This is a public enterprise revolving fund. Direct loans will be sold to the Federal Financing Bank to provide funds for new loans and loans thus sold will be guaranteed. In 1975, $35,000 thousand was appropriated to the Health Services Administration as capital for the revolving fund.

It is anticipated that 30 loans averaging $2,000 thousand per loan will be made during 1977 and an additional 36 loans averaging $2,500 thousand per loan will be made during 1978. It is projected that loans totaling $99,000 thousand will be sold to the Federal Financing Bank in 1978.

 Note.—Excludes $98,481 thousand in 1978 transferred to "Assistant Secretary for Health, Salaries and Expenses." Comparable amounts for 1976, $64,482 thousand; TQ $10,590 thousand, and 1977, $75,543 thousand are included above.

The Center for Disease Control (CDC) conducts activities and assists State and local health departments in the prevention and control of communicable and occupational diseases.

1. Disease control.—CDC awards project grants to State and local governments and other organizations for: (1) the prevention and control of venereal diseases; (2) the support of immunization programs; (3) the control of rats in urban areas; and (4) the prevention of lead poisoning in children.

2. Occupational safety and health.—The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health provides the research base for Federal efforts to assure healthful and safe working conditions. Research grants are awarded to develop knowledge about diseases and hazards of the workplace. The in-house research capabilities are augmented by contracts with various organizations, particularly with respect to the development of criteria for occupational safety and health standards.

Funding for Center for Disease Control staff in 1978 is requested in the "Assistant Secretary for Health Salaries and Expenses," account.

² Excludes $483,289 thousand in 1978 transferred to "Assistant Secretary for Health, Salaries and Expenses." Comparable amounts for 1976, $386,058 thousand; TQ, $105,279 thousand; and 1977, $444,257 thousand; are included above. Funding for NIH staff in 1978 is requested in the Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health account.

The National Institutes of Health is the primary source of Federal support for biomedical research. The basic goal of the NIH is to develop knowledge of the biological bases of health and disease and of safe and effective methods to prevent, detect, diagnose, and treat disease. These research efforts are carried out through grants, contracts, and intramural research. The funds for the grants and contracts programs of the NIH are contained in this budget request. The funds for the support of the intramural research programs and support activities, and for the support of the scientific and administrative management aspects of the NIH are contained in the budget request "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health."

A distribution of budget authority by organization for the NIH follows (in thousands of dollars). The columns headed 1976, TQ, and 1977, represent the total available funds for NIH, while the column 1978 reflects only the funds for the grants and contracts programs which are being requested under this account title.

1. Research grants.—NIH's research activities are carried out principally through the funding of research grants. Regular research grants are awarded to individuals or institutions for health-related research projects following review for scientific merit by discipline-oriented initial study groups. Each funding organization has a National Advisory Council which provides a second level of review in relation to its particular responsibilities. Grants are also awarded to support various programs designed to enhance the capacity to conduct research, such as clinical and specialized research centers. In addition, NIH has awarded formula grants, called biomedical research support grants, to research institutions (this program is proposed for phaseout).

2. Training.—The development and advancement of a highly trained body of health researchers to carry out the NIH mission is an important part of the NIH research program. Under the National Research Service Act, fellowships are awarded to individuals who demonstrate potential for excellence in their fields. Individual post-doctorate fellowships awarded as a result of national competition will be continued, but awards made to institutions are being phased out, as are awards to pre-doctoral candidates.

3. Research and development contracts.—Research funded through the contract mechanism is more targeted than that supported through grants. Directed activities, such as the development and evaluation of medical devices, vaccines, and chemotherapeutic agents, complement the fundamental research program of NIH, and assist in the translation of basic research findings into health care delivery. One critical aspect of the contract program is the funding of clinical trials to test the developments of NIH's research.

4. Intramural research.—This activity contains the support for NIH's direct program of intramural, laboratory, and clinical research, including the resources necessary to administer the NIH Clinical Center. Over 6,000 scientists and support personnel are engaged in the intramural research program, an integral part of the total NIH research program. In 1978, these activities are being transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health."

5. Direct operations.—Over 4,000 personnel are involved in this activity which provides the administrative and management support for the extramural grant and contract programs of NIH as well as the maintenance and other support staff for the intramural research program. Included in the support are the scientific and technical staff and the management staff, who review and monitor the direction and progress of NIH's extramural programs. In 1978, these activities are being transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health."

6. Program management.—This activity includes funds for management and program direction, including scientific information dissemination and program planning and evaluation. These activities are being transferred in 1978 to "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health."

7. Disease control.—Activities designed to translate expeditiously research findings to patient care and treatment at the community level are funded by NIH in the heart disease and cancer areas. These activities are limited to demonstration projects.

8. Construction grants.—Construction grants support expansion of the space available for cancer-related research, primarily through the alteration of existing facilities and the construction of biohazard facilities.

This direct construction program provides for the design and construction of Federal laboratories, libraries, office buildings, and other facilities essential to carry out the mission of the NIH. The major project funded in 1978 is the continuation of construction on the ambulatory care facility extension to the NIH clinical center in Bethesda, Md.

The NIH management fund was established to facilitate the conduct of NIH central operations. Fund activities are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. The personnel associated with this activity are requested in the "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health" account in 1978.

1. Computer services provide a central scientific research and computational resource in support of the NIH programs.

2. Research services provide centralized and collaborative engineering, scientific, and technical support for research activities.

3. Engineering services provide engineering, architectural, craft, and labor services required for all of the Institutes.

4. Clinical services provide facilities and services, other than physician care, for an integrated operation of its 541-bed facility servicing nine Institutes; developing and recommending policies and rules for the protection and welfare of patients; and conducting research in methods and techniques of hospital administration; as well as numerous other medical care services.

5. Grant review provides staff support services in formulating National Institutes of Health grant and award policies and procedures relating to research and training programs; serves as a staff resource for central receipt and referral of all applications for Public Health Service research and training grant support; provides for the initial scientific review of NIH research and training grant applications; collects, analyzes, and evaluates management and program data needed in the management of the extramural programs.

6. Administrative services include plant and office housekeeping and protection and security services.

7. Standard level user charges provide for the payment to the General Services Administration for rental space occupied by the National Institutes of Health.

This fund supports research under interagency agreements between the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences and the Environmental Protection Agency and between the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases and the Center for Disease Control.

1. Research on health effects of pollutants.—Studies under this agreement are currently being conducted by the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences. They are designed to elucidate and predict the health effects of pollutants and other potentially hazardous by-products associated with the various energy technologies and conservation proposals being developed in response to the Nation's drive toward energy self-sufficiency.

2. Influenza immunizations.—The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases is continuing research related to the swine flu immunization program.

The NIH Service and supply fund provides a single means for consolidated financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers.

1. Administrative services.—These include such services as the sale of commodities from inventory, printing and reproduction services.

2. Data processing services.—This central facility provides data systems design and consultation, key punching, computer programming and computer processing services to NIH research components.

3. Instrumentation.—The biomedical instrumentation and engineering branch maintains, repairs and fabricates scientific laboratory apparatus and equipment for use in the research laboratories at NIH.

4. Research animals.—The NIH animal facilities provide animals for the NIH research laboratories.

Excludes $82,932 thousand in 1978 transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health." Comparable amounts for 1976, $80,977 thousand, TQ $18,939 thousand; and 1977, $88,662 thousand are included above. Excludes $12,358 thousand in 1978 and $12,366 thousand in 1977 for activities transferred to the Indian Health Services. Comparable amounts for 1976, $11,303 thousand; TQ $3,792 thousand are included above.

1. General mental health.—(a) Research.—This activity supports extramural mental health research through grants and contracts.

(b) Training.—This activity supports individuals and institutions engaged in mental health training. The budget proposes a phaseout of training activities except for continued support of postdoctoral research fellowships.

(c) Community programs.—This activity supports the community mental health center programs. The budget consolidates these programs into the health block grant proposed for 1978.

2. Drug abuse.—(a) Research.—This activity supports extramural drug abuse research through grants and contracts.

(b) Training.—This activity supports individuals and institutions engaged in drug abuse treatment training. The budget reflects a phaseout of training activities except for continued support of postdoctoral research fellowships.

(c) Community programs.—This activity supports community-based drug abuse treatment, demonstration, and prevention programs through grants and contracts. Funds are also allocated to States through formula grant programs for statewide drug abuse treatment programs.

3. Alcohol abuse.—(a) Research.—This activity supports extramural alcohol abuse research through grants and contracts.

(b) Training.—This activity supports individuals and institutions engaged in alcohol abuse treatment training. The budget reflects a phaseout of training activities except for continued support of postdoctoral research fellowships.

(c) Community programs.—This activity supports treatment and prevention activities at the community level through grants and contracts, implementation of the Uniform Alcoholism and Intoxication Treatment Act, and a State formula grant program. The budget proposes folding these programs into the health block grant proposed for 1978.

4. Buildings and facilities.—This activity supports buildings and facilities of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration.

5. Funding for the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration staff in 1978 is requested in the "Salaries and expenses, Assistant Secretary for Health" account.

Note.—Excludes $71,832 thousand in 1978 transferred to Assistant Secretary for Health "Salaries and expenses." Comparable amounts for 1976, $66,808 thousand; TQ, $18,360 thousand; 1977, $71,853 thousand are included above.

1. Health statistics.—This activity develops and maintains general purpose health statistical data collection systems including the continued development of a national cooperative health statistics system.

2. Health planning and resources development.—Federal funds support State agencies, designated local health planning agencies, and planning centers to assist the State and local planning agencies in their activities. Health planning activities would be included in the consolidated State block grant program proposed for later transmittal.

3. Health services research.—This activity conducts research to improve the organization, delivery, quality, and financing of health services. The center carries out its activities through intramural and extramural research.

4. Health professions education.—Under this activity the Federal Government will provide capitation grants in the amount of $1,500 to medical, osteopathy, and dental schools in return for agreement by the schools to meet national conditions to train needed primary care practitioners. Health professionals will be placed in medically underserved areas as a result of awarding 3,500 service commitment scholarships. Student loan assistance for the academic year 1977-78 will be provided to assist students with limited financial resources pursuing careers in the health professions. For the academic year 1978-79, $22 million will be available to schools for student loans from the repayment of earlier loans made under this program. In addition, up to $500 million in Federal loan guarantees will be available from the Health professions graduate student loan insurance fund for academic year 1978-79.

5. Health facilities construction.—This program provides interest subsidy payments to meet previous commitments on long-term guaranteed loans to health professions schools.

6. Program management.—This activity supports the staff and operating expenses related to the program direction and extramural management of HRA programs. In 1978, funding for the statistical, services research, and program management staffs is requested in the "Assistant Secretary for Health, Salaries and expenses," account.

Title VI of the Public Health Service Act established a loan guarantee and loan fund for medical facilities in the Treasury, without fiscal year limitation, to discharge responsibilities under guarantees; for payment of interest on the loans to nonprofit sponsors which are guaranteed; for direct loans to public agencies which are sold and guaranteed; for payment of interest on direct loans which are sold and guaranteed; and for repurchase of direct loans which have been sold and guaranteed.

The National Health Planning and Resources Development Act, Public Law 93-641, also established a loan guarantee and loan fund which is being consolidated with the aforementioned fund. This fund authorizes direct loans to nonprofit sponsors as well as public agencies and guaranteed loans to nonprofit sponsors.

The fund consists of $50 million restricted for use in fulfilling guarantees in event of default; $30 million serves as a revolving amount from which direct loans are made; and funds required to provide for interest subsidy payments on both direct and guaranteed loans.

The request for $41 million for interest subsidies in 1978 is required to honor the interest subsidies for loan commitments made through September 30, 1976. The 1977 appropriation provides for an additional $250 million in new loan authority. Interest will begin to accrue on the new authority in 1979.

Nearly $1.4 billion in direct and guaranteed loans will be outstanding in 1978.

Title VII, part C, of Public Health Service Act established a revolving fund from which health professions schools could borrow in order to provide loans to their students. Public Law 89-751, the Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966, amended the Public Health Service Act to authorize the Federal Government to pay the difference between the interest paid by students to the schools and the interest payable by the schools to the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Treasury.

In 1978, provisions are made for the following Federal payments: $88 thousand to GNMA, which represents the difference between the 5.25% interest rate earned by the student loan paper (promissory notes) and the 6.38% rate paid by GNMA on the $7,782 thousand worth of paper (participation certificates) held by the public; $409 thousand to GNMA which represents the 5.25% interest due on $7,782 thousand worth of paper held by the public; $1,317 thousand to the U.S. Treasury on the difference between the U.S. Treasury interest rate and that paid by the schools on $18,159 thousand loaned to the schools.

Title VIII, part B, of the Public Health Service Act established a revolving fund from which schools of nursing could borrow in order to provide loans to their students. Public Law 89-751, the Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966, amended the Public Health Service Act to authorize the Federal Government to pay the difference between the interest paid by students to the schools and the interest payable by the schools to the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Treasury.

In 1978, provision is made for the following Federal payments: $23 thousand to GNMA, which represents the difference between the 5.25% interest rate earned by the student loan paper (promissory notes) and the 6.38% rate paid by the GNMA on the $2,106 thousand worth of paper (participation certificates) held by the public; $111 thousand to GNMA which represents the 5.25% interest due on $2,106 thousand worth of paper (participation certificates) held by the public; $644 thousand to U.S. Treasury on the difference between U.S. Treasury interest rate and that paid by the schools on $8,884 thousand loaned to the schools.

Under the Health Professions Education Assistance Act of 1976, the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare received authority to insure up to $500 million in loans to graduate health professions students in eligible institutions. Deposits to the fund are derived by an insurance premium payable by the lender to the Federal Government. Such premiums are not to exceed 2% per year of the unpaid principal amount of such loans (excluding interest added to principal) and are payable in advance.

This table excludes the Food and Drug Administration and the Indian Health Service, a component of HSA, since they are not funded under the Labor-HEW Appropriation Act. The special fund personnel cited at the bottom of the table are funded in other accounts, and consist of personnel for the Assistant Secretary for Health and National Institutes of Health service and supply funds; the Assistant Secretary for Health and Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration consolidated working funds; the Public Health Service trust fund; and allocated positions funded in departments other than HEW.

This account funds the following activities:

1. Program operations—a. Saint Elizabeths Hospital.—The hospital provides treatment for the mentally ill who are primarily residents of the District of Columbia, but may also be beneficiaries of the Federal Government. Hospital programs currently are financed by Federal appropriations covering services to Federal beneficiaries and by reimbursements made to the hospital for services rendered other patient groups, principally residents of the District of Columbia. Federal appropriations to the hospital are of the indefinite type, under which the hospital receives, in appropriated funds, the difference between the amount of reimbursements actually received during the year and total program costs approved by the Congress.

b. Public Health Service hospital system.—PHS hospitals and clinics provide direct and contract health care for the more than 500,000 legal Federal beneficiaries. The largest single category of these beneficiaries is American seamen, who in 1976 comprised 46 percent of the PHS general hospital inpatient workload. On a reimbursable basis, health care is also provided to foreign seamen, to beneficiaries of other Federal agencies and, under special agreements, to certain community groups.

c. National Health Service Corps.—This program will support 975 assignees in 453 sites in 1978 to demonstrate ways in which physicians and other health professionals can be attracted and retained in shortage areas.

d. Health statistics.—This activity supports the staff which develops and maintains general purpose health statistical data collection systems, including the national cooperative health statistics system.

e. Health research.—This activity supports the intramural research conducted by the National Institutes of Health as well as the National Library of Medicine and the John E. Fogarty International Center for Advanced Studies in the Health Sciences, the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, and the Health Resources Administration.

f. Preventive health.—This activity supports the staff of the Center for Disease Control, which includes the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health. CDC conducts a wide range of activities in the prevention and control of communicable and occupational diseases.

g. Health professions education and health planning.—This activity supports the staff which administers the health professions education program, and the health planning and resources development program. Technical assistance is provided to State and local agencies responsible for health planning.

h. Health care systems improvement.—This activity includes staff support for programs designed to improve the organization and delivery of health services. These include quality assurance, assistance to health maintenance organizations, and emergency medical services systems.

i. Community health services.—This activity includes staff support for programs funding health services, including maternal and child health, family planning, migrant health, and the alcohol, drug abuse, and community mental health programs.

2. Regional operations.—This activity includes the staffs of the 10 regional health administrators which have the responsibility of administering decentralized grant and loan programs and providing technical assistance to State and local health agencies. Also included in this activity is the headquarters staff responsible for coordinating the activities of the regional offices.

3. Program direction and management services.—This activity supports the directors and administrators of the health agencies and the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Health. They are responsible for the overall direction and management of health programs of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Scientific activities overseas (the special foreign currency program) are supported entirely by foreign currencies owned by the United States abroad. These currencies are available for the Department's use in those countries where the supply of U.S.-owned currency exceeds normal U.S. Government needs for at least 2 years. For 1978, the Treasury Department has designated six excess currency countries: Burma, Egypt, Guinea, India, Pakistan, and Poland. Authorization for the activities funded by the health agencies with these currencies is provided by the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended; and the International Health Research Act of 1960.

The general objective of this program is to add knowledge which will contribute to U.S. health programs and objectives, while being of mutual interest and benefit to host countries.

The 1978 request for $11,387 thousand in new obligational authority is required to meet proposed program activities in Egypt, Pakistan, and India.

1. Grants for disadvantaged.—Grants are made to local educational agencies on a formula basis to help them improve their educational programs in order to meet the special educational needs of educationally deprived children. In addition, grants are made to State agencies for the education of handicapped children, dependent and neglected children and orphans and juvenile delinquents in State institutions and for children of migratory workers. It is estimated that over 5 million children in about 14,000 local school districts and from over 300 State agencies will participate in school year 1978-79. This includes an estimated 215,000 in nonpublic schools. Contracts are also awarded to support program evaluation and related studies.

Since 1975, funds under this program have been appropriated a year in advance of their use by State and local organizations. The present request includes an appropriation of $2,285,000 thousand for school year 1978-79 to become available on July 1, 1978, and to remain available through September 30, 1979. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

2. Support and innovation grants.—Formula grants are made available to the States under this consolidated program to provide support for strengthening State departments of education, supplementary services, nutrition and health, and dropout prevention. Since 1975, funds under this program have been appropriated a year in advance of their use by school districts. The present request includes an appropriation of $194,000 thousand for school year 1978-79 to become available on July 1, 1978, and to remain available through September 30, 1979. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

3. Bilingual education.—This program supports local bilingual education classroom instructional projects and assists in developing State, local, and university capabilities for training bilingual personnel and in providing resources for the development, assessment, and dissemination of bilingual instructional materials.

In 1978, school year 1978-79, with the funds requested the program will support an estimated 406 classroom projects enrolling approximately 187,000 children, provide inservice training for 24,000 teachers, paraprofessionals and administrators, sponsor traineeships and fellowships to approximately 900 teachers and potential teachers in the area of bilingual education, and fund awards to about 54 institutions of higher education for activities including staff and program development in the field of bilingual education. In addition, 40 State education agencies will receive awards for technical assistance and coordination of bilingual education programs.

4. Right to read.—This discretionary grant program provides facilitating services and resources to stimulate educational institutions, governmental agencies and private organizations to improve and expand their activities related to reading. The right-to-read program is both an impetus to, and a component of, a large national reading effort.

5. Follow through.—This program is designed to test, demonstrate, and disseminate alternative educational approaches for disadvantaged children in primary grades. In 1977, some 75,000 children in 164 projects will receive services. In order to disseminate improved compensatory educational practices, "lighthouses" demonstrating the most successful first generation models will become operational in 1977.

6. Educational broadcasting facilities.—Matching grants are made for acquisition and installation of electronic equipment to be used in noncommercial, educational broadcasting stations to serve the educational, cultural, and informational needs of Americans at home and school. Projects demonstrating how nonbroadcast facilities can be used to distribute information on health, education, and social services are also supported. Amounts provided in 1977 will activate 6 educational TV and 13 educational radio stations and will expand and improve 26 educational TV and 31 educational radio stations. About eight demonstrations will also be supported.

7. Ellender fellowships.—A grant is awarded to the Close Up Foundation to support fellowships to students to familiarize them with the operations of the Federal Government. In 1977, over 1,800 such fellowships will be supported. No funds are requested in 1978.

8. Drug abuse education.—Project grants are made to develop drug education leadership teams at the State and local level through a variety of training programs, and to provide technical assistance to such teams to aid them in assessing local drug problems, develop programs and skilled leadership to combat their causes and evaluate existing drug problems. No funds are requested for this program in 1978.

9. Environmental education.—Grants are awarded to both public and private nonprofit organizations and agencies to assist the development of effective environmental education resources needed for the development of programs at all levels of formal education and for non-formal adult education. No funds are requested in 1978.

10. Ethnic heritage studies.—Grants are awarded to public and private nonprofit educational agencies, institutions, and organizations to assist them in planning, developing, establishing, and operating ethnic heritage studies programs. In 1977, about 100 awards will be made to some 50 ethnic groups for curriculum development, training, and dissemination activities.

11. State equalization.—Grants are awarded to the States to reimburse them for costs incurred in the development of school finance plans conforming with Federal equity guidelines. Reimbursement rates are based on population rankings of the States and range from $100 thousand to $1 million with total entitlement at $13.5 million. In fiscal year 1977, the Congress appropriated $10.5 million for this program. This amount, in addition to the $3 million made available in fiscal year 1976, will complete the requirements of this program on a national basis. Consequently no additional funds are requested for 1978.

12. Libraries and instructional resources.—In 1977, support for this activity is requested in the library resources appropriation. In 1978, this activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial Assistance for Elementary and Secondary Education.

1. Financial assistance to local educational agencies (LEA's) and non-LEA's.—Grants are made on an entitlement basis to applicant local educational agencies for supplemental elementary and secondary programs to meet the special educational needs of Indian children. In addition, 10% of the amount available for LEA's is reserved for grants to Indian-controlled schools on or near reservations which are not LEA's. During the 1976-77 school year, grants were awarded to 1,115 applicants. It is anticipated that, with 1977 funds, approximately 1,226 awards will be made. In 1978, an estimated 1,276 grants will be awarded.

2. Special programs and projects for Indian children.—Grants are made on a competitive basis to Indian tribes, organizations, and institutions, State and local education agencies, Federal elementary and secondary schools for Indian children, institutions of higher education, and private, nonprofit elementary and secondary schools. In 1976, 132 awards were made primarily to support planning, pilot, and demonstration projects designed to improve the education of Indian children. Also, 104 fellowships were awarded to individuals for professional or graduate study in the areas of engineering, medicine, law, business, forestry, and related areas. It is estimated that 114 awards and 150 fellowships will be granted in 1977. In 1978, approximately 114 awards and 150 fellowships will be given.

3. Special programs for adult Indians.—Grants are made to Indian tribes and organizations and State and local education agencies in order to support pilot, planning, and demonstration projects with particular emphasis in the two critical areas of basic literacy and high school equivalency. In 1976, 61 awards were made. An estimated 65 awards will be made in 1977. In 1978, approximately 65 awards will be made.

4. Program administration.—Funds for this activity support the salaries, travel, and other administrative expenses of the Office of Indian Education and the National Advisory Council on Indian Education, as well as planning and evaluation studies necessary for program support.

1. Maintenance and operations.—Payments are made directly to school districts to assist in the operation of schools where enrollments and the availability of revenues from local sources have been adversely affected by Federal activities. The 1977 appropriation provided 88% to 100% of entitlement for 3(a) category children; 53% to 60% of entitlement for 3(b) category children; 25% of entitlement for children associated with low-rent public housing; 57% to 100% of entitlement for special provisions; and 100% of entitlement for payments to other Federal agencies. These funds were sufficient to fund payment tiers I and II. In addition, $94,328 thousand was provided for hold-harmless provisions (A), (B), (C), and (D). For 1978, funds are requested to provide 88% to 100% of entitlement for 3(a) category children; 100% of entitlement for payments to other Federal agencies and 57% to 100% of entitlement for special provisions. No funding is requested for any 3(b) category children, children associated with low-rent public housing or any hold-harmless provisions.

2. Construction.—Payments are made to provide assistance in construction of school facilities in areas where enrollments and the availability of revenues from local sources have been adversely affected by Federal activities. From 1951 through 1977, over $1,515 million has been appropriated for this program aiding in the construction of over 77,000 classrooms to house over 2 million pupils in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and Wake Island. In recent years funding emphasis has been placed on section 5, construction assistance to local educational agencies impacted by Federal activities; section 10, schools constructed on Federal property; and section 14, construction assistance for children residing on Indian lands. For 1978, funds will continue to be allocated among sections 5, 10, and 14, with significant emphasis placed on the construction of school facilities for children residing on Indian lands and on school construction on military installations where local educational agencies cannot provide free public education for children residing thereon.

Under this appropriation, support is provided to local educational agencies and nonprofit organizations for the purpose of meeting problems incident to school desegregation. This assistance is provided under the Emergency School Aid Act, as amended. Additional support for desegregation activities is provided under title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

1. National competition projects.—Included in these activities are bilingual education projects, educational television projects, and special programs and projects. These special programs and projects are for meeting the emergency needs of desegregating districts and provide for funding of activities for which funds are not otherwise available under the act (special arts, reading, and student concerns projects). U.S. territories also are funded under this category of awards. Evaluation grants and contracts for evaluation of programs funded under the act are an additional component of national competition projects. Award levels in 1977 and 1978 are expected to be:

Bilingual education.....	32	32
Educational television.....	7	7
Special programs and projects.....	65	65
Evaluation.....	5	4

2. State apportioned projects.—These projects are the principal activities for providing grants to local educational agencies requiring desegregation assistance. Awards are made in three categories: (a) LEA grants to meet education needs incident to desegregation and resulting from minority isolation, as well as to encourage voluntary elimination of minority isolation; (b) LEA grants to support pilot programs in reading and math for minority children; and (c) grants and contracts to nonprofit organizations for conducting special programs supportive of LEA desegregation efforts. Award levels in 1977 and 1978 are expected to be:

Pilot programs.....	180	180
Grants to nonprofit organizations.....	215	215
General grants to LEA's.....	433	433

3. Training and advisory services.—(Civil Rights Act—title IV). Awards are made to render assistance in: (a) the preparation, adoption, and implementation of desegregation plans for public schools; (b) the preparation and implementation of bilingual programs for minority children who are not fluent in the English language; and (c) finding means to eliminate sexual discrimination in educational institutions. For these purposes funds are made available to general assistance centers, State educational agencies, local educational agencies, and training institutes. Services and training for educational personnel dealing in the activities associated with title IV assistance are also provided. In 1977, awards are expected to be 314, with 1978 awards expected to be at the same level.

1. State assistance.—(a) State grant program.—The Education for All Handicapped Children Act (Public Law 94-142) requires that States provide handicapped children education and related services that are free, appropriate, individualized, and available to all children aged 3-18 by September 1, 1978, and aged 3-21 by September 1, 1980. Formula grants are made to States to assist in the initiation, expansion, and improvement of programs and projects for education of handicapped children at the preschool, elementary, and secondary levels. The 1977 estimate includes funds to be obligated for school year 1976-77 and an advance appropriation for school year 1977-78. The current request covers school year 1978-79.

(b) Preschool incentive grants.—Grants are authorized to States which are presently providing special education and related services to children aged 3-5. Funds requested will be used to increase and improve the SEA's and LEA's programs for handicapped preschool children during school year 1978-79.

(c) Deaf-blind centers.—This forward-funded program awards contracts to 10 regional centers to provide appropriate educational, diagnostic, and related services to deaf-blind children and their families through a series of subcontracts. The centers also initiate whatever ancillary services are necessary to assure that these children can achieve their full potential for useful participation in society.

2. Special population programs.—(a) Severely handicapped projects.—Contracts are awarded to establish and expand programs and practices to meet the educational training needs of severely handicapped children and youth.

(b) Specific learning disabilities.—Grants and contracts are awarded to stimulate State and local provision of identification, diagnostic, prescriptive, and educational services for learning disabled children and their parents through the funding of model programs, technical assistance, and teacher training activities.

(c) Early childhood education.—Demonstrations, technical assistance, and dissemination activities are supported to provide educational, diagnostic, and consultative services for preschool handicapped children and their parents. The projects are designed to stimulate and influence the development of additional services for preschool handicapped children.

3. Regional vocational, adult, and postsecondary programs.—Contracts are awarded to develop and operate regional programs for deaf and other handicapped persons in the area of vocational, technical, postsecondary, or adult education, building on existing resources and facilities currently serving regional needs.

4. Innovation and development.—Grants and contracts are awarded for curriculum and materials development, research in personnel development, and other research and development projects, including those in the field of physical education and recreation research for handicapped children.

5. Media and resource services.—(a) Media services and captioned films.—Contracts and grants are made for the acquisition, captioning, production, and distribution of films and other educational media, and the training of persons in the use of such materials for the handicapped.

(b) Regional resource centers.—Contracts are awarded for the operation of 14 regional resource centers to develop and apply methods of appraisal and special educational programming practices for handicapped children, including referral, placement, and followup services.

(c) Recruitment and information.—This program is designed to encourage people to enter the career field of special education, and to provide information and referral services to parents of handicapped children.

6. Special education manpower development.—Grants are awarded to support training of teachers, supervisors, speech correctionists, researchers, and other professionals and paraprofessionals in fields related to the education of the handicapped in regular and special classrooms.

The above programs are to be incorporated into the proposed Financial assistance for elementary and secondary education.

7. Special studies.—With the passage of the Education for All Handicapped Act (Public Law 94-142) the Federal Government must now insure State compliance with the requirement that they provide every handicapped child with an appropriate education under the provision of the new law. The purpose of these studies is to insure that there is a comprehensive, reliable, and valid base by which all parties involved are able to make timely decisions, provide technical assistance, and evaluate the effectiveness of educational programs for handicapped children.

1. Vocational education.—Support for this activity is being requested under the newly enacted vocational education legislation which provides for a substantial consolidation of the previously authorized programs. The State programs would be authorized through basic grants to States to assist them in conducting vocational education programs. This would provide States with substantial flexibility in designing their basic vocational education programs to meet the needs as determined by each State. Twenty percent of the basic allotment to a State would be used for program improvement and supportive services which includes programs such as research, innovative programs, curriculum development, and vocational education personnel training. A separate authorization for special programs for the disadvantaged and for consumer and home-making education is provided also. State advisory councils will continue to be funded.

Five percent of the amounts appropriated for allotment to the States would be available for discretionary grants and contracts to support programs of national significance including research, innovation, curriculum development and training programs. A program of grants for bilingual vocational training is provided also.

These programs will be incorporated into the proposed Financial assistance for elementary and secondary education.

The 1977 appropriation includes school year 1976-77 and an advance appropriation for school year 1977-78. Therefore, the budget request is for school year 1978-79.

2. Adult education.—Formula grants are made to the States and territories for the purpose of eliminating functional illiteracy among the Nation's adults 16 years of age and older who lack a 12th-grade level of education. Ten percent of each State's allotment is reserved for special projects and teacher training. The current request includes a forward-funded appropriation of $80,500 thousand to fund school year 1978-79. It is estimated that 1,166,000 adults will be enrolled in adult education classes at an average cost of $62 per student. This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial assistance for elementary and secondary education.

3. Educational personnel.—This activity has been transferred to the Special projects and training appropriation.

(Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1977; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for most of the programs in this account for 1977 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for those programs for the period October 1, 1976, to March 31, 1977.

Note.—Excludes $121,781 in 1978 for activities transferred to student loan insurance fund. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($284,500), 1977 ($343,363) are included.

The schedules reflect the Administration's requests for program levels contained in part III. These levels differ from those under the continuing resolution, however, these differences would not be evident in obligational patterns until late in the second quarter of 1977.

1. Student assistance: (a) Basic opportunity grants.—The principal form of student assistance is basic educational opportunity grants. The $1,844,000 thousand requested is expected to provide entitlement awards averaging $880 for 2,067,000 full- and part-time undergraduate students in academic year 1978-79.

The size of the grant is determined on the basis of the expected family and student contribution, up to a maximum of one-half of the student's cost. Legislation will be proposed to target funds more equitably when appropriations are insufficient to fully fund the basic grant program.

(b) Supplemental opportunity grants.—No funds are requested for the supplemental opportunity grant program, which is duplicative of the basic grants program.

(c) Work-study.—The $250,000 thousand requested for work-study will provide part-time employment to an estimated 567,000 students, assuming a 20% institutional matching share.

(d) Subsidized insured loans.—Transferred to the Student loan insurance fund.

(e) Direct loans.—The $15,160 thousand requested under the direct loan program will pay cancellations for loans made to borrowers who subsequently undertook specified types of teaching or military service. No funds are requested for Federal capital contributions or for loans to institutions; over $276,000 thousand will be available in student loan funds, from past Federal contributions, for an estimated 553,000 loans.

(f) Incentive grants for State scholarships.—A total of $44,000 thousand is requested for incentive grants to States to encourage scholarship support to needy students; the requested amount will support four classes of undergraduate students totaling 176,000 recipients.

Incentive grants for State scholarships.....	80,000	176,000	176,000	176,000

¹Numbers do not total due to overlap between programs.

2. Special programs for the disadvantaged.—For 1978, $73,331 thousand is requested in the talent search, upward bound, special services, and educational opportunity center programs, through which over 361,000 disadvantaged postsecondary students and potential students are impacted.

In addition to the programs to assist students in financing their higher education, particular efforts are undertaken to insure that low-income and educationally disadvantaged students receive special assistance in entering and completing colleges and universities. Complementing this special assistance is a new $3,000 thousand program of counseling and other supportive services to demonstrate the value of assuring educationally disadvantaged students that they will be able to pursue a professional education through graduate school. Legislation is being proposed to authorize supplemental student aid when necessary, for these students. This program would be conducted by the Commissioner of Education, in close coordination with the existing special programs of assistance to disadvantaged students. It will also assist in overcoming a major problem in pursuing equality of opportunity through affirmative action by helping to increase the number of qualified minority candidates for graduate and professional schools.

3. Institutional assistance.—(a) Strengthening developing institutions.—The $110,000 thousand requested includes $52,000 thousand for the basic institutional development program and $58,000 thousand for the advanced institutional development program. Together these programs provide substantial assistance to schools with high percentages of minority students and students from low-income families to enable them to enter the mainstream of American higher education.

(b) Language training and area studies.—A total of $10,000 thousand is requested for 1978. This amount includes $1,100 thousand for training overseas, and $260 thousand to support foreign curriculum consultants under the Fulbright-Hays program, and $8,640 thousand for support of centers, fellowships, and research in international studies at American universities.

(c) University community services.—No funds are requested for this program, which supports community service programs on college campuses, as this function is considered a State and local responsibility.

(d) Aid to land-grant colleges.—The permanent appropriation and the annual appropriation is proposed for elimination. This program is an inequitable method for supporting colleges and universities.

(e) State postsecondary education commissions.—This program, which supports State initiatives in postsecondary education planning and administration of Federal programs at the State level, is considered a State responsibility. Therefore, no funds are requested for this program.

(f) Veterans cost of instruction.—No funds are requested for this program, which provided grants to postsecondary institutions to encourage recruitment of, and special services to, veterans, as the peak of the need has passed and the services provided are a duplication of Veterans' Administration programs.

(g) Cooperative education.—To assist postsecondary institutions to initiate, improve, and expand cooperative education programs, in which employers pay students for periods of work alternated with study, $8,000 thousand is requested.

(h) Construction.—For mandatory payments on prior year commitments, funds are available from prior year appropriations; a revised accounting system for the program calls for recording obligations in the year of payment.

4. Personnel development.—No funds are requested for programs under personnel development. The fellowships for disadvantaged program, and the public service and mining fellowship programs are proposed for elimination as narrow categorical programs outside the primary Federal role of broad student assistance.

5. Ethnic heritage.—Transferred to Elementary and Secondary Education account in fiscal year 1977.

Note.—Includes $154,330 thousand in 1978 for activities previously financed from Elementary and secondary education. Comparable amounts for 1976, $136,664 thousand; TQ, $645 thousand; 1977, $0.

1. Public libraries.—Grants are made to States to provide and improve public library services in areas without such services or with inadequate services; to improve State library services for disadvantaged persons, institutionalized persons, and blind and physically handicapped persons; to strengthen State library administrative agencies; and to strengthen metropolitan libraries which serve as regional resource centers. This activity also provides grants to States for establishing and maintaining local, State, interstate and/or regional cooperative networks of libraries.

2. School libraries and instructional resources.—As authorized by the Education Amendments of 1974, this activity is a consolidation of the following programs: School library resources; equipment and minor remodeling, excluding loans to nonprofit, private schools; and guidance, counseling, and testing.

Funding of this consolidated program is requested on an advanced basis for use in the subsequent year. These funds would provide services to approximately 48 million public and private school children through virtually every local education agency.

This activity will be incorporated into the proposed Financial assistance for elementary and secondary education.

3. College library resources.—This program authorizes grants primarily to institutions of higher education for the purpose of assisting and encouraging them in the acquisition of library resources including law library resources.

4. Training and demonstrations.—This program authorizes grants to institutions of higher education and library organizations or agencies to support the training of paraprofessionals and professionals in library and information science for services to all types of libraries. Such grants may be made for fellowships, traineeships, and short- and long-term training institutes for library personnel. This program also authorizes grants and contracts to institutions of higher education, and other public or private agencies, institutions, and organizations, to demonstrate new techniques, systems, and equipment for processing, storing, and distributing information, and for the dissemination of information derived from such projects. The schedule reflects the Administration's requests for program levels contained in Part III. These levels differ from those under the continuing resolution, however, these differences would not be evident in obligational patterns until late in the third quarter of fiscal year 1977. No funds are requested for this activity in 1977 and 1978.

5. College instructional equipment.—This program authorizes grants to institutions of higher education to assist in the improvement of undergraduate programs through the purchase of instructional equipment (including closed-circuit television) and materials and through minor remodeling. The schedule reflects the Administration's requests for program levels contained in Part III. These levels differ from those under the continuing resolution; however, these differences would not be evident in obligational patterns until late in the third quarter of fiscal year 1977. No funds are requested for this program in 1977 and 1978.

SPECIAL PROJECTS AND TRAINING*

*See Part III for additional information.

For carrying out the Special Projects Act (Public Law 93-380) [and section 422(a) of], without regard to the requirements of sections 402(b) (1) and (2), the General Education Provisions Act, [$47,493,000] and part A of the Education Professions Development Act, $89,568,000. (Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1977.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for part of this account for 1977 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A temporary continuing resolution is in effect for the period October 1, 1976 to March 31, 1977 for this activity.

1. Special projects.—Activities included are authorized by the Special Projects Act contained in the Education Amendments of 1974. Under this authority, grants and contracts are awarded to experiment with new educational and administrative methods, techniques, and practices; to meet special or unique educational needs or problems; and to place special emphasis on national education priorities. A portion of the funds are set aside for priorities specified in the law. The remaining funds are for activities carried out at the discretion of the Commissioner of Education.

(a) Metric education.—Projects will support activities in State and local educational agencies, universities and colleges, and public and private nonprofit organizations to prepare individuals to use the metric system.

(b) Gifted and talented.—Projects will support activities to increase the capacity of the States and other administrative systems to provide preschool educational opportunities for gifted and talented children at the elementary and secondary levels.

(c) Community schools.—Projects will support educational, recreational, cultural, and other related community services in accordance with needs, interests, and concerns of the community.

(d) Career education.—Projects will develop information about the needs for career education, develop State and local plans for implementing career education, provide for the training and retraining of persons for conducting career education programs, promote a national dialog on career education, and demonstrate the best of current career education programs and practices.

(e) Consumer education.—Projects will fund activities at the elementary and secondary, postsecondary, and adult education levels to promote consumer education through research, demonstration, and pilot projects.

(f) Women's educational equity.—Projects will support activities to increase opportunities and to provide educational equity for women at all levels of education through the improvement and expansion of innovative programs training of educational personnel.

(g) Arts in education.—Grants and contracts will be made to encourage and assist State and local education agencies to establish and conduct programs through arrangements with the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in which the arts are an integral part of elementary and secondary school education.

(h) Packaging and dissemination.—This program provides for the systematic dissemination and diffusion to school districts throughout the country of educational practices and products originally developed in Office of Education supported programs and validated by the Joint Dissemination Review Panel (JDRP) of the Education Division, DHEW.

(i) Educational television programing.—This program will provide assistance to support the development, production, installation, and utilization of innovative educational television programs for children and adults. These are to demonstrate the ability to assist individuals in their school and home environments.

2. Educational personnel training.—Teacher Corps.—This activity demonstrates improved programs of teacher education for educational personnel and inexperienced teacher interns in order to expand educational opportunities for children of low-income families.

3. Planning and evaluation.—Grants are awarded to and contracts made with public and private organizations for planning and evaluation studies of programs administered by the Office of Education. Eight studies initiated in 1977 will be continued. New awards will be granted in 1978 for studies on bilingual education, impact aid, vocational education, and postsecondary, education. This program was previously funded under the Salaries and expenses appropriation.

EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITIES OVERSEAS (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)—Continued

U.S.-owned foreign currency which the Treasury Department determines to be in excess of normal requirements is used to strengthen American education through research and training abroad sponsored by American institutions. Projects focus on foreign languages, area studies, world affairs, and intercultural understanding and are designed to update the professional competencies of American educators, to further research, and to develop improved curricula and effective instructional materials. The foreign currency program is used in support of the Fulbright-Hays program, discussed under the Higher education appropriation.

Under the Higher Education Act, the Guaranteed student loan program enables students to borrow from private lenders to help pay for the cost of education and training at over 9,200 eligible universities, colleges, and vocational schools. Loans are either guaranteed by State or private nonprofit agencies or insured by the Federal Government. Guaranteed loans are made to eligible students primarily by commercial lenders, educational institutions, and State agencies. The Federal Government pays a 7% interest rate on behalf of eligible students while they are in school, during a maximum 12-month grace period following graduation or withdrawal from school and during authorized periods of deferment.

A special allowance is authorized for fulfilling the purpose of the program and for providing an equitable return to lenders. The rate, computed at about 3½% below the rate applicable to the 91-day Treasury notes, may not exceed 5% per annum on the average quarterly unpaid principal balance of loans made under this program, whether or not the loan qualifies for Federal interest benefits. In the case of the borrower's death or total and permanent disability the Federal Government pays the outstanding principal and interest on loans made after December 15, 1968. Bankruptcy claims are also paid by the Federal Government for the total amount of the loss.

To help strengthen the program, funds may be advanced to State agencies to help provide loan insurance. In addition, administrative allowances and supplemental administrative allowances may be made to State agencies for up to 1% of loans made in a fiscal year. One-half of this amount constitutes a supplemental payment for conformance to Federal standards.

Upon default by the student borrowers, the Office of Education will pay to the beneficiary the total amount of the loss sustained by the insured on federally insured loans and a minimum of 80% of the loss sustained on reinsured loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies.

Section 431(b)(1) of the Higher Education Act authorizes the Commissioner, with respect to legal power and responsibilities under the guaranteed student loan program, to prepare annually and submit a budget program as provided for wholly owned government corporations by the Government Corporation Control Act. For that purpose, all expenses associated with subsidies previously reflected under the Higher education account and default activities previously reported under the Student loan insurance fund are included under one account for 1978.

Program operations.—The fund takes over loans on which it pays insurance claims and seeks to collect on them. Claims which are deemed uncollectable are written off as "loss on insured loans." Loans deemed collectable, after allowing for possible loss, are as follows: 1976, $183,410 thousand; TQ, $209,624 thousand; 1977, $276,589 thousand; and 1978, $336,031 thousand.

Program costs.—In 1976, defaults and other claims totaling $165,898 thousand were submitted to the Fund for payment. Claims will amount to $39,816 thousand in the transition quarter and $151,456 thousand in 1977. The 1977 amount includes a supplemental request of $32,312 thousand. An additional $536,825 thousand is anticipated in 1978. However, this amount includes $375,178 for subsidies payments. Amounts appropriated to the Fund consisted of $201,787 thousand in 1976 and $30,000 thousand in the transition period. A supplemental of $32,312 thousand is requested to support default claims in 1977. An estimated $255,724 thousand is requested for 1978. Of this amount, $133,943 thousand is for default payments and $121,781 thousand is needed to pay subsidies on guaranteed loans.

The default rate in the Federal program is projected to rise from 12.1% in 1976 to 13.5% in 1978. In the reinsurance program the default rate is expected to increase from 8.2% in 1976 to 9.1% in 1978. The expected increase in default claims and rates are primarily based on an estimate of loans that will mature and therefore have the probability of defaulting. In addition, activities in the specialized and vocational sector have contributed to the increasing default volume.

Receipts and reimbursements.—Deposits to the fund are derived from insurance premiums earned from direct Federal insurance, which is not to exceed one-fourth of 1% per annum of the unpaid principal amount (excluding interest added to principal), and repayment of collectable loans. Additional accrued income on collectable loans is available when converted to cash. Total deposits to the fund, excluding accrued income are as follows: 1976, $14,252 thousand; TQ, $6,670 thousand; 1977, $15,670 thousand; and 1978, $27,704 thousand.

Collections on defaulted loans in the Federal program amounted to $7,424 thousand in 1976 and an additional $8,671 thousand is expected to be collected in 1977. The target amount for collections in 1978 is $20,475 thousand. In the reinsurance program, $4,475 thousand was recovered on defaulted loans in 1976. It is expected that $3,978 thousand will be recovered in 1977 and $4,111 thousand will be recovered in 1978.

Estimated future loss.—Future loss on guaranteed loans represents those outstanding loans that will default and not be collected by the Office of Education. Attempts are currently being made to reduce these amounts (the estimates follow in thousand of dollars).

