Budget of the United States Government

Fiscal Year 1983

THE BUDGET DOCUMENTS

Budget of the United States Government, 1983 contains the Budget Message of the President and presents an overview of the President's budget proposals. It includes explanations of spending programs in terms of national needs, agency missions, and basic programs, and an analysis of estimated receipts, including a discussion of the President's tax program. This document also contains a description of the budget system and various summary tables on the budget as a whole.

United States Budget in Brief, 1983 is designed for use by the general public. It provides a more concise, less technical overview of the 1983 Budget than the above volume. Summary and historical tables on the Federal budget and debt are also provided, together with graphic displays.

Budget of the United States Government, 1983—Appendix contains detailed information on the various appropriations and funds that comprise the budget. The Appendix contains more detailed information than any of the other budget documents. It includes for each agency: the proposed text of appropriation language, budget schedules for each account, new legislative proposals, explanations of the work to be performed and the funds needed, proposed general provisions applicable to the appropriations of entire agencies or groups of agencies, and schedules of permanent positions. Supplementals and rescission proposals for the current year are presented separately. Information is also provided on certain activities whose outlays are not part of the budget totals.

Special analyses previously published in the Special Analyses volume of the Budget may be purchased individually.

Major Themes and Additional Budget Details, a supplementary report to the budget documents, highlights the ways in which the 1983 Budget implements major themes of the President's program and describes specific programmatic changes and their effects.

Instructions for purchasing copies of any of these materials are on the last page of this volume.

GENERAL NOTES

1. All years referred to are fiscal years, unless otherwise noted.
2. Detail in the tables, text, and charts of this volume may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part I contains various tables and certain schedules in support of the budget, including explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, as well as the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item for which congressional action in an appropriation bill is required. It also contains the text of general provisions of appropriations acts, proposed for enactment by the Congress, that apply to entire agencies or groups of agencies.

ARRANGEMENT

The chapters of Part I reflect the branches of Government, and the major departments and agencies of the executive branch. Most of the smaller agencies in the executive branch are grouped in one chapter—"Other independent agencies."

Each chapter is organized by major subordinate organizations within the agency (usually bureaus) or by major program area. For each bureau or major program area, Federal funds, covering the funds that are not set aside in "trust," precede trust funds, covering moneys that are held by the Government in accounts established by law or by trust agreement for specific purposes. Within each fund group, accounts with new budget authority in 1983 generally will precede those without such an entry.

The proposed language for general provisions of appropriations acts that are applicable to the agency in that chapter appear in a separate section at the end of the chapter. General provisions that apply to specified groups of agencies are placed in the chapter covering the first agency that appears in the respective appropriations act. The general provisions that are Government-wide in scope (identified "Departments, Agencies, and Corporations"), normally contained in the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Act, are placed at the end of the Executive Office of the President chapter.

An explanation of the types of funds included in the budget may be found in Part 7 of—The Budget of the United States Government, 1983.

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1983 appropriation acts is printed following the account title. The language of the 1982 appropriation acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Brackets enclose material that is proposed for deletion; italic type indicates proposed new language. At the end of the final language paragraph, and printed in italics within parentheses, are citations to any relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriation act from which the basic text of the 1983 language is taken. An illustration of proposed appropriation language for 1983 follows:

I-2

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Bureau of Economic Analysis, [$14,279,000] the Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards, the Office of Industrial Economics, and the Office of Economic Affairs, $16,875,000. (15 U.S.C. 171, 175, 1512, 1516; 22 U.S.C. 286f, 3101-3108; 31 U.S.C. 18b; Department of Government Appropriation Act, 1982.)

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

The 1981 column of this budget generally presents the actual transactions and balances for that year, as recorded in agency accounts.

For 1982, the regular schedules include enacted appropriations and also identify the amounts for supplemental appropriations requested to meet the increased costs of statutory and wage-board pay raises. When the annual appropriation has not been enacted, the regular schedules will include the amounts provided under the authority of a continuing resolution. Requests for supplemental appropriations to meet increased 1982 program costs (where costs other than for statutory pay raises are involved), or to finance proposed program expansions in 1982, are included in Part III. Also included in Part III is the proposed appropriation language for both pay and program supplemental requests.

The 1983 column of the regular schedules includes proposed appropriations for all existing programs, including those that require extension or renewal of expiring laws. Amounts for proposed new legislation, if any, are shown in separate schedules, generally following the regular schedules or in budget sequence in the respective bureau. These schedules are headed "Proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation." Appropriation language is included with the regular schedules, but not with the separate schedules for proposed legislation. However, when the amount requested in the budget is less than the amount required for the program level mandated in existing authorizing legislation (as in the case of entitlement programs), the reduced amount is reflected in the proposed appropriation language and the regular schedules. The proposed change in the authorizing legislation may be included in the appropriation language transmitted with the budget or in proposed legislation, to be transmitted later.

Where the required data are available in the agency accounting systems, budgets are presented in terms of applied costs. For operating programs, costs represent the value of resources consumed or used. For procurement and manufacturing programs, costs represent the value of materiel received or produced. For capital investment programs, costs for public works cover the value of work put in place, and costs for loan activities generally represent loan assets acquired. In the case of appropriations for programs that are essentially operating in nature, equipment is normally shown as a program cost (capital investment) when it is placed into use. If depreciation costs are provided in the accounting system, such costs may also be included in the program by activities section of the program and financing schedules with appropriate deductions made to avoid duplication in the schedule totals.

Total obligations are always shown. Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, loan agreements made, and recurring services (such as rent, utilities, and personal services) received during the year, regardless of the time of payment.

PROGRAM AND FINANCING SCHEDULE

This schedule consists of three parts. In the "Program by activities" section, costs or obligations are classified by type of program activity, or project for 1981, 1982, and 1983. This classification is developed for each appropriation or fund, and is not uniform on a Government-wide basis. Where it is of significance, capital investment is shown separately by activity.

Where amounts for activities are presented in terms of costs, the adjustment from costs to obligations is summarized in an entry "Change in selected resources."

In certain cases, this schedule is expanded to include additional columns that provide a more informative presentation. This is done, for example, in some construction or procurement programs to show related cost data; for certain Defense items, to identify the total obligations programmed; and for programs financed at a pre-obligation stage (such as commitments in some loan programs).

The "Financing" section shows the sources of funds, budget authority, and other means of financing the activities covered by the account, and the disposition of unobligated amounts not used during the year.

The section on "Relation of obligations to outlays" shows obligations net of offsetting collections, obligated balances at the start and end of the year, and other items that affect the relation of obligations to outlays.

The account identification code, found at the head of the program and financing schedule, facilitates computer processing of budgetary information. The last three digits of this code represent the functional category to which the account is classified. Functional classification permits presentation of budget authority and outlays in terms of national needs and agency missions, rather than the organization administering the program or the account under which these funds are made available. For example, the 376 at the top of the following schedule indicates that the purpose of the program financed by this appropriation is Other advancement and regulation of commerce—a subfunction within major function 370, Commerce and housing credit. When the outlays from an account are split between two or more subfunctions within a single major function, the code of the major function is used. In those few cases where the outlays from an account are split between two or more functions, a code of 999 is used. A detailed discussion of how Federal programs are addressed to each identified national need is included in Part 5 of the budget. The individual functional categories are identified with each appropriation or fund account in the Budget Accounts Listing in Part 8 of the budget.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Narrative statements present briefly the objectives of the program and the work to be financed primarily for 1983. Measures of expected performance are presented and the relationship of expected performance to the financial estimates is described.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a schedule of obligations or costs, according to the following uniform list of object classifications:

10 PERSONAL SERVICES AND BENEFITS	25 Other services
11 Personnel compensation	26 Supplies and materials
12 Personnel benefits	30 ACQUISITION OF CAPITAL ASSETS
13 Benefits for former personnel	31 Equipment

99.9	Total obligations.....	12,758	14,160	18,487

Several of the object classes are divided into subclasses—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for full-time permanent employees, for other than full-time employees, and for certain other payments. Standard level user charges are assessed by the General Services Administration for space (leased and Government-owned) and building services.

Generally, a personnel summary follows the object classification schedule, as illustrated:

Average GS salary.....	$21,833	$22,881	$24,025

Permanent positions are those that are established or occupied for a year or more and they are counted on the basis of positions existing at the end of the year. The nature of the position governs. Thus, a permanent position may be occupied by an employee whose appointment is either temporary or permanent in nature. These positions may be full-time (full workweek) or part-time (less than a full workweek).

Control of Federal civilian employment has shifted to a full-time equivalent (FTE) or workyear basis generally for the executive branch beginning with fiscal year 1982 (October 1, 1981).

Average grades and salaries are computed arithmetically. Thus, the average salary can fall outside the salary range of the average grade.

BUSINESS-TYPE BUDGET STATEMENTS

Generally, business-type budget statements are presented for activities specifically required by the Government Corporation Control Act or similar legislation to submit such budgets, and for many other revolving and trust revolving funds. For these activities, largely financed by sales revenues, statements of revenue and expense and of financial condition are presented on an accrual basis. These statements are designed to supplement the schedule of program and financing, which is presented on an applied cost or obligation basis.

Statement of Revenue and Expense

For many revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense that shows the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement usually includes accrued revenue (e.g., revenue earned in advance of collections) and accrued expenditures (e.g., depreciation), whether funded or unfunded.

Statement of Financial Condition

The statement of Financial Condition shows assets, liabilities, and equity for the fund at the close of each fiscal year. In addition to this information, which is similar to commercial balance sheet data, budget needs also require special disclosures, which are made in the equity section. A disclosure is made of obligations incurred that have not yet accrued into liabilities (undelivered orders) and of budgetary resources for which no assets have been received (unfinanced budgetary resources). Unfinanced budgetary resources include orders from Federal customers that have not been filled (unfilled orders), and unfinanced budget authority in the form of authority to borrow for which borrowing has not taken place, and contract authority for which liquidating cash has not been received. Orders received from the public must be accompanied by advance payment.

The last section of the balance sheet is an "Analysis of Changes in Government Equity." This section sets forth for paid-in capital and retained income, as appropriate, the beginning balance, transactions (changes) during the year, and the balance at the end of the year.

FEDERAL CREDIT CONTROL SCHEDULES

As part of an effort to establish systematic control of the levels of Federal credit during any fiscal year, the budget appendix includes annual limitations on the amount of obligations for direct loans and commitments for loan guarantees in appropriations language for appropriations or funds with credit activity. Status of direct loans schedules and status of loan guarantees schedules summarize actual (past year) and estimated current and budget year activity.

Status of Direct Loans

A direct loan is a disbursement of funds (not in exchange for goods or services) that is contracted to be repaid—with or without interest—or any of the following transactions:

- direct Federal participation in loans privately made or held;
- purchase of private loans through secondary market operations;
- acquisition of guaranteed private loans or collateral in satisfaction of default or other guarantee claims.

A direct loan is counted against the annual limitation when the principal amount is obligated (see Basis for Schedules for definition of “obligation”). Gross obligations for direct loans means the amount obligated during a fiscal year, without reductions for such items as repayments, prepayments, sale of loan assets, defaults, or forgiveness.

For each appropriation or fund with direct loan activity, a schedule is displayed immediately following the program and financing schedule that shows the following:

- the position with respect to the limitation on the gross amount of obligations for direct loans enacted or proposed to be enacted in appropriations acts;
- the cumulative balance of direct loans outstanding;
- disbursements, repayments, defaults, and other transactions that affect the balances.

Addendum information is provided for accounts that sell loans with a guarantee to the Federal Financing Bank (FFB) or guarantee loans made by the FFB on an account’s behalf.

Status of Loan Guarantees

A loan guarantee is an agreement by which the Government pledges to pay part or all of the loan principal and interest to a lender or holder of a security, in the event of default by a third party borrower. For the purposes of credit control, the term includes agreements in the form of loan insurance; i.e., a program to pool risks, pledging the use of insurance premiums, and, under some circumstances, other resources to secure a lender against default by a borrower. The term also includes direct Federal loans that the Government has sold under guarantee or repurchase agreements.

A loan guarantee is counted against the annual limitation when a firm commitment is made, i.e., when the Government enters into a guarantee agreement to become effective at such time as the lender meets stipulated pre-conditions. A commitment must be reported for every loan guaranteed, even though the commitment and the actual guarantee may occur simultaneously. Beginning in the 1983 budget, amounts for limitations and in the schedules are the full principal amounts of loans guaranteed whether guaranteed in full or in part. The amount of the Government’s contingent liability is shown as a memorandum entry in the schedule. Gross commitments for loan guarantees means the amount committed during a fiscal year, without reductions for such items as repayments, prepayments, sale of guaranteed loans, or defaults.

For each appropriation or fund with loan guarantee activity, a schedule is displayed immediately following the program and financing schedule (or status of direct loans schedule, if there is one) that shows:

- the position with respect to the limitation on the gross amount of commitments for loan guarantees enacted or proposed to be enacted in appropriations acts;
- the cumulative balance of guaranteed loans outstanding;
- new loan guarantees, repayments of loans guaranteed, terminations for default, and other transactions that affect the balances.

Senate, Assistant Secretary of the Senate, Parliamentarian, Financial Clerk, and Director of the Office of Classified National Security Information) are abolished, and in lieu of the positions hereby abolished the Secretary of the Senate is authorized to establish such number of positions as he deems appropriate and appoint and fix the compensation of employees to fill the positions so established; except that the annual rate of compensation payable to any employee appointed to fill any position established by the Secretary of the Senate shall not, for any period of time, be in excess of $1,000 less than the annual rate of compensation of the Secretary of the Senate for that period of time; and except that nothing in this section shall be construed to affect any position authorized by statute, if the compensation for such position is to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

SEC. 102. Effective October 1, 1981, all statutory positions in the Office of the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate (other than the positions of the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate, Deputy Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper, and Administrative Assistant) are abolished, and in lieu of the positions hereby abolished the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate is authorized to establish such number of positions as he deems appropriate and appoint and fix the compensation of employees to fill the positions so established; except that the annual rate of compensation payable to any employee appointed to fill any position established by the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate shall not, for any period of time, be in excess of $1,000 less than the annual rate of compensation of the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate for that period of time, and except that nothing in this section shall be construed to affect any position authorized by statute, if the compensation for such position is to be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate.

SEC. 103. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, there is hereby established an account, within the Senate, to be known as the "Expense Allowance for the Secretary of the Senate, Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate and Secretaries for the Majority and for the Minority, of the Senate" (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "Expense Allowance"). For each fiscal year (commencing with the fiscal year ending September 30, 1981) there shall be available from the Expense Allowance an expense allotment not to exceed $2,000 for each of the above specified officers. Amounts paid from the expense allotment of any such officer shall be paid to him only as reimbursement for actual expenses incurred by him and upon certification and documentation by him of such expenses. Amounts paid to any such officer pursuant to this section shall not be reported as income and shall not be allowed as a deduction under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

(b) For the fiscal year ending September 30, 1981, and the succeeding fiscal year, the Secretary of the Senate shall transfer, for each such year, $8,000 to the Expense Allowance from "Miscellaneous Items" in the contingent fund of the Senate. For the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, and for each fiscal year thereafter, there are authorized to be appropriated to the Expense Allowance such funds as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of subsection (a) of this section.

SEC. 104. (a) In section 323(a) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (2 U.S.C. 441(a))—

(1) strike out all after "shall accept" down to and including "(1) any" and insert "shall accept any"; and

(2) strike out all after the word "speech." down to and including "year." and insert "or article."

(b) In section 102(a)(1)(A) of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978 (2 U.S.C. 702(a)(1)(A)), after the word "source" where it appears the last time in the paragraph insert "including speeches, appearances, articles, or other publications".

(c) Effective beginning with fiscal year 1983, and continuing each year thereafter, such sums as hereafter may be necessary for "Compensation of Members" (and administrative expenses related thereto), as authorized by law and at such level recommended by the President for Federal employees, for that fiscal year are hereby appropriated from money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Such sums when paid shall be in lieu of any sums accrued in prior years but not paid. For purposes of this subsection, the term "Member" means each Member of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the Resident Commissioner from Puerto Rico, the Delegates from the District of Columbia, Guam, Virgin Islands, and American Samoa, and the Vice President. Personal services and necessary expenses to provide support for the basic operations of the Library are financed from this appropriation.

1. Purchase of books and library materials.—The Library's collections are developed through purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, and transfer and official deposit; and materials are selected for addition to the permanent collections.

(a) Purchase of books for the general collections.—Library materials, both current and noncurrent, in all subject fields except in the fields of law, clinical medicine, or technical agriculture are purchased. This category includes the National Program for Acquisitions and Cataloging, which is designed to acquire, catalog, and disseminate cataloging data to meet the needs of American libraries.

(b) Purchase of books for the Law Library.—Law books published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign and international law books published in countries throughout the world are purchased.

2. Preparation of books and library materials for use.—Library materials are cataloged for ready retrieval and are classified for systematic arrangement on the shelves of the collection. Card catalogs are maintained. Issues of serial publications are identified and recorded. Cataloging data is converted to machine-readable form for use by the Library of Congress, other libraries, and cataloging service agencies. Systems of subject headings and classification are continuously developed for the Library's needs and for the nationwide library community. Preparation of books and library materials for use under the National Program for Acquisition and Cataloging is included under this heading.

3. Cataloging distribution service.—The Cataloging Distribution Service sells copies of the Library's printed catalog cards, cataloging data in machine-readable form, book catalogs, and technical publications.

The Network Development Office plans and coordinates the exchange of bibliographic and locational information among major library cooperatives and central and research facilities.

4. Research and reader services.—Books and other library materials are provided internally and outside the Library, reference, referral and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained.

5. Preservation of library materials.—Library materials are preserved in their original format by being bound or rebound, or by a variety of conservation/restoration techniques. Materials are also preserved by converting them to a more durable form through such means as the microfilming of books and newspapers, by conversion of nitrate film to a safety base film, and by the conversion of deteriorating sound recordings to polyester tape.

6. Automated systems support.—Central computer support to all missions of the Library is provided by the Automated Systems Office. This support comprises systems analysis, programming, and operation of central computers, minicomputers and communication services.

7. Central support services.—This activity supports the executive staff of the Office of the Librarian; exhibit, information, and publication activities; personnel, financial, procurement, and buildings management; and other centralized services. It also includes rental of space off Capitol Hill and duplicating services.

8. American Folklife Center.—Public Law 94-201 established the American Folklife Center in the Library of Congress "to preserve and present American folk-life."

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collecting and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The income and obligations for 1981, and estimates for 1982 and 1983 are as follows:

Income:	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Gross receipts	$5,248,907	$5,200,000	$5,200,000
Estimated value of materials deposited and transferred to the Library of Congress	4,811,729	4,907,700	5,000,000
Total income	10,060,636	10,107,700	10,200,000
Obligations	$14,474,980	$14,753,000	$15,515,000

The effort described under each of the activities are predicated on an estimated 480,000 copyright registrations during 1983, an estimated 470,000 during 1982, and registrations of 471,000 during 1981.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act.

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provisions of the Copyright Act have been satisfied.

3. Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. It is estimated that for 1983 the number of items to be cataloged will be 480,000.

4. Reference service.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings. Information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity.

5. Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

6. Records management.—The Records Management Division is responsible for storing and maintaining records related to the copyright registrations process.

7. General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office includes legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

8. Licensing Division.—The Licensing Division performs the responsibilities connected with the registration of cable television stations and the licensing of jukeboxes.

1. Policy analysis and research.—The Congressional Research Service provides objective, nonpartisan analytical and consultative services to the Members and committees of Congress, assisting them in the analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of any subject matter of legislative concern, including recommendations submitted to the Congress by the Executive Branch. Research services are also provided to assist Congress with its oversight, representative, and other responsibilities. Support comes in the form of background studies, in-depth policy analyses, consultations and briefings, legal research, continuous liaison with committees, outside contracts, assistance with committee hearings, public policy seminars for Members and congressional staff, and related data and materials. Lists of subjects and policy areas that a committee might profitably pursue are periodically made available to each congressional committee. These services are directed toward assisting Members and committees in determining the advisability of enacting legislative proposals, in estimating the probable results of such proposals and of alternatives to them, and in evaluating methods for accomplishing the results sought. As provided by statute, the Service prepares decennial revised editions of the Constitution of the United States—Analysis and Interpretation, as well as cumulative supplements at 2-year intervals, prepares compendiums for the annual national high school and college debate topics, and provides assistance to the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of Technology Assessment, and the General Accounting Office.

2. Documentation and status of legislation.—The Service periodically prepares and publishes for distribution to Members and committees the Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions, which includes summaries of all public bills and resolutions introduced in Congress, the status of bills receiving action, and various pertinent indexes. The Service compiles factual descriptions of House bills and resolutions which are forwarded for publication in the Congressional Record. The Service also makes available current and periodic reports that provide background and status information on major legislative issues before the Congress. Upon request, the Service provides Members and committees with legislative history memorandums on bills for which hearings have been announced, and compiles and makes available to each committee reports on legislatively authorized programs and activities within that committee's jurisdiction that are scheduled to terminate during the current Congress.

3. Information and reference services.—The Congressional Research Service provides extensive information and reference assistance to Members and committees. Reference files containing clippings, pamphlets, and documents and automated information services are maintained for rapid information retrieval. Lists of selected reports, prepared by CRS staff on legislative issues, are regularly distributed to congressional offices. To provide faster responses and in-person services, the Service also maintains reference centers in congressional office buildings and the Congressional Reading Rooms in the Madison and Jefferson Buildings of the Library of Congress.

4. Administration.—Providing overall supervision and administrative support to the entire Congressional Research Service is the responsibility of the Administration branch.

The Librarian of Congress may use foreign currencies to provide information of technical, scientific, cultural, or educational significance to the United States through the collection of foreign library materials and the distribution of copies thereof to libraries and research centers in the United States. The program is being carried on in two countries in 1981: India and Pakistan. Of the total amount requested in 1983, $3,976,000 will be paid in foreign currencies, while $456,000 will provide U.S. dollar support.

1. Acquisition of books and other library materials.—Based upon the requirements of other Federal agencies and certain research libraries in the United States, publications and other library materials will be purchased in multiple copies from two countries and distributed to selected libraries and research centers in the United States, including the Library of Congress.

2. Program support (U.S. dollars).—U.S. dollars are required to pay certain expenses which cannot be paid by foreign currencies, such as salaries of the coordinating staff at the Library of Congress, shared administrative support provided by the Department of State, travel in some instances, and equipment and supplies which cannot be procured abroad.

This activity provides for the purchase and repair of furniture, furnishings, and equipment to support Library operations and is separated into two distinct categories: (1) regular furniture and furnishings and (2) furniture and furnishings for the James Madison Memorial Library Building.

1. Regular furniture and furnishings—(a) Repair and replacement of furniture and furnishings.—This activity provides for the regular annual maintenance and repair of furniture and furnishings, and for the replacement of worn out and obsolete items.

(b) New furniture and furnishings.—This activity provides for the purchase of new items of furniture, furnishings, and equipment to meet a growing workload and to provide storage equipment for increases in collections. It also provides furniture and typewriters when new employees are requested.

2. James Madison Memorial Building, furniture and furnishings.—Funds in this category provide for the purchase of furniture, equipment, and furnishings to replace old furnishings moved to the Madison Building.

The Oliver Wendell Holmes devise fund and the permanent committee for the Oliver Wendell Holmes devise to administer it were created by an act of Congress, approved August 5, 1955 (69 Stat. 533).

The current program is devoted primarily to the preparation of a History of the Supreme Court of the United States, of which the first two volumes were published by the Macmillan Co. in 1972. A third volume was published in August 1974, a fourth volume was published in September 1981, and additional volumes are nearing completion.

This schedule covers (1) funds received as gifts for immediate expenditure, and receipts from the sale of recordings, publications, photoduplication and other materials financed from capital originally received as gifts, (2) income from investments held by or for the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, and (3) interest paid by the Treasury on the principal funds deposited therewith as described under "Library of Congress Trust Fund, Principal Accounts," at a rate which is 0.25 percentage points less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding long-term marketable obligations of the United States, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1% or the rate of 4% per annum, whichever is higher.

1. Acquisition of library materials.—During 1981, this included the procurement of manuscripts, Hispanic materials, fine prints, rare books and other library materials for the Library of Congress, and the acquisition and distribution of Government documents for the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries.

2. Reader and reference services.—These services during 1981 included the preparation of bibliographies, indexes, digests, and checklists; lectures, surveys of bibliographic services; poetry readings; musical concerts; furtherance of musical research, composition, performance and appreciation; and providing photostats, photographs, microfilm, and other forms of photoduplication, and sound recordings of music, and poetry to other Government agencies, libraries and other institutions, and to the general public; and distribution of recordings of the Library's literary programs and concerts to radio stations for public service broadcasts.

3. Organization and control of the collections.—In February 1967, the Library of Congress began the largest single bibliographical project in its history, the publication of the pre-1956 National Union Catalog. It was completed in January 1981, with a total of 754 published volumes. The preparation of the 19th full edition of the Dewey Decimal Classification, begun during 1972, continues.

This schedule includes three principal accounts—permanent loan, public debt securities, and bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard.

Both the permanent loan and the Hubbard funds represent gifts or bequests in cash, which have been deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, the interest upon which is available to the Librarian for the purposes specified in each case. Public Laws 94-289 and 94-290 (signed May 22, 1976) provide interest at “a rate which is the higher of the rate of 4 per centum per annum or a rate which is 0.25 percentage points less than a rate determined by the Secretary of the Treasury, taking into consideration the current average market yield on outstanding long-term marketable obligations of the United States, adjusted to the nearest one-eighth of 1 per centum”. The public debt securities funds represent gifts or bequests in cash which have been invested in public debt securities of the United States in order to obtain a better return on the principal.

As of September 30, 1981, the principal in the permanent loan account, which shall not exceed the sum of $10 million (2 U.S.C. 158; 31 U.S.C. 725s; Public Law 87-522), was distributed as follows:

Music activities	$2,709,833
American history	26,655
Poetry and literature	1,032,293
Miscellaneous purposes	1,019,379
Total permanent loan principal.....	$4,788,160

During 1975, the Library removed some of the principal from the permanent loan and invested that principal in long-term U.S. public debt securities which mature on May 15, 1999, and are paying interest at a rate of 8.5%. As of September 30, 1981, the principal in the public debt securities was distributed as follows:

Music activities	$148,142
Fine arts.....	396,558
American history	307,040
Hispanic activities	211,315
Poetry and literature	50,073
Miscellaneous purposes	297,985
Total public debt securities principal.....	$1,411,113

The additional principal sum of $20 thousand, representing the bequest of Gertrude M. Hubbard, is for the purchase of engravings and etchings (37 Stat. 319). Public Law 94-290 (May 22, 1976) changed the interest rate on this account from the fixed 4% rate to the floating rate described above.

The Library also has available to it, through the Trust Fund Board, income from principal amounts which are managed for the Board as trust funds by private financial institutions. As of September 30, 1981, the estimated principal in these trust funds was distributed as follows:

Music activities	$1,020,000
Hispanic activities	581,500
Poetry and literature	581,500
Total principal.....	$2,183,000

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

SEC. 201. Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress for salaries shall be available for expenses of personnel security and suitability investigations of Library employees; special and temporary services (including employees engaged by day or hour or in piecemeal); and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

SEC. 202. Not to exceed fifteen positions in the Library of Congress may be exempt from the provisions of appropriation acts concerning the employment of aliens during the current fiscal year, but the Librarian shall not make any appointment to any such position until he has ascertained that he cannot secure for such appointments a person in any of the categories specified in such provisions who possesses the special qualifications for the particular position and also otherwise meets the general requirements for employment in the Library of Congress.

SEC. 203. Appropriations in this Act available to the Library of Congress shall be available, in an amount not to exceed [$134,650] $143,030, of which [$50,600] $54,100 is for the Congressional Research Service, when specifically authorized by the Librarian, for expenses of attendance at meetings concerned with the function or activity for which the appropriation is made.

SEC. 204. The Library of Congress is authorized to compute and disburse basic pay of all personnel of the Copyright Royalty Tribunal pursuant to the provisions of section 5504 of title 5 of the United States Code.

SEC. 205. From and after October 1, 1981, the Disbursing Officer of the Library of Congress is authorized to disburse funds appropriated for the Office of Technology Assessment, and the Library of Congress shall provide financial management support to the Office of Technology Assessment as may be required and mutually agreed to by the Librarian of Congress and the Director of the Office of Technology Assessment. The Library of Congress is further authorized to compute and disburse the basic pay of all personnel of the Office of Technology Assessment pursuant to the provisions of section 5504 of title 5 of the United States Code.

[All vouchers certified for payment by duly authorized certifying officers of the Library of Congress shall be supported with a certification by an officer or employee of the Office of Technology Assessment duly authorized in writing by the Director of the Office of Technology Assessment to certify payments from appropriations of the Office of Technology Assessment. The Office of Technology Assessment certifies—

The Office of the Superintendent of Documents operates under a separate appropriation which provides funds for: (1) the mailing for Members of Congress and other Government agencies of certain Government publications, as authorized by law; (2) the distribution of Government publications to designated depository libraries; and (3) the compilation of catalogs and indexes of Government publications. These three functions are related to the publication activity of other agencies and to the demands of the public, Members of Congress, and depository libraries. Consequently, Documents can exercise little control over the volume of work which it may be called upon to perform. A description of these three functions follows:

2. Distribution for other Government agencies and Members of Congress.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists and mails, at the request of Government agencies and Members of Congress, certain publications specified by public law.

3. Depository library distribution.—As required, Government publications are supplied to libraries which are designated as depositories for Government publications.

4. Cataloging and indexing.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents is charged with preparing catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government. The principal publication is the "Monthly Catalog of U.S. Government Publications."

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various agencies of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. The Government Printing Office also sells publications to the public through its sales of publications program.

All such work is financed through the Government Printing Office revolving fund (44 U.S.C. 309). The fund is reimbursed by the customer agencies, receipts from sales of publications to the general public, and, except for the excess of receipts over costs associated with the sale of publications to the public, net operating income is retained for reuse by the fund.

The U.S. Tax Court hears and decides cases involving Federal income, estate and gift tax deficiencies and renders declaratory judgments regarding the qualification or continuing qualification (including revocations of rulings on the exemptions) of retirement plans under the provisions of Public Law 93-406, known as the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974.

The Tax Court has also been given jurisdiction under Public Law 94-455 (Tax Reform Act of 1976) to render declaratory judgments with respect to (1) exempt organization status determinations pursuant to section 501(c)(3), Internal Revenue Code and (2) determinations made pursuant to section 367 (transfers of property from the United States). Under the Revenue Act of 1978, the Court was given jurisdiction to enter declaratory judgments on the tax treatment of interest on proposed issues of Government obligations. In addition, the court has jurisdiction over actions to restrain disclosure and to obtain additional disclosure with respect to public inspection of written determinations issued by the Internal Revenue Service, and actions to compel the disclosure of the identity of third-party contacts relating to written determinations made by the Internal Revenue Service.

For 1983, the court proposes a trial program of 497 weeks consisting of 318 weeks of regular trial sessions and 179 weeks of small tax case sessions. Trials are held in approximately 116 cities throughout the United States.

The actual and estimated work volume of the court is presented in the following tabulation:

For 1972, the U.S. Tax Court received an initial appropriation in the amount of $18,712 thousand, and for 1973 and 1975 supplemental appropriations in the amounts of $1,916 thousand and $2 million respectively, to provide for the construction of a court building to be located within the District of Columbia. The Tax Court is a court of national jurisdiction with headquarters in Washington, D.C., and conducts trial sessions throughout the United States.

Ground was broken on July 31, 1972, and the new quarters were occupied in January 1975. Phase II of the building project, a plaza, was completed in 1978.

This fund, established under 26 U.S.C. 7448, is used to pay survivorship benefits to eligible surviving spouses and dependent children of deceased judges of the U.S. Tax Court. Participating judges pay 3% of their salaries or retired pay into the fund to cover creditable service for which payment is required. Additional funds as are needed are provided through the annual appropriation to the U.S. Tax Court.

On September 30, 1981, 16 judges of the court were participating in the fund, and 6 eligible widows were receiving survivorship annuity payments.

The Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe was created to monitor compliance with that code of conduct, particularly in regard to what is called "Basket Three" of the Final Act, the Provisions on Cooperation in Humanitarian and Other Fields. The law establishing the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe also mandated it to monitor and encourage U.S. Government and private activities designed to expand East-West trade and the exchange of people and ideas. The Commission will receive semiannual reports from the President on the signatories' compliance with the Final Act and on U.S. activities in trade and cultural/humanitarian exchange and it will itself make advisory reports to the Congress on the progress of implementation.

The Commission is made up of six Senators, six Members of the House of Representatives and one Commissioner each from the Department of State, Defense, and Commerce.

provided herein, shall be the permanent law with respect thereto: Provided, That the provisions herein for the various items of official expenses of Members, officers, and committees of the Senate and House, and clerk hire for Senators and Members shall be the permanent law with respect thereto.

【SEC. 304. (a) Subsections (c) and (d) of section 491 of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1970 (Public Law 91-510; 2 United States Code 88b-1 (c) and (d) are repealed.

(b) Section 303 of the Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1979 (Public Law 96-38) is repealed.】

【SEC. 305. (a) No part of the funds appropriated for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1982, by this Act or any other Act may be used to pay the salary or pay of any individual in any office or position in the legislative, executive, or judicial branch, or in the government of the District of Columbia, at a rate which exceeds the rate (or maximum rate, if higher) of salary or basic pay payable for such office or position for September 30, 1981, if the rate of salary or basic pay for that office or position is—

(1) fixed at a rate which is equal to or greater than the rate of basic pay for level V of the Executive Schedule under section 5316 of title 5, United States Code, or

(2) limited to a maximum rate which is equal to or greater than the rate of basic pay for such level V (or to a percentage of such a maximum rate) by reason of section 5308 of title 5, United States Code, or any other provision of law or congressional resolution.

(b) For purposes of subsection (a), the rate or maximum rate (as the case may be) of salary or basic pay payable for September 30, 1981, for any office or position which was not in existence on such date shall be deemed to be the rate or maximum rate (as the case may be) of salary or basic pay payable to individuals in comparable offices or positions for such date, as determined under regulations prescribed—

(1) by the President, in the case of any office or position within the executive branch or in the government of the District of Columbia;

(2) jointly by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President pro tempore of the Senate, in the case of any office or position within the legislative branch; or

(3) by the Chief Justice of the United States, in the case of any office or position within the judicial branch.

(c) None of the funds appropriated by this Act or any other Act shall be used by any agency to pay performance awards in fiscal year 1982 under section 5384 of title 5, United States Code, or any comparable personnel system established on or after October 13, 1978, to more than 20 per centum of the number of Senior Executive Service or comparable personnel system positions in such agency.

(d) For purposes of administering any provision of law, rule, or regulation which provides retirement, life insurance, or other employee benefit, which requires any deduction or contribution, or which imposes any requirement or limitation, on the basis of a rate of salary or basic pay, the rate of salary or basic pay payable after the application of this section shall be treated as the rate of salary or basic pay.

Public Law 97-51, Sec. 101. (c) Notwithstanding the provisions of sections 102 and 106 of this joint resolution, such amounts as may be necessary for continuing projects and activities under all the conditions and to the extent and in the manner as provided in H.R. 4120, entitled the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1982, as reported July 9, 1981; and the provisions of H.R. 4120 shall be effective as if enacted into law; except that the provisions of section 305 (a), (b), and

(d) of H.R. 4120 shall apply to any appropriation, fund or authority made available for the period October 1, 1981, through November 20, 1981, by this or any other Act.

Public Law 97-85, Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That clauses (c) of sections 101 and 102 of the joint resolution of October 1, 1981 (Public Law 97-51), are hereby amended by striking out “November 20, 1981” and inserting in lieu thereof “December 15, 1981”.

Public Law 97-92, Sec. 101. (g) The provisions of section 305 (a), (b), and (d) of H.R. 4120, entitled the Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1982, shall apply to any appropriation, fund, or authority made available for the period October 1, 1981, through September 30, 1982, by this or any other Act.

SEC. 141. (a) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 305 of H.R. 4120 made applicable by section 101(g) of this joint resolution, but subject to subsection (b) of this section, nothing in section 101(g) shall (or shall be construed to) require that the rate of salary or basic pay, payable to any individual for or on account of services performed after December 31, 1981, be limited to or reduced to an amount which is less than—

(1) $59,500, if such individual has an office or position the salary or pay for which corresponds to the rate of basic pay for level III of the Executive Schedule under section 5314 of title 5, United States Code;

(2) $58,500, if such individual has an office or position the salary or pay for which corresponds to the rate of basic pay for level IV of the Executive Schedule under section 5315 of title 5, United States Code; or

(3) $57,500, if such individual has an office or position the salary or pay for which corresponds to the rate of basic pay for level V of the Executive Schedule under section 5316 of title 5, United States Code.

(b)(1) For purposes of subsection (a), any rate of salary or pay shall be considered to correspond to the basic pay for a level of the Executive Schedule if the rate of salary or pay for that office or position is (i) fixed at a rate which is equal to or greater than the rate of basic pay for that level of the Executive Schedule or (ii) limited to a maximum rate which is equal to or greater than the rate of basic pay for such level (or to a percentage of such a maximum rate) by reason of section 5308 of title 5, United States Code, or any other provision of law (other than the provisions of such section 305, as made applicable by section 101(g) of this joint resolution) or congressional resolution.

(2) In applying subsection (a) for any office or position for which the rate of salary or basic pay is limited to a percentage of such a maximum rate, there shall be substituted, in lieu of the amount specified in subsection (a) for that office or position, an amount equal to such percentage of the specified amount.

(c) Any adjustment pursuant to this section made to the pay of any employee or class of employees whose pay is disbursed by the Clerk of the House should be of such amount as to assure, to the maximum extent practicable, that such employees are not paid at rates at less than employees or classes of employees whose pay is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate and who hold equivalent positions.】

SEC. 【306】 404. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law. The Court of Customs and Patent Appeals has jurisdiction of appeals from all final judgments or orders of the U.S. Court of International Trade. The Court may, in its discretion, permit an appeal to be taken from an order authorizing an evidentiary hearing in a foreign country, issued by the chief judge of the Court of International Trade or from an interlocutory order of a judge of the U.S. Court of International Trade when said judge includes in the order a statement that a controlling question of law is involved as to which there is substantial ground for difference of opinion and an immediate appeal may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation.

The court has jurisdiction of appeals from decisions of U.S. Patent and Trademark Office tribunals as to patent applications and interferences and as to trademark applications and interference, cancellation, concurrent use, and opposition proceedings.

The court also has jurisdiction to review, by appeal on question of law only, the findings of the U.S. International Trade Commission as to unfair practices in import trade.

The jurisdiction of the court includes appeals under section 71 of the Plant Variety Protection Act of 1970.

The court has jurisdiction to review, by appeals on questions of law only, findings of the Secretary of Commerce under headnote 6 to schedule 8, part 4, of the "Tariff Schedules of the United States" relating to importation of scientific instruments or apparatus.

A summary of the business of the court for 1980 and 1981 follows:

The United States Court of International Trade, established under Article III of the Constitution of the United States, was created by the Act of October 10, 1980 (94 Stat. 1727), effective November 1, 1980, as successor to the former United States Customs Court. The court has original and exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions against the United States, its agencies and officers, and certain civil actions brought by the United States, arising out of import transactions and Federal statutes affecting international trade. The court possesses all the powers in law and equity of, or as conferred by statute upon, a district court of the United States, and is authorized to conduct jury trials. The geographical jurisdiction of the court is nationwide and trials before the court may be held at any place within the jurisdiction of the United States. The court also is authorized to hold hearings in foreign countries. The principal statutory provisions pertaining to the court are contained in the following sections of title 28 of the United States Code: Organization, sections 251 to 257; Jurisdiction, sections 1581 to 1585; and Procedures, sections 2631 to 2647.

The U.S. Court of Claims has original jurisdiction over all cases involving claims against the United States for money damages (except pension and tort claims) instituted upon constitutional grounds or under Federal law or regulations, all claims arising out of any contract with the Federal Government and its agencies, and claims for the refund of taxes. It also has jurisdiction over claims against the United States where the United States had manufactured or used an invention covered by a patent, or had infringed any work protected by a copyright. It has jurisdiction to review decisions rendered by the appropriate agency boards under the Contract Disputes Act of 1978 and the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978. It also has jurisdiction in special act cases referred to the court by the Congress, and the commissioners of the court have jurisdiction to render reports to the Congress on claims set forth in bills referred to the chief commissioner by either House of Congress.

