¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1976, $213 thousand; TQ, $174 thousand; 1977, $88 thousand; 1978, $146 thousand.

This appropriation provides for the overall planning and direction of the Internal Revenue Service, for management of the Service's support programs and for internal audit and internal security. This 1978 appropriation request provides for maintaining at minimum levels both the Service's support programs and those programs concerned with sound internal procedures and employee integrity. Additional resources are requested for implementing the Tax Reform Act of 1976.

1. Executive direction.—This activity sets policies and goals, provides the research and planning necessary for orderly and effective accomplishment of the Revenue Service's mission, provides leadership and direction in the execution of plans, and provides for the administrative support of all operations.

2. Internal audit and security.—This activity establishes and verifies maintenance of quality controls in the Revenue Service. It provides a continuing and independent review of all Revenue Service operations, thereby assuring the Commissioner and operational managers that appropriated funds are spent only for authorized purposes, that tax revenues are properly safeguarded, and that public confidence in the integrity of Revenue Service employees is maintained.

1 Includes capital outlay as follows: 1976, $10,332 thousand; TQ, $12,531 thousand; 1977, $4,583 thousand; 1978 $8,561 thousand.

This appropriation provides for processing tax returns and related documents, and maintaining accurate, current taxpayer accounts by means of an automated system. It also provides for taxpayer assistance and for collecting delinquent taxes and securing unfiled returns. Statistical reporting responsibilities of the Internal Revenue Service also come under this appropriation.

1. Data processing operations.—This activity provides for all actions associated with the mailing out of tax return forms and instructions, receipt of completed returns and payments, deposit of the payments, and verification through an automated master file system of the accuracy of information provided on the tax returns. It provides for payment of refunds, offset of refunds against delinquent accounts, issuance of notices that payments are overdue, identification of possible nonfilers for investigation, and assistance in the selection of tax returns for audit.

2. Collection.—This activity is responsible for collecting unpaid taxes and securing unfiled returns.

3. Taxpayer service.—This activity aids voluntary compliance with Federal tax laws on the part of all taxpayers by informing them of their responsibilities and by providing service which will assist them in meeting their obligations.

4. Statistical reporting.—This activity prepares statistical information on income and on various features of the tax system, performs other statistical research, and forecasts the number of tax returns to be filed by type, size, and geographical area.

The resources requested for 1978 are to keep pace with workload resulting from growth in population and the economy, and to maintain programs at 1977 levels. Additional resources are requested for the further development of an information returns program, which associates information documents with tax returns; for implementation of the Tax Reform Act of 1976; and for the President's program against high-level drug traffickers.

This appropriation provides for detecting and correcting noncompliance with the tax laws. The resources requested for 1978 are necessary to maintain 1977 program levels. Additional resources are requested for enhancing the President's program against high-level drug traffickers and for implementing the Tax Reform Act of 1976.

1. Audit of tax returns.—This activity provides for a selective examination of tax returns to see if taxpayers have properly complied with the internal revenue laws. It corrects errors and explains corrections to the taxpayers. It also makes determinations as to whether certain organizations or funds are exempt from taxation.

2. Tax fraud and special investigations.—This activity provides for enforcement of the criminal statutes relating to violations of tax laws. It investigates cases of suspected intent to defraud, recommends prosecution as warranted, and assists in the preparation and trial of criminal tax cases.

3. Taxpayer conferences and appeals.—This activity provides for administrative consideration and settlement of taxpayer appeals of audit findings.

4. Technical rulings and services.—This activity develops tax return forms, instructions, and guides; issues rulings and opinions as to application of the tax laws, and meets with taxpayer groups to review and resolve special tax problems.

5. Legal services.—This activity comprises the legal counsel and legal assistance needed by the Service to administer and enforce the internal revenue laws.

6. Employee plans.—This activity monitors private pension plans to insure compliance with the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

7. Exempt organizations.—This activity determines whether organizations seeking tax-exempt status meet certain tests to qualify, and examines tax returns of those organizations to insure compliance with such an exemption. It also examines the returns of private foundations to insure payment of proper excise taxes.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966 solely to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lien holder's equity, but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances, if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

The Secret Service is responsible for protection of the President and other officials, investigating counterfeiting of currency and check forgeries, protection of the White House and various other buildings within Washington, D.C.

1. Suppression of counterfeiting, investigating check and bond forgeries, protection of individuals, buildings and grounds, and safeguarding Government securities.—The Service must provide for the protection of the President of the United States, members of his immediate family, the President-elect, the Vice President and members of his immediate family, or other officer next in the order of succession to the Office of the President, and the Vice President-elect, and the members of their immediate families unless the members decline such protection; protection of the person of a visiting head of a foreign state or foreign government and, at the direction of the President, other distinguished foreign visitors to the United States and official representatives of the United States performing special missions abroad; the protection of persons who are determined to be major Presidential or Vice Presidential candidates unless such protection is declined; upon request of a Presidential or Vice Presidential nominee of a major political party, as determined by the Secretary after consultation with the advisory committee, the Secretary may authorize the U.S. Secret Service to furnish protection to the spouse of such major Presidential or Vice Presidential nominee, except that such protection shall not commence more than 60 days prior to the general Presidential election; the protection of the person of a former President and his wife during his lifetime, the protection of the person of the widow of a former President until her death or remarriage, and minor children of a former President until they reach 16 years of age, unless such protection is declined. The Service is also responsible for investigation of counterfeiting of currency, specie, and securities; forgery and altering of Government checks and bonds; and criminal and noncriminal cases.

The Executive Protective Service protects the Executive Residence and grounds in the District of Columbia; any building in which White House offices are located; the President and members of his immediate family; the residence of the Vice President and grounds in the District of Columbia; the Vice President and members of his immediate family; foreign diplomatic missions located in the Washington metropolitan area and such other areas as the President may direct on a case-by-case basis.

The Treasury Security Force is responsible for safeguarding paper currency and other Government securities and obligations that are contained in the Main Treasury Building and its Annex in Washington, D.C.

2. Payments to State and local governments for protection of foreign diplomatic missions under extraordinary circumstances.—When an extraordinary protective need exists, payments to State and local governments can be provided for protection of permanent foreign diplomatic and observer missions attached to an international organization of which the United States is a member.

The Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. In accordance with 12 U.S.C. 481 assessments paid by national banks are not construed to be Government funds. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the bureau in any of its operations.

The Administrator of National Banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed, onsite examinations, the latter conducted by a staff of approximately 2,300 national bank examiners. There are approximately 4,700 national banks with 16,000 operating branches and total consolidated domestic and foreign assets of $653.9 billion. As a result of the reports submitted and the examinations conducted, the bureau determines the financial condition of individual national banks and the system as a whole, the soundness of operations and compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank, and applications from banks to establish branches.

The Comptroller of the Currency promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks, bank directors, et cetera, and publishes them as manuals so that they are readily available to the interested parties.

Legislation is proposed to delete the requirement for appropriations to the Secretary of the Treasury for the purchase of fund anticipation notes to capitalize the Railroad improvement and rehabilitation fund, thereby eliminating the need for Treasury to handle these debt transactions as budgetary transactions. The current requirement results in double counting of budget authority on the part of Treasury and Transportation. This change in legislation in no way hinders the Department of Transportation from exercising its agency debt authority, but merely allows its treatment in the same manner as all other debt transactions.

TAXABLE MUNICIPAL BOND OPTION

In order to improve the efficiency of the municipal bond market, it is proposed that State and local governments be given the option to issue taxable securities in return for a Federal subsidy equal to 30% of the net interest cost. To prevent overloading the municipal market with bonds which essentially depend on private or Federal credit, it is recommended that industrial development bonds and federally guaranteed financing which also adversely affect the Treasury securities market, be limited to the taxable market. Industrial development bonds required to be issued in the taxable market might be provided a Federal interest subsidy for a portion of the net interest costs.

Legislation is proposed to delete the requirement for appropriations to the Internal Revenue Service for the purpose of funding amounts to taxpayers in instances where the earned income credit exceeds the amount of tax liability owed.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—TREASURY DEPARTMENT

SEC. 101. Appropriations in this Act to the Treasury Department shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-2) including maintenance, repairs, and cleaning; purchase of insurance for official motor vehicles operated in foreign countries; entering into contracts with the Department of State for the furnishing of health and medical services to employees and their dependents serving in foreign countries; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 102. Motor vehicles for police-type use by the Treasury Department may be purchased without regard to the general purchase price limitation for the current fiscal year. (Treasury Department Appropriations Act, 1977.)

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

THIS ACT

SEC. 501. Where appropriations in this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amount set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration; or to payments to interagency motor pools where separately set forth in the budget schedules.

SEC. 502. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to pay the salary of any person filling a position, other than a temporary position, formerly held by an employee who has left to enter the Armed Forces of the United States and has satisfactorily completed his period of active military or naval service and has within ninety days after his release from such service or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year made application for restoration to his former position and has been certified by the Civil Service Commission as still qualified to perform the duties of his former position and has not been restored thereto.

SEC. 503. No part of any appropriation made available in this Act shall be used for the purchase or sale of real estate or for the purpose of establishing new offices inside or outside the District of Columbia: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to programs which have been approved by the Congress and appropriations made therefor.

SEC. 504. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 505. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the procurement of or for the payment of the salary of any person engaged in the procurement of any hand or measuring tool(s) not produced in the United States or its possessions except to the extent that the Administrator of General Services or his designee shall determine that a satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of hand or measuring tools produced in the United States or its possessions cannot be procured as and when needed from sources in the United States and its possessions or except in accordance with procedures prescribed by section 6-104.4 (b) of Armed Services Procurement Regulation dated January 1, 1969, as such regulation existed on June 15, 1970. This section shall be applicable to all solicitations for bids opened after its enactment.

SEC. 506. The General Services Administration is authorized to negotiate and accept the conveyance to the United States of approximately 930 acres of land presently owned by Skyway-to-Highway, Incorporated adjacent to the West and Northwest boundaries of Dulles International Airport; in exchange for conveyance to Skyway-to-Highway, Incorporated of property of approximately equal value selected by the General Services Administration from any surplus Federal real properties. Acceptance by the United States of any exchange proposal is contingent upon review by the appropriate committees of the Congress.

SEC. 507. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the procurement of, or for the payment of, the salary of any person engaged in the procurement of stainless steel flatware not produced in the United States or its possessions, except to the extent that the Administrator of General Services or his designee shall determine that a satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of stainless steel flatware produced in the United States or its possessions, cannot be procured as and when needed from sources in the United States and its possessions, or except in accordance with procedures provided by section 6-104.4(b) of Armed Services Procurement Regulation, dated January 1, 1969. This section shall be applicable to all solicitations for bids issued after its enactment. (Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, 1977.)

The Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) is responsible for directing and conducting research and development on domestic sources of energy, for carrying out nuclear energy functions related to national defense and fuel production; and conducting basic research in the physical, biomedical, and environmental sciences.

Research and development is conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, private firms, nonprofit organizations, and other Federal agencies, as well as ERDA's laboratories.

1. Conservation research and development.—(a) The principal objectives of the electric energy systems and energy storage program are: to assist the private sector in assuring that the Nation's future electric energy system is reliable, efficient and environmentally acceptable, and accommodates, in an optimal way, new electric energy production and storage technologies, whether centrally located (e.g. energy parks) or dispersed (e.g. solar heating and cooling, windmills, fuel cells, battery storage); and to develop improved energy storage systems for use with solar energy systems, electric power generation, automotive propulsion, building heating and cooling, and industrial processes.

Major emphasis in 1978 will be directed toward resolving technical problems in regional and national bulk power systems and prototype development of electric transmission and distribution concepts. The storage area will concentrate on storage systems based on advanced batteries, mechanical concepts (such as flywheels and compressed air), and chemical and thermal storage devices.

(b) The major objectives of the program in end use conservation and technologies to improve efficiency are to conduct energy saving research, development and demonstration in the three sectors that are the primary energy consumers of the Nation; industry, buildings, and transportation; and the development of energy conversion techniques applicable to the end use sectors. To accomplish this objective the program proposes to:

- (1) Encourage private sector development and introduction of energy efficient technologies;
- (2) Develop new energy efficient technologies;
- (3) Develop systems which will reduce the dependence on petroleum and natural gas; and
- (4) Disseminate information about new technologies concerning energy efficient systems.

The major 1978 efforts will promote utilization of energy efficient technologies that will reduce the dependence on petroleum and natural gas.

2. Fossil energy development.—Coal.—The principal objectives of this program are to accelerate the development of environmentally acceptable technology for converting coal to liquid and gaseous fuels; to stimulate improved methods for the direct combustion of coal; to foster the rapid development of advanced power conversion systems including magnetohydrodynamics for generating electricity from coal; to validate the technical, economic, and environmental acceptability of second generation coal processes by designing, building and operating near-commercial scale modules; and to expand the technological base to support the evolving coal conversion and utilization technologies.

Funds for 1978 provide for necessary program acceleration associated with scale-up activities during technological development. The 1978 budget also provides for long-lead procurement for a donor solvent process pilot plant, construction of a hydrogen from coal facility, long-lead procurement and verification testing of open cycle gas turbine system components, and accelerated development of the MHD component development and integration facility.

Petroleum and natural gas.—The goals of this program are to develop and demonstrate by 1985, in cooperation with industry, enhanced oil and gas recovery technologies to increase production flow rates of oil and natural gas. A fundamental research technology program and supportive research activities will be continued in order to take maximum advantage of new technology as it is discovered.

The 1978 budget includes incremental funding of pilot and field demonstration projects begun in 1976 and 1977 and the addition of several new efforts.

Oil shale in situ technology.—The objectives of this program are to provide the technological base to support development of a commercial oil shale and gas industry; and to support development of technologies capable of improving total resource recovery and reducing environmental impacts and water requirements. A commercial technology for converting coal in place into low and medium Btu gas by 1985 is part of this objective. The program will support the transfer of this technology into the commercial industrial sector through cooperative programs with industry.

In 1978 it is planned to expand promising field technology trials, and to continue development of second generation shale oil technology.

3. Solar energy development.—The overall goal of the national solar energy program is to develop and demonstrate at an early date those solar systems and applications that are economically attractive and environmentally acceptable for significantly supplementing U.S. energy resources. In meeting this goal the solar energy program has been organized in four major subprograms, involving R. & D. on three specific solar technologies and their applications. These subprograms are: (a) thermal applications, (b) solar electric applications, (c) fuels from biomass, and (d) technology support and utilization.

In 1978 major emphasis will be placed on conducting R. & D. that may lead to technological and economic breakthroughs for solar electric technologies. The approach includes development of several technologies for commercial assessment: wind systems as an initial contributor; photovoltaic and solar thermal electric systems for peak and intermediate electric load applications; and ocean thermal for base load in the long term.

4. Geothermal energy development.—The objective of the ERDA geothermal program is to provide the Nation with an option to develop and utilize the substantial geothermal resources which exist in the United States. The strategy for attaining that objective includes: (a) the reduction of uncertainties in the assessment of geothermal resources; (b) encouragement of the present geothermal industry to develop identified hydrothermal resources and thus strengthen confidence within the industry, so that it will use newly emerging technologies to exploit the larger geopressured and hot dry rock resources; (c) assistance to industry in developing the advanced technologies needed to exploit geopressured and hot dry rock resources; and (d) resolution of legal, institutional, and environmental impediments to commercial development of geothermal energy.

In 1978, advances in geothermal drilling and utilization techniques will be pursued to bring them closer to the point of readiness for practical application. Efforts to improve exploration techniques and to predict more accurately the characteristics of geothermal reservoirs will be expanded. Development of technologies for using hydrothermal resources for both electric power generation and nonelectric applications will be continued. A project will be initiated to demonstrate the readiness of hydrothermal technology for commercial application. A concerted effort will be made to better understand the properties of geopressed resources, including their behavior under production conditions. Extraction technology development for hot dry rock will be continued. Environmental implications of geothermal energy development will be assessed and control technologies developed to meet environmental standards. Finally, the economic, institutional, legal, and regulatory problems facing geothermal energy will continue to be addressed.

5. Fusion power research and development.—(a) Magnetic fusion.—The goal of the magnetic fusion program is to develop pure fusion central power stations for commercial applications. The program is based on the assumption that, because of the promise of a nearly inexhaustible fuel supply and relatively low environmental impact, it is in the national interest to develop and demonstrate the scientific feasibility of concepts which might lead to the realization of economically competitive fusion power production. Primary emphasis in 1978 will be directed toward developing sufficient physical understanding of plasma behavior to confine plasmas at the temperatures, densities, and confinement times necessary to produce useful net energy. Engineering development will also be conducted in parallel and coordinated with the scientific studies of plasma production, containment and heating to provide the technological base for near-term experimentation and ultimately for fusion power reactors. Augmenting these efforts will be the more fundamental theoretical studies and more basic relevant experimental studies essential to the understanding of plasma behavior in both simple and complex magnetic field configurations.

(b) Laser fusion.—The objectives of this program are to provide for the determination of the scientific feasibility of laser and electron beam initiated thermonuclear burn using principles of inertial confinement and the application of this technology to weapons effects simulation, weapons physics modeling, military power systems, and commercial power production.

Major emphasis in 1978 will be placed upon the continued utilization of existing laser facilities to obtain additional information and understanding concerning laser-matter interactions, conduct of laser-matter interaction experiments and prototype development in support of a proposed high energy laser facility at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, and identification and evaluation of alternate lasing media which have characteristics for achievement of important program milestones. The 1978 budget includes increases for gas laser research and development, the design and fabrication of more efficient target pellets, development of improved diagnostic equipment, identification of new and more efficient laser media, conduct of target interaction experiments, and heavy ion fusion research.

6. Fuel cycle research and development.—The 1978 uranium resource assessment subprogram provides for accelerated efforts to provide data for industry use in the search for new sources of uranium, to develop an in-depth, nationwide evaluation of potential uranium resources by 1981, and to conduct investigations to develop new concepts and techniques to help industry provide adequate supplies of uranium feed to support the growth of nuclear power. The support of the nuclear fuel cycle subprogram will continue its work to develop basic technologies for the reprocessing of spent reactor fuels and to recover uranium and plutonium with emphasis on the safeguards and environmental aspects of these plants. Light water reactor activities include hardware testing of the feasibility of alternative fuel cycles to reprocessing and recycle, and design and engineering of large-scale waste solidification and plutonium conversion facilities. Work will also progress in engineering equipment for high temperature gas-cooled reactor fuel reprocessing, and in the major effort of testing process and equipment concepts suitable for scaleup in liquid metal fast breeder reactor fuel reprocessing plants. Major efforts in the waste management (commercial) subprogram include selection of the first two sites for terminal storage pilot plants, continuation of research on methods to process radioactive waste into safer, more stable forms, and studies supporting these efforts, for example the generic environmental impact statement, will be completed in 1978.

7. Liquid metal fast breeder reactor (LMFBR).—The objective of this program is to develop information on economics, safety, and environmental impact and to demonstrate powerplant and fuel fabrication facility operation for a commercial LMFBR energy system. This information and these demonstrations together with information and demonstrations from the fuel cycle research and development program will provide the basis for a determination in 1986 on the acceptability of widespread commercial deployment of LMFBR's. This timetable will allow initial commercial deployment in the early 1990's, in time to preclude total depletion of economically recoverable domestic uranium resources. The LMFBR program is structured to provide the prerequisite information by 1986 and to stimulate the major capital investments by utilities and LMFBR system manufacturers.

As part of the objective, the LMFBR program includes the development of LMFBR plant and component technology and also fuel fabrication capability. Key technology areas which must continue to be investigated to meet the program objective include: development and testing of high breeding gain fuels in the fast flux test facility (FFTF) so that the LMFBR can realize its full potential to meet increasing national energy requirements; development of materials that will maintain integrity under the operating conditions encountered in breeder cores; development and testing of reliable, full-size breeder plant components and establishment of a competitive industrial supply; investigation of specific safety related concerns to enhance the reliability and economic position of LMFBR plant designs; and demonstration of licensability, operability, and reliability of a breeder reactor in a utility power grid.

Major programmatic actions to be continued or initiated in 1978 include: completion of large plant studies leading to the baseline conceptual design for the prototype large breeder reactor and follow-on large plants; completion of construction and start of sodium fill of the FFTF; expansion of activity on the Clinch River breeder reactor project (CRBRP) as construction, hardware testing, and component deliveries begin; continued operation of testing facilities supporting the design and development of the CRBRP, prototype large breeder reactor, and follow-on LMFBR plants; continuation of reactor physics, fuels, reactor analysis, materials and chemistry technology activities in direct support of FFTF, CRBRP and follow-on plants; expansion of systems development efforts and prototype design for very large components; expansion of safety research to provide a broader technical data base and more economic options to designers of large plants; and completion of conceptual design for major test facilities required to support the Administrator's decision on commercialization which will be made in 1986.

8. Nuclear research and applications.—This program supports technology development and demonstration in a variety of areas related to nuclear fission power and its applications. The overall objective of the program is to develop and demonstrate advanced technologies for the nuclear option. The strategy is to assess new nuclear energy technologies, develop those technologies which show promise of advancing the safe and economic use of nuclear energy, and demonstrate the practical application of these technologies for a variety of electrical and thermal energy uses to which nuclear energy is especially suited. The nuclear systems must be made available at competitive costs while adhering to stringent standards of safety, quality, and reliability.

Efforts will continue in 1978 to develop and confirm the capability of breeding in a pressurized water reactor through the design, fabrication, operation, and testing of a breeder reactor core in the Shippingport Atomic Power Station.

The 1978 activity related to gas cooled reactors is being reoriented based upon the results of a technology evaluation completed in 1976. Research emphasis is being shifted from the high temperature gas reactor steam cycle to the advanced concepts: the gas cooled fast breeder reactor and the advanced high temperature reactor. The results of a gas cooled reactor technology commercialization study being performed in 1977 will be used to determine specific emphasis. Light water reactor technology efforts will be continued in 1978 to improve the availability of nuclear powerplants.

A broad range of technologies, having potential for impact on several key national energy, environmental and defense objectives, will be investigated. These include applied technology in static and dynamic power conversion, thermionics and dry cooling towers. The 1978 program also includes development of specialized power systems for unique applications by other government agencies.

The recent successes of space missions with radioisotope power sources is indicative of the important role of lightweight, long-life nuclear power sources for space exploration. In 1978 efforts will continue the support given to specific NASA and DOD requirements.

Three competing advanced isotope separation technologies will be developed during 1978 to the point where a selection can be made at the end of the year for further scale-up of the most promising concept. In addition, other new concepts of uranium enrichment and separation of isotopes other than uranium will be investigated.

Studies and other evaluations will continue in 1978 to assess nuclear energy concepts and associated fuel support facilities and services. A large part of this effort will be devoted to studying alternative nuclear power technologies and fuel cycles that could eliminate or reduce the need to separate plutonium and other fissile materials, or otherwise make them inaccessible. Included will be an analysis of concepts for reprocessing LMFBR fuel which could offer certain nonproliferation advantages.

10. Environmental research and development.—The primary goal of this program is to assure the environmental, health, and safety acceptability of energy technologies being developed. The first area of responsibility is comprised of widely diversified activities in overview and assessment, a subprogram which encompasses overview management, environmental policy analysis, integrated assessment, environmental engineering, and safety standards, and compliance. The 1978 budget for the overview and assessment subprogram includes strengthened efforts in the following areas: overview management functions, including oversight of ERDA's National Environmental Policy Act responsibilities; environmental engineering, including evaluation of the environmental effects of advanced disposal methods, assessment of the adequacy of planned environmental control technology, and energy materials transportation; and safety studies for the development of operational guidelines for ERDA facilities.

The second major area of responsibility is addressed through the biomedical and environmental research subprogram which provides data on the health and environmental effects of pollutants released by online and developing energy technologies. In the biomedical and environmental research subprogram, health and environmental studies are being expanded in support of energy technology development programs. Major expansions are for characterization of coal liquefaction and gasification and geothermal related pollutants and their effects on man and experimental animal systems and in their transport and effects in the environment.

11. Life sciences research and biomedical applications.—Two subprograms carry on research not specifically related to energy production or use. The general life sciences subprogram provides the fundamental conceptual basis for further understanding of physical and chemical agent interference with life processes in ecological systems and animal populations including human beings. Work will continue on long-term research providing additional biological basis for estimating health risks to man and his environment. The biomedical applications subprogram includes efforts to utilize the unique properties of stable and radioactive isotopes for detection of pathological changes that lead to diseases in human populations and the development of diagnostic hardware for isotopic probes. In 1978 efforts will continue to facilitate the transfer of nuclear technology to medical applications and to provide the medical community with advanced diagnostic and therapeutic methodologies utilizing radiation and radioisotopes.

12. High energy physics.—This program studies the interaction and transformations among the ultimate constituents of matter and searches for new phenomena and new laws of nature, as well as a better understanding of the existing laws of nature. The conduct of high energy physics research depends primarily upon the utilization of four accelerator facilities and one colliding beam facility. In 1978 utilization of these facilities will be increased in order to exploit recent theoretical and experimental advances which have been recognized by the award of the 1976 Nobel Prize in Physics to two U.S. high energy physicists.

13. Nuclear physics.—This program is concerned with advanced experimental and theoretical studies of the properties and dynamics of atomic nuclei and the characterization of the strong force which governs the interaction between nucleons. Nuclei offer a unique microscopic laboratory for the study of forces, symmetries, and conservation laws. This research is largely being explored through the use of probes available from the medium energy and heavy ion accelerator facilities. A variety of nuclear phenomena involving fundamental changes in shape and structure of nuclei can be studied by collisions of heavy ions. The possible existence of "abnormal" states of nuclear matter will be explored in 1978. The increased utilization of medium energy and heavy ion accelerator facilities will permit further fundamental research on atomic nuclei to be emphasized in 1978.

14. Basic energy sciences.—The objective of this program is to develop scientific understanding of physical phenomena basic to the energy technologies of all ERDA programs. The basic energy sciences program is a broad based integral source of fundamental input to ERDA's energy related programs. In 1978, the materials science subprogram plans to emphasize materials research of potential value to solar technology, conservation technology, and coal conversion systems in the technical areas of metallurgy, ceramics, materials chemistry, and solid state physics. The molecular, mathematical, and geosciences subprogram will be expanding or initiating studies in the area of chemical physics and engineering science of combustion, atomic physics, basic chemistry of coal, energy geosciences, mathematical modeling of energy systems and processes, solar photochemistry, fuel-forming catalysis and advance computations in chemistry. The nuclear science subprogram plans research potentially important to reactor safety and beneficial to waste management problems. The advanced energy projects subprogram will perform research in such areas as the extraction of electrical energy from the atmosphere and tidal wave energy.

15. Nuclear materials security and safeguards.—An expanded program effort in 1978 is directed primarily to conceiving and designing integrated safeguards systems for nuclear power fuel cycle facilities; evaluating the cost effectiveness of system concept designs by testing and evaluating in an operating environment, equipment, modular subsystems and systems for the physical protection, control and accountability of special nuclear materials, and detection and recovery of nuclear materials; and applying improved assessment capabilities for further development and refinement of safeguards systems and subsystems analysis techniques; and supporting the International Atomic Energy Agency programs in assuring nuclear materials are not being diverted by foreign countries from their peaceful use.

In support of safeguards assessments there will be increased effort to provide improved assessment capabilities through further development and refinement of: internal and aided diversion analysis; cost effectiveness model techniques; safeguards threat analysis especially the capability for rapid, computerized evaluation of the credibility of threats; and information system requirements.

16. Naval reactor development.—The naval reactor development program provides for the design and development of improved naval nuclear propulsion plants and reactor cores having high reliability, maximum simplicity, and optimum fuel life to meet the military requirements of the Department of Defense. During 1978 efforts will continue on improving existing submarine and surface ship reactor core and plant technology, and on developing new advanced reactor concepts and propulsion plants including the development of a propulsion plant for the Trident ballistic missile submarines.

18. Uranium enrichment.—This program provides for continued operation of the gaseous diffusion plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; and Portsmouth, Ohio; for the enrichment of uranium for fuel in nuclear power reactors including process development work on the gaseous diffusion and gas centrifuge enrichment processes.

The 1978 request for the diffusion plants includes the toll enriching of feed materials from the private sector resulting in toll enriching revenues budgeted under the enrichment revenues program. The major program increase is for the increased usage and cost of electricity required to operate the cascades.

Enrichment revenues (toll enriching only).—This program includes: (a) The income related to the service of toll enriching natural uranium for use as a fuel in nuclear power reactors for foreign and domestic customers; and (b) the advance payments related to the signing of long-term, fixed-commitment contracts. Under toll enriching, the customer supplies the feed to ERDA in the form of uranium hexafluoride (UF₆) of normal assay and ERDA processes the UF₆ in the gaseous diffusion plants to the level of enrichment in the U-235 isotope specified by the customers. The revenues received are applied in the budget to reduce the appropriation requirements of ERDA.

19. National security.—(a) Weapons activities.—This program provides for the design, development, and underground testing of new nuclear weapons, the participation with the Department of Defense in the development of test detection and verification methods; the production of nuclear weapons; and the maintenance of stockpile weapons in the Department of Defense. During 1978 weapons production efforts will increase to reflect increasing Department of Defense requirements.

(b) Special materials production.—This program provides for the production of special nuclear materials (principally plutonium) to meet weapons production requirements of the Department of Defense and reactor and other program requirements of ERDA. This program also provides for the management of defense radioactive waste. The 1978 estimates provide for the continued operation of three production reactors at Savannah River and the N reactor at Richland, the operation of four chemical separation plants, two at Savannah River and one each in Washington and Idaho, and waste management facilities. Emphasis will be placed on increasing material production and the development of technology for long-term isolation of defense waste.

20. Program management and support.—This activity provides the necessary support for the programs of ERDA.

(a) Program direction.—This program covers the salaries, travel and other costs associated with the program direction and administration of ERDA.

(b) Institutional relations.—This program provides technical information services; interim financial support to Los Alamos, N. Mex., and Oak Ridge, Tenn.; energy manpower needs and systems assessment; and education and training to assure an adequate supply of manpower for the accomplishment of ERDA's programs.

(c) Supporting activities.—Security investigations are conducted as required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended, for those persons who require access to restricted data. General systems studies provides planning and analytical support for ERDA management. The equal employment opportunity (assigned facilities) program provides for carrying out ERDA's responsibilities for contract compliance under Executive Orders 11246 and 11375. The decontamination and decommissioning program is responsible for the safe management and disposition of surplus radioactively contaminated ERDA facilities and sites. An increase in 1978 is to accelerate disposal of surplus radioactively contaminated facilities.

Under this program, ERDA supports selected coal conversion research projects in foreign facilities. Other energy technologies under consideration for future support in 1978 are enhanced oil recovery, fuels from biomass, solar thermal and solar electric applications. Activities carried out under this appropriation are authorized by the Agricultural Trade and Development Assistance Act of 1954, as amended.

This appropriation provides for construction of plants and facilities and for acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction required to support the activities of the Energy Research and Development Administration. Of the budget authority of $2,233.2 million being requested for 1978, $1,855.8 million applies to new construction projects or new modifications of existing facilities to be authorized in 1978 and to construction projects which were previously authorized by Congress, and $377.4 million is required for acquisition of capital equipment not related to construction.

1. Conservation research and development.—Funding is requested to provide essential laboratory space for a high bay test area to test superconducting power transmission lines presently under development at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, Los Alamos, N. Mex. Funding is also requested for two energy conservation demonstration projects at ERDA facilities.

2. Fossil energy development—Coal.—Funding is requested for an analytical research chemistry and coal carbonization laboratory and two demonstration plants.

3. Solar energy development.—Funding is requested for the previously authorized 5 MW solar thermal test facility, and for the 10 MW central receiver solar thermal pilot plant which will be cost shared by the Government and a utility partner.

5. Fusion power research and development.—(a) Magnetic fusion.—Funding is requested for new mirror experiment facilities, Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, Livermore, Calif. Additional funding is requested for two projects which were previously authorized: the Tokamak fusion test reactor, Plainsboro, N.J., and the 14-megaelectron-volt intense neutron source facility, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, Los Alamos, N. Mex.

(b) Laser fusion.—Funding is requested for a high-energy laser facility at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and for two projects which were previously authorized: electron beam fusion facilities, Sandia Laboratories, N. Mex.; and high-energy laser facility, Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory, Los Alamos, N. Mex.

6. Fuel cycle research and development.—Funding is requested for design activities and land acquisition for waste disposal pilot plants for the national waste terminal storage program and a liquid metal fast breeder reactor integrated prototype equipment test facility, Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge, Tenn.

7. Liquid metal fast breeder reactor.—This program includes funds for the following new construction projects: plant component test facilities, Liquid Metal Engineering Center, Santa Susana, Calif.; safety research experimental facility, Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL), Idaho; fuels and materials examination facility, Hanford Engineering Development Laboratory (HEDL), Wash.; modifications to reactors and special nuclear materials safeguards and security upgrading, Argonne National Laboratory at INEL, Idaho and Chicago, Ill. Funding is also requested for two projects initiated in 1977 for which full authorization is proposed in 1978: the high-performance fuel laboratory, HEDL, Washington, and the fuel storage facility, HEDL, Washington and for the fast flux test facility, which was previously authorized.

8. Nuclear research and applications.—Funding is requested for the design of a laser isotope separation facility, site undetermined.

10. Environmental research and development.—Funding is requested for new construction projects, includes modifications and additions to biomedical and environmental research facilities.

12. High energy physics.—Funding is requested for accelerator improvements and modifications; master substation reliability and capacity improvements; and for the positron-electron joint project which was previously authorized.

13. Nuclear physics.—Funds are requested for accelerator and reactor improvements and modifications and the high-intensity uranium beams, Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, Berkeley, Calif.

14. Basic energy sciences.—The new construction projects for which funding is requested include a combustion research facility and a national synchrotron radiation source facility. Funding is also requested for conversion of steam plant facilities which was previously authorized.

16. Naval reactor development.—Additional funding is requested for the S8G prototype nuclear propulsion plant, Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, which was previously authorized.