Title III of the Higher Education Facilities Act, now subsumed by title VII of the Higher Education Act, authorizes the Commissioner to make loans to institutions of higher education and to higher education building agencies for the construction of academic facilities and to insure loans. Such loans may be made for up to 80% of a project's total development cost and must be repaid within 50 years.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966, as amended, established a revolving fund for these loans and loan insurance. Further, the act authorized the sales of such loans to the private credit market, the proceeds of which were deposited into the fund to be used for new loans to colleges and universities. The Government National Mortgage Association is authorized to serve as trustee for these sales.

During 1970 and through 1973, loans under this program were displaced by the annual interest grant program under the higher education appropriation. However, new loans were made from the fund to the extent that such amounts were made available from withdrawals of earlier commitments. These amounts were used to fund those small institutions of higher education which were unable to obtain private loans necessary to participate in the annual interest grant program.

Although no new loans were made in 1976 or 1977 the fund continued to incur expenses for operating costs. No new loans are anticipated for 1978.

Interest is payable to the Treasury on the cumulative amount of appropriations paid out for loans under this title or available as capital to the fund less the average undisbursed cash balance in the fund during the year. The rate certified by the Secretary of the Treasury for payment from the fund during 1976 and the transition quarter was 8 1/8%.

Appropriations for insufficiencies are used to fund the deficit resulting from the interest rate required to sell the participations and the interest rate paid by higher education institutions on facilities loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The National Institute of Education provides support for research, development, and dissemination activities which seek solutions to problems experienced by students teachers, administrators, and decisionmakers at all levels of education. Federal assistance is focused on the following problems or goal-oriented activities:

1. Research and Development.—(a) Dissemination.—This program provides information about the results of educational research and development. Grants and contracts are made with State education agencies and other agencies to support the hiring of specialists, the training of education personnel, and other efforts to assure that such results can be implemented in the classroom. A computer based information retrieval system known as ERIC is also supported.

(b) Basic skills.—This program is designed to discover and develop the means by which all students' performance can be improved particularly in such essential skills as reading and mathematics.

(c) Finance and productivity.—Grants and contracts support activities to assist educational decisionmakers in developing solutions to current finance and resource allocation problems.

(d) School capacity for problem solving.—Grants and contracts support research and development projects designed to assist local schools and the people they serve to develop the skills to manage successfully their own school improvement efforts.

(e) Education and work.—Programs are being supported to improve the understanding of the relationship between education and work, and to increase the contribution education makes to individuals' abilities to choose, enter, and progress in work that is beneficial to themselves and others.

(f) Educational equity.—This program is designed to investigate and develop means to help the educational community meet its responsibilities to provide high-quality education for those with limited educational opportunities. Grant and contract awards will explore barriers associated with race, culture, language, sex, and socioeconomic background. The program will promote changes in the processes by which the educational system develops policies and programs.

2. Program direction and administration.—Funds support overall administration, coordination, and direction of the programs and activities of the Institute.

The Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education is responsible for both the direction and supervision of the Education Division and also for coordination and general supervision of educational activities performed elsewhere in the Department. In addition, the Office has responsibility for administering two operational programs:

1. Fund for the improvement of postsecondary education.—Established to encourage the reform and improvement of postsecondary education, this program makes grants to and contracts with institutions of postsecondary education and other public and private educational institutions and agencies.

In 1977, the fund will support the continuing costs of existing project commitments across a range of priorities and will initiate a modest number of new starts through the comprehensive program, with an emphasis on new initiatives in the area of work and education.

In 1978, the requested budget level will allow the fund primarily to meet the continuing costs of existing projects and, in addition, to make new selected awards.

2. The National Center for Education Statistics.—The Center collects statistics on the condition of education in the United States and abroad, conducts and reports on statistical analyses, and provides assistance to States and local education agencies in their statistical activities. The two components of the center's program are:

(a) Statistical services.—The Center provides statistical services to users including activities in the areas of assistance, analysis, and dissemination. Assistance is provided to State and local education agencies to develop and implement compatible education data systems. The Center also conducts analyses of the meaning and significance of education statistics and dissemination of data, through a variety of modes acknowledging the differing needs of users. In addition, the Center participates in Federal interagency activities to coordinate data collection, to minimize respondent burden and to protect the confidentiality of persons in the collection, reporting, and publication of data.

(b) Education statistics.—The Center collects and reports information from institutions and individuals which provides a comprehensive and flexible data base describing education and its effects. The base includes both a consistent core of data which delineates the essential features of the education enterprise and those who participate in it and also a varied, detailed flow of information which bears on changing policy issues. Information is gathered on such topics as trends in elementary and secondary education, the changing nature of postsecondary education, financing educational institutions, the educational attainments of persons, the status of educational personnel, libraries, and educational activities in foreign countries.

3. Program direction and support services.—This activity provides funds for administrative expenses associated with the development and communication of education policy, supervision of the Division and administration of the two operational programs. In addition, this activity provides continued contractual support of policy analysis activities relevant to the Office's role of developing educational policy.

The Administrator for the National Center for Education Statistics is authorized to furnish transcripts or copies of tables and other records of the National Center for Education Statistics and to make special statistical compilations and surveys for State or local officials, private organizations, or individuals. Such statistical compilations and surveys shall be made subject to the payment of the actual or estimated cost of such work. In the case of nonprofit organizations or agencies, the Administrator may engage in joint statistical projects, the cost of which shall be shared equitably as determined by the Administrator, provided that the purposes are otherwise authorized by law.

All moneys received in payment for work or services enumerated under this section shall be deposited in a trust account which may be used to pay directly the costs of such work or services, to repay appropriations which initially bore all or part of such costs, or to refund excess sums when necessary.

* See "Legislative Program" (end of this chapter) and Part III of this Appendix for additional information.

For carrying out, except as otherwise provided, titles I, IV, X, XI, XIV, XVI, XIX, and XX of the Social Security Act, and the Act of July 5, 1960 (24 U.S.C., ch. 9) [$18,040,850,000] $20,963,-800,000 of which $56,500,000 shall be for child welfare services under part B of title IV and $75,000,000 shall be for State and local training under Titles I, IV, X, XIV, and XX: Provided, That no payment shall be made from this appropriation for expenditures prior to September 30, 1976, unless such payment is for an expenditure which, on or before September 30, 1977, is duly recorded in the records of the single State agency responsible for the administration of the State plan and reported to the Secretary.

For making, after June 30 of the current fiscal year, payments to States under titles I, IV, X, XIV, XVI, XIX and XX, respectively, of the Social Security Act, for the last three months of the current fiscal year (except with respect to activities included in the appropriation for "Work incentives"); and for making after July 31 of the current fiscal year, payments for the first quarter of the succeeding fiscal year; such sums as may be necessary, the obligations incurred and the expenditures made thereunder for payments under each of such titles to be charged to the subsequent appropriations therefor for the current or succeeding fiscal year.

In the administration of titles I, IV (other than part C thereof), X, XIV, XVI, XIX, and XX, respectively, of the Social Security Act, payments to a State under any such titles for any quarter in the period beginning July 1, [1976], of the prior year and ending September 30, [1977] of the current year may be made with respect to a State plan approved under such title prior to or during such period, but no such payment shall be made with respect to any plan for any quarter prior to the quarter in which a subsequently approved plan was submitted.

Such amounts as may be necessary from this appropriation shall be available for grants to States for any period in the prior fiscal year [1976 and the period July 1, 1976 through September 30, 1976] subsequent to [March 31, 1976] June 30 of that year. Grants to States for public assistance are made for the Federal share of State expenditures for maintenance assistance, child support enforcement, medical assistance, social services, State and local training, and child welfare services. Research and training projects are also supported.

Estimates of requirements are based on an evaluation of latest States' estimates together with national trends of historic data adjusted by socioeconomic variables which will impact upon these trends. Estimates also reflect the increased amounts for the States associated with the conversion of assistance to Cuban refugees to regular federally assisted State and local programs. The following workload data and estimates by program include the proposed supplemental appropriation for 1977.

1. Maintenance assistance.—Maintenance payments provide needy persons with resources to assist in meeting the costs of daily living.

Federal matching for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), the major portion of the maintenance assistance activity, averages 55%. For related State and local administration costs, Federal matching is 50%.

Efforts to improve the administration of the AFDC program are continuing. Error rates in the caseloads have been reduced and continued improvement is expected. All States now have underway corrective action plans designed to reduce the ineligibility and payment error rates.

Legislation is proposed in 1978 to revise the income disregard provisions for work-related expenses, which will promote greater uniformity in eligibility limits.

2. Child support enforcement.—The purpose of the child support enforcement program, in effect since August 1, 1975, is to assist States in enforcing the support obligations owed by absent parents to their children, locating absent parents, establishing paternity, and obtaining child support. Federal grants for State and local administration of the program are made to States having plans approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare—Federal matching is 75%. Legislation is proposed to gradually adjust the Federal matching rate to be consistent with that of maintenance assistance administrative costs.

All families in need of support for their children from an absent parent are eligible for the aforementioned services which are provided free for AFDC families. Non-welfare recipients may be required, in some States, to pay an application fee and the costs of collection may be deducted from collections made. Public Law 94-365 extended Federal matching for nonreimbursed administrative costs associated with non-AFDC child support enforcement activities through June 30, 1977.

Costs and collections are currently expanding rapidly as State and local governments implement the child support program authorizing legislation. States have experienced difficulty in gathering the necessary data to document child support collections for 1976. Efforts are directed at assisting the States in improving accounting and reporting systems to provide accurate data.

¹ Federal participation to be discontinued effective June 30, 1977; however, States will provide services.

3. Medical assistance.—The purpose of the medicaid program, which became effective January 1966, is to assist States in providing medical care to their low-income population. Federal matching payments for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act (medicaid) are authorized for States having plans approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

All AFDC children are eligible for medicaid benefits. In addition, 35 States provide coverage to all persons receiving supplemental security income (SSI) payments. In 15 States, medical coverage of SSI recipients is limited to those who can meet additional, more restrictive eligibility criteria, although those persons may deduct their medical expenses from their income to establish eligibility. Also, 32 States have elected to cover medically needy persons.

Efforts to assist States to improve administration of the Medicaid program is a major thrust of the Department for 1977. Assistance to States in the establishment of more effective management systems is expected to have a major impact on curtailing provider fraud and abuse.

Legislation is proposed to replace medicaid and 19 other programs with a consolidated health grant in 1978. This new grant program will assist States in providing medical care to their low-income population and in addressing other health problems. The new program will distribute funds more equitably and provide greater State discretion and responsibility than the medicaid program.

4. Social services.—Under title XX of the Social Security Act, grants are made to States within two ceiling allocations. In the basic program there is a $2.5 billion ceiling limitation on Federal matching to provide social services to assist eligible persons to become or remain economically self-supporting and self-sufficient; to protect children and adults who cannot protect themselves from abuse, neglect, and exploitation, and to help families stay together; to prevent or reduce inappropriate institutional care by providing for community-based care, home-based care, or other forms of less intensive care; and to arrange for institutional placement, when appropriate, and for services to individuals in institutions.

Within the basic program, grants are made to States based on matching rates of 75% for all services except family planning services which are matched at 90%.

In addition, legislation, Public Law 94-401, dated September 7, 1976, authorized an additional $240 million earmarked for title XX day care services and grants to hire welfare recipients in jobs related to the provision of child care services—$40 million for the TQ and $200 million for 1977. These funds are used to match expenditures in the transition quarter at the rate of 75% for provision of child day care services and 100% for grants to hire welfare recipients. In 1977, the 100% rate applies to both the provision of child day care services and for grants to hire welfare recipients.

5. State and local training.—The 1962 and 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act authorized 75% Federal financial participation to States for the purpose of training public assistance staff and persons preparing for employment in public assistance. The 1974 social services amendments authorize 75% Federal financial participation in costs associated with providing training to staff of title XX agencies, service delivery personnel of provider agencies, persons preparing for employment in title XX agencies, and individual providers.

The work incentive (WIN) program is designed to encourage and assist individuals receiving support from the aid to families with dependent children (AFDC) program to achieve self-support through a program for employment, work experience, and training (training and incentives). Child care and other social services are provided to all who have been certified as needing such care or services to permit them to accept training or employment. State expenditures are matched by Federal participation at the rate of 90%. Training and incentives are administered by the Department of Labor; supportive services by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

Funding for the program will be modified in 1978 to reflect the process of unified funding, whereby a single sum for the program is requested without regard to designation for supportive services or training and incentives activities. This approach will allow States flexibility to balance the level of resources for training and incentives with supportive services.

1. Grants to States.—The program includes registration, call-up for appraisal and employability planning, counseling and development, direct placement, follow-up of all employed registrants, and adjudication of the work test. Individuals are prepared for self-supporting employment through on-the-job training, public service employment, work experience, and institutional training. Child care and other social services necessary to enable WIN participants to accept training or employment are also provided. Child care may be provided in the participant's own home, in family day-care homes, or in day-care centers. Other supportive services which may be provided include family planning, medical examinations, remedial medical services, home management, housing improvement, transportation for access to services, and vocational rehabilitation services.

This appropriation funds the administrative support costs of the diverse grant and contract programs that provide maintenance assistance, medical assistance, and social services to the needy. Support activities, implemented to assure the integrity of social and rehabilitation service and the child support enforcement programs, include financial management assistance and consultative services to State and local governments and to voluntary organizations and other grantees. Other related activities are monitoring and reviewing to insure effective and prudent use of Federal funds by grantees, the conduct of research, the collection, processing, and dissemination of statistical data, and the review of accomplishments of program activities.

Special assistance to refugees from Vietnam, Cambodia, and Laos has been provided under the authority of the Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-23, as amended by Public Law 94-313). This legislation expires September 30, 1977. After this date, needy refugees will be assisted through regular federally supported programs of cash and medical assistance, such as AFDC and medicaid, and will be eligible for job training and placement programs.

Appropriations have been made covering the total of $455 million authorized by the Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act: Under Public Law 94-24, $305 million was appropriated to the Department of State and $100 million to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare; an additional $50 million was appropriated to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for 1977 by Public Law 94-441, which also provided that all funds in this account shall remain available through September 30, 1977.

Since the Indochinese refugee program began in the spring of 1975, a total of $203 million has been made available to the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, comprising the appropriations of $100 million and $50 million and an additional $53 million in transfer funds from the Department of State's appropriation.

A total of about $119.9 million (including $20 million in educational support for States and localities to enable them to meet the needs of refugee students) had been obligated for the Department's program between May 1975 and September 30, 1976, leaving a balance of $92.9 million available for 1977. It is estimated $90.9 million of these funds will be required for reimbursement to the States for cash assistance, medical assistance, and social services to needy refugees, together with State administrative costs. Under present policy, State welfare agencies have been reimbursed 100% for these costs. Approximately $2 million will be required by the Department for certain orientation, counseling, and information services for the refugees, and for program monitoring and management.

The Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962, the current legislative basis for the Cuban refugee program, was enacted June 28, 1962, following action by the President to establish a temporary program in February 1961 to meet emergency needs of Cuban refugees entering the United States.

Of the 650,000 to 700,000 Cubans who entered the United States since 1959, approximately 167,000 have become naturalized citizens, and another 319,000 have achieved permanent resident status, the last step before citizenship. In addition to seeking the privileges and accepting the responsibilities of citizenship, Cubans have become substantially integrated into the Nation's economic and social mainstream. The Cuban refugee population is ceasing to present a special burden for State and local government resources and can increasingly be served appropriately by the regular Federal/State assistance programs now serving non-Cubans.

With the passing of the need for a special program serving only Cuban refugees, a gradual phasing out of the Cuban refugee assistance program will be initiated in 1977 that will provide needed services and assistance to the refugees through regular Federal and State programs serving the entire population, and will thereby further enhance the integration of the Cuban population into American society. The phasing out of the Cuban refugee assistance program will continue through 1981, and throughout this period the Federal Government will make payments to States to offset some of the special costs that may be associated with the Cuban refugee population.

1. Welfare assistance and services.—Beginning in the second half of 1977, assistance and services will be provided to Cubans through the same Federal/State AFDC, social services, and medicaid programs now serving the needs of other eligible Americans, and through State/local general assistance programs. The Federal Government will pay its matching share of AFDC, social services, and medicaid costs for eligible individuals formerly receiving benefits under the Cuban refugee program, and grants will be made to the States to assist them in financing the transition to the regular Federal/State programs.

2. Education.—Federal assistance will be provided to meet the diminishing special needs of the Dade County, Fla., public school system, with assistance also provided for bilingual, vocational and professional education.

3. Other services.—This activity finances the day-to-day operation of the program, which will be principally directed at assisting individuals to receive needed services and assistance from on-going State and Federal programs.

This appropriation provides for payments from Federal funds to the social security trust funds for certain types of benefits and related administrative costs not financed by contributions from workers and employers. The 1978 request is for $7,955,144 thousand and covers the following payments:

1. Federal payments for supplementary medical insurance.—An estimated $6,383,000 thousand will be required in 1978 to finance the Government's contribution to the Federal supplementary medical insurance trust fund. The Federal payments, combined with premiums from enrollees and interest earned by the supplementary medical insurance trust fund, must be sufficient to finance the estimated incurred cost of benefits and administration. The standard monthly premium rate, which is updated every July, is expected to be $7.70 at the start of 1978, and to increase to $8.10 effective July 1978.

2. Hospital insurance for the uninsured.—A payment of $687,941 thousand to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund is budgeted for 1978 to cover the costs of hospital and related care for certain individuals aged 65 and over who are not insured under the social security or railroad retirement systems. The uninsured group covered by this provision includes persons who retired before their occupations were covered by social security (such as teachers and State and local employees) and widows whose husbands died prior to earning coverage under social security.

3. Military service credits.—A payment of $656,000 thousand to the social security trust funds is requested as reimbursement for benefits which were based on non-contributory military service credits of veterans of World War II and certain veterans of the post-World War II period. Payment is prescribed in sections 217(g) and 229(b) of the Social Security Act and includes reimbursement for administrative expenses and interest lost to the trust funds. Included in this amount is a one-time reimbursement to the trust funds, as prescribed in section 231(c) of the Social Security Act, for payments based on non-contributory wage credits for certain citizens of Japanese ancestry who were interned during the World War II era.

The payment to each trust fund is (in millions of dollars):

Old-age and survivors insurance.....	385
Disability insurance.....	128
Hospital insurance.....	143
Total.....	656

4. Special payments for certain uninsured persons.—A payment of $228,203 thousand is requested to reimburse the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund for benefits paid in 1976 to certain uninsured individuals aged 72 and over, related administrative expenses, and interest lost to the trust fund. These benefits were established to afford some protection for certain persons, or their surviving dependents, who retired before the enactment of social security legislation or before their occupations were covered by social security.

Individuals who had less than three quarters of coverage and who attained age 72 before 1968 were eligible for benefits under this provision in 1976. The benefits were reduced if the recipient also received another governmental pension. The amount of the reduction depended upon the amount of the other governmental pension. In addition, the benefits were withheld if an individual was receiving payments under a federally aided public assistance program.

1. Benefit payments.—The Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended, provides for the protection of the health and safety of persons working in the coal mining industry. Title IV of the act provides monthly benefits to living coal miners who are totally disabled from pneumoconiosis resulting from employment in coal mines and to surviving widows. Benefit payments to miners and surviving widows are increased for dependents (a spouse or child). Benefits are payable to orphans, and in certain circumstances, to totally dependent surviving parents, brothers, and sisters. The requirements for entitlement and the amounts of the benefits are stated in the law.

Under the law, the jurisdiction for payment of claims from miners filed after June 1973 shifted from the Social Security Administration to the Department of Labor. Also, the responsibility for most survivor claims filed after December 1973 is with the Department of Labor. However, the Social Security Administration will continue to pay benefits and maintain the beneficiary roll for persons who filed during the time that the Social Security Administration had jurisdiction, and this will continue for many years into the future. The amount of these benefits and the number of miners, widows, and other dependents receiving them at the end of each fiscal period are as follows:

Benefit payments (in thousands).....	$977,164	$232,182	$938,000	$960,000
Beneficiaries.....	500,000	497,000	473,000	452,000

The estimate for 1978 assumes that an automatic benefit increase of 6.5% will become effective in October 1977, based on a projected 6.5% comparability adjustment in Federal pay scales. (The basic benefit payment is prescribed by law at 50% of the minimum monthly benefit under the Federal Employees Compensation System for a totally disabled employee in step 1, grade GS-2). This increase is partially offset by the continuing reduction of the number of beneficiaries entitled to benefits.

2. Administration.—Administrative costs in fiscal year 1978 are for monitoring and making changes to the beneficiary roll and authorizing payments to entitled beneficiaries monthly. The reduction from the 1976 and 1977 levels of cost is due to a decline in the size of the beneficiary rolls as well as the completion in 1977 of almost all of the court cases remanded to the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals by the Federal courts.

The district offices of the Social Security Administration will continue to take claims for benefits, mostly on behalf of the Department of Labor. The Social Security Administration is reimbursed for these costs, estimated at $888 thousand for both 1977 and 1978, from funds appropriated to the Department of Labor.

Title XVI of the Social Security Act established the Federal supplemental security income (SSI) program for the aged, blind, and disabled. This program, effective January 1, 1974, replaced State administered programs of assistance to the aged, blind, and disabled. In 1977, the supplemental security income program provides a minimum income of $167.80 per month for an eligible individual and $251.80 per month for an eligible couple. Public Law 93-368 requires that when social security benefits (title II of the Social Security Act) are automatically increased based on a cost-of-living computation, SSI benefit levels will be increased by the same percentage.

SSI is administered by the Federal Government under national uniform eligibility requirements and payment support levels. However, to be eligible for Federal matching funds for medicaid, States are required to supplement the Federal benefit to assure that recipients of benefits under the former State-administered programs suffered no loss of income under SSI. States may make additional supplementary payments, and may enter into agreements with the Federal Government to administer their supplementary payments. Under such an agreement, the cost of administering the State's supplementary payment is financed from Federal funds. States that elect Federal administration of their supplementary payments are protected from paying out of State funds any more than its calendar year 1972 assistance expenditures for the aged, blind, and disabled due to the overall growth in the recipient population.

This appropriation request includes: (1) $5,000 million in Federal payments to 4.4 million aged, blind, and disabled recipients by the end of 1978; (2) $45 million in Federal hold harmless contributions required to protect States against increased costs under SSI; (3) $75.2 million to reimburse State agencies for providing services to and planning and monitoring the treatment of disabled SSI recipients; (4) $543 million to reimburse the social security trust funds for costs of administering the program; and (5) $86.9 million for potential Federal fiscal liability to States (FFL) settlements which result from erroneous payments of federally administered State supplementation. State supplementation payments, financed by the States and administered by the Federal Government as a reimbursable program, are estimated to cost $1.5 billion in 1978.

The Social Security Administration is responsible for administering national programs of old-age, survivors, disability, and health insurance and the supplemental security income program for the needy, aged, blind, and disabled. The principal costs for administration of these programs are financed by this appropriation; however, there are certain costs of other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare and of the Treasury Department which relate to administration of these programs and are shown elsewhere in the budget.

Administrative costs are related to workloads generated by the statutory provisions of social security programs. The size of these workloads depends upon factors not subject to our control, such as population growth, level of employment, economic conditions, income levels, incidence of illness, and mortality rates.

1. Old-age and survivors insurance.—This program provides monthly benefits for retired workers and their dependents, survivors of deceased workers, including disabled widows and widowers age 50 and over, and certain uninsured persons age 72 and over.

The amount of benefit payments increase in 1977 and 1978 for automatic cost-of-living benefit adjustments of 6.4% effective June 1976 and an estimated 4.9% effective June 1977. Future automatic benefit increases based on changes in the Consumer Price Index are provided for by law. Furthermore, it is estimated that the number of persons receiving monthly benefits will show a normal increase in 1977 and 1978.

LIMITATION ON SALARIES AND EXPENSES—Continued

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
OASI claims applications received (in thousands).....	3,941	3,991	4,013
Persons on OASI benefit rolls (average for year, in thousands).....	27,732	28,596	29,274
OASI benefit payments (in millions).....	$62,140	$71,021	$77,973

The administrative costs budgeted for the old-age and survivors insurance program provide for making initial determinations of eligibility for benefits, reevaluating initial determinations when requested by claimants, making changes in the beneficiary rolls to assure proper benefit payments, and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits, including evaluation of the performance of representative payees.

2. Disability insurance.—This program provides monthly disability benefits for disabled workers and their dependents. In addition to normal growth in the number of beneficiaries, the automatic cost-of-living adjustments mentioned previously will cause benefit payments to increase in 1977 and 1978.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Disability claims applications received (in thousands)....	1,849	1,929	2,003
Persons on disability benefit rolls (average for year, in thousands).....	4,353	4,730	4,971
Disability benefit payments (in millions).....	$9,222	$10,930	$12,334

The administrative costs budgeted for the disability insurance program provide for processing initial disability determinations, reevaluating denied claims, making investigations and determinations of continuing disability of beneficiaries, and making changes to the beneficiary rolls to assure proper benefit payments. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by State agencies and these costs are included in the budget estimates.

3. Health insurance.—This program includes hospital insurance and voluntary supplementary medical insurance. It was established by the 1965 and 1972 amendments to the Social Security Act, and is commonly referred to as medicare.

(a) Hospital insurance.—The hospital insurance program protects persons age 65 and over against the cost of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services and posthospital skilled nursing services. Hospital insurance also protects disabled persons who have been eligible or entitled for monthly social security disability benefits for at least 2 years. Bills for services rendered under the hospital insurance program are generally submitted by hospitals, skilled nursing facilities, home health agencies, and in some instances by individuals who have received emergency care in nonparticipating hospitals. In most instances, these bills are processed by the Blue Cross plans or private insurance companies which act as intermediaries for the Social Security Administration. The central office of the Social Security Administration maintains individual beneficiary records of use of hospital services. The number of beneficiaries who will be covered by the medicare program will grow as the number of aged and disabled social security cash benefit population increases. This beneficiary growth, and the rise in the use of covered services by beneficiaries causes an increase in the claims workload in both 1977 and 1978.

(b) Supplementary medical insurance.—Almost all persons age 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance program, along with disability insurance beneficiaries who have been eligible for benefits for at least 2 years. Supplementary medical insurance covers the cost of physician services and other medical costs within certain deductible and coinsurance requirements. Enrollees in the program pay a monthly premium and the rest of the program costs are paid for by the Federal Government by appropriations from general revenues. Claims for services under the medical insurance program may be submitted by the physician or other supplier of service, or by the beneficiary, to Blue Shield plans and private insurance companies who are under contract to act for the Social Security Administration in specific geographical areas.

The volume of claims will rise in 1977 and 1978 as a result of normal growth in the covered population, and the projected increase in use of medical services.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

Claims received for services covered by hospital insurance (thousands).....	11,753	12,665	13,178

Payments for services (in millions):
Hospital insurance.....	$12,267	$17,814	$20,818
Medical insurance.....	$4,672	$7,325	$8,677

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the claim payment functions performed by the contractors, services performed by State agencies in certifying and consulting with providers of services, and all work performed by the Social Security Administration in directing the program, providing services to beneficiaries, maintaining records by individual beneficiary of use of hospital and medical services, and processing claims to establish entitlement to hospital insurance for persons not insured for cash benefits under either the social security or railroad retirement program.

4. Supplemental security income.—This Federal program authorized in the Social Security Amendments of 1972 provides monthly benefits from Federal funds to needy aged persons 65 and over, and to the needy blind and totally disabled without regard to age. Mandatory State supplementary payments are required for certain persons who were on State welfare rolls in December 1973 to guarantee that no one will have suffered a loss of income as a result of the program. In addition, the States can further supplement the Federal payments if they so desire. Because the administration of this program is integrated with that of the social security program, the costs of administration of both programs are carried in the same salaries and expenses appropriation. A separate appropriation from Federal funds provides for the Federal benefits paid under the supplemental security income program and for repayment to the trust funds for moneys advanced for the administration of the program.

Federal payment levels for an individual and a couple increased to $167.80 and $251.80 effective July 1976. These rates, like the retirement, survivors, and disability insurance benefits, are scheduled to increase by 4.9% in July 1977. Future automatic increases in payments based on Consumer Price Index changes are provided for by law.

Indicators of workload and program objectives for this activity are:

The administrative costs budgeted for the supplemental security income program provide for making initial determinations of eligibility for aged, blind, and disabled benefits, reevaluating the initial determination when requested by the claimant, making changes in the recipient rolls to assure proper payment of benefits, and investigating the beneficiary's continuing entitlement to benefits through periodic redeterminations of eligibility. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by the State agencies under contract with the Social Security Administration, and these costs are included in the budget.

Under 42 U.S.C. 1306(b), the Social Security Administration is authorized (within limits set by the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts) to provide information or services to other governmental organizations or private organizations on a reimbursable basis. Reimbursable work includes providing information from our records such as data relating to earnings, periods of employment, addresses of reporting employers, and employment data for pension funds and unions. Services provided on a reimbursable basis include printing or reproduction, processing data, or use of data processing equipment.

1. Headquarters.—The objective of construction at the headquarters complex in the Baltimore, Md., area is to provide adequate facilities to house personnel and equipment required to administer and support the social security program on a national scale. The Social Security Administration's plan is to construct two buildings, one in downtown Baltimore and the other at the existing site in Woodlawn, Md. Site excavation has begun at both locations and the buildings are scheduled for completion in 1979. These facilities will allow consolidation of dispersed operations now in leased space, and adequate housing for computer operations. Financing will be arranged through the purchase contract method under which payments will begin upon occupancy of the structures. Funds remaining from prior years appropriations will be used in 1977 to build an access road from the headquarters site to Interstate Highway 70, and to purchase land at the headquarters site.

2. District offices.—The objective is to construct buildings to house Social Security district offices when the General Services Administration determines that construction is more feasible or economical than rental of commercial space or occupancy of existing Federal structures. At the end of 1976, SSA had completed and occupied 76 of these trust fund built offices. Current plans call for site acquisition and design of 10 additional offices in 1977 and 5 in 1978. Construction of the first 10 will begin in 1978.

3. Program service centers.—The objective of constructing program service center facilities is to provide suitable space for social security operations related to reviewing claims and maintaining the beneficiary records for payment of monthly cash benefits. The mid-Atlantic (Philadelphia, Pa.) and western (Richmond, Calif.) program service centers were occupied in July 1975 and the Great Lakes (Chicago, Ill.) center was completed in October 1976. Construction of those centers was financed by the purchase contract method, with $126 million obtained through certificates of participation. Budget authority in the amount of $14,600 thousand for purchase contract payments is being requested for 1978. The funds for the purchase contract payments are reflected in these schedules as a transfer of money to GSA. SSA plans to capitalize the cost of the buildings when the certificates of participation are paid and title taken.

Direct program.—The retirement and survivors insurance program protects individuals and families from the risk of economic loss resulting from old age and death by providing income to retired workers, to their dependents, and to their dependent survivors. The program is financed by contributions to the trust fund which are made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. Since January 1, 1974, the contribution rates have been 4.375% of taxable earnings each for employees and employers, and 6.185% for self-employed persons. These rates are scheduled to decrease to 4.350% and 6.150% respectively effective January 1, 1978.

The contribution rates are applied to taxable earnings up to a specified maximum. The maximum was $14,100 in calendar year 1975 and $15,300 in 1976. In 1977, the taxable maximum will be $16,500. In future years, it will be increased automatically as average wages rise. An automatic increase in the taxable maximum can take effect only after an automatic benefit increase has become effective. The 1978 maximum is projected to be $17,700. Workers who pay more in social security contributions because of increases in the taxable maximum will receive the benefit of more social security protection because the benefit payments are based on average taxable earnings.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of benefits to retired workers, their dependents, and their survivors. The average numbers of persons receiving payments and the benefit amounts, classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1976-78 follow:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Beneficiaries (millions):
Retired workers.....	16.6	16.9	17.3	17.9
Dependents of retired workers.....	3.6	3.5	3.6	3.6
Survivors.....	7.4	7.3	7.5	7.6
Total beneficiaries.....	27.5	27.7	28.4	29.1
Benefit payments (billions):
Retired workers.....	$40.6	$11.1	$46.8	$51.7
Dependents of retired workers.....	4.6	1.2	5.2	5.6
Survivors.....	16.8	4.5	18.9	20.5
Total benefit payments.....	62.1	16.9	71.0	78.0

Normal growth in benefit payments will continue because: (1) The number of beneficiaries will increase as the number of aged persons in the population and the proportion of the aged who are insured rise, and (2) average monthly benefits will increase as general earnings levels continue to rise.

Automatic cost-of-living benefit increases are determined annually and are effective for June of each year. Benefit payments were increased 6.4% effective for June 1976, and are projected to increase to 4.9% in June 1977 and 5.5% in June 1978. The benefit increases are triggered automatically by increases in the cost-of-living as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

The annual exempt amount of earnings under the retirement test also increases automatically over time. Such increases are tied to increases in average wages. In calendar year 1976 the exempt amount was $2,760, and in 1977 it was increased to $3,000. It is projected to increase to $3,240 for calendar year 1978.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses attributable to the retirement and survivors' insurance program by the Social Security Administration, other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and by the Treasury Department.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228g). Estimates are made of the yearly amounts of additional contributions the Social Security Administration would have collected, the additional benefits it would have paid, and the additional administrative costs it would have incurred if railroad employees had been covered under social security. Each year's payment is a settlement for the prior year. It represents the amount by which the estimated benefit payments and administrative costs exceed the estimated contributions, and includes interest through the date of the transfer. There was no payment during the transition quarter. The payment for that period will be included in the transfer made in 1978. The components of the net transfers in 1976-78 follow (in millions of dollars):

Benefit payments.....	1,726.3	1,804.0	2,310.0
Administrative costs.....	19.5	18.0	24.0
Interest.....	101.6	109.0	120.0
Less contributions.....	-635.1	-650.0	-920.0
Net transfer.....	1,212.3	1,281.0	1,534.0

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that specified payments may be made from the old-age and survivors insurance and the disability insurance trust funds for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to individuals who are entitled to social security cash benefits because of a disability. The payments are made in expectation that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries into productive activity. The old-age and survivors insurance trust fund bears the cost of rehabilitation services provided to disabled retirement and survivors insurance beneficiaries, and the disability insurance trust fund bears the cost of such services provided to disability insurance beneficiaries.

Reimbursable program.—1. Section 305 of the Social Security Amendments of 1972 authorizes advances from the OASI trust fund for the administrative expenses of the supplemental security income program for the aged, blind, and disabled, with full reimbursement to the trust fund (including interest when appropriate). Reimbursement is budgeted in the account "Supplemental Security Income Program." Under 42 U.S.C. 1306 (b), the Social Security Administration is authorized (within limits set by the Privacy and Freedom of Information Acts) to provide information or services to other governmental organizations or private organizations on a reimbursable basis. Reimbursable work includes providing information from our records such as data relating to earnings, periods of employment, addresses of reporting employers, and employment data for pension funds and unions. Services provided on a reimbursable basis include printing or reproduction, processing data, or use of data processing equipment.

The disability insurance program protects individuals and families against the risk of economic loss resulting from disability by providing income to severely disabled workers and their dependents. The program is financed by contributions to the trust fund made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. Since January 1, 1974, the contribution rates of taxable earnings have been 0.575% each for employers and employees and 0.815% for self-employed persons. Under present law, the rates will remain unchanged until calendar year 1978 when they are scheduled to increase to 0.6% and 0.85% respectively. The contribution rates are applied to earnings up to a maximum level which is the same for the disability insurance program as for the old-age and survivors insurance program.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of disability insurance benefits to certain disabled individuals and their dependents. The average number of persons receiving payments and the benefit amounts, classified by major types of beneficiaries for 1976-78 follows:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Beneficiaries (millions):
Disabled workers.....	2.5	2.6	2.7	2.9
Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.9	1.9	2.0	2.1
Total beneficiaries.....	4.4	4.5	4.7	5.0
Benefit payments (billions):
Disabled workers.....	$7.6	$2.1	$9.0	$10.2
Dependents of disabled workers.....	1.7	0.5	1.9	2.1
Total benefit payments.....	9.2	2.6	10.9	12.3

Normal growth in benefit payments will continue because: (1) The number of beneficiaries will increase as the population insured for disability benefits rises, especially at ages 50 to 64 where disability incidence rates are highest; and (2) the average monthly benefits will increase as general earnings levels rise. Automatic cost-of-living benefit increases are determined annually and are effective for June of each year. Benefit payments were increased 6.4% effective for June 1976 and are projected to increase 4.9% in June 1977 and 5.5% in June 1978.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by this and the other social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses attributable to the disability insurance program by the Social Security Administration, other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and by the Treasury Department.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Annual payments are made from the disability insurance trust fund to the railroad retirement fund so as to place the disability insurance trust fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included under social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228g). This payment is computed on the same basis as the payment from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. Payments are made each year for the prior year. There was no payment during the transition quarter. The payment for that period will be included in the transfer made in 1978. The components of the net transfers for 1976 to 1978 follow (in millions of dollars):

Benefit payments.....	104.7	117.0	157.0
Administrative costs.....	2.8	3.0	4.0
Interest.....	2.5	3.0	3.0
Less contributions.....	-83.6	-85.0	-121.0
Net transfer.....	26.4	38.0	43.0

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that specified payments may be made from the old-age and survivors insurance and the disability insurance trust funds for the purpose of making rehabilitation services available to individuals who are entitled to social security cash benefits because of a disability. The payments are made in expectation that savings will accrue to the trust funds as a result of rehabilitating disabled beneficiaries into productive activity. The disability insurance trust fund bears the cost of such services provided to disability insurance beneficiaries.

The hospital insurance program affords protection against the high costs of hospital and related care to most individuals age 65 and over, and to disabled people under age 65 entitled for at least 24 months to social security or railroad retirement cash benefits. The program also covers treatment of chronic kidney disease for people under age 65 entitled to monthly social security benefits, for insured workers, and for spouses or dependent children of such insured or entitled individuals.

For persons on the social security and railroad retirement rolls, the hospital insurance program is financed by contributions based on earnings from workers, employers, and self-employed individuals. The maximum taxable earnings base is the same for the hospital insurance program as for the social security old-age, survivors, and disability insurance programs. Under present law, the rate applied to earnings up to this maximum will be 0.9% through calendar year 1977. Beginning January 1, 1978, the rate will increase to 1.10%. Costs for uninsured persons 65 or older in 1974, who met certain transition insured status requirements, are financed from general revenues of the Treasury. Uninsured persons reaching age 65 who cannot be covered under the foregoing provision of law can enroll in the program on a voluntary basis, but must pay the full cost of the protection. The monthly rate was $45 for the year beginning July 1, 1976. Effective July 1, 1977, the rate is expected to increase to $54; and on July 1, 1978, to $63.

1. Benefit payments.—The hospital insurance program provides protection against the cost of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services, and posthospital skilled nursing facility services, with specified deductibles and coinsurance amounts. Benefit payments beginning in 1977 also include funding of direct review costs for Professional Standards Review Organizations. The following table shows comparative data for 1976 through 1978 (in millions) on hospital insurance beneficiaries and on benefit payments classified by type of coverage:

The growth in benefit payments from 1976 to 1978 results primarily from increases in the cost of medical services and in the size of the covered population.

2. Construction.—The costs of site acquisition, design, and construction of office facilities for the Social Security Administration are financed by the social security trust funds.

3. Administration.—This activity reflects administrative expenses attributable to the hospital insurance program by the Social Security Administration, other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and by the Treasury Department.

4. Health insurance experiments and demonstration projects.—The Social Security Administration contracts for experiments and demonstration projects to improve the efficiency of the medicare program.

The supplementary medical insurance program affords protection against the costs of physician services and certain other medical services. Most individuals age 65 and over are eligible for this protection, and about 95% of those eligible have elected coverage. Disabled people under age 65 entitled for at least 24 months to monthly social security or railroad retirement cash benefits also are eligible for this protection. The program also covers treatment of chronic kidney disease for eligible people under age 65 who elect to enroll.

The cost of supplementary medical insurance is financed by premium payments from enrollees together with contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury. The Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare is required by law to promulgate the standard monthly premium rate to be paid by enrollees. The SMI premium rate can rise by no more than the percentage by which cash benefits increased since the last premium raise. Effective July 1, 1976, the premium rate has been $7.20. The rate for enrollees included in this budget is $7.70, effective July 1, 1977, and an estimate of $8.10, effective July 1, 1978.

1. Benefit payments.—The supplementary medical insurance program provides protection against the cost of physician services, home health services not covered under the hospital insurance program, outpatient services, and certain other medical costs, within specified deductibles and coinsurance. The following table shows comparative data for 1976 through 1978 (in millions) on supplementary medical insurance beneficiaries and benefit payments, classified by type of coverage.

The American Printing House for the Blind, under the act "To Promote the Education of the Blind" provides educational materials to students, of less than college grade, who attend public schools and classes with sighted children and to blind students who attend special schools and classes for the blind.

1. Educational materials.—The 1978 budget request will provide educational materials and aids to approximately 30,500 blind students. Basic materials provided under the act for the education of the blind, of less than college grade, in educational programs throughout the United States are textbooks and literature in braille, including braille music, large-type texts, recorded materials and many educational aids such as braille writers, talking book machines, cassette recorders, braille and relief maps and globes and special aids for teaching in the various phases of the course of study, such as math, science.

social studies, music, et cetera. It is also necessary to produce special materials for the multihandicapped and preschool blind children being enrolled in educational programs.

2. Expenses related to advisory committees.—The Printing House has three advisory committees—Publication Committee, Educational Aids Committee, and Educational Research Committee. These committees advise and approve materials and aids to be manufactured through the Federal appropriation. Also, field representatives for the Printing House travel to State departments of education, schools for the blind and public school classes for the blind and advise teachers on materials and facilities available to blind children. Additionally, the Printing House staff gives assistance to educational conferences, colleges, and universities conducting training programs for teachers of the blind.

3. Educational and technical research.—This program provides a base of funding to the Printing House in order to maintain continuity and flexibility in educational materials development and associated research. A continuing program of material development is a basic requirement if the Printing House is to meet its responsibility of providing currently relevant specialized educational materials and aids to blind children.

1. Career development.—The National Technical Institute for the Deaf (NTID) provides residential, co-educational, postsecondary technical education for young deaf people in order to prepare them for successful employment on a national scale. The 1978 request of $10,481 thousand will permit: extension of existing as well as addition of new career-directed curricula for a full-time equivalent of 1,070 deaf students including provision of the necessary tutoring and interpreting support; communication skills training which encompasses the whole spectrum of audition, manual communications, speechreading, speech intelligibility, and English language usage services to this same population; and the offering of specially developed and designed "total environment" personal/social instruction designed to increase the NTID student's entrance to, effective participation in, and long term success in the community and the world of work.

2. Research.—$1,435 thousand is required to support applied research and demonstration focusing on: Improving the economic accommodation of deaf people; increasing the effective methods of academic, communications, and personal/social instruction; and the provision of new methods of instructional support technology specially designed for deaf students. Specific projects include: examination of the degree, type, and extent of labor force participation by NTID graduates; developing effective study skill techniques for deaf students; devising new methods of promoting growth in personal/social competence; expanding the use of diagnostic audiology and audiometric research; improving auditory skill measurement; and use of visually oriented media in various academic situations.

3. Training.—NTID will provide training in manual communications, the impact of deafness, and teaching effectiveness to 90 new staff and graduate interns. Teaching effectiveness, course and unit development, manual communications, and management techniques courses will be offered to another 1,610 NTID and RIT staff, student and professional interpreters, external teachers of the deaf and interns studying in or allied with the field of deaf education. A mini-convention focusing on NTID-proven teaching techniques and instructional methods as well as a national workshop on Educational Interpreting will be presented by NTID.

4. Information dissemination.—NTID's charge to disseminate useful information on its unique instructional, training, and research programs will be satisfied with its budget request for $800 thousand. This comprehensive policy of extending its educational philosophy, techniques, and entire curricula will be conveyed to several different target publics using lectures, publications, on-campus seminars, and mediated special presentations. The educational extension system which coordinates the development of new instructional support projects, management systems, and research results; prepares them for use by external institutions; and distributes them nationally to selected professionals in the field will be fully operational.

5. Management.—NTID's 1978 management emphasis will be devoted to increasing the efficiency of its comprehensive planning, budgeting, accounting, and reporting efforts. In order to provide the necessary direction of its many and varied organizational entities, NTID will provide centralized systems support, data processing, personnel services, and administrative services specifically tailored to the needs of its unique structure and population. The academic and institutional leadership required to meet the demands of NTID in its fully operational state with a full-time equivalent deaf student enrollment of 1,070 and a full-time general and professional staff of 355 will be accomplished within the budgeted amount of $2,080 thousand.

Program purpose.—Gallaudet College is a private, non-profit educational institution providing college preparatory, undergraduate, and continuing education programs for the deaf and a graduate program in fields related to deafness.

As provided under Public Law 89-694, the model secondary school for the deaf serves as a laboratory for educational experimentation and development; disseminates working models throughout the field of education of the deaf; prepares adolescents for postsecondary academic and/or vocational pursuits; and provides deaf adolescents with the skills necessary to become well-adjusted, contributing, and effective members of the society.

Kendall Demonstration Elementary School was established as a national demonstration school for the deaf by act of Congress (Public Law 91-587). Its purposes are to develop an exemplary educational program for children through age 15; to develop a diagnostic center; to develop a parent education program; and to become a source of research on the learning problems of young deaf children.

Budget policy.—In 1978, Gallaudet College is requesting only those increases necessary to insure the integrity of its existing programs. Accordingly, the request reflects very modest increases in the area of program expansion. The college is placing first priority in its program request on funds for the construction of badly needed facilities and on planning for the renovation of functionally obsolete facilities.