This Office assists the President in the discharge of his budgetary, management, and other executive responsibilities.

1. Budget review.—Budget instructions and procedures are developed, review of agency estimates are coordinated, agency financial management plans are reviewed, and the budget document is prepared.

2-5. National security and international affairs, Economics and government, Natural resources, energy, and science, and Human resources, veterans, and labor.—Agency programs, budget requests, and management activities are examined, appropriations are apportioned, proposed changes in agency functions are studied, and special studies aimed at establishing goals and objectives that would result in long- and short-range improvements in the agencies' financial, administrative, and operational management are conducted.

6. Director's office.—Executive direction and coordination for all Office of Management and Budget activities is provided. In this regard, staff support is provided in the areas of administration, public affairs, legislative reference, congressional relations, economic policy, civil rights, and legal affairs.

7. Management and reorganization.—Government-wide programs to improve management effectiveness are planned and implemented. Policy leadership and assistance are given to all agencies planning, evaluation, debt collection, executive development, anti fraud, waste and abuse initiatives and reorganization.

8. Information and regulatory affairs.—Policy leadership and assistance to agencies in paperwork management, reports clearance, information policy and regulations review are provided. Estimates include resources necessary to implement the Paperwork Reduction Act of 1980, which established the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in the Office of Management and Budget.

SEC. 601. (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no part of any of the funds appropriated for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, by this Act or any other Act, may be used to pay any prevailing rate employee described in section 5342(a)(2)(A) of title 5, United States Code, or an employee covered by section 5348 of that title, in an amount which exceeds—

- (1) for the period from October 1, 1982, until the next applicable wage survey adjustment becomes effective, the rate which was payable for the applicable grade and step to such employee under the applicable wage schedule that was in effect and payable on September 30, 1982; and

(2) for the period consisting of the remainder of the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, a rate which exceeds, as a result of a wage survey adjustment, the rate payable under paragraph (1) of this subsection by more than the overall average percentage of the adjustment in the General Schedule during the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 9(b) of Public Law 92-392 or section 704(b) of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, the provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall apply (in such manner as the Office of Personnel Management shall prescribe) to prevailing rate employees to whom such section 9(b) applies, except that the provisions of subsection (a) may not apply to any increase in a wage schedule or rate which is required by the terms of a contract entered into before the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) For the purpose of subsection (a) of this section, the rate payable to any employee who is covered by this section and who is paid from a schedule which was not in existence on September 30, 1982, shall be determined under regulations prescribed by the President.

(d) The provisions of this section shall apply only with respect to pay for services performed by affected employees after the date of enactment of this Act.

(e) For the purpose of administering any provision of law, rule, or regulation which provides premium pay, retirement, life insurance, or any other employee benefit, which requires any deduction or contribution, or which imposes any requirement or limitation, on the basis of a rate of salary or basic pay, the rate of salary or basic pay payable after the application of this section shall be treated as the rate of salary or basic pay.

Federal disaster assistance is a nationwide program operated pursuant to the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-288). Supplementary assistance is provided to individuals, and State and local governments in the event of a Presidentially declared emergency or major disaster. Funds may be made available directly to a State or local government, or to other Federal agencies as reimbursement of expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority. In addition, a variety of other Federal agency assistance is coordinated under this program.

MEMORANDUM

2299 U.S. contingent liability for guaranteed loans outstanding, end of year..... 9,424,651 12,029,651 15,664,651

* Defaulted loans transferred to the guarantee reserve fund.

This appropriation provides funds to finance credit sales of defense articles, defense services and design and construction services to foreign countries and international organizations. Two types of financing arrangements are authorized under the Arms Export Control Act: (1) direct U.S. Government loans administered by the Department of Defense, and (2) loan agreements guaranteed by the U.S. Government. Administrative expenses related to this program are paid from the grant military assistance account and reimbursed from receipts from foreign governments collected in the foreign military sales trust fund.

In exceptional circumstances, grants of defense articles, defense services, and design and construction services are made to assist certain countries to improve their military capabilities. This assistance is provided through the U.S. military departments that are reimbursed from this account. Administrative expenses of the Defense Security Assistance Agency, including the cost of military personnel, military assistance advisory groups and military missions are also paid out of this account. Appropriations are requested for a special requirements fund to permit response to unforeseen situations and to reimburse the military departments for stocks drawn down and services provided under section 506(a) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 as amended.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development was established in 1945 and contributed significantly to the reconstruction of Europe and Asia after World War II. In the 1950's, its focus shifted to the financing of development projects in less developed countries, where it is making a major contribution to economic and social development. By applying banking principles to the achievement of development goals, it has promoted increased economic productivity and helped developing economies meet more of the basic needs of their peoples. Since 1945, the Bank has made loan commitments of over $71 billion.

The World Bank's 1981 lending program included 140 loan commitments to 50 countries for a total of $8.8 billion. Almost twice this amount was contributed to these projects by recipient countries, commercial lenders, and other multilateral or bilateral agencies. The sectors receiving the most emphasis were: agriculture and rural development (27%), power and rural electrification (14%), and industry (9%), reflecting a balance between sectors most directly affecting the poor and support of essential basic infrastructure. The regional distribution was as follows: Sub-Saharan Africa, 10%; East Asia and the Pacific, 25%; South Asia, 5%; Europe/Middle East/North Africa, 25%; and Latin America and the Caribbean, 35%. The relatively low share for Sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia reflects the inability of countries in these regions to borrow substantial amounts of money at the Bank's near-market rates of interest and their dependence on more concessional resources. In its years 1982 and 1983, the Bank is expected to lend $9.6 billion and $10.7 billion respectively.

Contributions to the Bank consist of paid-in capital, which leads to budget outlays, and callable capital which would lead to outlays only if required to meet Bank obligations resulting from borrowings in capital markets. There has never been a call on these funds, which are now provided under a program limitation.

The Administration request for 1983 has two parts: (1) $16.3 million in budget authority and $146.9 million in program limitations to allow completion of the $1.6 billion U.S. subscription to the Bank's 1977 Selective Capital Increase (SCI), and (2) $109.7 million in budget authority and $1,383.4 million in program limitations to provide the second of six equal installments for the $8.8 billion U.S. share of the $40.0 billion 1981 General Capital Increase (GCI) and $30.2 million in program limitations for the U.S. share of a $4.0 billion companion increase. This capital increase is for the purpose of preventing an unintended dilution of the relative voting strength of the IBRD's smaller and less developed members and will not be used to support additional lending.

Under the SCI, 10% of the purchase price must be paid in, while under the GCI, the paid-in requirement is 7.5%. The program limitations request for the U.S. share of the $4.0 billion companion increase to the GCI has no paid-in component.

The International Development Association (IDA) is the member of the World Bank Group which provides development financing on highly concessional terms to the world's poorest nations. The United States joined the Association in 1960, and is one of 33 contributing nations. IDA is now the largest source of multilateral lending extended on concessional terms to developing countries. Projects have to meet the same high economic and financial standards as other World Bank projects and there has never been a default on an IDA loan by any borrower.

By June 30, 1981, IDA had extended credits totaling $24.1 billion for development projects in 77 countries in Asia, Africa, the Middle East, and Latin America. IDA assistance is concentrated overwhelmingly in the poorest countries—mainly those with an annual per capita gross national product of less than $371 in 1979 dollars. IDA assistance is directed toward projects designed to increase the productivity and incomes of lower income groups in recipient countries. Nearly 40% of IDA lending has been devoted to agricultural and rural development purposes. IDA approved credits of $3.48 billion in 1981. The 1982 and 1983 lending programs will be largely dependent on the level of U.S. contributions.

The Sixth Replenishment of IDA resources, totaling $12 billion, became effective on August 24, 1981, when the United States formally notified the Association of its intention to contribute $3.24 billion and made a first installment of $500 million. A 1982 appropriation of $700 million was provided for the U.S. second installment, and $945 million is being sought in 1983. The Administration intends to request the balance of the U.S. contribution in 1984.

The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes the economic and social development of Latin America and the Caribbean through loans and technical assistance. In its 21 years of operation, the Bank has loaned over $17.8 billion for projects that represent a total investment of more than $66 billion. The Bank has concentrated its efforts on productive sectors and on physical infrastructure. In 1980, $2.3 billion of lending was distributed primarily as follows: 27% for agriculture and fisheries; 23% for energy; 20% for transportation and communications; and 9% for industry and mining. The 1981 lending level is estimated at $2.4 billion and is expected to rise to $2.7 billion in 1982.

The Bank lends money through two channels: (1) The ordinary and inter-regional capital resources which lend at near-market rates; and (2) the Fund for Special Operations (FSO) on concessional terms to the region's poorer nations. The 1983 request includes contributions to both funds in the amount of $284 million with an additional $828 million for callable capital provided under a program limitation.

Capital resources.—The U.S. is subscribing 34.5% of the resources for an $8 billion capital replenishment. Of the total $2.7 billion subscription, 7.5% is paid in and the rest callable. The 1983 request for budget authority is $62.4 million with a callable program limitation of $828 million.

Fund for special operations.—The 1983 FSO contribution consists of two parts: (1) $46.7 million for the 1976-78 replenishment, and (2) the $175 million fourth installment of a $700 million contribution to the 1979-82 replenishment.

The Asian Development Bank was established in 1966 to foster economic growth and cooperation in the Asian and Pacific region and to contribute to the economic development of its developing member countries. Since its founding, the Bank has made loans totaling $8.1 billion, contributing to a total investment of over $20.0 billion.

During calendar year 1980, agriculture and agro-industry accounted for the largest share of Bank lending (33%), while the increasing importance of energy development was reflected in substantial lending in this sector (26%). Other sectors funded were social infrastructure (16%) and transport and communications (15%). In 1981, the Bank is expected to lend $1.7 billion with 1982 and 1983 levels projected to be $1.9 billion and $2.3 billion.

The Bank lends at near-market rates through its ordinary capital window and on highly concessional terms to the region's poorer nations through the Asian Development Fund. The 1983 appropriation request includes contributions to both funds in the amount of $132 million (plus $2 million for callable capital under a program limitation).

Ordinary capital.—The U.S. has subscribed all but $2.5 million of its $814 million share of the ADB's last capital increase. The remaining $248 thousand of budget authority (plus $2.2 million for callable capital under a program limitation) is sought in 1983.

Asian Development Fund.—The 1983 request includes a payment of $20.4 million to the first replenishment of the ADF, plus a fourth U.S. payment of $111.3 million to the $2.0 billion second replenishment.

in the most unusual circumstances, its loans are not extended to countries with a per capita GNP in excess of $550. The United States joined the AFDF in 1976; its other members include 14 European countries, Argentina, Brazil, Canada, Japan, Korea, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, and the African Development Bank.

During 1981, AFDF lending amounted to $250 million, distributed among 18 African nations. It was used to finance projects in the agricultural, transportation, public utilities, and education and health sectors, with agriculture accounting for the largest proportion of lending. The transportation sector had the second largest share, while the third highest level was for public utilities including water supply, sewerage, and rural electrification.

The third replenishment of the AFDF is in its final stages of negotiation. The 1983 request for the AFDF is $50 million—the first installment of the $150 million estimated U.S. share. The Administration will recommend legislation to authorize U.S. participation in the third replenishment as soon as negotiations are completed in 1982.

The African Development Fund (AFDF) was founded in 1973 as the concessional lending affiliate of the African Development Bank. The AFDF is designed to channel resources to the poorest African nations and, except

The African Development Bank (AFDB) was established in 1964 to make loans on near-market terms for the economic and social development of its African members. While the United States and other nonregional countries are members of the Bank's concessional affiliate, the African Development Fund, membership in the Bank has been restricted to African nations, whose limited resources have severely restricted the Bank's access to the private capital markets. In an effort to broaden its financial base, the Bank is considering charter amendments to permit nonregional countries to join the institution. The U.S. previously indicated willingness to join the Bank, but there has been a delay in the ratification of the charter amendments. Should the amendments be ratified, the United States will again consider joining the Bank, in light of its previous positive position.

As of the end of 1980 cumulative Bank lending amounted to more than $1.3 billion. The principal sectors funded were transportation, industry, agriculture, water supply, and sewerage. The Bank gives special preference to projects that benefit two or more member states thus stimulating intra-African cooperation. During the remainder of its 5-year lending program for 1977-1982, the Bank intends to place greater emphasis on lending for agriculture.

The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) was established to mobilize additional resources to be made available on concessional terms for agricultural development in developing member states. The principal distinctive features of the institution are its exclusive focus on the small farmer and the relatively high percentage of contributions by OPEC nations.

During the first 4 years of its operations, the Fund has approved 74 projects totaling just over $1 billion in Africa, Asia and Latin America. It has also made technical assistance grants in the amount of $40 million. In addition, during 1981, 16 projects valued at $200 million were approved on a conditional basis because available Fund resources had been fully committed.

Negotiations for a replenishment of IFAD resources to continue lending in 1982 and beyond are underway and a U.S. contribution of $180 million has been authorized. If the remaining issues in the negotiations are successfully resolved, U.S. contributions will begin in 1983.

The functional development assistance program provides economic resources to developing countries with the aim of bringing the benefits of development to the poor. Loans and grants under this program are concentrated in those areas in which the United States has special expertise and which promise the greatest opportunity for the poor to better their lives.

Funds are provided under six separate activities:

Agriculture, rural development and nutrition.—Supports efforts to increase food production in the developing countries by improving the productivity and income of small farmers, creating greater rural employment opportunities, enhancing rural infrastructure and the environment, improving nutrition and removing impediments to equitable economic growth.

Population planning.—Supports efforts to reduce population growth rates in developing countries and to provide families with effective options in choosing the number and spacing of their children.

Health.—Assists developing countries to increase access to health care, family planning and nutrition services, to make safe water and adequate sanitation more widely available, to reduce the incidence of debilitating tropical diseases, malnutrition, diarrheal infections, measles and other preventable diseases, and to increase governmental capacity to plan and manage their health resources.

Education and human resources development.—Supports the efforts of developing countries to provide basic education for children, improve the fundamental life skills of adults, and improve the management skills and performance of managers of development programs.

Energy, private voluntary organizations and selected development activities.—Provides assistance to developing countries to better contend with national energy problems, to cope with employment and income problems in urban areas, to mitigate the problems of rapid urban migration, and to improve environmental management and resource planning. This activity also facilitates the involvement of U.S. private voluntary organizations in development and helps improve access by developing countries to U.S. scientific and technical expertise.

Science and technology.—Supports new and innovative research on problems of development and assists developing countries in improving their scientific and technological capacities.

These funds provide assistance to schools, libraries and hospitals abroad founded or sponsored by U.S. citizens which serve as demonstration centers for American ideas and practices in education and medicine. Emphasis is given to geographic dispersion of the program, with special priority to institutions in less developed countries. Grants generally finance new physical facilities, special medical and training programs, and the procurement of equipment.

Objectives of the program are (1) to strengthen the capacity of the institutions to provide the benefits of American education and medical achievements to people abroad; (2) to assist economic and social development through training and outreach programs; (3) to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and those of other countries; and (4) to serve as overseas centers fostering a favorable image of the United States.

These funds cover the costs of the U.S. Trade and Development Program (TDP), including those of managing the TDP programs, such as salaries and expenses of direct hire personnel, and those of grants for feasibility studies and other project planning services. TDP finances such planning services for major development projects in the developing world to foster economic development and enhance the use of U.S. technology, goods, and services in project implementation. TDP activities also help to assure access to natural resources of interest to the United States. TDP has overseas attaches as well as a headquarters staff in Washington, D.C., to support field programs and manage regional and worldwide activities.

The Peace Corps sends volunteers overseas to provide for the trained manpower needs of developing countries and to promote mutual understanding between the peoples of those countries and the United States. Major activities funded include the development of volunteer projects with interested Third World countries; the recruiting and training of Peace Corps Volunteers; the provision of direct support to volunteers during their service; and the overall management and administration of these programs. During 1982, the Peace Corps was separated from ACTION by Public Law 97-113 and established as a separate agency. At the time the budget was printed, final determinations had not yet been made on disposition of shared personnel and property between agencies for 1982. Such disposition will be reported to the Congress by February 15, 1982 by the Office of Management and Budget. All 1983 amounts reflect operation of the Peace Corps as an independent agency.

1. Volunteer operations.—Volunteer assignments are focused on developing self sustaining productive capacity among the poor in host countries to meet basic human needs especially in the areas of food and energy. In 1983 the Peace Corps will provide over 4,600 volunteer service years, primarily at the local village level in host countries. Volunteers will be serving in areas such as health, nutrition, food production, water supply, education, conservation, energy, economic development, income generation, housing and community services. Resources associated with this activity will provide for the training, placement and direct support of volunteers. Training includes local languages, cross-cultural adaptation, and technical skills. Direct support of volunteers includes the provision of transportation, subsistence, housing, job-related supplies, health care, and/or allowances to cover necessary expenses. It also includes a readjustment allowance for volunteers to facilitate their transition from Peace Corps to life at home. This allowance was increased from $125 to $175 per month of service effective February 1, 1982.

2. Recruitment and development education.—This activity provides for the U.S.-based functions of the Peace Corps. Primary among these is volunteer recruitment. In 1983, the Peace Corps will recruit more than 2,600 trainees for service. The agency is also making efforts to involve the U.S. private sector with the Peace Corps. The agency works with returned volunteers to promote a better understanding of other peoples on the part of the American people and to promote collaboration with other international programs. The Peace Corps also places and supports volunteers through the United Nations Volunteer Programme.

3. Program development and support.—This activity funds the administrative expenses associated with Peace Corps programs. It includes all in-country and the majority of Washington staff and expenses, as well as reimbursements to the Department of State for administrative support overseas. In 1982 the Peace Corps made a major vehicle purchase to update its overseas fleet.

Through 1961, portions of mutual security appropriations were used to purchase surplus agricultural commodities which were then sold to friendly countries for their currencies. The local currencies which accrued from these sales are used for economic activities complementary to the objectives of the U.S. foreign assistance program.

The Housing guaranty program was established by the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and significantly expanded and altered in 1965, 1969, 1975, and 1978. The program, consolidated into a single worldwide authority in 1978, extends guaranties to assist developing countries in formulating and executing sound housing and community development policies that meet the needs of lower income groups. Activities to be carried out will emphasize (1) sites and services and core housing projects providing homesites and shelter for poor families; (2) slum upgrading projects designed to conserve and improve existing shelter; (3) low-income shelter projects designed for demonstration or institution building purposes; and (4) project-related community facilities and services.

The Overseas Private Investment Corporation encourages the participation of U.S. private capital and skills in the economic and social development of less developed friendly countries. Its primary programs are (1) political risk insurance against losses due to expropriation, inconvertibility, and war damage; and (2) investment financing through loans and loan guarantees. The Corporation operates on a self-sustaining basis.

Section 608 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 created a revolving fund to finance the acquisition and rehabilitation at minimal cost of U.S. Government-owned excess property for purchase by friendly countries and eligible organizations, for use in conjunction with economic development programs. Excess property includes heavy construction equipment, vehicles, heavy machinery, electrical generating equipment, and medical equipment and supplies. The program is self-financed from service fees and reimbursements by equipment purchasers.

Objectives of the program are (1) to acquire and rehabilitate excess U.S. Government property in advance of specifically known requirements; (2) to use such property as an economy measure to conserve funds appropriated for foreign assistance; and (3) to assist eligible recipients to purchase such property with their own funds.

U.S. participation in the International Natural Rubber Agreement includes a contribution for the Agreement's buffer stock, which will trade on world markets to stabilize rubber prices and encourage adequate production. Upon termination of the Agreement, the U.S. share of the remaining assets would be refunded. During 1981, the United States decided not to join the Sixth Tin Agreement; and ratification of U.S. membership in the Common Fund for commodities has been deferred for further consideration. As a result, no new budget authority is being requested for 1982 or 1983.

As of September 30, 1981, the current dollar value of the U.S. quota denominated in Special Drawing Rights (SDR), the IMF's unit of account, was $14,430 million reflecting during the year an increase by 50% in the SDR value of the U.S. quota and changes in the dollar value of the SDR.

During 1978, IMF members agreed on a 50% increase in IMF quotas. Public Law 96-389 authorized the U.S. to consent to a quota increase of SDR 4,202.5 million, limited to amounts appropriated in appropriations acts. Public Law 96-544 appropriated the U.S. dollar equivalent of the quota increase and the U.S. consented to and paid the increase on December 30, 1980.

The United States is obligated to maintain the value, in terms of Special Drawing Rights (SDR), of dollars held by the International Monetary Fund. For this purpose, sums are transferred, in amounts as may be necessary from time to time, from this account to the account entitled "United States Quota, International Monetary Fund." These transfers are based on amounts owed at the close of the IMF's fiscal year (April 30) and amounts accrued at the close of the U.S. fiscal year. Maintenance of value payments from the IMF to the United States arising from appreciation of the dollar reduce the quota appropriation balances and are deobligated and withdrawn.

The purpose of the Supplementary Financing Facility is to augment temporarily the ability of the IMF to assist member countries with balance-of-payments problems, thereby allowing these countries time to implement required policy measures without resort to abrupt and harmful restrictions on trade and payments. Major industrial and oil-exporting countries have joined in agreeing to make available an amount equal to 7,784 million Special Drawing Rights (approximately $10 billion) to the Supplementary Financing Facility in order to provide a prompt and substantial temporary increase in the Fund's resources. The international monetary reserves of the United States are correspondingly increased by the amount of the U.S. resources transferred to the Facility, and could be drawn on by the United States in case of need. The dollar value of U.S. claims under the Supplementary Financing Facility declined by $9.9 million during the year as a consequence of exchange value changes. Any exchange value changes will be realized upon repayment of the loans. During 1981, calls made on the United States under the Supplementary Financing Facility totalled $526.2 million. No repayments were made during the year.

The General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) were established in 1962 by 10 industrial countries, including the United States, as a means of supplementing the IMF's resources when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. Each participant undertakes to provide specific amounts of its currency to help finance drawings from the IMF by another GAB participant.

During 1981, no calls were made on the United States under the GAB; and no loans by the United States remained outstanding at the beginning of the year.

This revolving fund will finance the acquisition of defense articles and defense services in anticipation of their transfer pursuant to the Arms Export Control Act, the Foreign Assistance Act, or as otherwise authorized by law, to foreign countries and international organizations. The fund enhances the ability of the United States to fulfill urgent requirements of allied and friendly governments for military equipment while minimizing the adverse impact on U.S. forces due to diversions from production or withdrawals from U.S. military stocks. It should also reduce procurement lead times for foreign customers as well as smooth production rates, thus increasing efficiency and reducing costs for U.S. procurements.

The account is capitalized by receipts from foreign military sales of defense articles not intended to be replaced; collections from the use of assets; and recoupment of nonrecurring research, development, and production costs.

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

【SEC. 501. None of the funds appropriated in this Act (other than funds appropriated for "International organizations and programs") shall be used to finance the construction of any new flood control, reclamation, or other water or related land resource project or program which has not met the standards and criteria used in determining the feasibility of flood control, reclamation, and other water and related land resource programs and projects proposed for construction within the United States of America under the Principles and Standards for Planning Water and Related Land Resources dated October 25, 1973.】

【SEC. 502. Except for the appropriations entitled "International disaster assistance", "United States emergency refugee and migration assistance fund" and the special requirements fund within the appropriations entitled "Military Assistance" and the special requirements fund within the appropriations entitled "Economic support fund", not more than 15 per centum of any appropriation item made available by this Act for the fiscal year 1982 shall be obligated or reserved during the last month of availability.】

【SEC. 503. None of the funds appropriated in this Act nor any of the counterpart funds generated as a result of assistance hereunder or any prior Act shall be used to pay pensions, annuities, retirement pay, or adjusted service compensation for any persons heretofore or hereafter serving in the armed forces of any recipient country.】

【SEC. 504. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, may be used for making payments on any contract for procurement to which the United States is a party entered into after the date of enactment of this Act which does not contain a provision authorizing the termination of such contract for the convenience of the United States.】

【SEC. 505. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, may be used to pay in whole or in part any assessments, arrearages, or dues of any member of the United Nations.】

【SEC. 506. None of the funds contained in title II of this Act may be used to carry out the provisions of section 209(d) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961.】

【SEC. 507. Of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act, not to exceed $110,000 shall be for official residence expenses of the Agency for International Development during the fiscal year 1982: Provided, That appropriate steps shall be taken to assure that, to the maximum extent possible, United States-owned foreign currencies are utilized in lieu of dollars.】

【SEC. 508. Of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act, not to exceed $10,000 shall be for entertainment expenses of the Agency for International Development during fiscal year 1982.】

SEC. 509. Of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act, not to exceed $100,000 shall be for representation allowances of the Agency for International Development during fiscal year 1982: Provided, That appropriate steps shall be taken to assure that, to the maximum extent possible, United States-owned foreign currencies are utilized in lieu of dollars: Provided further, That of the total funds made available by this Act under the headings "Military Assistance" and "Foreign Military Credit Sales", not to exceed $2,500 shall be available for entertainment expenses and not to exceed $70,000 shall be available for representation allowances: Provided further, That of the funds made available by this Act under the heading "International Military Education and Training", not to exceed $125,000 shall be available for entertainment allowances: Provided further, That of the funds made available by this Act for the Inter-American Foundation, not to exceed $2,500 shall be available for entertainment and representation allowances: Provided further, That of the funds made available by this Act for the Peace Corps, not to exceed a total of $4,000 shall be available for entertainment expenses.】

SEC. 510. None of the funds appropriated or made available (other than funds for "International organizations and programs") pursuant to this Act for carrying out the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, may be used to finance the export of nuclear equipment, fuel, or technology or to provide assistance for the training of foreign nationals in nuclear fields.】

SEC. 511. Funds appropriated by this Act may not be obligated or expended to provide assistance to any country for the purpose of aiding the efforts of the government of such country to repress the legitimate rights of the population of such country contrary to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.】

SEC. 512. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act shall be obligated or expended to finance directly any assistance to Mozambique, except that the President may waive this prohibition if he determines, and so reports to the Congress, that furnishing such assistance would further the foreign policy interests of the United States.】

SEC. 513. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to this Act shall be obligated or expended to finance directly any assistance or reparations to Libya, Iraq, or South Yemen. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available pursuant to this Act shall be obligated or expended to finance directly any assistance or reparations to Angola, Cambodia, Cuba, Laos, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, or Syria.】

SEC. 514. None of the funds made available by this Act may be obligated under an appropriation account to which they were not appropriated without the written prior approval of the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of the Congress.】

SEC. 515. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes within the United States not authorized before the date of enactment of this Act by the Congress.】

SEC. 516. 501. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation after the expiration of the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided in this Act.

SEC. 517. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to furnish assistance to any country which is in default during a period in excess of one calendar year in payment to the United States of principal or interest on any loan made to such country by the United States pursuant to a program for which funds are appropriated under this Act.】

SEC. 518. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act shall be available to any international financial institution whose United States representative cannot upon request obtain the amounts and the names of borrowers for all loans of the international financial institution, including loans to employees of the institution, or the compensation and related benefits of employees of the institution.】

SEC. 519. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act shall be available to any international financial institution whose United States representative cannot upon request obtain any document developed by the management of the international financial institutions.】

SEC. 520. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act to the Export-Import Bank and funds appropriated by this Act for direct foreign assistance may be obligated for any government which aids or abets, by granting sanctuary from prosecution to, any individual or group which has committed or is being sought by any other government for prosecution for any war crime or an act of international terrorism, unless the President finds that the national security requires otherwise.】

SEC. 521. None of the funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act for direct assistance and none of the funds otherwise made available pursuant to this Act to the Export-Import Bank and the Overseas Private Investment Corporation shall be obligated or expended to finance any loan, any assistance or any other financial commitments for establishing or expanding production of any commodity for export by any country other than the United States, if the commodity is likely to be in surplus on world markets at the time the resulting productive capacity is expected to become operative and if the assistance will cause substantial injury to United States producers of the same, similar, or competing commodity: Provided, That such prohibition shall not apply to the Export-Import Bank if in the judgment of its Board of Directors the benefits to industry and employment in the United States are likely to outweigh the injury to United States producers of the same, similar, or competing commodity.】

SEC. 522. The Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States executive directors of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Development Association, the International Finance Corporation, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the African Development Bank, and the African Development Fund to use the voice and vote of the United States to oppose any assistance by these institutions, using funds appropriated or made available pursuant to this Act, for the production of any commodity for export, if it is in surplus on world markets and if the assistance will cause substantial injury to United States producers of the same, similar, or competing commodity.】

SEC. 523. None of the funds made available under this Act for "Agriculture, rural development, and nutrition, Development Assistance," "Population, Development Assistance," "Health, Development Assistance," "Education and human resources development, Development Assistance," "Energy, private voluntary organizations, and selected development activities, Development Assistance," "Science and technology, Development Assistance," "International organizations and programs," "American schools and hospitals abroad," "Trade and development program," "Sahel development program," "International narcotics control," "Economic support fund," "Peacekeeping operations," "Operating Expenses of the Agency for International Development," "Military assistance," "International military education and training," "Foreign military credit sales," "Inter-American Foundation," "Peace Corps," or "Migration and refugee assistance," shall be available for obligation for activities, programs, projects, type of materiel assistance, countries, or other operation not justified or in excess of the amount justified to the Appropriations Committees for obligation under any of these specific headings for the fiscal year 1982 unless the Appropriations Committees of both Houses of Congress are previously notified fifteen days in advance.】

SEC. 524. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.】

1. Budget and program analysis.—This activity provides direction and administration of the Department's budgetary functions including development, presentation, execution, control, reporting and adjusting fund and manpower resources; evaluates program and legislative proposals for program, budget and related resource implications; develops and maintains a mission-oriented program structure which defines Department missions, goals and objectives for the purpose of establishing long- and short-range program planning and to aid the Secretary and other Departmental and agency officials in making management decisions regarding the Department's programs and resources. Analyzes program and resource issues and alternatives, and prepares summaries of pertinent data to aid Departmental policy officials and agency program managers in the decisionmaking process.

2. Operations and finance.—This includes overall general direction and coordination of department-wide accounting, fiscal and other financial activities; administration of the Department's paperwork management program; development of departmental policies and procedures for telecommunications, construction, contracting, procurement, property, mail, space, supply, and transportation management. This activity also covers the coordination and direction of the development and management of data processing for the Department.

3. Personnel.—This covers implementation of civil service reform provisions, general direction, leadership, and coordination of the personnel management program of the Department. Departmental policies and procedures are issued and the Office coordinates a review program to evaluate the effectiveness of agency personnel programs.

4. Equal opportunity.—This covers program and policy direction in the development and enforcement of Department equal opportunity responsibilities; review, analysis, and evaluation of agency programs and operations to ascertain compliance with applicable policies, rules, and regulations of the Department and the Government, and processing complaints made to the Department on discrimination in Department programs and providing final Department disposition. This activity also includes the Department's equal employment opportunity program.

5. Safety and health management.—This activity provides overall leadership, development, coordination, and implementation of policies, standards, techniques, and procedures to assure safe and healthful work conditions for departmental employees; including the provision of liaison with other Federal agencies and State and local governments on all safety and health matters of the Department, and the administration of a departmentwide integrated safety management information system.

6. Small and disadvantaged business utilization.—This activity provides the maximum opportunities for small business concerns, especially those owned and controlled by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals, to participate in the Department's procurement contracts.

7. Energy.—This activity provides overall coordination of the Department's energy policies and strategies and serves as the Department liaison with the Department of Energy and other government agencies. This activity was formerly funded in the Budget and Program Analysis line activity.

The Office keeps the Secretary and the Congress fully and currently informed about fraud, other serious problems, abuses and deficiencies in Department programs and operations, recommends corrective action, and reports on the progress made in correcting the problems. It reviews existing and proposed legislation and regulations and makes recommendations to the Secretary and Congress regarding the impact these laws, rules and initiatives have had or will have on the economy and efficiency of the Department's programs and operations and the prevention and detection of fraud and abuse in such programs. The office provides policy direction and conducts, supervises, and coordinates all audits and investigations; recommends policies for and conducts, supervises or coordinates other activities in the Department and between the Department and other Federal, State and local Government agencies whose purposes are to (a) promote economy and efficiency, (b) prevent and detect fraud and abuse, and (c) identify and prosecute people involved in fraud or abuse.

This assures that existing laws, policies, and Department regulations are complied with, that Department programs are effectively managed, that corrective action is taken when serious problems are found, and that there is a positive program to prevent and detect fraud and abuse.

The Office serves as legal counsel for the Secretary of Agriculture and performs all legal work for the Department. It represents the Department in administrative proceedings for the promulgation of rules and regulations having the force and effect of law and in quasi-judicial hearings held in connection with the administration of Department programs. The Office also represents the Secretary in proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission dealing with rates and practices relating to the transportation of agricultural commodities and in appeals to the courts from the decisions of the Commission. It examines titles to lands to be acquired by the Department or accepted as security for loans, and disposes of claims arising out of Department activities.

The Department is requesting an increase in the Agricultural Research Service budget which is sufficient to protect base programs against anticipated 1982 and 1983 inflation effects and achieve an annual real growth of 3.0% since 1981. Much of the inflation offset has been targeted to specific high priority program areas. In addition, funds are provided to continue the emphasis on program policy evaluations and impact analyses of the science and education programs.

1. Research on animal production.—Research is conducted to improve livestock productivity (including poultry) through improved breeding, feeding, and management practices, and to develop methods for controlling diseases, parasites, and insect pests affecting them. In fiscal year 1983 increased emphasis will be on basic research and animal protection research.

2. Research on plant production.—Research is conducted to improve plant productivity through improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; develop new crop resources; and improve crop production practices, including methods to control plant diseases, nematodes, insects, and weeds. Initiatives proposed in 1983 include basic research, including integrated pest management, germplasm, and range research.

3. Research on the use and improvement of soil, air, and water.—Research is conducted to improve the management of natural resources, including investigations to improve soil and water management, irrigation, and conservation practices; to protect natural resources from harmful effects of soil, air, and water pollutants and to minimize certain agricultural pollution problems; and to determine the relation of soil types and water to plant, animal, and human nutrition. Initiatives included in 1983 include basic research, research to support the Resource Conservation Act, acid precipitation, and research on water resources and water quality.

4. Processing, storage, distribution, food safety, and consumer services research.—Research is conducted to develop new and improved foods, feeds, fabrics, and industrial products and processes for agricultural commodities for domestic and foreign markets, including ways to minimize processing wastes as well as the processing, transportation, storage, wholesaling, and retailing of products.

Research is also conducted on problems of human health and safety, including means to insure the safety of food and feed supplies; control insect pests of man and his belongings; reduce the hazards to human life resulting from pesticide residues and other causes; and on consumer services. Initiatives in 1983 include basic research to further support action agency requirements.

5. Research on human nutrition.—Research is conducted on human nutritional requirements, composition and nutritive value of foods, dietary status, monitoring and surveillance and nutrition education and methodology needs of Federal, State, and local agencies administering food and nutrition programs. Increases in 1983 include assessment and status of human nutrient and nutritional requirements. Functions associated with the Consumer Nutrition Center and the Human Nutrition Information and Dietary Guidance Division were transferred to the Human Nutrition Information Service in 1982.

6. Repair and maintenance of facilities.—Funds are used to restore, upgrade, and maintain Federal facilities to meet OSHA and EPA requirements, provide suitable workspace for inhouse research programs, and to retrofit existing structures for better energy utilization.

7. Contingencies.—$1 million will be available to meet urgent needs that develop unexpectedly during the year when such needs cannot be met by redirection of resources from other projects.

8. Construction of facilities.—Amounts reflect costs from unexpended balances. There is no funding request for this item.

1. Payments under the Hatch Act.—Funds under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and Micronesia, for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community. The increase requested for 1983 will partially offset increased operating costs.

2. Cooperative forestry research.—These funds are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and Micronesia and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school. The 1983 request provides for a general program decrease.

3. Payments to 1890 colleges and Tuskegee Institute.—Funds support planning, coordinating and conducting agricultural research at the 1890 land-grant colleges including Tuskegee Institute. The eligible institutions plan and conduct agricultural research in cooperation with each other and such agencies, institutions, and individuals as may contribute to the solution of agricultural problems. The increase requested for 1983 will partially offset increased operating costs.

4. Special research grants.—These funds support basic and applied research in the areas of pest management, pesticide clearance, pesticide impact assessment, soil erosion, food and agriculture policies, animal health, germplasm resources, aquaculture, antidesertification, soybeans, tropical and subtropical, and food quality and safety research.

5. Competitive research grants.—This program emphasizes basic research critical to food production and human nutrition. In 1983 it is proposed that $19.9 million be provided for grants to study serious problems relating to plant science research and $3.0 million be provided for human nutrition research.

6. Rural development.—Funds appropriated under title V of the Rural Development Act of 1972 are allocated to land-grant colleges and universities of the 50 States and Puerto Rico, to conduct pilot research programs in support of the development of rural areas.

The 1982 and 1983 funds are provided under the Hatch Act, which is consistent with the intent of Congress in appropriating funds for fiscal year 1981.

7. Animal health and disease research.—Funds, distributed by legislated formula, support livestock and poultry disease research in colleges of veterinary medicine and in eligible agricultural experiment stations. Research on specified national and regional problems of joint USDA-State concern is conducted as agreed upon between the USDA and specific eligible institutions. No funds are provided for this authority in 1983. Animal health and disease research can be implemented by the States using other formula research funds.

8. Federal administration (direct appropriation).—A research coordinating and review staff is maintained which encourages and assists in the establishment and maintenance of cooperation within and among the States and between the States and their Federal research partners, and which administers research grants and payments to States. Federal administration is funded from a combination of program set-asides from formula and grant programs and from direct appropriation for administration. The decrease in the 1983 request reflects the refocusing of this staff to provide more national leadership and less program oversight with respect to the formula funded programs. The phased in change should ultimately result in less program set-asides for Federal administration.

9. 1890 facilities.—Funds support the purchase of land and the construction, alteration or renovation of buildings necessary for the conduct of food and agricultural research at colleges eligible to receive funds under the Act of August 30, 1890, including Tuskegee Institute.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, community development, 4-H youth programs, and related subjects. This educational work takes research results, technological advancements, and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural colleges and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a program for action. Cooperative Extension Service interprets, disseminates, and encourages practical use of knowledge. It transmits information from researchers to people.

1. Payments to States.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act for payments to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and Micronesia are distributed primarily on the basis of population and to a degree on the basis of special problems and needs. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State, area, and county extension workers who work with individuals, families, community organizations, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods for production, marketing; nutrition, family living, and community development. Work with youth is accomplished largely through the 4-H program. These funds are matched by the States and provide the Federal share of State retirement and penalty mail costs associated with program activities specifically undertaken with these matched funds.

2. Federal administration and coordination.—The Extension Service provides leadership and assistance to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, and Micronesia in developing extension programs, improving teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, and administrative services. These responsibilities are funded from a combination of program set-asides for administering payments to States and from direct appropriations for the Federal Extension Administration. The decrease in 1983 reflects the refocusing of this staff to provide more national leadership and less program oversight with respect to the formula funded programs. The phased in change should ultimately result in less program set-asides for Federal administration.

The estimated use of funds requested for 1983 compared with 1982 is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The National Agricultural Library (NAL) in cooperation with the Library of Congress and the National Library of Medicine, provides coverage and servicing of worldwide publications in the agricultural, chemical, and biological sciences. It serves all of the Department programs in the Washington metropolitan area, as well as the field installations throughout the country. It has the added responsibility of service to the land-grant universities, and the world agricultural science community.

The primary purpose of NAL is to acquire, preserve, and disseminate an exhaustive collection of reliable information in all phases of the agricultural and allied sciences. NAL also maintains, in cooperation with the Office of General Counsel, a central law library and 17 field legal libraries.

The National Agricultural Library provides a variety of information products and services to users in all areas of agriculture on a national and international level to help meet the broad-based information needs of the agricultural communities. This is accomplished through three major activities: (1) The administration of a unique collection of books, journals, and other information materials about food and agriculture to assure accessibility to their contents; (2) the development and maintenance of cooperative efforts in the library and related information areas, with other Federal agencies and with educational institutions in each State; (3) an active program of information dissemination. Three primary groups of users have been identified: (1) USDA scientists and other researchers, agricultural scientists at land-grant universities and other institutions of higher learning and in State agricultural agencies; (2) Federal and State administrators and managers; and (3) farmers, farm-supporting institutions, and the rural and urban consuming public. Priority is being given to the third segment. The requested increase in fiscal year 1983 will be used to establish national cost-sharing to regionalize indexing, document delivery, information creation and dissemination; to establish an integrated reproduction management system and for increased operating costs. The function associated with the Food and Nutrition Information Center was transferred to the Human Nutrition Information Service in 1982.

