1. Grants for disadvantaged.—Grants are made to local educational agencies to help them provide compensatory services aimed at improving the educational programs in order to meet the special educational needs of educationally deprived children. In addition, grants are made to State education agencies for handicapped children, dependent and neglected children and orphans and juvenile delinquents in State institutions and for children of migratory workers. It is estimated that over 5 million children in 50 States and some 13,000 school districts will receive benefits in 1977. This includes an estimated 225 thousand children in nonpublic schools. Contracts are also awarded to support program evaluation and related studies. Since 1976, funds under this program have been appropriated a year in advance of their use by school districts. The present request includes an advance appropriation of $1,900,000,000 for school year 1977-78 to become available on July 1, 1977, and to remain available through September 30, 1978. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

2. Support and innovation.—The Education Amendments of 1974 authorized the consolidation of several categorical programs: Strengthening State departments of education, Supplementary services, Nutrition and health, and Dropout prevention. Formula grants are made to States to support activities in these areas. Since 1976, funds under this program have been appropriated a year in advance of their use by school districts. The present request includes an advance appropriation of $172,888 thousand for school year 1977-78 to become available on July 1, 1977, and to remain available through September 30, 1978. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

3. Bilingual education.—This program will support local bilingual education classroom demonstration projects and assist in developing State, local, and university capabilities for training bilingual personnel and in providing resources for the development, assessment, and dissemination of bilingual instructional materials.

In 1977, school year 1977-78, the program will support an estimated 363 classroom projects enrolling approximately 184,755 children, provide inservice training for 24,093 teachers, paraprofessionals and administrators, sponsor traineeships and fellowships to over 1,040 teachers and potential teachers in the area of bilingual education, fund awards to some 33 institutions of higher education for activities including staff and program development in the field of bilingual education, and develop, evaluate and disseminate curriculum materials for use nationally in bilingual education programs.

4. Right to read.—The purpose of this program is to provide facilitating services and resources to stimulate educational institutions, governmental agencies and private organizations to improve and expand their activities related to reading. The Right to read program is both an impetus to and a component of a large national reading effort. The goal of this national effort is to eliminate functional illiteracy in this country to the extent that by 1980, 99% of the population 16 years of age will be functionally literate.

6. Followthrough.—This program is designed to test alternative educational approaches for disadvantaged children in primary grades. In 1977, the program will continue in its phaseout strategy.

6. Educational broadcasting facilities.—Matching grants are made for acquisition and installation of electronic equipment to be used in noncommercial educational broadcasting stations to serve the educational, cultural and informational needs of Americans in homes and schools. Amounts requested in 1977 will provide for upgrading and activating educational TV and radio stations. In 1977, contingent upon enactment of authorizing legislation, funds will also be used to demonstrate telecommunications systems for the provision of health, education, and social services using such facilities as community satellite receivers.

7. Civil rights advisory services.—Grants and contracts are awarded for technical assistance in the preparation, adoption and implementation of plans for the desegregation of public schools and to provide services and training for people to deal effectively with special educational problems occasioned by desegregation. In 1976 and 1977, this program is being shown under the Emergency school aid appropriation.

8. Libraries and instructional resources.—In 1976 and 1977, support for this activity is requested in the Library resources appropriation.

9. Educational television programing.—Contracts are awarded for the development and demonstration of educational TV programs, with emphasis on disadvantaged children. This activity is included under the Special projects and training appropriation in 1976 and 1977.

10. Drug abuse education.—Project grants are made to develop drug education leadership teams at the State and local level through a variety of training programs, and to provide technical assistance to such teams to aid them in assessing local drug problems, develop programs and skilled leadership to combat their causes, and evaluate existing drug problems. No funds are requested for this program in 1977.

11. Environmental education.—Grants are awarded to both public and private nonprofit organizations and agencies to assist the development of effective environmental education resources needed for the development of programs at all levels of formal education and for non-formal adult education. No funds are requested in 1977.

entitlement for 3(b) category children; 57% to 60% of entitlement for special provisions; and 100% of entitlement for payments to other Federal agencies. These funds were sufficient to fund payment tiers I and II, including low-rent public housing provisions. In addition $11,000 thousand was provided for hold-harmless provisions (B) and (C). For 1977, funds will be requested to provide 88% to 100% of entitlement for 3(a) category children; 57% to 60% of entitlement for special provisions, and 100% of entitlement for payments to other Federal agencies. No funds will be requested for 3(b) children, children associated with low-rent public housing, or hold-harmless provisions (B) and (C).

From 1951 through 1976, over $1,490 million has been appropriated for this program aiding in the construction of over 77,000 classrooms to house over 2 million pupils in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and Wake Island. In recent years funding emphasis has been placed on section 5, construction assistance to local educational agencies impacted by Federal activities and section 14, construction assistance for children residing on Indian lands. In 1976, emphasis was also placed on funding section 10, schools constructed on Federal property. For 1977, funds will continue to be allocated among sections 5, 10, and 14.

This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

(b) Deaf-blind centers.—Contracts are awarded to regional centers to provide, through a series of subcontracts, diagnostic, educational, and related services to deaf-blind children and their families. The centers also initiate whatever ancillary services are necessary to assure that these children can achieve their full potential for useful participation in society.

2. Special population programs.—(a) Severely handicapped projects.—Contracts are awarded to establish and expand programs and practices to meet the educational and training needs of severely handicapped children and youth. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

(b) Specific learning disabilities.—Grants and contracts are awarded to stimulate State and local provision of identification, diagnostic, prescriptive and educational services for learning disabled children and their parents through the funding of model programs, technical assistance, and teacher-training activities. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

(c) Early childhood education.—Demonstrations, technical assistance, and dissemination activities are supported to provide educational, diagnostic, and consultative services for preschool handicapped children and their parents. The projects are designed to stimulate and influence the development of additional services for preschool handicapped children. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

3. Regional vocational, adult, and postsecondary programs.—Contracts are awarded to develop and operate regional programs for deaf and other handicapped persons in the area of vocational, technical, postsecondary or adult education, building on existing resources and facilities currently serving regional needs. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

4. Innovation and development.—Grants and contracts are awarded for curriculum and materials development, research in personnel development, and other research and development projects, including those in the field of physical education and recreation research for handicapped children. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

5. Media and resource services.—(a) Media services and captioned films.—Contracts and grants are made for the acquisition, captioning, production, and distribution of films and other educational media, and the training of persons in the use of such materials for the handicapped. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

(b) Regional resource centers.—Contracts are awarded for the operation of 14 regional resource centers to develop and apply methods of appraisal and special educational programming practices for handicapped children, including referral, placement, and followup services. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

(c) Recruitment and information.—This program is designed to encourage people to enter the career field of special education, and to provide information and referral services to parents of handicapped children. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

6. Special education manpower development.—Grants are awarded to support training of teachers, supervisors, speech correctionists, researchers, and other professionals and paraprofessionals in fields related to the education of the handicapped in regular and special classrooms. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

Note.—Excludes $37,500 thousand in 1977 for activities transferred to Special projects and training. Comparable amounts for 1975 ($56,359 thousand), 1976 ($52,962 thousand), TQ ($17,000 thousand), are included above.

1. Grants to States for vocational education.—Under the permanent authority of part B of the Vocational Education Act, matching grants are made to the States for basic vocational education programs. Funds are also included to support the State advisory councils on vocational education for which indefinite authority exists. The amount of $7,161,455 shown under this activity in 1977 is the permanent appropriation authorized by the Smith-Hughes Act. Authority for parts F (Consumer and homemaking education), H (work study), G (Cooperative education) and section 102(b) (Programs for students with special needs) expire in 1976. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

2. Vocational research.—Under the permanent authority of part C of the Vocational Education Act, grants are made to States, colleges, universities, and other institutions to support vocational research and development programs. Grants are also made for the development of curriculums for new and changing occupations and to provide the information essential to make necessary improvements and changes for more effective vocational education programs. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education. Authority for parts D (Innovation) and I (Curriculum development) expire in 1976.

3. Adult education.—Formula grants are made to the States and territories for the purpose of eliminating functional illiteracy among the Nation's adults 16 years of age and older who lack a twelfth grade level of education. Fifteen percent of each State's allotment is reserved for special projects and teacher training. The 1976 amount for this program was appropriated in 1975 to fund school year 1975-76, placing the program on an advanced-funded basis for the first time. The transition quarter includes an advance appropriation of $71,500 thousand to fund school year 1976-77. The current request includes a forward funded appropriation of $67,500 thousand to fund school year 1977-78. It is estimated that 708,500 adults will be enrolled in adult education classes in 1977 at an average cost of $81 per student. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

4. Education personnel.—In 1977, support for this activity is transferred to the appropriation, Special projects and training.

The authority for higher education programs expires in 1976. The budget request for 1977 is based upon proposed extension legislation.

1. Student assistance.—(a) Basic opportunity grants.—The principal form of student assistance is basic educational opportunity grants. $1,100 million requested for basic grants is expected to provide full entitlement awards averaging $854 for 1,270,000 full- and part-time undergraduate students in academic year 1977-78. At full funding, grants will range from $200 to a maximum of $1,400. Size of the grant is determined on the basis of the expected family and student contribution, specified by the needs analysis system approved annually by Congress, up to a maximum of one-half of the student's need.

(b) Supplemental opportunity grants.—No funds are requested for the supplemental opportunity grant program, which is duplicative of the basic grants program.

(c) Work-study.—The $250 million requested for work-study would provide part-time employment to an estimated 652,000 students, assuming a 30% institutional matching share. The institutional matching share will increase to 50% over the next 2 years.

(d) Subsidized insured loans—interest subsidies.—To subsidize 891,000 new disbursed guaranteed student loans, and to pay mandatory expenses, including interest benefits, the special allowance to lenders, and death and disability claims, a total of $400 million is requested. Funds required to pay claims for defaulted loans are requested under the student loan insurance fund.

(e) Direct loans.—The $11,920 thousand requested under the direct loan program will pay cancellations for loans made by borrowers who subsequently undertook specified types of teaching or military service. No funds are requested for Federal capital contributions or for loans to institutions; over $250 million will be available in student loan funds, from past Federal contributions, for an estimated 505,000 loans.

(f) Incentive grants for State scholarships.—A total of $44 million is requested for incentive grants to States to encourage scholarship support to needy students; the requested amount will support four classes of undergraduate students totaling 176,000 recipients.

<sup>1</sup> Numbers do not total due to overlap between programs.

2. Special programs for the disadvantaged.—For 1977, $60,331 thousand is requested in the talent search, Upward Bound, special services, and educational opportunity center programs, through which over 250,000 disadvantaged postsecondary students and potential students are served.

3. Institutional assistance.—(a) Strengthening developing institutions.—The $110 million requested includes $52 million for the basic institutional development program and $58 million for the advanced institutional development program. Together these programs provide substantial assistance to schools with high percentages of black and other minority students to enable them to enter the mainstream of American higher education.

(b) Construction.—For mandatory payments on prior year commitments, funds are available from prior year appropriations; a revised accounting system for the program calls for recording obligations in the year of payment. Accordingly, no new funds are requested for this program.

(c) Language training and area studies.—A total of $10 million is requested for 1977, the same as the 1976 request; this amount includes $1,360 thousand for training overseas under the Fulbright-Hays program, and $8,640 thousand for support of centers, fellowships, and research in international studies at American universities.

(d) University community services.—No funds are requested for this program, which supports community service programs on college campuses. This function is considered a State and local responsibility.

(e) Aid to land-grant colleges.—This program is considered outmoded and is proposed for elimination; it supports some of the largest and financially strongest colleges and universities in the Nation. Consequently no funds are requested for either the annual or the permanent appropriation.

(f) State postsecondary education commissions.—This program, which supports State initiatives in postsecondary education planning and administration of Federal programs at the State level, is considered a State responsibility. Therefore, no funds are requested for this program.

(g) Veterans cost-of-instruction.—No funds are requested for this program, which provides grants to postsecondary institutions to encourage recruitment of, and special services to veterans. The services provided are a duplication of Veterans Administration programs.

(h) Cooperative education.—To assist postsecondary institutions to initiate, improve, and expand cooperative education programs, in which employers pay students for periods of full-time work alternated with full-time study, $8 million is again requested.

4. Personnel development.—No funds are requested for programs under personnel development. All eligible veterans have been served under the college teacher fellowship program. The fellowships for disadvantaged program, unfunded in the current year appropriation, and the public service and mining fellowship programs are proposed for elimination. These are narrow categorical programs outside the primary Federal role of broad student assistance.

1. Public libraries.—Grants are made to States to provide and improve public library services in areas without such services or with inadequate services; to improve State library services for disadvantaged persons, institutionalized persons, and blind and physically handicapped persons; to strengthen State library administrative agencies; and to strengthen metropolitan libraries which serve as regional resource centers.

This program also provides grants to States for establishing and maintaining local, State, interstate and/or regional cooperative networks of libraries. No funds are requested for this program in 1977. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

2. School libraries and instructional resources.—As authorized by the Education Amendments of 1974, this activity is a consolidation of the following programs: School library resources; equipment and minor remodeling, excluding loans to nonprofit, private schools; and guidance, counseling, and testing.

Funding of this consolidated program, which is requested on an advance basis for use in the subsequent year, began with the 1975 appropriation under the Elementary and Secondary Education account to cover school year 1975-76. With the $137,330 thousand requested in the 1977 budget, approximately 9,800 local education agencies would participate, benefiting 39,300,000 public school children using instructional equipment. Also, 41,850,000 public school children and 4,608,000 private school

This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

Such grants may be made for fellowships, traineeships, and short- and long-term training institutes for library personnel. This program also authorizes grants and contracts to institutions of higher education, and other public or private agencies, institutions, and organizations, for demonstrations, the purpose of which is to improve libraries or improve training in librarianship, including the development of new techniques, systems, and equipment for processing, storing, and distributing information, and for the dissemination of information derived from such projects. No funds are requested for this program in 1977. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

5. Undergraduate instructional equipment.—This program authorizes grants to institutions of higher education to assist in the improvement of undergraduate programs through the purchase of instructional equipment (including closed-circuit television) and materials and through minor remodeling. Under the Higher Education Act of 1965 and the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965, the Office of Education received authority to insure loans to students in eligible institutions who do not have reasonable access to State or private nonprofit programs of student loan insurance.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1968 merged the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act into the Higher Education Act insured loan program, and, in addition to extending the Federal insurance program, authorizes the Office of Education to reinsure loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies at 80% of default by student borrowers. The liability of the fund was further increased by the Education Amendments of 1972 which provides for payment of the unpaid balance of interest as well as principal in the case of the defaulted federally insured loans, made under the provision of the amendments.

Upon default by the student borrowers, the Office of Education will pay to the beneficiary the total amount of the loss sustained by the insured on federally insured loans and 80% of the loss sustained on reinsured loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies. Program operations.—The fund takes over loans on which it pays insurance claims and seeks to collect on them. Claims which are deemed uncollectable are written off as "loss on insured loans." Loans deemed collectable, after allowing for loss, are as follows: 1975, $125,893 thousand; 1976, $171,691 thousand; TQ, $184,392 thousand; and 1977, $224,071 thousand.

Program costs.—In 1975, defaults and other claims totaling $135,986 thousand were submitted to the fund for payment. It is anticipated that claims will amount to $132,200 thousand in 1976, and $34,675 thousand in the transition quarter. An additional $141,550 thousand is anticipated in 1977. Amounts appropriated to the fund consisted of $197,600 thousand in 1975, $201,787 thousand in 1976 and $30,000 thousand in the transition period. No appropriations are anticipated for 1977 since available balances and receipts will be sufficient to support default claims.

The default rate in the Federal program is projected to rise slightly from 16.5% in 1975 to 17.0% in 1977. However, in the reinsurance program the default rate is expected to increase from 8.2% in 1975 to 12.5% in 1977. The expected leveling in claims in the Federal program is attributed primarily to the effect of new regulations which are designed to more adequately protect student borrowers by requiring that educational institutions participating in the Guaranteed student loan program provide prospective students with descriptive information, establish equitable refund policies, and comply with other provisions which are designed to improve the administration of the program and reduce defaults. The regulations also include due process procedures for limiting, suspending or terminating the participation of educational institutions and federally insured lenders which do not comply with program regulations. Unlike the Federal program, the reinsurance program is not expected to be as dramatically affected by the new regulations because there is less overall program abuse in the reinsurance program.

Receipts and reimbursements.—Deposits to the fund are derived from insurance premiums earned from direct Federal insurance, which is not to exceed ¼ of one percent per annum of the unpaid principal amount (excluding interest added to principal), and repayment of collectable loans. Additional accrued income on collectable loans is available when converted to cash. Total deposits to the fund, excluding accrued income are as follows: 1975, $13,796 thousand; 1976, $24,500 thousand; TQ, $8,500 thousand; and 1977, $36,300 thousand.

Collections on defaulted loans in the Federal program amounted to $6,716 thousand and an additional $10,400 thousand is expected to be collected in 1976. The target amount for collections in 1977 is $18,700 thousand. In the reinsurance program, $3,650 thousand was recovered on defaulted loans in 1975. It is expected that $10,900 thousand will be recovered in 1976 and $14,400 thousand will be recovered in 1977.

Title III of the Higher Education Facilities Act, now subsumed by title VII of the Higher Education Act, authorizes the Commissioner to make loans to institutions of higher education and to higher education building agencies for the construction of academic facilities and to insure loans. Such loans may be made for up to 80% of a project's total development cost and must be repaid within 50 years.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966, as amended, established a revolving fund for these loans and loan insurance.

Further, the act authorized the sales of such loans to the private credit market, the proceeds of which were deposited into the fund to be used for new loans to colleges and universities. The Government National Mortgage Association is authorized to serve as trustee for these sales.

During 1970 and through 1973, loans under this program were displaced by the annual interest grant program under the higher education appropriation. However, new loans were made from the fund to the extent that such amounts were made available from withdrawals of earlier commitments. These amounts were used to fund those small institutions of higher education which were unable to obtain private loans necessary to participate in the annual interest grant program.

During 1975, six new projects totaling $2,317 thousand were supported from funds withdrawn from earlier commitments. Although no new loans are anticipated in 1976 or 1977 the fund will continue to incur expenses for operating costs.

Interest is payable to the Treasury on the cumulative amount of appropriations paid out for loans under this title or available as capital to the fund less the average undisbursed cash balance in the fund during the year. The rate certified by the Secretary of the Treasury for payment from the fund during 1975 was 8%.

Appropriations for insufficiencies are used to fund the deficit resulting from the interest rate required to sell the participation and the interest rate paid by higher education institutions on facilities loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The National Institute of Education provides support for research, development, and dissemination activities which seek solutions to problems experienced by students, teachers, administrators, and decisionmakers at all levels of education. Federal assistance is focused on the following problems or goal oriented activities:

Dissemination.—This program provides information about the results of educational research and development. Grants and contracts are made with State education agencies and other agencies to support the hiring of specialists, the training of education personnel, and other efforts to assure that such results can be implemented in the classroom. A computer based information retrieval system known as ERIC is also supported.

Basic skills.—This program is designed to discover and develop the means by which all individuals can acquire skills necessary for effective participation in society. Initial efforts will focus on reading comprehension and mathematical skills.

Finance, productivity, and management.—Grants and contracts support activities to assist educational decision-makers in developing solutions to current finance and resource allocation problems. Additionally, awards will be made to improve the capacity of schools and school districts to successfully stimulate, manage, and support a process of school improvement.

Education and work.—Programs are being supported to improve the understanding of the relationship between education and work, and to increase the contribution education makes to individuals' abilities to choose, enter, and progress in work that is beneficial to themselves and others.

Educational equity.—This program is designed to investigate and develop means to help the educational community meet its responsibilities to provide high quality education for those with limited educational opportunities. Grant and contract awards will explore limitations associated with racial, cultural, language, sex, and socioeconomic background with the aim of promoting changes in the educational system causing it to function more fairly in the development of policy and programs.

Program direction and administration.—Funds provide for overall administration, coordination, and direction of the programs and activities of the Institute.

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education is responsible for both the direction and supervision of the Education Division and also for coordination and general supervision of educational activities performed elsewhere in the Department. In addition, the Office has responsibility for administering two operational programs:

1. Fund for the improvement of postsecondary education.—Established to encourage the reform and improvement of postsecondary education, this program makes grants to and contracts with institutions of postsecondary education and other public and private educational institutions and agencies.

In 1976, greater emphasis will be placed upon the need to attain economies without loss of program quality in the delivery of educational services. The fund's interest in competency-based educational approaches and the needs of students as "consumers" of services will be continued.

In 1977, the requested budget level will allow the Fund for the improvement of postsecondary education to support the continuing costs of existing project commitments in these areas and will allow $2 million for new initiatives in the area of work and education. Communication of project results which are useful to practitioners and policymakers will also be a staff and advisory board priority.

2. The national center for education statistics.—The center collects statistics on the condition of education in the United States and abroad, conducts and reports on policy-relevant statistical analyses, and provides assistance to States and local education agencies in their own statistical activities. The three components of the center's program are:

(a) Surveys and special studies.—Information is gathered on such topics as the changing nature of postsecondary education, trends in elementary and secondary education, financing public schools, and the status of educational personnel, libraries, and educational activities in foreign countries. Support is also provided for statistical policy development and dissemination activities which respond to requests for information. Such requests include special computerized tabulations for policymakers and orders for computer tape data or microfilm statistics.

(b) Common core of data.—Comprehensive and comparable information data bases on education are being developed through design and technical assistance in integrating recordkeeping and reporting systems in States, local education agencies, and institutions. In 1977, assistance is to be provided to State and local agencies for improving and automating their systems for acquisition, maintenance, retrieval, and use of statistical data.

(c) National assessment of educational progress.—To continue providing information in 1977 on the educational attainment of students and on changes in attainment over regular intervals, the center will: plan a third assessment of science; field test the index of basic skills for 17-year olds; analyze changes in reading skills from 1971 to 1975; report changes in citizenship-social studies performance; report basic math skill performance; and make data tapes available to the research community.

3. Program direction and support services.—This activity provides funds for administrative expenses associated with the development and communication of education policy, supervision of the Division and administration of the two operational programs. In addition, this activity provides continued contractual support of policy analysis activities relevant to the Office's role of developing educational policy.

Grants to States for public assistance are made for the Federal share of State expenditures for maintenance assistance, medical assistance, social services, State and local training, and child welfare services. Research and training projects are also supported.

Estimates of requirements are based on: evaluation of latest States estimates; impact of Federal management initiatives; and measures aimed at reducing costs through regulatory and administrative actions. The following workload data and estimates by program include the proposed supplemental appropriation for 1976.

1. Maintenance assistance.—Maintenance payments provide needy persons with additional resources to meet the costs of the necessary items of daily living.

Federal matching for aid to families with dependent children, the major portion of the maintenance assistance activity, averages 55%. For related State and local administration costs, Federal matching is 50%.

Efforts to improve the administration of the AFDC program are continuing. Error rates in the caseload have been reduced and additional improvements are anticipated. All States have underway corrective action plans designed to reduce the ineligibility and payment error rates. The 1977 estimate includes a reduction for disallowance of Federal financial participation for both payments to ineligible and payment errors in excess of the established tolerance levels of 3% and 5%, respectively, in 1976.

The Social Services Amendments of 1974 added new State and Federal requirements for establishing paternity and obtaining child support payments from absent parents. The new legislation (Public Law 93-647—part B), effective August 1, 1975, strengthens the Federal role in obtaining child support payments from absent parents obligated to support children. Increased collections are anticipated beginning in 1976 as States implement the new legislative requirements. The cost increases in the Federal share of State and local administration are caused by more generous provisions for Federal funding, both direct and indirect, as well as increased activity resulting from the implementation of the new provisions.

For child support enforcement, the Federal share of collections and the Federal share of State and local administration is included in the following table under the AFDC activity.

Legislative changes are proposed to reduce outlays in 1977 by $256 million. These proposals include changes to the income disregard provisions for work-related expenses, simplifications of the AFDC matching formula, and inclusion of stepparents' income for eligibility determination.

2. Medical assistance.—Federal grants for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act (medicaid) are made to States having plans approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The purpose of the medicaid program, which became effective January 1966, is to assist States in providing medical care to their low-income population.

All aid to families with dependent children cash recipients are eligible for medicaid benefits. In 36 States all persons receiving supplemental security income (SSI) payments are also covered. In the remaining 14 States, medicaid coverage of SSI recipients is limited to those who can meet additional, more restrictive eligibility criteria, although those persons may deduct their medical expenses from their income to establish eligibility.

Thirty-two States have chosen the option to cover persons eligible for State supplemental SSI payments, subject to certain limitations. In addition, 29 States have elected to cover other medically needy persons.

Legislation is proposed to replace medicaid and 15 other programs with a consolidated health grant in 1977. This new grant program will assist States in providing medical care to their low-income population and in addressing other health problems. The new program will distribute funds more equitably and provide greater State discretion and responsibility than the medicaid program.

3. Social services.—Under title XX of the Social Security Act, grants are made to States under a $2.5 billion ceiling limitation on Federal matching, to provide social services to assist eligible persons to become or remain economically self-supporting and self-sufficient; to protect children and adults who cannot protect themselves from abuse, neglect, and exploitation, and to help families stay together; to prevent or reduce inappropriate institutional care by providing for community-based care, home-based care, or other forms of less intensive care; and to arrange for institutional placement, when appropriate, and for services to individuals in institutions.

Grants are made to States based on matching rates of 75% for all services except family planning services which are matched at 90%.

Legislation is proposed to eliminate State matching requirements and transform this program and the State and local training program into a $2.5 billion block grant of financial assistance for community services, to be distributed to the States on a population basis. This proposal will place increased authority and responsibility, as well as greater latitude and flexibility, on States and their citizenry to develop social services programs to meet the needs of people in local communities.

The work incentive (WIN) program is designed to encourage and assist individuals receiving support from the aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) program to achieve self-support through a program for employment, work experience, and training. Child care and other social services are provided to all who have been called up for certification and all who have been certified who need such care or services to permit them to accept training or employment. State expenditures are matched by Federal participation at the rate of 90%. Training and incentives are administered by the Department of Labor; child care and supportive services by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

1. Training and incentives.—The program includes registration, call-up for appraisal and employability planning, counseling and development, direct placement, follow-up of all employed participants and adjudication of the work test. Under this activity, individuals are prepared for self-supporting employment through on-the-job training, public service employment, work experience, and institutional training. Program development, evaluation, and administration of the WIN program are included in this activity.

Child care may be provided in the participants' own home, in family day-care homes, and in day-care centers. Other supportive services which may be provided include family planning, medical examinations, remedial medical services, home management, housing improvement, transportation for access to services, and vocational rehabilitation services.

This appropriation, authorized under the Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-23, approved May 23, 1975), relates to activities of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare on a temporary basis on behalf of Cambodian and Vietnamese refugees in the three major areas of Department concern: welfare (including cash assistance, medical assistance, and social services); educational services; and certain services of the U.S. Public Health Service related to entry of the refugees into the country.

It has been assumed that by the target date of December 31, 1975, virtually all of the some 130,000 refugees expected to remain in the United States will have been resettled to various communities throughout the country and that the several reception centers where various pre-resettlement processing activities occurred will have closed.

An appropriation of $100 million was made to the Social and Rehabilitation Service of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in May 1975 for 1975 and 1976 for the three basic HEW activities mentioned above. A total of $305 million was appropriated to the Department of State for the other functions, including those handled by the Department of Defense, related to the refugee situation, such as transporting the refugees to the United States, operation of the four military bases used as reception centers, and resettlement activities. It is estimated $25 million of these funds will not be required and will be transferred to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare as provided for by Public Law 94-23, the authorizing legislation covering both of these appropriations. Provision is made in the allowance for contingencies to meet special urgent needs which may arise for these refugees. The special funding for refugee activities beyond June 30, 1976 will provide through 1977, for assistance to the States for cash assistance, medical assistance, and social services provided needy refugees.

1. Welfare assistance and services.—Working through State welfare agencies, public assistance—that is, financial assistance, medical assistance, and social services—is provided to Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees, as the need arises, after resettlement to communities throughout the Nation. In accordance with commitments made to the Congress, States are reimbursed 100% for such assistance and services so that the refugees will not become a burden on State or local resources. It is estimated that by the last quarter of 1976 there will be approximately 35,000 needy refugees, or 27% of the some 130,000 in the country, who will require public help in obtaining the necessities of life. The average monthly cost per refugee for all items of public assistance combined, including State and local administrative costs, is estimated to approximate $170.

2. Education.—Department plans provide for discontinuation of special funding of educational services for the refugees after fiscal year 1976. Immediately following start-up of the reception centers in the spring of 1975, until their closing, educational services provided at the centers included instruction in basic English and cultural orientation and elementary and secondary schooling for refugee children in the centers. In 1976, program plans include: basic adult education grants to States; a one-time payment (transitional grant) of $300 per refugee child enrollment (or $600 depending on volume of enrollment in a school district) for an estimated 40,000 children to be enrolled in elementary and secondary public school systems; and funding of services related to curriculum development, teaching materials, credentialing of professionals, testing services, and related items. A short-term program designed to help about 300 Vietnamese physicians to qualify for practice in this country is also being undertaken in 1976.

3. Public health services.—These services, provided during the processing stages of the refugees, before resettlement, included health screening, immunization, and inpatient and outpatient treatment of certain conditions through public health facilities or arrangements.

SPECIAL ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES FROM CAMBODIA AND VIETNAM

Special funding for these public health services is not expected to be required after January 1976.

The Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962, which provides the current legislative basis for the Cuban refugee program, was enacted June 28, 1962, following action by the President to establish a temporary program in February 1961 to meet emergency needs arising from the substantial influx of Cuban refugees into the United States, who were then entering the country at the rate of 1,700 per week.

The program has continued through various phases of the refugee situation which have included: Commercial air flights between Cuba and Miami, until October 1962; Cuban refugee airlift, December 1965–April 1973; expanded parole program to permit arrival in the United States of backlog of Cuban refugees in Spain and other third countries, October 1973–October 1974. Very few Cuban refugees are currently arriving in the United States or are anticipated in the future.

Between 1961 and June 1975, a total of 462,041 refugees had registered with the Cuban Refugee Center in Miami (5,342 during 1975), of whom 299,382 had been resettled to other localities of the United States.

The services provided by the program for the refugees have been diminishing in recent years in terms of costs and persons served because of the decreased influx of Cuban refugees and other factors, including the eligibility of refugees for the supplemental security income program for the aged, blind, and disabled (SSI) which began January 1, 1974.

1. Welfare assistance and services.—At the end of 1975, about 29,000 needy Cuban refugees were receiving assistance from the program for basic maintenance needs, compared with estimates of 26,000 at the end of 1976 and 24,000 at the end of 1977. In addition, it is estimated some 40,000 other refugees, primarily those receiving basic maintenance assistance through the SSI program, are eligible for medical assistance under this program.

2. Education.—Selected training is provided to equip refugees for employment through English and other types of training. Also, provision is made for Federal payments to help meet part of the added cost related to refugee children in the Dade County, Fla., public school system. In addition, needy college students for whom loans have been previously authorized may receive loans from this program to continue their studies.

3. Other services.—This activity provides for Federal direction and day-to-day operation of the program, including a variety of services for newly arriving refugees as well as those already in the United States. There are administrative contracts with voluntary resettlement agencies to help with the reception, registration, and planning for newly arriving refugees and with pre- and post-resettlement problems, such as the need for emergency assistance in locating housing, job finding, et cetera.

This appropriation provides for payments from Federal funds to the social security trust funds for certain types of benefits and related administrative costs not financed by contributions from workers and employers. The 1977 request for this appropriation of $6,713,902 thousand covers the following payments:

1. Federal payments for supplementary medical insurance.—An estimated $5,053,000 thousand will be required in 1977 to finance the Government's contribution to the Federal supplementary medical insurance trust fund. The Federal payments, combined with premiums from enrollees and interest earned by the supplementary medical insurance trust fund, must be sufficient to finance the estimated incurred cost of benefits and administration. The standard premium rate for 1977 under current law will be $7.20 per month.

2. Hospital insurance for the uninsured.—A payment of $803,000 thousand to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund is budgeted for 1977 to cover the costs of hospital and related care for certain individuals aged 65 and over who are not insured under the social security or railroad retirement systems. The uninsured group covered by this provision includes persons who retired before their occupations were covered by social security (such as teachers and State and local employees) and widows whose husbands died prior to earning coverage under social security.

3. Military service credits.—The appropriation includes reimbursement of $622,000 thousand to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Federal disability insurance trust fund, and the Federal hospital insurance trust fund for benefits paid on the basis of noncontributory military service credits of veterans of World War II and certain veterans of the post-World War II period. The basis for the computation of these payments is prescribed in sections 217(g) and 229(b) of the Social Security Act and includes reimbursement for administrative expenses and interest lost to the trust funds.

The payment to each trust fund is (in millions of dollars):

Old-age and survivors insurance.....	378
Disability insurance.....	103
Hospital insurance.....	141
Total.....	622

4. Special payments for certain uninsured persons.—This appropriation provides for a payment of $235,902 thousand to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund as reimbursement for actual benefit payments made in 1975 to certain uninsured individuals aged 72 and over, related administrative expenses, and interest lost to the trust fund. These benefits were established to afford some protection for certain persons, or their surviving dependents, who retired before the enactment of social security legislation or before their occupations were covered by social security.

Individuals who had less than three quarters of coverage and who attained age 72 before 1968 were eligible for benefits under this provision in 1975. The benefits were reduced if the recipient also received another governmental pension. The amount of the reduction depended upon the amount of the other governmental pension. In addition, the benefits were withheld if an individual was receiving payments under a federally aided public assistance program.

1. Benefit payments.—The Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 as amended provides for the protection of the health and safety of persons working in the coal mining industry. Title IV of the act provides monthly benefits to living coal miners who are totally disabled from pneumoconiosis resulting from employment in coal mines and to surviving widows. Benefit payments to miners and surviving widows are increased for dependents (a spouse or child). Benefits are payable to orphans, and in certain circumstances, to totally dependent surviving parents, brothers, and sisters. The requirements for entitlement and the amounts of the benefits are stated in the law.

