Cooperative Agricultural Extension Work—

For the purpose of paying the expenses of cooperative agricultural extension work and the necessary printing and distributing of information in connection with same, the Act of May 8, 1914 (7 U. S. C. 341–348), permanently appropriated $480,000 for each year, $10,000 of which is paid annually to each State which has by action of its legislature assented to the provisions of the Act. It also appropriated an additional sum of $600,000 for the fiscal year following that in which the foregoing appropriation first became available, and for each year thereafter for seven a sum exceeding by $500,000 the sum appropriated for each preceding year, and for each year thereafter there is permanently appropriated the sum of $4,100,000 in addition to the sum of $480,000. The additional sums are allotted annually to each State by the Secretary and paid in the proportion which the rural population of each State bears to the rural population of all the States as determined by the next preceding Federal census, but no payment out of the additional appropriations can be made in any year to any State until an equal sum has been appropriated for that year by the legislature of such State, or provided by State, county, college, local authority, or individual contributions from within the State, for the maintenance of cooperative agricultural extension work. On May 16, 1928 (7 U. S. C. 386–386b), this appropriation was amended to include a permanent allotment to the Territory of Hawaii of $10,000 plus an additional sum of $12,935.43, subject to the same terms and conditions as the original act. The permanent annual appropriation was thereby increased to $4,602,935.43. Under the 1930 census the amount of money available to Hawaii increased by $3,160, thereby automatically raising the total amount available under the original Smith-Lever Act by this amount. Under the 1940 census the amount of money available to Hawaii decreased by $4,701, thereby automatically decreasing the total amount available under the original Smith-Lever Act by this amount. The Act of March 4, 1931 (7 U. S. C. 386d–386f) provides that the Smith-Lever Act and Acts supplementary thereto be increased without diminishing the amount now received by any State or other Territory, to carry out the provisions of this Act in the Territory of Puerto Rico, and specifies that the appropriation for 1933 and subsequent years shall be $50,000, this amount to be increased by $10,000 annually, or such part thereof as may be necessary, until the total to which Puerto Rico is entitled under the provisions of this Act is reached. The maximum for Puerto Rico under the 1930 census ($95,069) was reached during the fiscal year 1938. Under the 1940 census the amount of money available to Puerto Rico increased by $8,246, thereby automatically increasing the total amount available under the original Smith-Lever Act by this amount. The changes occasioned by the 1940 census result in bringing the total permanent annual appropriation to $4,704,710 (7 U. S. C. 341–348).

Estimate 1946, $4,704,710 Appropriated 1945, $4,704,710

When any forest reserve is in more than one State or Territory, or county, the distributive share to each from the proceeds of the reserve is proportional to its area therein (16 U. S. C. 500).

At the close of each fiscal year there is paid by the Secretary of the Treasury to each of these two States, as income for its common-school fund, an amount equivalent to such proportion of the gross proceeds of all the national forests within the State as the area of lands granted to the State for school purposes within these forest reserves may bear to the total area of all national forests within these States ([36 Stat. 561] Act of June 20, 1910, Public Law 219).

Estimate 1946, $38,476 Appropriated 1945, $26,888

Roads and Trails for States, National Forests Fund—

An additional 10 percent of all moneys received from the national forests during each fiscal year is available at the end thereof, to be expended by the Secretary for the construction and maintenance of roads and trails within the national forests in the States from which such proceeds are derived (16 U. S. C. 501).

Twenty-five percent of the net revenues received each calendar year from the use of lands held by the Secretary under title III of the Farm Tenant Act, approved July 22, 1937 (7 U. S. When any project is located in more than one county, the distributive share to each from the proceeds of the land is proportional to its area therein.

FEDERAL SURPLUS COMMODITIES CORPORATION

NOTE.—This Corporation was organized under the laws of Delaware as a nonprofit, nonstock, membership corporation and has been continued as an agency of the United States, under the direction of the Secretary, until June 30, 1945 (Public Law 634, 77th Cong.) for the purpose of facilitating Federal programs for the disposition of surplus commodities. It is financed by loans from Federal agencies for self-liquidating surplus removal projects. The functions of this Corporation which were carried out with funds transferred to it pursuant to sec. 32 of the act approved Aug. 24, 1935 (7 U. S. The President by Executive Order 9069, issued Feb. 23, 1942, made effective the consolidation of the Surplus Marketing Administration, the Agricultural Marketing Service, the Commodity Exchange Administration, together with the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation as an agency of the Department, into the Agricultural Marketing Administration. Pursuant to Executive Order 9280, dated Dec. 5, 1942, the Agricultural Marketing Administration was consolidated into and made a part of the Food Distribution Administration. On Jan. 21, 1944, the War Food Administrator redesignated the Food Distribution Administration as the Office of Distribution.

