

APPENDIX

THE
UNITED STATES

THE BUDGET DOCUMENTS

Data and analyses relating to the budget for 1976 (and for the 3-month transition period, as applicable) are published in four documents:

The Budget of the United States Government, 1976 contains the information that most users of the budget would normally need, including the Budget Message of the President. The Budget presents an overview of the President's budget proposals which includes explanations of spending programs and estimated receipts. This document also contains a description of the budget system and various summary tables on the budget as a whole.

The Budget of the United States Government, 1976—Appendix contains detailed information on the various appropriations and funds which comprise the budget.

The Appendix contains more detailed information than any of the other budget documents. It includes for each agency: the proposed text of appropriation language, budget schedules for each account, explanations of the work to be performed and the funds needed, proposed general provisions applicable to the appropriations of entire agencies or groups of agencies, and schedules of permanent positions. Supplemental proposals for the current year and new legislative proposals are identified separately. Information is also provided on certain activities, whose outlays are not part of the budget totals.

Special Analyses, Budget of the United States Government, 1976 contains 17 special analyses that are designed to highlight specified program areas or provide other significant presentations of Federal budget data.

This document includes analytical information about: Government finances and operations as a whole and how they affect the economy; Government-wide program and financial information for Federal education, manpower, health, income security, civil rights, and crime reduction programs; trends and developments in the areas of Federal aid to State and local governments, research and development, and environmental protection.

The United States Budget in Brief, 1976 provides a more concise, less technical overview of the 1976 Budget than the above volumes. Summary and historical tables on the Federal budget and debt are also provided, together with graphic displays.

GENERAL NOTES

1. All years referred to are fiscal years, unless otherwise noted.
2. Detail in the tables, text, and charts of this volume may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part I contains various tables and schedules in support of the budget, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item for which congressional action in an appropriation bill is required. It also contains the text of general provisions proposed for enactment by the Congress, which apply to entire agencies or groups of agencies.

ARRANGEMENT

The chapters of this part reflect the branches of Government, and the major departments and agencies of the executive branch. For the latter, most smaller agencies are grouped in one chapter—"Other independent agencies."

Within each chapter there are three main sections. The first section covers programs authorized by existing legislation (including items for which extension or renewal of existing legislation is requested). This section is organized by major subordinate organizations within the agency (usually bureaus). For each bureau, Federal funds, covering the funds owned by the Government, precede trust funds, covering moneys which are held by the Government in accounts established by law or by trust agreement. Generally, accounts with new budget authority in 1976 will precede those without such an entry.

The second major section of each chapter covers the legislative program which reflects the costs of proposed new legislation. This section is also arranged by bureau or other major subordinate organization. The proposals are applicable to Federal funds unless otherwise indicated.

The third section of each chapter includes the general provisions of appropriation language which are applicable to the agency in that chapter, and are in addition to the specific language pertaining to individual appropriation items. General provisions which apply to specified groups of agencies are placed in the chapter covering the first agency which appears in the respective appropriation act. The general provisions which are government-wide in scope (identified "Departments, Agencies, and Corporations"), normally contained in the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, are placed at the end of the Executive Office of the President chapter.

An explanation of the types of funds included in the budget may be found in Part 6 of the compact volume—The Budget of the United States Government, 1976.

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1976 appropriation acts is printed at the head of each item requiring action by Congress, except for those items which are not formally recommended at this time but are proposed for later transmittal. The language of the 1975 appropriation acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Italic type indicates proposed new language. Brackets enclose material which is proposed for omission. (When an appropriation has not been enacted at the time the budget is submitted, the language relates only to 1976 and is italicized with no brackets shown.)

Additional language is included, where appropriate, to reflect requested appropriations for the 3-month transition period (July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976) to bridge to the new 1977 fiscal year (October 1 through September 30), pursuant to the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974. The additional language appears in italics in a separate paragraph immediately following the appropriation text. An illustration of appropriation text for 1976 and for the transition period follows:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For expenses necessary for the general administration of the Department of Commerce, including not to exceed $1,500 for official entertainment, [$10,200,000] $12,504,000.

For "Salaries and expenses" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $3,126,000. (15 U.S.C. 1501; Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1975.)

Following the language, and printed in italics within parentheses, are citations to relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriation act from which the basic text is taken.

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

The 1974 column of this budget generally presents the actual transactions and balances for that year, as recorded in agency accounts.

The amounts for 1975 include budget authority actually made available by the Congress, and estimates of the budget outcome for the year as a whole. The Congress has, as of the time of submission of this budget (February 1975) completed action on all regular appropriations bills for 1975, except Foreign Assistance, for which a temporary continuing appropriation (until Feb. 28, 1975) has been provided. In some of the accounts covered by the Foreign Assistance Appropriation Act, amendments to pending 1975 budget requests are shown in brief additional program and financing schedules in Part I. These amendments are explained and accompanied by any necessary appropriation language in Part III.

The basic schedules for Federal and trust funds exclude anticipated supplemental estimates except those for statutory and wage board pay raises. The anticipated supplemental estimates, other than for pay, are covered by brief program and financing schedules, without appropriation language. For those supplemental estimates which are being transmitted for consideration with the 1976 budget (pay supplementals identified in the regular schedules and separate schedules headed: "Supplementals now requested"), the appropriation language is included in Part III of this document. In addition, rescissions of enacted budget authority now pending before the Congress are separately identified in the basic schedules. Appropriation language for these rescissions was formally requested in the respective special messages transmitted to the Congress in accordance with the Impoundment Control Act of 1974.

The 1976 column of the regular schedules includes proposed appropriations for recommended extension or renewal of expiring laws; however, amounts for proposed new legislation are shown in separate schedules, generally under the legislative program section of each chapter. Appropriation language is included with the regular schedules, but not with the separate schedules.

Where the required data are available in the accounting systems, budgets are presented in terms of costs. Detailed operating cost figures for each activity or object are the value of goods and services consumed in carrying out the program. In the case of capital outlay programs, costs shown are the value of assets acquired.

Total obligations are always shown; activities and objects are reflected on an obligation basis where cost data are not available. Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, loan agreements made, and recurring services (such as rent, utilities, and personal services) received during the year, regardless of the time of payment.

For a few Government corporations, the detail and the totals of their budget presentations are on the basis of accrued expenditures.

SCHEDULE OF PROGRAM AND FINANCING

This schedule consists of three parts. In the "Program by activities" section, costs or obligations are classified by purpose, program, type of activity, or project for 1974, 1975, and 1976. This classification is individually developed for each appropriation or fund, and is not uniform on a Government-wide basis. Similarly, the identification of capital outlay is not handled uniformly. Where it is of significance, capital outlay is shown by activity. Otherwise, the total for each year is disclosed by footnote.

Where budgets are presented in terms of costs, the relation of costs to obligations is summarized in an entry "Change in selected resources."

In certain cases, this schedule is expanded to include additional columns that provide a more informative presentation. This is done, for example, in some construction or procurement programs to show related cost data; for certain Defense items, to identify the total obligations programmed; and for programs financed at a preobligation stage (such as commitments in some loan programs).

The "Financing" section shows the sources of funds, budget authority, and other means of financing the program, and the disposition of unobligated amounts not used during the year.

The section on "Relation of obligations to outlays" shows obligations net of receipts and other offsets, obligated balances at the start and end of the year, and other items which affect the relation of obligations to outlays.

The account identification code, found at the head of the program and financing schedule, facilitates computer processing of budgetary information. The last three digits of this code represent the functional category to which this account is classified. Functional classification permits presentation of budget outlays according to the major purposes to be served, rather than the organization administering the program or the account under which the funds are made available. For example, the 403 on the above schedule represents Other advancement and regulation of commerce—a subfunction within major function 400; Commerce and Transportation. In those few cases where the outlays from an account are split between two or more categories, a functional code of 999 is used. The individual functional categories are identified with each appropriation or fund account in the Budget Accounts Listing in Part 8 of the Budget.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work planned and services proposed to be carried out are described briefly in a narrative statement for each appropriation or fund. Where practicable, the narrative statement presents accomplishments in relation to financial requirements, and available measures of program and performance.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a classification of obligations, costs, or accrued expenditures according to the following uniform list of object classifications:

--	--

These object classes reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose of the program for which they are used. Data according to this classification are illustrated in the following schedule:

Object Classification (in thousands of dollars)
Identification code 06-05-0120-0-1-403	1974 actual	1975 est.	1976 est.

26.0 Equipment.....	63	60	60
31.0 Total obligations.....	8,561	11,455	12,504

Several of the object classes are broken down into sub-classes—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for permanent positions, for positions other than permanent, and for certain other payments.

A personnel summary is appended to the object classification schedule, as illustrated:

Personnel Summary
Total number of permanent positions.....	325	374	390
Full-time equivalent of other positions.....	19	17	19
Average paid employment.....	322	347	364
Average GS grade.....	10.20	10.28	10.31
Average GS salary.....	$18,011	$18,891	$19,191
Average salary of ungraded positions.....	$12,319	$13,160	$13,260

Permanent positions are those which are established or occupied for a year or more. The nature of the position governs. Thus a permanent position may be occupied by an employee whose appointment is either temporary or permanent in nature. These positions may be full-time (full workweek) or part-time (less than a full workweek).

Average grades and salaries are computed arithmetically. Thus the average salary can fall outside the salary range of the average grade.

STATEMENT OF REVENUE AND EXPENSE

For many revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense that shows the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement is usually on a full accrual basis including provision for depreciation, for losses on receivables, etc.

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITION

For each fund showing a revenue and expense statement, there is also presented a balance sheet for assets, liabilities, and equity of the Government at the close of each year. This balance sheet excludes balances of appropriations and borrowing authorizations which have not yet been paid into the revolving fund. Because the balance sheet is on an accrual basis, the "Liabilities" section does not reflect obligations incurred for which the liability has not accrued. Nor does the "Assets" section reflect unfilled customer orders received, even though such orders are a basis for obligation in the case of intragovernmental revolving funds. The "Government equity" section therefore, shows obligations (which have not yet become accrued liabilities), the unobligated balance, unfilled customer orders on hand (where relevant), and invested capital and earnings.

BUDGETS NOT SUBJECT TO REVIEW

The presentations herein for the Legislative Branch, the Judiciary, the Comptroller of the Currency in the Treasury Department, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Milk Market Orders Assessment Fund of the Department of Agriculture, the Farm Credit Administration, and most of the annexed budgets have been included, without review, in the amounts submitted by the agencies.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN BUDGET TABLES AND APPENDIX TABLES

INTRAGOVERNMENTAL TRANSACTIONS

The consolidation of Government-administered funds in the compact budget volume may cause duplication in the totals. This occurs when the payment from one of the fund groups (Federal or trust) is credited to a receipt account in the other, or when a payment from a Government agency excluded from the budget totals (annexed budgets) is credited to a budgetary receipt account and appropriated therefrom. In order to avoid duplication, intragovernmental transactions (i.e., intrabudgetary transactions and receipts from Federal agencies outside the budget totals) are deducted from the combined aggregates of both budget authority and outlays.

PROPRIETARY RECEIPTS FROM THE PUBLIC

The compact budget volume generally offsets against outlays for each agency and function, the receipts from the public which are market-oriented or are mainly payments for goods and services, regardless of the fund structure. The Appendix continues the conventional practice of offsetting in the individual schedules only those amounts received that are earmarked by law for use in revolving funds, or as reimbursements to appropriations or other funds.

[ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS]

[1. The paragraph under the heading "Administrative Provision" in chapter IV of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1972 (2 U.S.C. 64b) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following: "In the event that the Secretary of the Senate is absent or is to be absent for reasons other than disability (as provided in this paragraph), and makes a written designation that he is or will be so absent, the Assistant Secretary shall act during such absence as the Secretary in carrying out the duties and responsibilities of the office in all matters, except those matters relating to the Secretary's duties as such disbursing officer. The designation may be revoked in writing at any time by the Secretary, and is revoked whenever the Secretary making the designation dies, resigns, or is considered disabled in accordance with this paragraph."]

[2. (a) Whenever—]

(1) the law of any State provides for the collection of an income tax by imposing upon employers generally the duty of withholding sums from the compensation of employees and remitting such sums to the authorities of such State; and

(2) such duty to withhold is imposed generally with respect to the compensation of employees who are residents of such State;

[then the Secretary of the Senate is authorized, in accordance with the provisions of this section, to enter into an agreement with the appropriate official of that State to provide for the withholding and remittance of sums for individuals—]

[(A) whose pay is disbursed by the Secretary; and]

[(B) who request the Secretary to make such withholdings for remittance to that State.]

[(b) Any agreement entered into under subsection (a) of this section shall not require the Secretary to remit such sums more often than once each calendar quarter.]

[(c) (1) An individual whose pay is disbursed by the Secretary may request the Secretary to withhold sums from his pay for remittance to the appropriate authorities of the State that he designates. Amounts of withholdings shall be made in accordance with those provisions of the law of that State which apply generally to withholding by employers.]

[(2) An individual may have in effect at any time only one request for withholdings, and he may not have more than two such requests in effect with respect to different States during any one calendar year. The request for withholdings is effective on the first day of the first month commencing after the day on which the request is received in the Disbursing Office of the Senate, except that—]

[(A) when the Secretary first enters into an agreement with a State, a request for withholdings shall be effective on such date as the Secretary may determine; and]

[(B) when an individual first receives an appointment, the request shall be effective on the day of appointment, if the individual makes the request at the time of appointment.]

[(3) An individual may change the State designated by him for the purposes of having withholdings made and request that the withholdings be remitted in accordance with such change, and he may also revoke his request for withholdings. Any change in the State designated or revocation is effective on the first day of the first month commencing after the day on which the request for change or the revocation is received in the Disbursing Office.]

[(4) The Secretary is authorized to issue rules and regulations he considers appropriate in carrying out this subsection.]

[(d) The Secretary may enter into agreements under subsection (a) of this section at such time or times as he considers appropriate.]

[(e) This section imposes no duty, burden, or requirement upon the United States, the Senate, or any officer or employee of the United States, except as specifically provided in this section. Nothing in this section shall be deemed to consent to the application of any provision of law which has the effect of subjecting the United States, the Senate, or any officer or employee of the United States to any penalty or liability by reason of the provisions of this section. Any paper, form, or document filed with the Secretary under this section is a paper of the Senate within the provisions of rule XXX of the Standing Rules of the Senate.]

[(f) For the purposes of this section, "State" means any of the States of the United States and the District of Columbia.]

3. (a) The Sergeant at Arms of the Senate shall secure for each Senator office space suitable for the Senator's official use in places designated by the Senator in the State he represents. That space shall be secured in post offices or other Federal buildings at such places. In the event suitable office space is not available in post offices or other Federal buildings, the Sergeant at Arms shall secure other office space in those places.]

[(b) The aggregate square feet of office space secured for Senator shall not at any time exceed—

(1) 4,800 square feet if the population of his State is less than 2,000,000;

(2) 5,000 square feet if such population is 2,000,000 but less than 3,000,000;

(3) 5,200 square feet if such population is 3,000,000 but less than 4,000,000;

(4) 5,400 square feet if such population is 4,000,000 but less than 5,000,000;

(5) 5,800 square feet if such population is 5,000,000 but less than 7,000,000;

(6) 6,200 square feet if such population is 7,000,000 but less than 9,000,000;

(7) 6,400 square feet if such population is 9,000,000 but less than 10,000,000;

(8) 6,600 square feet if such population is 10,000,000 but less than 11,000,000;

(9) 6,800 square feet if such population is 11,000,000 but less than 12,000,000;

(10) 7,000 square feet if such population is 12,000,000 but less than 13,000,000;

(11) 7,400 square feet if such population is 13,000,000 but less than 15,000,000;

(12) 7,800 square feet if such population is 15,000,000 but less than 17,000,000; or

(13) 8,000 square feet if such population is 17,000,000 or more.]

[(c) The maximum annual rate that may be paid for the rental of an office secured for a Senator not in a post office or other Federal building shall not at any time exceed the applicable rate per square foot charged Federal agencies by the Administrator of General Services, based upon a 100 percent building quality rating, for office space located in the place in which the Senator's office is located, multiplied by the number of square feet contained in that office used by the Senator and his employees to perform their duties.]

[(d) (1) Notwithstanding subsection (b), the aggregate square feet of office space secured for a Senator who is a Senator on July 1, 1974, shall not at any time exceed, as long as he continuously serves as a Senator, the greater of—

(A) the applicable square footage limitation of such subsection; or

(B) the total square footage of those offices that the Senator has on such date and which are continuously maintained in the same buildings in which such offices were located on such date.]

[(2) The provisions of subsection (c) do not apply to any office that a Senator has on July 1, 1974, not in a post office or other Federal building, as long as—

(A) that Senator continuously serves as a Senator; and

(B) that office is maintained in the same building in which it was located on such date and contains not more than the same number of square feet it contained on such date.]

[(e) Clause (4) of subsection (a), the last sentence of subsection (c), and subsection (d) of section 506 of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1973, are repealed.]

[(f) This section is effective on and after July 1, 1974.]

4. The Secretary of the Senate, the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate, and the Legislative Counsel of the Senate shall each be paid at an annual rate of compensation of $38,760. The Secretary for the Majority (other than the incumbent holding office on June 15, 1974) and the Secretary for the Minority shall each be paid at an annual rate of compensation of $38,190. The Secretary for the Majority (as long as that position is occupied by such incumbent) may be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $38,190. The four Senior Counsels in the Office of the Legislative Counsel of the Senate shall each be paid at an annual rate of compensation of $37,620. The Assistant Secretary of the Senate, the Parliamentarian, and the Financial Clerk may each be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $37,620. The Administrative Assistant in the Office of the Majority Leader, the Assistant Secretary for the Majority, the Administrative Assistant in the Office of the Minority Leader, and the Assistant Secretary for the Minority may each be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $36,765. The Administrative Assistant in the Office of the Majority Whip and the Administrative Assistant in the Office of the Minority Whip may each be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $35,625. The two committee employees other than joint committee employees referred to in clause (A), and the three committee employees referred to in clause (B), of section 105(e)(3) of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1968, as amended and modified, may each be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $37,050. The four committee employees other than joint committee employees referred to in such clause (A) and the sixteen committee employees referred to in such clause (B) may each be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $35,625. The one employee in a Senator's office referred to in section 105(d)(2)(ii) of such Act may be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $37,050. Any officer or employee whose pay is subject to the maximum limitation referred to in section 105(f) of such Act may be paid at a maximum annual rate of compensation not to exceed $37,050. This paragraph does not supersede (1) any provision of an order of the President pro tempore of the Senate authorizing a higher rate of compensation, and (2) any authority of the President pro tempore to adjust rates of compensation or limitations referred to in this paragraph under section 4 of the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970. This paragraph is effective July 1, 1974.]

5. Effective July 1, 1974, the last full paragraph under the heading "ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS" in the appropriation for the Senate in the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1972, is amended to read as follows:

"Each officer or member of the Capitol Police force whose compensation is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate, who performs duty in addition to the number of hours of his regularly scheduled tour of duty for any day on or after July 1, 1974, is entitled to be paid compensation (when ordered to perform such duty by proper authority) or receive compensatory time off for each such additional hour of duty, except that an officer shall be entitled to such compensation only upon a determination made by the Capitol Police Board with respect to any additional hours. Compensation of an officer or member for each additional hour of duty shall be paid at a rate equal to his hourly rate of compensation in the case of an officer, and at a rate equal to one and one-half times his hourly rate of compensation for a member of such force. The hourly rate of compensation of such officer or member shall be determined by dividing his annual rate of compensation by 2,080. Any officer or member entitled to be paid compensation for such additional hours shall make a written election, which is irrevocable, whether he desires to be paid that compensation or to receive compensatory time off instead for each such hour. Compensation due officers and members under this paragraph shall be paid by the Secretary, upon certification by the Chief of the Capitol Police at the end of each calendar quarter and approval of the Capitol Police Board, from funds available in the Senate appropriation, 'Salaries, Officers and Employees' for the fiscal year in which the additional hours of duty are performed without regard to the limitations specified therein. Any compensatory time off accrued and not used by an officer or member at the time he is separated from service on the Capitol Police force may not be transferred to any other department, agency, or establishment of the United States Government or the government of the District of Columbia, and no lump-sum amount shall be paid for such accrued time. The Capitol Police Board is authorized to prescribe regulations to carry out this paragraph." ]

[6. Effective July 1, 1974, the first sentence of section 105(d)(1)(A) of the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1968, as amended and modified, is amended to read as follows: "The aggregate of gross compensation paid employees in the office of a Senator shall not exceed during each calendar year the following:

"$370,215 if the population of his State is less than 2,000,000;
 "$381,330 if such population is 2,000,000 but less than 3,000,000;

[ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS]

[Hereafter, with the approval of the Joint Committee on the Library, the Architect of the Capitol may utilize personnel paid from appropriations under his control for performance of administrative and clerical duties in connection with the maintenance and operation of the United States Botanic Garden, to such extent as he may deem feasible.] (Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1975.)

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

The Library of Congress, established in 1800, is not only the library of the Congress itself, but is also the principal general library of the Government of the United States. Its collections are comprehensive and varied, and include outstanding collections of books, periodicals, newspapers, documents of the national governments of the world, literature in the Oriental languages, et cetera, and manuscripts, maps, music, motion picture films, sound recordings, prints, and photographs. In addition to maintenance of the collections and the rendering of the general and basic services connected therewith, including the Congressional Research Service, certain specialized functions are performed: Registration of copyrights, catalog card distribution, and the service of books in raised characters and talking books to the blind. In terms of these broad fields of activity comparative obligations (including only those chargeable to annual appropriations) for 1974 and estimated for 1975 and 1976 are (in thousands of dollars):

The Library's first obligation is to the Congress; the second, to other agencies of the Government; and the third, to other libraries, scholars, investigators, and the general public.

In addition to funds appropriated annually by Congress, there are also available a number of gift and trust funds, working funds, and allocations.

Estimates for the physical equipment, maintenance and operation of those Library buildings located on Capitol Hill are carried under the request of the Architect of the Capitol.

1. Acquisition of library materials.—The Library's collections are developed in accordance with established acquisition policies: Materials are procured by purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, transfer and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections. The objective for 1976 is continued improvement in acquisition coverage and procedures. The collections totaled 73,932,425 items as of June 30, 1974, and consisted of 16,761,198 books and pamphlets; 31,498,669 manuscript pieces and 25,672,558 maps, pieces of music, reels of microfilm, photographs, and other miscellaneous items. Of the items received in 1974, 1,902,094 were added to the permanent collections; 436,595 items were withdrawn. Pieces received from various sources in 1974 and estimates for 1975 and 1976 are as follows:

Total	6,545,665	6,559,000	6,733,500

2. Organization and control of library materials.—Library materials are cataloged for ready retrieval and are classified for systematic arrangement on the shelves of the collection. Card catalogs are maintained. Issues of serial publications are identified and recorded. Cataloging data is converted to machine-readable form for the use of the Library of Congress and other libraries and cataloging service agencies. Systems of subject headings and classification are continuously developed for the Library's needs and for the national library community.

Objectives in these activities for 1976 are to continue to reduce backlogs in cataloging and catalog maintenance operations and to continue the development of the machine-readable cataloging data base.

Selected performance data for 1974 and estimates for 1975 and 1976 (not including processing activities performed by the Reference Department and Law Library) are as follows:

Description	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Titles cataloged for printed cards	233,254	230,000	240,000
Titles classified and subject headed	220,593	225,000	230,000

3. Reader and reference services.—Books and other library materials are provided inside and outside of the Library, reference and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained. The objective of this activity for 1976 is to continue to organize more material for use, to make it available to readers more readily, and to improve reference, bibliographic, and circulation services. The workload in major activities is expected to increase in 1975 and 1976 as follows:

Description	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate

4. National program for acquisitions and cataloging.—Under NPAC, the Library of Congress seeks to acquire, catalog, and disseminate cataloging data on a timely basis for all current monographic works of research value in order to meet the needs of American libraries. The success of the program can be measured by the significant increase in the number of books cataloged—from 125,515 new titles in 1966 (first full year of NPAC funding) to 233,254 new titles in 1974. The availability and sharing of the current cataloging copy has resulted in substantial savings by libraries across the Nation well beyond the cost of the program.

The objectives of this activity in 1976 are the continuation of the basic program at its 1975 level, providing necessary catalog copy automatically and rapidly to college, university, and other research libraries which now rely primarily upon the Library of Congress for such cataloging. New program objectives in 1976 include completion of NPAC shared cataloging coverage of Europe where possible and the intensification of acquisition and cataloging coverage of U.S., Chinese, and Korean imprints through a program of reporting by NPAC participating libraries.

5. Preservation of library materials.—Library materials are preserved in their original format by being bound or rebound, or by a variety of conservation/restoration techniques. Materials are also preserved by converting them to a more durable base through such means as the micro-filming of books and newspapers, by conversion of nitrate film to a safety base film, and by the conversion of deteriorating sound recordings to polyester tape. In addition, the Library conducts original research into the many unsolved preservation problems encountered in dealing with millions of deteriorating books and other materials in the Library of Congress collections as well as in the other research libraries of the Nation.

6. General administration.—This activity supports the executive staff of the Office of the Librarian, and the administrative department, except for preservation of the collections activities. Included are funds for equipment rentals; staff for personnel and fiscal management, procurement, protective services, rental of space off Capitol Hill, and duplicating services.

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collection and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The income and obligations for 1974 and estimates for 1975 and 1976 are as follows:

Income:	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Fees applied.....	$2,312,376	$2,428,000	$2,549,000
Estimated value of materials deposited and transferred to the Library of Congress.....	3,950,700	4,386,000	4,868,000
Total income.....	6,263,076	6,814,000	7,417,000
Obligations:
Salaries.....	4,776,196	5,532,000	6,104,000
Other obligations.....	638,163	511,000	854,000
Total obligations.....	5,414,359	6,043,000	6,958,000

The program and performance under each of the activities described are predicated on an estimated 412,000 copyright registrations during 1976, an estimated 391,500 during 1975, and actual registration of 372,832 during 1974.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act. Performance data for 1974 and estimates for 1975 and 1976 are as follows:

	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Registrations.....	372,832	391,500	412,000
Mail received and dispatched.....	951,137	1,018,000	1,090,000

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provisions of the copyright Act have been satisfied. Performance data are as follows:

	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Cases and documents examined.....	405,631	426,000	447,300
Registrations and recordation of documents.....	395,085	415,000	435,000
Letters written.....	62,960	66,000	69,300

3. Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. There were 426,087 items on hand and received during 1974, of which 409,254 were cataloged, leaving a balance at the end of the year of 16,833. It is estimated that for 1975 and 1976 the number of items to be cataloged will be 429,700 and 451,200 respectively.

4. Reference services.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public, information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings; information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity. Performance data are as follows:

	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Titles searched.....	142,811	150,000	157,000
Letters and search reports written.....	40,865	42,900	45,000

5. Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

6. Microfilming of copyright records.—This is the 7th year of a 10-year project to make a preservation microfilm copy of the important copyright records of the Office.

7. General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office included legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

1. Policy analysis and research.—The Congressional Research Service provides analytical and consultative services to the Members and committees of Congress, assisting them in the analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of legislative issues and proposals, and of recommendations submitted to the Congress by the executive branch. Research services also provided to assist Congress with its oversight, representative, and other responsibilities. Support comes in the form of background studies, in-depth policy analyses, consultations and briefings, legal research, assistance with committee hearings, and related data and materials. Lists of subjects and policy areas that a committee might profitably pursue are periodically made available to each congressional committee. These services are directed toward assisting Members and committees in determining the advisability of enacting legislative proposals, in estimating the probable results of such proposals and of alternatives to them, and in evaluating methods for accomplishing the results sought.

2. Documentation and status of legislation.—The Service periodically prepares and publishes for distribution to Members and committees the Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions, which includes summaries of all public bills and resolutions introduced in Congress, the status of bills receiving action, and various pertinent indexes. The Service also makes available current and periodic reports that provide background and status information on major legislative issues and related bills. Upon request, the Service provides Members and committees with legislative history memoranda on bills for which hearings have been announced, and compiles and makes available to each committee reports on legislatively authorized programs and activities within that committee's jurisdiction that are scheduled to terminate during the current Congress.

3. Information and reference services.—The Congressional Research Service provides extensive information and reference assistance to Members and committees. Reference files, containing clippings, pamphlets, and documents, and automated information services are maintained for rapid information retrieval. Lists of selected reports, prepared by CRS staff on legislative issues, are regularly distributed to congressional offices. To provide faster responses and in-person services, the Service also maintains reference centers in congressional office buildings and the Congressional Reading Room.

The Card Division sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards, cataloging data in machine-readable form, book catalogs, and technical publications. It maintains a stock of over 100 million catalog cards representing approximately 660,000 titles which are frequently ordered. From this stock are supplied 90% of the cards which are sold. A master file containing a single, reproducible copy of each of the cards representing the approximately 6 million titles which the Library has cataloged since 1898 is also maintained. Requests for cards for any of the 5,340,000 less frequently ordered titles are satisfied by duplicating (through offset, photographic, or electrostatic means) the copy of the card kept in master file. The Card Division carries on its books, accounts for 32,509 subscribers, about 22,000 of which are active accounts in any given year. In 1974, 66 percent of this appropriation was recovered in the form of receipts from card and publications sales. Receipts of $7,390,485 were deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury in 1974. The objectives for 1976 are: Meeting the continuing demand for catalog cards and maintaining a reasonable level of service and economy; the continued development of the "National Union Catalog" as the country's major bibliographic and locational tool; the development of other technical publications; and the use of new technology to improve service, to increase efficiency, and to reduce costs.

1. Supplying cards for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in 1974 was 33,224,021; estimated for 1975, 33 million; and estimated for 1976, 33 million.

2. Supplying cards for other libraries.—The number of cards sold in 1974 was 58,379,911; sales for 1975 and 1976 are estimated at about the same, or a slightly lower, level.

3. Preparation, printing, and distribution of publications related to cataloging.—These publications are an integral part of the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include the "Classification Schedules," lists of "Subject Headings," "Cataloging Service" bulletins, and similar publications.

4. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the "National Union Catalog."—This catalog (a cumulative author list) is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually. Subscribers also receive issues of "Films and Other Materials for Projection" (quarterly with annual cumulation), "Music, Books on Music, and Sound Recording" (semiannual with annual cumulation), the "Register of Additional Locations," and the "National Register of Microform Masters." There were 2,404 paid subscriptions for all issues in calendar year 1973, and it is estimated that there will be 2,400 subscriptions for 1974 and about the same number for 1975. Two new publications, "Name Headings with References" and "Monographic Series," were prepared for the first time in 1975. It is not yet possible to estimate the subscriptions for each of these publications.

5. Preparation, printing, and distribution of the "Subject Catalog."—This catalog is issued in three quarterly volumes with an annual cumulation. There were 925 paid subscriptions for calendar year 1973. It is estimated that there will be 925 paid subscriptions in 1974 and 1975.

6. Preparation, printing, and distribution of "New Serial Titles." This catalog is a current and cumulative union list of serials that began publication January 1, 1950, or later. It continues, on a larger scale, the third edition of the "Union List of Serials" and is published in 13 issues per year—8 monthly, 4 quarterly, and an annual cumulation. There were 2,093 paid subscriptions for calendar year 1973, and it is estimated that there will be 2,160 paid subscriptions for the calendar years 1974 and 1975.

7. Contingency fund.—Changes in the program have eliminated further need for the contingency fund.

This appropriation is used to acquire library materials, both current and noncurrent, in all subject fields except those in the field of law, clinical medicine or technical agriculture. Materials acquired by purchase constitute an exceedingly important part of the Library's acquisitions. Although they generally amount to only a limited portion of the total number of pieces received annually, they are materials which are not generally or readily available to the Library of Congress from any other source and thus must be purchased to ensure completeness of the collections. The objectives for 1976 are: To continue procurement of important research materials to insure the continuous and comprehensive development of the Library's collections thereby maintaining their national pre-eminence; to continue the purchase of important foreign commercial books, newspapers, and periodicals; to continue the extensive procurement of essential research materials from areas critical to U.S. foreign relations, particularly from Eastern Europe, Asia, and Latin America; to continue to strengthen the Library's current acquisitions in the rapidly expanding fields of science and technology; and to acquire highly selected, important, noncurrent materials needed to provide better service to Congress and to increase the usefulness to current research of the subject collections.

This appropriation constitutes the only means of acquiring law books published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign law books published in countries throughout the world. The legal publications acquired by purchase constitute the most important part of the law library's acquisitions, although a substantial part of the annual receipts is received by means other than purchase. The special objectives for 1976 are: To continue the procurement of certain current domestic and foreign legal materials where upkeep service and expeditious receipt are necessary and receipt through exchange and gift is irregular; to improve the current and retrospective coverage of important Hispanic, African, Middle Eastern, and South Asian sources; to continue the procurement of both current and noncurrent materials needed to strengthen the law library's already comprehensive holdings of critical areas in Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa; and to continue the acquisition of microforms and photoduplicates of important research items, especially those from critical areas, which are no longer obtainable in the original and for replacement of hard-bound copies.

The Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped is responsible for administering a national program to provide reading material for the blind and physically handicapped of the United States and its outlying areas. It has two closely related operations.

1. Procurement and distribution.—It procures books in embossed characters, talking books with their associated reproducers, and catalogs and publications of material available. The books are distributed through 53 regional libraries and 85 other cooperating libraries which assume responsibility for their custody and circulation. The reproducers are distributed through 59 State agencies and libraries. The maintenance and procurement of these books are shown in the following table:

Description	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Sound recordings and players (disc and cassette):
(a) Books (titles).....	826	850	1,000
(b) Magazines.....	25	26	26
(c) Phonograph and cassette players purchased.....	51,000	50,000	60,000
(d) Players repaired.....	46,500	45,000	45,000
Embossed materials:
(a) Press braille books (titles).....	247	300	300
(b) Magazines.....	21	30	30
Music (scores and volumes).....	4,710	4,000	4,500

2. Reader services.—During the past 5-year period, 1970-74, the number of blind and physically handicapped readers throughout the country has grown from over 223,000 to about 435,000 and circulation from approximately 6,120,000 units (volumes, containers, and reels) to about 11,450,000. The number of readers and circulation are expected to continue to increase in 1975 and 1976 at the same rate as in the past 5 years. A combined total of nearly 40,000 requests for interlibrary loan and inquiries concerning library and related services available to the blind and to other physically handicapped persons were received in 1974. Individuals throughout the Nation who are interested in transcribing or proofreading braille are trained, and those qualified are certified. During 1974 over 490 individuals were certified, and it is anticipated that this level will continue during 1975 and 1976. In addition, books are tape recorded by volunteers throughout the country. The division provides guidance and direction to the cooperating libraries throughout the country. The division maintains the national collections of braille and recorded books to supplement titles deposited in libraries across the country and to furnish direct service to residents of Puerto Rico and Americans living abroad. In addition, music materials are provided directly to readers throughout the country.

Objectives for 1976 are: (1) meet sound reproducers needs, (2) alleviate book shortages through the provision of additional titles and copies, (3) restructure the braille position with attention directed toward pertinent existing, emerging and projected technologies, (4) expand the use of volunteers, (5) expand regional library participation, and (6) provide appropriate administrative support.

Under authority originally granted in Section 104(n) of Public Law 85-931 (new sec. 104(b)(5) of the Food for Peace Act of 1966) the Librarian of Congress may use foreign currencies to provide information of technical, scientific, cultural, or educational significance to the United States through the collection of foreign library materials and the distribution of copies thereof to libraries and research centers in the United States. The program is being carried on in five countries in 1975: Egypt, India, Nepal, Pakistan, and Poland. Of the total amount requested in 1976, $1,718,500 will be paid in foreign currencies, while $295,600 will provide U.S. dollar support.

1. Acquisition of books and other library materials.—Based upon the requirements of other Federal agencies and certain research libraries in the United States, publications and other library materials will be purchased in multiple copies from five countries and distributed to selected libraries and research centers in the United States, including the Library of Congress.

2. Program support (U.S. dollars).—U.S. dollars are required to pay certain expenses which cannot be paid by foreign currencies, such as salaries and personnel benefits of U.S. personnel abroad, salaries of the coordinating staff at the Library of Congress, shared administrative support provided by the Department of State, travel in some instances, and equipment and supplies which cannot be procured abroad.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise Fund was established by 69 Stat. 533 to: (1) Prepare a history of the Supreme Court of the United States, and if deemed advisable, (2) to finance an annual lecture or series of lectures, and (3) publish a memorial volume of Justice Holmes' writings. The principal and interest on the fund are available for these purposes. The current program is devoted primarily to the preparation of the history of the Supreme Court, of which the first two volumes were published by the Macmillan Co. in 1972. A third volume was published in August 1974, and two additional volumes are in the process of being prepared. An annual lecture series is also financed by this fund and reprints of the lectures are distributed to law schools and libraries throughout the country.

Board, and (3) interest at the rate of 4% per annum paid by the Treasury on the principal funds deposited therewith as described under "Library of Congress Trust Fund, Principal Accounts." (2 U.S.C. 156-160; 31 U.S.C. 725s; 37 Stat. 319).

1. Acquisition of Library materials.—During 1974, this included the procurement of manuscripts, Hispanic materials, fine prints, rare books and other library materials from certain foreign areas for the Library of Congress, and the acquisition and distribution of Government documents for the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries.

2. Reader and reference services.—These services during 1974 included the preparation of bibliographies, indexes, digests, and checklists; lectures; surveys of bibliographic services; poetry readings; musical concerts; furtherance of musical research, composition, performance and appreciation; and providing photostats, photographs, microfilm, and other forms of photoduplication, and sound recordings of folksongs and poetry to other Government agencies, libraries and other institutions, and to the general public; and distribution of recordings of the Library's literary programs and concerts to radio stations for public service broadcasts.

3. Organization and control of the collections.—In February 1967, the Library of Congress began the largest single bibliographical project in its history, the publication of the pre-1956 "National Union Catalog." It is expected that the project will be completed in 10 years, and that the published Catalog will comprise 600 volumes. Over 325 volumes have been published. The preparation of the 19th full edition of the "Dewey Decimal Classification," begun during 1972, continues.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress for salaries shall be available for expenses of investigating the loyalty of Library employees; special and temporary services (including employees engaged by day or hour or in piecework); and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

Not to exceed fifteen positions in the Library of Congress may be exempt from the provisions of appropriation acts concerning the employment of aliens during the current fiscal year, but the Librarian shall not make any appointment to any such position until he has ascertained that he cannot secure for such appointments a person in any of the categories specified in such provisions who possesses the special qualifications for the particular position and also otherwise meets the general requirements for employment in the Library of Congress.

Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to reimburse the Department of State for medical services rendered to employees of the Library of Congress stationed abroad and for contracting on behalf of and hiring alien employees for the Library of Congress under compensation plans comparable to those authorized by section 444 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 889(a)); for purchase or hire of passenger motor vehicles; for payment of travel, storage and transportation of household goods, and transportation and per diem expenses for families en route (not to exceed twenty-four); for benefits comparable to those payable under sections 911(9), 911(11), and 941 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1136(9), 1136(11), and 1156, respectively); and travel benefits comparable with those which are now or hereafter may be granted single employees of the Agency for International Development, including single Foreign Service personnel assigned to A.I.D. projects, by the Administrator of the Agency for International Development—or his designee—under the authority of section 636(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (Public Law 87-195, 22 U.S.C. 2396(b)); subject to such rules and regulations as may be issued by the Librarian of Congress.

Payments in advance for subscriptions or other charges for bibliographical data, publications, materials in any other form, and services may be made by the Librarian of Congress whenever he determines it to be more prompt, efficient, or economical to do so in the interest of carrying out required Library programs.

Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress shall be available, in an amount not to exceed $57,500, when specifically authorized by the Librarian, for expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with the function or activity for which the appropriation is made.]

Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to provide additional parking facilities for Library of Congress employees in an area or areas in the District of Columbia outside the limits of the Library of Congress grounds, and to provide for transportation of such employees to and from such area or areas and the Library of Congress grounds without regard to the limitations imposed by 31 U.S.C. 638a(c)(2). (Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1975.)

The Office of the Superintendent of Documents operates under a separate appropriation which provides all of the funds for: (1) the compilation of catalogs and indexes of Government publications; (2) the distribution of Government publications to designated depository libraries; and (3) the mailing for Members of Congress and other Government agencies of certain Government publications, as authorized by law. It also provides part of the funding for (4) the sale of Government publications in accordance with section 1708 of title 44 U.S. Code and (5) the sale of certain other Government publications in accordance with various other authorities. These five functions are related to the publication activity of other agencies and to the demands of the public, Members of Congress, and depository libraries. Consequently, the documents area can exercise little control over the volume of work which it may be called upon to perform. A description of these five functions follows:

1. Sales of publications (44 U.S.C. 1708).—Selected Government publications are placed on sale to the public in accordance with section 1708 of title 44 of the U.S. Code. This section states, in part, the following:

“The price at which additional copies of Government publications are offered for sale to the public by the Superintendent of Documents shall be based on the cost as determined by the Public Printer plus 50% * * *. Surplus receipts from sales shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of miscellaneous receipts.”

2. Other sales of publications.—Certain publications are placed on sale to the public wherein the price of the publication is not established in accordance with section 1708, title 44, but in accordance with various authorities of which some are listed below:

44 U.S.C. 906 “Congressional Record: gratuitous copies; delivery; subscriptions.—* * * The Public Printer may furnish the daily Record to subscribers at a price determined by the Public Printer based upon the cost of printing and distribution, such price to be payable in advance.”

44 U.S.C. 910 “Congressional Record: sale of current numbers and bound sets.—The Public Printer, under the direction of the Joint Committee, may print for sale, at a price sufficient to reimburse the expense of printing, the current numbers and bound sets of the Congressional Record. The money from sales shall be paid into the Treasury and accounted for in his annual report to Congress, and sales may not be made on credit.”

44 U.S.C. 1504 “Federal Register; printing; contents; distribution; price.—Documents required or authorized to be published by section 1505 of this title shall be printed and distributed immediately by the Government Printing Office in a serial publication designated the ‘Federal Register.’ The Public Printer shall make available the facilities of the Government Printing Office for the prompt printing and distribution of the Federal Register in the manner and at the times required by this chapter and the regulations prescribed under it.* * * The prices to be charged for the Federal Register may be fixed by the Administrative Committee of the Federal Register established by section 1506 of this title without reference to the restrictions placed upon and fixed for the sale of Government publications by sections 1705 and 1708 of this title.”

44 U.S.C. 722 “Congressional Directory: sale.—The Public Printer, under the direction of the Joint Committee on Printing, may print the current Congressional Directory for sale at a price sufficient to reimburse the expense of printing. The money derived from sales shall be paid into the Treasury and accounted for in his annual report to Congress, and sales may not be made on credit.”

3. Distribution for other agencies and Members of Congress.—The Office of the Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists and mails, at the request of Government agencies and Members of Congress, certain publications specified by public law.

4. Depository library distribution.—As required, Government publications are supplied to libraries which are designated as depositories for Government publications.

5. Cataloging and indexing.—The Office of the Superintendent of Documents is charged with preparing catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government. The principal publication is the “Monthly Catalog of U.S. Government Publications.”

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various agencies of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. Operations are subject to the authority of the Joint Committee on Printing (44 U.S.C. 309).

All printing and binding work for the Congress and Federal agencies is done and financed through the Government Printing Office revolving fund. The fund is reimbursed by the customer agencies and net operating income is retained for reuse by the fund.

The sale of publications to the public is divided into two programs. One program covers primarily the sale of those publications which by section 1708 of title 44 are offered for sale to the public by the Superintendent of Documents at a price based upon the cost as determined by the Public Printer plus 50%. The other program covers the sale of the Congressional Record, Federal Register, Presidential Papers, et cetera at prices which are set in accordance with other sections of title 44. Part of the receipts accruing from both programs are transferred to the general fund of the Treasury as required by law (44 U.S.C. 309).

