be constructed under the 1974 program. The increases also include maintenance related operations to eliminate or neutralize hazards.

(c) Road maintenance.—Provides for preventive and corrective maintenance on the public lands access roads under Bureau jurisdiction. Increases will upgrade the maintenance on existing roads and provide maintenance for newly constructed roads and trails.

Twenty-five percent of the revenue from the revested Oregon and California grant lands is made available for three principal activities on the revested lands and on other Federal lands in the Oregon and California land-grant counties of western Oregon. The estimate for 1975 for this appropriation is $28,750 thousand. Exclusive of carryover funds, the 1975 level equals the 1974 estimate. The funds will finance the following activities in western Oregon:

1. Construction and acquisition.—Providing for 22 miles of grading and surfacing of 31 miles of access roads, acquisition of existing connecting roads, easements, and rights-of-way for roads in commercial timber areas for timber production and resource management in western Oregon.

2. Forest development and protection and management.—Provides for the reforestation, stand improvement, mortality salvage, commercial thinnings, forest genetics, management, and protection of the forest lands of western Oregon.

3. Operation and maintenance.—Provides for the maintenance of access roads and for the operation and maintenance of recreation facilities in western Oregon.

The Oregon and California Act provides that the Oregon and California counties shall receive 75% of the gross revenue from these lands. The appropriation act provides that one-third of the amount which would have been due them from receipts (which is 25% of the gross receipts) should be deposited to the general fund of the Treasury as reimbursement of the amount appropriated under this title.

1. Leasing of grazing lands.—State, county, and privately owned grazing lands that are intermingled with public grazing lands are managed on a leased basis within the limits of receipts from such arrangements (43 U.S.C. 315m).

2. Payments to Oklahoma (royalties).—The State of Oklahoma is paid 37% of the Red River oil and gas royalties in lieu of State and local taxes on Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache tribal funds to be used for construction and maintenance of public roads and support of public schools (44 Stat. 740).

3. Payments to Coos and Douglas Counties, Oreg., from receipts, Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands.—Out of receipts from the Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands in Oregon, payments in lieu of taxes are made to Coos and Douglas Counties for schools, roads, highways, bridges, and port districts (53 Stat. 753-754).

4. Payments to counties, Oregon and California grant lands.—Fifty percent of the receipts of Oregon and California land-grant funds are paid the counties in which the lands are situated, to be used as other county funds (39 Stat. 218; 50 Stat. 876).

5. Payments to States (proceeds of sales).—The States are paid 5% of the net proceeds from sale of public land and public land products (31 U.S.C. 711).

6. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands outside grazing districts.—The States are paid 50% of the grazing fee receipts from public domain lands outside grazing districts (43 U.S.C. 315i, 315m).

7. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts.—The States are paid 12½% of grazing fee receipts from grazing district lands within their boundaries (43 U.S.C. 315b, 315i).

8. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts, miscellaneous.—The States are paid specifically determined amounts from grazing fee receipts from miscellaneous lands within grazing districts when payment is not feasible on a percentage basis (43 U.S.C. 315).

9. Payments to States from receipts under Mineral Leasing Act.—Alaska is paid 90% after payment into the Alaska Native fund of an overriding royalty equal to 2% on minerals production and 2% of minerals rentals and bonuses and other States are paid 37½% of the receipts from bonuses, royalties, and rentals resulting from development of mineral resources under the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 191), and from leases of potash deposits (30 U.S.C. 285), on public lands.

10. Payments to counties, national grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of submarginal lands, 25% is paid to the counties in which such land is situated, for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

11. Expenses, Public Land Administration Act.—Public Law 86-649 approved July 14, 1960, permanently appropriated certain moneys to the Secretary of the Interior. Timber purchasers or permittees provide bond or deposit to assure fulfillment of contracts. Users of roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management may make deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys received in forfeiture of such bonds or for road maintenance are available for necessary forest improvement, protection, and rehabilitation and for road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available for those lands only and amounts in excess of the cost of doing the work are transferred to miscellaneous receipts (74 Stat. 507-508).

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish municipal and industrial or other water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States and Hawaii.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and special funds. The special funds are (a) the Reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenue; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenue; and (b) the Colorado River Dam fund, derived from the revenue of the Boulder Canyon project. The 1975 estimates are summarized by source, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Appropriation title	Estimate of appropriation	General fund	Reclamation fund	Colorado River Dam fund	Other
General investigations.....	17,030	17,030
Loan program.....	12,025	12,025

Total.....	460,705	239,957	214,520	6,218	10

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For engineering and economic investigations of proposed Federal reclamation projects and studies of water conservation and development plans and activities preliminary to the reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or extension of existing projects, to remain available until expended, [$16,850,000] $17,030,000: Provided, That none of this appropriation shall be used for more than one-half of the cost of an investigation requested by a State, municipality, or other interest: Provided further, That $250,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Bureau of Reclamation. (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1974.)

This appropriation provides for the planning of potential developments for the conservation and utilization of water and related land resources and includes plan formulation investigations, geothermal investigations, and general engineering and research activities.

Investigations and surveys are made to determine the feasibility of potential reclamation projects and the need for rehabilitation of existing Federal reclamation projects.

1. Plan formulation investigations.—These include appraisal surveys, feasibility investigations, and special investigations throughout the 17 Western States to formulate resource development plans for basins and specific projects leading to authorization, including studies relating to the rehabilitation, financial adjustment, or water conservation on existing Federal reclamation projects.

2. Geothermal investigation.—The studies are directed toward determination of the feasibility of developing geothermal resources as a usable water source. Initial efforts have been centered in the Imperial Valley of California.

3. General engineering and research.—Studies directed toward improvements in planning procedures and in engineering methods and materials. Included are studies of atmospheric water resources, of alternative uses and reuse of water and continuing activities in waste water reclamation opportunities in the Western States.

4. Fish and Wildlife studies.—These funds are transferred to the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies of the fish and wildlife aspects of reclamation projects in the planning stage.

Construction will be underway in 1975 on 27 projects and 15 units and divisions of the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program. The program also includes continuation of rehabilitation and betterment work on 14 projects, including construction initiated on the relining of the Coachella Canal. The construction completed through fiscal year 1974 will provide full irrigation service to 4,881,700 acres, a supplemental water supply to 4,952,700 acres, annually provide 3,098,500 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water, and 6,359,200 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. During the year, facilities will be completed to furnish a full water supply to 18,500 acres of land and a supplemental water supply to 57,400 acres of land.

Advance planning work will be underway on six projects.

The Bureau operates and maintains the power-generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, irrigation works are operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities. In 1975 a total of 31 projects, project areas or divisions of projects will be operated and maintained for irrigation, power, municipal and industrial water supplies, and other benefits with funds made available under this appropriation. The Fort Peck project revolving fund finances the operation and maintenance of project power facilities physically integrated with the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, the Colorado River front work and levee system program, negotiation and administration of water marketing contracts on Corps of Engineers' projects in California, marketing of power from the Corps of Engineers' powerplants on the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program and from the International Boundary and Water Commission's powerplant in Texas, examination of existing structures, and for purchase power and wheeling.

Energy sales resulting from Bureau of Reclamation power operations excluding the Colorado River storage project and the Colorado River Basin project are as follows:

	[Dollars in thousands]
	Energy sales (millions of kw.-hrs.)	Income from energy sales
Year:
1973 (actual).....	44,461	$127,000
1974 (estimate).....	42,430	$120,884
1975 (estimate).....	44,434	$124,931

The above sales data for 1973 include $5.5 million in revenues associated with 17.1 billion kilowatt-hours of energy from nine reclamation powerplants for which Bonneville Power Administration was the marketing agent. Sales data for the upper Colorado River storage project and the Colorado River Basin project are provided in the program and performance statements for the appropriations covering the two projects.

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, rural electrification administration cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. These revenues are deposited in the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, the general fund, and the Fort Peck revolving fund.

The program includes $39,529 thousand in 1975 for the purchase of power and wheeling excluding credits for net billing. The establishment in 1961 of a net billing procedure for certain of these power transactions between the Federal Government and non-Federal utilities precludes the need for $10,547 thousand of this amount in 1975.

SPECIAL FUNDS

Sums herein referred to as being derived from the Reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam Fund, or the Colorado River development fund, are appropriated from the special funds in the Treasury created by the Act of June 17, 1902 (43 U.S.C. 391), the Act of December 21, 1928 (43 U.S.C. 617a), and the Act of July 19, 1940 (43 U.S.C. 618a) respectively. Such sums shall be transferred, upon request of the Secretary, to be merged with and expended under the heads herein specified; and the unexpended balances of sums transferred for expenditure under the heads "Operation and Maintenance" and "General Administrative Expenses" shall revert and be credited to the special fund from which derived. (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1974.)

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations to the Bureau of Reclamation shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [thirty] thirty-four passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; purchase of one aircraft for replacement only; payment of claims for damages to or loss of property, personal injury, or death arising out of activities of the Bureau of Reclamation; payment, except as otherwise provided for, of compensation and expenses of persons on the rolls of the Bureau of Reclamation appointed as authorized by law to represent the United States in the negotiations and administration of interstate compacts without reimbursement or return under the reclamation laws; rewards for information or evidence concerning violations of law involving property under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Reclamation; performance of the functions specified under the head "Operation and Maintenance Administration", Bureau of Reclamation in the Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1945; preparation and dissemination of useful information including recordings, photographs and photographic prints; and studies of recreational uses of reservoir areas and investigation and recovery of archeological and paleontological remains in such areas in the same manner as provided for in the Act of August 21, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 461-467): Provided, That no part of any appropriation made herein shall be available pursuant to the Act of April 19, 1945 (43 U.S.C. 377) for expenses other than those incurred on behalf of specific reclamation projects except "General Administrative Expenses" and amounts provided for reconnaissance, basin surveys and general engineering and research under the head "General Investigations".

Sums appropriated herein which are expended in the performance of reimbursable functions of the Bureau of Reclamation shall be returnable to the extent and in the manner provided by law.

No part of any appropriation for the Bureau of Reclamation, contained in this Act or in any prior Act, which represents amounts earned under the terms of a contract but remaining unpaid, shall be obligated for any other purpose, regardless of when such amounts are to be paid: Provided, That the incurring of any obligation prohibited by this paragraph shall be deemed a violation of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665).

No funds appropriated to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance, except those derived from advances by water users, shall be used for the particular benefits of lands (a) within the boundaries of an irrigation district, (b) of any member of a water users' organization, or (c) of any individual when such district, organization, or individual is in arrears for more than twelve months in the payment of charges due under a contract entered into with the United States pursuant to laws administered by the Bureau of Reclamation.

Not to exceed $225,000 may be expended from the appropriation "Construction and Rehabilitation" for work by force account on any one project or Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin Program unit and then only when such work is unsuitable for contract or no acceptable bid has been received and, other than otherwise provided in this paragraph or as may be necessary to meet local emergencies, not to exceed 12 per centum of the construction allotment for any project from the appropriation "Construction and Rehabilitation" contained in this Act, shall be available for construction work by force account: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply to work performed under the Rehabilitation and Betterment Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 724). (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1974.)

Construction costs of the Central Arizona project including the Navajo project participation agreement are financed through appropriations to the Lower Colorado River Basin Development Fund. Project revenue and certain other revenues as provided by the act will be credited to the fund and be available without further appropriation for defraying the costs of operation, maintenance, replacements, and emergency expenditures for all facilities of the projects, within such separate limitations as may be included in annual appropriation acts. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to make annual payments to the general fund to return project costs allocated to irrigation, power, and municipal and industrial water.

1. Construction.—The 1975 program provides for continuing construction on the Central Arizona project.

2. Navajo project participation agreement.—The 1975 program provides for the requirements to liquidate contract authority for the prepayment of power generation and power facilities (82 Stat. 890).

3. Operation and maintenance.—The 1975 program provides for Reclamation's share of operation and maintenance costs of the Navajo project participation agreement. Financing will be from project revenue. Energy sales and revenues resulting from the Bureau's portion of power generated at the Navajo Generating Station are as follows:

Upper Colorado River Basin fund.—Construction will be underway on three units of the Colorado River Storage Project and on six participating projects. The construction completed through fiscal year 1974 will provide full irrigation service to 17,400 acres, a supplemental water supply to 215,000 acres, annually provide 360,800 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water, and 1,248,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. The impact of the fiscal year 1975 construction upon Reclamation goals will be felt in subsequent years as facilities are completed and irrigation service provided, municipal and industrial water furnished, and hydroelectric power is generated.

Operation and maintenance program.—In 1975, the Bureau of Reclamation will operate and maintain five units of the Colorado River Storage project with 34,301,000 acre-feet of storage space, 1,248,000 kilowatts of power generation capacity, and 1,867 circuit-miles of transmission facilities, including the Seedskaadee participating project power facilities. Financing will be from project revenue. Quality of water and consumptive use studies and flood

This fund defrays the expense of operating the power-generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation. (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded program costs in 1975 are higher than 1974 primarily as a result of modernization of the Fort Peck powerplant by the Corps of Engineers.

Operating results.—Net loss of $404 thousand is estimated for 1975, a decrease of $656 thousand from the current year anticipating the continuing of the powerplant modernization. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission. Such payments totaled $2.4 million in 1973 and are estimated at $0.7 million in 1974 and $0 in 1975 as a result of continued extraordinary maintenance repairs requiring drawdown of the reservoir in 1974-75.

1. Planning and research.—Funds are provided for: (a) Nationwide outdoor recreation planning to assess the current supply of outdoor recreation resources and to assess relative priorities for allocating available public resources; (b) evaluation of the estimated recreation benefits of proposed Federal water development projects, participation in comprehensive river basin planning studies, and studies of potential wild and scenic rivers, national trails, and wilderness; and (c) review and dissemination of research on factors which influence outdoor recreation demands.

2. Federal coordination.—Effort is made to promote coordination of diverse Federal outdoor recreation and related programs. Reviews are made of transportation and environmental impact statements for projects which affect significant public park and recreation resources.

3. Technical assistance.—Assistance is provided to Federal agencies, States, local governments, and the private sector on a wide variety of outdoor recreation proposals, problems and studies. Surplus Federal lands which are suitable for park and recreation purposes are identified and assistance provided for transfer of such lands for public use.

1. Habitat preservation.—Alteration of the Nation's natural environment to satisfy man's needs and desires has had a serious impact on and poses a continuing threat to fish and wildlife resources through degradation and destruction of essential habitat. Studies are conducted to determine the type and amount of habitat alteration to arrive at measures to avoid or mitigate unnecessary deterioration. Technical assistance is provided to Federal water resource development agencies and private industry. Biological monitoring of fish, wildlife, and associated ecosystems is used to determine the location, nature, and rate of environmental pollution and degradation. Research is conducted to determine the impact of pesticides, chemicals, heavy metals, oil, and other pollutants on fish and wildlife and their habitats. Continuing studies of natural resource development are used to determine the impact of dredge and fill and pollutant discharge activities in navigable waters; nuclear, thermal, and hydroelectric power projects; major water resource developments; and small watershed projects. Recommendations are formulated to mitigate or minimize unavoidable losses, prevent avoidable losses and enhance resources when feasible. Environmental impact statements for all Federal or federally assisted projects are reviewed as are State water quality standards. Fish and Wildlife input is provided for comprehensive regional water resource development plans. Studies of the potential wild or scenic rivers and unique areas are carried out.

2. Wildlife resources.—The Bureau assists in the enhancement and control of the Nation's wildlife resources to assure that sufficient populations are available for the use and enjoyment of all Americans and to prevent excessive damage by wildlife to economic activities with minimal impact on the resources. Principal responsibility for management of migratory birds in the United States is dictated by treaty and is discharged by the Bureau. To carry out these responsibilities, the Bureau maintains an extensive wildlife refuge system consisting of 356 areas containing 30.7 million acres managed for both migratory birds and other wildlife of national significance; guides and coordinates national migratory bird programs; enforces Federal game laws and regulations; provides technical assistance in the management of wildlife on Indian and other Federal lands; conducts research to improve wildlife management capabilities; provides technical assistance and extension services to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities for responsible control of wildlife causing damage to human enterprises (cooperator funds totaling $5.2 million are anticipated in 1974 to support this function); and supports cooperative wildlife research units at 20 universities to train wildlife biologists and conduct research.

3. Fishery resources.—Assistance provided in the enhancement of the Nation's sport fisheries helps assure continuing opportunities for all Americans to use and enjoy this renewable natural resource. Emphasis is placed on development, management, and protection of interstate and international fisheries, such as anadromous species, fisheries of the Great Lakes, interstate river and reservoir systems; and fisheries on Federal lands, such as national forests, parks, refuges, and Indian reservations. Fish are produced at 94 hatcheries and upstream migration facilitated at two fish screens and fishways; five development centers and one training school are operated to improve fish cultural technology and practices; research is carried out at 13 laboratories and nine field stations to improve natural sport fish productivity, increase efficiency of production of hatchery fish, determine effects of environmental contaminants on fishery resources, and develop methods of controlling undesirable fishes; technical assistance is provided by management biologists at 33 field stations to Indian tribes and to Federal, State, and other landowners in the management of sport fisheries; and cooperative fishery units are maintained at 25 universities to train fishery biologists and carry on research. In 1975, increases are necessary to operate new fish production and related facilities.

4. Endangered species.—The purpose of this program is to restore, to the point at which they are once again a viable component of their ecosystems, any species or subspecies of vertebrate, mollusk, or crustacean which has been identified as being "threatened with extinction" and, further, to take such action as necessary to prevent any such animal with becoming threatened with extinction. Presently, 109 species are on the endangered list. Under the 1973 Endangered Species Act, the number of species and subspecies will increase. This program involves continual review and updating of endangered species lists; development and implementation of species recovery plans; coordination of national and international efforts in this field; and monitoring imports of fish and wildlife from foreign countries. All activities are carried out in close cooperation with other Federal and State agencies, private groups, and foreign governments.

5. Interpretation and recreation.—The goal of this activity is to expand understanding and appreciation of fish and wildlife, wildland ecology, and man's role in his environment. A related goal is to provide visitors to Bureau installations with a safe, enjoyable experience oriented toward enhancing their understanding of natural environments. These goals are accomplished by providing a wide range of outdoor opportunities on Bureau lands including interpretive experiences, environmental study areas, and wildlife-oriented recreation activities, such as wildlife observation, hunting and fishing, as well as non-wildlife-related recreational experiences, such as swimming and boating. Currently, approximately 70% of visits to national wildlife refuges, national fish hatcheries, and research laboratories are for wildlife-oriented activities. Current information concerning fish and wildlife and its relationship to man is made available to the general public through specialized media and publications.

6. Administration.—The purpose of this activity is to provide executive direction, coordinated resource planning, and professional administrative services for the Bureau in Washington, D.C., as well as in the regional and field offices.

Funds for two of the above activities are supplemented by moneys appropriated under the permanent accounts, Federal aid in fish restoration and management, Federal aid in wildlife restoration, and National wildlife refuge fund, as follows:

1. Construction and rehabilitation.—Projects proposed for 1975 include construction of new facilities at the Green Lake (Maine) National Fish Hatchery, Northeast Pennsylvania Development Center, and LaCrosse (Wisconsin) Fish Control Laboratory; domestic waste disposal systems at 13 wildlife refuges and the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center (Maryland); new facilities at three new wildlife refuges and three refuges in Alaska; and master planning of two refuges.

2. Anadromous fish.—State and other non-Federal co-operators are reimbursed up to 60% of the costs of projects to conserve, develop, and enhance the anadromous fishery resources of the Nation and the fish in the Great Lakes that ascend streams to spawn. State and other non-Federal cooperators' plans are examined and projects inspected by Bureau staff. Sixty-three projects in 26 States are proposed for 1975.

1. Federal aid in fish restoration and management.—Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by appropriation of funds for research and management equal to the revenue of the 10% excise tax on sport fishing tackle. States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved fish restoration and management projects, including research into fish culture, formulation of restocking plans, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat (16 U.S.C. 777a-k).

2. Federal aid in wildlife restoration.—Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by appropriation of funds for wildlife restoration equal to the 11% excise tax on the manufacture of firearms and ammunition. States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved wildlife restoration projects, including acquisition and development of land and water areas, for wildlife management research (16 U.S.C. 669-669j), and approved hunter safety programs (Public Law 91-503).

3. National wildlife refuge fund.—The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715's) authorized the expenditures of revenues from the sale of products from the National Wildlife Refuge System. Part of the net proceeds of refuge products is paid to counties in which refuges are located for benefit of public schools and roads. Payment is based on 25% of the proceeds or 0.75% of the value of lands acquired in fee, whichever is larger. The balance of the proceeds is available for management of the refuge system and for enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

4. Proceeds from sales.—Receipts derived from water resources development projects conducted on National wildlife refuge lands on which other agencies have primary jurisdiction (16 U.S.C. 460d).

1. Park management.—The Service administers 298 park areas comprising about 29.3 million acres of federally owned land located in 47 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The program of work proposed in the 1975 budget estimate for park management encompasses several program elements vital to the operations of the System. These include (1) overall management of park areas necessary to accommodate an estimated 235,800,000 visitors in 1975; (2) maintenance of buildings and other facilities required to accommodate visitor use as well as to protect the Government's investment; (3) interpretive programs to enhance the visitors park experience; (4) law enforcement to protect the visitors well-being and reduce vandalism and other destruction to park resources; and (5) resource management necessary for the protection and preservation of the

The major program elements comprising this activity are: general management of park areas, concessions management, interpretation, informational publications, security and protection (of resources and visitors), and maintenance and rehabilitation.

2. Forest fire suppression and rehabilitation of burned areas.—This activity provides for the suppression and emergency presuppression of fires on or endangering lands administered by the Service, and for the rehabilitation of burned areas to conserve resources and the protection of park visitors. The Service administers more than 14.5 million acres of forest, grass lands, tundra, and desert shrub.

3. Executive direction.—Provides executive direction of Service programs in the Service's headquarters in Washington, D.C., the National Capital Parks, and eight regional offices located throughout the Nation.

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The Service carries out a program for the planning, construction, and rehabilitation of physical facilities in units throughout the National Park System. The objective of this program is to provide safe, usable and adequate facilities for visitors and to protect park resources.

2. Park, recreation, and wilderness planning.—The programs comprising this activity are as follows: master planning, landmarks, new area studies, land use studies, water resource studies, Wilderness Act implementation, and the National Park System plan.

3. Cooperative programs.—Under this activity the Service provides assistance to other Federal agencies, the States, and private institutions, upon request, in general development planning, site planning, consultation or design, construction, and operational matters, interpretive planning and guidance in protection and preservation of historical and archeological values on lands involved. The program elements include: Federal agency assistance, State and private assistance, review of environmental impact statements, Alaska study, and Indian assistance program.