1. Crop and livestock estimates.—The Service provides the official National and State estimates of acreage, yield, and production of crops, stocks and value of farm commodities, and numbers of inventory values of livestock items. Data on approximately 150 crops and livestock products are covered in some 475 reports issued each year. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices.

The work under this activity is conducted through 44 State offices serving the 50 States; most of these offices are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide much additional State and county data; Federal funds are not available for collection and publication of these data.

A comparison of activities in 1981, 1982, and 1983 including work performed under cooperative arrangements follows:

Separate mailings of inquiry forms, average per field office.....	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Questionnaires distributed.....	4,400,000	4,200,000	4,000,000
Questionnaires tabulated.....	2,550,000	2,450,000	2,350,000
Official reports.....	9,100	8,800	8,700
Special requests for information handled.....	92,000	93,000	95,000

Major program modifications in 1983 include: An increase of $900,000 will provide improved quality of surveys on farm grain and oilseed stocks through instituting probability sampling methods; eliminating the Farmline Magazine which will result in savings of $232,000; savings of $1,212,000 associated with instituting subscription charges for SRS publications; and savings of $1,095,000 resulting from the elimination and modification of several special purposes surveys.

2. Statistical research and service.—The work of the Service under this activity is to improve crop and livestock estimating techniques by improving sample survey designs and procedures, and testing of new forecasting and estimating techniques, such as the use of satellite data. Also included is the review, coordination and monitoring of surveys conducted by USDA, and review of proposed statistical forms and survey plans prior to submittal to OMB for clearance.

Research is conducted to improve statistical methods and techniques for producing agricultural statistics with a high degree of accuracy at a minimum cost. This research is done in support of the SRS long-range program for improving crop and livestock estimates and is directed toward better sampling, yield forecasting and survey techniques for the Agency. Current research activities include constructing mathematical models for forecasting crop yields from objective counts and measurements of plant characteristics, reducing reporting and other nonsampling errors by improving questionnaire design, devising better field editing and processing procedures, and testing of alternative sample design techniques. Research under the AgRISTARS program is continuing primarily to improve the accuracy of domestic and foreign crop acreage and land cover estimates, development of an early warning and crop condition assessment capability, and improvement of crop yield forecasting programs. The major program modification is an increase of $300,000 for the acquisition of LANDSAT data.

The appropriation "Salaries and Expenses" of the Economic Research Service funds the activity authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946, as follows: Economic analysis and research—this activity includes agricultural economic and other social science research, outlook forecasting, policy analysis, and data collection and management related to U.S. and international agriculture, natural resources, and rural people and communities. The economic information is produced to address the multitude of economic concerns and decisionmaking needs of policy officials in the Congress and Federal, State, and local governments, farmers, extension workers, private analysts, processors, marketers, input suppliers, and consumers. A comparison of output data for 1981, 1982, and 1983 follows:

The World Agricultural Outlook Board (WAOB) was established by Secretary's memorandum No. 1920 dated June 3, 1977, as authorized by reorganization plan No. 2 of 1953, to provide a single focal point for the Nation's economic intelligence related to domestic and international food and agriculture.

The objectives of the WAOB are to improve the consistency, objectivity, and reliability of outlook and situation material being disseminated to the public and to integrate and coordinate USDA domestic and international economic information assistance.

The WAOB carries out these objectives through daily market surveillance and special analyses of international and domestic agricultural developments, direct par-

General and special funds:

FOREIGN AGRICULTURAL SERVICE

For necessary expenses of the Foreign Agricultural Service, including carrying out title VI of the Agricultural Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1761-1768), market development activities abroad, and for enabling the Secretary to coordinate and integrate activities of the Department in connection with foreign agricultural work, including not to exceed [$100,000] $114,000 for representation allowances and for expenses pursuant to section 8 of the Act approved August 3, 1956 (7 U.S.C. 1766), [$67,694,000] $79,207,000: Provided, That not less than $255,000 of the funds contained in this appropriation shall be available to obtain statistics and related facts on foreign production and full and complete information on methods used by other countries to move farm commodities in world trade on a competitive basis. (7 U.S.C. 1762, 2201-02; 19 U.S.C. 2501; 22 U.S.C. 3963; Public Law 97-103, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies, 1982.)

GENERAL SALES MANAGER

(ALLOTMENT FROM COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION)

Not to exceed [$5,436,000] $5,599,000 may be transferred from the Commodity Credit Corporation funds to support the General Sales Manager who shall work to expand and strengthen sales of U.S. commodities (including those of the Corporation) in world markets pursuant to existing authority (including that contained in the Corporation's charter), and that such funds shall be used by the General Sales Manager to carry out the above activities. The General Sales Manager shall report directly to the Board of Directors of the Corporation of which the Secretary of Agriculture is a member. The General Sales Manager shall obtain, assimilate, and analyze all available information on developments related to private sales, as well as those funded by the Corporation, including grade and quality as sold and as delivered, including information relating to the effectiveness of greater reliance by the General Sales Manager upon loan guarantees as contrasted to direct loans for financing commercial export sales of agricultural commodities out of private stocks on credit terms, as provided in title I and II of the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978, Public Law 95-501, and shall submit [quarterly] annual reports to the appropriate committees of Congress concerning such developments. The Foreign Agricultural Service mission is to help American farmers and traders take maximum advantage of increased opportunities to sell U.S. agricultural commodities abroad and to help increase U.S. farm income.

Activities are conducted within four program areas:

1. Foreign agricultural affairs.—The Service maintains agricultural counselors, attachés or trade officers at 74 foreign posts to assist overseas development of markets for U.S. farm commodities. They work closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups and maintain significant contacts with foreign governments and traders to promote market access for U.S. farm products. They also file annually about 4,700 comprehensive reports regarding foreign agricultural production, supply, demand, marketing and trade policy developments to keep U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

2. Commodity analysis and services.—This program forges a link between the Foreign Agricultural Affairs program and the agency's analytical/informational and market development planning/services functions that serve the U.S. agricultural community and Government decisionmakers. The analysis and timely release of periodicals on world commodity conditions allow U.S. farm and trade groups to have ready access to information that can be used as reliable sources to assess short-term changes in world agricultural supply conditions by commodity.

The analyses of world commodity conditions provide the information necessary to develop export marketing strategies that can be used not only by the Department to gain market access but to enhance the long term market development plans for major U.S. commodities.

3. Foreign market development.—This program provides funding support to 49 commodity associations (co-operators), 39 contractors participating in the export incentive program, 4 regional groups (representing 47 State departments of agriculture) and the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture. Under FAS guidance and supervision, these organizations conduct an extensive worldwide market development program on behalf of the U.S. farm sector. In addition, the Service develops and operates a worldwide system of multicommodity promotional programs utilizing product exhibits, trade teams, trade services, market information programs, and trade referral services to expand overseas markets. To increase the effectiveness of USDA export promotion efforts, the Agricultural Trade Act of 1978 authorized the Service to establish agricultural trade offices throughout the world. Currently, the trade offices are located in Hamburg, Bahrain, Singapore, Seoul, Warsaw, London, Caracas, Lagos, Beijing, and Tunis.

4. LANDSAT data.—This activity supports the foreign crop assessment program. LANDSAT, the Earth resources satellite system, provides the collection, ground data handling, and dissemination of satellite data used in the assessment of foreign crop conditions.

5. General sales manager.—This activity formulates policies and administers agricultural commodity export programs including: Public Law 480 which facilitates the sale of agricultural commodities on a long-term credit basis and the donation of agricultural commodities to foreign governments, intergovernmental and voluntary agencies and the world food program and the CCC export credit guarantee program. Effective October 1, 1981, this activity is no longer funded by an allocation from the CCC, Limitation on Administrative Expenses Account. Instead, this activity is being financed on a reimbursable basis from the CCC Capital Fund to the FAS direct appropriation account.

Program changes for 1983.—The 1983 budget represents an increase of $11,513 thousand from 1982. An increase of $1,416 thousand is requested for the foreign agricultural affairs program to offset the impact of increased operating costs resulting primarily from overseas wage and price increases. This represents a reduction of ten full-time positions. An increase of $4,185 thousand is also sought for the foreign market development program to provide a major increase in export promotion and joint ventures with private industry for export expansion. A decrease of $1,102 thousand is requested for commodity analysis and services, representing a reduction of twenty full-time positions. An increase of $163 thousand for pay costs is included under the general sales manager. Finally, $7,014 thousand is included in the budget for purchase of LANDSAT data previously provided on a no cost basis to FAS. This does not represent an increase in program activity, but a shift of where the costs are reflected.

Foreign market development.—Foreign currencies generated by the sale of agricultural commodities under Title 1 of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, as well as foreign currencies acquired by the United States from other sources, are used by the Foreign Agricultural Service to develop new foreign markets and expand existing markets for U.S. agricultural commodities.

The type of market development projects being carried out include trade servicing, sales teams, trade fairs and exhibits, feed demonstrations, and market analyses and research.

The mission of the Office of International Cooperation and Development (OICD) is to coordinate the execution of Departmental policies and programs to alleviate hunger and malnutrition throughout the world and improve other nations capabilities to improve their agricultural production and rural development. Toward this end, OICD directs AID and country-funded international training and technical assistance; manages USDA's participation in cooperative programs of international scientific exchange and research for which there are mutual benefits; facilitates USDA's collaboration with the university community in international scientific and cooperation programs; and participates in the formulation and evaluation of food aid development projects (Public Law 480, Titles I and III.)

OICD is the lead agency in the Department of Agriculture responsible for planning of international agricultural development policy, the formulation and review of agricultural assistance efforts, and in the development of scientific exchanges with other countries on agricultural research. It is responsible for departmental liaison with national and international organizations responsible for food and agriculture in international development and facilitates their access to U.S. scientific and institutional resources.

USDA's extensive foreign technical assistance and international training programs traditionally are funded on a reimbursable basis from AID. In addition USDA enters into direct reimbursable agreements with foreign governments and international organizations for technical assistance and training projects.

Program changes for 1983.—The 1983 budget represents an increased program level of $143 thousand for increased pay costs: $76 thousand for direct programs and $67 thousand for reimbursable programs.

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS

Facilities and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation may by law be used in carrying out programs for exporting agricultural commodities.

Included in this category are the following activities carried out under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, Public Law 480, 83d Congress, as amended: Financing sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or for convertible foreign currency on credit terms (titles I and III); and supplying agricultural commodities for dispositions abroad (title II).

Factors determining availability of commodities for disposition under Public Law 480 are productive capacity, domestic requirements, farm and consumer price levels, anticipated commercial exports, and adequate carryover. No commodity is available for disposition under the act if the disposition thereof would reduce the domestic supply below that needed to meet domestic requirements, adequate carryover, and anticipated exports for dollars, unless the Secretary determines that some part of the supply should be used for urgent humanitarian purposes.

In determining the reimbursement due the Corporation, commodities supplied from the Corporation's inventory, which were acquired under a domestic price support program, are valued at a price not greater than the export market price at the time of delivery.

Appropriations are authorized to cover costs of such programs. When funds become available, advances are made to the Corporation for estimated costs. If the amounts appropriated are greater than actual needs, the excess is used to reduce future appropriation requests. If funds appropriated plus carryover balances for title II are less than actual needs, Corporation funds not in excess of such limitations as may be provided in appropriation acts may be used temporarily to finance the balance of authorized costs. No agreements to finance sales under the authority of title I or programs of assistance under title II may be entered into after December 31, 1985.

Regarding the new Federal credit control policies instituted with the 1981 budget, existing appropriation language provides for sufficient control of titles I and III credit activities.

1. Financing the sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms (titles I and III).—The Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I, and may serve as the purchasing or shipping agent, or both, if the purchaser so requests. Sales are made to friendly countries—as defined in section 103(d) of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (secs. 103 (c) and (n)).

Agreements may not be made under title I in any calendar year which call for an appropriation to reimburse the Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations. Spending authority for title I for any fiscal year is limited to the extent or the amounts provided in appropriations acts.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies convertible to dollars. These initial payments are applied against costs to reduce appropriation requests. Also, payment upon delivery in dollars or foreign currencies, to the extent that such currency is needed for payment of U.S. obligations and certain other purposes, may be required.

At least 50% of the gross tonnage of commodities shipped under the authority of title I is required to be transported on U.S.-flag vessels in accordance with the Cargo Preference Act. When U.S.-flag vessels are required to be used, the Corporation will finance the ocean freight charges to the extent of the differential between U.S.-flag rates and foreign-flag rates. In addition, in the case of commodities shipped under a title III food for development program to a country on the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development list of relatively least developed countries, CCC is authorized to pay freight from U.S. ports to designated ports of entry abroad or to designated points of entry abroad in the case of landlocked countries.

(a) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I).—Agreements for sales of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies were made until December 31, 1971, to countries unable to expand commercial purchases because of a lack of dollar exchange.

Certain U.S. uses of foreign currencies, including foreign currency loan repayments, and certain foreign currency grants, are subject to the appropriation process. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied as a reduction in appropriation requests.

(b) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms (title I).—Agreements for the financing of sales of U.S. agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms are made with friendly countries. They may provide for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity. However, as a matter of practice, supply periods of agreements rarely extend beyond 2 years.

Countries meeting the poverty criterion established for International Development Association financing and which are unable to produce or commercially purchase sufficient food for their immediate requirements are to receive not less than 75% of the food aid commodities allocated and agreed to be delivered in each fiscal year under title I financing agreements, unless the President certifies that such food assistance to other countries is required for humanitarian purposes or the required 75% allocation could not be used effectively to carry out humanitarian or development purposes of title I.

Credit terms are to be no less favorable than those required by sections 122 (a) and (b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under those sections.

Dollar credit repayments are made in reasonable annual amounts over periods of not to exceed 20 years from the date of last delivery in each calendar year under the agreement, except that the first annual principal payment may be deferred for a period of not more than 2 years from the date of last delivery. Convertible foreign currency terms permit repayment of up to 40 years with deferral of principal payments for up to 10 years. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reduce appropriation requests.

The estimates under title I include the cost of financing sales of commodities for which there have been concluded food for development programs under title III of the act. When a food for development program has been agreed upon with a country, CCC is authorized to furnish credit under title I for the purchase by such country of available commodities to be delivered for periods from 1 to 5 years. Funds accruing from the local sale of the commodities or the dollar sales value of the commodities, which are used by such country for approved development projects, are applied against the repayment obligations of such country under the title I agreement. Disbursements of funds for U.S. approved activities in an amount equivalent to the dollar value of the credit furnished by CCC are deemed to be payment of all installments of principal and interest payable thereon for the commodities purchased.

Total title I agreements made since inception to September 30, 1981, amount to $11,586 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipment on U.S. ships. Major commodities are wheat, cotton, oils, rice, and feed grains. Payments received during the period amount to $2,486.1 million, of which $1,581.7 million was applied to principal and $904.4 million to interest.

The following table reflects the composition of the combined appropriations (in thousands of dollars):

2. Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).—Under title II, agricultural commodities are furnished to developing countries to meet famine or other emergency relief needs, as well as to promote economic and community development and to combat malnutrition. They are furnished through friendly governments, private voluntary agencies, foreign nonprofit voluntary agencies if no such U.S. agency is available, and intergovernmental organizations such as the United Nations World Food Program.

The law provides that a minimum of 1.7 million metric tons of agricultural commodities shall be distributed in fiscal year 1982 and each fiscal year thereafter, of which not less than 1.2 million metric tons for non-emergency programs shall be through nonprofit voluntary agencies and the World Food Program, unless the President determines and so reports to Congress that such quantity cannot be used effectively for intended purposes or that such a quantity is not available.

The Agency for International Development is responsible for administering title II programs. However, the Corporation makes available the commodities or products requested for disposition under title II. Such commodities or products are made available from the Corporation's stocks of commodities or products acquired under its support program or are purchased from private stocks.

The Corporation is authorized to pay, with respect to commodities made available, the costs of acquisition, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports. The Corporation also pays ocean freight charges, and pays transportation costs to points of entry other than ports in the case of landlocked countries, where carriers to a specific country are unavailable, where ports cannot be used effectively, or where a substantial saving in costs or time can be obtained, and pays general average contributions arising from ocean transport.

Up to $7.5 million each year may be used to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes of the need for such aid. Such costs may not include personnel and administrative costs of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies and recipient agencies.

Through December 31, 1981, appropriations totaling $12,850 million were authorized. Beginning in 1982, no programs of assistance shall be undertaken under this title during any calendar year which call for an appropriation of more than $1 billion to reimburse the Corporation. This limitation applies to costs incurred, including its investment in commodities (but only on the basis of a price not greater than the export market price of commodities acquired under a price support program), plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year. Any incidental sales proceeds and proceeds from loss, damage, and other claims are applied against costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests.

The following reflects the composition of the appropriations (in thousands of dollars):

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of national, commodity, State, and county offices.

1. Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and commodity support programs, and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the support program, have a tremendous impact on the national and (to a lesser extent) the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate more effective programs.

2. Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and price support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including: (a) developing program regulations and procedures; (b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs; (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms; (d) establishing individual farm allotments and yields; (e) notifying producers of established allotments and yields; (f) determining farm marketing allocations; (g) handling appeals; (h) conducting referendums and certifying results; (i) accepting farmer certifications and checking compliance; (j) developing pooling agreements under which several farmers work jointly to solve a common conservation problem which cannot be solved by individual action; (k) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty; (l) processing producer requests for conservation cost-sharing; (m) processing commodity loan and storage facility loan documents and issuing sight drafts; and (n) processing deficiency payments and issuing sight drafts.

3. Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes: (a) overall management of CCC-owned commodities; (b) selling commodities; (c) donating commodities; and (d) accounting for loans and commodities. The total value of all commodities owned by CCC on September 30, 1981, was about $3,727 million.

This 2-year experimental Rural Clean Water Program (RCWP), authorized by the Appropriation Acts of 1980 (Public Law 96-108) and 1981 (Public Law 96-528), is a cooperative endeavor between farmers, various USDA agencies and other organizations to develop and test policies, procedures, and methods for controlling agricultural nonpoint source water pollution in rural areas. Voluntary in nature, the RCWP provides long-term financial and technical assistance to landowners and operators to improve water quality and to meet water quality standards or goals in keeping with the provision of adequate supplies of food, fiber, and a quality environment.

Although the program is authorized in all agricultural counties of the 50 States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, it is available only in approved project areas. Recommended project areas are developed by local and State committees and approved by the Secretary of Agriculture in consultation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) or recommended by the Secretary of Agriculture in consultation with the Administrator of the EPA and approved by the local and State committees. Full funding is provided for all approved projects.

Technical assistance is provided by the Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, Extension Service, and others.

Under the RCWP, participants agree to install and maintain Best Management Practices (BMP's) which reduce or control water pollution, as specified in an approved water quality plan.

The effectiveness of BMP's in reducing identified pollutants entering a stream or lake or leaving their source is evaluated under the ongoing program.

Designed to build on experience gained from the Agricultural Conservation Program and other existing programs, the RCWP should provide preliminary results within 3 years which will be useful in determining policies concerning the cost-effective treatment of the overall problem of agricultural nonpoint source pollution.

AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION PROGRAM

For necessary expenses to carry [into effect the program] out the purposes of programs authorized in sections 7 to 15, 16(a), 16(f), and 17 of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, approved February 29, 1936, as amended and supplemented (16 U.S.C. 590g-590o, 590p(a), 590p(f), and 590q), and sections 1001-1008, and 1010 of the Agricultural Act of 1970, as added by the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (16 U.S.C. 1501-1508, and 1510) [and including not to exceed $15,000 for the preparation and display of exhibits, including such displays at State, interstate, and international fairs within the United States, $190,000,000]; Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2101); Water Bank Act, as amended (16 U.S.C. 1301-11); and sections 401, 402, and 404 of Title IV of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2201-05), $56,000,000, to remain available until expended for agreements, excluding administration but including technical assistance and related expenses, with which shall be merged the unexpended balances of funds heretofore appropriated under the headings "Agricultural Conservation Program", "Forestry Incentives Program", "Water Bank Program", and "Emergency Conservation Program", except that no participant in the Agricultural Conservation Program shall receive more than $3,500 for soil and water conservation and pollution abatement practices, except where the participants from two or more farms or ranches join to carry out approved practices designed to conserve or improve the agricultural resources of the community: Provided, That no portion of the funds for the current year's program may be utilized to provide financial or technical assistance for drainage on wetlands now designated as Wetlands Types 3 (III) through 20 (XX) in United States Department of the Interior, Fish and Wildlife Circular 39, Wetlands of the United States, 1956 (or the inland fresh areas corresponding to such types in any successor wetland classification system developed by the Department of the Interior): Provided further, That such amounts shall be available for the purchase of seeds, fertilizers, lime, trees, or any other conservation materials, or any soil-terracing services, and making grants thereof to agricultural producers to aid them in carrying out approved farming practices as authorized by the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as amended, as determined and recommended by the county committees, approved by the State committees and the Secretary, under programs provided for herein: Provided further, That except for emergency conservation and forestry incentives practices, such assistance will not be used for carrying out measures and practices that are primarily production-oriented or that have little or no conservation or pollution abatement benefits: Provided further, That not to exceed 5 per centum of the allocation for the current year's program for soil and water conservation and pollution abatement for any county may, on the recommendation of such county committee and approval of the State committee, be withheld and allotted to the Soil Conservation Service for services of its technicians in formulating and carrying out soil and water conservation and pollution abatement practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program in the participating counties, and shall not be utilized by the Soil Conservation Service for any purpose other than technical and other assistance in such counties, and in addition, on the recommendation of such county committee and approval of the State committee, not to exceed 1 per centum may be made available to any other Federal, State, or local public agency for the same purpose and under the same conditions: Provided further, That for the current year's program for soil and water conservation and pollution abatement, $2,500,000 shall be available for technical assistance [in formulating and carrying out rural environmental practices]: Provided further, That not to exceed $6,000,000 of the funds appropriated herein shall be available to carry out emergency conservation practices authorized in sections 401, 402, and 404 of Title IV of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978: Provided further, That no part of any funds available to the Department, or any bureau, office, corporation, or other agency constituting a part of such Department, shall be used in the current fiscal year for the payment of salary or travel expenses of any person who has been convicted of violating the Act entitled "An Act to prevent pernicious political activities", approved August 2, 1939, as amended, or who has been found in accordance with the provisions of title 18 U.S.C. 1913, to have violated or attempted to violate such section which prohibits the use of Federal appropriations for the payment of personal services or other expenses designed to influence in any manner a Member of Congress to favor or oppose any legislation or appropriation by Congress except upon request of any Member or through the proper official channels. (Public Law 95-113; Public Law 97-103, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies, 1982.)

The primary objectives of the program are: (1) to help assure a continued supply of food and fiber necessary for a strong and healthy economy and people, (2) to facilitate sound resource management systems through soil and water conservation, (3) to control erosion and sedimentation from agricultural land, (4) to control pollution from animal wastes, (5) to encourage voluntary compliance by agricultural producers with State and Federal requirements to solve point and nonpoint sources of pollution, (6) to improve water quality, (7) to help achieve national priorities in the National Environmental Policy Act, (8) to help achieve national priorities in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, and (9) to encourage the energy conservation measures specified in the Energy Security Act of 1980.

Beginning in fiscal year 1983, the objectives and unexpended balances of the Emergency Conservation, Forestry Incentives and Water Bank Programs are recommended for consolidation with the Agricultural Conservation Program. These additional objectives provide immediate relief to producers to rehabilitate farmland severely damaged by natural disaster and return it to productive agricultural use; preserve, maintain, and improve wetlands in important waterfowl nesting and breeding areas in the United States; and bring private nonindustrial forestland under intensified management to increase timber production and assure adequate supplies of timber products.

Along with annual agreements, cost sharing is authorized for long-term agreements (the standard 3-10 year agreement, or a shorter term agreement of 3-5 years with renewal benefits to extend the agreement up to 10 years if needed). On the shorter term agreements, the conservation plan of operation (CPO) applies only to a portion of the farm rather than the entire farm.

Annual payments are authorized for 10-year wetland agreements.

The program is administered in each county by the ASC county committee, with review and approval by State ASC committees and the Secretary, and in consultation with other agencies. For the 1982 ACP, county committees, in consultation with the county development group and community committee persons, submitted their proposal for practices (including land, water, and related resource management practices having significant energy conserving effects) and changes from the previous year's program to State committees for review. The State committees, after reviewing county recommendations with the State development group, sent State recommended changes to the national level for review by the Secretary. However, no changes in the national program or practices were provided to the State and county committees for their use in carrying out the 1982 program.

The 1982 program is expected to serve 10.7 million acres. Practices identified specifically to abate soil erosion are expected to prevent approximately 30 million tons of erosion. The proposed consolidation of program objectives in fiscal year 1983 will provide maximum flexibility to States and counties to set priorities for and treat the most severe natural resource problems. The proposed language designates funds for sharing the cost of emergency measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farm and ranch lands resulting from natural disasters.

The objectives of the Water Bank Program are to conserve, preserve, maintain, and improve the Nation's wetlands, increase waterfowl habitat in migratory waterfowl nesting and breeding areas in the United States, and secure recreational and environmental benefits for the Nation. The program was authorized by the Water Bank Act, approved December 19, 1970, as amended by Public Law 96-182, approved January 2, 1980.

The Secretary of Agriculture, through designated ASCS county offices, uses program funds to enter into 10-year agreements with landowners and operators for the conservation of specified wetlands. Provisions exist to renew agreements for additional periods, to make annual payments on agreements, and under certain conditions to increase payment rates in the fifth year of a contract or at the time of renewal.

The 1982 program is expected to bring 52,500 acres under agreement. This would be accomplished through the signing of 745 agreements with landowners. Additionally, payment rates on 72,500 acres would be increased.

It is proposed that in fiscal year 1983 the objectives of the Water Bank Program be carried out under the consolidated Agricultural Conservation Program.

This program was authorized by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2201-05). The appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farms and rangelands resulting from natural disasters.

Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use. Also, assistance is available for measures to provide for or conserve water to be used for agricultural purposes during periods of severe drought as determined by the Deputy Administrator, State and County Operations, ASCS.

Under the 1981 program, cost-sharing assistance was provided to treat farmlands damaged by floods, tornadoes, hurricanes, and drought. Assistance was provided in 45 States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

It is proposed that in fiscal year 1983 the objectives of the Emergency Conservation Program be carried out under the consolidated Agricultural Conservation Program.

Under this program indemnification payments are made to dairy farmers and manufacturers of dairy products.

The Dairy Indemnity Program was authorized under 78 Stat. 508 in 1964, and has been extended through September 30, 1985, by the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-98). Payments are made to farmers who are directed to remove their milk from commercial markets because the milk contains residues of chemicals which have been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, of other chemicals, of nuclear radiation, or of nuclear fallout. The authority also provides that indemnification may be paid for cows producing such milk.

The Agricultural Act of 1970 (84 Stat. 1382) broadened the indemnification authority to include manufacturers of dairy products whose products become contaminated with residues of chemicals which have been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government. No funds are requested for fiscal year 1983.

This program was authorized by the Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2101). The objectives of the program are to bring private nonindustrial forest land under intensified management, to increase timber production, to assure adequate supplies of timber products, and to enhance other forest resources.

The Forestry Incentives Program shares up to 75% of the cost of tree planting and timberstand improvement. The percentage cost-shared depends on the rate set in a particular State and county by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, after consulting with the State forester. The program is available in designated counties based on a Forest Service survey of total eligible private timberland available for production of timber products. The program is administered by ASCS with technical assistance from Forest Service.

Under the 1982 program, it is planned to cost-share the expenses of planting trees on 135 thousand acres and improving the timberstand on 78 thousand acres of forest.

It is proposed that in fiscal year 1983 the objectives of the Forestry Incentives Program be carried out under the consolidated Agricultural Conservative Program.

This appropriation finances the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation to provide funds to establish and maintain rates and coverages for 17,000 county programs in about 3,000 counties (an increase of 2,600 county programs over crop year 1982), and to continue development of sales policies. Crop insurance in force is estimated to increase from $11.0 billion in crop year 1982 to $17.5 billion in crop year 1983, and the estimated number of producers participating in the program is expected to increase from 750,000 in crop year 1982 to 1,500,000 in crop year 1983.

The Corporation's long-term objective is to provide the maximum number of farm producers with crop insurance coverage, on an actuarially sound basis, as protection against essentially all risks and economic losses resulting from uncontrollable natural hazards.

For fiscal year 1983, the appropriation for administrative and operating expenses will enable the Corporation to provide for growth in the expanded crop insurance program that ranges from 40 percent to 50 percent farmers' participation bringing the program closer to attaining its long-term objective.

The major portion of administrative and operating expenses is support delivery systems which rely heavily on the private sector as provided by the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 under section 507(c).

The delivery systems are:

1. Reinsured companies which enable insurance companies to provide the insurance marketing, distribution, servicing, training, quality control, and loss adjustment functions. The companies also share with Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, to a limited extent, in both profits and losses. It is estimated that reinsurance companies will handle about 37% of the total premium during crop year 1982 and 50% of the total premium during crop year 1983. For crop year 1982, over 40 companies have submitted applications for reinsurance contracts with FCIC;

2. Agency sales and service agreements which is also known as the "master marketing agreement." Under this type of agreement, private insurance companies and associations are offered the opportunity to contract with FCIC to provide insurance sales and services. They are compensated on a commission basis. It is estimated that these agreements will account for about 43% of the total premium for crop year 1982 and 40% of the total premium for crop year 1983. FCIC anticipates that about 60 organizations will be involved in master marketing agreements with a total of about 15,000 agents for crop year 1982; and

3. Individual agents sales and servicing agreements which enable private insurance agents and brokers to sell all-risk crop insurance on a commission basis. It is estimated that agents and brokers will handle about 20% of the total premiums for crop year 1982 and 10% of the total premiums for crop year 1983. For crop year 1982, about 3,000 agents will be selling under individual sales and servicing agreements.

In addition, in areas where an adequate private sales and service force is not available, FCIC may ask other USDA agencies to sell and service all-risk crop insurance through existing county offices.

As the private sector becomes more involved in the all-risk crop insurance program, it is expected that they will be able to "risk" more of their funds thus reducing the cost to the Government and at the same time reach the Corporation's goal of providing all-risk crop insurance to as many farm producers as possible.

The Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 (Public Law 96-365) approved September 26, 1980, provides for the capitalization of the Corporation of $500 million. This request of $250 million represents the balance of the capital stock authorization, which is necessary to place the Corporation on a sound financial basis in order to meet the contractual commitments to insured producers.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly owned Government corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1520), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance, and to provide the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance.

Crop insurance offered to agricultural producers by the Corporation provides protection from losses caused by natural hazards, such as insect and wildlife damage, plant diseases, fire, drought, flood, wind, and other weather conditions. It does not indemnify producers for losses resulting from negligence or failure to observe good farming practices.

The crop insurance programs are planned, developed, and monitored by the FCIC headquarters offices located in Washington, D.C. and Kansas City, Missouri. The program is administered in the field through 18 field operations offices and 10 field actuarial offices. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level are performed by licensed private insurance agents, agency sales and service agreements (master marketing agreements), and reinsured companies. In those areas where these delivery systems are not in place, other USDA agencies may be used to market and service the program. The adjustment of losses is performed by FCIC employees, adjusters under contract with FCIC, reinsured companies under contract with FCIC, and ASCS working under a reimbursable agreement with FCIC. Detailed administrative and program accounting and statistical functions, as well as the underwriting and actuarial analysis work, are performed in Kansas City, Mo.

Budget program.—The program for 1983 (crop year 1982) will provide crop insurance protection to farmers amounting to approximately $11 billion on the following commodities: Almonds, apples, barley, beans, citrus, combined crop, corn, cotton, flax, forage production, forage seeding, grain sorghum, grapes, oats, peaches, peanuts, peas, potatoes, raisins, rice, rye, soybeans, sugar beets, sugarcane, sunflowers, sweet corn, tobacco, tomatoes, and wheat.

A premium subsidy is being offered to encourage the broadest possible participation in the new crop insurance program. This appropriation request of $145.6 million would provide an estimated Federal subsidy of approximately 30% of each producer's adjusted premium.

The following table compares the scope of the insurance operations planned for 1982 and 1983, as compared with 1981. Amounts in the 1981 column are actual, and pertain to the 1980 crop year. The 1982 column pertains to the 1981 crop year, and the 1983 column pertains to the 1982 crop year.

Financing.—The Corporation is authorized under the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended, to use funds from the issuance of capital stock which provides working capital for the Corporation. A request for an appropriation of $250 million capital stock is included in the Corporation's fiscal year 1983 budget.

Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums paid by farmers. The principal payments from this fund are for indemnities to insured farmers, the direct cost of adjusting crop losses and agents' commissions. However, an appropriation will be requested in subsequent years for any funds used for loss adjustment costs and/or agents' commissions. The fiscal year 1983 appropriation request includes $27,658,200 for restoration of funds for agents' commissions paid from premium income as provided by section 516(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended, for amounts expended in fiscal year 1981 not previously appropriated.

Premium subsidies are authorized by section 508(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act as amended. The purpose of the subsidy is to encourage the broadest possible participation of farm producers in the crop insurance program. Subsidies are paid by the Corporation based upon 30% of each producer's premium (reduced, where applicable, for hail and fire exclusion or State agency subsidy) on any coverage, under the Corporation's policy of insurance of up to a maximum of 65% of the recorded or appraised average yield, as adjusted.

The annual appropriation for the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of September 30, 1981, the Corporation reflected a surplus of $65.7 million. This compares with a deficit of $112.3 million at September 30, 1980. The improvement in the financial condition was due principally to the cancellation of the liability for $200 million in capital stock, the reduction of $162,389,008 in cumulative expense and the payment of $250 million of indemnities by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

For crop years 1948 through 1980, indemnities ($1,562.6 million) exceeded premium income ($1,419.5 million) by $143.1 million; the loss ratio for the period was 1.10. Indemnity costs exceeded premiums in 15 of the 33 years.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations by commodities for 1981, 1982, and 1983:

During the 1981 fiscal year, $6,317,723 for administrative and operating expenses was paid from the FCIC Fund as authorized by Public Law 97-11, dated May 22, 1981. This law authorized the use of $14 million of funds otherwise available for payment of indemnities to pay administrative and operating expenses. Since this authority expired on September 30, 1981, there will be no further request to pay administrative expenses from the FCIC Fund.

The Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, to help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and to help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714-714p). It may make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities and may be used to administer and to temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Under present law, up to $20 billion may be borrowed from the U.S. Treasury to finance operations. This budget assumes enactment of proposed appropriations legislation which would increase total borrowing authority to $25 billion.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1982 and 1983 budget estimates: (a) Production and national income will rise both in 1982 and 1983 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1983 will be higher than 1982 levels; (c) yields for the 1982 crops are based on recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1982 crops of ELS cotton and certain kinds of tobacco; (e) poundage quotas will be in effect for peanuts; and (f) continuation, in general, of current statutory provisions authorizing the Corporation's programs. Deficiency payments on these commodities will be based on an established or target price if the higher of the market price received by farmers or the loan rate is below such price.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy requirements for the year ending September 30, 1983, since the projections are subject to complex and unpredictable factors such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange. The only available cost estimates for CCC at the time of budget preparation were those prepared for the conference bill on the new farm program legislation. The 1982 crop year is the first full year covered by the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981. Budgetary outlays for the 1982 crops fall largely in fiscal year 1983. Since important decisions regarding implementation of the new legislation had not been made at time of budget preparation, the normal financial detail presented in the schedules has been omitted for fiscal year 1983. Specific estimates will be prepared by the Department at a later date.

PROGRAMS OF THE CORPORATION

The basic functions of the Corporation include the following programs for which appropriations are made for net realized losses sustained:

Support and related programs.—The Corporation provides price support to producers of agricultural commodities through loans, purchases, payments, and other means. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act, as amended (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.), the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.), and the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1281 et seq.).

Support is mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: honey, milk, barley, oats, rye, grain sorghum, sugar, soybeans, and seed cotton. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1781-87), requires support for wool and mohair. Support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. The support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, loans made on commodities are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and on maturity the producer may deliver or forfeit such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases are made under various laws for the removal of surpluses; for example, the act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431).

For feed grains, rice, wheat, and upland cotton, producers may receive deficiency payments in addition to Commodity Credit Corporation loans and purchases. Producers of feed grains and wheat must comply with acreage limitation provisions or acreage set-aside provisions, and normal crop acreage (NCA) requirements, if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments. Producers of upland cotton and rice must comply with acreage limitation provisions, if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments. The total amount of payments, excluding disaster payments, which a person is entitled to receive under one or more of the annual programs for feed grains, wheat, upland cotton, and rice for each of the 1982 through 1985 crops of these commodities shall not exceed $50 thousand. The total amount of disaster payments which a person shall be entitled to receive annually under one or more of the rice, feed grains, upland cotton, and wheat programs for the 1982 through 1985 crops shall not exceed $100 thousand. Disaster payments are not mandatory on those acreages where crop insurance from the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation would be available. Since crop insurance is anticipated to be available in all 3,000 agricultural counties in 1982, no disaster payments are estimated for fiscal year 1983.

The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, establishes minimum target prices for the 1982 through 1985 crops of the following commodities—wheat, corn, upland cotton, and rice and establishes minimum loan and purchase levels for wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, and rice. Deficiency payments for each of the four commodities are required when the target price for the commodity exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. The target prices for grain sorghum and oats and, if designated by the Secretary, barley, are established at a level which is fair and reasonable in relation to the target prices established for corn.

The Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980, Public Law 96-365, approved September 26, 1980, provides for a nationwide all-risk crop insurance program. Section 110 of the act authorized the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation to request emergency funding whenever moneys available to the FCIC were insufficient to cover claims for loss indemnification. The Corporation, upon majority vote of its Board of Directors, requested the Secretary of Agriculture to use the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation to make timely payments of indemnities due insured producers. The Secretary's authority to use CCC funds for this purpose expired 1 year after the date on which the authority was first used. In October 1980 and February 1981, the Secretary approved the use of CCC funds to provide emergency funding to FCIC for making crop indemnity payments to insured producers. CCC paid a total of $250 million to FCIC for this purpose.

The peanut program for the 1982-85 crops provides for a two-price system for peanuts. For production of peanuts under poundage quotas, minimum support rates are specified, subject to increases on the basis of the average cost of production, excluding land. However, the quota support rate for any crop cannot exceed the quota support rate for the preceding crop by more than 6%. For production of additional peanuts the Secretary may set lower support rates taking into consideration demand for peanut oil and meal, expected prices for other vegetable oils, and foreign demand for peanuts. However, the Secretary is required to set the additional loan rate at a level which is estimated to insure that there are no losses to the Commodity Credit Corporation from the sale of such peanuts.

Section 201 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, requires that a support program be implemented for sugar through the purchase of products processed from sugar beets and sugarcane during the period from the date of enactment of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 through March 31, 1982. Thereafter, a loan program is required to be implemented for the 1982 through 1985 crops of sugar beets and sugarcane.

In support operations, normal trade facilities are used to the maximum extent practicable. Cooperatives and financial institutions are used in lending activities.

Besides the charter act and laws mentioned above, many other laws are applicable to the disposition through sales and donations of commodities acquired under the support program.

For accounting purposes, the Corporation credits to the support program proceeds of commodities sold from its stocks, including those disposed of through special activities.

Note.—The 1983 outlay totals for CCC were developed during final congressional consideration of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981. Because the bill was signed only on December 22, 1981, important decisions regarding implementation of the program could not be made by the time of budget preparation. The normal financial detail is therefore not available for print.

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales for dollars or foreign currency, payments, extension of credit, assumption of certain risks, and conduct of other operations with respect to the exportation of commodities. Such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation. These programs are carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly section 5 (d) and (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable. Export sales on long-term credit terms are financed by the Corporation under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480), as amended, although such sales may also be financed under its charter authority.

CCC operates an export credit guarantee program under its charter authority to protect U.S. exporters, or their assignees (U.S. financial institutions), from defaults in payments by foreign banks on export credit sales due to commercial as well as noncommercial risks. Operation of this program is based on criteria which will assure that it is used only where it is determined that it will develop new market opportunities and maintain and expand existing world markets for U.S. agricultural commodities. The budget includes a program level of $2.5 billion for the export guarantee program in 1983, equal to the 1982 level.