Under the law, the jurisdiction for payment of claims from miners filed after June 1973 shifted to the Department of Labor. Also, the responsibility for most survivor claims filed after December 1973 is with the Department of Labor. However, the Social Security Administration will continue to pay benefits and maintain the beneficiary roll for persons who filed during the time that the Social Security Administration had jurisdiction and this will continue for many years into the future. The amount of these benefits and the number of miners, widows, and other dependents receiving them at the end of each year are as follows:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	TQ est.	1977 est.
Benefit amount (in thousands of dollars).....	$939,629	$961,000	$224,000	$906,000
Beneficiaries.....	507,000	493,000	489,000	470,000

Benefit payment estimates under current law for 1977 are based on a projected increase of 3% in the applicable Federal salary effective October 1976. (The basic benefit payment is prescribed by law as 50% of the minimum monthly benefit under the Federal Employees Compensation System for a totally disabled employee in step 1, grade GS-2.)

2. Administration.—The administrative costs for fiscal year 1976 are now estimated at $28,271 thousand. These costs are primarily related to processing 46,315 hearings and appeals and maintaining the beneficiary rolls for persons who filed during the time the Social Security Administration had jurisdiction.

Almost all of the hearings and appeals work will be completed by June 30, 1976. In fiscal year 1977 the major effort will be to maintain and make changes to the beneficiary rolls and to authorize payments monthly. This is estimated to cost $7,897 thousand.

The district offices of the Social Security Administration are continuing to take claims for benefits, mostly on behalf of the Department of Labor. The Social Security Administration is reimbursed for these costs (estimated at $731 thousand for 1976 and $680 thousand for 1977) from funds appropriated to the Department of Labor.

Title XVI of the Social Security Act established a new Federal supplemental security income (SSI) program for the aged, blind, and disabled. This program, effective January 1, 1974, replaced State administered programs of assistance to the aged, blind, and disabled which were aided by Federal grants from the appropriations to the Social and Rehabilitation Service. The supplemental security income program provides a minimum income of $157.70 per month for an eligible individual and $236.60 per month for a couple, both of whom are eligible. Public Law 93-368 enacted August 7, 1974, requires that when social security benefits (title II of the Social Security Act) are automatically increased based on a cost-of-living computation, supplemental security income benefits will be increased by the same percentage. This appropriation request assumes a 6.7% cost-of-living increase in SSI benefit payments effective during the transition quarter, July 1976; a further increase of 5.9% is assumed effective July 1977.

The program is administered by the Federal Government under uniform eligibility requirements and payment support levels applicable in all States. However, to be eligible for Federal matching funds for medicaid, States are required to supplement the Federal benefit to assure that recipients of benefits under the former State administered programs for the aged, blind, and disabled suffered no loss of income under SSI. The States may make additional supplementary payments if they so desire. They may also enter into agreements with the Federal Government to administer their supplementary payments. Under such an agreement, the administrative costs are paid from Federal funds. In addition, under a "hold harmless" provision the Federal Government makes contributions toward State supplementation to assure that such supplementation of Federal benefits does not involve costs in excess of those incurred by each State in 1972 for assistance payments to the aged, blind, and disabled because of growth in the recipient population since the SSI program began.

This appropriation request covers: (1) $5,245 million in Federal payments to 4.64 million aged, blind, and disabled recipients by the end of 1977; (2) $55 million of Federal hold harmless contributions in 1977, required to protect States against increased costs under SSI; (3) $52.9 million for the cost of reimbursing vocational rehabilitation State agencies for providing services to blind and disabled SSI recipients who have the potential for becoming self-supporting and for monitoring the treatment of SSI recipients who are also drug addicts and alcoholics; (4) $500.4 million to reimburse the social security trust funds for costs incurred by the Social Security Administration for administering the program; and (5) $57 million to pay States for Federal fiscal liability (FFL) settlements which result from erroneous payments of federally administered State supplementation. State supplementation payments which are financed by the States and administered as a reimbursable program by the Federal Government on behalf of 28 States and the District of Columbia are estimated to cost $1.24 billion in 1977.

The Social Security Administration is responsible for administering national programs of old-age, survivors, disability, and health insurance and the supplemental security income program for the needy, aged, blind, and disabled. The principal costs for administration of these programs are financed by this appropriation; however, there are certain costs of other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and of the Treasury Department which relate to administration of these programs and are shown elsewhere in the budget.

Administrative costs are related to workloads generated by the statutory provisions of social security programs. The size of these loads depends upon objective factors such as population growth, level of employment, economic conditions, income levels, incidence of illness, and mortality rates.

1. Old-age and survivors insurance.—This program provides monthly benefits for retired workers and their dependents, survivors of deceased workers, including disabled widows and widowers age 50 and over, and certain uninsured persons age 72 and over.

The amount of benefit payments increases in 1976 and 1977 because of increases in benefits related to the first automatic benefit increase of 8% effective June 1975. Future automatic benefit increases based on Consumer Price Index changes and automatic changes in the contribution and benefit base are provided for by law. Furthermore, it is estimated that the number of persons receiving monthly benefits will show a normal increase in 1976 and 1977.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	1977 est.
OASI claims applications received.....	3,957,639	4,077,000	4,143,000
Persons on OASI benefit rolls (average for year).....	28,041,000	28,920,000	29,849,000
OASI benefit payments (in millions).....	$54,839	$62,245	$71,362

The administrative costs budgeted for this program provide for: Making the initial determination of eligibility for old-age and survivors benefits; reevaluating the initial determination when requested by the claimant; making changes in the beneficiary rolls to assure proper and correct payment of benefits; and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits, including the evaluation of performance of representative payees.

2. Disability insurance.—This program provides monthly disability benefits for disabled workers and their dependents. In addition to normal increases in the number of persons receiving monthly benefits, the higher benefit rates mentioned previously will cause an increase in benefit payments in 1976 and 1977.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	1977 est.
Disability claims applications received.....	1,841,130	1,872,000	1,979,000
Persons on disability benefit rolls (average for year).....	3,960,000	4,426,000	5,005,000
Disability benefit payments (in millions).....	$7,629	$9,141	$10,804

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the costs of processing initial disability determinations and reconsiderations and appeals of denied claims; making investigations and determinations of continuing disability of beneficiaries and servicing the beneficiary rolls; and making all changes due to deaths, changes of address, attainment of age 65, returns to employment, and recoveries from disability. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by State agencies and these costs are included in the budget estimates.

3. Health insurance.—This program includes the hospital insurance and the voluntary supplementary medical insurance programs which were established by the 1965 amendments and the 1972 amendments to the Social Security Act, commonly referred to as medicare.

(a) Hospital insurance.—The hospital insurance program affords protection to persons age 65 and over against the cost of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services and posthospital skilled nursing services. Hospital insurance also provides protection for those disabled beneficiaries who have been eligible for social security disability benefits for at least 2 years. Bills for services rendered under the hospital insurance program are generally submitted by hospitals, skilled nursing facilities, home health agencies, and in some instances by individuals who have received emergency care in nonparticipating hospitals. In most instances, these bills are processed by the Blue Cross plans and private insurance companies acting as intermediaries for the Social Security Administration. The individual beneficiary records of utilization of hospital services are maintained in the central office of the Social Security Administration. The growth in the number of beneficiaries who will be covered by the program as the population of age 65 and over and the number of disabled persons increases, and the rise in the utilization of available services causes an increase in the number of bills in both 1976 and 1977.

(b) Supplementary medical insurance.—Almost all persons age 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance program, along with disability beneficiaries who have been eligible for benefits for at least 2 years. Supplementary medical insurance covers the cost of physician services and other medical costs within certain deductible and coinsurance requirements. Enrollees in the program pay a monthly premium and the rest of the program costs are paid for by the Federal Government by appropriations from Federal funds. Claims for services under the medical insurance program may be submitted by the physician or other suppliers of service or by the beneficiary to Blue Shield plans and private insurance companies who are under contract to act for the Social Security Administration in specific geographical areas.

The volume of claims will rise in 1976 and 1977 as a result of the normal growth in population, and the projected increase in utilization of medical services.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	1977 est.
Claims received for services covered by hospital insurance.....	10, 278, 794	11, 864, 000	12, 693, 000
Claims received for services covered by medical insurance.....	97, 508, 538	107, 829, 000	121, 106, 000

Hospital insurance.....	$10, 353	$12, 184	$15, 090
Medical insurance.....	$3, 765	$4, 687	$5, 905

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the claim payment functions performed by the contractors, services performed by State agencies in certifying and consulting with providers of services, and all work performed by the Social Security Administration in directing the program, providing services to beneficiaries, maintaining records by individual beneficiary of utilization of hospital and medical services, and processing claims to establish entitlement to hospital insurance for persons not insured for cash benefits under either the social security or railroad retirement program.

4. Supplemental security income.—This Federal program authorized in the Social Security Amendments of 1972 provides monthly benefits from Federal funds to needy aged persons 65 and over, and to the needy blind and totally disabled without regard to age. Mandatory State supplementary payments are required for certain persons who were on State welfare rolls in December 1973 to guarantee that no one will have suffered a loss of income as a result of the program. In addition, the States can further supplement the Federal payment if they so desire. Because the administration of this program is integrated with that of the social security program, the costs of administration of both programs are carried in the same salaries and expenses appropriation. A separate appropriation from Federal funds provides for the Federal benefits paid under the supplemental security income program, and for repayment to the trust funds for moneys advanced for the administration of the program.

The program became effective on January 1, 1974 and included about 3 million recipients of the previous State and local administered programs for assistance to the aged, blind, and disabled. In addition, more than 3.5 million claims from newly eligible persons have been received in the first 18 months of the program. Federal payment levels of $140 per month for an individual and $210 for a couple effective January 1974 increased to $146 and $219 effective July 1974 and to $157.70 and $236.60 effective July 1975. These rates, like the retirement, survivors, and disability insurance benefits, are scheduled to increase by 7.1% in July 1976. Future automatic increases in payments based on Consumer Price Index changes are provided for by law.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

SSI claims applications received.....	1, 801, 338	1, 615, 000	1, 470, 000

State supplementary payments administered by SSA <sup>1</sup> (in millions).....	$1, 354	$1, 395	$1, 295

The administrative costs budgeted for this program provide for: Making initial determinations of eligibility for aged, blind, and disabled benefits; reevaluating the initial determination when requested by the claimant; processing appeals of denied claims; making changes in the recipient rolls to assure proper and correct payment of benefits; and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits through periodic redeterminations. Determinations regarding the existence of continuation of a disability are made by the State agencies under contract with the Social Security Administration and these costs are included in the budget.

1. Headquarters.—The objective of construction at the headquarters complex in the Baltimore, Md., area is to provide adequate facilities to house personnel and equipment required to administer and support the social security program on a national scale. The Social Security Administration's plan is to construct two buildings, one in downtown Baltimore and the other at the existing site in Woodlawn, Md. The first stage of project design (preliminary planning stage) is complete for these buildings and the prospectuses have been approved. Completion of these facilities (current projection July 1979) will allow, at a minimum, consolidation of dispersed operations now in leased facilities and adequate housing for computer operations. Financing of these facilities will be arranged through the purchase contract method under which payments will begin upon occupancy of the structures. Funds remaining from prior years appropriations will be used in 1976 to build an access road from the headquarters site to Interstate Highway 70, and purchase land at the headquarters site.

2. District office.—The objective is to construct buildings to house Social Security district offices when construction is determined to be more feasible than rental of commercial space or occupancy of existing Federal structures. At the end of 1975, SSA had completed and occupied 74 of these trust-fund-financed offices with 2 more scheduled for completion early this year. Current plans call for site acquisition, design and construction of additional offices as required with remaining funds from prior years appropriations.

3. Program centers.—The objective of constructing program center facilities is to provide suitable space for large manual and computer processing operations related to reviewing claims and maintaining the beneficiary records for payment of social security benefits. The Philadelphia, Pa., and Richmond, Calif., program centers were occupied in July and the Chicago, Ill., center is scheduled for completion in 1976. Construction of these centers was by the purchase contract method and SSA will begin purchase contract payments (based on $126 million obtained through certificates of participation) this year. Budget authority in the amount of $14,400 thousand for purchase contract payments is being requested for 1977.

Direct program.—The retirement and survivors insurance program protects individuals and families from the risk of economic loss resulting from old age and death by providing income to retired workers, to their dependents, and to their dependent survivors. The program is financed by contributions to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. Effective January 1, 1974, the contribution rates have been 4.375% of taxable earnings each for employees and employers, and 6.185% for self-employed persons. Although these rates are not scheduled to change under present law until January 1, 1978, legislation will be proposed to provide for an increase of 0.175% each for employers and employees, beginning January 1, 1977.

The contribution rates are applied to taxable earnings up to a specified maximum. The maximum was $13,200 in calendar year 1974, $14,100 in 1975, and $15,300 in 1976. In future years, it will be increased automatically as average wages rise. An automatic increase in the taxable maximum can take effect only after an automatic benefit increase has become effective. The 1977 maximum is projected to be $16,500. Workers who pay more in social security contributions because of increases in the taxable maximum will receive the benefit of more social security protection because the benefit payments are based on average taxable earnings.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of benefits to retired workers, their dependents, and their survivors. The average numbers of persons receiving payments and the benefit amounts, classified by major types of beneficiaries, for 1975–77 follow:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	TQ est.	1977 est.
Beneficiaries (millions):
Retired workers.....	16.2	16.8	17.1	17.4
Dependents of retired workers.....	3.5	3.5	3.6	3.7
Survivors.....	7.3	7.4	7.4	7.5
Total beneficiaries.....	26.9	27.7	28.1	28.6
Benefit payments (billions):
Retired workers.....	$35.8	$40.8	$11.2	$47.0
Dependents of retired workers.....	4.1	4.6	1.3	5.3
Survivors.....	15.0	16.8	4.5	19.1
Total benefit payments.....	54.8	62.2	17.0	71.4

Normal growth in benefit payments will continue because: (1) The number of beneficiaries will increase as the number of aged persons in the population and the proportion of the aged who are insured rise, and (2) average monthly benefits will increase as general earnings levels continue to rise.

Under Public Law 93–233, automatic cost-of-living benefit increases are determined annually and are effective for June of each year. The first such increase was 8%, effective for June 1975. The benefit payments projected under present law assume an estimated 6.7% automatic increase will be effective for June 1976 and a 5.9% increase will be effective June 1977. The benefit increases are triggered automatically by increases in the cost-of-living as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

The annual exempt amount of earnings under the retirement test also increases automatically over time. Such increases are tied to increases in average wages. In calendar 1974, the exempt amount was $2,400 per year. Since then, it increased to $2,520 in 1975 and $2,760 in 1976, and is projected to rise to $3,000 as of January 1, 1977.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration that are attributable to the retirement and survivors' insurance program, including those incurred for the Social Security Administration by the Treasury Department and by other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228g). Estimates are made of the yearly amounts of additional contributions the Social Security Administration would have collected, the additional benefits it would have paid, and the additional administrative costs it would have incurred if railroad employees had been covered under social security. Each year's payment is a settlement for the prior year. It represents the amount by which the estimated benefit payments and administrative costs exceed the estimated contributions, and includes interest through the date of the transfer. There will not be a payment during the transition quarter. The payment for that period will take place in 1978. The components of the net transfers in 1975-77 follow (in millions of dollars):

	1975 act.	1976 est.	1977 est.
Benefit payments.....	$1,462.3	$1,618.0	$1,778.0

Less contributions.....	-578.3	-665.0	-650.0

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that specified payments may be made from the old-age and survivors insurance and the disability insurance trust funds for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to individuals who are entitled to social security cash benefits because of a disability. The payments are made in expectation that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries. The annual limitation on the amount that may be made available for rehabilitation services is 1.5% of total social security benefits certified for payment to disabled beneficiaries in the prior 12-month period. The limitation for the transition quarter is based on payments certified to disabled beneficiaries during the 3-month period beginning July 1, 1975. The old-age and survivors insurance trust fund bears the cost of rehabilitation services provided to disabled retirement and survivors insurance beneficiaries, and the disability insurance trust fund bears the cost of such services provided to disability insurance beneficiaries.

Reimbursable program.—1. Section 305 of the Social Security Amendments of 1972 authorizes advances from the OASI trust fund for the administrative expenses of the supplemental security income program for the aged, blind, and disabled, with full reimbursement to the trust fund (including interest when appropriate). Reimbursement is budgeted in the account Supplemental security income program.

The disability insurance program protects individuals and families against the risk of economic loss resulting from disability by providing income to severely disabled workers and their dependents. The program is financed by contributions to the trust fund made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. Since January 1, 1974, the contribution rates for financing the disability insurance program have been 0.575% each for employers and employees and 0.815% for self-employed persons. Under present law, the rates are not scheduled to change again until calendar year 1978. Legislation will be proposed to provide for an increase of 0.125% each for employers and employees effective January 1, 1977. The contribution rates are applied to earnings up to a maximum level which is the same for the disability insurance program as for the old-age and survivors insurance program.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of disability insurance benefits to certain disabled individuals and their dependents. The average number of persons receiving payments and the benefit amounts, classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1975–77 follows:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	TQ est.	1977 est.
Benefit payments (billions):

Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.7	1.9	1.9	2.0
Total beneficiaries.....	3.9	4.4	4.5	4.7

Normal growth in benefit payments will continue because: (1) the number of beneficiaries will increase as the population insured for disability benefits rises, especially at ages 50–64 where disability incidence rates are highest, and (2) the average monthly benefits will increase as general earnings levels rise. Under Public Law 93–233, automatic cost-of-living benefit increases triggered by changes in the Consumer Price Index (CPI), will be effective for June of each year. The increase for June 1975 was 8.0%. The benefit payment projections assume that under present law, cost-of-living increases will be 6.7% for June 1976 and 5.9% for June 1977.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration that are attributable to the disability insurance program, including those incurred for the Social Security Administration by the Treasury Department and by other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the disability insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the disability insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included under social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228g). This payment is computed on the same basis as the payment from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. Payments are made each year for the preceding year, including interest through the actual date of transfer. There will not be a payment during the transition quarter. The payment for that period will take place in 1978. The components of the net transfers for 1975–77 follow (in millions of dollars):

The payments are made in expectation that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries into productive activity. Each year's limitation is 1.5% of total social security benefits certified for payment to disabled beneficiaries in the prior 12-month period. The limitation for the transition quarter is based on payments certified to disabled beneficiaries during the 3-month period beginning July 1, 1975. The hospital insurance program affords protection against the high costs of hospital and related care to most individuals age 65 and over, and to people under age 65 who have been entitled for at least 24 months to monthly social security or railroad retirement cash benefits because they are disabled. The program also covers treatment of chronic kidney disease for people under age 65 entitled to monthly social security benefits, for insured workers, and for spouses or dependent children of such insured or entitled individuals.

For persons on the social security and railroad retirement rolls, the cost of services covered by the hospital insurance program, and administrative costs, are financed by contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The maximum taxable earnings base is the same for the hospital insurance program as for the social security old-age, survivors, and disability insurance programs. Since January 1, 1974, the contribution rate applied to earnings up to this maximum has been 0.9% for employers, employees, and self-employed persons. Under present law, this rate is scheduled to remain at 0.9% through calendar year 1977. Costs for uninsured persons who attained age 65 in 1974 or earlier, and who meet certain transitional insured status requirements, are financed from general revenues of the Treasury. Uninsured persons reaching age 65 who cannot be covered under the foregoing provision of law can enroll in the program on a voluntary basis. Enrollees must pay the full cost of the protection. The monthly rate was $36 in 1975. It increased to $40 in 1976, and will rise to $45 effective July 1, 1976.

1. Benefit payments.—The hospital insurance program provides protection against the cost of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services, and post-hospital skilled nursing facility services, with specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. The growth in benefit payments from 1975 to 1977 results primarily from increases in the cost of medical services and the size of the covered population.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration that are attributable to the hospital insurance program, including those incurred for the Social Security Administration by the Treasury Department and by other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

4. Health insurance experiments and demonstration projects.—The Social Security Administration has authority to contract for experiments and demonstration projects in a number of areas designed to improve the efficiency of the medicare program. The principal areas of experimentation authorized are: Developing incentives for providers of service to reduce costs and share in the savings; developing mutually agreed upon prospective levels of reimbursement for services performed by providers; designing performance incentives for medicare contractors; and studying reimbursement proposals for services rendered by physicians' assistants (services not now covered by the program). The cost of administering and evaluating the projects will be shared by the programs involved, with the medicare trust funds financing their proportionate share.

The supplementary medical insurance program affords protection against the costs of physicians' services and certain other medical and health services. Most individuals age 65 and over are eligible for this protection, and about 95% of those eligible have elected coverage. People under age 65 who have been entitled for at least 24 months to monthly social security or railroad retirement cash benefits because they are disabled also are eligible for this protection. The program also covers treatment of chronic kidney disease for eligible people under age 65 who elect to enroll.

The costs of services covered by the program, and administrative expenses, are financed by premium payments from enrollees together with contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is required by law to promulgate, by December 31 of each year, the standard monthly premium rate to be paid by enrollees in the SMI program during the fiscal year beginning the following July 1. Due to a technical deficiency in the law, however, the premium rate was frozen at $6.70 since July 1, 1974. Recently enacted corrective legislation will permit an increase to $7.20 per month effective July 1, 1976.

1. Benefit payments.—Participants in the program are covered for the cost of physicians' services, home health services not covered under the hospital insurance program, outpatient services, and certain other medical costs, within specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. 1. Educational materials.—The American Printing House supplies educational materials and tangible apparatus for education of blind students of less than college grade. During 1977, 28,820 such pupils will be served. This is based on registration of pupils as of the first Monday in January 1976.

The increase in the number of children to be registered is in keeping with the usual increase in number of children during the past several years. With continued emphasis on reaching blind children at an early age, young blind children in formally organized nursery schools are being served. It is also expected there will be a greater variety of materials required and many new additional aids as a result of research, evaluation, and production.

Basic materials provided under the act for the education of the blind, of less than college grade, in educational programs throughout the United States are textbooks and literature in braille, including braille music, large type texts, recorded materials and many educational aids such as braille writers, talking-book machines, cassette recorders, braille and relief maps and globes and special aids for teaching in the various phases of the course of study, such as math, science, social studies, music, et cetera.

2. Advisory committees.—The Printing House has three advisory committees—publication committee, educational aids committee, and educational research committee.

These committees advise and approve materials and aids to be manufactured through the Federal appropriation. Also, field representatives for the Printing House travel to State departments of education, schools for the blind and public school classes for the blind and advise teachers on materials and facilities available to blind children. Additionally, the Printing House staff gives assistance to colleges and universities conducting training programs for teachers of the blind.

1. Career development.—The National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) provides a coeducational residential facility offering postsecondary technical education for young deaf people to prepare them for successful employment. The budget request for 1977 of $9,048,000 will provide technical instruction for 940 full-time equivalent deaf students; 85% of these students will receive assistance in developing their communication skills; 6,000 plus hours of tutoring and 8,000 hours plus of vocational decisionmaking guidance will be provided; contacts with 2,634 different potential employers to achieve job placements for 254 NTID graduates will be made; and major curriculum development projects in eight areas are planned.

2. Research.—NTID's applied research efforts will focus on economic, employment, social, communication, and instructional aspects of deafness. The budget request of $1,121,400 will support research outputs including: operation and testing of speech analysis/speech perception skill performance levels; preparation and dissemination of a summary report of the accommodation of NTID graduates to the world of work; piloting a differential diagnostic battery for determining the existence of learning disabilities in deaf students; and 37 specific projects on the measurement and the improvement of communication abilities of deaf students.

3. Training.—NTID seeks to prepare professional manpower for serving the Nation's deaf population. The budget request of $1,903,000 will support: implementation of a professional development model for all NTID professionals; 85 professional and graduate interns spending one or more quarters at NTID; 935 persons receiving basic sign language instruction; 400 persons receiving instruction about the communications, psychological and sociological aspects of deafness; 90 persons receiving instruction in interpreting for the deaf; and 130 staff receiving communication training in preparation to teaching classes.

Federal funds provide 58% of the total operating costs for the academic program. Funds from non-Federal sources are realized from tuition and fees, gifts, grants, endowments, dormitory rents, cafeteria, bookstore sales, and hospital patient fees.

The 1977 estimate will allow the university to meet some of its mandatory costs such as utility cost increases, faculty salary increases and continue partial support of the retirement program. In addition, funds are also provided for program improvements.

In 1977, the university plans to continue expansion of its development fund for the purpose of providing additional resources for university activities.

1. Child development.—The child development program provides for activities and services designed to have a major impact on the development of young children. In 1977, the child development program will continue to focus attention on the improvement and innovation efforts to convert Head Start into a more flexible system for delivering services that are both cost effective and responsive to the real needs of children, and to improve local capacity to plan and manage children's services. The $434,300 thousand requested for Head Start in 1977 will provide for the continuation of Head Start services to about 349,000 children. A funding level of $10,700 thousand will provide for research and demonstration programs in 1977 and will assure continuation of funding projects in the field of child welfare and development which are of regional or national significance. The $18,928 thousand for child abuse prevention and treatment will continue centers providing a broad range of services to children and their families, evaluation of the centers, the development and conduct of demonstration training programs and other innovative programs and projects showing promise of success including a limited number of new projects.

2. Youth development.—The $6,000 thousand for Youth Development will provide continued support for projects for runaway youth under the Runaway Youth Act and $1,000 thousand for research and demonstrations which directly support the youth development activities. Runaway youth projects provide services essential to meeting the immediate emotional, psychological, physical, and social needs of runaway youth.

3. Programs for the aging.—Programs for the aging will continue to pursue the national goal of securing and maintaining independence and dignity in a home environment for older persons capable of self-care with appropriate supportive services, and removing individual and social barriers to economic and personal independence for older persons. Pursuant to these goals, the Title III State and community programs will be primarily directed toward establishing and enhancing the capability of State and area agencies on aging to launch or strengthen action programs within planning and service areas for coordinating the delivery of existing services for older persons, and for the pooling of untapped resources in order to strengthen existing services or inaugurate new services for the elderly; $97,000 thousand is requested to continue to improve and foster the development of a comprehensive coordinated services delivery system for the elderly. Title IV-B research and demonstration will continue to focus on the development and validation of substantive information upon which reasoned policy and program decisions may be made. Emphasis will be placed on problems and issues related to achieving the goals of the program and methods of overcoming barriers to realizing these goals; $7,000 thousand is requested for this activity. The Title VII nutrition program will serve about 290,000 meals per day, 5 days per week. In addition, it will endeavor to improve the capacity of State and local agencies to meet the nutritional and related social needs of the elderly; $88,000 thousand is requested for this activity as funds appropriated in prior years will allow the program to continue at a program level of $150,000 thousand.

4. Rehabilitation services and facilities.—The rehabilitation program provides services to mentally and physically handicapped people to enable them to prepare for and engage in gainful employment. A wide range of services may be provided including counseling, vocational evaluation, work adjustment, medical and physical restoration, vocational training, job placement and postemployment services.

Total vocational rehabilitation program <sup>1</sup>	982,227,245	1,010,263,510	1,045,102,000

<sup>1</sup> Added resources will be made available to States if individuals meet the special selection criteria of the Social Security Administration.

A priority goal of the basic State-Federal program, which constitutes the major portion of the rehabilitation program, is to provide vocational rehabilitation services to the severely handicapped. In addition, the momentum for rehabilitating disabled public assistance recipients will be continued, including disabled and blind recipients of supplemental security income. Also, the Social Security Act provides for reimbursement from the Social Security trust funds for the costs of rehabilitation services for selected disability beneficiaries.

Special projects provide the resource for specialized programs, services, studies, and activities over and above those possible under the basic State-Federal program.

The primary objective of the rehabilitation research program in 1977 is to continue to shift project activities so that they are more relevant to State needs. In addition, emphasis will continue to be placed on projects related to the severely handicapped.

In rehabilitation training, priority emphasis in 1977 will be given to the training of students qualified to provide needed skilled rehabilitation services to severely handicapped individuals such as the blind, the deaf, the spinal cord injured, and those with end-stage renal disease.

5. Grants for the developmentally disabled.—Federal grants are made to States to assist in developing a program of assistance for persons with mental retardation, autism, epilepsy, dyslexia, cerebral palsy, and other neurological conditions. Approximately 48,000 individuals will receive services under this program. Through special projects there will be a continued effort in 1977 toward the goal of adequate community-based programs for the care, training, and habilitation of the developmentally disabled. Support will also continue for university affiliated facilities. The funds requested will continue the program at its previous level.

6. Special programs for native Americans.—The native American program applies innovative approaches to deal with the special needs of all native Americans to promote their social and economic development. It will provide continued funding to grantees which comprise 273 tribes, tribal groupings, Indian communities, and Alaskan villages as well as 55 urban organizations which potentially serve about 50% of the eligible population. Title VIII of the Community Services Act of 1974 also authorizes such funding for native Hawaiians. Following the development of local plans, funds will be made available in 1977 to support high priority projects designed to achieve improved utilization of existing local resources and to bridge major gaps in essential economic and social services.

7. Salaries and expenses.—Provides funds for administrative expenses to carry out programs within the Office of Human Development serving special population groups such as the aged, children and youth, the handicapped and native Americans. In addition, funds support the President's Committee on Mental Retardation, the Office for Handicapped Individuals, special offices of manpower, veterans and volunteer programs and the Office of Rural Development. This activity includes development of policy and procedures, nationwide planning, financial management, and the provision of technical assistance to State and local governments, voluntary agencies, and nonprofit organizations involved in the planning and delivery of human development programs and services.

No new budget authority is requested for this program in 1977. The program will be funded by using unobligated balances carried forward from prior years.

In recent years, a number of international research projects have been funded in countries which have excess foreign currencies.

Objectives for 1977 include the following:

It is planned that 18 research projects will be obligated for 1977 for a total obligation of $2,748 thousand. These projects will be directed at the same objectives and priorities as the domestic program with emphasis on the severely disabled including the spinal cord injured, neuromuscular diseases, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, cancer, and end-stage renal disease.

Emphasis will also be placed on rehabilitation engineering centers with evaluation of new technologies to serve the needs of severely disabled and removal of architectural and other environmental barriers.

There will be U.S. consultants and international scientists or fellows, participating in the program during 1977. This interchange of experts program reinforces the R. & D. international program, and provides direct technical assistance and information as scientists from the United States and other countries cooperate and collaborate on this international research.

The Office for Civil Rights was established in 1966 to direct and coordinate the responsibilities assigned to the Department under title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Subsequently, enforcement responsibilities in the field of civil rights were centralized in the Office for Civil Rights and are largely implemented through the regional offices. The Higher Education Amendments of 1972 widened the Department's civil rights charter adding two major responsibilities. Title VII of the amendments requires review of school districts for compliance with the terms of emergency school aid grants, and title IX prohibits sex discrimination in admission to educational institutions. The Comprehensive Health Manpower and Nurse Training Acts prohibit sex discrimination in admission to health professions schools.

Compliance enforcement.—Responsibility for assuring that beneficiaries of approximately 200 major programs receive services on a nondiscriminatory basis. Federal assistance is provided through 250 State agencies and thousands of school districts, nursing homes, hospitals, colleges, and other similar entities.

Contract compliance.—Responsible for insuring compliance with Executive orders on equal employment opportunity at universities, hospitals, and other institutions holding Government contracts.

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-112—Sept. 26, 1973).—Responsible for implementation and enforcement of section 504 for the handicapped as defined in section 7(6) of the act. Federal assistance is provided to approximately 25 million persons considered to be in this category.

The DHEW Working capital fund provides a single means for consolidating financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers.

The fund was originally authorized by Public Law 82-452 (66 Stat. 369) to finance central services provided by the Office of the Secretary to itself and to the several operating agencies.

There are five program classifications: Data management services; common regional services; personnel data services; payrolling services; and administrative services.

Combined, these activities rendered services or sold commodities to the Office of the Secretary and DHEW agencies at a $36,853 thousand level in 1975. It is expected that the level will be $50,164 thousand in 1976 and increase to $51,427 thousand in 1977.

The following activities operate under the fund:

1. Data management services.—Provides data systems design and consultation, key punching, computer programming and computer processing to DHEW operating agencies.

2. Common regional services.—Provides departmentwide common regional administrative services, such as financial, personnel, and office services.

3. Personnel data services.—Through the maintenance of a centralized personnel data collection service, this activity provides automated personnel reports and data to all operating agencies and other Federal agencies.

4. Payrolling services.—Provides for centralized payrolling services for all DHEW employees, as well as leave and payroll accounting for the Department.

5. Administrative services.—Provides centralized mail and messenger services; procurement and distribution of congressional materials; purchasing, supply and laboring services; reproduction services which consist of offset printing, photographic, visual exhibits, collating, and addressograph services; procurement of printing from the Government Printing Office and other sources; committee management services; and correspondence management services.

Operating results.—The fund continued to operate on a sound financial basis. Retained earnings in excess of current needs will be returned to WCF customers in proportion to their contribution to the surplus.

The "Financial Assistance for Health Care Act" will be proposed to provide the States with greater flexibility and responsibility in utilizing Federal and State health resources to meet the health needs of the low-income population. This law would consolidate 16 programs for health services financing and delivery, planning, and construction into a new $10 billion program in 1977. States would be allocated amounts according to a formula based on factors such as their low income population, with a phase-in period for States that would otherwise receive amounts greatly different from the current distribution. States will be required to develop plans to assure the availability of health services for the target population.

The following table displays the amounts under current law or that would otherwise be requested in the absence of the consolidated program.

PAYMENTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS—Continued

There are several legislative proposals which affect payments to the social security trust funds. A discussion of the proposals appears in the proposed legislation schedules for the Federal hospital insurance (HI) and Federal supplementary medical insurance (SMI) trust funds.