18. Uranium enrichment.—The new construction projects for which funding is requested include: Centrifuge facilities modifications, various locations; process control modifications, gaseous diffusion plants, various locations; and water system improvements, gaseous diffusion plant, Paducah, Ky. Previously authorized projects for which additional funding is required in 1978 include: Expansion of feed vaporization and sampling facilities, gaseous diffusion plants, multiple sites; centrifuge plant demonstration facility, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; conversion of existing steam plants to coal capability, gaseous diffusion plants and Feed Materials Production Center, Fernald, Ohio; cascade uprating program, gaseous diffusion plants; process equipment modifications, gaseous diffusion plants; and additional facilities, enriched uranium production, Portsmouth, Ohio.

19. National security.—(a) Weapons activities.—Funding for new construction projects includes facilities to produce nuclear weapons for new weapon systems, new research and development technical facilities, new weapons safeguard facilities, maintenance and upgrading development and operating facilities, and core facilities to meet the needs of expanding programs.

(b) Special materials production.—The new construction projects include high-level waste storage and waste management facilities at Richland, Wash., Savannah River, S.C., and Idaho Falls, Idaho; a new hydrofracture facility, Oak Ridge National Laboratory, Oak Ridge, Tenn.; environmental, safety, and security improvements to waste management and materials processing facilities, Richland, Wash.; powerhouse emission control improvements, Richland, Wash.; plantwide fire protection, Savannah River, S.C.; and n-reactor environmental improvements, Richland, Wash. Previously authorized projects for which additional funding is required in 1978 include: fluorine dissolution process and fuel-receiving facility, Idaho Falls, Idaho; high-level waste storage and waste management facilities, Savannah River, S.C., and Richland, Wash.; waste isolation pilot plant, Delaware Basin, Southeast, N. Mex.; safeguards and security upgrading of production facilities at multiple sites; and a new waste calcining facility, Idaho Falls, Idaho.

20. Program management and support.—Funds are requested for conceptual design of complex construction projects which are under consideration for possible future authorization.

Capital equipment funding for a wide variety of capital equipment is required to fill the various needs of all operating programs. Such needs range from routine replacement of wornout and obsolete equipment to the procurement of new research devices. Additions are needed for expanding programs and to keep pace with rapidly changing technology in the energy research and development and the atomic energy production programs.

To make available the financial resources needed for commercial development of geothermal energy, ERDA is administering a Federal loan guarantee program as authorized in the Geothermal Energy Research, Development, and Demonstration Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-410). The objectives of the loan guarantee program are: (1) To encourage and assist the private sector to accelerate development of geothermal resources by enabling the Administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration to minimize a lender's financial risk associated with the introduction of new technology; and (2) to develop normal borrower-lender relationships which will in time encourage the flow of credit without the need for Federal assistance. Implementation of the loan guarantee program will be coordinated closely with the Department of the Interior's geothermal leasing program and with ERDA's research and development effort.

Under the guarantee program ERDA will work in conjunction with venture capital companies, reservoir developers, and lease and land holders to stimulate early development of commercial electric and thermal power facilities.

1. Petroleum, natural gas, and oil shale—contributed funds.—The funds contributed by States, counties, municipalities, and private sources are used to conduct research and investigations to promote the conservation, evaluation, and development of energy resources.

2. Washington Public Power Supply System.—Funds are advanced to ERDA by the Washington Public Power Supply System (WPPSS) to pay for services furnished by ERDA in connection with the construction and operation by WPPSS of electric generating facilities at the Richland, Wash., new production reactor. The services provided by ERDA contractors include lease of land, fire protection, utilities, maintenance of equipment installed by WPPSS, engineering support and estimated reactor costs chargeable to WPPSS.

Synthetic fuels commercial demonstration projects.—The 1978 budget includes funds, consistent with the proposed 1977 Energy Research and Development Administration authorization, for financial incentives to encourage the private sector to undertake projects for the commercial demonstration of synthetic fuels production from coal, oil shale, and other domestic energy resources. It is intended that these projects be few in number and be separately proposed to and approved by the Congress. The objective is to provide, through these projects, the information necessary for future development of a synthetic fuel production capability by private industry.

Uranium enrichment revenues.—Legislation would be proposed to change the uranium enrichment services criteria to permit a fair value charge for toll enriching services.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. Not to exceed 5 per centum of appropriations made available for the current fiscal year for "Operating expenses" and "Plant and capital equipment" may be transferred between such appropriations, but neither such appropriation, except as otherwise provided herein, shall be increased by more than 5 per centum by any such transfers, and any such transfers shall be reported promptly to the Appropriations Committees of the House and Senate.

EPA's research and development efforts are conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, industries, other private commercial firms, non-profit organizations, State and local governments, and Federal agencies as well as through research and development at EPA's laboratories and field locations.

These efforts are oriented toward producing the scientific knowledge and the tools for regulating, preventing, and abating pollution and are specifically directed to the problems of air and water pollution control, water supply and radiation protection, solid and toxic waste management, pesticides control, noise abatement, and energy related environmental research and development program. Activities encompass research on the effects of pollutants on man, animals, aquatic life, plants, materials, and the general environment; research on the processes, such as dispersion that affects pollution; the development of new and improved sampling and analytical methods and instruments for measuring pollutants; the development and demonstration of new and improved technology for preventing and controlling pollution and recovery of materials from wastes; and insuring environmental protection necessary to facilitate the use of domestic energy supplies with particular emphasis on coal and nuclear systems and the concurrent development of appropriate control technologies and emerging energy systems to minimize control cost and environmental impact. Overall management and support is included.

EPA is responsible for major Federal environmental pollution abatement and control programs, including programs in air and water pollution control, water supply and radiation protection, solid and toxic waste management, pesticides control and noise abatement.

Program efforts entail developing environmental standards; monitoring and surveillance of pollution conditions; grant support for State and local pollution control planning; direct Federal pollution control planning; grant support for State, regional, and local pollution control programs; technical assistance to pollution control agencies and organizations; and assistance to Federal agencies in complying with environmental standards and insuring that their activities have minimum environmental impact. Overall management and support is included.

A 10-year funding plan of $4.5 billion per year is recommended for the waste treatment grant program contingent upon enactment of program reform legislation. The proposed reforms will reduce the long-term Federal commitment for waste treatment plant construction from $330 billion to $45 billion by focusing Federal funding on the most critical water quality improvements. The funding plan will provide the necessary long-term assurance of continued Federal funding to fulfill the Federal commitment to this program.

In the interim, pending enactment of the proposed legislation, supplemental funding of $400 million is proposed (see chapter III) to prevent States from running out of money.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Not to exceed 7 per centum of any appropriation made available to the Environmental Protection Agency by this Act (except appropriations for "Construction Grants") may be transferred to any other such appropriation.

No part of any budget authority made available to the Environmental Protection Agency by this Act or for the fiscal year [1976 and the period ending September 30, 1976,] 1977 shall be used for any grant to cover in excess of 75 per centum of the total cost of the purposes to be carried out by such grant made pursuant to the authority contained in section 208 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (Public Law 92-500). (Department of Housing and Urban Development—Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

This appropriation provides for the programs and activities relating to the promotion of maximum utilization by Federal agencies, and the transfer among agencies of excess real property. It provides for the disposal of surplus real property by sale, exchange, lease, permit or transfer to authorized organizations as well as the protection and maintenance of excess and surplus property pending its disposition. It also provides for the appraisal of excess and surplus property, for the appraisal of public buildings leases, sites, and other related building programs for Government-owned and leased buildings, as well as for the establishment of specifications, standards, and methods governing such appraisals.

1. Utilization and disposal.—In 1978 it is estimated that the sale of 185 properties, originally costing $200 million will return to the Government $50 million in proceeds. Utilization transfers should total 130 properties with an acquisition value of $110 million, and other disposal actions are expected to total 275 properties with an acquisition value of $200 million. The number of surveys to identify underutilized properties to be conducted by GSA are estimated at 120 in 1978.

2. Appraisal.—The total number of appraisals estimated for 1978 is 1,675 performed by staff and 325 performed by contract.

3. Protection and maintenance.—In 1978 it is estimated that protection and maintenance costs will reach $1,400 thousand.

Appraisers, auctioneers, and brokers familiar with local markets are used to accelerate the disposal of surplus real and related personal property. Fees of appraisers, auctioneers, and brokers and costs of advertising and surveying are paid out of receipts from disposals within each year in accordance with 40 U.S.C.A. 485(b). Also paid from such proceeds is the direct expense in connection with utilization of excess real and related personal property. Disposal appraisals totaled 370 in 1976 and are estimated to reach 415 in both 1977 and 1978.

The Federal buildings fund finances the activities of the Public Buildings Service which provides space and services for Federal agencies in a relationship similar to that of landlord and tenant. The following table details composition of the Federal buildings fund space inventory (leased and Government owned) and the employees housed in that space:

	1977 estimated		1978 estimated
	Square feet (in thousands)	Employees housed	Square feet (in thousands)	Employees housed
Office space	138,000	777,500	139,000	780,000
Storage space	65,500	6,100	63,600	6,100
Special space	29,000	55,300	29,000	58,600
Parking	50,103	-----	53,777	-----
Total	282,603	838,900	285,377	844,700

The fund, established in 1975, replaces direct appropriations by using income derived from rent assessments (standard level user charges—SLUC) which approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. SLUC income was $1,059 million in 1976 and is estimated at $1,153 million for 1977 and $1,353 million for 1978. The 1978 amounts are distributed among major executive agencies as follows (excludes reimbursable activity):

The Federal buildings fund direct program consists of the following activities:

1. Construction.—This activity provides for space acquisition through direct Federal financed construction of facilities, including the extension and conversion of existing buildings. It finances all costs directly attributable to Federal buildings fund construction projects for site acquisition, design, management and inspection, and construction. The total cost of new commitments for direct Federal financed construction is estimated at $33 million in 1977 and $17 million in 1978.

2. Alterations and major repairs.—This activity provides for alterations and major repairs of public buildings. Cost effectiveness, overall appearance, state of repair, and operating efficiency are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities of work required with primary consideration given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to the buildings, their support systems, and necessary operating equipment.

3. Purchase contract payments.—This activity provides for payment of liabilities incurred for facilities acquired under purchase contract authority. Purchase contract authority, which provided for private investment capital financing of public buildings, expired at the end of 1975. The periodic payments on the purchase contracts cover principal, interest, taxes, and other requirements.

4. Rental of space.—This activity provides for the acquisition of space through the leasing of either existing buildings, including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities, or facilities to be built with private capital for lease to the Government. Rental costs of existing commercial and Postal Service buildings are estimated to provide 90 million square feet in 1977 and 92 million square feet in 1978.

5. Real property operations.—This activity provides for operation of Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, protection, maintenance, other miscellaneous services such as moving as a result of space adjustments, moving of agencies into newly acquired space, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision of the foregoing services.

The 1978 direct program compares with the 1977 program as follows (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

Cleaning.....	177	$140	180	$149

Protection.....	188	43	192	43
Other operations.....	283	35	285	39
Total.....	---	424	---	470

6. Program direction.—This activity provides for the overall general management, long- and short-range planning, and administration of all programs which are the responsibility of the Public Buildings Service. In addition, this activity finances the costs of management and administration of each of the individual direct activities of the Federal buildings fund.

Other programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations, cleaning and other operations, and protection services which are in excess of those services provided under the standard level user charge.

This appropriation provides for Government-wide management of supplies and personal property, transportation, and public utilities services, operating the supply system and maintaining and disposing of strategic and critical materials.

1. Supply distribution.—This activity manages and operates a national supply distribution system of wholesale distribution facilities through which commercial-type commodities are received, stored, and issued to Federal agencies for domestic and overseas use. Supplies are shipped by the wholesale operation to customer agencies from GSA supply distribution facilities located in each of the 10 GSA regions. The sales estimate for 1978 is $773 million, an increase of $50.5 million over the 1977 level.

2. Procurement.—This activity has the contracting responsibility for commercial-type items required by Federal agencies and other authorized users of the Federal Supply Service system. In addition to contracting and purchasing, the Procurement activity selects commodities for inclusion in the stores, nonstores, and Federal supply schedules programs by determining the methods of supply that are most economical and effective. Total procurement volume in 1976 was $2,515 million and is estimated to increase to $2,780 million in 1977 and $3,020 million in 1978. This office is responsible for the inventory management program of FSS. Inventory levels available for issue to customer agencies are projected at $250 million for 1977 and 1978, an increase of $4 million from the 1976 level of $246 million. This increase supports a higher sales level at an improved stock turn of 3.2.

3. Standards and quality control.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or GSA supply facilities, by laboratory tests and analyses prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance. Qualitative requirements of Federal agencies for commodities are reflected in Federal specifications and Federal standards which are mandatory for use in procurement. The 1978 estimate provides for the promulgation of an estimated 1,300 Federal specifications and standards actions.

4. Transportation and public utilities.—This activity develops guides and procedures; provides assistance to agencies for improving transportation practices and passenger travel management; negotiates reasonable rates with carriers; performs audits on all Federal transportation documents; and provides procurement assistance, rates, routing, and related transportation services. In addition this activity develops Government-wide policies and procedures to improve the overall efficiency of the Government-owned motor vehicle fleet and assists the various Federal agencies with motor equipment management. The activity also negotiates with public utility companies on behalf of executive agencies and provides technical assistance in connection with regulatory proceedings concerning transportation and public utilities.

5. Customer service and support.—The customer service and support activity directs and coordinates the development and implementation of logistics programs for Federal agencies to eliminate overlap and duplication in the procurement and supply programs within the Federal Government. This activity is responsible for supply relationships with the Department of Defense and civilian agencies in the furtherance of the National Supply System objectives through interagency agreements and cross-servicing arrangements. Also, this activity monitors FSS supply effectiveness and responsiveness to Federal agency requirements and through liaison with agencies provides a channel for early identification of customer agency problems and unusual supply requirements. Continued emphasis will be placed on the customer liaison and customer market research program to increase the scope of supply and procurement support rendered by the Federal Supply Service to other Federal agencies.

This activity also manages and operates programs for processing and control of agency requisitions, commodity management, and logistics data systems.

A variety of commonly used administrative and office supplies, maintenance supplies, and standard forms are provided to Federal agencies through self-service retail facilities located wherever there is a concentration of Federal activities. Sales through these self-service stores will increase from $65.9 million in 1976 to an estimated $73.5 million in 1977 and $79.0 million in 1978.

6. Property management.—This activity manages the national and supplemental stockpile of strategic and critical materials required to keep the Nation's mobilization base viable. This includes costs of receiving, storing, inspecting, and maintaining the material in storage locations.

7. Personal property disposal.—This activity manages and operates the Government-wide excess Federal personal property program including the utilization, donation, rehabilitation, and sale of property. This embraces the personal property for public benefit purposes; sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property (except DOD property); and rehabilitation of personal property owned by the Government to extend its useful life.

8. Service direction.—This activity provides for the management and direction, both departmental and in the field, of all Federal Supply Service programs. This activity also finances, on a centralized basis, all costs for postage, intercity telephone and payments to the Federal buildings fund.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies. Supplies or services are sold from the fund at cost to other agencies and the District of Columbia. Related operating expenses are provided under the appropriation Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service.

Also financed by the fund and reimbursed by using agencies are the operations of interagency motor vehicle pools, the rehabilitation and repair of furniture and equipment, and the redistribution of materials no longer needed overseas.

Budget program.—This estimate provides for sales to both military and civilian agencies. It also provides for the operation of the credit return program.

1. Supply operations—(a) Stores, regular.—Stocks of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for sale to Government agencies. Sales were $716.7 million in 1976 and $195.7 million in the transition quarter, and are estimated at $796.0 million in 1977, and $852.0 million in 1978.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—If orders for stores-type items are sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, orders are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $41.6 million in 1976 and $7.1 million in the transition quarter and are estimated at $44.0 million in 1977, and $50.0 million in 1978.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales were $396.7 million in 1976 and $97.3 million in the transition quarter and are estimated at $448.0 million in 1977 and $479.0 million in 1978.

Export operations.—Store and nonstore items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund cover packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services. Sales were $24.9 million in 1976 and $6.8 million in the transition quarter and are estimated at $17.0 million in 1977 and $17.8 million in 1978.

Administrative equipment rental.—Administrative equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts were $2.4 million in 1976 and $0.5 million in the transition quarter and are estimated at $2.6 million in 1977 and $2.8 million in 1978.

Personal property disposal.—Furniture and equipment repair services provided through commercial sources wherever feasible and economical totaled $0.7 million in 1976 and are estimated to be $0.8 million in 1977 and 1978. Receipts to the fund covering redistribution costs of materials no longer required overseas were $0.5 million in 1976 and are expected to increase to $0.8 million in 1977 and 1978. Total revenue for the transition quarter was $0.2 million for rehabilitation operations and the overseas program.

Motor pools.—Services are provided through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales were $116.8 million in 1976 and $32.7 million in the transition quarter and are estimated at $140.8 million in 1977 and $149.5 million in 1978.

Other revenue and expense.—Gains or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1978 is estimated at $457.6 million consisting of $282.8 million of direct appropriations, $175.0 million of donated assets, with $0.2 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

Central blueprinting, photostating, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund pending reimbursements (40 U.S.C. 293). As authorized by the Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, GSA has established and operates 13 printing plants to meet the needs of GSA and other Government agencies. In addition, GSA operated 13 duplicating plants at the end of 1976 and anticipates operating the same number in 1977 and 1978.

* Includes capital outlay of $1,044 thousand in 1976, $365 thousand in TQ, $800 thousand in 1977, and $400 thousand in 1978.

This appropriation provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operation of Presidential libraries, and grants for historical publications.

In 1978, records in the National Archives and Federal records centers will total 15.0 million cubic feet. The number of reference services expected to be provided will total 19.4 million.

1. Records management and centers.—In 1978, agencies will transfer 1.3 million cubic feet of inactive records to the records centers. Records disposal from the records centers will total 0.95 million cubic feet in 1978 and the number of reference and processing services expected to be provided will total 22.5 million.

2. Archives and related services.—A substantial portion of the workload of the National Archives and related services activity is determined by the volume of reference requests received from Government agencies and the public. In 1978, the number of reference services expected to be provided is estimated at 2.1 million.

3. National Historical Publications and Records Commission.—This activity provides for carrying out the national historical documents program, established by the act of July 28, 1964 (Public Law 88-838), as amended, for grants to State and local agencies and to nonprofit organizations and for allocations to Federal agencies in connection with the publication and preservation of source materials significant to the history of the United States.

4. Service direction.—This activity provides management and overall direction of all National Archives and Records Service programs and the payment of rental and related charges to the Federal buildings fund.

This appropriation provides for the direction and coordination of a comprehensive Government-wide program for the management, procurement, and utilization of automatic data processing and communications equipment and services, development of Government-wide policy pertaining to ADP systems acquisition, management, and utilization, and the overall management of operations designed to provide specialized services to civilian agencies in each of these fields.

1. Automated data management services.—This activity provides for the overall management, control, and coordination of Government-wide programs and activities relating to the procurement of ADP and communications equipment, maintenance, and related supplies and services. The projected program for 1978 provides for the management of reimbursable ADP procurement and ADP equipment lease programs financed through the ADP fund.

2. Telecommunications services.—This activity provides for the overall management, control, and coordination of Government-wide programs and activities relating to the procurement, operation, maintenance, and utilization of telecommunications equipment and services. The projected program for 1978 provides for the management of reimbursable programs financed through the FT fund, including the design and engineering of networks and facilities for the Federal Civil Agencies.

3. Agency assistance, planning, and policy.—This activity provides for the development and coordination of operational policies, procedures, regulations, and publications governing the management, operation, and utilization of Government-wide ADP and telecommunications activities. Studies are made to determine the economic impact of ADP and telecommunications programs under development; programs of long-range research in the fields of ADP and telecommunications equipment and facilities are coordinated; overall management of the Government-wide ADP and telecommunications management information systems are provided; and the Government-wide ADP and telecommunications standardization programs are implemented. This activity is also involved in regulatory representation consisting of negotiations with the communications industry concerning consumer considerations of the Government and participation in regulatory proceedings on communications cases. The projected program for 1978 provides for the management of reimbursable teleprocessing services and Federal data processing programs financed through the ADP fund.

This fund was authorized by Public Law 87-847, approved October 23, 1962. It finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government which is a major operating component of the national communications system.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from available appropriations and funds of any agency or organization for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

The initial capital of $9 million appropriated in 1963, may be increased by donation of supplies and equipment.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in the volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1976 were $324.6 million and are estimated at $352.3 million in 1977 and $381.0 million in 1978.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which enables personnel in each Federal agency office to communicate directly with any other agency in the Nation. The system provides day-to-day service and incorporates features which would be necessary in emergency situations. Total sales for 1976 were $283.0 million and are estimated at $308.9 million in 1977 and $335.2 million in 1978.

2. Record program.—Provides a common unified records communications system to satisfy record communications requirements of the Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of data by teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. Total sales for this program are projected to increase from $28.9 million in 1976 to $29.0 million in 1977 and $30.6 million in 1978.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits and related equipment for civil agencies to obtain the benefits of multiple tariff offerings of commercial carriers, while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits. Sales are projected to increase from $9.5 million in 1976 to $10.1 million in 1977 and $10.8 million in 1978.

4. Special program.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies including GSA in keeping with the objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. This program provides assurances for the continuity of the Federal telecommunications system in the event that portions of the system are disabled or destroyed. In addition, this program provides telecommunications support to the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration in the emergency and major disaster programs. Total sales for 1976 were $3.1 million and are estimated at $4.3 million in 1977 and $4.4 million in 1978.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1977, the net investment in the fund is estimated to be $8.7 million, composed of $9.0 million appropriated, and $0.2 million donated capitalized assets less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each period and after making provision for any prior period losses, any surplus earnings are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

The Automatic data processing fund was authorized by Public Law 89-306, to coordinate and provide for the economic and efficient purchase, lease and maintenance of automatic data processing equipment by Federal agencies.

The fund finances on a reimbursable basis a Government-wide automatic data processing operation, which includes the procurement by lease, purchase, transfer, or otherwise of ADP equipment, maintenance of equipment, procurement and/or development of software programs with Government-wide application, and operation of service centers and related functions.

Budget program.—The estimate provides for a continued increase in revenue during 1977 and 1978. Sales are estimated to increase from $55,091 thousand in 1976 to $79,506 thousand in 1977 to $111,372 thousand in 1978. The responsibility for providing internal ADP services to GSA was transferred to the Office of Administration and is reflected in salaries and expenses, Administrative and staff support services in 1977 and 1978.

1. Data processing.—This activity finances the operation of a Federal data processing program which provides ADP services on a Government-wide basis. These ADP services consist of local and remote computer processing, including teleprocessing services contracts; programmer analyst, project manager, and consultant services; computer performance evaluation and simulation; general purpose software; and a full range of commercially acquired data processing services. This program also provides for financing of ADP facilities operated by two or more agencies under GSA policy guidance. In addition, this program provides financing for Federal data processing centers established by delegation of authority from GSA to be operated by other agencies under GSA policy guidance.

It is estimated that revenue from Federal data processing programs and other related operations will increase from $50,890 thousand in 1976 to $63,833 thousand in 1977 and $81,329 thousand in 1978.

2. Lease program.—This program finances the purchase and multiyear lease of ADP equipment and software from manufacturers for subsequent lease to Federal agencies at costs substantially below commercial annual lease prices. Purchases are made by the fund when special discounts with time limitations and other arrangements become available and agencies are unable to take advantage of these cost reduction opportunities due to budget cycle limitations. In addition to purchases, this program acquires excess Government-owned ADP equipment where there is a known user or the equipment has a high potential for reutilization, capitalizes it at fair market value and leases it to Federal agencies at a cost substantially below all other least cost alternatives available to the using agency. This program also finances contracts for purchase or lease of ADP equipment devices where the guarantee of minimum quantities results in volume discounts to the Government.

It is estimated that revenue from the lease program will increase from $4,201 thousand in 1976 to $15,673 thousand in 1977 and increase to $30,043 thousand in 1978.

The Federal Preparedness Agency advises and assists in the formulation, development, and coordination of national civil preparedness policies, and assists in fostering State and local participation in preparedness programs. Specific programs include:

1. Civil crisis preparedness.—Identifies and evaluates current and possible future threats to the U.S. economy by dependence on the natural, industrial, or economic resources of any foreign nation, and develops policies and programs within the Government to accommodate or avoid these dependencies. Provides information and guidance to Federal departments and agencies, State and local governments, and certain national business, labor, farm, and other organizations and the public on the employment of domestic resources during periods of present or potential economic stringency or crisis. Develops and recommends concepts, plans, and systems for managing the Nation's critical resources in a range of civil crisis contingencies.

2. Conflict preparedness.—Directs and coordinates the preparation and implementation of policies, plans, and programs to meet approved objectives for general war and controlled conflict preparedness, including planning and program guidance to Federal departments and agencies and to State and local governments; provides overall direction for the development, review, and testing of preparedness plans, facilities, and arrangements at all levels of government; directs and coordinates the necessary communications systems essential to the continuity of government program; develops programs, provides guidance, and coordinates preparedness measures for nuclear contingencies; develops international programs in support of civil emergency preparedness for general war and controlled conflict contingencies under the general policy guidance of the National Security Council, and develops general policy guidance for the preparation of plans for emergencies caused by acts of terrorism.

3. Research, development, and program coordination.—Directs and coordinates technical and scientific work programs; provides leadership and guidance in the development of an analytical base for broad nonmilitary defense policy; develops a central research and development program designed to carry out assigned Executive Order responsibilities; provides advice and assistance to other agencies in planning for research in areas involving each agency's interest; provides overall direction, guidance, and coordination of special studies in broad resource area; maintains close working relationship with the scientific community; directs the computer and programming support activities of FPA and other Federal departments and agencies with emergency preparedness responsibilities as requested.

4. Stockpile acquisitions and disposals.—Develops plans and programs to acquire and dispose of stockpiled materials in accordance with statutory provisions. This includes the collection of technical, economic, and marketing data and an analysis of factors such as supply, demand, consumption, prices, specifications and quality.

5. Service direction.—Provides executive direction, staff and administrative support, including regional preparedness activities for the Federal Preparedness Agency.

The Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, N. Dak., is the only facility of its kind in the United States which has the capability to produce all types of jewel bearings in quantity. The plant was established by the Department of Defense in 1953 and turned over to GSA in 1957. On January 1, 1970, financing of the operation was placed under a revolving fund which was authorized by Public Law 90-469, approved August 8, 1968.

The plant produces jewel bearings for sale at fixed prices to Government agencies and their contractors and sub-contractors for national defense purposes and to GSA for the national stockpile. Mandatory source provisions are contained in the Federal Procurement Regulations and Armed Services Procurement Regulations in support of this operation. These provisions require Government agencies and their contractors to procure and use jewel bearings manufactured at the Langer Jewel Bearing Plant under certain specified conditions.

Note.—Excludes $2,411 thousand in 1978 for activities transferred to Salaries and expenses, GMAO. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($1,956 thousand), TQ ($499 thousand), 1977 ($2,411 thousand), are included above.

This appropriation provides financing of administrative operations services on a centralized and integrated basis for all General Services Administration programs.

1. Administration.—Consists of accounting and reporting, credit, insurance, and related financial systems and office services, and ADP systems development, design and programming.

2. Legal services.—Covers the fields of real property, personal property, archives and records, automated data and telecommunications, transportation audit, strategic and critical materials stockpiling, preparedness policy, and finance and administration. This activity also administers the contract compliance program assigned to GSA by the Office of Contract Compliance Programs, Department of Labor.

3. Board of Contract Appeals.—Provides a forum for a fast and economic resolution of disputes between a contractor and GSA over provisions or performance of a contract.

4. Federal information centers.—In conjunction with the Civil Service Commission, GSA operates 37 centers across the country to assist persons in identifying the Federal agency or office that provides a needed service. This activity is financed from Federal agency reimbursements to this appropriation.

Refund and rebate payments due World War II contractors are made upon approval of claims presented under the Renegotiation Act of 1951. Settlement has been made on all but 24 of the 4,171 claims for which payments are estimated at $55 million. Funds in this account are used to pay contractors engaged in business with the Federal Government who have prepaid excess profits in the amount determined by the Renegotiation Board. Subsequently, the Court of Claims judged a refund was due.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration conducts the nonmilitary space programs of the United States, including the exploration of space and its utilization for peaceful purposes, and conducts advanced research and development related to space and aeronautics in support of both civil and military requirements. This appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as follows:

1. Space flight.—Space flight activities provide all the transportation systems and associated support and capabilities required to conduct operations in space. These activities include: (a) the development of the reusable Earth-to-orbit space shuttle vehicle and production leading to a national fleet of five orbiters; (b) establishment of the space transportation system (STS) operations capability, including U.S. participation with the European Space Agency (ESA) in a cooperative program to develop the spacelab to be flown in the shuttle; (c) preparation for the STS operations including mission planning, recurring hardware procurement, launch operations, and flight support; (d) development of new component and subsystem technology; (e) integration planning of future payloads; (f) conceptual studies and research on future space operations; and (g) launch operations and support for expendable launch vehicles for automated space missions.

(a) Space shuttle.—The space shuttle is the key element of the versatile space transportation system that will provide a variety of national and international users with round trip access to space beginning in the 1980's. The shuttle will be the first reusable space vehicle and will be configured to carry many different types of payloads to and from low Earth orbit. Its development will provide economical space operations for Earth applications, scientific, defense, and technological payloads. The shuttle will provide unique capabilities and flexibility that cannot be achieved with today's expendable launch vehicles—to retrieve payloads from orbit for reuse; to service and repair satellites in space; to transport to orbit, operate, and return space laboratories; and to perform rescue missions.

The space shuttle program is proceeding toward the accomplishment of the first approach and landing test in 1977, the first manned orbital flight in 1979, and initial operational capability in 1980. Major activities to be conducted in 1978 related to the space shuttle system include completion of approach and landing tests at the Dryden Flight Research Center in California; initiation of main propulsion tests at the National Space Technology Laboratories in Mississippi; initiation of mated vertical ground vibration tests at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Alabama; and start of orbiter and main engine production. The production phase will provide for refurbishment of the first two orbiters bought in the development phase and procurement of three additional orbiters to meet the national fleet requirements.

(b) Space flight operations.—This activity includes NASA development efforts related to the establishment of space transportation system (STS) operations capability; development and test support at NASA centers for space flight programs; STS operations requirements; and advanced technology and program planning.

The STS operations capability development efforts include the spacelab, upper stages, multiuse mission and payload support equipment, mission control center upgrading, and payload and operations support. These activities are required to facilitate the planning and transition to space transportation system operations.

The spacelab program is carried out jointly by NASA and the European Space Agency (ESA) to provide domestic and international users with a versatile, reusable space laboratory. ESA is responsible for the design, development, production, and delivery of the first spacelab and associated ground-support equipment to NASA. NASA is responsible for the development of flight and ground-support equipment not provided by ESA, and procurement of additional hardware needed to support NASA's missions. The spacelab will be flown to and from Earth orbit in the cargo bay of the shuttle.

STS upper stages consist of the interim upper stage (IUS) and the spinning solid upper stage (SSUS). During 1978, NASA will continue to work with the DOD to assure that the IUS meets NASA and other non-DOD mission requirements, and will also continue the design and development of the NASA unique items to support IUS mission planning. The SSUS, which is a spin-stabilized, solid propellant, expendable upper stage, will be sized to be used for placing Delta and Atlas-Centaur class payloads into synchronous orbit. Activity in 1978 will include development of upper stage hardware and airborne support equipment.

Multiuse mission and payload support equipment is required for integration and checkout of payload elements, and for standardized ground and flight hardware that provides interfaces between the payloads and elements of the space transportation system.

The mission control center (MCC) at the Johnson Space Center in Texas will also be upgraded to support the STS operational flight requirements. The 1978 efforts provide for initial additional hardware, equipment, and software.

In addition, emphasis will be placed on payload and operations support activities, including planning for the payload operations control center, support for orbital flight test payloads, and operations management studies. These efforts include definition of requirements and interfaces; design and fabrication of hardware to adapt payloads; and analysis of alternative operational concepts, payload accommodation techniques, and transportation of cargo to and from launch sites.

In the area of space transportation system operations, the 1978 space shuttle operations requirements include long-lead procurements of raw materials for external tank and solid rocket booster fabrication, and initiation of flight and mission planning, software development, operational systems performance and capability analyses, and flight crew training.

The advanced programs effort provides technical data for definition and evaluation of potential future space missions.

(c) Expendable launch vehicle development and support.—This program includes expendable launch vehicles activities such as launch operations and engineering and maintenance to sustain launch activities, and reliability improvement of vehicles and ancillary ground-support equipment.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—This program utilizes a variety of flight systems and ground-based observations to increase our knowledge of the universe. Investigations of the Earth, Moon, Sun, interplanetary space, solar system, other stars and galaxies, and the interaction among these bodies and systems are conducted. The results from these scientific investigations significantly contribute to our understanding of the origin, evolution, and fundamental laws of the universe, including the dynamic processes that shape the environment and life on Earth.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—The major objective is to increase our knowledge and understanding of the Earth's space environment, the Sun, stars, and other celestial bodies. Research is being conducted to investigate the Earth's upper atmosphere and ionosphere, the magnetosphere, and the interplanetary medium. Space-based investigations of cosmic ray, X-ray, gamma ray, ultraviolet, infrared, and radio emissions, not possible from ground-based observations because of the obscuring effect of the Earth's atmosphere, give us a unique opportunity to study the Sun and other celestial bodies. These investigations are the basis for increasing our knowledge of the fundamental laws of nature, especially those which control the environment of the Earth.