Storage facilities.—Pursuant to sections 4(h) and 5(b) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act, the Corporation makes secured loans for the purchase, construction, or remodeling of facilities for storage and care of dry or high moisture commodities on the farm. Since there has been an excess of storage capacity nationwide over the past several years, the Administration will be conducting a limited loan program targeted to only those areas in the country where sufficient storage capacity may still be lacking.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation procures from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies. This program is conducted under section 5 (b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

Set-aside program and acreage limitation program.—The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes the Secretary to conduct, through the Corporation, acreage limitation programs on the 1982 through 1985 crops of upland cotton and rice. In addition, the Secretary is authorized to implement a set-aside or acreage limitation program for the 1982–85 crops of wheat and feed grains.

Land diversion payments.—To assist in adjusting the acreage of commodities to desirable goals, the Secretary is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, to make land diversion payments, through the Corporation, to producers of the 1982 through 1985 crops of wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, and rice who devote to approved conservation uses acreages of cropland in addition to those required to be so devoted under the set-aside programs.

Grain reserves.—A producer-owned food grain reserve program for wheat and rice which provides 3-year extended loans to producers was announced in April 1977. This program was later expanded to include feed grains. Producers receive annual storage payments under the contract. Program provisions establish when interest is charged and a market price level at which storage payments cease and producers may repay their loans. Under the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, a reserve program is required to be made available for wheat and feed grains beginning with the 1982 crops.

Embargo of grain exports to the Soviet Union.—On January 4, 1980, the U.S. embargoed grain exports to the U.S.S.R. in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan. CCC purchased 160 million bushels of corn and 155 million bushels of wheat to help offset the impact of the embargo. CCC acquired contractual obligations with respect to export contracts for sales to the U.S.S.R. made prior to January 4, 1980. Net losses in fiscal years 1980 and 1981, after retendering the contracts at lower than acquisition prices, were $464 million, which included contract rollover charges to extend delivery dates on some of the contracts. The contractual obligations retendered by CCC included the following quantities (in millions of metric tons): Corn—8.8, wheat—4.1, soybeans and products—1.1. $336 million of the $464 million loss was incurred in fiscal year 1980.

Pilot projects loan guarantees for industrial hydrocarbons.—The Secretary is directed in section 509 of the Rural Development Act of 1972, as amended, to formulate and carry out a program for the production and marketing of industrial hydrocarbons and alcohols from agricultural commodities and forestry products. Commodity Credit Corporation is required to guarantee loans of up to $15 million each for not more than four pilot projects, for up to 20 years. In order to insure a dependable supply of agricultural commodities for such pilot projects, the Secretary is authorized to enter into long-term contracts, not to exceed 5 years, to supply agricultural commodities at mutually agreed upon prices, either from Commodity Credit Corporation stocks or through purchases. Three projects have been tentatively approved and one project received final approval in 1980 with a loan guarantee of $4.6 million. The company defaulted on the $4.6 million loan guarantee in fiscal year 1981 and filed for reorganization under the Bankruptcy Reform Act. The Commodity Credit Corporation paid the remaining principal and interest on the loan and in return received an assignment of right, title and interest to the collateral securing the loan.

Administrative expenses.—The Corporation carries out its functions through utilization of employees and facilities of other Government agencies. Administrative expenses are incurred for the services of: the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, the Agricultural Marketing Service, Foreign Agricultural Service—General Sales Manager, and other agencies of the Department engaged in the Corporation's activities; the General Accounting Office for audit; and the General Services Administration for space. Prior to fiscal year 1982, there was an annual limitation on administrative expenses. There is no such limitation for fiscal year 1982.

Nonadministrative expenses.—Expenses for acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program expenses rather than administrative expenses. Such program expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors; work relating to CCC programs performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; and special services performed by other Federal agencies within and outside this Department.

Most of these general nonadministrative expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing, and grading and producer storage payments, are included in program costs. They are shown in the program and financing schedule in the entries entitled "Storage, transportation, and other costs not included above," and "Producer storage payments." The item "Nonadministrative expense," in the schedule, covers part of the expenses of ASCS county offices for work related to programs of the Corporation, other Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service expenses offset by revenue, custodian, and agency expense of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

The Corporation receives reimbursement for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 (7 U.S.C. 447-449) by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation, through the appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses. There have been no requisitions in recent years, however.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's charter act and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1983 estimate
	Gross obligations	Outlays (reimbursable)
(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies.....		—115,000
(2) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for convertible foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms.....	859,000	493,000
(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad.....	650,000	650,000
(4) National Wool Act.....	31,000	31,000
Total.....	1,540,000	1,059,000

The Corporation receives appropriations or reimbursement for cost of these activities as described under each.

To the extent that sufficient appropriations are not provided in advance to carry out authorized activities, expenditures under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, as amended, are made by the Corporation subject to reimbursement from subsequent appropriations authorized for such purpose.

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (see Foreign Assistance programs for details of items (1)–(3)):

(1) Sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies (title I, Public Law 480).

(2) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for convertible foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms (titles I and III, Public Law 480).

(3) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II, Public Law 480).

(4) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. The Corporation makes payments to producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the support price required under the act.

Total payments made under the National Wool Act cannot at any time exceed an amount equal to 70% of the accumulated totals, as of the same date, of the gross receipts from import duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and wool manufactures. Actual or estimated payments compared with this limitation are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
70% of customs receipts on wool and wool manufactures, cumulative from Jan. 1, 1953, to end of preceding calendar year.....	2,371,373	2,515,573	2,656,973

Balance of limitation available for payments in succeeding marketing years.....	1,197,543	1,302,053	1,416,397

Funds of the Corporation are used to carry on this program. For the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation, section 705 of the act appropriates each fiscal year an amount equal to amounts expended by the Corporation during the preceding year and to amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed, but not to exceed an amount equal to 70% of the gross receipts from duties collected on wool and wool manufactures during the calendar year preceding the fiscal year.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $25 billion, assuming congressional approval of a pending request for an increase of $5 billion in borrowing authority.

Funds are borrowed from Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies and others. The Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies and others. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate of all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on other notes and obligations at a rate prescribed by the Commodity Credit Corporation and approved by the Secretary of Treasury.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964, on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after the end of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

The computation of the transfer from interest-bearing to non-interest-bearing capital is (in thousands of dollars):

Item	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Realized deficit not previously reimbursed, start of year.....	5,595,743	5,826,473	8,088,073
Less appropriations for year.....	3,299,887	2,043,229	3,783,244
Total non-interest-bearing, end of year.....	2,295,856	3,783,244	4,304,829

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions, the estimated requirements indicate that an increase in the Corporation's borrowing authority will be needed in fiscal year 1982. Since there are so many uncontrollable factors, it must be recognized that estimates are highly tentative.

NOTES

Accounts payable, accrued liabilities and other outstanding obligations not reflected on this table do not become charges against the statutory borrowing authority until they result in borrowings from the Treasury.

The 1983 outlay totals for CCC were developed during final congressional consideration of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981. Because the bill was signed only on December 22, 1981, important decisions regarding implementation of the program could not be made by the time of budget preparation. The normal financial detail is therefore not available for print.

Contract authority.—Support and other programs required by statute may result in the Corporation incurring obligations in excess of available funds and borrowing authority. Such obligations are liquidated from subsequent appropriations and other funds which may become available to the Corporation. Any increase in obligations in excess of available fund resources is reported as contract authority in the year involved; a decrease is reported as the application of appropriations and other funds to liquidate the authority.

Appropriations.—Under section 2 of Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The realized losses for 1981 subject to reimbursement were $3,530.6 million, and the prior cumulative losses not yet appropriated for were $5,826.5 million on September 30. An appropriation of $3,783.2 million in fiscal year 1983 would fully reimburse the Corporation for its unreimbursed realized losses through September 30, 1981. The special activities are financed as indicated in the program descriptions above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance programs.

NOTES

The 1983 outlay totals for CCC were developed during final congressional consideration of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981. Because the bill was signed only on December 22, 1981, important decisions regarding implementation of the program could not be made by the time of budget preparation. The normal financial detail is therefore not available for print.

In addition to obligations other than liabilities, the Corporation does not reflect in its accounts claims by the Corporation on which adequate proof has not been established.

ment effort. The funds will be used to implement the congressionally directed national rural development strategy prepared during fiscal year 1982 for fiscal year 1983 and to develop an updated strategy for fiscal year 1984. The work will include: Identification and analysis of Federal and State developmental programs available to rural areas; joint actions with Federal and State policy officials to make these programs more complementary to each other and with private sector initiatives; and preparation of analyses and recommendations for resolution of program inconsistencies. The office will work as a catalyst to obtain public and private interest group involvement in providing technical assistance to State and local organizations.

Administration of the rural development planning grants was transferred in fiscal year 1982 to the Office of Rural Development Policy from the Farmers Home Administration, under provisions of Secretary's Memorandum No. 1020-3. These grants are authorized by section 306(a)(11) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended. During fiscal year 1981, 107 grants were made for a total amount of $3,000,000 under the Farmers Home Administration. No funds were appropriated in fiscal year 1982 and none are being requested in fiscal year 1983 for this program. The activities of the Office of Rural Development Policy in connection with this program will be limited to monitoring grantees' performance in completing work for which funds were made available in prior years.

The Rural Electrification Administration, under authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, makes insured loans and guarantees loans made by other qualified lenders to rural electric and telephone borrowers for the purpose of extending and improving electric and telephone service in rural areas. The rural electrification and telephone revolving fund, established by Public Law 93-32, approved May 11, 1973, is the source of financing for the insured loans, while the Federal Financing Bank is the primary source for the loan guarantee financing. In the electric program most of the insured loans are made concurrently with supplemental financing provided by the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) or some other supplemental financing source. In the telephone program supplemental financing is provided primarily through the Rural Telephone Bank. The Bank utilizes the employees and facilities of REA and the Office of the General Counsel on a part-time basis without cost to the Bank. Also, under authorities of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, REA will administer loans for community antenna television facilities made from the rural development insurance fund prior to fiscal year 1982.

In addition, in order to protect the Government's loan security on over $46 billion of outstanding loans and guarantees made to borrowers, to assure that construction and operation of the electric, telephone and community antenna television systems conform to approved standards, and that the systems continue to provide reliable service at the lowest possible cost to the consumer, REA furnishes business management and technical assistance on a regular basis, as well as upon special request, to its borrowers. This objective is carried out through regulations, personal visits to the borrowers, and by training. REA has personnel in the Washington office and a field staff who have expertise in the electric or telephone industry and who are available to assist borrowers in specialized areas.

The Rural Development Insurance Fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 116 of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-419) approved August 30, 1972, to make community facility and business and industrial loans and loan guarantees to both profit and nonprofit organizations.

The Rural Communication Development Fund, an account under the Rural Development Insurance Fund authorities, was established pursuant to Secretary's Memorandum No. 1988 approved May 22, 1979. This memorandum transferred certain financing authorities under the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921 et seq.) from the Farmers Home Administration to the Rural Electrification Administration for the purpose of financing and administering community antenna television services or facilities in rural areas. The fund is used to make or guarantee loans for community antenna television services or facilities.

The objective of the community facility loan program is to make or insure loans to organizations not operated for profit for the purpose of providing community antenna television service or facilities to rural areas comparable to those in urban areas. These loans are repayable in 35 years and bear interest not in excess of 5%. The business and industrial development loans may be made to organizations organized and operated on a profit or nonprofit basis for the purpose of financing community antenna television service or facilities to rural areas comparable to those in urban areas. These loans are repayable in 35 years and bear interest at the cost of Treasury borrowing plus an increment to cover administrative costs. No new loans are proposed in this program for 1983 since sufficient funding is available in the private sector. Funding is required for losses in operation of the program.

Rural water and waste disposal grant program.—This grant program is authorized by subtitle A of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended. Grants are authorized to be made to associations, including nonprofit corporations, public and quasi-public agencies, and certain Indian tribes to finance storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. The amount of any development grant may not exceed 75% of the eligible development cost of the project.

The major objectives of the rural water and waste disposal grant programs are: (1) to provide assistance for basic human amenities, (2) to alleviate health hazards, (3) to promote stability of rural areas by meeting the need for new and improved rural water and waste disposal systems, and (4) to meet national safe drinking water and clean water standards.

Rural development grants.—This assistance is authorized by section 310B(c) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended. Farmers Home Administration provides rural development grants to facilitate the development of business and industry. Grants were made to public bodies to assist in financing industrial sites in rural areas including the acquisition and development of land, and the construction, conversion, enlargement, repair or modernization of buildings, plants, equipment, access streets and roads. Grants were also used for utility lines, parking areas, necessary water supply and waste disposal facilities, refinancing, services, and fees. Grants were limited to communities having populations of 50,000 or less with priority given to communities of less than 25,000.

No funds were appropriated in fiscal year 1982 and no program is proposed for fiscal year 1983, since other program assistance is available for these purposes.

Rural rental assistance payments.—The objective of the program is to reduce rents paid by low-income families living in FmHA financed rental projects and farm labor housing projects. Under this program, low-income tenants will pay 25% of their adjusted monthly income for rent. Payments are made to the project owner to make up the difference between the tenants' rent payments and the approved rental rates for the units.

The fiscal year 1983 appropriation of $185,000,000 will be used to assist 17,560 units with 5 year rental assistance agreements. The vast majority of these units are projected to be previously subsidized units that were assisted with 5 year agreements whose terms are expiring or have prematurely exhausted their obligated funds.

COMPENSATION FOR CONSTRUCTION DEFECTS

For compensation for construction defects as authorized by section 509(c) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, $2,000,000. (42 U.S.C. 1479, the Housing Act of 1949, as amended.)

The Self-help housing land development fund was authorized by section 1005 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448). The fund provides qualified public or private nonprofit organizations with financing for the acquisition and development of building sites for homes to be constructed by the self-help method.

In 1981, two new loans were obligated which will provide 49 sites. In 1982, ten loans will be made to provide 200 sites. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983 since other program assistance is available for these purposes.

RURAL HOUSING INSURANCE FUND

For direct loans and related advances pursuant to section 517(m) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, $24,000,000 shall be available from funds in the rural housing insurance fund, and for insured loans as authorized by title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, [$3,700,600,000 of which not less than $3,265,600,000 shall be available for subsidized interest loans to low-income borrowers as determined by the Secretary] $1,121,000,000, which shall be available for low-income loans, as determined by the Secretary, and for subsequent loans to existing borrowers or to purchasers under assumption agreements or credit sales; and not to exceed $5,000,000 for advances as authorized by section 501(e) of such Act [and not to exceed $2,000,000 for compensation of construction defects as authorized by section 509(c) of such Act].

[During fiscal year 1982, no more than 14,280 units may be assisted under rental assistance agreements entered into during the year pursuant to authority under section 521(a)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, and the total obligation incurred over the life of these agreements shall not exceed $398,000,000 to be added to and merged with the authority provided for this purpose in prior fiscal years.]

For [an additional amount] each fiscal year beginning with the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, there is hereby appropriated an amount sufficient to reimburse the rural housing insurance fund for interest subsidies and losses sustained in prior years, but not previously reimbursed, in carrying out the provisions of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S. 1483, 1487e, and 1490a(c)), including [$6,995,000] $6,728,000, as authorized by section 521(c) of the Act [$575,087,000, and for an additional amount as authorized by section 521(c) of the Act as may be necessary to reimburse the fund to carry out a rental assistance program under section 521(a)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended]. In sum, during 1983, gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans shall not exceed $1,145,000,000. (Public Law 97-103, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies, 1982.)

Note.—The amount shown for 1982 was appropriated under section 611 of Public Law 97-103, which appears at the end of this chapter.

Rural housing insurance fund.—This fund was established in 1965 (Public Law 89-117) pursuant to section 517 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. This fund may be used to insure or guarantee rural housing loans for single family homes, rental and cooperative housing, farm labor housing, and rural housing sites. Loan programs are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, and other places of not more than 10,000 population, which are not part of an urban area. Loans may also be made in areas with a population in excess of 10,000 but less than 20,000, if the area is not included in a standard metropolitan statistical area and has a serious lack of mortgage credit for low- and moderate-income borrowers.

The proposed Budget reflects the Administration's continued policy of reducing the size, and scope of Federal credit programs to minimize their demands on the private credit market. The reduction of Federal borrowing commitments is a part of the President's effort to relieve pressure on interest rates and to open the way for sustainable and non-inflationary economic recovery. The focus of the housing assistance programs will be directed towards assisting low income individuals and families without other alternatives to find safe and adequate housing. While new loan making activity has been proposed for reduction in fiscal year 1983, FmHA plans to intensify its debt collection and loan servicing activities in an effort to more effectively manage its $23 billion housing loan portfolio and to lessen loan delinquency rates.

The major programs currently funded through the Rural Housing Insurance Fund are:

Very low-income housing repair loans.—Home repair loans for very low-income owner/occupants are made from amounts available in this fund. These loans, which may not exceed $7,500 are made to families and individuals to repair their dwellings in order to make them safe and to remove health hazards to the families and the community. The loans are made at 1% interest for a term of not more than 20 years.

Low to moderate income housing loans.—Individual home ownership loans are made to low and moderate income individuals and families who are unable to obtain home ownership financing from conventional sources on terms they reasonably can be expected to meet. Loans may be made to eligible applicants to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings, and may include funds to purchase a house and building site. These loans have a term of up to 33 years and currently bear a note rate based on the cost of Treasury borrowings. However, interest credits may reduce a borrower's effective interest rate to as low as 1%.

Farm labor housing loans.—These loans are made to farm owners, public or private nonprofit organizations of farm workers to provide modest living quarters, basic household furnishings, and related facilities, including the land necessary for an adequate site for domestic farm labor housing. Loans generally bear interest at 1% and may be made in conjunction with a farm labor housing grant.

Rural rental housing loans.—Rural rental and cooperative housing loans are made to individuals, corporations, partnerships and public bodies with the objective of providing low-rent housing for low to moderate income persons and the elderly. These loans bear a note rate based on the cost of Treasury borrowings and may be subsidized to a rate as low as 1% through interest credits. This subsidy permits rents to be adjusted to a level that lower income families can afford to pay. The Rural Rental Housing Program operates in tandem with the HUD Section 8 Rental Assistance Program and the FmHA Rental Assistance Program which is discussed below.

Rental assistance.—The objective of the rental assistance program is to reduce rents paid by low-income families living in FmHA financed rental projects and farm labor housing projects. Under this program, low-income tenants pay 25% of their adjusted monthly income for rent. Payments from the fund are made to the project owner to make up the difference between the tenant's payment and the approved rental rate established for the unit. Legislation will be proposed to raise the tenant contribution gradually until tenants pay 30% of their adjusted monthly income for rent. For 1983, the Budget proposes to establish a separate appropriation account in order to more adequately identify the costs associated with the program.

Rural housing site loans.—Site development loans are made for the purchase and development of land to be subdivided into building sites and sold on a nonprofit basis to low- and moderate-income families or to organizations for rental or cooperative housing.

The following table shows preliminary 1981 and estimated 1982 and 1983 program levels and units.

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT INSURANCE FUND

For [an additional amount] each fiscal year beginning with the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, there is hereby appropriated an amount sufficient to reimburse the agricultural credit insurance fund for interest subsidies and losses sustained in prior years, but not previously reimbursed, in carrying out the provisions of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1988(a)), $464,083,000].

Loans may be insured, or made to be sold and insured, under this fund in accordance with and subject to the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1928-1929, or guaranteed, as follows: real estate loans, $904,600,000 $818,000,000, including not less than $825,000,000 $775,000,000 for farm ownership loans of which $125,000,000 $75,000,000 shall be guaranteed loans; and not less than $60,500,000 $31,000,000 for water development, use, and conservation loans of which $6,000,000 shall be guaranteed loans; operating loans, $1,375,000,000 $1,510,000,000 of which $50,000,000 shall be guaranteed loans; and emergency insured and guaranteed loans [in amounts necessary to meet the needs resulting from natural disasters] not to exceed $1,540,000,000.

In sum, during 1983, gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans from this fund shall not exceed $3,737,000,000 and total commitments to guarantee loans may be made only to the extent that the total loan principal shall not exceed $131,000,000. Such limits shall include amounts obligated or committed pursuant to limitations provided under other headings for direct loans or loan guarantees to be made by this fund. (Public Law 97-103, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies, 1982.)

MEMORANDUM

The Agricultural credit insurance fund is used to insure or guarantee farm ownership, soil and water, recreation, farm operating, and emergency loans to individuals. Associations are eligible for the following types of loans: irrigation and drainage, grazing, Indian land acquisition, watershed protection, flood prevention, and resource conservation and development.

Loans may be made by the fund from available receipts or Treasury borrowings. Loans made by the fund are held in a pool as security for certificates of beneficial ownership which are sold primarily to the Federal Financing Bank. FmHA is also authorized to provide financial assistance to borrowers by guaranteeing loans made by private lenders having a contract of guarantee from FmHA as approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Public Law 92-419, approved August 30, 1972, abolished the Farmers Home Administration Direct loan account and the Emergency credit revolving fund and provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of, and authorizations applicable to, these accounts to the Agricultural credit insurance fund. It also provided for transfer from the Agricultural credit insurance fund to the Rural development insurance fund of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities.

The fiscal year 1983 farm loan program proposals reflect a shift in funding emphasis from emergency loans to the recurring farm ownership and farm operating loan programs. Under both programs, additional emphasis will be given to assisting beginning young farmers. This shift is consistent with implementation of the expanded crop insurance program in the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC).

The following loans are financed through this fund:

Farm ownership loans are made to farmers and ranchers for acquiring, enlarging, or improving not larger than family farms, including dwellings and farm buildings; for financing land and water development, use, and conservation; for developing recreational and other nonfarm enterprises; for forestry development; for refinancing indebtedness; and for loan closing costs. Corporate family farmers, farming cooperatives, and partnerships are also eligible. The FmHA and private or cooperative lenders can make loans to the same borrowers on the same security. Loans are made for 40 years or less. An insured loan may not exceed $200 thousand and a guaranteed loan may not exceed $300 thousand. The borrower is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate for insured loans except for low-income, limited resource borrowers who currently may be charged a lower interest rate. An interest surcharge of 2% is applied if the loan involves the use of prime farm land for nonfarm purposes. The budget proposes to adjust the interest rate in the program so that all borrowers will be charged interest based on the cost of money. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is negotiated by the lender and the borrower.

Soil and water loans are made to owners or operators of farms and ranches for developing and conserving land and water resources. These loans may be made on farms which are larger than family farms. Corporate family farmers, farming cooperatives, and partnerships are also eligible. Loans are made for 40 years or less. An insured loan may not exceed $200 thousand and a guaranteed loan may not exceed $300 thousand. The borrower is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate for insured loans. An interest surcharge of 2% is applied if the loan involves the use of prime farm land for nonfarm purposes. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is negotiated by the lender and the borrower.

Irrigation and drainage loans are made to organizations primarily composed of farmers, ranchers, certain Indian tribes, and other rural residents for projects which include the application or establishment of soil conservation practices; the construction, improvement, or enlargement of facilities for drainage; and the conservation, development, use, or control of water. Typical recipients and projects financed through this program include: farmers and other rural residents developing community irrigation dams and canals; a soil and water conservation district purchasing heavy earth-moving equipment; and a community for drainage of land. These loans are made at not less than the cost of money interest rate for 40 years or less. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983.

Grazing loans are made to organizations primarily composed of family farmers, ranchers, certain Indian tribes, and other rural residents to provide seasonal grazing for livestock belonging to members of the association. Membership in an association permits a farmer or rancher to graze his livestock on association pasture for the grazing season and return them to his base unit for the balance of the year. Such a plan allows a farmer or rancher to increase the size of his operations. These loans are made at not less than the cost of money interest rate for 40 years or less. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983.

Resource conservation and development (RCD) loans are made to local sponsors of RCD projects approved for operation by the Soil Conservation Service. Loans are made to local organizations for conservation measures specified in approved project and works of improvement plans. These loans are repayable in not more than 30 years with a not-to-exceed 5 year deferment until the benefits from the RCD measure first become available. Loans bear interest at a rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983.

Watershed protection and flood prevention loans are made to local sponsors of projects approved by the Soil Conservation Service. Loans are made to local organizations for installing, repairing, or improving water storage facilities, purchasing sites or rights-of-way and for related costs. These loans are repayable in not more than 50 years at an interest rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. Total loans outstanding on any one project may not exceed $10 million. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983.

Indian tribe land acquisition loans are made to qualified Indian tribes or tribal corporations to acquire land or interest in land within the tribe's reservation or Alaskan Indian community, as determined by the Secretary of the Interior. Loans are made for 40 years or less. The tribe is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate except those tribes that are unable to pay the higher rate currently may be charged a lower interest rate. The budget proposes to adjust the interest rate in the program so that all borrowers will be charged the cost of money interest rate.

Farm operating loans are made to farmers and ranchers for costs incident to reorganizing a farming system for more profitable operations; for a variety of essential farm expenses such as the purchase of livestock, farm equipment, feed, seed, fertilizer, and farm supplies, and other essential operating expenses, for financing land and water development, use, and conservation; for developing recreation and other nonfarm enterprises; for other farm and home needs; for refinancing indebtedness; for complying with certain safety standards; for financing modest farm and nonfarm projects for rural youths in connection with their participation in 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America, and similar organizations; and for loan closing costs.

Operating loans for farming operations are confined to operators of not larger than family farms. Individuals, partnerships, corporations, and cooperatives operating family-size farms are eligible. The outstanding principal loan balance for operating loans to a borrower is limited to $100 thousand for insured loans and $200 thousand for guaranteed loans. The borrower is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate for insured loans except for low-income, limited resource borrowers who may currently be charged a lower interest rate. An interest surcharge of 2% is applied if the loan involves the use of prime farm land for nonfarm purposes. The budget proposes to adjust the interest rate in the program so that all borrowers will be charged interest rates based on the cost of money. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is negotiated by the lender and the borrower. Funds advanced for operating expenses are usually repaid when the crops, livestock, or other produce are sold. Funds advanced for other purposes may be repaid in 1 to 7 years; and loans may be renewed for up to 7 years. Loans are secured by crop and chattel liens and, when necessary, by real estate mortgages. It must be clearly established that the loan applicants are unable to obtain sufficient credit elsewhere to finance their needs.

Recreation loans are made to individual farmers and ranchers for converting all or a portion of a farm or ranch to outdoor income-producing recreation enterprises which will supplement or supplant farm or ranch income and permit carrying on sound and successful operations. These loans may be made on farms which are larger than family farms and may include funds for operating purposes. Corporate family farmers, farming cooperatives, and partnerships are also eligible. Applicants must be engaged in farming when making application in order to be eligible for a loan. Loans are made for 40 years or less. An insured loan may not exceed $200 thousand and a guaranteed loan may not exceed $300 thousand. The borrower is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate for insured loans and a rate agreed to by the lender and the borrower for guaranteed loans. An interest surcharge of 2% is applied to insured loans if the loan involves the use of prime farm land. No program is proposed in fiscal year 1983, since other program assistance is available for these purposes.

Economic emergency loans make financial assistance available during the period authorized by Public Law 95-334, as amended (authority expires September 30, 1982), in the form of loans insured or guaranteed by FmHA for bona fide farmers and ranchers who are primarily and directly engaged in agricultural production. This allows them to continue their normal farming or ranching operations during the economic emergency which caused a serious lack of agricultural credit due to national or areawide economic stress.

Authorization for this program was recently extended through September 30, 1982, and continued discretion for the Secretary of Agriculture to insure or guarantee up to $600 million in loans. The extent and nature of this program during the extended period of authorization is currently under consideration. The expanded authority of the crop insurance program and the increased levels of the farm operating loan program should alleviate much of the future need for the economic emergency loan program.

Emergency loans are made available in designated counties where property damage and/or severe production losses have occurred as a direct result of a natural disaster. For non-loss situations, emergency loans are made to established eligible farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture operators at a market rate of interest as established periodically by the Secretary for annual operating expenses, major adjustments and other essential needs arising from natural disasters.

Actual loss loans are made for physical losses to repair, restore, or replace damaged or destroyed farm property and supplies, and for production losses to compensate for loss of income based on reduced production of crops, livestock, and livestock products resulting from the disaster. Repayment terms vary according to the purposes of the loan and the projected reasonable repayment ability of the borrower. Loans for actual losses to crops, livestock, supplies, and equipment may be scheduled for repayment for up to 7 years. These loans may be renewed for up to 7 years. Under some conditions a longer repayment period may be authorized, but not to exceed 20 years. Generally, real estate will be needed as security when more than 7 years is authorized. Real estate loans will generally be scheduled for repayment within 30 years but may be scheduled for up to 40 years. Annual operating expenses usually will be scheduled for repayment each year when the principal income from the year's operations is received.

Legislation will be proposed to make the following changes in the disaster loan program:

- Increase interest rates on loss loans from 8% to Treasury borrowing costs.
- Restore "credit elsewhere" test for all borrowers.
- Lower the individual loan limit from $500 thousand to $300 thousand.

These changes are required to put this program on a more comparable basis with other Federal credit programs.

Administrative regulations require emergency actual loss borrowers whose loans are secured by crops to obtain Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC) insurance on future crop loss until the actual loss loan is repaid. FmHA also increased interest rates on emergency loans in excess of actual loss (annual production and major adjustment) to the commercial bank rate. Consequently, it is anticipated that demand for Emergency loans will decrease as the new crop insurance program is implemented. The Small Business Act of 1980, Public Law 96-302, made credit-worthy borrowers eligible for FmHA emergency disaster actual loss loans.

The following table shows 1981 actual and estimated 1982 and 1983 number of loans and program levels. The program levels shown for guaranteed loans in 1981 and 1982 reflect the actual amount guaranteed by the U.S. Government. Beginning in 1983 the guaranteed program levels reflect the full principal amount of the loan of which part of it is guaranteed.

RURAL DEVELOPMENT INSURANCE FUND

For [an additional amount] each fiscal year beginning with the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, there is hereby appropriated an amount sufficient to reimburse the rural development insurance fund for interest subsidies and losses sustained in prior years, but not previously reimbursed, in carrying out the provisions of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1988(a)) [$180,040,000].

For loans to be insured, or made to be sold and insured, under this fund in accordance with and subject to the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1928 and 86 Stat. 661-664, as follows: insured water and sewer facility loans, [$375,000,000; guaranteed industrial development loans, $300,000,000;] $300,000,000 and insured community facility loans, $130,000,000.

[Sec. 137. Notwithstanding any other provision of law or this joint resolution, $250,000,000 shall be available for loans to be guaranteed under the Rural Development Insurance Fund for alcohol production facilities to applicants that the Secretary of Agriculture determines are qualified to receive such guarantees.]

In sum, during 1983, gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans shall not exceed $430,000,000. (Public Law 97-103, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies, 1982.) (Public Law 97-51, continuing appropriations for fiscal year 1982.)

Note.—The amount shown for 1982 was appropriated under section 611 of Public Law 97-103, which appears at the end of this chapter

MEMORANDUM
2299	U.S. contingent liability for guaranteed loans outstanding, end of year.....	8,276,281	9,636,905	10,552,970

The Rural development insurance fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 116 of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-419), approved August 30, 1972, which also provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities to this fund.

The fund is used to insure or guarantee loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities, community facilities, industrial development and alcohol production facilities in rural areas.

The objective of the water and waste disposal loan program is to assist eligible borrowers (communities and others) to provide assistance for basic human amenities, alleviate health hazards and promote the orderly growth of rural areas by meeting the need for financing of new and improved rural water and waste disposal systems and meet National Clean Water Standards and the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Water and waste disposal development loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes, corporations not operated for profit, and public and quasi-public agencies for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water and/or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers, and other rural residents in rural areas which shall not include any areas in any city or town having a population in excess of 10,000 inhabitants according to the latest decennial census of the United States. These loans are repayable in terms not to exceed the useful life of the facility or 40 years, whichever is less. These loans bear interest not in excess of the current market yield for comparable municipal obligations, except those loans made in areas where the average income falls below the poverty level and the project is needed to meet health and safety standards bear interest not in excess of 5%.

The objective of the community facility loan program is to assist rural communities in developing or improving essential community facilities.

Community facility loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes, corporations not operated for profit, and public and quasi-public agencies for the purposes of constructing, enlarging, extending, or otherwise improving community facilities providing essential service to rural residents. Such facilities include those providing or supporting overall community development such as fire and rescue services, transportation, hydroelectric generation, and community, social, and cultural benefits. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers, and other rural residents in rural areas which shall not include any area in any city or town having a population in excess of 20,000 inhabitants according to the latest decennial census of the United States. These loans are repayable in terms not to exceed the useful life of the facility or 40 years, whichever is less. These loans bear interest not in excess of the current market yield for comparable municipal obligations, except those loans made in areas where the average income falls below the poverty level and the project is needed to meet health and safety standards bear interest not in excess of 5%. A surcharge of 2% is added to the interest rate for projects built on prime farmland when an optional site is available.

The objective of the guaranteed industrial development loan program is to facilitate the development or improvement of business and industry in rural areas, to stimulate economic growth, to create employment opportunities, and to improve the environmental climate.

Industrial development loans may be made to a cooperative, corporation, partnership, trust, or other legal entity organized and operated on a profit or nonprofit basis; Indian tribe; municipality, county, or other political subdivision of a State; or an individual. Loans are made for the purposes of financing business and industrial acquisition, construction, conversion, enlargement, repair, or modernization; financing the purchase and development of land, easements, rights-of-way, buildings, facilities, machinery, supplies, and materials; and payment of startup costs and supplying working capital.

Industrial development loans may be made in any area that is not within the outer boundary of any city having a population of 50,000 or more and its immediately adjacent urbanized and urbanizing areas with a population density of more than 100 persons per square mile. Special consideration for such loans is given to areas having a population of less than 25,000. These loans, except for public bodies, are repayable in three separate maturities not exceeding 30 years. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is determined by the lender and the borrower. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983.

The objective of the guaranteed alcohol production facility loan program is to reduce the dependence of the United States on imported petroleum and natural gas by the financing of production facilities for alcohol fuel.

Alcohol production facility loans may be made to a cooperative, corporation, partnership, trust, or other legal entity organized and operated on a profit or non-profit basis; Indian tribe; municipality, county, or other political subdivision of a State; or an individual. Loans are made for the purposes of acquisition, construction, conversion, enlargement, repair, or modernization of alcohol fuel facilities; financing the purchase of land, easements, rights-of-way, buildings, facilities, machinery, supplies, and materials; and payment of startup costs and supplying working capital.

The alcohol production facility loans may be made in any area that is not within the outer boundary of any city having a population of 50,000 or more and its immediately adjacent urbanized and urbanizing areas with a population density of more than 100 persons per square mile. Special consideration for such loans is given to areas having a population of less than 25,000. These loans, except for public bodies, are repayable in three separate maturities not exceeding 30 years. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is determined by the lender and borrower. FmHA administers the funding authority for the alcohol production facility loan program under the provisions of section 310B of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act of 1972, as amended and the industrial development loan program regulations. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1983.

In May 1979, the authority to make loans for community antenna television services and facilities was transferred from FmHA to the Rural Electrification Administration (REA). In fiscal year 1980, REA established the Rural Communication Development Fund for these loans. In fiscal year 1981, the two agencies agreed that REA should assume responsibility for a loan obligation and two outstanding loans made by FmHA prior to May 1979. The transfer was made in August 1981, from the Rural Development Insurance Fund to the Rural Communication Development Fund.

The following table shows the number of loans and the program levels for 1981 actual and estimated for 1982 and 1983. The program levels shown for guaranteed loans in 1981 and 1982 reflect the actual amount guaranteed by the U.S. Government.

1. Technical assistance.—Technical assistance is provided through conservation districts to land users and decisionmakers, including individual landowners and operators, community groups, units of government, Indian tribes, and others for the planning of conservation programs and installation of needed conservation systems on the land, including design, layout, installation, and consultation services.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation systems are planned in relation to each other to achieve well-balanced conservation programs. Both vegetative and structural measures are installed in harmony with the needs of the land for protection, treatment, and resource improvement. Plans reflect the decisions of the land users, community groups, and units of government concerning the use and treatment of land and water resources.

Technicians of the Soil Conservation Service explain the various soil conditions, develop alternative uses and treatments, help to evaluate the costs and returns of conservation work, and furnish assistance in applying the needed treatments. The technical services provided through conservation operations are instrumental in encouraging farmers, ranchers, and others to establish conservation practices.

Technical assistance is also provided to participants in the agricultural conservation cost-share program in establishing specified enduring practices and measures; to participants in other programs involving land-use adjustments and soil and water conservation; in support of the experimental rural clean water program; in the planning and application of soil and water conservation practices for which loans are made by the Farmers Home Administration; and to rural development committees. Technical assistance on special national soil, water, and related resource problems such as land-use planning, mine spoil restoration, and control of erosion, sedimentation, and agricultural-related pollutants, is also provided.

Beginning in 1981 a program of accelerated technical assistance was initiated in targeted geographical areas with severe erosion, water conservation, and water quality problems. In fiscal year 1982 a total of $6.6 million of the technical assistance funds will be designated for this purpose. The targeted geographical areas include the Palouse area of Washington, Oregon, and Idaho; the Corn Belt area of Missouri and Iowa; the Southern Piedmont areas of Alabama and Georgia; West Tennessee; and the irrigated areas of the Western States.

2. Inventorying and monitoring.—Inventorying and monitoring provides soil, water, and related resource data for land conservation, use, and development; for guidance of community development to achieve a balanced rural-urban growth; for identification of prime agriculture-producing areas; for evaluating land-use changes and trends; and for use in protecting the quality of the natural resource base.

3. Soil surveys.—Soil surveys and investigations are made of the Nation's soil resources, with interpretations and publications that provide physical land facts needed for program development, resource conservation planning, installation of planned practices, and for use by other Federal, State, and local agencies in making land-use decisions.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

4. Snow survey water forecasting.—Water supply forecasts prepared from snow surveys in western States are used in making efficient seasonal use of water for irrigation, flood control, fish and wildlife, recreation, power generation, municipal and industrial water supply, and water quality management.

5. Operation of plant materials centers.—The selection and evaluation of plant materials are made at 20 plant materials centers through field trials to determine their suitability for erosion control, conservation, and other environmental improvements.

6. Resource appraisal and program development.—Resource appraisal and program development is carried out to insure that programs administered by the Secretary of Agriculture for the conservation of soil, water, and related resources shall respond to the Nation's long-term needs. The Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 provides for a report to the public and Congress at 5-year intervals beginning January 1980.

SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION GRANTS

For necessary expenses to carry into effect a program of soil and water conservation grants pursuant to sections 1514 through 1519 of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-98), $10,000,000, to remain available until expended.

90.00 Outlays			7,500

This account funds a program of matching grants for technical assistance to local units of government through State soil conservation agencies, based on the provisions of subtitle D, title XV of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981, Public Law 97-98.

Federal grant funds would be used to supplement and increase technical assistance activities for carrying out conservation work on non-Federal lands with critical soil erosion or upstream flooding.

The Secretary will designate critical resource problem areas of national significance, based on information from National Resource Inventories, River Basin Studies, studies carried out under the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977, and from other sources including other USDA agencies. A local unit of government within a nationally designated area would be eligible to receive Federal Grant funds if it (1) has in effect a current long-range program which the State soil conservation agency determines is adequate to meet local and State laws and objectives; (2) has in effect a current annual work plan which is consistent with the long-range program; and (3) certifies that it has arranged for matching funds or in-kind services to the local unit from regional, State, local, or private sources.

Long-range programs and annual work plans may include any of the soil, water, and related resource conservation objectives enumerated in section 1516(a) of the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-98).

Federal grant funds will be provided to eligible units of government in the ratio of 75% Federal to 25% State and local up to the limit of available funds.

The Department cooperates with other Federal, State, and local agencies in making surveys and investigations of watersheds of rivers and other waterways as the basis for the development of coordinated water and related land resources programs.

1. River basin surveys.—The Department participates in cooperative surveys and investigations in river basins primarily with State water resource agencies, but also with other interested Federal and local entities. Priority is given to studies which: (a) address erosion problems, protect the resource base, and improve water quality; (b) solve nonpoint source pollution problems, including erosion control, salinity, and water quality; (c) protect important farm and wetlands; and (d) improve irrigation efficiencies and conservation of water.