4. Statutory or contractual aid for other activities.—The Service provides financial or other assistance in the planning, development, or operation of natural, historical, or recreation areas not operated by the National Park Service. This assistance is provided for the following sites as authorized by law or pursuant to agreements between the National Park Service and other Federal agencies, States, or private institutions: (a) Roosevelt Campobello International Park Commission, New Brunswick, Canada; (b) Hampton National Historic Site, Maryland; (c) Fort Scott Historic Area, Kansas; and (d) Ice Age National Scientific Reserve, Wisconsin.

Roads, trails, and parkways.—The 1975 program proposes work on authorized parkways and major road projects such as principal park entrance roads or major park roads having high traffic density. These are to be accomplished for the Service by the Federal Highway Administration. Minor park roads and trail projects, including parking areas, overlooks, campground roads and trails, and drainage structures are carried out through Service facilities. The program provides mainly for the maintenance of existing capacity through such measures as resurfacing and reconstruction and for the development of some new capacity. Program objectives are to prevent a loss of investment in existing road and trail systems, eliminate unsafe sections, and provide some new capacity to meet traffic demands.

This appropriation provides for the preservation of historic properties throughout the Nation by assisting the States and Territories, the Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia to conduct Statewide historic surveys, the findings of which are incorporated in the National Register and form the basis of Statewide historic preservation plans, and by matching grants-in-aid to the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the States for planning and for individual preservation projects.

This appropriation provides for work necessary to carry out the following programs:

(a) Grants-in-aid.—To provide for matching grants-in-aid to the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the States for planning and for individual preservation projects;

(b) Special Bicentennial grants-in-aid.—To provide for matching grants-in-aid to the States for historic preservation projects that will contribute special meaning to the Bicentennial celebration;

(c) Maintenance of the National Register.—For maintaining the official schedule and protective inventory of our Nation's historic and cultural structural heritage;

(d) Advisory Council on Historic Preservation.—To provide administrative and financial support to the Council;

(e) Historic Sites Survey.—For thematic studies undertaken to identify nationally significant historic properties;

(f) Historic American Buildings Survey.—For documenting the Nation's architectural heritage;

(g) Historic American Engineering Record.—For identifying and documenting the engineering heritage of the Nation; and

(h) Archeological Investigation and Salvage.—For conducting such programs primarily in areas threatened by inundation through reservoir construction.

Operation, management, maintenance, and demolition of federally acquired property, Independence National Historical Park.....	8	19	-----

1. Educational expenses, children of employees, Yellowstone National Park.—Revenues received from the collection of short-term recreation fees to the park are used to provide educational facilities to pupils who are dependents of persons engaged in the administration, operation and maintenance of Yellowstone National Park (62 Stat. 338).

2. Payment for tax losses on land acquired for Grand Teton National Park.—Revenues received from the collection of short-term recreation fees are used to compensate the State of Wyoming for tax losses on Grand Teton National Park lands (64 Stat. 851).

3. Operation, management, maintenance, and demolition of federally acquired property, Independence National Historical Park.—Moneys collected from rental operations of the Irwin Building are used for the operation, management and maintenance of the building. Authority to use all moneys collected from rental operations for the operation, management, maintenance, and demolition of federally acquired properties until such time as the buildings on them are demolished or until the properties and buildings are devoted to park purposes is contained in the act approved October 26, 1951 (65 Stat. 644).

1. National Park Service, donations.—The Secretary of the Interior accepts and uses donated moneys for purposes of the National Park System (16 U.S.C. 6). Donations amounting to $1.6 million were received from contributions during 1973. It is estimated that donations will be received during the 1974 and 1975 years amounting to $2.6 million for each year.

2. Advances from District of Columbia, National Park Service.—Prior to 1971, the Service received advances from the District of Columbia to develop, administer, operate, and maintain the portion of the National Capital Parks system within the District of Columbia.

3. Preservation, Birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, National Park Service.—This fund consists of an endowment given by the Lincoln Farm Association, and the interest thereon is available for preservation of the Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historic Site, Ky. (16 U.S.C. 211, 212). The amount of $11 thousand was received in 1973.

4. Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, contribution.—Pursuant to the act of May 17, 1954 (68 Stat. 98-100), as amended, the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to construct upon the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial National Historic Site, St. Louis, Mo., an appropriate national memorial to those persons who made possible the territorial expansion of the United States. Contributions are accepted from the city of St. Louis or other non-Federal sources in the ratio of $1 to each $3 of Federal appropriations.

The Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning water, land, and mineral resources, and supervises the prospecting, development and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian and Outer Continental Shelf lands.

1. Special resource and environmental projects.—Multi-disciplinary projects utilizing the broad array of competence within the Survey are developed to address a particular resource or environmental problem at a specific point in time. The projects proposed for 1975 include: (a) urban area studies to provide land and water resource and hazard data to improve the basis for urban and regional planning for wise, safe, and efficient land use; (b) studies in response to the Mining and Minerals Policy and Resources Recovery Acts; (c) investigation and evaluation of geothermal resources and supervision of operations on geothermal leases on Federal lands.

2. Alaska pipeline related investigations.—The 1975 program continues engineering geologic and hydrologic investigations that will be needed through the pre-construction phase and into the initial operational and monitoring phase of the Alaska pipeline.

3. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps, at various scales, furnish the fundamental information required to inventory, develop, and manage the natural resources of the country, and to provide a visual accurate display of its physical environment. They also have numerous other uses such as the location and development of highways and lines of communication, urban planning, and military and civil defense. There will be about 60% of the United States and outlying areas, excluding Alaska, with published 7½-minute maps by the end of 1974. In Alaska, 1:63,360-scale maps are the norm. About 81% of Alaska will have published 1:63,360-scale maps by the end of 1974. During 1975, mapping of about 100,000 square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be started. About 85,000 square miles of 7½-minute series revision and about 140 small scale and special maps will be added by the 1975 program.

4. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—The continuing national program of geologic research and investigations produces: (a) New or improved methods, techniques, and instruments for mineral or energy exploration on land and on the submerged continental margins; (b) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps and analyses that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks and mineral deposits at and beneath the surface of the earth including the Nation's continental shelves and slopes; (c) information on the chemistry and physics of the earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified; and (d) geologic data that are directly applicable to urban development, land utilization, and the solution of land construction problems. The 1975 program provides for increased efforts on offshore oil and gas resource appraisal and assessment of energy-related environmental problems; for consolidation of the seismic and geomagnetic observatories program in the expanded earthquake hazards reduction program of the Geological Survey; and for intensified investigations of mineral resources in Alaska.

5. Minerals discovery loan program.—Exploration contracts in force under the MDLP and DMEA will be administered and monitored.

6. Water resources investigations.—The continuing national program of water resources investigations during 1975 has the objective of seeing that the Nation's water resources are appraised and that the necessary water data to develop and manage them efficiently are available when needed. The program produces data and information relevant to the flow and sediment discharge of rivers, location and quantity of underground waters, chemical quality and temperatures of waters, changes caused by nature and by man, availability and suitability of water supplies for present and future demands—all of which are essential to water planning, water management, energy development, and improvement of the environment. Included in the program is research needed to increase our understanding of fundamental principles of water occurrence, movement, and interaction with its environment, and also to increase the accuracy and usefulness of water data through improvements in technology. Increased funds in 1975 are requested to strengthen and expand activities in the water quality segment of the National Water Data System.

7. Conservation of lands and minerals.—The 1975 program provides for (a) classification of federally owned lands for the existence and workability of leasable minerals and sites for development of water resources; (b) evaluation, to determine fair market value, of all resources offered for lease by competitive bidding, and (c) regulation and supervision of prospecting for, and development and production of minerals and fuels from leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) lands. Funds for resource assessment and evaluation and lease supervision of the onshore and Outer Continental Shelf resources will be increased in 1975.

9. Facilities.—The funds included in this activity will finance the lease payment and operation and maintenance requirements of the National Center, Reston, Va., and will provide reimbursement for the movement of personal household goods for eligible employees relocating as a result of the change in headquarters from Washington, D.C. to Reston, Va.

10. Earth resources observation systems.—In 1975 the program will continue data archiving and dissemination and user assistance, and airborne geophysical surveys to provide data for use in energy and resource investigations. The program will also continue to support the evaluation of the economic, environmental, and social benefits of these data. New user charges will be implemented at the EROS Data Center.

11. Resource and land investigations.—The RALI program is being refocused in 1975 to the application of multidisciplinary resource data, special information products, and information analysis techniques to the solution of priority problems facing modern land use and resource managers. Specifically, RALI will concentrate on the preparation of environmental guidebooks and technical manuals to facilitate the evaluation of alternative land and resource use strategies, and to assess the environmental impact of chosen plans.

12. Land use data and analysis.—The objective of this program is to provide basic up-to-date information on existing or current land use and changes in land use to support Federal, State, and local efforts in land and resource planning and management. In 1975, the program will acquire, compile, analyze and disseminate an initial set of current land use data for approximately 500,000 square miles of the United States. The land use data will be provided in map and statistical form and will be tabulated by political and administrative units, river basins and subbasins, and statistical units such as census tracts.

Revolving fund.—An unobligated balance of $400 thousand is carried forward each year to pay the expenses of reimbursable work pending collection from cooperating agencies. This advance is not available for obligation.

Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for making cooperative topographic and geologic surveys and water resources investigations (44 Stat. 963), proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records (43 U.S.C. 45), proceeds from sale of personal property (40 U.S.C. 481(c)), reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Power Commission (16 U.S.C. 797), and reimbursements from friendly countries and international organizations for technical assistance (22 U.S.C. 2357). Reimbursements from other Federal agencies (31 U.S.C. 686) are for special-purpose mapping, investigations, and computer services performed at the request of the financing agency, much of which contributes to the basic objectives of the Geological Survey.

Payments from proceeds, sale of water.—When lessees or operators drilling for oil and gas on public lands strike water, water wells may be developed by the Department from proceeds from sale of water from existing wells (30 U.S.C. 221-229). No obligations are anticipated in 1975.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

The amount appropriated for the Geological Survey shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [twenty-five] thirty-two passenger motor vehicles, for replacement only; reimbursement of the General Services Administration for security guard services, contracting for the furnishing of topographic maps and for the making of geophysical or other specialized surveys when it is administratively determined that such procedures are in the public interest; construction and maintenance of necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities, including the use of the Government-owned site donated for the Earth Resources Observation Systems Data Center for lease construction; acquisition of lands for gaging stations and observation wells; expenses of the U.S. National Committee on Geology; payment of contributions to the International Federation of Surveyors; and payment of compensation and expenses of persons on the rolls of the Geological Survey appointed, as authorized by law, to represent the United States in the negotiation and administration of interstate compacts. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

ALLOCATIONS RECEIVED FROM OTHER ACCOUNTS

Note.—Obligations incurred under allocations from other accounts are included in the schedules of the parent appropriations as follows:
National Park Service, "Management and Protection."
State:
"American sections, international commissions."
"U.S. dollars advanced from foreign governments, U.S. educational exchange program."
"Contributions, educational, and cultural exchange."

BUREAU OF MINES

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

MINES AND MINERALS

For expenses necessary for conducting inquiries, technological investigations and research concerning the extraction, processing, use and disposal of mineral substances without objectionable social and environmental costs; to foster and encourage private enterprise in the development of mineral resources and the prevention of waste in the mining, minerals, metal and mineral reclamation industries; to inquire into the economic conditions affecting those industries; to promote health and safety in mines and the mineral industry through research; and for other related purposes as authorized by law; $108,847,000, of which $32,300,000 shall remain available until expended. (50 U.S.C. 1-11, 21a, 551-558, 571, 951; 42 U.S.C. 3251-3259.)

For expenses necessary for promoting the conservation, development, production, and utilization of mineral resources, mined area and mineral waste reclamation and recycling; environmental functions; developing synthetics and substitutes; and promoting health and safety in mines and in the minerals industries and controlling fires in coal deposits, as authorized by law; $152,224,000 of which $6,000,000 shall remain available until expended: Provided, That the unexpended balances of the appropriations to the Bureau of Mines for "Conservation and Development of Mineral Resources", "Health and Safety", and "General Administrative Expenses" shall be transferred to and merged with this appropriation. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay any public relations firm for any promotional campaigns among coal miners.]

For an additional amount for "Mines and minerals", $5,670,000, of which $1,500,000 shall remain available until expended. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974; Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1974.)

1. Energy research.—Research and demonstration programs are conducted to provide greater efficiency in the extraction, processing, and utilization of energy resources, to conserve those resources, to develop alternative energy resources such as oil shale and synthetic fuels, to improve methods of managing energy-related wastes and pollutants, and to provide technical guidance needed to establish and administer national energy policies.

2. Metallurgy research.—Research is carried out seeking new and improved processes to extract, recover, purify, fabricate, and recycle metallic and nonmetallic minerals for the most efficient resource utilization attainable through increased production, reduced costs, and a minimum of waste. Of particular interest is research leading to advanced metallurgy technology, abatement of pollution from metallurgical processes, management of mineral wastes, improvement of mineral materials, and research on effective recovery and reuse of mineral materials from urban wastes.

3. Mining research.—Research is conducted to assure a much safer environment and working conditions for miners; to reduce health hazards to mine workers; and to develop improved extractive systems through technological advancement of fundamental subsystems elements to increase significantly total mining output at less cost. The current research is designed to increase mining efficiency with full consideration for the health and safety of mine workers, bring marginal mineral deposits into production, maximize recovery of irreplaceable resources, and minimize pollution and damage to the environment.

4. Data collection and analysis.—Technical and economic data on mineral resources, production and consumption and international trade are compiled and analyzed and forecasts undertaken for guidance in the formulation of national mineral and energy policies and to assist Federal, State, and local governments and industry in coping with problems of mineral supply and planning for meeting mineral requirements. The 1975 program provides for increased emphasis on improving world statistics on mineral consumption and recycling; and on analyzing and disseminating comprehensive mineral data.

5. Engineering, evaluation, and demonstration.—Engineering investigations and evaluations are conducted relative to the conservation, development, and utilization of mineral resources and their impact on the environment; appraisal of mineral development and the potential of wilderness and primitive areas as provided under the Wilderness Act; engineering investigations of mineral resources in areas affected by water development or other public works; other inquiries or operations where engineering team or task force attention is required; and the development and review of environmental impact statements as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. Research and demonstration programs are conducted on the restoration of mined land surfaces, control of subsidence caused by mining, control of fires in inactive coal mines, disposal of mine refuse including culm banks, and for inquiries directed to related activities. The Bureau provides grants for the control of drainage in anthracite formations and administers mining-related environmental projects approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission.

6. Program administration.—Provides funds for executive direction and part of the administrative services for the Bureau of Mines. The balance of the cost for administrative services is charged to program funds appropriated directly or transferred from other agencies.

1. Drainage of anthracite mines.—Funds appropriated in 1956 (69 Stat. 460) will be expended in 1974 and future years on a matched fund basis with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the conservation of anthracite coal resources and the prevention of flooding and damage to surface lands or structures through flood control and anthracite mine drainage. The act of July 15, 1955, was amended by the act of October 15, 1962 (76 Stat. 934), to further provide for the filling of voids in abandoned coal mines in the interest of public health and safety.

2. Solid waste disposal.—Funds appropriated in previous years will be expended in 1974 to liquidate prior year obligations.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

The Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, and other contributions from public and private sources and to prosecute projects in cooperation with other agencies, Federal, State, or private: Provided, That the Bureau of Mines is authorized during the current fiscal year, to sell directly or through any Government agency, including corporations, any metal or mineral product that may be manufactured in pilot plants operated by the Bureau of Mines, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Appropriations and funds available to the Bureau of Mines may be expended for purchase and bestowal of certificates and trophies in connection with mine rescue and first-aid work: Provided, That the Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, and other contributions from public and private sources and to prosecute projects in cooperation with other agencies, Federal, State, or private: Provided further, That the Bureau of Mines is authorized during the current fiscal year, to sell directly or through any Government agency, including corporations, any metal or mineral product that may be manufactured in pilot plants operated by the Bureau of Mines, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

The Government's helium program is conducted under authority of the Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (Public Law 86-777). The principal program elements are: (1) production and sale of helium for use by Federal agencies and their contractors, and by other interested parties; and (2) conservation of helium extracted from natural gas marketed as fuel, and underground storage of helium for future use. Engineering activities and technical and laboratory services required in connection with the discovery and development of helium reserves, and the production, sale, and conservation of helium are maintained.

The market for helium produced by the Bureau of Mines is estimated to be about 178 million cubic feet, about the same as for the last 2 years. Federal agencies will consume about 95% of the volume sold by the Bureau, and commercial consumers will account for the other 5%. The Federal agencies will purchase about 100 million cubic feet directly from the Bureau and an additional 78 million cubic feet from commercial distributors under Federal supply schedule contracts and through 30 CFR, part 2 helium distributors.

Helium produced by the Bureau will supply about 35% of the total domestic market for helium. The other 65% will be supplied by private helium producers.

The funded operating costs, exclusive of contract helium purchases and capital expenditures for operations, are reduced by 27% from fiscal year 1973 by reallocation of funds to crude helium produced for storage.

Budget program.—Extraction of helium for production and sales will be conducted only at the Keyes (Okla.) helium plant, which is owned and operated by the Bureau of Mines. The Amarillo (Tex.) loading terminal will continue to make shipments in small cylinders, using helium transported to it from the Keyes plant. Helium extracted from available gas supplies at the Keyes plant that is not needed to meet the demands for Federal agencies will be placed in underground storage for future use. Operations at the Exell (Tex.) plant will be confined to processing functions required in connection with the operation and control of the underground helium storage reservoir in Cliffside field.

Financing the budget program.—The helium program of production and sales and conservation is financed from the helium fund. Income from helium sales and services, credited to the helium fund, are estimated to provide 100% of the needed funding.

Operating results and financial conditions.—As of June 30, 1973, the Government had $487.3 million invested in the helium program. Of this amount, $369.3 million is owed to the U.S. Treasury in accordance with the Helium Act Amendments of 1960, leaving a net investment of $118 million. The investment on June 30, 1973, was about 7% in helium plants and facilities and about 93% in helium stored underground.

On June 30, 1975, the Government's investment is estimated to be $541.7 million, of which $419.6 million will be owed to the U.S. Treasury, leaving a new investment balance of $122.3 million. The estimated increase from June 30, 1973, of $4.3 million in net Government investment (equity) results from an increase in retained earnings accrued during 1974 and 1975.

The Office, as required by the Coal Research Act, contracts for research and development of new and more efficient methods of mining, preparing, and utilizing coal. It contracts for, sponsors, cosponsors, and promotes the coordination of research with recognized interested groups (including, but not limited to, coal trade associations, educational institutions, and agencies of States and political subdivisions).

The Office is responsible for developing the full potentiality and versatility of coal as the Nation's largest energy resource to the maximum benefit of the United States. The aspect of insuring a clean environment while minimizing or eliminating pollution-causing energy products, is an important consideration in all of the research projects. The Office is devoting its efforts to expand the use of coal through development of new uses as well as within presently known fields of utilization. The scientific and technical aspects of the program are performed through a program of contract research.

1. Administration and contract supervision.—This portion of the program performs all necessary functions relating to contracts. This includes drafting, negotiation, and execution of the contracts, together with review and monitoring of technical and administrative phases of the contract work. Proposals are evaluated to ascertain technical and economic feasibility and to avoid and eliminate possible duplication of other work.

2. Contract research.—The entire research activity cited above as the responsibility of OCR is represented in the contract aspect of the OCR operation. Proposals received from, or discussions with, potential contractors relate to a prospective area of activity in which the proposer has expressed interest, and for which the organization is qualified. Careful review and controls preclude duplicative research efforts. Contract research activities are conducted with profit and nonprofit research organizations. Contracts vary from complete Government funding to joint funding. Only applied research and development projects are undertaken. Several have now reached the pilot plant phase of their development. No grant research projects are carried on, and basic research is extremely limited—only insofar as a project may support other ongoing research.

The contract research of the Office is being expanded and accelerated for the purpose of providing domestic alternatives of coal energy through conversion of coal to liquid fuels, high-B.t.u. gas, and low-B.t.u. gas; and for clean efficient conversion of coal to electricity by advanced power systems and improved combustion, in accordance with the President's energy messages.

This account represents the input of funds made available by the American Gas Association as its cosponsored portion of the combined OCR/A.G.A. program for accelerated research and development of high B.t.u. (clean synthetic natural gas) gasification projects.

The funds provided by A.G.A. under the agreement with the Department of the Interior represent its stated portion (one-third) of the cost—up to $10 million per year—for a 4-year period.

1. Petroleum allocation program.—This Office coordinates the implementation of the petroleum allocation program for both crude oil and petroleum products, as promulgated in Federal regulations in consonance with statutory requirements. This Office has been directed to administer the allocation program to meet the fuel needs of priority-category enterprises such as food production and transportation; to distribute the remaining available fuels on an equitable basis; to preserve a viable independent sector of the oil industry; to assure a competitive atmosphere in the market place; to assure an equitable distribution of fuel to new and expanding business; to provide for customers not adequately covered by the base period guidelines of the program or experiencing exceptional hardships; and to provide equitable distribution of crude oil feedstocks for all domestic refineries. The program, which will require over 2,000 positions at headquarters and in 11 field offices, will be one of the administration's most far-reaching economic, resource-management activities. The Office of Petroleum Allocation will be the major energy resources allocation agency, and it must be staffed and funded accordingly.

2. Coordination of oil and gas activities.—This Office coordinates the implementation of Federal oil and gas policies, provides advice and assistance to Federal agencies and international organizations on all phases of petroleum and gas, and serves as the principal channel of communication between the Federal Government and the petroleum, gas, petrochemical, and allied industries. This Office administers the Federal oil import program, pursuant to Presidential Proclamation No. 3279, as amended, establishing quotas for importers of crude oil and oil products under the mandatory quota system. Emergency planning and readiness for the oil and gas industries are assigned responsibilities for this Office.

3. Contingency funding for State and Federal shortage programs.—This Office's 1974 supplemental appropriation provided a $10 million contingency reserve fund subject to enactment of S. 2589 or similar legislation authorizing State and Federal programs to deal with the energy shortage. Funds must be available for prompt implementation of programs that become urgently needed. Similar funding has been included for 1975.

Upon enactment of pending legislation, the coordination of oil and gas activities and the petroleum allocation program will be transferred to the Federal Energy Administration.

1. System operation and maintenance.—This activity consists of the scheduling and dispatching of power; the operation of substations; the maintenance of transmission lines, substations, and other facilities; power requirements studies; planning and integration of power resources; and system engineering.

Transmission facilities of BPA are expanded as increased generating capacity becomes available. The system will be operated and maintained at a level which will insure safe operation and provide a reliable grade of service to customers.

The following table shows the rising trend of several of the more important indexes of the operation and maintenance activity:

Transmission plant in service (millions) <sup>1</sup> .....	1,256	1,346	1,451
Transmission lines (circuit miles) <sup>1</sup> .....	12,050	12,373	12,565
Energy sales (billion of kilowatt-hours).....	64.7	60.7	77.9
Wheeling and exchange obligation for non-Federal utilities (megawatts).....	8,077	8,077	8,619
Federal generation peaking capacity (megawatts).....	11,948	12,706	13,676

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—This activity includes the acquisition of power from other entities by purchase and exchange, and the use of transmission facilities. Exchange arrangements and net-billing procedures between BPA and other entities preclude the need for an additional appropriation of $30 million in 1975. Reimbursements from non-Federal sources result from exchanges and sales of power and are applied against charges for purchase power and wheeling.