During 1976, the gravity probe-A mission was successfully launched to confirm, with improved accuracy, the gravitational redshift predicted by Einstein's theory of relativity. Work is continuing on the high energy astronomy observatory (HEAO) series, which is designed to explore the previously inaccessible X-ray, gamma ray, and cosmic ray sources in the universe. These investigations will be carried out with three launches of HEAO, in 1977, 1978, and 1979, respectively. Work is also proceeding on a solar maximum mission scheduled for launch in 1979 to take advantage of the next period of peak solar activity. Based on extensive technological development and definition studies, development will be initiated in 1978 on a 2.4-meter space telescope to be launched by the shuttle in 1983. This multipurpose telescope will be able to observe galaxies at far greater distances than those which can be observed from the best ground-based observatory. Work is also underway on other projects designed to capitalize on the capabilities of the space shuttle. Definition studies on a variety of payloads to be flown on spacelab missions are being conducted, including preliminary work on several facility-type payloads to investigate phenomena in the various physics and astronomy disciplines. In addition, work is continuing on two Explorer projects, the international ultraviolet explorer to be launched in 1977 and the international Sun-Earth explorer missions with launches in 1977 and 1978. A number of Explorer definition studies have been completed, and candidate missions for development activities include an infrared astronomy satellite, which will be a cooperative mission with the Netherlands and the United Kingdom, and the electrodynamics explorer.

Upper atmospheric research is progressing toward the goal of understanding the Earth's atmosphere well enough to assess the physical effects resulting from natural and man-caused events, such as their release of fluorocarbons in the atmosphere.

(b) Lunar and planetary exploration.—This program includes systematic scientific investigations of the Moon, the planets and their satellites, meteoroids, asteroids, comets, and the particles and fields of interplanetary space. The major goals of the investigations are to understand the origin and evolution of the solar system and to apply the results of these investigations toward a better understanding of the planet Earth. The program has been highly successful to date and has yielded extensive information on the Moon and on the planets Mercury, Venus, Mars, and Jupiter.

The scientific investigation of Mars is currently receiving major emphasis following the successful landings of Vikings I and II. While the two orbiters continue mapping Mars, the landers are providing the first in situ measurements on the surface of another planet, and their biology instruments are searching for evidence of life on Mars. Several alternatives are being considered for a Mars follow-on mission to take advantage of the scientific results of Viking, as well as to utilize the technological inheritance from Viking. In 1978, effort will be initiated to define the logical next step mission as part of an overall strategy for the scientific exploration of the solar system.

The first close-up views of Mercury and Venus were provided by Mariner 10 in 1974. In 1978, two Pioneer missions will be launched to further investigate Venus. One of the two missions is a multiprobe mission which will provide the first detailed in situ measurements of the Venusian atmosphere.

The program of exploration of the outer planets continued with the Pioneer 11 encounter of Jupiter in December 1974. Pioneer 10 is now escaping our solar system and Pioneer 11 is on its way to encounter Saturn in September 1979. In 1977, two Mariner Jupiter/Saturn missions will be launched to expand our knowledge of these two planets. These spacecraft will also make initial scientific measurements of several planet-like satellites of the two giant planets; an option exists to target one spacecraft to Uranus. The Jupiter orbiter/probe, to be initiated in 1978, will sample the Jovian atmosphere with an instrument-bearing probe, obtain data on the planet's magnetosphere and atmosphere, and observe the Jovian satellites.

(c) Life sciences.—This program will continue in 1978 to provide for the research and technology necessary to meet the goals of insuring human health, safety, well-being, and effective performance in space flight; utilizing space technology and the space environment to advance knowledge and application in Earth medicine and biology; and understanding the origin and distribution of life in the universe.

3. Space applications.—Through research and development activities, this program applies space-related technology, systems, and other capabilities in such areas as detection and monitoring of the Earth's resources, observing and forecasting of the weather and climate, monitoring of the environment, observing the dynamics of the Earth, forecasting and monitoring of ocean conditions, space communications, and processing of materials in space.

The major Earth resources remote sensing activities include continued operations of the first two Landsat satellites and preparations for launch readiness of the third satellite, Landsat-C, in late 1977. Development of an improved, next generation Earth resources satellite will be initiated in 1978 with Landsat-D. This experimental satellite will have as its payload the thematic mapper, an advanced multispectral sensor currently under development. The thematic mapper, with its higher resolution and additional spectral coverage, is expected to expand and enhance the number of uses for multispectral remote sensing data in such areas as: agriculture, coastal zone management, mineral and oil exploration, land-use management and planning, forestry, and water resources management. The Landsat-D satellite is scheduled for launch in 1981.

The large area crop inventory experiment (LACIE), an applications demonstration project to evaluate use of Landsat data for making estimates of global grain production, will continue. Other demonstration projects to be continued in 1978 include projects in water resources management, eastern surface mine monitoring, land management, and environmental quality. Work will also continue on the heat capacity mapping mission, an applications explorer to be launched in 1978, which will produce remote sensing information useful in the discrimination of rock types for identifying probable locations of mineral resources and other applications.

Weather and climate observing and forecasting efforts, including severe storm research, will continue to progress. The launch of the Tiros-N, the prototype for an advanced operational meteorological satellite system, is scheduled for 1978. This new satellite will play an important role in obtaining data for the first global atmospheric research program experiment to be undertaken in 1978-79. Research will also proceed on the use of space systems and remotely sensed data to improve our understanding and forecasting of climatic changes.

In the environmental quality area, work is progressing on Nimbus-G, an experimental air and water pollution monitoring satellite scheduled for launch in 1978, and on the stratospheric aerosol and gas experiment mission, an applications explorer satellite designed to measure atmospheric constituents, scheduled for launch in 1979.

In the Earth dynamics and ocean condition monitoring programs, development of the Seasat-A satellite, a potentially significant step toward more accurate forecasting of ocean conditions, is progressing toward launch in 1978. In addition, activities directed toward geodesy and a potential future earthquake prediction capability will be continued.

Work will also continue on development of the magnetic field satellite (Magsat), an applications explorer mission to be launched in 1979. Data acquired by this spacecraft will provide information for use by the U.S. Geological Survey to update maps of the Earth's magnetic field. In addition, data from Magsat is expected to provide useful information for location of natural resources such as coal, oil, and minerals.

In the potentially promising area of materials processing in the space environment, efforts will be initiated in 1978 to develop facilities and design experiments to be flown in the space shuttle. Particular emphasis is being placed on the potential applications of biological and crystal growth processing in space.

In communications, the applications technology satellite (ATS-6), after successfully completing its instructional television experiment in India, was returned to the Western Hemisphere to resume the experimental programs here, along with the cooperative applications satellite (United States/Canadian), launched in 1976. A search and rescue satellite system demonstration will be initiated in 1978 as a cooperative venture with the Canadian Government. This system will use a monitoring system in Earth orbit to demonstrate potential improvements in detecting and locating distress signals from general aviation aircraft and marine vessels. Design and development of space communications experiments to be flown on space shuttle and spacelab missions will be continued. An augmented NASA technical consultation program will support the Nation's effort in preparing for the World Administrative Radio Conference (WARC) in calendar year 1979, which will, for the first time since 1959, reallocate worldwide usage of radio frequencies for communications activities.

Other significant activities include cooperative efforts with other agencies to foster the transfer of space telecommunications technology to the public and private sectors.

4. Space research and technology.—The principal objectives of this program are to provide a technology base which will adequately support current and future space activities and provide approaches for further reducing the cost of these activities.

In 1978, increased emphasis will be placed in the research and technology programs on information systems, chemical and electric propulsion, and space energy systems. In the experimental programs, the space technology shuttle payloads effort will be concentrated on utilizing the space shuttle orbiter as a research vehicle, particularly during reentry, to advance the technology in the areas of aerothermodynamics, materials, structures, propulsion, power and flight control. Also included will be efforts to identify, integrate, and operate payloads to be flown on the third shuttle orbital flight test mission. In the low-cost systems area, the emphasis will be on developing and upgrading various standard spacecraft components.

5. Aeronautical research and technology.—The objectives are to provide the Nation with the necessary technology for safer, more economical, more efficient, and environmentally acceptable air transportation; to support the military in maintaining superiority in military aircraft; and to maintain a strong competitive position for this Nation in the international marketplace.

NASA's overall role is to maintain a strong research and technology base position in the various technology disciplines. The 1978 program enhances these objectives by stressing the technology areas judged to be the most critical by industry, advisory groups, and other users of technology within and outside the Federal Government. In 1978, the emphasis will be placed on (1) improving aircraft energy efficiency; (2) improving performance; (3) reducing undesirable environmental effects; (4) improving safety and terminal area operations; and (5) advancing long-haul and short-haul air transportation concepts.

Under the aircraft energy efficiency program, follow-on activities will be initiated in the areas of propulsion, aerodynamics, and active controls technology. Research to advance STOL technology will be enhanced through the use of the Air Force's AMST (advanced medium STOL transport) prototype aircraft as a test vehicle for NASA research in several facets of STOL-related technology. In helicopter technology, efforts will include initiation of research operations with a rotor systems research aircraft and initiation of a focused approach to treatment of problems inherent in helicopter transmissions. In the area of supersonic cruise technology, the variable cycle engine effort will be expanded to develop the technology base necessary for a possible future experimental engine decision.

6. Energy technology applications.—The objective is to assure that the national energy programs can benefit from NASA's expertise gained in developing aeronautics and space technology. This program seeks to identify and evaluate NASA's aerospace technologies and capabilities having energy applications, and to provide support to other Government agencies engaged in national energy programs.

7. Supporting activities.—The programs grouped in this activity provide general support for the attainment of NASA mission objectives.

(a) Tracking and data acquisition.—This program provides tracking and data acquisition support to the entire NASA flight program, including automated missions to the planets and in Earth orbit, manned missions, sounding rockets, and aerodynamic test flights.

(b) Technology utilization.—The objective of this program is to accelerate the transfer, into the economy and into the public sector, of new advances in technology generated by NASA and NASA contractors.

3. Space applications.—This activity will provide for construction of additional technical processing facilities at the Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md.

4. Space research and technology.—No new projects are included for 1978.

7. Supporting activities.—The estimates for this activity provide for modifications to various buildings for seismic protection at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.; modification of chillers in the central heating and cooling plant at the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, Houston, Tex.; rehabilitation of the main heating plant at the Langley Research Center; modification of the central chilled water system at the Lewis Research Center, Cleveland, Ohio; modifications for the utility control system at the John F. Kennedy Space Center, Fla., and the National Space Technology Laboratories, Bay St. Louis, Miss.; rehabilitation and modification of 64-meter antenna components at various locations; rehabilitation and modification of facilities not in excess of $500 thousand per project, and minor construction of new facilities and additions to existing facilities not in excess of $250 thousand per project, at various NASA installations and at Government-owned plants operated by contractors; and facility planning and design.

This appropriation provides for research in Government laboratories, management of programs, and other expenses for the operation of NASA installations.

The space research and technology activity is conducted at the Ames, Goddard, Langley, Lewis, Johnson, Marshall, and Wallops Centers, as well as the Dryden Flight Research Center, Edwards, Calif.

Aeronautical research and technology work is conducted at the Ames, Dryden, Langley, and Lewis Research Centers.

Programwide support and management are provided by NASA Headquarters, Washington, D.C. Support activities for tracking and data acquisition requirements are performed at the Goddard Space Flight Center and Wallops Flight Center.

This appropriation provides funding for the payment of compensation and pension benefits to veterans and survivors who satisfy certain requirements as set forth in title 38, United States Code. Other benefits, which are related to, but not readily combined with either the compensation or pension programs, are also funded by this appropriation.

In 1977, $240,650 thousand was transferred from the Readjustments benefits appropriation to partially fund recently enacted legislation. It is planned to fund the additional requirements of $588,450 thousand by an additional transfer.

This appropriation's funding requirements for 1978 are estimated to be $9,116.8 million, an increase of $69.9 million.

1. Compensation.—Compensation is payable as either a disability benefit or a survivorship benefit. Criteria for entitlement are based on a veteran's disabilities incurred in or aggravated by active military service, death while on active duty, or death resulting from service-connected disabilities.

Veteran compensation cases will increase by 6,598 cases to an estimated 2,251,714 average cases during 1978. Survivor cases are projected to decline by 375 to an estimated 367,524 during 1978.

Public Law 94-433, effective October 1, 1976, increased both disability compensation for disabled veterans and DIC rates for widows and children by 8%. Public Law 94-432, effective October 1, 1976, extended the benefits of Public Law 94-169, and increased the rates and income limitations for DIC parents by 7%, effective January 1, 1977.

2. Pensions.—As with compensation, pension may be paid to a veteran or his survivor(s). Veterans' entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period; disabilities considered permanent and total; and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases.

Veteran pension cases are projected to decrease by 19,111 from 1977 to 1978. Survivor pension cases will also decrease by 9,818 during the same period.

Public Law 94-432, effective October 1, 1976, extended the benefits of Public Law 94-169, and increased the rates and income limitations of "new law" pension recipients by 7% effective January 1, 1977.

3. Burial benefits.—Provides for the payment of a burial allowance up to $800 when a veteran dies as the result of a service-connected disability, the payment of a plot allowance of $150 when an eligible veteran is not buried in a national cemetery or other cemetery under the jurisdiction of the United States, and the furnishing of a headstone or marker for the grave of a veteran. Other burial benefits paid from this appropriation include an allowance of $250 to help the deceased veteran's family pay burial and funeral expenses; transportation costs where death occurs under VA care; and provision of a flag for a casket. Public Law 94-433, effective October 1, 1976, provides for the transportation of the body of a service-connected deceased veteran to a national cemetery. Legislation will be proposed in 1978 to eliminate burial benefit payments which duplicate those which are provided through other federally financed programs.

4. All other.—These payments cover miscellaneous benefits including payments for: retired officers, adjusted service and dependents pay, special allowance dependents, invalid lifts and other devices, tort claim settlements, veterans mortgage life insurance, veterans clothing allowance, death gratuities, veterans group life insurance, and beginning in 1977, soldiers and sailors civil relief. Public Law 94-433, effective October 1, 1976, increased clothing allowance rates by 8% and the amount of veteran mortgage life insurance from $30 thousand to $40 thousand.

Note.—Under the terms of Public Law 94-378 (The Department of Housing and Urban Development—Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1977), $60,000 thousand is available for the regular purposes of this program only until June 1, 1977.

This appropriation finances the education, training and rehabilitation of veterans and servicepersons who served since February 1, 1955 (post-Korean conflict veterans and post-Vietnam era veterans). It also finances educational assistance allowances for eligible dependents of those veterans (a) who died from service-connected causes or have a total and permanent rated service-connected disability, and (b) servicepersons who were captured or missing in action.

$588,450 thousand of the 1977 unobligated balance in this appropriation is being proposed for transfer to the Compensation and pension appropriation to help fund the cost of recently enacted legislation.

1. Education and training.—The number of post-Korean conflict veterans and servicepersons in training is expected to decrease in 1978 to a level of 1,615,000. This decrease in trainees is attributable in part to more veterans reaching their delimiting date, terminations of the post-Korean GI bill and proposed legislation which would repeal: the 2-year delimiting date extension provided by Public Law 93-337, the flight and correspondence programs.

Public Law 94-502 instituted the post-Vietnam era GI bill, effective January 1, 1977. In 1978, 150 veterans are expected to train under this program.

The number of sons and daughters receiving educational assistance in 1978 is expected to decrease slightly to a level of 83,100. Similarly, the number of wives and widows is projected to decrease to 21,080. These decreases are mostly due to the proposed legislation which would repeal: the 2-year delimiting date extension provided by Public Law 93-337, the flight and correspondence programs.

The following table provides a comparison of trainees and costs for the four types of trainees mentioned above.

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover the costs of subsistence, tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. The number of trainees will continue to increase to 32,850 by 1978. This increase is due in part to an extension of eligibility for blinded and otherwise seriously disabled veterans, provided by Public Law 94-502. Due to experienced increases in tuition charges and an 8% increase in subsistence rates, the average cost for 1978 is projected at $3,226.

Specially adapted housing grants are provided to certain severely disabled veterans. The number is expected to decrease slightly in 1978.

An allowance is provided to certain disabled veterans and certain persons on active duty toward the purchase price of new automobiles, adaptive equipment, and the maintenance and replacement of such equipment. The projected decrease of 970 autos returns the program to normal after Public Law 94-433, effective October 1, 1976, which extended entitlement to veterans who served between September 16, 1940, and December 7, 1941.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison for these beneficiaries.

The Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation is made up of the former appropriations for military and naval insurance, applicable to World War I veterans, the national service life insurance, applicable to certain World War II veterans and the servicemen's indemnities, applicable to Korean conflict veterans. The appropriation also provides supplemental funds for the Service-disabled veterans insurance fund. Financing is mainly by congressional appropriation, and by a small amount of premiums.

1. Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made to the U.S. Government life insurance fund as a reimbursement for claims traceable to extra hazards of military service. Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries for claims on war-risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I.

2. National service life insurance.—Payments are made to the National service life insurance fund as a reimbursement for costs of the following: (a) disability and death claims traceable to the extra hazards of service; (b) gratuitous insurance granted to certain persons who were unable to make application for national service life insurance; and (c) death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured was on active duty.

Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries on nonparticipating national service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities and on worthy exceptional cases that would not have been covered under the law in effect at the time of death.

The general decline in the policies in force is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

3. Payment to service-disabled veterans insurance fund.—Payments are made to the Service-disabled veterans insurance fund to supplement the premium and other receipts of the fund in amounts necessary to pay claims on insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

Financing.—Operations are financed by appropriation funding and a small amount of premiums.

The Veterans Administration is committed to providing the highest quality medical care to its eligible veteran beneficiaries. To this end, the VA operates the largest medical care delivery system in the country, with 172 hospitals, 16 domiciliaries, 90 nursing homes, and 228 outpatient clinics in 1978. In addition to these facilities, patients are cared for in contract Federal and community hospitals, community nursing homes with VA support, and State-run domiciliaries, nursing homes, and hospitals. This system will treat over 1.4 million patients in 1978, and over 18.2 million outpatient medical and dental visits will be made to VA and community facilities.

In 1978, a continued priority for VA health care will be meeting the needs of veterans with service-connected disabilities and of aging veterans. To do so, the Veterans Administration will continue its efforts to increase the flexibility of the medical care delivery system by providing treatment through the mode and program most suited to the patient's need. The use of outpatient and ambulatory care programs will obviate the need for some hospital admissions and use of community living arrangements such as home based care, foster home care, et cetera, will permit increased outplacement of hospitalized veterans with a corresponding reduction in length of stay. Arrangements will be continued and improved to provide for hospital and medical care, in the private sector, for certain dependents and survivors of veterans, as authorized by law.

In conjunction with this mission, it is essential that effective education and training programs be conducted within the VA which serve several purposes: to enable VA personnel to obtain the latest information concerning treatment and related clinical matters; to provide a recruitment source for highly qualified physicians and other personnel; and to contribute on a selective basis to those portions of the national health manpower pool which have a continuing need for additional or replacement personnel. Since the VA is one of the Nation's largest employers of health service personnel, it is appropriate that this agency conduct these education and training activities.

The Veterans Administration is also continuing in an expanding program of demonstrations of new models of health organization and delivery including regionalization of its hospitals and improvements in design and location of outpatient clinics.

Specific increases are requested in 1978 for (1) workload increases, including new hospitals, and increased outpatient fee workload, (2) new and expanded specialized medical services, (3) staffing improvements, (4) one additional regional medical education center, (5) noncontrollable payroll increases, (6) increased usage of drugs, utilities, communications, provisions, prosthetics, and medical, dental, and operating supplies, and (7) maintenance and repair, minor improvements, and equipment.

A supplemental appropriation in the amount of $34,967 thousand for 1977 is anticipated under supplemental now requested, existing legislation. These funds are required due to new legislation which raised the per diem rates for State home care and made program revisions through the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, Public Law 94-581.

1. Medical research.—This program is comprised of institutional and special research. It is designed to address problems affecting the health care of veterans through utilization of the unique capability of the Veterans Administration hospital system to answer questions which can only be answered by a large number of patients under a single management. Examples of some projects included under institutional research are: Alcohol and cirrhosis of the liver; test for kidney transplant rejection; impact of psychotherapeutic drugs; and anticoagulant therapy in pulmonary embolism. Certain cooperative studies included under special research are: Surgical treatment of angina pectoris; sickle cell trait; cancer chemotherapy; and relative potency and side-effect liability of new and marketed analgesics and sedatives.

2. Rehabilitative research.—This is a research program to develop and test prosthetic, orthopedic, sensory aids and adaptive equipment for the purpose of improving the care and rehabilitation of disabled eligible veterans, including amputees, paraplegics, and the blind.

3. Health services research.—This program provides support for health services projects at VA hospitals for improving the effectiveness and economy of delivery of health services and improving the accessibility of services to veterans.

1. Medical, hospital, and domiciliary administration covers the central office development, implementation, and administration of policies, plans, and broad objectives, as well as providing for executive direction of all agency medical programs.

2. Postgraduate and inservice training provides for tuition and registration payments, lecturer fees, travel expenses and training materials incidental to continuing education programs for professional medical and administrative staff. This also serves as a media for disseminating information on medical advances resulting from research efforts.

3. Exchange of medical information provides for entering into agreements with medical schools, hospitals, research centers and individual institutions and members of the medical-scientific community under which physicians at hospitals not affiliated with medical schools will maintain closer contact with such schools and other primary sources of medical information.

This appropriation provides for the administration of nonmedical veterans benefits through the Department of Veterans Benefits; operation and maintenance of 106 national cemeteries by the National Cemetery System; data processing operations and communications systems through the Department of Data Management; and top management direction and support through agency-level staff offices.

Amounts requested for 1978 are $28.1 million above the total 1977 estimate including supplemental requirements. These additional funds are requested to support expansion of the National Cemetery System; a strengthened audit and investigative function; increased ADP services to expanding agency programs; further development of the Compensation, Pension and Education Target System; an additional reimbursement to the General Services Administration for present and newly occupied space; the net impact of within-grade salary increases, and other increases in communications and program support costs.

1. General administration.—This activity contains the executive direction of the agency and several top level supporting offices. In addition, it covers the Board of Appeals which decides all cases of appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under veterans legislation.

2. Data management.—This activity manages all computer operations and provides technical support and assistance in the development of new computer and communications systems.

3. Veterans benefits.—This activity determines eligibility and adjudicates all claims for compensation, pensions, educational assistance, housing loan assistance, and insurance awards. A summary of program objectives and anticipated workload is included in the following paragraphs:

(c) Veterans services.—The mission of this Service is to provide information, advice, and assistance concerning the availability and procurement of benefits under the law to all veterans, their dependents, and survivors.

(d) Compensation, pension, and education.—This activity provides timely and efficient service to veterans and their dependents related to compensation, pension, and education benefits under the various laws enacted by Congress. Compensation and pension workloads are expected to continue to increase through 1977, while the number of trainees is expected to decrease in 1977 as reflected in the following table (in thousands):

(e) Loan guaranty.—This program mission is to provide a viable form of credit assistance whereby housing credit needs of veterans and servicemen may be satisfied by private capital on more liberal terms than generally available to nonveterans. An anticipated rise in the level of loan originations and added responsibilities associated with the Housing Act of 1974 and the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 produce a continued high level of loan activity. Key workloads are listed below (in thousands):

4. National Cemetery System.—Effective September 1, 1973, the Veterans Administration became responsible for administering the National Cemetery System. Cemeterial operations include overall program administration, maintenance of grounds and equipment, and headstone procurement and assignment. Key workload forecasts are as follows (in thousands):

These funds were appropriated prior to 1973 to complete projects started in prior years. The 1973 appropriation bill (Public Law 92-383), approved August 14, 1972, established the Construction, major projects appropriation and the Construction, minor projects appropriation. As a result of establishing the new appropriations, many of the projects were funded through two accounts thereby necessitating not only two cost controls for one project but also increasing workload. The unexpended balance of this appropriation, therefore, was transferred to Construction, major projects and Construction, minor projects as appropriate (Public Law 94-378) on October 1, 1976.

These funds finance minor construction, where the estimated cost of the project is less than $1 million, for (1) construction of new facilities, (2) modernization of existing facilities, (3) alteration and improvement of facilities under the jurisdiction of the Veterans Administration, and (4) expenses of the Office of Construction. It provides funds for planning, architectural and engineering services, and site acquisition in addition to construction funds.

Funds for minor projects of $13,641 thousand will complete the funding of the quality of care program, fulfilling a Presidential commitment to correct the deficiencies identified in the quality of care survey released on October 26, 1974.

A total request of $95,606 thousand is recommended for 1978 to be financed with budget authority (appropriation) for Construction, minor projects. This amount includes $587 thousand for nursing home care projects, $4,249 thousand for research and education projects, $837 thousand for outpatient improvements projects, $56,183 thousand for other improvements projects, $1,000 thousand for administrators discretionary fund, $8,000 thousand for national cemetery projects, $600 thousand for computer centers, additions, and alterations, and $24,150 thousand for general administration. For the first time, general administration includes funds for contract advance planning in the amount of $5,000 thousand for the development of major projects through the preliminary plans stage to insure the placement of fully developed projects with accurate cost estimates in subsequent budgets.

1. Grants for new State medical schools.—Grants may be awarded to assist in the establishment of new State medical schools if such schools are located in proximity to, and operated in conjunction with, Veterans Administration medical facilities.

2. Other health manpower training institutions.—(a) Grants to affiliated medical schools.—Grants may be awarded to medical schools which have maintained affiliations with the Veterans Administration in order to expand and improve their training capacities and to encourage cooperation with other health manpower training institutions in the improvement and expansion of allied and other health manpower utilization.

(b) Grants to other health manpower institutions.—Grants may be awarded to other health manpower institutions affiliated with the Veterans Administration to assist in the establishment of cooperative arrangements among such institutions in order to coordinate, expand, and improve the training of professional and technical allied health and paramedical personnel and to assist in developing and evaluating new health careers, interdisciplinary approaches and career advancement opportunities.

(c) Expansion of Veterans Administration hospital education and training capacity.—Necessary improvements to Veterans Administration buildings and structures may be accomplished to make them suitable for use in health manpower education and training in cooperation with other institutions and organizations. Special funds are provided to Veterans Administration hospitals and other medical facilities for the development or initiation of improved methods of educating and training health personnel.

To assist eligible veterans to obtain credit for the purchase or construction of homes, the Veterans Administration guarantees loans made by private lenders. Legislation will be proposed, however, to terminate loan guaranty benefits to new persons entering the service effective October 1, 1977. The total number of guaranteed or insured loans closed is expected to be 350,125 in 1977 and 360,200 in 1978 bringing the total amount of guaranteed loans outstanding by the end of 1978 to $75.3 billion. The loan guaranty revolving fund provides for expenses and revenues of property and loan transactions resulting from settlement of guaranty claims.

Budget program.—1. Real property acquisitions.—Private lenders who have acquired property as a result of foreclosure on defaulted guaranteed or insured loans may elect to convey that property to the Veterans Administration. The table below reflects this activity and excludes the amount of indebtedness established against the veteran:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Number of property acquisitions processed	14,978	3,555	14,700	15,260
Average cost per acquisition	$20,578	$20,806	$20,800	$21,900
Total cost (in thousands)	$308,215	$73,966	$305,760	$334,194

2. Property improvements.—After conveyance of the property to the Veterans' Administration, capital expenditures are often necessary to place the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Number of improvements to acquired properties	18,240	4,168	17,032	17,116
Average cost per property	$1,532	$1,574	$1,721	$1,824
Total cost (in thousands)	$27,951	$6,561	$29,320	$31,220

3. Claims processed.—These payments are made to lenders in accordance with the Veterans Administration guaranty contract and represent the difference between the amount owed by the veteran on a defaulted loan and the value of the foreclosed property (as established by Veterans Administration). These payments are in addition to property acquisition costs shown in 1, above. The following table reflects this activity:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Individual homes:
Number of claims	15,674	3,756	15,500	16,060
Average cost per payment	$2,200	$2,064	$2,130	$2,232
Total cost (in thousands)	$34,475	$7,752	$33,015	$35,846
Mobile homes:
Number of claims	1,314	219	1,500	1,620
Average cost per payment	$2,223	$2,342	$4,020	$4,093
Total cost (in thousands)	$2,921	$513	$6,030	$6,630

4. Repurchase of loans sold, net.—Pursuant to Veterans Administration Regulation 4600, dated March 22, 1962, the Administrator may sell with full recourse loans which have been created incident to the sale of Veterans Administration acquired property. If the loans go into default, the Administrator may repurchase them. The following table reflects this activity:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Number of loans repurchased	1,864	410	2,500	2,900
Average cost per repurchase	$15,249	$16,154	$15,947	$16,744
Total cost (in thousands)	$28,425	$6,623	$39,868	$48,558

5. Cash advances—Vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary to subsequently advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government.

Total cost (in thousands)	$2,531	$433	$2,400	$2,500

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default. The following table reflects this activity:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Number of loans acquired	83	10	140	140
Average cost per acquisition	$13,494	$12,994	$15,779	$16,571
Total cost (in thousands)	$1,120	$130	$2,209	$2,320

7. Property management expense.—Includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers, and maintenance of property in a salable condition. The following table reflects this activity:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Average number of properties	11,309	11,191	11,083	10,986
Average cost per property	$1,154	$1,371	$1,382	$1,451
Total cost (in thousands)	$13,049	$3,835	$15,317	$15,941

8. Sales expense.—Includes brokers' fees and advertising costs incident to the sales of acquired properties. The following table reflects this activity:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Number of sales	17,273	4,411	16,700	17,005
Average cost per sale	$1,010	$1,051	$1,060	$1,115
Total cost (in thousands)	$17,438	$4,635	$17,702	$18,961

9. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount absorbed by Veterans Administration incident to the sale of vendee accounts. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford a yield commensurate with market.

Total costs (in thousands)	$2,033	$429	$4,386	$3,300

10. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which vendee accounts have been set aside pursuant to 38 U.S.C. 1820(c). To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

Financing of participation sales insufficiencies is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

Budget authority

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income, cash proceeds from the sale of real property acquired as a result of foreclosure on guaranteed or insured loans, and repayments on mortgages made incident to such sales. It is estimated that $192.0 million in 1977 and $192.9 million in 1978 will be received from these sources. Also, an estimated $347.2 million in vendee loans will be sold in 1977 and $272.0 million in 1978.

Direct loans are made to veterans to purchase, construct, or improve homes, to purchase farms on which there are farm residences to be occupied by the veterans as their homes; or to construct, alter, repair, or improve farm dwellings to be occupied by the veterans as their homes.

Such loans are made only in rural areas, small cities, and towns where private credit for the making of guaranteed loans is and has been generally unavailable. The maximum term is 30 years and the maximum loan amount was increased from $25 to $33 thousand effective October 1, 1976 pursuant to Public Law 94-324. The interest rate is the same as the rate allowable for guaranteed loans.

Budget program.—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Under existing legislation, there is no terminal date on the authority to make direct loans. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 revived the expired unused loan entitlement of World War II and Korean conflict veterans and provided that direct lending authority and veterans eligibility would be open-ended until their entitlement is used. Legislation will be proposed, however, to terminate direct loan benefits to new persons entering the service effective October 1, 1977.

2. Cash advances and repurchases, vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are not involved in the establishment of vendee loans or installment contracts. However, it is often necessary subsequently to advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government. These advances are added to unpaid loan balances. In addition, vendee loans sold with full recourse may be repurchased if they go into default.

3. Property improvements.—Properties are acquired by foreclosures on, or the voluntary conveyance of, title to properties securing loans owned by the Veterans Administration. Capital expenditures are often necessary to put the property in salable condition. The following table summarizes these expenditures:

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

4. Interest on borrowings.—Interest expense is accrued monthly. These accruals are computed on the interest-bearing capital of the fund and adjusted for the unexpended balance of the fund.

5. Property management and selling expense.—Property management expense includes local real estate taxes, services performed by management brokers, and maintenance of the property in salable condition; sales expense includes brokers' fees and advertising costs incident to the sale of property owned by the Veterans Administration. This cost averages approximately 5% of the selling price. Operating expenses generally include a variety of miscellaneous expenses paid by the Government incident to closing and liquidating loans:

6. Interest expense on participation certificates.—Represents the amount of interest the trustee is required to pay holders of participation certificates in respect to which direct loans have been set aside. To the extent this expense exceeds the amount of interest collections on an equal amount of loans pledged to the trustee, participation sales insufficiencies result.

Financing of participation sales insufficiencies is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

7. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount absorbed by VA incident to the sale of direct loans. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford a yield commensurate with the market.

Financing.—Normal revenue and receipts consist principally of interest income and repayments on direct loans made to veterans. It is estimated that $141.7 million in 1977 and $112.6 million in 1978 will be received from these sources. In addition, it is estimated that $188.4 million will be realized in 1977 from the sale of direct loans, and $44.0 million in 1978.

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $130,850 thousand in 1977. It is estimated sales will be $143,660 thousand in 1978.

Financing.—No appropriation by the Congress will be required for the operation of the Veterans Canteen Service during 1978. Operations will be financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service. Funds in excess of the needs of the Service totaling $12,068 thousand have been paid to the Treasury as of June 30, 1976.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses. Retained earnings are required for necessary working capital, therefore, no funds are available for payment to the Treasury during 1977.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued and currently open for new issues to veterans having service-connected disabilities. The program provides insurance coverage for service-disabled veterans at standard rates. As a result, premium payments do not cover operating and capital reserve requirements. Annual deficits are met by transfers from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation. Administrative expenses are paid from the General operating expenses appropriation.

Operating costs—(1) Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

(2) All other.—This category represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and who hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital outlay.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1975 actual	June 30, 1976 actual	Sept. 30, 1976 actual	Sept. 30, 1977 estimate	Sept. 30, 1978 estimate
Number of policies.....	160,893	167,044	169,081	173,800	178,300
Insurance in force.....	$1,454,476	$1,508,707	$1,526,888	$1,570,000	$1,610,000

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are derived from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $4.7 million in 1977 and $0.3 million in 1978.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $128.5 million by September 30, 1978.

VETERANS REOPENED INSURANCE FUND—Continued

This fund pays claims and administration costs on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) Service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) non-service disabled insurance—established by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended (38 U.S.C. 725(b)(c), availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance because of delimiting dates.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

2. All other.—This category represents payments to the General operating expense appropriation for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

1. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1975 actual	June 30, 1976 actual	Sept. 30, 1976 actual	Sept. 30, 1977 estimate	Sept. 30, 1978 estimate

This fund finances the payment of group life insurance premiums to private insurance companies under the Servicemen's Group Life Insurance Act of 1965 (38 U.S.C. 765-776) as amended and any expenses incurred by the Veterans Administration in administration of the act.