The General Accounting Office is responsible directly to the Congress for conducting independent reviews, audits, and investigations of programs, activities, and financial transactions of Federal agencies, for rendering legal decisions relating to Government fiscal matters; for developing principles, standards, and related requirements for Federal agency accounting systems, cooperating in developing agency systems, and approving them; for the settlement of certain claims for and against the Government; and, for advising and assisting the Congress and Government agencies on matters relating to public funds.

1. Office of the Comptroller General.—Executive management of the General Accounting Office is carried out by the Comptroller General, who is assisted by the Deputy Comptroller General, the General Counsel, Assistant Comptrollers General and staff.

2. Office of the General Counsel.—The Office of the General Counsel drafts decisions covering all phases of Government activity relating to the expenditure of public funds; provides advice concerning legal matters to Executive agencies and to congressional committees and Members of Congress and their staff; reviews all GAO audit reports for legal sufficiency; drafts legislation; prepares reports on proposed legislation; and provides all other required legal services.

3. Management Services.—This office is responsible for making independent studies and evaluations of management problems; providing management analysis services; initiating and implementing a vigorous Management Improvement Program within the General Accounting Office; the formulation, preparation, and execution of the GAO budget for submission to Congress; maintenance of the administrative accounting, payroll and leave systems; establishing a centralized library system; management of space and government fiscal records; coordination, publication and distribution of manuals, reports and other documents; and furnishing general office services. This office also administers personnel management functions including (a) formulating and executing recruiting programs, (b) developing and carrying out training and professional career development programs, (c) executing programs for salary and wage administration and employee rights, benefits, and obligations, (d) participating in general control over staff assignments, and (e) obtaining appropriate recognition of the professional character of the accounting and auditing work of the General Accounting Office.

4. Office of Policy.—This office advises and assists the Comptroller General in policy formulation, guidance, and review with respect to all GAO functions. Also, this office develops internal auditing principles and standards for the guidance of executive agencies and coordinates the preparation of designated GAO publications.

5. Office of Program Planning.—This office advises and assists the Comptroller General in establishing the General Accounting Office long range objectives, and in the direction of effort and resource planning for the programs to carry out the objectives.

6. Office of Internal Review.—This office is responsible for examining into the operations and performance of all divisions and offices of the General Accounting Office and preparing reports for the Comptroller General and the Deputy Comptroller General setting forth the findings, conclusions, and recommendations growing out of such examinations.

7. Logistics and Communications Division.—

8. Procurement and Systems Acquisition Division.—

11. Resources and Economic Development Division.—

12. Manpower and Welfare Division.—13. International Division.—

These divisions, located in Washington, D.C., are responsible for the performance of the auditing and investigative functions of the General Accounting Office in the Federal departments and agencies and the District of Columbia, as assigned by the Comptroller General. These functions include the review and analysis of government programs and activities for the purpose of determining (a) whether the funds and other resources are utilized only for authorized programs and activities and are properly accounted for and reported, (b) whether agency resources are managed efficiently and economically, and (c) whether programs are achieving the objectives intended by the Congress in enacting legislation.

The International Division includes two overseas branches. The European branch, with headquarters in Frankfurt, Germany, is responsible for performing assigned General Accounting Office functions in the European area, including Africa, the Near East, and South Asia through Pakistan. The Far East branch, with headquarters in Honolulu, Hawaii, is responsible for performing assigned General Accounting Office functions in Hawaii and the Far East area, including Southeast Asia and South Asia through India.

14. Financial and General Management Studies Division.—This division provides cooperative assistance to departments and agencies in the development of accounting systems and reviews, evaluates, and makes recommendations relating to approval of accounting systems. It conducts special studies or reviews agency studies of programs and activities requiring application of systems analysis, statistical sampling, or actuarial techniques. It conducts Government-wide studies of the management of automatic data processing systems, and provides advice and assistance to the Congress in its area of responsibility. It performs audits for the purpose of settling the accounts of accountable officers and provides leadership in carrying out the General Accounting Office's responsibilities under sections 201, 202, and 204 of the Legislative Reorganization Act.

15. Joint Financial Management Improvement Program.—This office represents the General Accounting Office in the Joint Financial Management Improvement Program conducted with the Office of Management and Budget, the Treasury Department, the Civil Service Commission, and the General Services Administration.

16. Office of Special Projects.—This office is responsible for GAO-wide planning and coordination of energy and materials activity including related food and environmental impacts, for conducting special studies in these areas, and for regulatory agencies' reports review and information system evaluation.

17. Office of Program Budgeting Analysis.—This office's responsibility is to respond fully to congressional concern and needs in the budget areas. It will identify and evaluate major budget issue areas using multidisciplinary teams capable of assessing the options and the economic, financial and social impacts of different actions.

18. Office of Federal Elections.—This office, by delegation, carries out the Comptroller General's responsibilities under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971, which are (1) to regulate concerning the monetary limitations placed on spending by candidates for Federal elective office for use of the communications media; and (2) to act as "supervisory officer" with respect to disclosure of campaign receipts and expenditures by candidates for the office of President and Vice President—receiving and auditing the prescribed reports and data extracted from them. This office will also perform the Comptroller General's functions under the Presidential Election Campaign Fund Act which includes certifying amounts political parties may receive from the "check off" funds and monitoring campaign spending by Presidential candidates. Under the provisions of the Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1974, the responsibilities of this office will be taken over by a commission to be known as the Federal Election Commission. This transfer of responsibility will occur during the latter part of fiscal year 1975.

19. Field Operations Division.—This division, composed of a central office and regional offices in principal cities in the United States, is responsible for performing accounting, auditing, and investigative work assigned by the Washington operating divisions, and for audits of the four military finance centers and certain Government corporations and revolving funds.

20. Transportation and Claims Division.—This division is responsible for auditing expenditures by the United States for transportation services, recovering overcharges by carriers, and adjudicating and settling claims by and against the United States. In settling transportation and general claims, this division also furnishes litigation assistance to the Department of Justice. To further carry out its basic audit responsibility, this division evaluates and reports on the claims settlement, debt collection, and transportation activities of Government agencies and assists in improving their effectiveness in these activities.

The U.S. Tax Court hears and decides cases involving Federal income, estate, and gift tax deficiencies and renders declaratory judgments regarding the qualification of retirement plans under the provisions of Public Law 93-406, known as the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

For 1976, the court proposes a trial program of 285 weeks consisting of 220 weeks of regular trial sessions and 65 weeks of small tax cases sessions, such trials to be held throughout the United States. Based on the prediction that closings will match the number of new petitions filed during 1975 and 1976, the end 1976 pending caseload is forecast at the level actually maintained in 1973 and 1974.

The actual and estimated work volume of the court is presented in the following tabulation:

Pending, beginning year.....	13,388	13,792	13,727	14,827
Docketed during year.....	9,181	8,757	10,100	9,100
Reopened during year.....	116	95	100	100
Disposed of during year.....	8,893	8,917	9,100	10,200
Pending, end of year.....	13,792	13,727	14,827	13,827

The 3-month transition period between the end of 1976 and the beginning of the new year 1977 coincides with the normally low quarter of the court's program activity. It is estimated that during that period filings will exceed closings by approximately 500 cases, reflecting a temporary increase in the pending caseload as of September 1976.

For 1972 the United States Tax Court received an appropriation in the amount of $18,712 thousand and for 1973 a supplemental appropriation in the amount of $1,916 thousand for a total of $20,628 thousand to provide for the construction of a court building to be located within the District of Columbia. The Tax Court is a court of national jurisdiction with headquarters in Washington, D.C., and conducts trial sessions throughout the United States. The new building provides adequate housing and courtroom facilities for the Judges, Commissioners, and all support personnel.

Ground was broken on July 31, 1972, and the new building was occupied in January, 1975.

A supplemental request for 1975 in the amount of $2 million is being submitted separately to cover increased costs of completing phase II of the building project, the plaza across Interstate 95.

This fund, established under 26 U.S.C. 7448, is used to pay survivorship benefits to eligible widows and dependent children of deceased judges of the U.S. Tax Court. Participating judges pay 3% of their salaries or retired pay into the fund to cover creditable service for which payment is required. Additional funds as are needed are provided through the annual appropriation of the U.S. Tax Court.

On June 30, 1974, 18 judges of the court were participating in the fund, and 2 eligible widows were receiving survivorship annuity payments.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 102. No part of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the maintenance or care of private vehicles, except for emergency assistance and cleaning as may be provided under regulations issued by the House of Representatives Select Committee To Regulate Parking on the House Side of the Capitol.

SEC. 103. Whenever any office or position not specifically established by the Legislative Pay Act of 1929 is appropriated for herein or whenever the rate of compensation or designation of any position appropriated for herein is different from that specifically established for such position by such Act, the rate of compensation and the designation of the position, or either, appropriated for or provided herein, shall be the permanent law with respect thereto: Provided, That the provisions herein for the various items of official expenses of Members, officers, and committees of the Senate and House, and clerk hire for Senators and Members shall be the permanent law with respect thereto.

SEC. 104. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 105. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for paying to the Administrator of the General Services Administration in excess of 90 per centum of the standard level user charge established pursuant to section 210(j) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, for space and services.

SEC. 106. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the citizenship or nationality of Karin Birgitta Holmen shall not prohibit the Secretary of the Senate from paying compensation to the said Karin Birgitta Holmen while serving as an employee of the Senate. ]

SEC. [107] 106. Section 502(b) of the Mutual Security Act of 1954 (22 U.S.C. 1754(b)), relating to the use of foreign currency, is amended by striking out the last two sentences and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "Each member or employee of any such committee shall make, to the chairman of such committee in accordance with regulations prescribed by such committee, an itemized report showing the amounts and dollars equivalent values of each such foreign currency expended and the amounts of dollar expenditures made from appropriated funds in connection with travel outside the United States, together with the purposes of the expenditure, including lodging, meals, transportation, and other purposes. Within the first sixty days that Congress is in session in each calendar year, the chairman of such committee shall prepare a consolidated report showing the total itemized expenditures during the preceding calendar year of the committee and each subcommittee thereof, and of each member or employee of such committee or subcommittee, and shall forward such consolidated report to the Clerk of the House of Representatives (if the committee be a committee of the House of Representatives or a joint committee whose funds are disbursed by the Clerk of the House) or to the Secretary of the Senate (if the committee be a Senate committee or joint committee whose funds are disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate)". The U.S. Court of Customs and Patent Appeals has exclusive jurisdiction in appeals from judgment of the U.S. Customs Court in all cases involving the construction of the law and facts respecting the classification of merchandise and the rate of duty imposed thereunder and all appealable questions as to the laws and regulations governing the collection of customs revenues. Its decisions are final unless taken to the Supreme Court on writs of certiorari.

The Court also has exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from the Tariff Commission on questions of law only and in the matter of unfair practices in import trade and appellate jurisdiction from decisions of the Patent Office in patent and trademark cases, except those involving equity.

The U.S. Customs Court with offices in New York City has exclusive jurisdiction, throughout the United States and its possessions, embracing 46 customs collection districts and 286 ports of entry into which merchandise is imported, over civil actions arising under the tariff laws, the internal revenue laws relating to imported merchandise, the several customs simplification acts, the proclamations of the President issued under reciprocal trade agreements, and other proclamations imposing taxes and/or quotas on imported goods, etc. Trials may be held at any port or any place within the jurisdiction of the United States, as designated by the chief judge. Cases before the court are tried under the legal procedure provided for in title 28, United States Code, entitled "Judiciary and Judicial Procedure." The court tries cases without a jury, making findings of fact, and applies the law, both statutory and general, including constitutional issues. The Government is represented before the court by an Assistant Attorney General of the United States and a staff of special trial attorneys.

The U.S. Court of Claims has jurisdiction over all cases involving claims against the United States (except in pension suits) instituted upon constitutional grounds or under Federal law or regulations, all claims arising out of any contract with the Federal Government and its agencies, and claims for the refund of taxes. It also has general jurisdiction to hear and determine claims for damages other than tort actions, provided the claimants would have the right to sue in law or equity if the United States were not immune to such suits. It has jurisdiction in suits against the United States by contractors dissatisfied with the findings and decisions of contracting agencies under terminated war contracts and jurisdiction concurrent with that of the courts of appeals to review district court decisions in cases involving tort actions. It has exclusive jurisdiction to review the decisions of the Indian Claims Commission on appeal from the Commission. It also has jurisdiction in special act cases referred to the Court by the Congress, and the commissioners of the Court have jurisdiction to render reports to the Congress on claims set forth in bills referred to the chief commissioner by either House of Congress.

The district courts of the United States are constituted courts of bankruptcy, vested with original jurisdiction at law and in equity in proceedings brought under the bankruptcy statutes. This jurisdiction primarily is exercised through referees appointed by the several district courts.

Their salaries and office expenses are paid from this appropriation including compensation and benefits of clerical employees which are payable upon authorization of the Director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.

This appropriation is derived from a special fund in the Treasury to which are deposited payments of fees and charges by parties to the proceedings.

This appropriation is for the operation of the Federal Judicial Center which was established by the act of December 20, 1967, Public Law 90-219 (81 Stat. 664). The Center is charged with the responsibility for furthering the development and adoption of improved judicial administration in the courts of the United States.

The estimate for 1976 makes provision for three additional staff members for the Center, additional funds for research, implementation of prior studies and contractual programs, and for innovation and systems development. Funds are provided for educational seminars for Judicial and para-judicial personnel and judicial council conferences. Funds for printing and reproducing, supplies, and travel are also included in these estimates.

The Office assists the President in the discharge of his budgetary, management, and other executive responsibilities.

1. Budget Review Division.—Budget instructions and procedures are developed, review of agency estimates coordinated, and the budget document is prepared.

2. Executive Development and Labor Relations Division.—Programs to develop, deploy, recruit, and motivate career executives in the Federal service are developed and wage and salary comparability studies are conducted.

3. Legislative Reference Division.—Proposed legislation and agency reports on pending legislation and enrolled bills are reviewed for the President.

4. Management and Operations.—Government-wide programs to improve organization, economy and management effectiveness are planned and implemented. Policy leadership and assistance are given to all agencies in information systems, statistical programs, planning, performance evaluation and other management activities. Improved Federal relations with State and local governments and public interest groups are developed, including support of Federal Regional Councils and Federal Executive Boards.

5-8. National Security and International Affairs, Human and Community Affairs, Economics and Government, and Natural Resources, Energy, and Science Divisions.—Agency programs, budget requests, and management activities are examined, appropriations are apportioned, proposed changes in agency functions are studied, and special studies aimed at establishing goals and objectives that would result in long- and short-range improvements in the agencies' financial, administrative and operational management are conducted.

9. Director's Office.—Executive direction and coordination for all Office of Management and Budget activities is provided. In this regard, staff support is provided in the areas of administration, public affairs, congressional relations, and legal affairs.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, established by the President, was authorized by the Council on Wage and Price Stability Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-387). The Council reflects the continuing concern of the Federal Government with the rate of inflation in the economy as a whole and the special economic problems of various sectors of the economy. The Council monitors wage and price increases in the private sector, conducts special analyses and holds public hearings on the inflationary problems in various sectors of the economy, reviews and appraises various policies and practices of the Federal Government which may contribute to inflation, makes recommendations for increasing productivity and other actions to reduce inflationary pressures, and reports quarterly to the President and the Congress.

TITLE VI—GENERAL PROVISIONS

DEPARTMENTS, AGENCIES, AND CORPORATIONS

SEC. 601. Unless otherwise specifically provided the maximum amount allowable during the current fiscal year in accordance with section 16 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (60 Stat. 810), for the purchase of any passenger motor vehicle (exclusive of buses and ambulances), is hereby fixed at [ "$2,100" ] $2,700 except station wagons for which the maximum shall be [ "$2,400" ] $3,100: Provided, That these limits may be exceeded by not to exceed $900 for police-type vehicles.

SEC. 602. Unless otherwise specified and during the current fiscal year, and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, no part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act shall be used to pay the compensation of any officer or employee of the Government of the United States (including any agency the majority of the stock of which is owned by the Government of the United States) whose post of duty is in continental United States unless such person (1) is a citizen of the United States, (2) is a person in the service of the United States on the date of enactment of this Act, who, being eligible for citizenship, has filed a declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States prior to such date and is actually residing in the United States, (3) is a person who owes allegiance to the United States, or (4) is an alien from Cuba, Poland, or the Baltic countries lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence: Provided, That, for the purpose of this section, an affidavit signed by any such person shall be considered prima facie evidence that the requirements of this section with respect to his status have been complied with: Provided further, That any person making a false affidavit shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $4,000 or imprisoned for not more than one year, or both: Provided further, That the above penal-clause shall be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other provisions of existing law: Provided further, That any payment made to any officer or employee contrary to the provisions of this section shall be recoverable in action by the Federal Government. This section shall not apply to citizens of the Republic of the Philippines or to nationals of those countries allied with the United States in the current defense effort, or to temporary employment of translators, or to temporary employment in the field service (not to exceed sixty days) as a result of emergencies.

SEC. 603. Appropriations of the executive departments and independent establishments for the current fiscal year, and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, available for expenses of travel or for the expenses of the activity concerned, are hereby made available for quarters allowances and cost-of-living allowances, in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 5922-5924.

SEC. 604. No part of any appropriation for the current fiscal year and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, contained in this or any other Act shall be paid to any person for the filling of any position for which he or she has been nominated after the Senate has voted not to approve the nomination of said person.

SEC. 605. Funds made available by this or any other Act for administrative expenses in the current fiscal year and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, of the corporations and agencies subject to the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended (31 U.S.C. 841), shall be available, in addition to objects for which such funds are otherwise available, for rent in the District of Columbia; services in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 3109; and the objects specified under this head, all the provisions of which shall be applicable to the expenditure of such funds unless otherwise specified in the Act by which they are made available: Provided, That in the event any functions budgeted as administrative expenses are subsequently transferred to or paid from other funds, the limitations on administrative expenses shall be correspondingly reduced.

SEC. 606. Pursuant to section 1415 of the Act of July 15, 1952 (66 Stat. 662), foreign credits (including currencies) owed to or owned by the United States may be used by Federal agencies for any purpose for which appropriations are made for the current fiscal year and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, (including the carrying out of Acts requiring or authorizing the use of such credits), only when reimbursement therefor is made to the Treasury from applicable appropriations of the agency concerned: Provided, That such credits received as exchange allowances or proceeds of sales of personal property may be used in whole or part payment for acquisition of similar items, to the extent and in the manner authorized by law, without reimbursement to the Treasury.

SEC. 607. (a) No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency, shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes designed to support or defeat legislation pending before Congress.

DEPARTMENTS, AGENCIES, AND CORPORATIONS—Continued

(b) No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of the salary of any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service, who—

(1) prohibits or prevents, or attempts or threatens to prohibit or prevent, any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service from having any direct oral or written communication or contact with any Member or committee of Congress in connection with any matter pertaining to the employment of such officer or employee or pertaining to the United States Postal Service in any way, irrespective of whether such communication or contact is at the initiative of such officer or employee or in response to the request or inquiry of such Member or committee; or

(2) removes, suspends from duty without pay, demotes, reduces in rank, seniority, status, pay, or performance or efficiency rating, denies promotion to, relocates, reassigns, transfers, disciplines, or discriminates in regard to any employment right, entitlement, or benefit, or any term or condition of employment of, any officer or employee of the United States Postal Service, or attempts or threatens to commit any of the foregoing actions with respect to such officer or employee, by reason of any communication or contact of such officer or employee with any Member or committee of Congress as described in paragraph (1) of this subsection.

SEC. 608. No part of any appropriation contained in this or any other Act, shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under section 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriations Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific congressional approval of such method of financial support.

SEC. 609. Appropriations available to any department or agency during the current fiscal year and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, for necessary expenses, including maintenance or operating expenses, shall also be available for payment to the General Services Administration for charges for space and services and those expenses of renovation and alteration of buildings and facilities which constitute public improvements, performed in accordance with the Public Buildings Act of 1959 (73 Stat. 749), the Public Buildings Amendments of 1972 (86 Stat. 216), or other applicable law.

SEC. 610. Funds made available by this or any other Act to the fund created by the Public Buildings Amendments of 1972 (86 Stat. 216), and the "Postal Service fund" (39 U.S.C. 2003), shall be available for employment of guards for all buildings and areas owned or occupied by the United States or the Postal Service and under the charge and control of the General Services Administration or the Postal Service, and such guards shall have, with respect to such property, the powers of special policemen provided by the first section of the Act of June 1, 1948 (62 Stat. 281; 40 U.S.C. 318), but shall not be restricted to certain Federal property as otherwise required by the proviso contained in said section, and, as to property owned or occupied by the Postal Service, the Postmaster General may take the same actions as the Administrator of General Services may take under the provisions of sections 2 and 3 of the Act of June 1, 1948 (62 Stat. 281; 40 U.S.C. 318a, 318b) attaching thereto penal consequences under the authority and within the limits provided in section 4 of the Act of June 1, 1948 (62 Stat. 281; 40 U.S.C. 318c).

SEC. 611. None of the funds available under this Act shall be available for administrative expenses in connection with the transfer of any functions, personnel, facilities, equipment, or funds out of the United States Customs Service unless such transfers have been specifically authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 612. None of the funds available under this Act shall be available for administrative expenses for the purpose of transferring the border control activities of the Bureau of Customs to any other agency of the Federal Government. (Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, 1975.)

[TITLE II—GENERAL PROVISIONS]

[SEC. 201. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.]

[SEC. 202. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for paying to the Administrator of the General Services Administration in excess of 90 per centum of the standard level user charge established pursuant to section 210(j) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, for space and services.]

[SEC. 203. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act or any other Act may be used to pay any expenses of any kind to send, ship, transmit, convey, or deliver any of the Presidential documents, written materials, or tape recordings of former President Richard M. Nixon from the custody of Federal officials or agencies now in possession of them until the passage by the Congress of legislation determining the disposition of said documents, written materials, and tape recordings: Provided, That this limitation shall expire on June 30, 1975: And provided further, That this limitation shall not prevent compliance with subpoenas duly issued by State or Federal Courts or by the United States House of Representatives or the United States Senate.]

[SEC. 204. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, appropriations provided in this or any other Act which would otherwise expire on June 30 of the calendar year 1976, or on such date of any subsequent calendar year, shall remain available until September 30 of each such calendar year.]

[SEC. 205. None of the funds appropriated by this or any other Act which are available during the fiscal year 1975 for travel expenses, including subsistence allowances, of Government officers and employees may be obligated after the date of the enactment of this Act, at a rate for the balance of the fiscal year which exceeds 90 percent of the budget estimates for fiscal year 1975 for such expenses which were submitted for appropriations or otherwise provided by law: Provided, That none of the limitations on travel included in the regular appropriations for fiscal year 1975 shall be exceeded.] (Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1975.)

This program establishes a framework of joint Federal and State efforts to provide the basic facilities essential to economic growth in Appalachia.

Program investments made in the Appalachian region are concentrated in areas with significant potential for future growth.

The States, acting through the Appalachian Regional Commission, are responsible for recommending local and State projects within their borders for assistance under this program.

1. Appalachian Development Highway System.—Section 201 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act authorizes construction of an Appalachian Development Highway System including local access roads. This System is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia. The program is funded through contract authority available in the fiscal year preceding the year of authority. The budget for 1976 provides $160 million to fully liquidate obligations through that period. An additional $35 million is provided for the July 1 through September 30, 1976 period.

Development system miles (cumulative):	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate	September 30, 1976

2. Area development programs.—Funds are provided for a single allocation to each of the Appalachian States for implementing programs of area development. The programs consist of projects aimed primarily at providing the basic facilities essential to the region's growth and economic development, particularly in the areas of health, education, and community facilities.

During 1976 continued emphasis will be placed on conducting area development activities within the several geographic subregions of Appalachia by an allocation system permitting greater State flexibility in the amount and kind of projects undertaken. These projects will be of the following types, with the project mix depending on the State plans adopted within the context of the sub-regional development strategies: health and child development; community facilities and housing; vocational and other education; enterprise development and tourism; natural resources and environment; and non-highway transportation. Authorizing legislation will be requested for these programs in 1976. Workload data for comparable programs in the previous years follow:

(a) Demonstration health projects.—Grants are made for the construction, equipping, and operation of multicounty demonstration health facilities including hospitals, regional health diagnostic or treatment centers, and other facilities. In addition, grant support is provided for primary care and child development programs throughout the region. During the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, the program will only fund continuations of ongoing projects.

(b) Mine area restoration.—Section 205 of the act authorizes a program for the sealing and filling of voids in abandoned coal mines, the planning and execution of projects for the extinguishment and control of underground and outcrop mine fires, and the reclamation and rehabilitation of strip and surface mine areas, including waste banks, on public land in those areas where the potential for economic growth exists in Appalachia. States or local sponsors must bear 25% of the project cost. Approved projects on a cumulative basis are:

(c) Vocational education facilities.—Grants are made to States and local districts within the Appalachian region for the construction and equipment of vocational education facilities in Appalachia, and in limited cases for operation and demonstrations in Appalachia. Vocational education facilities are key elements for the training and upgrading of potential and existing labor force entrants in skills required in commercial and other vocations. Grants are administered through the Office of Education. Vocational education projects approved, including those aided by supplementary grants, are as follows:

[Dollars in thousands]

Number of projects (cumulative):	1974 actual
Construction and equipment.....	589
Operations and demonstrations.....	71
Funds obligated—Sec. 211.....	$24,267

(d) Supplements to Federal grant-in-aid programs.—This program provides supplemental grants to enable areas to take advantage of other Federal construction grant programs. Direct grants, plus supplemental grants, cannot exceed 80% of the project cost. The amount of supplemental grants depend upon the relative need of the area and nature of the project.

Supplemental assistance has been provided from inception through 1974 to the following types of projects (amount in millions of dollars):

(3) Research and local development district program.—Appalachian planning assistance is provided through grants to multicounty local development districts and for research and demonstration projects. Grants are made for up to 75% of the administrative expenses of local development districts. Other planning and technical assistance is provided for (a) programs which improve the base for economic growth, (b) programs which will attract industrial development within the region, (c) programs which improve the health, education, and skills of the people, and (d) programs which conserve, maintain, and improve natural resources. During the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, the program will only fund continuations of ongoing projects for local development district support.

This program provides for several ways of assisting the region in obtaining a larger share of housing for low- and moderate-income families. The Commission is authorized to make technical assistance grants for the organization of State housing corporations and local nonprofit groups to encourage such housing construction.

This program also provides authority to make loans for up to 80% of the preliminary cost of planning housing projects and obtaining federally insured mortgages. Eligible loan costs include preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site options, and construction loan fees and discounts.

Under the 1971 amendments to the act, grants may be made for site development costs and offsite improvements such as sewer and water line extensions where necessary for economic feasibility of the housing project. Grants for such purposes may not exceed 10% of the project cost.

Funds are transferred from the "Appalachian regional development" appropriation to this revolving fund for the following workload:

Grants of defense articles and services are made to assist other countries to improve their defensive capabilities. As other nations are increasingly able to rely on their own resources, particularly manpower, the need for U.S. forces abroad should decline and the likelihood of having to commit U.S. combat forces in the future should decrease. Most of the military items furnished under this program are produced in the United States. Orders are placed through the U.S. military services, which are reimbursed from this account when the items are delivered.

An appropriation of $1,040 million is proposed in 1976. Included in the 1976 appropriation request is $250 million to reimburse the military departments for defense stocks diverted to Cambodia in 1974 under authority of section 506 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. The President has authorized a similar drawdown of defense stocks in the amount of $75 million in 1975. The administrative costs related to foreign military credit sales, foreign military training, emergency security assistance for Israel, military credit sales to Israel, liquidation of foreign military sales fund and advances, foreign military sales, are included in this account.

Military training for foreign military personnel prior to 1976 has been funded by the military assistance appropriation. This year, a separate account is being proposed to underscore the importance of this form of contact between the defense establishments in foreign countries and U.S. military departments. Education and training of members of foreign armed forces is an effective way to create goodwill while at the same time improving the defensive abilities of their countries. Training is conducted in both the United States and abroad. An appropriation of $30 million is proposed for 1976.

The administrative expenses related to this program will be funded from the military assistance appropriation.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE, SOUTH VIETNAMESE FORCES

For necessary expenses to enable the President to carry out the provisions of the Foreign Assistance Act authorizing support for South Vietnamese Military Forces for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $355,000,000. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976.)

Support for South Vietnamese forces was funded prior to 1975 from appropriations to military departments. In 1975 a separate account was created for appropriation to the Secretary of Defense. From July 1, 1976, this account will be authorized under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, and appropriated to the President. Program data for 1975 and 1976 will be found in the Department of Defense section of this appendix.

FOREIGN MILITARY CREDIT SALES

For expenses not otherwise provided for, necessary to enable the President to carry out the provisions of the Foreign Military Sales Act, $560,000,000.

For "Foreign military credit sales" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $30,000,000. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for fiscal year 1976, and for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976.)

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1975 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for the period July 1, 1974, to Feb. 28, 1975. The amounts shown below for 1975 are based upon amounts authorized for 1975 in the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

This appropriation provides funds to finance credit sales of defense articles and services to foreign countries and international organizations. Two types of financing arrangements are used: (1) direct U.S. Government credit, and (2) commercial credit guaranteed by the Government. Funding required for guarantee of commercial credit is 10% of the principal amount of the credit.

An appropriation of $560 million is requested for 1976 to finance a credit sales program of $1,021.5 million. Of the $1,021.5 million program, $512.8 million will be privately financed and $51.3 million of the appropriation will be set aside as a guarantee reserve for this private credit.

The administrative expenses related to this program are funded from the military assistance appropriation.

SECURITY SUPPORTING ASSISTANCE

Security supporting assistance: For necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of section 531 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, $580,400,000 to remain available until expended.

For "Security supporting assistance" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $146,400,000, to remain available until expended. (The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for fiscal year 1976 and for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976.)

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1975 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. This liquidation account was established as of June 30, 1968, under the authority of section 201(h)(3) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1967. The foreign military sales fund terminated as of the same date and the assets were transferred to this account to be available solely for the purpose of discharging outstanding liabilities and obligations arising from credit agreements and guaranties issued prior to June 30, 1968. Any funds in this account in excess of the aggregate amount of such liabilities and obligations are transferred to the general fund of the Treasury.

The administrative expenses related to this account are funded from the military assistance appropriation.

As authorized by sections 21 and 22 of the Foreign Military Sales Act, as amended, this trust fund is used to facilitate cash sales of defense articles and services. The purpose of the trust fund, which is strictly a cash account, is to enable foreign governments to take advantage of savings which result from procurement through U.S. Government channels. In dollar volume, the major portion of this program consists of sales to European and other developed countries of the free world.

Defense articles from Department of Defense stocks are sold for U.S. dollars to eligible countries and international organizations if they agree to pay in advance or, as authorized by the President, within 120 days after delivery.

Defense articles and defense services may also be procured by the Department of Defense for foreign purchasers if the purchasers agree to pay the full amount of the procurement contract, which assures the Government against any loss on the contract. The Department of Defense may accept a dependable undertaking under which the purchaser agrees to pay within 120 days after delivery, in which case Defense appropriations are used to meet contract payments and are subsequently reimbursed with payments received from the purchasers.

Administrative expenses related to the execution of contracts under this authority are funded in the military assistance appropriation.

Funds are provided to help maintain economic stability and meet the relief and reconstruction needs resulting from hostilities in Southeast Asia. They provide imports required to maintain industrial and agricultural production; temporary shelter and medical care for refugees and war victims; and funds for construction of needed hospitals, schools, and homes. These programs represent a continuation of past efforts.

The United States, along with many other countries, provides funds to promote international monetary stability through the International Monetary Fund and to finance development lending and technical assistance through the international development banks.

Each of the banks is an international organization, corporate in form, whose capital stock is owned by its member governments. The banks make ordinary capital loans to member countries with funds generated from members' purchases of paid-in-capital stock and with funds borrowed on world capital markets. The borrowings are backed by members' subscriptions of callable capital, which would be drawn on for cash disbursements only in the unlikely event that funds would be required to meet an institution's obligations. Concessional financing is provided only from the paid-in subscriptions of members made specifically for this purpose.

Ordinary capital loans have long-term maturities and near-market interest rates. Special fund loans (including all International Development Association credits) have longer maturities and low, sometimes even nominal, interest rates. In general, they are provided to those developing countries with the lowest incomes.

1. Investment in International Development Association.—The International Development Association (IDA) was established in 1960 to administer a special fund affiliated with the World Bank. Pursuant to authorization in the International Development Association Act (Public Law 86-565, as amended), enacted June 30, 1960, the United States joined the Association in August 1960. As of June 30, 1974, the U.S. share of the $6.56 billion in total subscriptions from all contributions was $2.5 billion.

On August 14, 1974, legislation authorizing a U.S. subscription of $1.5 billion, as part of a $4.5 billion multi-donor fourth replenishment of IDA resources, was signed into law (Public Law 93-373). As the first of four installments on this subscription, an appropriation of $375 million is requested for 1976.

2. Investment in Inter-American Development Bank.—The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes economic development in Latin American and Caribbean countries through loans and technical assistance. Twenty-four Western Hemisphere republics, including the United States and Canada, are members of the Bank. Pursuant to the Inter-American Development Act, (Public Law 86-147 as amended), the United States joined the Bank in December 1959. Approximately 47.5% of IDB lending has come from the Bank's ordinary capital resources and 52.5% from special fund resources.

Ordinary capital.—As of June 30, 1974, the total subscribed ordinary capital of the IDB was $5,954 million, of which $972 million equivalent was paid-in. The U.S. share is $2,409 million including $362 million paid-in.

The last payment to the ordinary capital of the IDB, $193.4 million, including $25 million in paid-in form, was appropriated for the U.S. subscription in 1974. The subscription discharged in full the U.S. undertakings with respect to the 1970 replenishment of the Bank's ordinary capital resources.

Given the current and projected lending levels, a further replenishment of IDB resources is required for the period 1976-78. Consultations will be undertaken shortly with the Congress on the subject, after which international negotiations will commence. Assuming successful completion of these negotiations and passage of necessary authorizing legislation, a 1976 appropriation will be requested for the first installment of the U.S. subscription.

Fund for Special Operations.—Contributions to the Fund for Special Operations (FSO) as of June 30, 1974, totaled $3.9 billion of which the U.S. share equaled $2.5 billion or 64%. An appropriation request of $500 million, representing the balance of funds due under the 1970 third replenishment, is being sought in 1975.

3. Investment in Asian Development Bank.—The Asian Development Bank (ADB) was established in 1966 to foster economic growth in Asia by extending loans and technical assistance to the developing member countries of the region.

Ordinary capital.—On November 23, 1972, an increase in the Bank's authorized capital came into effect when the required number of stockholders subscribed to their shares of the capital stock increase. This action raised the Bank's total authorized capital stock from $1.1 billion to $2.7 billion in current dollars.

Authorizing legislation signed into law on December 22, 1974 (Public Law 93-537), amended the Asian Development Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-369) by providing for a further U.S. subscription to the ordinary capital of the Bank in the total amount of $361.9 million, to be paid in three annual installments of $120.6 million. When paid in full, this subscription to the ordinary capital increase will restore the equity position of the United States in the Bank.

The first installment of $120.6 million, of which $24.1 million is paid-in, is being proposed as an amendment to the 1975 appropriation request. The second installment of $120.6 million is requested for 1976.

Special Funds.—As of June 30, 1974, contributions by member countries to the resources of the Bank's concessional loan funds amounted to $377 million. Resources of the Special Funds and of the newly formed Asian Development Fund—which will replace the special funds—are used to make low-interest loans to member Asian countries. Total loan commitments as of June 30, 1974, amounted to $329 million. Legislation authorizing a $100 million U.S. contribution to the special funds was enacted in March 1972 and a further $50 million was authorized in December 1974. The additional $50 million is sought in 1976 to permit full U.S. participation in a multilateral replenishment of the ADF.

The current dollar value of the U.S. quota in the International Monetary Fund is $8,082 million, as a result of an increase of $808 million arising from the recent modification of the value of the dollar in terms of gold. Pursuant to the Fund's charter, this modification required U.S. maintenance of value payments to the IMF totaling $754 million. Of this amount, $606 million represented U.S. obligations to maintain the value of its currency subscription to the IMF, which was three-fourths of the dollar value of the U.S. quota of $7,274 million at the time of devaluation. A $202 million increase in the dollar value of the remaining portion of the U.S. quota, representing our subscription in gold to the IMF, occurred automatically. In addition, payments of $148 million were required to cover U.S. maintenance of value obligations on outstanding drawings from the Fund of $1,332 million. As monetary transactions, the increase in the current dollar value of the U.S. quota, and other transactions with the IMF, represent exchanges of assets and do not result in budgetary expenditures.

Budget Authority

Public Law 87-490, approved June 19, 1962, authorized an appropriation to remain available until expended, of $2 billion for U.S. participation in a 10-nation, $6 billion arrangement providing, under specified conditions, for loans by the participants to the International Monetary Fund when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. The appropriation for these arrangements, known as the General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB), was obtained on October 24, 1962.

The GAB has been drawn on by the Fund on six occasions in the total amount of $2,155 million. The United States has not yet participated in the loans extended under the GAB because the Fund's holdings of dollars have been adequate.

The executive directors of the International Monetary Fund renewed the GAB on October 17, 1969, for a period of 5 years, beginning October 24, 1970. The U.S. commitment to lend up to $2 billion to the Fund under the GAB will continue during the renewal period. A further renewal, for an additional period of 5 years, is in process

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS AND PROGRAMS

For International organizations and programs, including loans and grants for the Indus Basin development fund, as authorized by Section 302(a) and 302(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, and by section 2 of the United Nations Environment Program Participation Act of 1973, $213,500,000, to remain available until expended.

For "International organizations and programs" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $20,000,000, to remain available until expended. (The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for fiscal year 1976 and for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976.)

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1975 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for the period July 1, 1974, to February 28, 1975. The amounts shown below for 1975 are based upon amounts authorized for 1975 in the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. However, $10 million included in the continuing resolution for "Assistance to Palestinian Refugees" is shown in Migration and refugee assistance, Department of State.

Voluntary contributions to international organizations and programs encourage their development assistance efforts. The bulk of the U.S. contribution is made to the United Nations development program, which finances technical assistance and feasibility studies undertaken within the United Nations system. Other major contributions are to the United Nations Children's Fund, the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for assisting Palestinian refugees, and the United Nations Environment Fund. Funds also support OAS regional development programs.

Grants and loans to the World Bank's Indus Basin development fund, to which a consortium of donors contributes, finance a construction program which allows equitable division of waters of the Basin between India and Pakistan. It supplements irrigation and provides arable land for over 50 million people. Funds are called for as needed to cover disbursements.

Funds are required only for the United Nations Relief and Works Agency and the Indus Basin development fund for the transition period.

Development assistance aids less developed countries in overcoming critical problems that impede their economic and social development. Funds are specifically requested for areas in which the U.S. has special expertise: programs concerned with food production and nutrition, population planning and health, and education and human resources development.

Funds are also provided to support investment in transportation, power, and industrial and urban development. In addition this appropriation provides funds in support of the general economy of selected countries and to certain private and international organizations.

INFORMATIONAL FOREIGN CURRENCY SCHEDULES

American Schools and Hospitals Abroad, Special Foreign Currency Program

American schools and hospitals abroad (special foreign currency program) for necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of section 214, $7,000,000 in foreign currencies which the Treasury Department declares to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States, to remain available until expended.

For American schools and hospitals abroad (special foreign currency program) for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $1,750,000 in foreign currencies which the Treasury Department declares to be excess, to remain available until expended. (The Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for fiscal year 1976 and for the period July 1, 1976, to September 30, 1976.)

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1975 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for the period July 1, 1974, to February 28, 1975. The amounts shown below for 1975 are based upon amounts authorized for 1975 in the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

Through 1961, a portion of the mutual security appropriation was used to purchase surplus agricultural commodities which were then sold to friendly countries for their currencies. The local currencies which accrued from these sales are used for economic and military activities in furtherance of objectives of the U.S. foreign assistance program. Also, beginning in 1967, the Agency for International Development began to finance part of its development program in Laos with local currencies generated from cash grants to the monetary stabilization program.

Development loans are made to friendly developing countries in order to promote their economic development. These loans are repayable in U.S. dollars at an interest rate of not less than 3% per annum. Loan repayments are to begin not later than 10 years following the date on which the funds are lent. During the initial 10-year period the rates of interest are not to be lower than 2% per annum.

Before a loan is made, the Agency for International Development must take into account (1) whether financing could be obtained in whole or in part from other free world sources on reasonable terms including private sources within the United States, (2) the economic and technical soundness of the activity to be financed, including the capacity of the recipient country to repay the loan, (3) whether the activity gives reasonable promise of contributing to the development of economic resources or to the increase of productive capacities, (4) the consistency of the activity with, and its relationship to, other development activities being undertaken or planned, and its contribution to realistic long-range objectives, (5) the extent to which the recipient country is demonstrating its determination to take effective self-help measures, and (6) possible effects upon the economy of the United States. Additional loan criteria and standards are established by an interagency development loan committee chaired by the Administrator of the Agency for International Development.

Beginning in 1974 the former Alliance for Progress—development loans program is merged with the Development Loans—revolving fund.

Also beginning in 1974 budget authority for both loans and grants for development assistance will be included in the schedule Functional Development Assistance Program. The amounts of budget authority programed for loans will be advanced to the Development Loans—revolving fund for obligation.

The Development Loan Fund was established as a corporation by the Mutual Security Act of 1958 to extend loans, credits, and guaranties to American or foreign individuals, businesses, financial institutions, or foreign governments in order to provide capital for projects and programs contributing to the economic growth of friendly developing countries.

Under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, the corporation was abolished and its functions were transferred, effective November 3, 1961, to the Agency for International Development. Subsequent to that date, the fund has remained open for the purpose of liquidating outstanding obligations. As of June 30, 1974, all outstanding obligations of the fund have been liquidated.

Loan repayments and interest earned totaled $260 million in 1974 and are expected to total $93 million in 1975 and $80 million in 1976 including foreign currency repayments.

The Inter-American Foundation was established in 1969 and was provided financing through the transfer of $50 million from the Agency for International Development. Additional funding, in local currencies, is available under an agreement allowing access to the Social Progress Trust Fund of the Inter-American Development Bank.

Grants provided by the Foundation support social change and economic development processes which directly impact on the lives of people at the lowest economic levels in Latin America and the Caribbean.

Section 608 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, created a revolving fund to provide for more effective use of U.S. Government-owned excess personal property in foreign assistance programs by authorizing such property to be acquired and rehabilitated in advance of specifically known requirements for country programs.

Many types of excess property such as tractors, construction roadbuilding equipment, machinery, and machine tools, the general needs for which can be anticipated with a reasonable degree of certainty, are included.

A financial solidarity agreement now being negotiated would establish a financing facility to be associated with the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development to assist industrial nations in responding to the energy crisis. The purpose of this financing facility would be to give assurance of the availability of supplementary credit on reasonable terms to help forestall serious eco-conomic difficulties in any participating country; to foster cooperation among participants in reducing dependence on oil imports; and to encourage and enable participants to follow responsible adjustment policies and avoid restrictive or otherwise inappropriate international economic measures. Authorizing legislation will be transmitted as soon as the details of the facility have been negotiated.

Under the agreement, the participating nations would pledge $25 billion to provide financial support as necessary. This standby authority would be used to make direct loans to participants.

The facility would supplement financial assistance available through private and other official channels. Interest rates would be based on commercial rates and the loans would have medium-term maturities. The $7.0 billion U.S. share in the facility, shown above, is subject to international negotiation.

