BUDGET OF THE
UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

FISCAL YEAR
1981

THE BUDGET DOCUMENTS

Data and analyses relating to the budget for 1981 are published in four documents:

The Budget of the United States Government, 1981 contains the Budget Message of the President and presents an overview of the President's budget proposals. It includes explanations of spending programs in terms of national needs, agency missions, and basic programs, and an analysis of estimated receipts, including a discussion of the President's tax program. This document also contains a description of the budget system and various summary tables on the budget as a whole.

The United States Budget in Brief, 1981 is designed for use by the general public. It provides a more concise, less technical overview of the 1981 Budget than the above volume. Summary and historical tables on the Federal budget and debt are also provided, together with graphic displays.

The Budget of the United States Government, 1981—Appendix contains detailed information on the various appropriations and funds that comprise the budget. The Appendix contains more detailed information than any of the other budget documents. It includes for each agency: the proposed text of appropriation language, budget schedules for each account, new legislative proposals, explanations of the work to be performed and the funds needed, proposed general provisions applicable to the appropriations of entire agencies or groups of agencies, and schedules of permanent positions. Supplementals and rescission proposals for the current year are presented separately. Information is also provided on certain activities whose outlays are not part of the budget totals.

Special Analyses, Budget of the United States Government, 1981 contains analyses that are designed to highlight specified program areas or provide other significant presentations of Federal budget data. This document includes information about: alternative views of the budget, i.e., current services and national income accounts; economic and financial analyses of the budget covering Government finances and operations as a whole, and Government-wide program and financial information for Federal civil rights and research and development programs; and some major accomplishments.

Instructions for purchasing copies of these documents are on the last page of this volume.

GENERAL NOTES

1. All years referred to are fiscal years, unless otherwise noted.
2. Detail in the tables, text, and charts of this volume may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part I contains various tables and certain schedules in support of the budget, including explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, as well as the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item for which congressional action in an appropriation bill is required. It also contains the text of general provisions of appropriations acts, proposed for enactment by the Congress, that apply to entire agencies or groups of agencies.

ARRANGEMENT

The chapters of Part I reflect the branches of Government, and the major departments and agencies of the executive branch. Most of the smaller agencies in the executive branch are grouped in one chapter—"Other independent agencies."

Within each chapter there are two main sections. The first section covers programs authorized by existing legislation (including items for which extension or renewal of authorizing legislation is requested). This section is organized by major subordinate organizations within the agency (usually bureaus) or by major program area. For each bureau or major program area, Federal funds, covering the funds that are not set aside in "trust," precede trust funds, covering moneys that are held by the Government in accounts established by law or by trust agreement for specific purposes. Generally, accounts with new budget authority in 1981 will precede those without such an entry.

Legislative program items reflect the budget estimates for proposed new legislation. When included, these appear immediately following each parent account, or in budget sequence within the respective bureau, if no parent account exists. Requests for appropriations to finance these legislative proposals will be transmitted later. The proposals are applicable to Federal funds unless otherwise indicated.

The second section of each chapter includes the proposed language for general provisions of appropriation acts that are applicable to the agency in that chapter, and are in addition to the specific language pertaining to individual appropriation items. General provisions that apply to specified groups of agencies are placed in the chapter covering the first agency that appears in the respective appropriation act. The general provisions that are Government-wide in scope (identified "Departments, Agencies, and Corporations"), normally contained in the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriation Act, are placed at the end of the Executive Office of the President chapter.

An explanation of the types of funds included in the budget may be found in Part 7 of—The Budget of the United States Government, 1981.

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1981 appropriation acts is printed following the account title. The language of the 1980 appropriation acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Brackets enclose material that is proposed for deletion; italic type indicates proposed new language. (When an appropriation has not been enacted at the time the budget is submitted, the language relates only to 1981 and is italicized, with no brackets shown. In a few cases, the language from un-enacted 1980 appropriation bills, printed in roman type, is used as a base. In such cases, the language is followed by an explanatory note. An illustration of proposed appropriation language for 1981 follows:

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Bureau of Economic Analysis, [$13,475,000] the Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards, the Office of Industrial Economics, and the Office of Economic Affairs, $16,875,000. (15 U.S.C. 171, 175, 1512, 1516; 22 U.S.C. 288f; 3101-3108; 31 U.S.C. 18b; Department of Government Appropriation Act, 1980.)

At the end of the final language paragraph, and printed in italics within parentheses, are citations to any relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriation act from which the basic text of the 1981 language is taken.

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

The 1979 column of this budget generally presents the actual transactions and balances for that year, as recorded in agency accounts.

For 1980, the regular schedules include enacted appropriations and also identify the amounts for supplemental appropriations needed to meet the increased costs of statutory and wage-board pay raises. When the annual appropriation has not been enacted, the regular schedules will include the amounts provided under the authority of a continuing resolution. Requests for supplemental appropriations to meet increased 1980 program costs (where costs other than for statutory pay raises are involved), or to finance proposed program expansions in 1980, are included in Part III. Also included in Part III is the proposed appropriation language for both pay and program supplemental requests.

The 1981 column of the regular schedules includes proposed appropriations for all existing programs, including those that require extension or renewal of expiring laws. However, amounts for proposed new legislation are shown in separate schedules, generally following the regular schedules or in budget sequence in the respective bureau. Appropriation language is included with the regular schedules, but not with the separate schedules for proposed legislation.

Where the required data are available in the agency accounting systems, budgets are presented in terms of applied costs. For operating programs, costs represent the value of resources consumed or used. For procurement and manufacturing programs, costs represent the value of materiel received or produced. For capital investment programs, costs for public works cover the value of work put in place, and costs for loan activities generally represent loan assets acquired. In the case of appropriations for programs that are essentially operating in nature, equipment is normally shown as a program cost (capital investment) when it is placed into use. If depreciation costs are provided in the accounting system, such costs may also be included in the program by activities section of the program and financing schedules with appropriate deductions made to avoid duplication in the schedule totals. Funded and unfunded costs may be included in costs reported in the program and financing schedules.

Total obligations are always shown; objects are reflected, generally, on an obligation basis. Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, loan agreements made, and recurring services (such as rent, utilities, and personal services) received during the year, regardless of the time of payment.

PROGRAM AND FINANCING SCHEDULE

This schedule consists of three parts. In the "Program by activities" section, costs or obligations are classified by purpose, program, type of activity, or project for 1979, 1980, and 1981. This classification is developed for each appropriation or fund, and is not uniform on a Government-wide basis. Where it is of significance, capital investment is shown by activity. Otherwise, the total for each year is disclosed by footnote.

Where amounts for activities are presented in terms of costs, the adjustment from costs to obligations is summarized in an entry "Change in selected resources."

In certain cases, this schedule is expanded to include additional columns that provide a more informative presentation. This is done, for example, in some construction or procurement programs to show related cost data; for certain Defense items, to identify the total obligations programmed; and for programs financed at a pre-obligation stage (such as commitments in some loan programs).

The "Financing" section shows the sources of funds, budget authority, and other means of financing the activities covered by the account, and the disposition of unobligated amounts not used during the year.

The section on "Relation of obligations to outlays" shows obligations net of offsetting collections, obligated balances at the start and end of the year, and other items that affect the relation of obligations to outlays.

The account identification code, found at the head of the program and financing schedule, facilitates computer processing of budgetary information. The last three digits of this code represent the functional category to which the account is classified. Functional classification permits presentation of budget authority and outlays in terms of national needs and agency missions, rather than the organization administering the program or the account under which these funds are made available. For example, the 376 on the above schedule indicates that the purpose of the program financed by this appropriation is Other advancement and regulation of commerce—a subfunction within major function 370, Commerce and housing credit. When the outlays from an account are split between two or more subfunctions within a single major function, the code of the major function is used. In those few cases where the outlays from an account are split between two or more functions, a code of 999 is used. A detailed discussion of how Federal programs are addressed to each identified national need is included in Part 5 of the budget. The individual functional categories are identified with each appropriation or fund account in the Budget Accounts Listing in Part 8 of the budget.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Narrative statements present briefly the objectives of the program and the work to be financed. Measures of expected performance are presented and the relationship of expected performance to the financial estimates is described.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a schedule of obligations or costs, according to the following uniform list of object classifications:

- | | |

These object classes reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose of the program for which they are used. Data according to this classification are illustrated in the following schedule:

Several of the object classes are divided into subclasses—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for permanent positions, for positions other than permanent, and for certain other payments. Standard level user charges are assessed by the General Services Administration for space (leased and Government-owned) and building services.

Generally, a personnel summary follows the object classification schedule, as illustrated:

Personnel Summary

Average GS grade	8.19	8.19	8.19
Average GS salary	$18,684	$19,991	$20,191

Permanent positions are those that are established or occupied for a year or more. The nature of the position governs. Thus, a permanent position may be occupied by an employee whose appointment is either temporary or permanent in nature. These positions may be full-time (full workweek) or part-time (less than a full workweek).

Average grades and salaries are computed arithmetically. Thus, the average salary can fall outside the salary range of the average grade.

BUSINESS-TYPE BUDGET STATEMENTS

Generally, business-type budget statements are presented for activities specifically required by the Government Corporation Control Act or similar legislation to submit such budgets, and for most other revolving and trust revolving funds. For these activities, largely financed by sales revenues, statements of revenue and expense and of financial condition are presented on an accrual basis. These statements are designed to supplement the schedule of program and financing, which is presented on an applied cost or obligation basis.

Statement of Revenue and Expense

For many revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense that shows the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement usually includes accrued revenue (e.g., revenue earned in advance of collections) and accrued expenditures (e.g., depreciation), whether funded or unfunded.

Revenue and Expense (in thousands of dollars)

Net income for the year	28,887	34,124	43,771

Statement of Financial Condition

The statement of Financial Condition shows assets, liabilities, and equity for the fund at the close of each fiscal year. In addition to this information, which is similar to commercial balance sheet data, budget needs also require special disclosures, which are made in the equity section. A disclosure is made of obligations incurred that have not yet accrued into liabilities (undelivered orders) and of budgetary resources for which no assets have been received (unfinanced budgetary resources). Unfinanced budgetary resources include orders from Federal customers that have not been filled (unfilled orders), and unfinanced budget authority in the form of authority to borrow for which borrowing has not taken place, and contract authority for which liquidating cash has not been received. Orders received from the public must be accompanied by advance payment.

The last section of the balance sheet is an "Analysis of Changes in Government Equity." This section sets forth for paid-in capital and retained income, as appropriate, the beginning balance, transactions (changes) during the year, and the balance at the end of the year.

FEDERAL CREDIT CONTROL SCHEDULES

Beginning with 1981, as part of an effort to establish systematic control of the levels of Federal credit during any fiscal year, the budget will generally include limitations on the amount of obligations for direct loans and commitments for loan guarantees in appropriations language for appropriations or funds with credit activity. Status of direct loans schedules and status of loan guarantees schedules summarize actual (past year) and estimated current and budget year activity.

Status of Direct Loans

A direct loan is a disbursement of funds (not in exchange for goods or services) that is contracted to be repaid—with or without interest—or any of the following transactions:

- direct Federal participation in loans privately made or held;
- purchase of private loans through secondary market operations;
- acquisition of guaranteed private loans or collateral in satisfaction of default or other guarantee claims.

A direct loan is counted against the annual limitation when the principal amount is obligated (see Basis for Schedules for definition of "obligation"). Gross obligations for direct loans means the amount obligated during a fiscal year, without reductions for such items as repayments, prepayments, sale of loan assets, defaults, or forgiveness.

For each appropriation or fund with direct loan activity, a schedule is displayed immediately following the program and financing schedule that shows the following:

- the position with respect to the limitation on the gross amount of obligations for direct loans enacted or proposed to be enacted in appropriations acts;
- the cumulative balance of direct loans outstanding;
- disbursements, repayments, defaults, and other transactions that affect the balances.

Status of Loan Guarantees

A loan guarantee is an agreement by which the Government pledges to pay part or all of the loan principal and interest to a lender or holder of a security, in the event of default by a third party borrower. For the purposes of credit control, the term includes agreements in the form of loan insurance; i.e., a program to pool risks, pledging the use of insurance premiums, and, under some circumstances, other resources to secure a lender against default by a borrower. The term also includes direct Federal loans that the Government has sold under guarantee or repurchase agreements.

A loan guarantee is counted against the annual limitation when a firm commitment is made, i.e., when the Government enters into a guarantee agreement to become effective at such time as the lender meets stipulated pre-conditions. A commitment must be reported for every loan guaranteed, even though the commitment and the actual guarantee may occur simultaneously. Where the principal amount of a loan is partially guaranteed by the Government, only the amount of the Government's contingent liability is to be counted. Gross commitments for loan guarantees means the amount committed during a fiscal year, without reductions for such items as repayments, prepayments, sale of guaranteed loans, or defaults.

For each appropriation or fund with loan guarantee activity, a schedule is displayed immediately following the program and financing schedule (or status of direct loans schedule, if there is one) that shows:

- the position with respect to the limitation on the gross amount of commitments for loan guarantees enacted or proposed to be enacted in appropriations acts;
- the cumulative balance of guaranteed loans outstanding;
- new loan guarantees, repayments of loans guaranteed, terminations for default, and other transactions that affect the balances.

BUDGETS NOT SUBJECT TO REVIEW

In accordance with law, the presentations for the Legislative Branch, the Judiciary, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Milk Market Orders Assessment Fund of the Department of Agriculture, the Farm Credit Administration, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and the International Trade Commission have been included, without review, in the amounts submitted by the agencies.

The budgets of the privately owned Government-sponsored enterprises, presented in Part VI, are not subject to review; they are included for information purposes in the amounts submitted by the respective enterprises.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN BUDGET TABLES AND APPENDIX TABLES*INTRAGOVERNMENTAL TRANSACTIONS

The consolidation of Government-administered funds in the budget volume may cause duplication in the totals. This occurs when the payment from one of the fund groups (Federal or trust) is credited to a receipt account in the other fund group, or when a payment from a Government agency excluded from the budget totals (off-budget Federal entities) is credited to a budgetary receipt account and appropriated therefrom. In order to avoid double counting in the budget totals, intragovernmental transactions (i.e., intrabudgetary transactions and receipts from off-budget Federal entities) are deducted from the aggregates of both budget authority and outlays.

PROPRIETARY RECEIPTS FROM THE PUBLIC

The individual schedules in the Appendix include as offsets only those amounts collected that are earmarked by law for use in revolving funds, or as credits to appropriations or other funds. In addition to showing outlays that are net of collections credited to individual accounts, the budget volume generally offsets against budget authority and outlays for each agency and function the collections from the public that are market-oriented or are mainly payments for goods and services, regardless of the fund structure.

Personal services and necessary expenses to provide support for the basic operations of the Library are financed from this appropriation.

1. Purchase of books and library materials.—The Library's collections are developed through purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, and transfer and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections.

(a) Purchase of books for the general collections.—Library materials, both current and noncurrent, in all subject fields except in the fields of law, clinical medicine, or technical agriculture are purchased. Although materials acquired through purchase generally amount to only a limited portion of the total number of pieces received annually, they are materials which are not generally or readily available to the Library of Congress from any other source and thus must be purchased to insure completeness of the collections. The National Program for Acquisitions and Cataloging is designed to acquire, catalog, and disseminate cataloging data on a timely basis for all current monographic works of research value to meet the needs of American libraries. Purchases of monographs under this program are included under this heading.

(b) Purchase of books for the Law Library.—Law books published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign and international law books published in countries throughout the world are purchased. The legal publications acquired by purchase constitute the most important part of the Law Library's acquisition, although a substantial part of the annual receipts is received by means other than purchase.

2. Preparation of books and library materials for use.—Library materials are cataloged for ready retrieval and are classified for systematic arrangement on the shelves of the collection. Card catalogs are maintained. Issues of serial publications are identified and recorded. Cataloging data is converted to machine-readable form for use by the Library of Congress, other libraries, and cataloging service agencies. Systems of subject headings and classification are continuously developed for the Library's needs and for the nationwide library community. The National Program for Acquisitions and Cataloging is designed to acquire, catalog, and disseminate cataloging data on a timely basis for all current monographic works of research value to meet the needs of American libraries. Preparation of books and library materials for use under this program are included under this heading.

3. Cataloging distribution service.—The Cataloging Distribution Service sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards, cataloging data in machine-readable form, book catalogs, and technical publications. It maintains an inventory of over 1 million MARC (Machine Readable Cataloging) records which are used in a new demand printing system to produce catalog cards for the Library's needs and sales to outside organizations and individuals. A master file containing a single, reproducible copy of each of the cards representing more than 6,000,000 titles which the Library has cataloged since 1898 is also maintained. Receipts of $6,500,000 were credited to this appropriation in 1979.

(a) Catalog services for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in fiscal 1979 was 29,779,878; estimated for 1980, 30,000,000; and estimated for 1981, 30,000,000.

(b) Sale of catalog services to other institutions.—The preparation, printing, and distribution of publications related to cataloging are an integral part of the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include Classification Schedules, lists of Subject Headings, Catalog Service bulletins, and similar publications. Other publications include the National Union Catalog, a cumulative author list, which is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually; Films and Other Materials for Projection (quarterly with an annual cumulation); Music; Books on Music and Sound Recordings (semiannual with annual cumulation); Register of Additional Locations; Monographic Series; Subject Cataloging; and New Serial Titles.

4. Research and reader services.—Books and other library materials are provided internally and outside the Library, reference and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained.

5. Preservation of library materials.—Library materials are preserved in their original format by being bound or rebound, or by a variety of conservation/restoration techniques. Materials are also preserved by converting them to a more durable form through such means as the microfilming of books and newspapers, by conversion of nitrate film to a safety base film, and by the conversion of deteriorating sound recordings to polyester tape. In addition, the Library conducts basic research into the many unsolved preservation problems encountered in dealing with millions of deteriorating books and other materials in the Library of Congress collections as well as in the other research libraries of the Nation.

6. Automated systems support.—Automation planning, computer applications development and user support functions, and management of the central data processing facility of the Library of Congress are responsibilities of the Automated Systems Office. The Technical Staff assigned to the office of the Director coordinate the overall Library systems design, the data administration functions, and general technical standards.

The Network Development Office plans and coordinates the exchange of bibliographic and locational information among major library cooperatives and central and research facilities.

7. Central support services.—This activity supports the executive staff of the Office of the Librarian; exhibit, information, and publication activities; personnel, financial, procurement, and buildings management; and other centralized services. It also includes rental of space off Capitol Hill and duplicating services.

8. American Folklife Center.—Public Law 94-201 established the American Folklife Center in the Library of Congress "to preserve and present American folk-life." The Center receives policy direction from a board of trustees composed of individuals from private life as well as representatives of Federal agencies.

The Center is charged with a broad variety of functions involving research, documentation, publication, dissemination, training, and development of programing involving American folk cultural traditions. It serves as a coordinating body with agencies and institutions concerned with folklife in the public and private sectors, including the National Endowment for the Arts, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Smithsonian Institution, and other Federal and State agencies. The program of the Center also gives focus to other activities of the Library of Congress in this area.

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collecting and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The income and obligations for 1979, and estimates for 1980 and 1981 are as follows:

Income:
Gross receipts.....	$4,930,746	$5,200,000	$5,450,000
Estimated value of materials deposited and transferred to the Library of Congress.....	6,052,939	6,355,900	6,673,600
Total income.....	10,983,685	11,555,900	12,123,600
Obligations.....	$13,121,500	$14,332,000	$15,112,000

The effort described under each of the activities are predicated on an estimated 493,500 copyright registrations during 1981, an estimated 470,000 during 1980, and registrations of 432,500 during 1979.

The general revision of the Copyright Law was effective January 1, 1978. The legislation brings the law into line with the sweeping advances in fields of technology that are closely related to copyright. These include cable television; satellite communications; instructional broadcasting and other automated devices for teaching; public broadcasting; computers and automated information networks; video-tapes; tape cassettes, disc recording and cartridges; and the whole range of devices for reprographic reproduction, notably photocopying and microforms. The effects of the law on Copyright Office policies and procedures has been manifold. Under the royalty provisions the Office is responsible for the issuance of annual licenses for jukeboxes and the collection of royalties for the performance of copyrighted works on cable television. The legislation also provides for a substantial expansion in the kinds of materials to be registered, a change in the term of copyright to life of the author plus 50 years and an increase in the fee schedule.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act.

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provisions of the Copyright Act have been satisfied.

3. Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. It is estimated that for 1980 and 1981 the number of items to be cataloged will be 483,000 and 507,000, respectively.

4. Reference service.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings. Information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity.

5. Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

6. Records management.—The Records Management Division is responsible for storing and maintaining records related to the copyright registrations process.

7. General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office includes legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

8. Licensing Division.—The Licensing Division performs the responsibilities connected with the registration of cable television stations and the licensing of jukeboxes.

appraisal, and evaluation of any subject matter of legislative concern, including recommendations submitted to the Congress by the executive branch. Research services are also provided to assist Congress with its oversight, representative, and other responsibilities. Support comes in the form of background studies, in-depth policy analyses, consultations and briefings, legal research, continuous liaison with committees, outside contracts, assistance with committee hearings, public policy seminars for Members and congressional staff, and related data and materials. Lists of subjects and policy areas that a committee might profitably pursue are periodically made available to each congressional committee. These services are directed toward assisting Members and committees in determining the advisability of enacting legislative proposals, in estimating the probable results of such proposals and of alternatives to them, and in evaluating methods for accomplishing the results sought. As provided by statute, the Service prepares decennial revised editions of the Constitution of the United States—Analysis and Interpretation, as well as cumulative supplements at 2-year intervals, prepares compendiums for the annual national high school and college debate topics, and provides assistance to the Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Technology Assessment.

2. Documentation and status of legislation.—The Service periodically prepares and publishes for distribution to Members and committees the Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions, which includes summaries of all public bills and resolutions introduced in Congress, the status of bills receiving action, and various pertinent indexes. The Service compiles factual descriptions of House bills and resolutions which are forwarded for publication in the Congressional Record. The Service also makes available current and periodic reports that provide background and status information on major legislative issues before the Congress. Upon request, the Service provides Members and committees with legislative history memorandums on bills for which hearings have been announced, and compiles and makes available to each committee reports on legislatively authorized programs and activities within that committee's jurisdiction that are scheduled to terminate during the current Congress.

3. Information and reference services.—The Congressional Research Service provides extensive information and reference assistance to Members and committees. Reference files containing clippings, pamphlets, and documents and automated information services are maintained for rapid information retrieval. Lists of selected reports, prepared by CRS staff on legislative issues, are regularly distributed to congressional offices. To provide faster responses and in-person services, the Service also maintains reference centers in congressional office buildings and the Congressional Reading Room in the main building of the Library of Congress.

4. Administration.—Providing overall supervision and administrative support to the entire Congressional Research Service is the responsibility of the Administration branch.

The National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped (NLS) is responsible for administering a national program to provide reading material for blind and physically handicapped residents of the United States and its outlying areas and for U.S. citizens residing abroad.

1. Direct service to users.—During the past 5-year period, 1975-79, the number of blind and physically handicapped readers throughout the country has grown from over 448,000 to 717,000 and circulation from approximately 12,067,000 units (volumes, containers, and reels) to about 14,971,000. The number of readers and circulation are expected to continue to increase in 1980 and 1981 at approximately the same rate as in the past 5 years. To serve these users NLS procures books in embossed characters, recorded books with their associated reproducers and catalogs and publications of material available. The books and reproducers are distributed through 56 regional libraries and over 118 other cooperating libraries and agencies. Music materials are circulated directly from NLS. Direct service is also furnished Americans living abroad. Multistate centers function as decentralized materials-support units working under contract with NLS.

2. Support services.—A variety of professional, technical, and clerical functions are performed by NLS's staff. A combined total of 29,000 requests for interlibrary loan searches or information concerning library and related services available to the blind and to other physically handicapped persons were received in 1979, and over 4,200 copyright permissions were granted. Training is provided individuals throughout the Nation interested in transcribing or proofreading braille, and during fiscal 1979 over 430 individuals were certified. NLS maintains the national collections of braille and recorded books to supplement titles deposited in libraries across the country. Books are transcribed in braille and tape recorded by volunteers throughout the country.

Bibliographic records are being recataloged to provide consistency with the National Union Catalog. Efforts to improve the quality of service at a reasonable cost are directed through a research, development, testing, and evaluation program.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes devise fund and the permanent committee for the Oliver Wendell Holmes devise to administer it were created by an act of Congress, approved August 5, 1955 (69 Stat. 533). The Committee consists of four members appointed by the President and the Librarian of Congress, who is chairman. The Committee was (1) to have prepared a history of the Supreme Court of the United States, and, if deemed advisable, (2) to finance an annual lecture or series of lectures, and (3) to publish a memorial volume of Justice Holmes' writings. The principal and interest on the fund are available for these purposes.

The current program is devoted primarily to the preparation of a History of the Supreme Court of the United States, of which the first two volumes were published by the Macmillan Co. in 1972. A third volume was published in August 1974, and additional volumes are nearing completion. At a recent meeting, the permanent committee appointed a co-editor for the history and adopted a 4-year timetable for its completion. The annual lecture series financed by this fund has been discontinued at least temporarily, because the Committee felt it desirable to conserve remaining funds.

This schedule covers (1) funds received as gifts for immediate expenditure and receipts from the sale of recordings and photoduplication materials financed from capital originally received as gifts, (2) income from investments held by or for the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, and (3) interest paid by the Treasury on the principal funds deposited therewith as described under "Library of Congress Trust Fund, Principal Accounts," at a rate which is 0.25 percentage points less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding long-term marketable obligations of the United States, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1% or the rate of 4% per annum, whichever is higher.

1. Acquisition of library materials.—During 1979, this included the procurement of manuscripts, Hispanic materials, fine prints, rare books and other library materials for the Library of Congress, and the acquisition and distribution of Government documents for the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries.

2. Reader and reference services.—These services during 1979 included the preparation of bibliographies, indexes, digests, and checklists; lectures, surveys of bibliographic services; poetry readings; musical concerts; furtherance of musical research, composition, performance and appreciation; and providing photostats, photographs, microfilm, and other forms of photoduplication, and sound recordings of music, and poetry to other Government agencies, libraries and other institutions, and to the general public; and distribution of recordings of the Library's literary programs and concerts to radio stations for public service broadcasts.

3. Organization and control of the collections.—In February 1967, the Library of Congress began the largest single bibliographical project in its history, the publication of the pre-1956 National Union Catalog. It is expected that the project will be completed in fiscal year 1981, and that the published catalog will comprise over 600 volumes. Over 500 volumes have been published. The preparation of the 19th full edition of the Dewey Decimal Classification, begun during 1972, continues.

This schedule includes three principal accounts—permanent loan, public debt securities, and bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard.

Both the permanent loan and the Hubbard funds represent gifts or bequests in cash, which have been deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, the interest upon which is available to the Librarian for the purposes specified in each case. Public Laws 94-289 and 94-290 (signed May 22, 1976) provide interest at "a rate which is the higher of the rate of 4 per centum per annum or a rate which is 0.25 percentage points less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding long-term marketable obligations of the United States, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum". The public debt securities funds represent gifts or bequests in cash which have been invested in public debt securities of the United States in order to obtain a better return on the principal.

As of September 30, 1979, the principal in the permanent loan account, which shall not exceed the sum of $10 million (2 U.S.C. 158; 31 U.S.C. 725s; Public Law 87-522), was distributed as follows:

Music activities.....	$2,562,812
American history.....	26,655
Poetry and literature.....	958,167
Miscellaneous purposes.....	619,379
Total permanent loan principal.....	$4,167,013

During 1975, the Library removed some of the principal from the permanent loan and invested that principal in long-term U.S. public debt securities which mature on May 15, 1999, and are paying interest at a rate of 8.5%. As of September 30, 1979, the principal in the public debt securities was distributed as follows:

Music activities	$148,142
Fine arts	396,558
American history	307,040
Hispanic activities	211,315
Poetry and literature	50,073
Miscellaneous purposes	297,985
Total public debt securities principal.....	$1,411,113

The additional principal sum of $20 thousand, representing the bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard, is for the purchase of engravings and etchings (37 Stat. 319). Public Law 94-290 (May 22, 1976) changed the interest rate on this account from the fixed 4% rate to the floating rate described above.

The Library also has available to it, through the Trust Fund Board, income from principal amounts which are managed for the Board as trust funds by private financial institutions. As of September 30, 1979, the estimated principal in these trust funds was distributed as follows:

Music activities	$1,015,000

The Office of the Superintendent of Documents operates under a separate appropriation which provides funds for: (1) part of the cost of the sale of certain Government publications priced in accordance with various authorities other than section 1708 of Title 44, U.S. Code. General sales program costs are funded primarily from sales receipts as provided in section 1708 of Title 44 of the U.S. Code; (2) the mailing for Members of Congress and other Government agencies of certain Government publications, as authorized by law; (3) the distribution of Government publications to designated depository libraries; and (4) the compilation of catalogs and indexes of Government publications. These four functions are related to the publication activity of other agencies and to the demands of the public, Members of Congress, and depository libraries. Consequently, Documents can exercise little control over the volume of work which it may be called upon to perform. A description of these four functions follows:

1. Special sales of publications.—Certain publications are placed on sale to the public wherein the price of the publication is not established in accordance with section 1708, Title 44, but in accordance with various other authorities such as 44 U.S.C. 906, 44 U.S.C. 910, and 44 U.S.C. 1504.

2. Distribution for other Government agencies and Members of Congress.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists and mails, at the request of Government agencies and Members of Congress, certain publications specified by public law.

3. Depository library distribution.—As required, Government publications are supplied to libraries which are designated as depositories for Government publications.

4. Cataloging and indexing.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents is charged with preparing catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government. The principal publication is the "Monthly Catalog of U.S. Government Publications."

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various agencies of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. The Government Printing Office also sells publications to the public through its General and Special sales programs.

All such work is financed through the Government Printing Office revolving fund (44 U.S.C. 309). The fund is reimbursed by the customer agencies, receipts from sales of publications to the general public, and, except for the excess of receipts over costs associated with the sale of publications to the public, net operating income is retained for reuse by the fund.

The sale of publications to the public is divided into two programs. The general sales program covers primarily the sale of those publications which by section 1708 of Title 44 are offered for sale to the public by the Superintendent of Documents. Effective with 1978, the funding of the expenses of this program is primarily from the sales receipts. The special sales program covers the sale of the Congressional Record, Federal Register, Presidential Papers, et cetera, at prices which are set in accordance with other sections of the United States Code.

The U.S. Tax Court hears and decides cases involving Federal income, estate and gift tax deficiencies and renders declaratory judgments regarding the qualification or continuing qualification (including revocations of rulings on the exemptions) of retirement plans under the provisions of Public Law 93-406, known as the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

The Tax Court has also been given jurisdiction under Public Law 94-455 (Tax Reform Act of 1976) to render declaratory judgments with respect to (1) exempt organization status determinations pursuant to section 501(c)(3), Internal Revenue Code and (2) determinations made pursuant to section 367 (transfers of property from the United States). Under the Revenue Act of 1978, the Court was given jurisdiction to enter declaratory judgments on the tax treatment of interest on proposed issues of government obligations. In addition, the court has jurisdiction over actions to restrain disclosure and to obtain additional disclosure with respect to public inspection of written determinations issued by the Internal Revenue Service, and actions to compel the disclosure of the identity of third-party contacts relating to written determinations made by the Internal Revenue Service.