The 1978 budget estimates for the liberal arts college will provide for faculty and staff salary increases, increased utility and maintenance costs; enhancement of the graduate program; improved information and services to the alumni and the public; improved security on the campus; establishment of an external degree program; and increased costs of maintaining programs at the 1977 level.

The estimate for the model secondary school will also support faculty and staff pay raises, operations and maintenance of the model secondary school for the deaf facility, and improvement of the instructional, research, dissemination, academic support and public information programs of the model secondary school for the deaf.

Kendall School's request includes annualization of part-year funding for positions approved in 1977, implementation of the summer program for deaf children, faculty and staff pay increases, improvement of operations and maintenance of Kendall Demonstration Elementary School facilities.

The construction request includes equipment and furniture for the new Kendall School; the construction of the learning center and a fifth residence hall for the college, planning funds for renovation of Ely Hall; and acquisition of an energy conservation system; also by the college.

In 1978, the college will directly serve approximately 2,000 deaf persons; the model secondary school for the deaf anticipates an enrollment of about 350 students in its programs; and Kendall School will maintain its 1977 enrollment of 210. Gallaudet indirectly serves many tens of thousands of deaf persons both in the United States and abroad and also serves more than 10,000 teachers and administrators in deaf education.

The teaching faculty to student ratios in 1978 will be 1 to 7 for the liberal arts college; 1 to 5 for the model secondary school; and 1 to 5 for the Kendall School.

1. Academic program.—Howard University is a private nonprofit educational institution consisting of an undergraduate college, a graduate school offering the master's degree and the degree of doctor of philosophy (in African studies, anatomy, biochemistry, chemistry, economics, English, genetics and human genetics, history, mathematics, pharmacology, physics, physiology, political science, psychology, sociology/anthropology, speech and zoology) and 15 professional schools. Federal funds provide 57% of the total operating costs for the academic program. Funds from non-Federal sources are realized from tuition and fees, gifts, grants, endowments, dormitory rents, cafeteria, bookstore sales, and hospital patient fees.

The 1978 estimate will allow the university to meet some of its mandatory costs, such as faculty salary increases, nonfaculty salary increases, and continue partial support of the retirement program. In addition, funds are also provided for several program improvements.

1. Child development.—The child development program provides for activities and services designed to have a major impact on the development of young children. In 1978, the child development program will continue to focus attention on the improvement and innovative efforts to convert Head Start into a more flexible system for delivering services that are both cost effective and responsive to the real needs of children, and to improve local capacity to plan and manage children's services. The $475,000 thousand requested for Head Start in 1978 will provide for the continuation of Head Start services to about 349,000 children. A funding level of $14,700 thousand will provide for research and demonstration programs in 1978 and will assure continuation of funding projects in the field of child welfare and development which are of regional or national significance. The $18,928 thousand for child abuse prevention and treatment will continue centers providing a broad range of services to children and their families, evaluation of the centers, the development and conduct of demonstration training programs and other innovative programs and projects showing promise of success, including a limited number of new projects.

2. Youth development.—In 1977, the $9,000 thousand for youth development will provide $8,000 thousand for continued support for projects for runaway youth and $1,000 thousand for research and demonstrations which directly support youth development activities. Runaway youth projects provide services to meet the immediate emotional, psychological, physical, and social needs of runaway youth. Future runaway activities will be funded under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act, title II of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act, and title XX of the Social Security Act.

3. Programs for the aging.—Programs for the aging will continue to pursue the national goal of securing and maintaining independence and dignity in a home environment for older persons capable of self-care with appropriate supportive services, and removing individual and social barriers to economic and personal independence for older persons. The title III State and community programs will be primarily directed toward establishing and enhancing the capability of State and area agencies on aging to launch or strengthen action programs within planning and service areas for coordinating the delivery of existing services for older persons, and for the pooling of untapped resources in order to strengthen existing services or inaugurate new services for the elderly; $151,000 thousand is requested to continue to improve and foster the development of a comprehensive coordinated services delivery system for the elderly. Title IV-B: Research and Demonstration will continue to focus on the development and validation of substantive information upon which reasoned policy and program decisions may be made. Emphasis will be placed on problems and issues related to achieving the goals of the program and methods of overcoming barriers to realizing these goals; $7,000 thousand is requested for this activity. In 1978, $14,200 thousand will continue to support activities for career training, in-service training, and manpower development in order to assure an adequate number of trained persons for programs in the field of aging. The title VII Nutrition program will serve approximately 435,000 meals per day, 5 days per week. In addition, it will endeavor to improve the capacity of State and local agencies to meet the nutritional and related social needs of the elderly.

4. Rehabilitation services and facilities.—The rehabilitation program provides services to mentally and physically handicapped people to enable them to prepare for and engage in gainful employment. A wide range of services may be provided including counseling, vocational evaluation, work adjustment, medical and physical restoration, vocational training, job placement and postemployment services.

A priority goal of the basic State-Federal program is to provide vocational rehabilitation services to the severely handicapped. In addition, the rehabilitation of disabled public assistance recipients will be continued, including disabled recipients of supplemental security income and social security disability insurance.

In 1978, $18,000 thousand is requested for the innovation and expansion program. These projects provide incentives to State rehabilitation agencies to explore innovative service approaches in the rehabilitation of handicapped persons.

Special projects provide funds for specialized programs, services, studies, and activities in addition to those funded under the basic State-Federal program.

The primary emphasis of the rehabilitation research program in 1978 is to more directly relate activities to meet State needs. Emphasis will continue on projects related to the severely handicapped.

In rehabilitation training, priority emphasis in 1978 will be given to the training of personnel required by State agencies to provide needed skilled rehabilitation services to severely handicapped individuals such as the blind, the deaf, the spinal cord injured, and those with end-stage renal disease.

1 Added resources will be made available to States if individuals meet the special selection criteria of the Social Security Administration.

5. Grants for the developmentally disabled.—A higher level of Federal grants will be made to States to assist in developing a program of assistance for persons with mental retardation, autism, epilepsy, dyslexia, cerebral palsy, and other neurological conditions. Approximately 52,800 individuals will receive services under this program. Through special projects there will be a continued effort in 1978 to promote adequate community-based programs for the care, training, and habilitation of the developmentally disabled. Support will also continue for university affiliated facilities.

6. Special programs for Native Americans.—The Native American program seeks to deal with the special needs of all Native Americans to promote their social and economic development. Grantee funding requested when added to carryover balances will be allocated to about 98 tribes and tribal groups on 500 reservations, 216 Alaskan villages, and 62 urban organizations which potentially serve about 65% of the eligible population and Native Hawaiians.

Following the development of local plans, project grants will be made available in 1978 to support high priority activities designed to achieve improved utilization of existing Federal, State, and local resources and to bridge major gaps in essential economic and social services.

7. White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals.—The White House Conference on Handicapped Individuals will be held in May 1977.

8. Salaries and expenses.—Provides funds for administrative expenses to carry out programs within the Office of Human Development serving special population groups such as the aged, children and youth, the handicapped and native Americans. In addition, funds support the President's Committee on Mental Retardation, the Office for Handicapped Individuals, special offices of manpower, veterans and volunteer programs and the Office of Rural Development.

The program will operate with funds obligated in prior years recoveries of prior year obligations.

In recent years, a number of international research projects have been funded in countries which have excess foreign currencies.

Objectives for 1977 include the following:

It is planned that 18 research projects will be obligated in 1977. These projects, directed at the same objectives and priorities as the domestic program, will emphasize research on the severely disabled including the spinal cord injured, neuromuscular diseases, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, cancer, and end-stage renal disease.

Emphasis will also be placed on rehabilitation engineering with evaluation of new technologies to serve the needs of severely disabled and removal of architectural and other environmental barriers.

There will be U.S. consultants and international scientists or fellows, participating in the program during 1977. This interchange of experts program supplements the R. & D. international program, and provides direct technical assistance and information among scientists.

1. Departmental direction.—The departmental direction activity includes those subactivities which are primarily of a policy nature or which provide administrative guidance to the various components of the Department. These subactivities include:

(a) Executive direction.—Broad policy direction is given to the various operating programs of the Department. Staff assistance is provided for the development of the Department's legislative program and for coordination and leadership in all areas of program operation. Staffing is provided for long-range program and policy planning.

(b) Public information.—Overall guidance is given to the Department's relations with the public. Information is provided to the press, various public and private organizations, and to interested individuals.

(c) Financial management.—Staff assistance is provided in formulating policy in all areas of budget, finance, and grants management.

(d) Administrative management.—Staff assistance is provided for the areas of grant and procurement program, management information system, and personnel policy. This activity also provides administrative management services for all units of departmental management.

(e) Field management.—This staff supports the office of the 10 departmental regional directors, who are responsible for the organization, integration, evaluation, and coordination of the Department's field activities.

(f) General Counsel.—The Office of the General Counsel acts as legal advisor to, and provides legal services for the Secretary, certain of the operating agencies of the Department, and the staff of the regional offices.

(g) President's Commission on Olympic Sports.—This Commission has studied various means by which the United States can field its best amateur sport teams at Olympic sports competitions. The Commission's charter expired January 15, 1977.

2. Departmental operations.—The departmental operations activity provides services to the various components of the Department and performs work related directly to the public. These subactivities include:

(a) Facilities engineering and property management.—This subactivity provides a single point of contact for all HEW construction support services; standardization of facilities policies and procedures; surveillance of special purpose projects with regard to design, construction and fund utilization; and administration of standard level user and reimbursable service costs for payment to GSA under Public Law 92-313. The office also administers the Federal surplus property program. The regional staffs are under the guidance of the regional directors.

(b) Long-term care enforcement.—This staff, under the regional directors, enforces compliance with medicare and medicaid standards regulations by approximately 16,500 nursing homes receiving Federal payments.

(c) Legal services.—This subactivity covers the legal workloads of the Food and Drug Administration and the Social Security Administration.

The Office of the Inspector General, created by Public Law 94-505, includes the Immediate Office of the Inspector General, the Audit Agency, and the Office of Investigations.

(a) Immediate Office.—The Inspector General will: (1) oversee the audit and investigations staffs within the Office; (2) conduct a systematic antifraud and abuse effort throughout the Department and coordinate those activities in the principal operating components designed to promote efficient program operations; and (3) coordinate relationships with other Federal, State, and local governments and nongovernmental entities. Also included in the Immediate Office is the health financing staff which is responsible for overseeing the antifraud and abuse activities related to medicare, medicaid, renal disease, and maternal and child health programs of the Department.

(b) Audit Agency.—The HEW Audit Agency is responsible for the policy and coordination of all Department audit activities, including liaison and coordination with the Defense Contract Audit Agency and other agencies. It performs internal and external audits of all Department activities to provide assurance that Federal funds are used for the purposes intended. The Audit Agency is administered on a decentralized basis with the central office in Washington, D.C., responsible for policy, coordination, and overall administration, and a regional staff responsible for the performance of all audits.

(c) Office of Investigations.—The Office investigates fraud and abuse in the management of departmental programs and in the utilization of Federal assistance funds provided by the Department. It serves as the HEW liaison with the Department of Justice and U.S. Attorneys on criminal investigation matters, directs and coordinates criminal investigation task forces involving HEW programs, and coordinates Federal-State investigative efforts involving HEW funded programs. The Office of Investigations is

The Office for Civil Rights is responsible for carrying out the Department's enforcement programs under title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (racial and ethnic discrimination), title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (sex discrimination), section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (discrimination against the mentally and physically handicapped), Executive Order 11246 (employment discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, and national origin), Public Law 93-638 (Indian Preference Act), sections 799A and 845 of the Public Health Service Act of 1972 (sex discrimination in medical education and nurse training programs), section 407 of the Drug Abuse Office and Treatment Act of 1972 (discrimination in the admission of drug addicts to hospitals), and section 321 of the Comprehensive Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism Prevention, Treatment and Rehabilitation Act of 1970 (discrimination in the admission of alcoholics to hospitals). These statutes require nondiscrimination in the employment and service delivery systems of virtually every elementary, secondary and post-secondary educational system or institution; every hospital, nursing home, child care or other medical institution; and every State and local health, welfare, social service and education agency throughout the Nation. The statutes require the Department to investigate complaints, conduct periodic reviews, negotiate to secure compliance, conduct appropriate enforcement proceedings, and promote voluntary compliance by all of these recipients of Federal financial assistance.

The Office is also responsible, under Executive Order 11914, for providing guidance to and coordinating the implementation of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 by all Federal departments and agencies empowered to extend Federal financial assistance.

The Director, Office for Civil Rights also serves as Special Assistant to the Secretary and as such advises the Secretary on all civil rights-related policies and programs.

The DHEW Working capital fund provides a single means for consolidating financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers.

The fund was originally authorized by Public Law 82-452 (66 Stat. 369) to finance central services provided by Departmental Management to itself and to the several operating agencies.

The following activities operate under the fund:

1. Data management services.—Provides data systems design and consultation, key punching, computer programming, and computer processing to DHEW operating agencies.

2. Common regional services.—Provides departmentwide common regional administrative services, such as personnel, financial, indirect cost negotiation, and office services.

3. Personnel data services.—Maintains a centralized personnel data collection service and provides automated reports and data to all operating components and other Federal agencies.

4. Payrolling services.—Provides for centralized payrolling services for all DHEW employees, as well as leave and payroll accounting for the Department.

5. Administrative services.—Provides centralized mail and messenger services; procurement and distribution of congressional materials; purchasing, supply, and laboring services; reproduction services which consist of offset printing, photographic, visual exhibits, collating, and addressograph services; procurement of printing from the Government Printing Office and other sources; and inventory management.

6. Correspondence management.—Provides a centralized control and guidance for correspondence of all components of the Department.

7. Committee management.—Provides a centralized control as required by Federal Advisory Committee Act (Public Law 92-463) for all committees of the Department.

8. Financial office.—Provides centralized control over all activities of the working capital.

9. Federal Assistance Financing System.—Provides a single system that pays all DHEW grant, contract, and loan programs classified as Federal assistance in nature, less a few programs not susceptible to a centralized system.

Operating results.—The fund continued to operate on a sound financial basis. Retained earnings in excess of current needs will be returned to WCF customers in proportion to their contribution to the surplus.

The "Financial Assistance for Health Care Act" is proposed to provide the States greater flexibility and responsibility in utilizing Federal and State health resources to meet the health needs of the low-income population. This proposal would consolidate 20 health programs and their related program management costs into a new $13 billion program in 1978. States would be allocated amounts according to a formula based on three factors—low-income population, overall tax effort, and per capita income—with a phase-in period for States that would otherwise receive amounts greatly different from the current distribution. States would be required to develop plans to assure the availability of health services for the target population.

Federal administration of the financial assistance for health care program will be accomplished with existing resources of the Assistant Secretary for Health. Personnel who previously administered categorical health services programs will be available for this purpose.

There are several legislative proposals which affect the Old-age and survivors and the Disability insurance trust funds.

1. Eliminate certain retroactive payments of actuarially reduced monthly benefits. This proposal, recommended by the 1971 Advisory Council on Social Security, provides that social security benefits not be paid retroactively for months before an application is filed when this would require a permanent reduction in the beneficiary's future monthly benefits. The Advisory Council recommendation is intended to insure that an OASDI beneficiary's continuing benefit income, on which he has to rely for the remainder of his life, is not reduced. The proposal would make the law more consistent with the objective of providing adequate benefit income for the aged.

2. Eliminate the retirement test monthly measure. This proposal, recommended by the 1975 Advisory Council, would modify the retirement test so that it would no longer include a monthly test except for the first year an individual receives a cash benefit. This Advisory Council recommendation would make the retirement test more equitable and less complex, thereby increasing public understanding and acceptance and providing for more efficient administration.

3. Eliminate social security child's benefits for students age 18-22 with respect to persons who attain age 18 or become eligible for student benefits after June 1977. Since social security student benefits serve as an educational stipend, it would seem more appropriate to provide such support for education within the purview of programs established specifically for this purpose such as grants, scholarships, and loan programs rather than in the context of a social insurance program.

4. Modify certain provisions in the existing law for the purposes of simplifying the administration and improving public understanding of the OASDI programs.

5. Increase the OASDI tax rate by 0.1% in calendar year 1978, an additional 0.3% in 1979, and an additional 0.15% during 1980 for employees and employers each. Also, increase the tax rate for the self-employed in calendar year 1978 by 0.6%, an additional 0.4% in 1979 and an additional 0.3% in 1980. This proposal will help to restore financial integrity and public confidence to the OASDI trust funds by assuring that the funds' reserves will not be depleted in the early 1980's and that they will be maintained at an adequate level to continue to serve their contingency reserve role.

6. Stabilize the relationship between a social security beneficiary's preretirement earnings and his benefit level at retirement. This proposal will assure that social security benefits paid to workers who retire in the future will replace about the same percentage of preretirement earnings as do benefits being paid to workers retiring in 1978. This proposal will make the social security benefit amount more equitable and predictable over time.

There are several legislative proposals which affect the hospital insurance trust fund.

1. Improve Medicare coverage by removing current limits on the number of days in nonpsychiatric hospitals and skilled nursing facilities.

2. Modify the program's cost-sharing structure to provide the following: (a) catastrophic coverage limiting a beneficiary's liability for covered services to $500 per calendar year, to be increased thereafter in proportion to increases in the hospital insurance deductible; and, (b) a coinsurance equal to 10% of charges above the deductible amount on all covered services.

3. Restrain the growth of Medicare costs by limiting increases in per diem hospital and skilled nursing facility reimbursements to 7% in 1978 and 1979.

4. Withhold depreciation payments to facilities, not required for current debt service, in provider escrow accounts to be released upon State approval of replacement or expansion of facilities and equipment.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 201. None of the funds appropriated by this title to the Social and Rehabilitation Service for grants-in-aid of State agencies to cover, in whole or in part, the cost of operation of said agencies, including the salaries and expenses of officers and employees of said agencies, shall be withheld from the said agencies of any States which have established by legislative enactment and have in operation a merit system and classification and compensation plan covering the selection, tenure in office, and compensation of their employees, because of any disapproval of their personnel or the manner of their selection by the agencies of the said States, or the rates of pay of said officers or employees.

SEC. 202. Funds appropriated in this Act to the American Printing House for the Blind, Howard University, the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, and Gallaudet College shall be awarded to these institutions in the form of lump-sum grants and expenditures made therefrom shall be subject to audit by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

SEC. 203. None of the funds provided herein shall be used to pay any recipient of a grant for the conduct of a research project an amount equal to as much as the entire cost of such project.

SEC. 204. None of the funds contained in this title shall be available for additional permanent positions in the Washington area if the total authorized positions in the Washington area is allowed to exceed the proportion existing at the close of fiscal year 1966.

SEC. 205. Appropriations in this Act for the Health Services Administration, the National Institutes of Health, the Center for Disease Control, the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration, the Health Resources Administration and Departmental Management shall be available for expenses for active commissioned officers in the Public Health Service Reserve Corps and for not to exceed two thousand eight hundred commissioned officers in the Regular Corps; expenses incident to the dissemination of health information in foreign countries through exhibits and other appropriate means; advances of funds for compensation, travel, and subsistence expenses (or per diem in lieu thereof) for persons coming from abroad to participate in health or scientific activities of the Department pursuant to law; expenses of primary and secondary schooling of dependents in foreign countries, of Public Health Service commissioned officers stationed in foreign countries, at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and for the transportation of such dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation; rental or lease of living quarters (for periods not exceeding 5 years), and provision of heat, fuel, and light, and maintenance, improvement, and repair of such quarters, and advance payments therefor, for civilian officers, and employees of the Public Health Service who are United States citizens and who have a permanent station in a foreign country; purchase, erection, and maintenance of temporary or portable structures; and for the payment of compensation to consultants or individual scientists appointed for limited periods of time pursuant to section 207(f) or section 207(g) of the Public Health Service Act, at rates established by the Assistant Secretary for Health, or the Secretary where such action is required by statute, not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18; not to exceed $9,500 for official reception and representation expenses related to any health agency of the Department when specifically approved by the Assistant Secretary for Health.

SEC. 206. No part of the funds contained in this title may be used to force any school or school district which is desegregated as that term is defined in title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Public Law 88-352, to take any action to force the busing of students; to force on account of race, creed, or color the abolishment of any school so desegregated; or to force the transfer or assignment of any student attending any elementary or secondary school so desegregated to or from a particular school over the protest of his or her parents or parent.

SEC. 207. (a) No part of the funds contained in this title shall be used to force any school or school district which is desegregated as that term is defined in title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, Public Law 88-352, to take any action to force the busing of students; to require the abolishment of any school so desegregated; or to force on account of race, creed, or color the transfer of students to or from a particular school so desegregated as a condition precedent to obtaining Federal funds otherwise available to any State, school district or school.

(b) No funds appropriated in this Act may be used for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to overcome racial imbalance in any school or school system, or for the transportation of students or teachers (or for the purchase of equipment for such transportation) in order to carry out a plan of racial desegregation of any school or school system.

SEC. 208. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to require, directly or indirectly, the transportation of any student to a school other than the school which is nearest the student's home, and which offers the courses of study pursued by such student, in order to comply with title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

SEC. 209. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to perform abortions except where the life of the mother would be endangered if the fetus were carried to term.

SEC. 210. Funds advanced to the National Institutes of Health Management Fund from appropriations in this Act shall be available for the expenses of sharing medical care facilities and resources pursuant to section 328 of the Public Health Service Act. (Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1977.)

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

This chapter presents the budget and program estimates for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Most of the Department's programs are also discussed in part V of the budget (the Federal program by function) under one of three headings: "Commerce and Transportation" (mortgage credit and thrift insurance); "Community and Regional Development"; and "Income Security" (public assistance and other income supplements).

The major divisions of this chapter conform to the Department's functions, as set forth below:

1. Housing programs covers the Department's major housing subsidy programs as well as the mortgage insurance activities of the Federal Housing Administration. Other functions included under this heading are loan management, property disposition, community disposal operations, liquidating programs, and the provision of temporary housing for persons displaced by disasters.

2. Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) covers the Department's programs to increase the availability of mortgage credit and stabilize the financing of selected types of mortgage loans. This heading also covers GNMA management and liquidating functions, the guarantee of mortgage-backed securities, and trustee activities in connection with participation certificates that are backed by loan obligations of various trustor agencies.

3. Community planning and development covers the community development grant program authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. This heading also covers the comprehensive planning grant (section 701) program, as well as the close-out of projects under categorical community development programs.

4. Policy development and research includes the policy development, economic analysis, program evaluation, and research activities of the Department.

Other major divisions within the Department include the New Communities Administration; the Federal Insurance Administration; Consumer Affairs and Regulatory Functions, including the Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration; Fair Housing and Equal Opportunity; and Departmental Management. The Department's major disaster relief activities are administered by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration and are discussed in the Funds Appropriated to the President chapter.

Day-to-day administration, processing, and funding decisions for programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development are carried out in area and insuring offices located within the geographical boundaries of 10 regional offices.

The United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, authorizes a program of annual contributions to local public housing agencies for the purpose of assisting low-income families to obtain decent, safe, and sanitary housing.

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 substantially amended the 1937 act and authorized a program of assistance to lower-income families. Under this program, commonly called section 8, private owners have a major role: they can develop, own, operate, and maintain units leased to lower-income families. Prospective tenants also have a greater degree of choice and responsibility under the section 8 program. Under the existing component, they generally can select the unit which meets their needs. In all cases, tenants make rental payments directly to the landlord.

HUD may contract with a private owner, with a public housing agency, or with other units of State and local government to make subsidy payments on behalf of eligible tenants. The amount of the payment is based on the difference between the total contract rent (generally limited to the fair market rent of a unit in a particular locality as determined by HUD) and tenant contributions. The maximum term for contracts covering new construction or substantial rehabilitation currently is 40 years in the case of a State or local agency, and 20 years in the case of a private developer. For existing units, the maximum term is 15 years. Budget authority is equal to the Federal Government's maximum contractual obligation to pay rental subsidies over the full term.

For 1977, the Congress provided $14,870.4 million in budget authority. In addition, $15 million in authority previously used for lease adjustments will be recaptured. This authority is available on a permanent basis and is reflected in the budget schedules as permanent budget authority. The 1977 program level will be augmented through the use of contract authority carried forward from 1976 and prior years. No carryover is anticipated at the end of 1977, and the budget authority for 1978 is for the full amount of the proposed program.

Budget program.—During the budget period, authority will be used as follows:

1. Production.—(a) Low-income public housing.—During 1977, the budget reflects an estimated 46,700 units approved under the low-income public housing program. This total reflects use of the congressional set-aside for public housing of $120 million of contract authority contained in the 1977 appropriation act. The total also reflects completion of commitments made by the Department prior to the suspension of the low-income public housing program in January 1973. The estimated unit approvals, together with amendments to prior year commitments, will result in budget authority commitments totaling $6.4 billion in 1977.

Approval of approximately 9,500 units of housing for reservation Indians is expected in 1977. In 1978, only the program for Indians is proposed for continuation. No new activity is planned under the low-income housing program. A total of $948 million in budget authority will support an additional 6,000 units of Indian housing for 1978.

(b) Section 8.—Lower income housing assistance.—The projected level of activity for section 8 in 1977 reflects: the maximum level achievable within the authority provided in the 1977 appropriation act, after providing for the set-aside for the low-income public housing program; the expected level of authority carried into 1977 from 1976 and prior years; and the Housing Authorization Act of 1976 which requires greater reliance on local housing assistance plans. In the past, these plans tend to emphasize the more expensive new construction and rehabilitation projects, at the expense of the less expensive existing program.

If localities allocate authority between new and existing units to reflect their current housing assistance plans, the 1978 budget would support the level of reservations maintained during the 15-month period of 1976 and the transition quarter—394,000 units. This would require use of $22,822.4 million in budget authority. In line with congressional directives, the proposed level assumes 222,000 units of new construction and rehabilitation, and 172,000 existing units. The budget assumes, also, legislative amendments which will enable the Department to move the program more nearly to a block grant concept. This would permit the allocation of budget authority directly to communities and allow them to determine for themselves the appropriate mix of new and existing section 8 units, as expressed in the housing assistance plans developed in conjunction with the community development grant program. In order to achieve this, the budget proposes that the Congress act on the budget authority figure only without acting on contract authority as well. In this manner, communities will have the freedom to choose among different units of housing according to their needs.

(c) Section 8 assistance for property disposition and loan management.—The budget also assumes that the Secretary will reserve up to 10% of the budget authority to be used for section 8 assistance to FHA projects that are acquired, assigned, or experiencing severe financial problems, in order to enhance their viability in 1978.

2. Modernization.—Modernization is designed to provide capital improvements to low-income public housing projects owned by public housing agencies. Budget authority approvals of $735 million are estimated for 1977, and $105 million in 1978. This will continue the average level of $420 million maintained in previous years.

3. Leased housing adjustments.—Adjustments to existing section 23 leasing contracts are estimated at $33.3 million in both 1977 and 1978.

HOUSING PAYMENTS*

*See Part III for additional information.

This appropriation provides for payments required by contracts for subsidized housing programs, including the section 8 lower income housing assistance program and the section 802 State housing finance and development agencies program as authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Substantial payments from this appropriation continue to be made for contracts under the following subsidized housing programs: Rent supplement, homeownership assistance (sec. 235), rental housing assistance (sec. 236), low-income public housing, and college housing grants.

Housing assistance contracts obligate the Federal Government to make annual payments up to the contract amount over the life of the project or mortgage. Since payments usually commence near or upon completion of the dwelling, the annual payments do not begin to reach the maximum contract requirements approved until 1 to 4 years after execution of the contract. The term of the contract also varies among the respective programs.

PAYMENTS FOR OPERATION OF LOW-INCOME HOUSING PROJECTS

For annual contributions to public housing agencies for the payment of operating subsidies for low-income housing projects as authorized by section 9 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1437g), [$575,600,000: Provided, That the aggregate amount of contracts for annual contributions entered into for such payments shall not exceed $575,600,000] $612,000,000. (Department of Housing and Urban Development—Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Payments for the operation of low-income housing projects are provided to assist public housing agencies (PHA's) to meet certain deficits in the operation of PHA-owned low-income housing in accordance with the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. These payments are in addition to the annual contributions for debt service provided by HUD to cover the development, acquisition, or modernization costs of the projects.

Operating subsidies provided to PHA's are based on a performance funding system (PFS) formula which limits subsidy payments to what it would cost a well-managed PHA to operate comparable projects. The Housing Authorization Act of 1976 revised the financial structure of this program to provide for annual appropriations in lieu of contract authority followed by appropriations. The 1978 estimated subsidy, payable under the formula, will be based upon phasing in over 3 years all tenant rent to 25% of adjusted income as defined by current regulations.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized rent supplement payments to owners of certain private housing on behalf of qualified low-income tenants. Contract authority was last provided in 1976 and all available rent supplement contract authority will be committed during 1977. Section 8 subsidies will be used to assist qualifying rent supplement units in 1977 and 1978.

Section 802 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 authorizes the Secretary to make, or contract to make, grants to or on behalf of State housing finance or State development agencies. Such grants may not exceed 33½% of the interest payable on bonds, debentures, notes, and other obligations issued by such agencies to finance housing and related facilities. The 1976 HUD appropriation act released $15 million in contract authority with which to make grants which are payable for a period up to 40 years. The contract authority provided is being utilized during the transition quarter and 1977. No additional contract authority is proposed for 1978.

Section 235.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized a program to subsidize mortgage interest rates on behalf of lower income families to assist them in purchasing homes. For each of fiscal years 1977 and 1978, reservations are estimated at 100,000 new or substantially rehabilitated homes. These reservations will be made out of contract authority obligated in 1976 pursuant to court order. Under the revised program, mortgage interest costs are subsidized down to as low as 5%.

Since the maximum contract term is 30 years, the long-term obligations which are estimated to result from the 1977 and 1978 reservations are expected to be slightly over $5.3 billion out of the $7.9 billion obligated in 1976.

Section 236.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized a program to subsidize the monthly mortgage payment which the owner of a rental or cooperative project is required to make. These subsidies are intended to lower the rents which lower income tenants must pay. Contract authority under this assistance program is used for four purposes:

Previous commitments.—Bona fide commitments made to specific projects or agencies before the suspension of the program in January 1973, are still being processed. The remaining 6,600 units are expected to be placed under reservation in 1977.

Deep subsidies.—The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 authorized a deeper subsidy for certain projects which had not reached final endorsement as of August 22, 1974. Approximately $35 million in contract authority was used in 1976 and the transition quarter. An additional $17.5 million in contract authority is estimated to be obligated in 1977 and 1978 for these subsidies.

Amendments to existing contracts.—Contract amendments are approved in some instances when amortization requirements increase above what was estimated at the time of reservation. The contract is not executed until final insurance endorsement occurs (usually when the project is completed). If interest rates increased or the actual construction cost exceeded the estimate—as often happens—additional contract authority may be reserved. In 1977 and 1978, $6 million in additional authority is estimated to be reserved for this purpose.

Subsidies for taxes and utilities.—The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 also included authorization to pay subsidies for certain tax and utility cost increases incurred by projects receiving section 236 assistance. Based upon several court orders, the Department is currently paying $552 thousand on an annual basis. Since contract authority used for this purpose is committed on an annual basis and the authorization for its use does not expire, the authority used in any one year is recaptured at the end of the year for use in the next year and is reflected as permanent budget authority.

The Federal Housing Administration fund was established pursuant to the National Housing Act of 1934 and is a noncorporate business type fund, which was brought under the Government Corporation Control Act by the Housing Act of 1948.

As a recent HUD study indicates, the appropriate role for FHA in the housing market is one of providing an insurance service that is complementary to the private mortgage insurance industry. The objective behind FHA's existence should be to accept, on an unsubsidized basis, that market demand which is not adequately served by this industry. Premiums for each program will be collected earlier at levels intended to achieve actuarial soundness thus encouraging the development of private insurers. Mortgage insurance will no longer be written under section 221(d)(2) and section 223(e). Creditworthy families who would otherwise purchase homes under these two programs will be eligible for mortgage insurance under the basic homeownership program.

The Federal Housing Administration fund consists of four separate funds, which were established pursuant to the National Housing Act of 1934, as amended. The act created a system of mortgage and loan insurance programs to help finance the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties. Activity for each individual housing program is shown by fund for financial control and reporting purposes.

The Mutual mortgage insurance fund provides the Department's basic single family mortgage insurance program authorized by section 203 of the National Housing Act. It is a mutual fund where mortgagors share surplus premiums paid into the fund upon termination of the mortgages that are not required for operating expenses or losses. Legislation is being proposed to incorporate section 203 and section 207 (basic multifamily mortgage insurance program which currently is included in the General insurance fund) into one fund. Under the proposal, the mutuality of section 203 would not be offered on new insurance.

The Cooperative management housing insurance fund, also a mutual fund, provides mortgage insurance for management-type cooperatives authorized by section 213. Mutuality under this fund also will not be offered on new insurance.

The General insurance fund provides for a large number of specialized mortgage insurance programs, including the insurance of loans for property improvements, as well as for basic and special-purpose multifamily housing. Programs to insure cooperatives, condominiums, housing for the elderly, land development, group practice medical facilities, and nonprofit hospitals are included in this fund.

Legislation is being proposed whereby all programs, currently under the General insurance fund, with the exception of section 207, and all programs in the Special risk insurance fund would be transferred into a new fund.

The Special risk insurance fund was created by the HUD Act of 1968 and provides mortgage insurance on behalf of mortgagors eligible for interest reduction payments who otherwise would not be eligible for mortgage insurance. In addition, the fund provides insurance on mortgages covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations is not observed. Also provided is insurance for high-risk mortgagors who normally would not be eligible for mortgage insurance, but who can become eligible with the provision of housing counseling assistance. Legislation is being proposed whereby all mortgage insurance programs currently financed from the Special risk insurance fund would be transferred together with those programs remaining in the General insurance fund into a new fund.

Expenses and losses connected with defaulted notes, assigned mortgages and acquired properties are charged to the appropriate insurance fund by mortgage insurance program. The combined reserves of all four funds reached a deficit position for the first time in 1975. The deficits do not reflect the actual cash position of the funds, but do reflect the financial status of the long-term insurance reserves. During 1976, expenses exceeded income by $754 million resulting in a reserve deficit from program operations of $971 million. An appropriation of $142.5 million was provided in 1976 to reimburse the FHA fund for a portion of the losses sustained in the Special risk and general insurance funds from the sale of acquired properties and assigned mortgages. Insurance reserves at the end of 1978 are estimated to be surplus for the mutual mortgage insurance and cooperative management housing insurance funds, but in a deficit status of over $5 billion for the two other funds. Estimated reserve requirements of over $3.1 billion would be appropriate for an actuarially sound insurance operation. Thus, the fund's present operations have a projected $4.1 billion deficit—instead of the $971 million deficit displayed below. The status of estimated insurance reserves through 1978 is as follows:

STATUS OF INSURANCE RESERVES

[In millions of dollars]

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

Total FHA fund.....	-971	-1,309	-2,052	-2,766

As a result of the continued deficits of the FHA fund over the last several years, a number of steps have been taken to halt and ultimately reverse this net loss trend. These include tightened underwriting procedures and faster sales of acquired properties to reduce holding costs.

A continued emphasis on "as is" sales should result in a great number of sales and continued high sales income, as well as in lower costs for maintenance and repairs on acquired properties. In addition, up to 10% of the section 8 subsidies would be used to enhance the viability of FHA insured, assigned, and acquired multifamily units in both 1978 and 1979. Also, the section 235 mortgage insurance program has been reactivated with higher downpayments, tighter underwriting requirements, and actuarially sound premiums. Also, full implementation of the new coin-surance program authorized by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, under which FHA shares risks with lenders originating mortgages, is expected to result in a significant improvement in underwriting practices and savings to the fund.

Budget program.—Legislation is being proposed to combine programs now in the General insurance fund and Special risk insurance fund into a single fund. In addition, the section 203 and 207 programs now in the Mutual mortgage insurance fund and the General insurance fund, respectively, would be incorporated in one fund and the mutuality for the section 203 and cooperative programs would not be offered on new insurance.

A supplemental appropriation of $1.8 billion is being requested in 1977 to restore the net realized losses to the FHA fund as of September 30, 1976. Included is a supplemental appropriation of $15 million is also being requested in 1977 to reimburse the fund for losses on properties to be transferred to local governments under the urban home-steading demonstration. Details on these supplemental requests are included in Part III.

Financing.—In 1976, $153.5 million of debentures were issued, and $59.4 million were redeemed. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 authorized the payment of claims in cash and borrowing from the Treasury as necessary to do so. All home mortgage claims and multifamily housing claims under sections 220, 221, 223, 233, 235(j), and 236 are paid in cash. Treasury borrowings amounted to $989 million in 1976, $212 million during the transition quarter, and are estimated at $1.1 billion in 1978.

Insurance authority.—The authority for insurance operations for all programs, except for the interest subsidy programs, was extended by the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, to June 30, 1977. In general, these authorizations are without dollar limitation, except for the credit assistance programs. Legislation will be proposed to extend most of these programs. FHA downpayment and mortgage limit changes will be proposed to bring homeownership opportunities within the reach of a larger number of families. Implementation of a graduated payment mortgage insurance program to assist young, first-time homebuyers has been accelerated and is now offering lower initial monthly payments on an experimental basis. Legislation will be proposed to remove the volume limit on this experimental insurance program.

Operating expenses.—The 1976 Appropriation Act provided for payments from the Federal Housing Administration fund to various appropriation accounts to cover the estimated administrative expenses. Beginning in 1977, funds are being paid directly into the new account, "Salaries and expenses," Department of Housing and Urban Development. Workload estimates do not reflect the impact of proposals to implement the graduated mortgage payment program increase mortgage limits, and lower downpayments. These could increase workload after the enactment of authorizing legislation and result in the need for additional staff.

Administrative expenses are discussed in the operating expense section of the narrative accompanying the Federal Housing Administration fund.

In 1976, funds required to meet the costs of staff expenses will be paid from the FHA fund into the appropriate account (for example, "Regional management and services," "Administration and staff services"). In 1977 and 1978, the funds are being paid directly into the new account, "Salaries and expenses, Department of Housing and Urban Development."

The amounts for administrative expenses are derived from several transfer authorities as shown below:

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950 authorized loans at 3% interest to colleges and eligible hospitals for the construction or acquisition of housing and related facilities such as student centers, dining halls, and infirmaries. The HUD Act of 1968 amended the program to provide an alternate source of assistance by authorizing debt service grants which reduce the cost to colleges and hospitals of borrowing in the private market.

Budget program.—New reservations for this program were discontinued effective January 5, 1973. The remaining balance of contract authority for debt service grants as well as any future recoveries of contract authority was rescinded on December 21, 1974 (Public Law 93-529). A limited direct loan program is being conducted in 1977 using repayments of loans and other income. This program is limited to rehabilitation, alteration, conversion, or improvement of existing facilities. It is proposed to transfer all assets and liabilities of the College housing loan fund to the revolving fund (liquidating programs) in 1978 for liquidation.

Financing.—Funds for the direct loan program have come primarily from Treasury borrowing and from the sale of participation certificates which are backed by pools of college housing loans held by the Federal Government. Treasury borrowings totaled $2,811 million as of September 30, 1976.

Sales of participation certificates, as provided in the Participation Sales Act of 1966, totaled $2.2 billion through 1969. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and the interest collections on the college housing bonds underlying the certificates.

Budget authority required for estimated insufficiencies and unfinanced deficits is shown in the following table:

Operating results.—The estimated net operating income of $0.5 million in 1977 will decrease the cumulative deficit to $173.7 million.

All unobligated balances, as well as all receipts and reimbursements anticipated in future years, will be used to cover operating expenses and repay Treasury borrowing. The budget provides $8 million to fund loan management, liquidation, and property disposition expenses related to possible loan foreclosure actions in 1977.

The low-rent public housing loan fund provides Federal financing for the construction, acquisition, or modernization of public housing projects owned by public housing agencies (PHA's) until the projects can be financed in the private market. Federal loans are not available for financing the construction of leased housing under section 8 of the U.S. Housing Act of 1937, as amended. Payments to liquidate the indebtedness of the PHA's pursuant to annual contribution contracts are provided out of the Housing payments appropriation.

Budget program.—The Department may contract with PHA's to make loans covering up to 100% of total construction, acquisition, or modernization costs. Experience indicates, however, that the volume of direct Federal loans outstanding at any one time will be only a small percentage of Federal loan approvals because private financing is relied upon as a major source of funds. The status of loan approvals follows:

a. Direct loans.—Direct Federal loans are made to finance the early costs of PHA-owned project development as well as the modernization of existing PHA-owned projects. Direct loans are made with available working funds and with funds borrowed from the Treasury when necessary. Borrowings outstanding at any one time from the Treasury may not exceed $1.5 billion. Pursuant to the U.S. Housing Act of 1937, as amended, the ceiling on Treasury borrowing is applied only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will be disbursed rather than to total approvals which are not expected to result in outlays.

The Secretary has set the maximum Federal loan exposure factor (that is, the maximum demand for Federal loans at any one time) at 10% of loan approvals outstanding. Only minimal borrowings are anticipated on September 30, 1977, or September 30, 1978.

b. Private loans.—When Federal direct loans to a PHA accumulate to an amount that is attractive to private investors, the PHA sells short-term tax-exempt notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make Federal loans, if necessary, covering up to 100% of the development, acquisition, or modernization cost of the project. The notes sold at an average interest rate of 3.5% in 1976 and 3.0% in the transition quarter.

In 1976, $266 million in direct Federal loans were repaid using funds raised in the private market with a Federal guarantee. Repayments are estimated at about $600 million in 1977 and 1978, respectively. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods, averaging 7.8 months in 1976 and in the transition quarter, and may be reissued several times and in increasing amounts before the development, acquisition, or modernization costs are permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity conducted under the program during any period greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of that period.

The status of temporary financing and refinancing of production and management loans during 1976 and the transition quarter and estimated transactions during 1977 and 1978 follow:

STATUS OF TEMPORARY FINANCING

c. Bonds.—Normally, PHA-owned dwellings are permanently financed at or near completion of development or acquisition through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions in sufficient amounts to meet principal and interest requirements. No bond offerings have been made since 1974.

Operating results.—The estimated net operating income of $6.1 million in 1978 will increase retained income to $70.3 million. Retained income may be required to meet program requirements in future years.

The Emergency Homeowners' Relief Act (Public Law 94-50) provided temporary standby authority for the implementation of a program of emergency mortgage relief to homeowners in the event that the condition of the economy causes widespread mortgage foreclosures and distress sales of homes. Emergency assistance could be in the form of mortgage relief loans and advances of credit extended by approved financial institutions. The budget does not anticipate the use of this standby authority.

The Nonprofit sponsor assistance fund provides interest-free loans to nonprofit organizations to facilitate the development of housing projects for low- and moderate-income families. The program is being used to assist nonprofit sponsors who will receive permanent financing under the section 202 housing for the elderly or handicapped program. To insure a sufficient commitment by the sponsor to the proposed project, only a portion of the startup costs will be funded through these "seed money" loans, and sponsors will be required to demonstrate their financial capacity by providing an initial equity investment from their own funds not to exceed $10,000. This equity contribution is to be refunded once successful operation of the project is assured.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Secretary to establish a revolving fund into which would be deposited rental collections in excess of the established basic rents for units in section 236 subsidized projects. Repayment of such collections are estimated to decline somewhat due to a change in calculating excess payments from an individual unit basis to a project basis.

Section 212 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 provides that fund balances may be used, subject to the prior commitment of contract authority, for the payment of utility and tax increases in section 236 projects. The use of the fund balances for this purpose beginning in 1976 reflects court actions directing the Department to use the funds for that purpose in certain specific cases.

The 1977 HUD Appropriation Act (Public Law 94-378) provides for the transfer of excess rental receipt balances from this fund to the housing payments account. The 1978 budget proposes appropriation language to continue such transfers.

The Revolving fund (liquidating programs) was established by the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1955 for the more efficient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs. In 1971, the public works planning advances, grants to aid advance acquisition of land and Alaska housing programs were transferred to the fund for liquidation. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 provided for the transfer of assets and liabilities to this fund of grants for basic water and sewer facilities, grants for neighborhood facilities, grants for open space land, public facility loans, and rehabilitation loans for liquidation. The budget assumes the transfer of all assets and liabilities of the college housing and rehabilitation loan programs to the revolving fund for liquidation, effective on October 1, 1977.

Financing.—In the past, certificates of participation in pools of public facility loans and college housing loans were sold. Funds are appropriated annually to cover the difference between interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the loans underlying the certificates.

The budget authority required for interest insufficiencies was transferred to the Revolving fund (liquidating programs) when public facility loan assets and liabilities were transferred to this account in 1975. The computation of budget authority required for public facility and college housing loans in 1978 is shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

Under the Disaster Relief Acts of 1970 and 1974, the Department is authorized to use its own funds and resources to respond to Federal Disaster Assistance Administration (FDAA) mission assignments in Presidentially declared disasters. Such mission assignments normally are to provide, finance, and manage temporary housing for persons displaced by disasters.

Section 406 of the HUD Appropriation Act of 1973 (Public Law 92-383) authorized the Secretary to establish a fund to initially finance the costs of providing and managing temporary housing. This fund provides interim financing pending reimbursement from Funds appropriated to the President for disaster relief.

After the fund is reimbursed, the contributing HUD accounts will be repaid, although sufficient balances are retained in the fund to enable the Department to provide future emergency housing promptly. The budget provides a basic working balance of $50 million which, based on past experience, is considered adequate to fund FDAA housing mission assignments.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, of beneficial interest, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized appropriations to cover the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. A permanent, indefinite appropriation is available to cover insufficiencies for sales authorized in 1967, while those authorized in 1968 require annual appropriations.

