Under the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932 (47 Stat. 725), the Federal Home Loan Bank Board established Federal home-loan banks throughout the country. These, together with the building and loan associations and similar institutions which are members of the banks, constitute the Federal home-loan bank system, designed to stabilize and strengthen institutions promoting private thrift and individual home ownership. Authority to borrow from the Treasury in the amount of $1 billion was provided in Public Law 576, Eighty-first Congress. No borrowings have been made to date and none is anticipated in 1954.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, pursuant to title IV of the National Housing Act, as amended, insures savings up to $10,000 in all savings and loan associations which apply and are approved for insurance. The Corporation acts to prevent default of insured institutions through loans, purchases of assets, or cash grants, thereby making it possible to eliminate conditions in a community which might affect adversely the financial soundness of other insured institutions. The Corporation also may act as receiver for institutions declared in default. When an insured institution declared in default is a Federal savings and loan association, the Corporation is appointed as receiver for the purpose of liquidation. On June 30, 1952, the 3,097 insured associations had resources of $17.8 billion. The Corporation's liability on the insured institutions aggregated $15.6 billion.

Income from insurance premiums and interest on investments has been sufficient to meet all insurance losses, operating expenses, dividends on $100,000,000 of capital stock held by the Secretary of the Treasury, and to establish a reserve for insurance losses of $112.9 million as of June 30, 1952. The Corporation has authority to borrow up to $750,000,000 from the Treasury, but it has never been used. No appropriations are made to the Corporation.

The Corporation operates under the supervision and direction of the Home Loan Bank Board, which provides certain administrative services and conducts the examination and supervision of insured institutions. The costs of examinations are borne by the institutions examined while the cost of all other services rendered by the Board are paid by the Corporation.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The budget program comprises four activities.

1. Underwriting.—During fiscal year 1952 the Corporation insured 159 additional savings and loan associations, the greatest annual increase since 1939. Reflecting the accelerated growth of all insured institutions was the amount of their assets on June 30, 1952, which had increased almost 7.4 billions of dollars or 70 percent in the last 3 years. The renewed interest in insurance of accounts on the part of currently uninsured institutions plus the anticipated rate of growth will increase the insured liability of the Corporation to an estimated $20,250,000,000 by June 30, 1954, as compared to $2,772,000,000 on June 30, 1942.

2. Prevention of default and payment of insurance.—The Corporation has not made any loans but it has prevented the default of 28 insured associations by making cash grants totaling $5,374,125, of which $475,797 has been recovered leaving a net loss of $4,898,328 to June 30, 1952. One purchase of assets to prevent default of a State-chartered institution was made in 1950. Liquidation of these assets, which was recently completed, was accomplished without loss to the Corporation. Only seven institutions with aggregate assets of $9,209,815 have been declared in default and placed in liquidation. Over 93 percent of the 7,705 insured accounts amounting to $7,557,214 had been settled by June 30, 1952, leaving 526 account holders who have not yet requested settlement of insurance. Although most of the funds disbursed for payment of insurance have been recovered, the Corporation has experienced losses to date of $309,547 from this operation. Through its insurance settlement activities the Corporation has protected the savings of 65,180 investors against the losses they would have experienced if the institutions had not been insured.

In order to prevent or minimize potential losses the Corporation works closely with supervisory authorities to eliminate financial problems of insured associations, collects and interprets financial data for certain areas and specific institutions, and makes intensive analyses of applicants for insurance, including field inspections when necessary.

3. Analysis of operations.—The Corporation maintains a constant study of the financial condition of member institutions, an evaluation of the flow of savings and of the character and volume of mortgage lending. Such studies furnish valuable information to the Home Loan Bank Board and the Corporation in connection with their other activities. By selective review of geographical or community areas and phases of operations it is possible to observe factors which may result in an undue concentration of risk. Certain analyses of trends in the fields of thrift and home mortgage finance are made available to member institutions and the public as illustrated by the Corporation's mortgage recording study, which is the only one available in the United States.

4. Executive direction and fiscal and other administrative services.—Provision is made for all fiscal and other administrative services as well as management and direction.

Administrative expenses.—The requested authorization to use $455,000 of corporate income in 1954 is based upon the assumption there will be no abnormal demands on the resources of the Corporation.

Since the time and size of expenditures for payment of insurance and prevention of default are unpredictable, estimates of these expenditures are omitted from the financial statements, nor has provision been made in the requested authorization for increases in costs of administration which accompany such operations. The budget program of the Corporation is designed to preserve the present nucleus of competent and experienced personnel, to permit the Corporation to minimize or avoid unfavorable developments, and to handle the anticipated number of applications for insurance of accounts.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The 1954 program provides for net investments of $9,900,000 in United States Treasury bonds and notes as compared with an estimated $8,700,000 in 1953 and $8,328,000 invested in 1952.

The Corporation is retiring its capital stock, held by the Secretary of the Treasury, at par in an amount equivalent to 50 percent of the annual net income. Of the original authorized capital stock of $100,000,000 an amount of $14,245,000 has already been retired. An additional payment of approximately $8,847,000 in the early part of 1954 will reduce the outstanding stock to $76,908,000. Funds for these payments are obtained through the redemption of certain United States Treasury notes held by the Corporation. As a result it is estimated that investments held as of June 30, 1954, at par value, will aggregate $228,140,000.

Through June 30, 1952, the Corporation had paid $33,891,438 in lieu of dividends on outstanding capital stock. It is anticipated that additional amounts will be paid to the Secretary of the Treasury of $1,874,488 in 1953 and $1,727,500 in 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Revenues of the Corporation consist primarily of insurance premiums, admission fees, and interest on investments in Government obligations. Total income since 1934 of $160,986,076 has been applied as follows:

	Percent	Amount
Expenses.....	4.4	$7,067,525
Insurance losses (net).....	3.2	5,208,471
Return on capital stock.....	22.2	35,765,926
Legal reserve.....	70.2	112,944,154

As a result of the anticipated rapid growth in the aggregate savings and creditor obligations of insured institutions, and the increasing number of institutions applying for insurance, the Corporation estimates net income before payment of a return on capital stock for fiscal 1954 of $19,936,100. This amount is $4,879,091 or 32 percent above the net income for 1952. After providing for an interest payment in lieu of dividends on the capital stock of $1,552,700 for 1954, the balance of the net income, estimated at $18,383,400 will be credited to insurance reserves of the Corporation.

Because of the estimated insurance liability of $20.3 billion on June 30, 1954, and the statutory provision requiring the Corporation to accumulate a reserve of 5 percent of all insured accounts and creditor obligations, the Corporation does not contemplate returning any earned surplus to the Treasury.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

Total assets of the Corporation amounted to $213,873,962 as of June 30, 1952, an increase of over $7,336,095 since the beginning of the year. Investment in Government obligations of $209,136,171 represented 97.8 percent of corporate assets. In the absence of insurance losses, it is anticipated that total assets will reach $233,818,532 by June 30, 1954.

Under the provisions of Public Law 576, Eighty-first Congress, the Corporation has retired $14,245,000 of its original capital stock of $100,000,000. Based upon the anticipated net income, before paying an interest charge in lieu of dividends on the average stock outstanding, the Corporation expects to reduce the outstanding capital stock to $66,939,000 shortly after the close of the fiscal year 1954. Assuming stable economic conditions and a continuation of the current trend in savings, it is anticipated that all capital stock may be retired in approximately ten more years.

In accordance with the provisions of the National Housing Act, as amended, the Corporation must accumulate a reserve of 5 percent of all insured accounts and creditor obligations of insured institutions before collection of premiums may be discontinued. As of June 30, 1952, this statutory requirement amounted to approximately $782,150,000. The insurance reserve of the Corporation on that date amounted to $112,944,154 or 0.72 percent of the insured liability of $15,643,000,000.

HOME OWNERS' LOAN CORPORATION

[Submitted under the Government Corporation Control Act]

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

The Corporation was organized under the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 for the purpose of providing credit facilities to refinance the mortgages of destitute urban home owners. The Corporation's lending authority expired on June 12, 1936, since which time it has been in liquidation. All loan accounts of the Corporation have been disposed of, and $13,993,589, representing surplus from its operations, have been turned over to the Treasury.

During fiscal 1952, the only transactions consisted of liquidating accounts payable; the transfer of $75,000 to the Home Loan Bank Board to handle all remaining Home Owners' Loan Corporation matters; and the payment to the United States Treasury of $193,589 of additional surplus funds of the Corporation.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Administration, created by the National Housing Act of 1934, is a noncorporate business-type agency made subject to the Government Corporation Control Act by the Housing Act of 1948. The principal purposes of the Administration are to stabilize the mortgage market and to improve home financing practices and housing standards and conditions, through insurance of loans and investments to finance the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential structures. On June 30, 1952, a total of $27.4 billion of insurance had been written, of which $15 billion was outstanding.

The Administration maintains eight insurance funds: (1) A fund for insuring repair and improvement loans and mortgage loans under title I; (2) a fund for insuring mortgages on individual dwellings under title I, sec. 8; (3) a mutual mortgage insurance fund for insuring mortgages on one- to four-family dwellings under title II; (4) a fund for insuring mortgages on multifamily housing projects, including cooperative housing, under title II; (5) a fund for emergency and special-incentive mortgage and loan insurance under title VI; (6) an investment insurance fund for operations under title VII; (7) a military housing insurance fund for operations under title VIII; and (8) a fund for insuring defense housing mortgages under title IX.

The mutual mortgage insurance fund differs from other insurance funds in that insured mortgages are grouped together with others having similar risk characteristics and maturity dates, and the mortgagors in each group receive any excess of fees and premiums paid over losses and expenses allocable to the group.

All of the Administration's insurance programs are income producing. Income is derived from insurance premiums, appraisal and miscellaneous fees, and interest on investments in Government securities.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The estimates reflect the effect of the relaxation of Federal Reserve Board Regulation X, and the comparable, but somewhat more stringent, FHA credit restrictions, increased availability of mortgage money, and an adequate supply of materials to produce about a million non-farm housing units.

1. Repair and improvement loan insurance, title I.—Financial institutions are insured against losses up to 10 percent on loans for the alteration, repair, and improvement of residential properties. The loans insured are characteristically short-term, unsecured notes averaging around $675. Estimates are set forth below:

	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Initiation: Loans insured.....	1,610,132	2,000,000	2,200,000

Claims.....	32,155	40,000	45,000
Average number of defaulted notes in process of collection.....	128,000	139,000	146,000

2. Mortgage insurance for homes and multifamily housing, titles I and II.—Mortgages may be insured on one- to four-family structures and on multifamily housing projects up to statutory limits of 80, 90, or 95 percent of appraised value, depending upon the amount and character of the the loan involved. Insured mortgages may cover new and existing properties, both for rent and for sale, including nonprofit cooperative housing. Insured loans may bear a higher ratio to the value of the mortgaged property, in the lower price and rental ranges, to aid in construction of homes for families of low and moderate income. Estimates are as follows:

3. Special incentive mortgage and loan insurance, and yield insurance on rental housing investments, titles VI and VII.—Special war-housing mortgage insurance provisions of title VI were continued until April 1948 for home mortgages and until March 1950 for rental project mortgages to provide veterans emergency housing, and other special incentive programs were added. Title VI now provides for (a) insurance of loans for the manufacture of housing by industrial processes and short-term notes incident to the sale of such housing; (b) insurance of mortgages executed in connection with the sale by the Government of certain federally owned housing; and (c) insurance of short-term loans to finance the construction, by modern site-fabrication methods, of groups of 25 or more single-family dwellings, as well as for insured long-term financing of properties constructed under this section. Title VII provides for insurance of an annual return of 2½ percent and a minimum annual amortization of 2 percent on equity investments in rental housing. Estimates are as follows:

Initiation:
Unit applications examined.....	20,489	5,500	8,500

Properties and mortgages on hand (dwelling units).....	11,226	10,354	10,904

4. Military and defense housing, titles VIII and IX.—Rental housing is provided under title VIII, through use of private capital under insured mortgages, for civilian and military personnel of the armed services and for personnel at atomic energy installations. This program was originally confined to housing at or near military bases, but was extended to atomic energy plants by the Defense

Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951. The 1951 act also added title IX under which mortgages found to be acceptable risks in view of needs of national defense may be insured. The housing must be within the limits of programmed housing needs in defense areas designated by the President. While these programs expire by operation of law on June 30, 1953, a large amount of construction will continue throughout fiscal 1954 under commitments previously issued.

Administrative expenses.—These are the headquarters expenses in connection with the servicing of insurance in force; the technical, administrative and fiscal control over insuring operations, and centralized housekeeping activities. Operating expenses of the 73 field insuring offices are included in a separate nonadministrative budget. Administrative expenses amounted to $5.2 million in fiscal 1952, and are estimated at $4.9 million in 1953 and $5.9 million in 1954. Approximately $300,000 of the 1954 estimate is for anticipated backlogs to be carried over from fiscal 1953 and the balance is for improving direction and control of insuring operations and for servicing the increased volume of insurance in force.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

All insurance financing operations are financed out of income. Repair and improvement loan insurance claims are paid in cash from insurance income received under the program. Mortgage insurance claims are met by the issuance of debentures which are subsequently redeemed out of insurance income and the proceeds of the sale of acquired properties and mortgages. In 1952, $34,691,500 of debentures were issued. Debentures to be issued are estimated at $53,154,300 in 1953 and $38,706,750 in 1954. Debentures were retired in 1952 in the amount of $18,507,250. Retirement of debentures in 1953 and 1954, respectively, are estimated at $30,849,300 and $63,176,550.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Operations in 1952 resulted in a net income of $60,028,474. This income was distributed entirely to insurance reserves as follows: (a) $32,766,215 was placed in the statutory reserves under the group accounts of the mutual mortgage insurance fund, which are available for losses, expenses, and other charges, as well as for distribution of participation shares to the participating mortgagors of group accounts having credit balances, (b) $164,435 was placed in the general reinsurance reserve under the mutual mortgage insurance fund, which is available to cover losses and expenses where group account balances are inadequate, (c) $27,097,824 was placed in the general insurance reserves under the non-mutual insurance programs.

Net income is expected to be $75,143,434 in 1953 and $88,484,800 in 1954. In the 2-year period it is estimated that income totaling $81,783,253 will be added to the statutory reserves under the group accounts of the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund. The general reinsurance reserve under the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund is expected to receive $4,875,634, while an estimated $76,969,347 of insurance income will be placed in the insurance reserves under nonmutual funds.

Insurance reserves which totaled $207,770,410 on June 30, 1951, increased to $258,595,731 during fiscal 1952 and are expected to reach $325,344,979 by June 30, 1953, and $405,231,079 by June 30, 1954. These reserves are required to meet future insurance losses and expenses and are not available for transfer to the Treasury.

Collections of $182,108 under the title I claims program were paid into the Treasury in 1952. Payments are estimated at $150,000 in 1953 and $125,000 in 1954.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

On June 30, 1951 the total investment of the United States Government and statutory insurance reserves stood at $275,392,796, of which $207,895,396 is retained earnings in the several insurance reserves. During 1952 the investment and reserves increased to $327,192,903. It is estimated that the investment and reserves will reach $393,924,637 by June 30, 1953, and $473,795,137 by June 30, 1954.

INSURANCE AUTHORITY

The Housing Act of 1952 (Public Law 531, approved July 14, 1952) provided an additional $400 million of insurance authorization principally to insure mortgages on defense, military, and disaster housing. The act also permits the President to transfer unused authorization from one mortgage insurance program to another, except that title VI cannot be increased.

Existing insurance authorization will be adequate to carry all programs through fiscal year 1953, except repair and improvement loan insurance (title I, section 2). An increase of $600 million in the insurance authority under title I, section 2, will be required to carry the program through 1954, measured in terms of the unpaid face amount of insured notes outstanding. A legislative amendment will be recommended to measure the authorization by the unpaid net proceeds of insured notes outstanding, in order to reflect more accurately the contingent liability of the Federal Housing Administration. On a net proceeds basis an increase of $500 million would be sufficient. Additional insurance authority will be required for mortgage insurance in 1954.

Proposed legislation would (1) change the method for measuring the insurance liability under title I, section 2, (2) increase the insurance authority for this program $500 million in 1953, and (3) increase the insurance authority for mortgage and yield insurance $1.5 billion in 1954.

PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

[Submitted under the Government Corporation Control Act]

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Administration has direct or delegated responsibility for four programs:

1. Programs for which the Administration is directly responsible are:

(a) United States Housing Act.—(1) Federally aided low-rent housing under the United States Housing Act of 1937; (2) federally owned slum-clearance and other low-rent projects; (3) the expanded low-rent housing program provided by title III of the Housing Act of 1949; and (4) labor camps transferred from the Department of Agriculture by title II of the Housing Act of 1950.

(b) Subsistence homesteads and greentowns.—Two greentowns and residual subsistence homestead projects are operated under the Bankhead-Black Act of 1936. This program is in liquidation.

2. Programs administered under delegated authority from the Housing and Home Finance Administrator are:

(a) Public war housing.—Management and disposition of public war housing projects under the Lanham and related acts, including development of new defense housing as authorized by the Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951 as amended.

(b) Veterans' re-use housing.—Supervision over local management of temporary dwellings for veterans constructed under title V of the Lanham Act and the disposition of such properties by transfer to eligible local bodies as provided in the Housing Act of 1950.

The administrative expenses of the Administration in performing necessary functions for these four programs are separately presented in consolidated form. These expenses are paid from a single fund and distributed on a workload basis to the four programs.

The Administration's four programs are administered by a single integrated organization. Administrative functions break down into three major categories: Development, management, and disposition. Each of these categories is summarized below:

Development.—The Housing Act of 1949 authorizes construction starts of 135,000 locally owned low-rent housing units each year subject to change by the President up to 200,000 or down to 50,000 units depending upon economic conditions. The budget program for 1954 provides for development activity at all stages of preconstruction at the rate of 75,000 units, including the authorization of the start of construction, as compared with a limitation of 35,000 units established by Congress for 1953.

The Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951 authorizes $100 million for construction of federally owned housing in critical defense areas. However, only $87.5 million was appropriated, with which it is anticipated that construction will be completed in 1953 on some 94 projects with 19,318 dwelling units.

The following table presents the development activity by years for all programs:

Management.—This applies to locally owned projects developed and operated with Federal financial assistance and to federally owned projects. Dependent on the type of program, management is conducted by local authorities which own and operate low-rent housing projects and also lease certain of the federally owned projects; by sponsoring municipalities and educational institutions; by contract managers (real-estate brokers); and by the Administration itself in the case of federally operated projects.

On June 30, 1952, there were 547,000 dwelling units under management. By June 30, 1954, a net increase of 88,000 units is anticipated to result from the completion of units under the Housing Act of 1949 and the Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951, partially offset by decreases resulting from transfers of temporary war and veterans' re-use projects and by other disposition.

Disposition.—Full-scale resumption of disposition of federally owned war and veterans' housing is contemplated in 1954. The budget program contemplates the following disposal of dwelling units:

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U. S. C. 1401) provided for a program of locally owned and operated low-rent housing by authorizing loans, and annual contributions to maintain the low-rent character of the projects. Subsequently, the act of June 28, 1940, permitted the construction of permanent housing for war workers, subject to conversion to low-rent use after the emergency. The program was expanded by the Housing Act of 1949 which authorized the construction of an additional $10,000 housing units over a 6-year period, increased the borrowing power of the Administration to $1.5 billion outstanding at any one time, and increased the authorization to contract for annual contributions to $336 million for periods up to 40 years. The Housing Act of 1950 transferred to the Administration labor supply centers, labor homes, and labor camps administered by the Secretary of Agriculture, to be used for low-income agricultural workers and their families. This act also authorized the transfer of certain permanent war housing projects to local authorities for low-rent use in accordance with the 1937 act, and such projects are administered as part of the United States Housing Act program.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The major activities are (a) the development and financing of low-rent projects and (b) the management of projects, including the payment of annual contributions, for which an appropriation of $39,700,000 is requested for 1954.

The following table shows the status of the program at the end of each fiscal year:

Development and capital financing.—Under the United States Housing Act low-rent housing is primarily a subject for local determination and control, Federal support being generally confined to making capital loans, paying annual contributions, and reviewing local actions for conformity with law. After the local authority has demonstrated a need for low-rent housing which is not being met by private enterprise, the Administration makes available a small preliminary loan to cover the cost of planning a project upon approval of the local governing body. The cost of the project is limited by law. The 1954 budget program provides for development activity at all stages of preconstruction at the rate of 75,000 units, as well as the authorization of the start of construction on 75,000 units, as compared with the authorization to start construction in 1953 on 35,000 units initiated after March 1, 1949.

Private capital in the form of temporary loan notes is utilized during the early development period, with the remainder covered by purchase of advance loan notes by the Administration. Since the Administration guarantees privately financed notes they have excellent security and are now being sold at interest rates just over 1 percent per year. All temporary loan notes are retired as soon as the local authority sells long-term bonds to the public for the project, which are secured by the Government's pledge to pay annual contributions.

Permanent financing of the development cost of new projects amounted to $406 million in 1952 and is estimated at $490 million in 1953 and $640 million in 1954. In addition, permanent financing and refinancing of other locally owned projects and the sale and permanent financing of federally owned projects amounted to $73 million in 1952 and is estimated at $35 million in 1953 and $110 million in 1954. Thus total permanent financing amounted to $479 million in 1952 and is estimated at $525 million in 1953 and $750 million in 1954. This volume of financing is necessary in order to stay abreast of the financing requirements of the new program and to effect permanent financing arrangements for portions of the existing program.

The following table summarizes the lending activities of the Administration in 1953 and 1954:

	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Purchases:
Preliminary and advance loan notes.....	$197,964,000	$219,125,000
Permanent loan notes.....	33,359,000	35,000,000
Bonds.....	4,000,000	4,060,000
Total purchases.....	235,323,000	258,125,000

Permanent loan notes.....	60,000	205,000

Bonds.....	1,300,000	1,400,000
Total repayments.....	200,559,000	269,387,000

Management.—The Administration reviews management operations of the local housing authorities, approves operating budgets, and audits books and records to assure compliance with the law and the orderly and economical operation of the projects. The dwellings are rented to low-income families at rents scaled to what the individual family can pay. Annual Federal contributions are made to cover operating deficits. The local government also contributes to achieving low rents through tax exemption and provision of municipal services.