Budget program.—1. Premium payments.—This item represents the payment of premiums to private insurance companies. The large decline in payments during 1976 is due chiefly to the discontinuance during 1975, of extra hazard contributions from the services. Projected decreases in the transition quarter and 1977 is consistent with the estimated reduction in the number of members.

2. Payment to General operating expenses appropriation.—This item represents payment for administrative costs incident to the program. The one-time costs incident to implementation of Public Law 93-289, enacted in May 1974, increased the 1975 payments considerably above normal and account for the decrease in 1976. An annual reduction in requirements is forecast.

This revolving fund, established pursuant to the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, Public Law 94-581, approved October 21, 1976, provides a mechanism for the furnishing of rehabilitative services to certain veteran beneficiaries who are receiving medical care and treatment from the Veterans Administration.

Funds to operate the various rehabilitative activities and provide for the therapeutic work for remuneration for patients and members in Veterans Administration health care facilities are derived from contractual arrangements with private industry or nonprofit entities. This is a self-sustaining fund and therefore no appropriation is required to support these activities.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5011, the Supply fund finances on a reimbursable basis the cost of warehouse inventories at depots and field stations and selected items of equipment procured centrally. It also finances, on the same basis, items and services to other Federal agencies who either request or are assigned to the Veterans Administration for support.

Budget program.—In 1978 the fund will provide financial support for: (1) Maintenance of depot and field station inventories; (2) maintenance and operation of three supply depots; (3) a publications depot including printing services to VA installations on a centralized basis; (4) operation of a service and reclamation program operating out of the supply depots; (5) centralized periodical procurement and library cataloging; and (6) a marketing center or central buying office.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service and distribution of printed matter to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant, and from commercial sources.

The marketing center is responsible for determining the levels of inventories to be carried at depots and acquiring stock to maintain such levels. It is also responsible for the central contracting of items not available from other Government sources for VA installations and other Government agencies as may be determined economical or advisable.

The Supply fund does not finance costs for the operation and administration of supply activities at field stations. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply fund and Supply fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving the goods and services. A capital increase of $20 million is being requested in 1978 due to longer procurement leadtime and inventory requirements.

Operating results and financial conditions.—The fund operated at a loss of $266 thousand in the transition quarter and carried forward a loss of $477 thousand from prior years. During the past 10 years the fund has shown a loss of $208 thousand on a total of $1.7 billion cost of goods sold in the same period. Recovery of prior years losses is anticipated in 1977.

This account consists of voluntary contributions by eligible servicepersons and Department of Defense contributions on behalf of specific servicepersons. Its purpose is a depository for that portion of the contributory matching educational program which provides educational assistance payments to participants who entered the service after January 1, 1977, and are pursuing training under chapter 32 (38 U.S.C.). It will be entitled "Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education Account." No data is shown until 1977 as this program is only available to those persons beginning their initial period of active military service on or after January 1, 1977. Department of Defense does not anticipate making contributions on servicepersons' behalf during 1977 or 1978. Contributions from the Readjustment benefits account also will be disbursed from this account. The estimated activity in the fund follows:

This fund was established in 1940 as the financing mechanism for World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program authorized by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940 (72 Stat. 1154). Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Since issuance of new policies ended in 1951, the insurance in force is estimated to decrease by $386 million, representing 80,000 policies in 1978. Activity of the fund reflects rising claim and loan workloads, and a decline in the number of policies in force, shown as follows (dollars in thousands):

This fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible consistent with law. Administrative expenses are charged to the appropriation General operating expenses.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation for claims (1) resulting from extra hazards of the veterans' service, and (2) arising on certain policies held by personnel on active duty.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special treasury interest-bearing securities and in policy loans, are expected to increase from $8,286 million as of June 30, 1976, to $9,027 million as of September 30, 1978. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of June 30, 1976, totals $8,221 million, leaving a balance of $65 million for contingency reserves.

This fund finances the payment of claims on life insurance policies issued before January 31, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1, 1951 (38 U.S.C. 723). No new policies can be issued and the number of policies in force is expected to decline approximately 5,000 each year. Policyholders may elect to purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of additional premiums.

Budget program.—1. Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

2. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

3. Dividends.—Public Law 93-289, enacted May 24, 1974, provides for policyholders to participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

4. All other.—Classified in this category are payments to policyholders who: (a) hold endowment policies which have matured; (b) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently becomes disabled; and (c) are paid interest on dividend credits and deposits.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amounts of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	June 30, 1975 actual	June 30, 1976 actual	Sept. 30, 1976 actual	Sept. 30, 1977 estimate	Sept. 30, 1978 estimate

Insurance in force.....	$5,166,109	$5,117,370	$5,103,771	$5,050,502	$4,986,500

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have, since the inception of the program, been reduced by payments of a special dividend and subsidy payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

90.00 Outlays.....				-12,914

Legislation is planned to eliminate the education loan program, which is used to make loans up to $1,500 per academic period to eligible persons training under chapters 32, 34 and 35 who are without sufficient funds to meet their expenses (38 U.S.C. 1737).

An effective date of October 1, 1977, is assumed and the unobligated balance of $53,857 thousand is to be transferred to the Readjustment benefits appropriation.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Not to exceed 5 per centum of any appropriation for the current fiscal year for "Compensation and pensions", "Readjustment benefits", and "Veterans insurance and indemnities" may be transferred to any other of the mentioned appropriations, but not to exceed 10 per centum of the appropriations so augmented.

Appropriations available to the Veterans Administration for the current fiscal year for salaries and expenses shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

No part of the appropriations in this Act for the Veterans Administration (except the appropriations for "Construction, major projects" and "Construction, minor projects") shall be available for the purchase of any site for or toward the construction of any new hospital or home.

No part of the foregoing appropriations shall be available for hospitalization or examination of any persons except beneficiaries entitled under the laws bestowing such benefits to veterans, unless reimbursement of cost is made to the appropriation at such rates as may be fixed by the Administrator of Veterans Affairs. (Department of Housing and Urban Development—Independent Agencies Appropriation Act, 1977.)

OTHER INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

ACTION

ACTION, the Federal agency for volunteer service, was established on July 1, 1971. The agency brings together a number of volunteer programs including the Peace Corps, Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparents (FGP), Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and the University Year for ACTION (UYA).

Funds for ACTION are requested in two appropriations: (1) Operating expenses, domestic programs; and (2) Operating expenses, international programs (Peace Corps). These appropriations each contain a share of the agency's common support costs. This share is included in the program support activity in each appropriation. Special schedules of these common support costs are presented following the regular appropriation schedules.

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

【ACTION—】 OPERATING EXPENSES, INTERNATIONAL PROGRAMS (PEACE CORPS)

Note.—Excludes $3,938 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to: Salaries and expenses, State. Comparable amount for 1976, $3,360 thousand; and TQ, $939 thousand are included above.

International programs.—This appropriation finances the Peace Corps and the other component international programs of ACTION. Major elements which will be funded are the recruitment and training of applicants, volunteer operations overseas, international voluntarism encouragement program efforts, and the management and support staff required to support the volunteers.

1. Peace Corps training.—Each volunteer is given intensive training which is designed to develop language abilities, provide a knowledge of the country in which he will work, and further develop required job skills. In 1978, trainees will receive an average of 8 weeks' preservice training, and inservice training after they become volunteers.

2. Peace Corps volunteers.—In 1978, volunteers will be serving in approximately 55 countries throughout the world. Volunteer assignments are concentrated in six broad areas: education at all levels; agricultural development; business and public management; health and nutrition; urban development and public works projects; and conservation. In 1978, the greatest numbers of volunteers will be serving in agricultural, educational, and health programs.

3. Special international volunteer programs.—In 1977 and 1978, ACTION will initiate programs to encourage and assist host country domestic volunteer efforts. In addition to the current multinational volunteer program effort, ACTION will further international voluntarism through technical assistance and support, the volunteer international program, and volunteer agencies and non-governmental organizations.

4. Program support.—This activity includes salaries, travel, rents, and other costs associated with staff operations in the United States and abroad. It also includes a share of ACTION agencywide costs; such as, recruitment, medical services, policy and planning, auditing, legal counsel, and similar functions.

This appropriation finances the Federal share of volunteer programs within the United States.

1. Volunteers in Service to America.—Since 1965, the VISTA program has provided full-time volunteers to assist communities in working on the problems of poverty. Projects have been started to obtain sponsor and community financial support for volunteers assigned to them. VISTA will be phased out during 1978.

2. Service learning programs.—These programs mobilize the resources of the student and academic community at the high school, community and junior college, and university levels to meet the problems of poverty in America. The Service learning programs provide opportunities for students to apply their academic background to problems of poverty in nearby communities.

3. Older Americans volunteer programs.—These programs provide opportunities for Americans, age 60 and over, to volunteer in their communities. The Older Americans volunteer programs not only serve to improve the lives of the volunteers, but also alleviate the problems of the infirm, the emotionally disturbed, the mentally retarded, and other individuals in need.

4. Special volunteer programs.—The purpose of these programs is to give ACTION the flexibility to conduct experimental programs and develop new and innovative ways of using volunteer resources to meet human, social, and environmental problems. In 1978, ACTION will continue to mobilize volunteers and other resources toward this end.

5. Program support.—Administrative costs of headquarters and regional and State offices are financed by this activity. This activity also includes a share of agency wide support and evaluation costs. In 1978, ACTION will continue to improve the efficiency of its operations and consequently minimize program support costs.

The Advisory Committee on Federal Pay, established by the Federal Pay Comparability Act of 1970, assists the President in carrying out the policy of comparability in pay between major Federal statutory pay systems and private enterprise. The Committee is charged with reviewing the annual report of the President's pay agent and considering the recommendations of Federal employee representatives and other Federal officials. The Committee reports its recommendations in an annual report to the President.

The Advisory Committee has taken on the following additional responsibilities, recommended by the President's Panel on Federal Compensation in late 1975:

1. Meeting jointly on a regular basis throughout the year with the President's agent and the Federal Employees

Pay Council "to discuss and resolve the issues involved in the pay-setting process" and thus to improve labor-management relations in the Federal service.

2. An ongoing review of the way in which the Federal compensation system derives from, and is dependent upon, the forces at work in the private sector marketplace, with the specific charges of considering the impact of both Federal and private sector pay on the national economy and making periodic reports to the President on changes which should be proposed in Federal compensation policies and practices. The first full review is expected in 1978.

The American Battle Monuments Commission is responsible for the maintenance and construction of U.S. monuments and memorials commemorating the achievements in battle of our Armed Forces since April 6, 1917. It is also responsible for controlling erection of monuments and markers by U.S. citizens and organizations in foreign countries, and for the design, construction, and maintenance of permanent military cemetery memorials on foreign soil.

Altogether, the Commission maintains on foreign soil 23 military cemetery memorials; 11 monuments and memorials not a part of the cemeteries; and 2 bronze tablets. In addition, the Commission maintains three large memorials on U.S. soil.

The remains of 30,920 honored dead of World War I, 93,227 of World War II, and 750 of the Mexican War are interred in these cemeteries. Additionally, the 91,598 service men and women of World War I, World War II, and the Korean conflict who were missing in action, or lost or buried at sea are memorialized at the cemeteries and memorials by the inscription of their names on the "Tablets of the Missing." Additional "Tablets of the Missing" are being constructed at the Honolulu memorial for the missing of Vietnam.

In 1978, the Commission will begin construction of a memorial to the American Expeditionary Force and its commander, General of the Armies, John J. Pershing.

Note.—Excludes $705 thousand in 1977 and 1978 for activities transferred to the Department of State: Salaries and expenses, $335 thousand; acquisition, operation, and maintenance of buildings abroad, $8 thousand; missions to international organizations, $362 thousand. Comparable amounts for 1976 ($623 thousand), TQ ($174 thousand), are included above.

The Agency advises the President and the Secretary of State on arms control and disarmament policy and its implementation, conducts negotiations with other countries looking toward international agreements to control, reduce, or eliminate arms, and directs, as appropriate, U.S. participation in such control systems as may be adopted. Most ACDA resources in 1978 will be devoted to support of the anticipated third phase of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks with the Soviet Union, the development of new concepts, techniques and agreements to prevent the further proliferation of nuclear weapons, efforts to improve and refine the verification of nuclear explosions, and to explore new possibilities in the limitation of conventional weapons.

The Agency's external research in these areas is conducted through contracts with nongovernmental research organizations and reimbursable agreements with other U.S. Government agencies.

The Board regulates the economic aspects of domestic and international air carrier operations. In 1978, the Board will pursue major reforms of air carrier economic regulation, as discussed below, including the overall modernization of its procedures in order to maximize its own capacity to be more responsive in the face of changing conditions.

1. Awards of operating authority.—This program involves processing applications and conducting investigations regarding operating authority or modification of authority; international negotiations involving operating authority with foreign countries; and the issuance of foreign carrier permits. For 1978, there will be an increase in route hearing activity encompassing additions to the present air system and requests for new competitive service. During this time frame, the Board will conduct a comprehensive review of its service to small communities program in light of changing economic conditions and technological advances.

A liberalized charter program including advanced booking and stop charters, which could greatly expand the availability of low-cost air transportation, as well as the Board's other charter programs, will be an area of increasing activity during 1978. In international aviation, the Board's workload will increase as a result of the growing complexity of international aviation problems and substantial growth of bilateral and multilateral negotiations/consultations.

2. Regulation of rates and fares.—This program covers regulation of passenger fares and cargo rates, establishment of minimum rates applicable to services performed by the civil air carriers for the Military Airlift Command (MAC), review of petitions for the establishment or revision of service mail rates, and processing of subsidy rate cases and related matters. For 1978, major efforts will be devoted to: evaluating a higher load factor standard for ratemaking purposes, reviewing the return on investment standard as a ratemaking criterion, providing a laboratory in which to experiment with different regulatory concepts and stimulate innovation, providing greater protection of consumer and public interests in evaluating carrier rate and fare proposals, and developing a new class rate concept to insure that subsidy goes to support air transportation services to small and isolated communities.

3. Regulation of agreements and interlocking relationships.—This includes: review of applications requesting Board approval of acquisitions of control, approval of interlocking directorates, and agreements between air carriers and any other common carrier affecting air transportation, and review of agreements on rates and fares under which U.S.-flag carriers participate in the International Air Transport Association (IATA).

4. Regulation of air carrier accounting and reporting.—This program includes: design, prescription, and administration of uniform systems of accounts and reports; substantiation of carriers' conformance with prescribed accounting and reporting regulations; preparing special analyses and evaluation of air carriers' financial data; and on-site audits of carriers' books, records, and reports. In 1978, the Board plans to develop new accounting and reporting systems that will move the Board's systems more in line with business accounting practices and to implement a data system that will be developed to provide information necessary to monitor and evaluate the liberalized and expanded activities of the charter operators. Also, the Board's research, analytical, and informational capabilities will be reinforced in order to assist the Board in achieving regulatory reforms in light of changing economic conditions.

5. Enforcement and consumer advocacy.—This includes: handling of passenger and shipper complaints; investigation of violations of the economic provisions of the Federal Aviation Act; the taking of enforcement action and the achievement of compliance by informal enforcement action, formal administrative proceedings, and the prosecution of enforcement cases in the courts; and representation of consumer interests in Board proceedings. During 1978, enforcement activity will continue to focus on the seven substantive program areas (integrity of Board processes, antitrust violations, consumer-oriented violations, charter violations, unauthorized air transportation, tariff violations, and cargo violations), with special emphasis in the latter three areas. Also, the monitoring of any injunctions, which may result from the recent probes into ticket discounting will necessitate a considerable expenditure of investigative and legal effort in those areas where violations are found. Major investigations are expected to develop in the area of unauthorized air transportation where persons not now within the regulatory framework are operating as common carriers. Regarding the consumer, the Board will step up its consumer advocacy activities by focusing efforts on formal complaints filed by organized consumer groups and by responding, in a timely manner, to the rapidly growing volume of public correspondence.

PAYMENTS TO AIR CARRIERS—Continued

The Civil Aeronautics Board fixes rates of subsidy compensation to promote the development of air transportation required for the commerce of the United States, the Postal Service, and the national defense. The Board makes subsidy payments to subsidy-eligible certificated air carriers who have demonstrated a statutory need therefor. Subsidy is provided to cover the carrier's operating loss incurred under honest, economical, and efficient management and to provide it an opportunity to earn a fair return (after taxes) on investment used and useful in the air transportation services.

Of the 43 certificated U.S. domestic and international air carriers, only 8 local service carriers and 3 Alaskan carriers are currently subsidized.

1. Assuring a merit work force.—This activity consists of: (a) Keeping personnel policies current; (b) staffing for Federal employment; (c) assuring fitness and suitability in Federal employment and (d) improving personnel and management. In 1978, the Commission will continue implementation of the pay reforms recommended by the President's Panel on Federal Compensation; continue the updating of qualification and classification standards; improve the guidance and implementation of merit promotion programs, and continue the effort begun in a 1977 supplemental for provisions of the Privacy Act.

Applications processed for Federal employment.....	1,680,000	1,615,000	1,530,000
Employment inquiries answered.....	11,000,000	11,250,000	11,650,000
National agency check and inquiry cases.....	234,413	226,000	226,000

2. Providing retirement and insurance benefits.—The Commission administers retirement, group life insurance, and health benefit programs for Federal employees and annuitants. The principal functions of this activity include: Adjudicating annuity, disability, death, refund, and deposit claims; making payments to annuitants and other claimants; negotiating with private carriers to provide the insurance and health benefits authorized; auditing the records and operations of insurance underwriters; and maintaining the trust funds that were established for financing these benefits programs. Increases in 1978 provide for meeting increased annuity and disability workloads, improving the adjudication process, and expanding efforts to automate the processing of retirement benefits.

Workloads are reflected in the following table:

	PRODUCTION COUNT

Inquiries answered.....	658,610	691,000	691,000

3. Strengthening State and local personnel administration.—The purpose of the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970, as administered by the Commission, is to strengthen and improve the personnel resources of State and local governments. The Commission provides technical assistance to develop and encourage personnel administration programs consistent with prescribed merit employment principles.

Workloads are reflected in the following table:

	PRODUCTION COUNT
IPA grant projects Active.....	1,000	1,000	600

4. Other programs.—This activity consists of four functions: (1) Administration of the Voting Rights Act of 1965, as amended; (2) the President's Commission on Personnel Interchange; (3) the President's Commission on White House Fellowships; and (4) the Federal employees appeals program. The Civil Service Commission provides administrative support to the two Presidential commissions, and, under provisions of the Voting Rights Act, maintains lists of eligible voters and appoints examiners and election observers at the request of the Attorney General.

In 1978 additional resources are requested to provide a full year's funding of a 1977 supplemental to finance increased EEO appeals workload.

The following table displays anticipated workloads:

5. General administration.—This activity provides executive and administrative services in support of Commission operating programs, including executive direction, budget and fiscal, personnel, office services, library, legal services, and program and management analysis and audit functions.

Workloads are reflected in the following table:

	PRODUCTION COUNT

This appropriation covers (1) the Government's share of the cost of health insurance for certain annuitants as defined in sections 8901 and 8906 of title 5, United States Code; (2) the Government's share of the cost of health insurance for other annuitants (who were retired when the Federal Employees Health Benefits law became effective), as defined in the Retired Federal Employees Health

GOVERNMENT PAYMENT FOR ANNUITANTS, EMPLOYEES HEALTH BENEFITS—Continued

Benefits Act of 1960; and (3) the Government's contribution for payment of administrative expenses incurred by the Civil Service Commission in administration of the act.

A change in the appropriation language is requested in 1978 to permit the Commission to carry over any unobligated balance for use in the subsequent year. The requested amount for the subsequent year will be reduced by the amount of the expected carryover. This proposed change will greatly simplify the Commission's accounting. Technical amendments to the Federal Employees Health Benefits law and the Retired Employees Health Benefits Act to permit this carryover were contained in Public Law 94-310, effective October 1, 1976.

The use of these funds is reflected in the schedules for the Employees health benefits fund and the Retired employees health benefits fund.

1. Payment of annuities under special acts.—These annuities are paid to persons who were employed on the construction of the Panama Canal or to their widows; and benefits are paid to widows of former employees of the Lighthouse Service. Numbers of recipients are as follows:

	June 30, 1976	Sept. 30, 1977	Sept. 30, 1978
Panama Canal annuitants.....	356	256	176
Lighthouse Service widows.....	320	305	293

The increased appropriation required for these annuitants will provide financing for estimated payments to be made in 1978 and allow recovery of a deficit expected to occur in 1977 because of legislated change increasing monthly payments.

2. Payment of Government share of retirement costs.—The Civil Service Retirement Amendments of 1969 provide for financing of current year's costs of the unfunded liability created since its enactment on October 20, 1969. Any statute which authorizes (1) new or liberalized benefits, (2) extension of retirement coverage, or (3) pay increases, is deemed to authorize appropriations to the fund to finance the unfunded liability created.

3. Transfers for interest on unfunded liability and payment of military service annuities.—The Secretary of the Treasury is required to make annual payments from general revenues into the Retirement fund on the basis of a sliding scale of percentages of an amount equivalent to: (1) Interest on the unfunded liability, and (2) annuity disbursements attributable to military service. The Civil Service Commission, at the end of each year beginning in 1971, notifies the Secretary of the Treasury of the amount of payment to be made to the Retirement fund and reports such sums to the President and Congress. The required percentage of the total amount for 1977 is 70% and for 1978, 80% of such amount.

Executive Order 11491, entitled "Labor-Management Relations in the Federal Service", established the Federal Labor Relations Council as a central authority to administer and interpret the order, decide major policy issues, prescribe regulations, and from time to time, report and make recommendations to the President.

The order also established the Federal Service Impasses Panel as an agency within the Council. The Panel is authorized to consider impasses resulting from negotiations between labor organizations and agency management, and to take whatever action it considers necessary to settle an impasse.

Increased receipts are anticipated in 1978 which are expected to be partially offset by increased productivity.

Under authority of 5 U.S.C. 1304 and other laws and Executive orders, the Civil Service Commission conducts full field security investigations for other departments and agencies and performs training activities and miscellaneous services for Federal agencies and State and local governments on a reimbursable basis.

Budget program.—In 1978 workloads are expected to stay level in investigations, and some decline is anticipated in training delivery.

Chief workloads of the two major activities are displayed below:

Number of Federal participants in training courses.....	154,860	159,200	148,800

Operating results and financial condition.—The appropriated capital of the fund consists of $5 million. Billing rates in both major programs must be increased in 1977 in order to offset cost increases and maintain a positive capital position. In 1978, billing rates for the investigations program coupled with increased productivity should bring it close to the break-even point. Continual monitoring of the various training course rates is conducted in order to adjust any surplus or deficit.

This fund is used to pay annuities to retired employees or their survivors; to make refunds to former employees for amounts withheld, and to beneficiaries of employees who died before retirement or before the annuities equaled the amount withheld and to pay administrative expenses of the Commission in administering the program. The estimated unfunded liability for the civil service retirement system as of June 30, 1976, is $107 billion. Pertinent statistics as of the end of the fiscal year are shown below:

The fund finances the cost of health benefits for: (1) Active employees, (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors, and (3) the related expenses of the Commission in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Active employees.....	2,338,100	2,386,300	2,434,000
Annuityants.....	888,800	998,400	1,073,400
Total.....	3,226,900	3,384,700	3,507,400

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, 1% is added to the rates developed by health benefit carriers, for administrative expense, and 3% is added for a contingency reserve held by the Commission for each carrier. The Commission is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

For Postal Service employees the Government's contribution to the health benefits premiums is 75% of the current unweighted average of the high option premiums of six large plans in 1977. For general-schedule and wage-board employees the Government's contribution is 60% in 1977.

Financing.—The fund is financed by: (1) Withholdings from active employees and annuitants; (2) agency contributions for active employees, appropriated to agencies; and (3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to the Commission.

Operating Results.—Funds advanced to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods. About $15 million unused administrative funds were transferred to the contingency reserve in 1976. The contingency reserves are retained by the Commission and paid to carriers, as necessary, to defray future rate increases or to provide increased benefits.

This fund finances insurance premiums paid to private insurance companies for Federal employees group life insurance and expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administering the program. Separate cost data is maintained for employees regular group life insurance, an additional $10 thousand authorized in 1967, and insurance for members of former beneficial associations.

Budget program.—The status of the basic (regular and optional) life insurance program on June 30, 1976 and September 30, 1977 and 1978 is as follows:

	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Life insurance in force (in billions of dollars):
On active employees ¹	49.9	52.0	51.9
On retired employees.....	12.2	14.9	16.4
Total.....	62.1	66.9	68.3
Number of participants (in thousands):
Active employees.....	2,467	2,453	2,444
Annuitants.....	944	1,027	1,077

¹ Excludes equal amount of accidental death and dismemberment insurance.

Financing.—For non-Postal Service employees premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding 35½ cents biweekly from the salaries of employees, for each $1 thousand of life insurance and a 50% matching by employer agencies. The optional program is financed by withholding from employees' salaries or retirees' annuities and the beneficial association program is financed by direct collection from members. Most of the difference between receipt and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. The status of reserves at the end of the fiscal years is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Held in special contingency reserves:
By basic program insurer.....	50.0	50.0	50.0
By Beneficial Association insurer.....	5.4	4.2	3.2
Held in trust by U.S. Treasury.....	2,101.0	2,575.0	3,000.0
Total reserves.....	2,156.4	2,629.2	3,053.2

The carrier-held contingency reserve was reduced to $50 million as of June 30, 1976, and it is expected to remain at this level in subsequent years. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Employees life insurance fund. The operations of the insurer for the regular and optional life insurance program to the end of each year follow (in millions of dollars):

This fund, created by the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act, finances: (1) The cost of health benefits for retired employees and survivors who enroll in the Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; (2) the contribution to retired employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and (3) expenses of the Civil Service Commission in administering the program.

Budget program.—The fund is available without fiscal year limitation. Amounts contributed by the Government shall be paid into the fund from annual appropriations. Numbers of participants at the end of the fiscal year are as follows:

	1976 act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Uniform plan.....	51,940	45,770	40,668
Private plans.....	101,636	93,449	88,083
Total.....	153,576	139,219	128,751

Financing.—The fund is financed by contributions from those participants enrolled in the Government-sponsored plan and by Government contributions. The special contingency reserve with the carrier of the uniform plan is currently limited to $375,000 at the end of the policy year. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Retired employees health benefits program.

Operating results.—There will be an estimated $5.9 million contingency reserve in the fund at the end of 1978 as compared with an estimated $12.2 million in 1977. Present expectation is that contingency reserves will run out in 1979 and the Commission is studying possible alternatives to the sharply increased rates to annuitants that would be required under current law.

1. Nonlegal reports and studies.—Studies concerning areas in which there may be civil rights denials are conducted and reports issued with recommendations to the President and the Congress.

2. Hearings, legal reports, and studies.—Hearings are conducted by the Commissioners to investigate and obtain information about civil rights denials. Legal and quasi-legal studies are conducted and reports issued with recommendations to the President and the Congress.

3. State advisory committees and community programs.—State advisory committees hold conferences, open and closed meetings, and issue reports to gather and disseminate information about civil rights problems. Programing to implement Commission recommendations and to provide solutions to civil rights problems is maintained.

4. Liaison and information dissemination.—The Commission uses publications, films, liaison with private and public groups, the media, and a variety of other techniques to provide civil rights information to those who have rights, those who have responsibilities to comply with Federal civil rights laws and policies, those who implement these laws and policies, and the general public.

5. Federal program evaluation and complaints.—Programs of Federal agencies are appraised for compliance with civil rights laws to determine whether their benefits reach all groups equitably. Complaints which allege discrimination are received from the public and referred to Federal agencies having jurisdiction.

6. National issues and conferences.—Current civil rights issues are examined and monographs, statements, or reports are prepared dealing with the issues. Conferences are held in connection with Commission projects or to provide liaison with private and public civil rights agencies.

7. Basic civil rights research and clearinghouse library.—Basic civil rights research on the causes of discrimination is conducted. Technical assistance in research methodology is provided to ongoing Commission studies. A library to support research, studies, hearings, conferences, and other Commission activities is maintained.

8. Age discrimination programs.—Hearings are conducted and a study undertaken to make recommendations to the President and the Congress concerning unreasonable discrimination because of age.

The Committee for Purchase from the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped was established by the Wagner-O'Day Act of 1938, as amended. Its primary objective is to increase the employment opportunities for the blind and other severely handicapped and, whenever possible, to prepare them to engage in normal competitive employment. The Committee determines which commodities and services are suitable for Government procurement from qualified nonprofit agencies serving the blind and other severely handicapped; publishes a procurement list of such commodities and services; determines the fair market price for commodities and services on the procurement list; and makes rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the act.

The Committee staff supervises the selection and assignment of new commodities and services, assists in establishing prices, reviews and adjusts these prices, verifies the qualifications, and monitors the performance of workshops.

The major objectives of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) are to: maintain and improve the economic utility of the futures markets, protect market users through insuring market integrity, improve regulatory effectiveness and efficiency, and expand public knowledge of the commodity futures industry. The price discovery and risk shifting facilities afforded by the futures markets are widely used by producers, merchandisers, processors, and the public. To carry out its enforcement objectives, the Commission works to promote competitive pricing on commodity futures markets, to prevent price manipulation, to maintain fair trading practices, and to detect and prosecute cheating, fraud, and abusive acts and practices in commodity futures transactions. Enforcement of the act during 1976 included regulation of 68 active futures markets trading 47 commodities on 11 exchanges.

The CFTC carries out its activities in three major program areas: trading and markets, economics and education, and enforcement.

Trading and markets.—Responsibilities under the trading and markets program include: review of applications for contract market designation; conduct of trade practice investigations; review and analysis of all contract market rules and rule changes; policing of exchange rule enforcement programs; registration and auditing of persons and firms doing business for customers; and strengthening regulations of futures trading and protection of public interest.

Economics and education.—The economics and education program includes market surveillance, research, and education. The market surveillance function develops, reviews, and analyzes information and economic evidence for the prevention and detection of price distortions, manipulation, and market corners.

The objectives of the research function include regulatory studies of market performance, market behavior, and improvement in the information systems of the CFTC and the industry. The education function responds to the educational needs of market participants and persons associated with the production, marketing, and processing of commodities in which there are futures markets.

The Economics and Education Division distributes reports, statistics, and marketing situations to the members of the trade and the public.

Enforcement.—The enforcement program involves investigations of alleged or apparent violations of the act or the regulations, including suspected price manipulation and cornering, cheating, fraud and deceit, noncompetitive and other illegal trading practices, and the mishandling of customers' funds and accounts. Such investigations often develop evidence warranting the prompt institution and prosecution of administrative and/or Federal court proceedings to sanction offenders, prevent further violations or stop ongoing violations, and to deter others from violating the act.

The 1974 amendments to the act provide for the handling of customer's reparation claims for damages against persons registered with the Commission. Other customer complaints against registrants are processed by requesting responses from registrants to customers' allegations.

Total volume and value of futures trading in all commodities reached 33.3 million contracts and $676.1 billion for 1976. These figures represent increases of about 29.6% for volume and 24.2% for value over the same figures in 1975.

Of all commodities traded, grains were the most active with a volume of about 9.0 million contracts. The metals group had transactions totaling about 7.3 million contracts. The soybean and livestock complexes were the third and fourth most active commodity groups with volumes of 7.2 million contracts and 6.8 million contracts respectively. In both cotton and potatoes the FY 1976 volume was 0.8 million contracts. For other commodities, including financial instruments (Government National Mortgage Association-backed home mortgages and short-term Treasury bills), sugar, coffee, cocoa, and lumber products, the volume totaled 1.4 million transactions.

Continued increases in volume of futures trading tends to support the contention that as the domestic and international price structure becomes more free of governmental constraints, and as previously burdensome surpluses disappear, a greater need for viable futures markets has emerged.

The increasing utilization of futures trading to offset price risks through hedging and to facilitate price discovery in additional commodity fields, such as the financial instruments, signals an expanded public demand for these services at this time of greater price volatility and expanded foreign trade.

1. Community action operations.—The Head Start, Economic Opportunity, and Community Partnership Act of 1974 sets the non-Federal share for local initiative programs at 40% in 1977 and 1978. In the case of community action agencies whose annual Federal operating level is $300 thousand or less, such non-Federal share is 30% of the total approved cost. The 1978 request continues the 1977 level of $330 million in Federal funds for local initiative programs.

The following table indicates the growth of the local initiative program since 1975 (excluding the effect of non-Federal share amounts waived) at annualized Federal levels of $330 million:

Community action agencies Federal funding level	Percent of grantees	Non-Federal matching rate		Amount of required non-Federal share (millions)
		Year	Percent
$300 thousand or less	75	1975	20	$26.0
		1976	25	34.7
		1977	30	44.6
		1978	30	44.6
$300 thousand or more	25	1975	20	56.5
		1976	30	96.8
		1977	40	150.7
		1978	40	150.7

Approximately $16 million of required non-Federal share was waived by CSA in 1976. In total, community action agencies receive approximately $1.6 billion from both Federal and non-Federal sources for delivery of service programs.

In 1978, funding through this appropriation for categorical community action programs, which duplicate the program responsibilities of other Federal agencies, is not requested. Two additional activities, training and technical assistance ($1 million) and research and demonstration ($5 million), are included in the 1978 estimate. Responsibilities of these new activities, respectively, are to encourage administrative improvement of the current grantee service delivery system and Federal interagency cooperation in meeting the needs of poor people.

2. Community economic development.—The community economic development program, first funded in 1968, seeks to provide economic and community development improvement in rural and urban areas having concentrations of low-income people.

The 1977 amount includes provision for a major evaluation of the community economic development program, the results of which are expected to be available in 1978.

Title VII funds obligated to grantees but not utilized at September 30, 1976, totaled over $23 million. In view of the demonstration nature of the program and funds available from prior years, 1978 new budget authority of $30 million is considered adequate to maintain the current level of investments pending completion of the current 1977 evaluation.