1. Modification of medicare's cost-sharing structure and limitation on recognized hospital costs will reduce HI benefits for uninsured persons and thus reduce reimbursement from general funds for 1977.

2. Limitation of 1977 reasonable charge levels recognized under the SMI program for physicians will reduce the costs of this program. This will be offset by increased program costs resulting from the SMI cost sharing reforms. What results is a net reduction in the amount of the SMI matching payment.

There are several legislative proposals which affect the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund.

1. Eliminate certain retroactive payments of actuarially reduced monthly benefits. This proposal, recommended by the 1971 Advisory Council on Social Security, provides that social security benefits not be paid retroactively for months before an application is filed when this would require a permanent reduction in the beneficiary's future monthly benefits. The Advisory Council recommendation is intended to ensure that an OASDI beneficiary's continuing benefit income, on which he has to rely for the remainder of his life, is not reduced. The proposal would make the law more consistent with the objective of providing adequate benefit income for the aged.

2. Eliminate the retirement test monthly measure. This proposal, recommended by the 1975 Advisory Council, would modify the retirement test so that it would no longer include a monthly test except for the first year an individual receives a cash benefit. This Advisory Council recommendation would make the retirement test more equitable and less complex, thereby increasing public understanding and acceptance and providing for more efficient administration.

3. Eliminate social security child's benefits for students age 18-22 with respect to persons who attain age 18 or become eligible for student benefits after June 1976. Since social security student benefits serve as an educational stipend, it would seem more appropriate to provide such support for education within the purview of programs established specifically for this purpose such as grants, scholarships, and loan programs rather than in the context of a social insurance program.

4. Increase the OASDI tax rate by 0.3% for employees and employers each, for calendar year 1977 from 4.95% to 5.25%. This proposal will help to restore financial integrity and public confidence to the OASDI trust funds by assuring that the funds reserves will not be depleted in the early 1980's and that they will be maintained at an adequate level to continue to serve their contingency reserve role.

5. Stabilize the relationship between a social security beneficiary's pre-retirement earnings and his benefit level at retirement. This proposal will assure that social security benefits paid to workers who retire in the future will replace about the same percentage of pre-retirement earnings as do benefits being paid to workers retiring in 1977. This proposal will make the social security benefit amount more equitable and predictable over time.

2. Limit providers' average per diem reimbursement for 1977 under the program to 7% more than the recognized 1976 level. This proposal would help to restrain medical inflation. ## DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter presents the budget and program estimates for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Most of the Department's programs are also discussed in Part 5 of the budget (the Federal program by function) under one of three headings: "Commerce and Transportation" (mortgage credit and thrift insurance); "Community and Regional Development"; and "Income Security" (public assistance and other income supplements).

The major divisions of this chapter conform to the Department's functions, as set forth below:

1. Housing programs covers the Department's major housing subsidy programs as well as the mortgage insurance activities of the Federal Housing Administration. Other functions included under this heading are loan management, property disposition, community disposal operations, liquidating programs, and the provision of temporary housing for persons displaced by disasters.

2. Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) covers the Department's programs to increase the availability of mortgage credit and stabilize the financing of selected types of mortgage loans. This heading also covers GNMA management and liquidating functions, the guarantee of mortgage-backed securities, and trustee activities in connection with participation certificates that are backed by loan obligations of various trustor agencies.

3. Community planning and development covers the community development grant program authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. This heading also covers the comprehensive planning grant (section 701) program as well as the completion of projects under categorical community development programs, such as urban renewal and model cities, which were terminated by the 1974 act.

4. Policy development and research includes the policy development, economic analysis, program evaluation, and research activities assigned to the Assistant Secretary for Policy Development and Research.

Other major divisions within the Department include the New Communities Administration, the Federal Insurance Administration, the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration, Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity, and Departmental Management. The Department's major disaster relief activities are administered by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, and are discussed in the "Funds appropriated to the President" chapter.

Day-to-day administration, processing, and funding decisions for programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development are carried out in area and insuring offices located within the geographical boundaries of 10 regional offices.

The United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, authorized a program of annual contributions to local public housing agencies for the purpose of assisting low-income families obtain a decent place to live.

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 substantially amended the 1937 act and authorized a new program of assistance to low-income families. Under this new program, commonly called section 8, private owners have a major role since they own, operate, and maintain units leased to lower income families. Prospective tenants have the opportunity to select a unit which meets their needs except in those cases where section 8 assistance is tied to new construction, substantial rehabilitation, or a project owned by or assigned to HUD. In all cases, tenants make rental payments directly to the landlord.

HUD may contract with a private owner, with a local housing authority, or with other units of local government to make subsidy payments on behalf of eligible tenants. The amount of the payment is based on the difference between the total contract rent (up to the fair market rent of a unit in a particular locality, as determined by HUD) and tenant contributions. The maximum term for contracts covering new construction or substantial rehabilitation is 40 years in the case of a State or local agency, and 20 years in the case of a private developer. For existing units, the maximum term is 15 years. Budget authority is equal to the Federal Government's maximum contractual obligation to pay rental subsidies.

In 1976, the Congress provided $662.3 million in additional contract authority, but limited new budget authority resulting from it to $17 billion. In addition, $44.1 million in contract authority previously used for operating subsidies will be recaptured. This authority is available on a permanent basis, and is reflected in the budget schedules as $1,033 million in budget authority. Included in this amount is $1,014.8 million in budget authority which was "borrowed" from production in 1975 for use in the payment of operating subsidies for LHA-owned units, and which was recaptured and returned to production in 1976. New budget procedures will prevent this from being done in 1976 and future years.

Budget program.—Contract authority will be used to carry out the provisions of the 1937 act as follows:

1. Production.—(a) Conventional public housing.—Some 21,260 units, for which moral commitments were made by the Department prior to the termination of the conventional program in January 1973, are expected to be placed under contract in 1976 and the transition quarter. Another 11,500 units of housing for reservation Indians will also be placed under contract during the two fiscal periods. This, together with amendments to prior year commitments, will result in contract authority commitments of $91 million. In addition, some $50 million of contract authority will be used to dispose of properties acquired as the result of FHA insurance operations, as well as for some HUD-insured projects which are experiencing financial difficulties. Obligations on behalf of these units will total $5.6 billion.

In 1977, 6,000 units of housing for reservation Indians will be placed under contract, obligating HUD to provide subsidy payments of up to $680 million.

(b) Section 8.—In 1976 and the transition quarter it is estimated that 125,000 units of new or substantially rehabilitated section 8 housing will be placed under reservation with about $487.5 million in contract authority being committed. About 165,000 units of existing housing will be placed under reservation, requiring the commitment of $415.8 million in contract authority. Obligations on behalf of these units are estimated at $17.5 billion. For 1977 the budget proposes to place another 125,000 units of new or substantially rehabilitated housing under reservation with contract authority commitments of $536.2 million. In addition, about $457 million in contract authority would be committed for 165,000 units of existing housing in 1977. Contractual obligations on behalf of these units are estimated at $19.3 billion.

(c) Section 8 assistance for property disposition and loan management.—The budget also proposes that some 110,000 units in projects acquired, assigned, or experiencing severe financial problems be given section 8 assistance to enhance their viability in 1976 and 1977. Contract reservations are estimated at $125.2 million in 1976 and the transition quarter, and $154.4 million in 1977.

2. Modernization.—The modernization program is designed to provide capital improvements to conventional public housing projects. Contract commitments of $20 million are expected in 1976 and 1977, with no activity planned for the transition quarter. Obligations pursuant to these commitments are estimated at $420 million.

3. Leased housing adjustments.—Adjustments to old section 23 leasing contracts currently in effect are estimated at $21.9 million in 1976, $5.5 million in the transition quarter, and $22.3 million in 1977.

The use of contract authority is illustrated in the following table:

Appropriation to liquidate contract authority	2,196,926	2,245,000	600,000	3,070,000

This appropriation provides for payments required by contracts for subsidized housing programs including the new lower income housing assistance program (the section 8 program) authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Substantial amounts of payments under this appropriation continue to be made for contracts under other subsidized housing programs: Rent supplement, homeownership assistance (sec. 235), rental housing assistance (sec. 236), low-rent public housing, and college housing grants.

Most housing assistance contracts obligate the Federal Government to make annual payments up to the contract amount over the life of the project or mortgage. Since payments usually commence near or upon completion of the dwelling, the annual payments do not begin to reach the maximum amounts approved until 1 to 4 years after approval of the contract. The term of the contract also varies among the respective programs.

PAYMENTS FOR OPERATION OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING PROJECTS

For annual contributions to public housing agencies for the payment of operating subsidies for low-income housing projects as authorized by section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1437g), [$535,000,000] $463,600,000: Provided, That the aggregate amount of contracts for annual contributions entered into for such payments shall not exceed [$535,000,000] $463,600,000.

Payments for the operation of low-income housing projects are provided to cover deficits incurred by Local Housing Authorities (LHA's) in the operation of their low-rent public housing projects. These payments are in addition to the annual contributions provided by HUD to cover the full development or acquisition cost of the projects. Prior to 1976, contracts for operating subsidies were authorized in basic legislation without the need for specific appropriation action. Cash requirements were funded from the "Housing payments" appropriation. In 1976 the release of contract authority for operating subsidies, together with the appropriation for cash payments, was provided in an appropriation act.

Since April 1, 1975, operating subsidies provided to LHA's have been determined using a performance funding system (PFS) formula. The formula bases the subsidy on what it would cost a well-managed LHA to operate comparable projects. Beginning in 1977, the PFS will be expanded to incorporate revenue standards as well as expense standards. The revenue standard will base rental payments on 25% of a tenant's adjusted income. Legislation will also be introduced to revise the definition of income under the public housing program so that it conforms to the definition used under the section 8 lower income housing assistance program. As a result of these changes, budget requirements in 1977 will be reduced by $112 million.

MOBILE HOME STANDARDS PROGRAM—Continued

The National Mobile Home Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974 was enacted as Title VI of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The act directs that Federal mobile home construction and performance standards be established, and initial standards were published in the Federal Register.

The act directs that inspections and investigations are to be conducted to enforce the Federal standards. Mobile home manufacturers are also required to submit building plans for approval for all models to be built.

This appropriation would fund contracts with private firms to monitor third party inspection agencies where States are currently unable to enforce these standards. State governments will ultimately carry out the enforcement function involving inspections and investigations. Fees will be charged for inspections as provided by the act.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized rent supplement payments to owners of certain private housing on behalf of qualified low-income tenants.

Budget program.—Amendments to existing rent supplement contracts for increased costs are estimated at $26 million in 1976, which will be financed from carryover balances and additional contract authority of $20 million released in 1976. The new contract authority results in budget authority of $800 million since the maximum contract term is 40 years. Contract authority will be used only to amend existing contracts, and no additional units will be placed under reservation. Contracts will not be amended after 1976. Section 8 subsidies will be used to assist qualifying rent supplement projects.

In 1976, Congress provided authority for the Secretary to contract with State housing finance and development agencies to make interest subsidy payments of up to $15 million annually for 40 years. Thus, this new contract authority results in budget authority of $600 million. The grants may not exceed one-third of the interest payable on obligations issued by such agencies.

The appropriation has been proposed for rescission since State agencies have demonstrated that other forms of assistance such as obligations backed by the full faith and credit of the State government are better suited to their needs.

Section 235.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized a program to subsidize mortgage interest rates on behalf of lower income families to assist them in purchasing a home. This program was suspended in January 1973, and the only activity under this program since then has resulted from previous commitments.

Pursuant to a court order, the Department obligated slightly over $264 million in contract authority in August 1975. This authority will be utilized to stimulate new home construction under revised guidelines which call for subsidizing the interest rate to as low as 5%. Since the maximum contract term is 30 years, the long-term obligations which will result from the use of this authority is slightly over $7.9 billion. The schedule also reflects, as an unobligated balance lapsing, the amount of budget authority which became unavailable for obligation after August 22, 1975. An actuarially sound premium will be charged for mortgage insurance on units receiving section 235 subsidies.

Section 236.—Under the rental housing assistance program, HUD is authorized to subsidize the monthly payment which the owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to make. These subsidies are intended to lower the rents which lower income tenants must pay. Contract authority under the assistance program is used for four purposes.

1. Previous commitments.—Moral obligations made to specific projects or agencies before the suspension of the program in January 1973 are still being processed. The remaining 30,000 units are expected to be placed under reservation in 1976.

2. Deep subsidies.—The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 authorized a deeper subsidy for certain projects which had not reached final endorsement by August 22, 1974. About $40 million in contract authority is expected to be needed for these subsidies in 1976 and the transition quarter. In 1977, an additional $10 million in contract authority is estimated to be needed for these subsidies.

3. Amendments to existing contracts.—Contract amendments are approved in some instances when amortization requirements increase above what was estimated at the time of reservation. The contract is not executed until final insurance endorsement occurs (usually when the project is completed). If interest rates increased or the actual construction cost exceeded the estimate—as often happens—additional contract authority may be reserved. For 1976 $6.7 million in additional authority is estimated to be reserved for this purpose, and an additional $3 million is estimated for 1977.

4. Subsidies for taxes and utilities.—The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 also included authorization to pay subsidies for certain tax and utility cost increases incurred by projects receiving section 236 assistance. Based upon several court orders, the Department estimates that $272 thousand per year will be paid for such subsidies. Since contract authority used for this purpose is only committed on an annual basis and the authorization for its use does not expire, the amounts used in any one year are recaptured in the next year and are reflected as permanent budget authority.

The Federal Housing Administration fund, which is a summation of four separate funds, was established pursuant to the National Housing Act of 1934, as amended, which created a system of mortgage and loan insurance programs to help finance the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties. Under statute, four distinct insurance funds have been created over time, and activity under the individual housing programs is displayed by fund for financial control and reporting purposes.

The Mutual mortgage insurance fund (which covers the Department's basic single-family insurance program) and the Cooperative management housing insurance fund (which reflects insurance of management-type cooperatives) are both mutual funds. This means that mortgagors are allowed, at termination of their mortgages, to share in a rebate of a portion of the premiums paid into the fund which are not required for expenses or losses.

The General insurance fund includes a large number of specialized programs, including the insurance of loans for property repairs and improvements, as well as for basic and special-purpose multifamily housing. Programs to aid cooperatives, condominiums, housing for the elderly, loans for land development, group practice medical facilities, and nonprofit hospitals are also covered by this fund. Legislation has been proposed whereby the low- and moderate-income insurance program (section 221), currently included under the General insurance fund, would be placed under the Special risk insurance fund.

The Special risk insurance fund was created by the HUD Act of 1968 to insure mortgages on behalf of mortgagors eligible for interest reduction payments and on property in older, declining, urban areas which would not otherwise be eligible for mortgage insurance. In addition, the fund provides insurance on behalf of high-risk mortgagors who would not normally be eligible for mortgage insurance but who, with counseling, can become acceptable credit risks, and on mortgages covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations is not observed.

Expenses and losses connected with foreclosed property, defaulted notes, and mortgages, less income from fees, premiums, and investments, are charged to each program and insurance fund. The combined reserves of all four funds reached a deficit position for the first time in 1975. The deficits do not necessarily reflect the actual cash position of the funds but do reflect long-term insurance reserves. During 1975, expenses exceeded income by $795 million, resulting in a reserve deficit of $183 million. Based on the legislative proposal to transfer the section 221 programs, insurance reserves at the end of 1977 are estimated to be surplus for the two mutual funds and the General insurance fund, but in deficit status for the Special risk insurance fund. Estimated reserve requirements of over $3.1 billion would be appropriate for an actuarially sound insurance operation. Thus, the fund's present operations have a $3.3 billion actuarially sound deficit—instead of the $183 million deficit displayed below.

The status of estimated insurance reserves through 1977 is as follows:

STATUS OF INSURANCE RESERVES
FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION FUND

[In millions of dollars]
	1975 act.	1976 est.	TQ est.	1977 est.
Mutual mortgage insurance fund.....	1,873	1,971	1,973	2,080

Total FHA fund.....	-183	-859	-1,099	-1,031

As a result of the continued deterioration of the FHA fund over the last several years, a number of steps have been taken in an attempt to halt and ultimately reverse this net loss trend. These include tightened underwriting procedures and increased sales of assets, such as properties acquired through foreclosure. A continued emphasis on "as is" sales should result in a greater number of sales and a consequent increase in sales income, as well as in lower costs for maintenance and repairs on acquired properties. In addition, section 8 subsidies will be used to enhance the viability of 110,000 insured, assigned and acquired multifamily units in both 1976 and 1977. The savings in claims payments and additional sales income from these projects will be $730 million in 1976, $150 million in the transition quarter, and $1,061 million in 1977.

The section 235 mortgage insurance program is being reactivated with higher downpayments, tighter underwriting requirements, and an actuarially sound premium.

A new coinsurance program authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 also is being implemented which will provide for a sharing of risks with lenders originating mortgages. This risk-sharing is expected to result in a significant improvement in underwriting practices.

Financing.—Funds for the direct loan program have come primarily from Treasury borrowing and from the sale of participation certificates which are backed by pools of college housing loans held by the Federal Government. Treasury borrowings now total $2,811 million.

Sales of participation certificates, as provided in the Participation Sales Act of 1966, amounted to $2.2 billion through 1969. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and the interest collections on the college housing loans underlying the certificates.

Because actual deficits or insufficiencies on the outstanding participation certificates exceeded estimated deficits in the past, there was an unfinanced deficit of approximately $1.7 million at the end of 1974, which was funded in 1975. Budget authority required for estimated insufficiencies and unfinanced deficits is shown in the following table:

Operating results.—The estimated net operating loss of $17.9 million in the transition quarter will increase the cumulative deficit to $190.4 million. No restoration of capital impairment will be necessary during the period covered by this budget.

All unobligated balances, as well as all receipts and reimbursements anticipated in future years, will be required to cover operating expenses and repay Treasury borrowing. A significant increase in loan defaults could require additional appropriations to protect the Federal interest.

The low-rent public housing loan fund provides Federal financing for the construction, acquisition, or modernization of conventional public housing projects owned by local housing authorities (LHA's) until the projects can be financed in the private market. Federal loans are not available for financing the construction of leased housing under section 8 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937, as amended. Payments to liquidate the indebtedness of the LHA's pursuant to annual contributions contracts are provided out of the "Housing payments" appropriation.

LOW-RENT PUBLIC HOUSING—LOANS AND OTHER EXPENSES—CON.

Budget program.—The Department may contract with LHA's to make loans covering up to 100% of total construction, acquisition, or modernization costs. Experience indicates, however, that the volume of direct Federal loans outstanding at any one time will be only a small percentage of Federal loan approvals because private financing is relied upon as the major source of funds. The status of loan approvals during the budget period is shown below:

Direct loans.—Direct Federal loans are made to finance the early costs of LHA-owned project development as well as the modernization of existing LHA-owned projects.

Private loans.—When Federal direct loans to an LHA accumulate to an amount which is attractive to private investors, the LHA sells short-term temporary notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make Federal loans, if necessary, covering up to 100% of the development, acquisition, or modernization cost of the project. The notes sold at an average interest rate of 4.8% in 1975.

In 1975, $660 million in direct Federal loans was repaid using funds raised in the private market with a Federal guarantee. Repayments are estimated at about $648 million in 1976, $162 million in the transition quarter, and $648 million in 1977. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods, averaging 7.7 months in 1975, and may be reissued several times and in increasing amounts before the development, acquisition, or modernization costs are permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity conducted under the program during any fiscal year greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of that fiscal year.

The following table shows the status of temporary financing and refinancing of production and management loans during 1975, and estimated transactions during 1976, the transition quarter, and 1977:

STATUS OF TEMPORARY FINANCING

(In millions of dollars)

Bonds.—Normally, LHA-owned dwellings are permanently financed at or near completion of development or acquisition through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions in sufficient amounts to meet principal and interest requirements. No bond offerings were made in 1975 nor are any currently anticipated to be made through 1977.

Financing.—Direct loans are made with available working funds and with funds borrowed from the Treasury when necessary. Borrowings outstanding at any one time from the Treasury may not exceed $1.5 billion. Pursuant to the U.S. Housing Act of 1937, as amended, the ceiling on Treasury borrowing is applied only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will be disbursed, rather than to total approvals which are not expected to result in outlays. The Secretary has set the maximum Federal loan exposure factor (i.e., the maximum demand for Federal loans at any one time) at 10% of loan approvals outstanding. No outstanding borrowings are anticipated on June 30, 1976, September 30, 1976, or September 30, 1977.

Operating results.—The estimated net operating income of $5.1 million in 1977 will increase retained income to $64.2 million. Retained income may be required to meet program requirements in future years.

The Emergency Homeowners' Relief Act provides standby authority for a program of emergency mortgage relief to homeowners should economic conditions threaten to cause widespread mortgage foreclosures and distress sales of homes.

Regulations specifying the conditions under which emergency authority would be utilized were published for comment in the Federal Register on October 9, 1975. Comments were received through December 10, 1975, and the final regulations have been issued on completion of rulemaking procedures. The budget does not anticipate the use of this standby authority in 1976 and the transition quarter. However, the funds are available for use should the need arise.

The Nonprofit sponsor assistance fund provides interest-free loans to nonprofit organizations to facilitate the development of housing projects which will receive permanent financing under the section 202 housing for the elderly or handicapped program. To insure a sufficient commitment by the sponsor to the proposed project, only a portion of the start-up costs will be funded through these "seed money" loans, and sponsors will be required to demonstrate their financial capacity by providing an initial equity investment from their own funds not to exceed $10,000.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund for deposit of rental collections in excess of the established basic rents for units in section 236 subsidized projects. Repayment of such collections are estimated to decline after 1976 due to a change in calculating excess payments from an individual unit basis to a project basis. The estimated net operating income also is expected to decline from $8.7 million in 1976 to $4 million in 1977.

Section 212 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 provides that fund balances may be used, subject to the prior commitment of contract authority, for the payment of utility and tax increases in section 236 projects. The use of the fund balances for this purpose beginning in 1976 reflects court actions directing the Department to use the funds for that purpose in certain specific cases.

The Revolving fund (liquidating programs) was established by the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1955 for the more efficient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs. In 1971, the public works planning advances, grants to aid advance acquisition of land, and Alaska housing programs were transferred to the fund for liquidation. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 provided for the transfer in 1975 of grants for basic water and sewer facilities, grants for neighborhood facilities, the open space land program and the public facility loan program, for liquidation. Subsequent to its termination on August 22, 1976, the Rehabilitation loan fund assets will be transferred to the Revolving fund (liquidating programs) pursuant to the 1974 act. Additionally, the budget assumes the transfer of all assets and liabilities of the college housing loan program to the revolving fund for liquidation, effective on October 1, 1976.

Financing.—In the past, certificates of participation in pools of public facility loans and college housing loans were sold. Funds are appropriated annually to cover the difference between interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the loans underlying the certificates.

The budget authority required for interest insufficiencies was transferred to the Revolving fund (liquidating programs) when the assets of the public facility loan program were transferred to this account in 1975. The budget authority required for public facility and college housing loans in 1977 is computed in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

Under the Disaster Relief Acts of 1970 and 1974, the Department is authorized to use its own funds and resources to respond to Federal Disaster Assistance Administration mission assignments in Presidentially declared disasters. Such mission assignments are normally to provide, manage, and finance temporary housing for persons displaced by disasters.

The 1973 appropriation act, which included appropriations for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, authorized the Secretary to establish a fund to initially finance the costs of providing and managing temporary housing. This fund provides such financing prior to obtaining reimbursement from funds appropriated to the President for disaster relief.

After the fund is reimbursed, the contributing accounts will be repaid, although sufficient balances are retained in the fund to enable the Department to provide emergency housing promptly. This budget provides a basic working balance of $50 million which is considered adequate to fund disaster activities.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. A permanent, indefinite appropriation is available to cover insufficiencies for sales authorized in 1967 while sales authorized in 1968 require annual appropriations.

Through September 30, 1968, this fund purchased and sold preferred stock in the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and made loans to it as needed to support its operations involving the purchase of federally insured or guaranteed mortgages. On that date, the Association redeemed all preferred stock and became a private corporation owned by its common stockholders. All authority for investment in preferred stock of the corporation lapsed.

No loans have been made since the first few months of the Association's existence as a private corporation. The authority will be used only in emergency situations.

Special assistance functions.—The Association is authorized pursuant to section 305 of the National Housing Act, to make purchase commitments and to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgage loans. Funds are currently available to the President to provide special assistance for financing: (1) selected types of residential mortgage loans pending establishment of marketability, and (2) residential mortgage loans generally as a means of stabilizing building activities. The program is administered with the use of processing facilities of the Federal National Mortgage Association and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation.

Budget program.—There are two basic types of special assistance activity: (1) Commitments expected to mature into purchase of mortgages, and (2) tandem plan commitments which will be sold to private investors.

Mortgage commitment and purchase activity.—No new mortgage commitments are planned for the transition quarter or 1977. However, $609.7 million in commitments will be made for purchase of FHA-assisted mortgages which will receive final insurance endorsement in 1976. Purchases of these mortgages as well as assisted mortgages receiving commitments in prior years are estimated at $350 million in 1976, $50 million in the transition quarter, and $254.4 million in 1977. Sales of these mortgages are estimated at $560 million in 1976, $50 million in the transition quarter, and $254.4 million in 1977.

No commitments are budgeted for 1976, the transition quarter, or 1977 for unassisted federally insured mortgages. However, purchases of unassisted mortgages receiving commitments in prior years are estimated at $2.7 billion in 1976, $53 million in the transition quarter, and $433 million in 1977. Mortgage sales at auction are budgeted at $4.3 billion in 1976, $53 million during the transition quarter, and $433 million in 1977.

No commitments for purchase of mortgages to be maintained in portfolio are reflected in these schedules. No sales from portfolio are planned for the period 1976 and 1977.

Financing.—Funds for mortgage purchases are obtained from principal liquidations through either repayments on portfolio mortgages or sales of tandem purchases, and borrowings from the Treasury. A portion of the mortgage portfolio was financed by sale of participation certificates. This amounted to $1.2 billion in prior years and there is a remaining liability of $602.3 million offset by $171.3 million on deposit with the trustee in anticipation of scheduled retirements. Funds for operating costs, mainly interest expenses and discounts required on tandem mortgage sales, are obtained from mortgage earnings and from appropriations for the difference between interest expense on participation certificates and the income from related mortgage investment earnings.

Operating results.—Through June 30, 1975, losses of $42.3 million for participation sales have been offset by appropriations. Other losses from below-market interest rate loans, tandem plan costs, interest on Treasury borrowings, and asset sales amounted to $923 million. Of this amount, $881 million is carried as an impairment of capital.

Because of the continued high tandem plan cost, the special assistance operations are expected to result in losses estimated at $594.6 million in 1976, $152.3 million in the transition period and $325.8 million in 1977.

Appropriations for insufficiencies under the Participation sales fund will cover $8.2 million of 1976 losses, $2.0 million of transition period losses, and $8.1 million of 1977 losses.

The following table shows the derivation and financing of the interest insufficiencies on outstanding participation certificates:

Emergency housing assistance.—Section 313 of the National Housing Act, as amended by the Emergency Housing Act of 1975, provides standby mortgage purchase authority which may be used when certain economic conditions are found to exist. The act provides that, before the purchase authority can be used, the Secretary must find that economic conditions are having a severely disproportionate effect on the housing industry which threatens seriously to affect the economy.

This authority was utilized in 1975 to provide commitments of $5.8 billion for conventional and FHA-insured mortgages. In early 1976, $2.0 billion was made available for conventionally financed home mortgages and was fully committed by September 30, 1975. The 1976 Appropriation Act released $5.0 billion in mortgage purchase authority under the 1975 amendment. The budget reflects the use of $3.0 billion of this authority. The $3.0 billion will provide assistance to about 120,000 multifamily units.

Should economic conditions deteriorate to the point where the housing industry is severely affected, the Secretary will at that time determine whether or not release of some or all of the funds provided is warranted.

It is estimated that the discounts absorbed by the Government National Mortgage Association from the purchase and subsequent sale of mortgages authorized to date will amount to approximately $716 million.

The Association is required to manage and liquidate its initial mortgage portfolio and other mortgages, loans, and obligations. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular principal repayments according to amortization schedules, by sales of mortgages when they can be absorbed by private investors without disruption of normal market conditions, and through principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The Fund's initial portfolio consisted of mortgages on hand at, or purchased under contracts made before, November 1, 1954. Certain additional mortgages, loans, and other obligations may be acquired for this portfolio from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Residential housing mortgages may also be acquired from any Federal instrumentality.

Budget program.—It is not expected that any purchases of mortgages will be made during 1976, the transition quarter or 1977.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations, and sales of participation in mortgage pools.

Transfers of principal repayments on pooled mortgages to the Participation sales fund for repayment of participation certificates are expected to be $40.0 million in 1976, $8.2 million in the transition quarter, and $22.0 million in 1977.

Operating results.—Net income of $4.0 million is estimated for 1976, $1.0 million for the transition quarter, and $4.6 million for 1977. The following table shows the financing of the insufficiencies:

The National Housing Act, as amended, authorized the Association to create trusts to facilitate the financing of mortgages and other obligations owned by Government agencies. Under this authority, participations in the interest and principal collections on pooled loan obligations pledged by various trustor agencies were sold to private investors.

The budget schedules of the trustor agencies originally owning the loan obligations reflected sale of participation certificates as borrowing from the public. Collections on the pooled obligations are transferred to the Association, and invested until distributed to the holders of participation certificates as required by the trust agreement. Collections are then redistributed to trustor agencies for payment of interest and retirement of certificates.

Whenever interest collections on pooled obligations together with investment income are insufficient to cover required interest payments and a share of administrative and other costs, the trustor agencies pay to the Association, as trustee, amounts equal to the insufficiencies. The costs of any such insufficiencies are covered by appropriations, which appear in the accounts of the trustor agencies, or by balances available in those accounts.

In the event the principal collections on pooled loans are not sufficient to meet scheduled retirements of participation certificates, the Association, as trustee, may either borrow from the Treasury or sell additional certificates to redeem those coming due. Alternatively, those trustor accounts with unobligated balances available may repurchase pooled loans to provide the cash required for scheduled redemptions.

Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-383) authorizes the Secretary to make grants to units of general local government and States for the funding of local community development programs.

Pursuant to the act, funds are distributed to eligible applicants using a formula based on population, housing overcrowding, and the extent of poverty (counted twice). Funds must be allocated between communities in metropolitan areas (SMSA's) and those in nonmetropolitan areas. Within SMSA's, "metropolitan cities" and "urban counties" are eligible for entitlement funding based on the criteria of the formula. A metropolitan city is the central city of an SMSA or any city of 50,000 population or more; and an urban county is any county within an SMSA which is authorized to undertake essential community development and housing assistance activities and has an eligible population of 200,000 or more, excluding the population of metropolitan cities therein.

Communities may be eligible for "hold harmless" assistance, also, based on the extent of their previous participation in designated categorical programs which were replaced by this program.

Additional special transition funds are made available to communities experiencing hardship situations as they make the transition to the new program, or for special needs during the transition period which cannot be met out of formula funds. The act also provides that a portion of the funds enacted is available to the Secretary for certain discretionary purposes, such as the support of innovative projects, assistance to new communities, and emergency disaster needs, as well as to correct inequities resulting from the allocation of formula funds.

Budget program.—An appropriation of $3,248 million, which includes $100 million for special transition needs, is requested for 1977. It is expected that these funds will provide assistance to over 4,500 communities, including direct entitlement or hold harmless funding to over 1,300 communities.

Outlays are estimated at $750 million for 1976, $400 million for the transition quarter, and $1,600 million for 1977. However, actual outlays will be governed by the rate at which communities expend the funds which have been made available to them.

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING GRANTS

Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-383) terminated this program on January 1, 1975, and no commitments for new projects may be made following that date.

All unused balances from the 1975 appropriation have been transferred to the community development grant program as authorized by the 1975 Supplemental Appropriations Act (Public Law 93-554). No new budget authority is requested for 1977. However, a permanent indefinite appropriation to liquidate prior unfunded contract authority is available.

This program was terminated pursuant to title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. The 1974 act provides that no commitments for new loans may be entered into under the public facility loan program following January 1, 1975. All resources available under this program were transferred to the revolving fund (liquidating programs) on April 1, 1975 pursuant to section 117(b) of the 1974 act. The budget authority required for participation certificate insufficiencies to April 1, 1975, is shown in the table below:

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, and title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970, as amended, authorize Federal assistance to private and public new community developers. The program provides for Federal guarantee of the bonds, debentures, notes, and other obligations issued by or on behalf of private and public new community developers. Federal guarantees of obligations issued by developers may not exceed $50 million for each new community project.

No new guarantee commitments are anticipated in 1976, the transition quarter, or in 1977. Three additional guarantee commitments for existing approved projects are estimated at $43 million in 1976. No additional guarantee assistance is currently anticipated through the transition quarter and 1977.

Guarantee commitments of $45 million for two projects were made under title IV authority, and all subsequent guarantee commitments have been made under the $695.5 million title VII authority, as amended. The following table shows the use of available title VII guarantee authority (in thousands of dollars):

Budget program.—1. Administrative expenses.—These amounts represent the administrative cost of carrying out this program.

2. Appraisals and consultant fees.—These are costs incurred for analyses, management, and technical services, including land appraisals, for ongoing new community development projects.

3. Interest on U.S. Treasury borrowings.—This is the interest which will be paid to the U.S. Treasury on the borrowings of the fund.

Interest payments on new community debentures.—The budget program assumes that interest payments on behalf of new community developers will total $14.3 million in 1976, $4.6 million during the transition quarter and $18.9 million during 1977. Such payments will be made from the fund which will be replenished from time to time through borrowings from the U.S. Treasury.

Financing.—Developers receiving guarantees are charged fees, which are a source of income to the fund. Treasury borrowings for payments to cover default on guaranteed obligations are authorized.