The Office of the Secretary covers the overall planning, coordination, and administration of the Department's programs. Also included are certain services on a departmentwide basis.

1. Program and policy direction and coordination.—This includes the Secretary, Under Secretary, Assistant Secretaries and their immediate staffs who provide top policy guidance for the Department; maintain relationships with agricultural organizations and others in the development of farm programs; and provide liaison with the Executive Office of the President and members of Congress on all matters pertaining to agricultural policy.

2. Budget, fiscal and management.—This covers departmental budgetary and financial management; management of the Department's centralized payroll and voucher payment systems, development of policies and procedures for financial management; evaluation of program and legislative proposals for budgetary, financial and related implications; development of new and improved management techniques and methods of measuring the efficiency and performance of program operations; and the records management and cost reduction programs of the Department.

3. General operations.—These embrace departmental policies and procedures for telecommunications, construction, contracting, procurement, property, mail, space, supply, and transportation management; and departmentwide central services of mail distribution, reproduction, and supply are furnished.

4. ADP systems.—This covers the coordination and direction of data processing for the Department and the departmental computer centers.

5. Personnel administration.—This covers general direction, leadership, and coordination of the personnel management program of the Department. Departmental policies and procedures are issued and the office coordinates a review program to evaluate the effectiveness of agency personnel programs.

6. Regulatory hearings and decisions.—The administrative law judges hold hearings in connection with the prescribing of new regulations and orders and on disciplinary complaints filed by the Department or on petitions filed by private parties asking relief from some action of the Department. Final administrative decisions in regulatory proceedings are rendered by the judicial officer. "Agriculture Decisions" is published monthly.

7. Equal opportunity.—This covers program and policy direction in the development and enforcement of Department equal opportunity responsibilities; review, analysis, and evaluation of agency programs and operations to ascertain compliance with applicable policies, rules, and regulations of the Department and the Federal Government, and processing complaints made to the Department on discrimination in Department programs and providing final Department disposition.

8. Information services.—This activity encompasses general direction, leadership, and coordination of the information services of the Department. The major objectives are to provide a balanced information program that reports to rural and urban publics USDA's research, action, regulatory, and other activities, using all communications media in order to obtain better understanding among the general public and the agricultural industry of Agriculture's services to farmers and to society in general. Workload depends upon Department program demands, direct requests, and legislative requirements.

9. Economic Management Support Center.—The Economic Management Support Center (EMSC) provides consolidated and centralized management support services to several agencies of the Department. It was established pursuant to Secretary's Memorandum No. 1836, dated January 9, 1974, to provide management support services to certain agencies of the Department, primarily those under the jurisdiction of the Director of Agricultural Economics. The objectives are to improve the timeliness and effectiveness of program operations of several agencies through improved utilization of management manpower and techniques, increased specialization of professional skills, and more extensive use of timesaving equipment.

The consolidated management support functions include budget, finance liaison, personnel and related programs, administrative services, and general management assistance. These functions are financed by direct appropriation to EMSC, except for activity performed for others on a reimbursable or advance payment basis; EMSC is reimbursed for management support of these activities.

The organizational structure of EMSC is based upon the above functions with operating divisions providing the services for the following agencies: Statistical Reporting Service, Economic Research Service, Farmer Cooperative Service, Packers and Stockyards Administration, and Economic Management Support Center.

The preceding schedule reflects expenditures from the Consolidated Working Fund, Department of Agriculture. Advances were received from the Civil Service Commission for operations carried out under the Public Service Careers Program. Funds were received into this account as an administrative convenience for allotment to the individual agencies of the Department of Agriculture which carried out the program. Additional funds were received into a consolidated account for a cooperative campaign to produce and promote a series of TV commercials on nutrition.

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

For expenses necessary to enable the Agricultural Research Service to perform agricultural research and demonstrations relating to production, utilization, marketing, and distribution (not otherwise provided for), home economics or nutrition and consumer use,

Note.—Includes $127 thousand in 1976 for activities financed from: Economic Management Support Center (formerly Office of Management Services), 1974, $127 thousand; 1975, $127 thousand.

The Service conducts research to provide the means for a safer, more economical, and more abundant supply of agricultural products for the Nation. The Service uses coordinated, interdisciplinary approaches to perform basic and applied research in the fields of livestock, plants, soil-water-and-air resources, marketing and use of agricultural products, food and nutrition, consumer services and agricultural health hazards. The programs financed from this appropriation are described below.

1. Research on animal production.—Research is conducted to improve livestock productivity (including poultry) through improved breeding, feeding, and management practices and to develop methods for controlling diseases, parasites and insect pests affecting them. The increase requested for 1976 would provide for research to improve production efficiency of beef, hogs, and sheep; reduce losses from disease of livestock and poultry; and increase production efficiency in broilers, eggs, turkeys, and milk.

2. Research on plant production.—Research is conducted to improve plant productivity (including ornamentals, trees, turf, tropical and subtropical crops) through improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; develop new crop resources; and improve crop production practices, including methods to control plant disease, nematodes, insects, and weeds. The increase requested for 1976 would provide for research to increase yields from pasture, forage, and range; reduce the vulnerability of field crops to diseases and insects; improve yields and protein content of food and feed grains; improve pest management technology; and for the development of improved oil crops as sources of food and feed protein.

3. Research on the use and improvement of soil, water, and air.—Research is conducted to improve the management of natural resources, including investigations to improve soil and water management, irrigation and conservation practices, and to determine the relation of soil types and water to plant, animal, and human nutrition. The research includes studies on hydrologic problems of agricultural watershed and the application of remote sensing techniques in meeting agricultural problems. Research is also conducted on agricultural pollution problems such as protection of plants, animals, and natural resources from harmful effects of soil, water, and air pollutants, and ways to minimize and utilize industry processing wastes of agricultural commodities. The increase requested for 1976 would provide research for the effective utilization, management, and conservation of soil and water resources for long-term crop and livestock production while protecting environmental quality.

4. Research on marketing, use, and effects of agricultural products.—Research is conducted to develop new and improved foods, feeds, fabrics, and industrial products and processes for agricultural commodities for domestic and foreign markets. Research is conducted on marketing of agricultural products. Studies concern the processing, transportation, storage, wholesaling, and retailing of products, to reduce losses from waste and spoilage.

Research is conducted on human nutritional requirements, composition and nutritive value of food needed for consumers and for Federal, State, and local agencies administering food and nutrition programs.

Research is conducted on problems of human health and safety. Studies concern developing means to insure food and feed supplies and products free from toxic or potentially dangerous, harmful chemicals, micro-organisms, and from naturally occurring toxins. The research conducted also includes studies concerning means to control insect pests of man and his belongings; prevent transmission of animal-diseases and parasites to man; reduce the hazards to human life resulting from pesticide residues, toxic molds, tobacco, and other causes; and, develop technology for the detection and destruction of illicit growth of narcotic-producing plants.

Research is conducted on consumer services to measure family use of resources, to identify economic problems of families; and to provide information on fabric performance and the use and care of clothing and household articles by consumers.

Research on housing is conducted to provide knowledge and technology to help bring about improved designs, material, and construction methods for both low-cost renovation and new construction of rural housing suitable for low-to-moderate income rural residents.

The increase requested for 1976 would provide research to reduce losses and costs in handling and marketing of grains and soybeans; and provide for a food consumption and dietary levels survey.

5. Construction of facilities.—The 1976 estimates provide for an increase of $2,600 thousand to finance conversion of the sewage treatment system at the Plum Island Animal Disease Center. The proposed increase is offset by the non-recurring amount of $6,420 thousand provided for construction of facilities in 1975.

6. Contingencies.—Beginning in 1962, $1 million is available to meet urgent needs that develop unexpectedly during the year when such needs cannot be met by re-direction of resources from other projects.

7. Support services to other USDA agencies.—Effective July 1, 1974, the Agricultural Research Service is responsible for providing management support services to the National Agricultural Library and the Cooperative State Research Service. These services include budgetary, personnel, and administrative functions which were previously provided by the Office of Management Services.

Foreign currencies which the Treasury Department determines to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States are used for expenses of carrying out programs of the Department of Agriculture under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Research which is important to American agriculture and supplements our domestic programs is carried on through agreements negotiated with institutions and organizations in foreign countries. For example, research is conducted on exotic insect pests and diseases of plants and animals which cannot be done in the United States. Specialized projects provide for the translation and dissemination of foreign language scientific publications. The increase proposed in 1976 would be used to purchase foreign currencies in those countries determined to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States to expand overseas research of value to U.S. agriculture. Total estimated cost in U.S. dollars (charged to regular appropriations) for program direction and supervision of projects in 1976 is $693 thousand.

WORKING CAPITAL FUND, AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH CENTER—CON.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, central facilities and services furnished to agencies at the Agricultural Research Center (64 Stat. 658). Effective July 1, 1973, the activities are now being carried out and financed under the Agricultural Research Service regular appropriation. Services performed for other agencies are on a reimbursable basis. The fund was terminated as of June 30, 1974, and the unobligated balance, including the initial $300 thousand appropriation, will be returned to the general fund of the Treasury.

The major objectives of the Service are (1) to inspect meat and poultry products intended for human consumption to make sure they are wholesome and labeled according to law, and (2) to protect the animal and plant resources of the Nation from destructive pests and diseases.

1. Meat and poultry inspection.—Federal inspection is required for all meat, poultry, and processed products moving in interstate and foreign commerce. All meat and poultry moving in intrastate commerce must be federally inspected or inspected by States with inspection systems meeting Federal standards. Activities include inspection of animals, carcasses, meat and poultry products at various stages of handling and processing, and regulation of labeling. The Federal program also provides financial and technical assistance to States for improving the quality of their inspection programs. Extensive laboratory analyses are conducted for detection of chemical residues, antibiotics and other additives.

The increases in the 1976 estimates provide for expansion of services to cover a projected increase of 52 meat and poultry plants requiring Federal inspection, and for meeting the Federal 50% share of increased State program costs. These include salary cost increases averaging 9% in 98% of the States in the cooperative meat and poultry inspection programs. Other State program costs have increased by similar amounts. The estimates also provide for funding expanding laboratory capabilities and services to keep pace with program growth. An example of this is residue testing. This requires more than double the time required for regular laboratory analysis and over the last several years has increased from 15 to 30% of laboratory workload. The volume of inspections and examinations is indicated by examples given in the following table:

MEAT AND POULTRY INSPECTION

	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Federally inspected establishments:
Meat	3,900	4,029	4,036

Poultry processing	21,556	24,929	26,708
Cooperative agreements with States:

Poultry	31	31	31

2. Plant disease and pest control.—Programs are designed to keep out of this country by inspection at ports of entry those insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and other pests which would be harmful to agriculture. Cooperative programs are conducted to eradicate or prevent the spread to uninfested areas of certain plant pests which are established in this country. The 1976 estimates propose elimination of the pest management pilot program, and decreases for the burrowing nematode, Japanese beetle, and the white-fringed beetle programs.

The level of activities for plant pest control is shown by the selected examples that follow:

Acres treated (thousands):	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Boll weevil	658	600	650

The level of activities for agricultural quarantine inspection at ports of entry is as follows:

3. Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to keep communicable diseases of foreign origin from entering this country and to prevent the spread of disease through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics. In cooperation with States, other programs are directed at the control and eradication of livestock diseases present in this country. The animal welfare program is concerned with the humane care of animals. The 1976 estimates propose increases for brucellosis, screwworm, import export inspection, a decrease for hog cholera eradication and a net decrease in funds needed to repay Commodity Credit Corporation for advances made to combat emergency disease outbreaks.

The level of activities for the major control programs on animal diseases and pests is as follows:

4. Construction of facilities.—The 1976 estimates propose a decrease for construction of a Veterinary Biologics Laboratory and the Fleming Key Animal Import Center. Construction of a new animal import center to replace the Clifton, New Jersey, quarantine station for which $1.5 million was appropriated in the 1970 Appropriation Act has been delayed because the Department has been unable to acquire a suitable site in the New York-New Jersey port area. The Department has recently found an acceptable site in this area. A lease has been drafted for approval by both parties.

5. Contingencies.—Of the total annual amounts provided under this appropriation, $1.5 million is apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects, plant diseases, and animal diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions. The 1976 estimates propose an increase of $1 million for control of animal diseases.

6. Reimbursement program.—Reimbursements include amounts for overtime work performed in meat and poultry processing plants, and overtime and travel performed in connection with import-export inspection services and cooperative programs with other Federal agencies.

Public Law 88-592, approved September 12, 1964, authorized the sale of the Animal Quarantine Station, at Clifton, N.J., to the city of Clifton, and application of the proceeds of sale to the planning and construction costs of a new station in the New York-New Jersey port and airport area. A sales contract between the Department and the city of Clifton was executed on December 16, 1966, at the appraised value of $527 thousand. Of that amount, $100 thousand was paid to the Department upon execution of the contract. An additional $100 thousand will be paid to the Department upon award of an architect-engineering contract for development of design and construction plans, and the balance will be paid upon publication of bids for construction of the new quarantine station. A total of $6 thousand has been spent by the Department on survey and related costs associated with obtaining a new site. An additional $1.5 million was appropriated in 1970 for construction of the new station. The Department has recently found an acceptable site in this area. A lease has been drafted for approval by both parties.

Note.—Includes $36 thousand in 1976 for activities previously financed from Economic Management Support Center (formerly Office of Management Services): 1974, $36 thousand; 1975, $36 thousand.

The Service administers funds for payments and grants to State agricultural experiment stations and other eligible institutions for the support of research in agriculture, the rural home, the rural community, and forestry. This administration involves supervision of the funds, and close advisory relations with the State agricultural experiment stations, schools of forestry, land-grant colleges of 1890 and Tuskegee Institute, and other institutions eligible to receive funds. The Service participates in planning and coordination of research programs among the States and between the States and the Department.

1. Payments to agricultural experiment stations under the Hatch Act and for penalty mail.—Grants under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community. The increase requested for fiscal year 1976 will provide for increased grants under the Hatch Act, including increased research on livestock, poultry and crop production and marketing research. In 1976 funds previously provided for rural development grants under title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972 are proposed to be merged with the Hatch Act.

Funds to cover the cost of penalty mailings for State agricultural experiment station directors are provided under this appropriation. This increase requested for fiscal year 1976 will provide for increased cost due to increased volume of mailings.

2. Grants for cooperative forestry research.—These grants are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school. The act requires that the Federal funds paid to each institution be matched by funds from non-Federal sources for forestry research. The increase requested for fiscal year 1976 will provide for increased grants under the McIntire-Stennis Act.

3. Contracts and grants for scientific research.—These funds are for the support of grants on specific research problems at nonprofit institutions of higher education or nonprofit organizations whose primary purpose is the conduct of such research. Every competitive research proposal selected for funding must be evaluated and classified as outstanding and appropriate to the needs of the designated problem area. A portion of the special grant funds is utilized to support research on special problems of joint concern to the USDA and to the States. The balance of the special grant funds is earmarked for the land-grant colleges of 1890 and Tuskegee Institute. The increase requested for fiscal year 1976 will provide for increased research on beef and pork production efficiency; food and nutrition; genetic vulnerability strategies; forage and range; transportation, marketing and storage problems; and pesticide clearance and for the increased grants to conduct research at the land-grant colleges of 1890 and Tuskegee Institute.

5. Funds for rural development research.—Grants under the Rural Development Act of 1972 are allocated to land-grant colleges and universities of the 50 States and Puerto Rico, to conduct pilot research programs in support of the development of rural areas. In 1976 funds previously provided for rural development grants under title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972 are proposed to be merged with the Hatch Act.

6. Federal administration.—A coordinating and review staff is maintained to examine research projects and assist State institutions and Federal agencies. The reimbursable program consists of funds to train foreign participants in this country—Agency for International Development, and the Current Research Information System which provides information on the research projects, status of the research and fund resources for research programs of the State agricultural experiment stations and other eligible institutions.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, community development, 4-H youth programs, and related subjects. This educational work takes research results, technological advancements, and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a program for action. Cooperative Extension Service interprets, disseminates, and encourages practical use of knowledge. It transmits information from researchers to people.

1. Payments to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act for payments to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands are distributed primarily on the basis of population and to a degree on basis of special problems and needs. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State, area, and county extension workers who work with individuals, families, community organizations, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods for production, marketing, nutrition, family living, and community development. Work with youth is accomplished largely through the 4-H program. Extension agents are paid from Federal, State, and county sources. The employer's contribution to the retirement fund as required by law is provided by this Federal appropriation. Funds also provide for Federal payment to the Bureau of Employees' Compensation Fund. Funds for the cost of penalty mailings for State extension directors and cooperative extension agents are also provided.

The net increase of $10,969 thousand in this item will include $6,912 thousand to increase payments under the Smith-Lever Act for the 1862 Land-Grant Colleges, a transfer of $3,792 thousand from special allocations to the section 3(c) formula provisions of the Smith-Lever Act, $373 thousand at the 1890 Land-Grant Institutions and Tu-kegee Institute, $1,200 thousand for Integrated Pest Management on major cotton pests in the southeastern United States, $255 thousand for Farm Safety, and $48 thousand in the District of Columbia, to increase payments under this program, $930 thousand for increased employer retirement costs for extension agents, and $1,349 thousand for penalty mail, offset by the transfer of special allocations under the Agricultural Marketing Act and rural development activities of $3,890 thousand.

2. Federal administration and coordination.—The Extension Service provides leadership and assistance to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia in developing extension programs, improving teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, and administrative services. The $476 thousand increase will be used primarily for special projects to evaluate programs, establish and finance pilot projects in selected areas.

The National Agricultural Library, in cooperation with the Library of Congress and the National Library of Medicine, provides coverage and servicing of worldwide publications in the agricultural, chemical, and biological sciences. It serves all of the Department programs in the Washington metropolitan area, as well as the field installations throughout the country. It has the added responsibility of service to the land-grant universities, and the world agricultural science community.

The Library's primary purpose is to acquire, preserve, and disseminate an exhaustive collection of reliable information in all phases of the agricultural and allied sciences: Botany, chemistry, animal industry and veterinary medicine, biology including marine biology, agricultural engineering, rural development and sociology, forestry, entomology, food and nutrition, agricultural ecology, oceanography, soils and fertilizers, and the marketing, transportation, and other economic aspects of agricultural products. NAL also maintains, in cooperation with the Office of General Counsel, a central law library and 17 field legal libraries. One of the important functions of the Law Library is to provide histories of all laws pertaining to the work of the Department.

Information contained in the agricultural literature is disseminated through on-line computer networks, printed bibliographies, personal reference services, loans and photocopies to agricultural colleges, research institutions, government agencies, agricultural associations, industry, individual scientists, farmers and the general public in every part of the world.

During 1974, NAL acquired through purchase, gift, and exchange some 12,397 monographs and 208,237 separate issues of journals. These were cataloged and indexed and 122,972 citations were fed to the NAL CAIN-on-Line computer system. During the same period, 166,740 loans or photocopies of books and journals were made, and 31,658 reference inquiries were handled.

USDA, Federal, public, private, and international demands for the services of NAL continue to grow. The proposed budget increases will continue to be concentrated on the continuance of the Library's basic objectives, but major breakthroughs can be expected in the NAL role as coordinator of the world's agricultural information resources.

Note.—Excludes $614 thousand in 1976 for activities transferred to Foreign Agricultural Service. Comparable amounts for 1975 are $478 thousand and for 1974, $390 thousand.

The mission of the Statistical Reporting Service is to administer the Department's program of collecting and publishing national and State agricultural statistics.

Data developed by the Service on food and agriculture are essential to farmers, processors, and handlers in making production and marketing decisions and to legislators and administrators in developing and administering agricultural programs. Data provided by the Service are basic to economic research and analysis, consumer programs, and other agricultural research.

1. Crop and livestock estimates.—The Service provides the official national estimates of acreage, yield, and production of crops; stocks and value of farm commodities; and numbers and inventory value of livestock items. Data on approximately 150 crops and livestock products are covered in some 550 reports issued each year. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices.

The work of the Service is conducted through 44 State offices serving the 50 States; most of these offices are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide much additional State and county data; Federal funds are not available for collection and publication of these data.

A comparison of activities in 1973 and 1974, including work performed under cooperative arrangements, follows:

The adjustments requested in fiscal year 1976 include: (1) an increase of $2,451 thousand to develop a list of farm operators which can be sampled efficiently to acquire statistical information with a prespecified precision; (2) an increase of $150 thousand for the annual conduct of a January 1 planting intentions report; (3) an increase of $189 thousand for annualization of full year costs of program increase provided in fiscal year 1975 for multi-frame cattle and hog surveys; and (4) a decrease of $1,026 thousand for eight programs which contribute minimally to the overall mission of the Service. These programs identified for elimination are: (1) timber price reporting; (2) white corn survey; (3) mushroom surveys; (4) mink surveys; (5) floriculture surveys; (6) Alaska field office; (7) quarterly probability grain stocks surveys; and (8) March and September hogs and pigs surveys.

2. Statistical research and service.—Departmental clearance and review.—This work includes the review, coordination, and monitoring of data gathering surveys conducted by the Department. This involves (1) the review of all proposed statistical forms and survey plans requiring Office of Management and Budget clearance in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942, and (2) coordination of all interdepartment and intradepartment programs for the improvement of agricultural statistics and related data.

Improvement of crop and livestock estimates.—This research is devoted primarily to improving statistical methods and techniques for producing agricultural statistics with a high degree of accuracy at a minimum cost. This work is in support of the Service's long-range program for improving crop and livestock estimates, and is directed toward developing better sampling, yield forecasting, and survey techniques for the agency. Current research activities include compiling and maintaining lists of farms; developing new sampling techniques combining lists of farms with area sampling frames; constructing mathematical models for forecasting crop yields from objective counts and measurements of plant characteristics; and reducing reporting and other non-sampling errors by improving questionnaire design, and by devising better field, editing and processing procedures. These research studies are tested by pilot surveys under actual operating conditions, and then, if proven, placed into operation.

Statistical forms-reports (Federal Reports Act): Departmental clearance and review for submission to Office of Management and Budget.....	478	465
Improvement of crop and livestock estimating methods: Number of research projects.....	14	9

The increases requested in fiscal year 1976 include: (1) an increase of $672 thousand for research and development of remote sensing with the goal of utilizing this technology to improve the accuracy and dependability of agricultural statistics; and (2) an increase of $208 thousand to identify and reduce the effect of nonsampling errors in order to improve overall accuracy.

The Department's responsibilities in the agricultural phases of the U.S. foreign development assistance programs are administered by the Economic Research Service. This includes direction of the Department's activities under agreement with the Agency for International Development (AID), Peace Corps, and other development assistance organizations, particularly agricultural technical assistance and training programs. The Service participates with AID in the planning of agricultural development policy, in formulating technical assistance projects, and in the review and evaluation of agricultural assistance efforts. In performing these functions, the Service works closely with other U.S. and international organizations to help them utilize the scientific and institutional competence of American agriculture in carrying out development assistance programs. The activity is financed mainly with funds transferred from AID.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission Act of 1974, Public Law 93-463, was approved on October 23, 1974. Schedules for this submission are reflected elsewhere in the budget.

The major objectives of the Commodity Exchange Authority, in the enforcement of the Commodity Exchange Act, are to protect the price and hedging services of the commodity futures markets. These services are widely used by farmers, merchandisers, and processors. To carry out its enforcement objectives, the Commodity Exchange Authority works to maintain fair trading practices and competitive pricing on commodity exchanges, and to prevent price manipulation, cheating, fraud, and abusive acts and practices in commodity transactions. Enforcement of the act includes supervision of 10 commodity exchanges designated as contract markets, approximately 260 brokerage firms registered as futures commission merchants, and about 1,750 registered floor brokers operating on the exchanges.

The volume and value of futures contracts traded in regulated agricultural commodities reached alltime records during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974, while average monthend open contracts declined nearly 10%.

Trading in 18 regulated agricultural commodities totaled 18.5 million contracts. The new record was 4% larger than the previous record of 17.8 million contracts established last year. The largest volume commodities in fiscal year 1974 were corn, wheat, cattle, and soybeans.

Increases in the estimated value figure for all contracts traded outweighed the increases in volume. For the fiscal year ending in June 30, 1974, value was estimated at $342.5 billion, as compared to $268.3 billion estimated in the previous year. Moreover, the 1974 figure represents a striking increase of 131% over the $148 billion value of trading in fiscal year 1972.

The decrease of 10% in average monthend open interest from 341,182 to 309,459 contracts was largely accounted for by declines in the soybean and livestock complexes of 16.7 and 26.9%, respectively.

Grain markets.—Corn, the most active commodity traded, accounted for nearly one-fourth of transactions for all commodities. Volume of trading reached an alltime high of 4.4 million contracts. In the previous year 3.5 million contracts were traded.

In the wheat markets, the number of transactions totaled 2.7 million contracts, or 13.6 billion bushels, the largest volume of trade since fiscal year 1930 when 19.6 billion bushels were traded.

Three new contracts in wheat were opened for trading, one each for the Chicago Board of Trade and the Board of Trade of Kansas City calling for Gulf delivery of hard winter wheat and a durum wheat contract at the Minneapolis Grain Exchange. Trading in these contracts totaled about 18 million bushels.

Activity in oats increased to 249,000 contracts, compared with nearly 77,000 contracts traded in the previous year.

Soybean complex.—Trading and average monthend open interest in soybeans and soybean products declined. Volume of trading in soybeans in fiscal year 1974 totaled 2.6 million contracts, down 31% from last year's 3.7 million contracts. Average monthend open interest declined 20% in soybeans and 21% in soybean oil.

Livestock complex.—Trading in livestock and livestock product futures continued its upward trend. Volume for cattle and live hog futures set records of 2.6 and 1.1 million contracts, respectively.

Open interest, however, declined in these two commodities. In live hogs, monthend open interest declined from 14,308 to 10,195 contracts. In cattle, open contracts declined from 28,906 to 24,980 contracts.

Pork bellies fell below the 1.6 million contract trading volume of the previous year, posting a decrease of 52%. Average monthend open interest also decreased markedly, falling from 14,299 contracts in fiscal year 1973 to 6,770 contracts this year.

Two new contracts were introduced in livestock futures during the past year. Trading in Western live beef on the Pacific Commodities Exchange, initiated in October 1973, totaled 1,959 contracts. The Mid-America Commodity Exchange initiated trading in a 15,000 pound live hog contract (the Chicago Mercantile Exchange contract is 30,000 pounds) in June 1974. Trading in this contract throughout the remainder of the fiscal year totaled nearly 6,000 contracts.

Cotton.—Although open interest was larger, trading in cotton during fiscal year 1974 declined 11%, totaling some 387,000 contracts for the year.

Other markets.—Potato trading more than doubled that of the previous year, reaching a volume of 868,000 contracts. Frozen concentrated orange juice trading of nearly 139,000 contracts represented an increase of 16% over the volume of a year ago.

Coconut oil trading of 21.8 thousand contracts represented a sharp increase over the 6.2 thousand contracts traded in fiscal year 1973. Trading in wool of 3.4 thousand contracts represented a decrease of 1.4 thousand from the previous year.

1. Registration and auditing of brokerage houses.—This consists of (a) protection of customers' funds through the establishment and enforcement of minimum financial standards for futures commission merchants and periodic audits of their books and records, and (b) annual registration of futures commission merchants and floor brokers.

The program is aimed at assuring fair play in the marketing of livestock, meat, and poultry. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition for livestock, meat and poultry, so as to bring to farmers and ranchers the true market value of their livestock and poultry. Consumers and members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices in the marketing of meats and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which could unduly increase meat and poultry prices.

Farmer Cooperative Service conducts studies relating to cooperatives engaged in the marketing of farm products, purchasing of production supplies, and supplying related business services. The Agency program is directed toward providing technical assistance to cooperatives and research to improve cooperative performance.

Technical assistance is provided in response to problems that may come to FCS from farmers directly or through the management of boards of directors of cooperatives composed of hundreds and in some instances thousands of farmers. Help is given on the formation of new cooperatives, the merits of merging cooperative organizations, changes in business organizations and future growth or development, and the development of more viable relationships between cooperatives and other businesses and institutions. The full range of organization and management problems confronting cooperatives is covered by the FCS technical assistance program.

Applied research is conducted to give farmers relevant and expert assistance pertaining to their cooperatives. Studies concentrate on financial, organizational, legal, social, and economic aspects of cooperative activity.

Statistical data are collected to detect changes in structure, operations, and growth trends. Data help identify and support applied research and technical assistance activities.

The Agency serves as a central storehouse of data about farmer cooperatives in the United States. This information is communicated to the farmer or member through a variety of publications.

FCS efforts center on providing immediate response and leadership for more effective and efficient cooperative operations in the changing economic environment in which the family farmer operates.

In fiscal year 1976, FCS plans to adjust its resources to emphasize work on the following new programs: (1) coordination in the pork industry, (2) grain exports, (3) increasing efficiency of local feed, grain, and farm supply cooperatives, and (4) developing competitive exchange systems for cooperatives.

The Foreign Agricultural Service helps American agriculture to maintain and expand foreign markets for its products and reports foreign developments as a guide to American agricultural production, policies, and programs.

(a) The Service maintains a worldwide agricultural intelligence and reporting service that enables American agriculture to carry out its production, policies, and programs in the context of world developments. Pertinent agricultural and economic data of foreign production and markets, and information on foreign agricultural policies are continuously analyzed and reported.

(b) The Service helps to develop foreign markets for U.S. farm products through continuous efforts to remove international trade barriers that inhibit export sales and through effective market promotion under special export programs.

1. International trade.—The Service directs and coordinates Department responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations, under the authority of the Trade Expansion Act. It identifies and strives to reduce foreign trade barriers to U.S. agricultural exports. Developments in foreign trade policies are examined and their effect on agricultural trade and operations are reported with recommendations as to courses of action.

The Service recommends Department positions and participates in negotiations on trade agreements and international commodity agreements. It reviews and reports trade regulations of countries (primarily those signatory to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) as to how such regulations affect the movement of U.S. farm products in world trade.

The Service administers a program of import controls, in accordance with section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, on foreign farm products which would render ineffective or materially interfere with Department programs relating to agricultural commodities. It is also responsible for administering import controls established under the 1964 Meat Import Act and section 204 of the Trade Expansion Act.

2. Agricultural attachés.—The Service maintains agricultural attachés at 63 foreign posts to assist in the development of markets abroad for U.S. agricultural commodities. They work closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups and maintain contacts with foreign governments to promote greater market accessibility for U.S. farm products. They carry out a comprehensive schedule of reporting foreign agricultural production, marketing, and trade policy developments to keep U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

3. Foreign marketing.—Public Law 480 program.—The Service conducts programs which facilitate the sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on a long-term credit basis and for the donation of agricultural commodities to foreign governments, inter-governmental and voluntary agencies and the world food programs in some 100 countries. These programs are authorized by titles I and II of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended.

Commercial credit and barter programs.—The Service conducts the CCC export credit sales program under authority of the Corporation's charter authority and section 4 of the Food for Peace Act (7 U.S.C. 1707a). This is a commercial program under which U.S. agricultural commodities from private stocks are financed for export up to a maximum credit period of 3 years. For all transactions there is required an irrevocable letter of credit from an acceptable foreign or U.S. bank assuring payment in dollars, with interest rates comparable to private U.S. commercial rates. The Service also has the authority to conduct, under the CCC Charter Act, and the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, barter transactions which use agricultural exports to generate the funds to pay for goods and services which U.S. Government agencies would otherwise buy abroad with dollars. Exports are restricted to areas where they will help maintain or increase the U.S. share of markets, thereby benefiting the balance of payments. The agricultural commodities may be from private stocks or from those acquired by CCC in its price support operations and purchased by private exporters for unrestricted use. The barter program was temporarily suspended at the end of fiscal year 1973.

Commodity exports.—The Service administers programs to facilitate and expand the commercial export sales of privately owned and Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) owned agricultural commodities, and develops pricing policies and export payment rates for applicable commodities. The Service also carries out the domestic operations to implement the Wheat Trade Convention of the International Wheat Agreement. These programs are authorized by the CCC Charter Act, and the Agricultural Act of 1949, 1964, and 1970, as amended.

Market development.—The Service administers programs concerned with the development of foreign markets for agricultural products of the United States, and coordinates interagency participation and action essential to administration of these programs. These functions involve:

Providing foreign traders with services that are necessary to build and maintain markets for U.S. agricultural products.

Developing a system of worldwide promotional programs, on a commodity-by-commodity basis, in cooperation with national organizations of producers, processors, and exporters, and providing overall guidance to these organizations in carrying out cooperative programs.

Developing, operating, and evaluating a worldwide system of multicommodity promotional programs utilizing trade fairs, trade centers and point-of-purchase campaigns to expand overseas markets.

Reviewing foreign marketing plans; providing technical assistance in their design; developing procedures and controlling budgets and funds essential to their implementation; and evaluating programs implemented.

Cooperating with State and local organizations in programs designed to provide technical assistance to U.S. agricultural export firms and to stimulate participation of new U.S. "cooperator" groups in promotional projects.

Developing and guiding a systematic review of foreign markets on a country-by-country basis to find new market opportunities for U.S. agricultural products and to develop long-range promotional plans for such markets.

Export sales reporting.—The Service reports on export sales of wheat, wheat flour, feed grains, oilseeds, cotton, cotton products, and other commodities. Exporters are required by section 812 of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 to furnish to the Secretary of Agriculture information about these commodities, including specifically: (a) type, class, and quantity of the commodity to be exported; (b) the marketing year of shipment; and (c) destination, if known. The Service tabulates the information provided on a weekly basis and prepares summaries for release to the public, as well as other reports designed to provide an objective basis for evaluation of export activity. In fiscal year 1975 salaries and support costs for 16 full-time personnel are necessary to prepare and evaluate these reports. It is proposed in fiscal year 1976 that this staff be expanded to 22. This increase will be absorbed by FAS through a comparable reduction in FAS CCC-funded activities.

4. Foreign commodity analysis.—Information essential to foreign marketing of specific U.S. farm commodities and to domestic planning is obtained, analyzed, and made available to U.S. farm and trade groups and to Government. Selected agricultural commodities and/or foreign geographic areas of key importance are analyzed from a competitive standpoint with the ultimate objective to develop markets for U.S. agricultural products. The program area maintains a supporting role by providing statistical data and analyzed information to other action program areas of the Foreign Agricultural Service. Assistance is given to American exporters and foreign importers to bring them together under conditions favorable to trade.

As the lead agency for the Large Area Crop Inventory Experiment (LACIE), the Service cooperates with ASCS, ERS, and SRS to execute those aspects of the program which devolve upon the Department of Agriculture. The program is conducted under authority of the act of August 28, 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1761), and the act of March 4, 1909, as amended by the act of March 4, 1917. The USDA works with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) in this joint technical effort which is designed to establish the utility and cost effectiveness of using earth resources satellite, meteorological, and climatological data to determine crop classification, field yields, acreages, and production. The Service's principal duties will be administrative and analytical in a program which is specifically oriented toward developing a data handling, processing, and analysis approach which combines inputs from two satellites, ground meteorological networks, and standard historical and conventional agricultural data bases.

Market development projects.—Foreign currencies generated by the sale of agricultural commodities under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, as well as foreign currencies acquired by the United States from other sources, are used by the Foreign Agricultural Service to develop new foreign markets and expand existing markets for U.S. agricultural commodities, including cotton, dairy products, fats and oils, grain, feed, livestock and meat, poultry, fruits and vegetables, and tobacco.

The type of market development projects being carried out include sales promotion campaigns, trade fairs and exhibits, nutrition demonstrations, and market analyses. In 1976 it is planned that the unobligated balance brought forward in this appropriation will be used to purchase those currencies necessary to carry out the program. Dollar funds for use in other countries are included in the appropriation Foreign Agricultural Service.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS AND SPECIAL EXPORT PROGRAMS

Facilities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation may by law be used in carrying out programs for exporting agricultural commodities. The laws also authorize appropriations to be made to cover costs of such programs. When funds become available, advances are made to the Corporation for estimated costs. If the amounts appropriated are greater than actual needs, the excess is used to reduce future appropriation requests. If appropriations are less than actual needs, other Corporation funds may be used temporarily to finance the balance of authorized costs.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Included in this category are the following activities carried out under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as amended: Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I); sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I); and commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).

1. Sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms are made under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended, (7 U.S.C. 1701–1710).

The Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I. Sales are made to friendly countries—as defined in section 103(d) of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (secs. 103 (c) and (n)).

No agreements may be entered into after December 31, 1977 (sec. 409), and agreements may not be made under title I in any calendar year which call for an appropriation to reimburse the Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations. No sales of agricultural commodities shall be made to North Vietnam unless authorized by act of Congress enacted after July 1, 1973.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies convertible to dollars. These initial payments are applied against costs to reduce appropriation requests. On credit agreements under title I, the President is authorized to require payment upon delivery in dollars or foreign currencies of amounts needed for payment of U.S. obligations and certain other purposes.

The act provides for a progressive shift from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales, to be completed by December 31, 1971. To the extent that transition from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales is not possible, transition to convertible foreign currency credit sales is authorized on terms which permit conversion to dollars at the exchange rate applicable to the sales agreement.

Factors determining availability of commodities for disposition under Public Law 480 are productive capacity, domestic requirements, farm and consumer price levels, anticipated commercial exports, and adequate carryover. No commodity is available for disposition under the act if the disposition thereof would reduce the domestic supply below that needed to meet domestic requirements, adequate carryover, and anticipated exports for dollars.

In the case of sales agreements entered into under title I of the act, the Corporation will finance ocean freight charges only to the extent of the differential between U.S.-flag rates and foreign-flag rates when U.S.-flag vessels are required to be used and will not finance any portion of the ocean freight in any other case.

(a) Sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I).—Sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies were made to countries unable to expand commercial purchases because of a lack of dollar exchange. Foreign currencies received in payment are deposited to the account of the U.S. Treasury and can be used only as stated in section 104. The dollar value of such deposits through June 30, 1974, amounted to $12.9 billion.

Uses fall into two groups—those of benefit to the foreign country, mainly loans and grants to promote economic development and to support common defense, and those of benefit to the United States. The latter includes, among others, expenses of the U.S. Government abroad, agricultural market development, educational exchange, construction of military family housing, and sales of foreign currency to U.S. citizens and tourists. With respect to use of foreign currencies for common defense purposes, new agreements providing for this use may not be signed after July 1, 1974, in accordance with section 40 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1973, unless such agreement is specifically authorized by legislation enacted after such date (Public Law 93–189).

Certain uses of foreign currencies, including foreign currency loan repayments, for U.S. uses, and certain foreign currency grants, are subject to the appropriation process. Sales agreements specify particular uses, and in those entered into after December 31, 1964, at least 20% of the foreign currencies are required to be subject to the appropriation process, with certain exceptions. Such uses reduce dollar outflow and the deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied as a reduction in appropriation requests.

Section 509 of Public Law 86–500, approved June 8, 1960 (7 U.S.C. 1704b note) provides that at least 75% of the total cost of foreign military housing projects (unless otherwise specified) shall be paid from foreign currencies acquired under title I. Pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2681(b), as amended, the estimate reflects transfer to the Corporation of $6 million each year to liquidate amounts due. Of this amount, $2 million will be applied to the French housing barter transaction and the remaining $4 million will be applied against other amounts due, with a balance of $19 million remaining unpaid as of June 30, 1976.

Program costs incurred after December 31, 1971, represent financing of shipments made under agreements signed prior to January 1, 1972.

The following table reflects costs incurred (in thousands of dollars):

(b) Sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms (title I).—Sales of U.S. agricultural commodities under long-term dollar credit terms are also authorized.

Agreements are made with friendly countries or with United States and foreign private trade. They may provide for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity.

Payments are in dollars with interest at rates not less than the minimum required by section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under that section. Payments are made in reasonable annual amounts over periods of not to exceed 20 years from the date of last delivery in each calendar year under the agreement, except that the first annual payment may be deferred for a period of not more than 2 years after such date of last delivery. Interest is computed from the date of such last delivery. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reduce the appropriation request. Private trade agreements must provide for projects to establish improved storage or marketing facilities or otherwise encourage private economic enterprise in friendly countries.

Credit terms for convertible foreign currency credit sales are to be no less favorable to the United States than those for development loans made under section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, which authorized loans to be made on the basis of payment in 40 years with a 10-year grace period. Dollar payments, when received, will also be applied to reduce appropriation requests.

Total agreements made since inception to June 30, 1974, amount to $4,413.0 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipment on U.S. ships. Major commodities are wheat, cotton, oils, rice, and feed grains. Payments for the period amount to $823.9 million, of which $572.3 million was applied to principal and $251.6 million to interest.

2. Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).—Available agricultural commodities are furnished to meet famine or other urgent or emergency relief needs. Also, commodities are furnished to promote economic and community development in friendly developing countries, to combat malnutrition, and for needy people, and nonprofit school lunch and preschool feeding programs. They are furnished through friendly governments and private or public agencies, including inter-governmental organizations such as the world food program. The Food for Peace Act, in amending title II, expressed the sense of Congress that other advanced nations should be encouraged to make increased contributions for the purpose of combating world hunger and malnutrition, and that to achieve this objective, the United States should work to expand the United Nation's World Food Program.

The Agency for International Development is responsible for administering title II programs. However, the Corporation makes available the commodities or products requested for disposition under title II. Such commodities or products are made available from the Corporation's stocks of commodities or products acquired under its support program or are purchased at market prices when this is determined to be in the best interest of the Government.

The Corporation is authorized to pay, with respect to commodities made available, the costs of acquisitions, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports and ocean freight charges and general average contributions arising out of ocean transport.

Approximately $7½ million each year may be used to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs (other than personnel and administrative costs of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies, and recipient agencies) directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes for the need for such aid.

Through December 31, 1974, appropriations totaling $7,900 million were authorized. No programs of assistance can be entered into after December 31, 1977, and none shall be undertaken under this title during any calendar year which call for an appropriation of more than $600 million to reimburse the Corporation for costs incurred, including its investment, plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year. Any incidental sales proceeds and proceeds from loss, damage, and other claims are applied against Commodity Credit Corporation costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests. No donations of agricultural commodities shall be made to North Vietnam unless authorized by Act of Congress enacted after July 1, 1973.

The following reflects the composition of the appropriations (in thousands of dollars):

SPECIAL EXPORT PROGRAM

In addition to the foreign assistance programs described, the Commodity Credit Corporation conducted a special export program for bartered materials for the supplemental stockpile (7 U.S.C. 1856). This program was closed out in 1971. Barter activities are now limited to barter for offshore procurement for other Government agencies on a reimbursable basis.

Effective at the beginning of fiscal year 1974, barter program contract negotiations were suspended. Estimated commodity shipments for 1975 represent completion of shipments under contracts made prior to the suspension.

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of National, Commodity, State and county offices.

The commodity offices in Prairie Village and Minneapolis play an important role in administering support programs and the field operations stemming from producer loan and purchase agreements, inventory management, and merchandising activities.

The State committees are in general charge of all programs carried out in their respective States. Within the framework of national policy, they determine the policies to be followed and direct the adaptation of national programs to the State.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation elected county committees are responsible for the local administration of programs. They make local program decisions and policies and appoint a county executive director who directs the office staff in handling the day-to-day detailed administrative work.

The programs and activities carried out by this Service include: Agricultural conservation program; emergency conservation measures; Water Bank Act program; Appalachian Region conservation program; Sugar Act program; conservation reserve program; feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs; disaster payment programs; cropland conversion program; cropland adjustment program; dairy and beekeeper indemnity programs; Wool Act program; bin storage program; and commodity support and related programs including acreage allotment and marketing quota programs.

