The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities as deemed necessary, consistent with U.S. obligations in the International Monetary Fund (IMF), regarding orderly exchange arrangements. An Exchange Stabilization Fund, with a capital of $200 million, is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 5302). All earnings and interest accruing to this fund are available for the purposes thereof. Transactions in special drawing rights (SDR's) and U.S. holdings of SDR's are administered by the fund. U.S. drawings from the IMF are also advanced to the fund.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been profits on foreign exchange transactions, interest on foreign exchange swap transactions, and on investments held by the fund, including interest earned on fund holdings of U.S. Government securities.

Due to the impracticability of forecasting fund transactions in foreign currency and foreign investment, projections are not provided for those items. However, as an offset to actual data and projections made in the budget for interest paid on U.S. Government securities, data for the interest income on fund holdings of U.S. Government securities is provided for 1987 and projected for 1988 and 1989. Holdings of U.S. Government securities amounted to $2,935 million on September 30, 1987. The interest earnings on these securities is estimated to increase these holdings to $3,111 million in 1988 and $3,279 million in 1989. As required by Public Law 95-612, the fund no longer is used to meet administrative expenses.

<sup>1</sup> Pursuant to the Special Drawing Rights Act of 1968, Special Drawing Rights (SDR) allocated to or otherwise acquired by the United States are resources of the Exchange Stabilization Fund (ESF). SDR, once allocated, are permanent resources unless cancelled (which requires an 85 percent majority decision of the total voting power of the Board of Governors of the International Monetary Fund), the Special Drawing Account is liquidated, the International Monetary Fund is liquidated, or the United States chooses to withdraw from the Fund or terminate its participation in the Special Drawing Account. Except for payment of interest and charges on SDR allocations to the United States, the payment of the Exchange Stabilization Fund liability related to SDR allocations is conditional on events listed above, in which the United States has a substantial or controlling voice. The Special Drawing Rights Act also authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue Special Drawing Rights certificates to the Federal Reserve Banks in return for dollar deposits in amounts equal to the value of the SDR held. The certificates may be issued to finance the acquisition of SDR from other countries or to provide resources for financing ESF operations.

Certain central services in the Department of the Treasury, including telephone, telegraph, printing, reproduction, and printing procurement services, and the Treasury automated communications system are provided on a reimbursable basis. Transactions are entered into with other Treasury appropriation accounts at rates which will recover the fund's operating expenses, including accrual of annual leave and depreciation of equipment. This presentation reflects the inclusion of the Digital Telephone System: a Departmental initiative to modernize Treasury telecommunications through providing added voice communication capabilities and transmission networks for office automation and data communications; and the Consolidated Data Network: a Department-wide data communications system that will enhance security, offer lower cost data transmission and more reliable communication networks.

The Energy Security Reserve was created principally to finance the activities of the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corporation. Public Law 99-190, making continuing appropriations for 1986, rescinded the balance of unobligated funds available to the Corporation. The Act left $10 million in the Reserve for the Corporation's liquidation and $400 million for a Clean Coal Technology Demonstration program, which has been transferred to a new account in the Department of Energy. The Act also transferred responsibility for ongoing projects of the Corporation to the Secretary of the Treasury; these projects' activities and financing will continue to be displayed in this account.

This fund is for use by the U.S. Treasury in making settlement with the payees or special endorsees in case of checks drawn on the U.S. Treasury which have been paid on forged endorsements.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorers of the checks through reclamation procedure by this office. Benefits from these early settlements are shared by claimants and the Government in that the claimants are more quickly restored financially to their proper position and the Government is spared the necessity of much unproductive correspondence. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover funds, the revolving account sustains the loss.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created to assure the coordination of Federal and federally assisted borrowing from the public and to assure that such borrowings are financed in a manner least disruptive of private financial markets and institutions.

The Bank is the vehicle through which most Federal agencies finance their programs involving the sale or placement of credit market instruments, including agency securities, guaranteed obligations, participation agreements, and loan assets. The major exceptions are Title XI ship mortgage bonds and Government National Mortgage Association asset sales.

Transactions by the FFB on behalf of a Federal agency are treated as a means of financing the agency—i.e., lending by the FFB to the agency and borrowing by the agency from the FFB. These transactions are not reflected directly in the budget totals because borrowing and the repayment of borrowing between Federal agencies and the Treasury are not budgetary transactions. Rather, the budget authority and the outlays of the agency that are financed by such borrowing are reflected in particular agency accounts and, hence, in the budget totals.

Lending by the FFB to an agency may be accomplished in any of three forms (the form used depends on the authorizing statutes pertaining to a particular agency or program): (1) the FFB may purchase agency financial assets; (2) the FFB may originate direct loans on behalf of an agency; and (3) the FFB may acquire debt securities that the agency is otherwise authorized to issue to the public. In the case of FFB loan originations, the FFB actually disburses loans directly to private borrowers on behalf of the agency and receives repayments from the private borrower on behalf of the agency. However, consistent with the legal requirement that transactions by the FFB be treated as a means of financing agency obligations, the budget reflects the budgetary effect of those transactions, which, in succession, are a loan by the FFB to the agency, a loan by the agency to a private borrower, a repayment by a private borrower to the agency, and a repayment by the agency to the FFB. Conceptually, the budgetary treatment of interest on loans originated by the FFB should be consistent with the treatment of principal; that is, the budget would show collections of interest by the agency from loans to the public and payments of interest by the agency on its borrowing from the FFB (the amounts collected and paid would normally be equal and offsetting). However, data on collections by the FFB on behalf of agencies by agency are not available, so these interest collections are shown in the aggregate in the FFB fund.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 authorized certain rural electric borrowers to prepay up to $2 billion of their Rural Electrification Administration-guaranteed loans from the FFB, without premium or penalty, using REA-guaranteed private market financ-ings. Pursuant to this Act, FFB received prepayments of $589 million in 1987. FFB suffered an associated loss of $165 million. FFB charges its borrowers a fee on all lending. This fee produces a surplus, which is turned over to the Treasury General Fund. The $165 million loss suffered by the FFB reduced the 1987 transfer to the General Fund by the same amount.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987 and the Continuing Appropriations Resolution for 1988 authorized further par prepayments for rural electric and foreign military sales borrowers, respectively. These authorizations will lead to further FFB losses. While the amounts that borrowers will choose to prepay under these authorities are subject to a variety of factors and cannot be estimated with precision, the associated FFB loss and subsequent reduction in General Fund receipts could total $0.6 billion for the rural electric program and $3.5 billion for the FMS program.

The following table shows by agency and program the net lending by the FFB during each year and the amount of loans outstanding at the end of the year.

A Federal Credit Direct Loan Revolving Fund would be created in the Department of the Treasury to finance the financial assets portion of direct loans made by agencies covered under the President's Credit Reform Proposal. A complete explanation of the President's proposal is included in Part 6b of the Budget.

The managers of this fund, in consultation with the Federal agencies, who continue to arrange and approve direct loans, would be responsible for estimating the subsidy associated with these loans. The subsidy amount proportionate to the level of new direct loans obligated would be paid by the agency into this Fund. The Fund would serve as central financing mechanism, providing the financial asset portion of new direct loans, and receiving the associated interest payments and repayments on these loans.

<sup>2</sup> Due to a mid-year tax increase, there will be an increase of 400 in the number of returns and an additional $0.14 million in revenue collections. The increase in collections, however, is offset in fiscal years 1988 and 1989 by revenue decreases which are estimated to be larger than the tax increase.

Inspection and control.—In enforcing the provisions of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, the Inspection and Control activity must: (1) stop the illegal entry of drugs and other prohibited items and enforce export laws while accommodating the law-abiding persons and cargo entering this country; and (2) improve selectivity of Customs inspectional enforcement programs through improved techniques and equipment.

Tariff and trade.—The primary goals of this program are: (1) to accommodate the demands of international trade; (2) to improve the efficiency of processing through better selectivity in document review and laboratory analysis and an increased reliance on modern business techniques such as regulatory audit; (3) to continue the development of automated systems; (4) to improve the administration of post-audit techniques; and (5) to provide Customs field personnel and the public with timely, uniform, predictable, and useful rulings and interpretations and final administrative decisions. Functions of this activity will be transferred to Commercial Activities beginning in 1989.

Tactical interdiction.—Operating under the authority of titles 19 and 26, U.S. Code, the tactical interdiction program is directed at combating smuggling activity along our national borders by maintaining a highly mobile interdiction force which is proficient in land, sea, and certain air tactical enforcement operations.

Investigations.—This program is the investigative arm of the Customs Service involved in conducting criminal, civil, and fact-finding investigations of customs and related laws, including currency, fraud, neutrality, smuggling, and illegal exports of critical technology.

Commercial Activities.—In 1989, all of the Customs Service commercial operations will be identified in this budget activity, including the commercial activities currently performed in the Inspection and Control, Tariff and Trade, and Investigations activities. Commercial operations must: (1) enforce the provisions of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended; (2) accommodate the growth of persons and cargo entering this country; (3) open new ports of entry and expand service at existing ports to meet the needs of the traveling and importing public; (4) collect lost revenue by conducting investigations of commercial fraud; (5) improve the efficiency of processing through better selectivity in document review and laboratory analysis; (6) continue the development of automated systems; (7) improve the administration of post-audit techniques; (8) provide Customs field personnel and the public with timely, uniform, predictable, and useful rulings and interpretations and final administrative decisions; and (9) achieve maximum utilization of Customs resources with minimum disruption of international trade and travel.

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies most of the major evidences of a financial character issued by the United States. It is the sole source of Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most of the minor evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. The Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

Engraving and printing—

Currency.—Total deliveries of currency for 1988 and 1989 are estimated to be 6.0 and 6.3 billion notes, respectively. During 1987 the Bureau delivered 6.2 billion Federal Reserve notes.

Stamps.—This category of work is comprised mainly of postal and internal revenue stamps. The projected requirements for 1988 and 1989 are 45.2 and 38.1 billion stamps, respectively. In 1987, the Bureau delivered 35.0 billion stamps.

Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government.

Commissions, certificates, etc.—This program is comprised primarily of Presidential and Department of Defense commissions and certificates, White House invitations, and identification cards for various Government agencies. It represents a small portion of the Bureau's total workload.

Space utilized by other agencies.—Other agencies are charged for services provided in the space occupied in the Bureau's buildings.

Other miscellaneous services.—A wide variety of miscellaneous services are performed by Bureau personnel for other agencies, which are charged on an actual cost basis.

Purchase of operating equipment.—This category consists of new purchases and replacement of printing equipment and other related printing items.

Plant alterations and experimental equipment.—This category encompasses alterations made on the Bureau's buildings and purchases of experimental equipment.

The operations of the Bureau are currently financed by means of a revolving fund established in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 656, August 4, 1950 (31 U.S.C. 181), which requires the Bureau to be reimbursed by customer agencies for all costs of manufacturing products and services performed. The Bureau is also authorized to assess amounts to acquire capital equipment and provide for working capital needs. Bureau operations during 1987 resulted in an increased retained earnings of $50.2 million.

This appropriation provides for the examination of tax returns, both domestic and international, and the administrative settlement of taxpayer appeals of examination findings. Funds are requested to continue the Service's ability to assure evenhanded application and adequate enforcement of the tax laws and to maintain a satisfactory rate of voluntary compliance with the internal revenue laws. It also provides for monitoring employee pension plans, determining qualifications of organizations seeking tax-exempt status, and examining tax returns of exempt organizations.

Examination.—This activity encourages voluntary compliance with the internal revenue laws through the determination of correct tax liability by the selective examination of tax returns, the correction of errors, and explanation of these corrections to taxpayers.

Appeals and tax litigation.—The appeals portion of this authority provides for an independent administrative review of contested tax assessments and adjustments with the objective of settling tax controversies without litigation. When settlement is not possible, the tax litigation portion of the activity provides for the handling of Tax Court litigation and for the coordination of the Service's legal position in order to assure consistency.

Employee plans and exempt organizations.—This activity monitors private pension plans to ensure compliance with the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended, determines whether organizations seeking tax-exempt status meet certain tests to qualify, and examines tax returns of those organizations to ensure compliance with such an exemption and to ensure payment of unrelated business income taxes. It also examines the returns of private foundations to ensure payment of proper excise taxes.

International.—This activity directs the full range of IRS enforcement and assistance programs related to U.S. taxpayers doing business or residing outside the United States as well as non-resident aliens with a U.S. tax obligation; provides technical tax training and administrative assistance to foreign governments; works with States on exchange of information and other programs of mutual benefit; provides compliance and taxpayer service support to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and certain Pacific Island jurisdictions; and manages activities related to tax treaties between the United States and other governments. The International Counsel function identifies and resolves international tax issues; provides timely guidance to the field through both routine program assistance to the Assistant Commissioner (International) and to District Counsel and International Examiners with respect to specific cases and issues; and provides timely guidance to taxpayers and tax practitioners through the rulings and regulations program.

As provided by law, there will be instances wherein the earned income tax credit will exceed the amount of tax liability owed, resulting in an additional payment to the tax filer. The Earned Income Credit was originally authorized by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-12) and made permanent by the Revenue Adjustment Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-600). The Tax Reform Act of 1986 increased the allowance for earned income credit.

Under certain circumstances, as provided in 26 U.S.C. 6611, interest is paid on Internal Revenue collections that must be refunded. The Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (Public Law 97-248) provides for daily compounding of interest. Under the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-514), interest paid on Internal Revenue collections will equal the Federal short-term rate plus two percentage points, such rate to be adjusted quarterly. A 10 percent rate will be in effect from January 1, 1988, through March 31, 1988.

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966, to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. In collecting delinquent taxes, situations arise where it is to the Government's advantage to buy property on which it has a lien when the property is sold at a foreclosure sale brought by the holder of a lien which is superior to the Government's. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lienholder's equity but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances, if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations.

The Administrator of National Banks charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration of charter applications. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed onsite examinations, which are conducted by a staff of approximately 2,300 national bank examiners. At present, there are approximately 5,000 national banks with more than 26,600 operating branches and total assets of more than $1.7 trillion.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank and applications from banks to establish branches. The Comptroller of the Currency also promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks and bank directors.

This appropriation finances research and development contracts, grants, and intergovernmental agreements. These activities provide the scientific basis for EPA's regulatory actions.

Air.—Research will provide the data base needed to review the national ambient air quality standards, and establish new source performance standards and emission standards for hazardous air and mobile source pollutants. Research will also be performed to support the emerging indoor air, global warming, and stratospheric ozone depletion programs.

Water quality.—Research activities includes gathering scientific data pertaining to toxic pollutants, developing guidelines for establishing site-specific water quality standards, support to the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System, and assessing the impact of various wastes when dumped into the ocean. Research is also performed in the wastewater treatment technology area.

Drinking water.—Research includes evaluating the health effects of drinking water contaminants, methods to treat these contaminants in a cost-effective manner, and research to support the Agency's ground water protection program.

Hazardous waste.—Research activities include providing hazardous waste measurement methods and protocols, assessing the risk from exposure to hazardous wastes, and developing the necessary data to revise and implement treatment, storage and disposal standards and regulations.

This appropriation includes funds for contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements for pollution abatement, control, and compliance activities.

Air.—The air program performs activities related to the achievement of air quality standards. These objectives are met by providing: (1) financial and technical assistance to State and local governments; and (2) direct Federal action where State or local governments are unable to meet the requirements of Federal law. Emphasis in 1989 will be directed primarily at the implementation of the air toxics strategy through National Emission Standards for Hazardous Air Pollutants, the attainment and maintenance of National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS), and increased State participation as a way of achieving air quality objectives.

Water quality.—The water quality regulatory program has as its goal the protection and restoration of the Nation's waters. The program relies on a partnership between EPA and the States to meet the goals of the Act. The program encompasses the following major activities: (1) managing the municipal wastewater facilities construction grants and State Revolving Fund programs; (2) issuing and enforcing requirements of National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits for industrial and municipal sources; (3) developing guidelines for issuance of dredge and fill permits; (4) assuring compliance with regulations; (5) monitoring of water quality; (6) developing water quality standards; (7) establishing technology-based and water quality-based effluent limits for point-source discharges; and, (8) developing criteria for ocean disposal of industrial waste, municipal sludges and other dredged materials, and incineration at sea.

Drinking water.—The safe drinking water program protects the Nation's drinking water supplies from contaminants. This involves: (1) setting national drinking water standards that protect human health; (2) initiating enforcement actions for compliance with drinking water and underground injection control regulations; and, (3) assisting States and Indian tribes in implementing or directly implementing these regulatory programs.

Hazardous waste.—The hazardous waste program is designed to insure that hazardous wastes are managed in a manner that will protect public health and the environment. Continued emphasis will be placed on the development of regulations and standards to support areas such as leaking underground storage tanks, corrective action for prior releases at solid and hazardous waste facilities, land bans, hazardous waste identification, and solid waste management. Similarly, the program will emphasize delegation of authority to the States and accelerate permitting, enforcement of hazardous waste regulations, and corrective action. State assumption of hazardous waste authorities will be encouraged through Federal financial assistance, regulations, and guidance.

Pesticides.—EPA is responsible for protecting the public health and the environment from unreasonable pesticide risks, taking into account the economic, social, and environmental costs and benefits from pesticide use. Major activities include: (1) review and registration of pesticide products; (2) developing and processing registration standards; and, (3) enforcement of pesticide use rules, with emphasis on Federal/State cooperation.

Radiation.—The radiation program endeavors to eliminate adverse health and environmental effects by limiting exposure to radiation. Major activities include development and promulgation of standards, regulations and guidelines to reduce exposure from radiation sources. Also, the EPA will work with the Department of Energy in assessing risks associated with high levels of naturally occurring radon found in selected areas of the country.

Interdisciplinary.—The interdisciplinary program is composed of several activities which cut across media programs. This involves: (1) review of environmental impact statements (EIS) to insure that actions which taken by Federal agencies do not adversely affect the environment; (2) Federal agencies compliance with statutes and regulations for pollution control; and, (3) all legal aspects of the Agency's enforcement efforts.

Toxic substances.—The toxic substances program is responsible for protecting human health and the environment from unreasonable risks posed by chemicals. The program places a balanced emphasis on evaluation and control of new and existing chemicals. Nonregulatory approaches to obtain compliance will be used where appropriate. It also disburses funding appropriated for grants and loans under the Asbestos School Hazard Abatement Act of 1984, and provides technical assistance to implement various requirements of Title III of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 relating to chemical releases.

This appropriation provides funds for the implementation of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980 as amended by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986. This Act provides authority for responding to and cleaning up hazardous substance emergencies and abandoned uncontrolled waste sites.

There are four basic components to the Superfund program: Hazardous Substance Response Actions; Enforcement; Research and Development; and, Management and Support. These components will be integrated and coordinated to insure the wisest use of Fund money in order to achieve the greatest possible cleanup.

Financial responsibility for the program will be shared by the Federal and State governments as well as industry. EPA will allocate funds from its appropriation to other Federal agencies to carry out the Act.

The Leaking Underground Storage Tank (LUST) Trust Fund, authorized by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-499), provides funds for responding to releases from leaking underground petroleum tanks. The Trust Fund is financed by a 0.1 cent a gallon tax on motor fuels, that became effective January 1, 1987.

EPA will develop and oversee the cleanup program, which will be implemented by the States. Funds will be allocated to the States through cooperative agreements, to clean up those sites posing the greatest threat to human health and environment. The Trust Fund will also cover administrative expenses necessary to carry out the program.

The Federal Buildings Fund finances the activities of the Public Buildings Service which provides space and services for Federal agencies in a relationship similar to that of landlord and tenant.

The Fund, established in 1975, replaces direct appropriations by using income derived from rent assessments which approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. Rent and other income to the fund is as follows:

The Federal Buildings Fund program consists of the following activities financed from rent charges:

Construction and acquisition of facilities.—Space is acquired through direct federally financed construction of facilities, extensions to existing buildings costing over $500,000 and direct purchase of facilities. All costs directly attributable to Federal Buildings Fund construction projects for site acquisition and construction are also financed under this activity. The total cost of new commitments for direct federally financed construction and acquisition of facilities is estimated at $115.0 million in 1988 and $233.8 million in 1989. Consistent with the Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1988, $141,700,000 is included for the Oakland Federal Building project.

Repairs and alterations.—Repairs and alterations of public buildings are funded under this activity. Protection of the Government's investment, health and safety of building occupants, transfer of agencies from leased space, and cost effectiveness are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities. Primary consideration is given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to buildings, their support systems, and operating equipment. This activity also provides for conversion of existing facilities and extensions estimated to cost less than $500,000.

Design and construction services.—This activity consolidates funding for the full range of design and construction services including preparation of drawings and specifications, management and inspection of construction and repairs and alterations projects, other construction related costs and non-project related technical services. In the case of new construction projects and repairs and alterations projects over $500,000, design work will be restricted to those projects reflected in the budget justifications for this activity or other projects which have been specifically approved.

Purchase contract payments.—Payments are made for liabilities incurred under purchase contract authority. Purchase contract authority, which provided for private investment capital financing of public buildings, expired at the end of 1975. The periodic payments cover principal, interest, taxes, and other requirements.

Rental of space.—Space is acquired through the leasing of buildings including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities. This program will provide an estimated 91.7 million square feet in 1988 and 92.6 million square feet in 1989.

Real property operations.—Services are provided for Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, protection, maintenance, and miscellaneous services (such as moving, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision). The 1989 direct program compares with the 1988 program as follows (estimated square feet and expenses in thousands):

	1988		1989

Program direction.—Overall general management, including office automation, financial management, policy development, planning, program evaluation and administration, is funded under this activity.

Other programs.—When requested by Federal agencies, the Public Buildings Service provides building services such as tenant alterations, cleaning and other operations, and protection services which are in excess of those services provided under the commercial rental charge.

This appropriation provides for Government-wide management of transportation and travel management; transportation audits; property management activities for utilization, rehabilitation, donation and sale of Federal property; legislative/regulatory activities; and, the Schedules program. The major objectives of these programs are to provide excellent support and services to customers while maximizing operational efficiency and continuing to reduce the cost of Government.

Supply operations, which include the wholesale, retail, direct delivery, and special orders programs, are now funded through full cost recovery. The price charged to a customer for an item or service in these programs includes the costs for procurement, storage and handling, transportation, contract administration, quality assurance, as well as program direction related to the cost or service. These costs are now reflected in the General Supply Fund as authorized in fiscal year 1988. This method of pricing allows the customer to make a true cost comparison with other sources of supply.

Supply.—The purpose of this activity is to provide a Government-wide program to contract for commercial-type items required by Federal agencies and other authorized users of the Federal supply system. The program allows Government agencies the option of ordering standard commercial items directly from the contractor at prices which reflect the discounts associated with volume buying. This budget proposes $18,245,000 to support this program.