3. Power contracts and rates.—This activity provides for the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, the billing and servicing of these contracts, the review of resale rates, the development of service plans, and the establishment of wholesale rate schedules. Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $129 million in 1973, and are estimated at $132.3 and $173.1 million for 1974 and 1975, respectively.

The Bonneville Power Administration constructs, operates, and maintains transmission facilities which are not provided by the Administration under its customer service policy when requested and financed by non-Federal entities. These facilities increase efficiency on the system, reduce loads on existing facilities, and improve service to customers. Also, facilities of the Administration are relocated as required for highway construction and other purposes under similar arrangements. In addition, trust agreements are developed for the purchase of replacement energy to meet requirements of customers during periods when operating conditions on the Federal system require the Administration to curtail its delivery of interruptible power and nonfirm energy. (16 U.S.C. 832a(f) (31 U.S.C. 725s).

1. System operation and maintenance.—Provision is made for investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatching power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administering contractual operation requirements, and determining methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources.

2. Purchase power and wheeling charges.—Provision is made for payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of firming energy in connection with disposal of power under contracts with utility companies. Reimbursements from non-Federal sources results from sale of power and are applied against charges for purchase of energy and wheeling charges by customers of the administration (72 Stat. 1572, 1578).

3. Power contracts and rates.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenue, development of wholesale power rates, and determination of adequate provisions for the amortization of the power investment. Receipts which were deposited in the Treasury amounted to $34,772,011 in 1973 and are estimated at $34,268,600 for 1974 and $36,183 thousand for 1975.

4. General administration.—Provision is made for the bureau's executive direction and administrative services.

The construction program provides transmission, substation and switching facilities to transmit power generated at Corps of Engineers' hydroelectric projects in the Southwest. This program is coordinated with the Corps' construction program and customer requirements so that transmission and related facilities will be in place at the time these power projects are completed and available for marketing.

All operation and maintenance activities, with the exception of the expenses for the purchase of power and payment of transmission charges, are financed through direct appropriations. An appropriation for the purchase of power and payment of transmission expenses is necessary to cover monthly expenditures in excess of monthly receipts for each customer furnishing to SPA thermal power and energy and transmission service.

1. Education.—The Bureau operates Federal school facilities where public schools are not available or cannot meet the special needs of Indian children. Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children where tax-free Indian lands result in financial problems for the local districts and where other special problems exist. Grants are made to Indian students attending college. These grants will be increased to offer students aid at a more adequate level. Federal school plans include; adequate base funding of the Indian education program; improvement in the home living program; and provision for the special needs of local schools and communities. The Bureau coordinates the development of basic and continuing institutional or noninstitutional education programs for Indian adults. This includes funding for contractual or other arrangements with Indian tribes, organizations, and individuals for direct Indian education operations, including appropriate administrative costs incurred by the tribe, organization, or individual in carrying out the work. Estimated reduced Federal employment associated with this appropriation is directly related to the increased funding estimated for direct Indian education operations. In accordance with the policy of Indian self-determination, funds estimated for direct tribal operations, but at the discretion of tribes, not used for direct Indian education operations will be otherwise expended by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to carry out programmed and budgeted work. If any tribe decides against contractual arrangements, the services which they would have otherwise received will not be terminated nor diminished.

2. Indian services.—Performs functions regarding programs of the Bureau designed to promote the welfare and development of individual Indians and Indian communities, to provide for municipal-type governmental service for Indian communities and to assist tribes in self-government. These programs include social services, housing, law enforcement, tribal government development, and youth and aged activities, funding for contractual or other arrangements with Indian tribes, organizations, and individuals for direct Indian service operations, including appropriate administrative costs incurred by the tribe, organization, or individual in carrying out the work. Estimated reduced Federal employment associated with this appropriation is directly related to the increased funding estimated for direct Indian services operations. In accordance with the policy of Indian self-determination, funds estimated for direct tribal operations, but at the discretion of tribes, not used for direct Indian service operations will be otherwise expended by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to carry out programmed and budgeted work. If any tribe decides against contractual arrangements, the services which they would have otherwise received will not be terminated nor diminished.

3. Tribal resource development.—This activity is designed to stimulate reservation economics through the development and utilization of tribal resources, and to help Indian people participate fully in the economic life of the community and the Nation.

Business enterprise development is encouraged and assisted through programs of technical and financial aid, with strong emphasis on enterprises owned and operated by Indian individuals and organizations. Indian tribal organizations and individuals are assisted with securing and managing loans for resource and business enterprise development, housing, public utility facilities, education, and other purposes. Individual Indians are assisted in qualifying for, finding, and occupying jobs both on and off the reservation consistent with their needs, capabilities, and desires. Roads are maintained to provide for the movement of people and goods as needed for the well-being of the community. The conservation, development, and utilization of land, water, and related resources is encouraged and assisted. This activity includes funding for contractual or other arrangements with Indian tribes, organizations, and individuals for tribal resource development, including appropriate administrative costs incurred by the tribe, organization, or individual in carrying out the work. Estimated reduced Federal employment associated with this appropriation is directly related to the increased funding estimated for direct tribal resource development. In accordance with the policy of Indian self-determination, funds estimated, but at the discretion of tribes, not used for direct tribal resource development operations, will be otherwise expended by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to carry out budgeted work. If any tribe decides against contractual arrangements, the services which they would have otherwise received will not be terminated nor diminished.

4. Trust responsibilities.—This activity is designed to carry out the Bureau's trust and legal responsibilities to protect the rights of Indians in their trust property and those rights affecting trust property that are afforded by tribal autonomy; to carry out the authorities vested in the Secretary of the Interior by various laws concerning Indian trust property and to provide Indians the services they need to make decisions required of them in the application of these various laws; and to carry out programs to facilitate the trust.

5. General management and facilities operation.—The programs of the Bureau are operated from approximately 140 offices or installations. Activities are conducted at geographic locations ranging from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Hollywood, Fla., in 27 States. This program provides for the general management functions and for the repair, maintenance and operation of facilities which support the Bureau's widespread programs. These functions include executive direction; management administrative services; safety management; operation and maintenance of Bureau physical facilities; and provision of GSA-owned or leased facilities. Administrative costs of centralized housekeeping work and general management costs at the local levels are financed on a reimbursable basis from the other program activities served. This activity includes funding for contractual or other arrangements with Indian tribes, organizations, and individuals for direct tribal facilities operations, including appropriate administrative costs incurred by the tribe, organization, or individual in carrying out the work. Estimated reduced Federal employment associated with this appropriation is directly related to the increased funding estimated for direct tribal facilities operations. In accordance with the policy of Indian self-determination, funds estimated for, but at the discretion of tribes, not used for direct tribal facilities operations, will be otherwise expended by the Bureau of Indian Affairs to carry out programed and budgeted work. If any tribe decides against contractual arrangements, the services which they would have otherwise received will not be terminated nor diminished.

1. Revolving fund for loans.—This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of financing for Indians who cannot borrow from other Government credit agencies or from ordinary commercial lenders because of their low economic status, isolated geographic location, lack of bankable security, or for other reasons (25 U.S.C. 70n-1; 443; 470; 470a; 473a; 482; 506; and 631). Loans are made to tribes and other Indian organizations for relending to individual members and groups of members, to finance tribal business enterprises; and to help tribes attract industries to operate in localities that will promote the economic development of the Indians. Loans are also made to tribes for use by them in obtaining expert assistance for the preparation and trial of claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. Direct loans are made to cooperative associations and individual Indians for any purpose that will promote the economic development of the borrower, including loans for educational purposes.

2. Liquidation of Hoonah housing.—This fund was transferred from the Housing and Home Finance Agency to the Secretary of the Interior under the provisions of Public Law 85-806, enacted August 28, 1958 (72 Stat. 974). The Secretary will use the funds transferred from the Housing and Home Finance Agency, along with any other revenues that may be received from the Hoonah housing project for the purpose of liquidating said project in accordance with the provisions of law. The deficit is expected to increase as funds are used for the liquidation of the project.

The 1975 budget request for administration of territories finances the costs of operating the office of the Governor, and the judiciary of American Samoa. Also requested are grant funds in the amount of $13.3 million for the operations and capital improvements for the government of American Samoa. The most significant programs in the budget year include those for education, medical services, and public works.

In addition, the appropriation request includes $1 million for economic development as authorized in the Guam Economic Development Act of 1968.

Public Law 90-497 which pertains to the Office of Comptroller for Guam, and Public Law 90-496 which pertains to the Comptroller for the Virgin Islands, provide that salaries and expenses are to be paid, respectively, from funds which would otherwise be covered into the treasury of Guam and grants which would otherwise be paid to the Virgin Islands. Operations of these offices are reflected under this appropriation for budgetary purposes.

Under the terms of the Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United Nations, the United States exercises full jurisdiction over the territory and is obligated to promote the political, economic, and educational advancement of the inhabitants. These responsibilities are carried out through the Department of the Interior.

The Trust Territory, with a population of about 110,000 persons, comprises 2,141 islands scattered over three million square miles of ocean in three major archipelagos, the Mariana, Caroline, and Marshall Islands. The land area totals 700 square miles.

1. High Commissioner's office.—This office provides executive direction for the development programs and the administration of all the territory.

2. Judiciary.—Provision is made for the high court of the Trust Territory, the court of appeals, and the lesser courts of the territory.

3. Federal Comptroller's office.—Public Law 93-111 requires the government comptroller for Guam to audit trust territory governmental activities.

4. Grants.—The cost of operating the government of the territory is provided by Federal grant appropriations and local revenue. The main activities funded under the Trust Territory Government are operations and capital improvements, including accelerated programs for education for self-government and land and survey of the public lands.

5. Economic development loan fund.—Federal grant appropriation to the Territory to provide a revolving fund to make loans or to guarantee loans to private enterprise in the Trust Territory where financing is otherwise unavailable on reasonable terms and conditions.

This account finances certain operations that provide departmentwide services.

1. Office of Hearings and Appeals.—Discharges quasi-judicial responsibilities of the Department. Hearing examiners and formal boards of appeal render decisions in cases pertaining to (a) contract disputes; (b) Indian probate matters; (c) public and acquired lands and their resources; (d) submerged offshore lands of the Outer Continental Shelf; (e) mine health and safety; and (f) enforcement of restrictions on the importation and transportation of rare and endangered species. The Director of the Office of Hearings and Appeals may assign hearing examiners for the purpose of holding rulemaking hearings and he may also assign hearing examiners or establish ad hoc boards of appeal to meet special requirements of disputes not falling under one of the previously listed categories.

2. Natural Resources Library.—Provides library services and information necessary to the Department in carrying out its role as the natural resources agency of the Federal Government. This includes, in addition to the Washington area, over 1,500 field installations.

3. Johnny Horizon program office.—Provides the overall departmentwide direction and supervision of the Johnny Horizon program (established by Public Law 91-419) to foster, implement, and coordinate the antilitter campaign efforts of the bureaus, other agencies, and private organizations, and to stimulate the use of "Johnny Horizon" as the official symbol of a public service program to maintain the beauty and utility of the Nation's public lands.

5. International Geothermal Symposium.—Provides for the Federal Government's contribution to the third United Nations International Geothermal Symposium to be held in May 1975. This conference will bring together representatives from throughout the world to exchange information and technology to further the development of geothermal energy.

6. Office of Research and Development.—Provides for the coordination, development and implementation of Departmental resources toward an integrated nonnuclear energy research and development program to meet national needs.

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 101. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 102. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior: Provided, That appropriations made in this title for fire suppression purposes shall be available for the payment of obligations incurred during the preceding fiscal year, and for reimbursement to other Federal agencies for destruction of vehicles, aircraft, or other equipment in connection with their use for fire suppression purposes, such reimbursement to be credited to appropriations currently available at the time of receipt thereof.

SEC. 103. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 104. Appropriations made to the Department of the Interior in this title or in the Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, [1974] 1975, shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, when authorized by the Secretary, in total amount not to exceed $300,000; hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles; purchase of reprints; payment for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and the payment of dues, when authorized by the Secretary, for library membership in societies or associations which issue publications to members only or at a price to members lower than to subscribers who are not members.

SEC. 105. Appropriations available to the Department of the Interior for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefore, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902 and D.C. Code 4-204).

Sec. 106. In addition to the aircraft specifically authorized under this Act there is hereby authorized for acquisition four surplus aircraft for replacement only. Such acquisitions shall be integral to the provision of centralized aircraft services in Alaska. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

【SEC. 301. No part of any appropriation under this Act shall be available to the Secretaries of the Interior and Agriculture for use for any sale hereafter made of unprocessed timber from Federal lands west of the 100th meridian in the contiguous 48 States which will be exported from the United States, or which will be used as a substitute for timber from private lands which is exported by the purchaser: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to specific quantities of grades and species of timber which said Secretaries determine are surplus to domestic lumber and plywood manufacturing needs.】

SEC. 【302】 301. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 301. Appropriations in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 302. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office) of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

SEC. 303. Appropriations in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency, or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials, and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 304. No part of any funds made available by this Act to the Southwestern Power Administration may be made available to any other agency, bureau, or office for any purposes other than for services rendered pursuant to law to the Southwestern Power Administration. (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1974.)

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 501. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

【SEC. 502. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 301 of the Second Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1973 (Public Law 93-50), appropriations contained in that Act shall remain available for obligation for a period of 20 days following the enactment of this Act into law.】 (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1974.)

1. Headquarters legal activities.—(a) Conduct of Supreme Court proceedings and review of appellate matters consist of supervising and controlling all appellate matters and representing the Government before the Supreme Court. (b) General tax matters involve the prosecution or defense of cases arising under the internal revenue laws and other tax statutes. (c) Criminal matters embrace all actions in criminal law except tax, narcotics, antitrust, and civil rights matters. (d) Controlled substances work provides uniform rules and procedures for prosecuting violations of relevant statutes. (e) Claims, customs, and general civil matters consist of the prosecution or defense of civil suits and claims of the Government, except tax, land, and civil rights matters. (f) Land and natural resources matters include all civil suits and matters relating to title, possession, and use of Federal land and natural resources, civil litigation involving Indians and Indian affairs and criminal prosecutions for air and water pollution. (g) Legal opinions are prepared for the President and executive agencies, and proposed Executive orders and proclamations are reviewed as to form and legality. (h) Civil rights matters cover cases and matters involving the civil rights of persons within the jurisdiction of the United States.

2. Enforcement of antitrust, consumer protection and kindred laws.—This division administers and enforces the antitrust, consumer protection laws and related statutes. The principal statutes involved are: (a) Section 1 of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations and conspiracies among competitors to set prices collusively, or otherwise to restrain trade; (b) section 2 of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations and attempts to monopolize and monopolization of interstate trade; (c) section 7 of the Clayton Act which prohibits corporate mergers and acquisitions which tend substantially to lessen competition or tend to monopolization; and (d) various statutory provisions which require Government regulatory agencies to consider the preservation of competition in the determination of public interest factors which it is their responsibility to observe. The combined thrust of this program is to protect the interest of consumers and producers in the basic system of free competition and free market mechanisms upon which the American system of private capitalism is built.

Fees and expenses are paid to witnesses who appear on behalf of the Government in all cases to which the United States is a party.

1. Fact witnesses.—These witnesses testify as to events or facts about which they have personal knowledge.

2. Protection of witnesses.—The Attorney General provides for the security of witnesses and their families who are placed in jeopardy by virtue of being witnesses or intended witnesses.

3. Expert witnesses.—The testimony of these witnesses entails the use of special training or information. Fees of physicians and psychiatrists for examining accused persons preparatory to testifying in court are also paid from this fund.

The Service was established by title X of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, to provide assistance to communities in resolving disputes, disagreements, and difficulties arising from discriminatory practices which disrupt or threaten to disrupt peaceful relations among citizens, and also where efforts are being made to eliminate disparities between groups, to achieve compliance with the act and to reduce and prevent racial disorders.

By law, the Service may assist communities upon request of local citizens or officials, or upon its own motion; Federal courts may also refer public accommodations cases arising under title II of the act to the Service.

In endeavoring to create a climate of compliance and orderly progress, the Service seeks, encourages, and utilizes the cooperation of appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies, private and public groups or institutions, and individuals working to develop methods and programs for the peaceful resolution of racial disputes.

In carrying out the mandate of Congress, the Service must conduct its activities in confidence and without publicity, and the staff must hold confidential any information so acquired.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the principal investigative branch of the Department of Justice. It has primary responsibility for the internal security of the Nation. It assists other law enforcement agencies in training, identification, and laboratory matters.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—This activity includes the Bureau's investigative responsibilities, the coordination and maintenance of the data gathered, and the maintenance of the Bureau's communications system. Name check work, most of which is performed for other Government agencies, is also included in this activity.

2. Identification by fingerprints.—The Identification Division is the national repository of identification data based on fingerprint records. Fingerprints are acquired, classified, preserved, and exchanged with other duly authorized law enforcement agencies. Sets of fingerprints on file on July 1, 1973, totaled 159,345,941.

3. Criminal and scientific laboratory.—The laboratory provides technical and scientific assistance to the FBI and all duly constituted law enforcement agencies and other Federal agencies which desire to avail themselves of the service.

4. Training.—In addition to training its own personnel, the Bureau, upon request, provides a wide range of training for State and local law enforcement agencies.

5. General administration.—This activity encompasses all functions of an administrative character bearing upon Bureau operations, including a bureauwide inspectional service.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average of 24,000 prisoners, the maintenance and operation of 37 penal institutions, community treatment centers in 9 metropolitan areas and the central office. An average of 7,728 employees will be employed with the funds in this appropriation. The Health Services Administration assists in the provision of medical care for prisoners.

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions.—This covers the direct care costs of all prisoners in the Federal prison system. These include the costs of all food, clothing, welfare services, medical supplies, release transportation, and related personal services. The funds required, exclusive of salary costs, are in direct relation to the estimated number of prisoners expected to be maintained in 1975 which is 24,000 at an estimated cost per man per day of $1.96. The average daily population for 1973 was 22,294 as compared to 21,329 in 1972.

2. Inmate education.—This covers the cost of the inmate education program including related personal services.

3. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—This activity includes administrative expenses, all utility services, operation of motor vehicles, the repair and maintenance of all buildings and facilities, and equipment replacements. The cost of personal services attributable to these activities is also included.

4. Medical service.—This activity covers the costs of medical, psychiatric, and technical services, including those services provided by the Health Services Administration.

5. Narcotic addict treatment.—This covers the cost of treatment of narcotic addicts while in institutions and provides for aftercare treatment services after the inmate is released.

6. Technical assistance to State and local governments.—The Bureau provides technical consultative services, on request, to non-Federal jurisdictions seeking to improve their correctional system.

The Bureau of Prisons contracts with some 900 approved State and local jails to board Federal prisoners for short periods of time. Such periods occur before and during trial, during commitments for short sentences, and while awaiting transfer to Federal institutions after conviction. An average of 5,870 prisoners was boarded at an average cost of $8.62 per man day in 1973.

This is a wholly owned Government corporation. A board of six directors appointed by the President controls its policies. Supervision is by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons who has jurisdiction over all industrial enterprises and vocational training programs in all Federal penal and correctional institutions. Products manufactured by inmates are sold only to institutions in the Federal Prison System and to other-Government agencies. Earnings, in excess of operating requirements, are paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury.

The Corporation is authorized, under the Attorney General, to establish and operate industries in Federal penal and correctional institutions and disciplinary barracks (18 U.S.C. 4121-4128). Its purposes are to provide employment for inmates, provide maximum vocational training for qualified inmates in connection with regular institutional and industrial activities; and to operate a placement service to assist released inmates to secure jobs.

Under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, as amended, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration is charged with the responsibility for assisting State and local governments in reducing crime and improving the quality of the criminal justice system. The program includes the following activities:

1. Grants for development and implementation of comprehensive plans.—Support of State and local planning agencies which prepare, adopt, and implement comprehensive law enforcement and criminal justice plans based on their evaluation of State and local criminal justice system problems.

2. Matching grants to improve and strengthen law enforcement.—Of the total available, 85% is distributed by formula in the form of block grants for the States and local units to carry out action programs and projects to reduce crime, juvenile delinquency, and improve the operations of their law enforcement and criminal justice systems. Of the total available for such grants, 15% is allocated for programs or projects of national interest as determined administratively.

3. Aid for correctional institutions and programs.—Grants are made to State and local units of government for the improvement and construction of correctional facilities and the improvement of correctional programs.

4. Technical assistance.—These funds provide for technical assistance to States and units of local government, public or private agencies, organizations, institutions, or international agencies in matters relating to the improvement of law enforcement and criminal justice.

5. Technology analysis, development, and dissemination.—Support is provided for research and development of techniques, systems, equipment, and devices to reduce crime, strengthen law enforcement, and improve the operations of the law enforcement and criminal justice system.

6. Manpower development.—Funds for educational development, internships, training in the latest techniques and methods, and grants and loans to law enforcement officers and other criminal justice system personnel enrolled on a full- or part-time basis in an approved program leading to a degree are provided in this activity.

7. Data systems and statistical assistance.—Compiling and publishing information and statistics on the criminal justice system and assisting States and units of local government in the development of statistics and information systems.

8. Management and operations.—This activity includes funds for the administrative operations of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

1 1973 actual column is for the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, which was consolidated into the Drug Enforcement Administration on July 1, 1973.

2 Includes capital outlay as follows: 1973, $3,300 thousand; 1974, $3,000 thousand; 1975, $5,000 thousand.

The Drug Enforcement Administration, in the Department of Justice, is the investigative, intelligence, law enforcement, and regulatory agency responsible for suppression of illicit traffic in narcotics and dangerous drugs. It has sole responsibility to act for the Government in foreign countries in intelligence gathering activities and coordination with foreign government agencies to reduce the supply of illicit drugs entering the United States.

The means by which the DEA performs its mission are summarized by the following activities:

1. Law enforcement—(a) Criminal enforcement.—This activity encompasses the enforcement of Federal laws regarding narcotics and dangerous drugs; reducing the supply of illicit drugs entering the United States from foreign sources; laboratory analysis of evidence for support of prosecutive cases; training foreign narcotic officers; preparing information necessary to the process of scheduling substances under the Controlled Substances Act. (b) Compliance and regulation.—This activity encompasses the regulation of the legal trade in narcotics and dangerous drugs, and includes establishment of import, export, and manufacturing quotas for controlled drugs; registration of manufacturers, handlers, and dispensers of controlled drugs; investigations to determine suitability for registration and compliance with regulations; and monitoring traffic in legal controlled drugs to determine points of diversion into the illicit market. (c) State and local assistance.—This activity encompasses cooperative law enforcement activities with State, county, and local officers; a continuing drug enforcement training program for State, county, and local law enforcement officers; training programs for State and local forensic chemists; laboratory support for State and local enforcement agencies including analysis of evidence and professional testimony in State prosecutive cases; and educational programs on drug abuse and controlled substances for local, State, and Federal personnel, and the drug industry.