Operating results.—The estimated net operating loss of $24,608 thousand in 1977 will increase the cumulative deficit to $38.5 million. No restoration of capital impairment will be necessary during the period covered by this budget. All receipts and reimbursements anticipated in future years will be required to cover operating expenses and repay Treasury borrowing.

The National insurance development fund provides the funding source for two programs designed to increase availability of property insurance: (1) the FAIR (fair access to insurance requirements) plan/riot reinsurance program, designed to afford reasonable access to property insurance in urban areas and to provide a degree of protection to primary insurers against excess losses from riots or civil disorders; and (2) the Federal crime insurance program, which makes burglary and robbery insurance available at affordable premium rates where such coverage is not available in the private market. The programs are authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended.

The FAIR plan/riot reinsurance program encompasses cooperative action by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government. Private insurers, working together and with the State insurance authority, establish a plan to provide property owners in urban areas with access to property insurance. Each State must enact legislation providing for a sharing of the insured losses resulting from riots and civil disorders. The Federal Government provides an opportunity to spread the risk of riot and civil disorder losses on a nationwide basis through reinsurance of private carriers at premium charges deemed adequate to meet expected losses.

The Federal crime insurance program provides for issuance of direct policies of insurance, through local property insurance agents and brokers, covering losses from burglary and robbery. Insurance is written on properties that meet underwriting requirements at premium rates determined to be affordable.

Budget program.—1. Riot reinsurance claims.—The amount which is paid through riot and civil disorder reinsurance is expected to continue at the same level.

2. Crime insurance.—(a) Insurance claims.—Claims reflect increases experienced in the program.

(b) Operating expenses.—Expenses incurred by fiscal agents in issuing policies, settling claims, and maintaining accounting and statistical records.

3. Studies and surveys.—Includes expenses of continuing reviews of market availability of basic property insurance and of crime insurance, as required by law.

4. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the programs.

Financing.—Claims and expenses are estimated to be paid from premium income and income from holdings of Government securities. Thus, it is anticipated that none of the $250 million in Treasury borrowings currently authorized will be utilized.

Operating results.—Premium and investment income are expected to exceed claims and expenses, permitting continued growth in reserves of the fund.

Net losses of the crime insurance program, estimated at $4,532 thousand in 1976, $1,228 thousand in the transition quarter, and $5,279 in 1977, will be funded by reserves.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes a cooperative program by the Federal Government and the private insurance industry to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Coverage is available on residential, business, agricultural, private nonprofit, and local and State government property. Amounts of coverage available for individual properties range from $70 thousand for single-family residential structures to as much as $200 thousand for nonresidential structures. In identified flood-prone areas, available flood insurance must be purchased for those projects with federally related financing.

Private insurance companies have formed a pool to sell and service the flood insurance policies written under this program. Companies participating as risk-bearers commit risk capital and share in the operating expenses and profits or losses of the program, with the Federal Government providing reinsurance coverage to the pool.

The Federal Insurance Administration administers two separate flood insurance programs: (1) the permanent program, and (2) the emergency program. Under the permanent flood insurance program, studies must be made of differential flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish appropriate premium rates on a sound actuarial basis, and these rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Limited amounts of coverage may be made available on a subsidized basis under the emergency program.

Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures designed to reduce future flood losses. Following one year from the date of identification of a community's special flood hazard areas, no federally related financing may be made available for construction purposes in a flood-prone area unless the community is in the program. The act provides for local consultation and appeal procedures.

In order to provide insurance coverage at reasonable premium rates on existing property, the Federal Government makes premium equalization payments to the pool to cover a portion of total losses and operating costs. These subsidy payments are based upon the relationship between the estimated full-cost actuarial premium rate and the premium rate actually charged in the regular program, or upon a contractual formula in the emergency program.

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—The Federal share of the allowable costs of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $18,662 thousand in 1977.

2. Loss and adjustment expense.—The Federal share of insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expenses is estimated at $102,302 thousand in 1977.

3. Interest expense.—Interest on Treasury borrowings needed to defray Federal underwriting and loss expense payments in excess of reinsurance premium income is estimated at $18,276 thousand in 1977.

4. Studies and surveys.—Delineating areas of special flood hazard will have been completed by the end of 1976 in over 17,000 flood-prone communities. In 1977, $100 million is proposed for detailed elevation studies, used to determine actuarial premium rates, to be conducted by other Federal agencies or by private contractors.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $500 million to carry out the program. Borrowings are estimated to total $281,419 thousand by the end of 1977.

The program is also financed through reinsurance receipts and from excess operating surpluses in favorable years. Administrative expenses and costs of studies and surveys are paid from appropriated funds.

Operating results.—Cumulative expenses are expected to exceed revenue and receipts from non-Federal sources by approximately $579 million by the end of 1977. The cumulative deficit is primarily financed by cumulative appropriations of $288 million and charges against borrowing authorization of approximately $281 million.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public in connection with the purchase or lease of subdivision lots. Statements of records must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions with 50 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce, except when the subdivision is eligible for exemption.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, not exceeding $1 thousand, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. In fiscal year 1976 and the transition quarter appropriations were required to supplement fees to finance the total expenses. In fiscal year 1977, appropriations for this purpose are included under "Salaries and expenses, Department of Housing and Urban Development."

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 directs the Secretary to undertake programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to the HUD mission. These functions may be carried out through grants to and contracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, educational institutions, and through agreements with State and local governments and other Federal agencies.

Experiments will continue to test the feasibility of providing direct cash assistance to needy families for rental or homeownership payments. This experimental program is analyzing how families use their assistance payment and how the housing market responds. In support of the section 8 program, a major evaluation will begin.

The budget also provides for continuation: of investigations of property disposition approaches; development of techniques to lower or stabilize the costs of housing production, financing, management, and the costs of Government subsidy programs; programs to increase housing safety and security, including reducing the hazards of lead-based paint and improving mobile home safety; programs concerned with the problems of housing deterioration and neighborhood decay, including assessments of promising approaches to housing and neighborhood preservation such as urban homesteading and the fostering of local resident-business-government partnerships; activities to increase State and local government capabilities through the development of improved revenue generation and allocation practices, better methods for the guidance of economic and community growth, and development of ways to increase productivity in public service delivery systems. Programs concerned with conserving energy and natural resources including solar energy will continue in 1977.

Evaluations of HUD programs, such as FHA mortgage insurance, will continue in support of the coordinated development of HUD policy. These assessments attempt to identify and measure the costs and benefits, impacts, and effectiveness of specific programs and policies. Continued collection and analysis of economic and financial data essential to HUD policy and program development and evaluation also is planned. The largest single project in this area is the Annual Housing Survey undertaken to measure changes in housing inventory and to compile data on the physical condition of housing units and the characteristics of the occupants in both urban and rural areas.

This appropriation finances staff salaries, travel, rents, and other costs associated with administering the programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Pursuant to 12 U.S.C. 1701c(b)(3) all administrative expense funds of the Department may be consolidated in a single fund. In 1976 and prior years funds appropriated in a number of accounts were consolidated in the Administrative operations fund with funds otherwise provided. In 1977 a single appropriation will be consolidated in this account with funds otherwise provided. The individual budget activities are as follows:

1. Housing and mortgage credit programs.—This activity includes staff salaries and related expenses associated with administering housing production and mortgage credit programs, housing management programs and the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA). This includes the lower income housing assistance program as well as programs to further homeownership, provide mortgage insurance and extend the availability of mortgage credit.

2. Community planning and development programs.—Funds in this activity are for staff salaries and related expenses required for administering community planning and development programs and new community assistance programs. These programs provide grants for community development, comprehensive planning, former categorical programs such as urban renewal and model cities, and assistance to private and public new community developers.

3. Equal opportunity, research, regulatory, and insurance programs.—This activity includes the salaries and related expenses associated with implementing equal opportunity programs in housing and employment as required by law and Executive orders; the administration of research programs and demonstrations; administration of the Federal flood, riot, and crime insurance programs; and the registration and monitoring of subdivisions offered for sale in interstate commerce. The 1977 request anticipates increased activity in these areas, particularly in implementing the flood insurance program.

4. Departmental management, legal and audit services.—This activity includes a variety of general functions required for the Department's overall administration and management. These include the Office of the Secretary, Office of General Counsel, and Office of Inspector General, as well as administrative support in such areas as accounting, personnel management, contracting and procurement, and general office services. Legal services funded under this activity include the field legal staff as well as the Office of General Counsel at headquarters. Additionally, certain overall Department costs, such as the headquarter's portion of payments for office space rental, utilities, communications, and postal services, are budgeted under this activity.

5. Field direction and administration.—This activity includes the salaries and related expenses for the regional administrators, area office and insuring office directors and their immediate staffs who are responsible for the direction, supervision, and performance of the Department's field offices. Also included are the functions of the assistant regional administrator for administration and staffs, and the area and insuring office administrative divisions. The functions of this staff include such duties as accounting, personnel management, and general administrative services for the field offices. This activity also includes the field offices' portion of overall costs such as payments for office space rental, utilities, communications, and postal services.

6. Disaster assistance.—Funds under this activity include the salaries and expenses of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration in coordinating the national disaster relief program. The funds are provided under "Funds appropriated to the President" and paid into this account. Also included are administrative costs of the Department in providing on a reimbursable basis emergency housing assistance as part of the disaster relief program.

The Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended (49 U.S.C. 1601), authorizes grants in support of research, development, and demonstration projects focusing on the relationship of urban transportation systems to the comprehensively planned development of urban areas. Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1968 transferred all but sections 6, 9, and 11 of the 1964 act from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to the Department of Transportation (DOT). Subsequent to this, both agencies agreed that DOT shall have the responsibility for administering sections 6, 9, and 11 as well. Pursuant to this agreement, the unobligated balances of the 1969 appropriation were allocated to DOT.

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES—continued

In other States surveys are performed to identify lands as a prerequisite to resource management. Resurveys are often made to reestablish lost boundary corners.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish municipal and industrial or other water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States and Hawaii.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and special funds. The special funds are (a) the Reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenue; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenue; and (b) the Colorado River Dam fund, derived from the revenue of the Boulder Canyon project. The 1977 estimates are summarized by source, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Note.—The total appropriation request of $751.6 million represents an increase of $115.8 million compared with the current year appropriation and an increase of $240.6 million compared with the preceding year, excluding a proposed supplemental for liquidation of contract authority.

Investigations and surveys are made to determine the feasibility of potential reclamation projects and the need for rehabilitation of existing Federal reclamation projects.

1. Plan formulation investigations.—These include appraisal investigations, feasibility investigations, and special investigations throughout the 17 Western States to formulate resource development plans for basins and specific projects leading to authorization, including studies relating to the rehabilitation, financial adjustment, or water conservation on existing Federal reclamation projects.

2. Geothermal investigation.—The studies are directed toward determination of the feasibility of developing geothermal resources as a usable water source. Initial efforts have been centered in the Imperial Valley of California.

3. General engineering and research.—Studies directed toward improvements in procedures and in engineering methods and materials. Included are studies of atmospheric water resources; of alternative uses and reuse of water and continuing activities in wastewater reclamation opportunities in the Western States and electrical energy research and development.

4. Fish and wildlife studies.—These funds are transferred to the Fish and Wildlife Service for studies of the fish and wildlife aspects of reclamation projects in the planning stage.

1. Operation and maintenance.—In 1977 a total of 32 projects, project areas or divisions of projects will be operated and maintained for power municipal, and industrial water supplies, irrigation, and other benefits with funds made available under this appropriation. The Fort Peck project revolving fund finances the operation and maintenance of project power facilities physically integrated with the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, Irrigation Management Services, the Colorado River front work and levee system program, negotiation and administration of water marketing contracts on Corps of Engineers' projects marketing of power from the Corps of Engineers' powerplants on the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program and from the International Boundary and Water Commission's powerplant in Texas, examination of existing structures, and for purchase power and wheeling.

Energy sales resulting from Bureau of Reclamation power operations excluding the Colorado River Storage project and the Colorado River Basin project are as follows:

	1975 act.	1976 est.	TQ est.	1977 est.
Energy sales (millions of kilowatt-hours).....	46,067	49,400	12,000	48,000
Income from energy sales (in thousands of dollars).....	153,086	146,400	39,000	164,000

The above sales data for 1975 includes $7.7 million in revenues associated with 18.3 billion kilowatt-hours of energy from nine reclamation powerplants for which Bonneville Power Administration was the marketing agent. Sales data for the Upper Colorado River storage project and the Colorado River Basin project are provided in the program and performance statements for the two projects.

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. These revenues are deposited in the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, the general fund, and the Fort Peck revolving fund.

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—The program includes $48,416 thousand in 1977 for the purchase of power and wheeling excluding credits for net billing. The establishment in 1961 of a net billing procedure for certain of these power transactions between the Federal Government and non-Federal utilities precludes the need for an additional $9,532 thousand in 1977.

Construction costs of the Central Arizona project including the Navajo project participation agreement are financed through appropriations to the Lower Colorado River basin development fund. Project revenue and certain other revenues as provided by the act will be credited to the fund and be available without further appropriation for defraying the costs of operation, maintenance, replacements, and emergency expenditures for all facilities of the projects, within such separate limitations as may be included in annual appropriation acts. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to make annual payments to the general fund to return project costs allocated to irrigation, power, and municipal and industrial water (82 Stat. 894).

Construction.—The 1977 program provides for continuing construction on the Central Arizona project.

2. Navajo project participation agreement.—The 1977 program provides for the requirements to liquidate contract authority for the prepayment of power generation and power facilities.

Operation and maintenance.—The 1977 program provides for reclamation's share of operation and maintenance costs of the Navajo project participation agreement. Financing will be from project revenue (82 Stat. 894).

1. Assistance to States for institutes.—This activity provides annual grants for each of the 50 States and for Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, and Guam, to assist them in carrying on the work of a competent and qualified water resources research institute at one college or university.

2. Matching grants to institutes.—This activity provides for grants to match, on a dollar-for-dollar basis, funds made available to the State water research institutes by States or other non-Federal sources to meet the necessary expenses of specific water resources research projects which could not otherwise be undertaken.

3. 1. Habitat preservation.—Habitat change and pollution affect the fish and wildlife resource. Monitoring of fish, wildlife, and their related ecosystems aids in determining the location, type, and rate of environmental change. Through research, the impact of pesticides, heavy metals, oils, and other pollutants is determined. Evaluation of the effects of natural resource development projects helps planners determine the impacts of the project on fish, wildlife, and their habitat. Recommendations are formulated to minimize or prevent adverse effects and to enhance the resource whenever feasible. This program assures the recognition of fish and wildlife values in land and water development decisions and actions, alerts the public to environmental deterioration, and assists in providing the opportunity for future use and enjoyment of fish and wildlife resources.

2. Wildlife resources.—Principal responsibility for management of migratory birds in the United States is dictated by treaty and is discharged by the Service. To carry out these responsibilities, the Service maintains an extensive wildlife refuge system consisting of 378 units and 7 wetland management districts containing 33.6 million acres managed for both migratory birds and other wildlife for which the Federal Government has responsibility; guides and coordinates national migratory bird programs; administers Service responsibilities under the Marine Mammal Protection Act; enforces Federal game laws and regulations; provides technical assistance in the management of wildlife on Indian and other Federal lands; conducts research to improve wildlife management capabilities; provides direct and extension assistance to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities to prevent excessive damage by wildlife to economic activity; and supports cooperative wildlife research units at 20 universities to conduct research and train wildlife biologists.

3. Fishery resources.—The Service develops, manages, and protects interstate and international fisheries, such as anadromous species, fisheries of the Great Lakes, interstate river and reservoir systems, and fisheries on Federal lands, such as national forests, parks, refuges, and Indian reservations. Fish are produced at 89 hatcheries and 3 fish facilities. Five development centers and two training schools are operated to improve fish cultural technology and practices; research is carried out at 13 laboratories and 14 field stations to improve sport fish productivity, increase hatchery efficiency, determine effects of environmental contaminants on fish, and develop methods of controlling undesirable fishes. Technical assistance is provided by biologists to Indian tribes and to Federal, State, and other landowners in the management of sport fisheries; and cooperative fishery units are maintained at 25 universities to train fishery biologists and carry on research.

4. Endangered species.—The goal of this program is to restore species and subspecies of endangered or threatened fauna and flora to viable components of their ecosystems. This program involves continual review and updating of endangered and threatened species lists; development and implementation of species recovery plans; coordination of national and international efforts in this field; and monitoring imports and exports of fish and wildlife.

5. Interpretation and recreation.—Visitors to Service installations are provided with experiences oriented towards enhancing their understanding and appreciation of fish, wildlife, and the environment. This is accomplished through interpretive experiences, environmental education, and wildlife-oriented recreation activities, such as wildlife observation, hunting and fishing, limited non-wildlife-related recreational experiences, such as swimming and boating, and through the provision of specialized media and publications.

Roads, trails, and parkways.—The 1977 program proposes design work on authorized parkways to be accomplished for the Service by the Federal Highway Administration. Minor improvements to park roads, trails, parking areas, overlooks, campground roads, and trails and drainage structures are carried out through Service facilities. The program provides mainly for the maintenance of existing facilities through such measures as repairing and resurfacing roads and trails. Program objectives are to prevent a loss of investment in existing road and trail systems, to eliminate unsafe sections, and to meet traffic demands.

This appropriation provides for operation of recreational facilities, enhancement of the fee collection system, and minor repair projects. Funding is derived from fees collected by the Service and deposited into a special account in the Treasury of the United States, to be administered in conjunction with, but separate from the revenues in the Land and Water Conservation Fund. Fees collected by each agency are earmarked for appropriation for any authorized outdoor recreation purpose. An amount of not to exceed 40 percent of the amount so credited in each fiscal year, through 1978, is authorized to be used to enhance fee collection systems.

The Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning water, land, and mineral resources, and supervises the prospecting, development, and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands.

1. Alaska pipeline related investigations.—The 1977 program continues engineering geologic and hydrologic investigations that will be needed in the initial operational and monitoring phase of the Alaska pipeline.

2. Topographic surveys and mapping.—The national mapping program has as its objective, furnishing fundamental cartographic data to meet the new and expanding mapping requirements which will provide a framework on which to build an integrated system of U.S. Federal land mapping. This program includes those activities necessary to make available base mapping data as well as a family of general purpose maps. These maps and related mapping data are basic tools necessary for the identification and development of energy resources; land-use planning; environmental impact studies; economic and industrial studies; location and development of highways; selection of power and communication sites and routes and dam and reservoir sites; flood plain studies and flood and erosion control; and military and civil defense. By the end of 1976 topographic maps at 1:24,000 scale will be available for about 67% of the United States and outlying areas, excluding Alaska, and an additional 12% will be covered with 1:24,000-scale orthophotoquads. In Alaska 1:63,360-scale maps are the norm. About 84% of Alaska will have published 1:63,360-scale maps by the end of 1976. During 1977, about 85,000 square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be mapped. About 90,000 square miles of 1:24,000-scale series revisions with priority given to updating coastal zone maps, and about 575 small-scale and special maps will be added to the 1977 program. Of this number, approximately 450 will be intermediate-scale maps at 1:50,000 and 1:100,000 scales. The National Cartographic Information Center will expand its capabilities to gather, process, and distribute more efficiently and faster the ever growing volume of cartographic data and information in order to provide the national map data users with current and complete data or information requested.

3. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—The continuing national program of geologic research and investigations produces: (a) New or improved methods, techniques, and instruments for mineral or energy exploration on land and on the submerged continental margins; (b) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps and analyses that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks and mineral deposits at and beneath the surface of the Earth including the Nation's continental shelves and slopes; (c) information on the chemistry and physics of the Earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified; and (d) geologic data that are directly applicable to urban development, land utilization, and the solution of land construction problems. The 1977 program provides for increased efforts in the assessment of geologic hazards in nuclear reactor siting; for coal environmental studies; for assessment of coal and uranium/thorium energy resources; for Alaska mineral resource appraisal; and for decreases in geothermal investigations and general geologic research.

4. Water resources investigations.—The continuing national program of water resources investigations during 1977 has the objective of seeing that the Nation's water resources are appraised and that the necessary water data to develop and manage them efficiently are available when needed. The program produces data and information relevant to the flow and sediment discharge of rivers, location and quantity of underground waters, chemical quality and temperatures of waters, changes caused by nature and by man, availability and suitability of water supplies for present and future demands—all of which are essential to water planning, water management, energy development, and improvement of the environment. Included in the program is research needed to increase our understanding of fundamental principles of water occurrence, movement, and interaction with its environment, and also to increase the accuracy and usefulness of water data through improvements in technology. Reprogramming from other activities in 1977 will provide for expanded and intensified activities in coal hydrology, oil shale hydrology, and nuclear energy hydrology. Activities which will be reduced or deferred include data collection and analysis, regional resource appraisals, hydrologic research, hydrologic investigations on public lands, and studies of ground water recharge and subsurface waste storage.

5. Conservation of lands and minerals.—The 1977 program provides: (a) increased funding for tract selection and evaluation, to determine the fair market value, for Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) oil and gas sales; (b) initiation of a program to prepare inventories of reserves in developed OCS gas fields; (c) increased funding for workload increases in regulation and supervision of mineral prospecting, development, and production on leased Federal, Indian, and OCS lands; and (d) increases to fund a contract for and to take other steps to implement recommended management improvements in the onshore mineral leasing program.

7. Facilities.—The funds included in this activity will finance the operation and maintenance costs, facilities management needs, and related special support services necessary for the operation of the National Center Headquarters complex.

8. Land information and analysis.—The principal mission of this activity is to meet more effectively the Nation's rapidly increasing need for information required to facilitate land-use decisionmaking and to evaluate the environmental consequences of alternative land uses.

The specific objectives are: (1) Development and application of multidisciplinary natural science and geographic technology in support of land-use decisionmaking; (2) mapping current land use; (3) accomplishing in-house NEPA-related functions; and (4) collecting, processing, and distributing remote sensing data, and applying other aspects of space technology in support of land resources and environmental analysis.

Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for making cooperative topographic and geologic surveys and water resources investigations (43 U.S.C. 44), proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records (43 U.S.C. 45), proceeds from sale of personal property (40 U.S.C. 481(c)), reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Power Commission (16 U.S.C. 797), and reimbursements from friendly countries and international organizations for technical assistance (22 U.S.C. 2357). Reimbursements from other Federal agencies (31 U.S.C. 686) are for special purpose mapping, investigations, and computer services performed at the request of the financing agency, much of which contributes to the basic objectives of the Geological Survey.

1. Coal mine health and safety inspections.—In accordance with the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, activities include inspection of coal mines and enforcement of health and safety standards, assisting industry in improving conditions of mine health and safety, assisting in mine rescue operations, investigating serious accidents in coal mines and promoting efficiency in the coal industry. Development of State health and safety programs is encouraged through a grant program and through technical assistance.

2. Metal and nonmetal mine health and safety inspections.—In accordance with the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Mine Safety Act, activities include inspection of metal and nonmetal mines and enforcement of health and safety standards, assisting industry in improving conditions of mine health and safety, assisting in mine rescue operations, investigating serious accidents in metal and nonmetal mines, and promoting efficiency in the mineral industry. State programs are encouraged through assistance in implementing State plans.

3. Education and training.—Instruction designed to develop greater safety awareness in mine foremen, supervisors, and industry safety officials. Training covers the causes and prevention of accidents and unhealthy work environments, safe mining practices, first aid, and mine rescue methods. Courses are in the form of classroom instructions, demonstrated lectures, motion pictures, and other instructional media.

4. Technical support.—Under this activity MESA provides onsite day to day technical services and advice to health and safety field managers, mine inspectors, and State and industry management to assist in making improvements in ventilation, roof support, use and application of electrical equipment, fire protection, use of explosives, haulage, hoisting, illumination, mine communications, and dust collection and abatement. MESA also provides analytical data relative to the cause, frequency, and manner of accidents and the events or the practices that contribute to their cause or that may be identified as principal hazards contributing to the frequency of injuries or unhealthy working conditions.

5. Program administration.—Provides for the immediate Office of the Administrator and the key management staff that support the general administrative functions. The balance of the cost for administrative functions is charged to program funds. In addition, this activity provides the <sup>2</sup> Includes capital outlays as follows: 1975, $7,755 thousand; 1976, $8,052 thousand; transition quarter, $2,015 thousand; 1977, $8,065 thousand.

1. Metallurgy research.—Research is carried out seeking new and improved processes to extract, recover, purify, fabricate, and recycle metallic and nonmetallic minerals for the most efficient resource utilization attainable through increased production, reduced costs, and a minimum of waste. Of particular interest is research leading to advanced metallurgy technology, abatement of pollution from metallurgical processes, management of mineral wastes, and improvement of mineral materials. Decreased costs in 1977 result from reduced requirements for design and construction of pilot plants.

2. Mining research.—Research is conducted to assure a safer working environment, to reduce health hazards to mine workers, and to improve coal extraction by increasing total mining output while reducing costs. The current research is designed to increase mining efficiency with full consideration for the health and safety of mine workers, bring marginal mineral deposits into production, maximize recovery of irreplaceable resources, and minimize pollution and damage to the environment. The 1977 program reflects increasing costs for coal mining technology research to support an expanded use of coal for energy.

3. Data collection and analysis.—Technical and economic data is compiled and analyzed about the reserves, production, consumption, and international trade of minerals. Forecasts are made to support Federal, State, and local government and industry planning for meeting future mineral requirements and to help in the formulation of national mineral and energy policies. The program for 1977 reflects increased costs for continuing projects.

4. Engineering, evaluation, and demonstration.—Engineering investigations and evaluations are conducted relative to the conservation, development, and utilization of mineral resources and their impact on the environment. Appraisals of current and potential mineral development are made for wilderness and primitive areas as provided under the Wilderness Act of 1964. Engineering investigations of mineral resources are undertaken in areas affected by water development and other public works. Environmental impact statements are developed and reviewed as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. Research and demonstration programs are conducted on the restoration of mined land surfaces, control of subsidence caused by mining, control of fires in inactive coal mines, and disposal of mine refuse including culm banks. The Bureau provides grants for the control of drainage in anthracite formations and administers mining-related environmental projects approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission. Increased costs in 1977 are for projects initiated in 1976.

5. Program administration.—Provides funds for executive direction and part of administrative services.

6. Energy research.—Costs incurred in prior years are for programs transferred to the Energy Research and Development Administration.

1. Drainage of anthracite mines.—Funds appropriated in 1956 (69 Stat. 460) will be expended in 1976 and in future years on a matched-fund basis with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The funds are provided for the conservation of anthracite coal resources and the prevention of flooding and damage to surface lands or structures through flood control and anthracite mine drainage. The act of July 15, 1955, was amended by the act of October 15, 1962 (76 Stat. 934) to further provide for the filling of voids in abandoned coal mines in the interest of public health and safety.

The authorized purposes of the Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (50 U.S.C. 167) are to locate and develop helium reserves and to produce, sell, and distribute supplies of helium, and to conserve a sustained supply of helium that will be sufficient to provide for essential Government activities.

Budget program.—Extraction of helium for production and sales will be conducted only at the Keyes (Oklahoma) helium plant. The Amarillo (Texas) loading shipping terminal will make shipments in small cylinders, using helium transported to it from the Keyes helium plant.

The market for helium produced by the Bureau of Mines is estimated to be 195 million cubic feet, about an 8% increase over last year. The Bureau supplies approximately 30% of the total domestic market for helium. The Federal agencies and their contractors will purchase approximately 185 million cubic feet directly from the Bureau and from eligible commercial distributors through 30 CFR, part 2 helium distributors. The remainder of the Bureau's sales are to a few commercial companies.

The 164 million cubic feet of helium produced at the Keyes helium plant in excess of the requirements for the current helium market will be conserved by injection into underground storage for future use. Operations at the Exell (Texas) helium plant will be confined to processing functions required in connection with the operation and control of the underground helium storage reservoir in the Cliffside field. The capital outlay will be replacement equipment required in the production and sale of helium, and new equipment required for processing helium stored underground.

Financing.—The helium program of production, sales, and helium stored underground is financed from the helium fund. Income from helium sales, services, and rentals of containers are estimated to provide the needed funding. A decrease in the cash balance with the Treasury will account for the additional funding as well as a repayment of $1 million on the Treasury debt. The funded operating costs are increased by 3% over those for 1976. The increase is due mainly to an increase in salaries. A small portion is due to capital outlays for the purchase and/or fabrication of minor plant-operating equipment.

Operating results.—The revenues from helium sales and other income are estimated to be $8 million, while expenses are estimated to be $7 million, leaving a net operating income of $1 million. The net income will be retained for capital investment projects.

As of June 30, 1975, the Government had $533.9 million invested in the helium program. Of this amount $411.9 million is owed to the U.S. Treasury in accordance with the Helium Act Amendments of 1960, leaving a net investment of $122 million. The investment of June 30, 1975, was 2% in helium plants and facilities and 98% in helium stored underground.

On June 30, 1977, the Government's investment is estimated to be $582.1 million, of which $455.1 million will be owed to the U.S. Treasury leaving a net investment balance of $127 million. The increase of $43.2 million in the amount owed to the U.S. Treasury is accrued interest on borrowings and net worth for 1975 and 1976.

SUMMARY OF ENERGY SALES AND REVENUES FROM EKLUTNA AND SNETTISHAM PROJECTS

Gross energy sales (million kilowatthours)	135	215	249
Gross revenue (thousands of dollars)	1,364	2,542	3,075

1. Eklutna project, Alaska.—The Alaska Power Administration's Eklutna project has completed its 20th year of operation. The total revenue through 1975 amounts to $29,916,689, and the current value of the plant in service is $31,772,327. Economies in operation and maintenance staff level and programs have offset general inflation impacts and enabled the project to meet repayment criteria while maintaining power rates at substantially the same level as they were 20 years ago. All available energy is under contract.

2. Snettisham project, Alaska.—The first phase of the 70,000 kw Snettisham project was put into commercial operation by APA, December 1, 1973, following partial acceptance of the facilities from the construction agency. Transmission line failures on one section of the line, due to exceptionally high winds and heavy icing conditions, have substantially curtailed production and sales. The Corps of Engineers has contracted for relocation of this section of the line to a lower elevation. Completion of the relocation is scheduled in December 1976. Project revenues should increase after the line has been relocated.

The Bonneville Power Administration constructs, operates, and maintains facilities to market electric power produced at Federal hydroelectric generating plants over its high-voltage transmission grid system to public and private utilities and industrial customers in the Pacific Northwest. It also wheels, exchanges, and purchases power from non-Federal hydroelectric and thermal generating plants.

The estimated amounts of peak generating capacity on the Federal transmission system are as follows (in thousands of kilowatts):

	Oct. 1, 1976	Oct. 1, 1985
Federal projects	15,438	22,176
Power wheeled and exchanged for non-Federal utilities	8,977	20,543
Total	24,415	42,719

The transmission facilities will integrate new generating facilities into the system. By October 1, 1976, 32 Federal hydroelectric generating plants are scheduled to be in operation on the system and 2 Federal generating plants will be under construction. These new plants, along with additional generating units being installed at six existing Federal projects, will bring the total Federal installed capacity from 15.4 million kilowatts to 22.2 million kilowatts.

Budget program—The activities of the BPA fund generally consolidate the activities provided for in the BPA appropriation accounts of previous years.

BPA's 1977 program will be financed from revenues and proceeds from the sale of revenue bonds or notes to the U.S. Treasury which will be repaid from future revenues.

BPA Fund activities include:

System operation and maintenance.—This activity provides for the scheduling and dispatch of power, operation, maintenance, planning of the system, and the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, billing and servicing these contracts, and the review and establishment of wholesale rates.

Purchase power and wheeling.—This activity includes the acquisition of power from other entities by purchase and exchange, and the use of transmission facilities.

Reserve for contingencies.—Provides for the purchase of power in low-water years; repair and/or replacement of facilities affected by natural and man-made emergencies including the resulting additional costs for contracting, construction, and operation and maintenance work; unavoidable increased costs for the planned program due to necessary but unforeseen adjustments including engineering and design changes, contractor and other claims, and relocations.

Reimbursable programs.—Provides for the acquisition of energy and other services provided by BPA under various types of reimbursable arrangements.

a. Energy purchase agreements.—Provides for the purchase of replacement energy from other sources for BPA industrial and utility customers during periods when nonfirm energy is not available from the Federal system, with BPA acting as an agent in acquiring nonfirm energy in their behalf, for which each customer provides funds in advance.

b. Other.—BPA constructs, operates, and maintains transmission facilities which are not provided by the Administration under its customer service policy when requested and financed by other entities. Also, BPA facilities are relocated as required for highway construction and other purposes under similar arrangements.

Transmission system construction.—Provides for continuation of construction work on transmission lines, substations, and related facilities initiated in prior years, and initiation of construction on system additions.

Financing.—Public Law 93-454, the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act, provides for the use by the Bonneville Power Administration of all receipts, collections, and recoveries in cash from all sources, including the sale of bonds, to finance the annual budget programs of the Bonneville Power Administration. These receipts result primarily from the sale of power and wheeling, also, Public Law 93-454 provides for the availability of $1.25 billion in authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury, at rates comparable to borrowings at open market rates for similar issues. Operating revenues are expected to amount to approximately $320 million in 1977.

Operating results.—Estimated cumulative retained earnings at the close of the budget year are $172 million. This represents a significant increase over the previous year. Retained earnings are applied to amortization of the Federal investment and to future operations of Bonneville Power Administration.

Business enterprise development is encouraged and assisted through programs of technical and financial aid, with strong emphasis on enterprises owned and operated by Indian individuals and organizations. Indian tribal organizations and individuals are assisted with securing and managing loans for resource and business enterprise development, housing, public utility facilities, education, and other purposes. Individual Indians are assisted in qualifying for, finding, and occupying jobs both on and off the reservation consistent with their needs, capabilities, and desires. Roads are maintained to provide for the movement of people and goods as needed for the well-being of the community. The conservation, development, and utilization of land, water, and related resources is encouraged and assisted.