Transportation.—The purpose of this activity is to provide a comprehensive and effective Government-wide program for transportation and travel management, transportation audits, and development and execution of the automotive procurement functions of the Government. This budget proposes $13,643,000 to support the transportation programs.

The GSA/FSS transportation and travel management programs continue to provide support and dollar savings for Government agencies through negotiated airline city-pair contracts, Travel Management Centers (TMC), hotel/motel discounts, charge card/travelers check program, automated rate and routing processes, the small package express delivery program, audits of transportation claims by and against the U.S. Government, and the long-term vehicle lease contracts program.

Property management.—This activity manages and operates a Government-wide excess personal property program including the utilization, donation, and sale of property. It encompasses all Government agencies, and provides for utilization of excess property; donation of surplus personal property for public benefit purposes; sale of surplus and exchange/sale of personal property (except DOD property); and rehabilitation and reclamation of Government personal property to extend its useful life. The budget proposes $15,941,000 in 1989 to support surplus property processed at an estimated value of $1.2 billion.

Reimbursable operations.—This activity provides supply support services to other Government agencies on a reimbursable basis, principally involving (1) the provision of technical support services to the Government of Saudi Arabia for a joint U.S./Saudi Arabian project, (2) the printing of the Federal Travel Directory through a reimbursable agreement with the Military Traffic Management Command, and (3) the Department of Energy Methanol Fuel Testing Program. The budget proposes a level of reimbursable services of $4,866,000 in 1989.

Public Law 99-88 provided that expenses of Transportation Audit Contracts and Contract Administration activities shall be financed from overcharges collected from carriers on transportation bills paid by the Government and other similar type refunds. Public Law 99-627 further provided prepayment audit authority for selected transportation bills, permanent authority to pay transportation audit contractors from carrier overpayments collected, and authority to transfer net overpayments collected to the Treasury. For 1989, contract audit and contract administration expenses are estimated at $15 million. Total collections are estimated at $57 million.

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, a national supply distribution system, a system of ordering supplies for direct delivery to agencies, and a system of interagency Federal Fleet Management Centers. Legislation was enacted in fiscal year 1988 to authorize full cost recovery for all supply management, operating, and overhead expenses related to providing goods and services to other agencies through the General Supply Fund. These expenses were previously funded through the Operating expenses, Federal Supply Service appropriation. The full cost of all supply activities financed through this account will be recovered through charges for goods and services. A corresponding reduction is reflected in the Operating Expenses, Federal Supply Service appropriation. Full cost recovery pricing results in the true cost of supplies and services being reflected in charges to agencies.

Supply operations.—

*Stores, regular.—*Stock of common-use commodities is purchased in volume, stocked, and issued through supply facilities to Government agencies. Sales were $866.1 million in 1987, and are estimated to be $1,085.2 million in 1988 and $1,108.4 million in 1989.

*Stores, direct delivery.—*Orders for store-type items, if sufficiently large and delivery time is not a factor, are placed with the commercial source of supply for delivery directly to the customer. Sales were $68.1 million in 1987, and are estimated to be $66.9 million in 1988, and $69.1 million in 1989.

*Special order.—*Definite quantity requirements of commodities which are not susceptible to economical stocking in supply facilities are purchased for direct shipment to using agencies. Sales were $935.2 million in 1987, and are estimated to be $1,032.6 million in 1988, and $1,033.0 million in 1989.

*Export operations.—*Stores and special order items are shipped to overseas customers. Receipts to the fund cover packing, transportation costs, and other reimbursable services. Sales were $24.2 million in 1987, and are estimated to be $35.0 million in 1988 and 1989.

*Federal Fleet Management Centers.—*Services are provided through a system of Fleet Management Centers. Sales were $349.9 million in 1987, and are estimated to be $419.9 million in 1988, and $423.0 million in 1989.

*Other revenue and expense.—*Gains or losses on equipment disposals, adjustments between fiscal years, inventory writeoffs, and discounts are applied against operating costs.

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY FUND—Continued

The Information Technology Fund was authorized by the Paperwork Reduction Reauthorization Act of 1986, as included in Public Laws 99-500 and 99-591, section 821(a)(1). The Fund was established as of January 1, 1987, and consists of the assets, liabilities and capital of the Federal Telecommunications Fund and the Automatic Data Processing Fund. The purpose of the fund is to help ensure that automatic data processing, telecommunications, and other information technologies are acquired and used by the Federal Government in a manner which improves service delivery and program management, increases productivity, improves the quality of decisionmaking, reduces waste and fraud, and wherever practicable and appropriate, reduces the information processing burden for the Federal Government and for persons who provide information to and for the Federal Government.

The fund is available for expenses and for procurement for efficiently providing information technology resources to Federal agencies and for the efficient management, coordination, operation and utilization of such resources.

Levels of funding for capital investments and for operating capital are determined through the submission and approval process of planned cost and capital requirements to OMB by GSA pursuant to section 110(a)(1), Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended by Public Law 99-591.

The Information Technology Fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, the following Government-wide information resources management assistance programs:

Network services program.—This program provides for a telecommunications system which enables personnel in each Federal agency to communicate directly with any other agency or commercial entity in the nation. The system provides day-to-day services and incorporates features which would be necessary in emergency situations. This links 1.1 million Federal telephones with each other and with the public's direct dialing network. Specific activities include updating services through network reconfigurations, switch upgrades, and conversion to digital facilities.

Regional telecommunications programs.—Included in these programs is the provision of local telecommunications services to executive agencies. Their objective is to operate consolidated telephone systems that provide effective and economical local service and, through competitive processes, procure cost advantageous telephone equipment. This includes the program areas of commercial tolls, telecommunications technical services contracts, and the Purchase of Telephones and Services (POTS) contracts. Also of critical importance is the Aggregated Switch Procurement (ASP) Program that will procure over 400 systems and provide the framework for a modern telecommunications network. In addition, these programs provide for the Washington Interagency Telecommunications System (WITS) that will replace a selected portion of the Federal community telephone systems in long-term leased and federally owned buildings in the Washington, D.C., metropolitan area with one integrated voice and data transmission facility.

Electronic services programs.—Provides for an effective communications security program for civil agencies in keeping with the objectives of the U.S. communications security plan. Two major activities in this area include Federal Secure Telephone Services (FSTS—funded by the Nationally Funded Support Services) and the Communications Security (COMSEC) program. These programs provide secure voice communications for the President, Members of Congress, and selected Government agencies. In addition, this program provides telecommunications support to the Federal Emergency Management Agency in the emergency and major disaster programs.

Multiple award schedules program.—This program provides the contractual vehicle for Federal agencies to acquire services and equipment from private sector vendors participating in certain GSA multiple award schedule contracts. This program is designed to simplify and expedite the procurement process for services by allowing agencies to purchase against existing GSA multiple award schedule contracts.

Federal Data Processing Centers (FDPC).—The Centers provide GSA's Government-wide information resources assistance programs in the areas of software, hardware, data communications, office automation, records management, and planning services; and in the collection and dissemination of Government-wide data. They provide technical assistance in the efficient and effective management and use of information resources and serve as sources of expertise for information resources management and technology for the Government. Additionally, they provide tools, techniques, handbooks, and assistance to facilitate the exchange of experience and knowledge throughout the Government.

Contract services program (CSP).—CSP provides ADP services to Federal agencies through regional contracts with private sector vendors. Services provided include systems analysis and programming; systems design and definition of equipment and systems requirements; computer output microfiche production; data conversion services; and office automation systems analysis and microcomputer support. Contracts are tailored to local market conditions and needs of specific Federal agencies. Overall contract administration, central guidance, and policy direction are provided by GSA.

Equipment lease program.—This program finances the multiyear lease of ADP equipment by the IT Fund for subsequent leaseback to Federal agencies and administers the leaseback of ADP equipment purchased by the Fund as a result of the Opportunity Buy Program.

Excess ADP equipment program.—This program finances the screening of excess Government-owned ADP equipment and, where there is a known user or high potential for reutilization, reassigns and relocates the equipment with a new user.

Capital investment.—Provides for the purchase of information technology equipment where an initial capital outlay will result in the most efficient and cost-effective operation of the Federal Telecommunications System and the least cost provision of services and facilities to Federal user agencies. It also provides for the purchase of other information technology equipment for the fund's programs when purchase yields the maximum cost avoidance and is clearly in the best economic interest of the Government. The purchase of personal computers and augmentations to existing operating equipment is funded as appropriate.

Real estate policy and sales.—This activity promotes maximum utilization of real property by Federal agencies and the transfer among agencies of excess real property. It provides for the disposal of surplus real property by sale, exchange, lease, permit, assignment, or transfer, as well as the protection and maintenance of excess and surplus property pending its disposition. It also provides for the appraisal of excess and surplus property, necessary environmental and cultural analyses, disposition and predisposition reuse planning, and real property utilization surveys.

The management of the National Defense Stockpile will be transferred to the Department of Defense, and is reflected in the Defense Chapter of the Budget.

REAL PROPERTY RELOCATION

For expenses not otherwise provided for, [$5,000,000] $50,000,000, to remain available until expended, necessary for carrying out the functions of the Administrator with respect to relocation of Federal agencies from property which has been determined by the Administrator to be other than optimally utilized under the provisions of section 210(e) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended: Provided, That such relocations shall only be undertaken when the estimated proceeds from the disposition of the original facilities approximate the appraised fair market value of such new facilities and exceed the estimated costs of relocation. Relocation costs include expenses for and associated with acquisition of sites and facilities, and expenses of moving or repurchasing equipment and personal property. These funds may be used for payments to other Federal entities to accomplish the relocation functions: Provided further, That nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as relieving the Administrator of General Services or the head of any other Federal agency from any obligation or restriction under the Public Buildings Act of 1959 (including any obligation concerning submission and approval of a prospectus), the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, or any other Federal law, or as authorizing the Administrator of General Services or the head of any other Federal agency to take actions inconsistent with statutory obligations or restrictions placed upon the Administrator of General Services or such agency head with respect to authority to acquire or dispose of real property. The Consumer Information Center Fund, a revolving fund established by Public Law 98-63 on July 30, 1983, provides for an efficient operation of the Consumer Information Center's activities. Previously, these activities were funded from a direct appropriation with the cost of distributing agency publications funded by reimbursements from the participating agencies. The revolving fund assumed all of the liabilities, obligations and commitments of the Consumer Information Center account. Under the revolving fund, the Consumer Information Center's activities are financed from moneys deposited to the fund, consisting of annual appropriations from the general funds of the Treasury, reimbursements from agencies, fees collected from the public and other income incident to Consumer Information Center activities.

Administrative expenses.—The Consumer Information Center helps Federal departments and agencies release consumer information collected as a by-product of the Government's program activities. The Consumer Information Center maintains close working relationships with more than 30 Federal agencies in order to identify, develop, promote and make accessible to the public Federal consumer information. In addition, the Consumer Information Center promotes public awareness of this information through publication of the quarterly Consumer Information Catalog, and through various media services.

Publications distribution.—The Consumer Information Center bills agencies and in turn reimburses the Government Printing Office for the costs of distributing free publications to the public.

Special programs.—The Consumer Information Center carries out special projects supporting the program's mission. The projects are funded by fees collected from the public and by other revenue and income in the Fund.

Central blueprinting, duplicating, and distribution services are financed by a working capital fund (40 U.S.C. 293). As authorized by the Joint Committee on Printing, U.S. Congress, GSA has established and operates 11 printing plants to meet the needs of GSA and other Government agencies. These activities are under continuous review to assure that the method of printing is the least costly alternative to the Government.

SEC. 3. Not to exceed 1 per centum of funds made available in appropriations for operating expenses and salaries and expenses, during the current fiscal year, may be transferred between such appropriations for mandatory program requirements. Any transfers proposed shall be submitted promptly to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate [for approval].

SEC. 4. Funds in the Federal Buildings Fund made available for fiscal year [1988] 1989 for Federal Buildings Fund activities may be transferred between such activities only to the extent necessary for mandatory program requirements. Any transfers proposed shall be submitted promptly to the Committees on Appropriations of the House and Senate [for approval].

[SEC. 5. Funds hereafter made available to the General Services Administration for the payment of rent shall be available for the purpose of leasing, for periods not to exceed thirty years, space in buildings erected on land owned by the United States.]

[SEC. 6. The Bureau of Mines should completely vacate all space at the Columbia Plaza building no later than September 30, 1988. In the event that it becomes necessary to acquire leased space for the Bureau of Mines, the Administrator of General Services shall competitively acquire space for the Bureau of Mines and select quality space at the lowest possible cost in the Washington Metropolitan Area. If such space is acquired by GSA, the Bureau of Mines shall immediately relocate to the space acquired by the GSA.]

[SEC. 7. (a) The General Accounting Office shall, within 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, submit an estimate of the fair market value of the main post office in Denver, Colorado, located at 1823 Stout Street to the General Services Administration, the Congress of the United States, the United States Postal Service, and the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.]

[(b) Within 30 days after obtaining the estimate made pursuant to subsection (a) the United States Postal Service shall transfer the use and benefit of the lot on which the main post office in Denver is located along with such post office building, improvements and any other structures on such lot to the General Services Administration, and from such date such lot and structures shall be considered to be held for the use and benefit of the United States Courts for the Tenth Circuit.]

This appropriation provides for research and development activities of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The elements of the program and the work to be performed during 1989 are described below:

Space Transportation Systems Capability Development.—The principal activities include efforts related to the Spacelab, the upper stages that will place satellites in high altitude orbits not attainable by the Shuttle, the engineering and technical base support at NASA centers, payload operations and support equipment, development of the joint U.S./Italy Tethered Satellite System, building of the orbital maneuvering vehicle, and advanced programs study and evaluation efforts.

The Spacelab is being prepared to resume flight activity.

For Space Transportation System upper stages, the two stage Inertial Upper Stages will be modified to accommodate planetary spacecraft, and additional upper stages will be procured for Tracking and Data Satellite missions and several NASA scientific missions.

Development of the Tethered Satellite System will continue in 1989, for first flight in 1991. The development of the Orbital Maneuvering Vehicle (OMV) will also continue in 1989, with the first flight planned for early 1993. The OMV will retrieve spacecraft and provide remote satellite servicing and other operations beyond the reach of the Space Shuttle or the Space Station.

Definition and preliminary design activities on the Crew Emergency Return Vehicle for the Space Station will be continued. Technology development and advanced launch system study activities will continue along with the initiation of definition studies on critical propulsion systems. A focused effort on Advanced Operation Effectiveness will also be initiated in 1989, directed toward development and demonstration of new concepts, techniques and procedures to enhance the operational efficiency and safety for future launch systems and the present National Space Transportation System.

Space Station.—The space station will provide permanently manned, “space-based” facilities for the Nation’s science and applications programs, and for commercial exploitation of space, while exploring advanced technologies potentially useful to the economy.

In 1989, development efforts will continue. Definition work on the flight telerobotic system and planning for operations, utilization and transition will also continue.

Scientific Investigations in Space.—Space Science and Applications programs perform basic research to expand our knowledge of the Earth and its space environment, to explore the far reaches of the universe, and to conduct research and experiments to encourage the application of space technology to needs on Earth.

Physics and Astronomy.—Research is being conducted to investigate the environment of planets, the interplanetary medium, and distant space. Preparations will continue for launch of the Hubble Space Telescope in fiscal year 1989. Planning activities will continue in 1989 for future Spacelab missions which were rephased due to the Challenger accident. Development of the Gamma Ray Observatory will continue for planned launch in 1990 along with design activities for the Global Geospace Science mission towards a 1992 launch. Development of several ongoing Explorer class satellites will be continued as well as initiation of a series of small, Scout-class free-flyer spacecraft designed to respond rapidly to scientific opportunities. Design and development activities will begin on the Advanced X-Ray Astrophysics Facility (AXAF), which will allow astronomers to view the universe in the x-ray region of the spectrum with an unprecedented degree of sensitivity.

Planetary Exploration.—This program encompasses the scientific exploration of the planets, comets, asteroids, and the interplanetary medium to provide increased knowledge of the origin and evolution of the solar system. Development will continue in 1989 on major flight projects initiated in prior years. The Galileo and Ulysses missions continue to be reconfigured to accommodate a Space Shuttle launch with Inertial Upper Stages. Integration and testing of the Magellan spacecraft will start in preparation for launch in 1989. The design and development of the Mars Observer will continue.

Life Sciences.—This program provides for the research and technology required to meet the goals of ensuring human health, safety, and productivity in space. In 1989, emphasis will be placed on research on the effects of long-term exposure to weightlessness and development of flight experiments for use on the Space Shuttle and ultimately the Space Station.

Space and Terrestrial Applications:

Space Applications.—The major programs in space applications are concerned with observations of the Earth and its environment, materials processing, space communications and information systems. Major activities in 1989 include research to better understand mechanisms that affect Earth processes, continued development of Space Shuttle and Space Station payloads, and ground-based research in areas well suited to take advantage of microgravity conditions.

Development will continue on major flight projects initiated in prior years. The Upper Atmospheric Research Satellite is scheduled for launch in 1991. The Ocean Topography Experiment (TOPEX) is scheduled for a 1991 launch as part of a collaborative mission with France.

Research activities and flight experiment development in materials processing will continue. Work will be initiated in defining and developing the facilities to be used on the Space Station through the evolution of experiment technology using Space Shuttle flight opportunities.

In space communications, research and analysis will continue to support development of advanced component and device technology for communications satellite systems. Development work will be terminated on the Advanced Communications Technology Satellite demonstration flight.

Information systems activities in 1989 will provide analysis and technology to address concerns of the science community for improved access to and manipulation of data from space science and applications missions.

Commercial Programs.—These programs include technology utilization and commercial use of space.

The technology utilization program is designed to transfer aerospace technology from NASA's research and development base to nonaerospace sectors of the U.S. economy. During 1989, NASA will continue its efforts to help foster the dissemination of new technology developed by the Agency's programs.

The commercial use of space is designed to increase private sector awareness of the opportunities in space. Private industry will be encouraged to invest and participate in high technology research and development using the unique characteristics of space.

Space Research and Technology.—In 1989, work directed toward providing the broad base of technology underlying the conduct of future space missions will continue. Project Pathfinder, which will be initiated in 1989, continues the advancement of technological capabilities and extends the foundation established under the Civil Space Technology Initiative (CSTI) started in 1988. Pathfinder is oriented towards technology activities underlying potential future space missions beyond the Earth's orbit and will provide the advanced technologies to continue U.S. leadership in space.

Transatmospheric Research and Technology.—A joint NASA/DOD program will explore new approaches for cost-effective hypersonic flight in the atmosphere with the capability to accelerate to orbit. The program will pursue research and advanced technology development in the area of hypersonic flight, cooperatively with DOD, and is expected to lead to a transatmospheric flight research vehicle in the early 1990's.

Aeronautical Research and Technology.—This program conducts research and develops technology for future U.S. military and civil aircraft.

Major thrusts of 1989 activities include: continuing advancement in both basic aeronautical disciplines and systems research; maintaining and operating specialized facilities essential to aeronautical research; and pursuing technological advances in critical areas of high risk and potentially high payoff to the Nation. These activities will continue to provide a strong research and technology base in the aeronautical disciplines of fluid and thermal physics, applied aerodynamics, materials and structures, controls and guidance, human factors, information sciences, propulsion and power, flight systems, and systems analysis and studies. Some 1989 key activities in the research and technology base will be augmented where the technology is ready for a major step forward, such as advanced propulsion concepts and aviation safety/automation. Systems technology efforts will continue in a variety of areas including materials and structures, which will be augmented in advanced composite materials, high-performance aircraft, advanced propulsion systems, and numerical aerodynamic simulation.

Safety, Reliability, and Quality Assurance.—This activity will continue to enhance the safety and technical execution of NASA programs through an agency-wide problem reporting, trend analysis, and corrective action system, in-depth safety reviews, independent assessments, and the expansion of the nondestructive evaluation (NDE) program.

Supporting Activity: Tracking and Data Advanced Systems.—This program provides advanced studies to ensure capability for tracking, data acquisition, communications, and data processing support required by all NASA flight projects in accomplishing their mission objectives. Research and development activities will provide tracking and data acquisition support systems for future flight programs.

This appropriation provides for production and operational activities for the Space Transportation System; and for tracking, telemetry, command, and data acquisition support of all NASA flight projects. The elements of the program and the work to be performed during 1989 are described below.

Space Transportation Systems:

Shuttle production and capability development.—The Space Shuttle provides a unique capability which meets a wide variety of scientific and governmental requirements and obligations.

In 1989, the principal activities are focused on completion of the certification and testing of the modifications and changes identified in the post-Challenger accident review process. This process addresses all elements of the Space Transportation System including boosters, orbiters, main engines, external tank, and launch and flight operations projects. The recommendations of the Rogers Commission will be implemented to enhance the safe and effective operation of the Shuttle fleet. The orbiter logistics program will continue to provide hardware to support the flight rate build-up when Shuttle flights resume. Work on the replacement orbiter will continue, with delivery scheduled for 1991. Design and development activities will begin in 1989 on the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM). The ASRM will enhance the flight safety and reliability of the Space Shuttle fleet and achieve increased payload capability. Development of the hardware necessary to extend the on-orbit stay time of the Space Shuttle to 14-16 days will be initiated. Modification of Space Shuttle with this extended duration capability is expected by 1992.

Operations.—This activity provides the standard operational services for the Space Shuttle. Space Shuttle flights are planned to resume in 1988, and procurement of ELV services are planned to satisfy the launch requirements of scientific and operational payloads. In 1989, the Shuttle operations program will support flight preparation, training, mission planning, and hardware and payload processing activities for flights planned in 1989 and 1990. Implementation of NASA's mixed fleet plan will be continued and expanded with support provided for additional procurements of expendable launch vehicle services on a competitive basis for a specified number of missions requiring small, medium and large launch systems.

Supporting Activity: Tracking and Data Acquisition.—This program, using ground-based and satellite (tracking and data relay satellite system) components, provides vital tracking, telemetry, command, and data acquisition support to meet the requirements of all NASA flight projects. In addition to NASA flight projects, support is provided on a reimbursable basis for projects of the Department of Defense and other Government agencies, commercial firms, and other countries and international organizations engaged in space research endeavors. In 1989, work will continue on the replacement tracking and data relay satellite spacecraft for the one lost in the Challenger accident.