3. Evaluation.—The 1978 request includes $1 million for evaluations of CSA program performance. This effort will strengthen the current delivery system by focusing more closely on increased efficiency and cost effectiveness of such delivery systems.

4. Program administration.—This activity provides supportive administration for the community action programs. The 1978 request includes a net ceiling increase of 107 positions over current levels constituting the addition of field personnel in the regional offices, and the establishment of a capacity in headquarters to evaluate CSA programs.

The Consumer Product Safety Act of 1972 established the Consumer Product Safety Commission as a regulatory agency for the purpose of reducing the unreasonable risk of injury associated with consumer products. The Commission also administers the Federal Hazardous Substances Act, the Poison Prevention Packaging Act, the Flammable Fabrics Act, and the Federal Refrigerator Safety Act.

1. Hazard identification.—Activities undertaken in this program provide an information base on injuries and hazards associated with consumer products.

2. Hazard strategy analysis.—Activities in this program involve research on specific product hazards in order to identify the most appropriate remedial approaches; and research to develop data sources, forecasts, and new methodologies for product testing and analysis.

3. Regulatory development.—Activities in this program are geared toward developing and promulgating product safety standards, regulations, rules, and test methods as specified in the Consumer Product Safety Act and related acts, implementing Commission policy on voluntary standards, and processing recommendations on petitions to the Commission.

4. Information and education.—Activities in this program are designed to produce and disseminate product safety information, develop education strategies and campaigns, supplement new product regulations, and provide operational training.

5. Compliance and enforcement.—Activities in this program emphasize monitoring conformance with the statutes administered by the Commission, and selecting the appropriate administrative and/or legal action to encourage and enforce response to the Commission's mandate to reduce unreasonable risk from consumer products.

6. Administration.—Activities conducted in this program involve formulation and implementation of policies, and provision of a variety of nontechnical support services.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting assists in the development and improvement of noncommercial television and radio broadcasting through direct support of national interconnection services, research and analysis activities, fund-raising support, and substantial direct payments to radio and television stations for general operational support. These general support grants for television licensees are fixed by agreement at a percentage of annual appropriations.

The Corporation also makes grants to radio and television stations throughout the country for production of programs for national, regional, and local use. In addition, it provides financial support to the station program cooperative, which is a market mechanism whereby local public television stations purchase programs for local use.

The Federal payment is the annual U.S. Government contribution toward expenses of the government of the District of Columbia. The District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-198), as amended, authorized $300,000 thousand as the 1978 payment.

This appropriation also includes a payment of $28,116 thousand in lieu of charges for water, water services, and sanitary sewer services rendered to Federal facilities by the District government during 1976, 1977, and 1978. This amount includes a one-time, "catch-up" payment of $20,400 thousand, which will put payment for these services on a current basis.

The District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-198) authorized the District of Columbia to issue tax-exempt general obligation bonds to finance capital projects. It also provided interim authority under which the District could continue to borrow from the U.S. Treasury to finance capital projects for which funds had been authorized or appropriated before January 2, 1975.

There have now been unanticipated delays in the city's bond issuance program. Pending enactment of substantive legislation, the 1976 and 1977 District of Columbia Appropriations Acts authorized Treasury lending to finance new capital projects approved in those two acts. Legislation will be submitted to substantively authorize $11,700 thousand of the estimate for 1978, which represents new projects.

Public Law 93-198 set a ceiling on outstanding long-term debt of the District of Columbia. Under that limitation, the District may neither issue general obligation bonds nor borrow funds from the U.S. Treasury to finance capital projects if the amount of the additional obligation thus incurred would cause debt service on outstanding long-term debt in any one year to exceed 14% of District revenues estimated to be credited to the District during the year in which the bonds were to be issued or the Treasury loans were to be executed.

The following table shows the status of capital outlay debt (all U.S. Government loans at this point) on a cumulative basis:

Loans are made by the U.S. Treasury to the District of Columbia to meet interest payments on stadium bonds which cannot be met from net stadium receipts. The loans are repaid with interest, in the same year they are made, from local revenues (2 D.C. Code 1727). Nothing has accrued in the sinking fund authorized by the District of Columbia Stadium Act of 1957 (Public Law 85-300), to repay outstanding debt. The U.S. Treasury is authorized (50 Stat. 692) to make interest-free advances to the District of Columbia to meet short-term cash requirements, which result from variations in the rate of disbursements and tax collections during the year. The Home Rule Act (Public Law 93-198) authorized the District of Columbia to borrow for short-term cash needs in the private market by issuing various forms of short-term notes. Because such an issue is planned for 1978, an advance of Federal funds will not be necessary. Repeal of Federal borrowing authority is proposed.

In addition, as provided by law, a reimbursable appropriation of $750 thousand was made to the District of Columbia for the expenses of carrying into effect the Home Rule Charter provisions of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act (Title IV).

The Emergency Loan Guarantee Act created an Emergency Loan Guarantee Board composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, as Chairman, the Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The Board was given authority to guarantee, or make commitments to guarantee, loans to major business enterprises. The maximum amount for outstanding loans guaranteed shall not exceed $250 million at any time.

In accordance with provisions of section 9(a) of the act, there was established in the Treasury an emergency loan guarantee fund to be administered by the Board. The fund is available for the payment of the expenses of the Board and for fulfilling the obligations of the Board under the act. The fund is credited with fees prescribed by the Board in connection with each loan guaranteed under the act.

On September 9, 1971, the Guarantee Board found that Lockheed Aircraft Corp. met the requirements of the act and approved a Government guarantee to 24 banks which may lend to Lockheed up to $250 million. The guarantee commitment to Lockheed and its lending banks required repayment of the guaranteed portion of the borrowings by December 31, 1977, unless the Board and the lending banks consent to extend the maturity date for 1 additional year, as provided for under the act.

The Export-Import Bank of the United States was organized in 1934. Its programs are authorized under the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945, as amended. The purpose of the Bank is to aid in financing and to facilitate U.S. exports.

To accomplish its objectives, Eximbank authority and resources are used to: assume commercial and political risks that exporters or private financial institutions are unwilling or unable to undertake; overcome maturity and other limitations in private sector export financing; assist U.S. exporters to meet foreign officially sponsored export credit competition; and provide leadership and guidance in export financing to the U.S. exporting and banking communities and to foreign borrowers.

Eximbank's receipts and disbursements were excluded by statute from the budget totals from August 17, 1971, to September 30, 1976. Under the terms of Public Law 93-646, the Bank's transactions are now included retroactively in the totals for those years.

The Administration supervises a coordinated agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations which make credit available to farmers and their cooperatives.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from agencies in the farm credit system and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year budgets approved by the Federal Farm Credit Board.

Supervision and examination of farm credit banks and associations.—Provision is made for supervision and examination of: 12 Federal land banks; 13 banks for cooperatives; 12 Federal intermediate credit banks; 538 Federal land bank associations; and 430 production credit associations. Also, these credit agencies are furnished such services as assistance in financing and investments, credit analysis, development of appraisal standards and policies, preparation of reports and budgets, and development and distribution of information on farm credit.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. Initially deposit insurance was limited to $2,500 per depositor. This protection has been $40,000 since November 27, 1974. In order to accomplish its varied functions in the protection of bank depositors, the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. The major portion of the Corporation's operations consists of examining State banks which are not members of the Federal Reserve System and the liquidation activities attendant to insured banks which have closed.

The insurance fund is supported by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the Treasury of the United States. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date, and none is anticipated in 1977 and 1978.

Income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investment in U.S. Government securities. As of September 30, 1976, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $7.1 billion. The entire fund represents the accumulated net income of the Corporation and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriation are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations.

The estimates for 1977 and 1978 in these statements make no provision for losses and expenses which might occur by reason of the closing of any bank after September 30, 1976, because there is no sound basis for predicting which insured banks, if any, will close after that date.

Strategic petroleum reserve.—The objective of this program is to provide for the storage of substantial quantities of petroleum in order to diminish the vulnerability of the United States from the effects of a severe energy supply interruption and to provide limited protection from the short-term consequences of interruptions in the supply of petroleum products. Funding through 1978 is for storage facilities needed for a 500 million barrel program and for 150 million barrels of petroleum.

This program is financed from the Petroleum Reserves account, in addition to the amounts reported above. The consolidated statement for the strategic petroleum reserve program is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Governments of Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands received payment for all import license fees collected by the Administrator of the Federal Energy Administration between May 1, 1973, and January 31, 1975, pursuant to Presidential Proclamation 3279, as amended.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board formulates policies for and supervises the operation of the 12 Federal home loan banks, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. It is also responsible for the examination of Federal savings and loan associations and for the examination and supervision of State-chartered institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenditure programs of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation are presented as business-type budgets. The Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, as amended, provides that all expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision—formerly the Division of Examinations—Federal Home Loan Bank Board, shall be considered nonadministrative. The administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, including the home office of the Office of Examinations and Supervision, are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The expenses of the field offices of the Office of Examinations and Supervision are paid from fees collected from savings and loan institutions examined and from assessments against the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Title I of the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 authorized the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to subsidize the interest rate charged by each of the 12 Federal home loan banks on lending to member savings and loan associations, in order to stabilize the flow of funds into residential construction. The program was initiated in 1971 with an appropriation of $85 million. An additional

Budget program.—The Board's budget program consists of seven activities:

1. Examination and supervision of Federal home loan banks.—The Board examines and supervises the operations of the 12 Federal home loan banks.

2. Examination and supervision of Federal and State-chartered thrift institutions.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and all uninsured member institutions of the Federal Home Loan Bank System which are not examined by the State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter, when required by the Board. The financial condition and operations of each insured institution are analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on, cooperatively, with the respective State authorities.

3. Chartering and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion to Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

4. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

5. Analysis of operations.—Analyses are made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, and the character and volume of mortgage lending. Selective reviews are made of geographical areas and trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including the volume of activity and interest rates for all major types of mortgage lenders.

6. Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting, budgetary, and financial reporting; internal budget control; and fiscal organization and management. These services also include general housekeeping and operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

7. Acquisition and construction of a building in the District of Columbia.—The Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 authorized the Board to acquire property and construct a building in the District of Columbia to provide quarters and facilities for the Board. Under the law, the Board is required to prepare and submit an annual budget program for the building as provided in title I of the Government Corporation Control Act.

8. Authority of the Treasury to purchase Federal home loan bank obligations.—The 12 Federal home loan banks seek to improve the financial condition of member institutions. The banks, which are owned by the member institutions, obtain funds primarily from public issuances of consolidated obligations. Authority to borrow from the Treasury was temporarily increased from $4 to $6 billion by an amendment to the National Housing Act, approved October 28, 1974. The increase expired on August 10, 1975. A total of $1,574,500 thousand was borrowed in 1975 and 1976. No additional borrowing is anticipated in 1978.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the activities discussed above include administrative expenses under annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to decrease from $17.2 million in 1977 to $17.1 million in 1978. Nonadministrative expenses covering examination and supervision of savings and loan associations are discussed separately, below.

The Office of Examinations and Supervision has the major role in fulfilling the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's statutory responsibility for monitoring and regulating the savings and loan industry. This Office examines and, when necessary, supervises and assists all savings and loan associations to assure the public that savings deposited in these associations are safe, and to make credit more accessible to potential home buyers.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) also relies on the Office of Examinations and Supervision to protect its assets against depletion from the financial failure of any insured savings and loan association. The Office's responsibility extends to all institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation as well as to noninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system not subject to State examination.

The Office monitors savings and loan associations through continual analysis of their operating policies and financial reports, regularly scheduled examinations, and occasional special examinations. The purpose of the monitoring process is to determine compliance with Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations and to ascertain the quality of management and the financial soundness of the member associations. If the Office detects actual or potentially unsafe or unsound practices in insured associations, supervisory agents from the Federal home loan banks work with the association to prevent or correct poor financial or management performance. The operations of the Office are funded substantially through direct examination charges imposed on savings and loan associations.

The Office also has examination and supervisory responsibilities with respect to savings and loan holding companies and their subsidiaries. In addition, the Office has assumed responsibilities pursuant to legislation in the areas of consumer credit protection, equal opportunity, and security measures.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection, which insures each saver in a member association against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $40 thousand, may be provided either through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings account holders in the event of liquidation. Preventing default, which protects each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making contributions or by purchasing all or a part of an association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Preventive measures are preferred by the Corporation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as receiver, or co-receiver upon request of a State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions. In addition, the Corporation, upon determination by the Board, is empowered to act, even retroactively, as sole receiver in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation and the Federal home loan banks.

In carrying out its responsibility for protecting savings in insured savings and loan associations, the Corporation has settled 110 cases since its creation in 1934. Actual losses sustained and provision for losses to June 30, 1976, have amounted to $194.9 million representing approximately 4.7% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information on these cases is summarized in the following table:

Budget program.—The Insurance Corporation's budget program consists of the following activities:

1. Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—This category includes the estimated costs of executive direction and policy formulation in 1978.

2. Payment to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 21% of the total administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board plus 49% of the remaining 79% in 1978 in return for services and facilities from the Board, including the Washington office of the Office of Examinations and Supervision. The Corporation will also pay 36% of the Office of Examinations and Supervision district offices' expenses.

3. Contributions and provision for contributions.—This item is the estimated amount needed in 1978 to prevent the default of insured institutions.

4. Refund of additional premium prepayments.—A 1962 amendment to the National Housing Act required that each insured institution pay an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year, less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The amendment also provided for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayment of each insured association at a rate equal to the average rate realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio.

Another amendment to the National Housing Act provides for a phaseout of the secondary reserve over the first 10 minimum net reduction years occurring after December 31, 1973. In May of each year, the Corporation will reduce the amount of each insured institution's pro rata share of the secondary reserve as of the preceding December 31 by a cash refund of the difference between the pro rata share and the percentage of its beginning balance on a percentage basis prescribed in the law.

5. Other expenses.—This provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the workout of contribution agreements, the disposition of assets purchased from, and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to Treasury, together with an additional $43 million in interest. The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, up to a limit of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowings under this authorization have ever been necessary. The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any 1 year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured savers.

Operating results.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock, leaving a reserve for contingencies of $4,261.7 million as of June 30, 1976. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934 of $4,693.3 million have been applied as follows:

Funded operating expenses for 1978 are estimated at $123 million. Net operating income for 1978, which is expected to be $518 million, will be retained by the Corporation to meet future contingencies.

The Federal Maritime Commission administers the shipping statutes which require regulation of the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. In addition, the Commission has responsibility for the licensing of ocean freight forwarders; and for insuring that vessel owners or operators establish financial responsibility for water pollution, death or injury to passengers or other persons on voyages to and from U.S. ports, and indemnification of passengers for the nonperformance of transportation.

The Service assists labor and management in mediation and prevention of disputes affecting industries engaged in interstate commerce and defense production, other than rail and air transportation, whenever in its judgment such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of commerce. Under the authority of Executive Order 11491 of October 29, 1969, as amended by Executive Orders 11616, 11636, and 11838, the Service also makes its mediation and conciliation facilities available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes. Public Law 93-360, effective August 25, 1974, amended the National Labor Relations Act to extend its coverage to employees working in private nonprofit health care institutions. The Service is involved in special notice and mediation procedures designed to minimize work stoppages in contract disputes at all private nonprofit health care institutions throughout the Nation.

1. Mediation services.—During 1976, dispute notices and other notifications affecting 119,946 collective bargaining units were received by the Service. Dispute cases totaling 25,571 were assigned for mediation, and 24,442 dispute mediation assignments were closed during the year. About 87% of the mediation assignments closed which required the services of mediators were settled without work stoppages. A total of 32,802 mediation conferences were conducted by mediators during 1976. The workload shown above includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors. Cases in process at the end of 1976 totaled 7,532. The projected workload for mediation assignments closed for 1977 is estimated to be 28,900 and 30,000 for 1978. The following table shows a comparison of workload data:

Service function in the Federal sector.—Executive Order 11491 of October 29, 1969, as amended by Executive Orders 11616, 11636, and 11838, places responsibility in the agency for providing mediation assistance to Federal agencies and labor organizations in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service was engaged in dispute mediation activities in 825 cases during 1976 as compared with 790 for 1975.

Service function in the health care industry.—Public Law 93-360 provides that upon receipt of notice of contract termination or modification or initial contract negotiations, the Service is mandated to contact the parties in an effort to achieve agreement through mediation, with the parties being required to participate in meetings called by the Service. Mediation efforts by FMCS may continue while a board of inquiry is looking into the facts of a dispute. During 1976, the Service processed a total of 1,444 health care assignments.

2. Technical services.—The primary functions of this program are technical assistance, research, technical information, mediator training, and the development of new and improved dispute settlement techniques. These functions are used to create programs which will meet the urgent requirement for greater understanding of the collective bargaining process. Through its technical assistance program, the Service has initiated and developed labor-management committees, training programs, conferences, and specialized workshops dealing with a wide range of contemporary issues in collective bargaining. This program provides a clearing center for information, and new approaches and techniques developed in industrial relations. Through this program the Service will continue to work with both labor and management to bring about a better understanding of the collective bargaining process, and to improve their day-to-day working relationships. During 1976 the Service closed 1,082 technical assistance cases. It is estimated that 1,300 cases will be closed in 1977 and 1,710 in 1978.

3. Arbitration services.—The Service assists disputants in utilizing the arbitration process for the resolution of disputes of rights (grievances) and disputes of interest (negotiations) in the private and public sectors.

In 1976 the Service provided 22,090 panels of arbitrators, an increase of 60% over the past 5 years.

This activity also includes the cost of selecting boards of inquiry to look into the facts of a dispute in the health care industry. This responsibility is carried out through the assignment of arbitrators who are experienced as dispute resolvers in the industry. In addition, the Service administers expedited arbitration for the U.S. Postal Service in 24 major areas of the country, national agreement in construction, and a number of multilocation contracts.

In 1976 the Service provided 22,090 panels of arbitrators. The projected number of panels issued is estimated to be 26,000 in 1977 and 29,900 in 1978. The projections are based on the anticipated increased demand for arbitration by the parties.

4. Management and administrative support.—This program provides for policy planning, evaluation, direction, coordination, management, and administrative support for the programs of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

5. Boards and panels.—Provision is made for ad hoc employment of labor relations experts, individually or in panels, in support of the mediation function, and for boards of inquiry appointed by the President in emergency disputes. Public Law 93-360 also amended title II of the Labor Management Relations Act, 1947, by adding a new section 213 which provides that the FMCS may appoint an impartial board of inquiry to look into the facts of a contract dispute involving health care institutions and to publicly report its findings and recommendations to the parties. During 1976 a total of 48 boards of inquiry were appointed.

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and the Natural Gas Act, and performs other work relating to Federal electric power developments and associated natural resources.

1. Water resources analysis.—The Commission makes water resources studies alone or in cooperation with other Federal, State, and local agencies. For certain Federal projects, it approves the rate of sale of power and allocates the cost to project purposes.

2. Hydroelectric project licensing.—The Commission licenses non-Federal hydroelectric projects. The Commission determines whether projects with expiring licenses should be relicensed or recommended to Congress for Federal takeover. The environmental impact of proposed projects is assessed by the Commission.

3. Electric utility regulation.—The Commission regulates the wholesale rates and services of utilities through the review of rate schedules or other documents filed with the Commission or through investigations initiated by the Commission.

4. Gas certificate regulation.—The Commission issues certificates of public convenience and necessity for the sale of gas by independent producers and for the construction of new facilities and extensions by interstate natural gas companies. The environmental impact of proposed interstate pipeline construction is assessed by the Commission.

5. Gas rate regulation.—The Commission regulates the wellhead price of natural gas sold to interstate pipeline companies and the wholesale rate charges by the pipeline companies of all natural gas sold in interstate commerce.

6. Industry systems analysis.—The Commission studies the energy industries to develop data required for regulatory determinations and to evaluate current trends and future patterns and their effect on the national requirements for electric power and natural gas.

7. Compliance and legal support.—The Commission establishes accounting requirements for ratemaking purposes and reviews compliance by regulated companies. The Commission holds hearings on regulatory matters.

The Federal Trade Commission is charged by law with insuring that competition in the marketplace is vigorous, free, and fair. This is accomplished by eliminating threats to fair and honest competition from all sources, both public and private.

1. Maintaining competition.—The antitrust laws were enacted to foster and preserve competition and the free enterprise system. The Commission examines competitive restraints imposed by the private sector or by Government regulatory actions that unduly restrict or limit the competitive process and takes action, where appropriate, to eliminate such restraints. In 1978, the Commission will focus principal antitrust attention on the energy, food, health care, transportation, and chemical industries. The thrust of these activities will continue to be on removing barriers to the operation of an unfettered market system—barriers that may encourage critical non-market-determined price increases.

2. Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive marketing practices which inhibit or restrict the free exercise of informed choice. Utilizing authority conferred by the Magnuson-Moss Act, the Commission will continue shifting consumer protection resources from costly case-by-case adjudication to more cost-effective rule enforcement. It will also continue to examine and take action to eliminate private regulations which support prices at uncompetitive levels.

3. Economic activities.—This mission has two principal thrusts. First, economic and financial data are collected and analyzed, leading to the publication of statistical reports on the performance of important sectors of the American economy. Second, competitive conditions and business conduct in selected industries are investigated and evaluated.

4. Executive direction and policy planning.—In 1978, the Commission will continue to study its policy development and evaluation activities, refine its program planning and budget execution capabilities, expand the Commission's management information system, and place new emphasis on program impact evaluation as a management technique for improving the focus of Commission activities.

5. Administration and management.—These mission activities provide ongoing support and services to the Commission and its major executive units.

The authorization level needed to support the Commission's missions is $59,543,000. Because section 20 of the Federal Trade Commission Act does not provide for authorizations beyond 1977, the Commission requests an increase in authorization to $59,543,000 for 1978.

The Harry S Truman Memorial Scholarship Act authorizes up to $30 million to be appropriated to the Harry S Truman Memorial Scholarship Trust Fund, which it establishes in the Treasury of the United States. The act specifies that the Secretary of the Treasury shall invest in full the amounts appropriated in interest-bearing obligations of the United States or obligations guaranteed as to both principal and interest by the United States. Funds for Truman scholarships and operating expenses of the Foundation will come from the interest and earnings on the investments.

Because the fully authorized amount of $30 million has now been appropriated to the trust fund, no additional budget authority is requested.

Revenues in this account are generated by the licensing and sale of commemorative items. Net proceeds are used for project matching grants and other purposes, as follows:

1. Project grants.—Matching grants are made to qualified recipients as determined by the American Revolution Bicentennial Board.

2. Sales program administration.—Costs for production, promotion, and sale of medals produced by the U.S. mint, and for operation of a licensing program for other items are funded from gross receipts.

3. Salaries and expenses.—By direction of Congress, closeout expenses of the agency, including a final report required by law, are funded in this account. It also includes amounts for special projects, as determined by the Board.

Unexpended balances in this account at termination will be returned to the general fund of the Treasury.

This independent Commission of five members was created to hear and adjudicate claims, existing before August 13, 1946, of American Indian tribes, bands, or other identifiable groups of Indians residing within the territorial limits of the United States. Of the 615 claims docketed, 474 were completed on September 30, 1976. Payments of awards are dependent upon subsequent appropriations made through claims, judgments, and private relief acts appropriations to the Treasury Department. This budget provides for termination of the Commission on September 30, 1978, as required under current law.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES

ADVISORY COMMISSION ON INTERGOVERNMENTAL RELATIONS

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations is an independent, bipartisan body which attempts to identify and analyze the causes of intergovernmental conflicts, and recommends ways of strengthening and improving the American federal system. The 26-member Commission includes representatives of the executive and legislative branches of all levels of government—Federal, State, and local—as well as representatives of the general public.

The Commission and its staff examine Federal and State programs having an intergovernmental aspect. Proposed legislation is reviewed to determine its overall effect on the Federal system. The Commission also identifies emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations.

The Commission makes recommendations concerning the allocation of responsibilities and revenues among the various levels of government. The recommendations and published reports growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive and legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments for appropriate action.

Continuing and annual projects of the Commission include the monitoring of the general revenue sharing effort, coordinating the review procedures established by the Office of Management and Budget Circular A-85, polling the changing public attitudes on government and taxes, surveying State and local finances, monitoring the legislation of State and local governments, and the implementing of Commission recommendations on the Federal, State, and local levels.

Other projects which are nonrecurring but currently under Commission study include intergovernmental aid (categorical and block grants), criminal justice, public growth sector, State-mandated local government expenditures, the indexation of personal income taxes, State-imposed local government expenditure lids, and the "20th century war between the states." Congress has also directed that the Commission begin a study of the intergovernmental aspects of countercyclical aid to State and local governments; four other American fiscal system studies (Public Law 94-488); and, pursuant to Public Law 93-405, the Commission is conducting an analysis of the effects of "full deposit" insurance on State pledging laws the municipal bond market, and housing credit.

The Consolidated working fund receives funds from other Federal agencies for special projects carried out by the Commission pursuant to contracts with these agencies. Each contract is charged for a share of the Commission's overhead expenses.

Projects scheduled for completion in 1977 include a complete study of categorical and block grants, an analysis of criminal justice programs and the LEAA, a consideration of State aid to local governments, and research into the allocation of forestland revenues. The projects are financed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare; the Department of Housing and Urban Development; the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration; and the U.S. Forest Service.

Contributions from State and local governments and nonprofit organizations are used to strengthen the Commission's clearinghouse, information, and policy implementation services to State and local governments and to improve intergovernmental coordination and relations.

In 1977, the Commission again began seeking contributions from State and local governments after a 2-year effort to gain a contribution commitment from each of the national public interest groups representing State and local governments. A goal of $100 thousand in income by 1979 has been tentatively established.

The Appalachian Regional Development Act assigns the following major responsibilities to the Commission:

(1) Develop, on a continuing basis, comprehensive and coordinated plans and programs and establish priorities thereunder, giving due consideration to other Federal, State, and local planning in the region;

(2) Conduct and sponsor investigations, research, and studies, including an inventory and analysis of the resources of the region, and in coordination with Federal, State, and local agencies, sponsor demonstration projects designed to foster regional productivity and growth;

(3) Review and study, in cooperation with the agency involved, Federal, State, and local public and private programs and, where appropriate, recommend modifications or additions which will increase their effectiveness in the region;

(4) Encourage private investment in industrial, commercial, and recreational projects; and

(5) Serve as a focal point and coordinating unit for Appalachian programs.

It is the function of the Federal Cochairman of the Commission and his staff to coordinate the Appalachian program with all Federal agencies.

The Appalachian Regional Development Act also provides for a professional Commission staff. Employees of the Commission, under the act, are determined not to be Federal employees but are the joint employees of the Federal and State Governments.

As authorized in the Appalachian Regional Development Act, the 13 Appalachian States share with the Federal Government the administrative expenses of the Appalachian Regional Commission. The States will advance funds in the amount of $1,700 thousand to pay their share of these expenses in 1978.

The Appalachian Regional Commission will provide technical support for the research and local development districts' programs and for health and child development programs by an advance of funds in the amount of $710 thousand from the "Appalachian regional development programs" appropriation.

The Office of the States' Washington Representative established by the Appalachian State Governors represents the 13 Appalachian States in the day-to-day operation of the Commission. That office is supported solely by the States, and is not included in these accounts.

Contribution to the Commission.—The Commission was created by compact among the four States in the basin, the District of Columbia, and the Federal Government for the purpose of water pollution abatement and control. It is also responsible for the management of water and associated land resources.

The appropriation represents the Federal Government's share of the expenses of the Commission's operations. Funds also are contributed by the signatory bodies (member States and District of Columbia). The Commission also receives an Environmental Protection Agency program grant under the authority of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended. Under the amended compact law, State shares have been increased substantially to provide for an expanded program of activities, requiring an equivalent increase in the Federal contribution.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority is a non-Federal agency established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The Authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and provide for the construction and operation of the Metrorail rapid transit system to serve the National Capital area. This system will extend from a central distributor system into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia.

Construction costs are funded by a combination of bonds and grants from the local, State, and Federal governments. The National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 provided the initial Federal funding and was amended in 1972 to provide additional funding. The 1972 amendments provided for a Federal guaranty of the Authority's bonds in an amount not to exceed $1.2 billion, conversion of the Authority's bonds from a tax-exempt to a taxable security, and payment of an interest subsidy by the Federal Government to the Authority of 25% of the net interest cost.

The Metrorail capital budget estimates for 1978 reflect the restructuring of the construction program for the rail rapid transit system caused by an increase in the total system cost from $2.977 billion to $4.677 billion reported in early 1976. This increase has resulted from schedule delays, design changes, and higher inflation than earlier assumed. The $4.677 billion amount now represents a firm ceiling established by the Federal Government on total system costs.

The Federal authorization of $1,147,044 thousand contained in the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969 will be exhausted in 1978 with the advance appropriation of $15,421,779 in 1977. The Federal funding of $26,700,000 from transition quarter coupled with the year-in-advance appropriation of $15,421,779 represent $42,121,779 in Federal funds available in the Authority's 1978 program. This will be matched by $21,060,890 in local moneys for a total of $63,182,669. In addition, under the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973, local jurisdictions may identify Interstate highway projects no longer necessary whose Federal and local matching shares on an 80% Federal, 20% local basis may be used to support rapid transit construction. In 1975, the District of Columbia transferred $286.6 million in this manner and in 1976 and 1977 approximately $562.4 million is planned to be transferred and matched by the 20% local share for Metro construction purposes.

During 1978, approximately $350 million in local jurisdiction Interstate highway funds are proposed to be made available along with the 20% local moneys. Approval of transfers in 1978 by the Federal Department of Transportation is contingent upon satisfactory completion of a federally requested reevaluation of alternatives to Metro rail transit in several of the corridors surrounding Washington, D.C.

The Authority's 1978 capital program includes provision for handicapped facilities, which are separately funded from the above amounts. Federal funds of $2.7 million will be matched by local moneys of $0.616 million, on an 80/20 cost-sharing basis, to produce a program of $3.316 million in 1978. Although a balance of $13 million of the Federal authorization of $65 million contained in the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1973 will still be available, 1978 is currently the final year during which funds are required.

Funding of the 1978 Authority capital program for construction of the rail rapid transit system is as follows:

Interstate highway funds.....	350,000
Local grants.....	81,616
Internally generated funds.....	28,061
Total.....	504,499

Apart from the capital program for construction of the rail rapid transit system is the requirement of annual interest costs on outstanding Authority bonds sold in support of the construction program. The Federal Government, in accordance with Public Law 92-349, provides an annual bond interest subsidy for 1978 of $19,374 thousand.

The U.S. International Trade Commission (formerly the U.S. Tariff Commission) investigates and reports to the President and Congress on the conditions, causes, and effects of competition between domestic and foreign industry.

The Commission conducts investigations and, where appropriate, makes determinations and recommendations in cases where (1) serious injury to industries may warrant increases in duties, the imposition of quotas, or the provision of adjustment assistance; (2) imports of goods sold at less than fair value may injure an industry; (3) imports of agricultural products may materially interfere with certain programs of the Department of Agriculture; (4) unfair methods of competition in the importation or sale of foreign articles may tend to injure an industry or restrain and monopolize trade and commerce in the United States; or (5) foreign governments may have subsidized imports into the United States.

The Commission also provides technical assistance to the U.S. representatives in international trade negotiations; publishes the Tariff Schedules of the United States Annotated; works with other agencies to improve the compatibility of statistics on imports, exports, and production; participates in international efforts to develop a harmonized commodity code; and monitors U.S. trade with non-market economy countries.

The budget estimates for the Commission are included without revision by the President, pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974.

The Interstate Commerce Commission regulates surface transportation in interstate and foreign commerce to the extent it takes place within the United States.

Funds requested for 1978 are required to: (1) process the increasing volume of formal proceedings cases in less time, expand the use of rulemaking proceedings to reduce time-consuming, case-by-case adjudication, handle an increasing number of noncaseload matters having a significant impact on the national transportation system, update and improve economic, financial and cost data, modernize analytical techniques, and meet additional demands for valuation and depreciation data, including the Trans-Alaska Pipeline; (2) provide for the phased reduction of full-time permanent personnel in the motor carrier entry program by the end of 1979 through the implementation of procedural and other reforms to manage the program more effectively; (3) implement major redirection and reform of the compliance and enforcement program; (4) refine cost development formulas, especially small motor carrier shipments; (5) expand the use of cost/benefit analysis in the decisionmaking process and increase both the quality and quantity of data used; and (6) establish a depreciation and funds-flow analysis unit.

The Commission's resources are divided among four major programs:

1. Formal proceedings.—This program encompasses the operations involved in deciding all formal and certain informal proceedings filed with the Commission. It includes granting operating authorities, regulating rates and

Section 1 (16) of the Interstate Commerce Act, as amended by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, authorizes the Commission to direct rail service over the lines of a rail carrier which has ceased a portion or all of its operations under the conditions specified in the statute. The Commission is further authorized to make payments to directed carriers to cover costs incurred to the extent they exceed direct revenues.

The funds obligated in 1976 provide funding for directed service over the lines of the Lehigh and New England Railway Co.

The Japan-United States Friendship Commission was created by the Japan-United States Friendship Act of 1975 to make grants to promote scholarly, cultural, and artistic activities between Japan and the United States. The entire appropriation was transferred to the Japan-United States Friendship Trust Fund. The Commission is authorized to direct the Secretary of the Treasury to make expenditures from the income of the Fund and in an amount not to exceed 5% annually of the principal of the Fund, to carry out the purposes of the act.

Trust Funds

JAPAN-UNITED STATES FRIENDSHIP TRUST FUND

For expenses of the Japan-United States Friendship Commission as authorized by Public Law 94-118, as amended, from the interest earned on the Japan-United States Friendship Trust Fund from the date of establishment of that Fund by Public Law 94-157, December 18, 1975, through September 30, 1977, $1,000,000, to remain available until expended; and an amount of Japanese currency not to exceed the equivalent of $1,000,000 based on exchange rates at the time of payment of such amounts, to remain available until expended. Not to exceed $5,000 of this amount shall be available for official reception and representation expenses in any one fiscal year.