For 1981, the court proposes a trial program of 356 weeks consisting of 266 weeks of regular trial sessions and 90 weeks of small tax case sessions. Trials are held in approximately 116 cities throughout the United States.

The actual and estimated work volume of the court is presented in the following tabulation:

The Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe was created to monitor compliance with that code of conduct, particularly in regard to what is called "Basket Three" of the Final Act, the Provisions on Cooperation in Humanitarian and Other Fields. The law establishing the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe also mandated it to monitor and encourage U.S. Government and private activities designed to expand East-West trade and the exchange of people and ideas. The Commission will receive semiannual reports from the President on the signatories' compliance with the Final Act and on U.S. activities in trade and cultural/humanitarian exchange and it will itself make advisory reports to the Congress on the progress of implementation.

The Commission is made up of six Senators, six Members of the House of Representatives and one Commissioner each from the Department of State, Defense, and Commerce.

The Court of Customs and Patent Appeals has jurisdiction of appeals from all final judgments or orders of the U.S. Customs Court. The Court may, in its discretion, permit an appeal to be taken from an order authorizing an evidentiary hearing in a foreign country, issued by the chief judge of the Customs Court or from an interlocutory order of a judge of the U.S. Customs Court when said judge includes in the order a statement that a controlling question of law is involved as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion and an immediate appeal may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation.

The court has jurisdiction of appeals from decisions of U.S. Patent and Trademark Office tribunals as to patent applications and interferences and as to trademark applications and interference, cancellation, concurrent use, and opposition proceedings.

The court also has jurisdiction to review, by appeal on question of law only, the findings of the U.S. International Trade Commission as to unfair practices in import trade.

The jurisdiction of the court includes appeals under section 71 of the Plant Variety Protection Act of 1970.

The court has jurisdiction to review, by appeals on questions of law only, findings of the Secretary of Commerce under headnote 6 to schedule 8, part 4, of the "Tariff Schedules of the United States" relating to importation of scientific instruments or apparatus.

The U.S. Customs Court with offices in New York City has exclusive jurisdiction, throughout the United States and its possessions, embracing 46 customs collection districts and 286 ports of entry into which merchandise is imported, over civil actions arising under the tariff laws, the internal revenue law relating to imported merchandise, the several customs simplification acts, the proclamations of the President issued under reciprocal trade agreements, and other proclamations imposing taxes and/or quotas on imported goods, et cetera. Trials may be held at any port or any place within the jurisdiction of the United States, as designated by the chief judge. Cases before the court are tried under the legal procedure provided for in title 28, United States Code, entitled "Judiciary and Judicial Procedure." The court tries cases without a jury, making findings of fact, and applies the law, both statutory and general, including constitutional issues. The Government is represented before the court by an Assistant Attorney General of the United States and a staff of special trial attorneys.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability, established by the President, was authorized by the Council on Wage and Price Stability Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-387, amended by Public Law 94-78, Public Law 95-121, and Public Law 96-10).

The President's anti-inflation program is to continue in 1980 and 1981. The program consists of voluntary wage and price guidelines which are designed to lower the rate of inflation without causing undesirable disturbances in the economy.

The Council's responsibilities include monitoring private sector wage and price actions along with governmental actions which affect inflation, and identifying areas where compliance is not being achieved. Based on the Council's findings, the administration may take appropriate action to bring the parties into compliance.

The Council will also conduct special analyses; hold public hearings on inflation; review and appraise various policies and practices of the Federal Government contributing to inflation; and make recommendations to increase productivity and reduce inflationary pressures.

This appropriation establishes a framework of joint Federal and State efforts to provide the basic facilities essential to economic growth in Appalachia. Program investments made in the Appalachian region are concentrated in areas with significant potential for future growth. The States, acting through the Appalachian Regional Commission, are responsible for recommending local and State projects within their borders for assistance under this program. Authorizing legislation to extend and to improve the program is pending.

1. Appalachian Development Highway System.—The Appalachian Development Highway System including local access roads is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; and to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia. The budget for 1981 provides $229 million for highway construction.

The cumulative status of the system of roads, including mileage prefinanced by the States, follows:

2. Area development programs.—Funds are provided for a single allocation to each of the Appalachian States for projects aimed primarily at providing the basic facilities essential to the region's growth and economic development, particularly in the areas of health, education, and community development facilities. The budget for 1981 provides $132 million for these projects.

During 1981 continued emphasis will be placed on conducting area development activities by an allocation system permitting a high degree of State flexibility in the kind of projects undertaken. These projects will be of the following types with approximate workload for approved projects as follows:

(a) Health and child development.—Grants are made for the construction, equipping, and operations of multi-county demonstration health facilities, including hospitals, regional health diagnostic or treatment centers, and other facilities. In addition, grant support is provided for primary care and child development programs throughout the region. The 1981 program approval level will be slightly below 1980.

Supplementary grants are also provided for community colleges, libraries, and educational television projects. These facilities are key elements for the training and upgrading of potential and existing labor force entrants

Federal disaster assistance is a nationwide program operated pursuant to the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-288). Supplementary assistance is provided to individuals, businesses, and State and local governments in the event of a Presidentially declared emergency or major disaster. Additionally, funds may be made available directly to a State, or to Federal agencies as reimbursement for expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority.

Legislation has been proposed to establish a trust fund that will consist of the amounts collected from the proposed windfall profits tax on domestic crude production, reduced by amounts equal to the tax expenditures associated with energy-related tax credits enacted after May 1979. Amounts in the trust fund would be used: (1) to provide assistance to low-income households to help offset the effects of higher energy prices; (2) to provide assistance for mass transit and auto efficiency improvements; (3) to increase domestic energy supplies and energy use efficiency; and (4) to repay the general fund of the Treasury for all amounts provided to the Energy Security Corporation.

Separate authorizing legislation will be required for the specific programs to be financed by the trust fund. Appropriations for authorized programs would be made to the President for allocation to the agency that will implement the program.

1. Low income energy assistance.—This program would provide energy assistance to individuals through Federal and State agencies. Energy allowances would be paid to SSI recipients by the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). Allowances for AFDC and other low-income households would be paid through agencies designated by the States. State agencies would also administer energy crisis assistance according to income eligibility and cash assistance limits determined by the States. Federal funds would match State funds for this purpose.

2. Transportation efficiency.—This program would provide increased funding for public transportation capital projects to increase capacity and improve service. Each major project to be funded would have to be consistent with the local energy conservation program and likely to produce significant energy savings at a reasonable cost or decrease this Nation's dependence on foreign oil.

The transportation initiative would also include the following components: (a) Auto-use management. This program would achieve energy savings through encouraging better management of the existing automobile fleet (e.g., ridesharing) and supporting alternatives to the automobile (e.g. improved pedestrian and bicycle facilities); (b) fuel economy standards improvement program; and (c) a cooperative basic automotive research program with the automotive industry to support basic research toward the goal of improving the technology base for the next generation of energy efficient motor vehicles.

3. Energy Security Corporation.—The proposed Energy Security Corporation will assist private industry to finance the development of oil substitutes from coal, oil shale, biomass, and unconventional gas. Assistance would be in the form of direct loans, loan guarantees, price guarantees, and purchase agreements. Amounts equal to the total potential cost of any contract or agreement made by the Corporation would be reserved administratively in the trust fund at the time a commitment is made by the Corporation. The Secretary of the Treasury would make loans to the Corporation as funds are required for disbursement purposes. The trust fund would repay the general fund of the Treasury for all such loans extended to the Corporation.

4. Energy supply and conservation.—(a) A Solar Energy and Conservation Bank would provide a loan subsidy to low- and moderate-income families for the purpose of financing energy conserving home improvements. The purpose of the programs is to encourage energy conservation by low- and moderate-income families who may be unable to take advantage of the 15% conservation tax credit.

(b) The Solar Energy and Conservation Bank would also be authorized to make grant payments to lenders who initiate below market-interest-rate loans for the purpose of financing and installing solar energy devices to compensate the lenders for the difference between the yield accruing from low-interest loans and that which would have been earned had the loans been made at market interest rates.

(c) Auditor training and sophisticated audit demonstrations: The auditor training program will provide assistance to States in the form of grants to support the training and certification of energy auditors. The objective of the program is to insure that qualified energy auditors are available in sufficient numbers to permit accelerated implementation of the Residential Conservation Service. The sophisticated energy audit demonstration program will support demonstrations of technically sophisticated energy audits that include the installation of low cost, high payoff conservation measures.

(d) Utility programs: The Economic Regulatory Administration will administer a grant program to reduce electric utility consumption of oil and gas by 50% by 1990. Funds will be used for three purposes: program administration and rulemaking; grants to States for support of utility compliance plans; and grants to utilities to offset the costs of conversion from oil and gas reliance.

(e) Coal research and development: This program will aid in the development of the technology necessary to begin large scale production of synfuels. Specific areas of technology development that will be accelerated are: Indirect liquefaction, coal cleaning technologies, and in-situ coal gasification. These technologies will allow the increased use of coal without compromising environmental standards.

(f) Regional strategic petroleum reserve: This program will provide localized storage of crude oil and/or petroleum products for certain regions that are especially vulnerable to petroleum supply interruption. This will supplement the protection provided by centrally located strategic petroleum reserves.

5. Biomass loans.—The Administration is proposing a ten year $3 billion credit program ($300 million annually) to encourage the development of small and medium sized facilities to convert biomass into synthetic fuels. The program is made up of $250 million in loan guarantees and $50 million in direct loans.

This appropriation provides funds to finance credit sales of defense articles and services to foreign countries and international organizations. Two types of financing arrangements are authorized under the Arms Export Control Act: (1) direct U.S. Government loans administered by the Department of Defense (section 23 of the act), and (2) commercial credit and Federal Financing Bank loan agreements guaranteed by the U.S. Government (section 24). To finance loan guarantees, an appropriation equal to 10% of the principal amount is needed. Direct loans, which require appropriations equal to the face value of the loan, are offered only when there is a legal requirement that repayment be forgiven or special conditions make a guarantee inappropriate.

An appropriation of $714.0 million is requested for 1981 to finance a credit sales program of $2,640,000 thousand; $2,140,000 thousand will be financed by the Federal Financing Bank and $214.0 million of this appropriation will be set aside as a guarantee reserve for these loans. The balance of the appropriation, $500.0 million, will be used for direct loans by the Department of Defense. Administrative expenses related to this program are paid from the grant military assistance account and reimbursed from receipts from foreign governments collected in the foreign military sales trust fund.

In connection with the March 26, 1979, Egyptian-Israeli Peace Treaty, the United States agreed to construct two airfields in the Negev Desert to replace similar facilities in the Sinai that are scheduled to be evacuated by Israeli forces on or before March 26, 1982. This activity was authorized by section 561 of the Foreign Assistance Act (FAA) of 1961, as amended by Public Law 96-35. The Department of the Air Force is responsible for overall program management, and the Department of the Army, through the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, is the construction agent.

This account includes $800 million of grant assistance, provided in the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1979 (P.L. 96-38), and approximately $236 million which the Israeli Government has agreed to provide to cover the balance of construction costs. In accordance with section 562(c) of the FAA, the Israeli funds, which will begin to be paid in 1982, will be merged with the grant funds in the account. This section of the FAA further authorizes that Israel may use Foreign military sales credits or guaranteed loans to finance its portion of construction costs.

This trust fund was established to facilitate government-to-government sales of defense articles and services as authorized by sections 21 and 22 of the Arms Export Control Act, including those sales financed with Foreign military sales credits in accordance with section 23 of that act. Orders placed by foreign governments through this trust fund can be combined with procurement for our own military departments. The resultant savings are shared by both the United States and foreign governments.

The net impact of foreign military sales on the budget is reflected below (in billions of dollars):

A selective capital increase of $8.4 billion, increasing the authorized capital of the IBRD to $41 billion, was approved by the Board of Governors in 1977. The U.S. share of the selective capital increase of $1,569 million, of which 10% would be paid-in capital, was authorized in Public Law 95-118, and represents an 18.7% share of the increase. Appropriations of $380 million and $163 million were obtained in 1978 and 1979 respectively. Appropriation of $1,025.8 million was sought in 1980, of which $825.8 million ($82.6 million paid in capital and $743.2 million callable capital) is contained in the Senate version of H.R. 4473; the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act of 1980.

The Administration intends to complete subscriptions to the selective capital increase in 1981; accordingly, appropriation of $20 million paid-in capital is sought. In addition, authority is sought in the appropriation to enable the U.S. Governor to subscribe to callable capital in an amount not to exceed $180 million. Under present legislation (Public Law 95-118), the U.S. Governor cannot subscribe to callable capital until it has been fully appropriated. Additional legislation will be proposed authorizing the U.S. Governor to subscribe to additional amounts of callable capital to the extent provided in appropriations acts. The requirement for appropriations action will be met by the proposed program limitation on subscriptions to callable capital.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION

For payment to the International Development Association by the Secretary of the Treasury, $1,080,000,000, to be available only upon the enactment of authorizing legislation, for the first installment of the United States contribution to the sixth replenishment, to remain available until expended. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for $1,080,000,000.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1980 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. Funding is currently provided by a continuing resolution (Public Law 96-123) in effect through September 30, 1980. The International Development Association (IDA) is the member of the World Bank Group which provides development financing on concessional terms. Pursuant to authorization in the International Development Association Act (Public Law 86-565), enacted June 30, 1960, the United States joined the Association in August 1960.

Fourth replenishment.—In 1974, a U.S. contribution of $1,500 million in four equal installments was authorized by the Congress as part of a $4,500 million replenishment (Public Law 93-373). Appropriation of the remaining $292 million was requested in 1980, and is contained in the Senate version of H.R. 4473; the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act of 1980.

Sixth replenishment.—Since the existing commitment authority of IDA will be exhausted by June 30, 1980, multilateral negotiations have recently been completed on the sixth replenishment of IDA resources. Authorizing legislation is being submitted for a U.S. contribution of $3,240 million, representing a 27% share of the total $12 billion replenishment. An appropriation of the first of three annual installments of $1,080 million is sought in 1981.

The International Finance Corporation was established in 1956 to further economic development by encouraging the growth of productive private enterprise through loans and equity investments. It is affiliated with the World Bank. Pursuant to authorization in the International Finance Corporation Act (Public Law 84-350), enacted August 11, 1955, the United States joined the Corporation in July 1956.

Authorization was obtained in Public Law 95-118 for a $111.5 million U.S. share of a $540 million replenishment to the resources of the IFC. In 1978 and 1979, a total of $78 million was appropriated. In 1980, the remaining $33.5 million of the present replenishment is contained in both the House and Senate versions of H.R. 4473; the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act of 1980.

(Authorizing legislation has been proposed for $226,547,047.)

The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes economic development in Latin America and Caribbean countries through loans and technical assistance. Pursuant to the Inter-American Development Bank Act (Public Law 86-147), enacted August 7, 1959, the United States joined the Bank in December 1959.

Capital resources.—International negotiations were completed in 1978 for an $8,000 million increase in the capital of the IDB, of which the U.S. share would be $2,749 million, or 34.5%, of which $206 million or 7.5% represents paid-in capital and the remainder ($2,543 million) callable capital.

Authorizing legislation for a U.S. subscription of $2,749 million to the capital resources of the IDB is presently before the Congress. Appropriation was sought in 1980 for $687.3 million ($51.6 million paid-in capital and $635.7 million callable capital). The full request is contained in the House version of H.R. 4473; the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act of 1980. Subject to authorizing legislation being obtained, appropriation of the second tranche of $51.6 million paid-in capital is sought in 1981. In addition, authority is sought in the appropriation for the U.S. Governor to subscribe to additional amounts of callable capital under a program limitation up to a total of $635.7 million, which would bring U.S. subscriptions to the IDB's capital stock to $687.3 million, in 1981.

Fund for special operations (FSO).—Authorizing legislation (Public Law 94-302) was approved in 1976 for a U.S. contribution of $600 million, to be contributed in three tranches, to the current replenishment of the FSO. In 1977-79, $449.7 million was appropriated and $150.3 million was sought in 1980, of which $7.3 million is contained in the House version of H.R. 4473. The remaining $143 million, authorized under Public Law 94-302 is being sought in 1981 to complete U.S. contributions to the replenishment.

International negotiations were completed in 1978 for a $1,750 million replenishment of the FSO's resources. The U.S. share of this increase is $700 million, or 40%. Authorizing legislation for the U.S. subscription to this replenishment of the resources of the FSO is presently being considered by the Congress. Appropriation was sought in 1980 for $175 million, representing the first of four equal annual installments. The full request is contained in the House version of H.R. 4473. Subject to authorizing legislation being obtained, the second installment of $175 million is sought in 1981.

The total request for the FSO in 1981 is, therefore, $318.0 million, which represents the final $143 million not contained in the House version of H.R. 4473, from the funds authorized in Public Law 94-302, and the second installment of $175 million to the new replenishment.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

For payment to the Asian Development Bank by the Secretary of the Treasury, $25,195,694, for the United States share of the increase in subscriptions to the paid-in capital stock, as authorized by the Act of October 3, 1977 (Public Law 95-118), to remain available until expended, and $111,250,000 to be available only upon the enactment of authorizing legislation, for the United States contribution to the increase in resources of the Asian Development Fund, to remain available until expended. (Additional authorizing legislation has been proposed for $111,250,000 for the Asian Development Fund.)

LIMITATION ON CALLABLE CAPITAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

The United States Governor of the Bank may subscribe without fiscal year limitation to the callable capital portion of the United States share of such increase in capital stock in an amount not to exceed $226,763,255. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) was established in 1966 to foster economic growth in Asia by extending loans and technical assistance to the developing member countries of the region. Pursuant to authorization in the Asian Development Bank Act (Public Law 89-369), enacted March 16, 1966, the United States joined the Bank in August 1966.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK—Continued

Ordinary capital (OC).—A $4,960 million replenishment increasing the Bank's resources was approved by the ADB Board of Governors in 1977, and a U.S. contribution of $814.3 million, of which 10% would be paid-in capital, was authorized in Public Law 95-118. Appropriations of $168 million and $194.5 million were received in 1978 and 1979 respectively. In 1980, $248.2 million was sought, of which $199.8 million ($20.0 million paid-in capital and $179.8 million callable capital) is contained in the Senate version of H.R. 4473.

In 1981, the Administration intends to complete subscriptions to the general capital increase, authorized in Public Law 95-118, and accordingly, appropriation of $25.2 million paid-in capital is sought. In addition, authority is sought in the appropriation to enable the U.S. Governor of the Bank to subscribe up to $226.8 million callable capital. Under present authorizing legislation the U.S. Governor cannot subscribe to callable capital until it has been appropriated. Additional legislation will be proposed authorizing the U.S. Governor to subscribe to additional amounts of callable capital to the extent provided in appropriations acts. The requirement for appropriation action will be met by the proposed program limitation on subscriptions to callable capital.

Asian Development Fund (ADF).—The ADF is the concessional lending window of the ADB. Authorization was obtained for a U.S. contribution of $180 million to an $809 million replenishment to the ADF (Public Law 95-118). Appropriation of the final $60 million is contained in the Senate version of H.R. 4473; the Foreign Assistance Appropriations Act of 1980.

In 1978, international agreement was reached for a second replenishment of the resources of the ADF totaling $2,150 million. Authorizing legislation for a U.S. contribution of $445 million, representing 20.7% of the replenishment is presently before the Congress. In 1980, appropriation of $111.2 million, as the first of four equal annual contributions to this second replenishment of the ADF was sought, and is contained in the Senate version of H.R. 4473. In 1981, the second installment of $111.2 million is sought.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT FUND

For payment to the African Development Fund by the Secretary of the Treasury, $41,666,667, to be available only upon the enactment of authorizing legislation, for the United States contribution to the second replenishment of the African Development Fund, to remain available until expended. (Additional authorizing legislation has been proposed.)

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1980 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. Funding is currently provided by a continuing resolution (Public Law 96-123) in effect through September 30, 1980. The 1980 amounts shown below are based on House and Senate actions on H.R. 4473, Foreign Assistance and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1980.

The African Development Fund (AFDF), a special fund associated with the African Development Bank (AFDB), was established on June 30, 1973. The purpose of the AFDF is to complement the operations of the AFDB by providing concessional financing for high priority development projects in the poorest African countries.

U.S. membership in the AFDF was approved on May 31, 1976 (Public Law 94-302), with an authorized contribution of $25 million. The United States formally joined the AFDF in November 1976. In 1979, $25 million, which had been authorized in Public Law 95-118, was appropriated as a U.S. contribution to the first replenishment of AFDF resources.

In 1978, international agreement was reached for a second replenishment of the resources of the AFDF in the amount of $777 million, of which $735 million has been pledged. Authorizing legislation for a U.S. contribution of $125 million, representing between 16% and 17% of the final replenishment total is presently before the Congress. Appropriation of $41.7 million, as the first of three annual installments by the United States, was sought in 1980, and is contained in both House and Senate versions of H.R. 4473. In 1981, the second installment of $41.7 million is sought.

CONTRIBUTION TO THE AFRICAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

For payment to the African Development Bank by the Secretary of the Treasury, $17,986,679, to be available only upon the enactment of authorizing legislation, for the United States share of the initial subscription to paid-in capital stock, to remain available until expended. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

The United States Governor of the Bank may subscribe without fiscal year limitation to the callable capital portion of the United States share of such increase in capital stock in an amount not to exceed $53,960,035. (Additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

International negotiations have recently been completed to provide for nonregional membership in the AFDB. Authorizing legislation will be sought in 1981 to enable the United States to join the AFDB, with a subscription of $359.7 million ($89.9 million paid-in capital $269.8 million callable capital) representing 17.04% of the planned $2,111 million capital subscription of the nonregional members of the AFDB.

Subject to this authorizing legislation being obtained, appropriation of the first of five equal installments of $18.0 million paid-in capital is sought in 1981. In addition, authority is sought in the appropriation for the U.S. Governor to subscribe to additional amounts of callable capital under a program limitation up to a total of $54 million, bringing U.S. subscriptions to the capital of the AFDB to $71.9 million, in 1981.

The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) was established to mobilize additional resources to be made available on concessional terms for agricultural development in developing member states. Lending operations began in 1978.

By the end of calendar year 1979, IFAD had committed approximately $500 million for 33 projects in irrigation, integrated rural development, agricultural credit, livestock improvement, and technical assistance. Three-fourths of IFAD-approved loans have been provided to countries with per capita GNP of $300 or less. The Fund will continue to focus on the goal of increased production and income for small farmers and the rural poor.

Loans and grants under this program are concentrated in those areas—food and nutrition, population planning and health, and education and human resources development—in which the United States has special expertise and which promise the greatest opportunity for the poor to better their lives.

The Housing guaranty program was established by the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and significantly expanded and altered in 1965, 1969, 1975, and 1978. The program, consolidated into a single worldwide authority in 1978, extends guaranties to assist developing countries in formulating and executing sound housing and community development policies that meet the needs of lower income groups. Activities to be carried out will emphasize: (1) sites and services and core housing projects providing homesites and shelter for poor families; (2) slum upgrading projects designed to conserve and improve existing shelter; (3) low-income shelter projects designed for demonstration or institution building purposes; and (4) project-related community facilities and services.

The Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 established the Inter-American Foundation. Financing was initially provided through the transfer of $50 million from the Agency for International Development. With this initial transfer soon to be fully obligated, budget authority is now being requested annually. Additional funds, $16 million equivalent in 1981, are available under an agreement allowing access to the local currencies of the Social Progress Trust Fund, and the Foundation is authorized to obtain additional private funding.

The most important characteristics of the program include responsiveness to Latin American and Caribbean initiatives and support for social change processes with a direct impact on the lives of people at the lowest economic levels.

Section 608 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 created a revolving fund to provide for more effective use of U.S. Government-owned excess property in foreign assistance programs by authorizing such property to be acquired and rehabilitated in advance of specifically known requirements for country programs.

Many types of excess property which AID needs, such as tractors, construction and roadbuilding equipment, machinery, and machine tools, are acquired through this fund. All operating expenses of the program are covered from U.S. dollar fee income.

opment of volunteer projects with interested Third World countries; the recruiting and training of Peace Corps Volunteers; the provision of direct support to volunteers during their service; the promotion and support of development education activities in this country and of international and domestic volunteer programs involving other countries; and the overall management and administration of these programs. Increased collaboration and cooperation with other public and private agencies involved in development activities (e.g., the Agency for International Development, U.S. private voluntary organizations, etc.) will be emphasized in each area of activity.

1. Training.—All volunteers are provided with intensive pre-service training designed to equip them with skills in local languages, cross-cultural adaptation and technical fields required for them to perform effectively in their assignments. During 1981, centers for assessment and training of applicants as part of an overall strategy for improving selection and orientation of prospective volunteers will be expanded. Increased emphasis will be placed on technical skills training to enable Peace Corps to meet evolving development needs; much of this training will be provided in this country prior to overseas departure. Other pre-service training and in-service training is provided overseas. Training for 3,800 new volunteers is planned.

2. Volunteers.—Direct support of volunteers includes the provision of transportation, subsistence, housing, job-related supplies, health care and/or allowances to cover necessary expenses. Volunteers do not receive salaries. At the end of their service volunteers receive a readjustment allowance to facilitate their transition when they arrive home. Beginning in 1981, Peace Corps plans to phase in completion of service workshops for departing volunteers. These are intended to help relate their experience overseas to opportunities in the United States not only for employment and further education, but also for continued support of development efforts and activities. The average number of volunteers is projected to be 5,600. Most will be serving in health, nutrition, food production, water supply, and education projects. Others will be involved in conservation, energy, economic development, income generation, housing and community services. Volunteer assignments are focused on increasing the capacity of the poor majority in host countries to meet their basic human needs. Volunteers live and work at the local level where the needs and problems of the poor exist.

3. Special international volunteer programs.—Encouragement of, and participation in, multilateral volunteer programs as well as assistance to the voluntary service programs of Third World nations will be enhanced. Opportunities for developing more reciprocal and collaborative relationships with other volunteer organizations, and participation in the collection and exchange of technical and programmatic information related to the types of development activities in which its volunteers are involved, will be explored. Support for returned volunteer groups working in support of Peace Corps' goals (many of which assist with recruitment activities), support for the Peace Corps Partnership program, and support for development education activities related to the accomplishment of Peace Corps' mission is included.

4. Program support.—This activity includes the salaries, travel and other staff costs of developing and implementing the programs funded under other activities, including staff support to volunteers and, administrative support services overseas. It also includes a share of Agency-wide costs which are shown in the ACTION budget. Agency-wide costs for 1980 and 1981 are based on transfer of functions under Peace Corps autonomy. Further adjustments may be necessary within the total Peace Corps appropriation as autonomy is implemented.

The purpose of the Supplementary Financing Facility is to augment temporarily the ability of the IMF to assist member countries with balance-of-payments problems, thereby allowing these countries time to implement required policy measures without resort to abrupt and harmful restrictions on trade and payments. Major industrial and oil-exporting countries have joined in agreeing to make available an amount equal to $7,784 million special drawing rights (approximately $10 billion) to the Supplementary Financing Facility in order to provide a prompt and substantial temporary increase in the fund's resources. The international monetary reserves of the United States are correspondingly increased by the amount of the U.S. resources transferred to the facility, and could be drawn on by the United States in case of need. During 1979, no calls were made on the United States under the Supplementary Financing Facility.

Note.—Dollars amounts for 1980 and 1981 reflect the dollar value of SDR on September 30, 1979. This value fluctuates daily and is subject to change.

As of September 30, 1979, the current dollar value of the U.S. quota denominated in Special Drawing Rights (SDR), the IMF's unit of account, was $11,076 million reflecting an increase of $308 million from the 1978 level as a result of changes in the dollar value of the SDR.

During 1978, IMF members agreed on a 50% increase in IMF quotas. Proposed legislation to authorize U.S. consent to a quota increase of SDR 4,202.5 million was submitted to the Congress in November 1979. This proposal was designed to allow the Administration and the Congress flexibility in determining the ultimate form appropriations and budgetary action would take in 1981.

The General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) were established in 1962 by 10 industrial countries, including the United States, as a means of supplementing the IMF's resources when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. Each participant undertakes to provide specific amounts of its currency to help finance drawings from the IMF by another GAB participant. As of September 30, 1979, total commitments under the GAB amounted to the equivalent of about $8,586 million. U.S. participation in the GAB of $2 billion was authorized and appropriated in 1962.

During 1979, no calls were made on the United States under the GAB; the United States was repaid approximately $642 million.

The 1977 appropriation was the initial funding for the exploration, development and operation for the naval petroleum reserves (Department of Energy); exploration of the national petroleum reserve in Alaska

(Department of the Interior); and the strategic petroleum reserve (Department of Energy). Since that year, the Congress has provided general fund appropriations directly to the agencies. Section 3 of the Naval Petroleum and Oil Shale Reserves Authorization Act of 1979 (Public Law 96-137) amends section 201(13) of the Naval Petroleum Reserves Production Act of 1976 (Public Law 94-258) to provide for collections from the reserves to be deposited directly into miscellaneous receipts of the general fund, instead of the naval petroleum reserves special account.

As a result of making appropriations subsequent to 1977 from the general fund and not the funds appropriated to the President, this account will merely be expending the last of its availability 1980 with no new initiatives being undertaken. Expenses in 1980 will be used for a portion of the facilities construction requirements at the NPR No. 1 (Elk Hills) reserve.

SCIENCE AND EDUCATION ADMINISTRATION

The Science and Education Administration (SEA) provides overall planning, support, and coordination for food and agricultural science and education programs. It conducts and supports research across the broad range of food and agricultural sciences. SEA communicates and demonstrates the results of this research to farmers, processors, consumers, and other groups. It provides facts and expertise in support of the policy and regulatory functions of the Department of Agriculture and other Government agencies. SEA makes use of library and computer information systems to assist the public, researchers, and educators. It responds to International food and agriculture needs through research and education. The agency helps identify priority problems for scientists to study, and initiates special projects to solve these problems. The objectives and missions of SEA are oriented toward improving research, extension, technical information and higher education efficiencies as follows:

* Includes capital investment as follows: 1979, $27,737 thousand; 1980, $30,000 thousand; 1981, $34,000 thousand.
Note.—Excludes $653 thousand in 1980 and 1981, transferred to Office of International Cooperation and Development. A comparable amount for 1979, $855 thousand, is included above.

1. Research on animal production.—Research is conducted to improve livestock productivity (including poultry) through improved breeding, feeding, and management practices, and to develop methods for controlling diseases, parasites, and insect pests affecting them. In fiscal year 1981 increased emphasis will be on basic research to provide increased production and protection from animal diseases and improved quality of animal foods.

2. Research on plant production.—Research is conducted to improve plant productivity through improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; develop new crop resources; and improve crop production practices, including methods to control plant diseases, nematodes, insects, and weeds. New initiatives proposed in 1981 include Integrated Pest Management (IPM) programs, germplasm, guayula and basic research for agricultural needs.