The following table summarizes the annual contribution requirements for all projects:

	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Number of units eligible.....	156,084	210,532	248,558
Maximum contribution for projects eligible for payment.....	$26,215,103	$48,307,000	$64,255,000
Less amounts available for reduction of contribution payments.....	13,649,116	21,453,000	24,555,000
Annual contribution requirements.....	12,565,987	26,854,000	39,700,000

In addition to the above there are the following types of projects which do not receive annual contributions:

(a) Farm labor centers.—These centers have been or are being rehabilitated and sold to local housing authorities under a contract which provides that full title will not be acquired until the end of a 20-year period during which time the Government will receive net income but will not pay deficits. Of the 39 camps, 31 had been sold as of June 30, 1952, 5 are scheduled for sale to local housing authorities in 1953, and 1 in 1954. In addition, 1 camp will continue in Federal ownership as a Federal operation and 1 camp has been determined to be surplus and will be disposed of in 1953.

(b) Public War Housing projects transferred to low-rent use.—The estimate provides for the transfer of 52 permanent public war housing projects, with 14,000 dwelling units, to local housing authorities for operation as low-rent projects. Under the terms of the transfer all net income will be returned to the United States Treasury for 40 years after the date of transfer.

(c) Public Works Administration projects transferred to local ownership.—The estimate also provides for the transfer of 43 Public Works Administration projects, with

16,311 units to local ownership. The terms of sale will require that all net income be returned to the United States Treasury for 40 years after the date of transfer.

(d) Federally owned projects.—The remaining projects under Federal ownership will receive no annual contribution.

Administrative expenses.—Requirements are estimated at $8,000,000 for 1953 and $11,300,000 for 1954. The increase is to handle the workload resulting from a program of authorizing start of construction on 75,000 units as compared with 35,000 in 1953, as well as the workload involved in the opening of newly completed projects. These amounts are merged with the funds for administrative expenses of the other programs of the Administration into a single fund, which is shown under the estimate for "Administrative expenses."

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The budget program contemplates that borrowings from the United States Treasury will increase by $15,000,000 by the end of 1953 and will decrease by $45,000,000 by the end of 1954. These borrowings outstanding will be needed to finance new projects during the early stages of development prior to permanent financing with private capital.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

This program was undertaken under the provisions of the Lanham Act (42 U. S. C. 1521), before and during World War II, to alleviate the acute shortage of housing for war workers. About half of the original program is still in use and serves the needs of veterans, servicemen and their families, and certain defense workers, pending disposition in accordance with law. New projects authorized by the Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951 are included in the estimates.

Expenses of operation, maintenance, and disposition or removal are paid from rental and other project income.

Development.—The Second Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1952, provides $25 million for the construction of defense housing in critical defense areas, as authorized by title III of the Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951. The Third Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1952, provides $12.5 million additional, and the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1953, supplemented these amounts by $50 million. With the funds now available it is estimated that 94 projects with 19,318 dwelling units will be completed and under management as of June 30, 1953. A supplemental appropriation of $12.5 million, representing the balance of the $100 million authorization, is proposed for later submission.

Management.—About one-third of the projects are managed directly by the Government and the remainder by local housing authorities under lease agreements which require that all net income be returned to the Government. The following table shows the management status of the program at the end of each fiscal year:

[Number of units]

The estimates of income and expense projected for 1953 and 1954 were developed through review and consolidation of operating budgets for each project for 1953. Rental income will increase over 1952 because of rent increases which have been put into effect, as authorized by the Defense Housing and Community Facilities and Services Act of 1951.

Operating expenses.—Operating expenses for federally operated projects will continue at higher-than-normal levels during 1953 and 1954 due to performance of deferred maintenance work on temporary projects. The rehabilitation of federally operated temporary projects presents an increasingly serious problem. The budget estimates for 1954 provide for much needed major repairs and rehabilitation.

Disposition.—Disposition of 30,000 units is contemplated during 1953 and 43,000 units in 1954. The Housing Act of 1950 authorizes transfers under certain conditions, of (1) temporary projects to local public agencies and (2) permanent projects to local public housing agencies for operation as low-rent housing. All public war housing projects have been reviewed in consultation with the Defense Establishment and other interested defense agencies. All projects which are not needed for defense purposes are being scheduled for disposition.

Total cost of housing disposed of.....	25,720,478	109,025,424	167,050,000

a single fund, which is shown under the estimate for "Administrative expenses."

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Receipts not required for operating expenses are paid to the United States Treasury. Payments are estimated at $44,242,222 in 1953 and $50,351,300 in 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

As of June 30, 1954, the total estimated development cost of the program, after deducting net transfers of assets to other agencies and programs will amount to $1,572,-461,641. Cumulative net income from management operations and net proceeds from disposition (before write-off of assets disposed of) are estimated at $521,712,481 as of June 30, 1954. At that time 33 percent of the total original development cost of the program under the jurisdiction of the Administration will have been returned to the Government. In addition, on June 30, 1954, there will remain in the program housing projects with an estimated book value of $796,118,000.

Inasmuch as the Government's investment in the program consists of appropriated funds, no appropriation action is required, with respect to the cumulative deficit.

HOMES CONVERSION PROGRAM

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program was substantially liquidated by the end of 1952. During its 10 years of operation, almost 50,000 dwelling units were provided for in-migrant war workers by leasing existing structures and remodeling them to provide additional housing units.

The original Federal investment of $90,109,401 has returned to the Treasury a total of $29,278,106, or about one-third of the original investment.

Inasmuch as the Government's investment in the program consisted of appropriated funds, no appropriation action is required with respect to the cumulative deficit.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

This program is operated under section 3 of the act of June 29, 1936 (49 Stat. 2036). Receipts from operations are available for operation, maintenance, administration, and disposition. The program is in liquidation.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

Management operations.—As of June 30, 1952, there remained under management two greentown projects with 1,510 dwelling units together with 40 rural farm dwellings at a former project site. In addition, there were 11 subsistence homestead units under lease and purchase contracts. Average rental income and average expenses per unit per month will continue at present levels until the projects are disposed of.

Disposition.—Both greentown projects are scheduled for sale during 1953, with some residual property scheduled for sale in 1954. A small number of mortgage loan notes and lease and purchase agreements will be liquidated.

Administrative expenses.—These costs are estimated at $100,000 for 1953 and $5,500 for 1954. These amounts are merged with the funds for administrative expenses of the other programs of the Administration into a single fund, which is shown under the estimate for "Administrative expenses."

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Payments to the United States Treasury are estimated at $2,441,050 in 1953 and $829,900 in 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

As of June 30, 1952, the Government investment in this program amounted to $60,502,710 representing book value at the date of transfer to the Administration. Cumulative net income from management operations and net proceeds from disposition (before write-off of assets disposed of) are estimated at $31,483,369 as of June 30, 1954. Thus 52 percent of the total investment will have been returned to the Government. In addition, there will remain for future disposition properties with an estimated net book value of $20,000.

Inasmuch as the Government's recorded investment in the program consists of funds appropriated to the original construction agency, no appropriation action is required with respect to the cumulative deficit.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

This temporary postwar emergency program was undertaken under title V of the Lanham Act to alleviate the housing difficulties of servicemen, veterans, and their families, including veterans attending educational institutions, by relocation and re-use of surplus Federal structures. Approximately $442.8 million were allotted to the Public Housing Administration for development. Funds derived from the operation of the projects are available for operation and maintenance, for disposition and removal of the projects, and for administrative expenses. Each quarter, operating funds in excess of amounts needed for liquidation of outstanding liabilities are paid to the Treasury (60 Stat. 9).

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

Development.—Construction is completed except for final settlement of contractors' claims.

Management.—With the exception of two federally operated projects, all projects are managed by the participating local bodies, with the Administration exercising advisory functions. Federally financed projects are required to return all net income to the Administration. Projects financed in whole or in part by the participating local bodies are authorized to reimburse themselves from net income for their development expenditures.

The average number of units in active management and average net income per unit per month are shown below:

Disposition.—The Housing Act of 1950 requires the transfer to local bodies, without monetary consideration, of projects located on land owned or controlled by the local bodies. The act also authorizes the transfer of such projects located on land owned or controlled by the United States, provided the local body pays for the land. Transfer activity and other disposition are shown in the table below:

Administrative expenses.—These costs are estimated at $205,000 for 1953 and $180,000 for 1954. These amounts are merged with the funds for administrative expenses of the other programs of the Administration into a single fund, which is shown under the estimate for "Administrative expenses."

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Payments of unobligated receipts to the U. S. Treasury are estimated at $1,223,712 in 1953, and $965,200 in 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

As of June 30, 1952, total development cost of the program, including net transfers of assets from other agencies and programs, amounted to $483,280,131. Cumulative net income from management operations and net proceeds from disposition (before write-off of assets disposed of) are estimated at $35,909,242 as of June 30, 1954. In addition, there will remain for future disposition properties with an estimated book value of $23,736,000.

Inasmuch as the Government's investment in the program consists of appropriated funds, no appropriation action is required with respect to the cumulative deficit.

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Department seeks to contribute to the welfare and growth of the Nation by aiding in the progressive development of our agriculture. Assistance is provided (a) in the conservation of soil, water, and forest resources; (b) by extension of agricultural credit to farmers; (c) through regulation and inspection of the marketing of several agricultural commodities; (d) by agricultural adjustment programs designed to stabilize farm prices and income; (e) through agricultural research; and (f) by dissemination of useful agricultural information to farmers and other interested persons.

These programs are carried out through the (1) Production and Marketing Administration; (2) Commodity Credit Corporation; (3) Forest Service; (4) Soil Conservation Service; (5) Rural Electrification Administration; (6) Farmers' Home Administration; (7) Commodity Exchange Authority; (8) Extension Service; (9) Farm Credit Administration; (10) Federal Crop Insurance Corporation; (11) Agricultural Research Administration; and (12) staff offices of the Department, which include (a) Office of the Secretary, (b) Bureau of Agricultural Economics, (c) Office of Information, (d) Office of the Solicitor, (e) Library, and (f) Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations.

REVISION OF BUDGETARY PRESENTATION OF FLOOD PREVENTION PROGRAM

The activities currently financed under the appropriation "Flood prevention" consist of three types: (1)

Preliminary examinations and surveys, (2) general basin investigations, and (3) works of improvement. The works of improvement fall into two broad categories: (a) Measures primarily for flood prevention, such as floodwater-retarding structures, stabilization and sediment control measures, stream channel improvements, diversion ditches, floodways, etc.; and (b) conservation measures contributing to flood prevention, such as terracing, contour plowing, crop rotation, planting of perennial vegetation including trees, grassing, minor gully control measures, etc.

The 1954 budget proposes (1) to confine the coverage of the appropriation "Flood prevention" to (a) preliminary examinations and surveys, (b) general basin investigations, and (c) measures primarily for flood prevention. Funds for conservation measures contributing to flood prevention are transferred to other appropriations of the Department which, in part, finance conservation measures and practices, some of which are similar or identical to those authorized under the flood control acts. Accordingly, transfers in the estimates have been made from "Flood prevention" to the several applicable appropriations of the Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, and the Production and Marketing Administration.

The following table 1 shows the distribution of funds for the Department's flood prevention program by agencies and watersheds for the fiscal years 1952, 1953, and 1954. Table 2 presents information concerning both Federal and non-Federal program costs and progress for each watershed.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 provides for research, service, and educational work applicable to the distribution and marketing of agricultural products. Funds are allotted for projects carried out by agencies within the Department, by State agencies on a matching basis under cooperative agreements, and by qualified public or private institutions, individuals, or organizations under contract.

An increase is proposed for 1954 to intensify and expand efforts to conserve food and obtain less expensive marketing through such means as reducing food waste and spoilage in marketing channels, saving manpower in handling the products, and finding less costly transportation, storage, and distribution methods.

1. Marketing costs, margins, and efficiency.—To provide information on costs and relative efficiency which will identify areas where more productive follow-up research work can be conducted and to provide a basis for constructive educational and service work, studies are made of marketing and merchandising methods and transportation costs, and their effect on production and distribution patterns; alternative methods of performing marketing services; and factors influencing operating efficiency of the different units in the marketing system.

2. Improvement and evaluation of product quality.—To improve quality and acceptability of farm products and to lower marketing costs, studies are made of ways to reduce waste and spoilage, including better storage methods; and new and improved grades and standards are developed for more accurate indication of product quality.

3. Improvements in market organization and facilities.—To develop improvements in market operations, studies are made of structures, facilities, equipment, and methods to obtain more efficient use of labor through mechanization and work simplification; to conserve transportation by determining advantageous market locations or types of carriers; and to ascertain changes in market organization best suited to new products or types of distribution being introduced in agricultural commerce and trade.

4. Collection, analysis, and dissemination of market data.—To facilitate orderly marketing of farm products, data are gathered, interpreted, and disseminated on current and prospective production, supplies, movement of goods, prices, and market demand; and studies are made to improve the usefulness of market news and other market information services.

5. Over-all administration.—This activity provides for over-all administration, planning, and coordination of the program under the Agricultural Marketing Act, including any necessary expenses in connection with the work of the national advisory committee and other special committees made up of representatives of producers, industry, science, and Government.

BUREAU OF AGRICULTURAL ECONOMICS—Con.

Salaries and Expenses, Bureau of Agricultural Economics—Con.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau is the Department's chief agency for economic research and statistical fact finding and makes available current data and analyses to other agencies, congressional committees, industrial groups, and the general public.

The proposed increases are for research on economic use of fertilizer and conditions under which shifts to more hay, pasture, and livestock would be profitable (activity 1a); economic appraisals of supplemental irrigation (activity 1a); for general improvement of certain important crop and livestock information and to provide for research on methods and practices (activity 2).

1. Economic investigations—(a) Economics of production.—Research is conducted on the type and size of farms in relation to farmers' costs and returns and to total farm output of different products; efficiency in use of labor, equipment, land, and water; inventory and analysis of land resources; new and improved techniques; farm valuation, debt, taxation, tenure, risk, and insurance; and related problems.

(b) Prices, income, and marketing.—Statistical and economic studies are made to establish the relation between farm prices or income and parity standards, to analyze the economic situation and outlook for farm products, and to narrow the cost spread between producer and consumer.

(c) Farm population and manpower.—These studies cover changes in farm population and work force, especially the number of people on farms by age and sex; birth and death rates; levels of living in comparison with urban living standards; the size of the work force and its movements; and number and wage rates of farm workers.

2. Crop and livestock estimates.—Basic current data are gathered for official estimates of production of more than 150 crop and livestock products. More than 500 reports, based on sample data obtained from thousands of volunteer reporters, are issued annually. In addition to their use by farmers, processors, handlers, and marketers, governmental agencies make use of them in connection with various adjustment and marketing activities, allocations, price support, and defense mobilization. Each month the Bureau determines and publishes parity prices for agricultural commodities and prices actually received.

Funds are allotted to the agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico for agricultural research, including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural life. The allotments are based partly on the basis of prescribed amounts and partly on the basis of rural and farm population and the need for research in smaller States. The States are contributing about $4 to each $1 paid by the Federal Government. The increase proposed is primarily for strengthening the research program at the State, Territorial, and Puerto Rico agricultural experiment stations.

Research on agricultural problems of Alaska—1952, $266,863; 1953, $270,000; 1954, $270,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Agricultural research in Alaska, carried on as a joint program of the Department and the University of Alaska, includes soil analysis, horticulture, animal husbandry, agricultural economics, agricultural engineering, insect control, and field-crop improvement studies.

Soil surveys aid settlers in determining those areas where agriculture will be profitable. Milk production has been stimulated by devising measures for raising heifers to maturity more economically. New grain, forage, and vegetable varieties have proved profitable. Potato-breeding research has resulted in higher yields. Methods are being sought to control insects and plant diseases attacking Alaska crops. Economic studies are providing a basis for determining more profitable types of farming and necessary cost-price relationships.

Emphasis in 1954 will continue to be placed on improving the yields and quality of farm and dairy products and the improvement of marketing methods.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

On recommendation and approval of the Munitions Board, investigations are made of the feasibility of developing domestic sources of supplies of any agricultural material or substitute for it determined by the Board to be strategic and critical.

The proposed decrease consists of an increase for production research on hard fiber plants for cordage (activity 4) and decreases resulting from elimination of processing research on guayule rubber (activity 1) and of work to develop substitutes for strategic end uses of castor oil (activity 3).

1. Research on domestic production of natural rubber.—Investigations are carried on to make the guayule plant more usable, and to improve the quality of rubber from it.

2. Investigations of domestic production of vegetable tannins.—These studies aim at domestic production of crops from which materials for tanning leather can be derived and development of methods of extracting such materials.

3. Investigations on vegetable fats and oils.—These studies seek to develop the domestic production of castor beans.

4. Investigations on fiber plants.—This work centers on the domestic production of fibers that can be used for such purposes as lines and ropes on naval vessels and as substitutes for jute.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Research is conducted on problems relating to food, clothing, shelter, and the other goods and services used in family living. The results are published in popular and technical bulletins. In addition, the Bureau issues a monthly news letter for promoting coordination of nutrition programs, quarterly reports on developments affecting rural family living, and a quarterly appraisal of the nutritional adequacy of the estimated per capita food supply.

An increase is proposed for studies of diet and food utilization to avoid premature human physical impairment, reduce waste, and assure a high edible yield of raw and cooked products of maximum nutritional quality (activity 1).

1. Food and nutrition investigations.—Research is conducted on nutritional requirements, the composition and nutritive value of various foods, and principles and methods underlying consumer selection, preparation, and preservation of food.

2. Family economics investigations.—Household buying problems are studied, including the quantities consumed and the adequacy and economy of the food, clothing, and other items used by various population groups.

3. Textiles and clothing investigations.—Chemical and physical properties of fabrics for clothing and household articles are studied, together with other technical problems of quality and design.

4. Housing and household equipment investigations.—Studies are carried on to improve the design of rural houses for comfort and efficiency and to help families with selection, care, and use of household equipment.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Research and other programs serve primarily to protect and develop the livestock, meat, poultry, and related industries. About half of the funds are required for meat inspection, thus also furnishing protection to the consumer.

Proposed increases are for animal research and control and eradication of animal diseases.

1. Animal research—(a) Animal husbandry.—Research is conducted on all farm livestock (except dairy cattle), poultry, and domestic fur animals to develop superior strains and types, establish the nutritive requirements of animals, and achieve efficient utilization of feed and forage in the production of meat, eggs, wool, fur, and other products.

(b-c) Investigations of diseases and parasites.—Research is conducted on diseases of farm livestock, including dairy cattle, poultry, and domestic fur animals, to develop practical methods of control of such diseases.

2. Animal disease control and eradication.—Measures are devised to exclude from this country communicable diseases of foreign origin; to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics; to control and eradicate livestock diseases; and to maintain, through a marketing agreement with manufacturers and handlers, adequate supplies of hog cholera virus and serum for protection of swine.

The volume of inspections and examinations annually is shown in the following table:

3. Meat inspection.—Federal meat inspection assures clean and wholesome meat for human consumption. It includes (a) inspection of animals and of carcasses at the time of slaughter, (b) inspection at all stages of preparation of meat and meat-food products to assure sanitary handling, (c) enforcement of measures that insure informative labeling, (d) inspection of meat and meat-food products offered for importation, and (e) a system of certification to assure acceptance of domestic meats in foreign trade. Meat and meat-food products are examined for compliance with specifications of governmental purchasing agencies for which reimbursements are received. Reimbursements are also received from meat-packing establishments for the cost of overtime work performed at their request. Amounts collected for overtime and other work approximated $2,879,000 in the past year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

After discovery of foot-and-mouth disease in Mexico late in 1946, measures were undertaken to prevent the spread of the disease into the United States and to assist Mexico in control and eradication. In February 1952 an outbreak of the disease in Canada made it necessary to undertake protective measures to prevent entry of the disease from that source. Due to the unpredictable course of the disease, the Department has been authorized to transfer needed amounts from any funds available to it. Repayments of these transfers have been made from subsequent appropriations and by canceling notes issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation to the Secretary of the Treasury. The 1954 estimate proposes the cancellation of notes to discharge indebtedness to the Commodity Credit Corporation for amounts due from this appropriation account, including interest from July 1, 1952, through June 30, 1953, estimated at $140,253. Total transactions are as follows:

Transfers from Commodity Credit Corporation	$141, 880, 000
Handling expenses in connection with disposal of canned meat purchased in northern Mexico	3, 311, 548
Interest through June 30, 1952	1, 982, 324
	147, 173, 872

Less:

Recoveries by appropriations and cancellation of notes	$103, 840, 532
Sales of canned meat purchased in northern Mexico	36, 803, 723
Receipts from inspection fees from Mexican meat packing plants	112, 295

On September 1, 1952, the Secretary declared Mexico to be free from foot-and-mouth disease. This action permitted the importation into the United States of susceptible animals prohibited entry since the outbreak of the disease. Investigations will continue to be made of suspected cases of the disease in Mexico for a limited time, and protective inspection and quarantine measures will be carried out along the international border with these funds for the remainder of the fiscal year 1953.

Limited investigations in Mexico will be carried on in the fiscal year 1954 under “Salaries and expenses, Bureau of Animal Industry, Agricultural Research Administration,” as well as minimum inspection and quarantine activities along the border.

On August 1, 1952, an emergency was declared as the result of the spread of vesicular exanthema of swine. The disease has been identified in 31 States. Federal and State quarantines have been applied to restrict movements of swine and swine products in States affected and in interstate commerce. On October 31, 1952, an emergency was declared as the result of the diagnosis of scrapie in two purebred flocks of sheep in California. This destructive, infectious, virus disease has caused serious losses in foreign countries for many years. Cooperative measures for control and eradication of these diseases are under way. Funds for carrying out these activities have been made available from other appropriations of the Department.

its byproducts in new ways. The Bureau also enforces Federal regulations relating to process butter.

Increases are proposed for (1) increased dairy production through the identification and planned use of higher producing strains of dairy cattle (activity 3); and (2) greater utilization of dairy byproducts and improvement in quality and methods of handling, packaging, and storing of milk and dairy products (activity 4).

1. Dairy cattle breeding, feeding, and management.—Research is conducted to increase the efficiency of milk production of dairy cows through breeding, feeding, and management, with demonstrations of practices beneficial to specific regions, notably the irrigated region of the Northwest, the Great Plains region, the Coastal Plain region, and the blue-grass region of Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Kentucky.

2. Nutrition and physiology.—This work includes studies on the preservation and utilization of grassland crops for dairy cattle, the physiological processes affecting the general economic usefulness of dairy cattle, and the relation of diet to these processes.