4. Trust responsibilities.—This activity is designed to carry out the Bureau's trust and legal responsibilities to protect the rights of Indians in their trust property and those rights affecting trust property that are afforded by tribal autonomy; to carry out the authorities vested in the Secretary of the Interior by various laws concerning Indian trust property and to provide Indians the services they need to make decisions required of them in the application of these various laws; and to carry out programs to facilitate the trust.

5. General management and facilities operation.—The programs of the Bureau are operated from approximately 140 offices or installations. Activities are conducted at geographic locations ranging from Point Barrow, Alaska, to Hollywood, Fla., in 27 States. This program provides for the general management functions and for the repair, maintenance, and operation of facilities which support the Bureau's widespread programs. These functions include executive direction; management administrative services; safety management; operation and maintenance of Bureau physical facilities; and provision of GSA-owned or leased facilities. Administrative costs of centralized housekeeping work and general management costs at the local levels are financed on a reimbursable basis from the other program activities served.

6. Navajo-Hopi settlement programs.—This activity is designed to provide for the final settlement of the conflicting rights and interests of the Hopi and Navajo Tribes. The Secretary of the Interior has been authorized to implement stock reductions, boundary surveys, and to institute conservation practices and methods within the area to the maximum extent feasible.

This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of financing for Indians who cannot borrow from other Government credit agencies or from ordinary commercial lenders because of their low economic status, isolated geographic location, lack of bankable security or for other reasons (Indian Financing Act of 1974). Loans are made to tribes and other Indian organizations for re-lending to individual members and groups of members, to finance tribal business enterprises; and to help tribes attract industries to operate in localities that will promote the economic development of the Indians. Loans are also made to tribes for use by them in obtaining expert assistance for the preparation and trial of claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. Direct loans are made to cooperative associations and individual Indians for any purpose that will promote the economic development of the borrower, including loans for educational purposes.

The fund was established pursuant to the Indian Financing Act of 1974. The purpose of the fund is to support a loan guaranty and insurance program for guaranteeing or insuring loans made by commercial lending institutions to Indians and to tribes and other Indian organizations for economic development purposes. An interest subsidy will be paid from the fund on loans guaranteed or insured to reduce the Indian borrower's rate of interest to the rate charged on direct loans from the revolving fund for loans. The purpose of this program is to provide an incentive to the private lending sector to make loans to Indians which would not otherwise be made.

The 1977 budget request for administration of territories finances the costs of operating the office of the Governor, and the judiciary of American Samoa. Also requested are grant funds in the amount of $20.8 million for the operations of the Government of American Samoa. The most significant programs in the budget year include those for education, medical services, and public works.

In addition, the appropriation request includes $1 million for economic development as authorized in the Guam Economic Development Act of 1968.

The "Guam Elective Governor Act" which also pertains to the office of Comptroller for Guam, and the "Virgin Islands Elective Governor Act" which also pertains to the Comptroller for the Virgin Islands, provide that salaries and expenses are to be paid, respectively, from funds which would otherwise be covered into the treasury of Guam and grants which would otherwise be paid to the Virgin Islands. Operations of these offices are reflected under this appropriation for budgetary purposes.

The Working capital fund established January 2, 1975 (28 U.S.C. 527), provides on a reimbursable basis administrative services which can be performed more efficiently on a centralized basis.

The fund became operational July 1, 1975, financing payroll services and telephone related elements of telecommunications. As approved, other administrative services currently financed on a reimbursable basis to the General administration appropriation will be financed through the Working capital fund.

The fund is self-sustaining and requires no cash appropriation.

Enforcement of antitrust, consumer protection, and kindred laws.—This division administers and enforces the antitrust, consumer protection laws, and related statutes. The principal statutes involved are: (1) Section 1 of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations and conspiracies among competitors to set prices collusively, or otherwise to restrain trade; (2) section 2 of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations and attempts to monopolize and monopolization of interstate trade; (3) section 7 of the Clayton Act which prohibits corporate mergers and acquisitions which tend substantially to lessen competition or tend to monopolize; and (4) various statutory provisions which require Government regulatory agencies to consider the preservation of competition in the determination of public interest factors.

This program involves primarily the investigation of suspected violations of the antitrust laws, and the conduct of civil and criminal proceedings in the Federal courts which are designed to deter and punish violations, and to maintain and restore competitive conditions.

An increase is proposed for litigation expenses of the A.T. & T., IBM and Tires cases.

(b) Maintenance of investigative records and communications system.—The coordination and maintenance of information gathered, together with the need to maintain its communications system, will continue to place heavy demands on the FBI. Our program to disseminate information to other Government agencies having an official interest is being given increased emphasis.

Name check workloads, most of which are performed for other Government agencies, are expected to continue at a high level during 1977 with an estimated 2,200,000 name check requests to be received.

The FBI's communications system consists of records and voice communications. The continuous wave radio network has been replaced with facilities available through the telephone company and other Government agencies.

This subactivity is also responsible for responding to ever-increasing numbers of requests received under the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act of 1974.

The National Crime Information Center, a nationwide computerized information system for Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies, is expected to process 97,600,000 transactions during 1977, a 56% increase over the level experienced during 1975.

The uniform crime reporting (UCR) program collects raw criminal statistical data from more than 10,000 law enforcement agencies and publishes a number of reports based on this data. There are presently 31 States with UCR programs. An additional nine State programs are currently being developed each of which will require an extensive amount of technical assistance and training of State program personnel, field representatives and records personnel in State, county, and local law enforcement agencies.

(c) Field investigations.—The FBI's security and criminal investigations consume the majority of its manpower and financial resources. An expected 683,000 investigative matters will be received in 1977. This estimate takes into account a major shift in the investigative approach of the FBI, reflecting decreased involvement in less complicated, marginal matters and increased emphasis and activity in selected criminal and security classifications which have been identified as having the potential to impact significantly on the ongoing fight against crime and on efforts to provide for the security of this Nation. This shift in investigative approach is expected to result in fewer matters being received in 1977 than would otherwise be expected, although a slight increase over the 1976 level is anticipated. The new approach will have the effect of targeting our limited resources so that greater overall progress is achieved, particularly in the more complicated areas of our investigative jurisdiction.

2. Identification by fingerprints.—The FBI's Identification Division, the national repository of identification data based on fingerprint records, is expecting record-level workloads during 1977. Fingerprint receipts are estimated at 6,344,000, along with correspondence and related forms of approximately 5,775,000. Other numerical indicators including latent fingerprint cases received are expected to remain at high levels.

Existing procedures whereby an individual may obtain a copy of his identification record and rapidly increasing expungement requests portend very substantial increases in work of this nature in 1977. The substantial investment which has been made in the fingerprint automation program in past years is beginning to come into fruition as the computerized data base grows. This automation program will result in savings of up to $19 million and up to 2,000 clerical employees annually when fully implemented. This automation effort will continue to require a substantial effort during 1977.

3. Criminal and scientific laboratory.—The criminal and scientific laboratory of the FBI continues to provide the most up-to-date technical and scientific services to the law enforcement community. The volume of scientific examinations is expected to remain at a high level through 1977, but reductions will occur in equipment purchases.

4. Training.—The FBI trains its own personnel and provides, upon request, a wide range of training for State and local law enforcement agencies. During 1977, the FBI National Academy plans four sessions which will train an additional 1,000 police personnel to assume leadership roles in their respective departments. Plans are to begin a 50% reimbursement program for State and local training in 1977. Specialized courses are also being planned to meet other training needs.

5. General administration.—The 1977 budget request also contains amounts needed to provide for all the FBI's centralized functions of an administrative nature, the conduct of Bureau-wide inspections and audits and a planning and evaluation staff.

Reimbursable work.—The FBI expects to handle about 20,000 investigative matters on a reimbursable basis in connection with requests from other Government agencies for applicant-type investigations during 1977, and name checks will be conducted for certain agencies on a reimbursable basis. The FBI will continue to assist the House Appropriations Committee through the loan of personnel for which it will be reimbursed. Proceeds from sale of automobiles being replaced will also be received. A total of $5,175 thousand is expected from these sources. In addition, it is anticipated that $7,872 thousand will be received from State and local agencies for training heretofore offered on a cost-free basis.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is responsible for administering laws relating to the admission, exclusion, deportation, and naturalization of aliens. Specifically, the Service inspects aliens to determine their admissibility into the United States; adjudicates requests of aliens for benefits under the law; prevents illegal entry into the United States; investigates, apprehends, and removes aliens in this country in violation of the law; and examines alien applicants wishing to become citizens.

During 1977, the Service proposes to expand its efforts to locate and deport those aliens already in the country illegally; and improve the Service's internal management so as to provide for better performance in its mission.

1. Inspection for admission into the United States.—The Service will continue its efforts to admit only those persons entitled to enter the country, while excluding those aliens who are not admissible.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average of 24,000 prisoners, and for the maintenance and operation of 39 penal institutions, 19 community treatment centers in 13 metropolitan areas, 5 regional offices and a central office.

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions.—This activity covers the direct care costs of all prisoners in the Federal Prison System including the costs of all food, clothing, welfare services, medical supplies, and release transportation. Also included in this activity are the staff salaries related to the functions of case management, correctional services, religious services, and mental health as well as food and inmate services. Major program thrusts will be activating two new youth centers and improving resource application via partial installation of unit management.

2. Inmate education.—A variety of general, social, and occupational education courses are available to inmates on a voluntary basis. This activity reflects these costs including the costs of staff salaries. Participation in these courses can better equip the inmates for employment and enhance the probability of their success in the community. Major emphasis in 1977 will be on efforts to increase inmate participation and increase the rate of course completions from 75% to 80%.

3. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—Included in this activity are costs for repair of facilities, purchase of equipment and utilities, maintenance and operation of utilities systems, administrative items such as staff training, financial, personnel, and information management and transportation, and related contractual and personal services costs. Repair projects are generally accomplished with the use of supervised inmate labor.

The physical plant of the Federal Prison System includes 39 penal institutions and 19 community treatment centers. An adequate maintenance program will extend the useful life of this physical plant. The 1977 request provides for substantial cost escalation in fuel and utility rates and activation of two new youth centers.

4. Medical services.—Comprehensive medical care is provided to Federal inmates at institution health care facilities, supplemented by the use of community facilities and services where institution services are inadequate or unavailable. Commissioned officers of the Health Services Administration (HSA) augment the Bureau's medical staff.

5. Narcotic addict treatment.—This activity reflects the costs for institution and community programs in the treatment of drug addiction. Institution programs include offenders committed by the courts specifically for treatment and offenders from the general population with drug abuse problems. Assignment and participation in the programs require positive assessment of its benefit to the offender. Community treatment programs, all of which are under contract, are available to drug dependent offenders released from Bureau institutions, and to offenders designated by the courts for participation in the program as a condition of probation.

6. Technical assistance to State and local governments.—At the end of the current fiscal year the technical assistance function will be transferred to the newly requested appropriation for the National Institute of Corrections.

7. General administration.—This activity covers the costs of regional and central office executive direction and management support functions, such as research and evaluation, ADP, financial and personnel management, legal counsel, and procurement.

1. Planning and site acquisition.—This activity reflects the costs of efforts to obtain suitable sites for approved construction projects, including site purchase and development and facility design. During 1977 advance planning and site acquisition will continue for the Northeast youth complex. In addition, efforts will begin to obtain sites for the two facilities included in the 1977 budget request, the Detroit and Phoenix metropolitan correctional centers.

2. New construction.—This activity represents costs associated with the construction of new facilities in order to reduce overcrowding, to close large and antiquated penitentiaries, and to provide facilities conducive to productive corrections. In 1977, construction will be completed on the Memphis and south central youth centers. Construction will begin on the two facilities for which budget authority is requested in 1977—the northeast adult and southeast youth facilities.

3. Improving existing facilities.—This activity includes rehabilitation and renovation of buildings, and necessary modifications to accommodate new correctional programs, rehabilitation or replacement of utilities systems, and repair projects at existing facilities. In 1977 obligations of $12,560 thousand will be incurred for projects such as major plant renovation, air and water pollution control, and electric systems rehabilitation. An additional obligation of $1,500 thousand will be incurred for the Oxford, Wis., lease/purchase agreement.

The Bureau of Prisons contracts with approximately 900 approved State and local jails to board Federal prisoners for short periods of time. Such periods occur before and during trial, during commitments for short sentences, and while awaiting transfer to Federal institutions after conviction. An average of 5,737 prisoners were boarded at an average cost of $12.94 per man day in 1975. Contracts are also awarded to State and local community activities to provide community services to over 3,000 offenders.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., was created by Congress in 1934 and is a wholly owned Government corporation. Its mission is to employ and train Federal inmates through a diversified program providing products and services to other Federal agencies. These operations are conducted in such a manner as to offer a minimum of competition to private industry and labor. Employment provides inmates with work, occupational knowledge and skills, plus money for personal expenses and family assistance. Inmate training is provided in entry level skills, and through factory on-the-job training and experience. New industries, which will utilize skills in demand in the labor market, are developed as feasible to replace industries providing less valuable training and to satisfy needs for industrial operations at new Bureau of Prisons' facilities.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., is entirely self-sustaining. No appropriations are required. Revenues are derived entirely from the sale of products and services to other Federal agencies. Earnings surplus to the needs of manufacturing operations, capital improvements and cash reserves are utilized to pay vocational training expenses, meritorious service awards and accident compensation.

Amounts which the corporation may use for administrative expenses and vocational training expenses are subject to congressional limitation. Management of the corporation is performed by a staff of 39 employees located in the corporate headquarters in Washington, D.C.

The production, sales, and general business outlook for the corporation appears optimistic. Sales are projected at slightly over $68 million for the current year and should be $74 million by 1977. Earnings are not expected to increase correspondingly, primarily because more production resources will be expended in special training-manufacturing operations (production training units).

The Crime Control Act of 1976 and the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974 place within the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) responsibility to provide assistance to States and local units of government to reduce crime and juvenile delinquency, improve and strengthen the quality of the criminal justice system—police, courts, and corrections—and provide resources and leadership for the development, implementation, and coordination of a comprehensive juvenile justice and delinquency prevention program.

1. Grants for development and implementation of comprehensive plans.—The funds awarded under this program are used to support State planning agencies (SPAs) which prepare and adopt, in cooperation with regional planning units (RPU) and local units of government, an annual State comprehensive law enforcement and criminal justice plan based on the States' evaluation of their own criminal justice systems. During 1977 SPAs and RPU will focus on enhancing their evaluation capabilities and identifying the needs for technical assistance to subgrantees.

2. Matching grants to improve and strengthen law enforcement.—Upon approval by LEAA of an annual comprehensive plan, State planning agencies are awarded block grants based on a population formula. These funds are used to strengthen and expand the skills, techniques, and programs available to the criminal justice community for the reduction and prevention of crime and delinquency and the detection, apprehension, adjudication, and rehabilitation of offenders.

Discretionary grants are the means by which national priorities and programs are emphasized. These grants afford LEAA the opportunity to provide leadership by placing emphasis on specific program areas and testing innovative strategies to resolve continuing problems. These funds are used to support projects aimed at upgrading all components of the criminal justice system. During 1977 discretionary funds will be used to continue the Drug Enforcement Administration task forces, juvenile justice activities, and other ongoing efforts such as the career criminal program and citizens' initiative efforts.

A new high crime area program will address the immediate and urgent problems associated with an increase in crime which is concentrated in the larger cities and counties. Jurisdictions with major problems of serious crime will be provided assistance in crime analysis, problem definition, and in the selection, development, and application of precisely tailored programs aimed at improving the effectiveness of the criminal justice system in reducing crime.

3. Aid for correctional institutions and programs.—The funds awarded under this program will provide up to 90% of the cost of development and implementation of programs and projects for the improvement of adult and juvenile correction programs and practices including construction, acquisition, and renovation of correctional institutions and facilities. At the discretion of LEAA, 50% of the funds provided under this program for correctional improvements are distributed to States in the form of block grants to implement programs identified in the State's annual comprehensive plan. During 1977 the program will continue to focus on the development and upgrading of community-based facilities and programs and the improvement of probation and parole systems.

4. Technical assistance.—These funds are available to provide technical assistance to States and units of local government, public or private agencies, organizations, institutions, or international agencies in matters relating to the improvement of law enforcement and criminal justice. Through this program, agencies are provided assistance and kept abreast of developments in various fields.

5. Research, evaluation, and technology transfer.—Support is provided for research, development, technology transfer and evaluation of techniques, systems, equipment, and devices to reduce and prevent crime and strengthen and improve operation of the criminal justice system. During 1977, evaluation and replication programs will be emphasized.

6. Educational assistance and special training programs.—During 1977 this program will provide special training in the prosecution of organized crime for prosecuting attorneys; training in the latest criminal justice techniques and methods including the advanced criminal justice practices training program and the SPA/RPU training effort; financial support for approximately 1,000 interns; and support to a number of institutions to strengthen criminal justice curricula.

7. Data systems and statistical assistance.—This activity collects, evaluates, publishes, and disseminates statistics and other information on crime conditions and the progress of law enforcement and criminal justice; provides technical and financial assistance to States and local jurisdictions in the application of statistical procedures and information systems and plans, coordinates, and operates all data systems activities within LEAA. During 1977 the statistics program will continue ongoing statistical series; the systems development program will assist States and local jurisdictions with the implementation of comprehensive data systems; and the system analysis program will focus on providing assistance to States on management information systems.

8. Juvenile justice and delinquency prevention program.—Through this program funds will be awarded to States and territories in the form of block grants; special emphasis grants will focus on deinstitutionalization and diversion; and research and evaluation efforts will continue.

9. Management and operations.—This activity includes funds for the administrative operations of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration. During 1977, planning for the high crime area program will be completed and program implementation will begin.

The appropriation request for 1977 totals $161,897 thousand. It will provide 102 additional positions and additional funds for DEA to maintain constant pressure on the many fronts of drug trafficking and to develop the types of cases which will have a more significant impact on the highest levels of traffickers.

The means by which the DEA performs its mission are summarized by the following activities:

1. Law enforcement.—(a) Criminal enforcement.—This activity encompasses the enforcement of Federal laws regarding narcotics and dangerous drugs; reducing the supply of illicit drugs entering the United States from foreign sources; laboratory analysis of evidence for support of prosecutive cases; training foreign narcotic officers; preparing information necessary to the process of scheduling substances under the Controlled Substances Act.

(b) Compliance and regulation.—This activity encompasses the regulation of the legal trade in narcotics and dangerous drugs, and includes establishment of import, export and manufacturing quotas for controlled drugs; registration of manufacturers, handlers and dispensers of controlled drugs; and investigations to determine points of diversion into the illicit market.

(c) State and local assistance.—This activity encompasses cooperative law enforcement activities with State, county and local officers; a continuing drug enforcement training program for law enforcement officers; training programs for forensic chemists; laboratory support for enforcement agencies including analysis of evidence and professional testimony in State prosecutive cases; and development and distribution of training aids on controlled substances for local, State, and Federal personnel.

2. Intelligence.—This activity encompasses the acquisition and analysis of drug intelligence and the dissemination of the data. It supports DEA, other Federal, State, local and foreign efforts to interdict or suppress the illicit international or domestic movement of drugs, through ability to attack the drug traffic in a systematic way, assessment of vulnerabilities of traffickers, and supplying information for policy determination and strategy.

3. Research and development.—This activity encompasses research programs directly related to the DEA law enforcement and regulation functions and includes, but is not limited to, studies designed to compare the deterrent effects of various enforcement strategies; assess and detect accurately the presence of controlled substances in the human body; evaluate the nature and sources of supply of dangerous substances; develop more effective methods to prevent diversion of controlled substances into illicit channels; develop information necessary to carry out functions of section 201, Public Law 91-513, Authority and Criteria for Classification of Substances; develop and apply systems and technologies for limiting the supply of illicit drugs in the United States, and undertake analyses to insure the most effective utilization of these systems.

4. Executive direction.—This activity encompasses the overall direction and management of DEA.

Reimbursable program.—A reimbursable program, funded by the Department of State, provides for the training of foreign law enforcement officials. Forty classes are held each year, both in the United States and host countries.

This fund, established by the Employment Security Act of 1960, received an original appropriation of $250 million. It made advances without fiscal year limitation to the Employment Security Administration account in the Unemployment trust fund. The purpose of this fund was to finance the Federal and State administrative costs of the employment security programs on a repayable basis from the beginning of the year until the Federal unemployment tax receipts became available, when advances were repaid with interest. The quarterly tax collections provisions of Public Law 91-53 together with the authority contained in section 901 of the Social Security Act, as amended, which allows the account to maintain balances at the beginning of each year, provides sufficient resources, thereby making this revolving fund unnecessary.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment trust fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by State payroll taxes. The tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment trust fund and invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments. The expenses of State and Federal administration (including those of the Federal-State employment service), are paid from the funds out of revenue from the Federal unemployment tax, assessed on employers, of 0.5% of the first $4,200 of wages.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment trust fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

1. Improving and protecting wages.—This program is one of obtaining compliance with the minimum wage, overtime, child labor, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act, enforcement of the labor standards provisions under various Federal procurement acts, under the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act, and under the wage garnishment provisions in title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act. Regulations and interpretative materials are developed for the compliance program and special minimum wage standards are set. About 525,000 workers are expected to be directly aided each year by these efforts. This program also includes determinations of prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits for all Federal and federally assisted contracts for construction subject to the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts. Prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits determinations are also made to protect service workers under the Service Contract Act.

2. Elimination of discrimination in employment.—The major effort of this activity is to make equal opportunity an employment standard. Under Executive Order 11246, as amended to include sex discrimination, the Employment Standards Administration works to insure nondiscrimination in employment on Federal contracts. Under the Executive order, each contracting agency is responsible for obtaining compliance concerning those contracts entered into by the agency or its contractors. The Employment Standards Administration is responsible for the direction, coordination and evaluation of the contracting agencies' programs. Emphasis will be placed on providing equal employment opportunities to minorities and women in service and supply industries. In addition, increased employment opportunities will be provided in the construction industry through agreements among labor, management, and community groups under hometown or where necessary, imposed plans. Through its Women's Bureau, the Employment Standards Administration continues to develop policies and programs to promote the welfare of wage-earning women and to encourage their fuller utilization in the work force. Enforcement of the equal-pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act are also included in this activity. Administration of affirmative action provisions of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, to hire and promote physically and mentally handicapped individuals, is under this activity. Also included in the activity is the administration of the Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act providing for affirmative action by Federal contractors to employ and advance in employment disabled veterans and veterans of the Vietnam era.

3. Workers' compensation.—Under this income-maintenance activity the Employment Standards Administration administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA), Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, their various extensions, and the benefit provisions of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act. These programs insure that eligible disabled and injured workers or their survivors receive compensation and medical benefits and a range of services including rehabilitation, supervision of medical care, and technical and advisory counseling to which they are entitled. Technical assistance is provided to the States to upgrade their workers' compensation laws.

4. Program development and administration.—This activity provides for the direction and coordination of Employment Standards programs. Program planning, research, evaluation, budget, and other administrative activities of the Employment Standards Administration are carried out in a manner that meets predefined objectives insuring effective and efficient program management and execution. Increased emphasis will be placed on developing effective Federal-State cooperation and on strengthening ESA's programs for training compliance personnel of other agencies and for providing technical assistance to employees.

1. Federal Employees' Compensation Act benefits.—Currently, long-term compensation benefits are being paid to more than 36,000 Federal and eligible civilian employees (or their survivors) under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and its extensions, who were injured or who died as a result of work-related incidents. Injury reports are checked for compensability and if found compensable, pertinent medical bills are paid. Claims for compensation benefits are filed when the injury causes loss of job time. The 1974 Amendments to the FECA require that Federal workers suffering noncon- troverted traumatic injuries continue in full-pay status for a period not to exceed 45 days. The cost of this salary continuation is borne directly by the injured employee's agency rather than through this account. Under the amendments, Employment Standards Administration district offices retain responsibility for medical payments, controverted claims, claims for occupational disease or nontraumatic injury, claims for disability extending beyond 45 days, and postadjudication of all continuation-of-pay claims. Costs to this account are subsequently charged back to the employing agency.

2. Disabled coal miners' benefits.—Administration of the black lung benefits program by the Department of Labor began July 1, 1973. Title IV of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended, provides that compensation benefits and medical treatment costs be paid to those who have been totally disabled due to pneumoconiosis. The Department pays benefits directly when no responsible mine operator can be determined under the insurance provisions of the act. Both surface and underground miners are covered by the program. Survivors who meet the test for eligibility are entitled to compensation benefits when in the case of a deceased miner, it is shown that the death was attributable to pneumoconiosis. Receipt of approximately 15,000 claims is expected in 1976, 2,000 in the July 1-September 30, 1976, transition period, and 6,000 in 1977.

3. Longshore and harbor workers' compensation benefits.—Under the 1972 Amendments to the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, the Federal Government pays one-half of the increased benefits provided by the amendments from direct appropriation for persons on the rolls prior to enactment. The remainder is provided from the special fund which is financed by private employers assessed at the beginning of each calendar year for their proportionate share of these payments. The amendments granted an increase in compensation benefits for total disability and death cases. Approximately 2,000 of these cases will be compensated in 1977.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, and for fines and penalty payments (33 U.S.C. 944; 31 U.S.C. 725).

Section 44 of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act was amended in 1972 increasing the amount of payments made into the special fund by employers in death cases where no person is entitled to compensation, and it provided for an annual assessment of the industry for payment to the special fund to apply to all benefits paid from it. (These payments include the private portion of the increased benefits provided by the amendments.)

These trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury results in a permanent partial disability which, combined with a previous disability, results in increased permanent partial disability, permanent total disability, or death, the employer provides compensation only for the disability caused by the subsequent injury. Compensation to supplement the employer's payment is provided from this fund. Maintenance payments are made to disabled employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation to enable them to return to remunerative occupations. Payments are made in cases where insolvency or other circumstances preclude payment by an employer and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by the insolvency of an uninsured employer. In addition, provision is made for the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled longshore and harbor workers.

Beginning in 1976, the fund also finances rehabilitation services authorized under section 39(c) (1) and (2) of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended.

The amount of securities reflected on the program and financing schedule is for the District of Columbia Compensation Act.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is responsible for performing the functions assigned to the Secretary of Labor by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. The act extends mandatory Federal standards of safety and health protection having general application to over 64 million workers in nearly 5 million places of employment. The act provides for grants to States to assist them in administering and enforcing State programs for occupational safety and health which have been approved by the Secretary, and provides for direct enforcement of Federal standards in States declining to assert jurisdiction.

1. Safety and health standards.—Mandatory standards are promulgated to assure the greatest possible protection of the safety and health of workers. New and revised standards are proposed and promulgated on the basis of criteria recommendations of the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (HEW), special advisory committees appointed by the Secretary, Federal and State agencies with related responsibilities, and other interested parties and organizations. All new standards, except emergency temporary standards, are promulgated under procedures providing opportunity for public comment. Prior to promulgating permanent standards, evaluations are made concerning their possible economic and inflationary impact.

2. Compliance.—Compliance with occupational safety and health standards is gained in part by the physical inspection of plants and facilities. Federal matching grants of up to 50 percent of total costs are provided so that States may provide for the coverage of one or more occupational safety and health issues under an approved plan with standards and a program of enforcement which have been determined to be as effective as the Federal program. Program operations are targeted to the investigation of fatal or catastrophic accidents, the investigation of claims of imminent danger and bona fide employee complaints, inspections of establishments in industries with a high incidence and severity of work-related injuries or illnesses, and inspections of a cross-section of establishments in all industries. The voluntary cooperation of employers and employees is actively encouraged, and some technical assistance and advice is offered. State programs are monitored to insure that all elements of their approved plans are implemented effectively and that adequate funds and resources are provided. Federal and State enforcement efforts are integrated to provide a balanced national program of occupational safety and health. It is estimated that 100,000 inspections will be made under the act in 1976 by Federal enforcement personnel and 140,000 inspections will be made by States with approved programs. In 1977, Federal inspections are expected to increase to 115,000 and State inspections will increase to 160,000.

3. Education, consultation, and information.—Training courses, educational programs, and information are provided to employers, employees, trade associations, union representatives, State and local safety and health personnel, and other interested members of the public to assist them in an understanding of their rights and responsibilities under the act and of the actions necessary to assure a safe and healthful workplace for workers. Short-term technical and professional training is conducted to increase the number and competence of personnel engaged in the field of occupational safety and health. Federal departments and agencies are provided training and technical assistance in establishing and maintaining safety programs which will afford Federal employees protection consistent with that provided private sector employees under the act. In 1975, OSHA directed or approved training will be provided to an estimated 66,000 persons.

4. Safety and health statistics.—Statistics on occupational fatalities, injuries and illnesses are collected and published annually to aid in the identification of occupational safety and health problems and to facilitate improvements in the administration of the act. Studies are conducted to identify circumstances and events associated with injuries and illnesses which may suggest causes and means of prevention.

5. Executive direction and administration.—The executive direction, planning and evaluation, and management functions support the above activities. To a very considerable degree, program responsibilities are decentralized to the field. Three-fourths of the OSHA staff is now located in 10 regional offices of the Department, and over 100 OSHA area, district, and operations offices and field stations.

4. Productivity and technology.—Analyses are prepared on output per man-hour and unit-labor cost trends for the entire U.S. economy and for specific industries. Studies are conducted on automation and other technological changes and the adjustments to such changes. Studies are made of labor requirements for selected types of construction. Analyses and international comparisons are made of prices, wages, employment, unemployment, and unit-labor costs. Research is conducted on the effects of international trade on U.S. employment.

5. Economic growth.—Long-range projections of U.S. economic growth are prepared. Special economic and social studies are undertaken and special reports prepared for the Commissioner, the Secretary, the Council of Economic Advisers, and other Government agencies.

6. Executive direction and staff services.—Provides leadership in developing plans and policies for the Bureau's economic, statistical, and management programs. Program plans are coordinated and evaluated. Statistical and data processing systems are operated and maintained. Research and report activities are coordinated; publications and releases are planned and edited; and a central inquiry service is maintained.

7. Revision of the Consumer Price Index.—The Consumer Price Index measures average changes in the retail prices of selected goods, rents, and services. A revision to modernize the index is under way to meet the demands for its use in present-day domestic, economic, and industrial planning. The revision program, which was initiated in 1970, has been phased so that a revised index will be completed, tested, and published in 1977.

Reimbursable program.—Funds are advanced from sources outside the Federal Government to finance special statistical studies. For example, during 1977 the Bureau will collect and analyze store inventory prices for the American Retail Federation, conduct surveys on compensation and labor cost studies for the State of New York, develop an index of cost of operating apartment houses for the city of New York, and conduct studies of occupational wages in selected areas and industries for IBM.

Under proposed legislation, the amount of wages subject to the Federal unemployment tax would be increased to the first $6,000 of wages beginning calendar year 1977. The legislation would also increase the net Federal tax rate from 0.5% to 0.65% as of January 1, 1977, and reduce it to 0.45% in the calendar year after all advances to the extended unemployment compensation account have been repaid. Since many States tie their State unemployment taxes to the Federal wage base, State unemployment tax receipts will increase as well. Another provision of the proposed legislation will extend unemployment compensation coverage to many of the approximately 12 million agricultural workers, domestic workers, and State and local government employees who are not now covered under the permanent Federal-State programs.

Federal reimbursements will decline sharply in 1977, when the Department will finance many of the services previously reimbursed by other agencies, as shown in the footnote above. This change in financing represents two-thirds of the increase in direct obligations and affects, primarily, activities numbered 2, 5, and 6.

1. Executive direction and policy formulation.—The Secretary is assisted in the formulation of policy and direction of the Department's activities by appropriate staff officers, specialized offices, and functional bureaus of the Department.

2. Conduct of diplomatic and consular relations with foreign countries.—This includes representation of the United States and its citizens abroad, political and economic negotiations and reporting, consular operations, and overseas administrative services. Increases are included for rising prices and local employee wage rates in other countries.

3. Conduct of diplomatic relations with international organizations.—In collaboration with other Government agencies, U.S. policy is developed and coordinated on political and security issues and in such specialized fields as world health, education, and labor activities.

4. Domestic public information and liaison.—This program provides for informing the American public on international policies and also keeping the Department informed on American attitudes on foreign policy.

5. Central program services.—These provide personnel and physical security measures, operations of the Foreign Service Institute, and the administration of a global communications system for civilian activities of the Government, including services for other agencies on a reimbursable basis.

6. Administrative and staff activities.—This includes normal domestic administrative activities.

The Foreign Service Buildings program provides consolidated office space for the Foreign Service and other Government agencies abroad and living quarters for American employees. This program also finances real property leases of 10 years or more (shorter term leases are included in Salaries and expenses); procurement of initial furniture and furnishings; and repair, maintenance, and operating costs of these facilities.

Under this program, unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other Government civilian operations overseas. Housing is provided American employees in localities where suitable housing is otherwise unavailable.

In 1977, capital appropriations under this account would be limited to the first phase of constructing a complex of office, residential, and service facilities in Moscow.

The United States contributes its assessed share of the budgets of the above-listed organizations.

The introduction of the new fiscal year requires that the President's budget include estimates of U.S. assessments against several international organization budgets not yet firmly determined. Consequently, the appropriation request reflects both a current estimate of the U.S. position on those organizations' budgets which have not yet been approved, as well as assessments resulting from approved organization budgets. The increases in U.S. contributions are largely attributable to the cost of maintaining the prior year level of operations. No appropriations are sought for the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization since that organization has not yet taken action sufficient for the President to certify, as required by law, that it has reversed its actions of a primarily political character.

1. Lower Rio Grande flood control improvement program.—Authorized by agreement with Mexico and the act of August 19, 1935 (49 Stat. 660). Work will be completed in 1977, using prior appropriated funds, on repairs and improvements of flood control works to protect the cities of Brownsville, Harlingen, Mercedes, Hidalgo, and Weslaco, whose metropolitan areas include a combined population of 125,000 and over 400,000 acres of irrigated land on the United States side of the Rio Grande, from river floods such as occurred in September 1967 following Hurricane Beulah.

