Republic of Panama: Provided, however, (1) That, notwithstanding the provision in the Act approved August 11, 1939 (53 Stat. 1409), limiting employment in the above-mentioned positions to citizens of the United States from and after the date of approval of said Act, citizens of Panama may be employed in such positions; (2) that at no time shall the number of Panamanian citizens employed in the above-mentioned positions exceed the number of citizens of the United States so employed, if United States citizens are available in continental United States or on the Canal Zone; (3) that nothing in this Act shall prohibit the continued employment of any person who shall have rendered fifteen or more years of faithful and honorable service on the Canal Zone; (4) that in the selection of personnel for skilled, technical, administrative, clerical, supervisory, or executive positions, the controlling factors in filling these positions shall be efficiency, experience, training, and education; (5) that all citizens of Panama and the United States rendering skilled, technical, clerical, administrative, executive, or supervisory service on the Canal Zone under the terms of this Act (a) shall normally be employed not more than forty hours per week, (b) may receive as compensation equal rates of pay based upon rates paid for similar employment in continental United States plus 25 per centum; (6) this entire section shall apply only to persons employed in skilled, technical, clerical, administrative, executive, or supervisory positions on the Canal Zone directly or indirectly by any branch of the United States Government or by any corporation or company whose stock is owned wholly or in part by the United States Government: Provided further, That the President may suspend from time to time in whole or in part compliance with this section if he should deem such course to be in the public interest.

SEC. 619. Insofar as practicable, the Secretary of Defense shall assist American small business to participate equitably in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated under this Act by making available or causing to be made available to suppliers in the United States, and particularly to small independent enterprises, information, as far in advance as possible, with respect to purchases proposed to be financed with funds appropriated under this Act, and by making available or causing to be made available to purchasing and contracting agencies of the Department of Defense information as to commodities and services produced and furnished by small independent enterprises in the United States, and by otherwise helping to give small business an opportunity to participate in the furnishing of commodities and services financed with funds appropriated by this Act.

【CORPS OF ENGINEERS】

RIVERS AND HARBORS AND FLOOD CONTROL

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Corps of Engineers improves and maintains rivers and harbors throughout the continental United States, Puerto Rico, Alaska, the Virgin Islands, and the Hawaiian Islands in the interests of navigation, control of floods, related hydroelectric power development, and allied water uses, including the protection and preservation of navigable waters.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $660 million. This represents an increase of $78.8 million compared with the current fiscal year, and an increase of $41.5 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. These figures do not include anticipated supplemental estimates for pay increases. The increase is explained primarily by the fact that 14 large multiple-purpose projects with power installations have been advanced to the stage where large appropriations are required to maintain economical construction schedules. These 14 projects require 63 percent of the funds requested for construction, and when completed will have initially 4.6 million kilowatts of installed generating capacity.

The following appropriations for rivers and harbors and flood control shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers, and shall remain available until expended: Provided, That not to exceed 【$1,525,000】 $1,790,000 shall be available for the current fiscal year from such appropriations for the services of such civilian personnel as the Secretary of the Army may deem necessary to be employed in the Office of the Chief of Engineers, to carry into effect the various appropriations for rivers and harbors and flood control, surveys, and preparation for and the consideration of river and harbor and flood-control estimates and bills: Provided further, That the various appropriations for rivers and harbors and flood control may be used for examination of estimates of appropriations in the field; purchase (not to exceed two hundred and fifty for replacement only) in the current fiscal year 【of two hundred and fifty】 and hire of passenger motor vehicles and purchase of one motorboat (to be acquired from surplus stock where practicable) and the maintenance, repair, and operation of aircraft: Provided further, That, during the current fiscal year, such appropriations shall not be transferred to or used to start or resume any project for which funds were not allocated for construction in the preceding fiscal year; but this proviso shall not apply to any project for which funds are provided in this Act: Provided further, That the project known as "Buggs Island Reservoir, Virginia and North Carolina," shall hereafter be designated as the "John H. Kerr Dam and Reservoir". (Civil Functions Appropriation Act, 1952.)

RIVERS AND HARBORS

Maintenance and Improvement of Existing River and Harbor Works—

Maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbor works: For expenses necessary for the preservation and maintenance of existing river and harbor works, and for the prosecution of such projects heretofore authorized as may be most desirable in the interests of commerce and navigation; for surveys of northern and northwestern lakes and other boundary and connecting waters as heretofore authorized, including the preparation, correction, printing, and issuing of charts and bulletins, and the investigation of lake levels; for prevention of obstructive and injurious deposits within the harbor and adjacent waters of New York City; for expenses of the California Débris Commission in carrying on the work authorized by the Act approved March 1, 1893, as amended (33 U. S. C. 661, 678, and 683); for removing sunken vessels or craft obstructing or endangering navigation as authorized by law; for operating and maintaining, keeping in repair, and continuing in use without interruption any lock, canal (except the Panama Canal), canalized river, or other public works for the use and benefit of navigation belonging to the United States; for payment annually of tuition fees of not to exceed [eighteen] fifty student officers of the Corps of Engineers at civil technical institutions under the provisions of section 127a of the National Defense Act, as amended (10 U. S. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCEMAJOR CAPITAL OUTLAY

1. Construction.—The authorized river and harbor projects and separately authorized modifications represent a total of 28,000 miles of improved waterways, 490 locks and dams, and 270 harbors. On June 30, 1951, the status of these projects was as follows:

Estimated cost of authorized projects, in millions

Status	Number of projects ¹	Total	To June 30, 1951	1952	1953	Balance to complete
Completed.....	1,721	$914.7	$859.0			² $55.7

Total.....	2,279	6,628.0	2,069.7	125.7	209.5	4,223.1

² Features of completed projects which probably will not be required.

³ All active uncompleted projects for which construction funds have been appropriated.

The total appropriation requested, excluding the transfer to Fish and Wildlife Service for the Columbia River fish sanctuary program, amounts to $208.7 million. This represents an increase of $83.5 million compared with the current fiscal year, and an increase of $98.2 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase is primarily the result of expedited construction schedules for several large multiple-purpose projects having power-generating facilities which are required to meet power shortages in certain critical areas, and the need for keeping other power developments on schedule. Two new projects are recommended: Ice Harbor lock and dam, Wash., which is required to supply power to an important defense facility in the vicinity, and lock No. 19, Keokuk, Iowa, which is required to replace an existing obsolete structure in imminent danger of collapse.

Of the requested appropriation for construction, 88 per cent will be applied to 10 major projects. Pertinent data are shown in the following table:

[Amounts in millions of dollars]

2. Planning.—Design studies and contract plans and specifications are prepared to establish project features and cost estimates in preparation for construction.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $0.8 million, compared with an appropriation of $0.5 million coupled with unobligated prior appropriations to bring the total to $2.1 million in 1952 and compared with an appropriation of $1.5 million in 1951. Planning activities will be carried on in 1953 at a reduced level.

CURRENT EXPENSES

1. Operation and maintenance of projects.—The estimate for 1953 provides $43.5 million for operating and maintenance of 195 channels and harbors, $20.1 million for the operation and care of locks and dams at 39 projects, and $3.1 million for the operation and care of the Fort Peck, Bonneville, and St. Marys multiple-purpose projects. The total appropriation requested amounts to $66.7 million. This represents an increase of $5.4 million compared with the current fiscal year, and an increase of $4.1 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase is required principally because of three factors: (a) Severe damage to navigation structures on the Missouri River during the July 1951 flood, (b) the need for maintenance work that was deferred in the past 2 years, and (c) additional projects that have been completed and require maintenance for the first time.

2. Operation and maintenance, special.—Wrecks, sunken vessels, and other obstructions which are a menace to safe navigation are marked and removed. Work is accomplished in order to protect, clear, and straighten channels of navigable waters and their tributaries when such work is advantageous to navigation.

Surveys are made of the northern and northwestern lakes to serve as a basis for charts and bulletins essential for safe navigation.

3. Examinations and surveys.—Preliminary examinations and surveys are made to determine the need and economic justification of proposed improvements. These studies are made in cooperation with appropriate Federal and State agencies and will be restricted to a limited number of projects essential to defense requirements and complementary civilian activities.

In addition, special and general beach erosion investigations are conducted. Special investigations at specific localities are paid for equally by the Federal Government and by State and other local agencies. General investigations along the coast are made entirely at Federal expense.

The scope of these activities is shown in the following table:

Type of investigation	1951 actual	1952 estimate	1953 estimate

4. Regulation.—The California Debris Commission, which consists of three officers of the Corps of Engineers appointed by the President, regulates hydraulic mining operations within the Sacramento and San Joaquin

Basins and issues permits for the purpose of preventing debris from mining operations from being carried into navigable waters or otherwise causing damage.

To prevent illegal deposits in New York Harbor, disposal areas are specified and patrols maintained.

In addition, other inspections and investigations are made to protect and preserve navigable waters of the United States, commercial statistics are collected in the field offices, permits are issued for structures in navigable waters, and harbor lines are established.

5. Administration.—Provision is also made for the expenses of the River and Harbor Board and the Beach Erosion Board. The latter concerns itself with beach-erosion control and shore protection. The former reviews all field examination and survey reports for flood control as well as river and harbor improvements and compiles statistical data received from the field offices on water-borne commerce.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCEMAJOR CAPITAL OUTLAY

1. Construction.—The authorized and approved flood control projects vary from local protection works such as channel improvements, levees, and flood wall construction to multiple-purpose reservoirs for flood control, hydroelectric power development, and other water-use conservation. On June 30, 1951, the status of these projects was as follows:

Status	Number of projects	Estimated cost of authorized projects, in millions
		Total	To June 30, 1951	1952	1953	Balance to complete
Completed	247	$483.3	$483.3
Under way	165	3,410.8	1,571.1	$305.3	$264.6	$1,269.8
Balance authorized	583	4,865.3	28.6	1.0	22.0	4,813.7
Total	995	8,759.4	2,083.0	306.3	286.6	6,083.5

¹ All uncompleted projects for which construction funds have been appropriated.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $287.3 million. This represents a decrease of $21.2 million compared with the current fiscal year, and a decrease of $55.9 million compared with the preceding year. This downward trend is due to the emphasis placed on bringing to completion those projects currently under way, with the initiation of new projects being held to a minimum. The projects included in the current program amount to 64 whereas the appropriations for fiscal years 1951 and 1952 were for 102 and 78 projects, respectively. Four new projects are recommended: Tuttle Creek Reservoir in the Kansas River Basin and local protection works at Topeka, Kans., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., will effect material reduction in damages which would be caused by recurrence of the 1951 floods in these areas. Hartwell Reservoir, Ga. and S. C., will aid in providing power to an important defense facility in the vicinity.

Of the requested appropriation for construction, 73 per cent will be applied to 17 major projects. Pertinent data are shown in the following table:

2. Planning.—Design studies and contract plans and specifications are prepared to establish project features and cost estimates in preparation for construction.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $1.5 million, compared with an appropriation of $1 million coupled with unobligated prior appropriations to bring the total to $4.4 million in 1952 and compared with an appropriation of $2.9 million in 1951. Planning activities will be carried on in 1953 at a reduced level.

CURRENT EXPENSES

1. Operation and maintenance.—The estimate for 1953 provides $2.7 million for the operation and maintenance of 73 flood-control reservoirs, $2.8 million for the operation and maintenance of 15 multiple-purpose reservoirs, and $0.7 million for the maintenance of 33 local protection projects constructed under the 1938 Flood Control Act. Eight flood-control reservoirs and three multiple-purpose reservoirs are included for the first time. The total appropriation requested amounts to $6.1 million. This represents an increase of $0.8 million compared with the current fiscal year, and an increase of $1.7 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase is due to three principal factors: (a) The need for maintenance work that was deferred in the past 2 years; (b) additional projects that have been completed and require maintenance.

nance for the first time; and (c) a large number of power units that have begun initial power generation and that require maintenance.

2. Preliminary examinations, surveys, and miscellaneous study programs.—Preliminary examinations and surveys are made to determine the need and economic justification of proposed improvements in cooperation with Federal and State agencies. These studies will be restricted to a limited number of projects essential to defense requirements and complementary civilian activities. Funds are transferred to the Weather Bureau for hydrometeorological studies and for the hydrologic network of precipitation stations.

The scope of the survey activities is shown in the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

MAJOR CAPITAL OUTLAY

Construction.—Provision is made for protection from floods of the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, Grand Prairie-Bayou Meto, Yazoo, Tensas, Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou LaFourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvements and bank stabilization on the main river, for dredging of the main river to provide a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for five flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

The total authorization for flood control and improvement of the lower Mississippi River in its alluvial valley is $1,293 million, of which $723 million had been appropriated through June 30, 1951.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $60 million. This represents a decrease of $0.5 million compared with the current fiscal year and a decrease of $1.4 million compared with the preceding fiscal year, but operations will continue at substantially the same level as the current year.

The main river levees are about 73 percent complete and the main river-bank stabilization is nearly 50 percent complete. Progress on the side basins and on minor tributaries varies from work not yet started to 70 to 80 percent completion of units that have been under way for several years. With the expenditure of funds requested for fiscal year 1953 the main river levees will be 76 percent complete, main river-bank stabilization will be 62 percent complete, and progress will continue in the side basins on minor tributaries.

CURRENT EXPENSES

1. Maintenance.—The total appropriation requested amounts to $15 million, which is $0.5 million more than the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year and for the preceding fiscal year. Experience during the past few years has demonstrated the need for a minimum of $15 million for annual maintenance.

2. Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Department of the Army responsibilities for attainment of objectives in occupied areas include the prevention of disease and unrest among the civilian populations, and the promotion of economic recovery leading to self-support.

The 1951 program provided for economic aid, reorientation and administration for Japan and the Ryukyu Islands and for reorientation and administration in Austria. Responsibility for Austria was transferred on October 15, 1950, to the Department of State. The 1952 program provided for economic aid, reorientation and administration in the Ryukyu Islands, and for reorientation and administration in Japan. The estimate for 1953 provides only for continuation of the program for the Ryukyus, since Japan will regain her sovereignty upon the anticipated ratification of the Peace Treaty in 1952.

1. Administration and reorientation.—This provides for administrative costs in Trieste, the Ryukyus, and Office of Occupied Areas. The Office of Occupied Areas and the Ryukyus office also jointly manage the import program financed from local and appropriated funds. Provision is made for the Ryukyuan information and education program, including setting up local governmental units and advanced study for Ryukyuan students and leaders in the United States.

2. Economic aid.—Provision is made for imports of necessary goods and services which the native economy cannot finance. Such imports are food, fertilizer, petroleum products, raw and semi-finished materials, machinery and spare parts. The fact that the islands are becoming increasingly self-supporting is reflected in the progressive reduction in economic aid.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The United States Soldiers' Home was established to provide a home and other authorized benefits for the relief and support of certain old, invalid, or disabled soldiers of the Regular Army of the United States. Funds for maintenance and operation of the Home are appropriated from the Soldiers' Home permanent fund and not from the general fund of the Treasury.

1. Medical care.—As part of the Home, there is maintained a hospital which will care for a daily average of 330 patients during 1953. In addition, approximately 53 patients will receive specialized care in other Government hospitals at the expense of the United States Soldiers' Home.

2. Domiciliary activities.—Approximately 1,134 members of the Home will be cared for in domiciliary barracks. This represents operation at virtually 100 percent of the present capacity of the Home.

3. Administration and central services.—Responsibility for administration of the Home is vested in a Board of Commissioners composed of the following officers of the Army, ex officio: The Adjutant General, the Judge Advocate General, the Quartermaster General, the Surgeon General, the Chief of Engineers, the Chief of Finance, and the Governor of the Home, the latter selected by the President of the United States. Central services include the laundry, maintenance and repair shops, utility services, transportation, and supply activities which take care of all requirements common to both the hospital and domiciliary.

4. Farm activities.—No funds are requested for this activity as all operation ceased on June 30, 1951.

5. Permanent improvements.—Provision is made for replacement of two residences, replacement of two elevators in the domiciliary buildings, and purchase of the balance of initial equipment for the new 842-bed domiciliary barracks and 210-bed hospital to be completed near the end of fiscal year 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for the usual functions of government and public health, including civil administration, schools, police and fire protection, library, courts, hospitals and other health services, highways and sewers, security operations, operation of the Canal Zone postal system, and all items of capital outlay pertaining to this group of functions.

Operations are estimated at about the same level in 1953 as estimated for 1952. Expenditures under "Capital outlay" are to provide principally for the part of the employees' quarters program chargeable to this appropriation, consisting of site preparation, streets, sidewalks and sewers, fire-alarm systems, and landscaping; and for replacement of parts of the highway system, and hospital, police, and fire equipment.

The appropriation request is based on gross requirements. All revenues received, including the payment by the Panama Canal Company for the net cost of the operations of the Canal Zone Government, except for the cost of certain activities which are nonreimbursable to the Treasury, are for deposit as miscellaneous receipts.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The act of February 16, 1933, as amended by section 2 of the act of June 13, 1940, appropriates, without limitation as to time or amount, the revenues derived from the operation of the Canal Zone postal service. Moneys derived from such appropriations each year are available for the expenses of operating the Canal Zone postal service (48 U. S. C. 1323a). It is estimated that no prior year funds will be available to the Canal Zone postal system and that postal revenues will be insufficient by $370,000 to meet the necessary expenses in 1953. An appropriation of that amount will therefore be required in that year, which amount is included under the appropriation title, "Canal Zone government."

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Panama Canal Company was established July 1, 1951, through a merger of the Panama Canal activities (except civil government of the Canal Zone) with the Panama Railroad Company (Public Law 808, 80th Cong.; Public Law 841, 81st Cong.; Executive Order 10263). The Canal Zone Government is financed independently by appropriations, and the Company is required to reimburse the Treasury each year for the net costs.

The Government's investment in the Company as of July 1, 1951, was $436,649,800, consisting of fixed assets tentatively valued at $416,540,200 and other net assets, including working capital, amounting to $20,109,600. The interest-bearing investment, estimated at $314,624,400, comprises assets transferred from The Panama Canal estimated at $401,020,900, less $50,892,300 representing interest during canal construction and $35,504,200 representing offsets to direct capital contributions under the provisions of sec. 246 (d) of the Panama Canal Company Act. The non-interest-bearing investment estimated at $122,025,400, consists of (1) interest during construction of the Canal (specifically excluded from the interest-bearing investment by sec. 412 (e) of the Panama Canal Company Act); (2) the net assets of the Company prior to July 1, 1951, estimated at $35,628,900; and (3) offsets to the interest-bearing investment referred to above.

The Board of Directors consists of the Governor of the Canal Zone and 8 to 12 other persons appointed by the Secretary of the Army. The Governor of the Canal Zone also serves as the president of the Company.

The Company is authorized to borrow without interest from an emergency fund of $10,000,000 established in the Treasury.

The recent reorganization of the Panama Canal activity necessitated basic changes in fiscal structure and development of an appropriate corporation accounting system to provide cost data necessary as a basis for determining tolls and other rates. The Board of Directors has resolved to postpone action on rates until necessary cost data are available. It is contemplated, however, that rates (except tolls) will be increased by March 1, 1952, to levels which will place the Company on a self-sustaining basis. The necessary increases in income have been indicated in statement B by a single-line entry in each main category titled "Increased rates." All rates used in this budget for estimating income are tentative, and cannot be regarded as establishing a rate structure, or committing the Company to any specific base for computation of tolls or other rates.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The operations of the Company are grouped under three broad categories: (1) Canal activities, (2) commercial activities, and (3) service activities.

Canal activities.—These include the transiting of ships, operation of locks, maintenance of the channel, design and engineering services, and operation and maintenance of the principal office buildings of the Company. Funds applied to expenses for 1953 are estimated to be $29,329,800, compared with $28,321,300 for 1952. The increase is primarily for overhaul of locks.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets during 1953 are estimated at $2,119,500 consisting primarily of $966,000 for continued replacements of electrical facilities on the locks, and $600,000 for replacements of locomotive cranes.

Commercial activities.—These include clubhouses, commissaries, hotels, fueling of ships, a railroad, and a steamship line and terminals. Funds applied to expenses for 1953 are estimated to be $33,608,400, compared with $34,243,400 for 1952. The decrease results primarily from reduction in purchase of commissary supplies.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets during 1953 are estimated at $1,572,500, consisting primarily of $1,100,000 to continue construction of a cold storage warehouse, and $375,000 for replacement of railroad freight cars.

Service activities.—These include all construction activities and most of the maintenance thereof, motor transportation, power system, printing plant, quarters, storehouses, telephone system, and water system. Funds applied to expenses for 1953 are estimated to be $7,741,600 compared with $8,467,000 for 1952. The decrease results primarily from (a) reduction or elimination of maintenance on those quarters to be replaced by new construction, or scheduled for transfer to the Navy, and (b) reduction in construction of quarters by force account.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets during 1953 are estimated to be $10,709,000, consisting primarily of $9,529,400 to continue construction of quarters, and $700,000 to begin construction of an electrical substation to replace obsolete facilities.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

In addition to funds provided by operations totaling $79,336,900 in 1952 and $76,098,500 in 1953, the Company will borrow $3,000,000 in 1952 and $7,000,000 in 1953 from the emergency fund. It also requests an appropriation of $3,000,000 for 1953. These borrowings and appropriated funds are needed to supplement financing of capital programs.

Operating results.—Based on the estimated amounts shown in statement B, operations in fiscal year 1953 will result in no profit or loss after making allowance for (a) $6,292,500 interest payable to the United States Treasury at a rate of 2 percent on the interest-bearing investment of the Company and (b) $8,175,300 as an allocation for the net cost of the Canal Zone Government payable to the United States Treasury.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This construction provides a matching of transmission facilities with scheduled generation of power at multiple-purpose hydroelectric projects of the Corps of Engineers in an area which ultimately will embrace 10 southeastern States. Existing transmission facilities are inadequate to provide for an integrated operation and to accomplish the transfer of large blocks of power made available at projects under construction to load centers. In order to meet generation schedules of the Corps of Engineers through 1955 shown in the following tabulation, planning and construction are proposed for transmission facilities to deliver power from the Philpott, John H. Kerr, Clark Hill, and Jim Woodruff projects. Under the construction schedule of the Corps of Engineers, the Administration will have the responsibility for marketing over 800,000 kilowatts of power by the end of fiscal year 1953.

1. Construction in progress.—It is proposed to continue work on transmission facilities from Clark Hill to Greenwood in South Carolina.

2. New construction and additions.—Transmission facilities are proposed to deliver power from the Philpott project to a private utility in Virginia; from the John H. Kerr dam to preference customers in North Carolina and Virginia, including an interconnection with a Navy steam plant at Portsmouth; and from the Clark Hill and Jim Woodruff projects to preference customers and private utilities in South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama.

This method of prosecuting the Administration's programs is reflected in administrative provisions contained in appropriation language for the Southwestern Power Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration markets surplus hydroelectric power from multiple-purpose projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers. To perform these functions, the Administration (a) operates and maintains a system of high-voltage transmission lines and related facilities, and (b) contracts for the use of transmission facilities and for the sale, purchase, and interchange of power. Revenues are estimated to rise to $2,500,000 and $5,450,000 in 1952 and 1953, respectively.

1. System operation and maintenance.—In 1953 the Administration will operate and maintain a greatly expanded system as shown in the following table of facilities in service at the end of the three fiscal years:

Transmission lines (miles).....	536	966	1,270
Substations and switching stations.....	2	9	100

¹ Included are 1,804 miles of line which will be operated by the Administration under lease agreements with REA borrowers.

2. Power marketing.—The Administration will have available for marketing 426,000 kilowatts of power by the end of fiscal year 1953. Marketing includes preparation and negotiation of new and revised contracts, design of rates, and development of transmission requirements based on load forecasts and economic feasibility.

3. General administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund, set up and maintained by the Treasury from power receipts in the southwestern area, is available permanently to defray emergency expenses necessary to insure the continuity of service, and is also available in such amounts as may be approved annually in appropriation acts to cover costs in connection with the purchase of electric power and rentals for the use of facilities for the transmission and distribution of power to public bodies, cooperatives, and privately owned companies. Electric power is purchased through contracts with private utility companies and REA cooperatives. Power is transmitted to customers through wheeling arrangements with private utilities and through contracts for lease of transmission facilities of REA cooperatives with an option to purchase provision. The amount available for these purposes in fiscal year 1952 is limited to $250,000. During fiscal year 1953 a number of the REA generation and transmission facilities now under construction for which the Administration has entered into contracts for purchase of power and lease of facilities will be completed and placed in operation. Amounts required to carry out contracts under which power will be purchased and facilities leased in fiscal year 1953 are estimated at $1,425,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Department is responsible for the defense production programs with respect to solid fuels, electric power, fish products, petroleum, and gas and for encouraging the exploration of critical minerals. The Defense Production Act, under which these activities are carried out, expires June 30, 1952. Legislation extending the Defense Production Act is proposed, and the 1953 requirements for these programs will be included in a proposed supplemental estimate for defense production activities.

1. Office of the Secretary, defense production staff.—Staff support is provided the Secretary in directing and coordinating the defense activities of the Department and in maintaining close working relationships with other agencies concerned in the defense program.

2. Defense Solid Fuels Administration.—Programs are developed and carried out for the production, distribution, and use of all forms of coal and coke made from coal, the production of coal chemicals, and the distribution of petroleum coal, including assistance in obtaining supplies, construction materials, equipment, transportation facilities, and manpower and in increasing production through financial aid. Areas of major current concern are those relating to providing materials for the construction, operation, and maintenance of productive facilities; providing adequate facilities for the transportation of solid fuels to consuming areas; and increases in productive facilities for metallurgical coal and coke-producing facilities to meet the demands of the steel expansion program.

3. Defense Electric Power Administration.—Direction and coordination are provided for the program of expansion of the electric power industry so that it will adequately support the defense effort, including assistance in meeting the industry's needs for scarce materials, equipment, and financial assistance. It is estimated that power-generating capacity will be increased by 40 percent in 3 years.

4. Defense Minerals Exploration Administration.—On the basis of general policy and program directives from the Defense Materials Procurement Administration, Defense Minerals Exploration Administration stimulates the production of critical metals needed for national defense through loans for the exploration of possible domestic sources of ores.

5. Defense Fisheries Administration.—Support is given to maintaining or increasing the supply of fishery products to meet military and civilian requirements by (a) aiding in the obtaining of supplies and materials required by the fishery industry; (b) encouraging, and advising in connection with, the expanding of production where appropriate; and (c) advising, and recommending to, other defense agencies in connection with problems of manpower, pricing, financing, and distribution.