Through September 30, 1968, this fund purchased and sold preferred stock in the secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and made loans to it as needed to support its operations involving the purchase of federally insured or guaranteed mortgages. On that date, the Association redeemed all preferred stock and became a private corporation owned by its common stockholders. All authority for investment in preferred stock of the corporation lapsed.

The fund is still authorized to make loans to the Association. Such loans were made in the first few months of the Association's existence as a private corporation while it arranged lines of credit with commercial banks. No loans have been made since that time and the loan authority will be used only in emergency situations.

Special assistance functions.—The Association is authorized, pursuant to section 305 of the National Housing Act, to make purchase commitments and to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgage loans. Funds are currently available to the President to provide special assistance for financing: (1) selected types of residential mortgage loans pending establishment of marketability, and (2) residential mortgage loans generally as a means of stabilizing building activities. This function is administered with the use of processing facilities of the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Budget program.—Commitment contracts amounting to $175 million are planned for 1977 for mortgages that will bear below-market interest rates under the section 236 assisted housing program. No commitment activity is planned for 1978. Mortgage purchases, representing deliveries from commitment contracts in prior years, are estimated at $500 million in 1977, and $370 million in 1978. Sales of these mortgages, and tandem plan mortgages carried over from prior years, are estimated at $1,136 million in 1977, and $1,169 million in 1978.

Financing.—Funds for mortgage purchases are obtained from principal liquidations through either repayments on portfolio mortgages or sales of tandem purchases, and borrowings from the Treasury. A portion of the mortgage portfolio was financed by sale of participation certificates.

This amounted to $1.2 billion in prior years and there is a remaining liability of $535.9 million offset by $153.2 million on deposit with the trustee in anticipation of scheduled retirements. Funds for operating costs, mainly interest expense and discounts required on tandem mortgage sales, are obtained from mortgage earnings and from appropriations for the difference between interest expense on participation certificates and the income from related mortgage investment earnings.

Operating results.—Through June 30, 1976, losses of $49.6 million for participation sales have been offset by appropriations. Other losses from below-market interest rate loans, tandem costs, interest on Treasury borrowings and asset sales amounted to $1,407.6 million. Of this amount, $1,358.1 million is carried as an impairment of capital.

The special assistance functions are expected to result in losses estimated at $296.4 million in 1977, and $303.6 million in 1978.

Appropriations for insufficiencies under the participation sales fund will cover $8.1 million of 1977 losses and $7.8 million of 1978 losses.

The following table shows the derivation and financing of the interest insufficiencies on outstanding participation certificates:

Emergency housing assistance.—Section 313 of the National Housing Act provides standby authority to purchase below-market rate mortgages when the Secretary finds that economic conditions are having a severely disproportionate effect upon the housing industry which threatens seriously to affect the economy. This authority was released in 1975 and 1976 to issue purchase commitments for $7,750 million of home mortgages and $3,000 million of project mortgages. An additional release of $2,000 million has been authorized for the purchase of project mortgages beginning in the transition quarter and continuing into 1977. Through September 30, 1976, $5,367 million of mortgages were purchased, with further purchases estimated at $665 million in the transition quarter, $600 million in 1977, and $1,390 million in 1978.

Sales of purchased mortgages to private investors, as contemplated by the authorization, are planned in both 1977 and 1978. These sales will be scheduled to minimize the loss to the Government. These sales were $5,282 million through September 30, 1976, and are expected to amount to $515 million in 1977, and $1,169 million in 1978.

Financing.—Funds are obtained from Treasury borrowings, mortgage principal liquidations, and mortgage interest payments.

Operating results.—Losses are estimated at $67 million in 1977, and $94 million in 1978, primarily from the differences in prices paid to purchase the below-market rate mortgages and the prices that are obtainable when such mortgages are sold at market yields.

The Association is required to manage and liquidate its initial mortgage portfolio and other mortgages, loans, or obligations. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular principal repayments according to amortization schedules, by sales of mortgages when they can be absorbed by private investors without disruption of normal market conditions, and through principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The fund's initial portfolio consisted of mortgages on hand at, or purchased under contracts made before, November 1, 1954. Certain additional mortgages, loans, and other obligations may be acquired for this portfolio from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. Residential housing mortgages may also be acquired from any Federal instrumentality.

Budget program.—It is not expected that any purchase of mortgages under these functions will be made during 1977 or 1978.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations, and sales of participation in mortgage pools.

Transfers of principal repayments on pooled mortgages to the Participation sales fund for repayment of participation certificates are expected to be $30.0 million in 1977 and $26.2 million in 1978.

Operating results.—Net income of $2.1 million and $1.7 million is estimated for 1977 and 1978, respectively. The following table shows the financing of the insufficiencies:

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on trust certificates or other securities issued by any financial institution approved for this purpose based on and backed by a trust or pool of FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed mortgages.

GNMA must make good on losses resulting from defaults of mortgages included in pools backing guaranteed securities. Claims and other expenses—item 3 above—represents losses sustained and projected on the mortgage pools. The distribution of losses and other expenses is as follows:

Total.....	4,120	726	7,840	7,840

Budget program.—Program activity is summarized in the following table:

[In thousands of dollars]
	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Applications received.....	14,500,000	3,500,000	14,500,000	14,500,000

Securities outstanding.....	25,610,200	28,694,300	37,000,000	45,400,000

Financing.—Issuers of guaranteed securities are assessed application fees, guarantee fees and other charges to cover costs incurred by GNMA in connection with the guarantees and to establish a reserve against possible future payments of claims under the guarantee.

Operating results.—Fee collections and other income are expected to exceed expenses by $19.4 million in 1978. This amount will be retained to cover future year expenses and as a reserve against losses that may be incurred on guarantees.

The National Housing Act, as amended, authorized the Association to create trusts to facilitate the financing of mortgages and other loan obligations owned by Government agencies. Under this authority, participations in the interest and principal collections on pooled loan obligations pledged by various trustor agencies were sold to private investors.

The budget schedules of the trustor agencies originally owning the loan obligations reflected sale of participation certificates as borrowing from the public. Collections on the pooled obligations are transferred to the Association, as trustee, and invested until distributed to the holders of participation certificates as required by the trust agreement. Collections are then redistributed to trustor agencies for payment of interest and retirement of certificates.

Whenever interest collections on pooled obligations, together with investment income, are insufficient to cover required interest payments and a share of administrative and other costs, the trustor agencies pay to the Association amounts equal to the insufficiencies. The costs of any such insufficiencies are covered by appropriations which appear in the accounts of the trustor agencies or by balances available in those accounts.

In the event the principal collections on pooled loans are not sufficient to meet scheduled retirements of participation certificates, the Association may either borrow from the Treasury or sell additional certificates to redeem those coming due. Alternatively, those trustor accounts with unobligated balances available may repurchase pooled loans to provide the cash required for scheduled redemptions.

Administrative expenses, prior to 1977, have been treated as limitations with a definite amount stated in the language. Funds were then drawn from the various accounts and paid to the Administrative operations fund to finance the administrative activities of the Association. Beginning in 1977, the limitation language was deleted and funds are being drawn from the various accounts and paid to the consolidated appropriation, "Salaries and expenses, Department of Housing and Urban Development."

Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-383) authorizes the Secretary to make grants to units of general local government and States for the funding of local community development programs.

Funds are currently distributed to eligible applicants using a formula based on population, poverty (counted twice), and overcrowded housing. Funds must be allocated between communities in Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's) and those in nonmetropolitan areas. Within SMSA's, "metropolitan cities" and "urban counties" are eligible for entitlement funding based on the criteria of the formula.

Additional special transition funds are made available to communities experiencing hardship situations as they make the transition to the new program from the old terminated categorical grant programs, or for special needs during the transition period which cannot be met out of formula funds.

Budget program. An appropriation of $3,435 million, which includes $65 million for special transition needs, is requested for 1978. It is proposed that the basis of distribution be changed to a dual formula system. This approach is more fully described in part V.

Outlays are estimated at $2,250 million for 1977 and $3,022 million for 1978. However, actual outlays will be governed by the rate at which communities expend the funds which have been made available to them.

COMPREHENSIVE PLANNING GRANTS

For comprehensive planning grants as authorized by section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended (40 U.S.C. 461), [$62,500,000] $25,000,000, to remain available until expended. Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.), authorized Federal capital grants and development loans to local public agencies for rehabilitation and redevelopment of slums and blighted areas.

Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-383) terminated this program on January 1, 1975. No commitments for new grants or loans have been made since that date. Eligible activities of the terminated program may be funded, at the option of the grant recipient, under the community development block grant program, authorized by the 1974 act.

No new budget authority is required for the program. However, a permanent indefinite appropriation to liquidate prior unfunded contract authority is available. Loan commitments previously made under this program are still outstanding and will continue until financial settlement of the projects involved is reached. The status of loan commitments outstanding at the end of each period is as follows:

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, as amended, and title VII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970, as amended, authorize Federal assistance to private and public new community developers. The program provides for Federal guarantee of the bonds, debentures, notes, and other obligations issued by, or on behalf of, private and public new community developers. Federal guarantees of obligations issued by developers may not exceed $50 million for each new community project.

No new guarantee commitments are anticipated in 1977 or 1978. However, guarantees on previous commitments will be issued for $5 million in 1977 and $4 million in 1978.

Each of the 13 new community projects are undergoing some form of financial reorganization. This requires that the Federal Government retire the outstanding guaranteed debentures and provide funding for certain project operating expenses where a project's cash resources are exhausted. These actions are necessary to protect the Federal interest and help assure the future viability of the projects.

Budget program.—1. Administrative expenses.—These amounts represent the administrative cost of carrying out this program.

2. Appraisal and consultant fees.—These costs are incurred for analysis and management and technical services, including land appraisals, for the new community projects in the program.

3. Interest on U.S. Treasury borrowings.—This represents the interest which will be paid to the U.S. Treasury on the borrowings of the fund. The increase in Treasury borrowings is due to the substantially increased borrowings necessary to fund the proposed budget plan.

Other program costs.—The budget anticipates that four projects will require an acceleration of principal payments on outstanding guaranteed debentures in 1977 involving $74.0 million. In 1978 one project involving $50.0 million will require similar treatment. It is also anticipated that operating expenses for projects with exhausted cash resources will amount to $10.2 million in 1977 and $3.5 million in 1978. Interest payments on guaranteed debentures decline as a portion of the outstanding debentures is retired.

Financing.—The budget program in 1977 and 1978 will be financed primarily by Treasury borrowing. In addition, developers receiving guarantees are charged fees which will continue at a reduced level in 1978. The amounts advanced to developers to meet certain project expenses will be paid by the developers once the projects are in a financial position to make the repayments. However, it is not expected that any such payments will be received in 1977 or 1978.

Operating results.—Through September 30, 1976, cumulative net profit in the fund amounted to $9.4 million. It is estimated that the fund will accrue an estimated net loss amounting to $38.5 million by the end of 1978. This loss is due to the financial restructuring of the new communities which require Federal expenditures until repayments by the developers can be made. No restoration of capital will be necessary during the period covered by this budget.

The National Insurance Development Fund provides the funding source for two programs authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended: (1) The FAIR (fair access to insurance requirements) plan/riot reinsurance program, a cooperative effort by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government aimed at providing reasonable access to fire insurance in urban areas; and (2) the Federal crime insurance program, which provides burglary and robbery insurance at affordable premium rates on properties that meet protective device requirements where such coverage is not available in the private market.

Budget program.—1. Riot reinsurance claims.—The amount which is paid through riot and civil disorder reinsurance is expected to continue at the same level.

2. Crime insurance.—(a) Insurance claims.—Claims reflect insurance payments in the program.

(b) Operating expenses.—Expenses incurred by fiscal agents in issuing policies, settling claims, and maintaining accounting and statistical records.

3. Studies and surveys.—Includes expenses of continuing reviews of market availability of basic property insurance and of crime insurance.

4. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the programs.

Financing.—Claims and expenses are estimated to be paid from premium income and income from holdings of Government securities. Thus, it is anticipated that none of the $250 million in Treasury borrowing authority will be utilized.

Operating results.—Claims and expenses are expected to exceed premium and investment income due to losses under the crime insurance program, resulting in a decrease in the reserves of the fund.

Net losses of the crime insurance program, estimated at $7,692 thousand in 1977 and $9,496 thousand in 1978, will be funded by reserves.

Note.—Excludes $7,438 thousand in 1977 and $9,606 thousand in 1978 for administrative expenses included in "Salaries and expenses, Department of Housing and Urban Development." Comparable amounts for 1976 ($4,961 thousand) and TQ ($1,323 thousand) are included above.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes a cooperative program by the Federal Government and the private insurance industry to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $90 thousand for residential and $400 thousand for other.

Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within 1 year of the time they are identified as flood-prone in order to be eligible for programs of federally related financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes.

Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the permanent program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates, and these rates are charged for insurance on new construction.

Significant indicators of program size are as follows:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Policies in force.....	793,779	834,869	1,150,000	1,450,000
Insurance in force (in billions of dollars).....	22.8	24.6	33.0	43.7
Communities in program.....	14,502	14,829	16,000	17,000

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—The Federal share of the allowable costs of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $15,599 thousand in 1978.

2. Loss and adjustment expense.—The Federal share of insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expenses is estimated at $105,803 thousand in 1978.

3. Interest expense.—Interest on Treasury borrowings needed to defray Federal underwriting and loss expense payments in excess of reinsurance premium income is estimated at $21,008 thousand in 1978.

4. Studies and surveys.—In 1978, $108 million is proposed for detailed elevation studies, used to determine actuarial premium rates.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $500 million to carry out the program. Borrowings are estimated to total $348,241 thousand by the end of 1978.

The program is also financed through reinsurance receipts and from excess operating surpluses in favorable years. Administrative expenses and costs of studies and surveys are paid from appropriated funds.

Operating results.—Cumulative expenses are expected to exceed revenue and receipts from non-Federal sources by approximately $740 million by the end of 1978. The cumulative deficit is primarily financed by cumulative appropriations of $370 million and charges against borrowing authorization of approximately $348 million.

The National Mobile Home Construction and Safety Standards Act of 1974 was enacted as Title VI of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. Pursuant to the act, Federal mobile home construction and performance standards were published in the Federal Register.

The act directs that inspections and investigations be conducted to enforce the Federal standards. Mobile home manufacturers are also required to submit building plans for approval for all models to be built.

Fees and other revenues will make this program self-sufficient in 1978 and thereafter.

The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public in connection with the purchase or lease of subdivision lots. Statements of record must be filed with the Secretary before subdivisions with 50 or more lots may be sold in interstate commerce, except when the subdivision is eligible for exemption.

The Secretary is authorized to charge a fee, not exceeding $1 thousand, to be paid by the developer when filing a statement of record. Beginning in 1976, appropriations were required to supplement fees to finance the total expenses. Appropriations for this purpose are included under Salaries and expenses, Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 directs the Secretary to undertake programs of research, studies, testing, and demonstrations related to the HUD mission. These functions are carried out through grants to and contracts with industry, nonprofit research organizations, educational institutions, and through agreements with State and local governments and other Federal agencies.

The experimental housing allowance program will continue to test and analyze direct cash assistance to needy families for rental or homeownership payments. Research to assess and improve section 8 program operations and performance will also continue. The budget also provides for further investigations of property disposition approaches, multiple city tests of urban homesteading, neighborhood preservation programs based upon resident-business-local government partnerships, and innovations in housing rehabilitation; activities to improve conventional and mobile home safety standards; interim support for the National Institute of Building Sciences; efforts to reduce the hazard of lead-based paint and to improve the administration of codes; research and demonstration programs in State and local government policy analysis and management, public service productivity, and public finance; and programs concerned with energy conservation.

Evaluations of HUD programs, such as FHA mortgage insurance including multifamily inventories and community development block grants, will continue in 1978. These studies identify and measure the costs, benefits, impacts, and effectiveness of specific programs and policies of the Department.

Continued collection and analysis of economic and financial data essential to HUD policy and program development also are planned. The Annual Housing Survey, the largest single project in this area, measures changes in housing inventory and compiles data on the physical condition of housing units and the characteristics of the occupants in both urban and rural areas.

This appropriation finances staff salaries, travel, rents, and other costs associated with administering the programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Pursuant to 12 U.S.C. 1701c(b)(3), all administrative expense funds of the Department may be consolidated in a single fund. In 1976 and prior years, funds appropriated in a number of accounts and otherwise available were consolidated in the administrative operations fund. In 1977 a single appropriation has been consolidated in this account with funds otherwise provided. The individual budget activities are as follows:

1. Housing and mortgage credit programs.—This activity includes staff salaries and related expenses associated with administering housing programs and the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA). This includes the lower income housing assistance program as well as other production programs to further homeownership, provide mortgage insurance, and extend the availability of mortgage credit.

2. Community planning and development programs.—Funds in this activity are for staff salaries and related expenses required for administering community planning and development programs and new community assistance programs. These programs provide grants for community development, comprehensive planning, former categorical grant programs such as urban renewal and model cities, and assistance to private and public new community developers.

3. Equal opportunity, research, regulatory, and insurance programs.—This activity includes the salaries and related expenses associated with implementing equal opportunity programs in housing and employment as required by law and Executive orders; the administration of research programs and demonstrations; the administration of the Federal flood, riot, and crime insurance programs; and the administration of consumer protection activities, primarily in the areas of interstate land sales, mobile home construction and safety and real estate settlement procedures.

4. Departmental management, legal and audit services.—This activity includes a variety of general functions required for the Department's overall administration and management. These include the Office of the Secretary, Office of General Counsel and Office of Inspector General, as well as administrative support in such areas as accounting, personnel management, contracting and procurement, and office services. Legal services funded under this activity include the field legal staff as well as the Office of General Counsel at headquarters. Additionally, certain overall departmental costs, such as the headquarter's portion of payments for office space rental, utilities, communications and postal services, are budgeted under this activity.

5. Field direction and administration.—This activity includes the salaries and related expenses for the regional administrators, area office and insuring office directors and their immediate staffs who are responsible for the direction, supervision, and performance of the Department's field offices. Also included are the functions of assistant regional administrators for administration and their staffs, and the area and insuring office administrative divisions. The functions of this staff include such duties as accounting, personnel management, and general administrative services for the field offices. This activity also includes the field offices' portion of overall costs such as payments for office space rental, utilities, communications and postal services.

6. Disaster assistance.—Funds under this activity include the salaries and expenses of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration in coordinating the national disaster relief program. The funds are provided under "Funds appropriated to the President" and paid into this account. Also included are administrative costs of the Department in providing, on a reimbursable basis, emergency housing assistance as part of the disaster relief program.

The Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended (49 U.S.C. 1601), authorizes grants in support of research, development, and demonstration projects focusing on the relationship of urban transportation systems to the comprehensively planned development of urban areas. Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1968 transferred all but sections 6, 9, and 11 of the 1964 act from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) to the Department of Transportation (DOT). Subsequent to this, both agencies agreed that DOT shall have the responsibility for administering sections 6, 9, and 11 as well. Pursuant to this agreement, the unobligated balances of the 1969 appropriation were allocated to DOT.

The Consolidated working fund has been used for the administration of integrated grant administration pilot projects for which HUD is the lead agency. Obligations are on the basis of project approvals by Federal regional councils and fund commitments by participating agencies. Reimbursements from participating agencies are received in the fund and utilized to finance the administration of the projects.

TITLE IV—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. Where appropriations in titles I and II of this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed ten per centum above the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration; or to payments to interagency motor pools where separately set forth in the budget schedules: Provided further, That the limitations may be increased by the Secretary when necessary to allow for travel performed by employees of the Department of Housing and Urban Development as a result of increased Federal Housing Administration inspection and appraisal workload.

SEC. 402. Appropriations and funds available for the administrative expenses of the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Selective Service System shall be available in the current fiscal year for purchase of uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902); hire of passenger motor vehicles; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 403. Funds of the Department of Housing and Urban Development subject to the Government Corporation Control Act or section 402 of the Housing Act of 1950 shall be available, without regard to the limitations on administrative expenses, for legal services on a contract or fee basis, and for utilizing and making payment for services and facilities of Federal National Mortgage Association, Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, Federal Financing Bank, Federal Reserve banks or any member thereof, Federal home loan banks, and any insured bank within the meaning of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1811-1831).

SEC. 404. None of the funds provided in this Act may be used for payment, through grants or contracts, to recipients that do not share in the cost of conducting research resulting from proposals for projects not specifically solicited by the Government: Provided, That the extent of cost sharing by the recipient shall reflect the mutuality of interest of the grantee or contractor and the Government in the research.

SEC. 405. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 406. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act may be used by the Environmental Protection Agency to administer or promulgate, directly or indirectly, any program to tax, limit or otherwise regulate parking that is not specifically required pursuant to subsequent legislation.

SEC. 407. None of the funds provided by this Act shall be used to deny or fail to act upon, on the basis of noise contours set forth in an Air Installation Compatible Use Zone Map, an otherwise acceptable application for Federal Housing Administration mortgage insurance in connection with construction in an area zoned for residential use in Merced County, California.

SEC. 408. No funds appropriated by this Act may be expended—

(1) pursuant to a certification of an officer or employee of the United States unless—

(A) such certification is accompanied by, or is part of, a voucher or abstract which describes the payee or payees and the items or services for which such expenditure is being made, or

(B) the expenditure of funds pursuant to such certification, and without such a voucher or abstract, is specifically authorized by law; and

(2) unless such expenditure is subject to audit by the General Accounting Office or is specifically exempt by law from such an audit. (Department of Housing and Urban Development—Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

LAND AND WATER RESOURCES

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the conservation, management, and development of 470 million acres of national resource lands, including 296 million acres in Alaska.

The Bureau also administers mining and mineral leasing on 369 million acres of mineral estate underlying other ownerships, and approximately 1.1 billion acres of the Outer Continental Shelf.

The work of the Bureau produces revenues from various sources. These revenues are distributed as follows (in millions of dollars):

1. Energy and minerals management.—Includes leasing and management of energy minerals, both onshore and offshore, and nonenergy minerals. These activities provide for the timely and orderly development of coal, oil and gas, oil shale, uranium, and geothermal resources under the mineral leasing laws; nonenergy mineral leasing and sale administration; and mineral investigations under the mining laws.

2. Lands and realty management.—Includes use authorization in support of energy and other programs, maintenance of official land records, and land classification. These activities provide for maintenance of public land status records in 13 offices; issuance of information about the public realty and mineral laws; and the processing of applications for transfer or use of the public lands to other Federal agencies, State and local governments, and private individuals.

3. Renewable resource development, protection, and management.—Includes range management, soil and watershed conservation, wildlife habitat management, forestry, recreation management, and fire protection. These activities provide for the utilization of public rangelands by livestock; protection, control, and management of wild horses and burros; a sustained yield of timber to help meet demand for wood products; management and treatment needed to maintain and improve water quality, reduce flood damage, and control erosion from public lands; fish and wildlife habitat management and improvement, including protection of endangered species; recreation management planning for public lands; protection, interpretation, and management of historic and archaeological sites; and wildfire protection for public land resources.

4. Planning and data management.—Includes multi-resource inventories, related studies, data analysis, the development of multiple land and resource use plans, and automated data management. These activities provide for collection of both resource and socioeconomic data; the analysis of information; preparation of profiles relevant to natural resource use and management; the preparation of multiple resources land use plans on discrete geographic areas which lead to resource allocation decisions; and development and operation of automated systems for acquiring, storing, using and disseminating data required for all aspects of agency administrative and resources management.

5. Cadastral survey.—In Alaska, surveys are performed on lands selected by the State for transfer under the Alaska Statehood Act, for Native townsites, for Native allotments, for additional claims resulting from the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, and for other special purposes.

In other States surveys are performed to identify lands as a prerequisite to resources management. Resurveys are often required to reestablish lost boundary corners.

6. Firefighting and rehabilitation.—Provides for the suppression of fires burning on or near the public lands under Bureau protection. Rehabilitation of burned-over areas is accomplished to restore land productivity and preserve watersheds. A supplemental appropriation for 1977 is included in part III.

7. Administration and enforcement.—Provides executive management and centralized general administrative services, such as financial management, personnel management, management analysis, procurement, and property management to support Bureau activities. This activity also finances the enforcement of laws and regulations governing the national resource lands.

1. Acquisition and Construction.—(a) Buildings.—Buildings and related facilities, such as office buildings, warehouses, equipment storage buildings, district yards, and parking areas, are constructed to carry out Bureau programs. The 1978 program provides for construction of office quarters in Cedarville, Calif., and Boise, Idaho; and completion of office complexes in Craig, Colo., and Shoshone, Idaho; improvement in water and sewage systems in Alaska; and survey and design of future facilities.

(b) Recreation facilities.—Recreation facilities for family camping, picnicking, and other outdoor recreational activities are constructed on public land sites receiving heavy public use. The 1978 program provides for survey and design of eight facilities for future years, and construction of the Yuha Way Station in the California desert.

(c) Roads and trails.—Roads and trails are constructed to facilitate access for the development, protection, administration, and utilization of lands and resources administered by the Bureau of Land Management. The 1978 program provides for 100 miles of road and 25 miles of trail construction, together with survey and design of future roads and trails.

(d) Acquisition.—Provides for the acquisition of easements and other interest in lands for access and to further management objectives for the public lands.

2. Maintenance.—(a) Buildings.—Provides for maintenance of facilities such as buildings, warehouses, equipment shelters, fire stations, and lookouts. The 1978 program will help the Bureau to meet building maintenance standards by accelerating a corrective maintenance program to repair, replace and/or enlarge inadequate and unsafe electrical and heating systems, and repair and replace leaking roofs, worn or warped floors, and inadequate plumbing. The program also includes funds and manpower for preventative maintenance operations and for maintaining facilities to be constructed in 1977.

(b) Recreation facility operation and maintenance.—Provides for the operation and maintenance of developed recreation facilities and the cleanup of litter and trash from undeveloped recreation sites.

(c) Road maintenance.—Provides for preventive and corrective maintenance on access roads and trails under Bureau jurisdiction.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations for the Bureau of Land Management shall be available for purchase, erection, and dismantlement of temporary structures, insurance on official motor vehicles, aircraft, and boats operated by the Bureau of Land Management in Canada; and alteration and maintenance of necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities to which the United States has title; $10,000 for payment, in the discretion of the Secretary, for information or evidence concerning violations of laws administered by the United States Bureau of Land Management; miscellaneous and emergency expenses of enforcement activities, authorized or approved by the Secretary and to be accounted for solely on his certificate, not to exceed $10,000: Provided, That [of] appropriations herein made for the Bureau of Land Management expenditures in connection with the reconstituted Oregon and California Railroad and reconveyed Coos Bay Wagon road grant lands (other than expenditures made under the appropriation "Oregon and California grant lands") shall be reimbursed to the general fund of the Treasury from the 25 per centum referred to in subsection (c), title II, of the Act approved August 28, 1937 (50 Stat. 876), of the special fund designated the "Oregon and California land grant fund" and section 4 of the Act approved May 24, 1939 (53 Stat. 754), of the special fund designated the "Coos Bay Wagon Road grant fund": Provided further, That herein appropriations made may be expended on a reimbursable basis for (1) surveys of lands other than those under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management and (2) protection of lands for the State of Alaska: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provisions of law, payments to States made in fiscal year 1977, under the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920 (30 U.S.C. 191, 30 U.S.C. 285), will be based on receipts collected during the period July 1, 1976, through March 31, 1977: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provisions of law, Bureau of Land Management payments to States and counties made in fiscal year 1977, under statutes other than the Mineral Leasing Act of 1920, will be based on receipts collected during the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

OREGON AND CALIFORNIA GRANT LANDS

For expenses necessary for management, protection, and development of resources and for construction, operation, and maintenance of access roads, reforestation, and other improvements on the reconstituted Oregon and California Railroad grant lands, on other Federal lands in the Oregon and California land-grant counties of Oregon, and on adjacent rights-of-way; and acquisition of [rights-of-way and of existing] lands or interests therein including existing connecting roads on or adjacent to such grant lands; an amount equivalent to 25 per centum of the aggregate of all receipts during the current fiscal year from the reconstituted Oregon and California Railroad grant lands, to remain available until expended: Provided,

That the amount appropriated herein for the purposes of this appropriation on lands administered by the Forest Service shall be transferred to the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture: Provided further, That the amount appropriated herein for road construction on lands other than those administered by the Forest Service shall be transferred to the Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation: Provided further, That the amount appropriated herein is hereby made a reimbursable charge against the Oregon and California land grant fund and shall be reimbursed to the general fund in the Treasury in accordance with the provisions of the second paragraph of subsection (b) of title II of the Act of August 28, 1937 (50 Stat. 876). (16 U.S.C. 583, 594; 43 U.S.C. 1181a-b; 1181d-f; 90 Stat. 2743-2794; Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

Twenty-five percent of the revenue from the revested Oregon and California grant lands is made available for three principal activities on the revested lands, and on other Federal lands in the Oregon and California land-grant counties of western Oregon. Estimated budget authority for 1978 is $45,000 thousand. The obligation program for 1978 is $40,200 thousand. Funds will finance the following activities in western Oregon:

1. Construction and acquisition.—Provides for acquisition of land for maintenance sites, grading and surfacing of 24 miles of access roads, acquisition of existing connecting roads, easements and rights-of-way for roads in commercial timber areas for timber production and resource management, and for the renovation and development of recreation facilities.

2. Maintenance.—Provides for maintenance of buildings and related structures, access roads, and for operation and maintenance of recreation facilities.

3. Renewable resource development, protection, and management.—Provides for reforestation, stand improvement, mortality salvage, commercial thinnings, forest genetics, timber management, protection, wildlife enhancement, and other resource management activities and development on the Oregon and California lands.

The Oregon and California Grant Land Act provides that the Oregon and California counties shall receive 75% of the gross revenue from these lands. The Appropriation Act provides that one-third of the amount which would have been due them from receipts (which is 25% of the gross receipts) should be deposited to the General fund of the Treasury as reimbursement of the amount appropriated under this title.

1. Leasing of grazing lands.—State, county, and privately owned grazing lands that are intermingled with public grazing lands are managed on a leased basis within the limits of receipts from such arrangements (43 U.S.C. 315m).

2. Payments to Oklahoma (royalties).—The State of Oklahoma is paid 37½% of the Red River oil and gas royalties in lieu of State and local taxes on Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache tribal lands to be used for construction and maintenance of public roads and support of public schools (65 Stat. 252).

3. Payments to Coos and Douglas Counties, Oregon, from receipts, Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands.—Out of receipts from the Coos Bay Wagon Road Grant Lands in Oregon, payments in lieu of taxes are made to Coos and Douglas Counties for schools, roads, highways, bridges, and port districts (53 Stat. 753-754).

4. Payments to counties, Oregon and California grant lands.—Fifty percent of the receipts of Oregon and California land-grant funds are paid the counties in which the lands are situated, to be used as other county funds (39 Stat. 218; 50 Stat. 876).

5. Payments to States (proceeds of sales).—The States are paid 5% of the net proceeds from sale of public land and public land products (31 U.S.C. 711).

6. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands outside grazing districts.—The States are paid 50% of the grazing fee receipts from public domain lands outside grazing districts (43 U.S.C. 315i, 315m).

7. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts.—The States are paid 12½% of grazing fees receipts from grazing district lands within their boundaries (43 U.S.C. 315b, 315i).

8. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts, miscellaneous.—The States are paid specifically determined amounts from grazing fee receipts from miscellaneous lands within grazing districts when payment is not feasible on a percentage basis (43 U.S.C. 315).

9. Payments to States from receipts under Mineral Leasing Act.—Alaska is paid 90% and other States 50% of the receipts from bonuses, royalties, and rentals resulting from development of mineral resources under the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 191), and from leases of potash deposits (30 U.S.C. 285), on public lands.

10. Payments to counties, national grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of submarginal lands, 25% is paid to the counties in which such land is situated, for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

11. Expenses, Public Land Administration Act.—Public Law 86-649 approved July 14, 1960, permanently appropriated certain moneys to the Secretary of the Interior. Timber purchases or permittees provided bonds or deposits to assure fulfillment of contracts. Users of roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management made deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys received in forfeiture of such bonds or for road maintenance were available for necessary forest improvement, protection, and rehabilitation and for road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available for those lands only and amounts in excess of the costs of doing the work are transferred to miscellaneous receipts (74 Stat. 507-508). The applicable provisions of Public Law 86-649 were repealed by Public Law 94-579, approved October 21, 1976. New deposits for road maintenance will become available in the "Expenses, road maintenance" appropriation below. Collections for rehabilitation of damages will be available beginning in 1978 in the "Service charges, deposits, and forfeitures" appropriation.

12. Expenses road maintenance.—Public Law 94-579 approved October 21, 1976, permanently appropriated certain moneys to the Secretary of the Interior. Users of roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management may make deposits for maintenance purposes, and moneys collected are available for necessary road maintenance. Moneys collected on Oregon and California grant lands are available for those lands only.

The Working capital fund was authorized by the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-579). The appropriation is requested for initial capitalization of the fund which will be a self-sustaining revolving fund. Appropriate existing Bureau of Land Management assets (stores, inventories, vehicles, equipment, and aircraft) will be transferred from other Bureau accounts without reimbursement. The fund will provide support to all Bureau offices at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, depreciation, purchases, warehousing, transportation, and administration.

Supply and support services to be provided by the fund include:

Services of common use equipment will be rented to Bureau of Land Management administrative units. Use rates will include an increment to provide additional cash which, when added to depreciation and the residual value of equipment, will provide sufficient funds for replacement.

Aircraft services which operate, maintain, and repair Bureau-owned aircraft and aircraft on long-term lease used in fire suppression and other programs.

Supply services and special sign shop operations which procure, store, and issue seed, seedlings, and other project and maintenance supplies to Bureau administrative units. The fund will also provide for subsistence at the Boise Interagency Fire center, and for firefighting crews operating in remote areas.

Anticipated volume of the business for major activities of the fund:

Equipment Service.....	7,800,000
Aircraft Service.....	1,100,000
Supply Service.....	3,400,000
Total.....	12,300,000

1. Land and resource management trust fund.—Applicants for conveyance of lands omitted in original surveys pay the cost of surveys and the administrative costs of conveyance. Advances are made by individuals to pay the costs of other types of surveys requested by them. Users of the Federal range and others contribute funds or make gifts for conservation practices, acquisition, protection, and other purposes (43 U.S.C. 315h, 315i, 775, 74 Stat. 506; 31 U.S.C. 711; 43 U.S.C. 759, 761, and 887; 48 Stat. 1224-1236; 90 Stat. 2758; sections 211 and 307(c) of Public Law 94-579).

2. Contributed funds.—Users of the Federal range contributed funds toward administration and protection of grazing lands. Contributions were also received for making surveys, for maintenance of access roads, for protection of public lands and other activities of the Bureau (43 U.S.C. 315h, 315i, 775, 74 Stat. 506). This fund is merged with the land and resources management trust fund in 1977 and 1978.

3. Expenses, public survey work.—Advances were made by individuals to pay the cost incident to surveys of lands requested by them (31 U.S.C. 711; 43 U.S.C. 759, 761 and 887; 48 Stat. 1224-1236; 90 Stat. 2758). This fund is merged with the land and resources management trust fund in 1977 and 1978.

4. Trustee funds, Alaska townsites.—Amounts received from sale of Alaska town lots are available for expenses incident to the maintenance and sale of townsites (31 U.S.C. 725s; Comp. Gen. Dec. of Nov. 18, 1935).

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish municipal and industrial or other water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States and Hawaii.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and special funds. The special funds are (a) the Reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenue; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenue; and (b) the Colorado River Dam fund, derived from the revenue of the Boulder Canyon project. The 1978 estimates are summarized by source, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Note.—The total appropriation request of $840.4 million represents a decrease of $128.3 million compared with the current year appropriation request which excludes a proposed supplemental for pay increases, and an increase of $199.4 million compared with the preceding year.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For engineering and economic investigations of proposed Federal reclamation projects and studies of water conservation and development plans and activities preliminary to the reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or extension of existing projects, to remain available until expended, [$24,762,000] $23,170,000: Provided, That none of this appropriation shall be used for more than one-half of the cost of an investigation requested by a State, municipality, or other interest: Provided further, That $554,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the United States Fish and Wildlife Service for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Bureau of Reclamation. This appropriation provides for the planning of potential developments for the conservation and utilization of water and related land resources and includes plan formulation investigations, geothermal investigations, and general engineering and research activities.

Investigations and surveys are made to determine the feasibility of potential reclamation projects and the need for rehabilitation of existing Federal reclamation projects.

1. Plan formulation investigations.—These include appraisal investigations, feasibility investigations, and special investigations throughout the 17 Western States to formulate resource development plans for basins and specific projects leading to authorization, including studies relating to the rehabilitation, financial adjustment, or water conservation on existing Federal reclamation projects. Studies on the fish and wildlife aspects of reclamation projects in the planning stage will continue.

2. Geothermal investigations.—The studies are directed toward determination of the feasibility of developing geothermal resources as a usable water source. Initial efforts have been centered in the Imperial Valley of California.

3. General engineering and research.—Studies are directed toward improvements in procedures and in engineering methods and materials. Included are studies of atmospheric water resources; of alternative uses and reuse of water and continuing activities in waste water reclamation opportunities in the Western States and electrical energy research and development.

This appropriation provides for the construction of certain works directed toward the enhancement and protection of the quality of water in the Colorado River for use in the United States and Mexico.

The 1978 appropriation provides for design and construction of features downstream from Imperial Dam consisting of the desalting plant and appurtenant works, including the protective and regulatory pumping unit, and replacement of the first 49 miles of the Coachella Canal. The 1978 appropriation also provides for continued construction activity on three salinity control units of the initial stage of the Colorado River Basin salinity program under title II of the authorizing legislation.

Construction will be underway in 1978 on 29 projects and on 15 units and divisions of the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program. Work also will continue on 11 rehabilitation and betterment projects and advance planning will be underway on 6 projects. The construction completed through 1977 will provide full irrigation service to 4,836,700 acres, a supplemental water supply to 5,791,200 acres, annually provide 3,304,800 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water, and 8,932,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. During 1978, facilities will be completed to furnish a full water supply to 8,500 acres, supplemental water supply to 51,300 acres, and facilities to furnish 1,500,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power and 11,100 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water.

1. Operation and maintenance.—In 1978 a total of 34 projects, project areas, or divisions of projects will be operated and maintained for power, municipal, and industrial water supplies, irrigation, and other benefits with funds made available under this appropriation. The Fort Peck project revolving fund finances the operation and maintenance of project power facilities physically integrated with the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, Irrigation Management Services, the Colorado River front work and levee system program, negotiation and administration of water marketing contracts on Corps of Engineers projects, marketing of power from the Corps of Engineers' powerplants on the Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin program and from the International Boundary and Water Commission's powerplant in Texas, examination of existing structures, and for purchase power and wheeling.

Energy sales resulting from Bureau of Reclamation power operations excluding the Colorado River storage project and the Colorado River Basin project are as follows:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Energy sales (millions of kilowatt-hours).....	51,750	13,931	50,193	49,097
Income from energy sales (in thousands of dollars).....	184,090	44,302	176,095	185,672

The above sales data for 1976 includes $8.4 million in revenues associated with 20.9 billion kilowatt-hours of energy from nine reclamation powerplants for which Bonneville Power Administration was the marketing agent. Sales data for the Upper Colorado River storage project and the Colorado River Basin project are provided in the program and performance statements for the two projects.

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration cooperatives, irrigation districts, public utility districts, State and Federal Government agencies, and private utilities. These revenues are deposited in the Reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, the General fund, and the Fort Peck revolving fund.

2. Purchase power and wheeling.—The program includes $53,236 thousand in 1978 for the purchase of power and wheeling excluding credits for net billing. The establishment in 1961 of a net billing procedure for certain of these power transactions between the Federal Government and non-Federal utilities precludes the need for an additional $8,936 thousand in 1978.

SPECIAL FUNDS

Sums herein referred to as being derived from the Reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, or the Colorado River development fund, are appropriated from the special funds in the Treasury created by the Act of June 17, 1902 (43 U.S.C. 391), the Act of December 21, 1928 (43 U.S.C. 617a), and the Act of July 19, 1940 (43 U.S.C. 618a) respectively. Such sums shall be transferred, upon request of the Secretary, to be merged with and expended under the heads herein specified; and the unexpended balances of sums transferred for expenditure under the heads "Operation and Maintenance" and "General Administrative Expenses" shall revert and be credited to the special fund from which derived. (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Energy Research Appropriation Act, 1977.)

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations for the Bureau of Reclamation shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [forty-four] forty-one passenger motor vehicles of which [twenty-one] thirty shall be for replacement only; purchase of [one] two aircraft for replacement only; payment of claims for damages to or loss of property, personal injury, or death arising out of activities of the Bureau of Reclamation; payment, except as otherwise provided for, of compensation and expenses of persons on the rolls of the Bureau of Reclamation appointed as authorized by law to represent the United States in the negotiations and administration of interstate compacts without reimbursement or return under the reclamation laws; for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; rewards for information or evidence concerning violations of law involving property under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Reclamation; performance of the functions specified under the head "Operation and Maintenance Administration", Bureau of Reclamation, in the Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1945; preparation and dissemination of useful information including recordings, photographs, and photographic prints; and studies of recreational uses of reservoir areas, and investigation and recovery of archeological and paleontological remains in such areas in the same manner as provided for in the Act of August 21, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 461-467); Provided, That no part of any appropriation made herein shall be available pursuant to the Act of April 19, 1945 (43 U.S.C. 377), for expenses other than those incurred on behalf of specific reclamation projects except "General Administrative Expenses" and amounts provided for reconnaissance, basin surveys, and general engineering and research under the head "General Investigations".

Sums appropriated herein which are expended in the performance of reimbursable functions of the Bureau of Reclamation shall be returnable to the extent and in the manner provided by law.

No part of any appropriation for the Bureau of Reclamation, contained in this Act or in any prior Act, which represents amounts earned under the terms of a contract but remaining unpaid, shall be obligated for any other purpose, regardless of when such amounts are to be paid: Provided, That the incurring of any obligation prohibited by this paragraph shall be deemed a violation of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665).

No funds appropriated to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance, except those derived from advances by water users, shall be used for the particular benefits of lands (a) within the boundaries of an irrigation district, (b) of any member of a water users' organization, or (c) of any individual when such district, organization, or individual is in arrears for more than twelve months in the payment of charges due under a contract entered into with the United States pursuant to laws administered by the Bureau of Reclamation.

Not to exceed $225,000 may be expended from the appropriation "Construction and Rehabilitation" for work by force account on any one project or Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin Program unit and then only when such work is unsuitable for contract or no acceptable bid has been received and, other than otherwise provided in this paragraph or as may be necessary to meet local emergencies, not to exceed 12 per centum of the construction allotment for any project from the appropriation "Construction and Rehabilitation" contained in this Act, shall be available for construction work by force account: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply to work performed under the Rehabilitation and Betterment Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 724). (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Energy Research Appropriation Act, 1977.)

Construction costs of the central Arizona project including the Navajo project participation agreement are financed through appropriations to the Lower Colorado River basin development fund. Project revenues and certain other revenues as provided by the act will be credited to the fund and be available without further appropriation for defraying the cost of operation, maintenance, replacements, and emergency expenditures for all facilities of the projects, within such separate limitations as may be included in annual appropriation acts. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to make annual payments to the general fund to return project costs allocated to irrigation, power and municipal and industrial water (82 Stat. 894).

Construction.—The 1978 program provides for continuing construction on the central Arizona project.

Operation and maintenance.—The 1978 program provides for reclamation's share of operation and maintenance costs of the Navajo project participation agreement. Financing will be from project revenue (82 Stat. 894).

Upper Colorado River Basin fund.—Construction will be underway on two units of the upper Colorado River storage project and on 10 participating projects, advance planning will be underway on 5 projects. The construction completed through 1977 will provide full irrigation service to 16,200 acres, a supplemental water supply to 218,600 acres, annually provide 388,900 acre-feet of municipal and industrial water, and 1,276,000 kilowatts of hydroelectric power. The impact of the 1978 construction upon reclamation goals will be felt in subsequent years as facilities are completed and irrigation service provided, municipal and industrial water furnished, and hydroelectric power is generated.

Operation and maintenance program.—In 1978, the Bureau of Reclamation will operate and maintain four units of the upper Colorado River storage project and the power facility of the Seedskaadee participating project which altogether include 34,494,000 acre-feet of storage space, 1,276,000 kilowatts of power generation capacity, and 2,000 circuit miles of transmission facilities, and will operate and maintain the facilities of the San Juan-Chama project. Financing will be from project revenue. This fund defrays the expense of operating the power generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded program costs in 1978 increase over 1977 as a result of continued modernization of the Fort Peck powerplant by the Corps of Engineers.

Operating results.—Net loss including both direct and indirect operating costs of $345 thousand is estimated for 1978, and a decreased loss of $60 thousand from the current year is anticipated due to continued powerplant modernization. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission. Such payments totaled $2.9 million in 1976 and are $0.4 million in the transition quarter, $28 thousand in 1977 and none in 1978 as a result of the continued extraordinary maintenance repairs.

1. Assistance to States for institutes.—This activity provides annual grants for each of the 50 States and for Puerto Rico, the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, and Guam, to assist them in carrying on the work of a competent and qualified water resources research institute at one college or university.

2. Matching grants to institutes.—This activity provides for grants to match, on a dollar-for-dollar basis, funds made available to the State water research institutes by States or other non-Federal sources to meet the necessary expenses of specific water resources research projects which could not otherwise be undertaken.

3. Water resources research.—This activity provides for grants to and contracts and matching or other arrangements with educational institutions, private foundations or other institutions, private firms and individuals, and with local, State, and Federal Government agencies, to undertake research directed toward finding solutions to, and mitigating, the most urgent water-related problems of concern to the Department of the Interior and the Nation.