In making any grant payments under this Act, the Secretary is authorized to require with respect to such payments the performance of work on useful public projects, Federal and non-Federal, including work on private or public land in furtherance of the conservation of natural resources, and the provisions of the Act of February 15, 1934 (5 U. [1] Overtime pay covers all overtime pay and additional compensation authorized by acts expiring June 30, 1945.

[2] In 1945 the amount included in the Budget approved by Congress amounted to $11,500,000 of which $1,115,000 represented overtime. In addition, expenses of subsidiaries not included in the Budget amounted to $22,679,755, of which $2,368,307 represented overtime. In 1946 the administrative expenses of all subsidiaries have been included for congressional approval. The amount shown in the 1945 column is on a comparable basis with that shown in the 1946 column.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

Pursuant to broad statutory authorities, the bureaus of the Department of Commerce are engaged in furnishing a variety of technical and fact-finding services to the public and to other agencies of Government. These activities entail continuous series of scientific and economic research projects. Regulatory functions of the department are limited to those necessary for Federal control of civil aviation and administration of the patent laws. Extensive lending, procurement, and developmental activities are carried on by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiary and affiliated organizations.

The department comprises the following bureaus and offices, discussed separately hereafter in the same order: Office of the Secretary, Loan Agencies, Bureau of the Census, Office of Administrator of Civil Aeronautics, Civil Aeronautics Board, Coast and Geodetic Survey, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Patent Office, National Bureau of Standards, and Weather Bureau.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Appropriations for the Office of the Secretary cover the costs of over-all administration of the Department; essential services for the various bureaus and offices, including personnel supervision and management, budgetary and accounting coordination, procurement of standard supplies and equipment, and duplicating services; and expenses of the service staff of the National Inventors Council.

Proposed expansion of activities for the fiscal year 1946, particularly in the Bureau of the Census and the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, will result in the increased collection of economic and social data which must be printed for maximum usefulness. The recommended increase of $285,000 for "Printing and binding" is primarily for that purpose.

LOAN AGENCIES (COMMERCE)

The Secretary of Commerce supervises the administration and coordinates the functions and activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiaries, and these supervisory expenses are provided for by an authorized assessment against the Corporations' funds under the appropriation title "Loan agencies (Commerce)." In 1946 these expenses are estimated at $91,000, which is $29,000 less than the amount provided in the 1945 Budget and is due to the elimination of overtime compensation and a reduction in the activities. The activities financed under this appropriation item are comparable to those performed prior to 1942 by the Federal Loan Agency but are considerably reduced by reason of the transfer of certain agencies to the National Housing Agency and the Foreign Economic Administration.

The 1946 estimates for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation provide for the administrative expenses of the parent corporation and its subsidiary and affiliated corporations. The parent corporation, which was established in 1932, is engaged in making loans to industry, commerce, banking, etc., as well as providing funds for financing its various subsidiary and affiliated corporations. The subsidiaries include the so-called war corporations, namely: The Defense Plant Corporation, which is engaged in the construction and equipping of plants for the production of war materials; the Defense Supplies Corporation and the Metals Reserve Company which are engaged in the acquisition and stockpiling and selling of strategic and critical metals, minerals, and materials; the Rubber Reserve Company which supervises the manufacture of and markets synthetic rubber and purchases crude rubber imported by the Foreign Economic Administration through the Rubber Development Corporation; and the War Damage Corporation which provides insurance protection against loss or damage resulting from enemy attack. In addition to these corporations there are The RFC Mortgage Company and the Federal National Mortgage Association, which are engaged in the purchasing of Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages; The RFC Mortgage Company also extends mortgage credit directly on income producing properties. Affiliated with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is the Disaster Loan Corporation which, under certain prescribed conditions, provides loans made necessary by floods or other catastrophes. For all practical purposes, a Reconstruction Finance Corporation subsidiary or affiliate is merely a segregation of certain activities since all personnel are regular Reconstruction Finance Corporation employees who are assigned to a particular corporation, either on a full- or part-time basis, depending on the type of work performed.

While the Federal Budget in the past has included provision for the administrative expenses of the parent corporation and The RFC Mortgage Company, the administrative expenses of the other Reconstruction Finance Corporation subsidiary and affiliated corporations were not included. As a result, 66 percent of the Corporation expenses were not included in the Federal Budget. The chief reason therefore for the large increase in the 1946 estimates over the 1945 appropriation is due to the inclusion of the administrative expenses of the corporations heretofore not submitted to the Congress. These estimates, however, do not include the Reconstruction Finance Corporation subsidiaries which were transferred to the Foreign Economic Administration—U. S. Commercial Company, Rubber Development Corporation, and Petroleum Reserve Corporation—since these will be included in the budget of the Foreign Economic Administration.