6. Petroleum Administration for Defense.—Provision is made for the mobilization of the domestic oil industry and the American oil industry operating abroad, the oil industry of friendly foreign nations, and the domestic gas industry to insure adequate development, distribution, and utilization of resources and facilities to meet civilian and military requirements. Over-all policies on production and distribution of petroleum, petroleum products, and gas are developed, established, and administered through limitation orders or other devices as necessary. Representation is given to the needs of the petroleum and gas industries, and allocations of scarce materials and products are made to those industries. Coordination is provided between the oil and gas industries and other Government agencies.

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bonneville Power Administration markets power developed at Federal generating plants in the Pacific Northwest. Power demands continue to exceed available supply, and growing defense industry loads will further tax generation and transmission facilities. Two proposed interconnections will alleviate the problem by providing additional capacity to the Northwest power pool. One will connect the Administration's system at Klamath Falls, Oreg., with the proposed Bureau of Reclamation transmission facilities from the Shasta plant in California, to provide initially 100,000 kilowatts and the other will connect the Administration's main grid with that of the Idaho Power Co. at Baker, Oreg., to provide 60,000 kilowatts. Additional firm power will become available in 1953 and 1954 from Hungry Horse, McNary, and Detroit Dams on the Federal system, and from the Rock Island Dam where additional capacity is being installed by the Chelan County public utility district. Five-year contracts between the Administration and private utility companies operating in the western group of the northwest power pool have been executed to assist in meeting power deficiencies on the utilities systems. Approximately 740,000 kilowatts of firm power have been contracted for by defense industries. In addition, the Administration plans to increase the supply of interruptible power for defense loads from approximately 325,000 kilowatts in 1952 to over 600,000 kilowatts in 1953. One hundred and twenty thousand kilowatts of additional power have been reserved by the Administration through 1954 for new industry. This is in addition to power reserved previously for sale in Montana and for the new aluminum plant at Wenatchee, Wash., which will be supplied with firm power initially by the Chelan County public utility district.

Revenues in fiscal year 1951 were $36,189,028. During 1952 and 1953 revenues are estimated at $36,625,000 and $39,650,000.

CONSTRUCTION

Construction, Bonneville Power Administration, Department of the Interior—

For construction and acquisition of transmission lines, substations, and appurtenant facilities, as authorized by law, to remain available until expended, [$67,500,000, of which not to exceed $8,387,470 shall be available for personal services, except force account personal services, and] $67,696,400, of which [not to exceed $21,000,000] $4,096,400 is for liquidation of obligations incurred pursuant to authority previously granted. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

During 1953, construction of transmission facilities will be carried forward to conform with generation schedules through 1956 as follows:

Project	Jurisdiction	First generation (fiscal year)	Maximum capacity (kilowatts)
			Present or first year	Ultimate
Bonneville	Corps of Engineers	In operation	564,000	564,000

By January 1956, 10 hydroelectric generating plants are scheduled to be in operation providing a maximum capacity of 4,470,000 kilowatts.

In addition to requirements for the basic system of 230-kilovolt lines and substations interconnecting the sources of power and the loads, the budget provides for facilities to supply power to adjacent areas and for facilities to permit connection of customers with this basic grid at appropriate lower voltages.

Plans will continue to be developed in connection with the marketing of power from The Dalles Dam now under construction by the Corps of Engineers, as well as Hells Canyon Dam of the Bureau of Reclamation and Ice Harbor Dam of the Corps of Engineers for which initiation of construction is contemplated in this budget.

¹ These figures were derived by applying the percentage of the total applicable to this appropriation on the basis of an analysis of specific activities. Since the Bonneville Power Administration realizes definite economies from conducting the construction program and the operation and maintenance program on an integrated staff basis, it is not possible in many cases to assign individual positions to a specific program. This method of prosecuting the Administration's programs is reflected in administrative provisions contained in appropriation language for the Bonneville Power Administration.

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bureau administers 737 million acres of public lands in the United States and Alaska in the interest of conserving forest, range, mineral, and water resources.

Direct obligations under the two annual definite appropriations are estimated to be $11,578,000 for 1953, an increase of $398,189 compared with 1952. Principal increases are for soil and moisture conservation, forest and range activities, and land classification work in the Arkansas-White and Red River Basins.

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES

Management of Lands and Resources, Bureau of Land Management—

For expenses necessary for protection, use, improvement, development, disposal, cadastral surveying, classification, and performance of other functions, as authorized by law, in the management of lands and their resources under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management, [$7,722,605, of which not to exceed $4,864,096 shall be available for personal services] $10,750,000: Provided, That this appropriation may be expended on a reimbursable basis for surveys of lands other than those under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management: Provided further, That for the purpose of surveying federally controlled or intermingled lands contributions toward the cost thereof may be accepted.

[Management of lands and resources: For an additional amount for "Management of lands and resources", $2,000,000, and the limitation under this heading in the Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1952, on the amount available for personal services is increased by $656,000.] (5 U. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Lease and disposal of mineral resources.—Programs for the use and development of mineral resources on the public lands are initiated and administered. Applications for oil, gas, and other minerals are received, and all actions concerned with issuance of leases, mineral patents, and assignments are undertaken.

2. Land use and disposal.—Policies, procedures, and regulations for the multiple use of public lands are formulated. These lands are classified to determine their proper economic development. Programs are undertaken to increase the availability of public lands for use and disposal.

3. Management of grazing lands.—The operations of 30,000 users of 170 million acres of Federal range lands are supervised. The management of these lands is designed to increase the grazing capacity by reducing overuse or unseasonal use, trespass, and by protecting them against fire and erosion.

4. Forestry.—Three million acres of commercial forest and 25 million acres of woodland on public domain in the United States, plus 125 million acres in Alaska, are under management for protection, conservation and maximum sustained production. During 1951, 497 million board feet of timber were sold at a value of $10,300,000. The increase for 1953 is for (1) marketing a greater volume of timber, (2) fire protection, and (3) reasonable progress in other phases of forest management.

5. Cadastral surveys.—These surveys are an integral phase of the land management program and are required to locate and identify legal boundaries of lands under application for lease or disposal, for administering timber sales and management of forest lands, providing legal description necessary to the work of other Government agencies, and for original survey and resurvey of lands whose use is in demand.

6. Soil and moisture conservation.—Seventy-six million acres of public lands are in a state of severe to critical erosion. Only a small portion of this area has received rehabilitation treatment. It is estimated that 450,000 acres will be treated in 1952. The 1953 program will permit work on an additional 650,000 acres.

7. Squaw Butte experiment station.—In cooperative agreement with the Oregon State Agricultural College, studies are made of management problems on the western ranges.

8. Fire suppression.—Provision is made for fighting fires on or threatening public lands under the Bureau's jurisdiction.

9. Maintenance of physical facilities.—Care and preservation of the Bureau's equipment shelters and storehouses are provided.

10. Weed control.—The control and eradication of halogeton was initiated in the 1952 fiscal year. Treatment of this poisonous weed is carried out in cooperation with local groups and individuals in the Western States.

11. General administration.—In addition to normal administrative services, this provides fiscal services for the collection and distribution of receipts totaling more than $55,000,000.

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRSINTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Two major responsibilities of the United States toward the Indian people and the natives of Alaska are to manage trust property, including its protection and development, and to provide services which otherwise are not available to Indians and which are normally provided other citizens through Government and private agencies. The discharge of these responsibilities will prepare the Indian people and the natives of Alaska to assume responsibility for their own affairs and eventually take their proper place in the social and economic life of the Nation.

Obligations for the three annual definite appropriations for current operating expenses are estimated to be $85,719,000 for 1953, an increase of $25,882,822 compared with 1952. This increase is primarily for placing more children in school, serving more patients in hospitals, and accelerating relocation of Indians away from overcrowded reservations. An appropriation of $35,856,000 is requested for construction activities, an increase of $25,281,000 over 1952 for buildings, roads, and irrigation systems.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Hospitals, disease preventive and curative services.—In addition to the operation of 64 hospitals, sanatoriums, and medical centers with a total of 4,700 beds, preventive and curative health services are provided by medical personnel working among the Indians.

2. Educational assistance, facilities and services.—Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children, and where such facilities are inadequate or nonexistent the Bureau operates boarding and day schools.

The skills of Indians are evaluated. The Indians are given financial assistance to settle at new locations, and the integration of Indians with the general population is fostered. The facilities of State and Federal employment services are used in actual job placement. The 1953 program also includes the furnishing of adult vocational training.

5. Maintaining law and order.—Police services and tribal court operations are financed on Indian reservations and special officers direct enforcement of Federal laws.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program promotes the economic rehabilitation of the Indians through the maximum utilization of their resources.

1. Forest and range lands.—This covers management, protection, and utilization of Indian forest, range, and wildlife resources on nearly 50 million acres.

2. Fire suppression.—This is to fight fires on or threatening Indian reservations.

3. Agricultural and industrial assistance.—Improved methods in farming, homemaking, and the use of credit for agricultural and small-business enterprises are taught Indians to enable them to improve their economic condition through their own efforts.

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Land-use practices based on land inventories and soil-conservation plans are introduced to control erosion and promote more effective utilization of soil and water resources. Approximately 31 million acres, or 55 percent of Indian-owned lands, are severely or critically eroded. The job of soil and moisture conservation is 8.8 percent completed.

5. Operation, repair, and maintenance of Indian irrigation systems.—Approximately 300 irrigation systems serving about 840,000 acres of Indian and mixed-ownership lands are operated and maintained. About 70 percent of the cost is financed from collections from water users.

6. Repair and maintenance of roads and trails.—Over 20,000 miles of roads serving isolated Indian areas are maintained where local road maintenance usually does not exist.

7. Development of Indian arts and crafts.—Production and marketing of the products of Indian crafts are fostered through formation of production groups; establishing standards; and improving markets, design, and production methods.

8. Management of Indian trust property.—Banking services are provided for Indians; land is purchased, sold, and leased; estates are probated; and Indian property and money rights are safeguarded.

9. Repair and maintenance of buildings and utilities.—Buildings and their related utility and communication systems are maintained.

10. Weed control.—This is a program for the control and eradication of the poisonous weed halogeton.

This will enable the Service to bring its roads up to standards maintained by counties and will further the policy of turning roads over to local governments for maintenance.

3. Irrigation systems.—This work consists of construction, extension, and rehabilitation of irrigation systems on Indian reservations.

4. Land acquisition.—Lands are acquired that are essential to Indian farming and stock raising, proper administration of forest lands, or of other specific benefit to the Indians concerned.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

INTRODUCTION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish domestic water supplies, control floods, and develop related hydroelectric power in the 17 Western States. Activities in Alaska include water resources investigations as well as construction on the Eklutna power project.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and from three special funds. The special funds are (a) the reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenues, receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands, and certain oil and mineral revenues; (b) the Colorado River dam fund, derived from the revenues of the Boulder Canyon project; and (c) the Colorado River development fund, derived from transfers of money from the Colorado River dam fund. The estimates of appropriation for the budget year are summarized by source as follows:

Annual appropriations	Total	General fund	Reclamation fund	Colorado River dam fund	Colorado River development fund
General investigations.....	$5,000,000	$300,000	$4,200,000	-----	$500,000
Construction and rehabilitation.....	194,720,000	145,565,000	49,155,000	-----	-----
Operation and maintenance.....	19,000,000	1,916,550	14,940,450	$2,143,000	-----
General administrative expenses.....	5,500,000	-----	5,500,000	-----	-----
Emergency fund.....	400,000	-----	400,000	-----	-----
Total.....	224,620,000	147,781,550	74,195,450	2,143,000	500,000

The total appropriation requested amounts to $224,620,000. This represents a decrease of $9,788,522 compared with the current fiscal year and a decrease of $47,059,000 compared with the preceding fiscal year.

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

General Investigations, Bureau of Reclamation—

For engineering and economic investigations of proposed Federal reclamation projects and studies of water conservation and development plans; engineering and economic investigations, as a basis for legislation, and for reports thereon to Congress, relating to projects for the development and utilization of the water resources of Alaska; formulating plans and preparing designs and specifications for authorized Federal reclamation projects or parts thereof prior to initial allocation of appropriations for construction of such projects or parts; and activities preliminary to the reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or extension of existing projects; to remain available until expended, [$4,500,000, of which not to exceed $4,234,553 shall be available for personal services, and] $5,000,000, of which [$3,810,000] $4,200,000 shall be derived from the reclamation fund and $500,000 shall be derived from the Colorado River development fund: Provided, That the expenditure of any sums from this appropriation for investigations of any nature requested by States, municipalities, or other interests shall be upon the basis of the State, municipality, or other interest advancing at least 50 per centum of the estimated cost of such investigations: Provided further, That, except as herein expressly provided with respect to investigations in Alaska, no part of this appropriation shall be expended in the conduct of activities which are not authorized by law. (Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1952.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Surveys and investigations are made to determine the feasibility of potential reclamation projects. Detailed plans are developed for authorized projects prior to appropriation of construction funds. Total investigations scheduled, excluding a number of investigations for which stream gaging only is in progress, are as follows:

	1951 actual	1952 estimate	1953 estimate

The appropriation requested for this activity amounts to $5,000,000. This represents an increase of $500,000 compared with the current fiscal year and a decrease of $635,000 compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase provides for maintaining the total program at substantially the current level of operation.

1. Engineering and economic investigations.—These are made to plan the development of river basins or subbasins, including detailed investigations of potential projects, prior to authorization. Included in this activity is the continued participation in the Arkansas, White, and Red River Basins survey.

2. Advance planning.—Detailed field data are collected, designs and specifications prepared, and repayment plans completed for authorized projects, prior to obtaining appropriations for construction.

3. Investigations of existing projects.—These are for determining the need for reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or water conservation on existing projects.

4. Alaskan investigations.—These are engineering and economic investigations relating to projects for the development and utilization of the water resources of Alaska.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work consists of collection of preconstruction data, preparation of designs and specifications, award and servicing of construction contracts, construction of authorized projects, operation and maintenance during construction of completed features of projects and rehabilitation of existing facilities.

The appropriation requested for this activity amounts to $194,720,000. This represents a decrease of $13,332,725 compared with the current fiscal year and a decrease of $49,013,000 compared with the preceding fiscal year. The decrease is due mainly to the smaller requirements for projects approaching completion and general deferral of new construction starts. Only one new construction start has been programmed for 1953.

1-54. Construction.—Fifty-six authorized projects, including 20 Missouri River Basin units, will be active in 1953. The present status of this program is as follows:

Status	Number of projects	Estimated obligations for authorized projects (in millions)

² Includes 19 phase A units of the Missouri River Basin project.

³ Consists of 1 phase A unit of the Missouri River Basin project.

⁴ Includes balance of Missouri River Basin units as 1 project.

Work will be continued on 36 projects and 19 units of the Missouri River Basin, and initiated on 1 unit of the Missouri River Basin. Of these, nine will be substantially completed in 1953. Work will be commenced on 2 new features of the Colorado-Big Thompson project, the California-Oregon transmission line and new features on the Bostwick and Frenchman-Cambridge units of the Missouri River Basin. Bureau operations during 1953 will provide facilities for 227,694 additional acres of irrigated land and 238,750 kilowatts of new power-generating capacity. This program is to be financed by $192,378,000 of new construction appropriation, and $21,774,505 from estimated balances available from prior-year funds and contributions. Of the new appropriation, 88 percent will be used to finance the work on 6 major projects, and 20 units of the Missouri River Basin as shown on the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

During fiscal year 1953, 32 reclamation projects or divisions of projects, many of which involve multiple-purpose operations, will be operated and maintained in whole or in part by the Bureau of Reclamation. In addition there are included in this activity the operation and maintenance of the Colorado River front work and levee system, soil and moisture conservation operations, and the operation of Boulder City, Nev. Excluded are completed units of the Missouri River Basin project, and other partially completed projects, the operation and maintenance of which is financed from construction and rehabilitation funds, and the Fort Peck project transmission system, which is financed from a revolving fund.

The appropriation requested amounts to $19,000,000. This represents an increase of $3,022,406 compared with the current fiscal year and an increase of $3,553,000 compared with the preceding fiscal year. These increases are primarily due to additional facilities being placed in an operation and maintenance status. Funds in the amount of $1,922,620, a decrease of $46,360 under 1952, will be advanced by water-user organizations.

(a) Operation and maintenance of irrigation facilities.—The irrigation systems of 12 projects or divisions of projects will be operated by the Bureau of Reclamation in fiscal year 1953. In addition, 16 projects or divisions of projects are operated by the Bureau of Reclamation entirely from funds advanced by water-user organizations.

(b) Operation and maintenance of power facilities.—The power systems of 15 multipurpose projects, including 25 power plants with an installed capacity of 4,465,250 kilowatts and 4,900 miles of high-voltage transmission lines will be operated in 1953. Energy sales and revenues for electric operations at all reclamation plants, including Hoover Dam power plant, are as follows:

Fiscal years	Energy sales in million kilowatt-hours	Revenue in dollars
1951.....	20,975	$35,927,370
1952.....	22,170	41,658,000
1953.....	22,470	42,996,000

Surplus electric energy is sold at wholesale to customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration cooperatives and other Government agencies having preference rights under law, and private utilities.

(c) Other operation and maintenance activities.—These are (1) maintenance of river operation facilities; (2) continuing investigation of river operation problems incident to construction and operation of major storage dams in the lower Colorado River; (3) soil and moisture conservation measures on approximately 15 million acres of public land under Reclamation withdrawal, including revegetation of overgrazed or denuded lands, development of water-spreading structures, construction of check dams, and removal of salt cedar growths; and (4) operation of the Boulder City, Nev., municipality, which heretofore has been included as a part of the operation and maintenance estimate of Boulder Canyon project.

[TRANSFER OF CERTAIN FACILITIES, FORT PECK PROJECT, MONTANA]

[The Secretary of the Army is hereby authorized to transfer to the Department of the Interior without exchange of funds, all of the right, title, and interest of the Department of the Army in and to the following facilities, including rights-of-way (except that portion of the rights-of-way within the Fort Peck Reservoir area), but there shall be reserved the right to use the power facilities for the purpose of transmitting power to the Fort Peck project during emergency periods when the Fort Peck power plant is not functioning: (a) the Fort Peck-Rainbow (Great Falls) 161 kilovolt transmission line; (b) the Rainbow (Great Falls) terminal facilities; and (c) the Fort Peck-Whatley 50 kilovolt transmission line and substation.]

SPECIAL FUNDS

Sums herein referred to as being derived from the reclamation fund, the Colorado River dam fund, or the Colorado River development fund, are appropriated from the special funds in the Treasury created by the Act of June 17, 1902 (43 U. S. C. 391), the Act of December 21, 1928 (43 U. S. C. 617a), and the Act of July 19, 1940 (43 U. S. C. 618a), respectively. Such sums shall be transferred, upon request of the Secretary, to be merged with and expended under the heads herein specified; and the unexpended balances of sums transferred for expenditure under the heads "Operation and maintenance" and "General administrative expenses" shall revert and be credited to the special fund from which derived.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations to the Bureau of Reclamation shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [one] two hundred passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; [not to exceed $50,000 for] services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. S. C. 55a), including such services at rates for individuals not to exceed $100 per day, when authorized by the Secretary; payment of claims for damage to or loss of property, personal injury, or death arising out of activities of the Bureau of Reclamation; payment, except as otherwise provided for, of compensation and expense of persons on the rolls of the Bureau of Reclamation appointed as authorized by law to represent the United States in the negotiation and administration of interstate compacts without reimbursement or return under the reclamation laws; rewards for information or evidence concerning violations of law involving property under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Reclamation; performance of the functions specified under the head "Operation and Maintenance Administration", Bureau of Reclamation, in the Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1945; preparation and dissemination of useful information including recordings, photographs, and photographic prints; and studies of recreational uses of reservoir areas, and investigation and recovery of archeological and paleontological remains in such areas in the same manner as provided for in the Act of August 21, 1935 (16 U. S. C. 461-467): Provided, That no part of any appropriation made herein shall be available pursuant to the Act of April 19, 1945 (43 U. S. C. 377), for expenses other than those incurred on behalf of specific reclamation projects except "General Administrative Expenses" and amounts provided for reconnaissance, basin surveys, and general engineering and research under the head "General Investigations."

Allotments to the Missouri River Basin project from the appropriation under the head "Construction and rehabilitation" shall be available additionally for said project for those functions of the Bureau of Reclamation provided for under the head "General investigations" (but this authorization shall not preclude use of the appropriation under said head within that area), and for the continuation of investigations by agencies of the Department on a general plan for the development of the Missouri River Basin. Such allotments may be expended through or in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies, and advances to such agencies are hereby authorized.

Sums appropriated herein which are expended in the performance of functions of the Bureau of Reclamation shall be reimbursable or returnable to the extent and in the manner provided by law.

Any agency of the United States Government having title thereto is authorized to transfer to the Bureau of Reclamation, without reimbursement, parts, equipment and supplies for aircraft excess to its needs.

No part of any appropriation for the Bureau of Reclamation, contained in this Act or in any prior Act, which represents amounts earned under the terms of a contract but remaining unpaid, shall be obligated for any other purpose, regardless of when such amounts are to be paid: Provided, That the incurring of any obligation prohibited by this paragraph shall be deemed a violation of section 665 of title 31 of the United States Code.

No funds appropriated to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance, except those derived from advances by water users, shall be used for the particular benefit of lands (a) within the boundaries of an irrigation district, (b) of any member of a water users' organization, or (c) of any individual, when such district, organization, or individual is in arrears for more than twelve months in the payment of charges due under a contract entered into with the United States pursuant to laws administered by the Bureau of Reclamation.

[Not to exceed $2,783,000 of the appropriation herein made for "Construction and rehabilitation, Bureau of Reclamation" shall be expended for completion of construction of the Coachella division of the All-American Canal system, Boulder Canyon project: Provided, That any sums thereof so expended in excess of the amount required to be repaid under the existing contract between the Coachella Valley County Water District and the United States shall be repayable by said district to the United States unless said district shall be judicially determined by a court of competent jurisdiction to be not liable therefor.]

[Not to exceed 12 per centum of the construction allotment made by the Bureau of Reclamation for any project from the appropriation "Construction and Rehabilitation" contained in this Act shall be available for construction work by force account or on a hired-labor basis; except that not to exceed $225,000 may on approval of the Commissioner be expended for construction work by force account on any one project or Missouri Basin unit when the work is unsuitable for contract or when excessive bids are received; and except in cases of emergencies local in character, so declared by the Commissioner.] (Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1952.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Survey (a) performs geologic and topographic surveys, (b) makes water resources investigations, (c) classifies the public lands as to mineral and water value, and (d) supervises drilling and mining operations on public lands.

1. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps of the United States, its Territories and possessions are prepared for use of Government agencies and the public. These maps provide the basic information on the natural and man-made features of the earth's surface that is essential to (a) the national defense, (b) engineering development programs, (c) geologic investigations, and (d) the effective utilization of public works. For 1953, engineering and general-purpose maps for an estimated 110,000 square miles will be compiled, compared with 80,000 in 1951 and 100,000 in 1952. Nearly three-fourths of the total area of the United States and Alaska remains to be adequately mapped. The program proposed for 1953 will provide for the mapping of about one twenty-fifth of the 2½ million square miles that still remain to be mapped.

2. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—Systematic geologic mapping aided by special investigations in such fields as geophysics, geochemistry, petrology, and paleontology is the basis for (a) an accurate appraisal of the Nation's mineral resources, (b) scientific exploration for additional resources, and (c) basic data on terrain and foundation conditions. Increases in 1953 provide for acceleration of all major aspects of the program as follows: (1) Strengthening some current studies and initiating several new studies of mineral districts which hold high promise of adding to our resources of the most critical and strategic minerals; (2) increasing investigations of mineral fuels, with emphasis continuing on potential petroleum-bearing regions; and (3) expanding general service geologic mapping directed toward support of industrial and civil defense construction.

3. Water resources investigations.—These investigations provide basic water facts to assure adequate water supplies for military and industrial expansion, increased domestic use, irrigation, hydroelectric power, flood control, highway and bridge design, land use, and navigation. The program includes determinations of the flow, stage, sediment discharge, and reservoir content of rivers; locations and safe yields of underground waters; the chemical quality and temperature of waters; and the availability of water supplies within special areas as related to present and future demands. The 1953 program will provide increased coverage in areas of water shortage and of growing demands, such as the Southwest, the Columbia River Basin, and industrial centers; in military areas such as Alaska; and in the interpretation and recompilation of older water records to better meet the increasing demands of the Nation for a working knowledge of its water resources.

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Hydrologic and geologic information is furnished the land-management bureaus in connection with the planning, surveys, and investigations preliminary to taking measures for soil and moisture conservation on land under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

5. Classification of lands.—Federal and Indian lands are classified according to their mineral and water-power resources. Such classification provides the foundation of the system of public-land administration prescribed by the various mineral leasing laws. Owing to the unprecedented rate of development of this Nation's oil and gas resources, there has been a remarkable annual increase in the workload borne by this activity. Increased funds included for 1953 will provide an operating staff only 35 percent larger than it was during 1949 to handle a workload that has increased nearly 90 percent since that time.

6. Supervision of mining and oil and gas leases.—Prospecting, development, and production of minerals under some 57,000 leased properties are supervised. Since 1945, there has been a tremendous increase in the value of minerals produced ($161,000,000 to $442,000,000) and in royalties earned ($12,500,000 to $40,000,000) from supervised properties. Such royalties are shared with the States, 37½ percent going directly to the States where the minerals are produced and 52½ percent being credited to the reclamation fund. The 10 percent balance is retained by the United States Treasury. There has been a threefold increase in the number of producing mines, producing wells, and leased properties during the past 7 years. Increased funds for 1953 will provide an operating staff about 50 percent greater than in 1949 to handle a workload that is estimated at 150 percent greater.

7. General administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Fuels—(a) Coal.—Scientific research and engineering investigations and tests are carried out on the chemical and physical properties of coal and its mining, preparation, combustion, carbonization, and gasification. Coal samples are analyzed; a fuel economy service is performed for Government agencies; coking coal reserves are estimated; efficiency of coal-mining methods is evaluated; methods for the removal of underground water in anthracite mines and for improving the mechanized mining of anthracite are studied; economic and statistical studies are performed.

(b) Petroleum and natural gas.—Seven projects are carried on: (1) Engineering research on problems connected with the development and production of petroleum and natural gas; (2) scientific and technologic research on secondary recovery methods in producing petroleum; (3) studies of transportation and storage problems; (4) studies involving the chemistry and refining of petroleum and natural gas; (5) fundamental research to determine the thermodynamic properties of hydrocarbons; (6) statistical and economic studies of petroleum and natural gas; and (7) maintenance of buildings and research facilities.