3. Research on the use and improvement of soil, air, and water.—Research is conducted to improve the management of natural resources, including investigations to improve soil and water management, irrigation, and conservation practices; to protect natural resources from harmful effects of soil, air, and water pollutants and to minimize certain agricultural pollution problems; and to determine the relation of soil types and water to plant, animal, and human nutrition. New initiatives included in 1981 include the Agriculture and Resources Inventory Surveys Through Aerospace Remote Sensing (AGRISTARS) and basic research to combat problems of water stress in crop production.

4. Processing, storage, distribution, food safety, and consumer services research.—Research is conducted to develop new and improved foods, feeds, fabrics, and industrial products and processes for agricultural commodities for domestic and foreign markets, including ways to minimize processing wastes as well as the processing, transportation, storage, wholesaling, and retailing of products.

Research is also conducted on problems of human health and safety, including means to insure the safety of food and feed supplies; control insect pests of man and his belongings; reduce the hazards to human life resulting from pesticide residues and other causes; and on consumer services. Increases in 1981 will place emphasis on food safety.

5. Research on human nutrition.—Research is conducted on human nutritional requirements, composition and nutritive value of foods, dietary status, monitoring and surveillance and nutrition education and methodology needs of Federal, State, and local agencies administering food and nutrition programs. 1981 proposes expansion of current research efforts to include the following: Relation of nutrition to aging, nutritional requirements of pregnant women, factors affecting food choices and factors on the ability to absorb nutrients.

6. Repair and maintenance of facilities.—Funds for use to restore, upgrade, and maintain Federal facilities to meet OSHA and EPA requirements and provide suitable workspace for inhouse research programs. In addition $3.5 million will be available for retrofitting existing structures for better energy utilization.

7. Contingencies.—$1 million will be available to meet urgent needs that develop unexpectedly during the year when such needs cannot be met by redirection of resources from other projects. Prior year obligations appear in the various research activities.

8. Construction of facilities.—Amounts in 1981 reflect costs from unexpended balances. This does not represent a new funding request for this item.

1. Payments under the Hatch Act.—Funds under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community. The increase requested for 1981 will provide for increased operating costs in order to maintain the 1980 output levels.

2. Cooperative forestry research.—These funds are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands, and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school. The increase requested for 1981 will provide for increased operating costs in order to maintain the 1980 output levels.

3. Payments to 1890 colleges and Tuskegee Institute.—Funds support planning, coordinating and conducting agricultural research at the 1890 land-grant colleges including Tuskegee Institute. The eligible institutions plan and conduct agricultural research in cooperation with each other and such agencies, institutions, and individuals as may contribute to the solution of agricultural problems. The increase requested for 1981 will provide for increased operating costs in order to maintain the 1980 output levels.

4. Special research grants.—These funds support basic and applied research in the areas of pest management, pesticide clearance, pesticide impact assessment, soil erosion, food and agriculture policies, genetic vulnerability, animal health, energy, germplasm resources, aquaculture, and antidesertification research.

5. Competitive research grants.—This program emphasizes basic research critical to food production and human nutrition. In 1981 it is proposed that $19 million be provided for grants to study serious problems relating to crop productivity and $6 million be provided for human nutrition research.

6. Rural development.—Funds appropriated under title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972 are allocated to land-grant colleges and universities of the 50 States and Puerto Rico, to conduct pilot research programs in support of the development of rural areas. No funds are requested for this authority in 1981. Formula funds could be used for these purposes.

7. Animal health and disease research.—Funds support livestock and poultry disease research in colleges of veterinary medicine and in eligible agricultural experiment stations. Research on specified national and regional problems of joint USDA-State concern is conducted as agreed upon between the USDA and specific eligible institutions.

8. Federal administration (direct appropriation).—A coordinating and review staff is maintained to examine research projects and assist State institutions and Federal agencies.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, community development, 4-H youth programs, and related subjects. This educational work takes research results, technological advancements, and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a program for action. Cooperative Extension Service interprets, disseminates, and encourages practical use of knowledge. It transmits information from researchers to people.

1. Payments to States.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act for payments to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands are distributed primarily on the basis of population and to a degree on the basis of special problems and needs. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State, area, and county extension workers who work with individuals, families, community organizations, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods for production, marketing, nutrition, family living, and community development. Work with youth is accomplished largely through the 4-H program. These funds are matched by the States and provide the Federal share of State retirement and penalty mail costs associated with program activities specifically undertaken with these matched funds.

Increases in payments to States are proposed to enable the State extension cooperators to defray increases in their operating costs and to encourage the States to strengthen high priority programs that benefit small farmers; conservation and protection of our natural resources; and program needs in our urban areas such as human nutrition, consumer education and home gardening.

2. Aid to land grant colleges.—Grants are allotted among the States for support of instruction in agriculture, the mechanic arts, and related fields at the land-grant colleges.

3. Federal administration and coordination.—The Extension Service provides leadership and assistance to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and the District of Columbia in developing extension programs, improving teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, and administrative services.

The Technical Information Systems (TIS) in cooperation with the Library of Congress and the National Library of Medicine, provides coverage and servicing of worldwide publications in the agricultural, chemical, and biological sciences. It serves all of the Department programs in the Washington metropolitan area, as well as the field installations throughout the country. It has the added responsibility of service to the land-grant universities, and the world agricultural science community.

The primary purpose of TIS is to acquire, preserve, and disseminate an exhaustive collection of reliable information in all phases of the agricultural and allied sciences. TIS also maintains, in cooperation with the Office of General Counsel, a central law library and 17 field legal libraries.

The Technical Information Systems provide a variety of information products and services to users in all areas of agriculture on a national and international level to help meet the broad-based information needs of the agricultural communities. This is accomplished through three major activities: (1) The administration of a unique collection of books, journals, and other information materials about food and agriculture to assure accessibility to their contents; (2) the development and maintenance of cooperative efforts in the library and related information areas, with other Federal agencies and with educational institutions in each State; (3) an active program of information dissemination. Three primary groups of users have been identified: (1) USDA scientists and other researchers, agricultural scientists at land-grant universities and other institutions of higher learning and in State agricultural agencies; (2) Federal and State administrators and managers; and (3) farmers, farm-supporting institutions, and the rural and urban consuming public. Priority is being given to the third segment. The consolidation of all scientific, technical, and sociological information systems into a single unit and the merging of the research and information components of USDA into a single administration will allow for the design and development of more comprehensive and efficient information systems. The requested increase in 1981 will be used to integrate information technologies which will assist agricultural groups such as small farmers or which will focus information in specialized fields such as aquaculture.

1. Economic analysis and research.—This activity includes the development of short-term forecasts and long-range projections of resource use, production and distribution of food and fiber for both probable and possible future events. The Service also evaluates the performance of the food and fiber sector in meeting the needs and wants of consumers and overall goals of society concerning such matters as resource ownership and use, income and income distribution, and quality of life. Current information is maintained on the principal social and economic factors affecting life in nonmetropolitan areas and alternative public and private actions which have impact on these areas are identified and evaluated.

A comparison of activities in 1979, 1980 and 1981 are solely on the basis of number of products produced under research and analysis follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Television packets and programs.....	157	165	170

Speeches and articles in professional journals.....	274	280	280
Legislative reports.....	67	70	70
Manuscripts published by States.....	41	45	45

The increases under this activity requested in 1981 are for: (1) development of new measures of structure and well-being of the farm sector; (2) food demand research and policy analysis; and, (3) research on world demand for U.S. agricultural commodities.

2. Crop and livestock estimates.—The Service provides the official National and State estimates of acreage, yield, and production of crops, stocks and value of farm commodities, and numbers of inventory values of livestock items. Data on approximately 150 crops and livestock products are covered in some 500 reports issued each year. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices.

The work under this activity is conducted through 44 State offices serving the 50 States; most of these offices are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide much additional State and county data; Federal funds are not available for collection and publication of these data.

A comparison of activities in 1979, 1980 and 1981 including work performed under cooperative arrangements, follows:

Special requests for information answered by field offices.....	81,585	81,500	82,000

¹ Decreases are due to the consolidation of questionnaires and reports and careful screening of mailing lists designed to reduce postage costs.

The increases requested under this activity in 1981 are for: (1) improvement of price statistics; and (2) development of aquaculture statistics and market information.

3. Statistical research and service—Departmental clearance and review.—The work of the Service under this activity is to review, coordinate, and monitor data gathering surveys conducted by the Department. This involves: (1) the review of all proposed statistical forms and survey plans requiring Office of Management and Budget clearance in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942, and (2) coordination of all interdepartment and intradepartment programs for the improvement of agricultural statistics and related data.

Improvement of crop and livestock estimates.—This research is devoted primarily to improving statistical methods and techniques for producing agricultural statistics with a high degree of accuracy at a minimum cost. This work is in support of the Service's long-range program for improving crop and livestock estimates, and is directed toward developing better sampling, yield forecasting, and survey techniques for the agency. Current research activities include compiling and maintaining lists of farms; developing new sampling techniques combining list frame(s) with an area sampling frame(s); constructing mathematical models for forecasting crop yields from objective counts and measurements of plant characteristics; and reducing reporting and other non-sampling errors by improving questionnaire design, and by devising better field editing and processing procedures. These research studies are tested by pilot surveys under actual operating conditions, and then, if proven, placed into operation. A comparison of activities for 1979, 1980 and 1981 follows:

Statistical forms—reports (Federal Reports Act):	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Departmental clearance and review for submission to Office of Management and Budget.....	301	300	300
Improvement of crop and livestock estimating methods: Number of research projects.....	20	39	39

The increase under this activity requested in 1981 is for statistical research for aerospace technology (formerly remote sensing).

4. Research and technical assistance for agricultural cooperatives.—Technical assistance is provided in response to problems that may come to the Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service from farmers directly or through the management of boards of directors of cooperatives composed of hundreds, and, in some instances, thousands of farmers. Help is given on the formation of new cooperatives, the merits of merging cooperative organizations, changes in business organizations and future growth or development, and the development of more viable relationships between cooperatives and other businesses and institutions. The full range of organization and management problems confronting cooperatives is covered by the Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service technical assistance program.

A comparison of activities in 1979, 1980 and 1981 follows:

Technical assistance projects initiated for:

* Result of four new field offices.

Applied research is conducted to give farmers relevant and expert assistance pertaining to their cooperatives. Studies concentrate on financial, organizational, legal, social, and economic aspects of cooperative activity.

Statistical data are collected to detect changes in structure, operations, and growth trends. The data helps identify and support applied research and technical assistance activities.

The agency serves as a central source of information of data about farmers' cooperatives in the United States. This information is communicated to the farmer or member through a variety of publications.

The Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service's efforts center on providing immediate response and leadership for more effective and efficient cooperative operations in the changing economic environment in which the family farmer operates.

The increase under this activity requested in 1981 is for analysis of policy issues involving cooperatives.

The World Food and Agricultural Outlook and Situation Board (WFAOSB) was established by Secretary's memorandum No. 1920 dated June 3, 1977, as authorized by reorganization plan No. 2 of 1953, to provide a single focal point for the Nation's economic intelligence related to domestic and international food and agriculture.

The objectives of the WFAOSB program are to improve the consistency, objectivity, and reliability of outlook and situation material being disseminated to the public and to integrate and coordinate USDA domestic and international economic information assistance.

The WFAOSB carries out these objectives through daily market surveillance and special analyses of international and domestic agricultural developments, direct participation in the planning of research programs supporting outlook and situation activities, and coordination of all departmental activities relating to weather and climate and remote sensing.

An increase is requested in 1981 to accomplish the following objectives: (a) develop a fully integrated and secure information system of global commodity and regional production forecasts; (b) coordinate and manage an inter-Departmental aerospace technology program; and (c) establish a joint lockup facility with the Economics, Statistics, and Cooperatives Service to provide maximum security for market sensitive information. $664 thousand is included in this budget as the total nonrecurring cost for establishing this facility for the various USDA agencies.

The Foreign Agricultural Service mission is to help American farmers and traders take maximum advantage of increased opportunities to sell U.S. agricultural commodities abroad and to help increase U.S. farm income.

Four functional objectives comprise the Foreign Agricultural Service mission: (1) Achieving maximum market access for American farm exports, (2) providing information assisting U.S. agriculture's adjustment to short-term changes in world supply and demand, (3) expanding long-term foreign commercial markets for U.S. agricultural products, and (4) safeguarding American farmers and farm programs against unfair or injurious import competition.

Accordingly, the Service collects, analyzes and disseminates global agricultural economic intelligence to: (1) Provide the U.S. agricultural industry information allowing it to anticipate world demand for U.S. farm products, (2) provide U.S. Government decisionmakers information with which to formulate policies safeguarding the U.S. agricultural community's interests, and (3) permit maximum production efficiency by American farmers.

The Service also helps develop long-term outlets for U.S. farm exports by: (1) Providing consolidated trade services and marketing expertise, (2) stimulating interest in exporting farm-grown products, (3) improving and coordinating market development techniques, (4) sharing financial risks inherent in market exploration, (5) lending official Government representation essential to conducting business abroad, and (6) achieving and retaining maximum access to foreign markets.

Activities are conducted within three program areas to achieve four functional objectives:

1. Agricultural attachés.—The Service maintains agricultural counselors, attachés or officers at 74 foreign posts to assist overseas development of markets for U.S. farm commodities. They work closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups and maintain significant contacts with foreign governments and traders to promote market access for U.S. farm products. They also file annually about 4,800 comprehensive reports regarding foreign agricultural production, supply, demand, marketing and trade policy developments to keep U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

2. Commodity analysis and services.—The commodity analysis and services program forges a link between the Attaché Service and the agency's analytical/informational and market development planning/services functions that serve the U.S. agricultural community and Government decisionmakers. The analysis and timely release of periodicals on world commodity conditions allow U.S. farm and trade groups to have ready access to information that can be used as reliable sources to assess short-term changes in world agricultural supply conditions by commodity. Contributing to this availability of commodity information is the Crop Condition Assessment Office which, through modern satellites, and meteorological and communications technology, provides an early distress warning and condition assessment capability for field crops in selected major crop producing countries. With further application testing, this remote sensing activity will constitute an increasingly versatile complement to the field reports of the attachés and provide the commodity analyst with additional indicators of crop conditions.

The Service directs and coordinates Department responsibilities in international trade agreement programs and negotiations under the authority of the Trade Expansion Act. It identifies and strives to reduce foreign trade barriers to U.S. agricultural exports. The agency examines foreign trade policies and assesses their impact on market access for U.S. farm products and recommends U.S. export action alternatives.

The analyses of world commodity conditions provide the information necessary to develop export marketing strategies that can be used not only by the Department to gain market access but to enhance the long term market development plans for major U.S. commodities.

The Service administers a program of import controls (in accordance with section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act) on foreign farm products which would render ineffective or materially interfere with Department commodity programs. It is also responsible for administering import controls established under the 1964 Meat Import Act and section 204 of the Trade Expansion Act.

3. Market development activities.—This activity provides funding support to about 53 commodity associations (cooperators), 31 contractors participating in the Export Incentive Program, and 3 regional groups representing 37 State departments of agriculture that, under FAS guidance and supervision, conduct an extensive worldwide market development program on behalf of the U.S. farm sector. In addition, FAS develops and operates a worldwide system of multicommodity promotional programs utilizing product exhibits, trade teams, trade services, market information programs, and trade referral services to expand overseas markets. To increase the effectiveness of USDA export promotion efforts 6 additional U.S. agricultural trade offices were opened in 1979. They are located in Hamburg, Bahrain, Singapore, Seoul, Warsaw, and Miami. An office was opened in London in 1978. Four additional offices are planned for 1980 in Moscow, Beijing, Caracas and North Africa. The Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 authorized the establishment of between 6 and 25 of these offices.

Program changes for 1981.—The 1981 budget represents an increase of $7,080 thousand from 1980. An increase of $2,223 thousand is requested for the agricultural attaché program to offset overseas inflation and thereby maintain current operating levels. An increase of $3,931 thousand is also requested for market development activities to offset the impact of overseas inflation and to provide program expansion in new and emerging markets. An increase of $400 thousand is also sought for increased operating costs for commodity analysis and services activities. In addition an increase of $526 thousand is requested for annualization of 1980 pay costs.

This budget reflects the consolidation of the Office of the General Sales Manager with the Foreign Agricultural Service. No additional budget authority is required since the functions of the Sales Manager will continue to be financed by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The General Sales Manager is responsible for policy formulation and program administration for the Department of Agriculture in those Public Law 480 activities for which the Department has been assigned major responsibility. Generally the Department has primary programming responsibility for the Title I and III of the ram.

s responsibility for the export credit program which is financed by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The Office of International Cooperation and Development (OICD) was established by Secretary's Memorandum No. 1947, dated May 1, 1978. Its responsibilities are to coordinate the execution of Departmental policies and programs to alleviate hunger and malnutrition throughout the world and to improve developing nations' capabilities to better their agricultural production and rural environment. In carrying out this responsibility, OICD coordinates AID- and country-funded international training and technical assistance; coordinates USDA's participation in programs of international exchange and research for which there are benefits mutual to the United States and the world. OICD facilitates USDA's extension to the university community in matters of international scientific cooperation and assists in the formulation and evaluation of "food for development" projects.

OICD participates as a lead agency in the planning of agricultural development policy, the formulation and review of assistance efforts related to agriculture and in the development of scientific exchanges with other countries. OICD also works closely with U.S. and international organizations to assist them in utilizing the scientific and institutional resources of American agriculture to carry out development assistance.

USDA's foreign technical assistance and international training efforts have been funded primarily on a reimbursable basis. In addition, USDA has entered into direct agreements with foreign governments and international organizations.

In 1980, OICD assumes the responsibility for the international research activities administered by the Science and Education Administration (SEA). This expanded mission, as mandated by Secretary's Memorandum No. 1998, will include coordination of bilateral research activities.

Foreign currencies which the Treasury Department determines to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States are used for expenses of carrying out programs of the Department of Agriculture under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended. Research which is important to American agriculture and supplements our domestic programs is carried on through agreements negotiated with institutions and organizations in foreign countries. For example, research is conducted on exotic insect pests and diseases of plants and animals which cannot be done in the United States. Specialized projects provide for the translation and dissemination of foreign language scientific publications. Total estimated cost in U.S. dollars (charged to regular appropriations) for program direction and supervision of projects in 1981 is $625 thousand.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Facilities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation may by law be used in carrying out programs for exporting agricultural commodities.

Included in this category are the following activities carried out under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as amended: Financing sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or for convertible foreign currency on credit terms (titles I and III); and supplying agricultural commodities for dispositions abroad (title II).

Factors determining availability of commodities for disposition under Public Law 480 are productive capacity, domestic requirements, farm and consumer price levels, anticipated commercial exports, and adequate carryover. No commodity is available for disposition under the act if the disposition thereof would reduce the domestic supply below that needed to meet domestic requirements, adequate carryover, and anticipated exports for dollars, unless the Secretary determines that some part of the supply should be used for urgent humanitarian purposes.

In determining the reimbursement due the Corporation, commodities supplied from the Corporation's inventory, which were acquired under a domestic price support program, are valued at the export market price at the time of delivery.

The laws also authorize appropriations to be made to cover costs of such programs. When funds become available, advances are made to the Corporation for estimated costs. If the amounts appropriated are greater than actual needs, the excess is used to reduce future appropriation requests. If funds appropriated plus carryover balances for title II are less than actual needs, Corporation funds not in excess of such limitations as may be provided in appropriation acts may be used temporarily to finance the balance of authorized costs.

Regarding the new Federal credit control policies instituted with the 1981 budget, existing appropriation language provides for sufficient control of titles I and III credit activities.

[Sec. 112. For an additional amount for "Public Law 480", $24,000,000. The amount for titles I and III shall be reduced by $34,528,000 and the amount for title II shall be increased by $58,528,000. The authorized program level for title II is increased by $50,362,000. Funds provided in this section shall remain available until expended.] (Public Law No. 96-108, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and related agencies, 1980; Public Law 96-123, making further continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1980.)

1. Financing the sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms (titles I and III).—The Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I and may serve as the purchasing or shipping agent, or both, if the purchaser so requests. Sales are made to friendly countries—as defined in section 103(d) of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (secs. 103 (c) and (n)).

Agreements may not be made under title I in any calendar year which call for an appropriation to reimburse the Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations. Spending authority for title I for any fiscal year is limited to the extent or the amounts provided in appropriation acts.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies convertible to dollars. These initial payments are applied against costs to reduce appropriation requests. Also, payment upon delivery in dollars or foreign currencies, to the extent that such currency is needed for payment of U.S. obligations and certain other purposes, may be required.

At least 50% of the gross tonnage of commodities shipped under the authority of title I is required to be transported on U.S.-flag vessels in accordance with the Cargo Preference Act. When U.S.-flag vessels are required to be used, the Corporation will finance the ocean freight charges to the extent of the differential between U.S.-flag rates and foreign-flag rates. In addition, in the case of commodities shipped under a title III food for development program to a country on the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development list of relatively least developed countries, CCC is authorized to pay freight from U.S. ports to designated ports of entry abroad or to designated points of entry abroad in the case of landlocked countries.

(a) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title D).—Agreements for sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies were made until December 31, 1971, to countries unable to expand commercial purchases because of a lack of foreign exchange. Certain U.S. uses of foreign currencies, including foreign currency loan repayments, and certain foreign currency grants, are subject to the appropriation process. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied as a reduction in appropriation requests.

Section 509 of Public Law 86-500, approved June 8, 1960 (7 U.S.C. 1704b note), provides that at least 75% of the total cost of foreign military housing projects (unless otherwise specified) shall be paid from foreign currencies acquired under title I. Pursuant to 10 U.S.C. 2681(b), as amended, the estimate reflects transfer to the Corporation of $6 million each year to liquidate amounts due. The unliquidated balance is estimated at $3,263 thousand at the end of 1980.

(b) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms (title D).—Agreements for the financing of sales of U.S. agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms are made with friendly countries. They may provide for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity. However, as a matter of practice, supply periods of agreements rarely extend beyond 2 years.

Countries meeting the poverty criterion established for International Development Association financing and which are unable to produce or commercially purchase sufficient food for their immediate requirements are to receive not less than 75% of the food aid commodities allocated and agreed to be delivered in each fiscal year under title I financing agreements, unless the President certifies that such food assistance to other countries is required for humanitarian purposes or the required 75% allocation could not be used effectively to carry out humanitarian or development purposes of title I.

Credit terms are to be no less favorable than those required by sections 122 and 122(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under those sections.

Dollar credit repayments are made in reasonable annual amounts over periods of not to exceed 20 years from the date of last delivery in each calendar year under the agreement, except that the first annual principal payment may be deferred for a period of not more than 2 years after such date of last delivery. Convertible foreign currency terms permit repayment of up to 40 years with deferral of principal payments for up to 10 years. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reduce appropriation requests.

The estimates under title I include the cost of financing sales of commodities for which there have been concluded food for development programs under title III of the act. When a food for development program has been agreed upon with a country, CCC is authorized to furnish credit under title I for the purchase by such country of available commodities to be delivered for periods from 1 to 5 years. Funds accruing from the local sale of the commodities, or the dollar sales value of the commodities which are used by such country for approved development projects, are applied against the repayment obligations of such country under the title I agreement. Disbursements of funds in an amount equivalent to the dollar value of the credit furnished by CCC are deemed to be payment of all installments of principal and interest payable thereon for the commodities purchased.

Food for development programs entered into under title III shall be 15% for fiscal year 1980 and succeeding fiscal years, of the aggregate value of all agreements entered into under title I for the corresponding fiscal year, unless waived by the President because of an insufficient number of qualifying projects. Reasons for the waiver must be reported to Congress.

Total title I agreements made since inception to September 30, 1979, amount to $8,843 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipment on U.S. ships. Major commodities are wheat, cotton, oils, rice, and feed grains. Payments received during the period amount to $1,935.9 million, of which $1,252.9 million was applied to principal and $683.0 million to interest.

2. Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).—Under title II, agricultural commodities are furnished to developing countries to meet famine or other emergency relief needs, as well as to promote economic and community development and to combat malnutrition. They are furnished through friendly governments, private voluntary agencies, foreign nonprofit voluntary agencies if no such U.S. agency is available, and intergovernmental organizations such as the United Nations World Food Program.

The law provides that a minimum of 1.6 million metric tons of agricultural commodities shall be distributed in both 1979 and 1980, of which not less than 1.3 million metric tons shall be through nonprofit voluntary agencies and the World Food Program, unless the President determines and so reports to Congress that such quantity cannot be used effectively for intended purposes or that such a quantity is not available. These minimum tonnages increase to 1.65 million and 1.35 million, respectively, in 1981; and 1.7 million and 1.4 million, respectively, in 1982 and each fiscal year thereafter.

The Agency for International Development is responsible for administering title II programs. However, the Corporation makes available the commodities or products requested for disposition under title II. Such commodities or products are made available from the Corporation's stocks of commodities or products acquired under its support program or are purchased from private stocks.

The Corporation is authorized to pay, with respect to commodities made available, the costs of acquisition, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports. The Corporation also pays ocean freight charges, and pays transportation costs to points of entry other than ports in the case of landlocked countries, where carriers to a specific country are unavailable, where ports cannot be used effectively, or where a substantial saving in costs or time can be obtained, and pays general average contributions arising from ocean transport. Up to $7.5 million each year may be used to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes of the need for such aid. Such costs may not include personnel and administrative costs of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies and recipient agencies.

Through December 31, 1979, appropriations totaling $11,350 million were authorized. No programs of assistance shall be undertaken under this title during any calendar year which call for an appropriation of more than $750 million to reimburse the Corporation. This limitation applies to costs incurred, including its investment in commodities (but only on the basis of export market price of commodities acquired under a price support program), plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year. Any incidental sales proceeds and proceeds from loss, damage, and other claims are applied against costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests.

Note—Excludes $18 thousand in 1979 and $57 thousand in 1980 for activities transferred to the Departmental Administration account for Office of Governmental and Public Affairs.

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of national, commodity, State, and county offices.

1. Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and commodity support programs, and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the support program, have a tremendous impact on the national and (to a lesser extent) the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate more effective programs.

2. Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and price support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including: (a) developing program regulations and procedures; (b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs; (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms; (d) establishing individual farm normal crop acres, allotments, and yields; (e) notifying producers of established normal crop acres, allotments, and yields; (f) determining farm marketing allocations; (g) handling appeals; (h) conducting referendums and certifying results; (i) accepting farmer certifications and checking compliance; (j) developing pooling agreements under which several farmers work jointly to solve a common conservation problem which cannot be solved by individual action; (k) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty; (l) processing producer requests for conservation cost-sharing; (m) processing commodity loan documents and issuing sight drafts; (n) making appraisals for disaster payments; and (o) processing deficiency payments and issuing sight drafts.

3. Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes: (a) overall management of CCC-owned commodities; (b) selling commodities; (c) donating commodities; and (d) accounting for loans and commodities. The total value of all commodities owned by CCC on September 30, 1979, was about $1,162 million.

The volume of work expected to be accomplished in 1981 under some of the major programs financed from this account is set forth below:

This new experimental program, authorized by the Agriculture, Rural Development and Related Agencies Appropriation Act of 1980 (Public Law 96-108), will provide assistance to land owners and operators to control agricultural nonpoint source water pollution, to improve water quality and to meet water quality standards or water quality goals in keeping with the provision of adequate supplies of food, fiber and a quality environment.

Practices will be recommended by county committees and approved by State committees and the Secretary of Agriculture, with the concurrence of the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, or recommended by the Secretary, with the concurrence of the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, and approved by the State committees and the county committees. Technical assistance will be provided by the Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, the Science and Education Administration, and others.

Approved projects are fully funded at the time the agreement is signed. Funds are targeted to areas having critical needs, where nonpoint sources of pollutants significantly contribute to water quality problems.

An unobligated balance of $15 million together with the $20 million requested for 1981 will continue an annual program funding level of $35 million. However, in the event that more worthy applications for cost share contracts are received and approved than currently estimated, contracts totaling as much as $50 million could be entered into during the current fiscal year.

AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

For necessary expenses to carry into effect the program authorized in sections 7 to 15, 16(a), and 17 of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, approved February 29, 1936, as amended and supplemented (16 U.S.C. 590g-590o, 590p(a), [(b),] and 590q), and sections 1001-1008, and 1010 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as added by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1501-1508, and 1510), [and including not to exceed $15,000 for the preparation and display of exhibits, including such displays at State, interstate, and international fairs within the United States,] $190,000,000 to remain available until expended for agreements, excluding administration but including technical assistance and related expenses, except that no participant in the Agricultural Conservation Program shall receive more than $3,500, except where the participants from two or more farms or ranches join to carry out approved practices designed to conserve or improve the agricultural resources of the community: Provided, That no portion of the funds for the current year's program may be utilized to provide financial or technical assistance for drainage on wetlands now designated as Wetland Types 3 (III) through 20 (XX) in United States Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Circular 39, Wetlands of the United States, 1956: Provided further, That such amounts shall be available for the purchase of seeds, fertilizers, lime, trees, or any other conservation material, or any soil-terracing services, and making grants thereof to agricultural producers to aid them in carrying out enduring conservation and environmental enhancement measures and practices, as specified in section 1501 of Public Law 95-113 (including those practices or programs which are deemed essential to maintain soil productivity, prevent soil depletion, or prevent increased cost of production, thus assuring a continuous supply of food and fiber necessary for the maintenance of a strong and healthy people and economy) as determined and recommended by the county committees, approved by the State committees and the Secretary, under programs provided for herein: Provided further, That such assistance will not be used for carrying out measures and practices that are primarily production-oriented or that have little or no conservation or pollution abatement benefits: Provided further, That not to exceed 5 per centum of the allocation for the current year's program for any county may, on the recommendation of such county committee and approval of the State committee, be withheld and allotted to the Soil Conservation Service for services of its technicians in formulating and carrying out the Agricultural Conservation Program in the participating counties, and shall not be utilized by the Soil Conservation Service for any purpose other than technical and other assistance in such counties, and in addition, on the recommendation of such county committee and approval of the State committee, not to exceed 1 per centum may be made available to any other Federal, State, or local public agency for the same purpose and under the same conditions: Provided further, That for the current year's program $2,500,000 shall be available for technical assistance in formulating and carrying out rural environmental practices: Provided further, That no part of any funds available to the Department, or any bureau, office, corporation, or other agency constituting a part of such Department, shall be used in the current fiscal year for the payment of salary or travel expenses of any person who has been convicted of violating the Act entitled "An Act to prevent pernicious political activities", approved August 2, 1939, as amended, or who has been found in accordance with the provisions of title 18 U.S.C. 1913, to have violated or attempted to violate such section which prohibits the use of Federal appropriations for the payment of personal services or other expenses designed to influence in any manner a Member of Congress to favor or oppose any legislation or appropriation by Congress except upon request of any Member or through the proper official channels. The primary objectives of the program are: (1) to help assure a continued supply of food and fiber necessary for a strong and healthy economy and people, (2) to facilitate sound resource management systems through soil and water conservation, (3) to control erosion and sedimentation from agricultural land, (4) to control pollution from animal wastes, (5) to encourage voluntary compliance by agricultural producers with State and Federal requirements to solve point and nonpoint sources of pollution, (6) to improve water quality, (7) to help achieve national priorities in the National Environmental Policy Act and (8) to help achieve national priorities in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Cost sharing is authorized for long-term agreements. Because of a declining interest in long-term agreements, the standard 3-10 year agreement has been modified, and, also, a shorter term agreement of 3-5 years will be offered with renewal benefits to extend the agreement up to 10 years if needed. On the shorter term agreements, the conservation plan of operation (CPO) may apply only to a portion of the farm rather than the entire farm.

