

APPENDIX

THE BUDGET OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

FISCAL YEAR

1978

THE BUDGET DOCUMENTS

Data and analyses relating to the budget for 1978 are published in six documents:

The Budget of the United States Government, 1978 contains the information that most users of the budget would normally need, including the Budget Message of the President. The Budget presents an overview of the President's budget proposals and includes explanations of spending programs and estimated receipts. This document also contains a description of the budget system and various summary tables on the budget as a whole. (Price $3.45.)

The Budget of the United States Government, 1978—Appendix contains detailed information on the various appropriations and funds that comprise the budget.

The Appendix contains more detailed information than any of the other budget documents. It includes for each agency: the proposed text of appropriation language, budget schedules for each account, explanations of the work to be performed and the funds needed, proposed general provisions applicable to the appropriations of entire agencies or groups of agencies, and schedules of permanent positions. Supplementals and rescission proposals for the current year and new legislative proposals are presented separately. Information is also provided on certain activities, whose outlays are not part of the budget totals. (Price $13.00.)

Special Analyses, Budget of the United States Government, 1978 contains 17 special analyses that are designed to highlight specified program areas or provide other significant presentations of Federal budget data.

This document includes analytical information about: Government finances and operations as a whole and how they affect the economy; Government-wide program and financial information for Federal education, training and employment, health, income security, civil rights, and crime reduction programs; trends and developments in the areas of Federal aid to State and local governments, research and development, and environmental protection. (Price $2.70.)

The United States Budget in Brief, 1978 provides a more concise, less technical overview of the 1978 Budget than the above volumes. Summary and historical tables on the Federal budget and debt are also provided, together with graphic displays. (Price $1.15.)

Issues '78 provides greater background information than any other general Executive Branch document on major budget and program decisions reflected in the President's budget and on certain major issues confronting the Nation this year and in the future. Published for the first time with the 1977 Budget (as "Seventy Issues"), this document is intended for a general audience rather than for those with particular interests. (Price not available at time of publication.)

The Budget of the United States Government, 1978—Supplement contains the President's recommendations on executive, legislative, and judicial salaries and is transmitted pursuant to section 225 of Public Law 90-206 (2 U.S.C. 351 et. seq.). (Price not available at time of publication.)

GENERAL NOTES

1. All years referred to are fiscal years, unless otherwise noted.
2. Detail in the tables, text, and charts of this volume may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part I contains various tables and certain schedules in support of the budget, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item for which congressional action in an appropriation bill is required. It also contains the text of general provisions, proposed for enactment by the Congress, that apply to entire agencies or groups of agencies.

ARRANGEMENT

The chapters of Part I reflect the branches of Government, and the major departments and agencies of the executive branch. Most of the smaller agencies are grouped in one chapter—"Other independent agencies."

Within each chapter there are three main sections. The first section covers programs authorized by existing legislation (including items for which extension or renewal of authorizing legislation is requested). This section is organized by major subordinate organizations within the agency (usually bureaus). For each bureau, Federal funds, covering the funds that are not set aside in "trust", precede trust funds, covering moneys that are held by the Government in accounts established by law or by trust agreement for specific purposes. Generally, accounts with new budget authority in 1978 will precede those without such an entry.

The second major section of each chapter covers the legislative program, which reflects the budget estimates for proposed new legislation. This section is also arranged by bureau or other major subordinate organization. The proposals are applicable to Federal funds unless otherwise indicated.

The third section of each chapter includes the general provisions of appropriation language that are applicable to the agency in that chapter, and are in addition to the specific language pertaining to individual appropriation items. General provisions that apply to specified groups of agencies are placed in the chapter covering the first agency that appears in the respective appropriation act. The general provisions that are Government-wide in scope (identified "Departments, Agencies, and Corporations"), normally contained in the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, are placed at the end of the Executive Office of the President chapter.

An explanation of the types of funds included in the budget may be found in Part 7 of the compact volume—The Budget of the United States Government, 1978.

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1978 appropriation acts is printed following the account title. The language of the 1977 appropriation acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Brackets enclose material that is proposed for omission; italic type indicates proposed new language. An illustration of proposed appropriation language for 1978 follows:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES*

*See Part III for additional information.

For necessary expenses of the Bureau of Economic Analysis, [$12,300,000] $13,912,000. (15 U.S.C. 171, 175, 1616; 22 U.S.C. 286f, 3101-3108; Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1977.)

Enacted supplemental appropriations for 1977 are shown as bracketed separate paragraphs following the paragraph of language proposed for 1978.

At the end of the final language paragraph, and printed in italics within parentheses, are citations to any relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriation act from which the basic text of the 1978 language is taken. In addition, citations to enacted supplemental appropriations are included.

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

The 1976 and transition quarter columns of this budget generally present the actual transactions and balances for these periods, as recorded in agency accounts.

The regular schedules also include a few regular 1977 appropriations requests for programs currently operating under a continuing resolution and those supplemental appropriation requests that are needed to meet the increased costs of statutory and wage-board pay raises.

Appropriation requests for supplemental appropriations other than for pay are included in Part III, together with brief program and financing schedules. For those 1977 regular appropriations requests and supplemental estimates that are being transmitted for consideration with the 1978 budget (pay supplementals identified in the regular schedules in Part I, and separate schedules in Part III headed: "Supplemental now requested"), the proposed appropriation language is also included in Part III.

The 1978 column of the regular schedules includes proposed appropriations for recommended extension or renewal of expiring laws. However, amounts for proposed new legislation are shown in separate schedules, generally under the legislative program section of each chapter. Appropriation language is included with the regular schedules, but not with the separate schedules.

Where the required data are available in the agency accounting systems, budgets are presented in terms of costs. Detailed operating cost figures for each activity or object represent value of goods and services consumed in carrying out the program. In the case of capital outlay programs, costs shown represent the value of assets acquired.

Total obligations are always shown; activities and objects are reflected on an obligation basis where cost data are not available. Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, loan agreements made, and recurring services (such as rent, utilities, and personal services) received during the year, regardless of the time of payment.

For a few Government corporations, the detail and the totals of their budget presentations are on the basis of accrued expenditures.

SCHEDULE OF PROGRAM AND FINANCING

This schedule consists of three parts. In the "Program by activities" section, costs or obligations are classified by purpose, program, type of activity, or project for 1976, the transition quarter, 1977, and 1978. This classification is developed for each appropriation or fund, and is not uniform on a Government-wide basis. Similarly, the identification of capital outlay is not handled uniformly. Where it is of significance, capital outlay is shown by activity. Otherwise, the total for each year is disclosed by footnote.

Where budgets are presented in terms of costs, the adjustment from costs to obligations is summarized in an entry "Change in selected resources."

In certain cases, this schedule is expanded to include additional columns that provide a more informative presentation. This is done, for example, in some construction or procurement programs to show related cost data; for certain Defense items, to identify the total obligations programmed; and for programs financed at a pre-obligation stage (such as commitments in some loan programs).

The "Financing" section shows the sources of funds, budget authority, and other means of financing the activities covered by the account, and the disposition of unobligated amounts not used during the year.

The section on "Relation of obligations to outlays" shows obligations net of offsetting collections, obligated balances at the start and end of the year, and other items which affect the relation of obligations to outlays.

The account identification code, found at the head of the program and financing schedule, facilitates computer processing of budgetary information. The last three digits of this code represent the functional category to which the account is classified. Functional classification permits presentation of budget authority and outlays according to the major purposes to be served, rather than the organization administering the program or the account under which the funds are made available. For example, the 403 on the above schedule represents Other advancement and regulation of commerce—a subfunction within major function 400; Commerce and Transportation. In those few cases where the outlays from an account are split between two or more categories, a functional code of 999 is used. The individual functional categories are identified with each appropriation or fund account in the Budget Accounts Listing in Part 8 of the budget.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work planned and services proposed to be carried out are described briefly in a narrative statement for each appropriation or fund. Where practicable, the narrative statement presents accomplishments in relation to financial requirements, and available measures of program and performance.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a classification of obligations, costs, or accrued expenditures according to the following uniform list of object classifications:

10 PERSONAL SERVICES AND BENEFITS	25 Supplies and materials
11 Personnel compensation	30 ACQUISITION OF CAPITAL ASSETS
12 Personnel benefits	31 Equipment
13 Benefits for former personnel	32 Lands and structures
20 CONTRACTUAL SERVICES AND SUPPLIES	33 Investments and loans

23 Rent, communications, and utilities	42 Insurance claims and indemnities
24 Printing and reproduction	43 Interest and dividends
25 Other services	44 Refunds

These object classes reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose of the program for which they are used. Data according to this classification are illustrated in the following schedule:

99.0 Total obligations.....	11,705	3,166	12,880	13,962

Several of the object classes are broken down into sub-classes—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for permanent positions, for positions other than permanent, and for certain other payments.

Generally, a personnel summary follows the object classification schedule, as illustrated:

	1975 act.	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Direct:
Total number of permanent positions.....	429	441	472

Average GS grade.....	10.06	10.01	9.99
Average GS salary.....	$18,476	$18,323	$18,236

Permanent positions are those that are established or occupied for a year or more. The nature of the position governs. Thus a permanent position may be occupied by an employee whose appointment is either temporary or permanent in nature. These positions may be full-time (full workweek) or part-time (less than a full workweek)

Average grades and salaries are computed arithmetically. Thus the average salary can fall outside the salary range of the average grade.

STATEMENT OF REVENUE AND EXPENSE

For many revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense that shows the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement is usually on a full accrual basis including provision for depreciation, for losses on receivables, etc.

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Operating income:

Net income for the period.....	17,748	3,399	21,895	23,269

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITION

For each fund showing a revenue and expense statement there is also presented a statement of financial condition for assets, liabilities, and equity of the Government at the close of each year. This statement excludes balances of appropriations and borrowing authorizations that have not yet been paid into the revolving fund. Because the statement is on an accrual basis, the "Liabilities" section does not reflect obligations incurred for which the liability has not accrued. Nor does the "Assets" section reflect unfilled customer orders received, even though such orders are a basis for obligation in the case of intragovernmental revolving funds. The "Government equity" section therefore, shows obligations that have not yet become accrued liabilities, the unobligated balance, unfilled customer orders on hand (where relevant), and invested capital and earnings.

The last section of the balance sheet is an "Analysis of Changes in Government Equity." This section sets forth for paid-in capital and retained income, as appropriate, the beginning balance, transactions (changes) during the year, and the balance at the end of the year.

BUDGETS NOT SUBJECT TO REVIEW

The presentations herein for the Legislative Branch, the Judiciary, the Comptroller of the Currency in the Treasury Department, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Milk Market Orders Assessment Fund of the Department of Agriculture, the Farm Credit Administration, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the International Trade Commission have been included, without review, in the amounts submitted by the agencies.

The budgets of the Government-sponsored enterprises, presented in Part VI, are not subject to review, and are included in the amounts submitted by the respective enterprises.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN BUDGET TABLES AND APPENDIX TABLES

INTRAGOVERNMENTAL TRANSACTIONS

The consolidation of Government-administered funds in the compact budget volume may cause duplication in the totals. This occurs when the payment from one of the fund groups (Federal or trust) is credited to a receipt account in the other fund group, or when a payment from a Government agency excluded from the budget totals (off-budget Federal entities) is credited to a budgetary receipt account and appropriated therefrom. In order to avoid duplication, intragovernmental transactions (i.e., intrabudgetary transactions and receipts from Federal agencies outside the budget totals) are deducted from the aggregates of both budget authority and outlays.

PROPRIETARY RECEIPTS FROM THE PUBLIC

The Appendix continues the conventional practice of offsetting in the individual schedules only those amounts collected that are earmarked by law for use in revolving funds, or as reimbursements to appropriations or other funds. In addition to showing outlays that are net of collections credited to individual accounts, the compact budget volume generally offsets against budget authority and outlays for each agency and function the collections from the public that are market-oriented or are mainly payments for goods and services, regardless of the fund structure.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

The Library of Congress, established in 1800, is not only the library of the Congress itself, but is also the principal general library of the Government of the United States.

Its collections are comprehensive and varied, and include outstanding collections of books, periodicals, newspapers, documents of the national governments of the world, literature in the Oriental languages, et cetera, and manuscripts, maps, music, motion picture films, sound recordings, prints, and photographs. In addition to maintenance of the collections and the rendering of the general and basic services connected therewith, including the Congressional Research Service, certain specialized functions are performed: registration of copyrights, catalog card distribution, and the service of the books in raised characters and talking books to the blind. In terms of these broad fields of activity comparative obligations (including only those chargeable to annual appropriations) for 1976 and transition quarter and estimated for 1977 and 1978 are (in thousands of dollars):

In addition to funds appropriated annually by Congress, there are also available a number of gift and trust funds, and working funds.

Estimates for the physical equipment, maintenance, and operation of those Library buildings located on Capitol Hill are carried under the request of the Architect of the Capitol.

1. Purchase of books and library materials.—The Library's collections are developed through purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, transfer, and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections. The objective for 1978 is continued improvement in acquisition coverage and procedures. The collections totaled 71,921,913 items as of June 30, 1976, and consisted of 17,888,790 books and pamphlets, 32,118,079 manuscript pieces, and 21,915,044 maps, pieces of music, reels of microfilm, photographs, and other miscellaneous items. In fiscal year 1976, 1,601,182 items were added to the permanent collections and 202,243 items were withdrawn. Pieces received from various sources in 1976 and estimates for 1977 and 1978 are as follows:

a. Purchase of books for the general collection.—Library materials, both current and noncurrent, in all subject fields except in the fields of law, clinical medicine, or technical agriculture are purchased. Although materials acquired through purchase generally amount to only a limited portion of the total number of pieces received annually, they are materials which are not generally or readily available to the Library of Congress from any other source and thus must be purchased to insure completeness of the collections. The national program for acquisitions and cataloging is designed to acquire, catalog, and disseminate cataloging data on a timely basis for all current monographic works of research value to meet the needs of American libraries. Purchases of monographs under this program are included under this heading. The objectives for 1978 are: (1) To continue procurement of important research materials to insure the continuous and comprehensive development of the Library's collections thereby maintaining their national preeminence; (2) to continue the purchase of important foreign commercial books, newspapers, and periodicals; (3) to continue the extensive procurement of essential research materials from areas critical to the U.S. foreign relations, particularly from Eastern Europe, Asia, and Latin America; (4) to continue to strengthen the Library's current acquisitions in the rapidly expanding fields of science and technology; (5) to acquire highly selected, important, noncurrent materials needed to provide better service to Congress; (6) to increase the usefulness to current research of the subject collections; and (7) to extend the coverage of European materials and the intensification of coverage in Latin America.

b. Purchase of books for the Law Library.—Lawbooks published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign lawbooks published in countries throughout the world are purchased. The legal publications acquired by purchase constitute the most important part of the Law Library's acquisitions, although a substantial part of the annual receipts is received by means other than purchase. The special objectives for 1978 are: (1) To continue the procurement of certain current domestic and foreign legal materials where the expeditious receipt and filing of current supplements and revisions are necessary because receipt through exchange and gift operations is irregular; (2) to improve the current and retrospective coverage of important Hispanic, African, Middle Eastern, and South Asian sources; (3) to continue the procurement of both current and noncurrent materials needed to strengthen the Law Library's already comprehensive holdings of critical areas in Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa; (4) to continue the acquisition of microforms and photoduplicates of important research items, especially those from critical areas, which are no longer obtainable in the original; and (5) for replacement of hard-bound copies.

2. Preparation of books and library materials for use.—Library materials are cataloged for ready retrieval and are classified for systematic arrangement on the shelves of the collection. Card catalogs are maintained. Issues of serial publications are identified and recorded. Cataloging data are converted to machine-readable form for use by the Library of Congress, other libraries, and cataloging service agencies. Systems of subject headings and classification are continuously developed for the Library's needs and for the nationwide library community. The national program for acquisitions and cataloging is designed to acquire, catalog, and disseminate cataloging data on a timely basis for all current monographic works of research value to meet the needs of American libraries. Preparation of books and library materials for use under this program are included under this heading.

Objectives in these activities for 1978 are to continue reductions in backlogs of cataloging and catalog management operations, to continue the development of the machine-readable cataloging data base, and to extend coverage of NPAC shared cataloging coverage of European materials and the intensification of coverage in Latin America.

Selected performance data for 1976 and estimates for 1977 and 1978 (not including processing activities performed by the Research Department, Reader Services Department, and Law Library) are as follows:

Description	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

3. Cataloging distribution service.—The cataloging distribution service sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards, cataloging data in machine-readable form, book catalogs, and technical publications. It maintains a stock of over 88 million catalog cards representing approximately 442,500 titles which are frequently ordered. From this stock are supplied 90% of the cards which are sold. A master file containing a single, reproducible copy of each of the cards representing the approximately 6 million titles which the Library has cataloged since 1898 is also maintained. Requests for cards for any of the 5,557,500 less frequently ordered titles are satisfied by duplicating (through offset, photographic, or electrostatic means) the copy of the card kept in master file. Receipts of $7,606,029 were deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury in fiscal 1976. The objectives for 1978 are: (1) Meeting the continuing demand for catalog cards and maintaining a reasonable level of service and economy; (2) the continued development of the National Union Catalog as the country's major bibliographic and locational tool; (3) the development of other technical publications; (4) the use of new technology to improve service; and (5) to increase efficiency and reduce cost.

a. Catalog services for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in fiscal 1976 was 31,084,673; estimated for 1977, 30 million; and estimated for 1978, 30 million.

b. Sale of catalog services to other institutions.—The preparation, printing, and distribution of publications related to cataloging are an integral part of the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include Classification Schedules, lists of Subject Headings, Catalog Service bulletins, and similar publications. Other publications include the National Union Catalog, a cumulative author list, which is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually; Films and Other Materials for Projection (quarterly with an annual cumulation); Music, Books on Music and Sound Recordings (semiannual with annual cumulation); Register of Additional Locations; Monographic Series; Subject Cataloging; and New Serial Titles.

4. Research and reader services.—Books and other library materials are provided internally and outside the Library, reference and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained. The objective of this activity for 1978 is to continue to organize more material for use, to make it available to readers more readily, and to improve reference, bibliographic, and circulation services. The workload in major activities is expected to increase in 1977 and 1978 as follows:

5. Automated systems support.—Planning and implementation of the provision of automated data processing on a centralized basis for all departments are provided. Investigations, experiments, and feasibility studies to find suitable solutions are undertaken. Compatibility among individual components of administrative and bibliographic systems in the Library and, as far as practical, throughout the national and international library communities is sought. Through the Congressional Research Service, information services to the Congress are provided.

The MARC Development Office controls the development and implementation of machine systems for creating, organizing, processing, and disseminating machine-readable cataloging data. The Computer Center operates and controls computer and related equipment, including the central computer facility. The objectives for 1978 are: (1) To continue progress toward the goal of a fully automated machine-readable cataloging service; (2) expand automated data processing service to Congress; (3) develop new computer applications while improving reliability and performance of existing programs; and (4) expand computer power to provide additional disk and other mass storage devices, increase the number of terminals, and accommodate the use of outside data bases.

6. Preservation of library materials.—Library materials are preserved in their original format by being bound or rebound, or by a variety of conservation/restoration techniques. Materials are also preserved by converting them to a more durable form through such means as the microfilming of books and newspapers, by conversion of nitrate film to a safety base film, and by the conversion of deteriorating sound recordings to polyester tape. In addition, the Library conducts basic research into the many unsolved preservation problems encountered in dealing with millions of deteriorating books and other materials in the Library of Congress collections as well as in the other research libraries of the Nation.

7. Central support services.—This activity supports the executive staff of the Office of the Librarian; exhibit, information, and publication activities; personnel, financial procurement and buildings management; and other centralized services. It also includes rental of space off Capitol Hill and duplicating services.

8. American Folklife Center.—This activity was authorized by Public Law 94-201, which established in the Library of Congress an American Folklife Center to preserve and present American folklife. The Center is directed by a board of trustees and is administered by a director appointed by the Librarian.

The Center serves as a coordinating body with the many existing programs in the public and private sectors, including the granting programs under the National Endowments for the Arts and Humanities, the folklife programming of the Smithsonian Institution, and others. The program of the Center also gives focus to other activities of the Library of Congress in this area.

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collecting and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The effort described under each of the activities are predicated on an estimated 481,097 copyright registrations during 1978, an estimated 431,517 during 1977, and actual registration of 410,969 during 1976.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act. Performance data for 1976 and estimates for 1977 and 1978 are as follows:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Registrations.....	410,969	102,742	432,517	481,092
Mail received and dispatched.....	1,011,862	252,965	1,264,827	1,328,068

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provisions of the Copyright Act have been satisfied. Performance data are as follows:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Cases and documents examined.....	436,490	109,122	458,314	509,229

Letters written.....	75,205	18,801	78,965	87,859

3. Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. There were 489,414 items on hand and received during 1976, of which 462,750 were cataloged, leaving a balance at the end of the year of 26,664. It is estimated that for the transition quarter, 1977, and 1978, the number of items to be cataloged will be 122,353, 513,884, and 563,774 respectively.

4. Reference services.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings; information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity. Performance data are as follows:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Titles searched.....	156,347	39,086	164,164	181,000
Letters and search reports written.....	44,622	11,155	46,853	52,000

5. Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

7. General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office includes legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

8. Copyright revision.—The general revision of the Copyright Law, Title 17 of the United States Code, has been overwhelmingly approved by both Houses of Congress. The purpose of the legislation is to bring the law into line with the sweeping advance in fields of technology that are closely related to copyright. These include: cable television; satellite communications; instructional broadcasting and other automated devices for teaching; public broadcasting; computers and automated information networks; videotapes; tape cassettes, disc recording, and cartridges; and the whole range of devices for reprographic reproduction, notably photocopying and microforms. The effects of the new law on Copyright Office policies and procedures will be manifold. Under the royalty provisions the Office will be responsible for the issuance of annual licenses for jukeboxes and the collection of royalties for the performance of copyrighted works on cable television. The legislation also provides for a substantial expansion in the kinds of materials which will be registered, a change in the term of copyright to life of the author plus 50 years, and an increase in the fee schedule.

1. Commission.—The National Commission on New Technological Uses of Copyrighted Works was created to compile and study data on (1) the reproduction and use of copyrighted works by various forms of machine reproduction, and (2) the creation of new works by the use of automated systems or machine reproduction. The Commission is charged with making recommendations as to changes in copyright law to further protect the rights of copyright owners and to assure access to copyrighted works. The Commission is composed of 14 members: 12 appointed by the President, and 2 ex officio members, the Librarian of Congress and the Register of Copyrights. The Commission is required by statute to file its final report by December 31, 1977, and to terminate its existence at the end of February 1978. Its activities in January and February 1978 will be limited to administratively arranging this termination.

2. Staff activities.—The Commission is assisted in its studies by a staff which is administratively a part of the Library of Congress and which is headed by an Executive Director. Objectives of the staff in 1978 will be to support the Commission in winding up its affairs and arranging an orderly termination of the Commission's existence.

1. Policy analysis and research.—The Congressional Research Service provides analytical and consultative services to the Members and committees of Congress, assisting them in the analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of legislative issues and proposals, and of recommendations submitted to the Congress by the executive branch. Research services are also provided to assist Congress with its oversight, representative, and other responsibilities. Support comes in the form of background studies, indepth policy analyses, consultations and briefings, legal research, continuous liaison with committees, outside contracts, assistance with committee hearings, and related data and materials. Lists of subjects and policy areas that a committee might profitably pursue are periodically made available to each congressional committee. These services are directed toward assisting Members and committees in determining the advisability of enacting legislative proposals, in estimating the probable results of such proposals and of alternatives to them, and in evaluating methods for accomplishing the results sought. Pursuant to Public Law 91-589, dated December 24, 1970, the Service prepares decennial revised editions of the Constitution of the United States—Analysis and Interpretation, as well as cumulative supplements at 2-year intervals. As provided by statute, the Service prepares compendiums for the annual national high school and college debate topics, and provides assistance to the Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Technology Assessment.

2. Documentation and status of legislation.—The Service periodically prepares and publishes for distribution to Members and committees the Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions, which includes summaries of all public bills and resolutions introduced in Congress, the status of bills receiving action, and various pertinent indexes. The Service compiles factual descriptions of House bills and resolutions which are forwarded for publication in the Congressional Record. The Service also makes available current and periodic reports that provide background and status information on major legislative issues before the Congress. Upon request, the Service provides Members and committees with legislative history memorandums on bills for which hearings have been announced, and compiles and makes available to each committee reports on legislatively authorized programs and activities within that committee's jurisdiction that are scheduled to terminate during the current Congress.

3. Information and reference services.—The Congressional Research Service provides extensive information and reference assistance to Members and committees. Reference files containing clippings, pamphlets, and documents, and automated information services are maintained for rapid information retrieval. Lists of selected reports, prepared by CRS staff on legislative issues, are regularly distributed to congressional offices. To provide faster responses and in-person services, the Service also maintains reference centers in congressional office buildings and the Congressional Reading Room.

The Division for the Blind and Physically Handicapped is responsible for administering a national program to provide reading material for blind and physically handicapped residents of the United States and its outlying areas and for U.S. citizens residing abroad. It has two closely related operations.

1. Procurement and distribution.—It procures books in embossed characters, recorded books with their associated reproducers, and catalogs and publications of material available. The books and reproducers are distributed through 56 regional libraries and over 150 other cooperating libraries and agencies which assume responsibility for their custody and circulation. The maintenance and procurement of these books are shown in the following table:

b. Magazines.....	34	34	34	39

2. Reader services.—During the past 5-year period, 1972-76, the number of blind and physically handicapped readers throughout the country has grown from over 321,000 to over 558,500 and circulation from approximately 9,263,000 units (volumes, containers, and reels) to about 13,367,000. The number of readers and circulation are expected to continue to increase in 1977 and 1978 at approximately the same rate as in the past 5 years. A combined total of 47,100 requests for interlibrary loan and inquiries concerning library and related services available to the blind and to other physically handicapped persons were received in 1976. Individuals throughout the Nation who are interested in transcribing or proofreading braille are trained, and those qualified are certified. During fiscal 1976 over 520 individuals were certified, and it is anticipated that this level will continue during 1977 and 1978. In addition, books are tape recorded by volunteers throughout the country. The division provides guidance and direction to the cooperating libraries throughout the country. The division maintains the national collections of braille and recorded books to supplement titles deposited in libraries across the country and to furnish direct service to Americans living abroad. In addition, music materials are provided directly to readers throughout the country.

Objectives for 1978.—Based on an average growth in readership during the latest 5-year period for which verified statistics are available, a 15-percent increase in users is anticipated in fiscal 1978. To provide for this increase the budget objectives are as follows: To provide sound reproducer equipment to meet existing and potential reader requirements; to produce recorded books and periodicals of a variety comparable to those available to non-handicapped library users; to expand the production of braille books and magazines to meet minimum requirements for those blind readers who prefer to use braille; and to insure optimum materials and services for consumers through a coordinated program of monitoring production agencies and contractors, training volunteer groups, and providing guidance and support to network agencies.

1. Repair of office machines.—This activity provides for the proper maintenance, repair, and reconditioning of office machines of various types essential to Library operations: typewriters, adding and calculating machines, and other items, such as duplicating machines, collators, copying devices, dictating and transcribing machines, microfilm readers, mailing machines, power files, bookkeeping machines and other office machines.

2. Purchase of annual furniture and equipment.—This is required to meet annual replacements due to obsolescence, to obtain furniture and equipment for increased staff, and to provide more efficient furniture and equipment for tasks performed.

3. Purchase of nonrecurring furniture and equipment.—This is required to replace larger items of furniture and equipment, and to provide additional items to meet a growing workload. Included are such things as book trucks, filing equipment, office machines, audiovisual equipment, and exhibit cases.

4. Purchase of typewriters.—This is required for regular annual replacements of obsolete typewriters and to provide typewriters for additional staff.

5. Madison Building, furniture and furnishings.—Funds in this category will provide for the purchase of furniture for the James Madison Memorial Library Building.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise Fund and the Permanent Committee for the Oliver Wendell Holmes Devise to administer it were created by an act of Congress, approved August 5, 1955 (69 Stat. 533). The Committee consists of four members appointed by the President and the Librarian of Congress, who is chairman ex officio. The Committee was (1) to have prepared a history of the Supreme Court of the United States, and, if deemed advisable, (2) to finance an annual lecture or series of lectures, and (3) to publish a memorial volume of Justice Holmes' writings. The principal and interest on the fund are available for these purposes.

The current program is devoted primarily to the preparation of the History of the Supreme Court of the United States, of which the first two volumes were published by the Macmillan Co. in fiscal year 1972. A third volume was published in August 1974, and two additional volumes are nearing completion. The editor-in-chief has now retired from all teaching duties at the Harvard Law School and will be able to devote himself to the History. The annual lecture series financed by this fund has been discontinued because the Committee felt it desirable to conserve remaining funds.

This schedule covers: (1) Funds received as gifts for immediate expenditure and receipts from the sale of recordings and photoduplication materials financed from capital originally received as gifts, (2) income from investments held by or for the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, and (3) interest at a rate which is 0.25 percentage point less than the rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding long-term marketable obligations of the United States, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum or the rate of 4% per annum, whichever is higher, paid by the Treasury on the principal funds deposited therewith as described under "Library of Congress Trust Fund, Principal Accounts" (2 U.S.C. 156-160; 31 U.S.C. 725s; 37 Stat. 319; Public Law 94-289; Public Law 94-290).