CONSTRUCTION OF FACILITIES

For construction, repair, rehabilitation and modification of facilities, minor construction of new facilities and additions to existing facilities, and for facility planning and design not otherwise provided, for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, and for the acquisition or condemnation of real property, as authorized by law, [$178,272,000] $285,100,000, to remain available until September 30, [1990] 1991: Provided, That, notwithstanding the limitation on the availability of funds appropriated under this heading by this appropriations Act, when any activity has been initiated by the incurrence of obligations therefor, the amount available for such activity shall remain available until expended, except that this provision shall not apply to the amounts appropriated pursuant to the authorization for repair, rehabilitation and modification of facilities, minor construction of new facilities and additions to existing facilities, and facility planning and design: Provided further, That no amount appropriated pursuant to this or any other Act may be used for the lease or construction of a new contractor-funded facility for exclusive use in support of a contract or contracts with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration under which the Administration would be required to substantially amortize through payment or reimbursement such contractor investment, unless an appropriations Act specifies the lease or contract pursuant to which such facilities are to be constructed or leased or such facility is otherwise identified in such Act: Provided further, That the Administrator may authorize such facility lease or construction, if he determines, in consultation with the Committees on Appropriations, that deferral of such action until the enactment of the next appropriations Act would be inconsistent with the interest of the Nation in aeronautical and space activities. Payment of Government share of retirement costs.—The Civil Service Retirement Amendments of 1969 provide for financing of the current year's costs of the unfunded liability created since its enactment on October 20, 1969. Any statute which authorizes (1) new or liberalized benefits, (2) extension of retirement coverage, or (3) pay increases, is deemed to authorize appropriations to the fund to finance the unfunded liability created.

Transfers for interest on unfunded liability and payment of military service annuities.—The Secretary of the Treasury is required to make annual payments from general revenues into the Retirement fund of an amount equivalent to: (1) interest on the unfunded liability, and (2) annuity disbursements attributable to military service. The Office of Personnel Management, at the end of each year, notifies the Secretary of the Treasury of the amount of payment to be made to the Retirement fund and reports such sums to the President and Congress.

Payments for spouse equity.—The Civil Service Retirement Spouse Equity Act of 1985, Public Law 98-615, provides for the payment of survivor annuities to eligible former spouses of annuitants who died between September 1978 and May 1986 and who did not elect survivor coverage. The law authorizes the Office of Personnel Management to notify the Secretary of the Treasury of the amount of such annuities paid each fiscal year and directs the Secretary to credit this amount to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund.

Transfers for payment of FERS supplemental liability.—Under provisions of the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) Act of 1986, Public Law 99-335, the Secretary of Treasury is required to make annual payments to finance the supplemental liability as calculated for the new FERS. The supplemental liability will be financed by 30 annual payments beginning in fiscal year 1989. Since covered populations are tentative, the estimated amount will be recalculated during fiscal year 1989.

This fund is used to pay annuities to retired employees or their survivors; to make refunds to former employees for amounts withheld and to beneficiaries of employees who died before retirement or before the annuities equaled the amount withheld; and, to pay administrative expenses of the Office of Personnel Management and the Merit Systems Protection Board in administering the program. On June 6, 1986, the President signed the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986, Public Law 99-335, which established the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS). FERS is a three-tiered pension program designed along the lines of the best private sector plans. Using Social Security as a base, it provides an additional Basic Benefit based upon the length of Federal service (generally one percent of average salary per year) as well as a savings plan. The basic benefit element of this new plan was effective January 1, 1987, and is included within the Civil service retirement and disability fund. Generally, the Plan covers all employees hired after December 31, 1983, and former CSRS-covered employees who elected to join FERS during the July 1, 1987, to December 31, 1987, Open Season. Pertinent statistics as of the end of the year are shown below:

This schedule reflects the effect of a proposal to increase Postal Service and D.C. Government employer contributions to cover the additional cost of COLAs granted to Postal and D.C. Government annuitants. The above figure reflects the D.C. Government's additional cost in 1989. The Postal Service will also be liable for COLA costs beginning in 1989, but its initial payment will be deferred until 1990, when it will make a payment for 1989 and 1990.

The fund provides for the cost of health benefits for: (1) active employees; (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors; (3) those annuitants transferred from the Retired Federal employees health benefits program as authorized by Public Law 93-246; and (4) the related expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Active employees .....	2,388,000	2,405,000	2,415,000

Total .....	3,908,600	3,967,000	4,017,000

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, one percent is added for administrative expense, and three percent is added for a contingency reserve held by the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) for each carrier. The OPM is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

For Postal Service employees, the Government's contribution to the health benefits premiums is 75 percent of the current unweighted average of the high option premiums of six large plans. For general schedule and wage-board employees, the Government's contribution is 60 percent.

This fund finances insurance premiums paid to private insurance companies for Federal employees group life insurance and expenses of the Office of Personnel Management in administering the program. Separate cost data is maintained for employees regular group life insurance and insurance for members of former beneficial associations. The Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act of 1980 increases basic coverage for participants under age 45 and offers additional option coverages.

Budget program.—The status of the basic (regular and optional) life insurance program on September 30 is as follows:

Financing.—For non-Postal Service employees, premium costs for the regular program are met by withholding 18 cents biweekly from the salaries of employees for each $1 thousand of life insurance and a 50 percent matching contribution by employer-agencies. The optional program is financed by withholding from employees' salaries or retirees' annuities. The beneficial association program is financed by direct collection from members. Most of the difference between receipt and benefit payments under the policy is held in reserve for paying future life insurance claims. The status of reserves at the end of the year is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Held in reserve:	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Contingency reserve.....	50	50	50
Beneficial association program reserve.....	1	1	1
U.S. Treasury reserve.....	8,078	8,825	9,594
Total reserves.....	8,129	8,876	9,645

The contingency reserve for the basic program was reduced to $50 million as of June 30, 1976, and it is expected to remain at this level. Excess income from the program over benefit payments and other expenses is deposited in the U.S. Treasury to the credit of the Employees life insurance fund. The operations of the insurer for the regular and optional life insurance program is as follows (in millions of dollars):

Special Programs.—The Associate Deputy Administrator for this function will exercise direction over Business Development, Veterans' Affairs, Women's Business Ownership, Private Sector Initiatives, International Trade and the National Advisory Council. These offices focus their responsibilities towards the effective management and operational efficiency in assuring that specialized attention and proper emphasis to the emergent need of the small business community are represented. In addition, the International Trade function will increase its focus on trade promotion activities. This budget proposes the consolidation of the office of Private Sector Initiatives into the office of Business Development. In addition, it proposes reducing the statutory limitation on Small Business Development Centers (SBDC's) from $65 million to $45 million. A gradual phase-out of Federal funding for SBDC's will begin in fiscal year 1989. The budget also proposes administratively increasing user fees for several programs to make these programs more self sufficient.

Advocacy.—This office is responsible for the development and implementation of a Small Business Administration Advocacy program, including the representation of small business interests, the analysis of the effects of federal laws, regulation and activity on small business, the development and utilization of a small business data base to aid in this analysis and liaison with small business and small business organizations and the public. We are proposing the charging of a fee to the public for publications including State of Small Business and special data run.

Consistent with the Administration's government-wide initiative on user fees and as part of the effort to make many of the Small Business Administration's programs self-sustaining we are proposing increases in revenues through additional guaranty fees on the credit programs and user fees for non-credit programs. Under the user fee proposals, beneficiaries of SBA programs, rather than the taxpayers, will share the cost of the services provided.

General Business Assistance.—The Small Business Administration (SBA) guarantees loans to small businesses that are unable to obtain private financing. These loans must be of such value or so secured as to reasonably assure repayment. No loan may be made unless the financial assistance is not otherwise available on reasonable terms. Under the guaranty plan, the SBA agrees to purchase the guaranteed portion of the loan only upon default. In addition to providing financial assistance to the general business community, particular emphasis is given to the following groups:

Businesses owned by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals;

Businesses that employ or are owned by handicapped individuals;

Small business concerns located in urban or rural areas with high proportions of unemployed or low-income individuals or owned by low-income individuals; and

Small business concerns owned and operated by veterans, especially Vietnam-era veterans.

Investment Company Assistance.—A primary function of small business investment companies is to provide a source of equity capital or long-term loans to new or expanding small businesses. The Small Business Investment Act, as amended, authorizes the SBA to purchase or to guarantee the timely payment of all principal and interest, as scheduled, on debentures issued by such companies. The 1989 request proposes the elimination of SBA's ability to purchase the preferred stock from small business investment companies, under authority of Section 301(d) of the Small Business Investment Act. Additional guarantee authority is requested for the purchase of debentures under section 301(d) of the Small Business Investment Act.

Development Company Assistance.—Utilizing its authority under the Small Business Investment Act, the SBA makes loans through State and local development companies to small businesses. Through these programs, the SBA promotes economic development and job creation or maintenance by stimulating the flow of long-term financing to small business concerns for projects that involve fixed assets. These projects are designed to create or retain a meaningful number of jobs in the communities affected, with a special emphasis on distressed areas.

FY 1989 Proposal.—This request proposes the elimination of all direct lending. In addition, it proposes the establishment of only three types of guaranty lending: (1) General Business Assistance, (2) Development Company Assistance, and (3) Investment Company Assistance. The program will, however, still emphasize lending to businesses owned by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals and other borrowers requiring special emphasis.

This request also proposes administratively increasing guarantee fees in the development company and investment company programs. The charging of guarantee fees is consistent with the Administration's government-wide user fee initiative under which the direct beneficiaries of federally-provided services, rather than taxpayers, share the cost of the programs. Increased guarantee fees, together with improved credit management and debt collection policies, will help reduce the cost of these programs and contribute towards eventual self-sufficiency.

This request proposes the sale of Business Loan and Investment Fund direct loans and FFB-503 loans in fiscal year 1989. The sales are to be made without recourse to the federal government.

This fund finances disaster loans made pursuant to section 7(b) of the Small Business Act, as amended.

Physical Disaster Loans.—Under this program, loans are made to individuals and businesses at favorable terms and conditions for uninsured losses of property, both real and personal, damaged by natural disasters such as tornadoes, floods, hurricanes, etc.

The budget proposes that starting in fiscal year 1989, the SBA will no longer make loans to those borrowers who can demonstrate that credit is available elsewhere.

In addition, this budget proposes that the interest rate on disaster loans be raised to the Treasury rate for loans with similar maturity plus one percent.

This budget also proposes the sale of loan assets beginning in fiscal year 1989. Sales of assets would be made across SBA's portfolio, and would be without recourse to the government.

The lease guarantees program was designed to provide prime space for those small business firms who could not compete with prospective tenants with AAA ratings. This program had been incurring excessive losses and has not been an important form of assistance to small businesses. As a result, the program is limited to paying claims resulting from defaulted leases approved in prior years.

This submission proposes the consolidation of the inactive lease guarantee revolving fund into the business loan and investment revolving fund.

Public Law 93-386, the Small Business Amendment Act of 1974, established this fund to finance the surety bond guarantees program.

The Small Business Administration will guarantee a portion of the losses sustained by a surety company as a result of the issuance of a bid, payment, and/or performance bond to a small business concern.

Beginning in fiscal year 1989, this budget proposes to increase the contractors' and sureties' fees to the Small Business Administration in an effort to make the Surety Bond program more self-sufficient.

Public Law 94-305, approved June 4, 1976, established this fund to alleviate the adverse impact of pollution regulations on small businesses. The Small Business Administration may, whenever it determines that small business concerns are to be at an operational or financial disadvantage with respect to planning, design, or installation of pollution control facilities or the financing thereof, guarantee the payment of rentals or other amounts due under qualified contracts.

As a result of the decision to eliminate the tax exempt provisions associated with the Pollution Control Guaranteed program, the level of activity has decreased significantly. Additionally, with the Administration's emphasis on transferring those programs that more appropriately can be delivered by State agencies, we are proposing the termination of this program. However, funds will be necessary to honor the "full faith and credit" of those guarantees currently outstanding. Therefore, this submission is also proposing to consolidate this fund into the business loan and investment fund.

This appropriation provides for the payment of compensation benefits to veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Compensation is paid to veterans for disabilities incurred in or aggravated during active military service. Death and Indemnity Compensation (DIC) is paid to survivors of servicepersons or veterans whose death occurred while on active duty or as a result of service-connected disabilities.

The Administrator may pay a clothing allowance to each veteran who wears or uses a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Administrator, tends to wear out or tear the clothing of such veteran.

The "Veterans' Compensation Cost-of-Living Adjustment Act of 1987" increased compensation rates for veterans, DIC rates for spouses and children, and the veterans' clothing allowance by 4.2 percent effective December 1, 1987.

Caseload and cost tables are shown below and reflect the 4.2 percent rate increase:

Legislation will be proposed to index compensation benefits to the annual change in the Consumer Price Index. If enacted, this proposal would guarantee a full and timely cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) to all compensation beneficiaries, including DIC spouses and children. The increase, which would be effective with the payments made on January 1, 1989, is expected to be 4.2 percent.

This appropriation provides for the payment of pension benefits to veterans and survivors. Previously, funds for this program were appropriated under the title "Compensation and Pensions."

Pension benefits may be paid to veterans or their survivors. Veteran's entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period; disabilities considered permanent and total; and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases. Income support is provided at established benefit levels.

Veterans who are under the age 55 and who begin receiving pension during the test period, February 1, 1985 to January 31, 1989, will be evaluated to determine whether a vocational goal is reasonably feasible. Those for whom a vocational goal is feasible are eligible, during the test period, for a temporary program of vocational training.

Automatic annual cost-of-living increases comparable to annual social security increases are provided for those pensioners in the improved program and to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. These increases, effective with payments made on January 1, are based on the same percentage as social security benefits are increased. The January 1, 1989 increase is expected to be 4.2 percent.

This appropriation finances the education and training of veterans and servicepersons whose service was, at least in part, between February 1, 1955 and December 31, 1976 (post-Korean conflict veterans and Vietnam era veterans). It also finances educational assistance allowances for certain peacetime veterans and for eligible dependents of those veterans: (a) who died from service-connected causes or have a total and permanent rated service-connected disability; and (b) servicepersons who were captured or missing in action. In addition, certain disabled veterans are provided with vocational rehabilitation, specially adapted housing grants, and automobile grants with the associated approved adaptive equipment. The funding level in 1989 will be $28.1 million less than in 1988. This is due primarily to the decline in the number of Vietnam-era veterans eligible for benefits.

Education and training.—The 1989 decrease in Vietnam era veteran and serviceperson trainees is attributable to veterans having used their entitlement or reaching their delimiting date.

The following table provides a comparison of trainees and costs for the three types of trainees included in education and training.

Special assistance to disabled veterans.—Service disabled veterans requiring vocational rehabilitation receive assistance to cover the costs of subsistence, tuition, books, supplies, and equipment.

Specially adapted housing grants, up to a maximum of $35,500, are provided to certain severely disabled veterans. Veterans who suffer service-connected blindness or who have lost the use of both upper extremities can receive up to $6,000.

An allowance, up to a maximum of $5,000, is provided to certain service-disabled veterans and servicepersons toward the purchase price of an automobile. Adaptive equipment and the maintenance and replacement of such equipment is also provided.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison for these beneficiaries.

All Volunteer Force educational assistance (Montgomery GI Bill).—Public Law 98-525, enacted October 19, 1984, established two new peacetime educational programs: An assistance program for veterans who enter active duty during the period beginning July 1, 1985, and ending on June 30, 1988, and an assistance program for certain members of the Selected Reserve. Public Law 100-48 made these programs permanent. The Readjustment benefits appropriation pays the basic benefit allowance for the peacetime veterans. A small number of veterans began training in 1987. Supplementary educational assistance for peacetime veterans and the basic benefit allowance for reservists are financed by payments from the Department of Defense and the Department of Transportation.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison for these beneficiaries under existing legislation:

Debt Collection Activity.—Public Law 97-365, the Debt Collection Act of 1982, authorizes the VA to employ the services of private collection agencies (PCAs) to aid in the collection of delinquent debt. The PCA's receive a percentage of what is collected. Payment amounts for these services are based on a GSA Federal supply schedule, and the age and amounts of the debt collected. In 1987, and part of 1988, these payments were charged to the Readjustment benefits appropriation. Under the new contract, the costs will no longer be charged to the account.

Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made to the U.S. Government life insurance fund for certain World War I veterans for extra hazards of military service and for claims on war risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I.

National service life insurance.—Payments are made to the national service life insurance fund for certain World War II veterans for: (a) the extra hazards of service; (b) gratuitous insurance granted to certain persons unable to apply for national service life insurance; (c) death claims on policies under waiver of premiums while the insured was on active duty.

Payments are also made to policyholders and beneficiaries on nonparticipating national service life insurance policies issued to World War II veterans with service-connected disabilities and on worthy exceptional cases that would not have been covered under the law in effect at the time of death.

The general decline in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force is expected to continue in 1989 as indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands).

In 1989 increased costs are associated with: (1) operational requirements of new facilities; (2) payroll increases; (3) increased cost of drugs, utilities, communications, provisions, prosthetics, medical and dental supplies and operating supplies; (4) enhancements for the decentralized hospital computer program (DHCP); (5) investments in automation improvements for the Personnel and Accounting Integrated Data Pay System (PAID) Redesign and the Integrated Procurement, Storage and Distribution System (LOG1); and (6) miscellaneous initiatives, including: expansion of the VA's Medical District Initiated Peer Review Organization (MEDI-PRO), increased tuition support, higher funding for the community nursing home program, and the implementation costs associated with the VA's CHAMPVA Payment Center.

These increased costs are offset by: (1) a one percent reduction in employment due to productivity increases; (2) a lesser decrease in planned staffing of nine-tenths of one percent based on actual staff-to-patient ratios experienced during the first half of 1987; (3) savings associated with enhancements to DHCP and LOG1; (4) savings associated with the phasing down of the Vet Center program; (5) savings due to the standardization of procurement of medical supplies; (6) the elimination of administrative costs paid to DOD and a decrease in the enrollment of ineligibles; and (7) the one-time nature of the 1988 reappropriation for ADP equipment.

Maintenance and operation of VA facilities—

VA hospital care.—Costs for 1989 are estimated to increase by $6,982 thousand for operating the medical, surgical, and psychiatric bed sections in 172 VA hospitals. Workload and employment reflect the transfer of one-day hemodialysis from the inpatient to the outpatient activity.

Estimated operating levels are:

Patients treated .....	1,076,962	1,082,687	1,083,933

Average employment (including education and training) .....	133,325	130,131	127,252
Ratio average employment to census .....	2.48	2.50	2.52

Nursing home care.—An increase of $56,953 thousand in 1989 is estimated for the operation of nursing care beds in 127 facilities.

Estimated operating levels are:

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Patients treated .....	25,567	28,286	31,195

Average employment (including education and training) .....	13,801	14,983	16,170

Domiciliary care.—In 1989, an increase of $5,693 thousand is estimated for the care of domiciliary members in 27 facilities.

Estimated operating levels are:

Average employment (including education and training) .....	2,379	2,667	2,632

Outpatient care.—An increase of $58,251 thousand is estimated in 1989 for the cost of outpatient medical and dental care provided by staff and by physicians and dentists participating under a fee basis arrangement for certain eligible veterans. Workload and employment reflect the transfer of one-day hemodialysis from the inpatient to the outpatient activity.

Miscellaneous benefits and services.—This covers such items of nondirect medical care and treatment as beneficiary travel, care of the dead, operation of personnel quarters at medical facilities, and the cost of furnishing supply, engineering, housekeeping, and other administrative support services to other departments on a nonreimbursable basis. It also includes the cost of the readjustment counseling program. An increase of $13,455 thousand is estimated for 1989, which reflects increases for payroll, tuition support, and the cost of inflation, partially offset by a reduction in readjustment counseling and savings from increased productivity.

Contract care—

Hospitalization.—A decrease of $4,568 thousand is estimated in 1989 reflecting the full-year implementation of a Congressional initiative to tie reimbursements under this program to Medicare rates partly offset by an upward adjustment for inflation. The average daily census is estimated to remain at 575 for hospitalization of patients for service and non-service-connected disabilities in other Federal hospitals when VA facilities are not available. VA beneficiaries, such as women veterans of any war, emergency cases and veterans requiring hospitalization to prevent interruption of vocational rehabilitation training are also provided care in non-Federal hospitals under the provisions of title 38, U.S.C., sections 601 and 1506. The reduction in workload between 1987 and 1988 is attributable to Congressional restraints intended to control program costs in Puerto Rico.

Medical research.—This program is comprised of institutional and special research. In addition to the broad spectrum of biomedical research projects, priority is given to research on Agent Orange and Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome and conditions that frequently occur among veterans such as aging, alcoholism, schizophrenia, delayed stress disorders, and spinal cord injury and tissue regeneration. Cooperative studies include surgical treatment of angina pectoris, adjunct treatment of diabetes, and relative potency and side-effect liability of new and marketed sedatives. This budget request includes $2,750 thousand for continuation of an Agent Orange Epidemiological Study being conducted by the Centers for Disease Control, Department of Health and Human Services. In 1988, the Department of Defense will provide $15 million to support a cooperative medical research program.

Rehabilitation research.—This program is dedicated to the development and application of science and technology to improve the care of the physically disabled veteran through prostheses for the amputee, improved wheelchairs for the paralyzed, and better joint functions for the arthritic. It also includes care for those with visual, hearing and speech disorders.

Health services research.—This program provides support for health services projects at VA medical centers for improving the effectiveness and economy of delivery of health services and improving the accessibility of services to veterans.

Medical, hospital, nursing home, and domiciliary administration.—Central office staff elements will continue to provide executive direction of all agency medical programs through program development, implementation, and administration of policies, plans, and objectives.

One of the initiatives in this area is the formation of a program office to coordinate agency efforts in both the treatment and research aspects of dealing with Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

Health professional scholarship.—To assist in the recruitment and retention of staff, this program provides grants for tuition, stipend, and other educational expenses for eligible students in programs leading to a degree in nursing or physical therapy.

Note.—Beginning in 1988, this account will be reimbursed by the Medical care appropriation for administrative work performed in support of veterans' medical care.

This appropriation provides for the administration of nonmedical veterans benefits through the Department of Veterans Benefits (DVB); operation and maintenance of 109 national cemeteries by the Department of Memorial Affairs; and top management direction and administrative support, including data processing, fiscal, personnel, and legal services through agency-level staff offices.

Veterans benefits.—Determines eligibility and adjudicates all claims for compensation, pensions, educational assistance, housing loan assistance, and insurance awards. Greater efficiencies will be achieved as a result of an initiative to modernize the data processing and telecommunications capabilities of DVB. A summary of program objectives and anticipated workload is included in the following paragraphs:

Veterans services.—Provides information, advice, and assistance concerning the availability and procurement of benefits under the law to all veterans, their dependents, and survivors.