4. Technology development.—This activity provides for contracts to undertake technology development actions, directed toward assuring that the findings of original and innovative research are interpreted and developed to the stage where they can be used for practical application in resolving the most urgent and highest priority water and water-related problems.

5. Scientific information center.—This activity provides for the operation of a national water resources scientific information center.

6. Administration.—This activity provides for the administration and management of the water resources research, technology development, and related activities described above.

1. Planning and research.—Funds are provided for: (a) Nationwide outdoor recreation planning to assess the current supply of outdoor recreation resources and relative priorities for allocating available public resources; (b) evaluation of the estimated recreation benefits of proposed Federal water development projects, participation in comprehensive river basin planning studies, and studies of potential wild and scenic rivers, national trails, and wilderness; and (c) review and dissemination of research on factors which influence outdoor recreation demands.

2. Federal coordination.—Coordination of diverse Federal outdoor recreation and related programs is promoted. Reviews are made of transportation and environmental impact statements for projects which affect major public recreation resources.

3. Technical assistance.—Assistance is provided to Federal agencies, States, local governments, and the private sector on a variety of outdoor recreation proposals, problems, and studies. Surplus Federal lands suitable for recreation purposes are identified and help is provided in transfer of such lands for public use.

1. Habitat preservation.—Habitat change and pollution may adversely affect fish and wildlife resources. Monitoring of fish, wildlife, and their ecosystems aids in determining the location, type, and rate of environmental contamination. Through research, the impact of pollutants is determined. Cooperative fishery and wildlife research units at State universities conduct research and train biologists. Assessments of various types of developments of natural resources and evaluation of the effects of other construction projects help planners determine the impacts of the project on fish, wildlife, and their habitats. Recommendations are formulated to minimize or prevent losses and enhance the resource whenever feasible. Overall, this program assures recognition of fish and wildlife values in land and water development decisions and actions, alerts the public to environmental deterioration, and assists in providing the opportunity for future use and enjoyment of renewable natural resources.

2. Wildlife resources.—The Service assists in the management of the Nation's wildlife resources to assure their availability for public use and enjoyment and to alleviate conflict between man and wildlife with a minimal adverse effect on the natural resource. To carry this out, the Service maintains an extensive wildlife refuge system consisting of 385 units and 20 wetland management districts containing about 33.9 million acres managed for migratory birds and other wildlife for which the Federal Government has responsibility; guides and coordinates national migratory bird programs; administers certain aspects of the Marine Mammal Protection Act; enforces Federal game laws and regulations; provides technical assistance in the management of wildlife on Indian and other Federal lands; conducts research to improve wildlife management capabilities; provides direct and extension assistance to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities to responsibly control wildlife causing damage to human enterprises. The Service also administers an interpretation and recreation program at its refuges, fish hatcheries, and laboratories to expand public understanding and appreciation of fish and wildlife resources.

3. Fishery resources.—The Service develops, manages, and protects interstate and international fisheries, such as anadromous species, fisheries of the Great Lakes, interstate river and reservoir systems, and fisheries on Federal lands, such as national forests, parks, refuges, and Indian reservations. Fish are produced at 89 hatcheries and 3 fish facilities. Five development centers and two training schools are operated to improve fish cultural technology and practices; research is carried out at 13 laboratories and 14 biological stations to improve sport fish productivity, increase hatchery efficiency, determine effects of environmental contaminants on fish, and develop methods of controlling undesirable fish. Technical assistance is provided by biologists to Indian tribes and to Federal,

State, and other landowners in the management of sport fisheries.

4. Endangered species.—The goal of this program is to restore species and subspecies of endangered or threatened fauna and flora to viable components of their ecosystems. This program involves continual review and updating of endangered and threatened species lists; development and implementation of species recovery plans; coordination of national and international efforts in this field; and monitoring imports and exports of fish and wildlife.

5. Administration.—Executive direction, coordinated resource planning, and professional administrative services, including financial, personnel, and property management, are funded through this activity.

1. Federal aid in fish restoration and management.—Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by the appropriation of funds for research and management equal to the revenue of the 10% excise tax on sport fishing tackle. States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved fish restoration and management projects, including research into fish culture, formulation of restocking plans, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat (16 U.S.C. 777a-k).

2. Federal aid in wildlife restoration.—Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by the appropriation of funds for wildlife restoration equal to the 11% excise tax on the manufacture of firearms and ammunition. States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved wildlife restoration projects, including acquisition and development of land and water areas, for wildlife management research (16 U.S.C. 669-669i), and approved hunter safety programs (Public Law 91-503).

3. National wildlife refuge fund.—The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715s) authorizes the expenditure of revenues from the sale of products from the National Wildlife Refuge System. Part of the net proceeds of refuge products is paid to counties in which refuges are located for the benefit of public schools and roads. Payment is based on 25% of the proceeds or 0.75% of the value of lands acquired in fee, whichever is larger. The balance of the proceeds is available for land acquisition.

4. Proceeds from sales, water resources development projects.—Receipts collected from the sale of products from refuges on which other agencies have primary jurisdiction are used to cover expenses of producing these products and for managing wildlife habitat.

1. Park management.—The Service administers 291 park areas comprising about 31 million acres of federally owned land located in 47 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The program includes (1) overall management of park areas necessary to accommodate an estimated 276 million visitors in 1978; (2) maintenance of buildings and other facilities required to accommodate visitor use as well as to protect the Government's investment; (3) interpretive programs to enhance the visitors' park experience; (4) law enforcement to protect the visitors' well-being and reduce vandalism and other destruction to park resources; and (5) resource management necessary for the protection and preservation of the unique natural, cultural, and historical features in the National Park System.

The following tabulation shows the actual and estimated visits, and general and special fund revenues collected and to be collected by the National Park Service, including recreation fee revenues deposited to the Land and water conservation fund.

Year	Visits	Revenues
1975 actual.....	228,986,000	19,189,385
1976 actual.....	255,822,000	19,867,000
1977 estimate.....	264,000,000	18,493,000
1978 estimate.....	276,000,000	19,083,000

The major program elements comprising this activity are: management of park areas; concessions management; interpretive services; informational publications; visitor protection and safety; maintenance; resources management; and Bicentennial land heritage program.

2. Forest fire suppression and rehabilitation of burned areas.—This activity provides for the suppression and emergency presuppression of fires on or endangering lands administered by the Service, and for the rehabilitation of burned areas to conserve resources, and for the protection of park visitors. The Service administers more than 16.6 million acres of forest, grasslands, tundra, and desert shrub.

3. Executive direction.—Provides executive direction of Service programs in the Service's headquarters in Washington, D.C., and nine regional offices located throughout the Nation.

4. Park, recreation, and wilderness planning.—This activity provides for studies, investigation, and planning programs to support the overall direction and management of park activities. Specific programs include: natural landmark studies, new area studies, land-use studies, water resource studies, and general management planning.

5. Cooperative programs.—Under this activity the Service provides assistance to other Federal agencies, States, and private institutions, upon request, in general development planning, site planning, construction, and operational matters, including interpretive planning and guidance in protection and preservation of historical and archeological values. The program elements include: Federal agency, State and private assistance; Indian assistance program; review of environmental impact statements; and Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act.

6. Statutory and contractual aid.—The Service provides financial or other assistance in the planning, development, or operation of natural, historical, or recreation areas not operated by the National Park Service. This assistance is provided for the following sites as authorized by law or pursuant to agreements between the National Park Service and other Federal agencies, States, or private

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The Service carries out a program for the planning, construction, and reconstruction of physical facilities in units throughout the National Park System. Objectives of this program are to provide initial facilities at new park areas, to provide added facilities at older park areas to meet increasing visitor demands, and to undertake major repair and reconstruction of existing facilities in order to provide safe, usable, and adequate facilities for visitors and to protect park resources.

2. Roads, trails, and parkways.—The 1978 program includes work on authorized parkways and major road projects such as principal park entrance roads or major park roads having high traffic density. These are to be accomplished for the Service by the Federal Highway Administration. Minor park roads, trails and parkways projects, including parking areas, overlooks, campground roads and trails and drainage structures, are carried out by the Service itself. The program provides mainly for the maintenance of existing facilities through such measures as resurfacing and reconstruction and for the development of new roads and trails primarily in recently authorized areas. Program objectives are to prevent a loss of investment in existing road and trail systems, to eliminate unsafe sections, and to meet traffic demands.

This appropriation provides for the preservation of additional historic properties throughout the Nation by assisting the States and Territories, the Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and the District of Columbia to conduct statewide historic surveys, the findings of which are incorporated in the National Register and form the basis of statewide historic preservation plans.

The Secretary of the Interior, through the National Park Service, administers this program of historic preservation.

This appropriation provides for work necessary to carry out the following programs:

- (a) Maintenance of the National Register—for maintaining the official schedule and protective inventory of our Nation's historic and cultural structural heritage;
- (b) Historic architectural and archeological services—to provide technical assistance on preservation, improvement, restoration and maintenance of cultural properties;
- (c) Historic sites survey—for thematic studies undertaken to identify nationally significant historic properties;
- (d) Historic American buildings survey—for documenting the Nation's architectural heritage;
- (e) Historic American engineering record—for identifying and documenting the engineering heritage of the Nation;
- (f) Archeological investigation and salvage—for conducting such programs primarily in areas threatened by inundation through reservoir construction; and
- (g) Tax Reform Act—For implementation of the provisions in the Tax Reform Act of 1976 relating to historic preservation.

Recreation facilities.—This appropriation provides for planning, development and operation of recreational facilities including a program for visitor transportation systems, and for enhancement of the fee collection system to insure equitable assessment of fee collections in accordance with Public Law 92-347. Funding for this appropriation is derived from fees collected by the Service and deposited into a special account in the Treasury of the United States, to be administered in conjunction with, but separate from the revenues in the Land and water conservation fund.

1. National Park Service, donations.—The Secretary of the Interior accepts and uses donated moneys for purposes of the National Park System (16 U.S.C. 6). Donations amounting to $1.1 million were received from contributions during 1976. It is estimated that donations of $2.9 million will be received during each of the 1977 and 1978 fiscal years.

2. Advances from District of Columbia, National Park Service.—The Service has received advances from the District of Columbia for improvements for Fort Stanton Park.

3. Preservation, Birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, National Park Service.—This fund consists of an endowment given by the Lincoln Farm Association, and the interest thereon is available for preservation of the Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historic Site, Kentucky (16 U.S.C. 211, 212). The amount of $2,540 was received in 1976.

4. Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, contributions.—Pursuant to the act of May 17, 1954 (68 Stat. 98-100), as amended, the Secretary of the Interior was authorized to construct upon the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial National Historic Site, St. Louis, Mo., an appropriate national memorial to those persons who made possible the territorial expansion of the United States. Contributions are accepted from the city of St. Louis or other non-Federal sources in the ratio of $1 to each $3 of Federal appropriations.

The Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning water, land, and mineral resources, and supervises the prospecting, development and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian and Outer Continental Shelf lands.

1. Alaska pipeline related investigations.—The 1978 program continues engineering geologic and hydrologic investigations that will be needed in the initial operational and monitoring phase of the Alaska pipeline.

2. Topographic surveys and mapping.—The objective of the National mapping program is to prepare and make available multipurpose maps and fundamental cartographic data to meet the new and expanding mapping needs of the Nation. In doing so, it is the goal of the Geological Survey to provide a framework on which to build an integrated system of U.S. Federal land mapping. The program includes those activities necessary to make available base mapping data as well as a family of general purpose maps. These maps and related mapping data are basic tools necessary to assist in such activities as: The identification and development of energy resources; land use planning; environmental studies; economic and industrial studies; location and development of highways; selection of power and communication sites and routes and dam and reservoir sites; flood plain studies and flood and erosion control; and military and civil defense. By the end of 1977, published topographic maps at 1:24,000-scale will be available for about 69% of the United States and outlying areas, excluding Alaska. In Alaska, 1:63,360-scale maps are the norm. About 85 percent of Alaska will have published 1:63,360-scale maps by the end of 1977. During 1978, about 90,000 square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be mapped. About 90,000 square miles of 1:24,000-scale map revision, with some emphasis on quality improvements, will be added to the 1978 program.

Intermediate-scale mapping at the scales of 1:50,000 and 1:100,000 in quadrangle or county format will increase to about 1,000,000 square miles in 1978 from about 730,000 square miles in 1977. Other small-scale and special maps will be prepared to meet existing as well as new requirements. The National Cartographic Information Center will continue to acquire and organize information on cartographic data produced by Federal, State, and private organizations and to serve as a focal point to the user public for their requests for information about those data.

3. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—The continuing national program of geologic research and investigations produces: (a) New or improved methods, techniques, and instruments for mineral or energy exploration on land and on the submerged continental margins; (b) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps and analyses that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks and mineral deposits at and beneath the surface of the Earth including the Nation's continental shelves and slopes; (c) information on the chemistry and physics of the Earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified; and (d) geologic data that are directly applicable to urban development, land utilization, and the solution of land construction problems. The 1978 program provides for increased efforts in the assessment of geologic hazards from earthquakes, volcanoes, and in nuclear reactor siting; in the resource appraisal of wilderness areas; in the investigations of critical mineral commodities; in coal exploration; and for a decrease in geologic, geophysical, and geochemical surveys.

4. Water resources investigations.—The continuing national program of water resources investigations during 1978 has the objective of seeing that the Nation's water resources are appraised and that the necessary water data to develop and manage them efficiently are available when needed. The program produces data and information relevant to the flow and sediment discharge of rivers, location and quantity of underground waters, chemical quality and temperature of waters, changes caused by nature and by man, availability and suitability of water for present and future demands—all of which are essential to water planning, water management, energy development, and improvement of the environment. Included in the program is research needed to increase our understanding of fundamental principles of water occurrence, movement, and interaction with its environment, and also to increase the accuracy and usefulness of water data through improvements in technology. The increase for 1978 will provide for significantly expanded data collection and interpretive studies for the safe disposal of nuclear wastes, and expanded water data collection and predictive studies for water availability, conservation, and environmental protection in areas of new or increasing coal production; and the installation of 100 water quality stations which will bring the national stream quality accounting network to 85% of its design size of 525 stations and begin to provide baseline water quality information for most of the nation. A water use program—collection of data and information of where, how much, and for what water is used—will be initiated in cooperation with the States; and the National Water Data Exchange will be further developed to improve the availability and dissemination of water data to all users.

5. Conservation of lands and minerals.—The 1978 program provides for (a) classification of federally owned lands for the existence and workability of leasable mineral deposits and for sites for development of water resources, (b) evaluation, to determine the fair market value, of mineral resources offered for lease by competitive bidding, and (c) regulation and supervision of mineral prospecting, development, and production operations on leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) lands. Funds for regulation and supervision will be increased both onshore and offshore.

6. Land information and analysis.—The principal mission of this activity is to more effectively meet the Nation's rapidly increasing need for information required to facilitate land use decisionmaking and to evaluate the environmental consequences of alternative land uses.

The specific objectives are: (a) Development and application of multidisciplinary natural science and geographic technology in support of land use decisionmaking; (b) mapping current land use; (c) accomplishing in-house NEPA-related functions; and (d) collecting, processing, and distributing remote sensing data, and applying other aspects of space technology in support of land resources and environmental analysis.

7. General administration.—General administrative expenses provide for management, executive direction and coordination, and administrative support to the bureau as a whole. This includes such essential functions as budget, finance, personnel, contract negotiation and administration, property management, organization and methods and management analysis. General administrative expenses of the Geological Survey are financed in part by the line item and in part by assessments on direct program funds and on funds from other Federal agencies and sundry non-Federal sources.

8. Facilities.—The funds included in this activity will finance the operation and maintenance costs, facilities management needs and related special support services necessary for the operation of the National Center Headquarters complex.

Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for making cooperative topographic and geologic surveys and water resources investigations (43 U.S.C. 48); proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records (43 U.S.C. 45); proceeds from sale of personal property (40 U.S.C. 481 (c)); reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Power Commission (16 U.S.C. 797); and reimbursements from friendly countries and international organizations for technical assistance (22 U.S.C. 2357). Reimbursements from other Federal agencies (31 U.S.C.

686) are for special-purpose mapping, investigations, and computer services performed at the request of the financing agency, much of which contributes to the basic objectives of the Geological Survey.

1. Coal mine health and safety inspections.—Activities include inspection of coal mines and enforcement of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, assistance in mine rescue operations, investigations of serious accidents in coal mines and recommendations to reduce working hazards—all to safeguard the health of workers, assist industry in improving conditions of mine health and safety, and promote efficiency in the coal industry. Development of State health and safety programs is encouraged through a grant program and through technical assistance.

2. Metal and nonmetal mine health and safety inspections.—Activities include inspection of metal and nonmetal mines and enforcement of the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Mine Safety Act, assistance in mine rescue operations, investigations of serious accidents in metal and nonmetal mines and recommendations to reduce working hazards—all to safeguard the health of workers, assist industry in improving conditions of mine health and safety and promote efficiency in the mineral industry. State programs are encouraged through assistance in the implementation of State plans.

3. Education and training.—Instruction designed to develop greater safety awareness and to make the miner a safer worker is provided to employees of the mineral industry. Training covers the causes and prevention of accidents and unhealthy work environments, safe mining practices, first aid, and mine rescue methods. Courses are in the form of classroom instruction, demonstrated lectures, motion pictures, and other instructional media.

4. Technical support.—Under this activity MESA provides onsite day-to-day technical services and advice to health and safety field managers, mine inspectors, and State and industry management to assist enforcement or effect improvements in practices relating to ventilation, roof support, use and application of electrical equipment, fire protection, use of explosives, haulage, hoisting, illumination, mine communications, dust collection and abatement, and other related safety practices, devices, techniques, and equipment. MESA also provides analytical data relative to the cause, frequency, and manner of accidents and the events or the practices that contribute to their cause or that may be identified as principal hazards contributing to the frequency of disabling injuries or unhealthy working conditions.

5. Program administration.—Provides for the immediate Office of the Administrator and the key management staff that support the general administrative functions. The balance of the cost for administrative functions is charged to program funds. In addition, this activity provides the necessary funds to reimburse the employee compensation fund for payments made resulting from the injury or death of employees under the jurisdiction of the Mining Enforcement and Safety Administration as required in section 209 of Public Law 86-767.

1. Metallurgy research.—Research is carried out seeking new and improved processes to extract, recover, purify, fabricate, and recycle metallic and nonmetallic minerals for the most efficient resource utilization attainable through increased production, reduced costs, and a minimum of waste. Of particular interest is research leading to advanced metallurgy technology, abatement of pollution from metallurgical processes, management of mineral wastes and improvement of mineral materials. Decreased funds in 1978 are due to a reduction for nonrecurring costs of relocating the College Park Metallurgy Research Center and a decision not to proceed at this time to a larger scale alumina pilot plant, partially offset by an increase for expanded research in fundamental technology for processing minerals with emphasis on chromium, platinum, nickel, and cobalt.

2. Mining research.—Research is conducted to assure a safer environment and working conditions for miners; to reduce health hazards to mine workers; to advance coal preparation technology; and to develop improved extractive systems to increase total mining output at less cost. The current research is designed to increase mining efficiency with full consideration for the health and safety of mine workers, bring marginal mineral deposits into production, maximize recovery of irreplaceable resources, and minimize pollution and damage to the environment.

3. Mined land demonstrations.—Demonstration programs are conducted to restore mined land surfaces, control subsidence caused by mining, control fires in inactive coal mines, and dispose of mine refuse including culm banks. The Bureau provides grants for the control of drainage in anthracite formations and administers mining-related environmental projects approved by the Appalachian Regional Commission. Decreased costs in 1978 result from reducing the scale of demonstrations in anthracite and bituminous areas and nonrecurring funding of an anthracite conversion demonstration plant.

4. Data collection and analysis.—Technical and economic data on mineral reserves, production, consumption, and international trade are compiled, analyzed, and forecasts are made. This information is used in the formulation of national mineral and energy policies; to assist Federal, State, and local governments in coping with problems of mineral supply; and to help industry plan for meeting mineral requirements. Increased resources in 1978 are for acceleration and further automation of the minerals availability system and for assessment of data on ocean mining.

5. Mineral land assessments.—Mineral assessments are made on wilderness, primitive, and other public lands to provide data on minerals availability or potential for use in considering public land withdrawal decisions. Engineering investigations of mineral resources are undertaken in areas affected by water development and other public works. Environmental impact statements are developed and reviewed as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. Increased funds in 1978 will be for accelerating mineral land assessments to provide better knowledge of minerals availability, for the land withdrawal decision process.

6. Program administration.—Provides funds for executive direction and part of the administrative services for the Bureau of Mines. The balance of the cost of administrative services is charged to program funds appropriated directly or transferred from other agencies. The 1978 increase is for initiation of a program to correct existing health and safety deficiencies in employee workplaces and for higher costs of employee compensation payments to the Department of Labor.

1. Drainage of anthracite mines.—Funds appropriated in 1956 (69 Stat. 460) will be expended in fiscal year 1977 and in future years on a matched-fund basis with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The funds are provided for the conservation of anthracite coal resources and the prevention of flooding and damage to surface lands or structures through flood control and anthracite mine drainage. The act of July 15, 1955, was amended by the act of October 15, 1962 (76 Stat. 934), to further provide for the filling of voids in abandoned coal mines in the interest of public health and safety.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION

The Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, and other contributions from public and private sources and to prosecute projects in cooperation with other agencies, Federal, State, or private: Provided, That the Bureau of Mines is authorized during the current fiscal year, to sell directly or through any Government agency, including corporations, any metal or mineral product that may be manufactured in pilot plants operated by the Bureau of Mines, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. The authorized purposes of the Helium Act Amendments of 1960 (50 U.S.C. 167) are to locate and develop helium reserves and to produce, sell, and distribute supplies of helium, and to conserve a sustained supply of helium that will be sufficient to provide for essential Government activities.

Budget program.—During 1978, it is anticipated that helium sales by the Bureau of Mines will be about 195 million cubic feet. This is the same as sales for 1977. As in the past, extraction of helium for production and sales will be conducted only at the Keyes, Okla., helium plant.

The Amarillo, Tex., loading and shipping terminal will make shipments in small cylinders, using helium transported to it from the Keyes helium plant.

Federal agencies and their contractors will purchase approximately 190 million cubic feet of helium directly from the Bureau and from eligible commercial distributors (30 CFR, pt. 602). The remainder of the Bureau's sales are to a few commercial companies.

Helium produced at the Keyes helium plant in excess of the requirement for the current helium market will be conserved by injection into underground storage for future use. Operations at the Exell, Tex., helium plant will be confined to processing functions required only in connection with the operation and control of the underground helium storage reservoir.

During 1978, construction work on new purification equipment at the Exell helium plant will continue. Completion, testing, and inspection of the equipment will carry over into the following year. This new purification equipment at the Exell helium plant is necessary at this time as the primary 20-year term of the helium-bearing gas supply contract at the Keyes helium plant expires in April 1978. The contract continues in effect thereafter so long as the company produces gas considered by the United States to be suitable for processing. If for some reason the Keyes gas is no longer suitable for processing, the contract would be terminated and purification operations shifted to the Exell helium plant using gas from underground storage.

Because the Federal demand for liquid helium is expected to grow and the cost for liquid helium shipments is lower than shipping gaseous helium, the Bureau will commence installation of helium liquefaction equipment at the Exell plant. Completion, testing, and inspection will carry over into 1979. This liquefaction equipment will be in addition to a unit now in operation at the Amarillo shipping terminal.

During 1978, the Bureau will continue to expand the scope of its exploration and evaluation of helium-bearing gasfields of the United States. Studies of fields containing nonwasting helium reserves will receive priority. Nonwasting helium reserves are contained in gases having very low heating value; therefore, the gas is of little or no value for fuel and is not being exploited. Some of the larger known nonwasting helium reserves are on Federal lands, and the ownership of the helium has been retained by the Government.

The Bureau will also continue to update and improve its technical capabilities with regard to helium extraction, purification, and distribution.

The Bureau, through a contract for professional services, will develop trend and causal models of the U.S. helium industry through the year 2000. The models should predict the resources, supply, demand, and end uses of helium for each year during the period. These computerized models will permit the Bureau of Mines to periodically update the trends of helium supply and usage, publish results, and continue its leadership role in managing and informing the Nation on its helium resources and use.

Financing.—The helium program of production, sales, and helium stored underground is financed from the Helium fund. Income from helium sales, services, and rentals of containers are estimated to provide the needed funding. A decrease in the cash balance with the Treasury will account for the additional funding as well as a repayment of $1 million on the Treasury debt. The funded operating costs are increased by 6% over those for 1977. The increase is due mainly to an increase in salaries and capital outlay for the purchase and/or fabrication of minor plant operating equipment.

Operating results.—The revenues from helium sales and other income are estimated to be $8.8 million, while expenses are estimated to be $8.7 million, leaving a net operating income of $42 thousand.

As of June 30, 1976, the total assets of the Helium fund was $588.6 million of which $552.5 million represents helium inventories. The helium inventory consists of about 37.6 billion cubic feet, 27.1 billion cubic feet of which was purchased for conservation at an average price of $11.52 per thousand cubic feet. An additional 7.1 billion cubic feet was accepted from contractors under court order. The remainder, 3.4 billion cubic feet, was produced at Bureau of Mines plants. The total assets include 2% cash, accounts receivables, 4% plant and equipment, 94% helium stored underground. Liabilities total $465.0 million of which $434.8 million is owed to the U.S. Treasury (largely principal and accumulated interest). The Government equity as of June 30, 1976, is $123.6 million.

On September 30, 1978, the total assets of the Helium fund is estimated to be $652.3 million with $615.6 million representing helium inventories. Total liabilities of $527.7 million with $497.5 owed to the U.S. Treasury. The increase of $62.7 million in the amount owed the U.S. Treasury is accrued interest on borrowing and net worth of 1976 and 1977. The Government equity on September 30, 1978, is estimated $124.6 million.

1. Eklutna project, Alaska.—The Eklutna project has completed its 21st year of operation. The total revenue through 1976 amounts to $31,371,133 and the current value of the plant in service is $31,070,661. All available energy is under contract. The project has maintained an excellent record of service and reliability.

2. Snettisham project, Alaska.—The first or Long Lake phase of the 70,000-kilowatt Snettisham project was put into commercial operation by APA, December 1, 1973, following partial acceptance of the facilities from the construction agency (Corps of Engineers). Transmission line failures on one section of the line, due to exceptionally high winds and heavy icing conditions, substantially curtailed production and sales. 1976 and transition quarter actions include completion by the construction agency of a major line relocation around the problem area and completion of the transfer of all project facilities to the APA. Revenues from power sales for 1974, 1975, and 1976 were $1,036,871 (70% in 1976). Project sales and revenues in future years will increase reflecting improvement in reliability because of the relocation and growth in market for project power.

The Bonneville Power Administration constructs, operates, and maintains facilities to market electric power produced at Federal hydroelectric generating plants over its high-voltage transmission grid system to public and private utilities and industrial customers in the Pacific Northwest. It also wheels, exchanges, and purchases power from non-Federal hydroelectric and thermal generating plants.

The estimated amounts of peak generating capacity on the Federal transmission system are as follows (in thousands of kilowatts):

	Oct. 1, 1977	Oct. 1, 1986
Federal projects	17,129	22,346
Power wheeled and exchanged for non-Federal utilities	9,642	19,243
Total	26,771	41,589

The transmission facilities will integrate new generating facilities into the system. Twenty-nine Federal hydroelectric generating plants are currently in operation on the system. These plants, along with additional generating units being installed at new and existing Federal projects, will bring the total Federal installed capacity from 17.1 million kilowatts to 22.3 million kilowatts.

Budget program.—The activities of the BPA fund generally consolidate the activities provided for in the BPA appropriation accounts of previous years.

BPA's 1978 program will be financed from revenues and proceeds from the sale of revenue bonds or notes to the U.S. Treasury which will be repaid from future revenues.

BPA fund activities include:

Operation and maintenance.—Provides for the scheduling and dispatch of power, operation, maintenance, planning of the system, and the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, billing and servicing these contracts, and the review and establishment of wholesale rates.

Purchase power and wheeling.—Provides for the acquisition of power from other entities by purchase and exchange, and the use of transmission facilities.

Interest on borrowings.—Provides for payments to the U.S. Treasury for interest on borrowings to finance BPA's construction program under $1.25 billion borrowing authority provided by Public Law 93-454.

Associated project costs.—Provides for repayment of the operation and maintenance costs of the U.S. Corps of Engineers and U.S. Bureau of Reclamation power generating projects; interest and amortization on the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation capital investment in power generating facilities; and coordination agreement payments to the Federal Power Commission.

Transmission system construction.—Provides for continuation of construction work on transmission lines, substations, and related facilities initiated in prior years, and initiation of construction on system additions.

Reserve for contingencies.—Provides for the purchase of power in low-water years; repair and/or replacement of facilities affected by natural and man-made emergencies including the resulting additional costs for contracting, construction, and operation and maintenance work; unavoidable increased costs for the planned program due to necessary but unforeseen adjustments including engineering and design changes, contractor and other claims, and relocations.

Reimbursable programs.—Provides for the acquisition of energy and other services provided by BPA under various types of trust and reimbursable arrangements.

a. Energy purchase trust agreements.—Provides for the purchase of replacement energy from other sources for BPA industrial and utility customers during periods when nonfirm energy is not available from the Federal system, with BPA acting as an agent in acquiring nonfirm energy in their behalf for which each customer provides funds in advance.

b. Other.—BPA constructs, operates, and maintains transmission facilities which are not provided by the Administration under its customer service policy when requested and financed by other entities. Also, BPA facilities are relocated as required for highway construction and other purposes under similar arrangements.

Financing.—Public Law 93-454, the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act, provides for the use by the Bonneville Power Administration of all receipts, collections, and recoveries in cash from all sources, including the sale of bonds, to finance the annual budget programs of the Bonneville Power Administration. These receipts result primarily from the sale of power and wheeling. Public Law 93-454 also provides for the availability of $1.25 billion in authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury, at rates comparable to borrowings at open market rates for similar issues. Operating revenues are expected to amount to approximately $322 million in 1978.

Operating results.—Estimated cumulative retained earnings at the close of the budget year are $141 million, which reflects a net decrease of $9 million from 1977.

1. System operation and maintenance.—Provision is made for investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatching power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administering contractual operation requirements, and determining methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources.

2. Purchase power and wheeling charges.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of firming energy in connection with disposal of power under contracts with utility companies.

3. Power contracts and rates.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenue, development of wholesale power rates, and determination of adequate provisions for the amortization of the power investment. Receipts which were deposited in the Treasury amounted to $43,994,800 in 1976 and are estimated at $45 million for 1977, and $46 million for 1978.

4. General administration.—Provision is made for the bureau's executive direction and administrative services.

The construction program provides transmission, substation and switching facilities to transmit power generated at Corps of Engineers' hydroelectric projects in the Southwest. This program is coordinated with the Corps of Engineers' construction program and customer requirements in order that transmission and related facilities will be in place at the time these power projects are completed and available for marketing. This program also provides for the purchase of capital electrical equipment used for upgrading the established system to meet changing customer load requirements.

The program for 1978 is designed to accomplish SPA's responsibility for operating and maintaining the system.

Of the $8,106,000 required for the 1978 operation and maintenance program, 45% is for system operation and maintenance; 41% is for purchase power and transmission service charges; 4% is for power contracts and rates; and the remaining 10% is for general administration.

All operation and maintenance activities, with the exception of the expenses for the purchase of power and payment of transmission charges, are financed through direct appropriations. An appropriation for the purchase of power and payment of transmission expenses is necessary to cover monthly expenditures in excess of monthly receipts for the thermal power and energy and transmission service provided to SPA.

1. Education.—The Bureau of Indian Affairs provides a variety of support for the education of Indian children through direct operation of schools, support of tribally operated schools, and financial assistance to public schools serving Indian children. The number of children attending Federal, tribal, and public schools is shown below:

	1976	1977	1978
Number of pupils:
Federal and tribal schools	49,423	49,500	50,000
Public schools	120,500	162,630	175,000

The Bureau also assists Indian adults by providing financial assistance to students for higher education studies, by direct support of some tribally operated post-secondary institutions, and by offering continuing education programs in many communities. The number of participants in these programs is indicated in the following table:

	1976	1977	1978
Continuing education participants:
Higher education scholarships	15,000	17,000	17,400
Adult education enrollments	18,000	18,300	19,000

2. Indian services.—This activity includes municipal-type governmental services for Indian communities, along with assistance to tribes in self-government and self-determination projects. Also, the activities associated with the Navajo-Hopi settlement are included. Data are presented below on selected aspects of this activity.

3. Economic development and employment programs.—This activity is designed to stimulate reservation economies, and to help Indian people participate fully in those economies.

Business enterprise development is encouraged and assisted through programs of technical and financial aid, with strong emphasis on enterprises owned and operated by Indian individuals and organizations. Indian tribal organizations and individuals are assisted with securing and managing loans for resource and business enterprise development, housing, public utility facilities, education, and other purposes. Individual Indians are assisted in qualifying for, finding, and occupying jobs both on and off the reservation consistent with their needs, capabilities, and desires. Roads are maintained to provide for the movement of people and goods as needed for the well-being of the community.

4. Natural resources development.—This activity is designed to provide for the conservation, development and utilization of Indian land, water, and related resources. Resources are surveyed and inventoried, and agriculture and forestry development is assisted.

5. Trust responsibilities.—Under this activity the Bureau's trust responsibilities toward the Indian people are carried out. This entails the protection of Indian rights and property, particularly those related to land and natural resources, and the management of assets held in trust for Indian tribes and individuals.

6. General management and facilities operation.—This program provides for the general management functions and for the repair, maintenance, and operation of facilities which support the Bureau's programs. These functions include executive direction; management administrative services; safety management; operation and maintenance of the Bureau's physical facilities; and provision of GSAowned or leased facilities. Administrative costs of centralized support services and general management costs at the local levels are financed from the program activities served.

This fund, established by the Indian Financing Act of 1974, provides a source of financing for Indians who cannot borrow from other Government credit agencies or from ordinary commercial lenders because of their low economic status, isolated geographic location, lack of bankable security or other reasons. Loans are made to tribes and other Indian organizations for relending to individual members and groups of members, and to finance tribal business enterprises. Loans are also made to tribes for use by them in obtaining expert assistance to prepare and argue claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. Direct loans are made for any purpose that will promote the economic development of the borrower, including loans for educational purposes.

The fund was established pursuant to the Indian Financing Act of 1974. The purpose of the fund is to support a program of guaranteeing and insuring loans made by commercial lending institutions to Indian individuals, to tribes, and to other Indian organizations for economic development purposes. An interest subsidy is paid from the fund on loans guaranteed or insured to reduce the Indian borrower's rate of interest. The purpose of this program is to provide an incentive to the private lending sector to make loans to Indians which would not otherwise be made.

The 1978 budget request for administration of territories finances the costs of operating the office of the Governor, and the judiciary of American Samoa. Also requested are grant funds in the amount of $19.7 million for the operations of the Government of American Samoa. The most significant programs in the budget year include those for education, medical services, and public works.

In addition, the appropriation request includes $500 thousand for economic development as authorized in the Guam Economic Development Act of 1968.

Under law, salaries and expenses for the offices of the Comptroller of Guam and the Comptroller of the Virgin Islands are paid, respectively, from funds which would otherwise be covered into the treasury of Guam and grants which would otherwise be paid to the Virgin Islands. Operations of these offices are reflected under this appropriation for budgetary purposes.

Under the terms of the Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United Nations, the United States exercises full jurisdiction over the territory and is obligated to promote the political, economic, and educational advancement of the inhabitants. These responsibilities are carried out through the Department of the Interior.

The Trust Territory, now with a population of about 101,000 persons, comprises 2,125 islands scattered over 3 million square miles of ocean in two major archipelagos, the Caroline and Marshall Islands. The land area totals 516 square miles.

1. High Commissioner's Office.—This office provides executive direction for the development of programs and the administration of all the territory.

2. Judiciary.—Provision is made for the high court of the Trust Territory, the court of appeals, and the lesser courts of the territory.

3. Federal Comptroller's Office.—Provides for the cost of operations for the Comptroller Guam/TTPI. The Comptroller is required by law to audit the operations of the Trust Territory government. The Comptroller's office is under the general supervision of the Secretary of the Interior and is not a part of any executive department of the Trust Territory government.

4. Grants.—The cost of operating the government of the territory is provided by Federal grant appropriations and local revenue. The main activities funded under the Trust Territory government are operations and capital improvements.

5. Government of the Northern Mariana Islands.—The Charter of the United Nations and the Trusteeship Agreement between the Security Council of the United Nations and the United States of America guarantee to the people of the Northern Mariana Islands the right to freely express their wishes for self-government or independence. The United States, in response to the desires of the people of the Northern Mariana Islands, entered into political status negotiations. The people of the Northern Mariana Islands approved the Covenant to Establish a Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands in political union with the United States of America in the plebiscite on June 17, 1975. The United States agreed to this request and approved the covenant on March 24, 1976. The covenant provides for direct grant funding for governmental operations, construction, and economic development funds.

The Northern Mariana Islands, with a population of about 15,200 comprises 13 single islands and one group of three small islands, extending in a chain for some 338 miles in the western Pacific Ocean with a total land area of approximately 184 square miles. The three principal islands are Saipan, Tinian, and Rota.

Under title I of Public Law 92-39 funds are authorized for the settlement of claims of Micronesian inhabitants of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands who suffered damages arising out of the hostilities of the Second World War. All title I claims have been determined by the Micronesian Claims Commission pursuant to the provisions of title I. The $5 million ex gratia contribution of the United States has been matched by a similar contribution by Japan to the claims fund as provided in an agreement between the Governments of Japan and the United States on April 18, 1969.

Under title II of Public Law 92-39 funds are authorized for the settlement of claims of Micronesian inhabitants of the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands who suffered damages between the dates of the securing of the various islands of Micronesia by the U.S. Armed Forces and July 1, 1951. All title II claims have been determined by the Micronesian Claims Commission pursuant to the provisions of title I. Twenty million dollars has been authorized and appropriated for settlement of claims under title II.

1. Legislation is recommended to provide grants for the rehabilitation of Enewetak Atoll, in the Marshall Islands. These funds are to be used for construction of housing and public facilities so that the former inhabitants, who were removed in 1948 for the atomic weapons testing program, can be resettled. Authorization and a supplemental appropriation of $4.0 million will be requested for 1977, with the balance of the proposed authorization to be sought in 1978.

2. Legislation is recommended to provide ex gratia compensation for the residents of Rongelap and Utirik Atolls in the Marshall Islands who have been affected by thyroid abnormalities, including cancer due to radioactive fallout as a result of thermonuclear testing in March of 1954.

River basin commissions and comprehensive studies.—Formerly displayed in the water resources council's program, river basin commissions coordinate Federal, State, and local plans for development of water and related land resources; prepare comprehensive, coordinated, joint plans to make optimum use of such resources; and recommend long-range schedules of priorities. Regional or river basin plans are prepared by a lead Federal agency or by appropriate river basin commissions.

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 101. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 102. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior and for the emergency rehabilitation of burned-over lands under its jurisdiction: Provided, That appropriations made in this title for fire suppression purposes shall be available for the payment of obligations incurred during the preceding fiscal year, [and the period July 1, 1976 through September 30, 1976,] and for reimbursement to other Federal agencies for destruction of vehicles, aircraft, or other equipment in connection with their use for fire suppression purposes, such reimbursement to be credited to appropriations currently available at the time of receipt thereof.

SEC. 103. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials, and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 104. Appropriations made to the Department of the Interior in this title shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, when authorized by the Secretary, in total amount not to exceed $300,000; hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles; purchase of reprints; payment for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and the payment of dues, when authorized by the Secretary, for library membership in societies or associations which issue publications to members only or at a price to members lower than to subscribers who are not members.

SEC. 105. Appropriations available to the Department of the Interior for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902 and D.C. Code 4-204).

SEC. 106. In addition to the aircraft specifically authorized under this Act there is hereby authorized for acquisition [five] three aircraft for replacement only, two of which shall be from surplus. Such acquisitions shall be integral to the provision of centralized aircraft services in Alaska.

SEC. 107. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for obligation in connection with contracts issued by the General Services Administration for services or rentals for periods not in excess of twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

[SEC. 301. No part of any appropriation under this Act shall be available to the Secretaries of the Interior and Agriculture for use for any sale hereafter made of unprocessed timber from Federal lands west of the 100th meridian in the contiguous 48 States which will be exported from the United States, or which will be used as a substitute for timber from private lands which is exported by the purchaser: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to specific quantities of grades and species of timber which said Secretaries determine are surplus to domestic lumber and plywood manufacturing needs.]

[SEC. 302. No part of any appropriation under this Act shall be available to the Secretary of Interior or the Secretary of Agriculture for the leasing of oil and natural gas by noncompetitive bidding on publicly owned lands within the boundaries of the Shawnee National Forest, Illinois: Provided, That nothing herein is intended to inhibit or otherwise affect the sale, lease or right to access to minerals owned by private individuals.]

[SEC. 303. No part of any appropriation under this Act shall be made available to the Secretary of the Interior for the leasing of oil and natural gas on publicly owned lands within the boundaries of the Flathead National Forest, Montana.]

[SEC. 304. Funds appropriated to the Lowell Historic Canal District Commission in the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1976, including funds appropriated for the period ending September 30, 1976 (Public Law 94-165; 89 Stat. 977), shall remain available until expended.]

SEC. [305] 301. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein. (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 301. Appropriations in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 302. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office) of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

SEC. 303. Appropriations in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency, or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials, and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 304. No part of any funds made available by this Act to the Southwestern Power Administration may be made available to any other agency, bureau, or office for any purposes other than for services rendered pursuant to law to the Southwestern Power Administration.

SEC. 305. Appropriations made to the Department of the Interior in this title shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, when authorized by the Secretary. (Public Works for Water and Power Development and Energy Research Appropriation Act, 1977.)

1. Program direction and policy coordination.—The Attorney General, aided by the Deputy Attorney General, directs and supervises the programs and activities of the Department. Included within this activity are the Offices of the Attorney General, the Deputy Attorney General, Professional Responsibility, Policy and Planning, Public Information, Legislative Affairs, and Management and Finance. The 1978 program increase will provide additional resources to (1) staff the newly established Office of Professional Responsibility which will consider allegations of misconduct on the part of Department personnel, (2) enhance the analytical and planning capabilities of the Department, (3) handle increased workload resulting from legislative matters, (4) further develop and implement an automated financial management system which will combine the concepts of management by objectives with program budgeting, and (5) improve and expand centralized administrative support services to the offices, boards, and divisions.

2. U.S. Parole Commission.—The U.S. Parole Commission is responsible for parole, revocation, reparole, and conditions of supervision of all Federal prisoners while on parole. This Commission develops parole policy and provides parole services. The 1978 program increase will provide for further implementation of revised policies and procedures established by the Parole Commission and Reorganization Act of 1976. Workload for this activity follows:

The working capital fund, established January 2, 1975 (28 U.S.C. 527), finances on a reimbursable basis those administrative services which can be performed more efficiently on a centralized basis at the Department level than on a decentralized basis by the individual organizations.

The fund became operational July 1, 1975, financing payroll services and telephone-related elements of telecommunications. As additional accessions are approved, other administrative services currently financed on a reimbursable basis to the General Administration appropriation will be financed through the working capital fund.

Enforcement of antitrust, consumer protection, and kindred laws.—This division administers and enforces the antitrust, consumer protection laws, and related statutes. The principal statutes involved are: (1) Section 1 of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations and conspiracies among competitors to set prices collusively, or otherwise to restrain trade; (2) section 2 of the Sherman Act which prohibits combinations and attempts to monopolize and monopolization of interstate trade; (3) section 7 of the Clayton Act which prohibits corporate mergers and acquisitions which tend substantially to lessen competition or tend to monopolization; and (4) various statutory provisions which require Government regulatory agencies to consider the preservation of competition in the determination of public interest factors.

This program primarily involves the investigation of suspected violations of the antitrust laws, and the conduct of civil and criminal proceedings in the Federal courts which are designed to deter and punish violations, and to maintain and restore competitive conditions.

The Government is represented in each of the 94 judicial districts by a U.S. attorney and a U.S. marshal.

1. U.S. attorneys.—The U.S. attorney is responsible for the Government's legal interests in his district. A program increase is required to meet increased caseload in both the criminal and civil areas.

2. U.S. marshals.—The U.S. marshal has custody of all Federal offenders until released by the courts or confined in prison, acts as agent of the court in the service of process, and provides protection services to the courts and to key Government witnesses. A program increase is requested to meet increased workload in all activities of the marshals' service. The marshals also perform specialized reimbursable services for other Government agencies.

The following table shows actual and estimated workloads:

Fees and expenses are paid to witnesses who appear on behalf of the Government and to indigent defendants in cases in which the United States is a party. Increases are requested in 1978 to cover additional costs for the activities of protection of witnesses and expert witnesses.

1. Fact witnesses.—These witnesses testify as to events or facts about which they have personal knowledge.

2. Protection of witnesses.—The Attorney General provides for the security of witnesses and their families who are placed in jeopardy by virtue of being witnesses or intended witnesses. Subsistence costs of protected witnesses are paid from this fund.

3. Expert witnesses.—The testimony of these witnesses is used in trials where technical and scientific expertise is required in prosecution of a case.

4. Mental competency examinations.—Fees of physicians and psychiatrists for examining accused persons upon order of the court to determine their mental competency preparatory to testifying in court. Reports and court testimony relating to the examinations are included in these fees.