During the fiscal year 1944 gross assets of the Reconstruction Finance Corporations increased from 9.4 billion dollars to almost 12 billion dollars. Seventy-six percent of the assets owned by these corporations on June 30, 1944, were held by the so-called war corporations established after 1939, the activities of which are dependent upon recommendations received from other Government agencies.

The surplus property disposal activities of these corporations will be increased substantially. Under Executive Order dated February 19, 1944, the Surplus War Property Administration designated the Reconstruction Finance Corporation as a disposal agency and three of the latter's corporations, namely, Defense Supplies Corporation, Defense Plant Corporation, and Metals Reserve Company, are involved in the surplus war property disposal program. Each of these corporations handles certain designated materials including industrial plants and facilities, metals, and minerals, and various industrial capital goods. Part of the increase reflected in the 1946 Budget estimates is due to the surplus war property program.

In addition to the surplus war property program, the 1946 estimates contemplate an expansion in the lending activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. It is expected that under the GI Bill of Rights, the Corporation will be called upon to make a large number of business loans to veterans.

Due to the shortage of accountants, the audit staff of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been engaged to a very large extent in the audit of Defense Plant Corporation projects, as a result of which a backlog of audit work has accumulated with respect to other Reconstruction Finance Corporation activities. Part of the increase in the 1946 estimates over the 1945 authorization reflects a proposed expansion in the audit staff to eliminate this backlog of audit work.

BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

In addition to providing for the continuing current statistical program of the Bureau of the Census in the fields of population, vital statistics, agriculture, the labor force, industry, business, foreign trade, and government, the 1946 estimates make provision for the financing of special projects as part of a general program of collecting statistics needed by the business community and Government agencies. Thus, provision is included for an expansion of the present monthly report on the labor force, which at present gives statistics on the employed and the unemployed only for the Nation as a whole. As planned, labor statistics would be available for each of the large industrial production centers of the Nation and for each of the various regions and States. Provision is also included for a sample census of population which will show the impact of the war on the population characteristics of the States and cities. Such facts will be fundamental to the planning and administration of programs in business and in the Government. The estimates make provision only for statistical projects which have a direct bearing on the conduct of the war or which will be urgently needed for both business and the Government.

OFFICE OF ADMINISTRATOR OF CIVIL AERONAUTICS

The Office of Administrator of Civil Aeronautics is charged with the development of civil aeronautics and air commerce. One of the major responsibilities of this agency is to establish and maintain various aids to air navigation along the Federal airways. These airways cover the continental United States and connect the United States with Alaska. By the close of 1946, it is expected that 40,308 miles will be in operation, which is 17 percent above the number at the close of 1944. To insure maximum safety and expedite the movement of traffic along the airways, the agency establishes and maintains emergency landing fields, teletype circuits for the transmission of weather and traffic information and air navigation aids, including radio range stations, fan markers and instrument landing systems. It also maintains 25 airway traffic control centers which control and supervise aircraft in flight over the airways.

In the field of safety regulation, the agency issues notices to airmen regarding hazards in air navigation and enforces the civil air regulations. Airmen are examined and, if found qualified, are given certificates for appropriate ratings. Aircraft, aircraft instruments, and other appliances must be examined and tested before being issued certificates of approved type. The agency also examines and approves drawings and specifications of contemplated new models during the development period.

In addition to its major responsibilities of establishing and maintaining the Federal airways and enforcing safety regulations, the agency engages in a variety of development and service activities which are designed to stimulate the growth of civil aviation. An airport service is maintained to advise municipalities and other local bodies in connection with the construction and administration of airports. Efforts are made to establish in the schools courses which will be of assistance in promoting interest in aviation and which will furnish the student some background in learning to fly. Research is carried on to promote developments in radio, airplanes, training of pilots, and airports with a view to stimulating further interest in aviation. The agency also operates the Washington National Airport.

The 1946 estimates reflect an increase of about 30 percent over the 1945 appropriations, exclusive of overtime. The major part of the increase is to provide for the installation of ultra high frequency radio ranges along the Federal airways and the establishment of instrument landing systems. This program, under way for several years, has proceeded slowly due to the inability to obtain equipment. Other increases in the 1946 estimates reflect the expansion of the Federal airways and additional maintenance. Likewise, minor increases are provided for safety regulation work to meet an anticipated expansion in commercial and private flying and in the design and construction of new civilian aircraft. An increase is also provided for the maintenance and operation of the Washington National Airport.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

The Civil Aeronautics Board, functioning as an independent agency, regulates foreign and domestic air commerce, prescribes safety regulations for civil aviation, and investigates aircraft accidents. The scope of the Board's regulatory authority over commercial airlines is very broad. In addition to issuing certificates of convenience and necessity for the operation of airlines, the Board exercises control over rates charged by the carriers, over the rate of mail compensation, and over the services and facilities of the airlines. The Board's regulatory authority also includes supervision of the financial practices of the air carriers.