This schedule shows the effect of the Administration's credit reform proposal. The amounts in this schedule reflect the estimated grant-equivalent subsidy for Federal guarantees on home loan mortgages for which an appropriation will be requested. Beginning in fiscal year 1989, the subsidy portion of the guaranty will be financed and disbursed by the Federal credit revolving fund. An explanation of the proposal is included in Part 6b of the budget.

The subsidy amount recognizes that the VA home loan guaranty program provides favorable financing terms for veterans to purchase homes through private lenders. Under the credit reform proposal, veterans will continue to obtain guaranteed home loans from private lenders with no down payments.

Beginning in fiscal year 1989, the subsidy portion of the direct loan will be financed and disbursed by the Federal credit revolving fund. An explanation of the proposal is included in Part 6b of the budget.

The subsidy amount reflects the favorable terms given to certain totally disabled veterans for direct loans for acquiring suitable housing units, with the special features made necessary by the nature of their disabilities. Under the credit reform proposal, veterans will continue to obtain direct loans to assist in purchasing adapted housing.

This schedule shows the effects of the Administration's credit reform schedule. The amounts in this schedule reflect the estimated grant equivalent subsidy for Federal direct loan obligations made from the VA Vocational Rehabilitation Revolving Fund, for which an appropriation will be requested. Beginning in fiscal year 1989, vocational rehabilitation loans will be financed and disbursed by the Federal credit direct loan revolving fund. An explanation of the credit reform proposal is included in Part 6b of the President's Budget.

The credit reform proposal would not impact the programmatic aspects of the Vocational Rehabilitation Revolving Fund. The subsidy amount represents the interest which would have to be paid to obtain a short-term loan equivalent to the Vocational Revolving Fund loan through the private sector. The VA provides these 10-month, no collateral loans at zero interest.

The purpose of the VA home loan guaranty program is to facilitate the extension of mortgage credit on favorable terms by private lenders to eligible veterans. As the result of recently enacted legislation, the following Federal guaranty protects lenders against losses: (a) for loans of $45,000 or less, 50 percent of the loan is guaranteed; (b) for loans greater than $45,000, the lesser of 40 percent or $36,000 is guaranteed (with a minimum of $22,500); and (c) for manufactured homes, the lesser of 40 percent or $20,000 is guaranteed. The statements below reflect the workload and obligations associated with the $526.6 million deficiency arising from the increase in claims between 1987 and 1988.

This schedule shows the effect of the Administration's credit reform proposal. The amounts in this schedule reflect the estimated grant-equivalent subsidy for Federal guarantees on home loan mortgages for which an appropriation will be requested. Beginning in fiscal year 1989, the subsidy portion of the guaranty will be financed and disbursed by the Federal credit revolving fund. An explanation of the proposal is included in Part 6b of the budget.

The subsidy amount recognizes that the VA home loan guaranty program provides favorable financing terms for veterans to purchase homes through private lenders. Under the credit reform proposal, veterans will continue to obtain guaranteed home loans from private lenders with no down payments.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued and currently is open for new issues to veterans having service-connected disabilities. The program provides insurance coverage for service-disabled veterans at standard rates. Administrative expenses are paid from the General operating expenses appropriation.

Operating costs—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

All other.—Represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital investment.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the value of his policy.

The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is indicated in the following table (dollars in thousands):

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Number of policies.....	180,042	176,259	172,311
Insurance in force.....	1,632,381	1,595,144	1,559,415

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are received by transfer from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $228 million by September 30, 1989.

Note.—The Veterans Administration insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund pays claims and administrative costs on participating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) service-disabled standard insurance, (2) service-disabled rated insurance, and (3) nonservice disabled insurance availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance.

Budget program—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—This represents payments to the General operating expenses appropriation for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and to those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the cash value of his policy at an interest rate adjusted to reflect private sector borrowing costs.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Number of policies .....	129,860	126,140	122,270
Insurance in force .....	$891,593	$883,961	$866,656

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums collected from policyholders and interest on investments. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

Legislation will be requested to repeal the authority permitting the Veterans Administration to make education loans, effective October 1, 1988. The VA Education Loan Program has experienced excessively high default rates. Congress has previously acted to repeal loans available to most veterans. Full repeal of this program would reduce debts owed the government and reduce obligations by $18 thousand in 1989.

This fund provides loans up to $620 to veterans enrolled in a program of vocational rehabilitation who are temporarily in need of additional funds to meet expenses.

Budget program.—Interest-free direct loans are granted to veterans in vocational rehabilitation training. The loans are repaid over a period of 10 months by offsets from benefit payments.

Financing.—With initial capitalization through an appropriation, the fund is financed solely by repayments. Administrative expenses are borne by the General operating expenses appropriation.

This schedule shows the effects of the Administration's credit reform schedule. The amounts in this schedule reflect the estimated grant equivalent subsidy for Federal direct loan obligations made from the VA Vocational Rehabilitation Revolving Fund, for which an appropriation will be requested. Beginning in fiscal year 1989, vocational rehabilitation loans will be financed and disbursed by the Federal credit direct loan revolving fund. An explanation of the credit reform proposal is included in Part 6b of the President's Budget.

The credit reform proposal would not impact the programmatic aspects of the Vocational Rehabilitation Revolving Fund. The subsidy amount represents the interest which would have to be paid to obtain a short-term loan equivalent to the Vocational Revolving Fund loan through the private sector. The VA provides these 10-month, no collateral loans at zero interest.

This revolving fund, established pursuant to the Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1976, Public Law 94-581, provides a mechanism for the furnishing of rehabilitative services to certain veteran beneficiaries who are receiving medical care and treatment from the Veterans Administration.

Funds to operate the various rehabilitative activities and provide for the therapeutic work for remuneration for patients and members in Veterans' Administration health care facilities are derived from contractual arrangements with private industry or nonprofit entities. This is a self-sustaining fund, and therefore no appropriation is required to support these activities.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 5021, the Supply fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, the cost of warehouse inventories at depots and field stations and selected items of equipment procured centrally. It also finances, on the same basis, items and services to other Federal agencies who either request or are assigned to the Veterans Administration for support by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) maintenance of depot and field station inventories; (2) maintenance and operation of three supply depots; (3) operation of a service and reclamation program operating out of the supply depots; (4) centralized periodical procurement; (5) a marketing center or central buying office; and (6) a publications depot that provides forms for VA installations on a centralized basis.

The Supply fund does not finance costs for the operation and administration of supply activities at VA field stations. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply fund and Supply fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving goods and services. For 1989 Supply fund sales are estimated to reach $845 million. Average inventory needed to support those sales will be $128 million.

Operating results.—The fund operated at a profit of $4.3 million in 1987. The new total of retained earnings is $53.6 million, which has been used to finance inventory growth. Operating expense as related to sales was 4.5 percent.

This account consists of voluntary contributions by eligible servicepersons and matching contributions provided by the Department of Defense. The fund provides educational assistance payments to participants who entered the service after December 31, 1976, and are pursuing training under chapter 32, title 38, U.S.C. Public Law 96-342, the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1981, added two educational assistance programs for certain individuals who enlisted or reenlisted in the Army, Navy, Air Force or Marine Corps after September 30, 1980 and before October 1, 1981. Section 901 of that act is a non-contributory program with educational assistance provided by the Department of Defense. Section 903 authorizes the Department of Defense to make monthly contributions for certain post Vietnam-era participants. Public Law 98-525, enacted October 19, 1984, precluded new enrollments into this program during the period July 1, 1985 to June 30, 1988. Public Law 99-576, enacted October 28, 1986, closed the program permanently for new enrollments but provided a grace period for new enrollments of eligible servicepersons until March 31, 1987. The estimated activity in the fund follows:

The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special Treasury interest-bearing securities and in policy loans, are expected to increase from $11,605 million as of September 30, 1988 to $11,790 million as of September 30, 1989. The actuarial estimate of policy obliga-

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible except that administrative expenses are charged to the General operating expenses account.

The income of the fund is derived from interest on investments and payments from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation. Effective January 1, 1983, premiums were discontinued since reserves held in the fund were adequate to meet future liabilities of the program.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in interest-bearing securities and policy loans, are estimated to decrease from $223 million as of September 30, 1988, to $199 million as of September 30, 1989, as an increasing number of policies mature through death or disability. The actuarial evaluation of policy obligations as of September 30, 1988, totals $218 million, leaving a balance of $5 million for contingency reserves.

Note.—The Veterans Administration insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund finances the payment of claims on life insurance policies issued before January 3, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1, 1951. No new policies can be issued. Policyholders may elect to purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of additional premiums.

Budget program—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his or her insurance by cashing in the policy for its cash value.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—Classified in this category are payments to policyholders who: (a) hold endowment policies which have matured; (b) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled; and (c) are paid interest on dividend credits and deposits.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amounts of insurance in force (dollars in thousands):

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Number of policies.....	340,659	318,119	283,879
Insurance in force.....	$3,074,607	$2,915,200	$2,659,584

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Favorable mortality experience on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the total revenue of the fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

Volunteers in Service to America.—In 1989, the VISTA program will provide 2,600 volunteer service years to assist communities working to resolve local poverty-related problems in areas such as literacy, at-risk youth, and homeless. The Student Community Service Programs assist secondary and post-secondary educational institutions to establish and maintain student volunteer activities for low-income communities.

Citizen participation and volunteer demonstration programs.—These programs stimulate and encourage the innovative use of volunteer services and provide community groups with small grants for project development. In 1989, these grants will aid the expansion of private volunteer activities and programs addressing drug abuse, illiteracy, families in crisis, and at-risk youth.

Older American volunteer programs.—These programs provide opportunities for people aged 60 and over to volunteer their services to the community in many socially useful activities and by working with the emotionally disturbed, the mentally retarded and physically disabled, the infirm, and the isolated and infirm elderly. In 1989, approximately 27,000 Foster Grandparent volunteers will serve about 68,500 children. Emphasis will be on "at-risk" children, drug abuse prevention, and runaway youth. The Retired Senior Volunteer program will support about 417,000 part-time volunteers providing service in the areas of literacy, health, nutrition, education, and the problems of "at-risk" youth, refugee assistance, crime prevention, and other community services. Approximately 10,000 volunteers in the Senior Companion program will provide long-term care services to about 32,000 frail and elderly Americans.

Program support.—Costs of program direction and administration are financed by this activity.

The Conference issues formal recommendations for improvements and then encourages their implementation.

In addition to its research activities, the Conference also arranges for the interchange among administrative agencies of information useful in improving administrative procedure and, on an ongoing basis, furnishes assistance and advice on matters of administrative procedure to the agencies, Congress, and others.

The Conference receives funds from other Federal agencies for special projects carried out by the Conference pursuant to agreements with these agencies.

Public Law 99-661 established the Barry Goldwater Scholarship and Excellence in Education Foundation to operate the scholarship program that is the permanent Federal tribute to the former Senator from Arizona. The Foundation will foster and encourage excellence in science and mathematics by awarding scholarships and fellowships to outstanding graduate and undergraduate students who intend to pursue careers or advanced degrees in science or mathematics. The Foundation may also award honoraria to outstanding individuals who have made significant contributions to improve the instruction of science and mathematics in secondary schools.

A board of directors will be appointed during 1988. The board will establish procedures to select award recipients, determine the size and number of awards, and appoint an executive secretary to perform the administrative operations of the Foundation. The Foundation is expected to make its first awards for the 1989-1990 school year.

The Commission engages in studies concerning areas in which there may be denials of civil rights and reports on these matters to the President and the Congress. Hearings by the Commissioners are held to investigate and obtain information about denials of civil rights. Conferences and open meetings are held by staff and State Advisory Committees to gather data and issue reports providing information about civil rights problems. In addition, appraisals of Federal agencies' civil rights programs are made and complaints alleging discrimination are referred to the proper Federal agencies.

The Commission provides liaison with private groups, public groups, and the media to provide civil rights information to Government officials, organizations, and the public. This is sometimes accomplished through the issuance of Commission publications. It also provides a library resource to support civil rights research, studies, hearings, and other Commission activities, and makes this information available to the general public.

For 1989, the administration is requesting an appropriation that would fully fund all activities necessary to carry out the Commission's mandate.

The Committee for Purchase From the Blind and Other Severely Handicapped was established by the Wagner-O'Day Act of 1938, as amended. Its primary objective is to increase employment opportunities for the blind and other severely handicapped and, whenever possible, to prepare them to engage in normal competitive employment. In 1989, 18,500 blind and handicapped individuals are projected to be employed in 337 producing workshops. The committee determines which commodities and services are suitable for Government procurement from qualified nonprofit agencies serving the blind and other severely handicapped; publishes a procurement list of such commodities and services; determines the fair market price for commodities and services on the procurement list; and makes rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. The committee proposes to have 2,325 items on its procurement list, and estimated workshop sales of $340 million.

The committee staff supervises the selection and assignment of new commodities and services, assists in establishing prices, reviews and adjusts these prices, verifies the qualifications of workshops, and monitors their performance.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended. The purpose of the CFTC is to further the economic utility of the futures markets by encouraging their efficiency, assuring their integrity, and protecting participants against abusive trade practices, fraud, and deceit. The object of commodity futures trading regulation is to enable the markets to better serve their designated functions of providing a price discovery mechanism and a means of offsetting price risk. By properly serving these functions, the futures markets serve the public interest by contributing toward better planning, more efficient distribution and consumption, and more economical marketing.

Market surveillance, analysis and research.—Responsibilities under this program include daily surveillance of the market activity of large individual traders and fundamental economic market factors to insure orderly markets. Contract terms and conditions are reviewed to insure conformity with current cash marketing conditions and adequate deliverable supplies. This program also systematically investigates the functioning of markets and market users and develops better tools to assist in detecting and preventing price distortions.

Enforcement.—The enforcement program is responsible for detecting, investigating, and litigating violations of the Act or regulations. These violations may include actual and attempted market manipulations, cheating and defrauding customers, and abusive trading practices such as fictitious trading, wash trading, and pre-arranged trading. This program may seek redress through the administrative process or by injunctive actions in the Federal Courts.

Under current authorizing legislation, which expires in 1990, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting has two major activities: (1) direct payments to public television and radio stations to be used at their discretion for purposes related primarily to program production or acquisition; and (2) support for the production and acquisition of radio and television programs for national distribution. In addition, the Corporation assists in the financing of several system-wide activities, including national satellite interconnection services and the payment of music royalty fees, and provides limited technical assistance, research, and planning services to improve system-wide capacity and performance.

The appropriation for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting is enacted two years in advance. For 1989, an appropriation of $228 million was enacted in 1987. Although public broadcasting is an important national resource, this funding level is incompatible with the urgent need to reduce Federal spending. The Administration is, therefore, requesting that CPB's funding be frozen at its 1988 level. The Administration requests that of the $228 million appropriated for 1989, $14 million shall be available for 1991 only, and that, of the $233 million appropriated for 1990, $18.648 million shall be available only for 1991. The table below illustrates the 1988-1991 funding levels for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting:

The Federal payment of $430.5 million is to reimburse the government of the District of Columbia for the net cost of the Federal presence. To promote efficiency and accountability, legislation will be proposed to amend the District of Columbia Public Works Act of 1954 (68 Stat. ch. 218), as amended, to authorize the District, beginning in 1988, to bill, accept and enforce payments from individual Federal establishments of the Judicial, Legislative, and Executive branches of government for water and sewer services they receive from the District of Columbia Government. Thus, in lieu of a lump sum appropriation to the District for these services, the Federal establishments will make payments directly. This appropriation also includes a contribution of $52.1 million which represents the Federal share of payments to District of Columbia retirement funds for police officers, fire fighters, teachers and judges and a payment of $20.0 million to assist in financing St. Elizabeths Hospital as part of a six-year plan to transfer administrative and financial responsibility from the Federal Government to the District. Finally, this appropriation includes a payment of $2.3 million for expenses expected to be incurred by the District of Columbia in connection with 1989 Presidential inauguration activities (Public Law 93-198, as amended).

The District of Columbia Appropriations Act, 1988, requires that the value estimated by the Mayor of the District of Columbia for water and sewer services and sanitary sewer services furnished to facilities of the United States Government under sections 106 and 212 of the District of Columbia Public Works Act of 1954, as amended, be included without change in the President's budget. The estimate furnished by the Mayor for these services for fiscal year 1989 is $36,726,000.

The purpose of the Export-Import Bank (Eximbank) is to aid in financing and promoting U.S. exports. To accomplish its objectives, the Bank's authority and resources are used to: assume commercial and political risks that exporters or private institutions are unwilling or unable to undertake; overcome maturity and other limitations in private sector export financing; assist U.S. exporters to meet foreign officially sponsored export credit competition; and provide leadership and guidance in export financing to the U.S. exporting and banking communities and to foreign borrowers. The bank is also actively assisting small- and medium-sized businesses to increase their exports by publicizing the Bank's programs.

Eximbank also provides export credit insurance through the Foreign Credit Insurance Association (FCIA) to U.S. exporters and financial institutions to protect them against the risk of default by foreign buyers as a result of certain commercial and political events. FCIA was a risk-sharing private unincorporated association of insurance companies until October 1983 when the private insurance companies withdrew from participation in FCIA. Eximbank currently bears all risks of default and financial net losses associated with the program, while the FCIA administers the insurance policies. For the first time, the revenues and expenses associated with FCIA activities are explicitly shown in the Eximbank budget schedules.

A limitation of $705 million for direct loans and of $10.2 billion for financial guarantees and FCIA insurance is proposed for 1989.

The Farm Credit Administration examines and regulates a coordinated agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations which lend to farmers, ranchers, and their cooperatives.

The System is comprised of 12 Federal land banks, 12 Federal intermediate credit banks, 13 Banks for Cooperatives, the Farm Credit System Capital Corporation, various System service organizations, and approximately 382 Federal land bank associations and production credit associations.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from institutions in the Farm Credit System and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year budgets approved by the Farm Credit Administration Board.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. The deposit insurance ceiling protection has been $100,000 since March 31, 1980. In order to accomplish its varied functions in the protection of bank depositors, the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured banks and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. The major portion of the Corporation's operations consists of the examination of State banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System and liquidation activities attendant to insured banks that have closed.

The insurance fund is supported by an authorization to borrow up to $3 billion from the Treasury of the United States. No borrowing under this authorization has been made to date and none is anticipated in 1988 and 1989.

Budget authority and outlays include the value of notes issued as part of assistance agreements to acquirers of failing banks.

Status of Direct Loans (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code	51-8419-0-8-371	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Cumulative balance of direct loans outstanding:
1210	Outstanding, start of year	3,423,150	3,089,389	3,088,389

1290	Outstanding, end of year	3,089,389	3,088,389	2,872,139

In order to facilitate deposit assumptions and mergers, or to assist operating banks, the Corporation is authorized to purchase notes issued by the assuming or acquiring bank, or in the case of direct assistance, notes issued by the operating bank. The above schedule reflects the outstanding principal amounts of these notes, projected repayments based on the notes agreements, and estimated additional disbursements and repayments during 1988 and 1989.

Income of the Corporation is derived principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks and interest on investment in U.S. Government securities. As of September 30, 1987, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $18.3 billion. The entire fund represents the accumulated net income of the Corporation and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses. No funds derived from taxes or Federal appropriation are allocated to or used by the Corporation in any of its operations.

The estimates for 1988 and 1989 in these statements make provision for losses and expenses which might occur by reason of the closing of any bank after September 30, 1987.

Federal disaster assistance is a nationwide program operated pursuant to the Disaster Relief Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-288). Supplementary assistance is provided to individuals, and State and local governments, in the event of a Presidentially declared emergency or major disaster. Funds may be made available directly to a State or local government, or to other Federal agencies as reimbursement of expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority. In addition, a variety of other Federal agency assistance is coordinated under this program.

Civil defense.—The civil defense programs feature an Integrated Emergency Management System approach. The programs are designed to ensure a basic emergency response infrastructure with potential for rapid enhancement of capabilities when necessary (the surge concept), providing emergency capabilities to mitigate, prepare for, respond to, and recover from emergencies caused by natural, technological, and attack-related hazards.

Earthquake and other hazards.—This program provides for the enhancement of State and local governments' capability to prepare for, respond to, and mitigate disasters and emergencies. Program activities include analyses, needs assessments, technical guidance and financial support designed to assist State and local governments in developing a comprehensive approach to preparedness planning.

Radiological emergency preparedness.—This program provides assistance to State and local governments through the issuance of guidance, review and approval of plans, and evaluation of exercises. The program is focused on improvement of State and local capabilities to cope with radiological accidents at commercial nuclear power plants, other fixed nuclear facilities, nuclear materials license holders and transportation of radioactive materials.

Federal preparedness.—The goals of the Federal preparedness activity are to achieve Government readiness to ensure that the Nation will be able to respond to, manage, and recover from peacetime or wartime national security emergencies and to enable Government, at all levels, to cope with the consequences of accidental, natural, and man-caused occurrences.

Training and fire programs.—This activity prepares Federal, State and local officials, their supporting staff, and the public to meet the responsibilities and challenges of domestic emergencies through planning, mitigation, preparedness, response, and long-term recovery. Educational programs are provided through the Emergency Management Institute and the National Fire Academy. In addition, the U.S. Fire Administration concentrates on providing a Federal focus on identifying problems with which the Nation's fire and rescue services must deal, finding solutions to these problems, and supporting State and local fire protection and emergency rescue efforts.

Flood plain management.—This activity involves the operation of a program that combines mapping, regulatory, and technical-assistance efforts for the purposes of responding to known flood hazards and mitigating their effects through a comprehensive approach to the management of flood plains. This activity is funded through transfer of unobligated balances from the National Flood Insurance Fund.

The National Insurance Development Fund provided the funding source for two programs authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended: (1) The FAIR (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) Plan/Riot Reinsurance Program, and (2) the Federal Crime Insurance Program. The Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1985 (Public Law 98-181) did not extend authority for the Riot Reinsurance Program beyond November 30, 1983. The Federal Crime Insurance Program has been extended until September 30, 1989. The budget estimates assume there will be no new policies issued subsequent to those dates. However, there will be operating expenses associated with unexpired policies and the close-out of contractor activities.

Insurance claims.—Claims reflect insurance payments in the program.

Operating expenses.—Expenses are incurred by fiscal agents in issuing policies, settling claims, and maintaining accounting and statistical records.

One-time payments to States.—In 1986, Congress appropriated $10 million for payment to assist States in establishing an alternative to the Federal Crime Insurance Program. A total of eight States accepted $836,000 and withdrew from the program.

Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the programs.

Interest expense.—This represents interest on Treasury borrowings needed to defray underwriting and loss expenses of the crime insurance program.

Financing.—Claims and expenses are estimated to be paid from premium income and Treasury borrowings.

Premiums are projected to increase by five percent annually in order to reduce losses.

