The Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations.

The Administrator of National Banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed, onsite examinations, the latter conducted by a staff of approximately 2,100 national bank examiners. At the present time there are approximately 4,400 national banks with more than 18,000 operating branches and total assets of $1,211 billion.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a na-

The Administration has proposed to provide the Secretary of the Treasury the authority to modernize the savings bonds program. The proposal is to establish a new interest rate for savings bonds held at least 5 years. The rate would be 85% of the average market yield on 5-year Treasury securities during the holding period. The new rate also will apply to outstanding bonds if held another 5 years.

This appropriation finances salaries and related costs associated with administering the programs within the Environmental Protection Agency. It incorporates all costs exclusive of grant programs, program-specific contractual agreements, and hazardous substance response actions.

In addition to providing salary and expense funds for EPA's regulatory, research, and enforcement programs, this account funds all expenses for a variety of general administrative and management activities. These activities include the Office of the Administrator; Office of Legal Counsel and Enforcement; Office of Policy and Resource Management; Office of Inspector General; and administrative support in such areas as fiscal and personnel management, contracting and procurement, information system management, and office services. Additionally, certain overall agency costs such as payments for space rental, utilities, communications, and postal services are budgeted under this activity.

Regional management and administration activities include salaries and related expenditures for the regional administrators and their immediate staffs who are responsible for the direction and performance of the regional offices. This activity includes personnel management and general administrative services as well as the field offices' portion of overall costs such as payments for space rental, utilities, communications, and postal services.

Narratives describing EPA's research, regulatory, and enforcement programs are included under the Research and development, and Abatement, control and compliance accounts even though the salaries and expenses for those programs are included in this account.

This appropriation finances research and development through contracts, grants, and intergovernmental agreements. These activities provide the scientific basis for EPA's regulatory actions.

1. Air.—Activities are designed to meet the scientific and technical needs of the Federal and State regulatory and enforcement activities by providing credible scientific data, measurement methodologies, models, and assessments of cost-effective control technologies. This research will provide the data base needed to review the national ambient air quality standards, and establish new source performance standards, emission standards for hazardous air, and mobile source pollutants.

2. Water quality.—Activities provide research support to the construction grants program, including the review and evaluation of innovative and alternative technologies. Research efforts in the industrial wastewater area promote practicable, standardized, least-cost methods for monitoring industrial effluents in support of the Agency's permitting program. Research activities in water quality management include health effects of priority pollutants, development of guidelines to establish on-site water quality standards, and investigations of the impact of various wastes dumped into the ocean.

3. Drinking water.—Activities provide for the evaluation of the health and environmental effects of drinking water contaminants in support of the development and revision of drinking water standards emphasizing research on organic contaminants. In addition, research is performed on treatment methods and management practices for drinking water systems. Research continues to support the Agency's ground water protection efforts.

4. Hazardous waste.—Activities support the effective implementation of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act regulations. Specific research activities include providing hazardous waste measurement methods and protocols, assessing the risk to human health and the environment from exposure to hazardous wastes, and developing the necessary data to establish cost-effective treatment, storage and disposal standards and regulations.

5. Pesticides.—Activities provide scientific data to support the pesticides program by means of health and environmental exposure studies, the development of exposure protocols, and the quality assurance program.

6. Radiation.—Activities in this area provide scientific information on the health effects of nonionizing radiation.

7. Interdisciplinary.—Activities provide support for a long-term, exploratory research program. This includes the identification and assessment of long-term and future environmental trends and the development of methods to determine the economic benefits of pollution control measures.

8. Toxic substances.—Activities support the development of scientific and technological methods to understand, predict and manage the entry and movement of pollutants into the environment and to determine the effects of these pollutants on both human health and nonhuman organisms and ecosystems. These methods assess how hazardous a pollutant will or will not be in the environment at various levels of concentration and whether the pollutant will persist or be diffused in the environment.

9. Energy.—Activities support the program objectives of developing a sound technical data base associated with the conversion and utilization of energy resources in an environmentally safe manner. Particular emphasis is placed on understanding and assessing the causes and effects of acid rain and identifying cost-effective methods for mitigating and controlling acid rain; assessing the health, environmental and emission aspects from the utilization of synthetic fuels; and establishing the necessary data bases to permit the potential development by industry of cost-effective control technologies, as well as Agency evaluation of these technologies during the permitting process.

This appropriation includes funds for contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements for pollution abatement, control, and compliance activities.

1. Air quality.—The air program performs activities related to the development and implementation of air pollution control strategies and achievement of air quality standards. These objectives are met in two basic ways: (1) Provision of policy guidance and technical assistance to State and local governments; and (2) direct Federal action where State or local governments are unable to meet the requirements of Federal law. Emphasis in 1983 will be on alternative approaches to regulations and increased State participation as a way of attaining air quality objectives.

The mobile source enforcement program in 1983 will focus on in-use compliance program development; continue efforts to insure that new vehicles meet emission standards at the time of sale, and continue a program to prevent tampering with pollution control devices and improper use of leaded gasoline.

In 1983, the stationary source enforcement program will focus on major source violators in non-attainment areas. Work will also include insuring continuous compliance and building the enforcement capabilities of State and local programs.

Major accomplishments of the air program projected for 1983 as compared to 1981 and 1982 are as follows:

2. Water quality.—The water quality regulatory program encompasses the following major activities: (1) completing the water pollution discharge standards for industries; (2) managing the municipal wastewater facilities construction grants program; (3) assisting State and local agencies in developing and implementing water management programs; (4) improving State/EPA monitoring programs; and (5) responding to major oil spills.

The purpose of the water quality enforcement program is to assure compliance with water pollution regulations. In 1983, the industrial permit issuance program will emphasize reissuance of wastewater permits to incorporate toxic limitations. Major accomplishments projected for 1983 as compared to 1981 and 1982 are as follows:

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate

Prevention actions (SPCC), inspections, and plan review	2,005	2,248	1,395

3. Drinking Water.—The safe drinking water program protects the Nation's drinking water supplies and sources from water borne contaminants. This involves: (1) setting national drinking water standards that protect human health; (2) implementing regulations that ensure compliance with these standards; (3) regulating underground injections that may affect drinking water sources and developing other ground water protection provisions; and (4) assisting States in implementing or directly implementing the above regulatory programs. In 1983 the regulatory program will emphasize the development of comprehensive revised primary drinking water standards and full nationwide implementation of the underground injection control program.

The drinking water enforcement program is responsible for initiating enforcement actions to insure compliance with the regulations and for issuing underground injection control permits. Principal accomplishments planned for 1983 as compared to 1981 and 1982 are:

Number of States or other jurisdictions assuming primary enforcement responsibility for:
Public water systems program	41	50	50
Underground injection control program	0	40	40
Amount of financial assistance available to State agencies (in millions of dollars):
Public water systems program	29.5	29.5	23.6
Underground injection control program	7.7	6.6	5.5

4. Hazardous waste.—The hazardous waste regulatory program has as its basic goals the assurance that all hazardous wastes are managed in a manner that will protect public health and the environment. The enabling act authorizes a national program of hazardous waste regulation and enforcement. Hazardous waste research and financial assistance to support State implementation of these programs will be underway in 1983. The major emphasis of the program will be upon delegating program authority to the States and implementing hazardous waste regulations, including facility site permitting. State assumption of hazardous waste authorities will be encouraged through Federal financial assistance, regulations, and guidance. Other accomplishments of the program are:

Total financial assistance.....	41.0	41.7	35.1

5. Pesticides.—EPA is charged with the statutory responsibility of regulating pesticides which pose unreasonable adverse effects on human health or the environment. Major implementing activities include: (1) developing and processing registration standards; (2) classifying pesticide products for general or restricted use; and (3) establishing a minimum level of pesticides allowed on food and feed commodities.

The pesticides enforcement program is responsible for assuring compliance with pesticides registration regulations, administering an enforcement grant program and managing a State pesticides applicator certification and training program. In 1983, the program reflects a shift of more responsibility to the States.

Major accomplishments for the pesticides program projected for 1983 as compared to 1981 and 1982 are:

6. Radiation.—The radiation program endeavors to eliminate adverse health and environmental effects by limiting exposure to radiation. Major activities include development and promulgation of standards, regulations and guidelines to reduce exposure from ionizing and non-ionizing radiation sources.

In 1983, the program will concentrate its regulatory efforts on emission standards for uranium mill tailings, airborne radionuclides, and high and low level wastes, as well as Federal guidance on occupation exposures and non-ionizing radiation. Other activities will include environmental monitoring of radiation, maintaining a full emergency response capability and participation in the review and testing of radiological emergency response plans.

7. Noise.—Activity levels in 1983 are solely due to the spend-out of prior year obligations.

8. Interdisciplinary.—The interdisciplinary program is composed of several activities which cut across media programs. This activity involves: (1) Environmental Impact Statements (EIS) of other Federal agencies are reviewed to ensure that they do not adversely affect the quality of the environment, and (2) an accelerated review and permitting program to aid the expedited development of high priority industrial projects.

9. Toxic substances.—The toxic substances program is responsible for protecting human health and the environment from unreasonable risks posed by chemical substances. In 1983 the program will place a balanced emphasis on evaluation and control of new and existing chemicals. The premanufacture review program is a high priority, as is the test rule development process. Nonregulatory approaches to obtain compliance will be used where appropriate.

The toxic substances enforcement program will focus on conducting compliance monitoring inspections at facilities subject to rules and regulations issued under the Toxic Substances Control Act.

Major accomplishment for the toxic substances program projected for 1983 as compared to 1982 and 1981 are as follows:

This appropriation covers grants made to local public agencies for construction of municipal wastewater treatment facilities in order to assist States and localities in attaining and maintaining water quality standards.

The 1983 budget requests $2,400 million for the municipal wastewater facilities construction grants program. All of these funds will be obligated in 1983.

This program provides 75% Federal financial assistance to municipal, intermunicipal, State, and interstate agencies to construct wastewater treatment and appurtenant facilities to comply with effluent standards required by the Clean Water Act of 1977. Major accomplishments in 1983 as compared to 1981 and 1982 are:

Amount of net obligations (in millions of dollars)....	$3,612	$1,010	$1,700

Much of the workload in 1983 will be managed by the Corps of Engineers working under an interagency agreement with the Environmental Protection Agency and by State agencies that agree to manage the program.

Note.—Major accomplishments listed for 1983 assume a zero appropriation request for 1982, pending program reforms. Since Congress passed, and the President signed, reform legislation on December 29, 1981, the administration will submit a $2,400 million supplement.

tal appropriation request. (See Part III for additional information.) Projected accomplishments resulting from the supplemental appropriation are not yet available.

The appropriation provides funds for the implementation of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980. This Act provides authority for responding to and cleaning up hazardous substance emergencies and uncontrolled waste sites.

There are four basic components to the Superfund program: Hazardous Substance Response Actions; Enforcement; Research and Development; and, Management and Support. These components will be integrated and coordinated to ensure the wisest use of Fund money in order to achieve the greatest possible cleanup over the 5 years of the program.

Financial responsibility for the program will be shared by the Federal and State governments as well as industry. The trust fund established by the Act is financed mainly by industrial taxes with some contribution from the general funds. EPA will allocate funds from its appropriation to other Federal agencies to carry out the act.

This appropriation provides for the following research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration:

1. Space transportation systems (STS).—The objectives of this activity are focused on development of the reusable Space Shuttle vehicle and establishment of a fleet of orbiters to meet the needs of the United States and other users of space. The elements of the program are described below along with work to be performed during 1983.

(a) Space Shuttle.—The first reusable Earth-to-orbit vehicle is the key element in the Space Transportation System designed to support scientific exploration, national security, research and technology, and the launch of commercial satellites. The Shuttle will have unique capabilities not available with today's launch vehicles, including retrieval of satellites, experiments, and equipment for reuse; maintenance and repair in orbit; and reuse of space laboratories. The Shuttle will increase the versatility and productivity of space operations for all users and increase benefits from activities in space.

In 1981, the Shuttle successfully completed two orbital flight tests of the four scheduled in the development program. The Shuttle's actual flight performance fulfilled the hopes and expectations of its designers in spite of minor technical problems which are to be expected during the developmental phase, the overall system worked extraordinarily well. The third and fourth flights are currently planned for March and July of 1982, and will complete the orbital flight test series. The first operational flight is planned for the fall of 1982.

The fabrication of the second, third, and fourth orbiters—Challenger, Discovery, and Atlantis—is underway. In mid-1982, Challenger will be completed and delivered to the Kennedy Space Center. Discovery and Atlantis will be delivered in late 1983 and in the first half of 1985, respectively. In 1983, the principal activities to be conducted in addition to production of the flight orbiters are: testing of the main engine to certify its capability to operate at full power level; continuing procurement of the initial orbiter flight spares and crew equipment; installation of manufacturing tools for the external tank and solid rocket booster which will enhance their production rate capability; and continuing analyses of flight performance data from operational flights to improve understanding of the vehicle dynamics. In addition, work will continue on the development of a new structural case for the solid rocket motor made of composite materials; the filament-wound case solid rocket booster will be substantially lighter than the present steel case, and accordingly enable additional payload to be carried.

(b) Space flight operations.—The objective is to facilitate the utilization of STS capabilities and ultimately to reduce the cost of space operations. Principal areas of activity include the NASA-development efforts, other than the Space Shuttle, related to the establishment of an STS operations capability; development, test, and mission support at NASA centers; space transportation system operations; and advanced programs study and evaluation efforts. The 1983 program continues these support efforts on a plan consistent with the Shuttle development and STS operations.

The STS operations capability development activities are required for the transition to STS operations and to capitalize on the capabilities provided by this system. Principal areas of activity include NASA efforts related to the Spacelab, and upper stages to place satellites in higher altitude orbits; standard, reusable ground and flight payload support equipment; reconfiguration of the Mission Control Center; and payload and operations support.

The Spacelab, a joint effort with the European Space Agency (ESA), will be carried in the cargo bay of the Shuttle orbiter and will provide users with a multipurpose, reusable space laboratory. ESA is funding the development, production, and delivery of the first Spacelab and associated ground support equipment; NASA is providing for development of auxiliary flight and ground support equipment and procurement of additional sets of flight hardware and ground support equipment necessary to meet its mission requirements. Also included is funding to continue procurement of a second Spacelab from ESA. Also continuing is the development, procurement, and integration of upper stages required for use with the Shuttle for planetary missions and for Earth orbital missions requiring altitudes beyond the basic Shuttle capability, for example, geosynchronous orbits.

In 1983, STS operations efforts will continue on procurement, assembly, and checkout of the solid rocket booster, external tank, the upper stages hardware, as well as standardized flight plans, avionics software, flight control systems, and crew procedures. The preparations in the preflight and direct mission support elements at Kennedy Space Center, Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, and Marshall Space Flight Center, supporting the flight tests, payload support, and multimission capability will continue. Other efforts will focus on technical and programmatic data for the definition and evaluation of potential future space missions and systems.

The first demonstration of the capability of the Space Shuttle to rendezvous with and repair spacecraft in orbit is planned for late 1983 with the repair of the Solar Maximum Mission spacecraft now in orbit.

(c) Expendable launch vehicle development.—This effort provides engineering, reliability, and launch support services until the transition to STS operations is completed.

2. Scientific investigations in space.—This activity conducts systematic study of the Earth and its space environment.

(a) Physics and astronomy.—Research is being conducted to investigate the Earth's environment, the Sun and the interplanetary medium, as well as the interrelationships among these areas and the processes that control them. Past results include discovery of the Earth's radiation belts and knowledge of phenomena such as pulsars, quasars, and black holes.

Highlights of 1981 included the successful launches of the Solar Mesosphere Explorer and the Dynamics Explorer, to carry out research on the relationship of solar ultraviolet flux to processes in the upper atmosphere including the production of ozone; and to investigate the strong interactive processes of the plasmas in the Earth's ionosphere, upper atmosphere and plasmasphere. In 1982, development work is continuing on U.S. experiments to be flown on the International Solar Polar Mission being developed by the Europeans, to explore the heliosphere, the space around the Sun, and to obtain observations of the Sun (launch in 1986).

Work is continuing on the Space Telescope, an advanced instrument which will allow research at the forefront of optical and ultraviolet astronomy for decades. Work is also continuing on the Gamma Ray Observatory (GRO) mission planned for launch in 1988. The GRO will provide the highest sensitivity study of the sky conducted in the gamma ray spectral region.

Development and integration efforts also continue for payloads to be flown on a Shuttle flight test, and for Spacelab 1 and 2 flights planned for launch in 1983 and 1984, respectively. Development activities for follow-on Spacelab payloads are also underway. Several multiuser payloads to investigate phenomena in the various disciplines are now being defined for future Spacelab missions. Plans for 1983 include the Spacelab payloads for Physics and Astronomy, and the mission management requirements for all agency payloads. Work is also continuing on several Explorer projects to continue research thrusts started in prior years.

(b) Planetary exploration.—This activity increases scientific knowledge about the origin and evolution of our solar system and of life processes, and applies the results to a better understanding of the Earth.

The planetary programs initiated in prior years will be continued; however, the Pioneer spacecraft operations and data analysis activities will be terminated by the end of September 1982 in view of the priority of science data received relative to other flight projects. Only those operations necessary to the survival of the spacecraft will be performed.

The first Voyager spacecraft, launched in 1977, successfully encountered Saturn in November 1980. The second Voyager encountered Saturn in August of 1981 and is now continuing on to Uranus for an encounter in 1986. Work is continuing on the Galileo mission to Jupiter; and the spacecraft is composed of two segments—an orbiter and an atmospheric entry probe. The Galileo orbiter and probe will be launched in 1985 on an Inertial Upper Stage and will achieve Jupiter orbit capture in 1989 to carry out long-term studies of the giant planet, its satellites, and its magnetosphere. The probe will enter the upper atmosphere of Jupiter.

Studies will be continued during 1983 on future candidate missions. Analysis of data from past planetary missions will also continue.

(c) Life sciences.—This program will continue to provide for the research and technology necessary to meet the goals of ensuring human health, safety, well being, and effective performance in space flight; utilizing space environment to advance knowledge and applications in Earth medicine and biology; and understanding the origin and distribution of life in the universe.

3. Space and terrestrial applications.—This program supports range research and selected technology development activities to encourage practical application of space technologies on Earth.

(a) Space applications.—This program category conducts coordinated and logically phased research and development activities to relate space technology to Earth benefits. The 1983 program provides for continued progress in the areas of materials processing in space, remote sensing, and communications. The activities involve active and increasing participation and funding by current and future users of these capabilities, within the Government, industry, and the academic community.

The Materials Processing in Space program will continue to support fundamental research using the unique environment of space to enhance our basic knowledge of materials processing and to determine if space techniques can be used to control the composition and shape of materials. The research program includes high temperature heat pipes, electrostatic positioning methods, laser holography, acoustic positioning systems, and furnaces for directional solidification with high temperature gradients.

In communications, the 1983 program includes continued progress on the development of the search and rescue mission, further definition of an applications data service, and continuation of advanced communications research activities.

In remote sensing, utilization of data from satellite observations has resulted in an increase in our understanding of the Earth's resources and environment, and in our ability to forecast change. Recent achievements include the development and testing of techniques to predict severe storms; and use of SEASAT satellite experiments to measure ocean surface winds, sea state, major ocean currents, ocean circulation patterns, and sea ice conditions.

A wide range of similar activities will be continued during 1982 and 1983. Mobile laser units are being deployed in the United States, Australia and the Pacific to form a global network for observation of tectonic plate motion. Ongoing efforts in the remote sensing area include development of the Landsat-D system to advance the technology in Earth resources remote sensing; the Earth radiation budget experiment to acquire valuable data for climate studies, and AgRISTARS, an interagency project directly addressing high priority information needs of the Department of Agriculture. NASA's R. & D. activities in the area of land remote sensing will continue with new emphasis on linear array technology. Also included in the 1983 program is the development of upper atmospheric research instruments. This group of instruments will provide the capability to obtain a global data set for studying the interaction between chemistry, radiation, and dynamics of the upper atmosphere.

(b) Technology utilization.—This program is designed to facilitate the transfer of NASA technology to the nonaerospace industry, as well as State and local governments. During 1983, NASA will continue its efforts to help foster widespread dissemination of new technology developed by NASA.

4. Space research and technology.—The objective is to conduct the activities necessary to increase the efficiency and effectiveness of space systems and operations. The 1983 program provides for continuation of the research and technology base activities necessary for advances in the key discipline areas, and also continued progress in ongoing systems technology and experimental efforts.

5. Aeronautical research and technology.—The goal is to help preserve and strengthen long-term U.S. technological strength in civil and military aviation. Consistent with this goal, emphasis will be provided in 1983 on fundamental research in all basic aeronautical disciplines and the maintenance of related research facilities.

Activities will continue to provide a strong research and technology base in the technology disciplines of aerodynamics, propulsion, avionics, and flight controls, human-vehicle interaction, materials, and structures; and to conduct generic technology activities relevant to the major classes of aeronautical vehicles such as conventional take-off and landing aircraft, rotorcraft, and high performance aircraft.

In 1983, major systems technology work will continue only in low speed and high speed systems technology in support of the Nation's military aircraft; but systems technology projects having relatively near-term commercial applications would be curtailed.

6. Energy technology.—For 1982 and 1983, this program provides reimbursable support to Government agencies engaged in national energy programs.

7. Supporting activity.—This program provides tracking and data acquisition support to the entire NASA flight program, including automated missions, manned missions, sounding rockets, and aerodynamic test flights. Lease payments for the new Tracking and Data Relay Satellite System are planned to begin in 1983.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation benefits to veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Requirements for 1983 are estimated to be $9,374,900,000 a decrease of $229 million under 1982, and reflects the enactment of certain legislative initiatives.

Compensation is payable as either a disability benefit or a survivorship benefit. Criteria for entitlement are based on a veteran's disabilities incurred in or aggravated by active military service, death while on active duty, or death resulting from service-connected disabilities.

Veteran compensation cases will continue to increase to an estimated 2,290,400 average cases during 1983. Survivor cases are projected to decline slightly to an estimated 353,570 during 1983.

The "Veteran's Disability Compensation, Housing and Memorial Benefits Amendments of 1981" increased disability compensation for disabled veterans by an average of 11.2% and dependency indemnity compensation (DIC) rates for surviving spouses and children by 11.2% effective October 1, 1981.

The Administrator may pay a clothing allowance to each veteran who wears or uses a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Administrator, tends to wear out or tear the clothing of such veteran. The allowance is paid from this appropriation and was increased to $305 as a result of Public Law 97-66 effective October 1, 1981.

The "Former Prisoner of War Benefits Act of 1981," (Public Law 97-37), expanded eligibility by covering additional psychological disabilities for former POW's for receipt of compensation benefits.

The caseload and cost table shown below, reflects the enactment of the following legislative initiatives: (1) delay of payment of benefits to the first full month of entitlement; (2) amend "end-of-year" rule to "end-of-month" (38 U.S.C. § 3012(b)(2)); and (3) eliminate dependence allowance for veterans rated less than 50% disabled.

This appropriation provides for the payment of pension benefits to veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Requirements for 1983 are estimated to be $3,914,900,000, a decrease of $132,700,000 from 1982 and reflects the enactment of certain legislative initiatives.

Pension benefits may be paid to a veteran or his survivor(s). Veteran's entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period; disabilities considered permanent and total; and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases. Income support is provided at established benefit levels.

Although the 1983 caseload is decreasing, the average cost is increasing. This is due to the "Veterans and Survivors' Pension Improvement Act of 1978," effective January 1, 1979, which reformed the pension program and provides automatic annual cost-of-living increases comparable to annual social security increases for those pensioners in the improved program and to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. These increases are effective on June 1 by the same percentage as social security benefits are increased. The 1983 increase is expected to be 6.5%.

The caseload and cost table shown below reflects the enactment of the following legislative initiatives: (a) issue benefit checks in even dollars; (b) delay payment of benefits to the first full month of entitlement; (c) amend "end of year" rule to "end of month" (38 U.S.C. § 3012(b)(2)); and (d) amend definition of dependent child to stop benefit payments to school children over the age of 19.

This appropriation provides for the payment of burial and other miscellaneous benefits to certain veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Requirements for 1983 are estimated to be $141 million, a decrease of $5.7 million from the 1982 funding requirements. The decrease is due to an administrative transfer of invalid lifts and devices to the Medical Care appropriation in 1983 but is partially offset by a higher estimated number of death claims in 1983.

The "Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981" (Public Law 97-35) restricted the $300 burial allowance to deceased veterans who were in receipt of, or entitled to, VA compensation or pension.