The program is administered in each county by the ASC county committee, with review and approval by State ASC committees and the Secretary, and in consultation with other agencies. For the 1980 ACP, county committees, in consultation with the county development group and community committeemen, submitted their proposal for practices and changes from the previous year's program to State committees for review. The State committees, after reviewing county recommendations with the State development group, sent any State recommended changes to the national level for review by the Secretary. Resulting changes in the national program or practices were provided to the State and county committees for their use in carrying out the 1980 program.

The 1980 program is expected to serve 12.7 million acres and reduce soil loss by approximately 32 million tons. For the 1981 program, 12.2 million acres are projected to be served by pollution abatement and water conservation measures with a soil loss reduction through the application of soil conservation measures of approximately 32 million tons.

The objectives of the Water Bank Program are to conserve, preserve, maintain, and improve the Nation's wetlands, increase waterfowl habitat in migratory waterfowl nesting and breeding areas in the United States, and secure recreational and environmental benefits for the Nation. The program was authorized by the Water Bank Act, approved December 19, 1970.

The Secretary of Agriculture, through designated ASCS county offices, uses program funds to enter into 10-year agreements with landowners and operators for the conservation of specified wetlands. Provisions exist to renew agreements for additional periods. The Secretary, through ASCS county offices, makes annual payments on agreements.

The 1980 program is expected to bring 53,000 acres under agreement. This would be accomplished through the signing of 425 new agreements with landowners.

In 1981, at the $10 million appropriation level, it is anticipated that approximately 51,000 acres will be brought into the program through 400 additional agreements with landowners. This would bring the total area under agreement to about 678,000 acres.

The Cropland Adjustment Program was authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 which expired with the 1970 crop year. Under this program, agreements for periods of 5 and up to 10 years were approved only in 1966 and 1967. The last of these agreements expired in 1977. The 1979 activity represents refunds and claims adjustments.

This program was authorized by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2201-2205). The appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farm and rangelands resulting from natural disasters.

Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use. Also, assistance is available for measures to provide for or conserve water to be used for agricultural purposes during periods of severe drought as determined by the Deputy Administrator, State and County Operations, ASCS.

Under the 1979 program, cost-sharing assistance was provided to treat farmlands damaged by floods, tornadoes, hurricanes, and drought. Assistance was provided in 47 States, Puerto Rico, and Virgin Islands.

DAIRY AND BEEKEEPER INDEMNITY PROGRAMS

For necessary expenses involved in making indemnity payments to dairy farmers for milk or cows producing such milk and manufacturers of dairy products who have been directed to remove their milk or dairy products from commercial markets because it contained residues of chemicals registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, and in making indemnity payments for milk, or cows producing such milk, at a fair market value to any dairy farmer who is directed to remove his milk from commercial markets because of (1) the presence of products of nuclear radiation or fallout if such contamination is not due to the fault of the farmer, or (2) residues of chemicals or toxic substances not included under the first sentence of the Act of August 13, 1968, as amended (7 U.S.C. 450j), if such chemicals or toxic substances were not used in a manner contrary to applicable regulations or labeling instructions provided at the time of use and the contamination is not due to the fault of the farmer, [and to beekeepers who through no fault of their own have suffered losses as a result of the use of economic poisons which had been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, $3,290,000] $200,000: Provided, That none of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to make indemnity payments to any farmer whose milk was removed from commercial markets as a result of his willful failure to follow procedures prescribed by the Federal Government. (7 U.S.C. 135b note, 450j-1; Public Law 95-113; Public Law 96-108, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and related agencies, 1980.)

Under this program indemnification payments are made to dairy farmers, manufacturers of dairy products, and beekeepers.

The Dairy indemnity program was authorized under 78 Stat. 508 in 1964, and has been extended through September 30, 1981, by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 (91 Stat. 913). Payments are made to farmers who are directed to remove their milk from commercial markets because the milk contains residues of chemicals which have been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, of other chemicals, of nuclear radiation, or of nuclear fallout. The authority also provides that indemnification may be paid for cows producing such milk.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1382) broadened the indemnification authority to include manufacturers of dairy products whose products become contaminated with residues of chemicals which have been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government.

Beekeeper indemnity payments were authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1382) to beekeepers who, through no fault of their own, suffered loss from economic poisons which had been registered and approved by the Federal Government. This program has been extended through September 30, 1981, but no funds are requested for 1981.

This program was authorized by the Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2101). The objectives of the program are to bring private nonindustrial forest land under intensified management, to increase timber production, to assure adequate supplies of timber products, and to enhance other forest resources.

The Forestry Incentives Program shares up to 75% of the cost of tree planting and timberstand improvement. The percentage cost-shared depends on the rate set in a particular State and county by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, after consulting with the State forester. The program is available in designated counties based on a Forest Service survey of total eligible private timberland available for production of timber products. The program is administered by ASCS with technical assistance from Forest Service.

Under the 1980 program, it is planned to cost-share the expenses of planting trees on 190 thousand acres and improving the timberstand on 177 thousand acres of forest. For the 1981 program, cost-sharing with landowners will allow planting of trees on 190 thousand acres and timberstand improvement on 175 thousand acres.

Legislation is pending for a nationwide all-risk crop insurance program, which would necessitate an increase of $111,228 thousand in the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation Appropriation. The outcome of this legislation assumes appropriations to FCIC for all operating costs, that premium income and indemnity payments would be handled within the CCC funds.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly owned Government corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1520), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance, and to provide the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance.

Crop insurance offered to agricultural producers by the Corporation provides protection from losses caused by natural hazards, such as insect and wildlife damage, plant diseases, fire, drought, flood, wind, and other weather conditions. It does not indemnify producers for losses resulting from negligence or failure to observe good farming practices.

The crop insurance programs are developed and analyzed in the Washington headquarters office and are administered in 16 regional offices. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level are performed by private agents under contractual agreements with the Corporation and by Corporation employees hired on a permanent, part-time or WAE (when actually employed) basis. Detailed administrative and program accounting and statistical functions, as well as the underwriting and actuarial analysis work, are performed in Kansas City, Mo.

Budget program.—The program for 1981 will provide crop insurance protection to farmers amounting to approximately $2.7 billion on the following commodities: Apples, barley, beans, citrus, combined crop, corn, cotton, flax, forage production, forage seeding, grain sorghum, grapes, oats, peaches, peanuts, peas, potatoes, raisins, rice, soybeans, sugar beets, sugarcane, sunflowers, sweet corn, tobacco, tomatoes, and wheat.

The following table compares the scope of the insurance operations planned for 1980 and 1981, as compared with 1979. Amounts in the 1979 column are actual, and pertain to the 1978 crop year. The 1980 column pertains to the 1979 crop year, and the 1981 column pertains to the 1980 crop year.

Financing.—The Corporation is authorized under the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended, $200 million in capital stock which has been totally subscribed and issued.

Funds from the issuance of capital stock provide working capital for the Corporation. Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums paid by farmers for crop insurance indemnity costs. The principal payments from this fund are for indemnities to insured farmers, the direct cost of adjusting crop losses, and a part of the administrative and operating expenses. However, the direct cost of loss adjustment and the administrative and operating expenses paid from the fund are not provided for in the premium rates (section 508(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended).

It is estimated that gross income of $120 million from operations will provide adequate operating funds for 1981, unless heavy losses occur early in the year.

The annual appropriation for a portion of the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of September 30, 1979, the Corporation reflected a deficit of $123.7 million which decreased by $28.2 million over the deficit of the year before. The principal reason for the decrease was due to premiums exceeding indemnities. Crop year 1978 premiums of $93.9 million exceeded indemnities by $46.5 million, resulting in a loss ratio of .50.

For crop years 1948 through 1978, premium income ($1,158.5 million) exceeded indemnities ($1,139.3 million) by $19.2 million; the loss ratio for the period was .98. Indemnity costs exceeded premiums in only 14 of the 31 years.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations by commodities for 1979, 1980, and 1981.

The Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, to help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and to help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714-714p). It may make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities and may be used to administer and to temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Under present law, up to $20 billion may be borrowed from the U.S. Treasury to finance operations.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1980 and 1981 budget estimates: (a) Production and national income will rise both in 1980 and 1981 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1981 will be higher than 1980 levels; (c) yields for the 1980 crops are based on recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1980 crops of peanuts, ELS cotton, and certain kinds of tobacco; (e) acreage allotments but no marketing quotas will be in effect for rice; and (f) no set-aside or diversion programs for the 1980 crops of feed grains, wheat, and upland cotton will be in operation. Deficiency payments on these commodities will be based on an established or target price if the higher of the market price received by farmers or the loan rate is below such price.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy requirements for the year ending September 30, 1981, since the projections are subject to complex and unpredictable factors such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange.

A point estimate is required for presentation in the budget; however, due to the significant impact of changes in worldwide weather and production, a range of estimates should be considered when evaluating the commodity program projections. Because of this, the Department has prepared range estimates to reflect the possible effects of changing worldwide conditions affecting commodity programs. These ranges will be released separately by the Department.

Support and related programs.—The Corporation provides price support to producers of agricultural commodities through loans, purchases, payments, and other means. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.) and the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.), as amended by the Agricultural Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1358), the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (87 Stat. 221), the Rice Production Act of 1975 (90 Stat. 181), and the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 (91 Stat. 913).

Support is mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. The Agricultural Act of 1949 also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: honey, milk, barley, oats, rye, and grain sorghum. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1781-87), requires support for wool and mohair. The Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 requires support of the 1977 and 1978 crops of sugar beets and sugarcane and the 1978-81 crops of soybeans. Support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. The support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, loans made on commodities are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and on maturity the producer may deliver or forfeit such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases are made under certain laws for the removal of surpluses; for example, the act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431).

For feed grains, rice, wheat, and upland cotton, producers may receive support through Government payments in addition to Commodity Credit Corporation loans and purchases. For extra-long staple cotton, producers may receive payments in addition to loans under existing legislation. Producers of feed grains, rice, wheat, and upland cotton must comply with acreage set-aside provisions (hereinafter described), if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments. Producers with interests in more than one farm may receive program benefits on participating farms provided that the normal crop acreage is not exceeded on nonparticipating farms planting set-aside crops. The total amount of payments which a person is entitled to receive under one or more of the annual programs for feed grains, wheat, and upland cotton for the 1979 crops of these commodities shall not exceed $45 thousand. For rice producers, the limitation is $50 thousand for the 1979 crop year. The combined payment limitation for feed grains, wheat, upland cotton, and rice for the 1980 and 1981 crops shall be $50 thousand.

The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, established target prices for three major commodities—wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton; set minimum loan rates for wheat and feed grains; and established the loan level for upland cotton. Government payments for each of the three commodities are required when the target price for the commodity exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. For the 1979 crop, the target price for wheat is $3.40 per bushel. The 1979 crop target price for corn is $2.20 per bushel. The target prices for grain sorghum and, if designated by the Secretary, barley and oats, are established at a level which is fair and reasonable in relation to the target prices established for corn. The 1979 crop target price for upland cotton is 57.7 cents per pound.

The budget estimates assume enactment of target price legislation that will cover increases in production costs in 1980 and result in 1980 target prices of $2.35 per bushel for corn and $3.63 per bushel for wheat. The 1980 crop target price for upland cotton will be adjusted from the previous year on the basis of the change in the 2-year moving average of variable, machinery ownership, and general farm overhead costs, but shall not be less than 51 cents per pound. The target prices for these commodities will also be adjusted annually beyond 1980 to levels that will reflect changes in production costs. However, whenever a set-aside is in effect for one or more of these commodities, the Secretary may, under provisions of Public Law 95-279 (92 Stat. 240), increase the target price for any such commodity to compensate producers for participation in such set-aside. In addition, the 1949 act, as amended, provides for making disaster payments for the 1979 crops to producers who are prevented from planting feed grains, wheat, or upland cotton because of a natural disaster or condition beyond the control of the producers or who, because of such a disaster or condition, harvest less than a specified quantity. Disaster payments for these commodities are based on acreage planted for harvest, or intended to be planted. The budget estimates assume an extension of disaster payment provisions for the 1980 crops.

The Rice Production Act of 1975, as amended, and the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, established a target price for rice. Government payments are required to be made to cooperators when the target price for rice exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. The 1979 crop target price for rice is $9.05 per hundredweight. For the 1980 crop, the target price for rice will be adjusted from the previous year on the basis of the change in the 2-year moving average of variable, machinery ownership, and general farm overhead costs, but may be increased whenever a set-aside is in effect under provisions of Public Law 95-334 (92 Stat. 434). In addition, the 1949 act provides for making disaster payments for the 1979 crop to producers who are prevented from planting rice or other nonconserving crop because of a natural disaster or condition beyond the control of the producers or who, because of such a disaster or condition, harvest less than a specified quantity within producer allotments.

Disaster payments for the 1979 crops of wheat, feed grains, rice, and upland cotton are exempt from any payment limitation under provisions of the 1977 act.

The peanut program for the 1978-81 crops provides for a two-price system for peanuts. For production of peanuts under poundage quotas, minimum support rates are specified, subject to increases on the basis of the index of prices paid by farmers and other factors. For production of additional peanuts up to the amount of the acreage allotment, the Secretary may set lower support rates taking into consideration demand for peanut oil and meal, expected prices for other vegetable oils, and foreign demand for peanuts.

A loan or purchase program was authorized under the 1977 act for the 1977 and 1978 crops of sugar beets and sugarcane at a level between 52.5% and 65% of parity. An interim price support payment program was carried out prior to implementation of the 1977 and 1978 crop loan programs. The Secretary of Agriculture instituted a price support loan program for 1979 crop sugar under general authority provided in the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended. The Budget estimates assume a loan program for subsequent crops under existing general authority. CCC-owned sugar, acquired under the 1977 and 1978 crop price support loan programs, was first offered for sale on September 7, 1979, at not less than 105% of the 1979 crop national average loan rate, plus reasonable carrying charges, or the market price, whichever is higher.

In support operations, normal trade facilities are used to the maximum extent practicable. Cooperatives and financial institutions are used in lending activities.

Besides the charter act and laws mentioned above, many other laws are applicable to the disposition through sales and donations of commodities acquired under the support program.

For accounting purposes, the Corporation credits to the support program proceeds of commodities sold from its stocks, including those disposed of through special activities.

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, payments, extension of credit, assumption of certain risks, and conduct of other operations with respect to the exportation of commodities. Such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation. These programs are carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly section 5(d) and (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable. Export sales on long-term credit terms are financed by the Corporation under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended, although such sales may also be financed under its charter authority.

The activities described below are illustrative of those conducted under this program during 1980.

The Corporation conducts a short-term export credit sales program to maximize exports of agricultural commodities and products under which it finances, for a period of not to exceed 3 years, commercial export credit sales by exporters of agricultural commodities obtained either from Corporation inventories or from private stocks. These commercial transactions are financed under the Corporation's charter authority and section 4(a) of the Food for Peace Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1707a). The Corporation may finance short-term export credit sales to the People's Republic of China.

Beginning in 1979, CCC is also authorized under section 4(b) of the Food for Peace Act of 1966, as added by the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, to finance commercial export sales of U.S. agricultural commodities out of CCC and private stocks on credit terms in excess of 3 years but not more than 10 years to develop, expand, or maintain a foreign market on a long-term basis or otherwise improve the capability of the importing nation to purchase and use U.S. agricultural commodities on a long-term basis. Costs of freight from the United States to designated points of entry for sales of breeding animals may be financed. The provisions of the cargo preference laws do not apply to these intermediate credit sales as well as to the short-term export credit sales. Pursuant to the authority contained in section 4(b), CCC promulgated in 1979 the Intermediate Credit Export Program for breeding animals (GSM-201) which authorizes the financing of export sales of breeding animals, including cost of freight, from the United States to importing countries.

In order to develop new market opportunities and maintain and expand existing markets for U.S. agricultural commodities, section 201 of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 authorizes the Corporation to provide financing to exporters of U.S. agricultural commodities who provide buyers deferred payment terms of not to exceed 3 years. These sales are to be made only to (a) those nations that are eligible for financing under the Corporation's short-term export credit sales program and (b) the People's Republic of China.

Under CCC's noncommercial risk assurance program promulgated under its charter authority, CCC guarantees, for a fee, payments due U.S. exporters under deferred payment sales contracts (up to 36 months) from defaults due to noncommercial risks. The risk to CCC extends from date of export to the end of the deferred payment period covered in the export sales contract and covers only that portion of the payments agreed to in the assurance agreement.

CCC is also authorized under its charter authority to undertake a risk assurance program to protect U.S. exporters, who extend credit on export sales, from defaults in payments by foreign banks due to commercial as well as noncommercial risks. Operation of this risk assurance program will be based on criteria which will assure use only where it is determined that it will develop new market opportunities and maintain and expand existing world markets for U.S. agricultural commodities.

Storage facilities.—The Corporation conducts a program to provide storage adequate to fulfill its program needs. The program is conducted pursuant to sections 4(h) and (m), and 5(a) and (b) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act, as amended by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977.

Although the Corporation has authority to buy bins (in storage-short areas) and equipment for the care and storage of commodities owned by the Corporation or under its control, this authority to purchase bins has not been exercised since 1956. The Corporation makes secured loans of up to $50 thousand for the purchase, construction, or remodeling of facilities for storage and care of dry or high moisture commodities on the farm. Such loans are repayable over a period not to exceed 10 years at an interest rate based upon the rate of interest charged the Corporation by the U.S. Treasury. The Corporation may also guarantee the placement of its inventories to encourage the building of commercial storage, and undertake other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation procures from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies such as CARE, Church World Service, Catholic Relief, and others. It similarly procures or aids in the procurement of such foods, commodities, products, and material for sale to meet domestic requirements during periods of short supply or to stabilize prices or facilitate distribution. Through purchases, loans, sales, or other means the Corporation may also make available materials and facilities needed for the production and marketing of agricultural commodities. This program is conducted under section 5(b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

Purchases for other Federal agencies of commodities not in the Corporation's stocks has been the main activity. Purchases of limited quantities of breeder, foundation, and registered seeds of improved varieties of grasses and legumes are made through production contracts in order to assure supplies thereof for farmers. No foreign purchases have been made in recent years.

Section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U.S.C. 713a-9), requires that the Corporation be fully repaid from funds of other agencies for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities bought or delivered to or on behalf of any other Federal agency. Operations not subject to section 4 may involve losses if such are necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives of the particular operation.

Set-aside program.—The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes the Secretary to conduct, through the Corporation, set-aside programs on the 1971 through 1981 crops of wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton if he determines that otherwise the total supply of agricultural commodities will likely be excessive. The Rice Production Act of 1975 and the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 provide authority for a set-aside program for the 1976 through 1981 crops of rice.

There were no set-aside programs for the 1974 through 1977 crops of wheat, feed grains, and upland cotton, nor for the 1977 through 1979 crops of rice. A 20% set-aside program was in effect for the 1978 and 1979 crops of wheat, and a 10% set-aside program was in effect for the 1978 and 1979 crops of corn and grain sorghum. There was a 10% set-aside program for 1978 crop barley, with a 20% set-aside for the 1979 crop. There will be no set-aside programs for any of these commodities in 1980.

If a set-aside is in effect for any such commodity, producers must, as a condition of eligibility for loans, purchases, and payments on such commodity, set-aside and devote to approved conservation uses an acreage of cropland equal to a specified percentage and otherwise comply with program requirements. Participants in a set-aside program are eligible for a small additional payment for permitting public access to set-aside acreage.

Land diversion payments.—To assist in adjusting the acreage of commodities to desirable goals, the Secretary is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, to make land diversion payments, through the Corporation, to producers who devote to approved conservation uses acreages of cropland in addition to those required to be so devoted under the set-aside programs. Voluntary diversion programs were in effect for the 1978 crops of corn, grain sorghum, barley, and upland cotton, and were also in effect for each of the 1979 crops of corn and sorghum. No diversion programs will be in effect for 1980 crops.

Grain reserves.—A producer-owned food grain reserve program for wheat and rice which provides 3-year extended loans to producers was announced in April 1977. This program was later expanded to include feed grains. Producers receive annual storage payments under the contract. Program provisions establish when interest is charged and various market price levels at which storage payments cease, and loans are called. During the past year, significant redemptions from the reserve were made, and on October 22, 1979, the Secretary authorized entry into the reserve of 1978 crop grain then under CCC loan, and also 1979 grain crops eligible for loan. Current reserve goals are up to 9-11 million metric tons of wheat and up to 20-30 million metric tons of feed grains. These planned reserves may be adjusted when an international emergency food reserve, discussed below, is established.

The President is encouraged in the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 to enter into negotiations with other nations to develop an international system of emergency food reserves to provide for humanitarian food relief needs. Under an international agreement providing for an emergency food reserve, the United States would be expected to establish a reserve of grain. To the extent authorized by enabling legislation, quantities of grain would be placed in the reserve as needed to carry out U.S. obligations under such international agreement.

Disaster reserve.—Under section 813 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as amended, the Secretary shall establish, maintain, and dispose of a separate reserve of inventories of not to exceed 75 million bushels of wheat, feed grains, and soybeans for the purpose of alleviating distress caused by a natural disaster. The Secretary shall acquire such commodities through the price support program. When no wheat, feed grains, or soybeans are available through the price support program at locations where they may be economically utilized, the Secretary is authorized to purchase such commodities as well as hay or livestock forages through CCC facilities as are needed. Any costs for this activity are included in the CCC appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses.

Emergency feed program.—The Secretary is authorized in section 1105 of the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977 to implement a program to assist producers in preserving and maintaining livestock in case of a natural disaster. The eligible livestock owner is reimbursed for up to 50% of the cost of feed purchased. A program was implemented in 1978, 1979 and 1980.

Special grazing and hay program.—The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, provides that for the 1978–81 crops, a producer may designate up to 40% or 50 acres of his acreage, whichever is greater, which he intends to plant to wheat, feed grains, or upland cotton for harvest, to be planted to wheat (or another commodity other than corn or grain sorghum) and used for grazing or for hay. The Secretary shall pay the producer for participating in the program but the producer shall not be eligible for any other payment or price support on the designated acreage. Special grazing and hay programs were in effect for the 1978 and 1979 crops of wheat.

Pilot projects loan guarantees for industrial hydrocarbons.—The Secretary is directed in section 509 of the Rural Development Act of 1972, as amended, to formulate and carry out a program for the production and marketing of industrial hydrocarbons and alcohols from agricultural commodities and forestry products. Commodity Credit Corporation is required to guarantee loans of up to $15 million each for not more than four pilot projects, for up to 20 years. In order to insure a dependable supply of agricultural commodities for such pilot projects, the Secretary is authorized to enter into long-term contracts, not to exceed 5 years, to supply agricultural commodities at mutually agreed upon prices, either from Commodity Credit Corporation stocks or through purchases. Evaluation of 30 project proposals received resulted in completion of project selection during 1979, with loan guarantees totaling $42.7 million tentatively approved. Final approval of the four loan guarantees is expected in 1980.

Administrative expenses.—The Corporation carries out its functions through utilization of employees and facilities of other Government agencies. Administrative expenses are incurred for the services of: the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Agricultural Marketing Service, Foreign Agricultural Service—General Sales Manager, and other agencies of the Department engaged in the Corporation's activities; the General Accounting Office for audit; and the General Services Administration for space. Estimates for 1981 include a limitation of $53.6 million on administrative expenses, including a reserve of not less than 7% for contingencies.

The requested authorization does not include administrative expenses in connection with the wool and mohair program under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, because they are included with the cost of this program under special activities.

Nonadministrative expenses.—Expenses for acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program expenses rather than administrative expenses. Such program expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors; work relating to CCC programs performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; and special services performed by other Federal agencies within and outside this Department.

Most of these general nonadministrative expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing, and grading and producer storage payments, are included in program costs. They are shown in the program and financing schedule in the entries entitled "Storage, transportation, and other costs not included above," and "Producer storage payments." The item "Nonadministrative expense," in the schedule, covers part of the expenses of ASCS county offices for work related to programs of the Corporation, other Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service expenses offset by revenue, custodian, and agency expense of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

The Corporation receives reimbursement for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 (7 U.S.C. 447-449) by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation, through the appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses. There have been no requisitions in recent years, however.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's charter act and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1981 estimate
	Gross obligations	Outlays (reimbursable)
(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies		— 135,000
(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for dollars on credit terms	876,400	540,400
(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad	747,600	747,600
(4) National Wool Act	40,421	40,421
Total	1,655,421	1,193,421

The Corporation receives appropriations or reimbursement for cost of these activities as described under each.

To the extent that sufficient appropriations are not provided in advance, expenditures under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, not in excess of such limitations as may be provided in appropriation acts, are made by the Corporation subject to reimbursement from subsequent appropriations authorized for such purpose.

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (see Foreign Assistance programs for details of items (1)-(3)):

(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I, Public Law 480).

(2) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms (titles I and III, Public Law 480).

(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II, Public Law 480).

(4) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended and as further amended by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1977, support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. The Corporation makes payments to producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the support price required under the act.

Total payments made under the National Wool Act cannot at any time exceed an amount equal to 70% of the accumulated totals, as of the same date, of the gross receipts from import duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and wool manufactures. Actual or estimated payments compared with this limitation are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Funds of the Corporation are used to carry on this program. For the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation, section 705 of the act appropriates each fiscal year an amount equal to amounts expended by the Corporation during the preceding year and to amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed, but not to exceed an amount equal to 70% of the gross receipts from duties collected on wool and wool manufactures during the calendar year preceding the fiscal year.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $20 billion.

Funds are borrowed from Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies and others. The Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies and others. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate of all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on other notes and obligations at a rate prescribed by the Commodity Credit Corporation and approved by the Secretary of Treasury.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964, on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after the end of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

The computation of the transfer from interest-bearing to non-interest-bearing capital is (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Realized deficit not previously reimbursed, start of year.....	4,047,089	6,356,076	5,051,036

Total non-interest-bearing, end of year.....	3,056,189	3,299,887	1,751,149

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions, the estimated requirements indicate no need for an increase in borrowing authority. Since there are so many uncontrollable factors involving crops which have not even been planted, it must be recognized that estimates are highly tentative.

Note.—Accounts payable, accrued liabilities and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

Contract authority.—Support and other programs required by statute may result in the Corporation incurring obligations in excess of available funds and borrowing authority. Such obligations are liquidated from subsequent appropriations and other funds which may become available to the Corporation. Any increase in obligations in excess of available fund resources is reported as contract authority in the year involved; a decrease is reported as the application of appropriations and other funds to liquidate the authority. The budget reflects none in 1980 and 1981. It is estimated that unobligated balances of authority to borrow will amount to $5,707 million at the end of 1980 and $8,676 million at the end of 1981.

Appropriations.—Under section 2 of Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The realized losses for 1979 subject to reimbursement were $3,299.9 million, and the prior cumulative losses not yet appropriated for were $6,356.1 million at September 30. An appropriation of $3,299.9 million in fiscal year 1981 would fully reimburse the Corporation for its unreimbursed realized losses through September 30, 1979. The special activities are financed as indicated in the program descriptions above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance programs (see p. 123).

Deficit.—The net realized losses of the Corporation have previously been reimbursed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Legislation is pending for a nationwide all-risk crop insurance program, which would necessitate an increase of $116,610 thousand in CCC obligations and would result in a decrease of $3,390 thousand in outlays in 1981. The outcome of this legislation assumes appropriations to FCIC for all operating costs, that premium income and indemnity payments would be handled within the CCC funds and that CCC disaster payments will be extended for the 1981 crops. However, for the 1981 crops, producers may elect disaster payments or crop insurance, but not both.

Note.—Includes $120 thousand in fiscal year 1981 for activities previously financed from: "Salaries and Expenses," Farmers Home Administration. Comparable amounts for 1979, $60 thousand, and 1980, $120 thousand, are excluded above.

The Rural Electrification Administration, under authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, makes insured loans and guarantees loans made by other qualified lenders to rural electric and telephone borrowers for the purpose of extending and improving electric and telephone service in rural areas. The Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund, established by Public Law 93-32, approved May 11, 1973, is the source of financing for the insured loans, while the Federal Financing Bank is the primary source for the loan guarantee financing. In the electric program most of the insured loans are made concurrently with supplemental financing provided by the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) or some other supplemental financing source. In the telephone program supplemental financing is provided primarily through the Rural Telephone Bank. The Bank utilizes the employees and facilities of REA and the Office of the General Counsel on a part-time basis without cost to the Bank. Also, under authorities transferred to REA from the Farmers Home Administration REA will provide loans and guarantees of loans for Community Antenna Television facilities.

In addition, in order to protect the Government's loan security on over $34 billion of outstanding loans and guarantees made to borrowers, to assure that construction and operation of the electric and telephone systems conform to approved standards, and that the systems continue to provide reliable service at the lowest possible cost to the consumer, REA furnishes business management and technical assistance on a regular basis, as well as upon special request, to its borrowers. This objective is carried out through regulations, personal visits to the borrowers, and by training. REA has personnel in the Washington office and a field staff who have expertise in the electric or telephone industry and who are available to assist borrowers in specialized areas.

The Rural development insurance fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 116 of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-419) approved August 30, 1972.

The Rural communication development fund was established pursuant to Secretary's Memorandum No. 1988 approved May 22, 1979, which transferred certain financing authorities under the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921 et seq.) from the Farmers Home Administration to the Rural Electrification Administration for the purpose of financing and administering community antenna television services or facilities in rural areas. The fund is used to make or guarantee loans for community antenna television services or facilities.

The objective of the community facility loan program is to make or insure loans to organizations not operated for profit for the purpose of providing community antenna television service or facilities to rural areas comparable to those in urban areas. These loans are repayable in 35 years and bear interest not in excess of 5%. The business and industrial development loans may be made to organizations organized and operated on a profit or nonprofit basis for the purpose of financing community antenna television service or facilities to rural areas comparable to those in urban areas. These loans are repayable in 35 years and bear interest at the cost of Treasury borrowing plus an increment to cover administrative costs.

Note.—Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in loan guarantees. Purchases of these certificates are reflected as increases in loans outstanding and reductions in loan guarantees. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct loan or loan guarantee limitation levels.

Rural housing insurance fund.—This fund was established in 1965 (Public Law 89-117) pursuant to section 517 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. Initial capitalization of the fund at $100 million was provided by the Supplemental Appropriations Act of 1966. Public Law 91-152 abolished the rural housing direct loan account and transferred its assets, liabilities and authorizations to the fund.

This fund may be used to insure or guarantee rural housing loans, loans for rural rental and cooperative housing, farm labor housing loans, and rural housing site loans. Beginning in 1978, rental assistance payments were also made from the fund, and a special home ownership assistance program (HOAP) is scheduled for implementation in 1981. Loan programs are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, and other places of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area, and areas with a population in excess of 10,000 but less than 20,000, if such area is not included in a standard metropolitan statistical area and has a serious lack of mortgage credit for low- and moderate-income borrowers.