3. Dairy herd improvement.—This work consists of studies of genealogical, production, and feed records obtained in more than 40,000 herds enrolled in 2,100 dairy herd improvement associations to discover practices which contribute to the development of more efficient and profitable dairy herds.

4. Dairy products research.—Studies are being conducted of the bacteriology and chemistry of milk; preservation of milk in evaporated, dried, and frozen form; and the manufacture of cheeses and other milk products.

5. Administration of the Process Butter Act.—This work involves continuous inspection of the manufacture of process butter.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau conducts research in the field of chemistry and related physical sciences on utilization of agricultural commodities, residues, and byproducts in the creation of improved foods, feeds, drugs, fabrics, industrial chemicals, and other nonedible products, mainly through four regional research laboratories and nine smaller field stations.

The requested increase reflects recognition of the need to expedite research on problems of immediate and critical significance for improvement in technology and reduction of waste. Increases are for (1) fundamental and applied research on food and feed preservation to promote maximum efficient utilization to meet expanding population needs, and (2) fundamental and applied research to obtain new information to extend and improve utilization of cotton fibers.

1. Cereal and forage crop utilization investigations.—Experiments are conducted to develop new products from, and outlets for, grains and forage crops.

2. Cotton and other fiber utilization investigations.—These investigations deal with fundamental studies of the chemical and physical properties of fibers, yarns, and fabrics; improved chemical and mechanical processing of cotton, wool, and other vegetable and animal fibers; and the development of new or improved products from vegetable and animal fibers.

3. Fruit and vegetable utilization investigations.—Research is conducted to devise better processing methods, to create new food products, to increase the value of byproducts, and to solve waste-disposal problems.

4. Oilseed utilization investigations.—Research is conducted to improve the quantity and quality of oil and meal obtained from oilseeds and to increase processing efficiency.

5. Sugar and special plants utilization investigations.—Research is undertaken on improving processing of sugarcane, sugar beets, sirups, and byproducts; processing pine-tree gum; and development of tanning materials and pharmaceuticals from special plants.

6. Poultry, dairy, and animal products utilization investigations.—Research centers on improvement of methods for preserving poultry products and for utilizing poultry byproducts; development of methods for the preparation of egg products having superior quality and longer storage life; industrial utilization of dairy byproducts and wastes; and development of new uses for animal fats and oils as emulsifiers, detergents, and lubricating oils.

7. Agricultural residues utilization investigations.—Research is conducted to develop and extend the use of agricultural residues in the manufacture of pulp, paper, container boards, building board, and heavy boxboard; filters; extenders for adhesives and plastics; abrasive materials; and industrial chemicals.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau conducts research to (1) develop improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; (2) improve crop production practices including methods to control plant diseases; (3) improve fertilizers and soil management and irrigation practices; and (4) apply engineering principles to agriculture. It also operates, maintains, and develops the National Arboretum.

Increases are proposed for research to improve sugar beets and sugarcane, to facilitate mechanization of cotton production, and to improve pasture and forage crops in the South (activity 1a), for research on citrus diseases (activity 1b), for research on the control of forest diseases in the Lake States and the Northwest (activity 1c), for investigations on the influence of soils, fertilizers, and management practices on the nutritional value of plants (activity 1d), for research on improvement of equipment for harvesting and cleaning small-seeded grass and legume seed crops (activity 1e), and for the operation and maintenance of the National Arboretum (activity 2a).

1. Plant, soil, and agricultural engineering research.—The research consists primarily of field, laboratory, and greenhouse experiments conducted at approximately 200 locations throughout the country, usually in cooperation with State agricultural experiment stations or other public or private agencies.

(a) Field crop investigations.—Research is conducted on the production and improvement of the principal grain, fiber, forage, sugar, tobacco, and other field crops and the control of their diseases to insure ample supplies of quality food for an increasing population and provide fibers and raw materials in the quantities and kinds needed by industry. Improved methods for controlling weeds are also developed.

(b) Horticultural crop investigations.—Research is conducted on production and improvement of fruit, vegetable, nut, and ornamental crops; on the control of their diseases; and on economical methods of their handling, processing, transportation, and storage. Plant explorations are made to introduce new plants and strains from all parts of the world as new crops or for breeding varieties superior to those now grown.

(c) Forest disease investigations.—This research consists primarily of finding effective methods for controlling diseases of forest trees and products and the development of tree varieties with disease resistance. Losses from disease approach or exceed the losses from fire.

(d) Soils, fertilizers, and irrigation agriculture investigations.—These investigations are conducted to develop the best soil and water management practices; improve fertilizers and liming materials; and to determine the relation of soils to plant, animal, and human nutrition.

(e) Agricultural engineering investigations.—This research is aimed at improvement of farm machinery, development of better types of farm buildings and of equipment for handling and processing farm products locally, and development and adaptation of electrical equipment to farm use.

2. National Arboretum.—The Arboretum, located in the District of Columbia, provides an extensive collection of living ornamental shrubs and trees from this country and abroad for observation and study.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau conducts research on harmful and beneficial insects, disseminates information on their control and use, and enforces Federal plant quarantine and regulatory orders.

Increases are proposed for the expansion of research on problems associated with stored product insects; control of pink bollworm of cotton; and the introduction, colonization, and utilization of beneficial insects (activity 1); and for strengthening plant quarantine work (activity 3).

1. Insect investigations.—Investigations are made of insects for control of those which are injurious, for utilization of those which are beneficial, and for better management of those (such as the honey bee) which produce useful products. Insecticides are studied and new formulations developed and tested in order that growers may protect their crops and animals more effectively and economically.

2. Insect and plant disease control.—This work, designed to protect agriculture from destructive insects and plant diseases, includes inspection to detect and appraise infestations, certification of regulated articles, supervision of treatments required by plant quarantines, applications of pesticides, and use of other methods of combating infestations.

3. Plant quarantines.—Protective measures, primarily inspections at ports of entry, are carried out to prevent the introduction from abroad of insect pests and plant diseases, and American exporters of plants and plant products are served by certifying the absence of diseases.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Forest Pest Control Act.—Operations consist of (a) surveys to detect and appraise the danger of insects and plant diseases which injure or destroy forest resources, and (b) suppressive measures in cooperation with land-managing agencies before extensive damage is done and while areas requiring treatment are small.

2. White pine blister rust.—Protection of white pine trees from blister rust is provided in cooperation with land-managing agencies by removing ribes (alternate host plants) from areas where white pine grows. Since this program was initiated in 1919, ribes have been removed from approximately 15,200,000 acres. A small amount of maintenance work is needed on this acreage to keep the ribes suppressed. Approximately 10,700,000 acres require further work. Increases are proposed to control the spread of white pine blister rust on an additional 30,000 acres of white pine on national forest lands and State and private lands adjacent to or intermingled with Federal lands in the Northwest.

FOREST SERVICE

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Service carries on three primary functions: (1) Protection, development, and use of more than 181,000,000 acres of land in national forests in the United States, Alaska, and Puerto Rico; (2) cooperation with the States and private forest landowners to obtain better fire protection on approximately 427,000,000 acres of forest lands and better forest practices on about 345,000,000 acres of privately owned commercial timberlands, to encourage reforestation by distributing planting stock to landowners, and to stimulate development and management of State, county, and community forests; and (3) forest and range research for all forest and open-range lands to bring about better protection and increasing productivity, full utilization of forest, water, and range resources, and more profitable production of timber and forage. Included in these three primary functions are land acquisition, construction and maintenance of roads and trails, flood control, and other cooperative projects.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. National forest protection and management—(a) Resource protection and use.—The national forests are protected from fire, and their resources are managed in such ways as to bring about maximum sustained production.

(c) Additional measures to accelerate flood prevention.—These measures, which contribute directly to flood prevention, involve the conservation of watershed lands. While many of these measures are included in the national programs, acceleration of the rate of their application is needed to assure an adequate flood-prevention program on watersheds where flood prevention programs are being conducted. They usually consist of measures, such as revegetation, to stabilize and rehabilitate both forest and range lands.

2. Fighting forest fires.—This provides for employment of additional manpower and other facilities to suppress forest fires which cannot be controlled by the fire-control organization provided for under the activity "National forest protection and management."

3. Forest research—(a) Forest and range management investigations.—Research is conducted at regional forest experimental stations and elsewhere to provide private and public land managers and owners with a sound basis for protection and management of timber, range, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to maintain a sustained yield of products at the lowest possible costs; increase forage on range lands for maximum production of livestock without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce flood and sedimentation, as well as fire damages.

(b) Forest products investigations.—The work of the Forest Products Laboratory is directed toward improvement of forest products, reduction and utilization of waste, utilization of low-quality wood and unpopular species, development of new wood products, reduction of costs of logging and utilization of wood products, development of basic knowledge and discoveries, and dissemination of findings to meet the needs of the forest owner, primary manufacturer, wood fabricator, and ultimate consumer.

(c) Forest resources investigations.—These investigations are conducted to inventory and appraise the condition of forest lands, volume and quality of standing timber, ownership of timber resources, annual growth and depletion, potential need for timber products, and other information on supply, production, and utilization.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Roads and trails are essential for the protection and management of the national forests and for the utilization of their resources. The existing system consists of approximately 110,000 miles of earth or gravel-surfaced roads and 120,000 miles of supplemental trails.

Included in this program is the construction and maintenance of roads and trails which are an essential part of conservation measures which contribute directly to flood prevention on watershed lands.

ACQUISITION OF LANDS FOR NATIONAL FORESTS

Weeks Act

Acquisition of Lands for National Forests, Weeks Act, Forest Service—

For the acquisition of forest lands under the provisions of the Act approved March 1, 1911, as amended (16 U. S. C. 513-519, 521), $75,000, to be available only for payment toward the purchase price of any lands acquired, including the cost of surveys in connection with such acquisition: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used for acquisition of any land which is not within the boundaries of a national forest: Provided further, That no part of this appropriation shall be used for the acquisition of any land over the objection of the local government concerned. Acquisition of lands for national forests—1952, $74,909; 1953, $75,000; 1954, $75,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Lands are acquired to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber. The National Forest Reservation Commission, composed of 2 Senators, 2 Representatives, the Secretaries of the Army, Interior, and Agriculture, has approved the establishment of 78 national forest purchase units in 33 States, mainly in the eastern half of the United States. Less than one-half of the land suitable for national forest purposes within these units has been acquired; there remain some 23 million acres to be purchased. The present value of forest lands thus purchased to date is conservatively estimated at $200,000,000, which is more than twice their cost.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

On the basis of agreements with certain counties in California, Nevada, and Utah, national forest receipts, including the portions which would normally be paid to county road and school funds, are used for purchase by the Government of privately owned lands within the national forests to aid in the control of soil erosion and flood damage. A total of 135,481 acres have been acquired as of June 30, 1952, and an additional 508,378 acres remain to be purchased.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program, for the most part carried on in cooperation with the States, encourages private timber growing through assistance in preventing and suppressing forest fires, reforestation of denuded and poorly stocked areas, good management of woodlands, and farm forestry extension work. Privately owned forest lands comprise three-fourths of the Nation's commercial forest area and produce 90 percent of all timber cut. The fire control program applies to all forest lands within the boundaries of organized protection units. The balance of the program concentrates on small forest properties in private ownership because (a) 76 percent of the private commercial forest acreage is in small holdings averaging only about 62 acres each, (b) the small-owner group comprises 99 percent of private forest owners, and (c) present cutting practices are poorest on these small properties.

1. Cooperation in forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished 43 States and Hawaii in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private and State-owned lands by financial aid, training, procurement of equipment, and a Nation-wide fire-prevention campaign. All but approximately one-seventh of the 427,000,000 acres of non-Federal ownership are now partially covered. During 1951 the acreage burned on protected areas was held to 0.84 percent as against an estimated 11.46 percent on unprotected lands. Of the total expenditures under this program, 66 percent is contributed by States and counties, 8 percent by private owners, and 26 percent by the Federal Government.

2. Cooperation in forest tree planting.—To encourage woodland owners to plant trees on the more than 60 million acres of inadequately stocked private forest land, trees are provided at less than cost, with the Federal Government sharing the cost with the States to the extent of one-fourth. Since this program began in 1924, about 2,700,000 acres have been planted.

3. Cooperation in forest management and processing.—In cooperation with State foresters, 260 projects in 1,200 counties are operated to aid small woodland owners in applying good management to their timber holdings, covering some 28,000 owners and about 2,500,000 acres. Small processors of primary forest products receive similar technical assistance.

4. Cooperation in farm forestry extension.—As a part of the State agricultural extension work, forestry educational work is carried on among farmers by demonstrations, meetings, training schools, and dissemination of information.

5. General forestry assistance.—Assistance is given by field technicians in response to inquiries. Also included is administration of nearly 500,000 acres of federally owned forest land under long-term lease to the States.

6. Additional measures to accelerate flood prevention.—These measures, which contribute directly to flood prevention, involve the conservation of watershed lands. While many of them are included in the national programs, acceleration of the rate of their application is needed to assure an adequate flood prevention program on watersheds where flood prevention programs are being conducted. These measures are applied on non-Federal land within watersheds in cooperation with State and private forest land owners. Work consists of such measures as fire control, tree planting, and technical forest management assistance.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Flood-prevention work on watersheds aims to prevent or reduce floodwater and sediment damages in upstream areas and to reduce sedimentation of river channels and reservoirs by (1) development of reports recommending programs of measures to retard runoff and water flow and prevent erosion which are based on examinations and surveys of watersheds and (2) installation of the recommended watershed improvement measures. The measures are complementary to the mainstream flood-control structures and works constructed by the Corps of Engineers and other agencies. In general, measures which provide conservation benefits and help increase production, in addition to providing flood-prevention benefits, are installed by private owners with technical assistance and some special materials and equipment provided by the Department; measures primarily for flood prevention which principally benefit areas downstream from where they are located are installed at public expense—Federal, State, or local—and, when installed on private lands, are maintained by private owners and other local interests.

An increase of $9,846,167 is proposed for 1954 to provide for (1) making flood-prevention preliminary examinations and surveys, (2) installing flood-prevention watershed works of improvement in watersheds authorized under the flood control acts, (3) installing flood-prevention watershed works of improvement under legislation other than the flood control acts on watersheds for which survey reports have been completed, and (4) the preparation of the agricultural phases of comprehensive plans for the development of the Arkansas-White-Red River, Colorado River, and New England-New York areas.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Service, in cooperation with State and other agencies, aids in bringing about physical adjustments in land use to conserve soil and water resources, establish a permanent and balanced agriculture, and reduce the hazards of floods and sedimentation.

Increases are proposed in 1954 for research, for technical assistance to new conservation districts, and for accelerating installation of conservation measures in aid of flood prevention.

1. Development and improvement of conservation practices and techniques.—Research work includes studies of (a) watershed hydrology and sedimentation of streams and reservoirs, (b) the design and hydraulics of structures, and (c) the engineering phases of irrigation and drainage. After laboratory plot work and field trials, conservation practices and techniques developed by the Service and by other agencies are adapted and tested for application over extensive areas.

2. Assistance to soil conservation districts and other cooperators.—Assistance furnished soil conservation districts and other cooperators in developing and carrying out locally adapted programs in the States and Territories consists in the main of (a) soil surveys to determine the capabilities and needs of each acre of farm and ranch land; (b) technical assistance in developing and applying conservation farm and ranch plans which allow for the best possible use of the farmer's land, labor, equipment, and financial resources; (c) loan of special equipment not otherwise readily available to the farmer; (d) grant of limited quantities of trees, new or improved strains of grass or legume seed, and other conservation materials; and (e) stream-flow forecasts as a basis for efficient seasonal utilization of water in the Western States.

3. Development and management of land utilization projects.—In cooperation with local and State agencies, revegetation and other development work is done on submarginal land projects in 30 States, covering 7,270,925 acres. Developed lands are made available to local farmers and ranchers at equitable rates under specific-use conditions. Of the revenue amounting to more than $1 million annually, 75 percent goes to the Treasury and 25 percent to the counties in which the lands are located.

4. Additional measures to accelerate flood prevention.—Land treatment measures which produce direct flood-prevention benefits are being installed at an accelerated rate on watersheds where flood-prevention programs are being conducted to complement the works of improvement installed under "flood prevention." Work consists of preparation of subwatershed work plans and assistance to farmers and ranchers in developing conservation farm and ranch plans and installing conservation measures.

5. Classification and mapping of soils.—Soil surveys are made to classify and map soils in a national system under standard nomenclature. Reports on the surveys and maps are published for the benefit of the general public, as well as for the use of the various Federal and State agencies, in the development of land-use programs and in recommending soil, water, and crop-management practices.

6. Emergency channel restoration in flood-stricken areas.—Assistance is being given in restoring the channel capacity of tributary streams and waterways affecting agricultural areas damaged by floods. The work consists of removing debris and sediment plugs from stream channels; cleaning and reconstructing irrigation canals, drainage ditches, headgates, and outlets; emergency protection of stream banks to prevent channel changes; and construction of levees, dikes, barriers, and stabilization structures.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In cooperation with the Bureau of Reclamation, which constructs the dams, reservoirs, and principal canals, the Service develops efficient irrigation farming units on these specific projects for ultimate sale.

1. Land development.—Land classification and topographic surveys are made, and project lands are subdivided into farm units of economic size. The land is cleared and leveled, and farm ditches, drains, and other water-control structures are built. The proposed increase of $227,748 will be used to resume full-scale land development work on the Eden Valley project, Wyoming.

2. Land management, settlement, and technical guidance.—In order to protect and improve Government-owned project lands, developed farm units are leased to local people under specific use conditions or are planted to protective cover crops pending their sale to qualified farm families. Technical guidance on irrigation and conservation is furnished until the project is closed.

To restore and maintain the national soil and water resources, farmers are encouraged and assisted to carry out on their farms approved soil-building and soil- and water-conserving practices. Funds are distributed among the States and Territories on the basis of conservation needs.

Assistance on individual farms, averaging less than 50 percent of the cost of carrying out approved practices, consists of materials, services, and reimbursement payments. Practices for which assistance is offered generally fall into four major classes: (1) Construction practices, such as terracing and leveling land; (2) establishing and improving pastures of perennial grasses and other permanent cover; (3) growing annual or permanent cover crops; and (4) applying minerals to pasture and hay-land sods, such as lime, phosphate, and potash.

Loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation to the Administration are used to make advances for the purchase of conservation materials or services from January 1 to June 30 of each year; repayment with interest is made during the current fiscal year from balances available from prior years' appropriations or in the succeeding fiscal year from the new funds appropriated.

Farmer-elected county and community committeemen assist in developing the program and administer it locally. At the State level the program is administered by a committee of farmers appointed by the Secretary; the State committee establishes the State program within the framework of the national program approved by the Secretary.

Assistance on individual farms will be offered for additional measures to accelerate flood prevention in various watersheds in accordance with integrated work plans prepared jointly by agencies of the Department having responsibility for the various phases of the program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Agricultural production programs include acreage allotment and marketing quota programs for basic agricultural commodities and farm production goal programs for all other crops necessary to meet supply requirements.

1. Acreage allotments and marketing quotas.—These programs are designed to assist in stabilizing fluctuations in the supply, marketing, and price of specified basic agricultural commodities. Acreage allotments, when necessary, are established at National, State, and county levels (only at State level in the case of tobacco). In general, the acreage allotted to any county is apportioned by farmer-elected county committeemen. National marketing quotas must be proclaimed for basic commodities whenever the supply situation specified in the basic legislation requires them. However, quotas do not become effective unless approved by two-thirds of those voting in a referendum of farmers engaged in producing the commodity for which a quota is proclaimed.

2. Production goals.—To produce the quantities of agricultural commodities necessary in the mobilization effort, farmers are encouraged to expand production and to plant the specific crops needed. The State production goals are translated to acreage requirements which are further distributed to county and farm levels for guidance of individual farmers.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

To provide consumers with adequate supplies of sugar at reasonable prices and to maintain the welfare of the domestic sugar industry, quotas are established for five domestic sugar-producing areas, the Philippines, Cuba, and other foreign countries. In addition, farm marketing allotments for sugarcane and sugar beets are established by the Secretary when necessary to restrict marketings to conform to the quota for the area and normal carry-over requirements.

1. Payments to sugar producers.—Payments are made (a) to domestic producers of cane and beets who meet specified conditions of employment, production, and marketing; and (b) for abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies on harvested acreages due to natural calamities.

2. Operating expenses.—These consist mainly of the expenses of (a) the Administration's State and county offices in establishing production controls, determining compliance, and making payments to producers; and (b) of the Administration's departmental work in determining sugar consumption requirements, establishing quotas and allotments, making fair wage and price determinations, establishing production and marketing controls where necessary, and formulating over-all policies and procedures.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Assistance, in the form of both funds and food, is provided to States and Territories for use in serving lunches to school children. Each State's portion of the total funds available is determined by means of a statutory formula which takes into account the number of school-age children in the State and the relationship between the per capita income of the State and the average United States per capita income. The program is operated according to the terms of an agreement entered into by the State educational agency (which administers the program within the State) and the Department of Agriculture. Schools make application to the State agency and, if accepted for participation in the program, are reimbursed for a part of the food cost of each meal served.

In addition to the cash assistance, part of the school lunch appropriation is used by the Department of Agriculture to purchase food which is distributed to schools. This program also provides the largest single outlet for surplus commodities purchased under authority of section 32 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended, and an important outlet for price-support commodities distributed in accordance with section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949.

During 1952, about 1,500,000,000 meals were served to more than 9,300,000 children, utilizing more than $282,000,000 worth of agricultural commodities. About 6 percent of this amount represented stocks acquired under the surplus-removal and price-support programs of the Department. The statutory requirement that States contribute $1.50 for each Federal dollar contributed was more than adequately met in 1952.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The purpose of these services is to contribute to the orderly and efficient marketing of farm products.

Increases proposed are for (1) work under the Grain Standards Act; and (2) more effective administration of two regulatory laws—Packers and Stockyards and United States Warehouse Acts.

1. Market news service.—This service, carried out cooperatively with 33 States and Hawaii, provides timely and reliable market information to farmers, consumers, and handlers of farm commodities.

2. Inspection, grading and classing, and standardization.—Farmers are assisted in obtaining returns for their products commensurate with quality by (a) United States quality standards; (b) an impartial inspection, classing, and grading service; and (c) broadening the general knowledge, acceptance and use of standards through demonstrations, training courses, and other means. Approximately 76 percent of the total cost is covered by fees or other revenue.