The "Veterans Disability Compensation, Housing, and Memorial Benefits Amendments of 1981" (Public Law 97-66) provides for a headstone or marker for certain other deceased veterans.

1. Burial benefits.—Provides for: (a) the payment of an allowance of $300 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) to reimburse in part, the burial and funeral expense of an eligible deceased veteran; (b) the payment of $150 for a plot allowance where an eligible veteran is not buried in a national cemetery or other cemetery under the jurisdiction of the United States; (c) the payment of a burial allowance up to $1,100 when a veteran dies as the result of service-connected disability; (d) furnishing a flag to drape the casket of each deceased veteran entitled thereto; (e) furnishing a headstone or marker for the grave of a veteran and, in certain cases, eligible dependents; or (f) an allowance toward the purchase of a marker.

This appropriation finances the education, and training of veterans and servicepersons whose service was, at least in part, between February 1, 1955 and December 31, 1976 (post-Korean conflict veterans and Vietnam-era veterans). It also finances educational assistance allowances for eligible dependents of those veterans: (a) who died from service-connected causes or have a total and permanent rated service-connected disability; and (b) servicepersons who were captured or missing in action. Also, 2 for 1 matching funds are provided through December 31, 1981 for veterans whose entire service was after December 31, 1976. The Department of Defense will provide these matching payments effective January 1, 1982. In addition, certain disabled veterans are provided with vocational rehabilitation; specially adapted housing grants, and automobile grants with the associated approved adaptive equipment. With fewer eligible people remaining for Vietnam era training, the funding level in 1983 will be $279.1 million less than in 1982, and reflects the enactment of legislation which will eliminate correspondence training and subsistence allowance for the dependents of vocational rehabilitation trainees.

1. Education and training.—The number of Vietnam era veterans and servicepersons in training is expected to decrease in 1983 to a level of 692,100. The decrease in trainees is attributable in part to more veterans reaching their delimiting date, termination of GI bill benefits for persons entering the military after December 31, 1976, and enactment of Public Law 97-35, which terminated new enrollments into flight training and reduced correspondence payments from 70% to 55% of costs. These decreases are partially offset by enactment of Public Law 97-72 which granted a 2-year extension of the delimiting period for needy and educationally disadvantaged Vietnam-era veterans, effective January 1, 1982.

The number of sons and daughters receiving educational assistance is expected to decrease to 79,500 in 1983, while the number of wives and widows will decrease to 9,980.

The following table provides a comparison of trainees and costs for the four types of trainees mentioned above, and reflects the enactment of the legislative initiatives.

2. Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover the costs of subsistence, tuition, books, supplies, and equipment. The number of trainees will increase to 30,040 in 1983.

Specially adapted housing grants are provided to certain severely disabled veterans. The number of grants is expected to decrease to 840 in 1983. Public Law 97-66 enacted October 17, 1981 increased the maximum grant to $32,500. Veterans who suffer service-connected blindness or who have lost the use of both upper extremities can receive up to $5,000.

An allowance is provided to certain disabled veterans and certain persons on active duty toward the purchase price of new automobiles, adaptive equipment, and the maintenance and replacement of such equipment. Auto grants are expected to decrease to 650 in 1983. Adaptive equipment cases will also decrease to 14,100. Public Law 97-66 enacted October 17, 1981 increased the maximum automobile grant to $4,400 and extended eligibility for adaptive equipment to veterans suffering service-connected ankylosis of one or both knees or hips.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison for these beneficiaries, and reflects the enactment of the legislative initiatives:

Payments are made also to policyholders and beneficiaries on nonparticipating national service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities and on worthy exceptional cases that would not have been covered under the law in effect at the time of death.

The Veterans Administration operates the largest medical care delivery system in the country, with 172 hospitals, 16 domiciliaries, 102 nursing homes, and 228 outpatient clinics in 1983. In addition to these facilities, patients are cared for in contract Federal and community hospitals, community nursing homes with VA support and State-run domiciliaries, nursing homes and hospitals. This system will treat over 1.3 million patients in 1983, and over 18.3 million outpatient medical and dental visits will be made to VA and community facilities.

In 1983, a continued priority for VA health care will be meeting the needs of service-disabled veterans and of aging veterans. The Veterans Administration will continue its efforts to increase the flexibility of the medical care delivery system. The use of outpatient and ambulatory care programs will obviate the need for some hospital admissions and use of community living arrangements such as home-based care, foster home care, et cetera, will permit increased outplacement of hospitalized veterans with a corresponding reduction in length of stay. Arrangements will be continued and improved to provide for hospital and medical care, in the private sector, for certain dependents and survivors of veterans, as authorized by law.

In 1983 increased costs are associated with: (1) workload increases for new VA nursing homes; (2) operational requirements of new facilities; (3) noncontrollable payroll increases; (4) increased cost and usage of drugs, utilities, communications, provisions, prosthetics, medical and dental supplies, operating supplies; (5) administrative transfer of invalid lifts and devices from the Compensation and pensions appropriation; and (6) not to exceed $2 million to fund cost comparison studies.

1. Medical research.—This program is comprised of institutional and special research and is designed to utilize the unique capability of the Veterans Administration medical system in answering questions which can only be answered by a large number of patients under a single management. In addition to the broad spectrum of biomedical research projects, priority is given to research on prevalent diseases of veterans such as aging, alcoholism, schizophrenia, delayed stress disorders, and spinal cord injury and tissue regeneration. Cooperative studies include surgical treatment of angina pectoris, adjunct treatment of diabetes, and relative potency and side-effect liability of new and marketed sedatives.

2. Rehabilitative research.—This program is dedicated to the development and application of science and technology to improve the care of the physically disabled veteran. This includes those with disorders of the spine and limbs and with visual, hearing and speech disorders. It addresses itself to better the quality of life, such as prostheses for the amputee, improved wheelchairs for the paralyzed, and better joint functions for the arthritic.

3. Health services research.—This program provides support for health services projects at VA medical centers for improving the effectiveness and economy of delivery of health services and improving the accessibility of services to veterans.

To maintain the 172 VA medical centers, capital expenditures must be increased. A program funding level of $452,092 thousand is recommended for 1983 to be financed with new budget authority of $419,392 thousand and reprogramming of $32,700 thousand from prior appropriated funds. This budget request represents an increase of 18% above the current year's appropriation. Correction of life/safety code deficiencies is emphasized in the requested program. Projects at three stations involve seismic strengthening of existing facilities or replacement of seismically unsound structures which cannot be economically improved. Also included are projects to make fire and safety improvements at five facilities and projects to correct electrical deficiencies at three others. A new project to fund removal of asbestos when encountered during renovation is proposed. Additionally, an increase in Advance Planning Fund is included to continue the identification and development of projects to correct code deficiencies.

In addition to an emphasis on safety improvements, the request continues a program of nursing home construction necessary to attain a level of 13,100 operational nursing home beds by 1987. Further, the request includes funding for construction of a significant replacement/modernization project at Albuquerque and design of a project to modernize existing buildings at Biloxi.

The VA is on schedule toward meeting the 1985 goal of a 45% reduction in energy consumption in new construction as compared to 1975 consumption levels. This goal will be achieved by more efficient use of conventional energy and through the use of renewable energy sources. A project to fund energy conservation projects is included in the request. Projects funded from that line item include solar systems, heat recovery systems, and various innovative, energy-efficient building systems.

Grants have been made to the Republic of the Philippines for the medical care and treatment, at the Veterans Memorial Medical Center (VMMC) or at other facilities by contract, of Philippine Commonwealth Army veterans and new Philippine Scouts. The purpose of these grants was to assist the Philippine Government in completing the transition to an entirely Philippine funded medical care program for these veterans and scouts. This transition is considered to have been completed in 1981. Public Law 97-72, enacted to assure the continued effective care and treatment of U.S. veterans at the VMMC, provides for an annual grant of $500,000 through 1986. The grant is for the replacement and upgrading of equipment and the rehabilitation of the VMMC's physical plant and facilities.

For grants to aid States in establishing, expanding or improving State veterans' cemeteries as authorized by law (Public Law 95-476, sec. 202), $2,500,000, to remain available until September 30, 1985.

This revolving fund, established pursuant to the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1979, Public Law 96-22, approved September 30, 1979, provides a mechanism for collecting funds from employees to operate medical employee parking facilities. Since collections are expected to remain minimal due to judicial decisions, the administration recommends that the revolving fund be dissolved. The maintenance, improvements, and operating expenses of these parking facilities will be funded from the medical care and construction accounts.

The Loan guaranty revolving fund is the financing mechanism for the GI home loan program. The purpose of the fund is to cover the expenses which result when a VA loan goes into foreclosure, to acquire loans to prevent veterans from going into unnecessary foreclosure, and to recover expenses incurred in foreclosures. With the lower volume of loans in 1980 and 1981, the number of property requisitions and claims in 1983 are projected at a slightly lower level than 1982 and significantly lower than 1981. These lower levels of acquisitions and claims assume that the high cure rate of 90.5% is continued. The program of financial counseling to assist veterans through periods of temporary financial difficulty is largely responsible for maintaining the high cure rate.

Budget program—1. Real property acquisitions.—The number of acquisitions is expected to decline while the average cost is expected to increase for 1983.

Number of property acquisitions processed.....	11,376	10,250	10,150
Average cost per acquisition.....	$34,423	$34,832	$35,825
Total cost (in thousands).....	$391,593	$357,023	$363,625

2. Property improvements.—Fewer properties acquired result in less expenditures for capital improvements necessary to place properties in salable condition.

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Number of properties acquired.....	13,326	12,180	12,090
Average cost per property.....	$1,466	$1,928	$2,105
Total cost (in thousands).....	$19,535	$23,482	$25,452

3. Claims processed.—The lower volume of loans experienced in 1980 and 1981 result in lower claims processed in 1982 and 1983.

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Individual homes:
Number of claims.....	11,926	10,450	10,350

Average cost per payment.....	$4,711	$4,800	$5,050
Total cost (in thousands).....	$3,670	$3,840	$4,040

4. Repurchase of loans sold, net.—The repurchase estimate for 1983 is higher than 1981 and 1982 due to loan sales of $263.5 million in 1982 compared to $42.9 million in 1981.

Average cost per repurchase.....	$19,594	$21,350	$22,400
Total cost (in thousands).....	$19,183	$21,350	$33,600

5. Cash advances—Vendee loans.—Cash expenditures are necessary to advance cash on behalf of the borrower in order to protect the interest of the Government. Costs for 1983 are less than 1981, as loan sales reduce the portfolio.

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Total cost (in thousands).....	$6,296	$3,000	$3,000

6. Loans acquired.—Guaranteed or insured loans in a default status may be purchased by the Administrator to avoid foreclosure. Through financial counseling a revised payment schedule for the veteran is established resulting in a high cure rate of loans. The following table reflects this activity:

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate

Average cost per acquisition.....	$33,766	$34,100	$34,450

9. Discount on sale of loans.—Represents the discount expense to the revolving fund incident to the sale of vendee accounts. Discounts occur when the contract rate of interest does not afford yield commensurate with the market. These discounts are projected to increase with the higher sales of 1983.

Financing.—Vendee loan sales of $1.0 billion (80% of collections) in 1983 represent the largest source of funding. Repayments account for $59 million (4.5%) and interest collections account for $122 million (9.3%) of the total 1983 collections of $1.3 billion. The other major item of 1983 income for the revolving fund is the $52 million (4.0%) collections projected to be received from down payments and cash purchases of properties in Veterans' Administration inventory.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued and currently is open for new issues to veterans having service-connected disabilities. The program provides insurance coverage for service-disabled veterans at standard rates. As a result, premium payments do not cover operating and capital reserve requirements. Annual deficits are met by transfers from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation. Administrative expenses are paid from the general operating expenses appropriation.

Operating costs—(1) Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

(2) All other.—This category represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital investment.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the value of his policy. This activity increases with the increased number of policyholders.

The general increase in the activity of this fund is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Number of policies.....	190,782	191,700	192,100
Insurance in force.....	$1,728,016	$1,737,800	$1,742,700

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are received by transfer from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund. It is estimated that the payment will be $5.7 million in 1982 and $3.4 million in 1983.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $189.7 million by September 30, 1983.

This fund pays claims and administrative costs on participating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) nonservice disabled insurance established by the National Service Life Insurance Act of 1940, as amended availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance because of delimiting dates.

Budget program—1. Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

2. Dividends.—Public Law 96-128, enacted November 28, 1979, provides for policyholders to participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

3. All other.—This category represents payments to the general operating expense appropriation for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

4. Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94% of the cash value of his policy. This activity is reflected in the status of loan schedule shown above.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Number of policies	164,035	160,200	154,400
Insurance in force	$1,136,535	$1,110,371	$1,084,736

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums collected from policyholders and interest on investments. Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

Prior to October 1, 1981, the Education Loan fund provided loans to eligible persons in training under chapters 32, 34, and 35 of title 38, U.S.C. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981, Public Law 97-35, repealed most of the applicable sections of title 38, U.S.C. As a result, this fund now provides loans of up to $2,500 to veterans who, but for having passed their delimiting date or for pursuing flight training, would be eligible for training benefits under chapter 34, title 38, U.S.C., and who are without sufficient funds to meet their education related expenses. Repayments and interest income are used to make new loans. Surplus amounts may be transferred to the readjustment benefits appropriation as needed. The following table provides an overview of the activity of this program.

This fund provides loans up to $564 to veterans enrolled in a program of vocational rehabilitation who are temporarily in need of additional funds to meet expenses.

Budget program.—Interest-free direct loans are granted to veterans in vocational rehabilitation training. The loans are repaid over a period of 10 months by offset from benefit payments.

Financing.—With initial capitalization through an appropriation, the fund is financed solely by repayments. Administrative expenses are borne by the general operating expenses appropriation.

This revolving fund, established pursuant to the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, Public Law 94-581, provides a mechanism for the furnishing of rehabilitative services to certain veteran beneficiaries who are receiving medical care and treatment from the Veterans Administration.

Funds to operate the various rehabilitative activities and provide for the therapeutic work for remuneration for patients and members in Veterans Administration health care facilities are derived from contractual arrangements with private industry or nonprofit entities. This is a self-sustaining fund and therefore no appropriation is required to support these activities.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5021, the Supply fund finances on a reimbursable basis the cost of warehouse inventories at depots and field stations and selected items of equipment procured centrally. It also finances, on the same basis, items and services to other Federal agencies who either request or are assigned to the Veterans Administration for support by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) Maintenance of depot and field station inventories; (2) maintenance and operation of three supply depots; (3) a publications depot including printing services to VA installations on a centralized basis; (4) operation of a service and reclamation program operating out of the supply depots; (5) centralized periodical procurement and library cataloging; and (6) a marketing center or central buying office.

The publications and reproduction program provides printing service and distribution of printed matter to VA installations. Printed matter is acquired in accordance with the rules of the Joint Committee on Printing from the Government Printing Office, the General Services Administration, a VA-operated plant, and from commercial sources.

The marketing center is responsible for determining the levels of inventories to be carried at depots and acquiring stock to maintain such levels. It is also responsible for the central contracting of items not available from other Government sources for VA installations and other Government agencies as may be determined economical or advisable.

The Supply fund does not finance costs for the operation and administration of supply activities at field stations. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply fund and Supply fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving goods and services. For 1983 Supply fund sales are estimated to reach $580 million. Average inventory needed to support those sales will be $132 million.

Operating results.—The fund operated at a profit of $13.4 million in 1981. The new total of retained earnings is $28.2 million, which will be used to finance inventory growth. Operating expense as related to sales was only 5.4%.

This fund was established in 1940 for the World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program authorized by the National Servicemen's Life Insurance Act of 1940. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Since issuance of new policies ended in 1951, the insurance in force is estimated to decrease in 1983 by $481 million, representing a decrease of 92,000 policies. Activity of the fund reflects a rising claim and loan workload. The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is shown as follows (in thousands of dollars):

This fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible except that administrative expenses are charged to the General operating expenses account, consistent with law.

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation for claims: (1) resulting from extra hazards of the veterans' service, and (2) arising on certain policies held by personnel on active duty.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special Treasury interest-bearing securities and in policy loans, are expected to increase from $9,910 million as of September 30, 1982 to $10,160 million as of September 30, 1983. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of September 30, 1982, totals $9,839 million, leaving a balance of $71 million for contingency reserves.

This fund finances the payment of claims on life insurance policies issued before January 31, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1, 1951. No new policies can be issued and the number of policies in force are expected to decline by 14,504 in 1982 and 24,900 in 1983. Policyholders may elect to purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of additional premiums.

Budget program—1. Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

2. Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his insurance by cashing in his policy for its cash value.

3. Dividends.—Public Law 93-289, enacted May 24, 1974, provides for policyholders to participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

4. All other.—Classified in this category are payments to policyholders who: (a) hold endowment policies which have matured; (b) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled; and (c) are paid interest on dividend credits and deposits.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amounts of insurance in force (in thousands of dollars):

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Number of policies.....	522,904	508,400	483,500
Insurance in force.....	$4,604,899	$4,489,100	$4,283,500

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the retained earnings of the fund. The retained earnings have, since the inception of the program, been reduced by payments of a special dividend and subsidy payments to the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation and the Veterans reopened insurance fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

OTHER INDEPENDENT AGENCIES

ACTION

ACTION, a Federal agency for domestic volunteer service, brings together a number of volunteer programs including the foster grandparent program, the senior companion program, the retired senior volunteer program, service-learning programs, citizen participation, volunteer demonstration programs, and Volunteers in Service to America. The Peace Corps was separated from ACTION by Public Law 97-113 and established as a separate agency. Its appropriation and the appropriation for the programs in this account jointly finance the agency's common support costs. Determinations about transfers in 1982 of personnel and property from ACTION to Peace Corps pursuant to the separation have not yet been made. The 1982 amounts in the information schedules of the common support costs that is presented in the following materials do not reflect the transfers.

1. Volunteers in Service to America.—The service learning programs will assist secondary and post-secondary institutions to establish and maintain service learning activities for both students and their communities. The VISTA program will be closed during 1983.

2. Citizen participation and volunteer demonstration programs.—These programs stimulate and encourage volunteer services and provide community groups with small grants for project impetus and assistance. In 1983, these grants will aid the expansion of private volunteer activities and programs for drug abuse prevention, illiteracy and the problems of runaway youth. The Vietnam Veterans Leadership Project will support efforts of Vietnam Veterans to help other veterans of the Vietnam war with problems arising from their military service.

3. Older American volunteer programs.—These programs provide opportunities for people aged 60 and over, to volunteer their services to the community by working with the emotionally disturbed, the mentally retarded and physically handicapped, the infirm, and the isolated elderly. In 1983, approximately 18,100 Foster Grandparent volunteers will serve about 54,000 children. Emphasis will be on preventing institutionalization of children and on returning children to communities. The retired senior volunteer program will support 345,200 part-time volunteers providing service in the areas of health, nutrition, education, the problems of troubled youth, refugee assistance, crime prevention, and other community services. Approximately 4,100 volunteers in the senior companion program will provide long-term care services to about 14,500 frail and elderly Americans.

4. Program support.—Costs of program direction and administration are financed by this activity. Services that are jointly supported with the Peace Corps in 1981 and 1982 are included.

The Conference assists the President, the Congress, the administrative agencies, and executive departments in improving existing administrative procedure, including achievement of needed regulatory reform. It is responsible for conducting studies of the efficiency, adequacy, and fairness of present procedures by which the Federal administrative agencies and executive departments determine the rights, privileges, and obligations of private persons. On the basis of such studies the Conference issues formal recommendations for improvements and then encourages implementation of the recommendations through appropriate agency, congressional, or judicial action.

In addition to its research activities, the Conference also arranges for the interchange among administrative agencies of information useful in improving administrative procedures; collects, tabulates, analyzes, and publishes statistics from administrative agencies to identify and correct delays and other problems in the administrative process; and, on an ongoing basis, furnishes assistance and advice on matters of administrative procedure to the agencies, Congress, and others.

The Board regulates the economic aspects of domestic and international air carrier operations. In 1983, the Board will continue actions designed to move commercial air transportation toward a system governed primarily by competitive market forces.

1. Domestic competition, operating authority and pricing.—This program involves the following basic activities: scheduled service, charter and special services, pricing and tariffs, and competition maintenance. The goal of this program is to complete the deregulation of the domestic air transportation system in accordance with the policies and timetables established by the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. On December 31, 1981, the Board's authority to license carriers on the basis of public convenience and necessity expires. Licensing will continue through 1984, but will be limited to initial and continuing fitness determinations. During 1983, the Board loses most of its authority over domestic air fares. The antitrust functions related to domestic mergers and interlocking relationships will transfer to the Department of Justice on January 1, 1983.

2. Community assistance, small community air service, and subsidy.—This program includes community assistance, small community air service, and the provision of subsidy to communities. In 1983 this program will continue efforts to assist communities to obtain and/or maintain adequate air services by relying primarily on increased competition. When air service simply cannot be provided on an economic basis, subsidy payments may be provided.

3. International negotiations, operating authority, and pricing.—This program includes three basic activities: negotiations and consultations, operating authority, and pricing. In 1983, this program will provide improved aviation opportunities to the traveling and shipping public through the active promotion of increased competition in the international air transport system.

4. Consumer protection, assistance and information.—This program consists of two major activities: compliance and enforcement, and consumer assistance and information. The purpose of this program is to protect consumers by ensuring their rights under the law, taking enforcement actions against violators, ensuring that consumer interests are represented before the Board, and continuing to inform, assist and educate consumers in their contacts with the air transportation industry.

5. Economic analysis and regulatory information.—This program covers two activities: economic analysis and regulatory information. The goals of this program are to provide an economic capability to assist the Board in decisionmaking and evaluation of current policies and programs, to gather and analyze data for the Report to Congress on January 1, 1984, as required by the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978, and to maintain a financial and statistical information base necessary to manage the transition to a deregulated environment.

By the beginning of 1983, the Board expects Congress to end the section 406 subsidy program. The Board will continue to administer the section 419 subsidy program, which was added as part of the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. Compensation under this program is paid to airlines—primarily commuter carriers—selected by the Board to provide a guaranteed level of air service to certain eligible communities. This subsidy is designed to meet the specific service needs of each community, as detailed in its Essential Air Service determination. Hold-in subsidy is paid to incumbent carriers desiring to leave a market but forced to continue providing service for 30-day periods until a replacement carrier is selected. Normal subsidy is the longer-term compensation paid to a replacement carrier chosen by the Board on the basis of the carrier's proposal to provide a community with the level of service specified in the community's Essential Air Service determination.

The Committee for Purchase from the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped was established by the Wagner-O'Day Act of 1938, as amended. Its primary objective is to increase the employment opportunities for the blind and other severely handicapped and, whenever possible, to prepare them to engage in normal competitive employment. In 1983, 42,000 blind and handicapped individuals are projected to be employed in 240 producing workshops. The committee determines which commodities and services are suitable for Government procurement from qualified nonprofit agencies serving the blind and other severely handicapped; publishes a procurement list of such commodities and services; determines the fair market price for commodities and services on the procurement list; and, makes rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. The committee proposes to have 1,920 items on its procurement list, for an estimated workshop sale of $165 million to the Federal Government.

The committee staff supervises the selection and assignment of new commodities and services, assists in establishing prices, reviews and adjusts these prices, verifies the qualifications of workshops, and monitors their performance.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended. The purpose of the CFTC is to further the economic utility of the futures markets by encouraging their efficiency, assuring their integrity, and protecting participants against abusive trade practices, fraud, and deceit. The object of commodity futures trading regulation is to enable the markets to better serve their designated functions of providing a price discovery mechanism and a means of offsetting price risk. By properly serving these functions, the futures markets serve the public interest by contributing toward better planning, more efficient distribution and consumption, and more economical marketing.

1. Market surveillance.—Responsibilities under this program include daily surveillance of the market activity of large individual traders and fundamental economic market factors to insure orderly markets. The longer term activities of surveillance concentrate on the review of contract terms and conditions to insure conformity with current cash marketing conditions and adequate deliverable supplies. The program is further responsible for the publication of market data, the enforcement of Federal limits, and the monitoring of exchange limits on speculative positions.

2. Research and education.—The objectives of this program are to systemically investigate the functioning of markets and market users; to develop better tools to assist in detecting and preventing price distortions; and to develop and disseminate educational and statistical materials regarding futures trading. In 1983, the program will continue to provide basic analytical support to the Commission, to include the analysis of policies and regulations having economic implications.