In order to improve program management and provide information to county offices in providing better service to farmers, ASCS in cooperation with the Department is introducing a new ADP application and communications system into its operation. This involves the installation of individual terminals in county offices and remote batch terminals in the field offices and Washington to establish a communications network system. In fiscal year 1975 a pre-pilot phase will begin operations and will continue through most of fiscal year 1976. The pilot phase will be initiated late in fiscal year 1976 and will continue for approximately 18 months. Following the pilot operations there will be a network expansion or transition phase of about 2 years.

The activities carried out by the Service fall within three major categories:

1. Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and commodity support programs, and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the support program, have a tremendous impact on the national and (to a lesser extent) the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate even more effective programs.

2. Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including (a) developing program regulations and procedures; (b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs; (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms; (d) establishing individual farm allotments, bases and yields; (e) establishing proportionate shares for sugar farms when necessary; (f) notifying producers of allotments, proportionate shares, productivity indexes, and payment rates; (g) determining farm marketing allocations; (h) handling appeals; (i) conducting referendums and certifying results; (j) checking compliance with acreage allotments and use of set-aside acres; (k) developing pooling agreements under which several farmers work jointly to solve a common conservation problem which cannot be solved by individual action; (l) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty; (m) processing producer requests for conservation cost-sharing; (n) processing commodity loan documents and issuing sight drafts; and (o) making appraisals for disaster payments.

3. Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes: (a) overall management of CCC-owned commodities; (b) selling commodities; (c) donating commodities; and (d) accounting for loans and commodities. The total value of all commodities owned by CCC on June 30, 1974, was about $114.2 million, but the value of the uncommitted inventory totaled only $19.6 million.

The volume of work in fiscal year 1974 under some of the major programs financed from this account is set forth below:

Acreage allotments and marketing quotas (allotments):
Tobacco.....	542,753
Peanuts.....	79,759
Rice.....	15,178
Agricultural conservation program:
Requests for cost-sharing.....	241,105

Number of reseals.....	181
Number of warehouse loans acquired.....	728
Number of farm storage loans.....	79,433
Number of warehouse loans.....	31,164
Number of farm storage facility and drier loans.....	118,040
CCC-owned storage facilities:
Number of structures (as of June 30, 1974).....	4,092
Dairy and beekeeper indemnity programs:
Total claims paid from January 1, 1964 through June 30, 1974 (thousands of dollars):
Dairy farmers and manufacturers of dairy products.....	1,704
Beekeepers.....	13,280
Total.....	14,984
Land retirement programs—Cropland adjustment, cropland conversion and Water Bank Act programs:
Number of agreements.....	37,685
Disaster program:
Number of counties participating (as of Jan. 9, 1975).....	2,022
Number of applications received (as of Jan. 9, 1975).....	478,402

Funds required for expenses of the Service during the transition period (July 1, 1976 through September 30, 1976) are expected to run at about the same rate as amounts needed in fiscal year 1976. No major changes in program operations are expected in the transition period. Therefore, the request for the transition period is about one-fourth that of fiscal year 1976.

The Sugar Act of 1948, as amended, which expired December 31, 1974, provided for making payments for the 1974 and previous crops. Under this program, payments were made to supplement the income of domestic producers of cane and beets. Payments required compliance with specified conditions of employment, production, and price. Payments were also made for abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies on harvested acreage due to natural calamities. Funds to cover program payments for the 1974 crop-year were included in the appropriation for the fiscal year 1975. In the absence of legislation, no funds are included for the 1975 crop (fiscal year 1976, including the 3-month transition period ending Sept. 30, 1976).

Tax collections from imports of sugar exceeded total obligations by $742.4 million for fiscal years 1938 through 1974.

Following are the principal factors on which payments were based:

The primary objectives are: (1) to encourage farmers and ranchers to carry out whole-farm, long-term conservation plans that emphasize enduring conservation benefits of national concern, and (2) to achieve desirable land use adjustments.

Whole-farm conservation plans are developed with SCS assistance and approved by soil and water conservation districts. This will be the basis for long-term contracts. It is recognized that whole-farm conservation plans and long-term contracts also will contain essential soil and water conservation practices that are beneficial for farmers to carry out with cost-sharing.

The emphasis on long-term cost-sharing based on whole-farm plans, approved by soil and water conservation districts, would provide incentives for increased participation in the SCS technical assistance program. Many farm conservation plans would be changed and updated to facilitate this participation.

The following national practices were approved for program year 1974:

- RE-1, Establish permanent vegetative cover.
- RE-2, Improving permanent vegetative cover.
- RE-3, Planting trees.
- RE-4, Improving a stand of forest trees.
- RE-5, Water impoundment reservoirs.
- RE-6, Stripcropping.
- RE-7, Terrace systems.
- RE-8, Diversions.
- RE-9, Stream bank stabilization.
- RE-10, Permanent wildlife habitat.
- RE-11, Sediment retention, erosion or water control structures.
- RE-12, Sediment, chemical or water runoff control measures.
- RE-13, Windbreaks or shelter belts.
- RE-14, Reorganizing irrigation systems.
- N, Practices to meet new conservation problems.
- S, Special conservation practices.

Loans from Commodity Credit Corporation were used to make advance payments to vendors for the reactivated 1973 and 1974 programs during fiscal year 1974. These payments are for conservation materials and services furnished to farmers and ranchers prior to the time funds are appropriated each year. Repayment is made from balances of prior year appropriations or from new funds appropriated.

The purposes of this program are to preserve, restore, and improve the wetlands of the Nation, and thereby to conserve surface waters, to preserve and improve habitat for migratory waterfowl and other wildlife resources, to reduce runoff, soil, and wind erosion, and contribute to improved water quality and reduce stream sedimentation, to contribute to improved subsurface moisture, to enhance the beauty of the landscape, and to promote comprehensive water management planning.

The Secretary of Agriculture enters into agreements with landowners and operators for the conservation of specified wetlands. The agreements are for 10 years with provision for renewal for additional periods. During the period of the agreement, the landowner agrees not to drain, burn, fill or otherwise destroy the wetland character of such areas, nor to use such areas for agricultural purposes, as determined by the Secretary. The Secretary makes annual payments to the owner or operator at a rate to be determined.

The Secretary carries out the program in harmony with wetlands programs administered by the Secretary of the Interior and utilizes the technical and related services of appropriate State, Federal, and private conservation agencies to assure proper coordination.

No 1973 program was operated.

The cropland adjustment program was authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 which expired with the 1970 crop year. Under this program, agreements for periods of not less than 5 years nor more than 10 years were approved only in 1966 and 1967. The last of these agreements will expire in the fiscal year 1977.

This program assisted farmers to divert cropland from the production of surplus crops to other uses that promoted the development and conservation of our soil, water, forest, wildlife, and recreational resources. In return for diverting cropland, producers received adjustment payments. They also were eligible to receive cost-sharing assistance for establishing approved land treatment measures.

Under the public access provision of the program, additional incentive payments are made to producers who entered into agreements to permit free public access to land designated under the cropland adjustment program agreement, for hunting, trapping, fishing, and hiking.

Under the program's Greenspan provision, funds were also made available to Federal, State, or local governmental agencies for use in acquiring cropland for permanent conversion to specified public benefit uses, primarily for open spaces and recreational facilities. Cost-shares could also be paid to such agencies for establishing approved land treatment measures consistent with the conditions and costs under agreements entered into with producers.

Annual adjustment payments are considered earned upon filing an annual certification of compliance by the producer. Such certifications for fiscal year 1977 will have been filed and payments obligated prior to October 1, 1976, the due date for such payments. Therefore, in view of the 3-month transition period ending September 30, 1976, budget authority for making 1977 fiscal year payments will be required in fiscal year 1976 for disbursement on October 1, 1976.

This appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farm and rangelands resulting from natural disasters. The criteria under which assistance may be made available are set forth in the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590(h)).

Funds are allocated for use only in those counties designated by the Secretary of Agriculture as disaster counties. Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use.

Under the 1974 program, cost-sharing assistance is being provided to treat farmlands damaged by flood and tornadoes. As of August 31, 1974, there were 195 counties in 22 States where assistance was being provided.

DAIRY AND BEEKEEPER INDEMNITY PROGRAMS

For necessary expenses involved in making indemnity payments to dairy farmers for milk or cows producing such milk and manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their milk or [milk] dairy products from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, and to beekeepers who through no fault of their own have suffered losses as a result of the use of economic poisons which had been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, [$1,850,000] $3,350,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That none of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to make indemnity payments to any farmer whose milk was removed from commercial markets as a result of his willful failure to follow procedures prescribed by the Federal Government.

For "Dairy and beekeeper indemnity programs" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $1,000,000, to remain available until expended. (7 U.S.C. 135b note; 7 U.S.C. 450j to l; Agriculture-Environmental and Consumer Protection Appropriation Act, 1975.)

Under this program the Department makes indemnification payments to dairy farmers, manufacturers of dairy products, and beekeepers.

This program began in 1964 and was limited (until the passage of the Agricultural Act of 1970) to payments to dairy farmers, who were directed to remove their milk from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 authorized indemnification payments, beginning with the date of its enactment (November 30, 1970), to manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their products because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 also authorized payments to beekeepers who, through no fault of their own, have suffered losses of honey bees after January 1, 1967, as a result of utilization of economic poisons near or adjacent to the property on which the beehives of such beekeepers were located.

The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 extended the authority for making indemnity payments to dairy farmers and to manufacturers of dairy products to June 30, 1977, and to beekeepers to December 31, 1977. That act also authorized indemnity payments on dairy cows producing contaminated milk. However, to date no payments have been made on dairy cows.

Claims paid from inception of the program through June 30, 1974:
Indemnity payments to dairy farmers.....	$1,562,215
Indemnity payments to manufacturers of dairy products.....	141,427
Indemnity payments to beekeepers.....	13,280,043
Total.....	14,983,685

Dairy payments may be required at any time of the year and normally beekeepers start filing their claims in the fall of the year after the use of pesticides for the year is over. Therefore, estimated additional funds for obligation during the transition period of July 1 through September 30, 1976, will be required as follows:

Dairy farmers and manufacturers of dairy products.....	$100,000
Beekeepers.....	900,000
Total.....	1,000,000

Long-range agreements were approved with farmers and ranchers from 1963 to 1967 to make changes from their past cropping systems and land uses to other income-producing, public benefit uses.

The agreements, not to exceed 10 years, provided for payments, the furnishing of materials and services, and other assistance to farmers. In return, farmers changed the land-use and installed and maintained conservation practices. Adjustment payments were authorized to be made either upon approval of the agreement or on an annual installment basis. Land treatment practice payments were made after the practice was installed.

The law placed a limit of $10 million on payments made in a calendar year under signed agreements.

No new agreements have been made since 1967. Payments under prior year agreements will continue to be made until they expire in 1976. Funds from prior appropriations are available to complete the estimated payments under this program.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly owned Government Corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1520), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance, and to provide the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance.

Crop insurance offered to agricultural producers by the Corporation provides protection from losses caused by natural hazards, such as insect and wildlife damage, plant diseases, fire, drought, flood, wind, and other weather conditions. It does not indemnify producers for losses resulting from negligence or failure to observe good farming practice.

The crop insurance programs are developed and analyzed in the Washington headquarters office and are administered in the field by 14 sales and contract service centers. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level is performed by private agents under contractual agreements with the Corporation and by Corporation employees hired on a permanent, part-time or WAE (when actually employed) basis. Detailed administrative and program accounting and statistical functions are performed by the National Service Office in Kansas City, Mo., as well as the underwriting and actuarial analysis work.

Budget program.—The program for fiscal year 1976 will provide crop insurance protection to farmers amounting to approximately $1.2 billion on the following commodities: apples, barley, beans, citrus, combined crop, corn, cotton, flax, grain sorghum, grapes, oats, peaches, peanuts, peas, raisins, rice, soybeans, sugar beets, sugarcane, tobacco, tomatoes, and wheat.

The following table indicates the scope of the insurance operations planned for 1975 and 1976, as compared with 1974. Amounts in the 1974 column are actual, and pertain to the 1973 crop year. The 1975 column pertains to the 1974 crop year, and the 1976 column pertains to the 1975 crop year.

	1974 fiscal year (1973 crop year) actual	1975 fiscal year (1974 crop year) estimate	1976 fiscal year (1975 crop year) estimate
Number of States	39	39	39
Number of counties	1,432	1,444	1,469
Insurance in force beginning of fiscal year (thousands)	$1,006,704	$1,121,202	$1,163,000
Insured acreage (thousands)	17,441	18,653	18,983
Number of crops insured	318,677	303,540	327,000
Premiums (thousands)	$47,610	$54,000	$56,000
Indemnities (thousands)	$28,361	$64,600	$50,400
Loss ratio	.60	1.20	.90

Financing.—Capital stock of $100 million is authorized to be subscribed by the United States. As of June 30, 1974, the Secretary of the Treasury held receipts for $60 million of authorized stock, leaving $40 million unissued.

Funds from the issuance of capital stock provide working capital for the Corporation. Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums. The principal payments from this fund are for: indemnities to insured farmers; the direct cost of adjusting crop losses; and a part of the administrative and operating expenses. However, the direct cost of loss adjustment and the administrative and operating expenses paid from the fund are not provided for in the premium rates (section 508(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended).

The annual appropriation for the major portion of the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

It is estimated that gross income of $56 million from operations will provide adequate operating funds for fiscal year 1976, unless heavy losses occur early in the fiscal year.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1974, the Corporation reflected a surplus of $3.3 million which is a change of plus $12.3 million over the cumulative deficit of the year before. This resulted from increased premiums over indemnities for crop year 1973 to cover expenses paid from the fund. Crop year 1973 premiums of $47.6 million exceeded indemnities by $19.2 million, resulting in a loss ratio of 0.60, the same as in crop year 1972.

A 1.20 loss ratio is estimated for crop year 1974. Premiums of $54 million are estimated to be exceeded by indemnities by $10.6 million. For the crop years 1948 through 1973, premium income ($744.4 million) exceeded indemnity costs ($673.7 million) by $70.7 million; the loss ratio for the period was 0.91. Premium income exceeded indemnity costs in 15 of the 26 years.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations by commodities for 1974, 1975, and 1976:

The Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714–714p). It may also make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. In addition to its basic functions, it is used to administer and, in some cases, temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Up to $14.5 billion may be borrowed to finance operations.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1975 and 1976 budget estimates: (a) Production and national income will rise both in 1975 and 1976 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1976 will be slightly lower than 1975 levels; (c) yields for the 1975 crops are based on recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1975 crops of peanuts and certain kinds of tobacco (flue-cured tobacco will be on an acreage-poundage program and burley tobacco will be on a poundage allotment); (e) acreage allotments but no marketing quotas will be in effect for rice; and (f) no set aside program for cotton, feed grains, and wheat will be in operation. Payments on these commodities will be based on an established or target price if the price received by farmers is below such price.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy, requirements for the year ending June 30, 1976. Complex and unpredictable factors are involved, such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange.

The estimates for the transition period and future-year projections through fiscal year 1978 are based on these same general assumptions. Fiscal years 1979 and 1980 assume continuation of provisions of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973.

PROGRAMS OF THE CORPORATION

The basic functions of the corporation include the following programs for which appropriations are made for net realized losses sustained (in thousands of dollars):

Other items not distributed by program.....	246,927	103,201	94,504
Total.....	2,681,210	670,514	575,612

Support.—The Corporation, through loans, purchases, payments, and other means, provides support of agricultural commodities to producers. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.) and the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.) as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970, (84 Stat. 1358), and the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, approved August 10, 1973 (87 Stat. 221).

Support is mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. The Agricultural Act of 1949 also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: Tung nuts, honey, milk, barley, oats, rye, and grain sorghum. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1781–87), requires support for wool and mohair. Support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. The support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, loans made on commodities are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and on maturity the producer may deliver or forfeit such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases are made under certain laws for the removal of surpluses, for example: the act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431).

For feed grains and wheat, producers may receive payments in addition to loans and purchases. For upland and extra-long staple cotton, producers may receive payments in addition to loans. Producers of feed grains, wheat and upland cotton must comply with acreage set-aside provisions (hereinafter described), if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases and payments. Also, the total amount of payments which a person is entitled to receive under one or more of the annual programs for 1974 through 1977 crops of the commodities shall not exceed $20 thousand.

Public Law 93–86 (Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973) established target prices for three major commodities—wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton; set minimum loan rates for wheat and feed grains; and established the loan level for upland cotton at 90% of the average world price for American cotton for the preceding three years subject to adjustment to reflect current average world price if the loan level so calculated is above then current average world prices for American cotton. Government payments for the three commodities are required when the established prices for those commodities exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. For the 1976 and 1977 crops, the established prices for these commodities will be adjusted in relation to the costs of production. In addition, the act provides for making disaster payments to producers who are prevented from planting feed grains, wheat, or upland cotton because of a natural disaster or condition beyond the control of the producers or who, because of such a disaster or condition, harvest less than a specified quantity.

In support operations, normal trade facilities are used to the maximum extent practicable. Cooperatives and financial institutions are used in lending activities. Commercial facilities are used to a great extent for storage.

Besides the Charter Act and laws mentioned above, many other laws are applicable to the disposition through sales, donations, and barter of commodities acquired under the support program. For accounting purposes, the Cor-

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, barter, payments, and other operations. Other than in barter for stockpiling purposes, such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation. This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly section 5 (d) and (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable. Export sales for foreign currencies or on long-term credit are financed by the Corporation under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, although such sales of commodities owned by the Corporation may also be made under its charter authority.

The activities described below are illustrative of those conducted under this program during 1975.

When necessary to encourage export movement from free-market supplies, as well as from its own stocks, the Corporation makes payments on exports of agricultural commodities. The rate of payment generally is the difference between the prevailing world export sales price and the domestic market price. Except for 1972 or older crop tobacco, payments are limited to carryover from 1973 and earlier contracts on wheat and rice (final payments were made in 1975). However, if payments for wheat and rice are needed to make these commodities competitive in world markets, they could be reinstated.

To help develop or expand foreign markets, the Corporation may furnish farm commodities and products for samples or exhibits at international trade fairs and for use abroad in testing consumer acceptance and commercial market potentials.

To maximize exports of agricultural commodities, including products thereof, the Corporation conducts an export credit sales program under which it finances, for a period of not to exceed 3 years, commercial export credit sales by exporters of agricultural commodities obtained either from Corporation inventories or from private stocks. These commercial transactions are financed under the Corporation's charter authority and section 4 of the Food for Peace Act (7 U.S.C. 1707a) and are to be distinguished from the long-term credit contracts involving foreign assistance authorized by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Section 4 of the Food for Peace Act authorized appropriations to reimburse the Corporation annually for its actual costs incurred or to be incurred under this program. However, no appropriation has been requested for this program.

Commodities available for barter were limited to cotton and tobacco by the end of June 1973, and no further invitations to bid have been issued.

Storage facilities.—The Corporation conducts a program to provide storage adequate to fulfill its program needs. This program is conducted pursuant to sections 4 (h) and (m), and 5 (a) and (b) of the charter.

The Corporation has authority to buy bins (in storage-short areas) and equipment for the care and storage of commodities owned by the Corporation or under its control. This authority to purchase bins has not been exercised since 1956. The Corporation makes loans for the purchase, building, or expanding of facilities for storage and care of commodities on the farm and sells, to producers and others, bins needed for the storage of agricultural commodities. Bins sold by the Corporation may be those acquired for resale for such storage or those which are no longer required by the Corporation for the storage of its own commodities. Public Law 89-758 permits the sale of grain storage facilities no longer needed for such program use to public and private nonprofit agencies and organizations. The Corporation has now reduced its storage capacity from 990 million bushels in 1957 to 16 million bushels on June 30, 1974. The Corporation may also provide storage use guarantees to encourage building of commercial storage, and undertake other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

Section 805 of the Agricultural Act of 1970 authorized the Secretary to make or guarantee loans for construction of farm storage facilities for baled hay from diverted or set-aside acreage. This program was conducted through the ASCS county committees and financed with capital funds of the Corporation.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation procures from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies. It similarly procures or aids in the procurement of such foods, commodities, products, and material for sale to meet domestic requirements during periods of short supply or during such other times as will stabilize prices or facilitate distribution. Through purchases, loans, sales or other means the Corporation may also make available materials and facilities needed for the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. This program is conducted under section 5 (b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

Purchases for other Federal agencies of commodities not in the Corporation's support stocks has been the main activity. Purchases of limited quantities of breeder, foundation, and registered seeds of improved varieties of grasses and legumes are made through production contracts in order to assure supplies thereof for farmers. No foreign purchases have been made in recent years.

Section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U.S.C. 713a-9), requires that the Corporation be fully repaid from funds of such agencies for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities bought or delivered to or on behalf of any other Federal agency. Operations not subject to section 4 may involve losses if such are necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives of the particular operation.

Wheat certificate program.—The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 repealed, effective July 1, 1973, the requirement of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, under which processors purchased domestic wheat marketing certificates equivalent to the bushel quantity of wheat used to manufacture food products. Necessary action was taken to facilitate transition to a noncertificate program. Effective with the 1974 program, domestic wheat marketing certificates were not issued to producers.

Set-aside program.—The Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, authorizes the Secretary to conduct, through the Corporation, set-aside programs on the 1971 through 1977 crops of wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton if he determines that otherwise the total supply of agricultural commodities will likely be excessive. If a set-aside is in effect for any such commodity, producers must, as a condition of eligibility for loans, purchases, and payments on such commodity, set aside and devote to approved conservation uses specified acreages of cropland and otherwise comply with program requirements. Participants in a set-aside program are eligible for a small additional payment for permitting public access to set-aside acreage. The Secretary has announced that there will be no set-aside for the 1975 crops of wheat, feed grains and upland cotton.

Land diversion payments.—To assist in adjusting the acreage of commodities to desirable goals, the Secretary is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended, to make land diversion payments, through the Corporation, to producers who devote to approved conservation uses acreages of cropland in addition to those required to be so devoted under the set-aside programs.

Cotton research and promotion.—Under section 610 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended, the Corporation, through the Cotton Board, and upon approval of the Secretary, is authorized to enter into agreements for cotton market development, research, and sales promotion programs, programs to aid in the development of new and additional markets, marketing facilities, and uses for cotton and cotton products, and programs to facilitate the utilization and commercial application of cotton research findings. Each year the amount available for such programs shall be $10 million. For each of the 1972 through 1977 crops, an additional amount, not exceeding $10 million may be used by the Secretary for such programs from funds available for payments on 1972 through 1977 crop cotton. The Agriculture-Environmental and Consumer Protection Appropriation Act of 1975 (Public Law 93-563) limits expenditures to $3 million for research only in fiscal year 1975, and it is expected that $3 million will be paid in fiscal year 1976.

Disaster reserve.—Under section 813 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, the Secretary shall establish, maintain, and dispose of a separate reserve of inventories of not to exceed 75 million bushels of wheat, feed grains, and soybeans for the purpose of alleviating distress caused by a natural disaster. The Secretary shall acquire such commodities through the price support program; 30 million bushels of oats held by the Commodity Credit Corporation has been designated as a disaster reserve. In order to rotate, distribute, and locate reserves, such reserve may be sold at equivalent prices. The Secretary may use the Commodity Credit Corporation and shall utilize usual and customary channels, facilities, and arrangements of trade and commerce to the maximum extent possible.

Appropriations are authorized for sums necessary to carry out the purposes of this section. However, none has been requested since costs are included in the CCC appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses.

the Foreign Agricultural Service, Office of the Sales Manager, and other agencies of the Department engaged in the Corporation's activities; the General Accounting Office for audit; and the General Services Administration for space. Estimates for 1976 include a limitation of $39.4 million on administrative expenses, including a reserve of not less than 7% for contingencies.

The requested authorization excludes administrative expenses in connection with the wool and mohair program under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, which are included with the cost of this program under special activities.

Nonadministrative expenses.—Expenses for acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program rather than administrative expenses. Such expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors; work performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation county committees relating to CCC programs; and special services performed by other Federal agencies within and outside of this Department.

Most of these general nonadministrative expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing, and grading and resale payments, are included in program costs, in the entry entitled "Storage, transportation, and other costs not included above," in the program and financing schedule. The item "Nonadministrative expense," which appears in the schedule, covers part of the expenses of county offices for work related to programs of the Corporation, other Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service expenses offset by revenue, custodian and agency expense of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

In order to improve program management and assist county offices in providing better service to farmers, ASCS in cooperation with the Department is introducing a new ADP application and communications system into its operation. This involves the installation of individual terminals in county offices and remote batch terminals in the field offices and Washington to establish a communications network system. In fiscal year 1975 a prepilot phase will begin operations and will continue through most of fiscal year 1976. The pilot phase will be initiated late in fiscal year 1976 and will continue for approximately 18 months. Following the pilot operations there will be a network expansion or transition phase of about 2 years.

The Corporation receives reimbursements for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 (7 U.S.C. 447-449) by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation, through the appropriation Reimbursement for net realized losses. The Corporation also obtains recovery through this appropriation for the funds transferred to the Agricultural Research Service pursuant to the Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1964, for cost of production research and other related research designed to reduce surplus commodities held by the Corporation.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's Charter Act and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1976 estimate
	Gross obligations	Outlays (reimbursable)
(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies.....		-74,500
(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms.....	912,700	738,000
(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad.....	406,181	406,181
(4) National Wool Act.....	23,172	23,172
(5) Grain for migratory waterfowl feed.....	40
(6) Surplus grain for migratory birds.....
(7) Loans for conservation purposes.....		-1,000
Total.....	1,342,093	1,091,853

The Corporation receives appropriations or reimbursement for cost of these activities as described under each.

To the extent that sufficient appropriations are not provided in advance, expenditures under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, and investments in materials transferred to the supplemental stockpile, are made by the Corporation subject to reimbursement from subsequent appropriations authorized for such purpose.

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (see foreign assistance programs and special export program for details of items (1)-(3)):

(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I, Public Law 480).

(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I, Public Law 480).

(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II, Public Law 480).

(4) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970, and the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. The Corporation makes payments to producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the support price required under the Act.

Total payments made under the National Wool Act cannot at any time exceed an amount equal to 70% of the accumulated totals, as of the same date, of the gross receipts from import duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and wool manufactures. Actual or estimated payments compared with this limitation are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

70% of customs receipts on wool and wool manufactures, cumulative from Jan. 1, 1953 to end of preceding calendar year	1,601,866	1,689,366	1,776,866
Cumulative incentive payments on marketings to end of preceding calendar year	977,057	988,454	1,007,590
Balance of limitation available for payments in succeeding marketing years	624,809	700,912	769,276

Funds of the Corporation are used to carry on this program. For the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation, section 705 of the Act appropriates each fiscal year an amount equal to amounts expended by the Corporation during the preceding year and to amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed, but not to exceed an amount equal to 70% of the gross receipts from duties collected on wool and wool manufactures during the calendar year preceding the fiscal year.

Estimated costs and appropriations to the corporation are indicated in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Due start of year	123,848	72,780	23,999
Costs for year:

Subtotal	7,735	15,637	23,172
Total due	131,583	88,417	47,171
Appropriations to Commodity Credit Corporation for the year	58,803	64,418	23,999
Due end of year	72,780	23,999	23,172

(5) Grain for migratory waterfowl feed.—To prevent damage of crops by migratory waterfowl, the Corporation is directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Interior (7 U.S.C. 442-445) such grain acquired through support operations and certified by the Corporation as available for such purposes or in such condition as to be undesirable for human consumption, as the Secretary of the Interior shall requisition. This appropriation item is included under that Department to reimburse CCC.

(6) Surplus grain for migratory birds.—Under Public Law 87-152, approved August 17, 1961 (7 U.S.C. 448) the Secretary of the Interior may requisition grain of the Corporation to feed starving migratory birds. This appropriation item is included under that Department to reimburse CCC.

(7) Loans for conservation purposes.—Under section 391(c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1391(c)), the Corporation advances funds to the Secretary in amounts not to exceed $50 million annually to purchase conservation materials and services. Repayments of the loans plus interest are made from balances of prior appropriations or from new funds appropriated.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $14.5 billion.

Funds are borrowed from the Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies and others. The Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies and others. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate of all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on other notes and obligations at a rate prescribed by Commodity Credit Corporation and approved by the Secretary of Treasury.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964, on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after June 30 of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

The computation of the transfer from interest-bearing to non-interest-bearing capital is (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Realized deficit not previously reimbursed, start of year	7,551,352	7,008,466	3,782,516
Less appropriations for year	3,301,940	4,069,412	2,939,054
Total non-interest-bearing, end of year	4,249,412	2,939,054	843,462

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions, the estimated requirements indicate no need for an increase in borrowing authority. Since there are so many uncontrollable factors involving crops which have not even been planted, it must be recognized that estimates are highly tentative.

POSITION WITH RESPECT TO BORROWING AUTHORITY
AS OF JUNE 30

[In thousands of dollars]

Item	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Statutory borrowing authority	14,500,000	14,500,000	14,500,000
Deduct:
Borrowings from Treasury	8,608,036	5,743,502	3,198,499
Total statutory borrowing authority in use	8,608,036	5,743,502	3,198,499
Net statutory borrowing authority available	5,891,964	8,756,498	11,301,501

Note.—A sufficient amount of the borrowing authority is required to be reserved to cover obligations to purchase notes or other obligations and accrued interest thereon, evidencing loans made by lending agencies and others. Such obligations, however, as well as accounts payable, accrued liabilities and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table, do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

Contract authority.—Support and other programs required by statute may result in the Corporation incurring obligations in excess of available funds and borrowing authority. Such obligations are liquidated from subsequent appropriations and other funds which may become available to the Corporation. Any increase in obligations in excess of available fund resources is reported as contract authority in the year involved; a decrease is reported as the application of appropriations and other funds to liquidate the authority. The budget reflects none in 1975 and 1976. It is estimated that unobligated balances of authority to spend public debt receipts will amount to $8,530 million at the end of 1975 and $10,882 million at the end of 1976.

Appropriations.—Under section 2 of Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The realized losses for 1974 subject to reimbursement were $2,759 million, and the cumulative losses not yet appropriated for were $7,008 million. An appropriation of $2,939 million would provide sufficient funds for the operations described for 1976. It would also leave a desirable operating margin to assure flexibility of operations in view of the volume of transactions handled and the uncertainties of future years under the escalation provisions of the farm legislation.

The special activities are financed as indicated in the program description above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance and special export programs (see p. 141).

Deficit.—The net realized losses of the Corporation have previously been reimbursed as follows (in thousand of dollars):

The Rural Electrification Administration was organized to carry into effect the loan programs authorized by the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. The administration conducts two capital investment programs: (1) The rural electrification program, to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (2) the rural telephone program, to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

Public Law 93-32, approved May 11, 1973, amended the Rural Electrification Act by establishing the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund (RETRF), with initial assets amounting to about $7.8 billion. This act also removed budget authority and outlays of the RETRF from the budget totals of the U.S. Government. Schedules showing the activity of the RETRF are included in part IV, Annexed Budgets.

There is available $455,634,525 in unobligated funds carried over from the fiscal year 1973 appropriation, $366,466 thousand for electric loans and $89,168,525 for telephone loans. Since the needs of the REA electric and telephone borrowers for 2% loans are expected to be met through insured loans from the RETRF, the Department currently has no plans to use these funds in fiscal 1975 or fiscal 1976.

Note.—Includes $19 thousand in 1976 for activities previously financed from Office of Management Services.

The Rural Electrification Administration makes insured loans and guarantees loans made by other qualified lenders for the extension and improvement of electric and telephone service in rural areas. Most electric loans are made concurrently with supplemental financing provided by the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) or other supplemental source. Supplemental financing is provided in the telephone program by the Rural Telephone Bank which utilizes the employees and facilities of REA and the Office of the General Counsel on a part-time basis without cost to the Bank. Public Law 93-32, approved May 11, 1973, established the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund as a source of financing the insured loan programs.

Business management and technical assistance is furnished borrowers where needed to protect the Government's loan security, to assure that construction and operation of their systems conform to approved standards, and that the systems will provide continuous and reliable service and facilitate the most effective use of resources to achieve program objectives.

Rural housing for domestic farm labor.—Financial assistance in the form of grants is authorized to public or private nonprofit organizations, or other eligible organizations for low-rent housing and related facilities for domestic farm labor, as authorized by the Housing Act of 1964.

Assistance not to exceed 90% of the total development cost is authorized for new structures (including basic household furnishings) and sites, and for rehabilitation, alteration, conversion or improvement of dwellings, dining halls, community rooms or buildings and infirmaries used by domestic farm laborers.

No funds are being requested for fiscal year 1976 since the administration believes the Government's proper role can best be served by other programs.

Mutual and self-help housing.—This assistance was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. These grants are especially designed to aid the development of comprehensive plans to permit an expansion of mutual and self-help housing programs under which groups of families build their own homes by mutually exchanging labor. No program is planned for fiscal year 1976 since the grants plus the subsidy cost of the associated loans have resulted in high unit costs to the Government without corresponding benefits to those aided.

Self-help housing land development fund.—The Self-help housing land development fund was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. It is used as a revolving fund for making loans to public or private nonprofit organizations for the acquisition and development of land as building sites to be subdivided and sold to eligible families, nonprofit organizations, and cooperatives.

In 1974, two loans were obligated for $301 thousand. It is estimated that six loans for $900 thousand will be made in 1975. No program is planned for 1976 since the subsidy costs of the associated loans together with the self-help housing technical assistance grants have resulted in high unit costs to the Government without corresponding benefits to those aided.

RURAL HOUSING INSURANCE FUND

For direct loans and related advances pursuant to section 517(m) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, $20,000,000 shall be available from funds in the rural housing insurance fund, and for insured loans as authorized by title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, ~~[$2,232,000,000]~~ $2,122,000,000 of which not less than ~~[$1,346,000,000]~~ $1,236,000,000 shall be available for subsidized interest loans to low-income borrowers as determined by the Secretary: Provided, That the Secretary may, on an insured basis or otherwise, sell any notes in the fund or sell certificates of beneficial ownership therein to the Secretary of the Treasury, to the private market, or to such other sources as the Secretary may determine. Any sale by the Secretary of notes or of beneficial ownership therein shall be treated as a sale of assets for the purpose of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, notwithstanding the fact that the Secretary, under an agreement with the purchaser or purchasers, holds the debt instruments evidencing the loans and holds or reinvests payments thereon for the purchaser or purchasers of the notes or of the certificates of beneficial ownership therein. Hereafter, farmer applicants for direct or insured rural housing loans shall be required to provide only such collateral security as is required of owners of nonfarm tracts.

For an additional amount to reimburse the rural housing insurance fund for losses sustained in prior years, but not previously reimbursed, in carrying out the provisions of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1483, 1487e, and 1490a(c)), including ~~[$74,893,000]~~ $86,042,000 as authorized by section 521(c) of the Act, ~~[$124,592,000]~~ $122,000,000.

For "Rural housing insurance fund" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, for direct loans pursuant to section 517(m) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, $5,000,000 shall be available from funds in the rural housing insurance fund and for insured loans as authorized by title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, $530,500,000. Rural housing insurance fund.—This fund was established in 1965 (Public Law 89-117) pursuant to section 517 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. Initial capitalization of the fund at $100 million was provided by the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1966.

Public Law 91-152, approved December 24, 1969, provided that the Rural housing direct loan account be abolished and that the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, the direct loan account be transferred to this fund.

This fund is used to insure or guarantee rural housing loans and loans for rural rental and cooperative housing and to insure farm labor housing loans, and rural housing site loans. Loans are made to persons of low or moderate incomes if their need for necessary housing cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources, including assistance available under section 235 or 236 of the National Housing Act. The insured and guaranteed loans currently made by the Farmers Home Administration bear interest at 9% with provision for interest credits on insured loans up to 8% under certain circumstances, except that insured farm labor housing loans will bear interest at 1%.

Direct loans are made from amounts available in this fund. These direct loans are limited to very low-income housing repair loans. Repair and improvement loans not in excess of $5 thousand are made to very low-income families who are owners of farms or nonfarm rural property to repair or improve their dwellings and essential farm buildings in order to make them safe and sanitary and to remove health hazards to the families or the community. These loans are made at 1% interest and are repayable in not more than 20 years.

Insured building loans are made to farm owners, owners of other real estate in rural areas, others who are or will become rural residents, and long-term leaseholders. Loans are repayable in not more than 33 years. Loans are made to enable eligible applicants to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings and essential farm service buildings, and may include funds to buy a house, building site, and farm service buildings. Loans are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, or other rural places of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area.

These programs are being targeted so as to provide greater emphasis on assisting those rural residents who are most in need of improved housing. Consequently a substantial portion of the subsidized housing loan programs will be utilized for the purchase and repair of existing housing units so as to make more lower cost housing available to lower income rural residents who presently occupy substandard housing.

The following table shows actual fiscal year 1974 and estimated fiscal years 1975 and 1976 program levels and units.

The Agricultural credit insurance fund is used to insure or guarantee farm ownership, soil and water, recreation, farm operating, and emergency loans to individuals as well as irrigation and drainage, grazing, recreation, Indian land acquisition, watershed protection, flood prevention, and resource conservation and development loans to associations. The insurance endorsement on each insured loan may include an agreement by the Government to purchase the loan after a specified initial period. The initial fund of $1 million may be supplemented by amounts retained by the Government out of interest collected from insured loan borrowers and by borrowings from the Treasury. Any amounts so retained, not to exceed one-half of 1% of the outstanding principal obligations, must be deposited in the fund. Any remainder of such charges may be used for administrative expenses.

Loans may be made directly from the fund from available receipts or from Treasury borrowings if there is a reasonable assurance that the loans can be sold to investors without undue delay, or sold by private lenders having a contract of guarantee from Farmers Home Administration. With respect to all new loans made from this fund, with the exception of emergency loans, not more than $500 million may be held in the fund at any one time. Present money market interest rates are in excess of the statutory rate paid by most borrowers. The excess interest paid to private investors to make loans saleable or to pay part of the borrower's interest on guaranteed loans is paid from Treasury borrowings.

Public Law 92-419, approved August 30, 1972, abolished the Farmers Home Administration Direct loan account and the Emergency credit revolving fund and provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, these accounts to the Agricultural credit insurance fund. It also provided for transfer from the Agricultural credit insurance fund to the Rural development insurance fund of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities.

The following loans are financed through this fund.

Loans to individuals.—1. Farm ownership loans are made to farmers and ranchers, at a 5% interest rate for 40 years or less, for acquiring, enlarging or improving farms, including dwellings and farm buildings; for financing land and water development, use and conservation; for developing recreational and other nonfarm enterprises; for forestry development; for refinancing indebtedness; and for loan closing costs. Loans are confined to farms which are not larger than family farms. The unpaid indebtedness against a farm or other security at the time the loan is made may not exceed $225,000 or the market value of the farm or other security. The loan may not exceed $100,000 or the amount certified by the county committee, whichever is the lesser. The Farmers Home Administration has broadened its farm ownership loan policies so that private or cooperative lenders and the agency can make loans to the same borrowers on the same security.

These loans may be made on farms which are larger than family farms and may include funds for operating purposes.

4. Farm operating loans are made to farmers and ranchers for costs incident to reorganizing a farming system for more profitable operations; for a variety of essential farm expenses such as the purchase of livestock, farm equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, and farm supplies, and other essential operating expenses, including cash rent, and costs incident to the production and harvesting of forestry products; for financing land and water development, use and conservation; for developing recreational and other nonfarm enterprises; for other farm and home needs; for refinancing indebtedness; for complying with certain safety standards; for operation of farming enterprises by rural youths in connection with their participation in 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America and similar organizations; and for loan closing costs. Loans for farming operations are confined to operators of not-larger-than family farms. The outstanding principal loan balance for operating loans to any individual is limited to $50 thousand. Loans bear interest at a rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations with a similar maturity period. The rate for fiscal year 1975 is 8¼%. Loans may be scheduled for payment over periods from 1 to 7 years depending on loan purposes. In some situations, they may be renewed for not more than 5 additional years. Loans are secured by crop and chattel liens and, when necessary, by real estate mortgages. Other reliable agricultural credit sources are encouraged to furnish as much as possible of the essential needs of loan applicants with the balance being supplied with an operating loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

5. Emergency loans are made in designated areas where a natural disaster has caused a temporary general need for agricultural credit which cannot be met by private, cooperative, or other responsible sources, including the Farmers Home Administration in its regular loan programs. Emergency loans are made to eligible established farmers, ranchers, or oyster planters and to private domestic corporations or partnerships engaged primarily in farming, ranching, or oyster planting. Emergency loans are made primarily for financing farm operating needs, family living expenses, and a number of closely related purposes and are not to exceed otherwise unreimbursed losses attributable to natural disasters. Loans bear interest not in excess of 5% and are repayable over periods not longer than the regular loans made by the Farmers Home Administration for similar purposes. Loans may be made outside of designated areas under certain conditions to persons or corporations who have suffered severe production losses not general to the area as a result of a natural disaster, or to persons who are indebted for emergency loans made under prior authorities. In fiscal year 1975 funds are available in such amounts as may be necessary to meet the needs resulting from natural disasters.

Grazing loans are made to organizations primarily composed of farmers, ranchers, certain Indian tribes, and other rural residents to provide seasonal grazing for live-stock belonging to members of the associations. Membership in an association permits a farmer or rancher to graze his livestock on association pasture for the grazing season and return them to his base unit for the balance of the year. Such a plan provides a farmer or rancher an opportunity to increase the size of his operations. These loans are made at a 5% interest rate for 40 years or less.

6. Resource conservation and development loans are made to sponsors of projects approved for operation by the Soil Conservation Service. Loans are made to local organizations and individuals for planned conservation measures and works of improvement specified in approved work plans. These loans are repayable in not more than 30 years, with repayment of principal and interest deferred up to 5 years, if necessary. Loans bear interest at a rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. The rate for the 1975 fiscal year is 4.371%.

The Rural development insurance fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 309A of the Rural Development Act of 1972 which also provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities to this fund.

The fund is used to insure or guarantee loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities, development of rural business, community facilities, pollution abatement, and economic improvement in rural areas.

Water and waste disposal development loans and essential community facility loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes and corporations not operated for profit and public and quasi-public agencies. Water and waste disposal development loans are made for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. Community facility loans are made to construct, enlarge, extend or otherwise improve community facilities providing essential service to rural residents. Such facilities include those providing or supporting overall community development such as fire and rescue services, transportation, traffic control, and community, social, cultural, and recreational benefits. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers and other rural residents of open country and rural towns and villages of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area. These loans are repayable in not more than 40 years and bear interest not in excess of 5%.

Industrial development loans are made to public, private, or cooperative organizations organized for profit or nonprofit, to certain Indian tribes, or to individuals. These loans are made for purposes of improving, developing, or financing business, industry, and employment and improving the economic and environmental climate in rural areas. Such purposes include financing business and industrial acquisition, construction, conversion, enlargement, repair or modernization; financing the purchase and development of land, easements, rights-of-way, buildings, equipment, facilities, leases, machinery, supplies and materials; and payment of start-up costs and supplying working capital. Industrial development loans may be made in any area that is not within the outer boundary of any city having a population of 50,000 or more and its immediately adjacent urbanized and urbanizing areas with a population density of more than 100 persons per square mile. Special consideration for such loans is given to areas other than cities having a population of more than 25,000. These loans are repayable in not more than 30 years. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is determined by the lender and the borrower. The interest rate for loans made by Farmers Home Administration to private entrepreneurs is computed on the cost of Treasury borrowing plus an increment to cover administrative costs; loans to public bodies borrowing to install community facilities necessary for community development are made at 5%.

Economic opportunity loan fund.—This program has been administered by the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture through delegation of authority. Under the program, loans were provided to low-income rural residents for small-farm and nonfarm enterprises to help to increase income. Loans were also made to rural cooperative enterprises serving the rural poor through purchasing, processing, and marketing activities.