1. Acquisition of library materials.—During 1976, this included the procurement of manuscripts, Hispanic materials, fine prints, rare books, and other library materials for the Library of Congress, and the acquisition and distribution of Government documents for the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries. The Library expects the activities to continue in fiscal years 1977 and 1978.

2. Reader and reference services.—These services during 1976 included the preparation of bibliographies, indexes, digests, and checklists; lectures, surveys of bibliographic services; poetry readings; musical concerts; furtherance of musical research, composition, performance and appreciation; and providing photostats, photographs, microfilm, and other forms of photoduplication, and sound recordings of folksongs, and poetry to other Government agencies, libraries and other institutions, and to the general public; and distribution of recordings of the Library's literary programs and concerts to radio stations for public service broadcasts. The Library expects these activities to continue in fiscal years 1977 and 1978.

3. Organization and control of the collections.—In February 1967, the Library of Congress began the largest single bibliographical project in its history, the publication of the pre-1956 "National Union Catalog." It is expected that the project will be completed in 12 years, and that the published catalog will comprise over 600 volumes. Over 460 volumes have been published. The preparation of the 19th full edition of the "Dewey Decimal Classification," begun during fiscal year 1972, continues.

During fiscal year 1975, the Library removed some of the principal from the permanent loan and invested that principal in long term U.S. public debt securities which mature on May 15, 1999, and are paying interest at a rate of 8.5%. As of September 30, 1976, the principal in the public debt securities was distributed as follows:

Music activities.....	$140,700
Fine arts.....	376,540
American history.....	291,584
Hispanic activities.....	200,598
Poetry and literature.....	47,570
Miscellaneous purposes.....	283,008
Total public debt securities principal.....	1,340,000

GIFT AND TRUST FUND ACCOUNTS, NON-REVOLVING—Continued

This schedule includes three principal accounts: Permanent loan, public debt securities, and bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard.

Both the permanent loan and the Hubbard funds represent gifts or bequests in cash which have been deposited with the Treasurer of the United States. The interest on these funds is available to the Librarian for the purposes specified in each case. Public Law 94-289 and Public Law 94-290 (signed May 22, 1976) provide interest at "a rate which is the higher of the rate of 4% per annum or a rate which is 0.25 percentage point less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding long-term marketable obligations of the United States, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1%." The public debt securities funds represent gifts or bequests in cash which have been invested in public debt securities of the United States in order to obtain a better return on the principal.

As of September 30, 1976, the principal in the permanent loan account, which shall not exceed the sum of $10,000,000 (2 U.S.C. 158; 31 U.S.C. 725s, Public Law 87-522), was distributed as follows:

Music activities.....	$2,562,512
American history.....	26,330
Poetry and literature.....	958,167
Miscellaneous purposes.....	319,379
Total permanent loan principal.....	3,866,388

The additional principal sum of $20,000 representing the bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard is for the purchase of engravings and etchings (37 Stat. 319). Public Law 94-290 (May 22, 1976) changes the interest rate on this account from the fixed 4% rate to the floating rate described above.

The Library also has available to it, through the Trust Fund Board, income from principal amounts which are managed for the Board as trust funds by private financial institutions. As of September 30, 1976, the estimated principal in these trust funds was distributed as follows:

Music activities.....	$944,000
Hispanic activities.....	583,000
Poetry and literature.....	583,000
Total principal.....	2,110,000

SEC. 801. Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress for salaries shall be available for expenses of personnel security and suitability investigations of Library employees; special and temporary services (including employees engaged by day or hour or in piecework); and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 802. Not to exceed fifteen positions in the Library of Congress may be exempt from the provisions of appropriation acts concerning the employment of aliens during the current fiscal year, but the Librarian shall not make any appointment to any such position until he has ascertained that he cannot secure for such appointments a person in any of the categories specified in such provisions who possesses the special qualifications for the particular position and also otherwise meets the general requirements for employment in the Library of Congress.

SEC. 803. Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to reimburse the Department of State for medical services rendered to employees of the Library of Congress stationed abroad and for contracting on behalf of and hiring alien employees for the Library of Congress under compensation plans comparable to those authorized by section 444 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 889(a)); for purchase or hire of passenger motor vehicles; for payment of travel, storage and transportation of household goods, and transportation and per diem expenses for families enroute (not to exceed twenty-four); for benefits comparable to those payable under sections 911(9), 911(11), and 941 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, as amended (22 U.S.C. 1136(9), 1136(11), and 1156, respectively); and travel benefits comparable with those which are now or hereafter may be granted single employees of the Agency for International Development, including single Foreign Service personnel assigned to A.I.D. projects, by the Administrator of the Agency for International Development—or his designee—under the authority of section 636(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (Public Law 87-195, 22 U.S.C. 2396(b)); subject to such rules and regulations as may be issued by the Librarian of Congress.

SEC. 804. Payments in advance for subscriptions or other charges for bibliographical data, publications, materials in any other form, and services may be made by the Librarian of Congress whenever he determines it to be more prompt, efficient, or economical to do so in the interest of carrying out required Library programs.

SEC. 805. Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress shall be available, in an amount not to exceed [$92,000] $129,000, when specifically authorized by the Librarian, for expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with the function or activity for which the appropriation is made.

SEC. 806. Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to provide additional parking facilities for Library of Congress employees in an area or areas in the District of Columbia outside the limits of the Library of Congress grounds, and to provide for transportation of such employees to and from such area or areas and the Library of Congress grounds without regard to the limitations imposed by 31 U.S.C. 638a(c)(2).

SEC. 807. Funds available to the Library of Congress may be expended to purchase, lease, maintain, and otherwise acquire automatic data processing equipment without regard to the provisions of 40 U.S.C. 759.

SEC. 808. The Disbursing Officer of the Library of Congress is authorized to disburse funds appropriated for the Congressional Budget Office, and the Library of Congress shall provide financial management support to the Congressional Budget Office as may be required and mutually agreed to by the Librarian of Congress and the Director of the Congressional Budget Office.

All vouchers certified for payment by duly authorized certifying officers of the Library of Congress shall be supported with a certification by an officer or employee of the Congressional Budget Office duly authorized in writing by the Director of the Congressional Budget Office to certify payments from appropriations of the Congressional Budget Office. The Congressional Budget Office certifying officers shall (1) be held responsible for the existence and correctness of the facts recited in the certificate or otherwise stated on the voucher or its supporting paper and the legality of the proposed payment under the appropriation or fund involved, (2) be held responsible and accountable for the correctness of the computations of certifications made, and (3) be held accountable for and required to make good to the United States the amount of any illegal, improper, or incorrect payment resulting from any false, inaccurate, or misleading certificate made by him, as well as for any payment prohibited by law which did not represent a legal obligation under the appropriation or fund involved: Provided, That the Comptroller General of the United States may, at his discretion, relieve such certifying officer or employee of liability for any payment otherwise proper whenever he finds (1) that the certification was based on official records and that such certifying officer or employee did not know, and by reasonable diligence and inquiry could not have ascertained the actual facts, or (2) that the obligation was incurred in good faith, that the payment was not contrary to any statutory provision specifically prohibiting payments of the character involved, and the United States has received value for such payment: Provided further, That the Comptroller General shall relieve such certifying officer or employee of liability for an overpayment for transportation services made to any common carrier covered by section 66 of title 49, whenever he finds that the overpayment occurred solely because the administrative examination made prior to payment of the transportation bill did not include a verification of transportation rates, freight classifications, or land grant deduction. (Public Law 85-53, paragraph 3, June 13, 1957, 71 Stat. 81.)

The Disbursing Officer of the Library of Congress shall not be held accountable or responsible for any illegal, improper, or incorrect payment resulting from any false, inaccurate, or misleading certificate, the responsibility for which is imposed upon a certifying officer or employee of the Congressional Budget Office. The Office of the Superintendent of Documents operates under a separate appropriation which provides all of the funds for: (1) The compilation of catalogs and indexes of Government publications; (2) the distribution of Government publications to designated depository libraries; and (3) the mailing for Members of Congress and other Government agencies of certain Government publications, as authorized by law. It also provides part of the funding for (4) the sale of Government publications in accordance with section 1708 of title 44 U.S. Code and (5) the sale of certain other Government publications in accordance with various other authorities. These five functions are related to the publication activity of other agencies and to the demands of the public, Members of Congress, and depository libraries. Consequently, Documents can exercise little control over the volume of work which it may be called upon to perform. A description of these five functions follows:

1. General sales of publications.—Selected Government publications are placed on sale to public in accordance with section 1708 of title 44 of the U.S. Code. This section states, in part, the following:

"The price at which additional copies of Government publications are offered for sale to the public by the Superintendent of Documents shall be based on the cost as determined by the Public Printer plus 50 percent. Surplus receipts from sales shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of miscellaneous receipts."

2. Special sales of publications.—Certain publications are placed on sale to the public wherein the price of the publication is not established in accordance with section 1708, title 44, but in accordance with various other authorities such as 44 U.S.C. 906, 44 U.S.C. 910, and 44 U.S.C. 1504.

3. Distribution for other agencies and Members of Congress.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists and mails, at the request of Government agencies and Members of Congress, certain publications specified by public law.

4. Depository library distribution.—As required, Government publications are supplied to libraries which are designated as depositories for Government publications.

5. Cataloging and indexing.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents is charged with preparing catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government. The principal publication is the "Monthly Catalog of U.S. Government Publications."

The U.S. Tax Court hears and decides cases involving Federal income, estate and gift tax deficiencies, and renders declaratory judgments regarding the qualification or continuing qualification of retirement plans under the provisions of Public Law 93-406, known as the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

The Tax Court has recently been given jurisdiction under Public Law 94-455 (Tax Reform Act of 1976) to render declaratory judgments with respect to: (1) exempt organization status determinations pursuant to section 501(c)(3), Internal Revenue Code, and (2) determinations made pursuant to section 367 (transfers of property from the United States). In addition, the court will have jurisdiction over actions to restrain disclosure and to obtain additional disclosure with respect to public inspection of written determinations issued by the Internal Revenue Service, and actions to compel the disclosure of the identity of third party contacts relating to written determinations made by the Internal Revenue Service.

For 1978, the Court proposes a trial program of 284 weeks consisting of 229 weeks of regular trial sessions and 55 weeks of small tax case sessions. Trials are held in approximately 116 cities throughout the United States.

The actual and estimated work volume of the Court is presented in the following tabulation:

For 1972 the U.S. Tax Court received an initial appropriation in the amount of $18,712 thousand, and for 1973 and 1975 supplemental appropriations in the amounts of $1,916 thousand and $2 million respectively, to provide for the construction of a court building to be located within the District of Columbia. The Tax Court is a court of national jurisdiction with headquarters in Washington, D.C., and conducts trial sessions throughout the United States. The new building provides adequate housing and courtroom facilities for the judges, special trial judges, and all support personnel.

Ground was broken on July 31, 1972, and the new quarters were occupied on January 1975. Phase II of the building project, the plaza across Interstate 95, is expected to be completed in calendar year 1977.

"(2) If in any year the percentage change determined under either paragraph (1)(A) or (1)(B) indicates a rise in the price index, then—

"(A) effective March 1 of such year, in the case of an increase under paragraph (1)(A), each annuity payable from the Fund having a commencing date not later than such March 1 shall be increased by the percent change computed under such paragraph, adjusted to the nearest one-tenth of 1 percent, or

The Court of Customs and Patent Appeals has jurisdiction of appeals from all final judgments or orders of the U.S. Customs Court. The court may, in its discretion, permit an appeal to be taken from an order authorizing an evidentiary hearing in a foreign country, issued by the chief judge of the Customs Court or from an interlocutory order of a judge of the U.S. Customs Court when said judge includes in the order a statement that a controlling question of law is involved as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion and an immediate appeal may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation.

The court has jurisdiction of appeals from decisions of U.S. Patent and Trademark Office tribunals as to patent applications and interferences and as to trademark applications and interference, cancellation, concurrent use, and opposition proceedings.

The court also has jurisdiction to review, by appeal on question of law only, the findings of the U.S. International Trade Commission as to unfair practices in import trade.

The jurisdiction of the court includes appeals under section 71 of the Plant Variety Protection Act of 1970.

The court has jurisdiction to review, by appeals on questions of law only, findings of the Secretary of Commerce under headnote 6 to schedule 8, part 4, of the Tariff Schedules of the United States relating to importation of scientific instruments or apparatus.

The U.S. Customs Court with offices in New York City has exclusive jurisdiction, throughout the United States and its possessions, embracing 46 customs collection districts and 286 ports of entry into which merchandise is imported, over civil actions arising under the tariff laws, the internal revenue law relating to imported merchandise, the several customs simplification acts, the proclamations of the President issued under reciprocal trade agreements, and other proclamations imposing taxes and/or quotas on imported goods, et cetera. Trials may be held at any port or any place within the jurisdiction of the United States, as designated by the chief judge. Cases before the court are tried under the legal procedure provided for in title 28, United States Code, entitled "Judiciary and Judicial Procedure." The court tries cases without a jury, making findings of fact, and applies the law, both statutory and general, including constitutional issues. The Government is represented before the court by an Assistant Attorney General of the United States and a staff of special trial attorneys.

The U.S. Court of Claims has jurisdiction over all cases involving claims against the United States (except in pension suits) instituted upon constitutional grounds or under Federal law or regulations, all claims arising out of any contract with the Federal Government and its agencies, and claims for the refund of taxes. It also has general jurisdiction to hear and determine claims for damages other than tort actions, provided the claimants would have the right to sue in law or equity if the United States were not immune to such suits. It has jurisdiction in suits against the United States by contractors dissatisfied with the findings and decisions of contracting agencies under terminated war contracts and jurisdiction concurrent with that of the courts of appeals to review district court decisions in cases involving tort actions. It has exclusive jurisdiction to review the decisions of the Indian Claims Commission on appeal from the Commission. It also has jurisdiction in special act cases referred to the court by the Congress, and the commissioners of the court have jurisdiction to render reports to the Congress on claims set forth in bills referred to the chief commissioner by either House of Congress.

The district courts of the United States are constituted courts of bankruptcy, vested with original jurisdiction at law and in equity in proceedings brought under the bankruptcy statutes. This jurisdiction primarily is exercised through referees appointed by the several district courts.

Their salaries and office expenses are paid from this appropriation including compensation and benefits of clerical employees which are payable upon authorization of the Director of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

This appropriation is derived from a special fund in the Treasury to which are deposited payments of fees and charges by parties to the proceedings.

This establishes a framework of joint Federal and State efforts to provide the basic facilities essential to economic growth in Appalachia. Program investments made in the Appalachian Region are concentrated in areas with significant potential for future growth. The States, acting through the Appalachian Regional Commission, are responsible for recommending local and State projects within their borders for assistance under this program.

1. Appalachian Development Highway System.—Section 201 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act authorizes construction of Appalachian Development Highway System including local access roads. This system is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia. The budget for 1978 provides $205.3 million to fully liquidate obligations through that period.

The cumulative status of the system of roads including mileage prefunded by the State follows:

	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Development system miles (cumulative):
Miles contracted	1,480	1,580	1,700
Prefunded miles	-----	(15)	(15)

Annual obligation (thousands; 1976 $153,740)	$36,202	$197,348	$205,300

2. Area development programs.—Funds are provided for a single allocation to each of the Appalachian States for implementing programs of area development. The programs consist of projects aimed primarily at providing the basic facilities essential to the region's growth and economic development, particularly in the areas of health, education, and community development facilities.

During 1978 continued emphasis will be placed on conducting area development activities within the several geographic subregions of Appalachia by an allocation system permitting greater State flexibility in the amount and kind of projects undertaken. These projects will be of the following types, with the project mix depending upon the State plans adopted within the context of the subregional development strategies: health and child development; community development and housing; vocational and other education; energy and enterprise; natural resources and environment; and rural transportation. Workload data for comparable programs in the previous years follow:

(a) Health and child development.—Grants are made for the construction, equipping, and operation of multi-county demonstration health facilities including hospitals, regional health diagnostic or treatment centers, and other facilities. In addition, grant support is provided for

(b) Vocational and other education facilities and operations.—Grants are made to States and local districts within the Appalachian Region for the construction and equipment of vocational education facilities, and in limited cases, for operations and demonstration projects. Supplementary grants are also provided for community colleges, libraries, ETV and NDEA projects. These facilities are key elements for the training and upgrading of potential and existing labor force entrants in skills required in commercial and other vocations. Grants are administered through the Office of Education. Projects approved on a cumulative basis through September 1976, including those aided by supplementary grants, are as follows:

(c) Community development and housing facilities.—Grants are made for the construction and equipping of development facilities such as water and sewer systems, sewage treatment facilities, recreation facilities, industrial sites, and housing, et cetera, to meet the basic needs of local areas and assist in providing economic development opportunities. Grants may be supplementary to other Federal grants, or when sufficient Federal funds are unavailable, be provided entirely by this program. The total Federal contribution may not exceed 80%. Workload data, by type of project, follows (amounts in millions of dollars):

(d) Natural resources and environment.—This program consists largely of grants for the sealing and filling of voids in abandoned coal mines, the extinguishment and control of underground and outcrop mine fires, and the reclamation and rehabilitation of strip and surface mine areas, including waste banks, on public land in those areas where the potential for economic growth exists in Appalachia. States or local sponsors must bear 25% of the project cost. Approved projects on a cumulative basis through September 1976 are:

(e) Other programs.—Limited programs of grants to stimulate energy related enterprise development and craft centers and assist in meeting rural transportation problems of the region have been initiated beginning in 1976, including obligations of $5,216 thousand and $1,120 thousand in 1976 and the transition quarter.

3. Research and local development district program.—Appalachian planning assistance is provided through grants to multicounty local development districts and for research and demonstration projects. Grants are made for up to 75% of the administrative expenses of local development districts. Other planning and technical assistance is provided for (a) programs which improve the base for economic growth, (b) programs which will attract industrial development within the region, (c) programs which will improve the health, education, and skills of the people, and (d) programs which conserve, maintain, and improve natural resources.

This program provides for several ways of assisting the region in obtaining a larger share of housing for low and moderate income families. The Commission is authorized to make technical assistance grants for the organization of State housing corporations and local nonprofit groups to encourage such housing construction.

This program also provides authority to make loans for up to 80% of the preliminary cost of planning housing projects and obtaining Federal or State housing assistance. Eligible loan costs include preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site options, and construction loan fees and legal costs.

Grants may be made for site development costs and off-site improvements such as sewer and waterline extensions where necessary for economic feasibility of the housing project. Grants for such purposes may not exceed 10% of the project cost.

In 1978, all housing program grants will be funded from the Appalachian regional development program appropriations and the housing fund closed out. Previously, funds had been transferred from the Appalachian regional development appropriation to this revolving fund for the following workload:

NOTES

Excludes $2,233 thousand in 1977 and $1,280 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Department of State."
Line 17.00 in 1977 includes $43,100 thousand related to section 506 contract authority authorized in 1974 and 1975.

Grants of defense articles and services are made to assist other countries to improve their defensive capabilities. Most of the military items furnished under this program are produced in the United States. Orders are placed through the U.S. military services, which are reimbursed from this account when the items are delivered. An appropriation of $230 million is proposed for 1978.

Since July 1, 1976, administrative expenses, including the military personnel costs of military assistance advisory groups and military missions previously funded by the military departments, have been paid out of the military assistance appropriation. Beginning with 1977, the increase in financing available from trust funds reflects the Arms Export Control Act requirement that all foreign military sales costs incurred primarily on behalf of a foreign country be recovered from those governments and the decision to administer such reimbursements through this account.

Military training for foreign military personnel prior to 1976 was funded by the military assistance appropriation. A separate training account was established in 1976 to underscore the importance of this form of contact between the defense establishments in foreign countries and U.S. military departments. Education and training of members of foreign armed forces is an effective way to create good will while at the same time improving the defensive abilities of their countries. Training is conducted in both the United States and abroad. An appropriation of $35.7 million is proposed for 1978.

The administrative expenses related to this program are funded from the military assistance appropriation.

This appropriation provides funds to finance credit sales of defense articles and services to foreign countries and international organizations. Two types of financing arrangements are authorized under the Arms Export Control Act: (1) direct U.S. Government loans administered by the Department of Defense (section 23 of the act), and (2) commercial credit and Federal Financing Bank loan agreements guaranteed by the U.S. Government (section 24). To finance guarantee loans, an appropriation equal to 10% of the principal amount is needed. Direct loans, which require appropriations equal to the face value of the loan, are offered only when there is a legal requirement that repayment be forgiven or special conditions make a guarantee inappropriate.

An appropriation of $709.5 million is requested for 1978 to finance a credit sales program of $2,235 million; $1,695 million will be financed by the Federal Financing Bank and $169.5 million of the appropriation will be set aside as a guarantee reserve for these loans. The balance of the appropriation, $540 million, will be used for direct loans by the Department of Defense. Administrative expenses related to this program are paid from the grant military assistance account and reimbursed from receipts from foreign governments collected in the foreign military sales trust fund.

This trust fund was established to facilitate government-to-government sales of defense articles and services as authorized by sections 21 and 22 of the Arms Export Control Act, including those sales financed with foreign military sales credits in accordance with section 23 of that act. Orders placed by foreign governments through the trust fund can be combined with procurement for our own Armed Forces. The resultant savings are shared by both the United States and foreign governments.

The program and financing schedule for this account has been revised. In 1977 and 1978, the amount of new contract authority will be recorded in the amount necessary to cover new obligations rather than new acceptances, to conform with correct budget practice for funds of this type. Unobligated balances available of contract authority will be withdrawn in 1977 in order for the presentation to conform to the new definition. A program section has been added to the schedule in order to display new acceptances and to clarify the nature of the foreign military sales program, and the relationship of trust fund sales and the reimbursable program shown in the Department of Defense performing accounts. The revised schedule also identifies separately the transactions made necessary by the Arms Export Control Act requirement that all costs incurred on behalf of foreign countries be recovered from those governments and implements the decision to administer such reimbursements through the grant military assistance account.

The net impact of foreign military sales on the budget is reflected below (in billions of dollars):

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Obligations of the fund (budget authority).....	12.7	1.1	6.5	6.9
Receipts from foreign governments (appropriation).....	-7.3	-2.5	-8.8	-8.8
Net budget authority.....	5.4	-1.4	-2.3	-1.9
Payments from the fund (outlays).....	6.7	1.8	8.3	8.8
Receipts from foreign governments (appropriation).....	-7.3	-2.5	-8.8	-8.8
Net outlays.....	-6	-7	-5

The budget authority of $12.7 billion for 1976 is the amount shown on the certified report of budget execution for 1976. However, subsequent to the filing of that report, it was discovered that $2.1 billion of that amount, which represents foreign military sales in 1975 of F-16 aircraft to the European consortium, had erroneously been included in the total of 1976 acceptances. Thus, actual acceptances for 1976 are overstated by $2.1 billion and the previous budget was understated by $2.1 billion for 1975.

The United States is a member of several international development lending institutions.

Supplemental appropriations.—A supplemental appropriation (see Part III) for $540 million is being sought in 1977: $55 million for the International Development Association to complete the first installment of the U.S. contribution to the fourth replenishment; $460 million for scheduled payments to the current replenishments of the capital and soft fund resources of the Inter-American Development Bank; and $25 million to complete the U.S. contribution to the initial resource mobilization of the Asian development fund.

1. Investment in International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.—U.S. membership in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD) was authorized by the Bretton Woods Agreements Act of July 31, 1945.

A proposal for a selective capital increase has been submitted to the Board of Governors of the IBRD for its approval. Under the proposal the authorized capital would be increased by $8.4 billion to $41 billion. Authorizing legislation will be sought to increase the U.S. subscription to $9.4 billion, or by $1,569 million, of which $156.9 million, or 10%, would be paid in. Appropriation of the paid-in portion will be sought in three equal annual installments of $52.3 million commencing in 1978.

The U.S. share of the selective capital increase would be 18.7%, which compares with the present 25.3% U.S. share of the IBRD capital stock.

2. Investment in International Development Association.—The International Development Association (IDA) is the member of the World Bank group which provides development financing on concessionary terms. Pursuant to authorization in the International Development Association Act (Public Law 86-565, as amended), enacted June 30, 1960, the United States joined the Association in August 1960.

Fourth replenishment.—In 1974, a U.S. contribution of $1,500 million, in four installments of $375 million, as part of a $4,500 million multidonor fourth replenishment of IDA resources was authorized. An appropriation of $375 million as the third installment of the fourth replenishment is being requested in 1978, with a fourth and final installment of the same amount to be requested in 1979.

Fifth replenishment.—Since the existing commitment authority of IDA will be exhausted by June 30, 1977, multilateral negotiations are underway for a fifth replenishment. When these negotiations are completed, legislation will be submitted to authorize an additional U.S. contribution to IDA. It is anticipated that a U.S. contribution of $800 million for the fifth replenishment will be appropriate for 1978. An appropriation for that amount is, therefore, being requested.

3. Investment in International Finance Corporation (IFC).—The International Finance Corporation was established in 1956 to further economic development by encouraging the growth of productive private enterprise through loans and equity investments. It is affiliated with the World Bank. Pursuant to authorization in the International Finance Corporation Act (Public Law 84-350, as amended), enacted August 11, 1955, the United States joined the Corporation in July 1956.

Legislation is being sought to authorize a U.S. subscription of $111.5 million to a replenishment of IFC capital of $540 million. An appropriation of $44.6 million for the first installment is being requested in 1978. Appropriations for $33.5 million will be sought in 1979 and 1980.

4. Investment in Inter-American Development Bank.—The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes economic development in Latin America and Caribbean countries through loans and technical assistance. Pursuant to the Inter-American Development Bank Act (Public Law 86-147, as amended), enacted August 7, 1959, the United States joined the Bank in December 1959.

Ordinary capital.—Congressional authorization for the U.S. share of $1,650 million in a replenishment of the IDB capital resources was received in 1976. Of the new resources, $120 million will be paid-in interregional capital, and $1,530 million will be callable capital. (Of the callable capital $600 million will be callable ordinary capital, for which appropriations are being sought, and $930 million callable interregional capital, for which appropriations are not being requested.) In 1977, $20 million paid-in interregional capital and $200 million callable ordinary capital was appropriated. Supplemental requests for 1977 are being submitted for $60 million paid-in interregional capital and $200 million callable ordinary capital. The final $40 million in paid-in interregional capital and the final $200 million of callable ordinary capital are requested for 1978.

Fund for Special Operations (FSO).—Authorizing legislation was approved in 1976 for a U.S. contribution of $600 million to the current replenishment of the FSO. A supplemental appropriation of $200 million is being requested for 1977, for the first of three annual installments. The second installment of $200 million is requested for 1978, with the third and final installment to be requested in 1979.

5. Investment in Asian Development Bank (ADB).—The Asian Development Bank was established in 1966 to foster economic growth in Asia by extending loans and technical assistance to the developing member countries of the region. Pursuant to authorization in the Asian Development Bank Act (Public Law 89-369, as amended) enacted March 16, 1966, the United States joined the Bank in August 1966.

Ordinary capital (OC).—Since the existing resources of the ordinary capital will be exhausted during 1977 a replenishment has become necessary. A $4.96 billion replenishment, increasing the Bank's resources to $8.7 billion, has been approved by the ADB Board of Governors. Authorizing legislation is being sought for a U.S. subscription of $814.3 million, increasing the U.S. subscription to $1,417 million while maintaining the U.S. share at 16.3%. Appropriations would be sought for four equal payments of $203.6 million (of which $20.4 million, would be paid-in) starting in 1978.

Asian Development Fund (ADF).—The ADF is the concessional lending window of the ADB.

To allow the ADF to continue its lending program, an $809 million replenishment has been agreed to by the Board of Governors of the ADB. Authorizing legislation is being sought for a U.S. contribution of $180 million to this replenishment. Appropriations will be sought in three equal annual installments of $60 million, commencing in 1978.

6. Investment in African Development Bank, African development fund.—The African development fund (AFDF), a special fund associated with the African Development Bank (AFDB), was established on June 30, 1973. The purpose of the AFDF is to complement the operations of the AFDB by providing concessional financing for high priority development projects in the poorest African countries.

U.S. membership in the AFDF was approved on May 31, 1976 (Public Law 94-302), with an authorized contribution of $25 million. The United States formally joined the AFDF in November 1976 with a contribution of $15 million. Appropriation of $10 million is requested in 1978, to complete the initial U.S. contribution to the resources of the AFDF.

As of June 30, 1976, the current dollar value of the U.S. quota in the IMF of Special Drawing Rights (SDR) 6,700 million was $7,679 million, reflecting a decrease of $605 million from the comparable 1975 figure arising from the increase in the value of the dollar in terms of the SDR, the IMF's unit of account. In June 1974, the IMF adopted the SDR "currency basket" method of valuation in which the value of the dollar and of other currencies in terms of the SDR varies from day-to-day as a result of fluctuations in market exchange rates within the group of 16 currencies that comprise the currency basket. Thus, during the past fiscal year, the United States incurred decreased obligations to the IMF under the maintenance of value provisions equal to the increased value of the dollars held by the IMF in terms of the SDR currency basket. As monetary transactions, increases and decreases in the current dollar value of the U.S. quota, as well as other transactions with the IMF, represent exchanges of assets and do not have a budgetary impact.

