The Highway Safety Act of 1970 authorized grants to States and communities for implementing and maintaining highway-related safety standards. Funding was one-third Federal funds and two-thirds highway trust funds. The Highway Safety Act of 1975 and the Highway Safety Act of 1978 provided additional authorizations which were entirely trust funded and extended grant eligibility to Indian reservations and the four U.S. territories. Funds for the territories are included in the Territorial Highways account.

This appropriation, established in 1975, seeks to identify, correct, and evaluate those critical elements that contribute to loss of life, disabling injuries, and property damage on American highways. The emphasis of research is to provide workable and timely solutions to a set of critical safety problems. A program level of $9.0 million is planned for 1981. This program will attempt to meet the increasing demands for solutions to urgent safety problems such as traffic management in construction and maintenance zones, and new longer range initiatives in safety hardware, driver aids, and measuring system performance.

Funds appropriated for this account are transferred to the General operating expenses limitation where the program is administered in conjunction with other research and development programs of the Federal Highway Administration.

The Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974 authorized 70% Federal grant assistance for reconstruction or replacement of 37 two-lane bridges on the Overseas Highway. This 110-mile highway is the ground transportation link between Key West and Key Largo in the State of Florida.

By agreement with the State of Florida, the 1979 appropriation of $87.1 million completes funding for this program.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1978 declared that it would be national policy to make a special effort to promote commuter modes of transportation that conserve energy, reduce pollution, and reduce traffic congestion. The Secretary was directed to assist both public and private employers and employees who wish to establish carpooling and vanpooling programs where they are needed and desired, and to assist local and State governments, and their instrumentalities, in encouraging such modes by removing legal and regulatory barriers to such programs, supporting existing carpooling and vanpooling programs, and providing technical assistance for the purpose of increasing participation in such modes. For 1981, carpool/vanpool projects will be eligible for funding from the proposed Auto-use Management program to be funded out of the Windfall Profits Tax.

1. Project acceleration demonstration program.—The 1976 Highway Act authorized $25 million to demonstrate the feasibility of reducing the time required to construct a highway project that is necessitated due to changes in population or traffic flow caused by the construction of other Federal projects.

The appropriations for this program through 1979 total $25 million, and are expected to be obligated by the end of 1980 for a highway interchange near Everett, Pa.

2. Traffic control signalization demonstration projects.—This program is intended to improve traffic signal control systems by using technology not now in general use.

It is estimated that all $30 million appropriated through 1978 will be obligated by the end of 1980, and no further funding is requested. Activities authorized through this account are also authorized expenses within the Federal-aid highways account.

3. Intermodal urban demonstration project.—Section 124 of the Federal-Aid Highway Amendments of 1974 authorized not to exceed $53 million for a demonstration project for construction of a high-density urban highway intermodal transportation connection between Franklin Avenue and 59th Street South, in Minneapolis, Minn.

The 1978 appropriation of $2.25 million will cover preliminary design and environmental studies. No additional funding will be requested in 1981 because the outcome of social, economic and environmental studies are pending.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968 authorized $300 million for the establishment of a right-of-way revolving fund. This fund is utilized to make cash advances to the States for the purpose of purchasing right-of-way parcels in advance of highway construction and thereby preventing the inflation of land prices from causing a significant increase in construction costs.

The initial legislation for this program required the States to construct the highway and reimburse the revolving fund within seven years from the date of the advance. The 1973 Highway Act extended the required time limit on construction to 10 years and the 1976 Highway Act extended the time limit indefinitely, if deemed necessary by the Secretary.

In 1981, obligations will be made to the extent of States' reimbursements to the revolving fund.

1. Rulemaking programs.—Covers rulemaking activity relative to the promulgation of Federal motor vehicle safety standards for new and used motor vehicles, tires, and equipment; automotive fuel economy standards required by the Energy Policy and Conservation Act; and programs requiring economic bumpers withstanding low-speed collisions, automobile ratings, diagnostic inspection, and odometer regulation.

2. Enforcement programs.—Provides for the enforcement of programs described under the rulemaking activity, including manufacturer compliance with motor vehicle safety and automotive fuel economy standards, investigation of safety related motor vehicle defects, and surveillance of odometer tampering.

3. Highway safety programs.—This activity provides for headquarters and field staff to assist the States in the conduct of their highway safety programs through program guidance, technical assistance and evaluation. Demonstration projects are conducted to show effectiveness of new techniques in operational environments and attain widespread acceptance and adoption of these new techniques and countermeasures. Training courses and materials are developed for use in the States.

4. Research and analysis.—This activity provides for research and development in support of all NHTSA programs, including the collection and analysis of data to determine the relationship between motor vehicle and driver performance characteristics and crashes causing death or personal injury. Provision is also made for facilities required to furnish scientific and technical bases for motor vehicle standards, and to do limited compliance testing and defects investigation. The 1981 budget includes funds to continue the development of a national accident data collection program to improve problem identification, rulemaking support, and program evaluation activities.

5. General administration.—This activity provides for overall executive direction, coordination, and implementation of agency programs, except for mission-oriented support activities which are included in the respective program areas. Basic administrative and support requirements for all safety programs are also provided in this category.

Under the State and Community Highway Safety Program, Federal grants are provided to assist the States and their political subdivisions in the establishment and improvement of highway safety programs and in enforcement of the national maximum speed limit. A total program of $209.4 million is planned in 1981, compared to $197.5 million for 1980.

1. Entitlement grant programs.—Allocation of grants is determined on the basis of statutory formula pursuant to authorizations for highway safety programs and school bus driver training. Highway safety programs include driver licensing, motor vehicle registration, driver education, and police traffic services. Individual States are utilizing this funding in areas which have the greatest potential for achieving safety improvements and reducing traffic fatalities and accidents at the State and local level. Activities are centered largely in efforts that will control the drinking driver; increase the intensity of traffic law enforcement; improve the quality and availability of emergency medical services; and improve program management. Total obligations for all encompassed activities are estimated at $142.6 million for 1981.

2. National maximum speed limit.—Federal grants are authorized to assist the States in meeting statutory criteria for enforcement of the National 55 mile-per-hour speed limit. Under the program, States are eligible for: basic grant entitlement for activities related to fostering compliance with the speed limit, and for incentive grants for exceeding minimum compliance levels established for fiscal years 1979 through 1983. Funds are allocated in relationship to the statutory formula prescribed for highway safety grants. A program of $57 million is proposed for 1981.

3. Innovative grants.—Federal grants are also authorized to be awarded to States which identify and demonstrate the feasibility of innovative solutions to highway safety problems. Funds of $2 million are proposed to initiate this program in 1981.

4. Grant administration.—Funds of $7.8 million are required to cover the expenses of administering Federal grant activity in 1981.

1. Executive direction.—Provides for salaries and related expenses of the Offices of the Administrator, Chief Counsel, Planning and Budget, Civil Rights, and Public Affairs. In addition to dealing with critical policy issues concerning the railroad industry, the executive direction program is also involved in maintaining communications with the general public; developing a work force that includes minority groups and women at all levels; insuring that FRA programs receive legal counsel; and that programs are carried out in a manner consistent with predetermined objectives and budgetary goals.

In 1981 increased effort will be placed on rail restructuring and deregulation matters.

2. Administration.—Provides for salaries and related expenses associated with day-to-day operations of the Federal Railroad Administration. The Office of Administration includes the Offices of Personnel and Training, Management Systems, Procurement, and Financial Services.

Additional effort will be devoted in 1981 to improving FRA recruiting and maintaining the Safety Inspector register.

1. Federal enforcement.—Provides for salaries and related expenses of safety field operations which are designed to motivate the railroads to comply with Federal safety laws and regulations to reduce the number of railroad related accidents/incidents. Monitoring of the railroads is accomplished through the use of Federal inspectors. Budgeted positions have increased from 399 in 1979 to 409 in 1980 and 1981. The level of effort in this program for 1981 will remain about the same as in 1980, while a study of total railroad system safety is conducted.

2. Automated track inspection program.—Enhances the Federal enforcement effort by providing inspection of track and associated components through the use of automated track inspection vehicles. In 1980 and 1981 these vehicles will monitor track geometry and rail flaws on about 76,000 miles of track each year, up from 70,000 miles in 1979.

3. Safety regulation and program administration.—Includes salaries and related expenses of safety headquarters personnel together with data gathering and dissemination, planning and evaluation activities and administration of grants-in-aid. The ongoing responsibility of this program is to develop and subsequently issue new or revised standards, procedures, and regulations as necessary to provide a safer railroad operating and working environment.

4. Grants-in-aid for railroad safety.—Assists States in paying salaries and expenses incurred for State safety inspectors authorized under section 206 of the Railroad Safety Act of 1970. The 1980 and 1981 programs will each support approximately 180 State inspectors, up from 88 in 1979, to aid the Federal Railroad Administration in enforcement of Federal safety standards.

* Does not include a limitation on U.S. Railway Association loan guarantees.

The State rail assistance program is designed to provide financing assistance to States for rail planning and for: (1) rail service continuation payments; (2) the cost of purchasing a line of railroad or other rail properties for future rail service; (3) rehabilitating rail properties, and (4) providing substitute or alternate mode service in a manner less expensive than continuing rail service.

A Minority Business Resource Center is operated to assist minority business firms, entrepreneurs, and venture groups in securing contracts and subcontracts arising out of the restructuring and revitalization of the Nation's railroads.

The other administration and special projects program provides for the necessary salaries and related expenses of the Federal Railroad Administration in support of Federal assistance programs, in this account as well as in the Railroad rehabilitation and improvement financing account, grants to the National Railroad Passenger Corp. and the labor/management initiatives funded under railroad research and development.

In 1981, this program will place increased emphasis on track rehabilitation in preference to subsidies in response to the Local Rail Assistance Act of 1978, and will apply increased administrative resources toward resolution of urban railroad conflicts.

The limitation proposed on loan guarantees applies to those loans guaranteed by the Secretary of Transportation pursuant to the Emergency Rail Services Act of 1970. These funds are provided to railroads undergoing reorganization.

A new rail restructuring assistance program has been proposed by the Administration to combine various forms of current assistance and to provide DOT with the flexibility to achieve desired rail restructuring. The mechanism for assistance will be repayable credits. The program should meet the following objectives: (1) enhance the ability of railroads to eliminate redundancy in the rail system by promoting acquisitions, consolidations, coordinations, and/or mergers; (2) assist in facility rehabilitation and improvement on major interstate lines and promote efficient rail competition in major market areas where economically justified; and (3) provide labor protection for workers displaced by restructuring projects and promote labor productivity by providing loans to cover the costs of changes in work rules and operating practices. The Administration proposes total authorizations of $1,475 million, of which $250 million is requested to be appropriated in 1981.

RAIL LABOR ASSISTANCE*

* See Part III for additional information.

For payment of benefits under section 509 of the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, as amended, $7,500,000, to remain available until expended. (87 stat. 985, Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Note.—1981 estimate is for activities previously financed from Regional Rail Transportation Protective Account of the Railroad Retirement Board, which will continue to administer payment of benefits.

The Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 provides for unemployment and supplementary pay benefits for protected employees adversely affected by establishment of Conrail in 1976. Amounts authorized and appropriated under the 1973 Act will be paid out in benefits before the end of 1980 ($250 million). The proposed supplemental request contained in Part III of this

Appendix, together with the 1981 request, will continue to provide benefits for displaced employees, consistent with reauthorization legislation to be proposed to Congress. The reauthorization legislation will rectify some of the problems identified by the Comptroller General in his December 5, 1979, report to the Congress entitled "Employee Protection Provisions of the Rail Act Need Change."

NORTHEAST CORRIDOR IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM

For necessary expenses related to Northeast Corridor improvements authorized by title VII of Public Law 94-210, as amended, and title I of Public Law 95-599, [[$381,000,000] $400,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That, notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the provisions of Public Law 95-804 shall apply to the Northeast Corridor Improvement Program: Provided further, That, the Secretary may waive the provisions of 23 U.S.C. 322 (c) and (d) if he determines such action would serve a public purpose. Major rehabilitation efforts include route realignment, track structure, bridges, electrification, signaling, service facilities, and stations.

2. System engineering/program management and administration.—This program includes system engineering which provides for system modeling, standards, design and requirements criteria; and program management and administration which provides overall program planning, scheduling, monitoring, supervision, inspection, and evaluation including the salaries of FRA and Federal Highway Administration personnel assigned to the project.

3. Public grade crossing elimination.—This program is funded under a separate authorization in the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1978, to modify or eliminate hazards of railway-highway crossings on public roads.

The National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) is a private corporation. Federal assistance is provided through the Department of Transportation in the following manner:

GRANTS TO THE NATIONAL RAILROAD PASSENGER CORPORATION—Continued

1. Operating grants.—In 1981, funding is required to meet operating losses anticipated on the reduced Amtrak route structure described by the Amtrak Reorganization Act of 1979. These losses are now expected to be significantly less than previously forecasted due to increases in ridership, improved load factors, and higher revenues brought about by higher automobile operating costs and higher non-rail fares.

2. State assisted routes.—In 1981, funding is proposed at the level necessary to support for the full year all existing and new routes operated in 1980. Increased costs for full year operation will be partially offset by the increased state share of new routes in the second year as prescribed by the Amtrak Reorganization Act of 1979.

3. Labor protection and capital grants.—This program provides for the continuing cost of labor protection associated with recent route discontinuances and for increased capital investment to permit equipment purchase or modification (both cars and locomotives) and construction or modification of facilities consistent with the needs of the modified system. Advance 1982 appropriations are requested for long lead time procurements.

4. Debt transactions.—This program provides for continuation of the systematic retirement of Amtrak's section 602 loans, reducing the availability of guaranteed loans to $825 million, and for the retirement of the note issued in 1977 to finance an installment of the Northeast corridor purchase.

The Emergency Rail Facilities Restoration Act authorized the Secretary of Transportation to make loans for the purpose of restoring or replacing railroad facilities, equipment, or services damaged or destroyed as a result of the natural disasters that occurred during June 1972 and provided that no loan application could be approved later than June 27, 1973. The program was terminated in 1974. On October 1, 1978, the unexpended balance was returned to the general fund of the Treasury.

Public enterprise funds:

The Alaska Railroad is operated by the Federal Government under the act of March 12, 1914 (38 Stat. 305).

Budget program.—The major activity of the rail line operation program is transportation service; the principal supporting activities are maintenance of way and structures and maintenance of equipment. Lease of real properties, riverboats, and related facilities round out the other operating programs. 1981 funds will be used to maintain equipment and facilities at a level needed for safe and efficient operations, make energy conserving improvements to the Anchorage shops, and to fund the major share of a proposed joint State and Federal passenger equipment replacement program, without which self-sufficiency of passenger operations will not be feasible.

Financing.—To the extent possible, programs are financed by revenues earned from freight and passenger services and other services incidental thereto. It is estimated that freight tonnages will continue below the peaks associated with pipeline construction, commensurate with the projected plateau in general business levels in Alaska until such time as other energy resources are developed; that is, natural gas and coal. Through aggressive marketing practices the Alaska Railroad hopes to achieve some increase in tonnage/revenue in 1980 and 1981.

Section 509 of the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976, as amended, authorizes the Secretary of Treasury to purchase fund anticipation notes from the Secretary of Transportation. The Secretary of Transportation uses these funds to purchase redeemable preference shares from railroads to provide for capital needs to preserve rail freight services. Funds are provided to railroads with the highest priority on projects effecting mergers and consolidations. Under the provisions of the act, repayments on the shares will not commence earlier than 6 years after purchase by the United States. This authorization expires September 30, 1980, and is proposed to be replaced by a new program of railroad restructuring assistance under the Rail service assistance appropriation. Section 511 of Public Law 94-210, as amended, also authorizes obligation guarantees for meeting the long-term needs of the railroads. Railroads utilize this funding mechanism to finance major new facilities and rehabilitation or consolidation of current facilities. The appropriation language provides standby authority to issue notes in the event of default, up to the cumulative level of loans anticipated to be guaranteed. Both a cumulative limitation on loans outstanding and an annual limitation on new commitments are proposed for 1981.

This fund was established to finance all capital and operating assistance grants, contracts, and loan activities authorized by the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, as amended. This fund was extended until 1982 by the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1978. That act also authorized several new funding categories such as intercity bus terminal construction and special rail transit grants. The administration intends to fund such activities through the existing urban discretionary and formula grant programs which have adequate flexibility and funding to accommodate worthy projects.

Urban discretionary grants.—Provides grants to State and local agencies for mass transportation investments. Such investments may include construction of new fixed guideway systems; extensions to existing guideway systems; major bus fleet expansions; capital grants for emergency repairs to transit facilities resulting from natural disasters; deployment of new technology; innovative transit demonstrations projects; and technical planning assistance. For 1981, $1.4 billion is planned for this activity with 260 projects. Under the administration's Urban Initiative, $200 million of these funds in 1981 will be used for joint development and related projects which link transportation facilities and encourage private economic development. The request for an advance 1981 appropriation for this activity in the 1980 budget is superseded by this year's request.

Technical studies grants.—This program activity is now subsumed in the urban discretionary grants activity; separate funding is no longer necessary.

Urban formula grants.—Provides for grants to urbanized areas or parts thereof on the basis of a formula for the payment of operating expenses; the construction, acquisition, and improvement of facilities and equipment; for routine capital projects such as the replacement of buses; the modernization of existing systems, and for commuter rail and other fixed guideway systems. For 1981, $1.6 billion is planned for this activity with 385 projects.

Nonurban formula grants.—Provides formula grants for nonurbanized areas. These funds provide for transit grants (for areas other than urbanized areas) on the basis of a formula. Both payment of operating expenses and capital expenses are eligible. For 1981, $110.0 million is planned for this activity with 50 grants.

Research and training.—Provides for grants and contracts for the purposes of developing, testing, and demonstrating new facilities, equipment, techniques, and methods (operations and managerial), and improving mass transportation services; grants to public bodies to provide for advanced training for personnel in the mass transportation field; and grants are awarded to public and private, nonprofit institutions to assist in establishing or continuing programs which combine professional training and research in the field of mass transportation. For 1981, $77.2 million is planned for this activity with 321 projects.

Administrative expenses.—Provides for the administrative costs of the Urban Mass Transportation Administration. For 1981, $23.1 million is planned for this program activity.

Waterborne demonstration.—Further funding is not necessary because the demonstration can be completed with the appropriations already provided for this program activity.

Interstate transfer grants.—Grants under this activity are authorized by the 1973 Highway Act, whereby States and localities may withdraw previously approved interstate segments and apply the authorized funds to substitute transit or highway projects. For 1981, $725 million is planned for this activity with 20 projects. The Washington, D.C., area will receive up to $275 million in 1980 and 1981 from this activity. The request for an advance 1981 appropriation for this activity in the 1980 budget is superseded by this year's request.

Direct loans and loan guarantees.—These program activities provide direct loans for advance land acquisition and guarantees rail system construction bonds issued by the Washington Metropolitan-Area Transit Authority. No change in the status of these activities is planned for 1981.

The continuing overall goal of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation is to keep the St. Lawrence Seaway system a safe, reliable, and efficient transportation artery. The Corporation is continuing to interface with a multitude of diverse interests that share the common goal of expanding commerce on the Great Lakes/St. Lawrence Seaway system. In 1981, the Corporation will continue to operate and maintain the U.S. part of the seaway and pursue programs to increase the efficiency of the system by continuing efforts to: (1) extend the navigation season; (2) work closely with current and potential seaway shippers, Great Lakes ports, and other organizations; (3) encourage increased use of the seaway system; and (4) maintain and improve our lock facilities and lock approach channels. The winter lock maintenance program will be continued. The Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation's 1981 budget reflects these objectives:

1. Administrative expenses (limitation).—This program provides for management and administration of the Corporation, and includes finance, legal, civil rights, procurement, personnel administration, and other related support services.

2. Operations.—This program provides for operation of all facilities and for planning and development activities. Operations are conducted on a 24-hour day, 7-day week basis throughout the navigation season with maintenance functions being performed throughout the year. Some major maintenance items are necessarily deferred to the nonnavigation season when both operations and maintenance forces are utilized for their accomplishment.

3. Replacements and improvements.—This program provides for capital investments, such as purchase and installation of stack precipitator and modifications for tug Robinson Bay, dredging off-loading facility, navigation aid construction, Phase III installation of flushing ports, season extension projects, and building, plant and equipment replacements. The Corporation also maintains a reserve to provide funding of extraordinary maintenance and improvements and also to insure funding of programs when revenues do not reach expected budgeted levels.

The Corporation estimates its revenues for 1981 to reach $12.1 million which it proposes to apply as follows: (a) $7.6 million to pay operating expenses consisting of administrative expenses of $1.5 million (subject to limitation) and $6.1 million for operations; (b) $1.9 million to pay estimated replacements and improvements costs for season extension projects, facility improvements, and replacements of equipment; (c) $2.5 million for the scheduled redemption of the Corporation's revenue bonds issued to the U.S. Treasury; and (d) $0.1 million to be added to the Corporation's unobligated reserve.

2. Research and development.—This activity provides for research and development to complement research programs of the operating administrations, to stimulate industry efforts to advance transportation technology, to develop multimodal and intermodal systems and technology, to encourage university research, and to support the hazardous materials and pipeline safety regulatory programs.

3. Grants.—This activity provides for grants-in-aid to State agencies of up to 50% of the actual costs for conducting a gas pipeline safety program as authorized by the Natural Gas Pipeline Safety Act of 1968.

The fund was established for the conduct of multimodal research, analysis and development projects by the Transportation Systems Center (TSC) in Cambridge, Mass. These projects are sponsored by the Office of the Secretary and all departmental operating elements. Legislation has been proposed to establish a working capital fund to finance this activity beginning in 1981. The intragovernmental revolving fund will then permit the programs of the Center to be presented in a manner similar to other such activities elsewhere in the Government. The planned work for 1981, grouped under the departmental objectives, is as follows:

Modernize regulation and legislation.—This activity analyzes Federal regulation of transportation and studies the financial and technical relationships which govern regulatory operations. TSC also conducts assessments of the potential impacts of proposed policies on the transportation industry and the public.

Increase efficiency and service.—This area encompasses development and assessment of new technology, systems, and operating concepts for air, marine, rail, pipeline and urban transportation.

Improve safety and security.—This involves development of statistics and requirements for hazardous materials, rail, and motor vehicle safety. The effort also includes development of improved systems and equipment for safer transportation in air and ground transportation.

Lessen unfavorable environmental impacts.—The Center conducts assessments of transportation effects on air quality and noise. This work also includes specific investigations of airport noise and diesel engine emissions.

Minimize adverse impacts of energy constraints.—This work stresses technological, economic and social assessments of fuel economy, energy policy, and energy conservation in the transportation field. The Center also works toward providing a more energy efficient and socially acceptable automobile.

Increase knowledge base.—This activity includes the collection, organization, analysis, and dissemination of transportation information. This has been formalized as the Transportation Information Center, and is a primary DOT activity for the sharing of data with state and local governments and, as appropriate, with private industry.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized under the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 to loan funds, to the extent appropriated, to the Secretary of Transportation. These loans are made by purchasing fund anticipation notes from the Secretary of Transportation. The Secretary of Transportation uses these funds for loans to the railroads for capital needs to preserve rail freight service.

In order to avoid double counting of the borrowing authority, the amounts are shown only by the borrowing agency. Therefore, the borrowing authority (budget authority) for these loans is reflected in the Department of Transportation under the account, "Railroad rehabilitation and improvement financing funds", Federal Railroad Administration.

The Bank is a mixed ownership Government corporation, governed by a Board of Directors initially appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate. The capital of the bank will consist of capital subscribed by the United States (class A stock), by borrowers from the bank (class B stock), and by borrowers or organizations eligible to borrow (class C stock). The bank is also authorized to raise capital through the public or private sale of its bonds, debentures, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness, but will not do so in the first 2 years of operation.

Class A stock purchased by the Secretary of the Treasury on behalf of the United States will be redeemed and retired as soon as practicable, but in any case beginning not later than October 1, 1990.

Note.—Amounts for 1979 exclude operational expenses which are shown under the heading "International Affairs."

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities as he deems necessary, consistent with U.S. obligations in the International Monetary Fund (IMF), regarding orderly exchange arrangements. An Exchange Stabilization Fund, with a capital of $200 million is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 822a). All earnings and interest accruing to this fund are available for the purposes thereof. Transactions in special drawing rights (SDR's) and U.S. holdings of SDR's are administered by the fund. U.S. drawings from the IMF are also advanced to the fund.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been the handling charges imposed on purchases and sales of gold for the account of the fund, profits on foreign exchange transactions, and interest on investments held by the fund, including interest earned on fund holdings of U.S. Government securities.

Due to the impracticability of forecasting fund transactions in foreign currency and foreign investment, projections are not provided for those items. However, as an offset to actual data and projections made in the budget for interest paid on U.S. Government securities, data for the interest income on fund holdings of U.S. Government securities is provided for 1979 and projected for 1980 and 1981. Holdings of U.S. Government securities amounted to $4,266 million on September 30, 1979. The interest earnings on these securities is estimated to increase these holdings to $4,757 million in 1980 and $5,244 million in 1981. As required by Public Law 95-612, the fund no longer will be used to meet administrative expenses.

¹ Pursuant to the Special Drawing Rights Act of 1968, Special Drawing Rights (SDR) allocated to or otherwise acquired by the United States are resources of the Exchange Stabilization Fund (ESF). SDR, once allocated, are permanent resources unless cancelled (which requires an 85 percent majority decision of the total voting power of the Board of Governors of the International Monetary Fund), the Special Drawing Account is liquidated, the International Monetary Fund is liquidated, or the United States chooses to withdraw from the Fund or terminate its participation in the Special Drawing Account. Except for payment of interest and charges on SDR allocations to the United States, the payment of the Exchange Stabilization Fund liability related to SDR allocations is conditional on events listed above, in which the United States has a substantial or controlling voice. The Special Drawing Rights Act also authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue Special Drawing Rights certificates to the Federal Reserve Banks in return for dollar deposits in amounts equal to the value of the SDR held. The certificates may be issued to finance the acquisition of SDR from other countries or to provide resources for financing ESF operations.

During 1972, the Office of Revenue Sharing was established for the purpose of implementing the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, which was amended and extended through September 30, 1980, by the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Amendment of 1976.

It is the responsibility of the Secretary of the Treasury to correctly compute and distribute revenue sharing funds and maintain adequate controls to insure integrity of the trust funds; supply adequate information, data, and technical assistance to all recipients to assure compliance with the act; improve the quality of State and local audits to eliminate noncompliance with audit requirements; insure compliance with the nondiscrimination and public participation provisions of the act; and at regular intervals, report to Congress, recipient governments, and the general public.

Current authorization of this program expires on September 30, 1980; however, renewal legislation will be proposed for the 1981 program.

This trust fund was established by the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972 and renewed under Public Law 94-488, the State and Local Fiscal Assistance Amendments of 1976, to provide general revenue sharing payments to States and localities to supplement revenue sources. Payments to the States and localities are made at least quarterly. It is anticipated that the fourth quarter payment for each year will continue to be paid within the first 5 days of the succeeding year, as provided by law.

One-third of the funds appropriated is allocated to the States and two-thirds are allocated to local jurisdictions to carry out general purpose governmental functions. At present 39,192 units of general purpose government are eligible to receive revenue sharing funds: the 50 States and the District of Columbia, 3,108 counties, 18,908 municipalities, 16,790 townships, and 335 Indian tribes and Alaskan villages.

The distribution formulas seek to measure a government's size, its need, and its effort to meet its need. State and local jurisdictions are allowed to use the funds for any purposes which constitute legal purposes for use of their own locally generated revenues.