The volume of inspection, grading, and classing in 1952 for major commodities is shown below:

Commodity	Unit	Volume
Cotton.....	Bales.....	12,576,914
Tobacco.....	Pounds.....	2,356,000,000

3. Improvement of marketing practices.—This consists of (a) studies to improve marketing practices and processing techniques and (b) development of basic principles for improvement of market and storage facilities.

4. Freight rates for farm products.—Producers are assisted in obtaining equitable transportation rates and services through participation by the Department in their behalf in formal cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission and through informal negotiations with carriers.

5. Regulatory activities.—The laws designed to protect farmers and others from financial loss or personal injury resulting from deceptive, careless, and fraudulent marketing practices are administered mainly by (a) licensing or registration, (b) supervision of operations, (c) collection and testing of samples, and (d) handling of violations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The International Wheat Agreement operates to assure supplies of wheat to importing countries and to provide markets for wheat to exporting countries at stable and equitable prices.

Under authority contained in the International Wheat Agreement Act of 1949 (7 U. S. C. 1641-1642), capital funds of Commodity Credit Corporation are used to pay (a) the difference between the price specified in the Agreement and the domestic market price of wheat and (b) interest costs. The 1954 estimate of $171,740,395 would authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to cancel notes of Commodity Credit Corporation for costs incurred in the fiscal year 1952 when 254,787,626 bushels of wheat and wheat flour (bushel equivalents) were exported pursuant to the Agreement. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Enforcement of the Commodity Exchange Act requires supervision over futures trading in 20 commodities on 18 exchanges to prevent price manipulation and corners and insure honesty and fair dealing.

1. Licensing.—Commission merchants and floor brokers are registered annually. Exchange rules and regulations are reviewed to insure that legal requirements are met.

Salaries and Expenses, Commodity Exchange Authority—Con.

2. Supervision of futures trading.—This embraces (a) study, analysis, and publication of market information and other data; (b) enforcement of speculative limits; and (c) cooperative activities with control committees of contract markets.

3. Audits.—Misuse of customers' funds is prevented by (a) audit and examination of books of futures commission merchants and (b) analysis of brokers' and traders' books and financial statements.

4. Investigations.—Violations of the law and regulations are investigated, and trade-practice surveys are made to discover violations and compile legal evidence. The Authority also prepares and presents evidence of violations in administrative hearings and judicial proceedings.

5. Establishment and review of speculative limits.—During 1953, it is planned to establish speculative limits on three commodities deemed most essential—cottonseed oil, soybean oil, and lard. It is also planned that preliminary investigations will be completed in 1953 preparatory to establishment of speculative limits on several additional commodities in 1954. A continuing review is made to determine if and when changed market conditions necessitate any changes in established limits.

The Congress has directed that premiums on crop insurance cover indemnities only (7 U. S. C. 1508b), and that the administrative expenses of this corporation be provided by annual appropriations (7 U. S. C. 1516a). Therefore, the budget provides for administrative expenses in this appropriation and presents the insurance operations in the section on revolving and management funds at the end of the Agriculture chapter.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration conducts two major programs: (a) The rural electrification program, to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (b) the rural telephone program, to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

An increase is proposed for the telephone program.

1. Rural electrification.—This program is financed through loans which bear 2 percent interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Loans are also made for shorter periods at 2 percent interest to electrification borrowers to be reloaned to their consumers for wiring and for the installation of electrical and plumbing appliances and equipment. Funds for making loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

When the rural electrification program was initiated in 1935, less than 11 percent of all farms had electric service. On June 30, 1952, the figure had risen to 88.1 percent.

2. Rural telephone.—Loans are made for the purpose of financing the improvement, expansion, construction, acquisition, and operation of telephone lines and facilities or systems to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas. The loans bear 2 percent interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Funds for making loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

The 1950 Census showed 38.3 percent of all farms with telephones, fewer in both number and percentage than in 1920. Relatively few farm families have received telephone service as a result of the rural telephone program, but the program approached the major construction stage during 1952, with 32 construction projects underway as of June 30, 1952, and 65 more well along toward construction.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

An increase is proposed for additional telephone loan, construction, operations, and audit activities.

1. Administration of rural electrification program.—To assure that electric service is made available to all farms, borrowers are encouraged to develop their electric systems on an area coverage basis. Studies are made of loan applications to assure self-liquidating operations. Standards are developed for the design and construction of facilities; engineering studies are carried on to solve complex technical problems; and engineering review of designs and physical facilities is provided where necessary to insure that construction conforms to approved standards and is adequate to meet the needs of rural consumers. Business management consultation is furnished borrowers and financial and operating records are audited to protect the Government's loan security.

2. Administration of rural telephone program.—Engineering standards are developed to assure that facilities financed are constructed at minimum cost and will render the best possible service. The quality of business management is appraised as part of the consideration of loan applications from existing companies, and consultation in this field is provided where needed. Installation audits are made for all new borrowers after execution of the loan contract before any funds are advanced for construction. The audit is also necessary to assure that the borrower meets the accounting requirements of regulatory bodies. In a small number of cases, preloan audits are necessary.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

For the benefit of farmers unable to secure credit from other sources at reasonable rates, the Administration makes (a) direct loans and insures loans for the purchase, enlargement, or development of family-size farms; (b) loans and grants for the improvement of dwellings and other farm buildings; (c) loans for farm operating expenses; and (d) loans for water facilities in the arid and semiarid areas in 17 Western States.

The total borrowing authorization requested for loans amounts to $165,000,000, representing an increase of $1,000,000 above the current year's authorization. This increase is for water facilities loans.

1. Farm ownership and farm housing loans—(a) Farm ownership loans.—Direct farm ownership loans for the purchase or improvement of family-type farms are made to tenants, sharecroppers, farm laborers, owners of inadequate farms, and eligible veterans up to the full normal value of the farm at 4 percent interest for periods up to 40 years. Loans made by private lenders to eligible applicants are insured in amounts up to 90 percent of the normal farm value for periods up to 40 years at 3 percent interest, plus one-half of 1 percent as an insurance premium and one-half of 1 percent toward administrative expenses; the Administration services these loans, makes collections, and pays the lender.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Funds are distributed to each State, Alaska, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii on the basis of formulas stipulated in the governing acts. The costs of cooperative extension work are currently shared as follows: Federal appropriations, 38 percent; State appropriations, 36.1 percent; county appropriations, 23.2 percent; and other local sources, 2.7 percent.

The funds are used within the States for the employment of specialists, county agents, county home demonstration agents, and 4-H Club agents, who make available and interpret to rural people the results of agricultural and home economic research and related information. Representing the major activity in most States, county agents work directly with farmers with relation to their economic problems and in introducing improved production methods; insect, rodent, and disease control; better crop rotation and storage; improvement of dairy herds, livestock, and poultry; conservation of the land and water resources; efficient use of the available farm labor and equipment; and improved marketing methods. Educational work with respect to food and nutrition, family economics, home management, clothing and textiles, parent and family life interests, housing and home furnishings, consumer education and related matters is largely the responsibility of county home demonstration agents. Work with youth, largely through 4-H Clubs, which now have an enrollment of over 2,000,000, includes both agriculture and home economics and, in addition, training in leadership development, citizenship responsibilities, and the like.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Federal Extension Service provides leadership for a Nation-wide system of education for rural people in agriculture and home economics, in cooperation with the extension agencies of the several States and Territories.

An increase will permit a reorganization and strengthening of the Service to the end that extension work may be more adequately developed, adjusted to current requirements, and better integrated with the work of the research and action agencies and among the States.

1. General administration and business service.—This consists of the development of programs, policies, and procedures and general business operations necessary to efficient administration.

2. Review and analysis of State budgets, projects, and plans, and examination of State expenditures from Federal payments.—State budgets, projects, and annual plans for extension work are reviewed and analyzed; funds are allocated to the individual States; and State expenditures are examined for compliance with requirements of law.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The 1954 requirements for these activities are included in a supplemental appropriation under proposed legislation carried in the chapter "Funds appropriated to the President." The Secretary has delegated specific defense production activities, as follows:

1. Production and Marketing Administration.—Requirements and supply are determined, and assistance is given, in obtaining materials for the necessary production of food. Distribution is made to effect the most efficient utilization of the total food supply. Analyses are made of operating policy and economic conditions in order to make recommendations for the fulfillment of food requirements, and several defense food orders are being administered. This Administration acts as claimant before the Defense Production Administration, the Defense Materials Procurement Agency, the National Production Authority, and other agencies for materials, machinery, fertilizers, and insecticides required in farm production, farm construction, and for food-processing facilities. It reviews and makes recommendations to the Defense Production Administration and other agencies on applications for accelerated tax amortization for food and agricultural facilities and applications of prospective borrowers for use in expanding agricultural and food productive capacity and supply. The agency performs certain functions and powers with respect to storage and warehousing facilities for the Defense Transport Administrator. Recommendations and supporting data relating to manpower are developed for use in presentations to the Department of Labor, Selective Service System, and other agencies. The agency also makes legal minimum price determinations and revisions for the Secretary of Agriculture and is consulted by the Office of Price Stabilization on proposed price ceiling regulations and distribution problems resulting from certain Office of Price Stabilization regulations.

2. Forest Service.—Technical work in the forest industry field is performed for the National Production Authority and other defense agencies, including (a) making field investigations and reports on the adequacy of timber resources to support planned expansions as represented by production loan and tax amortization applications, (b) furnishing technical information relating to timber and timber products, and (c) conducting special studies and field surveys to develop information basic to well considered action programs in the field of forest products.

3. Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations.—Information is furnished on foreign production and international trade, including (a) supply estimates on critical food and agricultural commodities available from overseas; (b) effects of export controls on supply abroad; (c) requirements of agricultural machinery, fertilizers, and insecticides needed in foreign countries; and (d) conditions in particular areas, such as Asia and Africa, to determine the available food supplies and the trade problems of deficit areas and their effects in relation to defense mobilization plans.

4. Bureau of Agricultural Economics.—The Bureau (a) prepares data on farm wages and farm labor supply and requirements, (b) develops estimates of production capacities and requirements, and (c) develops basic data on prices and on current and prospective production and supplies of agricultural products.

5. Legal, informational, and other departmental services.—The Offices of the Solicitor and Information furnish legal and informational services in connection with defense production activities; and the Office of the Secretary provides over-all planning, coordination, and integration of the administrative and operational resources of the Department to meet defense objectives.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This Office collects, interprets, and disseminates economic information on foreign production and consumption of farm products and on policy factors affecting trends in production and consumption. Information obtained is used to advise the Government, the farm and industry groups, and the general public of conditions and trends in food and agriculture abroad that affects the domestic and foreign policies of the United States.

An increase is proposed for 1954 primarily for checking foreign compliance with trade agreements, expanding export markets, and rendering assistance to foreign agricultural visitors not otherwise sponsored or financed by United States Government agencies.

1. International agricultural trade.—Information is compiled, analyzed, and published on agricultural foreign trade of the United States and other countries, and foreign policies affecting United States trade in agricultural products. United States agricultural interests are represented in international trade negotiations and agreements and in the World Food and Agriculture Organization. Foreign compliance with trade agreement commitments involving United States agriculture is observed. It participates in representing United States agriculture. Liaison is maintained with foreign agricultural attachés in Washington, and with United States agricultural attachés abroad.

2. Foreign production and consumption of agricultural products.—Data are compiled, analyzed, and published on world production, consumption, and trade of particular agricultural commodities; factors that influence the market for United States farm commodities abroad are appraised; and degrees of competition, actual and potential, that United States producers of exportable farm commodities may expect in world markets are measured and disseminated.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office of Information coordinates the informational work of all agencies of the Department and supervises the issuance of all publications, printed reports, exhibits, motion pictures, releases to the press, radio, and television. Publications include farmers' bulletins, leaflets, periodicals, the Yearbook of Agriculture and Agricultural Statistics. Special information is furnished to national magazines, encyclopedic annuals, and trade publications. Exhibits are supplied to some 35 large State and interstate fairs annually. Motion pictures for the Department are produced and distributed through 74 co-operating State film libraries. The Department's activities require the editing of about 2,800 periodic crop, price, and market reports and other press releases annually. Digests, newsletters, and other services are made available to press associations, daily newspapers, and farm publications. Radio is used to reach farmers locally and to broadcast regular weekly programs on major networks.

An increase is proposed for revising and reprinting some of the Department's older farmers' bulletins and leaflets by including more recent research information.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Library, serving as the National Agricultural Library, procures and preserves books, periodicals, and published materials on agriculture. It is organized into a main office in Washington, six general branches for designated geographical areas, and six specialized field branches for major field research installations.

An increase is proposed for purchasing and processing agricultural publications.

1. General agricultural library services.—About 30,000 volumes were added during the fiscal year 1952 to the collection of approximately 1,000,000 volumes on agriculture and related subjects. In addition, about 260,000 separate issues of periodicals are received annually. During 1952, 170,847 reference questions were answered and 1,370,646 loans of books and other publications (including photocopies in lieu of loans) were made. A general agricultural bibliography is issued monthly.

2. Specialized services to research.—Special bibliographies are compiled for research purposes, and branch services are given to major segments of the Department's research programs.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under section 32 of the act approved August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U. S. C. 612c), an amount equal to 30 percent of customs receipts during each calendar year and unused balances to the extent of $300,000,000 are available for the removal from the market of agricultural surpluses and for administration of marketing agreements and orders. To prevent price collapse of agricultural commodities and their ultimate waste, surpluses are removed from the market through purchase, export, and diversion programs.

1. Direct purchases.—Purchases are made principally of perishable commodities and distributed to schools, public institutions, and welfare agencies.

2. Encouragement of exportation.—Differential payments are made to enable exporters to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market and sell them on the world market at competitive world prices.

3. Diversion to by products and new uses.—Differential payments are made to enable processors to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market, divert them to byproducts and new uses, and sell them at prices comparable to competing products, thus creating new markets for surplus commodities.

4. Surplus removal operating expenses.—These expenses are mainly in connection with purchasing, distributing, exporting, and diverting surplus commodities. In addition, supervisory assistance is furnished local and State groups on the preservation of surpluses for year-round use, and in cooperation with the food trade, press and radio, greater consumption of abundant foods is encouraged.

5. Marketing agreements and orders.—Voluntary arrangements between the Secretary and handlers of farm products, put into effect upon request from the industry after hearings, investigations and referenda among producers, serve to strengthen prices by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Orders are in effect for milk, tobacco, tree fruits, tree nuts, and vegetables. Administration at the local level is financed by assessments upon handlers.

Meat Inspection Fund, Bureau of Animal Industry, Agricultural Research Administration—

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In fiscal year 1948 a working capital fund was set up to provide for meat-inspection services rendered by the Federal Government. Later that year, that method of financing was repealed (21 U. S. C. Supp. IV, 98), and the present method of direct appropriation was substituted. As of June 30, 1952, all uncollected receivables were turned over to the General Accounting Office for collection (61 Stat. 531).

[Submitted under the Government Corporation Control Act]

NOTE.—Operating and administrative expenses of the Corporation are financed by general fund appropriation and shown under current authorizations.

The following corporations and agencies are hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to each such corporation or agency and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the budget for the fiscal year [1953] 1954 for such corporation or agency, except as hereinafter provided:

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Corporation was created to furnish protection for the farmer's investment in producing crops against loss from unavoidable causes (7 U. S. C. 1501-1519). All insurance programs are conducted on a gradual expansion basis to develop the experience necessary to operate successful national programs. The Congress has directed that the premiums shall cover, over a period of years the indemnities only (7 U. S. C. 1508b), and that the administrative expenses incurred in developing and operating the insurance program be provided by annual appropriations (7 U. S. C. 1516a). Hence, the administrative expenses do not appear in the corporate fund financial statements but will be found in part II of this Budget under the appropriation "Operating and administrative expenses, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation."

Capital stock of $100,000,000 is authorized to be subscribed by the United States (7 U. S. C. 1504, 1504a). The Secretary of the Treasury holds receipts for $27,000,000 of the authorized capital stock, leaving $73,000,000 unissued. The earned surplus as of June 30, 1952, was $1,393,237, making a total capital of $28,393,237.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The Corporation is strengthening the mutual concept of insurance, which makes county premium rates reflect the actual loss experience of each county. An insurance policy covering a single crop is used in the greater number of counties. For diversified farming areas, a policy is used which covers a number of crops.

Although developed and analyzed mainly in the headquarters office, the insurance programs are administered in the field through 33 State offices and through cooperative arrangements with the Production and Marketing Administration. Program accounting and contract servicing functions are performed by the branch office in Chicago. The 1953 insurance program (fiscal year 1954) is being offered in 937 counties on wheat, cotton, flax, corn, tobacco, beans, citrus, and multiple crops. This is 76 more counties than in crop year 1952. It is estimated that 423,000 farmers will be insured, an increase of about 82,314 over 1952.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The 1951 crop year program resulted in a net budgetary expenditure of $1,459,551 in fiscal year 1952. The 1952 and 1953 crop year programs are expected to result in net budgetary receipts of $1,710,026 and $3,021,100 in fiscal years 1953 and 1954, respectively.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

In crop year 1951 (fiscal year 1952), wheat areas suffered from mild to severe damage from varying weather (excessive rain, flood, drought, and hail) and insect factors. Total wheat production was below the 10-year average with the winter wheat crop being the smallest in 8 years. Winter wheat losses were offset by more favorable spring wheat operations, leaving net estimated losses on wheat at $474,729. Severe freeze and frost damage throughout the Corn Belt in early September 1951, resulted in corn losses of $1,456,513 and multiple crop losses of $1,248,171. Hail and extremely dry weather in the bean areas were the cause of net insurance losses of $404,728 on that crop. Prospects for other insured crops ranged from satisfactory to excellent with the result that over-all insurance operations reflect a net loss of $1,960,729 for crop year 1951.

Crop year 1952 (fiscal year 1953) is one of widespread crop disaster, mainly from drought conditions in several sections of the country. Even though there has been much destruction from the drought, only the multiple crop program is expected to show a loss. The anticipated premium surpluses of the other programs will offset this loss with the result that over-all operations show an estimated net income of $751,800. While it is impossible to predict crop conditions for the year 1953 (fiscal year 1954), a net income of $2,523,600 is estimated based on the assumption that 90 percent of the premiums earned will be paid out in indemnities. This assumption is predicated on the structure of premium rates which are so established as to provide a 10 percent reserve for unforeseen losses.

The following table gives a summary of insurance operations for fiscal years 1952, 1953, and 1954:

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION <sup>1</sup>

The Commodity Credit Corporation engages in buying, selling, lending, and other activities with respect to agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers for the purpose of stabilizing, supporting, and protecting farm income and prices; assisting in the maintenance of balanced and adequate supplies of such commodities; and facilitating their orderly distribution. The Corporation also makes available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of such commodities.

The Corporation is managed by a board of directors, subject to the general supervision and direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, who is, ex officio, a director and the chairman of the board. Besides the Secretary, the board consists of six members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. In addition, the Corporation has a bipartisan advisory board of five members appointed by the President to survey the general policies of the Corporation and advise the Secretary with respect thereto.

<sup>1</sup> A more detailed statement describing the creation, purposes, authorities, and financial structure of the Corporation is contained in the Budget of the United States, 1948, as supplemented by subsequent budgets.

The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100,000,000 and authority to borrow up to $6,750,000,000. All of the Corporation's stock is held by the United States.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The budget is based on five types of programs: (1) Price support, (2) supply and foreign purchase, (3) storage facilities, (4) loan to Secretary of Agriculture for agricultural conservation purposes, and (5) commodity export.

In addition to these programs, under the provisions of the appropriation item in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1953 (Public Law 451, 82d Cong.), entitled "Eradication of Foot-and-Mouth Disease and Other Contagious Diseases of Animals and Poultry," the Secretary of Agriculture has determined that Corporation funds should be transferred for use in the eradication of foot-and-mouth and other contagious diseases of animals, subject to full reimbursement. Similar authority contained in appropriations for prior years has been used in the past primarily in connection with programs in Mexico and more recently to a limited extent for measures to protect the United States against the introduction of foot-and-mouth disease from Canada. For the fiscal year 1952, advances, with interest and related charges through June 30, 1953, amount to $7,057,575. Provision for reimbursing the Commodity Credit Corporation for this amount is included in the estimates for 1954 under the item "Eradication of foot-and-mouth disease and other contagious diseases of animals and poultry." No advances under this authority are now contemplated during the fiscal year 1954.

The Corporation's budget estimates for 1953 and 1954 are based on the general assumptions (a) that employment, industrial production, and national income will continue to rise; (b) that prices, on the average, will remain unchanged at about the present level; (c) that yields will be in line with recent averages; (d) that farm production will continue at high levels in the crop years 1952 and 1953; and (e) that acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect on peanuts and certain kinds of tobacco. Where deviations from these general assumptions occur with respect to specific commodities, the justification for the particular commodity will so indicate.

In considering these estimates, it should be recognized that it is extremely difficult to estimate fund requirements for the year ending June 30, 1954. They are dependent upon weather conditions, the volume of agricultural production in this country and in foreign countries, economic conditions generally, food needs in the occupied areas and other foreign countries, availability of dollar exchange, and many other complex and unpredictable factors.

1. Price-support program.—Price support operations are carried out under the Corporation's charter powers (particularly sections 5 (a) and (d)), in conformity with the Agricultural Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 1051), as amended (66 Stat. 758), and with respect to certain types of tobacco, in conformity with the act of July 28, 1945 (59 Stat. 506). Under the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, price support is mandatory for six basic commodities—cotton, corn, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco—and designated nonbasic commodities, namely, wool, mohair, tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat, and the products of milk and butterfat; price support for other nonbasic agricultural commodities is discretionary.

Price support is made available through loans, purchase agreements, and purchases. The producer's commodities serve as collateral for price-support loans. If the producer does not repay his loan, he is not held liable for any deficiency arising from the sale of the collateral unless the loan was obtained through fraudulent representations.

Purchase agreements generally are available during the same period that loans are available. By signing a purchase agreement, a producer receives an option to sell to the Corporation any quantity of the commodity which he may elect within the maximum specified in the agreement. When it is not feasible to support prices through loans or purchase agreements, the Corporation purchases commodities during the regular marketing season either from producers directly or through usual trade channels.

Disposition of commodities acquired by the Corporation in its price support operations is made in compliance with section 407 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 1055) and other applicable legislation, such as the Mutual Security Appropriation Act, 1953 (66 Stat. 654), which establishes restrictions on the use of foreign assistance funds for the purchase of agricultural commodities and products thereof.