During 1976 agreement was reached on key elements of a reformed international monetary system. Following this agreement, proposed modifications in the IMF Articles of Agreement and a proposed increase in the U.S. quota in the IMF received congressional approval during 1976, and President Ford signed a bill authorizing U.S. acceptance of these changes on October 20, 1976 (Public Law 94-564). The increase in the U.S. quota will not take effect until the amended Articles of Agreement have come into effect and until a certain number of other countries have also consented to increases in their quotas. No appropriation was sought for the increase in the U.S. quota. This increase in the U.S. quota, as a monetary transaction, will not have a budgetary impact and consistent with the recommendations of the President's Commission on Budget Concepts, does not require an appropriation.

Public Law 87-490, approved June 19, 1962, authorized an appropriation, to remain available until expended, of $2 billion for U.S. participation in a 10-nation, $6 billion arrangement providing, under specified conditions, for loans by the participants to the IMF when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. The appropriation for these arrangements, known as the General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB), was obtained on October 24, 1962.

An increase in the amount of the Japanese credit arrangement under the GAB from 90 billion yen to 340 billion yen became effective on November 23, 1976. The current dollar value of total GAB arrangements, reflecting the increase in the Japanese arrangement, was $7,180 million on November 23, 1976.

Housing guaranties are extended to assist developing nations in the formulation and execution of sound housing and community development policies. The program was established originally in Latin America and extended by the Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 to include Asia and Africa. In 1973, a shelter sector policy reflecting legislative concern was adopted, which placed greater emphasis on meeting the housing needs of low-income groups. Beginning in 1978 it is proposed to combine the authorities of Section 221: Worldwide Housing Authority and Section 222: Latin America Housing Authority into a single authority.

The Overseas Private Investment Corporation encourages the participation of U.S. private capital and skills in the economic and social development of less developed friendly countries. Its primary programs are (1) political risk insurance against losses due to expropriation, inconvertibility, and war damage; and (2) investment financing through loans and loan guaranties. The Corporation is currently operating on a self-sustaining basis. The proposed authorization request for 1978 provides for an increase in borrowing authority for the Insurance reserve account from $100,000 thousand to $250,000 thousand. Pursuant to legislation enacted August 22, 1974, the Corporation is working to transfer the underwriting of political risk insurance to private parties with the Corporation ultimately acting solely as reinsurer of the private underwriters.

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 established the Inter-American Foundation. Financing has been provided through the transfer of $50 million from the Agency for International Development. Additional funds are available under an agreement allowing access to the Social progress trust fund administered by the Inter-American Development Bank, and the Foundation is authorized to obtain additional private funding.

The most important characteristics of the programs include responsiveness to Latin American and Caribbean initiatives and support for social change processes with a direct impact on the lives of people at the lowest economic levels.

Section 608 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 created a revolving fund to provide for more effective use of U.S. Government-owned excess property in foreign assistance programs by authorizing such property to be acquired and rehabilitated in advance of specifically known requirements for country programs.

Many types of excess property which AID needs, such as tractors, construction roadbuilding equipment, machinery, and machine tools, are acquired through this fund. All operating expenses of the program are covered by this fund from nonappropriated U.S. dollars.

The unique political and economic problems faced by Portugal over the past few years have created distortions and disequilibria in the Portuguese economy that require a prompt and comprehensive response from the Portuguese authorities and from key allies of Portugal in a position to provide adequate medium-term financing. With substantial financial help related to the development and implementation by Portugal of an economic stabilization program designed to restore that country's financial viability, the United States and other participants in the financing arrangement will be able to contribute in a meaningful way to the financial and political stability of this important European ally.

For this purpose, a multilateral package of medium-term balance-of-payments financing, phased over 3 years, is being negotiated with several other countries. U.S. participation in the program would take the form of medium-term loans to Portugal of approximately $300,000 thousand in 1977; $130,000 thousand in 1978, and $120,000 thousand in 1979. The interest rate on the loans would at least cover the cost of money to the U.S. Treasury.

The U.S. Grain Standards Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-582), which was approved on October 21, 1976, and became effective on November 20, 1976, established the "Federal Grain Inspection Service" to administer a revised and expanded national grain inspection system. The law provided for Washington, D.C.-based administrative costs associated with this national system to be funded from appropriations.

This appropriation includes: Grain standardization activities; international monitoring of the quality of U.S. grain exports; regulatory activities to include delegation, designation, licensing, review of grain firms' records, and investigations of conflict of interests; and program management and administration of the field-based national grain inspection and weighing system. The agency also has responsibility for standardization of grain-related products which are covered by the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, as amended. This standardization activity is also financed from appropriations.

The amounts shown for the fiscal year 1977 estimate provide for the establishment of the Washington organization subsequent to November 20, 1976. The amounts in the fiscal year 1978 estimate represent full-year costs.

Out of a total $30,76 thousand for 1977, $2,652 thousand was transferred to this account and $424 thousand was retained by AMS for the period prior to November 20, 1976.

The U.S. Grain Standards Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-582), which was approved on October 21, 1976, and became effective on November 20, 1976, established the Federal Grain Inspection Service to provide a revised and expanded national grain inspection and weighing system. The law provided for all field-based costs associated with this national system to be fee supported except to the extent that financing not available from fees may be derived from appropriations.

This revolving fund includes: Official grain inspection and weighing at export ports; original inspection and weighing of U.S. grain exported through Canada; Federal appeals of original grain inspections; Federal supervision of State export and State and private inland grain inspection and weighing; and registration of grain firms operating in the grain trade. The agency also has responsibility for grading services for grain-related products which are covered by the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, as amended. All costs for this grading service are financed from fees.

The amounts shown for the fiscal year 1977 estimate provide for the initial phases of implementation of the revised national grain inspection system subsequent to November 20, 1976. The amounts in the fiscal year 1978 estimate represent full-year costs.

The Service conducts research to provide the means for a safer, more economical, and more abundant supply of agricultural products for the Nation. The Service uses coordinated, interdisciplinary approaches to perform basic and applied research in the fields of livestock; plants; soil-air-water resources; processing, storage, and distribution; nutrition and food safety; and consumer services research. The programs financed from this appropriation are described below:

1. Research on animal production.—Research is conducted to improve livestock productivity (including poultry) through improved breeding, feeding, and management practices and to develop methods for controlling diseases, parasites, and insect pests affecting them. Research is also conducted on improved rural housing. The increase requested for 1978 would provide for basic research on increased protection of animals from diseases and pests.

2. Research on plant production.—Research is conducted to improve plant productivity through improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; develop new crop resources; and improve crop production practices, including methods to control plant diseases, nematodes, insects, and weeds. The increase requested for 1978 would provide for basic research on photosynthetic efficiency, nitrogen fixation, improved forages, and grazing lands; improved technologies on pest control and pesticide impact assessment; developing new germ-plasm resources and preserving existing germ plasm for selected crops.

3. Research on the use and improvement of soil, air, and water.—Research is conducted to improve the management of natural resources, including investigations to improve soil and water management, irrigation and conservation practices; to protect natural resources from harmful effects of soil, water, and air pollutants and to minimize certain agricultural pollution problems, and to determine the relation of soil types and water to plant, animal, and human nutrition. The research includes studies on hydrologic problems of agricultural watersheds.

Research is also conducted on the application of remote sensing techniques in meeting agricultural problems and on effects of the reduction of ozone. The increase requested for 1978 would provide for improved conservation and efficient use of soil and water resources.

4. Processing, storage, distribution, nutrition and food safety, and consumer services research.—Research is conducted to develop new and improved foods, feeds, fabrics, and industrial products and processes for agricultural commodities for domestic and foreign markets, including ways to minimize processing wastes. Research is conducted on the processing, transportation, storage, wholesaling, and retailing of products; on human nutritional requirements; and the composition and nutritive value of food as needed by consumers and by Federal, State, and local agencies administering food and nutrition programs. Research is conducted on problems of human health and safety, including means to insure the safety of food and feed supplies; control insect pests of man and his belongings; reduce the hazards to human life resulting from pesticide residues, tobacco, and other causes; and on consumer services.

5. Competitive grant research fund.—These funds will support competitive research grants to complement and enrich basic research efforts in USDA agencies, universities, State agricultural experiment stations, and private research organizations. The objective of this program is to emphasize basic research critical to food production by obtaining the participation of outstanding researchers in the entire U.S. scientific community. The increase requested in 1978 would be for grants to study serious problems relating to crop productivity. It is currently planned that $150 million will be authorized over 5 years, contingent upon program success in 1978.

6. Construction of facilities.—The 1978 estimates provide for a decrease of $450 thousand to eliminate the non-recurring amount provided for the purchase of land at the U.S. Sugarcane Laboratory, Houma, La., in 1977.

7. Contingencies.—Beginning in 1962, $1 million is available to meet urgent needs that develop unexpectedly during the year when such needs cannot be met by redirection of resources from other projects.

8. Support services to other USDA agencies.—Effective July 1, 1974, the Agricultural Research Service is responsible for providing management support services to the National Agricultural Library and Cooperative State Research Service. These services include budgetary, personnel, and administrative functions which were previously provided by the Office of Management Services.

Foreign currencies which the Treasury Department determines to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States are used for expenses of carrying out programs of the Department of Agriculture under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Research which is important to American agriculture and supplements our domestic programs is carried on through agreements negotiated with institutions and organizations in foreign countries. For example, research is conducted on exotic insect pests and diseases of plants and animals which cannot be done in the United States. Specialized projects provide for the translation and dissemination of foreign language scientific publications. Total estimated cost in U.S. dollars (charged to regular appropriations) for program direction and supervision of projects in 1978 is $762 thousand.

1 Includes capital outlay as follows: 1976, $1,039 thousand; TQ, $79 thousand; 1977, $11,435 thousand; 1978, $11,574 thousand.

Note.—Excludes $83 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to Statistical Reporting Service. Comparable amounts for 1976, $83 thousand; TQ, $21 thousand; and 1977, $83 thousand; are included above.

The major objectives of the Service are (1) to inspect meat and poultry products intended for human consumption to make sure they are wholesome and labeled according to law, and (2) to protect the animal and plant resources of the Nation from destructive pests and diseases.

1. Meat and poultry inspection.—Federal inspection is required for all meat, poultry, and processed products moving in interstate and foreign commerce. All meat and poultry moving in intrastate commerce must be federally inspected or inspected by States with inspection systems meeting Federal standards. Activities include inspection of animals, carcasses, meat and poultry products at various stages of handling and processing, and regulation of labeling. The Federal program also provides financial and technical assistance to States for maintaining the quality of their inspection programs. Extensive laboratory analyses are conducted for detection of chemical residues, antibiotics, and other additives.

The volume of inspections and examinations is indicated by examples given in the following table:

	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

2. Plant disease and pest control.—Programs are designed to keep out of this country, by inspection at ports of entry, those insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and other pests which would be harmful to agriculture. Cooperative programs are conducted to eradicate or prevent the spread to uninfested areas of certain plant pests which are established in this country. The 1978 estimates propose increases for agricultural quarantine inspection, citrus blackfly and the Mediterranean fruit fly programs and decreases in barberry eradication, miscellaneous plant diseases, and imported fire ant. Additionally, a pesticide impact assessment program planned to be initiated in fiscal year 1977 is proposed for continuation at the same level in fiscal year 1978.

The level of activities of plant pest control is shown by selected examples that follow:

3. Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to keep communicable diseases of foreign origin from entering this country and to prevent the spread of disease through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics. In cooperation with States, other programs are directed at the control and eradication of livestock diseases present in this country. The animal welfare program is concerned with insuring the humane treatment and protection of warm-blooded animals. The Animal Welfare Act was amended in 1976 to include transportation standards, minimum age, and health certification requirements to strengthen the 1970 Animal Welfare Act. The amendment also imposes restrictions on animal fighting ventures. The 1978 estimates propose increases for brucellosis eradication, cattle fever ticks, miscellaneous animal diseases, screwworm eradication, import-export inspection, veterinary biologics, and animal welfare. Also included is a net increase in funds needed to repay Commodity Credit Corporation for advances made to combat emergency disease outbreaks.

The level of activities for the major control programs on animal diseases and pests is as follows:

5. Contingencies.—Of the total annual amounts provided under this appropriation, $2.5 million is apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects, plant diseases, and animal diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions.

6. Reimbursement program.—Reimbursements include amounts for overtime work performed in meat and poultry processing plants, and overtime and travel performed in connection with import-export inspection services and cooperative programs with other Federal agencies.

Public Law 85-592, approved September 12, 1964, authorized the sale of the Animal Quarantine Station at Clifton, N.J., to the city of Clifton, and the application of the proceeds of the sale to the planning and construction costs of a new station in the New York-New Jersey port and airport area. A sales contract between the Department and the city of Clifton was executed December 16, 1966, at the appraised value of $527 thousand. At that time, $100 thousand was paid to the Department and upon award of an architect-engineering contract for development of design and construction plans for a new quarantine station at Stewart Airport, Newburgh, N.Y., the Department received an additional $100 thousand during fiscal year 1976. The balance will be paid upon publication of bids for construction at Stewart Airport. A total of $6 thousand has been spent by the Department for surveys and related costs associated with obtaining the new site. In fiscal year 1970, $1.5 million was appropriated for construction of the new facility and in 1977, the Department received an additional $3.8 million.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1976, $22 thousand; TQ, $5 thousand; 1977, $25 thousand; 1978, $25 thousand.

1. Payments to agricultural experiment stations under the Hatch Act and for penalty mail.—Funds under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community. The increases requested for fiscal year 1978 will provide for increased research in beef cattle, feed grains, soybeans, and forage, pasture, and range.

Some funds for penalty mailings for State agricultural experiment station directors are provided under this appropriation.

2. Cooperative forestry research.—These funds are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school. The act requires that the Federal funds paid to each institution be matched by funds from non-Federal sources for forestry research.

3. Contracts and grants for scientific research.—These funds are for the support of grants on specific research problems at nonprofit institutions of higher education or nonprofit organizations whose primary purpose is the conduct of such research. Every competitive research proposal selected for funding must be evaluated and classified as outstanding and appropriate to the needs of the designated problem area. A portion of the specific grant funds is utilized to support research on special problems of joint concern to the USDA and to the States.

A decrease is proposed for research in beef and pork production, soil erosion, environmental plant, dried beans, and forage, pasture and range. The balance of the specific grant funds is earmarked for the 1890 land-grant institutions and Tuskegee Institute. The increase requested for fiscal year 1978 will provide for the increased cost of conducting research at the 1890 land-grant institutions and Tuskegee Institute.

5. Funds for rural development research.—Funds appropriated under title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972 are allocated to land-grant colleges and universities of the 50 States and Puerto Rico, to conduct pilot research programs in support of the development of rural areas.

6. Federal administration.—A coordinating and review staff is maintained to examine research projects and assist State institutions and Federal agencies. The reimbursable program consists of the Current Research Information System which provides information on the research projects, status of the research and fund resources for research programs of the State agricultural experiment stations and other eligible institutions. Also included is the Agency for International Development.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, community development, 4-H youth programs, and related subjects. This educational work takes research results, technological advancements, and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a program for action. Cooperative Extension Service interprets, disseminates, and encourages practical use of knowledge. It transmits information from researchers to users.

1. Payments to States.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act for payments to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands are distributed primarily on the basis of population and to a degree on basis of special problems and needs. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State, area, and county extension workers who work with individuals, families, community organizations, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods for production, marketing, nutrition, family living, and community development. Work with youth is accomplished largely through the 4-H program. Extension agents are paid from Federal, State, and county sources. The employer's contribution to the retirement fund as required by Public Law 854 is provided by this Federal appropriation. Funds also provide for Federal payment to the Bureau of Employees' Compensation Fund. Funds for the cost of penalty mailings for State extension directors and cooperative extension agents are also provided.

A net increase of $989 thousand in payments to States is proposed for fiscal year 1978. This consists of increases of $433 thousand for 1890 institutions and Tuskegee Institute, $1.5 million for expansion of pest management work in several States, the elimination of $1 million specifically earmarked to the States for community resource development programs and $56 thousand for associated increases in retirement costs. No changes are proposed in Federal payments to States under the Smith-Lever formula and other non-formula funds, title V funds and other extension funds.

2. Federal administration and coordination.—The Extension Service provides leadership and assistance to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia in developing extension programs, improving teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, and administrative services.

A net increase of $76 thousand is proposed to support the administration and coordination functions of the Extension Service in fiscal year 1978.

The National Agricultural Library, in cooperation with the Library of Congress and the National Library of Medicine, provides coverage and servicing of worldwide publications in the agricultural, chemical, and biological sciences. It serves all of the Department programs in the Washington metropolitan area, as well as the field installations throughout the country. It has the added responsibility of service to the land-grant universities, and the world agricultural science community.

The Library's primary purpose is to acquire, preserve, and disseminate an exhaustive collection of reliable information in all phases of the agricultural and allied sciences. NAL also maintains, in cooperation with the Office of General Counsel, a central law library and 17 field legal libraries.

Information contained in the agricultural literature is disseminated through a variety of methods. These include on-line computer networks, printed bibliographies, personal reference services, loans and photocopies to agricultural colleges, research institutions, Government agencies, agricultural associations, industry, individual scientists, farmers, and the general public in every part of the world.

USDA, Federal, public, private and international demands for the services of NAL continue to grow. The proposed budget increases will be used primarily for the renewal of journal subscriptions twice in 1 fiscal year in order to place the renewal order in the month which will be most effective in future years and for the agency's occupied GSA-controlled space.

accepted by GSA as "completed" on October 7, 1971. The balance brought forward into 1977 will be used to finance the sealing of windows and the brick on the exterior of the building. This was not done at the time the building was constructed. The funds will be obligated during the first half of 1977 and fully expended prior to the completion of the year.

Table with columns: Description, 1976, TQ, 1977. Rows include Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

The mission of the Statistical Reporting Service is to administer the Department's program of collecting and publishing national and State agricultural statistics.

Data developed by the Service on food and agriculture are essential to farmers, processors, and handlers in making production and marketing decisions and to legislators and administrators in developing and administering agricultural programs. Data provided by the Service are basic to economic research and analysis, consumer programs, and other agricultural research.

1. Crop and livestock estimates.—The Service provides the official national estimates of acreage, yield, and production of crops, stocks and value of farm commodities; and numbers of inventory values of livestock items. Data on approximately 150 crops and livestock products are covered in some 500 reports issued each year. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices.

The work of the Service is conducted through 44 State offices serving the 50 States; most of these offices are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide much additional State and county data; Federal funds are not available for collection and publication of these data.

A comparison of activities in 1975 and 1976, including work performed under cooperative arrangements, follows:

Table with columns: Description, 1975 actual, 1976 actual. Rows include Separate mailings of inquiry forms average per field office, Total questionnaires handled: Number distributed, Number of returns tabulated, Number of official reports issued, all offices, Copies of reports distributed, Copies of publications distributed, Special requests for information answered by field offices.

The adjustments requested in fiscal year 1978 include (1) an increase of $512 thousand for improvement of price statistics; (2) an increase of $459 thousand for maintaining sample size on four major surveys; (3) an increase of $498 thousand for GSA space costs; and (4) an increase of $88 thousand for Departmental working capital fund services.

2. Statistical research and service.—Departmental clearance and review.—This work includes the review, coordination, and monitoring of data-gathering surveys conducted by the Department. This involves (1) the review of all proposed statistical forms and survey plans requiring Office of Management and Budget clearance in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942, and (2) coordination of all interdepartment and intradepartment programs for the improvement of agricultural statistics and related data.

Improvement of crop and livestock estimates.—This research is devoted primarily to improving statistical methods and techniques for producing agricultural statistics with a high degree of accuracy at a minimum cost. This work is in support of the Service's long-range program for improving crop and livestock estimates, and is directed toward developing better sampling, yield forecasting, and survey techniques for the agency. Current research activities include compiling and maintaining lists of farms; developing new sampling techniques combining lists of farms with area sampling frames; constructing mathematical models for forecasting crop yields from objective counts and measurements of plant characteristics; and reducing reporting and other nonsampling errors by improving questionnaire design, and by devising better field, editing, and processing procedures. These research studies are tested by pilot surveys under actual operating conditions, and then, if proven, placed into operation.

The Department's responsibilities in the agricultural phases of the U.S. foreign development assistance programs are administered by the Economic Research Service. This includes direction of the Department's activities under agreement with the Agency for International Development (AID), Peace Corps, and other development assistance organizations, particularly agricultural technical assistance and training programs. The Service participates with AID in the planning of agricultural development policy, in formulating technical assistance projects, and in the review and evaluation of agricultural assistance efforts. In performing these functions, the Service works closely with other U.S. and international organizations to help them utilize the scientific and institutional competence of American agriculture in carrying out development assistance programs.

The Department's foreign technical assistance has heretofore been mainly funded by AID. During the past few years, however, the Department has entered into direct agreements with foreign governments and increasingly with various international organizations.

The program is aimed at assuring fair play in the marketing of livestock, meat, and poultry. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition for livestock, meat, and poultry, so as to bring to farmers and ranchers the true market value of their livestock and poultry. Consumers and members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices in the marketing of meat and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which could unduly increase meat and poultry prices. Under recent amendments to the Packer and Stockyards Act, the agency will be required to extend operations, particularly in the area of packer bonding and financial protection.

Farmer Cooperative Service conducts studies relating to cooperatives engaged in the marketing of farm products, purchasing of production supplies, and supplying related business services. Its total effort is devoted to preserving the family farm through the cooperative effort. The agency program is directed toward providing technical assistance to cooperatives and research to improve cooperative performance. It has several major thrusts to help make family farmers' cooperative businesses competitive and efficient.

Technical assistance is provided in response to problems that may come to FCS from farmers directly or through the management of boards of directors of cooperatives composed of hundreds and in some instances thousands of farmers. Help is given on the formation of new cooperatives, the merits of merging cooperative organizations, changes in business organizations and future growth or development, and the development of more viable relationships between cooperatives and other businesses and institutions. The full range of organization and management problems confronting cooperatives is covered by the FCS technical assistance program.

Applied research is conducted to give farmers relevant and expert assistance pertaining to their cooperatives. Studies concentrate on financial, organizational, legal, social, and economic aspects of cooperative activity.

Statistical data are collected to detect changes in structure, operations, and growth trends. Data help identify and support applied research and technical assistance activities.

The agency serves as a central storehouse of data about farmer cooperatives in the United States. This information is communicated to the farmer or member through a variety of publications.

FCS efforts center on providing immediate response and leadership for more effective and efficient cooperative operations in the changing economic environment in which the family farmer operates.

The adjustments requested in fiscal year 1978 are: (1) An increase of $100 thousand for public policies affecting cooperatives; (2) an increase of $50 thousand for program support costs; (3) an increase of $11 thousand for departmental working capital fund services; (4) an increase of $32 thousand for increased costs for GSA space; and (5) an increase of $3 thousand for pay costs.

The primary mission of the Foreign Agricultural Service is to help American farmers and traders take maximum advantage of the increasing opportunity to sell U.S. agricultural commodities abroad and to help increase U.S. farm income.

Four major functional objectives are pursued by the Foreign Agricultural Service to carry out its missions: (1) To achieve maximum foreign market access for American agriculture, (2) to provide information to assist U.S. agriculture's adjustment to short-term changes in world supply and demand, (3) to expand long-term foreign commercial markets for U.S. agricultural products, and (4) to safeguard American farmers and farm programs against unfair or injurious import competition.

Toward these diverse ends, the Service, through the collection, analysis, and dissemination of worldwide agricultural economic intelligence: (1) Provides American farmers and traders with information on world agricultural production and trade that they can use to adjust to short-term changes in world demand for U.S. agricultural products, (2) permits American farmers to produce at maximum efficiency for both domestic and foreign markets, and (3) provides U.S. Government policy decisionmakers with adequate information to make decisions safeguarding the U.S. agricultural community's interests.

The Service also helps to develop long-term foreign commercial markets for U.S. farm products by: (1) Providing information and expertise on foreign markets, (2) achieving and retaining maximum access to foreign markets, (3) stimulating interest in exporting farm-grown products, (4) improving and coordinating promotional techniques, (5) sharing the financial risks inherent in exploring new markets, (6) providing essential trade services that cannot be undertaken by any single trade or produce group, and (7) lending "official" Government representation which is so often essential to conduct business abroad.

The pursuit of the FAS functional objectives is carried out within the framework of four individual program areas:

1. International trade.—The Service directs and coordinates Department responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations under the authority of the Trade Expansion Act. It identifies and strives to reduce foreign trade barriers to U.S. agricultural exports. Developments in foreign trade policies are examined and their effect on agricultural trade are reported with recommendations regarding action alternatives.

The Service recommends Department positions and participates in negotiations on trade agreements and international commodity agreements. It reviews and reports trade regulations of countries (primarily those signatory to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade) as to how such regulations affect the movement of U.S. agricultural products in world trade.

The Service administers a program of import controls (in accordance with section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act) on foreign farm products which would render ineffective or materially interfere with Department commodity programs. It is also responsible for administering import controls established under the 1964 Meat Import Act and section 204 of the Trade Expansion Act.

2. Foreign market development.—The Service administers programs concerned with the development of long-term foreign markets for agricultural products of the United States. The Service also coordinates interagency participation and action essential to program administration. These functions involve:

Providing foreign tradesmen with services necessary to build and maintain markets for U.S. agricultural products.

Developing a system of worldwide promotional programs on a commodity-by-commodity basis, in cooperation with national organizations of producers, processors, and exporters, and providing overall guidance to these organizations in carrying out cooperative programs.

Developing, operating, and evaluating a worldwide system of multicommodity promotional programs utilizing product exhibits, trade service and market information programs, and trade referral services to expand overseas markets.

Reviewing foreign marketing plans; providing technical assistance in their design; developing procedures and monitoring funds essential to their implementation; and evaluating program operation.

Cooperating with State and local organizations in programs designed to provide technical assistance to U.S. agricultural export firms and to stimulate participation of new U.S. cooperator groups in promotional projects.

Conducting sustained and systematic review of foreign markets by individual countries to ascertain new market opportunities for U.S. agricultural products and to develop long-range promotional plans for such markets.

3. Foreign commodity analysis.—Information essential to foreign marketing of specific U.S. agricultural commodities and to domestic planning is obtained, analyzed, and made available to U.S. farm and trade groups, as well as Government. Selected agricultural commodities and/or foreign geographical areas of key importance are analyzed from a competitive standpoint with the ultimate objective of developing markets for U.S. agricultural products. The program area maintains a supporting role by providing statistical data and analyzed information to other program areas within the Service. Assistance is given to American exporters and foreign importers to bring them together and foster conditions favorable to trade.

As the lead agency for the Large Area Crop Inventory Experiment (LACIE), the Service works closely with ASCS, ERS, and SRS to execute those aspects of the program which devolve upon the Department of Agriculture. The program is conducted under authority of the acts of August 28, 1954 (7 U.S.C. 1761), and March 4, 1909, as amended by the act of March 4, 1917. USDA works with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) and the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) in this coordinated technical effort designed to establish the utility and cost effectiveness of using earth resources satellites, meteorological and climatological data to determine crop classification, field yields, acreages, and production. The Service's principal duties are administrative and analytical in a program which is oriented toward developing a data handling, processing, and analysis file on the above information categories.

4. Agricultural attachés.—The Service maintains agricultural attachés at 67 foreign posts to assist in the development of markets abroad for U.S. agricultural commodities. They work closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups and maintain significantly placed contacts with foreign governments and traders to promote greater market access for U.S. agricultural products. Attachés carry out a comprehensive schedule of reporting foreign agricultural production, supply, demand, marketing, and trade policy developments to keep U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

Program increases for 1978.—Increases in budget authority totaling $3,090 thousand are recommended for 1978. Of this, $1,123 thousand represents a shift from a Commodity Credit Corporation allocation account to Foreign Agricultural Service direct appropriation. This change is recommended because the information acquired with these funds is used by other Government agencies, farmers, and tradesmen as well as by the CCC. This increase will be exactly offset by a decrease in the FAS allocation from the CCC administrative expense limitation.

An increase of $1,303 thousand is requested to offset the impact of overseas inflation on the agricultural attaché service and to expand that service in those areas abroad deemed of greatest marginal significance to American agriculture, viz, German Democratic Republic; Kiev, U.S.S.R.; Singapore; New Zealand; Indonesia; and Arabian Peninsula. An additional $450 thousand is requested for the Large Area Crop Inventory Experiment. Increases in GSA space costs account for the bulk of the remaining increases requested for FAS.

Market development projects.—Foreign currencies generated by the sale of agricultural commodities under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, as well as foreign currencies acquired by the United States from other sources, are used by the Foreign Agricultural Service to develop new foreign markets and expand existing markets for U.S. agricultural commodities, including cotton, dairy products and poultry, fruits and vegetables, grain and feed, livestock and livestock products, oilseeds and products, and tobacco.

The type of market development projects being carried out include sales promotion campaigns, trade fairs and exhibits, nutrition demonstrations, and market analyses. In fiscal year 1978 it is planned that the unobligated balance brought forward in this appropriation will be used to purchase those currencies necessary to carry out the program in excess currency countries. Dollar funds for use in other countries are included in the appropriation, Foreign Agricultural Service.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Facilities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation may by law be used in carrying out programs for exporting agricultural commodities. The laws also authorize appropriations to be made to cover costs of such programs. When funds become available, advances are made to the Corporation for estimated costs. If the amounts appropriated are greater than actual needs, the excess is used to reduce future appropriation requests. If appropriations are less than actual needs, other Corporation funds may be used temporarily to finance the balance of authorized costs.

Included in this category are the following activities carried out under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as amended: Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I); sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I); and commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).

1. Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended (7 U.S.C. 1701-1711).

The Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I. Sales are made to friendly countries—as defined in section 103(d) of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (secs. 103 (c) and (n)).

No agreements may be entered into after December 31,

1977 (sec. 409), and agreements may not be made under title I in any calendar year which call for an appropriation to reimburse the Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations. No sales of agricultural commodities shall be made to North Vietnam unless authorized by act of Congress enacted after July 1, 1973.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies convertible to dollars. These initial payments are applied against costs to reduce appropriation requests. Also, payment upon delivery in dollars or foreign currencies, to the extent that such currency is needed for payment of U.S. obligations and certain other purposes, may be required.

In accordance with the act, a progressive shift from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales was completed by December 31, 1971. As authorized by the act, where the transition from foreign currency sales to dollar credit sales was not possible, convertible foreign currency credit sales are being made on terms which permit conversion to dollars at the exchange rate applicable to the sales agreement.

Factors determining availability of commodities for disposition under Public Law 480 are productive capacity, domestic requirements, farm and consumer price levels, anticipated commercial exports, and adequate carryover. No commodity is available for disposition under the act if the disposition thereof would reduce the domestic supply below that needed to meet domestic requirements, adequate carryover, and anticipated exports for dollars.

In the case of sales agreements entered into under title I of the act, the Corporation will finance ocean freight charges only to the extent of the differential between U.S.-flag rates and foreign-flag rates when U.S.-flag vessels are required to be used and will not finance any portion of the ocean freight in any other case.

(a) Sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I).—Agreements for sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies were made until December 31, 1971, to countries unable to expand commercial purchases because of a lack of dollar exchange. Foreign currencies received in payment are deposited to the account of the U.S. Treasury and can be used only as stated in section 104. The dollar value of such deposits through June 30, 1976, amounted to $12.9 billion.

Uses fall into two groups—those of benefit to the foreign country, mainly loans and grants to promote economic development, and those of benefit to the United States. The latter includes expenses of the U.S. Government abroad, agricultural market development, educational exchange, construction of military family housing, and sales of foreign currency to U.S. citizens and tourists. Section 204 of the International Development and Food Assistance Act of 1975, Public Law 94-161, repealed the so-called "common defense grant" of title I.

Certain U.S. uses of foreign currencies, including foreign currency loan repayments, and certain foreign currency grants, are subject to the appropriation process. The use of foreign currency in this manner reduces dollar outflow and the deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied as a reduction in appropriation requests.

Section 509 of Public Law 86-500, approved June 8, 1960 (7 U.S.C. 1704b note) provides that at least 75% of the total cost of foreign military housing projects (unless otherwise specified) shall be paid from foreign currencies acquired under title I. Pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2681(b), as amended, the estimate reflects transfer to the Corporation of $6 million each year to liquidate amounts due.

Program costs incurred under foreign currency sales agreements after December 31, 1971, represented financing of shipments made under agreements signed on or prior to that date.

(b) Sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms (title I).—

Agreements for the sale of U.S. agricultural commodities on dollar or convertible foreign currency credit terms are made with friendly countries and on dollar credit terms with United States and foreign private trade. They may provide for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity. However, as a matter of practice, supply periods of agreements rarely extend beyond 2 years.

Countries with an annual per capita gross national product of $300 or less, using data developed by the World Bank, and which are affected by inability to produce or commercially purchase sufficient food for their immediate requirements, are to receive not less than 75% of the food aid commodities allocated and agreed to be delivered in each fiscal year, unless the President certifies that such food assistance is required for humanitarian purposes and neither House of Congress disapproves such use within 30 days after such certification.

In negotiating sales agreements, emphasis shall be placed on using the proceeds from the sale of commodities for purposes which directly benefit the poorest people of participating countries and which improve their capacity to participate in the development of the countries.

Subject to prior agreement, proceeds from the sale of commodities in a qualifying country may be used for mutually agreed-upon economic development purposes, with the use of such proceeds being deemed payment, thereby reducing the country's obligation to pay for commodities purchased. For any fiscal year, the total value of such payments may not exceed 15% of the total value of all title I agreements entered into for such fiscal year, although an individual agreement for any country need not be limited to 15%.

Payments are in dollars with interest at rates not less than the minimum required by section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under that section. Payments are made in reasonable annual amounts over periods of not to exceed 20 years from the date of last delivery in each calendar year under the agreement, except that the first annual payment may be deferred for a period of not more than 2 years after such date of last delivery. Interest is computed from the date of such last delivery. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reduce the appropriation request.

Private trade agreements must provide for projects to establish improved storage or marketing facilities or otherwise encourage private economic enterprise in friendly countries.

Credit terms for convertible foreign currency credit sales are to be no less favorable to the United States than those for development loans made under section 201 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Currently, section 201 loans are made on the basis of payment in up to 40 years with a grace period of up to 10 years. Dollar payments, when received, will also be applied to reduce appropriation requests.

Total agreements made since inception to June 30, 1976, amount to $6,296.1 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipment on U.S. ships. Major commodities are wheat, cotton, oils, rice, and feed grains. Payments received during the period amount to $1,172.5 million, of which $782.6 million was applied to principal and $389.9 million to interest.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

2. Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).—Under title II, available agricultural commodities are furnished to meet famine or other urgent or emergency relief need. Also, commodities are furnished to promote economic and community development in friendly developing countries, to combat malnutrition, and for needy people, and nonprofit school lunch and preschool feeding programs. They are furnished through friendly governments, private voluntary agencies, and intergovernmental organizations such as the World Food Program. The Food for Peace Act, in amending title II, expressed the sense of Congress that other advanced nations should be encouraged to make increased contributions for the purpose of combating world hunger and malnutrition, and that to achieve this objective, the United States should work to expand the United Nations World Food Program.

The Agency for International Development is responsible for administering title II programs. However, the Corporation makes available the commodities or products requested for disposition under title II. Such commodities or products are made available from the Corporation's stocks of commodities or products acquired under its support program or are purchased from private stocks.

A minimum of 1.3 million tons of agricultural commodities is to be distributed in each fiscal year under this program, of which 1 million tons shall be through voluntary agencies and the World Food Program, unless the President determines and so reports to Congress that such quantity cannot be used effectively for intended purposes or that such a quantity is not available.

The Corporation is authorized to pay, with respect to commodities made available, the costs of acquisitions, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports and ocean freight charges and general average contributions arising from ocean transport.

Approximately $7½ million each year may be used to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes for the need for such aid. Such costs may not include personnel and administrative costs of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies and recipient agencies.

Through December 31, 1976, appropriations totaling $9,100 million were authorized. No programs of assistance may be entered into after December 31, 1977, and none shall be undertaken under this title during any calendar year which call for an appropriation of more than $600 million to reimburse the Corporation. This limitation applies to costs incurred, including its investment, plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year. Any incidental sales proceeds and proceeds from loss, damage, and other claims are applied against Commodity Credit Corporation costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests. No donations of agricultural commodities shall be made to North Vietnam unless authorized by act of Congress enacted after July 1, 1973.

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of national, commodity, State and county offices.

The commodity office in Prairie Village plays an important role in administering support programs and the field operations stemming from producer loan and purchase agreements, inventory management, and merchandising activities.

The State committees are in general charge of all programs carried out in their respective States. Within the framework of national policy, they determine the policies to be followed and direct the adaptation of national programs to the State.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation elected county committees are responsible for the local administration of programs. They make local program decisions and policies and appoint a county executive director who directs the office staff in handling the day-to-day detailed administrative work.

The programs and activities carried out by this Service include: Agricultural conservation program; emergency conservation measures; Water Bank Act program; Appalachian region conservation program; conservation reserve program; feed grain, wheat, and cotton programs; cropland conversion program; cropland adjustment program; dairy and beekeeper indemnity programs; Wool Act program; and commodity support and related programs including acreage allotment and marketing quota programs.

The activities carried out by the Service fall within three major categories:

1. Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and commodity support programs, and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the support program, have a tremendous impact on the national and (to a lesser extent) the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate more effective programs.

2. Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including: (a) developing program regulations and procedures; (b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs; (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms; (d) establishing individual farm allotments, bases and yields; (e) notifying producers of allotments, productivity indexes, and payment rates; (f) determining farm marketing allocations; (g) handling appeals; (h) conducting referendums and certifying results; (i) checking compliance with acreage allotments; (j) developing pooling agreements under which several farmers work jointly to solve a common conservation problem which cannot be solved by individual action; (k) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty; (l) processing producer requests for conservation cost-sharing; (m) processing commodity loan documents and issuing sight drafts; and (n) making appraisals for disaster payments.

3. Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes: (a) overall management of CCC-owned commodities; (b) selling commodities; (c) donating commodities; and (d) accounting for loans and commodities. The total value of all commodities owned by CCC on June 30, 1976, was about $658.6 million.

The Sugar Act of 1948, as amended, which expired December 31, 1974, provided for making payments for the 1974 and previous crops. Under this program, payments were made to supplement the income of domestic producers of cane and beets. Payments required compliance with specified conditions of employment, production, and price. Payments were also made for abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies on harvested acreage due to natural calamities. Funds to cover program payments for the 1974 crop year were included in the appropriation for the fiscal year 1975. The majority of payments for this crop were made in fiscal year 1975. Some payments, for which funds were available, were made in fiscal year 1976 and the transition quarter. Final payments will be completed in fiscal year 1977.

Following are production figures, thousands of short tons, raw value, for the 1974 crop, on which payments were based:

¹ Of the $190,000 thousand, $120 thousand was transferred from the 1976 ACP program to the 1975 ACP program to cover anticipated over-commitments.

The primary objectives of the program are: (1) To encourage farmers and ranchers to carry out conservation measures that emphasize enduring conservation benefits, (2) to achieve desirable land-use adjustments, and (3) to provide community benefits and the general improvement of the total environment through a combination of economically sound public and private investments.

The authorizing legislation allows cost-sharing with farmers and ranchers on both an annual and long-term basis. The program emphasis has been on meeting some of the more pressing farm related conservation and environmental problems in rural areas, on practices for long-range protection of the environment, and on practices that provide substantial benefits to the public at the least possible cost.

The program is administered in each county by the ASC county committee, with review and approval by State ASCS committees and in consultation with other agencies. The committees select the approved cost-sharing practices best suited to meet the needs of their area.

Loans from Commodity Credit Corporation were used to make advance payments to vendors for the 1976 program during fiscal year 1976. These payments are for conservation materials and services furnished to farmers and ranchers prior to the time funds are appropriated each year. Repayment is made from balances of prior year appropriations or from new funds appropriated.

Amounts repaid or estimated to be repaid on the Commodity Credit Corporation loans are:

The purpose of this program is to preserve the wetlands of the Nation. The program was authorized by the Water Bank Act, approved December 19, 1970.

The Secretary of Agriculture enters into agreements with landowners and operators for the conservation of specified wetlands. The agreements are for 10 years with provision for renewal for additional periods. During the period of the agreement, the landowner agrees not to drain, burn, fill, or otherwise destroy the wetland character of such areas, nor to use such areas for agricultural purposes, as determined by the Secretary. The Secretary makes annual payments to the owner or operator at a rate to be determined.

The Secretary carries out the program in harmony with wetlands programs administered by the Secretary of the Interior and utilizes the technical and related services of appropriate State, Federal, and private conservation agencies to assure proper coordination.

The cropland adjustment program was authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 which expired with the 1970 crop year. Under this program, agreements for periods of 5 and up to 10 years were approved only in 1966 and 1967. The last of these agreements will expire in the fiscal year 1977.

This program assisted farmers to divert cropland from the production of surplus crops to other uses that promoted the development and conservation of our soil, water, forest, wildlife, and recreational resources. In return for diverting cropland, producers received adjustment payments. They also were eligible to receive cost-sharing assistance for establishing approved land treatment measures.

Under the public access provision of the program, additional incentive payments are made to producers who entered into agreements to permit free public access to land designated under the cropland adjustment program agreement for hunting, trapping, fishing, and hiking.

Under the program's Greenspan provision, funds were also made available to Federal, State, or local governmental agencies for use in acquiring cropland for permanent conversion to specified public benefit uses, primarily for open spaces and recreational facilities. Cost shares could also be paid to such agencies for establishing approved land-treatment measures consistent with the conditions and costs under agreements entered into with producers.

No funds were requested for fiscal year 1977 since payments to be made in that fiscal year have been obligated from funds made available in the transition quarter. The payments made in fiscal year 1977 will complete the program.

This appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farm and rangelands resulting from natural disasters. The criteria under which assistance may be made available are set forth in the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590(h)).

Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use.

Under the 1976 program, cost-sharing assistance was provided to treat farmlands damaged by floods and tornadoes. As of September 30, 1976, assistance was being provided in 41 States and Puerto Rico.

DAIRY AND BEEKEEPER INDEMNITY PROGRAMS

For necessary expenses involved in making indemnity payments to dairy farmers for milk cows producing such milk and manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their milk or dairy products from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, and to beekeepers who through no fault of their own have suffered losses as a result of the use of economic poisons which had been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, $4,050,000: Provided, That none of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to make indemnity payments to any farmer whose milk was removed from commercial markets as a result of his willful failure to follow procedures prescribed by the Federal Government. Under this program the Department makes indemnification payments to dairy farmers, manufacturers of dairy products, and beekeepers.

This program began in 1964 and was limited (until the passage of the Agricultural Act of 1970) to payments to dairy farmers, who were directed to remove their milk from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 authorized indemnification payments, beginning with the date of its enactment (November 30, 1970), to manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their products because they contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 also authorized payments to beekeepers who, through no fault of their own, suffered losses of honey bees after January 1, 1967, as a result of utilization of economic poisons near or adjacent to the property on which the beehives of such beekeepers were located.

The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 extended the authority for making indemnity payments to dairy farmers and to manufacturers of dairy products to June 30, 1977, and to beekeepers to December 31, 1977.

The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 also authorized indemnity payments on dairy cows producing contaminated milk. However, to date no payments have been made on dairy cows.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly owned Government Corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1520), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance, and to provide the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance.

Crop insurance offered to agricultural producers by the Corporation provides protection from losses caused by natural hazards, such as insect and wildlife damage, plant diseases, fire, drought, flood, wind, and other weather conditions. It does not indemnify producers for losses resulting from negligence or failure to observe good farming practices.

The crop insurance programs are developed and analyzed in the Washington headquarters office, and are administered in 14 regional offices. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level is performed by private agents under contractual agreements with the Corporation and by Corporation employees hired on a permanent, part-time or WAE (when actually employed) basis. Detailed administrative and program accounting and statistical functions are performed by the National Service Office in Kansas City, Mo., as well as the underwriting and actuarial analysis work.

Budget program.—For the 1978 crop year, it is planned that the program will be expanded to additional counties to provide crop insurance protection to more farmers on the following commodities: apples, barley, beans, citrus, combined crop, corn, cotton, flax, grain sorghum, grapes, oats, peaches, peanuts, peas, raisins, rice, soybeans, sugar beets, sugarcane, sunflowers, tobacco, tomatoes, and wheat.

The following table indicates the scope of the insurance operations planned for 1977 and 1978, as compared with 1976. Amounts in the 1976 column are actual, and pertain to the 1975 crop year. The 1977 column pertains to the 1976 crop year, and the 1978 column pertains to the 1977 crop year.

Financing.—Capital stock of $100 million is authorized to be subscribed by the United States. As of June 30, 1976, the Secretary of the Treasury held receipts for $60 million of authorized stock, leaving $40 million unissued. However, heavy crop losses occurring in the drought-stricken areas of the Midwest after the 1977 appropriation was enacted made it necessary to issue an additional $30 million in capital stock which was approved by Congress under the continuing appropriations for 1977. The current stock issue of $90 million is composed of $30 million subscribed by Public Law 94-473, approved October 11, 1976, and $60 million in prior subscriptions issued pursuant to the Federal Crop Insurance Act.

Funds from the issuance of capital stock provide working capital for the Corporation. Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums paid by farmers for crop insurance indemnity costs. The principal payments from this fund are for indemnities to insured farmers, the direct cost of adjusting crop losses, and a part of the administrative and operating expenses. However, the direct cost of loss adjustment and the administrative and operating expenses paid from the fund are not provided for in the premium rates (section 508(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended).

The annual appropriation for the major portion of the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1976, the Corporation reflected a deficit of $16.7 million which is a change of minus $1.5 million over the deficit of the year before. This resulted from increased administrative and operating expenses, loss adjustment costs, and other expenses paid from the fund. Crop year 1975 premiums of $73.4 million were higher than indemnities by $10.0 million, resulting in a loss ratio of 0.86.

A 1.52 loss ratio is estimated for crop year 1976. Premiums of $91.2 million are estimated to be lower than indemnities by $47.1 million. For the crop years 1948 through 1975, premium income ($872.1 million) exceeded indemnity costs ($800.4 million) by $71.7 million; the loss ratio for the period was 0.92. Premium income exceeded indemnity costs in 16 of the 28 years.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations by commodities for 1976, 1977, and 1978.

The Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, to help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and to help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714-714p). It may make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities and may be used to administer and to temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Up to $14.5 billion may be borrowed from the U.S. Treasury to finance operations.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1977 and 1978 budget estimates: (a) Production and national income will rise both in 1977 and 1978 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1978 will be slightly higher than 1977 levels; (c) yields for the 1977 crops are based on recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1977 crops of peanuts, ELS cotton, and certain kinds of tobacco; (e) acreage allotments but no marketing quotas will be in effect for rice; and (f) no set-aside program for cotton, feed grains, rice, and wheat will be in operation. Payments on these commodities will be based on an established or target price if the higher of the market price received by farmers or the loan rate is below such price.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy, requirements for the year ending September 30, 1978, since the projections are subject to complex and unpredictable factors such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange.

PROGRAMS OF THE CORPORATION

The basic functions of the corporation include the following programs for which appropriations are made for net realized losses sustained (in thousands of dollars):

Program	1978 estimate
	Gross obligations	Outlays	Net realized loss for year
Short-term export credit sales	750,000	-2,519
Other support and related	2,916,987	261,960	125,416
Storage facilities	50,000	-3,000
Supply	230	-60	-55
Feed grain disaster payments		207,000	207,000
Wheat disaster payments	60,000	77,000	77,000
Rice disaster and deficiency payments	89,200	116,700	116,700
Cotton payments		115,000	115,000
Other items not distributed by program	377,332	91,446	97,541
Total	4,243,749	863,527	738,602

Support and related programs.—The Corporation provides price support to producers for agricultural commodities through loans, purchases, payments, and other means. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.) and the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.), as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1358), and the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, approved August 10, 1973 (87 Stat. 221), and the Rice Production Act of 1975, approved February 16, 1976.

Support is mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. The Agricultural Act of 1949 also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: tung nuts (through the 1976 crop), honey, milk, barley, oats, rye, and grain sorghum. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1781-87), requires support for wool and mohair. Support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. The support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, loans made on commodities are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and on maturity the producer may deliver or forfeit such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases are made under certain laws for the removal of surpluses; for example, the Act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431).

For feed grains, rice and wheat, producers may receive support through government payments in addition to Commodity Credit Corporation loans and purchases. For upland and extra-long staple cotton, producers may receive payments in addition to loans. Producers of feed grains, rice, wheat and upland cotton must comply with acreage set-aside provisions (hereinafter described), if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments. The total amount of payments which a person is entitled to receive under one or more of the annual programs for feed grains, wheat, and upland cotton for 1974 through 1977 crops of the commodities shall not exceed $20 thousand. For rice producers, the limitation is $55 thousand annually for 1976 and 1977 crop years.

Public Law 93-86 (Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973) established target prices for three major commodities—wheat, feed grains and upland cotton; set minimum loan rates for wheat and feed grains; and established the loan level for upland cotton. Government payments for each of the three commodities are required when the established price for the commodity exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. For the 1977 crop, the established prices for these commodities will be adjusted in relation to the costs of production. In addition, the Act provides for making disaster payments to producers who are prevented from planting feed grains, wheat, or upland cotton because of a natural disaster or condition beyond the control of the producers or who, because of such a disaster or condition, harvest less than a specified quantity.

Public Law 94-214 (Rice Production Act of 1975) initiated an established or target price for rice. Government payments are required to be made to cooperators when the established price for rice exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. For the 1976 and 1977 crops, the established prices for rice will be adjusted in relation to the costs of production. In addition, the act provides for making disaster payments to producers who are prevented from planting rice or other nonconserving crop because of a natural disaster or condition beyond the control of the producers or who, because of such a disaster or condition, harvest less than a specified quantity.

In support operations, normal trade facilities are used to the maximum extent practicable. Cooperatives and financial institutions are used in lending activities.

Besides the Charter Act and laws mentioned above, many other laws are applicable to the disposition through sales, donations, and barter of commodities acquired under the support program.

For accounting purposes, the Corporation credits to the support program proceeds of commodities sold from its stocks, including those disposed of through special activities.

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, barter, payments, extension of credit, assumption of certain risks, and conduct of other operations with respect to exported commodities. Other than in barter for stockpiling purposes, such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation. These programs are carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly section 5 (d) and (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable. Export sales for foreign currencies or for dollars on long-term credit are financed by the Corporation under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended, although such sales of commodities owned by the Corporation may also be made under its charter authority.

The activities as described below are illustrative of those conducted under this program during 1977.

The Corporation conducts a short-term export credit sales program to maximize exports of agricultural commodities and products, under which it finances, for a period of not to exceed 3 years, commercial export credit sales by exporters of agricultural commodities obtained either from Corporation inventories or from private stocks. These commercial transactions are financed under the Corporation's charter authority and section 4 of the Food for Peace Act (7 U.S.C. 1707a) and are to be distinguished from the long-term credit contracts involving foreign assistance authorized by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Section 4 of the Food for Peace Act authorizes appropriations to reimburse the Corporation annually for its actual costs incurred or to be incurred under this program.

When necessary to encourage export movement from free-market supplies, as well as from its own stocks, the Corporation has made payments on exports of agricultural commodities. The rate of payment generally was the difference between the prevailing world export sales price and the domestic market price. The export payment programs for wheat, rice, and tobacco were discontinued during 1972 and 1973; but some tobacco export contracts (pre-1972 crop) are still subject to payment. It is expected that final payments on these contracts will be made by June 30, 1977. Export payments on these or other commodities could be reinstated if needed to compete in the world markets.

To help develop or expand foreign markets, the Corporation may furnish farm commodities and products for samples or exhibits at international trade fairs and for use abroad in testing consumer acceptance and commercial market potentials.

Commodities available for barter were limited to cotton and tobacco by the end of 1973, and no further invitations to bid have been issued under this program.

Storage facilities.—The Corporation conducts a program to provide storage adequate to fulfill its program needs. This program is conducted pursuant to sections 4 (h) and (m) and 5 (a) and (b) of the charter.

Although the Corporation has authority to buy bins (in storage-short areas) and equipment for the care and storage of commodities owned by the Corporation or under its control, this authority to purchase bins has not been exercised since 1956. The Corporation makes loans for the purchase, building, or expanding of facilities for storage and care of commodities on the farm and sells, to producers and others, bins needed for the storage of agricultural commodities. Bins sold by the Corporation may be those acquired for resale for such storage or those which are no longer required by the Corporation for the storage of its own commodities. Public Law 89-758 permits the sale of grain storage facilities no longer needed for such program use to public and private nonprofit agencies and organizations. The remainder of the Corporation's bins were sold in August of 1975. The Corporation may also guarantee the placement of its inventories to encourage the building of commercial storage, and undertake other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

Section 805 of the Agricultural Act of 1970 authorized the Secretary to make or guarantee loans for construction of farm storage facilities for baled hay from diverted or set-aside acreage. This program was conducted through the ASCS county committees and financed with capital funds of the Corporation.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation procures from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies such as CARE, Church World Services, Catholic Relief, and so forth. It similarly procures or aids in the procurement of such foods, commodities, products, and material for sale to meet domestic requirements during periods of short supply or to stabilize prices or facilitate distribution. Through purchases, loans, sales, or other means, the Corporation may also make available materials and facilities needed for the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. This program is conducted under section 5 (b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

Purchases for other Federal agencies of commodities not in the Corporation's support stocks has been the main activity. Purchases of limited quantities of breeder, foundation, and registered seeds of improved varieties of grasses and legumes are made through production contracts in order to assure supplies thereof for farmers. No foreign purchases have been made in recent years.

Section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U.S.C. 713a-9), requires that the Corporation be fully repaid from funds of other agencies for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities bought or delivered to or on behalf of any other Federal agency. Operations not subject to section 4 may involve losses if such are necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives of the particular operation.

Set-aside program.—The Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, authorizes the Secretary to conduct, through the Corporation, set-aside programs on the 1971 through 1977 crops of wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton if he determines that otherwise the total supply of agricultural commodities will likely be excessive. The Rice Production Act of 1975 provides authority for a set-aside program for the 1976-77 crops of rice.

There was no set-aside program for 1974 through 1977 crops of feed grains, wheat and upland cotton. The Secretary has announced that there will be no set-aside program for the 1977 crops of wheat, feed grains, rice, and upland cotton.

If a set-aside is in effect for any such commodity, producers must, as a condition of eligibility for loans, purchases, and payments on such commodity, set-aside and devote to approved conservation uses specified acreages of cropland and otherwise comply with program requirements. Participants in a set-aside program are eligible for a small additional payment for permitting public access to set-aside acreage.

Land diversion payments.—To assist in adjusting the acreage of commodities to desirable goals, the Secretary is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended, to make land diversion payments, through the Corporation, to producers who devote to approved conservation uses acreages of cropland in addition to those required to be so devoted under the set-aside programs.

Wheat certificate program.—The Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 as of July 1, 1973, suspended, through June 30, 1978, the requirement of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, under which processors purchased domestic wheat marketing certificates equivalent to the bushel quantity of wheat used to manufacture food products. Necessary action was taken to facilitate transition to a noncertificate program.

Cotton research and promotion.—Under section 610 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended, the Corporation, through the cotton board, and upon approval of the Secretary, entered into an agreement for cotton market development, research, and sales promotion programs, programs to aid in the development of new and additional markets, marketing facilities, and uses for cotton and cotton products. Final settlement under this agreement will be made by June 30, 1977.

Disaster reserve.—Under section 813 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, the Secretary shall establish, maintain, and dispose of a separate reserve of inventories of not to exceed 75 million bushels of wheat, feed grains, and soybeans for the purpose of alleviating distress caused by a natural disaster. The Secretary shall acquire such commodities through the price support program. In order to rotate, distribute, and locate reserves, such reserves may be sold at equivalent prices. The Secretary may use the Commodity Credit Corporation and shall utilize usual and customary channels, facilities, and arrangements of trade and commerce to the maximum extent possible. Appropriations are authorized for sums necessary to carry out the purposes of this section. Costs for this activity are included in the CCC appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses.

Emergency hay transportation assistance program.—This program is authorized under Executive Order 11575 and requires Presidential declaration of emergency to be activated. The eligible livestock owner is reimbursed for two-thirds of the transportation cost (up to $27 per ton) of hay purchased for feeding eligible livestock.

Cattle transportation assistance.—This program is administered by ASCS county offices for the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA). On July 30, 1976, USDA announced a program authorized by FDAA under the President's emergency declaration which would assist farmers in designated drought-affected counties in transporting eligible cattle to and/or from surplus grazing areas. FDAA has approved payment of two-thirds of the actual cost of transportation not to exceed Interstate Commerce Commission transportation rates and not to exceed $24 per head. Either public or private conveyance may be used. Funds for this program are appropriated from the President's disaster relief fund.

Owners who had shipped their cattle to grazing areas before July 30, 1976, may be eligible to receive assistance to return their cattle to the producer's farm.

This program is currently in effect in designated counties in North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Missouri, Arkansas and Virginia.

Administrative expenses.—The Corporation carries out its functions through utilization of employees and facilities of other Government agencies. Administrative expenses are incurred for the services of: the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Agricultural Marketing Service, the Foreign Agricultural Service, the Office of the General Sales Manager, and other agencies of the Department engaged in the Corporation's activities; the General Accounting Office for audit; and the General Services Administration for space. Estimates for 1978 include a limitation of $39.8 million on administrative expenses, including a reserve of not less than 7% for contingencies.

The requested authorization does not include administrative expenses in connection with the wool and mohair program under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, because they are included with the cost of this program under special activities.

Nonadministrative expenses.—Expenses for acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program expenses rather than administrative expenses. Such program expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors; work relating to CCC programs performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; and special services performed by other Federal agencies within and outside this Department.

Most of these general nonadministrative expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing, and grading and resale payments, are included in program costs. They are shown in the program and financing schedule in the entry entitled "Storage, transportation, and other costs not included above." The item "Nonadministrative expense," in the schedule, covers part of the expenses of ASCS county offices for work related to programs of the Corporation, other Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service expenses offset by revenue, custodian, and agency expense of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

The Corporation receives reimbursements for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 (7 U.S.C. 447-449) by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation, through the appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses. The Corporation also obtains recovery through this appropriation for the funds transferred to the Agricultural Research Service pursuant to the Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1964, for cost of production research and other related research designed to reduce surplus commodities held by the Corporation.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's charter act and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1978 estimate
	Gross obligations	Outlays (reimbursable)
(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies.....	-----	-89,200
(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms.....	838,000	616,500

(6) Surplus grain for migratory birds.....	-----	-----
(7) Loans for conservation and insurance purposes.....	-----	-50,000
Total.....	1,407,199	1,046,459

The Corporation receives appropriations or reimbursement for cost of these activities as described under each.