Current authorization for this program expires on September 30, 1980; however, renewal legislation will be proposed for the 1981 program. Payments to State and local jurisdictions will continue in the new program on a more highly targeted basis. A process in which recipients are required to actively address problems in their financial structure will be part of the proposed reauthorization.

1. Disbursement and claims—(a) Payments.—Payments are made through 11 regional offices for Federal civilian agencies, except the U.S. Postal Service, the U.S. marshals, and certain Government corporations. These disbursing services are provided through the issuance of checks, letters of credit, and electronic funds transfer (EFT) payments. Savings bonds are also issued for employees under the payroll savings plan.

The total checks, savings bonds, and electronic funds transfer payments, and productivity, relating to this function carried out by the Division of Disbursement follow:

(b) Check claims settlement.—This function provides for the adjudication and settlement of claims against the United States resulting from situations in which Government checks have been forged, lost, stolen, destroyed, or mutilated. It receives moneys from banks, endorsers, and other parties having liability to the United States through fraudulent or otherwise improper negotiation of Government checks.

Approximately 50% of the requests for stop payment on Government checks result in actual paid check claims acted upon by the Division of Check Claims.

2. Government-wide accounting.—This activity includes maintaining a system of central accounting and reporting; disclosing the monetary assets and liabilities of the U.S. Treasury; and providing for the integration of Treasury cash and funding operations with the financial operations of disbursing and collecting officers of all Federal agencies. Periodic reports are prepared under this function to show budget results, other financial operations, and the financial status of the Government.

In addition, this function includes the check payment and reconciliation operation with volume and related productivity as follows:

3. Banking and cash management.—(a) Depository, cash, and currency operations.—This activity segment provides banking and related cash services involved in the management of the Government's cash resources. It provides guidance to the system for advancing Federal funds under various grant programs and other programs through letters of credit; designates and supervises banks as Government depositories; controls U.S. foreign currency transactions to afford the best currency availability to the Government; and settles claims for the redemption of mutilated currency.

Savings generated through this activity for the Treasury as a whole are as follows:

(c) Treasury tax and loan operations.—This activity segment provides primarily for compensation to commercial banks through the Federal Reserve banks for services rendered in maintaining the Treasury tax and loan accounts and provides support to the Federal Reserve banks for their day-to-day operations concerning the accounts. This activity is the result of legislation which allows Treasury to earn a return on its tax and loan account balances. In essence, the banks pay interest on the Treasury tax and loan funds deposited with them and are reimbursed for their services.

The Chrysler Corporation Loan Guarantee Act of 1979 authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to guarantee up to $1.5 billion of Chrysler Corporation debt. Chrysler is the 10th largest industrial corporation in the United States and needs Federal assistance on financing matters so that it might again be able to reemerge as a commercially viable, self-financing entity.

In accordance with the legislation, a board consisting of the Secretary of the Treasury, the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and the comptroller General are responsible for establishing and administering a loan guarantee program for the Chrysler Corporation. These responsibilities include: (1) review of the financing plan to assure its soundness and accuracy, (2) determination of the prospect of repayment of a guarantee loan, (3) assessment and analysis of the economic merits and implications of the courses of action available under the Act, and (4) preparation of an annual report to Congress on Chrysler's activities.

It is proposed that windfall profits tax receipts will be used to repay the general fund of the Treasury for all borrowing by the ESC.

Appropriations will be made to the Secretary of the Treasury for the purposes of purchasing capital stock in, and making loans to the Corporation. The authority of the ESC to incur obligations will be limited by the level of appropriations to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Check forgery insurance fund was established in the amount of $50 thousand by the act approved November 21, 1941 (31 U.S.C. 561). Additional appropriations of $50 thousand in 1964, $100 thousand in 1970, and $1,800 thousand in 1973 increased the fund to a total of $2 million. This fund is for use by the U.S. Treasury in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the U.S. Treasury which have been paid on forged endorsements.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorers of the checks through reclamation procedure by this office. Benefits from these early settlements are shared by claimants and the Government in that the claimants are more quickly restored financially to their proper position and the Government is spared the necessity of much unproductive correspondence. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover funds, the revolving account sustains the loss.

The Fishermen's Protective Fund was created under amendments to Public Law 92-560 to reimburse owners of vessels for amounts of fines, fees and other direct charges which were paid by owners to a foreign country to secure the release of their vessels and crews.

Public Law 95-194 provided for loans to be made to owners of fishing vessels under certain conditions when it is claimed that fishing gear may have been lost or damaged by actions of foreign nations. This loan function was subsequently cancelled by Public Law 95-376, which provides for direct compensation to owners of vessels in such instances.

The appropriation provides the means by which owners of American vessels may quickly receive reimbursement or loans following such actions of foreign nations.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. The Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program is composed of the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing—(a) Currency.—Total deliveries of currency for 1980 and 1981 are estimated to be 4.2 and 4.4 billion notes, respectively. During 1979 the Bureau delivered 3.9 billion Federal Reserve notes.

(b) Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postal and internal revenue stamps. The projected requirements for 1980 and 1981 are 30.2 and 30.7 billion stamps, respectively. In 1979, the Bureau delivered 27.2 billion stamps.

The Revenue Adjustment Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-164) originally authorized this credit. The estimates reflect the changes of the Revenue Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-600) which made permanent the earned income credit.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966, solely to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lienholder's equity but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances, if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

The Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. In accordance with 12 U.S.C. 481 assessments paid by national banks are not construed to be Government funds. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriations are allocated to or used by the bureau in any of its operations.

The Administrator of National Banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed, onsite examinations, the latter conducted by a staff of approximately 2,250 national bank examiners. At the present time there are approximately 4,500 national banks with more than 18,000 operating branches and total assets of $928 billion. As a result of the reports submitted and the examinations conducted the bureau determines the financial condition of individual national banks and the system as a whole, the soundness of operations, and compliance with applicable laws and regulations.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank, and applications from banks to establish branches. The Comptroller of the Currency promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks, bank directors, etc., and publishes them as manuals so that they are readily available to the interested parties.

EPA's research and development efforts are conducted through grants, contracts, and agreements with universities, industries, other private commercial firms, nonprofit organizations, State and local governments, and Federal agencies as well as through research and development at EPA's laboratories and field locations.

These efforts are oriented toward producing the scientific knowledge and the tools for regulating, preventing, and abating pollution and are specifically directed to the problems of air and water pollution control, drinking water and radiation protection, solid and hazardous waste management, toxics and pesticides control, noise abatement, and energy related environmental research and development programs. Activities encompass: research on the effects of pollutants on man, animals, aquatic life, plants, materials, and the general environment; research on the processes, such as dispersion, that affect pollution; the development of new and improved sampling and analytical methods and instruments for measuring pollutants; the development and demonstration of new and improved technology for preventing and controlling pollution and recovery of materials from wastes; and insuring environmental protection necessary to facilitate the use of domestic energy supplies (with particular emphasis on coal) and the concurrent development of appropriate control technologies for emerging energy systems to minimize control cost and environmental impact.

This account represents only the grant and contract resources for 1980 and 1981. Salaries and Expenses, included above for 1979, are now shown in the Salaries and Expenses account for 1980 and 1981.

This appropriation includes funds for contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements for pollution abatement, control, and compliance activities.

Air quality.—The air program encompasses activities related to the development and implementation of air pollution control strategies and achievement of air quality standards. This objective is accomplished in two basic ways: (1) State and local actions are encouraged by the provision of assistance in all areas of technical and policy matters; and (2) direct Federal action is taken in cases of State or local failure to fulfill the requirements of the Clean Air Act (CAA).

Support of State and local programs and the development of Federal air pollution emissions standards are the highest priorities of the Federal air pollution control and abatement programs. Emphasis in 1981 will be on assuring that the accelerated development of new energy facilities is accomplished in an environmentally sound manner without unnecessary delays.

The mobile source enforcement program in 1981 will emphasize continuation of efforts to insure that new vehicles meet emission standards at the time of sale and a major new in-use program to prevent tampering and improper use of leaded gasoline.

In 1981, the emphasis of the stationary source enforcement program will be continuation of the major source enforcement effort, further implementation of the noncompliance penalty program established by the CAA amendments of 1977, assisting States in maintaining strong programs to insure compliance by major sources, and delegating the noncompliance penalty program under section 120 to as many States as possible. The program will also focus on expanded enforcement responsibilities in the new source and national emission standards for hazardous air pollutants programs.

Major accomplishments of the air program projected for 1981 as compared to 1979 and 1980 are as follows:

Water quality.—The water quality program encompasses the following major activities: (1) developing effluent standards for industrial dischargers, (2) managing the municipal wastewater facilities construction grant program, (3) assisting State and local agencies in developing water management programs, (4) assisting the States in implementing their water pollution control programs including implementation of delegated Federal responsibilities, and (5) responding to major oil and hazardous materials spills. Emphasis in 1981 will be given to implementation of responsibilities for review of dredge and fill permits under section 404 of the Clean Water Act. The purpose of the water quality enforcement program is to assure compliance with requirements of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act. In 1981, the permit issuance program will emphasize reissuance of second-round National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits to incorporate toxics limitations. The National Pretreatment Program will also control toxics through development of national indirect discharge standards for local pretreatment programs. Major accomplishments projected for 1981 as compared to 1979 and 1980 are as follows:

Safe drinking water.—The safe drinking water program encompasses: (1) developing and promulgating national drinking water standards, (2) assisting the States in assuming primary responsibility for monitoring and enforcing compliance with the national standards, (3) developing and promulgating regulations for controlling underground injection of wastes, and (4) assisting States in assuming primary responsibility for implementing these regulations. The safe drinking water enforcement program is responsible for assuring compliance with the Safe Drinking Water Act. In 1981, the program will issue 10 variances and exemptions, initiate 25 enforcement actions and overview 6 public water supply State primary programs. Principal accomplishments planned for 1981 as compared to 1979 and 1980 are:

Number of States or other jurisdictions assuming primary responsibility for implementing standards	44	51	51
Amount of financial assistance available to State agencies (in millions of dollars):
Public water systems	25.1	29.5	29.5

Solid waste.—The Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976 (RCRA) establishes several goals, the most important of which is to assure that all solid and hazardous wastes are managed in a manner that will protect public health and the environment. RCRA authorizes a national program of hazardous waste regulation and enforcement; control of land disposal practices; comprehensive solid waste management planning; solid waste research; and financial and technical assistance to support State and local implementation of these programs.

Dramatic increases for 1981 have been provided for hazardous wastes to enable EPA to launch a vigorous implementation and enforcement program of the regulations.

1981 will be the first full year of implementation after the regulations become effective and an ambitious effort of site permitting and tracking of a manifest system is planned to provide proper comprehensive and ongoing management of hazardous wastes.

State assumption of RCRA authorities will be encouraged through Federal financial and technical assistance, regulations, guidelines, and public support. The solid waste enforcement program is responsible for the enforcement of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act of 1976. To support compliance with the act, major increases are provided in 1981 to implement and enforce permit issuance. The major accomplishment of the program projected for 1981 will be implementation of the hazardous waste regulations. Other accomplishments of the program are:

Pesticides.—The pesticides program has primary responsibility for implementing the requirements of the 1972 Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA) as amended in September 1978 and portions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA). Pesticide supplies are controlled to keep chemicals off the market which pose unreasonable adverse effects on human health or the environment. Major activities include: (1) processing of rebuttable presumptions against registration for those pesticides that appear to cause unreasonable adverse effects to human health or the environment to reduce risk; (2) development of registration standards through review and validation of scientific data for chemicals used as active ingredients in pesticide products; (3) classifying of pesticide products for restricted or general use; (4) establishing pesticide residue tolerances for food and feed commodities

Major accomplishments for the pesticides program projected for 1981 as compared to 1979 and 1980 are:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of registration standards completed.....		10-20	20-40
Number of new chemical registration applications processed.....	17	15	22
Number of old chemical registration applications, processed.....	1,457	5,300	5,300

Laboratory data audits.....	36	51	33

The pesticides enforcement program is responsible for assuring compliance with the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act and managing the State certification and training program. In 1981 the program will continue to emphasize the use of Federal-State cooperative enforcement grants-in-aid, user compliance with label directions, and industry compliance with registration, classification, and labeling requirements. Under terms of grants-in-aid, the States will conduct activities contributing to user and industry compliance, including use and re-entry inspections at application sites, producer establishment inspections, marketplace inspections, and the initiation of enforcement actions when violations are detected. EPA activities will include investigations of alleged laboratory data fraud, implementation and enforcement of Federal applicator certification programs, and import surveillance.

Radiation.—The radiation program endeavors to eliminate unnecessary health and environmental effects by limiting exposure to radiation from releases of radionuclides to the environment, from medical and occupational uses of radiation, and from nonionizing radiation sources. Major activities include development and promulgation of standards and regulations to control exposures to these types of radiation.

In 1981, the program will develop six source specific standards under the Clean Air Act. Activities related to the development of environmentally sound solutions to radioactive waste disposal problems including disposal of low and high level waste, waste resulting from the decommissioning of nuclear power plants, and shallow land and ocean disposal will be expanded and accelerated to bring EPA's schedule in line with the time requirements of other Federal agencies.

Toxic substances.—The toxic substances program includes activities relating to the identification and control of risks to human health and the environment posed by chemical substances. In 1981 the program will place a balanced emphasis on regulation of new and existing chemicals based upon the continuing development of the information base established in 1979, 1980 and 1981. It will continue to place high priority on full operation of the premanufacture review program, and development of control actions for existing chemicals. Nonregulatory approaches will be used when appropriate. Testing rules, and recordkeeping and reporting rules will continue to be developed to obtain data to support assessment and regulations. The program will rely extensively on other programs and agencies to take action when appropriate and to establish coordinated approaches to chemically related problems. The toxic substances enforcement program seeks to protect public health and the environment from unreasonable risks posed by chemical substances through the enforcement of the Toxic Substances Control Act and its established regulations.

Major accomplishments for the toxic substances program projected for 1981 as compared to 1979 and 1980 are as follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Abatement and control:
Proposed test rules.....		3	3

Noise.—The noise program's major activities to reduce the detrimental health and welfare effects of noise include: the development of regulations controlling noise emissions, the provision of technical assistance to strengthen State and local noise programs, and the coordination of noise reduction and research activities throughout the Federal Government.

This appropriation covers grants made to local public agencies for construction of municipal wastewater treatment facilities to assist States and localities in attaining and maintaining water quality standards.

The 1981 budget requests $3,700 million for the municipal wastewater facilities construction grants program. These funds, in addition to nearly $2,900 million available from prior-year appropriations, will provide nearly $6,600 million for obligation in 1981.

The municipal wastewater facilities construction grants program provides 75% Federal financial assistance to municipal, intermunicipal, State, and interstate agencies to construct wastewater treatment and appurtenant facilities to comply with effluent standards required by the Clean Water Act of 1977. Major accomplishments in 1981 as compared to 1979 and 1980 are:

	1979	1980	1981
Amount of grants awarded (in billions of dollars) ...	4.3	4.8	4.5

Number of construction completions (Step 3)	904	824	1,237
Number of active projects.....	11,468	12,526	11,722

Much of the workload in 1981 will be managed by the Corps of Engineers working under an interagency agreement with the Environmental Protection Agency and by State agencies that agree to manage the program under the provisions of section 205(g) of the Clean Water Act of 1977.

SCIENTIFIC ACTIVITIES OVERSEAS (SPECIAL FOREIGN CURRENCY PROGRAM)

This appropriation provides for the following research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration:

1. Space transportation systems (STS).—The objectives of this activity focus on development of the reusable space shuttle vehicle and establishment of a fleet of orbiters to meet the needs of U.S. and other users of space. The elements of the program are described below along with work to be performed during 1981.

(a) Space Shuttle.—The first reusable Earth-to-orbit vehicle will advance the fields of Earth resources observations, scientific exploration, national security, and research and technology. The Shuttle will have unique capabilities not available with today's launch vehicles, including retrieval of satellites, experiments, and equipment for reuse; maintenance and repair in orbit; reuse of space laboratories; and rescue missions. The Shuttle will increase the versatility and productivity of space operations for all users by reducing costs and increasing benefits from activities in space.

The Shuttle development is in the final stages of ground certification testing of flight configured elements. The design certification review of the overall configuration was completed in April 1979 validating the basic technical soundness of the Shuttle system design. The major emphasis in 1980 is completion of preparations for First Manned Orbital Flight. The checkout of the Columbia at Kennedy Space Center is showing good progress although the completion of system installation and testing, and the scope and complexity of the initial launch processing flow are greater than originally planned and causing delays in orbiter flight readiness. Technical problems have also affected progress in the main propulsion system development, and manpower and hardware have been added to the program in an effort to avoid further delays in achieving engine maturity at the rated power level and to provide increased confidence in achieving performance at full power level. Other elements of the program are progressing well. The engines and external tank required for the initial flight are in the initial stages of processing at the launch site, and the solid rocket booster hardware has been delivered and is being readied for stacking. All facilities of KSC are complete and in place for first flight and software validation is in progress.

Although the Shuttle development is demonstrating good overall progress, the delays in processing the Columbia for launch and the engine test problems have resulted in adjustments to program schedules requiring additional resources in all elements of the Shuttle and supporting activities. This situation has led to the requirement for the proposed supplemental appropriation in 1980. The 1981 program is based on the availability of a supplemental appropriation in 1980. Emphasis in 1981 provides for completion of deliveries to support the orbital flight tests, continued launch preparations, checkout, testing and accomplishment of orbital flight tests, and for continued engine testing to achieve full power performance.

(b) Space flight operations.—The objective is to facilitate the utilization of an STS capabilities and to reduce the cost of space operations. Principal areas of activity include the NASA development efforts, other than the Space Shuttle, related to the establishment of an STS operations capability; development, test, and mission support at NASA centers; space transportation system operations requirements; and advanced programs study and evaluation efforts. The 1981 program continues these support efforts on a plan consistent with the Shuttle development and STS operations.

The STS operations capability development activities are required for the transition to STS operations and to capitalize on the capabilities provided by this system.

Principal areas of activity include NASA efforts related to the Spacelab, and upper stages to place satellites in higher altitude orbits; standard, reusable ground and flight payload support equipment; reconfiguration of the Mission Control Center; and payload and operations support.

The Spacelab, a joint effort with the European Space Agency (ESA), will be carried in the cargo bay of the Shuttle orbiter and will provide users with a multi-purpose, reusable space laboratory. ESA is funding the development, production, and delivery of the first Spacelab and associated ground support equipment; NASA is providing for development of auxiliary flight and ground support equipment and procurement of additional sets of flight hardware and ground support equipment necessary to meet its mission requirements. The upper stages, which consist of the inertial upper stage being developed by DOD and the spinning solid upper stage being developed by industry, are required for high energy Earth orbit and planetary missions. Also included in the 1981 program is sufficient funding authority to permit the ESA to continue with the production of the second Spacelab in the most cost-effective manner.

The major emphasis in 1980 is on the final preparations for the first manned orbital flight, including training of the flight crews and further development of the other elements of the STS. Efforts will continue on the development of the upper stages required for delivery of payloads to geosynchronous orbits and for high energy missions. The Inertial Upper Stage (IUS) and the Solid Spinning Upper Stage (SSUS) will complete a series of design reviews in 1980 leading to their targeted use in late 1981.

In 1981, efforts will continue on procurement, assembly, and checkout of the solid rocket booster, external tank, the upper stages hardware as well as standardized flight plans, avionics software, flight control systems, and crew procedures. The preparations in the pre-flight and direct mission support elements at KSC, JSC, and MSFC supporting the flight tests, payload support, and multimission capability will continue. Other efforts will focus on technical and programmatic data for the definition and evaluation of potential future space mission and systems.

(c) Expendable launch vehicle (ELV) development.—This effort provides engineering, reliability, and launch support services until the transition to STS operations is completed.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—This activity conducts systematic study of the Earth and its space environment.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—Research is being conducted to investigate the Earth's environment, the Sun and the interplanetary medium, as well as the interrelationships among these areas and the processes that control them. Study results include discovery of the Earth's radiation belts and knowledge of phenomena such as pulsars, quasars, and black holes.

1979 highlights include the successful launch of the third and last mission of the High Energy Astronomy Observatory series to study cosmic rays and gamma rays emanating from various sources in the universe. Development effort on the Solar Maximum Mission, to carry out research on solar flares and solar transient events, is essentially complete and scheduled for launch in early 1980. Development work began on the International Solar Polar Mission (ISPM), a joint NASA-ESA venture, to explore the heliosphere, the space around the Sun, and to obtain observations of the Sun over the full range of heliographic latitudes (launch in 1983).

Work is continuing on the Space Telescope, to be launched on the Shuttle in 1983.

Development efforts also continue for payloads to be flown on a Shuttle Flight Test in 1981, and for Spacelab 1 and 2 flights planned for launch in 1982. Development activities for follow-on Spacelab payloads are also underway. Several multiuser payloads to investigate phenomena in the various disciplines are now being defined for future Spacelab missions.

Work is also continuing on several Explorer projects to continue research thrusts started in prior years. These satellites will be launched during 1981 through 1983. During 1981, development of the Active Magnetospheric Particle Tracer Experiment (AMPTE) and the Cosmic Background Explorer (COBE) will be initiated. The AMPTE will study the solar wind at the subsolar point and identify particle entry windows, entry mechanisms, energization processes and transport processes into the magnetosphere. The COBE will make a definitive measurement of the spectrum and large-scale isotropy of the background microwave radiation to establish the nature of the 2.7 degree Kelvin cosmic background radiation believed to be a remnant of the "Big Bang" genesis of the universe.

The plans for 1981 include the Spacelab Payloads for Physics and Astronomy, and the mission management requirements for all agency payloads. In 1981, work will begin on the Gamma Ray Observatory (GRO) mission planned for launch in 1985. The GRO will provide the highest sensitivity study of the sky conducted in the gamma ray spectral region.

(b) Planetary exploration.—This activity increases scientific knowledge about the origin and evolution of our solar system and of life processes, and applies the results to a better understanding of the Earth.

The planetary program continues programs initiated in prior years. Pioneer 10 is on its way out of the solar system; and Pioneer 11 encountered Saturn in September 1979, and is continuing on beyond the planet. Pioneers 6-9 are in orbit around the Sun.

Two Voyager spacecraft, launched in 1977, have successfully encountered Jupiter and are now enroute to Saturn and perhaps Uranus. The Galileo mission, to be launched in 1984, is composed of two segments, an orbiter and an atmospheric entry probe. The orbiter will be launched to Jupiter via a Mars swingby and will achieve orbit capture in 1986 to carry out long-term studies of the giant planet, its satellites, and its magnetosphere. The probe will be launched via a separate Shuttle/IUS directly to Jupiter. The probe will enter the upper atmosphere of the giant planet in 1986, and send the data back to the Earth via a dedicated probe carrier.

Studies will be continued during 1981 on future candidate missions, including a comet mission, an asteroid mission, and a Saturn orbiter mission with dual probes. Analysis of data from past planetary missions will also continue.

(c) Life Sciences.—This program will continue to provide for the research and technology necessary to meet the goals of insuring human health, safety, well-being, and effective performance in space flight; utilizing space environment to advance knowledge and applications in Earth medicine and biology; and understanding the origin and distribution of life in the universe.

3. Space and terrestrial applications.—This program activity develops, demonstrates, and transfers space technology for practical uses on Earth.

(a) Space applications.—This program category conducts coordinated and logically phased research and development activities to relate space technology to Earth benefits. The 1981 program provides for continued progress in the areas of materials processing in space, remote sensing, and communications. The activities involve active and increasing participation by current and future users of these capabilities, within the Government, industry, and the academic community.

The Materials Processing in space program has established a preliminary base of space-derived data from experiments performed on the manned flights of the 1970's and from sounding rocket flights which began in 1975. Research initiatives currently are focused on applications which will serve as demonstrations of space techniques to control the composition and shape of materials. Technology development projects include high temperature heat pipes, electrostatic positioning methods, laser holography, acoustic positioning feedback control, and furnaces for directional solidification with high temperature gradients. An initial group of space investigations and four apparatus systems are under development for the early Space Shuttle missions. Active efforts are underway with the industrial community to prepare the way for commercial space processing, with three proposals for joint endeavors under consideration at present.

In space communications, support was provided to the World Administrative Radio Conference for 1979 and operations and experiments utilizing ATS-1, -3, and -5 were conducted. The 1981 program includes continued progress on the development of the Search and Rescue Mission and the definition of an applications data service, continuation of advanced communications research activities, and definition studies and advanced technology development on an experimental wide band communications satellite to operate in the newly allocated 30/20 GHz spectrum bands.

In remote sensing, utilization of data from satellite observations has resulted in an increase in our understanding of the environment, the Earth's resources, and our ability to forecast change. Recent achievements include the development and testing of techniques to predict severe storms; and use of SEASAT satellite experiments to measure ocean surface winds, sea state, major ocean currents, ocean circulation patterns, and sea ice conditions.

A wide range of similar activities will be continued during 1980 and 1981. Mobile laser units are being deployed in the United States, Australia and the Pacific to form a global network for observation of tectonic plate motion. Ongoing efforts in the Remote Sensing area include development of the Landsat-D system to advance the technology in Earth resources remote sensing; the Earth Radiation Budget Experiment to acquire valuable data for climate studies; the Halogen Occultation Experiment to provide improved pollution monitoring capabilities; and AGRISTARS, an agricultural experiment. The 1981 program also includes a National Oceanic Satellite System to demonstrate, in cooperation with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the Department of Defense, an operational capability for application of remote sensing from space to the oceanographic program. The NASA activities involving land remote sensed data from space will be managed under an integrated plan, involving all Federal agencies, which is being proposed under the leadership of the Department of Commerce.

(b) Technology utilization.—This program is designed to accelerate the transfer of NASA technology to the nonaerospace industry, as well as State and local governments. During 1981, NASA will continue its efforts to assure widespread dissemination of new technology through publications and demonstration projects.

4. Space research and technology.—The objective is to conduct the activities necessary to increase the efficiency and effectiveness of space systems and operations. The 1981 program provides for continuation of the research and technology base activities necessary for advances in the key discipline areas, and also continued progress in ongoing systems technology and experimental efforts.

5. Aeronautical research and technology.—The goal is to help ensure U.S. leadership in aeronautics by providing a sound base to meet current and future national technology needs; to conduct the research and technology activities necessary for increasing the safety, efficiency, and economy of air transportation systems while decreasing their energy consumption and adverse environmental effects; to support the Department of Defense in maintaining the superiority of the Nation's military aircraft; and to maintain a strong competitive position of the United States in the international aviation marketplace. The 1981 program continues the fundamental disciplinary research and technology activities essential to meeting these goals.

Activities will continue to provide a strong research and technology base in the technology disciplines of aerodynamics, propulsion, avionics, and flight controls, human-vehicle interaction, materials, and structures; and to conduct focused technology activities relevant to the major classes of aeronautical vehicles such as conventional take-off and landing aircraft, rotorcraft, and high performance aircraft.

Continued progress will be made in the aircraft energy efficiency efforts to provide, by the mid-1980's, the technology that can lead to major reduction in fuel requirements for transport aircraft. The 1981 program includes follow-on program phases in variable cycle propulsion systems to focus on techniques to enhance the aero/acoustic performance of the coannular exhaust systems in advanced propulsion systems; and in advanced turboprops to develop and verify propeller structural and aerodynamics scaling methodology for advanced turboprop propulsion systems.

6. Energy technology.—This program seeks to identify NASA's aerospace technologies and capabilities that have energy applications, and to provide support to Government agencies engaged in national energy programs.