(c) Synthetic liquid fuels.—Laboratory research is conducted and demonstration plants are operated for the production of synthetic liquid fuels from coal, oil shale, and agricultural and forest products. The primary objective is to conserve and increase the liquid fuel resources of the Nation by the direct hydrogenation of coal, by the production and hydrogenation of synthesis gas from coal, by mining and retorting oil shale and refining shale oil, and by the underground gasification of coal.

(d) Helium.—Scientific and technologic research is carried on in resources, production, storage, and utilization of by helium.

2. Minerals and metals.—Investigations and research are conducted to improve mining technology, examine ore deposits, discover metallurgical processes to make better use of low-grade ores, develop substitutes for scarce commodities, and statistical and economical information are analyzed and disseminated.

3. Control of fires in inactive coal deposits.—Fires in inactive or abandoned deposits on public lands or private property are controlled or extinguished.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for (1) investigations of accidents and rescue work in disasters affecting the mineral industries, (2) coal-mine inspections and investigations, and (3) testing and research of explosives and explosions.

1. Investigation of accidents and rescue work.—This aims to reduce working hazards, safeguard the health of workers, and promote efficiency in the mineral industries. Also, accident records of the mineral industries are collected, compiled, and published.

2. Mine inspections and investigations.—Reports are prepared on the hazards observed in coal mines, with recommendations to eliminate or alleviate them, copies going to the mine management, State mining department, and local and national union headquarters (if an organized mine).

NATIONAL PARK SERVICEINTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Service administers national parks and other areas of unusual historic, scenic, scientific, or recreational character in the interest of their preservation as well as their public use, and makes studies of the recreational resources of the United States in cooperation with Federal, State, and local agencies.

Direct obligations for current operating expenses, excluding permanent appropriations, are estimated to be $18,155,000 for 1953, an increase of $1,184,788 over 1952. The appropriation for construction in 1953 is $12,750,000, an increase of $1,380,000 over 1952. The increase in current operating expenses is to meet increased visitor use of parks and other areas, and that for construction is mainly for slight acceleration in the rate of construction of parkways.

MANAGEMENT AND PROTECTION

Management and Protection, National Park Service—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Management of park and other areas.—The 180 park and other areas comprise about 24 million acres located in 38 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. Actual and estimated visitors and revenue receipts are as follows:

	1950 actual	1951 actual	1952 estimate	1953 estimate

Receipts.....	$3,527,606	$3,554,817	$3,725,000	$3,825,000

2. Forestry and fire control.—Forests, brushland, or grassland on over 10 million acres are protected from fire, destructive insects, diseases, and other preventable damage.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—The 1953 program is directed toward corrective measures on 22 of 70 selected problem areas.

4. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are made of the park, parkway, and recreational potentialities of the United States and its Territories, frequently in cooperation with Federal, State, and local agencies; historic remains and archeological sites threatened with destruction are surveyed and important remains salvaged; and investigations are made to determine whether agencies receiving surplus Federal real property with a recreational potential are utilizing those properties in conformity with terms of the transfer agreements.

5. Concessions management.—There are 162 major concessionaires operating in parks and other areas. Contracts are negotiated, or permits issued; rates are established; services to be rendered are determined; and records are audited.

FISH AND WILDLIFE SERVICE

The Service conducts research, management, and demonstration programs to conserve and restore the fishery and wildlife resources for both recreational and economical use.

The total direct obligations under the four annual definite appropriations are estimated to be $12,652,000 for 1953, a decrease of $1,009,070 compared with 1952. This results primarily from a decrease in construction activities of $1,267,257 offset in part by increases in other activities of $258,187 pertaining principally to operation of enlarged hatchery facilities and enforcement of the fish and game laws.

MANAGEMENT OF RESOURCES

Management of Resources, Fish and Wildlife Service—

For expenses necessary for conservation, management, protection, and utilization of fish and wildlife resources, and for the performance of other authorized functions related to such resources; operation of the industrial properties within the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge (61 Stat. 770); maintenance of the herd of long-horned cattle on the Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge; purchase or rent of land, and functions related to wildlife management in California (16 U. S. C. 695-695c); and not to exceed $30,000 for payment, in the discretion of the Secretary, for information or evidence concerning violations of laws administered by the Fish and Wildlife Service; [$6,678,196, of which not to exceed $4,259,363 shall be available for personal services] $7,292,000. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administration of fish and game laws.—These laws apply to the fisheries and game of Alaska, the protection of migratory birds and certain game mammals, the interstate transportation of game fish in violation of law, and the enforcement of international agreements. The increase for 1953 is principally for additional enforcement agents and replacement of aircraft engines.

2. Propagation and distribution of food fishes.—One hundred and three stations are operated to produce fish and eggs for the propagation of commercial food and game fishes. Fish screens and other protective devices are maintained on Federal areas in the West. The increases proposed for 1953 are principally for the operation of enlarged fish hatcheries and for the replacement of equipment.

3. Mammal and bird reservations.—Two hundred and eighty-two refuges, consisting of more than 18,000,000 acres, are operated for the conservation of migratory waterfowl and for the preservation and propagation of rare birds and mammals.

4. River basin studies.—To insure that adequate measures are taken for the conservation and development of fish and wildlife, studies are made of proposed Federal power, navigation, and irrigation projects. The increase proposed for 1953 is to expand these studies in the Arkansas-White and Red River Basins and in the New England-New York area.

5. Control of predatory animals and injurious rodents.—Such control is exercised on public lands. Technical information and correlation and supervision of cooperative programs are provided to protect livestock, game, poultry, forage, crops, forests, structures, foods, and feeds from destruction by harmful animals. The increase requested for 1953 is mostly for the replacement of equipment.

6. Soil and moisture conservation.—Nearly 5.5 million acres in 63 refuges within the continental United States are critically eroded or severely depleted. A long-range program for developing a conservation plan for each of these refuges has been initiated. Work is now being done on 23 refuges.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The highway system of Alaska is being extended and improved to meet increasing military and civilian needs.

1. Preparation of plans.—Location surveys are made and designs prepared for road projects.

2. Construction in progress.—The Alaska, Glenn, and Richardson Highways are being surfaced with asphalt, and $11,800,000 is proposed for this program in 1953. It is also proposed to continue work at a minimum rate on the McKinley Park-Richardson Highway road, the Taylor Highway, the Cordova-Richardson Highway road, and the local road program.

3. Reconstruction.—Existing roads and bridges are being improved to meet standards imposed by increases in traffic and to eliminate dangerous conditions.

4. New construction.—It is proposed in 1953 to construct an arterial highway from Fort Richardson to Anchorage and a new bridge to replace an antiquated structure at Fairbanks.

This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of loans for the great majority of Indians who cannot borrow from banks on personal notes or chattel mortgages and cannot obtain loans from other credit sources because of the restricted nature of their property.

BUREAU OF MINES

Revolving Fund, Helium Production, Bureau of Mines—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This revolving fund, derived from the sale of helium and other helium products for medical, scientific, and commercial use is used for operation of the helium plants. This represents a consolidation of two accounts—"Helium production" and "Development and operation of helium properties." Appropriation language preceding this presentation provides for their consolidation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Alaska Railroad aids national defense and the development of the Territory. The railroad, now hauling all-time peak tonnage, operates 470 miles of track between Seward and Fairbanks and about 65 miles of branch lines; it also operates three hotels and two river steamers. Railroad freight hauled is as follows:

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Corporation was created by the act of June 30, 1949 (63 Stat. 350), to promote the economic development of the Virgin Islands. Appropriations not to exceed $9,000,000 were authorized to be made to a revolving fund in the Treasury, based upon annual budgets submitted by the Corporation. The appropriation of additional funds as grants to finance specific programs not primarily of a revenue-producing character and to reimburse the Corporation for operating losses is also authorized.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

1. Loan program.—Loans are made (a) to assist small farmers in financing soil-conservation projects; (b) to aid small farmers in agricultural diversification and marketing, to improve breeds of livestock, and to grow poultry and livestock feeds for local requirements; (c) to aid small businesses, when loans are not available from other Federal or private sources.

2. Sales and rentals program.—The main activity of the Corporation will continue to be the production and sale of sugar, including assistance to small farmers by rental of agricultural, irrigation, and conservation equipment.

3. Power program.—It is proposed in 1953 to purchase and improve the municipally owned power properties on St. Thomas and continue improvement of St. Croix power facilities purchased in 1952 by the Corporation.

4. Non-revenue-producing activities.—These include water and soil conservation, development of tourist trade, and improvement of livestock strains.

5. Administrative expenses.—It is proposed that for 1953 the Corporation operate under a limitation for administrative expenses of $134,000.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

During 1951 a repayment of $33,231 was made to the Treasury representing the excess of grants for estimated 1950 losses over the actual loss for 1950. Repayment of borrowings of $1,500 for 1951 and $364,357 for 1952 represents payments and liquidation, respectively, of loans from the Rural Electrification Administration.

An appropriation of $474,000 was received in 1951 to cover losses on revenue-producing activities in 1951 and was continued available in 1952. An additional appropriation of $111,000 is requested to cover estimated 1953 losses. An appropriation of $130,000 was received in 1952 to finance non-revenue-producing activities, and $144,000 is requested in 1953 for this purpose. During 1951 the Corporation borrowed $14,186 from the Rural Electrification Administration.

The revenue-producing operations of the Corporation are financed from the revolving fund, which is authorized at not to exceed $9,000,000. Through 1952 there has been appropriated to the revolving fund $3,845,000, of which $1,250,000 was for 1950 and $2,595,000 for 1952. The appropriation requested in 1953 is $1,665,000, of which $800,000 is for the power program, $300,000 for the loan program, and $565,000 for the sales and rentals program, which mainly consists of the production and sale of sugar and assistance to small farmers.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The Corporation operated at a net loss of $376,609 in 1951 and the losses for 1952 and 1953 are estimated at $177,300 and $111,000, respectively. A severe 5-month drought had a marked effect on the operating results for 1951. The 1951 losses were offset by grants appropriated from the general fund of the U. S. Treasury. No appropriation is requested to cover the estimated total deficit of $173,042 for 1953 at this time.

PROPOSED FOR LATER TRANSMISSION

Salaries and expenses, defense production activities, Interior (under proposed legislation, 1953).—The Budget includes a supplemental appropriation of $5,500,000 for 1953 under proposed legislation based upon a contemplated extension of the Defense Production Act.

ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES

	1951 actual	1952 estimate	1953 estimate
Proposed supplemental appropriation			$5,500,000
Unliquidated obligations, end of year			400,000
Expenditures out of current authorizations			5,100,000

Management of lands and resources, Bureau of Land Management (under existing legislation, 1952).—Unfavorable weather conditions, in the Territory of Alaska and the western United States, resulted in large fire losses. Funds programed for fire suppression within 1952 appropriations were not sufficient to cover the cost of fighting these fires. An estimated supplemental appropriation for 1952 in the amount of $270,000 is included in the Budget for covering the costs incurred and for fighting fires in the remainder of the fiscal year.

Resources management, Bureau of Indian Affairs (under existing legislation, 1952).—Unfavorable weather conditions in the Southwestern States and in California resulted in severe fire conditions which necessitated the use of funds in excess of those programed for fire suppression within 1952 appropriations. To cover this cost and for fighting fires in the remainder of 1952, an estimated supplemental appropriation for 1952 in the amount of $150,000 is included in the Budget.

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

The Department serves primarily as the law office of the Federal Government, providing the President and heads of executive agencies with legal counsel. It also investigates alleged violations of Federal law, prosecutes offenders before the Federal courts, maintains prisons for the incarceration of those sentenced, and protects the interests of the Government in civil matters. The departmental program is made up of the work of (1) the law offices; (2) the Federal Bureau of Investigation; (3) the Immigration and Naturalization Service; (4) the Federal Prison System including Federal Prison Industries, Inc.; and (5) the Office of Alien Property.

Appropriations proposed for 1953 total $190 million compared with $205.6 million, the sum of appropriations enacted and supplementals proposed for 1952. This is a net decrease of $15.6 million, accounted for principally by a decrease of $15 million for claims of persons of Japanese ancestry, a decrease of $5.6 million for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and an increase of $2.4 million for the Immigration and Naturalization Service. The decrease for claims is made possible by Public Law 116, Eighty-second Congress which will permit settlement of the majority of the claims in 1952. The decrease for Federal Bureau of Investigation results from savings through reduction of overtime work. The increase for Immigration and Naturalization Service will strengthen enforcement work in the interest of internal security.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau secures information for use as evidence in prosecution of violation of Federal law and in safeguarding the Nation's internal security.

The appropriation requested represents a net decrease of $5,600,000 compared with 1952. This decrease is due primarily to the discontinuance of overtime work and the reduction in atomic energy and loyalty programs for 1953 when compared to workloads estimated for 1952. Savings through discontinuance of overtime in 1952 amount to $9,066,991, which the Bureau was instructed to apply to cost of pay increases and to the cost of performing additional workloads for the Atomic Energy Commission and the Coast Guard.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—Interchange of information is maintained with other agencies, particularly in internal security. During the fiscal year 1951, 775,660 investigative matters were referred to the Bureau. During 1953, it is expected that the number will exceed 800,000.

2. Identification by fingerprints.—Criminal records, including fingerprints, are acquired, classified, preserved, and exchanged with other law-enforcement agencies.

3. Operation of criminal and scientific laboratory.—About 25 percent of the laboratory's services are performed for other law-enforcement agencies. During the fiscal year 1951 a total of 104,937 examinations were made. In 1953, an increase of 6.5 percent over 1951 is expected.

4. Training schools and inspectional services.—Instructional courses covering all aspects of law enforcement are conducted for the Bureau's personnel and that of other law enforcement agencies.

5. Emergencies in connection with kidnaping and bank robbery.—A fund is held in reserve for release by the Attorney General in emergencies related to kidnaping, extortion, or bank robbery.

Income.—Sales of products manufactured amounted to $21,493,355 in 1951, and resulted in a net income of $3,381,449 after having deducted vocational training and administrative expense. Sales increased $5,259,018 and net profit $1,520,529 over 1950. These increases resulted largely from additional volume without a correspondingly greater expense and from a general increase in selling prices due to the higher price level in the commercial markets. Sales are estimated at $22,250,000 for the years 1952 and 1953, with net income of $2,783,500 and $2,787,500. The estimated decrease in earning is due largely to anticipated narrowing in profit margin caused by increased costs of materials and other costs.

Expenses.—Cost of sales in 1951 amounted to $17,159,261, excluding depreciation, an increase of $4,057,194 over the prior year. However, the percentage of cost of sales to net sales decreased 1.3 percent during the same period. Cost of sales for the current and budget years are estimated at $18,209,519 and $18,182,351, excluding depreciation.

Retained earnings.—This account represents earnings of $30,125,274 less dividends paid into the United States Treasury of $16,400,000 since January 1, 1935, leaving a net balance of $13,725,274 on June 30, 1951.

Investment of United States Government.—The Government's investment, which bears no interest, consists of contributed capital and earnings retained to conduct the Corporation's operations. The net investment of the Government is $18,676,619 in 1951, and anticipated to be $18,760,119 in 1952, and $18,547,619 in 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau of Employment Security carries out the Federal responsibilities in the administration and allocation of funds to the States for the Federal-State system of public employment services and unemployment insurance. Direct obligations for 1953 are estimated to be $8,037,000, an increase of $1,415,981 compared with the existing 1952 direct obligations. The increase is primarily due to an increase in the Mexican farm-labor importation program. A supplemental of $900,000 for 1952 for the Mexican farm-labor program is proposed for later submission.

1. Veterans placement service.—This includes helping State local employment offices in rendering suitable counseling and placement services to veterans and promoting the interest of employers in employing veterans.

2. Farm placement service.—This service guides the interstate movement of migratory workers in cooperation with the farm placement activities of the States, and carries out a program for importation of Mexican agricultural labor under the provisions of Public Law 78, Eighty-second Congress.

3. Collection and interpretation of labor market information.—Facts and figures are reported and analyzed on (a) the administrative operations of the unemployment insurance and employment service programs, and (b) supply, demand, and utilization of labor by areas, industries, and occupations.

4. Assistance in maintaining public employment services.—Effective employment service is promoted by assistance to the States on (a) organization and management, (b) counseling and testing of veterans, handicapped workers, and others in the field of occupational adjustment, and (c) employer contact programs.

5. Unemployment insurance services.—State laws and interpretations are reviewed to assure conformity with the requirements of the Federal law. Proposals are developed and surveys made to improve the existing programs.

6. Field guidance, financing, and auditing of State operations.—Technical assistance is provided to State agencies and the administrative needs of the States are evaluated as a basis for making grants. Annual audits of the grants are made.

7. Executive direction and management services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants are made to the States for administration of the unemployment compensation and employment service programs.

The total appropriation asked for is $195,680,000. This is an increase of $12,120,000 over the current fiscal year and $23,541,000 more than the preceding fiscal year. Although workloads and employment are expected to drop, the appropriation requested is up primarily because of increases in the average annual State salary rates and in the contingency fund. The average annual salary rate was $3,073 in 1951, is estimated at $3,400 in 1952, and is expected to rise to $3,500 in 1953. Employment averaged 43,107 in 1951 and is estimated to drop to 42,000 in 1952, and 40,800 in 1953.

1. Unemployment compensation activities.—These consist of (a) determining the tax liability of each employer, collecting the taxes, and auditing the employer's records; (b) maintaining a record of each employee's wages; (c) accepting initial claims for benefits; (d) processing claims to determine eligibility and the amount and duration of benefits; (e) taking continued claims and verifying the claimant's continuing eligibility; (f) making benefit payments; and (g) conducting hearings and making decisions on appeals.

3. State administration.—Provides leadership and planning for the unemployment compensation and employment service activities in the central and local offices as well as legal, fiscal, personnel, training, and research activities.

4. Contingency fund.—This fund is used to meet unforeseen increases in the number of claims filed, in State salary rates, and changes in State unemployment compensation laws. All these increase the administrative costs. During 1952 such increases have already amounted to $17,189,000 and an additional $5,000,000 is estimated. The 1953 amount is estimated as $12,000,000.

The Bureau is the principal fact-finding agency of the Department. It develops economic data affecting labor for use in policy determinations by the Department, other agencies, and the Congress and for the use of business, labor, and other parts of the public.

Direct obligations are estimated to be $6,358,000 for 1953, an increase of $884,109 compared with 1952. The increases result from the requirements of the revised Consumers' Price and Wholesale Price indexes and the need for additional information on housing and public construction and labor conditions in foreign countries created by the international situation.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Department delivers the mails and performs related services to the public, including provision of money orders and postal savings. Because postal business reflects general economic conditions, the upward trend in the national economy has brought with it a large increase in mail volume.

The operation of the postal service is financed from postal revenue. Any deficit is met by the Treasury. Specific authority to incur obligations for operation is contained in four appropriations: General Administration, Postal Operations, Transportation of Mails, and Claims.

The total appropriation asked for amounts to $2,822,100,000. This represents an increase of $88,188,000 compared with the current fiscal year including proposed supplementals. The increase is the result of an estimated 3.03 percent increase in mail volume and the full-year operation of increased leave provisions, Public Law 233, as compared with part-year cost in 1952. Principal increases in addition to Public Law 233, are proposed for additional employment, space, equipment, and transportation to provide for handling the increased mail volume.

Almost 99.27 percent of the total appropriation will be used for postal operations, transportation of mails, and claims, while about 0.8 percent will go into general administration.

A summary statement showing revenue, expenses, and volume of business is presented in the following tabulation:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The total appropriation asked for amounts to $22,700,000. This represents an increase of $137,000 compared with the current fiscal year, including proposed supplementals. While there is a decrease of approximately 100 average positions in 1953, a net increase in funds requested results primarily from higher travel and printing costs.

1. Coordination and control—(a) Executive direction and staff service.—This consists of over-all direction of the postal service and staff services such as are furnished by the Office of the Administrative Assistant to the Postmaster General, the Departmental Personnel Office, and the Office of the Solicitor. The increase in 1953 reflects the cost of additional hearing examiners required under the Administrative Procedure Act of 1946 and the full year costs of the postal and transportation rate unit established in 1952.

(b) Direction of fiscal and accounting services.—Provision is made for supervision of all financial transactions of the postal service, such as occur in the distribution and sale of stamps, the postal savings and money order systems, and other special financial services; administration of the cost ascertainment system, and the second-class mailing privilege; classification of mail matter, and examination, auditing, and settlement of postmasters' accounts at the 12 regional accounting offices. About $18 billion in financial transactions flow through the postal service annually. The decrease in the 1953 budget request results from the completion at Asheville, N. C., of the audit of the old money order system and postal savings accounts, and the absorption by regional accounting units in the field of certain audit and accounting work being performed at Washington, D. C.

(c) Inspection service.—Periodic and special inspections of post offices are made to determine the state of the efficiency and adequacy of the postal service and to assure that postal funds and the mails are properly protected. The 1953 estimate provides for the full-year utilization of inspectors and clerks authorized during the current year.

2. Direction of post office operations.—General direction of postal operations is furnished approximately 41,000 post offices, including authorizations for changes in the collection, dispatch, delivery, and local transportation of mails. The increase in 1953 will provide additional employees to participate in program studies to improve efficiency and economy in field operations.

3. Direction of transportation services.—This comprises the general administration of railway and highway post offices and terminals; negotiation of postal conventions and agreements with foreign countries and the administration of international postal services; approval of contracts for mail transportation; and determination of dispatch schedules and direction of movement of mail for the entire postal service.

4. Direction of general services.—Provision is made for general administration over (a) maintenance of post office buildings; (b) procurement and maintenance of Government-owned motor vehicles; (c) manufacture and repair of mail bags and locks; and (d) procurement, inspection, and distribution of supplies and equipment. The 1953 estimate provides for strengthening fiscal control of field operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This covers supervision and operation of post offices, including collection, dispatch, and local transportation and delivery of mail; distribution of mail in transit; operation and care of buildings and grounds used by the postal field service; and postal supplies and equipment.

The total appropriation asked for amounts to $2,177,000,000. This represents an increase of $67,938,000 compared with the current fiscal year including proposed supplementals. Principal increases are proposed for additional clerk and carrier employment to handle the increased volume of mail, and additional cost of increased annual leave on a full-year basis.

1. Administration of post office operations.—Local administration of post offices is the responsibility of postmasters and assistant postmasters, whose salaries are determined in relation to the receipts of their post offices during the preceding calendar year. The increase for 1953 reflects changes in the salaries of such officials on the basis of increased receipts.

Except during short periods of unusually heavy mail volume or periods of official absences, no clerical assistance is provided postmasters at fourth-class post offices though many have rural carriers operating from their offices. As offices increase in size, postmasters have progressively greater responsibility for administering the service and supervising personnel.

2. Mail handling and window services.—Provision is made for the handling of incoming and outgoing mail; window services to the public; and the performance of administrative services in first-, second-, and third-class post offices.

The volume of mail is expected to increase approximately 3.03 percent in 1953 over 1952.

3. Collection, delivery, and local transportation—(a) Collection and delivery.—This covers the work of city delivery carriers, including special delivery messengers together with their travel expense. With respect to special-delivery messengers about 92 percent of all special-delivery mail is delivered at first-class offices by salaried messengers, the remainder at second-, third-, and fourth-class offices being handled by messengers on a fee basis.

¹ Workload consists of pieces of mail and the number of registered, insured, collect-on-delivery, and special-delivery transactions.

(b) Local transportation.—This covers the vehicle service, including hire and purchase of vehicles and pneumatic tube service. The estimate for 1953 is $11,069,000 less than 1952 because it is not contemplated that any additional motor vehicles will be purchased in 1953, other than 50 tractors and 150 trailers due to completion of the fleet modernization program.

(c) Rural delivery service.—A rural carrier's compensation is based on annual mileage and years of service and includes allowance for vehicle maintenance, which rate was increased from 8 cents to 9 cents per mile effective July 1, 1951, with a $3 per day minimum for heavy-duty carriers. The increase in this estimate will provide for the normal expansion of the rural delivery service to meet the needs of the public.

4. Mail handling in transit.—Postal employees handle and distribute mail while it is being transported between post offices over railroads and in highway post-office busses. The estimate for 1953 will provide funds for the additional manpower that will be required to handle the increased volume of mail.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The total appropriation asked for amounts to $616,600,000. This represents an increase of $19,813,000 compared with the current fiscal year including a proposed supplemental appropriation for 1952 amounting to $132,116,000 to cover increased railroad rates granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The increase for 1953 is the result of the greater volume of mail and increased rates.

1. Water transportation.—Powerboat service provides for transportation of mail by boat to Alaska, Hawaii, and post offices located on inland waters of the United States and its Territories and the collection and delivery of mail from and to ships passing between Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie via the Detroit River. Most of this service is paid for under pound mile rate contracts and the remainder under trip mileage contracts. The increase is due to the increased volume of mail transported and renewal of contracts at higher rates.

This also covers transportation of mail by ocean vessels to Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and foreign countries. The increase is primarily due to the increased volume of mail dispatched to foreign countries, especially parcel post.

¹ The lower average cost per pound reflects the reimbursement to the Post Office Department by the Economic Cooperation Administration for a portion of the transportation cost of gift parcels.

2. Truck transportation.—This covers transportation by star route, highway post offices, and short-haul truck service. Star route service is maintained primarily for post offices lacking adequate railroad service and it supplements highway post office service with contracts generally awarded on 4-year terms. Air star route service may be established where ground transportation is impracticable. The primary reason for the increase is due to readjustments in contracts necessitated by increase in prices (39 U. S. C. 434).

The highway post office service has been greatly expanded where mail distribution en route is necessary but where railroad service has been discontinued or was never available. The increase in this service is due to the establishment of new routes to replace discontinued railroad service.

Short-haul truck service is being adopted where efficiency and economy will be greater than transportation by railroad. The cost of this service is offset by the cost of the railroad service replaced at recently established rates.

3. Rail transportation.—This covers transportation of mail by railroad and electric car. The increase in this activity is based on the increased volume of parcel post after giving consideration to the service replaced by short-haul truck service.

³ Reflect increased rates to railroads effective Jan. 1, 1951, ordered by Interstate Commerce Commission on Nov. 16, 1951.

4. Air transportation.—Since payments to air carriers are prescribed by the Civil Aeronautics Board, based on the general economic condition of the air industry, it is possible for an increase in the volume of mail to reflect a decrease in the cost of transportation per piece, which is the case in this estimate for both domestic and foreign carriers.