2. Intelligence.—This activity encompasses the acquisition, collation, and analysis of drug intelligence and the dissemination of the data. It will support DEA, other Federal, State, local, and foreign efforts to interdict or suppress the illicit international or domestic movement of drugs, through ability to attack the drug traffic in a systematic way, assessment of vulnerabilities of traffickers, and supplying information for policy determination and strategy.

3. Research and development.—This activity encompasses research programs directly related to the DEA law enforcement and regulation functions and includes, but is not limited to, studies designed to compare the deterrent effects of various enforcement strategies; assess and detect accurately the presence of controlled substances in the human body; evaluate the nature and sources of supply of dangerous substances; develop more effective methods to prevent diversion of controlled substances into illicit channels; develop information necessary to carry out functions of section 201, Public Law 91-513, authority and criteria for classification of substances; develop and apply systems and technologies for limiting the supply of illicit drugs in the United States, and to undertake analyses to insure the most effective utilization of these systems.

4. Executive direction.—This activity encompasses the overall direction and management of DEA.

1. State and local programs.—Provides financial assistance to State and local prime sponsors to enable them to provide comprehensive manpower services needed to enable individuals to secure and retain employment and meet the manpower needs of the State and local area. Included among these authorized services are programs such as institutional and on-the-job training, work experience, summer youth employment, vocational education and counseling, remedial education, job placement services, and transitional public service employment.

This activity also provides financial assistance for programs of transitional public service employment and training in areas which have a rate of unemployment of 6.5% or more. Priority is to be given to those unemployed persons who are the most severely disadvantaged.

2. National programs.—Covers those programs and support activities which are administered on the national level. Programs included in this activity are:

(a) National training programs.—Provides special manpower services directed toward meeting the needs of the labor force which cannot be served as well through manpower programs available at the State or local level. Among groups served are older workers, criminal offenders, persons of limited English speaking ability, Indians, migrant and seasonal farmworkers, and through the Job Corps, severely disadvantaged youth in a residential setting.

(b) Program support.—This activity provides for technical assistance and training for Federal, State, and local personnel involved in the planning, administration, and direction of manpower programs. It provides a comprehensive system to develop labor market information; funds for research and demonstration projects; and evaluation of manpower programs.

(c) Computerized job placement.—In 1974, this activity was transferred to the grants to States for employment and unemployment insurance services accounts.

This account was established by the Employment Security Amendments of 1970 for the purpose of making repayable advances to the Extended Unemployment Compensation Account, Unemployment trust fund. Amounts appropriated as repayable advances are repaid, without interest, to the general fund of the Treasury. Federal Unemployment Tax Act receipts are estimated to be sufficient to finance the Federal costs of the Federal-State Extended Unemployment Compensation Act during 1974 and 1975.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment trust fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by State payroll taxes. These tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment trust fund and invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments. The expenses of State and Federal administration (including those of the Federal-State employment service), are paid from the fund out of revenue from the Federal unemployment tax, assessed on employers, of 0.5% of the first $4,200 of wages.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment trust fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

1. Labor-management relations services.—Provides assistance to unions, employers, employees, and State and local governments, including special studies and analyses, and technical assistance in planning for work force adjustments as they will affect labor-management relations; coordinates Federal action in particular labor-management disputes; and carries out the Department's responsibilities under the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964.

2. Labor-management policy development.—Develops recommendations on labor-management relations matters, and conducts studies of collective bargaining and programs pertaining to the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act (LMRDA), the Welfare and Pension Plans Disclosure Act (WPPDA), and Federal labor relations. In 1975 research will continue to include several of the many areas connected with labor-management relations as well as evaluation of present policies and programs.

3. Administration of reporting and disclosure laws.—Covers the administration and enforcement of the LMRDA, WPPDA, and section 18 of Executive Order 11491 which governs labor-management relations in the Federal service. Provides for the Department's participation in the President's program against organized crime.

NOTES

Includes $22 thousand in 1975 for activities previously financed from:

	1973	1974
Manpower Administration, program administration.		$22

Excludes $350 thousand in 1975 for activities transferred to: Departmental Management, salaries and expenses. Comparable amounts for 1974 ($350 thousand) are included above.

1. Improving and protecting wages.—This program seeks to obtain compliance with the minimum wage, overtime, child labor, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act, under the various Federal procurement acts, under the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act, and under the wage garnishment provisions in title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act. As a complement to the compliance program, regulations and interpretative materials are developed and special minimum wage standards are set. This program also includes determinations of prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits for all Federal and federally assisted contracts for construction subject to the Davis-Bacon Act and related acts. Prevailing wage rate and fringe benefit determinations are also made to protect service workers under the Service Contracts Act.

2. Elimination of discrimination in employment.—The major effort under this activity is to make equal opportunity an employment standard. Under Executive Order 11246, as amended to include sex discrimination, the Employment Standards Administration works to insure nondiscrimination in employment on Federal contracts. Under the Executive Order each contracting agency is responsible for obtaining compliance concerning those contracts entered into by the agency or its contractors. Employment Standards Administration is responsible for the direction, coordination, and evaluation of the contracting agencies' compliance programs. In various cities in 1975, increased employment opportunities will be provided to minorities in the construction industry through agreements among labor, management, and community groups under hometown, or where necessary, imposed plans. The program has been designated as a Presidential objective. Through its Women's Bureau, the Employment Standards Administration develops policies and programs to promote the welfare of wage-earning women and to encourage their fuller utilization in the work force. Enforcement of the equal pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act is also included in this activity.

3. Workmen's compensation.—Under this income maintenance activity, the Employment Standards Administration administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA), Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, their various extensions, and the benefit provisions of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act. These programs insure that eligible injured workers or their survivors receive compensation and medical benefits and a range of services including rehabilitation, careful supervision of medical care, and technical and advisory counseling to which they are entitled. The black lung program administered by the Department since July 1, 1973, has been designated as a Presidential objective.

4. Program development and administration.—This activity provides for the direction and coordination of employment standards programs. Program planning, research, evaluation, budget, and other administrative activities of the Employment Standards Administration are carried out to insure effective and efficient program management and execution.

5. Occupational safety and health.—This activity since 1973 has been supported by a separate appropriation for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

2. Black lung compensation benefits.—Administration of the black lung benefits program, by the Department of Labor began July 1, 1973. Title IV of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 as amended, provides that compensation benefits and, (after Jan. 1, 1974) medical treatment costs be paid to those who have been totally disabled due to pneumoconiosis. The Department pays benefits directly when no responsible mine operator can be determined under the insurance provisions of the act. Both surface and underground miners are covered by the program. Survivors who meet the test for eligibility are entitled to compensation benefits when in the case of a deceased miner, it is shown that the death was attributable to pneumoconiosis. An estimated 55,600 claims will be filed in 1974 and 38,000 in 1975.

3. Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation benefits.—Under the 1972 amendments to the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, the Federal Government pays one-half of the increased benefits provided by the amendments from direct appropriation for persons on the rolls prior to enactment.

4. Other benefits.—Benefits are paid to eligible claimants under the War Claims Act of 1948 and the War Hazards Compensation Act; to reserve components of the Armed Forces prior to 1956; and to other small groups of employees.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, and for fines and penalty payments.

Section 44 of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act was amended in 1972 increasing the amount of payments made into the special fund by employers and providing for direct appropriation funds to be deposited into the special fund for the payment of the Federal portion of the increased compensation provided by the amendments.

These trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury results in a permanent partial disability which, combined with a previous disability, results in permanent total disability or death, the employer provides compensation only for the disability caused by the subsequent injury.

In 1974 and 1975, the administrative costs relating to the administration of the District of Columbia Workmen's Compensation Act will be reflected as a reimbursement to the Employment Standards Administration's salaries and expenses account.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is responsible for performing the functions assigned to the Secretary of Labor by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970.

1. Safety and health standards.—Mandatory standards are promulgated to protect the safety and health of workers. New and revised standards are proposed on the basis of criteria recommended by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, special advisory committees appointed by the Secretary, Federal and State agencies with related responsibilities, and other interested parties and organizations. All new standards, except emergency temporary standards, are promulgated under procedures providing opportunity for public comment. Studies are undertaken to identify workplace hazards and the causes of occupational injuries and illnesses. Testing laboratories which test for and certify safety specified products, devices, systems, materials, or installations and which meet prescribed conditions, are accredited.

2. Enforcement.—Enforcement of the occupational safety and health standards is performed by the physical inspection of plants and facilities. States may provide for the coverage of one or more occupational safety and health issues under an approved plan with standards and a program of enforcement which have been determined to be as effective as the Federal program. Program operations are targeted to the investigation of fatal or catastrophic accidents, claims of imminent danger, and bona fide employee complaints and to inspections of industries or work processes with a high incidence and severity of work-related injuries or illnesses. Inspections of a cross-section of establishments in all industries are also conducted. Federal matching grants of up to 50% of the total costs are provided to States to assist them in administering and enforcing approved State programs of occupational safety and health and for administering approved State statistical programs. State programs are evaluated to insure that all elements of their approved plans are implemented effectively and that adequate funds and resources are provided. Federal and State enforcement efforts are integrated to provide a balanced national program of occupational safety and health. It is estimated that 75,000 inspections will be made under the Act in 1974 by Federal enforcement personnel and 150,000 inspections will be made by agencies in 30 States with approved programs. In 1975, Federal inspections are expected to increase to 105,000 and State inspections will increase to 250,000.

3. Training, education, and information.—Training courses, educational programs, and information are provided to employers, employees, trade associations, union representatives, State and local safety and health personnel, other interested members of the public and Federal departments and agencies to assist them in an understanding of the Act and of the actions necessary to assure so far as possible all workers a safe and healthful work place. Short-term technical and professional training is conducted to increase the number and competence of personnel engaged in the field of occupational safety and health. OSHA directed or approved training opportunities will be provided to more than 200,000 persons in 1975.

4. Safety and health statistics.—Statistics on occupational fatalities, injuries and illnesses are collected and published annually to aid in the identification of occupational safety and health problems and to facilitate improvements in the administration of the Act. Studies are conducted to identify circumstances and events associated with injuries and illnesses which may suggest causes and means of prevention.

5. Executive direction and administration.—Executive direction, planning and evaluation, and management support functions are structured to assure responsive administration and effective implementation of the Act. To a considerable degree, program responsibilities are decentralized to the field with the implementation of these programs as they effect the public, performed by a Federal field staff located in 10 regional offices, 61 area and district offices, and 28 field stations.

3. Wages and industrial relations.—Data are collected and analyzed on occupational wages and salaries in major labor markets and industries. Monthly information is compiled on work stoppages and wage developments. Reports and studies are issued on fringe benefits, expenditures, collective bargaining agreements, trade union organization, and private welfare and pension plans.

WORKLOAD STATISTICS (MAJOR ITEMS)

Wages and industrial relations:	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Occupational wages; establishments reporting annually.....	30,500	30,500	32,800

Work stoppages; employees and unions reporting annually.....	4,700	4,900	5,000
Wage index; establishments reporting.....	-----	350	2,500

4. Productivity and technology.—Analyses are prepared on output per man-hour and unit-labor cost trends for both the entire U.S. economy and for specific industries. Studies are conducted on automation and other technological changes and the adjustments to such changes. Studies are made of labor requirements for selected types of construction. Analyses and international comparisons are made of prices, wages, employment, unemployment, and unit-labor costs. Research is conducted on the effects of international trade on U.S. employment.

5. Economic research.—Long-range projections of U.S. economic growth are prepared. Analytical studies of the impact of economic changes on employment are made. Information, reports, and advisory services for policy and program work are provided on labor conditions in foreign countries. Special economic and social studies are undertaken and special reports prepared for the Commissioner, the Secretary, the Council of Economic Advisors, and other Government agencies.

6. Executive direction and staff services.—Provides leadership in developing plans and policies for the Bureau's economic, statistical, and management programs. Program plans are coordinated and evaluated. Statistical and data processing systems are operated and maintained. Research and report activities are coordinated; publications and releases are planned and edited; and a central inquiry service is maintained.

7. Revision of the Consumer Price Index.—The Consumer Price Index measures average changes in the retail prices of selected goods, rents, and services. A revision to modernize the index is underway to meet the demands for its use in present-day domestic, economic, and industrial planning. The revision program, which was initiated in 1970, has been phased so that a revised index will be completed, tested, and published in 1977.

Reimbursable program.—Funds are advanced from sources outside the Federal Government to finance special statistical studies. During 1975, the Bureau will collect and analyze store inventory prices for the American Retail Federation, conduct surveys on compensation and labor cost studies for the State of New York, and will develop an index of cost of operating apartment houses for the City of New York.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. Appropriations in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for supplies, services, and rental of conference space within the District of Columbia, as the Secretary of Labor shall deem necessary for settlement of labor-management disputes.

TITLE IV—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. Appropriations contained in this Act, available for salaries and expenses, shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18.

SEC. 402. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 403. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities.

SEC. 404. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are each authorized to make available not to exceed $7,500 from funds available for salaries and expenses under titles I and II, respectively, for official reception and representation expenses.

SEC. 405. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 406. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to finance any Civil Service Interagency Board of Examiners.

SEC. 407. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, a grant, the salary of or any remuneration whatever to any individual applying for admission, attending, employed by, teaching at, or doing research at an institution of higher education who has engaged in conduct on or after August 1, 1969, which involves the use of (or the assistance to others in the use of) force or the threat of force or the seizure of property under the control of an institution of higher education, to require or prevent the availability of certain curriculum, or to prevent the faculty, administrative officials, or students in such institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies at such institution.

SEC. 408. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are authorized to transfer unexpended balances of prior appropriations to accounts corresponding to current appropriations provided in this Act: Provided, That such transferred balances are used for the same purpose, and for the same periods of time, for which they were originally appropriated.

SEC. 409. Funds contained in this Act used to pay for contract services by profitmaking consultant firms or to support consultant appointments shall not exceed the fiscal year 1973 level: Provided, That obligations made from funds contained in this Act for consultant fees and services to any individual or group of consulting firms on any one project in excess of $25,000 shall be reported to the Senate and House of Representatives at least twice annually.

SEC. 410. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used, other than for normal and recognized executive-legislative relationships, for publicity or propaganda purposes, for the preparation, distribution, or use of any kit, pamphlet, booklet, publication, radio, television, or film presentation designed to support or defeat legislation pending before the Congress, except in presentation to the Congress itself. (Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1974.)

1. Executive direction and policy formulation.—The Secretary is assisted in the formulation of policy and direction of the Department's activities by appropriate staff officers, specialized offices, and functional bureaus of the Department.

2. Conduct of diplomatic and consular relations with foreign countries.—This includes representation of the United States and its citizens abroad, political and economic negotiations and reporting, consular operations, and overseas administrative services. Major items of increase are for rising prices and local employee wage rates in other countries, increased consular workload overseas, strengthening overseas U.S. commercial activities, opening new posts, and additional and replacement equipment.

3. Conduct of diplomatic relations with international organizations.—In collaboration with other Government agencies, U.S. policy is developed and coordinated on political and security issues and in such specialized fields as world health, education, and labor activities.

4. Domestic public information and liaison.—This program provides for informing the American public on international policies and also keeping the Department informed on American attitudes on foreign policy.

5. Central program services.—These provide personnel and physical security measures, operations of the Foreign Service Institute, and the administration of a global communications system for civilian activities of the Government, including services for other agencies on a reimbursable basis.

6. Administrative and staff activities.—This includes normal domestic administrative activities.

The Foreign Service buildings program provides consolidated office space for the Foreign Service and other Government agencies abroad and living quarters for American employees. This program also finances real property leases of 10 years or more (shorter term leases are included in Salaries and expenses); procurement of initial furniture and furnishings; and repair, maintenance, and operating costs of these facilities.

The table below shows present and estimated property holdings by the type of structure and geographic area (dollars in thousands):

Unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other Government civilian operations overseas. Housing is provided American employees in localities where suitable housing is otherwise unavailable.

Since 1961 a separate appropriation for payments in excess foreign currencies has been enacted annually to supplement the regular appropriation. These currencies are used to acquire or construct real property and to finance operating and maintenance costs to the greatest extent possible. Countries in which the appropriation is expected to be used in 1975 are the Arab Republic of Egypt, Burma, Guinea, India, Pakistan, Poland, and Tunisia. These funds are credited to and expended under the regular appropriation.

The current appropriation finances, by 30 equal annual installments, the unfunded liability created by new or liberalized benefits, new groups of beneficiaries, or salary increases. The request for 1975 includes $2,972 thousand for continuing installments for salary increases through 1972, $1,963 thousand for salary increases effective in January and October, 1973, and $15,600 thousand for the inclusion in the Foreign Service retirement system of career Foreign Service employees of the Agency for International Development, as authorized by section 625(k) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1973.

The permanent appropriation provides payments to the fund for increasing shares of the interest on the unfunded liability and annuity disbursements attributable to military service: 30% in 1973, 40% in 1974, and 50% in 1975.

The fund is maintained through (a) contributions by participants, consisting of all Foreign Service officers, Foreign Service information officers, Foreign Service reserve officers with unlimited tenure, and eligible Foreign Service staff officers and employees, of 7% of their salaries; (b) matching Government contributions; (c) special Government contributions from Payment to Foreign Service retirement and disability fund, above; and (d) interest on investments (22 U.S.C. 1062).

Budget authority for 1974 and 1975 includes transfers from the Civil Service retirement fund of $10,824 thousand and $18,480 thousand, respectively, in contributions of Agency for International Development personnel joining the Foreign Service retirement system pursuant to section 625(k) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1973. The inclusion of these new participants also accounts for most of the increased deductions from employees' salaries and the employer's contribution in 1974 and 1975, as well as for substantial increases in the Federal contribution as explained above under Payment to Foreign Service retirement and disability fund.

It is estimated that approximately 3,601 annuitants will be paid retirement benefits from this fund at the end of 1975 compared with 3,096 at the end of 1973 and 3,401 at the end of 1974. Gratuities represent payments to Foreign Service officers in classes 4, 5, 6, and 7 who are selected out of the Service.

The United States contributes its assessed share of the budgets of the above listed international organizations.

About 75% of the increases in the organization budgets are attributable to the costs of maintaining the prior year level of operations, including wage and price increases and currency revaluations. Other principal increases include: (1) The United Nations costs for conference activities and expanding economic and social programs, (2) the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization activities in the areas of the natural sciences, drug abuse prevention, family planning, and education, (3) the World Health Organization activities in the fields of health manpower development, public health services, environmental health and communicable diseases control, (4) the Food and Agriculture Organization costs for Chinese language requirements and intensive commodity consultations with the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, (5) the International Labor Organization costs for occupancy of the new headquarters building, (6) the Pan American Health Organization field programs concerned with disease control, training of health personnel, environmental health, biostatistics and zoonoses.

The unobligated balance lapsing in 1974 reflects the fact that the United States assessed share of the costs of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East will be financed from the appropriation, "Emergency security assistance for Israel."

1. General administration.—Activities comprise negotiations and supervision of joint projects with Mexico to solve international problems, overall control of the operation of the U.S. section of the Commission, formulation of operating policies and procedures, and financial management to carry out international obligations of the United States, pursuant to treaty and congressional authorization.

2. General engineering.—This provides for (a) supervision of measurement and determination of the national ownership of boundary waters, (b) technical engineering guidance and supervision of the planning, construction, and operation and maintenance of international projects, and (c) studies relating to international problems of a continuing nature.

3. Preliminary surveys and investigations.—Preliminary surveys and investigations are made to determine the need for and feasibility of projects for the solution of international problems arising along the boundary. The proposed program for 1975 includes the following investigations: (a) Settlement of boundary disputes, (b) international salinity problems, (c) division of waters crossing land boundary.

4. Operation and maintenance.—This appropriation finances the United States part of the operation and maintenance of the various international projects as follows:

(a) River control.—These projects include Rio Grande canalization project, American dam and canal project, Rio Grande rectification project in the El Paso area; the Lower Rio Grande flood control project including the Anzalduas International Flood Control Diversion Dam and the Retamal International Flood Control Diversion Dam, completed in 1973, in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, and the Lower Colorado River clearing project.

(b) Dams.—These projects include the Amistad Dam and Reservoir, and the Falcon Dam and Reservoir, both built with Mexico, and the Falcon powerplant.

(c) Gaging stations.—The international gaging station program involves the operation and maintenance of 103 gaging stations in the United States on the Rio Grande and Colorado Rivers, and taking measurements of river flows and diversions to provide the basis for the determination of national ownership of waters.

(d) Water quality control.—These projects include the International Lower Rio Grande water quality improvement project built in Mexico to reduce the salinity of the Rio Grande; the Douglas, Arizona-Agua-Prieta, Sonora and the Nogales, Arizona-Nogales, Sonora sanitation plants.

1. International Salinity Control Project, Colorado River.—Measures to resolve a unique international problem were authorized by Minute No. 242 (August 30, 1973), concluded under the treaty between the United States and Mexico (February 3, 1944), and entitled "Permanent and Definitive Solution of the International Problem of the Salinity of the Colorado River." These international measures will be financed, constructed, operated and maintained by the Commission. In 1975, the work consists of preconstruction planning and design work, land acquisition, and payments to Mexico to initiate construction of a bypass drain to the Gulf of California.

3. Lower Rio Grande flood control improvement program.—Authorized by agreement with Mexico and the act of August 19, 1935 (49 Stat. 660). Work will continue on repairs and improvements of flood control works to protect the cities of Brownsville, Harlingen, Mercedes, Hidalgo, and Weslaco, whose metropolitan areas include a combined population of 125,000 and over 400,000 acres of irrigated land on the United States side of the Rio Grande, from river floods such as occurred in September 1967 following Hurricane Beulah.

5. Tijuana River flood control.—Authorized by the act of October 10, 1966 (90 Stat. 884). The initial construction of United States improvements required for flood control in the Tijuana River Valley in California and Baja, California is scheduled to begin in calendar year 1974.

6. Settlement of boundary disputes.—Authorized by the American-Mexican Boundary Treaty Act of 1972, approved October 25, 1972 (Public Law 92-549), to facilitate compliance with the Treaty between the United States of America and the United Mexican States, signed November 23, 1970. Work will continue in relocating the Rio Grande at three locations to effect transfers of land from one country to the other, establishing maritime boundaries, mapping river boundaries, rectification works, acquiring easements and constructing an international flood control project in the Presidio area.

The 1968 appropriation completed the financing, as authorized by the American-Mexican Chamizal Convention Act of 1964, for compliance with the Chamizal Convention between the United States and Mexico. The transfer of the lands between Mexico and the United States has been accomplished. The relocation of the Rio Grande channel was completed in December 1968.