Evaluations of the program have shown that these small loans were not effective in improving the income potentials of the rural poor. No new loans have been made since mid-1971. The Farmers Home Administration is servicing outstanding loans totaling $33 million on June 30, 1974, from funds provided under "Salaries and expenses".

Assistance to conservation districts, community groups, units of government, and other cooperators mainly of the following:

(a) Soil surveys and investigations, with interpretations and publications, that provide physical land facts needed for program development, resource conservation planning, installation of planned practices, and for use by other Federal, State, and local agencies;

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

	1974 actual	Total as of June 30, 1974	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Soil Surveys: <sup>1</sup>

Reconnaissance (1,000 acres).....	9,082	61,668	10,000	10,000
Soil survey reports sent to Government Printing Office (number).....	85	-----	85	85

(b) Technical assistance to cooperating land users, groups and units of government and other policy and decisionmakers in the planning of conservation programs and installation of needed conservation treatments;

(c) Technical programing, design, layout, installation services, and consultation on those practices and measures provided for in resource conservation plans;

(d) Technical and other assistance to communities and units of government on land use planning, mine spoil restoration, control of erosion, sedimentation, agricultural related pollutants, and protection and enhancement of the environment, and other special problems that can best be solved through coordinated local action;

(e) The granting of special equipment to soil conservation districts for use in applying conservation practices;

(f) Water supply forecasts prepared from snow surveys in Western States that are useful in making efficient seasonal use of water for irrigation, flood control, fish and wildlife, recreation, power generation, municipal and industrial water supply, and water quality management;

(g) The selection and evaluation of plant materials to determine their suitability for erosion control, conservation purposes, and other environmental improvements;

(h) Technical assistance to participants in the Agricultural conservation program in establishing specified permanent-type practices;

(i) Technical services to participants in other programs involving land use adjustments and soil and water conservation;

(j) Technical assistance in the planning and applying of soil and water conservation practices for which loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration;

(k) Technical assistance to rural development committees; and

(l) A program of national land inventory and monitoring.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation practices are planned together and in relation to each other so as to have well balanced conservation programs in each district. The Service aids land users, groups, units of government, and other policy and decisionmakers marshal the facts and consider the potentials and alternatives before they embark on courses of action. Both vegetative and structural measures are installed in accordance with the needs of the land for protection, treatment, and resource improvement. Plans reflect the decisions of the land users, community groups, and units of government as to how they will use and treat the land and water resources.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service explain the various soil conditions, develop alternative uses and treatments, help to evaluate the costs and returns of conservation work, and furnish assistance in applying the needed treatments.

The technical services provided through conservation operations are instrumental in encouraging farmers, ranchers, and others to establish conservation practices. For each dollar used to provide technical assistance, the individual landowner or user invests over $2 in conservation work.

The national land inventory and monitoring program will provide soil, water, and related resource data for land conservation, use, and development, for guidance of community development to achieve a balanced rural-urban growth, for identification of prime agriculture producing areas that should be protected, for evaluating land use changes and trends, and for use in protecting the quality of the environment. A land resource inventory report reflecting soil, water and related resource conditions, issued at not less than 5-year intervals, will provide essential planning data for individual land users and community, county, regional, State, and national units and agencies of government.

River basin program development and coordination.—Section 6 of Public Law 566, 83d Congress, as amended, authorizes the Department to cooperate with other Federal, State, and local agencies in making surveys and investigations of the watersheds of rivers and other waterways as a basis for the development of coordinated water and related land resource programs. The Department currently is participating in cooperative surveys and investigations in river basins with the Corps of Engineers and other interested Federal and State agencies. The Department also maintains representation on seven river basin commissions and three river basin interagency committees. These serve as points of contact in coordination between representatives of this Department and other Federal departments and agencies and the States in these basin areas. They keep all concerned mutually informed of the activities of the member agencies and facilitate matters of interagency coordination. During fiscal year 1972, the Department maintained such representation on committees in the Arkansas-White-Red, Missouri, Pacific-Southwest, and Southeast areas. The MBIAC was dissolved when the MRBC was formed during fiscal year 1972. The Department also is represented on the Water Resources Council which was formed in accordance with Section 101, Public Law 89-80, Water Resources Planning Act, to coordinate water and related land resource activities of Federal departments and agencies.

The Senate Select Committee on National Water Resources proposed a goal of surveying all of the Nation's river basins and making determinations of our future water and related land resource needs. Twenty-one planning regions were established nationwide. The Department of Agriculture has cooperated in framework level planning in 14 of these regions. This Department and other member departments of the Water Resources Council have jointly considered needs for additional river basin surveys and investigations necessary to attain the goal.

Based on this joint coordination, current needs are $493 thousand to continue interagency comprehensive surveys now in progress; $11,028 thousand to continue other Federal-State cooperative river basin surveys now in progress and to start three additional surveys in cooperation with States; $330 thousand for interregional economic analysis; $1,247 thousand for flood hazard analyses; and $1,700 thousand for interagency coordination and program formulation.

The Department makes surveys of proposed small watershed projects, and work plans are prepared in cooperation with local sponsors. These plans outline the soil and water management problems in the watershed, the steps that have been or are authorized to be taken to alleviate these problems, the proposed works of improvement to be installed, the estimated benefits and costs, cost-sharing and operation and maintenance arrangements, and other facts necessary to justify Federal participation in project development.

Small watersheds.—The Department cooperates with the States and other agencies in installing works of improvement in small watersheds to reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion, for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water, and the conservation and proper utilization of land. It provides loans to local organizations to help them finance their share of the costs of certain works of improvement.

1. Works of improvement.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install the watershed works of improvement for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development features specified in the work plans.

After local sponsoring organizations have developed watershed work plans with the Department's assistance or with State and local resources, and the projects have been approved as suitable for Federal participation (projects involving an estimated Federal contribution in excess of $250,000 require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specified works of improvement. On non-Federal lands, local sponsoring organizations may, contract for construction work or request the SCS to do the contracting for them, operate and maintain the projects, and in the case of multiple-purpose structures, bear a share of construction costs. In addition, local organizations must acquire water rights and furnish land, easements, and rights-of-way for all structural measures except that up to one-half the cost of land, easements, and rights-of-way allocated to public fish and wildlife and recreational developments may be paid with Public Law 566 funds. Federal agencies do this work on Federal lands which they administer with appropriate contribution being made by the local people who receive benefits.

Preconstruction and land treatment and engineering services are furnished to all approved projects before they are advanced to the construction stage. During the preconstruction stage, surveys, and investigations are made and detailed designs, specifications, and engineering cost estimates are prepared for construction of structural works, areas are delineated where easements are required, and technical services are furnished for accelerating planning and application of land treatment measures if provided for in the watershed work plan.

The following tabulation shows the status of Public Law 566 projects by stage of assistance and amounts obligated or estimated to be obligated.

2. Loan services.—Loans are made to local sponsoring organizations to finance the local cost of installing works of improvement in approved watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principle benefits of improvements have become available. Loans are made from the Agriculture credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from this appropriation.

Flood prevention.—1. Works of improvement.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention and for furthering the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water and the conservation and proper utilization of land in the 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares in the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development facilities.

The Department furnishes additional technical and, in certain instances, financial assistance to landowners to accelerate planning and installation of land treatment measures for runoff retardation, sediment control, and water management. Local sponsoring organizations must furnish all land easements, and rights-of-way, water rights, and the entire cost of works of improvement for nonagricultural water management measures, except those for fish and wildlife development and recreation, and operate and maintain all completed works of improvement.

Within 11 watersheds authorized for flood prevention work by the Flood Control Act of 1944, 403 subwatershed areas have been identified in which installation of flood prevention works of improvement is feasible. Installation progress in these subwatersheds is shown in the following table:

2. Loan services.—Loans are made to local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of planned works of improvement. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available for this purpose. Loans are made from funds available for this purpose from the Agriculture credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from funds available to this appropriation.

This program provides cost-sharing assistance and technical services to participating landowners or operators in the Great Plains area in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans and practices for their land. It is a voluntary program which complements other conservation programs of the Department in 469 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Contracts with individual landowners range in time from 3 to 10 years.

Plans of conservation operations are made for each farm or ranch as a basis for cost-sharing certain practices. The fundamental purposes of this program are to achieve needed land-use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability of each operating unit. The planned work is installed under contract according to specific time schedules.

As of June 30, 1974, there was a backlog of 6,005 unserviced applications and active contracts on hand. Cooperating landowners or operators finance the entire cost of installing recurring management-type practices and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices installed on their land.

Program regulations provide that cost-share rates offered in any contract shall not exceed 80% of the cost of installing eligible practices within the designated county. The rates vary among States and practices due to differences in conservation and program needs. Cost-sharing for practices that are primarily to enhance fish and wildlife and recreation resources, to promote the economic use of land, or to reduce or control agricultural related pollution is limited to not more than $2,500 in any one contract, or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation, whichever is larger. Cost-sharing is further limited to $2,500 for any one structure for constructing, enlarging, or sealing dams, pits or ponds for irrigation water. Cost-sharing for irrigation practices in any one contract shall not exceed $2,500 or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation (exclusive of cost-sharing for practices for enhancing fish and wildlife and recreation resources, promoting the economic use of land, and reducing or controlling agricultural related pollutants) whichever is larger. There is also a cost-sharing limitation of $25,000 for any contract.

Each participant who signs a Great Plains program contract is responsible for implementing his plan of operations; and the Department is committed to furnish the necessary technical help needed for design, layout, and other services. Cooperating landowners and operators are encouraged to make use of other available assistance under local, State, and Federal programs as a means of further improving their land and water resources.

The months of July, August, and September comprise a period of major construction activity. During that period, cooperators are carrying out needed conservation practices as provided in cost-sharing contracts. New participants are anxious to start planned activities through new contracts. A heavy demand is normally made of Soil Conservation personnel and facilities to accomplish an increased workload during the summer months. Appropriations requested for the transitional budget recognize the seasonal workload fluctuation during that period and are within the guidelines for the fiscal year 1976 program level.

The Department cooperates with other Federal agencies, States, local units of government, groups, and individuals in developing and carrying out programs and plans for resource conservation and development and shares in the cost of installing planned resource conservation and development measures, when justified as a public need. Loans are provided to qualified local sponsoring organizations when needed to help them finance their share of the cost of certain measures which are in the public interest. Resource conservation and development measures planned will contribute to improvement in the economy of the area and to needed land use adjustments.

Technical assistance is provided in each project area approved for resource conservation and development program assistance to help sponsoring organizations prepare overall project plans for resource conservation and development. The initial phase of project plan development will have been finished and operations begun in 134 areas by June 30, 1975. Project planning will be initiated in 10 areas during 1976. Project plans will be completed in 25 areas during 1975 and 35 will be completed during 1976. The 35 project plans completed in 1976 will bring the number of areas authorized for operations by June 30, 1976, to 169.

Each project authorized for operation is provided technical assistance to help local groups and individuals plan and install land treatment measures; to design and supervise installation of community-type conservation measures; and, to assist in the preparation of plans for resource development and economic improvement within project areas.

The main workload factors in 1976 include:

a. Assistance to local sponsors in developing suitable plans.

b. Operations in 169 project areas for which initial project plans will have been completed.

c. Acceleration of resource conservation and development measures installation expected to be made possible by additional State and local funds, and through the use of resource conservation and development program technical and financial assistance for eligible erosion and sediment control, flood prevention, farm irrigation, land drainage, water quality management, soil and water management for control of agriculture related pollutants, and public water-based recreation and fish and wildlife measures.

Field work under this program consists primarily, of planning, designing, and supervision of installation of resource conservation and development measures and conservation practices, the purpose of which is to develop or improve the economic use of natural resources. This includes outdoor recreation facilities and income-producing enterprises where needed and where consistent with good land use. Investigations, surveys and planning are prerequisites to the operating phase of this program. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help plan and install measures as specified in project plans.

Loans are made to qualified local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of installing the measures. Funds will be available for loans from the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration.

These activities assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities through various marketing and regulatory services. These services continue to expand and become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the market structure undergoes dramatic changes. Marketing changes include increased concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

1. Market news service.—This service provides current information on supply, movement, contractual agreements, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. The marketing of agricultural products is characterized by a series of decision points through which product flows concentrate and transactions take place. Market news provides American farmers at these decision points with timely, accurate, and unbiased information pertinent to market conditions. Thus, on a day-to-day basis, the American farmer is in a position to make the critical decisions of where and when to sell, and at what price.

Market news information is collected and disseminated at year-round and seasonal offices maintained in more than 140 cities and towns, often with local and other support and cooperation, generally from State departments of agriculture. Dissemination is primarily by radio, television, and mimeographed reports. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

2. Inspection, grading, classing, and standardization.—

(a) Meat and poultry inspection.—The inspection activities previously carried out under this subappropriation item by the former Consumer and Marketing Service were transferred to the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service which was established on April 1, 1972, in accordance with Secretary's Memorandum No. 1762, Supplement I, dated March 22, 1972. Narrative statements describing the programs and performance of these activities are included in this volume under the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. The level of costs relating to obligations incurred under these activities prior to April 1, 1972, are included under this Marketing Services account.

(b) All other (inspection, grading, classing, and standardization).—Nationally uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of products to: Promote confidence between buyers and sellers, reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party, and generally for a fee. Approximately 65% of the total cost of this work was offset by fees and other revenue in 1974.

For the 3-month transition period, July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, additional funds are required for tobacco grading and grain supervision to cover seasonal variations in these programs.

3. Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of regulatory laws such as the U.S. Warehouse and Federal Seed Acts to assure fair play in the marketplace, to protect producers and handlers of agricultural commodities from financial loss due to careless or fraudulent marketing practices, and to preserve free and open competition in the marketing of farm products. Assistance is also provided to farmers and others in obtaining and maintaining equitable and reasonable transportation rates and services on farm products and supplies. The Cotton Research and Promotion Act is designed to improve the competitive position and expand markets for cotton through a program of self-assessment by cotton producers. The Service also administers the Wheat Research and Promotion Act, Agricultural Fair Practices Act of 1967, the Plant Variety Protection Act, and the Egg Research and Consumer Information Act.

The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

4. Administration and coordination of State payments.—

This project covers Federal activity required in administering and coordinating the marketing service work performed by the States and financed jointly by State funds and Federal funds provided by the appropriation, Payments to States and possessions. In 1974 this work was carried on in 43 States and 127 work projects.

Federal funds were not included for this program in fiscal year 1975 and appropriated funds are not being requested under the payments to States and possessions program in fiscal year 1976.

Payments are made on a matching fund basis to State marketing agencies for carrying out specifically approved marketing service programs designed to bring about improved marketing. Under this activity, marketing specialists work with farmers, marketing firms, and agencies in solving marketing problems and in utilizing marketing research results.

This program covers such projects as: Methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products; ways of reducing marketing costs; expanding outlets for surplus products; collecting and disseminating special State and local market information and statistics; and improving the organizational structure of the marketing system.

Federal funds are not included for this program in fiscal year 1976. State marketing bureaus or equivalent and private marketing resources will perform this market place function from 1976 onward.

Under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U.S.C. 612c), 30% of customs receipts collected during each calendar year plus unused balances up to $300 million are available for expanding outlets for farm commodities. An amount equal to 30% of receipts collected on fishery products is transferred to the Department of Commerce to encourage the distribution of such products. As provided in recent appropriation acts, other transfers have been made from this fund primarily to the child nutrition programs for the purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities and cash reimbursements for meals served. Section 32 funds are also authorized for the administration of marketing agreements and orders. The basic legislation provides that funds devoted to any one commodity or product thereof must not exceed 25% of funds available. It also provides that the funds must be devoted principally to perishable agricultural commodities other than those receiving price support under Title II of Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended. It has been determined that this provision can be legally satisfied by setting aside or reserving the principal portion of section 32 funds for the use of perishable nonbasic agricultural commodities.

1. Commodity program payments currently being used are of three types: (a) Direct purchases are donated to schools, summer camps, child care centers, nonprofit institutions serving needy persons, persons certified by welfare as eligible for relief, and disaster victims; (b) financial assistance to States enable States distributing agencies to improve the distribution system supplying commodities to needy families; and (c) other: Food and Nutrition Service purchases of farina for the special package, supplemental food program. During the past 2 years, assistance under these programs was given to the following commodity groups (in millions of dollars):

OBLIGATIONS	1973	1974
Dairy products.....	16.0	10.7
Eggs and poultry.....	79.7	84.3
Fats and oils.....	1.8	2.0
Fruits and vegetables.....	40.3	49.7
Grain products.....	13.9	14.2
Livestock products.....	14.1	97.3
Peanut butter.....	16.4	14.8
Miscellaneous.....	16.3	12.9
Total.....	198.5	285.9

Public Law 93-86 authorized the use of section 32 program funds for 1974 to purchase commodities to maintain programed levels of assistance to schools, needy persons and other domestic food assistance programs. Public Law 93-326 and Public Law 93-347 extended this authority through 1975.

The use of section 32 program funds during 1976 will be contingent upon marketing conditions. The estimates for 1976 reflect the foreseeable needs for perishables and other activities regularly financed with section 32 funds. If surpluses not now foreseen should develop, steps will be taken to use additional available funds for their removal or diversion as conditions might warrant.

Funds have been used for the certification and distribution of food to needy families in selected counties where local governmental agencies are unwilling or unable to operate food distribution programs.

2. Cash payments to States were initiated in 1969 to meet the urgent need for providing additional foods to needy children who have been determined to be suffering from general and continued hunger. The funds provided are channeled through the child feeding programs authorized by the School Lunch and Child Nutrition Acts.

3. Supplemental food programs were initiated in 1969 to meet the urgent need for providing additional foods to needy children and adults who have been determined to be suffering from general and continued hunger. The Department developed a distribution system to provide special food packages for infants, and expectant and new mothers. These packages are being distributed in both food stamp and commodity donation areas.

Funds have also been used for conducting a pilot food-certificate program designed to increase the food purchasing power of expectant and new mothers and infants through the issuance of certificates to be exchanged at their local grocery for certain food items.

An additional supplemental food program authorized in 1973 provides cash grants to health departments or comparable State agencies to make special foods available to women, infants, and children. This program is known as the WIC program.

4. Cash payments in lieu of commodities for school feeding programs have been authorized by Public Law 93-150. The availability of commodities as donations to school lunch and child nutrition programs may be less than the amounts needed. Schools participating in these programs will then be confronted with a decreased amount of sufficient supplies of food required to meet the nutritional standards established by law for these programs. Cash payments would then be made to schools to purchase locally the additional commodities needed.

5. Commodity program operating expenses occur mainly in connection with purchasing and distributing section 32 and Commodity Credit Corporation commodities to eligible outlets. Distribution in 1974, including that under section 6 of the National School Lunch Act, is summarized below (in millions):

Distribution	Number of recipients (peak month)	Value of commodities distributed	Pounds of commodities distributed
By recipients:
School children.....	24.9	319.3	961.1
Needy persons.....	2.4	204.5	600.4
Persons in charitable institutions.....	1.3	24.8	107.7
Total.....	28.6	548.6	1,669.2
By program:
Section 32.....	---	247.1	624.7
Donations by Commodity Credit Corporation, section 416.....	---	234.1	927.2
National School Lunch Act, section 6.....	---	67.4	117.3
Total.....	---	548.6	1,669.2

6. Marketing agreements and orders are put into effect upon request of producers or handlers after hearings and investigations, and upon approval of producers (handlers in the case of marketing agreements). They help to stabilize prices, and benefit producers and consumers by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Administration at the local level is financed by assessment upon handlers. On June 30, 1974, there were in effect 61 orders for milk, 48 agreements and orders for tree fruits, nuts, and vegetables, and 1 order for shade-grown tobacco. The expenses of advisory committees established to advise the Secretary, public hearings, referenda to determine producer sentiment, and other developmental work as authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1961 are also financed under this project.

License fees are deposited in this special fund and are used to meet the costs of administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities and the Produce Agency Acts (7 U.S.C. 491-497, 499a-499s). The current annual license fee is set at $100.

The acts are intended to assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (a) informal agreements between the two parties, (b) formal decisions involving payment of reparation awards, and (c) suspension or revocation of license and/or publication of the facts.

<sup>1</sup> Administrative fund totals are comprised of 61 separate independent order accounts in fiscal year 1974. The Marketing Service fund totals are comprised of 48 separate independent order accounts in fiscal year 1974.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended—under certain conditions—to issue Federal milk marketing orders establishing minimum prices which handlers are required to pay for milk purchased from producers.

Market administrators are responsible for carrying out locally the terms of specific marketing orders. Their operating expenses, partly financed by assessments on regulated handlers and partly by deductions from producers, are reported in these schedules. These funds are collected locally, deposited in local banks, and disbursed directly by the market administrator.

Each milk order is administered locally by a market administrator who is appointed by the Secretary. His staff is employed directly by the market administrator.

The activities conducted in the local office are concerned primarily with monthly computations and public announcement of class and uniform blend prices, associated butterfat differentials, examination of handlers' records and facilities to verify their reports and payments to producers, and in checking weights and tests of producer milk.

The expenses of each local office are met from an administrative fund and a marketing service fund which are prescribed in each order. The administrative fund is derived from prorated handler assessments. The marketing service fund of the individual order provides for the expense of disseminating market information to producers who are not members of a qualified cooperative. It also provides for the verification of the weights, sampling, and testing of milk from these producers. The cost of these services is borne by such producers.

The maximum rates for administrative assessment and for marketing services are set forth in each order and adjustments below these rates are made from time to time upon recommendations by the market administrator and upon approval of the Agricultural Marketing Service to provide reserves at about a 6-month operating level. Upon termination of any order, the statute provides for distributing the proceeds from net assets pro rata to contributing handlers or producers as the case may be.

Milk sold by regulated handlers supplied almost 145 million persons in calendar year 1973.

The following table gives an indication of the role of Federal orders on the marketing of milk over the past few years:

The child nutrition programs have been expanded and made more complex and costly, by the passage of five significant laws in as many years. Public Law 91-248, which became law on May 14, 1970, clearly established that priority shall be given to reaching needy children and provided for the establishment of a national minimum eligibility standard for free and reduced price meals and a maximum price which might be charged for these meals. This law emphasized that access to the school lunch program should be available to children in all schools.

Public Law 92-153, enacted November 5, 1971, increased Federal support for the national school lunch program by mandating a minimum $0.40 rate in special assistance (section 11) for free lunches, and a lesser minimum rate for reduced price lunches. This law also authorized an average rate of reimbursement of $0.06 per meal within each State.

Public Law 92-433, enacted September 20, 1972, authorized an increase in the average rate of reimbursement from 6 cents per meal to 8 cents within each State. It also provided for higher eligibility standards for free and reduced price lunches and for funding on a performance basis for section 4 lunches and the breakfast program.

Public Law 93-150, enacted November 7, 1973, increased the average payment for all lunches served from 8 cents to 10 cents. It provided that special cash assistance (section 11) average payments to States would be at least 45 cents for free lunches and 10 cents less for reduced price lunches. These section 11 funds are now distributed on a national average payment basis rather than on a guaranteed minimum payment basis. The school breakfast average payment was set at 8 cents, with an additional 15 cents provided for reduced price breakfasts and 20 cents for free breakfasts. In areas of special need, a payment of up to 45 cents might be made for free breakfasts. The law also provides for semiannual adjustments in January and July of each fiscal year should the Consumer Price Index of the cost of food away from home warrant such a change. Based on the Consumer Price Index, 5% increases were effective in January and July of 1974.

Public Law 93-326, enacted June 30, 1974, provided that the national average value of donated foods, or cash payments in lieu thereof, shall not be less than 10 cents per lunch. The law also provided that this amount would be adjusted on an annual basis each fiscal year after June 30, 1975, to reflect changes in the series for food away from home of the Consumer Price Index.

1. Cash payments to States.—The programs are operated under an agreement entered into by the State educational agency and the Department. Funds are advanced under letters of credit to State agencies for use in reimbursing participating schools and child-care institutions. Sponsors make application to the State agency and, if accepted, are reimbursed in accordance with the terms of their agreement. Since fiscal year 1974, funding for the school lunch program and the breakfast program has been strictly on a performance basis.

(a) School lunch program.—Assistance in the form of both funds and food is provided to the States, as defined in the National School Lunch Act, for serving lunches to school children. Federal support to the States is determined by the number of lunches served. States must match the Federal cash grant from sources within the State at a 3-to-1 ratio and 8% of the matching funds must come from State appropriated funds. For States with below average per capita income, the 3-to-1 ratio is decreased. State revenue matching requirements are based on the level of section 4 payments received the preceding fiscal year. In 1974, sources within the State contributed $1,982.5 million to this program, most of which came from children's payments.

The program during the peak month of November in fiscal year 1974 provided lunches daily to about 56% of the approximately 40.9 million children in daily attendance. The number of lunches served for the fiscal year decreased approximately 0.6% from fiscal 1973. Participation in the program in May 1974 reached a daily average of about 23.8 million children in 87,261 schools.

(b) Special assistance.—Special cash assistance may be provided to any school which has needy children in attendance. Public Law 93-150 provided a 45 cent free lunch rate and 10 cents less for a reduced price lunch. Due to the increase in the Consumer Price Index of the cost of food away from home, 5% increases were effective in January and July of 1974. A daily average of approximately 9.0 million children were served 1,494 million free or reduced price lunches in fiscal year 1974. The funding for fiscal 1975 should provide lunches for a daily average of 9.3 million needy children this school year.

Public Law 92-433 gave States the option of serving free and reduced price lunches to the children of families whose incomes were as much as 25% (for free lunches) and 50% (for reduced price lunches) above the Secretary's poverty income guidelines. Under Public Law 93-150, the scope of the reduced price lunch option broadened for fiscal year 1974 to include those children whose family's income is 75% above the Secretary's poverty income guidelines. The recently enacted Public Law 93-326 made this provision permanent.

(c) School breakfast program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorized a school breakfast program for 2 years on a pilot basis to assist States through grants-in-aid and other means to initiate, maintain or expand nonprofit breakfast programs in schools. Public Laws 92-32 and 92-153 extended the breakfast program through fiscal year 1973 and provided higher eligibility standards. Since the enactment of Public Law 92-433, which extended the program through fiscal year 1975 and provided for performance funding, the breakfast program has been available to all schools that make application.

Federal support to the States is determined by the number of breakfasts served. In circumstances of severe need, financial assistance may be authorized for up to 100 percent of the additional assistance needed.

In fiscal year 1974, an average of 1,357,000 children were served 225 million breakfasts in schools. About 84% of the breakfasts were served free or at token charges to children. In fiscal year 1975, it is estimated that a daily average of 1,549,000 children will participate.

(d) Nonfood assistance program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorized a permanent program to assist the States through grants-in-aid and other means to supply schools in low-income areas with food service equipment, other than land or buildings. Under Public Law 92-433, 50% of the funds for equipment assistance are reserved for use in schools without food service. These funds are apportioned on the basis of the ratio of the number of children enrolled in schools without a food service in the State to the total number of children enrolled in schools without a food service in all States. State and local sources must bear 25% of the cost of the equipment or facilities financed under this authority, except in schools that are determined by the State to be especially needy.

The remaining funds are apportioned on the basis of the ratio of the number of lunches served in each State to the total number of lunches served in all States. All schools which receive equipment must agree to take part in the national school lunch program and/or the school breakfast program. They must also justify their need for assistance on a project basis and submit a detailed description of the equipment to be acquired, including their proposals for its use in meeting the nutritional needs of children.

In fiscal year 1974, a total of 8,193 schools with a total attendance of 4.1 million students received equipment assistance of about $28 million. Assistance was provided to all 50 States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa.

(e) State administrative expenses.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 provides for advances to each State educational agency for administrative expenses. These funds are used for supervision and giving technical assistance to the local school districts and service institutions for additional activities undertaken by them to reach more children under the school lunch, special assistance, school breakfast, nonfood assistance, and nonschool food programs.

(f) Nonschool food program.—The National School Lunch Act was amended in 1968 to authorize a pilot program for 3 years to assist States to initiate, maintain, or expand nonprofit food service programs, for children in service institutions where children are not maintained in residence. Public Law 92-433, approved September 26, 1972, extended the program through fiscal year 1975. Pre-school children receive year-round assistance in child day-care centers. School-age children from areas of economic need and from areas with a high concentration of working mothers receive assistance during the summer months. Since January 1, 1974, previously non-USDA funded food service programs in Head Start centers have participated in the program.

Each State may receive a basic grant of $50 thousand. The remaining funds are apportioned according to the ratio of the number of children (aged 3 to 17 inclusive) from families with incomes under $3 thousand per year in each State, to the total number of such children in all States. Up to 80% of the total cost of meals served may be paid in cases of severe need, and not more than 75% of the equipment costs may be paid to the institutions. All meals served must meet minimum nutritional standards as a condition for receiving assistance.

In fiscal year 1974, 64 million meals were served to an average of 1.4 million children in the summer program, which included July–August 1973 and June 1974. Each child received an average of 1 meal per day at a cost of approximately 55 cents per child per day. Approximately 161 million meals were served in the fiscal 1974 year-round program to an average of 366,000 children. Each child received about 1.8 meals per day at a cost of about 17 cents per child per day.

2. Commodity procurement.—Commodity procurement under section 6 of the National School Lunch Act provides additional commodities to schools to supplement foods purchased locally or otherwise made available for the lunch program. As amended by Public Law 91–248, these commodities may also be used to supplement the school breakfast and nonschool food programs. Section 6 procurement helps to insure nutritionally adequate meals and appreciation for quality foods. Commodities are purchased by the Department on the basis of their nutritional value and acceptability to schools and service institutions.

High protein items of chicken and meat accounted for approximately 95% of the purchases in fiscal year 1974. The remainder consisted of fruits and vegetables.

Commodities acquired under programs that strengthen markets, income, and supply are also available to schools and child-care institutions. Public Law 93–86, enacted August 10, 1973, authorized, without regard to the provisions of existing law, the use of section 32 funds and CCC stocks in order to maintain the customary level of agricultural commodities annually programmed for assistance to schools.

In addition, Public Law 93–326, enacted June 30, 1974, requires that the “national average value of donated foods, or cash payments in lieu thereof, shall not be less than 10 cents per lunch.” This amount will be adjusted annually to reflect changes in the cost of food away from home.

During fiscal year 1974, $319 million worth of agricultural commodities and other foods were used. $67 million represented section 6, while $252 million represented commodities contributed through the Federal price support programs and programs for strengthening markets, income, and supply.

3. Nutritional training and surveys.—Up to 1% of the total funds available may be used for nutritional training and for studies and surveys of food service requirements, as provided for in Public Law 91–248.

In fiscal year 1975, the available funds will be divided among grants to States, studies and surveys, and nutritional education and training. Major areas of emphasis include nutrition education outreach efforts among the States in the form of grants to various States, a study and comparison of the nutritional quality and microbiological safety of representative school food service delivery systems, and an educational campaign to coordinate and dramatize nutrition education activities of all child nutrition programs.

4. Operating expenses.—Administrative and technical assistance is furnished to State agencies, participating schools, and child-care institutions. Policies, procedures, and standards are developed for administering the programs and determining eligibility. The programs are administered directly in private schools where the State educational agency is prohibited by law from disbursing funds and in child-care institutions where no State agency has assumed the responsibility for administering the program. Participation in the programs from 1973 through 1976 is as follows:

1. Cash payments to States.—This program is designed to encourage the consumption of fluid whole milk by children in nonprofit schools of high school grade and under, child-care centers, summer camps, and similar nonprofit institutions. Proposed legislation will substitute a comprehensive bloc grant program for this program along with other child nutrition programs.

Funds are provided to State agencies to reimburse eligible participants for a part of the cost of fluid milk consumed. Reimbursement may be made for the full cost of milk served to children unable to pay. The eligibility guidelines for free milk are the same as set forth by the Secretary for free lunches.

Public Law 93-347, enacted July 12, 1974, set the reimbursement rate for each half-pint served to children at not less than 5 cents and provided that the rate will be adjusted each fiscal year to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index for the cost of food away from home.

2. Operating expenses.—Administrative and technical assistance is furnished to State agencies, participating schools, and child-care institutions. Policies, procedures and standards are developed for administering the program and determining eligibility. The program is administered directly in outlets where no State agency has assumed the responsibility for its administration or where the State is prohibited by law from disbursing funds to private schools.

The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, as amended by Public Law 93-347, provides for the operation of a directly funded food distribution program during fiscal years 1976 and 1977.

1. Commodity acquisitions are currently planned for use only in the following program: (a) Indians.—Agricultural commodities will be provided to needy persons on Indian reservations until their transition to the food stamp program is complete. The traditional commodity package consisting of canned meat, poultry, cheese, evaporated milk and other items will be continued to an average of 40,000 participants per month.

2. Cash assistance is provided to distributing agencies in order to assist them in meeting expenses incurred in continuing food distribution on Indian reservations.

3. Operating expenses are incurred as a result of the purchasing and distributing of the agricultural commodities used in the food donations programs.

The food stamp program helps persons and families with low incomes to buy subsidized food through regular retail stores. Participating households purchase enough food stamps to provide a nutritionally adequate diet, paying a price for the stamps which is determined by household size and income. Households with no income receive free stamps.

Food stamp programs are established at the request of State social service agencies, which assume responsibility for certifying eligible households and issuing stamps. The Federal Government bears the subsidy cost of the stamps. Effective October 1, 1974, the Federal Government will also assume 50% of all State and local expenses incurred in carrying out the program.

Public Law 93-86 mandated nationwide implementation of the program. As a result of this mandate, the program participation should reach peak levels in fiscal year 1975. A cost-of-living adjustment in the coupon allotment effective January 1, 1975, will increase the allotment for a family of four to $154, based on the cost of the economy food plan in August 1974. At the same time, the purchase requirement for all eligible households will be revised. These revisions will be designed to make the relationship between purchase requirement and household income more equitable.

A most significant change in the program results from Public Law 93-347, which provides that all State administrative costs be Federally reimbursed by 50%. Previously, only those State costs incurred in the certification of nonpublic assistance households, fair hearing, and outreach activities, were reimbursed at a rate of 62½% by the Federal Government. Hereafter, all food stamp related expenses including the acceptance, storage and protection of coupons after delivery to receiving points within the States, the issuance of coupons to eligible households, and the control and accounting of coupons will be covered.

Able-bodied adults are required to register for and accept suitable employment as a condition of program eligibility. This program is carried out by the Manpower Administration, Department of Labor, in cooperation with State employment offices. Funding is on the basis of two-thirds provided by USDA, and the remaining one-third by the Department of Labor.

In fiscal year 1975, a revised and greatly strengthened quality control system will be established in all States to monitor the eligibility of households and the validity of the purchase requirement and the size of coupon allotment to households. Quality control efforts will also be intensified to assist the States in making more effective State audits and reviews.

It is anticipated that $1,039 million will be needed for the transition period of July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, for the food stamp program.

1. Forest land management.—(a) National Forest protection and management.—The 155 national forests and 19 units of national grasslands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, and wildlife are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation without impairing productivity of the land and that will be environmentally acceptable. The management and utilization principles were recognized in the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to meeting the demands for specific national forest resources through 1976 and for long-term objectives to the year 2000. Increases are provided in the budget for further attainment of these program objectives. Funds appropriated under cooperative range improvements are merged with this appropriation for obligational purposes.

(b) Fighting forest fires.—Provides for employment of additional manpower and other facilities for forest fire emergencies and emergency rehabilitation of burned areas which cannot be met under national forest protection and management. Costs above estimates for the current and budget years are authorized from advances from other Forest Service appropriations. A supplemental appropriation for fighting forest fires is anticipated for 1975.

Forest fires controlled (number).....	12,769	13,469	12,800
Area burned (acres).....	83,522	192,655	214,000

(c) Forest insect and disease control.—Activities to suppress and control destructive insects, diseases, and air pollutants that threaten all forest and related resource lands. This work is carried on jointly with Federal, State, and private landowners and includes prevention, detection, biological evaluation, and suppression. Sound environmentally acceptable forest pest management practices are used to help fill the needs of an ever-increasing population for fiber, water, recreation, wildlife habitat, esthetics, and a healthful environment.

(d) Cooperative law enforcement.—Public Law 92-82 authorizes the cooperation with any State or political subdivision thereof in the enforcement of State or local laws on lands of the National Forest System.

2. Forest research.—Research is conducted at eight regional forest experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, and the Institute of Tropical Forestry.

(a) Forest and range management.—Research provides land managers and owners with a sound basis for management of timber, forage, wildlife, recreation, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to maintain a sustained yield of products; improve forage and habitat for livestock and wildlife without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce floods and sedimentation; improve methods for developing and managing recreation resources; provide technology needed to make it possible to surface-mine areas as needed to meet mineral and energy needs with minimum impacts on productivity and esthetic value of the lands; and provide management methods for all uses that will insure environmental protection.

(b) Forest protection.—Research is conducted to develop measures for the protection of forests from damage by fire, insects, and diseases. Forest fire and atmospheric science research provides improved methods of preventing fires, predicting fire danger, and preparing for and combating fire by combinations of ground and aerial methods. Insect and disease research develops direct controls, cultural measures, and biological agents to combat forest pests.

(c) Forest products and engineering.—Studies are conducted to develop new and improved forest products, to reduce and utilize waste, and to use low-quality wood and less-desirable species. Research is also conducted to advance the efficiency of forestry operations, and to develop and evaluate equipment for such operations as harvesting, planting, timber-stand improvement, and protection of forests.

(d) Forest resource economics.—Investigations are conducted to inventory and appraise the condition of forest lands, volume and quality of standing timber, ownership of timber resources, annual growth and depletion, and the potential need for timber products. Economic studies are made of forest crop production, resource productivity, and the marketing potentials of forest products.

3. State and private forestry cooperation.—Cooperates and shares responsibilities with State and other public and private agencies in guiding the protection, management, and use of non-Federal forests and related lands and resources. Specific activities include technical and financial assistance, resource protection, resource planning, and other actions designed to optimize a sustained flow of benefits and products from these lands.

(a) Forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished all States in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private and State-owned lands by financial aid, coordination, training, development, and procurement of equipment, and a nationwide fire prevention campaign. About 91% of the 690 million acres of non-Federal forest ownership planned for protection is now covered. The assistance provided through this program insures reduced losses of forest and related resources from man-caused and natural wildlife occurrences. Of the total expenditures under this program 84.75% is contributed by States and counties, 0.61% by private owners, and 14.64% by the Federal Government.

(b) Forest tree planting.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to the States for the production, acquisition, and distribution of over half of the Nation's tree planting stock for forest and windbarrier planting on non-Federal lands. More than 50 million acres of non-stocked, poorly stocked, or open lands need to be reforested. Financial and technical assistance to private landowners for tree planting and timber stand improvement practices is also available through the forestry incentives program.

(c) Forest management and processing.—In cooperation with all States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam, technical assistance is given to woodland owners in applying multiple-use management to their forest holdings, and to operators of forest products manufacturing plants in improving their manufacturing and processing techniques to extend supplies of timber, range, water, wildlife habitat, recreation, and esthetic values.

(d) General forestry assistance.—Technical management assistance is provided usually by Federal personnel and also through other arrangements to State, community, private, and other Federal agencies, forest industries, colleges, and landowners. This program also provides forest products utilization assistance to wood-using industries and loggers, technical assistance for State land-use planning and for Wild and Scenic River studies on State and private lands.

1. Forest land management construction.—(a) Recreation facilities.—To provide facilities necessary to safely meet increased recreation demand without sacrificing environmental values and without unduly impinging upon other resource uses of the national forests.

(b) Other facilities.—To provide for construction and acquisition of fire, administrative, and other improvements and related facilities necessary to carry out national forest programs. Includes fire lookouts, offices, dwellings and barracks for employee housing, service and storage buildings, insectories, tree nursery buildings, basic communication systems, and other forest resource management projects. Also includes acquisition of land and interests therein for administrative purposes.

2. Research construction.—To provide for construction, alteration, and improvement of research laboratories and related facilities, and for procurement and installation of necessary initial equipment needed to put the facility into operating condition.

3. Pollution abatement.—To reduce water and air pollution from existing recreation, research, fire, and administrative facilities consistent with State and Federal air and water quality standards as required by Executive Orders 11507 and 11752 and the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 (Public Law 92-500).

4. Land acquisition, Weeks Act—Lands are purchased to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber, with the approval of the National Forest Reservation Commission.

Roads and trails are essential to protection and management of national forests and utilization of their resources.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 provides authority of $140 million each for 1974, 1975, and 1976. The authority is available for obligation a year in advance of the year for which authorized. This budget provides for utilization of $110.6 million unused contract authority.

Of the revenues received annually from national forest activities, 10 percent is available under the permanent appropriation, Roads and trails for States, for construction and maintenance within the States from which such proceeds are derived. Such amounts are merged with this appropriation for obligational purposes.

The Working capital fund was established by the act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the act of October 23, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 579b). It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to national forests, experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law, to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The following services were provided by the Working capital fund in fiscal year 1974:

1. Equipment service.—This service owns, operates, maintains, and replaces approximately 13,500 pieces of common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to administrative units, i.e., national forests, experiment stations and other units, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash which when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment. This service operates 86 repair shops.

2. Aircraft service.—This service operates and maintains Forest Service owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are based at 13 locations and are rented to national forests, experiment stations, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of depreciation, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Aircraft replacement costs are financed from either appropriated funds or the Forest Service Working capital fund, or a combination of both. This service operates three aircraft maintenance shops.

3. Supply service.—This service operates the following common services:

Central supply.—Grass seed is procured, stored and issued from two locations. Issuances and sales are made to national forests, experiment stations, and others at prices which recover cost.

Photo reproduction.—Six photo reproduction laboratories store, reproduce, and supply aerial photographs, aerial maps, and other photographs of national forest lands. The photographic reproductions are sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at cost.

Sign shop.—These include four small shops which manufacture and supply special signs for the national forests for use in regulating traffic and as information to the public and other users of the national forests. The signs are sold to national forests and experiment stations at cost.

Subsistence.—There are 22 facilities which prepare and serve meals at cost to Forest Service work crews working in remote areas where adequate public restaurant facilities are not available.

Cribbing.—This facility is located on the Angeles National Forest, Calif., to manufacture special concrete structural material used in embankments for erosion control purposes along access roads in the national forests. This material is sold to national forests at prices which recover costs.

4. Nurseries.—This service operates 11 forest tree nurseries and cold storage facilities for storage of tree and seed stock and one seed extractory. Tree seed is procured, cleaned, bagged, and stored in refrigerated facilities. Tree and seed stock is sold to national forests, States, and other Federal agencies at cost.

Legislation has been proposed which would substitute a comprehensive bloc grant program for the present set of overlapping child feeding programs. The restructured program would provide more funds for feeding needy children than are presently available under all existing programs. States would have greater flexibility and discretion to tailor their feeding programs to local conditions and preferences. The proposal would provide reimbursement only to needy children. In addition, an amendment to the National School Lunch Act, as amended, Public Law 91-248; and the applicable provisions other than section 3 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended, will be proposed to place a limit of 5% on the food-away-from-home component of the Consumer Price Index for the purpose of calculating reimbursement rates through June 30, 1976 for the child feeding programs.

Within the unit limit of cost fixed by law, appropriations and authorizations made for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year 1976 under this Act shall be available for the purchase, in addition to those specifically provided for, of not to exceed [seven hundred and sixty-five (765)] nine hundred and eleven (911) passenger motor vehicles, of which [five hundred and thirty-five (535)] five hundred and seventy-seven (577) shall be for replacement only, and for the hire of such vehicles: within the unit limit of cost fixed by law, appropriations and authorizations made for the Department of Agriculture under this Act, for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, shall be available for the purchase, in addition to those specifically provided for, of not to exceed two hundred and forty-nine (249) passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, and for the hire of such vehicles.