In all its price support operations the Corporation utilizes normal trade facilities to the maximum extent practicable. In its lending activities the Corporation uses local banks, cooperatives, and other private lending agencies. Commercial storage facilities are used to a great extent in the storage of loan collateral and in the storage of stocks acquired by the Corporation.

The value of the Corporation's inventory of commodities decreased by $359,451,320 in 1952 due primarily to sales of corn, wheat, and grain sorghums. It is estimated that the value of these inventories will increase by $209,503,856 during 1953. Chief factors in this increase are again corn and wheat, with wheat acquisitions more than offsetting corn sales. During the fiscal year 1954 it is estimated that the value of the Corporation's inventory will increase from $1,282,744,254 to $1,786,331,306, an increase of $503,587,052, primarily because of forfeitures of corn and wheat loan collateral.

2. Supply and foreign purchase program.—The Corporation procures foods, agricultural commodities, their products, and related materials to supply the requirements of Government agencies, foreign governments, and relief and rehabilitation agencies and to meet domestic requirements. Foods, agricultural commodities, and their products are procured or aid is given in their procurement to facilitate distribution or to meet anticipated requirements during periods of short supply. The Corporation may also make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities.

The supply and foreign purchase program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (b) and 5 (c) thereof.

Operations are conducted in accordance with procedures and policies reasonably calculated to assure compliance with section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U. S. C. 713a-9), which requires that the Corporation be fully reimbursed for services performed, losses sustained, and operating costs incurred for commodities purchased or delivered to or on behalf of any other Government agency.

The main activities now carried on are procurement of commodities for the Department of the Army and the Mutual Security Administration, and initial financing of certain programs sponsored by the Defense Production Administration designed to assure adequate supplies of strategic and critical materials, primarily castor beans and kenaf. Total acquisitions under all programs are estimated at $57,549,192 in the fiscal year 1954 compared with an estimate of $111,352,445 for the fiscal year 1953 and actual acquisitions of $88,641,118 during the fiscal year 1952.

3. Storage facilities program.—The Corporation (a) purchases and maintains granaries and equipment for care and storage of grain owned or controlled by the Corporation; (b) makes loans for the construction or expansion of farm storage facilities; (c) provides storage-use guaranties to encourage the construction of commercial storage facilities; (d) undertakes other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

It was not necessary during the fiscal year 1952 to increase the storage capacity of Corporation-owned structures, since commercial and Corporation facilities generally were adequate. It is estimated that the Corporation will increase its storage capacity by 600,000 bushels during the fiscal year 1953 in certain deficient areas in Texas and Oklahoma. No expansion of Corporation structures is contemplated during the fiscal year 1954. The period of guaranteed storage occupancy under a major portion of the storage-use agreements will have terminated by the end of the fiscal year 1953. In order to provide adequate farm storage facilities in 1953 and 1954, it is estimated that the Corporation will be required to make loans on facilities having a total capacity of 30,000,000 bushels in 1953 and of 27,000,000 bushels in 1954. In addition, it is estimated that loans to finance the purchase of mechanical driers totaling $1,000,000 will be made during 1953 compared with $600,000 for 1954. The storage facilities program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 4 (h), 4 (m), and 5 (a).

4. Loan to Secretary of Agriculture for agricultural conservation purposes.—Section 391 (c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1391), requires the Corporation to lend to the Secretary of Agriculture during each fiscal year such sums, not to exceed $50,000,000, as he estimates will be required to make advances for the purchase of conservation materials from January 1 to June 30 of each year. Repayment is usually made during the succeeding fiscal year from appropriated funds, with interest at least equal to the cost of money to the Corporation. In 1952, a total of $46,000,000 was loaned; it is estimated that $41,000,000 will be loaned in each of fiscal years 1953 and 1954.

5. Commodity export program.—The Corporation exports, causes to be exported, or aids in the development of export markets for agricultural commodities and products. This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (d) and 5 (f), and the International Wheat Agreement Act of 1949.

The International Wheat Agreement Act of 1949 authorizes the President, acting through the Corporation, to make available such quantities of wheat and wheat flour to importing countries, and at such prices, as may be necessary to exercise the rights, obtain the benefits, and fulfill the obligations of the United States under the International Wheat Agreement. In turn, the Corporation is authorized to use its general borrowing authority to pay current obligations and to be repaid therefor from appropriations made specifically to cover the costs of the International Wheat Agreement. Pending such reimbursement, the Corporation is authorized to establish the net costs of operations under the agreement as a receivable. The Corporation's net costs charged to the International Wheat Agreement were $171,740,395 for 1952. An authorization directing the Secretary of the Treasury to discharge the indebtedness of the Commodity Credit Corporation by canceling notes issued by the Corporation to the Secretary of the Treasury in this amount is included in the estimates for 1954 under the item "International Wheat Agreement."

Administrative expenses.—These are for the operating staff, including the services of employees of the Production and Marketing Administration engaged in CCC activities, services performed by other agencies of the Department, costs of the General Accounting Office audit and payments to the General Services Administration for space in the District of Columbia.

Expenses in connection with the acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of real or personal property owned in whole or in part by the Corporation are treated as nonadministrative expenses, as provided in the language of the appropriation act. Expenses treated as nonadministrative in the 1954 estimate are the same as those so treated since 1951. The requested authorization excludes expenses in connection with the supply and foreign purchase program; the budget for 1954 contemplates full reimbursement for these expenses. Such reimbursements will be obtained and used in the fiscal year 1954 in the same manner as in the fiscal years 1952 and 1953.

Administrative expenses for 1952 and estimates for 1953 and 1954 are reflected in the schedule, "Amounts available for administrative expenses." The estimates for 1954 include a limitation of $17,850,000 for costs of administration exclusive of reimbursements for services performed. There is included in the requested limitation a reserve of $1,850,000 which would be available to carry out unanticipated program operations.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The Corporation's operations are financed by capital funds and borrowings from the Treasury and from private lending agencies. In 1952 the interest rate paid on capital stock was 1.875 percent, and the rate on borrowings from the Treasury was 1.5 percent. Since June 30, 1952, the interest rate on both capital stock and borrowings from the Treasury is computed at 2 percent in accordance with a revised policy of the Treasury Department that the rate shall be based upon the average interest rate on all outstanding marketable obligations of the United States as of the end of the preceding month. Funds are borrowed from private lending agencies when the Corporation desires to utilize such agencies in carrying out a particular operation in addition to obtaining funds. All borrowing agreements with private lending agencies are approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. Present indications are that the borrowing authority of $6,750,000,000 will be adequate to cover all of the Corporation's obligations in 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The Corporation's records show that operations resulted in a net receipt of $160,365,287 in 1952. It is estimated that such operations will result in net expenditures of $614,943,103 in 1953 and $550,496,437 in 1954. The Treasury, however, does not reflect in the Corporation's checking account note cancellations to reimburse the Corporation for prior years' costs of eradication of foot-and-mouth disease and International Wheat Agreement. For budgetary purposes, therefore, the budget estimates reflect net receipts of $127,665,287 for the fiscal year 1952, and estimated net expenditures of $808,345,885 and $729,- 294,407 for the fiscal years 1953 and 1954, respectively. The net loss for 1952, including both realized losses of $102,526,779 and net downward adjustments in valuation allowances of $36,470,047, amounted to $66,056,732. It is estimated that net losses of $130,000,000 and $214,200,000 will be incurred in 1953 and 1954, respectively.

An appraisal of the assets and liabilities of the Corporation is made each year by the Secretary of the Treasury to determine net worth. If the net worth is less than $100,000,000, the Secretary of the Treasury restores the amount of capital impairment; if net worth is more than $100,000,000, the Corporation pays the surplus to the Treasury. A summary of capital impairment, restoration of capital, and payments to the Treasury is given in schedule 4.

There was a deficit of $220,221,501 as of June 30, 1952. A restoration of $109,391,154 was approved to cover the June 30, 1951, deficit. Differences between deficits shown on the books of the Corporation as of the close of a fiscal year, and the amounts of restoration of capital result from net adjustments based on the Secretary of the Treasury's appraisal of the Corporation's assets and liabilities. The adjustments are based on the provision of the act of March 8, 1938, which defines asset values for appraisal purposes as the lower of cost or average market prices for the month of June. The Corporation, however, takes into consideration current market prices and support levels, prospective sales outlets and the effect of production and price support levels on market prices in arriving at their estimated value. While the actual amount of the restoration of capital will depend on the amount of the capital impairment established by the Secretary of the Treasury as of June 30, 1952, the estimated amount shown in the budget language proposing a restoration of capital (not to exceed $110,000,000) is based on the books of the Corporation.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The Corporation's assets, which consist principally of price support loans receivable and inventories, were valued at $2,009,320,373 as of June 30, 1952, and are estimated at $2,604,872,653 as of June 30, 1953, and $2,926,765,653 as of June 30, 1954. The estimated increase in assets in 1953 is caused primarily by the increase in outstanding corn loans and the increase in wheat inventory. The increase anticipated in 1954 over the 1953 level is expected to result primarily from increases in the inventories of both corn and wheat.

The changes in the Corporation's assets are also reflected in its principal liabilities. Outstanding borrowings from the Treasury amounted to $1,970,000,000 as of June 30, 1952; it is estimated that outstanding borrowings from the Treasury will amount to $2,478,000,000 as of June 30, 1953 and $2,920,000,000 as of June 30, 1954. The anticipated increases in borrowings result primarily from increased loans outstanding in 1953 and increased acquisition of loan collateral in 1954. Other liabilities of the Corporation, principally price support loans held by banks, amounted to $159,541,874 as of June 30, 1952; it is estimated that these liabilities will amount to $267,703,000 as of June 30, 1953; and $251,796,000 as of June 30, 1954. In addition, the Corporation had contingent liabilities as of June 30, 1952, amounting to $17,140,499. It is estimated that these contingent liabilities, consisting primarily of purchase agreements outstanding, will amount to $32,900,700 and $27,115,000 as of June 30, 1953 and 1954, respectively.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Corporation was established with authorized capital of $200,000,000 ($10,000 of stock now outstanding) to finance Land Bank Commissioner loans, to purchase Federal land bank bonds, to make secured loans to Federal land banks, to exchange its bonds for Federal land bank bonds, and to obtain necessary funds through sale of its own bonds.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The Land Bank Commissioner's authority to make loans on behalf of the Corporation having expired July 1, 1947 (12 U. S. C. 1016), the Corporation's principal activity is the liquidation of its assets. Budgetary requirements for fiscal year 1954 depend upon the rate of liquidation.

Administrative expenses.—These are payments to the Federal land banks for services performed as agents of the Corporation, reimbursements to the Treasury and Federal Reserve banks for expenses of bond transactions and checking accounts, cost of audit by the General Accounting Office, and miscellaneous items. Total administrative expenses for 1952 were $989,810 and are estimated at $950,000 for 1953 and $800,000 for 1954.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

During 1952 the Corporation paid a dividend of $14,000,000 to the Treasury, and it is estimated that a $7,000,000 dividend will be paid in 1953.

OPERATING RESULTS

Operations in 1952 resulted in a net budgetary receipt of $12,280,937, net budgetary receipts of $8,245,000 are estimated for 1953 and $6,042,100 for 1954.

Income and expense.—Operating income for 1952 was $1,723,607, and is estimated at $1,283,100 for 1953 and $965,100 for 1954. The 1952 net income (after adjustment of valuation allowances and other additions) was $6,687,641; the estimate for 1953 is $951,700 and $509,800 for 1954. Expenses (exclusive of charge-offs) for 1952 were $1,105,214; comparable expenses for 1953 and 1954 are estimated at $1,055,200 and $902,300.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The 12 Federal intermediate credit banks, serving as banks of discount for agriculture, do not make loans directly to individuals; or accept deposits, except as collateral security. Each bank operates under a board of directors identical with the district farm credit board and is supervised by the Intermediate Credit Commissioner, who is responsible to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration (12 U. S. C. 1021-22, 640b, and 640d). The Government's capital investment in the banks on June 30, 1952, was $65,825,000.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

Loan Program.—The demand upon these banks for credit increased again in 1952 and the upward trend in volume of business is expected to continue through 1953 and 1954. The volume of loans and discounts expected in 1954 amounts to $2,497,882,000, an increase of 7.5 percent over the estimated amount for 1953 and 20.2 percent over the volume handled in 1952. The $2,077,272,277 of credit extended in 1952 was the largest in the history of the banks and 8 percent more than in 1951. Among factors contributing to the current trend in loan volume are continued high production costs, large acreages of cotton and other crops planted pursuant to goals set by the Department of Agriculture, expansion in livestock production and pasture improvements, and an increasing number of loans to new borrowers offered to the banks.

Administrative expenses.—Paid out of income, these expenses amounted to $1,511,889 in 1952 and are estimated at $1,690,000 for 1953 and $1,745,000 for 1954.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

To finance their lending operations, the banks expect to issue consolidated collateral trust debentures amounting to $1,358,590,000 in 1953 and $1,489,690,000 in 1954, and to borrow $79,500,000 in 1953 and $76,500,000 in 1954 from commercial banks for short periods. The United States assumes no liability for the debentures or other obligations of the Federal intermediate credit banks. The aggregate amount of debentures and other similar obligations which any Federal intermediate credit bank may have outstanding may not exceed 10 times its surplus and paid-in capital (12 U. S. C. 1041).

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Income.—Interest income from loans and discounts, United States securities, and other sources was $20,891,865 in 1952 and is estimated at $24,118,100 for 1953 and $25,451,100 for 1954. The estimated increase in gross interest income is due principally to anticipated higher loan volume. Net income which was $2,376,200 in 1952 is expected to be $3,536,400 in 1953 and $3,631,500 in 1954.

Interest costs.—Interest and other costs on borrowed money were $16,945,254 in 1952 and are estimated to be $18,564,000 in 1953 and $19,748,500 in 1954. The average cost of outstanding debentures was 2.23 percent per annum in 1952, and is estimated by the banks at 2.25 percent for both 1953 and 1954. Interest costs are affected by general money market conditions and rates are subject to considerable fluctuation.

Earned surplus.—The distribution of net income of the banks is prescribed by law (12 U. S. C. 1072). Out of such income $1,235,000 was transferred to reserve for contingencies in 1952 and it is expected that $1,600,000 will be transferred to reserve in 1953 and $1,775,000 in 1954. A 25-percent franchise tax of $285,300 was paid in 1952 and payments of $484,100 and $464,100 are anticipated in 1953 and 1954. Total franchise taxes paid by the banks from organization to June 30, 1952, aggregate

$8,598,006. The balance of net income each year is carried to unreserved surplus. The total earned surplus is retained in the system as contemplated by law. These surplus reserves, which totaled $42,514,669 on June 30, 1952, together with paid-in capital and paid-in surplus, form the capital structure on which the issuance of securities is based.

Loans and discounts.—Loans and discounts outstanding on June 30, 1952, amounted to $903,310,831. It is estimated that loans and discounts outstanding will amount to $974,932,831 on June 30, 1953, and $1,032,461,831 on June 30, 1954.

Investments.—The banks held $48,329,000 par value of United States securities at June 30, 1952, and it is estimated that such holdings will be in the same amount on June 30, 1953, and June 30, 1954. These investments are an important factor in enabling the banks to obtain funds in the investment markets at reasonable rates. They are used from time to time as collateral for debentures and to secure short-term bank borrowings.

Liabilities.—Unmatured consolidated debentures and notes payable outstanding, which account for all except about 1 percent of the banks' liabilities, totaled $857,400,000 on June 30, 1952, and are expected to increase to $930,905,000 on June 30, 1953, and $984,420,000 on June 30, 1954.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The Government's capital investment of $65,825,000 in the banks at June 30, 1952, consisted of $5,000,000 of paid-in capital for each of the 12 banks and a total of $5,825,000 of paid-in surplus supplied to 6 of the banks from late in 1951 through June 30, 1952, out of the revolving fund of $40,000,000 created by section 15a of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation Act (12 U. S. C. 1131i (e)). To enable the banks to meet the credit needs of eligible borrowers within the 10 to 1 maximum debt-to-capital ratio permitted by law, further additions to the paid-in surplus of several of the banks are expected to be required in the amounts of $3,425,000 during 1953 and $1,450,000 in 1954.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The production-credit system is designed to make available to farmers and stockmen permanent short-term credit facilities on a cooperative basis. In each of the 12 farm credit districts there is a production credit corporation. These corporations, under a district board of directors (12 U. S. C. 1131 et seq.), organize, supervise, and provide supplemental capital for the local production credit associations, which are the lending cooperatives. The capital stock of the production credit corporations comes from the revolving fund of $90,000,000 in the U. S. Treasury. The paid-in capital of the corporations, amounting to $36,235,000 on June 30, 1952, and most of their surpluses are invested in class A stock of production credit associations and in United States bonds. The corporations are supervised by the Production Credit Commissioner, who is responsible to the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The principal factor governing administrative expenses is the supervision of these associations, including the prescribing of loan policies, interest rates and reserves; approval of certain classes of loans and dividend payments; and approval of officers, directors and their compensation. The corporations make an annual credit review including examination of the outstanding loans of each association and make periodic operating reviews and audits. An important objective is to have all associations on a self-supporting basis. By working toward this end, the corporations have been able to reduce their investment in class A stock of associations from $90,000,000 in 1934 to $8,724,800 on June 30, 1952. At that date 243 associations were completely owned by farmers and stockmen.

Administrative expenses of the 12 corporations amounted to $1,392,649 in 1952 and are estimated at $1,465,000 for 1953 and $1,516,000 for 1954.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

The Government's capital investment in the production credit corporations is expected to be reduced to $31,735,000 by a payment of $2,500,000 in 1953 and $2,000,000 in 1954 to the revolving fund. The surpluses of the corporations, aggregating $15,614,104 on June 30, 1952, safeguard this investment and directly influence the amount of paid-in capital required. Since 1949, by reasons of a special payment of $30,000,000 into the surplus fund of the Treasury in that year and a corresponding reduction in their investments, the corporations have been unable to defray all expenses from income. The net loss in 1952 was $586,646 and is estimated at $567,600 and $611,700 for 1953 and 1954, respectively, reducing the earned surplus to an aggregate of $14,434,804 on June 30, 1954.

Purchases and sales of securities result primarily from the continued reduction of the corporations' liability under bond repurchase agreements with the associations and the return of Government capital to the revolving fund.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE MIXED-OWNERSHIP CORPORATIONS

BANKS FOR COOPERATIVES

Under the Farm Credit Act of 1933, capital funds required by the banks for cooperatives are obtained from the revolving fund provided in the Agricultural Marketing Act (12 U. S. C. 1134b-1134i) and from farmers' cooperatives obtaining loans from these banks (12 U. S. C. 1134k). Because capital stock in any such bank owned by a cooperative which has paid its indebtedness to the bank must be retired and cancelled upon request, the amount of capital stock so owned ordinarily varies with the amount of loans outstanding. As of June 30, 1952, stock owned by cooperatives and deposits of cooperatives in the guaranty fund totaled $18,100,100 or only 9.2 percent of the total capital stock of the banks. The desirability of eventual ownership of the banks for cooperatives by the agricultural cooperatives of the country has been recognized for a number of years, but is not possible of accomplishment without authorizing legislation. After long consideration a bill to accomplish this objective was introduced in both Houses during the Eightieth Congress. This proposed legislation provided for the eventual retirement of the capital stock in the banks owned by the Federal Government through (1) the purchase of stock by cooperatives in relation to the amount of interest paid on loans from the banks, (2) the issuance of stock in the form of patronage dividends, and (3) the direct sale of stock to cooperatives. Hearings were held by both Houses and the bill reported out by the House Committee on Agriculture. No final action was taken on the bill by the Eightieth Congress. A similar bill was introduced in the House of Representatives during the Eighty-first Congress and passed by the House of Representatives. The bill was not acted upon by the Senate and, therefore, lapsed at the end of the session. Sentiment is still strong among many cooperatives for ownership of the banks for cooperatives and similar legislative proposals are expected in the future.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Operation of Federal airways.—The Federal airways system is a network of visual and radio aids to air navigation and traffic control along the primary air routes and at principal airports in the continental United States, the Territories, and possessions. These aids include radio ranges and beacons, instrument landing systems, traffic control centers and towers with associated radar equipments, light beacons and approach light lanes, communication stations, and emergency landing fields. Increases proposed for 1954 are primarily for full-year operation of facilities installed in 1953 and for operation of facilities to be installed in 1954.

2. Aviation safety.—Inspections and certifications are made of aircraft, airmen, operators of aircraft, and air agencies to insure the safe and competent operation of

CIVIL AERONAUTICS ADMINISTRATION—Con.

Salaries and Expenses, Civil Aeronautics Administration—Con.
aircraft. The increase proposed for 1954 is mainly to provide additional air carrier safety agents.

3. Airport development.—This consists of (a) periodic examinations to obtain and release up-to-date airport facility information; (b) specific examinations to insure compliance with agreements under which airport construction grants have been made or surplus airports transferred to local agencies; and (c) coordinating with interested agencies military plans for the joint or exclusive use of civil airports.

4. General counsel.—This activity includes the enforcement of applicable laws and rules used by the CAA in administering the civil air regulations and, as a staff service to the Administrator, renders legal advice, including preparation and interpretation of legislation and regulations.

5. Aviation information.—This office directs and coordinates the dissemination of information on aviation activities, including data on flight facilities and conditions published for the use of all airmen.

6. Operation of aircraft.—A fleet of 85 aircraft is operated to (a) flight-check air navigation and landing facilities; (b) provide for travel by, and maintenance of pilot proficiency for, aviation safety agents; and (c) provide for necessary administrative travel by air. Additional flying time for pilot proficiency training is obtained through the rental of aircraft. Increases in 1954 are to meet flight checking requirements associated with the additional airways facilities to be operated in 1954.

7. Executive direction.—Provision is made for the planning, direction, and coordination of all activities of the agency through policies and objectives established by the Administrator and implemented by 10 regional offices.

8. Staff and administrative services.—Staff assistance in planning and evaluating agency operations and programs and general administrative services are provided in headquarters and 10 regional offices.

9. Interfunctional.—This activity provides common services to Washington and regional offices, including rent and utilities, communications, and supplies.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This is a program administered by the Air Navigation Development Board composed of representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Department of Defense, for the development of a system of aids to air navigation and traffic control which will meet the common needs of civil aviation and military nontactical air operations. The work involves research, experimentation, and development of new devices required for safety and regularity of flight under all-weather conditions for joint use by civil and military aircraft.