To the extent that sufficient appropriations are not provided in advance, expenditures under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, are made by the Corporation subject to reimbursement from subsequent appropriations authorized for such purpose.

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (See Foreign assistance programs for details of items (1)-(3)):

(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I, Public Law 480).

(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms (title I, Public Law 480).

(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II, Public Law 480).

(4) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970, and the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973, support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. The Corporation makes payments to producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the support price required under the act.

Funds of the Corporation are used to carry on this program. For the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation, section 705 of the act appropriates each fiscal year an amount equal to amounts expended by the Corporation during the preceding year and to amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed, but not to exceed an amount equal to 70% of the gross receipts from duties collected on wool and wool manufactures during the calendar year preceding the fiscal year.

(5) Grain for migratory waterfowl feed.—To prevent damage of crops by migratory waterfowl, the Corporation is directed to furnish to the Secretary of the Interior (7 U.S.C. 442-445) such grain acquired through support operations and certified by the Corporation as available for such purposes or in such condition as to be undesirable for human consumption, as the Secretary of the Interior shall requisition. This appropriation item is included under that department to reimburse CCC.

(6) Surplus grain for migratory birds.—Under Public Law 87-152, approved August 17, 1961 (7 U.S.C. 448) the Secretary of the Interior may requisition grain of the Corporation to feed starving migratory birds. This appropriation item is included under that department to reimburse CCC.

(7) Loans for conservation and crop insurance purposes.—Under Section 391(c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1391(c)), the Corporation may loan to the Secretary not to exceed $50 million annually to purchase conservation materials and services and to make crop insurance premium advances. Repayments of the loans for conservation materials and services plus interest are made from unobligated balances of prior appropriations or from new funds appropriated for the Agricultural conservation program. Funds of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation would be used in repaying loans made for crop insurance premium advances.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $14.5 billion.

Funds are borrowed from Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies and others. The Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies and others. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate of all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on other notes and obligations at a rate prescribed by Commodity Credit Corporation and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964, on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after the end of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

The computation of the transfer from interest-bearing to non-interest-bearing capital is (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Realized deficit not previously reimbursed, Start of year.	3,648,652	1,423,395	1,590,046	2,268,557
Less appropriations for year.	2,750,000	-----	189,053	1,234,342
Total non-interest-bearing, end of year.	898,652	1,423,395	1,400,993	1,034,215

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions, the estimated requirements indicate no need for an increase in borrowing authority. Since there are so many uncontrollable factors involving crops which have not even been planted, it must be recognized that estimates are highly tentative. It is estimated that unobligated balances of authority to spend public debt receipts will amount to $9,899.1 million at the end of the transition quarter; $8,089.3 million at the end of 1977; and $8,677.4 million at the end of 1978.

Net statutory borrowing authority available.	11,659,952	10,944,007	9,379,120	9,439,834

Note.—A sufficient amount of the borrowing authority is required to be reserved to cover obligations to purchase notes or other obligations and accrued interest thereon, evidencing loans made by lending agencies and others. Such obligations, however, as well as accounts payable, accrued liabilities and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table, do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

Appropriations.—Under section 2 of Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The realized losses for 1976 subject to reimbursement were $524.7 million, and the cumulative losses not yet appropriated for were $709.6 million. An appropriation of $1,234.3 million would provide sufficient funds for the operations described for 1978. It would also leave a desirable operating margin to assure flexibility of operations in view of the volume of transactions handled and the uncertainties of provisions of the farm legislation in future years.

The special activities are financed as indicated in the program descriptions above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance and special export program (see p. 120).

The Rural Electrification Administration was organized to carry into effect the loan programs authorized by the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. The Administration conducts two capital investment programs: (1) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (2) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

Public Law 93-32, approved May 11, 1973, amended the Rural Electrification Act by establishing the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund (RETRF), with initial assets amounting to about $7.8 billion. This act also removed budget authority and outlays of the RETRF from the budget totals of the U.S. Government. Schedules showing the activity of the RETRF are included in part IV, Annexed Budgets.

Public Law 94-570 amends the Rural Electrification Act and transfers into the revolving fund $455,634,525 in borrowing authority carried over from the fiscal year 1973 authorization. The transfer provides the necessary cash to postpone by nearly 1 year the need of the revolving fund to sell additional certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's). The legislation also changes the statutory criteria used in determining eligibility for 2% insured loans. The change in criteria corrects unintended inequities resulting from Public Law 93-32, which amended the Rural Electrification Act in May 1973, and brings the number of borrowers eligible for the special rate more in line with congressional intent and with borrowers' actual needs for funds at this rate.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For administrative expenses to carry out the provisions of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended (7 U.S.C. 901-950(b)), including not to exceed $500 for financial and credit reports, funds for employment pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2225), and not to exceed $150,000 for employment under 5 U.S.C. 3109, [$21,350,000] $22,567,000. The Rural Electrification Administration, under authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, makes insured loans and guarantees loans made by other qualified lenders to rural electric and telephone borrowers for the purpose of extending and improving electric and telephone service in rural areas. The Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund, established by Public Law 93-32, approved May 11, 1973, is the source of financing for the insured loans, while the Federal Financing Bank is the primary source for the loan guarantee financing. In the electric program most of the insured loans are made concurrently with supplemental financing provided by the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) or some other supplemental financing source. In the telephone program supplemental financing is provided primarily through the Rural Telephone Bank. The Bank utilizes the employees and facilities of REA and the Office of the General Counsel on a part-time basis normally without cost to the Bank.

In order to protect the Government's loan security on outstanding loans made to borrowers, to assure that construction and operation of the electric and telephone systems conform to approved industry standards, and that the systems provide continuous and reliable service while facilitating the most effective use of limited and available resources in achieving the program's objectives, REA furnishes business management and technical assistance on a regular basis, as well as upon special request, to its borrowers. This assistance is provided primarily through personal visits to the borrowers by field personnel. In addition to the field staff, REA maintains personnel in the Washington office who have expertise in the electric or telephone industry who are available to assist borrowers in specialized areas.

Mutual and self-help housing.—This assistance was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448). These grants are especially designed to aid the development of comprehensive plans to permit an expansion of mutual and self-help housing programs under which groups of families build their own homes by mutually exchanging labor. No program is planned for fiscal year 1978, since the grants plus the subsidy cost of the associated loans have resulted in high unit costs to the Government without corresponding benefits to those aided.

Rural community fire protection grants.—This assistance was authorized by section 404 of the Rural Development

Act of 1972, as amended. Grants are authorized to public bodies for up to 50% of the cost of organizing, training, and equipping rural volunteer fire departments. In fiscal year 1976, 3,000 grants were obligated for a total of $3,133,617 and 700 grants were obligated in the transition quarter for a total amount of $1,139 thousand. It is anticipated that in fiscal year 1977, 2,022 grants will be obligated in the amount of $3,538 thousand.

No program is proposed for fiscal year 1978, since other program assistance is available for such purposes.

Very low-income housing repair grants.—This grant program is authorized under section 504 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, (42 U.S.C. 1474). The rural housing repair grant program is carried out by making grants to very low-income families to make necessary repairs to their homes. Past experience has indicated that these families are generally elderly and/or handicapped. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1978. The Administration believes that these families can be served by the section 504 rehabilitation loan program, which provides for a 1% interest rate loan amortized up to 20 years.

Self-help housing land development fund.—The Self-help housing land development fund was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448). It is used as a revolving fund for making loans to public or private nonprofit organizations for the acquisition and development of land as building sites to be subdivided and sold to eligible families, nonprofit organizations and cooperatives.

In 1976 no loans were obligated. In the transition quarter three loans for $565 thousand were made and it is estimated that five loans for $880 thousand will be made in 1977. No program is planned for 1978 since the subsidy costs of the associated loans together with the self-help housing technical assistance grants have resulted in high unit costs to the Government without corresponding benefits to those aided.

Rural housing insurance fund.—This fund was established in 1965 (Public Law 89-117) pursuant to section 517 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. Initial capitalization of the fund at $100 million was provided by the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1966.

Public Law 91-152, approved December 24, 1969, provided that the rural housing direct loan account be abolished and that the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, the direct loan account be transferred to this fund.

This fund is used to insure or guarantee rural housing loans, loans for rural rental and cooperative housing, farm labor housing loans, rural housing site loans, and mobile home park loans. Loans are made to individuals or organizations to provide necessary housing for low- to moderate-income families if their needs cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources. The insured rural housing loans currently made by the Farmers Home Administration bear interest at 8.0% with provision for interest credits being granted on insured loans, under certain circumstances which reduces the effective interest rate charged the borrower to as low as 1%.

Home repair loans for very low income owner-occupants are made from amounts available in this fund. Repair and improvement loans, not in excess of $5,000, are made to these very low income families, who are owners of farms or nonfarm rural property, to repair or improve their dwellings in order to make them safe and sanitary and to remove health hazards to the families or the community. These loans are made at 1% interest and are repayable in not more than 20 years.

Individual homeownership loans are made to farm-owners, owners of other real estate in rural areas, others who are or will become rural residents, and long-term leaseholders. Loans are repayable in not more than 33 years. Loans are made to enable eligible applicants to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings and essential farm service buildings, and may include funds to buy a house and building site. Loans are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, or other rural places of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area. However, section 520 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, provides that loans may also be made in areas with a population in excess of 10,000 but less than 20,000 if such an area is not included within a standard metropolitan statistical area and has a serious lack of mortgage credit for lower or moderate income families as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Rural rental and cooperative housing loans are made to individuals, corporations, partnerships and public bodies for the purpose of providing low-rent housing for low- to moderate-income persons and the elderly. This program is being operated in tandem with the HUD section 8 rental assistance program. This enables the applicant, or FmHA borrower, to serve families with extremely low incomes. Families must pay at least 25 percent (in the case of very low income, at least 15 percent) of their income as rent with HUD making up the difference between this amount and the market rents for the project. This enables FmHA, through its rural rental housing program, to serve a broader income spectrum in a community.

Farm labor housing loans are made to individual farm-owners, nonprofit corporations and public bodies in order to provide decent, safe and sanitary low-rent housing for domestic farm laborers.

The mobile home park loan program is being implemented in fiscal year 1977 to provide financing of mobile home sites for low- to moderate-income families.

Site development loans are made for the purchase and development of land to be subdivided into building sites and sold on a nonprofit basis to low- and moderate-income families or to organizations for rental or cooperative housing.

RHIF funds are being targeted to provide greater emphasis on assisting those rural residents who are most in need of improved housing. Consequently, a substantial portion of the subsidized housing programs will be utilized for the purchase and repair of existing housing units to make more lower cost housing available to lower income rural residents who presently occupy substandard housing.

The guaranteed rural housing program is being implemented during fiscal year 1977 to serve moderate-income borrowers. The guaranteed loan program will provide additional flexibility in the program mix and enable the FmHA to meet increased demand for housing assistance by guaranteeing loans made by local private lenders.

The following table shows actual fiscal year 1976, transition quarter, fiscal year 1977, and fiscal year 1978 program levels and units.

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT INSURANCE FUND

For an additional amount to reimburse the agricultural credit insurance fund for losses sustained in prior years, but not previously reimbursed, in carrying out the provisions of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1988(a)), [$141,189,000] $164,735,000.

Loans may be insured, or made to be sold and insured, under this Fund in accordance with and subject to the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1928-1929, as follows: real estate loans, [$520,000,000] $518,000,000, including not less than $450,000,000 for farm ownership loans; and not less than [$54,000,000] $53,000,000 for water development, use, and conservation loans; operating loans, $625,000,000; and emergency loans in amounts necessary to meet the needs resulting from natural disasters. The Agricultural credit insurance fund is used to insure or guarantee farm ownership, soil and water, recreation, farm operating, and emergency loans to individuals, as well as the following types of loans to associations: irrigation and drainage, grazing, Indian land acquisition, watershed protection, flood prevention, and resource conservation and development.

Loans may be made by the fund from available receipts or Treasury borrowings. Loans made by the fund are held in a pool as security for certificates of beneficial ownership which are sold primarily to the Federal Financing Bank. FmHA is also authorized to provide financial assistance to borrowers by guaranteeing loans made by private lenders having a contract of guarantee from FmHA as approved by the Secretary of Agriculture. With respect to all new loans made from the fund, with the exception of emergency loans, not more than $500 million may be held in the fund at any one time.

Public Law 92-419, approved August 30, 1972, abolished the Farmers Home Administration Direct loan account and the Emergency credit revolving fund and provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, these accounts to the Agricultural credit insurance fund. It also provided for transfer from the Agricultural credit insurance fund to the Rural development insurance fund of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities.

Legislation will be proposed to increase interest rates for real estate loans from the present 5% statutory ceiling to a rate approximating Treasury borrowing costs. This change is being proposed to bring the steady growth in interest subsidy outlays under control. Until this has been accomplished, it is not possible to consider further growth in credit availability under these programs.

The following loans are financed through this fund.
Loans to individuals.—Farm ownership loans are made to farmers and ranchers, at a 5% interest rate for 40 years or less, for acquiring, enlarging or improving farms, including dwellings and farm buildings; for financing land and water development, use and conservation; for developing recreational and other nonfarm enterprises; for forestry development; for refinancing indebtedness; and for loan closing costs. Loans are confined to farms which are not larger than family farms. The unpaid indebtedness against a farm or other security at the time the loan is made may not exceed $225,000 or the market value of the farm or other security. The loan may not exceed $100,000 or the amount certified by the county committee, whichever is the lesser. The Farmers Home Administration has broadened its farm ownership loan policies so that private or cooperative lenders and the agency can make loans to the same borrowers on the same security.

These loans may be made on farms which are larger than family farms and may include funds for operating purposes.

Farm operating loans are made to farmers and ranchers for costs incident to reorganizing a farming system for more profitable operations; for a variety of essential farm expenses such as the purchase of livestock, farm equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, and farm supplies, and other essential operating expenses, including cash rent, and costs incident to the production, and harvesting of forestry products; for financing land and water development, use and conservation; for developing recreation and other nonfarm enterprises; for other farm and home needs; for refinancing indebtedness; for complying with certain safety standards; for operation of farming enterprises by rural youths in connection with their participation in 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America and similar organizations; and for loan closing costs. Loans for farming operations are confined to operators of not-larger-than family farms. The outstanding principal loan balance for operating loans to any individual is limited to $50 thousand. Loans bear interest at a rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations with a similar maturity period. The rate for fiscal year 1977 is 8¼%. Funds advanced for operating expenses are repaid when the crops, livestock or other produce are sold. Funds advanced for other purposes may be repaid in from 1 to 7 years; in some cases loans may be renewed for up to 5 years. Loans are secured by crop and chattel liens and, when necessary, by real estate mortgages. Other reliable agricultural credit sources are encouraged to furnish as much as possible of the essential needs of loan applicants with the balance being supplied with an operating loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

Emergency loans are made available in designated counties where property damage and/or severe production losses have occurred as a direct result of a natural disaster and where agricultural credit cannot be obtained by private cooperatives or other responsible sources. Emergency loans are made to established eligible farmers, ranchers and aquaculture operators for actual losses at 5% interest and annual operating expenses, major adjustments and other essential needs arising from natural disasters at a market rate of interest as established on January 1 and July 1 of each year by the Secretary. Actual loss loans are made for physical losses to repair, restore or replace damaged or destroyed farm property and supplies, and for production losses to compensate for loss of income based on reduced production of crops, livestock and livestock products resulting from the disaster. Repayment terms vary according to the purposes of the loan and the projected reasonable repayment ability of the borrower. Loans for actual losses to crops, livestock, supplies and equipment may be scheduled for repayment in up to 7 years. These loans may be renewed for up to 5 years. Under some conditions a longer repayment period may be authorized, but not to exceed 20 years. Generally real estate will be needed as security when more than 7 years is authorized. Real estate loans will be scheduled for repayment up to 40 years. Annual operating expenses will be scheduled for repayment each year when the principal income from the year's operations is received. The appropriation language makes funds available in such amounts as may be necessary to meet the needs resulting from natural disasters.

The Emergency Livestock Credit Act, Public Law 93-357, approved July 25, 1974, authorized the making of guaranteed loans to provide temporary financing to livestock producers and feeders. The Farmers Home Administration guarantees loans made by banks or other legally organized lenders to farmers and ranchers in order that they may continue their normal farming or ranching operations. The basic law (Public Law 93-357) was amended by enactment of Public Law 94-35 on June 16, 1975. Public Law 94-35 provided for a reduction in the amount of guarantees outstanding to $1.5 billion ($2.0 billion under Public Law 93-357) and extended the statutory period for guaranteeing loans to December 31, 1976. It was further amended by enactment of Public Law 94-517, approved October 15, 1976, which extended the statutory period to September 30, 1978.

The objectives may be met through such assistance as to a group of farmers and other rural residents to develop community irrigation dams and canals; a soil and water conservation district to purchase heavy earth-moving equipment; a community for drainage of land; a group of farmers to develop soil conservation measures such as terraces, shelter belts, and similar development.

These loans are made at a 5% interest rate for 40 years or less.

Grazing loans are made to organizations primarily composed of farmers, ranchers, certain Indian tribes, and other rural residents to provide seasonal grazing for livestock belonging to members of the associations. Membership in an association permits a farmer or rancher to graze his livestock on association pasture for the grazing season and return them to his base unit for the balance of the year. Such a plan provides a farmer or rancher an opportunity to increase the size of his operations. These loans are made at a 5% interest rate for 40 years or less.

The Rural development insurance fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 309A of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-419), approved August 30, 1972, which also provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities to this fund.

The fund is used to insure or guarantee loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities, development of rural business, community facilities, pollution abatement, and economic improvement in rural areas.

Water and waste disposal development loans and essential community facility loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes and corporations not operated for profit and public and quasi-public agencies. Water and waste disposal development loans are made for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. Community facility loans are made to construct, enlarge, extend, or otherwise improve community facilities providing essential service to rural residents. Such facilities include those providing or supporting overall community development such as fire and rescue services, transportation, traffic control, and community, social, cultural, and recreational benefits. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers, and other rural residents of open country and rural towns and villages of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area. These loans are repayable in not more than 40 years and bear interest not in excess of 5%.

Industrial development loans are made to public, private, or cooperative organizations organized for profit or nonprofit, to certain Indian tribes, or to individuals. These loans are made for purposes of improving, developing, or financing business, industry, and employment and improving the economic and environmental climate in rural areas. Such purposes include financing business and industrial acquisition, construction, conversion, enlargement, repair or modernization; financing the purchase and development of land, easements, rights-of-way, buildings, equipment, facilities, leases, machinery, supplies, and materials; and payment of startup costs and supplying working capital. Industrial development loans may be made in any area that is not within the outer boundary of any city having a population of 50,000 or more and its immediately adjacent urbanized and urbanizing areas with a population density of more than 100 persons per square mile. Special consideration for such loans is given to areas other than cities having a population of more than 25,000. These loans are repayable in not more than 30 years. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is determined by the lender and the borrower. The interest rate for loans made by Farmers Home Administration to private entrepreneurs is computed on the cost of Treasury borrowing plus an increment to cover administrative costs; loans to public bodies borrowing to install community facilities necessary for community development are made at 5%.

Legislation will be proposed to increase interest rates for water and sewer and community facility loans from the present 5% statutory ceiling to a rate approximating Treasury borrowing costs. This change is being proposed to bring the steady growth in interest subsidy outlays under control. Until this has been accomplished, it is not possible to consider further growth in credit availability under these programs.

This fund consists of repayments on loans made by Farmers Home Administration under delegation of authority from the Office of Economic Opportunity which has since been superseded by the Community Services Administration. No new loans have been made since the middle of 1971.

That loan program which was intended to increase the income of low-income rural residents and rural cooperatives was discontinued because it was determined to be ineffective. The Farmers Home Administration continues to service $21 million of these loans as of June 30, 1976.

The Head Start, Economic Opportunity, and Community Partnership Act of 1974, transferred the remainder of the funds provided for in part A of title III of the Economic Opportunity Act to the Community Services Administration.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation practices are planned together and in relation to each other so as to have well-balanced conservation programs in each district. The Service aids land users, groups, units of government, and other policy and decisionmakers marshal the facts and consider the potentials and alternatives before they embark on courses of action. Both vegetative and structural measures are installed in accordance with the needs of the land for protection, treatment, and resource improvement. Plans reflect the decisions of the land users, community groups, and units of government as to how they will use and treat the land and water resources.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service explain the various soil conditions, develop alternative uses and treatments, help to evaluate the costs and returns of conservation work, and furnish assistance in applying the needed treatments.

The technical services provided through conservation operations are instrumental in encouraging farmers, ranchers, and others to establish conservation practices. For each dollar used to provide technical assistance, the individual landowner or user invests over $2 in conservation work.

The national land inventory and monitoring program will provide soil, water, and related resource data for land conservation, use, and development, for guidance of community development to achieve a balanced rural-urban growth, for identification of prime agriculture producing areas that should be protected, for evaluating land-use changes and trends, and for use in protecting the quality of the environment. A land resource inventory report reflecting soil, water, and related resource conditions, issued at not less than 5-year intervals, will provide essential planning data for individual land users and community, county, regional, State, and national units and agencies of government.

Section 6 of Public Law 566, 83d Congress, as amended, authorized the Department to cooperate with other Federal, State, and local agencies in making surveys and investigations of the watersheds of rivers and other waterways as a basis for the development of coordinated water and related land resource programs. The Department currently is participating in cooperative surveys and investigations in river basins with the Corps of Engineers and other interested Federal and State agencies. The Department also maintains representation on seven river basin commissions and three river basin interagency committees. These serve as points of contact in coordination between representatives of this Department and other Federal departments and agencies and the States in these basin areas. They keep all concerned mutually informed of the activities of the member agencies and facilitate matters of interagency coordination. During 1976, the Department maintained such representation on committees in the Arkansas-White-Red, Pacific-Southwest, and Southeast areas. The Department also is represented on the Water Resources Council which was formed in accordance with section 101, Public Law 89-80, Water Resources Planning Act, to coordinate water and related land resource activities of Federal departments and agencies.

The Senate Select Committee on National Water Resources proposed a goal of surveying all of the Nation's river basins and making determinations of our future water and related land resource needs. Twenty-one planning regions were established nationwide. The Department of Agriculture has cooperated in framework level planning in 14 of these regions. This Department and other departments have jointly considered needs for additional river basin surveys and investigations necessary to attain the goal.

Current needs are $10,655,000 to continue other Federal-State cooperative river basin surveys in progress in cooperation with States; $347,000 for interregional economic analysis; $1,979,000 for flood hazard analyses; and $2,025,000 for interagency coordination and program formulation.

The Department makes surveys of proposed small watershed projects, and work plans are prepared in cooperation with local sponsors. These plans outline the soil and water management problems in the watershed, the steps that have been or are authorized to be taken to alleviate these problems, the proposed works of improvement to be installed, the estimated benefits and costs, cost-sharing and operation and maintenance arrangements, and other facts necessary to justify Federal participation in project development.

Emergency operations.—This program authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to undertake such emergency measures for runoff retardation and soil erosion prevention as may be needed to safeguard life and property from floods and the products of erosion on any watershed whenever natural elements or force causes a sudden impairment of that watershed. An emergency is considered to exist when a watershed is suddenly impaired by flood, fire, wind, earthquake, or other natural cause and consequently life and property are endangered by floodwater, erosion, or sediment discharge. The emergency area need not be declared a national disaster area to be eligible for emergency watershed protection. Emergency watershed protection is applicable to small scale, localized disasters as well as large scale disasters. State environmental, natural resource, fish and game, and other agencies participate in planning and coordinating emergency work.

Emergency operations on non-Federal land is sponsored by State or local organizations. As a condition to receiving assistance the sponsoring organization must provide needed land rights, water rights, and permits and accept responsibility for operation and maintenance, if required, all without cost to the emergency operation funds. The Forest Service does this work on lands it administers and on lands adjacent to Forest Service land which they administer under formal agreement. Funds are made available to the Forest Service from this appropriation.

Small watershed operations authorized by Public Law 566.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install measures for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife enhancement.

Watershed work plans are prepared by sponsoring local organizations with the Department's assistance or through State and local resources. After work plans are approved by the Department or Congress (projects where the estimated Federal contribution will exceed $250,000 require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specific works of improvement.

Land treatment and engineering services are provided to approved projects in advance of construction. During the preconstruction state, surveys and investigations are made and detailed designs, specifications, and engineering cost estimates are prepared for structural measures, land rights areas are identified, and technical services are furnished for accelerating planning and application of land treatment measures.

On non-Federal lands, local sponsoring organizations must acquire water rights and furnish land, easements, and rights-of-way for all structural measures, except up to 50% of the cost of land rights allocated to public fish and wildlife and recreational developments may be paid from Public Law 566 funds. Local sponsoring organizations have the option of contracting for construction work or may request SCS to do the contracting for them. Local sponsoring organizations must operate and maintain completed works of improvement and in the case of multiple-purpose structures, bear a share of the construction costs. On Federal lands, Federal agencies do this work on lands they administer with appropriate contributions made by local people who receive benefits.

This program provides for cooperation between the Federal Government and States and their political subdivisions in installing works of improvement to (1) reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion, (2) for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water, and (3) the conservation and proper utilization of land. Loans are available through the Agriculture credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration to local organizations to help them finance their share of the costs to certain works of improvement.

Watershed operations authorized by Public Law 534.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention in 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development.

The Department furnishes technical and, in certain instances, financial assistance to landowners to accelerate planning and installation of land treatment measures for runoff retardation, sediment control, and water management. Local sponsoring organizations must furnish all land easements and rights-of-way, water rights, all costs of works of improvement for nonagricultural water management measures (except for those related to fish and wildlife development and recreation), and operate and maintain all completed works of improvement.

Within the 11 authorized projects, 400 subwatershed areas have been identified for planning purposes. Installation progress in these subwatersheds is as follows:

Loan services.—Loans are made to local sponsoring organizations to finance the local cost of installing works of improvement in Public Law 534 and approved Public Law 566 watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available. Loans are made from funds available for this purpose from the Agriculture credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from this appropriation.

This program provides cost-sharing assistance and technical services to participating landowners or operators in the Great Plains area in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans and practices for their land. It is a voluntary program which complements other conservation programs of the Department in 469 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Contracts with individual landowners range in time from 3 to 10 years.

Plans of conservation operations are made for each farm or ranch as a basis for cost-sharing certain practices. The fundamental purposes of this program are to achieve needed land use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability of each operating unit. The planned work is installed under contract according to specific time schedules.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

Program participants:	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Number of new contracts during year	2,077	519	2,035
Number of contracts serviced during year	17,396	15,287	17,173	14,673

As of June 30, 1976, there was a backlog of 4,458 unserved applications and about 14,768 active contracts on hand. Cooperating landowners or operators finance the entire cost of installing recurring management-type practices and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices installed on their land.

Program regulations provide that cost-share rates offered in any contract shall not exceed 80% of the cost of installing eligible practices within the designated county. The rates vary among States and practices due to differences in conservation and program needs. Cost-sharing for irrigation practices in any one contract shall not exceed $7,500 or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation. There is a cost-sharing limitation of $25 thousand for any contract.

Each participant who signs a Great Plains program contract is responsible for implementing his plan of operations; and the Department is committed to furnish the necessary technical help needed for design, layout, and other services. Cooperating landowners and operators are encouraged to make use of other available assistance under local, State, and Federal programs as a means of further improving their land and water resources.

This program provides for the Department's cooperation with other Federal agencies to assist States, local units of government, groups, and individuals in developing area plans for resource conservation and development.

Resource conservation and development areas are provided planning, technical and financial assistance to help States and local units of government prepare plans for resource development and economic improvement and to plan and install community-type conservation measures. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help carry out measures specified in area plans.

Loans are made to qualified local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of installing the measures. Funds will be available for loans from the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration.

The following tabulation shows the status of R.C. & D. areas authorized to receive planning, technical and financial assistance, and loan services:

Planning and technical assistance is being terminated in 28 areas during 1977 and 1978 to reduce the number of areas receiving planning and technical assistance to 150. The 28 areas will be those which are inactive and those which have substantially completed the area plan objectives and goals. Financial assistance will remain available to the 28 areas in which planning and technical assistance have been terminated.

These activities assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities through various marketing and regulatory services. These services continue to expand and become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the market structure undergoes extensive changes. Marketing changes include increased concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

1. Market news service.—This service provides current information on supply, movement, contractual agreements, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. The marketing of agricultural products is characterized by a series of decision points through which product flows concentrate and transactions take place. Market news provides American farmers at these decision points with timely, accurate, and unbiased information pertinent to market conditions. Thus, on a day-to-day basis, the American farmer is in a position to make the critical decisions of where and when to sell, and at what price.

Market news information is collected and disseminated at year-round and seasonal offices maintained in more than 130 cities and towns, often with local and other support and cooperation, generally from State departments of agriculture. Dissemination is primarily by radio, television, and mimeographed reports. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

2. Inspection, grading, classing, and standardization.—Nationally uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of products to: Promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of non-standard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party, and generally for a fee.

The grain inspection activities previously carried out under this subappropriation item by the Agricultural Marketing Service were transferred to the Federal Grain Inspection Service on November 20, 1976, in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 94-582. Narrative statements describing the programs and performance of these activities are included in this volume under the Federal Grain Inspection Service. The level of costs relating to obligations incurred under these activities prior to November 20, 1976, are included under this marketing services account.

3. Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of regulatory laws such as the U.S. Warehouse and Federal Seed Acts to assure fairplay in the marketplace, to protect producers and handlers of agricultural commodities from financial loss due to careless or fraudulent marketing practices, and to preserve free and open competition in the marketing of farm products. Assistance is also provided to farmers and others in obtaining and maintaining equitable and reasonable transportation rates and services on farm products and supplies. The Cotton Research and Promotion Act is designed to improve the competition position and expand markets for cotton through a program of self-assessment by cotton producers. The service also administers the Wheat Research and Promotion Act, Agricultural Fair Practices Act of 1967, and the Plant Variety Protection Act.

The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

4. Commodity program operating expenses.—This project covers activity connected with the purchase of section 32 commodities for distribution to eligible outlets. Distribution is conducted by the Food and Nutrition Service. For 1976 this activity was financed under the section 32 appropriation.

5. Marketing agreements and orders are requested by producers and handlers. Hearings and investigations are conducted and proposed agreements and orders are voted upon by eligible producers or handlers.

Marketing agreements and orders help to stabilize prices, and benefit producers and consumers by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Administration at the local level is financed by assessment upon handlers. On June 30, 1976, there were in effect 52 orders for milk, 47 agreements and orders for tree fruits, nuts, and vegetables, and 1 order for shade-grown tobacco. The expenses of advisory committees established to advise the Secretary, public hearings, referendums to determine producer sentiment, and other developmental work as authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1961 are also financed under this activity.

For 1976 and 1977 this activity was financed under the section 32 appropriation.

This program has covered such projects as: Methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products; ways of reducing marketing costs; expanding outlets for surplus products; collecting and disseminating special State and local market information and statistics; and improving the organizational structure of the marketing system.

Federal funds have not been included for this program in fiscal year 1978. State marketing bureaus or equivalent and private marketing resources will perform this marketplace function from 1978 onward.

MILK MARKET ORDERS ASSESSMENT FUND—Continued

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended—under certain conditions—to issue Federal milk marketing orders establishing minimum prices which handlers are required to pay for milk purchased from producers.

Market administrators are responsible for carrying out locally the terms of specific marketing orders. Their operating expenses, partly financed by assessments on regulated handlers and partly by deductions from producers, are reported in these schedules. These funds are collected locally, deposited in local banks, and disbursed directly by the market administrator.

Each milk order is administered locally by a market administrator who is appointed by the Secretary. His staff is employed directly by the market administrator.

The activities conducted in the local office are concerned primarily with monthly computations and public announcement of class and uniform blend prices, associated butterfat differentials, examination of handlers' records and facilities to verify their reports and payments to producers, and in checking weights and tests of producers' milk.

The expenses of each local office are met from an administrative fund and a marketing service fund which are prescribed in each order. The administrative fund is derived from prorated handler assessments. The marketing service fund of the individual order provides for the expense of disseminating market information to producers who are not members of a qualified cooperative. It also provides for the verification of the weights, sampling, and testing of milk from these producers. The cost of these services is borne by such producers.

The maximum rates for administrative assessment and for marketing services are set forth in each order and adjustments below these rates are made from time to time upon recommendations by the market administrator and upon approval of the Agricultural Marketing Service to provide reserves at about a 6-month operating level. Upon termination of any order, the statute provides for distributing the proceeds from net assets pro rata to contributing handlers or producers as the case may be.

Milk sold by regulated handlers supplied almost 150 million persons in calendar year 1975.

The following table gives an indication of the role of Federal orders on the marketing of milk over the past few years:

The appropriation includes Federal operating expenses for the Food and Nutrition Service formerly financed under the child nutrition programs, funds for strengthening markets, income and supply (section 32), special milk, special supplemental food program (WIC), food stamp program, food donations program and elderly feeding program appropriations. The new account maintains the identity of the Federal operating expenses associated with each of these programs in the activities which follow:

1. Child nutrition programs include the Federal operating expenses of Food and Nutrition Service for the overall administration of the child nutrition programs. Programs are administered directly by the Food and Nutrition Service regional offices in private schools in 12 States where a State agency has not assumed responsibility for administering the programs. This activity includes Federal operating expenses incurred by the agency in the distribution of commodities to schools which were formerly funded under commodity program operating expenses (section 32).

2. Special milk program.—Administrative assistance is provided to State agencies, participating schools and institutions.

3. Special supplemental food programs (WIC) cover the expenses incurred in the administration of the special supplemental food program (WIC). The Food and Nutrition Service allocates cash grants and commodities to State agencies, which through local health clinics make supplemental food available to eligible infants, children and pregnant or nursing women, based on State plans of operation. The agency also develops and promulgates the Federal guidelines setting forth policies, procedures, and standards for program operations and monitors State agency operations. The contents of the basic food package are also designated. These packages must include certain nutrients and must be compatible with medical and nutritional objectives and cultural eating patterns.

4. Food stamp program is in operation in all 50 States, the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, and Guam. These jurisdictions assume responsibility for certifying eligible households and issuing stamps. Food and Nutrition Service is responsible for developing policies and procedures for the jurisdictions administering the program or receiving commodities prior to transfer to the food stamp program. It also provides technical assistance to States, monitors quality control and the effectiveness and efficiency of the State administration of the program, allocates and reviews 50% matching funds to the States, directly supervises the retail and wholesale firms which are authorized to accept food stamps, and maintains fiscal accountability for the cash paid by participants and the total coupons issued.

5. Food donations program provides for the expenses of Food and Nutrition Service related to the acquisition and distribution of commodities. The major activities performed by the agency are: determination of the quantity of food required; establishment of eligibility standards; allocation of commodities; designation of time and place of shipment; and program monitoring and review.

6. Elderly feeding program includes the operating expenses associated with the commodity support for meals served under the elderly feeding program. In 1976, these expenses were funded under section 32 commodity program operating expenses.

Excludes $46,804 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to Food Program Administration. Comparable amounts for 1976, $44,800 thousand; TQ, $10,800 thousand; 1977, $43,240 thousand are included above.

Excludes $7,632 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to the Office of the Inspector General. Comparable amounts for 1976, $6,635 thousand; TQ, $1,676 thousand; 1977, ($8,231 thousand are included above.

The food stamp program subsidizes eligible households to enable them to buy food through regular retail stores. Participating households purchase food using stamps whose cost is determined by household size and income. The difference between the value of the stamps and their cost is the "bonus." Households with no income receive free stamps.

Food stamps are issued through State welfare agencies at the county level, which assume responsibility for the certification of eligible households and for issuing the correct amount of food stamps through suitable issuance outlets. State administrative costs associated with the program are shared by the States and the Federal Government on a 50/50 basis. The food stamp program is in operation in all 50 States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and the District of Columbia.

Participation in the program is expected to change significantly in fiscal year 1977 as a result of program reform. However, to date, Congress has not completed action on pending legislation and the Department has been enjoined by court action from modifying the program by changing the program regulations.

Able-bodied adults who are not considered to be exempt are required to register for and accept suitable employment as a condition of program eligibility.

The special milk program was originally designed to encourage the consumption of fluid whole milk. Under current law, the school lunch and other child nutrition programs encourage the consumption of milk by providing support for meals which include milk in schools and other child care institutions. It is no longer necessary to provide additional milk subsidies through institutions which already operate a separate child feeding program which subsidize milk as a required part of a meal.

Note.—Excludes $13,391 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to Food Program Administration. Comparable amounts for 1976, $11,700 thousand; TQ, $3,000 thousand; 1977, $15,357 thousand; are included above.

The child nutrition programs have been expanded and made more complex and costly by the passage of six laws in as many years. Most recently, Public Law 94-105, enacted October 7, 1975, placed new requirements on the child nutrition programs by redefining the word "school" to include previously excluded institutions, greatly increasing the scope of the summer feeding program, and mandating the service of reduced price meals. The activities under the heading of child nutrition programs are:

1. Cash payments to States.—The programs are operated under an agreement entered into by the State educational agencies and the Department. Funds are advanced quarterly under letters of credit to State agencies for use in reimbursing participating schools and child care institutions. Sponsors make application to the State agency and, if accepted, are reimbursed in accordance with the terms of their agreement. All of the meal programs are on a performance funding basis.

(a) School lunch program.—Assistance is provided to the States for serving lunches to all school children, regardless of income. States must match some of the Federal cash grant from sources within the State. In fiscal year 1976, sources within the States contributed $2.3 billion to this program, $490 million from State appropriations.

The program during the peak month of November 1976 provided lunches daily to about 26 million of the approximately 41 million children in attendance.

(b) Special assistance.—Additional assistance is provided to the States for serving lunches free or at a reduced price to needy children. In 1976, a peak daily average of 11.2 million children were served a total of 1.8 billion lunches. Reduced price lunches made up 7.3% of the total. The funding in 1977 should provide free or reduced price lunches for a daily average of 12.2 million needy children in schools and residential institutions this school year.

(c) School breakfast program.—Public Law 94-105 mandated outreach efforts which are expected to have an impact on participation. Federal reimbursement to the States is based on the number of breakfasts served free, at a reduced price, or to paying children.

(d) Nonfood assistance program.—The Child Nutrition Act of 1966 authorized a permanent program to assist the States, through grants-in-aid and other means, to provide capital to schools in low-income areas for the purchase of food service equipment, other than land or buildings, in addition to equipment cost allocated against reimbursement under the other feeding programs. Under Public Law 94-105, 33½% of the funds are reserved for use in schools which are without food service.

(e) State administrative expenses.—This program provides funds to each State educational agency for administrative expenses. These funds are used for supervision and technical assistance for the local school districts and service institutions in their conduct of programs under the Child Nutrition Act and the National School Lunch Act.

(f) Summer food program.—This program provides subsidies for children in poor areas regardless of their families' income or need, during the summer months, and State administrative expenses. Institutions in which one-third of the children are needy qualify for the summer program. Meals must be served free to all children regardless of income. Public Law 94-105 opens the program to all eligible institutions, provides reimbursement for breakfasts, lunches, suppers, and snacks, permits greater variety in the types of meals to be served and allows advances for both meal reimbursement and administrative expenses.

(g) Child care food program.—Preschool children receive year-round food assistance in child day care centers under this program. Food service in Head Start centers is subsidized. Public Law 94-105 made extensive changes in the program that will act to increase reimbursement, expand the program to more children and to a wider variety of child care institutions. The program provides subsidies for breakfasts, lunches, suppers, and supplements at regular, reduced and free prices.

2. Commodity procurement.—This program provides commodities to schools for the lunch and breakfast programs, and supplements the child care and summer feeding programs. A specified level of commodity support is guaranteed by law for meals served in schools and child care institutions. Commodities are acquired under programs that strengthen markets, income, and supply.

3. Nutritional training and surveys.—Up to 1% of the total funds available may be used for nutritional training and for studies and surveys of food service requirements.

² Includes $62.5 million pursuant to a court order now being appealed.

Note.—Excludes $3,000 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to: Food Program Administration. Comparable amounts for 1976, $2,150 thousand; TQ, $540 thousand; 1977, $3,000 thousand are included above.

The special supplemental food program (WIC) is authorized in section 17 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, as amended. This program is available to pregnant or lactating women, infants, and young children up to 5 years of age, who are determined by competent professionals to be nutritional risks because of inadequate nutrition and inadequate income. It is operated by the State departments of health through health clinics serving low-income areas.

The WIC food package consists of: iron-fortified infant formula, milk or cheese, high-iron breakfast cereal, and high-vitamin fruit juices. The estimated average monthly food cost per recipient is now over $22, and the related administrative cost may be as much as 20% of total costs. There are three general types of delivery systems for WIC foods: (1) retail purchase (food vouchers), (2) home delivery, and (3) direct distribution by local clinics.

It is estimated that an average of 910,000 persons will participate in the WIC program in 1978 at a total cost of $30.70 per person per month. This is a projected increase of approximately $2.75 per person per month, over estimated costs in 1977. This increase per person is due to an anticipated increase in the cost of food and increased State and local administrative costs.

Commodity support for elderly feeding programs is provided under title VII of the Older Americans Act of 1965, as amended. The foods provided are used in preparing meals which are served in senior citizen centers and similar settings. These meals are the focal point in the nutrition projects for the elderly which have the dual objectives of promoting better health and reducing the isolation of old age. The means of obtaining these objectives include the meals provided, recreational activities, informational programs, health and welfare counseling, and referral services.

Public Law 93-351 sets commodity donations at the level of 10 cents per meal subject to annual adjustment for changes in the Consumer Price Index for the cost of food away from home.

1. Forest land management—(a) National Forest protection and management.—The 154 national forests and 19 units of national grasslands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, and wildlife are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation without impairing productivity of the land and that will be environmentally acceptable. The management and utilization principles were recognized in the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to meeting the increased demands for specific national forest resource needs through 1978 and for long-term objectives to the year 2020. Increases are provided in the budget to further attainment of these program objectives. A supplemental appropriation for minerals area management is anticipated for 1977.

(c) Forest insect and disease management.—Activities to suppress destructive insects and diseases, including air pollutants, that threaten all forest lands and related resources. This work is carried on jointly with Federal, State, and private landowners and includes prevention, detection, evaluation, and suppression. Biologically sound, environmentally acceptable, and economically efficient forest insect and disease management practices are used to help fill the needs of an ever-increasing population for fiber, water, recreation, wildlife habitat, esthetics, and a healthful environment.

(d) Cooperative law enforcement.—Public Law 92-82 authorizes the cooperation with any State or political subdivision thereof in the enforcement of State or local laws on lands of the National Forest System.

2. Forest research.—Research is conducted at eight regional forest experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, and the Institute of Tropical Forestry.

(a) Forest and range management.—Research provides land managers and owners with a sound basis for management of timber, forage, wildlife, recreation, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to maintain a sustained yield of products; improve forage and habitat for livestock and wildlife without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce floods and sedimentation; improve methods for developing and managing recreation resources; provide technology needed to make it possible to surface-mine areas as needed to meet mineral and energy needs with minimum impacts on productivity and esthetic value of the lands; and provide management methods for all uses that will insure environmental protection.

(b) Forest protection.—Research is conducted to develop measures for the protection of forests from damage by fire, insects, and diseases. Forest fire research provides improved methods of preventing fires, predicting fire danger, and preparing for and combating fire by combinations of ground and aerial methods. Insect and disease research develops direct controls, cultural measures, and biological agents to combat forest pests.

(c) Forest products and engineering.—Studies are conducted to develop new and improved forest products, to reduce and utilize waste, and to use low-quality wood and less desirable species. Research is also conducted to advance the efficiency of forestry operations, and to develop and evaluate equipment for such operations as harvesting, planting, timber stand improvement, and protection of forests.

FOREST PROTECTION AND UTILIZATION—Continued

(d) Forest resource economics.—Alternative ways to improve economic and other social benefits from forest and related rangelands are developed and evaluated. This includes multi-resource forest inventory, improvement of inventory techniques, development of periodic Resources Planning Act (Public Law 93-378) assessments, research on trends and geographic shifts in production and consumption of wood products, and research on cost-effective production and supply of goods and services from forest resources.

3. State and private forestry cooperation.—Cooperates and shares responsibilities with State and other public and private agencies in guiding the protection, management, and use of non-Federal forests and related lands and resources. Specific activities include technical and financial assistance, resource protection, resource planning, and other actions designed to optimize a sustained flow of benefits and products from these lands.

(a) Forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished all States and Guam in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private and local public lands by financial aid, coordination, training, development, and procurement of equipment, and a nationwide fire prevention campaign. About 90% of the 806 million acres of non-Federal forest ownership planned for protection is now covered. The assistance provided through this program insures reduced losses of forest and related resources from man-caused and natural wildfire occurrences. Of the total expenditures under this program, 93.0% is contributed by States and counties, 0.6% by private owners, and 6.4% by the Federal Government.

(b) Forest tree production.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to the States, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and Guam for the production, acquisition, and distribution of over half of the Nation's tree planting stock for forest and windbarrier planting on non-Federal lands. About 45 million acres of nonstocked, poorly stocked, or open lands need to be reforested. Financial and technical assistance to private landowners for tree planting and timber stand improvement practices is also available through the forestry incentives program.

(c) Forest management and processing.—In cooperation with all States, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and Guam, technical assistance is given to woodland owners in applying multiple use management to their forest holdings, and to loggers and operators of forest products manufacturing plants in improving their harvesting, manufacturing, and processing techniques to extend supplies of timber, range, water, wildlife habitat, recreation, and esthetic values.

(d) General forestry assistance.—Technical management assistance is provided usually by Federal personnel and also through other arrangements to State, community, private, and other Federal agencies, forest industries, colleges, and landowners. This program also provides forest products utilization assistance to wood-using industries and loggers, technical assistance for State forest resource planning, nonpoint pollution control, endangered species protection, for wild and scenic river studies on State and private lands, and for the State and private portions of the Oregon range validation project.

The Working capital fund was established by the act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the act of October 23, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 579b). It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to National Forests, experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law, to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The forestry related supply and support services provided by the Working capital fund in fiscal year 1976 included:

Equipment service which owns, operates, maintains, replaces and repairs common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to administrative units, i.e., National Forests, experiment stations, and other units, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash, which, when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment, provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment.

Aircraft service which operates, maintains, and repairs Forest Service owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are rented to National Forests, experiment stations, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of depreciation, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Aircraft replacement costs are financed from either appropriated funds or the Forest Service Working capital fund, or a combination of both.

Supply service which operates the following common services:

Note.—Includes $10 thousand in TQ, $42 thousand in 1977, and $42 thousand in 1978 for activities previously financed from General administration, salaries and expenses.

The activities of this appropriation provide for the collection, compilation, and publication of a broad range of current statistics dealing with economic, demographic, and social data.

1. Current economic statistics programs.—(a) Business statistics.—This program provides current information on sales and related measures of retail and wholesale trade and selected service industries. The 1978 budget provides for improving the accuracy and reliability of measures of current business inventories by conducting a survey of inventories held by large, complex companies with reporting tailored to the organizational structure of each company.

(b) Construction statistics.—Reports are provided on significant construction activity, such as housing starts, value of new construction, and quarterly price indexes on new single family homes. During 1978, data on expenditures for residential alterations and repairs will be published annually instead of quarterly.

(c) Manufacturing statistics.—Surveys of key industrial commodities and manufacturing activity provide current statistics on the quantity and value of industry output. The 1978 budget provides for improvements in inventory data on the manufacturing sector needed for the national income accounts and for other analyses of current economic conditions.

(d) General economic statistics.—This subactivity provides an industrial directory of all U.S. business firms and their establishments, uniform classification data, annual county business data, and information on mergers and acquisitions.

(e) Foreign trade statistics.—Monthly, cumulative-to-date, and annual reports are published on the quantity, shipping weight, and dollar value of imports and exports, by mode of transportation, detailed commodity category, customs district, and country of origin or destination. To carry out the Trade Act of 1974, the 1978 budget proposes to monitor imports in accordance with the adjustment assistance provision of the act; to compile import data identifying articles from developing countries accorded duty-free classification; and to improve the comparability of commodity classification for imports, exports, and domestic production.

(f) State and local government statistics.—Reports are published annually regarding the revenue, expenditures, indebtedness and debt transactions, financial assets, employment, and payrolls of State and local governments. Quarterly information on State and local tax revenue is furnished on the national level by type of tax and governmental level. The 1978 budget provides for the initiation of a quarterly survey of expenditures and nontax revenues of State and local governments.

(g) Agriculture statistics.—Information on cotton ginnings and production, as required by statute, is compiled and published. Statistical services are provided regarding the information from the census of agriculture.

2. Current demographic statistics programs.—(a) Population statistics.—Annual estimates of the population of the United States are prepared for each of the States, counties, SMSA's, congressional districts, and other governmental units. Current estimates include the number of households, the farm population, school enrollment and educational levels, individual and family income, population mobility, size of families, and voting and registration trends. The 1978 budget provides for improvements to the current population survey.

(b) Housing statistics.—National and regional estimates of housing vacancy rates and the Nation's housing inventory are developed.

3. Other programs and publications.—(a) Statistical Abstract and supplements.—The “Statistical Abstract,” issued annually, summarizes Government and private statistics of the industrial, social, political, and economic activities of the United States.

(b) General research.—Research is conducted on survey methods and techniques.

This appropriation funds legislatively mandated censuses and surveys of major economic and demographic areas once or twice each decade and other major periodic activities which may be authorized.

1. Economic statistics programs.—(c) 1977 economic censuses.—The economic censuses cover manufactures, mineral industries, retail and wholesale trades and service industries, construction, and transportation; they are taken every 5th year, covering years ending in 2 and 7. The 1978 budget provides for preparatory work, data collection, and review of the economic censuses; expansion of coverage of service industries within the census of business; and assistance to respondents in completing the economic censuses forms.

(d) 1977 census of governments.—This census collects State and local government data including taxes, tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and number of employees. It is taken every 5th year, for years ending in 2 and 7. The 1978 budget provides for data collection for governmental finance and public employment and preparation of survey results for publication on governmental organization and taxable property values.

(f) 1978 census of agriculture.—Public Law 94-229 amended section 142 of title 13 U.S.C. and rescheduled the reference year of the census of agriculture from 1979 to 1978 and thereafter to years ending in 2 and 7 to coincide with the economic censuses. In addition, the legislation scheduled the censuses of irrigation and drainage in 1978 and 1987 and every 10 years thereafter.

The 1978 budget provides for continued preparatory work and determination of final methodology and content for the census.

2. Demographic statistics programs.—(b) Intercensal demographic estimates.—This program provides for updated population and per capita income estimates for approximately 38,500 general purpose governmental units for equitable allocation of funds under the General Revenue Sharing Act.

(c) 1980 decennial census.—The decennial census of population and housing requires the enumeration of the total population of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, Canal Zone, and other areas of U.S. sovereignty or jurisdiction. The 1978 budget provides for overall program direction; preparatory operational time schedules and resource estimates; a dress rehearsal; development of geographic base files; and development of the evaluation program.

(d) Registration and voting surveys.—These surveys are required by the Voting Rights Act of 1965, as amended by Public Law 94-73. Biennial surveys are conducted in every State or political subdivision falling under the act. Legislation is proposed to require the surveys on a quadrennial basis. Under this proposal the next funding request would be in 1980.

3. Periodic programs geographic support.—This program provides for the maintenance of a continuing program to fulfill the geographic requirements of the various periodic censuses and large-scale surveys and involves accurate identification of both political and statistical areas, preparation of maps, and maintenance of geographic base files.

4. Data processing equipment.—This program provides for leasing of selected electronic data processing equipment to update existing computer systems.

Capital outlay.—1. Large scale data processing equipment.—The 1978 budget provides for the purchase of additional electronic equipment needed to modernize the data processing installation of the Bureau of the Census.

2. Other capital outlay.—This provides for the acquisition of office furniture, machines, and other miscellaneous equipment necessary to conduct periodic censuses and surveys.

The Bureau of the Census performs statistical work and analysis, at cost, when it is determined to be in the public interest and the statistics furnished will not identify individuals or particular organizations.

On a continuing basis, Census furnishes age and citizenship data to individuals for their use in qualifying for social security, old-age benefits, retirement, passport, court litigation, insurance settlements, et cetera. Special censuses are conducted for States, counties, cities, towns, or other political divisions requiring an up-to-date count of their population. Census also periodically performs statistical work and data analysis for State and local governments, universities, trade associations, and individuals upon request.

The objective of the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) is to provide a clear picture of the state of the economy through the preparation, development, and interpretation of the economic accounts of the United States and related analyses. The principal programs are:

1. National economic accounts.—The national income and product accounts, summarized by the gross national product (GNP), and wealth accounts, which show the business and other components of tangible national wealth, provide an overall view of the Nation's economic process. Interindustry accounts supplement the national income and product and wealth accounts by tracing the interrelationships among industrial markets. Regional accounts provide detail on economic activity by region, State, metropolitan area, and county.

2. Analysis of business trends.—The business situation is assessed monthly and the results of continuing analysis of the major factors underlying cyclical developments and long-range business trends are published regularly. This subactivity also includes surveys of the investment outlays and plans of U.S. business, short- and medium-term econometric models which forecast economic activity within the framework of the economic accounts, estimates of capital expenditures and operating costs for pollution abatement, a system of business cycle indicators, and the preparation of the "Survey of Current Business." The 1978 request would provide for an expansion of BEA's estimates of national pollution abatement and control expenditures.

3. International economic accounts.—The balance of payments accounts depict in detail economic transactions between the United States and foreign countries. International investment estimates include surveys and analyses of U.S. direct investment abroad, foreign direct investment in the United States, income flows associated with these investments, and other economic transactions of multinational enterprises. The 1978 request would provide for the preparation and publication of a balance of payments methodology and a historical statistical supplement.

4. General administration.—General administration provides for the executive direction and administrative management of the Bureau. The 1978 request would provide: (1) general administrative support for the two new projects proposed for 1978; and (2) the leasing of an expanded electronic data processing system.

The Regional Action Planning Commissions address problems of economic dislocation or lag on a multistate, regional basis rather than a locality by locality basis. There are currently seven regional commissions, Coastal Plains, Four Corners, New England, Old West, Ozarks, Pacific Northwest, and Upper Great Lakes, which include all or part of 32 States. Each Commission is composed of the Governors of member States and a Federal Cochairman appointed by the President.

1. Development programs.—The 1978 budget includes funding for two new commissions. In 1978, development programs of the Commissions will continue planning and technical assistance but will discontinue supplemental grant programs.

2. Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for staff costs for the commissions, the Federal cochairmen, and the Special Assistant to the Secretary for Regional Economic Coordination. The 1978 budget provides administrative expenses for two new commissions.

As a mission authorized by Executive Order 11625, the Office of Minority Business Enterprise will place a major emphasis in 1977 and 1978 on encouraging and stimulating minority business opportunities in the non-Federal sector.

1. Community investment.—OMBE provides funds to establish and assist several kinds of community-based business development organizations to help minorities create new businesses and expand existing ones.

2. Private investment.—OMBE funds private organizations to assist minority firms by providing specialized services and by encouraging voluntary assistance for these firms. This assistance includes greater access to capital, markets, business opportunities, management skills, and technical assistance.

3. Government investment.—The national OMBE program funds State OMBE's in an effort to utilize the capabilities, knowledge, and resources of the State governments to enhance minority business development.

4. Business management development.—This activity was terminated by OMBE in 1976.

5. Experiment and demonstration.—In this activity, projects are undertaken to develop data required by OMBE to identify gaps in the minority enterprise effort, and to develop and test ways of generally improving the minority business program.

6. Program development and management.—Through this activity, OMBE provides for the central management, administration, and direction of the OMBE program.

1. Promotion of travel to the United States.—Activities aimed at promoting foreign travel to the United States are concentrated in six major foreign markets. In 1978 emphasis will be placed on developing economical package tours to the United States and on advertising, public information, and travel trade training programs in support of these tours. These programs, together with other factors, are estimated to produce 19.4 million arrivals and $7.3 billion in foreign exchange earnings in 1978. Of this total, results relating directly to USTS efforts are projected at 684,000 arrivals and $329 million in foreign exchange earnings.

2. Tourist services and facilities.—The elimination of the multilingual receptionists program is proposed for 1978. This action will also free funds of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for other uses.

3. Industry and State programs.—U.S. industry, States, and cities will be encouraged to participate in promoting travel to the United States through a program designed to provide them with essential market information and basic data, and through a matching grant program in which USTS will contribute up to half the cost of worthwhile, locally developed programs. USTS will also work with industry to convince international associations to select the United States as their convention site. This activity also includes funds for a domestic tourism program to develop information regarding travel within the United States. USTS will continue to participate in a cooperative promotion program with industry initiated in 1977.

4. Executive direction.—This activity provides management direction and centralized overhead support to USTS operating programs.

This appropriation provides for the research, development, support of operating programs, and acquisition of facilities needed to fulfill the basic responsibilities of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

1. Mapping, charting, and surveying services.—This activity provides for the collection and analyses of data required for charting the Nation's coastal and Great Lakes regions, production of aeronautical charts, and basic geodetic surveys. In 1978 increases will implement an automated production system for aeronautical charts and provide for releveling and readjusting the national vertical control network. The extended jurisdiction marine boundary survey program will be discontinued.

2. Ship support services.—This activity provides for operation and logistical support of the NOAA ships and management of the marine centers. Major 1978 increases will improve ship electronic maintenance and upgrade three fishery research vessels.

3. Ocean fisheries and living marine resources.—This activity provides for continued consumer availability of safe fishery products, viable commercial and marine sports fishing, and conservation of endangered species. Major 1978 increases will expand fishery assessment surveys and conservation of marine resources.

4. Marine ecosystems analysis and ocean dumping.—This activity provides information for the effective management of the marine environment and its resources. Major 1978 increases will provide additional offshore dumpsite evaluations and support the deep ocean mining environmental study (DOMES).

5. Marine technology.—This activity provides for development, testing, evaluation, and calibration of oceanographic instruments.

6. Sea grant.—The sea grant program provides matching fund grants to public and private universities, institutes, and industries to seek solutions to problems related to management and use of marine resources, and transfer of new technology to marine users.

7. Basic environmental services.—This activity provides the fundamental networks of observations, communications, analyses, and predictions that are essential for all weather forecasts and warnings. A major 1978 increase will equip weather stations with emergency power.