The Department participates on the Water Resources Council interagency river basin studies (level B) which are financed by reimbursable agreement. Only one study is in progress and no new studies are planned.

2. Flood plain management assistance.—Through this cooperative program, SCS assists local governments in carrying out flood hazard studies and provides technical assistance for the development of a flood plain management program. These detailed technical studies delineate flood-prone areas and floodways on maps for local use in implementing programs to reduce hazards to life and property from flooding.

3. Interagency coordination and program formulation.—The Department maintains representation on three river basin interagency committees, the Susquehanna and Delaware River Basin Commissions and other regional entities involved in water and related resource planning and coordination. These serve as points of contact in coordinating activities and programs of this Department and other Federal departments and agencies and the States in these basin areas. Department representatives keep concerned parties informed of the activities of the member agencies and facilitate interagency coordination.

The Department makes surveys of proposed small watershed projects, and work plans are prepared in cooperation with local sponsors. These plans outline the soil and water management problems in the watershed, the steps that have been or are authorized to be taken to alleviate these problems, the proposed works of improvement to be installed, the estimated benefits and costs, cost sharing, and operation and maintenance arrangements, and other facts necessary to justify Federal participation in project development. New planning starts in fiscal year 1982 and fiscal year 1983 will be primarily for watershed protection work.

This program provides for cooperation between the Federal Government and States and their political subdivisions in installing works of improvement to; reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion; for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water, and; for the conservation and proper utilization of land. Loans are available through the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration to local organizations to help them finance their share of the costs for certain works of improvement.

Watershed operations authorized by Public Law 534.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention in 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development.

The Department furnishes technical and, in certain instances, financial assistance to landowners to accelerate planning and installation of land treatment measures for runoff retardation, sediment control, and water management. Local sponsoring organizations must furnish all land easements and rights-of-way, water rights, all costs of works of improvement for nonagricultural water management measures (except for those related to fish and wildlife development and recreation) and operate and maintain all completed works of improvement.

Within the 11 authorized projects, 397 subwatershed areas have been identified for planning purposes. Installation progress in these subwatersheds is as follows:

Emergency watershed protection operations.—This program authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to undertake such emergency measures for runoff retardation and soil erosion prevention as may be needed to safeguard life and property from floods and the products of erosion on any watershed whenever natural elements or force causes a sudden impairment of that watershed. An emergency is considered to exist when a watershed is suddenly impaired by flood, fire, wind, earthquake, or other natural cause and consequently life and property are endangered by floodwater, erosion, or sediment discharge. The emergency area need not be declared a national disaster area to be eligible for emergency watershed protection. Emergency watershed protection is applicable to small scale, localized disasters as well as large scale disasters. State environmental, natural resource, fish and game, and other agencies participate in planning and coordinating emergency work.

Emergency operations on non-Federal land are sponsored by State or local organizations. Emergency operations supplement other Federal, State, and local resources committed to alleviate the hazard. Conditions essential to funding assistance are that a watershed impairment must have occurred suddenly as a result of a natural element or force and there exists a threat to life or property from floods or the products of erosion. Sponsoring organizations must provide needed land rights, water rights, and permits and accept responsibility for operation and maintenance, if required, all without cost to the emergency operation funds. The Forest Service does this work on lands it administers and on lands adjacent to Forest Service land which they administer under formal agreement. Funds are made available to the Forest Service from this appropriation.

Small watershed operations authorized by Public Law 566.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install measures for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife enhancement.

Watershed work plans are prepared by sponsoring local organizations with the Department's assistance or through State and local resources. After work plans are approved by the Department or Congress (projects where the estimated Federal contribution will exceed $1 million require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specific works of improvements.

Land treatment and engineering services are provided to approved projects in advance of construction. During the preconstruction state, surveys, and investigations are made and detailed designs, specifications, and engineering cost estimates are prepared for structural measures, land rights areas are identified, and the technical services are furnished for accelerating planning and application of land treatment measures.

On non-Federal lands, local sponsoring organizations must acquire water rights and furnish land, easements, and rights-of-way for all structural measures, except up to 50% of the cost of land rights allocated to public fish and wildlife and recreational developments which may be paid from Public Law 566 funds. Local sponsoring organizations have the option of contracting for construction work or may request SCS to do the contracting for them. Local sponsoring organizations must operate and maintain completed works of improvement and in the case of multiple-purpose structures, bear a share of the construction costs. On Federal lands, Federal agencies do this work on lands they administer with appropriate contributions made by local people who receive benefits.

The following tabulation shows the status of Public Law 566 projects:

Loan services.—Loans are made to local sponsoring organizations to finance the local cost of installing works of improvement in Public Law 534 and approved Public Law 566 watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available. Loans are made from funds available for this purpose from the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from this appropriation.

This program provides cost-share and technical services to participating landowners or operators in the Great Plains area in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans and practices for their land under contracts entered into in prior years. It is a voluntary program which complements other conservation programs of the Department in 518 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Contracts with individual landowners range in time from 3 to 10 years.

Conservation plans made for each farm or ranch serve as a basis for cost sharing on approved practices. The fundamental purposes of this program are to achieve needed land use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability of each operating unit. The planned work is installed under contract according to specific time schedules.

Program participants:	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Number of new contracts during year	725	700	350
Number of contracts serviced during year	11,678	10,569	9,119
Number of acres under contracts	112,607,000	114,607,000	115,607,000

As of September 30, 1981, there were about 9,775 active contracts on hand. Cooperating landowners or operators finance the entire cost of installing recurring management-type practices and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices installed on their land.

Program regulations provide that cost-share rates offered in any contract shall not exceed 80% of the cost of installing eligible practices within the designated county. The rates vary among States and practices due to differences in conservation and program needs. Cost sharing for irrigation practices in any one contract shall not exceed $10,000 or one-fourth of the total Federal obligation. There is a cost-sharing limitation of $35 thousand for any contract.

Each participant who signs a Great Plains program contract is responsible for implementing his plan of operations; and the Department is committed to furnishing the necessary technical help needed for design, layout, and other services. Cooperating landowners and operators are encouraged to make use of other available assistance under local, State, and Federal programs as a means of further improving their land and water resources.

This program provides for the Department to assist States, local units of government, groups and individuals in developing area plans for resource conservation and development (R.C. & D.).

Resource conservation and development areas are provided technical and financial assistance to help States and local units of government prepare plans for resource development and economic improvement and to plan and install community-type conservation projects or measures. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help carry out measures specified in R.C. & D. area plans.

No new R.C. & D. area authorizations or measure plans will be initiated in 1983. Funds will be used to complete work in process and terminate the program.

Loans were made to qualified local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of installing the measures. Funds will not be available for loans from the Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund of the Farmers Home Administration in 1983.

The following tabulation shows the status of R.C. & D. areas authorized to receive technical and financial assistance.

The major objectives of the Service are to protect the animal and plant resources of the Nation from destructive pests and diseases.

1. Plant disease and pest control.—Through inspections at ports of entry, insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and animal pests and diseases harmful to agriculture are prevented from entering this country. Cooperative programs with the States are conducted to prevent the spread of and/or to eradicate certain plant pests already established in this country. The 1983 estimates propose decreases for imported fire ant, bio-control, boll weevil, gypsy moth, Medfly, and pink bollworm programs. The 1983 estimates propose no funding for the golden nematode, grasshopper, miscellaneous plant pests, noxious weeds, and witchweed programs. The agricultural quarantine inspection activities will remain at approximately the 1982 level, however, additional user fees will be instituted to make the provision of services uniform. The budget anticipates an increase of $1.8 million in fees for certifying export certificates for plants.

Selected examples of the level of activities for plant pest control programs follow:

Acres treated (thousands):
Boll weevil (high plains)	80	100	100
Grasshopper	1,300	2,500
Gypsy moth	10	20
Sterile insects released (millions):
Mexican fruit fly	73	200	200
Pink bollworm (adult moths)	800	900	900
Mediterranean fruit fly	20,000	30,000	30,000
Parasites released (thousands): Citrus blackfly	75
Annual acres released from quarantine through eradication: Witchweed	7,215	7,000

The level of activity for agricultural quarantine inspection at ports of entry is as follows:

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Plant and animal product and byproduct inspection:
Airplanes (thousands)	270	280	306
Vessels (thousands)	57	56	57
Vehicles from Mexico (millions)	51	58	60
Baggage, pieces (millions)	124	126	128

2. Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to keep communicable diseases of foreign origin from entering this country and to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics. In cooperation with States, other programs are directed at the control and eradication of livestock diseases present in this country. Foreign animal diseases, should they enter this country, are rapidly diagnosed and outbreaks which are of economic significance and for which the Secretary of Agriculture declares a national emergency are controlled and eradicated. The animal care programs regulate the humane care and handling of approximately 40 million warmblooded commercial (pet) and laboratory animals, restrict animal fighting ventures and prohibit the soring of horses. Part of the program includes the exportation of healthy and sound livestock in a humane manner. The 1983 estimates propose to phase the federally financed brucellosis eradication program to a voluntary vaccination program paid for by livestock and dairy producers. Increases are proposed for foot-and-mouth disease, screwworm, and veterinary biologics and decreases for animal welfare, cattle ticks, emergency programs, horse protection, import-export and tuberculosis programs. The 1983 estimates propose elimination of the scabies program. The budget anticipates an increase of $0.4 million in fees so as to recover 100% of the costs associated with quarantining livestock entering the United States through animal quarantine facilities. This change equalizes the fees charged for importing all types of animals into the United States. An additional $1.4 million is anticipated in fees for certifying export certificates for animal semen.

The level of activities for the major control programs on animal diseases and pests is as follows:

Market cattle identification reactor42	.40	.42
Swine Disease Surveillance: Investigations of suspect cases	652	652	652
Screwworm:

Cases in Mexico bordering U.S.	108	40
Scabies: Number of Federal quarantines placed because of psoroptic cattle scabies	2	2
Tuberculosis (cattle): Herds depopulated (per year)	13	6
Cattle ticks:
Premises quarantined outside barrier zone because of infestation with cattle fever ticks	10	15	15
Premises quarantined within barrier zone because of infestation with cattle fever ticks	25	30	30
Percent veterinary biologics tested for potency	36	36	38
Import inspection:
Animals (thousands)	852	900	900
Personally owned pet birds (lots)	3,500	5,000	5,000
Commercial birds (thousands)	524	600	700
Animal care: Complaint investigated and resolved	997	1,000	1,500

3. Construction of facilities.—In 1981, the Congress appropriated funds under a separate account to APHIS, Buildings and Facilities. The activity reflected shows obligations from prior-year moneys.

4. Contingencies.—Of the total annual amounts provided under this appropriation, $2.5 million has been apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, for the control of outbreaks of insects, plant diseases, and animal diseases to the extent necessary to meet emergency conditions.

5. Reimbursement program.—Reimbursements include amounts for overtime and travel performed in connection with import-export inspection services and cooperative programs with other Federal agencies.

In fiscal year 1981, Congress directed that construction activities be separated from regular appropriated funds. In 1981, the Department received funding for constructing animal holding facilities and other small buildings, planning funds for a sterile Mexican fruit fly rearing facility, and construction funds for a biological control facility and a sterile fruit fly facility in Hawaii. In 1982, the Department received funding for constructing animal holding facilities and other small buildings, construction funds for facilities for smuggled birds, planning funds for a plant quarantine facility, and construction funds for a Mexican fruit fly facility. In 1983, the Department is requesting funding for constructing animal holding facilities and other small buildings.

The following services are financed by fees and miscellaneous contributions advanced by importers, manufacturers, States, organizations, individuals, and others:

1. Expenses and refunds, inspection, certification, and quarantine of animal products.—This includes inspection of products intended for human consumption and those products and byproducts not intended for human food. Animal products and byproducts moving in interstate and foreign commerce are subject to inspection and quarantine regulations to prevent the introduction and spread of animal diseases. Fees are paid in advance for services to be rendered. (7 U.S.C. 1621-1627) (21 U.S.C. 111).

2. Expenses, feed, and attendants for animals in quarantine.—Costs associated with the care of animals are paid from fees advanced by importers (21 U.S.C. 102).

3. Miscellaneous contributed funds.—Funds are received from States, local organizations, individuals, and others and are available for plant and animal quarantine inspection and cooperative plant and animal disease and pest control activities (7 U.S.C. 450b, 2220). Commencing with 1979, fees were collected for the importation of commercial birds.

The Federal Grain Inspection Service was established on November 20, 1976.

The mission of the Agency is to promote, protect, and facilitate domestic and foreign commerce of U.S. grain and related commodities in the interests of producers, merchandisers, warehousemen, processors, grain consumers and the nation.

The U.S. Grain Standards Act (USGSA), as amended, requires obligations associated with the standardization and compliance activities, the international monitoring staff and an established Grain Inspection Advisory Committee be financed entirely from appropriations.

Activities that will be performed during the year will include: researching and developing methods for ensuring the accuracy and uniformity in the application of U.S. grain standards; establishing, reviewing and revising these standards; calibrating instruments and equipment to accurately perform the inspection process; performing designation review team visits; and investigating violations of a technical nature.

The international monitoring staff will travel in order to brief foreign buying teams; assess foreign inspection and weighing techniques; respond to foreign quality and quantity complaints; and perform mandatory inspection and weighing of grains shipped for export.

In fiscal year 1983, a GSA advisory committee, consisting of members from the grain industry, will be established to advise the agency regarding efficient and economical implementation of the USGSA.

The Federal Grain Inspection Service provides a uniform system for the inspection and weighing of grain. Services provided under this system are financed through a fee supported revolving fund.

Fee supported programs include direct services, supervision activities, and administrative functions. Direct services include official grain inspection and weighing by FGIS employees at certain export ports as well as the inspection of U.S. grain shipped through Canada. In addition to the supervision of its own employees, FGIS oversees the inspection and weighing of grain by 8 delegated States and 82 designated State and private agencies. FGIS also provides a final appeal service of original grain inspections and a registration system for grain firms operating in the export trade. Through support from the Association of American Railroads, and fees from the grain industry, FGIS conducts a railroad track scale testing program in accordance with the U.S. Grain Standards Act (USGSA) and consists of biannual tests of railroad track scales. FGIS is again directing funds to support a special task force of the National Academy of Sciences to investigate the causes of grain elevator and mill explosions. In addition, the agency provides grading services for rice and grain related products which are covered by the Agricultural Marketing Act (AMA) of 1946, as amended.

Note.—Includes $15,022 in 1982 and $11,604 in 1983 for activities transferred from Food Safety and Inspection Service.

In accordance with Secretary's memorandum 1000-1, which directed a departmental reorganization, effective October 1, 1981, AMS will no longer have responsibility for the administration of the Packers and Stockyards Act and has added responsibilities for certain inspection, standardization, grading and commodity procurement functions formerly performed by the Food Safety and Inspection Service.

These activities assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities by providing a variety of marketing services. These services continue to become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the agricultural market structure undergoes extensive changes. Marketing changes include increased concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

1. Market news service.—This program provides current information on supply, movement, contractual agreements, inventories, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. Market news provides the American agricultural community with timely, accurate, and unbiased market information.

Where possible, market information is collected and disseminated through joint Federal/State effort utilizing both Federal and State personnel and resources. Market information is disseminated primarily by radio, television, and mailed reports. The volume of work performed is indicated by examples given in the following table:

2. Administration of Packers and Stockyards Act.—The Packers and Stockyards Administration was established as a separate agency within USDA on October 1, 1981, and is now responsible for the administration of the Packers and Stockyards Act.

The volume of work performed is indicated by the following examples:

3. Inspection, grading and standardization.—Nationally uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of products to: promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party.

Grading services are provided for cotton, tobacco and naval stores and warehouse examination services for warehouses licensed under the U.S. Warehouse Act and those storing CCC-pledged or owned commodities.

As authorized by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-35), these programs began operation on a voluntary fee-for-service basis effective October 1, 1981. Prior to this Act these programs were supported by appropriations.

By conducting periodic unannounced examinations of warehouses licensed under the U.S. Warehouse Act and warehouses storing CCC-owned or pledged commodities the warehouse examination program provides: Protection to farmers and others who warehouse their crops; the confidence in the fiscal soundness of warehouses necessary to insure that warehouse receipts are accepted as documents of title for loan collateral or in facilitating interstate commerce; and, a standard for sound warehouse operations.

Continuous in-plant inspection of all plants manufacturing liquid, frozen or dried egg products is provided with quarterly inspection of egg handlers and hatcheries to ensure the proper disposition of restricted eggs. Imported egg products are controlled to make certain that the inspection system in exporting countries are equal to United States standards. Expanded residue detection and control is provided by the development of new analytical techniques and by the strengthening of the Contamination Response System through increased laboratory capability.

A uniform government food specification system is maintained to provide a more efficient Federal food procurement service.

4. Market protection and promotion.—These include the administration of regulatory laws such as the U.S. Warehouse and Federal Seed Acts. To protect producers who store their cotton in public warehouses, AMS will license public warehouses and conduct unannounced examinations of cotton warehouses. Beginning in fiscal year 1982 grain and other warehouses will be funded from user fees. Federal seed inspectors will conduct tests on samples to help assure truthful labeling of agricultural and vegetable seeds sold in interstate commerce. The research and promotion programs are designed to improve the competitive position and expand markets for cotton, eggs, wheat, and wool and mohair. AMS also administers the Plant Variety Protection and the Export Fruit Acts.

The volume of work performed is indicated in the following tables:

6. Market supervision and assistance.—This program consists of the (1) Capper-Volstead Act and the Agricultural Fair Practices Act which protect producers against discriminatory practices by handlers, permit producers to engage in cooperative efforts, and assure that such cooperatives do not engage in practices that monopolize or restrain trade; (2) Potato Research and Promotion Act which provides for agency supervision of advertising and research activities designed to strengthen the demand for potatoes; (3) Food Marketing Alert Program which promotes an orderly flow of food from producers to retailers and consumers by informing these groups when commodities are in short or abundant supply; and (4) commodity purchase services which provides the administrative support necessary for the purchase of commodities for distribution under USDA feeding programs to eligible outlets and also provides price assistance to producers by removing from market chance agricultural products in burdensome supply. For 1981 and 1982, this activity was financed from section 32 funds.

Payments are made on a matching fund basis to State marketing agencies to carry out specifically approved programs designed to enhance marketing efficiency. Under this activity, specialists have worked with farmers, marketing firms, and other agencies in solving marketing problems and in using research results.

This program has covered such projects as: Methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products; ways of reducing marketing costs; expanding outlets for surplus products; innovative research on the collecting and disseminating of special State and local market information and statistics; and improving the organizational structure of the marketing system.

License fees are deposited in this special fund and are used to meet the costs of administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities and the Produce Agency Acts (7 U.S.C. 491-497, 499a-499s). The current annual license fee is set at $150 plus $50 for every branch or business facility above nine, up to a maximum of $1,000.

The acts are intended to assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (a) informal agreements between the two parties, (b) formal decisions involving payment of reparation awards, and (c) suspension or revocation of license and/or publication of the facts. Payments in connection with formal and informal reparation settlements to producers are estimated to amount to $8 million in 1983.

Under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U.S.C. 612c), an amount equal to 30% of customs receipts collected during each calendar year is automatically appropriated for expanding outlets for nonbasic commodities. An amount equal to 30% of receipts collected on fishery products is transferred to the Department of Commerce. Most of the funds are transferred to the Food and Nutrition Service and are dedicated to commodity distribution activities under section 6 of the national school lunch and other authorities specified in the child nutrition appropriation. If commodity surpluses not now foreseen should develop, the reserves not currently programmed (unobligated balances) are available for surplus removal.

1. Expenses and refunds, inspection and grading of farm products.—The commodity inspection and grading programs provide grading, examination, and certification services for a wide variety of nonfood and fresh and processed food commodities using federally approved grade standards and purchase specifications. Commodities graded include poultry, livestock, meat, dairy products, and fresh and processed fruits and vegetables. These programs use official grade standards which reflect the relative quality of a particular food commodity based on laboratory testing and characteristics such as taste, color, weight and physical condition. Actual grading and certification service is voluntary and is provided to producers on a fee for service basis.

¹The administrative fund totals are comprised of 48 separate independent order accounts in 1981. The Marketing Service fund totals are comprised of 36 separate independent order accounts in 1981.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended—under certain conditions—to issue Federal milk marketing orders establishing minimum prices which handlers are required to pay for milk purchased from producers.

Market administrators are responsible for carrying out locally the terms of specific marketing orders. Their operating expenses, partly financed by assessments on regulated handlers and partly by deductions from producers, are reported in these schedules. These funds are collected locally, deposited in local banks, and disbursed directly by the market administrator.

Each milk order is administered locally by a market administrator who is appointed by the Secretary. His staff is employed directly by the market administrator.

The expenses of each local office are met from an administrative fund and a marketing service fund which are prescribed in each order. The administrative fund is derived from prorated handler assessments. The marketing service fund of the individual order provides for the expense of disseminating market information to producers who are not members of a qualified cooperative. It also provides for the verification of the weights, sampling, and testing of milk from these producers. The cost of these services is borne by such producers.

The maximum rates for administrative assessment and for marketing services are set forth in each order and adjustments below these rates are made from time to time upon recommendations by the market administrator and upon approval of the Agricultural Marketing Service to provide reserves at about a 6-month operating level. Upon termination of any order, the statute provides for distributing the proceeds from net assets pro rata to contributing handlers or producers as the case may be.

Milk sold by regulated handlers supplied almost 165 million persons in calendar year 1980.

The following table gives an indication of the role of Federal orders on the marketing of milk over the past few years:

The activities carried out under this appropriation were transferred from the Agricultural Marketing Service, the Farmers Home Administration, the Foreign Agricultural Service, the Science and Education Administration, and the Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service pursuant to Secretary's Memorandum No. 1966, dated December 12, 1978. The level of costs relating to obligations incurred under this program prior to 1981 was previously included in the accounts of the above agencies.

The programs of the Office of Transportation are designed to assure a viable transportation system for the agricultural and rural areas in the United States. This is done by providing technical assistance to producers, producer groups, and rural communities to help them solve specific transport problems; providing technical information to carriers and shippers as to the particular needs of agriculture and rural areas for transportation; providing economic analysis and technical research and development in agriculture and rural area transportation; and coordinating programs within USDA affecting agriculture and rural area transportation.

Note.—Excludes $15,022 thousand in 1982 and $11,604 thousand in 1983 for activities transferred to the appropriation for Agricultural Marketing Service, previously financed from this appropriation.

The Food Safety and Inspection Service was established on June 17, 1981 by Secretary's Memorandum No. 1000-1 issued pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953 (7 U.S.C. 2201). Under the reorganization, Commodity Purchase Services, Egg Products Inspection, and Voluntary Commodity Inspection and Grading (formerly in this agency) were transferred to the Agricultural Marketing Service where they were located prior to 1977.

The major objectives of the Agency are to assure that meat and poultry products are wholesome, unadulterated, and properly labeled and packaged, as required by the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act.

The Meat and Poultry Inspection program of the Food Safety and Inspection Service provides continuous inplant inspection of all domestic plants preparing meat or poultry products for sale or distribution; reviews foreign inspection systems and establishments that prepare meat or poultry products for export to the United States; and provides technical and financial assistance to States which maintain meat and poultry inspection programs.

The food stamp program helps increase the food purchasing power of eligible households by enabling them to purchase food at retail stores with food stamp coupons.

1. Bonus.—Participating households receive food stamps whose value is determined by household size and income. This cost is borne entirely by the Federal Government.

2. State administration.—State welfare agencies are responsible for certification of eligible households and for issuing the correct amount of food stamps.

3. Other program costs.—Other program costs include printing and transporting coupons to authorized State agencies, processing and destruction of redeemed coupons by Federal Reserve banks, and other costs.

The program was originally designed to encourage the consumption of milk by children in non-profit schools of high school grade and under, child care centers, summer camps and similar institutions. Public Law 97-35 restricted the special milk program to schools and institutions that do not participate in other federally subsidized meal programs. Proposed legislation would eliminate the program entirely beginning July 1, 1982. In 1983, the school lunch and other child nutrition programs will spend over $700 million for milk.

CHILD NUTRITION PROGRAMS

For necessary expenses to carry out the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1751-1761, and 1766), and the applicable provisions other than section 3 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1773-1785, and 1788); [$2,846,838,000] $2,825,781,000, of which [$1,082,890,000] $611,091,000 is hereby appropriated, and [$1,763,948,000] $2,214,690,000 shall be derived by transfer from funds available under section 32 of the Act of August 24, 1935 (7 U.S.C. 612c), including $80,000,000 for purchase and distribution of agricultural commodities and other foods pursuant to section 6 of the National School Lunch Act: Provided, That funds provided herein shall remain available until September 30, [1983] 1984: Provided further, That [only] claims for reimbursement for meals served [after September 1, 1981] between October 1, 1982, and September 30, 1983, submitted to State agencies prior to January [1983] 1, 1984, shall be eligible for reimbursement: Provided further, That claims for reimbursement for meals served during the first calendar quarter of the 1982-1983 school year and submitted to State agencies prior to January 1, 1983, shall also be eligible for reimbursement: Provided further, That funds appropriated for the purpose of section 7 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 shall be allocated among the States but the distribution of such funds to an individual State is contingent upon that State's agreement to participate in studies and surveys of programs authorized under the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 when such studies and surveys have been directed by the Congress and requested by the Secretary of Agriculture: Provided further, That if the Secretary of Agriculture determines that a State's administration of any program under the National School Lunch Act or the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (other than section 17), or the regulations issued pursuant to these Acts, is seriously deficient, and the State fails to correct the deficiency within a specified period of time, the Secretary may withhold from the State some or all of the funds allocated to the State under section 7 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 [and under section 13(k)(1) of the National School Lunch Act]; upon a subsequent determination by the Secretary that the programs are operated in an acceptable manner some or all of the funds withheld may be allocated: Provided further, That appropriations under this Act shall not be available for activities authorized by section 13 of the National School Lunch Act: Provided further, That for activities authorized by section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 and section 17 of the National School Lunch Act, $488,000,000 shall be the maximum amount available and shall be allocated to the States in proportion to the funds received by each State for these purposes in fiscal year 1981: Provided further, That funds appropriated under this head shall be the maximum amount available to carry out the requirements of the National School Lunch Act and applicable provisions other than section 3 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966, and the Secretary of Agriculture is authorized to set amounts in lieu of the amounts otherwise payable under those acts in a manner that he determines best meets the intent and purpose of those Acts. The child nutrition programs are authorized by the National School Lunch Act and the Child Nutrition Act of 1966. Through State agencies, Federal assistance in cash and commodities is provided for use in preparing and serving nutritious meals to children. This assistance is provided through the school lunch, school breakfast, summer food service and child care food programs. Funds are also made available for nutrition studies and State administrative expenses. Proposed legislation will discontinue the summer feeding program and allow wider State discretion in allocating school breakfast and child care feeding funds.

The special supplemental food programs—the women, infants, children (WIC) program and the commodity supplemental food program—provide nutritious foods to pregnant, post-partum and breastfeeding women, infants and children who are at nutritional risk and have inadequate incomes. In 1983, these programs are proposed for inclusion in a Department of Health and Human Services grant for services for women, infants and children.

The nutrition information service activity performs applied research in human nutrition to improve professional and public understanding of the nutritional adequacy of diets and food supplies as well as the nutritive value of food and to develop knowledge needed to improve the nutritional quality of diets, thereby improving the general health of the American public. As part of these responsibilities this activity conducts and analyzes the National Food Consumption Survey. The activity also includes the collecting, disseminating and consulting on technical, educational and nonprint material and information on food use, food management, and human nutrition problems.

The Packers and Stockyards Administration was established on October 1, 1981, in accordance with Secretary's Memorandum No. 1000-1 issued pursuant to the Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1953 (7 U.S.C. 2201). Packers and Stockyards activities were formerly performed by the Agricultural Marketing Service.

The goal of this program is to assure fair play in the marketing of livestock, meat, and poultry. Its principal purpose is to maintain effective competition for livestock, meat, and poultry marketing in order to assure that farmers and ranchers receive the true market value for their livestock and poultry. Consumers and members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices in the marketing of meat and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which would unduly increase meat and poultry prices. Currently, efforts are being intensified to reduce the incidence of commercial bribery in the livestock and poultry industries.

The volume of work performed is indicated below:

The Agricultural Cooperative Service serves as the national focal point and store-house for information about farmer cooperatives. The major missions of the Agency include research on cooperative problems and issues, providing technical assistance to existing farmer cooperatives, collecting and disseminating cooperative statistics, preparing and distributing educational materials and analyzing the feasibility of new cooperative organizations.

Research studies include financial, managerial, organizational, legal, social, economics, and policy related issues that affect cooperatives that market farm products, purchase production supplies and perform related services.

Technical assistance is provided in response to problems that may come to the ACS from farmer cooperative board of directors, representing hundreds and in some instances thousands of farmer members. Help is also provided to groups of producers interested in organizing new cooperatives, merging existing organizations, changing business organization, and future growth or development. The full range of organization and management problems confronting cooperatives is covered by the ACS technical assistance program.

The ACS also serves as the statistical focal point for national data on farmer cooperatives. Data on numbers of cooperatives, membership, business volume and financial condition are collected and analyzed to detect changes in structure, operations and growth trends of cooperatives. The data also helps identify and support applied research and technical assistance activity.

Educational materials are prepared by the ACS to promote knowledge of cooperative principles and practices as a means to increase family farm income. The Agency provides materials covering a wide range of subject matter written from very elementary to the most detailed levels. This information is distributed in cooperation with various educational organizations including the Agricultural Extension Service, the American Institute of Cooperation, State Councils of Farmer Cooperatives, Future Farmers of America, State Extension Services and others.

The ACS's efforts are geared to providing immediate response and leadership for more effective and efficient cooperative operations in the changing economic environment in which the family farmer operates.

Research is conducted and disseminated through eight regional forest experiment stations and the Forest Products Laboratory through both in-house and extra-mural programs.

1. Land and resource protection research.—Research is conducted to provide basic knowledge and improved technology in the protection of resources from fire, insects, and diseases; in the reclamation of surface mining areas; in the evaluation of renewable resources; and in land and resource economics.

2. Renewable resource management and utilization research.—Research is conducted to provide basic knowledge and improved technology for the management of timber, wildlife, fish, range, recreation, watershed, and urban resources.

Cooperative forestry assistance is provided to all the States, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands and the Trust Territory of the Pacific to promote protection and management of forest lands.

1. Forest pest management.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to protect forest resources and processed wood from insects and diseases directly on National Forests and other Federal lands and in cooperation with States on non-Federal lands.

2. Rural fire prevention and control.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to State forestry organizations for fire protection on non-Federal lands and for assuring that properly trained and equipped crews are ready for interstate and interagency action during fire emergencies.

3. Rural forestry assistance.—Financial and technical assistance is provided to State forestry organizations to: improve management of non-industrial private forest lands for timber production and related forest resources; improve wood utilization; increase seedling production and nursery capacity of State tree nurseries; expand State tree improvement programs.

4. Assistance in management, planning, and technology implementation.—Financial and technical assistance are provided to State forestry agencies to: improve the quality of the State agencies through organization management assistance; develop comprehensive long-range State forest resource plans; transfer promising research results to potential users.

5. General forestry assistance.—Activities are of a specific project nature to accomplish highly specialized forestry activities not included in other Forest Service programs. Current activities are the Pinchot Institute for Conservation Studies, FIRESCOPE, and assistance to Minnesota for forestry impacts of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area Wilderness.

The 154 national forests and 19 units of national grasslands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of outdoor recreation, range, timber, watershed, and wildlife are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation, without impairing productivity of the land and that will be environmentally acceptable. These management and utilization principles were recognized in the Multiple-Use Sustained-Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to meeting the increased demands for specific National Forest resource needs through 1983 and for long-term objectives to the year 2020. Increases are provided in the budget to further attainment of these program objectives.

1. Land and resource protection.—Provides for the protection and/or maintenance of National Forest System users, resources, lands and facilities, including roads and trails, and for administration of the program of acquiring through exchange those lands within National Forest boundaries that meet the criteria for inclusion in the National Forest System.

2. Renewable resource management and utilization.—Provides for the management and utilization of the timber, wildlife and fish, range, recreation, watershed, and soil resources on National Forest System lands.

1. Construction of facilities—(a) Recreation facilities.—To provide facilities necessary to safely meet increased recreation demand without sacrificing environmental values and without unduly impinging upon other resource uses of the National Forests. Emphasis will be in areas of higher populations to assist in the conservation of energy.

(b) Other facilities.—To provide for construction and acquisition of fire, administrative, and other improvements and related facilities necessary to carry out National Forest and State and private forestry programs. Includes fire lookouts, offices, dwellings and barracks for employee housing, service, and storage buildings, insectories, tree nursery buildings, dams, and other forest resource management projects. Efforts to make buildings more energy efficient (retrofit) will be continued. Also includes acquisition of land and interests therein for administrative purposes where buildings are already on site and are the primary reason for acquisition, or when planned as part of a total administrative site development project.

(c) Research construction.—To provide for construction, alteration, and improvement of research laboratories and related facilities, and for procurement and installation of necessary initial equipment needed to put the facility into operating condition. An effort to make research facilities more energy efficient (retrofit) will be undertaken.

2. Road and trail construction—(a) Road and trail construction.—Roads and trails are essential to the protection and management of the National Forest Systems, as well as providing access to National Forest System areas for recreation and utilization of their resources. Of the revenues received annually from National Forest activities, 10% is being transferred to the General Fund in 1982 and the proposal in 1983 is to appropriate the 10% to the construction program for road and trail construction activities.

(b) Timber purchaser construction.—Roads may be constructed and/or maintained by a timber purchaser who in turn receives credit against timber value as reimbursement. These roads are those required within a timber sale area specifically for the removal of the timber, but which will remain on the National Forest development road system for resource management purposes after the timber sale contract is completed. (16 U.S.C. 535, item (2); section 9 of Public Law 93-378; and section 3(a) of Public Law 93-344.)

Twenty-five percent of the amounts allowed any timber purchaser for the construction of roads are paid to the States under provisions of the acts of May 23, 1908, and March 1, 1911, as amended (16 U.S.C. 500).

1. Acquisition of lands for Uinta National Forest, Utah.—79 Stat. 899, approved October 1, 1965, provided authorization for the appropriation of $300 thousand for purchase of nonfederally owned land to promote the control of floods and the reduction of soil erosion through restoration of adequate vegetative cover. The full amount of this authorization was appropriated in fiscal year 1967.

2. Acquisition of lands for Wasatch National Forest, Utah.—76 Stat. 545, approved September 14, 1962, added some 24,000 acres to the Wasatch National Forest and authorized the appropriation of $400 thousand for purchase of privately owned lands within the area to aid in the control of floods and reduction of soil erosion. The 1965 appropriation completed the authorization.

1. Payment to Minnesota.—At the close of each fiscal year the State of Minnesota is paid 0.75% of the appraised value of certain Superior National Forest lands in the counties of Cook, Lake, and St. Louis for distribution to these counties (16 U.S.C. 577g).

2. Payments to counties, National Grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of National Grasslands, 25% is paid to the counties in which such land is situated for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

3. Payments to school funds, Arizona.—The State of Arizona is paid a share of the National Forest receipts for school purposes (36 Stat. 562, 573).

4. Payments to States, National Forests fund.—With minor exceptions, 25% of the money received from the national forests, including all the collections under the act of June 9, 1930, and all amounts allowed any timber purchaser for construction of roads, is paid to the States for public schools and roads of the county in which such forests are situated (16 U.S.C. 500).

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS, FOREST SERVICE

Appropriations to the Forest Service for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) purchase of not to exceed [271] 223 passenger motor vehicles of which [6] 8 will be used primarily for law enforcement purposes and of which [250] 210 shall be for replacement only, acquisition of [92] 217 passenger motor vehicles from excess sources, and hire of such vehicles; operation and maintenance of aircraft, the purchase of not to exceed 4 for replacement only, and acquisition of [50] 49 aircraft from excess sources; (b) services pursuant to the second sentence of section 706(a) of the Organic Act of 1944 (7 U.S.C. 2225), and not to exceed $100,000 for employment under 5 U.S.C. 3109; (c) uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902); (d) purchase, erection, and alteration of buildings and other public improvements (7 U.S.C. 2250); (e) acquisition of land, waters, and interests therein, pursuant to the Act of August 3, 1956 (7 U.S.C. 428a); and (f) for expenses pursuant to the Volunteers in the National Forest Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 558a, 558d, 558a note).

[None of the funds made available under this Act shall be obligated or expended to change the boundaries of any region, to abolish any region, to move or close any regional office for research, State and private forestry, and National Forest system administration of the Forest Service, Department of Agriculture, without the consent of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry in the United States Senate and the Committee on Agriculture in the United States House of Representatives.]

Any appropriations or funds available to the Forest Service may be advanced to the National Forest system [limitation] appropriation for the emergency rehabilitation of burned-over lands under its jurisdiction.

Appropriations and funds available to the Forest Service shall be available to comply with the requirements of section 313(a) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, as amended (33 U.S.C. 1323(a)).

[Funds available under the Act of March 4, 1913 (16 U.S.C. 501), may be merged with and made a part of the Construction and Land Acquisition and/or the National Forest system appropriations.]

[The appropriation structure for the Forest Service may not be altered without advance approval of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.] Funds appropriated to the Forest Service shall be available for assistance to or through the Agency for International Development and the Office of International Cooperation and Development in connection with forest and rangeland research and technical information and assistance in foreign countries.

Funds previously appropriated for timber salvage sales may be recovered from receipts deposited for use by the applicable national forest and credited to the Forest Service Permanent Appropriations to be expended for timber salvage sales from any national forest.

The Working capital fund was established by the act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the act of October 23, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 579b). It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to national forests, experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law, to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The forestry related supply and support services provided by the Working capital fund in 1981 included:

Equipment service which owns, operates, maintains, replaces, and repairs common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to administrative units, that is, national forests, experiment stations, and other units, and in some cases to the other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash which, when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment, provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment.

Aircraft service which operates, maintains, and repairs Forest Service owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are rented to national forests, experiment stations, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of depreciation, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Aircraft replacement costs are financed from either appropriated funds or the Forest Service Working capital fund, or a combination of both.

Supply service which operates the following common services:

Central supply which procures, stores, and issues grass seed to national forests, experiment stations, and others at prices which recover costs.

Photo reproduction laboratories which store, reproduce, and supply aerial photographs, aerial maps, and other photographs of national forest lands. The photographic reproductions are sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at cost.

Sign shops which manufacture and supply special signs for the national forests for use in regulating traffic and as information to the public and other users of the national forests. The signs are sold to national forests and experiment stations at cost.

Subsistence which prepares and serves meals to Forest Service crews working in areas where adequate public restaurant facilities are not available.

Nurseries which operate forest tree nurseries and cold storage facilities for storage of tree and seed stock and a seed extractory. Tree seed is procured, cleaned, bagged, and stored in refrigerated facilities. Tree and seed stock is sold to national forests, States, and other Federal agencies at cost.

The activities of this appropriation provide for the collection, compilation, and publication of a broad range of current statistics dealing with economic, demographic, and social data.

1. Current economic statistics programs—(a) Business statistics.—This program provides current information on sales and related measures of retail and wholesale trade and selected service industries.

(b) Construction statistics.—Reports are provided on significant construction activity such as housing permits and starts, value of new construction, residential alterations and repairs, and quarterly price indexes for new, single-family houses.

(c) Manufacturing statistics.—Surveys of key industrial commodities and manufacturing activity provide current statistics on the quantity and value of industry output.

(d) General economic statistics.—This subactivity provides an industrial directory of all U.S. business firms and their establishments, uniform classification data, and annual county business data.

The 1983 request provides increased funding for the Quarterly Financial Report. This report provides data that serves as an important current indicator of the Nation's economic condition.

(e) Foreign trade statistics.—Monthly, cumulative, and annual reports are published on the quantity, shipping weight, and dollar value of imports and exports, by mode of transportation, detailed commodity category, customs district, and country of origin or destination. Commodity classifications are being improved for comparability and other activities in support of the Trade Act of 1974.

(f) State and local government statistics.—Reports are published annually regarding the revenue, expenditures, indebtedness and debt transactions, financial assets, employment, and payrolls of State and local governments. Quarterly information on State and local tax revenue is furnished on the national level by type of tax and governmental level.

The 1983 request includes increased funding for a quarterly survey designed to provide information on financial assistance programs of the Federal Government.

(g) Agriculture statistics.—Information on cotton gin- nings and production is compiled and published. Statis- tical services are provided regarding the information from the census of agriculture.