It is anticipated that in 1946 there will be an expansion of commercial aviation within the United States and some developments in air commerce with foreign countries. The applications before the Board at the beginning of the fiscal year 1945 number 662, which is more than twice the number pending 1 year previous. Although hearings are now in process, many of these cases will not be completed until 1946. The 1946 estimates reflect the increased workload facing the Board and provide for additional personnel to handle increasingly difficult problems in the economic regulation of the air-carrier industry. Likewise, funds are provided for airplanes to enable the Board to continue with greater effectiveness its accident investigation work.

COAST AND GEODETIC SURVEY

The Coast and Geodetic Survey publishes nautical charts of all waters under the jurisdiction of the United States and carries on surveys of coastal areas in order to provide for the safe navigation of these waters. Other activities include the production of aeronautical charts for air navigation over United States land areas and the execution, throughout the United States and Alaska, of geodetic control surveys, which provide basic data for charting, mapping, and engineering works by other agencies.

Since the outbreak of the war, an enormous increase in the production of nautical and aeronautical charts has been required to meet the needs of our rapidly expanding ship-borne Navy, merchant marine, and Army and Navy air forces. It has been necessary to devote all facilities available for field surveys to the accomplishment of projects needed for military and naval operations.

The 1946 estimates contemplate the continuation of surveying and charting activities to the extent required for war purposes and for the protection of navigation on the sea and in the air. The increase recommended in the fiscal year 1946 for field work is primarily for the inauguration of an intensive geodetic survey of the Columbia River area in northwestern United States.

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce has contributed to the war effort by assembling, compiling, and disseminating information on the world's commerce, with emphasis upon the needs of war agencies. It is contemplated that the Bureau's activities will be expanded during the fiscal year 1946 to provide services essential for the planning and administration of programs in business and the Government.

PATENT OFFICE

In addition to processing applications for patents and trade-marks and performing related functions required by law, the Patent Office has an additional wartime responsibility of protecting the secrecy of inventions whose disclosure would be detrimental to the prosecution of the war.

For several years the Patent Office has been working under the handicap of a depleted professional staff and limited availability of qualified replacements. During these years heavy arrearages have accumulated in all departments of the Office which, if allowed to continue, will constitute a serious obstacle to future industrial progress. The requested increase in the appropriation for 1946 is for the purpose of augmenting the staff in order to make substantial reduction in the accumulations of work.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

While continuing its normal functions of testing materials for the public and for Government procurement agencies, establishing commercial standards and codes for safety and simplified practices, and fulfilling its general responsibilities as the Nation's physical laboratory, the National Bureau of Standards has fully utilized both its own research facilities and those made available through transferred funds, in the direct interests of prosecuting the war. The Bureau's efforts have been concentrated on the development of new and improved techniques and implements of warfare; the manufacture of large quantities of high quality optical glass for the military services, and scientific research in industrial processes related to war production.

Digitized for FRASER

As a result of its contributions thus far during the war, the Bureau has been requested to greatly expand its work for war agencies. The expansion of this work has imposed responsibilities of administration and project supervision which the Bureau's present staff of permanent professional employees cannot adequately discharge. Increases recommended for the fiscal year 1946, totaling approximately $437,000, are intended primarily to alleviate this condition.

WEATHER BUREAU

The Weather Bureau operates the basic national system of meteorological observation stations for the United States and its territories, collects and analyzes observations, prepares weather and flood forecasts and warnings, bulletins, and climatological summaries for other agencies of the Government and other interests, such as air- and water-borne transport, and agriculture. Special weather forecasts, warnings, and services are furnished the military and naval services, and international cooperation is maintained in the exchange of weather information with allied nations.

The increases in the 1946 estimates will provide for continuation of off-shore observations on the Pacific Coast initiated in the fiscal year 1945, for continuation of a program for the installation of automatic ceiling measurement devices at airport stations, for six additional radiosonde observation stations, for personnel to develop procedures for the utilization of in-flight and post-flight aircraft weather reports, for improvement of methods for short range weather forecasting, and for a project to study the structures of thunderstorms.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

A total of $100,642,897 in annual and permanent appropriations is recommended in this Budget for the Department of the Interior for 1946, exclusive of $44,827,750 for major public works projects. The recommended appropriations are $17,014,334 greater than the corresponding appropriations for 1945, exclusive of overtime pay. In addition, $10,827,400 in trust accounts have been recommended for the Department. Of the recommended appropriations approximately $2,000,000 are for the conduct of surveys and the preparation of plans for post-war public works projects.