The objective of the RHIF housing loan program is to provide necessary housing for low- and moderate-income rural residents if their needs cannot be met with financial assistance from other sources. Under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1977, at least 60% of the amount of loans made for home ownership and rental purposes must be used to benefit persons of low income. With the implementation in 1978 of the rental assistance program, scheduled implementation of HOAP in 1981, and the continued use of HUD section 8 assistance, FmHA will be able to serve the whole range of lower income families, which conforms to the objective of providing service to those people who have the greatest need.

In 1979, the Department implemented a targeted housing strategy that gives high priority to providing housing assistance to families with the greatest need. This targeting strategy was a result of a comprehensive study of rural housing program needs, goals, and past accomplishments conducted at the request of the President by a task force under USDA leadership with the Department of Housing and Urban Development and Office of Management and Budget participation.

This proposed budget continues the study's targeting strategy which has a goal of maximizing housing assistance to families with the lowest incomes. Priority will be given to assisting low-income families who occupy inadequate housing and/or have excessive rent burdens. The strategy utilizes several new program initiatives contained in recently enacted legislation. The special home ownership assistance program was proposed and enacted to serve very low-income families where it is a more cost effective alternative than FmHA's other very low income housing assistance programs (rental assistance, and repair loans and grants). A Federal subsidy recovery program was proposed so that subsidy costs of current and proposed programs may be partially or totally recovered when a family sells its house and the proceeds of the sale are sufficient to repay the principal and interest on the mortgage, sales commission, and an incentive payment to the borrower. The remainder may be recovered by the Government to the extent that subsidies have been granted during the life of the loan, with any proceeds above these amounts retained by the borrower.

Very low-income housing repair loans.—Home repair loans for very low-income owner-occupants are made from amounts available in this fund. These loans, which may not exceed $7,500 are made to families and individuals to repair their dwellings in order to make them safe and sanitary and remove health hazards to the families or the community. The loans are made at 1% interest for a term of not more than 20 years.

Low- to moderate-income housing loans.—Individual home ownership loans are made to low- and moderate-income individuals and families who are unable to obtain home ownership financing from conventional sources on terms they reasonably can be expected to meet. Loans may be made to eligible applicants to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings, and may include funds to purchase a house and building site. These loans currently bear interest at 10% with provisions for interest credits which may reduce the effective interest rate to as low as 1% and are repayable in not more than 33 years.

Home ownership assistance.—Under section 502 certain low-income borrowers may receive additional subsidies when interest credit alone is not sufficient to enable the borrowers to afford modest housing. The additional subsidies would allow the borrowers to contribute 25% of their adjusted incomes toward the basic shelter cost components of principal, interest, taxes, insurance, utilities, and maintenance, and the Government would contribute the balance.

The budget authority shown for the home ownership assistance program reflects the full cost of the program over the maximum possible term of the agreements. The actual operating costs will be substantially less. The anticipated net operating cost for the HOAP program is expected to be substantially less because of several factors: (1) not all HOAP borrowers will remain on the HOAP program for periods approaching 33 years, (2) many of the long-term HOAP recipients will receive increments to their incomes that will reduce their need for HOAP subsidy below the projected amounts, (3) subsidy recapture will be applied on the units when the subsidized family ceases occupancy of the unit and this will return to the Government a portion of the unit's past subsidy cost. A projection of the net cost of HOAP, using conservative program attrition and recapture assumptions, indicates that approximately 74 percent of the gross budget authority being provided for the subsidization of the HOAP units will either not be realized or will be returned to the RHIF under the recapture provision of the program.

Above moderate-income housing loans.—Individual home ownership loans made by local lenders to eligible above moderate-income rural residents may be guaranteed by FmHA to enable the individual to obtain modest housing when credit cannot be obtained elsewhere without FmHA's guarantee of the loan. The interest rate on the loan is at a rate negotiated by the borrower and the lender.

Rural rental housing loans.—Rural rental and cooperative housing loans are made to individuals, corporations, partnerships and public bodies with the objective of providing low-rent housing for low- to moderate-income persons and the elderly. This program is being operated in tandem with the HUD section 8 rental assistance program and the FmHA rental assistance program.

Rental assistance.—The objective of the rental assistance program is to reduce rents paid by low-income families living in FmHA financed rental projects and farm labor housing projects. Under this program, low-income tenants pay no more than 25% of their adjusted monthly income for rent. Payments from the fund are made to the project owner to make up the difference between the tenant's payment and the approved rental rate established for the unit.

Rural housing site loans.—Site development loans are made for the purchase and development of land to be subdivided into building sites and sold on a nonprofit basis to low- and moderate-income families or to organizations for rental or cooperative housing.

The following table shows preliminary 1979 and estimated 1980, and 1981 program levels and units.

¹ Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in loan guarantees. Purchases of these certificates are reflected as increases in loans outstanding and reductions in loan guarantees. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct loan or loan guarantee limitation levels.

* Includes $2,000 million for emergency disaster loans not subject to limitation.

The Agricultural credit insurance fund is used to insure or guarantee farm ownership, soil and water, recreation, farm operating, and emergency loans to individuals, as well as the following types of loans to associations: Irrigation and drainage, grazing, Indian land acquisition, watershed protection, flood prevention, and resource conservation and development.

Loans may be made by the fund from available receipts or Treasury borrowings. Loans made by the fund are held in a pool as security for certificates of beneficial ownership which are sold primarily to the Federal Financing Bank. FmHA is also authorized to provide financial assistance to borrowers by guaranteeing loans made by private lenders having a contract of guarantee from FmHA as approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Public Law 92-419, approved August 30, 1972, abolished the Farmers Home Administration Direct loan account and the Emergency credit revolving fund and provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, these accounts to the Agricultural credit insurance fund. It also provided for transfer from the Agricultural credit insurance fund to the Rural Development Insurance Fund of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities.

The following loans are financed through this fund:

Number of loans	97
Amount of loans	$19.0

The Emergency Livestock Credit Act, Public Law 93-357, approved July 25, 1974, authorized the making of guaranteed loans to provide temporary financing to livestock producers and feeders. The FmHA guaranteed loans made by banks or other legally organized lenders to farmers and ranchers in order that they could continue their normal farming or ranching operations. The loan interest rate was agreed upon between the lender and the borrower. The statutory period for guaranteed loans under the emergency livestock program expired September 30, 1979.

ECONOMIC EMERGENCY LOANS—OBLIGATIONS

	[Dollars in millions]
	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of loans	47,302	15,300
Amount of loans	$3,089.5	$1,100.0

Economic emergency loans make financial assistance available during the period authorized by Public Law 95-334, approved August 4, 1978 (authority expires May 15, 1980), in the form of loans insured or guaranteed by FmHA for bona fide farmers and ranchers who are primarily and directly engaged in agricultural production. This will enable them to continue their normal farming or ranching operations during the economic emergency which has caused a lack of agricultural credit due to national or areawide economic stress such as a general tightening of agricultural credit or an unfavorable relationship between production costs and prices received for agricultural commodities.

The total principal balance outstanding at any time on an economic emergency loan will not exceed $400 thousand. Borrowers indebted to FmHA for a farm ownership loan, operating loan, or a soil and water loan may be considered for an economic emergency loan provided the total outstanding principal indebtedness to FmHA will not exceed $650 thousand. Emergency disaster and emergency livestock loans will not be considered in determining the $650 thousand loan limitation on economic emergency loans.

Loans for operating purposes will be scheduled for repayment for up to 7 years although if unusual conditions exist, this period may be extended, but for not more than 20 years. Loans for real estate purposes will be repaid in a period not to exceed 40 years. The interest rate charged for insured loans will be at the cost of money. The guaranteed loan interest rate will be negotiated between the lender and the borrower.

Number of loans	62,913	49,800	36,230
Amount of loans	$2,871.6	$2,500.0	$2,000.0

Emergency loans are made available in designated counties where property damage and/or severe production losses have occurred as a direct result of a natural disaster. For non-loss situations, emergency loans are made to established eligible farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture operators at a market rate of interest as established periodically by the Secretary for annual operating expenses, major adjustments and other essential needs arising from natural disasters.

Actual loss loans are made for physical losses to repair, restore, or replace damaged or destroyed farm property and supplies, and for production losses to compensate for loss of income based on reduced production of crops, livestock, and livestock products resulting from the disaster. Repayment terms vary according to the purposes of the loan and the projected reasonable repayment ability of the borrower. Loans for actual losses to crops, livestock, supplies, and equipment may be scheduled for repayment for up to 7 years. These loans may be renewed for up to 2 years. Under some conditions a longer repayment period may be authorized, but not to exceed 20 years. Generally, real estate will be needed as security when more than 7 years is authorized. Real estate loans will be scheduled for repayment for up to 40 years. Annual operating expenses usually will be scheduled for repayment each year when the principal income from the year's operations is received. The appropriation language makes funds available in such amounts as may be necessary to meet the needs resulting from natural disasters.

The interest rate is 3% on emergency loans for actual losses caused by disasters occurring between July 1, 1976, and September 30, 1978. The interest rate on loans for actual losses occurring on and after October 1, 1978 is 5%.

Note.—Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in loan guarantees. Purchases of these certificates are reflected as increases in loans outstanding and reductions in loan guarantees. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(5). These transactions are not reflected in the direct loan or loan guarantee limitation levels.

The Rural development insurance fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 116 of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-419), approved August 30, 1972, which also provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities to this fund.

The fund is used to insure or guarantee loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities, community facilities, and industrial development in rural areas.

The objective of the water and waste disposal loan program is to assist eligible borrowers (communities and others) to provide assistance for basic human amenities, alleviate health hazards and promote the orderly growth of rural areas by meeting the need for new and improved rural water and waste disposal systems and meet National clean water standards. The objective of the community facility loan program is to assist rural communities in developing or improving essential community facilities.

Water and waste disposal development loans and essential community facility loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes, corporations not operated for profit, and public and quasi-public agencies. Water and waste disposal development loans are made for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water and or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. Community facility loans are made to construct, enlarge, extend, or otherwise improve community facilities providing essential service to rural residents. Such facilities include those providing or supporting overall community development such as fire and rescue services, transportation, and community, social, cultural, and recreational benefits. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers, and other rural residents in rural areas which shall not include any areas in any city or town having a population in excess of 10,000 inhabitants according to the latest decennial census of the United States. These loans are repayable in terms not to exceed the useful life of the facility or 40 years, whichever is less, and bear interest not in excess of 5%.

The objective of the industrial development loan program is to facilitate the development or improvement of business and industry in rural areas, to stimulate economic growth, to create employment opportunities, and to improve the environmental climate.

The industrial development loans may be made to a cooperative, corporation, partnership, trust, or other legal entity organized and operated on a profit or non-profit basis; Indian tribe; municipality, county or other political subdivision of a State; or an individual. Loans are made for the purposes of financing business and industrial acquisition, construction, conversion, enlargement, repair or modernization; financing the purchase and development of land, easements, rights-of-way, buildings, equipment, facilities, leases, machinery, supplies, and materials; and payment of startup costs and supplying working capital.

Industrial development loans may be made in any area that is not within the outer boundary of any city having a population of 50,000 or more and its immediately adjacent urbanized and urbanizing areas with a population density of more than 100 persons per square mile. Special consideration for such loans is given to areas having a population of less than 25,000. These loans, except for public bodies, are repayable in three separate maturities not exceeding 30 years. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is determined by the lender and the borrower. The interest rate for loans made by Farmers Home Administration to private entrepreneurs is computed on the cost of Treasury borrowing plus an increment to cover administrative costs; loans to public bodies borrowing to install community facilities necessary for community development are made at 5% with maximum maturity of 40 years.

In 1979, loans for community antenna television services and facilities were made by the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) and financed by the Rural Development Insurance Fund. REA has established the Rural Communication Development Fund for these loans in 1980. $10,000,000 of the community facility insured loan authorization and $24,000,000 of the industrial development guaranteed loan authorization for 1980 has been transferred to this new account.

1. Technical assistance.—Technical assistance is provided through conservation districts to land users and decisionmakers, including individual landowners and operators, community groups, units of government, Indian tribes, and others for the planning of conservation programs and installation of needed conservation measures and practices on the land, including design, layout, installation services, and consultation on those practices and measures provided for in resource conservation plans.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation practices are planned in relation to each other to achieve well-balanced conservation programs. The Service aids land users, units of government, and other policy and decisionmakers assemble relevant information and consider the potentials and alternatives before they make long-term decisions. Both vegetative and structural measures are installed in harmony with the needs of the land for protection, treatment, and resource improvement. Plans reflect the decisions of the land users, community groups, and units of government concerning the use and treatment of land and water resources.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service explain the various soil conditions, develop alternative uses and treatments, help to evaluate the costs and returns of conservation work, and furnish assistance in applying the needed treatments.

The technical services provided through conservation operations are instrumental in encouraging farmers, ranchers, and others to establish conservation practices. For each dollar used to provide technical assistance, the individual landowner or user invests over $2 in conservation work.

In addition, technical assistance is provided to participants in the agricultural conservation cost-share program in establishing specified enduring practices and measures; to participants in other programs involving land-use adjustments and soil and water conservation; in support of the experimental rural clean water program; in the planning and application of soil and water conservation practices for which loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration; and to rural development committees. Technical assistance on special national soil, water, and related resource problems such as land-use planning, mine spoil restoration, control of erosion, sedimentation, agricultural-related pollutants, and protection and enhancement of the environment is also provided.

Conservation technical assistance special program emphasis items in 1980 (including assistance on Indian tribal lands, small farms, agricultural waste management, critically eroded lands, and water quality planning assistance) are continued in 1981. Emphasis will be continued on new surface mine areas, conversion of marginal cropland to pasture and hayland, and water conservation and management for 1981.

2. Inventorying and monitoring.—Inventorying and monitoring provides soil, water, and related resource data for land conservation, use, and development, for guidance of community development to achieve a balanced rural-urban growth, for identification of prime agriculture-producing areas that should be protected, for evaluating land-use changes and trends, and for use in protecting the quality of the environment.

3. Soil surveys.—Soil surveys and investigations are made of the Nation's soil resources, with interpretations and publications that provide physical land facts needed for program development, resource conservation planning, installation of planned practices, and for use by other Federal, State, and local agencies in land-use planning.

4. Snow survey water forecasting.—Water supply forecasts prepared from snow surveys in western States are useful in making efficient seasonal use of water for irrigation, flood control, fish and wildlife, recreation, power generation, municipal and industrial water supply, and water quality management.

5. Operation of plant materials centers.—The selection and evaluation of plant materials are made at 20 plant materials centers through field trials to determine their suitability for erosion control, conservation, and other environmental improvements.

6. Resource appraisal and program development.—Resource appraisal and program development is carried out to insure that programs administered by the Secretary of Agriculture for the conservation of soil, water, and related resources shall respond to the Nation's long-term needs. The Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 provides for a report to the public and Congress at 5-year intervals beginning January 1980.

1. River basin surveys.—The Department participates in cooperative surveys and investigations in river basins primarily with State water resource agencies, but also with other interested Federal and local entities. Priority is given to studies which: (a) solve nonpoint source pollution problems, including salinity; (b) protect important farm and wetlands; and (c) improve irrigation efficiencies and conservation of water.

The Department also is represented on the Water Resources Council which was formed in accordance with section 101, Public Law 89-80, Water Resources Planning Act, to coordinate water and related land resource activities of Federal departments and agencies. USDA costs related to WRC interagency river basin studies (level B) are financed by reimbursable agreement.

2. Flood plain management assistance.—Through this cooperative program, SCS assists local governments in carrying out flood hazard studies and provides technical assistance for the development of a flood plain management program. These detailed technical studies delineate flood-prone areas and floodways on maps for local use in implementing programs to reduce hazards to life and property from flooding.

SCS performs flood insurance studies for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Federal Insurance Administration (FIA) on a reimbursable basis. Currently, the SCS has 146 flood insurance studies underway. HUD reimburses SCS for full cost of study work.

3. Interagency coordination and program formulation.—The Department maintains representation on six river basin commissions, three river basin interagency committees, and the Water Resources Council. These serve as points of contact in coordinating representatives of this Department and other Federal Departments and agencies and the States in these basin areas. Department representatives keep concerned parties informed of the activities of the member agencies and facilitate interagency coordination.

The Department cooperates with other agencies and the States in planning works of improvement in small watersheds to reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion and for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water.

The Department makes surveys of proposed small watershed projects, and work plans are prepared in cooperation with local sponsors. These plans outline the soil and water management problems in the watershed, the steps that have been or are authorized to be taken to alleviate these problems, the proposed works of improvement to be installed, the estimated benefits and costs, cost sharing, and operation and maintenance arrangements, and other facts necessary to justify Federal participation in project development. In order to utilize available resources to complete work in process, no new planning starts will be initiated in 1981.

This program provides for cooperation between the Federal Government and States and their political subdivisions in installing works of improvement to (1) reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion, (2) for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water, and (3) the conservation and proper utilization of land. Loans are available through the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration to local organizations to help them finance their share of the costs for certain works of improvement.

Watershed operations authorized by Public Law 534.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention in 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development.

The Department furnishes technical and, in certain instances, financial assistance to landowners to accelerate planning and installation of land treatment measures for runoff retardation, sediment control, and water management. Local sponsoring organizations must furnish all land easements and rights-of-way, water rights, all costs of works of improvement for nonagricultural water management measures (except for those related to fish and wildlife development and recreation) and operate and maintain all completed works of improvement.

Within the 11 authorized projects, 398 subwatershed areas have been identified for planning purposes. Installation progress in these subwatersheds is as follows:

Emergency watershed protection operations.—This program authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to undertake such emergency measures for runoff retardation and soil erosion prevention as may be needed to safeguard life and property from floods and the products of erosion on any watershed whenever natural elements or force causes a sudden impairment of that watershed. An emergency is considered to exist when a watershed is suddenly impaired by flood, fire, wind, earthquake, or other natural cause and consequently life and property are endangered by floodwater, erosion, or sediment discharge. The emergency area need not be declared a national disaster area to be eligible for emergency watershed protection. Emergency watershed protection is applicable to small scale, localized disasters as well as large scale disasters. State environmental, natural resource, fish and game, and other agencies participate in planning and coordinating emergency work.

Emergency operations on non-Federal land are sponsored by State or local organizations. Emergency operations supplement other Federal, State, and local resources committed to alleviate the hazard. Conditions essential to funding assistance are that a watershed impairment must have occurred suddenly as a result of a natural element or force and there exists a threat to life or property from floods or the products of erosion. Sponsoring organizations must provide needed land rights, water rights, and permits and accept responsibility for operation and maintenance, if required, all without cost to the emergency operation funds. The Forest Service does this work on lands it administers and on lands adjacent to Forest Service land which they administer under formal agreement. Funds are made available to the Forest Service from this appropriation.

Small watershed operations authorized by Public Law 566.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install measures for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife enhancement.

Watershed work plans are prepared by sponsoring local organizations with the Department's assistance or through State and local resources. After work plans are approved by the Department or Congress (projects where the estimated Federal contribution will exceed $1 million require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specific works of improvements.

Land treatment and engineering services are provided to approved projects in advance of construction. During the preconstruction state, surveys, and investigations are made and detailed designs, specifications, and engineering cost estimates are prepared for structural measures, land rights areas are identified, and the technical services are furnished for accelerating planning and application of land treatment measures.

On non-Federal lands, local sponsoring organizations must acquire water rights and furnish land, easements, and rights-of-way for all structural measures, except up to 50% of the cost of land rights allocated to public fish and wildlife and recreational developments may be paid from Public Law 566 funds. Local sponsoring organizations have the option of contracting for construction work or may request SCS to do the contracting for them. Local sponsoring organizations must operate and maintain completed works of improvement and in the case of multiple-purpose structures, bear a share of the construction costs. On Federal lands, Federal agencies do this work on lands they administer with appropriate contributions made by local people who receive benefits.

No new construction starts will be initiated in 1981, and ongoing construction will be continued at a slightly accelerated rate.

The following tabulation shows the status of Public Law 566 projects.

Loan services.—Loans are made to local sponsoring organizations to finance the local cost of installing works of improvement in Public Law 534 and approved Public Law 566 watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available. Loans are made from funds available for this purpose from the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from this appropriation.

This program provides cost-share and technical services to participating landowners or operators in the Great Plains area in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans and practices for their land under contracts entered into in prior years. It is a voluntary program which complements other conservation programs of the Department in 469 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Contracts with individual landowners range in time from 3 to 10 years.

Plans of conservation operations are made for each farm or ranch as a basis for cost sharing on approved practices. The fundamental purposes of this program are to achieve needed land use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability of each operating unit. The planned work is installed under contract according to specific time schedules.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

Program participants:	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of new contracts during year.....	1,043	807	1,000
Number of contracts serviced during year.....	14,575	13,054	12,554
Number of acres under contracts	107,757,928	110,179,000	113,179,000

As of September 30, 1979, there were about 12,247 active contracts on hand. Cooperating landowners or operators finance the entire cost of installing recurring management-type practices and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices installed on their land.

Program regulations provide that cost-share rates offered in any contract shall not exceed 80% of the cost of installing eligible practices within the designated county. The rates vary among States and practices due to differences in conservation and program needs. Cost sharing for irrigation practices in any one contract shall not exceed $7,500 or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation. There is a cost-sharing limitation of $25 thousand for any contract.

Each participant who signs a Great Plains program contract is responsible for implementing his plan of operations; and the Department is committed to furnish the necessary technical help needed for design, layout, and other services. Cooperating landowners and operators are encouraged to make use of other available assistance under local, State, and Federal programs as a means of further improving their land and water resources.

This program provides for the Department to assist States, local units of government, groups and individuals in developing area plans for resource conservation and development (R.C. & D.).

Resource conservation and development areas are provided technical and financial assistance to help States and local units of government prepare plans for resource development and economic improvement and to plan and install community-type conservation projects or measures. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help carry out measures specified in R.C. & D. area plans.

No new R.C. & D. area authorizations or measure plans will be initiated in 1981. Funds will be used to complete work in process.

Loans are made to qualified local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of installing the measures. Funds will be available for loans from the Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund of the Farmers Home Administration.

The following tabulation shows the status of R.C. & D. areas authorized to receive technical and financial assistance and loan services:

* Includes capital investment as follows: 1979, $3,923 thousand; 1980, $4,003 thousand; 1981, $3,826 thousand.

The major objectives of the Service are to protect the animal and plant resources of the Nation from destructive pests and diseases.

1. Plant disease and pest control.—Through inspections at ports of entry, insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and animal pests and diseases harmful to agriculture are prevented from entering this country. Cooperative programs with the States are conducted to prevent the spread of and/or to eradicate certain plant pests already established in this country. The 1981 estimates propose increases for agricultural quarantine inspection, bio-control, and Mexican fruit fly programs; reductions in boll weevil, citrus blackfly, golden nematode, grasshopper, Japanese beetle, miscellaneous plant diseases and pests, noxious weeds, pest detection, and pink bollworm programs. The 1981 estimates propose no funding for the imported fire ant, multi-flora rose, range caterpillar, fruit flies in Hawaii and sugarcane root borer programs.

Selected examples of the level of activities for plant pest control programs follow:

Acres treated (thousands):
Boll weevil (high plains)	692	600
Grasshopper	7,200	7,500	7,500
Gypsy moth	131	72	72
Sterile insects released (millions):
Mexican fruit fly	31	50	312
Pink bollworm (adult moths)	510	450
Mediterranean fruit fly	1,519	7,800	15,600
Parasites released (thousands): Citrus blackfly	400	450	450
Total acres released from quarantine through eradication: Witchweed	4,200	3,000	3,000

The level of activity for agricultural quarantine inspection at ports of entry is as follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Plant and animal product and byproduct inspection:
Airplanes (thousands)	305	307	308
Vessels (thousands)	66	67	68
Vehicles from Mexico (millions)	45	46	47
Baggage, pieces (millions)	122	123	124

2. Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to keep communicable diseases of foreign origin from entering this country and to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics. In cooperation with States, other programs are directed at the control and eradication of livestock diseases present in this country. Foreign animal diseases, should they enter this country, are rapidly diagnosed and outbreaks which are of economic significance and for which the Secretary of Agriculture declares a national emergency are controlled and eradicated. The animal care programs regulate the humane care and handling of approximately 40 million warmblooded commercial (pet) and laboratory animals, restrict animal fighting ventures and prohibit the soring of horses. Part of the program includes the exportation of healthy and sound livestock in a humane manner. The 1981 estimates propose increases for veterinary diagnostics, emergency programs, and screwworm eradication. The 1981 estimates propose decreases for the miscellaneous animal diseases, poultry diseases, pseudorabies, scabies, swine disease surveillance, and tuberculosis programs.

The level of activities for the major control programs on animal diseases and pests is as follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Brucellosis: Certified free States	30	31	32
Swine Disease Surveillance: Investigations of suspect cases	411	431	421
Screwworm:
Cases in U.S. outside of barrier zone	246
Cases in U.S. part of barrier zone	1,625	32
Cases in Mexico part of barrier zone	11,000	1,503	500
Scabies: Number of Federal quarantines placed because of psoroptic cattle scabies	18	20	15
Tuberculosis (cattle): Herds depopulated (per year)	13	18	17
Cattle ticks:
Premises quarantined outside barrier zone because of infestation with cattle fever ticks	6	8	7
Premises quarantined within barrier zone because of infestation with cattle fever ticks	22	20	20
Percent veterinary biologics tested for potency	23	28	30
Import inspection:
Animals (thousands)	900	1,200	1,200
Personally owned pet birds (lots)	3,000	4,000	5,000
Commercial birds (thousands)	500	500	600
Animal care: Complaint investigated and resolved	703	800	800

3. Construction of facilities.—Construction was begun in 1979 on the Stewart Animal Import Center which replaces the animal quarantine station at Clifton, N.J., and completed on an international animal quarantine station at Fleming Key, Fla. Funds for these projects were appropriated in previous years. In 1980, the Department expects to construct a bio-control facility at Mission, Tex. In 1981 the Department requests planning funds for a Mexican fruit fly facility and planning and construction funds for a pink bollworm facility.

4. Contingencies.—Of the total annual amounts provided under this appropriation, $2.5 million is appropriated for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects, plant diseases, and animal diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions.

5. Reimbursement program.—Reimbursements include amounts for overtime and travel performed in connection with import-export inspection services and cooperative programs with other Federal agencies.

Public Law 85-592, approved September 12, 1964, authorized the sale of the Animal Quarantine Station at Clifton, N.J., to the city of Clifton, and the application of the proceeds of the sale to the planning and construction costs of a new station in the New York-New Jersey port and airport area. A sales contract between the Department and the city of Clifton was executed December 16, 1966, at the appraised value of $527 thousand. At that time, $100 thousand was paid to the Department and upon award for the architectural and engineering services for the new quarantine station at Stewart Airport, Newburgh, N.Y., the Department received an additional $100 thousand. The remaining $327 thousand was paid to the Department at the time of issuance of invitations to bid on the construction contract in the summer of 1978. In fiscal year 1970, $1.5 million was appropriated for construction of the new

The following services are financed by fees and miscellaneous contributions advanced by importers, manufacturers, States, organizations, individuals, and others:

1. Expenses and refunds, inspection, certification, and quarantine of animal products.—This includes inspection of products intended for human consumption and those products and byproducts not intended for human food. Animal products and byproducts moving in interstate and foreign commerce are subject to inspection and quarantine regulations to prevent the introduction and spread of animal diseases. Fees are paid in advance for services to be rendered. (7 U.S.C. 1621-1627) (21 U.S.C. 111).

2. Expenses, feed, and attendants for animals in quarantine.—Costs associated with the care of animals are paid from fees advanced by importers (21 U.S.C. 102). Also, nine facilities will be established in 1979 for the importation of pet birds.

3. Miscellaneous contributed funds.—Funds are received from States, local organizations, individuals, and others and are available for plant and animal quarantine inspection and cooperative plant and animal disease and pest control activities (7 U.S.C. 450b, 2220). Commencing with 1979, fees were collected for the importation of commercial birds.

The Federal Grain Inspection Service was established on November 20, 1976.

The mission of the Agency is to promote, protect, and facilitate domestic and foreign commerce of U.S. grain and related commodities in the interests of producers, merchandisers, warehousemen, processors, consumers of grain, and the nation by: Establishing official U.S. standards for grain and related commodities and for grain weighing scale and equipment accuracy; establishing the uniform application thereof by official inspection and weighing personnel; establishing official inspection and weighing services for grain and related commodities, and certifying and communicating the official grain quality and weights as authorized by the U.S. Grain Standards Act (USGSA), as amended, and the Agricultural Marketing Act (AMA) of 1946. The USGSA requires obligations associated with the activities of the headquarters office, as well as Federal supervision of all field-based inspection and weighing services, be financed from appropriations. USGSA requires obligations associated with the activities of the headquarters office, as well as Federal supervision of all field-based inspection and weighing services, be financed from appropriations.

Activities that will be performed during the year include: Continuing research to develop methods for improving the accuracy and uniformity in grading grain; monitoring, in foreign ports, grain officially inspected and weighed under the USGSA; the development, establishment, and monitoring for adequacy of official grading standards for grain; regulatory activities to include delegation, designation, and licensing of State and private agencies and their employees to perform inspection and weighing services; Federal program management and administration activities within the Service's headquarters office; and Federal supervision of field-based grain inspection and weighing services. The agency also has responsibility for standardization of rice and grain-related products which are covered by the AMA of 1946.

The Federal Grain Inspection Service was established to provide a revised and expanded grain inspection system and to develop a new weighing system. These services are financed through a fee supported revolving fund, and include: Official grain inspection and weighing at export ports; original inspection and weighing of the U.S. grain exported through Canada; Federal appeals of original grain inspections; and registration of grain firms operating in the export grain trade. The agency also provides grading services for rice and grain-related products which are covered by the Agricultural Marketing Act (AMA) of 1946, as amended. All field and Washington costs for this AMA grading service are financed from fees.

These activities assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities by providing a variety of marketing and regulatory services. These services continue to expand and become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the agricultural market structure undergoes extensive changes. Marketing changes include increased concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

1. Market news service.—This service provides current information on supply, movement, contractual agreements, inventories, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. Market news provides the American agricultural community with timely, accurate, and unbiased market information.

Where possible, market information is collected and disseminated through joint Federal/State effort utilizing both Federal and State personnel and resources. Market information is disseminated primarily by radio, television, and mailed reports. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

2. Administration of Packers and Stockyards Act.—The goal of this program is to assure fair play in the marketing of livestock, meat, and poultry. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition for livestock, meat, and poultry marketing in order to assure that farmers and ranchers receive the true market value for their livestock and poultry. Consumers and members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices in the marketing of meat and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which would unduly increase meat and poultry prices. Currently, efforts are being intensified to reduce the incidence of commercial bribery in the livestock and poultry industries.

The volume of work performed is indicated by the following examples:

3. Inspection, grading, classing, and standardization.—Nationally uniform standards of quality for non-food agricultural products and livestock are established and applied to specific lots of products to: Promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party.

4. Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of regulatory laws such as the U.S. Warehouse and Federal Seed Acts. To protect producers who store their products in public warehouses, AMS will license public warehousemen and conduct 3,506 unannounced examinations of cotton, grain, and rice warehouses during 1980. Also, to help assure truthful labeling of agricultural and vegetable seeds sold in interstate commerce, Federal seed inspectors will conduct tests on an estimated 6,000 samples of about 15 different kinds of seed during 1980. The research and promotion programs are designed to improve the competitive position and expand markets for cotton, beef, eggs, wheat, and wool Payments are made on a matching fund basis to State marketing agencies for carrying out specifically approved marketing service programs designed to bring about improved marketing. Under this activity, marketing specialists have worked with farmers, marketing firms, and agencies in solving marketing problems and in utilizing marketing research results. Beginning in 1980, projects funded by the Payments to States Program to improve the efficiency of the food distribution system will be coordinated with the Market Research and Development Program.

This program has covered such projects as: Methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products; ways of reducing marketing costs; expanding outlets for surplus products; collecting and disseminating special State and local market information and statistics; and improving the organizational structure of the marketing system.

Federal funds have not been included for this program for 1981. It is proposed that State marketing bureaus, or their equivalent, and private marketing resources perform this function from 1981 onward.

¹ The administrative fund totals are comprised of 47 separate independent order accounts in 1979. The Marketing Service fund totals are comprised of 35 separate independent order accounts in 1979.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended—under certain conditions—to issue Federal milk marketing orders establishing minimum prices which handlers are required to pay for milk purchased from producers.

Market administrators are responsible for carrying out locally the terms of specific marketing orders. Their operating expenses, partly financed by assessments on regulated handlers and partly by deductions from producers, are reported in these schedules. These funds are collected locally, deposited in local banks, and disbursed directly by the market administrator.

Each milk order is administered locally by a market administrator who is appointed by the Secretary. His staff is employed directly by the market administrator.

The expenses of each local office are met from an administrative fund and a marketing service fund which are prescribed in each order. The administrative fund is derived from prorated handler assessments. The marketing service fund of the individual order provides for the expense of disseminating market information to producers who are not members of a qualified cooperative. It also provides for the verification of the weights, sampling, and testing of milk from these producers. The cost of these services is borne by such producers.

The maximum rates for administrative assessment and for marketing services are set forth in each order and adjustments below these rates are made from time to time upon recommendations by the market administrator and upon approval of the Agricultural Marketing Service to provide reserves at about a 6-month operating level. Upon termination of any order, the statute provides for distributing the proceeds from net assets pro rata to contributing handlers or producers as the case may be.

Milk sold by regulated handlers supplied over 158 million persons in calendar year 1978.

The following table gives an indication of the role of Federal orders on the marketing of milk over the past few years:

The Food Safety and Quality Service (FSQS) was established in March 1977 by order of the Secretary pursuant to the Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953. Formerly diffused responsibilities for food safety, wholesomeness and quality were consolidated within FSQS by merging segments of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service and the Agricultural Marketing Service.

The main objectives of the agency are: (1) to serve as the Department's focal point for prevention of certain food related illnesses; (2) to assure consumers that they are offered safe, wholesome, nutritious, accurately and informatively labeled foods by inspecting, certifying, standardizing, and grading certain agricultural commodities intended for human consumption; (3) to assist both the public and commodity producers by purchasing agricultural goods for use in domestic feedings programs; and (4) to establish a uniform Government food purchase specification system. These objectives are carried out under four major activities.

1. Meat and poultry inspection.—Provides continuous inplant inspection of all domestic plants preparing meat and poultry products for sale or distribution in commerce; reviews inspection systems in foreign establishments preparing meat or poultry products for export to the United States; and provides technical and financial assistance to States maintaining meat and poultry inspection programs similar to Federal inspection.

2. Commodity purchase services, and specifications management.—The commodity purchase service provides administrative support necessary for the purchase of commodities for distribution under USDA food distribution programs to eligible outlets and price assistance to producers by removing agricultural commodities from regular market channels. The specifications management program establishes a uniform Federal food specification system to determine which characteristics should be required in foods purchased by the Government.

3. Egg products inspection.—Provides continuous inplant inspection of all plants manufacturing liquid, frozen or dried egg products; conducts quarterly inspection of egg handlers and hatcheries to ensure the proper disposition of restricted eggs; and controls the importation of egg products to make certain that imported products are produced under an inspection system equivalent to the American system.

4. Voluntary commodity inspection and grading program.—Establishes nationally uniform standards of quality and applies them to specific agricultural products to facilitate efficient and effective wholesale transactions, to encourage production and preparation of uniform quality products for market, and to furnish consumers with better information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal or Federal-State employees upon request and for a fee.

The food stamp program helps increase the food purchasing power of eligible households by enabling them to purchase food at retail stores with food stamp coupons.

1. Bonus.—Participating households receive food stamps whose value is determined by household size and income. This cost is borne entirely by the Federal government.

2. Matching for State administration.—State welfare agencies are responsible for certification of eligible households and for issuing the correct amount of food stamps. State administrative costs associated with the program are shared by the States and the Federal Government on a 50/50 basis. The Food Stamp Act provides that the Federal share for State agencies who reduce quality control error rates below 5% be increased from 50% to 60%, and that State agencies be reimbursed for not less than 75% of the total cost of food stamp investigations and prosecutions.

Payments to distributing agencies assist them in meeting the expenses incurred in the food distribution program.

3. Other program costs.—Other program costs include printing and transporting coupons to authorized State agencies, processing and destruction of redeemed coupons by Federal Reserve banks, added costs associated with State Employment Service activities, and other costs.

The program was originally designed to encourage the consumption of milk by children in non-profit schools of high school grade and under, child care centers, summer camps and similar institutions. The school lunch and other child nutrition programs also encourage the consumption of milk by subsidizing meals which include milk.

Subsidies are paid for the full cost of milk served free to children qualifying as eligible under the Secretary's guidelines. The subsidy for milk served to paying children is adjusted each school year to reflect changes in the Producer Price Index for Fresh Processed Milk.

Legislation is recommended to concentrate the benefits of the special milk program on those most in need. The subsidy for milk served to children from middle and upper income families would be reduced to 5 cents per half-pint in schools where the school lunch or school breakfast program is available. The subsidies for poor students in those schools and for all students in schools without the school lunch or breakfast programs would be unaffected by this proposal. In 1981, the school lunch and other child nutrition programs will spend over $800 million for milk.

The child nutrition programs are authorized by the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966. The activities include:

1. Cash payments to States.—The programs are operated under an agreement entered into by the State agencies and the Department. Funds are advanced to State agencies for subsidizing meals at schools and child care institutions. Sponsors make application to the State agencies, and if accepted, are reimbursed on a per-meal basis in accordance with the terms of their agreement and rates prescribed by law.

(a) School lunch.—Federal cash subsidies are provided to the States for service of lunches to all school children, regardless of family income. States must match some of the Federal cash grant from sources within the State. In 1981, a total of 4.4 billion lunches will be subsidized by the program.

(b) Special meal assistance.—Additional Federal cash subsidies are provided to the States for serving lunches free or at a reduced price to needy children. In 1981, the program will serve a total of 1.9 billion lunches to an average of 11.5 million participating children. Reduced-price lunches will comprise about 17% of the total.

(c) School breakfast.—Federal subsidies to the States are based on the number of breakfasts served free, at a reduced price, or to paying children. Certain schools, designated in severe need, receive higher rates of reimbursement. In 1981, a total of 630 million meals will be subsidized by the school breakfast program.

(d) Equipment assistance.—States are given grants-in-aid for institutions in low-income areas. Funds, apportioned by formula, are for the purchase of food service equipment. Forty percent of the amount is reserved for use in institutions without food service or which plan to initiate a lunch or breakfast program.

(e) State administrative expenses.—The funds may be used for State employee salaries, benefits, support services, program audits and office equipment.

(f) Summer feeding.—Meals served free to children in poor areas during the summer months are supported on a performance basis by Federal cash subsidies to State agencies. Funds are also provided for related State and local administrative expenses. During the summer of 1981, 125 million meals will be served to about 2.6 million children.

(g) Child care feeding.—Preschool children receive year-round food subsidies in child care centers and family day care homes. In 1981, 455 million meals will be subsidized. Funds are also provided for State audit expenses and for food service equipment.

2. Commodity procurement.—Commodities are granted to schools for the lunch and breakfast programs, and to institutions in the child care and summer feeding programs. Commodities are also acquired for these programs under programs that strengthen markets, income, and supply (section 32).

3. Nutritional studies and education.—In 1981, studies will assess the cost and evaluate the effectiveness of the child nutrition programs. Grants to States will also be made for nutrition education in the Nation's schools.

A large scale nationwide program of audits and strict enforcement of regulations will save $65 million in child nutrition program funds in 1981.

Legislation is recommended to moderate increases in spending and to target meal subsidies to needy children.

1. Cash payments to States—(a), (b) School lunch and special meal assistance.—Proposed legislation would reduce by 5 cents meal subsidies for middle and upper income students. Eligibility for free and reduced price meals would be revised to ensure subsidies reach students most in need.

(c) School breakfast.—There would be similar modifications for eligibility for free and reduced price breakfast subsidies.

(d) Summer feeding.—Private sponsors employing private food vendors would generally be excluded from the program to reduce the potential for fraud and abuse.

meal subsidies, consistent with those proposed for school lunch and breakfast. The authorization level for child care food service equipment assistance would be reduced.

2. Commodity procurement.—Reductions in meals served as a result of proposed legislation would require less commodity support.

The special supplemental food programs—the women, infants, children (WIC) program and the commodity supplemental food program—are designed to safeguard the health of pregnant, post-partum and breastfeeding women, infants and children who are at nutritional risk and have inadequate incomes.

The WIC program in 1981 will reach 2,013,200 recipients, while the commodity supplemental food program will serve another 100,000 persons a month. Per person cost increases in both programs are due to an anticipated increase in the cost of food.

Begun as a pilot program in 1973-74, WIC has grown into an important component of the domestic feeding efforts of the Federal Government. A growing body of medical evidence has linked this program to reduced infant mortality, reduced incidence of low birth weight in infants, and success in averting subnormal infant development. A recent study conducted by the Yale Medical School found dramatic reductions in infant mortality as a result of the WIC program. Another study conducted at the Harvard University School of Public Health found equally striking results. The Harvard study estimated that each $1 spent on pregnant women in WIC results in a $3 savings in hospitalization costs, WIC program benefits have been provided to more women and children each year since 1975 as shown below:

1. Forest research.—Research is conducted and disseminated through eight regional forest experiment stations, the Forest Products Laboratory, and the Institute of Topical Forestry both in-house and through extramural programs.

(a) Land and resource protection research.—Research is conducted to provide basic knowledge and improved technology in the protection of resources from fire, insects, and diseases; in the reclamation of surface mining areas; in the evaluation of renewable resources; and in land and resource economics.

(b) Renewable resource and utilization research.—Research is conducted to provide basic knowledge and improved technology for the management of timber, wildlife, fish, range, recreation, watershed, and urban resources.

2. State and private forestry.—Cooperative forestry assistance is provided to the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific to promote the protection and management of non-Federal forest lands.

(a) Cooperative land and resource protection.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to States for the protection of resources from fire on 0.4 billion acres in or adjacent to rural communities and on the 1.1 billion acres of State and privately owned forest and rangelands; and to protect forest resources including wood products, stored wood and wood in use from major insects and diseases directly on National Forest and other Federal forest lands, and on State and private lands by providing financial and technical assistance.

(b) Cooperative renewable resource management and utilization.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to States in planning, managing, and utilizing the timber, wildlife and fish, range, recreation, watershed, and soil resources on 726 million acres of State and privately owned forest and forested rangelands.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

Description:	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate

(c) General forestry assistance.—Activities are of a multiprogram nature to accomplish highly specialized forestry assistance not available through other Forest Service programs. Current activities are the Pinchot Institute for Conservation Studies and financial and technical assistance allowed under the legislation that established the Boundry Water Canoe Area Wilderness.

3. National Forest System.—The 154 national forests and 19 units of national grasslands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, and wildlife are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation, without impairing productivity of the land and that will be environmentally acceptable. These management and utilization principles were recognized in the Multiple Use-Sustained Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to meeting the increased demands for specific National Forest resource needs through 1980 and for long-term objectives to the year 2020. Increases are provided in the budget to further attainment of these program objectives.

(a) Land and resource protection.—Provides for the protection and/or maintenance of National Forest System users, resources, lands, and facilities, including roads and trails, and for administration of the program of acquiring through exchange those lands within National Forest boundaries that meet the criteria for inclusion in the National Forest System. Of the revenue received annually from National Forest activities, 10% is available under the permanent appropriation Roads and trails for States, for maintenance within the States from which proceeds are derived. Such amounts may be merged with this activity for obligational purposes.

1. Construction of facilities—(a) Recreation facilities.—To provide facilities necessary to safely meet increased recreation demand without sacrificing environmental values and without unduly impinging upon other resource uses of the National Forests. Emphasis will be in areas near population to assist recreationists on the conservation of energy.

(b) Other facilities.—To provide for construction and acquisition of fire, administrative, and other improvements and related facilities necessary to carry out National Forest and State and private forestry programs. Includes fire lookouts, offices, dwellings, and barracks for employee housing, service, and storage buildings, insectories, tree nursery buildings, dams, and other forest resource management projects. An effort to make buildings more energy efficient (retrofit) will be undertaken this year. Also includes acquisition of land and interests therein for administrative purposes where buildings are already on site and are the primary reason for requisition.

(c) Research construction.—To provide for construction, alteration, and improvement of research laboratories and related facilities, and for procurement and installation of necessary initial equipment needed to put the facility into operating condition. An effort to make research facilities more energy efficient (retrofit) will be undertaken this year.

2. Road and trail construction—(a) Road construction.—Roads are essential to the protection and management of National Forests and utilization of their resources. Of the revenues received annually from National Forest activities, 10% is available under the permanent appropriation Roads and Trails for States, for construction and maintenance within the States from which such proceeds are derived. Such amounts may be merged with this activity for obligational purposes.

(b) Timber purchaser construction.—Roads may be constructed and/or maintained by a timber purchaser who in turn receives credit against timber value as reimbursement. These roads are those required within a timber sale area specifically for the removal of the timber, but which will remain on the National Forest development road system for resource management purposes after the timber sale contract is completed. (16 U.S.C. 535, item (2); section 9 of Public Law 93-378; and section 3(a) of Public Law 93-344.)

Twenty-five percent of the amounts allowed any timber purchaser for the construction of roads are paid to the States under provisions of the acts of May 23, 1908, and March 1, 1911, as amended (16 U.S.C. 500).

(c) Trail construction.—Trails are essential to the protection and management of National Forests as well as providing access to forest areas for recreation and utilization of the forest resources. Funds from the permanent appropriation Roads and Trails for States may be merged with this activity for obligational purposes.

4. Land acquisition. Through the Weeks Act authorization, lands are purchased to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber. Also included are equalization payments for land exchanges; acquisition of land and interests therein for administrative purpose where the land is the primary reason for purchase; and acquisition of land for nurseries.

The Working capital fund was established by the act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the act of October 23, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 579b). It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to national forests, experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law, to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The forestry related supply and support services provided by the Working capital fund in 1979 included:

Equipment service which owns, operates, maintains, replaces, and repairs common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to administrative units, that is, national forests, experiment stations, and other units, and in some cases to the other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash which, when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment, provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment.

Aircraft service which operates, maintains, and repairs Forest Service owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are rented to national forests, experiment stations, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of depreciation, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Aircraft replacement costs are financed from either appropriated funds or the Forest Service Working capital fund, or a combination of both.

Supply service which operates the following common services:

Central supply which procures, stores, and issues grass seed to national forests, experiment stations, and others at prices which recover costs.

Photo reproduction laboratories which store, reproduce, and supply aerial photographs, aerial maps, and other photographs of national forest lands. The photographic reproductions are sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at cost.

Sign shops which manufacture and supply special signs for the national forests for use in regulating traffic and as information to the public and other users of the national forests. The signs are sold to national forests and experiment stations at cost.

Subsistence which prepares and serves meals to Forest Service crews working in areas where adequate public restaurant facilities are not available.

Nurseries which operate forest tree nurseries and cold storage facilities for storage of tree and seed stock and a seed extractory. Tree seed is procured, cleaned, bagged, and stored in refrigerated facilities. Tree and seed stock is sold to national forests, States, and other Federal agencies at cost.

This appropriation funds legislatively mandated censuses and surveys of major economic and demographic areas once or twice each decade and other major periodic activities that may be authorized.

1. Economic statistics programs—(a) Economic censuses.—The economic censuses cover manufactures, mineral industries, retail and wholesale trades and service industries, construction, and transportation every 5th year, covering calendar years ending in 2 and 7.

The 1981 budget provides for continued planning and preparation for the 1982 censuses. The activities for this year include planning data content; developing methodologies and procedures for data collection and processing; continuing programs to reduce respondent burden, to provide respondent assistance and to assure the quality of the data collected; and preparing for the data collection activities of the economic censuses on a concurrent basis with the census of agriculture.

(b) Census of governments.—This census collects State and local government data including taxes, tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and number of employees. This census is taken every 5th year for calendar years ending in 2 and 7.

The 1981 budget provides for the second year of planning for the 1982 census. Operations will include a complete review of the tabular presentation of 1977 census results with the objective of improving the usefulness and clarity of the data products, continued research in the field of local governmental organizations, and planning and preparation activities for the taxable property values survey.

(c) Census of agriculture.—This census covers the agricultural sector of the economy for 1978 and thereafter for calendar years ending in 2 and 7. In addition to the regular census program, this activity includes the censuses of irrigation and drainage, which were collected for 1978 and will be collected at ten year intervals beginning in 1987.

The 1981 budget provides for the completion of work on the 1978 census and continued planning for the 1982 census. The activities for the 1982 census will concentrate on user needs, data content, mailing list acquisition and refinement, area sample testing, processing system design, and planning for the evaluation program.

2. Demographic statistics programs—(a) Intercensal demographic estimates.—This program provides for updated population and per capita income estimates for approximately 38,500 general purpose governmental units for equitable allocation of funds under the General Revenue Sharing Act.

The 1981 budget provides for IRS coding of place of residence information from 1980 individual income tax forms. These data will be used to evaluate the administrative record methodology for producing estimates of population and income. This updating is necessary to provide a firm foundation for small area estimates in the 1980's.

(b) Decennial census.—The decennial census of population and housing involves the enumeration of the total population of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, Canal Zone, and other areas of U.S. sovereignty or jurisdiction.

The 1981 budget provides for the tabulation and issuance of the census results. The tabulations will serve as the source for official population counts for the States and must be delivered to the President by January 1, 1981. Population counts for specific areas within the States must be reported to the Governors by April 1, 1981. Data will be issued on the general population and housing characteristics for all geographic areas down to the city block level based on the 100% count. For the censuses of outlying areas, all activities should be completed through the processing phase.

3. Periodic programs geographic support.—This activity provides for fulfilling the geographic requirements of the various periodic censuses and large-scale surveys and involves accurate identification of both political and statistical areas, preparation of maps, and maintenance of geographic base files.

4. Data processing equipment.—This program provides for leasing of selected electronic data processing equipment to update existing computer systems.

Capital investment—1. Large-scale data processing equipment.—This program provides for the purchase of additional electronic equipment needed to modernize the data processing installation of the Bureau of the Census.

2. Other capital investment.—This program provides for the acquisition of office furniture, machines, and other miscellaneous equipment necessary to conduct periodic censuses and surveys.

The Bureau of the Census performs statistical work and analysis, at cost, when it is determined to be in the public interest and the statistics furnished will not identify individuals or particular organizations.

On a continuing basis, the Bureau furnishes age and citizenship data to individuals for their use in qualifying for social security, old-age benefits, retirement, passports, court litigation, insurance settlements, and other social services. Special censuses are conducted for States, counties, cities, towns, or other political divisions requiring an up-to-date count of their population. The Bureau also periodically performs statistical work and data analysis for State and local governments, universities, trade associations, and individuals upon request.

1. Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA).—The objective of BEA is to provide a clear picture of the state of the economy through the preparation, development, and interpretation of the economic accounts of the United States. The principal programs are:

(a) National economic accounts.—The national income and product accounts, summarized by the gross national product (GNP), provide an up-to-date overall view of national production, its distribution, and its use as shown by the interrelated receipts and expenditures of producers, consumers, investors, government, and the foreign customers of the United States. The wealth accounts show the business and other components of tangible national wealth. The GNP-related measures, prepared within the framework of the national economic accounts, extend these accounts by providing estimates of costs for pollution abatement and control and measures for evaluating changes in the national well-being. The interindustry accounts consist of the preparation, development, and analysis of input-output tables. The regional accounts provide detail on economic activity by region, State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area, and county.

(b) Analysis of business trends.—This work includes surveys of business investment, econometric models of the U.S. economy, a system of business cycle indicators, and analyses of the business situation.

(c) International economic accounts.—The balance of payments accounts provide a comprehensive and detailed view of economic transactions between the United States and foreign countries. The international investment accounts consist of the preparation, development, and analysis of estimates of U.S. direct investment abroad and foreign direct investment in the United States. The 1981 request provides for an increase of $370 thousand for current surveys of direct investment to maintain a regular data collection program to collect and publish current information related to international investment as mandated by the International Investment Survey Act of 1976.

2. Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards.—The objective of the Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards is to assure the integrity, accuracy, and timeliness of Federal statistics. The Office is responsible for the development and coordination of statistical policy and the development and implementation of statistical standards and guidelines.

3. Bureau of Industrial Economics.—The objective of the Bureau of Industrial Economics is to conduct analyses and research on a broad range of sectoral and industrial economic questions. The Bureau is responsible for developing the industrial data needed to perform its own analyses and research as required by the Department and other Federal agencies in the formulation of their policy decisions.

4. Office of Economic Affairs.—The objective of the Office of Economic Affairs is to support the policy advice function of the Chief Economist for the Department through the analysis and interpretation of macroeconomic conditions and policy issues. The Office is responsible for (1) monitoring, interpreting, and preparing forecasts of current business conditions; (2) advising the Chief Economist on the economic impact of proposed legislation and proposed departmental and other Federal agency regulations; and (3) preparing speeches, reports, and articles on a wide range of economic matters.

Reimbursable.—ESA, upon request by other Federal agencies, provides economic and statistical data and analysis on a reimbursable payment basis. Significant activities include provision of State and county money income estimates for the Bureau of the Census and provision of edited unemployment insurance data by State for the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Salaries and related administrative costs of operating the programs of the Economic Development Administration are financed by this appropriation.

1. Economic development assistance programs.—Administrative support activities are carried out by headquarters staff and 10 regional offices. Direct project activities include preapplication development, application processing and project monitoring, as well as general support functions, such as legal, environmental and civil rights activities. The increase in resources for 1981 will enable EDA to support full-year staffing costs of all the new positions filled in 1980 and to provide for improved project monitoring in all program areas.

2. Local public works.—This program provides funds for the monitoring, evaluation, audit and close-out of projects funded under the local public works program. These funds were carried in a separate appropriation through 1979; however, since management of this program is closely related to that of EDA's other programs, all administrative requirements are carried in a single appropriation beginning in 1980.

The programs of the Economic Development Administration (EDA) are designed to reduce substantial and persistent unemployment in economically distressed areas and to react to economic adjustment problems that may arise abruptly. EDA provides public works grants and loans, and business development loans and guarantees in economically distressed areas to leverage private sector investments that will create new permanent jobs. EDA also provides grants for economic development planning purposes and technical assistance and supports a range of evaluation and research activities aimed at increasing public understanding of the processes of economic growth and development.

Within the areas it serves, EDA strives to meet its program objectives through the use of a broad range of activities.

1. Planning grants.—Encourage and support local development organizations by providing funding for professional planning staff and related services.

2. Technical assistance grants.—Provide appropriate, specific management and operational technical expertise to help assure the success of grant and loan projects; support institutional projects that directly benefit a number of local and regional economic development groups and organizations; support feasibility studies and other site-related projects; and provide for expert assistance to potential grantees and borrowers.

3. Development grants.—Provide funds for the construction or expansion of community facilities conducive to the location of industrial and commercial enterprises and the creation of additional long-term employment opportunities.

4. Economic adjustment grants.—Help areas resolve problems related to actual or threatened sudden and severe disruption of a local economy. Assistance is provided to facilitate community adjustments to such situations as the closing of a major employer in the area.

5. Direct loans.—Reduce unemployment and raise income levels by making low-cost credit available for retaining, constructing, expanding or improving facilities in job-producing manufacturing, commercial or service industries in areas that are experiencing economic distress.

6. Loan guarantee payments.—Provide for payments on loan guarantees that default.

7. Interest rate subsidies.—Reduce the cost of credit to make particularly distressed locations more competitive in the attraction of credit-worthy firms by offsetting the higher costs of doing business in such places.

8. Economic research.—Assists in the development of improved EDA programs and also provides research and information useful to others in the economic development field.

9. Program evaluation.—Assists the top agency staff in making policy and management decisions. Analyses are performed by EDA staff and through contracts.

Loan guarantee authority.—Provides credit to reasonably creditworthy firms that have difficulty in obtaining private financing for fixed assets and working capital and thereby provides for the retention, expansion and new location of permanent employment opportunities. In 1981, loan guarantee authority is $1.8 billion.

(c) Tourism.—Conducts international tourism development programs through regional offices in six major foreign markets and designated special markets. In its leadership role of coordinating Federal minority business development programs, the Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) seeks to create improved national conditions within which the minority people of the United States will have an equal opportunity to participate in the American business system. In 1981, MBDA will place increased emphasis on assisting medium and larger sized minority firms.

1. Enterprise development.—This activity provides existing client firms with direct long-term management and technical assistance services including business information, counseling and financial packaging assistance. A management development program for medium-sized businesses will be implemented and specific programs will be developed to increase minority participation in selected growth industries/markets. Also, programs will be developed to involve qualified minority firms in technology-based business opportunities.

2. Policy and market development.—This activity provides for efforts to increase public and private sector purchases from minorities and to assist minority firms in taking advantage of expanded market opportunities. Programs include analysis of other Federal Government policies affecting minority business development and advocacy/ombudsman efforts in behalf of minority business interests; expanding business information and services through trade associations; and promoting the mobilization of State and local government resources. A major function of this activity will be to recommend legislative, administrative and other reforms on a continuing basis. This activity will increase the availability of funding from traditional sources for minority businesses. Management assistance will be provided to strengthen minority financial institutions.

3. Research and information.—In this activity, MBDA collects and maintains general purpose data bases on the characteristics of MBDA clients and the general minority business universe and develops special purpose data bases to support priority programs. Information is analyzed and presented in useful form for MBDA personnel and others outside of the agency. A research program is conducted to increase awareness of trends, characteristics and problems of minority business. An information clearinghouse disseminates general information on minority businesses and vendor lists for public and private procurement opportunities.

4. Program management.—This activity provides for planning, directing, and monitoring the use of resources to accomplish overall MBDA program goals and objectives. It provides administrative support for all daily operating requirements, the administration of the cooperative agreements and grants programs and coordination with other Federal agencies involved in minority business development programs or activities.

This appropriation provides for administration, management, beneficial use, protection, and development of the land and water resources of the Nation's coastal zone, by providing grants to States for the planning and management of their coastal areas.

1. Program development grants.—These grants to coastal States and territories permit correction of existing inadequate arrangements for planning and regulating land and water uses in their coastal zone by developing comprehensive coastal zone management programs. Authorization for this program expired on September 30, 1979.

2. Program administration grants.—These grants support ongoing State and territorial coastal management activities, such as land and water use regulation, monitoring, and enforcement, which are contained in their approved management programs. An increase in 1981 will provide grants to seven additional States for administration of their coastal management plans. Significant performance measures are:

Number of States with approved management programs.....	19	20	27

3. Energy impact formula grants.—These grants provide funds to meet the infrastructure needs of coastal States and local units of government whose coastal zones are affected by the development and production of Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas, and coastal transportation of energy resources. A decrease in 1981 is possible because of the availability of previously appropriated funds. Significant performance measures are:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Projects supported.....	70	98	110

4. Estuarine sanctuaries.—These grants provide for acquisition, development, and operation of estuarine sanctuaries for the purpose of creating natural field laboratories where studies can be made of the processes occurring within coastal estuaries. Funds in 1981 will support joint NOAA/State efforts to acquire three new sites and provide predevelopment and operational grants for proposed and established sites. 5. Marine sanctuaries.—This program supports the designation of ocean waters as marine sanctuaries for the purpose of preserving or restoring the sites for their conservational, recreational, ecological, or esthetic value. An increase in 1981 will provide for designation of additional sites and management activities associated with seven established sanctuaries. Significant performance measures are:

An amount equal to 30% of the gross receipts from customs duties on imported fishery products is transferred (15 U.S.C. 713c-3) to the Department of Commerce annually for marine resources research and assessment and use of fishery resources.

In 1981, legislation will be proposed to establish a fisheries development program utilizing this fund. This program will provide for the further development of U.S. fishing industry, with particular emphasis on new and nontraditional fisheries, and promote the optimum utilization of the Nation's fishery resources.

In 1981, legislation will be proposed to establish a fisheries development program using funds available from this account. The legislation requires that the Congress specify in annual appropriation acts the amount of funds to be transferred to the Secretary of Commerce to meet the requirements of the Fishery Development Program under the promote and develop fishery products and research pertaining to American Fisheries account. Requirements in 1981 for the Fisheries Development Program are estimated to be $20,000,000, the balance of the estimated receipts ($15,827,000) being transferred to the Department of Treasury.

This program provides for loans to vessel operators who, because of the high risk associated with some commercial fishing, cannot obtain commercial loans at reasonable rates for financing or refinancing the cost of purchasing or constructing, equipping, maintaining, repairing, or operating new or used commercial fishing vessels or gear. As of September 30, 1979, there were 42 loans outstanding with a value of $374 thousand. This fund will expire on September 30, 1980.

In 1981, legislation will be proposed to transfer any balance of funds remaining in, or other assets of, the Fisheries loan fund, as of September 30, 1980, to the fishing vessel portion of the Federal ship financing fund established under title XI of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended (46 U.S.C. 1271-1280). The legislation proposes the continuation of activities specified in title XI for fishing vessels, but also provides for the guarantee of obligations of fishing vessels engaged in developmental fisheries.

This fund provides for payment to vessel owners and crews to compensate for certain financial losses sustained as a result of foreign seizures of American fishing vessels found within 200 miles of their coasts. Through 1977, funds in this account were derived from Federal appropriations and fees from vessel owners. Beginning in 1978, the basic annual appropriation was discontinued, although appropriated funds can be requested if the fund's balance is depleted.

This appropriation provides Federal financial assistance to meet the needs of coastal States and their local governments impacted by Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) and certain other coastal-dependent energy activity in, or in proximity to, the coastal zone of the State.

Loans and guarantees.—This fund provides loans, guarantees, and repayment assistance. Additional appropriations for loans, guarantees, and repayment assistance is not requested in 1981 pending utilization of resources appropriated through 1978. (While guarantees are legislatively authorized, no guarantees have been provided to date.)