2. Current demographic statistics programs—(a) Demographic surveys.—This program provides information on the number, the geographic distribution, and the social and economic characteristics of the population. This program also includes testing and development of alter- native survey methods and development of improved income and program eligibility data.

(b) Demographic reports.—This program provides cur- rent reports on the geographic distribution and on the demographic, social and economic characteristics of the population, as well as current estimates and future projections of the population of the United States. The program also develops measures of social well-being and quality of life.

(c) International statistics.—This program provides es- timates for various countries of population, labor force, and economic activity, including spatial distribution, and analyses concerning aspects of demographic poli- cies, economic policies, and trends.

(d) Housing statistics.—This program provides nation- al and regional estimates of housing vacancy rates and compiles the Nation's housing inventory.

3. Other programs and publications—(a) Statistical abstract and supplements.—The Statistical Abstract, prepared annually, summarizes Government and pri- vate statistics of the industrial, social, political and eco- nomic activities of the United States.

(b) General research.—This program conducts re- search on survey methods and techniques to find ways of improving the efficiency, accuracy and timeliness of statistical programs.

Reimbursable program.—The Bureau of the Census undertakes work for other governmental agencies that can be more appropriately or efficiently performed by the Bureau of the Census than the sponsoring agency. Significant work has included collection of labor force data for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, national health and education program data for the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Education, and annual housing data for the Depart- ment of Housing and Urban Development.

PERIODIC CENSUSES AND PROGRAMS

For expenses necessary to collect and publish statistics for periodic censuses and programs, provided for by law, $91,294,000, to remain available until expended. None of the funds made available to the Bureau of the Census under this Act may be expended for prosecution of any person for the failure to return 1978 Agricultural Census forms 78-A40A or 78-A40B, or 78-A40C or 78-A40D, or for the preparation of similar forms for any future agricultural census. (13 U.S.C. 4, 6, 12, 131, 141, 142, 161, 181, 191; 15 U.S.C. 1516; 42 U.S.C. 1973 aa-5.)

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1982 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. The 1982 amounts shown below are based upon a continuing resolution (Public Law 97-92) in effect through March 31, 1982.

This appropriation funds legislatively mandated censuses and surveys of major economic and demographic areas once or twice each decade and other major periodic activities that may be authorized.

1. Economic statistics programs—(a) Economic censuses.—The economic censuses cover manufacturers, mineral industries, retail and wholesale trades and service industries, construction, and transportation every fifth year, covering calendar years ending in two and seven.

The 1983 budget provides for continued activities of the 1982 Economic Censuses. Operations will include data collection, clerical processing, data entry, processing of administrative records, computer edit and review of collected data, mailing of report forms to new businesses formed in 1982, and issuance of preliminary statistics. The data collection activities of the National Travel Survey and the Truck Inventory and Use Survey will be completed.

(b) Census of governments.—This census collects State and local government data on taxes, tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and number of employees. This census is taken every fifth year for calendar years ending in two and seven.

The 1983 budget for the Census of Governments will provide for tabulation and processing of governmental organization phase, taxable property values data, and for publishing Volumes 1 and 2, Governmental Organization and Taxable Property Values and Assessment—Sales Price Ratios.

(c) Census of agriculture.—This census covers the agricultural sector of the economy. In addition to the regular census program, this activity includes the censuses of irrigation and drainage, which were first collected in 1978.

The 1983 budget provides for a reduced Census of Agriculture allowing for data content and quality comparable to that published for 1978. The Area Sample survey first conducted in 1978 will not be repeated. In addition, the island censuses and follow-on surveys will not be conducted.

2. Demographic statistics programs—(a) Intercensal demographic estimates.—This program provides for updated population and per capita income estimates for approximately 38,500 general purpose governmental units for equitable allocation of funds under the General Revenue Sharing Act, and for other purposes.

(b) Decennial census.—The decennial census of population and housing involves the enumeration of the total population of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, Canal Zone, and other areas of U.S. sovereignty or jurisdiction.

The 1983 budget provides for the tabulation and issuance of sample data, special subject reports, and data from the Components of Inventory Change and Residential Finance Surveys. Results of major evaluation studies will become available, and all basic tabulations from the census will be completed.

3. Periodic programs geographic support.—This activity provides for fulfilling the geographic requirements of the various periodic censuses and large-scale surveys and involves accurate identification of both political and statistical areas, preparation of maps, and maintenance of geographic base files.

4. Data processing equipment.—This program provides for leasing and maintenance of selected electronic data processing equipment.

Capital investment—1. Large-scale data processing equipment.—This program provides for the acquisition of electronic equipment to modernize the data processing installation of the Bureau of the Census.

2. Other capital investment.—This program provides for the acquisition of office furniture, machines, and other miscellaneous equipment necessary to conduct periodic censuses and surveys.

The Bureau of the Census performs statistical work and analysis, at cost, when it is determined to be in the public interest.

On a continuing basis, the Bureau furnishes age and citizenship data to individuals for their use in qualifying for social security, old-age benefits, retirement, passports, court litigation, insurance settlements, and other social services. Special censuses are conducted for States, counties, cities, towns, or other political divisions requiring an up-to-date count of their population. The Bureau also periodically performs statistical work and data analysis for State and local governments, universities, trade associations, and individuals upon request.

1. Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA).—The objective of BEA is to provide a clear picture of the state of the economy through the preparation, development, and interpretation of the economic accounts of the United States. The principal programs are:

(a) National economic accounts.—The national income and product accounts, summarized by the gross national product (GNP), provide an up-to-date overall view of national production, its distribution, and its use as shown by the interrelated receipts and expenditures of producers, consumers, investors, government, and the foreign customers of the United States.

(b) Analysis of business trends.—This work includes surveys of business investment, econometric models of the U.S. economy, a system of business cycle indicators, and analytical of the economic situation. Beginning in 1982, improvements will be initiated in the Plant and Equipment Survey.

(c) International economic accounts.—The balance of payments accounts provide a comprehensive and detailed view of economic transactions between the United States and foreign countries. The international investment accounts consist of the preparation, development, and analysis of estimates of U.S. direct investment abroad and foreign direct investment in the United States.

2. Bureau of Industrial Economics (BIE).—The objective of BIE is to monitor and analyze developments and trends (both domestic and international) in U.S. industries; provide industrial analytical support for policy development activities in the Department of Commerce and other Federal agencies; evaluate the impact of proposed legislation and regulations; and develop data and conduct research on significant industrial economic issues and analytical methodologies.

3. Economic Assessment and Policy Support.—The objective of this activity is to support the Assistant Secretary for Economic Affairs' responsibilities for program coordination and policy oversight in the area of economic, industrial, and statistical analysis and the Assistant Secretary's role as spokesperson for the Department on current economic developments.

4. Office of Productivity, Technology, and Innovation.—The objective of this Office is to serve the lead agency role in Federal patent policy, support the Government Inventions Program, stimulate private sector productivity improvements, and provide support for activities related to the Stevenson-Wydler Technology Innovation Act of 1980.

5. Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards.—This office has been transferred to the Office of Management and Budget.

Reimbursable.—ESA, upon request by other Federal agencies, provides economic and statistical data and analysis on a reimbursable payment basis.

MEMORANDUM

The Economic Development Administration (EDA) provides public works grants, direct business development loans and loan guarantees to assist economically distressed areas deal with problems of economic adjustment. EDA also provides grants for economic development planning purposes and technical assistance and supports a range of evaluation and research activities aimed at increasing public understanding of the processes of economic growth and development.

Obligations by program are as follows (amounts in thousands):

1. Planning grants	23,862	25,500
2. Technical assistance grants	26,351	9,500
3. Development grants	273,328	130,000
4. Economic adjustment grants	12,644	33,000
5. Direct loans	54,109
6. Loan guarantee payments	31,963
7. Research and evaluation	2,690	2,000
Total obligations	424,947	200,000

EDA's program activities include:

1. Planning grants.—Support local development organizations by funding professional planning staff and related services.

2. Technical assistance grants.—Provide appropriate, operational technical expertise; support institutional projects to assist local and regional economic development groups and organizations; support feasibility studies and other site-related projects; and provide for expert assistance to potential grantees and borrowers.

3. Development grants.—Provide funds for the construction or expansion of community facilities conducive to the location of industrial and commercial enterprises.

4. Economic adjustment grants.—Help areas resolve problems related to actual or threatened sudden and severe disruption of a local economy.

5. Direct loans.—Make low-cost credit available for retaining, constructing, expanding or improving facilities in industries located in areas that are experiencing economic distress.

6. Loan guarantee payments.—Provide for payments on regular EDA and Trade Adjustment loan guarantees that default and for care and protection of collateral.

7. Research and evaluation.—Assist in the development of EDA programs, provide research and information in the economic development field, assist agency officials in making policy and management decisions through analyses performed by EDA staff and contractors.

Loan guarantee authority.—Provide credit to reasonably creditworthy firms that have difficulty in obtaining private financing for fixed assets and working capital.

EDA programs will be discontinued in 1983. The President's comprehensive economic plan for spending reductions, tax reductions, and actions to remove unnecessary regulatory burdens will spur economic expansion and job creation far beyond what categorical programs like EDA could do.

The activities of the International Trade Administration in the Department of Commerce are designed to promote an improved trade posture for U.S. industry in a manner consistent with national security and foreign and economic policy.

1. Trade development—(a) Export development.—Encourages and assists U.S. businesses to export by conducting market research and overseas trade promotion events, by assisting U.S. firms to compete for major overseas projects and product sales, by providing U.S. industry with trade leads and other export information, and by providing grants to qualified applicants to assist them in the development and implementation of small business international marketing programs.

(b) East-West Trade.—Expands U.S. commercial relations with the People's Republic of China and Eastern Europe by collecting and analyzing statistical data, assisting U.S. businesses in long-term trade development efforts, and conducting overseas trade promotional events. Contributes to economic policy formulation.

(c) U.S. commercial service.—Disseminates commercial and marketing information to the U.S. business community, provides direct assistance and counseling to U.S. businesses on export/import procedures and regulations, and supports export promotion events held in the United States and in foreign markets. Operates through district offices in the United States.

(d) Foreign commercial service.—Collects and disseminates commercial and marketing information to government agencies and the U.S. business community, provides direct counseling and assistance to U.S. businesses on export/import procedures.

The 1983 budget provides for increased field staff, enhanced training, relocation of posts currently housed in inadequate facilities and additional support in headquarters.

2. International economic policy—(a) Trade agreements and policy planning.—Conducts research and analysis of economic factors affecting future trade flows, and develops options and recommendations on key trade policy issues. Negotiates, monitors and implements MTN tariff and nontariff trade agreements, including textile and other import restraint agreements.

(b) Finance, investment and services.—Develops and implements policies relating to laws, regulations and institutions in the finance and investment area; monitors and analyzes foreign investment in the United States; and monitors and analyzes issues related to service industries.

(c) Trade adjustment assistance.—Assists firms that have been adversely impacted by imports to become competitive and/or economically reestablished. Provides technical assistance and financing for the implementation of viable recovery plans in cases where private credit is otherwise unavailable on reasonable terms.

The 1983 budget proposes the elimination of this program consistent with the Administration's economic recovery program.

3. Trade administration—(a) Export administration.—Assures that export activity is consistent with national security, foreign policy objectives, and U.S. material and commodity requirements; enforces the law against participation in foreign boycotts; and assures the timely availability of industrial resources for national defense and other priority programs. The 1983 budget provides additional resources for an improved export licensing process.

(b) Import administration.—Investigates antidumping and countervailing duty cases to ensure compliance with applicable U.S. statutes and administers certain other statutory programs relating to imports and foreign trade zones.

In its leadership role of coordinating Federal minority business development programs, the Minority Business Development Agency (MBDA) seeks to create improved national conditions within which the minority people of the United States will have an equal opportunity to participate in the American business system. In 1983, MBDA will emphasize the development of market opportunities for minority businesses in the private sector.

1. Enterprise development.—This activity provides client firms with direct management and technical assistance services, including business information, counseling, marketing and financial packaging assistance. In 1983, management and technical assistance will be targeted primarily to firms with paid employment or gross annual receipts in excess of $150,000. The General Business Service Centers delivering this assistance will be located in 90 selected Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, where minority firms are most heavily concentrated.

2. Policy and market development.—This activity strives to increase private sector purchases from minorities and to assist minority firms in taking advantage of expanded market opportunities. Programs include analysis of Federal Government policies affecting minority business development; advocacy/ombudsman efforts in behalf of minority business interests; and expanding business information and services through trade associations. A major function of this activity will be to recommend legislative, administrative and other reforms on a continuing basis.

3. Research and information.—In this activity, MBDA collects and maintains general purpose data on the characteristics of MBDA clients and the general minority business universe. Information is analyzed and presented in useful form for MBDA program staff and others outside of the agency. A research program is conducted to increase awareness of trends, characteristics and problems of minority businesses. An information clearinghouse disseminates general information on minority businesses and vendor lists for public and private procurement opportunities.

This appropriation provides for the research, development, and support of operating programs, and acquisition of facilities for fulfilling the basic responsibilities of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA).

1. Mapping, charting, and surveying services.—Provides for charting the Nation's coastal regions, production of aeronautical charts for safe and efficient commercial and general aviation, and geodetic surveys. The 1983 increase provides for an assessment of the location and commercial potential of polymetallic sulphides on the ocean floor. By 1985, the administration proposes to recover the full cost of producing aeronautical and nautical charts, including the cost of data acquisition and chart compilation and engraving. This proposal would discontinue the practice of depositing receipts (from the sale of charts only recovering printing and distribution) into a trust fund and seek instead to have all receipts from the sale of charts (including reimbursements from Federal agencies) deposited with miscellaneous receipts in the Treasury. By 1985, the administration proposes to establish by legislation a capitalized revolving fund for the financial operation of the NOAA charting program. Decreases in 1983 reduce National Geodetic vertical datum activities and marine boundary surveys.

Maps/charts maintained/revised	1,252	480	478
New maps/charts produced/published	180	41	43
Horizontal control points adjusted	45,000	45,000	45,000

2. Ship support services.—Provides for operation and logistical support of NOAA ships and marine centers. Funds will be reduced for ship operations and ship base operations in 1983.

Days at sea	4,673	4,314	3,546
Number of ships maintained and managed	24	22	20

3. Ocean fisheries and living marine resources.—Provides for safe fishery products, viable commercial and marine sports fishing programs, and conservation of fisheries resources and endangered species by protecting, developing, and managing U.S. living marine resources, including the seal herd of the Pribilof Islands. Funding is reduced for marine mammals, fishery development, research and services, habitats, coastal zone management coordination, and the regional councils. Funding responsibility for the Pribilof Islands operations, and the Columbia River hatcheries is being phased over to the benefiting States and industries. The aquaculture research program is being terminated also.

Stocks/species coverage	111	111	105
Marine mammal/endangered species permits monitored	308	333	358
Foreign fishery permits processed	2,200	2,200	2,200
Violations detected/investigated	3,019	3,000	2,700

4. Marine ecosystems analysis and ocean dumping.—Provides information for management of the marine environment and its resources, and for implementing the National Ocean Pollution Research Act of 1978. The 1983 increases support the marine minerals program and ocean thermal energy conversion (OTEC). The 1983 decreases will eliminate the regional projects and ocean dumping research line item, terminating all regional pollution programs.

Dumpsites investigated	5	5	2
Reports prepared	5	7	4

5. Marine technology.—Provides for development, testing, and calibration of oceanographic instruments. Funds are reduced for data buoy development, operation and maintenance, and the NOAA undersea research program is terminated.

Output/performance measures:	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Deep-water submersible days provided	30	30
Deep-ocean buoy stations operated	14	10	10

6. Sea grant.—The sea grant program provides matching fund grants to public and private universities, institutes, and industries to seek solutions to problems related to management and use of marine resources, and transfer of new technology to marine users. Termination of grant funding of the National Sea Grant College program in 1983 is proposed, since funding should now be available from private and other non-Federal sources.

Federal/State agencies advised	22	30	13
Local government advised	12	10	5

7. Basic environmental services.—Provides the fundamental networks of weather observations, communications systems, weather analyses and predictions, and maintenance that are essential for all forecasts and warnings. The 1983 request reflects reduced funding for the next generation radar (NEXRAD), elimination of National Weather Service Southern Region Headquarters, and closing of 25 Weather Service Offices (WSOs).

Weather observations taken/employee	7,782	8,002	8,442
Radar detection capability (percent)	83	84	85
Precipitation guidance forecasts	288,000	289,000	289,000

8. Environmental satellite services.—Provides for the operation of a national environmental satellite system. The 1983 increases provide for system changes for compatibility with NASA communications network and procurement and launch services for spacecraft. Legislation authorizing NOAA to assume responsibility for the LANDSAT system from NASA and to charge data users for recovery of the system's operating costs is proposed. Decreased funding eliminates one polar-orbiting spacecraft.

Output/performance measures: Satellites operational/projected.....	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate

9. Public forecast and warning services.—Provides weather forecast and warning services. The 1983 request reflects increases for a 3-year satellite weather information system (SWIS) program at Weather service forecast Offices (WSFOs) and for automation of field operations and services (AFOS).

10. Specialized environmental services.—Provides environmental services for support of aviation and agricultural operations, fire weather services, and information about the Sun's activities and conditions in near space for use by the Nation's space program, telecommunications agencies and industries, and electric power distributors. Changes in 1983 include an increase for acid rain research, reduced funding for the agriculture and fire weather programs, and a proposal to finance the NWS aviation weather program from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund administered by the FAA.

COASTAL ZONE MANAGEMENT*

*See Part III for additional information.

For carrying out the provision of Public Law 92-583, as amended, and section 202 of title II and title III of Public Law 92-532, as amended, $6,409,000, to remain available until expended. (16 U.S.C. 1432, 1434, 1455, 1456a, 1461, 1464(a); 33 U.S.C. 1442.)

Note.—The appropriation of this account for 1982 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. The 1982 amounts shown below are based upon a continuing resolution (Public Law 97-92) in effect through March 31, 1982.

This appropriation provides for administration, management, beneficial use, protection, and development of the land and water resources of the Nation's coastal zone, by providing grants to States for the planning and management of their coastal areas.

1. Program administration grants.—These grants support ongoing State and territorial coastal management activities, such as land and water use regulation, monitoring, and enforcement, which are contained in their approved management programs. Grants will be made with carryover funds from a 1981 transfer of $33,000,000 from the Coastal Energy Impact Fund (CEIF) loan program to assist States in the phasedown of coastal zone management (CZM) programs. Significant performance measures are:

Number of States with approved management programs.....	26	27

2. Energy impact formula grants.—These grants provide funds for planning, for mitigating environmental/recreational impacts, and for meeting the infrastructure needs of coastal States and local units of government whose coastal zones are affected by the development and production of Outer Continental Shelf oil and gas, and coastal transportation of energy resources. A decrease in 1982 eliminated funding for this program. Significant performance measures are:

Grants awarded.....	119	30

3. Estuarine sanctuaries.—These grants provide for acquisition, development, and operation of estuarine sanctuaries for the purpose of creating natural field laboratories where studies can be made of the processes occurring within coastal estuaries. A 1983 reduction will curtail the operation and maintenance of existing sanctuaries and eliminate the acquisition of new sites. Significant performance measures are:

Number of estuarine sanctuaries.....	12	14	15
Number of visitors/researchers.....	25,300/270	32,400/310	34,500/335

4. Marine sanctuaries.—This program supports the designation and management of ocean waters as marine sanctuaries for the purpose of preserving or restoring the sites for their conservational, recreational, ecological, or esthetic value. 1983 funding will provide for the designation of four additional sites, and the enforcement and management of existing sites. Significant performance measures are:

Number of sites designated.....	4	1	3
Number of sites managed and enforced.....	2	6	7
Number of sites assessed.....	5	4	2

5. Coordination.—Provides assistance to State and territorial governments in developing and implementing coastal zone management programs; coordinates Federal activities that impact coastal zone management programs; and supports studies for planning and assessing ocean uses. A 1983 decrease will reduce administrative support for CZM programs that is consistent with program phasedown.

An amount equal to 30% of the gross receipts from customs duties on imported fishery products is transferred (15 U.S.C. 713c-3) to the Department of Commerce annually for marine resources research and assessment and use of fishery resources.

This program provided for the further development of U.S. fishing industry, with particular emphasis on new and nontraditional fisheries, and promoted the optimum utilization of the Nation's fishery resources.

In 1983, the receipts from this program are proposed to be transferred to the "Operations, research, and facilities" appropriation for fisheries research, management, and development activities.

Amendments to the Atlantic Tunas Convention Act, contained in Public Law 96-339, established the Foreign Fishing Observer Fund. The Fund is financed through collections from foreign longline vessel owners who fish within the Atlantic U.S. Fishery Conservation Zone for billfish and sharks. Collections to the Fund are used by the Secretary of Commerce to pay the salaries of observers and program support personnel, and the costs of data management and analysis of the observer program. The observers will collect scientific information on the foreign catch, and monitor compliance with the provisions of the Fishery Conservation and Management Act (FCMA) of 1976.

Public Law 96-339 stipulates that the Secretary of Commerce can utilize funds within the Foreign Fishing Observer Fund only to the extent and in such amounts as are provided in advance in an appropriation act.

This program provides for loans to vessel operators who, because of the high risk associated with some commercial fishing, cannot obtain commercial loans at reasonable rates for financing or refinancing the cost of purchasing or constructing, equipping, maintaining, repairing, or operating new or used commercial fishing vessels or gear. Section 16 of the Act to Prevent Pollution From Ships (Public Law 96-478) extended the expiration of this fund, established under the Fish and Wildlife Act of 1956, to September 30, 1982. The administration is not seeking reauthorization of this program in 1983.

This fund provides for payment to vessel owners and crews to compensate for certain financial losses sustained as a result of foreign seizures of American fishing vessels found within 200 miles of their coasts. Through 1977, funds in this account were derived from Federal appropriations and fees from vessel owners. Beginning in 1978, the basic annual appropriation was discontinued, although appropriated funds can be requested if the fund's balance is depleted.

This fund provides Federal financial assistance to meet the needs of coastal States and their local governments impacted by Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) and certain other coastal-dependent energy activity in, or in proximity to, the coastal zone of the State. Repayments to the fund to date are proposed for transfer to "Operations, research, and facilities" to fund ongoing programs.

Loans.—This fund provides loans, guarantees, and repayment assistance. An additional appropriation for loans, guarantees, and repayment assistance is not requested in 1983. (While guarantees are legislatively authorized, no guarantees have been provided to date.)

1. Planning grants.—These grants are for use when the siting, construction or operation of new or expanded energy facilities force affected coastal States to undertake detailed studies and plans for the economic, social, and environmental consequences of such facilities. Grants may not exceed 80% of the cost of such studies. These grants are not being funded in 1983.

2. Outer Continental Shelf (OCS) State participation grants.—Annual grants have been made to coastal State and territorial governments, on a 70% Federal, 30% State matching basis, to assist these States and governments in carrying out their responsibilities under the OCS Lands Act, as amended in 1978. These grants are not being funded in 1983.

3. Environmental grants.—Grants are made to coastal States to enable them to minimize the loss of valuable environmental or recreational resources resulting from coastal energy activity if no other funds for this purpose are available to the State concerned. Authorization for this program was terminated in 1980.

4. Collateral protection.—This activity provides program direction and administrative support for the coastal energy impact fund.

Significant performance measures for this appropriation are:

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for inventions and the registration of trademarks.

Receipts deposited in the general fund of the Treasury from fees were $29.5 million in 1981 and are estimated to be $29.6 million in 1982.

Public Law 96-517 (35 U.S.C. 41) specified percentages of operating costs of the Patent and Trademark Office that are to be recovered through fee revenues. Collected fees are to be applied as offsets to appropriated funds beginning in 1983. Enacted legislation will, therefore, result in cost recovery percentages as shown below under "current rates." In addition, legislation will be proposed to amend 35 U.S.C. 41 and 15 U.S.C. 1113 to achieve full cost recovery for patent and trademark application processing as follows:

Function	[In percent]
	Current rates	Proposed rates
Patent process	25	50
Maintenance	25	50
Design process	50	100
Trademark process	50	100
Services	100	100
Reexamination	100	100

Estimated collections in 1983 are $86.8 million, of which $39 million is attributable to the proposed legislative authority.

Estimated total obligations for 1983 for the three budget activities and the proration of Executive Direction and Administration included in each activity are shown in the following amounts:

Estimated obligations for 1983:	[In thousands of dollars]
	Direct	Reimbursable	Total
1. Patent process	53,957	57,238	111,195
2. Trademark process	260	11,995	12,255
3. Information dissemination	13,869	17,715	31,584

2. Trademark process	784	417	1,201
3. Information dissemination	2,485	1,319	3,804
Total	13,074	6,916	19,990

Activities of the Office fall into the following areas:

1. Patent process.—Applications are examined to determine whether or not the inventor is entitled to a patent for the claimed invention. Examination of patent applications also includes the performance of quasi-judicial functions in appeal and interference proceedings. This activity also provides for publishing the issued patents.

The 1983 increases support a program to reduce patent application pendency time to 18 months by 1987 and to initiate automation efforts in patent searching, document retrieval, and full text input.

The following table summarizes key patent application workload and performance data:

	1980 actual	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Applications in Office (start of year)	184,601	201,831	205,841	225,941

2. Trademark process.—Provides for the examination of applications to determine whether the statutory criteria for the Federal registration of the trademark or service mark have been met. When the criteria are met, a registration is printed and issued to the applicant. Examination of trademark applications also includes inter partes proceedings involving oppositions, cancellations, and interferences. The 1983 increases will reduce pendency, examiner attrition and backlog, and provide for automation.

3. Information dissemination.—This activity provides materials and services to examiners and the public that assist in examination of trademark applications and the transfer of technological information. Included are the maintenance of subject matter search files of prior art documents; maintenance of a scientific library and public search room; preparation of copies of patents, trademark registrations and official documents, drafting services, recording of instruments conveying ownership of patents and trademark rights, and administration of patent and trademark printing.

The 1983 increases will help reduce patent pendency and provide for augmentation of the current mainframe computer and the mini-computer, for data system support, and for computer network upgrading. Decreases reflect administrative savings.

1. National Bureau of Standards.—The National Bureau of Standards (NBS) is responsible for the development and maintenance of a system of measurements required to support the Nation's economy.

NBS efforts are organized into the following four program activities:

(a) Measurement research and standards.—This activity includes programs in the areas of fundamental physical measurements and standards, radiation measurements and standards, analytical chemical measurements and standards, materials science, and thermodynamic and molecular science. Also included in this activity is a measurement assurance program as well as applied measurement programs in nondestructive evaluation, standard reference materials and standard reference data. In 1983 programs in recycled materials and environmental measurements will be terminated.

(b) Engineering measurements and standards.—This activity includes programs in the areas of engineering standards, building research, electrotechnology, discrete and continuous process technology and an automated manufacturing research facility. Also included in this activity is a program in mathematical sciences as well as a program in fire science and engineering. The 1983 budget includes funding for fire research previously requested through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and a decrease in funds required for the automated manufacturing research facility.

(c) Computer sciences and technology.—This activity provides for the establishment of government-wide automated data processing (ADP) standards. Funding for 1983 is included in Automated data and telecommunications services, operating expenses, General Services Administration.

(d) Central technical support.—This activity includes resources for the NBS competence program, a long-range planning effort, capital investments to finance the construction or improvement of buildings and special facilities, procurement of large items of equipment, and increases of the NBS working capital fund for the purchase of general purpose equipment.

2. National Technical Information Service.—The National Technical Information Service (NTIS) collects and distributes scientific, technological, business, and demographic information generated by the Federal Government and promotes and licenses Government-owned inventions. The patent licensing program will be supported on a reimbursable basis from the Office of Productivity, Technology and Innovation. The Smithsonian Science Information Exchange contract was terminated in 1982 with NTIS assuming responsibility for the collection of information on ongoing Federal research.

3. Office of Productivity, Technology and Innovation.—This program was transferred to Economic and Statistical Affairs in 1982.

The Working capital fund finances, from advances and reimbursements, all operations of the National Bureau of Standards except major construction projects and the foreign currency program. Amounts reported include investments in equipment and inventories, and research, development and services performed for other Government agencies and the public. Programs of direct appropriations and trust funds are covered in the schedules for those accounts. The principal of the fund, as of September 30, 1981, consisted of $39 million in capital provided by appropriations, and $117 million in net donated assets. Retained earnings at the end of each year are transferred to Treasury the following year.

The National Telecommunications and Information Administration is the principal executive branch adviser to the President on communications policy. It manages the Federal radio frequency spectrum, coordinates the use of telecommunications systems for public services, and performs extensive research in telecommunications sciences.

1. Policies for development of telecommunications industries—(a) Broadcast, cable television, and special services.—In 1983, work to facilitate the deregulation of the broadcast and cable television will be conducted at a somewhat reduced level; research will continue to develop methods to increase the efficiency in the use of FM, television and mobile radio frequencies.

(b) Domestic common carrier.—In 1983, NTIA will continue at a reduced level to foster policies to stimulate competition in the provision of telecommunications services and to aid in the implementation of new domestic common carrier legislation focusing on the technical aspects of the transition to a largely deregulated market.

(c) International telecommunications policy.—In 1983, NTIA will focus on the international telecommunications industry structure, the international communications facilities planning process, and proposals for new services at a somewhat reduced level. In coordination with the Department of State, the agency will continue to discharge the Presidential responsibility for oversight of the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT).

2. Efficient use of telecommunications and information systems.—In 1983, NTIA will continue, at a significantly reduced level, its review and recommendations on policies to further the evolution of new information technologies and on legislation concerning personal privacy. In 1983, NTIA will reduce its efforts in the review of Federal agency telecommunications systems and its efforts to improve the security of non-classified information transmitted over telecommunications systems. Work will continue on engineering analysis of problems related to the operations of Federal telecommunications systems.

3. Management of telecommunications resources—(a) Spectrum policy.—In 1983, NTIA will continue to work toward improving Government and nongovernment spectrum sharing and developing spectrum allocation systems that encourage the use of alternative technologies.

(b) Spectrum management and planning.—In 1983, NTIA will continue its function in this area to authorize frequency assignments, review proposed Federal telecommunications systems, conduct frequency band studies and compliance activities.

(c) Technology for efficient use of spectrum.—In 1983, NTIA will conduct basic and applied research on the characteristics of electromagnetic wave transmission to develop new information, improved analytical methods, and better design techniques.

4. Public telecommunications facilities.—In 1983, NTIA will conduct the tasks necessary to close out the Public telecommunications facilities program.

The Public telecommunications facilities program provided grants for the planning and the construction of noncommercial telecommunications facilities to help in starting up new facilities and extending the delivery of public telecommunications services. The program provided “seed money” to entities demonstrating sufficient local interest and emphasized user support for long-range operation and upgrade of these facilities. Funding for this grant program is not requested in 1983.

[MARITIME ADMINISTRATION]

The Maritime Administration was transferred from the Department of Commerce to the Department of Transportation pursuant to the Maritime Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-31). All information for the Maritime Administration is included within the Department of Transportation.

ENERGY RESEARCH AND TECHNOLOGY ADMINISTRATION

NOTES

Excludes $21,331 thousand in 1983 for activities transferred to Energy supply, research and development. Comparable amounts for 1981 ($42,415 thousand) and 1982 ($46,738 thousand) are included above.

Excludes $37,171 thousand in 1983 for activities transferred to Atomic energy defense activities. Comparable amounts for 1981 ($27,929 thousand) and 1982 ($11,480 thousand) are included above.

Excludes $92,386 thousand in offsetting collections that will be credited to the Uranium supply and enrichment activities account, Department of Commerce ($25,000 thousand), and the general fund of the Treasury ($67,386 thousand). Comparable amounts for 1981 ($70,703 thousand) and 1982 ($100,855 thousand) are included above.

Program Administration.—This account includes funds for a wide array of policy development and analysis activities, institutional and public liaison functions, and other program support requirements necessary to insure effective Energy Research and Technology Administration operation and management.

1. Management and administration.—Salaries, travel, contracts, capital equipment, and other costs associated with the management and support functions are carried under this activity.

2. Intergovernmental affairs.—This organization manages programs that assist regional, State, local, and tribal governments in establishing energy programs and priorities.

3. Consumer affairs.—This organization provides policy direction for oversight of the agency's consumer and energy education activities.

4. Public affairs.—This program insures that timely information is provided to the public to increase understanding of the nation's energy needs and develop programs that can be implemented by individuals to reduce energy consumption.

5. Congressional affairs.—This organization is the principal point of contact between the Department and Congress. This organization counsels and advises secretarial offices on relationships with Congress, acts as a liaison between relevant agency elements and congressional authorization and/or oversight committees.

6. Operations offices.—The operations offices perform a wide variety of functions in support of the Department's activities throughout the country. Among these functions are field procurement, engineering and construction management, health and safety monitoring, property management, labor relations, and maintenance of personnel and financial systems.

7. General Counsel.—The responsibilities of this office are to provide legal support and advice pertaining to agency program areas. This office is also responsible for the enforcement of agency programs and orders through civil proceedings in Federal Courts directly where the agency has primary litigation responsibility and in conjunction with the Department of Justice in cases where Justice has primary responsibilities to defend denials for adjustment relief. The General Counsel also provides counseling in connection with matters arising under the Freedom of Information Act, the Privacy Act, the Federal Advisory Committee Act, and matters involving Equal Employment Opportunity, fiscal administration, delegations of authority, personnel, tort claims and investigations of the Inspector General.

8. Inspector General.—The responsibilities of this office are to supervise, coordinate, and provide policy direction for audit and investigative activities relating to the promotion of economy and efficiency in the administration or the prevention or detection of fraud or abuse in programs and operations of the Department.

12. Office of the Administrator.—The office of the Administrator directs and supervises the administration of the Agency and provides policy guidance to line and staff organizations in the accomplishment of agency objectives.

13. Board of Contract Appeals.—This office hears and resolves contractual disputes arising from the administration's financial assistance programs, including loan guarantees, loan agreements, grants and cooperative agreements.

15. Other program administration.—This activity covers cost of work for others and miscellaneous revenues. Cost of work for others is work performed under orders placed with the agency by other organizations. Revenues derived under this activity offset the requested appropriation.

1. Naval reactors development.—This program provides for the design, development, and testing of improved naval nuclear propulsion plants and reactor cores having longer fuel life, increased reliability, improved performance, and simplified operating and maintenance requirements. These reactors are necessary to meet a variety of military requirements. During 1983, efforts will continue to improve existing submarine and surface ship reactor cores and plant technology, and to develop new advanced reactor concepts and propulsion plants. This program also continues test facility upgrading and provides equipment for ongoing reactor design and testing activities.

2. Weapons activities.—This program provides for research, development, engineering, testing, and production of all U.S. nuclear weapons; maintenance of reliable weapons for their stockpile life; and, retirement and disposal of nuclear weapons from the stockpile. This program also includes the inertial confinement fusion activities that have applications in the future development of the nuclear weapons program. In 1983, the weapons program will continue to provide new technology to maintain a modern nuclear force, along with the design and development of new weapon systems in response to defense requirements. This program also provides for the certification of safety, reliability, and performance of new weapon systems and surveillance of the existing stockpile. Increases are provided for continued production of weapon systems and initiation of production of one new system. In addition, this program provides for facility construction, maintenance, and restoration for the weapons research and development, testing, and weapons production activities. This program also includes inertial confinement fusion construction.

3. Verification and control technology.—This program provides staff and programmatic resources for the conduct of research activities directed toward the advancement of verification technology related to nuclear treaties and arms control measures. The 1983 program provides for continued technical and scientific efforts to support nuclear test limitation treaties and nuclear arms reduction negotiations. Other activities provide analytical support to export control requirements, non-proliferation policy, and weapon analysis issues. This program also provides capital equipment for nuclear detection technology efforts and analytical support activities.

4. Materials production.—This program provides for the production of nuclear materials to support the requirements of the weapons activities as well as research and development. The 1983 program provides for continued operation of the N Reactor at Richland, Washington, and continues activities leading to conversion of that reactor to produce weapon-grade plutonium. Third-year activities in the upgrading and restarting of the Purex chemical processing plant at Richland are also continued. Operation of three production reactors and upgrading of the L Reactor at Savannah River, South Carolina, will continue. Chemical processing operations, special isotope separations research and development, and supporting services will continue. Activities will continue to increase production by producing high-purity plutonium and blending it with fuel-grade plutonium to produce weapon-grade plutonium. Expanded effort will be directed to reactor safety and maintenance. The Facility Restoration Program to upgrade the production complex will be continued. Hiring and training of staff for the fluorimel and storage facility startup will be conducted. This program also provides for facility construction, maintenance and restoration of the nuclear materials production physical plant, for upgrade of the standby L Reactor at Savannah River, for continuation of construction on a facility to process and store a variety of irradiated spent fuels, and for construction of production and support facilities for nuclear materials production activities.

5. Defense nuclear waste.—This program provides for the interim storage of nuclear waste from the agency's activities and the development of technologies to implement long-term waste disposal options. The 1983 program provides for continuation of the waste operations program including transfer of wastes to new tanks and waste management research and development efforts. The research and development efforts include support for the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant project near Carlsbad, New Mexico, and the Defense Waste Processing Facility at Savannah River, South Carolina. These facilities will demonstrate closure of the nuclear fuel cycle for defense waste. This program also includes the construction, maintenance, and upgrade of facilities providing interim storage for defense wastes.

6. Nuclear materials security and safeguards.—This program provides for the development of measures for the protection of nuclear weapons in the agency's custody, special nuclear materials, classified materials and information, and agency property. It also provides technical support and advice to the development of foreign country nuclear materials security and international agency safeguards. In 1983, this program will continue development of procedures that preclude the unauthorized disclosure, theft, or loss of classified material; management of a research and development program to safeguard nuclear weapons and nuclear materials and protect agency facilities against sabotage; providing for assistance to site managers in designing effective safeguards systems; and, support of international safeguards technology. This program also provides for equipment supporting ongoing safeguards activities.

7. Security investigations.—This activity covers the costs related to performance of security investigations for personnel who, in performance of their official duties, must have access to restricted data, national security information or special nuclear material, or who occupy a designated critical sensitive position.

1. Life sciences research and nuclear medicine applications.—This program supports long-term basic biological research on living organisms in order to gain a better understanding of the effects of energy-related pollutants, and supports development of new applications of radiation in the treatment of human disease. Planned 1983 activities involve the continuation of on-going research including: studies to provide basic information on pollutant-induced damage in biological systems; research on new radionuclides for use in medical applications; and, production of highly pure stable isotopes for use in scientific and agricultural research. Laboratory research equipment will be provided to support a broad spectrum of research activities, including instrumentation for the low angle X-ray scattering station being installed on the National Synchrotron Light Source biology beam line.

2. High energy physics.—In this program studies are conducted of the fundamental building blocks of matter and the forces of nature in an attempt to understand the relationships and transformations between energy and matter. Large accelerator facilities provide various types of high energy particle beams and sophisticated detection and analysis apparatus to study the particle interactions. In 1983 these facilities will be used to search for additional fundamental constituents of matter and further progress on a unified description of the basic forces. A highlight of the 1983 program will be the research results from the new proton electron position facility at Stanford University and the initial operation of the Energy Saver Superconducting Synchrotron at Fermilab. Construction funds are requested in 1983 to continue the Tevatron, Phase I project at Fermilab and to continue construction of the Tevatron, Phase II project. These facilities will be used to enhance research capabilities for exploiting recent major theoretical and experimental advances.

3. Nuclear physics.—This program is concerned with attaining a deeper understanding of the interactions, structure, and properties of nuclei. Emphasis will be placed on expanding research programs at new and upgraded scientific facilities and proceeding with a broadly-based theoretical research program. To accommodate research at the new facilities, research at some of the existing facilities will be reduced or phased out. In 1983, construction will be continued on the Argonne Tandem Linac Accelerator System project at Argonne National Laboratory and upgrading of university instrumentation for university research will be emphasized; long lead time equipment for Atlas research will be initiated, and, improvements to scientific research equipment will be continued at the Clinton P. Anderson Meson Physics Facility, the William H. Bates Linear Accelerator, and the Bevalac at Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory.

The purpose of energy supply research and development is to develop new energy technologies and improve existing energy technologies. Included in this mission are efforts associated with basic research, technology development, and demonstration.

This account provides funds for capital equipment and construction projects for the research and technology development and demonstration of the various energy technologies under examination in the energy supply, research and development mission.