8. Environmental satellite services.—This activity provides for the operation of a national environmental satellite system using satellites in polar orbits for observations of global weather patterns, and satellites in geosynchronous orbits to provide near-continuous weather observations over North and South America and surrounding oceans. A major 1978 increase will expand SEASAT-A support.

9. Public forecast and warning services.—This activity provides weather services to the general public, hurricane and tornado warnings, and river and flood forecasts and warnings to all segments of the population, industry, and government. A 1978 increase will establish an additional river forecast center.

10. Specialized environmental services.—This activity provides environmental services to support aviation operations nationwide and agricultural operations in selected areas; weather services to help protect the Nation's forests and rangelands from fires and to support clean air operations by Government and industry; and information on the Sun's activities and conditions in near space. A major 1978 increase will expand stratospheric research.

11. Environmental data and information services.—This activity provides basic data and products on the atmosphere, oceans, solid earth, the Sun, and near space. A series of standard products meet many user needs and special analyses are prepared in response to individual requirements. A major 1978 increase will improve computer storage of climate data.

12. Global monitoring of climatic change.—This activity represents the United States' part of a United Nations-sponsored worldwide program to monitor the long-term changes taking place in the Earth's atmosphere and predict the changes that will occur in global weather and climate.

13. Weather modification.—This research activity examines the feasibility of modifying hurricanes and other severe storms to reduce their intensity. This activity also supports research into means of increasing rainfall from tropical cumulus clouds and provides the instrumented aircraft that support all NOAA research programs. The Atmospheric Physics and Chemistry Laboratory will be closed in 1978.

14. International projects.—This activity includes two major programs involving international participation: the global atmospheric research program (GARP) and the international field year for the Great Lakes (IFYGL). The two major active experiments in GARP are the GARP Atlantic tropical experiment and the first GARP global experiment. IFYGL is a joint United States-Canadian project of Great Lakes research. In 1978, the IFYGL effort will phase down and other Great Lakes research will be expanded.

15. Retired pay, commissioned officers.—This activity provides for the retirement pay of NOAA commissioned officers and payment of survivors of retired officers.

16. Executive direction and administration.—This activity provides for overall technical leadership and administrative management for all elements and programs of this agency.

This appropriation provides for administration, management, beneficial use, protection, and development of the land and water resources of the Nation's coastal zone, by providing grants to States for the planning and management of their coastal areas consistent with the Coastal Zone Management Act.

1. Program development grants.—These grants support development of comprehensive coastal zone management programs. A decrease is requested to reflect completion of approved State plans. The budget proposes to limit Federal grant support for each eligible State to a total of 4 years at a two-third Federal matching rate.

2. Program administration grants.—These grants are for conducting ongoing activities related to carrying out States' approved coastal management programs. An increase is requested in 1978 to fund an estimated 16 approved State programs at a two-third Federal matching rate.

3. Energy impact formula grants.—These grants provide funds designed to meet the needs of coastal States and local units of government whose coastal zones are affected by the development and production of Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas and coastal transportation of energy resources. An increase is requested in 1978 to provide funding to additional States.

4. Estuarine sanctuaries.—These grants provide for acquisition, development, and operation of estuarine sanctuaries.

5. Program management.—Provides the necessary assistance to State and territorial governments to develop and implement coastal zone management programs and coordinate Federal activities that impact coastal zone management programs.

This program provides for loans to vessel operators who, because of the high risk associated with some commercial fishing, cannot obtain commercial loans at reasonable rates for financing or refinancing the cost of purchasing or constructing, equipping, maintaining, repairing, or operating new or used commercial fishing vessels or gear. Funds for new loans are derived from repayment of principal and interest payments on outstanding loans.

A moratorium on applications for this program was declared in February 1973, due to the need to establish new regulations that would restrict loans in overharvested fisheries and to increase the fund balance through repayments.

This appropriation provides for the Department's programs in support of the basic responsibilities assigned to it by the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974.

1. Education and training.—(a) National Academy for Fire Prevention and Control.—This subactivity develops and delivers training and education programs which will improve the ability of fire service personnel and others in reducing fire losses. Increases in 1978 will provide for the development of course packages and grants to States for the development of education and training plans.

(b) Public education.—This subactivity seeks to reduce fire incidence and fire-related deaths and injuries through the development and dissemination of effective public fire prevention education programs. Increases in 1978 will provide for technical assistance to State public education centers in the preparation of fire education programs.

2. National fire data center.—This activity furnishes the fire services and others concerned with fire prevention and control quantitative and reference information which assists in identifying major problem areas, setting priorities, determining possible solutions to problems, and monitoring progress made. Increases in 1978 will provide for indepth fire investigations of problem areas identified by the fire data system and for processing, analyzing, and validating data from the fire data system.

3. Research and development.—(a) Fire technology and management research.—This subactivity provides for improved planning, research, and technology necessary to significantly decrease fire-caused losses and to improve the cost effectiveness of fire protection. Decreases are proposed in 1978 as a result of planned reductions in Federal inter-agency coordination and technology transfer activities.

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for inventions and the registration of trademarks.

Receipts deposited in the general treasury from fees were $35.6 million in 1976 and the transition quarter. In 1977, they are estimated to be $28.0 million and in 1978, $27.6 million.

Activities of the Office fall into three areas:

1. Examination of patent applications.—Applications are examined to determine whether or not the inventor is entitled to a patent for the claimed invention. Examination of patent applications also includes the performance of quasi-judicial functions in appeal and interference proceedings. Progress is being made toward the longstanding goal of reducing average pendency to 18 months for patent applications (from receipt to issue or abandonment), while improving the quality of patent examination.

The following table summarizes key patent application workload and performance data:

	1975 act.	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

Total pendency in Office, all applications (in months).....	20.7	19.5	19.5	19.0	18.8

2. Examination of trademark applications.—Applications are examined to determine whether the statutory criteria for the Federal registration of the trademark or service mark have been met. Examination of trademark applications also includes inter partes proceedings involving oppositions, cancellations, and interferences. The goal to lower the average pendency of trademark applications to 3 months, from receipt to first action, has been reached.

Note.—Includes $5,485 thousand in 1978 for activities previously financed from "Salaries and expenses"; Office of Telecommunications Policy, Executive Office of the President. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($5,692 thousand), the transition quarter ($1,361 thousand), and 1977 ($5,485 thousand) are excluded above.

1. National Bureau of Standards.—The National Bureau of Standards is the Federal Government's lead agency for the development and maintenance of a system of measurements required to support the Nation's economy.

NBS efforts are organized into the following six program activities:

(a) Provide a national system for physical measurement.—This activity provides for a national system of physical measurement standards, such as those for time, length, temperature, and ionizing radiation; and for coordinating that system with other nations.

In 1978, selected flow measurement, dimensional metrology, and electromagnetic quantity projects will be terminated.

(b) Provide services to improve use of materials.—This activity consists of developing and disseminating information on standard measurements, and test methods, and standard specifications for those properties of materials that determine performance in use, such as strength and resistance to corrosion.

In 1978, selected metallurgical and polymeric materials measurement and test development projects will be terminated, and the nondestructive evaluation program will be expanded.

(c) Provide services to improve the application of technology.—This activity provides for engineering measurements and standards for the Nation's needs in building research, product performance and safety, weights and measures procedures and regulations, electronic technology, and radiation safety.

In 1978, building use analysis and building construction standards projects will be terminated, and a national voluntary laboratory accreditation program will be established.

(d) Experimental technology incentives program.—This program develops methodology by which the Federal Government can stimulate non-Federal investment in technological innovation and can promote improved productivity throughout the economy.

(e) Improve the application of computer technology.—The purpose of this activity is to promote the effective application and use of computers and automation technology to increase productivity and to improve management efficiency.

(f) Capital outlays.—Capital outlays finance the construction or improvement of buildings and special facilities, procurement of large items of equipment, and increases in the capital of the NBS Working capital fund for the purchase of general purpose equipment and the production of reference materials.

The 1978 increase will provide for safety modifications to existing laboratory space, depreciation payments on equipment purchased in 1977, and an additional transfer to the Working capital fund to defray the inflationary impact on the cost of replacement equipment and the production of reference materials.

2. National Technical Information Service.—The National Technical Information Service collects and distributes scientific, technological, business, and demographic information generated by the Federal Government.

3. Office of Telecommunications.—The Office of Telecommunications promotes the efficient use of the radio spectrum and the effective application of telecommunications technology. In 1978, the responsibility for the spectrum management function will be shifted from the Office of Telecommunications Policy to the Office of Telecommunications.

Amounts reported include investments in equipment and inventories, and research, development and services performed for other Government agencies and the public. Programs of direct appropriations and trust funds are covered in the schedules for those accounts. The principal of the fund, as of September 30, 1976, consisted of $19 million in capital provided by appropriations, and $137 million in net donated assets.

The goal of the ship construction program is to provide a competitive U.S. shipbuilding industry and U.S.-flag fleet which are adequate for the commerce and the national security requirements of the United States.

The basic statutory authority for this program is embodied in title V of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended. The 1975 and 1976 slowdown in merchant ship construction and further shipbuilding demand slippage anticipated in 1977 has resulted in an estimated funding availability of $201 million by the beginning of 1978. During 1977, an intensive analysis of the basis of Federal support for the maritime industry is proposed. Pending the outcome of that analysis, no new budget authority is requested for 1978.

OPERATING-DIFFERENTIAL SUBSIDIES (LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORITY)

For the payment of obligations incurred for operating-differential subsidies as authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, [$388,000,000] $369,079,000, to remain available until expended. (46 U.S.C. 1119, 1171-1183; Department of Commerce Appropriation Act, 1977; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

The Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, provides that operating subsidies shall be paid to qualified operators of U.S.-flag vessels in order to promote the maintenance of a U.S. Merchant Marine capable of providing essential ocean-shipping services. Subsidies are designed to achieve a parity between certain American and foreign ship operating costs.

During 1977, an intensive analysis of the basis of Federal support for the maritime industry is proposed. Pending the outcome of that analysis, no new operating contracts or renewals are assumed after June 30, 1978. Funding for contracts currently in force that extend beyond June 30, 1978 is requested.

1. Passenger/combo ships.—Largely due to the competitive advantage of transoceanic airline service and rising passenger ship operating costs, passenger ship operators are finding it generally unprofitable to continue such service. Two subsidized U.S.-flag passenger ships, the SS Mariposa and SS Monterey, will reach the end of their 25-year economic lives during 1978, at which time subsidy will be terminated. Four combination passenger/cargo ships are expected to remain viably employed throughout 1978.

2. General cargo ships.—Subsidies provided to U.S.-flag general cargo liner ships have enabled U.S. ships to carry 30.3% of the total general cargo tonnage in U.S. foreign commerce in 1975, a 2% increase over the percentage carried in 1974 despite a 12% decline in total general cargo tonnage. Replacement of many older ships with larger, more productive ships has offset the decline in the number of ships in the U.S. fleet and contributed to the upgrading of the fleet. The full impact of newly constructed or converted ships under the Federal ship construction program is taking effect, and U.S.-flag trade penetration is expected to increase further in the years ahead.

3. Bulk carrier ships.—U.S.-flag participation in carriage of bulk cargoes has been low in recent years. However, as a result of the Merchant Marine Act of 1970, new ore-bulk-oil carriers and tankers have entered into subsidized service, and 1.4% of nonliner and 4.6% of tanker cargo tonnage in U.S. foreign trade was carried in U.S.-flag vessels in 1975. Bulk cargoes represent a substantial portion of total U.S. foreign trade, and adequate assistance will be given to insure that U.S.-flag bulk ship operators will be able to provide essential bulk services.

In addition to aiding the operation of newly constructed bulk ships, subsidy assistance is provided to the bulk fleet employed in the carriage of grain purchased by the Soviet Union. U.S.-flag ships had a 21% share of all grain shipments to the Soviet Union during the period July 1, 1972, through September 30, 1976.

A summary of operations under the program is indicated as follows:

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

For expenses necessary for research, development, fabrication, and test operation of experimental facilities and equipment; collection and dissemination of maritime technical and engineering information; studies to improve water transportation systems; [$18,500,000] $18,325,000, to remain available until expended. ¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1976, $271 thousand; TQ, $35 thousand; 1977, $10 thousand; 1978, $10 thousand.

The objective of the research and development program is to develop methods, equipment and systems to make the U.S. shipbuilding and ship operating industries more efficient, competitive, and productive.

In 1978, the R. & D. program will be conducted in four major program areas as follows:

1. Advanced ship development.—This program involves projects to achieve greater productivity in the building of ships and projects directed toward the development of new and improved ship machinery.

2. Advanced ship operations.—In this program, projects are directed toward improving the efficiency, competitiveness and safety of U.S.-flag ship operations through the development of advanced management operating techniques using computerized systems, improved fleet control by means of satellite navigation/communication systems, development of shipboard automation equipment and systems, and improved radar and sonar systems.

3. Maritime research.—This program provides for research facilities operations and investigation and simulation of new problems related to ship operations, safety, and design.

4. Advanced maritime technology.—The aim of this program is to investigate advanced technological concepts and requirements and formulate and conduct specific systems analysis and systems development projects.

Budget program.—Administrative expenses incurred in the operation of the Federal ship financing fund are paid from income to the fund. Reimbursements to the Operations and training appropriation are anticipated at $3,025 thousand in 1977, and $3,206 thousand in 1978. Advances to operators are estimated at $3,500 thousand in 1977, and $3,500 thousand in 1978, in order to forestall possible defaults on insured mortgages.

Financing.—The fund receives income from insurance premiums on construction loans and mortgages, fees and interest on U.S. Government securities, and mortgages held directly. The payment of administrative expenses is to be made from this income, while payments for advances to operators, redemption of defaulted loans and mortgages are paid from income, equity, and borrowing from the Treasury Department. No borrowings are anticipated in 1978.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to re-activate, operate, deactivate, and charter merchant vessels, and operate experimental vessels under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Commerce. These operations are financed by the Vessel operations revolving fund. In addition, the fund is available to finance the necessary expenses to protect, maintain, preserve, acquire, and use vessels involved in mortgage-foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings instituted by the United States.

Budget program.—As of September 30, 1976, there are four claims in process of settlement which resulted from operation of Government-owned ships and General Agency Agreements in the Vietnam sealift. The 1978 program anticipates the annual testing of ships in the Ready Reserve Fleet.

Financing.—Expenses are financed by charter hire revenue, reimbursements from Federal agencies, and insurance underwriters.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to insure against loss or damage by marine war risks when it is found commercial insurance cannot be obtained on reasonable terms and conditions. This insurance includes war risk hull and disbursements interim insurance, war risk protection and indemnity interim insurance, second seamen's war risk interim insurance, and war risk cargo insurance standby program.

Budget program.—It is estimated that during 1978 insurance coverage will be provided to approximately 555 U.S.-flag ships, 1,500 LASH and Seabee barges, as well as a selected number of foreign-flag ships. The program also includes provision for second seamen's war risk insurance covering the crews of five vessels under contract to the Military Sealift Command.

Financing.—Under 46 U.S.C. 1288, the Secretary of Commerce established the War risk insurance revolving fund. It receives income from binder fees, insurance premiums, interest from investments and claim reimbursements from other Federal agencies. Underwriting agents' fees and expenses, appraisal contractors' fees, and insurance claims are paid from this income. While additional appropriations for the program are authorized, none are requested for 1978.

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the Reserve components, which include: Army and Air National Guard; and Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves.

National Guard and Reserve personnel.—These programs provide funds for training members of the Ready Reserve as the initial and primary augmentation of the active forces during any future emergency. Most of the paid National Guard and Reserve personnel perform 48 drills and attend 2 weeks of active duty for training each year. Other personnel not requiring as intensive training receive only a period of active duty for training (usually 2 weeks) during the year. Active duty for basic training is provided for personnel enlisting in the National Guard or Reserve who have not previously received military training. Certain high school senior and graduate enlistees may drill with pay while awaiting active duty for basic training. Service schools and special tours of active duty training provide additional training for limited numbers of the Ready Reserve.

The numbers of National Guard and Reserve personnel estimated to participate in the paid training programs are summarized in the following table:

Reserve officer candidates.—The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a collegiate institution at which an ROTC unit has been established. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum period of 3 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes a limited number of scholarships for ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships are required to serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer. There will be about 6,500 scholarship recipients in the Army, about 6,000 in the Navy, and about 4,775 in the Air Force in 1978.

The Armed Forces health professions scholarship program provides a source of commissioned officers for the various health professions. Student enrollment in 1978 will be about 1,850 in the Army, 1,319 in the Navy, and 1,575 in the Air Force.

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force provide training for students who elect to enroll in Junior ROTC training at the secondary level of education, and are programmed to have 650, 223, 52, and 275 units, respectively, in operation in 1978.

The number of commissioned officers graduated from these programs are summarized below:

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all personnel on the military retired lists of the Department of Defense. The estimate represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for: (a) payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) retainer pay of enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps; and (c) survivors' benefits. The primary gains to the retired rolls can be attributed to the greater number of individuals attaining eligibility for retirement after 20 or more years of active military service. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1976 and transition quarter compared with estimated numbers for 1977 and 1978.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

The appropriations under this title finance the day-to-day costs, except military personnel costs, of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the Reserve components, and related support activities of the Department of Defense. These funds include amounts for pay of civilians, contract services for maintenance of equipment and facilities, fuel, supplies, and repair parts for weapons and equipment. Financial requirements for these appropriations are influenced by a variety of factors, the principal of which are force levels, such as the number of aircraft squadrons or Army or Marine Corps divisions, military strength and deployments, rates of operational activity, number of installations, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, et cetera) in operation.

ACTIVE FORCES

Funds to operate the Active Forces and their support are contained in five operation and maintenance appropriations, one for each of the four services and one for Defense agencies. The programs covered under this heading are described below:

1. Strategic forces.—Strategic offensive forces include more than 400 manned B-52 and FB-111 bombers and 1,054 ICBM's operated by the Air Force as well as the Navy's submarine missile fleet, which deploys 656 Polaris and Poseidon missiles.

Strategic defensive forces consist of interceptor fighter aircraft of the Air Force, and various warning, command, and control systems also operated by the Air Force.

2. General purpose forces.—These forces of the four military services operate under the control of the various unified and specified commands. They consist of the tactical air forces of the Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps, the ground forces and supporting aircraft elements of the Army and Marine Corps, and Navy combatant and support ships. Among these forces are those deployed to eastern Asia, the western Pacific, and to Europe in support of NATO commitments; the fleets operating in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the Mediterranean; and active forces based in the United States.

Our tactical air forces consist of the Air Force tactical air wings, Navy land and carrier based antisubmarine and attack air wings, and Marine air wings. The missions performed by these forces include maintaining air superiority, interdiction bombing, close air support, antisubmarine patrol, reconnaissance, combat crew, readiness air group, and transition training and special operations. The Navy will continue to deploy the F-14 to partially replace F-4's in the air superiority fleet air defense role; continued production of the F-15 and A-10 into the Air Force arsenal in 1978 will provide for transfer of F-4 and A-7 weapon systems to the Reserve Forces. The Air Force will initiate appropriate action to fully equip their present 26-wing structure in 1978. Flight training simulator programs will be continued to provide for improved training of aircrews and to reduce energy consumption.

Army land forces consist of infantry, mechanized, armored, airborne, and airmobile divisions as well as force elements needed to support these divisions during the initial stages of combat, along with a limited number of units required for sustained combat support. Emphasis will continue to be placed on increasing combat readiness. Additional combat units will be modernized with the latest equipments and weapons for the conduct of land warfare.

Marine Corps land forces, composed of marine amphibious forces, including a combination of combat and service support organizations and a variety of supporting units, are designed to conduct amphibious assault operations and other missions with the close support of Marine aviation. The Marine Corps' objective in 1978 will be the maintenance of the Fleet Marine Forces at a high level of combat readiness for service with the fleet, ashore or for other duties as national security may require.

Naval forces include aircraft carriers, submarines, amphibious forces, antisubmarine forces, and anti-air warfare forces. One nuclear aircraft carrier (CVN), five nuclear submarines (SSN), and one nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser (CGN) will be introduced into the fleet in 1978. Thirteen other ships will also become operational, including 11 of the 963 class destroyers, the first of a new class of guided missile frigates (FFG), and a fleet tug (TAFT). The addition of these modern vessels will permit continued inactivation of overage and obsolete vessels.

3. Intelligence and communications.—This program comprises the centrally directed Defense intelligence and security function, the major portion of the consolidated telecommunications program (CTP), the National Military Command System, and other special activities which are related to and support the missions of the combat forces in the strategic, general purpose, and airlift/sealift programs. Included in the CTP portion are the Defense Communications System (DCS), common user transmission and switching systems, as well as non-DCS communications. Funds to support intelligence, security, and communications activities are contained in the various appropriations of each of the military services, and, in the case of the Defense Communications Agency, Defense Nuclear Agency, Defense Intelligence Agency, Defense Mapping Agency, Defense Investigative Service, and National Security Agency, in the Defense agencies appropriation. Included among the special activities are Navy oceanographic and weather programs and Air Force weather, air rescue and recovery, and air traffic control and landing system programs.

4. Airlift and sealift.—This provides air, land, and sea transportation services for all the Armed Forces in peacetime as well as quick reaction strategic mobility and logistical support in wartime. The major commands in this program are the Military Airlift Command of the Air Force, the Military Sealift Command of the Navy, and the Military Traffic Management Command of the Army, all of which are industrially funded operations whose costs are reimbursed by the users. The operation and maintenance appropriations directly provide for certain administrative and base service support expenses for each of these industrially funded activities.

7. Central supply and maintenance.—This program includes funds for specialized supply and maintenance activities. It provides resources for the determination of inventory levels, procurement of supplies, distribution, depot-level maintenance, and transportation of military materiel. These functions are managed by the military services and conducted at various locations worldwide.

In addition, the Defense Supply Agency provides common supply and services support to the military services within the continental United States and manages bulk petroleum worldwide. The Agency also manages Defense-owned standby industrial plant equipment, the Defense surplus property disposal program, and the Defense portion of the Federal catalog program. It is also responsible for providing contract administration services, including enforcement of the equal employment provisions of Executive Order 11246, as amended, administration and supervision of Department of Defense materiel utilization program, and coordinated procurement programs.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—In 1978 the military services plan on acquiring approximately 450,000 new accessions into the Active Forces. Continued success of the All-Volunteer Force will necessitate a strong effort by the recruiting organizations of each service to attract the new personnel required. These new accessions must then be trained in basic military skills, in many occupational skills, and in career fields. Training requirements are also influenced by the total strength of the services, and by the introduction of new equipment and weapons. Most training is conducted at service-operated facilities, such as training centers for the training of new recruits, at technical schools which afford training in specific military occupational skills, and at pilot training bases. Education of prospective officers is accomplished primarily by the three service academies and by Reserve Officer Training Corps units at universities and colleges. The services operate 170 hospitals to provide medical care for active and retired military personnel and for dependents. In addition, this program finances a medical program at civilian medical facilities for personnel in areas where service hospitals are not accessible.

The Federal Procurement Institute is also funded in this activity. The Department of Defense is the executive agent for this interagency institute, which is responsible for Government-wide programs in procurement research, education, training, and career development.

9. Administration and associated activities.—This program includes the costs of departmental administration, major field command headquarters, and general support activities such as finance and audit. Reimbursement to the General Services Administration for space occupied is also included in this program.

10. Support of other nations.—This program includes military assistance missions, advisory groups for foreign nations, and the U.S. share of NATO, SEATO, and CENTO costs, plus support of U.S. organizations related to these international military headquarters.

PROCUREMENT

The procurement appropriations of the Department of Defense finance the acquisition of combat, combat support, and training equipment; including aircraft, missiles, ships, tanks, and other vehicles; guns of all sizes, torpedoes, and communications equipment; air, ground, and ship munitions; major items for support of equipment when it is in use; industrial facilities necessary to produce that equipment; and major modifications of on-hand equipment where increased capability can be achieved without buying new equipment. The equipment financed by these appropriations is bought primarily from private contractors or, when necessary, produced in Government arsenals, shipyards, and plants. The 1978 program provides for continuing production of current systems and initial procurement of some new systems to maintain the military forces necessary to meet U.S. national security and foreign policy objectives.

Army systems funded in 1978 include advanced procurement funding for the XM-1 main battle tank, initial production of the man-portable Stinger antiaircraft missile, and procurement of the Roland advanced forward area air defense system. Accelerated procurement of the UH-1H utility helicopter, and continuing procurement of the mechanized infantry combat vehicle, armored personnel carriers and field artillery systems in 1978 will upgrade the overall combat capability of the Army.

Modernization of our naval forces in 1978 includes advance procurement funding of the new F-18 combat fighter and additional procurement of the F-14 fleet air-defense fighter. Also included is continued procurement of the Trident strategic missile and submarine, nuclear attack submarines, and purchase of the first ship equipped with the Aegis air-defense missile system. The dollar amount for ships in the 1978 estimates include $0.6 billion to cover claims and cost increases to 1975 and prior year programs. Significant Air Force programs include procurement of the B-1 aircraft to modernize our long-range bomber capability, and continued procurement of F-15 air superiority and F-16 air combat fighters. Advance procurement funding is also provided in 1978 for the new air-launched cruise missile.

Direct budget programs are estimated as follows:

This appropriation finances the acquisition of tactical and utility airplanes and helicopters, including associated electronics and communications equipment and armament; modification of in-service aircraft; ground support equipment; and depot reparable assemblies, components and repair parts such as spare engines, transmissions, and gear boxes. It also funds related first destination transportation and production base support.

The 1978 program provides for increased ground forces mobility through procurement of the UTTAS (utility tactical transport aircraft system) helicopter. It also provides increased heliborne antiarmor fire power through continued acquisition of the AH-1S TOW missile-launching helicopter.

This appropriation finances the construction of new ships and the conversion of existing ships, including all hull, mechanical, and electrical equipment, electronics, guns, torpedo and missile launching systems, and communication systems.

The 1978 program is the first in a five year plan resulting from a National Security Council study of naval force requirements. The new plan provides for a larger number of relatively smaller ships and for no additional Nimitz class aircraft carriers. Additional, smaller aircraft carriers are provided for in 1979 and 1981.

1. Fleet ballistic missile ships.—Funds requested in this activity are for two Trident class ballistic missile submarines and for long leadtime equipment for future Trident submarines.

2. Other warships.—The 1978 request includes two high-speed nuclear-powered attack submarines and the first of a new class of guided missile destroyers equipped with the Aegis air defense system. Advance procurement funds are also included for the first of a class of nuclear-powered guided missile strike cruisers, which will be requested in 1979 and for modernization of older carriers and guided missile destroyers, which will be requested in 1980.

3. Mine warfare and patrol ships.—This activity requests funds for 11 guided missile frigates, formerly designated patrol frigates, continuing a long-range program of procurement of this type of ship.

4. Auxiliaries, craft, and prior year program costs.—Funds in this activity will procure four fleet oilers, five fleet tugs, and a hydrofoil support ship conversion. Funds are also included for landing craft, service craft, outfitting and post delivery costs, and for improved manufacturing technology. About $.6 billion is requested in this budget activity for cost growth and claims associated with 1975 and prior year shipbuilding programs.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

Programs in this title support the development, test and evaluation of new and improved weapon systems and related equipment performed by the Army, Navy, Air Force, Defense agencies and Director of Test and Evaluation. These programs also provide for scientific research to support defense missions. Work is performed by industrial contractors, government laboratories, universities, and nonprofit organizations.

Research and development programs are normally funded such that each year's resources support a 1-year increment of activity. Funds for research and development carried out by the Department of Defense for civil defense are listed in a separate title, Civil Defense.

For 1978, the budget activity structure for Defense research, development, test, and evaluation has been changed and the budget plan totals $12,043,600 thousand, an increase of $1,447,976 thousand over the 1977 plan as shown below (in thousands of dollars):

1. Technology base.—This activity provides for the development of promising technological advances to support development of future defense systems. Research and development activities in this area are initial efforts to determine feasibility of principles and concepts and involve the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences.

2. Advanced technology development.—This activity supports exploration of promising systems alternatives and concepts. Among the efforts to be funded in 1978 are programs in aeronautics and propulsion, flight simulation, biomedical sciences, materials and structures, weapons technology, high-energy lasers, and electronics.

3. Strategic systems.—This activity ensures that future strategic systems will continue to deter nuclear attacks, as well as coercion through the threat of nuclear attack, against the United States and its allies. Major development efforts for 1978 will lead to modernization of all three components of the retaliatory triad of strategic systems. The submarine and missile components of the Navy's Trident sea-launched ballistic missile system will continue in development, as will the Air Force B-1 bomber. Full-scale development of the Air Force M-X will begin, permitting deployment of a survivable intercontinental ballistic missile by the mid-1980's. There will be continued improvements in ballistic-missile reentry vehicles. To provide future strategic options, two cruise missiles will continue in full-scale development in 1978. The Navy is developing the Tomahawk sea-launched cruise missile, and the Air Force is developing the air-launched cruise missile. Concepts for strategic defense will also be explored in two Army programs for ballistic-missile defense—the advanced technology program and the systems technology program.

4. Tactical systems.—This activity provides new combat systems for general purpose forces of the United States and its allies. Major developments in land-warfare systems for 1978 include the XM-1 tank, the Advanced Attack Helicopter, and the Patriot (SAM-D) air-defense system.

To maintain technological advantage in air-warfare systems, the Air Force and the Navy will continue development of the F-16 and the F-18 tactical fighter aircraft. Also, air-to-air missile programs will be pursued to provide advanced weapons for these high-performance platforms. Development of vertical/short takeoff and landing technology for Navy and Marine Corps aircraft will be emphasized.