3. Registration, audits, and contract markets.—Responsibilities under this program are: To prevent misuse of customers' funds by futures commission merchants; to assure that the rules and practices of the contract markets are in compliance with the provisions of the Commodity Exchange Act and the rules of the Commission; and to review and approve applications from individuals and firms for registration under the provisions of the act.

4. Enforcement.—The enforcement program is responsible for detecting, investigating and litigating violations of the Act or regulations. These violations may include actual and attempted market manipulations, cheating and defrauding customers, and abusive trading practices such as fictitious trading, wash trading and pre-arranged trading. As the prosecuting arm of the Commission, this program may seek redress through the administrative process or by injunctive actions in the Federal Courts. In addition to developing investigations on its own, the enforcement program handles investigations and litigation on a referral basis from other Federal and State agencies.

The 1974 amendments to the act provide for the handling of customer's reparation claims for damages against persons registered with the Commission.

In addition, the Corporation assists in the financing of several system-wide activities, including national satellite interconnection services and the payment of music royalty fees, and provides limited technical assistance, research, and planning services to improve system-wide capacity and performance.

The Self-Government Act authorized the District of Columbia to issue tax-exempt general obligation bonds to finance capital improvements projects. To prevent undue disruption during the development of the District's bond issuance program, the Self-Government Act provided interim authority under which the District could borrow from the U.S. Treasury to finance capital projects for which funds had been authorized or appropriated before January 2, 1975, and to finance the District's share of the cost of the adopted regional transportation system specified in the National Capital Transportation Act of 1969.

Because of unanticipated delays in the development of the city's bond issuance program, the Self-Government Act was amended by Public Law 95-131 to extend the interim borrowing authority for all projects approved prior to October 1, 1979. The 1976 and 1977 appropriations acts for the District of Columbia contained language provisions authorizing Treasury loans to finance capital projects approved in those two acts. Public Law 96-160 extended the interim borrowing authority for all new projects approved in the 1980 and 1981 budgets, and Public Law 97-40 further extended this authority for all new projects approved in the 1982 and 1983 budgets.

The Self-Government Act set a ceiling on outstanding long-term debt of the District of Columbia. Under that limitation, the District may neither issue general obligation bonds nor borrow funds from the U.S. Treasury to finance capital projects if the amount of the additional obligation thus incurred would cause debt service on outstanding long-term debt in any one year to exceed 14% of District revenues estimated to be credited to the District during the year in which the bonds were to be issued or the Treasury loans were to be drawn down.

The District of Columbia is requesting an appropriation of $155,000 thousand for capital outlay loans from the U.S. Treasury for 1983. The amount is for the general fund and the water and sewer enterprise fund.

The 1983 limitation on direct loan obligations of $145.0 million will meet the full cash requirements for capital projects during the year ending September 30, 1983. The budget estimate assumes that all capital investment expenditures from appropriated funds during the year will be financed with U.S. Treasury loans.

The following table shows the status of general fund capital outlay loans authorizations on a cumulative basis:

¹ Authority to borrow available to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation continues to be available on a permanent, indefinite basis. The authority is limited only in that the amount of borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $3 billion.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. The deposit insurance ceiling protection has been $100 thousand since March 31, 1980. In order to accomplish its varied functions in the protection of bank depositors, the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. The major portion of the Corporation's operations consists of the examination of State banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System and liquidation activities attendant to insured banks that have closed.

The insurance fund is supported by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the Treasury of the United States. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1982 and 1983.

In order to facilitate deposit assumptions or to assist operating banks, the Corporation is authorized to purchase notes issued by the assuming bank, or in the case of direct assistance, notes issued by the operating bank. The above schedule reflects the outstanding principal amounts of these notes and projected repayments based on the notes agreements.

Income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investment in U.S. Government securities. As of September 30, 1981, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $12.1 billion. The entire fund represents the accumulated net income of the Corporation and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriation are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations.

The estimates for 1982 and 1983 in these statements make no provision for losses and expenses which might occur by reason of the closing of any bank after September 30, 1981, because there is no sound basis for predicting which insured banks if any, will close after that date.

1. Civil defense—(a) State and local assistance.—This program provides the foundation for the Federal, State, and local partnership that is essential in achieving comprehensive emergency management objectives. It supports State and local organizational requirements, operating costs, and emergency communications and warning systems improvements. It provides FEMA with management processes to be responsive to the field structure and to the various organizations that represent emergency management interests. This program is in support of the President's decision to enhance the civil defense program in 1983.

(b) Radiological defense.—The mission of Radiological defense (RADEF) is: (1) To provide to individual citizens and officials the skills and knowledge, situation information, and guidance needed to minimize the effects of fallout radiation hazards of a nuclear attack in terms of injury and loss of life, and facilitate recovery efforts in a radiological environment; and (2) to provide support as appropriate for emergency response to peacetime nuclear incidents and other technological defense capabilities at all levels of government.

(c) Nuclear attack civil preparedness.—This activity provides for plans and systems to protect the population against the effects of nuclear attack, including crisis relocation planning, shelter identification, and preparation. Nuclear attack planning is conducted primarily by contracts with the States, who hire planners to develop State-level plans, as well as plans for local risk and host area jurisdictions.

(d) Emergency operating centers.—The emergency operating centers (EOC) program provides Federal technical and operational guidance and financial assistance to State and local governments. The financial assistance consists of a 50% Federal matching grant of allowable applicant costs relative to: the design and construction or modification of the protected facilities; the communications, emergency power, and electromagnetic pulse protective devices needed for sustained operations: and the operational planning, testing and equipment needed to enhance capability and performance under emergency conditions. The program also supports the development of mobile command centers to enhance the survivability of direction and control operations when the fixed facility is in an area designated at risk to the direct blast and thermal effects of nuclear weapons.

2. Comprehensive emergency preparedness planning.—The objectives of this activity are to determine State and local preparedness capabilities and needs for comprehensive emergency preparedness planning (CEPP) development and assessment, and to provide preparedness guidance and financial assistance to support capability maintenance and improvement. A primary instrument for implementing CEPP is the disaster improvement grant. These annual grants provide up to $25,000 from the disaster relief fund to States on a 50-50 matching basis; all but a few States are participants.

3. Radiological emergency preparedness.—Provides for emergency preparedness and planning activities, nuclear facilities and radioactive materials, transportation involving radioactive materials. By agreement with DOD and DOE, FEMA has developed programs which include preparedness reviews for all fixed nuclear facilities.

4. Flood plain management.—This activity involves the operation of a program that combines mapping, regulatory, and technical-assistance efforts for the purposes of responding to known flood hazards and mitigating their effects through a comprehensive approach to the management of flood plains.

5. Emergency Information and Coordination Center (EICC).—The mission of the EICC is to provide FEMA with information, data and facilities for making accurate and timely decisions, including the communications required for rapid and reliable transmission of these decisions under all conditions.

1. Civil defense.—This activity includes the plans, capabilities and staff for portions of civil preparedness to help State and local governments prepare for and respond to major emergencies; provides communications and dedicated warning systems; and provides for development of training materials and training programs. Studies, research and development activities in this program provide the technical basis for items such as crisis relocation, recovery from nuclear attack, and industrial equipment protection.

2. Federal preparedness.—The goals of the Federal preparedness activity are, to achieve Government readiness to insure that the Nation will be able to respond, to manage, and to recover from peacetime or wartime national security emergencies and to enable government, at all levels, to cope with the consequences of accidental, natural, and man-caused occurrences.

3. Training and education.—This program prepares Federal, State and local officials, and their supporting staffs and constituencies, to meet the responsibilities and challenges of hazard mitigation, emergency preparedness, and disaster response. This activity supports the National Emergency Training Center facility located in Emmitsburg, Md.

4. Fire prevention and control.—The goal of this program has been to reduce by 50% the Nation's loss of life from unwanted fire and to achieve significant reductions in property and nonfatal human injury due to fire by the year 2000. This program has improved the cost-effectiveness of the various fire protection services. Due to the significant decrease in loss of life and property due to fire and the increased efforts of the private sector, this program will be discontinued in 1983. However, the efforts of the National Academy will continue to provide training to State and local fire officials.

The National Insurance Development Fund provides the funding source for two programs authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended: (1) The FAIR (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) Plan/Riot Reinsurance program, a cooperative effort by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government aimed at providing reasonable access to essential property insurance in urban areas; and (2) the Federal Crime Insurance program, which provides burglary and robbery insurance at affordable premium rates on properties that meet protective device requirements where such coverage is not available in the private market. The budget estimates assume that both of these programs will be terminated on October 1, 1982.

Budget program—1. Riot reinsurance claims.—The estimate of claims paid through riot and civil disorder reinsurance is expected to be about $10,000 thousand in 1982.

2. Crime insurance—(a) Insurance claims.—Claims reflect insurance payments in the program.

(b) Operating expenses.—Expenses are incurred by fiscal agents in issuing policies, settling claims, and maintaining accounting and statistical records.

3. Studies and surveys.—This includes expenses of continuing reviews of market availability of essential property insurance.

4. Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the programs.

Financing.—Claims and expenses are estimated to be paid from premium income, income from holdings of Government securities and Treasury borrowings.

Operating results.—Claims and expenses are expected to exceed premium and investment income due to losses under the crime insurance program, resulting in a decrease in the reserves of the fund.

Net losses of the crime insurance program, estimated at $31,600 thousand in 1982 and $24,958 thousand in 1983 will be funded by reserves and borrowing authority.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND—Continued

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within 1 year of the time they are identified as flood prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes.

Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $245 thousand for residential and $550 thousand for other types.

Significant indicators of program size are as follows:

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Policies in force.....	1,878,271	1,972,000	2,070,000
Insurance in force (billions of dollars).....	$97.6	$102.5	$107.6

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—Cost of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $71,087 thousand in 1983.

2. Loss and adjustment expense.—Insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expense is estimated at $280,914 thousand in 1983.

3. Interest expense.—Interest on Treasury borrowings needed to defray underwriting and loss expenses is estimated at $13,889 thousand in 1983.

4. Administrative expense.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the program.

Financing.—The Administrator is authorized to borrow up to $1 billion to carry out the program. Borrowings are estimated to total $178,360 thousand by the end of 1983. An appropriation of $41,572 thousand is requested in 1983 to retire agency debt. The program is also financed through premium income, and on January 1, 1981, an expense constant of $20 was added to shift the administrative expenses from the taxpayer to the beneficiary of the program, the policyholder.

Operating results.—Cumulative expenses are expected to exceed revenue and receipts from Federal and non-Federal sources by approximately $315 million by the end of 1983. This cumulative deficit is financed through appropriations of $931 million and by charges against borrowing authority of $178 million.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) is charged with regulating certain interstate aspects of the natural gas, hydroelectric, oil pipeline, and electric industries.

1. Natural gas regulation.—The Commission regulates 126 natural gas pipeline companies and approximately 20,000 producers that either transport or produce natural gas for sale in interstate or intrastate commerce. Responsibilities include issuing certificates of public convenience and necessity for the sale of gas by producers as well as regulating construction of new transportation facilities and extensions by interstate natural gas companies. Producer regulation requires the enforcement of appropriate wellhead prices for natural gas sold to pipelines or end users and acceptable wholesale rates to be charged by the pipeline firms for natural gas sold in interstate commerce for resale.

2. Hydropower licensing regulation.—The Commission issues permits and licenses for hydroelectric projects, enforces the terms and conditions of the licenses, and performs dam safety inspections for dams that are licensed or have a license pending. There are currently 720 hydroelectric projects under license representing more than 1,250 hydroelectric developments with an ultimate generating capacity of about 59 million kilowatts. The Commission also performs investigations of headwater benefits, rate approval for all Federal power marketing agencies except TVA, and encourages the development of small hydro sites as sources of energy.

3. Oil pipeline regulation.—The Commission's responsibilities include the establishment of economical and reasonable transportation rates to provide incentives for increasing domestic oil supplies and insuring that consumers are not adversely affected by unjustifiably high tariffs. A total of 125 oil pipeline companies are currently under the jurisdiction of the FERC. The valuation of these regulated companies including the Trans Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS), approximates $20 billion. The Commission is reviewing the TAPS project to determine the reasonableness of cost overruns, rate schedules, and valuation of the system. The Commission seeks to encourage fair competition among the oil companies and to foster the development of future oil supplies in the Prudhoe Bay and North Slope by establishing prudent rate tariffs.

4. Electric power regulation.—The Commission is responsible for determining rates for the interstate sale or transmission of wholesale electric energy for 211 electric utilities and for overseeing electric utility corporate transactions and interlocking directorates.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board formulates policies for and supervises the operation of the 12 Federal home loan banks, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation. It is also responsible for the examination of Federal savings and loan associations and for the examination and supervision of State-chartered institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

The expenditure programs of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation are presented as business-type budgets. The Home Owner's Loan Act of 1933, as amended, provides that all expenses of the Office of Examinations and Supervision shall be considered nonadministrative. The administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, including the home office of the Office of Examinations and Supervision, are paid from assessments against the 12 Federal home loan banks and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The expenses of the field offices of the Office of Examinations and Supervision are paid from fees collected from savings and loan institutions examined and from assessments against the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

Budget program.—The Board's budget program consists of seven activities:

1. Examination of Federal home loan banks and supervision of Federal home loan bank system.—The Board examines and supervises the operations of the 12 Federal home loan banks.

2. Examination and supervision of Federal and State-Chartered thrift institutions.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and all uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system which are not examined by the State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter, when required by the Board. The financial condition and operations of each insured institution are analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on cooperatively, with the respective State authorities.

3. Chartering Federal and insuring savings and loan associations.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion to Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

4. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

5. Analysis of operations.—Analyses are made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, and the character and volume of mortgage lending. Selective reviews are made of geographical areas and trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including the volume of activity and interest rates for all major types of mortgage lenders.

6. Administrative services.—These consist of auditing; accounting, budgeting, and financial reporting; internal budget control; and fiscal organization and management. Also included are general housekeeping and operating services, which include printing and reproduction work.

7. Acquisition and construction of a building in the District of Columbia.—The Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 authorized the Board to acquire property and construct a building in the District of Columbia to provide quarters and facilities for the Board. Under the law, the Board is required to prepare and submit an annual budget program for the building as provided in title I of the Government Corporation Control Act.

The 12 Federal home loan banks seek to improve the financial condition of member institutions. The banks, which are owned by the member institutions, obtain funds primarily from public issuances of consolidated obligations. Authority to borrow from the Treasury was temporarily increased from $4 billion to $6 billion by an amendment to the National Housing Act, approved October 28, 1974. The increase expired on August 10, 1975. A total of $1,574,500 thousand was borrowed in 1975 and 1976.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the activities discussed above for 1983 include administrative expenses under an annual limitation; nonadministrative expenses under a separate limitation; and certain additional expenses not under a limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $22.3 million in 1982 to $24.4 million in 1983. Nonadministrative expenses covering examination and supervision of savings and loan associations are discussed separately, below.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) relies on the Office of Examinations and Supervision to protect its assets against depletion from the financial failure of any insured savings and loan association. The Office's responsibility extends to all institutions insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation as well as noninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system not subject to State examination.

The Office monitors savings and loan associations through continual analysis of their operating policies and financial reports, regularly scheduled examinations, and occasional special examinations. The purpose of the monitoring process is to determine compliance with Federal Home Loan Bank Board regulations and to ascertain the quality of management and the financial soundness of the member associations. If the Office detects actual or potentially unsafe or unsound practices in insured associations, supervisory agents from the Federal home loan banks work with the association to prevent or correct poor financial or management performance. The operations of the Office are funded substantially through direct examination charges imposed on savings and loan associations.

The Office also has examination and supervisory responsibilities with respect to savings and loan holding companies and their subsidiaries. In addition, the Office has assumed responsibilities pursuant to legislation in the areas of consumer credit protection, equal opportunity, and security measures.

The following table reflects the work of the Office:

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection, which insures each saver in a member association against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $100 thousand, may be provided either through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings accounts holders in the event of liquidation. Preventing default, which protects each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making contributions or by purchasing all or a part of an association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Preventive measures are preferred by the Corporation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as a receiver, or co-receiver upon the request of a State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions. In addition, the Corporation, upon determination by the Board, is empowered to act, even retroactively, as sole receiver in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides administrative services. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation and the Federal home loan banks.

In carrying out its responsibility for protecting savings in insured savings and loans associations, the Corporation has settled 151 cases since its creation in 1934. Actual losses sustained and provision for losses to September 30, 1981, have amounted to $621.4 million representing approximately 7.5% of cumulative gross income. Detailed information on these cases is summarized in the following table:

Budget program.—The Insurance Corporation's budget program consists of the following activities:

1. Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—This category includes the estimated costs of executive direction and policy formulation.

2. Payments to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 21% of the total administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board plus 49% of the remaining 79% in 1983 in return for services and facilities from the Board.

3. Contributions and provision for contributions to insured thrift institutions.—This item is the estimated amount needed in 1983 to prevent the default of insured institutions.

4. Refund of additional premium prepayments.—A 1962 amendment of the National Housing Act required that each insured institution pay an additional premium in the nature of a prepayment at a rate equal to 2% of the increase in savings for the previous calendar year, less an amount equal to any requirement for the purchase of Federal Home Loan Bank stock during the period. The amendment also provided for the crediting of a return on the accumulated prepayment of each insured association at a rate equal to the average rate realized by the Corporation on its own investment portfolio.

Another amendment to the National Housing Act provides for a phaseout of the secondary reserve over the first 10 minimum net reduction years occurring after December 31, 1973. In May of each year, the Corporation will reduce the amount of each insured institution's pro rata share of the secondary reserve as of the preceding December 31 by a cash refund of the difference between the pro rata share and the percentage of its beginning balance on a percentage basis prescribed in the law.

5. Liquidation and other expenses.—This provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the workout of contribution agreements, the disposition of assets purchased from, and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to Treasury, together with an additional $43 million in interest. The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, up to a limit of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowing under this authorization has ever been necessary. The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any 1 year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1% of the total amount of the accounts of its insured savers.

Operating results.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock, leaving a reserve for contingencies of $7,199.4 million as of September 30, 1981. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934 of $8,291.4 million have been applied as follows:

The Federal Maritime Commission administers the shipping statutes which require regulation of the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. In addition, the Commission has responsibility for the licensing of ocean freight forwarders; and for insuring that vessel owners or operators establish financial responsibility for water pollution, death or injury to passengers or other persons on voyages to and from U.S. ports, and indemnification of passengers for the nonperformance of transportation. Major program objectives for 1983 will continue to deal with the issue of illegal rebating and other forms of malpractice by carriers operating in the ocean trades of the United States; and achieving compliance with the statutes through an effective regulatory program.

The Service assists parties to disputes in industries affecting commerce to settle their disputes through conciliation and mediation.

1. Dispute mediation.—The Service assists labor and management in mediation and prevention of disputes, other than those involving rail and air transportation, whenever in its judgment such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of interstate commerce or a major impairment of the national defense. Under section 7119 of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, the Service also makes mediation and conciliation services available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service closed 558 dispute mediation cases in the Federal sector in 1981 and anticipates some 650 cases in 1983. The Service provides mandatory mediation and, where necessary, impartial boards of inquiry to assist in resolving labor disputes involving private nonprofit health care institutions. During 1981, the Service closed a total of 1,513 health case assignments and anticipates an equal number in 1983. About 89% of the 23,506 closed mediation assignments which required the services of mediators were settled without work stoppages. The workload shown below includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors.

specialized workshops dealing with a wide range of contemporary issues in collective bargaining. Mediators also participate each year in public information and educational activities such as university lectures and a variety of seminars and conferences.

2. Arbitration services.—The Service assists parties in disputes in utilizing the arbitration process for the resolution of disputes arising under or in the negotiation of collective bargaining agreements in the private and public sectors. This activity also includes the appointment of boards of inquiry to look into the facts of a dispute in the health care industry. In addition, the Service administers expedited arbitration for the U.S. Postal Service in several areas of the country, for national agreements in construction, and for a number of multi-location contracts. Beginning in 1983, most of these services will be financed through fees paid by the parties.

3. Management and administrative support.—This activity provides for overall management and administration, policy planning, research and evaluation, and employee development.

4. Boards and panels.—Provision is made for ad hoc use of labor relations experts, individually or in panels, in support of the mediation function, for boards of inquiry appointed by the President in emergency disputes, and for boards of inquiry which the Director of FMCS may appoint in a contract dispute involving health care institutions.

5. Age discrimination mediation project.—Under this demonstration project, the Service will mediate settlements of complaints filed under the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (42 U.S.C. 6101 et seq.). Complaints alleging discrimination on the basis of age in federally funded activities will be referred to the Service prior to the formal enforcement stage for mediation by Service mediators or mediators drawn from the community. The demonstration is expected to be completed by the end of 1982.

6. Labor-management cooperation project.—The Labor Management Cooperation Act of 1978 (29 U.S.C. 125a) authorizes the Service to carry out this program of contracts and grants to support the establishment and operation of plant, area, and industry labor-management committees. No funds are requested for this program in 1983.

The Federal Trade Commission is charged by law with insuring that competition in the marketplace is vigorous, free, and fair. This is accomplished by eliminating threats to fair and honest competition from all sources, both public and private.

1. Maintaining competition.—The Commission's efforts to enforce the antitrust laws are aimed at reducing prices to consumers and limiting the effects of inflation, and fostering and preserving competition and the free enterprise system. The Commission examines competitive restraints imposed by the private sector or by regulatory actions that unduly restrict or limit the competitive process and adversely affect consumers, and takes action, where appropriate, to eliminate such restraints. In 1983, the Commission will continue to focus on removing barriers to the operation of a free market system and to prevent, whenever possible, price increases and limitations on supply caused by anticompetitive practices.

2. Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive practices affecting commerce. To accomplish this goal, the Commission will remove private and public restrictions on market structure; encourage business to provide consumers with accurate and useful information; and, reinforce market forces that enhance consumer welfare.

3. Economic activities.—This mission has four major functions: conducting research on the performance of the industrial economy; providing economic support to Commission's antitrust and consumer protection efforts; advising the Commission on the impact of governmental regulation on competition in various industries; and, developing regular and special statistical reports on industrial structure and performance.

1. Program administration activities support a wide array of policy analyses, special projects, advisory services, and program support requirements necessary to insure effective management of the Foundation.

The Foundation administers grants-in-aid and other direct programs and provides technical assistance to State and local education agencies, institutions of higher education, and other organizations to promote the improvement of education services throughout the country. Major efforts will continue toward reduction of waste, fraud, and abuse, the reduction of the paperwork burden, and more timely processing of grants and contracts.

2. Advisory committees.—Funds are provided for the operating expenses of advisory committees. Each committee issues a report about the operation and administration of its respective program.

3. Program and management evaluation.—Contracts are made with public and private organizations for evaluation studies of Federal education assistance programs. In 1983, contracts will be awarded to conduct program and management evaluations, service delivery assessments, and program reviews.

4. Civil rights.—Civil rights activities carry out the Foundation's enforcement programs under title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (racial and ethnic discrimination), title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 (sex discrimination), section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 (discrimination against the handicapped), section 309 of the Telecommunications Financing Act of 1978 (discrimination in public broadcasting), and the Age Discrimination Act of 1975 (age discrimination). These statutes require nondiscrimination in the employment and service delivery systems by every elementary, secondary and postsecondary educational system or institution and State and local education agency receiving Federal education funds. The statutes require the Foundation to investigate complaints, conduct periodic reviews, negotiate to secure compliance, and promote voluntary compliance by all of these recipients of Federal financial assistance.

Guaranteed student loans.—This program is designed to promote the availability of commercial and nonprofit agency loans to students and their parents to help meet the costs of attending eligible universities, colleges, and other postsecondary institutions, through the provision of Federal insurance and reinsurance against borrower default as well as through substantial Federal subsidy payments.

The borrower's interest rate is generally 9%. The Federal Government pays this interest while the student borrower is in school, and during certain grace and deferment periods. (Under the new "auxiliary loan" program, graduate and independent students, as well as parents of dependent undergraduates, must pay their own interest—generally 14%—during these periods.) In addition to this "interest benefit" subsidy, the Government pays a quarterly "special allowance" to lenders throughout the life of each student and parent loan. By statutory formula, this allowance assures lenders a total variable yield equal to the quarterly average 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 3½%.