1. Research and development on airways facilities.—The program is divided into three phases: Basic developments, navigation, and traffic control. During 1954, major emphasis will be placed upon basic developments and traffic control aids. The increase for 1954 is to provide for comprehensive evaluation of equipments developed under projects carried on during prior years, and for resumption of long-term projects, which were deferred after the beginning of the defense mobilization effort.

2. Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board regulates the economic aspects of air carrier operations, both domestic and international; promulgates safety rules and standards; investigates aircraft accidents; and participates in the development of international air transportation.

1. Economic regulation.—Includes granting and denying certificates of public convenience and necessity; prescribing or approving rates and rate practices of air carriers; fixing mail rate compensation; prevention of discrimination or unfair methods of competition; and approval or disapproval of business relationships between air carriers. The major objective during 1954 is stabilization of the mail and commercial rate structures and continued reexamination of the route pattern to eliminate uneconomical service.

2. Safety regulation.—Consists of promulgation of new or amended Civil Air Regulations; adjudication of complaints alleging violations of these regulations; and the coordination of the Civil Air Regulations with international safety standards and practices. The program for 1954 provides for handling an increased workload, primarily in the field of regulations covering jet transport aircraft.

3. Accident investigation and analysis.—Civil aircraft accidents are investigated to determine probable cause; potential hazards are also investigated; and preventive measures are recommended and put into effect.

4. Legal staff activities.—Legal advice and assistance is provided on all aspects of economic and safety regulatory activities; opinions of the Board are prepared; and litigation matters are handled. The primary areas of increased requirements for 1954 are those in connection with economic and procedural regulations, and the growing volume of litigation.

5. Executive direction.

6. Administration and service activities.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The survey publishes aeronautical and nautical navigation charts of selected areas of the United States, its Territories, and surrounding waters, using data obtained through field surveys. In addition, seismological and geodetic control data are obtained and disseminated, and world-wide tide and current information is compiled and published.

1. Surveys and charts for marine and air navigation.—Hydrographic, topographic, tide and current, magnetic, and aeronautical surveys are made to secure information for nautical and aeronautical charts and tables required for safe air and sea navigation.

Receipts from the sale of charts and related publications were $432,324 in 1952 and are estimated to be $450,000 during both 1953 and 1954.

2. Geodetic control.—Surveys are made in the United States and its Territories to determine the horizontal position (latitude and longitude) and the vertical position (elevation above mean sea level) of a network of control points which are permanently marked on the ground. These points are spaced so that adequate survey control is available for topographic, geologic, and other types of mapping, and for planning large-scale engineering projects. The positions and descriptions of these points are published and distributed to Federal, State, and local agencies and the general public.

3. Earthquake investigation.—Earthquakes are located and investigated to determine their severity and to obtain engineering data for the design of earthquake-resistant structures. The Bureau operates 12 seismograph stations, field investigates an average of 8 severe earthquakes annually, operates 58 strong-motion stations in the seismic area of the Western States, and collaborates with 14 universities to determine the location of distant earthquakes.

4. Instrument services.—These include the design and construction, maintenance, storage, and issuance of intricate instruments used in surveying and processing operations.

5. Commissioned officers.—Provision is made for the pay and allowances of the Survey's corps of active commissioned officers and for payments to retired officers.

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

Export control—1952, $5,244,487; 1953, $5,758,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Export controls are necessary to protect the domestic economy from excessive drain of scarce commodities, to safeguard the national security by regulating exports of strategic commodities, and to implement United States foreign policy. In the absence of improvement in relations with certain countries, these controls must be continued and, as necessary, extended to other areas to guard against transshipment. The Bureau of Customs is responsible for the policing of shipments at points of export. Legislation providing for these activities expires June 30, 1953. The 1954 requirements are included as a supplemental under proposed legislation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The 1954 estimate includes $107,700,000 for construction of four passenger-cargo ships for replacement of privately owned tonnage, as required by terms of operating-differential subsidy contracts. An additional $10,800,000 is proposed for construction of a fast, medium-sized tanker designed to fill a need not presently filled by the slower commercial tankers, and adaptable to military use if necessary. This tanker will serve as a prototype for any future mobilization construction program.

OPERATING-DIFFERENTIAL SUBSIDIES

Operating-Differential Subsidies, Maritime Activities, Department of Commerce—

Operating-differential subsidies: For the payment of obligations incurred for operating-differential subsidies granted on or after January 1, 1947, as authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, and in appropriations heretofore made to the United States Maritime Commission, [$20,000,000] $25,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That to the extent that the operating-differential subsidy accrual (computed on the basis of parity) is represented on the operator's books by a contingent accounts receivable item against the United States as a partial or complete offset to the recapture accrual, the operator (1) shall be excused from making deposits in the special reserve fund, and (2) as to the amount of such earnings the deposit of which is so excused shall be entitled to the same tax treatment as though it had been deposited in said special reserve fund. To the extent that any amount paid to the operator by the United States reduces the balance in the operator's contingent receivable account against the United States, such amount, unless it is forthwith deposited in the fund, shall be considered as withdrawn under section 607 (h) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended: Provided further, That nothing contained in this Act, or in any prior appropriation Act, shall be construed to affect the authority provided in section 603 (a) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, (1) to grant operating-differential subsidies on a long-term basis, and (2) to obligate the United States to make future payments in accordance with the terms of such operating-differential subsidy contracts ; Provided further, That no part of the foregoing appropriation shall be available for obligation, nor any obligation made, for the payment of an operating-differential subsidy for any number of voyages, during the current fiscal year, in excess of sixteen hundred, which number shall include the number of voyages under contracts hereafter awarded and of which one hundred shall be for operators who have not held contracts prior to July 1, 1952]. Operating-differential subsidies—1952, $41,437,567; 1953, $43,000,000; 1954, $45,795,157.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Contracts with United States citizens operating vessels in foreign commerce provide for payments of the differential between their operating costs and those of foreign competitors. Payments are based upon the total subsidy accrual, less the estimated annual recapturable profits (subsidy withheld). Subsidy accrual is determined by (1) the cost differentials between United States and competing foreign lines on five major elements of operating costs, and (2) the number and duration of voyages during the year by subsidized vessels. Estimated recapturable profits (subsidy withheld) represent a contingent liability to the extent that profits, averaged over the current 10-year recapture period of each contract, fall below 10 percent of capital necessarily employed.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administrative expenses.—These are the administrative expenses incidental to all programs of the Maritime Administration and Federal Maritime Board, except those of maritime training. The liquidation of subsidy backlogs, deferred inspections and surveys, and initiation of the new ship construction program account for the increase in 1954.

2. Maintenance of shipyard facilities.—Maintenance and security are provided at four Government-owned reserve shipyards, which are maintained in a partial state of readiness for defense purposes.

3. Operation of warehouses.—Five warehouses contain materials and equipment for terminals, reserve shipyards, vessel operations, and repair and outfitting of reserve fleet ships.

4. Maintenance and operation of terminals.—Two Government-owned marine terminals, Boston and Philadelphia, leased to commercial operators, are kept in maintenance and repair. The Hoboken terminal was transferred to the city of Hoboken early in fiscal year 1953. Gross revenue from terminals was $967,195 in 1952, and is estimated at $725,000 and $640,000 in 1953 and 1954, respectively.

5. Reserve fleet expense.—Provision is made for the preservation and security of merchant vessels, maintained in laid-up status for national defense purposes. Under the increase proposed for 1954, it is estimated that by June 30, 1954, bottom preservation will have been completed on all 2,060 ships estimated to be in the eight reserve fleets at that time. Also, by that date, approximately 60 percent of the basic preservation workload and 20 percent of the backlog of recurring preservation work is expected to be completed.

No additional vessels shall be allocated under charter, nor shall any vessel be continued under charter by reason of any extension of chartering authority beyond June 30, 1949, unless the charterer shall agree that the Maritime Administration shall have no obligation upon redelivery to accept or pay for consumable stores, bunkers, and slop-chest items, except with respect to such minimum amounts of bunkers as the Maritime Administration considers advisable to be retained on the vessel and that prior to such redelivery all consumable stores, slop-chest items, and bunkers over and above such minimums shall be removed from the vessel by the charterer at his own expense.

The Office administers the laws that govern the granting of patents for invention and the registration of trade-marks.

The increase of $300,000 over 1953 is chiefly for replenishment of patent copy stocks and to meet higher printing costs. A supplemental of $135,000 for higher printing costs is anticipated for 1953.

Receipts from fees were $5,378,000 in 1952, and are estimated to be $5,600,000 in 1953 and 1954.

1. Administration of patent and trade-mark system.—Applications are examined to determine the patentability of claimed inventions and the registrability of trade-marks, quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal or interference proceedings within the Office, patents and trade-marks are issued, copies of records are furnished, and other services relating to the prosecution of applications are provided. For 1954, emphasis will continue toward reducing to a current status the abnormal backlog of applications.

2. Printing and publication of patent and trade-mark material.—This activity provides for printing of specifications and drawings of patents and trade-mark registrations; publication of their issuance and of official notices, rules of practice, laws, and other matter authorized by law; binding of patents, trade-marks, and other reference material for official and public search; and other printing and binding work necessary for the conduct of the business of the Office. The need and use of funds is governed largely by the volume of patent and trade-mark issuances and related public demand for printed copies sold from stocks maintained by the Office.

3. Executive direction and administrative services.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC ROADS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bureau administers the Federal-aid highway program for the improvement of primary, secondary, and urban highways and cooperates with other Federal agencies in improving highways in national forests, parks, and other Federal areas.

Total appropriations requested amount to $593,961,925. This represents an increase of $31,962,623 compared with the current fiscal year, including anticipated supplementals. The major increase is the result of greater requirements for funds to liquidate obligations incurred in prior years.

General administrative expenses: Necessary expenses of administration, including advertising (including advertising in the city of Washington for work to be performed in areas adjacent thereto), purchase of [thirty-five] forty passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, and the maintenance and repairs of experimental highways, shall be paid, in accordance with law, from appropriations available to the Bureau of Public Roads.

Of the total amount available from appropriations of the Bureau of Public Roads for general administrative expenses, pursuant to the provisions of section 21 of the Act of November 9, 1921, as amended (23 U. S. C. 21), $100,000 shall be available for all necessary expenses to enable the President to utilize the services of the Bureau of Public Roads in fulfilling the obligations of the United States under the Convention on the Pan-American Highway Between the United States and Other American Republics (51 Stat. 152), cooperation with several governments, members of the Pan American Union, in connection with the survey and construction of the Inter-American Highway, and for performing engineering service in Pan-American countries for and upon the request of any agency or governmental corporation of the United States. (23 U. S. C. 21; sec. 6 of the Act of June 29, 1948, 62 Stat. 1105; Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, and The Judiciary Appropriation Act, 1953.)

C. 1-22, 24-105, 107-117), to remain available until expended, [$325,000,000] $540,000,000, which sum is composed of [$322,491,000, a part] $387,500,000, the balance of the amount authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year [1951, and $2,038,463 and $470,537] 1952, $149,500,000, a part of the amount authorized to be appropriated for the fiscal year 1953, and $1,570,352, $867,307 and $562,341, the latter sums being for reimbursement of the sums expended for the repair or reconstruction of highways and bridges which have been damaged or destroyed by floods, hurricanes, or landslides, as provided by section 4 of the Act approved June 8, 1938, [and] section 7 of the Act approved July 13, 1943, and section 9 of the Act approved September 7, 1950, as amended (23 U. S. C. 13a and 13b). (Departments of State, Justice, Commerce, and The Judiciary Appropriation Act, 1953.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Grants for construction.—Grants are made to States for the improvement of highways that are part of the Federal-aid primary, secondary, and urban highway systems; in general, these grants are matched on an equal basis by State funds. The three highway systems have a mileage of 218,594, 438,033, and 16,510, respectively. The current annual authorization is $575,000,000, including $25,000,000 for projects on the interstate highway system.

The funds requested will be used to reimburse the States for the Federal share of the cost of work done on approved projects. Actual and estimated progress of this program is summarized in the following table.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The National Bureau of Standards serves as a national laboratory for problems relating to fundamental standards of measurement in the physical sciences, the determination of physical constants, properties of materials, and the development of methods and instruments for precise measurement, and for general and specific research and development in physics, mathematics, chemistry, metallurgy, and engineering.

For expenses necessary in carrying out the provisions of the Act approved March 3, 1901, as amended (15 U. S. C. 271-278; Public Law 619, approved July 22, 1950) 278c), including improvements to buildings, grounds, and other plant facilities, as authorized by section 2 of the Act of July 21, 1950 (Public Law 618] 15 U. S. C. 286); building of temporary experimental structures; and purchase (not to exceed [five] seven for replacement only) [and hire] of passenger motor vehicles; [and not to exceed $100,000 for services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Research.—Investigations of fundamental physical phenomena are conducted, and physical constants and properties of materials are determined when such data are of great importance to scientific or manufacturing interests. Fundamental scientific knowledge is applied to develop more effective use of new scientific and technological processes, materials, and equipment. The properties and processing characteristics of industrial materials, structures, equipment, and commodities are determined. Investigations are made of fundamental physical phenomena arising in connection with development of specific technical devices.

2. Development.—Standards of measurement, instruments, instrumentation techniques, methods of measurement and analysis, and commodity testing techniques are developed. New testing devices and special devices for national defense and for improvement of technical operations of Federal agencies are designed and constructed. Materials and technological processes in fields of importance to national welfare and defense are developed.

3. Testing, calibration, and specifications.—The Bureau has custody of the national standards of measurement, and it compares standards used in scientific investigations, engineering, manufacturing, commerce, and educational institutions with standards adopted or recognized by the Government. This activity also provides for preparation of standard samples, analyses of substances, and similar services related to the standards of physical measurement; formulation of specifications and standards for commodities and equipment; acceptance and surveillance testing of commodities, materials, and equipment for the Federal Government; and technical investigative and advisory services related to regulatory or judicial functions of governmental agencies.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Central Radio Propagation Laboratory conducts research on the propagation of radio waves at all frequencies; develops methods and techniques for applying the results of this research to practical problems; provides a center of information and consulting services on radio wave propagation problems for all other Government agencies; and develops, maintains, and provides calibration services for the national primary standards of measurement of all electrical quantities at all radio frequencies.

1. Research.—This is concerned with the fundamental physics of the atmosphere and effects of solar and cosmic radiation on it insofar as these phenomena affect radio propagation. The long-range improvement of radio communication is critically dependent upon progress in this phase of the program. It also includes improvement of techniques for the prediction of maximum usable frequencies for radio sky-wave transmission, and the improvement of standards, instruments, and measurement methods in the entire radio-frequency range.

2. Development.—This is concerned with the development of equipment and standards for the precise measurement of electrical quantities at radio frequencies and with the development of equipment, systems, and techniques necessary for improvement of radio communication at all frequencies.

3. Testing, calibration, and specifications.—This provides for the calibration of instruments against the national standards of measurement in this field.

4. General scientific services.—This is concerned with the collection of data on propagation of radio waves from all parts of the world, both from the Bureau's own field stations and from those of other cooperating laboratories, and with the analysis and dissemination of these data for prediction of radio propagation conditions. Consultative services are provided other Government agencies, especially the Department of Defense.

Funds provided under this appropriation have been used to finance construction of the radio laboratory at Boulder, Colo., and the guided-missile laboratory at Corona, Calif.

In 1951, the guided-missile laboratory received an appropriation of $1,540,000. These funds were used to

Construction of Laboratories, National Bureau of Standards—Con. remodel and equip for laboratory purposes a group of buildings at the United States Naval Hospital, Corona, Calif. Work was largely completed and the laboratory occupied by July 1952.

In 1951, the Boulder Radio Laboratory received an appropriation of $360,000 for the development of plans and specifications. In the same year, contract authorization of $3,915,000 was provided to permit the award of the main construction contract. In 1952, an appropriation of $3,800,000 was made to liquidate these obligations, leaving $115,000 of contract authorization to be financed at a later time. Ground was broken for this building in July 1952.

An additional appropriation of $1,190,000 is requested for fiscal year 1954 for additional costs for construction of the radio laboratory building and to provide for the transfer of personnel and equipment of the Central Radio Propagation Laboratory to the Boulder site which will be ready for occupancy about February 1, 1954.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Weather Bureau observes, records, and forecasts weather conditions and river stages for the benefit of United States commerce, industry, agriculture, and the general public.

1. General weather services.—Regular forecasts are issued for United States Territory and waters, with special emphasis on floods and severe storms. Special forecasts and advisory services are provided for international and domestic aviation; fire-weather forecasts are furnished to assist in conservation of timber resources; and fruit-frost forecasts and warnings are prepared for areas where such crops form a major economic interest. Surface and upper air observations are taken at several hundred locations to serve forecasting requirements. Current weather information is disseminated widely for the benefit of aviation and other interests. Several thousand voluntary and part-time observers record river stage, temperature, and precipitation readings for use in flood-control and water-use activities. All observational records are combined to form the climatic history of the United States and possessions.

The increase proposed for 1954 is to provide for a main meteorological office at Anchorage, Alaska, processing part of a backlog of hydroclimatic data, and equipment installations designed to improve efficiency.

2. Research.—Research activities are directed primarily toward the development of new operational and forecasting techniques directly applicable to major service programs, but also include studies of basic meteorology and meteorological physics.

3. Administration.

*Vessel Operations Revolving Fund, Department of Commerce—PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances the operation for the Government of a fleet of cargo vessels to meet the increased demand since Korea for shipment of supplies, materials, and other items resulting from the national defense and foreign aid programs (65 Stat. 59). The operation of the vessels is carried out by private operators acting as agents of the Maritime Administration.

Vessel operations under the fund reached a peak about April 1, 1952, when 538 ships were operated by general agents. By July 1, 1952, however, this number had fallen to 183. This rapid decline resulted from (1) the reduction in European coal shipments under sponsorship of the Mutual Security Agency, (2) the completion of the grain-lift to India under the wheat loan, and (3) the gradual easing of military cargo requirements. With more privately owned vessels available to haul Government cargoes, it is anticipated that the number of ships operated by general agents will gradually decline to approximately 50 by the end of fiscal year 1954. The ships withdrawn from service will be returned to the reserve fleet.

The principal of the fund consists of a $20,000,000 appropriation and donated assets of $2,705,360. A deficit of $19,691,802 accruing under the vessel operations program formerly carried on under an allocation from the Economic Cooperation Administration allocation was assumed by the fund. It is estimated that by the end of 1954 this deficit will be eliminated and the fund will have accumulated retained earnings of $12,044,701.

War Risk Insurance Revolving Fund, Maritime Activities—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was established to provide war risk insurance in the event that commercial insurance is not available at reasonable terms and conditions during time of war (Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended). At present, commercial war-risk insurance policies are subject to an automatic termination clause upon the outbreak of war between any of the four powers—United States, France, Great Britain, and the U. S. S. R. The Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1952 (65 Stat. 746) authorized the transfer of $10 million from the "Vessel operations revolving fund" to this fund if it became necessary to provide insurance coverage. To date no transfers have been required and none are anticipated in fiscal years 1953 or 1954. At present, the income of the fund comes from fees paid for issuance of insurance binders that provide conditional insurance for 1 year to become effective immediately if commercial insurance is terminated upon outbreak of war between any of the four powers. Expenses of the fund consist of fees paid underwriting agents.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS*PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was established to cover expenses necessary for the maintenance and operation of the National Bureau of Standards, including the furnishing of facilities and services to other Government agencies (64 Stat. 279). It is reimbursed from applicable appropriations of the Bureau as well as from funds of other agencies for facilities and services furnished. Reimbursements include handling and related charges, depreciation of equipment, accrued leave, and building construction and alterations directly related to the work for which reimbursement is made. The principal of the fund consists of $5,000,000 in appropriations and net donated capital. The donated capital, valued at $27,460,106 as of June 30, 1952, is estimated at $26,178,091 as of June 30, 1954.

The Budget proposes to authorize advances for facilities and services to be deposited directly to the fund instead of to working funds. This will enable the National Bureau of Standards to continue operation of the fund at the present or accelerated rate without additional appropriations to increase the working capital. The elimination of working fund accounts will simplify accounting procedures.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The chief purpose of the Inland Waterways Corporation is to demonstrate the feasibility of water transportation on the inland rivers and to extend the benefits of this service by providing fast, dependable, and efficient barge service to the widest possible segment of the shipping public in the area. In addition to the officers appointed by the Secretary of Commerce, the Corporation has an advisory board consisting of a chairman and six recognized business leaders selected for 5-year terms by the Secretary of Commerce to represent each of the several sections of the country served by the Corporation. The Corporation originally had an authorized capital of $5 million. In 1928, this was increased to $15 million. Paid-in surplus of $12,298,328 represents the appraised value of equipment and facilities transferred to the Corporation, when it was chartered, by the War Department (49 U. S. C. 151-153), and by other Government agencies. The Government's investment in the Corporation on June 30, 1952, was $12,464,029 and is anticipated to be $12,287,829 and $12,382,829 by June 30, 1953 and 1954, respectively.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

Budgetary requirements of the Corporation vary markedly because of the usual hazards and uncertainties of water transportation. Ice conditions, floods, and high and low water are some of the natural unpredictable factors encountered, while the poor condition of floating and terminal equipment, freight-car shortages, and work stoppages in industry also disrupt operating plans and reduce revenues.

The budget program of the Corporation for fiscal year 1954 consists of (1) common carrier operations, (2) capital replacements, and (3) lending activities. The level at which the various activities of the Corporation are projected for fiscal years 1953 and 1954 represents an increase over that of 1952.

Common carrier operations.—The Corporation, operating under the trade name "Federal Barge Lines," provides the only complete common carrier barge service offered on the Mississippi, Illinois, Missouri, and Warrior Rivers. All types of freight, except livestock and perishables, are transported on 3,300 miles of inland rivers with 20 tow-boats, 4 tugs, and 253 barges. Operations are conducted through numerous bulk terminals as well as through 21 general merchandise facilities. A railroad switching facility operating between Port Birmingham and Ensley, Ala., provides a connecting link between the Corporation's facilities and the trunk-line railroads serving the Southeast.