With remaining available funds, the acquisition of lands, channel strengthening, and levee improvements were completed in 1973 to extend the rectification project

3.4 miles to the land boundary, as authorized by the Chamizal Convention. This 3.4 miles of unregulated and unimproved river required improvement to complete the stabilization of the boundary river and control floods between the cities of Juarez and El Paso. This work was undertaken jointly with Mexico. With completion of this work, all of the requirements of the Chamizal Convention will have been fulfilled.

These funds are used for payment of the U.S. share of the expenses of:

1. International Boundary Commission.—This Commission keeps the United States-Canadian boundary line marked in accordance with existing treaties. It also maintains boundary vistas by periodic tree cutting and chemical vegetation control.

2. International Joint Commission.—The Commission, at the request of the Governments of the United States and Canada, investigates and reports on recommendations relevant to boundary waters and other matters of mutual concern to both countries along the border. A major portion of its current activities is related to transboundary water pollution investigations, surveillance and research in the Great Lakes Basin, as provided in the United States-Canada Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement dated April 15, 1972. In cooperation with the U.S. Geological Survey and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the Commission gathers streamflow data, acts to ensure appropriate apportionment of international waters, and regulates the operation of a number of river flow control facilities located in boundary waters.

This appropriation provides for the educational and cultural exchange programs of the Department of State. These programs are designed to strengthen patterns of informal communication among leadership groups and institutions in ways which will favorably influence the environment within which U.S. foreign policy is carried out. They (1) focus on individuals of exceptional talent, promise or influence; (2) emphasize exchanges involving cultural, educational, governmental and other institutions; (3) help achieve other U.S. goals at the same time they improve communication; and (4) seek mutuality of interest, involvement and benefit as the most effective way to develop lasting understanding.

Increases would permit carrying out the provisions of new formal agreements with the Soviet Union and Eastern European countries; take advantage of new opportunities for interchange with the People's Republic of China; enable expansion of efforts to multiply governmental resources through increased commitment of funds and voluntary activities of the private sector; and provide further services to nongrant foreign students, youth exchanges and American-sponsored schools abroad.

Annual payments are made to the Government of Panama in consideration of the rights granted in perpetuity for the construction of the Panama Canal (33 Stat. 2238 and 53 Stat. 1818). The Treaty of Mutual Understanding and Cooperation of 1955 provided for an annual payment by the United States of $1,930 thousand. As a result of the devaluation of the U.S. dollar (Public Law 92-268) the annual payment was increased to $2,095 thousand, and further increased to $2,328 thousand due to further devaluation of the U.S. dollar (Public Law 93-110). $518 thousand of this amount is reimbursed to the Treasury by the Panama Canal Company.

1. General administration.—This activity includes the costs necessary for the overall planning and direction of the Department. It covers the immediate secretarial offices as well as those of the assistant secretaries and the general counsel. Also covered are staff assistance and supervision of general management and administration in the Department and general administrative services provided to the organizations financed from this appropriation. Also financed in 1975 is $2,736 thousand for building rental and maintenance costs of leased space, as required by the Public Buildings Amendments of 1972, Public Law 92-313.

2. Grants-in-aid for natural gas pipeline safety.—This activity provides for grants of up to 50% of the cost of personnel, equipment, and activities of a State agency reasonably required to carry out a natural gas pipeline safety program as authorized under the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968 (49 U.S.C. 1674) which also established minimum safety standards.

3. Consolidation of departmental headquarters.—No funding is requested for this activity in 1975. In 1973 and 1974 this activity covered rental and maintenance costs of leased building and garage space. In 1975 these costs will be distributed among the administrations and the Office of the Secretary.

4. Regional rail reorganization.—This activity provides the necessary expenses to carry out the Secretary's planning, report preparation, and other functions under the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973.

The Department of Transportation Act of 1966 assigns to the Secretary broad responsibilities for the development and coordination of national transportation policies and programs. This appropriation finances those research activities and studies which directly support the Secretary's responsibilities and which can more effectively or appropriately be conducted in the Office of the Secretary than by the operating administrations within the Department.

The program is carried out primarily through contracts with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit research organizations, and private firms.

1. Transportation policy and planning.—Transportation problems and issues are assessed and policies developed on the basis of empirical and systematic research. Major increases in 1975 will provide for development of transportation energy conservation policies, increased data base on commodity movements and personal travel, and a national transportation systems assessment.

2. University research.—This research is designed to assure that resources of the higher education community are effectively brought to bear on transportation problems. Another aim is to encourage greater involvement of universities and colleges with the Department, State, and local governments, and the transportation industry.

3. Transportation systems development and technology.—In general, projects are designed to complement research and development programs of the operating administrations and to stimulate industry efforts to advance transportation technology. Increased funds requested in this activity will expand the advanced research and development to find ways to conserve energy used in transportation, to develop multimodal and intermodal systems and technology, and to promote environmental and ecological improvements.

4. Special programs.—Projects are chiefly to provide technical studies and other data in support of departmental effort in the areas of safety program coordination, hazardous materials and pipeline safety, consumer and environmental affairs, and facilitation of passenger and freight transportation. Major increases in 1975 will support a larger environmental impact assessment capability and expand the facilitation program.

The Working capital fund finances common administrative services which are centrally performed in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department.

Operating results and financial condition.—Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all operating expenses, including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by the operating administrations and offices being served.

The fund was established to facilitate the operations of the Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge, Mass. The Center is funded from advances received from the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations in the Department.

The Transportation Systems Center serves as a technical resource for the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations. Its planned projects for 1975 are grouped generally along the following lines:

Improve capacity and service.—Project work under this heading is in the areas of aviation, with strong efforts in air and ground traffic control; and ground rail systems.

Reduce costs.—Rail and tunneling technology and transportation security comprise the major portion of TSC's work in this category.

Protect the environment and conserve energy.—Noise abatement, energy options for transportation, and environmental analysis are the main project areas under this heading.

Improve safety.—Emphasis in this category is on rail and aviation safety along with on-going support to programs on highway safety.

Provide future options.—Project work on satellite systems, advanced mass transit systems and multimodal research is included in this category. Multimodal projects include socio-economic analyses, advanced research, and urban development.

Improve research and development payoff.—This grouping has as its major efforts the urban rail technology facilities program at Pueblo, payoff analysis and transportation data management.

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out the duties specified in title 14, United States Code.

Direct program.—1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs any and all acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft accidents, floods, and ice conditions (14 U.S.C. 88). Coast Guard activities in the area of search and rescue fall within the national SAR plan and other agreements. Also included are icebreaking operations in domestic harbors and waterways to facilitate the movement of waterborne commerce (DOT Act, title 49) and to assist in the prevention of flooding caused by ice accumulation (14 U.S.C. 141).

2. Aids to navigation.—A network of manned and unmanned aids to navigation is maintained along our coasts and on our inland waterways through the use of tenders and shore facilities to insure the safe passage of the mariner. Loran stations are operated in the United States and abroad to serve the needs of the armed services and marine and air commerce (14 U.S.C. 81). Administrative control is exercised over the construction, maintenance, and operation of bridges across the navigable waters of the United States to insure that the safe passage of navigation is not unreasonably interfered with (33 U.S.C. 401, 491, 499, and 525).

3. Marine safety.—The Coast Guard insures compliance with Federal statutes and regulations pertaining to the merchant marine industry by reviewing plans and specifications for the construction or alteration of merchant vessels; by periodic inspections; by licensing and documenting vessels; by conducting marine casualty investigations; and by setting standards, procedures, and practices under which merchant marine personnel are licensed and regulated (14 U.S.C. 2). The Coast Guard, assisted by the Coast Guard Auxiliary and State and local agencies, carries on a balanced boating safety program.

4. Marine environmental protection.—Under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, the National Environmental Policy Act, the Ports and Waterways Safety Act, and other laws, international agreements, and conventions, the Coast Guard is charged with the prevention of damage to the marine environment from intentional and unintentional acts and for the enhancement of environmental quality. Under the Ports and Waterways Safety Act, title 14 of the United States Code, the Dangerous Cargo Act, the Tank Vessel Act, Executive Order 10173, as amended, and various other statutes, the Coast Guard must safeguard and secure U.S. ports and waterways against environmental harm, accidental or intentional loss, damage, or injury, and by doing so, to improve the economic utilization of ports and waterways while assuring their availability in time of national emergency.

Polar icebreaking is performed by specially constructed icebreakers engaged in operations in support of Coast Guard programs and other agencies (14 U.S.C. 2). Also included in this program is conduct of the International Ice Patrol (46 U.S.C. 738) and enforcement of international agreements and Federal laws, except for those related to pollution, traffic control, and port and vessel safety.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, shore units, and aids to navigation. Operating expenses funds are used to defray expenses of minor acquisitions, alterations, additions, renewals, and replacements where estimated costs of a project are $50 thousand or less and where renewals and replacements involve less than 75% of the original facility.

1. Search and rescue.—Under this activity several small search and rescue boats will be constructed; replacement medium-range surveillance aircraft will be procured; and replacement, renovation, or construction at 11 shore sites and facilities will be provided for.

2. Aids to navigation.—Provision is made under this activity for the procurement of aids to navigation boats, the construction of one replacement inland construction tender, the renovation and improvement of several buoy tenders, and the modernization of outdated vessel communications equipment on five buoy tenders.

The program under this activity also includes construction of the new Coast Guard Base (phase III) at Portsmouth, Va.; a depot building at Keokuk, Iowa; renovation and consolidation of the Coast Guard Base, Kodiak, Alaska (phase II); and the establishment of navigation facilities on the U.S. west coast.

Additionally, major activities will focus on the establishment of new and the improvement of existing waterways aids to navigation; the continuation of the lighthouse automation and modernization program (LAMP); and replacement of outdated electronic equipment for Loran-C stations operating in the Mediterranean chain.

3. Marine environmental protection.—This program provides for the procurement of boats for port safety and harbor pollution patrols and the relocation of Coast Guard units in Seattle, Wash.

Pollution control efforts include the alteration of several Coast Guard vessels to eliminate the discharge of oily and nonoily wastes into U.S. waters.

Construction of a vessel traffic system at Valdez, Alaska, will be provided for.

4. Ocean operations.—This program provides for the replacement of outdated secure radio teletype communications equipment for three icebreakers and modernization of communications equipment on two medium endurance cutters.

5. Military readiness.—No funding is requested for this activity.

6. General support.—This activity includes programs for renovation and expansion of Coast Guard facilities at five selected locations.

Another major effort will provide for the construction and purchase of housing and barracks facilities for Coast Guard personnel and their dependents where living accommodations are inadequate.

The Coast Guard Reserve training program's objective is to provide qualified individuals and trained units to be available for active duty in time of war or national emergency, and to augment regular forces during domestic emergencies and natural disasters. The Reserve program consists of four activities as follows:

1. Initial training.—Direct costs associated with enlisted trainees performing 5 to 11 months' initial training duty are programed under this activity. These enlisted trainees attend class A school and the period of initial training duty is governed by the length of the class A school plus recruit training.

2. Continuing training.—Direct costs of officer and enlisted drills and annual active duty for training are programed under this activity.

3. Operation and maintenance of training facilities.—All costs for the operation and maintenance of Reserve training facilities are programed under this activity. Included are the costs of a training vessel, the prorated share of the cost of joint usage of Coast Guard and other Armed Forces facilities, the cost of providing station-keeper support to the organized Reserve training units, and the procurement of training aids and facilities (under $50 thousand).

4. Administration.—This activity encompasses all administrative costs of the Reserve training program.

1. Search and rescue.—Special emphasis will be placed on improved ship-helicopter operational capability. Other major projects include continued improvement and testing of the distress alerting and locating system, design and development of a prototype helicopter sensor system, participation in testing of a marine satellite communications system, and investigation of the necessary operational capabilities for a high-performance surface craft.

Also included are activities to strengthen domestic ice-breaking capabilities through the pursuit of innovative techniques.

2. Aids to navigation.—Program activities are intended to reduce potential for pollution-causing incidents, to improve the effectiveness, reliability, and position accuracy of existing navigational aids, and to reduce the cost of operating that system. Major efforts include continued development and testing of lightweight, low maintenance, and nonpolluting buoyage system components.

3. Marine safety.—Commercial vessel safety activities include (a) continuation of spill risk analysis to identify critical factors which can be altered to reduce the potential for damage from hazardous material spills, (b) analysis and testing of selected cargoes to assess their respective hazards, (c) analysis of cargo systems to improve inspection procedures, (d) continued development of a prototype membrane oil-water separation system to minimize accidental discharges, and (e) continued development of improved fire safety equipment and techniques.

Boating safety activities include fabrication and testing of improved lifejacket designs, research and analysis of boat construction and performance factors, and development of test procedures for evaluating the effectiveness of performance standards.

4. Marine environmental protection.—(a) Pollution response.—Continue development of the high seas oil recovery system and investigate methods or equipment to store and dispose of the recovered oil, examine special techniques and equipment to cope with arctic and fast-current pollution, and complete requirements analysis to minimize effects of hazardous material spills.

(b) Pollution prevention and enforcement.—Flight-test and evaluate the prototype airborne oil surveillance system, modify detection and identification sensors for hazardous materials and arctic oil spills, and continue development of prototype oil samplers used for source identification.

(c) In-house abatement.—Design and fabricate oil/water separators for ballast water and recovered oil/water mixes, construct and test 50-man and 20-man shipboard sewage systems, and develop air pollution control equipment for Coast Guard vessels.

Vessel traffic system development, in San Francisco, Calif., will continue with emphasis on system reliability and improved traffic management techniques.

5. Ocean operations.—No activity funded in this area.

6. Program support.—This area provides for administrative and project management personnel at Coast Guard Headquarters, and for the operation, maintenance, and personnel costs of the R. & D. laboratory facilities.

This appropriation provides financial assistance for State boating safety programs as authorized by the Federal Boat Safety Act of 1971 (Public Law 92-75).

The act provides for a coordinated national boating safety program to improve boating safety and to foster greater development, use, and enjoyment of all the waters of the United States by encouraging and assisting participation by the several States, the boating industry, and the boating public in development of more comprehensive boating safety programs.

This fund was established under section 311(k) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended by Public Law 92-500, to insure immediate cleanup of oil or other hazardous polluting substances spilled into the navigable waters of the United States, adjoining shorelines, or waters of the contiguous zone. The fund will be used when a spill occurs and the responsible owner or operator of a vessel, of an onshore facility, or of an offshore facility (whether in the public or private sector) does not accomplish immediate cleanup with his own resources. Expenditures from the fund will later be reimbursed by the responsible owner or operator (whether in the public or private sector). In addition, all fines and civil penalties assessed under section 311(k) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, will be deposited into the fund.

The Coast Guard supply fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing; commissary provisions; general stores; technical material; and fuel for vessels over 200 feet in length. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Activity of approximately $40 million in this fund in 1975 is divided 9% for uniform clothing; 53% for commissary provisions; and 38% for general stores, technical material, and fuel.

Higher sales in 1974 and 1975 in clothing, commissary provisions, and fuel are expected as a result of increases in the number of recruits, new enlisted uniform, and increases in price levels.

The Coast Guard cadet fund is utilized by the Superintendent of the Coast Guard Academy to receive, plan, control, and expend personal funds of Coast Guard cadets. By use of the fund each cadet is assured funds to meet personal expenses while at the Academy and an adequate balance in his account at graduation for officer outfits, civilian clothing, and graduation leave expenses. The fund also receives and expends funds of the Coast Guard Academy Athletic Association.

The Coast Guard surcharge collections, sales of commissary stores fund is used to finance expenses incurred in connection with the operation of the Coast Guard commissary stores at Coast Guard Base, Governors Island, N.Y.; Coast Guard Training Center, Petaluma, Calif.; and Coast Guard Base, Kodiak, Alaska. Revenue is derived from a surcharge placed on sales to authorized store patrons (14 U.S.C. 487).

1. Operations.—(a) Operation of traffic control system.—With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 27 centers monitor and control en route flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 398 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 325 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other information to pilots and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. The increase in 1975 will provide for some increased employment in the controller work force to handle workload growth and to operate newly commissioned air traffic control facilities.

(b) Installation and materiel services.—This activity covers procurement, contracting and materiel management programs; supply support and leased communications services for the traffic control system; and supply support for agency aircraft. Major increases in 1975 are to provide supply support and leased communications services for air traffic control and air navigation facilities.

(c) Maintenance of traffic control system.—This activity covers the direction and engineering services related to the establishment and improvement of facilities and equipment in the traffic control system; and technical operation and maintenance on navigation and traffic control aids. Major increases in 1975 are for the maintenance of new traffic control and navigation aids planned for commissioning.

(d) Administration of flight standards program.—This activity provides for: (1) Monitoring the accuracy of signals emitted from the air navigation aids; and (2) the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies which meet safety or competency requirements. This program also provides for the management, operation and maintenance of agency aircraft used in facility flight inspection, development of flight procedures, and inspector flight training. Resources are also included under this activity for the conduct of the Federal air transportation security program.

(e) Administration of medical programs.—This activity covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of a health and medical program for agency personnel; the administration of an aviation medical research program, the projects costs of which are financed under Research, engineering and development and the Facilities, engineering and development appropriations; and the operation of the Civil Aeromedical Institute building.

(f) Development direction.—This activity covers the planning, direction, and evaluation of the engineering and development program and administrative support for the operation of the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center at Atlantic City, N.J.

(g) Administration of airports program.—This activity provides for the administration of an airport planning grant program, a development assistance program for the improvement of public airports, and an airport certification program.

1. Engineering and development.—(a) Aircraft safety.—This covers the development of standards, rules, regulations, and certification for an accident prevention program designed to promote flight safety of civil aircraft by assuring the design, flight performance characteristics, and airworthiness of aircraft. Development of such antihijacking devices as weapon and explosive detection systems and methods of reducing risk to life resulting from hijackings are also included. (b) Environment.—Principal efforts provided for under this subactivity are the development of data to support rule-making decisions, and development of certification standards and criteria to economically minimize the undesired environmental effects on the public. This effort includes a program to investigate ways to achieve significant engine noise reduction through improved design features. Also included is the study of the chemical reaction of engine exhausts in the stratosphere and its biological consequences on the earth's environment. The foregoing programs include funds for analyses and experimentations of the flying and handling qualities of various categories of STOL and VTOL aircraft to obtain criteria for originating or updating airworthiness and operational standards of these types of aircraft. The knowledge and data developed will enable the improvement of the current and future quiet short-haul system and lead to the issuance of new standards, certification criteria, and regulations. (c) Aviation medicine.—This subactivity provides for conducting an aero-medical engineering and development program to identify and eliminate those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize flight safety.

2. Facilities and equipment.—Aircraft and related equipment.—This provides for training equipment used primarily by flight inspectors in keeping abreast of the latest technology in the areas of their responsibility and for the purpose of maintaining proficiency in the performance of their duties. Procurement and modification of nonflight inspection aircraft, and improvement and replacement of navigation and communication equipment is included.

The Airport and Airway Revenue Act of 1970 (title II of Public Law 91-258) establishes in the Treasury of the United States an Airport and airway trust fund. Section 208(b) of the act provides that all revenues from aviation user taxes are appropriated to the trust fund. Section 208(d) of the act authorizes additional appropriations to the trust fund as may be required to make expenditures for airport and airway activities conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration which are specifically described under section 208(f) of the act.

This account provided for an appropriation equal to the difference between tax revenues estimated to be collected by the Treasury and appropriations enacted by the Congress under the three operating accounts under the Airport and airway trust fund.

Operation of the federally owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports, which serve the National Capital Area, is conducted on a business basis with revenues derived from landing fees, concession activity, and lease arrangements deposited as receipts in the general fund of the Treasury. The direct operating costs and capital outlays are financed by direct appropriation.

All outlays for physical improvements are added to the airport's capital investment and will be subsequently recovered through fees and charges to the tenants and users of the airports, in accordance with established business practices.

The combined Washington National and Dulles International airport revenues from air carriers, tenants and concessionaires for 1975 is expected to exceed operating costs, before application of interest and depreciation, by $7.9 million.

Construction.—These subactivities finance construction of major improvements to, and expansion of facilities at these airports to adequately, safely, and efficiently meet air travel needs of the public.

At Washington National Airport, funds are provided for overlay of taxiways, storm drainage improvements, modifications to the industrial waste treatment plant, roadway improvements, development of a master plan, and improvement of the airport appearance for the bicentennial celebration in 1976.

At Dulles International Airport, funds are provided for enlarging the jet ramp and related support facilities, expansion of public parking, improving service roads, providing utilities to the north commercial area and office building, and replacement of airfield panels.

Operation and maintenance.—This subactivity finances maintenance, operations, management, and minor capital outlay costs for equipment and facility projects.

The following table reflects increase in activity at the airports:

The fund is available to provide premium aviation war risk hull insurance, whenever such insurance is not available commercially, to U.S. international air carriers. Premium binders are also issued to cover aircraft, persons, and property and will become war risk insurance in wartime and in situations short of war; policies covering aircraft, persons, and property which become active insurance upon issuance are available to certain civil air carriers in connection with Government contract operations. Administrative costs are out of fee receipts (49 U.S.C. 1531, as amended; 75 Stat. 210). The reduction in receipts is a result of lower requirements for Government provided war risk insurance to air carriers. War risk insurance is now available to air carriers on the commercial market.

Unfunded contingent liability as of October 31, 1973, is estimated at $41.0 billion. This amount includes hull insurance and personal and property liability on approximately 406 aircraft insured under this program.

The Airport and Airway Revenue Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-258, 84 Stat. 219), provides for the payment of revenue derived from passenger ticket taxes and other user taxes into the airport and airway trust fund. Appropriations are then made from the fund for Federal airport and airway expenditures. If insufficient funds are available in the trust fund to meet all commitments and legislative reserves (Public Law 92-174), funds are transferred from the general fund to make up the deficiency.

Legislation is being proposed to provide for the funding of FAA operating expenses from the trust fund with safeguards which will assure funding for all programs authorized by the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, as amended. The legislation will also provide for: A permanent Federal payment into the trust fund for military and civil government system use and Federal regulatory and certain administrative activities; and an interim payment to fill the gap between user fees and their appropriate share of costs. The proposal will also include increased user fees, which are not reflected in this table.

Airport grants are available for landing area improvements at air carrier and general aviation airports and for State, regional, and local airport master planning. In 1975 $275 million of the $310 million available for construction grants will be allocated to air carrier airports for projects such as runway, taxiway, and apron improvements; reimbursement for land purchases; new land purchases; runway lighting; antihijack equipment purchases; and construction of firehouses. The remaining $35 million is available for projects at general aviation airports.

Under this appropriation, the Federal airway system is improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities to keep pace with aeronautical activity. The 1975 program provides for the continuation and enhancement of major efforts already underway to provide an automation capability in the air traffic control system as well as to assure and improve the performance levels of installed systems. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed under the Operations appropriation.