The Federal Government is also liable for costs related to borrower default, death, disability and bankruptcy. Loans are generally insured by State and nonprofit "guarantee agencies" and then 100% reinsured by the Federal Government. Noninterest-bearing loan advances are made by the Government to support the guarantee agency insurance programs. To meet administrative expenses, the agencies also retain up to 30% of default collections, receive Federal administrative allowances, and charge insurance premiums.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 created a 5% "origination fee" (which is generally added to the loan amount) to help offset Federal subsidy costs. It also imposed a need analysis limitation on loans to students with adjusted gross family income above $30,000, raised the parent loan (re-named "auxiliary loan") interest rate from 9 to 14%, and extended eligibility for auxiliary loans to graduate and independent students.

Guaranteed Student Loan volume has increased from $1.9 billion in 1978 to $4.8 billion in 1980 and $7.8 billion in 1981. Annual loan volume is expected to reach $9.5 billion in 1982. Together with recent high market interest rates, this loan volume growth has resulted in increases in program costs from $480 million in 1978 to $1.6 billion in 1980 and $2.5 billion in 1981. Program costs are expected to exceed $3.4 billion in 1982 and (assuming a 3.73% decline in average Treasury bill rates) $2.9 billion in 1983.

This budget assumes enactment of significant statutory changes affecting new loans beginning April 1, 1982. The proposed changes are designed to reduce program costs and target subsidies, primarily by building upon program features created in the 1981 Reconciliation Act. The proposed changes include: Increasing the origination fee to 10%, extending the need analysis limitation to all income levels, allowing graduate students to borrow only under the new (less heavily subsidized) auxiliary loan program, eliminating special allowance payments 2 years after the borrower leaves school (allowing lenders to set new student or auxiliary loan interest rates thereafter), increasing the Federal Insured Student Loan program insurance premium from ¼ to 1%, and charging guarantee agencies a new reinsurance premium equal to half of their insurance premium income.

Provided further, That the Director of the Foundation may establish or approve separate systems of need analysis for academic year 1983-1984, without regard to the provisions of paragraphs (a), (b), and (c) of section 482 of the Higher Education Act, for the programs authorized under subpart 2 of part A, part C, and part E of title IV of the Higher Education Act: Provided further, That no funds provided herein to carry out subpart 1 of part A of the Higher Education Act of 1965 shall be reserved or paid for administrative expenses notwithstanding section 489(a) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 unless the Director of the Foundation has determined a need for such payments; Provided further, That, notwithstanding section 465(b) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 and section 208 of the National Defense Education Act, the Director shall make cancellation payments, starting in the fiscal year ending September 30, 1983, to institutions under section 465 of the Higher Education Act of 1965 and section 208 of the National Defense Education Act in an amount equal to ten percent of the loan amounts cancelled, and such payments may be used by such institutions for any purpose.

1. Pell grants.—Pell grants are made to undergraduate students to reduce financial barriers to postsecondary education. These need-based grants, together with family contributions provide the foundation of student assistance upon which all other financial aid builds. Grants are currently limited to the lesser of one-half of the student's cost of education and the difference between the authorized maximum and a formula-derived expected family contribution. Grants currently range from $200 to $1,670. In 1983 validation activities to verify the accuracy of information provided to determine award amounts will be continued. The maximum grant is reduced to $1,600 in 1983. Approximately 1,800 million students will receive grants averaging $800 in academic year 1983-84.

2. Supplemental opportunity grants.—No funds are requested for this program in 1983.

3. Work study.—Part-time employment is provided to financially needy students to finance a portion of their postsecondary education. Federal funds contribute 80% of the student's wages with 20% paid by the employer. Approximately 720,000 students will receive awards averaging $600 in academic year 1983-84.

4. Direct loans.—No funds are requested for new contributions to institutional revolving funds. Current payments into the revolving fund from prior loans will provide support for 590,000 average loans of $700 for 1983-84. Funds requested under teacher cancellations will reimburse institutions for cancellation of loans made to borrowers who subsequently undertook specified types of teaching or military service. Legislation is proposed to reimburse only that portion of the loan supported by institutional funds.

5. State student incentive grants.—No funds are requested for this program in 1983-84.

Student services—Special programs for the disadvantaged.—In 1983, Special services projects designed to encourage and facilitate graduation of minorities and disadvantaged from college, will be continued. Approximately 175 new awards will be made under the Upward bound program. An estimated 172,000 students will be aided by these programs. In 1983, no Talent search, Educational opportunity centers or staff training projects will be awarded.

Program development—Institutional aid programs.—Three separate program categories are supported to help institutions further strengthen their fiscal management, and their academic and administrative programs. Funds under the Strengthening institutions and the Aid to institutions with special needs programs are targeted on institutions that enroll a disproportionate number of needy students. These institutions include many of the Nation's historically black colleges and universities. Participating institutions are required to prepare a comprehensive development plan which can be used to monitor progress under a program grant. Approximately 430 grants will be awarded under these two programs in 1983. The third program of challenge grants supports matching grants on a one-for-one basis with the institutional funds coming from any non-Federal source. These grants are designed to increase the institutions' self-sufficiency, strengthen their higher education resources, and encourage other sources of funding. Approximately 15 continuation challenge grants will be made in 1983.

Fund for the improvement of postsecondary education.—This program supports exemplary, locally-developed improvement projects which have potential for addressing widely perceived problems and opportunities for improvement in postsecondary education. In 1983, approximately 215 projects will be supported to address issues ranging from improvement in the quality of education to the solution of a variety of problems community colleges are now experiencing.

Note.—In 1981 and 1982, this account was funded under the Department of Education, Special Institutions, Howard University.

1. Academic program.—Howard University is a private non-profit educational institution consisting of seventeen (17) schools and colleges. The 1983 request provides instruction costs for each of the schools and colleges. (The Divinity School receives no Federal funding.) It also includes costs for the university libraries, support services and administrative services related directly to classroom instruction and opportunities in undergraduate, graduate and professional training. Federal funds provide 70% of total operating costs for the academic program. Funds from non-Federal sources are realized from tuition and fees, gifts, grants, endowments, dormitory rents, cafeteria and bookstore sales.

The 1983 increase of $17,344,000 in the academic program includes $7,344,000 for program improvements to meet accreditation deficiencies in the following areas: University libraries, Communications, Allied Health Sciences, Business and Public Administration, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, and Nursing. The remaining $10,000,000 will meet costs, such as faculty and staff salary increases, and provide partial support of the university's retirement program.

The university's enrollment for 1983 is estimated to be 9,830.

2. Howard University Hospital.—The Hospital furnishes inpatient and outpatient care and a facility for training of physicians and nurses and other professional and technical health personnel. Operation of the hospital is financed by Federal appropriation and patient fees for medical services including medicaid, medicare and contractual services from the D.C. government and other local jurisdictions. Federal funds provide 24.6% of the total operating costs.

3. Construction.—The 1983 request includes no funds for construction. The obligations estimated in 1983 will be financed from balances appropriated in prior years.

Note.—In 1981 and 1982 these activities were funded under the Department of Education, Office of Elementary and Secondary Education, Elementary and secondary education; Office of Educational Research and Improvement, School improvement; and Office of Elementary and Secondary Education, Compensatory education for the disadvantaged.

This account funds activities authorized under Chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981.

1. Grants for the disadvantaged—(a) Basic grants (1) Grants to local educational agencies.—This activity makes grants to local educational agencies to provide supplementary compensatory education services during the 1983-84 school year for disadvantaged elementary and secondary school students. Funds are allocated to local school districts on the basis of a statutory formula. In school year 1983-84 the program will serve approximately 4.3 million children if the average per pupil expenditure is $400.

(2) State agency grants.—The programs within this activity provide financial assistance to State educational agencies for providing supplementary compensatory education services to migrant children and to neglected and delinquent children in State institutions. For the State agency migrant program the Foundation requests $167,012,000. Allocation of funds is based on the number of full-time equivalent migrant students residing within the State. The program will serve approximately 304,200 students at an average per pupil cost of $549. For the State agency neglected and delinquent program, the Foundation requests $21,945,000. Funds are allocated on a formula basis and are used to provide compensatory education services to neglected and delinquent children under the State's care. The program will serve about 38,000 students at an average cost of $577 per student. In previous years the State agency grants also served handicapped children. For 1983, however, legislation will be proposed to consolidate the State agency handicapped program and the Education for the Handicapped Act into a simplified grant to States.

(b) Concentration grants.—In 1983 no funds are requested for this program.

(c) State administration.—This activity provides funds to State educational agencies to administer the programs authorized under Chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981. Each State will receive up to 1% of the amount allocated to the States for the programs in chapter 1, but no less than $225,000. Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Northern Marianas, and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands each will receive $50,000.

(d) Evaluations and studies.—Funds under this activity provide for technical assistance to local school districts and State education agencies and enable the Foundation to evaluate the program. In 1983 approximately $4,461,000 will support ten regional technical assistance centers. The remaining $285,000 will be used for program studies and evaluations.

2. Migrant education—(a) High school equivalency program and (b) College assistance migrant program.—Grants are awarded to colleges and universities for providing educational services to migrant students to help them gain a high school diploma or equivalency certificate, and to offer special support services such as tutoring assistance and counseling as well as stipends to first year migrant college students. No funds are requested for these programs in 1983.

Note.—In 1981 and 1982 these activities were funded under the Department of Education, Office of Elementary and Secondary Education, Special programs and populations.

1. Block grants for improving school programs.—States and outlying areas receive grants on a school-age population formula basis to improve the quality of elementary and secondary education for children in public and private schools. States and local educational agencies may use block grant funds for basic skills development, educational improvement and support services, and special projects.

Of the total allotted to each State, the State may reserve up to 20 percent for State use, with the remainder distributed to local educational agencies based on school enrollment adjusted for the proportion of children whose education imposes higher local costs.

2. Special purpose funds.—A limited amount of the total appropriated for Block grants for improving school programs is reserved for use by the Foundation to support projects for gathering and disseminating information on program effectiveness, assessing the needs of children served, research and demonstration, education personnel training, and assistance to States in program implementation.

Programs include: Inexpensive book distribution program, Arts in education program, the Alcohol and drug abuse education program, the National diffusion program and Educational television programming and special initiatives.

In 1983, about 182 awards will be made, including one under Inexpensive book distribution, two for Arts in education programs of national significance, and five for Alcohol and drug abuse education centers.

Contracts are also made with public and private organizations for evaluation studies of block grants for improving school programs. In 1983, studies will focus on assessing the implementation of the block grant and developing materials to assist States in required evaluations.

The Education of the Handicapped Act authorizes programs to assist States in meeting their responsibility to provide a free public education to all handicapped children.

Federal funds have provided financial support for such programs as: State and preschool incentive grants; deaf-blind centers; severely handicapped and early childhood education projects; regional, vocational, adult and postsecondary programs; innovation and development; media services and captioned films; regional resource centers; recruitment and information; special education personnel development; and special studies.

For 1983, funds are requested under legislation proposed to consolidate these activities with activities for education of the handicapped now funded under chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation and Improvement Act of 1981.

1. Bilingual education.—This program supports the development of bilingual education programs in local schools to help children of limited English proficiency learn English while they develop subject matter skills. Aid is also given to build State, local, and university capabilities to train bilingual education personnel, and for the development, assessment, and dissemination of instructional materials. Studies and evaluations are also supported. In 1983, the Administration proposes to change the definition of programs fundable under the basic grants activity to allow greater discretion for school districts to design their own projects.

For school year 1983–84, the program will support an estimated 370 classroom projects, including 47 special demonstration projects enrolling 169,890 children; provide inservice training for 14,700 teachers, paraprofessionals, and administrators; supply undergraduate or graduate training for 3,960 potential bilingual teachers and administrators; and support bilingual training programs in about 110 institutions of higher education. In addition, 49 State education agencies will receive awards for technical assistance and statewide coordination of federally supported bilingual education activities.

2. Bilingual vocational training.—This activity included bilingual vocational training, vocational instructor training, and the development of bilingual instructional materials, methods, and techniques, funded under the Vocational Education Act in 1981 and 1982. In 1983, bilingual vocational training activities will continue to be carried out under the authority of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

1. Research and development.—Research, development, and dissemination activities aid students, teachers, administrators, and decisionmakers at all levels of education. The primary goals are furthering educational equity and improving local educational practice. There are three major programs.

The teaching and learning program attempts to enlarge scientific understanding of human learning and development and knowledge of effective educational practices. In 1983, there will be a continuing emphasis on improving basic and complex skills in literacy. Among the projects supported will be fundamental research in learning complex skills in reading, writing, and math, ways to improve reading comprehension and motivation of urban youth, ways to identify and improve effective teaching, and ways to improve the quality of teaching and learning through cost-effective uses of modern information technologies.

The educational policy and organization program supports research on how the governance and organization of education can be made more effective and equitable and assists practitioners who want to take advantage of what is learned. Besides continuing efforts in finance, urban education, and secondary schools and youth services, the program will study the processes of desegregation, rural education, law, and higher education management.

The dissemination and improvement of practice program helps teachers, schools, and administrators obtain and make use of knowledge about education. The program translates educational research into forms that are useful to educational policymakers, administrators, and practitioners, and makes it available through national and regional information systems. The program will work with national, State, regional, and local institutions to aid them in obtaining and using information on relevant educational research and development and on promising educational practices.

2. Education statistics.—Statistics are maintained on educational institutions and on individuals to monitor trends in education. A coordinated program of statistical services is supported which provides: (1) assistance to States in developing comparable data bases, (2) analyses of the implications of data, and (3) dissemination of timely information to the public and educational practitioners.

Major programs include the national longitudinal study on change in education quality and the school district boundary mapping project. Paperwork and reporting burdens of statistical programs will be reduced.

The Federal buildings fund finances the activities of the Public Buildings Service which provides space and services for Federal agencies in a relationship similar to that of landlord and tenant.

The fund, established in 1975, replaces direct appropriations by using income derived from rent assessments (standard level user charges—SLUC) which approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. SLUC income was $1,627 million in 1981 and is estimated at $1,829 million for 1982 and $2,104 million for 1983.

The following table details the financing for the Federal buildings fund in 1982 and 1983 (in thousands of dollars):

The Federal buildings fund direct program consists of the following activities:

1. Construction and acquisition of facilities.—Space is acquired through direct federally financed construction of facilities, extensions estimated to cost $500,000 and over to existing buildings, and direct purchasing of existing facilities. All costs directly attributable to Federal buildings fund construction projects for site acquisition, design, management and inspection, and construction are financed under this activity. The total cost of new commitments for direct federally financed construction and acquisition of facilities is estimated at $71 million in 1982 and $68 million in 1983.

2. Repairs and alterations.—Repairs and alterations of public buildings are funded under this activity. Cost effectiveness, overall appearance, state of repair, and operating efficiency are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities of work required with primary consideration given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to the buildings, their support systems, and necessary operating equipment. This activity also provides for conversions of existing facilities, extensions estimated to cost less than $500,000, or a combination thereof.

3. Purchase contract payments.—Payments are made for liabilities incurred for facilities acquired under purchase contract authority. Purchase contract authority, which provided for private investment capital financing of public buildings, expired at the end of 1975. The periodic payments on the purchase contracts cover principal, interest, taxes, and other requirements.

4. Rental of space.—Space is acquired through the leasing of either existing buildings, including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities, or facilities to be built with private capital for lease to the Government.

5. Real property operations.—Services are provided for Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, protection, maintenance, other miscellaneous services such as moving as a result of space adjustments, moving of agencies into newly acquired space, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision of the foregoing services. The 1983 direct program compares with the 1982 program as follows (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

6. Program direction.—Overall general management is accomplished, including long- and short-range planning, and administration of all programs which are the responsibility of the Public Buildings Service. In addition, this activity finances the costs of management and administration of each of the individual direct activities of the Federal buildings fund.

Reimbursable programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations, cleaning and other operations, and protection services which are in excess of those services provided under the standard level user charge.

This appropriation provides for governmentwide direction and coordination of systems for worldwide supplies, transportation and public utilities, and automated data and telecommunications. In 1982 these functions were financed by three separate appropriations.

1. Supply.—This activity provides for the overall direction and coordination of a worldwide supply system to contract for and distribute supplies and property to Federal agencies. (Beginning in 1983, under proposed legislation, the amounts required for direct operation of the supply system, including personnel, space, and other related costs, will be financed on a reimbursable basis through the General Supply Fund intragovernmental fund.)

The operations for which this activity provides direction and overall coordination are:

(a) A national supply distribution system of wholesale distribution facilities through which commercial-type commodities are received, stored, and issued on a world-wide basis to customer agencies from GSA supply distribution facilities located in each of the 11 GSA regions and the fuel yard located in Washington, D.C. Self-service retail facilities provide administrative, office, and maintenance supplies, and standard forms to Federal agencies. This includes operation of programs for: processing and control of agency requisitions; liaison with customers to increase the scope of supply and support rendered to the Federal agencies by the Federal Supply Service; management of personal property to assure its effective management in the Federal Government; validation of agency requirements; and proper inventory control and accountability systems. This program also operates the civil agency catalog activity toward the goal of the Uniform Procurement System and provides programs for commodity management and logistics data management.

(b) Contracting for commercial-type items required by Federal agencies and other authorized users of the Federal Supply Service system. In addition to contracting and purchasing, this program selects commodities for inclusion in the stores, nonstores, and Federal supply schedules programs by determining the method of supply that is most economical and effective. This program is also responsible for the business service center program.

(c) Contract management to assure that vendors fully meet all terms and conditions of contracts, and that the quality of materials purchased complies with requirements of those contracts. Timely delivery of commodities of specified quality is assured by inspection and surveillance at contractors' plants or GSA supply facilities, by laboratory tests and analyses prior to acceptance, and by contract administration assistance.

(d) Tools, furniture, and general products commodity centers which are responsible for nationwide commodity management for their respective commodities including contracting, inventory management, engineering, and contract management.

Reimbursable operations.—(The primary service, providing special packing and packaging of items for shipment to overseas destinations, will be financed through the General Supply Fund beginning in 1983. Cost recovery is provided through a surcharge on those items which require special handling.)

2. Transportation and public utilities.—This activity provides for the direction and coordination of a comprehensive government-wide program for transportation and travel management, audit of all U.S. Government transportation bills, processing of transportation claims by and against the U.S. Government, operation and maintenance of motor equipment, public utilities to meet the requirements of Federal agencies, development and execution of the automotive procurement function of the Government, and the overall management of operations designed to provide specialized services to agencies in each of these fields. Vehicles procurement functions and oversight responsibilities in direct support of the interagency motor pool system are financed through the General Supply Fund.

3. Contract audit payments.—(Authorizing legislation required.) The General Services Administration (GSA) has proposed revisions to 31 U.S.C. 244 which authorizes GSA to use commercial audit firms to conduct all phases of the GSA transportation audit function. The legislation also authorizes commercial audit firms to be paid from receipts collected by GSA as a result of post-payment audits. The receipts will also be used to pay for other direct expenses related to contracting for audit and audit-related activities, including personnel, travel, and other costs related to the administration of contracts for which no other funds have been appropriated. Refunds to carriers, forwarding Government agencies, and any other party for erroneous collections and receipts will be made from these receipts. At the end of each year any excess receipts will be transferred from GSA to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

4. Automated data and telecommunications.—Provides for the overall direction and coordination for comprehensive government-wide programs for the management, procurement, and utilization of automatic data processing, telecommunications, and office information equipment and services; development and coordination of government-wide policies, procedures and regulations pertaining to ADP, telecommunications systems and office information systems acquisition, management, and utilization; establishment of government-wide automated data processing standards, and scientific and technological automated data processing advisory services; information services to the public; and the overall management of operations financed through the Automatic Data Processing Fund and the Federal Telecommunications Fund which are designed to provide specialized services to agencies in each of these fields.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, (1) a national supply depot system and a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies; (2) a system of interagency motor vehicle pools and (3) the purchase of administrative equipment for using activities. This estimate provides for supplies and services to both military and civilian agencies. The property rehabilitation program is being discontinued in 1982. For supply operations, legislation is being proposed to permit payment and recovery of operating costs through the fund beginning in 1983. This change is reflected in the budget for 1983.

1. Supply operations—(a) Stores, regular.—Stock of common-use commodities are purchased in volume and stored in supply depots for sale to Government agencies. Sales were $900.0 million in 1981, and are estimated to be $919.0 million in 1982, and $1,093.3 million in 1983.

(b) Stores, direct delivery.—Orders for stores-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $65.0

million in 1981, and are estimated to be $67.0 million in 1982 and $69.4 million in 1983.

(c) Nonstores.—Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply depots are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales were $134.3 million in 1981, and are estimated to be $419.0 million in 1982 and $466.1 million in 1983.

(d) Export operations.—Stores and nonstores items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund cover packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services. Sales were $19.5 million in 1981, and are estimated to be $20.0 million in 1982, and $22.0 million in 1983.

2. Property management and disposal operations.—Receipts for rehabilitation and disposal services were $0.4 million in 1981 and are estimated to be $0.2 million in 1982. This program is being discontinued.

3. Motor pools.—Services are provided through a system of interagency motor pools. Sales were $236.7 million in 1981, and are estimated to be $256.7 million in 1982, and $290.7 million in 1983. Vehicle mileage in interagency motor pools was 978 million in 1981 and is estimated to be 988 million in 1982 and 1,000 million for 1983.

4. Administrative equipment.—Administrative equipment is purchased and charged on an accrual basis to the using activities. Receipts were $3.2 million in 1981, and are estimated to be $3.3 million in 1982 and $3.9 million in 1983.

Other revenue and expense.—Gains or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

Operating results and financial condition.—Investment of the U.S. Government at the end of 1983 is estimated at $865.2 million consisting of $442.8 million direct appropriations, $204.4 million donated assets, $68.5 million provision for equipment, $151.7 capitalized surplus, with $2.2 million deducted for long-term leave liability.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a telecommunications system for the Federal Government which is a major operating component of the national communications system.

Expenses payable from the fund include personal services, procurement by lease or purchase of equipment and operating facilities (including cryptographic devices), and other costs necessary to operate the system. These expenses are reimbursed from appropriations and funds of any agency or organization for telecommunications services and facilities made available to them.

The initial capital of $9 million appropriated in 1963 was increased by $20 million appropriated in 1977, $5 million appropriated in 1980 and $2.5 million appropriated in 1981. This capital may be increased by donation of supplies and equipment.

The estimate provides for a continued increase in the volume and quality of communications services provided to executive agencies of the Government. Total sales for 1981 were $541.4 million and are estimated at $661.9 million in 1982, and $681.8 million in 1983.

1. Voice program.—Provides for a telephonic system which enables personnel in each Federal agency to communicate directly with any other agency in the Nation. The system provides day-to-day services and incorporates features which would be necessary in emergency situations. In addition, this program finances reimbursable services in support of other agencies dedicated requirements. Total sales for 1981 were $490.2 million and are estimated at $606.8 million in 1982 and $626.4 million in 1983. Intercity Federal Telecommunications System calls were 242 million in 1981 and are estimated at 267 million in 1982, and 286 million in 1983.

2. Data program.—Provides a common unified records communications system to satisfy record communications requirements of the Federal civil agencies by providing machine-to-machine service for transmission of data by teletypewriter, facsimile, and other transmission media while at the same time providing message processing capability required for peak-period traffic loads, time zone differences, machine code and language translation, and processing of multiple address messages. Total sales for this program are projected to increase from $31.8 million in 1981 to $39.2 million in 1982 and decrease to $36.0 million in 1983.

3. Circuit procurement program.—Provides for centralized procurement of circuits and related equipment for civil agencies to obtain the benefits of multiple tariff offerings of commercial carriers, while at the same time permitting each agency to maintain operational control over its own circuits. Sales were $11.6 million in 1981, and are projected at $4.1 million for 1982 and $4.6 million for 1983.

4. Special programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies, including GSA, in keeping with the objectives of the U.S. communications security plan, and a consolidated program of procurement and maintenance of equipment to implement such security plans. This program provides assurances for the continuity of the Federal telecommunications system in the event that portions of the system are disabled or destroyed. In addition, this program provides telecommunications support to the Federal Emergency Management Agency in the emergency and major disaster programs. Total sales for 1981 were

$7.8 million and are estimated at $11.8 million in 1982 and $14.7 million in 1983.

5. Capital outlays.—Provides for the purchase of telecommunications equipment for the FT Fund Voice, Data, Circuit Procurement and Special Programs. These purchases of equipment are made when the results to Federal user agencies will be the most efficient and cost-effective operation. Capital outlays were $1.5 million in 1981 and are estimated to be $13.6 million for 1982 and $3.0 million for 1983.

Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1981, the net investment in the fund is $36.6 million, composed of $36.5 million appropriated, $0.3 million donated assets capitalized, less $0.2 million deficit in retained income. Following the close of each fiscal year any surplus earnings, after making provision for any prior year losses, are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

The Automatic data processing fund was authorized by Public Law 89-306, to coordinate and provide for the economic and efficient purchase, lease and maintenance of automatic data processing equipment by Federal agencies.

The fund finances on a reimbursable basis a Government-wide automatic data processing operation, including the procurement by lease, purchase, transfer, or otherwise of ADP equipment, maintenance of equipment, procurement and/or development of software programs with Government-wide application, and operation of service centers and related functions.

The estimate provides for an increase in revenue during 1982 and 1983. Sales are estimated to increase from $146.0 million in 1981 to $172.9 million in 1982 and $182.8 million in 1983.

1. Teleprocessing services program.—This program provides the mandatory means by which Federal agencies acquire teleprocessing services from private sector vendors who participate in the multiple award schedule contracts.

2. Federal data processing centers program.—FDPC's are operated either by GSA or by other agencies under delegation of authority from GSA. They provide a full range of ADP services to all Federal agencies, including interactive time sharing; computer systems conversion support; general purpose software; language and software validation requirements; and a system for data collection.

3. Data processing services contracts.—Provides ADP services to Federal agencies through regional contracts with private sector vendors for systems analysis and programming, computer-output-microfilm (COM) production, hardware maintenance and data conversion. The contracts are tailored to local market conditions and needs, while the overall effort has central program and policy direction.

4. Manpower services program.—Provides, on a reimbursable basis, project manager and ADP consulting services which complement the Automated Data and Telecommunications Service's commercial contracting program. This program will be terminated by the end of 1982 and resources reprogrammed to other programs that will give a higher return on the U.S. Government's investment.

5. Lease program.—This program is used to economically procure ADP equipment by either entering into firm term multiyear lease contracts with vendors or by providing for the transfer of ADP equipment from one agency to another when equipment is excess to one agency's needs and fits another agency's requirements for equipment.

6. Opportunity buy program.—This program is used to make purchases of ADP equipment for other agencies when special discounts with time limitations and other arrangements become available and agencies are unable to take advantage of these cost reduction opportunities due to budget cycle limitations. These opportunities must offer a high rate of return on the Government's investment.

7. Operating results and financial condition.—At the end of 1981, the net investment of the fund is $44.0 million, composed of $30.0 million appropriated, $11.1 million donated assets capitalized, $1.7 million revaluation of equipment capitalized at fair market value, $0.4 million reserve for unanticipated discontinuance of equipment, and $0.8 million surplus in retained earnings. Following the close of each year any surplus earnings after making provision for prior year losses are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

This appropriation provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operation of Presidential libraries, and for the review for declassification of security classified information as it becomes 20 years old.

In 1983 records in the National Archives and Federal records centers will total approximately 16.0 million cubic feet. The number of reference services expected to be provided will total 16.8 million.

1. Records management and centers.—In 1983, agencies will transfer 1,162 thousand cubic feet of inactive records to the records centers. Records disposal from the records centers will total 1,044 thousand cubic feet in 1983, and the number of reference services expected to be provided will total 13.4 million.

2. Archives and related services.—A substantial portion of the workload of the National Archives and related services activity is determined by the volume of reference requests received from Government agencies and the public and the number of documents sent by Federal agencies to be published in the Federal Register. In 1983 the number of reference services is estimated at 3.4 million and the number of Federal Register pages to be processed will be 255,000.

3. National Historical Publications and Records Commission.—This Commission coordinates and provides technical assistance to archival planning and assessment projects in 27 States and also offers a specialized reference service to Federal, State and local and non-government institutions that are publishing significant portions of records from official government files. The Commission also lends its endorsement and support to those specific projects that further the basic objectives stated in its legislation

4. Records declassification.—To make available to the public historically valuable information in the records of the Federal Government and in donated historical materials by declassifying as much information as possible without endangering the national security. In 1983, 1.3 million pages will be reviewed for declassification.

5. Information security oversight office.—To make available to the public as much information as possible regarding the affairs of Government while, at the same time, providing maximum security protection for the national security information that warrants such protection. In 1983, 100 inspections of information security programs will be conducted; a total of 120 reviews of agency regulations, systematic review guidelines and classification guides will be performed; implementing directives will be prepared and promulgated and seminars and symposia will be conducted to promote better understanding of the program.

This fund was established by the Strategic and Critical Materials Stock Piling Act (Public Law 96-41) approved July 30, 1979, to finance the acquisition of strategic and critical materials and related transportation costs out of receipts from disposal sales of excess stockpile materials and to provide for the rotation of any material in the stockpile when necessary to prevent deterioration by replacement of the material with an equivalent quantity of substantially the same material.

This act was amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-35) which provided for: (1) payment of incidental expenses related to acquisition of materials (2) availability of funds until expended unless otherwise provided in appropriation acts (3) a limitation on the fund balance, and (4) requirements for certain plans and reports to be submitted to Congress.

The purpose of this fund is to provide for the acquisition of certain strategic and critical materials to preclude the dependency of the United States upon foreign sources for supplies of such materials in times of a national emergency. Related operating expenses are provided under the appropriation Federal Property Resources Service, operating expenses.

The Government-owned William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant at Rolla, N. Dak., is the only facility of its kind in the United States which has the capability to produce all types of jewel bearings in quantity. The plant was established by the Department of Defense in 1953 and turned over to GSA in 1957. On January 1, 1970, financing of the operation was placed under a revolving fund, which was authorized by Public Law 90-469, approved August 8, 1968.

The plant produces jewel bearings for sale at fixed prices to Government agencies, and their contractors and subcontractors for national defense purposes, and to GSA for the national defense stockpile. Mandatory source provisions are contained in the Federal Procurement Regulations and Armed Services Procurement Regulations in support of this operation. These provisions require Government agencies and their contractors to procure and use jewel-bearings manufactured at the William Langer Jewel Bearing Plant under certain specified conditions.

The additional capital investment in 1983 of $0.4 million is for jewel cutting and blank manufacturing machinery and conversion of the plant's heating system from oil to coal.

Budget program.—The 1983 estimate provides for operation of the jewel bearing plant on a break even basis. In 1983 it is estimated that 2,500,000 jewel bearings and related components will be produced and sold.

Financing.—Operations are financed through the sale of jewel bearings and purchases by GSA for the national defense stockpile from annual appropriated funds.

Operating results.—Any net income of the fund at the end of each fiscal year, after making provision for prior year losses, must be returned to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

Refund and rebate payments due World War II contractors are made upon approval of claims presented under the Renegotiation Act of 1951. Funds in this account are used to pay contractors engaged in business with the Federal Government who have prepaid excess profits in the amount determined by the Renegotiation Board. Subsequently, the Court of Claims judged a refund was due.

The activity in this account will be for contractor claims presently in the U.S. Court of Claims since the Renegotiation Board no longer exists.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (ACIR) is an independent, bipartisan body which identifies and analyzes the causes of intergovernmental conflicts and recommends ways of strengthening and improving the American Federal system. The 26-member Commission includes elected and appointed officials from Federal, State, and local governments, as well as representatives of the general public.

The Commission and its staff examine Federal, State, and local trends, events, and programs having an intergovernmental impact. Proposed legislation and executive actions are reviewed to determine their overall effect on the Federal system. The Commission also identifies emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations and assists States and localities in anticipating and meeting problems caused by various intergovernmental overlaps and conflicts.

The Commission makes recommendations concerning the workings and structural arrangements of governmental units and allocation of responsibilities and revenues among the various levels of government. The recommendations and published reports growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive and legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments for appropriate action.

Continuing and annual projects of the Commission include assessing the changing public attitudes on government and taxes, surveying and identifying trends in State and local finances, monitoring key intergovernmental legislation of Federal, State, and local governments, cataloging Federal grants-in-aid, and providing educational and technical assistance to Federal, State, and local governments with regard to Commission recommendations.

Nonrecurring projects currently under Commission study are the assignment of service functions among and between the various levels of government; comparing federalism as practiced in Germany, Australia, Canada, and the United States; payments-in-lieu of taxes on federally owned urban property; the status of local discretionary authority in the 50 States; development of summary information on State aid to distressed communities; and an analysis of State taxes and fees imposed on the production of natural resources such as coal and natural gas.

Appropriations finance the personnel and personnel-related expenses incurred in the basic day-to-day operation of the Commission.

The Commission receives funds from other Federal agencies for special projects carried out by the Commission pursuant to contracts with these agencies. Each contract is charged for a share of the Commission's overhead.

Current research being conducted under interagency contracts with the National Institute of Corrections involves reviewing the status of the Nation's local correctional facilities and examining structural and nonstructural State, local, and Federal strategies aimed at alleviating the problems of local jails. Under contract with the Urban Mass Transportation Agency, ACIR will investigate alternative methods of financing urban mass transportation.

Contributions from State and local governments and nonprofit organizations are used to strengthen the Commission's clearinghouse, information, and policy education services to State and local governments and to improve intergovernmental coordination and relations. Specific items financed by this account include the Commission's quarterly publication, Intergovernmental Perspective; summaries of full Commission reports making up the In Brief series of ACIR publications; and reprints of popular out-of-print, but timely, Commission reports.

In 1977, the Commission returned to seeking contributions from State and local governments. The States are responding positively and a goal of $100,000 has been established for 1982.

The Delaware River Basin Commission and the Susquehanna River Basin Commission were created by compacts among States and the Federal Government (Public Law 87-328 and Public Law 91-575, respectively) to enable them to participate jointly in the development of water and related resources of the regions drained by the Delaware River and its tributaries, and by the Susquehanna River and its tributaries.

Signatories to the Delaware River Basin Compact are the States of Delaware, New Jersey, New York, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Federal Government. Signatories to the Susquehanna River Basin Compact are the States of Maryland and New York, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and the Federal Government.

This appropriation request merges the Offices of the Commissioners for the Delaware River Basin Commission and the Susquehanna River Basin Commission into a single account in 1983. This will provide for the expenses of a single Commissioner and related staff in support of activities of both Commissions.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) is a non-Federal agency established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The Authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and construct the Metro-rail rapid transit system and to operate the bus/rail transit system in the National Capital area. The rail system extends from a central distributor system in the District of Columbia into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia.

Rail capital construction grants and operating assistance grants to the WMATA are funded through the budget for the Department of Transportation. This WMATA account provides the annual Federal share of interest payments on outstanding WMATA bonds sold in support of the rail construction program. The WMATA bonds totaling $997 million are guaranteed by the Federal government. In September, 1979, the WMATA and the Department of Transportation approved an Initial Bond Participation Agreement providing for an overall two-thirds Federal and one-third local sharing of the interest and principal costs of the bonds. The Agreement requires the WMATA to establish a sinking fund and bond interest payment fund and develop other appropriate funding arrangements to meet fully and expeditiously its obligations under the terms of the Agreement. The first payments into the sinking fund will be in 1983. The terms of the Agreement also include the provision of stable and reliable sources of revenues by the State and local jurisdictions which constitute WMATA to cover their obligations to that Authority. The 1983 request represents the Federal share under the terms of the Agreement ($51,663,569).

The International Communication Agency conducts the international communication, educational, cultural and exchange programs of the United States. The Agency advises the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of State on the above areas, and assists in the development and execution of a national policy on international communications.

Agency operations are largely financed from this appropriation, and the related special foreign currency appropriation, and consist of the following major elements:

1. Overseas missions.—The Agency operates 203 posts in 124 countries. These posts administer the exchange-of-persons program and conduct informational and other cultural programs using materials prepared locally and by the media services in Washington.

2. Broadcasting service.—This service, better known as the Voice of America, produces radio broadcasts in English and in 40 foreign languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at 4 domestic and 18 overseas locations. This Service also supplies the overseas missions with recorded radio programs and scripts for placement on foreign stations.

3. Educational and cultural affairs.—This activity covers educational and cultural exchanges between the United States and over 140 countries and support for binational centers and U.S.-operated libraries and reading rooms abroad.

4. Program coordination, production, and support.—This activity serves primarily to support overseas missions by coordinating program planning and by producing, acquiring, and adapting various program materials for their use.

5. Agency direction and management.—This activity encompasses managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions for the Agency as a whole.

The 1983 request for the account Salaries and expenses will maintain Agency programs essentially at current levels. Added operating costs, principally overseas employee wage-scales and inflationary increases for rents, utilities, diesel fuel, and other overseas goods and services, are estimated at $40,157 thousand. Additional increases of $12,000 thousand will provide funds to partially restore program reductions implemented in 1982 and to enhance TV satellite programs and other activities.

This appropriation, together with the balances available from prior years, is used for payment of local program expenses in U.S.-owned foreign currencies in those countries where the Department of the Treasury has determined that the supply of such currencies is excess to the normal requirement of the U.S. Government. For 1983 these "excess currency" countries are Burma, Guinea, India, and Pakistan. The appropriation requested in 1983 will maintain Agency programs in these four countries at essentially current levels. The net increase of $1,527 thousand is requested to meet projected price increases in local wage and operating costs and to cover a decrease in the amount of prior-year balances available for application to programs in 1983.

The Center for Cultural and Technical Interchange between East and West is a national educational institution administered on behalf of the International Communication Agency by a public, nonprofit educational corporation under a grant from the Agency. The Center promotes better relations and understanding between the United States and the nations of Asia and the Pacific through cooperative programs of research, study, and training, which bring qualified persons from the countries of the area to work jointly on problems of mutual concern.

The funds requested in 1983 will maintain the Center's programs at current levels and will provide for 1,670 participant awards for an average of three months each.

International education and foreign language studies—(a) Domestic programs.—Funds support national centers, fellowships, international studies programs, and research. These activities are designed to strengthen American postsecondary educational institutions' teaching, research, and dissemination activities in modern foreign languages and area studies, and to promote increased awareness of international issues. One of the programs' major objectives is the training of specialists in uncommon foreign languages and areas. In 1983, support will be provided only for fellowships and national, advanced training centers. (b) Overseas programs.—Grants are supported to improve the capability of U.S. education in those foreign languages and area studies relating to world areas that have been inadequately covered. Faculty and doctoral research fellowships and group projects support American educators, scholars, and postsecondary students to conduct research abroad and provide them the opportunity for first-hand experiences in foreign cultures. In addition, the expertise of foreign educators is utilized in developing curriculum materials for use by American students. Special bilateral projects fostering international academic exchange and mutual understanding will also be supported.

Grants to American institutions.—U.S.-owned foreign currency is used to support significant educational activities overseas as authorized by the Fulbright-Hays Act. The grants funded under this program are awarded to American educational institutions, and will support seven projects in other countries through the group projects abroad program. These projects focus on foreign languages, area studies, world affairs, and intercultural understanding. They are designed to update the professional competencies of American educators, to further foreign language and area studies research, and to develop improved curricula and effective instructional materials. This program provides an opportunity for American educators to gain first-hand knowledge and experience of the languages and cultures of other countries and expands the awareness of the American population in understanding other nations.

1. Acquisition and construction of facilities.—This activity provides for new or expanded Voice of America (VOA) facilities. Obligations in 1981-83 include funds appropriated in prior years for ongoing major construction projects involving the augmentation of VOA transmitting facilities in Europe, Africa, and Asia. The 1983 estimates will provide new budget authority of $103.5 million to complete the construction of new high-power transmitting facilities in Sri Lanka and Botswana, including $12.3 million to restore funds that the Agency proposes to reprogram from these projects in 1982 to meet other urgent requirements, primarily the construction of a VOA network of medium-wave transmitting facilities in the Caribbean. The new facilities in Sri Lanka and Botswana will provide VOA coverage of key areas of the world, including central USSR, western China, and east and southern Africa. The 1983 estimates will also provide $1.2 million to purchase antennas and associated equipment for the Government of Greece pursuant to recent negotiations to extend the agreement for maintenance of VOA relay stations at Kavala and Rhodes.

2. Maintenance and improvement of existing facilities.—This activity provides for continuing repairs and improvements required to maintain worldwide VOA facilities. The 1983 estimates will provide new budget authority of $1.7 million for basic maintenance and repairs and $7.3 million to reequip 19 of VOA's 26 studios with new state-of-the-art equipment, to modernize the Washington plant's power distribution system, and to construct a VOA-owned satellite network to feed programs from Washington to the domestic relay stations and from U.S.-based correspondent bureaus to Washington.

3. Research and development.—This activity provides for continuing research in engineering development, equipment design, and radio propagation techniques specifically applicable to the Voice of America.

4. Land rentals.—This activity provides for land rental payments for certain VOA facilities overseas and in the U.S. The 1983 estimates include a $1.1 million payment to the Government of Greece to continue maintenance of the VOA facilities in Kavala and Rhodes.

Formerly, sums paid by the Republic of Finland to the United States as interest on, or principal of, the debt incurred under the Act of February 25, 1919, were credited to this account to finance programs authorized by the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 in relation to Finland. In 1976, the United States and the Republic of Finland agreed that the remaining balance of the Finnish debt would be paid to the United States and placed in a nongovernmental, binational trust fund. The annual proceeds of this nongovernmental fund are used to finance Finnish-American exchange activities.

The remaining balance of $8,273 in this account was used in 1981 to finance a portion of the costs of U.S.-Finnish exchange programs.

Formerly, this fund provided for guarantees to U.S. firms of convertibility of currencies earned in the export of U.S. books, periodicals, films, and other informational media. Congressional action in connection with the Agency's 1967 appropriation called for cessation of such guarantees, and no new guarantees were initiated. In 1981, the outstanding financial liabilities associated with the operation of the program prior to 1967 were liquidated pursuant to the Supplemental Appropriations and Rescission Act, 1981 (Public Law 97-12), which directed the Secretary of the Treasury to cancel all U.S. Treasury notes (and interest due thereon) issued for this program. The funds balance of $346,931 was applied to the notes payable and the balance of the authority to borrow, $5,873,611, was withdrawn by the Department of the Treasury.

The U.S. International Trade Commission is an independent agency created by act of Congress. The Commission's current powers and duties are provided for by the Tariff Act of 1930; the Trade Act of 1974; the Trade Agreements Act of 1979; the Agricultural Adjustment Act; and, section 1911 of the Financial Institution Regulatory and Interest Rate Control Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 635a-2.

The Commission conducts investigations and, where appropriate, makes determinations and recommendations, or takes action, in cases where (1) serious injury to industries may warrant increases in duties, the imposition of quotas, or the provision of adjustment assistance; (2) imports of goods sold at less than fair value may injure an industry; (3) foreign governments, organizations, or individuals, may have subsidized imports into the United States; (4) unfair methods of competition in the importation or sale of foreign articles may tend to injure an industry or restrain and monopolize trade and commerce in the United States; or (5) imports of agricultural products may materially interfere with certain programs of the Department of Agriculture.

The Commission advises the President and the Congress as to the probable economic effect on the domestic industry and consumers, of modification of duties and other barriers to trade which may be considered for inclusion in any proposed trade agreement with foreign countries. Further, the Commission, at the request of the President, the Congress, or on the Commission's own motion, undertakes comprehensive studies and provides reports on key issues relating to international trade and economic policy matters.

The Commission, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce, establishes for statistical purposes an enumeration of articles imported into the United States and exported from the United States, and seeks to establish comparability of such statistics with statistical programs for domestic production.

The Commission also issues a publication containing U.S. tariff schedules and related matters and considers questions concerning the arrangements of such schedules and the classification of articles.

Pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974, the budget estimates for the Commission are included without revision by the President.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is responsible for regulating interstate surface transportation. During 1983, the Commission will focus on assessing the deregulatory changes occurring in the surface transportation industry since the passage of the Motor Carrier Act of 1980, the Staggers Rail Act of 1980, and the Household Goods Transportation Act of 1980. Consistent with these legislative acts, the Commission is able to reduce staffing in 1982 and 1983.

1. Proceedings.—This program includes the regulation of rates, the granting of operating authorities, and the regulation of mergers, acquisitions, and abandonments. The increase in caseload in recent years, which necessitated new procedures and personnel shifts, is expected to taper off. In accordance with the leveling off of the motor operating authority caseload, the Commission will focus on ensuring applicants' ability and willingness to perform and on the processing of applications within statutory time limits.

2. Policy and analysis.—This program encompasses all of the Commission's planning, analysis, and policy development activities. The program's emphasis is shifting from policy development and implementation of the new laws to monitoring and analyzing their impact on the industry and the public. Using information obtained through these efforts, the Commission will prepare testimony for oversight hearings, identify the need for any legislative amendments, and refine its policies and procedures.

3. Compliance and consumer assistance.—This program responds to the needs and concerns of individual consumers and businesses, as well as the broader spectrum of public interests. The Commission's compliance efforts are shifting from performing general compliance surveys to more specialized compliance activities designed to complement enforcement efforts. By transferring complaint-handling responsibilities to the field, the Commission expects to improve its efficiency in handling consumer complaints.

4. Enforcement.—This program includes the investigation and prosecution of alleged violations of the Interstate Commerce Act, related transportation statutes, and Commission regulations. The Commission will devote particular attention to protecting the public interest when the dynamics of a competitive marketplace are insufficient to do so.

The Commission is authorized, if a railroad ceases operations due to a cash shortage or a court order, to direct other railroads to operate the services of the railroad which ceased its operations. The directed carriers are reimbursed for the losses incurred and are paid a 6% profit on the operations performed. This authority is limited to a 240-day period, consisting of a 60-day authority and the ability to extend the order for an additional 180 days. No additional directed rail service is anticipated for 1983.

The Japan-United States Friendship Act of 1975 established the Japan-United States Friendship Trust Fund, and created the Japan-United States Friendship Commission to make grants from the Fund for the promotion of scholarly, cultural, and artistic activities between Japan and the United States. The Commission is authorized to make expenditures from the appropriated income of the fund and, in an amount not to exceed 5% annually of the principal of the fund, to pay the expenses of the Commission and to make grants in support of studies, fellowships, scholarships, book collections, art programs, and other cultural and educational activities, primarily in the United States. The Commission received a contribution in May 1981 of $2 million from the Government of Japan to be used for the purposes of the act during the next 4 to 5 years.

The Legal Services Corporation (LSC) funds State and local agencies which provide free civil legal assistance to the poor. LSC is a private, non-profit corporation which is outside of the Federal Government and acts independently of related social and community services programs. Grantees are involved both in cases for individual clients and in broader "law reform" activities.

The administration proposes that the Corporation not be reauthorized and that no further Federal funding be provided for 1982, 1983, or later years. LSC funding already enacted by Congress in the continuing resolution through March 31, 1982 ($120.5 million) would be used to cover all future needs relating to responsibilities for existing cases, separation costs of Corporation and grantee staff, and related close-out functions. The administration proposes that any extension of the 1982 continuing resolution beyond March 31 not include further funds for LSC.

The Legal Services Corporation has operated since 1980 without an authorization approved by Congress, due to continuing dispute over the proper role and structure of legal services. The administration proposes adoption of a different approach: providing States with flexibility and discretion to use block grant funds, and relying on private attorneys to fulfill their ethical obligations to provide services to the poor.

The administration's $2.1 billion Social and Community Services Block Grant programs include adequate authority to fund the legal services activities that States may wish to provide for their citizens. These sources of funds will be more flexible for States, and the services more responsive to the direct needs of their citizens, than the current Legal Services Corporation, which is run centrally from Washington.

The National Capital Planning Commission is the central planning agency for the Federal Government in the National Capital Region. The National Capital Region consists of the District of Columbia; Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties in Maryland; Arlington, Fairfax, Loudoun and Prince William Counties in Virginia; and all cities in Maryland and Virginia within the outer limits of such counties.

During 1983, the Commission will continue its efforts to closely work with other Federal agencies, the District of Columbia government, and other local governments and jurisdictions in the National Capital Region, including the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments (COG). Major emphasis will again be placed on the continued preparation of Federal elements to the Comprehensive Plan for the National Capital, the five-year Federal Capital Improvements Program, and the review of Federal land acquisition and development proposals in the region. The Commission will continue to perform Federal interest reviews of the impact of proposed local, State and regional planning efforts on the Federal Establishment, as well as perform increased numbers of reviews of Federal grant applications dealing with land and water use in the National Capital Region.

Help Fund. This organization was created in 1982 to take over the duties of the Office of Self-Help Development and Technical Assistance. These duties consist of capital investment advances and interest supplements to eligible cooperatives that do not qualify for loans from the National Consumer Cooperative Bank, as well as technical assistance to cooperatives, to conduct research into matters relating to cooperatives, and to undertake investigations of new types of services which can be provided through cooperative not-for-profit organizations.