5. Commissioners.—Rule 71A(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure provides for payment of commissioners in land condemnation cases. In 1978, this function is proposed for transfer to the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

The Service was established by title X of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, to provide assistance to communities in resolving disputes, disagreements and difficulties arising from discriminatory practices which disrupt or threaten to disrupt peaceful relations among citizens and where efforts are being made to eliminate disparities between groups, achieve compliance with the act, and reduce and prevent racial disorders.

By law, the Service assists communities upon request of local citizens or officials, or upon its own motion. Federal court referrals of public accommodations cases arising under title II of the Civil Rights Act are also handled by the Service.

In endeavoring to create a climate of compliance and orderly progress, the Service seeks, encourages, and utilizes the cooperation of appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies, private and public groups or institutions, and individuals working to develop methods and programs for the peaceful resolution of racial disputes.

In carrying out the mandate of Congress, the Service must conduct its activities in confidence and without publicity, and the staff must hold confidential any information so acquired.

Note.—Excludes $498 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Department of State." Comparable amounts for 1976 ($422 thousand) and TQ ($117 thousand) are included above.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the main investigative branch of the Department of Justice. The fundamental authority for the activities of the FBI is contained in Chapter 33 of title 28, United States Code. The overall objective in security and criminal investigations is to provide information in the form of reports and other communications to aid the Department of Justice in criminal prosecutions and civil matters in which the Government has an interest and to provide security information which will assist the executive branch in the conduct of the affairs of the U.S. Government.

a. Coordination.—The management of the investigative programs of the FBI is accomplished by a centralized staff at Washington, D.C., which also has the responsibility to implement upper level Bureau management policies and decisions.

b. Maintenance of investigative records and communications systems.—Coordination and maintenance of information gathered and maintaining an adequate communications system falls within the scope of this subactivity. Records management automation efforts are being directed at file inventory and control, mail processing, automated storage and retrieval, and an automated general index.

Name check workloads, most of which are generated by requests from other Government agencies, are expected to remain in excess of 2 million during 1978.

The FBI's communications network consists of facilities to handle both record and voice communications. The FBI is now in the process of implementing the Automated Secure Teletype System, a computer controlled leased-line network for message traffic. In 1978, the FBI will begin a 5-year phased implementation of digital facsimile devices.

The National Crime Information Center, an online information system, serves Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies without charge. The system contains over 6 million records on wanted and missing persons and stolen property.

The uniform crime reporting program collects statistical data from more than 13,000 law enforcement agencies and publishes reports based on these data. The purpose of this statistical program is to provide criminal justice administrators, legislators, and law enforcement planners with indicators of the crime trend.

Under the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act and the Privacy Act of 1974, the FBI is required to provide citizens, upon written request, with information concerning them which is contained in the files of the FBI. This requirement has had a significant impact on the headquarters operation of the FBI as requests are being received in large volume. As of December 3, 1976, there were almost 8,000 requests pending with 158 cases in litigation.

c. Field investigations.—The principal mission of the FBI is to conduct security and criminal investigations. This mission is accomplished primarily by interviews, review of documents, the use of various surveillance techniques, including court authorized technical surveillances, the use of informants, the use of investigative support activities available locally or at headquarters, and the use of undercover techniques where they are deemed appropriate.

Significant achievements were recorded in the areas of white-collar crime and organized crime in 1976 and a number of important matters are currently under investigation. The FBI's traditional statistics of fines, savings and recoveries, and convictions showed significant increases in 1976, even though there was an overall reduction in the number of investigative matters received. This is in line with the overall objective of placing emphasis on criminal and security matters having the potential to impact significantly on the ongoing fight against crime and on efforts to provide for the security of this Nation.

Increased funding in 1978 for equipment in the amount of $13 million will have the most significant impact on the field investigations activity. Much of the request for increased equipment funding for data processing and telecommunications equipment bears directly on field investigations.

An increase of 110 technical and clerical employees is requested for counterintelligence and white-collar crime work.

2. Identification by fingerprints.—The FBI's Identification Division is the national repository of identification data based on fingerprints. In addition to the receipt of more than 5.6 million sets of fingerprints, overall workloads in this activity increased in 1976 due to higher levels of purging and expungements, citizen requests for copies of their identification records, and the return of over 200,000 records to the State of California.

Up to 3,000 new records are being added to the computerized arrest and descriptive data file each workday. In 1978, semiautomatic fingerprint readers, microimage units, data storage devices, and related equipment are included in the planned equipment purchases. The FBI is seeking funds for 290 additional nonagent employees to assist during the remainder of the automation effort. It is anticipated that there will be savings of up to 2,000 clerical employees when this system is fully implemented.

3. Criminal and scientific laboratory.—The FBI Laboratory continues to provide technical, scientific, and training services to law enforcement personnel. Special agents conduct scientific examinations and, upon request, provide expert testimony for other Federal, State, and local law enforcement agencies on a cost-free basis.

4. Training.—The FBI maintains a modern training facility for State and local law enforcement agencies as well as FBI personnel. During 1976 a total of 8,156 law enforcement personnel, including new agents, received training at the facility. National Academy trainees and other State and local law enforcement officers as well as FBI personnel received specialized courses and seminars.

5. General administration.—This activity includes the management, direction, administrative support, planning, inspection, and financial functions of the FBI. Recently, management has reorganized certain areas of responsibility in order to streamline headquarters operations.

The 1978 request for this activity includes funds for 33 additional nonagent employees.

Reimbursable work.—The FBI receives reimbursements for about 19,000 applicant-type investigations and name check searches, the loan of personnel to the House Appropriations Committee, and from the sale of replacement automobiles.

Note.—Excludes $360 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Department of State." Comparable amounts for 1976 ($304 thousand) and TQ ($85 thousand) are included above.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is responsible for administering laws relating to the admission, exclusion, deportation, and naturalization of aliens. Specifically, the Service inspects aliens to determine their admissibility into the United States; adjudicates requests of aliens for benefits under the law; prevents illegal entry into the United States; investigates, apprehends, and removes aliens in this country in violation of the law; and examines alien applicants wishing to become citizens.

At the present time, the United States faces a serious illegal alien problem. During 1978, the Service will intensify efforts to prevent illegal entry, expedite and improve the naturalization process, and upgrade the Service's management and information services.

1. Inspection for admission into the United States.—The additional positions requested will be used to staff new and expanded facilities. An increase of 35 positions is proposed.

Nearly all the reimbursements received by the Service are accounted for by the inspectional activity. These reimbursements are in payment for overtime earned by officers who are called upon to inspect arriving travellers at airports and seaports. The Airport and Airways Development Act Amendments of 1976 (Public Law 94-353, approved July 12, 1976) will significantly reduce the amount collected from transportation companies.

2. Adjudications.—Program objectives for 1978 have been established to detect and prevent fraud, establish an effective decisional quality control program, and reduce and eliminate work backlogs. The detection and prevention of fraud will be accomplished through the increased use of interview and investigative techniques. Service efforts to achieve a level of excellence in the area of decisions and orders will be focused through a program of selecting and publishing decisions of high quality to be used as guides by examiner personnel.

4. Naturalization.—The trend that has persisted for the past 6 years of annual increases in the receipt of naturalization applications will continue for at least another 6 years. To cope with these increases in naturalization applications, and to eliminate existing backlogs, 20 additional positions will be needed in 1978.

5. Border patrol.—The Service proposes to expand innovative efforts to prevent illegal entry into the country. As part of a balanced enforcement effort, the border patrol utilizes a mix of equipment and manpower to impede and prevent the entry of illegal aliens. The combination of border patrol agents, sensor devices, aircraft, fencing, and lighting has proven to be effective in accomplishing the required mission.

Recently, a helicopter was placed into operation in Chula Vista. The use of the helicopter has been an effective method to deter and apprehend illegal aliens entering the United States. Three positions will be required to pilot helicopters in 1978.

The Drug Enforcement Administration was established in the Department of Justice on July 1, 1973, by Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1973. The mission of DEA is to control narcotic and dangerous drug abuse.

The Administration is the investigative, intelligence, law enforcement, and regulatory agency responsible for suppression of illicit traffic in narcotics and dangerous drugs. It has sole responsibility to act for the Government in foreign countries in intelligence gathering activities and for coordination with foreign government agencies to reduce the supply of illicit drugs entering the United States.

The proposed program for 1978 is designed to optimize the use of Federal resources and focus on the priority drugs of abuse, with particular emphasis on the Mexican heroin threat.

The means by which the DEA performs its mission are summarized by the following activities:

1. Law enforcement.—(a) Criminal enforcement.—This activity encompasses: Enforcement of Federal laws regarding narcotics and dangerous drugs; reduction of the supply of illicit drugs entering the United States from foreign sources; and laboratory analysis of evidence for support of prosecutive cases.

(b) Compliance and regulation.—This activity encompasses the regulation of the legal trade in narcotics and dangerous drugs, and includes preparation of information necessary to the process of scheduling substances under the Controlled Substances Act; establishment of import, export, and manufacturing quotas for controlled drugs; registration of manufacturers, handlers, and dispensers of controlled drugs; and investigations to determine points of diversion into the illicit market.

(c) State and local assistance.—This activity encompasses cooperative law enforcement activities with State, county, and local officers; a continuing drug enforcement training program for State, county, and local law enforcement officers; training programs for State and local forensic chemists; laboratory support for State and local enforcement agencies including analysis of evidence and professional testimony in State prosecutive cases; development and distribution of training aids on controlled substances for local, State, and Federal personnel; and providing training and guidance to regulatory agencies and programs at the State and local level.

2. Intelligence.—This activity encompasses the acquisition and analysis of drug intelligence and the dissemination of the data. It supports DEA, other Federal, State, local, and foreign efforts to interdict or suppress the illicit international or domestic movement of drugs, through ability to attack the drug traffic in a systematic way, assessment of vulnerabilities of traffickers, and supplying information for policy determination and strategy.

3. Research and development.—This activity encompasses research programs directly related to DEA's law enforcement and regulation functions and includes, but is not limited to, studies designed to compare the deterrent effects of various enforcement strategies; assess and detect accurately the presence of controlled substances in the human body; evaluate the nature and sources of supply of dangerous substances; develop more effective methods to prevent diversion of controlled substances into illicit channels; develop information necessary to carry out functions of section 201, Public Law 91-513, Authority and Criteria for Classification of Substances; develop and apply systems and technologies for limiting the supply of illicit drugs in the United States, and undertake analyses to insure the most effective utilization of these systems.

4. Executive direction.—This activity encompasses the overall direction and management of DEA.

Reimbursable program.—A reimbursable program, funded by the Department of State, provides for the training of foreign law enforcement officials. More than 40 classes are held each year, both in the United States and host countries.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average of 27,500 offenders and for the maintenance and operation of 40 penal institutions, 15 community treatment centers in 12 metropolitan areas, 3 staff training centers, 5 regional offices and a central office located in Washington, D.C.

In addition to the above, the Bureau receives reimbursements for daily care and maintenance of unsentenced Federal, State, and local offenders; for utilities produced for Federal Prison Industries, Inc.; and for meals provided to Bureau staff at institutions.

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions.—This activity covers the direct care costs, excluding medical care, of all offenders in the Federal Prison System including the costs of all food, clothing, welfare services and release clothing, transportation and gratuities. Also included are staff salaries and operational costs of functions directly related to providing inmate care. These include case management, mental health, unit management, food, correctional, religious, community and inmate services.

Major program thrusts will be full activation of the Bastrop, Tex., Federal correctional institution for youthful offenders; expansion of operations at the Memphis, Tenn. and Pleasanton, Calif., Federal correctional institutions for youthful offenders; the provision of care for an additional 3,500 offenders; an increase in the level of financial assistance to inmates at the time of release; improvement in resource application via partial installation of unit management; and the provision of additional supervision resources.

2. Inmate education.—A variety of general, social and occupational education courses are available on a voluntary basis. This activity reflects all costs, including staff salaries, of providing these courses. This includes general education services, occupational education and recreation services. The major program thrust in 1978 involves providing programs that will increase inmate participation and better qualify them for occupational opportunities upon release.

3. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—Included in this activity are all costs associated with the general operation and maintenance of facilities. These consist of functions of the warden's office and staff, personnel and financial management, staff training, mechanical services, motor pool operations, powerhouse operation, and other administrative functions. Funds are requested in 1978 to keep pace with cost escalation in the fuel and utility areas, thereby enabling institutions to maintain operations at the prior year level. Also included is the activation of one new facility and expanded operation at two others.

4. Medical services.—Comprehensive medical care is provided to Federal inmates at institutional health care facilities, supplemented by the use of community resources and commissioned officers of the Health Services Administration (HSA). Costs include all medical care provided in Bureau facilities, including salaries of the HSA commissioned officers. Funds are requested in 1978 to offset cost escalation for medical supplies and consultant service areas and to relieve pressures on physician assistants and medical records personnel.

5. Narcotic addict treatment.—This activity reflects the costs for institution and community programs for the treatment of drug addiction. Institution programs include offenders committed by the courts specifically for treatment and offenders from the general population with drug abuse problems. Assignment and participation in the programs require positive assessment of the benefits to the offender. Community treatment programs, all of which are under contract, are available to drug-dependent offenders released from Bureau institutions, and to offenders designated by the courts for participation in this program as a condition of probation. Funds are requested to allow approximately 130 additional offenders to enter community treatment programs in 1978.

7. General administration.—This activity covers the costs of regional and central office executive direction and management support functions such as research and evaluation, ADP, financial and personnel management, legal counsel, and procurement. A major program thrust in 1978 is continuation of the progress toward establishing an online ADP system throughout the Bureau.

1. Training and technical support of State and local correctional systems.—This program, through grants to educational institutions, units of State and local government, public and private agencies, and other organizations, supports the development of learning and skills which meet the defined needs of State and local correctional personnel and organizations. During 1978, the Institute plans to award 45 grants for projects to train and assist organizations in the implementation of new correctional managerial programs; train State and local correctional trainers; develop programs in such areas as labor relations, planning, and problem solving; develop classifications of offenders; and provide for the development of training materials, including self-instructional materials for jail operations and other specialized areas.

2. Technical assistance.—This program provides specialized assistance to State and local correctional agencies in response to specific requests within selected programmatic areas. State and local agencies are advised of the availability of this service and requests for assistance are recorded and monitored to determine the impact of the service. Fifty direct technical assistance responses and seven technical assistance contracts and grants will be made in 1978.

3. Research and evaluation.—This program supports comprehensive research and program evaluation of correctional activity. The 1978 request will allow the award of 30 grants and contracts to strengthen the research and evaluation capabilities of State and local correctional agencies, seek to identify relevant research and evaluation studies, and make those studies available to operating Federal, State, and local agencies as well as provide for communication exchange. Further, in 1978 the National Institute of Corrections will focus on operations, evaluation, and research of jail programs. These research and evaluation efforts will, through 14 additional grants and contracts, identify optimum factors of effective programs and practices in jail operations. A field operational element will serve as the focal point in this research and evaluation effort.

4. Policy standards and program development.—This program supports studies of correctional policies, programs, and practices from which standards are formulated and new policy guidelines are developed and disseminated. The ultimate goal is to improve organizational performance. Ten comprehensive studies will be initiated in 1978 to establish or revise correctional policies or standards at the State and local level, and nine grants will be awarded for policy and standards development and clearinghouse operations at State and local levels. A field clearinghouse informational center will also be established to disseminate the usable correctional materials and assistance.

1. Planning and site acquisition.—This activity reflects costs of efforts to obtain suitable sites for construction projects, including site purchase and facility design. During 1978, advance planning and/or site acquisition will continue for the West Coast Federal Correctional Institution for young offenders at Camarillo, Calif.; the Northeast complex for young offenders; and the Detroit and Arizona Metropolitan Correctional Centers (MCC). In addition, efforts will begin to obtain a site for the South Central and West Coast Federal Correctional Institution (adult) for which funds are requested in 1978.

2. New construction.—This activity represents costs associated with the construction of new facilities in order to reduce overcrowding, close large and antiquated penitentiaries, and provide a safe and humane environment for staff and inmates. In 1978, construction will be completed on the South Central Federal Correctional Institution for young offenders at Bastrop, Tex. Construction will continue on the Southeast Federal Correctional Institution for young offenders at Talladega, Ala., and the Northeast Federal Correctional Institution for Adults at Otisville, N.Y. In addition, construction will begin on the three facilities for which budget authority is requested in 1978—the West Coast Federal Correctional Institution at Camarillo, Calif., the Detroit Metropolitan Correctional Center, and the Northeast Federal Correctional Institution for young offenders.

3. Improving existing facilities.—This activity includes rehabilitation and renovation of buildings, and necessary modifications to accommodate new correctional programs, rehabilitation or replacement of utilities systems, and repair projects at existing facilities. In 1978 additional resources are included that will permit major plant renovation, air and water pollution control, and electric systems rehabilitation. The estimate also includes $1,500 thousand for the lease/purchase agreement of a facility at Oxford, Wis.

The Bureau of Prisons contracts with approximately 1,200 approved State and local jails, work-release, and other correctional units to board Federal prisoners and detainees for short periods of time. Such periods occur before and during trial, during commitments for short sentences, and while awaiting transfer to Federal institutions after conviction. An average of 4,738 prisoners will be boarded at an average cost of $16.16 per offender day in 1978. Contracts are also awarded to State and local community activities which will provide community services to over 1,000 offenders per day.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., was created by Congress in 1934 and is a wholly owned Government corporation. Its mission is to employ and train Federal inmates through a diversified program, providing products and services to other Federal agencies. These operations are conducted in such a manner as to offer a minimum of competition to private industry and labor. Employment provides inmates with work, occupational knowledge and skills, plus money for personal expenses and family assistance. Inmate training is available for entry level skills and through factory on-the-job training and experience. New industries which utilize skills in demand in the labor market are developed as feasible to replace industrial operations at new Bureau of Prisons facilities.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., is entirely self-sustaining. No appropriations are required. Revenues are derived entirely from the sale of products and services to other Federal agencies. Earnings surplus to the needs of the manufacturing operations, capital improvements, and cash reserves are used to pay vocational training expenses, meritorious service awards, and accident compensation.

The amounts used by the corporation for the administrative expenses and vocational training expenses are subject to a congressional limitation. Management of the corporation is accomplished by a present staff of 39 employees located at the corporate headquarters at Washington, D.C.

The production, sales, and general business outlook for the corporation appears optimistic. Sales are projected at over $79 million for the current year and should be over $89 million in 1978. Earnings are not expected to increase correspondingly, primarily because more production resources will be expended in special training-manufacturing operations (production training units). Also, the anticipated establishment of new industries at new institutions will require outlays which will be amortized only in subsequent years.

Note.—Excludes $90 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to General Services Administration. Comparable amounts included above for 1976, $84 thousand; TQ, $22 thousand; 1977, $88 thousand.

The Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, as amended, and the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1974, authorize the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) to provide assistance to States and localities to reduce crime and juvenile delinquency, improve and strengthen criminal justice systems—police, courts, and corrections—and provide resources for a comprehensive juvenile justice and delinquency prevention program. The recently enacted Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act authorized LEAA to provide death benefits. The LEAA program includes the following activities:

(1) Direct assistance (formula grants).—a. Planning formula grants.—Funds under this subactivity are used to support State Planning Agencies (SPA's) which prepare and adopt, in cooperation with Regional Planning Units (RPU's) and local units of government, an annual State comprehensive law enforcement and criminal justice plan. The 1978 request continues LEAA's objective of improving SPA/RPU capacity, professionalism, and expertise to plan, manage, and evaluate the criminal justice system.

b. Corrections formula grants.—Funds under this subactivity provide up to 90% of the cost of correctional programs and projects, including construction and renovation of correctional institutions.

c. Juvenile justice formula grants.—The funds under this subactivity assist States and localities in the development of more effective education, training, research, prevention, treatment, and rehabilitation programs in the area of juvenile delinquency.

d. Criminal justice formula grants.—The funds under this subactivity permit States and territories to fund programs and projects according to their own priorities for criminal justice as outlined in their annual comprehensive plan. During 1978, States will be encouraged to implement the standards and goals that have been identified and place greater emphasis on the adjudication and rehabilitation process.

(2) Collateral assistance (discretionary grants and contracts).—a. Criminal justice programs (part C discre- tionary). Discretionary grants are the means by which national priorities and programs are emphasized. These funds afford LEAA the opportunity to provide leadership by placing emphasis on specific program areas and by testing innovative strategies to resolve continuing problems. During 1978, funds will be used to continue joint Federal-State anti-fencing operations, juvenile justice activities, and other ongoing efforts such as the career criminal, police, courts, Indian, and comprehensive data systems programs.

b. Correctional programs (part E discretionary).—These funds are the means by which national correctional priorities and programs are emphasized and afford LEAA the opportunity to provide leadership by placing emphasis on specific correctional programs. During 1978, funds will be used to continue the Treatment Alternatives to Street Crime program, juvenile justice activities, comprehensive data systems, and career criminal programs.

c. Juvenile justice programs.—These funds afford LEAA the opportunity to continue implementation of the programs mandated by the Juvenile Justice Act of 1974. During 1978 the prevention of juvenile delinquency, diversion of juveniles from the traditional juvenile justice system, maintenance of community-based alternatives to traditional forms of institutionalization, reduction and control of juvenile crime, and the implementation of national standards and goals for juvenile justice will be emphasized.

d. Community anticrime program.—The purpose of this program is to encourage community and citizen groups to participate in crime prevention and other criminal justice program activities. During 1978, program development will be completed and the requested funds will support implementation.

e. Technical assistance.—These funds are available to provide technical assistance to States and localities, public or private agencies, organizations, institutions, or international agencies in matters relating to the improvement of law enforcement and criminal justice.

f. Educational assistance and special training programs.—This program supports training of prosecutors, training in the latest criminal justice techniques and methods, and the law enforcement education and internship programs.

g. National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice.—Support is provided for research and development, technology transfer and evaluation of techniques, systems, equipment and devices for improving and strengthening the criminal justice system. During 1978, program direction will continue to emphasize evaluation and replication programs and the transfer of technology to the criminal justice community.

h. Data systems and statistical assistance.—This subactivity provides support to collect, evaluate, publish, and disseminate statistics and other information on crime conditions and the progress of law enforcement and criminal justice; assistance to States for development of State systems; and the operations of data systems activities within LEAA.

(3) Public safety officers' benefits program.—LEAA is authorized to pay benefits to the surviving relatives of public safety officers who die as the result of personal injuries sustained in the line of duty.

(4) Management and operations.—This activity provides support for the administrative operations of the agency.

Note—Excludes $3,750 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to: Bureau of Labor Statistics. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($4,300 thousand), TQ ($950 thousand), 1977 ($3,900 thousand) are included above.

Employment and training programs, as authorized by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973, as amended, include work and training programs, public service employment, and special programs for economically disadvantaged, unemployed, and underemployed persons. The act establishes a flexible and decentralized system of Federal, State, and local programs to assure that training and other services lead to maximum employment opportunities and enhance self-sufficiency. The following reflects actual years of service for 1976 and estimates for 1977 and 1978. However, the final determination as to the years of service in 1977 and 1978 and with what approaches this will be accomplished will be the result of individual prime sponsor decisions.

1. State and local programs.—Provides financial assistance by formula to over 400 State and local prime sponsors to design and operate comprehensive employment and training assistance programs to help meet the employment and training needs of their areas. Services authorized include institutional and on-the-job training, work experience, vocational education and counseling, remedial education, job placement services, and transitional public service employment.

This activity also provides added financial assistance for programs of transitional public service employment and training in areas which have a rate of unemployment of 6.5% or more for 3 consecutive months.

2. National programs.—Provides additional employment and training assistance to special segments of the population and discretionary funds to the Secretary. Additional assistance is also provided to State and local prime sponsors to prevent abrupt program changes which otherwise might result from the formula distributions, to provide incentives for joint action among sponsors, and to accomplish other program objectives. Among groups served are Indians, migrant and seasonal farmworkers, persons of limited English-speaking ability, criminal offenders, and through the Job Corps, severely disadvantaged youth in a residential setting. This activity also provides for technical assistance and training for Federal, State, and local personnel involved in the planning and administration of employment and training programs; for a comprehensive system to develop labor market information; and for research and development, and evaluation.

3. Summer youth employment program.—This activity provides jobs for economically disadvantaged youth during the summer months. Final determinations on funding levels are made each year in March when data and projections of need become available.

1. Payments to former Federal personnel.—Funds are allocated to the States to pay unemployment compensation to eligible former Federal employees, ex-Postal Service employees, and ex-servicemen.

2. Trade adjustment assistance.—The Automotive Products Trade Act of 1965, the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, and the Trade Act of 1974 authorize worker adjustment assistance allowances.

3. Unemployment assistance and payments under other Federal unemployment programs.—Funds are allocated to the States to pay unemployment assistance to workers who are not covered by other unemployment compensation programs but who are affected by adverse economic conditions, and for reimbursement to States for unemployment benefits paid on the basis of public service employment, as authorized by title II of the Emergency Jobs and Unemployment Assistance Act of 1974, as amended. States are also reimbursed during a transition period for benefits paid to workers newly covered under the provisions of the Unemployment Compensation Amendments of 1976.

2. Employment services.—A nationwide network of more than 2,400 local employment offices financed by Federal grants provide services to assist workers in obtaining suitable employment and to assist employers in resolving their employment problems. General services include interviewing, testing, counseling and referral for placement, appropriate training, or other services involved in readying individuals for employment. Assistance to employers includes analyzing their employment requirements, solving problems of recruitment and turnover, and developing labor market information. Special emphasis is placed on providing services to veterans and disadvantaged applicants. It is estimated that not less than $70 million will be available for services to veterans.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment trust fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by State payroll taxes. All Federal and State unemployment tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment trust fund and invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments or the expenses of State and Federal administration (including those of the Federal-State employment service).

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment trust fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

1. Improving and protecting wages.—This program obtains compliance with the minimum wage, overtime, child labor, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act and enforcement of the labor standards provisions under various Federal procurement acts, under the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act, and under the wage garnishment provisions in title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act. Regulations and interpretive materials are developed for the compliance program and special minimum wage standards are set. About 550,000 workers are expected to be directly aided each year by these efforts. This program also includes determinations of prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits for all Federal and federally assisted contracts for construction subject to the Davis-Bacon and Related Acts. Prevailing wage rates and fringe benefits determinations are also made under the Service Contract Act.

2. Elimination of discrimination in employment.—The major effort of this activity is to make equal opportunity an employment standard. The Employment Standards Administration works to insure nondiscrimination in employment on Federal contracts. It is responsible for the direction, coordination, and evaluation of the compliance activities of designated Federal agencies, which are responsible for assuring that Federal contractors take affirmative action in the hiring and promotion of minorities and women. Emphasis will be placed on providing equal employment opportunities to minorities and women in service and supply industries. In addition, increased employment opportunities will be provided in the construction industry through agreements among labor, management, and community groups under hometown, or where necessary, imposed plans. Through its Women's Bureau, the Employment Standards Administration continues to develop policies and programs to promote the welfare of wage-earning women and to encourage their fuller utilization in the work force. The equal pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act are also included in this activity. Also included is the administration of provisions of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and of the Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act providing for affirmative action by Federal contractors to employ and advance in employment physically and mentally handicapped individuals and disabled veterans and veterans of the Vietnam era.

3. Workers' compensation.—Under this income-maintenance activity, the Employment Standards Administration administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA), the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, their various extensions, and the black lung benefit provisions of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act. These programs insure that eligible disabled and injured workers or their survivors receive compensation and medical benefits and a range of services including rehabilitation, supervision of medical care, and technical and advisory counseling to which they are entitled. Technical assistance is provided to the States to upgrade their workers' compensation laws.

4. Program development and administration.—This activity provides for the direction and coordination of employment standards programs. Program planning, research, evaluation, budget, and other administrative activities of the Employment Standards Administration are carried out in a manner that meets predefined objectives insuring effective and efficient program management and execution. Increased emphasis will be placed on broadening the knowledge base of the research and evaluation program as well as developing a more balanced program; developing effective Federal/State cooperation; strengthening ESA's programs for training its own employees in addition to compliance personnel of other agencies; and providing technical assistance to ESA's clientele.

1. Federal Employees' Compensation Act benefits.—Currently, more than 43,000 claimants are receiving long-term compensation benefits due to job-related injuries, diseases or deaths, as specified in the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA) and its extensions, who were injured or who died as a result of work-related incidents. Pertinent medical bills are paid for compensable injuries. Compensation benefits are paid when the injury causes loss of job time. Under the 1974 amendments to the law, workers suffering noncontroverted traumatic injuries continue in full pay status for a period not to exceed 45 days, paid by the employing agency rather than through this account. All medical costs associated with these continuation-of-pay claims are examined and paid by the FECA program. In addition, the FECA program is responsible for claims extending beyond 45 days, all nontraumatic injuries and controverted claims, medical costs associated with the above, and the review of the agency-paid continuation-of-pay claims. Costs to this account are subsequently charged back to the employing agency.

2. Disabled coal miners' benefits.—Administration of the black lung benefits program by the Department of Labor began July 1, 1973. Title IV of the Federal Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969, as amended, provides that compensation benefits and medical treatment costs be paid to those who have been totally disabled due to pneumoconiosis. The Department pays benefits directly when no responsible mine operator can be determined under the insurance provisions of the act. Both surface and underground miners are covered by the program. Survivors who meet the test for eligibility are entitled to compensation benefits when in the case of a deceased miner, it is shown that the death was attributable to pneumoconiosis. Receipt of approximately 18,000 claims is expected in 1977 and 10,000 in 1978. About 1,200 claims in 1977 and approximately 600 claims in 1978 are expected to be approved.

3. Longshore and Harbor Workers' compensation benefits.—Under the 1972 amendments to the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, the Federal Government pays one-half of the increased benefits provided by the amendments from direct appropriation for persons on the rolls prior to enactment. The remainder is provided from the special fund which is financed by private employers assessed at the beginning of each calendar year for their proportionate share of these payments. The amendments granted an increase in compensation benefits for total disability and death cases.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, for fines and penalty payments, and pursuant to an annual assessment of the industry, for the general expenses of the fund under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. (33 U.S.C. 944; 31 U.S.C. 725.)

These trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for so-called second injuries. When a second injury results in a permanent partial disability which, combined with a previous disability, results in increased permanent partial disability, permanent total disability or death, the employer provides compensation only for the disability caused by the subsequent injury; compensation to supplement the employer's payment is provided from this fund. In addition, the fund pays one-half of the increased benefits provided by the 1972 amendments to the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act for persons on the rolls prior to the amendments. Maintenance payments are made to disabled employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation to enable them to return to remunerative occupations, and the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled longshore and harbor workers are defrayed. Payments are made in cases where other circumstances preclude payment by an employer and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by the insolvency of an uninsured employer. The expenses of 10 rehabilitation specialists providing services authorized under section 39(c) (1) and (2) of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, are also paid.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration performs the functions assigned to the Secretary of Labor by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. The act provides for grants to States to assist them in administering and enforcing State programs for occupational safety and health which have been approved by the Secretary, and provides for direct enforcement of Federal standards in States declining to assert jurisdiction.

1. Safety and health standards.—Mandatory standards are promulgated to assure the greatest possible protection of the safety and health of workers. Standards are based on research and recommendations of the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health (HEW), special advisory committees appointed by the Secretary, Federal and State agencies with related responsibilities, and other interested parties and organizations. All new standards, except emergency temporary standards, are promulgated under procedures that provide opportunity for public comment. Petitions for the promulgation, modification, or revocation of standards, and applications for variances or exemptions from the standards, are evaluated and acted upon in accordance with published rules of practice. Prior to promulgating permanent standards, evaluations are made concerning their possible economic and inflationary impact.

2. Compliance.—Compliance with occupational safety and health standards is gained in part by the physical inspection of plants and facilities. Both State and Federal enforcement personnel may cite employers for violations and propose penalties. In areas of exclusive Federal jurisdiction, citations are issued and penalties proposed subject to appeal to the independent Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission. Program operations are targeted to the investigation of fatal or catastrophic accidents, the investigation of claims of imminent danger and bona fide employee complaints, and inspections of establishments in industries with a high incidence and severity of work-related injuries or illnesses. During 1977 and 1978, OSHA will continue to increase its capability to inspect workplaces for abatement of complex occupational health problems, and generally upgrade the conduct and comprehensiveness of all inspections. As a result of providing in-depth inspection services, Federal inspections are expected to total 75,700 in 1977 and 90,000 in 1978.

The voluntary cooperation of employers and employees is actively encouraged, and technical assistance and advice is offered upon request. Federal matching grants of 50% of the total costs are provided to States for administering approved State statistical programs. State programs are monitored to insure that all elements of their approved plans are implemented effectively and that adequate funds and resources are provided. Federal and State enforcement efforts are integrated to provide a balanced national program of occupational safety and health. In 1977 and in 1978, 140,000 inspections will be made by State programs.

3. Education, consultation, and information.—Training courses, educational programs, and information are provided to employers, employees, trade associations, union representatives, State and local safety and health personnel, and other interested members of the public to assist them in an understanding of their rights and responsibilities under the act and of the actions necessary to assure so far as possible a safe and healthful workplace for all workers. Under cooperative agreements with State agencies, matching funds are made available to reimburse one-half the costs of providing onsite penalty-free advice by OSHA-trained State personnel to employers requesting the service. In-house training is conducted for occupational health professionals. This training includes an apprenticeship program of up to 3 years for entry-level personnel to produce qualified industrial hygienists and a program to provide all safety personnel with basic industrial hygiene skills. Federal departments and agencies are provided training and technical assistance in establishing and maintaining safety programs which will afford Federal employees protection consistent with that provided private sector employees under the act.

4. Safety and health statistics.—Statistics on occupational fatalities, injuries, and illnesses are collected and published annually to aid in the identification of occupational safety and health problems and to facilitate improvements in the program. Studies are conducted to identify circumstances and events associated with injuries and illnesses which may suggest causes and means of prevention.

5. Executive direction and administration.—Executive direction, planning and evaluation, and management support functions are structured to assure responsive administration and effective implementation of the act. Program responsibilities are decentralized to the field. More than three-fourths of agency personnel are geographically dispersed in 10 regional cities of the Department and over 100 area office and field station cities.

Employment cost index; establishments reporting quarterly.....	1,725	2,400	3,000

4. Productivity and technology.—Analyses are prepared on output per work-hour and unit-labor cost trends for both the entire U.S. economy and for specific industries. Studies are conducted on automation and other technological changes and the adjustments to such changes. Studies are made of labor requirements for selected types of construction. Analyses and international comparisons are made of prices, wages, employment, unemployment, and unit-labor costs. Research is conducted on the effects of international trade on U.S. employment.

5. Economic growth.—Long-range projections of U.S. economic growth are prepared. Special economic and social studies are undertaken and special reports prepared for the Commissioner, the Secretary, the Council of Economic Advisers, and other Government agencies.

6. Executive direction and staff services.—Provides leadership in developing plans and policies for the Bureau's economic, statistical, and management programs. Program plans are coordinated and evaluated. Statistical and data processing systems are operated and maintained. Research and report activities are coordinated; publications and releases are planned and edited; and a central inquiry service is maintained.

7. Revision of the Consumer Price Index.—The revision of the Consumer Price Index will be completed in 1977; therefore, this activity will no longer exist. The published results of this work are included in activity 2.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. Appropriations in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for supplies, services, and rental of conference space within the District of Columbia, as the Secretary of Labor shall deem necessary for settlement of labor-management disputes. (Department of Labor Appropriation Act, 1977.)

TITLE IV—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. Appropriations contained in this Act, available for salaries and expenses, shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18.

SEC. 402. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 403. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities.

SEC. 404. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, a grant, the salary of or any remuneration whatever to any individual applying for admission, attending, employed by, teaching at, or doing research at an institution of higher education who has engaged in conduct on or after August 1, 1969, which involves the use of (or the assistance to others in the use of) force or the threat of force or the seizure of property under the control of an institution of higher education, to require or prevent the availability of certain [curriculum] curricula, or to prevent the faculty, administrative officials, or students in such institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies at such institution.

SEC. 405. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are authorized to transfer unexpended balances of prior appropriations to accounts corresponding to current appropriations provided in this Act: Provided, That such transferred balances are used for the same purpose, and for the same periods of time, for which they were originally appropriated.

SEC. 406. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 407. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used, other than for normal and recognized executive-legislative relationships, for publicity or propaganda purposes, for the preparation, distribution, or use of any kit, pamphlet, booklet, publication, radio, television, or film presentation designed to support or defeat legislation pending before the Congress, except in presentation to the Congress itself.

SEC. 408. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are each authorized to make available not to exceed $7,500 from funds available for salaries and expenses under titles I and II, respectively, for official reception and representation expenses; the Director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service is authorized to make available for official reception and representation expenses not to exceed $2,500 from funds available for "Salaries and expenses, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service".

SEC. 409. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay for any research program or project or any program, project, or course which is of an experimental nature, or any other activity involving human participants, which is determined by the Secretary or a court of competent jurisdiction to present a danger to the physical, mental, or emotional well-being of a participant or subject of such program, project, or course, without the written, informed consent of each participant or subject, or his parents or legal guardian, if such participant or subject is under eighteen years of age. The Secretary shall adopt appropriate regulations respecting this section. (Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1977.)

1. Executive direction and policy formulation.—The Secretary is assisted in the formulation of policy and direction of the Department's activities by appropriate staff officers, specialized offices, and functional bureaus of the Department.

2. Conduct of diplomatic and consular relations with foreign countries.—This includes representation of the United States and its citizens abroad, political and economic negotiations and reporting, consular operations, and overseas administrative services. Major items of increase are for rising prices and local employee wage rates in other countries, increased passport and consular workloads, increased security and protection overseas, communications equipment, and opening and elevating posts in Africa and the Near East.

3. Conduct of diplomatic relations with international organizations.—In collaboration with other Government agencies, U.S. policy is developed and coordinated on political and security issues and in such specialized fields as world health, education, and labor activities.

4. Domestic public information and liaison.—This program provides for informing the American public on international policies and also keeping the Department informed on American attitudes on foreign policy.

5. Central program services.—These provide personnel and physical security measures, operations of the Foreign Service Institute, and the administration of a global communications system for civilian activities of the Government, including services for other agencies on a reimbursable basis.

6. Administrative and staff activities.—These include normal domestic administrative activities.

The Foreign Service buildings program provides consolidated office space for the Foreign Service and other Government agencies abroad and living quarters for American employees. This program also finances real property leases of 10 years or more (shorter term leases are included in Salaries and expenses); procurement of initial furniture and furnishings; and repair, maintenance, and operating costs of these facilities.

The table below shows present and estimated property holdings (including acquisitions under the special foreign currency program) by type of structure and geographic area (dollars in thousands):

Under this program, unsatisfactory Government-owned or leased office space is replaced with structures designed specifically to meet the particular needs of the Foreign Service and other Government civilian operations overseas. Housing is provided American employees in localities where suitable housing is otherwise unavailable.

In 1978, capital appropriations under this account will mostly be used in Europe, primarily to continue construction of a complex of office, residential, and service facilities in Moscow.

Since 1961 a separate appropriation for payments in excess foreign currencies has been enacted annually to supplement the regular appropriation. These currencies are used to acquire or construct real property and to finance operating and maintenance costs to the greatest extent possible. Countries in which the appropriation is expected to be used in 1978 are the Arab Republic of Egypt, Burma, Guinea, India, and Pakistan.

The current appropriation language requires that funds under the Special foreign currency program be credited to and expended under the regular program. It is proposed that the Special foreign currency program be made completely separate from the regular program beginning in 1978. This change will facilitate the management of these two appropriations.

Beginning with 1971, current appropriations have financed, by 30 equal annual installments, the unfunded liability created by new or liberalized benefits, new groups of beneficiaries, or salary increases. The request for 1978 includes $8,055 thousand for continuing installments for salary increases through 1975 and $1,946 thousand for salary increases effective in October 1976. Pursuant to the Foreign Service Retirement Amendments of 1976 (Title V, Public Law 94-350), the current appropriation for 1978 also includes $2,648 thousand for new retirement benefits, largely to conform with the Civil Service Retirement System, and $13,950 thousand for the normal cost not met by employee and employer contributions.

The permanent appropriation provides payments to the fund for increasing shares of the interest on the unfunded liability and annuity disbursements attributable to military service: 60% in 1976, 70% in 1977, and 80% in 1978.

The United States contributes its assessed share of the budgets of the above-listed organizations.

Since introduction of the new fiscal year the President's budget includes estimates of U.S. assessments against several international organization budgets not yet firmly determined. Consequently, the appropriation request reflects both a current estimate of the U.S. position on those organizations' budgets which have not yet been approved, as well as assessments resulting from approved organization budgets. The increases in U.S. contributions are largely attributable to the cost of maintaining the prior year level of operations. No appropriations are sought for the International Labor Organization since it is not yet known if the United States will continue its membership beyond November 6, 1977, the date when the time period for the notice of intent to withdraw from the organization expires, and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization due to termination of all functions of the organization on June 30, 1977.

The list of international organizations includes for the first time contributions to: (1) International Tin Council; (2) International Cotton Advisory Committee, (3) International Rubber Study Group, (4) International Seed Testing Association, and (5) Lead and Zinc Study Group. All but the International Tin Council were previously funded from the International conferences and contingencies appropriation.

1. Lower Rio Grande flood control improvement program.—Authorized by agreement with Mexico and the act of August 19, 1935 (49 Stat. 660). Work will be completed in 1977 on repairs and improvements of flood control works which protect the cities of Brownsville, Harlingen, Mercedes, Hidalgo, and Weslaco, Tex.

2. Tijuana River flood control project.—Authorized by the act of October 10, 1966 (80 Stat. 884), as amended by Public Law 94-425. Construction of U.S. improvements required for flood control in the Tijuana River Valley in California and Baja California will proceed with previously appropriated funds. Mexico has completed its portion of the project and the United States will complete the work in this country in 1978.

3. 1970 boundary treaty projects.—Authorized by the American-Mexican Boundary Treaty Act of 1972, approved October 25, 1972 (Public Law 92-549), to facilitate compliance with the treaty between the United States and Mexico, signed November 23, 1970. Work in 1978 will continue to provide boundary preservation works, to protect the boundary against encroachments, and to demarcate maritime boundaries.

4. Rio Grande canalization project.—Modification of this existing project will be completed in 1977 in order to provide flood protection for the urban development that has occurred since the original project's completion in 1943.

6. Amistad Dam powerplant.—Authorized by agreement with Mexico and the act of July 7, 1960 (74 Stat. 360). Separate facilities are to be built in the United States on a self-liquidating basis as required by the act. A contract for the sale of power from Amistad and the existing Falcon powerplant will retire the U.S. investment plus interest over a 50-year period and will cover the annual costs of operation and maintenance and equipment replacement.

These funds are used for payment of the U.S. share of the expenses of:

1. International Boundary Commission.—This Commission keeps the United States-Canadian boundary line marked in accordance with existing treaties. It also maintains boundary vistas by periodic tree cutting and chemical vegetation control.

2. International Joint Commission.—The Commission, at the request of the Governments of the United States and Canada, investigates and reports on recommendations relevant to boundary waters and other matters of mutual concern to both countries along the border. A major portion of its current activities is related to transboundary water pollution investigations, surveillance and research in the Great Lakes Basin, as provided in the United States-Canada Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement dated April 15, 1972. In cooperation with the U.S. Geological Survey, the Commission gathers streamflow data and acts to insure appropriate apportionment of international waters, and, with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, regulates the operation of a number of river flow control facilities located in boundary waters.

These funds are used for payment of the U.S. share of the expenses of nine international fisheries commissions, one international sea council, and the expenses of the respective commissioners. The commissions either conduct or plan and coordinate studies to determine measures necessary for the preservation and expansion of the productivity of fishery stocks. In addition, the Halibut and Salmon Commissions regulate their respective fisheries, the Great Lakes Fishery Commission carries on a program of lamprey eradication and control and all the commissions are authorized to recommend conservation measures to the member governments. The sea council proposes and organizes fishery and oceanographic investigations and disseminates the results to the member governments.

Note.—Excludes $1,137 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to Salaries and expenses. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($956 thousand) and the transition quarter ($266 thousand) are included above.

This appropriation provides for the educational and cultural exchange programs of the Department of State. These programs are designed to strengthen informal communication among leadership groups and institutions in ways which will favorably influence the environment within which U.S. foreign policy is carried out. They (1) focus on individuals of exceptional talent, promise or influence; (2) emphasize exchanges involving cultural, educational, governmental, and other institutions; and (3) seek mutuality of interest, involvement, and benefit as an effective way to develop lasting understanding. The increase will provide for expanding programs in Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union pursuant to "Basket III" of the Helsinki Agreement and to meet high priority requirements in Latin America, Africa, and the Near East.

Note.—In 1976, $6.8 million were transferred from funds available under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1962 pursuant to section 2(c) of the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962. Excludes $119 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to Missions to international organizations. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($98 thousand), TQ ($27 thousand), are included above.

The Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 (22 U.S.C. 2601) authorized assistance to migrants and refugees, both on a multilateral basis through contributions to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, and on a unilateral basis through assistance to refugees designated by the President. Subsequent legislation (Public Law 93-312) authorized an annual contribution of $500 thousand to the International Committee of the Red Cross. In 1978, additional funds are provided to assist refugees from Communist countries in Eastern Europe and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics going to countries other than Israel.

Annual payments are made to the Government of Panama in consideration of the rights granted in perpetuity for the construction of the Panama Canal (33 Stat. 2238 and 53 Stat. 1818). The Treaty of Mutual Understanding and Cooperation of 1955 provided for an annual payment by the United States of $1,930 thousand. As a result of devaluations of the U.S. dollar, the annual payment was increased to $2,328 thousand (Public Laws 92-268 and 93-110). Of this amount, $519 thousand is reimbursed to the Treasury by the Panama Canal Company (for the transition quarter, $130 thousand).