The recommended appropriations for 1946, together with the amounts actually appropriated to date for 1945, are summarized in the table on the preceding page. Supporting detail and proposed legal language for each appropriation item are shown in the ensuing pages of this chapter.

Unless otherwise specified, all data in this statement relate to annual and permanent appropriations only. Trust accounts are discussed separately at the end of the statement. Major public works appropriations of the Interior Department are not included in this chapter of the Budget, but appear in the general public works chapter. (See pp. 671–693.)

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

This group of appropriations finances the Office of the Secretary of the Interior and his general staff, and the Divisions of Territories and Island Possessions, Geography, and Petroleum Conservation, as well as the Office of Solicitor and certain other administrative units serving all bureaus of the Department. Included here also are departmental soil and moisture conservation operations and contingent expenses.

Appropriations totaling $4,947,120 are recommended for these activities, a net increase of $1,228,245 over the amount appropriated under the heading of Office of the Secretary for 1945.

The largest increase in this group of appropriations is one of $445,268 for restoration of a portion of recent reductions in the soil and moisture conservation operations appropriation; this appropriation finances the installation of devices to prevent further soil and moisture losses and rehabilitate denuded lands. Other increases totaling $366,783 are recommended to permit the department to (1) establish a new Assistant Secretary's Office, (2) staff more adequately the Division of Budget and Administrative Management and the Division of Territories and Island Possessions, and (3) refill several positions in the Petroleum Conservation Division which have been vacant since the incumbents were transferred to the Petroleum Administration for War.

Two new appropriations are proposed: One of $1,072,600 for surveys and investigations necessary to prepare and put into execution a program for the development of the Territory of Alaska, and another of $70,000 for the new Division of Geography, formerly carried in the budget as the United States Board on Geographical Names under the appropriation for the Secretary's Office but during the last 2 years financed from War Department funds.

The departmental appropriations for printing and binding and fire protection of forests and forest industries aggregating $671,630 are included under this heading for 1945. The corresponding amounts recommended for 1946 are distributed among the appropriations for the respective bureaus and offices of the department. The 1945 appropriation of $54,776 for payment of war mineral claims is nonrecurring in 1946.

COMMISSION OF FINE ARTS

The Commission of Fine Arts renders advice to Congress and the executive agencies of the Government on fine arts matters in the fields of architecture, sculpture, painting, and landscape architecture. The proposed appropriation for 1946 is $10,000. The increase of $3,120 covers travel expenses of the unpaid members of the Commission and other miscellaneous expenses.

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

This administration, created by the Bonneville Project Act of 1937, is responsible for the construction, operation, and maintenance of electric transmission lines, substations, and other facilities and structures for transmitting and marketing electric energy for sale from the Bonneville, Oreg., and Grand Coulee, Wash., projects and, upon completion, from the Hungry Horse Dam in Montana, to existing and potential markets; for the exchange of electric energy; and for the interconnection of the Federal projects with other systems now or hereafter constructed.

Appropriations and estimates for the Bonneville Power Administration do not appear in this chapter of the Budget, but are included in the chapter on General Public Works Program. (See pp. 671–673.)

HIGH COMMISSIONER TO THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

The recommended appropriation of $296,000 for the Office of the United States High Commissioner to the Philippine Islands, $198,206 more than the 1945 appropriation, provides for reestablishing this Office in the islands, in order to give the President an on-the-ground civilian representative and a staff which can give prompt decisions on broad policy questions during the crucial period of reoccupation and reconstruction. It also includes provision for the restoration of government buildings and equipment which have been damaged or destroyed during enemy occupation of the islands.

OFFICE OF FISHERY COORDINATION

The Office of Fishery Coordination, with the Secretary of the Interior as Coordinator, was created in 1942 to aid the fishing industry in solving its manpower and supply problems, in order to bring in every possible pound of fish. The appropriation of $225,000 recommended for 1946, is $29,503 less than the 1945 appropriation. The proposed reduction reflects an anticipated decrease in work load resulting from the possible release of restrictions upon materials and supplies.

SOUTHWESTERN POWER ADMINISTRATION

This Administration was created in 1943 to perform the duties assigned to the Secretary of the Interior by Executive Orders 8944, 9353, 9366, and 9373 with respect to the Grand River Dam project in Oklahoma, the Norfork Dam project in Arkansas, and the Denison Dam project in Oklahoma and Texas. It is charged with completing the construction of and operating the Grand River Dam project and the marketing of electric energy generated by that project and the energy generated at the Norfork and Denison Dam projects constructed and operated by the Corps of Engineers.