Operating results.—Claims and expenses are expected to exceed premium income resulting in a decrease in the reserves of the fund. Cumulative loss for this program is projected to be $127 million at the end of 1989.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within one year of the time they are identified as flood prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes.

Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $245 thousand for residential and $550 thousand for other types.

Significant indicators of program size are as follows:

The $4 billion authority to borrow from Treasury continues to be available.

Outlays were overstated by $12,240 thousand in 1986 due to an error in reporting to Treasury the reimbursement to FHLBs for sale of Board property. An offsetting adjustment was applied to the 1987 outlay total.

The size of the Federal home loan bank system is shown in the following table:

Budget program.—The Board's budget program consists of several activities:

Supervision of Federal home loan banks and applications processing.—The Board supervises the operations of the 12 Federal home loan banks. Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. Applications of State-chartered associations for conversion to Federal savings and loan associations and applications of Federal savings and loan associations for establishment of branch offices are also examined. In addition, an analysis and evaluation is made of insurance risk in connection with applications submitted by savings and loan associations for insurance of share accounts.

Examination and supervision of Federal and State-chartered thrift institutions.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and all uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system which are not examined by the State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter, when required by the Board. The financial condition and operations of each insured institution are analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on cooperatively, with the respective State authorities.

Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of staff services common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

Analysis of operations.—Analyses are made of the financial condition of member institutions, the flow of savings, and the character and volume of mortgage lending. Selective reviews are made of geographical areas and trends in the field of thrift and home mortgage finance, including the volume of activity and interest rates for all major types of mortgage lenders.

Administrative services.—These consist of accounting, budgeting, and financial reporting; internal budget control; and fiscal organization and management. Also included are general housekeeping, data processing, and operating services.

The 12 Federal home loan banks seek to improve the financial condition of member institutions. The banks, which are owned by the member institutions, obtain funds primarily from public issuances of consolidated obligations. Section 11(i) of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act authorizes the banks to borrow from the Treasury up to $4 billion outstanding at any one time.

The amounts shown in the schedules for the activities discussed above for 1989 include administrative expenses under an annual limitation, and certain additional expenses not under a limitation. Administrative expenses are estimated to increase from $30.3 million in 1988 to $31.9 million in 1989.

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation is authorized under title IV of the National Housing Act to insure savings in all Federal savings and loan associations, Federal mutual savings banks, and in State-chartered institutions of the savings and loan type which apply and qualify for insurance. The protection, which insures each saver in a member association against financial loss up to a statutory limit of $100 thousand, may be provided either through the prevention of default or the payment of insurance to savings accounts holders in the event of liquidation. Preventing default, which protects each investor regardless of the amount in his account, is accomplished by making contributions or by purchasing all or a part of an association's assets. Also, the Corporation is authorized to make loans to institutions in financial difficulty. Preventive measures are preferred by the Corporation. However, in the event liquidation is necessary, the Corporation acts as a receiver, or co-receiver upon the request of a State authority in cases involving State-chartered institutions. In addition, the Corporation, upon determination by the Board, is empowered to act, even retroactively, as sole receiver in cases involving State-chartered institutions.

The Corporation functions under the direction of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which provides administrative services. The expenses of the Board and its staff offices are paid from assessments made on the Corporation and the Federal home loan banks.

In carrying out its responsibility for protecting savings in insured savings and loans associations, the Corporation has settled 399 cases since its creation in 1934. Actual losses sustained and provision for losses to September 30, 1987, have amounted to $11,745.7 million representing approximately 66.3 percent of cumulative gross income. Budget program.—The Insurance Corporation's budget program consists of the following activities:

Administrative expenses subject to limitation.—This category includes the estimated costs of executive direction and policy formulation.

Payments to Federal Home Loan Bank Board for services and facilities.—The Corporation will pay 75 percent of the total administrative expenses of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in 1989 in return for services and facilities from the Board.

Contributions and provision for contributions to insured thrift institutions.—This item is the estimated amount needed in 1989 to prevent the default of insured institutions.

Liquidation and other expenses.—This provides for liquidation and other expenses of the Corporation in connection with the workout of contribution agreements, the disposition of assets purchased from, and loans to insured institutions to prevent default.

Interest on notes payable.—This is interest paid on promissory notes issued by the Corporation for the purchase of either Income Capital Certificates or Net Worth Certificates. The certificates are issued by qualifying insured institutions with low net worth in order to improve or maintain their capital position.

Financing.—The original capital of $100 million has been completely repaid to Treasury, together with an additional $43 million in interest. The Corporation has continuing authority to borrow from the Treasury for insurance purposes, up to a limit of $750 million outstanding at any one time. No borrowing under this authorization has ever been necessary. The Corporation has additional authority to assess against each insured institution additional premiums for insurance until the amount of such premiums equals the amount of all losses and expenses of the Corporation, except that the total amount so assessed in any 1 year against any such institution shall not exceed one-eighth of 1 percent of the total amount of the accounts of its insured savers. In addition, with the passage of the Competitive Equal-ty Banking Act the Corporation can recapitalize its fund by $10.8 billion over the next three years through sale of FSLIC stock. These resources will be used to close those unprofitable and insolvent thrifts that have helped to create the growing financial threat to the fund.

Operating results.—The Corporation is entirely self-supporting. Revenues and other receipts have been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, and return on capital stock until 1987 when a contingent liability for $12.2 billion was booked, leaving a reserve for contingencies of $8,871.5 million as of September 30, 1987. Total revenues and other receipts since 1934 of $17,719.9 million have been applied as follows:

FEDERAL ASSET DISPOSITION ASSOCIATION

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board chartered the Federal Asset Disposition Association (FADA) in November, 1985 to help solve loan and property problems in troubled and failed savings and loan association portfolios. The Bank Board's insurance arm, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC), provided FADA with initial capital of $25 million. In the two years since FADA's creation, the FSLIC has utilized FADA to manage and sell the troubled loans and properties of failed and supervised savings and loan associations. The mission of FADA is to assist in strengthening the financial health of the FSLIC and the savings and loan industry. FADA attempts to manage problem loans and properties at the lowest cost consistent with sound operations and to obtain the best possible return.

FSLIC employs FADA in three contractual ways: an agreement to manage and sell assets held by a FSLIC receivership; an advisory or management agreement with a FSLIC-supervised institution; and an agreement to assist FSLIC in its corporate capacity. About 80 percent of the assets under FADA management are loans, while only 20 percent are real estate owned assets. Loan restructurings represent a substantial part of FADA's activities.

Because FADA was unable to supply data on a fiscal year basis for 1987, the following financial statements are presented for calendar year 1987 only and are not included in the budget totals. In subsequent budgets, actual data for the prior fiscal year and estimates for the current and budget fiscal years will be presented.

The Federal Maritime Commission regulates the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. In addition, the Commission has responsibility for the licensing of ocean freight forwarders and for insuring that vessel owners or operators establish financial responsibility for death or injury to passengers or other persons on voyages to and from U.S. ports, and indemnification of passengers for the nonperformance of transportation. Major program areas for 1989 will concentrate on implementing and operating a system to computerize the filing of tariffs; pursuing an active enforcement program designed to identify and prosecute violators of the shipping statutes; collecting and analyzing data on the impact of the 1984 Shipping Act and beginning the preparation of the report required under section 18(c) of the Act; and completing various stages of automation.

The Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board is responsible for managing the Thrift savings fund. The Thrift savings fund is a special tax-deferred savings fund established by the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986. Due to the fiduciary nature of the Thrift savings fund, the fund is not included in the totals of the Federal budget. Information on the financial status and activities of the Thrift savings fund follow this account.

Program administration for the Thrift savings fund is financed by reimbursement from the fund. In addition, the Board may require employing agencies to contribute an amount not to exceed one percent of employing agency contributions to purchase insurance to cover the potential liability of persons who serve in a fiduciary capacity on behalf of the fund. The Board has ceased requiring such contributions because of legislation enacted in January 1988 which provided an alternative source of funding for a major portion of such liabilities. This legislation is also expected to reduce estimated expenses for insurance premiums. In 1987, a general fund appropriation from the Treasury was provided to finance a portion of the administrative expenses in the first year of the Board's operations. Future reimbursements will be derived first from forfeitures of agency one percent basic contributions for employees who separate from the Federal government prior to vesting and subsequently from other amounts in the fund.

The Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986 required the Secretary of the Treasury to credit to the Thrift savings fund an amount equal to 1 percent of the basic pay paid plus interest for those Federal employees who were covered by the Federal Employees' Retirement Contribution Temporary Adjustment Act of 1983 and were still employees of the Federal Government on January 1, 1987.

INFORMATION SCHEDULES ON THE THRIFT SAVINGS FUND

The Thrift savings fund is composed of individual accounts maintained by the Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board on behalf of the individual Federal employee participants in the fund. All Federal employees are eligible to contribute to the fund. However, only those employees covered by the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) will have their contributions matched by employing agencies in accordance with the formulas prescribed by law. Within certain restrictions imposed during a phase-in period, FERS employees are entitled to select how contributions are distributed among three investment funds: a Government securities investment fund, a fixed income investment fund, and a common stock index investment fund.

Because the Thrift savings fund recently commenced operations, the estimates of the status of these funds in 1988 and 1989 are based only on the first year of experience. Employee participation in the fund is entirely voluntary, so actual results could vary significantly from these estimates. The estimated status of the three separate funds is shown below:

The Federal Trade Commission is charged by law with ensuring that competition in the marketplace is vigorous, free, and fair. This is accomplished by eliminating threats to fair and honest competition from all sources, both public and private.

Maintaining competition.—The Commission's efforts within this mission are aimed at fostering and preserving our competitive system with the goal of maximizing consumer welfare. In addition to enforcing the antitrust laws against private sector restraints on competition, the Commission also scrutinizes regulatory policies that unduly restrain competition, and tries to exert a pro-competitive influence in the development of such policies.

Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive acts or practices affecting commerce. The goal of the consumer protection mission is to improve market performance so that consumers can make informed choices when exercising their purchasing power. To accomplish this goal, the Commission will remove harmful private and public restrictions on market performance; encourage business to provide consumers with accurate and useful information; and reinforce market forces that enhance consumer welfare.

Economic activities.—This mission has four major functions: conducting research on the performance of the industrial economy; providing economic support to the Commission's antitrust and consumer protection efforts; advising the Commission on the impact of governmental regulation on competition in various industries; and developing economic reports on industrial structure and performance.

Public Law 93-642 established the Harry S Truman Scholarship Foundation to operate the scholarship program that is the permanent Federal memorial to the 33rd President of the United States. The Foundation awards scholarships for up to four years to qualified college students who demonstrate outstanding potential for and interest in careers in public service at the local, State, or Federal level.

Legislation was enacted in 1986 that raised the former $5,000 cap on annual award levels to $10,000, allowing the Foundation to raise awards. The Foundation announced an award cap of $7,000, effective for awards for school years 1987-88 and 1988-89. However, the Foundation reserves the right, and intends if necessary, to adjust award levels or the number of scholars, or both, to avoid any decline in the value of its trust fund.

In 1989, the Foundation will conduct its thirteenth annual competition to select up to 105 new Truman scholars and will continue to assist in the placement of graduating Truman scholars in public service positions.

Scholarship awards.—This activity is comprised of scholarships awarded to cover eligible educational expenses.

Program administration.—This activity covers all costs of operating the program, including annual program announcement, interview and selection of Truman scholars, calculation and disbursement of scholarship awards, monitoring of student progress, and placement assistance.

The Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (ACIR) is a 26-member independent, bipartisan body. The Commission and its staff examine Federal, State and local trends, events, and programs having an intergovernmental impact. On request, proposed legislation and executive actions are reviewed to determine their overall effect on the Federal system. The Commission also identifies emerging problems of Federal-State-local relations and assists States and localities in anticipating and meeting problems caused by various intergovernmental overlaps and conflicts, and makes recommendations concerning the workings and structural arrangements of governmental units and allocation of responsibilities and revenues among the various levels of government. The recommendations and published reports growing out of the Commission's work are submitted to the executive and legislative branches of Federal, State, and local governments for appropriate action.

Continuing and annual projects of the Commission include assessing changing public attitudes on government and taxes; publishing annual data on the "representative tax system" for all 50 States; analyzing fiscal disparities; publishing a periodic category of Federal aid; surveying and identifying trends in State and local finances; monitoring key intergovernmental legislation of Federal, State, and local governments; and providing educational and technical assistance to Federal, State, and local governments regarding Commission recommendations.

Nonrecurring projects nearing completion include studies on designing a more effective intergovernmental welfare system, State-by-State analysis of proposals to reform the individual income tax, the role of the national judiciary in the Federal system, alternative approaches to providing local public services, and rethinking local self-government in a Federal system.

Research projects just beginning include studies of Federal preemption of State and local laws and authority; the Congress, the States, and federalism; Federal and State compliance with national mandates; interjurisdictional tax and policy completion; an extension of recently completed work on local public economies; boundary review commissions; State law in the Federal system; and State and local taxation and regulation of interlocal and interstate service businesses.

Appropriations finance the personnel and personnel-related expenses incurred in the basic day-to-day operation of the Commission.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) is a non-Federal agency established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The Authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and construct the Metrorail rapid transit system and to operate the bus/rail transit system in the National Capital area. The rail system extends from the District of Columbia into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia.

This WMATA account provides the annual Federal share (two-thirds) of interest payments on outstanding WMATA bonds sold in support of the rail construction program. The WMATA bonds, totaling $997 million, are guaranteed by the Federal Government. In September 1979, WMATA and the Department of Transportation approved an Initial Bond Repayment Participation Agreement providing for an overall two-thirds Federal and one-third local sharing of the interest and principal costs of the bonds. In August 1982, this agreement was reaffirmed in a supplement to the agreement.

In 1988 Congress enacted a level five percent less than what was needed to fulfill the Federal commitment. The 1989 request represents the full Federal share under the terms of the agreement.

The U.S. International Trade Commission is an independent agency created by act of Congress. The Commission's current powers and duties are provided for by the Tariff Act of 1930; the Trade Act of 1974; the Trade Agreements Act of 1979; the Agricultural Adjustment Act; section 1911 of the Financial Institution Regulatory and Interest Rate Control Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 635a-2; and the Trade and Tariff Act of 1984.

The Commission conducts investigations and, where appropriate, makes determinations and recommendations, or takes action, in cases where (1) serious injury to industries may warrant increases in duties, the imposition of quotas, or the provision of adjustment assistance; (2) imports of goods sold at less than fair value may injure an industry; (3) foreign governments, organizations, or individuals, may have subsidized imports into the United States; (4) unfair methods of competition in the importation or sale of foreign articles may tend to injure an industry or restrain and monopolize trade and commerce in the United States; or (5) imports of agricultural products may materially interfere with certain programs of the Department of Agriculture.

The Commission advises the President as to the probable economic effect on the domestic industry and consumers, of modification of duties and other barriers to trade which may be considered for inclusion in any proposed trade agreement with foreign countries. Further, the Commission, at the request of the President, the Congress, or on the Commission's own motion, undertakes comprehensive studies and provides reports on key issues relating to international trade and economic policy matters.

The Commission, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce, establishes for statistical purposes an enumeration of articles imported into the United States and exported from the United States, and seeks to establish comparability of such statistics with statistical programs for domestic production.

The Commission also issues a publication containing U.S. tariff schedules and related matters and considers questions concerning the arrangements of such schedules and the classification of articles.

Pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974, the budget estimates for the Commission are included without revision by the President.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is responsible for the regulation of interstate surface transportation. Consistent with the downward trend in the regulation of surface transportation which grew out of the regulatory reform legislation of 1980 and 1982, the Commission has reduced staff by 61 percent since 1981.

Motor program.—This includes the regulation of rates, the granting of operating authorities, the regulation of mergers and acquisitions, and the planning, analysis, and policy development associated with these activities as they relate to the Interstate Commerce Act as amended by the Motor Carrier Act of 1980, the Household Goods Transportation Act of 1980, the Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1982, and the Surface Freight Forwarder Deregulation Act of 1986. The activities of interstate motor freight, bus, and water carriers are monitored, and enforcement actions are instituted to ensure compliance with these regulations.

Rail program.—This encompasses the regulation of rates and of mergers, acquisitions, construction and abandonment of railway lines, as well as the planning, analysis, and policy development associated with these activities as provided for in the Interstate Commerce Act, as amended by the Staggers Rail Act of 1980. Staff ensure compliance with railroad regulations in order to protect the public interest.

General management and administration.—These activities provide support services, including data processing, budget and financial management, personnel, procurement, and contracting services.

Legislation will be proposed to sunset the Interstate Commerce Commission and to deregulate completely the interstate motor freight carriers, household goods freight forwarders, property brokers, buses, and water carriers by October 1, 1988. The enactment of this legislation would eliminate a major portion of ICC's workload. The remaining activities would be transferred to the Departments of Justice and Transportation and the Federal Trade Commission.

Public Laws 99-500 and 99-591 established the James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation to operate a fellowship program to encourage graduate study of the American Constitution. The same law provided advance appropriations of $10 million for 1988 and $10 million for 1989 to establish the Foundation's trust fund. These funds will be invested by the Secretary of the Treasury in U.S. Treasury securities and interest earned will be available for carrying out the activities of the Foundation. Public Laws 99-500 and 99-591 also appropriated $3.2 million, to become available in 1988, for grants to four specified law schools to establish constitutional law resource centers.

The Foundation is authorized to award fellowships of up to $12 thousand to individuals selected for their academic achievement and their potential to become secondary school teachers of social studies and American history. No funds are available for fellowships until at least $10 million in private contributions have been received. No fellowships are anticipated in 1988 or 1989.

Funds for program administration in 1988 and 1989 will cover costs of planning and fundraising for the new fellowship program.

The Special Counsel is empowered to investigate prohibited personnel practices in Federal agencies and political activities prohibited by the Hatch Act, and to administratively prosecute offending employees and agencies before the Merit Systems Protection Board. The Special Counsel may also transmit "whistleblower" allegations to the agency head concerned and require an agency investigation and a report to the Congress and the President when found appropriate.

Many cases that are referred to the Office are resolved without recourse to formal proceedings before the Board. Efforts to obtain such informal resolutions will continue in 1989.

The National Archives and Records Administration provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operation of Presidential libraries, and for the review for declassification of security classified information.

In 1989, records in the National Archives and Federal records centers will total approximately 17.6 million cubic feet. The number of reference services expected to be provided will total 32.6 million.

Records centers.—In 1989, agencies will transfer 1,692 thousand cubic feet of inactive records to the records centers. The records centers will dispose of 1,103 thousand cubic feet of records in 1989, and 29.3 million reference services will be provided.

Archives and related services.—A substantial portion of the workload of the National Archives and related services activity is determined by the volume of reference requests received from Government agencies, the public, and the number of documents sent by Federal agencies to be published in the Federal Register. For 1989 the number of reference services is estimated at 3.3 million and the number of Federal Register pages to be processed will be 740,000.

Through the records declassification program, historically valuable information in the records of the Federal Government and in donated historical materials are made available to the public by declassifying as much information as possible without endangering the national security. In 1989, 15.3 million pages will be reviewed for declassification.

National Historical Publications and Records Commission.—This Commission coordinates and provides technical assistance to archival planning and assessment projects in many States and also offers a specialized reference service to Federal, State and local and nongovernment institutions that are publishing significant portions of records from official government files. The Commission also lends its endorsement and support to those specific projects that further the basic objectives stated in its legislation.

Federal credit unions are privately owned, cooperative associations organized for the purpose of promoting thrift among their members and creating a source of credit for provident or productive purposes, authorized by the Federal Credit Union Act of 1934, as amended.

The Administration's activities consist of: (a) chartering new Federal credit unions, (b) supervising established Federal credit unions, (c) making periodic examinations of their financial condition and operating practices, and (d) providing administrative services. The operating fund is reimbursed for the insurance fund's share of the agency's administrative expenses by the insurance fund. The reimbursement percentage, which is reviewed and adjusted periodically, is currently at 50 percent. Data relating to activities are shown below:

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970.

Budget program.—The activities consist of: (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, and (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of solvent and insolvent, insured credit unions. The fund also reimburses the operating fund for its share of the Agency's administrative costs. The reimbursement percentage which is reviewed and adjusted periodically, is currently at fifty percent.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item:	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Number of insured credit unions.....	14,466	14,200	14,000
Insured shares of member institutions as of June 30 (in millions of dollars).....	147,400	167,150	183,500

It is estimated that approximately 5,000 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 1989.

Financing.—For calendar year 1988, the credit union's required annual insurance premium of one-twelfth of 1 percent of their total member share accounts has been waived. However, as a result of Public Law 98-369 (July 18, 1985), each insured credit union is required to deposit and maintain in the insurance fund 1 percent of its member share accounts. The fund is structured to be entirely self supporting through the monies paid by member credit unions. The monies received plus the income generated from their investment are expected to cover all administrative and financial costs, as well as increase the fund balance proportionate to insured share growth. It is anticipated that the capital generated from the 1 percent deposit will eliminate the need to assess the annual premium except in years of extraordinary credit union losses. The fund has $100 million in borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies.

Operating results.—Anticipated net income of $80,176 thousand will be retained in the fund, raising the balance for unforeseen emergencies to $2.1 billion by the end of 1989.

The National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility was established under Public Law 95-630. It began operations on October 1, 1979. The Central Liquidity Facility provides loans to member credit unions for seasonal and emergency needs.

The two primary sources of funds for the Facility are stock subscriptions from credit unions and borrowings from the Federal Financing Bank. Credit unions, which choose to become members of the Facility, are required to purchase stock equal to one-half of 1 percent of their assets. One-half of the subscription in stock is forwarded to the Facility and deposited in the fund. The remaining half of the subscription remains on call in the credit union in investments as approved by the NCUA Board.

The Facility may borrow funds from any source to relend to member credit unions. This amount of borrowings is limited to twelve times the amount of capital stock subscriptions by the authorizing statute (Public Law 95-630). In 1989, an appropriation limitation on new loans of $600 million is proposed, of which it is currently anticipated that $144.1 million will be used.

Note.—The unobligated balance lapsing in 1988 represents the amount unavailable for obligation pursuant to section 512 of the Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1988.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Case intake in 1987 was 32,243 unfair labor practice cases and 7,645 representation cases. Estimates for unfair labor practice cases are 32,941 for 1988 and 33,638 for 1989. Representation case estimates are 7,712 for 1988 and 7,814 for 1989.

Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petition for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Over 94 percent of the unfair labor practice cases and about 82 percent of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases and the avoidance of litigation.

Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions. In 1987 there were 631 hearings closed, 37 proceedings adjusted after close of hearing, and 575 decisions issued. The estimate for 1988 is for 693 hearings to be closed, 13 adjusted after hearing, and 684 decisions. The estimate for 1989 is for 700 hearings to be closed, 13 adjusted after hearing, and 691 decisions.

Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 30 percent of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder with exceptions filed requires contested Board decision. In 1987, 715 such Board decisions were issued; the estimates for 1988 and 1989 are 841 and 883 respectively. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. In 1987 regional directors issued 1,017 such decisions; and the estimate is 1,059 for 1988 and 1,111 in 1989. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. In 1987 the Board issued 85 representation decisions; the estimates for 1988 and 1989 are 149 and 152 respectively. The Board also ruled on 218 objection and challenge questions in election cases in 1987; it is estimated that 236 such rulings will be required in 1988 and 246 in 1989.

Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request the appellate courts to enforce its decisions. In 1987 a total of 194 Board decisions of all kinds required such litigation; the estimate for 1988 is 246, and for 1989 it is 237.

Mediator services.—The Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 650 rail and air carriers and approximately 700,000 employees in the two industries.

The Board also provides technical assistance to enable labor and industry representatives to explore informally the relevant economic and noneconomic problems that condition collective bargaining in the railroad and airline industries.

Voluntary arbitration and emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their disputes through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which threaten seriously to interrupt service, may appoint emergency boards to investigate and report on the disputes under section 160 of the Railway Labor Act (RLA). Such reports usually serve as a basis for resolving the disputes.

The Northeast Rail Service Act of 1981 amended the Railway Labor Act by adding a new emergency dispute procedure covering disputes between a publicly funded and operated commuter carrier and its employees. The 1981 act requires the Board to appoint the public members of factfinding panels on Conrail.

Adjustment of Railroad Grievances.—Railroad employee grievances resulting from disputes over the interpretation or application of collective bargaining contracts may be brought for settlement to the National Railroad Adjustment Board (NRAB). The divisions of the Board are composed of an equal number of carrier and union representatives compensated by the party or parties they represent. Public Law 89-456 provides for the adjustment of disputes involving grievances resulting from interpretation or application of bargaining agreements in the railroad industry otherwise referable to the NRAB.

Administrative direction and support for the public law boards, special boards of adjustment, and the NRAB are provided by Federal employees who are compensated by the National Mediation Board.

The major research program activities of the Foundation are:

Mathematical and physical sciences.—Research in this activity is directed at increasing understanding of natural laws and phenomena. It includes research in mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, and materials science. Studies deal with a broad range of significant science areas such as new amorphous materials and materials of limited dimensionality, organometallic chemistry and catalysis, the fundamental forces and constituents of physical matter, studies of galaxies, planets, and stars, and new mathematical structures and techniques. Provision of modern research instrumentation and facilities and support of young scientists is stressed in all programs.

Engineering.—Research supported by this activity aims to increase U.S. engineering capability and strength, and focus that capability and strength on areas which are relevant to national problems and long-term needs. Topics supported include: electrical, communications, and systems engineering; chemical, biochemical, and thermal engineering; mechanics, structures, and materials engineering; science based development in design, manufacturing, and computer integrated engineering; fundamental research underpinning emerging and critical engineering systems; and cross-disciplinary research, including Engineering Research Centers.

Biological, behavioral, and social sciences.—This activity supports research in cellular biology, molecular biology, behavioral and neural sciences, environmental biology, and social and economic sciences. Research covers: inquiry into the mechanisms underlying the ways living organisms develop, grow, reproduce, maintain themselves, and age; studies in environmental biology, including the behavior of biological communities and ecological and physiological adaptations of populations to natural environments; attempts to understand the biological, environmental, and cultural factors that underlie the behavior of human beings and animals, with explicit emphasis on nervous system structure and function; and analysis of the underlying forms and processes affecting economies, organizations and societies, as well as the development of scientific data bases and the improvement of measurement methodology.

Geosciences.—This research advances knowledge of the properties and dynamics of the planet Earth. The program includes studies of geologic forces and their history; ocean dynamics and resources; the influence of the Arctic; and, the physics and chemistry of the atmosphere.

Scientific, technological, and international affairs.—This activity facilitates international scientific cooperation; provides policy-oriented data, information and analysis; and supports cross-disciplinary activities that strengthen the Nation's scientific and engineering research base. Programs cover small business innovation research; cooperative scientific activities between the U.S. and advanced and developing countries; policy research and analysis; science resources studies; and special research initiation and improvement activities.

Computer and information sciences and engineering.—Research is directed at "information processing" in the broadest sense of the term, ranging from fundamental theory to systems engineering. In addition, significant attention is devoted to advanced computer and communication facilities and services for the general U.S. scientific and engineering research community. Research activities include fundamental computing research, information systems applications, and microelectronics information processing systems. Service activities include access to national supercomputer centers and support for national research networking, and the research and development required to make them maximally productive.

Program development and management.—This activity provides for the operation, support, management, and direction of all NSF programs and activities and includes necessary funds to develop, manage, and coordinate these program activities.

Science and Technology Research Centers pursue opportunities in science and technology where the complexity of research problems or the resources needed to solve these problems require advantages of scale, duration, equipment and facilities that can only be provided by a campus-based research center. By involving students, research scientists and engineers from academia, industry and Federal laboratories, Centers will contribute to the rapid transfer of new knowledge and to the training of professionals with an awareness of potential applications of scientific discoveries. Approximately 10 to 15 centers will be fully funded for five years.

The special foreign currency program utilized U.S.-owned excess currencies in certain foreign countries to support cooperative scientific projects, seminars, and the travel of U.S. and foreign scientists involved in mutually beneficial efforts. Payments for this program were made in foreign currencies which the Department of the Treasury determines to be excess to the requirements of the United States. This program was terminated at the end of 1987.

The major science and engineering education activities of the Foundation are:

Research career development.—Promotes the future strength of the Nation's scientific endeavors by awarding graduate research fellowships to some of the most promising graduate students in science and engineering, and by supporting enrichment activities for talented high school students.

Materials development research and informal science education.—Promotes improvement in science and mathematics education for the Nation's schools through the development of instructional materials for students and teachers, through development of programs of informal science education using museums, the media and other out-of-school organizations, and through research to better understand the process of teaching and learning.

Teacher preparation and enhancement.—Focuses on upgrading the quality of faculty and the teaching of science and mathematics across the Nation. Supports projects for pre-professional programs, continuing education, and professional development of teachers, and the Presidential Awards for Excellence in Science and Mathematics teaching. Supports development of resource centers at institutions with significant minority enrollment and other model programs for women, minorities and the handicapped.

Studies and program assessment.—Supports studies and analyses to provide a systematic and current understanding of the condition of science and mathematics education in the United States.

Undergraduate science, engineering, and mathematics education.—Supports and coordinates all NSF undergraduate education efforts, including instrumentation; curriculum development; faculty revitalization; comprehensive regional center for minorities; and research experiences for undergraduate sites. These efforts strengthen the undergraduate experience at 2- and 4-year colleges and universities.

The National Transportation Safety Board, as an independent nonregulatory agency, is charged with promoting transportation safety through the investigation of accidents, the conduct of special studies, the development of recommendations to prevent accidents, the evaluation of the effectiveness of other Government agencies in preventing transportation accidents, and the review of appeals on actions taken against transportation certificates and licenses.

Policy and direction.—This activity provides Board-wide policy and program guidance, the determination of probable cause of transportation accidents, the issuance of safety recommendations, the approval of accident reports, the final review of appeals involving airman and seaman certificates and licenses, the implementation and direction of policies and programs, liaison with the Congress and other Government agencies, and legal and public affairs advice and services.

Accident investigation.—This activity provides for the management of accident investigations, the development of their probable cause, the development of recommendations, and the preparation of reports on aviation, railroad, highway, marine, pipeline, and hazardous materials accidents.

Technology.—This activity provides specialized advice and services for the Board's accident investigation, accident prevention, and safety promotion activities in the areas of human, vehicular, environmental, and operational factors. It develops recommendations, provides laboratory support, and conducts special investigations.

Safety programs.—This activity provides oversight of other transportation agencies through the conduct of evaluations of their safety programs. This activity also provides oversight of transportation systems through the conduct of safety studies. In addition, it manages the development and follow-up of the Board's safety recommendations and the Board's responses to Notices of Proposed Rulemaking. It provides statistical analysis of transportation accident and incident data, and it acts as program manager for some of the Board's safety objectives to insure action is taken on certain transportation safety problems not being addressed by Government or industry.

Administration.—This activity provides administrative support to assure accomplishment of Board programs through financial management, personnel management and training, procurement and facilities services, automated data processing services, equal employment opportunity, and other administrative support.

Administrative law judges.—These judges conduct hearings on appeal from the suspension, amendment, modification, revocation, or denial of any operating certificate or license issued by the Secretary of Transportation under the Federal Aviation Act of 1958.

The National Transportation Safety Board is mandated by Congress to investigate all catastrophic transportation accidents and, therefore, has no control over the frequency of costly accident investigations. The emergency fund provides a funding mechanism by which periodic accident investigation cost fluctuations can be met without delaying critical phases of the investigations.

Reactor safety and safeguards regulation.—Reactor safety and safeguards regulation encompasses all NRC licensing and inspection of civilian reactor facilities and designs as required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended. This includes the responsibility for evaluating the public health effects, safety, environmental, safeguards, and antitrust aspects of reactor facilities and for ensuring that reactor facilities are designed, constructed, operated, and decommissioned safely and are in compliance with agency regulations. Reactor safety and safeguards regulation is carried out through the following seven major programs: reactor licensing-application reviews and inspections; reactor operations reviews; human performance in reactor safety; reactor operations inspections; operating reactor license maintenance and regulatory improvements; reactor accident management; and reactor safeguards. During fiscal year 1989, these programs will continue to shift their emphasis from reviews of applications for nuclear power plant construction and operation to reviews of plant operations and maintenance of over 100 existing licensed commercial nuclear power plants with their principal focus on operational safety.

Nuclear safety research.—Work carried out in nuclear safety research has two major purposes. The first is to provide independent information and expertise needed to support the Commission's decision-making process. Such information must be independent in the sense that it is not derived solely from the information provided by licensees or license applicants and that it has received, or is capable of validation through scientific peer review by impartial experts. Research of this type is generally oriented toward the resolution of near-term safety issues that have been identified or those which can be readily anticipated. The second purpose of the research program is to identify and characterize technical questions which may become important safety issues in the future. Through this process, work can be initiated early to resolve these new problems and thereby reduce the risk to the public health and avoid unnecessary plant shutdowns in the future. Research of this type is generally longer range in nature, requiring effort over a period of five years or more. Nuclear safety research is carried out through the following five major programs: integrity of reactor components; preventing damage to reactor cores; reactor containment performance and public protection from radiation; confirming the safety of nuclear waste disposal; and resolving safety issues and developing regulations. Three principal areas that will be emphasized during fiscal year 1989 are plant aging, accident management, and severe accident risk reduction.

Nuclear material safety and safeguards regulation.—Nuclear material safety and safeguards regulation encompasses all NRC licensing and inspection of nuclear fuel-cycle facilities, users of nuclear materials, and the transport of nuclear materials. This includes the responsibility for evaluating the public health effects, safety, safeguards, and environmental aspects of a variety of licensees, ranging from very complex operations such as the manufacturing of reactor fuel and the production of medical radiopharmaceuticals, to relatively simple operations, such as the use of small quantities of radioisotopes in medical diagnostics.

It also includes the safeguards review for all NRC licensing activities involving the export of special nuclear material. Nuclear material safety and safeguards regulation is carried out through two major programs: nuclear material safety and nuclear material transportation and safeguards. The nuclear material safety program affects approximately 8,200 licensees across the United States. During fiscal year 1989, additional emphasis will be placed on improving licensee performance, particularly fuel-cycle facilities, radiographers, and medical licensees.

Nuclear waste regulation.—Nuclear waste regulation encompasses all NRC public health and safety licensing and inspection for the safe management and disposal of high-level and low-level radioactive wastes, and for uranium recovery activities and related remedial actions. In addition, it includes the establishment of an integrated agency program for the decontamination and decommissioning of nonreactor materials licensees. Nuclear waste regulation is carried out through two major programs: high-level waste and low-level waste. The major emphasis during fiscal year 1989 will continue to be focused on the implementation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, as amended in 1987; the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act of 1980, as amended in 1985; and the Uranium Mill Tailings Radiation Control Act of 1978.

Special and independent reviews, investigations, and enforcement.—Special and independent reviews, investigations, and enforcement encompasses the review, evaluation, and investigation of NRC's licensees and NRC's internal operations; the conduct of diagnostic evaluations of individual reactor plant safety; evaluation of both foreign and domestic operational events; ensuring licensee compliance with regulatory requirements through a comprehensive enforcement policy; and providing advice to the Commission on license applications and amendments. In addition, the NRC maintains an emergency operations center to receive calls of reportable events and determine appropriate regulatory response, and a technical training center to assure that NRC technical employees are well prepared to carry out their responsibilities. Special and independent reviews, investigations, and enforcement is carried out through the following seven major programs: special safety reviews; operational experience evaluation; independent safety reviews and advice; independent adjudicatory reviews; external investigations; internal investigations and audits; and enforcement.

Note.—Authority to borrow is available to the Panama Canal Commission on a permanent indefinite basis. This authority is limited only in that the amount of borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $100 million.

The Panama Canal Act of 1979 established the Panama Canal Commission to operate and maintain the interoceanic waterway. The Commission is self-sufficient in its operations and makes payments to the Republic of Panama as specified in the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977. Legislation was enacted (Public Law 100-203) in fiscal year 1988 which provided for a change in the financing of Commission programs from a special fund appropriation to a revolving fund. Effective January 1, 1988, all receipts will be credited to the revolving fund.

Budget program—Transit operations.—The services performed by this activity are (in thousands of dollars):

Payments to Panama include a public service payment, a fixed annuity of $10 million, and an annuity based on net tonnage of vessels transiting the canal. These payments are prescribed in paragraph 5 of article III and paragraphs 4(a) and 4(b) of article XIII of the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977.

In 1989, the Transit Reservation System, which is designed to partially finance the capital program, is projected to generate $8.0 million. Vessel traffic volume and other indices of workload are as follows:

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Ship transits (over 300 net Panama Canal tons)	12,313	12,365	12,365
Tolls (in thousands of dollars)	329,859	339,000	358,590

Capital obligations for 1989 include the following major projects: replacement of one tugboat, replacement of one dredge tender, replacement and addition of transit equipment, installation of a fire protection system at locks facilities, replacement of transformers containing PCB at locks facilities, and other improvements to transit facilities.

Supporting services.—The services performed by these support activities are (in thousands of dollars):

	1987 actual	1988 est.	1989 est.
Supporting services	37,293	34,196	35,957
Utilities	36,148	40,884	42,697

Less intra-agency recoveries	-24,402	-20,578	-21,660
Net operating expenses	62,570	65,716	68,551

Capital obligations for 1989 include several projects for electric power and communication systems improvements.

Administrative.—This category includes the overall direction and administrative expenses of the Commission; the costs of the employee health benefits program; the cost of health and education services provided to Commission employees and dependents at Department of Defense facilities; and certain employment costs of the Commission.

Interest expense.—Interest expense on the investment of the U.S. Government in the Canal is being paid into miscellaneous receipts of the U.S. Treasury.

Special retirement costs.—This provides for the Commission costs for amortizing the expense for the special retirement provision of the treaty implementation legislation.

Other general.—This includes other miscellaneous expenses not under limitation.

Reimbursement to general fund.—This provides for the transfer of the unreimbursed balance of the 1980 appropriation that came from the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury.

Financing.—Effective January 1, 1988, the Panama Canal Commission became a revolving fund agency pursuant to Public Law 100-203. As a result, the funds associated with the remaining portion of the first year's general fund appropriation ($85,583 thousand) and the accumulated interest receipts collected from October 1, 1980 to December 31, 1985 ($61,653 thousand) were transferred to the general fund of the U.S. Treasury. In addition, Public Law 100-203 provides that the Commission may borrow from the U.S. Treasury, with interest, not more than $100 million outstanding at any time. Although the latter authorization is available to the Commission in fiscal years 1988 and 1989, no backstopping of obligations or cash withdrawals are anticipated at the end of those periods. The Commission's budget for fiscal year 1989 reflects the requirement for a modest toll rate increase.

Legislation will be proposed that would virtually eliminate the Revenue Forgone Appropriation while continuing lower rates for most religious and charitable organizations. The postal overhead costs formerly covered by appropriations for these mailers would become a responsibility of other mail categories. The proposal would continue appropriations for free mail for the blind and overseas voters.

Herewith transmitted without change, as required by Public Law 93-328, is the appropriation request of the U.S. Postal Service for 1989 as submitted to the Office of Management and Budget.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including 9 Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Decisions on changes in domestic rates of postage and fees for postal services are recommended to the Governors of the Postal Service by the independent Postal Rate Commission after a hearing on the record under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Commission also recommends decisions on changes in the domestic mail classification schedule to the Governors. Decisions of the Governors on rates of postage, fees for postal services, and mail classification are final, subject to judicial review.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) mail and services revenue, (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources, (3) proceeds from borrowing, (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments, and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

Public Law 100-203 established a separate account in the U.S. Treasury, the "Postal Service Escrow Fund." The Postal Service is required to deposit $465 million in this Fund no later than October 31, 1988. These funds will not be available for expenditure during the existence of the Fund. The Fund will cease to exist on October 1, 1989, at which time the $465 million will be returned to the Postal Service Fund.

Section 2005 of title 39, United States Code, authorizes the Postal Service to borrow by issuing obligations which may not exceed $10 billion outstanding at any one time. In any one fiscal year, the net increase in amounts outstanding may not exceed $1.5 billion in obligations issued for the purpose of capital improvements and $500 million for the purpose of defraying operating expenses. As of September 30, 1989, it is expected that the total debt instruments issued and outstanding pursuant to this authority will amount to $7.222 billion.

Operating.—Estimated revenue will total $38.2 billion in 1989. This includes $38.0 billion from mail and services revenue, $295 million from investment income, and a net reconciliation and revenue forgone appropriation payment of $34 million.

Legislation will be proposed to make the Postal Service liable for future payments to postal annuitants for CSRS COLA increases each year beginning with the January 1989 COLA adjustment paid during fiscal year 1989. The initial payment, which would include the COLA payments for both fiscal year 1989 and fiscal year 1990, would be due on September 30, 1990. The Postal Service would be required to use the proceeds from the Postal Escrow Fund to make its initial payment. An annual payment would be required each year thereafter on September 30.

Herewith transmitted without change is the program and financing schedule of the U.S. Postal Service as submitted to the Office of Management and Budget.

This appropriation is a Federal subsidy to the rail industry pension for costs not financed by the railroad sector. The American taxpayer subsidy annually exceeds $1,000 per rail employee.

Subsidy for windfall payments.—When first authorized in 1974, the windfall subsidy appropriation was estimated at $250 million annually for 25 years, or a total subsidy of $6.25 billion. In two years, the annual windfall subsidy estimate increased by 45 percent and, within five years, the Railroad Retirement Board reported that the original 1974 estimate had doubled to $500 million and would continue to increase if there were any inflation after 1980.

The Carter administration, faced with increasingly large projected subsidy costs, sought to limit to $350 million annually the general taxpayers' liability to subsidize this rail industry pension, a position also reflected in the March revisions to the 1982 budget. Based on their collectively-bargained agreement and assuming a $350 million subsidy appropriation, rail labor and management successfully sought congressional restructuring of the rail industry windfall in Public Law 97-35. The rail sector sought to limit windfall payments to the appropriated subsidy amounts rather than rely on the rail industry funded retirement account. This extended the subsidy well beyond the year 2000.

FEDERAL PAYMENTS TO THE RAILROAD RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS

For payment to the accounts established in the Treasury for the payment of benefits under the Railroad Retirement Act for unnegotiated checks, $3,100,000, to remain available through September 30, [1989] 1990, which shall be the maximum amount available for payments pursuant to section 417 of Public Law 98-76.

Further, for the foregoing purposes for fiscal year 1990, $3,100,000, to remain available through September 30, 1991, which shall be the maximum amount available for payments pursuant to section 417 of Public Law 98-76. The Board administers a separate fund for unemployment and sickness insurance payments. Administrative expenses are financed from employer unemployment taxes.

Maintenance of rail earnings accounts.—Unemployment and sickness payments are based on individual records of rail earnings and daily wage rates.

Processing of rail unemployment insurance claims.—Claims for unemployment compensation are filed with employers and certified for payment through the headquarters office. Unemployment claims are projected to decline by 66 percent from 1983 to 1989, resulting in a proportionate reduction in workloads and staffing requirements. The budget proposes to increase unemployment and sickness insurance administrative resources above the levels justified by declining workloads to enhance the prevention and detection of waste, fraud, and abuse.

Rail claimant placement services.—The Board conducts an employment service for unemployment benefit claimants.

Administration.—The costs of administration are shared between this and the rail pension program on an allocated basis, which is periodically revised for actual experience.

Railroad retirees generally receive the equivalent to a social security benefit and a rail industry pension collectively bargained like other private pension plans but embedded in Federal law. About 276,000 individuals also receive a "windfall" benefit.

Income.—Railroad industry pension fund revenues are derived from pension contributions by railroad employers and employees; interest on investments; various temporary subsidies; and payments from the Federal old-age, survivors and disability insurance trust funds. The railroad retirement system has an annual financial interchange with social security. Under this arrangement, social security paid railroad retirement some $26 billion, with annual payments exceeding $2 billion. It was designed by the rail sector to help finance the rail industry pension, placing social security in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment had been directly covered by social security.

Retirement, disability, and survivor benefit payments.—Estimates reflect the increases in benefit rates provided by law.

Administrative expenses.—These expenses are subject to annual limitations in appropriation acts (see Limitation on Administration and Limitation on Review Activity).

Maintenance of rail earnings accounts.—Eligibility for retirement and the amount of rail benefits paid are based on individual rail earnings records.

Processing rail applications.—This activity includes processing annuity claims under the Railroad Retirement Act of 1974. Based on amendments enacted in Public Law 97-35, benefit computations were simplified. Coupled with the continued decline in railroad retirement applications and automation of previously manual procedures, the Board's workload devoted to this activity is expected to continually decrease each year. The table below shows the continued decline anticipated in major workloads.

Maintenance of rail beneficiary rolls.—The Board will explore and adopt new approaches to improve service to beneficiaries.

As shown below, the Board projects this workload will continue to decline, as the number of beneficiaries on the rolls continues to decline.

Total beneficiaries .....	928,383	913,000	895,000
---------------------------	---------	---------	---------

Medicare.—This activity includes on a reimbursable basis processing applications for the Social Security and Health Care Financing Administrations of the Department of Health and Human Services to establish eligibility for health and medical insurance benefits under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for rail beneficiaries.