SEC. 502. Funds available to the Department of Agriculture shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 503. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the payment of any officer or employee of the Department of Agriculture who, as such officer or employee, or on behalf of the Department or any division, commission, or bureau thereof, issues, or causes to be issued, any prediction, oral or written, or forecast, except as to damage threatened or caused by insects and pests with respect to future prices of cotton or the trend of same.

SEC. 504. Except to provide materials required in or incident to research or experimental work where no suitable domestic product is available, no part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be expended in the purchase of twine manufactured from commodities or materials produced outside the United States.

SEC. 505. Not less than $1,500,000 of the appropriations of the Department of Agriculture for research and service work authorized by the Acts of August 14, 1946, July 28, 1954, and September 6, 1958 (7 U.S.C. 427, 1621-1629; 42 U.S.C. 1891-1893), shall be available for contracting in accordance with said Acts: Not less than $375,000 of the appropriations of the Department of Agriculture for research and service work authorized by the Acts of August 14, 1946, July 28, 1954, and September 6, 1958 (7 U.S.C. 427, 1621-1629; 42 U.S.C. 1891-1893), for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, shall be made available for contracting in accordance with said Acts.

SEC. 506. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 507. No part of the funds contained in this Act may be used to make production or other payments to a person, persons, or corporations who harvest or knowingly permit to be harvested for illegal use, marihuana, or other such prohibited drug-producing plants on any part of lands owned or controlled by such persons or corporations.

SEC. 508. Advances of money from any appropriation for the Department of Agriculture may be made by authority of the Secretary of Agriculture to chiefs of field parties.

SEC. 509. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for paying to the Administrator of the General Services Administration in excess of 90 percent of the standard level user charge established pursuant to section 210(j) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, for space and services.

SEC. 510. No part of any funds appropriated under this Act may be used by the Environmental Protection Agency to administer any program to tax, limit, or otherwise regulate parking facilities. (Agriculture-Environmental and Consumer Protection Appropriation Act, 1975.)

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

1. Executive direction of the Department.—This activity provides for the formulation of Government policy on matters affecting programs and functions assigned to the Department and executive direction of the Department.

2. Departmental staff services.—Staff assistance and supervision in the general management and administration of the Department are provided in audit, budget and program analysis, financial systems, emergency readiness, legal, organization and management, motor vehicles, personnel, policy development, environment, program planning and evaluation, procurement, property, public affairs, publications, records, safety, security, and space matters. The domestic business policy analysis staff was transferred from the Domestic and International Business Administration to the Office of the Secretary in 1975.

The objective of the domestic business policy analysis staff is to improve the capability of the Department to provide analysis and advice regarding a variety of issues which impact domestic business conditions, including proposed legislation, regulatory actions and Federal programs.

The domestic business policy analysis staff was transferred to the Office of the Secretary to permit analysis to be performed from a broader perspective. Location in the Office of the Secretary will also increase the staff's ability to work with other Departments and agencies outside of the Department of Commerce.

3. Administrative services.—This activity provides general administrative services to the offices financed by the appropriation.

The amount needed for the transition period is $3,126 thousand.

The Department of Commerce special foreign currency program supplements the activities of the Domestic and International Business Administration, the National Bureau of Standards, and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

1. Domestic and International Business Administration.—Excess foreign currencies are used to support U.S. export expansion programs in developing countries and to assist the U.S. economy by stimulating and expanding our foreign commerce through the use of trade and industrial exhibits, trade development centers, trade missions, and special promotional techniques.

2. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.—International cooperation in environmental research and allied sciences supplements domestic research and development.

3. National Bureau of Standards.—In-house resources are augmented by utilizing scientific and technological capabilities of foreign countries.

Participation in U.S. expositions provides funding for planning, construction, and operation of Federal pavilions at international expositions held in the United States.

1. Interama.—Funds were provided in 1967 for the operation of a Federal exhibit at the Inter-American cultural and trade center (Interama) in Dade County, Fla. Since 1967 Dade County has been unable to obtain necessary financing for construction of the Interama facility. Federal participation in the project is therefore now proposed for termination.

2. HemisFair.—The United States participated in the international exposition, HemisFair, held in San Antonio, Tex., April 6 to October 6, 1968, to commemorate the 250th anniversary of the founding of San Antonio. Outlays in 1975 should close out the operation.

3. 1974 International Exposition on the Environment.—Participation funds were provided in 1973 for a Federal pavilion at the special category international exposition on the environment held in Spokane, Wash., from May 4 to November 4, 1974, which emphasized man's responsibility to the world in which he lives.

4. 1974 Arctic Winter Games.—Funds from this activity assisted the financing of the Arctic Winter Games held in Anchorage, Alaska, March 3–10, 1974. The games were held to promote amateur competition among residents of the far north (above the 60th parallel), and thereby open the door to better cultural, economic and political relations.

5. Demolition of New York World's Fair Pavilion.—Funds will cover the cost of demolition and removal of the pavilion at the New York World's Fair site and the restoration of the site to grassland.

The activities of this appropriation provide for (1) the collection, compilation, and publication of a broad range of current statistics dealing with economic, demographic, and social data, and (2) the preparation, interpretation, and projection of measures of aggregate economic activity. During the transition period July 1 to September 30, 1976, the amount required for this appropriation is $14,211 thousand.

In planning program changes for 1976, major emphasis was given to: constructive and systematic response to data needs identified with current and anticipated national problems; maintaining and improving the quality of statistical and analytical programs; and filling gaps in the on-going data systems which describe the Nation's economy and society.

1. Current economic statistics programs.—(a) Business statistics.—Monthly surveys provide retail sales data by kind of business and major geographic areas. In addition, for major retail business categories, national data are published on weekly sales, end-of-month inventories, and accounts receivable. Annual estimates are made for retail purchases, inventories, and sales-inventory ratios. Surveys also provide (1) monthly national estimates of receipts of selected service industries, and (2) sales and inventories of merchant wholesalers. Estimates are made quarterly of green coffee roastings and inventories and periodically on canned food stocks.

The 1976 estimate provides for statistical improvement by revising the current retail service and wholesale trade survey panels of participating firms to reflect the latest kind-of-business, geographic area, and firm size definitions prescribed for use by all Federal Government organizations. Funds are also included to begin an annual benchmark survey of wholesale inventories.

(b) Construction statistics.—Monthly reports are published for housing starts, residential and nonresidential construction authorized by building permits, and the value of new construction put in place. Quarterly reports are provided on expenditures for residential alterations and repairs, and quarterly price indexes are compiled for new single-family houses sold. An annual report is published on permits issued for demolition of residential structures.

(c) Manufacturing statistics.—Statistics are provided monthly on manufacturers' shipments, inventories, and orders for total manufacturing for about 38 industry categories, and quarterly on sales and inventory expectations. An annual survey of manufactures produces statistics on the important measures of factory operations such as employment, value added, and investment. Monthly, quarterly, and annual commodity surveys are conducted of production, shipments, orders, and materials consumed for important industries and products.

In 1976, a series of rotating surveys will be initiated to provide benchmark statistics for selected aspects of industry and business which will improve the quality of national income and product data and measure more frequently the use of certain natural resources.

(d) General economic statistics.—This subactivity incorporates statistics formerly presented in other portions of the current economic statistics and the industrial directory activities. The industrial directory will list all U.S. business firms and their establishments, and will provide Federal statistical programs with a common frame for obtaining and interpreting economic data. In 1975, the developmental work will be completed and the industrial directory system will be implemented. An annual county business pattern report provides data on nonfarm employees and payrolls by detailed kind of business and by county. Data are provided on industrial mergers, acquisitions and disposals; and industry and commodity classification and coding programs are developed, maintained, revised, and evaluated.

(e) Foreign trade statistics.—Monthly, cumulative-to-date, and annual reports are published on the quantity, shipping weight, dollar value of imports and exports, by mode of transportation, detailed commodity category, customs district, and country of origin or destination.

In 1976, increases are requested to (1) cover the cost of obtaining the equivalent of an arms-length transaction value of merchandise acquired in a transaction between related parties in accordance with amended foreign trade statistical regulations; and (2) accommodate the workload increase that has resulted from an increased volume of foreign trade.

(f) State and local governments statistics.—Reports are published annually regarding the revenue, expenditures, indebtedness and debt transactions, financial assets, employment, and payrolls of State and local governments. Quarterly information on the national level is furnished regarding State and local tax revenue by type of tax and governmental level. Technical consultation and assistance are provided to State and local government officials, and catalogs are published detailing the statistical publications and data available which would be of use to State and local government officials. Statistics regarding the construction expenditures of State and local governments are provided monthly.

(g) Agriculture statistics.—Information on cotton gin- nings and production, as required by statute, is compiled and published. Statistical services are provided regarding the information from the census of agriculture.

2. Current economic analysis programs.—(a) National income and product data.—Calculations are made of the gross national product, national income, personal income, and their components, providing an overall view of the state of the economy.

The 1976 request provides for (1) extending and maintaining the preparation of annual estimates of the distribution of personal income among the families and individuals of the Nation within the framework of the GNP; and (2) expanding the input-output tables to provide additional information on the production and consumption of each type of energy and other potentially scarce basic materials or resources.

(b) Analysis of business trends.—The business situation is assessed monthly and the results of continuing analyses of the major factors underlying cyclical developments and long-range business trends are published regularly. Included are surveys that collect information on business investment plans, work on an econometric model which forecasts the future movement of the gross national product, its components, and other key elements in the national accounts, and a system of leading, lagging, and coincident indicators of business conditions.

(c) Balance of payments data.—Balance of payments accounts depict in detail all economic transactions with foreign nations. The 1976 increase will provide funds to complete the benchmark survey of foreign direct investment in the United States covering the calendar year 1974, consisting of detailed balance of payments and other financial and operating data for U.S. enterprises in which there exists significant foreign ownership.

3. Current demographic statistics programs.—(a) Population statistics.—This activity provides annual estimates of the population of the United States, each of the States, counties, SMSA's, congressional districts, and other governmental units. It also includes current estimates of the number of households, the farm population, school enrollment and educational levels, personal income, population mobility, size of families, voting registration and other characteristics of the population.

In 1976, the budget provides for (1) improved interviewer training, additional interviewers, and an intensified followup program, for the Current Population Survey (CPS); (2) the institution of a regular cycle of surveys of key demographic, social and economic characteristics of the population; and (3) the collection of more accurate, relevant, and timely money and nonmoney income data, the devising of better means to evaluate income statistics currently compiled in the CPS and other sample surveys, and the expansion and improvement of analytical publications using CPS and other income data.

A reduction in requirements in 1976 will result from the discontinuance of the annual collection and publication of data on consumer purchases and ownership of large durable items.

(b) Housing statistics.—National and regional quarterly estimates are provided for housing vacancy rates. The program also provides vacancy rates by broad classes of rental and homeowner portions of the housing market and produces information on selected characteristics of the occupied housing inventory. In addition, the program develops current annual estimates of the housing inventory.

4. Environmental statistics.—This program provides for the development of comprehensive estimates of capital expenditures and operating costs for pollution abatement by each sector of the economy.

6. Other programs and publications.—(a) Statistical abstract and supplements.—The Statistical Abstract, issued annually, summarizes Government and private statistics on the industrial, social, political, and economic activities of the United States.

(b) General research.—Research is conducted on survey methods and techniques, including sample survey methods and theory, questionnaire design, response errors, equipment design and utilization, computer editing and administrative control, operations, and analytical techniques including techniques of geographic analysis for the purpose of increasing accuracy, output, and usefulness of statistical data per unit of cost.

Periodic censuses and programs.....	17,026	25,323	27,073

This appropriation provides for comprehensive and detailed information in several major economic and demographic areas once or twice each decade. It also funds geographic support activities required by the various censuses, the acquisition of large-scale data processing equipment and other major periodic activities which may be authorized. During the transition period July 1 to September 30, 1976, the amount required for this appropriation is $8,565 thousand.

The budget for 1976 will provide for: initiation of work on the 1977 economic censuses; intensified preparation for the 1977 census of governments; completion of data collection, and publication issuance for the 1974 census of agriculture; continuation of the intercensal demographic estimates program; continuation of planning, developing and testing for the 1980 census of population and housing; initiation of planning for the proposed 1978 census of agriculture, irrigation and drainage; expansion of the periodic programs geographic support; and the purchase and rental of electronic data processing equipment.

1. Economic statistics programs.—(b) 1977 economic censuses.—The economic censuses supply statistics, as provided for in 13 U.S.C. 131, on the volume of production and trade, and the Nation's business and industrial enterprises. Economic censuses are taken every 5th year covering years ending in 2 and 7.

This is the initial appropriation request and will cover the cost of the usual preparatory work of: (1) developing specifications and basic operating plans for the collection, processing and publication of economic statistics; (2) reviewing the content of the report forms; and (3) developing and updating reference files.

(d) 1977 census of governments programs.—A census of governments is required "for the year 1957 and every fifth year thereafter" by 13 U.S.C. 161. The law specifies that "each such census shall include, but shall not be limited to data on tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and employees of States, counties, cities, and other governmental units."

In 1976, emphasis will be placed on designing questionnaires, examining standards and technical operating procedures, designing a data processing system, programing specifications, and plans for publication. The governmental organization phase of the census will be initiated and an inventory of governmental units program for the identification, count, and classification of all local government units as of late 1976 will be provided.

(e) 1974 census of agriculture.—A census of agriculture is required to be taken every 5th year covering years ending in 4 and 9 by 13 U.S.C. 142. The census provides measures concerning the agricultural economy of each State and county. In 1976, work will be performed in the following areas: (1) completion of data collection activities; (2) completion of processing of data forms; (3) completion and review of the major portion of the tabulations; (4) publication of most of the county agricultural reports and some State reports; and (5) evaluation of the coverage of the census.

(f) 1978 census of agriculture.—Legislation is proposed to amend section 142 of title 13, United States Code to reschedule the reference year of the census of agriculture from 1979 to 1978, and thereafter to years ending in 2 and

7, to coincide with the economic censuses. The proposed legislation would also change the timing of the censuses of irrigation and drainage so that they would be taken in conformity with the census of agriculture for 1978 and 1987 and at 10-year intervals thereafter.

The 1976 request will establish a task force for planning and initial pretesting of forms, content and procedures.

2. Demographic statistics programs.—(b) Intercensal demographic estimates.—This program provides for the development and preparation of updated population and per capita income estimates as required by the Department of the Treasury for the equitable allocation of funds under the General Revenue Sharing Act. Administrative records, including birth and death data as well as income and place of residence information from Internal Revenue Service files, are utilized to generate the estimates for approximately 38,500 general purpose governmental units. In addition to their use for revenue sharing, these estimates will serve the same general purpose needs as other population data which enter into other Federal and State fund allocations, facilities and services planning, and legislative decisions.

(c) 1980 decennial census.—The decennial census, of population and housing which is required by title 13, U.S.C. 141, involves the enumeration of the total population of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, Canal Zone, and other areas of U.S. sovereignty or jurisdiction. The 1976 budget provides for: (1) overall planning, program direction and continuing review of program objectives, time schedule, and resource requirements; (2) pretesting of a number of program elements; (3) initiating a number of activities in preparation for the collection operation; (4) working with local officials to determine such geographic activities as unincorporated places, tracted areas, and census county divisions where necessary; (5) developing decentralized data processing plans; and (6) planning and developing the evaluation program for the 1980 decennial census.

3. Periodic programs geographic support.—This program provides for the maintenance of a continuing program to fulfill the geographic requirements of the various periodic censuses and large scale surveys. The boundary and coding guide system has been extended to the present boundaries of each standard metropolitan statistical area (SMSA) now in the system and the inclusion of the 37 new SMSA's established subsequent to the 1970 census. In 1976, the estimates provide for updating the geographic reference files for communities of 2,500 to 10,000 in population in preparation for various programs including the 1977 economic censuses.

4. Data processing equipment.—The 1976 request provides for continued leasing of selected electronic data processing equipment to update existing computer systems.

Capital outlay.—Large scale data processing equipment.—The 1976 request provides for the purchase of additional electronic equipment needed to modernize the data processing installation of the Bureau of the Census.

Other capital outlay.—This provides for the acquisition of computer tape, office furniture and machines, and other miscellaneous equipment necessary to conduct periodic censuses and surveys.

As an extension of its primary mission, the Social and Economic Statistics Administration provides statistical data and analyses to other Federal agencies as well as utilizing its technical capabilities to provide various statistical, analytical, training, and data processing services. Such work or services are provided to the extent that there is no interference with the conduct of the regular work financed from funds appropriated to SESA and that they are consistent with SESA's public duties and obligations.

The major changes from 1975 to 1976 are due to decreases expected in several projects being conducted for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare including the supplemental income, health examination, and disability surveys. In addition, decreases are estimated for the survey of socioeconomic data on State and local government criminal justice employees conducted for the Department of Justice, and the consumer expenditure survey, sponsored by the Department of Labor. An increase is also expected from the Department of Labor in the expansion of the Current Population Survey.

During the transition period, work will be continued on the recurring projects in this account.

The Social and Economic Statistics Administration performs special statistical work and data analyses, at cost, when the services are consistent with SESA's duties, have been determined to be in the public interest, and the statistics furnished will not identify individuals or particular organizations. SESA is authorized to perform these services under 13 U.S.C. 8 and 15 U.S.C. 1525.

On a continuing basis, SESA furnishes age and citizenship data to individuals for their use in qualifying for social security, old age benefits, retirement, passport, court litigation, insurance settlements, etc. Special censuses are conducted for States, counties, cities, towns, or other political divisions requiring an up-to-date count of their population. SESA also periodically performs statistical work and data analyses for State and local governments, universities, trade associations, and individuals upon request.

The programs of the Economic Development Administration are designed to reduce the incidence of substantial and persistent unemployment in economically distressed areas throughout the Nation. They also improve the ability of State and local officials to resolve problems of economic adjustment and development by assisting in planning, coordination and implementation activities at all levels of government. Assistance will also be provided to help firms and communities adversely affected by imports. The agency's ability to meet its objectives has been strengthened by recent revisions of its authorizing legislation which give State and local officials broad discretion in designing economic adjustment programs tailored to their particular needs. In addition to the amounts required for 1976, $72,550 thousand is required for the transition period.

EDA strives to meet these objectives through the use of a broad range of program tools including the following:

1. Public works and business development.—

a. Public works grants.—Provide funds for the construction or expansion of public works projects which improve a community's capacity for economic growth through the development of a structure conducive to the location of industrial and commercial enterprises. Public works projects are funded through direct grants, supplementary grants, and bonus grants, or a combination of these tools.

b. Public works loans.—Are made in association with public works grants to help communities who are not able to obtain their share of the required project funding from other sources.

c. Business loans and guarantees.—Finance business development projects including long-term, low-interest loans for fixed assets and under certain circumstances, guarantees of private loans for working capital to businesses willing to establish or expand operations in the Nation's economically distressed areas. In addition to these traditional tools, which have been available since the inception of EDA, the extension legislation authorizes, beginning in 1975, direct working capital loans, a broader authority for working capital guarantees, guarantees of fixed asset loans made by private institutions and guarantees of lease payments for buildings and equipment.

2. Planning, technical assistance, and research.—

(a) Planning assistance.—Encourages and supports local development organizations by providing professional planning help and related services. Under the authority of section 301, EDA has been making grants which cover the administrative costs of employing a professional full-time staff to work for these organizations in carrying out their planning and development programs. The funds requested will also enable EDA to fund the section 302 planning grants which were initiated in 1975. These include economic development planning grants to States and to other political subdivisions, including cities, and assistance to help Districts defray the added expenses of carrying out their OMB Circular A-95 responsibilities, if the District has been designated to conduct such review.

(b) Technical assistance.—Will continue to support those projects which, (1) provide appropriate, specific responses to accomplish particular economic development actions such as management and operational technical assistance to help assure the success of grant and loan projects, and (2) support institutional and demonstration projects that directly benefit a number of local and regional economic development groups and organizations. Feasibility studies and other site-related projects will also be funded.

(c) Development research.—Assists in the development of improved agency and other public programs and policies of regional development, and in the training of personnel needed to conduct such programs.

3. Regional assistance.—Includes the Title V Regional Commission programs which were financed from the Development facilities and Planning, technical assistance and research appropriations prior to 1971.

4. Grants to States.—Is a program initiated in 1975 and authorized by section 304 of the act to enable States to supplement grants or to make new grants or loans consistent with the authority of titles I, II, and IV of the act. Funds approved under this new program are distributed among the States based on the percentage of title I funds received by each State since the beginning of EDA. This new program is carried out in consonance with the plans developed under section 302 of the act.

5. Economic adjustment assistance.—Is a program initiated in 1975 to provide adjustment and recovery assistance to help multi-State, State and local areas resolve problems related to actual or threatened long term unemployment or low income. Assistance may be provided to facilitate community adjustments to changes such as natural disasters or the closing of a major employer in the area. Assistance may also be available under this program for communities adversely impacted by international trade. Grants are made to eligible recipients, who are then empowered to utilize funds directly or to redistribute them. Funds can be used directly for public facilities, public services, business development, planning, research or technical assistance or redistributed through grants, loans or loan guarantees.

The Regional Action Planning Commissions are authorized by title V of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, as amended, to assist in the solution of problems of economic dislocation or lag on a multistate regional basis rather than a locality by locality basis. Seven regional commissions, Coastal Plains, Four Corners, New England, Old West, Ozarks, Pacific Northwest, and Upper Great Lakes, encompass all or part of 29 States. Each commission is composed of the Governors of member States of the region and a Federal cochairman appointed by the President and is assisted by a commission staff which is supported by the Federal Government and the member States. The program is a Federal-State partnership which jointly plans and executes development programs to help overcome economic lag and regional problems such as energy, transportation, and resource use.

The budget authority for 1974-76 is (in thousands of dollars):

Region:	1974	1975	1976
Coastal Plains.....	7,320	5,857	5,938
Four Corners.....	7,318	5,855	5,938

Regional coordination.....	451	439	533
Total.....	42,000	38,517	42,081

In addition to the amounts required for 1976, $10,520 thousand is required for the transition period.

1. Development programs.—During their initial years, the commissions concentrated on the development of broad comprehensive economic development plans and programming. This focus was later expanded to include technical assistance and supplemental grants-in-aid. The 1976 development funds will continue the planning process, technical assistance and supplemental grant programs and support a modest research program carried on by the Department of Commerce. The request for 1976 reflects the maturing of the two newest commissions, formed in 1973, Old West and Pacific Northwest, which will be carrying out programs comparable to those of the original five commissions.

2. Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for staff costs of the commissions, the Federal cochairmen, and the Special Assistant to the Secretary for Regional Economic Coordination. The administrative expenses of all the Commissions are financed 50% by the Federal Government and 50% by the respective member States.

The activities of the Domestic and International Business Administration of the Department of Commerce seek to strengthen the economy of the United States by promoting the growth and competitive position of U.S. industry and products in domestic and international markets in a manner consistent with national security and economic policy. Continued operation of these programs during the 3-month transition period will require additional resources of $14,080 thousand.

1. International economic policy and research.—Provides international economic planning research services, basic statistical data analyses, and studies and policy recommendations regarding international trade, finance, and investment, for use by planning and policy officials of both Government and industry. In the area of trade and economic policy development, direct support to the upcoming worldwide multilateral trade negotiations is provided. Increased funds are requested to provide support of the industry consultations program for U.S. negotiations in the current multilateral trade negotiations under the GATT, and to carry out responsibilities under the Foreign Investment Study Act of 1974.

2. Domestic business and industry affairs.—Provides continuing reports, analyses, studies, and information on the basic economic position of the major U.S. manufacturing and service industries, provides a mechanism for business input on domestic economic issues and problems, recommends and promotes policies to improve domestic business practices, and analyzes pollution control factors that affect business and industry.

DOMESTIC AND INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION—CON.

3. Resources and import programs.—Provides the principal contact point within the Department on problems involving those domestic industries experiencing difficulties from import competition, and on problems in the international trade of certain primary commodities; administers certain statutory functions relating to imports, basic commodities, and foreign trade zones, and assists in energy policy development by providing and coordinating Commerce input for energy programs, including energy conservation.

4. International trade development.—Encourages and assists U.S. businesses to export by conducting market research and trade promotion events overseas, such as trade fairs, trade center shows, trade missions, seminars, and department store promotions of U.S. consumer goods in both developed and emergent markets; by assisting U.S. companies to compete successfully for major foreign capital projects and product purchases; and by providing foreign marketing information and “early warnings” of overseas sales leads.

This program will be focused primarily on assisting potential new exporters. The services will continue to be available to established exporters that wish to purchase the services at fees which will recover the costs of providing the services.

5. East-West trade.—Implements the national program to expand U.S. trade with the centrally planned markets of the U.S.S.R., Eastern Europe, and the Peoples’ Republic of China, and to maintain commercial and economic relationships with these countries. Actual program activity remains constant from 1975 to 1976.

6. Export Administration.—Administers the Export Administration Act of 1969, as amended, to assure that the national security is not compromised by items exported, that foreign policy objectives are furthered, and that the domestic economy is protected from the excessive drain of scarce materials and commodities.

7. Field operations.—Serves as the Department’s principal medium of contact with the local business communities for planning, arranging, and participating in the delivery of the Department’s business-related programs, delivers information and services to businesses and “multiplier” agencies, including programs to expand exports and to encourage additional U.S. firms to participate in exporting. In addition, the activity publishes the Commerce Business Daily in accordance with Public Law 87–305.

8. Industrial defense mobilization.—Supports the Defense Production Act of 1950, to assure timely delivery of defense requirements for materials, construction, and research and development; an adequate supply of strategic and critical materials; and maximum readiness of the industrial resources of the United States to meet any future national emergency.

9. Administration.—Provides necessary program support services, such as budgeting, accounting, personnel, management analysis, general office services, and public affairs.

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) was established under Executive Order 11458 of March 5, 1969, and began operating that year. On October 13, 1971, Executive Order 11625 was issued which prescribed additional arrangements for developing and coordinating a national program for minority business enterprise. The substantive provisions of Executive Order 11458 of March 5, 1969, are carried over and expanded in Executive Order 11625.

In its leadership role of coordinating the minority business enterprise program, the Office of Minority Business Enterprise seeks to create improved national conditions within which the minority people of the United States will have an equal opportunity to participate in the American business system. In 1976, increased emphasis will be placed on assisting existing minority businesses to operate successfully.

1. Community investment.—OMBE provides financial support to several kinds of community-based business development organizations which help minority entrepreneurs operate their businesses successfully, create new businesses and expand existing ones. Approximately 185 business development organizations will be operating in 1976.

2. Private investment.—OMBE funds private organizations to assist minority firms by providing specialized services and by encouraging voluntary assistance for these firms. This assistance includes greater access to capital markets, business opportunities, management skills, and technical assistance. Approximately 75 of these intermediate organizations will be in operation in 1976.

3. Government investment.—Through this activity OMBE assists State and local governments to set up programs similar to the national OMBE program to utilize these governments' resources in areas that would not otherwise be served. In 1976, a total of 15 State OMBE's and 7 city OMBE's will be in operation to foster programs and activities designed to increase minority participation in the economic mainstream.

4. Business management development.—Funds for this activity were reduced substantially in 1975 and will be eliminated completely in 1976. This action is being taken in the belief that minority business education will be coordinated more effectively by HEW's Office of Education which provides planning, direction, and funding through the Interagency Task Force for Education and Training. Although OMBE will be recognized as a participant in the minority business education effort, its role will be primarily an advisory one.

5. Experiment and demonstration.—In this activity, research, experiment, and demonstration projects are undertaken to develop data required by OMBE, to identify programmatic gaps in the minority enterprise effort, and to develop and test new ways of filling these gaps and generally improving the minority business program.

6. Program development and management.—The entire management, administration, and direction of the minority business enterprise program is financed under this activity. This includes the headquarters staff and six regional offices.

The amount needed for the transition period is $13,153 thousand.

1. Promotion of travel to the United States.—Direct promotion programs are being concentrated on the six foreign countries with the greatest potential for producing tourism revenue for the United States. Emphasis will be on developing economical package tours to make the United States more competitive as a destination, and to support U.S.-bound tours with consumer advertising, product information, and travel trade training programs. The objective for 1976 is to increase earnings from tourism by $200 million over levels that would result from normal growth in foreign travel.

2. Tourist services and facilities.—Emphasis is on developing reception and service facilities for the substantial influx of foreign visitors expected during the Bicentennial era. The objective for 1976 is to continue receptionist programs at major airports.

3. Industry and State programs.—U.S. industry, States, and cities will be encouraged to participate in promoting travel to the United States through a program designed to provide essential market information and basic data, and through a matching grant program to assist States and cities with up to half the cost of locally developed programs to encourage foreign tourists to visit the United States. USTS will also work with industry to establish incentive travel programs to the United States from American-owned businesses abroad, to increase foreign attendance at U.S. trade shows, and to convince international associations to select the United States as their convention sites.

4. Executive direction.—This activity provides management direction and centralized overhead support to USTS operating programs.

This appropriation provides for the research, development, support of operating programs, and acquisition of facilities needed to fulfill the basic responsibilities of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. An additional amount of $137,345 thousand is required for the transition period from July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976.

1. Mapping, charting, and surveying services.—This activity provides for the systematic collection, processing, and analyses of data required for charting the Nation's coastal and Great Lakes regions; production of aeronautical charts for safe and efficient commercial and general aviation use of the national airspace system; and basic geodetic surveys. The 1976 budget will provide for implementation of an automated aeronautical chart production system; and direction and support to coastal States in conducting marine boundary surveys.

2. Ship support services.—This activity provides for operation and logistical support of the NOAA ships and management of the marine centers.

3. Ocean fisheries and living marine resources.—This activity provides for continued availability of safe fishery products to the consumer, viable commercial and marine sports fishing industries, and conservation of endangered species, by protecting, developing, and managing our living marine resources, including the seal herd of the Pribilof Islands. The increases for 1976 will provide for the expansion of marine resource assessment, monitoring, and prediction programs; a stronger program for the conservation of endangered species of marine life and their ecosystems; development of an environmental impact statement related to the Law of the Sea Conference decisions and recommendations; expansion of environmental impact analyses related to protecting marine habitat against detrimental man-made effects; and expansion of research and enforcement related to marine mammal conservation.

4. Marine ecosystems analysis and ocean dumping.—This activity provides critical environmental information for the effective management of the marine environment and its resources. The 1976 increase will continue the New York Bight project and provide for the preparation of a deep ocean mining environmental impact analysis.

5. Marine technology.—This activity provides for development, testing, evaluation, and calibration of oceanographic instruments for use by Federal agencies, State and local governments, and private industry.

6. Sea grant.—The sea grant program carries out the provisions of the National Sea Grant College and Program Act of 1966 by making matching fund grants to public and private universities, institutes, and industries to seek solutions to problems related to management and use of marine resources, and transfer of new technology to marine users.

7. Basic environmental services.—This activity provides the fundamental networks of observations, communications systems, analyses and predictions, and maintenance that are essential for all forecasts and warnings. Increases in 1976 will provide for expanded upper air observations, expanded computer capability for weather forecasting, and continued availability of weather radar information from Federal Aviation Administration radars to the Western United States.

8. Environmental satellite services.—This activity provides for the operation of a national environmental satellite system using satellites in polar orbits for observations of global cloud patterns and vertical profiles of temperature and moisture, and satellites in geosynchronous orbits to provide near-continuous observations of North and South America and surrounding oceans. Increases for 1976 will provide for continuation of the third generation polar orbiting spacecraft; and data collection and analysis support to NASA's SEASAT-A Satellite program for ocean monitoring.

9. Public forecast and warning services.—This activity provides weather services to the general public; hurricane and tornado warnings, and river and flood forecasts and warnings to all segments of the population, industry, and Government; weather and sea predictions for marine interests; and research to improve these services. The increases for 1976 will provide for continued implementation of system to automate NOAA's weather offices; expansion of the NOAA Weather Wire Service; and expansion of the VHF-FM weather radio broadcast service.

10. Specialized environmental services.—This activity provides environmental services for the support of aviation operations nationwide and agricultural operations in selected areas; weather services to help protect the Nation's forests and range lands from fires, and to support clean air operations by Government and industry; and information on the sun's activities and conditions in nearspace for use by the Nation's space program, by telecommunications agencies and industries, and by electric power distributors.

11. Environmental data and information services.—This activity provides the public, industry, and all levels of government with basic data on the atmosphere, oceans, solid earth, the sun, and nearspace. A series of standard products meets many user needs and special analyses are prepared in response to requirements such as determining locations for powerplants and superports, stresses on offshore drilling rigs, and energy allocation decisions. The 1976 increase will provide for maintaining a marine environmental data bank.

12. Global monitoring of climatic change.—This activity represents the United States part of a U.N.-sponsored worldwide program to monitor carefully the long-term changes taking place in the earth's atmosphere, assess the effects of these changes on weather and climate and predict the changes that will occur in global weather and climate.

13. Weather modification.—This research activity examines the feasibility of modifying hurricanes and other severe storms to reduce their intensity. In addition, this activity supports research into means of increasing rainfall from tropical cumulus clouds and provides the instrumented aircraft that support all NOAA research programs.

14. International projects.—This activity includes two major programs involving international participation, the Global Atmospheric Research Program (GARP) and the International Field Year for the Great Lakes (IFYGL). GARP is a joint program of the World Meteorological Organization and the International Council of Scientific Union. Its goals are to improve the time range and accuracy of weather forecasts for periods of one day to several weeks and to develop a better understanding of the physical basis for climate. The two major active experiments in GARP are the GARP Atlantic tropical experiment, in which 13 nations concluded a highly successful observational phase in the summer of 1974 as a basis for the present analysis phase, and the first GARP global experiment, whose observing period is planned for 1978/79. IFYGL is a joint U.S.-Canadian project now engaged in analysis of Field Year data which it has already measured on hydrological, physical, chemical, and biological processes in Lake Ontario and its drainage basin. IFYGL will provide information necessary for sound regional and local water resource management decisions relating to navigation, hydropower, public water supply, waste disposal, recreation, fish productivity, highway transportation, and the operation of port facilities in and around the Great Lakes.

15. Retired pay, commissioned officers.—This activity provides for the retirement pay of NOAA commissioned officers and payment to survivors of retired officers under the Retired Servicemen's Family Protection Plan and the Survivors Benefit Plan.

16. Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides for overall technical leadership and administrative management for all elements and programs of NOAA.

Amounts available for appropriation (Pribilof Islands Fund).—The fund is derived from the receipts of the sales of fur seal skins and other wildlife products of the Pribilof Islands. The receipts are made available for appropriation to the Administration of the Pribilof Islands account and for payment to Alaska as required by law (16 U.S.C. 1154, 1187). Part of the proceeds from sales of fur seal skins and other wildlife products of the Pribilof Islands is used for (a) management of the Alaska fur seal herd; (b) furnishing schooling and other community services to the natives of the islands; (c) construction and maintenance of buildings and roads; and (d) maintenance and operation of a supply vessel.

In 1976, the administration of Pribilof Islands appropriation account is proposed to be merged with the Operations, research, and facilities appropriation.

This appropriation provides for administration, management, beneficial use, protection, and development of the land and water resources of the Nation's coastal zone, by providing for developmental and administration grants to States for the planning and management of their coastal areas consistent with the Coastal Zone Management Act.

During the transition period covering July 1, 1976 through September 30, 1976, $4,501 thousand is required.

1. Program development grants.—These grants, made under section 305 of the act, are to State and territorial governments to permit correction of existing inadequate arrangements for planning and regulating land and water uses in the coastal zone through the development of comprehensive coastal zone management programs. For 1974, the first fiscal year for which funds were appropriated, a total of $7,200 thousand was made available for the purpose of making program development grants. Twenty-eight grants ranging in value from about $80 thousand to $700 thousand were awarded in 1974. An additional $1,800 thousand will be used in 1975 to provide program development grants to the six coastal States and territories which did not participate in 1974 and to provide additional funding to the original group of grantees.

2. Program administration grants.—These grants, made under section 306 of the act, are to State and territorial governments to conduct ongoing activities related to carrying out State responsibilities, such as land and water use regulation, monitoring, and enforcement, which are contained in the approved management program. Initial funding for program administration grants in the amount of $2,100 thousand is provided in 1975. It is expected that four requests for entire States, and one or more requests for segments of States, will be submitted to the Secretary of Commerce for approval during 1975. Following the Secretary's approval, these States will be eligible for grants to administer their programs. An additional $3 million is requested in 1976 to provide grants for seven more total State programs and five State segments.

3. Estuarine sanctuaries.—These grants, made under section 312 of the act, are to State and territorial governments to enable them to acquire, develop, and operate estuarine sanctuaries for the purpose of creating natural field laboratories in which to gather data and make studies of the processes occurring within coastal zone estuaries. $4,000 thousand was made available in 1974 for the purpose of making estuarine sanctuary grants. One grant was awarded in 1974 to the State of Oregon. It is anticipated that further grants will be awarded in 1975.

4. Program management.—Provides the necessary assistance to State and territorial governments to develop and implement coastal zone management programs; coordinate

Federal activities that impact coastal zone management programs; and assures full coordination with NOAA Sea Grant, MESA, and Marine Fisheries programs.

An amount equal to 30% of the gross receipts from customs duties on imported fishery products is appropriated for marine resources assessment, monitoring, and prediction and management and use of fishery resources. These funds supplement moneys appropriated to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration for the same purposes under the appropriation Operations, research, and facilities. Estimated receipts are anticipated to decline in 1976. The funds are planned to be spent for promoting, developing, and increasing markets of domestically produced fishery products by conducting a fishery educational service, and technological, biological, and related research programs, including appropriate executive and administrative support costs.

During the transition period covering July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, receipts are estimated to be $1,857 thousand.

This program provides for loans to vessel operators who, because of the high risk associated with some commercial fishing, could not obtain commercial loans at reasonable rates for financing or refinancing the cost of purchasing or constructing, equipping, maintaining, repairing, or operating new or used commercial fishing vessels or gear. A moratorium on applications for this program was declared in February 1973, due to the need to establish new regulations that would restrict loans in over-harvested fisheries and to increase the fund balance through repayments.

The Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956, as amended (16 U.S.C. 742c) authorized $20 million to establish this program; however, only $13 million of this amount has been appropriated to date. Funds for new loans are derived from repayment of principal and interest payments on outstanding loans.

The Offshore Shrimp Fisheries Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-242) was signed by the President on January 2, 1974 following an exchange of diplomatic notes between the Governments of Brazil and the United States on May 9, 1972. Under the act, the United States has provided $600 thousand to compensate the Republic of Brazil for enforcement and surveillance services for 1972, 1973, and 1974. Continuing payments of $200 thousand a year are funded through receipts collected from the issuance of fishing permits to U.S. vessels.

This fund provides for payment to vessel owners and crews to compensate for certain financial losses sustained as a result of foreign seizures of American fishing vessels found within 200 miles of their coasts. Seizures in previous years have ranged from 27 in 1971 to 46 in 1973, but only one seizure occurred in 1974. Funds in this account are derived from Federal appropriations and fees from vessel owners (22 U.S.C. 1977).

During the transition period from July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, obligations are estimated to be $15 thousand.

This revolving fund represents that portion of the Corps of Engineers civil revolving fund assets applicable to the U.S. Lake Survey functions which were transferred to NOAA from the Department of the Army on October 3, 1970, pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 4 of 1970. The total assets of the fund were transferred to the Salaries and expenses appropriation of NOAA in 1973. The obligations shown represent prior year unobligated balances which were transferred to the Salaries and expenses account.

Note.—Includes $4,700 thousand in 1975 and $5,800 thousand in 1976 for activities previously financed from:

	1974	1975
Scientific and technical research and services, Department of Commerce.....	$4,100	$1,100
Salaries and expenses, National Science Foundation.....	1,700

This appropriation provides for the Department's programs in support of the basic responsibilities assigned to it by the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974. A total of $2,750 thousand is required for the interim period of July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, in order to maintain these activities through the transition to 1977.

1. Education and training.—(a) National Academy for Fire Prevention and Control.—This subactivity will provide training and educational programs which will bolster existing State and local programs. Through this subactivity, the Administration will provide curriculum assistance and materials, develop new courses as needed, and coordinate activities. In 1975, a survey of existing programs will be started. The increase for 1976 will provide for expansion of the 1975 survey to determine what education and training capabilities already exist at the State and local level, and what the Federal Government can do to improve those capabilities.

(b) Public education program.—Ignorance and carelessness are significant factors which need to be minimized in order to reduce fire losses. In this area in 1975, different methods of reaching the public will be studied. The 1976 level provides for determination of what steps are necessary to educate the public as to fire prevention.

2. National Fire Data Center.—This activity will assemble, analyze, and disseminate data on fire losses, which can be used to identify causes of the most significant fire losses, establish priorities for R. & D. efforts, and measure the effects of new mandatory standards, test methods, and building code requirements in reducing fire losses. In 1975, plans will be laid for the implementation of the system. The increase in 1976 will permit establishment of the system, work on the data sources, and preliminary evaluation of outputs.

3. Research and development.—This subactivity performs and supports research on fire with the aim of providing scientific and technical knowledge applicable to the prevention of fires, and provides for fire research at universities and nonprofit organizations.

4. General administration.—This activity provides for the executive direction and administrative support of the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration.

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for inventions and the registration of trademarks. An amount of $21,213 thousand is estimated to be required for Patent and Trademark Office operations during the transition period July 1, 1976, to September 30, 1976. The purpose of the patent laws is to stimulate science and technology and their commercialization by providing incentives for making inventions, disclosing them to the public and providing the necessary stimulus for investment. The purpose of trademarks is to help protect business investment and prevent deception of consumers.

Receipts deposited in the general treasury from fees were $28.8 million in 1974. In 1975 and 1976, they are estimated respectively at $28.0 and $29.0 million. Legislation to increase patent fees, which would generate additional income, is expected to be proposed.

Activities of the Office fall into three areas:

(1) Examination of patent applications.—Applications are examined to determine whether or not the inventor is entitled to a patent for the claimed invention. Examination of patent applications also includes the performance of quasi-judicial functions in appeal and interference proceedings. Progress is being made toward the long-standing goal of reducing average pendency to 18 months for patent applications (from receipt to issue or abandonment), while still maintaining the quality of patent examination.

A summary of patent application workload and performance data is reflected below:

(2) Examination of trademark applications.—Applications are examined to determine whether the statutory criteria for the Federal registration of the trademark or service mark have been met. Where the criteria are met a registration is issued to the applicant. Examination of trademark applications also includes inter partes proceedings involving oppositions, cancellations, and interferences. The Office is attempting to lower the average pendency of trademark applications to three months (from receipt to first action).

A summary of trademark application workload and performance data is reflected below:

(3) Collection, assembly and dissemination of technical and legal patent and trademark information.—Specifications and drawings of successful applications are printed, and issued patents and registered trademarks are published weekly. In addition, this activity includes preparation and issuance of patent grants, furnishing copies of records, maintenance of public search room and scientific library facilities, and recording instruments conveying ownership of patent and trademark rights. The 1976 increase in this activity will provide funds to: (a) print additional patents, and (b) replace reproduction equipment.

SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL RESEARCH AND SERVICES—continued

1. National Bureau of Standards.—The National Bureau of Standards is the Federal Government's lead agency for the development and maintenance of a system of measurements required to support the Nation's economy. The NBS Organic Act, subsequent legislation, and related delegations authorize the Bureau to address measurement problems which arise in the operations of Government agencies, commerce, industrial organizations, and scientific institutions.

The National Bureau of Standards will require $15,939 thousand in order to continue operations during the transition period between July 1, 1976, and September 30, 1976.