¹ Includes capital outlay as follows: 1977 $10 thousand.

The Japan-United States Friendship Act of 1975 established the Japan-United States Friendship Trust Fund, to be used for the promotion of scholarly, cultural, and artistic activities between Japan and the United States. The amount authorized by Congress came to $24 million; the initial appropriation was for $18 million. The income of the Fund, and not to exceed 5% annually of the principal of the Fund, is authorized to be expended to carry out the purposes of the act. Such funds will be used to pay the expenses of the Commission and to make grants to provide support for studies, fellowships, scholarships, book collections, art programs, and other cultural and educational activities, primarily in the United States.

The National Capital Planning Commission is the central planning agency for the Federal Government in the National Capital region.

The 1978 estimate includes a reorganization of Commission staff and procedures. In addition legislation is proposed to codify and strengthen the Commission's review and approval authorities. The estimate is not predicated on passage of such legislation, which will have no net effect on Commission workload.

The National Center for Productivity and Quality of Working Life came into existence on November 29, 1975, for a 3-year period. It succeeds the National Commission on Productivity and Work Quality. Public Law 94-136 provides the Center with a comprehensive mandate to encourage efforts toward productivity throughout the private and public sectors of the economy.

The Center is granted wide authority to engage itself in activities throughout the Government and private industry and is authorized a broad range of tools to utilize but it is instructed to stimulate, encourage, assist, and coordinate others rather than attempt to resolve the many complex issues of productivity and work quality itself.

The Center's joint statement, "A National Policy for Productivity Improvement" provides the basic guidelines on which the Center will base its efforts to meet the legislative mandate, and on which this request has been formulated.

The primary goal will be to act as a catalyst and focal point for national efforts to stimulate increased productivity growth and improve quality of working life throughout the economy. The Center will become a central reference source for information, data, methods, and techniques for productivity improvement. It will actively encourage selected segments of the economy where improved productivity is particularly important to pursue new or expanded productivity improvement programs. It will stimulate, review, and help coordinate Federal efforts to improve productivity. It will work to help inform decisionmakers and the public-at-large about productivity issues and their importance to the economy.

The Center will be organized in such a way as to make the fullest possible use of its Board of Directors and will direct its major focus to those critical national productivity issues determined of greatest priority by the membership of its Board and by its legislative authority.

The Center will attempt, whenever possible, to stimulate existing public and private agencies and groups to undertake, staff, and finance needed programs or studies on their own. Where some form of government funding or other resources are required, the Center will seek to identify and bring to bear the productivity-related funding capabilities of other Federal agencies.

It is estimated that approximately 4,500 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 1978.

Financing.—Each insured credit union is required to pay a normal premium of one-twelfth of 1% of the total amount of its member accounts. These premiums are sufficient to cover the cost of operations and provide for increases in the fund balance, which is held in Government interest bearing securities as an insurance reserve. The fund is structured to be self-supporting, with $100 million borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies. The authority to borrow from the Treasury will probably not be exercised in 1977 or 1978.

Operating results.—Anticipated net income of $29,325 thousand will be retained in the fund, raising the balance for unforeseen emergencies to $120 million by the end of 1978.

The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities provides funds to institutions and to individuals in support of cultural and humanistic activities throughout the country. The Foundation's programs are designed to encourage quality in and to increase public access to artistic and humanistic functions and works. In addition, they also have the goal of increasing non-Federal forms of support for these activities.

The Foundation is made up of two operating entities: the National Endowment for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

1. Promotion of the arts.—Grants are made to individuals, institutions, and regional and State arts agencies.

2. Promotion of the humanities.—Support is provided to encourage humanistic activities throughout the Nation. In addition, funds will be provided to support the challenge grant program. This effort is designed to generate non-Federal moneys in support of institutions that are experiencing severe financial difficulties. Emphasis will continue to be placed upon increasing public participation in the humanities.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Case intake in 1976 was 34,509 unfair labor practice cases and 14,826 representation cases. Estimates for unfair labor practice cases are 8,985 for the transition quarter, 37,785 for 1977, and 40,890 for 1978. Representation case estimates are 3,970 for the transition quarter, 15,840 for 1977, and 16,990 for 1978.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Over 91% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 83% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The Agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases, and the avoidance of litigation.

2. Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions. In 1976 there were 1,266 hearings closed, 18 proceedings adjusted after close of hearing, and 1,112 decisions issued. The transition quarter estimate is for 315 hearings closed, 44 adjusted after hearing, and 281 decisions. The estimate for 1977 is for 1,536 hearings to be closed, 64 adjusted after hearing, and 1,314 decisions. The estimate for 1978 is for 1,873 hearings to be closed, 70 adjusted after hearing, and 1,505 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 28% of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder with exceptions filed require contested Board decisions. In 1976, 1,033 such Board decisions issued; the estimate for the transition quarter is 267, and for 1977 and 1978, 1,121 and 1,381 respectively. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. In 1976 regional directors issued 2,092 such decisions; and the estimate is 593 for the transition quarter, 2,438 for 1977 and 2,643 in 1978. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. In 1976 the Board issued 268 representation decisions; the estimate for the transition quarter, 1977 and 1978 are 70, 269, and 298, respectively. The Board also ruled on 377 objection and challenge questions in election cases in 1976; it is estimated that 96 such rulings will be required in the transition quarter, 429 in 1977, and 476 in 1978.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the appellate courts to enforce its decisions. In 1976 a total of 325 Board decisions of all kinds required such litigation; the estimate for the transition quarter is 104, for 1977 it is 355, and for 1978 it is 383.

1. Mediation and representation.—The Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 650 carriers and approximately 800,000 employees in the railroad and airline industries. In the railroad industry the Board has jurisdiction over 525 carriers, each of which may negotiate labor agreements with some 20 national labor organizations. Coupled with national bargaining over certain issues, this system of bargaining accounts for approximately 6,800 collective bargaining agreements in the railroad industry covering about 500,000 employees. The Board also has jurisdiction over 125 airline carriers and their subsidiaries that have been signatories to more than 350 labor agreements covering the majority of the 300,000 employees.

Note.—These cases while provisionally closed by the Board due to inactivity, may be reopened by one or both parties upon proper justification to the Board.

The Board investigates representation disputes involving the various crafts or classes of railroad and airline employees to determine their choice of representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining.

2. Voluntary arbitration and emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their dispute through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which threaten seriously to interrupt service, may appoint an emergency board to investigate and report on the dispute. Such reports often serve as a basis for resolving the dispute.

3. Adjustment of railroad grievances.—Railroad employee grievances resulting from disputes over the interpretation or application of collective bargaining contracts may be brought for settlement to the National Railroad Adjustment Board. The Divisions of the Board are composed of an equal number of carrier and union representatives compensated by the party or parties he represents. Administrative direction and guidance are provided by the staff director/grievances and clerical assistants who are compensated by the National Mediation Board. The appropriation also provides for neutral referees to sit with the Board when they are deadlocked. Boards of adjustments are also financed under this activity.

The National Science Foundation (NSF) awards grants and contracts for basic and applied research, science education improvement activities, and related scientific programs to promote the progress of science so that science and technology may continue to contribute to the advancement of the Nation's health, prosperity, welfare, and security. The Foundation's 1978 programs are designed to: (1) Strengthen basic research in the mathematical, physical, biological, environmental, and social sciences and in engineering and materials; (2) expand and accelerate research focused on selected areas of national need; (3) promote international cooperation through science and technology; (4) provide for the development of an adequate scientific manpower base to meet future needs; (5) address scientific and technological policy issues; and (6) improve the quality of science education.

The major program activities of the Foundation are:

(1) Mathematical and physical sciences and engineering.—This activity provides support for research projects directed at increasing understanding of physical laws and phenomena and gaining new knowledge about engineering principles and materials in order to strengthen the Nation's technology base. Research efforts in mathematics, physics, chemistry, engineering, materials, and computer science are supported.

(2) Astronomical, atmospheric, Earth and ocean sciences.—This activity includes programs in astronomy, atmospheric, Earth, ocean, and arctic research. General objectives are to gain new knowledge in astronomy and atmospheric sciences over the entire spectrum of physical phenomena; to better understand the physical and chemical makeup of the Earth and its geologic history; and to increase insight into the oceans, their composition, structure, behavior, and resources. This activity provides the bulk of funding for operating and maintaining the 30 vessels that make up the academic research fleet. In addition, NSF sponsors six national research centers, five for astronomy and one for atmospheric sciences, which provide specialized facilities, equipment, staffing, and operational support beyond the capability of most individual educational or research institutions to provide. The very large array, the most advanced radio astronomy telescope in the world, now under construction, will provide an unique national capability to study the nature of the universe.

(3) U.S. Antarctic program.—The National Science Foundation has been assigned responsibility for planning, funding, and implementing the national program in Antarctica. Scientific programs center on environmental and resource-related research.

(4) Biological, behavioral, and social sciences.—This activity supports research in four major program areas—physiology, cellular and molecular biology; behavioral and neural sciences; environmental biology; and social sciences; with the aim of increasing knowledge and understanding of fundamental life processes and of forces affecting man as an individual and as a member of society. Emphasis is being given to plant sciences in 1978 because of their potential for providing knowledge on various questions related to food production.

(5) Science education.—This activity is aimed at improving the quality of science education and providing appropriate kinds of U.S. scientific and technical manpower, strengthening institutional capabilities for science and engineering instruction, techniques for the teaching of science, use of technological advances for instruction, and increasing public understanding of science and technology and their role in meeting national needs. It includes programs involving individual students, teachers, schools, colleges, and universities.

(6) Research applied to national needs (RANN).—The RANN program focuses research on selected problems of national importance. It serves as the bridge between the Foundation's basic research efforts and the development, demonstration, and operational programs of Federal mission agencies, State and local governments, and industry. The principal research areas are renewable and nonrenewable resources, environment, productivity, intergovernmental science, and R. & D. incentives, and exploratory research and technology assessment. In 1978, the emphasis will be on earthquake engineering, as part of an accelerated multiagency effort to achieve the capability to predict major earthquakes and mitigate the damage they cause.

(7) Scientific, technological, and international affairs.—This activity includes research and other efforts aimed at enhancing U.S. science through international cooperative science and technology programs, improving science information transfer, and providing science and technology policy research and assessment. The programs in this area include the collection and analysis of information on funding of research and development and on scientific and engineering manpower.

The special foreign currency program utilizes U.S.-owned excess currencies in certain foreign countries to support cooperative scientific projects, seminars, and the travel of U.S. and foreign scientists involved in mutually beneficial efforts. In addition, support is provided for the translation, publication, and dissemination of foreign scientific and technical information considered to be of interest to the U.S. scientific community. The Foundation awards grants to both U.S. and foreign institutions and scientists. Payments are made in foreign currencies which the Department of the Treasury determines to be excess to the requirements of the United States.

The Independent Safety Board Act of 1974 charges the National Transportation Safety Board with promoting transportation safety through the investigation of accidents; the conduct of special studies; the development of recommendations to prevent accidents; the evaluation and assessment of the effectiveness of other Government agencies in preventing transportation accidents; the evaluation of the safeguards involved in the transportation of hazardous materials; and the review on appeal of actions against certificates or licenses issued by the Department of Transportation.

1. Policy and support.—This activity includes the formulation and development of policy and program objectives; centralized management, control, and execution of the Safety Board's programs; provision of legal advice and assistance; and provision of information concerning the Safety Board's activities.

2. Aviation accident and safety investigation.—The Safety Board investigates all U.S. civil aviation accidents, except for the field phase of most nonfatal accidents which are conducted by the Federal Aviation Administration for factfinding purposes, determines accident cause and reports the facts and circumstances in all aviation accidents; participates in foreign accident investigations involving U.S. products or operations; conducts special studies of aviation safety problems; and assesses the aviation safety efforts of other agencies.

3. Surface accident and safety investigation.—This activity includes railroad, highway, marine, and pipeline transportation and investigates all catastrophic and other selected surface transportation accidents; determines probable cause, and reports the facts and circumstances of these accidents; conducts special studies of surface safety problems; and assesses the surface safety efforts of other agencies.

4. Certificate or license appeal.—The Safety Board reviews on appeal the suspension, amendment, modification, revocation, or denial of any certificate or license issued by the Secretary or an Administrator of the Department of Transportation.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) was established in January 1975 pursuant to the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974. The Commission's program for 1978 is designed to increase the effectiveness of the nuclear regulatory process in responding to the objectives of the act and in supporting national policy objectives relating to the supply and cost of energy.

1. Nuclear reactor regulation.—The assurance of adequate safety, environmental protection, and safeguards in the issuance of reactor licenses is the primary objective of this program. In 1978, applications for new powerplant construction permits, operating licenses, and special reviews will continue at a level similar to that projected for 1977. In addition to the licensing effort associated with operating reactors, special analysis will be done to assure the continued safety of reactors that have been operating over the past several years. Minimizing licensing time through employment of standard review plans, standardized plant designs, and increased organizational efficiencies will continue as a primary objective in 1978.

2. Standards development.—The engineering standards development effort for LWR's will address three areas: Completion of detailed supporting standards to complement the broad performance requirements already completed; development of new standards to reflect needs identified in the licensing and inspection and enforcement processes; and updating of standards to reflect experience from plant operation, research results, feedback from users of standards, advances in technology, and improved regulatory practices.

3. Inspection and enforcement.—In 1978, NRC safety inspections will keep pace with the projected growth in the number of operating reactors and reactors under construction from 62 in 1976 to 79 in 1978. The inspection program will continue to play a supportive role in the process of issuing construction permits and operating licenses. Safety inspections of fuel cycle facilities will increase in 1978 commensurate with facility growth as will the materials inspection effort. Additional effort will be expended in 1978 to incorporate into the inspection process the lessons learned from the Brown's Ferry fire. The level of effort devoted to safeguards inspections will also be increased in 1978 consistent with the safeguards program being developed for reactors, fuel cycle facilities and nuclear materials.

4. Nuclear material safety and safeguards.—Safeguards continue to be a high priority program for 1978. Safeguards initiatives now underway and planned for 1977 will continue in 1978. The 1978 program will focus on the implementation and operation of contingency plans, the reevaluation of ongoing safeguards systems, and the finement necessary for the overall improvement of safeguards operations. Fuel cycle facility, materials and safeguards licensing effort will continue at approximately the 1977 level. In 1978 increased effort will be devoted to waste management and the initiation of a generic environmental impact statement on consumer products containing nuclear material.

5. Nuclear regulatory research.—The 1978 confirmatory research program for the NRC places major emphasis in two areas: Continuation of the light water reactor safety hardware testing, and research effort needed to place the Commission in a posture to license commercial advanced breeder reactors. Systems engineering experiments, loss of fluid and fuel behavior tests will require increased funding in 1978 consistent with the planned testing program and resultant data reductions and analysis requirements. Codes related to more accurate predictions of the performance capability of emergency core cooling systems will continue to be developed and refined based on test results. An expanded confirmatory assessment program for the liquid metal fast breeder reactor is proposed in 1978. This program must be expanded now to keep pace with the projected development of the Clinch River Breeder Reactor. Site safety improvement to define with greater precision the potential effects on nuclear facilities of such natural phenomena as earthquakes and tornadoes, will receive continued attention as will health, environment, fuel cycle, and safeguards research. Funding has been substantially phased down for the high temperature gas reactor until the trend toward commercialization gains added momentum.

The Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation was established in 1972 by Public Law 92-578 to plan for and undertake the redevelopment of the area along Pennsylvania Avenue between the Capitol and the White House. The Corporation prepared a comprehensive development plan, which was approved by Congress on May 19, 1975, upon expiration of the statutory period for its review.

The proposed budget authority will continue implementation of the plan begun with the proposed supplemental described in Part III. It includes the following operating activities:

1. Salaries, office and related expenses.—The Corporation will maintain a staff, rent space, incur office expenses, and hire professional consultants as necessary.

2. Relocation assistance.—The Corporation will provide assistance to business tenants displaced from their existing locations within the project area, in accordance with statutory requirements and the Corporation's goal of minimizing the disruption caused by redevelopment activities.

The program includes the following capital outlay activities:

3. Public improvements.—Pennsylvania Avenue and adjoining public areas will be reconstructed and improved, creating a broadened thoroughfare having new sidewalks, curbs, lighting, landscaping, and street furniture.

4. Historic preservation.—Buildings of architectural merit will be restored and retained. The Corporation will act cooperatively with property owners and interested parties to achieve the Corporation's historic preservation objectives.

5. Property acquisition.—The Corporation will acquire private property on blocks north of and adjacent to Pennsylvania Avenue in order to accelerate redevelopment of such sites in accordance with the land use objectives of the approved plan.

6. Interest on capital borrowing.—The Corporation will incur interest expenses on borrowings from the U.S. Treasury used for property acquisition.

This appropriation is for the purpose of reimbursing the U.S. Postal Service for public service costs and loss in revenue associated with revenue foregone on free and reduced-rate mail, pursuant to 39 U.S.C. 2401 (b) and (c). The $64,791 thousand requested for previously unfunded liabilities of the former Post Office Department provides $33,791 thousand to cover payments to the employees' compensation fund in 1978 for injuries to postal employees which occurred prior to July 1, 1971, and $31 million to cover one-twelfth of the $372,796,423 in earned and unused annual leave balances due postal employees on June 30, 1971, from the former Post Office Department.

The transactions of the U.S. Postal Service appear in Part IV of the Appendix under Annexed Budgets.

U.S. POSTAL SERVICE APPROPRIATION REQUEST

Herewith transmitted without change, as required by Public Law 93-328, is the appropriation request of the U.S. Postal Service, as submitted to the Office of Management and Budget. In addition to the amounts shown below, the U.S. Postal Service is requesting a 1977 supplemental appropriation of $505.9 million for reduction of outstanding indebtedness and for coverage of revenue foregone on carrying certain categories of mail as authorized by Public Law 94-421. These amounts are shown in Part III. The U.S. Postal Service request for 1978 includes $223,250 thousand for revenue foregone as authorized by Public Law 93-328, which is in addition to the amounts recommended by the President.

This appropriation provides for payments from Federal funds to the railroad retirement account for certain costs not financed by contributions from workers and employers. The cost categories are as follows:

Military service credits.—Railroad workers entering military service may have such service credited toward benefits under the railroad retirement system under certain conditions. The last of 10 yearly installments on the amount due the railroad retirement account for certain creditable military service through June 1963 was appropriated in 1974 and $3,516 thousand was appropriated for 1975 to provide for an adjustment of interest due the railroad retirement account. No amount was requested for 1977, nor is any amount being requested for 1978. Amounts will be requested in future years.

Payment for dual benefits.—This is the third request for appropriations authorized by the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 to cover the cost of the windfall portion of benefits received by persons covered by both the railroad retirement system and the social security system, until the windfall can be phased out.

Because the social security benefit formula heavily favors persons with short periods of service and low earnings, persons acquiring eligibility under both systems generally receive a proportionately higher return for their taxes since in most instances the social security coverage is only supplementary to their regular railroad employment. Under financial arrangements between the two systems, the excess costs resulting from this higher return have been borne by the railroad retirement system and have been a material factor contributing to its financial problems. The higher return is being phased out starting January 1, 1975. While it is being phased out, the cost is to be financed by general fund appropriations to the railroad retirement system.

The Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 authorizes annual appropriations on a level-cost basis from 1976 through the year 2000 for costs of phasing out the windfall portion of dual benefits. The original appropriation was based on estimates made prior to enactment of Public Law 93-445. The estimates indicated that the dual benefits would cost $285 million per year over the 25-year period and that $35 million additional per year would be gained over the period due to the new investment provisions. Accordingly, $250 million was requested and appropriated for 1976 and 1977. The recently completed actuarial valuation, however, indicates that the level appropriation starting with 1977 should have been $350 million ($360 million gross less $10 million additional investment income). Since only $250 million has been appropriated for 1977, the $350 million must be increased under current law to $356 million starting with 1978 to make up for the $100 million shortage in 1977 and the loss of interest on that $100 million. The annual amount requested as necessary to fund dual benefits under current law would therefore be $356 million in 1978. Legislation is proposed to place a "cap" on the general fund subsidy, limiting the annual account to $250 million. (See separate schedule at the end of this chapter.)

The Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 provides for various benefits to protected employees adversely affected in the establishment of the Midwest and Northeast rail system provided by that act. The payment of all allowances, expenses, and costs provided protected employees will be made by the Consolidated Rail Corporation, the United States Railway Association (where applicable), and acquiring railroads, as the case may be. These organizations upon certification to the Railroad Retirement Board of the amounts paid to protected employees then will be reimbursed for such amounts by the Board. The act authorizes appropriations to the Board for this purpose up to the aggregate sum of $250 million. Payments from the account commenced in June 1976 and were $668 thousand. During the transition quarter, payments from the account were $9,252 thousand, $7 thousand of which was for administrative expenses. Estimated payments for 1977 are $39,900 thousand. The appropriation request of $50,000 thousand for 1978 is to cover the estimated $49,900 in benefits to be paid during that period and $100 thousand for estimated administrative expenses of the Railroad Retirement Board in handling that function.

Under the railroad retirement system, railroad workers and employers pay taxes on wages to finance the payment of annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors and to finance the cost of hospital insurance benefits. These taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement account and invested in Government securities. The portion of these taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is transferred to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund under the financial interchange provisions governing the railroad retirement and social security systems.

Supplemental annuities also are paid to certain employees in addition to the regular annuities. This program is financed by a tax paid by employers on each man-hour of paid employment. These taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement supplemental account and invested in Government securities.

The Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 completely restructured the railroad retirement system. The major revisions to the system were in the retirement benefit formulas, in the eligibility requirements for spouse annuities, in the eligibility for supplemental annuities, in the restrictions placed on the future payment of separate benefits under the railroad retirement and social security systems to the same individual, and cost-of-living increases to railroad annuitants. The status of these trust funds is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Income.—The income of the Railroad retirement accounts consists of taxes paid by railroad employers and employees; interest on investment; appropriations for military service credits; payments from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, the Federal disability insurance trust fund, and appropriations for dual benefits while they are being phased out as provided by the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974. The railroad retirement system has a reinsurance arrangement of annual financial interchanges with the social security system so as to place that system in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment had been included in social security coverage.

Because the social security benefit formula heavily favors persons with short periods of service and low earnings, persons acquiring eligibility under both that system and the railroad retirement system generally receive a proportionately higher return for their taxes since in most instances the social security coverage is only supplementary to their regular railroad employment. Under financial interchange provisions of the Railroad Retirement Act, the excess costs resulting from this higher return have been borne by the railroad retirement system. The higher return will be phased out starting January 1, 1975. While being phased out, the cost is to be financed by general fund appropriations to the railroad retirement system.

Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Payment estimates reflect the increases in benefit rates provided by law and for certain liberalizations in eligibility requirements provided by the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974.

Administrative expenses.—Such expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on salaries and expenses).

Payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—Portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund, since payments of hospital benefits for railroad retirement beneficiaries are made from that fund.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Insurance payments for unemployment and sickness benefits are based on individual records of earnings and daily wage rates; and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the retirement program. Accounts posted are estimated at 670,000 in 1978.

2. Processing of unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the headquarters offices. Unemployment claims receipts are estimated to be 727,000 in 1978.

3. Processing of sickness claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters offices of the Board. Sickness claims receipts are estimated to be 425,000 in 1978.

4. Claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. Savings of benefit payments of approximately $2,256 thousand are expected in 1978 from the placement of approximately 4,000 claimants in jobs.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the retirement program on a measured basis.

² Obligating authority for 1976 extended through Sept. 30, 1976.

The Board administers the Railroad Retirement Act which provides a program for the payment of regular annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors, financed by taxes paid by employers and employees. The Board also participates in the administration of the hospital and medical insurance programs for persons covered by the Railroad Retirement Act for which it is reimbursed in part by the Social Security Administration.

The Board also administers a program for the payment of supplemental annuities under certain conditions to career railroad workers awarded regular retirement annuities after June 1966, financed by a tax paid by employers based on the number of man-hours for which they pay compensation. The supplemental annuity paid to employees is in addition to the regular railroad retirement annuity.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of benefits paid are based on individual records of earnings, and the workload fluctuates according to such factors as level of employment, and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. Accounts posted are estimated at 670,000 in 1978. The costs are shared on a measured basis with the railroad unemployment insurance program.

2. Processing applications.—This activity includes the work of processing annuity claims for benefits under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974. New applications are estimated to be 130,000 in 1978 and total claims dispositions, including reopened cases, are estimated to be 290,000.

3. Maintenance of beneficiary rolls.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. This activity includes all work related to the placement, continuance, and removal of persons on the benefit rolls. The number of persons on the rolls receiving monthly benefit payments will decrease slightly from 1,024,000 at the end of 1976 to an estimated 1,022,000 at the end of 1977 with another slight decrease to 1,017,000 at the end of 1978. The number of persons also receiving supplemental annuities will increase from 157,000 at the end of 1976 to 172,000 at the end of 1977 and remain at that level at the end of 1978.

4. Medicare.—This activity includes the work of processing applications to establish eligibility for health and medical insurance benefits.

5. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

The Board conducts renegotiation proceedings with contractors and subcontractors to determine and eliminate excessive profits on defense and space contracts and related subcontracts. The Renegotiation Act provides that a report must be filed with the Board by every contractor or subcontractor having receipts or accruals which exceed $1 million in a year.

From the date of its establishment through June 30, 1976, the Board made determinations of excessive profits in the amount of $1.3 billion, before adjustment for Federal income and excess profits tax credits. Of this total, $40.1 million was determined during 1976.

1. General management and support staff.—The support staff provides administrative management, legal, and program analysis and planning services to the statutory board and to the headquarters and regional boards' staffs. Increases in 1978 will permit the development of uniform screening and review criteria to facilitate case processing.

2. Headquarters operations.—The headquarters operations staff assists the Board in the formulation of policy, gives technical guidance to, and coordinates the activities of the field organization. It is responsible for the screening of contractors' filings and the handling of requests for exemptions and assists the Board in completing certain cases which have been processed in the field. Planned management actions in 1978 will permit increased efficiency, improved case analysis, and a reduction in the backlog.

3. Regional operations (field).—The regional boards conduct renegotiation proceedings and make recommendations and determinations of excessive profits. Planned management actions in 1978 will assist in reducing the case backlog.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure.—Issuers of securities for public sale are required to file a registration statement and related prospectus containing significant information about the issuer and the offering with the Commission. This is to insure that investors will be provided with the material facts concerning security offerings. Investors in certain over-the-counter securities are afforded the same protections as those investors in listed securities: namely, registration of classes of securities; annual and periodic company reporting; regulation of proxy solicitation; and restriction upon "insider" trading.

3. Supervision and regulation of securities markets.—National securities exchanges and over-the-counter markets are regulated in the interest of maintaining just and equitable principles of trade for the protection of the public investors. Through Commission regulation, nonmembers of the National Association of Securities Dealers (NASD) are in the same regulatory position as NASD brokers and dealers. In addition to other responsibilities the Securities Acts Amendments of 1975 expand the Commission's oversight of the self-regulatory organizations, including the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board, by requiring Commission approval or disapproval of proposed rules, authorizing the power to abrogate, add to, or delete from existing rules (other than those of a registered clearing agency), and granting the appropriate regulatory agency the power to review both denials of access or membership and disciplinary actions by certain self-regulatory organizations.

During 1978 the Selective Service System will retain and enhance the capability to emerge rapidly and efficiently from a deep standby posture to fulfill the mission of meeting the mobilization manpower requirements of the Department of Defense. A comprehensive planning program involving all elements of the System, coupled with a closely supervised and controlled training program directed at the Selective Service Reserve Forces, will insure the retention of the System's mobilization capability. That capability will include the planned use of the Emergency Manpower Mobilization Procurement System (EMMPS) in the processing of registrants and new procedures in the processing of members of the Standby Reserves. The System will maintain an organizational structure, including those elements prescribed in 50 app. U.S.C. 460(h), capable of quick reaction to an emergency situation. EMMPS will be maintained as a viable system through continued testing and refinement.

In addition, the closing phase of the Reconciliation Service portion of the President's clemency program, consisting of the supervision of the alternate service performance of the few remaining enrollees who have not fulfilled their obligation, will be administered by the System in accordance with Executive Order 11804.

1. Mobilization readiness.—In deep standby, this activity includes all facets of National Headquarters operational and administrative planning and a comprehensive training program for the Selective Service Reserve Forces. Planning guidelines for the emergency reconstitution of the System will be developed and maintained by National Headquarters. Detailed State plans providing for emergency and nonemergency reconstitution of the System, mass and continuing registration of those persons liable for registration, and a secondary expansion of the System will be maintained, tested, and updated regularly by the Reserve Forces and will be reviewed and approved by National Headquarters. The mobilization readiness training of the System's Reserve and National Guard officers will be supervised and controlled by means of an annual training program, training schedules, training exercises, inspections, evaluations and formal reports to the Director on Reserve Forces training and readiness. A computerized registrant processing capability will be maintained, refined, and tested on a regular schedule. This activity also includes maintaining contact with the civilian community, other Federal agencies and private organizations as necessary to facilitate the rapid and efficient expansion of the System in the event of an emergency.

2. Administration.—This activity includes the Office of the Director of Selective Service as well as personnel administration, fiscal management, logistics, and other necessary administrative services in support of the mobilization readiness planning and training programs.

3. Reserve program.—Funds are provided for the continued utilization and training of the Selective Service Reserve Forces comprised of Reserve and National Guard officers. During scheduled training drills and periods of annual active duty, the Reserve Forces will refine and test State reconstitution plans including those for registration and secondary expansion. Plan development will be closely monitored and supervised by Mobilization Training Headquarters personnel and final approval will be through National Headquarters. Training of the Reserve Forces will focus on the implementation of the mobilization plans so that should an emergency arise, plans can be carried out smoothly, quickly, and efficiently. An adequate force of experienced, well trained Reserve and National Guard officers represents an essential resource of the Selective Service System in deep standby.

4. Reconciliation Service.—This activity includes personnel support and travel expenses for the few remaining enrollees in the Reconciliation Service program who have not fulfilled their obligation.

The Small Business Administration counsels, assists, and protects the interest of small business, and provides aid to business firms and homeowners who have suffered losses through disasters. These efforts are conducted through the following activities:

1. Procurement assistance.—This activity assures small business a fair share of Government procurements. In the minority enterprise business development program, section 8(a), the basic objective is to assist in the establishment or expansion of minority or disadvantaged firms which have the potential of developing into viable competitive businesses in a reasonable period of time.

2. Management assistance.—The management assistance activity is structured to aid in the establishment, growth, and success of small businesses. Through counseling services, training programs, and publications, small business owner/managers are assisted in their goal of improving the management and efficiency of their businesses.

(a) Economic opportunity assistance.—As authorized by section 7(j) of the Small Business Amendment Act of 1974, SBA will contract for professional management training and support of small business entrepreneurs in areas with high concentrations of unemployed or low-income individuals to (1) establish the management training, counseling, and support needs of firms in target areas, (2) identify business opportunities in these areas, and (3) determine the feasibility and profit potential of proposed business development to be located in such areas.

3. Finance and investment.—This activity is comprised of:

(a) Business loans.—This includes loans and financial counseling to business concerns, businesses displaced because of federally aided construction, businesses eligible under section 7(i) of the Small Business Act, and those loans to the handicapped or nonprofit organizations hiring the handicapped under section 7(h) of the Small Business Act. The program for 1978 is projected as follows:

	Number	Millions of dollars
7(a).....	22,810	2,135
7(h) Handicap loans.....	265	20
Economic opportunity loans.....	4,325	105
Displaced business loans.....	165	32

The above programs totaling $2,292 million will assist 27,565 small businesses in 1978.

(b) Development company loans.—This covers (a) efforts to encourage private lending institutions to expand their role in the economic development of their respective States and (b) loans to State and local development companies to enable them to provide the long-term capital—equity and loans—to small businesses. The program level for 1978 is estimated at $86 million.

(c) Investment company assistance and supervision.—In order to stimulate and supplement the flow of private capital to small business concerns, the Small Business Administration is authorized to (a) license, regulate, and examine small business investment companies, and (b) provide funds to such companies for financing small business firms. The program level for 1978 is estimated at $120 million.

(d) Surety bond guarantees.—In order to enable small firms to obtain bid, performance, and payment bonds otherwise denied them through asserted lack of financial and other capability, the Small Business Administration is authorized to guarantee sureties against losses resulting from the breaching of such bonds by small contractors who were furnished bonds by the sureties under the provision of this program. SBA guarantees a portion of the loss under contracts not exceeding $1 million in amount. The program level (contracts insured) for 1978 is estimated at $1 billion.

(e) Pollution control equipment contract guarantees.—The purpose of this newly established fund is to alleviate the adverse impact of pollution regulations on small businesses. The agency estimates that approximately 20 tax-free bond issues will be approved in 1978 for about $100 million to assist about 250 firms in their efforts to abate pollution.

(f) Nonphysical disaster loans.—Provides loans to small firms to enable them to comply with new health and safety standards (involving changes in equipment, facilities, or methods of operation) imposed by a number of Federal statutes or State laws enacted in conformity therewith. Similar loans are also authorized for any small firm likely to suffer substantial economic injury as the result of any international agreement limiting the development of strategic arms or the installation of strategic arms facilities, base closings and those adversely affected by the energy crisis.

(g) Reimbursable program.—SBA works with the Economic Development Administration, Department of Commerce, in servicing EDA loans on a reimbursable basis. A memorandum of understanding establishes SBA's responsibility in servicing EDA loans.

4. Operations.—This activity has the responsibility for the guidance, supervision, and policy planning of all field office operations. Responsibility for the direction and guidance of all disaster operations is also in this activity.

5. Disaster loan making.—This provides financial assistance on favorable terms to property owners for rehabilitation of property damaged by natural disasters.

6. General Counsel.—The Office of General Counsel is responsible for analyzing and interpreting legislation, regulations, and orders relating to the operations of the Small Business Administration, and advising officials as to the legal aspects of the development and execution of policies and programs.