Funds for operating the Grand River Dam project and for marketing its electricity are derived from receipts from the sale of electric energy produced at that dam. Funds for marketing the electric energy generated at the Norfork and Denison Dams are appropriated by the Congress. A fund of $100,000, derived from receipts, is authorized for the purpose of defraying emergency expenses and to insure continuous operation. The estimates of $110,000 for the 1946 appropriations are $125,450 less than the appropriations for 1945, mainly because the 1945 appropriation of $100,000 for the emergency fund is nonrecurring in 1946.

GRAZING SERVICE

The Grazing Service aids in meat production by promoting conservation of forage and water facilities for 11 million animals on 141 million acres of Government-owned range lands in 10 Western States. The program consists of regulation of range use in the 59 grazing districts, fire protection and prevention on range lands, and installation and maintenance of fences, trails, stock-watering places, and other improvements within grazing districts, in order to permit better utilization of the public range.

Appropriations totaling $2,243,700 are recommended for the Grazing Service for 1946—an increase of $694,670 over 1945 appropriations. The increase provides for additional personnel, replacement of worn-out equipment, and the purchase of new equipment. This will enable the Grazing Service to provide more intensive maintenance of grazing districts, give more adequate fire protection, reduce the backlogs of range improvements and maintenance which have accumulated in recent years, and prepare plans and specifications for post-war range improvements.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The General Land Office surveys the public domain in 11 Western States and Alaska, and handles all negotiations in the leasing or allotment of these lands under laws designed to insure proper development of their coal, oil, gas, and other mineral resources. Among its other functions are fire suppression, timber management, and regulation of grazing on the public domain outside of grazing districts.

Due to reduced appropriations and wartime stringency in personnel, work has been piling up both in Washington and in the field. On June 30, 1944, there was a total backlog of 24,566 cases in all headquarters divisions; 17,586 cases were awaiting investigation in the regional offices; and there was an accumulation of authorized survey work covering more than 44 million acres.

Recommended annual and permanent appropriations for 1946 total $8,356,500, a net increase of $686,638 over the corresponding appropriations for 1945. The largest single items in the total increase are (1) the proposed new appropriation of $160,000 for plans and surveys for post-war projects and (2) a proposed increase of $175,000 in an existing appropriation to enable the General Land Office to take over fire protection of public domain forests and woodlands from Agriculture's Forest Service in accordance with a suggestion by the House Appropriations Committee, and at the same time, inaugurate a sustained-yield program of timber management on the public domain as authorized by the act of March 29, 1944 (Public 273). Other increases are recommended for staffing a new office in Anchorage, Alaska, meeting increased costs under fire protection contracts, installing range improvements outside grazing districts, increasing personnel generally so as to reduce the accumulated backlog of work, and making overdue replacements of automobiles and other field equipment.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The Bureau of Indian Affairs has under its jurisdiction more than 350,000 Indians in the Continental United States and 32,000 Eskimos, Aleuts, and Indians in Alaska. Its main objectives are the economic rehabilitation of the Indian, mostly on the land, tribal self-government, and the assurance of education, health, cultural freedom, and opportunity for the Indian. While the Indian death rate continues slightly higher than that of non-Indians, it is more than offset by the high birth rate. The reservation populations are increasing at a greater rate than any other racial group.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs is responsible for the operation of day and boarding schools and the supervision of the education of Indian children attending public and private schools; the operation of hospitals, sanatoria, and infirmaries, and medical, dental, and public health nursing service to Indians in their homes and at clinics; the administration of about 46,000,000 acres of forest and grazing land; the maintenance of an extension service whose principal objectives are to encourage the use of Indian lands by Indians and to effect the use of better farming and livestock practices by Indian farmers and livestockmen; the administration of a credit system involving Treasury and tribal funds; the construction of irrigation systems and the operation and maintenance of existing systems; the maintenance of law and order on Indian reservations and the performance of social-service work, including the placement of employables and the care of unemployables; the administration of more than $50,000,000 held in trust for individual Indians and of approximately $14,000,000 of tribal funds; and the construction and maintenance of buildings, utilities, and roads.

Appropriations aggregating $27,681,677 have been recommended for the Bureau of Indian Affairs for 1946, $2,975,088 more than was appropriated for 1945. These appropriations are summarized in the following table. The 1946 amount includes $725,000 for detailed plans, specifications, and estimates of post-war construction projects.

Appropriation group	1945 appropriations excluding overtime cost	Recommended for 1946	Increase (+) or decrease (−) 1946 recommendations over 1945 appropriations

Annuities and per capita payments	926,020	926,020
Total	24,706,589	27,681,677	+2,975,088

The budget proposes increases totaling $281,780 in the general expenses appropriations. The largest single increase ($162,490) occurs in the appropriation for salaries in the headquarters and liaison offices of the Bureau. No appropriations from Federal funds are recommended for Indian land purchases during 1946, but additional authorizations for the use of tribal funds are being recommended. Moreover, the recommended increase in the appropriation for the Indian Service revolving loan fund will permit the use of this fund for land acquisition loans.