1. Air route traffic control centers.—(a) Long range radar provides FAA air traffic controllers with information on aircraft positions, at distances up to 185 miles, (b) automation equipment covers computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling en route air traffic, (c) other center facilities cover the installation of equipment to provide communications and related services.

2. Airport traffic control towers.—(a) Terminal area radar aids traffic control in the vicinity of airports by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 60 miles, (b) terminal area automation covers computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling terminal air traffic, (c) other tower facilities cover the establishment, improvement and relocation of airport traffic control tower facilities.

3. Flight service stations.—(a) Domestic flight service stations and associated facilities provide flight assistance service to pilots, (b) international flight service stations provide long-distance communications for transoceanic flights.

4. Air navigation facilities.—(a) Very high frequency omni-directional radio ranges equipped with tactical air navigation capabilities (VORTAC) are standard short-range navigation aids used to define airways and air routes and to provide distance and direction information to pilots, (b) low- and medium-frequency facilities include radio beacons and ranges which provide pilots with direction and weather information, (c) instrument landing systems provide pilots with direction, distance, and glide slope information necessary for making safe approaches to runways under poor visibility conditions, (d) visual aids consist primarily of lighting aids which also assist the pilot in making final approaches to airport runways, particularly in areas where terrain or other environmental factors cause potential hazards to safe landings.

5. Housing, utilities, and miscellaneous facilities.—This section includes general support facilities.

6. Aircraft and related equipment.—This activity provides for facility flight inspection, aircraft, avionics, and related training equipment to inspect the accuracy and other characteristics of navigation and traffic control aids from the air.

7. Development, test, and evaluation facilities.—This activity provides for the construction and improvement of plant and facilities at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center in Atlantic City, N.J. It also includes the procurement of capital items of equipment for use in the engineering and development program.

1. Air traffic control.—This provides for incremental system improvements and the major upgrading of those systems required to perform modern traffic control functions. These include the surveillance of aircraft by tracking radars and control center processing of flight information received from pilots, airline dispatchers, flight service stations, and the surveillance system through a national communications network. The high-speed, or realtime, computerized processing of this data for traffic controllers is the key to increasing system capacity. This traffic control program also provides for increasing the capacity of major airports to safely and efficiently handle larger, faster passenger aircraft. These increases in airport capacity will be achieved by the development of new, computerized airport traffic control systems which will enable more efficient metering and spacing of terminal traffic under all weather conditions.

2. Navigation.—This provides for the development of ground-based systems which insure the precision navigation of aircraft. This capability ranks in importance with the radar surveillance of aircraft in the effort to increase system capacity. It requires the development of new omnirange stations and sophisticated landing systems capable of handling increased air traffic in adverse weather conditions.

3. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to modernize the acquisition, processing, dissemination and display of weather information tailored to the needs of aviation users.

4. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting aeromedical research directed toward identifying and eliminating those physiological and psychological factors inimical to personnel engaged in operating the traffic control system.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

Title 23, U.S.C. ("Highways") and other supporting legislation provide authority for the various programs of the Federal Highway Administration designed to secure and develop national highway systems.

In summary, the 1975 budget estimate contemplates $6.6 billion in budget authority, $4.8 billion in obligations, and $4.9 billion in outlays.

Obligations incurred provide the best measure of program activity in the various accounts of the Federal Highway Administration. The following table compares 1975 obligations with those of prior years:

This appropriation provides funds for projects initiated pursuant to the provisions of the Highway Beautification Act of 1965, together with the Federal-Aid Highway Acts of 1968 and 1970. While the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 provided authorizations for the administration of the program, no specific program authorizations were provided pending the Highway Beautification Commission report on the program. Additional authorizing legislation is being proposed by the Department of Transportation at this time.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970 provided for a revised program emphasis to concentrate on outdoor advertising whose objective is to remove all nonconforming outdoor signs along interstate and primary highways at the earliest practicable date.

The planned distribution of program obligations in 1975 as compared to 1974 is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Activity	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
1. Landscaping and scenic enhancement.....	9,795	3,000
2. Control of outdoor advertising.....	36,185	40,000

The Highway Safety Act of 1973 provided additional authorizations for grants to States and communities for implementing certain highway-related safety standards. The contract authority is from the highway trust fund and is available 1 year in advance of the year for which authorized and 2 years thereafter.

A total program level of $15 million will be provided in grants to assist States and localities in implementing these highway safety standards, which deal with traffic control devices, highway construction and maintenance, accident location surveillance, and highway related aspects of pedestrian safety. Since related highway safety standards are also administered by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, this amount is a tentative distribution. The final distribution will be determined after the annual program plans of the States for 1975 are submitted and approved by the two agencies.

The United States, in cooperation with the Republic of Panama and the Government of Colombia, is participating in the construction of approximately 250 miles of highway through the Darien Gap. This highway will connect the Inter-American Highway of Central America with the Pan-American Highway System of South America, creating a single, cohesive network stretching from Alaska to every South American country.

It is estimated that the total cost of the highway will be $150 million, with the United States participating up to $100 million, and the remaining $50 million being supplied by Colombia and Panama. The objective of the program is to provide an all-weather gravel surface road at the earliest possible date, pending resolution of the hoof and mouth disease control problems in Colombia.

A program level of $35 million in 1975 will permit the continued construction of the highway consistent with an early target of completion.

Grants are authorized by 23 U.S.C. 215(a) to assist the territorial governments of the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa in the improvement of their highway systems. Assistance is provided for an arterial highway system, and necessary interisland connectors, as designated by each territorial governor and approved by the Secretary of Transportation.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 provided additional contract authority for the years 1974, 1975, and 1976.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 made provisions for participation of the territories in certain highway safety programs. Because of these provisions, necessary adjustments have been reflected herein.

A total 1975 program level of $4.6 million is planned for technical assistance, highway improvements, and highway safety programs as provided above.

Contract authorizations were made available by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968 for each of the years 1970 and 1971 from the general fund. Additional authorizations were provided by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970 from the Highway Trust Fund.

All of the 1970 and 1971 authorizations were either obligated or lapsed at the end of 1973, however liquidating cash is still required to pay obligations incurred under contract authority.

A liquidating cash appropriation of $12.45 million will provide the total cash needed to liquidate the remaining unpa'd general fund obligations. While only $8.8 million in outlays is estimated in 1975, an appropriation of $12.45 million will obviate the need for requesting small amounts of cash over the next few years.

Beginning in 1974, this program will operate entirely with Highway trust fund authority and has been merged with the Federal-aid highways account.

All of the 1970 and 1971 authorizations were either obligated or lapsed at the end of 1973, however liquidating cash is still required to pay obligations incurred under contract authority.

A liquidating cash appropriation of $8.27 million will provide the total cash needed to liquidate the remaining unpaid general fund obligations. While only $5 million in outlays is estimated in 1975, an appropriation of $8.27 million will obviate the need for requesting small amounts of cash over the next few years.

Beginning in 1974, this program will operate entirely with Highway trust fund authority and has been merged with the Federal-aid highways account.

Section 322 of Title 23, United States Code, as added by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970, authorizes the Secretary to carry out a demonstration project for the elimination of all public ground-level rail-highway crossings along the route of high-speed ground transportation demonstration projects between Washington, D.C., and Boston, Mass., and in the vicinity of Greenwood, S.C. The authorization provides for the appropriation of not to exceed $22 million from general funds and $9 million from the Highway trust fund.

The revised estimate of the Federal share to complete this program is $53 million. Additional authorizing legislation of $22 million will be proposed.

The budget authorities and outlays contained in these schedules are the general-fund financed portion only. The combination of general and trust funds will provide for a 1975 program of $12.6 million.

RAILROAD-HIGHWAY CROSSINGS DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS

For necessary expenses of railroad-highway crossings demonstration projects, to remain available until expended: $6,000,000, of which $1,700,000 is for projects at Elko, Nevada, and $600,000 is for projects at Wheeling, West Virginia, and $700,000 is for projects at Lincoln, Nebraska; and $4,000,000 of these amounts shall be derived from the Highway Trust Fund: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available only upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation by the Ninety-third Congress. (Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 provides that the Secretary of Transportation shall enter into such arrangements to carry out demonstration projects in 12 sites throughout the United States. These demonstration projects involve relocation of railroad lines from the central area of cities, the elimination or protection of public ground level rail-highway crossings, and the construction of overpasses and underpasses.

An appropriation of $6 million was enacted in fiscal year 1974, of which $3 million was earmarked for projects in Elko, Nev., Wheeling, W. Va., and Lincoln, Nebr. Of the appropriation, $4 million is to be derived from the Highway trust fund.

No appropriation is being requested in fiscal year 1975.

RURAL HIGHWAY PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM

For necessary expenses in carrying out the provisions of the "Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973," section 147, to remain available until expended, $10,000,000, of which $7,000,000 shall be derived from the Highway Trust Fund. (Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973, 87 Stat. 250, 275.)

Section 147 of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized the appropriation of $30 million for the 2-fiscal year period ending June 30, 1976, to encourage the development, improvement, and use of highway related public mass transportation systems in rural areas, in order to enhance access of rural populations to employment, health care, retail centers, education, and public services. Of this authorization $20 million shall be derived from the Highway trust fund.

A $10 million program level will provide for the initiation of the program in 1975.

Grants are made to States for construction and improvements on the Interstate System and for urban and rural transportation programs, including safety programs.

The Federal Government pays 90% of the costs for Interstate projects and 70% of the costs of most other Federal-aid projects. The Federal share of project costs is increased in those States with large areas of public domain.

Authorizations through 1979 have been enacted for the construction of the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways. In addition, authorizations were provided for 1974, 1975, and 1976 for several other Federal-aid programs.

1. Interstate System.—The 1972 cost estimate to complete the Interstate System is $68.3 billion, which is $5.9 billion more than previously estimated.

As of October 1, 1973, 35,076 miles of the 42,500-mile Interstate System were open to traffic. In addition, 3,254 miles were under construction, and engineering or right-of-way acquisition was in progress on another 3,174 miles. Thus, some form of work was underway or completed on 41,504 miles of the 42,500-mile system—about 98% of the total system mileage.

2. Rural transportation program.—Provides grants to States to finance highway construction on the rural primary and secondary systems, on the priority primary system in rural areas, on forest highways and public lands highways, and on other federally aided highway programs in rural areas.

3. Urban transportation program.—Provides grants to the States to finance highway construction on the urban system, on urban extensions of primary and secondary systems, on the priority primary system in urban areas, and on other federally aided highway programs in urban areas. This program activity funds projects in both small urban areas (5,000–50,000 people) and urbanized areas (above 50,000 people).

At the option of State and local officials, the urban system authorizations may be utilized for mass transit capital improvements on bus and rail systems.

4. Safety programs.—Provides grants to States for safety improvements to highway systems. Programs that may be pursued at State and local option are projects for high hazard locations, elimination of roadside obstacles, rail-highway crossings, bridge reconstruction and replacement, pavement marking demonstrations, and Federal-aid safer roads demonstrations.

Consistent with the intent of the Highway Safety Act of 1973, the Federal Highway Administration will place special emphasis on safety construction programs in 1975.

5. Other programs.—Includes highway planning and research, additional one-half percent urban planning funds and emergency relief.

6. Administration and research.—Provides for executive direction and general administrative and research expenses of the Federal-aid highways programs. These

Limitation.....			138,000

This limitation, established in 1975, provides for the salaries and expenses of the Federal Highway Administration required to conduct and administer Federal-aid highway programs.

Administrative services for other programs of the Federal Highway Administration, including highway safety, and for road construction programs of other agencies are initially financed from this limitation and reimbursements are collected from those programs. The limitation does not cover administrative expenses of Highway beautification, Darien Gap Highway, Territorial highways, and Motor carrier safety, which are provided by separate appropriations.

1. Program direction and coordination.—(a) Provides overall direction and coordination of the highway transportation mission; (b) provides legal services for all programs; (c) develops and administers programs for continuing audit of claims against Federal funds and a thorough investigation of alleged irregularities; (d) plans and directs public affairs programs; and (e) develops, recommends civil rights policies and standards, and assures compliance with the civil rights and equal opportunity procedures within the Federal Highway Administration and by recipients of grants-in-aid administered by the Federal Highway Administration.

2. General program support.—(a) Formulates policy, multiyear and long-range plans and goals for highway programs and develops data and analyses for current and long-range programing; (b) conducts direct and contract research and development relating to traffic operations, new construction techniques, and the social and environmental aspects of highways; (c) provides administrative support services for all elements of the Federal Highway Administration; and (d) provides on-the-job training for employees of the Federal Highway Administration and training opportunities for employees of State and local governments and other individuals. Increases are requested to intensify the contract planning and research and development efforts.

3. Highway programs.—(a) Provides engineering guidance to Federal and State agencies and to foreign governments, and conducts a program to encourage use of modern traffic engineering procedures to increase the vehicle capacity of existing highways and urban streets; (b) assists States, other Federal agencies, and certain foreign countries in right-of-way acquisition and develops procedures for highway location selection and consideration of environmental impacts; and (c) finances construction skill training programs for disadvantaged workers hired by contractors on federally aided highway projects. Reprograming actions are designed to accommodate the growing environmental analysis workload and to intensify the level of effort in the construction skill training programs, as well as to conduct intensified highway safety research.

4. Field operations.—(a) Provides staff advisory and support services in field offices of the Federal Highway Administration, and (b) provides program and engineering supervision of the several highway programs through nine regional and 52 division offices. The reprograming noted above will provide additional civil rights staff to cope with the growing workload in all areas of civil rights.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968 provided for the establishment of a right-of-way revolving fund to provide interest-free loans for the advance acquisition of rights-of-way by the States and payment of relocation expenses including the State share of the cost. Upon construction of the highway project, the advance for right-of-way acquisition and relocation expenses is repaid to the revolving fund. The act provided for the purchase of such right-of-way 2 to 7 years in advance of construction. The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 extended the time period for such purchases from 2 to 10 years in advance of actual construction.

Contract authority totaling $300 million was authorized from the highway trust fund. In 1975, additional obligations of $45 million will be incurred from unused contract authority balances.

1. Highway safety—research, demonstration, and training.—Provides $7.5 million in 1974 from the Highway trust fund for the costs of highway safety research, demonstration, and training activities carried out by the Federal Highway Administration pursuant to 23 U.S.C., section 403. This amount will reimburse the appropriation Salaries and expenses under which title the program is administered. Commencing in 1975, the program will be funded under the appropriation Federal-aid highways.

2. Railroad highway crossings—demonstration projects.—Provides $4 million in 1974 for carrying out demonstration projects in 12 cities throughout the United States. These projects involve relocation of railroad lines from the central area of cities, the elimination or protection of public ground level rail-highway crossings, and the construction of overpasses and underpasses. This amount will reimburse the appropriation Railroad highway crossings—demonstration projects which provides for the Federal fund portion of the authorization which is split between general and trust funds.

3. Rail crossings—demonstration projects.—Provides $9.6 million in 1975 from the Highway trust fund for Rail crossings—demonstration projects relating to the elimination of unsafe highway-railroad crossings along the route of the Washington, D.C. to Boston, Mass., high-speed rail demonstration project, and in the vicinity of Greenwood, S.C. This amount will reimburse the appropriation Rail crossings—demonstration projects, which provides the Federal fund portion of the demonstration program.

4. Rural highway public transportation demonstration program.—Provides $7 million in 1975 to encourage the development, improvement, and use of highway-related public mass transportation systems in rural areas to enhance access of rural populations to employment, health care, retail centers, education and public services. This amount will reimburse the appropriation Rural highway public transportation demonstration program which provides for the Federal fund portion of the authorization which is split between general and trust funds.

5. Highway-related safety grants.—The Highway Safety Act of 1973 provided authorizations for the years 1974, 1975, and 1976, from the Highway trust fund. In past years, these authorizations were split between general funds and trust funds. These funds provide grants to States and communities to implement the highway safety standards administered by the Federal Highway Administration. These authorities will be administered under the appropriation Highway-related safety grants.

6. National scenic and recreational highway.—Utilization of these funds is deferred pending the completion of the National Scenic Highway System's study provided in section 134 of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973.

The Highway Revenue Act of 1956, as amended, provides for the transfer from the General fund to the Highway trust fund of revenue from the gasoline tax and certain other taxes paid by highway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amounts to be so transferred. In turn, annual appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for Federal-aid highways and other programs specified by law.

2. Cooperative work, forest highways.—Contributions are received from States and countries in connection with cooperative engineering, survey, maintenance, and construction projects for forest highways (23 U.S.C. 204).

3. Equipment, supplies, etc., for cooperating countries.—In connection with the construction of the Inter-American and Darien Gap Highways the Federal Highway Administration acts as agent for the cooperating Central American Republics in purchasing of equipment, supplies and services (23 U.S.C. 212, 308).

4. Technical assistance, U.S. dollars advanced from foreign governments.—Under the Foreign Economic Assistance Act and under agreement with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the Export-Import Bank of Washington, the Federal Highway Administration renders technical assistance and acts as agent for the purchase of equipment and materials for carrying out highway programs in foreign countries. During the current year these services are being rendered to Costa Rica, the Dominican Republic, Ethiopia, Iran, Nicaragua, Kuwait, and the Philippines (64 Stat. 204, 209).

5. Advances from State cooperating agencies.—Funds are contributed by the State highway departments or local subdivisions thereof for construction and/or maintenance of roads and bridges. The work is performed under the supervision of the Federal Highway Administration (23 U.S.C. 308).

NATIONAL HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY ADMINISTRATION

The programs administered by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration are authorized by three separate laws: The National Traffic and Motor Vehicle Safety Act; the Highway Safety Act, and the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act. Beginning in 1974, authorizations for the highway safety grant and research and development programs will change from two-thirds to total financing from the Highway trust fund. All other programs are financed from Federal funds.

The estimates provide for the implementation in 1974 of incentive grant programs, initially authorized by the Highway Safety Act of 1973. As incentives, the States are given bonuses for adopting seat belt legislation and for making significant progress in reducing the rate of highway fatalities.

1. Motor vehicle program.—This activity encompasses the development, promulgation, and enforcement of safety standards for new and used motor vehicles, tires, and equipment. Compliance evaluations and defects investigations are undertaken to determine safety-related motor vehicle defects. Studies are made to determine the effects on product costs and leadtime for implementation by industry.

2. Traffic safety program.—This activity provides for headquarters and field staff to establish policy, program, and technical guidance to the States in executing highway safety programs, to determine program effectiveness and to assure conformity with governing laws and regulations. Funding is also provided to carry out training and execution programs, conduct demonstration projects that will speed the implementation of new safety techniques into practice. The 1975 budget reflects reduced funding for 27 alcohol safety action projects completing their demonstration cycles.

3. Research and analysis.—This activity provides for motor vehicle and highway safety research and development, for the collection of data to determine the relationship between motor vehicle or equipment performance characteristics and crashes or the occurrence of death or personal injury as a result of such crashes, and for operation of the National Driver Register, which provides centralized information on license revocations.

4. Motor vehicle consumer information.—Pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act this activity provides for the development of cost-effective bumper performance standards designed to prevent damage caused by low-speed collisions; consumer information relating to the comparative safety and damageability of passenger cars; establishment of diagnostic inspection demonstration projects; and the establishment of odometer regulations.

5. Compliance test facility.—This activity provides for the lease and purchase of equipment for a test facility which will allow NHTSA to: (1) Perform required tests on motor vehicles, tires, and equipment to verify compliance with Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards; (2) evaluate corrective action taken in motor vehicle recall campaigns; and (3) investigate reports of serious safety defects.

6. General administration.—This activity provides for the executive direction, coordination and implementation necessary to meet NHTSA's overall policies, programs and objectives. Basic administrative and support requirements for all safety programs is also provided from this category. The 1975 budget reflects increased funding for rental costs formerly paid by the General Services Administration.

Under the State and community highway safety program, Federal grants are provided to assist the States and their political subdivisions in the establishment and improvement of highway safety programs such as driver licensing, motor vehicle registration, traffic records, police traffic services, driver education, etc. Individual States are also utilizing this funding to supplement federally funded alcohol safety action projects. The 1974 and 1975 State and community highway safety grant programs contemplate three distinct elements including: basic grants which will be provided to all States to carry out safety programs in accordance with standards promulgated by the Secretary of Transportation; incentive grants which will be provided to those States which have adopted seat belt legislation and made significant progress in reducing their traffic fatality rate; and cost associated with administration of grant programs.

A total of $133 million is tentatively planned for NHTSA's highway safety programs in 1975 which is composed of $85 million for basic grants and administration of grant programs and $48 million for incentive grants. This is an estimate of NHTSA's share of a total program of $148 million to be jointly administered with the Federal Highway Administration. Annual program plans as submitted by the States and approved by the two agencies will determine the actual distribution of obligations. The 1975 program will emphasize: (1) Upgrading of the planning and evaluative capabilities of State highway safety agencies, and (2) achievement of program goals through joint Federal/State participation in goals selection and a management by objectives monitoring system.

1. General management and administration.—This provides for salaries and expenses of the immediate office of the Administrator and those staff offices supporting the Federal Railroad Administration in the major fields of railroad safety and efficiency; railroad research and development; and the Alaska Railroad.

2. Railroad safety, Federal program.—The Federal Railroad Safety Act of 1970 provides that the Secretary of Transportation shall prescribe as necessary, appropriate rules, regulations, orders, and standards for all areas of railroad safety. The principal objective under this program is to further the effective investigation and enforcement of Federal railroad safety rules.

3. Grants to States for railroad safety—Under this activity, States are assisted in paying salaries and expenses incurred by State safety inspectors, as authorized by section 206 of the Railroad Safety Act of 1970.

This appropriation finances research, development, and demonstration programs in the following areas:

1. High-speed ground transportation.—Research and development.—This includes research of conventional and advanced technology ground transportation systems, including vehicle propulsion, control guidance, communication, and aerodynamics. Tracked levitated vehicle research will continue at about the same level in 1975.

Demonstrations.—This includes conducting demonstrations of improved intercity rail passenger systems to determine the contributions that can be made to more efficient and economical service.

2. General railroad research and development.—This includes research which deals exclusively with railroad matters. The 1975 program effort is directed at solving railroad industry problems, improvement of freight car management, improvement of freight service, and solving critical safety problems.

3. Administration.—This provides for the personnel and related administrative costs for conducting railroad research and development programs.

Federal grants are made to AMTRAK to offset operating deficits. Federal loan guarantees are also made available to AMTRAK for capital investment purposes. Railroad companies which had their passenger service responsibilities assumed by AMTRAK were obligated to pay $196 million to AMTRAK over a 3-year period ending in 1974. In 1974 and 1975 $217 million and $136 million respectively of loan guarantees are planned for capital investments. These amounts could be increased depending upon AMTRAK's additional capital needs.

The Emergency Rail Facilities Restoration Act authorized the Secretary of Transportation to make loans for the purpose of restoring or replacing railroad facilities, equipment, or services damaged or destroyed as a result of the natural disasters which occurred during the month of June 1972.