2. Tijuana River flood control project.—Authorized by the act of October 10, 1966 (90 Stat. 884). Construction of U.S. improvements required for flood control in the Tijuana River valley in California and Baja California can proceed with available funds when the issue of local interests providing firm commitments for their share of the costs of the project rights-of-way is resolved. At that time any additional resources that may be needed for the completion of this project will be requested.

3. 1970 boundary treaty projects.—Authorized by the American-Mexican Boundary Treaty Act of 1972, approved October 25, 1972 (Public Law 92-549), to facilitate compliance with the treaty between the United States of America and the United Mexican States, signed November 23, 1970. Work will continue in providing boundary preservation works, and for protection of the boundary against encroachments and demarcation of maritime boundaries.

4. Rio Grande canalization project improvements.—Recent studies show that modifications are required in the project to safeguard from floods the increase in urban-suburban development that has taken place since construction of the project in 1943.

This appropriation provides for the educational and cultural exchange programs of the Department of State. These programs are designed to strengthen patterns of informal communication among leadership groups and institutions in ways which will favorably influence the environment within which U.S. foreign policy is carried out. They (1) focus on individuals of exceptional talent, promise or influence; (2) emphasize exchanges involving cultural, educational, governmental and other institutions; (3) help achieve other U.S. goals at the same time they improve communication; and (4) seek mutuality of interest, involvement and benefit as the most effective way to develop lasting understanding.

The Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1975 authorized appropriations to relocate and resettle refugees from Cambodia and Vietnam in the United States and other countries. Public Law 94-24 appropriated $305,000 thousand to the Department of State for these purposes. This appropriation, together with certain foreign assistance funds, financed the evacuation of refugees from Cambodia and Vietnam; the establishment, outfitting and staffing of refugee staging centers in the Pacific and reception centers in the United States; and contracts with voluntary agencies to recruit sponsors and to provide initial financial aid in settling refugees. In 1976 the President will transfer $25,000 thousand from this account to the HEW account "Special Assistance to Refugees from Cambodia and Vietnam in the United States." The law requires that the program be completed June 30, 1976.

The Department of Transportation Act of 1966 assigns to the Secretary broad responsibilities for the development and coordination of national transportation policies and programs. This appropriation finances those research activities and studies which directly support the Secretary's responsibilities and which can more effectively or appropriately be conducted in the Office of the Secretary than by the operating administrations within the Department. The program is carried out primarily through contracts with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit research organizations, and private firms.

1. Transportation policy and planning.—Transportation problems and issues are assessed and policies developed on the basis of empirical and systematic research. This research provides the foundation for development of transportation policy, for coordination of national level transportation planning, and for dealing with such difficult issues as regulatory modernization, energy conservation, allocation of Federal resources in the transportation sector, and treatment of financially ailing transportation industries.

2. University research.—This research is designed to assure that resources of the higher education community are effectively brought to bear on transportation problems. Another aim is to encourage greater involvement of universities and colleges with the Department, State, and local governments, and the transportation industry.

3. Transportation systems development and technology.—In general, projects are designed to complement research and development programs of the operating administrations and to stimulate industry efforts to advance transportation technology. In 1977, research and development activities will emphasize ways to conserve energy used in transportation, to develop multimodal and intermodal systems and technology, and to promote environmental and ecological improvements.

4. Special programs.—Projects provide technical studies and other data in support of departmental effort in the areas of safety program coordination, hazardous materials and pipeline safety, transportation security, consumer and environmental affairs, and facilitation of passenger and freight transportation. Emphasis in 1977 will be on the development of greater information for larger environmental impact assessment capability and simplification of cargo documentation.

This appropriation provides for grants of up to 50% of the cost of activities of a State agency to carry out a natural gas pipeline safety program under the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968 which also established minimum safety standards. In 1977, the budget allows for additional States and the expansion of activities of States currently participating in the pipeline safety program.

The fund was established to facilitate the operations of the Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge, Mass. The Center is funded from advances received from the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations in the Department.

The Transportation Systems Center serves as a research, analysis, and technical development resource for the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations. Its planned projects for 1977 are grouped into the following DOT R. & D. objectives:

Modernize regulation and legislation.—TSC activity is concentrating on the analysis of Federal regulation of the motor carrier and air carrier industries to search for better methods of considering service quality and market density when estimating costs in relation to routes and route structure.

Increase efficiency and service.—This area involves air, rail, and urban systems. TSC is especially involved in analysis of automation, performance improvement techniques, and service and methods demonstrations.

Improve safety and security.—TSC is the primary source of rail safety research for the Department. Support in airport surface traffic control, wind shear, crash protection and human factors comprise additional activities in the safety and security area.

Lessen unfavorable environmental impacts.—The major thrusts involve multimodal considerations of noise abatement and control, environmental pollution assessment, as well as aircraft, truck, rail, and vessel emissions modeling and measurement projects.

Minimize adverse impacts of energy constraints.—This effort is concentrated in the areas of energy policy analyses, conservation alternatives, impact assessment and network evaluation of commodity flow (including energy materials). The Center is also developing automotive energy efficiency information, analysis and performing fuel economy monitoring in support of DOT's mission.

Increase knowledge base.—This effort is concentrated in the generation, collation, standardization, and dissemination of information bases (including the National Summary of Transportation Statistics). This involves statistics, economics, and computer applications. All TSC projects contribute to this information as applicable. In addition, TSC performs research delving into fundamental knowledge impacting both urban and intercity transportation. TSC serves as one of DOT's main focal points for the sharing of planning, economic and technical data to State and local governments, and as appropriate, to private industry.

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out the duties specified in title 14, United States Code.

1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs any and all acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft accidents, floods, and ice conditions.

2. Aids to navigation.—A network of manned and unmanned aids to navigation is maintained along our coasts and on our inland waterways to insure the safe passage of the mariner. Loran stations are operated in the United States and abroad to serve the needs of the armed services and marine and air commerce. Administrative control is exercised over the construction, maintenance, and operation of bridges across the navigable waters of the United States to insure that the safe passage of navigation is not unreasonably interfered with.

3. Marine safety.—The Coast Guard insures compliance with Federal statutes and regulations pertaining to the merchant marine industry by reviewing plans and specifications for the construction or alteration of merchant vessels; by periodic inspections; by licensing and by setting standards, procedures, and practices under which merchant marine personnel are licensed and regulated. The accompanying legislative proposal provides for a reduction in this program to eliminate Federal documentation of pleasure craft, modernize Seaman documentation procedures, modernize vessel documentation, and simplify tonnage measurement.

4. Marine environmental protection.—Under the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended, the National Environmental Policy Act, the Ports and Waterways Safety Act, Deepwater Port Act of 1974, and other laws, international agreements and conventions; the Coast Guard is charged with the prevention of damage to the marine environment from intentional and unintentional acts and for the enhancement of environmental quality. Under the Ports and Waterways Safety Act, title 14 of the United States Code, the Dangerous Cargo Act, the Tank Vessel Act, Executive Order 10173, as amended, and various other statutes; the Coast Guard must safeguard and secure U.S. ports and waterways against environmental harm, accidental or intentional loss, damage, or injury, and by doing so, to improve the economic utilization of ports and waterways while assuring their availability in time of national emergency.

5. Ocean operations.—Offshore law enforcement is accomplished by both cutters and aircraft conducting fisheries patrols and general law enforcement patrols to enforce international agreements and federal laws on the high seas and waters over which the U.S. exercises jurisdiction. Ice operations (polar and domestic) are performed by specially constructed icebreakers operating in support of Coast Guard programs, the requirement of other agencies, and in the facilitation of commerce. Marine science activities are carried out in support of other Coast Guard programs and on a cooperative basis with other Government agencies. The International Ice Patrol is carried out within this program.

6. Military readiness.—The Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy in times of war or national emergency at the direction of the President. During peacetime, an effective state of military preparedness is maintained through individual and unit training, by joint naval training exercises, or by Coast Guard single and multiship operations.

This appropriation provides for the acquisition, construction, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, shore units, and aids to navigation. Most Coast Guard facilities are multi-mission facilities listed below under their primary mission area. "Operating expenses" funds are used to defray the expense of rebuilding through replacements, alterations, and restorations involving less than 75% of the original facility. They are also used to defray expenses of improvements through modification, addition, or expansion where the estimated cost of a project is $75 thousand or less.

1. Search and rescue.—In 1977, search and rescue boats and one replacement tugboat will be constructed along with a modernization program for the overage 95-foot patrol boats. Six medium-range surveillance aircraft will be procured. Additionally, selected shore facilities will be constructed, replaced, or renovated.

2. Aids to navigation.—Provision is made under this activity for the procurement of aids to navigation boats, construction of one inland construction tender, and the renovation and improvement of aged buoy tenders. The program to provide Ioran-C radionavigation service throughout the coastal confluence zone is being continued.

3. Marine environmental protection.—This activity provides for the procurement of several 32-foot port safety boats and continuation of programs to eliminate discharge of oily and nonoily waste from Coast Guard vessels.

4. Ocean operations.—The major provision in this activity is the replacement of overaged and obsolete high- and medium-endurance cutters placed in service in the 1930's and early 1940's.

5. General support.—Major effort under this activity will be to provide for the construction or purchase of housing for Coast Guard personnel and their dependents where adequate living accommodations are unavailable.

The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1975 compared with estimated numbers for 1976, transition quarter, and 1977:

The Coast Guard Reserve training program's objective is to provide qualified individuals and trained units to be available for active duty in time of war or national emergency, and to augment regular forces in performance of their peacetime missions during domestic emergencies and periods of routine as well as peak operations.

Direct program.—1. Initial training.—This activity encompasses direct costs of initial training for two program categories of nonprior service trainees. The first category involves those who perform approximately 30 weeks initial training comprised of recruit training and attendance at a class A school. The second category involves training for those reservists whose performance of initial training is split between two consecutive summer periods. The first period, 2½ months, consists of recruit training. The second period, 2½ to 4 months, consists of specialty training and/or on-the-job training with the length of the period varying with the type of training elected.

2. Continuing training.—Direct costs of officer and enlisted drills and annual active duty for training are programed under this activity.

3. Operation and maintenance of training facilities.—All costs for the operation and maintenance of Reserve training facilities are programed under this activity. Included are the costs of a training vessel, the prorated share of the cost of joint usage of Coast Guard and other Armed Forces facilities, the cost of providing stationkeeper support to the organized Reserve training units, and the procurement of training aids and facilities (under $75 thousand).

4. Administration.—This activity encompasses all administrative costs of the Reserve training program.

Reimbursable program.—5. Miscellaneous services for other accounts.—The Coast Guard performs functions related to mobilization for the Selective Service System for which reimbursement is received.

1. Search and rescue.—Emphasis will be placed on the improvement of search and rescue operation effectiveness including distress detection, locating, and response procedures. Major projects include: development of sensors to provide rescue helicopters with an effective all-weather electronic search capability; and continued development and testing of a prototype medium range surveillance radar.

2. Aids to navigation.—Program activities are intended to reduce the potential for pollution-causing incidents and to improve the effectiveness, reliability, and position accuracy of navigational aids while reducing their operating and maintenance cost. Major efforts include advanced development of buoy hardware and positioning techniques; applied research to determine Loran-C monitor and control techniques and system standards; and exploratory development of techniques to augment Loran-C for precision navigation in harbors and harbor entrance environments.

3. Marine safety.—Commercial vessel safety research provides a knowledge base to support establishment of regulations to prevent vessel casualties. Marine transportation system safety research efforts include risk analysis, development of cargo containment techniques, and continued development of improved fire safety equipment and techniques.

Recreational boating safety activities include continued applied boating safety research of safe loading characteristics, fire and interior hazards, safe powering, collision avoidance, and level flotation design characteristics.

4. Marine environmental protection.—Major emphasis continues on: (a) development of remote and in situ sensors with the capability to detect, classify, and quantify pollution spills; (b) development of new systems and procedures for the control and cleanup of oil and other hazardous substances in the Arctic and fast current regions; and (c) development of equipment to handle ship-board waste disposal.

Vessel traffic system development will concentrate on improved traffic management techniques, system performance criteria, and functional effectiveness.

Research in support of Coast Guard regulatory responsibilities identified by the Deepwater Port Act of 1974 include: (a) definition of a technical method to specify minimum safe underkeel clearance for supertankers at deepwater ports; (b) development of secure and environmentally safe deepwater port oil transfer systems; and (c) determination of criteria for deepwater port mooring accuracy and vessel collision avoidance.

5. Ocean operations.—Program emphasis continues on the improvement of icebreaking technology and ice research.

6. Program support.—Identification of technical transfer opportunities independent of specific programs that will provide scientific and technological avenues likely to produce significant future advances in Coast Guard productivity and capability. This area also provides for administrative and project management personnel at headquarters, and for the operation, maintenance, and personnel costs of the R. & D. laboratory facilities.

This fund insures immediate cleanup of oil or other hazardous polluting substances spilled into the navigable waters of the United States, adjoining shorelines, or waters of the contiguous zone. The fund is used when a spill occurs and the responsible owner or operator of a vessel, of an onshore facility, or of an offshore facility (whether in the public or private sector) does not accomplish immediate cleanup with his own resources. Expenditures from the fund are later reimbursed by the responsible owner or operator (whether in the public or private sector).

The Coast Guard supply fund, in accordance with 14 U.S.C. 650, finances the procurement of uniform clothing; commissary provisions; general stores; technical material; and fuel for vessels over 200 feet in length. The fund is financed by reimbursements from sale of goods.

Activity of approximately $55 million in this fund in 1977 is divided 8% for uniform clothing; 49% for commissary provisions; and 43% for general stores, technical material, and fuel.

Higher sales in 1976 and 1977 in commissary provisions and fuel are expected as a result of increases in the number of recruits, and increases in price levels.

By use of the fund each cadet is assured funds to meet personal expenses while at the Academy and an adequate balance in his account at graduation for officer outfits, civilian clothing, and graduation leave expenses. The fund also receives and expends funds of the Coast Guard Academy Athletic Association.

The Coast Guard surcharge collections, sales of commissary stores fund is used to finance expenses incurred in connection with the operation of the Coast Guard commissary stores at Coast Guard Base, Governors Island, N.Y.; Coast Guard Training Center, Petaluma, Calif.; and Coast Guard Base, Kodiak, Alaska. Revenue is derived from a surcharge placed on sales to authorized store patrons (14 U.S.C. 487).

1. Operations.—(a) Operation of traffic control system.—This activity covers the operation of a national system of air traffic management in the United States and its possessions. With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 25 centers monitor and control en route flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 425 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 328 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other information to pilots and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. The increase in 1977 will provide for increased positions and employment in the controller work force to handle workload growth and to operate newly commissioned air traffic control facilities.

TRENDS IN VOLUME OF AIR TRAFFIC

1976 estimate	63.0	27.2	170.5
1977 estimate	65.9	28.6	184.9

(b) Installation and materiel services.—This activity covers procurement, contracting and materiel management programs; supply support and leased communications services for the traffic control system; and supply support for agency aircraft except for aircraft related to the research and development programs, and lease costs for space. Increases in 1977 are to provide supply support, and leased communications services for air traffic control and air navigation facilities.

(c) Maintenance of traffic control system.—This activity covers the direction and engineering services related to the maintenance, improvement and modification of facilities and equipment in the traffic control system; and technical operation and maintenance of a national network of air navigation and traffic control aids in the United States and its possessions. Increases in 1977 are for the maintenance of new traffic control and navigation aids planned for commissioning, and additional funding for special maintenance projects, and automation contract maintenance.

(d) Administration of flight standards program.—This activity provides for: (1) monitoring the accuracy of signals emitted from the air navigation aids; and (2) the establishment and enforcement of the civil air regulations which are designed to assure the high standards of safety in aviation. Inspections are made and certificates issued for aircraft, airmen, aircraft operators, and air agencies which meet safety or competency requirements. This program also provides for the management, operation and maintenance of agency aircraft used in facility flight inspection, development of flight procedures, and inspector flight training. Resources are also included under this activity for the conduct of the Federal Government's air transportation security program.

(e) Administration of medical programs.—This activity covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the development and supervision of an occupational health program for agency personnel; the administration of an aviation medical research program.

( ) Development direction.—This activity covers the planning, direction, and evaluation of the engineering and development program, the direct project costs of which are financed under the Research, engineering and development and Facilities, engineering, and development appropriations.

(g) Administration of airports program.—This activity provides for the administration of an airport planning grant program, a development assistance program for the improvement of public airports, and an airports certification program as authorized by the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, as amended. A planned reduction of staff under this activity in part assumes enactment of legislation.

1. Engineering and development.—(a) Aircraft safety.—This subactivity covers the development of regulations for an accident prevention program designed to promote flight safety of civil aircraft by assuring the design, flight performance, and airworthiness of aircraft and development of systems and devices to prevent and deter sabotage in the civil air transportation system. (b) Aviation medicine.—This subactivity provides for conducting an aeromedical research and development program to identify and eliminate those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize flight safety. (c) Environment.—Principal efforts provided for under this subactivity are the development of data to support rulemaking and to minimize the undesired environmental effects on the public attributable to the air transportation system.

2. Facilities and equipment.—This activity provides for training equipment used primarily by flight inspectors in keeping abreast of the latest technology in the areas of their responsibility and for the purpose of maintaining proficiency in the performance of their duties. Procurement and modification of nonflight inspection aircraft, and improvement and replacement of navigation and communication equipment are included.

This appropriation finances maintenance, operations, management, and capital outlay costs for equipment and minor facility projects at the federally-owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports which serve the Metropolitan Washington area.

The operation of the airports is conducted on a commercial basis, with revenues derived from landing fees, concession activity, and lease arrangements being deposited as receipts in the general fund of the Treasury. The direct operating costs and capital outlays are financed by direct appropriation. An estimated increase of $1,689,000 in 1977 operating costs over 1976 is expected to be offset by an estimated $1.7 million increase in revenues.

Combined revenues are expected to exceed the 1977 appropriation by $7.2 million. In 1977, operating profit at Washington National is expected to exceed the 1975 actual operating profit by $0.9 million, and the 1976 estimated operating profit by $0.2 million. At Dulles International, operating profit for 1977 is expected to be an improvement of $2.5 million over the 1975 actual loss and should exceed the 1976 estimated operating profit by $0.1 million.

The rate structures and concession arrangements are established so as to assure the recovery of operating costs, interest expenses, and an appropriate return on the Government's investment during the useful life of the airports.

The following table reflects the expected increase in activity at the airports:

The projects in the construction programs for Washington National and Dulles International Airports for 1977 are designed to accomplish the following four objectives:

1. Airport development.—At Washington National Airport, funds are provided to redesign and improve the airport road system, design improved airport utility systems, and expand the north terminal apron. At Dulles International Airport, funds are provided to expand the cargo apron and extend fueling to the cargo apron, and expand public parking.

2. Upgrade airfield operations facilities.—As part of the ongoing program to upgrade airfield operations facilities at the two airports, six airfield projects have been included for 1977.

3. Rehabilitate existing facilities and correct deficiencies.—Existing facilities require periodic rehabilitation and, in some instances, reconstruction to correct deficiencies in load capacity resulting from airport growth. At National, funds are provided to rehabilitate the terminal air conditioning system, improve the storm drainage system and expand the industrial waste system pump station. At Dulles, funds are provided to reconstruct sections of the access highway and reseal concrete road joints.

4. Improve passenger safety and convenience.—A project to build a pedestrian connection to Metro is included at National to provide an elevated weather-protected, automated walkway for airport passengers from the transit station to the airport terminal area.

The fund currently provides premium aviation war risk hull insurance to U.S. international air carriers. Premium binders are issued to cover aircraft, persons, and property and become war risk insurance in wartime and in situations short of war. Administrative costs are out of fee receipts (49 U.S.C. 1531, as amended; 75 Stat. 210).

Unfunded contingent liability as of July 1, 1975, is estimated at $42 billion. This amount includes hull insurance and personal and property liability on approximately 348 aircraft insured under this program.

The Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-258, 84 Stat. 219), provides for the transfer of revenue from the general fund to the Airport and airway trust fund. This revenue is derived from the aviation fuel tax and certain other taxes paid by airport and airway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amounts to be so transferred. In turn, annual appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for federally aided airports and airways.

The status of the fund is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The authority to incur new obligations for ADAP under the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, as amended expired on June 30, 1975. Legislative proposals to extend and modernize the grants-in-aid for airports program are pending before Congress. The administration's proposal provides for reduced Federal involvement and greater flexibility in the implementation of this program. The proposed legislation provides for planning and development grants to be obligated from multi-year contract authority to become available annually. The proposal provides $350 million annually for airport planning and development.

Under this appropriation, the Federal airway system is improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities to keep pace with aeronautical activity. The appropriation also finances major capital investments required by other agency programs such as aircraft for facility flight inspection and training, and experimental facilities for the engineering and development program. The 1977 estimate will carry forward the program to increase the capacity of the airway system and make its operation safer and more efficient. The program includes the initial funding required to implement a major program for the automation of flight service station activities. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed from the Operations appropriation. The budget activities include the following facilities and functions:

1. Air route traffic control centers.—(a) Long-range radar provides FAA air traffic controllers with information on aircraft positions, at distances up to 185 miles, (b) automation equipment includes computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling en route air traffic, and (c) other center facilities include the installation of equipment to provide communications and related services.

2. Airport traffic control towers.—(a) Terminal area radar aids traffic control in the vicinity of airports by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 60 miles, (b) terminal area automation includes computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling terminal air traffic, and (c) other tower facilities include the establishment, improvement, and relocation of airport traffic control tower facilities.

3. Flight service facilities.—(a) Domestic flight service stations and associated facilities provide flight assistance service to pilots, and (b) international flight service stations provide long-distance communications for trans-oceanic flights.

4. Air navigation facilities.—(a) Very high frequency omnidirectional radio ranges equipped with tactical air navigation capabilities (VORTAC) are standard short-range navigation aids used to define airways and air routes and to provide distance and direction information to pilots, (b) low- and medium-frequency facilities include radio beacons and ranges which provide pilots with direction and weather information, (c) distance measuring equipment, and (d) instrument landing systems provide pilots with direction, and glide slope information necessary for making safe approaches to runways under poor visibility conditions, and visual lighting aids which assist the pilot in making final approaches to airport runways, particularly in areas where terrain or other environmental factors pose potential hazards to safe landings.

5. Housing, utilities, and miscellaneous facilities.—This activity includes general facility support requirements which apply to a wide range of FAA facilities.

6. Aircraft and related equipment.—This activity includes the facility flight inspection function, aircraft and avionics equipment to inspect the accuracy and other characteristics of navigation and traffic control aids from the air.

7. Development, test, and evaluation facilities.—This activity provides for the improvement of plant and facilities at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center in Atlantic City, N.J., and the procurement, rehabilitation, or replacement of capital items of equipment for use in the evaluation and development program

The FAA conducts engineering and development programs to improve the national air traffic control system and to increase progressively its capacity to meet air traffic demands of the future. The effort to increase capacity is based on exploiting current technology and applying system engineering techniques to the development and integration of new equipment into the total system. The agency also administers aviation medical research aimed at increasing the personal effectiveness of traffic controllers.

These programs are conducted, under the direction of the agency's technical personnel, through contracts with qualified private firms, universities, individuals and other Government agencies.

1. Air traffic control.—This provides for improving the airway system by applying existing technology to air traffic control problems to keep the current system operating safely and by making system improvements to increase the capacity of the current system. These improvements include the surveillance of aircraft by tracking radars and control center processing of flight information received from pilots, airline dispatchers, flight service stations and the surveillance system through a national communications network. The high-speed, or real-time, computerized processing of this data for traffic controllers is a key to increasing system capacity. This traffic control program also provides for increasing the capacity of major airports to handle larger, faster passenger aircraft safely and efficiently. These increases in airport capacity will be achieved by the development of new, computerized airport traffic control systems which will enable more efficient metering and spacing of terminal traffic under all weather conditions.

2. Navigation.—This provides for modernization, expansion, and improvement of the common navigation system facilities in the United States and in overseas areas where international agreements require U.S. participation. This capability ranks in importance with the radar surveillance of aircraft in the effort to increase system capacity. It requires the development of new navigation techniques and sophisticated landing systems capable of handling increased air traffic in adverse weather conditions.

3. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to modernize the acquisition, processing, dissemination and display of weather information tailored to the needs of aviation users. Development of systems for the detection and avoidance of wind shears is also included in this activity.

4. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting aeromedical research directed toward identifying and eliminating those physiological and psychological factors inimical to personnel engaged in operating the traffic control system.

The Highway Safety Act of 1970 provided authorizations for grants to States and communities for implementing highway-related safety standards. This funding was one-third Federal funds and two-thirds trust funds.

The Highway Safety Act of 1973 amended the original authorization to include Indian reservations and the three territories, and changed the funding to 100% trust fund.

The United States, in cooperation with the Republic of Panama and the Government of Colombia, will participate in the construction of approximately 250 miles of highway through the Darien Gap. No funds may be further obligated for this program until all requirements of the NEPA Act of 1969 have been fulfilled. Decisions on further funding will be based on an analysis of the Environmental Impact Statement and an assessment of the commitments of the participant governments to completion of an environmentally acceptable highway.

1. National scenic and recreational highway.—The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized $90 million for the reconstruction of the Great River Road by the 10 States bordering the Mississippi River. A program level of $60 million is planned for 1977, of which $44 million will be trust fund. This reimburses the Federal fund, National Scenic and Recreational Highway Appropriation, for the trust fund share of construction.

2. Railroad-highway crossings demonstration projects.—Provided $4,933 thousand through 1976 for carrying out demonstration projects in 14 cities throughout the United States. A program level of $10 million is planned for 1977, of which $6,667 thousand will be trust fund. This request is dependent on new authorizing legislation. This amount will reimburse the appropriation Railroad-highway crossings demonstration projects, which provides for the Federal fund portion of the authorization.

3. Rail crossings-demonstration projects.—Provided $9,730 thousand through 1976 for the elimination of unsafe crossings along the route of the Washington, D.C., to Boston, Mass., high-speed railway, and in the vicinity of Greenwood, S.C. This amount reimburses the appropriation Miscellaneous accounts, which provides the Federal fund portion of this program. No new appropriation is requested for 1977.

4. Rural highway public transportation demonstration program.—Provided $16.8 million through September 30, 1976, to encourage the development, improvement, and use of highway-related public mass transportation systems in rural areas. This amount will reimburse the appropriation Miscellaneous accounts, which provides the Federal fund portion of this program.

5. Highway-related safety grants.—The Highway Safety Act of 1970 provided authorizations for grants to States and communities for implementing certain highway-related safety standards, and the 1973 Act extended this to include Indian reservations and the three territories. Funds in this account will be used to reimburse Federal funds highway-related safety grants.

This appropriation, established in 1975, seeks to identify, correct, and evaluate the effectiveness of the solutions to the most critical elements contributing to loss of life, disabling injuries, and property damage on America's highways. The emphasis of the research is to provide workable solutions in minimum time to a high priority highway safety problem.

Funds appropriated for this account have been transferred to the General operating expenses limitation where the program is administered in conjunction with other research and development programs of the Federal Highway Administration.

The Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974 authorized $109.2 million for reconstruction or replacement of 2-lane bridges on the Overseas Highway. A total of $1 million has been appropriated. No additional appropriation is requested for 1977 pending further study of construction and funding alternatives.

1. Motor vehicle program.—This activity encompasses the development, promulgation, and enforcement of safety standards for new and used motor vehicles, tires, and equipment. Compliance evaluations and defects investigations are undertaken to determine safety-related motor vehicle defects. Studies are made to determine the effects on product costs and leadtime for implementation by industry. Additional funds in 1977 will cope with the inflationary inroads of recent years which have caused reductions in the level of compliance testing.

2. Traffic safety program.—This activity provides for headquarters and field staff to establish policy, program, and technical guidance to the States in executing highway safety programs to determine program effectiveness and to assure conformity with governing laws and regulations. Funding is also provided to carry out training and execution programs; and to conduct demonstration projects that will speed the implementation of new safety techniques into practice. The 1977 budget reflects new program endeavors to deal with youth over involvement in highway accidents, and intensifies programs to improve State traffic records systems.

3. Research and analysis.—This activity provides for motor vehicle and highway safety research and development, for the collection of data to determine the relationship between motor vehicle or equipment performance characteristics and crashes or the occurrence of death or personal injury as a result of such crashes. The 1977 programs provide for continuation of efforts to improve the accident investigation data base and to resolve vehicle-to-vehicle crash compatibility problems in the research safety vehicle effort.

4. Motor vehicle consumer information.—Pursuant to the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act, this activity provides for the development of cost effective bumper performance standards designed to prevent damage caused by low-speed collisions; consumer information relating to the comparative safety and damageability of passenger cars; establishment of diagnostic inspection demonstration projects; and the establishment of odometer regulations. The 1977 program provides only for the financing of the expenses of present staff. Studies will continue to evaluate the program requirements for title II, automobile rating systems and title III, special diagnostic inspection demonstration projects.

5. Engineering facility.—This activity provides the in-house testing capability that is needed by NHTSA to support rapid evaluation of petitions for safety defect enforcement actions in conformance with the Motor Vehicle and Schoolbus Safety Amendments of 1974. The 1977 budget provides only for minimum rental payments since equipment and alteration costs will be financed in 1976.

6. General administration.—This activity provides for the executive direction, coordination, and implementation necessary to NHTSA's overall policies, programs, and objectives. Basic administrative and support requirements for all safety programs is also provided in this activity.

safety programs in 1977. This is an estimate of NHTSA's share of a total program of $120 million to be jointly administered with the Federal Highway Administration.

Annual program plans as submitted by the States and approved by the two agencies will determine the actual distribution of obligations, except for dedicated funding. The 1976 and 1977 State and Community highway safety grant programs contemplate two distinct elements including: basic grants and incentive grants.

1. Basic grants.—$88 million in basic grant funds are provided to the States to carry out safety programs such as driver licensing, motor vehicle registration, traffic records, police traffic services, driver education, school bus driver training, etc., and the administration of grant programs. Individual States are utilizing this funding in areas which have the greatest potential for achieving safety improvements and reducing traffic fatalities and accidents at the State and local level. Major emphasis areas which will continue from 1976 involve planned investment in alcohol countermeasures programs and enforcement of the national speed limit.

The 1977 program will continue to emphasize: (1) Upgrading of the planning and evaluative capabilities of State highway safety agencies, and (2) achievement of program goals through joint Federal/State participation in approaches to identification of high payoff programs and their subsequent evaluation.

2. Incentive grants.—In 1977, $15 million for incentive grants will be provided to those States which have achieved specified reductions in their traffic fatality rate, or have met other criteria established by the Secretary, pursuant to proposed legislation, for identifying recipients that have made the most significant progress in highway safety.

The program in 1977 continues the 1976 level, excluding funding for general headquarters support and non-safety-related positions proposed for financing under other Federal Railroad Administration appropriations.

The Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, as amended, provides for several forms of financial assistance in conjunction with the restructuring of the bankrupt railroads, and for other purposes. These are described below.

1. Interim operating assistance.—This activity provides for payment to the trustees of railroads in reorganization, as authorized in the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, to continue essential transportation services through February 1976 when conveyance is expected to occur.

2. Rail service continuation subsidies.—This activity provides for payment to a State, or a local or regional transportation authority for the purpose of continuing local rail service, as authorized by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973. The Federal payment is restricted to 70% of the deficit on a particular rail line.

3. Northeast corridor.—These funds represent the beginning phase of a major new initiative to upgrade the Northeast corridor passenger service between Washington, D.C., and Boston. This multi-year project will result in decreased trip times, greater schedule reliability, and improved ride quality on the corridor.

4. Administration.—This activity provides for the administration, management and contractual funding in support of the objectives of rail service assistance activities.

In addition, supplemental funds of $236 million are provided in 1976, pursuant to section 210(f) of the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973. ConRail will owe the U.S. Railway Association $236 million in section 215 obligations when it begins operations. The Secretary will pay the U.S. Railway Association $236 million, allowing these obligations to be forgiven, in accord with the final system plan.

Federal assistance to AMTRAK is made in the form of grants for operating losses and, since last year, capital improvement grants. Prior to last year, capital improvements were financed with 100% federally guaranteed loans. A total of $900 million in loan guarantees were allocated to AMTRAK.

1. Operating grants.—Operating grants to AMTRAK were $299 million in 1975 and are expected to reach $328.8 million this year. By permitting an operating grant increase—$49 million—in 1977, the more economical, significantly patronized routes can be continued. However, since the 1977 allowance is less than that needed to retain the entire present system, route curtailments will be necessary.

2. Capital grants.—$105.7 million in capital improvement grants will be used by AMTRAK in 1977 to continue improvements in the efficiency and quality of its service. Included in this amount are planned improvements to stations, acquisition and upgrading of several maintenance facilities, ordering of new locomotives and passenger cars, and related investment requirements.

3. Baltimore-Washington International Airport intermodal station.—This activity provides for construction of an intermodal terminal concept connecting rail, air, and other surface transportation at the proposed rail passenger station at the Baltimore-Washington International Airport.

The Emergency Rail Facilities Restoration Act authorized the Secretary of Transportation to make loans for the purpose of restoring or replacing railroad facilities, equipment, or services damaged or destroyed as a result of the natural disasters which occurred during the month of June 1972.

The act provided that no loan application could be approved later than 8 months from the date of its enactment, which was October 27, 1972. Therefore, the program was terminated in 1974.

The Alaska Railroad is operated by the Federal Government under the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), as a bureau of the Federal Railroad Administration.

Budget program.—The major activity of the rail line operation program is transportation service; the principal supporting activities are maintenance of way and structures, maintenance of equipment, and communications system operation and maintenance. Lease of real properties, riverboats, and related facilities round out the other operating programs.