1. Planning grants.—These grants are for use when the siting, construction or operation of new or expanded energy facilities force affected coastal States to undertake detailed studies and plans for the economic, social, and environmental consequences of such facilities. Grants may not exceed 80% of the cost of such studies. Reprogramed loan funds in 1981 will support 52 planning projects by 27 eligible States/territories.

2. Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) State participation grants.—Annual grants are made to coastal State and territorial governments, on a 70% Federal, 30% State matching basis, to assist these States and governments in carrying out their responsibilities under the OCS Lands Act, as amended in 1978. Reprogramed loan funds in 1981 will support the State administration costs for participating in OCS decisions.

3. Environmental grants.—Grants are made to coastal States to enable them to minimize the loss of valuable environmental or recreational resources resulting from coastal energy activity if no other funds for this purpose are available to the State concerned. Reprogramed loan funds will support 45 projects in eight State/territories without OCS energy activities.

4. Program management.—This activity provides program direction and administrative support for the coastal energy impact fund. Reprogramed loan funds will support this function in 1981.

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for inventions and the registration of trademarks.

Receipts deposited in the general fund of the Treasury from fees were $27.2 million in 1979 and are estimated to be $26.5 million in 1980 and 1981.

Activities of the Office fall into the following areas:

1. Patent process.—Applications are examined to determine whether or not the inventor is entitled to a patent for the claimed invention. Examination of patent applications also includes the performance of quasi-judicial functions in appeal and interference proceedings. This activity also provides drafting services, recording of instruments conveying ownership of patent and trademark rights, and publishing the issued patents. Increased resources for the patent process in 1981 will bring the disposal level closer to the estimated application receipt level, especially in subsequent years. The existing level of resources directed to patent quality will be maintained.

The following table summarizes key patent application workload and performance data:

	1978 actual	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate

2. Trademark process.—Applications are examined to determine whether the statutory criteria for the Federal registration of the trademark or service mark have been met. When the criteria are met, a registration is printed and issued to the applicant. Examination of trademark applications also includes inter partes proceedings involving oppositions, cancellations, and interferences.

* Includes capital investment as follows: 1979, $10 thousand; 1980, $110 thousand; 1981, $43 thousand.

1. National Bureau of Standards.—The National Bureau of Standards (NBS) is responsible for the development and maintenance of a system of measurements required to support the Nation's economy.

NBS efforts are organized into the following five program activities:

(a) Measurement research and standards.—This activity includes programs in the areas of fundamental physical measurements and standards, radiation measurements and standards, analytical chemical measurements and standards, materials science, and thermodynamic and molecular science. Also included in this activity is a measurement assurance program as well as applied measurement programs in nondestructive evaluation, environmental measurements, standard reference materials, standard reference data, and recycled materials.

(b) Engineering standards.—This activity includes programs in the areas of engineering standards, building research, consumer product technology, electrotechnology, mechanical engineering and process technology, and field methods. Also included in this activity is a program in mathematical sciences as well as a program in fire science and engineering. The 1981 increase provides for developing new measurement techniques and procedures needed in the development and commercialization of Very Large Scale Integrated (VLSI) circuits.

(c) Computer sciences and technology.—This activity provides for the establishment of Government-wide automated data processing (ADP) standards.

(d) Cooperative technology.—Costs in 1981 for this activity are included in the Industrial Technology and Innovation program.

(e) Central technical support.—This activity includes resources for a long-range planning effort, capital investments to finance the construction or improvement of buildings and special facilities, procurement of large items of equipment, and increases of the NBS working capital fund for the purchase of general purpose equipment. The 1981 increase will continue to build basic NBS competence and provide funds for acquisition of computer services, for replacement of aging facilities and to make facilities accessible to the handicapped.

2. National Technical Information Service.—The National Technical Information Service collects and distributes scientific, technological, business, and demographic information generated by the Federal Government and promotes and licenses Government-owned inventions. In 1981, this activity will provide for incorporating the employees of the Science Information Exchange, a nonprofit corporation formerly affiliated with the Smithsonian Institution into the Federal system and developing an integrated system between the SIE and NTIS. The SIE collects, indexes, stores, retrieves, and disseminates information about ongoing scientific research.

In 1981, NTIS will begin implementation of programs to support innovation by: establishment of a Center for the Utilization of Federal Technology; collection, translation, and dissemination of foreign technical literature; and improved access to patent information.

3. Office of Environmental Affairs.—The Office of Environmental Affairs coordinates Department of Commerce compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-190) and other laws applicable to departmental activities and facilities. The 1981 increase will provide for expanding the policy and technical review capabilities for environmental standards.

4. Industrial technology and innovation.—This new activity will support establishment of three nonprofit technology centers to be jointly financed with private industry. The centers will focus on the development and transfer of generic technologies to private industry. In addition two regional nonprofit Corporations for Innovative Development will be established to provide start up capital for the development of high risk innovative products and processes.

The Working capital fund finances, from advances and reimbursements, all operations of the National Bureau of Standards except major construction projects and the foreign currency program. Amounts reported include investments in equipment and inventories, and research, development and services performed for other Government agencies and the public. Programs of direct appropriations and trust funds are covered in the schedules for those accounts. The principal of the fund, as of September 30, 1979, consisted of $28 million in capital provided by appropriations, and $114 million in net donated assets. Retained earnings at the end of each year are transferred to Treasury the year following.

The National Telecommunications and Information Administration is the principal Executive Branch adviser to the President on communications policy and a major contributor to information policy. It manages the Federal radio frequency spectrum, coordinates the use of telecommunications systems for public services, and performs extensive research in telecommunications sciences.

1. Policies for the development of telecommunications industries.—NTIA recommends policies and plans to foster service diversity, effective competition, and minimal regulation in domestic and international telecommunications industries.

(a) Broadcast, cable, and special services.—NTIA recommends policies designed to increase competition and programing diversity. In 1981, NTIA will continue to work to reduce regulatory burdens, to increase the number of broadcast stations owned by minorities, and to conduct technical, economic, and other research to aid in the development and use of new radio and cable technologies.

(b) Domestic common carrier.—NTIA's effort in 1981 will foster policies to stimulate competition in the provision of telecommunications services and to guide the integration of traditional common carrier markets—especially the telephone industry markets—with data processing and other message communication service markets.

(c) International telecommunications policy.—NTIA participates actively in commenting on various national policy positions for international communications forums and takes part in these forums. The NTIA effort in 1981 will focus on the international telecommunications industry structure, the international communications facilities planning process, and proposals for new services. In coordination with the Department of State, the agency will continue to discharge the Presidential responsibility for oversight of the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT).

2. Efficient use of telecommunications and information systems.—NTIA fosters and coordinates the use of telecommunications technology for public services, works to improve the efficiency of Federal telecommunications systems, and recommends policies to resolve problems arising from increased availability of information technologies.

(a) Telecommunications applications.—NTIA recommends policies to further the evolution of new technologies that may bring benefits to public service organizations; much of this effort centers on communications satellite services. It reviews selected Federal agency telecommunications systems to ensure that they conform to national policy guidelines. It performs engineering analysis of problems relating to the operation of Federal telecommunications systems. It helps coordinate Federal grant programs involving telecommunications and works to improve the cooperation in telecommunications planning and operations among State and local agencies. In 1981, NTIA will begin to transfer its experience in public service satellites to lesser developed countries; and to study the problems of the use of satellites to broadcast directly to users.

(b) Information technology and policy.—The agency monitors and evaluates the extent and the effects of the growth of national and international information technologies and services and recommends policies to prevent undesirable social and economic effects of this growth. In 1981, NTIA is again leading the Executive Branch's effort to ensure individual rights to privacy and is assisting in the effort to improve the security of information vital to the national interest transmitted over telecommunications systems.

3. Management of telecommunications resources.—NTIA manages the Government's use of the radio spectrum so that this use is responsive to national and international requirements.

(a) Spectrum policy.—NTIA develops policies for more efficient domestic and international use of the radio frequency spectrum. The agency does this in cooperation with the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee, which it chairs, the Federal Communications Commission, and participating nations. In 1981, NTIA will work toward improving Government and nongovernment spectrum sharing, developing spectrum allocation systems that encourage the use of alternative technologies, and coordinating the positions of the U.S. Government in international forums on spectrum use.

(b) Spectrum management and planning.—NTIA provides technical, administrative, and personnel support to the Interdepartment Radio Advisory Committee and to other Federal agencies for the management of the Government's portion of the electromagnetic spectrum. In 1981, this function will be expanded to permit a reduction in the backlog of Federal frequency assignments and an increase in the number of Federal radio system reviews and radio band studies.

(c) Technology for efficient use of spectrum.—This involves basic and applied research on the characteristics of electromagnetic wave transmission. This continuing research in 1981 will give telecommunications users and system designers new information, improved analytical methods, and better design techniques to be employed in developing systems for use both in underutilized frequency bands and in crowded frequency bands.

4. Public telecommunications facilities program.—This program extends and improves the delivery of noncommercial broadcast and nonbroadcast services to the public. It carries out an extensive program of consultation with public telecommunications organizations to help achieve this goal. In 1981, NTIA is taking affirmative steps to increase the ownership of public telecommunications entities by women and minorities.

The Public telecommunications facilities program provides grants for the planning and the construction of noncommercial telecommunications facilities to help extend and improve the delivery of public telecommunications services. Not less than 75% of the grant funds are made available to extend the delivery of public telecommunications services to areas not now receiving such services. Also, a substantial amount of the grants are made available for the development of noncommercial radio broadcast facilities.

Special consideration is being given to applications that increase minority and women's ownership of, operation of, and participation in public telecommunications entities. In 1981, the program will award grants to an estimated 175 public telecommunications entities.

The goal of the ship construction program is to provide a competitive U.S. shipbuilding industry and U.S.-flag fleet which are adequate for the commerce and the national security requirements of the United States. The program enables U.S. shipyards to construct ships for U.S. citizens at prices which are comparable to the prices which would be paid for the same construction in a foreign shipyard. The program fosters increased productivity in U.S. shipyards by supporting series production of standardized ship types and encourages shipyard investment in capital improvements.

The 1981 program will continue the initiative to foster construction of dry bulk carrying ships by providing for construction of five of these ships. Bulk cargoes represent a significant element of total U.S. foreign trade, and new emphasis is being directed toward encouraging construction of bulk ships.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, provides that operating subsidies shall be paid to qualified operators of U.S.-flag vessels in order to promote the maintenance of a U.S. Merchant Marine capable of providing essential ocean-shipping services. A strong U.S. Merchant Marine is important to this Nation's national security and to the development of its foreign commerce. Subsidies are designed to achieve a parity between certain U.S. and foreign ship operating costs.

Revitalization of the increasingly important bulk carrying segment of the U.S.-flag fleet continues to be a major program objective. Bulk cargoes represent a substantial portion of total U.S. foreign trade, and emphasis will continue to be placed on assuring that U.S.-flag bulk ship operators will be able to provide essential bulk services.

A summary of operations under the program is indicated as follows:

The objective of the research and development program is to develop methods, equipment, and systems to make the U.S. shipbuilding and ship operating industries more efficient, competitive, and productive.

In 1981, the research and development program will be conducted in four major program areas as follows:

1. Advanced ship development.—This program involves projects to achieve greater productivity in the building of ships and projects directed toward the development of new and improved ship machinery. Improved machinery performance is heavily oriented toward energy savings. Shipbuilding productivity improvements and new, less costly machinery benefit the Government by reducing ship construction costs and related subsidies.

2. Advanced ship operations.—In this program, projects are directed toward improving the efficiency, competitiveness, and safety of U.S.-flag ship operations through the development of advanced management operating techniques using computerized systems, improved fleet control by means of advanced navigation/communication systems, and the development of shipboard automation equipment and systems. This program also includes projects to improve cargo handling methods and equipment, improve port productivity and intermodal cargo movement, and assist port management in coordinated regional planning for better use of their port facilities.

3. Research facilities.—This program provides for research facilities operations, and investigation and simulation of new problems related to ship operations, safety, and design. The 1981 activities will address the development of human performance measures and certification standards mandated by the Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978.

4. Advanced maritime technology.—The aim of this program is to investigate advanced technological concepts and requirements, and formulate and conduct specific systems analysis and systems development projects.

1. Development of waterborne transportation systems.—This activity provides for direct technical and administrative costs of programs for development and subsidized construction of cost-competitive U.S. merchant ships in sufficient quantity to meet national maritime objectives; programs to achieve stability and improve efficiency in the U.S. shipbuilding industry; and manpower programs related to the maritime industry.

2. National security support capability.—This activity provides for maintaining U.S. merchant ships in the National Defense Reserve Fleet for service as naval and military transport auxiliaries in time of war and national emergency and for emergency preparedness activities. The requested program level will provide for a high level of maintenance on ships that have been selectively upgraded to form the Ready Reserve Fleet.

3. Merchant Marine Academy.—This activity provides for operating the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y. The objective of the Academy is to instruct and prepare selected personnel for service as officers in the merchant marine. Approximately 250 officers will graduate in 1981. The requested program level supports continuation of the facilities modernization program including construction of a public works building.

4. State marine schools.—Assistance is provided to States in the operation and maintenance of maritime academies or colleges for the training of merchant marine officers. This assistance involves grants to the State schools, subsistence payments in support of cadets, and maintenance of vessels provided for use as training ships. An estimated 530 officers will graduate from these schools in 1981.

5. Use of waterborne transportation systems.—This activity provides for the direct technical and administrative costs of promoting the effective development and use of merchant ships and ship systems to further the foreign and domestic waterborne commerce of the United States. Program objectives involve increasing U.S.-flag participation in U.S. foreign trade and reducing or eliminating operating subsidies when no longer required to sustain a viable shipping operation.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, established the Federal ship financing fund to assist in the development of the U.S. Merchant Marine by guaranteeing construction loans and mortgages on U.S.-flag vessels built in the United States.

The Maritime Appropriation Authorization Act for 1979 increased the limitation on obligations guaranteed and outstanding at any time under title XI of the Merchant Marine Act from $7 billion to $10 billion. For 1981, appropriation language is proposed to introduce an additional ceiling on this program in the form of an annual limitation on the aggregate amount of new loan guarantee commitments. This is consistent with the Administration's broader objective of introducing budget controls over Federal credit programs. The amount of the limitation proposed for 1981 of $1.5 billion is adequate to provide loan guarantee assistance to most potential applicants while at the same time acting as a more effective control over this program than the present $10 billion statutory limitation.

The estimated level of new commitments and guarantee construction loans and mortgages, and the estimated aggregate level of guarantees in force and commitments outstanding is shown in the following table:

COMMITMENTS FOR CONSTRUCTION LOAN AND MORTGAGE GUARANTEES

Budget program.—Administrative expenses incurred in the operation of the Federal ship financing fund are paid from income to the fund. Reimbursements to the Operations and training appropriation are anticipated at $4,200 thousand in 1980, and $4,400 thousand in 1981. Direct loans in the form of advances to operators to forestall possible defaults and to satisfy claims on defaulted mortgages are estimated at $10,000 thousand in 1980. A limitation of $250,000 thousand for the principal amount of direct loans establishes a ceiling for these advances in 1981.

Financing.—The fund receives income from insurance premiums on construction loans and mortgages, fees, and interest on U.S. Government securities and mortgages held directly. The payment of administrative expenses is made from this income, while payments for advances to operators and redemption of defaulted loans and mortgages are paid from income, equity, and borrowing from the Treasury Department. No borrowings are anticipated in 1981.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to reactivate, operate, deactivate, and charter merchant vessels, and operate experimental vessels under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Commerce. These operations are financed by the Vessel operations revolving fund. In addition, the fund is available to finance the necessary expenses to protect, maintain, preserve, acquire, and use vessels involved in mortgage foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings instituted by the United States.

Budget program.—As of September 30, 1979, there are three claims in process of settlement which resulted from operation of Government-owned ships and general agency agreements in the Vietnam sealift. The 1981 program anticipates the annual testing of two ships in the Ready Reserve Fleet.

Financing.—Expenses are financed by charter hire revenue, reimbursements from Federal agencies, and insurance underwriters.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to insure against loss or damage by marine war risks when it is found commercial insurance cannot be obtained on reasonable terms and conditions. This insurance includes war risk hull and disbursements interim insurance, war risk protection and indemnity interim insurance, second seamen's war risk interim insurance, and war risk cargo insurance standby program. Authority to underwrite insurance expired on September 30, 1979. Legislation to reauthorize this program has been proposed to the 96th Congress.

Budget program.—It is estimated that during 1981 insurance coverage will be provided for approximately 600 U.S.-flag ships, 2,500 LASH and Seabee barges, and a selected number of foreign-flag ships. The program also includes provision for second seamen's war risk insurance covering the crews of 18 vessels under contract with the Military Sealift Command.

Financing.—Under 46 U.S.C. 1288, the Secretary of Commerce established the War risk insurance revolving fund. It receives income from binder fees, insurance premiums, interest from investments and claim reimbursements from other Federal agencies. Underwriting agents' fees and expenses, appraisal contractors' fees, and insurance claims are paid from this income.

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the Reserve components, which include: Army and Air National Guard; and Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves.

National Guard and Reserve personnel.—These programs provide funds for training members of the Ready Reserve as the initial and primary augmentation of the active forces during any future emergency. Activities are grouped according to the training performed or the support provided.

1. Paid drill and initial training.—Most of the paid National Guard and Reserve personnel perform 48 drills and attend 2 weeks of active duty for training each year. Active duty for basic training is provided for personnel enlisting in the National Guard or Reserve who have not previously received military training. Certain enlistees may drill with pay while awaiting active duty for basic training.

2. Other training and support.—Other personnel not requiring as intensive training receive only a period of active duty for training (usually 2 weeks) during the year. Service schools and special tours of active duty training provide additional training for limited numbers of the Ready Reserve. Also, this program provides funds for members of the Ready Reserve who are on full-time active duty for the purpose of performing duties associated with Reserve matters.

The numbers of National Guard and Reserve personnel estimated to participate in the paid training programs are summarized in the following table:

Reserve officer candidates.—Funds for these programs are contained in Budget Activity 2, "Other Training and Support" of the Reserve Personnel appropriations. The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a college at which an ROTC unit has been established. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum of 3 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes a limited number of scholarships for ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships must serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer. There will be about 6,500 scholarship recipients in the Army, about 5,850 in the Navy, and about 6,500 in the Air Force in 1981.

The Armed Forces health professions scholarship program provides a source of commissioned officers for the various health professions. Student enrollment in 1981 will be about 1,714 in the Army, 1,575 in the Navy, and 1,575 in the Air Force.

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force provide training for students who elect to enroll in Junior ROTC training at the secondary level of education, and are programed to have 670, 233, 67, and 285 units, respectively, in operation in 1981.

The numbers of commissioned officers graduated from these programs are summarized below:

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all personnel on the military retired lists for the Department of Defense. The estimate represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for: (a) payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) retainer pay of enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps; and (c) survivors' benefits. The primary gains to the retired rolls can be attributed to the greater number of individuals attaining eligibility for retirement after 20 or more years of active military service. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1979 compared with estimated numbers for 1980 and 1981.

AVERAGE NUMBER

1. Nondisability	960,997	995,455	1,027,432
2. Temporary disability	11,731	10,937	10,391
3. Permanent disability	139,661	140,502	139,905

Budget estimates for the retired pay program reflect anticipated benefit increases due to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) adjustment mechanism embodied in current law.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

These appropriations finance the costs of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the Reserve components, and related support activities of the Department of Defense, except military personnel costs. Included are amounts for pay of civilians, contract services for maintenance of equipment and facilities, fuel, supplies, and repair parts for weapons and equipment. Financial requirements are influenced by many factors, including force levels such as the number of aircraft squadrons, Army or Marine Corps divisions, installations, military strength and deployments, rates of operational activity, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, et cetera) in operation.

The 1981 budget reflects a substantial increase to protect and enhance Defense readiness capabilities. Fuel prices are projected at the September 1979 level.

ACTIVE FORCES

Funds to operate the Active Forces and their support are contained in five operation and maintenance appropriations, one for each of the four services and one for Defense agencies. The programs covered under this heading are described below:

1. Strategic forces.—Strategic offensive forces include more than 400 manned B-52 and FB-111 bombers and 1,054 ICBM's operated by the Air Force as well as the Navy's submarine missile fleet, which deploys 568 Polaris, Poseidon, and Trident missiles. The first Trident submarine will be introduced into the fleet in 1981.

Strategic defensive forces consist of interceptor fighter aircraft and various warning, command, and control systems also operated by the Air Force.

2. General purpose forces.—These forces consist of the tactical air forces of the Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps, the ground forces and supporting aircraft elements of the Army and Marine Corps, and Navy combatant and support ships operating under control of the unified or specified commands. These forces are deployed to eastern Asia, the western Pacific, Europe in support of NATO commitments, the fleets operating in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and the Mediterranean, and Active Forces in the United States.

Tactical air forces consist of the Air Force tactical air wings, Navy land and carrier based antisubmarine and fighter/attack air wings, and Marine air wings. Force missions include air superiority, interdiction bombing, close air support, antisubmarine patrol, reconnaissance, and special operations. The Navy will continue to deploy the F-14 to replace F-4's in the fleet air defense role. The Air Force will continue to fill out their 26-wing structure with continued delivery of the F-15, F-

16, and A-10. Flight training simulator programs will continue to improve training of aircrews.

Army land forces consist of infantry, mechanized, armored, airborne, airmobile divisions and supporting force elements, along with a limited number of units to sustain combat support. Additional combat units will be modernized for the conduct of land warfare.

Marine Corps land forces, including combat and supporting units, are designed to conduct amphibious assault operations and other missions with the close support of Marine aviation. The Marine Corps objective in 1981 is maintenance of the Fleet Marine Forces at a high level of combat readiness for service with the fleet, ashore or for other duties as national security may require.

Naval forces include aircraft carriers, submarines, amphibious forces, antisubmarine forces, and anti-air warfare forces. Twenty-two ships will be introduced into the fleet in 1981: five nuclear attack submarines, three destroyers, two hydrofoil patrol missile combatants, eight guided missile frigates, one submarine tender, one fleet oiler, one destroyer tender, and one nuclear cruiser. Overage and obsolete vessels will be inactivated.

3. Intelligence and communications.—This program comprises the centrally directed Defense intelligence and security function, the major portion of the consolidated telecommunications program (CTP), the National Military Command System, and other special activities which are related to and support the missions of the combat forces in the strategic, general purpose, and airlift/sealift programs. Included in the CTP portion are the Defense Communications System (DCS), common user transmission and switching systems, as well as non-DCS communications. Funds to support intelligence, security, and communications activities are contained in the various appropriations of each of the military services, and, in the Defense agencies appropriation. Included among the special activities are Navy oceanographic and weather programs, Air Force weather, air rescue and recovery, and air traffic control programs.

4. Airlift and sealift.—This program provides air, land, and sea transportation services for all the Armed Forces in peacetime as well as quick reaction strategic mobility and logistical support in wartime. The major commands in this program are the Air Force Military Airlift Command, the Navy Military Sealift Command, and the Army Military Traffic Management Command. All are primarily industrially funded operations with costs reimbursed by the users. The operation and maintenance appropriations directly provide for certain administrative and base service support expenses for each of these industrially funded activities.

7. Central supply and maintenance.—This program includes funds for specialized supply and maintenance activities. It provides resources for the determination of inventory levels, procurement of supplies, distribution, depot-level maintenance, and transportation of military materiel. These functions are managed by the military services and conducted at various locations worldwide.

In addition, the Defense Logistics Agency provides common supply and services support to the military services within the continental United States and manages bulk petroleum worldwide. The Agency is the Defense manager for standby industrial plant equipment, the surplus property disposal program, and the Federal catalog program. It is also responsible for providing contract administration services, administration of Defense materiel utilization programs and coordinated procurement programs.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—In 1981 the military services plan on acquiring approximately 400,000 new accessions into the Active Forces. Continued success of the All-Volunteer Force will necessitate a strong effort by the recruiting organizations of each service to attract the new personnel required. These new accessions must then be trained in basic military skills and in many occupational skills. Training requirements are also influenced by the total strength of the services, and by the introduction of new equipment and weapons. Education of prospective officers is accomplished primarily by the three service academies and by Reserve Officer Training Corps units at universities and colleges. The services plan to operate 161 hospitals to provide medical care for active and retired military personnel and for dependents. This program finances a medical program at civilian medical facilities for personnel in areas where service hospitals are not accessible. In addition, this activity provides the resources necessary to operate the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences.

9. Administration and associated activities.—This program includes the costs of departmental administration, major field command headquarters, and general support activities such as finance and audit. Reimbursement to the General Services Administration for space occupied is also included in this program.

10. Support of other nations.—This program includes military assistance missions, advisory groups for foreign nations, and the U.S. share of NATO costs, plus support of U.S. organizations related to international military headquarters.

The purpose of this account is to allow transfers to military personnel and operation and maintenance appropriations available for Defense activities in foreign countries to finance upward adjustment of recorded obligations due to foreign currency fluctuations above the budget rate. Transfers are made, as needed, to meet disbursement requirements in excess of funds otherwise available for obligation adjustment. Net gains from exchange are returned to this appropriation and are available for subsequent transfer when needed. This appropriation reduces the need for supplemental appropriations when there is a long-term decline in the exchange rates for the dollar. A proposed general provision would limit transfers after September 30, 1980 to operation and maintenance appropriations only.

PROCUREMENT

The procurement appropriations of the Department of Defense finance the acquisition of combat, combat support, and training equipment, to include: aircraft, missiles, ships, tanks, and other vehicles; guns of all sizes, torpedoes, and communications equipment; air, ground and ship munitions; industrial facilities projects; and modification of existing equipment where increased capability can be achieved without buying new equipment. The 1981 program contains a mix of both new and continuing procurement to equip the military forces necessary to meet U.S. national security objectives.

New Army systems funded in 1981 include initial procurement of the divisional air defense gun and advance procurement of the Hellfire air-to-surface missile and the Pershing II surface-to-surface missile. Procurement continues of the Roland air defense missile system, XM-1 main battle tank, Infantry Fighting Vehicle, Patriot air defense missile, general support rocket system, and improved conventional munitions.

Modernization of our naval forces in 1981 includes continued procurement of the F-18 air combat fighter and the F-14 fleet air defense fighter. Procurement of the Trident strategic missile and submarine continues. Sixteen new general purpose ships will be acquired including a nuclear attack submarine, four frigates, and the third and fourth ships of the new Aegis class air defense ship.

Significant Air Force programs include continued procurement of the air-launched cruise missile, KC-10A advanced tanker/cargo aircraft, F-15 and F-16 air combat fighters, A-10 close air support aircraft, TR-1 tactical reconnaissance aircraft, and the E-3A airborne warning and control system.

Direct budget programs are estimated as follows (in thousands of dollars):

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

Programs in this title support the modernization of the Armed Forces through a broad range of activities. These include development and testing of full-scale, pre-production hardware, development of prototypes, fabrication of technology-demonstration devices and support of military research and exploratory development. This work is performed by industrial contractors, Government laboratories, universities and nonprofit organizations.

Research and development programs are funded such that each year's resources normally support a 1-year increment of activity.

The budget plan for research, development, test and evaluation for 1981 totals $16.5 billion, an increase of $3.0 billion over the proposed 1980 level of $13.5 billion.

The 1981 Defense R.D.T. & E. program stresses a strong technology base, modernization of our strategic forces and development of a number of key tactical programs to support our commitments to our European allies through NATO and to respond rapidly to a variety of contingencies.

1. Technology base.—This activity is composed of research and exploratory development of technologies which have potential applications for defense, and these efforts involve the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences. The 1981 program proposes large real growth to strengthen our technology base.

2. Advanced technology development.—This activity supports extensive exploration of promising systems alternatives and concepts. Efforts for 1981 include programs in aeronautics and propulsion, flight simulation, biomedical sciences, materials, weapons technology, and electronics.

3. Strategic programs.—This activity funds development of strategic offensive and defensive systems. The major increase in funding is for continued full-scale development of the M-X missile system. The sea and air elements of the strategic triad will also receive significant support. Development work will continue on the Trident submarine and Trident I missile which are already in production. Additionally, full-scale development of air-launched cruise missiles will be maintained to improve the deterrent power of U.S. strategic-bomber forces. There will be continued emphasis on space-defense programs and on programs to explore the feasibility of ballistic-missile defense. Also, improvements will be developed for missile-attack warning systems and command and control systems.

4. Tactical programs.—This activity supports the development of combat systems for the general purpose forces (land, sea and air) of the United States and its allies. Major development efforts emphasized in the 1980 R.D.T. & E. program and directed toward the improvement of our defenses against large-scale conventional and theater-nuclear attacks by the Warsaw Pact in Europe will continue. Several of these key programs will transition to production in 1981.

In the land-warfare mission area, the XM-1 tank and the Patriot air-defense-missile system will continue in development during the transition to production. To improve our theater-nuclear deterrence of the Warsaw Pact, the Pershing II missile will also receive major funding emphasis by the Army.

In the air-warfare mission area, the last phase of full-scale development for the F-18 air-combat fighter will be conducted by the Navy. Work on an advanced long-range air-to-air missile for fighter aircraft will continue. Intensive work will also be maintained to develop a family of air-to-ground anti-armor weapons to defeat Warsaw Pact tank and motorized-rifle combat forces.

Navy sea control programs include systems for ocean surveillance, undersea surveillance and combat below the surface, on the surface and in the air. Development of a new attack submarine and improvements to fleet air defense capabilities are key initiatives in 1981.

The combat-support mission area funds developments in air mobility, logistics, tactical communications, combat integration, electronic warfare, navigation and physical security. Major emphasis in 1981 will be given to development of the new C-X long range transport aircraft. Also supported are improvements to the Air Force airborne warning and control system (AWACS).

5. Intelligence and communications.—This activity supports improvements to Defense-wide capabilities in intelligence and worldwide communications.

6. Defensewide mission support.—This activity provides funding for support efforts, including Federal contract research centers, ranges and test facilities, and studies and analyses. Also included here is major Defense support for the Space Shuttle.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Active and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM
	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Active Forces	2,061,689	1,858,105	2,498,600
Reserve Forces	168,900	120,000	216,700
Interservice activities	292,747	317,350	535,700
Total	2,523,336	2,295,455	3,251,000

Most of the appropriations required for the military construction accounts are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. The details of this legislation have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration.

1. Major construction.—This category provides for the acquisition of land and for construction of authorized military projects. These authorizations include construction projects where the estimated cost of such construction generally exceeds $500 thousand per project. The major activities proposed are as follows:

Strategic forces.—Provision has been made to upgrade existing facilities and provide for personnel support for strategic warfare systems. Funds have been provided here for initial support of the new MX missile system, and for continuing support to the Trident weapons system.

General purpose forces.—Projects in this category support general combat forces including their command organizations, the logistics organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units, including medical, which are deployed as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations.

Specialized activities.—Funding for abatement of air and water pollution at defense installations is included to assure that actions to correct violations of Federal, State, and local air and water quality standards are taken. The ongoing energy conservation investment program is also continued in new construction and where economically practical, into existing facilities and utility systems.

Research and development.—This program includes facilities in support of programs to advance knowledge and technology in such areas as weapons systems, communications, electronics, and medicine. These programs emphasize the search for improved capabilities in the Armed Forces.