The new nonprofit corporation will continue these activities without additional appropriated funds.

The National Consumer Cooperative Bank was created and chartered by Public Law 95-351 to make loans and provide services to consumer cooperatives and other types of cooperatives. The bank is governed by fifteen directors, three of which are appointed by the President.

Public Law 97-35 provides for the orderly conversion, over time, of the bank to a private financial institution. The first step in this process was the conversion, on December 31, 1981, of class A stock owned by the United States. The process of privatization will be complete on redemption of these notes.

The capital of the bank consists of capital borrowed from the United States (class A notes), as well as equity purchased by borrowers from the bank (class B stock), and by borrowers or organizations eligible to borrow (class C stock). The bank is authorized to raise capital through the sale of its bonds, debentures, notes, and other evidences of indebtedness. Public Law 95-351 provides that the United States is not responsible for any obligation of the bank.

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970.

Budget program.—The activities consist of: (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, and (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of solvent and insolvent, insured credit unions.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Number of insured credit unions.....	17,350	17,300	17,250
Shares of insured member institutions as of Dec. 31 of the previous calendar year (in millions of dollars).....	54,731	58,226	64,201

It is estimated that approximately 5,135 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 1983.

Financing.—Each insured credit union is required to pay a normal premium of one-twelfth of 1% of the total amount of its member accounts. The insurance fund is structured to be self-supporting through the insurance premiums which are paid by member credit unions. The estimated premiums of $48,975 thousand in 1983 are expected to cover all insurance claims and provide for an increase in the fund balance. This will be held in Government interest-bearing securities as an insurance reserve. The fund has $100 million in borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies. The authority to borrow from the Treasury has never been used and probably will not be exercised in 1982 or 1983.

Operating results.—Anticipated net income of $5,173 thousand will be retained in the fund, raising the balance for unforeseen emergencies to $194 million by the end of 1983.

The National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility was established under Public Law 95-630. It began operations on October 1, 1979. The Central Liquidity Facility provides loans to member credit unions for seasonal and emergency needs.

The two primary sources of funds for the Facility through 1981 were stock subscriptions from credit unions and borrowings from the Federal Financing Bank. Beginning in 1982, the Central Liquidity Facility will borrow on the market rather than from the Federal Financing Bank. Credit unions, which choose to become members of the Facility, are required to purchase stock equal to one-half of 1% of their assets. One-half of the subscription in stock is forwarded to the Facility and deposited in the fund. The remaining half of the subscription remains on call in the credit union in investments as approved by the NCUA Board.

The Facility may borrow funds from any source to relend to member credit unions. This amount of borrowings is limited to twelve times the amount of capital stock subscriptions by the authorizing statute (Public Law 95-630). The amount has been further limited by the appropriation act to $600 million in 1982. In 1983, an appropriation limitation on borrowing of $600 million is proposed, of which $352.3 million in borrowing is expected to be outstanding at the end of the year.

The Facility estimates that a cumulative total of $473.1 million in direct loans will be made to member credit unions to meet liquidity demands during 1983. The appropriation limitation of $709.6 million on direct loans is proposed in order to provide for anticipated emergency liquidity needs.

Support is provided on a broad scale throughout the Nation to promote public understanding of the humanities, to improve the quality of teaching in the humanities, to strengthen the scholarly foundation for humanities study and research activity, and to nurture the future well-being of those essential institutional and human resources which make possible the study of the humanities.

Support is provided through outright grants, matching grants, and a combination of the two. Eligible applicants include schools, higher education institutions, libraries, museums, historical organizations, professional associations, other cultural institutions, and individuals.

In 1983, increased emphasis is being placed on the use of matching grants to stimulate non-Federal contributions in support of humanities projects and activities.

The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended, authorizes the Humanities Endowment to receive money and other donated property. A change in authorizing legislation, effective in 1981, allows grantees to accept gifts directly and submit letters certifying the amounts of gifts received. These amounts, and gifts made directly to the Endowment, are then matched under the Treasury and Challenge programs. The Endowment remains authorized to receive money and other donated property, if grantees prefer. Such gifts may be used, sold, or otherwise disposed of to support humanities projects and activities.

This schedule reflects cash received during the year by the Endowment and its grantees. Total gifts, which are matched by the Treasury Fund and Challenge Grant appropriations, are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Case intake in 1981 was 43,677 unfair labor practice cases and 12,588 representation cases. Estimates for unfair labor practice cases are 45,206 for 1982 and 46,788 for 1983. Representation case estimates are 13,029 for 1982 and 13,485 for 1983.

1. Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petition for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Over 94% of the unfair labor practice cases and about 82% of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases and the avoidance of litigation.

2. Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions. In 1981 there were 1,209 hearings closed, 42 proceedings adjusted after close of hearing, and 1,255 decisions issued. The estimate for 1982 is for 838 hearings to be closed, 5 adjusted after hearing, and 1,153 decisions. The estimate for 1983 is for 1,650 hearings to be closed, 5 adjusted after hearing, and 1,619 decisions.

3. Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 29% of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder with exceptions filed requires contested Board decision. In 1981, 1,028 such Board decisions were issued; the estimates for 1982 and 1983 are 1,242 and 1,643 respectively. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. In 1981 regional directors issued 1,750 such decisions; and the estimate is 1,806 for 1982 and 1,867 in 1983. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. In 1981 the Board issued 109 representation decisions; the estimates for 1982 and 1983 are 156 and 161 respectively. The Board also ruled on 429 objection and challenge questions in election cases in 1981; it is estimated that 539 such rulings will be required in 1982 and 557 in 1983.

4. Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the appellate courts to enforce its decisions. In 1981 a total of 476 Board decisions of all kinds required such litigation; the estimate for 1982 is 428, and for 1983 it is 551.

1. Mediatory services.—The Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 650 rail and air carriers and approximately 800,000 employees in the two industries.

The Board also provides technical assistance to enable labor and industry representatives to explore informally the relevant economic and noneconomic problems that condition collective bargaining in the railroad and airline industries.

Received during year	173	175	200
Closed during year	164	189	198

The Board investigates representation disputes involving the various crafts or classes of railroad and airline employees to determine their choice of representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining.

2. Voluntary arbitration and emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their disputes through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which threaten seriously to interrupt service, may appoint an emergency board to investigate and report on the disputes under section 10 of the Railway Labor Act (RLA). Such reports usually serve as a basis for resolving the disputes.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 amended the Railway Labor Act by adding a new emergency dispute procedure covering disputes between a publicly funded and operated commuter carrier and its employees. The act requires the Board to appoint the public members of factfinding panels on Conrail Amtrak Commuter authorities.

Boards/panels created:	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Arbitration	13	10	10
Factfinding		3	3
Emergency (sec. 10)		3	3
Emergency (sec. 9a)		5	5

3. Boards of adjustment.—Public Law 89-456 provides for the adjustment of disputes involving grievances resulting from interpretation or application of bargaining agreements in the railroad industry otherwise referable to the National Railroad Adjustment Board. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 also provides access to this machinery for Conrail employees with grievances arising from the application of employee protection benefits. Beginning in 1983 referee salary and expenses will be paid by the parties. Administrative costs will be offset by user charges.

The major research program activities of the Foundation are:

1. Mathematical and physical sciences.—Research in this activity is directed at increasing understanding of natural laws and phenomena. It includes research in mathematics, computer science, physics, chemistry, and materials. Studies deal with significant science areas such as chemical catalysis, ceramics, polymers, synchrotron radiation, experimental computer science, elementary particle, nuclear, and atomic physics, and new mathematical structures and techniques.

2. Engineering.—This research is aimed at increasing U.S. engineering capability and strength and, on selected occasions, focusing that capability and strength on areas which are relevant to national problems. Research in electrical, computer, and systems engineering, chemical and process engineering, civil and environmental engineering, and mechanical engineering and applied mechanics is supported. Studies include research on such diverse issues as large scale integrated circuit electronics, basic mechanisms of catalysis and various chemical and biochemical processes, earthquake hazards mitigation, and machine intelligence.

3. Biological, behavioral, and social sciences.—This activity supports research in physiology, cellular, and molecular biology; behavioral and neural sciences; environmental biology; social and economic sciences and information sciences. Research covers all aspects of biology and social and economic sciences including the molecular basis for cells, organs, and organisms; freshwater ecosystems; relationships among plants and animals; economic theory and decision sciences.

4. Astronomical, atmospheric, Earth, and ocean sciences.—This research advances physical knowledge of the universe and knowledge of the planet Earth. It includes studies of the life cycles of stars; the nature of the Earth and its geologic history; open ocean and coastal dynamics and resources; the influence of the Arctic Basin on the Earth's climate; and the physics and chemistry of the Earth's atmosphere.

5. Ocean drilling programs.—This activity supports a unique world-wide effort to explore the Earth's crust beneath the oceans. It is an interdisciplinary science program aimed at understanding the detailed composition and behavior of the submerged portion of the Earth's surface.

6. U.S. Antarctic program.—The Foundation provides overall management for the U.S. program in the Antarctic and supports a multidisciplinary research program on global weather and climate, renewable and nonrenewable resources, and the physical and biological characteristics of Antarctica and its surrounding seas. This activity is the sole expression of U.S. interest and presence in Antarctica.

7. Scientific, technological, and international affairs.—This activity supports and performs research and analysis to: link producers of research with the users of research; facilitate international scientific cooperation; and provide policy oriented data, information and analysis. It also supports agency-wide activities building the Nation's scientific research base. Programs cover joint research between universities and industry; small business innovation research; cooperative scientific activities between advanced and developing countries; studies on the state of the science and technology enterprise and its socioeconomic impact; and support for special research initiation, improvement and instrumentation activities.

8. Minority institutions science improvement program.—This program is designed to effect long-range improvement in science education at institutions in which enrollments are predominantly composed of Alaskan Natives, American Indians, Blacks, Mexican Americans, Puerto Ricans, or other disadvantaged ethnic minorities who are underrepresented in science and engineering. Specific objectives include assisting institutions to improve the quality of preparation of their students for graduate work or careers in science, and increasing the number of minority students graduating with majors in one of the sciences, mathematics or engineering.

9. Program development and management.—This activity provides for the operation, support, management, and direction of all NSF programs and activities and includes necessary funds to develop, manage, and coordinate these program activities.

The National Transportation Safety Board, as an independent agency, is charged with promoting transportation safety through the investigation of accidents, the conduct of special studies, the development of recommendations to prevent accidents, the evaluation of the effectiveness of other Government agencies in preventing transportation accidents, and the review of appeals on actions taken against transportation certificates and licenses.

1. Policy and direction.—This activity provides Board-wide policy and program guidance, the determination of probable cause of transportation accidents, the issuance of safety recommendations, the approval of accident reports, the final review of appeals involving airman and seaman certificates and licenses, the implementation and direction of policies and programs, liaison with the Congress and other Government agencies, and legal and public affairs advice and services.

2. Accident investigation.—This activity provides for the management of accident investigations, the development of their probable cause, the development of recommendations, the management of recommendation follow-up, and the preparation of reports on aviation, railroad, highway, marine, and pipeline accidents.

3. Technology.—This activity provides specialized advice and services for the Board's accident investigation, accident prevention, and safety promotion activities in the areas of human, vehicular, environmental, and operational factors. It manages the Board's responses to Notices of Proposed Rulemaking, provides statistical analysis of transportation accident and incident data, develops recommendations, provides laboratory support, conducts special investigations, and maintains a separate division of hazardous materials safety.

4. Evaluations and studies.—This activity provides oversight of other transportation agencies and transportation systems through the conduct of evaluations of other Government agency safety programs and the conduct of special studies. In addition, this program administers the Board's safety objectives program to insure action is taken on transportation safety problems which are not being addressed by Government or industry.

5. Administration.—This activity provides administrative support to assure accomplishment of Board programs through financial management, management analysis, personnel management and training, procurement and facilities services, automated data processing services, equal employment opportunity program management, and other administrative support.

6. Administrative law judges.—These judges conduct hearings on appeal from the suspension, amendment, modification, revocation, or denial of any operating certificate or license issued by the Secretary of Transportation under the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. The decisions of the law judges are final in the absence of a further appeal of the full Board.

The major activities of the Corporation include the establishment, support, and expansion of neighborhood housing services programs in older neighborhoods; identifying, evaluating, and supporting neighborhood preservation projects which show promise for reversing neighborhood decline; replicating successful neighborhood preservation projects; and, supporting a national loan purchase pool.

The Corporation receives both Federal and non-Federal funding to finance its program activities. The program and financing schedule above reflects only direct Federal appropriations to the Corporation. Pursuant to Public Law 97-101, the 1982 appropriation of $14,450,000 was reduced by 4% to $13,872,000. For 1983, $15,512,000 is requested. The following business-type tables reflect the total program activity of the Corporation and include all sources of financing, both Federal and non-Federal.

1. Nuclear reactor regulation.—The primary objective of nuclear reactor regulation continues to be the assurance of adequate protection of public health and safety and the environment in the design, siting, construction, and operation of nuclear power reactors. The licensing recovery plan initiated in 1981 will continue to receive high priority in 1983. This will ensure that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) licensing review process will not result in the delay of reactor fuel load dates. There will be increased emphasis in 1983 toward reducing the excess backlog of operating reactor licensing actions to zero by the end of 1986. NRC will continue to integrate the knowledge gained from the Three Mile Island (TMI) accident by establishing and applying standard operating policies developed from TMI-2 lessons learned to all future licensing procedures. The effort to establish and maintain a more streamlined, disciplined licensing process and at the same time achieve safety and environmental goals will continue. This effort will include resolution and application of safety issues, evaluation of operating experience data, requalification of reactor operators, and emphasis in other important human factor areas.

2. Inspection and enforcement.—The mission of inspection and enforcement is to ensure, primarily by field inspection, investigation, and enforcement, that reactors, fuel facilities, and materials under NRC jurisdiction are constructed, operated, and used in a manner which protects the public and the environment. The Resident Inspector Program staffing will be increased to accommodate the 18 new reactors coming on line in 1983. Nuclear reactor sites having one unit in operation will continue to have at least one resident inspector and those having two or more units will have at least two residents. One resident will be assigned to sites having ongoing construction which is more than 15% completed. One-time comprehensive inspections of licensee compliance with the new fire protection rule and safeguards upgrade rules will be conducted to provide a basis for subsequent routine audit type inspections. The prototype Nuclear Data Link (NDL) testing and evaluation will continue with full scale development planned for 1984. The NDL is an automated data transmission system that will provide a real time monitoring capability of key safety parameters of operating reactors during an emergency. Emphasis will continue to be placed on prompt and vigorous enforcement.

3. Nuclear material safety and safeguards.—The principal function of Nuclear Material Safety and Safeguards is to direct the NRC activities in the programmatic areas of the fuel cycle and material safety, safeguards, and waste management. These programs involve the safety, safeguards, and environmental aspects of nuclear fuel cycle and waste management activities including safeguards responsibility for all power and nonpower reactors regulated by the NRC. Resources are required to support the performance of radioisotope environmental impact evaluations, environmental assessments of former licensee sites and waste burial grounds, reviewing and evaluating proposed DOE remedial actions for former Atomic Energy Commission industrial contractor sites, implementing the U.S./International Atomic Energy Agency treaty on safeguards, and developing a capability to review DOE's application for a high-level waste repository. Emphasis will continue to be placed upon completing the development of regulations for the disposal of high-level waste in deep geologic repositories and for the disposal of low-level waste in shallow and intermediate depth burial facilities.

4. Nuclear regulatory research.—The 1983 Nuclear Regulatory Research program for NRC will continue to be broadly based in response to the issues raised or reemphasized by the Three Mile Island (TMI) accident. A number of confirmatory research programs, technical regulations, regulatory guides, and other standards needed by NRC are being completed and new programs are being initiated, emphasizing the lessons learned from TMI. In addition to focusing risk assessment research on those issues that pose the highest risk, efforts will be expanded to evaluate an increasing range of accident sequences and to develop improved reliability models for operating reactors. Work in severe accident phenomena and mitigation will be directed to support NRC rulemaking for degraded core cooling and other interrelated rulemakings. Program redirection continues to be reflected in the phasedown of the loss-of-coolant accident and transient research program with several test facilities closing down and the resultant termination of associated research efforts at the end of the planned programs. NRC testing under the loss-of-fluid test program will be completed in 1983. The facility will then be placed in a standby status for 2 years, after which decontamination and decommissioning will begin. In the human factors area, operator-machine interface studies, undertaken as a direct result of TMI, will continue, including studies to assess plant status monitoring and diagnostic display requirements. In the area of high-level waste management, engineering efforts have been initiated to evaluate the various types of waste disposal sites, to examine the waste forms selected and to examine the interaction of the waste form and packaging with the geological, hydrological and engineering systems involved. Low-level waste management research efforts are being strengthened by focusing on areas of site suitability, facility design and operation, and evaluation of alternatives to shallow land burial. In the area of advanced reactors, effort will be undertaken to provide NRC with an independent capability for safety assessment, for the development of licensing standards for advanced reactor concepts and support of the Clinch River Breeder Reactor construction permit review.

The Office of the Federal Inspector for the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation System was created pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1979, and formally established on July 1, 1979, by Executive Order No. 12142. The broad mission of the Agency is to oversee the construction and initial operation of a 4,837-mile, joint U.S.-Canadian pipeline system to transport Alaska natural gas from Prudhoe Bay to the Chicago and San Francisco areas in the lower 48 States. Specifically, the Federal Inspector is charged with reviewing project sponsor designs and cost estimates to ensure safe and efficient construction practices; coordinating and expediting the issuance of all Federal permits and authorizations; and enforcing all Federal statutes relevant to the construction project, including those related to environmental protection.

The budget for the agency supports five major activities:

1. Permits and compliance.—This activity includes coordinating and expediting the issuance of Federal permits required for pipeline construction, as well as developing standards and procedures for the enforcement of laws governing the project.

2. Audit and cost analysis.—The Office reviews project cost estimates, evaluates sponsors' management systems, and audits expenditures incurred by project sponsors for certification into the rate base.

3. Environmental review.—The Office analyzes project design and reviews construction in order to ensure compliance with all applicable environmental protection regulations.

4. Engineering review.—This activity includes review of engineering cost estimates, quality control programs,

5. Field surveillance.—This activity encompasses the operations of the Omaha, Anchorage, and Fairbanks offices. 1. Payment of annuities under special acts.—These annuities are paid to persons who were employed on the construction of the Panama Canal or to their widows; and benefits are paid to widows of former employees of the Lighthouse Service. Numbers of recipients are as follows:

	Sept. 30, 1981	Sept. 30, 1982	Sept. 30, 1983
Panama Canal annuitants	129	99	69
Lighthouse Service widows	262	257	252

2. Payment of Government share of retirement costs.—The Civil Service Retirement Amendments of 1969 provide for financing of the current year's costs of the unfunded liability created since its enactment on October 20, 1969. Any statute which authorizes (1) new or liberalized benefits, (2) extension of retirement coverage, or (3) pay increases, is deemed to authorize appropriations to the fund to finance the unfunded liability created.

3. Transfers for interest on unfunded liability and payment of military service annuities.—The Secretary of the Treasury is required to make annual payments from general revenues into the Retirement fund of an amount equivalent to: (1) interest on the unfunded liability, and (2) annuity disbursements attributable to military service. The Office of Personnel Management, at the end of each year, notifies the Secretary of the Treasury of the amount of payment to be made to the Retirement fund and reports such sums to the President and Congress.

Consistent with the effort to reduce the number of categorical grant programs, this program was terminated in 1981. This appropriation provided Federal grants, authorized by the Intergovernmental Personnel Act of 1970, to improve the personnel management and training systems of State and local governments. Grant funds were provided for projects to bring about improvements in such areas as employer-employee relations, equal employment opportunity, employee selection systems, training, and overall merit systems.

An omnibus legislative proposal is being developed to make a number of changes to the Civil Service Retirement System. These changes are designed to eliminate wasteful anomalies in the Retirement Program and facilitate the detection of fraud or abuse among benefit recipients. Also under consideration is a proposal to limit the existing cost of annuity adjustments by making the adjustment the lesser of the annual change in the consumer price index or General Schedule salary increase. This proposal will also address inequities in retirement benefits paid to recent versus old retirees with similar service histories by providing a cap on annuity increases based on a comparison with the annuity that would be paid if the annuitant were retiring today rather than in the past.

The fund finances the cost of health benefits for: (1) active employees, (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors, (3) those annuitants transferred from the Retired Federal employees health benefits program as authorized by Public Law 93-246, and (4) the related expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
Active employees	2,385,000	2,365,000	2,345,000
Annuitants	1,305,000	1,364,000	1,419,000
Total	3,690,000	3,729,000	3,764,000

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, 1% is added to the rates developed by health benefit carriers, for administrative expense, and 3% is added for a contingency reserve held by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for each carrier. The OPM is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

For Postal Service employees, the Government's contribution to the health benefits premiums is 75% of the current unweighted average of the high option premiums of six large plans. For general schedule and wage-board employees, the Government's contribution is 60%.

Financing.—The fund is financed by: (1) withholdings from active employees and annuitants; (2) agency contributions for active employees, appropriated to agencies; and (3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to the Office of Personnel Management.

Operating results.—Funds advanced to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods. The contingency reserves are retained by the Office of Personnel Management and paid to carriers, as necessary, to defray future rate increases or to provide increased benefits.

This fund finances insurance premiums paid to private insurance companies for Federal employees group life insurance and expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program. Separate cost data is maintained for employees regular group life insurance and insurance for members of former beneficial associations. The "Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act of 1980" increases basic coverage for participants under age 45 and offers additional option coverages.

Budget program.—The status of the basic (regular and optional) life insurance program on September 30 is as follows:

Life insurance in force (in billions of dollars):	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate
On active employees ¹	145	152	160

On retired employees	17	20	23
Total	162	172	183
Number of participants (in thousands):

Annuitants	1,198	1,246	1,290
Total	3,683	3,711	3,735

¹ Excludes equal amount of accidental death and dismemberment insurance.

Financing.—For non-Postal Service employees' premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding 25½ cents biweekly from the salaries of employees for each $1 thousand of life insurance and a 50% matching by employer-agencies. The optional program is financed by withholding from employees' salaries or retirees' annuities. The beneficial association program is financed by direct collection from members. Most of the difference between receipt and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. The status of reserves at the end of the year is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Held in special contingency reserves:
By basic program insurer	50	50	50
By beneficial association insurer	1	1	1
Held in trust by U.S. Treasury	4,190	4,627	5,092
Total reserves	4,241	4,678	5,143

The carrier-held contingency reserve for the basic program was reduced to $50 million as of June 30, 1976, and it is expected to remain at this level in subsequent years. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Employees life insurance fund. The operations of the insurer for the regular and optional life insurance program to the end of each year follow (in millions of dollars):

The Panama Canal Act of 1979 established the Panama Canal Commission to operate and maintain the interoceanic waterway. The Commission is self-sufficient in its operations and makes payments to the Republic of Panama as specified in the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977. In 1983, the Commission anticipates that a 13.1% increase in toll rates will help maintain its financial self-sufficiency in operations.

The interest expense is a component of the Agency's deposit into the U.S. Treasury and serves to reduce the investment of the Government in the Canal and consequently the interest cost in subsequent years.

This appropriation is a Federal subsidy to the rail industry pension for costs not financed by the railroad sector. The American taxpayer subsidy annually exceeds $700 per rail employee.

Subsidy for windfall payments.—When first authorized in 1974, the windfall subsidy appropriation was estimated at $250 million annually for 25 years, or a total subsidy of $6.25 billion. In two years, the annual windfall subsidy estimate increased by 45% and, within five years, the Railroad Retirement Board reported that the original 1974 estimate had doubled to $500 million and would continue to increase if there were any inflation after 1980.

The Carter Administration, faced with increasingly large projected subsidy costs, sought to limit to $350 million annually the general taxpayers' liability to subsidize this rail industry pension, a position also reflected in the March revisions to the 1982 budget. Based on their collectively-bargained agreement and assuming a $350 million subsidy appropriation, rail labor and management successfully sought Congressional restructuring of the rail industry windfall in Public Law 97-35. The rail sector sought to limit windfall payments to the appropriated subsidy amounts rather than rely on the rail industry funded retirement account. This extended the subsidy well beyond the year 2000.

The Administration proposes to retain the $350 million windfall subsidy appropriation as proposed in the last three executive budgets.

As part of the legislative proposal restoring the rail industry's pension plan to the private sector (reflected after the Railroad retirement account schedule), this activity would be vested in a Federal agency.