7. Supporting activity.—This program provides tracking and data acquisition support to the entire NASA flight program, including automated missions, manned missions, sounding rockets, and aerodynamic test flights.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation benefits to veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Requirements for 1981 are estimated to be $7,508.0 million, an increase of $170.7 million over 1980 including additional funding for a proposed supplemental.

Compensation is payable as either a disability benefit or a survivorship benefit. Criteria for entitlement are based on a veteran's disabilities incurred in or aggravated by active military service, death while on active duty, or death resulting from service-connected disabilities.

Veteran compensation cases will continue to increase to an estimated 2,284,708 average cases during 1981. Survivor cases are projected to decline by 520 to an estimated 359,613 during 1981.

The "Veterans Disability Compensation and Survivors' Benefits Amendments of 1979" increased both disability compensation for disabled veterans and dependency indemnity compensation (DIC) rates for surviving spouses and children by approximately 9.9% effective October 1, 1979.

The Administrator may pay a clothing allowance to each veteran who wears or uses a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Administrator, tends to wear out or tear the clothing of such veteran. The allowance is paid from this appropriation and was increased to $240 as a result of Public Law 96-128 effective October 1, 1979.

Legislation will be proposed to provide a 13.0% cost-of-living increase for veterans, surviving spouses and children, and veteran's clothing allowance.

This appropriation provides for the payment of pension benefits to veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Requirements for 1981 are estimated to be $4,073.7 million, an increase of $340.2 million over 1980.

Pension may be paid to a veteran or his survivor(s). Veteran's entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period; disabilities considered perma-ment and total; and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases. Income support is provided at established benefit levels.

Although the 1981 caseload is decreasing, the average cost is increasing. This is due to the "Veterans and Survivors' Pension Improvement Act of 1978," effective January 1, 1979, which reformed the pension program and provides automatic annual cost-of-living increases comparable to annual social security increases for those pensioners in the improved program and to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. These increases are effective on June 1 by the same percentage as social security benefits are increased. The 1981 increase is expected to be 13%.

This appropriation provides for the payment of burial and other miscellaneous benefits to certain veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pension."

Requirements for 1981 are estimated to be $191 million, an increase of $5.3 million from the 1980 funding requirements. The increase is due to a higher estimated number of death claims in 1981.

1. Burial benefits.—Provides for: (a) the payment of an allowance of $300 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) to reimburse in part, the burial and funeral expense of a deceased veteran; (b) the payment of $150 for a plot allowance where an eligible veteran is not buried in a national cemetery or other cemetery under the jurisdiction of the United States; (c) the payment of a burial allowance up to $1,100 when a veteran dies as the result of service-connected disability; (d) furnishing a flag to drape the casket of each deceased veteran entitled thereto; (e) furnishing a headstone or marker for the grave of veteran; or (f) an allowance toward the purchase of a marker.

This appropriation finances the education, and training of veterans and servicepersons whose service was, at least in part, between February 1, 1955 and December 31, 1976 (post-Korean conflict veterans and Vietnam-era veterans). It also finances educational assistance allowances for eligible dependents of those veterans: (a) who died from service-connected causes or have a total and permanent rated service-connected disability; and (b) servicepersons who were captured or missing in action. Also, 2 for 1 matching funds are provided for veterans whose entire service was after December 31, 1976. In addition, certain disabled veterans are provided with vocational rehabilitation; specially adapted housing grants, and automobile grants with the associated approved adaptive equipment. With fewer eligible people remaining for post-Korean conflict training, the funding level in 1981 will be $456.2 million less than in 1980.

1. Education and training.—The number of post-Korean conflict veterans and servicepersons in training is expected to decrease in 1981 to a level of 799,100. The decrease in trainees is attributable in part to more veterans reaching their delimiting date, termination of the post-Korean GI bill benefits for persons entering the military after December 31, 1976, and proposed legislation that would eliminate flight and correspondence training. These decreases are partially offset by a proposal to grant a 2-year extension of the delimiting period for needy and educationally disadvantaged Vietnam-era veterans.

Public Law 94-502 instituted the post-Vietnam-era GI bill. Legislation is proposed that would eliminate the Predischarge Education Program (PREP) for these veterans. In 1981, 9,400 veterans are expected to train under this program.

The number of sons and daughters receiving educational assistance is expected to decrease to 79,600 in 1981, while the number of wives and widows will decrease to 15,510. Proposed legislation would eliminate correspondence training.

Legislation will be proposed to provide a 10% rate increase for those in training. The following table provides a comparison of trainees and costs for the four types of trainees mentioned above.

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover the costs of subsistence, tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. The number of trainees will decrease to 26,000 in 1981. Legislation will be proposed to implement certain recommendations of a study of the vocational rehabilitation program mandated by Public Law 95-202 and provide a 10% cost-of-living adjustment for the subsistence allowance. These enhancements to the program will result in an additional 1,400 trainees in 1981.

Specially adapted housing grants are provided to certain severely disabled veterans. The number of grants is expected to decrease to 535 in 1981 as the effects of Public Law 95-117 which expanded eligibility begin to lessen. Legislation will be proposed that would extend eligibility to veterans with the loss or loss of use of both upper extremities.

An allowance is provided to certain disabled veterans and certain persons on active duty toward the purchase price of new automobiles, adaptive equipment, and the maintenance and replacement of such equipment. Auto grants are expected to decrease to 800 in 1981 while adaptive equipment cases will increase to 8,400.

Legislation will be proposed to eliminate authority for veterans, servicepersons, and dependents, to receive assistance for flight and correspondence training effective October 1, 1980. Legislation will also be proposed to increase the delimiting period by 2 years for Vietnam-era veterans in on-the-job training and to those veterans in vocational-technical training or high school if they do not possess a high school diploma or its equivalent. Further proposals would terminate the authority for the predischARGE education program (PREP) for post-Vietnam-era veterans and enhance the vocational rehabilitation programs. An education rate increase of 10% for all trainees except post-Vietnam veterans will be proposed. Another proposal would extend eligibility for housing grants to veterans with the loss or loss of use of both upper extremities.

1. Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made to the U.S. Government life insurance fund for certain World War I veterans for claims traceable to extra hazards of military service. Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries for claims on war risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I. Payments are expected to remain stable in 1981.

2. National service life insurance.—Payments are made to the national service life insurance fund for certain World War II veterans for: (a) disability and death claims traceable to the extra hazards of service; (b) gratuitous insurance granted to certain persons unable to apply for national service life insurance; (c) death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured was on active duty.

Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries on nonparticipating national service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities and on worthy exceptional cases that would not have been covered under the law in effect at the time of death.

The general decline in the policies in force is expected to continue in 1981 as indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands), however payments are expected to remain level.

3. Payment to service-disabled veterans insurance fund.—Payments are made to the service-disabled veterans insurance fund to supplement the premium and other receipts of the fund in amounts necessary to pay claims on insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities. Payments are projected to increase in 1981, due to additional policyholders, since this is the only fund open to new issues.

Financing.—Operations are financed by appropriation funding and a small amount of premiums. The requested appropriation is significantly reduced due to an 'increase in the projected unobligated balance at the end of 1980.

The Veterans Administration operates the largest medical care delivery system in the country, with 172 hospitals, 16 domiciliaries, 97 nursing homes, and 229 outpatient clinics in 1981. In addition to these facilities, patients are cared for in contract Federal and community hospitals, community nursing homes with VA support and State-run domiciliaries, nursing homes and hospitals. This system will treat over 1.3 million patients in 1981, and over 18.2 million outpatient medical and dental visits will be made to VA and community facilities.

In 1981, a continued priority for VA health care will be meeting the needs of veterans with service-connected disabilities and of aging veterans. The Veterans Administration will continue its efforts to increase the flexibility of the medical care delivery system. The use of outpatient and ambulatory care programs will obviate the need for some hospital admissions and use of community living arrangements such as home-based care, foster home care, et cetera, will permit increased outplacement of hospitalized veterans with a corresponding reduction in length of stay. Arrangement will be continued and improved to provide for hospital and medical care, in the private sector, for certain dependents and survivors of veterans, as authorized by law.

In 1981 increased costs are associated with (1) workload increases for new VA nursing homes, (2) operational requirements of new facilities, (3) noncontrollable payroll increases, (4) increased usage of drugs, utilities, communications, provisions, prosthetics, medical and dental supplies, and operating supplies. Offsetting these

1. Medical research.—This program is comprised of institutional and special research and is designed to utilize the unique capability of the Veterans Administration medical system in answering questions which can only be answered by a large number of patients under a single management. In addition to the broad spectrum of biomedical research projects, special emphasis is given to research on prevalent diseases of veterans such as aging, alcoholism, schizophrenia, delayed stress disorders, and spinal cord injury and tissue regeneration. Cooperative studies included under special research are: Surgical treatment of angina pectoris; adjunct treatment of diabetes; and relative potency and side-effect liability of new and marketed sedatives.

2. Rehabilitative research.—This program is dedicated to the development and application of science and technology to improve the care of the physically disabled veteran. This includes those with disorders of the spine, the limbs and of those with visual, hearing and speech disorders. It addresses itself to better the quality of life, such as prostheses for the amputee; better wheelchairs for the paralyzed; and better joint functions for the arthritic.

3. Health services research.—This program provides support for health services projects at VA medical centers for improving the effectiveness and economy of delivery of health services and improving the accessibility of services to veterans.

This appropriation provides for the administration of nonmedical veterans benefits through the Department of Veterans Benefits; operation and maintenance of 107 national cemeteries by the Department of Memorial Affairs; data processing operations and communications systems through the Office of Data Management and Telecommunications; and top management direction and support through agency-level staff offices.

Amounts requested for 1981 are $19.1 million above the 1980 estimate. The additional funds are requested to improve ADP support to agency programs; provide for cemeterial expansion; and provide for the cost of within-grade salary increases.

1. General administration.—This activity contains the executive direction of the agency and several top level supporting offices. In addition, it covers the Board of Veterans Appeals which decides all cases of appeals to the Administrator on claims involving benefits under veterans legislation.

2. Data management.—This activity manages all computer operations and provides technical support and assistance in the development of new computer and communications systems.

3. Veterans benefits.—This activity determines eligibility and adjudicates all claims for compensation, pensions, educational assistance, housing loan assistance, and insurance awards. A summary of program objectives and anticipated workload is included in the following paragraphs:

(b) Veterans services.—Information, advice, and assistance concerning the availability and procurement of benefits under the law is provided to all veterans, their dependents, and survivors.

Interviews	3,617	3,360	3,280
Telephone actions	19,669	21,500	21,400
Field examinations	103	105	110

(c) Compensation, pension, and education.—This activity provides timely and efficient service to veterans and their dependents related to compensation, pension, and education benefits under the various laws enacted by Congress. Compensation and pension workloads are expected to decline slightly, and the number of trainees is expected to decrease as reflected in the following table: (in thousands)

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate

Reopened claims	457	480	485
Dependency and income claims	2,404	1,600	1,575
Number of trainees	1,411	1,173	953

(d) Loan guaranty.—This program mission is to provide a viable form of credit assistance whereby housing credit needs of veterans and servicemen may be satisfied by private capital on more liberal terms than generally available to nonveterans. Added responsibilities associated with the Housing Act of 1974 and the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 produce a continued high level of loan activity. This appropriation level emphasizes long-term care and ambulatory service. Construction funds are requested for seven nursing home projects which will provide 720 nursing home beds. This level of nursing home construction will be maintained over the next several years to attain a level of 13,100 operational nursing home beds by 1987. Eight major construction projects provide for outpatient expansions and modernizations which will contribute to the anticipated 15% growth in outpatient visits by 1985.

This budget request is more than a 60% increase above the current year's appropriation. To maintain the 172 medical center system expenditures must be expanded. Other objectives to be met within this long range plan are the funding of one replacement hospital per year, more vigorous correction of safety deficiencies, and protection of capital investment. Within this budget, design funds for a replacement hospital at Minneapolis are included. Proposed funding for safety deficiencies, which include seismic, electrical, and fire safety, is increased 67% above the 1980 funding. Indirect patient care functions receive a 90% increase above the current year appropriation.

The VA is on schedule toward the goal of a 45% reduction in energy consumption. Some of the prominent projects which are achieving greater energy efficiency are the heat extractor at Albany, N.Y., and an Annual Cycle Energy System at Wilmington, Del. The heat extractor at Albany recovers energy previously escaping up the boiler plant stack. Initial experience indicates a payback of 4 years with 100,000 gallons of oil per year being saved. The Department of Medicine and Surgery is funding 48 additional heat extractors that will save 6 million gallons of oil annually. At Wilmington, the Annual Cycle Energy System utilizes a large reservoir tank of water that stores summer heat and winter cold for year-around air-conditioning (heating and cooling) of the nursing home. Powered by electricity, the system uses only one-third of the fuel a conventional system would require.

In the renewable energy field, the direct use of solar energy is being pursued vigorously by the VA. Currently 4 systems are operational, 21 projects are under construction, and 13 projects are being designed. The annual fossil fuel savings for all of these projects when operational will be more than 600,000 gallons.

Construction activity for the Department of Memorial Affairs will continue to focus on the development of the 11 regional cemeteries. Also, a new activity within the construction program is the erection of regional offices on the medical center grounds to facilitate full service to the Nation's veterans. This is a reversal of trends that have forced regional offices out of the medical centers, which have needed the space, into GSA office buildings.

This appropriation level is consistent with the increase in the Major construction as the initial step in the long range plan for VA construction activity. The Minor appropriation, which provides a fast response to physical deficiencies, is used to modernize patient wards, to correct safety deficiencies, and to update indirect patient care functions. The 1981 request provides a 90% increase above the current year appropriation. Included with the request is a significant personnel increase for the Office of Construction to begin the development of greatly increased construction program.

Construction funding for the other departments in the Agency will provide gravesite development in the smaller cemeteries, support the Health Care Information System, supply emergency power at the Hines Data Processing Center, and support modifications to GSA space for regional office activities.

The 1981 request of $1,200 thousand will support an average daily hospital census of 150 and 2,679 patients treated; an average daily nursing home census of 4 and 8 nursing patients treated; and a total of 16,138 outpatient medical visits. In addition, $50 thousand would be provided for education and training of health service personnel and $50 thousand would be provided to assist in upgrading hospital equipment.

reers, interdisciplinary approaches and career advancement opportunities.

In 1981, 362,850 loans for a total amount of $19.8 billion are expected to be guaranteed or insured.

Budget program.—1. Real property acquisitions.—Both the number and average cost are expected to increase for 1981 reflecting the increased exposure incident to the high volume of loans and higher average loan amount over the past 5 years.

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of property acquisitions processed.....	11,245	15,675	15,700

Total cost (in thousands).....	$286,814	$416,955	$439,983

2. Property improvements.—The higher acquisition volume for 1981 requires increased expenditures for capital improvements necessary to place properties in salable condition.

Total cost (in thousands).....	$24,471	$32,560	$34,376

3. Claims processed.—Despite an improved cure rate on defaulted loans of 89.4%, the aforementioned increased exposure is also expected to result in higher home and mobile home loan claim expenditures in 1981.

Total cost (in thousands).....	$2,027	$3,000	$3,000

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure when temporary forbearance will allow the veteran borrowers to cure the default. The following table reflects this activity:

Budget program.—1. Direct loans to veterans.—Direct loans are made to veterans for homes or farms in rural areas, small cities, and towns where private credit for the making of guaranteed loans is and has been generally unavailable.

In 1981, 1,830 Direct Loans in the amount of $58.2 million are expected to be closed. There is no increase expected since the budget program calls for the continuance of the program of referring direct loans to private lenders in order to allow private extension of credit whenever possible.

6. Interest expense on participation certificates.—The 1981 decrease is due to repayment of the outstanding liability in the Government Mortgage Liquidation Trust. The remaining interest is payable to the Federal Assets Financing Trust.

7. Discount on sale of loans.—Discounts are expected to decline in 1981 due to lower loan sales volume.

Financing.—Total collections for 1981 are estimated to decrease $81.6 million from 1980 collections. This is due mainly to a $70 million decrease in direct loan sales and a $9.5 million decline in principal and interest collections.

The Veterans Canteen Service was established by Congress in 1946 to furnish at reasonable prices merchandise and services necessary to the comfort and well-being of veterans in hospitals and domiciliaries operated by the Veterans Administration (38 U.S.C. 4201-08).

Budget program.—Sales are expected to be $145,683 thousand in 1980 and $152,973 thousand in 1981.

Financing.—No appropriation by the Congress will be required for the operation of the Veterans Canteen Service during 1981. Operations will be financed from current revenues. The Congress originally appropriated a total of $4,965 thousand to establish and operate the Service.

Operating results and financial condition.—Operating revenue is expected to be sufficient to cover operating expenses.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued and currently is open for new issues to veterans having service-connected disabilities. The program provides insurance coverage for service-disabled veterans at standard rates. As a result, premium payments do not cover operating and capital reserve requirements. Annual deficits are met by transfers from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation. Administrative expenses are paid from the General operating expenses appropriation.

Operating costs.—(1) Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

(2) All other.—This category represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital investment.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

SERVICE-DISABLED VETERANS INSURANCE FUND—Continued

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of policies.....	186,341	192,300	196,800
Insurance in force.....	$1,684,684	$1,738,392	$1,779,662

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are received by transfer from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $1.0 million in 1980 and $1.4 million in 1981.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $171.1 million by September 30, 1981.

This fund pays claims and administrative costs on participating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) nonservice disabled insurance established by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance because of delimiting dates.

Budget program—1. Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

2. Dividends.—Public Law 96-128, enacted November 28, 1979, provides for policyholders to participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

3. All other.—This category represents payments to the General operating expense appropriation for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

4. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy. This activity is reflected in the status of loan schedule shown above.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of policies.....	170,748	167,200	162,900
Insurance in force.....	$1,184,488	$1,159,706	$1,128,082

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums collected from policyholders and interest on investments. Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

This fund is used to make loans to veterans enrolled in a program of vocational rehabilitation who are temporarily in need of additional funds to meet expenses. Legislation is being proposed to increase the individual maximum loan from $200 to $400.

Budget program.—Interest-free direct loans are granted to veterans in vocational rehabilitation training. The loans are repaid over a period of ten months by offset from benefit payments.

Financing.—With initial capitalization through an appropriation, the fund is financed solely by repayments.

Administrative expenses are borne by the General operating expenses appropriation—.

Payment is made to the General operating expenses appropriation for administrative costs incident to the program. A minimal increase in requirements is forecast.

This revolving fund, established pursuant to the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, Public Law 94-581, provides a mechanism for the furnishing of rehabilitative services to certain veteran beneficiaries who are receiving medical care and treatment from the Veterans Administration.

Funds to operate the various rehabilitative activities and provide for the therapeutic work for remuneration for patients and members in Veterans Administration health care facilities are derived from contractual arrangements with private industry or nonprofit entities. This is a self-sustaining fund and therefore no appropriation is required to support these activities.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5021, the Supply fund finances on a reimbursable basis the cost of warehouse inventories at depots and field stations and selected items of equipment procured centrally. It also finances, on the same basis, items and services to other Federal agencies who either request or are assigned to the Veterans Administration for support by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) Maintenance of depot and field station inventories; (2) maintenance and operation of three supply depots; (3) a publications depot including printing services to VA installations on a centralized basis; (4) operation of a service and reclamation program operating out of the supply depots; (5) centralized periodical procurement and library cataloging; and (6) a marketing center or central buying office.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service and distribution of printed matter to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant, and from commercial sources.

The marketing center is responsible for determining the levels of inventories to be carried at depots and acquiring stock to maintain such levels. It is also responsible for the central contracting of items not available from other Government sources for VA installations and other Government agencies as may be determined economical or advisable.

The supply fund does not finance costs for the operation and administration of supply activities at field stations. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply fund and Supply fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving goods and services. For 1981 Supply fund sales are estimated to reach $542 million. Average inventory needed to support those sales will be $106 million.

Operating results.—The fund operated at a profit of $48 thousand in 1979 and carried forward a loss of $392 thousand from prior years. During the past 10 years and transition quarter the fund has shown a loss of $328 thousand on a total of $2.6 billion cost of goods sold in the same period.

This fund was established in 1940 for the World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program authorized by the National Servicemen's Life Insurance Act of 1940. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Since issuance of new policies ended in 1951, the insurance in force is estimated to decrease in 1981 by $428 million, representing a decrease of 56,000 policies. Activity of the fund reflects a rising claim, but declining loan workload. The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is shown as follows (in thousands of dollars):

This fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible except that administrative expenses are charged to the General operating expenses account, consistent with law.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation for claims: (1) resulting from extra hazards of the veterans' service, and (2) arising on certain policies held by personnel on active duty.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special Treasury interest-bearing securities and in policy loans, are expected to increase from $9,339 million as of September 30, 1980, to $9,562 million as of September 30, 1981. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of September 30, 1980, totals $9,236 million, leaving a balance of $104 million for contingency reserves.

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible except that administrative expenses are charged to the General operating expenses account, consistent with law.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation for claims: (a) resulting from the extra hazards of the veteran's service, and (b) arising ing on certain policies held by personnel on active military duty.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in interest-bearing securities and policy loans, are estimated to decrease from $492 million as of September 30, 1980, to $458 million as of September 30, 1981, as an increasing number of policies mature through death or disability. The actuarial evaluation of policy obligations as of September 30, 1980, totals $477 million, leaving a balance of $15 million for contingency reserves.

This fund finances the payment of claims on life insurance policies issued before January 31, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1, 1951. No new policies can be issued and the number of policies in force are expected to decline by 2,500 in 1980 and 14,500 in 1981. Policyholders may elect to purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of additional premiums.

Budget program—1. Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

2. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

3. Dividends.—Public Law 93-289, enacted May 24, 1974, provides for policyholders to participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

4. All other.—Classified in this category are payments to policyholders who: (a) hold endorsement policies which have matured; (b) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled; and (c) are paid interest on dividend credits and deposits.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amounts of insurance in force (in thousands of dollars):

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of policies.....	546,500	544,000	529,500
Insurance in force.....	$4,763,511	$4,735,520	$4,604,002

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have, since the inception of the program, been reduced by payments of a special dividend and subsidy payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

OTHER INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

ACTION, the Federal agency for volunteer service, brings together a number of volunteer programs including the Peace Corps, Volunteers in Service to America (VISTA), Foster Grandparent, and Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

As a result of the President's Executive Order No. 12137, the Peace Corps is administered directly by the Director of the Peace Corps and its appropriation is located in the chapter entitled Funds Appropriated to the President. The operating expenses, domestic programs appropriation is below. The Peace Corps and domestic appropriations each contain a share of the agency's common support costs. A special information schedule of these common support costs is presented in the following materials.

ACTION's 1980 request for all but the older American volunteer programs had been deferred from regular appropriation consideration at the time this budget was prepared. Enactment of the full appropriation is requested in Part III.

1. Volunteers in service to America.—The VISTA and the University Year for ACTION programs provide full-time volunteers to assist low-income communities working on problems of poverty. These programs will support about 5,700 years of voluntary service in 1981. Volunteers will concentrate their efforts in energy conservation, community services, health and nutrition, economic development, and housing. The National Center for Service Learning will continue to assist secondary and post-secondary schools to develop student service-learning programs.

2. Older American volunteer programs.—These programs provide opportunities for Americans, age 60 and over, to volunteer their services to the community by working with the emotionally disturbed, the mentally retarded and physically handicapped, the infirm, and the isolated elderly. In 1981, 4,860 volunteers in the Senior Companions Program will provide long term care services to about 17,500 frail elderly Americans. The retired senior volunteer program will support 275,000 part-time volunteers providing service in the areas of energy conservation, health, nutrition, community services, and knowledge and skills. The 17,470 foster grandparent volunteers will serve approximately 43,700 children. Emphasis will be placed on preventing institutionalization and returning children to the community.

3. Urban volunteer programs.—The urban volunteer programs consist of technical and management assistance, fixed income consumer counseling, helping hand, and the good neighbor fund, all targeted in complementary ways to stem and reverse the deterioration of neighborhoods in large urban areas. In 1981, these four programs will enroll about 54,400 volunteers in approximately 785 of the Nation's urban neighborhoods.

4. Citizen participation and volunteer demonstration programs.—These programs encourage the integration of volunteer services as ongoing activities at State and local levels, provide small community groups one-time mini-grants which provide the impetus to make their community projects viable, and various forms of Support Service Assistance to improve voluntary action.

5. Program support.—Costs of program direction and administration both at headquarters and at the region-

The Conference assists the President, the Congress, the administrative agencies, and executive departments in improving existing administrative procedure, including achievement of needed regulatory reform. It is responsible for conducting studies of the efficiency, adequacy, and fairness of present procedures by which the Federal administrative agencies and executive departments determine the rights, privileges, and obligations of private persons. On the basis of such studies the Conference issues formal recommendations for improvements and then encourages implementation of the recommendations through appropriate agency, congressional, or judicial action.

In addition to its research activities, the Conference also arranges for the interchange among administrative agencies of information useful in improving administrative procedures; collects, tabulates, analyzes, and publishes statistics from administrative agencies to identify and correct delays and other problems in the administrative process; and, on an ongoing basis, furnishes assistance and advice on matters of administrative procedure to the agencies, Congress, and others.

The Board for International Broadcasting oversees the operations of RFE/RL, Inc. (Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty), which broadcasts in 21 languages of Eastern Europe and the U.S.S.R. A major modernization of RFE/RL transmitter facilities, recommended by the President in 1977, will be virtually completed in 1981. Increases in the grant level to RFE/RL reflect the new facilities as well as higher dollar costs of operations in the Federal Republic of Germany.

The sum of $4.5 million has been provided to reduce by $3 million the annual level of RFE/RL personnel costs by selective transfers of personnel from the Federal Republic of Germany to the United States and a limited reduction in force, as recommended by the Board's report to the Congress.

The Board regulates the economic aspects of domestic and international air carrier operations. In 1981 the Board will emphasize actions designed to move commercial air transportation toward a system governed primarily by competitive market forces. Congress through passage of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978 on October 24, 1978, has ratified and further defined the Board's efforts to deregulate the air transportation industry.

1. Domestic competition, operating authority and pricing.—This program involves the following basic activities: scheduled service, charter and special services, pricing and tariffs, and competition maintenance.

2. Community assistance, small community air service and subsidy.—This program consists of three basic activities: community assistance, small community air service, and the provision of subsidy to communities. In 1981 this program will increase efforts to assist communities to obtain and/or maintain adequate air services by relying primarily on increased competition.

3. International negotiations, operating authority, and pricing.—This program includes three basic activities: negotiations and consultations, operating authority, and pricing. In 1981 this program will seek to support U.S. policy by providing the greatest possible benefits to the consumer through the maintenance and extension of competition in international air transportation.

4. Consumer protection, assistance and information.—This program involves three primary activities: consumer protection, consumer complaints, and consumer information and education.

5. Economic analysis and regulatory information.—This program covers two activities: economic analysis and regulatory information. In 1981 this program will provide the Board with a basic analytical capability to evaluate its procompetitive economic policies and decisions.

The Civil Aeronautics Board fixes rates of subsidy compensation under section 406 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, to promote the development of air transportation required for the commerce of the United States, the Postal Service, and the national defense.

The Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, through its addition of section 419 to the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, has given the Board responsibility for administering a second subsidy program. This new authority requires that the Board guarantee, with subsidy if necessary, a minimum level of service to every community certificated as of October 24, 1978. Currently, the Board is determining the essential air service needs of 555 U.S. communities that were served by one or no carrier on the date the act was signed. In addition, other com-

The Committee for Purchase from the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped was established by the Wagner-O'Day Act of 1938, as amended. Its primary objective is to increase the employment opportunities for the blind and other severely handicapped and, whenever possible, to prepare them to engage in normal competitive employment. In 1981, 31,000 blind and handicapped individuals are projected to be employed in 215 producing workshops. The Committee determines which commodities and services are suitable for Government procurement from qualified nonprofit agencies serving the blind and other severely handicapped; publishes a procurement list of such commodities and services; determines the fair market price for commodities and services on the procurement list; and makes rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the act. The Committee proposes to have 1,340 items on its procurement list, for an estimated workshop sale of $115 million to the Federal Government.

The Committee staff supervises the selection and assignment of new commodities and services, assists in establishing prices, reviews and adjusts these prices, verifies the qualifications of workshops, and monitors their performance.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended. The purpose of the CFTC is to further the economic utility of the futures markets by encouraging their efficiency, assuring their integrity, and protecting participants against abusive trade practices, fraud, and deceit. The object of commodity futures trading regulation is to enable the markets to better serve their designated functions of providing a price discovery mechanism and a means of offsetting price risk. By properly serving these functions, the futures markets serve the public interest by contributing toward better planning, more efficient distribution and consumption, and more economical marketing.

1. Market surveillance.—Responsibilities under this program include daily surveillance of the market activity of large individual traders and fundamental economic market factors to insure orderly markets. The longer term activities of surveillance concentrate on the review of contract terms and conditions to insure conformity with current cash marketing conditions and adequate deliverable supplies. The program is further responsible for the publication of market data, the enforcement of Federal limits, and the monitoring of exchange limits on speculative positions.

2. Research and education.—The objectives of this program are to systemically investigate the functioning of markets and market users; to develop better tools to assist in detecting and preventing price distortions; and to develop and disseminate educational and statistical materials regarding futures trading. In 1981, the program will continue to provide basic analytical support to the Commission, to include the analysis of policies and regulations having economic implications.

3. Registration, audits, and contract markets.—Responsibilities under this program are: To prevent misuse of customers' funds by Futures Commission merchants; to assure that the rules and practices of the contract markets are in compliance with the provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act and the rules of the Commission; and to review and approve applications from individuals and firms for registration under the provisions of the act.

4. Enforcement.—The enforcement program is responsible for detecting, investigating and litigating violations of the Act or regulations. These violations may include actual and attempted market manipulations, cheating and defrauding customers, and abusive trading practices such as fictitious trading, wash trading and pre-arranged trading. As the prosecuting arm of the Commission, this program may seek redress through the administrative process or by injunctive actions in the Federal Courts. In addition to developing investigations on its own, the enforcement program handles investigations and litigation on a referral basis from other Federal and State agencies.

The 1974 amendments to the act provide for the handling of customer's reparation claims for damages against persons registered with the Commission.

* These programs are included in the Funds Appropriated to the President account for 1981.

1. Community action operations.—The primary responsibility of the Community Services Administration (CSA) is to oversee a variety of social services programs intended to address the needs of low income families and help them out of their poverty status. These programs are administered at the local level by community action agencies, whose administrative costs are primarily derived from CSA funding. In 1980, an increase of $18 million was appropriated for the local initiative program, which provides this basic administrative and flexible program funding for community action agencies. The 1981 request seeks a stabilization of the funding for local initiative, including a modest travel reduction for agencies. To encourage performance of community action grantees, a community action competitive grant program is requested in 1981. This program will make awards to local initiative grantees on a competitive basis using grantee performance evaluations, project plans, and well-established criteria for comparing the merits of grantee proposals. Funds for the competitive grant program were principally made available through cancellation of the summer recreation program.

The senior opportunities and services program and State economic opportunity offices will be continued at their 1980 levels, but grants under both accounts will also be awarded on a competitive basis in 1981 using established rating criteria for grantee funding requests. The community food and nutrition program's basic assistance will operate at the 1980 level and continue to be awarded on a competitive basis. The youth sports program is funded at the 1980 level with grants to be awarded based on performance evaluations and published criteria for ranking grantee proposals. Funding for energy conservation and migrants will not continue in 1981 as separate programs. Energy conservation activities have expanded significantly in the last few years through the Department of Energy's low income home weatherization program and the new energy crisis assistance and special energy allowance programs administered by CSA in 1980 and the Department of Health and Human Services in 1981. Migrants program funding is retained at $1 million, but included under demonstrations as a more accurate reflection of the type of one-time, experimental migrant projects administered by CSA.

The training and technical assistance increase in 1981 reflects a consolidation of existing assistance now provided through this account and the local initiative, nutrition, and rural housing programs. Increased emphasis will be placed on improving grantee managerial and administrative skills.

The program administration request reflects transfer of energy crisis assistance activities to the Department of Health and Human Services in 1981. While reduced from 1980, the 1981 request provides for the addition of ten staff to the Office of Inspector General.

2. Energy crisis assistance.—Proposed in 1980 as part of the Administration's low income energy initiative, this program provides relief to low income families experiencing energy-related crises. Assistance is usually given in the form of fuel bill payments and emergency services. The program's source of funding will be the Energy Security Trust Fund. It will be administered in 1981 by the Department of Health and Human Services.

3. Special energy allowances.—This program is also included in the administration's low income energy initiative and provides cash assistance to low income families and, at the discretion of the Governors, may also be used for crisis assistance activities. It is administered by the Department of Health and Human Services in both 1980 and 1981 and is funded under the Energy Security Trust Fund.

4. Community economic development.—This demonstration program has undergone a reexamination in the last 3 years as to its purpose and structure. A reemphasis has been placed on economic development objectives and a competitive venture capital fund established for the most successful grantees (community development corporations) to compete for resources. During 1980, at least two corporations are expected to become self-sufficient from CSA administrative funding support. As the most successful corporations become self-sufficient, new planning grants will be initiated to replace them. To accelerate this process, the venture capital fund will be increased in 1981 by $4 million, representing a substantial rise in support for promising community development corporations.

5. Demonstrations.—Activities under this account address new approaches to meeting the needs of low income families. Funds will be provided for one-time projects, short-term interagency efforts, and experimental programs in areas such as family counseling, group homes, migrants, rural housing, and veterans.

6. Evaluation.—Evaluation funds in 1981 will continue to be used to assess the performance of individual CSA grantees and CSA programs.

This program, transferred from the Department of Agriculture, will provide loans and loan guaranties to borrowers in rural areas or communities having substantial numbers or concentrations of low-income persons. Loans and guaranties to eligible organizations will be made only for business facilities and community development projects which are group ventures aimed at providing increased income employment and ownership opportunities for low-income local residents.

Two distinct types of loan and guaranty issuing methods will be conducted under this program. The first is direct assistance, i.e., loans and guaranties made directly to eligible organizations (including intermediary organizations); and the second is loans and guaranties through intermediary organizations which in turn loan or guaranty the funds to other eligible organizations (including other intermediaries) and in certain cases to low-income families and profit making businesses.

Families and profit making businesses can borrow only from intermediaries and only if such lending activities are approved as a part of an intermediary's overall community economic development financial plan. Eligible organizations will be nonprofit tax-exempt organizations.

The District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act (Public Law 93-198, December 24, 1973) terminated as of January 2, 1975, the District's permanent authority to borrow from the U.S. Treasury to finance its capital improvements program.

The Self-Government Act authorized the District of Columbia to issue tax-exempt general obligation bonds to finance capital improvements projects. To prevent undue disruption during the development of the District's bond issuance program, the Self-Government Act provided interim authority under which the District could borrow from the U.S. Treasury to finance capital projects for which funds had been authorized or appropriated before January 2, 1975, and to finance the District's share of the cost of the adopted regional transportation system specified in the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969.

Because of unanticipated delays in the development of the city's bond issuance program, the Self-Government Act has been amended by Public Law 95-131 to extend the interim borrowing authority for all projects approved prior to October 1, 1979. The 1976 and 1977 appropriations acts for the District of Columbia contained language provisions authorizing Treasury loans to finance capital projects approved in those two acts. Legislation is pending in the Congress that would extend the interim borrowing authority for all new projects approved in the 1980 and 1981 budgets.

The Self-Government Act set a ceiling on outstanding long-term debt of the District of Columbia. Under that limitation, the District may neither issue general obligation bonds nor borrow funds from the U.S. Treasury to finance capital projects if the amount of the additional obligation thus incurred would cause debt service on outstanding long-term debt in any one year to exceed 14% of District revenues estimated to be credited to the District during the year in which the bonds were to be issued or the Treasury loans were to be drawn down.

The District of Columbia is requesting an appropriation of $166,057 thousand for capital investment loans from the U.S. Treasury for 1981. The entire amount is for the general fund. D.C. Act 1-42 (January 22, 1976) established the general fund of the District and provided that the following revenues would be deposited in the general fund: taxes, fees, charges, and miscellaneous receipts; Federal payments; loans from the U.S. Treasury and other sources; and any moneys for operating expenses not otherwise designated to be deposited in another fund of the District Government. D.C. Act 1-42 abolished the District's highway, water, sanitary sewage works, and metropolitan area sanitary sewage works funds (MASSWF).

Together with funds available under prior loan authorizations, the 1981 estimate of $166.1 million will meet the full cash requirements for capital projects during the year ending September 30, 1981. The budget estimate assumes that all capital investment expenditures from appropriated funds during the year will be financed with U.S. Treasury loans.

The following table shows the status of general fund capital investment loans authorizations on a cumulative basis:

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission was created by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to resolve charges of alleged employment discrimination based on race, color, religion, sex, or national origin through settlement, investigation, and where cause is found, conciliation. The Commission has jurisdiction over all employers with 15 or more employees, including states, localities, and private educational institutions. Also, as the result of the President's Civil Rights Reorganization of 1978, the monitoring of equal employment opportunity in the federal sector as required by Section 717 of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 has been the responsibility of the Commission since January 1, 1979. In addition, the reorganization plan transferred, effective July 1, 1979, the enforcement of the Equal Pay Act and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act from the Department of Labor to the Commission. Executive Order 12067 issued June 30, 1978, transferred the functions of the Equal Employment Opportunity Coordinating Council to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission as of July 1, 1978.

The purpose of the Export-Import Bank is to aid in financing and to facilitate U.S. exports.

To accomplish its objectives, the Bank's authority and resources are used to: assume commercial and political risks that exporters or private institutions are unwilling or unable to undertake; overcome maturity and other limitations in private sector export financing; assist U.S. exporters to meet foreign officially sponsored export credit competition; and provide leadership and guidance in export financing to the U.S. exporting and banking communities and to foreign borrowers.

This fund is available to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration as a revolving fund for investment in the class A capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks and class A and class C stock of the production credit associations (12 U.S.C. 2152a).

Budget program.—On December 31, 1968, the Government's investment in the class A stock of the banks was retired in full, thus making them privately owned. Also, the last of the Government's investment in the production credit associations was repaid. No reinvestment of Government capital in any of the banks or associations is anticipated in the near future.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. This protection has been $40 thousand since November 27, 1974. In order to accomplish its varied functions in the protection of bank depositors, the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. The major portion of the Corporation's operations consists of the examination of State banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System and liquidation activities attendant to insured banks that have closed.

The insurance fund is supported by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the Treasury of the United States. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1980 and 1981.

In order to facilitate deposit assumptions or to assist operating banks, the Corporation is authorized to purchase notes issued by the assuming bank, or in the case of direct assistance, notes issued by the operating bank. The above schedule reflects the outstanding principal amounts of these notes and projected repayments based on the notes agreements.

Income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investment in U.S. Government securities. As of September 30, 1979, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $9.6 billion. The entire fund represents the accumulated net income of the Corporation and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriation are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations.

The estimates for 1980 and 1981 in these statements make no provision for losses and expenses which might occur by reason of the closing of any bank after September 30, 1979, because there is no sound basis for predicting which insured banks if any, will close after that date.

Note.—Includes the following amounts for activities transferred to Hazard mitigation and disaster assistance Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Budget authority.....	7,228
Outlays.....	7,228

This appropriation provides for the continuation of activities previously performed by the U.S. Fire Administration under appropriations to the Department of Commerce, by the Federal Insurance Administration and Federal Disaster Assistance Administration under appropriations to the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and by the Office of Science and Technology Policy in the Executive Office of the President. It also provides for the executive direction of the new Federal Emergency Management Agency, a part of which was previously charged to appropriations of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency and the Federal Preparedness Agency.

The account includes funding for flood studies and surveys in support of the activities of the National Flood Insurance Fund. This work was previously financed by a separate appropriation.

Amounts shown for Disaster Relief Administration reflect a basic change in the manner of funding these activities. Financing of the personnel required to administer the relief program is by direct appropriation, rather than the previous method of reimbursement from the Disaster relief account. Expenses related to response to specific disasters will continue to be charged directly to the Disaster relief account. Legislation to accommodate this change will be proposed.

The amounts shown for 1979 were not appropriated to this account but are included on the same basis as the 1981 budget request to provide for a comparative analysis. The Federal Emergency Management Agency was activated on April 15, 1979. Activities of FEMA for the remainder of 1979 were financed by transfers of funds from appropriations previously made to the component agencies and functions.

1. Insurance and hazard mitigation.—Provides funds for the following hazard mitigation and insurance functions: (a) management of the flood study program, the determination of actuarial premium rates and the development, coordination, and management of a hazards reduction program, which includes developing appropriate land uses and building standards; (b) providing communities with flood hazard boundary maps that outline flood-prone areas and flood insurance rate maps which show flood elevations and outline risk zones used for insurance purposes; (c) management of the crime insurance and riot reinsurance programs, and (d) planning and interacting directly with community leaders in assisting them in establishing preparedness programs designed to save lives and mitigate the social and economic impacts of natural disasters with primary emphasis on hurricanes, earthquakes, floods, and winter storms, together with dam safety.

2. Fire prevention and control.—Provides funds to reduce fire deaths, injuries, incidents and property loss through the development and dissemination of effective public fire education programs to States, communities, and high-risk groups; fire data center which furnishes quantitative and reference information to fire services and others concerned with fire prevention and control for use in identifying major problem areas, setting priorities, obtaining possible solutions to problems, and monitoring progress made; and for improved planning, research, and technology necessary to significantly decrease fire-caused losses and to improve the cost-effectiveness of fire protection.

3. Facilities, fire academy.—Provides funds for the advancement of the professional development of fire service personnel and others engaged in fire prevention and control activities.

4. Disaster relief administration.—Funds are provided for the administrative expenses of the Federal Emergency Management Agency in coordinating the disaster relief program.

5. Flood studies and surveys.—Provides funds for studies of flood-prone communities to determine the degree of risk and establish evaluations based on the probability of flooding in a 100-year period. These evaluations make it possible for communities to enforce ordinances which will reduce the risk of flooding to actuarially predictable rates.

6. Executive direction.—Provides for the salaries, travel, and administrative expenses related to the Director of FEMA, his immediate staff and the common administrative functions, such as accounting, budget, personnel, procurement, and general counsel activities, necessary to the operation of the agency.

The National insurance development fund provides the funding source for two programs authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended: (1) The FAIR (fair access to insurance requirements) plan/riot reinsurance program, a cooperative effort by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government aimed at providing reasonable access to essential property insurance in urban areas; and (2) the Federal crime insurance program, which provides burglary and robbery insurance at affordable premium rates on properties that meet protective device requirements where such coverage is not available in the private market.

Budget program—1. Riot reinsurance claims.—The estimate of claims paid through riot and civil disorder

reinsurance is expected to be about $862 thousand in 1980 and $835 thousand in 1981.

2. Crime insurance—(a) Insurance claims.—Claims reflect insurance payments in the program.

(b) Operating expenses.—Expenses are incurred by fiscal agents in issuing policies, settling claims, and maintaining accounting and statistical records.

3. Studies and surveys.—This includes expenses of continuing reviews of market availability of essential property insurance as well as a study of the effectiveness of FAIR plans.

4. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the programs.

Financing.—Claims and expenses are estimated to be paid from premium income and income from holdings of Government securities. Thus, it is anticipated that none of the $250 million in Treasury borrowing authority will be utilized.

Operating results.—Claims and expenses are expected to exceed premium and investment income due to losses under the crime insurance program, resulting in a decrease in the reserves of the fund.

Net losses of the crime insurance program, estimated at $13,910 thousand in 1980 and $14,411 thousand in 1981, will be funded by reserves.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within 1 year of the time they are identified as flood prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes.

Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $245 thousand for residential and $550 thousand for other types.

In previous years, the costs of the aforementioned studies and surveys were reflected as a part of the budget for this account but were appropriated as a separate appropriation entitled "Flood Insurance." Effective with this FEMA budget, the flood studies and surveys are included as a separate budget activity classification in the new "Hazard Mitigation and Disaster Assistance" account.

Significant indicators of program size are as follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Policies in force.....	1,700,000	1,900,000	2,100,000
Insurance in force (billions of dollars).....	67.2	71.5	81.2
Communities in program.....	16,660	16,900	17,100

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—Cost of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $55,800 thousand in 1981.

2. Loss and adjustment expense.—Insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expense is estimated at $209,115 thousand in 1981.

3. Interest expense.—Interest on Treasury borrowings needed to defray underwriting and loss expenses is estimated at $10,613 thousand in 1981.

Financing.—The Administrator is authorized to borrow up to $1 billion to carry out the program. Borrowings are estimated to total $208,396 thousand by the end of 1981. An appropriation of $603 million is requested in 1981 to retire agency debt. The program is also financed through premium income.

Operating results.—Cumulative expenses are expected to exceed revenue and receipts from Federal and non-Federal sources by approximately $310 million by the end of 1981. The cumulative deficit is financed by charges against borrowing authorization of approximately $208 million.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board formulates policies for and supervises the operation of the 12 Federal home loan banks, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation. It is also responsible for the examination of Federal savings and loan associations and for the examination and supervision of State-chartered institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenditure programs of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation are presented as business-type budgets. The Home Owner's Loan Act of 1933, as amended, provides that all expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision shall be considered nonadministrative. The administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, including the home office of the Office of Examinations and Supervision, are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The expenses of the field offices of the Office of Examinations and Supervision are paid from fees collected from savings and loan institutions examined and from assessments against the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Title I of the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 authorized the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to subsidize the interest rate charged by each of the 12 Federal home loan banks on lending to member savings and loan associations in order to stabilize the flow of funds into residential construction. The program was initiated in 1971 with an appropriation of $85 million. An additional $62.5 million was appropriated in 1972. The program was phased out in 1973.

Budget program.—The Board's budget program consists of eight activities:

1. Examination of Federal home loan banks and supervision of Federal home loan bank system.—The Board examines and supervises the operations of the 12 Federal home loan banks.

2. Examination and supervision of Federal and State-Chartered thrift institutions.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and all uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system which are not examined by the State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter, when required by the Board. The financial condition and operations of each insured institution are analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on co-operatively, with the respective State authorities.

3. Chartering Federal and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion to Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

4. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

5. Analysis of operations.—Analyses are made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, and the character and volume of mortgage lending. Selective reviews are made of geographical areas and trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including the volume of activity and interest rates for all major types of mortgage lenders.

6. Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting, budgeting, and financial reporting; internal budget control; and fiscal organization and management. Also included are general housekeeping and operating services, which include printing and reproduction work.

7. Acquisition and construction of a building in the District of Columbia.—The Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 authorized the Board to acquire property and construct a building in the District of Columbia to provide quarters and facilities for the Board. Under the law, the Board is required to prepare and submit an annual budget program for the building as provided in title I of the Government Corporation Control Act.

8. Authority of the Treasury to purchase Federal home loan bank obligations.—The 12 Federal home loan banks seek to improve the financial condition of member institutions. The banks, which are owned by the member institutions, obtain funds primarily from public issuances of consolidated obligations. Authority to borrow from the Treasury was temporarily increased from $4 billion to $6 billion by an amendment to the National Housing Act, approved October 28, 1974. The increase expired on August 10, 1975. A total of $1,574,500 thousand was borrowed in 1975 and 1976.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the activities discussed above for 1981 include administrative expenses under an annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under a limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $19.1 million in 1980 to $21.0 million in 1981. Nonadministrative expenses covering examination and supervision of savings and loan associations are discussed separately, below.

The Office of Examination and Supervision has the major role in fulfilling the Federal Home Loan Bank Board's statutory responsibility for monitoring and regulating the savings and loan industry. This Office examines and, when necessary, supervises and assists all savings and loan associations to assure the public that savings deposited in these associations are safe and to make credit more accessible to potential home buyers.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) also relies on the Office of Examinations and Supervision to protect its assets against depletion from the financial failure of any insured savings and loan association. The Office's responsibility extends to all institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation as well as noninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system not subject to State examination.

The Office monitors savings and loan associations through continual analysis of their operating policies and financial reports, regularly scheduled examinations, and occasional special examinations. The purpose of the monitoring process is to determine compliance with Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations and to ascertain the quality of management and the financial soundness of the member associations. If the Office detects actual or potentially unsafe or unsound practices in insured associations, supervisory agents from the Federal home loan banks work with the association to prevent or correct poor financial or management performance. The operations of the Office are funded substantially through direct examination charges imposed on savings and loan associations.

The Office also has examination and supervisory responsibilities with respect to savings and loan holding companies and their subsidiaries. In addition, the Office has assumed responsibilities pursuant to legislation in the areas of consumer credit protection, equal opportunity, and security measures.

The following table reflects the work of the Office:

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection, which insures each saver in a member association against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $40 thousand, may be provided either through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings accounts holders in the event of liquidation. Preventing default, which protects each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making contributions or by purchasing all or a part of an association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Preventive measures are preferred by the Corporation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as a receiver, or co-receiver upon the request of a State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions. In addition, the Corporation, upon determination by the Board, is empowered to act, even retroactively, as sole receiver in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides administrative services. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation and the Federal home loan banks.

Actual losses sustained and provision for losses to September 30, 1979, have amounted to $281.9 million representing approximately 4.6% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information on these cases is summarized in the following table:

Budget program.—The Insurance Corporation's budget program consists of the following activities:

1. Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—This category includes the estimated costs of executive direction and policy formulation.

2. Payments to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 21% of the total administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board plus 49% of the remaining 79% in 1981 in return for services and facilities from the Board.

3. Contributions and provision for contributions to insured thrift institutions.—This item is the estimated amount needed in 1981 to prevent the default of insured institutions.

4. Refund of additional premium prepayments.—A 1962 amendment of the National Housing Act required that each insured institution pay an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year, less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The amendment also provided for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayment of each insured association at a rate equal to the average rate realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio.

Another amendment to the National Housing Act provides for a phaseout of the secondary reserve over the first 10 minimum net reduction years occurring after December 31, 1973. In May of each year, the Corporation will reduce the amount of each insured institution's pro rata share of the secondary reserve as of the preceding December 31 by a cash refund of the difference between the pro rata share and the percentage of its beginning balance on a percentage basis prescribed in the law.

5. Liquidation and other expenses.—This provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the workout of contribution agreements, the disposition of assets purchased from, and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to Treasury, together with an additional $43 million in interest. The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, up to a limit of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowing under this authorization has ever been necessary. The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any 1 year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured savers.

Operating results.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock, leaving a reserve for contingencies of $5,752.8 million as of September 30, 1979. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934 of $6,378.0 million have been applied as follows:

Return on capital stock to U.S. Treasury.....	42.9	.7

Funded operating expenses for 1981 are estimated at $118 million. Net operating income for 1981, which is expected to be $793 million, will be retained by the Corporation to meet future contingencies.

The Service assists parties to disputes in industries affecting commerce to settle their disputes through conciliation and mediation.

1. Dispute mediation.—The Service assists labor and management in mediation and prevention of disputes, other than those involving rail and air transportation, whenever in its judgment such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of interstate commerce or a major impairment of the national defense. Under Section 7119 of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, the Service also makes mediation and conciliation services available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service closed 516 dispute mediation cases in the Federal sector in 1979 and anticipates some 700 cases in 1981. The Service provides mandatory mediation and, where necessary, impartial boards of inquiry to assist in resolving labor disputes involving private nonprofit health care institutions. During 1979, the Service closed a total of 1,278 health case assignments, and anticipates an equal number in 1981. About 86% of the 24,940 closed mediation assignments which required the services of mediators were settled without work stoppages. The workload shown below includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors.

Technical assistance/public information and educational activities.—Through its technical assistance program, the Service initiates and develops labor-management committees, training programs, conferences, and specialized workshops dealing with a wide range of contemporary issues in collective bargaining. Mediators also participate each year in public information and educational activities such as university lectures and a variety of seminars and conferences.

2. Arbitration services.—The Service assists parties in disputes in utilizing the arbitration process for the resolution of disputes arising under or in the negotiation of collective bargaining agreements in the private and public sectors. This activity also includes the appointment of boards of inquiry to look into the facts of a dispute in the health care industry. In addition, the Service administers expedited arbitration for the U.S. Postal Service in several large areas of the country, for national agreements in construction, and for a number of multi-location contracts.

3. Management and administrative support.—This activity provides for overall management and administration, policy planning, research and evaluation, and employee development.

4. Boards and panels.—Provision is made for ad hoc use of labor relations experts, individually or in panels, in support of the mediation function, for boards of inquiry appointed by the President in emergency disputes, and for boards of inquiry which the Director of FMCS may appoint in a contract dispute involving health care institutions.

5. Age discrimination mediation project.—Under this activity, the Service will mediate settlements of complaints filed under the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (42 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.). Complaints alleging discrimination on the basis of age in federally funded activities will be referred to the Service prior to the formal enforcement stage for mediation by Service mediators or mediators drawn from the community. It is expected that 700 complaints will be filed in 1981.

6. Labor-management cooperation project.—The Labor Management Cooperation Act of 1978 (29 U.S.C. 125a) authorizes the Service to carry out this program of contracts and grants to support the establishment and operation of plant, area, and industry labor-management committees. Support for such committees is intended to improve labor-management communications, increase organizational effectiveness, address problems of mutual interest and concern, and enhance economic development. A supplemental appropriation is being requested to implement the program in 1980.

The Federal Trade Commission is charged by law with insuring that competition in the marketplace is vigorous, free, and fair. This is accomplished by eliminating threats to fair and honest competition from all sources, both public and private.

1. Maintaining competition.—The Commission's efforts to enforce the antitrust laws are aimed at reducing prices to consumers and limiting the effects of inflation, and fostering and preserving competition. In 1981, the Commission will focus principal antitrust attention on areas with the most direct impact on consumers: the energy, health care, food, and transportation industries. The thrust of these activities will continue to be on removing barriers to the operation of an unfettered market system and to prevent, whenever possible, price increases and limitations on supply caused by anticompetitive practices and market structure.

2. Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive practices which preclude full and fair functioning of the marketplace. The mission will accomplish this through activities in three major areas. Activities in the first area are designed to remove private and public restrictions on business organization and practice. Activities in the second area are designed to increase the amount of accurate and useful information available to consumers so that search costs will be lower and intelligent purchasing decisions can be made. The third area includes activities aimed at removing marketplace distortions that create incentives for sellers to engage in abusive practices that inhibit free choice and therefore preclude full and fair functioning of the marketplace. Increased resources are requested for 1981 primarily to expand regulatory analysis efforts.

3. Economic activities.—This mission has three major functions. It collects and disseminates valuable economic data that would otherwise be unavailable, it provides analytical economic input into the Commission's consumer protection and antitrust efforts, and it engages in applied economic research concerning matters relevant to policymaking in these general areas.

New authorizing legislation is needed to provide for the Commission's 1981 request of $72,558 thousand. Authorizing legislation for 1981 is currently pending in the Congress.