Increases have been recommended for most of the industrial assistance and advancement appropriations, the largest increase being $500,000 for the revolving fund for loans to Indians and Indian corporations.

The principal item of increase in the irrigation and drainage group of appropriations is a proposed new item of $336,750 for payment to the Bureau of Reclamation. This sum represents construction charges collected from land owners served by the Wapato irrigation project in the State of Washington. There are three major increases in Indian educational appropriations: $166,810 for support of Indian schools, $125,910 for Indian boarding schools, and $179,110 for educating the natives of Alaska. Two major increases appear in the appropriations for general support and administration: $367,270 for administration of Indian property and $251,119 for support and rehabilitation of needy Indians.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The objectives of the Bureau of Reclamation concern the conservation of land and water resources; the transformation, through irrigation, of desert lands into productive farms; the protection, through adequate water supplies, of established agricultural economy from the adverse effects of recurring droughts in the semiarid regions; and the stabilization of the livestock industry at a high level through providing the means of growing feed and forage crops. In company with these major purposes is the function of creating facilities for generation of hydroelectric power, land drainage, control of floods, improvement of navigation, silt control, regulation of stream flow, provision of municipal water supplies, and the incidental development of recreational areas and wildlife refuges. The responsibilities of the Bureau include the planning, construction, and operation of these multipurpose facilities which must be completely coordinated with facilities already built or planned to be constructed in the future, either by the Bureau of Reclamation or other agencies, so that the water resources may be used most beneficially. The activities of the Bureau are carried on in 17 Western States.

The recommendations in this chapter are confined to the operation and maintenance activities of the Bureau. There have been turned over to the water users 33 irrigation projects or divisions of projects aggregating 1,495,000 acres for which no Federal funds are required for operation. There are 20 irrigation projects or divisions of projects operated by Government forces financed by funds advanced by the water users or by direct appropriations reimbursable in the same year by the water users. On the Government-operated projects 1,416,300 acres will be irrigated in 1945, and in 1946 it is estimated water will be delivered to 1,490,500 acres. Operation and maintenance costs of power systems are financed from power revenues within limitations established in the appropriation for the particular project. Energy generated at Bureau plants in fiscal year 1945 will approximate 13.8 billion kilowatt-hours and is estimated at 14.1 billion kilowatt-hours in 1946. Operation and maintenance estimates and limitations from all sources total $5,561,600 for fiscal year 1946 compared to $4,799,600 made available in 1945. The increase is largely in advanced funds (trust funds) being adjusted from a calendar year to a fiscal year basis.

Estimates for the administration, investigations, and construction activities of the Bureau appear in the Public Works chapter, pp. 675 to 691.

GEOLOGICAL SURVEY

The Geological Survey conducts research in geologic and related chemical and physical problems. It makes topographic, base, and other maps, investigates surface and underground water resources, surveys the mineral resources and production of Alaska, and makes scientific and economic investigations of strategic and critical minerals.

The 1946 budget recommendations for the Geological Survey call for appropriations totaling $8,400,500—an increase of $2,439,866 over 1945 appropriations.

The largest single increase is one of $2,028,440 for an expansion in topographic survey and mapping work, bringing this appropriation up to $3,075,000, compared with $1,046,560 for 1945; the 1946 recommendation includes $1,000,000 for initiating a long-range project in the Columbia River Basin. An increase of $509,678 is recommended for augmenting the cooperative stream-gaging program, so as to match the increased offerings of States and municipalities, and for the formulation of a post-war program of public works related to water investigations. The other major increases are for additional administrative personnel, for publication of reports and scientific papers which have been deferred because of inadequacy of funds and shortage of personnel, and for adjusting, under wage-fixing procedure, the compensation of persons engaged in the quantity production of maps, charts, and similar material through lithographic processes. A reduction of $265,375 is proposed for the appropriation for scientific and economic research regarding strategic and critical minerals.

BUREAU OF MINES

The Bureau of Mines is engaged in scientific and technological research concerning mining. It has two basic objectives—conservation of minerals through increased efficiency in their mining, preparation, and use, and conservation of human life through safe methods of operating mines and plants.

Appropriations totaling $25,822,550 are recommended for 1946—a net increase of $6,291,265 over 1945 appropriations.

Increases totaling $8,509,792 are recommended in nine existing appropriations. The largest increase is one of $8,116,192 for synthetic liquid fuels, making an appropriation of $13,000,000 for this purpose in 1946; this will enable the Bureau of Mines to prepare designs and let contracts for construction of several demonstration plants. Thirty million dollars was authorized to be appropriated for this purpose by the act of April 5, 1944. Five million dollars has already been appropriated including appropriations for overtime pay. Other increases are for administrative positions in the Bureau of Mines and for expanding safety research, coal mine inspection, oil and gas investigations, economic research, the development and operation of helium properties, and the operation of mining experiment stations, including the central station at Pittsburgh.