The Board administers special unemployment and sickness insurance for unemployed railroad workers. Administrative expenses are financed through a permanent appropriation of 0.50% of taxable payroll. Each September 30, the unobligated balance in this fund in excess of $6 million is transferred to the Railroad unemployment insurance account in the unemployment trust fund (45 U.S.C. 361).

1. Maintenance of rail earnings accounts.—Unemployment and sickness benefits are based on individual records of rail earnings and daily wage rates.

2. Processing of rail unemployment insurance claims.—Workers' claims for unemployment compensation are filed with employers and certified for payment through the headquarters office. Unemployment claims are projected to decline by 46% from 1981 to 1983, as indicated in the following table:

WORKLOAD

	1979 actual	1980 actual	1981 actual	1982 estimate	1983 estimate

Sickness claims	505,000	473,721	451,886	465,000	451,000

3. Processing of rail sickness claims.—These claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the headquarters office. Sickness claims are also projected to decline, as indicated in the preceding table.

4. Rail claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants. Savings of unemployment benefits of approximately $975 thousand are expected in 1983 from the placement of approximately 1,950 claimants in jobs outside of the railroad sector.

5. Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the rail pension program on an allocated basis, which is periodically revised for actual experience.

Income.—Railroad retirement account revenues are derived from pension contributions by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; annual appropriations to subsidize windfalls; and, payments from the Federal old-age, survivors and disability insurance trust funds. The railroad retirement system has an annual financial interchange with social security. Under this arrangement, social security paid railroad retirement over $18 billion, with annual payments exceeding $1.5 billion. It was designed by the rail sector to help finance the rail industry pension, placing social security in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment had been directly covered by social security.

Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Estimates reflect the increases in benefit rates provided by law.

Administrative expenses.—These expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on Administration).

Payment to Federal hospital insurance trust fund.—That portion of taxes which finances hospital insurance benefits is for payment to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund, since payments of hospital benefits for railroad beneficiaries are made from that fund.

This proposal would reorganize railroad retirement, restoring the rail industry pension to the private sector. Social security equivalent benefits, funded by the old-age, survivors and disability insurance trust funds, would be directly administered by the Department of Health and Human Services rather than by the Railroad Retirement Board.

Rail workers would be treated like all other private sector workers. Retirees would be served by the more than 1,300 Social Security district offices rather than the 72 RRB district offices. The rail sector pension plan would be like other multi-employer private pension plans. Ownership of the assets of the Railroad Retirement account would be transferred to the new rail industry pension corporation in 1983.

LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATION

For expenses necessary for the Railroad Retirement Board, $44,080,000 to be derived from the railroad retirement accounts: Provided, That $500,000 of the foregoing amount shall be available only to the extent necessary to process workloads not anticipated in the budget estimates and after maximum absorption of the costs of such workloads within the remainder of the existing limitation has been achieved: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provisions in law, no portion of this limitation shall be available for payments of standard level user charges pursuant to section 210(j) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended (40 U.S.C. 490(j); 45 U.S.C. 228 a-r).

Note.—The appropriation for this account for 1982 had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. The 1982 amounts shown below are based upon a continuing resolution (Public Law 97-92) in effect through March 31, 1982.

The Board administers the rail industry pension based on collectively bargained agreements which are incorporated in Federal statute.

1. Maintenance of rail earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of rail benefits paid are based on individual rail earnings records.

2. Processing rail applications.—This activity includes processing annuity claims under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974. Based on amendments enacted in Public Law 97-35, benefit computations were greatly simplified.

3. Maintenance of rail beneficiary rolls.—This activity includes all work related to the placement, continuance, and removal of persons on the annuity rolls. RRB administers social security benefits and railroad retirement pensions to 405,000 recipients, social security benefits only to 120,000 recipients and railroad retirement pensions only to 465,000 recipients. As in past years, the number of persons on the rolls receiving annuity payments will decrease modestly from 998,000 at the end of 1981 to an estimated 988,000 at the end of 1982, and decrease by 1.4% to 974,000 in 1983.

4. Medicare.—This activity includes on a reimbursable basis processing applications for the Social Security and Health Care Financing Administrations of the Department of Health and Human Services to establish eligibility for health and medical insurance benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for rail beneficiaries.

5. Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs. The Board will adopt new approaches to improve service to beneficiaries. It will utilize a toll-free telephone number with such telephone service available for an extended workday. Utilization of rail industry and other agents for the Board will broaden the availability of sites and personnel knowledgeable about rail pensions and other benefits and replace the Board's limited field structure.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

1. Full disclosure.—In order to insure that investors will be provided with material facts concerning securities offered for public sale, issuers who propose to offer new securities for public sale are required to file registration statements with the Commission at its home or regional offices. Issuers having total assets and securityholder populations of specified sizes are also required to furnish comparable information on a continuing basis in annual and other periodic reports, in proxy solicitation materials and in tender offers and acquisition reports. Commission staff review these filings to insure full and fair disclosure and to prevent fraud and misrepresentation.

In 1983 the Selective Service System will continue to register men as they reach 18 years of age and will maintain a data base of registrant records. The System will continue to develop enhancements to ensure its capability to respond rapidly and efficiently from its standby posture. These enhancements are necessary to enable the Selective Service System to respond to any emergency situation.

1. Mobilization readiness.—This activity includes all facets of National and Regional operational planning, maintenance of automated registration information, a comprehensive training program for the Selective Service Reserve Forces, and a training program for the standby local board members. The processing procedures employed by the Registrant Information Management System will continue to be tested and refined to insure that it can fully satisfy the emergency manpower needs of the Armed Forces. This activity also includes administrative functions.

2. Reserve program.—This activity involves the preparation of the Reserve and National Guard officers for mobilization assignments in specific positions with the Selective Service System. Special focus of the program is on the exercise of the mobilization plans to ensure a high readiness capability in the event of mobilization and to ensure that these plans are concurrently revised in accordance with the System's mission requirements and the state of the art.

The Small Business Administration (SBA) provides assistance to small businesses and to victims of physical disasters. These efforts are conducted through the following activities:

1. Procurement assistance.—The programs under this activity are aimed at assuring that small business receives a fair share of Government procurements. In addition, SBA maintains a Procurement Automated Source System, which is used by Federal agencies and prime contractors to identify small businesses for contract opportunities.

2. Management assistance.—Through the Small Business Institute and Small Business Development Center programs, along with counseling services, training programs, and publications, small business owners/managers are assisted in their goal of improving the management and efficiency of their businesses.

3. Finance and investment.—The salaries and related administrative expenses for all SBA financial assistance activities are provided through this appropriation account. Funds for the Agency's guaranteed loan and investment programs are financed through the business loan and investment fund.

4. Minority small business and capital ownership development.—This activity provides assistance to minority small business concerns—primarily in the area of Federal procurement—and evaluates overall Agency performance in promoting minority business development. The business development program assists in the establishment or expansion of firms that are owned by minority or other disadvantaged business persons and that have the potential to develop into viable competitive businesses in a reasonable period of time. In addition, section 7(j) (1) through (10) of the Small Business Act, as amended, provides authority to contract for professional management training and support to assist the socially and economically disadvantaged entrepreneur.

8. Advocacy.—The SBA serves as the Government's principal advocate of small business. Funds of $2.5 million are requested to continue research activity and to establish a comprehensive statistical data base on the small business sector in the U.S. economy. Advocacy also has the responsibility for the Government's program to advance women's business enterprise.

14. International trade.—This activity is designed to promote and expand small business participation in exporting by directing small businesses to knowledgeable private sector resources and by encouraging nongovernment groups to provide necessary assistance to small exporters.

Financial assistance.—The Small Business Administration (SBA) guarantees loans to small businesses that are unable to obtain private financing. Such loans must be of such value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. Under the guaranty plan, the SBA agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default. In addition to providing financial assistance to the general small business community, particular emphasis will be given to the following groups:

Businesses owned by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals;

Businesses that employ or are owned by handicapped individuals;

Small energy-oriented firms seeking to finance plant facilities and the acquisition of supplies and equipment necessary for specific energy measures;

State and local development companies for plant construction, conversion, or expansion, including the acquisition of land;

Small business concerns located in urban or rural areas with high proportions of unemployed or low-income individuals or owned by low-income individuals.

Investment company assistance.—A primary function of Small Business Investment Companies is to provide a source of needed equity capital or long-term loans to new or expanding small businesses. The Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the SBA to purchase or to guarantee the timely payment of all principal and interest, as scheduled, on debentures issued by such companies. In addition, the SBA is authorized to purchase preferred securities (shares of non-voting stock or other securities having similar characteristics) from small business investment companies operating under authority of section 301(d), which specifies that the investment policy of such companies will be to make investments solely in small concerns owned and operated by disadvantaged persons.

Financing.—Appropriations are authorized to provide additional capital to the extent required to carry out authorized functions. A capital appropriation of $143.7 million is requested for 1983. The Agency will initiate an intensive debt collection program which will result in an additional $35 million and $110 million in loan repayments, over and above the normal amortization, for fiscal years 1982 and 1983, respectively.

Operating results.—The fund will continue to operate at a deficit. Interest and fee income will not be sufficient to cover interest, other expenses and a provision for estimated loan losses. However, recent changes in the Act will reduce the fund's operating costs significantly.

This fund finances disaster loans made pursuant to section 7(b) of the Small Business Act, as amended.

Physical disaster loans.—Under this program, loans are made at favorable terms to property owners for rehabilitation of property damaged by natural disasters such as floods, hurricanes, tornadoes, earthquakes, etc. In 1983, approvals are estimated at $440 million.

Financing.—Appropriations are authorized as capital to the extent required to carry out the authorized functions. However, a capital appropriation for this fund is not required for 1983. The Agency will initiate an intensive debt collection program which will result in an additional $65 million in loan repayments, over and above the normal amortization, for 1982 and 1983.

The lease guarantees program was designed to provide prime space for those small business firms which couldn't compete with prospective tenants with AAA ratings. This program had been incurring excessive losses and had not been an important form of assistance to small businesses. As a result, the program is limited to paying claims resulting from defaulted leases approved in prior years.

The Small Business Administration will guarantee a portion of the losses sustained by a surety company as a result of the issuance of a bid, payment, and/or performance bond to a small business concern.

Appropriations are authorized to the extent required to carry out the authorized function. However, due to a large unobligated balance carried forward from 1982, no appropriation is being requested for this fund for 1983.

¹ A limitation in the amount of $150,000 thousand is proposed for 1982, see Part III for additional information.

Public Law 94-305, approved June 4, 1976, established this fund to alleviate the adverse impact of pollution regulations on small businesses. The Small Business Administration may, whenever it determines that small business concerns are to be at an operational or financial disadvantage with respect to the planning, design, or installation of pollution control facilities or the financing thereof, guarantee the payment of rentals or other amounts due under qualified contracts.

It is proposed that $150 million in loan or contract repayments will be guaranteed by SBA in 1983. These loans or contracts will be financed from the proceeds of an estimated 135 taxable State and municipal bonds.

The Smithsonian Institution maintains public exhibits representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics and astronautics, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology (including living animal exhibits); acquires and preserves for reference and study purposes millions of items of scientific, cultural, and historic importance; conducts research in the natural and physical sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts; presents performances of American arts and crafts; undertakes education programs at all levels; and participates in the exchange of scientific information.

The Institution is responsible for the operation and maintenance of 12 major exhibition buildings, as well as the Museum of African Art buildings; a zoological park and animal conservation and research center; a preservation and storage facility at Silver Hill, Md.; two natural preserves, in Panama and on the Chesapeake Bay; an astrophysical observatory on Mount Hopkins, Ariz.; and, supporting administrative, laboratory, and storage areas. Visitor attendance to buildings on and off the Mall, including the National Zoological Park, is expected to total approximately 27 million in 1983. Millions more will view traveling exhibitions.

In 1983, emphasis will be placed on continued strengthening of the security of the collections and maintenance of the Institution's physical plant. There will be continued attention devoted to the care and maintenance of the collections, including the provision for meeting a further portion of the equipment and operating requirements of the Museum Support Center that will be completed early in 1983.

In 1981, the Smithsonian Institution received a supplemental appropriation of $200,000 for planning a commemoration on January 30, 1982 of the centennial of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's birth. Six Smithsonian museums are participating with eight exhibitions and more than two dozen educational programs on FDR's life, interests, and place in history.

The objectives of the Woodrow Wilson Center are to produce scholarship of the highest quality on subjects that matter to our civilization and to communicate that scholarship to a wider audience within and beyond Washington through publication and dialog.

The Center has chosen to fulfill these objectives through its fellowship and guest scholar program. Each year the Center conducts a major open international competition for a limited number of fellowships. The scholars and the scholarly work they produce constitute the memorial to Woodrow Wilson. Virtually all of the Center's expenditures derive from the basic decision to create a resident body of fellows.

The Center is directed by its congressional statute to raise both public and private funds and the Center's major objectives could not be attained by an exclusive reliance on either Federal appropriation or private contribution.

Budget program—1. Natural resources.—TVA concentrates its efforts on programs in navigation, flood control, water and air quality, recreation, fisheries, wildlife development, and forest resources.

(a) Water resources.—Includes operation and continuing development of the navigation channel from Paducah, Ky., to Knoxville, Tenn.

For flood control, TVA operates a system of multipurpose reservoirs to retain excessive seasonal runoff and regulate discharges at flow rates that can be accommodated by downstream channels and reservoirs. As a result, flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and its tributaries and also the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

TVA also works to enhance fisheries and aquatic ecology, manage regional water resources, and develop area rivers, streams, and lakes.

(b) Land and forest resources.—TVA conducts programs that promote the growth and use of timber resources in the Tennessee Valley, to enhance the region's wildlife, and to provide opportunities for recreation.

(c) Resource management.—The program contains three major areas of effort: Environmental and energy education, environmental protection of public lands and waters under TVA trust, and regional air quality management. Valley mapping and demonstrations of remote sensing are provided in support of these three areas as well as other TVA activities.

(d) Land Between The Lakes.—Work will continue on development of this 170,000-acre area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky Reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Reservoir.

2. Economic and community resources.—TVA strengthens the region's economic base by providing technical assistance to cities and towns that will allow them to reduce the impediments to economic development.

3. Agricultural resources development.—The Valley agricultural development program works largely through the State land-grant universities and their extension organizations to demonstrate solutions to agricultural problems.

4. National fertilizer development.—In its facilities at the National Fertilizer Development Center in Muscle Shoals, Ala., TVA is active in three general program areas: Fertilizer research and development, fertilizer introduction, and ammonia from coal technology.

Fertilizer research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and the development of fertilizer products and processes. This work is accomplished in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant universities, and industry.

Fertilizer introduction is carried on cooperatively with the land-grant universities and the fertilizer industry. It includes controlled small-plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms, and nationwide education about the fertilizers being introduced.

5. National energy demonstrations.—The construction of the ammonia from coal technology demonstration facility is now complete. The operational phase will include developmental production and evaluation of the process performance and economics.

6. Power program: Power supply and use.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power to an area of 80,000 square miles in the seven Tennessee Valley States. Income from power operations, net of interest charges and depreciation, and other operating expenses is estimated at $440,990 thousand in 1983.

The power generating facilities presented in the capital investment table are financed from power proceeds and borrowings.

7. General services.—Operating costs for general service activities include bridge maintenance, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1983 are to be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $119,490 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $79,547 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $5,033,601 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowing authority of $1,695,962 thousand backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

Operating results and financial conditions.—Only the power program is intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriation funding. Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 1983 are estimated at $120,100 thousand—$100,100 thousand as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20,000 thousand as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Borrowings for the power program are expected to increase by $1,675,000 thousand during 1983.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $2,016,139 thousand during 1983. A total of $1,981,473 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program and $34,666 thousand is in nonpower programs. The estimate of liabilities at September 30, 1983, is $1,671,831 thousand more than the estimate at September 30, 1982. This increase reflects the proposed borrowings in 1983. Total Government equity at September 30, 1983, is estimated to be $344,308 thousand greater than that at September 1982. This change includes the requested appropriation for 1983 and the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury and the net expense of nonpower programs.

In 1983 the major task of the Association will be the monitoring of Conrail's financial status and reports to Congress as required in the Northeast Rail Service Act of 1981. The Association will make a finding on Conrail's profitability by June 1, 1983.

The reduced funding in 1983 is a consequence of anticipated completion, by the end of calendar 1982, of defense against legal challenges filed by estates of the reorganized railroads. Major suits still pending include the Lehigh Valley, Central of New Jersey, and Ann Arbor.

The added appropriation language affirms the commitment of the bankrupt estates to reimburse the Government for the Federal funds provided to pay for life insurance premiums for certain employees retired prior to the establishment of Conrail in 1976. The language would avoid a potential loan default costing $19 million in principal and approximately $7 million in interest.

These funds have been provided for the U.S. Railway Association to purchase debentures and series A preferred stock issued by the Consolidated Rail Corporation. The Corporation utilizes these funds along with internally generated funds and funds from private sources to undertake major rehabilitation of plant and equipment and to cover losses that occur during the initial phase of operations.

The Association purchased $1 billion in Conrail debentures prior to 1978. Since reaching the $1 billion level, purchases of securities have been in the form of series A preferred stock and these purchases amounted to $2,280 million at the end of 1981. However, full recovery of this investment is unlikely.

No 1983 funding is requested. It is believed that the assistance provided through 1982 will be sufficient to enable Conrail to become permanently self-sustaining.

PART II

SCHEDULES OF PERMANENT POSITIONS

II-1

EXPLANATION OF SCHEDULES

Part II contains detailed schedules of permanent positions that are furnished to the Congress pursuant to the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921, as amended, excluding waivers thereunder granted by the Appropriations Committees.

Most civilian employees in the Federal Government are included in one of the following pay systems: Executive level, senior executive service, general schedule, or Foreign Service. The salary ranges for the grades in each of these systems are shown in the following tables. The ranges are those that became effective in October 1981, pursuant to Executive Order 12330 of October 15, 1981, adjusted to reflect the executive pay increases contained in Public Law 97-92 of December 15, 1981. Pay rates for wage-board positions included in the "ungraded" positions are established on the basis of prevailing rates, which vary from area to area.

Note.—In the general schedule grades and certain other positions, the pay scales shown in the schedules may be exceeded when pay rates in the private sector for comparable occupations in one or more areas or locations are substantially above the statutory rates. In such cases, the Office of Personnel Management has authority to permit a higher entrance level (not to exceed the maximum pay step prescribed by statute) and add a corresponding number of steps above the stated pay range.

The following pages display schedules of permanent positions for each of the three branches of Government. The schedules relate to positions established for full-time employment without time limit, and to any others occupied for a year or more. These schedules cover all permanent positions of the organizational element(s) identified, regardless of the source from which financed, and include positions to be filled by reimbursable details to other agencies, and positions financed by allocations from other agencies.

Authorized positions that are funded as of the end of the year are counted, whether filled or unfilled at that time; positions abolished during the year are not counted. Each schedule contains a listing of the grades of authorized positions and the total number in each grade as illustrated below:

Grades are reflected in the stub column; the most commonly used grade series, general schedule, is abbreviated "GS- . ." Salary ranges are shown only when the grades are unique to a single agency or bureau (for example, physicians and nurses schedules within the Department of Medicine and Surgery, Veterans Administration) or where a grade is identified only by title. In the latter case, the title of each grade and the basic salary range is listed. Classification systems with the same salary ranges as the general schedule are so noted. A subtotal line is shown for executive level positions as well as for each separate series of positions, whenever more than one line entry is shown in these categories. Two additional lines provide for deducting the number of unfilled positions to arrive at the total employment in permanent positions at the end of the year.

PART III

SUPPLEMENTALS AND RESCISSIONS

III-1

EXPLANATION OF REQUESTS

This part contains supplemental appropriations requests for 1982 being proposed for congressional consideration in this budget. Requests for supplemental appropriations are usually made after enactment of regular appropriations. In cases where programs are funded under a continuing resolution, some requests are included to supplement the funding available under the resolution. Information is also included on proposals to rescind budget authority for 1982.

PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTAL REQUESTS

Supplemental requests are shown as separate sections.

Section I.—Supplementals proposed in this budget for various purposes other than increased pay costs are presented in this section and usually include: suggested appropriation language, the related budget schedules, and the reasons for the requests. In some cases, language is proposed to reduce mandatory program levels (entitlements, for example) included in authorizing legislation. In such cases, separate budget schedules are not shown, but the reduced funding levels that would result are reflected in the regular budget schedules for the account in Part I. In other cases, language is proposed to reduce enacted loan guarantee limitations; the reduced commitment level is reflected in the regular schedule for Status of Loan Guarantees for the account in Part I.

Section II.—Requests for pay supplementals in this section are in the form of suggested appropriation language. The amounts contained in the appropriation language also appear as separate line entries in the regular program and financing schedules in Part I.

RESCISSION PROPOSALS

Section III.—Under the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), whenever the President proposes rescission of enacted appropriations, a special message must be sent to the Congress giving details of the proposal. Included in this part—for rescission proposals being made in conjunction with this budget—are related budget schedules, references to the special message being sent to the Congress, and explanations of the proposals.

GAO requested an appropriation for 1982 to support a staffing level necessary to meet the workload demands placed upon us by the Congress. The House passed bill, H.R. 4120, and the Senate Subcommittee on Legislative Appropriation proposed funding that would have supported 5,100 employees. Action in conference, however, resulted in a reduction in funding which supports only 5,000 employees. GAO believes that the 5,100 staff level as initially approved by the House and the Senate Subcommittee is essential to properly carry out its assigned programs in 1982 and is therefore requesting a program supplemental to permit an on rolls target of 5,100 employees by September 30, 1982.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT ADMINISTRATION

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT REVOLVING FUND

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

During 1982, and within the resources and authority available, gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans shall not exceed $30,000,000. During fiscal year 1982, total commitments to guarantee loans shall not exceed $45,000,000 of contingent liability for loan principal. The unobligated balances in the Economic Development Revolving Fund shall be available for necessary expenses of protecting the Government's liability in federally guaranteed loans made prior to October 1, 1981, under the authority of Title II of Trade Act of 1974, as amended, including defaults of loan guarantees and care and protection of collateral and such other costs as may be necessary to protect the Government's investments.

This proposed appropriation language would enable the Fund to guarantee 90% of up to $50 million in loan principal (or $45 million in contingent liability). This proposal would also enable the Economic Development Administration to honor its commitment to guarantee loans made under the Trade Act of 1974.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE ADMINISTRATION

OPERATIONS AND ADMINISTRATION

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

During fiscal year 1982, and within the resources and authority available, gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans shall not exceed $12,484,000.

During fiscal year 1982, total commitments to guarantee loans shall not exceed $28,250,000 of contingent liability for loan principal.

This appropriation language would limit Federal obligations for direct loans and the Federal commitment for loan guarantees by the International Trade Administration.

During the current fiscal year the requirements of section 765 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1982 (Public Law 97-114) for reimbursement for medical care shall not apply to military and diplomatic personnel of North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries or the dependents of such personnel.

SEC. 796. Section 779 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1982 (Public Law 97-114) is repealed.

SEC. 797. Section 783 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1982 (Public Law 97-114) is repealed.

SEC. 798. The amount provided for emergencies and extraordinary expenses in "Operation and Maintenance, Defense Agencies" is increased to $8,500,000.

SEC. 799. The limitation contained in section 728 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1982, is increased to $8,000,000.

SEC. 800. The limitation contained in section 747 of the Department of Defense Appropriation Act, 1982, is increased to $31,000,000.

SEC. 801. Appropriations or funds available to the Department of Defense may be transferred to fiscal year 1982 Department of Defense appropriations for Research, development, test, and evaluation to the extent necessary to meet increased pay costs authorized by or pursuant to law.

This proposed language would: (1) amend existing law to facilitate the financing of the special Defense acquisition fund and would permit the obligation of receipts credited to the fund; (2) eliminate existing reimbursements for medical care provided to military and diplomatic personnel and their dependents from NATO countries; (3) increase existing limitations; and (4) permit transfers to research, development, test, and evaluation appropriations to meet increased pay costs.

This supplemental request would provide funds to pay liabilities of the Government that are continuing to accrue for directed rail service performed between September 1979 and March 1980 over the lines of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company and to complete the accounting necessary for final certification of the costs arising out of directed service to the United States Treasury under 49 U.S.C. 11125. The directed carrier does not have sufficient cash to pay these liabilities. There is now litigation pending to decide whether the directed carrier and the Government owe the Rock Island for use of its tracks and equipment during the directed service period. Until the courts reach a final decision, approximately $14 million net owed by the Rock Island to the directed carrier will not be collected. If the $14 million owed is collected, the $8 million additional funds will be needed only on a temporary basis.