7. Administration.—This activity provides the administrative support to the program activities of the Small Business Administration. These activities include budget and finance, management services, personnel and field Administration.

8. Planning, research, and data management.—The planning and research function includes analysis of the economic environment and its impact on small business, evaluation of program activities, and the development of new or revised size standards for defining small business in all industries. Data management is responsible for the installation, analysis and operation of the data processing capability of the agency.

(a) Research contracts.—Research studies designed to reveal matters materially affecting the competitive strength of small business and the effect on small business of Federal laws, programs, and regulations are financed under this activity.

9. Advocacy and public communications.—The advocacy function is responsible for the initiation, coordination, and development of the agency's position as the Government's principal advocate of small business, promoting, counseling, and championing the position of small business with all Federal agencies and State and local governments, maintaining liaison with trade and professional organizations, developing and recommending policy concerning the advisory councils to the agency, and communication between the agency and the small business community, news media, and the public at large.

10. Congressional and legislative affairs.—This activity has the principal responsibility for information, communication, and understanding between the agency and the executive and legislative branches of the Federal and State governments, in accordance with the relevant legislation and directives.

11. Minority small business.—The responsibility for the formulation of policy for SBA's programs which provide assistance to minority small business concerns, and for evaluating agency performance and execution in light of such policy is performed by this activity. The Associate Administrator for Minority Small Business assures that these programs are focused on common objectives, and that comprehensive assistance is provided to minority small businesses.

12. Civil rights activities.—This office is responsible for the overall planning, administration, and review of the agency's equal employment opportunity program, title VI and related programs and the contract compliance programs.

13. Executive direction.—This activity provides policy determination and coordination of all SBA programs by the Administrator, his Deputy, and administrative staffs of the central, regional, district, and branch offices. This function also includes the agency's audit and investigative responsibilities.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 3, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance loan programs and prime contracting activity performed pursuant to sections 7(a), 7(b)(3), 7(e), 7(h), 7(i), and 8(a) of the Small Business Act, as amended, and titles III and V of the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, as amended. Administrative, interest, and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

While no ceiling on authorized appropriations is specified, a limitation of $7.25 billion has been placed on the amount of loans and commitments (reservations) which may be outstanding at any time. This ceiling is composed of separate limitations on outstanding amounts as follows (in millions of dollars):

Business loans (including a limitation of $450 million on economic opportunity loans).....	$6,000
Development company loans.....	525
Investment company loans.....	725

Note.—Legislation has been proposed to increase these limitations.

1. Financial assistance: Business loans (sec. 7(a), Small Business Act).—Funds may be loaned to business concerns which are not dominant in their fields. To such small businesses, loans may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions, and shall be of such sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a bank participation is not available, and no loan on an immediate participation basis may be made unless it is shown that a guaranteed loan is not available. Under the guaranty plan, the Small Business Administration agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default.

The agency's share of an immediate participation or guaranteed loan is limited to 90%. Its maximum outstanding loan and/or commitment to any one borrower is limited by statute to $350 thousand for direct and IP loans and $500 thousand for guaranteed loans.

Business loans (sec. 7(h), Small Business Act).—The Small Business Investment Act Amendments of 1972, signed into law on October 27, 1972, added a new section to the Small Business Act authorizing loans to handicapped persons operating or establishing small business, and to nonprofit organizations hiring the handicapped.

Funds may be loaned to any one borrower up to a maximum of $350 thousand for 15 years.

Business loans (sec. 7(i), Small Business Act).—The Small Business Administration administers a program of financial assistance to small business concerns and to qualified persons seeking to establish such concerns. Loans may be on a direct, immediate participation, or guaranteed basis for up to $100 thousand, for a maximum term of 15 years. The credit and collateral requirements are more flexible than those applicable to 7(a) business loans, and provision for management training is made an integral part of the program.

Displaced business loans.—Pursuant to authority provided in section 7(b)(3) of the Small Business Act, loans are made to small firms that suffer substantial economic injury as a result of being forced to move by federally aided urban renewal, highway, and other construction programs or as a result of being adjacent, or near, a federally aided construction project. The interest rate on the Small Business Administration's share of these loans is determined pursuant to a formula prescribed by legislation.

Development company loans.—The Small Business Administration lends funds to State and local development companies pursuant to sections 501 and 502 of the Small Business Investment Act, as amended. Funds are made available to State development companies for general use purposes under section 501 and State local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land, under section 502.

2. Investment company assistance.—A primary function of small business investment companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital for small concerns. To encourage the formation and growth of such investment companies, the Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the Small Business Administration to purchase, or to guarantee the timely payment of all principal and interest as scheduled on debentures issued by such companies. The Small Business Investment Act Amendments of 1972, approved October 27, 1972 (Public Law 92-595), authorize in addition the purchase of preferred securities (shares of nonvoting stock or other securities having similar characteristics) from small business investment companies operating under authority of new section 301(d) wherein the investment policy of such companies will be to make investments solely in small concerns owned and operated by disadvantaged persons.

Debentures purchased or guaranteed by the Small Business Administration shall be subordinate to any other debenture bonds, promissory notes, or other debts and obligations of such companies, unless the Administration determines otherwise in the exercise of reasonable investment prudence. The amount of debentures which may be purchased or guaranteed, or preferred securities which may be purchased, and outstanding at any one time from a company depends on the amount of combined private paid-in capital and paid-in surplus of such company, but in no event may exceed $35 million for other than 301(d) companies.

Operating costs.—Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund. The interest rate or rates applicable to each year's disbursements are determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration of current average yields on outstanding interest-bearing marketable public debt obligations of the United States of comparable maturities. For interest computation purposes, collections of interest and principal on unpledged loans and other receipts to the fund are applied against the earliest year's disbursements still outstanding. The rates set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1977 are 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ % for 7(a) business and economic opportunity loans, 7 $\frac{1}{2}$ % for state development company, 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ % for SBIC loans and/or debentures and 7 $\frac{1}{8}$ % for displaced business and local development company loans. Interest is also payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of each sale.

Administrative expense.—Expenses for the loan program are financed by transfer of funds to the appropriation, Salaries and expenses. Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses is accordingly reflected in the schedules for that appropriation account.

Financing.—This fund was capitalized by transfer of an applicable portion of the assets, liabilities, and unexpended balance of the revolving fund, Small Business Administration on July 1, 1966, and by transfer of the unexpended balance of appropriations previously made for the trade adjustment assistance loans. Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as additional capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions.

In lieu of appropriations, additional capital funds required in the several years prior to 1971 were provided by the sale of participations in loan pools. Of the $1.35 billion of such participation certificates sold, $1,117.2 million was allocated to this fund, of which $354.6 million remained outstanding on June 30, 1976. Beginning in 1971, capital funds required have been provided by appropriations.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—In respect to participation sales as discussed immediately above, the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorized appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. A permanent appropriation in such amount as may prove necessary each year was provided in the Independent Offices Appropriation Act of 1967, in connection with participation sales of $850 million as were authorized by the act. However, for each of the years 1968 through 1977, the Congress provided annual appropriations for any insufficiency arising from the $150 million sales authority provided in the agency's appropriation act.

Operating results.—The fund will continue to operate at a deficit. Interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest, administrative, and other expenses, and a provision for estimated direct and guaranteed loan losses. Primarily this reflects the excess of interest expense rates over interest income rates and the cost of servicing an expanding number of widely scattered loans which are relatively small in size.

An additional factor which will further increase the deficit of the fund in 1977 and 1978 is the cost differential on section 8(a) contracts. In expanding the use of the section 8(a) prime contracting authority to bring more minority firms into the Government procurement process, it is anticipated there will be many instances in which the program objectives will justify a payment to the minority subcontractor in excess of an apparent competitive market price to the procuring agency. This differential reflects such things as added startup, labor and/or material costs applicable to the particular firm and circumstances involved.

Public Law 89-409, approved May 2, 1966, established this fund as of July 1, 1966, to finance disaster loans made pursuant to sections 7(b), 7(f), and 7(g) of the Small Business Act, as amended, other than those to displaced business made under section 7(b)(3). Administrative, interest, and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

Actual and estimated outstanding disaster loans and reservations at the end of each year are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Investment in outstanding loans.....	1,391.6	1,394.6	1,379.6	1,359.6
Guaranteed loans disbursed by banks.....	10.0	9.9	9.5	9.0
Undisbursed loans.....	80.5	133.5	56.5	64.5
Total loans and reservations.....	1,482.1	1,538.0	1,445.6	1,433.1

Physical disaster loans.—Under this activity, loans are made at a favorable rate to property owners for rehabilitation of property damaged by natural disasters. The maximum term for a physical disaster loan is 30 years, and the interest rate is 6%. Through June 30, 1976, a total of 540,795 disaster loans for $3.7 billion had been approved. Estimated approvals for physical disaster loans are expected to be $70 million in 1978.

Nonphysical disaster loans.—Under this activity, loans are made to small firms which need temporary assistance in complying with various Federal or State statutes and regulations (Clean Air Act of 1970, Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970, et cetera) or to small businesses which have suffered economic injury as a result of shortages in energy-producing materials. Estimated approvals for nonphysical disaster loans are expected to be $80 million in both 1977 and 1978.

Interest expense.—Pursuant to section 4(c) of the Small Business Act, interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund. The rate set by the Secretary of the Treasury for disbursements in 1977 is 7% for nonphysical disaster loans and 7¼% for physical disaster loans. Interest is also payable to the holders of participation certificates at specified rates set at the time of each sale.

Administrative expenses.—Administrative expenses for this program are financed by transfer of funds from the revolving fund to the appropriation, "Salaries and expenses". Use of these funds for salaries, travel, and related expenses is accordingly reflected in the schedule for that appropriation account.

Financing.—Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions. Beginning in 1970, capital funds required have been provided by appropriations. A capital appropriation of $20 million is requested for 1978.

Participation sales insufficiencies.—The Participation Sales Act of 1966 authorized appropriations without fiscal year limitation of such sums as may be necessary to permit any trustor agency to pay the trustee such insufficiency as the trustee may require on account of outstanding participations. This authority is not applicable to the sales in the predecessor fund.

Public Law 93-386, the Small Business Amendments of 1974, established this fund to finance the lease guarantees program. Administrative and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

The lease guarantees program is designed to provide prime space for those small business firms which cannot compete with prospective tenants with AAA ratings. This program has been incurring excessive losses and has not been an important form of assistance to small businesses. Therefore, the program has been terminated with no new commitments planned for 1977 and 1978.

Public Law 93-386, the Small Business Amendment Act of 1974, established this fund to finance the surety bond guarantees program. Administrative and other related expenses are also financed from this fund.

The Small Business Administration will guarantee a portion of the losses sustained by a surety company as a result of the insurance of a bid, payment, and/or performance bond to a small business concern on a contract up to $1 million.

It is estimated that surety bond guarantees will be made in connection with 14,250 contracts totaling $942 million in 1977 and 14,550 for $1 billion in 1978. SBA will undertake improvements in this program to reduce the unexpectedly high loss rates which have occurred in recent years.

Public Law 94-305, approved June 4, 1976, established this fund to alleviate the adverse impact of pollution regulations on small businesses. The Small Business Administration may, whenever it determines that small business concerns are to be at an operational or financing disadvantage with respect to the planning, design, or installation of pollution control facilities or the financing thereof, guarantee the payment of rentals or other amounts due under qualified contracts.

It is estimated that 20 tax-free bonds for $100 million will be approved in 1978 compared to 10 for $40 million in 1977.

The Smithsonian Institution maintains public exhibits representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics and astronautics, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology (including living animal exhibits); acquires and preserves for reference and study purposes millions of items of scientific, cultural, and historic importance; conducts research in the natural and physical sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts; presents performances of American arts and crafts; undertakes education programs at all levels; and participates in the exchange of scientific information.

The Institution is responsible for the operation and maintenance of 10 major exhibition buildings, a zoological park, two natural preserves, an observatory, and supporting administrative, conference, laboratory, and storage facilities. Visitor attendance to buildings on and off the Mall, including the National Zoological Park, totaled more than 20 million in 1976.

In 1978, a variety of program and support requirements will be stressed including increased guard protection for new halls and exhibits, provision of operating support to new National Zoological Park facilities, development of additional computer capacity in Washington and at the Astrophysical Observatory in Boston, and expansion of the funding base for collections acquisition.

Documentation and care of the National Collections will also be emphasized. Improved collection inventory and data management systems will be developed for research purposes and to answer public inquiries. Objects in the collections will be conserved to avoid deterioration and loss.

General exhibition, education, and outreach programs will be strengthened. Special attention will be given to such diverse but related activities as the care and exhibition of the animal collections, exhibits demonstration, music, and publication programs, school tour and education programs, and the preparation and maintenance of new exhibits and upgrading of older exhibits for the pleasure and education of visitors. The traveling exhibition program, which circulates exhibitions throughout the United States, will be expanded.

Special research efforts will be undertaken in tropical and temperate zone environmental studies, in astrophysics, and in aspects of American civilization, technology, and culture. In order that the professional research staff can function at the highest level of productivity, attention will be directed toward providing more adequate support in the areas of data processing, library materials, technician support, and laboratory equipment and supplies.

Central administration and supporting services will be strengthened to improve program direction, management, and assistance to a complex organization.

The Smithsonian Institution will continue awarding grants to American universities, museums, and other institutions of higher learning to support research in archeology and related disciplines, systematic and environmental biology, astrophysics and earth sciences, and programs in museum sciences in the foreign currency countries. In some cases, funds are administered through a bilateral organization of which the United States is a member.

The 1978 budget request also includes $1,000 thousand equivalent in excess Egyptian pounds for the salvage of archeological sites on the Island of Philae. This would be the last of four equal contributions.

The Smithsonian Science Information Exchange, Inc. (SSIE) is a nonprofit corporation, affiliated with the Smithsonian Institution, that operates pursuant to a contract with the Smithsonian. The Exchange collects, indexes, stores, retrieves, and disseminates information about ongoing scientific research supported or conducted by the Federal Government and by segments of the private research and scientific community. It responds to requests from research investigators, program administrators, and policymakers for information on who is currently working on what project, where, when, and under what source of funding, and it provides numerous directories of ongoing research in response to the requirements of Federal agencies. Its purpose is to assist in the avoidance of unwarranted duplication of research and to enhance scientific communication and creative interaction among members of the national research community.

SSIE plays an increasing role in support of a number of programs of national interest, such as energy, cancer, and pesticides research. It is doing so at least partly because it has been able to increase the timeliness and comprehensiveness of its coverage in recent years. Government agencies and all other customers of SSIE pay user charges to obtain information. All revenues received by SSIE are used to support the operation of the Exchange.

SSIE has also been designated by the National Cancer Institute as a Current Cancer Research Project Analysis Bank program. Costs incurred by SSIE in operating the Center will be reimbursed to the Smithsonian by the National Cancer Institute.

The primary goals of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars are the creation of first-rate scholarship on subjects that matter and the dissemination of that scholarship to a public constituency.

The first of these goals is accomplished by bringing to Washington distinguished scholars from all parts of the world to research, reflect, interact with each other, and write; the second by making the results of this scholarship available to a wider public by means of publications and by dialogs, seminars, and colloquia.

The fellowship program is the core of the Center's operation and represents the official "living" memorial to the 28th President.

The Joint Federal-State Land Use Planning Commission for Alaska was created by Public Law 92-203, the Alaska Native Claims Act, as amended. The Commission, composed of five Federal and five State members, will be in existence until June 30, 1979. With the support of a small professional staff, it performs land use planning and coordinating functions and makes recommendations to the President and the Congress, and the Governor and the legislature of Alaska concerning disposition and uses of Federal and State lands in Alaska. Under the law, Commission expenses are shared equally by the Federal Government and the State of Alaska. The 1978 program reflects a decrease resulting from the planned completion of basic field research work and unique printing and reproduction costs to be incurred in 1977.

Section 17(a)(9)(A) of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, Public Law 92-203, limits the Federal share of the expenses of the Joint Federal-State Land Use Planning Commission for Alaska to 50%. The State of Alaska provides for the remaining 50% of Commission expenses. As projected for 1978, a portion of the State's support share will be provided in kind through the payment of the State cochairman's salary and benefits, assignment of State employees to the Commission, and rental of office space. For 1978, the total State cash and in kind contributions are estimated to equal $712 thousand.

The Commission was established by Public Law 93-579 to study data banks, automated data processing programs, and information systems of governmental, regional, and private organizations, in order to determine the standards and procedures in force for the protection of personal information. The Commission will also make legislative recommendations as it may determine to be necessary to protect the privacy of individuals.

The Commission is required to submit its findings to the President and the Congress no later than June 10, 1977, and will cease to exist 30 days thereafter.

The Congress created the Tennessee Valley Authority in 1933 for the unified development of a river basin comprising parts of seven States. TVA is a corporation wholly owned by the Federal Government. Its program in 1978 will be financed from three sources: (1) Appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

The following table provides detailed information on programs financed by power proceeds and borrowings and programs financed by appropriations and nonpower proceeds.

Budget program—1. Regional development program.—A major objective of the TVA Act is full development and use of all the resources of the Tennessee River basin. The development of these resources is reflected in regional and national gains in the fields of navigation, flood control, water quality, recreation, and wildlife development; in agriculture, waste heat utilization, forest and minerals resources, and strip mine reclamation; in human resources development; and in related economic and industrial development.

(a) Water resources development includes continuing development of the all-year 9-foot navigation channel from the mouth of the river at Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles.

Flood control activities are concerned with maintenance and use of storage space in upstream reservoirs for seasonal retention of excessive runoff and the regulation of discharges at rates of flow which can be handled safely by downstream channels and reservoirs. Flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and along the tributaries downstream from the reservoirs and along the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

Regional water quality management comprises the determination of basic facts about water quality, planning of ways of maintaining or upgrading the quality of the water resources, and monitoring and surveillance to assure that water quality does not deteriorate. This work is conducted in cooperation with appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies and with industrial users of water.

Recreation, fisheries, and waterfowl resources development activities are designed to promote the optimum development of the water and other scenic resources of the region in a way that will improve the physical and cultural environment, stimulate economic development, and conserve natural and historical resources.

The capital outlay program for water resources development includes a total of $51,582 thousand for continuing construction of multipurpose projects: $20,027 thousand for the Duck River project started in 1972; $18,997 thousand for the Bear Creek project started in 1967; $11,500 thousand for the Tellico project also started in 1967; and $1,058 thousand for other facilities.

The program also includes capital outlays of $5,261 thousand for navigation facilities of which $2,844 thousand is for continuing the alteration of a railway bridge at Decatur, Ala.; $2,200 thousand is for beginning construction on the new lock at Pickwick Landing Dam (near Savannah, Tenn., and Corinth, Miss.); and $217 thousand is for other facilities. A total of $5,926 thousand provides for continuing flood control improvements on South Chickamauga Creek at Chattanooga, Tenn., and an additional $874 thousand provides for replenishment of a fund for small flood control projects.

The program also includes capital outlays of $980 thousand for recreation facilities on TVA reservoirs and $47 thousand for investigations for future water resource development projects.

All water resources development facilities are planned, constructed, and operated in cooperation with State and local agencies.

(b) General resources development.—Special attention is given to the proper use, conservation, and development of the region's resources. Investigations identify current problems and opportunities for development under conditions of optimum use. Research helps develop and test corrective measures. Cooperative projects with State and local groups apply these measures to regional and special problems.

Forest resources development activities include appraisals of the quality and quantity of the existing resources, research and demonstrations concerning improvement of the resources, promotion of sound forest management and wood utilization practices, and development of improved wildlife food and cover plants. Research and demonstrations are conducted to promote the reclamation of land disturbed by surface mining. Research and demonstrations in agriculture have the objectives of assistance to Valley farmers in improving their economic situation and attainment of a higher standard of living through efficient use of land resources and improved farm practices. Research activities are conducted to develop technological systems for utilization of the heat in condenser water discharge from power plants as an energy source for use in the production of food and fiber.

Tributary area development is a comprehensive and cooperative approach to resource development in areas of the Tennessee Valley where specific opportunities exist for further development and where local groups have organized to deal with problems of economic advancement and social improvement.

Activities in human resources development are concerned primarily with improving opportunities in the region to help valley people assume more productive roles as workers and as citizens.

Townlift and community improvement is a technical assistance activity in which TVA helps State and local agencies to improve existing towns to better fit them to changing demands for service and to guide the development of new communities where such may be needed in relationship to water resources development projects.

(c) Land Between The Lakes.—Work will continue on development of the 170,000-acre area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky Reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Reservoir. Land Between The Lakes is a demonstration of new ideas in public outdoor recreation and environmental education. Work on facilities to serve visitors calls for capital outlays of $1,300 thousand.

2. Power program.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power in an area of 80,000 square miles of the Tennessee Valley States. Net income from power operations, after interest charges and depreciation, is estimated to be $269,785 thousand for 1978.

Of the $1,174,405 thousand estimate for power generating facilities, all to be financed from power proceeds and borrowings, $87,875 thousand is for continuing Sequoyah nuclear units 1-2; $24,068 thousand for Raccoon Mountain pumped-storage units 1-4; $129,009 thousand for Watts Bar nuclear units 1-2; $233,354 thousand for Bellefonte nuclear units 1-2; $515,262 thousand for Hartsville nuclear units 1-4; $93,210 thousand for Phipps Bend nuclear units 1-2; and $91,627 thousand for Yellow Creek nuclear units 1-2. Each increment in this program for power generating capacity additions is essential to meeting expected power needs of the Tennessee Valley region.

Capital outlay for all power supply and use facilities in 1978, including transmission system facilities, is estimated at $1,655,445 thousand.

3. National fertilizer development program.—Chemical facilities at Muscle Shoals, Ala., are maintained and operated as a national fertilizer development center. Program activities are of two general types: fertilizer research and development, and introduction to the American farmer of new fertilizer materials and improved fertilizer uses.

Fertilizer research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and fertilizer products and processes research and development. TVA works cooperatively with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant universities, and with industry to maximize effectiveness of research and to avoid undesirable duplication.

Fertilizer introduction is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant universities and the fertilizer industry. It includes carefully controlled small-plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and nationwide educational introduction of fertilizers.

Capital outlay costs of $7,441 thousand for chemical facilities are chiefly for: (1) pollution abatement facilities, (2) completing construction of a demonstration scale unit for production of sulfur-coated urea, (3) beginning construction of a demonstration scale unit for producing urea polyphosphate, (4) beginning construction of an ammonia from coal production unit, and (5) other improvements, additions, and replacements.

4. General service activities.—Operating costs for general service activities include mapping and remote sensing, bridge maintenance, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies. Capital outlay for 1978 is estimated at $11,963 thousand for additions and replacements of office, transportation, electronic computing, and other facilities used jointly in conducting TVA programs.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1978 are to be derived from: (1) the requested appropriation of $132,000 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $40,886 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $2,313,963 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowings of $1,450,000 thousand backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows.

Operating results and financial condition.—Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriations from the Treasury. Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 1978 are estimated at $82,698 thousand—$62,698 thousand as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20,000 thousand as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Borrowings for the power program are expected to increase by $1,450,000 thousand during 1978.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $1,702,206 thousand during 1978. The increase is mainly in real property and equipment, reflecting expenditures for construction of facilities; $1,635,951 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $66,255 thousand is in nonpower programs. The estimate of liabilities at September 30, 1978, is $1,445,640 thousand more than the estimate at September 30, 1977. This increase reflects the proposed borrowings in 1978. Total Government equity at September 30, 1978, is estimated to be $256,566 thousand greater than that at September 30, 1977. This change includes the requested appropriation for 1978 and the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury and the net expense of nonpower programs.

The United States Information Agency seeks, by means of communication techniques, to influence public attitudes abroad to achieve U.S. foreign policy objectives. The Agency also advises those responsible for formulating and implementing foreign policies and programs of the probable impact of those policies on foreign opinion.

Agency operations, which are largely financed from this appropriation and from the related special foreign currency appropriation, are composed of the following major elements:

1. Overseas missions.—The Agency operates 187 posts in 113 countries. These posts conduct informational and cultural programs (including the Exchange of Persons Program of the Department of State) using materials prepared locally and by the media services in Washington.

2. Media services.—These services provide support for overseas country programs.

(a) Press and publications service maintains communication facilities for the transmission of editorial, news, and feature materials for adaptation by overseas missions. It produces pamphlets and periodicals in English and foreign language editions for worldwide and special area distribution, including magazines titled, "America Illustrated," for distribution in the Soviet Union; "Topic," in French and English, for the African area; "Al Majal," in Arabic, for distribution in the Arab world; and "Horizons, USA," in English, Spanish, Polish, and 13 other languages for circulation worldwide. The service also operates two regional printing centers and provides overseas missions with printing supplies and equipment.

(b) Motion picture and television service produces and acquires motion picture and television programs which are then translated into as many as 40 foreign languages. It adapts these programs for specific country or area use, and supports the foreign production, use, and distribution of films and television programs.

(c) Information center service supports U.S.-operated libraries, reading rooms, and binational centers, providing them with collections of American publications, both in English and in translation, and with English language teaching materials. It assists American publishers in distributing selected products overseas and supports the publication of low-priced books for sale abroad. The service also provides exhibits and visual materials to overseas missions for local display, and provides books and periodicals for presentation to selected individuals and groups.

(d) Broadcasting service produces radio broadcasts in English and in 36 foreign languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at five domestic and nine overseas locations. The service also supplies the overseas missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations.

3. Program direction and other services.—This activity encompasses Agency managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions. Included are the Office of the Director, the Office of Policy and Plans, research, physical and personnel security, legal counsel, and central administrative services.

4. Administrative support.—This activity covers payments to the Department of State for administrative services for the Agency's overseas operations and certain special support services at headquarters; to the General Services Administration for rental of space and related costs at domestic locations; and to the Department of Defense for worldwide postal services.

The purpose of this program is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and those of other lands through suitable U.S. exhibitions in international fairs and other demonstrations of American economic, social, industrial, scientific, and cultural attainments.

1. Labor missions.—Missions are sent to selected fairs and exhibitions abroad. There are 14 labor missions programmed in 1977 and 16 are requested in 1978.

2. Fairs and exhibitions.—Exhibits are shown at certain major international trade fairs and at special purpose exhibition programs. In the current year, the second exhibit in the eighth series of exchange exhibits is being shown in two cities in the Soviet Union; and the first exhibit in the ninth series is scheduled for three Soviet cities. In 1978, the second exhibit in the ninth series is programmed for five Soviet cities.

In 1977, exhibitions featuring Bicentennial themes are programmed for 18 selected fairs and other sites, primarily in the Soviet Union and East Europe. In 1978, exhibits will be shown at nine fairs and other locations.

These funds, which remain available until expended, will provide for:

1. Acquisition and construction of facilities.—In 1978, the first phase of the project to augment the Philippines relay station, involving the installation of additional transmitters and related antenna systems and power facilities, will be initiated. Funds for this purpose were appropriated in 1976.

2. Maintenance and improvement of existing facilities.—This program provides for continuing repairs and improvements required to maintain worldwide VOA facilities. The 1978 plan includes funds to restore the Okinawa relay station site and to augment power generating facilities at the Liberia relay station.

3. Research and development.—Research will continue in engineering development, equipment design, and radio propagation techniques specifically applicable to the Voice of America.

The United States Railway Association was created to prepare and implement a system plan for restructuring and rehabilitating the bankrupt railroads of the Northeast and Midwest. The Association submitted a final system plan to the Congress on July 26, 1975, and the plan became effective on November 9, 1975.

On April 1, 1976, railroad facilities designated in the plan were conveyed to a new operating entity called the Consolidated Rail Corporation (ConRail). The current major tasks of the Association are (a) to provide and monitor the Federal funds which are to be made available to ConRail for working capital and rehabilitation and (b) to defend the reorganization which has been implemented against legal challenges filed by the estates of the reorganized railroads.

These funds have been provided for the U.S. Railway Association to purchase debentures and series A preferred stock issued by the Consolidated Rail Corporation. The Corporation will utilize these funds along with internally generated funds and funds from private sources to undertake a major rehabilitation of plant and equipment and to cover losses that may occur during the initial phase of operations.

Appropriations totaling $2.026 billion will be utilized during the period from April 1, 1976, to the end of 1980. The investment of these funds is intended to make possible the establishment of ConRail as a private corporation that will operate on a profitable basis.

The Water Resources Council was established to encourage the conservation, development, and utilization of water and related resources on a comprehensive and coordinated basis.

Legislation is recommended to abolish the Council. Therefore, no funds are requested for the Council in 1978. Functions relating to the river basin commissions and comprehensive planning will be transferred to the Department of the Interior. Funds are requested for these functions in the Office of the Secretary, Department of the Interior account for 1978.

The Council's policy function will be replaced by a Cabinet level committee to be created by Executive order. Interagency committees will be established as needed to conduct routine technical coordination functions. No funds are included in the budget for the grants to States program, which will be terminated by the recommended legislation.

PART II

EXPLANATION OF SCHEDULES

Part II contains detailed schedules of permanent positions, which are furnished to the Congress pursuant to the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, as amended, excluding waivers thereunder granted by the Appropriations Committees.

Most civilian employees in the Federal Government are included in one of the following pay systems: Executive level, general schedule, or Foreign Service. The salary ranges for the grades in each of these systems are shown in the following tables. Pay rates for wage board positions included in the "ungraded" positions are established on the basis of prevailing rates, which vary from area to area. Salary ranges shown for executive levels, general schedule (GS), and Foreign Service (FO, FR or FS) are those that became effective in October 1976, pursuant to Executive Order 11941 of October 1, 1976.

FS-9.....	9,273 to 12,054
FS-10.....	8,316 to 10,809

Note.—In the general schedule grades and certain other positions, the pay scales shown in the schedules may be exceeded when pay rates in the private sector for comparable occupations in one or more areas or locations are substantially above the statutory rates. In such cases, the Civil Service Commission has authority to permit a higher entrance level (not to exceed the maximum pay step prescribed by statute) and add a corresponding number of steps above the stated pay range.

The following pages display schedules of permanent positions for each of the three branches of Government. The schedules relate to positions established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. Authorized positions as of the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time; positions abolished during the year are not counted. Each schedule contains a listing of the grades of authorized positions and the total number in each grade as illustrated below:

Grades are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, general schedule, is abbreviated "GS-..." Salary ranges are shown only when the grades are unique to a single agency or bureau (e.g., physicians and nurses schedules within the Department of Medicine and Surgery, Veterans Administration) or where a grade is identified only by title. In the latter case, the title of each grade and the basic salary range is listed. Classification systems with the same salary ranges as the general schedule are so noted. A subtotal line is shown for executive level positions as well as for each separate series of positions, whenever more than one position is shown in these categories. Two additional lines provide for deducting the number of unfilled positions to arrive at the total employment in permanent positions at the end of the year.

PART III

SUPPLEMENTALS, REGULAR 1977
APPROPRIATIONS REQUESTS, AND RESCISSIONS

EXPLANATION OF REQUESTS

This part contains supplemental and a few regular 1977 requests for consideration by the Congress. Also included are requests pending before the Congress to rescind enacted budget authority.

PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTAL REQUESTS

Requests for supplemental appropriations are made after the regular appropriation for an account has been enacted. Supplemental requests for various program purposes, for 1977 increased pay costs, and for general provisions are shown as separate titles, following the usual form of supplemental appropriations acts.

Title I.—Supplementals for various purposes other than increased pay costs are presented in full—suggested appropriation language, program and financing schedules, and the reasons for the requests—in this title.

Title II.—Requests for pay supplementals in this title include suggested appropriation language for 1977. The amounts contained in the appropriation language also appear as separate line entries in the regular program and financing schedules in Part I.

REGULAR 1977 APPROPRIATIONS REQUESTS TRANSMITTED HEREIN

Title III.—For those few cases where the Congress has not completed consideration of regular 1977 appropriation requests, language related to those requests is included herein. Applicable amounts are included in the related regular program and financing schedules in Part I.

RESCISSION PROPOSALS

Under the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), whenever the President proposes rescission of enacted appropriations, a special message must be sent to the Congress giving details of the proposal. Included in this part—for rescission proposals sent to the Congress and on which action by the Congress is still pending—are program and financing schedules and references to the appropriate special messages.

72.00	Obligated balance, start of period
90.00	Outlays	2,093	57

This supplemental request is required because of the more extensive use of grand juries primarily as a result of the Speedy Trial Act of 1974. The act requires that any information or indictment charging an individual with the commission of an offense shall be filed within 30 days from the date on which such individual was arrested or served with a summons in connection with such charges. Petit jury costs also have increased as a result of the act. District courts are terminating a greater number of criminal cases in an effort to reduce the pending caseload and, as a consequence, the number of petit jury trials has increased.

90.00 Outlays			824	5,510

This supplemental appropriation request will provide for staffing and contract costs to undertake an audit of the child support enforcement program authorized under title IV-D of the Social Security Act and to expand efforts to prevent fraud and abuse in the medicaid program.

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

SPECIAL BENEFITS FOR DISABLED COAL MINERS

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Special benefits for disabled coal miners", $48,068,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 75-0409-1-1-601	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:
1. Benefit payments			41,865
2. Administration			6,203
10.00 Total program costs, funded—obligations			48,068
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (proposed supplemental appropriation)			48,068
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			48,068
90.00 Outlays			48,068

This proposed supplemental will finance increased benefit payments and administrative expenses. The basic benefit rate as prescribed by law is 50% of the minimum monthly benefit under the Federal employees compensation system for a totally disabled employee in step 1, grade GS-2. Increases in benefit payments are due to the 4.83% Federal pay increase effective October 1976 for an employee in step 1, grade GS-2, instead of the 3% increase provided in the 1977 budget estimate and an increase in the estimated number of claims allowances at the appellate level. Additional funds are also needed because such sums were drawn down from the 1977 appropriation, with congressional authorization, to cover higher than estimated benefit payments obligated in fiscal year 1976 and the transition quarter and for an increase in administrative expenses of processing nearly all of the remaining "Black Lung" court cases.

SPECIAL INSTITUTIONS

GALLAUDET COLLEGE

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Gallaudet College", $958,000.

Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net.....			5,684
90.00 Outlays.....			5,684

These supplemental requests will enable the two institutions to finance pay raises for nonteaching employees. This is in accordance with instructions from the Appropriations Committee of the U.S. House of Representatives to divorce the pay scales of nonteaching employees of these institutions from the pay scales of Federal employees. Funds are also included to fully reflect the effect of the October 1976 pay increase in their 1977 budget.

DEPARTMENTAL MANAGEMENT

GENERAL DEPARTMENTAL MANAGEMENT

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "General departmental management", $1,040,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 75-0120-1-1-999	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:

72.00 Obligated balance, start of period.....				40
74.00 Obligated balance, end of period.....			-40
90.00 Outlays.....			1,000	40

The supplemental request would provide the Office of the Inspector General with additional audit and investigative staff to increase activities to reduce fraud and abuse in several high-risk departmental programs, including Medicaid, public assistance, and student financial aid.

Department of Housing and Urban Development

HOUSING PROGRAMS

HOUSING PAYMENTS

For an additional amount for "Housing payments", $240,000,000.

74.00 Obligated balance, end of period.....			38,829	157,693
90.00 Outlays.....			121,136	118,864

This supplemental appropriation is required to meet the unfunded requirements for contractual payment commitments incurred in 1976, the transition quarter and estimated in 1977. Payments for these cash deficits currently are being funded by utilizing the 1977 appropriation as authorized by section 5(c) of the Housing Act of 1937, as amended.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION FUND

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required)

For an additional amount for Federal Housing Administration Fund, $1,801,344,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That $15,000,000 shall be available for reimbursement to the Federal Housing Administration for losses incurred under the urban homesteading program (12 U.S.C. 1706e): Provided further, That $10,000,000 shall be made available only upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation.

90.00	Outlays.....		12,000	90,000

This supplemental request will enable the Bicentennial Land Heritage Act to establish a 10-year national commitment to double America's heritage of national parks and recreation areas. An appropriation of $200 million is requested for the purpose of acquiring and upgrading additional urban recreational areas. These funds will be added to the community development block grant program level in 1977 and distributed to eligible recipients in accordance with the current allocation formula for the regular block grant program. The recipients will be urged to give high priority to upgrading existing parks, particularly in urban areas.

These supplemental funds are required to combat forest and range fires on public lands. The requested amount includes $20 million for repayment of the Land and water conservation fund for appropriations temporarily transferred in the transition quarter to cover fire obligations. In addition, $2.4 million is required for Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act implementation. This amount is needed for implementing the Cook Inlet Region Settlement, other requirements of the 1976 Claims Act amendments, publishing land selections in Alaska newspapers as required by new regulations, and reducing Claims Act cadastral survey backlogs.

PAYMENTS IN LIEU OF TAXES

For expenses necessary to implement the Act of October 20, 1976, (Public Law 94-565) $100,000,000, of which not to exceed $200,000 shall be available for administrative expenses.

90.00 Outlays.....			36,000	80,000

¹ Includes $20 million in 1977 transferred from Bureau of Land Management, Management of lands and resources.

This proposed supplemental is for a portion of the Bicentennial land heritage program. These funds will accelerate the acquisition of natural and historic areas for inclusion in the Nation's national park and national wildlife refuge systems. In addition, funds transferred in the transition quarter to the Bureau of Land Management for firefighting expenses will be returned.

UNITED STATES FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required)

For an additional amount for "Resource management", $8,025,000, including the purchase of not to exceed one hundred and ten passenger motor vehicles and one additional aircraft: Provided, That $7,000,000 shall be available only upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation.

74.00 Obligated balance, end of period.....			-11,000	-22,000
90.00 Outlays.....			25,000	25,000

This request for supplemental appropriations provides funds to develop new facilities and to restore and expand existing facilities in the Nation's wildlife refuges. This is part of the Bicentennial land heritage program.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

OPERATION OF THE NATIONAL PARK SYSTEM

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required)

For an additional amount for "Operation of the national park system", $13,730,000: Provided, That $13,000,000 shall be made available only upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net.....			13,730
90.00 Outlays.....			13,730

This proposed supplemental appropriation will finance additional personnel to meet the resource protection, facilities maintenance, visitor service, and land acquisition needs of the National Park System. This is part of the Bicentennial land heritage program. Funds are also requested to provide for recent park police pay raises.

PLANNING AND CONSTRUCTION

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required)

For an additional amount for "Planning and construction", $694,300,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available only upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)
Identification code 14-1039-4-1-303	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.

Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			64,000	64,000
90.00 Outlays			64,000	64,000

This proposed supplemental appropriation is to fund a portion of the Bicentennial land heritage program. These funds will provide for the rehabilitation, reconstruction, and maintenance of existing roads, trails, buildings, and other facilities as well as the construction of new facilities in the National Park System.

PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC PROPERTIES

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Preservation of historic properties," $1,500,000, to remain available until expended.

74.00 Obligated balance, end of period			-500
90.00 Outlays			1,000	500

This supplemental request is required to implement the preservation of historic properties provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1976. This act provides tax deductions for owners of depreciable certified historic structures who undertake rehabilitation of their properties. It also eliminates tax advantages to persons who destroy certified historic structures in order to construct new buildings. Administration of these provisions of the act will increase the workload of the National Park Service's Office of Archeology and Historic Preservation.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

SURVEYS, INVESTIGATIONS, AND RESEARCH

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Surveys, investigations, and research", $900,000.

MINES AND MINERALS—Continued

Funds are required for purchasing and renovating a building to serve as a replacement facility for the Bureau of Mines Salt Lake City Metallurgy Research Center. The current research building is located on the campus of the University of Utah. Both the University and State of Utah have expressed great interest in purchasing the Bureau's current building, so the Bureau needs to acquire a suitable replacement building. Funds are also requested to conduct studies on ocean mining of minerals. These studies will contribute to the early development of these resources.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

OPERATION OF INDIAN PROGRAMS

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Operation of Indian programs", $10,040,000.

90.00 Outlays.....			9,200	840

The requested supplemental funds will be used to: (1) suppress forest and range wildfires, (2) reduce livestock in the Navajo-Hopi joint use area, (3) assist Pyramid Lake Paiute Tribe in natural resource rights litigation, and (4) prepare regional environmental impact statements and area-wide assessments on uranium exploration.

TERRITORIAL AFFAIRS

ADMINISTRATION OF TERRITORIES

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required)

For an additional amount for "Administration of territories", $19,700,000, to remain available until expended, including $8,500,000 for grants to the Virgin Islands and $11,200,000 for grants to Guam which shall be available only upon enactment into law of authorizing legislation.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 20-2111-1-1-851	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:
10.00 General revenue sharing payments (costs—obligations)			4,991,085
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (appropriation)			4,991,085
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			4,991,085
90.00 Outlays			4,991,085

This supplemental request makes funds available to the State and local government fiscal assistance trust fund under the general revenue sharing program. This request is authorized by Public Law 94-488 and will provide funds for the final three quarters of 1977.

STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT FISCAL ASSISTANCE TRUST FUND

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 20-8111-1-7-851	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:
10.00 General revenue sharing payments (costs—obligations)			4,991,085
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (appropriation)			4,991,085
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			4,991,085
72.00 Obligated balance, start of period				1,663,695
74.00 Obligated balance, end of period			-1,663,695
90.00 Outlays			3,327,390	1,663,695

This schedule reflects the impact on the trust fund of the general revenue sharing payments for the last three quarters of 1977. Payments to the States and localities are made at least quarterly. It is anticipated that the fourth quarter payment for each fiscal year will continue to be paid within the first 5 days of the succeeding fiscal year, as provided by law.

BUREAU OF GOVERNMENT FINANCIAL OPERATIONS

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses", $6,750,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 20-1801-1-1-803	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:
10.00 Banking and cash management (costs—obligations)			6,750
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (proposed supplemental appropriation)			6,750
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			6,750
72.00 Obligated balance, start of period				67
74.00 Obligated balance, end of period			-67
90.00 Outlays			6,683	67

The supplemental request is necessary to compensate commercial banks for maintaining tax and loan accounts and accepting and processing Federal tax deposits. Previously, banks recovered the cost of providing these services through the earnings they generated on the Federal tax and loan account balances left on deposit at each bank. The Federal Government is requesting authorization to collect these earnings so the banks will have to be directly compensated for the services they provide. Because these earnings will be much greater than the amount the banks must be compensated, this new arrangement will be advantageous to the Federal Government.

UNITED STATES CUSTOMS SERVICE

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses", $6,319,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 20-0602-1-1-751	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:
1. Inspection and control			5,687
2. Appraisal and entry processing			632
10.00 Total obligations			6,319
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (proposed supplemental appropriation)			6,319
Relation of obligation to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			6,319
72.00 Obligated balance, start of period				369
74.00 Obligated balance, end of period			-369
90.00 Outlays			5,950	369

This supplemental appropriation is necessary because section 15(a) of the Airport and Airway Development Act (Public Law 94-353, enacted July 12, 1976) transfers to the Federal Government the cost of customs inspection services provided to aircraft arriving in the United States on Sundays and holidays during the time considered regular hours of service. This supplemental request represents the estimated cost of these services for the remainder of 1977.

BUREAU OF THE PUBLIC DEBT

ADMINISTERING THE PUBLIC DEBT

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Administering the public debt", $4,700,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 20-0560-1-1-803	1976 act.	TQ act.	1977 est.	1978 est.
Program by activities:
10.00 Issuance, servicing and retirement of savings-type securities (costs—obligations)			4,700
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (proposed supplemental appropriation)			4,700
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			4,700
90.00 Outlays			4,700

This supplemental request will provide funds to compensate commercial banks for issuing U.S. savings bonds. In the past, the banks which issued savings bonds were compensated for this service by the earnings they generated on the idle Federal tax and loan account balances deposited in each bank. The Federal Government is requesting authorization to collect interest on these balances so the banks will have to be directly compensated for issuing these bonds. This arrangement will be advantageous to the Government because these earnings are much greater than the amounts which the banks must be compensated.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses", $1,552,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

4. Statistical reporting			305
10.00 Total obligations			28,804
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (proposed supplemental appropriation)			28,804
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			28,804
72.00 Obligated balance, start of period				2,942
74.00 Obligated balance, end of period			-2,942
90.00 Outlays			25,862	2,942

This supplemental appropriation will provide additional resources for the further development of an information returns program, which associates information documents with tax returns; for implementation of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-455); and for the enhancement of the President's program against high-level drug traffickers.

COMPLIANCE

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Compliance", $41,189,000.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

3. Taxpayer conferences and appeals			46
4. Technical rulings and services			1,532
5. Legal services			3,455
6. Employee plans			630
7. Exempt organizations			1,043
10.00 Total obligations			41,189
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (proposed supplemental appropriation)			41,189
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Obligations incurred, net			41,189
72.00 Obligated balance, start of period				4,488
74.00 Obligated balance, end of period			-4,488
90.00 Outlays			36,701	4,488

Additional funds are requested for implementation of the Tax Reform Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-455) and for expansion of the President's program against high-level drug traffickers.

ENERGY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

OPERATING EXPENSES

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required)

For an additional amount for "Operating expenses", $55,800,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That this appropriation shall be available only upon the enactment into law of authorizing legislation.

TITLE IV—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec. 1. Except where specifically increased or decreased elsewhere in this Act, the restrictions contained within appropriations, or provisions affecting appropriations or other funds, available during the fiscal year 1977, limiting the amounts which may be expended for personal services, or for purposes involving personal services, or amounts which may be transferred between appropriations or authorizations available for or involving such services, are hereby increased to the extent necessary to meet increased pay costs authorized by or pursuant to law.

This general provision, traditionally included in appropriation acts containing funds for increased pay costs, permits the necessary adjustments to various restrictions on the use of appropriated funds. These adjustments are limited to carrying out the increased funding approved for pay costs.

Sec. 2. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 3679 of the revised statutes, as amended, 31 U.S.C. 665(a), or section 3732 of the revised statutes, as amended, 41 U.S.C. 11, the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration may enter into a contract, or contracts, with COMSAT General Corporation for experimental aeronautical satellite communications services, the funds for which shall be made available in appropriations act.

This general provision will allow the Federal Aviation Administration to enter into a multi-year contract with COMSAT General Corporation for experimental aeronautical satellite purposes.

PART IV

DETAILED ESTIMATES OF OFF-BUDGET FEDERAL ENTITIES

EXPLANATION OF DETAILED ESTIMATES OF OFF-BUDGET FEDERAL ENTITIES

Part IV contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain Federal entities that are not part of the budget totals. These budgets and statements are made available as auxiliary information.

Public Law 93-32 removed from the budget totals the governmental financing of rural electric and telephone systems administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 removed the budget authority and outlays of Housing for the elderly or handicapped from the budget totals. This account, administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development, includes requested appropriations language that, if enacted, would restore these amounts to the budget totals.

A wholly owned Government corporation, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, was established by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, within the Department of Labor but outside the budget totals.

The Department of the Treasury administers two activities outside the budget totals:

The Exchange stabilization fund was established by the Gold Reserve Act of 1934 for the purpose of stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar. Since it is not practicable to forecast the transactions of the fund in gold, foreign currencies, and foreign investments, estimates for 1977 and 1978 include only administrative expenses and interest on investments.

The Federal Financing Bank was created by the Federal Financing Bank Act of 1973 to: (1) assure coordination of Federal and federally assisted borrowing programs with the overall economic and fiscal policies of the Government, (2) reduce the cost of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public, and (3) assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive to private financial markets and institutions. The bank is authorized to make commitments to purchase and sell, and to purchase and sell on terms and conditions determined by the bank, any obligation that is issued, sold, or guaranteed by a Federal agency.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System provides its administrative budget for inclusion without further review. In conformance with its accounting system, the figures for the Board are on a calendar year basis.

The budget presentation of the Postal Service reflects its conversion to independent status consistent with the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970. The activities of the Postal Service, but not the Federal subsidy, are excluded from the budget totals and presented here.

The United States Railway Association, established by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, is a Government corporation. It is preparing a final Midwest and Northeast rail system plan. The loan guarantee and part of the financing activities of the Association are presented here, while the administrative expenses of the Association and other parts of its financing activity are reflected in Part I.

Legislation to establish a new Government corporation, the Energy Independence Authority, is being proposed again. This corporation will provide financial assistance to the private sector in development of new energy sources to make the United States independent of foreign energy sources.

The Rural Electrification Administration conducts two capital investment programs: (1) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (2) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

Insured electric and telephone loans are financed from the Rural Electrification and telephone revolving fund (RETRF) under the authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. Insured loans bear either 2% or 5% interest in accordance with criteria as specified in the act, and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. REA also guarantees loans made by the Federal Financing Bank (FFB) and other qualified lenders at rates agreed upon by the lender and the borrower.

Public Law 94-570 amended the Rural Electrification Act and transfers into the revolving fund $455,634,525 in borrowing authority carried over from the fiscal year 1973 authorization. The transfer provides the necessary cash to postpone by nearly 1 year the need of the revolving fund to sell additional certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's). The legislation also changes the statutory criteria used in determining eligibility for 2% insured loans. The change in criteria corrects unintended inequities resulting from Public Law 93-32, which amended the Rural Electrification Act in May 1973, and brings the number of borrowers eligible for the special rate more in line with congressional intent and with borrowers' actual needs for funds at this rate.

1. Rural electrification.—This capital investment program is financed through REA insured loans and guarantees of loans made by other qualified lenders for the construction and operation of generating plants, electric transmission and distribution lines or systems in rural areas.

The 1978 budget request reflects the availability of supplemental financing from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) and other sources to satisfy a part of the capital requirements of the rural electric systems.

The Rural Telephone Bank (RTB) was established by Public Law 92-12, approved May 7, 1971, which amended the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. The RTB provides a supplemental source of financing for the REA telephone program. Public Law 92-234, approved June 30, 1972, amended the act to permit the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase the Bank's debentures. This has minimized the Bank's borrowing costs. The Bank charges an interest rate based on the average cost of money to the Bank, but not less than 5% per annum. The weighted average interest rate on cumulative loans through September 30, 1976, was 6.9%. During the first quarter of 1977, loans are being made at 7% interest.

Equity capital of the Bank consists of class A stock purchased by the United States, class B and C stock purchased by Bank borrowers, organizations eligible to become borrowers and organizations controlled by borrowers, and retained earnings. The maximum borrowing authority of the Bank by law is limited to 20 times its paid-in capital and retained earnings. Total available borrowing authority of the Bank for 1977 is estimated at $4.3 billion. For 1978 it is estimated at $5.4 billion.

Bank loans totaled $180.1 million in 1976. After almost 5 years in operation, loans to 366 borrowers have been approved, totaling over $763 million. Telephone Bank loans are estimated at $160 million for 1977 and $160 million for 1978.

Administrative support for the general operations of the Bank are provided on a part-time basis by REA employees and the Office of the General Counsel, normally without cost to the Bank, as provided for in the enabling legislation. Certain administrative expenses, such as expenses of the elected members of the Board of Directors, postage fees and the audit by the General Accounting Office, must be borne by the Bank.

Section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959 established a program of housing assistance for lower income persons who are elderly or handicapped. The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (section 210(d)) provided that the receipts and disbursements of the fund shall not be included in the budget.

Legislation converting the program to an "on-budget" status is planned.

This program provides direct Federal loans for permanent financing of projects for the elderly or handicapped. Projects must include an assured range of necessary services for the elderly residents. In addition, the 1974 act authorized the use of the section 8 lower income housing assistance payments program in conjunction with the section 202 program. Assuming the benefits of lower interest rates are passed along in full to elderly or handicapped tenants, the average rent is reduced by about $12 per month.

For 1978, a $750 million loan limitation is proposed which will provide financing for approximately 25,600 units.

Financing.—Prior to the implementation of the revised program, funds for loans had been provided by appropriation to a revolving fund. Additional financing had been obtained through issuance of certificates of participation in pools of mortgages financed from this program as provided by the Participation Sales Act of 1966. The following table shows the financing of insufficiencies:

Repayments and interest income from loans made prior to 1974 continue to be available for use under the new program. In addition, the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 authorized Treasury borrowing up to $800 million. The Housing Authorization Act of 1976 raises cumulative outstanding Treasury borrowings in 1978 to $2,387.5 million, subject to release in appropriations acts. Release of such amounts of borrowing authority as may be necessary to carry out the proposed $750 million loan program in 1978 is proposed.

Title IV of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-406) provides for the establishment of a wholly owned Government corporation, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. This Corporation is administered by a board of directors, the chairman being the Secretary of Labor. The Corporation's mission is to administer insurance programs to prevent the loss of pension benefits to participants should pension plans terminate and not be able to pay the insured benefits, and to provide portability assistance.

Budget program.—The act further provides that the Corporation's budget not be included in the totals of the U.S. budget, however, it is subject to the budget and related provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act.

1. Administration.—To administer the basic benefits, employer's contingent liability and nonbasic benefit programs covering single and multiemployer plans, including executive direction, program development, program operations, legal support, communications, financial and management controls, and administrative support.

2. Benefit payments.—To pay benefits under the basic benefits, employer's contingent liability and nonbasic benefit insurance programs.

Financing.—To carry out its programs, the Corporation will be self-financing and is authorized to borrow up to $100 million from the U.S. Treasury.

Operating results.—The Corporation's main sources of revenue will be insurance premiums from the three programs which it collects, recoveries from employers for liabilities imposed by the act, and earnings on assets of the Corporation.

The borrowings together with the sources of revenue will be used to pay the administrative costs and benefit payments.

For the purpose of stabilizing the exchange value of the dollar, the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to deal in gold, foreign exchange, and other instruments of credit and securities. An exchange stabilization fund, with a capital of $200 million (derived from the increment resulting from the reduction in the weight of the gold dollar which took place in 1934) is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 822a).

The Exchange stabilization fund (ESF) is in the nature of a revolving fund, with all earnings and interest accruing to the ESF paid into this fund and available for the purposes thereof, including administrative expenses required in connection with the ESF's monetary and financial operations and related international economic activities. The principal sources of the fund's income have been the handling charge imposed on purchases and sales of gold for the account of the fund, profits on foreign exchange transactions, and interest on investments held by the fund. U.S. holdings of special drawing rights are credited to and administered as part of the fund. The cumulative income of the fund from the time it began (reflecting losses on ESF transactions as well as income) has been $694 million and its administrative expenses $143 million, resulting in cumulative net income as of June 30, 1976, of $551 million.

Because it is not practicable to forecast the transactions of the Fund in gold, foreign currencies and foreign investments, estimates for 1977 and 1978 include only administrative expenses and income from investments.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created December 29, 1973, to assure the coordination of Federal and federally assisted borrowings from the public and to assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive of private financial markets and institutions.

The Bank has become the vehicle through which most Federal agencies finance their programs involving the sale or placement of credit market instruments, including agency securities, guaranteed obligations, participation agreements, and the sale of assets. The major exceptions to date are the title XI ship mortgage bonds, the federally guaranteed tax-exempt Housing and Urban Renewal notes and bonds, and the Government National Mortgage Association asset sales.

During 1976, the Federal Financing Bank made loans and advances totaling $15.7 billion to Federal agencies and federally guaranteed borrowers. In the absence of the Bank, the majority of borrowers would have issued their obligations in the market at a cost significantly higher than that charged by the FFB.

At the first meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank on May 23, 1974, the Board approved a policy of borrowing from the Treasury Department on an interim basis. These borrowings were to be periodically repaid by the sale of FFB securities in the market. On July 23, 1974, the Bank auctioned $1.5 billion of 244-day Federal Financing Bank bills dated July 30, which matured on March 31, 1975. In a later meeting on June 5, 1975, the Board of Directors decided that the Bank would borrow all funds from the Treasury Department matching the terms and conditions of its borrowings from the Treasury with the terms and conditions of its loans. The Bank is currently lending funds at a rate one-eighth of 1% above the new issue rate of marketable U.S. Treasury securities of similar terms and conditions.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Capital outlays.—5. Construction program.—The annex building has been completed and occupied. The proposed budget contains capital expenditures for additional energy-saving modifications to the utilities systems and for improved building utilization efforts consistent with the Board's needs.

In July 1976, the Board approved a program to modernize and renovate interior portions of the original Board building and to upgrade the electrical, mechanical, and utilities systems. The primary benefits will be increased density of population, improved environmental conditions and improved energy conservation. It is anticipated that the bulk of construction activity and expense will occur in 1977 with completion scheduled for the latter half of 1978.

6. Computer modifications.—The staff has been studying the feasibility of making hardware modifications to its present computer system. This proposed expansion is in consonance with the Board's long-range data processing program. A proposal will be submitted to the Board within the next few months. The amount shown for this purpose is a staff estimate only.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with mail service at reasonable rates.

The Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including 9 Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General, selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General, selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Decisions on changes in domestic rates of postage and fees for postal services are recommended to the Governors of the Postal Service by the independent Postal Rate Commission after a hearing on the record under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Commission also recommends decisions on changes in the domestic mail classification schedule to the Governors. Decision of the Governors on rates of postage, fees for postal services, and mail classification are final, subject to judicial review.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) Mail and services revenue, (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources, (3) proceeds from borrowing, (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments, and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

The 1978 program for the U.S. Postal Service is based on an anticipated mail volume of 95.2 billion pieces compared to 92.7 billion estimated for 1977 and 89.8 billion for 1976.

Since 1973, transactions of the Postal Service fund and the assets and liabilities of the U.S. Postal Service no longer appear within the totals of the U.S. budget. The schedules presented here reflect summary data on postal operations.

Section 2005 of the Postal Reorganization Act authorizes borrowing authority of $10 billion with a yearly limitation of $2 billion, of which not more than $500 million may be used to cover operating expenses. As of September 30, 1978, it is expected that indebtedness outstanding pursuant to this borrowing authority will amount to $4.5 billion.

Operating.—Estimated receipts will total $15.1 billion in 1978. This includes $13.3 billion from mail and services revenue, $92.6 million from investment income, $1.7 billion from appropriations including $64.8 million to cover unfunded liabilities of the Post Office Department, and miscellaneous other income of $24.4 million.

At current rates, for 1978 a deficit of $1,736.4 million will be incurred and the Service will need to request an increase in rates.

The United States Railway Association is authorized by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act, as amended, to borrow funds and make loans to certain railroads. Borrowings by the United States Railway Association are guaranteed by the Secretary of Transportation. The aggregate of outstanding obligations of the Association are limited to $395 million at any one time. Two types of loans are currently authorized: (a) Loans related to the implementation of the system plan developed by the Association for restructuring the bankrupt railroads in the northeast and midwest and (b) loans to defray obligations of the reorganized railroads which were incurred prior to the conveyance of their rail properties but which were unpaid after the conveyance to the Consolidated Rail Corporation on April 1, 1976. During the current fiscal year, the Association will utilize practically all of its present borrowing authority. No activity is anticipated for the budget year, since repayment will take place only in later years.

The Energy Independence Authority (EIA) is a proposed new $100 billion Government corporation to help achieve energy independence for the United States by providing loans, loan guarantees, price guarantees, or other financial assistance to private sector energy projects. The President submitted legislation to the Congress to create EIA on October 10, 1975.

EIA will have authorized capital stock of $25 billion and the authority to issue and to have outstanding at any one time notes, debentures, bonds, or other obligations of $75 billion. The $25 billion of equity will be subject to the appropriation process and requested incrementally as needed; the $75 billion in borrowing authority will be requested initially as a one-time congressional authorization without any further need of congressional appropriations.

In 1978, it is anticipated that EIA will use up to $10 billion of its financial authority. The bulk of the authority used will be in the form of loans and loan guarantees. The above schedule shows only those items incurred as obligations by EIA, but does not include loan or price guarantee authority which is treated as a contingent, rather than an incurred, liability for budget purposes.

The EIA will have a legislated life of 10 years, with new financial commitments permitted only in the first 7 years of its existence.

OTHER MATERIALS

EXPLANATION OF OTHER MATERIALS

This section includes the following material required by section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

- (a) a list of advance appropriations requested in this budget for 1979, together with a list of all accounts for which 1979 advance appropriations are authorized; and
- (b) a statement of amendments and revisions to 1977 budget authority requests that were transmitted to the Congress after the 1977 budget but prior to the transmittal of the 1978 Budget.

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS FOR 1979

Section 601(h) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) requires inclusion in the budget of: ". . . information with respect to estimates of appropriations for the next succeeding fiscal year for grants, contracts, or other payments under any program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for such succeeding fiscal year and such appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation act for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation."

In fulfillment of this requirement, the following table lists those accounts authorized to receive, in fiscal year 1978, advance appropriations for fiscal year 1979. The listing is in two parts. Section I shows the amounts of advance 1979 appropriations included in the 1978 budget. Section II is a listing of accounts for which no advance 1979 appropriations are requested in the 1978 budget, although such advance appropriations are authorized.

² Excludes salaries and expenses.

STATEMENT OF AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR FISCAL YEAR 1977

(Between the Transmittal of the 1977 and 1978 Budgets)

Section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) amends section 201 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, by adding new requirements. One of the new requirements is that the President's annual budget, or the supporting detail transmitted in connection with it, shall include a statement—for the fiscal year in progress and using the preceding annual budget as a base—of . . . "all amendments to or revisions in budget authority requested" . . . that are made before the date the President's annual budget is transmitted to the Congress. (See sec. 601(g).) The listing below is submitted in fulfillment of this new requirement.

Regular 1977 budget authority requests were transmitted in the 1977 Budget. Changes to those requests are included in this 1978 Budget, and other changes were requested earlier—after the transmittal of the 1977

Budget and before transmittal of this budget. Requests for change took three forms. If the Congress had not yet acted on a pending request, the President sent amendments to his budget requests. If appropriations had been enacted, the President proposed either supplemental budget authority or rescission of enacted appropriations.

Amendments and requests for supplemental appropriations are printed in the documents of the House of Representatives and the Senate that are shown in Part A of the following listing. The President's proposals for rescissions are included in his special messages to the Congress under the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344). Both the special messages and monthly cumulative reports on the items they cover are printed in the volumes of the Federal Register cited in Part B of the following listing.

PART VI

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

Part VI contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain Government-sponsored enterprises. All of these enterprises are chartered by the Federal Government and supervised by a Government agency although they are privately owned. These budgets are not reviewed by the President; they are presented as submitted by the enterprises. This section includes:

- (a) Student Loan Marketing Association.
- (b) Federal home loan banks.
- (c) Banks for cooperatives.
- (d) Federal intermediate credit banks.
- (e) Federal land banks.
- (f) Federal National Mortgage Association.

(g) Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation.

The Student Loan Marketing Association is a corporation, supervised by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, to assist in financing college student loans.

Both the Federal home loan banks and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation are supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The other three systems of banks are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration.

The Federal National Mortgage Association is a mortgage finance corporation supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Student Loan Marketing Association (SLMA), a Government-sponsored, private corporation, was created by the Education Amendments of 1972 to expand funds available for student loans by providing liquidity to banks, educational institutions, and other lenders engaged in the guaranteed student loan program.

To date, SLMA has provided liquidity through direct purchase of insured student loans from eligible lenders and by making warehousing advances, secured by insured student loans, to eligible lenders. Proceeds from warehousing advances are required to be invested in additional student loans.

Operations.—By December 1976, SLMA is expected to have outstanding $209,266 thousand in warehousing advances. It is expected that volume under this program will reach an adjusted level of $179,736 thousand by September 30, 1977, with continued activity in 1978. In 1976, SLMA expanded its loan purchase program to a level of $177,193 thousand. SLMA expects to purchase $136,700 thousand in loans in 1977 and $135,300 thousand in 1978, to a level of $430,884 thousand as of September 1978.

Effective October 1, 1977, a new program of federally insured loans to graduate health professions students will become operative. SLMA is authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976 to provide a secondary market for these loans. Due to the startup nature of this program, its effect on SLMA's warehousing advance and loan purchase programs is uncertain.

Financing.—To obtain funds for its programs, SLMA is authorized, with the approval of the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare and the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue its own debt obligations. The Secretary of HEW is authorized by the Education Amendments of 1972 to guarantee as to principal and interest such obligations issued prior to July 1, 1982, regardless of maturity date. As of September 30, 1976, SLMA had total outstanding debt obligations to the Federal Financing Bank of $405 million. SLMA expects to continue selling guaranteed debt obligations to the Federal Financing Bank in the future.

The Corporation is authorized to issue common stock to qualified educational and financial institutions and raised $24.5 million less issuance costs of $635,257, or a net of $23.9 million by June 1974.

Management.—At its annual meeting in May 1976, the shareholders of SLMA elected a board of directors to serve until May 1977. The shareholders of SLMA are entitled to elect 14 members to the Board. Pursuant to the Education Amendments of 1972, the President continues to appoint the remaining 7 members of the 21-member Board, as well as designating the Chairman of the Board. The 7 directors appointed by the President in 1975 continue to serve.

The forecast data with respect to operations are based on certain specific assumptions by management, including the continued successful development, implementation, and financing of authorized programs. The Board of Directors has not yet reviewed or approved these financial estimates. Accordingly, such data should not be relied upon as an official forecast of the Corporation's future business.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) is a Government-sponsored private corporation. Its purpose is to provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by supplying a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

To carry out this purpose, FNMA buys mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans' Administration, as well as conventional mortgages.

The Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 empowered FNMA, with the approval of the Secretary of HUD, to purchase, service, lend on the security of, and otherwise invest in conventional mortgages. FNMA acts to minimize the possible additional risk involved in purchasing conventional mortgages by applying strict qualifications to such purchases.

The authorizing statute, the Housing Act of 1954, approved August 2, 1954, originally contemplated that FNMA's secondary market operations would ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. On September 30, 1968, pursuant to the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, FNMA was converted to a Government-sponsored, privately owned corporation whose expenditures and receipts are not reflected in the Federal Budget.

The common stock of the Corporation is owned by the public and is fully transferable and fully traded. The Corporation may require each mortgage seller to purchase stock equal to not more than 2% of the unpaid principal amounts of mortgages purchased or to be purchased by the Corporation from such seller.

The Association has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated capital debentures in an amount not in excess of twice the net equity. It may in addition borrow amounts not in excess of the sum of net equity and subordinated capital debentures outstanding multiplied by a factor established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. This factor is currently set at 25. These borrowings usually take the form of debentures, short-term discount notes, or bank loans. Finally, FNMA may issue securities, guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association, which are fully backed by pools of mortgages. This last type of borrowing is limited only by the size of FNMA's loan portfolio.

The Banks for cooperatives, of which there are 13, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sales of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds which the banks issue are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The Banks for cooperatives presently operate under authorities contained in title III of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181.

The Federal intermediate credit banks, of which there are 12, are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to, local financing institutions, such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks became mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968.

The Federal intermediate credit banks presently operate under authorities contained in title II of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181.

The Federal land banks, through the 541 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These banks and associations are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their income and are not included in the Budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the land banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947.

The Federal land banks presently operate under authorities contained in title I of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181.

The 12 Federal home loan banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions whose main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan-type institutions and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and to support their role as savings media and home-mortgage lenders. Each bank operates in a geographical district designated by the Board, and together the banks cover all of the United States and Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1976 the banks extended credit amounting to $6.6 billion and received repayments of $8.1 billion. Advances outstanding on June 30, 1976, totaled $15.3 billion.

The principal source of funds for lending is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On June 30, 1976, $17.1 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include a portion of members deposits as determined by Board policy (total deposits were $2.9 billion on June 30, 1976) and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions (stock outstanding was $2.8 billion at the end of 1976). Funds not immediately used for advances to members are invested until needed.

The capital stock of the Federal home loan banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased $125 million of stock in the banks. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951.

The operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a portion of the Board's administrative costs.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (a federally chartered corporation) was organized on July 24, 1970, under the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970.

The act exempts the Corporation from all taxation by the United States or by any State, county, municipality, or local taxing authority, except for real property taxes. The Corporation is under the direction of a Board of Directors composed of the members of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. The Corporation purchases, sells, and otherwise deals in mortgages on residential properties. The Corporation's capital stock was issued, at par, to the Federal home loan banks; the stock is nonvoting and nontransferable, and its ownership is restricted to the Federal home loan banks.