* The 1980 resource requirements include $14,612 thousand requested to fund the October 1979 classified pay increase in real property operations and program direction and wage-board increases in real property operations.

* The 1981 resource requirements include $18,842 thousand for the cost of the October 1979 classified pay increase in real property operations and program direction and wage-board increases in real property operations.

The Federal buildings fund direct program consists of the following activities:

1. Construction and acquisition of facilities.—Space is acquired through direct federally financed construction of facilities, the extension and conversion of existing buildings, and direct purchasing of existing facilities. All costs directly attributable to Federal buildings fund construction projects for site acquisition, design, management and inspection, and construction are financed under this activity. The total cost of new commitments for direct federally financed construction and acquisition of facilities is estimated at $36 million in 1980 and $38 million in 1981.

2. Repairs and alterations. Repairs and alterations of public buildings are funded under this activity. Cost effectiveness, overall appearance, state of repair, and operating efficiency are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities of work required with primary consideration given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to the buildings, their support systems, and necessary operating equipment.

3. Purchase contract payments.—Payments are made for liabilities incurred for facilities acquired under purchase contract authority. Purchase contract authority, which provided for private investment capital financing of public buildings, expired at the end of 1975. The periodic payments on the purchase contracts cover principal, interest, taxes, and other requirements.

4. Rental of space.—Space is acquired through the leasing of either existing buildings, including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities, or facilities to be built with private capital for lease to the Government. Rental of existing commercial and Postal Service buildings is estimated to provide 98 million square feet in 1980 and 105 million square feet in 1981. Leased space will represent 42% of the total space inventory in 1981.

5. Real property operations.—Services are provided for Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, protection, maintenance, other miscellaneous services such as moving as a result of space adjustments, moving of agencies into newly acquired space, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision of the foregoing services. The 1981 direct program compares with the 1980 program as follows (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

	1980		1981
	Square feet	Expenses	Square feet	Expenses
Cleaning.....	186	$168	188	$178
Utilities.....	217	157	219	168

Protection.....	212	50	214	51
Other building services.....	286	43	288	43
Total.....		509		537

6. Program direction.—Overall general management is accomplished, including long- and short-range planning, and administration of all programs which are the responsibility of the Public Buildings Service. In addition, this activity finances the costs of management and administration of each of the individual direct activities of the Federal buildings fund.

Reimbursable programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations, cleaning and other operations, and protection services which are in excess of those services provided under the standard level user charge. The United States Courts were furnished space and services, financed from Federal Buildings Fund programs, valued at $81.6 million during 1979 and are expected to be provided similar services during 1980 and 1981 valued at $95 million, and $98 million respectively.

This appropriation provides for government-wide management of supplies and personal property and operating the worldwide supply system.

1. Supply.—A national supply distribution system of wholesale distribution facilities is managed and operated through which commercial-type commodities are received, stored, and issued on a worldwide basis to Federal agencies. Supplies are shipped by the wholesale operation to customer agencies from GSA supply distribution facilities located in each of the 11 GSA regions and the fuel yard located in Washington, DC. The sales estimate for 1981 is $825 million. This office is responsible for the inventory management program of the Federal Supply Service. Inventory levels available for issue to customer agencies are projected at $224 million for 1980 and $234 million for 1981 with a stockturn of 3.3 in 1980 and 1981.

Administrative, office and maintenance supplies, and standard forms are provided to Federal agencies through self-service retail facilities located wherever there is a concentration of Federal activities. Sales through these self-service stores were $42.0 million in 1979 and are estimated to be $47.0 million in 1980 and $49.0 million in 1981. This activity also manages and operates programs for processing and control of agency requisitions. The number of requisitions received in 1979 was 7,005,000 with an estimate of 7,739,000 to be received in 1980 and 7,957,000 in 1981.

2. Contracts.—Contracting responsibility for commercial-type items required by Federal agencies and other authorized users of the Federal Supply Service system is provided in this area. In addition to contracting and purchasing, the Contracts activity selects commodities for inclusion in the Stores, Nonstores, and Federal Supply Schedules programs by determining the method of supply that is most economical and effective. Total procurement volume in 1979 was $3.3 billion and is estimated to be $3.7 billion in 1980 and $3.9 billion in 1981. This activity is responsible for incorporating an expanded commodity center concept and manages and operates the Automotive and Tools Center, Furniture Center, and the General Products Center.

3. Programs and requirements.—Planning, direction, and coordination is necessary to insure effective logistic support to all Federal agencies. This activity is responsible for determining the adequacy of the support programs and will provide leadership for determining customer agency requirements, engineering, and technical support relative to the FSS mission, and operates the primary civil agency catalog activity. Continued emphasis will be placed on the customer liaison and customer market research program to increase the scope of supply and procurement support rendered by the Federal Supply Service to other Federal agencies. This activity also manages and operates programs for commodity management and logistics data systems. Qualitative requirements for commodities are reflected in Federal specification and Federal standards for use in procurement. In 1979, the standardization program consisted of the promulgation of 1,463 Federal specification and standard actions; in 1980, actions are estimated to be 2,520 and in 1981, actions are estimated at 2,570.

4. Quality assurance.—Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or GSA supply facilities, by laboratory tests and analyses prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance. The total dollar volume inspected in 1979 was $457 million with an estimated dollar volume inspected in 1980 of $480 million and in 1981 of $497 million. The number of laboratory tests in 1981 are estimated at 26,716.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, (1) a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies; (2) a rehabilitation and repair program and a program for redistribution of materials no longer needed overseas; (3) a system of interagency motor vehicle pools and (4) the purchase of administrative equipment for using activities. This estimate provides for supplies and services to both military and civilian agencies.

1. Supply operations—(a) Stores, regular.—Stock of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for sale to Government agencies. Sales were $820.5 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $860.0 million in 1980, and $874.0 million in 1981.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $30.3 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $38.0 million in 1980 and $42.0 million in 1981.

(c) Nonstores items.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales were $504.3 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $561.0 million in 1980 and $670.0 million in 1981.

(d) Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund cover packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services. Sales were $18.5 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $18.0 million in 1980, and 1981.

2. Property management and disposal operations.—Equipment repair services were $0.4 million in 1979 and are estimated to be $0.4 million in 1980 and 1981. Receipts to the fund covering redistribution costs of materials no longer required overseas were $0.3 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $0.6 million in 1980, and $0.5 million in 1981.

3. Motor pools.—Services are provided through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales were $166.5 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $181.6 million in 1980, and $198.5 million in 1981. Vehicle mileage in interagency motor pools was 983 million in 1979 and is estimated to be 1,053 million in 1980 and 1,099 million for 1981.

4. Administrative equipment.—Administrative equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts were $3.1 million in 1979, and are estimated to be $3.4 million in 1980 and $3.7 million in 1981.

Other revenue and expense.—Gain or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1981 is estimated at $493.0 million consisting of $292.8 million direct appropriations, $200.4 million donated assets, with $0.2 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government which is a major operating component of the national communications system.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from appropriations and funds of any agency or organization for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

The initial capital of $9 million appropriated in 1963 was increased by $20 million appropriated in 1977 and $5 million appropriated in 1980. This capital may be increased by donation of supplies and equipment.

The estimate provides for a continued increase in the volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. To provide for competitive procurement of telecommunications facilities and services, an additional $5 million in appropriated capital is requested. Total sales for 1979 were $410.0 million and are estimated at $458.2 million in 1980, and $501.4 million in 1981.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which enables personnel in each Federal agency to communicate directly with any other agency in the Nation. The system provides day-to-day services and incorporates features which would be necessary in emergency situations. In addition, this program finances reimbursable services in support of other agencies dedicated requirements. Total sales for 1979 were $360.4 million and are estimated at $398.4 million in 1980 and $424.7 million in 1981. Intercity Federal Telecommunications System calls were 212 million in 1979 and are estimated at 230 million in 1980, and 246 million in 1981.

2. Record program.—Provides a common unified records communications system to satisfy record communications requirements of the Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of data by teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. Total sales for this program are projected to increase from $31.4 million in 1979 to $38.5 million in 1980 and $50.1 million in 1981.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits and related equipment for civil agencies to obtain the benefits of multiple tariff offerings of commercial carriers, while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits. Sales are projected to increase from $13.2 million in 1979 to $14.1 million in 1980 and $16.4 million in 1981.

4. Special program.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies including GSA in keeping with the objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. This program provides assurances for the continuity of the Federal telecommunications system in the event that portions of the system are disabled or destroyed. In addition, this program provides telecommunications support to the Federal Emergency Management Agency in the emergency and major disaster programs. Total sales for 1979 were $5.0 million and are estimated at $7.2 million in 1980 and $10.2 million in 1981.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1979, the net investment in the fund is $28.7 million, composed of $29.0 million appropriated, $0.2 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.5 million unfunded leave liability. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings, after making provision for any prior year losses, are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

The Automatic data processing fund was authorized by Public Law 89-306, to coordinate and provide for the economic and efficient purchase, lease and maintenance of automatic data processing equipment by Federal agencies.

The fund finances on a reimbursable basis a Government-wide automatic data processing operation, including the procurement by lease, purchase, transfer, or otherwise of ADP equipment, maintenance of equipment, procurement and/or development of software programs with Government-wide application, and operation of service centers and related functions.

The estimate provides for an increase in revenue during 1980 and a decrease during 1981. Sales are estimated to increase from $95.4 million in 1979 to $119.1 million in 1980 and decrease to $116.9 million in 1981.

1. Data processing.—This activity finances the operation of a data processing program which provides ADP services on a Government-wide basis. These ADP services consist of local and remote computer processing, including teleprocessing services contracts; project manager, and consultant services; computer performance evaluation and simulation; computer systems conversion support; general purpose software; and a full range of commercially acquired data processing services, including programmer analyst services. This program also provides for financing of joint-use ADP facilities operated by two or more agencies under GSA policy guidance. In addition, this program provides financing for Federal data processing centers established to be operated by GSA, including the Federal Procurement Data Center transferred to GSA from DOD by Public Law 96-83, or by delegation of authority from GSA to be operated by other agencies under GSA policy guidance.

It is estimated that revenue from data processing programs and other related operations will increase from $78.7 million in 1979 to $105.9 million in 1980 and to $107.2 million in 1981.

2. Lease program.—This program finances the purchase and multiyear lease of ADP equipment and software from manufacturers for subsequent lease to Federal agencies at costs substantially below commercial annual lease prices. Purchases are made by the fund when special discounts with time limitations and other arrangements become available and agencies are unable to take advantage of these cost reduction opportunities due to budget cycle limitations. In addition to purchase, this program acquires excess Government-owned ADP equipment where there is a known user or the equipment has a high potential for reutilization, capitalizes it at fair market value, and leases it to Federal agencies at a cost substantially below all other least cost alternatives available to the using agency.

It is estimated that revenue from the lease program will decrease from $16.7 million in 1979 to $13.2 million in 1980 and then to $9.7 million in 1981.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1979, the net investment of the fund is $42.8 million, composed of $30.0 million appropriated, $10.7 million donated assets capitalized, $1.7 million revaluation of equipment capitalized at fair market value, and $0.4 million reserve for unanticipated discontinuance of equipment. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings after making provision for prior year losses are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

This appropriation provides for acquisition, administration and disposal of National Defense Stockpile inventories; administration and disposal of the Defense Production Act inventory; utilization and disposal of excess and surplus real and personal property and rehabilitation of personal property in 1981.

The estimate for 1981 provides for storage, maintenance and inspection of stockpile materials, disposal of those stockpile materials excess to objectives and the acquisition of materials needed to meet objectives, the appraisal of real and personal property, and continuing emphasis on reuse of existing real and personal property and the rehabilitation of personal property to extend its useful life.

1. Property management.—This activity manages the national defense stockpile of strategic and critical materials required to keep the Nation's mobilization base viable. It includes costs of receiving, storing, inspecting, and maintaining the material in storage locations.

2. Real property.—This activity promotes maximum utilization of real property by Federal agencies, and the transfer among agencies of excess real property. It provides for the disposal of surplus real property by sale, exchange, lease, permit, assignment, or transfer as well as the protection and maintenance of excess and surplus property pending its disposition. It also provides for the appraisal of excess and surplus property, necessary environmental and cultural analyses, disposition and predisposition reuse planning, and real property utilization surveys.

(a) Utilization and disposal.—In 1981 it is estimated that the total of 428 dispositions will have a value of approximately $205 million. This includes utilization transfers valued at $26 million, public benefit disposals valued at $128 million, and sales of $51 million. In relation to these dispositions, 5 land reuse studies and 180 environmental impact assessments will be prepared. Proceeds are estimated at $60 million, including $30 million for deposit to the Land and Water Conservation Fund and $30 million for deposit to other funds such as Defense Family Housing and Postal Service. The number of surveys to be conducted by GSA is estimated at 255 in 1981.

(b) Appraisal.—The total number of appraisals estimated for 1981 is 425.

(c) Protection and maintenance.—In 1981 it is estimated that protection and maintenance costs of excess and surplus property will reach $1,400 thousand.

3. Personal property.—This activity plans, directs, and coordinates on a worldwide basis programs and activities relating to maximum utilization of excess personal property; the maintenance, repair, rehabilitation; and reclamation of personal property; the transfer of surplus personal property for donation to the States and local organizations for public purposes and other purposes; and exchange/sale Federal personal property (except DOD property) by sale.

4. Stockpile acquisition and disposal.—This activity develops and implements plans and programs to acquire and dispose of stockpiled materials in accordance with statutory provisions. It includes the collection of technical, economic, and marketing data and an analysis of factors such as supply, demand, consumption, prices, specifications, and quality; these activities support the development of marketing and acquisition plans and programs, which are then implemented by the conduct of transactions in the commodities market.

The Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, N. Dak., is the only facility of its kind in the United States which has the capability to produce all types of jewel bearings in quantity. The plant was established by the Department of Defense in 1953 and turned over to GSA in 1957. On January 1, 1970, financing of the operation was placed under a revolving fund, which was authorized by Public Law 90-469, approved August 8, 1968.

The plant produces jewel bearings for sale at fixed prices to Government agencies, and their contractors and subcontractors for national defense purposes, and to GSA for the national defense stockpile. Mandatory source provisions are contained in the Federal Procurement Regulations and Armed Services Procurement Regulations in support of this operation. These provisions require Government agencies and their contractors to procure and use jewel-bearings manufactured at the William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant under certain specified conditions.

Budget program.—The 1981 estimate provides for operation of the jewel bearing plant on a break even basis. In 1981 it is estimated that 2,500,000 jewel bearings and related components will be produced and sold.

Financing.—Operations are financed through the sale of jewel bearings and purchases by GSA for the national defense stockpile from annual appropriated funds.

Operating results.—At the end of fiscal year 1979 there was a net operating loss of $94,015. An upward adjustment in sales price was made in 1979 as a corrective measure to restore operations to a break even position. Any net income of the fund at the end of each fiscal year, after making provision for prior year losses, must be returned to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Refund and rebate payments due World War II contractors are made upon approval of claims presented under the Renegotiation Act of 1951. Funds in this account are used to pay contractors engaged in business with the Federal Government who have prepaid excess profits in the amount determined by the Renegotiation Board. Subsequently, the Court of Claims judged a refund was due.

The activity in this account will be for contractor claims presently in the U.S. Court of Claims since the Renegotiation Board no longer exists.

The Harry S. Truman Memorial Scholarship Act, establishes the Harry S. Truman Scholarship Foundation whose Harry S. Truman Scholarship Program is the permanent, official Federal memorial to Harry S. Truman, the 33d President of the United States. The Foundation is authorized to award college scholarships of up to $5 thousand annually for 4 years to persons who demonstrate outstanding potential for and who are preparing to pursue a career in public service.

During 1979, the Foundation conducted its third nationwide competition to select Truman scholars. One Truman scholar was selected from each State, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and—considered as a single entity—Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. By the fall of 1978, the original 1977 class of Truman Scholars, the 1978 and the 1979 classes received payment toward their third, second, and first years of eligible academic expenses, respectively.

The Foundation is currently conducting its fourth annual competition by attempting to build on the solid base established in its earlier years.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations is an independent, bipartisan body which attempts to identify and analyze the causes of intergovernmental conflicts and recommends ways of strengthening and improving the American federal system. The 26-member Commission includes representatives of the executive, legislative, and administrative branches of all levels of government—Federal, State, and local—as well as representatives of the general public.

The Commission and its staff examine Federal and State programs having an intergovernmental aspect. Proposed legislation is reviewed to determine its overall effect on the federal system. The Commission also identifies emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations.

The Commission makes recommendations concerning the allocation of responsibilities and revenues among the various levels of government. The recommendations and published reports growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive and legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments for appropriate action.

Continuing and annual projects of the Commission include the monitoring of the general revenue sharing effort, polling the changing public attitudes on government and taxes, surveying State and local finances, monitoring the legislation of State and local governments, cataloging Federal grants-in-aid, and providing educational and technical assistance to Federal, State, and local governments with regard to Commission recommendations.

Nonrecurring projects currently under Commission study are the effect of Federal and State tax and spending policies on economic growth in the States and regions; the assignment of servicing functions among and between the various levels of government; State and local pension policies and practices; payments-in-lieu of taxes on federally owned urban property; indexation of Federal and State income taxes; the status of local discretionary authority in the 50 States; development of summary information on State aid to distressed communities; and preparation of a catalog of candidates for consolidation of Federal grant programs.

Appropriations finance the personnel and personnel-related expenses incurred in the basic day-to-day operation of the Commission.

The Commission receives funds from other Federal agencies for special projects carried out by the Commission pursuant to contracts with these agencies. Each contract is charged for a share of the Commission's overhead.

Current research being conducted under interagency contracts with the Department of Housing and Urban Development involves developing and implementing model state legislation on financial management, the assignment of functions among the various levels of government, and state aid to distressed urban areas.

Contributions from State and local governments and nonprofit organizations are used to strengthen the Commission's clearinghouse, information, and policy education services to State and local governments and to improve intergovernmental coordination and relations. Specific items financed by this account include the Commission's quarterly publication, Intergovernmental Perspective; summaries of full Commission reports making up the In Brief series of ACIR publications; and reprints of popular out-of-print but up-to-date Commission reports.

In 1977, the Commission returned to seeking contributions from State and local governments. The States are responding positively and a goal of $100,000 has been established for 1980.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) is a non-Federal agency established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The Authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and construct the Metro-rail rapid transit system and to operate the bus/rail transit system in the National Capital area. The rail system extends from a central distributor system in the District of Columbia into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia.

Rail capital construction grants and operating assistance grants to the WMATA are funded through the budget for the Department of Transportation. This WMATA account provides the annual Federal share of interest payments on outstanding WMATA bonds sold in support of the rail construction program. The WMATA bonds totaling $997 million are guaranteed by the Federal government. In September, 1979, the WMATA and the Department of Transportation approved an Initial Bond Participation Agreement providing for an overall two-thirds Federal and one-third local sharing of the interest and principal costs of the bonds. Additional Federal assistance not to exceed 85% of the annual interest cost may be advanced through July 1, 1982, but funds advanced in excess of the two-thirds Federal share during this period must be repaid to the Federal Government by WMATA no later than January 1, 1993, with interest. The Agreement requires the WMATA to establish a sinking fund and bond interest payment fund and develop other appropriate funding arrangements to meet fully and expeditiously its obligations under the terms of the Agreement. This includes the provision of stable and reliable sources of revenues by the State and local jurisdictions which constitute WMATA to cover their obligations to that Authority. Under the terms of the Agreement WMATA is to become the designated recipient of Federal formula grants now given to the State and local jurisdictions so that, in the event WMATA is unable to meet its scheduled payments to the sinking fund or bond interest fund, the Federal Government can withhold formula grant funds to protect its obligation to guarantee payment on the bonds. Furthermore, the Federal Government is entitled to withhold further rail capital construction grants to WMATA if WMATA fails to meet its financial obligations under the terms of the Agreement. The 1981 request represents the total Federal share under the terms of the Agreement.

The comparable amounts are: 1979, $595 thousand; 1980, $716 thousand. Excludes $5,628 thousand in 1981 for activities transferred to: Acquisition, operation, and maintenance of buildings abroad, State. Comparable amounts for 1979, $4,331 thousand, and for 1980, $4,937 thousand, are included above.

The International Communication Agency conducts the international communication, educational, cultural and exchange programs of the United States. The Agency advises the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of State on the above areas, and assists in the development and execution of a national policy on international communications.

Agency operations are largely financed from this appropriation, and the related special foreign currency appropriation, and consist of the following major elements:

1. Overseas missions.—The Agency operates 202 posts in 125 countries. These posts administer the exchange-of-persons program and conduct informational and other cultural programs using materials prepared locally and by the media services in Washington.

2. Broadcasting service.—This Service, better known as the Voice of America, produces radio broadcasts in English and in 38 foreign languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at three domestic and eight overseas locations. This Service also supplies the overseas missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations.

3. Educational and cultural affairs.—This activity covers educational and cultural exchanges between the United States and approximately 150 countries and support for binational centers and U.S.-operated libraries and reading rooms abroad.

4. Program coordination, production, and support.—This activity serves primarily to support overseas missions by coordinating program planning and by producing, acquiring, and adapting various program materials for their use.

5. Agency direction and management.—This activity encompasses managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions for the Agency as a whole.

The 1981 request for the Salaries and expenses appropriation totals $429,184 thousand, an increase of $26,067 thousand over the enacted and pending 1980 appropriation. This increase will maintain Agency programs essentially at current levels. Added operating costs, principally overseas employee wage-scales and inflationary increases for goods and other services, are estimated at $23,415 thousand. The remaining increase of $2,652 thousand will provide funds for increased VOA foreign language broadcasts in Persian, Azeri, Urda, Bengali, Uzbek, and Turkish, to update and expand the Agency's data processing capability, to augment exchange-of-persons programs, to increase Foreign Service allowances, and to increase the allowances for representation abroad and entertainment in the United States.

Note.—Excludes $860 thousand in 1981 for activities transferred to Salaries and expenses. The comparable amounts for 1979, $595 thousand, and for 1980, $716 thousand, are included above.

This appropriation, together with the balances available from prior years, is used for payment of local program expenses in U.S.-owned foreign currencies in those countries where the Treasury Department has determined that the supply of such currencies is excess to the normal requirement of the U.S. Government. For 1981 these "excess currency" countries are the Arab Republic of Egypt, Burma, Guinea, India, and Pakistan. Due to a decreasing supply of Egyptian pounds, the Agency has transferred funding of Distributed Administrative Support (DAS) costs and exchange-of-persons programs to the Salaries and expenses account in 1981.

The appropriation requested in 1981 will maintain Agency programs in these five countries at essentially current levels. The net decrease of $1,772 thousand results primarily from an increase in the application of prior-year balances to programs in 1981, offset in part by projected increases in operating costs.

International educational exchange activities (special foreign currency program).—This appropriation formerly provided dollars for the purchase of foreign currencies. Since 1963, budget authority for these programs has been included in the Mutual educational and cultural exchange activities appropriation. With the organization of the International Communication Agency in 1978, budget authority for these programs was included in the new Salaries and expenses (special foreign currency program) appropriation.

Special international exhibitions (special foreign currency program).—This appropriation provided dollars for the purchase of foreign currencies. Since 1975 budget authority for these programs has been included in the Special international exhibitions appropriation, which was merged with the Salaries and expenses appropriations in 1979. Thus budget authority for these programs is now included in the new Salaries and expenses appropriation. The remaining unobligated balance of $114,000 will be transferred to Salaries and expenses in 1980 to cover part of the Agency's Pay Act needs.

Preservation of ancient Nubian monuments (special foreign currency).—This appropriation provided for grants of Egyptian pounds, excess to the requirements of the United States, to UNESCO for the preservation and removal of certain temples in Egypt and the Sudan. Grants were also made to American archeological expeditions and groups doing related research in Nubia.

Formerly, sums paid by the Republic of Finland to the United States as interest on, or principal of, the debt incurred under the Act of February 25, 1919, were credited to this account to finance programs authorized by the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 in relation to Finland. In 1976 the United States and the Republic of Finland agreed that the remaining balance of the Finnish debt would be paid to the United States and placed in a nongovernmental, binational trust fund. The annual proceeds of this nongovernmental fund are used to finance Finnish-American exchange activities.

The remaining carryover balance of $7,144 in this account will be used in 1980 to finance a portion of the costs of U.S.-Finnish exchange programs.

However, the revolving fund authority remains in effect.

* Includes capital investment as follows: 1979, $78 thousand; 1980, $255 thousand; 1981, $143 thousand.

The U.S. International Trade Commission is an independent agency created by act of Congress. The Commission's current powers and duties are provided for by the Tariff Act of 1930; the Antidumping Act, 1921, as amended; the Agricultural Adjustment Act; the Trade Expansion Act of 1962; the Trade Act of 1974; Public Law 95-630, section 1911; and the Trade Agreements Act of 1979.

The Commission conducts investigations and, where appropriate, makes determinations and recommendations, or takes action, in cases where (1) serious injury to industries may warrant increases in duties, the imposition of quotas, or the provision of adjustment assistance; (2) imports of goods sold at less than fair value may injure an industry; (3) foreign governments, organizations, or individuals, may have subsidized imports into the United States; (4) unfair methods of competition in the importation or sale of foreign articles may tend to injure an industry or restrain and monopolize trade and commerce in the United States; or (5) imports of agricultural products may materially interfere with certain programs of the Department of Agriculture. The Trade Agreements Act of 1979 will cause a significant increase in the Commission's investigative workload, beginning in January 1980.

The Trade Agreements Act of 1979 will cause a significant increase in the Commission's investigative workload, beginning in January 1980.

The Commission advises the President and the Congress as to the probable economic effect on the domestic industry and consumers of modification of duties and other barriers to trade which may be considered for inclusion in any proposed trade agreement with foreign countries.

The Commission, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce, establishes for statistical purposes an enumeration of articles imported into the United States and exported from the United States, and seeks to establish comparability of such statistics with statistical programs for domestic production.

The Commission also issues a publication containing U.S. tariff schedules and related matters and considers questions concerning the arrangements of such schedules and the classification of articles.

Pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974, the budget estimates for the Commission are included without revision by the President.

2. Compliance and enforcement.—This program ensures that regulated carriers are in compliance with the Interstate Commerce Act and related statutes. Programmatic goals in 1981 will focus on anticompetitive behavior and protecting those who are victims of this type of behavior including owner-operators and household goods shippers.

Programmatic goals for 1981 include increasing public education programs and contacts; enhancing the Commission's capacity to respond to complaints; and assuring that the public interest is fully represented in the numerous policy-oriented rulemakings and legislative proposals that are anticipated.

4. Planning and analysis.—This program encompasses all operational elements of the Commission involved in long-range planning, policy development, and economic research. Programmatic focus for 1981 is on regulatory reform.

The Commission is authorized, if a railroad ceases operations due to a cash shortage or a court order, to direct other railroads to operate the services of the railroad which ceased its operations. The directed carriers are reimbursed for the losses incurred and are paid a 6% profit on the operations performed. This authority is limited to a 240-day period, consisting of a 60-day authority and the ability to extend the order for an additional 180 days. In 1980, funds are being spent to continue interim rail operations on the lines of the bankrupt Rock Island and Milwaukee Railroads.

The Legal Services Corporation was established in 1974 as a private, nonprofit corporation to provide civil legal assistance to the poor. Federal funding for legal services has expanded rapidly, growing from $71.5 million in 1975 to $300 million in 1980 for the Corporation. Other Federal programs, including title XX (Social Services) of the Social Security Act, the Older Americans Act, and General Revenue Sharing, will also provide a significant amount of funding for the legal services in 1980 and 1981.