The major development effort in the ocean-control area is the LAMPS antisubmarine warfare helicopter. In addition, other advances in ocean surveillance, undersea surveillance, fleet offense, fleet air defense, anti-submarine warfare, mine warfare, and multipurpose Naval vehicles will be continued.

In the combat-support area, where developments in air mobility, logistics, tactical communications, combat integration, electronic warfare, navigation systems, and physical security are funded, the Air Force Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS) will continue in development.

5. Intelligence and communications.—This activity provides improvements to Defense capabilities in intelligence and worldwide communications.

6. Programwide management and support.—This activity provides funding for support-type efforts including Federal contract research centers, ranges and test facilities, and studies and analyses.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Active and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Active forces.....	1,974,669	66,704	2,119,777	1,283,500
Reserve forces.....	226,467	6,388	186,505	176,100
Interservice activities.....	22,294	1,523	49,534	34,400
Total.....	2,223,430	74,615	2,355,816	1,494,000

Most of the appropriations required for the military construction accounts are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. The details of this legislation have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration. The requested military construction program is consistent with a special presidentially directed study to examine the current domestic basing structure and prepare a multiyear program for the modernization of essential domestic defense installations. Construction requested this year at installations within the continental limits of the United States includes only those projects required pending completion of the study. The recommendations of the study will be the basis for preparing 1979 and subsequent military construction programs.

1. Major construction.—This category provides for the acquisition of land and for construction of military projects as authorized in currently effective military construction acts and the new authorization referred to above. These authorizations include construction projects as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2 where the estimated cost of such construction generally exceeds $75 thousand per project. Under this category the major activities proposed for 1978 are as follows:

Strategic forces.—Provision has been made to upgrade existing facilities and provide for personnel support for strategic warfare systems. Funds also have been provided to continue to support the Trident weapons system.

General purpose forces.—Projects in this category support general combat forces including their command organizations, the logistics organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units, including medical, which are deployed as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations. Construction in support of headquarters actions in Europe to increase command effectiveness is included in the 1978 program.

Specialized activities.—Funds are provided for the continued support of the joint defense effort of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Funding for abatement of air and water pollution at defense installations is continued to assure that actions to correct violations of Federal, State, and local air and water quality standards have been taken or are underway.

Research and development.—The 1978 program includes facilities in support of programs to advance knowledge and technology in such areas as weapons systems, communications, electronics, and medicine. These programs emphasize the search for improved capabilities in the Armed Forces.

Reserve components.—The funding levels programed for facilities required for the training of the National Guard and the other Reserve forces reflect the importance placed on these activities being identified as the primary source of augmentation of Active forces in future emergencies.

Logistics.—Funding for construction of facilities to provide physical security of tactical aircraft and nuclear weapons worldwide is continued at the significant program levels provided in recent years.

Personnel support.—Funds are provided for improved housing, medical, and community support for lower grade enlisted personnel and junior grade officers to encourage their retention in the service and the development of an All-Volunteer Force. Upgrading of existing facilities with the application of improved standards has been provided in addition to new construction.

2. Minor construction.—Provision is made for construction of permanent and temporary projects that are not otherwise authorized by law but which are determined to be urgently required and do not exceed $400 thousand per project for the Active forces and $50 thousand per project for the Reserve component projects. An Active force project may be accomplished without determination of urgency if the savings in maintenance and operations cost are estimated to exceed the cost of the project within 3 years after project completion. Maintenance and operations funds may be used where the estimated cost of an Active force project is $75 thousand or less without determination of urgency. The minor construction program will continue at the same relative level as in prior years.

3. Planning.—This provides for necessary planning of military construction projects, including design, standards, criteria, studies, appraisals, and other related activities.

4. Supporting activities.—Provision is made for activities such as the defense access road program and minor land acquisition.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, DEFENSE AGENCIES

(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

For acquisition, construction, installation, and equipment of temporary or permanent public works, installations, and facilities for activities and agencies of the Department of Defense (other than the military departments and the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency), as currently authorized in military public works or military construction Acts, and in sections 2673 and 2675 of title 10, United States Code, [$41,396,000] $34,400,000, to remain available until expended; and, in addition, not to exceed $20,000,000 to be derived by transfer from the appropriation "Research, development, test, and evaluation, Defense Agencies" as determined by the Secretary of Defense: Provided, That such amounts of this appropriation as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense may be transferred to such appropriations of the Department of Defense available for military construction as he may designate: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated under this paragraph may be expended for the cleanup of Enewetak Atoll until such time as the Secretary of Defense receives certification from appropriate administering authorities of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands that an agreement has been reached with the owners of the land of Enewetak Atoll or their duly constituted representatives that this appropriation shall constitute the total commitment of the Government of the United States for the cleanup of Enewetak Atoll.

All feasible economies should be realized in the accomplishment of this project, through the use of military services' construction and support forces, their subsistence, equipment, material, supplies and transportation, which have been funded to support ongoing operations of the military services and would be required for normal operations of these forces. Further, such support should be furnished without reimbursement from military construction funds. Note.—Excludes $512 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Department of State." Comparable amounts for 1976 ($396 thousand) and TQ ($111 thousand) are included above.

1. Construction.—The requested family housing construction program is consistent with a special presidentially directed study to examine the current domestic basing structure and prepare a multi-year program for the modernization of essential domestic defense installations. Construction requested this year at installations within the continental limits of the United States includes only those projects required pending completion of the study. The recommendations of the study will be the basis for preparing 1979 and subsequent construction programs.

(a) Construction of new housing.—For 1978, the construction or acquisition of 856 new permanent units at an estimated cost of $42.8 million is proposed in furtherance of the continuing effort to provide adequate family housing. The units are distributed by service as follows: Navy—852 and Defense agencies—4.

(b) Construction improvements.—For 1978, $18.6 million is proposed for the continuing program to improve the livability and operating economy of older units, including $1.2 million for projects qualifying for the Defense energy conservation investment program and $4.8 million for projects to be accomplished under minor construction authority.

(c) Planning.—Funds are included in the construction of new housing budget activity to design the 856 housing units in the 1978 program. Costs to be incurred for planning future year housing projects and for projects which will not go forward to completion are estimated at $3 million for 1978.

2. Operation, maintenance, and interest payment.—
(a) Operation.—For 1978, $617.6 million is required for the operation of an estimated 389,000 family housing units (excluding leased units); and $92.9 million is required to lease 21,533 units in the United States and overseas as part of the program to provide adequate family housing for eligible personnel.

(b) Maintenance of real property.—The cost of maintenance and repair of the family housing inventory is estimated at $567.5 million for 1978.

(c) Interest payments.—For 1978, $39.6 million is required to defray interest charges on the indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing and for related expenses. In addition, appropriation of $115.8 million is required for reduction of agency indebtedness that was assumed with the acquisition of the Capehart, Wherry, and surplus commodity housing.

(d) Mortgage insurance premiums.—For 1978, premium payments of $4.0 million are required on mortgage insurance provided by the Federal Housing Administration; (1) through the general insurance funds on mortgages assumed by Defense to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing; and (2) on mortgages assumed by active military personnel for housing purchased under the provisions of the National Housing Act, as amended.

This fund finances a program for reducing the losses of military personnel and civilian employees incident to disposition of their one- or two-family dwellings when military installations are closed or when reductions in the scope of operations are ordered. Eligible personnel may be reimbursed for certain losses resulting from the sale of their dwellings located at or near such installations, or the Department of Defense may acquire such property. Proceeds from sale or rental of such property are deposited in this fund. The following business-type statements reflect operation of the program which started in 1968.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

By authority of 10 U.S.C. 2208, the Department of Defense stock funds finance the acquisition of inventories of consumable materials and supplies (items which are uneconomical to repair) for resale to the military services and other authorized customers. These inventories are stocked and sold at designated Defense activities worldwide. The stock funds also finance inventories of consumable material for use in case of mobilization.

Budget program.—The increase in obligations in 1977 and 1978 results from an increase in product cost, extended procurement leadtime, and procurement of mobilization reserve stocks. These same conditions have resulted in an increase in the value of inventories. Yearend inventories are estimated as shown below (in millions of dollars):

Financing the budget program.—Funds for financing the budget program are usually derived from sales to customers. An appropriation of $171 million in 1978 is requested to finance a buildup in war reserve assets. Expenditures in 1978 are projected to increase by $797 million from 1977 as a result of continuing price increases in materials purchased and procurement of mobilization reserve stocks. Yearly expenditures are estimated as shown below (in millions of dollars):

	Gross expenditures
	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Army stock fund.....	3,735	907	4,083	4,180
Navy stock fund.....	2,459	586	2,630	2,778
Marine Corps stock fund.....	203	41	214	215
Air Force stock fund.....	4,766	1,165	5,103	5,463
Defense stock fund.....	5,346	1,244	5,805	5,996
Total Department of Defense stock funds.....	16,509	3,943	17,835	18,632

Department of Defense stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future years' sales (10 U.S.C. 2210(b)). This is necessary because the procurement leadtime for material acquisition is greater than the time required to fill and collect customer orders. Pursuant to this authority, contract authority of $2,186 million was available at the end of 1976, decreasing to $1,560 million in 1978.

Operating results and financing conditions.—Revenue and expenses for 1977 and 1978 are projected on a break-even basis. Investment (equity) of the U.S. Government at the end of 1978 is estimated at $13,092 million; including $17,200 million in inventory and other assets capitalized, less $3,585 million in working capital transferred out, and a cumulative operating deficit of $523 million.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance activities performing industrial or commercial-type functions on a reimbursable basis (10 U.S.C. 2208). These programs are supported by orders received at the activities from a variety of service accounts whose funds provide the working capital for their completion. Industrial fund activities are then reimbursed by customers through progress payments for the full production costs. Government investment as of June 30, 1978, is estimated at $558.1 million.

Budget program.—In 1977 and 1978, the services will continue to implement a program to stabilize and fix rates charged to customers at all industrial fund activities. Estimated total costs of goods and services produced in 1978 are projected to increase by $0.5 billion, reflecting an increase in support requirements. Yearend totals are shown in the following table (in millions of dollars):

	TOTAL PRODUCTION COSTS
	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Army industrial fund.....	1,988.4	489.7	2,058.9	2,139.8
Navy industrial fund.....	5,734.2	1,440.3	6,454.9	6,756.3
Marine Corps industrial fund.....	33.1	8.3	35.5	40.8
Air Force industrial fund.....	2,411.8	609.6	2,643.3	2,740.3
Defense industrial fund.....	399.8	100.7	411.5	426.4
Total.....	10,567.3	2,648.6	11,604.1	12,103.6

The U.S. Army activities financed through the Army industrial fund include depot supply and maintenance operations, research and development, arsenals, and technical engineering, the U.S. Army Missile Command and the eastern and western areas of the Military Traffic Management Command. More efficient overall depot maintenance and supply operations are reflected in the 1978 budget as a result of savings from the reorganization of the depot system in 1976. The increase in cost of goods and services produced in 1978 reflects a continued expanded depot maintenance program for the Army to reduce accumulated backlogs.

The Navy industrial fund finances a variety of activities, including aircraft maintenance facilities, ordnance stations, research laboratories, shipyards, strategic systems project offices, printing plants, public works centers, and the Military Sealift Command. Workload at the industrially funded facilities is projected to slightly increase between 1977 and 1978.

The Marine Corps industrial fund finances maintenance depots engaged in repairing or overhauling Marine Corps equipment and providing technical engineering support. The increase in costs and services in 1978 continues the effort begun in 1976 to accelerate the depot maintenance programs to reduce backlogs and to increase services being provided to customers.

The activities financed under the Air Force industrial fund include printing plants, laundries, depot maintenance activities, and the Military Airlift Command. The increase in the costs of goods and services produced in 1978 results from higher in-house operating costs, increased contractual service costs, and the rise in price of aviation fuel.

The Defense industrial fund finances the Defense Clothing Factory and leased communications procured by the Defense Commercial Communications Office. The cost of operations is projected to remain relatively level between 1977 and 1978.

8. Wabash River Basin, Ind., and Ill.
9. White River Basin, Ark., and Mo.

Special studies are made to resolve unique or complex water resource problems. Funds are requested to continue eight special studies, and to initiate three special studies: the Hydropower Resources study, the National Waterway study, and the Great River study.

Funds are provided to continue restudy of the Kaunakakai Deep-Draft Harbor, Molokai, Hawaii, and to initiate restudy of the Palouse River, Pullman, Wash., now carried in a deferred category.

The Flood Control Act of 1970 provides funds to review the operation of completed projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers when significant changes in physical or economic conditions occur. Funds are provided to review 13 completed projects.

Funds are provided, in accordance with section 12 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974, to continue studies of projects requiring a detailed review prior to making decisions regarding recommendations for deauthorization.

Surveys are made in coordination with Federal, State, and local agencies and interests. They give appropriate consideration to present and future requirements for all beneficial uses of water and related land resources, including navigation, flood control, water supply, irrigation, water quality control, wastewater management, power, recreation, bank and beach erosion, and fish and wildlife conservation.

2. Collection and study of basic data.—Funds are transferred to the U.S. Geological Survey for installation, operation, and maintenance of stream gaging stations and to the National Weather Service for hydrometeorological studies. The Corps of Engineers participates on a number of engineering and control boards that study and control international streams mutually affecting the United States and Canada. Information about the flood hazard, advice, and assistance are furnished to the States, and local governmental agencies upon their request, and to other Federal agencies for guidance in the management of flood plain areas to assure the best and safest use of such areas. Because of the growing program of flood plain management services furnished by the Department of Housing and Urban Development through the Flood Insurance Administration, the budget reflects in part a phasedown of certain types of corps-funded services, such as flood plain information reports. It also reflects the fact that research and development funding is provided in 1978 to continue a series of nine pilot studies which analyze the relationship between the flood hazard and development off as well as on the flood plain. General hydrologic and related studies are made to assist in optimizing the design, construction, and operation of projects. Scientific and technical information centers prepare and distribute literature to scientists and engineers to improve their knowledge of new developments in their fields. Coastal engineering field data are collected to evaluate alternative solutions to coastal problems to develop coastal project designs, and for general planning applications. Transportation systems studies will permit keeping the inland navigation system and analysis program current and will permit analysis of navigation systems operation and the impact of alternative operational assumptions on other transportation modes.

3. Research and development.—These investigations are conducted to improve the Corps capability to execute the civil works program with maximum effectiveness, economy, and safety, and with due regard for protecting and enhancing environmental values. The current program comprises investigations in the areas of: Design, materials, and construction management, primarily soils, rock, concrete, structural engineering, and electrical and mechanical engineering; coastal engineering; flood control and navigation, including waterways, locks and dams, improvement of operation and maintenance techniques, hydrology of cold regions, and ice engineering; environmental quality, including environmental impact and wastewater management; water resources planning studies, including planning methodologies, analytical techniques for water resources management, and recreation; and testing and evaluation of earth resources satellite applications to civil works activities.

The requested appropriation for 1978, of $1,490 million, is an increase of $53 million over the appropriation for 1977 and an increase of $253 million compared with the appropriation for 1976. About 83% of the requested appropriation will be applied to 77 major projects in amounts of $5 million or more each.

1. Advance engineering and design.—Design studies establish project features and cost estimates required for preparation of contract plans. The funds requested for 68 projects will bring designs and plans for 21 to the State where they will be ready for construction, and will permit continuation of planning on 47 other needed projects.

2. Navigation projects.—This activity includes improvement of channels and harbors by dredging and construction of breakwaters, jetties and dikes, and construction of locks, dams, and canals. Funds are also requested for the construction of small navigation projects not requiring specific congressional authority, and for mitigation of shore damages attributable to navigation projects.

With the funds requested, work will be continued in 1978 on 27 channel and harbor projects, of which 5 will be completed, and on 12 lock, dam, and canal projects, of which 2 will be completed.

3. Beach erosion control projects.—The Federal Government assists in the construction of works for the restoration and protection against erosion by waves and currents of the shores of the United States and its possessions. Funds are also provided for the construction of small beach erosion control projects not requiring specific congressional authority.

Funds are requested for eight beach erosion control projects. Four are for continuing construction, two will be completed, and two are reimbursement projects.

4. Flood control projects.—This activity includes local protection projects and reservoirs for flood control and other purposes, such as water supply, but without power installations. Local protection projects consist of channel improvements, levees, and floodwalls. Funds are also requested for small flood control projects not requiring specific congressional authority, emergency streambank and shoreline protection, and small snagging and clearing work on navigable streams and tributaries. With the funds requested, work will be continued on 72 local protection projects, of which 8 will be completed with 1978 funds; and on 63 reservoir projects, of which 7 will be completed.

5. Multiple-purpose power projects.—Work will be continued on 27 multiple-purpose projects with power installations, of which 3 will be completed with the funds requested.

6. Rehabilitation.—Rehabilitation work is undertaken on existing projects that have deteriorated to the extent that their usefulness has been impaired. Work will be initiated on seven projects, and work continued on three of which one will be completed with 1978 funds.

7. Recreation facilities at completed projects.—A total of $24 million is included; $16 million for projects to be developed under a policy requiring local cost-sharing comparable to that now required for the recreation features of all new projects; $8 million to remedy sanitary deficiencies.

8. Land acquisition fund.—This fund, established in 1971, permits the acquisition of lands required for authorized Federal projects in those cases where delay creates an extreme hardship on owners or causes an unusual escalation of project land costs. Funds were provided in prior years for this activity.

9. Small authorized projects.—Funds were provided in prior years for this activity.

10. Streambank erosion control evaluation and demonstration.—Funds are provided, in accordance with section 32 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974, as amended, to conduct a national streambank erosion prevention and control demonstration program.

11. Shoreline erosion control demonstration.—Funds are provided, in accordance with section 54 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1974, to conduct a national shoreline erosion control and demonstration program.

12. Fish and wildlife studies.—Funds were provided in prior years for detailed studies and reports by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to determine the effects on fish and wildlife resources of water-control projects of the Corps of Engineers. Starting in 1978, these activities will be funded under individual projects.

13. Aquatic plant control.—This program is for the control and progressive eradication of water hyacinths, alligator weed, Eurasian watermilfoil, and other obnoxious aquatic plant growths from navigable waters, tributaries, connecting channels, and other allied waters of the United States, in the interest of navigation, flood control, drainage, agriculture, fish and wildlife conservation, public health, and related purposes. The authority includes research to develop the most effective and economic control measures.

14. Employees compensation.—Funds are provided, in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 785, to equal costs paid from the Employees' Compensation Fund on account of injuries or death of employees or persons under the jurisdiction of the Corps of Engineers civil functions.

The Corps of Engineers—Civil is responsible for the flood control program for the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo. to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, lower Arkansas, Yazoo, Tensas, and Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou La Fourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvement by bank stabilization from Head of Passes, La., to Cairo, Ill., and by a system of dikes, revetments, and by dredging a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for five flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

1. General investigations.—Ten studies will be continued with 1978 funds. Basic data subsequently used in planning and designing projects are collected.

2. Advance engineering and design.—Funds were provided in prior years to continue planning.

3. Construction.—The total cost of flood control and related improvements in the lower Mississippi River and its alluvial valley is estimated at $6,174 million, of which $2,495 million has been appropriated through 1977. The funds requested will be applied to continuation of 15 features.

4. Maintenance.—Provision is made for operation and maintenance of major features of this project.

5. Rehabilitation.—Funds are provided for rehabilitation of the Old River control structure.

The fund provides for the acquisition, operations, and maintenance of plant and equipment used in civil works functions, for temporary financing of services chargeable to civil appropriations and for furnishing facilities and services for military functions of the Department of the Army, other governmental and private persons (33 U.S.C. 576).

Budget program—operating costs.—Operating costs will increase about 8% in 1978.

Land and structures.—The 1978 program includes $2.88 million for the design, rehabilitation, and construction of structures for use by Coastal Engineering Research Center, Cold Regions Laboratory, San Francisco District, Savannah District, and the Waterways Experiment Station.

6. Dredges.—The 1978 program includes $7.12 million for the design and rehabilitation of the Corps of Engineers hopper dredges as follows: $1.8 million for continuation of the conversion of the Comber's auxiliary electrical system from direct current to alternating current; $5.32 million for rehabilitation and modification of hopper dredges Biddle, Comber, Essayons, Gerig, Goethals, Hyde, Langfitt, and Markham. The $6.6 million appropriated in 1977 for design and construction of new hopper dredges has been proposed for rescission by the President. Accordingly, no funds were included in the 1978 budget to continue this work.

7. Other floating plant.—The 1978 program includes $9.62 million for the design, rehabilitation, and construction of major items of floating plant for use by various Corps districts.

8. Land-based equipment.—The 1978 program includes $4.5 million to purchase ADP equipment.

9. Tools, office furniture, and equipment.—The 1978 program includes $3 million for a variety of relatively small tools, office furniture, and equipment.

Operating results and financial condition.—Unreserved earnings in 1976 amount to $3.5 million, and are expected to decrease to about $2.2 million by 1978. Capital (Government equity) of the fund amounted to $248.3 million at June 30, 1976, and is limited to $291 million by the Public Works for Water and Power Development and Energy Research Appropriation Act, 1977. Capital was increased by net earnings of $20.5 million in 1976 and $5.4 million in the 1976 transition quarter. Increases in 1976 transition quarter, 1977, and 1978 are principally due to earnings reserved for plant replacement which are wholly invested in assets. Capital of the fund is expected to reach $286.4 million at the end of 1977; and $314.9 million at the end of 1978. To permit operation at program levels for those years and into 1979, an increase in authorized capital to $325 million is required.

Consolidation summary of personnel.—The revolving fund is used to initially finance all payrolls of the Corps of Engineers—Civil.

The table which follows shows the distribution of personnel and salary costs to appropriations of the Corps of Engineers and to other accounts.

The Panama Canal Company is a wholly-owned Government corporation whose primary purpose is maintaining and operating the interoceanic canal at the Isthmus of Panama, together with its essential supporting operations.

The administration of the Company is integrated with that of the Canal Zone Government, an independent agency initially financed by appropriations. The Governor of the Canal Zone is ex officio president of the Company. The Company is expected to be self-sustaining and is required to reimburse the U.S. Treasury, to the extent earned, for the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, the cost of interest on the net direct investment of the United States in the Company, and for the annuity payments made by the United States to the Republic of Panama pursuant to the Treaty of 1903, as amended in 1936.

Section 62, title 2, Canal Zone Code, requires payment be made to the Treasury annually, to the extent earned, for the net cost of the Canal Zone Government and interest on the net direct investment. If not earned, such payments are to be made from subsequent earnings.

Financing.—The Company is authorized to obtain appropriations for its capital needs and to cover losses sustained in the conduct of its activities. In addition, under Public Law 93-607 (88 Stat. 1966), the Company may borrow from the Treasury, at interest, amounts not exceeding $40 million outstanding at any time. While the latter authorization is utilized to backstop the Company's obligations, no cash withdrawals against it are planned during 1977 or 1978. With the total borrowing authority utilized as a resource, the Company's unobligated balance at September 30, 1978, is estimated at $19.4 million.

Operating results and financial condition.—The net operating results are a loss of $1,946 thousand in the transition quarter, and a margin of $4,213 thousand and $7,161 thousand in 1977 and 1978, respectively. To the extent earned, payments to the U.S. Treasury of prior periods' unearned costs are scheduled at $3,949 thousand in 1977 and $4,827 thousand in 1978. The operating results include a toll rate increase effective in November 1976. The rate for laden ships was increased from $1.08 to $1.29 per Panama Canal net ton; for ships in ballast from $0.86 to $1.03 per Panama Canal net ton; and for vessels not susceptible of measurement under the Panama Canal rules, the rate was increased from $0.60 to $0.72 per displacement ton. The Treasury balance is estimated to be $44,656,758 at September 30, 1977, and $44,656,758 at September 30, 1978.

Note.—The U.S. General Accounting Office has not examined the Company's accounts for 1976 and the transition quarter, and this statement of financial condition is subject to revision pursuant to the auditor's findings.

Contingent liabilities and commitments.—The estimated maximum liability, in addition to liabilities taken into the accounts, which could result from pending claims and lawsuits was $5.3 million at June 30, 1976. In the opinion of management and Company counsel, these pending claims and lawsuits will be resolved with no material adverse effect on the financial condition of the corporation. Commitments under uncompleted construction contracts and unfilled purchase orders amounted to $22.9 million at June 30, 1976. Of this amount, $0.3 million in unfilled purchase orders were prepaid. In addition, the Panama Canal Company is liable for an indeterminate amount with respect to death and disability payments under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act.

The Company held as custodian negotiable Government securities in the face amount of $6 million at June 30, 1976, to guarantee payment by third parties of their obligations. Effective May 9, 1969, the Company entered into a 25-year contract with the Instituto de Recursos Hidraulicos y Electrificación, an autonomous agency of the Republic of Panama, for the purchase of electric power to be produced by that agency. Effective September 1, 1972, by mutual agreement, the contract was suspended for a period of 3 years. On September 1, 1975, the suspension of the contract was extended to December 31, 1976. As of June 30, 1976, the Company's minimum liability over the remaining period of the contract amounted to approximately $68.2 million.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) administers and enforces consumer protection laws concerning dangerous, misbranded, and adulterated foods, drugs, human biologics, medical devices, cosmetics, and man-made sources of radiation.

1. Foods.—To insure the safety of the U.S. food and cosmetic supply, FDA reviews industry petitions and publishes tolerances for food additives, conducts research, develops improved methods to detect adulteration, sets standards for classes of food, and defines industry good manufacturing and sanitary practices. FDA inspects food and cosmetic processing plants and marketing establishments, analyzes samples to verify that these products are safe and properly labeled, and—when necessary—takes regulatory action to obtain compliance with the law.

2. Drugs and devices.—FDA insures that human and animal drugs, human biologics, and medical devices are safe, effective, and properly labeled. FDA reviews data to support the safety and efficacy of these products prior to marketing, evaluates reports of industry and the medical profession, and conducts research. FDA also inspects manufacturing firms, reviews labeling, analyzes samples, and—when necessary—takes regulatory action to enforce the legal requirements.

3. Radiological products.—FDA is responsible for eliminating unnecessary exposure to electronic product radiation through research, surveillance, and voluntary and mandatory performance standards.

4. National Center for Toxicological Research.—FDA conducts research programs to study the biological effects of potentially toxic chemical substances found in man's environment.

5. Program management.—This activity includes FDA's executive and administrative functions.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1976, $3,591 thousand; TQ, $1,168 thousand; 1977, $5,084 thousand; 1978, $1,362 thousand.

² Excludes $211,051 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health; comparable amounts for 1976, $168,143 thousand; TQ, $49,949 thousand; and 1977, $185,326 thousand.

This appropriation includes activities that fund grants for or provide health services. For 1978, legislation is proposed to consolidate the categorical health services programs into a single State block grant program and to phase out the direct delivery of health care through the Public Health Service hospitals. The following activities from this appropriation are proposed for consolidation with other similar health services programs into a single State block grant:

1. Community health services.—(a) Community health centers.—Community health centers provide primary ambulatory health care and arrange for specialty and inpatient care.

(b) Comprehensive health grants to States.—Grants are provided to States on a formula basis for a wide range of health services independently determined by the States.

(c) Maternal and child health.—These grants finance services for mothers and children and to crippled children. These programs are administered by the States from grants awarded on the basis of a formula.

(d) Family planning.—Grants are provided to pay for services to persons who desire them and are in need.

(e) Migrant health.—Grants are provided to pay for primary health care services to migrants, seasonal farmworkers, and their families.

(g) Hypertension.—This formula grant program assists State health authorities in meeting the costs of programs for treatment of hypertension.

(h) Home health services.—Project grants are awarded to meet the initial costs of establishing new home health agencies or expanding services at existing agencies.

(i) Hemophilia.—Project grants support comprehensive hemophilia diagnostic and treatment centers and blood separation centers.

3. Patient care and special health services.—An annual payment is made to the State of Hawaii for the care and treatment of persons afflicted with leprosy.

5. Emergency medical services.—Grants support the delivery of emergency health care services in selected geographic areas.

Programs not to be included in the block grant:

1. Community health services.—(f) The National Health Service Corps provides health professionals to communities, on a demonstration basis, where critical health manpower shortages exist.

2. Quality assurance.—This program is designed to assure that health care services provided under medicare, medicaid, and other Federal programs are medically necessary and are furnished in the most economical manner consistent with recognized professional standards of care.

3. Patient care and special health services.—This program provides direct and contract health care to the legal beneficiaries of the Public Health Service. Legislation is being proposed to close the Public Health Service hospitals or transfer them to community use. Care in PHS clinics will continue to be provided to primary beneficiaries and persons with Hansen's disease will continue to be treated in the Carville, La., leprosarium.

The responsibility for providing health care to U.S. Coast Guard personnel is currently being transferred to the Department of Transportation in keeping with its overall responsibility for Coast Guard activity. The Department of Justice will continue assuming responsibility for providing medical care to persons in Federal prisons.

The Division of Federal Employee Health currently provides consultation to Federal agencies on the establishment of Federal employee health programs. The Division will terminate operations by 1978. Legislation is proposed to eliminate the need for agency consultation with HEW in agency head determinations to provide employee health services.

Medical care and burial costs for persons involved in the HEW 1932 untreated syphilis study in Tuskegee, Ala., will continue to be paid from this account.

4. Health maintenance organizations.—This program is designed to demonstrate the feasibility of prepaid health care plans.