Administration.—The cost of administration is shared between the rail pension, social security, and the railroad unemployment insurance programs.

In recognition of the continuing decline in virtually all its major workloads, the Board will explore and adopt new approaches to improve service to beneficiaries.

In addition to rail social security, rail industry pensions and special windfalls, the Railroad Retirement Board pays supplemental annuities to rail workers retiring at age 60 with 30 years of creditable rail service or at age 65 with 25-29 years of creditable service. Monthly benefit amounts are calculated from a base of $23, adding $4 for every year of service over 25, up to a maximum monthly benefit of $43. Employers finance benefits on a pay-as-you-go basis by a cents-per-hour tax, currently established at 26 cents per hour.

All railroad retirees receive the equivalent of a social security benefit, and they may also receive other add-ons including rail industry pension payments, windfall payments, and supplemental annuities. Social security benefits for former railroad employees are funded by the social security trust funds, and rail industry pension payments are the responsibility of the rail sector. The combination of both these payments in a single trust fund gave rise to serious concerns that social security payments to railroad retirees might be jeopardized by the continuing financial problems of the rail industry pension fund. To ensure and protect the integrity of social security benefits to railroad retirees, the Railroad Retirement Solvency Act of 1983 mandated that beginning in 1985, the financing and payment of Federal social security benefits be separated from the rail industry pension trust fund.

The primary purpose of the Commission is to protect the interests of the investing public.

Full disclosure.—To insure that investors will be provided with material facts concerning securities offered for public sale, issuers who propose to offer new securities for public sale are required to file registration statements with the Commission at its home or regional offices. Issuers conducting such offerings, as well as issuers having total assets and security-holder populations of specified sizes, are also required to furnish comparable information on a continuing basis in annual and other periodic reports. Filings containing proxy and tender offer materials must also contain adequate information for informed decision-making. Commission staff review these filings to insure full and fair disclosure and to prevent fraud and misrepresentation.

Electronic filing project (Edgar).—In 1984, the SEC began a pilot project that has successfully tested the feasibility of receiving, analyzing and disseminating full disclosure filings electronically. Through the end of 1987, the pilot has received approximately 24,000 filings electronically.

In late 1988, the SEC plans to select a contractor to develop an operational system. The operational system will provide the Commission with a capability for electronic receipt, analysis and dissemination of most of the full disclosure filings currently filed in paper. Transition from the pilot to the operational system will occur during 1989. The operational contract will be for eight years with an $18 million requirement in 1989.

Prevention and suppression of fraud.—Suspected fraud and manipulation in the purchase, sale, and trading of securities, illegal distributions of unregistered securities, and other unlawful conduct is prevented, minimized, or eliminated by investigating complaints, questionable trading activities, and other indications of possible violations of the Federal securities laws. In addition, remedies through civil, criminal and administrative legal actions are sought as appropriate.

To perform this regulation, the Commission oversees the work of self-regulatory organizations, monitors securities market and broker-dealer operations, and develops regulatory strategies for coping with market stress, promoting compliance, and meeting changing domestic and international conditions.

The program also seeks to reduce investor loss by examining registrations, analyzing filings, maintaining regular inspections of registered entities, and referring violations for enforcement. A further function of this program is to protect the public's interest in interstate public utili-

Economic and financial data are produced for these special studies and on an on-going basis for the overall Federal economic statistical program. The economics staff within this program provide the objective data and technical support needed to evaluate such complex issues.

In 1989, the Selective Service System will continue to register men as they reach age 18, conduct a non-registrant identification program to insure compliance with the law, and maintain a data base of registrant records. The System will continue to enhance its capability to respond rapidly and efficiently from its standby posture.

Mobilization readiness remains one of the System's major objectives. Activities in support of this objective include all facets of National and Regional operational planning, maintenance of automated registration information, a comprehensive training program for the Selective Service Reserve Forces, a training program for the standby board members, and administrative functions. The processing procedures of the Registrant Information Management System will continue to be tested and refined to insure that it can fully satisfy the emergency manpower needs of the Armed Forces.

Reserve and National Guard officers are trained for mobilization assignments in specific positions with the Selective Service System. Special focus of the program is on the exercise of the mobilization plans to ensure a high readiness capability in the event of mobilization.

In 1989, registration improvement activities will continue to concentrate on target cities in the geographical areas where the registration shortfalls are the greatest. Public awareness efforts, enhanced compliance, Federal and State legislation requiring registration for employment, and student financial assistance all contribute toward improved compliance with the law.

The Smithsonian Institution conducts research in the natural and physical sciences and in the history of cultures, technology, and the arts; acquires and preserves for reference and study purposes over one hundred million items of scientific, cultural, and historic importance; maintains public exhibits representative of the arts, American history, aeronautics and astronautics, technology, anthropology, geology, and biology (including living animal exhibits); presents performances of American arts and crafts; undertakes education programs at all levels; and participates in the exchange of scholarly information.

The Institution is responsible for the operation and maintenance of 12 major exhibition buildings; a zoological park and animal conservation and research center; the Museum Support Center and other collections storage and preservation facilities at Silver Hill, MD; two natural preserves, in Panama and on the Chesapeake Bay; an astrophysical observatory on Mount Hopkins, AZ; and supporting administrative, laboratory, and storage areas. The new facilities of the National Museum of African Art, the Arthur M. Sackler Gallery and the S. Dillon Ripley Center, located in the Quadrangle, opened to the public in September 1987. Visitor attendance to buildings on and off the Mall, including the National Zoological Park, is expected to total approximately 30 million in 1988. Millions more will view traveling exhibitions.

In 1989, emphasis will be placed on strengthening research capabilities; reinforcing the Institution's safety programs; improving the maintenance of the physical plant; and providing collections management support. Resources are included for program planning and development for the commemoration of the Columbus Quincentenary. Funding is also requested to provide for the basic facility caretaking responsibilities required as a result of the transfer of the General Post Office Building, located in the District of Columbia, to the Smithsonian (pursuant to Public Law 98-523).

Beginning in 1989, funding for major scientific instrumentation is included as no-year funding within this account for the reconfiguration of existing instrumentation and the fabrication of new instrumentation.

Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden.—The Museum conducts an active exhibition program that draws upon its collection, as well as other collections. The balance of the construction account, returned to the Institution by GSA, was used in 1987.

Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute.—Replacement laboratory facilities will be designed and constructed on Barro Colorado Island.

Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.—A base camp will be designed and constructed at the Fred L. Whipple Observatory, Mt. Hopkins, AZ.

Alterations and Modifications.—Space will be more effectively configured and improvements made in order to meet the research, exhibition, educational and conservation program objectives of Smithsonian organizations.

Facility Planning and Design.—Necessary renovations for the General Post Office Building, located in the District of Columbia, will be planned. Feasibility studies, planning and conceptual designs, establishment of operating and logistical support requirements, and required environmental impact assessments for future construction projects will also be provided.

The objectives of the Woodrow Wilson Center are to produce scholarship of the highest quality on subjects that matter to our civilization and to communicate that scholarship to a wider audience within and beyond Washington through publication and dialog.

The Center has chosen to fulfill these objectives through its fellowship and guest scholar program. Each year the Center conducts a major open international competition for a limited number of fellowships. The scholars and the scholarly work they produce constitute the memorial to Woodrow Wilson. Virtually all of the Center's expenditures derive from the basic decision to create a resident body of fellows.

The Center is directed by its congressional statute to raise both public and private funds, and the Center's major objectives could not be attained by an exclusive reliance on either Federal appropriation or private contribution.

Budget program—natural resources.—TVA concentrates its efforts on programs in navigation, flood control, dam safety, and maintenance of the waterway.

Water resources.—Includes operation and continuing development of the navigation channel from Paducah, KY, to Knoxville, TN.

For flood control, TVA operates a system of multi-purpose reservoirs to retain excessive seasonal runoff and regulate discharges at flow rates that can be accommodated by downstream channels and reservoirs. As a result, flood crests are reduced along the Tennessee River and its tributaries and also the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers.

Dam safety modifications and maintenance activities ensure that the waterway system meets Federal safety guidelines in the event of severe flood conditions and maintenance is performed to keep the system in good and safe operating condition.

Land and forest resources.—This program consists of operation of dewatering areas associated with TVA's reservoir system.

Resource management.—The program contains two major areas of effort: Protection of public lands and waters under TVA trust; and valley mapping and demonstrations of remote sensing in support of TVA activities as well as the regional mapping needs of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Land Between The Lakes.—Work will continue on the development on this 170,000-acre area in Western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky Reservoir and the Corps of Engineers' Barkley Reservoir.

Economic resources.—TVA will study State and local laws and policies to determine what economic incentives might be developed to interest additional industrial and commercial concerns to locate in Valley States.

Agricultural Institute.—TVA's agricultural programs are being targeted and packaged so that responsiveness and flexibility to current issues can be more easily accomplished. The primary functions of the institute will be to identify problems related to agricultural development and environmental quality, marshal skills and other resources from Federal, State, local and private organizations to demonstrate practical solutions to problems, and disseminate information and encourage adoption by others.

National fertilizer development.—The National Fertilizer Development Center in Muscle Shoals, AL, is active in two program areas: Research and development and technology development.

Research and development consists of basic chemical and agronomic research and development of fertilizer products and processes. This is accomplished in cooperation with the Department of Agriculture, the land-grant universities, and industry.

Technology development is conducted with the land-grant universities and the fertilizer industry. It includes small-plot demonstrations, tests and demonstrations of fertilizer materials and practices on selected operating farms.

Limited operation of the pilot test facility will continue research into improving the yield and economics of producing ethanol from the acid hydrolysis of hardwoods.

Power program: Power supply and use.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power to an area of 80,000 square miles in the seven Tennessee Valley States. Income from power operations, net of interest charges and depreciation, and other operating expenses is estimated at $563,300 thousand in 1989.

The power generating facilities presented in the capital investment table are financed from power proceeds and borrowings.

General services.—Operating costs for general service activities include bridge maintenance, fallout shelter maintenance, and reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1989 are to be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $75,973 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $47,935 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $5,372,800 thousand. In addition, the budget program anticipates financing from borrowings of $693,800 thousand backed by future revenues. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

Operating results and financial conditions.—Only the power program and fertilizer introduction are intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriation funding. Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 1989 are estimated at $89,100 thousand—$69,100 thousand as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20,000 thousand as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Outstanding borrowings for the power program are expected to increase by $693,800 thousand during 1989.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $1,331,731 thousand during 1989. A total of $1,354,700 thousand of the increase in assets is in the power program. This is offset by -$22,969 thousand in nonpower programs. The estimate of liabilities at September 30, 1989, is $860,792 thousand more than the estimate at September 30, 1988. Total Government equity at September 30, 1989, is estimated to be $470,939 thousand greater than that at September 1988. This change includes the requested appropriation for 1989 and the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury and the net expense of nonpower programs.

The United States Information Agency conducts the international communication, educational, cultural and exchange programs of the United States. The Agency advises the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of State on the above areas, and assists in the development and execution of a national policy on international communications.

Agency operations are largely financed from this appropriation and consist of the following major elements:

Overseas missions.—The Agency currently operates 205 posts in 127 countries. These posts administer the exchange-of-persons program and conduct informational and other cultural programs using materials prepared locally and by the media services in Washington.

Voice of America.—This activity produces radio broadcasts in English and in 43 languages. Programs are broadcast from transmitters at 4 domestic and 13 overseas locations.

Educational and cultural affairs.—This activity covers the staff that administers educational and cultural exchanges between the United States and over 140 countries. It also provides program and support costs for the President's International Youth Exchange program, American-sponsored schools abroad, binational centers, U.S.-operated libraries and reading rooms abroad and other educational and cultural activities. Grant costs for Academic and Visitor Exchanges, and the Humphrey Fellowship, Private Sector, and Congress-Bundestag exchange programs are funded separately in the Educational and Cultural Exchanges account.

Program coordination, production, and support.—This activity serves primarily to support overseas missions by coordinating program planning and by producing, acquiring, and adapting various program materials for their use.

Television and film service.—This Service acquires and produces programs for distribution overseas and for direct telecasts via satellite. This activity also includes the Agency's new television service, WORLDNET, which has opened a new era in worldwide communication.

Agency direction and management.—This activity encompasses managerial staffs and centralized servicing functions for the Agency as a whole.

The 1989 request for this account will provide funds to partially cover added operating costs, principally overseas employee wage scales and inflationary increases for rents, utilities, diesel fuel, and other overseas goods and services.

An appropriation, together with the balances available from prior years, was formerly used for payment of local program expenses in U.S.-owned foreign currencies in those countries where the Department of the Treasury had determined that the supply of such currencies was in excess to the normal requirements of the U.S. Government. Since 1986, new appropriations for these payments in excess of available balances were budgeted for in the Salaries and expenses account.

The Voice of America: Radio Marti Program was created by the Radio Broadcasting to Cuba Act (Public Law 98-111). The programs are normally transmitted via the Radio Marti transmitter facility at Marathon, Florida, but during the current modernization of this facility, the emergency back-up site at Saddlebunch, Florida, is being used.

The objectives of the Radio Marti Program are: (1) to support the right of the people of Cuba to seek, receive, and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers; (2) to be effective in furthering the open communication of information and ideas through use of radio broadcasting to Cuba; (3) to serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of accurate, objective, and comprehensive news; and (4) to function in accordance with all Voice of America standards, and to broadcast programs which present a variety of views.

Program operations.—These funds provide for program operations which include personnel compensation, research, transmission costs and other programming requirements. The Radio Marti Program began broadcasting on May 20, 1985, from studios in Washington, D.C. The program currently broadcasts 17.5 hours each day, seven days per week. When the current upgrading of the Marathon facility has been completed, we plan to broadcast 24 hours per day.

Acquisition and construction of facilities.—In 1988, funding is provided for construction of a four-tower antenna array at the transmitter site at Marathon, Florida.

The Center for Cultural and Technical Interchange between East and West is a national educational institution administered on behalf of the United States Information Agency by a public, nonprofit educational corporation under a grant from the Agency. The Center promotes better relations and understanding between the United States and the nations of Asia and the Pacific through cooperative programs of research, study, and training, which bring qualified persons from the countries of the area to work jointly on problems of mutual concern.

No increase is requested for 1989. Although mandatory cost increases will occur, the Center anticipates that they will be offset by additional revenues generated from outside sources.

The funds requested in 1989 will provide for 2,215 participant awards for an average of ten weeks each.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISION—UNITED STATES INFORMATION AGENCY

The United States Information Agency and the Voice of America shall pursue all relevant information relating to the availability of transmitters and antennas, spare parts, and other technical equipment to determine whether such items can be procured at reasonable prices and in a timely manner under all foreseeable circumstances. The agency and the Voice of America shall purchase American-manufactured equipment and materials to the fullest extent reasonably possible under the law in carrying out the facilities modernization program. This provision shall apply to all funds which are obligated for the facilities modernization program during fiscal year 1988. Where a foreign bidder receives any governmental subsidy, the price bid of each foreign bidder shall be increased by the amount of that subsidy as determined by the Department of Commerce for purposes of this procurement.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—RELATED AGENCIES

Funds appropriated to the United States Information Agency for radio construction and to the Board for International Broadcasting for facility modernization, including for both agencies balances available from prior years, may be transferred between the two agencies to meet priority broadcasting facility improvement needs as mutually agreed to by the Director of the United States Information Agency and the Chairman of the Board for International Broadcasting: Provided, That such transfers will be subject to the approval of the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the United States Senate pursuant to the reprogramming provisions of section 608 of this Act.

The United States Institute of Peace (USIP) was established by Congress to conduct and support research and scholarship in the fields of peace, arms control, and conflict resolution.

1988 program activity includes continuing grant and fellowship programs, a survey of the field of peace studies, the development of an educational television documentary and classroom material on U.S.-Soviet summitry, and sponsoring a national student essay contest. The funds requested in 1989 will permit USIP to continue its programs at levels consistent with its current program planning and administrative experience.

USRA was created as a temporary agency in 1973 to oversee the formation of Conrail, monitor its performance, and act as a conduit for Federal assistance. These activities have been completed and, pursuant to the Conrail Privatization Act, USRA was abolished on April 1, 1987. Conrail is currently a profitable corporation operating without government subsidy that has been returned to the private sector. Unobligated balances of this account will be withdrawn in 1988.

Two other USRA accounts, Payments for Purchase of Conrail Securities and Regional Rail Reorganization Program, have been transferred to the Department of Transportation and are shown under the Federal Railroad Administration.

II-1

TREATMENT OF SUPPLEMENTALS IN FISCAL YEAR 1988

The November 20, 1987 bipartisan budget agreement on deficit reduction between the President and the joint leadership of Congress specifies that for fiscal year 1988 neither the Congress nor the President shall initiate supplemental appropriations except in the case of dire emergency. Consequently, only the language proposals shown below, which would have no effect on fiscal year 1988 resource levels, are included in the budget.

The Administration anticipates transmitting to the Congress during fiscal year 1988 only three types of supplementals: (1) requests necessitated by true emergencies; (2) requests for essential mandatory programs where insufficient funds are available to provide for the program levels mandated by authorizing legislation; and (3) requests for transfers or reprogramming actions where the effect of such proposed action would be deficit neutral.

PROPOSED SUPPLEMENTALS

Department of Education OFFICE OF POSTSECONDARY EDUCATION

STUDENT FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

(Supplemental language now requested, existing legislation)

Notwithstanding section 411(g) of the Higher Education Act, as amended, if the funds appropriated for payments under this heading in the Department of Education Appropriations Act, 1988, when added to funds available from prior year appropriations, are insufficient to satisfy fully all grants as calculated under section 411(b), the Secretary shall determine the amount to be paid to each eligible student based on a formula in which all awards for the 1988-89 award year are reduced by a uniform amount established by the Secretary.

In the language under this heading in the Department of Education Appropriations Act, 1988, insert "D," after "parts C".

The appropriation for the Pell grant program for 1988 is insufficient to fund fully the 1988 appropriations act policy of a $2,200 maximum award. Insufficient funding requires the implementation of the statutorily mandated linear reduction, eliminating awards to some students and reducing awards to others. The first paragraph of proposed language would permit the Secretary of Education to implement a uniform dollar reduction in the Pell grant program, currently estimated at $31 per award, instead of linear reduction. The Secretary believes this method of reduction is a more equitable treatment of Pell grant recipients.

The second paragraph of proposed language would correct a technical error in 1988 appropriations language and allow orderly obligation and expenditure of funds made available for the income contingent loan program.

Department of Transportation MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

FEDERAL SHIP FINANCING FUND

During fiscal year 1988, no new commitments to guarantee loans shall be made.

The proposed language would prohibit new loan guarantee commitments from being made in fiscal year 1988.

EXPLANATION OF OTHER MATERIALS

This section includes the following material:

(a) A list of advance appropriations, as required by the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(a)(17)), including those resulting from multi-year appropriations requests, a list of appropriations with advance funding provisions, and a list of appropriations with forward funding provisions.

(b) A statement of amendments and revisions, if any,

to 1988 budget authority requests that were transmitted to the Congress after the 1988 Budget but prior to the transmittal of the 1989 Budget, as required by section 601 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(c) A statement of the amounts of appropriations requested for Offices of Inspectors General, as required by section 3 of the Federal Managers' Financial Integrity Act of 1982 (Public Law 97-255).

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS, ADVANCE FUNDING, AND FORWARD FUNDING FOR 1989

I. An advance appropriation is one made to become available one fiscal year or more beyond the fiscal year for which the appropriation act is passed. Advance appropriations in 1989 appropriations Acts will become available for programs in 1990 or beyond. Since these appropriations are not available until after 1989, the amounts will not be included in 1989 budget totals, but will be reflected in the budget totals for the fiscal year for which they are requested. In certain cases, these amounts represent the second or a subsequent year request for appropriations on a multi-year basis.

The Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(a)(17)) requires inclusion in the budget of "information on estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year following the fiscal year for which the budget is submitted for grants, contracts, and other payments under each program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for that following fiscal year when the appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation law for the fiscal year before the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation." In fulfillment of this requirement, the table below lists those accounts authorized to receive, in 1989, advance appropriations for 1990 and beyond and cites the authorizing statute. Also listed in Part A are accounts presented on a multi-year basis that have no specific legal authority. The listing is in two parts: Part A shows the amounts of advance appropriations included in the 1989 budget. Part B is a listing of accounts for which advance appropriations are authorized but not requested in the 1989 budget.

Department of Education. The following activities are authorized to receive advance appropriations (20 U.S.C. 1223 and 29 U.S.C. 703):<sup>2</sup>

Compensatory education for the disadvantaged.
 Impact aid.
 School improvement programs.

<sup>1</sup> Amounts identified for 1989 through 1991 may be adjusted based on reestimating at the time the budget is submitted for each year. However, the annual amount cannot exceed $1 billion pursuant to Public Law 99-603.

<sup>2</sup> These statutes erroneously refer to "advance funding". Since these statutes describe and clearly intend to provide advance appropriations, the affected accounts are listed here and not in section I.

II. Advance funding is budget authority that is to be charged to the appropriation in the succeeding year but which authorizes obligations to be incurred in the last quarter of the fiscal year if necessary to meet higher than anticipated benefit payments in excess of the specific amount appropriated for the year. When such budget authority is used, an adjustment is made to increase the budget authority for the fiscal year in which it is used and to reduce the budget authority of the succeeding fiscal year. Essentially, this is a device for avoiding supplemental requests late in the fiscal year for certain entitlement programs, should the appropriations for the current year prove to be too low. The table below lists those accounts for which advance funding authority is requested in the 1989 budget.

Department of Labor:

Special benefits.
 Black lung disability trust fund.

Veterans Administration:

Compensation.
 Pensions.
 Burial benefits and miscellaneous assistance.
 Readjustment benefits.
 Veterans insurance and indemnities.
 Loan guaranty revolving fund.

III. Forward funding is budget authority that is made available for obligation beginning in the last quarter of the fiscal year for the financing of ongoing grant programs of grantees during the next succeeding fiscal year. The budget authority for such programs is included in the budget totals for the year in which it is appropriated. This device is often used for education programs, so that grants can be made prior to the start of the school year. The language providing forward funding for education programs will specify that amounts appropriated will not be available until some time into the year of the appropriation (e.g., July 1, 1989) and in most cases will specify that such amounts will remain available until the end of the succeeding fiscal year. The table below lists those accounts for which forward funding exists or is requested in whole or in part in the 1989 budget.

Department of Education:

Compensatory education for the disadvantaged.
 School improvement programs.
 Education for the handicapped.
 Vocational and adult education.
 Indian education.