1. Solar energy.—In 1983, the solar energy program will conduct generic and technology base research in the areas of photovoltaic, solar thermal, biomass, and wind energy. The solar program also includes funds to complete the SOLERAS agreement between the United States and Saudi Arabia.

2. Geothermal.—The geothermal energy program will complete work on the hot dry rock and geopressurized resource program as well as conduct generic and technology base research in the areas of geochemistry and geoscience with particular application to lower temperature resources.

3. Nuclear fission.—The commercial nuclear waste program includes generic research to develop a geologic disposal system for civilian high level and transuranic wastes, support of the West Valley solidification demonstration project, and low level waste technology to assist States in establishing regional low level waste disposal sites. The generic technology efforts in waste isolation involve rock mechanics, performance assessment models, and waste rock interactions related to several geologic media; e.g., basalt, salt, tuff, etc. A separate fund will be proposed to finance the actual waste isolation repository development program through utility fees on nuclear generated electricity.

The nuclear fuel cycle program involves three main subprogram activities: the interim spent fuel technology program to work with the private sector to demonstrate alternative spent fuel storage technologies; the fuel reprocessing program which includes efforts on advanced fuel reprocessing technology, plutonium conversion, proof-of-breeding in support of the water cooled breeder program; research and development activities in support of the Barnwell facility; and, waste treatment technology to develop technologies for treating high level, transuranic, and airborne wastes.

The remedial actions activity includes the decontamination and decommissioning of formerly used Government and commercial sites with radioactive contamination, including uranium mill tailings sites.

In the converter reactor systems program, efforts will continue on technology improvements related to design and safety. The light water reactor extended burnup project will be restructured to accommodate a reduction in 1983 to one fuel vendor. Light water reactor safety research and development efforts will be restructured to support regulatory reform initiatives and to coordinate a comprehensive national light water reactor safety research and development program. In 1982, efforts were initiated on Three Mile Island that include reactor evaluation, waste immobilization, and data acquisition. Methods for the safe treatment of wastes resulting from the clean-up are being developed. Efforts on the high temperature reactors will be terminated. The advanced reactor system program is being transferred to the Department of State.

The breeder reactor program includes two active sub-programs: the liquid metal fast breeder reactor and the water cooled breeder. The liquid metal fast breeder reactor program continues work on engineering systems and components, fuels and core design, materials and structures research, safety, and core physics. The Clinch River Breeder Reactor (CRBR) will go forward with construction scheduled to start in 1982-83. The Fast Flux Test Facility will be operated to obtain data on fuel and material behavior. Other facilities that either operate or are under construction support the research needs of the breeder program. The water cooled breeder reactor activities will focus on the termination of the Shippingport reactor and removal of the fuel to evaluate the breeding effect of the light water reactor design.

The commercial nuclear waste construction provides for general plant projects supporting the initial design efforts of a West Valley waste solidification demonstration facility. Capital equipment funds support the terminal isolation research and development and West Valley efforts.

Capital equipment for the conventional reactor program will be utilized in the light water reactor safety program.

Construction funds in the breeder reactor program support the development of the liquid metal fast breeder reactor. Funds are provided to continue the fuel and materials examination facility and two other component and safety-related test facilities.

The advanced nuclear systems program continues developmental work on the space power systems for use on U.S. space missions. The National Aeronautical and Space Administration Galileo Spacecraft is scheduled for launch in 1985 and the International Solar Polar Mission Spacecraft is scheduled for launch in 1986.

4. Magnetic fusion.—The 1983 budget provides support for continuing a physics-oriented research program aimed at the development of the highest potential of magnetic fusion energy technology. Research on the two primary concepts of confinement toroidal and mirrors will continue through the operation and flexible modification of current generation experimental devices. These efforts will be complemented with a program to develop supporting technology needs for components, materials, and reactor systems engineering. The most significant increase in the budget request is associated with completing preparation and initiating operation of Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor at the Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory. Construction on the next generation of fusion experimental devices will continue on the Mirror Fusion Test Facility—B at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory. Capital equipment funds provide for the necessary support to research and development in the confinement systems, applied plasma physics, development and technology, and planning and projects categories.

8. Biological and environmental research.—The goals of this program are to conduct research on the environmental effects of energy technologies. Planned 1983 activities include studies of the health and environmental effect of radiation; the conduct of a comprehensive research program on the effects of increased levels of carbon dioxide on climate; and, continued research on the environmental effects on non-nuclear energy technologies. Laboratory research equipment and general plant projects will be provided for continuation of environmental research activities.

9. Environment, safety and health.—The goals of this program are to develop policies and standards for safety in all agency processes and programs; assure public safety and environmental protection at all agency facilities; and assure departmental compliance with environmental statutes, regulations, and standards. Planned 1983 activities include conducting radiological surveys in response to the report on "A Safety Assessment of DOE Nuclear Reactors" which called for a strengthened nuclear safety action plan; the training of personnel in response to its nuclear safety directives; and performing test exercises at agency facilities to insure that nuclear-type emergency plans are operational. Continuation of review activities of documentation in response to Public Law 91-190, the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, are planned. This program will also provide capital equipment for continuation of diverse activities in research and assessment of environment, safety, and health impacts in energy production from both nuclear and non-nuclear areas.

10. Supporting research and technical analysis.—The supporting research programs are focused on areas of fundamental science that have the greatest potential for near-term and long-term impact on energy production; on the assessment of technologies that have potentially high payoff in the future; and, on the training of future energy professionals.

Basic energy sciences.—This program supports basic research that will result in information that can lead to improvements in new technologies. This research focuses on basic concepts, materials, processes, and techniques that are important for energy production. In 1983, work will continue on materials sciences, chemical sciences, and nuclear sciences. Additional resources will be provided for facility operations, advanced energy projects, biological energy research, and engineering, mathematics, and geosciences. Research related to high temperature materials, combustion, chemistry of coal, catalysts, photochemistry, non-destructive evaluation and the synthesis of novel materials will be expanded. Under basic energy sciences in 1983, funds are provided for general plant projects, accelerator improvement projects, and to initiate construction of improvements to the Weapons Neutron Research Facility at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory.

University research support.—This program will support energy related research and training programs through the university reactor fuel assistance program and the university laboratory cooperative research program.

Energy research analysis.—This activity involves the independent assessment of existing or proposed technological initiatives, including examination of the base of research that underlies energy supply and utilization technologies.

11. In-house energy management.—The in-house energy management program funds energy conservation projects at ERTA facilities. The program is designed to improve the efficiency of ERTA energy use and set an example for other Federal agencies and the private sector. Surveys are conducted to identify cost-effective candidate projects and projects are then selected on a competitive basis using as the primary criterion the greatest economic return. The program also includes central steam plant optimization projects to reduce the use of oil or natural gas by substitution of coal and/or renewable energy resources such as solid wastes. Typically these central-plan projects have about a 10-year payback.

12. Technical information services.—The technical information services program is a centralized service supporting the dissemination of energy research and development information to agency researchers, engineers, scientists, and academia and industry.

14. Multiprogram facilities.—Construction funds will provide for replacement and/or rehabilitation of facilities at multiprogram national laboratories.

URANIUM ENRICHMENT

As authorized by section 111(h) of the Public Law 93-438, as amended, revenues received from the enrichment of uranium shall be credited to this account, to remain available until expended, and used for expenses of the Energy Research and Technology Administration in connection with operating expenses, the purchase, construction and acquisition of plant and capital equipment and other expenses incidental thereto necessary for uranium supply and enrichment activities in carrying out the purposes of Public Law 95-91, or successor legislation, including the acquisition or condemnation of any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition, construction, or expansion; purchase of passenger motor vehicles (not to exceed 21 additions of which 8 are police type vehicles and 46 for replacement only); Provided, That obligations thus incurred may not exceed $1,967,046,000: Provided further, That within these limits, obligations may be incurred in advance of uranium enrichment revenues and shall be liquidated from such collections.

For expenses of the Department of Energy in connection with operating expenses; the purchase, construction, and acquisition of plant and capital equipment and other expenses incidental thereto necessary for uranium supply and enrichment activities in carrying out the purposes of the Department of Energy Organization Act (Public Law 95-91), including the acquisition or condemnation of any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition, construction, or expansion; purchase of passenger motor vehicles (not to exceed 23 for replacement only); $1,806,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That revenues received by the Department for the enrichment of uranium and estimated to total $1,805,000,000 in fiscal year 1982, shall be retained and used for the specific purpose of offsetting costs incurred by the Department in providing uranium enrichment service activities as authorized by section 201 of Public Law 95-238, notwithstanding the provisions of section 3617 of the Revised Statutes (31 U.S.C. 484): Provided further, That the sum herein appropriated shall be reduced as uranium enrichment revenues are received during fiscal year 1982 so as to result in a final fiscal year 1982 appropriation estimated at not more than $1,000,000. (Energy and Water Development Appropriation Act, 1982.)

Note—In 1981 and 1982, these activities were financed by the Department of Energy, energy programs, in the account Uranium supply and enrichment activities.

1. Uranium resource assessment.—The 1983 funds are required to complete activities necessary to closeout this program.

2. Uranium enrichment activities.—This program provides for the enrichment of uranium and uranium compounds in the isotope U-235. Activities include the operation of three gaseous diffusion plants located at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio; production of feed; and recovery of enriched uranium, process and long-range technical support. Other activities include the continuation of the program to improve the existing gaseous diffusion cascades to increase capacity and improve plant efficiency. This activity is scheduled for completion in 1983.

The gas centrifuge operations and support program provides for those activities related to the development of the gas centrifuge process for the enriching of uranium compounds in the isotope U-235 and the construction of the gas centrifuge enrichment plant at Portsmouth, Ohio.

3. Advanced isotope separation.—The 1983 funding level will permit the accelerated development of the selected uranium separation process. Risk analysis and cost projections will be performed and detailed engineering designs will begin on two development modules.

Capital equipment funds support an accelerated technology development program.

In accordance with enacted appropriations language in 1982, revenues estimated at $1,805,000 will be used for expenses in this account and are reflected as special fund appropriations (budget authority).

FOSSIL ENERGY RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

For necessary expenses in carrying out fossil energy research and development activities, including purchase and construction of fossil energy plants, including the acquisition of interests, including defeasible and equitable interests in any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition or expansion, and purchase of passenger motor vehicles (not to exceed 7): $106,900,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of the sum herein appropriated shall be used for the field testing of nuclear explosives in the recovery of oil and gas.

For necessary expenses in carrying out fossil energy research and development activities, under the authority of the Department of Energy Organization Act (Public Law 95-91), sections 302(b), 302(c) and 303(c) of which are hereby repealed, $431,100,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That no part of the sum herein appropriated shall be used for the field testing of nuclear explosives in the recovery of oil and gas. (Public Law 97-100, making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies, 1982.)

FOSSIL ENERGY CONSTRUCTION

For necessary expenses in connection with the purchase and construction of fossil energy plants, including the acquisition of interests, including defeasible and equitable interests in any real property or any facility or for plant or facility acquisition or expansion, $4,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That funds deferred under this head in the Supplemental Appropriations and Rescission Act, 1981 (Public Law 97-12), and further deferred (D82-9) in the special message transmitted by the President to the Congress on October 1, 1981, under section 1013 of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), shall be used for continuing design of the Solvent Refined Coal-I (SRC-I) demonstration facility (Project No. 78-2-d) and that deferral (D82-9) is hereby disapproved. (Public Law 97-100, making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies, 1982.)

1. Coal.—The objectives of this program will be to continue generic and technology base research and development, environmental research, operation of experimental facilities with unique capabilities and pilot plants and test facilities where operation results in net revenues to the Government. The 1983 efforts include environmental work in flue gas cleanup; efforts in advanced research and technology development including materials and components; work in liquefaction to permit the completion of the M-Gas pilot plant activity with the Federal Republic of Germany along with work on catalyst evaluations and work to mitigate toxic effects of coal liquids; completion of the 4.8 megawatt fuel cell test; critical instrumentation and materials work; and, health and safety studies in coal gasification.

2. Petroleum.—This program will aid in improved technologies for the exploration, development, and production of petroleum resources. The 1983 effort will concentrate on enhanced recovery of light and heavy oil, chemistry and physics work, and environmental mitigation efforts in oil shale.

3. Gas.—No new budget authority is requested for enhanced gas recovery activities in 1983.

Conservation research.—This program of basic research related to energy conservation provides a generic technology base in support of private sector research and development on energy efficiency and conservation. This program replaces end-use specific programs for buildings and community systems, industrial processes, transportation and small-scale technologies appropriate for groups and communities. These other programs tended to focus on research, development and demonstration efforts that can be pursued over time, by the private sector without Federal support and that are being terminated in 1982.

This interim program was established in 1980 for the purpose of expediting the development and production of alternative fuels. A total of $5,518,000 was made available to the Department of Energy to support certain synthetic fuel technologies until the Synthetic Fuel Corporation is declared operational.

1. Cooperative agreements.—This provides support for the development of commercial scale alternative fuel projects.

2. Project development feasibility studies.—This provides for the development of feasibility studies of alternative fuel production facilities so that project sponsors are able to assess the technical needs and economic potential of such projects.

3. Program management.—This provides for costs associated with negotiating and monitoring price and loan guarantees for alternative fuel projects.

In 1981 the Department of Energy committed to support three synfuels projects using a price guarantee contract and two loan guarantees. It is expected that these will be the only projects to be provided financial assistance under this program. When the Synthetic Fuels Corporation is declared to be operational in 1982, the uncommitted and unobligated funds remaining in the program will be transferred to the Energy Security Reserve for use by the Synthetic Fuels Corporation. In addition, it is expected that the Corporation will elect to transfer two of the three project guarantees in the alternative fuels program to the Corporation's jurisdiction.

Legislation is being proposed to establish a fund to finance the site-specific development, acquisition, and operation of facilities for the disposal of civilian nuclear waste, which is not destined for low level waste burial grounds. The utilities would pay for this service through a mandatory fee based upon kilowatt hours of electrical power generated from their nuclear facilities. Borrowing authority is requested to provide front end funding for the terminal isolation repository development program while the necessary systems and procedures are being put into place to accommodate the revenue collections.

Note.—In 1981 and 1982, these activities were financed by the Department of Energy, energy programs, in the account Energy information administration.

This program supports energy information activities which are designed to provide timely, accurate, and relevant energy information for use by the administration, the Congress, and the general public. These activities will be administered by a bureau of energy information in the Department of Commerce.

1. Collection, production and analysis.—These activities design, develop, and maintain information systems on oil, natural gas, coal, nuclear, and electric energy. These programs collect data and ensure its accuracy.

2. Program services.—The activities funded in program services include the operation of a computer facility, telecommunications support, customer services, and ADP software support. In addition, this activity provides survey and statistical design standards and makes publications available to the public.

3. Policy and management.—This program provides funding for planning, budgeting, contract administration, personnel, and administrative services.

Note.—In 1981 and 1982, these activities were financed by the Department of Energy, energy programs, in the account Economic regulation.

1. Fuels conversion.—No new budget authority is provided in 1983. This program was designed to require utilities and major industrial fuel users to convert to coal, but only voluntary conversions were made. It is assumed that voluntary conversions will continue in the future as a result of oil price decontrol, higher natural gas prices, and simplified environmental regulations.

2. Utility programs and regulatory intervention.—Regulatory components of this program to assist State public utility commissions with rate reform have been completed. Efforts to assure continued reliability and adequacy of the Nation's electric power supply through strategic planning, investigation of outages and encouragement of power pooling, interconnections, and wheeling were transferred from this activity to the emergency preparedness program.

3. Petroleum operations.—This program is responsible for issuing licenses for the import of petroleum and preparing to collect import fees if imposed. Monitoring energy supply situations has been transferred from this activity to the emergency preparedness program.

4. Emergency preparedness.—This program will provide ongoing capability for the coordination of comprehensive energy emergency preparedness programs designed to reduce the vulnerability of the Nation to energy supply disruptions within a framework of maximum free market operations. These programs involve analysis of vulnerability to energy emergencies, assessment of specific emergency conditions and effects, and maintenance of an energy emergency response management structure.

5. Program administration.—This activity supplies administrative support for the programs described above.

6. Emergency gasoline rationing.—This program was terminated in 1981 consistent with the expiration of the Emergency Petroleum Allocation Act of 1973.

7. Hearings and appeals.—These activities involve the review and issuance of final orders of an adjudicatory nature including decisions on appeals of orders and petitions for exception relief.

SEC. 【507】 506. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to implement a program of retention contracts for senior employees of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

SEC. 【508】 507. The Senate hereby expresses its intention not to appropriate funds for improvements on the portion of the Black Warrior-Tombigbee Waterway south of Demopolis, Alabama. (Energy and Water Development Appropriation Act, 1982.)

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

MILITARY PERSONNEL

ACTIVE FORCES

These appropriations finance the personnel costs of the active duty appropriations for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force. Changes in financial requirements are primarily related to military personnel strengths in support of the military program. The entitlements and activities covered under these appropriations are as follows:

1. Pay and allowances of officers.—Provides for the pay and allowances of officers of the military service on active duty.

2. Pay and allowances of enlisted.—Provides for the pay and allowances of enlisted persons of the military service on active duty, and payments for initial issue and replacement clothing under the monetary clothing allowance system.

3. Pay and allowances of cadets and midshipmen.—Provides for the pay and allowances of cadets and midshipmen at the three service academies and aviation cadets.

4. Subsistence of enlisted personnel.—This provides for the purchase of food supplies for issue as rations to enlisted personnel, including emergency and operational rations. It also provides for a cash allowance paid to enlisted personnel who are given permission to mess separately or who are stationed at places where rations in kind are not available.

5. Permanent change of station travel.—Provides for the cost of reassignment of individuals and groups of military personnel and their dependents, including dislocation and separation travel allowances, storage of household goods in commercial facilities, and transportation of personal property. It also includes payment for services furnished by the Military Sealift Command, Military Airlift Command, and Military Traffic Management Command for transportation to and from overseas of military personnel, their dependents, household goods, and automobiles.

6. Other military personnel costs.—Provides expenses for the apprehension of deserters and escaped military prisoners, and the payment of death gratuities to beneficiaries of military personnel.

The numbers of active duty military personnel provided for are shown in the following table:

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the Reserve components, which include: Army and Air National Guard; and Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves.

National Guard and Reserve personnel.—These programs provide funds for training members of the Ready Reserve as the initial and primary augmentation of the active forces during any future emergency. Activities are grouped according to the training performed or the support provided.

1. Unit and individual training.—Most of the paid National Guard and Reserve personnel perform monthly inactive duty training and attend 2 weeks of active duty for training each year. Other personnel not requiring such intensive training receive only a period of active duty for training (usually 2 weeks) during the year. Initial active duty for training is provided for personnel enlisting in the National Guard or Reserve who have not previously received military training. Certain enlistees may train with pay while awaiting initial active duty for training.

2. Other training and support.—School, special, and mobilization tours of active duty provide additional training for limited numbers of the Ready Reserve. Also, this program provides funds for military personnel who are on full-time active duty for the purpose of performing duties associated with Reserve matters.

The number of National Guard and Reserve personnel estimated to participate in the paid training programs and the number of full-time active duty military personnel provided for are summarized in the following table:

Reserve officer candidates.—Funds for these programs are contained in Budget Activity 2, "Other Training and Support" of the Reserve Personnel appropriations. The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a college at which an ROTC unit has been established. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum of 3 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes a limited number of scholarships for ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships must serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer. There will be about 10,200 scholarship recipients in the Army, about 6,000 in the Navy, and about 7,500 in the Air Force in 1983.

The Armed Forces health professions scholarship program provides a source of commissioned officers for the various health professions. Student enrollment in 1983 will be about 1,733 in the Army, 1,420 in the Navy, and 1,593 in the Air Force.

The Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force provide training for students who elect to enroll in Junior ROTC training at the secondary level of education, and are programed to have 836, 233, 75, and 285 units, respectively, in operation in 1983.

The numbers of commissioned officers graduated from these programs are summarized below:

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all personnel on the military retired lists for the Department of Defense. The estimate represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for: (a) payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) retainer pay of enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Marine Corps; and (c) survivors' benefits. The primary gains to the retired rolls can be attributed to the greater number of individuals attaining eligibility for retirement after 20 or more years of active military service. The following tabulation shows the average number of personnel on the rolls during 1981 compared with estimated numbers for 1982 and 1983.

AVERAGE NUMBER

1. Nondisability	1,028,922	1,062,333	1,097,710
2. Temporary disability	9,638	8,753	8,338
3. Permanent disability	137,289	136,177	134,952
4. Fleet reserve	100,085	97,044	94,577
5. Survivors' benefits	69,973	79,193	88,723
Total	1,345,907	1,383,500	1,424,300

Budget estimates for the retired pay program reflect anticipated benefit increases due to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) adjustment mechanism embodied in current law.

Legislation will be proposed to change the military retirement system in order to remove certain inequitable features and make military retirement consistent with other Federal retirement programs.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

These appropriations finance the costs of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the Reserve components and related support activities of the Department of Defense, except military personnel costs. Included are amounts for pay of civilians, contract services for maintenance of equipment and facilities, fuel, supplies, and repair parts for weapons and equipment. Financial requirements are influenced by many factors, including force levels such as the number of aircraft squadrons, Army or Marine Corps divisions, installations, military strength and deployments, rates of operational activity, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, et cetera) in operation.

The 1983 budget reflects a substantial increase to and enhance Defense readiness.

ACTIVE FORCES

Funds to operate the Active Forces and their support are contained in five operation and maintenance appropriations, one for each of the four services and one for Defense agencies. The programs covered under this heading are described below:

1. Strategic forces.—Strategic offensive forces include more than 325 manned B-52 and FB-111 bombers and 1,053 ICBM's operated by the Air Force as well as the Navy's submarine missile fleet, which deploys 544 Poseidon and Trident missiles. The third Trident submarine will enter the fleet in 1983.

Strategic defensive forces consist of interceptor fighter aircraft and various warning, command, and control systems also operated by the Air Force.

2. General purpose forces.—These forces, primarily conventional in nature, provide the bulk of the flexible combat capability upon which our national security and our overall defense posture depend. These forces are deployed to Europe in support of NATO commitments, eastern Asia, and the western Pacific. Naval forces operate in the Atlantic, Pacific and the Mediterranean. Active forces are also stationed in the United States.

Army land forces consist of infantry, mechanized, armored, airborne, air assault divisions, and supporting force elements, along with a number of units for combat support. Modernization of combat units, including delivery of the M-1 tank, will continue 1983. Testing of new concepts for lighter, more deployable combat units will also continue in 1983.

Naval forces include aircraft carriers, submarines, amphibious forces, antisubmarine forces, and anti-air warfare forces. Twenty-two ships will be introduced into the fleet in 1983: four nuclear attack submarines, one destroyer, eleven guided missile frigates, one fleet oiler, one destroyer tender, two tiered array sonarships, one aircraft carrier following service life extension conversion and a battleship following activation. Overage and obsolete vessels will be inactivated and a second carrier will enter the service life extension program.

Tactical air forces consist of the Air Force tactical air wings, Navy land and carrier based antisubmarine and fighter/attack air wings, and Marine air wings. Force missions include air superiority, interdiction bombing, close air support, antisubmarine patrol, reconnaissance, and special operations. The Navy will continue to deploy the F-14 to replace F-4's in the fleet air defense role. The Air Force will continue to fill out their 26-wing structure with continued delivery of the F-15, F-16, and A-10.

Marine Corps land forces, including combat and supporting units, are designed to conduct amphibious assault operations and other missions with the close support of Marine aviation.

3. Intelligence and communications.—This program comprises the centrally directed Defense intelligence and security function, the major portion of the consolidated telecommunications program (CTP), the National Military Command System, and other special activities which are related to and support the missions of the combat forces in the strategic, general purpose, and airlift/sealift programs. Included in the CTP portion are the Defense Communications System (DCS), common user transmission and switching systems, as well as non-DCS communications. Funds to support intelligence, security, and communications activities are contained in the various appropriations of each of the military services, and in the Defense agencies appropriation. Included among the special activities are Navy oceanographic and weather programs, Air Force weather, air rescue and recovery, and air traffic control programs.

4. Airlift and sealift.—This program provides air, land, and sea transportation services for all the Armed Forces in peacetime as well as quick reaction strategic mobility and logistical support in wartime. The major commands in this program are the Air Force Military Airlift Command, the Navy Military Sealift Command, and the Army Military Traffic Management Command. These are primarily industrially funded operations with costs reimbursed by the users. The operation and maintenance appropriations directly provide for certain administrative and service support expenses for each of these industrially funded activities.

7. Central supply and maintenance.—This program includes funds for specialized supply and maintenance activities. It provides resources for the determination of inventory levels, procurement of supplies, distribution, depot-level maintenance, and transportation of military materiel. These functions are managed by the military services and conducted at various locations worldwide.

In addition, the Defense Logistics Agency provides common supply and services support to the military services within the continental United States and manages bulk petroleum worldwide. The Agency is the Defense manager for standby industrial plant equipment, the surplus property disposal program, and the Federal catalog program. It is also responsible for providing contract administration services, administration of Defense materiel utilization programs and coordinated procurement programs.

8. Training, medical, and other general personnel activities.—In 1983 the military services plan on acquiring approximately 400,000 new accessions into the Active Forces. Continued success of the All-Volunteer Force will necessitate a strong effort by the recruiting organizations of each service to attract the new personnel required. These new accessions must then be trained in basic military skills and in many occupational skills. Training requirements are also influenced by the total strength of the services, and by the introduction of new equipment and weapons. Education of prospective officers is accomplished primarily by the three service academies and by Reserve Officer Training Corps units at universities and colleges. The services plan to operate 162 hospitals to provide medical care for active and retired military personnel and for dependents. This program finances a medical program at civilian medical facilities for personnel in areas where service hospitals are not accessible. In addition, this activity provides the resources necessary to operate the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences. Starting in 1982 Schools on U.S. Federal property will be financed within the activity rather than by the Department of Education.

9. Administration and associated activities.—This program includes the costs of departmental administration, major field command headquarters, and general support activities such as finance and audit. Reimbursement to the General Services Administration for space occupied is also included in this program.

10. Support of other nations.—This program includes military assistance missions, advisory groups for foreign nations, and the U.S. share of NATO costs, plus support of U.S. organizations related to international military headquarters.

RESERVE FORCES

The following appropriations are for the Reserve components, which include: Army and Air National Guard; and Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves. The military services train Reserve component units and operate and maintain facilities such as training centers, air bases, and field training sites for the use of such units. Changes in financial requirements are primarily related to priorities given to improving mobilization readiness through equipment modernization and intensified training. Appropriations for the Army and Air National Guard display their historic detailed activity structure, while the appropriations for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force Reserves, are structured as follows:

Mission forces.—Includes training, operations, and logistics support.

Depot maintenance.—Provides for depot level maintenance, including repair, overhaul, and modification of vehicles, aircraft, and other equipment.

Other support.—Consists primarily of activities related to base operations and maintenance, medical support, and headquarters and command.

PROCUREMENT

The procurement appropriations of the Department of Defense finance the acquisition of combat weapons, combat support, and training equipment, to include: aircraft, missiles, ships, tanks, and other vehicles; guns of all sizes, torpedoes, and communications equipment; air, ground and ship munitions; industrial facilities projects; and modification of existing equipment where increased capability can be achieved without buying new equipment. The 1983 program contains a mix of both new and continuing procurement to equip the military forces necessary to meet U.S. national security objectives.

Procurement continues for the Army's Patriot and Stinger air defense missile systems, Tow and Hellfire antitank missiles, M-1 main battle tank, Infantry Fighting Vehicle, general support rocket system, AH-64 helicopter, Pershing II missile, and improved conventional munitions.

Modernization of our naval forces in 1983 includes continued procurement of the F-18 air combat fighter and the F-14 fleet air defense fighter. Procurement of the Trident strategic missile and submarine continues. General purpose ships to be acquired, modernized or reactivated include nuclear powered aircraft carriers, nuclear attack submarines, frigates, and cruisers.

Significant Air Force programs include initial procurement of the MX missile and continued procurement of the B-1 bomber, ground- and air-launched cruise missiles, and F-15 and F-16 air combat fighters.

Direct budget programs are estimated as follows (in thousands of dollars):

This appropriation finances the acquisition of tactical and utility airplanes and helicopters, including associated electronics, electronic warfare and communications equipment and armament; modification of in-service aircraft; ground support equipment; and depot reparable assemblies, components and repair parts such as spare engines, transmissions, gear boxes and sensor equipment. It also funds related training devices, such as combat mission flight simulators, and production base support.

The 1983 program continues production of the AH-64 advanced attack helicopter and of the UH-60A Black Hawk utility helicopter. It continues the TOW missile-launching attack helicopter AH-1 modification program which provides additional heliborne anti-armor firepower; and continues to improve the Special Electronic Mission Aircraft fleet. In addition, the 1983 program includes modification/modernization of the CH-47 medium-lift helicopter fleet to enhance productivity, safety and survivability.

This appropriation finances the acquisition of ammunition, modification of in-service stock, and related production base support including the maintenance, expansion, and modernization of industrial facilities and equipment.

The 1983 program provides for worldwide training consumption and losses from inventory through the 1983 funded delivery period; procurement of modern hardware; and buildup of war reserve stocks to meet authorized acquisition objectives. This year's program includes funds for over 50 different types of ammunition and provides the 15th increment of a multi-year effort to rehabilitate and improve the Army's industrial base.

This appropriation provides funds for the procurement of aircraft and related supporting equipment and programs. Included are funds for flight simulators and equipments to modify in-service aircraft to extend their service life, eliminate safety hazards, and improve their operational effectiveness. Additionally, spares and repair parts and ground support equipment for all end items procured by this appropriation are included. Funds are also provided for procurement of material and effort for planned 1984 programs which must be ordered in 1983 due to leadtime considerations.

The 1983 program continues production of the A-6E medium attack, the AV-8B VSTOL attack, the F-14A and F/A-18 fighter, CH-53E heavy transport helicopter, SH-60B and SH-2F antisubmarine warfare helicopter, P-3C antisubmarine warfare, E-2C early warning, EA-6B electronic fleet support, and T-34C and TH-57 trainer aircraft. Initial procurement of the C-2A carrier onboard delivery aircraft begins in 1983 under a multiyear contract. The 1983 program also includes procurement of used C-9B transport aircraft.

SHIPBUILDING AND CONVERSION, NAVY*

[(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)]

This appropriation finances the procurement of strategic and tactical missiles, target drones, torpedoes, guns, associated support equipment and the modification of in-service missiles, torpedoes, and guns.

1. Ballistic missiles.—This activity funds the procurement of Trident ballistic missiles, modifications of other ballistic missiles, production and fleet support equipment, and repair parts. Also included are funds for supporting Government-owned missile industrial facilities and for the navigational satellite program.

2. Other missiles.—Funds requested in this activity are for the procurement of tactical missiles and support equipment required for fleet air defense, air-to-surface and surface-to-surface attack. This activity also provides funds for aerial targets, missile modifications, repair parts, Government-owned missile industrial facilities, and the Fleet Satellite program.

3. Torpedoes and related equipment.—This request includes funds for torpedoes, underwater mobile targets, torpedo modifications, repair parts, and special support equipment necessary to sustain fleet exercises and maintain fleet inventories.

4. Other weapons.—Included in this activity are funds for ship guns (except those funded under Shipbuilding and Conversion, Navy), machine guns, small arms, and the close-in weapon system. Also included are funds for modification of other weapons and procurement of repair parts and support equipment for maintaining these weapons.

*See Part III for additional information.

This appropriation finances the construction of new ships and the purchase and the conversion of existing ships, including hull, mechanical, and electrical equipment, electronics, guns, torpedo and missile launching systems, and communication systems.

1. Fleet ballistic missile ships.—Funds requested in this activity are for two Trident class ballistic missile submarines and long-leadtime equipment for future Trident submarines.

2. Other warships.—The 1983 request includes two nuclear-powered attack submarines, two nuclear aircraft carriers, continuation of the new class of guided missile cruisers armed with the Aegis air defense system, the Iowa reactivation, Service Life Extension of another Forrestal class aircraft carrier, and advance procurement funds for additional nuclear attack submarines, the third Iowa class battleship reactivation, and for modernization of older carriers.

3. Amphibious ships.—These funds provide for another dock landing ship and advance procurement of components for a new assault landing ship.

4. Mine warfare and patrol ships.—This activity requests funds for two guided missile frigates and the first four follow-on mine countermeasure ships.

5. Auxiliaries, craft, and prior-year program costs.—Funds in this activity will: procure a fleet oiler, a hospital ship, another rescue and salvage ship; convert four ships for the Rapid Deployment Force; and provide long leadtime items for a new Surtass ship in 1984. Funds are also included for landing craft, service craft, outfitting material, post delivery costs, cost growth and escalation funds for prior year programs, ship contract design funds previously budgeted in the R.D.T. & E., N. appropriation, and manufacturing technology efforts.

This appropriation finances the procurement of major equipment and weapons other than ships, aircraft, missiles, torpedoes, and guns. Such equipments range from the latest electronic sensors for updating our naval forces to trucks, training equipment, and spare parts.

1. Ship support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of shipboard components, including replacement of nuclear reactor cores, for active fleet ship maintenance and modernization.

2. Communications and electronics equipment.—Funds requested in this activity are for the procurement of communications and electronics equipment for ships and shore-based activities.

3. Aviation support equipment.—This activity funds the procurement of sonobuoys, air-launched ordnance, and aircraft support equipment.

4. Ordnance support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of ship-launched ordnance, shipboard missile and fire control systems, mine support equipment, and fleet ballistic missile support and training equipment.

5. Civil engineering support equipment.—Funds included in this activity are for procurement of construction, weight-handling, and transportation equipment.

6. Supply support equipment.—Procurement of self-propelled and automated materials handling equipment to support the Navy supply system is financed within this activity.

7. Personnel and command support equipment.—This activity finances the procurement of training, industrial, photographic, printing, and oceanographic equipment for activities supported by the Chief of Naval Operations, the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, and the fleet headquarters commands.

This appropriation provides for procurement of aircraft, and for modification of inservice aircraft to improve safety and enhance operational effectiveness. It also provides for investment spare and repair parts including spare engines, replenishment spares, and other support equipment to include aerospace ground equipment and industrial facilities. In addition, funds are provided for the procurement of flight training simulators to increase combat readiness and to provide for more economical training.

1. Combat aircraft.—Provides aircraft for continued force modernization. Included are A-10, F-15, F-5, F-16, B-1, KC-10, and E-3A aircraft.

2. Airlift aircraft.—Provides aircraft for airlift forces. Procurement of C-5N and European distribution aircraft, Second C-5N aircraft, is requested in 1983.

3. Other aircraft.—Provides helicopters and other specialized aircraft. Procurement of TR-1 aircraft is requested in 1983.

4. Modification of inservice aircraft.—Provides for modification of inservice aircraft and associated training equipment for safety of flight and technical changes to improve reliability, improve maintenance, increase capability, or provide for a change in mission.

5. Aircraft spares and repair parts.—Provides for investment spares including initial spares for new aircraft and replenishment spares for aircraft in the operational force.

6. Aircraft support equipment and facilities.—Provides for common aerospace ground equipment for the operational force, flight simulators for out-of-production aircraft, industrial facilities, war consumables, other production charges and the U.S. share of the NATO Airborne Warning and Control System program. Included are electronic countermeasure pods, alternate mission equipment, and classified projects.

This appropriation provides for procurement, installation, and checkout of strategic ballistic and other missiles, modification of in-service missiles, and initial and replenishment spare and repair parts for missile systems. It also provides for operational space systems, boosters, payloads, drones, associated ground support equipment, nonrecurring maintenance of industrial facilities, machine tool modernization, and special programs support.

1. Ballistic missiles.—Provides for initial procurement of MX missiles.

2. Other missiles.—Provides procurement of the imaging infrared MAVERICK and HARM missiles for tactical aircraft, and continued procurement of the air-launched cruise missile for B-52 aircraft, the ground-launched cruise missile for theater nuclear forces and the RAPIER air defense system. Also provides for the SPARROW and SEWINDER air-to-air missiles, as well as for target drones for testing missiles and for training aircrews.

3. Modification of in-service missiles.—Provides for updating of MINUTEMAN missiles and modification of missiles to improve reliability and safety, to extend service life, and to incorporate operational improvements based on in-service use.

4. Spare and repair parts.—Provides for initial and replenishment spare and repair parts for ballistic missiles, other missiles, target drones, aerospace ground equipment, training equipment, replacement depot test equipment, provisioning documentation, and spares for the modification programs.

5. Other support.—Provides for special program activities, modernization of Government-owned production facilities, and for the procurement of launch vehicles, spacecraft, and peculiar ground equipment for operational space systems.

This appropriation provides for the procurement of weapon systems and equipment other than aircraft and missiles. Included are munitions, other weapons, vehicles, electronic and telecommunications systems for command and control of operational forces, and ground support equipment for weapons systems and supporting structure.

1. Munitions and associated equipment.—Provides air-to-ground munitions for the tactical forces and other weapons. Included are war reserve stocks and training requirements.

2. Vehicular equipment.—Provides vehicles for the operational forces and supporting structure. Included are firefighting equipment, passenger carrying, cargo, utility, and special purpose vehicles for base operations. Also included are self-propelled materials handling equipment for tactical and strategic airlift forces.

3. Electronic and telecommunications equipment.—Provides electronic and communication systems for command and control of the operational forces and for the detection of hostile forces. Included are traffic control and landing equipment, tactical air control system components, electronic data processing, warning and communications devices.

4. Other base maintenance and support equipment.—Provides ground support equipment, not otherwise provided with the major weapons system, for operational forces and supporting structure. Included are test equipment, personal safety and rescue equipment, medical and dental equipment, and automated materials handling equipment for improving the efficiency of the Air Force supply and logistics system.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

Programs in this title support the modernization of the Armed Forces through a broad range of activities. These include development and testing of full-scale, pre-production hardware, development of prototypes, fabrication of technology-demonstration devices and support of military research and exploratory development. This work is performed by industrial contractors, Government laboratories, universities and nonprofit organizations.

Research and development programs are funded such that each year's resources normally support a 1-year increment of activity.

The budget plan for research, development, test and evaluation for 1983 totals $24.3 billion, an increase of $4.3 billion over the 1982 level of $20.0 billion.

The 1983 Defense R.D.T. & E. program stresses a healthy technology base, modernization of our strategic forces, substantial improvements in chemical retaliatory and defensive capabilities, development of a number of tactical weapon systems which can be operated in a highly mobile combat environment, and dramatically improved command, control and communications capabilities.

1. Technology base.—This activity is composed of research and exploratory development of technologies which have potential applications for defense, involving the physical, mathematical, environmental, engineering, biomedical, and behavioral sciences. The 1983 program continues to strengthen our technology base.

2. Advanced technology development.—This activity supports extensive exploration of promising systems alternatives and concepts. Efforts in 1983 emphasize laser technology, materials development and very high speed integrated circuits.

3. Strategic programs.—This activity funds development of strategic offensive and defensive systems. Efforts in full-scale development of the MX missile system continue. Additionally, development of a new TRIDENT II missile, an upgraded version of the B-1 bomber, a ballistic missile defense technology and an improved national command, control and communications capability reflects increased emphasis on modernization of our strategic forces. Research and development work in long-term ICBM basing and space defense is also included in the strategic program.

4. Tactical programs.—This activity supports the development of combat systems for the general purpose forces (land, sea and air) of the United States and its allies. Development efforts will emphasize weapons systems capable of sustaining operation in a highly mobile combat environment where long-range and precise firepower must be projected.

In the land warfare mission area, lightweight, highly mobile armored vehicles and weapons, and helicopter development receive primary attention. The budget also supports advancements in target acquisition and command and control technology.

In sea control, increased efforts are directed at anti-submarine warfare to counter the improved Soviet submarine threat. Sonar, airborne platforms, torpedo and surface weaponry will all be included. Research and design development of a new destroyer to replace aging surface combatants will be initiated, while work will continue on vertical launch systems associated with strike warfare.

Air warfare programs include an advanced medium range missile, improvements in engine components and a low altitude navigation and targeting system. In addition, development efforts will begin on advanced technology tactical fighters, including improvements to electronic warfare capabilities will also be improved.

Also included in tactical programs is work in chemical warfare and force mobility.

5. Intelligence and communications.—This activity supports improvements to Defense-wide capabilities in intelligence, navigation and worldwide communications.