NBS efforts are organized into the following six program activities:

(a) Provide a national system for physical measurement.—The purpose of this activity is to insure that the users of science and technology in the United States will be able to make physical measurements which are meaningful (measure the desired property with the required accuracy), reproducible (yield the same results time after time), and compatible (will be reconcilable with other like measurements made elsewhere at different times). This activity provides the central basis within the Nation for a complete system of physical measurements, including the basic physical units of mass, length, time, temperature, electrical current, luminous intensity, and the amount of substance (the mole), together with some secondary or derived units in common use (electrical voltage, density, pressure) at the level of precision and accuracy required by science and industry; advances the state of measurement science so that evolving technologies and public safety are not compromised by an inability to perform necessary measurements; transfers to industrial users, regulatory agencies, and other laboratories' measurement capabilities with accuracy sufficient to their needs; coordinates U.S. national measurement activities and standards with those of other nations as required by international agreements.

This activity also provides the reference methods for measurement of those physical properties of matter required for the development and maintenance of our national standards of physical measurement and maintains a base of reliable data on properties of materials essential for technological progress which are disseminated through the National Standard Reference Data System.

(b) Provide services to improve use of materials.—The continuing purpose of this program is to furnish data, information, and test methods that permit the selection of materials best suited for their intended uses. Important criteria for materials performance and selection include strength, resistance to degradation, service life, electrical and magnetic properties, and behavior under hostile service conditions. Readily available and reliable information enables designers to select materials, processes, and methods of fabrication which are most advantageous to their particular applications. It also encourages the development of materials with superior performance characteristics, such as durability and reliability. This activity also conducts research in pollution measurement technology in support of environmental pollution abatement programs and develops standard reference materials in response to industrial and technical needs which are used as standards for the calibration of measurement systems and instruments.

(c) Provide services to improve the application of technology.—This activity is concerned with the application of technology to human and social needs. The programs are coordinated with the daily activities of commerce, industry, and Government to stimulate economic progress and the use of technical skill for solving problems.

Basic functions of this program activity address the development and promulgation of technological and engineering standards; measurements for products, commodities, devices, processes, or systems; and the utilization of new applications of technology. The basic objective is to set performance standards which permit variations of design or composition while assuring that finished products will perform as required. Programs in this activity include basic research in radiation safety and electronic technology as well as work on product performance and safety. Other programs in this activity are State weights and measures services, voluntary engineering standards, building science and technology, and cryogenic technology.

The 1976 increase will initiate a mandatory energy consumption and/or energy efficiency labeling program for appliances, aimed at conserving the energy used to operate appliances in American homes.

(d) Experimental technology incentives program.—The objective of this program is to find ways to stimulate the application of science and technology to attain national goals, such as increased productivity. This will be accomplished through contracts with industry and universities and by cooperative efforts with other agencies.

(e) Improve the application of computer technology.—This activity includes efforts in computer science and technology, and mathematical services.

The NBS computer science and technology program has the overall purpose of promoting the effective application and use of computer and automation technologies to increase productivity and enhance management efficiency principally in Government operations but also in the private sector. The program enables Government agencies to conduct their operations more efficiently and economically, improves the quality of public services, and protects the privacy rights of individuals in the collection, processing, and use of confidential personal data in computer-based information systems.

The mathematical supporting services area provides advisory services and technical support in methods of mathematics, statistics, data analysis, operations research, numerical analysis, and scientific computation for NBS.

The 1976 increase will focus on further improvement in Government computer security and privacy capabilities, and on development of standard Federal data codes.

(f) Improve telecommunications technology.—The responsibilities and functions fulfilled by the Office of Telecommunications in 1975 are proposed for transfer to and consolidation with the programs of the National Bureau of Standards in 1976.

(g) Facilities.—The facilities activity finances the construction of buildings and special facilities, the procurement of large items of equipment, increases in the capital of the NBS Working capital fund for the purchase of general laboratory equipment, and miscellaneous improvements and modifications to the physical plant to meet the requirements of the Bureau's scientific programs. The 1976 increase will provide for further systematic upgrading of the Bureau's general purpose scientific equipment.

2. National Technical Information Service.—The National Technical Information Service collects and distributes scientific, technological, business, and demographic information generated by the Federal Government.

The National Technical Information Service will require $369 thousand in order to continue operations during the transition period between July 1, 1976, and September 30, 1976.

3. Telecommunications.—The programs of the Office of Telecommunications are being proposed for consolidation with those of the National Bureau of Standards in 1976. In 1974 and 1975, the Office of Telecommunications conducted research in telecommunications technology encompassing investigation of radio transmission and evaluation of applications and performance standards for the benefit of mission-oriented Federal agencies and emerging sectors of industry. The program objectives included: (a) specialized research and analysis to obtain information which cannot be provided adequately by others; and (b) demonstration of applications and associated performance criteria for telecommunications technology.

This activity includes the following work:

(1) Engineering and evaluation of systems: Promote orderly development, upgrading, interconnectability and utility of communications systems;

(2) Efforts to improve radio signal transmission and reception; and

(3) Efforts to promote efficient use of spectrum.

The Working capital fund finances from advances and reimbursements all operations of the National Bureau of Standards except major construction projects and the Foreign currency program. Amounts reported include investments in equipment and inventories, and research, development and services performed for other Government agencies and the public. Programs of direct appropriations and trust funds are covered in the schedules for those accounts. The principal of the fund, as of June 30, 1974, consisted of $5 million in appropriations, $10 million in capital provided by appropriations of the Bureau, and $145 million in net donated assets. Retained earnings at the end of each year are transferred to Treasury the year following.

The objective of the Ship construction program is to increase the competitiveness of the U.S. shipbuilding industry in order to provide a U.S.-flag fleet and shipbuilding base which are adequate for the commercial and national security requirements of the United States. $18,000 thousand is requested for the transition period July 1-September 30, 1976. This will complete funding of one LNG to be contracted in 1976.

In the 4 years since the Merchant Marine Act of 1970, subsidy contracts for 59 ships and 18 conversions, valued at $3.1 billion, have been signed. The new ships now under construction or on order will add 6.3 million deadweight tons to the U.S.-flag fleet when they enter service. These ships are, on the average, five times larger than those in the fleet when the Merchant Marine Act of 1970 was signed. This factor, in addition to reduced crew sizes, will increase the competitiveness of the U.S.-flag fleet. Additionally 46 of the 59 ships built with the aid of construction subsidy are bulk carriers and will upgrade this presently obsolete segment of the fleet. This level of shipbuilding activity has aided in the reduction of subsidy rates. Series production of standardized ship types, which has been encouraged by steady government support, has allowed the shipyards to pass through savings resulting from quantity procurement, stable employment levels and job familiarity.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1970 challenged the shipbuilding industry to increase productivity by providing that the maximum level of subsidy assistance would decline by 2% per year. All the contracts awarded have been within the guideline rates, and some ship types, such as smaller tankers, averaged 34% in 1974, well below the maximum of 39% for that year. LNG's have been subsidized at 16.5%, the lowest subsidy rate in the history of the program.

The high level of shipbuilding activity has also encouraged the shipyards investment in facility upgrading and expansion. Investment since the Merchant Marine Act of 1970 totals $371 million.

The 1976 program will sustain existing series production, and in concert with Navy and private shipbuilding, will provide stable employment levels.

The program will be developed from applications received from the industry. The precise ship mix will be a product of many factors including foreign trade requirements, reappraisals of national defense needs, prospective foreign trade agreements, operator preferences, and latest cost estimates.

OPERATING-DIFFERENTIAL SUBSIDIES (LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORITY)

For the payment of obligations incurred for operating-differential subsidies granted on or after January 1, 1947, as authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, and in appropriations heretofore made to the United States Maritime Commission, [$242,800,000] $315,936,000, to remain available until expended.

For "Operating-differential subsidies (liquidation of contract authority)" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $70,582,000, to remain available until expended. The Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, provides that operating subsidies shall be paid to qualified operators of U.S.-flag vessels in order to promote the maintenance of a U.S. Merchant Marine capable of providing essential ocean-shipping services. Subsidies are designed to achieve a parity between certain American and foreign ship operating costs.

Requirements for the transition period July 1 to September 30, 1976, are as follows (in thousands):

	Budget authority	Appropriation
Passenger/combo ships	$6,027	$7,333
General cargo ships	59,022	60,029
Bulk carrier ships	3,492	3,220
Total	68,541	70,582

Both budget authority and outlay estimates are based on the same cost factors as estimated in the regular budget and include additional subsidy for two new tankers to be delivered during the interim period. Outlays for the period reflect existing billing rates.

1. Passenger/combo ships.—Largely due to the competitive advantage of transoceanic airline service and rising passenger ship operating costs, passenger ship operators are finding it unprofitable to continue such service. Two subsidized U.S.-flag passenger and four combination passenger-cargo ships remain viably employed.

2. General cargo ships.—Subsidies provided to U.S.-flag general cargo liner ships have been a significant factor in enabling U.S. ships to carry 25% of the total general cargo tonnage in U.S. foreign commerce in 1973, a 34% increase over the tonnage carried in 1972. Replacement of many older ships with faster more productive ships has offset the decline in the number and tonnage capacity of the U.S. fleet. The full impact of newly constructed or converted ships under the Federal ship construction program is beginning to take effect and U.S.-flag trade participation is expected to increase further in the years ahead.

3. Bulk carrier ships.—U.S.-flag participation in carriage of bulk cargoes has been low in recent years. As a result of the Merchant Marine Act of 1970, new efforts are being directed toward revitalizing this increasingly important segment of the industry. New ore-bulk-oil carriers and tankers are beginning to enter subsidized service contributing to an 18% increase in nonlinear and over 100% increase in tanker tonnage carried by U.S.-flag vessels in 1973.

The overall U.S.-flag fleet carried 39.8 million long tons of cargo representing 6.4% of the total passing through U.S. ports in 1973. This is an increase over the 23.8 million long tons carried and 4.6% share achieved in 1972.

The operations under the program are detailed in the following table:

This appropriation provides funding for continuation of research and development efforts to reduce costs of constructing and operating U.S.-flag merchant ships. In 1976, major efforts are planned for: Development of advanced nuclear ships; improvement in productive shipbuilding methods; advanced ship machinery; investigation and implementation of shipboard automation; and improved navigation communication systems. The program aims are improving designs of safer, more economical and efficient ships together with improving the productivity of U.S. shipyards, and to make the U.S. maritime industry more competitive with foreign fleets. Industry cost-sharing of R. & D. projects are integral parts of many projects which increases the scope of research and development activities for the Government's portion of funding.

The funding requirements for the transition period July 1, 1976, to September 30, 1976, is $4 million.

This is for the following activities:

Advanced ship development and construction	$1,225,000
Advanced ship operations systems	2,775,000

Funding will cover the required extensions of annual services and facilities, and need for orderly progress on projects that have scheduled milestones for late 1976. Extension of annual contracting includes marine sciences, National Maritime Research Center—Kings Point, Marine research simulator (CAORF), and Satellite Navigation/Communication. The competitive nuclear ship program will continue to focus on the problems of commercial viability, licensability of the reactor and government liability.

In 1976, the R. & D. program will be conducted in the following areas:

1. Advanced ship development and construction.—This program is directed towards investigating, developing, and initiating methods that will make the cost of ships built in U.S. shipyards more competitive with ships built abroad. Included are efforts to develop new or improved ship designs and machinery that will improve productivity in shipyards, and contribute towards improving competitive cost position of U.S. shipyards. Other efforts are directed towards the development and implementation of new systems, machinery, and designs to offer operators improved safety and productivity, as well as greater utilization of ships and ship space. The benefits realizable to the Government are in reduced subsidies paid to the shipyards.

2. Advanced ship operations systems.—The aim of this program is to improve the operation of U.S.-flag merchant ships by: Use of new or improved operational procedures and automated equipment; development of advanced communication and navigation practices and equipment through utilization of satellites; improvement of management techniques aided by computerized programs and systems; and better cargo control and intermodal coordination through automation techniques for improved results in export and import commerce.

This appropriation finances costs incurred by headquarters and field staffs in the administration and direction of the various programs established to fulfill Maritime Administration responsibilities as well as the total cost of officer training at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy and Federal financial support to State marine schools. The funding estimate for this appropriation for the period July 1–September 30, 1976, is $11,315,000.

1. Development of waterborne transportation systems.—This activity provides for direct technical and administrative costs of developing and maintaining cost-competitive U.S. merchant ships in sufficient quantity to meet national maritime objectives, including evaluation of current programs and development of alternatives, and programs to achieve stability and improve efficiency in the U.S. shipbuilding industry with an objective of reducing the difference between domestic and foreign shipyard productivity.

2. National security support capability.—This activity provides for developing and maintaining U.S. merchant ship capability to serve as naval and military transport auxiliaries in times of war and national emergency in the National Defense Reserve Fleet; for developing and maintaining national and international preparedness plans providing for continuity of operations under various emergency conditions; and to maintain an adequate shipbuilding and repair mobilization base.

3. Merchant marine academy.—This activity provides for operating the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., in accordance with the Merchant Marine Act, 1936. The objective of the Academy is to instruct and prepare selected personnel for service as officers in the merchant marine. The requested program level supports continuation of the facilities modernization program including the initiation of major alterations and modernization of one of the principal academic buildings.

4. State marine schools.—This activity implements the Maritime Academy Act of 1958 (Public Law 85–672) by providing assistance to States in the operation and maintenance of maritime academies or colleges for the training of merchant marine officers by providing grants to the State schools, providing subsistence payments in support of cadets, and by furnishing vessels to be used as training ships. A program increase of $1,377 thousand is included to fund installation of pollution abatement and control devices on these training vessels, and to fund subsistence payments in support of an increased number of cadets.

5. Use of waterborne transportation systems.—This activity provides for direct technical and administrative costs of promoting the effective development and utilization of merchant ships and ship systems designed to further the foreign and domestic waterborne commerce of the United States with the objectives of increasing U.S. flag participation in U.S. foreign trade, and reducing or eliminating operating subsidies when no longer required to sustain a viable shipping operation.

6. General administration.—This activity provides for administrative support costs that are not directly assignable to other entity programs. Functions which cannot assign a major portion of their administrative efforts to a direct program are: accounting, budgeting, management analysis, personnel, public affairs, administrative services, data processing, and executive direction. These costs include salaries, benefits, travel, and other support items necessary to carry out these activities.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, established the Federal ship financing fund to assist the development of the U.S. Merchant Marine by insuring construction loans and mortgages on U.S.-flag vessels built in the United States. The fund is authorized to insure aggregate outstanding balances of up to $5 billion. The maximum amount of aggregate obligations guaranteed by the Federal ship financing fund was raised from $3 billion to the present level of $5 billion pursuant to Public Law 93-70 of July 10, 1973.

The estimated level of new commitments to guarantee construction loans and mortgages, and the estimated aggregate level of guarantees in force and commitments outstanding is shown in the following table:

The Federal ship financing fund has been a key element in generating the current high level of shipbuilding activity in the United States. The level of commitments for 1975 and 1976 are predicated on passage of proposed legislation to raise the maximum level of obligations guaranteed.

Budget program.—Beginning in 1974, administrative expenses incurred in the operation of the Federal ship financing fund were paid from income to the fund. Reimbursements to the Operations and training appropriation for $3,150 thousand in 1975, $3,315 thousand in 1976, and $830 thousand in the transition period are anticipated. Advances to operators of $2,500 thousand are planned in 1975 and 1976, and $500 thousand in the transition period in order to forestall possible defaults on insured mortgages.

Financing.—The fund receives income from insurance premiums on construction loans and mortgages, fees and interest on U.S. Government securities and mortgages held directly. The payment of administrative expenses is to be made from this income, while payments for advances to operators, redemption of defaulted loans and mortgages are paid from income, equity, and borrowings from the Treasury Department. No borrowings are anticipated in the period July 1, 1975, through September 30, 1976.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to reactivate, operate, deactivate, charter merchant vessels, and operate experimental vessels under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Commerce. These operations are financed by the Vessel operations revolving fund. In addition, the fund is available to finance the necessary expenses to protect, maintain, preserve, acquire and use vessels involved in mortgage-foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings instituted by the United States.

Budget program.—As of June 30, 1974 there are approximately 50 claims with an estimated settlement value of $2 million in process of settlement which resulted from operation of Government-owned ships and General Agency Agreements in the Vietnam sealift. Claim settlements are expected for $300 thousand in 1976 and $75 thousand in the transition period.

The Maritime Administration is authorized by 46 U.S.C. 1281-1294, as amended, to insure against loss or damage by marine war risks when it is found commercial insurance cannot be obtained on reasonable terms and conditions. This insurance includes war risk hull and disbursements interim insurance, war risk protection and indemnity interim insurance, second seamen's war risk interim insurance, war risk builder's risk prelaunching and postlaunching insurance, and a contingent war risk cargo insurance stand-by program. Authority to underwrite insurance has been authorized to September 7, 1975, having been extended at 5-year intervals since 1950.

Budget program.—As of June 30, 1974, insurance outstanding covered 2,490 vessels in operation and under construction in domestic yards. In the event of an outbreak of a general war, the insurance exposure would approximate $21 billion.

In addition, under 46 U.S.C. 1285, the Maritime Administration provides second seamen's war risk insurance covering the crews of 87 vessels under contract to or chartered by the Military Sealift Command. Administrative expenses are expected to be $240 thousand in 1976 and $100 thousand in the transition period.

Financing.—Under 46 U.S.C. 1288, the Secretary of Commerce established the War risk insurance revolving fund. It receives income from binder fees, insurance premiums, interest from investments, and claim reimbursements from other Federal agencies. Underwriting agents' fees and expenses, appraisal contractors' fees, and insurance claims are paid from this income. While additional appropriations for the program are authorized, none is requested for the period July 1, 1975, through September 30, 1976.

This trust fund is maintained to finance joint projects with non-Federal sources (15 U.S.C. 1525-1526).

Budget program.—The fund will finance a joint industry/maritime project on an inland waterways communication system, and the joint development of a bilateral cargo information system with another country.

Financing.—Expenses are financed through cost sharing with these non-Federal groups.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

No additional vessel shall be allocated under charter, nor shall any vessel be continued under charter by reason of any extension of chartering authority beyond June 30, 1949, unless the charterer shall agree that the Maritime Administration shall have no obligation upon redelivery to accept or pay for consumable stores, bunkers, and slopchest items, except with respect to such minimum amounts of bunkers as the Maritime Administration considers advisable to be retained on the vessel and that prior to such redelivery all consumable stores, slopchest items, and bunkers over and above such minimums shall be removed from the vessel by the charterer at his own expense.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Maritime Administration is authorized to furnish utilities and services and make necessary repairs in connection with any lease, contract, or occupancy involving Government property under control of the Maritime Administration and payments received by the Maritime Administration for utilities, services, and repairs so furnished or made shall be credited to the appropriation charged with the cost thereof: Provided, That rental payments under any such lease, contract, or occupancy on account of items other than such utilities, services, or repairs shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

No obligations shall be incurred during the current fiscal year from the construction fund established by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, or otherwise, in excess of the appropriations and limitations contained in this Act, or in any prior appropriation Act, and all receipts which otherwise would be deposited to the credit of said fund shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

SEC. 302. During the current fiscal year and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, applicable appropriations and funds available to the Department of Commerce shall be available for the activities specified in the Act of October 26, 1949 (15 U.S.C. 1514), to the extent and in the manner prescribed by said Act.

SEC. 303. During the current fiscal year and the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, appropriations to the Department of Commerce which are available for salaries and expenses shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles; services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; and uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 304. No part of any appropriation contained in this title shall be used for construction of any ship in any foreign country.

SEC. 305. None of the funds appropriated in this title for the Maritime Administration shall be available for obligation for ship construction, operating-differential subsidies, research and development, nor operations and training, except upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation. (Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1975.)

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

MILITARY PERSONNEL

Military personnel activities are grouped into major program categories corresponding to the planning, programming, and evaluation system of the Department of Defense.

1. Strategic forces.—Consists of offensive and defensive aircraft and missile units.

2. General purpose forces.—Consists of unified commands, tactical Army combat and support forces, Navy ship and air forces, the Marine Corps fleet forces, including aviation, and Air Force combat and support aircraft units. It also includes related logistics and support units.

3. Intelligence and communications.—Missions and activities related to combat forces and centrally directed activities for intelligence, security, and communications.

4. Airlift and sealift.—Airlift, sealift, and other transportation, including logistic and support units.

5. Guard and reserve.—Consists of support for National Guard and Reserve training units.

6. Research and development.—Support for R. & D. activities and projects not related to items approved for procurement or deployment.

7. Central supply and maintenance.—Includes nondeployable supply and maintenance depots, and supply and maintenance activities not organic to mission units.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—Consists of these activities associated with military personnel.

9. Administration and associated activities.—The administrative support of departmental and major administrative headquarters, field commands, and administrative activities.

10. Support of other nations.—Activities for the support of allies.

ACTIVE FORCES

These appropriations provide for the pay and allowances of officers, enlisted personnel, cadets, and midshipmen; the subsistence of enlisted personnel; permanent change of station travel; and other military personnel costs. Changes in financial requirements are primarily related to military personnel strengths in support of the military programs. These programs will continue at the same level during the transition period. The number of active duty military personnel provided for are shown in the following tables:

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the Reserve components, which include: Army and Air National Guard; and Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves.

National Guard and Reserve personnel.—These programs provide funds for training members of the Ready Reserve as the initial and primary augmentation of the active forces during any future emergency. Most of the paid National Guard and Reserve personnel perform 48 or 24 drills and attend 2 weeks of active duty for training each year. Other personnel not requiring as intensive training receive only a period of active duty for training (usually 2 weeks) during the year. Active duty for basic training is provided for personnel enlisting in the National Guard or Reserve who have not previously received military training. Service schools and special tours of active duty training provide additional training for limited numbers of the Ready Reserve. These programs will continue at the same levels during the transition period.

Reserve officer candidates.—The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a collegiate institution at which an ROTC unit has been established. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum period of 2 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes a limited number of scholarships for 4-year ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships are required to serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer. There will be about 6,500 scholarship recipients in the Army and Air Force and about 6,000 in the Navy in 1976.

The Armed Forces health professions scholarship program provides a source of commissioned officers for the various health professions. Student enrollment in 1976 will be about 1,850 in the Army and 1,575 in the Navy and Air Force.

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force provide training for students who elect to enroll in ROTC training at the secondary level of education, and are programed to have 650, 223, 49, and 275 units, respectively, in operation in 1976.

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all military personnel on the retired lists of the Department of Defense. The estimate represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for: (a) Payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) retainer pay of regular enlisted personnel of the fleet reserve of the Navy and Fleet Marine Corps Reserve; and (c) survivors' benefits. The primary gains to the retired rolls can be attributed to the greater number of individuals attaining eligibility for retirement after 20 or more years of active military service. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1974 compared with estimated numbers for 1975 and 1976.

Under the provisions of Public Law 92-425, "Survivor Benefit Plan," greater coverage is provided for survivors of retired and active military personnel at a lower cost than under the old Retired Serviceman's Family Protection Plan which is no longer available. It also guarantees minimum annual income to current widows of deceased members.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

The appropriations under this title finance the day-to-day costs, except military personnel costs, of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the Reserve components, and related support activities of the Department of Defense. These funds include amounts for pay of civilians, contract services for maintenance of equipment and facilities, fuel, supplies, and repair parts for weapons and equipment. Financial requirements for these appropriations are influenced by a variety of factors, the principal of which are force levels, such as the number of aircraft squadrons or Army or Marine Corps divisions, military strength and deployments, rates of operational activity, number of installations, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, etc.) in operation.

ACTIVE FORCES

Funds to operate the Active Forces and their support are contained in five operation and maintenance appropriations: One for each of the four services and one for Defense agencies. The programs covered under this heading are described below:

1. Strategic forces.—Strategic offensive forces include more than 450 manned B-52 and FB-111 bombers and 1,054 ICBM's operated by the Air Force as well as the Navy's submarine missile fleet which deploys 656 Polaris and Poseidon missiles. Estimates for 1976 reflect conversion of additional submarines from Polaris to the more advanced Poseidon ballistic missile.

Strategic defensive forces consist of antiaircraft and anti-missile units of the Army, interceptor fighter aircraft of the Air Force, and various warning, command, and control systems operated by the Air Force.

2. General purpose forces.—These forces of the four military services operate under the control of the various unified and specified commands. They consist of the tactical air forces of the Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps, the ground forces and supporting aircraft elements of the Army and Marine Corps, and Navy combatant and support ships. Among these forces are those deployed to eastern Asia, the western Pacific, and to Europe in support of NATO commitments; the fleets operating in the Pacific, the Atlantic, and the Mediterranean; and Active Forces based in the United States.

Our tactical air forces consist of the Air Force tactical air wings, Navy land- and carrier-based antisubmarine and attack air wings, and Marine air wings. The missions performed by these forces include maintaining air superiority, interdiction bombing, close air support, anti-submarine patrol, reconnaissance, combat crew, readiness air group and transition training and special operations.

ACTIVE FORCES—Continued

During 1976, the F-4 Phantom jet fighter will continue to be the workhorse for all three services. The Navy and Marine Corps will continue to deploy the F-14 to partially replace F-4's in the air superiority/fleet air defense role; continued introduction of the F-15 into the Air Force arsenal in 1976 will provide for transfer of F-4 and A-7 weapon systems to the reserves. The Air Force will increase its number of tactical air crews through a reduction in support spaces. In 1976, tactical airlift will be placed under control of the Military Airlift Command. The flight training simulator procurement initiative will be continued to reduce energy consumption and to provide for improved training of air crews.

Army land forces consist of infantry, mechanized, armored, airborne, and airmobile divisions as well as force elements needed to support these divisions during the initial stages of combat, along with a limited number of units required for sustained combat support. During 1976, combat-to-support ratios will continue to be improved by the activation of two additional divisions from the conversion and/or deactivation of support units as well as the use of spaces freed by reductions in headquarters and support activities. Emphasis will continue to be placed on increasing combat readiness. Additional combat units will be modernized with the latest equipments and weapons for the conduct of land warfare.

Marine Corps land forces, composed of marine amphibious forces including a combination of combat and service support organizations and variety of supporting units, are designed to conduct amphibious assault operations and other missions with the close support of Marine aviation. The Marine Corps' prime objective in 1976 continues to be the training and maintenance of the Fleet Marine Forces at a high level of combat readiness for service with the Fleet, ashore or for other duties as national security may require.

Naval forces include aircraft carriers, submarines, amphibious forces, antisubmarine forces, and anti-air warfare forces. Four nuclear submarines and one nuclear powered guided missile frigate will be introduced into the fleet in 1976. Eight other ships will also become operational, including five of the 963 class destroyers, two amphibious assault ships (LHA), and a replenishment oiler (AOR). The addition of these modern vessels will permit continued inactivation of overage and obsolete vessels. Two attack carriers (CVA's) will be configured in 1976 for multipurpose operations (CV's) for a total of nine so configured. An increased effort in ship maintenance will enhance the readiness of these forces in 1976.

3. Intelligence and communications.—This program comprises the centrally directed Defense intelligence and security function, the major portion of the consolidated telecommunications program (CTP), the National Military Command System, and other special activities which are related to and support the missions of the combat forces in the strategic, general purpose, and airlift/sealift programs. Included in the CTP portion are the Defense Communications System (DCS) common user transmission and switching systems as well as non-DCS communications. Funds to support intelligence, security, and communications activities are contained in the various appropriations of each of the military services, and, in the case of the Defense Communications Agency, Defense Nuclear Agency, Defense Intelligence Agency, Defense Mapping Agency, Defense Investigative Service, and National Security Agency, in the Defense agencies appropriation. Included among the special activities are Navy oceanographic and weather programs and Air Force weather, air rescue and recovery, and air traffic control and landing system programs.

4. Airlift and sealift.—This provides air, land, and sea transportation services for all the Armed Forces in peacetime as well as quick reaction strategic mobility and logistical support in wartime. The major commands in this program are the Military Airlift Command of the Air Force, the Military Sealift Command of the Navy, and the Military Traffic Management Command of the Army, all of which are industrially funded operations whose costs are reimbursed by the users. The operation and maintenance appropriations directly provide for certain administrative and base service support expenses for each of these industrially funded activities.

7. Central supply maintenance.—This program includes funds for specialized supply and maintenance activities. It provides resources for the determination of inventory levels, procurement (excluding acquisition costs), storage, distribution, depot-level maintenance, and transportation of military materiel. These functions are managed by the military services and conducted at various locations worldwide such as supply depots and centers, inventory control points, and repair facilities as well as through commercial contractors.

In addition, the Defense Supply Agency provides common supply and service support to the military services within the continental United States and manages bulk petroleum worldwide. The Defense Supply Agency also manages Defense-owned idle industrial plant equipment, the Defense surplus property disposal program, and the Defense portion of the Federal catalog program. It is also responsible for providing contract administration services, including enforcement of the equal employment provisions of Executive Order 11246, as amended, administration and supervision of Department of Defense material utilization program, and coordinated procurement programs. Requirements for the Defense Supply Agency are included under Operation and maintenance, Defense Agencies.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—In 1976 the military services plan on acquiring some 395,000 new accessions into the Active Forces. Continued success of the All-Volunteer Force will necessitate a strong effort by the recruiting organizations of each service to attract the new personnel required. These new accessions must then be trained in basic military skills, in many occupational skills, and in career fields. Training requirements are also influenced by the total strength of the services, and by the introduction of new equipment and weapons. Most training is conducted at service-operated facilities, such as training centers for the training of new recruits, at technical schools which afford training in specific military occupational skills, and at pilot training bases. Education of prospective officers is accomplished primarily by the three service academies and by Reserve Officer Training Corps units at universities and colleges.

The services operate 183 hospitals to provide medical care for active and retired military personnel and for dependents. In addition, this program finances a medical program at civilian medical facilities for personnel in areas where service hospitals are not accessible.

9. Administration and associated activities.—This program includes the costs of departmental administration, major field command headquarters, and general support activities such as finance and audit. Reimbursement to the General Services Administration for space occupied, required by Public Law 92-313, is also included in this program.

10. Support of other nations.—This program includes military assistance missions, advisory groups for foreign nations, and the U.S. share of NATO, SEATO, and CENTO costs, plus support of U.S. organizations related to these international military headquarters. Direct support of allied forces in Southeast Asia, formerly included in this program, is carried in a separate title in 1976.

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the reserve components, which include: Army and Air National Guard; and Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves. The military services train reserve component units and operate and maintain facilities such as training centers, air bases, and field training sites for the use of such units. Changes in financial requirements are primarily related to priorities given to improving mobilization readiness through equipment modernization and intensified training. These programs will continue at the same levels during the transition period. Appropriations for the Army and Air National Guard retain their historic activity structure, while the newer appropriations for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves, are structured as follows:

Mission forces.—Includes training operations and logistics support.

Depot maintenance.—Provides for depot level maintenance including repair, overhaul, and modification of vehicles, aircraft, and other equipment.

Other support.—Consists primarily of activities related to base operations and maintenance, medical support, and headquarters and command.

PROCUREMENT

The procurement appropriations of the Department of Defense finance the acquisition of capital equipment such as aircraft, missiles, ships, combat and support vehicles, weapons, torpedoes, and communication equipment; air ground, and ship munitions; major items for support of the capital equipment when it is in use; the industrial facilities necessary to produce that equipment; and major modifications of equipment in inventory where modernization can be achieved without buying new equipment. The capital equipment financed by these appropriations is principally procured from private contractors or produced in Government arsenals, shipyards, and plants.

The 1976 and transition period programs accelerate the production of modern equipment, weapons, and munitions in support of increased modernization and higher levels of readiness for United States and allied forces. The equipment necessary to support conventional as well as strategic warfare missions of our armed services will be augmented and modernized. Production rates of our anti-armor systems will be significantly increased to improve our capability to overcome the Warsaw Pact advantage in numbers of tanks and to replace losses to our weapons inventory caused by shipments to the Middle East following the war of October 1973. Improvements in our strategic systems will continue, and our tactical air forces will be modernized with the latest fighter and attack aircraft. The ability of our naval forces to control the seas will be strengthened through a stepped up program of new ship construction and modernization, and the continued acquisition of highly capable but low-cost patrol frigates and hydrofoil missile boats. The dollar amount for ships in the 1976 estimates includes $2 billion which will cover cost increases to 1975 and prior year ship programs.

	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Aircraft.....	5,938.2	6,081.9	8,014.8
Missiles.....	2,681.8	2,544.8	3,305.6
Ships.....	3,508.4	3,174.6	5,446.0

Total.....	17,467.4	17,355.7	24,419.5

The appropriations for procurement of aircraft, missiles, ships, weapons, torpedoes, and combat vehicles are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation.

This appropriation finances the acquisition of tactical and utility airplanes and helicopters, including associated electronic and communications equipment and armament; modification of in-service aircraft; ground support equipment; and depot reparable assemblies and repair parts such as spare engines and transmissions. It also funds related first destination transportation and production base support.

The 1976 program provides increased mobility through procurement of UH-1 and CH-47 utility and medium transport helicopters and increased anti-armor firepower through acquisition of improved TOW missile launching helicopters. Funds to continue these programs during the period of July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, are being requested.

This appropriation finances the acquisition of ammunition, modification of in-service stock, and related production base support including maintenance, expansion, and modernization of industrial facilities and equipment.

The 1976 program provides for worldwide training consumption and losses to inventory through the 1976 funded delivery periods; provides for NATO requirements; assures meeting pipeline and consumption requirements for supported allies; and maintains an active production base in 1976. This year's program includes funds for over 40 different types of ammunition and provides the seventh increment of a multiyear effort to rehabilitate and improve the Army's industrial base. Funds to continue these programs during the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, are being requested.

This appropriation finances the procurement of aircraft and associated support including flight simulator systems for Navy forces and Marine air wings. It also provides funds for modification of inservice aircraft to eliminate safety hazards and enhance operational effectiveness. Also included are aircraft ground support equipment, and repairable spare and repair parts for all end items procured under this appropriation. Funds are included to finance procurement of long leadtime effort and material in support of the planned subsequent year programs.

The 1976 program includes funding for continued production of the F-14 air superiority fighter, and various attack aircraft such as the A-4M, A-6E, and A-7E. Also included are funds for continued production of P-3C and S-3A antisubmarine warfare aircraft, E-2C and EA-6B tactical support aircraft, attack helicopters for the Marine Corps, two trainer aircraft models and EC-130 command and control aircraft. Funding needed to continue these programs during the transition period is being requested.

This appropriation finances the procurement of ballistic missiles, air-launched and ship-launched missiles, torpedoes, guns, associated support equipment and modification of in-service missiles, torpedoes and guns. Also financed are procurement of target drones and spare parts. Funds to continue these programs during the period of July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, are being requested.

1. Ballistic missiles.—This activity funds the procurement of ballistic missile advance procurement items, ballistic missile production support equipment and services, related fleet support equipment, modifications and reparable spares and repair parts. Additionally, it includes support of Government-owned missile industrial facilities, the navigational satellite program and planning effort in support of the follow-on missile refit facility complex.

2. Other missiles.—This activity provides for the continued procurement of missiles and support equipment required for counterair attack, fleet air defense, air-to-surface and surface-to-surface attack as well as procurement of aerial targets and satellites in support of the fleet satellite communications program. Also included in this activity are a classified project, missile modifications, reparable missile spares and repair parts and support of Government-owned missiles industrial facilities.

3. Torpedoes and related equipment.—This activity funds the procurement of torpedoes and underwater mobile targets, modifications to these equipments, spares and repair parts and other support equipment necessary for maintaining fleet inventories of existing torpedoes and targets.

4. Other weapons.—This activity provides for procurement of ship guns (except those funded under Shipbuilding and conversion, Navy) machine guns, rifles and small weapons. Additionally, advance production effort for the close-in-weapons system is requested. It also includes the modification of other weapons and procurement of spare parts and other support equipment necessary for maintaining fleet inventories of these weapons.

This appropriation provides for the construction of new ships and the conversion of existing ships, including all hull, mechanical, and electrical equipment, electronics, guns, torpedo and missile launching systems, and communication systems. The 1976 program and the transition program provide for the procurement of long-leadtime items for ships for which authorization will be required in 1977 and later years.

The 1976 program continues the Navy's long-range modernization and replacement program designed to provide the fleet with modern balanced forces which can effectively respond to a wide variety of challenges in supporting our national policies.

1. Fleet ballistic missile ships.—Funds requested in this activity are for one Trident class ballistic missile firing submarine capable of firing an undersea strategic missile, and for long-leadtime equipment for future Trident submarines.

2. Other warships.—The 1976 request includes two high-performance, high-speed nuclear powered attack submarines and a DLGN-38 class nuclear powered frigate to improve the anti-air-warfare capability of the fleet. Advance procurement funds are also included for future nuclear attack submarines.

4. Mine warfare and patrol ships.—This activity includes funds for 2 patrol hydrofoil missile ships and 10 patrol frigates. These ships, while being somewhat smaller than previous warships, will be effective high-firepower additions to the fleet.

5. Auxiliaries and craft.—This activity includes two destroyer tenders, the first two ships of a new class of fleet oiler, and three fleet tugs. These ships are required to modernize the aging support fleet. Funds are also included in this budget activity for ship waste barges, craft, outfitting material, and post delivery. More than $2 billion is included in this budget activity for cost growth and escalation requirements on 1975 and prior year shipbuilding programs.

Note.—Estimates in 1975 and 1976 exclude activities transferred to Military Assistance, South Vietnamese Forces. 1974 amounts included above, $1,200 thousand.

This appropriation finances the procurement of major weapons and equipment other than aircraft, missiles, ships, torpedoes, and other weapons. Such equipments range from the latest electronic sensors and weapons to update our naval forces, to trucks, training equipment, and spare parts. Funds to continue these programs during the period of July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, are being requested.

1. Ship support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of shipboard components, including replacement of nuclear cores, to support active fleet ship maintenance, sonabuys, and equipment replacement.

2. Communications and electronics equipment.—This activity funds communications and electronics equipment for ships and shore-based activities.

3. Aviation support equipment.—This activity funds the procurement of sonabuys, air-launched ordnance and generalized aircraft support equipment.

4. Ordnance support equipment.—This activity funds the procurement of ship-launched ordnance, shipboard missile and ASW fire control systems and launchers, and fleet ballistic missile ground support and training equipment.

5. Civil engineering support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of construction, weight handling, and transportation equipment primarily in support of Navy general purpose forces.

6. Supply support equipment.—Procurement of self-propelled materials handling equipment and automated materials handling systems, required in support of the Navy supply system, are financed within this activity.

7. Personnel and command support equipment.—This activity finances procurement of training equipment, devices, and aids, and procurement of industrial shop, photographic, printing, and oceanographic equipment for activities supported by the Chief of Naval Operations as well as equipment for the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery and fleet headquarters commands.

This appropriation provides the Marine Corps with weapons, ammunition, guided missiles, combat vehicles, and communication and support equipment for use by the Marine general purpose forces such as the four divisions, and force troop, tank and amphibious tractor battalions. These equipments provide the military hardware and munitions for defense of advanced naval bases, limited war landing operations, and general land warfare.

The 1976 program completes the modernization of the Marine tank forces with the last procurement of M60A1 tanks, and continues procurement of TOW and Dragon antitank/assault missile systems and Improved Hawk anti-aircraft missiles. Funds to continue these programs during the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, are being requested.

This appropriation provides for procurement of aircraft, and for modification of inservice aircraft to improve safety and enhance operational effectiveness. It also provides for investment spare and repair parts including spare engines, replenishment spares, and other support equipment to include aerospace ground equipment and industrial facilities. In addition, funds are provided for the procurement of flight training simulators to increase combat readiness and conserve aviation fuel. Funding needed to continue these programs during the transition period is being requested.

1. Combat aircraft.—Provides aircraft for continued force modernization. Included are F-15, A-10, and E-3A (Airborne Warning and Control System) aircraft.

2. Airlift aircraft.—Provides aircraft for airlift forces. None are requested in 1976.

3. Trainer aircraft.—Provides aircraft to meet aircrew training requirements. None are requested in 1976.

4. Other aircraft.—Provides helicopters and other specialized aircraft. Included is the C-12A aircraft.

5. Modification of inservice aircraft.—Provides for modification of inservice aircraft and associated training equipment for safety of flight and technical changes to improve reliability, improve maintenance, increase capability, or provide for a change in mission.

6. Aircraft spares and repair parts.—Provides for investment spares including initial spares for new aircraft and replenishment spares for aircraft in the operational force.

7. Aircraft support equipment and facilities.—Provides for common aerospace ground equipment for the operational force, industrial facilities, war consumables, and other production charges. Included are electronic counter measure (ECM) pods, alternate mission equipment, stock fund fuel, classified projects, and first destination transportation (FDT).

This appropriation provides for procurement, installation, and checkout of strategic ballistic and other missiles, modification of in-service missiles, and initial and replenishment spare and repair parts for missile systems. It also provides for operational space systems, boosters, payloads, drones, associated ground support equipment, nonrecurring maintenance of industrial facilities, machine tool modernization and special programs support. Funds to continue these programs during the period of July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, are being requested.

1. Ballistic missiles.—Provides for Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile systems required for follow-on operational testing to verify reliability and accuracy factors of the weapon system, crew training, and hardware and site activation for the Minuteman force modernization program. Also provides for the procurement, installation, and checkout of missiles, aerospace ground equipment, specialized training equipment, and the required technical data.

2. Other missiles.—Provides for Shrike antiradiation missiles, the Maverick rocket-propelled, air-to-ground tactical missile, the Sparrow and Sidewinder solid state air-to-air missiles for the tactical fighter forces and target drones for testing and training of aircrews.

3. Modification of in-service missiles.—Provides for updating of Minuteman missiles and modification of missiles to improve reliability and safety, extend service life, and to incorporate operational improvements based on in-service use.

4. Spare and repair parts.—Provides for initial and replenishment spare and repair parts for ballistic missiles, other missiles, target drones, aerospace ground equipment, training equipment, replacement depot test equipment, provisioning documentation and spares for the modification programs.

5. Other support.—Provides for special program activities, modernization of Government-owned production facilities, drones for special reconnaissance missions, and for the procurement of launch vehicles, spacecraft, and peculiar ground equipment for operational space systems.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

Programs in this title fund the development, test, and evaluation of new and improved weapon systems and related equipment carried out by the Army, Navy, Air Force, Defense agencies, and Director of Test and Evaluation. They also provide for scientific research supporting defense functions and operations. Work is performed by industrial contractors, Government laboratories, universities, and nonprofit organizations. Research and development programs are as a rule funded so that each year's resources support 1 year's increment of the total program cost. Funds required for the research and development related to civil defense responsibilities of the Department of Defense are carried in the separate title, Civil Defense.

The total 1976 budget plan for Defense research, development, test, and evaluation appropriations includes a $1,621 million increase from the current 1975 plan, reaching a total of $10,237 million. The transition budget provides for continuing ongoing programs at a rate consistent with 1976 and with that being requested for authorization in 1977. The specific activities included in the 1976 budget plan are discussed below under each budget activity. The budget plans and estimated obligations under appropriations in this title are summarized as follows (in thousands of dollars):

1. Military sciences.—This activity supports research of potential military application in the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences. This research underlies the development of future systems and improved military operations.

Some of the support for in-house organizations such as the Naval Research Laboratory and for some of the Federal contract research centers is also provided here.

2. Aircraft and related equipment.—This activity funds research, development, test, and evaluation related to airframes, engines, avionics, and other installed aircraft equipment, as well as applied research in supporting aeronautical technologies. It also funds the development of major aircraft systems.

In 1976 the major funding increase will be for the development of the air combat fighter aircraft for use by our Navy and Air Force tactical air wings. The B-1 advanced strategic bomber will also receive a significant funding increase over 1975.

Continuing in development are the UTTAS logistic helicopter and the advanced attack helicopter programs for the Army; the AMST tactical transport and A-10 close air support aircraft for the Air Force; and the V/STOL aircraft systems programs for the Navy.

This activity also funds research and development efforts at centers such as the Air Force Flight Dynamics Laboratory in Dayton, Ohio, the Naval Air Development Center in Johnsville, Pa., and the Army Air Mobility Centers in Virginia, Ohio, California, and Missouri.