Financing.—To the extent possible, programs are financed by revenues earned from freight and passenger services and other services incidental thereto. Local rail car and container freight will continue at a high level in 1977 because of the increased activity in the construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline. In 1977, appropriated funds will be used to repair and replace deteriorated track, equipment, and other facilities.

Appropriation language.—In 1977, it is proposed that language be deleted from the 1976 Appropriation Act, which exempted Alaska Railroad employees from executive branch employment level controls.

This fund was established to finance all capital and operating assistance grants, contracts, and loan activities authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended. Under the provisions of the 1973 and 1974 amendments (the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 and the National Mass Transportation Assistance Act of 1974), additional capital was provided in the form of contract authority, $3.0 and $8.8 billion, respectively, in each act. The capital facilities, relocation, and technical studies activities are financed by the authority to obligate in advance of appropriations. Grants and contracts for the research, development, and demonstration; managerial training, university research and training activities, and administrative expenses are funded through appropriations, with such appropriations being accounted for within the available contract authority.

Capital outlay.—Capital facilities grants.—Pursuant to section 3 of the act, grants are made to State and local public agencies to assist in financing acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities of mass transportation service in urban areas. In 1977, the activity level will be $1.1 billion in capital grants.

The $1.1 billion level in 1977 is estimated to create 201 new projects, which will result in a total of 759 active projects. This compares with an activity level of $1.1 billion in 1976 with an estimated 558 active projects, and $1.2 billion in 1975 with 389 active projects. It is anticipated that in 1977, this activity will continue to assist in the acquisition of new bus and rail stock, and continued construction support for new rapid transit systems and extensions.

Legislation is being proposed to eliminate section 3(h) which allows a grant recipient to divert up to 50% of capital grant funds to pay operating expenses.

Formula grants.—Pursuant to section 5 of the act (amended by section 103 of the National Mass Transportation Assistance Act of 1974), grants can be made to urbanized areas or parts thereof on the basis of a formula for the acquisition, construction, and improvement of facilities and equipment, and the payment of operating expenses. In 1977, the activity level will be $0.7 billion. This is estimated to create 300 projects, and compares with an activity level of $0.6 billion in 1976 with an estimated 180 projects, and $0.2 billion in 1975 with 97 projects. $125.0 million is planned for the transition quarter.

Technical studies grants.—Under this activity—authorized by section 9 of the act—State and local public agencies are assisted in carrying out studies relating to management operations, capital requirements, economic feasibility, and conducting similar activities in preparation for the construction, acquisition, or improved operation of mass transportation systems, facilities, and equipment. Regional transportation plans are also developed with these grants.

In 1977, the activity level will be $45.0 million with an estimated 300 grant recipients. The activity level compares with $38.7 million in 1976, and $37.1 million in 1975. $9.2 million is planned for the transition quarter.

Research, development, and demonstrations, grants and contracts.—This activity—conducted under section 6 of the act—involves projects designed for the development, testing, and demonstration of new facilities equipment techniques (operational and managerial), and methods which assist in reducing urban transportation needs, in improving mass transportation services, or in meeting total urban transportation needs at an effective cost level.

In 1977, the activity level will be $67.5 million with an estimated 225 projects. This compares with $53.4 million in 1976 with an estimated 195 projects, and $46.7 million in 1975 with 140 projects. $10.8 million is planned for the transition quarter.

Managerial training.—Grants under this activity—authorized in section 10 of the act—are made to public bodies to provide university fellowships for up to 1 year of advanced training. Fellowship awards are made for the training of personnel employed in managerial, technical, and professional positions in the urban mass transportation field.

In 1977, the activity level will be $0.5 million with an estimated 100 fellowships. This compares with $0.6 million in 1976 and $0.5 million in 1975, with 100 fellowships each year. $0.2 million is planned for the transition quarter.

University research and training.—Grants under this activity—authorized in section 11 of the act—are awarded to public and private nonprofit institutions of higher learning. The grants are to assist in establishing or continuing programs which combine professional training in urban transportation and related fields.

In 1977, the activity level will be $2.0 million with an estimated 18 projects, which compares with $2.0 million in 1976 with 17 projects and $2.2 million in 1975 with 17 projects; $0.5 million is planned for the transition quarter.

Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for carrying out administrative functions, including executive direction, budgeting, accounting, property management, and personnel management. The administrative expenses activity will be conducted at a $18.6 million level in 1977. This compares to $12.5 million in 1976 and $9.0 million in 1975. $3.5 million is planned for the transition quarter.

Capital facilities loans.—Under this activity, two types of loans are available. Capital improvement loans are to finance the acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities and equipment. Loans are also provided for the advance acquisition of real property to be used as a part of planned mass transportation systems.

While there are pending applications for loans, this activity has such a low volume of approvals, no effort is made to estimate new loan commitments. Authority available is sufficient to cover any possible loan and an administrative adjustment is made to accommodate this activity.

Interstate transfers.—In 1976, an estimated $632 million in transit projects will be assisted under the provisions of 23 U.S.C. 103(e)(4) and an estimated $575 million will be used in 1977. This compares to $66 million provided in 1975.

Urban systems.—23 U.S.C. 142(e) authorizes use of urban systems authorities in assisting transit projects' 25 substitutes for highway efforts. Use is based on local decisions and therefore no estimates are made for 1976 or 1977. In 1975, $16 million was used under this activity.

Financing.—The 1973 and 1974 amendments to the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 provided budget authority of $11.8 million. These amendments of 1973 and 1974 provide an authorization for appropriations to liquidate obligations, and, further, require that all other appropriations be accounted for within this authorization.

For 1977, an appropriation of $1,598.6 million is being requested, and this compares with $1,354.6 million appropriated in 1976; $339.4 million in the transition quarter, and $501.0 million in 1975, which are charged to the authorization to incur obligations in advance of appropriations, and to the schedule for appropriations. There follows a series of schedules reflecting usage of appropriations (in millions of dollars).

<sup>1</sup> This action was added in the 1970 amendments to the 1964 act, and provided authority to incur obligations in advance of appropriations. Included in a part of this provision is a defined schedule of authorizations for appropriations to liquidate obligations and to provide financing for sections 6, 10, 11, and administrative expenses.

<sup>2</sup> This authorization predates the authority to incur obligations in advance of appropriations, and remains available for use, as needed, pursuant to the provisions of the 1970 amendments (section 4(c)).

<sup>3</sup> This section was added in the 1974 amendments (Public Law 93-503) to the 1964 act and provided authority to incur obligations in advance of appropriations. Included in these amendments is a defined schedule of authorizations for appropriations.

<sup>4</sup> Amounts appropriated for liquidation of obligation authorized under 23 U.S.C. 103(e)(4) and 142(c): Such amounts are not subject to appropriation limitation in sec. 4(c).

The continuing overall goal of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation is to keep the Saint Lawrence Seaway system a safe, efficient, low-cost transportation artery. Concurrently, the Corporation must implement innovative programs to fully develop the potential of the system recognizing that cargo is directly translatable into employment, income and other economic benefits for the entire Great Lakes area. The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation's 1977 budget reflects these objectives:

1. Administrative expenses (limitation).—This program provides for executive management and administration of the Corporation, and includes finance, legal, civil rights, procurement, personnel administration, and other related support services.

2. Operations.—This program provides for operation of all facilities and for planning and development activities. Operations are conducted on a 24-hour-day, 7-day-week basis throughout the navigation season with maintenance functions being performed throughout the year. Some major maintenance items are necessarily deferred to the off-navigation season when both operations and maintenance forces are utilized for their accomplishment.

3. Capital outlay.—This program provides for cost effective facility improvements such as the installation of improved fenders on locks, lock chamber lighting modifications, the experimental installation of a hydraulic strut arm on one lock gate leaf, a modified airline system at Snell Lock, installation and testing of an ice control system, installation of ice control devices for lock chamber walls, and improved navigation aids, buildings, grounds and equipment replacements.

The Corporation estimates its revenues for 1977 to reach $7.6 million which it proposes to apply as follows:

1. $5.1 million to pay operating expenses consisting of administrative expenses of $1.0 million (subject to limitation) and $4.1 million for operations.

2. $1.5 million to pay estimated capital outlay costs for season extension projects, facility improvements, and replacement of equipment.

3. $1.0 million for the scheduled redemption of the Corporation's revenue bonds issued to the U.S. Treasury.

No capital impairment has occurred through the end of the past year nor is any anticipated in the budget year.

Legislation will be proposed to eliminate second career training of air traffic controllers who are eligible to retire and limit eligibility to those not eligible for compensation under the Federal Employees Compensation Act.

Pending legislation provides that certain costs of maintaining air navigation facilities, now 100% financed from the General fund, be reimbursed to FAA's Operations appropriation from the Airport and airway trust fund. The programs so funded will be limited to systems maintenance, leased communications, and direct cost of stocks and stores. The expected level of 1977 trust fund receipts will permit payment for these costs as well as the costs of airport development, airway facilities investment, and research programs without drawing on accumulated prior year balances. Additional provisions will adjust the user tax structure and reduce direct Federal supervision of certain airport development projects.

The Department of the Treasury Working capital fund was authorized by section 401, Public Law 91-614 (December 31, 1970) to finance administrative services that could be performed centrally in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department.

Implemented July 1, 1971, the fund finances telephones, telegraph, printing reproduction, and printing procurement services, by advances or reimbursements from appropriations and funds of the Department, other Federal agencies, and other authorized sources for supplies and services at rates which will recover the expense of operations, including accrual of annual leave and depreciation of equipment.

PERSHING HALL MEMORIAL FUND—Continued

The Secretary of the Treasury may invest the principal of the Pershing Hall Memorial Fund in interest-bearing U.S. bonds. Earnings are paid to the American Legion for use in the maintenance of Pershing Hall in Paris, France (36 U.S.C. 491).

There is pending legislation which would transfer the control of Pershing Hall to the Administrator of Veterans Affairs. The proposed legislation would abolish the Pershing Hall Memorial Fund and provides that the Secretary of the Treasury liquidate any nonliquid assets in such fund and cover the proceeds and other fund assets into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Public Law 94-12, approved March 29, 1975, provided for a special payment to recipients of benefits under certain retirement and survivor benefit programs.

In accordance with the law, the Secretary of the Treasury made a one-time special payment of $50 to each individual who, for March 1975, was entitled to monthly insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act, to monthly pension or annuity benefits under the Railroad Retirement Acts, or to supplemental security income benefits. An individual was entitled to only one special payment, even though he may have been entitled, for March 1975, to benefits under two or more of the above-mentioned programs.

These payments were not social security benefits in any sense but were intended to provide to the aged, blind, and disabled a payment comparable in nature to the tax rebates which the law provided to those who were working.

The Indian Claims Commission has the authority to receive and adjudicate claims of Indian tribes. When the Commission determines that a claimant is entitled to recovery, the final award is forwarded to the Treasury. The Bureau of Government Financial Operations is responsible for transmitting the amount to the Office of Management and Budget for inclusion in a supplemental appropriations request.

Public Law 93-585, dated January 2, 1975, authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to make grants to the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford University, Calif. The law authorizes (a) a no-year appropriation of $7 million to be used over a 5-year period to match gifts and other contributions made to the Hoover Institute, (b) that the grants be used for the construction of a new educational building and for equipment of such building, and (c) that the Institute furnish to Treasury such information as is required by agreement. This agreement is entered into between the fiscal assistant secretary on behalf of the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University, Stanford, Calif.

The act further provides that if a facility constructed with the aid of any grant under this act is used as an educational facility for 20 years following completion, the public benefit shall be considered to be equal in value to the amount of the grant. The period of 20 years after completion shall be known as the period of Federal interest in such facility. Each year for the 20-year period of Federal interest in the building, the grantee shall certify in writing to the grantor that the provisions of Public Law 93-585 have not been violated.

All grant payments are to be used only for the purposes of the grants. Application for grant funds will be approved when the grantee determines that the accumulated donations are substantial enough to warrant such action. Each application shall be accompanied by a list of donations covering a stated period of time, on the basis of which the application is made. Such lists of donations shall be initially attested to by an official of the grantee, and will be subsequently verified by a certified public accountant at

The Check forgery insurance fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561). Additional appropriations of $50 thousand in 1964, $100 thousand in 1970 and $1,800 thousand in 1973 increased the fund to a total of $2 million. This fund is for use by the U.S. Treasury in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the U.S. Treasury which have been paid on forged endorsements.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorsers of the checks through reclamation procedure by this office. Benefits from these early settlements are shared by claimants and the Government in that the claimants are more quickly restored financially to their proper position and the Government is spared the necessity of much unproductive correspondence. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover the funds, this revolving account sustains the loss.

Amendments to the Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967 (Public Law 92-569) created a Fishermen's protective fund to reimburse owners of vessels for the amounts of fines, fees, and other direct charges which were paid by the owners to a foreign country to secure the release of their vessels and crews.

Prior to the creation of the Fishermen's protective fund, the Secretary of State certified the amounts due vessel owners to the Secretary of the Treasury. These certified amounts due vessel owners were held by the Secretary of the Treasury until a request was received for their submission for a supplemental appropriation. These requests were received in the spring and fall of the year. As a result, vessel owners were not reimbursed for the amounts due them until the Congress had passed the supplemental appropriation and the President had signed it. The Fishermen's protective fund greatly reduces the time required to make payment to the vessel owners. The Secretary of the Treasury can now make payment within 48 hours of receipt of the certification from the Secretary of State.

The U.S. Customs Service collects the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspects all international traffic, regulates certain marine and aircraft activities, combats smuggling, undervaluation, and frauds on the customs revenue, and performs related functions in connection with importation and exportation of merchandise.

The 1977 appropriation is $5 million above the 1976 requested level. Additions are for pay and other price increases which are offset by decreases in staff, equipment purchases, and premium pay.

The staff reduction results from the effect upon 1977 workload projections of an unanticipated decrease in workload which occurred in 1975.

The decline in workload in 1975 from 1974 levels was not expected; previous estimates forecast significant increases in travelers and import entries and over 1,300 average positions were added to handle this increased workload.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufacturers, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. The Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps. In addition, the Bureau continues to produce and process a segment of the food coupon program and administer the contracts applicable to the portion being contracted out to the private sector.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—Total deliveries of currency for 1976 and 1977 are estimated to be 2.9 billion notes, as compared with 2.8 billion notes delivered in 1975. During 1976 the Bureau will place into operation six modern high-speed intaglio printing presses and six production models of currency overprinting and processing equipment (COPE). This equipment was acquired utilizing a lease-to-ownership, without the conventional termination contingency liability provision, method of financing. Fully implemented this equipment will save approximately $4 million annually in labor costs.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postal and internal revenue stamps. The budget estimates for 1976 and 1977 reflect no change in program volume requirements.

(c) Food coupons.—Production of the program is the joint responsibility of the Bureau and the private sector. The Bureau maintains the administrative functions and responsibilities to control the food coupon program.

(d) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government.

(e) Commissions, certificates, and so forth.—This program represents a small portion of the Bureau's total workload.

2. Operation and maintenance of the incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—These charges are made to other agencies for use of the incinerator and maintenance services provided for space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Bureau operations resulted in a loss of $371 thousand in 1975. This loss will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years, in accordance with the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181. In 1975 the Bureau included a surcharge in the selling price of its products. The surcharge provides for financing capital improvements and amounted to $2,128 thousand. It is projected that for 1976 and 1977 the Bureau will receive $4,592 and $3,975 thousand.

CONSTRUCTION OF MINT FACILITIES—Continued

The appropriation provides funds to acquire suitable sites, design and construction of buildings, furnishings and equipment necessary for operations of the Bureau of the Mint as authorized by 31 U.S.C. 251–287 and amended by 31 U.S.C. 291, 294. In 1972, an appropriation of $1,500 thousand was made for the purchase of a suitable site for the Denver Mint. An additional $2,000 thousand was appropriated for 1973 for the initial design services. Because of delays in obtaining title to the site, further appropriations were not received until 1976. Title to the selected site was acquired by GSA in September 1975.

In 1976, $3,350 thousand was appropriated for additional design services and for site development. Further requests for additional budget authority have been postponed until the necessary authorizing legislation is enacted to increase the aggregate sums available and extend the time during which these funds may be appropriated.

This appropriation provides for the overall planning and direction of the Internal Revenue Service, for management of the Service's support programs and for internal audit and internal security.

1. Executive direction.—This activity sets policies and goals; provides the research and planning necessary for orderly and effective accomplishment of the Revenue Service's mission; provides leadership and direction in the execution of plans; and provides for the administrative support of all operations.

2. Internal audit and security.—This activity establishes and verifies maintenance of quality controls in the Revenue Service. It provides a continuing and independent review of all Revenue Service operations, thereby assuring the Commissioner and operational managers that appropriated funds are spent only for authorized purposes, that tax revenues are properly safeguarded, and that public confidence in the integrity of Revenue Service employees is maintained.

situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lienholder's equity, but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) is responsible for directing and conducting research and development on domestic sources of energy, for carrying out nuclear energy functions related to national defense and fuel production; and conducting basic research in the physical, biomedical and environmental sciences.

R. & D. is conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, private firms, nonprofit organizations, and other Federal agencies, as well as ERDA's laboratories.

1. Fossil energy development.—(a) Coal.—The principal objectives of this program are to accelerate the development of the technology for converting coal to environmentally acceptable liquid and gaseous fuels, to improve methods for the direct combustion of coal, and to develop advanced power conversion systems utilizing high efficiency technologies for generating electricity from coal. In addition to direct Federal funds, ERDA anticipates significant cost-sharing by industry in many of the fossil energy programs. The present standard for cooperative joint funding is one-third private and two-thirds Federal for pilot plants, and 50-50 sharing for demonstration plants.

During 1977 the coal liquefaction subprogram will continue research and development on several technologies for converting coal to a clean liquid fuel for use in electric power generation, industrial and residential heating, and for refinery feedstock. The high-Btu coal gasification technology is directed at the production of a substitute natural gas from coal, while the low-Btu gasification subprogram is focused on processes that will produce a low-Btu gas suitable for power generation and combined gas-steam turbine power cycles. The advanced power systems subprogram will concentrate efforts primarily on open and closed cycle systems to establish the technology base for more efficient generation of electricity from coal. Efforts will also continue under the direct combustion subprogram to develop boiler systems capable of burning higher sulfur coals of varying quality in an environmentally acceptable manner, while achieving higher combustion efficiency. The demonstration plants subprogram will expand efforts initiated during 1976. The magnetohydrodynamics (MHD) subprogram will continue developing the MHD power generation process. This technology is being pursued because of the higher coal to electricity conversion efficiencies predicted for it.

(b) Petroleum and natural gas.—Successful enhanced recovery technologies for petroleum and natural gas could significantly extend domestically available supplies. Current programs are designed to encourage and accelerate industry efforts with substantial industry involvement through cost-sharing.

Enhanced oil recovery methods under development and demonstration include micellar polymer flooding, improved waterfloods, thermal methods, carbon-dioxide injection, and solvent stimulation procedures. Formation fracturing appears the most promising method of stimulating natural gas production: massive hydraulic fracturing and chemical explosive fracturing processes will be developed and demonstrated.

(c) In situ technology.—This program includes two major subprograms: oil shale and in situ coal gasification. The present shale subprogram includes oil production research involving both true in situ methods requiring no mining, and modified in situ methods that require partial mining; gas production research targeted to both eastern and western oil shales; and environmental studies related to the in situ processes being developed. The in situ coal gasification subprogram has the goal of developing commercially feasible processes for producing energy from coal in place. Primary program emphasis is on two processes utilizing different combustion and gasification techniques, and applicable to coal seams of differing thicknesses.

2. Solar energy development.—The overall goal of the ERDA solar energy development program is to work with industry to develop, demonstrate, and introduce those solar energy systems and applications that are economically attractive and environmentally acceptable for significantly supplementing the Nation's energy resources. The strategy is to move toward this goal through an integrated program of analysis, research, technology development, engineering development, and demonstrations. Systems for solar heating of buildings are ready for further demonstrations in 1977, while additional R. & D. will be conducted leading to later demonstration of systems for the combined heating and cooling of buildings. In other areas, such as thermal electric conversion, ocean thermal conversion, wind energy conversion, and biomass conversion, additional R. & D. will be conducted to determine the viability of these technologies as future energy sources.

3. Geothermal energy development.—The objective of the ERDA geothermal energy development program is to work with industry to provide the Nation with viable options to utilize the Nation's substantial resources of geothermal heat in an economically attractive and environmentally acceptable manner. In 1977, the strategy is to develop key technology that is needed to identify, evaluate, extract, and convert the primary hydrothermal, geopressured, and hot dry rock resources to usable energy forms, such as electricity. In addition, environmental data for regions having significant geothermal resources will be collected and analyzed, and studies will be conducted to determine possible solutions to institutional barriers and to assess the costs and benefits of major geothermal projects. The loan guarantee program will support the program of technology development by helping to make funds available during the initial period when the lack of prior experience of the geothermal industry makes the financial risk uncertain.

4. Conservation research and development.—Funds for research and development are provided to assist and support the private sector in its efforts to improve technologies that can use energy more efficiently. Some of these programs are directed toward the end-use of energy in residential and commercial buildings, in industry, and in transportation. Other programs are focused on technologies and systems for electric utilities, waste utilization, energy storage, and energy conversion. Institutional and economic studies are also conducted.

5. Fusion power research and development.—(a) Magnetic fusion.—The objectives of this program are to demonstrate the scientific feasibility of fusion power and to develop fusion power as a safe, reliable, and economic source of electrical power before the year 2000. The 1977 request for the magnetic fusion program will continue to support three approaches to the magnetic confinement of fusion plasmas. Experiments will be aimed at demonstrating and refining methods of heating and containing high temperature plasmas. A large increase in effort will be in engineering research and development. Theoretical and computer simulations, as well as exploratory concepts, are high priority research activities. In addition, development activities needed to support the Tokamak fusion test reactor will be pursued.

(b) Laser fusion.—The objectives of the laser fusion program are: (1) to determine the scientific feasibility of laser and electron beam initiated fusion, and (2) to apply laser fusion energy to the modeling and simulation of nuclear weapons and weapons effects and to commercial power production needs. Major emphasis in 1977 will be placed upon the continued utilization of existing laser facilities to obtain additional information and understanding concerning laser-matter interactions, conduct of laser-matter interaction experiments and prototype development in support of a proposed high energy laser facility at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, and identification and evaluation of alternate lasing media which have characteristics for achievement of important program milestones.

6. Fuel cycle research and development.—The fuel cycle research and development program provides for research, development, and demonstration of various portions of the nuclear fuel cycle. The 1977 request includes (1) uranium resource-assessment activities to evaluate domestic uranium ore reserves, potential resources, and industry production capability, and supporting R. & D. on the geology of uranium and on improved techniques for assessment, discovery and production; (2) investigation of the technology for spent reactor fuel reprocessing, recycle of recovered uranium and plutonium, and radioactive process waste treatment; and (3) development and design of long-term isolation and disposal concepts for waste from the commercial nuclear power industry.

7. Fission power reactor development.—The major effort in the fission power program supports the development of the liquid metal fast breeder reactor (LMFBR) as a viable energy alternative.

The LMFBR development program will be increasingly directed toward meeting the engineering requirements necessary to achieve reliable, safe and economic breeder powerplants. Continued support of the construction of the fast flux test facility (FFTF); development and construction of the Clinch River breeder reactor (CRBR); and continued operation of testing facilities, reactor physics, fuels, materials and chemistry technology programs in direct support of FFTF, CRBR and follow-on LMFBR plants comprise the program's major efforts. Other engineering efforts to be initiated or strengthened in 1977 include target plant designs to provide program guidance and direction relating to large component development.

Activity will also be directed toward the development of advanced fuels and safety research and development.

Efforts will be continued on advanced water breeder applications to develop and disseminate information that will assist U.S. industry to evaluate and apply to existing and future water reactor plants the technology developed and demonstrated in the water cooled breeder reactor program. Work will be continued to assist industry in improving the current generation of light water reactors for better on-line availability and productivity.

In 1977 efforts will also be applied to gas cooled reactors to support backup alternatives to the LMFBR. Supporting activities are expanded in 1977 for developing codes and standards, energy systems analysis, the study of environmental effects and special nuclear materials safeguards activities.

8. Nuclear explosives applications.—This program provides for the laboratory and field work essential to the conduct of support technology for peaceful nuclear explosives. No tests will be conducted in 1977 and none are planned for 1978.

9. Environmental research and safety.—(a) Biomedical and environmental research.—The primary goal of this program is to provide data on the health and environmental effects of pollutants released to the environment by the use of energy technologies. The research program will continue to shift in emphasis away from its historical concentration on nuclear energy health and environmental effects to a more balanced research program directed to both nuclear and nonnuclear energy technologies. This shift is consistent with ERDA's responsibilities in non-nuclear energy research and development. In addition, research in support of nuclear medicine objectives will be continued in 1977.

(b) Operational safety.—This program includes efforts related to the development of operational guidelines and safety studies and radiological surveillance activities for ERDA's facilities. Also included is a program to provide Federal support to counteract radiation, resulting from the previous use of uranium mill tailings for private construction in Grand Junction, Colo.

(c) Environmental control technology.—This program is responsible for assessing ERDA's ongoing and planned energy technology development activities to insure that the proper emphasis is given to the control of effluents resulting from energy production. In addition, this program is responsible for research and development on advanced disposal methods of nuclear waste; and fuel cycle transportation. This program is also responsible for the management of ERDA's surplus facilities which have been contaminated with radiation.

(d) Reactor safety facilities.—Consistent with the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974, completion of experimental test facilities required to carry out programs of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is provided for under this program. The 1977 budget request provides for the continued construction of the loss of fluid test (LOFT) and plenum filling experiment (PFE) facilities to meet NRC experimental program requirements.

10. High energy physics.—The objective of the program is to develop an understanding of energy and matter in their most basic forms. This program examines the transformations of and interactions among the ultimate constituents of matter through the use of powerful particle accelerators. In 1977, emphasis is placed on utilization of new experimental capabilities at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory.

OPERATING EXPENSES—Continued

11. Basic energy sciences.—Under this program, theoretical and experimental research is conducted to develop scientific understanding basic to all energy technologies. The 1977 program continues a major restructuring of priorities to provide balanced support for all ERDA energy technologies.

12. Nuclear materials security and safeguards.—This program is directed toward continuing improvements in safeguards procedures and systems for use in both the commercial and public sector to prevent possible diversion of special nuclear material. In 1977, expanded research and development effort is directed to the identification of needed nuclear material safeguards in various nuclear power reactor fuel cycles and to the development and demonstration of the technology and integrated systems required.

13. Naval reactor development.—The naval reactor development program provides for the design and development of improved naval nuclear propulsion plants and reactor cores in a wide range of power ratings to meet the military requirements of the Department of Defense. During 1977, efforts will continue on development of an advanced reactor core with longer life for application to nuclear powered guided-missile cruisers and on the development of advanced reactors for submarines. An increased level of effort will be directed toward the development of a submarine propulsion plant for the Trident submarines.

14. Space nuclear systems.—The major objectives of the space nuclear systems program in 1977 are to continue applications of nuclear electric power to a variety of space missions both in the near term and in the future.

In 1977 support will be provided for the NASA Mariner Jupiter/Saturn mission scheduled for launch in 1977 and continued development of a low cost, high performance system for future missions.

15. Uranium enrichment activities.—(a) Uranium enrichment program.—This program provides for the operation of the gaseous diffusion plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio; for the enrichment of uranium for fuel in nuclear power reactors and for process development work on current and new enrichment processes. The estimates for the diffusion plants include the toll enriching of feed materials from the private sector resulting in toll enriching revenues budgeted under the enrichment revenues program. Uranium concentrates from ERDA stocks are also processed into feed materials and enriched in the isotope U-235.

In 1977, emphasis will be placed on continuing the gaseous diffusion cascade uprating and improvement program, with 1,234 separation stages scheduled for modification by the end of the year. Emphasis will also be placed on increased industrial participation in gas centrifuge technology development.

(b) Advanced isotope separation technology program.—The advanced isotope separation technology program provides for the investigation and development of isotope separation techniques, other than gaseous diffusion or centrifuge, which have the potential of significantly reducing the cost of obtaining enriched materials for a variety of uses.

Principal emphasis will be placed upon the evaluation of alternative laser-induced U-235 separation techniques with a secondary effort underway in applying techniques developed for uranium to recovery of plutonium isotopes. These separation programs have the potential for providing significant long-term benefits to ERDA's weapons production program and to the civilian power market.

(c) Enrichment revenues (toll enriching only) program.—This program includes: (1) the income related to the service of toll enriching natural uranium for use as a fuel in nuclear power reactors for foreign and domestic customers; and (2) the advance payments related to the signing of long-term, fixed-commitment contracts. Under toll enriching, the customer supplies the feed to ERDA in the form of uranium hexafluoride (UF<sub>6</sub>) of normal assay and ERDA processes the UF<sub>6</sub> in the gaseous diffusion plants to the level of enrichment in the U-235 isotope specified by the customers. The revenues received are applied in the budget to reduce the appropriation requirements of ERDA.

16. National security.—(a) Weapons activities.—This program consists of research and development including underground testing on new nuclear weapons and weapons concepts in support of DOD requirements, production of nuclear weapons; and maintenance of currently stockpiled weapons.

(b) Weapons materials production (special materials production).—This program provides for the production of special nuclear materials to meet weapons production schedules and requirements of other programs and the management of weapons related radioactive waste. The 1977 estimates provide for the continued operation of three production reactors at Savannah River and the N reactor at Richland and the operation of chemical separation and waste management facilities. Emphasis will be placed on the development of technology for long-term isolation of weapons related waste, both high and low level.

17. Program support.—This activity provides the necessary support for the activities of ERDA. (a) Program direction for ERDA is conducted through field offices and the Washington headquarters. Included are the salaries and related costs for employees engaged in executive direction, general management, and technical supervision.

(b) Supporting activities.—Community operations provides assistance payments to the former AEC communities of Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Los Alamos, N. Mex.; and Richland, Wash., in accordance with the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955, as amended. Security investigations are conducted as required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, for those persons who require access to restricted data. Information services are provided for the scientific and technical community and the general public.

Equal employment opportunity contract compliance-assigned facilities functions to carry out ERDA's responsibility as 1 of 18 compliance agencies designated by the Office of Federal Contract Compliance, Department of Labor.

General systems studies are conducted to develop and apply systems analysis techniques to aid in planning, management, and decisionmaking. General technology transfers programs are conducted to help transfer ERDA program technology to private industry.

This appropriation provides for construction of plants and facilities and for acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction required to support the activities of the Energy Research and Development Administration. Of the budget authority of $1,466.5 million being requested for 1977, $1,170.2 million applies to new construction projects or new modifications of existing facilities to be authorized in 1977 and to construction projects which were previously authorized by Congress, and $296.3 million is required for acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction.

The principal projects are described as follows:

1. Fossil energy development.—Coal.—Funding is required for three projects for which partial authorization was received in 1976: The clean boiler fuel demonstration plant, the high Btu synthetic pipeline gas demonstration plant, and the low Btu fuel gas demonstration plant.

2. Solar energy development.—Funds are requested for the start of a 10-megawatt solar thermal central receiver pilot plant and for the continuation of a 5-megawatt solar thermal test facility.

5. Fusion power research and development.—(a) Magnetic confinement fusion funds are requested for a new computer building, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Livermore, Calif., and for continuation of the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor, Princeton, N.J., for continuation of the 14 MeV neutron facility, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, and for continuation of the high intensity neutron source facility, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, N. Mex.

To make available the financial resources needed for commercial development of geothermal energy, ERDA is administering a Federal loan guarantee program as authorized in the Geothermal Energy Research, Development, and Demonstration Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-410). The objectives of the loan guarantee program are: (1) to encourage and assist the private sector to accelerate development of geothermal resources by enabling the Administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration to minimize a lender's financial risk that is associated with the introduction of new technology; and (2) to develop normal borrower-lender relationships which will in time encourage the flow of credit without the need for Federal assistance. Implementation of the loan guarantee program will be coordinated closely with the Department of Interior's geothermal leasing program and with ERDA's research and development effort.

Under the guarantee program ERDA will work in conjunction with venture capital companies, reservoir developers, and lease and land holders to stimulate early development of commercial electric and thermal power facilities.

These funds are estimated to continue work on plans to back up the President's proposal to assure the availability of additional uranium enrichment capacity, when needed, to provide fuel for nuclear power plants by fostering the creation of a private, competitive uranium enrichment industry in the United States. The final submission of a 1976 supplemental will depend on the outcome of detailed analysis of the requirements for the back-up plan. If later required, the Administration will also consider the submission of a 1977 budget amendment for the back-up plan.

The Administration supports legislation to amend the Energy Research and Development Administration's existing authorities to provide $2 billion in loan guarantees during 1976 for the commercial demonstration of synthetic fuel production from coal, oil shale, and other domestic resources. A total of $6 billion in loan guarantees is expected to be necessary over the 1976 to 1978 period in order to reach the 1985 objective of 350,000 barrels per day of synthetic fuel production capacity. With the enactment of the Energy Independence Authority legislation in 1977 these ERDA projects will be transferred to the Energy Independence Authority.

This appropriation is for the Agency's energy related environmental research and development program. The purpose of this program is the development of a sound technical and scientific basis for insuring: (1) Adequate protection of human health, welfare, ecosystem, and social goals; (2) environmental protection necessary to facilitate the use of domestic energy supplies with particular emphasis on coal and nuclear systems; (3) that energy system initiatives can be implemented without delays caused by inadequate and insufficient environmental impact data; and (4) the concurrent development of appropriate control technologies and emerging energy systems to minimize control cost and environmental impact.

EPA's research and development efforts are conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, industries, other private commercial firms, non-profit organizations, State and local governments, and Federal agencies as well as through research and development at EPA's laboratories and field locations.