5. Terminal and transportation charges by foreign countries.—Payments due foreign countries for the transportation and handling of mail of United States origin are made in accordance with international postal conventions or agreements. In the past, because of the unsettled conditions, approximately 1 year elapsed before accounts with foreign countries were settled. However, most of the foreign countries have overcome this delay and provision is made in the estimate to bring these accounts up to a more current basis.

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

The Department of State is the President's principal instrumentality in the formulation of foreign policy and conduct of foreign affairs. The Department's activities include (1) operation of diplomatic and consular establishments abroad, (2) representation of the United States in international organizations and commissions, (3) operation of an overseas information and educational exchange program, and (4) the conduct of civilian occupation activities in occupied areas.

The total of appropriations requested for 1953 is $339.4 million, compared with $262 million, the sum of appropriations enacted and supplementals proposed for 1952. This is an increase of $77.4 million compared with the current fiscal year. The largest requested increase is to intensify the psychological offensive against Communist imperialism. For this purpose the Budget includes $170 million, or twice the amount appropriated for fiscal year 1952. Other increases include approximately $2 million for "Salaries and expenses," and $7.4 million for the "Foreign Service retirement and disability fund." Principal decreases proposed are $8.8 million for "Emergencies in the diplomatic and consular service" and $6.7 million for "Government in occupied areas."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation finances all construction activities of the United States section of the Commission.

1. Rio Grande dams.—Construction of Falcon Dam is slightly ahead of schedule. Work on both the United States side and the Mexican side, as of December 1951, was about 45 percent complete. Diversion of the Rio Grande is planned during the winter of 1952-53, and the completion contract is scheduled to be let during September 1952, with completion planned for November 1953, as required by the Water Treaty of 1944. Site testing will continue on the upper dams in the Big Bend area, and some detailed planning will be accomplished during 1953.

2. Lower Rio Grande flood control.—Construction of Anzalduas Dam, a major component of this project, is planned to begin October 1952. Approximately 70 percent of construction is planned for 1953. Upon completion, it will be possible to limit floods at Brownsville-Matamoras.

3. Western land boundary fence.—Further construction on this project will be deferred in 1953.

4. Detailed plans preparation.—Plans for projects not yet under construction include the lower Colorado River flood control and the Tijuana River development.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

To promote the foreign policy of the United States, USIE's mission is to create a better understanding abroad of this country, its people, and policies. Obligations for 1953 are estimated to be $133,272,914, an increase of $46,036,033 compared with 1952. The increase is due primarily to (a) an expansion of international broadcasting activities, (b) the transfer from the Department of the Army of the public affairs program in Japan, and (c) an intensification of informational activities in critical areas of the world.

1. Radio broadcasting.—Radio programs are developed, produced, and transmitted throughout the world from transmitters in the United States and from overseas relay stations, and transcriptions of programs are shipped to overseas missions for use on local radio stations.

2. Press and publications.—Provision is made for the production of pamphlets, leaflets, posters, and magazines covering timely information on world and local issues for critical overseas areas; specialized daily news bulletins to missions on each continent; the magazine "Amerika"; and feature articles, press photographs, display photos, and film strips.

3. Motion pictures.—Documentary films explaining the United States and its policies are produced, films produced by others are purchased and adapted, text and sound tracks are translated into many languages, and prints are distributed to overseas missions.

4. Office of Director, International Information.—The two immediately preceding activities are directed by a small headquarters staff, which includes the secretariat for the Advisory Commission on Information.

5. Overseas information centers.—Through the information and binational centers overseas, collections of American books, documents, periodicals, and Government pamphlets, both in English and in translation, are made available without charge; publishers in each country are stimulated to translate American books; long-term loans of books or special collections are made to local groups; community participation is encouraged by special programs utilizing exhibits, lectures, and group discussions; and a knowledge of English is promoted through courses, seminars for teachers, distribution of mass audio-visual material, and the development of English language textbooks.

6. Exchange of persons.—Students, teachers, and leaders, chosen for their influence in forming public opinion, are exchanged between the United States and other countries. In addition, services are provided for a large number of exchanges carried out under other than governmental auspices.

7. Office of Director, Educational Exchange.—The two immediately preceding activities are directed by a small headquarters staff, which includes the secretariat for the Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange.

8. Overseas mission activities.—These staffs have been established in embassies and consulates to carry out the field work adapted to local needs and to supply information on the effectiveness of current activities and media in their respective countries.

9. Public affairs regional bureau staffs.—Public affairs staffs in regional bureaus of the Department give policy and program guidance on area matters and participate in administering the USIE overseas program.

10. Special projects and evaluation surveys.—These cover research projects, evaluation surveys, and special projects developed from requests received from overseas missions.

11. Office of general manager.—The general manager works with the Assistant Secretary in the establishment of broad policies, and within this framework formulates and manages the execution of the world-wide plan of operations.

12. Office of the Assistant Secretary.—This staff aids the Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs in formulating and recommending objectives and policies and advising him on program considerations to be raised in connection with the formulation of United States foreign policy.

13. Contribution to Psychological Strategy Board.—Support is rendered this board in furtherance of USIE's objectives.

14. Japanese information and educational program.—As USIE assumes the responsibility for the conduct of a public affairs program in Japan upon the ratification of the peace treaty, provision is made for a program at a level roughly comparable to that previously maintained by the Department of the Army.

15. Administrative support.—World-wide administrative and staff services are performed for these activities by the regular staffs of the Department.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Educational foundations authorized by the Fulbright Act have been established under 23 executive agreements for periods ranging from 1 to 20 years, and programs are now under way in 21 countries. It is anticipated that negotiations with six additional countries will be completed during 1952. Grants have been made to professors, research scholars, teachers, and students for study in the United States and abroad. They are financed by foreign currencies received for World War II surplus property and earmarked for this use.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for carrying out the United States programs in Germany and Austria. Direct obligations for 1953 are estimated to be $20,500,000, a decrease of $6,681,951 compared with 1952. The decrease results principally from the contemplated termination of occupation activities in Germany and the establishment of the United States mission on an embassy basis.

1. Conduct of relations with Austria.—The Office of the United States High Commissioner presents the policies and interests of the United States to the Austrian Government and in the Quadripartite Allied Council (France, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, United Kingdom, United States), and insures the execution of the decisions of the Allied Council in the United States zone.

2. Public affairs, Austria.—The public affairs program fosters the democratic point of view in both world and local affairs and presents to the Austrians information regarding the United States through publication of a daily newspaper, one magazine, and two newsletters; operation of a radio network; production and distribution of films; and operation of eight information centers and student and national-leader exchanges.

3. Administration, Austria.—This includes also security services.

4. Conduct of relations with Germany.—Negotiations are now under way to replace the Occupation Statute by contractual agreements with the Federal Republic of Germany, which would assume greater authority and responsibilities itself. The estimate is based on the assumption that these new arrangements will come into force on April 1, 1952.

5. Public affairs, Germany.—The objective is to assist the Germans in strengthening their democratic system, promote the integration of Germany with Western Europe, counteract the effects of hostile propaganda and influences, make available to the Germans information about the United States, and carry out the "Campaign of Truth." Activities include (a) the operation of a major radio station; (b) publication of a daily newspaper and of specialized magazines and pamphlets; (c) furnishing materials for use by German press, film, and radio facilities; (d) operation of information centers, reading rooms, mobile libraries, exhibits, and discussion and educational film programs; and (e) exchange of persons between Germany and the United States.

6. Administration, Germany.—This includes also services for the 15 public affairs field offices and 38 branch libraries in Western Germany and Berlin and for the 7 American consulates in Western Germany. The expenses of the military occupation forces and of the Mutual Security Agency, the salaries of military personnel assigned to the Office of the High Commissioner, and the salaries and expenses of the Department of State consular staff are met from other appropriations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Obligations are estimated to be $2,041,000 for 1953, an increase of $34,000 compared with 1952. The increase results from additional work volume, new functions, and increased cost of printing.

1. Processing deposits of withheld tax payments.—Employers deposit withheld income and social security taxes to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, monthly, with designated banks. They receive from the Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the Treasury, depository receipts which the employers attach to their returns as evidence of payment of taxes. The proportionate share of the expense relating to the issuance and verification of these receipts is charged against the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. The work volume is estimated at 4,800,000 depository receipts in 1953, as compared with 4,750,000 in 1952, and 4,664,374 in 1951.

2. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—The central accounts include control accounts on appropriations, receipts, and expenditures and provide data for the Daily Treasury Statement. This activity also includes the preparation and publication of financial reports on the Government's fiscal operations, such as the annual Combined Statement of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances; the Monthly Report of Appropriations, Expenditures, and Balances; and the Digest of Appropriations.

3. Development and installation of accounting and reporting systems.—Technical advice and assistance in accounting is furnished all bureaus and offices of the Treasury. In addition, staff is assigned to participate in the Government-wide accounting improvement program.

4. Processing investments, loans, claims, collections, and surety bonds.—Investments in interest-bearing securities are processed for certain funds, such as the Federal old-age and survivors trust fund, the unemployment trust fund, the veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds. The work includes purchase and disposal of securities, processing capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, payment of international and other claims; and examination is made of the financial condition of companies issuing surety bonds in favor of the United States. The work volume expressed in number of transactions is estimated at 300,000 for 1953 compared with 280,600 for 1952 and 266,297 for 1951.

5. Supervision of the Federal depository system.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through the designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Workload is expected to increase in 1953 as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Division of Disbursement, through its Washington and regional offices, makes payments; receives and deposits collections for civilian Federal agencies, except the Post Office Department and certain Government corporations; and issues savings bonds for Federal employees under the payroll-savings plan.

Direct obligations are estimated to be $12,736,000 for 1953, an increase of $422,000 compared with 1952. The increase results from increased work volume, especially for the Social Security Administration, and for new or expanded defense agencies.

The funds required are determined by multiplying the volume of work or the number of units to be processed by the unit cost per item as shown in the following tables.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau of the Public Debt exercises general supervision over all public debt operations and the verification and destruction of unfit United States currency. Provision is also made for the promotion of the sale of United States savings bonds and stamps.

Obligations for 1953 are estimated to be $55,300,000, an increase of $4,280,000 compared with 1952.

The principal increase is proposed for issuance, servicing, and retirement of savings bonds, owing to an estimated increase in sales during 1953 of an additional 5 million bonds and the retirement of 15.1 million additional bonds above the estimates for 1952.

1. Issuance, servicing, and retirement of savings bonds.—This consists of (1) the manufacture, receipt, custody, and distribution of bond stocks; (2) the issuance and maintenance of issue records; (3) adjudicating claims for the replacement of lost, stolen, or mutilated bonds; (4) handling reissues and other transactions incident to servicing

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This office (a) receives, keeps, and disburses the moneys of the United States; (b) receives, stores, issues, transfers, and retires currency and coin; (c) redeems Government securities; (d) maintains essential fiscal accounts; and (e) prepares related financial statements and reports.

1. Processing checks, deposits, and claims.—This consists of maintaining checking accounts of Government disbursing officers and Government-owned corporations; processing documents crediting Government accounts; directing the activities of Federal Reserve banks when they act as agents of the Treasurer in paying Government checks; and performing certain functions in connection with claims relating to lost, stolen, destroyed, and fraudulently negotiated checks. Rapidly increasing Federal expenditures have resulted in a constant increase in workload. The number of checks processed for the Department of Defense increased 68.7 percent in 1951 over 1950, and are continuing to increase.

Budgetary requirements are determined by multiplying the number of checks of each type to be processed by established unit costs.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The principal functions of the Bureau of Customs are (1) to enter and clear vessels; (2) to inspect all international traffic; (3) to appraise and classify imported merchandise and collect duties thereon; and (4) to prevent smuggling, undervaluation, and frauds on the customs revenue.

Direct obligations are estimated to be $41,800,000 for 1953, an increase of $1,440,000 compared with 1952. The increase is the result of larger volumes of merchandise imports and greatly increased numbers of persons and carriers entering the United States.

1. Assessment and collection of duties, taxes, and fees.—The collectors of customs classify imported merchandise, assess and collect duties, inspect all traffic entering the United States, and perform other related functions.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau of Internal Revenue determines, assesses, and collects all internal-revenue taxes; interprets and enforces the internal-revenue laws; refunds any overpayment of tax or erroneous collection; prepares and distributes tax instructions, regulations, forms, and stamps; and performs other duties under statutes related to internal revenue.

Obligations are estimated to be $305,000,000 for 1953, an increase of $33,041,000 compared with 1952. The increase is the result of additional work under new and established programs and of increased costs of services and materials.

1. Interpretation of revenue laws, and ruling services.—Internal-revenue laws are interpreted, regulations are prepared and promulgated, and rulings are made on issues involving questions of statutory interpretation or application. Services are rendered to congressional committees in the analysis and drafting of proposed tax legislation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Obligations for 1953 are estimated to be $2,770,000, an increase of $98,000 compared with 1952. The increase arises largely from the need to strengthen forces engaged in investigation of counterfeiting and alteration and forgery of Government checks and bonds.

1. Suppressing counterfeiting and investigating check and bond forgeries.—Investigation is made of counterfeiting of currency, specie, and securities; forgery and conversion of Government checks and bonds; loss of valuables in shipment by Government agencies; and noncriminal cases as directed by the Secretary of the Treasury. The Service also protects the President of the United States, his immediate family, and the Vice President.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Activities of the Bureau of the Mint include the manufacture of coins; the receipt of deposits of gold and silver bullion; the safeguarding of the Government's holdings of monetary metals; and the refining of gold and silver bullion.

Obligations from appropriated funds are estimated to be $5,780,000, an increase of $1,050,000 compared with 1952.

1. Manufacture of coins (domestic).—Production of coins is the major activity of the Bureau of the Mint. Expanded coinage is planned for 1953 to meet increased demands. Estimated production amounts to 2 billion pieces, an increase of 675 million coins over the current year's estimate. Although 1.5 billion coins were delivered to the banks in 1951, a large backlog of orders remains unfilled at the present time. Proposed coinage for 1953 is based upon the assumption that business activity will continue at its present level.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Coast Guard enforces maritime law, saves life and property, provides navigational aids to maritime and air commerce over the ocean, promotes the efficiency and safety of the American merchant marine, and contributes to military readiness as a part of the Navy in time of war or national emergency.

The appropriation requested is $196,250,000. This represents an increase of $5,550,000 compared with the current year and an increase of $41,650,000 compared with the preceding year. The increase over the current year is the result of projection to a full-year basis of increases for improvement of military readiness, authorized on a part-year basis for the fiscal year 1952, and of increased cost of maintenance.

1. Search, rescue, and law enforcement.—The Coast Guard maintains vessels, life-saving stations, and aircraft at strategic points along the coast and inland waterways; operates an international ice patrol and ice-observation service in the North Atlantic Ocean; performs ice breaking on inland lakes, rivers, and canals and in harbors on the Atlantic coast; administers laws and issues regulations on inspection, safety equipment, and licensing and certification of merchant marine officers and crews; reviews plans for construction or alteration of merchant vessels; investigates marine accidents; holds hearings on disciplinary cases; provides instruction in the principles and practices of safe navigation; and sponsors the Coast Guard Auxiliary, a voluntary organization of boat owners who assist in time of distress.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Bureau designs, engraves, and prints currency, bonds, stamps, commissions, certificates, and various other forms of engraved documents.

A working capital fund of $3,250,000 was established for the operation of the Bureau under Public Law 656, approved August 4, 1950. All work is performed on a reimbursable basis, and business-type accounting and budget procedures are employed.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by the agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing.—(a) Currency.—It is expected that demand will require approximately the same level of production for 1953 as in 1951 and 1952. (b) Stamps.—The total anticipated workload for 1953 is much higher than that for 1952, due primarily to an increase in the requirements for United States postage and internal revenue stamps. (c) Paper checks, commissions, and certificates.—A small increase is anticipated in 1953 due to larger orders from the Department of Defense. (d) Securities.—The anticipated increase in production in 1953 over 1952 is due principally to a request for 10,871,700 more United States savings bonds, offset by small decreases in other classes of securities.

3. Purchase of card checks.—Because the Bureau is not equipped to manufacture punch-card check forms, purchases are made from commercial sources. Estimated procurement is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served.

COAST GUARDCoast Guard Supply Fund—*PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This is a revolving fund established to finance the procurement of general stores material, uniform clothing, and commissary supplies (14 U. S. C. 650). It is credited with receipts for the value of items issued or sold and of commissary supplies consumed or sold.

1. General stores materials.—The gross income from the sale or issue of general stores materials during 1951 was $3,275,805; it is estimated to be $3,400,000 in 1952 and $3,700,000 in 1953.

2. Commissary supplies.—The gross income from the sale or issue of commissary supplies during 1951 was $6,068,340; it is estimated to be $7,500,000 in 1952 and $8,000,000 in 1953.

3. Uniform clothing.—The gross income from the sale or issue of uniform clothing during 1951 was $1,528,080; it is estimated to be $1,750,000 in both 1952 and 1953.

Financial results.—During fiscal year 1951, the fund increased by $794,105, due principally to gain from revaluation of inventories of uniform clothing. During 1952 and 1953, it is estimated that gross income from sales will be entirely offset by cost of goods sold.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

The District of Columbia constitutes a political entity in which are exercised not only municipal but also county and State functions, such as public education, administration of justice, maintenance of a unit of the National Guard, promotion of family welfare, care of the indigent, custody of mental defectives and delinquents, protection of the interests of labor, metropolitan area planning, etc. While the municipal functions are administered principally by the Board of Commissioners, District of Columbia, most of the county and State functions are carried on by other agencies, some local and some Federal in character.

In contrast to this diversity in the administration of District functions under the Constitution, Congress is empowered "to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever" on behalf of the District of Columbia as the seat of government of the United States. Congress acts in municipal matters as a city council, and in dealing with the broader aspects of the local government, as a county board and a State legislature. In this connection, Congress enacts the District's revenue measures and appropriates the money thus raised to carry on the government of the District of Columbia. District revenues from all sources are covered into the United States Treasury and credited either to the general fund, the highway fund, the water fund, the motor-vehicle parking fund, or a trust fund, and no expenditure can be made from any of these funds, other than trust funds, without specific appropriation by Congress.

Under the law, the District estimates of appropriation are submitted to the Bureau of the Budget for incorporation in the Budget of the United States. The Bureau, however, does not examine the estimates of the District in minute detail, but confines its attention more to matters of policy which concern the Federal Government and present and proposed revenue measures required to balance the District budget.

The estimates of revenues for the general, highway, water, motor-vehicle parking, and trust funds are found in supporting statement No. 1. Estimates of appropriations for the same funds are shown in supporting statement No. 2. Attention is also directed to the summary of operations table at the beginning of this chapter.

GENERAL FUND

Revenues accruing to the general fund of the District of Columbia are used to finance the administrative offices, schools, libraries, police, health, recreation, sanitation, welfare, corrections, certain public works, and other operating activities. These revenues are realized from real, personal, and other property taxes; sales and gross receipts taxes on alcoholic beverages, cigarettes, insurance, motor vehicles, public utilities, gross sales, and other sources; licenses and permits; individual and corporation income taxes; inheritance and estate taxes; certain earnings and miscellaneous revenues; and the Federal payment. The largest item of revenue in the general fund comes from realty and personal property taxes, and amounts to approximately 41 percent of the total. The levy is based on an estimated assessed valuation of $2,125,000,000, taxed at the rate of $2.15 per $100 for realty and $2.00 per $100 for personal property. The estimated valuation is $25 million higher in 1953 than for the current year. The Federal payment is estimated at $12 million, which is in accordance with existing law, and represents an increase of $600,000 over the fiscal year 1952. Of this amount, $11,000,000 will be credited to the general fund and $1,000,000 to the water fund.

The estimate of general-fund revenue availability on the present tax base for the fiscal year 1953, including the Federal payment of $11,000,000 and a surplus of $5,339,420 from 1952, totals $114,434,420, which amount is $15,013 greater than the estimated funds required for 1953.

General-fund estimates of appropriation for 1953 show a net decrease of $7,795,801, or approximately 6 percent under 1952 estimates. This decrease is a result of a reduction in capital outlay of $10,722,450 and an increase of $2,926,649 in operating expenses. The increase in operating expenses, amounting to approximately 3 percent, is reflected largely in retirement funds and items required by law.

HIGHWAY FUND

Highway-fund revenues are realized from a gasoline tax, automotive registration and weight tax, motor-vehicle fees of various types, and paving assessments. The estimated revenues from these sources for the fiscal year 1953, plus available surpluses, total $11,363,963, which will be $330,470 in excess of the estimated obligations.

Estimates of appropriation chargeable to the highway fund for 1953 show an over-all decrease of 12 percent under 1952 estimates. This decrease is reflected largely in capital outlay for the Street and Bridge Division.

WATER FUND

Water-fund revenues are derived from the sale of water to residents of the District of Columbia and to Arlington County, Va.; from the Federal payment of $1,000,000 provided for under the District of Columbia Revenue Act of 1947; from water-main assessments; from interest on investments; and from miscellaneous receipts. Total revenues for the fiscal year 1953, including surplus funds and Federal loans, are estimated at $13,906,390, which will be $1,143,390 in excess of the estimated obligations for 1953.

The estimates of appropriation for fiscal year 1953 from the water fund amount to $12,751,000, which is $1,250,000 above the estimates for the fiscal year 1952, for an increase of approximately 10 percent.

Capital outlays amounting to $8,318,000 account for approximately 65 percent of the fiscal year 1953 estimates, as compared with 62 percent of the 1952 estimates. These capital outlay projects will continue important improvements in the District water distribution system and the Washington aqueduct.

MOTOR-VEHICLE PARKING FUND

The estimates for the fiscal year 1953 contain for the first time a separate fund for the Motor-Vehicle Parking Agency. The fund is derived from parking meter receipts and it will be used to pay the administrative expenses of that Agency and to provide for the acquisition, creation, and operation of public off-street parking facilities as a necessary incident to insuring in the public interest the free circulation of traffic in and through the District. It is estimated that surplus at the end of 1953 will amount to $672,800.

Detailed Estimates, Narratives, and Schedules on Trust Funds, and Working Funds

INTRODUCTION TO PART III

Part III of the Budget contains summary tables on trust and deposit funds, detailed schedules and explanatory statements on the various trust funds, and memorandum information on "working funds." While the transactions in these groups of funds are a part of the financial program of the Government, the trust and deposit funds are not owned by the Government, and hence these transactions are excluded from the conventional budget totals.

TRUST AND DEPOSIT FUNDS DISTINGUISHED

The funds which are covered in the summary tables in this part of the Budget are of two types, as follows:

Trust funds are those funds which are credited with receipts which do not belong to the Government but which are earmarked by law for custody or use in carrying out specific purposes and programs.

Deposit funds are those funds which are credited with collections that are either (a) held in suspense temporarily and later refunded or paid into some other fund of the Government, or (b) held by the Government as banker for nongovernmental agencies, being paid out in lump sums at the direction of the depositor.

TRUST FUND RECEIPTS, AUTHORIZATIONS, AND EXPENDITURES

Basis of stating trust receipts.—Table 8 summarizes trust receipts, and table 9 shows the detail by individual trust fund account. Such receipts include all money covered into the Treasury to the credit of the trust funds, including contributions to the trust funds from the general fund. Sales and redemptions of investments are excluded from receipts, and are listed in Special Analysis H of part IV.

Trust authorizations.—Trust fund receipts must be appropriated before they can be spent. These appropriations are summarized in table 8 and listed in table 10.

Most trust funds are appropriated by permanent law, not requiring further action by Congress. Usually the appropriations equal the receipts of the year. In a few cases receipts of trust funds can be spent only in accordance with appropriations enacted by Congress from year to year. Examples are the Soldiers' Home Fund and the municipal revenues of the District of Columbia. In a few other cases trust fund receipts are permanently appropriated for benefit payments, but limitations on administrative expenses payable out of the trust funds are imposed by annual action of the Congress.

Basis of stating trust expenditures.—Table 8 summarizes the trust fund expenditures, and table 10 gives the detail by individual fund. These expenditures are stated on a checks-issued basis, less refunds collected. Net investments in U. S. Government securities are excluded (at par value) from the figures, and are listed in Special Analysis H of part IV.

There are a few trust funds which are in the nature of business enterprises or trust revolving funds. In such cases the receipts, instead of being taken into the tables as receipts and authorizations, are deducted from expenditures and the expenditures for such funds are stated on a net basis. This is comparable to the treatment of regular business enterprise and revolving funds in part II.

DEPOSIT FUND EXPENDITURES

Tables 8 and 11 include a figure on total deposit fund expenditures, and table 11 gives details by agency. The expenditures of such funds are on a net basis; that is, the collections are deducted from checks issued, and the resulting figure is shown as an expenditure. Checks issued include those written to move money into other funds, as well as those written for refunds and the return of money to depositors. When the collections are larger than the checks issued, the amount included in the expenditure figures is a negative item.

NET ACCUMULATION IN TRUST AND DEPOSIT FUNDS

Table 8 reflects the net accumulation in trust and deposit funds. This represents the result obtained when the trust and deposit fund expenditures are subtracted from the trust receipts of the year. This figure is carried forward into table 3 of part I, where it is included in the summary of changes in the public debt.

DETAIL OF TRUST FUND ESTIMATES

The detailed material following table 11 covers the trust funds which do not require annual action by Congress (those requiring annual authorizations or limitations are in part II). The material here follows the general format of the similar material in part II. However, no appropriation language appears here, and the narrative statements often consist only of an explanation of the source of money for the fund, the purposes for which it is authorized to be spent, and the legal citations.

DETAIL OF WORKING FUND ESTIMATES

"Working funds" are not true funds in the usual sense, but are merely a means of accounting for money advanced from one agency to another for interagency services. The expenditures of working funds are included (without separate identification) in the expenditures of the funds and appropriation accounts from which the advances are made in the regular tables of the Budget. Obligations incurred in working funds are treated in part II as a lump-sum obligation of the appropriation or fund which makes the advance.

For informational purposes, obligation schedules for the working funds appear at the end of this part of the Budget. These schedules are presented in order to indicate the obligations being incurred for the work by the performing agency. The breakdown of the obligations of the performing agencies are shown here according to the actual object involved—personal services, travel, supplies, etc. In the schedules of the agencies purchasing the interagency services, the total obligation therefor is shown in a single object class in the part II schedules, usually under the heading "Other contractual services."