6. Defensewide mission support.—This activity provides funding for support efforts, including Federal Contract Research Centers, ranges and test facilities, and studies and analyses. Also included here is major Defense support for the Space Shuttle.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Active and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM
	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Active Forces	2,632,924	3,940,845	4,390,300
Reserve Forces.....	233,040	311,371	261,500
Interservice activities.....	565,338	690,350	783,900
Total.....	3,431,302	4,942,566	5,435,700

Most of the appropriations required for the military construction accounts are dependent upon the enactment of authorizing legislation. The details of this legislation have been completed and are being submitted to the Congress for early consideration.

1. Major construction.—This category provides for the acquisition of land and for construction of authorized military projects. These authorizations include construction projects where the estimated cost of such construction generally exceeds $1 million per project. The major activities proposed are as follows:

Strategic forces.—Provision has been made to upgrade existing facilities and provide for personnel support for strategic warfare systems. Funds have been provided here for initial support of the new MX missile system, and for continuing support to the Trident weapons system.

General purpose forces.—Projects in this category support general combat forces including their command organizations, the logistics organizations organic to these forces, and the related support units, including medical, which are deployed as constituent parts of military forces and field organizations.

Specialized activities.—Funding for abatement of air and water pollution at defense installations is included to assure that actions to correct violations of Federal, State, and local air and water quality standards are taken. The ongoing energy conservation investment program is also continued in new construction and where economically practical, into existing facilities and utility systems.

Research and development.—This program includes facilities in support of programs to advance knowledge and technology in such areas as weapons systems, communications, electronics, and medicine. These programs emphasize the search for improved capabilities in the Armed Forces.

Personnel support.—Funds are provided for improved housing, medical, and community support facilities to encourage retention of personnel in the service and the development of an All-Volunteer Force. Upgrading of existing facilities with the application of improved standards has been provided in addition to new construction.

Reserve components.—The funding levels programed are for facilities required for the training of National Guard and the Reserve Forces identified as the primary source of augmentation for Active Forces in future emergencies.

Interservice activities.—This category includes Defense agencies facilities in such areas as logistics, intelligence, mapping and nuclear technology; facilities which serve requirements of more than one military service, and the U.S. share of the NATO infrastructure program, which provides military facilities to support the deployment and operation of NATO military forces, including U.S. forces committed to NATO.

2. Minor construction.—Funding is provided for projects whose individual project cost does not exceed $1 million. This program includes projects at specified locations for which the need is known, and lump sum amounts for exigent construction to provide for essential, but unforeseen construction needs which may emerge during the year.

3. Planning.—This provides for necessary planning of military construction projects, including design, standards, criteria, studies, appraisals, and other related activities.

4. Supporting activities.—Provision is made for activities such as the defense access road program and minor land acquisition.

Starting in 1983, appropriations are being requested for each Military Department and the Defense Agencies. Each of these appropriations requires authorizing language.

These appropriations finance the following:

Construction of new housing.—Finances land acquisition, site preparation, construction, and initial outfitting with fixtures and integral equipment of new family housing units and associated facilities such as roads, driveways, walks, utility systems, solar energy systems, and community facilities.

Construction improvements.—Finances alterations, additions, expansions, or extensions to existing public quarters which will materially increase useful life and comfortability at a minimum of capital investment; includes minor construction or replacement to family housing units as authorized by 10 U.S.C. 2674.

Planning.—Finances preliminary studies for the development of additional family housing facilities, studies for site adaptation, and determination of type and design of units; and working drawings, specifications and estimates, project planning reports and final design drawings of family housing construction projects. This includes the use of architectural and engineering services in connection with any family housing new or post acquisition construction.

Operating expenses.—Finances the operation of the family housing inventory and includes the cost associated with: housing referral, housing office operation, administrative expenses, refuse collection and disposal, fire and police protection, entomological and pest control, custodial services, snow removal, street cleaning, utilities, initial issue or replacement of furniture and household equipment, the control, moving, handling, maintenance and repair of such equipment, amounts paid to the Department of State to operate permit housing units overseas, and mobile home hookups.

Leasing.—Finances the payment to owners of the contractual costs of leasing family housing units for assignment as public quarters, and also payment of operation and maintenance costs of those units.

Maintenance of real property.—Finances the upkeep of family housing real property, as follows:

Maintenance/repair of dwellings.—Includes service calls, routine maintenance, major repairs and replacement, and interior or exterior painting;

Exterior utilities.—Encompasses maintenance and repair of sewer and water lines, electric feeds, and any other exterior utilities located within family housing areas;

Other real property.—Includes work on grounds, surfaced areas, and any other family housing real property;

Alterations and additions.—Provides minor improvements to dwellings or other real property which are not classified as capital investments. Larger scope or higher dollar value items which are considered investments are funded in the construction program.

Interest payments.—Pays interest charges on indebtedness assumed to acquire Capehart and Wherry housing.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

Department of Defense stock funds finance the purchase of consumable materials for resale to the military services and other authorized customers (10 U.S.C. 2208). These inventories are stocked at various Defense activities. Consumable mobilization reserve materials are also purchased through the stock funds.

Budget program.—Obligations increase in 1983 over 1982 due to projected price increases, longer procurement lead times, and an expanding force structure. Efforts to improve pricing and inventory stockage policies, begun in 1979, will continue through 1983.

Financing the budget program.—The budget program is financed primarily from sales to customers. Gross expenditures in 1983 are projected to be higher than in 1982 as a result of projected price increases. Estimated expenditures are shown below (in millions of dollars):

	Gross outlays
	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Army stock fund.....	5,428	6,201	6,644
Navy stock fund.....	5,186	6,022	6,644

Defense stock fund.....	16,656	16,757	17,011
Total Department of Defense stock funds...	37,439	40,425	42,383

Procurement leadtime for material acquisition is greater than the time required to fill and collect customers' orders. As a result, Department of Defense stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future years' sales (10 U.S.C. 2210(b)). Pursuant to this authority, contract authority of $7,530 million was available at the end of 1981, estimated to remain at $7,530 million in 1982 and 1983.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Revenue and expenses for 1982 and 1983 are projected on a break-even basis. It is estimated that by the end of 1983, investment (equity) of the U.S. Government will be $25,798 million, including $19,475 million in inventory and other assets capitalized, and a cumulative retained income of $6,323 million.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance various Defense activities that perform industrial or commercial type functions on a reimbursable basis (10 U.S.C. 2208). Workload at these activities is generated by orders from various customers who provide reimbursement through progress payments for the full cost of the work performed. This enables the industrial funds to maintain the level of working capital needed for continued operations. Government investment as of September 30, 1983, is estimated at $6,100 million.

Budget program.—The policy of stabilizing the rates charged to customers will continue. Estimated total costs of goods and services produced in 1983 are projected to increase by over $3,672 million, reflecting an increase in support requirements, costs, and continuing emphasis on reducing maintenance backlog. Yearend totals are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

TOTAL PRODUCTION COSTS
Army industrial fund.....	2,542,683	2,872,600	3,060,700

Total.....	18,456,334	20,518,500	21,191,000

The U.S. Army activities financed through the Army industrial fund include depot supply and maintenance operations, research and development, arsenals, missile material development and acquisition, and ocean port handling of Defense cargo.

The Navy industrial fund finances a variety of activities, including aircraft maintenance facilities, ordnance stations, research laboratories, shipyards, strategic systems project offices, printing plants, public works centers, and the Military Sealift Command.

The Marine Corps industrial fund finances maintenance depots engaged in repairing or overhauling Marine Corps equipment and providing technical engineering support.

The activities financed under the Air Force industrial fund include laundries, depot maintenance activities, real property maintenance facility, and the Military Airlift Command.

The Defense industrial fund finances the Defense Clothing and Textile Center and leased communications procured by the Defense Commercial Communications Office.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 701. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. 702. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes not authorized by the Congress.

SEC. 703. During the current fiscal year, the Secretary of Defense and the Secretaries of the Army, Navy, and Air Force, respectively, if they should deem it advantageous to the national defense, and if in their opinions the existing facilities of the Department of Defense are inadequate, are authorized to procure services in accordance with section 3109 of title 5, United States Code, under regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense, and to pay in connection therewith travel expenses of individuals, including actual transportation and per diem in lieu of subsistence while traveling from their homes or places of business to official duty stations and return as may be authorized by law: Provided, That such contracts may be renewed annually.

SEC. 704. During the current fiscal year, provisions of law prohibiting the payment of compensation to, or employment of, any person not a citizen of the United States shall not apply to personnel of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 705. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for insurance of official motor vehicles in foreign countries, when required by laws of such countries; payments in advance of expenses determined by the investigating officer to be necessary and in accord with local custom for conducting investigations in foreign countries incident to matters relating to the activities of the department concerned; reimbursement to General Services Administration for security guard services for protection of confidential files; and all necessary expenses, at the seat of government of the United States of America or elsewhere, in connection with communication and other services and supplies as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act.

SEC. 706. Any appropriation available to the Army, Navy, or Air Force may, under such regulations as the Secretary concerned may prescribe, be used for expenses incident to the maintenance, pay, and allowances of prisoners of war, other persons in Army, Navy, or Air Force custody whose status is determined by the Secretary concerned to be similar to prisoners of war, and persons detained in such custody pursuant to Presidential proclamation.

SEC. 707. Appropriations available to the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year for maintenance or construction shall be available for acquisition of land or interest therein as authorized by section 2672 or 2675 of title 10, United States Code.

SEC. 708. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available (a) for transportation to primary and secondary schools of minor dependents of military and civilian personnel of the Department of Defense as authorized for the Navy by section 7204 of title 10, United States Code; (b) for expenses in connection with administration of occupied areas; (c) for payment of rewards as authorized for the Navy by section 7209(a) of title 10, United States Code, for information leading to the discovery of missing naval property or the recovery thereof; (d) for payment of deficiency judgments and interests thereon arising out of condemnation proceedings; (e) for leasing of buildings and facilities including payment of rentals for special purpose space at the seat of government, and in the conduct of field exercises and maneuvers or, in administering the provisions of title 43, United States Code, section 315q, rentals may be paid in advance; (f) payments under contracts for maintenance of tools and facilities for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; (g) maintenance of defense access roads certified as important to national defense in accordance with section 210 of title 23, United States Code; (h) for the purchase of milk for enlisted personnel of the Department of Defense heretofore made available pursuant to section 1446a, title 7, United States Code, and the cost of milk so purchased, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, shall be included in the value of the commuted ration; (i) transporting civilian clothing to the home of record of selective service inductees and recruits on entering the military services; (j) payments under leases for real or personal property, including maintenance thereof when contracted for as a part of the lease agreement, for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; (k) pay and allowances of not to exceed nine persons, including personnel detailed to International Military Headquarters and Organizations, at rates provided for under section 625(d)(1) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended; (l) the purchase of right-hand-drive vehicles not to exceed $12,000 per vehicle; (m) for payment of unusual cost overruns incident to ship overhaul, maintenance, and repair for ships inducted into industrial fund activities or contracted for in prior fiscal years: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Congress promptly prior to obligation of any such payments; [and] (n) for payments from annual appropriations to industrial fund activities and/or under contract for changes in scope of ship overhaul, maintenance, and repair after expiration of such appropriations, for such work either inducted into the industrial fund activity or contracted for in that fiscal year; (o) for payments for depot maintenance contracts for twelve months beginning at any time during the fiscal year; and (p) for reimbursement for costs incurred for uranium enrichment for naval reactors.

SEC. 709. Appropriations for the Department of Defense for the current fiscal year shall be available for: (a) donations of not to exceed $25 to each prisoner upon each release from confinement in military or contract prison and to each person discharged for fraudulent enlistment; (b) authorized issues of articles to prisoners, applicants for enlistment and persons in military custody; (c) subsistence of selective service registrants called for induction, applicants for enlistment, prisoners, civilian employees as authorized by law, and supernumeraries when necessitated by emergent military circumstances; (d) reimbursement for subsistence of enlisted personnel while sick in hospitals; (e) expenses of prisoners confined in nonmilitary facilities; (f) military courts, boards, and commissions; (g) utility services for buildings erected at private cost, as authorized by law, and buildings on military reservations authorized by regulations to be used for welfare and recreational purposes; (h) exchange fees, and losses in the accounts of disbursing officers or agents in accordance with law; (i) expenses of Latin American cooperation as authorized for the Navy by law (10 U.S.C. 7208); [and] (j) expenses of apprehension and delivery of deserters, prisoners, and members absent without leave, including payment of rewards of not to exceed $75 in any one case; and (k) for carrying out section 10 of the Act of September 23, 1950, as amended.

SEC. 710. The Secretary of Defense and each purchasing and contracting agency of the Department of Defense shall assist American small and minority-owned business to participate equitably in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated under this Act by increasing, to an optimum level, the resources and number of personnel jointly assigned to promoting both small and minority business involvement in purchases financed with funds appropriated herein, and by making available or causing to be made available to such businesses, information, as far in advance as possible, with respect to purchases proposed to be financed with funds appropriated under this Act, and by assisting small and minority business concerns to participate equitably as subcontractors on contracts financed with funds appropriated herein, and by otherwise advocating and providing small and minority business opportunities to participate in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated by this Act.

SEC. 711. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 712. During the current fiscal year no funds available to agencies of the Department of Defense shall be used for the operation, acquisition, or construction of new facilities or equipment for new facilities in the continental limits of the United States for metal scrap bailing or shearing or for melting or sweating aluminum scrap unless the Secretary of Defense or an Assistant Secretary of Defense designated by him determines, with respect to each facility involved, that the operation of such facility is in the national interest.

SEC. 713. (a) During the current fiscal year, the President may exempt appropriations, funds, and contract authorizations, available for military functions under the Department of Defense, from the provisions of subsection (c) of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, whenever he deems such action to be necessary in the interest of national defense.

(b) Upon determination by the President that such action is necessary, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of an airborne alert as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of section 3732 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 11).

(c) Upon determination by the President that it is necessary to increase the number of military personnel on active duty subject to existing laws beyond the number for which funds are provided in this Act, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to provide for the cost of such increased military personnel, as an excepted expense in accordance with the provisions of section 3732 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 11).

(d) The Secretary of Defense shall immediately advise Congress of the exercise of any authority granted in this section, and shall report monthly on the estimated obligations incurred pursuant to subsections (b) and (c).

SEC. 714. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores of the agencies of the Department of Defense for the cost of purchase (including commercial transportation in the United States to the place of sale but excluding all transportation outside the United States) and maintenance of operating equipment and supplies, and for the actual or estimated cost of utilities as may be furnished by the Government and of shrinkage, spoilage, and pilferage of merchandise under the control of such commissary stores, except as authorized under regulations promulgated by the Secretaries of the military departments concerned with the approval of the Secretary of Defense, which regulations shall provide for reimbursement therefor to the appropriations concerned and, notwithstanding any other provision of law, shall provide for the adjustment of the sales prices in such commissary stores to the extent necessary to furnish sufficient gross revenues from sales of commissary stores to make such reimbursement: Provided, That under such regulations as may be issued pursuant to this section all utilities may be furnished without cost to the commissary stores outside the continental United States and in Alaska: Provided further, That no appropriation contained in this Act shall be available to pay any costs incurred by any commissary store or other entity acting on behalf of any commissary store in connection with obtaining the face value amount of manufacturer or vendor cents-off discount coupons unless all fees or moneys received for handling or processing such coupons are reimbursed to the appropriation charged with the incurred costs: Provided further, That no appropriation contained in this Act shall be available in connection with the operation of commissary stores within the continental United States unless the Secretary of Defense has certified that items normally procured from commissary stores are not otherwise available at a reasonable distance and a reasonable price in satisfactory quality and quantity to the military and civilian employees of the Department of Defense.

SEC. 715. No part of the appropriations in this Act shall be available for any expense of operating aircraft under the jurisdiction of the Armed Forces for the purpose of proficiency flying, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 1340.4, except in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Defense. Such regulations (1) may not require such flying except that required to maintain proficiency in anticipation of a member's assignment to combat operations and (2) such flying may not be permitted in cases of members who have been assigned to a course of instruction of ninety days or more.

SEC. 716. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for expense of transportation, packing, crating, temporary storage, drayage, and unpacking of household goods and personal effects in any one shipment having a new weight in excess of [thirteen thousand five hundred pounds] sixteen thousand pounds.

SEC. 717. Vessels under the jurisdiction of the Department of Commerce, the Department of the Army, the Department of the Air Force, or the Department of the Navy may be transferred or otherwise made available without reimbursement to any such agencies upon the request of the head of one agency and the approval of the agency having jurisdiction of the vessels concerned.

SEC. 718. Not more than 20 per centum of the appropriations in this Act which are limited for obligation during the current fiscal year shall be obligated during the last two months of the fiscal year: Provided, That this section shall not apply to obligations for support of active duty training of civilian components or summer camp training of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, or the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice, Army.

SEC. 719. During the current fiscal year the agencies of the Department of Defense may accept the use of real property from foreign countries for the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and may accept services furnished by foreign countries as reciprocal international courtesies or as services customarily made available without charge; and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas without specific appropriation therefor.

In addition to the foregoing, agencies of the Department of Defense may accept real property, services, and commodities from foreign countries for the use of the United States in accordance with mutual defense agreements or occupational arrangements and such agencies may use the same for the support of the United States forces in such areas, without specific appropriations therefor: Provided, [That the foregoing authority shall not be available for the conversion of heating plants from coal to oil at defense facilities in Europe: Provided further,] That within thirty days after the end of each quarter the Secretary of Defense shall render to Congress and to the Office of Management and Budget a full report of such property, supplies, and commodities received during such quarter.

SEC. 720. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for research and development may be used for the purposes of section 2353 of title 10, United States Code, and for purposes related to research and development for which expenditures are specifically authorized in other appropriations of the Service concerned.

SEC. 721. No appropriation contained in this Act shall be available for the payment of more than 75 per centum of charges of educational institutions for tuition or expenses of off-duty training of military personnel (except with regard to such charges of educational institutions (a) for enlisted personnel in the pay grade E-5 or higher with less than 14 years' service, for which payment of 90 per centum may be made or (b) for military personnel in off-duty high school completion programs, for which payment of 100 per centum may be made), nor for the payment of any part of tuition or expenses for such training for commissioned personnel who do not agree to remain on active duty for two years after completion of such training.

SEC. 722. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be expended for the support of any formally enrolled student in basic courses of the senior division, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, who has not executed a certificate of loyalty or loyalty oath in such form as shall be prescribed by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 723. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act, except for small purchases in amounts not exceeding $10,000, shall be available for the procurement of any article of food, clothing, cotton, woven silk or woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, synthetic fabric or coated synthetic fabric, or wool (whether in the form of fiber or yarn or contained in fabrics, materials, or manufactured articles), or specialty metals including stainless steel flatware, not grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions, except to the extent that the Secretary of the Department concerned shall determine that satisfactory quality and sufficient quantity of any articles of food or clothing or any form of cotton, woven silk and woven silk blends, spun silk yarn for cartridge cloth, synthetic fabric or coated synthetic fabric, wool, or specialty metals including stainless steel flatware, grown, reprocessed, reused, or produced in the United States or its possessions cannot be procured as and when needed at United States market prices and except procurements outside the United States in support of combat operations, procurements by vessels in foreign waters, and emergency procurements or procurements of perishable foods by establishments located outside the United States for the personnel attached thereto: Provided, That nothing herein shall preclude the procurement of specialty metals or chemical warfare protective clothing produced outside the United States or its possessions when such procurement is necessary to comply with agreements with foreign governments requiring the United States to purchase supplies from foreign sources for the purposes of offsetting sales made by the United States Government or United States firms under approved programs serving defense requirements or where such procurement is necessary in furtherance of the standardization and interoperability of equipment requirements within NATO so long as such agreements with foreign governments comply, where applicable, with the requirements of section 36 of the Arms Export Control Act and with section 814 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act, 1976: Provided further, That nothing herein shall preclude the procurement of foods manufactured or processed in the United States or its possessions: [Provided further, That no funds herein appropriated shall be used for the payment of a price differential on contracts hereafter made for the purpose of relieving economic dislocations other than certain contracts not involving fuel made on a test basis by the Defense Logistics Agency with a cumulative value not to exceed $5,000,000,000, as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense pursuant to existing laws and regulations as not to be inappropriate therefor by reason of national security considerations: Provided further, That the Secretary specifically determines that there is a reasonable expectation that offers will be obtained from a sufficient number of eligible concerns so that awards of such contracts will be made at a reasonable price and that no award shall be made for such contracts if the price differential exceeds 5 per centum:] Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used except that, so far as practicable, all contracts shall be awarded on a formally advertised competitive bid basis to the lowest responsible bidder.

SEC. 724. None of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or drycleaning facility in the United States, its territories or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 725. None of the funds appropriated by this Act may be obligated under section 206 of title 37, United States Code, for inactive duty training pay of a member of the National Guard or a member of a reserve component of a uniformed service for more than four periods of equivalent training, instruction, duty or appropriate duties that are performed instead of that member's regular period of instruction or regular period appropriate duty.

SEC. 726. Appropriations contained in this Act shall be available for the purchase of household furnishings, and automobiles from military and civilian personnel on duty outside the continental United States, for the purpose of resale at cost to incoming personnel, and for providing furnishings, without charge, in other than public quarters occupied by military or civilian personnel of the Department of Defense on duty outside the continental United States or in Alaska, upon a determination, under regulations approved by the Secretary of Defense, that such action is advantageous to the Government.

SEC. 727. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for pay of civilian employees shall be available for uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901; 80 Stat. 508).

SEC. 728. Funds provided in this Act for legislative liaison activities of the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense shall not exceed [$7,500,000] $9,100,000 for the current fiscal year: Provided, That this amount shall be available for apportionment to the Department of the Army, the Department of the Navy, the Department of the Air Force, and the Office of the Secretary of Defense as determined by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 729. Of the funds made available by this Act for the services of the Military Airlift Command, $100,000,000 shall be available only for procurement of commercial transportation service from carriers participating in the civil reserve air fleet program; and the Secretary of Defense shall utilize the services of such carriers which qualify as small businesses to the fullest extent found practicable: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense shall specify in such procurement, performance characteristics for aircraft to be used based upon modern aircraft operated by the civil reserve air fleet.

SEC. 730. During the current fiscal year, appropriations available to the Department of Defense for operation may be used for civilian clothing, not to exceed $40 in cost for enlisted personnel: (1) discharged for misconduct, unsuitability, or otherwise than honorably; (2) sentenced by a civil court to confinement in a civil prison or interned or discharged as an alien enemy; or (3) discharged prior to completion of recruit training under honorable conditions for dependency, hardship, minority, disability, or for the convenience of the Government.

SEC. 731. No part of the funds appropriated herein shall be available for paying the costs of advertising by any defense contractor, except advertising for which payment is made from profits, and such advertising shall not be considered a part of any defense contract cost. The prohibition contained in this section shall not apply with respect to advertising conducted by any such contractor, in compliance with regulations which shall be promulgated by the Secretary of Defense, solely for (1) the recruitment by the contractor of personnel required for the performance by the contractor of obligations under a defense contract, (2) the procurement of scarce items required by the contractor for the performance of a defense contract, or (3) the disposal of scrap or surplus materials acquired by the contractor in the performance of a defense contract.

SEC. 732. Funds appropriated in this Act for maintenance and repair of facilities and installations shall not be available for acquisition of new facilities, or alteration, expansion, extension, or addition of existing facilities, as defined in Department of Defense Directive 7040.2, dated January 18, 1961, in excess of $100,000: Provided, That the Secretary of Defense may amend or change the said directive during the current fiscal year, consistent with the purpose of this section.]

SEC. [733.] 732. During the current fiscal year, upon determination by the Secretary of Defense that such action is necessary in the national interest, he may, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, transfer not to exceed [$750,000,000] $1,000,000,000 of working capital funds of the Department of Defense or funds [made] available [in this Act] to the Department of Defense for military functions (except military construction) between such appropriations or funds or any subdivision thereof, to be merged with and to be available for the same purposes, and for the same time period, as the appropriation or fund to which transferred: Provided, That such authority to transfer may not be used unless for higher priority items, based on unforeseen military requirements, than those for which originally appropriated and in no case where the item for which funds are requested has been denied by Congress: Provided further, That the Secretary of Defense shall notify the Congress promptly of all transfers made pursuant to this authority.

SEC. [734.] 733. During the current fiscal year, cash balances in working capital funds of the Department of Defense established pursuant to section 2208 of title 10, United States Code, may be maintained in only such amounts as are necessary at any time for cash disbursements to be made from such funds: Provided, That transfers may be made between such funds in such amounts as may be determined by the Secretary of Defense, with the approval of the Office of Management and Budget, except that transfers between a stock fund account and an industrial fund account may not be made unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the Congress of the proposed transfer. Except in amounts equal to the amounts appropriated to working capital funds in this Act, no obligations may be made against a working capital fund to procure war reserve material inventory, unless the Secretary of Defense has notified the Congress prior to any such obligation.

SEC. 735. Not more than $206,100,000 of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be made available for payment to the Federal Employees Compensation Fund, as established by 5 U.S.C. 8147.]

SEC. [736.] 734. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, or a grant to any applicant who has been convicted by any court of general jurisdiction of any crime which involves the use of or the assistance to others in the use of force, trespass, or the seizure of property under control of an institution of higher education to prevent officials or students at such an institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies.

【SEC. 787. Congress remains concerned about the rapidly escalating cost of the chemical and biological warfare programs that have not yet been adequately justified by the Administration.

Congress directed the Administration as part of the Conference Report to the fiscal year 1981 supplemental appropriations bill (H. Rept. No. 97-124) to provide studies of:

- the long-range costs of the modernization program;
- a country-by-country report from our NATO allies with respect to their official views on that long-range program;
- an overview of the mission-oriented requirements for the various binary weapons; and
- an arms control impact study of the mission-oriented requirements.

This information has yet to be supplied to Congress. The Congress reaffirms the language of the Supplemental Conference Report as adopted earlier this year by Congress. Funding for binary weapons in this year's appropriation is not production or construction-oriented, but rather limited strictly to research and development. Therefore, these requirements do not apply to funding provided in this Act. The Congress views such requirements with the utmost concern and seriousness, and fully expects them to be fulfilled prior to any future request for production or construction-oriented binary weapons funding.

Congress also urges the Administration to resume as rapidly as possible negotiations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics to prohibit the development, production and stockpiling of chemical weapons. These negotiations are vital to enhance United States national security and achieve budgetary stability.】

【SEC. 788. After the date of enactment of this Act no sale of silver from the National Defense Stockpile under the authority of Public Law 97-35, or any other Act, shall occur until the President, not later than July 1, 1982, redetermines that the silver authorized for disposal is excess to the requirements of the stockpile, taking into consideration such factors as the President considers relevant, including the following factors:

(1) The findings and recommendations of the report by the General Accounting Office on the sale of silver from the National Defense Stockpile to be completed on or before January 1, 1982.

(2) The demand for silver to meet defense, essential civilian, basic industrial, and monetary requirements, taking into account the most recent "Defense Guidance" used by the Department of Defense in programming general purpose conventional forces as well as historical monetary uses of silver as a medium of payment to foreign workers and troops during times of national emergency.

(3) The projected magnitude of the increase in production as well as the accuracy and reliability of the data used in projecting increases in both domestic and reliable foreign production capacity, taking into account the lead times associated with expanding capacity and obtaining such requirements as the necessary labor, equipment, transportation and energy.

(4) The current reliability of supplies from foreign sources and the economic and security implications resulting from our dependence on these sources of supply in times of national emergency taking into account the probability of a supply disruption or sharp price increases and its impact on the United States economy or a national priority such as defense.

(5) The need for silver in the stockpile during the next ten year period taking into account long-term supply and demand projections of the Bureau of Mines, United States Department of the Interior.

Should the President taking into consideration the factors described above find the silver to be in excess to stockpile needs, he shall report to the Committees on Armed Services of the Senate and House of Representatives that he has made such a determination, and shall include a detailed discussion and analysis of the factors set forth above, and other relevant factors, including alternative methods of disposal for such silver, together with his recommended method of disposal. No action shall be taken to dispose of silver from the National Defense Stockpile, prior to the approval by Congress of the recommended method of disposal.】

【SEC. 789. So far as may be practicable Indian labor shall be employed, and purchases of the products of Indian industry may be made in open market in the discretion of the Secretary of Defense.】

【SEC. 790. Of the funds appropriated by this Act for strategic programs, the Secretary of Defense shall provide funds for the Advanced Technology Bomber program at a level at least equal to the amount provided by the committee of conference on this Act in order to maintain priority emphasis on this program.】

【SEC. 791. It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) A larger and stronger American Navy is needed as an essential ingredient of our Armed Forces, in order to fulfill its basic missions of (A) protecting the sea lanes to preserve the safety of the free world's commerce, (B) assuring continued access to raw materials essential to the well-being of the free world, (C) enhancing our capacity to project effective American forces into regions of the world where the vital interests of the United States must be protected, (D) engaging the Navy of the Soviet Union or any other potential adversary successfully, (E) continuing to serve as a viable leg of our strategic triad, and (F) providing visible evidence of American diplomatic, economic and military commitments throughout the world.

(2) In order to conduct the numerous and growing missions of the modern American Navy, a goal of a naval inventory of approximately six hundred active ships of various types by the end of the century at the latest, is highly desirable, the exact figure to be flexible to accommodate new designs as the specific details of our naval missions evolve to meet various contingencies.

(3) The Secretary of Defense comply with section 808 of Public Law 94-106, the Department of Defense Appropriation Authorization Act of 1976, in order that the Congress may more properly appropriate the funds necessary to reach a six hundred-ship goal at least by the end of the present century.】

SEC. 764. Funds may be obligated pursuant to section 51(c)(2) of the Arms Export Control Act for the purposes of the Special Defense Acquisition Fund during the current fiscal year to the extent credited to such Fund.

SEC. 765. None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available to pay a person whose pay is determined pursuant to section 903 of title 20, United States Code (Section 5 of Public Law 86-91, as amended), any increase in basic compensation as a result of adjustments pursuant to section 903(c) of title 20, United States Code, in excess of a percentage of the amount such person was entitled to receive for the school year 1981-1982, which is the same percentage as the overall average percentage increase in the General Schedule rates of basic pay which become effective during the current fiscal year under section 5305 of title 5, United States Code.

SEC. 766. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense by this or any other Act shall be available to pay a person whose pay is determined pursuant to section 903 of title 20, United States Code (Section 5 of Public Law 86-91, as amended), any increase in pay in excess of a percentage of the amount such person was entitled to receive for the months of August and September 1982 as a result of adjustments in pay made thereafter, which is the same percentage as the overall average percentage increase in the General Schedule rates of basic pay which become effective during the current fiscal year under section 5305 of title 5, United States Code. (Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1982.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

SEC. 101. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction in prior years are hereby made available for construction authorized for each such department by the authorizations enacted into law during the [first] second session of the Ninety-seventh Congress.

SEC. 102. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for payments under a cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contract for work, where cost estimates exceed $25,000, to be performed within the United States, except Alaska, without the specific approval in writing of the Secretary of Defense setting forth the reasons therefor.

SEC. 103. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be expended for additional costs involved in expediting construction unless the Secretary of Defense certifies such costs to be necessary to protect the national interest and establishes a reasonable completion date for each project, taking into consideration the urgency of the requirement, the type and location of the project, the climatic and seasonal conditions affecting the construction, and the application of economical construction practices.

SEC. 104. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used for the construction, replacement, or reactivation of any bakery, laundry, or drycleaning facility in the United States, its territories, or possessions, as to which the Secretary of Defense does not certify, in writing, giving his reasons therefor, that the services to be furnished by such facilities are not obtainable from commercial sources at reasonable rates.

SEC. 105. Funds herein appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction shall be available for hire of passenger motor vehicles.

SEC. 106. Funds appropriated to the Department of Defense for construction may be used for advances to the Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, for the construction of access roads as authorized by section 210 of title 23, United States Code, when projects authorized therein are certified as important to the national defense by the Secretary of Defense.

SEC. 107. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to begin construction of new bases inside the continental United States for which specific appropriations have not been made.

SEC. 108. No part of the funds provided in this Act shall be used for purchase of land or land easements in excess of 100 per centum of the value as determined by the Corps of Engineers or the Naval Facilities Engineering Command, except: (a) where there is a determination of value by a Federal court, or (b) purchases negotiated by the Attorney General or his designee, or (c) where the estimated value is less than $25,000, or (d) as otherwise determined by the Secretary of Defense to be in the public interest.

[SEC. 109. None of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to make payments under contracts for any project in a foreign country unless the Secretary of Defense or his designee, after consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury or his designee, certifies to the Congress that the use, by purchase from the Treasury, of currencies of such country acquired pursuant to law is not feasible for the purpose, stating the reason therefor.]

SEC. [110] 109. None of the funds appropriated in this Act shall be used to (1) acquire land, (2) provide for site preparation, or (3) install utilities for any family housing, except housing for which funds have been made available in annual military construction appropriation Acts.

[SEC. 111. None of the funds appropriated in this Act for minor construction may be used to transfer or relocate any activity from one base or installation to another, without prior notification to the Committee on Appropriations.]

[SEC. 112. None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available under this Act shall be obligated or expended in connection with any base realignment or closure activity, until all terms, conditions and requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act have been complied with, with respect to each such activity.]

[SEC. 113. No part of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used for the procurement of steel for any construction project or activity for which American steel producers, fabricators, and manufacturers have been denied the opportunity to compete for such steel procurement.]

SEC. [114] 110. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense for military construction during the current fiscal year may be obligated for projects under the authority of section 402 of the Military Construction Authorization Act, [1981] 1982, or similar provisions in prior-year military construction authorization Acts until [twenty-one days have passed after] the Secretary of Defense has notified the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and the House of Representatives of the purpose and estimated cost of construction for which these funds are to be used under such authorities.

SEC. [115] 111. No part of the funds appropriated in this Act for dredging in the Indian Ocean may be used for the performance of the work by foreign contractors: Provided, That the low responsive bid of a United States contractor does not exceed the lowest responsive bid of a foreign contractor by greater than 20 per centum.

[SEC. 116. During the current fiscal year none of the funds available to the Department of Defense for military construction or family housing shall be available to furnish or install solar energy systems in new facilities (including family housing) unless such systems can be shown to be cost effective using the sum of all capital and operating expenses associated with the energy system of the building involved over the expected life of such system or during a period of twenty-five years, whichever is shorter, and using marginal fuel costs as determined by the Secretary of Defense and at a discount rate of 7 per centum per year.]

SEC. [117] 112. No part of the funds appropriated in this Act may be obligated for design of any site-specific facilities for the MX missile system until all terms, conditions, and requirements of the National Environmental Policy Act (42 U.S.C. 4332) are met.

[SEC. 118. None of the funds available to the Department of Defense for military construction or family housing during the current fiscal year may be used to pay real property taxes in any foreign nation.]

SEC. [119] 113. No part of the funds appropriated in this Act may be used to pay the compensation of an officer of the Government of the United States or to reimburse a contractor for the employment of a person for work in the continental United States by any such person if such person is an alien who has not been lawfully admitted to the United States.

SEC. [120] 114. The expenditure of any appropriation under this Act for any consulting service through procurement contract, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 3109, shall be limited to those contracts where such expenditures are a matter of public record and available for public inspection, except where otherwise provided under existing law, or under existing Executive order issued pursuant to existing law.

SEC. [121] 115. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any funds appropriated to a military department or defense agency for the construction of military projects may be obligated for a military construction project or contract, or for any portion of such a project or contract, at any time before the end of the fourth fiscal year after the fiscal year for which funds for such project were appropriated if the funds obligated for such project (1) are obligated from funds available for military construction projects, and (2) do not exceed the amount appropriated for such projects, plus any amount by which the cost of such project is increased pursuant to law.

[SEC. 122. It is the sense of the Congress that the administration should call on the pertinent member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and on Japan to meet or exceed their pledges for at least a 3 per centum real increase in defense spending in furtherance of increased unity, equitable sharing of our common defense burden, and international stability.]

SEC. 116. Unexpended balances in the Family Housing Management Account established pursuant to section 501(a) of Public Law 87-554 shall be transferred to the appropriations for Family Housing provided in this Act, as determined by the Secretary of Defense, based on the purposes for which originally appropriated, and shall remain available for obligation for the same period as such funds were available before such transfer is made, except for funds available for debt payment, which shall remain available until September 30, 1983. (Military Construction Appropriation Act, 1982.)

Funds are requested to continue construction and related activity for water resource development projects having navigation, flood control, water supply, hydroelectric, and other attendant benefits to the Nation. Work will continue on about 173 projects. The reserve for contingencies includes an amount for initiation of construction on new Corps water resources projects. After consultation with local project sponsors, the administration will request appropriation of funds to initiate construction of new water resource projects that meet the administration's criteria for non-Federal financing and cost sharing and are economically and environmentally sound. It should be noted that starting in 1982, advance engineering and design was budgeted under the General Investigation Appropriation. Funds costed in 1982 are carryover funds.

This activity provides for flood emergency preparation, flood fighting and rescue operations, and repair of flood control and Federal hurricane or shore protection works. It also provides for emergency supplies of clean drinking water where the source has been contaminated and, in drought distressed areas, provision of adequate supplies of water for human and livestock consumption. Funds to finance operations in the budget year will be made available from the Operation and Maintenance, General appropriation. In the event of a flood or coastal emergency, funds will be requested.

The fund provides for the acquisition, operation, and maintenance of plant and equipment used in civil works functions, for temporary financing of services chargeable to civil appropriations, and for furnishing facilities and services for military functions of the Department of the Army, other governmental agencies and private persons (33 U.S.C. 576).

Financial condition.—Capital (Government equity) of the fund amounted to $578.6 million on September 30, 1981. The estimated limitation on the total accrued expenditure of the capital investment program for 1983 is $71.0 million. Capital was increased by net earnings of $30.3 million in 1981. Increases are principally due to earnings reserved for plant replacement which are wholly reinvested in assets. Capital of the fund is expected to reach $611.8 million at the end of 1982 and $644.0 million at the end of 1983.

Consolidated summary of personnel.—The revolving fund is used to initially finance all payrolls of the Corps of Engineers—Civil.

The table which follows shows the distribution of personnel and salary costs to appropriations of the Corps of Engineers and to other accounts:

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is charged with the administration and enforcement of laws concerning dangerous, misbranded, and adulterated foods, drugs, human biologics, medical devices, cosmetics, and manmade sources of radiation.

1. Foods.—FDA is responsible for insuring the safety and quality of a major segment of the Nation's food supply and the safety of the Nation's cosmetic supply. FDA reviews industry petitions and publishes tolerances for the safe use of food additives, conducts research, develops analytical methods to detect and prevent food and cosmetic adulteration, sets standards for classes of food and defines good manufacturing and sanitary practices. To insure cooperation and compliance with the foregoing, FDA inspects food and cosmetic processing plants and marketing establishments, analyzes collected samples to verify that these products are safe and properly labeled and—when necessary—takes regulatory action to obtain compliance with the law.

2. Drugs and devices.—FDA is charged with insuring that human and animal drugs, human biologics, and medical devices are safe, effective, and properly labeled. FDA reviews research and manufacturing data to support the safety and efficacy of these products prior to marketing, evaluates literature and experience reports submitted by industry and the medical profession, and conducts research. FDA also inspects manufacturing firms, reviews labeling, analyzes samples, and—when necessary—takes regulatory action to enforce the legal requirements.

3. Radiological products.—FDA is responsible for eliminating unnecessary exposure to electronic product radiation through research, surveillance, and performance standards.

4. National Center for Toxicological Research.—FDA conducts research programs to study the biological effects of potentially toxic chemical substances found in man's environment.

5. Program management.—This activity includes FDA's executive and administrative functions.

6. Public Health Service termination expenses.—This activity supports costs associated with termination or reduction of Public Health Service programs. The request for 1983 includes the costs of terminating antibiotic certification in 1983 (see revolving fund for certification) as well as reductions of certain program functions.

The buildings and facilities appropriation provides funds for projects related to the repair, alteration, and improvement of all buildings and facilities of FDA. In addition, the appropriation for 1981 included funding to initiate construction of new FDA Headquarters laboratories, which are essential for the effective conduct of research to support regulatory decisions.

FDA certifies batches of antibiotics, insulin, and color additives for use in foods, drugs, and cosmetics. It also lists color additives for use in foods, drugs, and cosmetics (21 U.S.C. 346a, 356, 357, 376). These services are financed wholly by fees paid by the industries affected.

Antibiotics certification services are to be discontinued in 1983. Termination costs for the employees to be separated are included in FDA's salaries and expenses request for 1983.