The act provided that no loan application could be approved later than 8 months from the date of its enactment, which was October 27, 1972. Therefore, this program is terminated in 1974.

The Alaska Railroad is operated by the Federal Government under the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), as a bureau of the Federal Railroad Administration.

Budget program.—This program is budgeted at a slightly higher cost than previous years primarily to support industrywide negotiated pay increases. The major activity of the rail line operation program is transportation service. Lease of real properties, river boats, and related facilities round out the other operating programs.

Financing.—To the extent possible, programs are financed by revenues earned from freight and passenger service and other services incidental thereto. However, projected revenue estimate for 1975 of $20,906 thousand is sufficient to only finance an operating program of $19,624 thousand, a nonprogramed reserve for emergencies and contingencies of $500,000, and $782,000 for previously approved capital projects. An appropriation of $6,500 thousand is requested for a capital replacement program. This request is intended to meet Federal safety and environmental standards. This is the second request for an appropriation by the railroad since the earthquake of 1964.

This fund was established to finance all grants, contracts, and loan activities authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended. Under the provisions of the 1970 and 1973 amendments (the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1970, and the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973), additional capital was provided in the form of contract authority to $6.1 billion. ($3.1 billion and $3 billion respectively for each act.) The capital facilities, relocation, and technical studies activities are financed by the authority to obligate in advance of appropriations. Grants and contracts for the research, development, and demonstration; managerial training; university research and training activities and administrative expenses are funded through appropriations.

Capital outlay.—Capital facilities grants.—Grants are made to State and local public agencies to assist in financing acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities of mass transportation service in urban areas.

In 1975, the activity level will be $1,225.0 million with an estimated 291 active projects. This compares with $872 million in 1974 with an estimated 229 projects and $863.7 million in 1973 with 229 projects. It is estimated that in 1975 this activity will assist in the purchase of 7,000 new buses, and continued construction support for new rapid transit systems and extensions. As of October 31, 1973, this activity has assisted in the purchase of 14,693 new buses, 2,348 rail rapid cars and 1,009 commuter rail cars.

In 1975, it is anticipated that at least $200 million in transit projects will be financed under the provisions of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973. When added to the $1,225.0 million planned under this program, the total Federal assistance for mass transit capital investments will be at least $1,425.0 million.

Technical studies grants.—Under this activity—authorized by section 9 of the act—State and local public agencies are assisted in carrying out studies relating to management operations, capital requirements, economic feasibility, and conducting similar activities in preparation for the construction, acquisition, or improved operation of mass transportation systems, facilities and equipment.

Also, regional transportation plans are developed with these grants. In 1975 the activity level will be $37.7 million with an estimated 150 new approvals, and a carryover of 283 active projects. This activity has a carryover of 216 and 173 active projects at the end of 1974 and 1973, respectively.

Research, development, and demonstrations, grants and contracts.—This activity—conducted under section 6 of the act—involves projects designed for the development, testing, and demonstration of new facilities, equipment, techniques (operational and managerial) and methods which assist in reducing urban transportation needs, in improving mass transportation services, or in meeting total urban transportation needs at an effective cost level.

In 1975 the activity level will be $75 million with an estimated 160 projects. This compares with $66.2 million in 1974 with an estimated 160 projects and $71.5 million in 1973 with 105 projects.

Managerial training.—Grants under this activity—authorized in section 10 of the act—are made to public bodies to provide university fellowships for up to 1 year of advance training. Fellowship awards are made for the training of personnel employed in managerial, technical, and professional positions in the urban mass transportation field.

In 1975, the activity level will be $1.5 million with an estimated 300 fellowships. This compares with $0.5 million in 1974 with an estimated 100 fellowships and $0.4 million in 1973 with 100 fellowships.

University research and training.—Grants under this activity—authorized in section 11 of the act—are awarded to public and private nonprofit institutions of higher learning. The grants are to assist in establishing or continuing programs which combine professional training in urban transportation and related fields.

In 1975, the activity level will be $2.5 million with an estimated 18 projects, and $2.5 million in 1973 with 24 projects. It is estimated that in 1975 this activity will receive 25 applications and amendments with a dollar value of $9 million. This compares with an estimated 20 applications and amendments in 1974 with a dollar value of $7 million, and the 1973 amount of 44 applications and amendments with a dollar value of $8.5 million. During 1973 this activity had project closeouts of $0.5 million with five projects.

Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for carrying out administrative functions, including executive direction, budgeting, accounting, property management, and personnel management. The administrative expense activity will be conducted at a $9.3 million level in 1975. This compares to $7 million in 1974, and $6.4 million in 1973.

Capital facilities loans.—Under this activity, two types of loans are available. Capital improvement loans are to finance the acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities and equipment. Loans are also provided for the advance acquisition of real property to be used as a part of planned mass transportation systems. While there are pending applications for loans, this activity has such a low volume of approvals, no effort is made to estimate new loan commitments. Authority available is sufficient to cover any possible loan and an administrative adjustment is made to accommodate this activity.

Financing.—The 1970 and 1973 amendments to the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 provided budget authority of $6,100 million. These amendments of 1970 and 1973 provide an authorization for appropriations to liquidate obligations, and, further, require that all other appropriations be accounted for within this authorization. This provision provides annual scheduled dollar limits which total $1,860 million through June 30, 1975, and the balance, $4,240 million, authorized for appropriation after June 30, 1975.

For 1975 an appropriation of $578.3 million is being requested, and this compares with $420 million and $334.8 million appropriated in 1974 and 1973 respectively, which are charged to the authorization to incur obligations in advance of appropriations and to the schedule for appropriations. There follows a series of schedules reflecting usage of appropriations (in millions of dollars):

<sup>1</sup> This section was added in the 1970 amendments to the 1964 act and provided authority to incur obligations in advance of appropriations. Included in a part of this provision is a defined schedule of authorizations for appropriations to liquidate obligations and to provide financing for secs. 6, 10, 11 and administrative expenses.

The programs of the Corporation during 1975 are to continue efforts to achieve maximum utilization of the St. Lawrence Seaway, and to increase net revenues. The Corporation's programs for 1975 will be continuations of those approved for 1974.

1. Administrative expenses (limitation).—This program provides for executive management and administration of the Corporation, and includes finance, legal, civil rights, procurement, personnel administration, and other related support services.

2. Operations.—This program provides for operation of all facilities and for planning and development activities. Operations are conducted on a 24-hour day, 7-day week basis throughout the navigation season with maintenance functions being performed throughout the year. Some major maintenance items are necessarily deferred to the off-navigation season when both operations and maintenance forces are utilized for their accomplishment.

3. Capital outlay.—This program includes expenditures for necessary capital improvements, such as construction of navigation aids, additions and modifications to the vessel traffic control center, modification to lock guard-walls, ice suppression and control devices and required equipment purchases.

The Corporation estimates its revenues for 1975 to reach $7.7 million which it proposes to apply as follows:

1. $4.4 million to pay operating expenses consisting of Administrative Expenses of $.9 million (subject to limitation) and $3.5 million for Operations.

2. $1.3 million to pay estimated capital outlay costs for season extension projects, expanded vessel traffic control modifications and replacement equipment.

3. $2 million for the scheduled redemption of the Corporation's revenue bonds issued to the U.S. Treasury.

No capital impairment has occurred through the end of the past year nor is anticipated in the budget year.

The National Transportation Safety Board is authorized to investigate accidents and make recommendations which will tend to prevent accidents, conduct special studies, and review appeal actions against certificates or licenses issued by the Department of Transportation.

1. Aviation accident and safety investigation.—The Board investigates all U.S. civil aviation accidents, except for selected general aviation accidents for which investigation has been delegated to the Federal Aviation Administration for fact-finding purposes; determines accident cause and reports facts and circumstances in all aviation accidents; conducts special studies of aviation safety problems; and develops recommendations to prevent aviation accidents and to promote aviation safety.

2. Surface accident and safety investigation.—The Board investigates selected highway, marine, railroad, pipeline, and intermodal transportation accidents; determines their probable cause; and reports facts and circumstances of selected surface transportation accidents. The Board also conducts special studies of surface safety problems and develops recommendations to prevent surface transportation accidents and to promote surface transportation safety.

3. Certificate or license appeal.—The Board reviews on appeal the suspension, amendment, modification, revocation, or denial of any certificate or license that has been issued by the Secretary or an administrator of the Department of Transportation.

4. Policy and support.—This includes the formulation and development of policy and program objectives; centralized management, control, and execution of day-to-day operations of the Board's programs; provision of legal advice and assistance to the Board components; and provision of information concerning the Board's activities.

Legislative Program:

FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION

Legislation is being proposed to provide for the funding of all FAA operating and capital programs pertaining to the national airport and airway system from the Airport and airway trust fund. The legislation provides for a permanent Federal payment from the general fund into the trust fund for military and civil government system usage, Federal regulatory programs, and certain administrative activities. In addition, Federal payments will include amounts to cover the gap between system cost and fees for selected user groups while adjustments to fees are gradually being made. The legislation contains provisions which will assure the availability of funds for all programs authorized by the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, as amended.

The legislation will also provide for the gradual introduction of new user fees that are consistent with the airport and airway cost allocation study recommendations. This proposal will permit the continued development of the national airport and airway system while providing that the general taxpayers pay their share of operating and capital cost and users pay a fair share of costs, based on their use of the Federal aviation system.

Legislation is being proposed to provide for funding FAA operating expenses from the Airport and airway trust fund. This will partially relieve the general taxpayers of the burden of paying for services for the aviation community; provide a better method for financing the total operating and capital costs of the national airport and airway system; and permit clear identification of general taxpayer and user costs and contributions. A permanent Federal payment to the trust fund will be made for: all safety regulatory activities; military and civil government use of the aviation system; and certain administrative activities.

This will provide for a Federal payment into the trust fund for: (a) Military and civil government use of the airport and airway system; (b) Federal regulatory and certain administrative activities; and (c) gap between user fees and user share of system costs. The proposed legislation would establish this as a permanent Federal payment into the trust fund and would gradually close the gap between user fees for services and the cost of providing these services.

This appropriation provides funds for projects initiated pursuant to the provisions of the Highway Beautification Act of 1965, together with the Federal-Aid Highway Acts of 1968 and 1970. While the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 did not provide specific program authorizations for this account, additional authorizing legislation is being proposed by the Department of Transportation. The legislative proposal contains trust fund financing commencing with the 1975 authorization.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. During the current fiscal year applicable appropriations to the Department of Transportation shall be available for maintenance and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; and uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 302. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for grants-in-aid for airport development aggregating more than $300,000,000 $310,000,000 in fiscal year [1974] 1975.

SEC. 303. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $50,000,000 $50,027,000 for "Highway Beautification" in fiscal year [1974] 1975.

SEC. 304. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $80,000,000 $148,000,000 in fiscal year [1974] 1975 for "State and Community Highway Safety" and "Highway-Related Safety Grants".

SEC. 305. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $4,000,000 $4,600,000 in fiscal year [1974] 1975 for "Territorial Highways".

SEC. 306. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $18,000,000, exclusive of the reimbursable program, in fiscal year 1974 for "Forest Highways".

SEC. 307. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $10,000,000 in fiscal year 1974 for "Public Lands Highways".

SEC. [308] 306. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for "Urban Mass Transportation Fund" aggregating more than $985,550,000 $1,351,000,000 in fiscal year [1974] 1975.

SEC. [309] 307. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. [310] 308. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs for any further construction of the Miami jetport or of any other air facility in the State of Florida lying south of the Okeechobee Waterway and in the drainage basins contributing water to the Everglades National Park until it has been shown by an appropriate study made jointly by the Department of the Interior and the Department of Transportation that such an airport will not have an adverse environmental effect on the ecology of the Everglades and until any site selected on the basis of such study is approved by the Department of the Interior and the Department of Transportation: Provided, That nothing in this section shall affect the availability of such funds to carry out this study.

SEC. [311] 309. The Governor of the Canal Zone is authorized to employ services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, in an amount not exceeding $150,000.

SEC. [312] 310. Funds appropriated for operating expenses of the Canal Zone Government may be apportioned notwithstanding section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), to the extent necessary to permit payment of such pay increases for officers or employees as may be authorized by administrative action pursuant to law which are not in excess of statutory increases granted for the same period in corresponding rates of compensation for other employees of the Government in comparable positions.

SEC. [313] 311. Funds appropriated under this Act for expenditure by the Federal Aviation Administration and the Coast Guard shall be available (1) for expenses of primary and secondary schooling for dependents of Federal Aviation Administration and Coast Guard personnel stationed outside the continental United States at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools, if any, available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and (2) for transportation of said dependents between schools serving the area which they attend and their places of residence when the Secretary, under such regulations as he may prescribe, determines that such schools are not accessible by public means of transportation on a regular basis.

SEC. [314] 312. Appropriations contained in this Act for the Department of Transportation shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for a GS-18.

SEC. 315. None of the funds in this Act shall be available for the implementation or execution of a program in the Department of Transportation to collect fees, charges or prices for approvals, tests, authorizations, certificates, permits, registrations, and ratings which are in excess of the levels in effect on January 1, 1973, or which did not exist as of January 1, 1973, until such program is reviewed and approved by the appropriate committees of the Congress. (Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1974.)

The Department of the Treasury Working capital fund was authorized by section 401, Public Law 91-614 (Dec. 31, 1970), to finance administrative services that could be performed centrally in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department.

Implemented July 1, 1971, the fund finances telephone, telegraph, and printing and reproduction services, by advances or reimbursements from appropriations and funds of the Department, other Federal agencies and other authorized sources for supplies and services at rates which will recover the expense of operations, including accrual of annual leave and depreciation of equipment.

No appropriations have been requested.

The Secretary of the Treasury may invest the principal of the Pershing Hall memorial fund in interest-bearing U.S. bonds. Earnings are paid to the American Legion for use in the maintenance of Pershing Hall in Paris, France (49 Stat. 426).

There is pending legislation which would transfer the control of Pershing Hall to the Administrator of Veterans Affairs. The proposed legislation would abolish the Pershing Hall memorial fund and provides that the Secretary of the Treasury shall liquidate any nonliquid assets in such fund and cover the proceeds and other fund assets into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

The Bureau disburses for virtually all civilian Federal agencies; maintains the central revenue, appropriation, and expenditure accounts; prepares the central financial reports of the Government; and performs other fiscal functions.

1. Central disbursing operations.—Payments are made, through 11 regional offices, for civilian Federal agencies, except the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. marshals, and certain Government corporations. Savings bonds are also issued for Federal employees under the payroll savings plan.

The total work volume and productivity relating to this activity carried out by the Division of Disbursement follow (in thousands of checks and bonds issued):

2. Federal tax deposit operations.—Business organizations make deposits through authorized commercial banks or directly with Federal Reserve banks to pay their withheld income, social security, railroad retirement, excise, corporation taxes, and income taxes into the Treasury. Income taxes are also collected for those States electing to use this service.

3. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—This activity includes the maintenance of the central accounts of appropriations, receipts, and expenditures and the preparation and publication of financial reports on the fiscal operations of the Government as a whole. It also includes accounting for purchases, sales, and redemption of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, and investment in interest-bearing securities for certain funds such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Unemployment trust fund, the Veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds.

4. Other central fiscal operations.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Other functions include Government-wide guidance and regulations in certain special areas; systems work within the Fiscal Service and the Bureau of Accounts; examination of the financial condition of companies issuing surety bonds in the favor of the United States; payment of international and other claims; performing internal audit in the Bureau; and other audits of a departmental character.

5. Executive direction.—This provides for the overall management for the Bureau of Accounts.

The Environmental Financing Authority was established by Public Law 92-500 and is authorized to make commitments to purchase, and to purchase on terms and conditions determined by the Authority, any obligation or participation therein which is issued by a State or local public body to finance the non-Federal share of the cost of any project for the construction of waste treatment works which the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency has determined to be eligible for Federal financial assistance.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to make annual payments to the Authority in such amounts as are necessary to equal the amount by which the dollar amount of interest expense accrued by the Authority on account of its obligations exceeds the dollar amount of interest income accrued by the Authority on account of obligations purchased by it. The money appropriated to "Salaries and Expenses," Bureau of Accounts for subsidy payment to the Environmental Financing Authority has been shown as an unobligated balance lapsing. Subsidy payments will be paid from the Revolving Fund created by Public Law 92-500 for that purpose.

Such amounts are appropriated as may be necessary to pay this interest subsidy each year (31 USC 711, as amended by section 12 (p) of Public Law 92-500).

Public Law 92-569 amended the Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967 by creating a Fishermen's protective fund to reimburse owners of vessels for the amounts of fines, fees, and other direct charges which were paid by the owners to a foreign country to secure the release of their vessels and crews.

Prior to the creation of the Fishermen's protective fund, the Secretary of State certified the amounts due vessel owners to the Secretary of the Treasury. These certified amounts due vessel owners were held by the Secretary of the Treasury until a request was received for their submission for a supplemental appropriation. These requests were received in the spring and fall of the year. As a result, vessel owners were not reimbursed for the amounts due them until the Congress had passed the supplemental appropriation and the President had signed it. The Fishermen's protective fund greatly reduces the time required to make payment to the vessel owners. The Secretary of the Treasury can now make payment within 48 hours of receipt of the certification from the Secretary of State.

1. National defense conditional gift fund.—The Secretary of the Treasury accepts on behalf of the United States, conditional gifts of money or other intangible property to be used for a particular defense purpose. Intangibles other than money, are converted at the best terms available. The moneys held in trust are paid to those appropriation accounts which best effectuate the intent of the donors (68 Stat. 566).

2. Esther Cattell Schmitt gift fund.—Public Law 87-467 (76 Stat. 88) authorized the acceptance of the gift made to the United States by the will of Esther Cattell Schmitt. The income received from the gift to the United States is paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to beneficiaries named in provisions of the will.

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—Total deliveries of currency are estimated to be 2.7 billion notes in both fiscal years 1974 and 1975, respectively, as compared with 3.1 billion notes delivered in fiscal year 1973.

The decrease in deliveries reflects a planned reassessment by the Federal Reserve System as to the level of its emergency cash storage requirements and consideration of various alternative means for satisfying those needs. However, to meet long-term increases projected in the demand for currency, the Bureau is currently finalizing plans for the acquisition of modern high-speed intaglio printing presses to be operational in 1976. Plans are being developed also to acquire in 1976 production models of the currency overprinting and processing equipment which is designed to mechanize certain manual operations currently associated with the production of currency.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postal and internal revenue stamps. The budget estimates reflect an increase of 23% in 1974 and 11% in 1975 over the quantity delivered in 1973. The substantial rise shown for 1974 is due primarily to the increased demand for postage stamps in light of the postal rate change anticipated in March 1974.

(c) Food coupons.—The balance of this program ($30 and high value family-type booklets) which has been produced in the Bureau will be contracted out to the private sector, beginning in 1975.

(d) Securities.—No material change is noted in the anticipated requirements of the agencies for the current and budget years as compared with the number of pieces delivered in 1973.

(e) Commissions, certificates, etc.—The estimated requirements in the current and budget year indicate a substantial decrease in the number of units to be produced. However, after submission of its budget, the Bureau was requested in December 1973 to produce a supply of gas rationing coupons for possible use in the energy conservation program.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—These charges are made to other agencies for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for the space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

This appropriation provides for the overall planning and direction of the Internal Revenue Service, for management of the Service's support programs and for internal audit and internal security. This 1975 appropriation request provides for maintaining the Service's support programs at adequate levels and for strengthening those programs concerned with sound internal procedures and employee integrity.

1. Executive direction.—This activity sets policies and goals; provides the research and planning necessary for orderly and effective accomplishment of the Revenue Service's mission; provides leadership and direction in the execution of plans; and provides for the administrative support of all operations.

2. Internal audit and security.—This activity establishes and verifies maintenance of quality controls in the Revenue Service. It provides a continuing and independent review of all Revenue Service operations, thereby assuring the Commissioner and operational managers that appropriated funds are spent only for authorized purposes and that tax revenues are properly safeguarded.

This appropriation provides for processing tax returns and related documents, and maintaining accurate, current taxpayer accounts by means of an automated system. It also provides for taxpayer assistance and for collecting delinquent taxes and securing unfiled returns. Statistical reporting responsibilities of the Internal Revenue Service come under this appropriation.

1. Data processing operations.—This activity provides for all actions associated with the mailing out of tax return forms and instructions, receipt of completed returns and payments, deposit of the payments, and verification through an automated master file system of the accuracy of information provided on the tax returns. It provides for payment of refunds, offset of refunds against delinquent accounts, issuance of notices that payments are overdue, identification of possible nonfilers for investigation, and assistance in the selection of tax returns for audit.

2. Collection and taxpayer service.—This activity provides assistance to taxpayers in understanding their tax obligations, is responsible for securing tax returns due but unfiled, and for collecting taxes due but unpaid.

3. Statistical reporting.—This activity prepares statistical information on income and on various features of the tax system, performs other statistical research, and forecasts the number of tax returns to be filed by type, size, and geographical area.

The increases requested for 1975 are principally to keep pace with workload resulting from growth in population and the economy; to improve the automated processing system's capability for assuring tax compliance; to provide essential taxpayer service; and to step up the program for securing unfiled returns and unpaid taxes. Important advances are anticipated from an electronic data retrieval system through which taxpayer assistance, as well as tax collection operations, are being improved.

This appropriation provides for detecting and correcting noncompliance with the tax laws, and for meeting the Internal Revenue Service's responsibilities in special law enforcement programs.

Additional funds requested for 1975 are necessary to strengthen the Service's ability to assure equitable application and adequate enforcement of the tax laws and thus maintain the very high rate of voluntary compliance. This requires expansion of the audit and tax fraud investigation programs, plus additional staffing for technical rulings and legal services.

1. Audit of tax returns.—This activity provides for a selective examination of tax returns to see if taxpayers have properly complied with the internal revenue laws. It corrects errors and explains corrections to the taxpayers. It also makes determinations as to whether certain organizations or funds are exempt from taxation.

2. Tax fraud and special investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of the criminal statutes relating to violations of tax laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud; recommends prosecution as warranted; and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases. It is responsible for directing Service participation in the drive against organized crime, and against narcotics traffickers.

3. Taxpayer conferences and appeals.—This activity provides for administrative consideration and settlement of taxpayer appeals of audit findings.

4. Technical rulings and services.—This activity develops tax return forms, instructions, and guides; issues rulings and opinions as to application of the tax laws, and meets with taxpayer groups to review and resolve special tax problems.

5. Legal services.—This activity comprises the legal counsel and legal assistance needed by the Service to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 solely to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lien holder's equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

The increase requested will enable the Internal Revenue Service to protect adequately the Government's interest in collection cases involving tax liens on property undergoing forced sale.

1. Payment and reconciliation of checks.—The major function of this activity is the maintenance of checking accounts of Government officers who are authorized to issue checks on the Treasurer of the United States, including the payment of the checks and the reconciliation of checks paid to check issue data received from the disbursing officers. The data processing equipment used in the Government check operations is also used to process postal money orders on a reimbursable basis; however, during 1974 the money order processing will be assumed by the U.S. Postal Service.