NATIONAL CAPITAL HOUSING AUTHORITY

Operation and Maintenance, Properties Aided by or Leased From Public Housing Administration, National Capital Housing Authority—

Low-Rent Housing Fund, Properties Aided by Public Housing Administration, National Capital Housing Authority—

Under title II of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act the Authority is engaged in operating 7,595 dwelling units and in developing 4,000 additional units of low-rent housing. All operations under title II are financed by rental income or by loans serviced by rental income and Federal contribution. The operations are conducted under the supervision of the Public Housing Administration and are included in the consolidated estimates of that agency.

Net income from operation of leased low-rent properties, war housing properties, and veterans' re-use barracks is paid to the Public Housing Administration. Net income from the operation of three locally owned low-rent properties constructed under the United States Housing Act, defense amendment, is retained by the Authority to meet interest charges and to retire loan notes. The remaining five locally owned properties will operate at a deficit, with Federal contributions meeting the difference between income and expense. These Federal contributions are used to reduce rents of low-income tenants.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under the railroad retirement system, workers and their employers make contributions in the form of taxes on wages toward the benefits which will be payable when the worker reaches 65, becomes disabled, or when he dies. These contributions are appropriated to this trust fund and invested in special Government securities carrying an interest rate of 3 percent. Annuity and benefit payments are paid from this account and annual administrative expenses are derived therefrom. The excess of income over outgo together with annual interest on invested funds are accumulated to provide for the future annuities and benefits being currently earned by workers. When the system reaches maturity, some years hence, the interest on the accumulated investments in the trust fund, together with contributions, should be sufficient to pay the annual cost of earned benefits and the annual administrative cost of operating the system.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

All premiums paid for national service life insurance and the earned interest are deposited to the credit of the national service life insurance fund, which bears the liabilities under insurance outstanding. The fund is reimbursed (a) for payments on death or disability claims which are traceable to the extra hazards of military or naval service, and (b) for payments on death and disability claims occurring while waiver of national service life insurance premiums was in effect under the Servicemen's Indemnity and Insurance Act of 1951.

The fund is operated on a commercial basis, except that no administrative expenses are charged to it and the Secretary of the Treasury invests the amounts held in reserve and as surplus. Financial statements for calendar year 1950 follow:

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE*Operation and Maintenance, Water Distribution Systems, Water Conservation and Utilization Projects—PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Revenue received from operation of the Wyoming Rural Rehabilitation Corporation's water distribution system on the Eden Valley, Wyo., project, which is being administered under a transfer agreement between the Secretary and the corporation, is used to pay for operation and maintenance of the system.

The revenues received from water users for delivery of irrigation water under specific contracts are available for operation and maintenance of the water distribution system. The residue in this trust account after payment of these specific operating and maintenance expenses will be transferred to a trust fund receipt account (Wyoming Rural Rehabilitation Corporation), which is administered by the Farmers' Home Administration. This will be done at such time as it appears there will be no further need for specific sums accumulated in the trust fund appropriation account (40 U. S. C. 431-434).

Payments in Lieu of Taxes and Operation and Maintenance Costs, Water Conservation and Utilization Projects—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under authority of the Bankhead-Black Act and transfer agreements with State rural rehabilitation corporations, receipts from leasing of project lands owned either by the United States or jointly with the State corporations are used for payments in lieu of taxes to local government taxing units and for some operation and maintenance costs of the resettlement features of the projects until land development for irrigation is completed and farm units returned to private ownership (40 U. S. C. 431-434).

On those projects wholly owned by the Government the residue of the receipts, after paying the operation and maintenance expenses and the annual payments in lieu of taxes, is transferred to miscellaneous receipts. On those projects where there is a joint investment the residue of the receipts is held in this trust account pending determination as to the proper distribution to miscellaneous receipts and the rural rehabilitation corporations involved. This division of funds will be based on the Government and rural rehabilitation corporation investment ratio in each jointly owned project. It is contemplated that this dissolution will be accomplished during 1952.

Alien Property Fund, Philippines, World War II—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Philippine Alien Property Administration was established to vest, manage, and administer enemy-owned property in the Territory of the Philippines and later the Republic of the Philippines. The Appropriation Act of 1951 abolished the Administration and transferred the functions and custody of the vested properties to the Office of Alien Property, to take effect July 1, 1951. The Office of Alien Property administers this fund in the same manner as it administers the funds for World War I and World War II.

Funds returned to the Republic of the Philippines during 1951 amounted to $1,275,030, and it is anticipated that $500,000 will be returned in 1952 and 1953. The following statements include the United States dollar equivalent of local currencies of the Philippines which become available without dollar purchase.

INTRODUCTION TO PART IV

Part IV of the Budget contains special analyses of the Budget data. These are supplementary to the material appearing in the other parts of the Budget. Most of these analyses include explanatory material which expands and elaborates the brief notes printed below.

RECEIPTS FROM AND PAYMENTS TO THE PUBLIC

Special Analysis A presents information on the flow of money between the public and the Government as a whole, including both Federal funds and trust (and deposit) funds. The Government is defined to include also certain quasi-governmental corporations for the purposes of the analysis. The public is defined to include individuals, partnerships, banks, corporations not owned by the Government, the Federal Reserve System, the Postal Savings System, State and local governments, foreign governments, and international organizations. Excluded from the table are interfund transactions, such as contributions from Federal funds to trust funds. The few Government expenditures which are made in the form of additions to the public debt (such as interest accruing on savings bonds) are here converted to a cash payments basis, in contrast to the rest of the Budget document, where such items are reported as a budget expenditure at the same time the increase in the public debt is reported.

ANALYSIS OF THE BUDGET BY FUNCTION AND AGENCY

Special Analysis B indicates the details making up the functional break-down of authorizations and expenditures which appears in the Budget Message and in the first two tables of part I. It has been compiled by regrouping the figures found in the chapter summaries of part II. The code numbers used in the chapter summaries are the key to the grouping found in this analysis.

EXPLANATION OF BUDGET RECEIPTS

Special Analysis C presents detail on the budget receipts summarized in table 1. It includes a narrative statement on the receipt estimates, together with a table giving a breakdown of receipts by source. The figures include the receipts of both the general fund and the special funds. The text pertaining to taxes, customs, and refunds has been prepared by the Treasury Department.

CHARACTER ANALYSES OF EXPENDITURES

Special Analysis D analyzes budget expenditures in terms of the duration and nature of the benefits derived. Expenditures of an investment type are shown in two major categories—one for acquisition or improvement of Federal assets and the second for other broad developmental purposes such as improvements to local and private assets and expenditures for research, education, and health. Expenditures yielding current benefits are also grouped in two major categories—one for aids and services to special groups and one for other current operating expenditures. The analysis is based solely on budget expenditure figures of the particular fiscal year. No adjustments are made for depreciation, obsolescence, potential losses or recoveries on loans, and other items not reflected in current expenditure data.

Special Analysis E gives detailed information on direct loans and loan insurance and guarantee programs covered in the Budget. It provides data on commitment authority, commitments and expenditures for all credit programs of wholly owned Government corporations as well as noncorporate lending agencies. Supplementary data are also included on quasi-governmental credit agencies.

Special Analysis F provides detailed information on the items in the Budget which are for nonmilitary public works. It also includes information on such related items as grants and loans for public works, Federal contributions to certain international public works, Federal aid and construction loans to semipublic bodies, private business, and individuals.

Special Analysis G brings together information on those items in the Budget which are for Federal aid to States and local governments. It includes grants-in-aid, shared revenues, loans, and repayable advances.

SELECTED INVESTMENT AND INTERFUND TRANSACTIONS

Special Analysis H sets forth certain investment and interfund transactions. The first two groups of these are the investments by Federal and trust funds in United States Government securities, and the net change in the debt of corporations to the public. The totals of these transactions are carried forward from this analysis to the statement on public debt which constitutes table 3 in part I. The other groups of transactions included in this table involve certain payments between the business enterprise and revolving funds and the general fund; such payments have been excluded from budget expenditures and budget receipts in parts I and II of the Budget in order to avoid inflating both sides of the Budget. They are set forth here in order to make the record complete.

HISTORICAL COMPARISON OF BUDGET FIGURES

Special Analysis I presents a 10-year comparison of budget receipts and expenditures. The receipts are classified by source and the expenditures by function. Technical notes set forth the changes in classification since the 1952 Budget was submitted.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS A

RECEIPTS FROM AND PAYMENTS TO THE PUBLIC

To show the total flow of money between the public and the Federal Government, a statement of "receipts from and payments to the public" has been developed. This statement has also been called the "consolidated cash budget" and "cash income and outgo of the United States Treasury."

The figures showing the total flow of money between the Federal Government and the public are significant for many purposes, particularly in helping to describe the economic impact of Federal financial transactions. It should be recognized however, that other aspects of Federal financial operations also affect economic activity. For example, the rapid expansion in new obligational authority since the attack on Korea stimulated a rise in business activity long before the authorized funds were spent. Federal guaranties and insurance of private loans (summarized in Special Analysis E) likewise influence economic activity, even though they normally have little or no impact either on budget receipts and expenditures or on receipts from and payments to the public.

In deriving the figures shown in the accompanying table, the public is defined to include individuals; banks, including the Federal Reserve and Postal Savings Systems; businesses; private corporations; State, local, and foreign governments; and international organizations.

Financial transactions of the Federal Government as shown in this table include transactions of trust and deposit funds as well as of Federal funds (see introduction to parts I and III for definitions). They also include net expenditures (as reflected on the books of the Treasurer of the United States) of three quasi-governmental enterprises—Federal land banks, Federal home loan banks, and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Intragovernmental transfers, reported in other tables in the Budget, are eliminated in this special analysis. Also eliminated are certain noncash items which represent accrued obligations of the Government to make a cash payment in the future. Receipts of the Government from the exercise of its monetary authority (mainly seigniorage on silver) are also excluded, because they are not cash received from the public.

The intragovernmental transactions excluded from the table are: (1) Expenditures from Federal funds which are receipts in other Federal funds, such as interest on capital investment paid by wholly owned Government corporations to the Treasury; (2) expenditures from Federal funds which are receipts in trust funds, such as the contribution of the Government to the civil-service retirement and disability fund and the interest paid on United States securities held by trust funds; (3) expenditures from trust funds which are receipts in Federal funds, such as the payment by the old-age and survivors insurance trust fund to the Treasury as reimbursement for expenses incurred in the financial management of that trust fund; and (4) expenditures from trust funds which are receipts in other trust funds, such as the payment made by the District of Columbia to the civil-service retirement and disability fund.

The noncash items (generally reported as expenditures) which are eliminated in obtaining the figures shown in the accompanying table consist of: (1) Interest accrued on savings bonds which will not be paid in cash until the bonds are redeemed; and (2) other United States securities issued in payment of an obligation which will be redeemed for cash at a later date. When the savings bonds are redeemed, the amount of interest actually paid to the public is then included. Likewise, when the noncash securities are redeemed (for example, Armed Forces leave bonds issued in 1947 which are still being cashed), these cash payments are then included in payments to the public.

The accompanying table is, in effect, a consolidated cash statement of Federal nonborrowing transactions with the public. This can be illustrated by summarizing the adjustments made in deriving the statement of Federal cash transactions with the public for the fiscal year 1951. Complete detail of all the individual adjustments made to the accounts of Federal funds and trust funds can be obtained upon request from the Bureau of the Budget.

FEDERAL CASH TRANSACTIONS WITH THE PUBLIC

[Fiscal year 1951. In millions]

Noncash transactions.....	489	-290		199
Equals: Payments to public.....	41,785	3,808	214	45,807

Related to the concept of receipts from and payments to the public is the concept of borrowing from the public, which is not the same as the change in the public debt held by the public as shown in table 3 of part I. The difference is primarily attributable to the same adjustments as those made for noncash items in deriving receipts from and payments to the public. For example, interest accruing on savings bonds increases the value of these bonds and thus increases the amount of public debt held by the public; this increase is therefore included in table 3 of part I. On the other hand, such accruals of interest do not increase the amount of cash the Government is borrowing from the public currently; therefore, they are not included in cash borrowing from the public.

Sale and redemption of securities of Government corporations in the market are also taken into account in computing borrowing from the public, although increases or decreases in the amount of these securities outstanding are not considered part of the public debt as legally defined. In 1951, $10 million (net) of securities of wholly owned Government corporations were issued.

In those years in which there is a budget deficit, the excess of payments to the public over receipts from the public is usually less than the budget deficit. Net borrowing from the public is also less than the increase in public debt. On the other hand, with a budget surplus, the excess of receipts from the public is usually greater than the budget surplus, and net repayment of borrowing from the public is greater than the decrease in the public debt. This is mainly the result of trust fund transactions. The trust funds, particularly the social security funds, are currently accumulating reserves for the payment of future benefits. These cash accumulations are invested in United States securities, which are part of the public debt. As long as trust funds continue to accumulate reserves, the amount of cash borrowed from the public will be less than the increase in the total public debt.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS B
NEW OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY AND EXPENDITURES
BY FUNCTION AND AGENCY

This special analysis supplies supporting detail for the Budget Message tables, the expenditures section of table 1, and the functional totals of new obligational authority in table 2. It serves as a bridge between those tables and part II of this Budget. By identifying all the agencies which have programs in each subfunction, the special analysis serves as a special index to the chapter summary tables in part II, which list the underlying detail in the form of individual appropriation accounts. Functional code numbers included in the chapter summaries indicate where each account is classified in this analysis.

The functional classification used in this Budget summarizes authorizations and expenditures according to the major purposes of the Government. Each function brings together programs which are related to a broad purpose, regardless of the agency responsible. Each major function is divided into several subfunctions which are groups of programs directed to a selected field within the broader category. Changes made in the classification this year are specified in a note in Special Analysis I.

For Government programs other than those financed by business-enterprise funds and revolving funds, the classification is built up on the basis of individual appropriation accounts or other authorization accounts. In the case of business-enterprise or revolving funds, the entire fund is classified as a unit excepting that transactions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are distributed among subfunctions on the basis of accounting reports classifying transactions according to purposes served.

Each appropriation account is assigned to a single subfunction in accordance with the predominant purpose of the activities financed. This necessarily involves some close decisions in borderline cases, and it means that programs with secondary significance for some major functions will be included in another category because another purpose predominates in the particular appropriation. Thus, to secure a comprehensive total of all Government programs related to education, or to finance, commerce, and industry, for example, it would be necessary to provide a special tabulation, counting in this category some appropriations which might also be relevant to other categories.

Whereas this special analysis presents both authorizations and expenditures for major functions, subfunctions, and programs over a 3-year period, Special Analysis I shows expenditures for the major functions and subfunctions over a 10-year period. Special Analysis A shows payments to the public, classified by major function. In several other special analyses, the functional categories are used in summarizing specific aspects of Federal fiscal operations, i. e., credit programs, public works, and aid to State and local governments.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS C

EXPLANATION OF THE ESTIMATES OF RECEIPTS

The estimates of receipts from taxes and customs for the current and ensuing fiscal years under existing legislation are prepared in December each year by the Treasury Department. The estimates of miscellaneous receipts (including proposed legislation in 1953) in general are prepared by the agency depositing the receipts in the Treasury.

TOTAL RECEIPTS

Total receipts (daily Treasury statement basis) before deductions for refunds and appropriation to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund are estimated to be $69,040.1 million in the fiscal year 1952 and $77,737.1 million in the fiscal year 1953. Actual receipts of $53,368.7 million in the fiscal year 1951 represented an all-time high and both fiscal years 1952 and 1953 are estimated to exceed it by substantial margins. Total receipts in the fiscal year 1953 are estimated to be 46 percent above the fiscal year 1951 all-time peak.

The details of the estimated and actual receipts are shown in pages 1161-1164. Throughout the tables shown in this exposition the figures are rounded and will not necessarily add to totals. This material utilizes the Budget classification of receipts.

Where sources other than the daily Treasury statement are used to show detailed tax sources, adjustment is made by group totals to the daily Treasury statement. However, the group totals used in the Budget document differ from those shown in the daily Treasury statement and in some cases these adjustments must be allocated arbitrarily. The adjustment from the collections basis to the daily Treasury statement basis for "miscellaneous internal revenue" is contained in "excise taxes" and adjustment for "income tax: other" is contained in "direct taxes on individuals." Withheld taxes under the individual income tax and the Federal Insurance Contributions Act are combined in 1 total in the daily Treasury statement and in collectors' reports. The amount transferred to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund shown on the daily Treasury statement is assumed to be the amount collected under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act in allocating receipts under the withheld taxes to its 2 components.

Direct taxes on individuals and direct taxes on corporations continue to be by far the two most important sources of receipts. The corporation tax remains the lesser of the two but shows decided gains both relatively and absolutely in both the fiscal years 1952 and 1953. As a result of the increases in corporation tax receipts, direct taxes on individuals show a decline on a percentage basis in both the fiscal year 1952 and the fiscal year 1953 in spite of substantial gains in absolute amount. Excise taxes, while showing gains in absolute amount, decline relatively as a result of the large increases in the direct taxes on individuals and corporations. For the same reason, employment taxes show declines in relative importance in the fiscal years 1952 and 1953 in spite of increases in rates, coverage, and the level of salaries and wages. Customs receipts are estimated to decline from actual receipts in 1951 both in absolute amount and in percentages. Miscellaneous receipts are expected to continue their steady decline as a percentage of total receipts.

FISCAL YEAR 1952

Actual receipts in the fiscal year 1951 and estimated receipts in the fiscal year 1952 are compared by major sources in the following table:

(b) Refunds of receipts.....	2,106.5	2,509.8	+403.3
Budget receipts.....	48,142.6	62,680.2	+14,537.6

Budget receipts in the fiscal year 1952 are estimated to be $62,680.2 million, an increase of $14,537.6 million or 30.2 percent over the all-time peak of $48,142.6 million in the fiscal year 1951. All major sources of tax receipts except customs contribute to the increase with direct taxes on corporations accounting for more than half of the increase.

Direct taxes on individuals.—The yield of direct taxes on individuals is shown in the following table:

[In millions of dollars]

Source	1951 actual	1952 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1952 over 1951
Individual income tax:
Withheld.....	13,534.6	17,906.0	+4,371.4
Not withheld.....	9,830.4	11,418.0	+1,587.6
Total individual income tax.....	23,365.0	29,324.0	+5,959.0
Estate tax.....	638.5	675.0	+36.5
Gift tax.....	91.2	65.0	-26.2
Total direct taxes on individuals.....	24,094.7	30,064.0	+5,969.3

Receipts from income tax withheld are estimated to increase by $4,371.4 million as a result of the full year effect of the Revenue Act of 1950, effective for only approximately three quarters of the fiscal year 1951, as a result of the Revenue Act of 1951 which increased withholding rates effective November 1, 1951, and as a result of increased levels of salaries and wages. Income taxes not withheld are estimated to increase as a result of a combination of the full year effect of the Revenue Act of 1950, the part-year effect of the Revenue Act of 1951, and the higher income levels.

Direct taxes on corporations.—Corporation tax receipts in the fiscal year 1951 reflect incomes of the calendar years 1949 and 1950, while receipts in the fiscal year 1952 reflect incomes in the calendar years 1950 and 1951.

Estimated receipts of $22,900.0 million in the fiscal year 1952 represent an increase of $8,512.4 million over the $14,387.6 million collected from this source during the fiscal year 1951. An important factor in this increase is the sharp rise in corporation profits which has occurred since 1949. New legislation, and the increasing effect of 1950 legislation are also responsible for the increase.

Increases in the corporation income tax rates from 38 percent to approximately 47 percent for large corporations provided for by the Revenue Act of 1950 and the Excess Profits Tax Act of 1950, affecting only a portion of 1950 incomes, become completely effective for the 1951 tax year. The excess profits tax, which was imposed on only 50 percent of calendar year 1950 incomes, is fully effective for calendar year 1951. The effect on fiscal year collections is accentuated by the acceleration of quarterly payments under the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1950.

The Revenue Act of 1951 increased the corporation normal tax by 5 percentage points effective April 1, 1951, reduced the excess profits credit from 85 percent to 83 percent effective July 1, 1951, and increased the excess profits tax limitation from approximately 15 percent of excess profits net income to 18 percent effective April 1, 1951.

Excise taxes.—Receipts from this source by major groups are listed in the table below:

[In millions of dollars]

Source	1951 actual	1952 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (—), 1952 over 1951
Liquor taxes.....	2,546.8	2,612.0	+65.2
Tobacco taxes.....	1,380.4	1,590.0	+209.6
Stamp taxes.....	93.1	92.0	—1.1
Manufacturers' excise taxes.....	2,363.8	2,272.0	—91.8
Retailers' excise taxes.....	457.0	486.0	+29.0
Miscellaneous excise taxes.....	1,842.6	1,994.0	+151.4
Adjustment to daily Treasury statement basis.....	+9.5	—	—9.5
Total excise taxes.....	8,693.2	9,046.0	+352.8

Excise taxes are estimated to increase in the fiscal year 1952 as a result of the tax increases under the Revenue Act of 1951, effective November 1, 1951, and higher levels of income. All major revenue sources show increases with the exception of the manufacturers' excise taxes. The decline of receipts from manufacturers' excise taxes reflects both the high level of scare buying in fiscal year 1951 and reduced output resulting from material shortages in the fiscal year 1952.

Employment taxes.—The yields of the various employment taxes are shown in the table below:

[In millions of dollars]

Source	1951 actual	1952 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (—), 1952 over 1951
Federal Insurance Contributions Act.....	3,119.5	3,850.0	+730.5
Federal Unemployment Tax Act.....	233.5	257.0	+23.5
Railroad Retirement Tax Act.....	577.5	740.0	+162.5
Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.....	9.8	10.0	+0.2
Total employment taxes.....	3,940.4	4,857.0	+916.6
Deduct appropriation to Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund.....	3,119.5	3,850.0	+730.5
Net employment taxes.....	820.8	1,007.0	+186.2

Receipts in the fiscal year 1952 are expected to increase over the fiscal year 1951 as a result of higher levels of salaries and wages and the full year effect of the increase in the tax base limitation from $3,000 to $3,600 and the extended coverage under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act effective January 1, 1951. In addition, receipts in the fiscal year 1952 will include for the first time collections from the self-employed category of the new coverage. Receipts from the Railroad Retirement Tax Act show an unusually large increase as a result of a changed collection procedure effective July 1, 1951, which results in the collection of approximately 2 months' additional liability in the fiscal year 1952.

Customs.—Customs receipts are estimated to amount to $575.0 million in the fiscal year 1952, a decrease of $49.0 million from actual receipts of $624.0 million in the fiscal year 1951.

Miscellaneous receipts.—Miscellaneous receipts are estimated to be $1,598.1 million in the fiscal year 1952, a slight decrease from actual receipts of $1,628.8 million in the fiscal year 1951.

Refunds of receipts.—Refunds of receipts are estimated to be $2,509.8 million in the fiscal year 1952, an increase of $403.3 million over the fiscal year 1951. Excess amounts withheld under the individual income tax withholding system are expected to rise as a consequence primarily of increased tax rates.

FISCAL YEAR 1953

Estimated receipts in the fiscal years 1952 and 1953 are compared by major sources in the following table:

Budget receipts.....	62,680.2	70,997.9	+8,317.6

Budget receipts in the fiscal year 1953 are estimated to amount to $70,997.9 million, an increase of $8,317.6 million over 1952 and 47.5 percent greater than fiscal year 1951. All major sources of tax receipts except customs contribute to the increase with direct taxes on corporations again accounting for more than half of the total increase.

Direct taxes on individuals.—The yield of the direct taxes on individuals is shown in the following table:

Receipts from income tax withheld are estimated to increase as a result of the full-year effect of the higher withholding rates under the Revenue Act of 1951, effective for only about two-thirds of the fiscal year 1952, and estimated higher levels of salaries and wages. Income taxes not withheld are estimated to increase as a result of the full year effect of the Revenue Act of 1951 and higher levels of income.

Direct taxes on corporations.—Corporation income and excess profits taxes are estimated to amount to $27,800.0 million in the fiscal year 1953, an increase of $4,900.0 million over 1952. A portion of this increase is due to the substantial rise in 1951 corporation incomes as compared to 1950, and to a moderate further increase estimated for 1952. The effect on fiscal year collections is accentuated by the acceleration of quarterly payments under the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1950.

Other factors contributing to the increase include a decrease in the excess-profits credit from 84 to 83 percent of base-period earnings and an increase in normal tax rates from 28.75 to 30 percent for calendar year 1952 as compared to 1951, as well as an increased effect of the higher effective excess-profits tax rate limitation. Permission granted to corporations with fiscal years ending from April to November 1951 to delay filing tax returns until March 1952 is expected to result in the shifting to the fiscal year 1953 of many quarterly payments otherwise due in 1952.

Excise taxes.—Receipts from this source by major groups are listed in the table below:

Miscellaneous excise taxes.....	1,994.0	2,246.0	+252.0
Total excise taxes.....	9,046.0	9,744.0	+698.0

Excise taxes are expected to increase in the fiscal year 1953 as a result of the full year effect of the Revenue Act of 1951 and higher levels of income. All major revenue sources contribute to the increase.

Employment taxes.—The yields of the various employment taxes under existing legislation are shown in the table below:

Total receipts in the fiscal year 1953 are expected to increase over receipts in the fiscal year 1952 as a result of increased levels of salaries and wages. The Railroad Retirement Tax Act receipts show a decrease despite increasing wages because receipts in 1952 reflect liabilities of approximately 14 months.

Customs.—Customs receipts are estimated to be $575.0 million in the fiscal year 1953, the same as in the fiscal year 1952.

Miscellaneous receipts.—Miscellaneous receipts are estimated to amount to $1,613.1 million in the fiscal year 1953, a slight increase from fiscal year 1952.

Refunds of receipts.—Refunds of receipts are estimated to increase to $2,709.3 million in the fiscal year 1953.

REVISIONS IN FEES CHARGED FOR SERVICES

The executive agencies are currently reviewing the fees charged for services rendered to private individuals or groups. As a result of such reviews, a number of changes in fees have been made or are in process administratively. Other changes will require legislative approval. If it were not for these changes, the estimate of the deficit would be $7.4 million higher in fiscal year 1952 and $36.5 million higher in 1953. A small part of these amounts will be deposited into miscellaneous receipts. The remainder will cause a reduction in Budget expenditures through reimbursements to appropriations.

Increases in charges are being made in compliance with the general objective of placing many of the services to private individuals and groups on a self-sustaining basis. This objective is in accordance with the policy of the President as mentioned in the 1948 Budget message and with the sense of the Congress as expressed in title V of Public Law 137, Eighty-second Congress.