GENERAL PROVISIONS—DEPARTMENT OF STATE

SEC. 102. Appropriations under this title for "Salaries and expenses", "International conferences and contingencies", and "Missions to international organizations" are available for reimbursement of the General Services Administration for security guard services for protection of confidential files.

SEC. 103. None of the funds appropriated in this title shall be used (1) to pay the United States contribution to any international organization which engages in the direct or indirect promotion of the principle or doctrine of one world government or one world citizenship; (2) for the promotion, direct or indirect, of the principle or doctrine of one world government or one world citizenship.

SEC. 104. It is the sense of the Congress that any new Panama Canal treaty or agreement must protect the vital interests of the United States in the Canal Zone and in the operation, maintenance, property and defense of the Panama Canal.

SEC. 105. The Congress, taking cognizance that—

(1) the Secretary of State on June 11 submitted a multi-point proposal to the Sixth General Assembly of the Organization of American States designed to restructure the membership qualifications, the policymaking organs, and the financial assessments for the members of that body, and

(2) the United States Government has been regularly contributing approximately two-thirds of the annual OAS budget, and

(3) the bureaucratic structure of the OAS has, according to the Secretary of State, assumed a "ponderous" and "cumbersome" nature, pre-empting some of the policymaking responsibilities of the General Assembly, and

(4) the several member-states of the OAS have sought a more active role for the organization in formulating common policy positions on such hemispheric issues as recognition of the Cuban government, renegotiation of the Panama Canal Treaty, and protection of human rights in Chile, and

(5) the responsive structure and financial strength of the OAS will determine the relevance of that organization for meeting the challenges of the future, therefore expresses the support for its proposal presented to the Organization of American States General Assembly on June 11 by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and urges the General Assembly to favorably consider and adopt the United States proposal at an early date.】 (Department of State Appropriation Act, 1977.)

TITLE VI.—GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 601. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 602. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to administer any program which is funded in whole or in part from foreign currencies or credits for which a specific dollar appropriation therefor has not been made.

SEC. 603. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 604. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay the salary of any Federal employee who is finally convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.

SEC. 605. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, a grant, the salary of, or any remuneration whatever to any individual applying for admission, attending, employed by, teaching at or doing research at an institution of higher education who has engaged in conduct on or after August 1, 1969, which involves the use of (or the assistance to others in the use of) force or the threat of force or the seizure of property under the control of an institution of higher education, to require or prevent the availability of certain curriculum, or to prevent the faculty, administrative officials or students in such institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies at such institution.

SEC. 606. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be made available for the collection and preparation of budgetary information which will not be available to the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House of Representatives.】 (Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

This appropriation finances the costs of policy development and central supervisory and coordinating functions necessary for the overall planning and direction of the Department. It covers the immediate secretarial offices as well as those of the assistant secretaries and the general counsel. Also covered are staff assistance and supervision of general management and administration in the Department. The 1978 decrease results from the establishment of a separate account in 1978 for the Materials Transportation Bureau.

The Department of Transportation Act of 1966 assigns to the Secretary, broad responsibilities for the development and coordination of national transportation policies and programs. This appropriation finances those research activities and studies which directly support the Secretary's responsibilities and which can more effectively or appropriately be conducted in the Office of the Secretary than by the operating administrations within the Department. The program is carried out primarily through contracts with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit research organizations, and private firms.

1. Transportation policy and planning.—This research provides the foundation for development of transportation policy, for coordination of national level transportation planning, and for dealing with such difficult issues as regulatory modernization and energy conservation.

2. University research.—This research is designed to assure that resources of the higher education community are effectively brought to bear on transportation problems. Another aim is to encourage greater involvement of universities and colleges with the Department, State and local governments, and the transportation industry.

3. Transportation systems development and technology.—In general, projects are designed to complement research and development programs of the operating administrations and to stimulate industry efforts to advance transportation technology. In 1978, research and development activities will emphasize ways to conserve energy used in transportation, to develop multimodal and intermodal systems and technology, and to promote environmental and ecological improvements.

4. Special programs.—Projects provide technical studies and other data in support of departmental effort in the areas of safety program coordination, transportation security, consumer and environmental affairs, and facilitation of passenger and freight transportation. Emphasis in 1978 will be on the development of greater information for larger environmental impact assessment capability and improved safety oversight and security techniques.

The working capital fund finances common administrative services which are centrally performed in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department.

Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all operating expenses, including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by the operating administrations and offices being served.

The activities of the working capital fund have been consolidated as follows:

Publishing and graphics activities include publishing and graphic program, still photographic services, and visuals services.

Support services activities include travel services and interest fund; central employment information; warehouse management; parking management; chauffeur services; mail and messenger service; management information center; and facilities management.

Transportation computer activities include computer time-sharing services; and the Transportation Computer Center.

The fund was established to facilitate the operations of the Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge, Mass. The Center is funded from advances received from the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations in the Department.

The Transportation Systems Center serves as a research, analysis, and technical development resource for the Office of the Secretary and the operating administrations. Its planned projects for 1978 are grouped into the following DOT R. & D. objectives:

Modernize regulation and legislation.—TSC activity is concentrating on the analysis of Federal regulation of the motor carrier industry. The rest of the effort is to assess the effect of new technology on all regulated transportation operations.

Increase efficiency and service.—This area involves air, rail, and urban systems. TSC is especially involved in analysis and development of new technology in automation, performance improvement techniques, and system demonstrations.

Improve safety and security.—TSC is the primary source of rail safety technology for the Department. Technological support in airport surface traffic control, and wind shear comprise the remaining effort in the safety and security area.

Lessen unfavorable environment impacts.—The major thrusts involve multimodal and cross-modal considerations of noise abatement and control technologies, environmental pollution assessment, as well as environmental analysis technique and measurement projects.

Minimize adverse impacts of energy constraints.—This effort stresses technology applications in the areas of energy policy, conservation technology alternatives, and impact assessment. The Center is also developing transportation energy efficiency information and performing fuel economy monitoring in support of DOT's mission.

Increase knowledge base.—This effort is concentrated in the general collation, standardization, and dissemination of information bases including the National Summary of Transportation Statistics. This involves statistics and computer applications. All TSC projects contribute to this information. In addition, TSC performs research, development, and demonstrations impacting both urban and intercity transportation. TSC serves as one of DOT's main focal points for the sharing of planning, economic, and technical data with State and local governments, and as appropriate, with private industry.

The Coast Guard employs multipurpose vessels, aircraft, and shore units, strategically located along the coasts and inland waterways of the United States and in selected areas overseas to carry out its duties. Operating expenses funds are used to defray the expense of rebuilding through the use of replacements, alterations, and restorations when they involve less than 75% of the original facility. They are also used to defray expenses of improvements through modification, addition, or expansion where the estimated cost of a project is $75 thousand or less.

1. Search and rescue.—Most Coast Guard operating facilities have the capacity for promoting safety on or over the high seas and on waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The Coast Guard performs acts necessary to rescue and aid persons and save property placed in jeopardy due to marine and aircraft accidents, floods, and ice conditions.

2. Aids to navigation.—A network of manned and unmanned aids to navigation is maintained along our coasts and on our inland waterways to insure the safe passage of the mariner. Loran stations are operated in the United States and abroad to serve the needs of the armed services and marine and air commerce. Administrative control is exercised over the construction, maintenance, and operation of bridges across the navigable waters of the United States to insure that the safe passage of navigation is not unreasonably interfered with.

3. Marine safety.—The Coast Guard insures compliance with Federal statutes and regulations pertaining to the merchant marine industry by reviewing plans and specifications for the construction or alteration of merchant vessels; by periodic inspections; by licensing; and by setting standards, procedures, and practices under which merchant marine personnel are licensed and regulated. The Coast Guard minimizes the risk of fatalities, injuries, and property damage associated with the operation of recreational boats through a boat safety standards program, boater information, education and compliance programs, support of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, and increasing financial and technical support of the individual State boating safety programs.

5. Ocean operations.—Maritime law enforcement is accomplished by cutters and aircraft conducting patrols to enforce international agreements and Federal laws on the high seas and waters over which the U.S. exercises jurisdiction. Ice operations (polar and domestic) are performed by specially constructed icebreakers or ice-strengthened cutters which operate in support of Coast Guard programs, the requirements of other agencies, and in the facilitation of commerce. Marine science activities, which include the International Ice Patrol, are carried out on a cooperative basis with other Government agencies.

6. Military readiness.—The Coast Guard operates as a service in the Navy in time of war or national emergency at the direction of the President. During peacetime, an effective state of military preparedness is maintained through individual and unit training, by joint naval training exercises, or by Coast Guard single and multiship operations.

This appropriation provides for the major acquisition, construction, and improvement of vessels, aircraft, shore units, and aids to navigation, excluding minor acquisitions, alterations, additions, renewals, and replacements where estimated costs of a project are $75 thousand or less, or where renewals and replacements involve less than 75% of the original facility. Most of these facilities are multimission in nature and are included below under their primary mission area.

1. Search and rescue.—In 1978, 30 search and rescue boats and 1 replacement tug will be constructed along with continued improvement and modernization of selected boats and vessels; 12 medium-range surveillance aircraft and 10 short-range recovery helicopters will be procured. Construction, replacement, and/or renovation programs at selected shoresites and facilities are also provided for.

2. Aids to navigation.—Renovation and habitability improvements will be made to two aged buoy tenders; improvements to existing aids to navigation; and continuation of the lighthouse automation and modernization program and loran-C implementation plans are funded by this activity.

3. Marine safety.—Efforts to facilitate the marine safety mission will center on the procurement of small boats and renovation and construction programs at selected shore sites and facilities.

4. Marine environmental protection.—This activity provides for the procurement of 10 32-foot port safety boats and continuation of programs to eliminate discharge of waste from Coast Guard vessels.

5. Ocean operations.—This activity continues the high- and medium-endurance cutter replacement program initiated in 1977, with procurement of two cutters in 1978.

6. Military readiness.—This activity, like the above, continues the cutter replacement procurement program.

7. General support.—Major effort under this activity will be to provide for the construction or purchase of housing for Coast Guard personnel and their dependents where adequate living accommodations are unavailable.

The Coast Guard Reserve training program's objective is to provide qualified individuals and trained units to be available for active duty in time of war or national emergency. This objective is accomplished through formal training and augmenting regular forces in performance of their peacetime missions during domestic emergencies and periods of routine as well as peak operations. Funds requested will provide for a Ready Reserve of 21,000, including a Selected Reserve of 11,700.

Direct program.—1. Initial training.—This activity encompasses direct costs of initial training for two program categories of non-prior service trainees. The first category involves those who perform approximately 30 weeks initial training comprised of recruit training and attendance at a class A school. The second category involves training for those reservists whose performance of initial training is split between two consecutive summer periods. The first period, 2½ months, consists of recruit training. The second period, 2½ to 4 months, consists of specialty training and/or on-the-job training with the length of the period varying with the type of training.

2. Continuing training.—Direct costs of officer and enlisted drills and annual active duty for training are programmed under this activity.

3. Operation and maintenance of training facilities.—All costs for the operation and maintenance of Reserve training facilities are programmed under this activity. Included are the costs of a training vessel, the prorated share of the cost of joint usage of Coast Guard and other Armed Forces facilities, the cost of providing stationkeeper support to the organized Reserve training units, and the procurement of training aids and facilities (under $75 thousand).

4. Administration.—This activity encompasses all administrative costs of the Reserve training program.

Reimbursable program.—5. Miscellaneous services for other accounts.—The Coast Guard performs functions related to mobilization for the Selective Service System for which reimbursement is received.

1. Search and rescue.—Emphasis will be placed on the improvement of search and rescue operation effectiveness, including; helicopter search and detection equipment, search planning improvements, surface and underwater rescue techniques, operations center improvements, ship-helicopter operating limits, and hypothermia studies.

2. Aids to navigation.—Activities are intended to reduce the potential for pollution-causing incidents and to improve buoy systems with the development of more accurate positioning techniques and hardware with reduced operating costs. Applied research will be continued to increase the capability, improve signal availability, and increase the utilization of loran-C in restricted waters. Also, vessel traffic management techniques will be improved and standardized in congested ports and waterway areas.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION—Continued

3. Marine safety.—Commercial vessel safety research will be conducted to minimize deaths, personal injury, and loss or damage caused by collisions, rammings, groundings, fire, and explosion. Knowledge attained from this research will support the establishment of regulations and standards designed to prevent vessel casualties. Recreational boating safety activities will continue applied research of boat and equipment safety standards, operator requirements, safe powering, and collision avoidance.

4. Marine environmental protection.—Emphasis will be on: (a) development of prototype hardware procedures, and information for detection, response, and abatement of oil and hazardous substance discharges within U.S. waters; and (b) providing a technical basis for regulations and procedures to insure safety of construction and operation of deepwater ports with emphasis on spills control, prevention, and cleanup. Vessel traffic service development will concentrate on improving equipment performance and operational effectiveness; developing firefighting guidelines and techniques; and providing deepwater port research on oil control and recovery.

5. Ocean operations.—Program emphasis will continue on the improvement of icebreaking technology and ice research. Another major activity will be the development of plans for improved monitoring and surveillance systems for Coast Guard enforcement of laws and treaties including the Fisheries Conservation and Management Act of 1976.

6. Program support.—This activity will provide for broad program research to identify, monitor, and develop technologies that may contribute to improved productivity and effectiveness. This area also provides for administrative and project management personnel at headquarters, and for the operation, maintenance, and personnel costs of the research and development laboratory facilities at Groton, Conn., and Mobile, Ala.

This fund insures immediate cleanup of oil or other hazardous polluting substances spilled into the navigable waters of the United States, adjoining shorelines, or waters of the contiguous zone. The fund is used when a spill occurs and the responsible owner or operator of a vessel, of an onshore facility, or of an offshore facility does not accomplish immediate cleanup with his own resources. Expenditures from the fund are later reimbursed by the responsible owner or operator.

The Coast Guard cadet fund is utilized by the Superintendent of the Coast Guard Academy to receive, plan, control, and expend personal funds of Coast Guard cadets. By use of the fund each cadet is assured funds to meet personal expenses while at the Academy and an adequate balance in his account at graduation for officer outfits, civilian clothing, and graduation leave expenses. The fund also receives and expends funds of the Coast Guard Academy Athletic Association.

The Coast Guard surcharge collections, sales of commissary stores fund is used to finance expenses incurred in connection with the operation of the Coast Guard commissary stores at Coast Guard Base, Governors Island, N.Y.; Coast Guard Training Center, Petaluma, Calif; and Coast Guard Base, Kodiak, Alaska. Revenue is derived from a surcharge placed on sales to authorized store patrons (14 U.S.C. 487).

Note.—Excludes $498 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to "Salaries and expenses, Department of State." Comparable amounts for 1976 ($421 thousand) and TQ ($118 thousand), are included above.

1. Operations.—(a) Operation of traffic control system.—This activity covers the operation of a national system of air traffic management in the United States and its possessions. With the aid of radar, communications, and other facilities, traffic management personnel at 25 centers monitor and control en route flights of civil and military aircraft conducted under instrument conditions to assure safety and to expedite the flow of traffic. Control towers are operated at 426 major civil airports to guide traffic movements on and in the vicinity of the airports. Some 328 domestic and international flight service stations transmit weather and other information to pilots and relay traffic control data between ground controllers and pilots. The increase in 1978 will provide for additional staffing in the controller work force to handle workload growth and to operate newly commissioned air traffic control facilities.

TRENDS IN VOLUME OF AIR TRAFFIC

Year:	Landings and takeoffs at airports with FAA towers (in millions)	Instrument operations at airports with FAA traffic control service (in millions)	Revenue passenger miles (in billions)
1972	53.6	19.4	144.2
1973	53.9	22.0	157.9
1974	56.8	24.1	165.0
1975	59.0	26.2	159.0
1976	62.5	28.1	169.5
197Q estimate	16.5	8.8	46.2
1977 estimate	66.6	30.9	184.8
1978 estimate	69.8	33.3	195.0

(b) Installation and materiel services.—This activity covers procurement, contracting and materiel management programs; supply support and leased communications services for the traffic control system; and supply support for agency aircraft except for aircraft related to the research and development programs, and lease costs for space for which payment is made to General Services Administration (GSA). Major increases in 1978 are to provide supply support, leased communications services for air traffic control and air navigation facilities, and for increased costs associated with space rental.

(c) Maintenance of traffic control system.—This activity covers the direction and engineering services related to the maintenance, improvement, and modification of facilities and equipment in the traffic control system; and the technical operation and maintenance of a national network of air navigation aids and traffic control facilities in the United States and its possessions. Major increases under this activity provide additional field staffing for the maintenance of existing facilities included in the National Airspace System and for new facilities authorized under prior year establishment programs which are planned for commissioning in 1978.

(d) Administration of flight standards program.—This activity promotes safety of flight of civil aircraft in air commerce by assuring the airworthiness of aircraft; the competence of airmen; the adequacy of flight procedures and air operations; the evaluation of in-flight facility performance for compliance with prescribed standards; and the safe operation and the effective development, utilization, and maintenance of the FAA's aircraft fleet. Resources are also included under this activity for the conduct of the Federal Government's civil aviation security program.

(e) Administration of medical programs.—This activity covers the development of regulations governing the physical and mental fitness of airmen and other persons whose health affects safety in flight; the application of these medical standards through the physical examination of applicants for new or periodic renewal of airman medical certification; the designation and training of over 7,500 private physicians in the special requirements of aviation medicine who will perform the physical examinations of airman applicants; the development and supervision of an occupational health program for agency personnel; the conduct of medical education activities among airmen; the administration of an aviation medical research program, the projects costs of which are financed under Research engineering and development and the Facilities, engineering and development appropriations.

(f) Development direction.—This activity covers the planning, direction, and evaluation of the engineering and development program, the direct project costs of which are financed under the Research, engineering and development and Facilities, engineering and development appropriations.

(g) Administration of airports program.—This activity includes the following work programs: (1) administration of a grants-in-aid program for airport planning and development, including the administration of a general aviation State demonstration program; (2) preparation and maintenance of a revised national airport system plan; (3) development and application of airport engineering and safety standards; (4) collection, processing, and dissemination of airport data; and (5) safety certification of airports which serve Civil Aeronautics Board certificated air carriers.

1. Engineering and development—(a) Aircraft safety.—This subactivity covers the development of regulations for an accident prevention program designed to promote flight safety of civil aircraft by assuring the design, flight performance, and airworthiness of aircraft and development of systems and devices to prevent and deter sabotage in the civil air transportation system.

(b) Aviation medicine.—This subactivity provides for conducting an aeromedical research and development program to identify and eliminate those physical, physiological, and psychological factors which may jeopardize flight safety.

(c) Environment.—Principal efforts provided for under this subactivity are the development of data to support rulemaking and to minimize the undesired environmental effects on the public attributable to the air transportation system.

2. Facilities and equipment.—This activity provides for training equipment used primarily by flight inspectors in keeping abreast of the latest technology in the areas of their responsibility and for the purpose of maintaining proficiency in the performance of their duties. Also included are procurement and modification of nonflight inspection aircraft and improvement and replacement of navigation equipment.

This appropriation finances maintenance, operations, management, and capital outlay costs for equipment and minor facility projects at the federally owned Washington National and Dulles International Airports which serve the Metropolitan Washington area.

The operation of the airports is conducted on a commercial basis with revenues derived from landing fees, concession activity, and lease arrangements being deposited as receipts in the general fund of the Treasury. The direct operating costs and capital outlays are financed by direct appropriation.

Combined revenues are expected to be $31.1 million in 1978. The operating profit in 1978 is expected to be $8,421 thousand at Washington National and $1,773 thousand at Dulles International for a total operating profit of $10,194 thousand. However, the deduction of $9,566 thousand in depreciation and interest for the two airports results in a net profit of $628 thousand.

The rate structures and concession arrangements are established so as to assure the recovery of operating costs, interest expenses, and an appropriate return on the Government's investment during the useful life of the airports.

The following table reflects increase in activity at the airports:

The projects in the construction program for Washington National and Dulles International Airports for 1978 are designed to accomplish the following four objectives:

1. Airport development.—At Dulles International Airport, funds are included for the design of an additional general aviation apron.

2. Upgrade airport facilities and correct deficiencies.—Due to the impact of growth in the air industry and changes in technology, existing facilities require expansion or replacement to correct deficiencies in load capacity or to upgrade performance through modernization. At National, funds are programmed to design the reconstruction of taxiway A including lights, rehabilitate and improve the terminal air-conditioning system, rehabilitate and strengthen the south hangar apron, improve the storm drainage system, widen the holding apron for runway 36 and runway 18, and conduct a study of a new maintenance facility. At Dulles, funds are provided to replace the Solari system and install baggage claim signs.

3. Rehabilitate existing facilities.—Existing facilities require periodic rehabilitation due to deterioration from age and usage. At National, funds are requested to rehabilitate the main apron, replace steam lines to the north hangars, and reroof hangars. At Dulles, funds are requested to replace concrete panels and to design the rehabilitation of runway 12/30.

4. Energy conservation.—In response to the multiyear program to increase energy efficiency at Federal facilities, funds are designated at National to conduct an energy savings study and implement projects, and at Dulles to conduct an energy savings study and automate utility controls.

The fund currently provides direct support for the aviation war risk insurance program authorized under title XIII of the FAA Act.

In addition to the premium program, binders are also issued to cover aircraft, persons, and property. These binders would provide war risk insurance in war-time and under certain situations short of war. Also available are policies which provide like coverage for U.S. air carrier aircraft used in connection with certain Government contract operations entered into by the Department of Defense (DOD) and Department of State (DOS). There exists indemnity agreements whereunder the DOD and DOS agree to reimburse the Department of Transportation for all losses paid to air carriers sustaining damage to their aircraft by an insured peril while said aircraft is operating under a contract to the interested Department.

Administration costs are out of fee receipts (49 U.S.C. 1531, as amended 75 Stat. 210) and interests earned through authorized investments. The authorized staffing consists of one aviation insurance program officer and one secretary stenographer.

Unfunded contingent liability as of October 1, 1976, is estimated at $56 billion. This amount includes hull insurance and personal and property liability on approximately 290 aircraft insured under this program.

The Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-258, 84 Stat. 219) as amended by the Airport and Airway Development Act Amendments of 1976 (Public Law 94-353, 90 Stat. 871), provides for the transfer of revenue from the general fund to the Airport and Airway Trust Fund. This revenue is derived from the aviation fuel tax and certain other taxes paid by airport and airway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amount to be so transferred. In turn, annual appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for Federal-aid airports and airways.

The status of the fund is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Airport and Airway Development Act Amendments of 1976 (Public Law 94-353) authorizes the Secretary of Transportation to incur obligations for airport development grants and airport planning grants for 1976 through 1980. The Department of Transportation, through the Federal Aviation Administration, will continue to provide grants to airport sponsors to assist them in developing civil airports or in bringing existing airports to standards compatible with the present and future needs of civil aviation. The full amount of 1978 entitlement funds for grants-in-aid to airports will be available for distribution. An obligation level of $475,000 thousand is reflected in this submission.

FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT (AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

For necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for; for acquisition, establishment, and improvement by contract or purchase, and hire of air navigation and experimental facilities, including initial acquisition of necessary sites by lease or grant; engineering and service testing including construction of test facilities and acquisition of necessary sites by lease or grant; construction and furnishing of quarters and related accommodations for officers and employees of the Federal Aviation Administration stationed at remote localities where such accommodations are not available; [$200,000,000] $212,600,000, to be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund, to remain available until September 30, [1979] 1980: Provided, That there may be credited to this appropriation funds received from States, counties, municipalities, other public authorities, and private sources, for expenses incurred in the establishment and modernization of air navigation facilities: Provided further, That no part of the foregoing appropriation shall be available for the construction of a new wind tunnel, or to purchase any land for or in connection with the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center, or to decommission in excess of five flight service stations. (Federal Aviation Act of 1958, 49 U.S.C. 1301 et seq.; 49 U.S.C. 1151-1160, 1507, 1701; Public Law 94-353; Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

Under this appropriation, the Federal airway system is improved by the installation of new equipment and the construction and modernization of facilities to keep pace with aeronautical activity. The appropriation also finances major capital investments required by other agency programs such as aircraft for facility flight inspection and training, and experimental facilities for the engineering and development program. The 1978 estimates will carry forward the program to increase the capacity of the airway system and make its operation safer and more efficient. It also includes the initial funding required to implement a major program to replace tube-type, very high frequency radio range systems with solid-state equipment. Operating costs of facilities procured under this appropriation are financed under the Operations appropriation. The budget activities include the following facilities and functions:

1. Air route traffic control centers.—(a) Long range radar provides FAA air traffic controllers with information on aircraft positions, at distances up to 185 miles, (b) automation equipment includes computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling en route air traffic, (c) other center facilities cover the installation of equipment to provide communications and related services.

2. Airport traffic control towers.—(a) Terminal area radar aids traffic control in the vicinity of airports by displaying aircraft positions at distances up to 60 miles, (b) terminal area automation includes computers and other devices which aid controllers in handling terminal air traffic, (c) other tower facilities include the establishment, improvement, and relocation of airport traffic control tower facilities.

3. Flight service facilities.—(a) Domestic flight service stations and associated facilities provide flight assistance service to pilots, (b) international flight service stations provide long-distance communications for transoceanic flights.

4. Air navigation facilities.—(a) Very high frequency omnidirectional radio ranges equipped with tactical air navigation capabilities (VORTAC) are standard short-range navigation aids used to define airways and air routes and to provide distance and direction information to pilots, (b) low and medium frequency facilities include radio beacons and ranges which provide pilots with direction and weather information, (c) instrument landing systems which provide pilots with direction, distance, and glide slope information necessary for making safe approaches to runways under poor visibility conditions, distance measuring equipment, and visual lighting aids which will assist pilots in making final approaches to airport runways, particularly in areas where terrain and other environmental factors pose potential hazards to safe landings.

5. Housing, utilities, and miscellaneous facilities.—This activity includes general facility support requirements which apply to a wide range of FAA installations.

6. Aircraft and related equipment.—This activity provides for facility flight inspection, including procurement of aircraft and avionics equipment to inspect the accuracy and other characteristics of navigation and traffic control aids from the air, and flight inspection training simulation equipment. It also includes the replacement of obsolete aircraft used in the engineering and development programs

7. Development, test, and evaluation facilities.—This activity provides for the improvement of plant and facilities at the National Aviation Facilities Experimental Center in Atlantic City, N.J. It also includes the procurement, rehabilitation, or replacement of equipment for use in the engineering and development program.

The FAA conducts engineering and development programs to improve the national air traffic control system and to increase progressively its capacity to meet air traffic demands of the future. The effort to increase capacity is based on exploiting current technology and applying system engineering techniques to the development and integration of new equipment into the total system. The Agency also administers aviation medical research aimed at increasing the personal effectiveness of traffic controllers.

These programs are conducted under the direction of the Agency's technical personnel, through contracts with qualified private firms, universities, individuals and other Government agencies.

1. Air traffic control.—This provides for improving the airway system by applying existing technology to air traffic control problems to keep the current system operating safely and by making system improvements to increase the capacity of the current system. These improvements include the surveillance of aircraft by tracking radars and control center processing of flight information received from pilots, airline dispatchers, flight service stations, and the surveillance system through a national communications network. The high-speed or real-time, computerized processing of this data for traffic controllers is a key to increasing system capacity. This traffic control program also provides for increasing the capacity of major airports to handle larger, faster passenger aircraft safely and efficiently. These increases in airport capacity will be achieved by the development of new, computerized airport traffic control systems which will enable more efficient metering and spacing of terminal traffic under all weather conditions.

2. Navigation.—This provides for modernization, expansion, and improvement of the common navigation system facilities in the United States and in overseas areas where international agreements require U.S. participation. This capability ranks in importance with the radar surveillance of aircraft in the effort to increase system capacity. It requires the development of new navigation techniques and sophisticated landing systems capable of handling increased air traffic in adverse weather conditions.

3. Aviation weather.—This provides for a program, coordinated with the Departments of Defense and Commerce, to modernize the acquisition, processing, dissemination, and display of weather information tailored to the needs of aviation users. Development of systems for the detection and avoidance of wind shears is also included in this activity.

4. Aviation medicine.—This provides for conducting aeromedical research directed toward identifying and eliminating these physiological and psychological factors inimical to personnel engaged in operating the traffic control system.

Certain costs of maintaining air navigation facilities, formerly 100% financed from the general fund, are to be reimbursed to the Operations appropriation from the Airport and airway trust fund. The programs funded are limited to the direct costs of flight checking and maintaining air navigation facilities. The expected level of 1978 trust fund receipts will permit payment of these costs as well as the costs of airport development, airway facilities investment, and research programs without drawing on accumulated prior year balances.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

Title 23, U.S.C. ("Highways") and other supporting legislation provide authority for the various programs of the Federal Highway Administration designed to improve highways throughout the Nation.

In summary, the 1978 budget contemplates $6,744.2 million in obligations and $7,162.4 million in outlays.

Obligations incurred provide the best measure of program activity in the various accounts of the Federal Highway Administration. The following table compares 1978 direct obligations with those of prior years (in millions of dollars):

This appropriation provides for the development and execution of policy and programs for accomplishment of the motor carrier safety mission in accordance with the Department of Transportation Act, the Interstate Commerce Act, and the Explosives and Combustibles Act. In 1978, efforts will be made to fully implement the newly revised hazardous materials regulatory program, increase noise control, and provide knowledge to improve safety regulation of interstate trucks and buses, consistent with the Government-wide effort of regulatory reform. Increases are provided for research and development, especially for economic studies on safety rulemaking, and for additional motor carrier safety inspectors.

This appropriation provides grant assistance for projects initiated pursuant to the provisions of the Highway Beautification Act of 1965, together with the Federal-Aid Highway Acts of 1968 and 1970, as amended. Activities funded include junkyard screening and removal, control of commercial advertising along highways, and program administration.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1976 removed landscaping and scenic enhancement from funding under this account. Instead, this activity is eligible for funding as part of the construction of Federal-aid highways. Obligations will be incurred for landscaping and scenic enhancement within this account only to the extent that unobligated balances are available from prior year appropriations.

The United States, in cooperation with the Republic of Panama and the Government of Colombia, is participating in the construction of approximately 250 miles of highway through the Darien Gap—an incomplete link in the Inter-American Highway. The project has been halted by a Federal court ruling respecting the need to fully evaluate all involved environmental issues, especially the potential spread of hoof-and-mouth disease. No funding will be requested in 1978 pending the court's decision on the Department of Transportation's environmental impact statement. It is anticipated that the Department of Transportation will fulfill all requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 by 1978.

Grants are authorized by 23 U.S.C. 215(a) to assist the territorial governments of the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa in the improvement of their highway systems. Assistance is provided for an arterial highway system, and necessary interisland connectors, as designated by each territorial governor and approved by the Secretary of Transportation.

The 1976 Highway Act also made funding available to the territories for the high-hazard location and roadside obstacles programs. A program level of $5,600 thousand is anticipated in 1978, the same as in 1977.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970, and the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973, as amended, authorized select projects for the purpose of protecting, eliminating, re-locating or otherwise modifying ground-level rail-highway crossings.

1. Railroad-highway crossings.—This program provides for demonstration projects in 19 cities. The planned program level of $18.1 million in 1977 will utilize all unobligated balances of appropriated funds and will allow for completion of preliminary engineering on most projects as well as some right-of-way acquisition and construction. A program level of $5 million is requested in 1978 in order to complete remaining preliminary engineering.

2. Rail crossings.—This program provides for demonstration projects along the route of the Northeast Corridor rail line between Washington, D.C., and Boston, Mass., and in and around Greenwood, S.C. The program level requested for 1978 will be used to continue preliminary engineering and/or construction of the projects.

OFF-SYSTEM RAILWAY-HIGHWAY CROSSINGS

For necessary expenses for the elimination of hazards of railway-highway crossings on roads other than those on any Federal-aid system in accordance with the provisions of section 203 of the "Highway Safety Act of 1976," to remain available until expended, $25,000,000. (90 Stat. 452.)

About 175,000 public railroad-highway grade crossings are located on roads off the Federal-aid highway system. The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1976 authorized a new program to provide 90% Federal grant assistance to States for the elimination of railway-highway grade crossings hazards on off-system roads. Projects include crossing separation, relocation, and/or installation of gates or flashing lights.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized the construction and reconstruction of the Great River Road by 10 States bordering the Mississippi River. A single continuous two-lane route has been tentatively designated which will run from Lake Itasca, Minn., to Venice, La. Program levels for 1977 and 1978 will focus on preliminary engineering, environmental studies, roadside rest areas, acquisition of areas of archeological, scientific, or historical importance, and necessary easements for scenic purposes.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized $58.67 million for the reconstruction of the Canadian highway link (called the "Alaska Highway") from the Alaskan border to Haines Junction and the Haines Cutoff Highway from Haines Junction to the south Alaskan border. Total 1977 and prior year appropriations amounting to $19.825 million are not available for obligation until an agreement between the United States and Canada is reached and until completion of the necessary environmental impact statement.

The Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974 provided $200 million in contract authorization for construction, reconstruction, and improvement of roads not on the Federal-aid highway system. Following a deduction for administration and research, the funds authorized were apportioned to the States based upon statutory formula. It is anticipated that all funds authorized for construction will be fully obligated by the end of 1978.

The Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974 authorized a program to construct or reconstruct access highways to public recreation areas on lakes in order to accommodate present and projected traffic density.

The 1976 appropriation of $10 million, together with the 1977 transfer of funds from Darien Gap Highway of $4,767 thousand, will fully fund the 70% Federal share of the eight projects which have been approved under this program. No further funding is required.

The 1976 Federal-Aid Highway Act authorized 100% Federal grant funding for the construction and reconstruction of any public highway bridge across any Federal public works project where there has been a substantial change in the requirements and costs of such highway or bridge since the public works project was authorized, and where such increased costs would work an undue hardship upon any one State.

The 1977 Department of Transportation Appropriations Act includes an appropriation of $35 million for this program. Subsequently, funds were allocated for projects in Mississippi, Alabama, and South Dakota. In order to avoid the continuation of programs which support narrow categories of projects, thereby losing the benefit of State prioritizing mechanisms among a wider range of potential highway projects, no further funding is requested for this program in 1978.

Financial assistance is made available to States for construction and improvements on the National System of Interstate and Defense Highways and for urban and rural transportation programs. The Federal Government pays 90% of the costs for interstate projects and 70% of the costs of most other Federal-aid projects. The Federal share of project costs is increased in those States with large areas of public domain.

1. Interstate System.—The current estimated cost to complete the Interstate System is $35 billion. As of September 30, 1976, 37,869 miles of the 42,500-mile system were open to traffic. At State and local option, authorizations for nonessential segments deleted from the system may be utilized for mass transit improvements on bus and rail systems.

2. Noninterstate program.—Provides financial assistance to States for highway construction on the primary and secondary systems, the priority primary system, and the urban system. Also provides financial assistance for forest highways, public lands highways, the urban high-density traffic program, and other federally aided highway programs.

3. Construction safety programs.—Provides financial assistance to States for safety improvements to the highway systems. Programs that may be pursued at State and local option are projects for high-hazard locations, elimination of roadside obstacles, rail-highway crossings, bridge reconstruction and replacement, and pavement marking demonstrations.

4. Administration and research.—Provides for executive and general administrative and research expenses of Federal-aid highways. These funds are expended under the Limitation on general operating expenses.

5. Other.—Provides for emergency relief and bridges over Federal dams.

The $6,545 million program level proposed for 1978 is $458 million over the average $6,087 million estimated to be achieved in 1976 and 1977. The 1978 level recognizes that States require substantial, stable Federal assistance in order to permit orderly planning and phased construction of interstate and other highways.

This limitation provides for the salaries and expenses of the Federal Highway Administration required to conduct and administer Federal-aid highways, and off-system roads. Commencing in 1977, administrative expenses for the highway beautification and territorial highways programs were also included within the limitation.

Administrative services for other programs of the Federal Highway Administration, including highway-related safety grants, and for road construction programs of other agencies are initially financed from this limitation with reimbursements being collected from those programs. In addition, the appropriation for highway safety research and development is transferred to and administered through this limitation. The limitation does not cover administrative expenses of Darien Gap Highway and motor carrier safety which are funded by their respective appropriations, although an amount is transferred from motor carrier safety to this account to cover their share of the cost of undistributed overhead.

1. Program direction and coordination.—(a) Provides overall direction and coordination of the highway transportation program; (b) provides legal services for all programs; (c) develops and administers programs for continuing audit of claims against Federal funds and a thorough investigation of alleged irregularities; (d) plans and directs public affairs programs; and (e) develops, recommends policies and standards, and reassures compliance with the civil rights and equal opportunity procedures within the Federal Highway Administration and by recipients of grants-in-aid administered by the Federal Highway Administration.

2. General program support.—(a) Formulates policy, multiyear and long-range plans and goals for highway programs and develops data and analyses for current and long-range programming; (b) conducts direct and contract research and development relating to traffic operations, new construction techniques, and the social and environmental aspects of highways; (c) provides administrative support services for all elements of the Federal Highway Administration; and (d) provides on-the-job training for employees of the Federal Highway Administration and training opportunities for highway-related personnel.

3. Highway programs.—(a) Provides engineering guidance to Federal and State agencies and to foreign governments, and conducts a program to encourage use of modern traffic engineering procedures to increase the vehicle-carrying capacity of existing highways and urban streets; (b) assists States, other Federal agencies, and certain foreign countries in right-of-way acquisition and develops procedures for highway location selection and consideration of environmental impacts; and (c) finances construction skill training programs for disadvantaged workers hired by contractors on federally aided highway projects.

4. Field operations.—(a) Provides staff advisory and support services in field offices of the Federal Highway Administration, and (b) provides program and engineering supervision of the several highway programs through 9 regional and 52 division offices.

5. Highway beautification.—Provides for monitoring of program progress, policy formulation, and assistance and guidance to the States in the removal of billboards, screening or removal of junkyards, and landscaping and scenic enhancement of highway rights-of-way.

6. Territorial highways.—Provides for planning and engineering guidance to Guam, American Samoa, and the Virgin Islands in the development of their highway systems.

The Highway Safety Act of 1970 authorized grants to States and communities for implementing and maintaining highway-related safety standards. Funding was one-third Federal funds and two-thirds highway trust funds. The Highway Safety Act of 1973 provided additional authorizations which were entirely trust funded and extended grant eligibility to Indian reservations and the three U.S. territories.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1970 authorized $65 million for the reconstruction of the federally owned section of the Baltimore-Washington Parkway to six lanes. Following reconstruction, the highway will be transferred to the State of Maryland and placed on the Federal-aid primary system. Currently, an environmental impact analysis is being performed and public hearings are being held. Proposals for the provision of additional funding will await the findings from these evaluative processes.

The 1976 Highway Act authorized $25 million to demonstrate the feasibility of reducing the time required to construct a highway project that is necessitated due to changes in population or traffic flow caused by the construction of other Federal projects.

The 1977 appropriations were allocated for an interstate highway interchange near Everett, Pa. An appropriation and program level of $5,000 thousand is requested for 1978 to complete this project and terminate this specialized, categorical program.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized the development and construction as a parkway, the Highland Scenic Highway within West Virginia. In 1976, $15 million was appropriated to be available until expended. In accordance with the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1976, and the period ending September 30, 1976 (Public Law 94-134), the funds are being transferred to the National Park Service.

This account reimburses certain parent accounts financed from general funds of the Treasury for the Highway trust fund portion of costs in carrying out the following programs:

- National scenic and recreational highway.*—The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized the construction and reconstruction of the Great River Road by the 10 States bordering the Mississippi River. A single continuous route has been tentatively designated which will run from Lake Itasca in Minnesota to Venice, La.
- Railroad-highway crossings demonstration projects.*—Various legislation authorized demonstration projects in 19 cities for the purpose of protecting or eliminating certain public ground-level rail-highway crossings, relocating railroad lines from central areas, and the construction of overpasses and underpasses.
- Rail crossings—demonstration projects.*—The Federal Aid Highway Act of 1970 authorized two demonstration projects. One project is to eliminate public ground-level rail-highway crossings along the route of the Northeast corridor high-speed rail line between Washington, D.C., and Boston, Mass. The other project is to eliminate or protect certain rail-highway crossings in the vicinity of Greenwood, S.C. and to relocate rail lines bisecting the town proper.

4. Rural highway public transportation program.—The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 authorized demonstration projects for encouraging the development, improvement, and use of public mass transit systems operating vehicles within rural areas.

This appropriation, established in 1975, seeks to identify, correct, and evaluate those critical elements which contribute to loss of life, disabling injuries, and property damage on American highways. The emphasis of research is to provide workable and timely solutions to a set of critical safety problems. A program level of $9.0 million is planned for 1978 to meet the demands for solutions to urgent safety problems such as traffic management in construction and maintenance zones and new longer range initiatives in safety hardware, driver aids, and measuring system performance.

Funds appropriated for this account are transferred to the general operating expenses limitation where the program is administered in conjunction with other research and development programs of the Federal Highway Administration.

The Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974 authorized 70% Federal grant assistance for reconstruction or replacement of 37 two-lane bridges on the "Overseas Highway". This 110-mile highway is the ground transportation link between Key West and Key Largo in the State of Florida.

An appropriation of $8,000 thousand is requested for this program in 1978. An additional $8,000 thousand is expected to be available from priority primary funds, a separate authorization within the Federal-Aid highway account. This request is contingent upon the State of Florida financing all costs for the Long Key and Seven Mile Bridges from sources other than this appropriation.

The Highway Revenue Act of 1956, as amended, provides for the transfer from the General fund to the Highway trust fund of revenue from the gasoline tax and certain other taxes paid by highway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amounts to be so transferred. In turn, annual appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for Federal-aid highways and other programs specified by law.

1. Cooperative work, forest highways.—Contributions are received from States and counties in connection with cooperative engineering, survey, maintenance and construction projects for forest highways.

2. Equipment, supplies, et cetera, for cooperating countries.—In connection with the construction of the Darien Gap Highway, the Federal Highway Administration acts as agent for Panama and Colombia in purchasing equipment, supplies, and services.

3. Technical assistance, U.S. dollars advanced from foreign governments.—Under the Foreign Economic Assistance Act and under agreement with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and the Export-Import Bank of Washington, the Federal Highway Administration renders technical assistance and acts as agent for the purchase of equipment and materials for carrying out highway programs in foreign countries. During the current year these services are being rendered to Costa Rica, Iran, Panama, and Kuwait.

4. Contributions for highway research programs.—In association with the General Services Administration and the Department of Defense, tests of highway equipment are conducted for the purpose of establishing performance standards upon which to base specifications for use by the Government in purchasing such equipment.

5. Advances from State cooperating agencies.—Funds are contributed by the State highway departments or local subdivisions thereof for construction and/or maintenance of roads or bridges. The work is performed under the supervision of the Federal Highway Administration.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968 authorized $300 million for the establishment of a right-of-way revolving fund. This fund is utilized to make cash advances to the States for the purpose of purchasing right-of-way parcels in advance of highway construction and thereby preventing the inflation of land prices from causing a significant increase in construction costs.

The initial legislation for this program required the States to construct the highway and reimburse the revolving fund within 7 years from the date of the advance. The 1973 Highway Act extended the required time limit on construction to 10 years and the 1976 Highway Act extended the time limit indefinitely, if deemed necessary by the Secretary.

In 1978, obligations will be made to the extent of States reimbursements to the revolving fund.

1. Motor vehicle programs.—This activity encompasses the development, promulgation, enforcement, and evaluation of safety standards for new and used motor vehicles, tires, and equipment. Compliance evaluations and defect investigations are undertaken to determine safety-related motor vehicle defects. Studies are made to determine the effects on product costs and leadtime for implementation by industry. Additional funds in 1978 will: meet the increased costs required for basic compliance testing; provide sophisticated testing for newer motor vehicle safety standards; and increase emphasis on the evaluation of the effectiveness of present safety standards.

2. Traffic safety programs.—This activity provides for headquarters and field staff to establish policy, program, and technical guidance to the States in executing highway safety programs, to determine program effectiveness, and to assure conformity with governing laws and regulations. Funding is also provided to carry out training programs and to conduct demonstration projects. The 1978 budget reflects increased emphasis on programs to deal with youth involvement in highway accidents and to improve State traffic records systems.

3. Research and analysis.—This activity provides for motor vehicle and highway safety research and development, for the collection of data to determine the relationship between motor vehicle performance characteristics and crashes causing death or personal injury. The 1978 programs provide for continuation of efforts to improve the accident causation data base; and fabrication, test, and evaluation of research safety vehicles.

4. Automotive fuel economy and consumer information.—Pursuant to title V of the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act, as amended, the automotive fuel economy subactivity will provide leadership in the administration of mandatory automotive fuel economy standards. The 1978 programs for automotive fuel economy will assess current automotive technology, determine effects of standards on fuel economy and perform systems, and economic and market analysis.

5. Engineering facility.—This activity provides the in-house testing capability that is needed to support rapid evaluation of petitions for vehicle safety defect enforcement actions in conformance with the School Bus Safety Amendments of 1974.

6. General administration.—This activity provides for executive direction, coordination, and implementation. Basic administrative and support requirements for all safety programs are also provided in this category. Additional funds are needed in 1978 to meet the cost of providing day-to-day operating expenses and to improve program evaluation capability.

Under the State and community highway safety program, Federal grants are provided to assist the States and their political subdivisions in the establishment and improvement of highway safety programs. A total of $129 million is planned for NHTSA's highway safety programs in 1978, the same level as for 1977.