Estimated freight tonnage for 1954 compared with 1952 and 1953 is shown below by divisions and contains duplication since some traffic moves over more than one division:

Division	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
	Tons	Tons	Tons
Lower Mississippi River.....	2,046,416	2,071,372	2,174,863
Upper Mississippi River.....	438,247	456,404	479,207
Illinois River.....	912,420	930,362	976,845
Missouri River.....	43,537	52,662	55,294
Warrior River.....	120,370	103,900	114,650
Railroad.....	1,234,004	1,272,400	1,299,900

Based on single-count waterline tonnage estimates, total income for fiscal years 1953 and 1954 will average $4.05 and $4.17 per ton, respectively, as compared with $3.77 per ton in 1952. Expenses averaged $4.09 per ton in fiscal year 1952, and are estimated at $4.31 per ton in 1953 and $4.32 per ton in 1954.

Capital replacement program.—Since all of the capital stock authorized by Congress has been subscribed, the Corporation is entirely dependent on funds derived from operations for replacement of antiquated and worn-out floating equipment, thus precluding needed large-scale capital improvements.

Capital expenditures during fiscal 1952 totaled $1,395,251. The program for fiscal years 1953 and 1954 contemplates expenditures of $2,700,000 and $1,500,000, respectively. This projection includes a towboat for the Illinois River, barges, a locomotive, and miscellaneous additions and betterments to line and other equipment.

Lending activities.—The Corporation is authorized to make loans to States, municipalities, and transportation companies that will contribute to the improvement of transportation facilities along the inland waterways (49 U. S. C. 141). On June 30, 1952, one loan of $87,055 was outstanding to the Board of Commissioners, Port of New Orleans, a State authority. No new loans are contemplated during fiscal years 1953 and 1954.

Administrative expenses.—The Corporation is subject to the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission. Administrative expenses for water and railroad operations are those set forth under the title "General expenses" in the Commission's uniform system of accounts for carriers by water. Expenses in fiscal year 1954 are estimated to be $500,000, as compared with $481,200 and $477,685 in fiscal years 1953 and 1952, respectively.

FINANCIAL OPERATIONS

In fiscal 1952 $1 million was withdrawn from the general fund of the Treasury to increase the outstanding capital stock of the Corporation to the authorized limit, $15,000,000.

OPERATING RESULTS

A loss of $325,168 occurred in 1952 and a loss of $176,200 is expected in 1953. A profit of $95,000 is forecast for 1954. These results are summarized by operating divisions, as follows:

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Armed Forces of the United States have been engaged in combat operations in Korea during fiscal year 1953, and it is assumed in estimating budgetary requirements that such combat operations will continue during the remainder of fiscal year 1953. Even though Korea has extended into fiscal year 1953, our forces have remained stabilized at the 3.6 million level reached at the end of fiscal year 1952 and approximately the same force level is projected for the fiscal year 1954. Deliveries of major items of military equipment are increasing in this fiscal year, resulting largely from orders placed in 1951 and 1952 and, despite the Korean drain on our stock position, inventories of most items are sufficient to outfit our forces. In addition they are providing some measure of mobilization reserves.

The fiscal year 1954 budget for the Department of Defense provides funds for (1) full operation, training, and maintenance of active forces on a peacetime basis; (2) procurement of material and equipment necessary to equip and modernize the active forces; (3) procurement of limited mobilization reserves of military equipment and supplies, with maximum reliance placed on maintaining an expandible production base rather than on accumulation of stocks of end items; (4) initiation of a reserve tools and facilities program to eliminate the more dangerous gaps and deficiencies in the mobilization production base; (5) continuing the build-up of the 143-wing Air Force program and modern naval carrier forces and marine wings with limited reserves of aircraft and engines for the Air Force and naval aviation; (6) maintaining an active research and development program; and (7) essential military public works required to support the approved forces.

Military strength and structure.—The fiscal year 1954 Budget calls for continuing the maintenance of the slightly over 3.6 million strength provided in the 1953 Budget. Although the total strength at the end of fiscal year 1954 will be approximately the same as the strength reached at the end of fiscal year 1952, the number of Air Force combat wings will be increased by about 50 percent, and the combat readiness of all the Armed Forces is expected to increase as a result of intensified training and the delivery of modern equipment financed in previous years.

Army.—The Budget contains funds for 20 divisions toward the goal of 21 divisions, 18 regiments and regimental combat teams, and supporting elements. The Army estimates provide for an average strength of 1,555,200 on active duty, including personnel to continue the rotation policy in Korea, supplemented by an average strength of 291,000 in the National Guard and 225,000 in the Organized Reserve Corps in drill-pay status.

Navy.—The Budget will enable the Navy to maintain 904 combatant ships—408 warships and 496 other combatant vessels—and 296 auxiliary vessels, or a total of 1,200 active ships. This force will include 16 carrier air groups, 3 Marine air wings, and 3 Marine Corps divisions. The Navy estimates are based on an average strength of 807,000 on active duty in the Navy and 259,000 on active duty in the Marine Corps during fiscal year 1954, supplemented by an average strength of 146,000 Naval and 34,000 Marine Corps Reserves in drill-pay status.

Air Force.—The Budget will enable the Air Force to operate 133 wings by the end of fiscal year 1954 and continue the expansion toward the 143-wing approved objective, plus separate squadrons and related units. The Air Force estimates are based on an average strength of 1,047,000 on active duty during fiscal year 1954 and an average strength of 43,000 in the Air National Guard and 34,000 in the Air Force Reserve in drill-pay status.

Operation and maintenance.—A total of $10.3 billion has been requested to meet the costs of operating and maintaining the forces, weapons, equipment, and installations of the Army, Navy, Marines, and Air Force. No specific provision has been made for additional operating costs that might result from continuation of combat operations in Korea during fiscal year 1954.

Major procurement and production.—This Budget provides 14.2 billion dollars for the procurement and production of weapons and major items of equipment, such as aircraft, guided missiles, ships, ammunition, artillery, and electronic devices. More than half of this amount is for procurement of aircraft, with no new funds requested for tank procurement. In comparison, 22.8 billion dollars were provided for major procurement and production in 1951, 29.2 billion dollars in 1952, and 19.8 billion dollars in 1953. This decrease in new obligational authority takes into account the unexpended balances of prior year appropriations and production funds expected to be available from the mutual security program. Despite the decrease in new obligational authority, expenditures for major procurement and production are expected to reach a peak in fiscal year 1954 as increasing deliveries are received of the orders placed in 1951, 1952, and 1953 for aircraft, electronics, and similar type items. The funding requested in this Budget reflects the basic mobilization philosophy announced in 1951 of placing principal reliance on the capacity to expand production lines rather than on the accumulation of large stocks of military end items. The Budget includes $500 million for the procurement of tools and productive facilities needed to overcome existing critical deficiencies and to assure the continuing availability of a sound mobilization base. Additional funds may be required for fiscal year 1954 to cover the combat consumption and attrition of ammunition and military equipment, particularly if it appears that combat in Korea will continue beyond December 31, 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Secretary, assisted by his immediate staff, sets the objectives, determines the policies, and formulates the basic programs of the Department and supervises its operation. The Joint Chiefs of Staff and Joint Staff, the Armed Forces Policy Council, the Munitions Board, and the Research and Development Board, together with other staff agencies in certain specialized fields, advise and assist the Secretary.

1. Office of the Secretary activities.—These provide staff assistance to the Secretary and include the immediate Office of the Secretary and Deputy Secretary, Executive Office, Assistant Secretary (comptroller), Assistant Secretary (legal and legislative), Assistant Secretary (manpower and personnel), Assistant to the Secretary for International Security Affairs, Armed Forces Medical Policy Council, Director of Installations, Defense Management Staff, and the Director of Administration and Domestic Security.

Improvements in the fiscal management of the defense establishment have continued to be made in further implementation of title IV of the National Security Act. Working capital fund procedures have been installed at a total of 15 industrial and commercial-type military activities, and additional installations will be made as further experience is gained at these pilot installations. Increased attention will also be given to the development and refinement of military budget estimates and the review and analysis of the costs of international military assistance programs.

In the area of manpower and personnel, emphasis will be placed on optimum utilization of personnel to minimize the drain on the Nation's manpower resources. The development of an effective and aggressive reserve program will be undertaken by the Reserve Forces Policy Board, established pursuant to Public Law 476, Eighty-second Congress.

Complete surveillance over planning and construction by the military departments of all public works programs will be maintained by the Director of Installations, established pursuant to Public Law 534, Eighty-second Congress. The preparation of inventories of facilities in existence, under construction, and planned will be coordinated and policies developed for use and maintenance.

Collective security programs, such as the Inter-American Treaty of Reciprocal Assistance and the North Atlantic Treaty, will receive increased attention.

Other programs include domestic security planning, improvement of management procedures, and the development of long-range medical and health plans and policies for the Military Establishment.

2. Joint Chiefs of Staff and military activities.—These include (a) the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who serve as the principal military advisers to the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of Defense; (b) the Weapons Systems Evaluation Group, which makes operational and scientific analyses and evaluations of present and proposed weapons systems; and (c) the Military Liaison Committee to the Atomic Energy Commission, which provides liaison on matters concerning military applications of atomic energy and serves as the primary staff agency of the Secretary of Defense in atomic energy matters.

3. Munitions Board and industrial activities.—These include (a) the Munitions Board, which gives policy direction to the military departments on industrial matters, including procurement, production, and distribution plans; (b) the Defense Supply Management Agency, which directs the cataloging and standardization program; and (c) the Military Traffic Service, which provides policy and program direction in the field of traffic management. Emphasis will be given to eliminating duplication and unsound purchasing, facilitating cross servicing, and speeding the delivery of military equipment. The initial phases of the cataloging and standardization programs are expected to be completed by the end of fiscal year 1953 and will be on a current basis in fiscal year 1954. Continued action will be taken to insure the attainment of military production goals with a minimum of dislocation to the civilian economy. The expansion of industrial productive capacity to provide a broader mobilization base is a major objective.

4. Research and development activities.—These include (a) the Research and Development Board, which directs the over-all research and development program and provides technical advice with regard to trends in scientific research relating to national security and the measures necessary to assure increasing progress; and (b) the Office of Guided Missiles, which directs the Department's research, development, and production of guided missiles.

 funds are to provide reserve specialized military end-item production capacity of a long-lead-time character the lack of which would constitute a serious bottleneck in the event of full mobilization. Upon approval by the Secretary of Defense and the President, funds will be transferred to other appropriations for program execution. The authority to use up to $100,000,000 for the acquisition of existing privately owned facilities will enable the Department to preserve such vital facilities which might be otherwise lost as an effective and ready part of the military mobilization base.

The estimate provides for increasing the proportion of the enlisted personnel of the Army in the noncommissioned grades to approximately 45 percent by the end of fiscal year 1954.

2. Procurement of subsistence.—This provides for the cost of subsistence issued from the Army stock fund for enlisted personnel and for payment of commutation in lieu of subsistence in kind to enlisted personnel.

3. Individual clothing.—Provision is made for initial issue of clothing to enlisted personnel and for payment of a periodic maintenance allowance.

4. Travel of the Army.—This covers individual and group travel for all military personnel other than administrative travel. 5. Other military personnel costs.—Welfare and morale activities cover civilian personnel and supplies and equipment at Army installations to supplement the provision made from nonappropriated funds. Through information and education, Army personnel are furnished with factual material for understanding their responsibilities as soldiers and citizens and are given nonmilitary academic and vocational training. Provision is made for primary and secondary schooling of dependents of military and civilian personnel of the Army, outside the United States, at an average cost of $250 per pupil, including tuition payments and the operating expenses of schools conducted by the Army. Chaplain's needs cover chapel equipment and religious supplies. Provision is made for the return of escaped military prisoners, deserters, and soldiers absent without leave; interest on soldiers' deposits; death payments to beneficiaries of military personnel; and issues of awards and medals.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for all essential maintenance and operational activities of the Army.

Procurement deals with such equipment and supplies as photographic and meteorological equipment; chemicals; ordnance racks, tools, and targets; special weather and field clothing; aerial delivery equipment; tentage; engineer tools, cables, pumps, drawing sets, construction and maintenance materials, topographic equipment, and camouflage and field fortification equipment. Operational costs include petroleum, oil, and lubricants for troop units and expenses of field maneuvers.

2. Training.—This supports the Army War College; the Command and General Staff College; combat arms, technical service, and other schools; replacement training centers; and the United States Military Academy. Included are training at civilian institutions and training aids, films, and publications applicable to this activity.

3. Command and management.—This provides for civilian personnel and other expenses of headquarters at the Department of the Army in Washington, the six Army areas, the Military District of Washington, Army Field Forces, antiaircraft commands, overseas commands, and intermediate major command headquarters.

4. Supply distribution system.—Military supplies and equipment are received, stored, and issued, through the operation of 69 depots within the United States and 68 depots within overseas commands. Depot maintenance activities, including rebuilding and major overhaul of unserviceable equipment, are performed at depots and two railroad repair shops. Repair parts are procured for Army stocks. Support is provided for standardization and cataloging. Standardization consists of preparation of standards, specifications, and qualified products lists, and includes standardization of equipment and specification conversion. Cataloging consists of cataloging for the Army supply system and the Army's contribution to a uniform cataloging system for all the military services and General Services Administration.

5. Army-wide services.—These consist of the Army communications network; finance center and finance offices; Army Audit Agency, including regional offices; real estate activities and engineer planning; and other Army-wide activities such as Adjutant General depots, disciplinary barracks, and reception centers.

6. Medical care.—This covers (a) medical support of the Army, National Guard, Army Reserve, and Reserve

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for procurement of major equipment and supplies necessary to equip, train, and maintain 20 active divisions and the reserve forces in 1954, and to provide additional stocks of equipment and supplies required for mobilization reserves.

Maximum reliance is being placed on continuation of a flexible production base capable of expansion rather than on the accumulation of large reserves of supplies. Production lines are to be run at a high rate until the immediate equipment objectives are supplied. After that, production will be slowed to a minimum rate in order to sustain active production lines as long as possible without exceeding mobilization reserve requirements.

A significant share of production in 1954 will be financed from mutual security assistance programs, including reimbursements for items delivered from Army stocks.

1. Weapons.—New obligations for such items as tanks and combat vehicles, artillery, and small arms will be below the level of 1953. During 1954, or soon thereafter, production of most items included in this activity will be reduced to a minimum industrial sustaining level.

2. Vehicles (support).—New obligations for tactical trucks and other noncombat vehicles will be less than in 1953. By the end of 1954, production of most items included in this activity will have been reduced to a minimum industrial sustaining rate. Purchase of commercial and passenger-carrying vehicles will be limited to replacement requirements, including substitutions for military-type vehicles in certain tactical units.

3. Electronics and communications equipment.—Provision is made for procurement of radio and radar equipment. Production of most items will be reduced to the lowest economical rate in 1954, or soon thereafter. There will be some procurement of long lead-time components rather than completed end items.

4. Ammunition and guided missiles.—Ammunition procurement will continue at a high level in view of consumption in Korea and will provide also for increases in mobilization reserves.

5. Other major procurement.—This includes such items as railroad, harbor, roadbuilding, and materials-handling equipment and bridges and generators.

6. Army aircraft.—The principal increase in requirements reflected in these estimates is for transport helicopters. Procurement of liaison aircraft and airborne targets is also included.

7. Provision of production facilities.—Provision is made for facilities required for items on which production is being initiated and for costs of preservation in stand-by status of tools and facilities withdrawn from active production. There are included, also, small amounts for production engineering measures and mobilization production preparedness measures. Procurement of additional reserve machine tools and facilities is not included in this estimate, inasmuch as Defense-wide requirements are included in a single request for the Department of Defense.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for the Army Reserve and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

1. Army Reserve.—This covers pay and allowances, travel, subsistence, individual clothing, and other miscellaneous personnel costs for armory drills and active duty training. Personnel assigned to Reserve units attend armory drills and receive 15 days active-duty training. Reservists not assigned to units receive only active-duty training. Additional training at service schools is provided for selected members of units. The planned personnel strength of Reserve units is as follows:

Officer	56,939	49,956	52,000
Enlisted	97,877	84,981	148,000

Enlisted	91,429	116,490	166,500
Total	144,876	167,470	225,000

In fiscal year 1954 the distribution of these personnel by paid drill category is as follows:

	Beginning		Ending		Average
	Officers	Enlisted	Officers	Enlisted	Officers	Enlisted
48 paid drills	25,000	100,000	30,000	120,000	27,500	110,000

In addition to the members of units, it is planned to give 15-day active-duty training to 2,500 unassigned officers and 173,000 unassigned enlisted personnel.

2. Reserve Officers' Training Corps.—This covers pay and allowances (including commutation in lieu of subsistence at 90 cents per day at institutions for advanced course students) and travel, subsistence, and individual clothing at institutions and summer camps. Senior division units will be maintained in 237 institutions, the same number as in 1952 and 1953. The estimate provides for 114,233 students in the basic course, of which 66,000 would be entering the first year, and for 45,269 advanced students. From this number, 19,600 are expected to be commissioned in 1954, as compared to 13,000 in 1952 and 15,000 in 1953. An estimated 22,000 will attend summer camp in 1954. Provision is also made for 133 junior ROTC units with an aggregate enrollment of 60,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

National Guard personnel are trained in their respective units in 48 armory drills, including three 2-day week-end drills, and 15 days summer field training. In addition, selected personnel receive specialized training at Army schools. The States, Territories, and the District of Columbia also support the Army National Guard in the provision and maintenance of armories.

In fiscal year 1954, the number of local units will increase from 5,160 to 5,380 which will complete the unit organization program. The structure of major units will be maintained at 27 divisions together with combat support units. The estimate provides for strength as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for basic and applied scientific research and for the development and improvement of weapons and equipment for the various types of military operations for which the Army must be prepared. The work is carried on under contracts with industry and other private institutions, and in the research, development, and test facilities operated by the Army and other Government agencies. In 1954 emphasis will continue to be placed on programs designed to lower costs of equipment and to minimize the use of strategic materials.

1. Land combat matériel and techniques.—Developments include new and improved tanks, antitank weapons, surface-to-surface guided missiles, land mines and mine warfare equipment, flame warfare equipment, and ammunition.

2. Air defense matériel and techniques.—Developments include new and improved anti-aircraft guns and ammunition, surface-to-air guided missiles, and electronic search, detection, and fire-control equipment.

3. Airborne landing, amphibious, and supply and maintenance matériel and techniques.—Developments include matériel for aerial supply, new types of cargo helicopters, heavy drop equipment, special vehicles for marshy and swampy terrain, vehicles suitable for operations under arctic conditions, and equipment for overbeach operations.

4. Atomic, biological and chemical warfare matériel.

5. Personnel, intelligence, and planning operations.—Developments include rations, clothing, personal equipment, body armor, and survival aids for use under extreme climatic conditions; training aids for new weapons and equipment; and techniques to improve the classification and utilization of manpower. This activity also covers research on the treatment of wartime casualties and diseases of special military significance, and research on problems of strategy, tactics, and logistics to plan the development and use of new weapons on the most economical basis consistent with combat requirements.

6. Supporting research and other operations.—This covers research and development of general application to Army requirements.

7. Boards, testing.—The four boards of the Army Field Forces test and evaluate the tactical suitability of newly developed weapons and equipment.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation finances the operating costs of naval aviation, which consists of the air combat forces of the Regular Navy and Marine Corps, supporting service and training forces, the Naval and Marine Air Reserve, all air weapons and air techniques, aeronautical research and development, naval air stations, and related other shore facilities.

1 and 2. Flight operations, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—Flight operations are programed for 1954 at 1953 force strengths for major units, projected at peacetime flying rates, but reflect the impact of a larger percentage of combat operating complements to be comprised of modern high-performance aircraft in 1954.

3 and 4. Aircraft overhaul, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—Provision is made for an overhaul workload to accord with operating strength and level of flight operations programed for 1954. Workload and unit cost factors are based on 1952 experience but reflect prices current at July 1, 1952, wherever price changes have occurred.

5 and 6. Station operations, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—General operating and maintenance costs of Regular and Reserve Navy and Marine Corps stations, whose missions are predominantly air, are budgeted for 1954 at their 1953 levels except where provision has been made for expanded research and development, increased pilot training, or additional overseas operations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization area.

7. Alteration and replacement of facilities.—Provision is made for essential major repairs and limited replacements of structural facilities, landing aids, shop equipment, and ground electronics installations.

8. Research and development.—This concerns the development of new and improved types of aircraft, guided missiles, power plants, electronic equipment, related components, and supporting equipment.

9. Industrial mobilization.—During 1954, the development of new production methods will be undertaken with the objective of speeding up the rate of production and of lowering procurement costs.

10. Guided missile outfitting.—The program of outfitting the naval aeronautical organization for missile operations, commenced in 1953, will be extended in 1954 to outfit a large number of the Navy's major air combat units.

11. Supporting equipment, matériel, and services.—Fleet operations are supported by the procurement of weather instruments, flight trainers, submarine detection matériel, specialized flight clothing, technical publications, essential ground equipment, and photographic equipment. Evaluation of newly developed electronic equipment, maintenance of shipboard catapults and arresting gear, and inspection of newly procured aircraft and equipment also are included.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Procurement of new aircraft for the Navy and Marine Corps is financed under this appropriation, together with airborne weapons, guided missiles, target drones, training equipment, and aircraft modernization.

1. Aircraft procurement.—The number of aircraft to be procured in 1954 has been limited to replacements needed to maintain the programmed strength. Replacements required are based on attrition, obsolescence, and normal aircraft service life in relation to projected operating forces.

2. Ordnance for new aircraft.—Requirements for guns, bombsights, and fire-control equipment are directly related to the specific models and numbers of aircraft to be procured.

3. Guided missile and target drone procurement.—Procurement of guided missiles for fleet usage accounts for the major portion of the 1954 estimate. The balance of the estimate relates to procurement of target drones for fleet training and to evaluation quantities of newly developed guided missile and target drone models that are now ready for technical and service evaluation.

4. Technical equipment for service training.—Prior to the introduction of new models of aircraft and equipment into fleet units, personnel must be trained in their operation and maintenance. The 1954 estimate covers procurement of advanced types of service equipment and contemplates more effective training at the advanced specialized level.

5. Aircraft modernization.—Whenever practicable, aircraft in inventory are modernized to meet current operational needs in order to reduce requirements for replacement aircraft. The useful service life of many types of aircraft can be extended substantially by this procedure. The 1954 modernization program eliminates the need for certain new replacement aircraft which otherwise would have had to be provided in the 1954 budget.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administrative headquarters for naval districts, bases, and stations.—This is for support of the district headquarters, bases, and stations which direct, coordinate, and supervise the Naval Shore Establishment.