3. Missiles and related equipment.—This activity provides for research, development, test, and evaluation of strategic and tactical missile systems. The strategic retaliatory missile programs that continue to receive major emphasis in 1976 include Trident submarine launched missile, the air, surface, and subsurface launched strategic cruise missiles, and the advanced ballistic missile technology programs of the Air Force. Included in these programs are efforts to improve yield and accuracy of ballistic systems. Major efforts also continue on the Site Defense program and on ballistic missile defense technology.

In the tactical area, development will continue on the STINGER, SAM-D, and SHORAD air defense systems for the Army. Development will also continue on the Navy Aegis fleet defense missile system and efforts on the Phalanx close-in weapons system will be increased as this system nears completion. With the completion of the Sidewinder 9-L program in 1976, major efforts in air-to-air missile development will be directed to subsystems including improved seekers and electronic counter-counter measure technology. Efforts to define a new air-to-air missile system for joint Air Force and Navy use will also be continued.

Increased funding will be allocated to the HARM anti-radiation missile and the submarine launched encapsulated Harpoon anti-ship missile development will be completed in 1976.

In addition to funding contracts with industry in missile research and development program, this activity is a major source of financial support for the operation of certain test and evaluation facilities such as the White Sands Missile Range, the Navy Weapons Center at China Lake, and the research and development programs at the Army Redstone Arsenal.

4. Military astronautics and related equipment.—Funded under this activity are programs directed toward the improvement of space technology for military purposes and the development of space vehicles for specific military missions. There will be increased effort on technology related to warning and assessment of missile attacks, and on a communications satellite system. Development efforts will be increased on the NAVSTAR global positionings system and on efforts directed toward using the NASA space shuttle for launching military space payloads. In addition to contractual effort related to space systems and technology, this activity also includes funds for the Aerospace Corporation.

5. Ships, small craft, and related equipment.—This activity provides for applied research, development, test, and evaluation of ship structures and equipment, including propulsion, communications, navigation, and surveillance systems directly affecting ship operations. It includes the design, prototype fabrication, and performance evaluation of new types of ships, sonars, countermeasure devices, marine gas turbines and nuclear propulsion plants.

Development will continue on surface effects ships, amphibious assault craft, and hydrofoil craft. The Trident submarine funding profile will begin to decline in 1976 as the construction effort begins. This activity funds much of the effort at the Naval Ship Research and Development Center.

6. Ordnance, combat vehicles, and related equipment.—This activity provides for the research, development, test, and evaluation of improved artillery, guns, mortars, small arms, mines, grenades, torpedoes, nuclear and chemical munitions, and conventional air-launched weapons, as well as for the exploration and evaluation of new fuzes, propellants, explosives, detonators, dispensers, and armor.

Development of the new Army XM-1 tank will continue in 1976 as will efforts on improved mine systems for both the Army and Navy, improved air delivered weapons, prototype laser weapons, and improved guns for the Air Force A-10 close air support aircraft, and air superiority aircraft. Also continuing in development are the Army mechanized infantry combat vehicle and vehicle mounted weapon systems.

This activity provides principal support for research and development activities at several Army centers.

7. Other equipment.—This activity provides for research, development, test, and evaluation of equipment not separately funded under other activities. Examples of programs funded here are electronic warfare devices, chemical and biological agent detection and protective equipment, antisubmarine warfare surveillance systems, intelligence and reconnaissance equipment, and defense suppression projects. Programs in support of improved logistics, facilities design, and training are provided in this activity.

Development will continue on the Air Force airborne warning and control system (AWACS) and the advanced airborne command post. Effort on the development of air defense suppression systems will increase. This activity also funds much of the support at the Electromagnetic Compatibility Analysis Center.

8. Programwide management and support.—For the Army, this activity provides support for programwide activities and technical information efforts not distributed directly to other budget activities. For the Navy, this activity funds similar programwide support effort as well as test and evaluation programs. For the Air Force, this activity provides for certain costs of central administration both for the Air Force Systems Command and several large test and evaluation centers.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Active and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Active forces.....	1,542,805	1,690,539	2,519,500
Reserve forces.....	127,148	176,335	230,400
Interservice activities.....	24,821	47,237	151,500
Total.....	1,694,774	1,914,111	2,901,400

Most of the appropriations required for the military construction accounts are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. The details of this legislation have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration.

1. Major construction.—This category provides for the acquisition of land and for construction of military projects as authorized in currently effective military construction acts and the new authorization referred to above. These authorizations include construction projects as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2 where the estimated cost of such construction generally exceeds $50 thousand per project. Under this category the major activities proposed for 1976 are as follows:

Strategic forces.—Provision has been made to upgrade existing facilities and provide for personnel support for strategic warfare systems. Funds also have been provided to continue to support the Trident weapons system.

General purpose forces.—Projects in this category support general combat forces including their command organizations, the logistics organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units, including medical, which are deployed as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations. The 1976 funding reflects continuing increased emphasis on service attractiveness, particularly improved health services and bachelor housing facilities.

Specialized activities.—Funds are provided for the continued support of the joint defense effort of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Funding for abatement of air and water pollution at defense installations is continued to assure that actions to correct violations of Federal, State, and local air and water quality standards have been taken or are underway. Funds are also included for radiologic clean-up of Enewetak Atoll to permit eventual resettlement of the area.

Research and development.—The 1976 program includes facilities required in support of programs to advance knowledge and technology in such areas as weapons systems, communications, electronics, and medicine. These programs emphasize reliability, effectiveness, security, and safety, as well as improved capability.

Reserve components.—The increased funding programed for facilities required for the training of the National Guard and the other Reserve forces reflects the importance placed on these activities being identified as the primary source of augmentation of Active forces in future emergencies.

Logistics.—Funding for protective aircraft shelters and construction of facilities to provide physical security of nuclear weapons worldwide, as well as alterations to facilitate energy conservation, is substantially increased over the level provided in recent years.

Personnel support.—A major portion of the 1976 program will provide funds for improved housing, medical, and community support for lower grade enlisted personnel and junior grade officers to encourage their retention in the service and the development of an All-Volunteer Force. Upgrading of existing facilities with the application of improved standards has been provided in addition to new construction.

2. Minor construction.—Provision is made for construction of permanent and temporary projects that are not otherwise authorized by law but which are determined to be urgently required and do not exceed $300 thousand per project for the Active forces and $50 thousand per project for the Reserve component projects. An active force project may be accomplished without determination of urgency if the savings in maintenance and operations cost are estimated to exceed the cost of the project within 3 years after project completion. Maintenance and operations funds may be used where the estimated cost of an Active force project is $50 thousand or less without determination of urgency. The minor construction program will continue at the same relative level during the transition period.

3. Planning.—This provides for necessary planning of military construction projects, including design, standards, criteria, studies, appraisals, and other related activities. Planning activities will continue at approximately the same relative level during the transition period.

4. Supporting activities.—Provision is made for activities such as the defense access road program and minor land acquisition.

FAMILY HOUSING, DEFENSE

The Department of Defense family housing management account (76 Stat. 237) finances the expenses of the military family housing program. Funds provided in annual military construction appropriation acts under the title "Family housing, defense" are transferred to this account for obligation and expenditure. This appropriation is dependent on the enactment of authorizing legislation, the details of which have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration. An appropriation of $1,329.2 million is requested for 1976, of which $228.3 million is for construction of new housing, improvement of existing housing and related projects, and $1,100.9 million is for the operation and maintenance of family housing and related facilities, for leasing of family housing, for payments required on the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing, and to build surplus commodity housing in foreign countries and for authorized payments of servicemen's mortgage insurance premiums. Although no new construction of housing is requested during the transition period, a continuation of minor construction improvements and planning, and funding support for continued operation and maintenance of existing housing is planned.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

1. Construction.—(a) Construction of new housing.—For the fiscal year 1976, the construction of 3,441 new permanent units at an estimated cost of $136.7 million is proposed in furtherance of the continuing effort to provide adequate family housing. The units are distributed by service as follows: Army—2,100; Navy and Marine Corps—1,129; Air Force—200; Defense Intelligence Agency—12. No new construction is planned for the transition period.

(b) Construction improvements.—For 1976, $125.6 million is proposed for the continuing program to improve the livability and operating economy of older units, including $23.2 million for projects qualifying for the Defense energy conservation program and $5.2 million for projects to be accomplished under the authority of 10 U.S.C. 2674. For the transition period, $1.6 million is provided for 10 U.S.C. 2674 projects.

(c) Planning.—Funds are included in the construction of new housing budget activity to design the 3,441 housing units in the 1976 program. Costs to be incurred for planning future year housing projects and for projects which will not go forward to completion are estimated at $1.0 million for fiscal year 1976; $300 thousand for the transition period.

2. Operation, maintenance, and interest payment.—(a) Operation.—For the fiscal year 1976, $436.0 million is required for the operation of an estimated 380,000 family housing units (excluding leased units); and $92.2 million is required to lease 24,741 units in the United States and in foreign countries as part of the program to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel. For the transition period, $114.8 million is required for operations and $28.2 million for leasing.

(b) Maintenance of real property.—The cost of maintenance and repair of the family housing inventory is estimated at $425.0 million for the fiscal year 1976; $127.2 million for the transition period.

(c) Interest payments.—For 1976, $49.8 million is required to defray interest charges on the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing and for related expenses. In addition, appropriation of $107.6 million is required for reduction of agency indebtedness that was assumed with the acquisition of the Capehart, Wherry and surplus commodity housing. For the transition period, $12.1 million is required for interest payments and $27.2 million for debt reduction.

(d) Mortgage insurance premiums.—For 1976, premium payments of $5.0 million are required on mortgage insurance provided by the Federal Housing Administration; (1) through the General insurance funds on mortgages assumed by Defense to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing; and (2) on mortgages assumed by active military personnel for housing purchased under the provisions of 12 U.S.C. 1715m. For the transition period, $1.3 million is required.

This fund finances a program for reducing the losses of military personnel and civilian employees incident to disposition of their one- or two-family dwellings when military installations are closed or when reductions in the scope of operations are ordered. Eligible personnel may be reimbursed for certain losses resulting from the sale of their dwellings located at or near such installations, or the Department of Defense may acquire such property. Proceeds from sale or rental of such property are deposited in this fund. The following business-type statements reflect operations of the program which started in 1968.

From 1967 to 1974, support for South Vietnamese military forces was funded in several Department of Defense appropriations. A separate account was created in 1975 and appropriated to the Secretary of Defense. Beginning July 1, 1976, this program will be authorized under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, and this account appropriated to the President.

This fund represents advances received for goods or services furnished foreign governments and private parties. Authorized individuals and organizations requesting goods or services were required to advance amounts to cover the estimated cost to this fund. Changes in the Navy accounting system permitted the discontinuation of this fund in 1975.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

The Department of Defense stock funds finance the acquisition of inventories of consumable materials and supplies (items which are uneconomical to repair) for resale to the military services and other authorized customers. These inventories are stocked and sold at designated Defense activities worldwide. The stock funds also finance inventories of consumable material for use in case of mobilization.

Budget program.—The increase in obligations in 1975 and 1976 results from an increase in inventory so as to achieve required stock levels. Yearend inventories are estimated as shown below (in millions of dollars):

Financing the budget program.—Funds for financing the budget program are usually derived from sales to customers. An appropriation of $477 million is requested in 1976 to finance a buildup in war reserve assets. During 1974, reductions of inventory levels and sales of inventories capitalized without cost, generated an excess working capital balance of $125 million which was transferred to other appropriations. In 1975, a cash deficit is anticipated in the stock funds due to rapidly rising cost of purchase prices. Consequently, $220 million has been transferred into the stock funds; $120 million from other appropriated accounts, and $100 million from the Department of Defense Industrial Fund. Expenditures in 1976 are projected to increase by $1,599 million from 1975 as a result of continuing price increase in materials purchased, particularly petroleum and related products. Yearly expenditures are estimated as shown below (in millions of dollars):

	Gross expenditures
	1974 actual	1975 estimate	1976 estimate
Army stock fund.....	2,838	3,395	3,433
Navy stock fund.....	1,790	2,209	2,430
Marine Corps stock fund.....	196	206	190
Air Force stock fund.....	3,588	4,443	5,148
Defense stock fund.....	3,943	5,256	5,907
Total Department of Defense stock funds.....	12,355	15,509	17,108

Department of Defense stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future years' sales. This is necessary because the procurement lead time for material acquisition is greater than the time required to fill and collect customer orders. Pursuant to this authority, contract authority of $1,995 million was available at the end of 1974, decreasing to $1,694 million in 1976.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Net gains of $203 million are forecast for 1975 and net gains of $760 million are forecast for 1976.

Investment (equity) of the U.S. Government at the end of 1976 is estimated at $11,599 million; including $19,727 million in inventory and other assets capitalized less $5,828 million in working capital transferred out and a cumulative operating deficit of $2,300 million.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance activities performing industrial or commercial type functions on a reimbursable basis. These programs are supported by orders received at the activities from a variety of service accounts whose funds provide the working capital for their completion. Industrial fund activities are then reimbursed by customers through progress payments for the full production costs. Government investment as of June 30, 1976, is estimated at $529,070 million.

Budget program.—In 1975, $100 million will be transferred from the DOD industrial fund to the DOD stock fund to cover an anticipated cash deficit in that account. Estimated total costs of goods and services produced in 1976 are projected to increase by $253,270 million, reflecting an increase in support requirements. Yearend totals are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

Army industrial fund.....	1,734,148	1,840,691	1,871,366
Navy industrial fund.....	4,891,606	5,453,513	5,478,171
Marine Corps industrial fund.....	22,173	23,398	24,256
Air Force industrial fund.....	2,150,986	2,365,162	2,561,527
Defense industrial fund.....	399,522	417,602	418,317
Total.....	9,198,435	10,100,366	10,353,637

The U.S. Army activities financed through the Army industrial fund include depot supply and maintenance operations, research and development, arsenals and technical engineering, the U.S. Army Missile Command and the Eastern and Western areas of the Military Traffic Management Command. The Frankford Arsenal will be discontinued as an Army industrial fund activity in 1976. The increase in cost of goods and services produced in 1976 reflects a greatly expanded depot maintenance program for the Army to reduce accumulated backlogs.

The Navy industrial fund finances a variety of activities, including aircraft maintenance facilities, ordnance stations, research laboratories, shipyards, strategic systems project offices, printing plants, public work centers, and the Military Sealift Command. Workload at the industrially funded facilities is projected to remain relatively level between 1975 and 1976.

The Marine Corps industrial fund finances maintenance depots engaged in repairing or overhauling Marine Corps equipment and providing technical engineering support. The increase in costs and services in 1976 is related to an accelerated depot maintenance program to reduce backlogs and to an increase in services being provided to customers.

The activities financed under the Air Force industrial fund include printing plants, laundries, depot maintenance activities, and the Military Airlift Command. In 1974, printing plants at Griffiss and Norton Air Force Bases were closed and the laundry at Tyndall was converted to a contract operation. The increase in the costs of goods and services produced in 1976 results from higher in-house operating costs, increased contractual service costs, and the rise in price of aviation fuel.

The Defense industrial fund finances the operations of the Defense Clothing Factory and leased communications procured by the Defense Commercial Communications Office. The cost of operations is projected to remain relatively level between 1975 and 1976.

This fund was created to simplify the financing and accounting for operations supported by two or more appropriations. The corpus of the fund consists of $1 million. Activities presently financed through the fund are as follows:

1. Defense telephone service, Washington, D.C.—Finances the operation of the telephone service for the Department of Defense in the Washington metropolitan area. Increased payments during 1975 reflect the inclusion of Walter Reed Medical Center, and other minor additions to the system are reflected for the first time during 1975.

2. Transportation services.—Provides for the payment centrally of transportation charges for Government bills of lading, transportation requests, meal tickets, and other charges incident to transportation costs incurred by the Army.

3. Construction activity, Europe.—This activity of the fund is programmed for complete phase-out by the end of December 1974. Functions are being transferred to appropriate engineer units in the area.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 801. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 802. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, respectively, if they should deem it advantageous to the national defense, and if in their opinions the existing facilities of the Department of Defense are inadequate, are authorized to procure services in accordance with section 3109 of title 5, United States Code, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense; and to pay in connection therewith travel expenses of individuals, including actual transportation and per diem in lieu of subsistence while traveling from their homes or places of business to official duty station and return as may be authorized by law: Provided, That such contracts may be renewed annually.

SEC. 803. During the current fiscal year, provisions of law prohibiting the payment of compensation to, or employment of, any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to personnel of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 804. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for insurance of official motor vehicles in foreign countries, when required by laws of such countries; payments in advance of expenses determined by the investigating officer to be necessary and in accord with local custom for conducting investigations in foreign countries incident to matters relating to the activities of the department concerned; reimbursement of General Services Administration for security guard services for protection of confidential files; reimbursement of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for expenses in connection with investigation of defense contractor personnel; and all necessary expenses, at the seat of government of the United States of America or elsewhere, in connection with communication and other services and supplies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 805. Any appropriation available to the Army, Navy, or the Air Force may, under such regulations as the Secretary concerned may prescribe, be used for expenses incident to the maintenance, pay, and allowances of prisoners of war, other persons in Army, Navy, or Air Force custody whose status is determined by the Secretary concerned to be similar to prisoners of war, and persons detained in such custody pursuant to Presidential proclamation.

SEC. 806. Appropriations available to the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year for maintenance or construction shall be available for acquisition of land or interest therein as authorized by section 2672 or 2675 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 807. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available, (a) except as authorized by the Act of September 30, 1950 (20 U.S.C. 236-244), for primary and secondary schooling for minor dependents of military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense residing on military or naval installations or stationed in foreign countries, as authorized for the Navy by section 7204 of title 10, United States Code, [in an amount not exceeding $202,343,000,] when the Secretary of the Department concerned finds that schools, if any, available in the locality, are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents: Provided, That under such regulations as may be issued by the Secretary of Defense, such schooling in a school operated by the Department of Defense under this section may be provided without tuition for minor dependents of civilian and military personnel of the Department of Defense who died while entitled to compensation or active duty pay: Provided further, That where such personnel die subsequent to January 11, 1971, such schooling must be continued or commenced within one year after the date of death; (b) for expenses in connection with administration of occupied areas; (c) for payment of rewards as authorized for the Navy by section 7209(a) of title 10, United States Code, for information leading to the discovery of missing naval property or the recovery thereof; (d) for payment of deficiency judgments and interests thereon arising out of condemnation proceedings; (e) for leasing of buildings and facilities including payment of rentals for special purpose space at the seat of government, and in the conduct of field exercises and maneuvers or, in administering the provisions of title 43, United States Code, section 315g, rentals may be paid in advance; (f) payments under contracts for maintenance of tools and facilities for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; (g) maintenance of defense access roads certified as important to national defense in accordance with section 210 of title 23, United States Code; (h) for the purchase of milk for enlisted personnel of the Department of Defense heretofore made available pursuant to section 1446a, title 7, United States Code, and the cost of milk so purchased, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, shall be included in the value of the commuted ration; (i) transporting civilian clothing to the home of record of selective service inductees and recruits on entering the military services; (j) payments under leases for real or personal property for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; and (k) pay and allowances of not to exceed nine persons, including personnel detailed to International Military Headquarters and Organizations, at rates provided for under section 625(d)(1) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended.

SEC. 808. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) donations of not to exceed $25 to each prisoner upon each release from confinement in military or contract prison and to each person discharged for fraudulent enlistment; (b) authorized issues of articles to prisoners, applicants for enlistment and persons in military custody; (c) subsistence of selective service registrants called for induction, applicants for enlistment, prisoners, civilian employees as authorized by law, and supernumeraries when necessitated by emergent military circumstances; (d) reimbursement for subsistence of enlisted personnel while sick in hospitals; (e) expenses of prisoners confined in non-military facilities; (f) military courts, boards, and commissions; (g) utility services for buildings erected at private cost, as authorized by law, and buildings on military reservations authorized by regulations to be used for welfare and recreational purposes; (h) exchange fees, and losses in the accounts of disbursing officers or agents in accordance with law; (i) expenses of Latin American cooperation as authorized for the Navy by law (10 U.S.C. 7208); and (j) expenses of apprehension and delivery of deserters, prisoners, and members absent without leave, including payment of rewards of not to exceed $25 in any one case.

SEC. 809. Insofar as practicable, the Secretary of Defense shall assist American small business to participate equitably in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated under this Act by making available or causing to be made available to suppliers in the United States, and particularly to small independent enterprises, information, as far in advance as possible, with respect to purchases proposed to be financed with funds appropriated under this Act, and by making available or causing to be made available to purchasing and contracting agencies of the Department of Defense information as to commodities and services produced and furnished by small independent enterprises in the United States, and by otherwise helping to give small business an opportunity to participate in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated by this Act.

SEC. 810. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expenses of operation of messes (other than organized messes the operating expenses of which are financed principally from non-appropriated funds) at which meals are sold to officers or civilians, except under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, which shall (except under unusual or extraordinary circumstances) establish rates for such meals sufficient to provide reimbursements of operating expenses and food costs to the appropriations concerned: Provided, That officers and civilians in a travel status receiving a per diem allowance in lieu of subsistence shall be charged at the rate of not less than $2.50 per day: Provided further, That for the purposes of this section payments for meals at the rates established hereunder may be made in cash or by deduction from the pay of civilian employees: Provided further, That members of organized nonprofit youth groups sponsored at either the national or local level, when extended the privilege of visiting a military installation and permitted to eat in the general mess by the commanding officer of the installation, shall pay the commuted ration cost of such meal or meals.

SEC. 811. [No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.] Unless otherwise expressly provided, appropriations contained in this act shall remain available for obligation until September 30, 1976.

SEC. 812. Appropriations of the Department of Defense available for operation and maintenance may be reimbursed during the current fiscal year for all expenses involved in the preparation for disposal and for the disposal of military supplies, equipment, and materiel, and for all expenses of production of lumber or timber products pursuant to section 2665 of title 10, United States Code, from amounts received as proceeds from the sale of any such property: Provided, That a report of receipts and disbursements under this limitation shall be made quarterly to Congress: Provided further, That no funds available to agencies of the Department of Defense shall be used for the operation, acquisition, or construction of new facilities or equipment for new facilities in the continental limits of the United States for metal scrap baling or shearing or for melting or sweating aluminum scrap unless the Secretary of Defense or an Assistant Secretary of Defense designated by him determines, with respect to each facility involved, that the operation of such facility is in the national interest.

SEC. 813. (a) During the current fiscal year, the President may exempt appropriations, funds, and contract authorizations, available for military functions under the Department of Defense, from the provisions of subsection (c) of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, whenever he deems such action to be necessary in the interest of national defense.

(b) Upon determination by the President that such action is necessary, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of an airborne alert as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of Revised Statutes 3732 (41 U.S.C. 11).

(c) Upon determination by the President that it is necessary to increase the number of military personnel on active duty subject to existing laws beyond the number for which funds are provided in this Act, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of such increased military personnel, as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of Revised Statutes 3732 (41 U.S.C. 11).

(d) The Secretary of Defense shall immediately advise Congress of the exercise of any authority granted in this section, and shall report monthly on the estimated obligations incurred pursuant to subsections (b) and (c).

SEC. 814. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores of the agencies of the Department of Defense (1) from July 1, 1975, to September 30, 1975; for the cost of purchase (including commercial transportation in the United States to the place of sale but excluding all transportation outside the United States) and maintenance of operating equipment and supplies, and for the actual or estimated cost of utilities as may be furnished by the Government and of shrinkage, spoilage, and pilferage of merchandise under the control of such commissary [stores,] stores; (2) from October 1, 1975, to September 30, 1976, in addition to the limitations contained in (1) above, in excess of 50 per centum of the cost of civilian and military personnel working in such commissary store systems; and (3) after September 30, 1976, in addition to the limitations contained in (1) above, any cost of civilian and military personnel working in such commissary store systems; except as authorized under regulations promulgated by the Secretaries of the military departments concerned with the approval of the Secretary of Defense, which regulations shall provide for reimbursement therefor to the appropriations concerned and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, shall provide for the adjustment of the sales prices in such commissary stores to the extent necessary to furnish sufficient gross revenue from sales of commissary stores to make such reimbursement: Provided, That under such regulations as may be issued pursuant to this section all utilities may be furnished without cost to the commissary stores outside the continental United States and in [Alaska:] Alaska until September 30, 1975, and during the period October 1, 1975, to September 30, 1976, such utilities may be furnished subject to reimbursement of the appropriations concerned of 50 per centum of such costs: Provided further, That no appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores within the continental United States unless the Secretary of Defense has certified that items normally procured from commissary stores are not otherwise available at a reasonable distance and a reasonable price in satisfactory quality and quantity to the military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 815. No part of the appropriations in this Act shall be available for any expense of operating aircraft under the jurisdiction of the armed forces for the purpose of proficiency flying, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 1340.4, except in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense. Such regulations (1) may not require such flying except that required to maintain proficiency in anticipation of a member's assignment to combat operations and (2) such flying may not be permitted in cases of members who have been assigned to a course of instruction of ninety days or more.

SEC. 816. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expense of transportation, packing, crating, temporary storage, drayage, and unpacking of household goods and personal effects in any one shipment having a net weight in excess of thirteen thousand five hundred pounds.

SEC. 817. Vessels under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce, the Department of the Army, Department of the Air Force, or the Department of the Navy may be transferred or otherwise made available without reimbursement to any such agencies upon the request of the head of one agency and the approval of the agency having jurisdiction of the vessels concerned.

SEC. 818. Not more than 20 per centum of the appropriations in this Act which are limited for obligation during the [current] fiscal year 1976, shall be obligated during the last two months of the fiscal year: Provided, That this section shall not apply to obligations for support of active duty training of civilian components or summer-camp training of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

SEC. 819. During the current fiscal year the agencies of the Department of Defense may accept the use of real property from foreign countries for the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and may accept services furnished by foreign countries as reciprocal international courtesies or as services customarily made available without charge; and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas without specific appropriation therefor.

In addition to the foregoing, agencies of the Department of Defense may accept real property, services, and commodities from foreign countries for the use of the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas, without specific appropriations therefor: Provided, That the foregoing authority shall not be available for the conversion of heating plants from coal to oil at defense facilities in Europe: Provided further, That within thirty days after the end of each quarter the Secretary of Defense shall render to Congress and to the Office of Management and Budget a full report of such property, supplies, and commodities received during such quarter.

SEC. 820. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for research and development may be used for the purposes of section 2353 of title 10, United States Code, and for purposes related to research and development for which expenditures are specifically authorized in other appropriations of the service concerned.

SEC. 821. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of more than 75 per centum of charges of educational institutions for tuition or expenses of off-duty training of military personnel, nor for the payment of any part of tuition or expenses for such training for commissioned personnel who do not agree to remain on active duty for two years after completion of such training.

SEC. 822. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be expended for the support of any formally enrolled student in basic courses of the senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, who has not executed a certificate of loyalty or loyalty oath in such form as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 823. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the procurement of any article of food, clothing, cotton, woven silk or woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, synthetic fabric or coated synthetic fabric, or wool (whether in the form of fiber or yarn or contained in fabrics, materials, or manufactured articles), or specialty metals not grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions, except to the extent that the Secretary of the Department concerned shall determine that a satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of any articles of food or clothing or any form of cotton, woven silk and woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, synthetic fabric or coated synthetic fabric, wool, or specialty metals grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions cannot be procured as and when needed at United States market prices and except procurements outside the United States in support of combat operations, procurements by vessels in foreign waters, and emergency procurements or procurements of perishable foods by establishments located outside the United States for the personnel attached thereto: Provided, That nothing herein shall preclude the procurement of foods manufactured or processed in the United States or its possessions: Provided further, That no funds herein appropriated shall be used for the payment of a price differential on contracts hereafter made for the purpose of relieving economic dislocations: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used except that, so far as practicable, all contracts shall be awarded on a formally advertised competitive bid basis to the lowest responsible bidder.

SEC. 824. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or drycleaning facility in the United States, its territories or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 825. During the current fiscal year, appropriations of the Department of Defense shall be available for reimbursement to the United States Postal Service for payment of costs of commercial air transportation of military mail between the United States and foreign countries.

SEC. 826. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for the purchase of household furnishings, and automobiles from military and civilian personnel on duty outside the continental United States, for the purpose of resale at cost to incoming personnel, and for providing furnishings, without charge, in other than public quarters occupied by military or civilian personnel of the Department of Defense on duty outside the continental United States or in Alaska, upon a determination, under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, that such action is advantageous to the Government.

SEC. 827. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for pay of civilian employees shall be available for uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901; 80 Stat. 508).

SEC. 828. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense shall, upon requisition of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, and without reimbursement, transfer from agencies of the Department of Defense to the board ammunition from stock or which has been procured for the purposes in such amounts as he may determine.

Such appropriations of the Department of Defense available for obligation during the current fiscal year as may be designated by the Secretary of Defense shall be available for the travel expenses of military and naval personnel, including the Reserve components, and members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps attending regional, national, or international rifle matches.

SEC. 829. Funds provided in this Act for congressional liaison activities of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense shall not exceed [$1,320,000] $1,500,000 for fiscal year 1976, and $376,000 for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976: Provided, That this amount shall be available for apportionment to the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense as determined by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 830. Of the funds made available by this Act for the services of the Military Airlift Command, $100,000,000 shall be available only for procurement of commercial transportation service from carriers participating in the civil reserve air fleet program; and the Secretary of Defense shall utilize the services of such carriers which qualify as small businesses to the fullest extent found practicable: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall specify in such procurement, performance characteristics for aircraft to be used based upon modern aircraft operated by the civil air fleet.

SEC. 831. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for operation may be used for civilian clothing, not to exceed $40 in cost for enlisted personnel: (1) discharged for misconduct, unfitness, unsuitability, or otherwise than honorably; (2) sentenced by a civil court to confinement in a civil prison or interned or discharged as an alien enemy; (3) discharged prior to completion of recruit training under honorable conditions for dependency, hardship, minority, disability, or for the convenience of the Government.

SEC. 832. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for paying the costs of advertising by any defense contractor, except advertising for which payment is made from profits, and such advertising shall not be considered a part of any defense contract cost. The prohibition contained in this section shall not apply with respect to advertising conducted by any such contractor, in compliance with regulations which shall be promulgated by the Secretary of Defense, solely for (1) the recruitment by the contractor of personnel required for the performance by the contractor of obligations under a defense contract, (2) the procurement of scarce items required by the contractor for the performance of a defense contract, or (3) the disposal of scrap or surplus materials acquired by the contractor in the performance of a defense contract.

SEC. 833. Funds appropriated in this Act for maintenance and repair of facilities and installations shall not be available for acquisition of new facilities, or alteration, expansion, extension, or addition of existing facilities, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2, dated January 18, 1961, in excess of $50,000: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may amend or change the said directive during the current fiscal year, consistent with the purpose of this section.

SEC. 834. [During the current fiscal year] Upon determination by the Secretary of Defense that such action is necessary in the national interest, he may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed $750,000,000 during the fiscal year 1976, and $185,000,000 during the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, of the appropriations or funds available to the Department of Defense for military functions (except military construction) between such appropriations or funds or any subdivision thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided, That such authority to transfer may not be used unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated, and in no case where the item for which funds are requested has been denied by Congress: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority.

SEC. 835. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any program, project, or activity in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.

SEC. 836. During the current fiscal year, cash balances in working capital funds of the Department of Defense established pursuant to section 2208 of title 10, United States Code, may be maintained in only such amounts as are necessary at any time for cash disbursements to be made from such funds: Provided, That transfers may be made between such funds in such amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget.

SEC. 837. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to pay salaries of any Federal employee who is convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, or any group activity resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.

SEC. 838. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, or a grant to any applicant who has been convicted by any court of general jurisdiction of any crime which involves the use of or the assistance to others in the use of force, trespass, or the seizure of property under control of an institution of higher education to prevent officials or students at such an institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies.

SEC. 839. None of the funds herein appropriated may be obligated or expended to finance directly or indirectly combat activities by United States military forces in or over or from off the shores of North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos, or Cambodia.

SEC. 840. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense shall be utilized for the conversion of heating plants from coal to oil at defense facilities in Europe.

SEC. 841. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available for any research involving uninformed or nonvoluntary human beings as experimental subjects.

SEC. 842. Appropriations for the current fiscal year for operation and maintenance of the active forces shall be available for medical and dental care of personnel entitled thereto by law or regulation (including charges of private facilities for care of military personnel, except elective private treatment); welfare and recreation; hire of passenger motor vehicles; repair of facilities; modification of personal property; design of vessels; industrial mobilization; installation of equipment in public or private plants; military communications facilities on merchant vessels; acquisition of services, special clothing, supplies, and equipment; and expenses for the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and other units at educational institutions.

SEC. 843. No part of the funds in this Act shall be available to prepare or present a request to the Committees on Appropriations for the reprogramming of funds, unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated and in no case where the item for which reprogramming is requested has been denied by the Congress.

SEC. 844. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to furnish petroleum fuels produced in the continental United States to Southeast Asia for use by non-United States nationals.

SEC. 845. [No part of any appropriation, funds, or other authority contained in this Act shall be available for paying to the Administrator of the General Services Administration in excess of 90 per centum of the standard level user charge established pursuant to section 210(j) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended for space and services] Obligations hereafter incurred for advance payments of pay and allowances pursuant to section 1006 of title 37, United States Code, shall be recorded as obligations only in the fiscal year in which such payments are earned.

[SEC. 846. (a) During the last quarter of the fiscal year 1975, no funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the pay, compensation, or allowances of commissioned officer personnel on active duty in the Armed Forces (excluding Reserve officers on active duty training or Reserve officers and Retired officers ordered to active duty for periods of thirty days or less) in excess of the following numbers in each grade:

Ranks:	Department of Defense
O-10: General or admiral.....	36
O-9: Lieutenant general or vice admiral.....	128
O-8: Major general or rear admiral.....	436
O-7: Brigadier general or rear admiral.....	576

O-5: Lieutenant colonel or commander.....	32, 986
O-4: Major or lieutenant commander.....	54, 623

(b) Vacancies within the allowances prescribed by subsection (a) of this section for any grade may be assigned to any lower grade or grades.]

[SEC. 847. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be available for use after May 31, 1975; to support United States military forces stationed or otherwise assigned to duty outside the United States in any number greater than 452,500, not including military personnel assigned to duty aboard United States naval vessels.]

SEC. [848] 846. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used to support more than five hundred enlisted aides in the United States Armed Forces.

[SEC. 849. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be used for site acquisition or construction of the Conus Over-The-Horizon (OTH) radar system receiver antenna during the period beginning with the date of enactment of this Act and ending May 31, 1975.]

[SEC. 850. No funds appropriated to the Department of Defense in this Act may be used to transfer war materials to any foreign country, unless such transfers are specifically authorized by law.]

SEC. 847. Funds made available for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, shall be available for the same purposes as the corresponding appropriation for fiscal year 1976, and shall be subject to the provisions of this title applicable to fiscal year 1976, unless otherwise specifically provided.

SEC. 848. Any appropriation heretofore made available for "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy", which would otherwise expire for obligation on June 30, 1975, or on any other specified date thereafter, shall remain available until expended.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

SEC. 101. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction in prior years are hereby made available for construction authorized for each such department by the authorizations enacted into law during the [second] first session of the [Ninety-third] Ninety-fourth Congress.

SEC. 102. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for payments under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract for work, where cost estimates exceed $25,000, to be performed within the United States, except Alaska, without the specific approval in writing of the Secretary of Defense setting forth the reasons therefor.

SEC. 103. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for additional costs involved in expediting construction unless the Secretary of Defense certifies such costs to be necessary to protect the national interest and establishes a reasonable completion date for each project, taking into consideration the urgency of the requirement, the type and location of the project, the climatic and seasonal conditions affecting the construction, and the application of economical construction practices.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or drycleaning facility in the United States, its territories, or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify, in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 105. Funds herein appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles.

SEC. 106. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction may be used for advances to the Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, for the construction of access roads as authorized by section 210 of title 23, United States Code, when projects authorized therein are certified as important to the national defense by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 107. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to begin construction of new bases inside the continental United States for which specific appropriations have not been made.

SEC. 108. No part of the funds provided in this Act shall be used for purchase of land or land easements in excess of 100 per centum of the value as determined by the Corps of Engineers or the Naval Facilities Engineering Command, except: (a) where there is a determination of value by a Federal court, or (b) purchases negotiated by the Attorney General or his designee, or (c) where the estimated value is less than $25,000, or (d) as otherwise determined by the Secretary of Defense to be in the public interest.

SEC. 109. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any project in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.

SEC. 110. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to (1) acquire land, (2) provide for site preparation, or (3) install utilities for any family housing, except housing for which funds have been made available in annual military construction appropriation Acts: Provided, That funds in this Act may be available for family housing in accordance with section 502 of the Military Construction Authorization Act, 1975, excluding the costs of design and supervision, inspection and overhead.]

[SEC. 111. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds available to the Department of Defense during the current fiscal year for the construction of family housing units may be used to purchase sole interest in privately owned and Federal Housing Commissioner held family housing units if the Secretary of Defense determines it is in the best interests of the Government to do so: Provided, That family housing units so purchased do not exceed annual Military Construction Authorization Act limitations on unit cost and numbers and are at the locations authorized: Provided further, That housing units so purchased are within the size limitations of title 10, United States Code, section 2684.]

SEC. 111. Funds made available for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, shall be available for the same purpose as the corresponding appropriation for fiscal year 1976.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—CIVIL DEFENSE

SEC. 1. Appropriations contained in this Act for carrying out civil defense activities shall not be available in excess of the limitations on appropriations contained in section 408 of the Federal Civil Defense Act, as amended (50 U.S.C. App. 2260).

SEC. 2. No part of any appropriation in this Act shall be available for the construction of warehouses or for the lease of warehouse space in any building which is to be constructed specifically for civil defense activities.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—CIVIL

CEMETERIAL EXPENSES, ARMY

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses, as authorized by law, of maintenance, operation, and improvement of the cemetery at the Soldiers' and Airmen's Home and Arlington National Cemetery, including the purchase of three passenger motor vehicles [of which two shall be] for replacement only, [$258,000] $5,617,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That reimbursement shall be made to the applicable military appropriation for the pay and allowances of any military personnel performing services primarily for the purposes of this appropriation.

For "Salaries and expenses" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $966,000, to remain available until expended. (24 U.S.C. 295a; Department of Housing and Urban Development; Space, Science, Veterans, and Certain Other Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1975.)

This appropriation provides funds for the operation and maintenance of the cemetery at the Soldiers' and Airmen's Home and Arlington National Cemetery.

1. Operation and maintenance.—A total of 3,003 interments are projected for 1976. There are 750 projected for the 3-month period, July 1–September 30, 1976. There will be 574 developed acres to be maintained in 1976.

2. Construction and 3. Headstone procurement.—Complete responsibility for these activities has now been transferred to the Veterans Administration.

4. Administrative activity.—Provision is made in this activity for determining eligibility for interment; management of Arlington and Soldiers' Home National Cemeteries; and administrative support.

5. Special construction, Arlington National Cemetery.—Funds are being requested to continue or initiate projects such as a survey and design, a permanent visitors' center, design of a modular columbarium with a 10,000 niche capacity, and a Bicentennial parking area.

Necessary operating expenses, such as salaries, are being requested for the transition period.

CORPS OF ENGINEERS—CIVIL

The Civil Works program of the Corps of Engineers consists of a number of related activities for the control and development for beneficial use of water resources in the United States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

The requested appropriation is $1,946 million, which is $240 million more than the 1975 appropriation, and $176 million more than the appropriation for 1974.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

The following appropriations shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for authorized civil functions of the Department of the Army pertaining to rivers and harbors, flood control, beach erosion, and related purposes:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For expenses necessary for the collection and study of basic information pertaining to river and harbor, flood control, shore protection, and related projects, restudy of authorized projects, and when authorized by law, surveys and studies of projects prior to authorization for construction, [$65,284,000] $62,200,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That [$1,490,000] $1,500,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565), to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Department of the Army.

For "General investigations" for the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976, $16,550,000, to remain available until expended. (16 U.S.C. 661; Public Works for Water and Power Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1975.)

1. Surveys.—Navigation and flood control studies are made to determine the need and economic justification for proposed water and related land resource developments. Beach erosion control studies are undertaken to determine the need for shore protection and remedial measures at specific localities. Funds are provided in 1976 to continue 193 studies. Five new studies will be undertaken, placing major emphasis on the solution of urgent urban area water problems.

Comprehensive river basin studies provide for broad consideration of water and related land resource needs of river basins. They are coordinated with the related river basin planning efforts of the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture and other concerned agencies.

Work will be continued in 1976 on the following comprehensive basin studies:

1. Hawaii framework.
2. Maumee River Basin, Ohio, Ind., and Mich.
3. Minneapolis-St. Paul Metropolitan Area, Minn.
4. Pacific Northwest River Basin, Idaho, Mont., Oreg., and Wash.

In addition, funds are provided for preparation of authorization reports on the following:

1. Connecticut River Basin, Conn., Mass., N.H., and Vt.
2. Kanawha River Basin, W. Va., N.C. and Va.
3. Puget Sound and adjacent waters, Wash.
4. Susquehanna River Basin, N.Y., Pa., and Md.
5. Wabash River Basin, Ind., and Ill.
6. Willamette River Basin, Oreg.

Special studies are made to resolve unique or especially complex water resources problems. Funds are requested to initiate one and continue seven special studies.

Funds are provided to restudy six authorized projects now carried in a deferred category.

Funds also are provided, in accordance with the Flood Control Act of 1970, to review the operation of completed projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers when found advisable due to significantly changed physical or economic conditions and recommendations are made to Congress for desirable modifications.

Funds are provided, in accordance with section 12, Water Resources Development Act of 1974, to continue studies of projects requiring a detailed review prior to making decisions regarding recommendations for deauthorization.

Funds are also provided to continue a detailed economic restudy of one project (Montgomery to Gadsden, Coosa River Channel, Ala.)

Surveys are made in coordination with Federal, State, and local agencies and interests. They give appropriate consideration to present and future requirements for all beneficial uses of water and related land resources, including navigation, flood control, water supply, irrigation, water quality control, power, recreation, and fish and wildlife conservation.

2. Collection and study of basic data.—Funds are transferred to the U.S. Geological Survey for installation, operation, and maintenance of stream gaging stations; to the National Weather Service for hydrometeorological studies; and to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for preauthorization studies of the effects of proposed projects upon fish and wildlife. The Corps of Engineers participates on a number of engineering and control boards that study and control international streams mutually affecting the United States and Canada. Information about the flood hazard, advice, and assistance are furnished to the States and local governmental agencies upon their request, and to other Federal agencies for guidance in the management of flood plain areas to assure the best and safest use of such areas. General hydrologic and related studies are made to assist in optimizing the design, construction, and operation of projects. Scientific and technical information centers prepare and distribute literature to scientists and engineers to improve their knowledge of new developments in their fields.

3. Research and development.—These studies are conducted to: Improve procedures for collecting and analyzing engineering, socioeconomic, and environmental data; improve procedures used in formulating plans for water resources development and management; refine design techniques; and develop better materials and practices for the construction, operation, and maintenance of water resources facilities. The current program of studies is comprised of investigations in the areas of: Materials, primarily soils, rock, concrete, and material interactions; coastal engineering, including wave mechanics, coastal processes, coastal construction, and bays and harbors; flood control and navigation, including waterways, locks and dams, improvement of operation and maintenance techniques, hydrology of cold regions, and ice engineering; environmental quality, including environmental impact, reservoir water quality, and wastewater management; and water resources planning studies, including policy formulation studies, planning methodologies, and analytical techniques for water resources management.