The estimate of $14.8 million under proposed legislation is very tentative. A more thorough review than has yet been possible might well result in a larger figure.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS D

INVESTMENT, OPERATING, AND OTHER BUDGET EXPENDITURES

In the Budget Message, Budget expenditures are analyzed by major functional categories. Emphasis is given to the major purposes and scope of the Federal program as a whole. This special analysis, on the other hand, views Budget expenditures in terms of the type of expenditure involved. The purpose of the analysis is to segregate expenditures for assets and other developmental purposes, which yield benefits beyond the current fiscal year, from expenditures which, in the main, yield benefits only within the current year.

In this year's analysis, expenditures for the military services function have been included and classified according to whether they represent additions to assets or current operating expenses. As explained in the Budget Message, the largest part of the Federal Budget and most of the increase in expenditures in 1952 and 1953, are for military services and for other programs contributing to our security effort. Inclusion of military services in the classification, however, has three important limitations. First, while military expenditures increase physical assets, they are not developmental in the same sense in which civil expenditures for assets are developmental. Second, the fact that military services represent such a large proportion of total Budget outlays makes it difficult to appraise the relative significance of investment-type expenditures for nonmilitary functions of the Government. And third, Budget data do not permit a refined classification of military expenditures. In this analysis the classification has been made solely on the basis of the programs shown in the text table of the Budget Message. This permits the classification of military expenditures only in terms of broad magnitudes and not on the basis of a detailed breakdown of appropriation accounts in the Department of Defense.

Expenditures of an investment type are shown in two major categories—one for acquisition or improvement of assets by the Federal Government and one for other broad developmental purposes, such as improvements to State, local, and private assets and expenditures for research, education, and health, which contribute to the development of the physical productivity of the economy or increase the technical skills and knowledge of individuals. Expenditures which yield benefits currently are also grouped in two major categories—one for aids and services to special groups and one for current operating expenses.

This analysis does not represent a capital budget. The term "capital budget," as generally used, refers to a separate accounting and often separate financing for capital outlays as distinct from expenditures for current operating expenses. In the investment-operating analysis, Budget expenditures are classified, on the basis of present governmental accounts, as additions to assets, expenditures for other developmental purposes, or current expenses of various kinds, without regard to depreciation and obsolescence on existing physical assets or anticipated losses on loan programs, which would ordinarily be taken into account in a capital budget presentation. This analysis, therefore, presents an over-all classification of Budget expenditures in terms of the duration and nature of the benefits flowing from such activities, and in no sense presents a balance-sheet analysis of the current status of various assets and other investments of the Federal Government.

The analysis also differs from a capital budget in that the classification of investment-type expenditures is made in terms of the effect on the economy as a whole rather than in terms of the Federal Government as an enterprise. Accordingly, expenditures which have the effect of adding to the value of State and local or private assets or contribute to the skills and knowledge of individuals and in turn improve the productivity of the economy, are considered as investment-type expenditures. In a capital budget, investment expenditures, or capital outlays, would include only those items resulting in additions to assets owned by the Federal Government.

The classification of items has not been guided by their financial recoverability. A significant portion of Federal expenditures, however, is financially recoverable in future years. Most of the amount returned to the Treasury comes from collections on loans, from the sale of commodity inventories, from revenues from the sale of public power, or from amortization payments on other public-works projects. Some additional collections arise from licenses and fees charged for various special services, and a part of the operating expenditures of certain programs is financed by the appropriation of special receipts from these programs.

Many expenditures of the Federal Government, such as grants to States for highways, are not expected to be specifically recovered by future repayments to the Treasury. Rather, they are intended to build up the productivity of the economy. Indirectly, of course, Federal tax revenues will expand as various developmental expenditures increase the wealth and income of the Nation.

SUMMARY

To obtain a clearer understanding of the investment-operating expenditures of the Federal Government, it is desirable to show the distinction between expenditures for military services and expenditures for other functions of the Government as well as showing a summary breakdown of total Budget expenditures. Such a breakdown is presented in table 1.

Expenditures for additions to Federal assets and for other developmental purposes are estimated to be $33.6 billion in 1953, compared with $25.5 billion in 1952 and $10.9 billion in 1951. Most of the increase in the 2-year period will be for military expenditures, such as procurement of aircraft, ships, and other major equipment, construction of military installations, and increases in military research and development. Civil investment-type expenditures, which are a much smaller proportion of total investment expenditures, are also estimated to increase in 1952 and 1953, primarily because of the expansion of programs supporting the security effort or necessary to provide essential civilian services. Included are such expenditures as those for construction and research in the atomic energy program, for defense housing, and for loans to finance expansion of defense production.

Expenditures for aids and special services and for other current operating expenses will increase from $33.8 billion in 1951 to $44.6 billion in 1952 and to $51.0 billion in 1953 because of larger outlays for military personnel, for repair, maintenance, and operation of military assets, and for military and economic assistance under the proposed extension of the Mutual Security Act program. Expenditures for aids and special services, other than the international, are expected to decline in both 1952 and 1953. Nonmilitary current operating expenses will increase somewhat due to the larger interest cost on the public debt and increased expenditures for the economic stabilization program under the Defense Production Act.

The major categories of the special analysis are explained in the following discussion.

ADDITIONS TO FEDERAL ASSETS

Loans.—The activities of the Federal Government include a wide variety of direct loans and loan guarantee and insurance programs, which are intended to further the defense effort, to aid private economic activity, and to promote the economic development of other nations in the interest of world peace. Expenditures for most loan programs are shown in the Budget on a net basis; i. e., expenditures reflect new loans less collections on old loans. However, the loans of the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers' Home Administration and a number of smaller loan programs are included in the Budget on a gross basis, with collections on old loans going directly to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. In this analysis, loans are shown on the same basis as they appear in Budget expenditures.

Budget expenditures for loans are estimated to increase from $1.3 billion in 1951 to $2.3 billion in 1952 and to decrease to $1.3 billion in 1953. Detailed information on loans is contained in Special Analysis E on Federal credit programs, immediately following the investment-operating analysis. In the separate analysis of credit programs, loan expenditures are shown net of all receipts including collections going directly to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

In both analyses, the coverage of loan programs is broader than in the loan category of last year's analyses. The net loans of the Federal intermediate credit banks have been included this year in total Budget expenditures and are reflected in the loan category. Price support loans of the Commodity Credit Corporation have been included under the loan category rather than being merged with net expenditures for commodity inventories. Since these loans are nonrecourse loans, they do not represent financial assets in the same sense as other loans. However, commercial bank loans guaranteed by Commodity Credit Corporation are ordinarily included in statistics of private credit, and the direct loans of the Corporation are included here. In the investment-operating analysis and in the special credit analysis, collateral taken over by Commodity Credit Corporation when loans mature is treated as a repayment of loans, and the offsetting increase in inventories owned by the Corporation is reflected under additions to physical assets.

Federal physical assets.—Expenditures in this category include (1) the acquisition of sites and the direct construction of Federal public works projects and military installations; (2) the net increase or decrease in commodity inventories for the agricultural price support program, for the stockpiling of strategic and critical materials, and for expansion of defense production; (3) outlays for procurement of aircraft and other major military equipment, construction of merchant ships owned by the Federal Government, and other major civil equipment; and (4) other expenditures for acquisition of land and improvement of physical assets which do not fall in the public works category. In this tabulation, Federal expenditures on physical assets, in the main, represent gross rather than net additions to the stock of existing assets. The large increase in expenditures for military equipment does not allow for the destruction or obsolescence of existing equipment. Expenditures for civil and military construction also do not allow for depreciation on existing physical assets, nor do they allow for collections going directly to miscellaneous receipts from the sale of Government assets.

• Deduct, excess of repayments and collections over expenditures.

Outlays for Federal physical assets are estimated to increase from $6.6 billion in 1951 to $28.4 billion in 1953. Most of the increase over the 2 years is due to construction of military installations and procurement of aircraft, ships, tanks, and other military equipment. Civil public-works expenditures also rise from $1.8 billion in 1951 to $2.7 billion in 1953, mainly because of expenditures for atomic energy construction, for the Tennessee Valley Authority, and for defense housing. The remaining civil public-works expenditures will continue at approximately the same level as in 1951 and 1952, under the Budget policy of limiting new starts and, wherever possible, emphasizing projects which contribute most to the security effort. An increase is anticipated in expenditures for major commodity inventories for the stockpiling of strategic and critical materials and for agricultural price support. In the latter program, most of the increase in 1953 compared with 1952 and 1951 is due to the liquidation in the earlier years of inventories acquired in 1949 and 1950.

EXPENDITURES FOR OTHER DEVELOPMENTAL PURPOSES

Certain Federal expenditures which do not add to Federal assets do contribute to the physical assets and other resources of the Nation as a whole. Some of these expenditures are for assets owned by State and local governments to which the Federal Government contributes chiefly through grants-in-aid. Some expenditures are for improvement or development of assets held by individuals or organizations, such as Federal programs assisting farmers in soil conservation. Some expenditures are for research and development either carried on by the Federal Government or by Federal grants to States. And some, either as grants-in-aid or direct Federal expenditures, are to improve the health and education of citizens or to develop productive skills.

These expenditures are set apart in a separate category because the duration of benefits goes beyond the current fiscal year. At the same time, the concept of what is developmental is narrowly defined. Many other programs with some developmental aspects are classified under current expenses for aids and special services or under other current operating expenses. Also, figures for developmental expenditures exclude, so far as feasible, expenditures to preserve or maintain existing assets or other resources.

Expenditures for other developmental purposes are estimated to increase from $3.1 billion in 1951 to $3.5 billion in 1952 and to $4.0 billion in 1953, primarily because of the expansion of military research and development. Increases are also expected for State and local assets in connection with the Federal civil defense program and for Federal aid to school construction. Expenditures for education, training, and health are expected to remain at approximately the same level over the 2-year period, with an increase in expenditures for Federal aid to elementary and secondary education, under proposed legislation, offset by a decrease in expenditures for tuition, supplies, and equipment in the veterans' rehabilitation program.

CURRENT EXPENSES FOR AIDS AND SPECIAL SERVICES

A large part of the expenditures of the Federal Government are primarily to benefit particular economic groups or individuals or to promote international security. While these expenditures, of course, are necessarily current expenditures, they differ materially from operating expenses of a private business or general overhead expenses of the Government. For this reason, they are set out separately as a major category, with subcategories according to the ultimate recipient of the aid or service. Most of these expenditures consist of transfer payments to individuals, grants to States for the benefit of individuals or economic groups, subsidies for various economic groups, payments for goods procured for aid programs, and expenses of performing special services. Also included are expenditures for operation and maintenance of those physical assets which provide aids or services to particular groups.

This category is not intended to cover all aids and services. Substantial benefits also accrue to various economic groups and private individuals from Federal expenditures for loans, for physical assets, and for other developmental purposes such as education and scientific research and development.

In 1953, international aids will represent more than half of current expenses for aids and special services. These are primarily to promote international security by means of military and economic assistance. The increase in total expenditures for aids and services is more than accounted for by the rise in international aids. From 1951 to 1953, veterans' aids are expected to decline, as will aids to agriculture. The estimated decline in expenditures for agricultural aids is due primarily to the increase in farm prices since Korea and the resulting lower level of realized losses on the price support program. Business aids and services will decline in 1953 with the decrease in the Post Office deficit under proposed legislation for increasing postal rates. Aids to business under the Defense Production Act, mainly losses on purchase and sale transactions, will increase in both 1952 and 1953.

OTHER CURRENT OPERATING EXPENSES

Expenditures for other current operating expenses include the repair, maintenance, and operation of civil and military assets, interest on the public debt, economic regulation and other law enforcement, and general operating expenses such as payments to Federal employees' retirement funds, Federal financial management, and international activities. The major part of the increase in other current operating expenses from $21.9 billion in 1951 to $33.9 billion in 1953 is due to the expansion of the national security program. Expenditures for economic regulation under the proposed extension of the Defense Production Act will continue to increase in 1953, and there will be some increase in international information and education activities and the Federal contribution to employees' retirement funds. Expenditures for interest on the public debt will also be larger in 1952 and 1953.

NONCOST PAYMENTS

Noncost payments included in Budget expenditures amount to $701 million in 1953, $750 million in 1952, and $581 million in 1951. These expenditures include the payment to the railroad retirement trust fund and the administrative expenses of the railroad unemployment insurance administration fund, all paid from the proceeds of special payroll taxes. These items do not represent costs to the Government, nor do the receipts represent revenues available to the Government. Not included here, however, are various other intragovernmental transfers such as payments to the civil-service retirement trust fund and to the veterans' insurance trust funds. These transfers represent true Budget costs and have, therefore, been included either as current expenses for aids and special services or as other operating expenses of the Government.

RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER SPECIAL ANALYSES

The information shown in the present analysis is of a summary character. The three special analyses following the investment-operating analysis in part IV of the Budget document present additional detailed information on loans, public works, and Federal aid to State and local governments.

Federal credit programs.—New obligational authority and status of credit authority for both direct loan programs and loan guarantee and insurance programs are shown in Special Analysis E on Federal credit programs. In addition, commitments and net expenditures are presented for individual programs. In the investment-operating analysis, however, only the budgetary effects of these loan programs are summarized in the category of loans under additions to Federal assets.

Treatment of public works.—In the present analysis, the public-works activities of the Federal Government do not appear in one category. Some expenditures for public works are included under Federal loans; other public works, largely acquisitions of sites or direct Federal construction, are included under Federal physical assets; and still others, grants-in-aid to State and local governments, are included under expenditures for development of non-Federal physical assets. The public-works figures both in this classification and in Special Analysis F on public works and other construction exclude, so far as feasible, expenditures for repair and maintenance, although, of course, these may entail the employment of construction workers.

Expenditures for public-works activities are summarized in the following tabulation according to the major categories of the present classification.

Treatment of Federal aid to State and local governments.—Grants to States and shared revenues represent a method of payment, rather than a basic category of the present classification. Some grants are made for construction of physical assets; some are for aids to individuals or particular economic groups; and others are for operating expenses of specific programs. Because of the great interest in these and other intergovernmental payments, loans to State and local governments and grants-in-aid and shared revenues have been set out separately as subcategories in the various parts of this special analysis to which they relate. Details appear in Special Analysis G.

The following tabulation summarizes the items of Federal aid to State and local governments according to the major categories of the present classification.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS E
FEDERAL CREDIT PROGRAMS

This special analysis continues, in a more comprehensive form, the analysis first appearing in the 1952 Budget document. It summarizes new obligational authority, new commitments, expenditures, and status of credit authority of all major Federal credit programs. It gives a broad picture, not only of direct Federal loans and investments, but also of Federal loan insurance and loan guarantee programs. In addition, it provides supporting detail for the loan section of Special Analysis D on Investment, Operating, and Other Budget Expenditures.

The analysis covers credit programs of all wholly owned Government enterprises, whether corporate or noncorporate. Included also are all credit operations of established departments and agencies, even though incidental to other functions; for example, the Treasury Department loan to the United Kingdom in 1947.

The special analysis this year is more comprehensive than the analysis in the 1952 Budget document because of the inclusion of the credit programs of the Commodity Credit Corporation, the Federal intermediate credit banks, and the veterans' life insurance trust funds. In addition, outstanding loans of important quasi-public agencies are summarized in a separate table.

The analysis in general excludes interagency credit; for example, borrowing from the Treasury by other Government agencies, whether for loan or other programs.

Federal credit programs, in the main, are designed to supplement or reinforce private financing. In general they are concentrated in areas where they help to achieve major nonfinancial objectives of public policy. For example, as part of the Federal programs for improvement of housing standards, Federal agencies currently insure or guarantee about 40 percent of all home-mortgage loans now outstanding. Similarly, financial assistance in the form of credit is an important part of the Federal program of encouraging efficient family-size farm units. Loans to help restore international economic stability and promote economic development of underdeveloped areas have been a major part of the Government's international aid program in recent years. On the other hand, except for loans and loan guarantees to help meet defense requirements, Federal loans to business have accounted for only a very small fraction of business credit.

Since the attack on Korea the policies of all major Federal credit programs have been regularly reviewed, at the President's request, from the standpoint of their contribution to the defense effort and their consistency with the over-all anti-inflation program. Several new programs have been initiated and other programs drastically re-oriented to help meet defense requirements. Nondefense programs have been cut back or held to levels well below the statutory authorizations.

SUMMARY

Total new commitments for all major Federal credit programs for the fiscal year 1953 are estimated at $17.1 billion. Of this total, credit aids for housing and community development account for $6.7 billion, or 39 percent; those for agriculture and agricultural resources account for $4.2 billion, or 25 percent. Total commitments in the fiscal years 1952 and 1953 are considerably above the 1951 level, primarily because of new credit aids for defense production and defense housing.

Net expenditures for Federal credit programs in the fiscal year 1953 are estimated at $1.1 billion—a decrease of $1.0 billion from 1952. The 1953 estimates assume that additional private funds will be available to meet the demand for mortgages and other housing obligations, thus permitting a substantial reduction in the Federal mortgage support program and other housing credit aids.

The relatively small budgetary impact of Federal credit programs arises from three unique aspects of these programs. The most important is the predominance of Federal insurance and guarantees of private loans in recent years, discussed more fully later in this analysis. Such programs normally involve little or no Budget expenditures except in cases when defaults cause the guaranteeing or insuring agencies to take over the private loan. Secondly, a substantial share of the new commitments, both for insurance and guarantees and for direct loans, are canceled or expire without being used by the lending institution or the borrower. Finally, collections on loans in most cases directly offset disbursements on new loans, with the result that net expenditures are much less than gross expenditures; often net receipts occur.

NEW OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY

New obligational authority for most credit programs is provided in the basic legislation rather than in appropriation acts. For example, the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Public Housing Administration, and the various mortgage insurance authorizations of the Federal Housing Administration are all prescribed in the statutes governing these programs. In only a few cases—such as the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers Home Administration—are limits on the extent of credit operations normally set in annual authorizations. The general rule is, rather, merely to impose annual limitations on administrative expenses.

Most credit programs do not require specific annual authorizations of new obligational authority. In several important cases, the authority provided by the basic statute is indefinite in amount. The most important examples are guarantees and insurance of loans by the Veterans' Administration, guarantees of defense production loans under section 301 of the Defense Production Act, and indirect guarantees of local housing authority obligations issued on the security of annual contribution contracts of the Public Housing Administration. In these cases, the tabulations show new authorizations equal to the net amount of new commitments estimated. In other cases, new credit commitments can be financed out of unexpended or uncommitted balances of prior authorizations, or out of funds made available by collections on outstanding loans. Hence, requests for new obligational authority in any one year are limited to relatively few credit programs.

New obligational authority required is estimated at $6.0 billion for the fiscal year 1953—substantially below the 1952 level. Only $1.3 billion of this represents new Budget authorizations. In addition, specific congressional action is requested to provide $1 billion in additional insurance authority for the Federal Housing Administration and to extend the loan guarantee authority provided in the Defense Production Act.

NEW COMMITMENTS

New commitments provide the best single measure of the trends in most Federal credit programs. They also provide the best indication of trends in the economic impact of these programs, since changes in the magnitude of new commitments usually lead to corresponding changes in volume of loans disbursed either by public agencies or private lenders.

In this study, commitments are defined as approvals by the Federal agencies of direct loans or of insurance or guarantees of private loans. They are shown on a gross basis, without deductions for commitments which do not result in an actual credit extension. The amounts included are the principal amounts of the loans themselves, even though in the case of some guarantee and insurance programs this exceeds the Government's contingent liability.

As table 3 indicates, commitments for Federal guarantees and insurance of private loans are roughly twice as large as commitments for direct Federal loans and investments. The greater emphasis on guarantees arises from the policy of using private credit in most cases wherever it can be made available on reasonable terms, and wherever it is administratively feasible. Many of the direct loans and investments indirectly add to private lending; for example, purchases of mortgages from private financial institutions. Many of the remaining direct loans are made in cases where private credit is not available even with Federal insurance or guarantees, or where risks are regarded as unusually great, as in the international area.

Direct loans and investments.—New commitments for direct loans and investments are estimated at $6.5 billion in 1952 and $5.7 billion in 1953—compared to $5.0 billion in 1951. During this period, the most substantial increases are in defense-related programs, especially loans under the Defense Production Act and loans by the Federal intermediate credit banks to help finance expansion of farm production. The most important declines are shown in the new commitments of the Federal National Mortgage Association, the Rural Electrification Administration, and in the regular business-lending program of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. These curtailments reflect in large part the restrictive policy adopted on nondefense credit programs during the present emergency.

Guarantees and insurance.—New commitments for Federal guarantees and insurance of private loans will amount to an estimated $11.0 billion in the fiscal year 1952 and $11.4 billion in the fiscal year 1953—substantially above the $8.5 billion committed in 1951.

Over the 2-year period, expansion in defense-related programs accounts for increases of over $2.7 billion. Insurance of military and defense housing mortgages by the Federal Housing Administration will increase from $270 million in 1951 to $2.2 billion in 1953. On the other hand, insurance of mortgages on nondefense housing will decline from $3.3 billion to $2.2 billion, and a somewhat smaller reduction is estimated in loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

Adjustment for overlapping.—Total commitments overstate by as much as $2 billion the net amount of credit assistance by the Federal Government, especially for housing credit. This is because two or more types of Federal assistance are sometimes provided for the same borrower or the same property at different stages in the financing process.

A substantial share of the housing initially constructed with the aid of mortgage insurance commitments by the Federal Housing Administration is ultimately sold to veterans who finance their purchases with mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. The Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized to purchase only mortgages previously insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

Similarly, local housing authorities normally finance most or all of the construction of low-rent units with temporary loans made or directly guaranteed by the Public Housing Administration. These temporary obligations, however, in 1952 and 1953 are being refinanced by sale of long-term obligations to private investors on the security of annual contribution contracts. This refinancing accounts for the great bulk of the increase in commitments by the Public Housing Administration.

DISBURSEMENTS AND REPAYMENTS

Direct loans and investments, unlike guarantees and insurance, have a significant impact on the Federal Budget. Net expenditures of all Government lending programs—with the exception of the loans from trust funds or from quasi-public agencies—are included in the Budget totals. In most cases, collections are offset directly against expenditures; in a few major programs, however, they go directly to miscellaneous receipts and, therefore, do not affect Budget expenditures.

Expenditures of most loan programs are shown in the Budget on a net basis, i. e., they reflect new loans less collections on old loans. In the detailed table in this special analysis, loans are shown on a net basis. However, to show more clearly the total volume of loans, they are summarized in table 4 on a gross basis. Two columns are shown for each fiscal year. The first shows gross loan disbursements during the year, and the second shows repayments (including those going directly to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury). The difference between these two columns represents the net addition to or reduction from Federal loan assets (excluding charge-offs and recoveries) during the fiscal year. After this net total, a one-line adjustment is made for repayments going directly to miscellaneous receipts, bringing the total expenditures for loans into line with the Budget expenditure concept.

In the summary table and in the later detail, the loan expenditure figures represent disbursements and collections on principal account and exclude all income and expense items. They also make no allowance, either for write-offs of old loans or for possible future losses or recoveries. Consistent with the general definition of Budget expenditures, they exclude investments in United States Government securities.

In the fiscal year 1953, gross loan disbursements are estimated at $5.4 billion, and repayments at $4.3 billion. Thus the gross level of activity will be about five times as high as the net expenditures. Of the total repayments, $239 million will go directly to miscellaneous receipts, chiefly repayments on loans of the Farmers' Home Administration, the Rural Electrification Administration, and the Treasury loan to the United Kingdom. Net Budget expenditures for loans, therefore, will amount to an estimated $1.3 billion.

Measured in terms of both disbursements and repayments, the Federal intermediate credit banks represent the most active direct lending program. This reflects primarily the short-term nature of their advances (which are often renewed). Net expenditures in 1953 will amount to only 2 percent of gross disbursements. On some programs with predominantly long-term loans, such as the Rural Electrification Administration, or direct loans for expansion of defense capacity, current levels of repayments are only a small portion of current disbursements.

Neither current repayments, nor net expenditures provide any measure of the ultimate recoverability of the loans made. In most programs, interest or premiums cover all expenses and losses. On some programs the legislative mandates make losses probable from time to time, for example, nonrecourse loans of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the loan-guarantee programs of the Veterans Administration. Details on income and expense are shown in statement B for all business-type budgets.

STATUS OF CREDIT AUTHORITY

Unlike most other Government programs, commitment authority for the major credit programs is not normally provided for a single year, but remains available in most instances until utilized or until the statutory authority for the program expires. Hence, with only a few exceptions, the existing authority represents the cumulative total of amounts made available in prior years.

Net authority available.—Three major types of commitment authority have been provided for Federal credit programs. A majority of the major programs operate on a revolving-fund basis, that is collections on outstanding loans and expirations of insurance commitments permit reuse of the original authority. Limitations on such programs are ordinarily in terms of maximum amounts of loans outstanding, maximum borrowings from the Treasury, or maximum insurance or guarantee liability. Leading examples include lending programs of almost all Government corporations and the mutual mortgage insurance program of the Federal Housing Administration.

In the case of several noncorporate loan and loan insurance programs a maximum limitation is placed upon the total volume of loans and loan insurance commitments. Funds collected on such loans and expirations of such insurance are not available for reuse. Typical examples are the direct loan programs of the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers' Home Administration and the special housing mortgage insurance programs under titles VI, VIII, and IX of the National Housing Act.

A few programs are not governed by any specific dollar limitations. These are limited only indirectly by the provisions of the statute or of the agency's regulations governing eligibility for Federal credit assistance. The amount committed depends primarily on the number of applications. The most important examples are the loan guarantee and insurance programs of the Veterans Administration. The loan guarantees authorized under section 301 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 are also not specifically limited.

Credit authority available at the beginning of the fiscal year 1953 is estimated at $66.5 billion. New obligational authority of $6.0 billion will be made available during the year. On the other hand, expirations and other reductions in outstanding authority will amount to $1.4 billion. The net authority available at the end of the fiscal year 1953, therefore, will total $71.2 billion. Housing and community development and veterans' services and benefits—predominantly mortgage insurance and mortgage guarantee programs—account for more than half the total available authority.

Charges against authority.—Outstanding loans and investments by the end of the fiscal year 1953 are estimated at $17.7 billion. Almost half of these represent loans to foreign governments, including the $3.7 billion loan to the United Kingdom and loans of $2.5 billion by the Export-Import Bank. Of the undisbursed commitments of $5.4 billion, $2.5 billion represents the commitment to purchase additional stock in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

Guarantees and insurance in force will continue to increase to an estimated total of $31.0 billion at the end of the fiscal year 1953. Mortgage insurance by the Federal Housing Administration and guarantees by the Veterans Administration account for almost all of this amount, as well as for outstanding commitments of $3.4 billion.