The Administration proposes increasing direct legal services grants from $268 million in 1980 to $284 million in 1981. This continues full Corporation support for 360 existing local programs with about 7,000 attorneys and 3,000 paralegals, and adjusts for higher costs which grantees may incur in 1981. These increases would be distributed according to local needs, availability of other legal services resources, grantee performance, and other criteria to be established by the Corporation.

The Administration also proposes $3.5 million for special demonstration projects for legal services to institutionalized persons; increased training for new lawyers and paralegals; and word processing equipment and computerized legal research which can increase grantee productivity.

The overall legal services effort depends on fulfillment of private attorney obligations to assist the poor through pro bono publico services. The American Bar Association Code of Professional Responsibility states that:

The basic responsibility for providing legal services for those unable to pay ultimately rests upon the individual lawyer, and personal involvement in the problems of the disadvantaged can be one of the most rewarding experiences in the life of a lawyer. Every lawyer, regardless of professional prominence or professional workload, should find time to participate in serving the disadvantaged.

The 460,000 attorneys in the United States represent a large potential resource for legal services. The Administration proposes $2 million to be available for new legal services activities involving the private bar, such as added Corporation staff to coordinate pro bono publico services, and research projects and technical assistance to demonstrate ways to fulfill attorney commitments.

In accordance with the Legal Services Corporation Act, the Corporation directly submits a budget request to the Congress. The Corporation has advised OMB that they expect to request new budget authority of $353 million in 1981.

Federal credit unions are privately owned, cooperative associations organized for the purpose of promoting thrift among their members and creating a source of credit for provident or productive purposes, authorized by the Federal Credit Union Act of 1934, as amended.

The Administration's activities consist of: (a) chartering new Federal credit unions, (b) supervising established Federal credit unions, (c) making periodic examinations of their financial condition and operating practices, and (d) providing administrative services. Data relating to activities are shown below.

Item	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of Federal credit unions chartered	327	315	337
Number of operating Federal credit unions	12,759	12,809	12,859
Assets of Federal credit unions as of December 31 of the previous calendar year (in millions)	34,760	37,875	41,170

In 1980, the Administration will implement the Community Development Credit Union program. This program involves the establishment of Community Development Credit Unions that will primarily serve the needs of the members, within the context of the community, by coordinating assistance from other Federal, State, and local agencies. In addition to basic savings and credit services, these credit unions will provide auxiliary services such as credit counseling and consumer education. They will emphasize community development needs such as housing, employment, and small business. This program is part of the President's urban policy program to develop and revitalize the Nation's cities and neighborhoods.

The National Credit Union Administration will administer the Community Development Credit Union Program and coordinate with the Community Services Administration in providing funding to newly chartered community development credit unions. A $6 million revolving loan fund in the Community Services Administration is available to provide support for newly chartered community development credit unions.

Operating results.—Fees from receipts cover the cost of operations. Retained income is expected to be $1,032 thousand by September 30, 1981.

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970.

Budget program.—The activities consist of: (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, and (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of solvent and insolvent, insured credit unions.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Number of insured credit unions.....	17,443	18,000	18,241
Number of insured member accounts (thousands)...	32,363	33,595	34,992
Shares of insured member institutions as of Dec. 31 of the previous calendar year (in millions of dollars).....	48,240	52,505	57,050

It is estimated that approximately 5,382 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 1981.

Financing.—Each insured credit union is required to pay a normal premium of one-twelfth of 1% of the total amount of its member accounts. The insurance fund is structured to be self-supporting through the insurance premiums which are paid by member credit unions. The estimated premiums of $42,866 thousand in 1981 are expected to cover all insurance claims and provide for an increase in the fund balance. This will be held in Government interest-bearing securities as an insurance reserve. The fund has $100 million in borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies. The authority to borrow from the Treasury has never been used and probably will not be exercised in 1980 or 1981.

Operating results.—Anticipated net income of $38,502 thousand will be retained in the fund, raising the balance for unforeseen emergencies to $225 million by the end of 1981.

The National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility was established under Public Law 95-630. It began operations on October 1, 1979. The Central Liquidity Facility provides loans to member credit unions for seasonal and emergency needs.

The two primary sources of funds for the Facility are the stock subscriptions from credit unions and borrowings from the Federal Financing Bank. Credit unions, which choose to become members of the Facility, are required to purchase stock equal to one-half of 1% of their assets. One-half of the subscription in stock is forwarded to the Facility and deposited in the fund. The remaining half of the subscription remains on call in the credit union in investments as approved by the NCUA Board.

The Facility may borrow funds from the Federal Financing Bank to relend to member credit unions. This amount of borrowings is limited to twelve times the amount of capital stock subscriptions by the authorizing statute (Public Law 95-630). The amount has been further limited by the appropriation act to $300 million in 1980. In 1981, an appropriation limitation on borrowing of $600 million is proposed, of which $300 million in borrowing is expected to be outstanding at the end of the year.

The Facility estimates that a cumulative total of $2.2 billion in direct loans will be made to member credit unions to meet liquidity demands during 1981. The appropriation limitation on direct loans is proposed at a higher level, $4.4 billion, in order to provide for anticipated emergency liquidity needs.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Case intake in 1979 was 41,252 unfair labor practice cases and 13,648 representation cases. Estimates for unfair labor practice cases are 44,739 for 1980 and 46,905 for 1981. Representation case estimates are 14,672 for 1980 and 14,819 for 1981.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petition for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Over 87% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 84% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases, and the avoidance of litigation.

2. Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions. In 1979 there were 1,222 hearings closed, 27 proceedings adjusted after close of hearing, and 1,189 decisions issued. The estimate for 1980 is for 1,476 hearings to be closed, 29 adjusted after hearing, and 1,479 decisions. The estimate for 1981 is for 1,694 hearings to be closed, 35 adjusted after hearing, and 1,647 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 28% of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder with exceptions filed requires contested Board decisions. In 1979, 1,185 such Board decisions were issued; the estimates for 1980 and 1981 are 1,399 and 1,532 respectively. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. In 1979 regional directors issued 2,027 such decisions; and the estimate is 2,166 for 1980 and 2,188 in 1981. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. In 1979 the Board issued 150 representation decisions; the estimates for 1980 and 1981 are 195 and 205 respectively. The Board also ruled on 497 objection and challenge questions in election cases in 1979; it is estimated that 542 such rulings will be required in 1980 and 581 in 1981.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the appellate courts to enforce its decisions. In 1979 a total of 484 Board decisions of all kinds required such litigation; the estimate for 1980 is 525, and for 1981 it is 590.

1. Mediator services.—The Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 650 rail and air carriers and approximately 800,000 employees in the two industries.

The Board also provides technical assistance to enable labor and industry representatives to explore informally the relevant economic and noneconomic problems that condition collective bargaining in the railroad and airline industries.

2. Voluntary arbitration and emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their disputes through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which threaten seriously to interrupt service, may appoint an emergency board to investigate and report on the disputes. Such reports usually serve as a basis for resolving the disputes.

The major research program activities of the Foundation are:

1. Mathematical and physical sciences.—This activity provides support for research projects directed at increasing understanding of natural laws and phenomena. Major research efforts are supported in mathematics, computer science, physics, chemistry, and materials.

2. Astronomical, atmospheric, Earth, and ocean sciences.—The general objectives of this activity are to gain new knowledge in astronomical and atmospheric sciences over the entire spectrum of physical phenomena; to better understand the physical and chemical makeup of the Earth and its geologic history; and to increase understanding of the oceans, their composition, structure, behavior, and resources. The Foundation provides the bulk of funding for the cost of operating and maintaining the academic research fleet, supports six national research centers, five for astronomy and one for atmospheric sciences. These centers provide specialized facilities, equipment, staffing, and operational support which are beyond the capability of most individual educational or research institutions.

3. U.S. Antarctic program.—The Foundation provides overall management for the U.S. program in the Antarctic and supports a multidisciplinary research program on global weather and climate, renewable and nonrenewable resources, and the physical and biological characteristics of Antarctica and its surrounding seas.

This activity is the sole expression of U.S. interest and presence in Antarctica.

4. Ocean drilling programs.—1981 will be the first year of a new multi-year scientific program of ocean margin drilling. The OMD's early years will be devoted to preparations for the technologically advanced drilling that is planned. This program will succeed the Foundation's deep sea drilling program for which 1981 is proposed to be the final year of drilling.

5. Biological, behavioral, and social sciences. The biological, behavioral, and social sciences activity consists of four major programs: Physiology, cellular, and molecular biology; behavioral and neural sciences; social and economic sciences; and environmental biology. This activity aims to supply new ideas, options, and opportunities that may help resolve ecological, agriculture, productivity, and human resource problems. Emphasis is centered on plant science research, plant/animal interactions, management behavior and processes, and the search for human origins.

6. Engineering and applied sciences.—This activity supports research in engineering principles and in strengthening the coupling between basic and applied research and the use of science and technology in solving selected national problems.

7. Scientific, technological, and international affairs.—This activity includes research and other efforts aimed at enhancing U.S. science through international cooperative science and technology programs, improving science information transfer, and providing science and technology policy research and assessment. The programs in this area include the collection and analysis of information on funding of research and development and on scientific and engineering manpower.

8. Cross-directorate programs.—This activity addresses a wide range of needs of the scientific community—from support of individual scientists and institutions to regionally focused projects. In general, cross-directorate programs represent several basic and applied research activities that cut across fields of science, to provide research equipment to small colleges and to stimulate cooperative projects among universities and industry.

9. Program development and management.—This activity provides for the operation, support, management, and direction of all NSF programs and activities and includes necessary funds to develop, manage, and coordinate these program activities.

The special foreign currency program utilizes U.S.-owned excess currencies in certain foreign countries to support cooperative scientific projects, seminars, and the travel of U.S. and foreign scientists involved in mutually beneficial efforts. In addition, support is provided for the translation, publication, and dissemination of foreign scientific and technical information considered to be of interest to the U.S. scientific community. The Foundation awards grants to both U.S. and foreign institutions and scientists. Payments for this program are made in foreign currencies which the Department of the Treasury determines to be excess to the requirements of the United States.

One of the Foundation's key objectives is the initiation and support of programs to strengthen science education at all educational levels.

The 1981 science education program activity is organized as four subactivities:

1. Scientific personnel improvement.—Encouraging the highest quality standards in students and institutions by providing support for fellowships, traineeships, and other student-oriented activities, and by increasing the entry into the sciences of talented women, minorities, and the handicapped who have been historically underrepresented in these fields.

2. Science education resources improvement.—Strengthening the capabilities of schools, colleges, and universities for science education and research training; and stimulating the incorporation of validated knowledge and instructional strategies in science teaching.

3. Science education development and research.—Developing technologies, instructional methods, and course materials relevant to the teaching and learning of science.

4. Science and society.—Increasing public understanding of science and technology and their role in meeting national needs; increasing understanding of the interrelationships between scientific priorities and policies and the ethical and human values of society; increasing both the amount and quality of communication between the scientific community and the public; and increasing the use of science by the public.

The National Transportation Safety Board, as an independent agency, is charged with promoting transportation safety through the investigation of accidents, the conduct of special studies, the development of recommendations to prevent accidents, the evaluation of the effectiveness of other Government agencies in preventing transportation accidents, and the review of appeals on actions taken against transportation certificates and licenses.

1. Policy and direction.—Increase by 3 to 5 percent the overall effectiveness of the Board through increased productivity and resource management. Expedite the response time on Board safety recommendations and improve transportation safety in seven safety objective areas.

2. Accident investigation.—Given the expected 1981 accident rate, fifty-nine major transportation accident reports will be issued to the public within 120 days of the date of the accident. An estimated 594 safety recommendations will be issued and 1,880 field accident investigations will be conducted.

3. Technology.—In 1981, an estimated 495 factual/analytical reports will be issued, technical support will be provided to 768 field accident investigations, and 10 special studies will be conducted. The additional resources will be used to develop and operate an improved accident data system, support the increased complexity in the Nation's aviation system, and upgrade the Board's laboratory to maintain state-of-the-art capability.

5. Administration.—In 1981, work saving technological improvements will be implemented in administrative systems, and resources will be reallocated, where possible, to mission programs. Performance contracts will be established between employees and supervisors to provide incentive for more effective work. Resources will be provided to meet both the programed and unprogramed needs of the Board.

6. Administrative law judges.—Hold approximately 365 hearings annually and complete all appeal cases in aviation and marine from hearing to decision within an average of 120 days from their filing date. Maintain a ratio between oral decisions and written decisions of three to one. Dispose of emergency appeals within 60 days of their receipt.

Standards development.—Standards Development produces regulations and other standards needed to carry out NRC's regulatory mission in the regulation of nuclear reactors and nuclear material safety and safeguards. During 1981, the standards development effort will be directed at: developing detailed supporting standards to complement the broad performance requirements that are in place; developing new standards to reflect needs identified in the licensing and inspection and enforcement processes; and updating standards to reflect experience from plant operation, research results, feedback from users of standards, advances in technology and improved regulatory practices. In 1981, these efforts will relate to a variety of program areas including radioactive waste management; decommissioning of nuclear facilities; transportation of radioactive materials; siting, design, construction and operation of nuclear power plants; health effects of low level radiation; and continuing the review and assessment of NRC's positions in a number of regulations and guides as a result of the events at Three Mile Island.

Nuclear reactor regulation.—The assurance of adequate safety and environmental protection for nuclear power plants will continue to be the primary objective of this program. A major objective associated with this activity will be to continue implementation of the recommendations of the various TMI investigative groups and to work toward the elimination of the excess backlog of operating reactor actions (defined as more than ten actions per operating reactor) by the end of 1984. In addition, NRR will continue to apply increased efforts to improve the competency of nuclear power plant operators. Minimizing licensing time through employment of standard review plans, resolution of generic technical problems, standardized plant designs, and increased organizational efficiencies will continue as a major objective in 1981.

Inspection and enforcement.—The mission of inspection and enforcement is to insure, primarily by field inspection, investigation and enforcement that facilities and materials under NRC jurisdiction are constructed, operated and used in a manner which protects the public and the environment. In 1981, the resident inspection program (initiated in 1978) will be significantly expanded. Under this expanded program, sites with operating and preoperational reactors will have as many resident inspectors as there are reactors in these phases, with a minimum of two residents at each such site. Resident inspector coverage at reactor construction sites will also be expanded in 1981. New initiatives will be undertaken in the fuel facilities and materials safety program to allow earlier inspections of new materials licensees; more frequent contact with low-risk materials licensees; and to expand radiation protection, radioactive waste processing and environmental monitoring capabilities. The Safeguards program will continue as in 1980 plus provide additional support to the timely implementation of the US/IAEA safeguards agreement. The NRC operations center will be expanded and improved to increase its response capability in the event of possible future nuclear accidents or safeguards threats.

Nuclear material safety and safeguards.—As established by the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974, the principal functions of the Office of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards are to regulate nuclear fuel cycle facilities and materials, the transport and handling associated with nuclear materials and the safeguards for reactors to assure the protection of the public health and safety and the environment. During 1981, the Waste Management program will continue work on fulfilling NRC's licensing responsibilities pertaining to the national program of developing a high level waste repository by completing site performance work for site characterization reviews in domed salt, br salt and bedded salt with work commencing in granite and shale. In low level waste, work will continue on the regulation for shallow land burial. Uranium recovery licensing effort will increase as a result of additional assistance to Agreement States and requests for licensing actions to bring operating mills into compliance with EPA radiation standards. Fuel cycle and material licensing requirements will be broadened to include as low as reasonably achievable (ALARA) occupational exposure levels and other exposure standards. Work will continue on detailed fuel cycle and materials accident assessments and on development of radiological contingency plans. The importance on this effort was shown in 1979 during the Three Mile Island accident. Safeguards emphasis will increase on improving the timeliness, sensitivity and dependability of licenses material control and accounting systems to detect the diversion of material. Licensees' physical security safeguards will be assessed to assure compliance with the upgrade requirements established in 1980.

Nuclear regulatory research.—The 1981 research program for NRC will continue to be broadly-based in response to the issues raised or reemphasized by the Three Mile Island accident. Implementation of this program will be accomplished by both short term additional effort and long term reorientation primarily in the large LOCA and related programs to emphasize work on small LOCA and transients events. During 1981, research to improve reactor safety will be devoted primarily to critical studies to improve in-plant accident response and to evaluate alternate containment concepts and decay heat removal systems to support development of relevant safety requirements and criteria. The 1981 risk assessment program will be redirected and expanded to evaluate accident sequences which may lead to severely damaged cores and to examine operating reactors using quantitative risk assessment methods to assess the integrated safety of overall reactors. This effort will also include analysis of equipment failure data, waste isolation studies and research to enable NRC to better define acceptable risk criteria. Research in primary system integrity, seismic and reactor environment areas will be conducted to provide rational bases for NRC decisions regarding the vulnerability of nuclear facilities to earthquakes, tornadoes, floods and other external and internal phenomena under normal or plant accident conditions. Further research will be carried out on the structural integrity of LWR primary system pressure boundary, including pressure vessels, piping and steam generators. NRC will increase its waste management research on a broad scale to help provide timely regulatory guidance to potential licensees, and to furnish the technical bases for licensing and regulation and inspection of waste disposal sites. The advanced reactor safety research program (fast breeder reactors and advanced convertors) will be phased out by the end of 1981.

The Office of the Federal Inspector for the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System was created pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1979, and formally established on July 1, 1979, by Executive Order No. 12142. The broad mission of the Agency is to oversee the construction and initial operation of a 4,748-mile, joint U.S.-Canadian pipeline system to transport Alaska natural gas from Prudhoe Bay to the Chicago and San Francisco areas in the lower 48 States. Specifically, the Federal Inspector is charged with reviewing project sponsor designs and cost estimates to ensure safe and efficient construction practices; coordinating and expediting the issuance of all Federal permits and authorizations; and enforcing all Federal statutes relevant to the construction project, including those related to environmental protection.

The budget for the agency supports four major activities:

1. Permits and compliance.—The Office coordinates and expedites applications for and issuance of Federal permits authorizing the project sponsors to build the pipeline, and enforces Federal regulations.

2. Audit and cost control.—The Office audits expenditures incurred by project sponsors. In 1981, efforts will be focused on auditing the costs of constructing the Northern Border segment, establishing and testing procedures and systems, and ensuring that all schedules, estimates, and related information are updated in preparation for the Alaska segment of construction.

3. Environmental review.—The Office analyzes project design and reviews construction in order to protect the environment and to comply with all applicable environmental regulations.

4. Engineering review.—This activity includes review of cost estimates, quality control programs, engineering and construction plans and designs, and development of standards and guidelines.

The Office of Personnel Management conducts full field security investigations for other departments and agencies, performs training activities and miscellaneous services for Federal agencies and State and local governments and tests inductee candidates for the Department of Defense on a reimbursable basis.

Budget program.—In 1981 workloads are expected to increase in investigations while testing for DOD and training will remain equal to 1980 levels.

Operating results and financing condition.—The appropriated capital of the fund consists of $5 million. Since 1972, the first year of this level, the operations of the revolving fund have grown significantly in response to customer demand. To maintain an adequate cash balance in the fund, retained earnings will be increased during 1980 and 1981 by increasing the billing rates for the investigations program and adjusting various training course rates. Both receivables and work in process will increase as a result of the new workload of DOD testing.

This Joint grants management fund allows State and local governments and nonprofit organizations to better utilize Federal assistance by drawing upon resources from more than one Federal program. The Office of Personnel Management is working with other agencies, primarily the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Health and Human Services, to fund joint projects which involve activities eligible for support from each agency. The programs address local government employee training, community development and improvements in university programs. By pooling resources, agencies are able to increase the effect of limited assistance funds.

The fund finances the cost of health benefits for: (1) active employees, (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors, (3) those annuitants transferred from the Retired Federal employees health benefits program as authorized by Public Law 93-246, and (4) the related expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Active employees.....	2,364,000	2,387,000	2,412,000
Annuitants.....	1,145,000	1,219,000	1,295,000
Total.....	3,509,000	3,606,000	3,707,000

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, 1% is added to the rates developed by health benefit carriers, for administrative expense, and 3% is added for a contingency reserve held by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for each carrier. The OPM is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

For Postal Service employees, the Government's contribution to the health benefits premiums is 75% of the current unweighted average of the high option premiums of six large plans. For general schedule and wage-board employees, the Government's contribution is 60%.

Financing.—The fund is financed by: (1) withholdings from active employees and annuitants; (2) agency contributions for active employees, appropriated to agencies; and (3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to the Office of Personnel Management.

Operating results.—Funds advanced to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods. The contingency reserves are retained by the Office of Personnel Management and paid to carriers, as necessary, to defray future rate increases or to provide increased benefits.

This fund finances insurance premiums paid to private insurance companies for Federal employees group life insurance and expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program. Separate cost data is maintained for employees regular group life insurance and insurance for members of former beneficial associations.

Budget program.—The status of the basic (regular and optional) life insurance program on September 30 is as follows:

Life insurance in force (in billions of dollars):	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
On active employees ¹	57.6	61.0	60.9

Annuitants.....	1,089	1,133	1,177
Total.....	3,447	3,482	3,518

¹ Excludes equal amount of accidental death and dismemberment insurance.

Financing.—For non-Postal Service employees' premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding 25½ cents biweekly from the salaries of employees for each $1 thousand of life insurance and a 50% matching by employer-agencies. The optional program is financed by withholding from employees' salaries or retirees' annuities. The beneficial association program is financed by direct collection from members. Most of the difference between receipt and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. The status of reserves at the end of the year is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Held in special contingency reserves:	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
By basic program insurer.....	50	50	50

Held in trust by U.S. Treasury.....	3,326	3,685	4,059
Total reserves.....	3,377	3,736	4,110

The carrier held contingency reserve for the basic program was reduced to $50 million as of June 30, 1976, and it is expected to remain at this level in subsequent years. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Employees life insurance fund. The operations of the insurer for the regular and optional life insurance program to the end of each year follow (in millions of dollars):

Legislation has been proposed to redesign the Federal employees group life insurance program by: (1) Authorizing two employee-pay-all options for additional coverage; (2) modifying the schedule of regular benefits for younger enrollees; (3) establishing a minimum length of program participation in lieu of length-of-service requirement; and (4) requiring retirees to continue regular payments until age 65.

This fund, created by the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act, finances: (1) the cost of health benefits for retired employees and survivors who enroll in the Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; (2) the contribution to retired employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and (3) expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program.

Budget program.—The fund is available without fiscal year limitation. Amounts contributed by the Government shall be paid into the fund from annual appropriations. Numbers of participants at the end of the fiscal year are as follows:

	1979 actual	1980 estimate	1981 estimate

Private plans.....	72,371	67,442	63,328
Total.....	97,007	91,033	85,621

Financing.—The fund is financed by contributions from those participants enrolled in the Government-sponsored plan and by Government contributions. The special contingency reserve with the carrier of the uniform plan is currently limited to $978 thousand at the end of the policy year. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the retired employees health benefits program.

Operating results.—There will be an estimated $1 million contingency reserve in the fund at the end of 1981 as compared with an estimated $3 million in 1980. Withholdings from the annuitants have been increased as well as the Government's contribution. Also, the participants are being encouraged to enroll in the Federal employees health benefits program through an open season.

The Panama Canal Act of 1979 designates the Panama Canal Commission as the successor agency to the Panama Canal Company and Canal Zone Government. The primary purpose of the Panama Canal Commission is to operate and maintain the interoceanic waterway. The Commission is expected to be financially self-sufficient in its operations and to make payments to the Republic of Panama as specified in the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977. The unexpended balance of the accounts of the predecessor agencies were returned into the U.S. Treasury concurrent with cessation of those activities. Appropriations for the purposes of liquidation of predecessor obligations were included in the 1980 program. The following budget programs reflect operations of the Panama Canal Commission for 1980 and 1981.

Budget program —Transit operations.—The services performed by this activity are (in thousands of dollars):

	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Maintenance of channels and harbors.....	36,852	38,536
Navigation service and control.....	54,093	59,395
Lock operations.....	37,531	41,093
General repairs, engineering, and maintenance services.....	35,606	39,788
Security and protection services.....	17,516	18,249
Industrial health and sanitation.....	2,584	2,811
Public service payments to Panama.....	10,000	10,000
Annuity payments to Panama.....	10,000	10,000
General canal expense.....	78,604	73,940
Total operating costs.....	282,786	293,812

Less intra-agency recoveries.....	-41,516	-44,242
Net operating costs.....	241,270	249,570

Payments to Panama are for certain public services to be provided by Panama, a fixed annuity of $10 million, and an annuity based on net tonnage of vessels passing through the canal. These payments are prescribed in paragraph 5 of article III and paragraphs 4(a) and 4(b) of article XIII of the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977.

Pursuant to article XIII4(c) of the Treaty, Panama will receive an additional amount of up to $10 million per year, to be paid out of Canal operating revenues to the extent that such revenues exceed expenditures of the Panama Canal Commission including amounts indicated in article III(5) and article XIII4 (a) and (b). In the event that Canal operating revenues do not produce a surplus sufficient to cover this payment, the unpaid balance is to be paid from operating surpluses in future years. This $10 million contingent payment is not considered a cost for inclusion in the toll base, with payment dependent upon the generation of revenue in excess of requirements.

Commercial vessel traffic volume and other indices of workload are as follows:

	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Ship transits (over 300 net Panama Canal tons)	13,765	14,030
Tolls.....	$299,638	$313,940

Capital expenditures for 1981 total $17.6 million and provide for such projects as an additional tugboat; dump scows; construction of a tie-up station; addition and replacement of equipment; and installation of chamber lighting for the locks.

Supporting services.—The services performed by these support activities are (in thousands of dollars):

	1980 estimate	1981 estimate
Supply and logistical services.....	42,114	42,899
Utilities.....	39,067	44,446
Other supporting services.....	15,869	16,924
Total operating costs.....	97,050	104,269
Less intra-agency recoveries.....	-47,246	-48,602
Net operating costs.....	49,804	55,667

Capital expenditures for 1981 total $5.4 million and provide for such projects as utility system improvements, replacement of vehicles and water system improvements.

Administrative and general expense.—This category of expense includes the overall direction and administrative expenses; the costs of the Commission's employee health benefits program; early retirement costs, the annuitant welfare program; death and disability payments; and the cost of health and education services provided to its employees and dependents at Department of Defense facilities. Also included is the interest payment on the investment of the U.S. Government in the Canal. The interest is paid into the Treasury and serves to reduce the investment of the Government in the Canal.

Financing.—The Panama Canal Commission is a self-sustaining entity. The operation of the Canal is conducted on a commercial basis with revenues derived from tolls collected from vessels and other essential supporting services. The operating expenses are funded by appropriations with revenues going into the U.S. Treasury.

A break-even situation is forecasted for 1980 after implementation of a 29.3% toll rate increase on October 1, 1979. The additional revenues resulting from the toll increase and a modest increase in workload is expected to cover the operating expenses in 1981.

FEDERAL WINDFALL PAYMENT TO RAILROAD RETIREMENT [TRUST FUND] ACCOUNT

For payment to the Railroad Retirement Account, as provided under sections 15(b) and 15(d) of the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974, [$313,000,000] $350,000,000.

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1980 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. The 1980 amounts shown below are based upon a continuing resolution (Public Law 96-123) in effect through September 30, 1980 that provides for this account at a rate consistent with the amounts that would be provided by the conference version of H.R. 4889, the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1980.

This appropriation is a Federal subsidy to the Railroad retirement account for certain costs not financed by taxes from the railroad sector.