In the training and employment area, forward funding is provided in some accounts by providing appropriations for a program year that starts in the fiscal year of the appropriation and extends into the following fiscal year. Program years running from July 1 to June 30 are authorized for training programs under the Job Training Partnership Act, State Employment Service operations under section 6 of the Wagner-Peyser Act, and senior citizen employment programs under Title V of the Older Americans Act. The table below lists those accounts for which such forward funding is requested in the 1989 budget.

Department of Labor:

Training and employment services.
 Community service employment for older Americans.
 State Unemployment Insurance and Employment Service Operations.

STATEMENT OF AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR 1988

(Between the Transmittal of the 1988 and 1989 Budgets)

A statement of all amendments to or revisions in budget authority requested between transmittal of the 1988 budget and the 1989 budget is presented below. This statement is being included in the budget in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(d)).

The modifications to requests for 1988 budget authority that were made through the course of the past year took three forms. If the Congress had not yet acted on a pending request, the President sent amendments to the budget requests transmitted in January 1987. If appropriations had been enacted, the President proposed either supplemental budget authority or rescission of enacted appropriations.

Amendments and requests for supplemental appropriations are printed in the documents of the House of Representatives and the Senate that are identified in part A of the following listing. The President's proposals for rescissions are included in special messages to the Congress under the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344). Both the special messages and monthly cumulative reports on the items they cover are printed in the Federal Register.

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

This part contains descriptions of and data on the Government-sponsored enterprises listed below. These enterprises were established and chartered by the Federal Government. They are not included in the Federal budget because they are generally privately owned and financed. However, because of their relationship to the Government, detailed statements of financial operations and condition are presented, to the extent such information is available, on a basis that is as consistent as practicable with the basis for the budget data of Government agencies. These statements are not reviewed by the President; they are presented as submitted by the enterprises. The relationship of these enterprises to the Government is discussed further in the Budget volume (Part 6b, "Federal Credit") and in the Special Analyses volume (Special Analysis E, "Borrowing and Debt" and Special Analysis F, "Federal Credit Programs").

Several enterprises have been created so recently that data on their operations are not available, but descriptions of the enterprises are provided.

- The Student Loan Marketing Association assists in financing college student loans. It is sponsored by the Department of Education.
- The College Construction Loan Insurance Association is organized as a private, for-profit insurance corporation to guarantee and insure bonds and loans made for construction and renovation of college and university facilities.
- The Federal National Mortgage Association provides supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages. It is supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.
- The banks for cooperatives, Federal intermediate credit banks, and Federal land banks provide financial assistance to agriculture. They are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration.

- The Farm Credit Capital Corporation was created to provide assistance to and protection for the stock of borrowers of the institutions of the Farm Credit System. Its charter has been revoked.
- The Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation was created to carry out a program to provide capital to institutions of the Farm Credit System that are experiencing financial difficulty.
- The Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation was created to insure the timely payment of principal and interest on Farm Credit System Bank obligations.
- The Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation, a mortgage finance corporation, under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration Board, was created to provide a secondary mortgage market for agricultural real estate and certain rural housing loans.
- The Federal Home Loan Banks, which assist thrift institutions, and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, which provides a secondary market for mortgage lenders, are supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.
- The Financing Corporation was created to act as a financing vehicle for recapitalizing the Federal Savings and Loan Corporation.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System is not a Government-sponsored enterprise, but its transactions also are not included in the budget because of its unique status in the conduct of monetary policy. The Board provides data on its administrative budget on a calendar year basis, which is included here for information. Its budget schedules and statements are not subject to review by the President.

The Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae), a shareholder-owned corporation, was created by the Education Amendments of 1972 to expand funds available for student loans by providing liquidity to lenders engaged in the guaranteed student loan program (GSLP).

Sallie Mae provides liquidity through direct purchase of insured student loans from eligible lenders and through warehousing advances, which are loans to lenders secured by insured student loans, Government or agency securities, or other acceptable collateral. In capital shortage areas, Sallie Mae is authorized, at the request of appropriate State and Federal officials, to make insured loans directly to students and to advance funds to States that will provide loans to students. Sallie Mae is also authorized to provide a secondary market for noninsured loans; to serve as a guarantee agency in support of loan availability at the request of the Secretary of Education; to purchase and underwrite student loan revenue bonds; to provide certain additional services as determined by its board of directors to be supportive of the credit needs of students generally; and to provide financing for academic facilities and equipment.

Sallie Mae is authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976 to provide a secondary market for federally insured loans to graduate health professions students.

Operations.—The forecast data with respect to operations are based on certain general economic and specific GSLP loan volume assumptions and should not be relied upon as an official forecast of the corporation's future business.

Financing.—Between 1974 and early 1982, Sallie Mae borrowed through the Federal Financing Bank. The Secretary of Education was authorized by the Education Amendments of 1980 to guarantee principal and interest on such obligations issued prior to October 1, 1985. Under an agreement with the Department of the Treasury reached in early 1981, Sallie Mae began borrowing directly in the private capital markets. Its last borrowing through the FFB and its last issuance of federally guaranteed obligations occurred in January 1982. Its obligations today have certain characteristics, provided by charter, which give them "agency" status, but they are not federally insured or guaranteed.

Management.—At its annual meeting in May 1987, the shareholders of Sallie Mae elected a board of directors to serve until May 1988. The shareholders of Sallie Mae are entitled to elect 14 members to the board. Pursuant to the Education Amendments of 1972, seven public directors are appointed by the President, who also names the chairman from among the 21 members.

COLLEGE CONSTRUCTION LOAN INSURANCE ASSOCIATION

The College Construction Loan Insurance Association (Connie Lee) was authorized by Public Law 99-498 on October 17, 1986. It was organized as a private, for-profit insurance corporation to guarantee and insure bonds and loans made for construction and renovation of college and university facilities. The Association was incorporated in February 1987. It is not yet operational and statements of its finances and activities are not available.

Connie Lee's authorizing statute states that "no obligation which is insured, guaranteed, or otherwise backed by the corporation, shall be deemed to be an obligation which is guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the United States."

In order to provide the initial capitalization, the Secretary of Education, the Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae), and other investors are authorized to purchase stock in the corporation. Sallie Mae purchased $2 million in Connie Lee stock in fiscal year 1987. The Secretary of Education has purchased $19 million in stock with funds appropriated for this purpose in fiscal year 1988.

Initially, the Board of Directors will be composed of 11 members, of whom four are appointed by the Federal government, three by Sallie Mae, and the rest by voting stockholders. Under the law, the Secretary of Education is authorized to sell this stock after five years from the date of Connie Lee's incorporation, and must give Sallie Mae the right of first refusal to purchase the stock before offering it to other persons. If Sallie Mae acquires sufficient stock from the Secretary to own more than 50 percent of the corporation's voting common stock, all eleven members of the Connie Lee Board would be elected by the voting stockholders.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) is a Government-sponsored private corporation. Its purpose is to provide supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages by supplying a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments, thereby improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing.

Fannie Mae purchases mortgages at market prices pursuant to commitments issued to sellers through a variety of programs. It finances these purchases through the issuance of debt securities. Fannie Mae's debt instruments are characterized as "Agency Issues" in the securities market, but not in the Federal Government's budget.

The common stock of the Corporation is owned by the public, is fully transferable and is listed on major stock exchanges.

The forecast data contained in this material has been developed based on certain general economic assumptions prevalent in November 1987 and should not be construed as an official forecast of the Corporation's position.

The Corporation has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated obligations. It may, in addition, borrow amounts not in excess of the sum of its defined capital and subordinated obligations outstanding multiplied by a factor established by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. This factor is currently set at 25 and is scheduled to decline to 20 by December 31, 1988. These borrowings usually take the form of debentures and short-term discount notes. Finally, Fannie Mae may issue bonds secured by mortgages. Such bonds may be guaranteed by the Government National Mortgage Association. There is no statutory limitation on the amount of such bonds that may be outstanding.

According to accounting practices for private corporations, the mortgages in the pools of loans supporting the mortgage-backed securities are considered to be owned by the holders of these securities. Consequently, on the books of the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae), these mortgages are not considered assets and the securities outstanding are not considered liabilities. However, the concepts of the budget of the U.S. Government consider these mortgages and mortgage-backed securities to be assets and liabilities, respectively, of Fannie Mae. For the purposes of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the schedule of Status of direct loans for mortgage-backed securities, the items labeled "New loans" and "Recoveries: Repayments and prepayments" are budgetary terms. However, from the Corporation's perspective, these items are "Amounts issued" and "Amounts passed through to the holders of securities", respectively.

The forecast data contained in this material has been developed based on certain general economic assumptions prevalent in November 1987 and should not be construed as an official forecast of the Corporation's position.

Administration-proposed legislation.—The Administration believes that because of Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's government-sponsored status, their securities enjoy an interest rate advantage in the credit markets. This gives Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac significant competitive advantages relative to private mortgage conduits. In 1982, the President's Housing Commission concluded that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac impeded the growth of fully private mortgage conduits and recommended that the Administration seek to fully privatize them. The same conclusion was reached by the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control (Grace Commission) in 1983 and the President's Commission on Privatization in 1987. The Administration supports the full privatization of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac (beyond their private ownership), and is studying transitional steps needed to convert Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to completely private status. Full Privatization of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac would eliminate the major hurdle private mortgage conduits face in playing a significant role in the nation's housing credit markets. However, while Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac continue to enjoy their Government-sponsored enterprise status, private mortgage conduits will continue to have difficulty competing with them. The Administration is proposing legislation to mitigate the effects of this unfair competition.

The 13 banks for cooperatives are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They finance the operations of farmers' cooperatives. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from sales of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds issued by the banks are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The banks for cooperatives presently operate under authorities contained in title III of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-180, as amended.

The 12 Federal intermediate credit banks are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to local financing institutions such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They also provide the production credit associations with necessary supervision and services.

The banks' lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks became mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All of the capital stock of the Federal intermediate credit banks, from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968.

The Federal intermediate credit banks presently operate under authorities contained in title II of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

The Federal land banks, through the 382 Federal land bank associations, which are located at the local level, make long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers. These banks and associations are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. The funds to finance these loans are obtained primarily from the sale of the banks' bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. These bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the land banks' share of the costs of the Farm Credit Administration.

The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the banks was repaid in 1947.

The Federal land banks presently operate under authorities contained in title I of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-181, as amended.

Note.—The Agriculture Credit Act of 1987 (Public Law 100-233) created three corporations to assist farm credit and revoked the charter of the Farm Credit System Capital Corporation. Descriptions of the purposes and operations of the corporations follow. Because the Act was not enacted until January 6, 1988, detailed estimates of the corporations' financial transactions were not available for inclusion in this Budget.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM ASSISTANCE BOARD

The Assistance Board was created by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (P.L. 100-233) and was Federally chartered in January 1988. Its members consist of the Secretaries of Treasury and Agriculture, and one other member appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. The purposes of the Assistance Board are to authorize financial assistance to system banks, protect the stock of borrowers, and permit system banks to offer credit at competitive terms. If authorized, a system bank would issue preferred stock which would be purchased by the Farm Credit System Assistance Corporation, a new FCS institution also created by the 1987 Farm Credit Act.

The Assistance Board is also empowered to prescribe business operating plans and issue regulations to banks for whom assistance is authorized. The Board is not subject to regulation by the Farm Credit Administration. Its authority will end December 31, 1992. Administrative costs of the Board will be paid by the Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE CORPORATION

This new institution of the Farm Credit System was created to serve as the conduit for financial assistance to troubled system institutions. It has the authority to issue 15-year, uncollateralized obligations which are fully guaranteed by the U.S. Treasury. The Treasury will also reimburse the Assistance Corporation for 100 percent of the interest cost on these obligations in the first five years after the law's enactment, and for 50 percent of the interest cost in the second five years. A maximum of $2.8 billion in Assistance Corporation debt can be issued between now and January 1, 1989; thereafter an additional $1.2 billion can be issued if necessary. Proceeds of Assistance Corporation debt issuance will flow into a Farm Credit Assistance Fund, to be used to purchase non-voting preferred stock in troubled system institutions that have been certified to issue such stock by the Farm Credit System Assistance Board. Funds obtained from the issuance of preferred stock can be used to cure existing impairments of the institutions' stock, and for other purposes authorized by the Assistance Board. The Assistance Board is authorized to use the funds of the revolving fund established in section 4.0 of the Farm Credit Act of 1971 to provide assistance to institutions, and for other purposes, on an interim basis until the Assistance Corporation begins issuing obligations. Any funds so used will be returned to the revolving fund.

The Board of Directors for the Farm Credit System Funding Corporation will serve as the board for the Assistance Corporation. The Funding Corporation is an existing system institution which coordinates the issuance of system debt obligations through their office in New York City.

A one-time assessment on healthy system banks will establish an Assistance Corporation trust fund, to help ensure the retirement of Assistance Corporation debt. The authority for the Assistance Corporation will terminate when all its debt has been retired.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation was established to ensure the timely payment of principal and interest on Farm Credit System obligations. Its Board of Directors will be the Farm Credit Administration board. The Insurance Corporation will begin operation in January 1989, at which time amounts currently in the on-budget Farm Credit Administration revolving fund will be transferred to it. Beginning in January 1990 the Insurance Corporation will collect insurance premiums charged to insured System banks, which amounts will be based on the risk of each bank's loan portfolio. Annual premium collections will continue until the reserve fund equals 2 percent of outstanding System obligations, or an amount determined to be sufficient based on System loan risk.

Beginning in January 1993 the Insurance Corporation fund will become available for payment on System obligations if an insured system bank defaults on its primary liability. Also at that time the Insurance Corporation can exercise its authority to make loans, purchase System bank assets or securities, and otherwise act to reduce the exposure of the Corporation to losses.

FEDERAL AGRICULTURAL MORTGAGE CORPORATION

This new Farm Credit System institution was established to create a secondary market for agricultural real estate and certain rural housing loans. It will operate somewhat differently from other Government-sponsored secondary market institutions, such as the Federal National Mortgage Corporation. A new kind of private organization (a pooler) will purchase agricultural and rural real estate loans from originating banks, including Farm Credit System banks, package them for sale to private investors, and obtain guarantee of timely principal and interest payments on its securities by FAMC, and sell these securities to investors. This will supply a degree of liquidity to private farm lending institutions.

The Mortgage Corporation will have a 15 member Board of Directors, consisting of five from FCS banks, 5 from private banks or insurance companies, and 5 appointed by the President. There is a $1.5 billion line-of-credit with the U.S. Treasury, available subject to appropriation, to cover loan losses which exceed the pooler's and Corporation's reserves. The Corporation will be capitalized by mandatory stock purchases by originators who sell loans to the Corporation.

Any Farm Credit System institution, or commercial banks, thrifts, or insurance companies, or group of the preceding may serve as a pooler, issuing securities which would carry the Corporation's guarantee.

Minimum standards for pooled loans include a $2.5 million limit for an individual loan included in a pool, and a loan-to-collateral value ratio of no more than 80 percent. Securities guaranteed by the Corporation may be subject to regulation by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

THE FARM CREDIT SYSTEM CAPITAL CORPORATION

The Capital Corporation was created as an institution of the Farm Credit System in the 1985 Farm Credit Act (Public Law 99-205) to use the available surplus capital and reserves from healthy System institutions to purchase non-performing loans from troubled System institutions. Litigation brought by healthy banks prevented the receipt of most assessed bank contributions. Authorized Federal assistance, in the form of Capital Corporation obligations purchased by the Secretary of Treasury, required certification by Congress that the Farm Credit System banks had committed available surplus and reserves. No Treasury purchases occurred.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 revoked the charter of the Capital Corporation, and transferred its assets and liabilities to the Farm Credit Assistance Board. The Board, is a Federally chartered entity which will oversee the operations of the Financial Assistance Corporation, the successor conduit for assistance to the Farm Credit System. The Board will retire at book value the debt and equity obligations issued by the Capital Corporation to any System institution. Any remaining surplus will be distributed pro rata by the Board to System institution contributors.

The 12 Federal Home Loan Banks are chartered and supervised by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. The banks are financial institutions whose main function is to supply their members—principally savings and loan-type institutions and savings banks—with credit to smooth their operations and enhance their service to the public as savings media and home-mortgage lenders. Each bank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the banks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. In 1987, the banks extended credits of $197.1 billion and received repayments of $176.3 billion. Advances outstanding on September 30, 1987, totaled $120.9 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations of the banks to the public. On September 30, 1987, $105.1 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include a portion of members' deposits as determined by Board policy (total deposits were at $18.7 billion on September 30, 1987) and funds paid for the purchase of capital stock by member institutions, amounting to $10.8 billion at the end of 1987. Funds not immediately used for advances to members are invested until such times as needed.

The capital stock of the Federal Home Loan Banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951.

The entire operating expenses of the banks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to cover a portion of the Board's administrative and other costs.

FINANCING CORPORATION

The Financing Corporation (FICO) is a mixed-ownership government corporation, chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board pursuant to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Recapitalization Act of 1987. FICO's sole purpose is to function as a financing vehicle for recapitalizing the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC). Pursuant to the Act, FICO is authorized to issue debentures, bonds and other obligations subject to limitations contained in the Act, the net proceeds of which are to be used solely to purchase redeemable capital stock and nonredeemable capital certificates issued by FSLIC, or to refund any previously issued obligations.

The Act provides formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks make capital contributions to FICO from time to time at the direction of the Bank Board for the purchase of FICO capital stock. FICO uses the proceeds received from the sales of such capital stock to purchase zero-coupon bonds for deposit in a segregated account as required by the Act. The zero-coupon bonds held in the segregated account will be the primary source of repayment of the principal of the obligations. Securities in the segregated account are segregated from other FICO accounts and funds but are not specifically pledged as collateral for the payment of obligations. The primary source of payment of interest on the obligations will be the receipt by FICO of assessments imposed by FICO on and collected from federal

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac) was created under the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970. Congress chartered Freddie Mac to provide mortgage lenders with an organized national secondary market in which to sell conventional mortgages and to obtain additional funds to meet new demands for mortgages. Freddie Mac serves as a conduit to facilitate the flow of investment dollars from capital market investors to mortgage lenders, and ultimately to homebuyers in the form of more affordable mortgage credit.

Freddie Mac is a publicly-chartered corporation whose preferred stock is owned by savings institutions across the Nation. Freddie Mac is managed by a Board of Directors, which also serves as the Board of Directors of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, that are appointed by the President with the consent of the Senate. All of Freddie Mac's expenses are paid from its own income.

The mortgage loans which Freddie Mac purchases from individual mortgage lenders are grouped into pools and sold in the form of mortgage pass-through securities, called Mortgage Participation Certificates (PCs). A PC represents an undivided ownership interest in a pool of residential mortgage loans as purchased by Freddie Mac. The timely payment of interest and ultimate return of principal on the mortgages underlying the PCs is guaranteed solely by Freddie Mac. This guarantee is backed by the financial resources of Freddie Mac cover default losses on individual mortgages and not by the Federal Home Loan Bank System or the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government.

Freddie Mac offers lenders the opportunity to either sell their mortgages for cash or "swap" them for PCs. "Swap" PCs enable lenders to restructure their portfolios by offering these PCs directly to investors, by using them as collateral for borrowings or by retaining them for sale later. This provides lenders with greater liquidity when the need for more mortgage credit arises.

Since its inception, Freddie Mac has been recognized as a pathfinder for the mortgage finance industry, and has committed its resources to identifying the needs of the industry and developing quality mortgage programs to meet those needs. Both the conventional mortgage PC and the Collateralized Mortgage Obligation (CMO), introduced by Freddie Mac in 1983, demonstrate Freddie Mac's commitment early on to pioneering improvements in the mortgage finance industry. The CMO is a bond-like security with several maturity classes secured by a pool of mortgages. The CMO has been the prototype for other types of securities in the marketplace that are currently used to provide lenders with a variety of restructuring tools and has also attracted new investors and capital to mortgage finance.

In 1986, Freddie Mac responded to the growing demand for Adjustable Rate Mortgages (ARMs) by introducing the first standardized mortgage pass-through security backed by ARMs. By year-end, total sales of the new security reached $1.6 billion. To further support the expanding ARMs market, Freddie Mac introduced the first swap program for ARMs in 1987. The ARM security, along with Freddie Mac's ARMs purchase programs, provide lenders with greater flexibility in originating and selling ARMs into the secondary market.

When the 15-year single family mortgage became increasingly more popular with borrowers, Freddie Mac pioneered the first conventional mortgage pass-through security backed by these mortgages to ensure their continued affordability.

In 1983, Freddie Mac responded to the growing demand for multifamily mortgage funds by introducing new multifamily purchase programs that have brought over $8 billion to the multifamily market. Freddie Mac's multifamily purchase programs represent the corporation's on-going commitment to providing and maintaining housing for moderate income households.

The forecast data contained in this material represent estimates and should not be construed as an official forecast of the corporation's future position. The data have been developed on the basis of certain economic assumptions that are reviewed and revised periodically. Consequently, the estimates are subject to forecast error and will normally differ from actual data when these become available.

According to accounting practices for private corporations, the mortgages in the pools of loans supporting PCs are considered to be owned by the holders of these securities. Consequently, on the books of Freddie Mac, these mortgages are not shown as assets. However, the budget accounting of the United States Government includes these mortgages and mortgage pass-through securities as assets and liabilities, respectively, of Freddie Mac. For the purpose of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the Status of Direct Loans schedule for mortgage pass-through securities, the items labeled "Disbursements" and "Repayments" are budgetary terms. However, from Freddie Mac's perspective, these amounts represent "Sales of PCs" and "Amounts passed through to PC holders," respectively.

Administration-proposed legislation.—The Administration believes that because of Fannie Mae's and Freddie Mac's government-sponsored status, their securities enjoy an interest rate advantage in the credit markets. This gives Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac significant competitive advantages relative to private mortgage conduits. In 1982, the President's Housing Commission concluded that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac impeded the growth of fully private mortgage conduits and recommended that the Administration seek to fully privatize them. The same conclusion was reached by the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control (Grace Commission) in 1983 and the President's Commission on Privatization in 1987. The Administration supports the full privatization of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac (beyond their private ownership), and is studying transitional steps needed to convert Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to completely private status. Full Privatization of Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac would eliminate the major hurdle private mortgage conduits face in playing a significant role in the nation's housing credit markets. However, while Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac continue to enjoy their Government-sponsored enterprise status, private mortgage conduits will continue to have difficulty competing with them. The Administration is proposing legislation to mitigate the effects of the unfair competition.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the Act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The information presented pertains to Board operations only. This information has been prepared in accordance with OMB guidelines; accordingly it may differ from other financial material published by the Board of Governors. Expenditures made on behalf of the Federal Reserve banks for production, issuance, retirement, and shipment of Federal Reserve notes are not included, since they are reimbursed in full by the Federal Reserve banks.