Personnel support.—Funds are provided for improved housing, medical, and community support facilities to encourage retention of personnel in the service and the development of an All-Volunteer Force. Upgrading of existing facilities with the application of improved standards has been provided in addition to new construction.

Reserve components.—The funding levels programmed are for facilities required for the training of National Guard and the Reserve Forces identified as the primary source of augmentation for Active Forces in future emergencies.

Interservice activities.—This category includes Defense agencies facilities in such areas as logistics, intelligence, mapping and nuclear technology; facilities serve requirements of more than one military service, such as the overseas dependent school program and the U.S. share of the NATO infrastructure program, which provides military facilities to support the deployment and operation of NATO military forces, including U.S. forces committed to NATO.

2. Minor construction.—Funding is provided for projects whose individual project cost does not exceed $500 thousand. This program includes projects at specified locations for which the need is known, and lump sum amounts for exigent construction to provide for essential, but unforeseen construction needs which may emerge during the year.

3. Planning.—This provides for necessary planning of military construction projects, including design, standards, criteria, studies, appraisals, and other related activities.

4. Supporting activities.—Provision is made for activities such as the defense access road program and minor land acquisition.

rary or permanent public works, military installations, and facilities for the Army as currently authorized in military public works or military construction Acts, and in sections 2673, 2674, and 2675 of title 10, United States Code, [$725,649,000] $980,300,000, of which [$500,000] $840,000 may be paid for use after 1960 by the Government of the United States of land on Roi-Namur Island, Marshall Islands District of the Trust Territories of the Pacific Islands, as authorized by the Military Construction Authorization Act, 1980, to remain available until September 30, [1984] 1985: Provided, That of this amount, not to exceed [$50,700,000] $88,150,000 shall be available for study, planning, design, architect and engineer services, as authorized by law, unless the Secretary of Defense determines that additional obligations are necessary for such purposes and notifies the Committees on Appropriations of both Houses of Congress of his determination and the reasons therefor. (Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1980; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed for $895,620,000.)

The purpose of this account is to allow transfers to family housing and military construction appropriations available for Defense activities in foreign countries to finance upward adjustment of recorded obligations due to foreign currency fluctuations above the budget rate. Transfers are made, as needed, to meet disbursement requirements in excess of funds otherwise available for obligation adjustment. Net gains from exchange are returned to this appropriation and are available for subsequent transfer when needed. This appropriation reduces the need for supplemental appropriations when there is a long-term decline in the exchange rates for the dollar.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

Department of Defense stock funds finance the purchase of consumable materials for resale to the military services and other authorized customers (10 U.S.C. 2208). These inventories are stocked at various Defense activities. Consumable mobilization reserve materials are also purchased through the stock funds.

Budget program.—Obligations increase in 1981 over 1980 due to projected price increases and larger procurement lead times. Efforts to improve pricing and inventory stockage policies, begun in 1979, will continue in 1980 and 1981.

Financing the budget program.—The budget program is financed from sales to customers. Gross expenditures in 1981 are projected to be higher than in 1980 as a result of projected price increases. Estimated expenditures are shown below (in millions of dollars):

	Gross outlays

Procurement leadtime for material acquisition is greater than the time required to fill and collect customers' orders. As a result, Department of Defense stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future years' sales (10 U.S.C. 2210(b)). Pursuant to this authority, contract authority of $4,028 million was available at the end of 1979, estimated to remain at $4,028 million in 1980 and decrease to $3,876 million in 1981.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Revenue and expenses for 1980 and 1981 are projected on a break-even basis. It is estimated that by the end of 1981, investment (equity) of the U.S. Government will be $17,223 million, including $16,365 million in inventory and other assets capitalized, and a cumulative retained income of $858 million.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance various Defense activities that perform industrial or commercial type functions on a reimbursable basis (10 U.S.C. 2208). Workload at these activities is generated by orders from various customers who provide reimbursement through progress payments for the full cost of the work performed. This enables the industrial funds to maintain the level of working capital needed for continued operations. Government investment as of September 30, 1981, is estimated at $503 million.

Budget program.—The policy of stabilizing the rates charged to customers will continue. Estimated total costs of goods and services produced in 1981 are projected to increase by $1,500 million, reflecting an increase in support requirements and costs. Yearend totals are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

TOTAL PRODUCTION COSTS
	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Army industrial fund.....	2,323,589	2,334,199	2,509,018
Navy industrial fund.....	7,588,635	8,490,700	9,196,800
Marine Corps industrial fund.....	46,516	51,257	55,001
Air Force industrial fund.....	3,039,923	3,577,366	4,183,554

Total.....	13,457,350	14,925,435	16,424,824

The U.S. Army activities financed through the Army industrial fund include depot supply and maintenance operations, research and development, arsenals, missile material development and acquisition, and ocean port handling of Defense cargo. The 1981 cost of operations reflects increased costs and continued efforts to reduce the depot maintenance backlog.

The Navy industrial fund finances a variety of activities, including aircraft maintenance facilities, ordnance stations, research laboratories, shipyards, strategic systems project offices, printing plants, public works centers, and the Military Sealift Command. The 1981 cost of operations reflects increased costs and continued efforts to reduce the depot maintenance backlog.

The Marine Corps industrial fund finances maintenance depots engaged in repairing or overhauling Marine Corps equipment and providing technical engineering support. The increase in costs and services in 1981 reflects continued emphasis to accelerate the depot maintenance programs to reduce backlogs and to increase services being provided to customers.

The activities financed under the Air Force industrial fund include laundries, depot maintenance activities, real property maintenance facility, and the Military Airlift Command. The increase in the costs of goods and services produced in 1981 results from higher in-house operating costs, increased contractual service costs, and continued emphasis to reduce the depot maintenance backlog.

The Defense industrial fund finances the Defense Clothing and Textile Center and leased communications procured by the Defense Commercial Communications Office.

1. Surveys.—(a) Navigation, flood damage prevention, and shoreline protection studies are made to determine the need, economic justification, and the environmental and social suitability of solutions to water and related land resource problems. The budget request includes funds for continuation of 168 studies, of which 31 will be completed, and an additional 17 interim reports will also be completed. Funds are also requested to initiate 12 new high priority studies. No funds are requested for continuation of 43 lower priority studies, which were funded in prior years.

(b) Comprehensive river basin studies under this category are Corps of Engineers funded studies to investigate the feasibility of implementing completed Water Resources Council comprehensive study findings.

(c) Special studies are made to resolve unique or complex water resource problems. The following 11 special studies will continue: (1) Carlyle Lake and Lake Shelbyville Special Study, (2) Chesapeake Bay, (3) diversion of Lake Michigan water at Chicago, (4) Great River Resource Management Study, (5) hydropower resources study, (6) Lake Erie waste-water management, (7) Long Island Sound dredged material containment study, (8) Metropolitan Washington, D.C., water supply, (9) national waterway study, (10) Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, and (11) water levels of the Great Lakes.

(d) Funds are requested to initiate review of the operation of six completed projects because significant changes in physical and/or economic conditions have occurred and to continue six others. Five studies of authorized projects will be continued and 22 studies initiated prior to submissions of requests for deauthorization. The restudy of Rockland Dam and Dam A,

Texas and Christiansted Harbor, Virgin Islands will be initiated.

(e) Coordination studies with Federal, State, and local agencies and interests give appropriate consideration to present and future requirements for all beneficial uses of water and related resources, including navigation, flood damage prevention, water supply, irrigation, water quality control, wastewater management, power, recreation, bank and shoreline protection, and fish and wildlife conservation.

(f) Phase I studies, authorized only for the phase I stage of advance engineering and design, provide additional information and recommendations on plans for which the preliminary feasibility and desirability have been established, but which require additional investigation. The budget request includes funds for continuation of 18 phase I studies, of which 6 will be completed. Funds are also requested to initiate one high priority study. No funds are requested for continuation of one lower priority study, which was funded in prior years.

2. Collection and study of basic data.—(a) Flood plain management services.—Funds are used to prepare and provide information on flood hazards, advice, and technical assistance requested by States, local government agencies, and by other Federal agencies for guidance in the management of flood plain areas.

(b) National program of inspection of non-Federal dams.—Inspection and evaluation will be made of potentially high-hazard non-Federal dams where adequate inspections have not been previously performed and to verify and update the National Inventory of Dams. Inspections were completed on 2,500 dams during 1979. In 1980 approximately 2,300 additional dams will be inspected and inspection of another 1,600 dams will be undertaken in 1981.

(c) Other programs.—Stream gaging funds are transferred to the U.S. Geological Survey for all, or part, of the cost of operation and maintenance of about 2,400 stream gaging stations which are of specific interest to the civil works mission. Precipitation studies funds are transferred to the National Weather Service for hydrometeorological studies used by the Corps in planning, design, and operation of various types of water resources projects. International waters studies comprise engineering studies on northern boundary waters, to assist the U.S. Government in meeting treaty commitments between the United States and Canada. Hydrologic studies, not chargeable to authorized projects or studies, develop information on rainfall-runoff relationships, flood frequency, snow melt, flood forecasting, analysis of past storms and floods, sedimentation, and other related hydrologic data. Four scientific and technical information centers acquire, examine, evaluate, and disseminate newly published scientific and technical information. Coastal field data collection comprises collection and evaluation of long-term statistical data on coastal conditions, including wave climate, the location and quantity of sand resources, erosion and accretion rates, and other historical data on shoreline changes and conditions. It also includes monitoring of completed coastal projects to determine actual project performance and the effectiveness of differing types of solutions for future application. Transportation systems funds are for the operation and updating of the Corps of Engineers inland navigation systems analysis program, which is a system of models and data files used to maximize the efficient operation and use of inland waterways, and to improve the planning for their future maintenance and improvement.

3. Research and development.—These investigations are conducted to improve the Corps capability to execute the civil works program.

1. Advance engineering and design.—Design studies establish project features and cost estimates required for preparation of contract plans. Fifty-seven projects will be funded, of which 10 will be completed.

2. Navigation projects.—This activity includes improvement of channels and harbors by dredging and construction of breakwaters, jetties, and dikes; construction of locks, dams, and canals; and mitigation of shore damages attributable to navigation projects. Work will be continued on 33 channel and harbor projects, and on 10 lock, dam, and canal projects. Work will be completed on four channel and harbor projects, and on one lock, dam, and canal project. In addition, $80 million in construction funding for projects in the inland and intracoastal waterways will be derived from the Inland Waterways trust fund.

3. Beach erosion control projects.—The Federal Government participates in the cost of restoring and protecting shores against erosion by waves and currents.

Work will continue on six projects, including reimbursement to non-Federal interests on one project. Work will be completed on one project.

4. Flood control projects.—Local protection projects consist of channel improvements, levees, floodwalls, emergency streambank and shoreline protection, and small snagging and clearing work on navigable streams and tributaries. Work will be continued on 73 local protection projects, and on 45 reservoir projects. Ten local protection projects and two reservoir projects will be completed.

5. Multiple-purpose power projects.—Construction will continue on 19 hydroelectric projects, of which 2 will be completed. In 1981, five power units with a generating capacity of 226 megawatts will be brought on line.

6. Rehabilitation.—Rehabilitation work is undertaken on existing projects that have deteriorated to the extent that their usefulness has been impaired. Work will start on one and continue on 16 projects. Six projects will be completed.

7. Recreation facilities at completed projects.—$18 million is requested for projects to be developed under a policy requiring local cost-sharing comparable to that now required for the recreation facilities of all new projects. $13 million is included to remedy sanitary deficiencies at completed projects.

8. Streambank erosion control evaluation and demonstration.—A national streambank erosion prevention and control demonstration program in accordance with section 32 of Public Law 93-51 is underway.

9. Shoreline erosion control demonstration.—A national shoreline erosion control demonstration program in accordance with section 54 of Public Law 93-251 is underway.

10. Aquatic plant control.—This program is for the control and progressive eradication of water hyacinths, alligator weed, Eurasian watermilfoil, and other obnoxious aquatic plants from navigable waters. The authority includes research to develop the most effective and economic control measures.

11. Employees compensation.—Provides reimbursement to the Employees' compensation fund, due to injuries or death of employees or persons, in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 785.

¹ Includes capital investments as follows: 1979, $2,712 thousand; 1980, $2,388 thousand; 1981, $1,039 thousand.

1. Navigation projects.—Operation and maintenance will be carried out on 262 channel and harbor projects and on 34 lock and dam projects. It is estimated that 241 million cubic yards of material will be dredged.

2. Flood control projects.—256 flood control reservoirs and 20 local protection projects will be operated and maintained. In 1981, over 523 million recreation days of use are estimated at completed projects. The requested funds will provide $7 million for research to develop improved design and operational procedures to meet environmental and water quality objectives while maintaining authorized project purposes. The $19.3 million in the dam safety assurance program will provide for the study and planning to improve safety and adequacy of completed Corps dams in light of present-day engineering standards and knowledge.

3. Multiple-purpose power projects.—Seventy-one multiple-purpose projects will be operated and maintained with a scheduled capacity of approximately 19 million kilowatts. These projects will provide approximately 4% of the electrical energy produced nationally in 1981.

4. Protection of navigation.—Under laws for the protection and preservation of navigable waters including adjacent wetlands, regulations are established and permits granted for activities and structures affecting navigable waters. Approximately 19,500 applications will be processed.

This activity provides for flood emergency preparation, flood fighting and rescue operations, and repair of flood control and Federal hurricane or shore protection works. It also provides for emergency supplies of clean drinking water where the source has been contaminated and, in drought distressed areas, provision of adequate supplies of water for human and livestock consumption. Carryover funds are considered adequate to finance operations in the budget year. A supplemental request would be made in the event of a major emergency.

The Alaska hydroelectric power development fund was established by the Alaska Hydroelectric Power Development Act (sec. 203, Public Law 94-587) to develop hydroelectric power generation projects in Alaska. The fund consists of Federal and non-Federal moneys deposited in the fund.

The act permits the use of funds for the phase I stage of engineering and design of projects that meet the environmental, benefit output, and financial requirements set forth in section 203 (a)(2) and (e) of the act. Institutional arrangements that would permit use of the fund have not been developed.

Intragovernmental funds:

The fund provides for the acquisition, operation, and maintenance of plant and equipment used in civil works functions, for temporary financing of services chargeable to civil appropriations, and for furnishing facilities and services for military functions of the Department of the Army, other governmental agencies and private persons (33 U.S.C. 576).

Budget program—Operating costs.—Operating costs include plant operations, warehousing, shops and facilities performing common services, and general administrative services including payrolls. Operating costs will increase about 9% in 1981.

1. Land and structures.—The 1981 program includes $16.24 million for the design, rehabilitation, or construction of structures for use by Portland, St. Paul, Jacksonville and Norfolk districts, Waterways Experiment Station, Coastal Engineering Research Center, two Regional Automatic Data Processing Centers, and the Water Resources Support Center at Fort Belvoir, Va.; and the design of the Area Control Center to be located in the Nashville District.

2. Dredges.—The 1981 program includes $73.27 million for the design, construction, and rehabilitation of Corps of Engineers hopper dredges as follows: $68.37 million for the construction of the large and medium class hopper dredges; $3.90 million for rehabilitation of the quarters and electrical system on the dredge Biddle; and $1.0 million for installing direct pumpout capability on the dredge Davison.

3. Other floating plant.—The 1981 program includes $10.09 million for design, rehabilitation, and construction of major items of floating plant for use by various Corps of Engineers districts.

4. Land-based equipment.—The 1981 program includes a total of $22.3 million for ADP equipment consisting of: $15.0 million for initial phase of CE-80; $2.8 million for replacement of the CROHMS system in the North Pacific Division; and $4.5 million for selected replacement requirements of existing equipment.

5. Tools, office furniture, and equipment.—The 1981 program includes $2.86 million for a variety of relatively small tools, office furniture, and equipment.

Financial condition.—Capital (Government equity) of the fund amounted to $412.7 million on September 30, 1979. The estimated limitation on the total accrued expenditure of the capital investment program for 1981 is $150.0 million. Capital was increased by net earnings of $30.8 million in 1979. Increases are principally due to earnings reserved for plant replacement which are wholly reinvested in assets. Capital of the fund is expected to reach $504.8 million at the end of 1980 and $593.4 million at the end of 1981.

Consolidated summary of personnel.—The revolving fund is used to initially finance all payrolls of the Corps of Engineers—Civil.

The table which follows shows the distribution of personnel and salary costs to appropriations of the Corps of Engineers and to other accounts:

Note.—Effective May 9, 1969, the Company entered into a 25-year contract with the Instituto de Recursos Hidraulicos y Electrificación, an autonomous agency of the Republic of Panama, for the purchase of electric power to be produced by that agency. Effective September 1, 1972 through December 31, 1976, by mutual agreement, the contract was suspended for a period of 4 years and 4 months. As of September 30, 1978, the Company's minimum liability over the remaining period of the contract amounted to approximately $66.5 million.

On September 7, 1977, the President of the United States and the Chief of Government of the Republic of Panama signed the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977 and a Treaty Concerning the Permanent Neutrality and Operation of the Panama Canal. The treaties have been ratified in accordance with the constitutional procedures of the United States and the Republic of Panama and entered into force on October 1, 1979. These treaties terminated all existing treaties between the two countries pertaining to the Panama Canal and produced major changes in the civil authority and the organization, scope of activities, and ownership of property of the Panama Canal enterprise. The Panama Canal Company ceased to exist and was replaced by the Panama Canal Commission. The Commission will be responsible for operating the waterway.

Until the treaties entered into force, the Panama Canal Company operated without material changes in the scope of its activities. These financial statements, therefore, do not purport to reflect the effect of the treaties or related legislation and administrative decisions on the assets, liabilities, investment of the United States Government, or the operating results of the Panama Canal Company.

WILDLIFE CONSERVATION, MILITARY RESERVATIONS

These appropriations provide for a program of development and conservation of fish and wildlife and the development of recreational facilities on military reservations. The proceeds from the sale of fishing and hunting permits have been and will continue to be used for these programs on the 35 Army, 19 Navy, and 27 Air Force bases charging such fees. An appropriation of $1.5 million is being requested in 1981. These programs are carried out through cooperative plans agreed upon by the local representatives of the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Interior, and the appropriate agency of the State in which the reservation is located.

This account includes activities previously funded under the Department of Health and Human Services (formerly Health, Education, and Welfare) that have been transferred pursuant to the Department of Education Organization Act (Public Law 96-88). In addition, funds for Basic skills, Follow through, Alcohol and drug abuse education, Telecommunications demonstrations and Ethnic heritage studies, previously shown under this account, are included under the School improvement account.

1. Grants for disadvantaged.—Title I provides grants to State and local educational agencies for compensatory education for disadvantaged children through three programs. Regular grants channel funds to local educational agencies based on a legislated formula and to State educational agencies for migrant children, and for handicapped, neglected and delinquent children in State institutions. Concentration grants provide additional funds for compensatory education in the counties with high concentrations of children from low income families. State incentive grants provide a Federal match of State expenditures for compensatory education to States with qualifying programs.

These three programs will serve a total of 6.4 to 7.1 million children in school year 1981-82. About 14,000 school districts and more than 325 State agencies will participate. The children served include an estimated 270,000 in nonpublic schools. Contracts are also awarded to support program evaluation and other studies.

2. Support and innovation grants.—In 1981, grants will be made to State educational agencies on a formula basis under two separate authorities:

(a) Improving local educational practices.—Funds are provided to State agencies to support projects for the development and implementation of innovative solutions to problems in elementary and secondary education. State education agencies award grants for these projects, on a discretionary basis, to their local education agencies. In school year 1981-82, States are expected to place greater emphasis on projects designed to implement innovative practices.

(b) Strengthening State educational agency management.—Funds are provided to State education agencies to improve their management and coordination of educational programs, including federally funded programs. In 1981, the program is funded for the first time under the new separate authority included in the Education Amendments of 1978.

3. Guidance, counseling, and testing.—Grants are awarded to States for leadership and supervisory services in guidance, counseling, and testing, and for comprehensive programs in elementary and secondary schools. In school year 1981-82, 7,500 local educational agency projects and 14 in-service counselor training projects will be supported.

4. Bilingual education.—This program supports the development of bilingual education programs in local schools to help children of limited English proficiency learn English while they develop subject matter skills. Aid is also given to build State, local, and university capabilities to train bilingual education personnel, and for the development, assessment, and dissemination of instructional materials. Studies and evaluations are supported.

For school year 1981-82, the program will support an estimated 688 classroom projects, including 60 special demonstration projects, enrolling 378,000 children; provide inservice training for 33,500 teachers, paraprofessionals, and administrators; supply undergraduate or graduate training for 7,700 potential bilingual teachers and administrators; and support bilingual education training programs in about 148 institutions of higher education. In addition, 30 bilingual desegregation grants will be made to local school districts, and 49 State education agencies will receive awards for technical assistance and Statewide coordination of federally supported bilingual education activities.

5. Territorial assistance.—Funds are authorized for general education assistance for the Virgin Islands and for teacher training in the Pacific Trust Territories and the Virgin Islands. No funds are requested in 1981.

6. Indochina refugee assistance (children).—Grants are authorized to provide educational services to Indochinese refugee children who entered or will enter the United States on or after January 1, 1977. No funds are requested under this authority in 1981. A $23 million supplemental appropriation for refugee services in school year 1980-81 is requested in the Health and Human Services appropriation. In addition, $44 million is requested for school year 1981-82 under proposed legislation in the Department of Health and Human Services. Funds will support special refugee education projects to be managed jointly by the Departments of Education and Health and Human Services.

As part of the President's initiative to counter the ill effects of youth unemployment, legislation will be proposed to establish a grant program to support special supplementary education programs in school districts with high concentrations of poor and unemployed youth. The purpose of the new program will be to help provide needy junior and senior high school students with the basic academic and employability skills necessary to graduate from high school and obtain employment. Funds will flow to states and eligible school districts on a formula basis. Within these districts, schools with concentrations of needy students will compete for available funds. Programs will be closely coordinated with local prime sponsors under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA).

1. Maintenance and operations.—Direct payments are made to school districts when enrollments and the availability of revenues from local sources have been adversely affected by Federal activities. Funds are distributed according to a three-tier payment system. For 1981, the objective is to limit Federal responsibility to districts most seriously burdened by nontaxable lands defined as Federal property. Therefore, payments for 3(a) children (those who live and whose parents work on Federal property) will be made at the 1980 payment level to districts whose 1980 3(a) payment represented 2.5 percent or more of their 1980 total current expenditures. Payments will be made for 3(b) children (those who either live, or whose parents work, on Federal property) at the 1980 payment level to districts whose 1980 3(b) payment represented 5.0 percent or more of their 1980 total current expenditures. Federal agencies (section 6) and certain districts having a partial loss of tax base (section 2) will be fully funded. Payments will not be made for the hold harmless provisions or for the section 3(e) hold harmless-type provision.

In 1981, payments will be made to 738 school districts for 290,000 3(a) children and 40,000 3(b) children.

Although no budget authority is requested for major disasters, payment of claims will be made from the $11.3 million unobligated balance of $24 million appropriated for hold harmless payments in 1976. All claims against this budget authority have been met.

2. Construction.—Grants are made to school districts for construction of school facilities when enrollments and the availability of revenues from local sources have been adversely affected by Federal activities. For 1981, the objective is to provide funds to construct or replace needed school facilities and to repair schools which are hazardous to the life and safety of children attending them. Under section 10, about 4 projects located on Federal installations will be constructed; under section 14, an estimated 8 grants will be made to districts which serve children who reside on Indian lands; and under section 5, approximately 10 facilities will be constructed or modified to accommodate an increase in federally connected children. In 1981, the construction of about 300 classrooms will benefit over 7,000 children, compared to 183 classrooms constructed for 4,400 children in 1980.

	1979	Oct. 1-Mar. 31, 1980
Special projects and training, Office of Education, Department of Health and Human Services.....	9,000	1,525

This account includes activities previously funded under the Department of Health and Human Services (formerly the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare), that have been transferred pursuant to the Department of Education Organization Act (Public Law 96-88).

Under this account, support is provided through the Emergency School Aid Act and title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to local and State educational agencies and nonprofit organizations to meet problems associated with school desegregation. Additionally, funds provided under the Women's Educational Equity Act support programs to eliminate sex discrimination through awards to State and local educational agencies, institutions, and community organizations.

1. Emergency school aid.—In 1981, Federal desegregation assistance under the Emergency School Aid Act will continue to focus on newly desegregating districts at the time they enter the initial, costly stages of the desegregation process. Emphasis will be on the delivery of flexible support to meet these needs.

Two basic types of assistance are provided under the legislation: State-apportioned funds and nationally competed funds. State-apportioned funds are allocated among States based on the number of their minority children aged 5-17, with school districts applying directly to the Department of Education for project approval. These funds support districts in all stages of desegregation, but place priority on those having the most recent desegregation plans.

Several programs requiring a national competition are supported. These include: planning grants to assist local districts in developing desegregation plans; emergency aid for districts which have received court orders to develop desegregation plans and did not seek assistance during the regular funding cycle; awards to plan and operate magnet schools providing specialized curricula to attract a racially integrated student body; educational television and radio projects, assisting the development of specialized national educational programming; and incentive awards to encourage State educational agencies to take a larger role in planning and implementing voluntary desegregation.

Estimated number of grants:

	1980	1981
State-apportioned grants.....	371	371
Special programs and projects.....	184	186
Magnet schools, pairing, and neutral site schools.....	65	62
Grants to nonprofit organizations.....	50	150
Educational television and radio.....	11	11
Evaluation.....	2	6

2. Training and advisory services.—To encourage the desegregation of local school districts and assist them in addressing problems arising from the elimination of race, sex, and national origin discrimination, awards are made to State and local educational agencies, desegregation assistance centers, and training institutes under title IV of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. In 1981, direct grants to school districts will continue to be emphasized in order to ensure flexibility in meeting their needs. Additionally, increased efforts will be made in the areas of national origin and sex discrimination.

Estimated number of LEA's served by:

	1980	1981
Grants to local educational agencies.....	97	140
Grants to training institutes.....	780	780
Grants to State educational agencies.....	4,450	4,450
Grants to desegregation assistance centers.....	9,225	9,225

3. Women's educational equity.—Funds provided under the Women's Educational Equity Act support innovative programs aimed at eliminating sex discrimination, bias, and stereotyping at all levels of education. This program provides grants and contracts for demonstration, development and dissemination activities which promote educational equity for women. In 1981, priority for funding will be given to projects focusing on: leaders in educational policy and administration; elementary and secondary education; the problems of minority, low-income, and handicapped girls and women; and elimination of persistent barriers to sex equity in education. In addition, for the first time in 1981, grants will be made to local educational agencies and other educational institutions to assist them in complying with title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Legislation is proposed to allow $10 million of the request to be allocated for these compliance projects. A total of approximately 133 projects will be supported, including 67 grants for the implementation of title IX projects at the local level.

This account includes activities previously funded under the Department of Health and Human Services (formerly Health, Education, and Welfare) that have been transferred pursuant to the Department of Education Organization Act (Public Law 96-88).

1. Public libraries.—Grants are made to States to encourage and assist them in the development of public library services that can fulfill the educational and informational needs of the American people. These funds will help the States to provide 203 million persons with access to services, including over 30 million disadvantaged persons. Also, grants are made to States to encourage cooperative networking among all types of libraries. About 310 cooperative library projects will be supported, with each project to include at least one public library.

2. School libraries and instructional resources.—This State grant program is a consolidation of two programs, giving local educational agencies discretion in the amount of funds to be used for the purchase of school library resources and textbooks and/or instructional equipment.

Funding of this program is requested on a forward funded basis for use in the subsequent year. These funds will provide services to about 41.2 million public and 4.3 million private elementary and secondary school students.

3. College library resources.—Discretionary grants are awarded to institutions of higher education for the acquisition of books, periodicals, and other printed and published materials. Pending legislation will permit grants to be limited to the neediest institutions. About 500 grants would be awarded, averaging $10,000.

4. Training and demonstrations.—Grants are awarded to support the training of paraprofessionals and professionals in library and information science for services to all types of libraries, through fellowships, traineeships, and training institutes. Also, grants are awarded to improve the Nation's libraries and training in librarianship through support of exemplary projects, and the dissemination of exemplary practices. The training program will concentrate all its funds on fellowships in 1981, benefiting 75 persons, particularly women and members of minority groups. Approximately four contracts will be awarded in support of library demonstration projects.

5. Research libraries.—Grants are awarded to assist major research libraries in maintaining and strengthening their collections constituting a national resource essential to research and scholarship and to assist these libraries in making their holdings available to other libraries whose users have need for research materials. About 23 grants will be awarded, averaging $300,000 each, with emphasis on projects which would encourage cooperation between libraries for the sharing of their valuable resource materials.

6. Educational television programing.—Projects support the development, production, installation, and utilization of innovative television and radio programs for use by children and adults in both home and school environments. In 1981, six projects will be supported including one new program targeted on literacy for adults. Currently broadcast series will benefit about 18 million viewers and post-broadcast activities (reruns, audiovisual) will impact approximately 8 million viewers.

1. Payments to local educational agencies (LEA's) and non-LEA's.—Entitlement grants are made to local educational agencies and tribal schools for supplemental elementary and secondary programs to meet the special educational needs of Indian children. About 1,210 grants will be made to LEA's and tribal schools serving 356,000 Indian students, with a per pupil expenditure of $195.

In addition, an amount equal to 6.8% of the entitlement program is reserved for discretionary awards for Indian-controlled schools (non-LEA's). Grants may be used for supplementary programs to enrich educational experiences for Indian children or to assist in the establishment of such schools. About 30 awards serving 5,700 children will be made.

2. Special programs for Indian students.—Funds support planning, pilot and demonstration programs; educational service projects; education personnel training; resource and evaluation centers; fellowships; and evaluation projects. In 1981, a new program will assist State educational agencies to provide technical assistance to local educational agencies.

Competitive awards are made to Indian tribes, organizations, and institutions; institutions of higher education; and State and local educational agencies. About 77 awards will be made in 1981, including 10 awards to State educational agencies. Approximately 6,500 children will be served and 1,132 education personnel trained. 3. Special programs for Indian adults.—Competitive grants are made to Indian tribes and organizations and to State and local educational agencies for programs to improve educational opportunities for Indian adults. Objectives are to decrease illiteracy among Indian adults, to increase the number of Indian adults who earn high school equivalency diplomas, and to encourage the development of programs and curriculum materials relevant to Indian culture and heritage. About 51 awards in 1981 will benefit some 12,375 adults.

4. Program administration.—Funds support the administrative expenses of the Office of Indian Education and the National Advisory Council on Indian Education, as well as planning and evaluation studies to provide information for policy decisions and program improvement.

1. State assistance—(a) State grant program.—This program assists States in providing a full appropriate public education and related services to all handicapped children aged 5-18. Handicapped children aged 3-5 and 18-21 must also be served except when such services would be inconsistent with State law or practice or the order of any court. To be eligible for grants, each State is required to submit an acceptable State plan which requires the development and use of individualized education programs for each handicapped student, the establishment of procedural safeguards for all handicapped children and their parents, and the inservice training of personnel for these special education programs. For school year 1981-1982, the request will provide an estimated 12% of the excess costs associated with educating handicapped children.