Payment for windfall benefits.—This is the sixth request for appropriations authorized by the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 to subsidize "windfall" benefits received by persons covered by both the railroad retirement system and the social security system.

Because the social security benefit formula heavily favors persons with short periods of service, low earnings, or both, persons acquiring eligibility under both systems generally receive a disproportionate benefit.

The Railroad Retirement Act of 1974 authorized annual appropriations, on a level cost basis, from 1976 through the year 2000 to subsidize windfall benefits. When enacted in 1974, the annual appropriation was estimated at $250 million, for a total subsidy of $6.25 billion. In its 1976 triennial actuarial valuation, the Railroad Retirement Board reported a 45% increase in the annual windfall subsidy cost. In 1979, the Board reported that the original 1974 estimate had doubled to $500 million, and indicated the subsidy cost would continue to increase if there were any inflation after 1980.

The Administration, faced with increasingly large projected subsidy costs, will propose legislation to limit to $350 million annually the general taxpayers' liability to subsidize this private industry pension. The Administration is proposing in 1981 to increase the subsidy for the second time in 3 years. The $350 million subsidy appropriation request is 40% higher than the subsidy originally anticipated in the first 4 years. The level appropriated for each of the first 2 years, was $250 million and $313 million for each of the last 2 years.

The Board administers unemployment and sickness insurance and an employment service for unemployed railroad workers. Administrative expenses are financed through a permanent appropriation of 0.50% of taxable payroll. 1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Insurance payments for unemployment and sickness benefits are based on individual records of earnings and daily wage rates. The workload fluctuates according to such factors as the level of employment and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. The costs are shared on an allocated basis with the pension program. Employee accounts posted are estimated at 675,000 in 1981.

2. Processing of unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the headquarters office. Unemployment claims are projected to decline by 9% from 1980 to 1981, as indicated in the following table:

3. Processing of sickness claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters office. Sickness claims receipts are also projected to decline, as indicated in the preceding table.

4. Claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. Savings of unemployment benefits of approximately $850 thousand are expected in 1981 from the placement of approximately 1,700 claimants in jobs, 850 of which are outside of the railroad sector.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the pension program on an allocated basis.

Under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974, which radically restructured railroad retirement, beneficiaries generally receive the equivalent to a social security benefit based on a worker's railroad wages and other covered employment (designated "Tier I"), and a railroad industry pension like other private pension plans but embedded in Federal law (designated "Tier II"). One-third of the 1 million beneficiaries also receive a "windfall" benefit. Railroad workers and employers pay taxes on wages to finance: (1) retirement and disability benefits paid to primary beneficiaries and their dependents; (2) benefits to the survivors of railroad workers; and, (3) hospital insurance benefits (medicare). A Federal subsidy to the Railroad retirement account finances the windfall benefits received by individuals covered by both railroad retirement and social security. The taxes are deposited in the Railroad retirement account and invested in Government securities. The portion of the taxes associated with social security and hospital insurance benefits is transferred to the Federal old-age, survivors and disability insurance trust funds and to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund under the financial interchange provisions governing railroad retirement and social security.

Supplemental annuities are also paid to certain employees in addition to regular benefits and windfalls.

This program is financed by a tax paid by employers and deposited in the Railroad retirement supplemental account.

Income.—The income of the Railroad retirement accounts consists of taxes paid by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; annual appropriations to subsidize windfalls; and, payments from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund and the Federal disability insurance trust fund. The railroad retirement system has an annual financial interchange with social security so as to place social security in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment had been directly covered by social security.

Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Payment estimates reflect the increases in benefit rates provided by law.

Administrative expenses.—These expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on salaries and expenses).

Payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—Portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund, since payments of hospital benefits for railroad retirement beneficiaries are made from that fund.

Legislation is resubmitted to restore the solvency of the railroad industry pension fund in an equitable way. The Railroad Retirement Board's latest actuarial valuation projects that the industry pension is underfunded and its cash balances are being rapidly depleted. The industry pension could be out of funds by 1984. Under this proposal, revenues would increase annually by 2% of railroad industry payroll and prospective benefits would decrease by an amount actuarially equivalent to 2% of this payroll, thereby eliminating the actuarial deficiency. These proposals also make the railroad industry social security component more similar to social security. The proposals would:

Finance the industry pension component from the full railroad payroll and apply the social security tax to the railroad industry in the same manner as other private sector employment (increase in receipts of $273.5 million in 1981);

Prospectively apply social security rules to the initial award of disability benefits, the computation of spouse's age reduction, the treatment of 60-61-year-old widowed spouses, the use of earnings in the year of retirement, and in calculating annual cost of living increases (outlay reduction of $29.5 million in 1981);

Correct anomalies in computing: (a) spouse's maximum social security equivalent (tier I) benefits, (b) years of service by crediting only actual months of railroad service, (c) primary insurance amounts for early retirees with 30 years of railroad employment, and (d) net tier I benefits in retirement cases with an age reduction (outlay reduction of $20.3 million in 1981); and Preclude total railroad retirement benefits from exceeding pre-retirement earnings and phaseout industry pension component student benefits (outlay reduction of $20.4 million in 1981).

LIMITATION ON [SALARIES AND EXPENSES] ADMINISTRATION

For expenses necessary for the Railroad Retirement Board, [$39,730,000] $37,223,000, to be derived from the railroad retirement accounts: Provided, That $500,000 of the foregoing amount shall be apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), only to the extent necessary to process workloads not anticipated in the budget estimates and after maximum absorption of the costs of such workloads within the remainder of the foregoing limitation has been achieved: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision in law, no portion of this limitation shall be available for payments of standard level user charges pursuant to section 210(j) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended (40 U.S.C. 490(j); 45 U.S.C. 228a-r).

Note.—The regular appropriation for this account for 1980 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. The 1980 amounts shown below are based upon a continuing resolution (Public Law 96-123) in effect through September 30, 1980, that provides for this account at a rate consistent with the amounts that would be provided by the conference version of H.R. 4359, the Departments of Labor, and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1980.

The Board administers the Railroad Retirement Act which provides annuities for age and disability and benefits for survivors and dependents of railroad workers. The Board also participates in the administration of the hospital and medical insurance programs for persons covered by the Railroad Retirement Act for which it is reimbursed by the social security trust funds.

The Board also administers industry financed supplemental annuities to certain career railroad workers.

1. Maintenance of earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of benefits paid are based on individual earnings records. The workload fluctuates according to the level of employment, and rate of turnover in the railroad industry. Employee posted are estimated at 675,000 in 1981. The costs are shared with the railroad unemployment insurance program.

2. Processing applications.—This activity includes processing annuity claims under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974.

The number of persons on the rolls receiving benefit payments will decrease modestly from 1,013,171 at the end of 1979 to an estimated 1,006,000 at the end of 1980, and decrease by over 2% to 985,000 in 1981.

4. Medicare.—This activity includes the work of processing applications to establish eligibility for health and medical insurance benefits under Title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

5. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs. The Board will utilize a toll-free telephone number to assess how it may improve service to beneficiaries. The Board anticipates having such telephone service available for an extended workday.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure.—In order to insure that investors will be provided with material facts concerning securities offered for public sale, issuers who propose to offer new securities for public sale are required to file registration statements with the Commission. Issuers having total assets and security-holder populations of specified sizes are also required to furnish comparable information on a continuing basis in annual and other periodic reports and in proxy solicitation materials. Commission staff review these filings to insure full and fair disclosure and to prevent fraud and misrepresentation.

In 1981 the Selective Service System will continue to develop enhancements to improve its capability to respond rapidly and efficiently from its standby posture. These enhancements are necessary to ensure that the Selective Service System can respond to any emergency situation. These improvements are independent of registration strategy and are required in support of both pre- and post-M day registration.

1. Mobilization readiness.—This activity includes all facets of National and Regional operational planning, maintenance of a standby registration organization, data processing support, and a comprehensive training program for the Selective Service Reserve Forces. The processing procedures employed by the Emergency Military Manpower Procurement System will continue to be tested and refined to insure that it can fully satisfy the emergency manpower needs of the armed forces. This activity also includes administrative functions.

2. Reserve program.—This activity involves the preparation of the Reserve and National Guard officers for mobilization assignments in specific positions with the Selective Service System. Special focus of the program is on the exercise of the mobilization plans to ensure a high readiness capability in the event of mobilization and to ensure that these plans are concurrently revised in accordance with the System's mission requirements and the state of the art.

The Small Business Administration (SBA) counsels, assists, and protects the interest of small business, and provides aid to business firms and homeowners who have suffered losses through disasters. These efforts are conducted through the following activities:

1. Procurement assistance.—The programs under this activity are aimed at assuring that small business receives a fair share of Government procurements.

2. Management assistance.—The management assistance activity is structured to aid in the establishment, growth, and success of small businesses. Through the Small Business Institute and Small Business Development Center programs, along with counseling services, training programs, and publications, small business owner/managers are assisted in their goal of improving the management and efficiency of their businesses.

3. Finance and investment.—The salaries and related expenses for this activity are financed through this fund. However, the following programs are financed through the agency's various revolving funds. Legislation will be proposed to provide for the consolidation of five existing SBA business loan programs into a single program. This consolidated program will be sufficiently flexible to accommodate small business needs without the need for unique financing arrangements for specific client groups.

(a) Consolidated business loans.—The proposed legislation will amend the Small Business Act to consolidate all business loan programs (7(A), Handicapped Assistance, Economic Opportunity, Development Company, and Energy). This proposal will simplify agency procedures, as well as reduce public confusion concerning the understanding of SBA lending efforts. Business persons applying for SBA loans are generally not concerned with what program authorities are utilized, but rather are concerned with obtaining the necessary financing.

The establishment of the Consolidated Business Loan Program and the implementation of a policy of targeting direct loans for special purposes will enable the agency to prioritize the direct loans in accordance with the established agency objectives.

The legislative proposal will also provide for an interest rate comparable to the current market rate for comparable minorities and increase individual loan limits to $750,000.

(b) Investment company assistance and supervision.—In order to stimulate and supplement the flow of private capital to small business concerns, the SBA is authorized to (a) license, regulate, and examine small business investment companies, and (b) provide funds to such companies for financing small business firms. The program level for 1981 is estimated at $215 million.

(c) Surety bond guarantees.—In order to enable small firms to obtain bid, performance, and payment bonds that would otherwise be denied to them for financial or other reasons, the SBA is authorized to guarantee sureties against losses resulting from the breaching of such bonds by small contractors furnished bonds by sureties under provisions governing this program. SBA guarantees a portion of the loss under contracts not exceeding $1 million in amount. The program level (contracts insured) for 1981 is estimated at $1.7 billion.

(d) Pollution control equipment contract guarantees.—The purpose of this program is to alleviate the adverse impact of pollution regulations on small businesses. The agency estimates that approximately 12 taxfree bond issues will be approved in 1981 for about $50 million to assist about 225 firms in their efforts to abate pollution.

(e) Nonphysical disaster loans.—Under this activity, SBA provides loans to small firms to enable them to comply with new health and safety standards (involving changes in equipment, facilities, or methods of operation) imposed by a number of Federal statutes or conforming State laws. Similar loans are also authorized for any small firm likely to suffer substantial economic injury as a result of any international agreement limiting the development of strategic arms or the installation of strategic arms facilities, base closings and those adversely affected by the energy crisis. In addition, loans are made to businesses that suffer economic loss due to displacement by a governmental program or project. The program level for 1981 is estimated at $50 million.

(f) Reimbursable program.—SBA works with the Economic Development Administration and the Department of Commerce in servicing EDA loans on a reimbursable basis. In addition, SBA maintains a memorandum of understanding with the Department of Energy to jointly support and utilize the Centralized Computerized Procurement Source System.

4. Minority small business.—This activity provides for the formulation of policies for SBA's programs which provide assistance to minority small concerns and for evaluating agency performance and execution to carry out such policies.

The business development program assists in the establishment or expansion of minority or disadvantaged firms that have the potential to develop into viable competitive businesses in a reasonable period of time. In addition, section 7(j) (1) through (10) of the Small Business Act, as amended, provides authority to contract for professional management training and support to assist the small business entrepreneurs.

8. Advocacy.—The SBA advocacy function is responsible for the initiation, coordination, and development of the agency's position as the Government's principal advocate of small business. In addition to fostering greater awareness of the position of small business with all Federal agencies and State and local governments, the advocate maintains liaison with trade and professional organizations, develops and recommends policies to the Administrator and communicates to the small business community, news media, and the public at large. Funds of $3 million are also requested to continue work on related research activity and establishing a comprehensive statistical data base on the small business sector in the U.S. economy.

9. Women-owned business.—This activity provides business skills training, financial counseling, professional management consulting, and Federal procurement assistance to women business owners as part of the Government's program to advance women's business enterprise. The promotion of greater awareness by the business and financial communities to the potential contribution of women entrepreneurs is an additional function, which complements the development of women's business skills. This activity is also responsible for the coordination and oversight of other Government efforts for the advancement of women's business enterprise.

Financial assistance. Business loans (sec. 7(a), Small Business Act).—Funds may be loaned to business concerns that are not dominant in their fields. Such loans may be made directly or in participation with banks or other lending institutions and be of such value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. No direct loan may be made unless it is shown that a bank participation is not available, and no loan on an immediate participation basis may be made unless it is shown that a guaranteed loan is not available. Under the guaranty plan, the SBA agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default.

Business loans (sec. 7(h), Small Business Act).—The SBA provides loans to handicapped persons operating or establishing a small business, and to nonprofit organizations hiring the handicapped.

Business loans (sec. 7(i), Small Business Act).—The SBA administers a program of financial assistance to small business concerns and to qualified persons seeking to establish such concerns. The credit and collateral requirements are more flexible than those applicable to 7(a) business loans, and provision for management training is an integral part of the program.

Business loans (sec. 7(1), Small Business Act).—The SBA may approve loans to small energy-oriented firms to finance plant facilities and the acquisition of supplies and equipment needed for specified energy measures.

Development company loans.—The SBA lends funds to State and local development companies. Funds are available to State development companies for general use purposes and to State and local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land.

Consolidated business loans.—Under proposed legislation, all business lending would be provided by this new program.

Investment company assistance.—A primary function of small business investment companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital for small concerns. To encourage the formation and growth of such investment companies. The Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the SBA to purchase, or to guarantee the timely payment of all principal and interest as scheduled on debentures issued by such companies. In addition, the SBA is authorized to purchase preferred securities (shares of nonvoting stock or other securities having similar characteristics) from small business investment companies operating under authority of section 301(d) which specifies that the investment policy of such companies will be to make investments solely in small concerns owned and operated by disadvantaged persons.

Interest expense.—Interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund. The interest rate or rates applicable to each year's disbursements are determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Financing.—Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as additional capital to the extent required to carry out authorized functions. A capital appropriation of $682 million is required for 1981.

Operating results.—The fund will continue to operate at a deficit. Interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest, other expenses, and a provision for estimated loan losses. Primarily this reflects the fact that interest expense rates are greater than interest income rates. Included in the deficit of the fund is the cost differential on section 8(a) contracts. In expanding the use of the section 8(a) prime contracting authority to bring more minority firms into the Government procurement process, there are instances where program objectives justify a payment to the minority sub-

This fund finances disaster loans made pursuant to sections 7(b), 7(f), and 7(g) of the Small Business Act, as amended. Under current law, both the Farmers Home Administration in the Department of Agriculture and the SBA have authority to make emergency farm disaster loans. To remedy difficulties caused by this overlap in responsibility, legislation has been proposed to limit such authority to the Farmers Home Administration, which is better equipped to handle this program through its long experience in dealing with farmers.

Physical disaster loans.—Under this function, loans are made at favorable terms to property owners for rehabilitation of property damaged by natural disasters. In 1981, approvals are estimated at $350 million.

Nonphysical disaster loans.—Under this function, loans are made to small firms which need assistance in complying with various Federal or State statutes and regulations to small businesses which have suffered economic loss due to displacement or economic injury as a result of shortages in energy-producing materials. Estimated approvals for nonphysical disaster loans are expected to be $50 million in 1981.

Interest expense.—Interest is payable into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury on outstanding cash disbursements from the fund. The interest rate or rates applicable to each year's disbursements are determined at the beginning of the year by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Financing.—Appropriations are authorized to be made to the fund as capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions. A capital appropriation of $180 million is requested for 1981.

The lease guarantees program was designed to provide prime space for those small business firms which couldn't compete with prospective tenants with AAA ratings. This program had been incurring excessive losses and had not been an important form of assistance to small businesses. As a result, the program is limited to paying claims resulting from defaulted leases approved in prior years.

Public Law 93-386, the Small Business Amendment Act of 1974, established this fund to finance the surety bond guarantees program.

The Small Business Administration will guarantee a portion of the losses sustained by a surety company as a result of the issuance of a bid, payment, and/or performance bond to a small business concern on a contract up to $1 million.

It is estimated that surety bond guarantees will be made in connection with 27,500 contracts totaling $1.7 billion in 1981. SBA will undertake improvements in this program to reduce the high loss rates which have occurred in recent years.

The Small Business Administration may, whenever it determines that small business concerns are to be at an operational or financial disadvantage with respect to the planning, design, or installation of pollution control facilities or the financing thereof, guarantee the payment of rentals or other amounts due under qualified contracts.

It is estimated that 12 tax-free bonds for $50 million will be approved in 1981.

¹ Includes capital investment as follows: 1979, $2,988 thousand; 1980, $3,241 thousand; 1981, $6,233 thousand.

The Smithsonian Institution maintains public exhibits representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics and astronautics, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology (including living animal exhibits); acquires and preserves for reference and study purposes millions of items of scientific, cultural, and historic importance; conducts research in the natural and physical sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts; presents performances of American arts and crafts; undertakes education programs at all levels; and participates in the exchange of scientific information.

The Institution is responsible for the operation and maintenance of 10 major exhibition buildings, as well as the Museum of African Art buildings; a zoological park; a preservation and storage facility at Silver Hill, Md.; a conference center at Elkridge, Md.; two natural preserves, in Panama and on the Chesapeake Bay; an observatory on Mount Hopkins, Ariz.; and supporting administrative, laboratory, and storage areas. Visitor attendance to buildings on and off the Mall, including the National Zoological Park, is expected to total approximately 27 million in 1981.

In 1981, emphasis will be placed on the development of major, new exhibitions and program improvements in original scientific research and public education. There also will be continued attention devoted to the care and maintenance of the collections, including the provision for meeting a portion of the equipment and operating requirements of the Museum Support Center. Maintenance of the Institution's physical plant and the continued strengthening of protection and management services are emphasized as well. Resources are included to enable the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute to meet its additional responsibilities resulting from the Panama Canal Treaty, associated agreements, and Public Law 96-70, signed by the President in October 1979, to implement the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977.

The objectives of the Woodrow Wilson Center are to produce scholarship of the highest quality on subjects that matter to our civilization and to communicate that scholarship to a wider audience within and beyond Washington through publication and dialog.

The Center has chosen to fulfill these objectives through its fellowship and guest scholar program. Each year the Center conducts a major open international competition for a limited number of fellowships. The scholars themselves and the scholarly work they produce constitute the memorial to Woodrow Wilson. Virtually all of the Center's expenditures derive from the basic decision to create a resident body of fellows.

The Center is directed by its congressional statute to raise both public and private funds and indeed the Center's major objectives could not be attained by an exclusive reliance on either Federal appropriation or private contribution. The present request for a Federal appropriation for 1981 seeks minor programmatic adjustments to an institution that is largely established and already carrying out its mandate.

In addition, the Commission will conduct public hearings in various locations and surveys to determine the role and function of the social security programs. The full cost of conducting the studies and submitting the reports required by the authorizing legislation is funded by the $2.5 million appropriated in 1979.

The Tennessee Valley Authority was created in 1933 as a Government-owned corporation for the unified development of a river basin comprising parts of seven States. Its program in 1981 will be financed from three sources: (1) appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

The following table provides detailed information on programs financed by power proceeds and borrowings and programs financed by appropriations and nonpower proceeds.

Budget program—1. Natural resources.—TVA concentrates its efforts through ongoing programs in navigation, flood control, water and air quality, recreation, fisheries, wildlife development, and forest resources.

(a) Water resources.—Includes operation and continuing development of the navigation channel from Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn.

For flood control, TVA operates a system of multipurpose reservoirs to retain excessive seasonal runoff and regulate discharges at flow rates that can be accommodated by downstream channels and reservoirs. As a result, flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and its tributaries and also the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

TVA also works to enhance fisheries and aquatic ecology, manage regional water resources, and develop area rivers, streams, and lakes.

(b) Land and forest resources.—TVA conducts programs to implement new technologies and disseminate information that promote the growth and use of timber resources in the Tennessee Valley, to enhance the region's wildlife, and to continue recreation development projects.

(c) Regional environmental enhancement.—The program contains four major areas of effort: Environmental and energy education, community assistance for quality growth management, environmental protection of public lands and waters under TVA trust, and regional air quality management. Valley mapping and demonstrations of remote sensing are provided in support of these four areas as well as other TVA activities.

(d) Land Between The Lakes.—Work will continue on development of this 170,000-acre area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky Reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Reservoir.

2. Community development.—TVA provides technical assistance to communities that have special problems or wish to contribute more fully to the region's progress.

(a) Economic development.—TVA helps communities revitalize central business districts, identify new industrial sites, and train local people for greater employability and for positions of leadership. TVA also furnishes communities and industries with such support services as economic analysis and community planning.

(b) Community services.—TVA assists local governments in raising the quality of public services, improving the quality and the availability of health care, developing local flood damage prevention programs, and solving solid waste collection and disposal problems.

3. Valley agricultural development.—The Valley agricultural development program works largely through the State land-grant universities and their extension organizations to demonstrate solutions to regional agricultural problems.

4. National fertilizer development.—In its chemical and ammonia from coal facilities at the National Fertilizer Development Center in Muscle Shoals, Ala., TVA is active in three general program areas: Fertilizer research and development, fertilizer introduction, and ammonia from coal technology.

Fertilizer research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and the development of fertilizer products and processes. This work is accomplished in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant universities, and industry.

Fertilizer introduction is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant universities and the fertilizer industry. It includes controlled small-plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and nationwide education about the fertilizers being introduced. Program costs are financed from appropriations and from nonpower proceeds, the majority of which arise from the sale of experimental fertilizers to industry and farmers.

5. National energy demonstrations.—Program efforts include demonstrations in atmospheric fluidized-bed combustion, fuel cells, coal gasification, transportation, solar and biomass. The program is financed primarily by a combination of appropriated and power program funds. Funds are also available for specific projects financed by other Federal agencies, such as the Department of Energy, the Department of Transportation, and the Environmental Protection Agency, and by other sources, including the Electric Power Research Institute. Power program funds are used when benefits apply directly to TVA ratepayers.

6. Power program: Power supply and use.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power to an area of 80,000 square miles in the seven Tennessee Valley States. Income from power operations, net of interest charges and depreciation, is estimated at $300,752 thousand in 1981.

The power generating facilities presented in the capital investment table are financed from power proceeds and borrowings.

7. General services.—Operating costs for general service activities include bridge maintenance, international scientific and technical cooperation expenses, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriation funding. Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 1981 are estimated at $92,000 thousand—$72,000 thousand as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20,000 thousand as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Borrowings for the power program are expected to increase by $2,200,000 thousand during 1981.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $2,618,243 thousand during 1981. A total of $2,577,957 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $40,286 thousand is in nonpower programs. The estimate of liabilities at September 30, 1981, is $2,353,504 thousand more than the estimate at September 30, 1980. This increase reflects the proposed borrowings in 1981. Total Government equity at September 30, 1981, is estimated to be $264,739 thousand greater than that at September 1980. This change includes the requested appropriation for 1981 and the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury and the net expense of nonpower programs.

The United States Railway Association was created to prepare and implement a system plan for restructuring and rehabilitating the bankrupt railroads of the Northeast and Midwest. On April 1, 1976, railroad facilities designated by the Association were conveyed to a new operating entity called the Consolidated Rail Corporation (Conrail).

The current tasks of the Association are (a) to provide and monitor the Federal funds which are to be made available to Conrail for working capital and rehabilitation; (b) to develop alternative courses of action for Conrail and for the Government which would provide adequate rail service on a basis that will minimize future Federal involvement; and (c) to defend the reorganization which has been implemented against legal challenges filed by the estates of the reorganized railroads.

These funds have been provided for the U.S. Railway Association to purchase debentures and series A preferred stock issued by the Consolidated Rail Corporation. The Corporation utilizes these funds along with internally generated funds and funds from private sources to undertake major rehabilitation of plant and equipment and to cover losses that occur during the initial phase of operations.

The Association purchased $1 billion in Conrail debentures prior to 1978. These securities bear interest at 7.5 percent per annum and this interest is payable in Series A Preferred Stock.

Since reaching the $1 billion level, purchases of securities have been in the form of Series A Preferred Stock and these purchases amounted to $1,474 million at the end of 1979. Of the existing $3.3 billion authorization for Purchase of Conrail Securities, $185 million remains to be appropriated in 1981.

PART II

SCHEDULES OF PERMANENT POSITIONS

EXPLANATION OF SCHEDULES

Part II contains detailed schedules of permanent positions that are furnished to the Congress pursuant to the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, as amended, excluding waivers thereunder granted by the Appropriations Committees.

Most civilian employees in the Federal Government are included in one of the following pay systems: Executive level, senior executive service, general schedule, or Foreign Service. The salary ranges for the grades in each of these systems are shown in the following tables. Pay rates for wage-board positions included in the "ungraded" positions are established on the basis of prevailing rates, which vary from area to area. Salary ranges shown for executive levels, senior executive service (SES), general schedule (GS), and Foreign Service (FO, FR, or FS) are those that became effective in October 1979.

Note.—In the general schedule grades and certain other positions, the pay scales shown in the schedules may be exceeded when pay rates in the private sector for comparable occupations in one or more areas or locations are substantially above the statutory rates. In such cases, the Office of Personnel Management has authority to permit a higher entrance level (not to exceed the maximum pay step prescribed by statute) and add a corresponding number of steps above the stated pay range.

The following pages display schedules of permanent positions for each of the three branches of Government. The schedules relate to positions established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. These schedules cover all permanent positions of the organizational element(s) identified, regardless of the source from which financed, and include positions to be filled by reimbursable details to other agencies, and positions financed by allocations from other agencies.

Authorized positions that are funded as of the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time; positions abolished during the year are not counted. Each schedule contains a listing of the grades of authorized positions and the total number in each grade as illustrated below:

Grades are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, general schedule, is abbreviated "GS- ." Salary ranges are shown only when the grades are unique to a single agency or bureau (for example, physicians and nurses schedules within the Department of Medicine and Surgery, Veterans Administration) or where a grade is identified only by title. In the latter case, the title of each grade and the basic salary range is listed. Classification systems with the same salary ranges as the general schedule are so noted. A subtotal line is shown for executive level positions as well as for each separate series of positions, whenever more than one line entry is shown in these categories. Two additional lines provide for deducting the number of unfilled positions to arrive at the total employment in permanent positions at the end of the year.

PART III

SUPPLEMENTALS AND RESCISSIONS

EXPLANATION OF REQUESTS

This part contains both supplemental appropriations requests being proposed for initial congressional consideration in this budget, and pending supplemental requests. Requests for supplemental appropriations are made after enactment of regular appropriations. Information is also included on proposals to rescind budget authority.

PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTAL REQUESTS

Supplemental requests are shown as separate sections.

Section I.—Supplementals proposed in this Budget for various purposes other than increased pay costs are presented in this section and include: suggested appropriation language, the related budget schedules, and the reasons for the requests.