The 1978 State and community highway safety grant program contemplates the following two distinct elements:

1. Basic grants.—$114 million is provided to carry out safety programs in the States such as driver licensing, motor vehicle registration, traffic records, police traffic services, driver education, school bus driver training, and the administration of grant programs. Individual States are utilizing this funding in areas which have the greatest potential for achieving safety improvements and reducing traffic fatalities and accidents at the State and local level.

Activities are centered largely in efforts that will: control the drinking driver; increase the intensity of traffic law enforcement; continue enforcement of the 55 mph national speed limit; improve the quality and availability of emergency medical services; and improve program management. The 1978 program will also seek: (1) upgrading of the planning and evaluative capabilities of State highway safety agencies, and (2) joint Federal/State participation in identification of high payoff programs.

2. Incentive grants.—In 1978, $15 million for incentive grants will be provided to those States which have achieved specified reductions in their actual fatalities or traffic fatality rate, in accordance with criteria established by the Secretary for identifying recipients that have made the most significant progress in highway safety.

The Federal Railroad Safety Act of 1970 provides that the Secretary of Transportation shall prescribe as necessary appropriate rules, regulations, orders, and standards for all areas of railroad safety. The principal objective under this program is to reduce accidents through effective investigation and enforcement of Federal railroad safety laws and regulations. The growth in this program in 1978 reflects an increase in data processing activities, and the development of a planning and evaluation activity to establish Federal Railroad Administration program priorities and review the effectiveness of those programs. In addition, the grants-in-aid for Railroad safety appropriation will be merged into the Railroad safety appropriation in 1978. Under the grants-in-aid activity, States are assisted in paying salaries and expenses incurred by State safety inspectors as authorized by section 206 of the Railroad Safety Act of 1970. The 1978 appropriation will permit States to hire up to 180 safety inspectors, who will aid the Federal Railroad Administration in the enforcement of Federal safety standards.

Title IV of the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-236), as amended, and title VIII of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-210), as amended, provide for the continuation of local rail services in the northeast region and nationwide. The regional program is limited to a 2-year period and the national program to a 5-year period following the ConRail conveyance date, April 1, 1976. Appropriated funds not used under the regional program during the 2-year authorization period will become available for use in the national program.

The State rail assistance program is designed to provide financial assistance to States for rail planning and for rail freight assistance that involve: (1) The cost of rail service continuation payments; (2) the cost of purchasing a line of railroad or other rail properties for future rail service; (3) the costs of rehabilitating and improving rail properties on a line of railroad to the extent necessary to permit adequate and efficient rail freight service on such lines; and (4) the cost of providing substitute or alternate mode service in a manner less expensive than continuing rail service.

Title IX of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976, as amended, authorizes the establishment of a Minority Business Resource Center to assist minority business firms, entrepreneurs, and venture groups in securing contracts and subcontracts arising out of the restructuring and revitalization of the Nation's railroads. The Minority Business Resource Center program also provides support mechanisms, including venture capital and surety and bonding organizations which will enable minority businesses to take advantage of such business opportunities. The administration program provides for the necessary salaries and related expenses in support of this appropriation, the Northeast corridor improvement appropriation, and the Railroad rehabilitation and improvement financing accounts.

The Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 as amended, provides for the upgrading of the Northeast corridor. The purpose of the upgrading is to improve the railroad passenger service between Boston, Mass., and Washington, D.C., to enable the establishment of high-speed rail passenger service in the corridor. Northeast corridor improvements cover right-of-way, associated facilities and acquisition and modernization of rail properties.

The activities under this appropriation consist of four geographic corridor segments and a program management and engineering activity as follows:

Boston-New Haven.—Detailed engineering design will be nearly completed for all improvements contemplated. Critical long lead items for the new electrification, signals, centralized traffic control system (CTC), and maintenance facilities will be ordered to insure timely delivery to complete the project by 1981. Heavy track work will continue; realignment rights-of-way will be obtained and construction started on new roadbeds; construction work will start on bridges, and crossing separations; and repairs to bridges will be started.

New Haven-New York.—Detailed design will be completed for all activities, construction will be started for bridge repair and replacement, and safety-related fencing. The States of New York and Connecticut are contributing to the construction on this segment.

New York-Philadelphia.—Detailed design will be nearly completed for all improvements contemplated. Heavy work will continue on tracks while critical long lead material for electrification, signals, CTC, and maintenance facilities are contracted for to insure their timely delivery. Construction will start on route realignments and flyovers following right-of-way purchase, and safety-related fencing work will commence.

Philadelphia-Washington.—The detailed designs for all contemplated improvements will be nearly complete and contracts will be let for critical long lead material required for electrification, signals, CTC, and maintenance facilities. Construction on route realignments will start following land acquisition and work will start to build or repair bridges, and install safety-related fencing, while heavy work on tracks and tunnels will continue.

Systems engineering and program management.—System engineering provides for system modeling, standards, design and requirements criteria. Program management provides overall program planning, scheduling, monitoring, supervision, inspection, and evaluation.

FRA established the Northeast corridor project (NECP) for the implementation of this program. The overall program planning and directing will be performed by NECP. Actual improvement work will be accomplished through commercial contractors, including the National Rail Passenger Corporation. Salaries and related expenses of Federal employees are funded under the rail service assistance appropriation.

The Railroad transportation, employment and improvement appropriation provided financial assistance to States, railroads, regional, State or local transportation authorities, or regional commissions, for programs aimed at reducing unemployment and at repairing, rehabilitating, or improving essential roadbeds and facilities. These funds expired on December 31, 1976, since authorizing legislation was not enacted.

The Rail Passenger Service Act of 1970, as amended, created the National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) as a private, for-profit corporation. Federal assistance to Amtrak has been made in the form of grants to offset operating deficits, grants to help finance capital improvements and loan guarantees for capital improvements. Federal financial assistance is also being provided to fund purchase and ownership costs covering the Northeast Corridor, and for the systematic retirement of loans guaranteed by the Federal Government. Unusually high 1977 outlays result from a provision of Public Law 94-555 requiring payment of Amtrak capital grants quarterly in advance for temporary application to debt retirement. Outlays for this purpose will however be receipts to the Federal Financing Bank.

1. Operating grants.—The 1978 estimate of $490 million, together with expected revenue increases, will provide Amtrak's management with the resources to meet expected cost increases in regular and corridor operations. Amtrak will work with the Department of Transportation to apply existing route and service criteria to keep the level of operations within this ceiling. A constant-level appropriation of $490 million in 1978 and subsequent years is the maximum Federal subsidy acceptable to the administration. This includes $70 million for 1978 proposed to cover Amtrak's corridor ownership net losses.

2. Capital grants.—Continuing the policy established in 1976 of financing Amtrak capital requirements with grants instead of loans, it is proposed to fund new capital improvements initiated in 1978 with the $77 million capital grants request.

3. Debt retirement.—Amendments to the act (Public Law 94-555, enacted Oct. 19, 1976) authorize the systematic retirement of Amtrak's section 602 loans now held entirely by the Federal Financing Bank. The $25 million authorized for 1978 reduces the section 602 loan authority from $900 million to $875 million.

4. Purchase of Northeast Corridor.—Under the purchase agreement of March 23, 1976, between Amtrak and ConRail, the monthly installments for the Northeast Corridor purchase should aggregate approximately $25 million.

5. Baltimore-Washington International Airport intermodal demonstrations.—An amount of $1.5 million has been appropriated for a rail passenger terminal and facilities at the Baltimore-Washington International Airport. Architectural and engineering analysis for the design and construction of the facility is underway.

The Emergency Rail Facilities Restoration Act authorized the Secretary of Transportation to make loans for the purpose of restoring or replacing railroad facilities, equipment, or services damaged or destroyed as a result of the natural disasters which occurred during the month of June 1972.

The act provided that no loan application could be approved later than 8 months from the date of its enactment, which was October 27, 1972. Therefore, the program was terminated in 1974.

The Alaska Railroad is operated by the Federal Government under the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305), as a public enterprise activity of the Federal Railroad Administration. The major activity of the rail line operation program is transportation service; the principal supporting activities are maintenance of way and structures, maintenance of equipment, and communications system operation and maintenance. Lease of real properties, riverboats, and related facilities round out the other operating programs.

To the extent possible, programs are financed by revenue earned from freight and passenger services and other services incidental thereto. It is estimated that freight tonnages will be significantly decreased in 1977 and in 1978 following the scheduled completion of the Trans-Alaska pipeline. Appropriated funds will be used to maintain equipment and facilities at a level needed for safe and efficient operations.

RAILROAD REHABILITATION AND IMPROVEMENT

FINANCING FUNDS

The Secretary of Transportation is hereby authorized to expend proceeds from the sale of Fund anticipation notes to the Secretary of the Treasury and any other monies deposited in the Railroad Rehabilitation and Improvement Fund pursuant to sections 502, 505-507 and 509 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-210) as amended for the uses authorized for the Fund, in amounts not to exceed [$70,000,000] $100,000,000, to remain available until [September 30, 1978] March 31, 1979. The Secretary of Transportation is also authorized to issue to the Secretary of the Treasury notes or other obligations pursuant to section 512 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-210 as amended) in such amounts and at such time as may be necessary to pay any amounts required pursuant to the guarantee not to exceed [$400,000,000] $800,000,000 principal amount of obligations under sections 511 through 513 of such act, such authority to exists as long as any such guaranteed obligation is outstanding: Provided, That the aggregate principal amount of guarantees and commitments to guarantee obligations under section 511 of Public Law 94-210 shall not exceed [$400,000,000] $800,000,000. Section 509 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976, as amended, authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase fund anticipation notes from the Secretary of Transportation. The Secretary of Transportation will use these funds to purchase redeemable preference shares from railroads to provide for capital needs critical to preserving essential rail freight services. Funds will be provided to railroads with the highest priority on projects effecting mergers and consolidations. Under the provisions of the act, repayments on the shares will not commence earlier than 6 years after purchase by the United States. Section 511 of Public Law 94-210, as amended, also authorizes obligation guarantee authority, for meeting the long term needs of the railroads. Railroads utilize this funding mechanism to finance major new facilities, rehabilitation and consolidation of current facilities. The appropriation language provides for standby authority to issue notes in the event of default, up to the cumulative level of loans guaranteed through 1978.

URBAN MASS TRANSPORTATION FUND*

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

For necessary administrative expenses of the urban mass transportation program authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 (49 U.S.C. 1601 et seq., as amended by Public Law 91-453 and Public Law 93-503); the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-87) and the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-280) in connection with the activities, including uniforms and allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902); hire of passenger motor vehicle; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109; [$12,600,000] $22,100,000.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, AND DEMONSTRATIONS AND UNIVERSITY RESEARCH AND TRAINING

For an additional amount for the urban mass transportation program, as authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended (49 U.S.C. 1601 et seq.), to remain available until expended; [$61,200,000] $73,100,000: Provided, That [$58,700,000] $70,600,000 shall be available for research, development, and demonstrations, $2,000,000 shall be available for university research and training, and not to exceed $500,000 shall be available for managerial training as authorized under the authority of the said Act.

LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION

For payment to the urban mass transportation fund, for liquidation of contractual obligations incurred under authority of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 (49 U.S.C. 1601 et seq., as amended by Public Law 91-453 and Public Law 93-503) and section 142(c) of title 23, U.S.C., and of obligations incurred for projects substituted for Interstate System segments withdrawn prior to enactment of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1976; [$1,700,000,000] $1,756,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That none of these funds shall be made available for the establishment of depreciation reserves or reserves for replacement accounts: Provided further, That amounts for highway projects substituted for Interstate System segments shall be transferred to the Federal Highway Administration.

RAIL SERVICE OPERATING PAYMENTS

For an additional payment to the Urban Mass Transportation Fund there is hereby appropriated to remain available until expended, for the purposes of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended by Public Law 94-210, [$55,000,000] $30,000,000.

PROJECTS SUBSTITUTED FOR INTERSTATE SYSTEM PROJECTS

For necessary expenses to carry out the provisions of title 23, U.S.C. 103(e)(4), to remain available until expended, [$400,000,000] $425,000,000 of which not to exceed $350,000,000 may be available for the Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority: Provided, That amounts for highway projects substituted for Interstate System segments shall be transferred to the Federal Highway Administration. This fund was established to finance all capital and operating assistance grants, contracts, and loan activities authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended. The capital facilities, relocation, and technical studies activities are financed by the authority to obligate in advance of appropriations. Grants and contracts for the research, development, and demonstration; managerial training, university research and training activities; and administrative expenses are funded through appropriations, with such appropriations being accounted for within the available contract authority.

Capital outlay.—Capital facilities grants.—Pursuant to section 3 of the act, grants are made to State and local public agencies to assist in financing acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities of mass transportation service in urban areas. In 1978, the activity level will be $1.3 billion in capital grants.

The $1.2 billion level in 1978 is estimated to fund 205 new projects. This compares with an activity level of $1.2 billion in 1977 for an estimated 200 projects, and $1.1 billion in 1976 for 179 projects. An additional 37 projects were funded in the transition quarter.

Formula grants.—Pursuant to section 5 of the act (amended by section 103 of the National Mass Transportation Assistance Act of 1974), grants can be made to urbanized areas or parts thereof on the basis of a formula for the acquisition, construction, and improvement of facilities and equipment, and the payment of operating expenses.

In 1978, the activity level will be $0.8 billion. This is estimated to fund 350 projects, and compares with an activity level of $0.7 billion (plus carryover) in 1977 with an estimated 300 projects, and $0.4 billion in 1976 with 206 projects. An additional 40 projects were funded in the transition quarter.

Technical studies grants.—Pursuant to section 9 of the act, State and local public agencies are assisted in carrying out studies relating to management operations, capital requirements, economic feasibility, and conducting similar activities in preparation for the construction, acquisition, or improved operation of mass transportation systems, facilities, and equipment. Regional transportation plans are also developed with these grants.

In 1978, the activity level will be $50.0 million with an estimated 300 grant recipients. The activity level compares with $43.2 million in 1977 and an estimated 250 projects, and $38.1 million in 1976 for 214 projects. An additional 89 projects were created in the transition quarter.

Research, development and demonstration grants and contracts.—This activity—conducted under section 6 of the act—involves projects designed for the development, testing, and demonstration of new facilities equipment techniques (operations and managerial), and methods which assist in reducing urban transportation needs, in improving mass transportation services, and/or in meeting total urban transportation needs at an effective cost level.

In 1978, the activity level will be $70.6 million with an estimated 225 projects. This compares with $58.7 million in 1977 with an estimated 195 projects, and $47.7 million in 1976 with 181 projects. An additional 74 projects were created in the transition quarter.

Managerial training.—Grants under this activity—authorized in section 10 of the act—are made to public bodies to provide university fellowships for up to 1 year of advanced training. Fellowship awards are made for the training of personnel employed in managerial, technical, and professional positions in the urban mass transportation field.

In 1978, the activity level will be $0.5 million with an estimated 100 fellowships. This compares with $0.5 million in 1977 and $0.4 million in 1976, with 100 fellowships each year. An additional 57 fellowships were awarded in the transition quarter. Separate funding of this activity will be phased out in 1979 as grantees fund more training with section 5 formula grants.

University research and training.—Grants under this activity—authorized in section 11 of the act—are awarded to public and private nonprofit institutions of higher learning. The grants are to assist in establishing or continuing programs which combine professional training in urban transportation and related fields.

In 1978, the activity level will be $2.0 million with an estimated 18 projects, which compares with $2.0 million in 1977 with 27 projects and $0.6 million in 1976 with 7 projects. An additional 16 grants were awarded during the transition quarter.

Administrative expenses.—This activity provides for carrying out administrative functions, including executive direction, budgeting, accounting, management information, procurement, property management, and personnel management. The administrative expenses activity will be conducted at a $22.1 million level in 1978. This compares to $18.3 million in 1977, and $11.8 million in 1976 and $2.6 million for the transition quarter.

Capital facilities loans.—Under this activity, two types of loans are available. Capital improvement loans finance the acquisition, construction, reconstruction, and improvement of facilities and equipment. Loans are also provided for the advance acquisition of real property for planned mass transportation systems. This activity has such a low volume of approvals, no effort is made to estimate new loan commitments.

Interstate transfers.—Grants under this activity are authorized by the 1973 Highway Act. States and localities may cancel plans for unneeded Interstate highway segments and transfer authorized funds to transit or highway projects. In 1978, an estimated $775 million in transit projects will be assisted under the provisions of 23 U.S.C. 103(e)(4), compared to an estimated $575 million in 1977, and $337.6 million in 1976. Use of an additional $215.4 million took place in the transition quarter.

Urban systems.—23 U.S.C. 142(e) authorizes use of urban systems authorities in assisting transit projects as substitutions have been made for highway efforts. Use is based on local decisions and therefore no estimates are made for 1977 or 1978. In 1976, $23.4 million was used under this activity. Obligations in this activity in 1977 and succeeding years for technical reasons will be incurred in Federal Highway Administration accounts.

Commuter rail operating subsidies.—Pursuant to section 17 of the act (authorized by section 808 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976) UMTA is authorized to provide emergency operating assistance to absorb a portion of such additional costs of providing rail passenger service resulting from the conveyance of rail properties and service obligations to the Consolidated Rail Corporation (ConRail) and other eligible recipients.

In 1978 an assistance level of $30 million is planned. This compares with an estimate of $55 million in 1977 and $23.4 million in the transition quarter.

There follows a series of schedules reflecting usage of authorities made available to the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (in millions of dollars).

The overall goal of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation is to keep the Saint Lawrence Seaway system a safe, reliable and efficient transportation artery. The Corporation will continue to operate and maintain the U.S. part of the seaway and pursue programs to increase the efficiency of the system by continuing efforts to: (1) extend the navigation season; (2) work closely with current and potential seaway shippers, Great Lakes ports, and other organizations; (3) encourage increased use of the seaway system; and (4) maintain and improve our lock facilities and lock approach channels. The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation's 1978 budget reflects these objectives:

1. Administrative expenses (limitation).—This program provides for executive management and administration of the Corporation, and includes finance, legal, civil rights, procurement, personnel administration, and other related support services.

2. Operations.—This program provides for operation of all facilities and for planning and development activities. Operations are conducted on a 24-hour day, 7-day week basis throughout the navigation season with maintenance functions being performed throughout the year. Some major maintenance items are necessarily deferred to the off-navigation season when both operations and maintenance forces are utilized for their accomplishment.

Capital outlay.—This program provides for cost effective safety dictated facility improvements such as the installation of better fenders on locks, installation and testing of ice control systems, and fixed navigation aids, buildings, plant and equipment replacements.

The Corporation estimates its revenues for 1978 to reach $7.7 million which it proposes to apply as follows:

1. $5.5 million to pay operating expenses consisting of administrative expenses of $1.1 million (subject to limitation) and $4.4 million for operations.

2. $1.3 million to pay estimated capital outlay costs for season extension projects, facility improvements, and replacement of equipment.

3. $1.0 million for the scheduled redemption of the Corporation's revenue bonds issued to the U.S. Treasury.

No capital impairment has occurred through the end of the past year nor is any anticipated in the budget year.

This appropriation finances all activities of the Materials Transportation Bureau (MTB), a line organization reporting directly to the Secretary of Transportation. MTB's mission is to insure the safe transportation of hazardous materials and gases or hazardous liquids by pipeline by establishing industry safety standards and by enforcing pipeline regulations and those hazardous materials regulations not delegated to the Department's operating administrations. These efforts are performed through the following activities:

Operations.—This activity provides for the expenses for the executive direction of the MTB and for the conduct of hazardous materials and pipeline safety regulatory programs.

Research and development.—This activity provides for research and development to support the hazardous materials and pipeline safety regulatory programs of the MTB.

Grants.—This activity provides for grants-in-aid to State agencies of up to 50% of the actual costs for conducting a gas pipeline safety program as authorized by the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968.

Legislation is recommended to modernize seaman documentation procedures, modernize vessel documentation, and simplify tonnage measurement.

This legislation would reduce the level of funding previously required to administer these programs under existing legislation.

These legislative proposals, when enacted, would eliminate 20 shipping commissioner positions (8 military and 12 civilian) and associated travel costs through the modernization of the seaman documentation procedures; would provide for a change in document renewal and change of master procedures through the modernization of vessel documentation; and would reduce vessel admeasurement time and associated travel costs through the simplification of tonnage measurement.

Legislation is recommended to repeal section 3(h) of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, which allows State or local agencies to divert up to one-half of transit capital grants and other financial assistance under the act (other than formula grants) for payment of operating expenses.

Legislation is also being recommended to amend section 5 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, which provides grants to urbanized areas on a formula basis for capital investments or operating assistance at their discretion, to require that 20% of the allocations shall be used for capital investments.

These legislative amendments would change the relationship of obligations to outlays that would be incurred under existing legislation. In 1978 the effect of repealing section 3(h) will defer $60 million and the section 5 limitation will defer $40 million.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. During the current fiscal year applicable appropriations to the Department of Transportation shall be available for maintenance and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles and aircraft; purchase of liability insurance for motor vehicles operating in foreign countries on official departmental business; and uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 302. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the commitments for which are in excess of ~~[$510,000,000]~~ $465,000,000 for "Grants-in-aid for airports" for airport development in fiscal year ~~[1977]~~ 1978; Provided, that this limitation shall not apply to obligations for the planning grant program provided for in section 13 of the Airport and Airway Development Act of 1970, as amended.

SEC. 303. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $21,000,000 for "Highway-related safety grants" in fiscal year ~~[1977]~~ 1978.

SEC. 304. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $129,000,000 in fiscal year ~~[1977]~~ 1978 for "State and Community Highway Safety".

SEC. 305. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs the obligations for which are in excess of $5,600,000 in fiscal year ~~[1977]~~ 1978 for "Territorial Highways".

SEC. 306. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, aggregating more than ~~[$2,077,700,000]~~ $2,200,200,000 in fiscal year ~~[1977.]~~ 1978 [except that amounts apportioned pursuant to section 5 of the Act and not committed in the year of apportionment may be committed notwithstanding this limitation].

SEC. 307. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for administrative expenses in connection with obligations against contract authority for interstate substitutions under 23 U.S.C. 103(e)(4) aggregating more than ~~[$175,000,000]~~ $350,000,000 in fiscal year ~~[1977]~~ 1978.

SEC. 308. None of the funds provided under this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs for any further construction of the Miami jetport or of any other air facility in the State of Florida lying south of the Okeechobee Waterway and in the drainage basins contributing water to the Everglades National Park until it has been shown by an appropriate study made jointly by the Department of the Interior and the Department of Transportation that such an airport will not have an adverse environmental effect on the ecology of the Everglades and until any site selected on the basis of such study is approved by the Department of the Interior and the Department of Transportation: Provided, That nothing in this section shall affect the availability of such funds to carry out this study.

SEC. 309. The Governor of the Canal Zone is authorized to employ services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, in an amount not exceeding $150,000.

SEC. 310. Funds appropriated for operating expenses of the Canal Zone Government may be apportioned notwithstanding section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), to the extent necessary to permit payment of such pay increases for officers or employees as may be authorized by administrative action pursuant to law which are not in excess of statutory increases granted for the same period in corresponding rates of compensation for other employees of the Government in comparable positions.

[SEC. 311. No funds appropriated or made available by this Act shall be used to implement the provision of section 155 of title 2 of the Canal Zone Code relating to the establishment of employment standards, pay levels and other conditions of employment within the Canal Zone.]

SEC. ~~[312]~~ 311. Funds appropriated under this Act for expenditure by the Federal Aviation Administration shall be available (1) except as otherwise authorized by the Act of September 30, 1950 (20 U.S.C. 236-244), for expenses of primary and secondary schooling for dependents of Federal Aviation Administration personnel stationed outside the continental United States at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools, if any, available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents and (2) for transportation of said dependents between schools serving the area which they attend and their places of residence when the Secretary, under such regulations as he may prescribe, determines that such schools are not accessible by public means of transportation on a regular basis.

SEC. ~~[313]~~ 312. Appropriations contained in this Act for the Department of Transportation shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for a GS-18.

[SEC. 314. None of the funds in this Act shall be available for the implementation or execution of a program in the Department of Transportation to collect fees, charges or prices for approvals, tests, authorizations, certificates, permits, registrations, and ratings which are in excess of the levels in effect on January 1, 1973, or which did not exist as of January 1, 1973, until such program is reviewed and approved by the appropriate committees of the Congress.]

SEC. ~~[315]~~ 313. None of the funds provided in this Act for liquidation of contractual obligations under the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended, shall be made available for liquidation of obligations entered into under Section 5 of that Act, to support mass transit facilities, equipment or operating expenses unless the applicant for such assistance has given satisfactory assurances in such manner and form as the Secretary may require, and in accordance with such terms and conditions as the Secretary may prescribe, that the rates charged elderly and handicapped persons during nonpeak hours shall not exceed one-half of the rates generally applicable to other persons at peak hours: Provided, That the Secretary, in prescribing the terms and conditions for the provision of such assistance shall (1) permit applicants to continue the use of preferential fare systems for elderly or handicapped persons where those systems were in effect on or prior to November 26, 1974, (2) allow applicants a reasonable time to expand the coverage of operating preferential fare systems as appropriate, and (3) allow applicants to define the eligibility of "handicapped persons" for the purposes of preferential fares in conformity with other Federal laws and regulations governing eligibility for benefits for disabled persons.

SEC. ~~[316]~~ 314. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. ~~[317]~~ 315. None of the funds provided under or included in this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs, the obligations for which are in excess of ~~[$7,200,000,000]~~ $6,545,000,000 for "Federal-Aid Highways" [and for "Highway Safety Construction Programs"] in fiscal year ~~[1977]~~ 1978: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to obligations for emergency relief under section 125 of title 23 U.S.C., special urban high density traffic program under section 146 of title 23 U.S.C., and special bridge replacement program under section 144 of title 23 U.S.C.: Provided further, That this limitation shall not become effective if subsequent legislation containing an obligation limitation on the Federal-Aid Highways and Highway Safety Construction Programs for fiscal year 1977 is enacted into law by September 30, 1976.]

[SEC. 318. Such funds as may be necessary shall be utilized from the appropriations hereinabove made available to the Federal Aviation Administration and to the Civil Aeronautics Board for the preparation of a plan to coordinate as promptly as possible the use of Midway Airport with O'Hare Airport in Chicago, Illinois, for service by airline carriers, in order to relieve air traffic congestion and to promote air safety in that area.]

[SEC. 319. Section 302 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1976, and the period ending September 30, 1976 (Public Law 94-134) is amended by striking out "$350,000,000" and all that follows down through the period at the end thereof and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "$437,500,000 in fiscal year 1976, including the period July 1, 1976, through September 30, 1976.".]

SEC. 316. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the planning or execution of programs, the total obligations for which, in fiscal years 1976, 1977 and 1978, exceed the $90,000,000 authorized for fiscal years 1974, 1975 and 1976 for the Great River Road, and such obligations shall be limited to preliminary engineering and the planning or execution of projects for the acquisition of areas of archeological, scientific or historic importance, and of necessary easements for scenic purposes, and construction or reconstruction of roadside rest areas, bicycle trails and scenic viewing areas.

SEC. 317. None of the funds provided in this Act for the Overseas Highway shall be available until the Department of Transportation and the State of Florida reach an agreement whereby Florida will finance all costs for the Long Key and Seven Mile bridges from sources other than appropriations for the Overseas Highway. (Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

1. Secretarial direction and program development.—The Secretary, as a major policy advisor to the President and as executive director of the Department, has primary responsibility for: Formulating and recommending domestic and international financial policy and tax policy; managing the public debt; and participating in the formulation of broad fiscal policies that have general significance for the economy.

2. Departmental policy and administrative services.—This activity provides central administrative policies and guidance to the entire Department; the direct administrative support required for the Office of the Secretary operations; a contract compliance program to insure nondiscrimination and appropriate affirmative action in employment practices of all financial institutions contracting with the Treasury Department; and computer support and services.

3. Buildings maintenance and operations.—This activity provides for maintenance and operation of the main Treasury Building and the Annex including utilities, and custodial and craftsmen services. In addition this activity provides for all telecommunications facilities and services, and the Federal buildings fund payment for all space occupied by the Office of the Secretary outside of the Treasury Building and the Annex.

4. Repairs and improvements.—As a result of the Public Buildings Amendments of 1972, funding of all repairs and improvements such as work on the Treasury Building and Annex became the responsibility of the Treasury Department. This activity provides the funding for such major repairs and improvements as the air-conditioning system, elevator installation, and electrical system improvements.

1. Matching funds in primaries.—Upon certification by the Federal Election Commission, every candidate entitled to receive payments is entitled to payments in an amount equal to the contributions each has on or after the beginning of the calendar year immediately preceding the election year. Candidates may receive approximately $5 million each.

2. Nominating conventions of parties.—Upon certification by the Commission, payments may be made to the national committee of a major party or a minor party which elects to receive its entitlement. The total of such payments will be limited to the amount in the account at the time of payment. The national committee of each party may receive payments beginning on July 1 of the year immediately preceding the calendar year in which a presidential nominating convention of the political party is held. The two major parties will receive $2 million each, plus a cost-of-living increase.

3. Candidates for general elections.—The two eligible candidates of each major party in a presidential election will be entitled to equal payments in an amount which, in the aggregate, shall not exceed $20 million each, plus a cost-of-living increase.

Also, provision is made for new parties, minor parties and candidates, who may in future elections receive in excess of 5% of the popular vote and, therefore, be entitled to reimbursement of qualified campaign expenditures. To date, no such parties have met these requirements.

The Office of Revenue Sharing was established in 1972 to implement the general revenue sharing program, as authorized by the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 and renewed October 1976 by enactment of the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Amendments of 1976 which expire September 30, 1980.

The responsibilities of the Secretary of the Treasury under the act of 1972 are to formulate and implement regulations and rules for the conduct of the general revenue sharing program; calculate allocations for over 39,000 State and local governments for each entitlement period and make payments to those governments in the correct amounts; maintain detailed accounting records for each of the State and local governments relative to the State and local government fiscal assistance trust fund; provide advice and assistance to State and local governments in connection with the Fiscal Assistance Act as amended; insure compliance with the requirements of the Act; insure compliance with the provisions of the Age Discrimination Act of 1975, the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (section 504), and the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1968; and at regular intervals, report to Congress, recipient governments, and the general public on the revenue sharing program.

The Office of Revenue Sharing under the Public Works Employment Appropriations Act of 1976 assumes responsibility for the disbursement of anti-recession fiscal assistance funds to eligible governments as authorized by title II of the Public Works Employment Act of 1976. This program will expire September 30, 1977.

This account makes funds available to States and to local governments experiencing high levels of unemployment, thus providing an immediate economic stimulus.

For the period July 1, 1976, to September 30, 1977, $1,250,000 thousand was appropriated to be distributed—one-third to States and two-thirds to local jurisdictions in areas of high unemployment. For each quarter there was made available for distribution $125,000 thousand plus $62,500 thousand for each one-half percentage point the seasonally adjusted national rate of unemployment exceeded 6% in the most recent quarter ending 90 days earlier. The States and local governments are entitled to sums based on the relative size of their 1976 revenue sharing payments and the extent to which their rates of unemployment in the prior quarter exceeded 4.5%. No payments are made for quarters in which the average national unemployment rate dropped below 6%.

This trust fund was established by the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 and renewed under Public Law 94-488, the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Amendments of 1976, to provide general revenue sharing payments to localities for defined high-priority expenditures and payments to the States to supplement their revenue sources. Payments to the States and localities are made at least quarterly. It is anticipated that the fourth quarter payment for each year will continue to be paid within the first 5 days of the succeeding year, as provided by law.

One-third of the funds appropriated is allocated to the States and two-thirds are allocated to local jurisdictions to carry out general purpose governmental functions. At present 39,100 units of general purpose government are eligible to receive revenue sharing funds: the 50 States and the District of Columbia, 3,047 counties, 18,817 cities, 16,838 towns and townships, and 347 Indian tribes and Alaskan Native villages.

Distribution formulas seek to measure a government's size, its need, and its effort to meet its need. State and local jurisdictions are allowed, particularly under the renewal legislation, to use the funds for any purposes which constitute legal purposes for use of their own locally generated revenues.

This appropriation provides for the costs of adapting the former Glynco Naval Air Station, near Brunswick, Ga., for the permanent location of the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center. When completed, the campus-like training center will be able to accommodate in excess of 745 resident students. The total estimated cost to this appropriation for the facilities and equipment will be $30 million. The Center conducts recruit, advanced, specialized, and refresher training for enforcement personnel of the participating Federal agencies.

The construction of a special training, semienclosed firing range and motorcade training area has been completed at Beltsville, Md.—the original site for the FLETC. These facilities are operated by the U.S. Secret Service for its specialized training programs and firearms requalification for other Federal agencies.

1. Disbursement and claims.—(a) Check issuance.—Payments are made, through 11 regional offices, for civilian Federal agencies, except the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. marshals, and certain Government corporations. Savings bonds are also issued for Federal employees under the payroll savings plan.

The total work volume and productivity relating to this function carried out by the Division of Disbursement follows:

b. Processing check claims.—This function processes all claims for proceeds of Government checks. The operations include the adjudication of claims against the United States and the enforcing of claims of the United States against banks, endorsers, principals, and sureties or other parties having liability due to the fraudulent or otherwise improper negotiation of checks.

2. Government-wide accounting.—This activity includes the maintenance of the central accounts of appropriations, receipts, and expenditures and the preparation and publication of financial reports on the fiscal operations of the Government as a whole. It also includes accounting for purchases, sales and redemption of securities, processing of capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, and investment in interest-bearing securities for certain funds such as the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Unemployment trust fund, the Veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds.

Another major function of this activity is the maintenance of checking accounts of Government officers who are authorized to issue checks on the U.S. Treasury, including the payment of the checks and the reconciliation of checks paid to check issue data received from the disbursing officers. The electronic data processing equipment used in the check payment operation is also used to process Federal tax deposit forms representing payment of corporation, employment, and excise taxes deposited to the U.S. Treasury. The Federal Reserve banks send the forms to the Treasury for balancing to the amounts credited to the Treasury's account and conversion of the deposit data onto magnetic tape. The tape records are then sent to the Internal Revenue Service for further processing.

Controlling accounts covering receipts and disbursements are maintained for all funds placed in the custody of the Treasury, and reports are prepared, including the daily statement of the U.S. Treasury and a monthly statement of money held in Treasury and paper currency in circulation.

3. Banking and cash management.—a. Federal tax deposit operations.—This activity segment provides support to the Federal tax deposit system for the collection of Federal taxes. Business organizations make deposits on Federal tax deposit forms through authorized commercial banks or directly with Federal Reserve banks to pay withheld income, social security, railroad retirement, excise, corporation, and income taxes into the Treasury. Treasury issues the Federal tax deposit forms and reimburses the Federal Reserve banks for processing the Federal tax deposits they receive.

b. Depositary, cash and currency operations.—This activity segment provides (1) guidance to the system for advancing Federal funds under various grant programs and other programs through letters of credit; (2) designation and supervision of banks as Government depositaries; (3) technical administration of the Federal tax deposit system; and (4) control over U.S. foreign currency transactions to afford the best currency availability to the Government.

4. General financial services.—This activity provides for (a) audit of the fiscal affairs and general operations of the Bureau and of certain departmental activities; (b) determination of underwriting qualifications of insurance companies and designation of those authorized to do business with the Government; (c) payment of international and other claims; (d) accounting, billing and collecting for lend-lease transfers and surplus property sales to foreign governments; and (e) administration of the Government Losses in Shipment Act.

5. Executive direction.—This activity provides the overall management of the Bureau.

Public Law 94-12, approved March 29, 1975, provided for a special payment to recipients of benefits under certain retirement and survivor benefit programs.

In accordance with the law, the Secretary of the Treasury made a one-time special payment of $50 to each individual who, for March 1975, was entitled to monthly insurance benefits under title II of the Social Security Act, to monthly pension or annuity benefits under the Railroad Retirement Acts, or to supplemental security income benefits. An individual was entitled to only one special payment, even though he may have been entitled, for March 1975, to benefits under two or more of the above-mentioned programs.

These payments were not social security benefits in any sense but were intended to provide to the aged, blind, and disabled a payment comparable in nature to the tax rebates which the law provided to those who were working.

Public Law 93-585 authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to make grants to the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace at Stanford University, Calif. The law authorizes: (a) a no-year appropriation of $7 million to be used over a 5-year period to match gifts and other contributions made to the Hoover Institute; (b) that the grants be used for the construction of a new educational building and for equipment of such building; and (c) that the Institute furnish to Treasury such information as is required by agreement. This agreement is entered into between the Fiscal Assistant Secretary on behalf of the Secretary of the Treasury, and the Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace, Stanford University.

The act further provides that if a facility constructed with the aid of any grant under this act is used as an educational facility for 20 years following completion, the public benefit shall be considered to be equal in value to the amount of the grant. The period of 20 years after completion shall be known as the period of Federal interest in such facility. Each year for the 20-year period of Federal interest in the building, the grantee shall certify in writing to the grantor that the provisions of Public Law 93-585 have not been violated.

All grant payments are to be used only for the purposes of the grants. Application for grant funds will be approved when the grantee determines that the accumulated donations are substantial enough to warrant such action. Each application shall be accompanied by a list of donations covering a stated period of time, on the basis of which the application is made. Such lists of donations shall be initially attested to by an official of the grantee and will be subsequently verified by a certified public accountant at the annual audit of the grantee's records, copies of such audit to be furnished to the grantor.

The Check forgery insurance fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561). Additional appropriations of $50 thousand in 1964, $100 thousand in 1970, and $1,800 thousand in 1973 increased the fund to a total of $2 million. This fund is for use by the U.S. Treasury in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the U.S. Treasury which have been paid on forged endorsements.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorsers of the checks through reclamation procedure by this office. Benefits from these early settlements are shared by claimants and the Government in that the claimants are more quickly restored financially to their proper position and the Government is spared the necessity of much unproductive correspondence. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover funds, this revolving account sustains the loss.

Amendments to the Fishermen's Protective Act of 1967 (Public Law 92-569) created a Fishermen's protective fund to reimburse owners of vessels for the amounts of fines, fees, and other direct charges which were paid by the owners to a foreign country to secure the release of their vessels and crews.

Prior to the creation of the Fishermen's protective fund, the Secretary of State certified the amounts due vessel owners to the Secretary of the Treasury. These certified amounts due vessel owners were held by the Secretary of the Treasury until a request was received for their submission for a supplemental appropriation. The Fishermen's protective fund greatly reduces the time required to make payment to the vessel owner. The Secretary of the Treasury can now make payment within 48 hours of receipt of the certification from the Secretary of State.

1. National defense conditional gift fund.—The Secretary of the Treasury accepts, on behalf of the United States, conditional gifts of money or other intangible property to be used for a particular defense purpose. Intangibles other than money, are converted at the best terms available. The moneys held in trust are paid to those appropriation accounts which best effectuate the intent of the donors (68 Stat. 566).

2. Esther Cattell Schmitt gift fund.—Public Law 87-467 (76 Stat. 88) authorized the acceptance of the gift made to the United States by the will of Esther Cattell Schmitt. The income received from the gift to the United States is paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to beneficiaries named in provisions of the will.

The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms is responsible for the enforcement of the laws designed to eliminate illicit activities and to regulate lawful activities relating to distilled spirits, beer, wine, and nonbeverage products, tobacco, firearms, and explosives.

1. Alcohol, tobacco, and wagering regulation and enforcement.—This activity covers the regulation of the alcohol and tobacco industries relating to revenue protection and consumer protection, and the enforcement of Federal laws relating to the liquor industry and wagering activities.

2. Firearms regulations and enforcement.—This activity covers the regulation of the legal firearms industry by a system of licensing and compliance inspections and the enforcement of the Federal firearms statutes.

3. Explosives regulation and enforcement.—This activity covers the regulation of explosives through a license and permit system for manufacturers, dealers, and users of explosives and the enforcement of Federal laws to suppress illegal use of explosives and illegal trafficking in explosives.

4. Executive direction.—This activity provides overall management and direction of the Bureau's programs.

An amount of $12,400 thousand will be proposed for later transmittal under existing legislation for fiscal year 1978 for the expansion of Operation Concentrated Urban Enforcement (CUE) from 3 to 11 metropolitan areas. This delay allows further evaluation of the test results in the three cities and modification of the proposal as necessary before the proposal is formally transmitted to the Congress.

In response to the President's directive of June 19, 1975, and consistent with congressional funding, the Bureau began implementation of Operation CUE in the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) of Washington, D.C., on February 16, 1976, and in the SMSA's of Boston and Chicago on July 1, 1976. The effort employs the investment of a larger-than-usual amount of Bureau resources, in terms of manpower and materials, into a selected area with the primary objective to reduce the criminal misuse of firearms and explosives. Because both Boston and Chicago are only in initial stages of implementation, an assessment of measurement indicators is of little value at this time.

The U.S. Customs Service, as an enforcement arm of the Department of the Treasury, enforces Customs and related laws against the smuggling of contraband; assesses, collects, and protects the levying of import duties and taxes; and controls carriers, persons, and articles entering or departing the United States. The fundamental authority for the activities of the Customs Service is contained in the provisions of the Tariff Act of 1930 as amended (19 U.S.C. 1202 et seq.). In addition, the Customs Service administers and enforces or assists other Federal agencies in the administration and enforcement of numerous other laws.

1. Inspection and control.—The primary objective of inspector workload processing is to screen all persons and vehicles entering through land, air, and seaports for both revenue and enforcement purposes. In the cargo area, Customs inspectors are involved in inspection for enforcement purposes, to enforce laws and regulations for other Federal agencies and to maintain control and accountability of the cargo.

Persons arriving from foreign countries	269,524	282,700	297,400

2. Appraisalment and entry processing.—The primary objective of this activity is to screen all U.S. international trade transactions for revenue content and compliance with the many laws and regulations governing such transactions. The service provided is twofold: the facilitation of carriers and merchandise entitled to admission into the United States with the least possible delay; and the detection and control or prevention of those acts or activities which are legally inadmissible, restricted, or controlled.

3. Tactical interdiction.—The primary objective of this activity is to interdict or deter all forms of smuggling through the use of land, sea, and air patrols. The activity is centered in the following major areas: (a) physical presence at major airports; (b) cargo protection and vessel search; and (c) interdiction of illegal cross-border traffic.

4. Investigations.—The Customs agents in the United States and abroad make investigations in the enforcement of the Tariff Act of 1930, the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, the Export Control Act, and other laws affecting the movement of merchandise into and out of the United States. They also secure market value information for Customs import specialists. In 1976, a total of 27,145 investigations were completed. The estimates for 1977 and 1978 are 27,500 and 31,500, respectively.

5. Technical and legal support.—This activity issues regulations and rulings and provides enforcement support. The Office of Regulations and Rulings is responsible for providing legal services not only to the rest of the Customs Service, but also to the trading and traveling public and to other Government agencies.

The enforcement support program adapts technological advances and state-of-the-art equipment and systems to keep pace with its enforcement responsibilities.

6. Executive management and internal affairs.—This activity consists primarily of the efforts of the Office of Internal Affairs and Chief Counsel.

The Office of Internal Affairs is an independent fact-finding Customs entity reporting directly to the Commissioner of Customs. The Office functions as an extension of the Office of the Commissioner of Customs and is responsible for administering servicewide programs to assure the highest possible standards of integrity and to assure that Customs programs are being carried out in a productive, cost beneficial manner.

² Includes a surcharge for financing capital improvements totaling $4,788 thousand in 1976; $1,787 thousand in TQ; $7,476 thousand in 1977; and $3,256 thousand in 1978.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. The Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—Total deliveries of currency for 1977 and 1978 are estimated to be 3.6 and 3.8 billion notes. During 1976 the Bureau delivered 2.8 billion Federal Reserve notes.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postal and internal revenue stamps. The projected requirements for 1977 and 1978 reflect approximately a 15% decrease over the number of stamps delivered in 1976. A postal rate increase was granted during 1976 and the Bureau deliveries amounted to 31.5 billion stamps.

(c) Food coupons.—Production of the program is the joint responsibility of the Bureau and the private sector. The Bureau maintains the administrative functions and responsibilities to control the Food Coupon Program. The current and budget year production is approximately 47% less than actual production for 1976. Work volume amounted to 2.2 billion in 1976.

(d) Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government.

(e) Commissions, certificates, et cetera.—This program represents a small portion of the Bureau's total workload.

2. Destruction of securities and space utilized by other agencies.—Charges are made to other agencies for services provided for space they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Other direct charges for miscellaneous services.—Charges for a wide variety of miscellaneous services performed by Bureau personnel are made to the agencies concerned on an actual cost basis.

Bureau operations resulted in a loss of $691 thousand in 1976. This loss will be recovered from any profits accruing in subsequent years, in accordance with the provisions of 31 U.S.C. 181.

An appropriation of $10 million is being requested in 1978 to increase the capital of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing fund. This will increase the capital of the fund to $55.7 million, represented by appropriations of $19.2 million, surcharge of $18.5 million, and donated assets of $18.0 million.

2. Processing deposits and issues of monetary metals and coins.—This activity includes disbursements of coins; moving, shipping, storing, and verifying bullion and coin; receipt of gold and silver bullion for exchange and settlement of international balances; and counting and classifying uncurrent coins returned to the Mints for recoinage. Total coins actually shipped in 1976 were 10.7 billion. Estimated for 1977 and 1978 are 11.2 billion and 11.5 billion, respectively.

3. Protection of monetary metals and coins.—Protection of the Government's holdings of gold and silver bullion and coin is maintained by armed guards and modern protective devices.

4. Refining gold and silver bullion.—Gold and silver bullion are refined in order to facilitate accountability, protection, and storage, and to bring the bullion up to a degree of purity suitable for use in the world markets.

5. Executive direction.—This provides for the overall management of the Bureau of the Mint.