2. Service-wide communications.—The naval communication system, a combination of leased and Government-owned communication facilities, supplies rapid and secure world-wide communications to the naval operating forces and the Naval Shore Establishment. Greater emphasis on rapidity of communications is planned by adapting proven commercial automatic switching equipment to the system.

3. Hydrographic Office.—Hydrographic and oceanographic charts and publications essential for safe navigation and special tactical and strategic projects for the Department of Defense are produced, stocked, and distributed.

4. Naval Observatory.—Astronomical data are supplied for safe navigation, accurate time is determined, and time signals and time transmissions are controlled, not only for the Navy, but for the Nation. Continuous astronomical observations and research are conducted for the general advancement of navigation and astronomy.

5. Inter-American affairs and support of international projects.—Hemispheric defense is improved by standardization of equipment, training, and operation of Latin-American navies in accordance with United States Navy standards. Provision is also made for naval support of international commands.

6. Departmental administration.—Provision is made for expenses incurred at the seat of government by the Offices of (a) the Chief of Naval Operations in commanding the operating forces, (b) the Judge Advocate General in providing legal services for the Naval Establishment, and (c) the Secretary of the Navy in directing and supervising the Department.

7. Printing equipment.—Provision is made for equipment for the operation of the Defense Printing Service—Washington and the Navy Printing Service—Field, both of which operate under the Navy industrial fund.

8. Field services.—Provision is made for expenses incurred in the field by the Executive Office of the Secretary in administering the Navy-wide records administration, wage and classification, Fleet Home Town News, and internal audit programs.

9. Contingencies of the Navy.—Expenditures for emergencies and for extraordinary requirements are provided for upon the approval of the Secretary.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Naval petroleum reserves set aside by Executive order to be administered by the Navy provide a supplemental emergency source of oil for national defense. Reserve No. 1, Elk Hills, Calif., is being developed to increase productive capacity. Reserve No. 2, Buena Vista Hills, Calif., is entirely under lease. Reserve No. 3, Teapot Dome, Wyo., is being explored by test wells to determine the recoverable oil in the deeper zones. Intensive geological and geophysical work and drilling have located oil and natural gas in parts of reserve No. 4, Alaska, but further exploration is required before a reasonable evaluation of the oil and gas prospects of the reserve can be made. The program at the oil shale reserves currently involves only custody and minor surveys.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for (a) procurement of new aircraft and guided missiles with initial spares and supporting equipment, (b) expansion of the aircraft industry, (c) modernization of in-service aircraft, (d) procurement and production administration, and (e) industrial mobilization activities.

1. Aircraft and related procurement.—New aircraft are procured in relation to the projected aircraft inventory required to support currently planned forces, estimated aircraft losses, obsolescence of aircraft in the inventory, and development of new models. This activity also provides for modernization of in-service aircraft and production facilities for expansion and maintenance of an industrial base. The 1954 program will complete the 143-wing Air Force and provide primarily for the expansion of facilities only as required for new models of aircraft. Procurement and production administration funds support (1) procurement administration, (2) quality control, and (3) audit of costs incurred by contractor in the performance of contracts.

Aircraft and Related Procurement, Air Force—Continued

2. Guided missiles.—Guided missiles and associated equipment are procured to increase the combat capabilities of the Air Force in air defense, strategic air and tactical air operations.

3. Industrial mobilization.—The industrial mobilization estimate supports plans to achieve rapid mass production in event of war, and improved manufacturing processes, including the elimination or reduction of the use of critical materials.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for ammunition and major items of equipment required by the Air Force, the Air Force Reserves, the Air National Guard (long lead time items only), and the Air ROTC. Substantial reliance is placed on continuation of a flexible production base capable of expansion rather than solely on accumulating large stocks of ammunition and equipment. Reductions have been effected in previous equipment allowances for units and air bases. This has served partially to offset additional requirements for the new units and air bases to be activated.

1. Weapons and ammunition.—Ammunition is provided for a limited combat reserve, for peacetime training of aircrews, and for service test of new types of ammunition. No provision is made for additional small arms.

2. Ground-powered and marine equipment.—Provision is made for general and special-purpose vehicles, railroad rolling stock, construction equipment, and materials-handling equipment. No procurement of passenger vehicles nor utility or rescue boats is contemplated.

3. Electronics and communications equipment.—Provision is made for ground electronic equipment, airborne radio and radar equipment for aircraft not factory equipped, navigational aids, equipment for the global communications system, the aircraft control and warning system, tactical control systems, communications security systems, and organizational and base communications equipment.

4. Training equipment.—Provision is made for major nonexpendable training aids, including mobile training units, counterpart training devices, radio and radar trainers, and aerial targets and related equipment.

5. Other major equipment.—Provision is made for meteorological, radiological, photographic, test, flying field, shop, utilities, food service, and laundry and dry-cleaning equipment required for tactical units, air bases, depot, and airfield support.

Payment of commutation in lieu of subsistence will be at the rate of 90 cents per day for an average yearly number of 30,500 first-year and 15,200 second-year advanced students. Travel to and from camp, subsistence and clothing while at camp, and pay at the rate of $2.60 per day per cadet is provided.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was created under the National Security Act, as amended (5 U. S. C. 172d), to finance inventories of materials and equipment. Income is derived from sales to authorized purchasers.

The fund presently consists of the clothing and equipage division and the defense supply service division which finances administrative supplies and equipment for the Department of Defense, Washington, D. C. The subsistence division and the medical-dental division will be established July 1, 1953; financial statements for these two new divisions appear for the first time in this Budget. Additional divisions to finance inventories in other categories of supplies and equipment in the Department of the Army will be established as rapidly as possible. The four divisions operating in 1954 will finance inventories only in depots in the United States. The extension of divisions of the stock fund to include inventories at posts, camps, and stations is under study and may be initiated before the end of 1954.

The mobilization reserve stocks of clothing and equipage, subsistence, and medical and dental supplies included in the fund are expected to increase from $683 million in 1952 to $1,450 million by the end of 1954. The increase results primarily from the appropriation of $70,000,000 and capitalization of the assets of the wool fund and the duck and webbing pool of the Department of Defense in the clothing and equipage division in 1953, and from capitalization of subsistence stocks in the subsistence division and medical and dental materials in the medical-dental division in 1954.

The Government's investment in the fund at the end of 1954 will consist of $354,600,000 reappropriated from unexpended balances of various appropriations, $70,000,000 appropriated directly to the fund, $3,008,380,997 donated assets representing inventories capitalized by the fund and $14,511,089 in retained earnings.

Defense Production Guarantees, Army—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guarantees are authorized on loans made by private and public financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Revenues from guaranty fees and interest on purchased loans are used to pay administrative expenses and to purchase, when necessary, guaranteed portions of loans. Net earnings are currently being retained to meet possible future losses. From time to time and at the conclusion of the guaranteed loan program, funds in excess of determined requirements will be transferred to "Miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury." Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use (Defense Production Act of 1950, sec. 301).

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY

Defense Production Guarantees, Navy—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guarantees are authorized on loans made by private and public financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Revenues from guaranty fees and interest on purchased loans are used to pay administrative expenses and to purchase, when necessary, guaranteed portions of loans. Net earnings are currently being retained to meet possible future losses. From time to time and at the conclusion of the guaranteed loan program, funds in excess of determined requirements will be transferred to "Miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury." Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use (Defense Production Act of 1950, sec. 301).

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was created under the National Security Act, as amended (5 U. S. C. 172d) to finance industrial- and commercial-type activities on a reimbursable basis. The Secretary of Defense designates the activities to be financed through the fund. The activities at present include:

1. Defense printing service, Washington, D. C.
2. Military sea transportation service.
3. Navy printing service.
4. Naval clothing factory (clothing manufacturing division), Brooklyn, N. Y.
5. Naval shipyard, Philadelphia, Pa.
6. Naval ordnance plant, York, Pa.

The Navy printing service, the naval shipyard, Philadelphia, Pa., and the naval clothing factory, Brooklyn, N. Y., appear in the financial statements for the first time in this Budget.

The principal of the fund consists of $212,125,000 reappropriated from unexpended balances of various appropriations, and $213,019 in net donated assets representing inventories acquired with the transfer of activities to the fund.

Of the $212,125,000 reappropriated through the end of fiscal year 1952, $125,050,000 had been allocated to the operating activities listed above, leaving a balance of $87,075,000 available for allocation. Adjustment of $55,000,000 in these allocations during fiscal year 1953 will increase this balance to $142,075,000. From this balance, allocations will be made to provide working capital for the following additional activities proposed to be financed under the fund:

- Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, D. C.
- Naval Powder Factory, Indian Head, Md.
- Three naval ordnance plants.
- Six naval shipyards.
- Marine clothing factory, Philadelphia, Pa.
- Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was created under the National Security Act, as amended (5 U. S. C. 172e), to facilitate the financing of operations supported by two or more appropriations. The corpus of the fund consists of $1,000,000 transferred from the naval procurement fund. Principal operations financed in this manner are the consolidated district printing plants; the material inspection service; departmental telephone and maintenance services; cash awards for employee's suggestions; the Electronics Production Resources Agency, which coordinates the production and allocation of electronics equipment for the Department of Defense; and the central publications distribution system.

Appropriation or estimate (obligations incurred)—1952, $450,000,000.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances the procurement of stocks of general stores material, vehicular equipment repair parts, special shipboard electrical fittings and fixtures, special clothing, clothing and small stores, ships' store and commissary store stock, medical and dental supplies, subsistence, fuels, lubricants, and petroleum drums, including first destination transportation. Income is derived from sales to authorized users (5 U. S. C. 172d). The fund maintains mobilization reserve stocks against requirements which will exceed the capacity of industry in the early phase of mobilization.

The Government investment in the fund consists of $1,628,077,216 of appropriated money, $426,672,957 of net donated assets, and $265,574,537 of retained earnings. Retained earnings include $166,409,684 which reflects a net upward adjustment of standard prices to cover current costs of replacement and will be reduced by downward adjustments in periods of declining prices; and $99,164,853 which is needed for working capital.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was created under the National Security Act, as amended (5 U. S. C. 172d), to finance procurement and supply of materials and equipment. Income is derived from sales to authorized purchasers.

The fund finances procurement of individual clothing and includes mobilization reserve stocks of these items. In fiscal years 1953 and 1954, procurement will be substantially less than anticipated sales in order to reduce and balance inventories. Assets of the Department of Defense wool fund were capitalized in the clothing division in the amount of $58,800,000 in 1953.

The Government's investment in the fund consists of $156,300,000 reappropriated from unexpended balances of various appropriations and $261,026,640 of net donated assets. A deficit of $59,171,504 reflects inventory revaluation of -$65,284,239 and a gain from operations of $6,112,735.

This fund presently consists of a clothing division with estimated cash assets of $91,783,833 at the end of fiscal year 1953. From this balance it is expected allocations will be made in 1954 to provide working capital for establishing divisions of the fund for petroleum products and other major supply categories.

Guarantees are authorized on loans made by private and public financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Revenues from guaranty fees and interest on purchased loans are used to pay administrative expenses and to purchase, when necessary, guaranteed portions of loans. Net earnings are currently being retained to meet possible future losses. From time to time and at the conclusion of the guaranteed loan program, funds in excess of determined requirements will be transferred to "Miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury." Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use (Defense Production Act of 1950, sec. 301).

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Procurement of headstones.—It is planned to procure about 116,600 headstones in 1954 at the average cost currently being paid ($19.60). Requirements in 1954 compare to 64,911 headstones estimated to be purchased from funds available in 1953 and 72,478 purchased in 1952. Requirements for 1954 include approximately 40,000 applications to be brought forward from 1953.

2. Construction and acquisition of land.—Projects planned include development of presently owned cemetery lands in three active cemeteries to enable continuance of burials for the next 5 years; installation of drainage lines, structures, and erosion-preventive revetments in four cemeteries, which are required for protection of existing burial areas and recovery of gravesites not now usable; extension of cemetery drives to areas now required for burials in two cemeteries. In addition, construction of boundary enclosure fences is planned for the protection of Government property.

3. Maintenance and operation.—Provision is made for electric, water, and gas service; for maintenance under contract of 8 national cemeteries, 22 soldiers lots, and 12 Confederate cemeteries; and for contractual maintenance of vehicles, power, and interment equipment. Contractual buildings, grounds, and facilities maintenance that cannot be performed by cemetery caretaker forces is included. This estimate also provides for operation expenses of 85 national cemeteries containing 1,759 developed acres. On June 30, 1952, there were 565,210 gravesites used and 361,451 developed and available for interments. Additional burials, exclusive of Korean deaths, are estimated to be 18,373 and 20,363 for the fiscal years 1953 and 1954, respectively.

[CORPS OF ENGINEERS]

RIVERS AND HARBORS AND FLOOD CONTROL

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Corps of Engineers improves and maintains rivers and harbors throughout the continental United States, Puerto Rico, Alaska, the Virgin Islands, and the Hawaiian Islands in the interests of navigation, control of floods, related hydroelectric power development, and allied water uses, including the protection and preservation of navigable waters.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $661.5 million, representing an increase of $99.6 million compared with the current fiscal year, and an increase of $45.3 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase is primarily attributed to the fact that a number of multiple-purpose projects with power installations have reached the stage where large appropriations are required to maintain economical construction schedules. Approximately 81 percent of the requested appropriations will be applied to construction.

[The following appropriations for rivers and harbors and flood control shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers, and shall remain available until expended: Provided, That the various appropriations for rivers and harbors and flood control may be used for examination of estimates of appropriations in the field; purchase not to exceed two hundred passenger motor vehicles for replacement only in the current fiscal year and hire of passenger motor vehicles and purchase of one motorboat (to be acquired from surplus stock where practicable) and the maintenance, repair, and operation of aircraft: Provided further, That the reservoir formed by the Blakely Mountain Dam, Arkansas, shall hereafter be designated as "Lake Ouachita", and the reservoir formed by the Narrows Dam, Arkansas, shall hereafter be designated as "Lake Greeson": Provided further, That the project known as "Burr Oak Dam, Ohio", shall hereafter be designated as the "Tom Jenkins Dam, Ohio": Provided further, That $125,000 of the funds appropriated herein may be used for providing a suitable access road and bridge from the town of Blum, Texas, to the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad station, relocated in connection with the construction of the Whitney Dam and Reservoir project: Provided further, That not to exceed $250,000 of the funds appropriated herein may be expended for providing a suitable access road from United States Highway 70 north to the bridge built upon and across the Center Hill Dam in DaKalb County, Tennessee: Provided further, That not more than $40,000 of the amount herein appropriated shall be available for expenditure, in addition to funds heretofore made available for the Garrison Dam and Reservoir project on the Missouri River, to pay to lawful occupants of properties within the towns of Elbowoods, Sanish and Van Hook, North Dakota, for their improvements which will be rendered useless by the construction of the project, but for which compensation may not be made under existing law because of the occupants' limited right of occupancy: Provided further, That payment in each case shall be limited to the fair value of the improvements, or the cost of moving such improvements to the site of the new combined town, whichever is less, as determined by the Secretary of the Army: Provided further, That funds appropriated shall not be expended for the payment of business losses or other losses incident to the acquisition of lands for this project.] (Civil Functions Appropriation Act, 1953.)

The following appropriations shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for authorized civil functions of the Department of the Army pertaining to rivers and harbors, flood control, beach erosion, and related purposes:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Examinations and surveys.—Preliminary examinations and surveys for navigation and flood-control improvements are made to determine the need and economic justification of the proposed improvements. These studies are made in cooperation with appropriate Federal and State agencies and will be restricted to a limited number of high-priority projects.

In addition, special and general beach erosion investigations are conducted. Special investigations at specific localities are paid for equally by the Federal Government and by State and other local agencies. General investigations along the coast are made entirely at Federal expense.

Special studies are made in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies in the interest of navigation, flood control, power, and related purposes. Included in this activity are the New England-New York resources survey; the Arkansas-White and Red River Basins survey; San Francisco Bay area survey; and survey of Great Lakes levels.

2. Other study programs.—Funds are made available to the Weather Bureau for hydrometeorological studies and for the hydrologic network of precipitation stations and to the Geological Survey for installation, operation, and maintenance of stream gaging stations. Funds are also made available to the Fish and Wildlife Service to investigate the effect of flood control and river and harbor projects of the Corps of Engineers upon fish and wildlife and to recommend corrective measures. Flood studies are made to provide essential general data for use in future design and operation of projects and for flood fighting.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The appropriation requested for this activity amounts to $491.3 million, and represents an increase of $82 million compared with the current fiscal year and an increase of $53.7 million compared with the preceding fiscal year.

Detailed information schedules are included under the old appropriation accounts "Maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbor works," and "Flood control, general," showing the actual funds by project and activity which were unobligated at the end of fiscal year 1952 and the application of those funds by project and activity in the current fiscal year. While unobligated balances in varying amounts annually are inevitable in the prosecution of a large construction program of this character, they do not represent changes in program goals.

Provision is made in the appropriation language limiting the use of funds for certain Columbia Basin projects to amounts now or hereafter authorized to be appropriated.

The status of the program on June 30, 1952, is shown on the following table. The number and total cost of projects shown as "Balance authorized" includes a number of projects which are parts of approved comprehensive basin plans but which may not fall within existing monetary authorizations. At the present time the actual monetary authorization for appropriations after fiscal year 1954 is $3,195 million as compared with the total balance of cost to complete all approved projects of $10,660.6 million.

1. Advance planning.—Design studies are made to establish project features, and cost estimates and contract plans and specifications are prepared for construction. The requested appropriation for advance planning amounts to $3.5 million, compared with an appropriation of $1.3 million in 1953 and $1.5 million in 1952. During 1951 and 1952, planning was accomplished only on projects found by the President to be essential to the defense effort. This curtailment in planning activities resulted in the availability of sufficient funds for the current year to restore the program to a more normal level. The requested increase in 1954 will maintain this level.

2. Navigation projects.—This includes improvement of channels and harbors, construction of locks, dams, and canals, and construction of shore-protection works. With the requested appropriation of $40.8 million, construction will be continued on seven channel and harbor projects and three locks, dams, and canals. Construction will be initiated on new sections of five channel and harbor projects and features, and one lock and dam. The new channel and harbor projects are the New York and New Jersey Channels; Redwood City Harbor, Calif.; Portland Harbor, Maine; Duluth-Superior Harbor, Minn.-Wis.; and Galveston Harbor and Channel, Tex. The first four are deep-draft river and harbor projects essential to the defense effort. The new work to be started on the Galveston Harbor and Channel project, Tex., consists of an extension of the existing sea wall which protects a highly developed urban area. The Warrior Lock and Dam project, Ala., will provide a new lock to replace two obsolete locks constructed 50 years ago which are now structurally unsound.

3. Flood-control projects.—This includes local protection projects and flood-control reservoirs without power installations. Local protection projects consist of construction of channel improvements, levees, and flood walls. Included in this activity is the local protection project on the Sacramento River, Calif., which provides for the protection of approximately 800,000 acres of land in the Sacramento River Valley, including the cities of Sacramento and Marysville and other communities. The project involves the reconstruction of old levees, construction of new levees, channel improvements, and bank protection measures.

Provision is made for the removal of accumulated snags and other debris and the clearing and straightening of channels in navigable streams and tributaries when such work is necessary in the interest of flood control. Provision is also made for the construction of emergency bank protection works to prevent flood damage to highways, bridge approaches, and public works, and for the construction of small flood-control projects not specifically authorized by Congress.

The requested appropriation of $116.1 million for flood-control projects represents an increase of $20 million compared with the current fiscal year, and a decrease of $15.6 million compared with 1952. Construction will be continued on 52 projects, of which 7 will be substantially completed in 1954. Four new local protection projects and one new flood-control reservoir project are included for construction. Included in this group of new projects is Little Missouri River below Murfreesboro, Ark.; Sny Basin, Ill.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Wheeling-Benwood, W. Va.; and Toronto Reservoir, Kans. Of the new appropriation, 65 percent will be used to finance the work on major projects as shown on the following table:

4. Multiple-purpose projects including power.—Construction will be continued on 23 multiple-purpose projects with power installations. An appropriation of $327 million is required to keep construction of power developments on schedule. This represents an increase of $50.9 million compared with the current fiscal year and an increase of $51.5 million compared with 1952. The increase is due mainly to the increased requirements for several of the large projects which have reached their peak years of construction activity. Six multiple-purpose projects with power will be substantially completed in 1954. Work will be initiated on Ice Harbor Lock and Dam, Wash., which is required to aid in supplying power to defense facilities. Of the new appropriation, 94 percent will be used to finance the work on 19 major projects as shown on the following table:

5. Lower Columbia River fish sanctuary program.—A plan to counteract the expected damage to the fisheries resulting from the construction of major dams has been developed by the Fish and Wildlife Service together with the fisheries departments of the States of Oregon and Washington. The program consists of stream improvements, transplanting of salmon runs to improved streams, and the construction and operation of additional hatcheries. Funds in the amount of $3.95 million are included for allocation to the Fish and Wildlife Service to continue this program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The appropriation requested for operation and maintenance of Corps of Engineers projects and for emergency operations is $90 million. This represents an increase of $5.2 million compared with the current fiscal year and a decrease of $28.2 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase over the current fiscal year is primarily due to additional facilities being placed in an operation and maintenance status. The decrease compared with the preceding fiscal year is a result of the special appropriations for emergency flood fighting and repair necessitated in that year by the disastrous floods on the Missouri and Kansas Rivers.

1. Navigation.—The operation and maintenance of essential channels and harbors and operation and care of locks and dams at 29 projects will be continued in fiscal year 1954. Surveys of the northern and northwestern lakes to obtain data for charts and bulletins essential for safe navigation will be continued.

2. Flood control.—Ninety-two flood control reservoirs and 33 local protection projects constructed under the 1938 Flood Control Act will be operated and maintained in 1954.

3. Multiple-purpose projects, including power.—The facilities of 26 multiple-purpose projects with an actual installed capacity at the end of fiscal year 1954 of 1,934,800 kilowatts will be operated and maintained. Funds are requested for the first time for eight projects of this type.

4. Lower Columbia River fish sanctuary program.—Funds are allocated to the Fish and Wildlife Service for operation and maintenance of hatcheries and other facilities of this program.

5. Emergency operations.—Wrecks and other obstructions which are a menace to safe navigation are marked and removed. Work is accomplished under section 3 of the River and Harbor Act, March 2, 1945, to protect, clear, and straighten channels of navigable waters and their tributaries. Provision is made for rescue work or for the repair, restoration, or maintenance of any flood-control work threatened or destroyed by flood.