The amounts shown represent the estimated contingent liability of the Federal Government and exclude the unguaranteed portion of any loans. The major program on which the contingent liability differs materially from the principal amount of the loan is the veterans' loan guarantee program. By the end of the fiscal year 1953, the outstanding amount of such loans will be at least $8 billion higher than the Government liability under present economic conditions.

The probability that the Government will be called upon to meet these contingent liabilities in most instances is very small, except in a national financial emergency. Sizable assets are available to minimize any potential losses. Moreover, in the case of mortgage insurance programs, the premium income in the past has been sufficient not only to cover expenses and current losses but also to build up substantial reserves.

Uncommitted authority.—For Federal credit programs as a whole, commitment authority at the end of the fiscal year 1953 will exceed charges against the authority by $13.7 billion. Almost half of this uncommitted authority represents authority which is inactive at present and likely to continue so, or which requires specific Presidential action before being used. The most important examples of such authority are the $3.0 billion stand-by borrowing authority of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and authorities of $1.0 billion for the Federal home-loan banks, and $750 million for the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. None of these are likely to be required unless a national financial emergency occurs. In addition, the great bulk of the $750 million lending authority for the slum clearance program and of the $300 million program for housing loans to educational institutions and all of the $250 million authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for civil defense loans on the basis of current plans will not be used during the fiscal year 1953.

Of the $7.1 billion in uncommitted authority available for relatively active programs, more than half is accounted for by the unused borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation and other farm lending institutions. Unused lending authority of the Export-Import Bank, the Public Housing Administration, and the Federal National Mortgage Association represent the other large items. This excludes the indefinite authority under the Veterans Administration loan guarantee programs and similar programs not specifically subject to over-all limitations.

QUASI-PUBLIC CREDIT PROGRAMS

The Federal Government also has a measure of responsibility for the credit programs of certain mixed-ownership corporations and other public agencies operating in whole or in part with private funds. In the case of the banks for cooperatives, almost all the stock is owned by the Federal Government. For three programs, the policy-making board is appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Both the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Federal home-loan banks have specific authority to borrow from the Treasury on demand. The Federal Reserve banks pay 90 percent of their profits, after prescribed maximum dividends, to the Treasury, and their entire surplus reverts to the Treasury in the event of liquidation.

Outstanding loans and guarantees under these quasi-public programs are estimated at $2.2 billion at the end of 1951. The level of the individual programs is expected to be relatively stable during 1951 to 1953. The bulk of the outstanding loans represents mortgage loans by the Federal land banks through the national farm loan associations and advances by the Federal home-loan banks to member savings and loan associations. The figures for the Federal Reserve banks include discounts and advances to banks and industrial loans and participations.

[PROGRAMS BY MAJOR FUNCTION]

The major Federal credit programs are concentrated in four functional areas. Key facts about each of these major programs are summarized in the following paragraphs:

VETERANS' SERVICES AND BENEFITS

Veterans Administration.—The Administrator of Veterans' Affairs, under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, guarantees and insures loans made by private lenders to veterans of World War II for the purchase or construction of housing—and is guaranteeing and insuring a relatively small number of business and farm loans. In the fiscal year 1953, an estimated 360,000 guarantees of home loans will be approved, compared to 525,000 in 1951 and 384,000 in 1952. No statutory limit is placed on the total amount of these loans, but the Government liability in individual loans guaranteed is currently limited to 60 percent of the principal amount or $7,500, whichever is less.

INTERNATIONAL SECURITY AND FOREIGN RELATIONS

Mutual Security Agency.—The Mutual Security Agency administers the lending programs previously under the Economic Cooperation Administration, including the loan to Spain of $62.5 million, and the loan to India of $190 million under the India Emergency Food Act. The Mutual Security Act of 1951 requires that at least 10 percent of the economic assistance granted be in the form of loans; they will amount to at least $150 million in the fiscal year 1952.

Export-Import Bank.—During the fiscal year 1953, the Export-Import Bank will make new commitments of $420 million, about one-third higher than in 1952. Much of this increase is for assistance to underdeveloped areas, including development of strategic materials abroad. Under legislation enacted last fall, additional lending authority of $1.0 billion has been provided.

Loans to the United Kingdom.—The United Kingdom has now made final repayment on the $390 million loan made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation during World War II. Scheduled repayments have begun on the $3,750 million loan extended by the Treasury Department in 1947 and 1948.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Veterans Administration.—Under the Housing Act of 1950, the Veterans Administrator is authorized to make a maximum of $150 million in direct housing loans to veterans in areas where guaranteed loans are not available at 4 percent interest. This authority has been extended until June 30, 1953, and put on a revolving fund basis.

Slum clearance and urban redevelopment.—The Housing and Home Finance Agency, by authority of the Housing Act of 1949, makes loans and grants to communities to plan and execute projects for the elimination of slums and the redevelopment of blighted areas. The complex task at the local level of planning these projects and acquiring the necessary land has made this program slow in getting under way. By the end of the fiscal year 1953, only $156 million of the available loan authority of $750 million will have been committed.

Housing loans to educational institutions.—A loan program of $300 million to provide housing for educational institutions was authorized by the Housing Act of 1950. Loans under this program can now be made only to meet housing shortages resulting from defense-supporting activities, such as Reserve officers' training programs or defense research work. Commitment authority of $40 million was released for the fiscal year 1952, and an additional $20 million will be released for 1953. The estimates assume that half of the financing in 1953 can be obtained from private sources.

Federal National Mortgage Association.—The Federal National Mortgage Association has the authority to purchase up to $2,750 million of mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. The bulk of the mortgages currently being purchased are those guaranteed by the Veterans Administration, as a result of the reluctance of some private lenders to hold these 4-percent loans. To provide better financing facilities for the construction of housing in critical defense-housing areas, the Association was authorized last fall to use $200 million of this authority for advance commitments to purchase mortgages in these areas. This authority has been entirely used. The Association has also set aside a substantial part of its uncommitted authority to assure lenders that funds will be available to purchase mortgages on defense housing. The 1953 Budget estimates assume that the need for supporting the market for veterans' housing mortgages will be substantially reduced and that about half of the mortgages purchased will finance defense-housing construction.

Federal Housing Administration.—The Federal Housing Administration insures loans for the purchase or construction of housing through several insurance programs to meet different financing needs. The Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951 authorized a new program of mortgage insurance for homes built in defense-housing areas. It also made available $1.5 billion of mortgage-insurance authority for allocation by the President as needed by the various insurance funds. Commitments to insure mortgages on defense housing are expected to rise sharply to $700 million in 1952 and $1.8 billion in 1953, in addition to commitments for military housing insurance of about $300 million each year. Commitments to finance new construction under nondefense programs will decline in both 1952 and 1953. In order to make adequate authority available, particularly for the expanding defense-housing program, legislation will be proposed to permit transfer of uncommitted mortgage-insurance authority from relatively inactive programs as well as to expand the total mortgage-insurance authority by $1.0 billion. By the end of the fiscal year 1953, very little mortgage-insurance authority will remain uncommitted.

Low-rent public housing.—The Housing Act of 1949 authorized the Public Housing Administration to make loans and grants to assist local housing authorities to construct 135,000 low-rent public housing units annually over a 6-year period. The President was given authority to vary the number of units started each year within limits, depending upon economic conditions. For 1953 the Budget estimates assume starts of 75,000 units. The Administration has a borrowing authority of $1.5 billion from which to make loans to local housing authorities to finance preliminary planning and the initial stages of construction. Prior to the completion of construction, the local housing authorities repay the temporary loans and obtain long-term financing by selling obligations to private borrowers. Although these bonds are not directly guaranteed by the Federal Government, the Public Housing Administration contracts to pay annual contributions which are sufficient to cover amortization and interest payments. These obligations, therefore, are treated in the analysis as equivalent to loans guaranteed by the Federal Government. Temporary loans and loan commitments are expected to reach a relatively constant level somewhat below the $1.5-billion borrowing authority. The amount of guaranteed long-term obligations, however, will rise as an increasing number of housing units are completed.

AGRICULTURE AND AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES

Rural Electrification Administration.—Since 1935, the Rural Electrification Administration has been making loans, mainly to cooperatives, to finance construction of electrical distribution, transmission, and generating facilities in rural areas. In 1950, similar loans to finance improvements in rural telephone systems were authorized. New loan authority is provided annually in the Budget to finance both programs. Because of the large carry-over of unused commitments and uncommitted authority, totaling $840 million on June 30, 1951, new obligational authority requested was substantially reduced for 1952 and is further reduced for 1953. Because of the shortage of key materials and the need to curtail nondefense credit, new commitments in both 1952 and 1953 are being held to $190 million, sharply below earlier levels.

Farmers' Home Administration.—Production and subsistence loans account for the bulk of the loans made by the Farmers' Home Administration. In addition, it makes loans for farm ownership and improvement, for farm housing (classified in Housing and Community Development), and for improvement of water facilities in semiarid areas. These programs are financed each year by new authorizations, available only for loans approved during the year. The Administration also may insure a maximum of $100 million a year in long-term mortgage loans to finance tenant purchases of farms. Despite the need for expanded farm production, the requested new obligational authority of $133 million (excluding farm housing) for direct loans is about the same as the 1952 authorization.

Commodity Credit Corporation.—As an important part of the Government's program of supporting farm prices, the Commodity Credit Corporation makes direct loans and guarantees loans by private lending agencies to enable farmers to withhold crops from the market until more favorable prices prevail. In addition, the Corporation makes loans for construction or improvement of farm-storage facilities. The price-support loans are nonrecourse loans; in other words, if the price of the commodity is below the support price when the loan becomes payable, the borrower may discharge his obligation by turning over the commodities to the Corporation. These are treated as repayments of loans in this analysis. Because of great variations in the supply and demand for farm commodities, new commitments vary sharply from year to year and net expenditures in 1 year may be followed by net receipts in another. After deduction of funds used for nonlending programs, the Corporation will have over $4.6 billion available for loans and loan guarantees. While new commitments of $1.5 billion are anticipated in the fiscal year 1953, on the basis of the present outlook most of the loans will have been repaid in cash or commodities, leaving outstanding loans and guarantees of only $600 million on June 30, 1953.

Federal intermediate credit banks.—The 12 Federal intermediate credit banks make short-term loans to farm-lending institutions to help them finance production credit needs of farmers. To finance expanding farm production and to meet higher production costs, loan commitments in the fiscal year 1953 are estimated at $2.3 billion, or 20 percent above the 1951 level. Repayments, however, will almost cover disbursements, so that net expenditures will amount to only $44 million. While the total lending authority of the system is ample to meet these demands, additional investments in the stock of certain banks have been necessary during the fiscal year 1952. The banks obtain most of their funds by selling their debentures in the private market.

FINANCE, COMMERCE, AND INDUSTRY

Expansion of defense production.—Under section 301 of the Defense Production Act, the Departments of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Commerce, Interior, and Agriculture, the Atomic Energy Commission, the Defense Materials Procurement Agency, and the General Services Administration are authorized to guarantee loans to defense contractors and subcontractors. The program is modeled after the guarantee program of World War II and is administered through the Federal Reserve System under Regulation V of the Board of Governors. Almost all of the commitments to date have been made by the three military departments. No specific limitation is placed on the aggregate amount of loan guarantees.

Under section 302 of the same act and Executive Order 10281, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Export-Import Bank are authorized to make direct loans and to participate in private loans for expansion of capacity, development of technological processes, or production of essential materials. This authority is available for borrowers who are ineligible under the regular lending authority of these agencies. Most of the loans to date have been made to the machine tool, copper, aluminum, and steel industries. Under section 303 of the same act, the Defense Materials Procurement Agency makes advances on purchase commitments for strategic minerals and metals and industrial equipment. Major commitments so far have been for the machine-tool program. The estimates assume that new commitments for loans under sections 302 and 303, by the end of the fiscal year 1953, will use about half of the existing and proposed $3 billion borrowing authority.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation.—Under its basic statute, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to make direct loans and to participate in private loans to help finance private businesses which are unable to obtain credit on reasonable terms elsewhere. In addition to its regular business lending authority the Corporation under section 714 of the Defense Production Act may make up to $100 million in loans to small businesses for defense purposes upon the recommendation of the Small Defense Plants Administration. Under its present policies, commitments under both authorities are limited to loans which assist military or essential civilian production.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS F

FEDERAL ACTIVITIES IN PUBLIC WORKS AND OTHER CONSTRUCTION

The construction activities of the Federal Government are the means by which it accomplishes some of the public responsibilities legally assigned to it. These activities consist of direct Federal public works, both civil and defense, loans or grants for non-Federal public works, and various forms of assistance for private activities involving construction. The total of these activities has a significant effect upon the total construction and economic activities of the Nation.

The separate programs which make up this total require many types of construction, depending upon program objectives. Furthermore, the importance of these separate programs varies from year to year as national objectives or necessities change. Corresponding changes in the size of these programs must therefore be made from year to year to meet such situations. For example, construction programs for the long-range general development of the natural resources of the Nation or for the general expansion of private housing facilities must be curtailed during a period when scarce materials are required for expanding defense production. On the other hand, special areas of expanding defense activities may require Federal assistance for additional school facilities because of a rapid influx of defense workers. Construction of some water resources projects may have to be started or accelerated to meet increased power or water requirements for special defense industry areas or for production of increased quantities of raw materials needed for defense.

Substantial curtailment of nondefense construction in the face of current heavy defense requirements is indicated in the following analysis of Federal construction activities. However, in many instances it has been necessary to allow for expanded construction programs or for construction of new projects in order to provide for critical regional defense requirements or for some long-term development of our natural resources to maintain national strength.

This analysis is primarily concerned with the civil public-works programs of the Federal Government, but also contains a summary of the construction aspects of certain other programs. Rapidly changing developments in the military programs prevent the inclusion of detailed information on military public works at this time.

CIVIL PUBLIC WORKS

Federal civil public-works programs have been redirected since the Korean emergency to make their maximum contribution to the defense effort. In order to do this it has been necessary to postpone certain desirable programs and to place emphasis upon those activities which would make the most direct contribution to the defense program. Even with the suspension or curtailment of a number of projects and programs, the addition or acceleration of power projects and the addition of special defense-area construction programs has resulted in total estimated expenditures on Federal civil public works in fiscal year 1953 of $3.4 billion, the same level as 1952, and an increase of $1 billion over 1951. Table 1 shows these expenditures by agencies for the fiscal years 1951, 1952, and 1953.

CONTINUING WORK AND NEW PROJECTS

Table 2, following, classifies the civil public works programs of the Federal agencies as new or continuing, and as direct Federal construction or loans or grants to non-Federal public agencies for construction. "New" projects, or features, and "new" commitments are defined as (1) those direct Federal projects or project features on which construction will be started with appropriations and contract authorizations recommended for fiscal year 1953 and (2) new commitments recommended for fiscal year 1953 on loan and grant programs.

Estimates of expenditures required to complete going work after fiscal year 1953 are based largely on current construction prices. Should these costs change before the projects are completed, the required expenditures would differ from those shown in table 2.

Of the total of $3.4 billion of estimated expenditures in 1953 for civil public works, $565 million are for new projects or commitments. Of the latter, $264 million are recommended under proposed legislation.

RESERVE OF PUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS

Authorized work.—In addition to the foregoing commitments to complete going work, agency reports indicate that, on the basis of present prices, almost $16 billion of construction work has been authorized, either by general or specific legislation, for undertaking after fiscal 1953. Almost two-thirds of this authorized work is included in the river-basin programs of the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Planned projects.—The reserve of projects for which detailed plans are prepared, is, in general, greater than in 1952 because of the restrictions on starting construction of projects already planned. The Corps of Engineers has an estimated $2 billion of authorized projects planned to the stage where construction can be undertaken; and advance planning is in various stages of completion on another $2.7 billion of authorized work. The Bureau of Reclamation has no large reserve of completed plans available in fiscal 1952 for later construction. Plans are now in process of preparation for $260 million of projects, and additional planning will continue in 1953. The Tennessee Valley Authority has an estimated $236 million of projects planned and plans for another $1.1 billion of work are in process of preparation. Other Federal agencies have much smaller quantities of planning under way. The aggregate of planned direct Federal projects ready for construction is $2.6 billion, with another $4.4 billion of project plans in process of preparation.

In addition to this category, States, local authorities, and cooperatives receiving Federal loans and grants have plans completed for a total of $3 billion of projects, with another $4 billion in preparation.

BASIC DATA, PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATIONS, AND DETAILED PLANS

Basic data.—Basic data, such as topographic maps and records of rainfall, runoff, and stream flow, in addition to their being of general value, are essential to the efficient and economical design and construction of many projects, particularly in the field of resource development. A total of $44 million is recommended in fiscal year 1953 for general coverage data collection, including topographic mapping and geodetic control, geologic and soil surveys, and for assembly of hydrologic and climatologic data. These general programs provide data for the preliminary planning and investigation of construction projects, and substantially reduce the cost of specific project surveys and investigations.

Preliminary investigations.—Well conceived development projects and many defense installations require much preliminary investigation to determine their engineering and economic feasibility. Federal developments have frequently been hampered in the past by inadequate examination of all of the problems involved before projects were authorized and construction was undertaken. Appropriations and allotments totaling $22 million are recommended for fiscal year 1953 for preliminary investigations of river-basin and other construction programs under consideration.

The foregoing amounts include funds for the comprehensive interagency surveys of the Arkansas-White and Red River Basin and the New England-New York area called for in the 1950 Flood Control Act.

Costs given in the two foregoing paragraphs are not included in construction costs in this analysis.

Detailed plans.—Preparation of detailed project plans well in advance of construction provides for more orderly programming of project construction and prevents many expensive changes in project designs during the construction period. Funds for preparation of such plans in fiscal 1953 have been provided in the amount of $43.5 million. Approximately 50 percent of these funds are for the Atomic Energy Commission.

PROGRAMS BY MAJOR FUNCTIONS

Most of the functions of the Federal Government require or include public works. Expenditures on the natural resources programs make up more than 50 percent of total outlays for civil and public works in fiscal year 1953. Transportation facilities also account for a large share of the expenditures. Veterans' services and benefits, education and general research, and housing and community development functions also include substantial outlays for construction.

VETERANS' SERVICES AND BENEFITS

Veterans Administration hospitals.—During fiscal year 1953, work will continue on the construction program for Veterans Administration hospitals authorized in 1947, consisting of 75 hospital projects to provide 36,490 beds, 2 new regional offices on existing hospital sites, and the major alteration and renovation of existing hospitals and homes. All but 3 of the 75 hospitals in this program will be contracted for by the end of 1952 and these 3 are expected to be placed under contract in fiscal 1953. The total estimated cost of the new and continuing program is now $931.5 million, an increase of $40.2 million, resulting from increased construction costs, minor changes in plans ($19.3 million), and the inclusion of funds for new alteration and renovation programs and for hospitals to be completed during 1953.

INTERNATIONAL SECURITY AND FOREIGN RELATIONS

International information and educational activities.—To promote the objectives of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948, provision is made for the establishment of a world-wide broadcasting network, including the land and equipment for short-wave plants in the United States and relay bases overseas. Expenditures are estimated to amount to $35 million in 1952 and $27 million in 1953.

Department of State, building fund.—The Congress has authorized over the years a total of $141.6 million for acquisition of sites and construction of buildings in foreign countries for the use of the Department of State and other agencies of the United States Government. Expenditures for construction in fiscal year 1953 are estimated at $6.8 million. Legislation expanding this authority has been requested in 1952.

SOCIAL SECURITY, WELFARE, AND HEALTH

Public Health Service.—The Federal-aid hospital construction program was authorized in 1947. The initial act authorized a total of $375 million of Federal grants over a 5-year period for non-Federal public and private nonprofit hospitals and health facilities. The Eighty-first Congress amended the law to authorize annual grants for this purpose of $150 million in the fiscal year 1950 and for 5 years thereafter. A total of $467 million in authorization has been provided through the fiscal year 1951. An additional $75 million for new obligations is recommended for 1953. This will permit final approval of about 200 new projects, considered essential in maintaining the health of the communities involved.

The figures in tables 1, 2, 4, and the detailed table on page 1191 include only the grants for public hospitals. Totals for private hospitals are included in table 6.

Construction of the Clinical Research Center and auxiliary buildings at Bethesda, Maryland, which was begun in fiscal year 1949, is scheduled to be completed early in fiscal year 1953. This facility will provide research laboratories and a 500-bed clinical hospital for research in cancer, heart, mental, neurological, metabolic, and various infectious diseases.

Construction of the Environmental Health Center at Cincinnati, Ohio, will be completed in fiscal year 1953 and will provide a laboratory for research in problems of water pollution, radioactive wastes, radiological health, general sanitation, and air pollution.

Department of Justice.—Construction programs in the Department of Justice will be held back in 1953. Where possible, continuing projects are being deferred. A sewage disposal plant at the McNeil Island, Washington, Penitentiary, is recommended. Construction of facilities for new industries at Camp Cook, California, will be financed from funds of the Federal Prison Industries, Inc. For 1952, supplemental funds are recommended for the Immigration and Naturalization Service to construct temporary detention camps as a part of the Mexican border program to control the "wetback" movement of itinerant workers.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Housing and Home Finance Agency.—Title III of the Housing Act of 1949 expanded the low-rent public housing program by authorizing 810,000 units over a 6-year period and a $1.5 billion revolving loan fund. This program is being restricted below authorized levels, with 75,000 units recommended for 1953.

The program of advance planning of non-Federal public works was authorized for a 2-year period ending October 13, 1951. Activity in 1952 and 1953 is restricted to completion of plans for defense related projects and to liquidation of loans.

The Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951 authorized $50 million for direct Federal housing and $60 million for community facilities and services in critical defense housing areas. Both the Housing and Home Finance Agency and the Public Health Service provide community facilities under this act. Legislation is proposed to increase the authorizations by $325 million to provide for anticipated housing and facilities requirements in critical defense housing areas during 1953.

Department of the Interior.—The 1953 program for Alaska public works contemplates an acceleration of construction of sewer and water systems, streets, and school projects in support of the housing program in Alaska. Expenditures will be $15 million. The 1953 program for Virgin Islands public works will remain at about the 1952 level.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation.—Loan disbursements of $23 million to public agencies for community facilities in the fiscal year 1953 include provision for a loan to a publicly owned electric power project on the west coast and other loans similarly connected with the defense effort or with essential civilian needs.

Federal Civil Defense Administration.—It is estimated that 31 million people are located during daytime working hours in commercial or industrial zones where the need for protective shelters is greatest. A program for the construction of protective shelters in critical target areas is proposed for 1953. Funds to match State and local moneys are provided for the modification of existing structures, and the construction of single-purpose shelters. The total shelter program will cost $1,730 million of which the Federal share will be $865 million. Expenditures in 1953 are estimated at $50 million.

It is also proposed to build a gas chamber at the National Institutes of Health for use in research in the detection of and protection against bacteriological warfare. Small sums will be expended for other types of research facilities.

EDUCATION AND GENERAL RESEARCH

Office of Education.—The construction of school facilities in federally affected districts is being carried forward primarily through grants. The 1953 Budget proposes $150 million of new authority under existing law for this purpose. The present legislative authorization expires at the end of the fiscal year 1953. This Budget proposes an extension and amendment of this legislation which would provide $75 million of new authority for construction of schools in critical defense housing areas.

AGRICULTURE AND AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES

Department of Agriculture.—Small amounts are provided in this Budget for improvements at the Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Maryland, and for other research facilities. Other agricultural construction programs, principally for rural electrification and flood control, are discussed in the section dealing with other Federal activities in construction.

NATURAL RESOURCES

The natural resources program includes the multiple-purpose development of river basins for flood control, irrigation, hydroelectric power, and other purposes and the conservation and development of land, forest, mineral, recreational, and fish and wildlife resources. This section, however, excludes capital outlays of a nonstructural nature, such as range improvements, wildlife development, reforestation, and revegetation, which cannot be classified strictly as construction.

RIVER-BASIN PROGRAMS

Corps of Engineers, flood control.—This program is Nation-wide in scope and involves the construction, operation, and maintenance of storage reservoirs for flood control, hydroelectric power, and related purposes; the construction of protecting levees and flood walls, and the improvement of channels. In 1953 major emphasis will continue on protective works in the Mississippi River and its principal tributaries, particularly the Missouri. Many of the projects on these tributaries involve the generation of hydroelectric power. Large projects are also under way in the Los Angeles and Central Valley areas of California and are nearing completion in the Roanoke and Savannah River Basins on the Atlantic seaboard. Four new projects are proposed for construction in 1953. Three of these, the Tuttle Creek Reservoir in the Kansas River Basin, and local protection works at Topeka, Kansas, and Cape Girardeau, Missouri, will effect a material reduction in the damages which would be caused by a recurrence of the disastrous 1951 floods in those areas. Hartwell Reservoir in the Upper Savannah River Basin will aid in providing electric power to an important defense facility in the vicinity. In addition, it will improve the flow of water into the Clark Hill Reservoir downstream, with benefit to the power generated at that project.

Corps of Engineers, rivers and harbors.—Major emphasis in the river and harbor program will continue in 1953 to be on multiple-purpose projects in the Pacific Northwest which produce hydroelectric power. Ice Harbor Lock and Dam in the lower Snake River Basin is proposed for construction in 1953. It is situated in the vicinity of the Hanford Atomic Energy installation and will aid in providing a direct supply of power to that facility. The navigation projects in the river and harbor program are discussed in the Transportation and Communication section of this analysis.

Corps of Engineers, St. Lawrence and Niagara River developments.—The start of the St. Lawrence River project is recommended under proposed legislation. This Budget includes $15 million of estimated expenditures for the start of construction on this project. In addition, funds are provided for continuation of planning for the urgently needed redevelopment of Niagara power facilities.

Bureau of Reclamation.—The Bureau's program for development of water resources in the 17 Western States and Alaska will consist primarily of continuation of construction on 55 irrigation and power projects, including both the Eklutna project in Alaska and 19 units of the Missouri River Basin program. The Bureau's program also includes construction of transmission lines to principal load centers to carry electric power produced at reclamation projects and at related projects of the Corps of Engineers. Work will be initiated on one more unit of the Missouri River Basin program. Most of this construction is for projects which will either provide essential power, or have reached a stage of construction where continuation to completion is necessary to protect the Federal investment already made or to make usable segments already completed. Of the total construction and rehabilitation appropriation, approximately 88 percent will be expended for 6 major projects and 20 units of the Missouri River Basin program. The six major items are the Central Valley project in California, Colorado-Big Thompson project in Colorado, Hungry Horse project in Montana, Columbia Basin project in Washington, Palisades project in Idaho, and Eklutna. The remainder of this appropriation will be used for continuation of 30 other projects and for a rehabilitation program on existing projects, consisting principally of replacement of obsolete or deteriorated structures and equipment.