In addition, the equipment is used to process Federal tax deposit forms representing payments of corporation, employment, and excise taxes deposited to the Treasurer's account. The Federal Reserve banks send the forms to the Treasurer for balancing to the amounts credited to the Treasurer's account and conversion of the deposit data onto magnetic tape. The tape records are then sent to the Internal Revenue Service for further processing.

Other functions performed by this activity include the balancing of individual debit and credit transactions in the Treasurer's account to cash letters submitted by the Federal Reserve banks and other depositories, both domestic and overseas.

The Check forgery insurance fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561). Additional appropriations of $50 thousand in 1964, $100 thousand in 1970 and $1,800 thousand in 1973 increased the fund to a total of $2 million. This fund is for use by the Treasurer in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the Treasurer which have been paid on forged endorsements in which it appears that recovery from those liable may be delayed or be unsuccessful.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorsers of the checks through reclamation procedure by this office. If the Treasurer is unable to recover the funds, this revolving account sustains the loss.

The Service must provide for the protection of the President of the United States, members of his immediate family, the President-elect, the Vice President or other officer next in the order of succession to the Office of the President, and the Vice President-elect; protection of the person of a visiting head of a foreign state or foreign government and, at the direction of the President, other distinguished foreign visitors to the United States and official representatives of the United States performing special missions abroad; the protection of persons who are determined to be major presidential or vice presidential candidates, unless such protection is declined; the protection of the person of a former President and his wife during his lifetime, the protection of the person of the widow of a former President until death or remarriage, and minor children of a former President until they reach 16 years of age, unless such protection is declined. The Service is also responsible for investigation of counterfeiting of currency, specie, and securities; forgery and altering of Government checks and bonds; and criminal and noncriminal cases.

The Executive Protective Service protects the Executive Residence and grounds in the District of Columbia and any building in which White House offices are located. This operation is clearly allied with the personal protection of the President and his family while they are in residence. In addition, the Executive Protective Service protects foreign diplomatic missions in the Washington metropolitan area and such other areas in the United States as the President may direct on a case by case basis.

The Treasury Security Force is responsible for safeguarding paper currency and other Government securities and obligations that are contained in the main Treasury Building and its annex in Washington, D.C.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the Comptroller's Office is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. In accordance with 12 U.S.C. 481 assessments paid by national banks are not construed to be Government funds. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the Comptroller's Office in any of its operations.

The Administrator of National Banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed, onsite examinations, the latter conducted by a staff of approximately 1,900 national bank examiners. At the present time there are approximately 4,600 national banks with over 14,000 operating branches and total assets of $435 billion. As a result of the reports submitted and the examinations conducted, the Office determines the financial condition of individual national banks and the system as a whole, the soundness of operations and compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank, and applications from banks to establish branches.

This trust fund was established by Public Law 92-512 (86 Stat. 919) to provide general revenue sharing payments to localities for defined high-priority expenditures and payments to States to supplement their revenue sources. Payments to States and localities are made at least quarterly. It is anticipated that the fourth quarter payment for each fiscal year will continue to be paid within the first 5 days of the succeeding fiscal year, as provided by law.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—TREASURY DEPARTMENT

SEC. 101. Appropriations in this Act to the Treasury Department shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-2) including maintenance, repairs, and cleaning; purchase of insurance for official motor vehicles operated in foreign countries, and services as authorized by title 5, United States Code, section 3109, but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18. (Treasury Department Appropriation Act, 1974.)

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS*THIS ACT

SEC. 501. Where appropriations in this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration; or to payments to interagency motor pools where separately set forth in the budget schedules.

SEC. 502. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to pay the salary of any person filling a position, other than a temporary position, formerly held by an employee who has left to enter the Armed Forces of the United States and has satisfactorily completed his period of active military or naval service and has within ninety days after his release from such service or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year made application for restoration to his former position and has been certified by the Civil Service Commission as still qualified to perform the duties of his former position and has not been restored thereto.

SEC. 503. No part of any appropriation made available in this Act shall be used for the purchase or sale of real estate or for the purpose of establishing new offices outside the District of Columbia: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to programs which have been approved by the Congress and appropriations made therefor.

SEC. 504. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 505. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the procurement of or for the payment of the salary of any person engaged in the procurement of any hand or measuring tool(s) not produced in the United States or its possessions except to the extent that the Administrator of General Services or his designee shall determine that a satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of hand or measuring tools produced in the United States or its possessions cannot be procured as and when needed from sources in the United States and its possessions or except in accordance with procedures prescribed by section 6-104.4(b) of Armed Services Procurement Regulation dated January 1, 1969, as such regulation existed on June 15, 1970. This section shall be applicable to all solicitations for bids opened after its enactment.

The Atomic Energy Commission conducts a variety of production, research and development, and supporting activities directed toward its responsibilities for national defense and peaceful applications of atomic energy. Most of the activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions operating under contracts.

Total direct program costs in 1975 are estimated at $2,857 million or $313 million more than estimated 1974 costs of $2,544 million, and $471 million more than actual costs of $2,386 million for 1973.

The schedule of costs by activity does not include nonbudgetary costs such as depreciation charges, accrued annual leave earned but not taken by AEC employees, and the cost of source and special nuclear materials consumed. In total, these are as follows: 1973, $686.3 million; 1974 estimate, $991.9 million; 1975 estimate $882.2 million.

1. Nuclear materials.—This program relates to the production of special nuclear materials primarily for use in nuclear weapons and as fuel for private nuclear power reactors and the development of information on the availability of source materials.

Production of nuclear materials is carried on at major production plants located at Richland, Wash.; Savannah River, S.C.; Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio. Production of uranium enriched in the isotope U<sup>235</sup> will continue to increase in 1975. AEC charges industry for its services in enriching uranium, and the related revenues are included in the receipts from non-Federal sources in the program and financing schedule.

In 1975 work will also continue on process improvements to assure efficiency and safety of operations and to develop more economical methods of production. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Nuclear materials:
Production of enriched uranium.....	252,948	331,615	426,970
Production of plutonium and other reactor products.....	148,066	161,845	187,650

Total nuclear materials.....	429,460	531,848	651,110

2. Weapons.—The major portion of this program encompasses weapons activities which include the production of atomic weapons; maintenance of stockpiled weapons in a state of constant readiness; design, development, and underground testing of new weapon types; and participation with the Department of Defense in the test readiness program and in the development of test detection methods. Also included is research and development for improving nuclear materials security. By major category the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Weapons activities:
Production and surveillance.....	403,901	390,500	400,200

Total weapons.....	862,744	835,580	857,530

3. Naval reactor development.—The naval reactor development program is aimed at designing and developing improved naval nuclear propulsion plants and reactor cores in a wide range of power ratings to meet the military requirements of the Department of Defense. The pressurized water nuclear propulsion plants and cores under development are suitable for installation in naval vessels ranging in size from small submarines to large combatant surface ships. Development continues on improved reactor concepts, components and materials for application to submarines and surface ships, with particular emphasis on obtaining improved longer life cores and on increasing reliability and maintainability of reactor plant components. During 1975, a high level of effort will continue on development of an advanced core with longer life for application to nuclear-powered guided-missile frigates and high-speed submarines, and on the development of advanced reactors for submarines. An increased level of effort will be directed toward the development of a nuclear propulsion plant for the Trident submarines. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Submarine propulsion reactors.....	77,155	92,604	103,410
Surface ship propulsion reactors.....	62,252	50,833	46,692

Total naval reactor development program.....	149,526	154,200	161,500

4. Civilian reactor research and development.—This program includes the development, demonstration, and improvement of nuclear power reactors, together with research and development on reactor technology and nuclear safety. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Central station power development....	186,450	193,890	250,550
Cooperative power reactor demonstration program.....	2,862	20,000	14,000

Total civilian reactor research and development program....	255,907	290,390	349,750

The development program on liquid metal fast breeder reactors (LMFBR) will be increasingly oriented to the engineering requirements necessary to achieve reliable, safe and economic breeder power plants including an LMFBR demonstration plant in the 350–400 MWe range.

On July 25, 1973, the Commission entered into contracts with Commonwealth Edison of Chicago, the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA), and two not-for-profit organizations, the Breeder Reactor Corporation, and the Project Management Corporation, for a cooperative endeavor for the purpose of designing, constructing, and operating the Nation's first demonstration liquid metal fast breeder reactor plant. The plant will be located on a TVA site on the Clinch River near Oak Ridge, Tenn. Westinghouse will be the lead reactor manufacturer and Burns and Roe will be the architect-engineer for the plant. Research and development and design for the demonstration plant is now underway and will be accelerating in 1975.

Construction of the fast flux test facility (FFTF) will continue in 1975 and will involve considerable site activity in installation and checkout of key critical components and systems.

Operation of the zero power reactors, ZPR-6 and ZPR-9, at Argonne National Laboratory will be concluded in 1975 and the facility will be placed in standby on the basis that it can be reactivated at a future date.

The 1975 estimates reflect increased effort in the gas-cooled reactors program. This increase will permit additional emphasis on the gas-cooled reactors which utilize thorium and thereby extend the Nation's nuclear fuel supply.

The estimates provide for research and development in reactor technology and in nuclear safety with added emphasis directed toward breeder reactor safety. The division of naval reactors concluded its use of the engineering test reactor (ETR) at the National Reactor Testing Station in Idaho in April 1973; however, modifications are underway to continue use of the ETR for the breeder reactor safety program by installing a fuel element failure propagation test loop. Initial tests in the ETR are scheduled for early 1975.

5. Reactor safety research.—This program includes experimental and analytical programs to provide improved capability to predict detailed aspects of the safety of nuclear reactors, and large experiments designed to proof-test the ability to synthesize data into overall predictions of reactor safety. By major category the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Light water reactor safety experimentation and analysis.....	27,907	31,025	33,780
Fast reactor safety assessment.....	-----	500	3,030
Gas reactor safety assessment.....	-----	1,000	1,000
Nuclear safety test facilities operations.....	5,951	8,158	10,630
Total reactor safety research.....	33,858	40,683	48,440

The program will be increasingly oriented to obtaining an understanding of the many phenomena that must be dealt with in reactor safety analysis. Experimental programs generate data and provide a basis for the development and validation of analytical models. The models are used to extrapolate data obtained under test conditions to ranges of interest in full scale reactors. Integral experiments then are performed to test the validity of analytical modeling. The results of the program are proven methods of analysis needed to assess the safety of reactors, and information and methods needed to achieve the safe design and operation of reactors.

The program will continue to support ongoing safety research efforts by industry and will also expand efforts to utilize the capability of the national laboratories and universities in the safety research program. The use of Government research serves to maintain the necessary safety competence within the Government and provides the basis for independent assessment of the validity of data obtained from industry sources.

The 1975 primary emphasis will be placed upon obtaining data necessary in understanding phenomena to be dealt with in reactor safety analysis, and upon initiation of independent fast reactor and gas reactor safety assessment programs.

6. Applied energy technology.—The program includes development of energy sources and technologies for more efficient recovery and use of energy resources. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

General energy development.....	1,751	9,050	8,540
Isotopes development technology.....	2,083	915	500
Applications of underground explosions.....	6,776	4,600	2,800
Total applied energy technology program.....	10,610	14,565	11,840

In 1975 the general energy development programs on energy transmission and energy storage will be expanded to include larger scale experiments in preparation for prototype demonstrations. The goal of the transmission program is to develop superconducting cables for high-capacity underground electric power transmission. The goal of the storage program is to develop techniques for storing electrical energy to allow central station electrical plants to operate at their maximum capacity (base load condition).

Isotopes development technology activities will continue with investigations into utilizing energy in the form of radiation or heat.

Underground explosions will include an increased effort in the development of in-situ processes for extraction of oil from oil shale, a limited effort in the recovery of non-ferrous metals from low-grade ore, and a limited effort in gas stimulation.

7. Space nuclear systems.—This program currently has three major objectives, i.e., (1) to develop and provide radioisotope thermoelectric generators (RTG's) for scheduled DOD and NASA flight missions, (2) to evaluate and develop improved technologies required to meet the demands of projected requirements in the future, and (3) to extend space technology to potential terrestrial energy related applications. The major emphasis in 1975 will be to provide radioisotope generators for the DOD Lincoln Experimental Satellite mission and the NASA Viking (Mars Lander) and Mariner Jupiter/Saturn missions.

By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Space electric power.....	34,050	26,100	27,000
Space propulsion.....	4,540	-----	-----
Total space nuclear systems.....	38,590	26,100	27,000

8. Physical research.—This program provides support for both theoretical and experimental basic research in the physical sciences. Investigations are conducted at the boundaries of scientific knowledge in order to develop an understanding of the properties and behavior of both matter and energy. The basic foundation for advances in the development, use and control of atomic energy is developed through research in the field of physics, mathematics, chemistry, and metallurgy and materials. Estimates for this program include $50 thousand for the Fermi and Lawrence awards. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

High energy physics.....	122,560	125,300	132,200
Nuclear science.....	60,587	65,189	72,900
Materials sciences.....	29,702	32,108	34,000
Molecular sciences.....	31,095	30,218	31,700
Total physical research program.....	243,944	252,815	270,800

9. Controlled thermonuclear research.—The primary goal of the controlled thermonuclear research program is development of a new energy source based on the nuclear fusion process. Achievement of this goal will be of major significance because electric power generated by a fusion reactor would offer several potential advantages: plentiful and inexpensive fuel, inherent safety against nuclear runaway, and minimal environmental impact.

A significant increase is provided for in magnetic confinement systems to carry out experiments required to demonstrate long time confinement of high temperature plasma. This increase will provide for the initiation of fabrication of two new major experimental devices and increased research operations on current experimental devices to provide further information necessary for the design of power producing experiments.

The 1975 request also provides for an expansion of the efforts to develop the technological base for future fusion generation confinement experiments and power-producing fusion reactors.

Plasma physics research activities support the magnetic confinement systems and development and technology efforts. Significant increases in plasma physics research are needed to develop the body of knowledge required to predict thermonuclear plasma behavior in confinement systems and fusion reactors.

By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Magnetic confinement systems.....	23,457	29,560	43,500
Development and technology.....	7,012	12,870	20,000
Plasma physics research.....	6,532	10,570	18,500
Total controlled thermonuclear research.....	37,001	53,000	82,000

10. Biomedical and environmental research and safety.—The largest portion of this program provides for biomedical and environmental research to assess the risks associated with radiation and other energy related effluents. Also included in this program for 1975 are increases for research and development on methods for long-term management of commercial and AEC high level waste, the management of surplus contaminated facilities, and operational safety related activities. Biomedical and environmental research and development activities include major increases in such priority areas as the biomedical and environmental effects of transuranic isotopes, the biological effects of low doses of radiation, thermal effects, offshore siting, and the continued development of a radioisotope powered artificial heart. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Biomedical and environmental research:
Health studies.....	30,171	32,534	35,687

Total biomedical and environmental research and safety.....	111,423	124,563	150,943

11. Regulation activities.—The regulatory program carries out the Commission's statutory responsibility for assuring that the possession, use and disposal of radioactive materials and the construction and operation of reactors and other nuclear facilities are conducted in a manner consistent with public health and safety and with proper regard for environmental quality. By major category, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Category	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Standards.....	4,481	5,147	7,664
Licensing.....	23,192	26,861	32,567
Operations.....	10,242	12,156	15,256

Boards.....	2,037	3,207	3,698
Total regulation activities.....	45,307	54,430	67,835

The increases requested are to meet the significantly increased inspection and licensing workload resulting from the rapid growth in the number of commercial nuclear facilities; decrease the time required to conduct construction permit reviews while maintaining the quality of those reviews; conduct standard plant reviews and early siting activities which enhance safety and reliability and are the foundation for very substantial shortening of the time required to bring nuclear plants on line; develop additional safety, environmental quality assurance, and materials protection standards which underpin improvements throughout the regulatory process; acquire resources for the timely evaluation of the liquid metal fast breeder reactor and gas cooled reactors; evaluate the planned commercial enrichment and plutonium recycle programs; and provide related support for these activities.

12. Program support.—This program provides the necessary support for the other operating programs. By sub-program, the costs are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Subprogram	1973 actual	1974 estimate	1975 estimate
Operational program direction.....	120,061	132,235	141,995
Community operations.....	5,477	5,671	7,510
Security investigations.....	8,517	8,000	9,790
Information services.....	5,920	6,849	8,560
EEO contract compliance-assigned facilities.....	1,049	1,515	1,600
Total program support.....	141,024	154,270	169,455

Program efforts include:

Operational program direction of the AEC operating programs conducted through 11 operations offices, their subordinate area offices, and the Washington headquarters. Included are the salaries and other costs for employees engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision. The 1975 estimate provides for 4,825 employees which is an increase over the level estimated for June 30, 1974.

Community operations which provides assistance payments to the former AEC communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn., Los Alamos, N.Mex., and Richland, Wash., under the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended. The estimate also includes costs for municipal functions at Los Alamos, principally for fire protection.

Security investigations required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, for those persons who require access to restricted data of the atomic energy program. The number of background investigations to be requested in 1975 is estimated at 12,730 as compared with 11,625 for 1974 and 12,738 for 1973.

Information services for the scientific and technical community and the general public. To provide this information, a vast quantity of data on nuclear related subjects is collected, analyzed, organized, and made readily accessible through selective information retrieval systems, abstract journals, and specialized reference tools. Exhibits, demonstrations, popular-level films, educational booklets, and other printed releases are used to disseminate information to the general public. The 1975 estimate also provides for an expanded technology utilization effort providing for cooperative efforts between AEC laboratories and potential technology users in industry and State and local governments.

Equal employment opportunity contract compliance-assigned facilities functions to carry out AEC's responsibility as one of 17 compliance agencies designated by the Office of Federal Contract Compliance, Department of Labor. AEC is responsible for EEO Contract Compliance in private facilities of all Government contractors that fall into certain standard industrial classifications. The 1975 estimate provides for 67 permanent employees.

13. Cost of work for others.—In furthering the objective of widespread use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes,

AEC furnishes materials and services to industrial organizations and other private parties. Charges made for such products and services are reflected in the budget under receipts and reimbursements from non-Federal sources (revenues applied) and are applied as a source of funds, thereby reducing the amount of appropriations required. The items included are (in thousands of dollars):

This appropriation provides for construction of plants and facilities and for acquisition of capital equipment required for the production, research and development, and supporting programs of the Atomic Energy Commission. Of the budget authority of $738.2 million being requested for 1975, $168.0 million applies to new construction projects or modification of existing facilities, $107 million is applicable to construction projects which were previously authorized by Congress, $272.4 million is applicable to projects for which amended authorization is being requested, and $190.8 million is required for acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction.

The principal projects for 1975 are described below:

1. Nuclear materials.—This category includes funds for projects which will allow for improvement and upgrading of existing gaseous diffusion plants and the development of new centrifuge technology to assist private industry's entry into the enrichment field. Also included in this category are funds for additional waste handling and storage facilities at various AEC sites.

2. Weapons.—This category includes funds for the modification of facilities at various AEC locations to provide for more efficient and economical production of Trident and other weapon systems. Funds are also included for new research and development facilities in support of the laser programs conducted at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, Los Alamos, N. Mex., and Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Livermore, Calif. Funds are also provided for construction of facilities at Rocky Flats, Colo., and the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory to further enhance fire protection, safety, and operating conditions at these locations.

3. Naval reactor development.—This category includes funds for the completion of the S8G prototype reactor propulsion plant and for various general plant projects.

4. Civilian reactor research and development.—This category includes funds to support the work related to the development, demonstration, improvement, and safe operation of nuclear reactors and nuclear devices which may be used to generate electricity in powerplants and to produce heat for process applications. The principal projects are as follows: Transient test facility—the objective of this facility is to conduct thermal transient tests of small components and complex geometrical features of large LMFBR components. In addition to this new project, additional funds will be provided in 1975 for the fast flux test facility (FFTF) which will provide an instrumented environment in a fast flux for testing instrumented fuel specimens, fuel rods, fuel subassemblies, and clad and structural materials, with capabilities to test up to and including failure in dynamic sodium. The principal purpose of the FFTF is to provide a test reactor for the LMFBR and other fast reactor programs.

5. Reactor safety research.—This category includes funds for reactor safety facilities modifications to provide for additions, modifications, and changes to existing reactors, critical assemblies, and major test facilities.

8. Physical research.—This category provides funds for accelerator and reactor improvements and modifications necessary to support the planned research programs at several laboratory locations. In addition, funds are provided for heavy-ion physics facilities to meet the national need for heavy-ion research program at various locations.

10. Biomedical and environmental research and safety.—This category provides funds for laboratory facilities at Savannah River, S.C., and the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Tenn., to support biomedical and environmental research. Also included are funds to provide additional and improved facilities to handle intermediate-level liquid waste at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Tenn., in order to assure continuity of laboratory operations.

A wide variety of capital equipment is procured to fill the various needs of all operating programs. Such needs range from routine replacement of worn out and obsolete equipment, to the procurement of new research devices and computers. Additions are needed for expanding programs and to keep pace with rapidly changing technology in the the production and research programs.

EPA's research and development efforts are conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, industries, other private commercial firms, non-profit organizations, State and local governments, and Federal agencies as well as through research and development at EPA's laboratories and field locations.

These efforts are oriented toward producing the scientific knowledge and the tools for regulating, preventing, and abating pollution and are specifically directed to the problems of air pollution control, water pollution control, water supply protection, solid and toxic waste management, pesticide control, radiation protection, noise abatement, and interdisciplinary studies. Activities encompass research on the effects of pollutants on man, animals, aquatic life, plants, materials, and the general environment; research on the processes, such as dispersion, that affect pollution; the development of new and improved sampling and analytical methods and instruments for measuring pollutants; and the development and demonstration of new and improved technology for preventing and controlling pollution and recovery of materials from wastes. Included with the research and development program is its overall management and support.

EPA is responsible for major Federal environmental pollution abatement and control programs, including programs in air and water pollution control, water supply and radiation protection, solid and toxic waste management, pesticides control, noise abatement, and interdisciplinary activities.

Program efforts entail developing environmental standards; monitoring and surveillance of pollution conditions; grant support of State and local pollution control planning; direct Federal pollution control planning; grant support for State, regional and local pollution control programs; technical assistance to pollution control agencies and organizations; assistance to Federal agencies in complying with environmental standards and insuring that their activities have minimum environmental impact; and training to increase the supply of and improve the skills of pollution control personnel. Increases for drinking water supply and toxic waste management are related to pending legislation.

EPA's enforcement responsibilities are in the areas of air pollution control, water pollution control, and pesticide control. Much of the effort is in support of or in co-operation with State and local enforcement programs, such as the enforcement of air quality standards; navigable and interstate water quality standards; and issuance of discharge permits. Enforcement includes such actions as notices of violation, abatement orders, enforcement conferences, civil and criminal court actions, and, in the case of pesticides, recalls and seizures. Overall management and support is included.