Section II.—Requests for pay supplementals in this section are in the form of suggested appropriation language for 1980. The amounts contained in the appropriation language also appear as separate line entries in the regular program and financing schedules in Part I.

Section III.—Several supplemental requests are pending before the Congress. The suggested appropriation language, related budget schedules, and the reasons for these requests are presented in this section.

RESCISSION PROPOSALS

Under the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), whenever the President proposes rescission of enacted appropriations, a special message must be sent to the Congress giving details of the proposal. Included in this part—for rescission proposals being made in conjunction with this Budget—are related budget schedules, references to the special message being sent to the Congress, and explanations of the proposals.

This supplemental appropriation is needed for the school lunch program, special assistance for school lunches, school breakfast program, summer feeding program, child care feeding program and commodity procurement. States may claim meal subsidies at rates which are adjusted twice yearly for changes in the Consumer Price Index component for food away from home. Commodities are granted to the States for each lunch or supper served at a guaranteed rate adjusted annually for changes in the Producer Price Index for food used in schools. Both the number of meals subsidized and the rates at which the States may claim subsidies are now projected to be larger than the original budget estimate.

This is due to unanticipated increases in food prices and to increases in the number of meals served.

This proposed supplemental is for fighting forest fires.

This proposed supplemental will provide additional funds to support substantial increases in subsidy costs for the guaranteed student loan program. These increases are due to a higher than anticipated loan volume in 1979 and 1980, resulting from increased participation in the program and increased interest rates paid to lenders. As a result of increased participation in the program, defaults also are expected to increase.

The growth of the program is attributed to recently enacted legislation that eliminated the income eligibility requirement and the 5% annual ceiling on special allowance interest rates paid to lenders on outstanding loans.

The elimination of the limitation on the amount of additional contract authority to be used for the modernization of existing low-income housing projects will facilitate the implementation of a new comprehensive modernization initiative in 1980. Under this initiative, local governments will be provided with the discretion to divert up to 50% of available Public Housing production authority for use in the modernization of the existing public housing stock.

This supplemental appropriation would provide the funds necessary to implement the legislation authorizing the settlement of the 64,000-acre claim of the Cayuga Indian Nation in upstate New York. On August 20, 1979, the tribal chiefs signed an agreement with the Governor of New York and the Departments of the Interior and Agriculture to settle the claim. It is desirable that this claim be settled prior to the running of an April 1, 1980 statute of limitations applicable to the claim. If settlement is not reached before that date, the tribe may find it necessary to file its claim in court, thereby clouding the titles of thousands of property owners.

For an additional amount for "Salaries and expenses", $1,626,000. The appropriation under this head in the Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1980, may be used for the payment of allowances (at a rate not to exceed four dollars per day) to aliens, while held in custody under the immigration laws, for work performed. The number of vehicles which may be purchased for police-type use is increased to four hundred sixty-one, of which three hundred fifty-eight shall be for replacement only.

Additional staff is necessary because the refugee settlement level has increased from 7,000 to 14,000 a month. The appropriation language is required to enable the Immigration and Naturalization Service to make payments to aliens for work they do while being held in custody under the immigration laws. This language will also provide authority for the Service to purchase an additional 103 police-type vehicles.

Legislation has been proposed to provide for establishment of the Commission in 1980 rather than 1981 so that sufficient time is available to carry out the agency's mandate.

General Provisions

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

The limitation contained in section 749 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1980, is increased to $27,000,000.

This general provision language would provide an increase in the limitation on expenditures for public affairs activities and is necessary to reflect the amounts actually appropriated for those activities for fiscal year 1980.

SHIPBUILDING AND CONVERSION, NAVY

During the current fiscal year, subject to the notification and approval procedures specified in section 734 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1980, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for "Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy" may be transferred between such appropriations or any subdivisions thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same period, as the appropriation or subdivision to which transferred.

This general provision language would permit transfers of Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy appropriations and is necessary for the orderly execution of the program.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, DEFENSE AGENCIES

Funds appropriated under this head in the Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1980, shall remain available until September 30, 1984.

This general provision language would correct a technical error in the enactment of the "Military Construction, Defense Agencies" appropriation in the Military Construction Appropriation Act for 1980.

Funds totaling $18.0 million of the $141.5 million provided for the continuation of federally funded exploratory drilling in this Reserve are proposed for rescission.

The funds proposed for rescission represent preparation costs for further Federal drilling in 1981. Instead of continued Federal exploration, the President has recommended legislation to authorize leasing this Reserve to private industry for exploration and development in order to achieve the earliest production of any commercial quantities of oil and gas.

The report on this rescission proposal, being transmitted to the Congress in a special message from the President, will be published in the Federal Register following transmittal.

PART IV

OFF-BUDGET FEDERAL ENTITIES

1123

OFF-BUDGET FEDERAL ENTITIES

Part IV contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain Federal entities that are not part of the budget totals. These budgets and statements are made available as auxiliary information.

Public Law 93-32 removed from the budget totals the governmental financing of rural electric and telephone systems administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, a wholly owned Government corporation, was established by the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, within the Department of Labor but outside the budget totals.

The Federal Financing Bank was created by the Federal Financing Bank Act of 1973 to: (1) reduce the cost of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public, and (2) assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive to private financial markets and institutions. The bank is authorized to make direct loans by making commitments to purchase and sell, and purchasing and selling on terms and conditions determined by the bank, any obligation that is issued, sold, or guaranteed by a Federal agency. The Federal Financing Bank is administered by the Department of the Treasury.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System provides its administrative budget for inclusion without further review. In conformance with its accounting system, the figures for the Board are on a calendar year basis.

The budget presentation of the Postal Service reflects its conversion to independent status consistent with the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970. The activities of the Postal Service, but not the Federal subsidy (which is reflected in Part I), are excluded from the budget totals and presented here.

The United States Railway Association, established by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, is a Government corporation. Part of the financing activities of the Association is presented here, while the administrative expenses of the Association and the purchase of Conrail securities are reflected in Part I.

The administration has proposed legislation to establish an Energy Security Corporation to encourage the production of synthetic fuels. Although the budget authority and outlays of the Corporation are off-budget, all funds provided to the Corporation will be included in the budget totals.

Note.—Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in loan guarantees. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct or loan guarantee limitation levels.

The Rural Electrification Administration conducts two capital investment programs: (1) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (2) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION AND TELEPHONE REVOLVING FUND LOAN AUTHORIZATIONS—Continued

Insured electric and telephone loans are financed from the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund (RETRF) under the authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. Insured loans bear either 2% or 5% interest in accordance with criteria as specified in the act, and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. REA also guarantees loans made by the Federal Financing Bank (FFB) and other qualified lenders at rates agreed upon by the lender and the borrower.

Insured loans from the RETRF are financed from available receipts or, when necessary, by interim Treasury borrowings. Loans made from the RETRF are held in a pool as security for certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) which are sold to investors. Through 1981, CBO's to be sold to the Federal Financing Bank are estimated to aggregate to $2,827.9 million. Credit needs of electric and telephone systems are closely related to economic conditions in rural areas. For some time the Budget and Appropriations Acts have followed the practice of providing a range in the annual loan authorization to allow for changed economic conditions following budget submission. This practice is reflected in the credit schedules. Obligations are shown in the budget at the low end of the range with absolute limits being placed in the proposed language at the upper end of the range.

1. Rural electrification.—This capital investment program is financed through REA insured loans and guarantees of loans made by other qualified lenders for the construction and operation of generating plants, electric transmission, and distribution lines or systems in rural areas.

The 1981 budget request reflects the availability of supplemental financing from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) and other sources to satisfy a part of the capital requirements of the rural electric systems.

*The proposed appropriations language provides, "... not less than $160,000,000 nor more than $220,000,000."

The Rural Telephone Bank (RTB) was established by Public Law 92-12, approved May 7, 1971, which amended the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. The RTB provides a supplemental source of financing for the REA telephone program. Public Law 92-234, approved June 30, 1972, amended the act to permit the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase the bank's debentures. This has minimized the bank's borrowing costs. The bank charges an interest rate based on the average cost of money to the bank, but not less than 5% per annum. The weighted average interest rate on cumulative loans through September 30, 1979, was 6.90. During the first quarter of 1980, loans were made at 8.0% interest.

Equity capital of the bank consists of class A stock purchased by the United States, classes B and C stock purchased by bank borrowers, organizations eligible to become borrowers and organizations controlled by borrowers, and retained earnings. The maximum borrowing authority of the bank by law is limited to 20 times its paid-in capital and retained earnings. Total available borrowing authority of the bank for 1980 is estimated at $7.1 billion. For 1981 it is estimated at $7.9 billion.

Bank loans totaled $130.8 million in 1979. After almost 8 years in operation loans to 423 borrowers have been approved, totaling over $1.207 billion. Telephone bank loans are estimated at $185 million for 1980 and $185 million for 1981.

Administrative support for the general operations of the bank are provided on a part-time basis by REA employees and the Office of the General Counsel, without cost to the bank, as provided for in the enabling legislation. Certain administrative expenses, such as expenses of the elected members of the Board of Directors, postage fees and the audit by the General Accounting Office, must be borne by the bank.

Title IV of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-406) provides for the establishment of a wholly owned Government corporation, the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. This Corporation is administered by a board of directors, the chairman being the Secretary of Labor. The Corporation's mission is to administer insurance programs to prevent the loss of pension benefits to participants if pension plans terminate and are not able to pay the insured benefits.

The act further provides that the Corporation's budget not be included in the totals of the U.S. budget; however, it is subject to the budget and related provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act.

1. Administration.—Expenses associated with this activity include the costs of executive direction, legal support, financial controls, program development and operation, and associated management and information services.

2. Benefit payments.—Terminated plans are taken over by the Corporation and a trust fund established for plans taken into trusteeship. The Corporation assumes control of the plan assets and takes responsibility for the expected plan liability. The trust pays the share of benefit payments actuarially funded by plan assets and employer liability. The balance is paid by the revolving fund.

Financing.—The Corporation is required by law to be self-supporting. Sources of financing are insurance premiums from on-going defined benefit pension plans, assets from terminated plans, investment income and employer liability. Any change in the Corporation's insurance premium rate must be approved by a joint resolution of Congress. Premium receipts are placed in revolving funds with the U.S. Treasury.

The following informational table details the status of the Corporation's trust funds.

This legislative proposal will permit the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation to provide financial assistance to insolvent multiemployer pension plans. Financial assistance to the insolvent plans would be made from the revolving fund to those plans becoming insolvent only after the plan takes a series of prescribed steps to place the plan on a sound financial basis.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created on December 29, 1973, to assure the coordination of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public and to assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive of private financial markets and institutions.

The Bank has become the vehicle through which most Federal agencies finance their programs involving the sale or placement of credit market instruments, including agency securities, guaranteed obligations, participation agreements, and the sale of assets. The major exceptions to date are Title XI ship mortgage bonds and Government National Mortgage Association asset sales.

During 1979, the Federal Financing Bank made gross loans and advances totaling $37.0 billion to Federal agencies and federally guaranteed borrowers. In the absence of the Bank, the majority of borrowers would have issued their obligations in the market at a cost significantly higher than that charged by the FFB.

The following table reflects the composition of the FFB account by agency and program (in thousands of dollars):

At the first meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank on May 23, 1974, the Board approved a policy of borrowing from the Treasury Department on an interim basis. These borrowings were to be periodically repaid by the sale of FFB securities in the market. On July 23, 1974, the Bank auctioned $1.5 billion of 244-day Federal Financing Bank bills dated July 30, which matured on March 31, 1975. In a later meeting on June 5, 1975, the Board of Directors decided that the Bank would borrow all funds from the Treasury Department matching the terms and conditions of its borrowings from the Treasury with the terms and conditions of its loans. The Bank is currently lending funds at a rate one-eighth of 1% above the new issue rate of marketable U.S. Treasury securities of similar terms and conditions.

FFB purchase of debt issued by the Student Loan Marketing Association and guaranteed by the Department of Education are included in the budget schedules on a net basis for each year. SLMA has begun to roll-over its entire loan portfolio weekly; these gross transactions are reflected below:

Net FFB outlays	530,000	670,000	-215,000

FFB lending to Federal agencies is not reflected in the budget totals because borrowing and the repayment of borrowings between Federal agencies and the Treasury are not budgetary transactions. The enabling of these agencies to borrow from the FFB rather than in the market at unnecessarily high rates was a major reason for the creation of the Bank. The extent of these FFB investments are reflected below:

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including 9 Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Decisions on changes in domestic rates of postage and fees for postal services are recommended to the Governors of the Postal Service by the independent Postal Rate Commission after a hearing on the record under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Commission also recommends decisions on changes in the domestic mail classification schedule to the Governors. Decisions of the Governors on rates of postage, fees for postal services, and mail classification are final, subject to judicial review.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) mail and services revenue, (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources, (3) proceeds from borrowing, (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments, and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

Since 1973, transactions of the Postal Service Fund and the assets and liabilities of the U.S. Postal Service no longer appear within the totals of the U.S. budget. The schedules presented here reflect summary data on postal operations.

Section 2005 of the Postal Reorganization Act authorizes borrowing authority of $10 billion with a yearly limitation of $2 billion, of which not more than $500 million may be used to cover operating expenses. As of September 30, 1981, it is expected that indebtedness outstanding pursuant to this borrowing authority will amount to $1.5 billion.

Operating.—Estimated receipts will total $19.1 billion in 1981. This includes $17.3 billion from mail and services revenue, $220.4 million from investment income, $1.6 billion from appropriations including $68.1 million to cover unfunded liabilities of the Post Office Department, and miscellaneous other income of $24.1 million.

The United States Railway Association is authorized by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act, as amended, to borrow funds and make loans to certain railroads. Borrowings by the United States Railway Association are guaranteed by the Secretary of Transportation. The aggregate of outstanding obligations of the Association are limited to $395 million at any one time. Two types of loans are currently authorized: (a) Loans related to the implementation of the system plan developed by the Association for restructuring the bankrupt railroads in the Northeast and Midwest, and (b) loans to defray obligations of the reorganized railroads which were incurred prior to the conveyance of their rail properties but which were unpaid after the conveyance to the Consolidated Rail Corporation on April 1, 1976. During the current year, the Association will utilize practically all of its present borrowing authority.

As part of its effort to reduce U.S. dependence on imported oil, legislation has been proposed to establish the Energy Security Corporation. The Corporation will assist private industry to finance the development of 1.75 million barrels of oil substitutes per day from coal, oil shale, biomass and unconventional gas by 1990. Private sector firms will plan, construct, operate and own the alternative fuel plants, but would receive financial assistance from the Corporation in the form of direct loans, loan guarantees, price guarantees and purchase agreements.

The legislation to establish the Corporation will provide that the Corporation's budget not be included in the totals of the U.S. budget. However as the Corporation requires funds to make payments to private firms, it will borrow funds from the Secretary of the Treasury and an on-budget account will be established for this purpose. As funds are provided from the Secretary of the Treasury to the Corporation, outlays will be recorded in the Federal budget.

Although the Corporation will enter into obligations of a significant amount in its early years to negotiate production contracts with private entities, it is not expected to make large cash payments until the production of synthetic fuels actually begins.

The authority required by the Corporation to enter into contracts or otherwise incur obligations will be limited by the aggregate amount of appropriated funds made available to the Secretary of the Treasury for loans to the Corporation.

5. Management services.—Provides for legal services such as patent and legislative review, internal and external auditing, procurement and personnel support, accounting and budgeting and support for board of directors.

6. Purchase of equipment.—Funds will be used for the initial purchase of equipment related to administrative operation of the Corporation.

EXPLANATION OF OTHER MATERIALS

This section includes the following material:

(a) a list of advance appropriations, as required by section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, a list of appropriations with advance funding provisions, and a list of appropriations with forward funding provisions.

(b) a statement of amendments and revisions to 1980 budget authority requests that were transmitted to the Congress after the 1980 budget but prior to the transmittal of the 1981 Budget, as required by section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS, ADVANCED FUNDING, AND FORWARD FUNDING FOR 1981

I. Advance appropriations are provided for use in a fiscal year, or more, beyond the fiscal year for which the appropriation act is passed. Advance appropriations in 1981 appropriations bills will provide funding for programs beyond 1981. Since these appropriations are not available until after 1981, the amounts will not be included in 1981 budget totals, but will be reflected in the budget totals for the fiscal year requested.

Section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) requires inclusion in the budget of "information with respect to estimates of appropriations for the next succeeding fiscal year for grants, contracts, or other payments under any program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for such succeeding fiscal year and such appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation act for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation." In fulfillment of this requirement, the table below lists those accounts authorized to receive, in 1981, advance appropriations for 1982 and later years. The listing is in two parts: Part A shows the amounts of advance appropriations included in the 1981 budget. Part B is a listing of accounts for which advance appropriations are authorized, but not requested in the 1981 budget.

A. Accounts for which advance appropriations are included in the 1981 budget:

Corporation for Public Broadcasting:

Public Broadcasting Fund, $162,000 thousand for 1981 (Public Law 96-38); $172,000 thousand pending for 1982 (H.R. 4389); $172,000 thousand requested for 1983.

District of Columbia:

Federal payment to the District of Columbia (additional authorizing legislation to be proposed), $320,000 thousand in 1982.

B. Accounts authorized to receive advance appropriations but for which none are requested in the 1981 budget:

Department of Agriculture:

Food program administration (42 U.S.C. 1752).

Food donations program (Public Law 93-29, sec. 210).

Child nutrition programs (42 U.S.C. 1752).

Department of Education (advance appropriations for education programs are authorized by 20 U.S.C. 1223):

Elementary and secondary education.

Indian education.

School assistance in federally affected areas.

Equal educational opportunities.

Libraries and learning resources.

Education for the handicapped.

Vocational rehabilitation.

Vocational and adult education.

Student financial assistance.

Higher and continuing education.

Student loan insurance.

School improvement programs.

Educational, research, and training activities overseas (special foreign currency program).

Institute of Museum Services.

Department of Health and Human Services:

Human development services (Public Law 93-644, sec. 577; Public Law 93-29, sec. 210; Public Law 93-112, sec. 4(a)).

Department of Labor:

Employment and training assistance (Public Law 95-524, sec. 112d).

Temporary Employment Assistance (Public Law 95-524, sec. 112d).

Department of Transportation:

Urban mass transportation fund (49 U.S.C. 1603).

Grants to the National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Public Law 96-73, sec. 122(b)(2)).

II. Advance funding is authority provided in appropriation acts to obligate and disburse funds during a fiscal year from a succeeding year's appropriation. The funds so obligated increase the budget authority for the fiscal year in which obligated and reduce the budget authority of the succeeding fiscal year. Essentially, this is a device for avoiding supplemental requests late in the fiscal year for certain entitlement programs should the appropriations for the current year prove to be too low. The table below lists those accounts for which advance funding authority is requested in the 1981 budget.

Department of Health and Human Services:

Grants to states for medicare.

Special benefits for disabled coal miners.

Supplementary security income program.

Assistance payments programs.

Grants to states for social services and child welfare services.

Office of the inspector general.

Department of Labor:

Federal unemployment benefits and allowances.

Special benefits.

Black lung disability trust fund.

III. Forward funding is authority provided in an appropriations act to obligate funds in one fiscal year for the financing of ongoing programs of grantees during the succeeding fiscal year. This device is often used for education programs, so that grants can be made prior to the start of the school year. The budget authority for such programs is included in the budget totals for the year in which it is appropriated. The language providing forward funding will specify that amounts appropriated will not be available until some time into the year of the appropriation (e.g., July 1, 1981) and in most cases will specify that such amounts will remain available until the end of the succeeding fiscal year. The table below lists those accounts for which forward funding is requested in the 1981 budget.

Department of Education:

Elementary and secondary education.

Libraries and learning resources.

Education for the handicapped.

Vocational and adult education.

STATEMENT OF AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR FISCAL YEAR 1980

(Between the Transmittal of the 1980 and 1981 Budgets)

A statement of all amendments to or revisions in budget authority requested between submission of the 1980 budget and the 1981 budget is presented below. This statement is being included in the budget in accord with section 201 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, as amended by section 601(g) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The modifications to requests for 1980 budget authority that were made through the course of the past year took three forms. If the Congress had not yet acted on a pending request, the President sent amendments to the January 1979, budget requests. If appropriations had been enacted, the President proposed either supplemental budget authority or rescission of enacted appropriations.

Amendments and requests for supplemental appropriations are printed in the documents of the House of Representatives and the Senate that are identified in part A of the following listing. The President's proposals for rescission are included in special messages to the Congress under the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344). Both the special messages and monthly cumulative reports on the items they cover are printed in the Federal Register.

PART B. REQUESTS FOR RESCISSION OF BUDGET AUTHORITY*

A rescission of funds provided to the International Communication Agency (R80-1) was proposed on October 1, 1979. In accordance with the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 these funds were made available for obligation on November 15, 1979. This rescission proposal was printed in the Federal Register of October 5, 1979 (Vol. 44, No. 195, Part IX). The following rescissions of 1980 budget authority are being transmitted to the Congress in connection with this budget:

Department of Health, Education, and Welfare:

Health Resources Administration ¹

Health resources (R80-2)

Department of the Interior:

Geological Survey

Exploration of national petroleum reserve in Alaska (R80-3)

Details of these proposals are printed in Part III of this volume and will be transmitted to the Congress in a special message by the President.

*The status of the single 1980 proposed rescission and the 37 1980 deferrals reported as of December 1, 1979, is shown in the cumulative report printed in the Federal Register of December 14, 1979 (Vol. 44, No. 242, Part XI). The January 1, 1980, cumulative report will be printed in the Federal Register sometime during the week of January 14, 1980.

PART VI

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

1147

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

Part VI contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain Government-sponsored enterprises. All of these enterprises were chartered by the Federal Government and are supervised by a Government agency although they are privately owned and generally privately financed. These budgets are not reviewed by the President; they are presented as submitted by the enterprises. This section includes:

- (a) Student Loan Marketing Association.
- (b) Federal National Mortgage Association.
- (c) Banks for cooperatives.
- (d) Federal intermediate credit banks.
- (e) Federal land banks.
- (f) Federal home loan banks.
- (g) Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation.

The Student Loan Marketing Association (SLMA) is a corporation, supervised by the Department of Education, to assist in financing college student loans. Proposed legislation will create the Government Student Loan Association, an on-budget entity within the Department of Education, which will assume the activities of SLMA, beginning in 1982.

The Federal National Mortgage Association is a mortgage finance corporation supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The banks for cooperatives, Federal intermediate credit banks, and Federal land banks are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration.

Both the Federal home loan banks and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation are supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

This account includes activities previously funded under the Department of Health and Human Services (formerly Health, Education, and Welfare) which have been transferred pursuant to the Department of Education Act (Public Law 96-88). Proposed legislation would create the Government Student Loan Association (GSLA) which would assume all of the Student Loan Marketing Associations functions by 1982.

The Student Loan Marketing Association (SLMA), a Government-sponsored, private corporation, was created by the Education Amendments of 1972 to expand funds available for student loans by providing liquidity to banks, educational institutions, and other lenders engaged in the Guaranteed student loan program. Legislation has been proposed that would phase out the Guaranteed student loan program in 1981 and replace it with a Supplemental loan program administered by GSLA.

To date, SLMA has provided liquidity through direct purchase of insured student loans from eligible lenders and by making warehousing advances, secured by insured student loans, to eligible lenders. Proceeds from warehousing advances are required to be invested in additional student loans.

Operations.—As of September 1979, SLMA had $612,116 thousand outstanding in warehousing advances. It is expected that volume will reach an adjusted level of $861,919 thousand by September 30, 1980, with continued activity in 1981. SLMA expects to purchase $420,216 thousand in loans in 1980, and have a net decrease of $167,942 thousand in 1981, to reach a level of $879,410 thousand as of September 30, 1981.

As of September 30, 1979, SLMA had entered into agreements to purchase during the next 216 months up to $458 million of federally and State insured student loans originated by 5 State higher education agencies and 3 financial institutions, if such loans are offered for sale. As of September 30, 1980, SLMA expects to have outstanding $350 million of such agreements to purchase.

As of September 30, 1979, SLMA had lines of credit with 3 educational institutions under which SLMA is committed for the next 12 months to make warehousing advances up to $10 million. As of September 30, 1980, SLMA expects to have nothing outstanding in such lines of credit.

SLMA is authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976 to provide a secondary market for federally insured loans to graduate health professions students.

Financing.—To obtain funds for its programs, SLMA is authorized, with the approval of the Secretary of Education and the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue its own debt obligations. The Secretary is authorized by the Education Amendments of 1972 to guarantee as to principal and interest such obligations issued prior to July 1, 1982, regardless of maturity date. As of September 30, 1979, SLMA had total outstanding debt obligations to the Federal Financing Bank of $1,275 million.

Management.—The forecast data provided for 1981 is based on the successful implementation of the President's proposals for reauthorization of the federal student loan programs now pending before Congress. Under this proposal, SLMA's secondary market activities would be assumed by a new Government Student Loan Association.

The board of directors has not yet reviewed or approved these financial estimates. Accordingly, such data should not be relied upon as the official forecast of the corporation's future business.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) is a Government-sponsored private corporation. Its purpose is to provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by supplying a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

To carry out this purpose, FNMA buys mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans' Administration or conventional mortgages, which are, under certain conditions, insured by private mortgage insurance companies.

The Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970 empowered FNMA, with the approval of the Secretary of HUD, to purchase, service, lend on the security of, and otherwise invest in conventional mortgages. FNMA acts to minimize the possible additional risk involved in purchasing conventional mortgages by applying strict qualifications to such purchases.

The authorizing statute, the Housing Act of 1954, approved August 2, 1954, originally contemplated that FNMA's secondary market operations would ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. On September 30, 1968, pursuant to the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, approved August 1, 1968, FNMA was converted to a Government-sponsored, privately-owned corporation whose expenditures and receipts are not reflected in the Federal Budget.

The common stock of the Corporation is owned by the public, is fully transferable and is listed on major stock exchanges.

The Corporation has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated obligations in an amount not in excess of twice the net equity. It may, in addition, borrow amounts not in excess of the sum of net equity and subordinated obligations outstanding multiplied by a factor established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. This factor is currently set at 25. These borrowings require the express approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Secretary of the Treasury and usually take the form of debentures and short-term discount notes. Finally, FNMA may issue securities guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association which are fully backed by pools of mortgages. There is no statutory limitation on the amount of the last-named type of obligations that may be outstanding.

For the years ended September 30, 1978 and 1979, income and retained earnings were as follows (in millions of dollars):

The 13 Banks for cooperatives are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sales of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds issued by the banks are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The banks for cooperatives presently operate under authorities contained in title III of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

The 12 Federal intermediate credit banks are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to local financing institutions such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks become mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks, from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968.

The Federal intermediate credit banks presently operate under authorities contained in title II of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

The Federal land banks, through the 520 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These banks and associations are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from the sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the land banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947.

The Federal land banks presently operate under authorities contained in title I of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

The 12 Federal Home Loan Banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions whose main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan-type institutions and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and enhance their service to the public as savings media and home-mortgage lenders. Each bank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the banks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1979, the banks extended credits of $27.7 billion and received repayments of $18.3 billion. Advances outstanding on September 30, 1979, totaled $38.6 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On September 30, 1979, $30.1 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include a portion of members' deposits as determined by Board policy (total deposits were at $8.3 billion on September 30, 1979) and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions, amounting to $4.8 billion at the end of 1979. Funds not immediately used for advances to members are invested until such times as needed.

The capital stock of the Federal home loan banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951.

The entire operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a portion of the Board's administrative and other costs.