Reductions aggregating $2,080,947 are recommended in 10 appropriations. The principal decrease of $1,222,512 is proposed for the investigation of bauxite and alunite ores and aluminum clay deposits. Other reductions are recommended in the appropriations for testing fuels, anthracite and mineral mining investigations, enforcement of the Federal Explosives Act, investigation of raw material resources for steel production, manganese and magnesium pilot plants and research, investigation of deposits of critical minerals, and alumina and bauxite research.

A new $80,000 appropriation is recommended for studying the uses of helium and the possibilities of its liquefaction for transportation, especially by air. On the other hand, the budget proposes to eliminate the appropriation for protection of mineral resources and facilities against sabotage, for which $217,580 was appropriated in 1945.

NATIONAL PARK SERVICE

The National Park Service is responsible for the administration, protection, maintenance, and operation of the 170 separate areas of the national park system and 20 other areas and projects. These areas contain more than 22 million acres of federally owned lands with 4,500 miles of roads, 6,600 miles of trails, and 3,700 buildings and other improvements.

Owing to war conditions, visitation of Park Service areas declined from a high of 21 million visitors in 1941 to 6.9 million in the travel year ended September 30, 1943. At the same time, the Park Service has been reduced essentially to a custodial basis. It has eliminated services normally provided for the benefit of tourists, and has been able to give only a minimum of protection to property and facilities. During recent months, there has been an upswing in the number of visitors from last year's low. However, no major increase in utilization of these areas is likely until rail and motor transportation becomes much easier than at present.

Recommended appropriations for 1946 total $4,962,400—a net increase of $918,786 over 1945 appropriations. Seven hundred and forty thousand five hundred and forty-five dollars of this increase occurs in three appropriations: Salaries and expenses, National Park Service, regional offices, and salaries and expenses, National Capital Parks; $650,000 of the aggregate increase in these three items is for preparation of plans and surveys for post-war public works projects.

The recommended amounts will restore a portion of the reductions made in these appropriations during war years and will enable the Park Service to provide adequate protection and administration unless utilization shows a tremendous increase.

FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

The Fish and Wildlife Service is responsible for conservation and development of our fish, bird, game, and other wildlife resources. To this end, it operates wildlife refuges, fish cultural stations, and fish screens; it enforces conservation laws regarding wildlife and fisheries; it protects the salmon and other fisheries in Alaska and the seals on the Pribilof Islands; and it conducts technological and economic research designed to aid the fishing industry and the fur trade.

Recommended appropriations for 1946 total $7,816,200—up $1,459,521 from the 1945 total. The amount recommended for 1946 includes $200,000 for planning post-war construction and improvement projects. Increases have been recommended for all appropriations. The two largest increases are $364,758 for Federal aid in wildlife restoration and $238,300 for propagation of food fishes.

GOVERNMENT IN THE TERRITORIES

This group of appropriations provides for those activities of our territorial governments—Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands—which are financed out of the Federal Treasury. It does not include the expense of the Division of Territories and Island Possessions or the Office of the High Commissioner to the Philippines, both of which appear under the Office of the Secretary; nor does it include the Alaskan operations of various bureaus of the department.

A total of $8,966,950 is recommended for this group of annual and permanent appropriations for 1946—$304,381 greater than 1945 appropriations for the same purposes. No appropriation is recommended for legislative expenses in Alaska or Hawaii, since 1946 is not a legislative year in either territory; $96,200 was appropriated for this purpose for 1945. No appropriation is recommended for 1946 for defraying municipal deficits in the Virgin Islands; the 1945 appropriation is $100,000. There are only two major increases in this group of appropriations: One of $388,476 in the Alaska Railroad special fund, and one of $85,608 for construction and maintenance of roads and bridges in Alaska.

TRUST ACCOUNTS

In addition to the annual and permanent appropriations described above, trust accounts aggregating $10,827,400 have been recommended for the Department of the Interior for 1946—an increase of $312,000 over the current year. Seven million six hundred thousand dollars of the total for 1946 represents trust funds received in the Federal Treasury and credited to Indian tribes or bands under numerous acts of Congress; these acts also specify the disposition of these moneys, including such purposes as per capita distribution to the Indians, operation of Indian lumber mills, payment of attorneys' fees, and insurance on tribal property. The other large groups of trust fund appropriations in the Department of the Interior are those dealing with the Southwestern Power Administration and the Bureau of Reclamation for which $1,500,000 and $1,278,200, respectively, are recommended for 1946.