The Supplemental Appropriation is requested to meet the Government's obligation under 5 U.S.C. 8906(g) which provides that the Government contribution for annuitant health benefits shall be paid from annual appropriations made for that purpose. The need for supplemental resources is a result of two factors: (1) in 1981 unusually high retirement and retirement claims processing levels caused unanticipated growth in the covered population, and (2) higher than expected increases in the overall cost of the health benefits program and the rate of the Government contribution toward annuitant health benefits in 1982. The aggregate amount of the Government payment is a function of the covered population and the Government contribution rate and the need for additional resources cannot be offset through economies in other areas.

This request consists of two items: (1) The first of 30 annual payments for the October 1981 pay adjustment for the General Schedule and Wage Board employees which amounts to $299.1 million, and (2) a recomputation of the October 1980 pay raise which amounts to $4.2 million.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

Of the amount appropriated for "Salaries and expenses" in fiscal year 1982, not to exceed $8,500,000 shall be available for grants for Small Business Development Centers as authorized by section 20(a) of the Small Business Act, as amended.

This appropriation language would provide for the reallocation of resources from grants to administrative and related contractual expenses.

BUSINESS LOAN AND INVESTMENT FUND

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

During fiscal year 1982, within resources and authority available, total commitments to guarantee loans shall not exceed $2,735,000,000 of contingent liability for loan principal.

This proposal would reduce 1982 new guaranteed business loan commitments.

POLLUTION CONTROL EQUIPMENT CONTRACT GUARANTEE REVOLVING FUND

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

During fiscal year 1982, within resources and authority available, total commitments to guarantee shall not exceed $150,000,000 of contingent liability for principal.

This proposal would increase the request for new 1982 guarantee commitments which offsets a small portion of the reduction in the commitment to guarantee loans for the Business Loan and Investment Fund.

WATER RESOURCES COUNCIL

WATER RESOURCES PLANNING

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

Of amounts appropriated for Water Resources Planning, for preparation of assessments and plans, in Public Law 97-88, not more than $195,000 shall be available to pay for work performed prior to fiscal year 1982 in support of the Columbia River Estuary Data Development Program, if such work is accepted by the Water Resources Council.

This language would allow use of the 1982 appropriation for preparation of assessments and plans to ensure payment of existing obligations incurred by the Columbia River Estuary data development program. Public Law 97-88 provided funds in 1982 to bring to an orderly conclusion the ongoing studies funded through the Water Resources Council, for which no new funding is requested for 1983.

Off-Budget Federal Entities

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION

To carry into effect the provisions of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended (7 U.S.C. 901-950(b)), as follows:

(Appropriation language now requested, existing legislation)

The lower level of commitments for loan guarantees, contained under this heading in Public Law 97-103, is reduced to $4,245,000.

This proposed appropriation language would reduce the acceptable range for guaranteed loans during 1982.

The administration does not plan to initiate this new program, which is designed to subsidize investments in energy conservation measures and solar technologies in residential, agricultural and commercial buildings. Substantial economic incentives already exist for such investments. Solar and conservation investments have, as oil prices have risen, become more cost-effective and can be expected to become more attractive in the future.

PART IV

OFF-BUDGET FEDERAL ENTITIES

IV-1

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part IV contains detailed budgets and explanatory statements of certain Federal entities that are not included in the budget totals. These budgets and statements are made available as auxiliary information.

Public Law 93-32 removed from the budget totals the governmental financing of rural electric and telephone systems administered by the Department of Agriculture.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System provides its administrative budget for inclusion without further review. In conformance with its accounting system, the figures for the Board are on a calendar year basis.

Public Law 97-35 established the SPR petroleum account for the purpose of acquisition, transportation, and injection of petroleum products into the strategic petroleum reserve. The law specifies that account transactions shall not be included in the budget totals.

The Federal Financing Bank was created by the Federal Financing Bank Act of 1973 to: (1) reduce the cost of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public, and (2) assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive to private financial markets and institutions. The bank is authorized to make direct loans by making commitments to purchase and sell, and purchasing and selling on terms and conditions determined by the bank, any obligation that is issued, sold, or guaranteed by a Federal agency. The Federal Financing Bank is administered by the Department of the Treasury.

The budget presentation of the Postal Service reflects its conversion to independent status consistent with the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970. The activities of the Postal Service, but not the Federal subsidy (which is included in Part I), are excluded from the budget totals and presented here.

The United States Railway Association, established by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973, is a Government corporation. Part of the financing activities of the Association is presented here, while the administrative expenses of the Association and the purchase of Conrail securities are included on-budget in Part I.

The United States Synthetic Fuels Corporation was established by the United States Synthetic Fuels Act of 1980 to encourage the production of synthetic fuels. Although the activities of the Corporation are off-budget, all the Federal funds provided to the Corporation will be included in the budget totals.

¹ A limitation in the amount of $4,245 thousand of contingent liability is proposed for fiscal year 1982; see Part III for additional information.

Note.—Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in loan guarantees. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct or loan guarantee limitation levels.

The Rural Electrification Administration conducts two capital investment programs: (1) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (2) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

Insured electric and telephone loans financed from the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund (RETRF) under the authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, bear interest at a 5% rate. Some loans may be made at a lesser rate as explained below. RETRF loans must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. REA also guarantees loans made by the Federal Financing Bank (FFB) and other qualified lenders at rates agreed upon by the lender and the borrower.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 amended the Rural Electrification Act to establish a 5% interest rate for all loans from the RETRF; however, the administrator may make loans at a rate less than 5%, but not less than 2%, if the borrower has experienced extreme financial hardship, or cannot provide service consistent with the objectives of the act without charging rates so high that a substantial disparity results between such rates and those charged for similar services in the same or nearby areas by other suppliers. Loan applications on hand as of July 24, 1981, remain eligible for the special 2% interest rate.

Loans from the RETRF are financed from available receipts or, when necessary, by interim Treasury borrowings. Loans made from the RETRF are held in a pool as security for certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) which are sold to investors. Through 1983, CBO's to be sold to the Federal Financing Bank are estimated to aggregate to $3,743 million.

1. Rural electrification.—This capital investment program is financed through REA insured loans and guarantees of loans made by other qualified lenders for the construction and operation of generating plants, electric transmission, and distribution lines or systems in rural areas.

The 1982 budget request reflects the availability of supplemental financing from the National Rural Utilities Cooperative Finance Corporation (CFC) and other sources to satisfy a part of the capital requirements of the rural electric systems. Other funding sources are expected to play a larger part in financing rural electric systems.

The 1983 budget request reflects a reduced level of RETRF insured telephone loans; however, financing from the Rural Telephone Bank and loan guarantee commitments will satisfy a major part of the capital requirements of the rural telephone system. Other funding sources are expected to play a larger part in financing rural telephone systems.

The Rural Telephone Bank (RTB) was established by Public Law 92-12, approved May 7, 1971, which amended the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended. The RTB provides a supplemental source of financing for the REA telephone program. Public Law 92-234, approved June 30, 1972, amended the act to permit the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase the bank's debentures. This has minimized the bank's borrowing costs. The bank charges an interest rate based on the average cost of money to the bank, but not less than 5% per annum. The weighted average interest rate on cumulative loans through September 30, 1981, was 7.61%. During the first quarter of 1982, loans were made at 12.25% interest.

Equity capital of the bank consists of class A stock purchased by the United States, classes B and C stock purchased by bank borrowers, organizations eligible to become borrowers and organizations controlled by borrowers, and retained earnings. The maximum borrowing authority of the bank by law is limited to 20 times its paid-in capital and retained earnings. Total available borrowing authority of the bank for 1982 is estimated at $8.6 billion. For 1983 it is estimated at $8.6 billion.

Bank loans totaled $160 million in 1981. After almost 10 years in operation, loans to 466 borrowers have been approved, totaling over $1.520 billion. Telephone bank loans are estimated at $185 million for 1982 and $185 million for 1983.

Administrative support for the general operations of the bank are provided on a part-time basis by REA employees and the Office of the General Counsel, without cost to the bank, as provided for in the enabling legislation. Certain administrative expenses, such as expenses of the elected members of the Board of Directors, postage fees and the audit by the General Accounting Office, must be borne by the bank.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created on December 29, 1973, to assure the coordination of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public and to assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive of private financial markets and institutions.

The Bank has become the vehicle through which most Federal agencies finance their programs involving the sale or placement of credit market instruments, including agency securities, guaranteed obligations, participation agreements, and the sale of assets. The major exceptions to date are Title XI ship mortgage bonds and Government National Mortgage Association asset sales.

In addition, some programs which formerly used the FFB will sell their securities on the market. These include the National Credit Union Administration Central Liquidity Facility, and the Student Loan Marketing Association.

During 1981 the Federal Financing Bank made gross loan guarantee originations and loan asset purchases of $30.2 billion, as well as $13.5 billion in gross lending to Federal agencies. In the absence of the Bank, the majority of borrowers would have issued their obligations in the market at a cost significantly higher than that charged by the FFB.

The following table reflects the composition of the FFB account by agency and program in thousands of dollars. Budget authority is equal to gross purchases of loan assets or guaranteed loan originations. Outlays equal the amount of budget authority less the repayment of principal.

At the first meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank on May 23, 1974, the Board approved a policy of borrowing from the Treasury Department on an interim basis. These borrowings were to be periodically repaid by the sale of FFB securities in the market. On July 23, 1974, the Bank auctioned $1.5 billion of 244-day Federal Financing Bank bills dated July 30, which matured on March 31, 1975. In a later meeting on June 5, 1975, the Board of Directors decided that the Bank would borrow all funds from the Treasury Department matching the terms and conditions of its borrowings from the Treasury with the terms and conditions of its loans.

FFB purchases of Federal agencies' debt is not reflected in the budget totals because borrowing and the repayment of borrowings between Federal agencies and the Treasury are not budgetary transactions. These transactions are reflected in the accounts of the particular agencies. The use of the FFB permits these agencies to borrow at lower rates than would occur if the agencies went to the market. This was a major reason for the creation of the Bank. They are financed by an equal amount of borrowings from Treasury, which are an addition to the borrowings recorded in the statement of financial conditions. The extent of these FFB investments is reflected below:

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including 9 Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Decisions on changes in domestic rates of postage and fees for postal services are recommended to the Governors of the Postal Service by the independent Postal Rate Commission after a hearing on the record under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Commission also recommends decisions on changes in the domestic mail classification schedule to the Governors. Decisions of the Governors on rates of postage, fees for postal services, and mail classification are final, subject to judicial review.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) mail and services revenue, (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources, (3) proceeds from borrowing, (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments, and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

Since 1973, transactions of the Postal Service Fund and the assets and liabilities of the U.S. Postal Service no longer appear within the totals of the U.S. budget. The schedules presented here reflect summary data on postal operations.

Section 2005 of the Postal Reorganization Act authorizes borrowing authority of $10 billion with a yearly limitation of $2 billion, of which not more than $500 million may be used to cover operating expenses. As of September 30, 1983, it is expected that indebtedness outstanding pursuant to this borrowing authority will amount to $1.884 billion.

Operating.—Estimated receipts will total $24.5 billion in 1983. This includes $23.7 billion from mail and services revenue, $291.0 million from investment income, $500 million from appropriations and miscellaneous other income of $17.0 million. The following financial statement presents figures submitted by the Postal Service, adjusted to include the President's recommended funding level for the Postal Service subsidy.

The United States Railway Association is authorized by the Regional Rail Reorganization Act, as amended, to borrow funds and make loans to certain railroads. Borrowings by the United States Railway Association are guaranteed by the Secretary of Transportation. The aggregate of outstanding obligations of the Association is limited to $395 million at any one time. Two types of loans are currently authorized: (a) Loans related to the implementation of the system plan developed by the Association for restructuring the bankrupt railroads in the Northeast and Midwest, and (b) loans to defray obligations of the reorganized railroads which were incurred prior to the conveyance of their rail properties but which were unpaid after the conveyance to the Consolidated Rail Corporation on April 1, 1976. In the past year, settlement of the Penn Central valuation case resulted in the repayment of $231 million in outstanding loans. During 1982, repayment of additional loans for pre-conveyance expenses of the bankrupt railroads will result in reducing USRA borrowing for loans of this type by $120 million.

Congress in 1980 enacted the Energy Security Act creating the Synthetic Fuels Corporation (SFC). The Corporation is intended to assist private industry to finance the development of synthetic fuels from coal, oil shale, and other energy resources. Private sector firms will plan, construct, operate and own the synthetic fuel plants, but will receive financial assistance from the Corporation in the form of purchase agreements, price guarantees, loan guarantees, and direct loans.

The legislation creating the Corporation provides that the Corporation's budget not be included in the totals of the U.S. budget. However as the Corporation requires funds to make payments to private firms, it will receive funds from the Secretary of the Treasury. An on-budget account has been established for this purpose. As funds are provided from the Secretary of the Treasury to the Corporation, outlays will be recorded in the Federal budget.

Although the Corporation will enter into obligations of a significant amount in its early years, it is not expected to make large cash payments until the production of synthetic fuels actually begins later this decade.

In 1982, the unobligated and uncommitted balances of budget authority appropriated to the Department of Energy for the interim alternative fuels program will be transferred to the Energy Security Reserve account in the Treasury as soon as the SFC is declared to be operational by the President. Also, $6,212,000,000 appropriated in 1980 to the Energy's Security Reserve account for the SFC, will become available. Total resources available to the SFC will be $14.6 billion.

In addition, in 1982 the SFC may assume responsibility for certain contracts and agreements initiated by the Department of Energy under interim authority. These contracts will transfer to the SFC after it is declared to be fully operational.

Activities of the Corporation are expected to greatly increase in 1982 as the Corporation moves into the final stages of project selection. At its January 18, 1982, meeting the Board of the Corporation determined that eleven projects were sufficiently developed to be evaluated for potential selection for the final stage of competition under the Corporation's initial solicitation. The Board is scheduled to make that selection on March 2, and until the Board makes that selection, the Corporation will not be able to develop budget projections of financial assistance with any degree of accuracy. Therefore, the estimates included here may not necessarily represent the actual level of Corporation commitments.

OTHER MATERIALS

EXPLANATION OF OTHER MATERIALS

This section includes the following material:

(a) a list of advance appropriations, as required by section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, a list of appropriations with advance funding provisions, and a list of appropriations with forward funding provisions.

(b) a statement of amendments and revisions to 1982 budget authority requests that were transmitted to the Congress after the 1982 budget but prior to the transmittal of the 1983 Budget, as required by section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS, ADVANCED FUNDING, AND FORWARD FUNDING FOR 1983

I. Advance appropriations are provided for use in a fiscal year, or more, beyond the fiscal year for which the appropriation act is passed. Advance appropriations in 1983 appropriations bills will provide funding for programs beyond 1983. Since these appropriations are not available until after 1983, the amounts will not be included in 1983 budget totals, but will be reflected in the budget totals for the fiscal year requested.

Section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344) requires inclusion in the budget of "information with respect to estimates of appropriations for the next succeeding fiscal year for grants, contracts, or other payments under any program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for such succeeding fiscal year and such appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation act for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation." In fulfillment of this requirement, the table below lists those accounts authorized to receive, in 1983, advance appropriations for 1984 and later years. The listing is in two parts: Part A shows the amounts of advance appropriations included in the 1983 budget. Part B is a listing of accounts for which advance appropriations are authorized, but not requested in the 1983 budget.

A. Accounts for which advance appropriations are included in the 1983 budget:

- Department of Health and Human Services:
Assistance payments program (42 U.S.C., sec. 601) $1,327,203 thousand for 1984.
Child support enforcement program (42 U.S.C., sec. 651) $112,500 thousand for 1984.
Grants to States for medicaid (42 U.S.C., sec. 1396) $4,470,000 thousand for 1984.
Office of the Inspector General (State Medicaid fraud control units) (42 U.S.C., sec. 1396) $10,000 thousand for 1984.
Corporation for Public Broadcasting: $116,500 thousand pending for 1983; $93,500 thousand requested for 1984; $85,000 thousand requested for 1985.

B. Accounts authorized to receive advance appropriations but for which none are requested in the 1983 budget:

- Department of Agriculture:

Department of Transportation:
Urban mass transportation fund (49 U.S.C. 1603).

(The following activities are proposed for transfer from the Department of Education to the agencies identified in parenthesis and are authorized to receive a one-time advance appropriation (20 U.S.C., sec. 1223)).

- Compensatory education for the disadvantaged (Foundation for Education Assistance).
School assistance in federally affected areas (Department of Defense, Department of the Interior, and the Department of the Treasury).

II. Advance funding is authority provided in appropriation acts to obligate and disburse funds during a fiscal year from a succeeding year's appropriation. The funds so obligated increase the budget authority for the fiscal year in which obligated and reduce the budget authority of the succeeding fiscal year. Essentially, this is a device for avoiding supplemental requests late in the fiscal year for certain entitlement programs should the appropriations for the current year prove to be too low. The table below lists those accounts for which advance funding authority is requested in the 1983 budget.

- Department of Health and Human Services:
Grants to states for medicaid.
Special benefits for disabled coal miners.
Supplemental security income program.
Assistance payments program.
Child support enforcement program.
Child welfare block grant.
Office of the Inspector General.
Department of Labor:
Federal unemployment benefits and allowances.
Special benefits.
Black lung disability trust fund.

III. Forward funding is authority provided in an appropriations act to obligate funds in one fiscal year for the financing of ongoing programs of grantees during the succeeding fiscal year. This device is often used for education programs, so that grants can be made prior to the start of the school year. The budget authority for such programs is included in the budget totals for the year in which it is appropriated. The language providing forward funding will specify that amounts appropriated will not be available until some time into the year of the appropriation (e.g., July 1, 1983) and in most cases will specify that such amounts will remain available until the end of the succeeding fiscal year. The table below lists those accounts for which forward funding is requested in the 1983 budget.

(The following accounts are proposed for transfer from the Department of Education to the Foundation for Education Assistance.)

Foundation for Education Assistance:

- Compensatory education for the disadvantaged.
- Special programs and populations.
- Education for the handicapped, gifted and talented.
- Vocational and adult education.

STATEMENT OF AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR FISCAL YEAR
1982

(Between the Transmittal of the 1982 and 1983 Budgets)

A statement of all amendments to or revisions in budget authority requested between submission of the 1982 budget and the 1983 budget is presented below. This statement is being included in the budget in accord with section 201 of the Budget and Accounting Act, 1921, as amended by section 601(g) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

The modifications to requests for 1982 budget authority that were made through the course of the past year took three forms. If the Congress had not yet acted on a pending request, the President sent amendments to the budget requests transmitted in January, 1981. If appropriations had been enacted, the President proposed either supplemental budget authority or rescission of enacted appropriations.

Amendments and requests for supplemental appropriations are printed in the documents of the House of Representatives and the Senate that are identified in part A of the following listing. The President's proposals for rescission are included in special messages to the Congress under the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344). Both the special messages and monthly cumulative reports on the items they cover are printed in the Federal Register.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) is a Government-sponsored private corporation. Its purpose is to provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by supplying a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

FNMA purchases mortgages at market prices pursuant to commitments issued to sellers, generally through its "Free Market System" auctions and a variety of other programs. It finances these purchases primarily through the issuance of debt securities. FNMA's debt instruments are characterized as "Agency Issues."

The common stock of the Corporation is owned by the public, is fully transferable and is listed on major stock exchanges.

The forecast data contained in this material has been developed based on certain general economic assumptions prevalent in July 1981 and should not be construed as an official forecast of the Corporation's position.

The Corporation has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated obligations in an amount not in excess of twice the net equity. It may, in addition, borrow amounts not in excess of the sum of net equity and subordinated obligations outstanding multiplied by a factor established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. This factor is currently set at 25. These borrowings require the express approval of the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and the Secretary of the Treasury and usually take the form of debentures and short-term discount notes. Finally, FNMA may issue securities guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association which are fully backed by pools of mortgages. There is no statutory limitation on the amount of the last-named type of obligations that may be outstanding.

The 13 Banks for cooperatives are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sales of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds issued by the banks are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The banks for cooperatives presently operate under authorities contained in title III of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-180, as amended.

The 12 Federal intermediate credit banks are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to local financing institutions such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks become mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks, from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968.

The Federal intermediate credit banks presently operate under authorities contained in title II of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

The Federal land banks, through the 520 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These banks and associations are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from the sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the land banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947.

The Federal land banks presently operate under authorities contained in title I of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

The 12 Federal Home Loan Banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions whose main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan-type institutions and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and enhance their service to the public as savings media and home-mortgage lenders. Each bank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the banks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1981, the banks extended credits of $52.2 billion and received repayments of $32.0 billion. Advances outstanding on September 30, 1981, totaled $64.3 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On September 30, 1981, $57.6 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include a portion of members' deposits as determined by Board policy (total deposits were at $11.9 billion on September 30, 1981) and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions, amounting to $5.7 billion at the end of 1981. Funds not immediately used for advances to members are invested until such times as needed.

The capital stock of the Federal home loan banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951.

The entire operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a portion of the Board's administrative and other costs.

The Student Loan Marketing Association (SLMA), a private corporation, was created by the Education Amendments of 1972 to expand funds available for student loans by providing liquidity to banks, educational institutions, and other lenders engaged in the Guaranteed student loan program.

In 1981 and 1982 the SLMA was sponsored by the Department of Education. It is proposed that the SLMA will have a similar relationship with the Foundation for Education Assistance in 1983.

SLMA provides liquidity through direct purchase of insured student loans from eligible lenders and by making warehousing advances, secured by insured student loans or by Government issued or backed securities, to eligible lenders. SLMA is also authorized to make direct loans to borrowers for purposes of loan consolidation; at the request of appropriate State and Federal officials, to make direct loans to students in capital shortage areas; and to advance funds to States which, in turn, will provide loans to students. Effective September 12, 1981, the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-35) authorized SLMA to provide a secondary market for noninsured loans; at the request of the Secretary of Education to serve as a guarantee agency in support of loan availability; to purchase and underwrite student loan revenue bonds; and to provide such additional services as determined by its Board of Directors to be supportive of the credit needs of students.

Operations.—At September 1981, SLMA had $2,506,396 thousand outstanding in warehousing advances. It is expected that volume will reach an adjusted level of $3,002,687 thousand by September 30, 1982, with continued activity in 1983. SLMA expects to purchase $1,260,406 thousand in loans in 1982, and have a net increase of $1,092,668 thousand in 1983, to reach a level of $3,975,953 thousand as of September 30, 1983. At September 30, 1981, SLMA had entered into agreements to purchase during the next 192 months up to $1,005 million of federally and State insured student loans originated or acquired by 7 State higher education agencies, 3 State secondary markets, and 31 financial institutions, if such loans are offered for sale. At September 30, 1982, SLMA expects to have outstanding $842 million of such agreements to purchase.

SLMA is authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976 to provide a secondary market for federally insured loans to graduate health professions students.

Financing.—To obtain funds for its programs, SLMA is authorized, with the approval of the Secretary of Education and the Secretary of the Treasury, to issue its own debt obligations. The Secretary of Education is authorized by the Education Amendments of 1980 to guarantee as to principal and interest such obligations issued prior to October 1, 1984, regardless of maturity date. In March 1981, the Federal Financing Bank agreed to lend to SLMA up to $5,000,000 thousand, inclusive of outstanding borrowings, during the period ending September 30, 1982. At September 30, 1981, $4,300,000 thousand of this amount was outstanding. In May 1981, SLMA began to issue nonguaranteed, short-term discount notes. At September 30, 1981, $268 million of these notes were outstanding. In the future, SLMA intends to obtain funds for its programs primarily from the sale of its nonguaranteed debt securities. The issuance of these securities is subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Management.—At its annual meeting in May 1981, the shareholders of SLMA elected a board of directors to serve until May of 1982. The shareholders of SLMA are entitled to elect 14 members to the board. Pursuant to the Education Amendments of 1972, the President of the United States continues to appoint the remaining 7 members of the 21-member board, as well as designating the chairman of the board. Six public directors including the chairman were appointed by the President in November 1981.

The forecast data with respect to operations are based on certain specific assumptions by management, including the continued successful development, implementation, and financing of authorized programs. The board of directors has not yet reviewed or approved these financial estimates. Accordingly, such data should not be relied upon as an official forecast of the corporation's future business.