The only new projects recommended are Hells Canyon Dam and Reservoir on the Snake River, required to relieve the power shortage in the Pacific Northwest, and Glen Elder Dam and Reservoir on the Solomon River, for flood-control purposes in the Kansas River Watershed. Also proposed are two additional features of the Colorado-Big Thompson project, the California-Oregon transmission line of the Central Valley project needed to augment the load-carrying capacity of the Bonneville power system in the Pacific Northwest and of power systems in California, and new features on the Bostwick and Frenchman-Cambridge units of the Missouri River Basin program.

International Boundary and Water Commission.—The major portion of the Commission's construction activities for fiscal year 1953 will be directed toward the completion in November 1953 of Falcon Dam, the first of the multiple-purpose dams authorized on the Rio Grande by the Treaty of February 3, 1944. In addition, work will be initiated on the Anzalduas Diversion Dam, a feature of the Lower Rio Grande flood-control project, to alleviate flood damage in the Brownsville-Matamoros area.

Bonneville Power Administration.—This agency is responsible for marketing electric power generated at Federal dams in the Pacific Northwest. The recommended program for 1953 is a continuation of major grid transmission facilities required for the transmission of this power to principal load centers and to adjacent areas and for facilities to permit connection of customers with this basic grid at appropriate lower voltages. Installed Federal generating capacity serving this system will total 2,680,500 kilowatts by the end of fiscal year 1953. During 1953 approximately 740,000 kilowatts of firm power will be contracted for by defense industries. In addition, the Administration plans to increase the supply of interruptible power for defense loads from approximately 325,000 kilowatts in 1952 to over 600,000 kilowatts in 1953. Circuit miles of transmission lines in operation at the end of 1951 were 4,372. It is estimated that this mileage will increase to 5,089 and 5,704 in 1952 and 1953, respectively.

Southwestern Power Administration.—The recommended program for 1953 provides for construction of transmission facilities to interconnect the Federal power system in six States in the southwestern area of the United States, with facilities of the Grand River Dam Authority of Oklahoma, and with municipalities, REA borrowers, and private utilities. Upon completion of these facilities, the Federal system will consist of 966 miles of transmission lines providing direct interconnection of the Denison, Norfolk, Bull Shoals, Whitney, Fort Gibson, and Tenkiller Ferry projects of the Corps of Engineers.

Southeastern Power Administration.—The recommended program for 1953 provides for planning and construction of transmission lines in the southeastern part of the United States to deliver power from the Philpott, John H. Kerr, and Clark Hill projects which will be in operation by the end of fiscal year 1953, and from the Jim Woodruff project which is scheduled to begin operation in fiscal year 1955. Installed generating capacity will amount to 805,000 kilowatts by the end of fiscal year 1953, including 459,000 kilowatts of capacity within the TVA area.

Tennessee Valley Authority.—The going power program will be continued in 1953 to furnish power, not only for the steady growth in the service area of the valley but also for the large increase in the requirements of the Atomic Energy Commission's facilities. Eight new steam electric generating units with a capacity of 1,260,000 kilowatts and three additional generators at existing dams with a total capacity of 82,000 kilowatts are among the features for which funds are provided to meet additional loads expected to develop after 1954. Upon completion of these facilities, installed capacity of the TVA system, excluding plants of the Aluminum Company of America and the Corps of Engineers, will total 7.2 million kilowatts.

Summary of Federal hydroelectric power activities.—The major part of the construction under the natural resources function is related to or includes the development of electric power. Capacity installed by Federal power agencies now amounts to 8.3 million kilowatts or 11.5 percent of total United States capacity, and when projects now under way are completed will total 18.6 million kilowatts as indicated in the following table:

Federal generation presently scheduled (name-plate capacity)

[Million kilowatts]
Agency	Dec. 31, 1951	Ultimate
Corps of Engineers.....	1.1	7.5
Bureau of Reclamation.....	4.3	5.1
Tennessee Valley Authority.....	2.9	5.9
International Boundary and Water Commission.....		.1
Total.....	8.3	18.6

New projects proposed in the 1953 Budget would add an additional 3.5 million kilowatts to the above capacity. By agency, the Corps of Engineers projects will provide 1.4 million kilowatts; Tennessee Valley Authority, 1.3 million kilowatts; and Bureau of Reclamation, 0.8 million kilowatts. About 75 percent of this new capacity is located in two regions of the United States, the Northwest and Southeast. These areas have demonstrated a need for additional electric power for several years ahead. In both areas, aluminum plants, atomic-energy facilities, and defense industries are heavy users of power. The balance of the capacity proposed for initiation in 1953 is scheduled from the St. Lawrence project which, when completed, will contribute low-cost power to the industrially important New York-New England area.

OTHER NATURAL RESOURCES PROGRAMS

Forest Service.—Expenditures by the Forest Service will be for forest access roads and other facilities for the protection and management of forest resources.

National Park Service.—Visitors in the travel year ending September 30, 1951, were 36.7 million as compared with 32.8 million in the previous year. The 1953 recommendation for construction of roads, trails, and physical facilities in park areas will continue these programs at only slightly above the 1952 level and contemplates principally additions to existing facilities to meet steadily growing visitor loads. The 1953 recommendation for construction of parkways reflects an increase in fund requirements for the Baltimore-Washington Parkway, required for heavily congested traffic in this area.

Bureau of Mines.—The 1953 estimates provide for the construction of a laboratory at Reno, Nevada, for research in mining and metallurgy of strategic and critical materials and an experiment station at Morgantown, West Virginia, for research in mining, preparation, and utilization of coal, other minerals, petroleum, and natural gas.

Atomic Energy Commission, construction program.—Construction activity will remain at a high level through 1953 primarily because of continued work on the production facilities under construction at the Paducah, Kentucky, and Savannah River sites. Expenditures for research facilities will be somewhat above the 1952 level, with expenditures for the construction of experimental reactors being considerably higher than in 1952 and expenditures for other research facilities declining appreciably. Housing and other community construction in the towns of Oak Ridge, Richland, and Los Alamos will decrease substantially as projects financed in prior years progress to completion.

Bureau of Indian Affairs.—Increased amounts are provided for the construction of schools, hospitals, irrigation systems, roads, and bridges to aid in the rehabilitation of the Indians. Expenditures are estimated at $26,300,000.

TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATION

Corps of Engineers, rivers and harbors.—This public works program is Nation-wide in scope and involves dredging and rock removal in the harbors and approach channels along the coasts and the Great Lakes and in the inland rivers; and the construction of locks and dams including in many cases hydroelectric power generating facilities. The multiple-purpose projects involving power are discussed in the Natural Resources section. The only new single-purpose start recommended for 1953 is a new lock in the Mississippi River at Keokuk, Iowa, required to replace an obsolete structure which is in imminent danger of collapse.

Panama Canal Company and Canal Zone Government.—In 1953 the Panama Canal Company plans to continue construction of quarters for employees of the Panama Canal Company and the Canal Zone Government. This program, amounting in total to $80 million, was commenced in 1951. Expenditures for these quarters will amount to $13.7 million in 1953.

Civil Aeronautics Administration.—Under the Federal-aid airport program, authority of $183.9 million has been made available through 1952 for airport grants to State and local public sponsors. For 1953, $14.7 million is recommended, compared to $16 million appropriated for 1952. In both years, grants for new projects will be limited primarily to terminal-type airports.

The recommended new program of $10.5 million for 1953 for the establishment of air-navigation facilities continues at the 1952 program level. This amount is substantially below authorizations for prior years, and is intended to provide for only the most urgent airways modernization projects.

Bureau of Public Roads.—Total authorizations for the program of grants to States for highway construction projects on the Federal-aid primary, urban, and secondary systems since 1946 amount to $3.3 billion. Partly because of steel shortages, the program has been delayed and payments to States in 1952 and 1953 will be substantially below the current $500 million annual authorization provided in the Federal-aid Highway Act of 1950.

The forest highway program, a direct Federal construction activity, is currently emphasizing roads that are essential links in the Federal-aid systems. An estimated 525 miles of roads are to be constructed in 1953 under this program.

All Federal-aid and forest highway funds already authorized have been apportioned among the States and new legislation is required to make available new obligational authority during fiscal year 1953. For this purpose, authorizations of $400 million for Federal-aid highways and $17.5 million for forest highways are recommended.

Access roads to defense establishments and sources of raw materials are constructed as part of the defense program. For this purpose, $26.5 million has already been made available, and $12 million is proposed for new authorization for 1953. These authorizations are used only where the roads cannot be financed under regular highway programs.

Alaska Road Commission.—The 1953 program for road construction in Alaska provides for additional surfacing of about 180 miles of arterial highways connecting Anchorage and Fairbanks with the United States and with the ports of Valdez and Seward and construction of about 90 miles of new secondary road mileage both for national defense and territorial development.

Alaska Railroad.—The 1953 program contemplates rehabilitation of the Seward-Portage line for national defense purposes and additional facilities and equipment to meet growing defense-related freight demands.

United States Coast Guard.—The Coast Guard's civil public works program is a continuing one, involving the establishment, replacement, and improvement of shore facilities required in connection with the functions of search, rescue, and law enforcement along the seashores and other navigable waters and aids to navigation, all of which are related to national defense. The increase in 1953 is due to expansion of the loran system to meet defense needs. The 1953 estimate also provides for the construction of two light stations; improvement of existing facilities; and the establishment of aids to navigation to mark river and harbor improvements, including work in the Trust Territories of the Pacific Ocean.

GENERAL GOVERNMENT

General Services Administration, public buildings.—In accordance with budget policy on civil public works, no general public-buildings program is recommended. However, the scope of such a program was previously defined by legislation and $40 million was authorized to acquire sites and prepare plans for a building-construction program outside the District of Columbia. Of this authorization, $13 million has been made available from appropriations enacted for 1950 and 1951 fiscal years. The construction program of General Services Administration is limited to continuing work on a few projects for which it has heretofore received authorization and on previously authorized construction for other agencies for which funds are available.

General Services Administration, dispersal of Federal activities.—This Budget makes provision for initiation under proposed legislation for a program to provide for the dispersal of essential units of Government in the vicinity of the District of Columbia. An appropriation of $15 million is recommended for fiscal year 1953, with first-year expenditures of $5 million.

DEFENSE CONSTRUCTION

It is not possible at this time to give any details of the military public works programs, but a summary of these programs is given below. Certain other programs which are a direct outgrowth of the national defense program also involve expenditures for federally owned facilities. These also are discussed below.

Department of Defense, military functions.—The expanded defense program requires large expenditures for new facilities. These include training and testing facilities, warehouses, new bases, and troop housing. Part of this construction will be in overseas areas. Expenditures are estimated at 3.5 billion dollars in fiscal year 1953, compared with 2.7 billion dollars in 1952. These estimates take account of recommendations to be submitted to Congress later this year.

National Industrial Reserve.—The General Services Administration has substantially completed the construction required to reactivate 7 magnesium plants and 1 nickel plant. This reactivation program will be completed in 1953 and will cost a total of $26 million.

Stockpiling—GSA—Storage facilities for stockpiling materials.—The shortage of space required to store stockpile materials has led to construction of needed storage facilities. Facilities to store fats and oils and closed warehouses to store other materials are major elements of the $80 million program. By the end of fiscal year 1953, $65 million in facilities will be in place.

National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.—The public works expenditures provide for modifications and additions to research facilities which are required for aeronautical research carried on by the Committee in support of the aircraft and guided missiles programs of the Department of Defense. The 1953 Budget includes new projects for increasing the capabilities of the Lewis Laboratory, Cleveland, Ohio, for research on jet engines, and for research on aircraft structures at the Langley Laboratory, Langley Air Force Base, Virginia. Construction will be continued on three large supersonic wind tunnels under the Unitary Wind Tunnel Plan Act of 1949. Total expenditures for construction are expected to rise from $20 million in 1952 to $25 million in 1953.

RFC—Synthetic rubber facilities.—Modification of certain Government-owned synthetic rubber plants will increase annual capacity 100,000 tons, making a total of 860,000 tons annually of GR-S type rubber by the end of 1952. No new plants are being constructed. At the same time, conversions will be made to cold rubber processing. The expansion and conversion, begun in fiscal 1951, will cost a total of $35 million and will be completed by the end of 1952. Replacements of equipment will cost $6 million in 1952, and $20 million in 1953.

OTHER FEDERAL ACTIVITIES IN CONSTRUCTION

In addition to civil public works, there are several other categories of Federal activities, involving loans, loan guarantees, grants, or direct Federal expenditures, which affect or involve construction. They are discussed under the classifications below. The distinguishing feature of these expenditures is that they contribute principally to the physical assets of international public bodies, of semi-public and private groups, or of individuals, whereas public works are limited both in the foregoing section of this analysis and the Analysis of Investment, Operating, and Other Budget Expenditures (Analysis D), to additions to Federal, State, and local governmental physical assets. This year several additional items have been added to this section as a result of Federal activities related to the expanding defense program.

INTERNATIONAL PUBLIC WORKS

Inter-American Highway.—The 1953 Budget includes one million dollars of new funds, the presently authorized level, to continue construction of the Inter-American Highway, linking the nations of the Western Hemisphere. Expenditures are estimated, however, at $4.1 million. The estimated additional cost to complete the highway is $56 million.

SEMI-PUBLIC WORKS

One important group of programs which a strict interpretation of "public works" excludes from the previous classifications is that concerning Federal aid to semi-public bodies. These are discussed in the paragraphs immediately following.

Rural Electrification Administration.—This agency makes loans to finance electrification facilities to serve rural areas, a program initiated in 1935 when less than 11 percent of farms in the United States were electrified, as compared to the present 84 percent; and facilities to provide and improve rural telephone service.

Howard University.—The construction program is restricted in the 1953 Budget to buildings now under construction or buildings necessary to the medical program. Previously appropriated sums for all other buildings have been placed in a contingency reserve pending review of each project in the light of current mobilization requirements.

Grants for hospital construction.—Figures in table 6 above reflect that part of this program which is not classified as public works. In this case, grants are made to States for construction of hospitals which are not publicly owned. Many of these are private nonprofit hospitals. Expenditures are approximately 50 percent of the total hospital grant program.

OTHER CONSTRUCTION ACTIVITIES

Various Federal programs provide loans, loan guarantees, and occasionally grants and direct aids for construction to individual farmers, home owners, and business. This additional construction is an important segment of the total construction aggregate, and, with special reference to the defense program, has stimulated a very large volume of industrial expansion essential to mobilization. Aids for less essential construction have been curtailed.

Farm construction and water facility loans.—The Farmers' Home Administration makes various types of loans for farm houses and buildings. In addition, loans for improvement of water facilities on farms in semiarid areas involve construction expenditures estimated at $5 million in 1952 and $6 million in 1953.

Agricultural flood control.—Flood-control activities of the Department of Agriculture are designed to reduce floods by controlling flow in upstream areas. A small part of this program is for direct construction of control structures on farmers' lands. Expenditures are estimated to be $2.5 million in fiscal year 1953.

Commodity Credit Corporation grain storage facilities.—The Corporation purchases and maintains granaries and equipment for the care and storage of grain owned or controlled by it, makes loans for the construction or expansion of farm storage facilities, and provides storage-use guarantees to encourage the construction of commercial storage facilities. Loans and guarantees are estimated at $7 million in fiscal year 1953.

Housing finance programs.—The Federal Housing, Veterans, and Farmers' Home Administrations operate programs for the insurance or guarantee of mortgages on private homes. The Defense Housing and Community Facilities Act of 1951 provides additional financial aids to encourage private development of housing in critical housing areas.

Defense mobilization aids to construction.—Under the Defense Production Act and related legislation, substantial incentives are provided to encourage construction of plants needed for defense. Certificates of necessity have been issued to permit rapid tax amortization of facilities whose total value is about $12 billion. Much of the substantial expansions in the steel, aluminum, petroleum, refining, electric power and other industries have received this type of assistance.

Under the $2.1 billion borrowing authority in the Defense Production Act several types of incentives are provided to encourage construction of defense facilities. Loans, advances against production, guaranteed prices, and purchase contracts at higher than ceiling prices are also provided under this authority to aid defense-industry expansions.

Other programs.—The above and other programs having a substantial but less direct effect on construction are included among those discussed in Special Analysis E on Federal Credit Programs, which presents a comprehensive picture of Federal loan, loan guarantee, and loan insurance programs.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS G

FEDERAL AID TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

This special analysis brings together in a single listing all the estimates of expenditures for programs of Federal aid to State and local governments which appear in various agency chapters in part II of this Budget. The total of Federal aid in the fiscal year 1953 is estimated at $3,048 million, or 4 percent of all Federal Budget expenditures. The individual programs are identified in the detailed table which follows.

The largest part of these Federal-aid expenditures will take the form of grants-in-aid, estimated at $3,014 million in the fiscal year 1953. Expenditures for shared revenues are estimated at $45 million for 1953. Expenditures for gross new loans and repayable advances to State and local governments are $11 million less than collections credited against these expenditures.

Of the total of Federal-aid expenditures in the fiscal year 1953, $2,611 million is the estimated amount required under existing laws and $437 million is a preliminary estimate of needs under proposed legislation. All of the estimate for proposed legislation is for grants-in-aid.

The grants, and also the loans and repayable advances, are a device of intergovernmental cooperation through which the Federal Government participates in programs of national interest administered by State and local governments. The shared revenues are payments of a portion of the proceeds from the sale of certain Federal Government property, products, and services, usually in connection with the management of public lands.

The annual volume of Federal-aid expenditures over a 7-year period and their relative budgetary importance for the Federal Government and for the State and local governments are shown in the following table:

Fiscal year	Federal expenditures for aid to State and local governments ¹ (millions)	Federal-aid expenditures as percent of—
		Total Federal expenditures	State-local revenues

³ Not available.

New obligatory authority.—The analysis this year omits data on new obligatory authority for aid to State and local governments, which was shown in former years. In the many grant-in-aid programs which are only a part of larger appropriation accounts, there is usually no separate limitation upon the part available for grants. In many other Federal-aid programs, new obligatory authority does not differ from expenditures to any significant extent. New obligatory authority for each appropriation account is shown, however, in the tables at the beginning of the several chapters in part II of this Budget.

In general, the Federal-aid programs in which there are substantial differences between new obligatory authority for any year and expenditures in that year are the construction programs, for the reason that construction projects cannot generally be completed and paid for within a single fiscal year. The following table shows new obligatory authority for the fiscal year 1953 and estimated expenditures in that year for the major Federal-aid programs which involve construction:

[In millions]

^a Deduct. Gross loans in this program are less than collections by this amount.

In addition to these programs, there is a substantial difference between new obligatory authority and expenditures in the slum clearance and urban redevelopment program, not listed above because the Federal aid is not for construction. The detailed table shows no expenditures for grants-in-aid under this program, but, under the law, $100 million of new obligatory authority for capital grants to local governments becomes available during each of the three fiscal years. Expenditures for loans under this program are substantially less than new obligatory authority for the purpose in each of the three fiscal years. In 1953, for example, new obligatory authority for loans will become available in the amount of $250 million, but the net expenditures are estimated at $25 million.

Major programs.—Grants to State and local governments account for more than one-half of the Federal expenditures in such functions as social security, welfare, and health; labor; and education and general research. The largest grant program is for public assistance, estimated at $1,240 million in the fiscal year 1953, including $100 million under proposed legislation. Other major grants under present law are for highway construction, hospital construction, school construction in emergency areas, unemployment compensation and employment-service administration, and civil defense.

The major new grant under proposed legislation is for maintenance and operation of elementary and secondary schools. The Budget includes for 1953, new obligatory authority of $385 million for highway construction grants under proposed legislation, but no expenditures would be made under this legislation until later years. The expenditures for highway construction in 1953 are from authorizations for prior years.

The largest loan programs under present law are for low-rent housing and site acquisition for later slum clearance and redevelopment.

Loans and repayable advances.—Budget expenditures for loans and repayable advances are net amounts, representing for any year the gross amount of loans and advances less credits for certain collections during the year. In the fiscal year 1953, Budget expenditures for this purpose are negative. That is, the collections, estimated at $378 million, exceed by $11 million the gross disbursements. Other collections, estimated at $8 million, are a part of "Miscellaneous receipts" and are not deducted from gross disbursements in computing Budget expenditures.

Factors affecting aid expenditures and allocations.—The amounts expended for most programs of Federal aid are subject to limitation in advance within maximum amounts established in the basic authorizing laws. However, in the largest grant program—public assistance—the Federal expenditure is a reimbursement to the States of a portion of their expenditures, with the reimbursement based on a statutory formula applied to case loads and individual benefit rates established by the several States.

Federal-aid laws contain provisions restricting the Federal expenditures to specified purposes. States or local governments that wish to qualify for grants are usually required to meet certain conditions and standards relating to such matters as the matching of Federal expenditures, approval of State plans, the designation of an administering agency, a merit system of personnel selection, reporting systems, and audits. In their details these conditions and standards vary considerably among programs. In the case of shared revenues, the Federal statutes usually specify that the money be used by the States or their subdivisions for roads and schools.

Most Federal grant-in-aid statutes provide for the allocation of money among the States according to formulas containing specified measures of need such as population, per capita income, the incidence of certain diseases, area, or road mileage. These formulas vary considerably from one program to another, depending on the nature of the activity or services for which the aid is given. A few grants are allotted to States as a percentage of State expenditures within specified statutory limits. Other grants are distributed as an equal amount to each State. Some allocation formulas are statutory while others are developed by the administering Federal agency on the basis of criteria listed in the laws.

Relationship to other Budget figures.—Although the entries in this special analysis are compiled from part II of the Budget, and the program titles in general follow the appropriation account titles listed there, certain adjustments in the amounts have been necessary to provide a proper estimate of aid to State and local governments. These are noted below, along with an explanation of some inclusions and exclusions.

Expenditures for grants or loans are made in some instances from an appropriation which also finances direct Federal operations or Federal administrative expenses. In such cases, expenditures other than the actual grant or loan are excluded wherever possible and the amounts tabulated here ordinarily represent only that part of the expenditure for aid to State and local governments.

The amounts shown for the Department of Agriculture program, "Donation of commodities," represent the cost of commodities distributed during the year, whereas the commodities may have been bought, in part, in connection with the agricultural price-support activities of a different year. The expenditures shown for the school-lunch program of the Department of Agriculture also include the cost of some grants-in-kind.

Legislation governing a few grant-in-aid programs permits aid to private nonprofit agencies or institutions. The hospital construction program of the Federal Security Agency is an illustration. It is estimated that 51 percent of Federal expenditures for this purpose in the fiscal year 1953 will be used for nonpublic hospitals. The program, nevertheless, is one in which the States have a central role in the approval of individual projects and the channeling of the Federal payments. Therefore the entire amount authorized and spent for the program is shown in this table. Another program which involves some grants to nonpublic institutions is the school-lunch program of the Department of Agriculture.

On the other hand, certain Federal programs may incidentally involve grants to particular governmental agencies even though they are not primarily programs of grants-in-aid or loans to State or local governments. For example, the Public Health Service makes research grants to medical schools, including some State institutions. Such payments are not included in this tabulation, since the State and local governments do not have general administrative responsibility for the programs.

Other financial relationships.—Apart from grants-in-aid, loans, and shared revenues, many other Federal expenditures and policies affect the finances of State and local governments. Types of transactions not covered in the tabulation of aids include the following:

(a) Reimbursements for various specific services, such as payments to public educational institutions for tuition of veterans and of students from the Armed Forces, and payments to local governments for care of Federal prisoners in local institutions.

(b) Contractual payments to public institutions for research and training in specified fields.

(c) The value of war surplus educational and hospital supplies, materials, and equipment, and of housing donated or sold at substantial discount to State and local agencies.

(d) The payments of property taxes, or payments in lieu of property taxes, made upon Federal property under the provisions of nearly a score of laws. When such payments are based upon a percentage of revenues, however, as in the case of the Tennessee Valley Authority, they are included in the shared-revenue section of the table.

Also, the table does not reflect various indirect financial benefits accruing to State and local governments such as the lower interest rates which those governments enjoy because of exemption from Federal income tax of interest paid on State and local debt; the indirect Federal guaranty of municipal obligations issued for low-rent housing and slum clearance; deductions of State and local income, property, and other taxes from personal and corporate incomes in computing Federal income tax; services which may be rendered to other governmental units by Federal agencies in the ordinary course of their operations; and some programs administered cooperatively for the purposes of both the State and Federal Governments, such as agricultural crop reporting or the National Guard.

Some of these financial benefits, of course, have counterparts in the form of services rendered or occasional payments made to the Federal Government by the States or their subdivisions.

B. CHANGES IN CLASSIFICATION OF ITEMS FOR DEFENSE PRODUCTION ACTIVITIES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1951 AND LATER

In the 1952 Budget as presented to the Congress in January 1951, the tentative estimate for "Expenses of defense production" was shown as a single item under Funds Appropriated to the President and was classified 506. Promotion of defense production and economic stabilization. When supplemental detailed estimates were submitted to the Congress in June 1951, they were identified with particular operating agencies. The Budget for 1953 shows tentative estimates for "Salaries and expenses, defense production activities" under several agencies and the following items are reclassified in categories other than 506:

Executive Office of the President: Council of Economic Advisers	603. Executive direction and management
Defense Transport Administration	455. Regulation of transportation
General Services Administration ²	605. Other central services
Housing and Home Finance Agency	257. Defense housing, community facilities and services
Department of Agriculture	355. Research, and other agricultural services
Department of the Interior	407. Defense production activities
Department of Labor	555. Defense production activities

C. RESUMPTION OF REGULAR CLASSIFICATION FOR DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE EXPENDITURES

Detailed estimates for the Department of Defense were omitted from the Budget for the fiscal year 1952 as transmitted in January 1951, and were submitted in a supplementary document in April 1951. Therefore, in the Budget for 1952 as originally presented, all of the Department's expenditures for the fiscal years 1950-52 were classified in the 050 group, even though comparable expenditures for certain programs were classified otherwise for earlier years. Since the Budget for 1953 includes Department of Defense estimates on a detailed basis, expenditures for the fiscal years 1950 and later have been distributed in the same manner as for years prior to 1950. This distribution affects expenditures for 1950 and later in the following categories outside the 050 group: 105, 151, 304, 403, 456, 605, and 610.

² In this agency, the appropriation is merged with "Emergency operating expenses."