These efforts are oriented toward producing the scientific knowledge and the tools for regulating, preventing, and abating pollution and are specifically directed to the problems of air pollution control, water pollution control, water supply protection, solid and toxic waste management, pesticides control, radiation protection, noise abatement, and interdisciplinary studies. Activities encompass research on the effects of pollutants on man, animals, aquatic life, plants, materials, and the general environment; research on the processes, such as dispersion that affects pollution; the development of new and improved sampling and analytical methods and instruments for measuring pollutants; and the development and demonstration of new and improved technology for preventing and controlling pollution and recovery of materials from wastes. Overall management and support is included.

EPA's enforcement responsibilities are in the areas of air pollution control, water pollution control, pesticides control, and noise control. Much of the effort is in support of or in cooperation with State and local enforcement programs, such as the enforcement of air quality standards, navigable and interstate water quality standards, and issuance of discharge permits. Enforcement includes such actions as notices of violation, abatement orders, enforcement conferences, civil and criminal court actions, and, in the case of pesticides, recalls and seizures. Overall management and support is included.

This appropriation provides for the programs and activities relating to the promotion of maximum utilization by Federal agencies, and the transfer among agencies of excess real property. It provides for the disposal of surplus real property by sale, exchange, lease, permit, or transfer to authorized organizations as well as the care and handling of excess and surplus property pending its disposition. It also provides for the appraisal of excess and surplus property, for the appraisal of public buildings leases, sites, and other related building programs for Government-owned and leased buildings, as well as for the establishment of specifications, standards, and methods governing such appraisals.

1. Utilization and disposal.—The overall management, control, and coordination of this program, Government-wide, relating to the promotion of maximum utilization by Federal agencies of excess real property, the disposal of surplus real property by sale, exchange, lease, permit, or donation to authorized organizations are provided. In 1977 it is estimated that the sale of 180 properties originally costing $200 million will return to the Government $38 million, and the proceeds from mortgage payments on previously sold property are expected to be $11 million. Utilization transfers should reach 70 properties with an acquisition value of $135 million and other disposal actions are expected to reach 200 properties with an acquisition value of $230 million. The number of surveys to identify underutilized properties to be conducted by GSA are estimated at 200 in 1977.

2. Appraisal.—This area of responsibility provides for the appraisal of excess and surplus property, for the appraisal of public buildings leases, sites, and other related building programs for Government-owned and leased buildings, as well as for the establishment of specifications, standards, and methods governing such appraisals. The total number of appraisals for 1977 is made up of 1,740 staff appraisals and 360 contract appraisals.

3. Protection and maintenance.—This activity provides for the protection and maintenance of the Government's economic interest in excess and surplus real property pending final disposition.

The Federal buildings fund finances the activities of the Public Buildings Service which provides space and services for Federal agencies in a relationship similar to that of landlord and tenant. The following table details composition of the Federal buildings fund space inventory (leased and Government owned) and the employees housed in that space:

	1976 estimated		1977 estimated
	Square feet (in thousands)	Employees housed	Square feet (in thousands)	Employees housed
Office space	135,488	736,900	136,985	748,400

Parking	46,224		43,030
Total	290,666	802,600	290,172	815,100

The fund, established in 1975, replaces direct appropriations by using income derived from rent assessments (standard level user charges—SLUC) which approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. SLUC income was $952 million in 1975, and is estimated at $1,059 million for 1976, and $1,156 million for 1977. The 1977 amounts are distributed among major executive agencies as follows (excludes reimbursable activity):

The Federal buildings fund direct program consists of the following activities:

1. Construction.—This activity provides for space acquisition through direct Federal financed construction of facilities, including the extension and conversion of existing buildings. It finances all costs directly attributable to Federal buildings fund construction projects for site acquisition, design, management and inspection, and construction. The total cost of new commitments for direct Federal financed construction is estimated at $30 million in 1976, and $23 million in 1977, with an additional $5 million requested to augment projects currently underway.

2. Alterations and major repairs.—This activity provides for alterations and major repairs of public buildings. Cost effectiveness, overall appearance, state of repair, and operating efficiency are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities of work required with primary consideration given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to the buildings, their support systems, and necessary operating equipment.

3. Purchase contract payments.—This activity provides for payment of liabilities incurred for facilities acquired under purchase contract authority. Purchase contract authority, which provided for private investment capital financing of public buildings, expired at the end of 1975. The periodic payments on the purchase contracts cover principal, interest, taxes, and other requirements.

4. Rental of space.—This activity provides for the acquisition of space through the leasing of either existing buildings, including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities, or facilities to be built with private capital for lease to the Government. Rental costs of existing commercial and Postal Service buildings are estimated to provide 90 million square feet in 1976 and 92 million square feet in 1977.

5. Real property operations.—This activity provides for operation of Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, protection, maintenance, other miscellaneous services such as moving as a result of space adjustments, moving of agencies into newly acquired space, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision of the foregoing services. The 1977 direct program compares with the 1976 program as follows (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

	1976		1977

Protection.....	187	42	188	42

Total.....	---	398	---	415

6. Program direction.—This activity provides for the overall general management, long- and short-range planning, and administration of all programs which are the responsibility of the Public Buildings Service. In addition, this activity finances the costs of management and administration of each of the individual direct activities of the Federal buildings fund.

Other programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations, cleaning and other operations, and protection services which are in excess of those services provided under the standard level user charge. The Public Buildings Service also provides for promotion of maximum utilization of property by Federal agencies; transfer among agencies of excess real property; disposal of surplus real property by sale, exchange, lease permit

This appropriation provides for Government-wide management of supplies and personal property, transportation and public utilities services, operation of the worldwide supply system, and maintenance and disposal of strategic and critical materials.

1. Supply distribution.—This activity manages and operates a national supply distribution system of wholesale distribution facilities through which commercial type commodities are received, stored, and issued on a worldwide basis to Federal agencies. Supplies are shipped by the wholesale operation to customer agencies from GSA supply distribution facilities located in each of the 10 GSA regions. Wholesale sales through these facilities are estimated at $811 million in 1977, an increase of $53 million over the 1976 level.

2. Procurement.—This activity has the contracting responsibility for commercial-type items required by Federal agencies and other authorized users of the Federal Supply Service system. In addition to contracting and purchasing, the procurement activity selects commodities for inclusion in the stores, nonstores, and Federal supply schedules programs, and determines the methods of supply that are most economical and effective. Total procurement volume in 1975 was $2,281 million, and is estimated to increase to $2,441 million in 1976 and $2,612 million in 1977. This office is responsible for the inventory management program of FSS. Inventory levels available for issue to customer agencies are projected at $248 million for 1977, an increase of $3 million from the 1976 level of $245 million in support of a higher sales level at an improved stock turn of 3.2.

3. Standards and quality control.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or GSA supply facilities, by laboratory tests and analyses prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance. Qualitative requirements of Federal agencies for commodities are reflected in Federal specifications and Federal standards which are mandatory for use in procurement. In 1977, the standardization program will consist of the promulgation of 1,300 Federal specifications and standards actions.

4. Transportation and public utilities.—This activity develops guides and procedures; provides assistance to civilian Federal agencies for improving transportation practices and passenger travel management; negotiates reasonable rates with carriers; performs audits on all Federal transportation documents; and provides procurement assistance, rates, routing, and related transportation services. It develops Government-wide policies and procedures to improve the overall efficiency of the Government-owned motor vehicle fleet and assist the various Federal agencies with motor equipment management and also negotiates with public utility companies on behalf of executive agencies, and provides technical assistance in connection with regulatory proceedings concerning transportation and public utilities.

5. Customer service and support.—The customer service and support activity directs and coordinates the development and implementation of logistics programs for Federal agencies so as to eliminate overlap and duplication in the procurement and supply programs within the Federal Government. This activity is responsible for supply relationships with the Department of Defense and civilian agencies in the furtherance of the National Supply System objectives through interagency agreements and cross-servicing arrangements. Also this activity monitors FSS supply effectiveness and responsiveness to Federal agency requirements, and through liaison with agencies provides a channel for early identification of customer agency problems and unusual supply requirements. Continued emphasis will be placed on the customer liaison and customer market research program to increase the scope of supply and procurement support rendered by the Federal Supply Service to other Federal agencies.

This activity also provides a variety of commonly used administrative and office supplies, maintenance supplies, and standard forms to Federal agencies through self-service retail facilities located wherever there is a concentration of Federal activities. Sales through these self-service stores will be $67 million in 1976 and $72 million in 1977.

6. Property management.—This activity manages the national and supplemental stockpile of strategic and critical materials required to keep the Nation's mobilization base viable. This includes costs of receiving, storing, inspecting, and maintaining the material in storage locations.

7. Personal property disposal.—This activity manages and operates the Government-wide excess Federal personal property program including the utilization, donation, rehabilitation, and sale of property. This embraces the personal property for public benefit purposes; sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property (except DOD property); and rehabilitation of personal property owned by the Government to extend its useful life.

8. Service direction.—This activity provides for the management and direction, both departmental and in the field, of all Federal Supply Service programs. This activity also finances, on a centralized basis, all costs for postage, intercity telephone, and payments to the Federal buildings fund.

9. Business service centers.—This activity provides information, counseling, and assistance to businessmen with particular emphasis placed on small business.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided for under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by using agencies are the operations of interagency motor vehicle pools, the rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment, and the redistribution of materials no longer needed overseas.

Budget program.—This estimate provides for sales to both military and civilian agencies. It also provides for the operation of the credit return program.

1. Supply operations.—(a) Stores, regular.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for sale to Government agencies. Sales were $802.4 million in 1975 and are estimated to be $825 million in 1976, $206 million in the transition quarter, and $883 million in 1977. GSA will undertake efforts in this area to improve inventory turnover performance and thereby reduce capital requirements. At the same time GSA will develop methods to better identify costs of individual supply items it handles in order to facilitate better inventory decisions.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $37.6 million in 1975, and are estimated to be $35 million in 1976, $8.8 million in the transition quarter, and $35 million in 1977.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales through the fund were $349.7 million in 1975, and are estimated to be $507 million in 1976, $127 million in the transition quarter and $539 million in 1977.

2. Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund cover packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services. Sales were $29 million in 1975, and are estimated to be $30 million in 1976, $7.5 million in the transition quarter and $32 million in 1977.

3. Property management and disposal operations.—Furniture and equipment repair services provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical were $1.0 million in 1975 and are estimated to remain the same through 1976 and 1977. Receipts to the fund covering redistribution costs of materials no longer required overseas were $0.9 million in 1975 and are expected to decrease to $0.8 million in 1976, and $0.6 million in 1977. Total revenue for the transition quarter is expected to be $250 thousand for rehabilitation operations and $200 thousand for the overseas program.

4. Motor pools.—Services are provided through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales were $106.3 million in 1975, and are estimated to be $133.8 million in 1976, $36.8 million in the transition quarter, and $149 million in 1977.

Administrative equipment rental.—Administrative equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts are $2.5 million in 1975, and are estimated to be $2.6 million in 1976, $650 thousand in the transition quarter, and $3.2 million in 1977.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1977 is estimated at $462.4 million consisting of $282.8 million direct appropriations, $179.8 million donated assets, with $0.2 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

Any operating surplus, as determined by the General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Central blueprinting, photostating, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund pending reimbursements (40 U.S.C. 293). The Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, has authorized GSA to establish and operate 14 printing plants to meet the needs of GSA and other Government agencies. In addition, GSA operated 12 duplicating plants at the end of 1975.

This appropriation provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operation of Presidential libraries, and grants for historical publications.

In 1977 records in the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 14.3 million cubic feet. Reference services will total 18.7 million.

1. Records management and centers.—The workload in the records centers continues to increase, reflecting agency demands for service. In 1977 agencies will transfer 1.2 million cubic feet of inactive records to the records centers. Records disposal from the records centers will total .95 million cubic feet in 1977 and reference services will be 16.7 million.

2. Archives and related services.—Almost half of the workload of the National Archives subactivity is determined by the volume of reference requests received from Government agencies and the public. In 1977 additional funds are requested to meet increased requests for reference services.

3. National Historical Publications and Records Commission.—This activity provides for carrying out the national historical documents program, established by the act of July 28, 1964 (Public Law 88-838), as amended, for grants to State and local agencies and to nonprofit organizations and for allocations to Federal agencies in connection with the publication of source materials significant to the history of the United States.

4. Service direction.—This activity provides management and overall direction of all National Archives and records service programs and the payment of rental and related charges to the Federal buildings fund.

This appropriation provides for the direction and coordination of a comprehensive Government-wide program for the management, procurement, and utilization of automatic data processing and communications equipment and services, and the overall management of operations designed to provide specialized services to civilian agencies in each of these fields.

1. Automated data management services.—The overall management, control, and coordination of Government-wide programs and activities relating to the procurement of ADP equipment, maintenance, and related supplies and services are provided. The projected program for 1977 provides for the management of reimbursable programs financed through the ADP fund whose sales volume will increase from $47.6 million in 1975 to an estimated $58.7 million in 1976 and $78.4 million in 1977.

2. Telecommunications services.—This area of responsibility provides for the overall management, control, and coordination of Government-wide programs and activities relating to the procurement, operation, maintenance, and utilization of telecommunications equipment and services. The projected program for 1977 provides for the management of reimbursable programs, including the design and engineering of networks and facilities for the Federal civil agencies. The Federal telecommunications fund sales volume will increase from $281.7 million in 1975 to an estimated $327.0 million in 1976 and $349.3 million in 1977.

3. Agency assistance, planning, and policy.—Resources are devoted to the development and coordination of operational policies, procedures, regulations, and publications governing the management, operation, and utilization of Government-wide ADP and telecommunications activities. Studies are made to determine the economic impact of ADP and telecommunications programs under development. A program of long-range research in the field of telecommunications equipment and facilities is coordinated, and the Government-wide ADP and telecommunications standardization programs are implemented. This activity is also involved in regulatory representation consisting of negotiations with the communications industry concerning consumer considerations of the Government; and participation in regulatory proceedings on communications cases.

This fund was authorized by Public Law 87-847, approved October 23, 1962. It finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government which is a major operating component of the national communications system.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from available appropriations and funds of any agency or organization for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

Initial capital of $9 million, appropriated in 1963, may be increased by donations of supplies and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in the volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1975 were $281.7 million and are estimated at $327.0 million in 1976 and $349.3 million in 1977.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which enables personnel in each Federal agency office to communicate directly with any other agency in the Nation. The system provides day-to-day service and incorporates features which would be necessary in emergency situations. Total sales for 1975 were $242.7 million and are estimated at $284.1 million in 1976 and $304.6 million in 1977.

2. Record program.—Provides a common unified records communications system to satisfy record communications requirements of the Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of data by teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. Total sales for this program are projected to increase from $27.6 million in 1975 to $30.4 million in 1976 and $31.5 million in 1977.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits and related equipment for civil agencies to obtain the benefits of multiple tariff offerings of commercial carriers, while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits. Sales are projected to increase from $8.5 million in 1975 to $8.7 million in 1976 and $9.4 million in 1977.

4. Special programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies including GSA in keeping with the objectives of the U.S. Communications Security Plan, and a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. This program provides assurances for the continuity of the Federal telecommunications system in the event that portions of the system are disabled or destroyed. In addition, this program provides telecommunications support to the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration in the emergency and major disaster programs. Total sales for 1975 were $3.0 million and are estimated at $3.8 million in 1976 and $3.9 million in 1977.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1977, the net investment in the fund is estimated to be $8.7 million, composed of $9.0 million appropriated, $0.2 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings after making provision for any prior year losses, are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

The automatic data processing fund was authorized by Public Law 89-306, to coordinate and provide for the economic and efficient purchase, lease, and maintenance of automatic data processing equipment by Federal agencies.

The fund finances on a reimbursable basis a Government-wide automatic data processing operation, including the procurement by lease, purchase, transfer, or otherwise of ADP equipment, maintenance of equipment, procurement and/or development of software programs with Government-wide application, and operation of service centers and related functions.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in revenue during 1976 and 1977. Sales are estimated to increase from $47,561 thousand in 1975 to $58,665 thousand in 1976 to $78,413 thousand in 1977. The responsibility for providing internal ADP services to GSA was transferred to the Office of Administration and is reflected in Salaries and expenses, administrative and staff support services in 1977.

1. Data processing.—Finances the operation of a Federal data processing program which provides ADP services on a Government-wide basis. These ADP services consist of local and remote computer processing including teleprocessing services contracts; programmer-analyst support; computer performance evaluation and simulation; data conversion support, incidental EAM and data control support; equipment operators for use at a GSA site or a user homesite; general purpose software; and maintenance support for Government-owned ADP equipment and software. This program also provides for financing of joint-use ADP facilities operated by two or more agencies under GSA policy guidance.

It is estimated that revenue from Federal data processing programs and other related operations will increase from $41,403 thousand in 1975 to $53,327 thousand in 1976 and $57,748 thousand in 1977.

2. Lease program.—This program finances the purchase and multiyear lease of ADP equipment and software from manufacturers for subsequent lease to Federal agencies at costs substantially below commercial annual lease prices.

Purchases are made by the fund when special discounts with time limitations and other arrangements become available and agencies are unable to take advantage of these cost reduction opportunities due to budget cycle limitations. In addition to purchases, this program acquires excess Government-owned ADP equipment, where there is a known user or the equipment has a high potential for reutilization, capitalizes it at fair market value and leases it to Federal agencies at a cost below all other alternatives available to the using agency. This program also finances contracts for purchase or lease of ADPE devices where the guarantee of minimum quantities results in volume discounts to the Government.

It is estimated that revenue from the lease program will decrease from $6,158 thousand in 1975 to $5,338 thousand in 1976 and increase to $20,665 thousand in 1977.

1. Civil crisis preparedness.—This activity identifies and evaluates current and possible future threats to the U.S. economy by dangerous and costly dependence on the natural, industrial, or economic resources of any foreign nation, and develops policies and programs within the Government to accommodate or avoid these dependencies.

It provides information and guidance to Federal departments and agencies, State and local governments, and certain national business, labor, farm, and other organizations and the public on the employment of domestic resources during periods of present or potential economic stringency or crisis. It develops and recommends concepts, plans, and systems for managing the Nation's critical resources in a range of civil crisis contingencies.

2. Conflict preparedness.—This activity directs and coordinates the preparation and implementation of policies, plans, and programs to meet approved objectives for general war and controlled conflict preparedness, including planning and program guidance to Federal departments and agencies and to State and local governments; provides overall direction for the development, review, and testing of preparedness plans, facilities, and arrangements at all levels of government; provides policy direction, guidance, and coordination to the designated Department of Defense agency responsible for maintaining the necessary communications systems essential to the continuity of Government program; develops programs, provides guidance, and coordinates preparedness measures for contingencies involving the accidental detonation of a nuclear weapon; develops international programs in support of civil emergency preparedness for general war and controlled conflict contingencies under the general policy guidance of the National Security Council.

3. Research, development, and program coordination.—This activity directs and coordinates technical and scientific work programs; provides leadership and guidance in the development of an analytical base for broad non-military defense policy; develops a central research and development program designed to carry out assigned Executive order responsibilities; provides advice and assistance to other agencies in planning for research in areas involving each agency's interest; provides overall direction, guidance, and coordination of special studies in broad resource areas; maintains close working relationships with the scientific community; and directs the computer and programming support activities of FPA.

4. Stockpile disposal.—This activity develops plans and programs to dispose of stockpiled materials in accordance with statutory provisions once those materials are no longer required for national security purposes.

5. Service direction.—This activity provides executive direction, staff, and administrative support, including regional preparedness activities for the Federal Preparedness Agency.

Guarantees are given on loans made by public or private financing institutions, including Federal Reserve banks, to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Upon demand of lending institutions, the Government is required to purchase the guaranteed percentage of the loan or the Government may elect to make a voluntary purchase of the guaranteed percentage. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use, although such action has not been necessary to date. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future loan defaults.

The Government's maximum contingent liability as guarantor on one loan now in effect is estimated to be $4.9 million at the end of 1977. Retained earnings are estimated to be $0.3 million at the end of 1977.

The Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, N. Dak., was established by the Department of Defense in 1953 and turned over to GSA in 1957. On January 1, 1970, financing of the operation was placed under a revolving fund. This fund was authorized by Public Law 90-469, approved August 8, 1968.

The plant produces jewel bearings for sale at fixed prices to Government agencies, and their contractors and sub-contractors for national defense purposes, and to GSA for the national stockpile. Mandatory source provisions are contained in the Federal Procurement Regulations and Armed Services Procurement Regulations in support of this operation. These provisions require Government agencies and their contractors to procure and use jewel bearings manufactured at the Langer Jewel Bearing Plant under certain specified conditions.

The Consumer Information Center is primarily responsible for encouraging the development of relevant and meaningful consumer product information from the major Federal agencies and departments as a byproduct of the Government's research, development, and procurement activities. In addition, the Center is charged with the responsibility of promoting greater public awareness of existing Federal publications through wide dissemination of the Consumer Information Index to the general public.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT—Continued

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration undertakes the exploration of space, develops the means for utilization of space for peaceful purposes, and conducts advanced research and development related to space and aeronautics in support of both civil and military requirements. The appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as follows:

1. Space flight.—Space flight activities provide the transportation and related capabilities necessary to conduct both manned and unmanned operations in space. These activities include the space shuttle program for the development of a reusable manned Earth-to-orbit space vehicle; U.S. participation with the European Space Agency (ESA) in a cooperative program for the European-funded development of a spacelab to be used in the shuttle; development and supporting activities for other elements of the space transportation system; development of new component and subsystem technology; integration planning of future orbital payloads; conceptual studies and research on future space operations; and launch operations and support for expendable launch vehicles for automated space missions.

(a) Space shuttle.—The space shuttle is the key element of a space transportation system (STS) which will provide round-trip access to space beginning in the 1980's. The space shuttle is a reusable space vehicle which will operate between the surface of the Earth and Earth orbit. It will offer unique capabilities to carry out space missions—to retrieve payloads from orbit for reuse, to service or refurbish satellites in space, and to transport to orbit, operate, and return space laboratories. These capabilities can result in savings in the cost of space operations compared to the use of present day expendable space vehicles.

Shuttle development activities in 1977 continue to support the planned achievement of the first manned orbital flight in mid-1979. These activities involve all major components of the space shuttle: the orbiter, the external tank, the main engines, and the solid rocket boosters. Verification of the orbiter vehicle's approach and landing capability will be accomplished in tests at the Flight Research Center to demonstrate the low-speed aerodynamic characteristics of the shuttle orbiter vehicle, its avionics, communications, flight control, and other subsystems involved in the final phase of an orbital flight mission.

Components for integrated testing of the main propulsion system will be delivered to the National Space Technology Laboratories for preparations leading to test firings in late 1977 to verify the orbiter main propulsion system's performance at sea level. Other activities in 1977 include the initiation of the solid rocket motor test firings, component fabrication and assembly of the external tank for the first orbital flight vehicle, and the delivery and installation of the initial mini-computers and peripheral devices for the launch processing system at the Kennedy Space Center.

(b) Space flight operations.—This activity includes NASA development activities related to establishment of space transportation system (STS) operations capability; development and test support at NASA centers for space flight programs, including project definition and engineering, and test and analysis in high technology areas of design and development; and advanced program planning.

The STS operations capability development efforts include spacelab, interim upper stage, and multiuse mission support equipment, to facilitate the planning and transition to STS operations. The spacelab program is carried out jointly by NASA and the European Space Agency (ESA) to provide the domestic and international user community with a ground-type laboratory which can take advantage of the unique environment of space. The spacelab consists of a pressurized module and unpressurized pallet segments which may be used in various combinations to support mission requirements. The interim upper stage to be developed by the Department of Defense will be used to deploy shuttle-launched payloads to higher orbits not attainable by the shuttle alone. NASA is responsible for the design and development of unique items to support non-DOD mission planning and implementation. NASA will provide multiuse mission support equipment—a class of ground and flight hardware which can be furnished more economically from a standard equipment inventory, rather than being developed by individual payload users.

The advanced programs effort concentrates on the planning and integration of payload activities and provides technical as well as programmatic data for the evaluation of potential future space operations.

(c) Expendable launch vehicle development and support.—This program includes expendable launch vehicle activities such as launch operations and engineering and maintenance to sustain launch activities. It also includes support for reliability and product improvements to existing vehicles.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—This program utilizes a variety of automated spacecraft and ground-based observations to increase our knowledge of the universe. The Earth, Moon, Sun, interplanetary space, solar system, other stars and galaxies, and the interaction among these bodies and systems are all objects of these investigations.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—The major objective of this program is to increase our knowledge and understanding of the Earth's space environment, the Sun, stars, and other celestial bodies. Under this program, research is being conducted to investigate the Earth's upper atmosphere and ionosphere, the magnetosphere, and the interplanetary medium. Space-based investigations of cosmic ray, X-ray, gamma ray, ultraviolet, infrared, and radio emissions which cannot be effectively studied from ground-based observatories because of the obscuring effect of the Earth's atmosphere give us a unique opportunity to study the Sun and other celestial bodies. These investigations are the basis for increasing our knowledge of the fundamental laws of nature, especially those which affect the environment of the Earth.

Work is continuing on the High Energy Astronomy Observatory (HEAO) series, which is designed to explore the previously inaccessible regions of celestial X-ray, gamma ray, and cosmic ray sources. These investigations will be carried out with three launches of HEAO in 1977, 1978, and 1979. The International Ultraviolet Explorer, a joint project involving NASA, the United Kingdom and the European Space Agency, will be launched in 1977. A solar maximum mission, initiated in the 1977 budget and planned for launch in 1979, will take advantage of the next peak in the solar cycle. Work is also underway on projects designed to capitalize on the capabilities of the space shuttle. Development work will commence on several facility-type payloads to conduct experiments utilizing the large weight-carrying capabilities of the shuttle.

A coordinated program of upper atmospheric research has been developed, pulling together and expanding upon efforts previously conducted in other program areas. This program is designed to determine the normal makeup of the upper atmosphere and to provide an understanding of the effects resulting from natural and man-caused events.

(b) Lunar and planetary exploration.—This program includes scientific investigations of the Moon, the planets and their satellites, asteroids, comets, and the particles and fields of interplanetary space. The major goals of these investigations are to understand the origin and evolution of the solar system and to apply the results on Earth. The program has provided extensive information about the Moon and the planets Mercury, Venus, Mars, and Jupiter. Elements of the program include both automated spacecraft and ground-based support activities.

Two Viking orbiters and two landers are currently en route to Mars and will give measurements from the surface of the planet after landing in mid-1976. The landers are the most sophisticated automated vehicles ever built and will place several scientific "laboratories" on the surface, including life detection instruments which will investigate the possibility of living organisms on Mars.

In 1978, two Pioneer missions will be launched to further investigate Venus. One of the two is a multiprobe mission which will give us our first detailed in situ measurements of the Venusian atmosphere.

Helios 1, which was designed to investigate the Sun from closer range than ever before, has been a highly successful mission since its launch in December 1974. Helios B is scheduled to be launched in January 1976. The Helios missions are cooperative missions between the United States and West Germany.

The program of exploration of the outer planets continues with the two Pioneer spacecraft which have encountered Jupiter. Pioneer 10 is now escaping the solar system and Pioneer 11 is on its way to encounter Saturn in September 1979. In 1977, two Mariner Jupiter/Saturn missions will be launched to expand our knowledge of these two planets. These spacecraft will also make the first scientific measurements of several of the planet-like satellites of the two giant planets.

In the lunar program, a concentrated scientific effort is underway to analyze and interpret fully the valuable data acquired by lunar flight programs, ground-based studies of the Moon, and laboratory investigations. The analytical work that has been carried out to date has revolutionized scientific theories about the formation, evolution, and characteristics of the Moon.

(c) Life sciences.—The life sciences program provides the understanding and technology necessary to determine human capabilities and limitations in the space environment and to develop a technology base for the various types of systems which will permit people to live and work in a space environment. This is accomplished through research in the biomedical, biological, and bioinstrumentation fields utilizing the space environment and space developed technology. These efforts include integrated planning for the use of the space shuttle by the international life sciences community.

3. Space applications.—This program is applying space technology to uses on Earth in vital areas such as Earth resources detection and monitoring, weather and climate, environmental quality monitoring, Earth dynamics, ocean condition monitoring, and communications.

The major Earth resources activities include continued operation of the first two LANDSAT satellites, and preparations for launch of the third satellite in 1977. These spacecraft provide data for experimentation and verification testing necessary to explore the range of potential applications that could be achieved with remote sensing systems in Earth orbit. The Large Area Crop Inventory Experiment, an applications demonstration project aimed at improving predictions of grain crops, will be continued. Other demonstration projects include water resources management, eastern surface mine monitoring, land management, and environmental quality. These applications activities are the bridge between new technological capability and data users, providing demonstrations of the specific utility of remote sensing for such users. Work will also continue on the Heat Capacity Mapping Mission, an applications explorer which will produce thermal maps of the continental United States. This information will be useful in the discrimination of rock types for probable location of mineral resources and other applications. Development effort on a higher performance multispectral sensor, called the thematic mapper, will be undertaken in 1977 to explore potential future benefits to be gained from Earth survey capabilities.

Weather and climate observing and forecasting efforts, including severe storm research, will continue to progress. Also, as part of the U.S. climate program, space systems will continue to play an important role in monitoring key meteorological, hydrological, and oceanographic data for climate forecasting research.

In the environmental quality area, work is continuing on Nimbus-G, which is an experimental air pollution monitoring satellite scheduled for launch in 1978, and on the Stratospheric Aerosol and Gas Experiment Mission, an applications explorer satellite designed to measure atmospheric constituents.

In the earth dynamics and ocean condition monitoring programs, analysis of data from the GEOS-3 mission will continue. As another major step toward more accurate ocean condition forecasting on a global basis, development of the SEASAT-A satellite will continue, leading to launch in 1978. In addition, key activities directed toward geodesy and a potential future earthquake prediction capability will include ground-based experiments, such as measurements of tectonic plate motion, and experiments with LAGEOS, a high density, laser reference satellite to be launched in 1976.

The Magnetic Field Satellite (MAGSAT), an applications explorer mission, will provide information that will allow the U.S. Geological Survey to update maps of the Earth's magnetic field. In addition, data from MAGSAT will enhance our knowledge of the geologic structure of the Earth, and is expected to provide useful information for location of natural resources such as coal, oil, and minerals.

In communications, the Applications Technology Satellite (ATS-6) successfully completed its first year of operations in May 1975, and is currently supporting the instructional television experiment in India. The satellite will be returned to the Western Hemisphere in mid-1976 to resume the experimental programs here, along with the Cooperative Applications Satellite (United States/Canadian) planned for launch early in 1976. An augmented technical consultation program will support NASA's technical effort in preparing for the World

Administrative Radio Conference (WARC) in calendar year 1979. This WARC, the first of its kind since 1959, will reevaluate communications and operational activities for all radio-frequency users, internationally.

4. Space research and technology.—The principal objectives of this program are to provide a technology base which will adequately support current and future space activities and provide approaches for reducing the cost of future activities. The program is structured in five coherent activities: a research and technology base comprised of technology disciplines that form the foundation for future systems; a system studies activity which identifies and evaluates technology requirements, alternatives, and opportunities; systems technology programs where technology concepts are demonstrated; experimental programs involving system concept demonstration and research payload development; and low-cost systems activities to implement approaches for further reducing the costs of space subsystems and components through standardization.

In 1977, a balanced program of activity in the research and technology disciplines will continue. In the systems technology area, efforts will be initiated to develop software technology to reduce systems costs and increase reliability, and to demonstrate the technological readiness of small, high performance, space storable, pressure-fed spacecraft propulsion systems. In the experimental programs, increased activity is proposed in defining advanced technology flight experiments that will fly on the space shuttle during the early 1980's. In the low cost systems area, the emphasis will be on developing and upgrading various standard spacecraft components.

5. Aeronautical research and technology.—The objectives continue to be to advance the Nation's aeronautical technology to ensure safer, more economical and efficient air transportation systems which are responsive to today's needs; enable private industry to maintain a strong U.S. competitive position in the international marketplace; and support the military in maintaining superiority in military aircraft. NASA's overall role is to maintain a strong research and technology base position in the various technology disciplines, and, when appropriate, to follow through on their applications, including successful demonstrations in a real operating environment—either as individual systems and subsystems or as totally integrated research vehicles.

The 1977 program will continue to address specific areas of concern such as: improved performance; reduced energy requirements; enhanced operating economy; reduced environmental effects such as noise and pollution; improved safety and reliability; and reduced terminal area congestion. Emphasis will be placed on aircraft energy efficiency technologies, a multifaceted effort encompassing a broad spectrum of disciplines and focusing primarily on the development or enhancement of those technologies that will lead to more energy efficient aircraft. This reflects the results of intensive study involving other Government agencies and the aircraft and airline industries. Principal areas include engine component improvements; energy efficient engines; energy efficient transport; laminar flow control; and composite primary structures. Although the objective of the technology in each of these areas is the development of fuel efficient transports, the effort will also address environmental acceptability, safety, reasonable acquisition cost and passenger acceptance.

6. Supporting activities.—The programs grouped in this activity provide general support for the attainment of NASA mission objectives.

(a) Tracking and data acquisition.—This program provides tracking and data acquisition support to the entire NASA flight program, including automated missions to the planets and in Earth orbit, manned missions, sounding rockets, and aerodynamic test flights.

(b) Sustaining university program.—This program included grants for graduate studies in interdisciplinary space-related fields. Costs incurred reflect use of funds previously appropriated.

(c) Technology utilization.—The objective of this program is to accelerate the transfer into the economy of new advances in technology generated by NASA and NASA contractors.

7. Energy technology applications.—The objective is to assure that the national energy technology programs receive the maximum benefit from NASA's expertise gained in developing aeronautics and space technology. Emphasis is placed on providing reimbursable support to other Federal agencies and State and local governments engaged in research and development programs aimed at meeting national energy needs.
